

Haulers strike, hoping to close steel plants

United Press International. The Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers went on strike at midnight Friday, hoping to shut down the nation's steel industry. However, effects of the walkout, many were not expected to be felt until next week. Drivers began pulling their trucks off the highways shortly before midnight, FASH President Bill Hill said, but could not say how many drivers are participating in the walkout.

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which has been involved in bitter and violent battles with FASH before, ordered its drivers to continue to work and ignore the strike call. "We will do whatever is necessary," said Thomas L. Fagan, president of Teamsters Joint Council 40 in western Pennsylvania. "We know there is a certain amount of danger, but we are going to defend ourselves, our honor and our integrity and not let a couple of punks run us off the road."

The Ohio Highway Patrol and the Pennsylvania State Police have established contingency plans to deal with any violence. The Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers is made up of drivers who own their own rigs. Its membership rolls have never been revealed, but estimates range up to 30,000. Any strike by FASH drivers also was expected affected New York, Alabama and Indiana. Bill Hill, president of FASH, warned that the organization could shut down every steel mill from the east coast to the Mississippi River. "We figure on getting about 60 percent participation this week and by next week we expect to be overwhelming," he said. Hill has set forth a series of demands, including an exemption from the anti-trust laws so independent haulers can bargain collectively and to allow independent truckers to contract with major steel joining firms without being forced to join the Teamsters. "If some of our drivers get together and decide they need a 25 percent wage hike then we are in violation of the anti-trust laws," Hill said.

"If our drivers want to bail for a major trucking company they have to join the Teamsters and if they drop out they are fired," he said. "We are in a no-man's land. We are damned if we do and damned if we don't. We are fighting for our rights and have no other way to fight for them."

But trucking executives and Teamsters officials alike are determined to oppose the strike. "The 140,000-member Ohio Conference of Teamsters has warned its members not to risk your job or your rig by joining a wildcat strike."

"Don't believe the phony line handed you by Bill Hill and the FASH-ists," the conference said. "You can't ruin anything from an illegal shutdown and you may end up losing everything."

Peace talks at crucial point

Both sides blaming other for problems

By United Press International Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin Friday swapped blame for new "problems" in the Washington peace talks and both sides warned the negotiations could break down. The State Department announced Begin would meet with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance in New York Sunday.

Begin summoned his top two negotiators from Washington to Toronto for three hours of talks. He refused to speak to reporters afterwards but Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan reaffirmed Israel's strong opposition to any move to link a peace treaty with an overall Middle East settlement.

Dayan also acknowledged the Israeli stand might lead to a breakdown in the four-week negotiations with Egypt. "If President Sadat wants to stop the negotiations, that's absolutely within his power to do," he said.

"The nature of the problem is (Sadat's) new instructions. He wants link the treaty with autonomy for the Palestinians."

"We agreed at Camp David to do both, we hope for a comprehensive treaty. What we don't want to do is mix the two or make one conditional on the other."

In Cairo, Sadat said he would not be surprised if the talks collapsed. Speaking to reporters who crowded around him following dawn prayers held in observance of All Adha, the Muslim feast of sacrifice, Sadat said when asked if the negotiations may come to a halt, "I shall not be astonished."

"Believe me, after the latest Israeli attitude one can never say anything. The situation is very difficult."

He said President Carter supports him on the necessity of making the treaty an eventual Palestinian settlement, adding "With God's will we shall impose freedom on the land of Palestine if it has to be imposed."

In Washington, the State Department announced the Marine Department meeting in an apparent attempt to prevent a breakdown of the negotiations.

"We still believe we have to get this thing settled," a White House source said, commenting on the surprise meeting. He also admitted that "the first time there has been a bit of a growing concern about this process."

The latest impasse involves the dispute of linkage between an Egyptian-Israeli treaty and resolution of the Palestinian issue and failure of coming to an agreement. The issues were dealt with separately in the Camp David accord, though President Carter has said they were morally connected.

Israel says it opposes a formal linkage because it does not want Cairo to have an excuse for breaking the treaty in the future — after Israel withdraws from the strategic Sinai desert.

"Some speak of a judicial linkage — that, there is no. There is a linkage of commitment. This will be a first peace treaty, not a separate treaty with Egypt," Begin said.

But Sadat said Friday he was talking on a stipulation in the draft treaty linking peace between Israel and Egypt to a resolution of the other issues. "And linked that President Carter would back it up."

"We are not seeking a separate peace," Sadat said. "We seek a comprehensive peace, and if this cannot be achieved, it will not be because of us but because of the other side."

But Begin countered that "he talks fall, it will not be Israel's. We did not change, the other side did," Begin said.

The Israeli state-run radio reported that Egypt now demands that talks about the future of the occupied areas begin one month after the signing of the "Egyptian-Israeli" treaty, "with autonomy within nine months. This is unacceptable to Israel."

Begin told reporters in Toronto that after a treaty with Egypt was signed, Israel would invite the governments of Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and other Arab "hardline" states to enter peace talks. "Then, the (Palestinian) question can be settled with security for Israel," he said.

Asked about the possibility of a compromise, Sadat answered with a rhetorical question, which meant no: "Can there be a compromise on fundamental points?"

"As President Carter has said, and as I know it, he agrees with my viewpoint regarding the necessity of a link," Sadat said.

Sadat was referring to Carter's comments Thursday in support of "the presently negotiated language which in the preamble does say that both nations commit themselves to carry out the comprehensive peace agreement as agreed at Camp David."

The new Egyptian demand sent Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman to Toronto to confer with Prime Minister Menachem Begin who is ending a six-day official visit to Canada.

Republicans angry with Gov. Evans over 1% statements

By DAVID MORRISSEY Times-News writer TWIN FALLS — Idaho Republicans said Friday Gov. John Evans can expect a fight before they'll scrap the 1 percent initiative. Thursday Evans, a Democrat, said there were alternatives to the initiative that offer better and more equitable forms of tax reduction. Tax relief could be provided, the governor said, without merely following the provisions of the initiative. Immediately following his election, Evans said he would urge legislators to consider some of the alternatives to the initiative, such as homestead exemptions for individual houses. But Friday several Republican legislators said they weren't taking the governor's suggestions.

"It sounds as if he is a little bit cocky because he is now an elected governor," said Rep. Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls. If the governor tries to "gut" the initiative, then political battles between him and the Republican controlled legislature are "not only possible but predictable," Olmstead said. The Republicans do not have a "vendetta" against Evans, "but he has to understand that unless he adopts a more conservative position none of his proposals will go anywhere."

Criticism of the governor's remarks also came from Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna. "Evans has made a terrible mistake, he's fired round one at the legislature," Winchester said. So strong is the support for the initiative in his legislative district, Winchester added, "that I've been hearing things like recall and impeachment for Evans since he talked about it."

Rep. Elaine Kearns, R-Idaho Falls, was also critical of Evans. "At first I thought he was throwing down a gauntlet," Kearns said, although it was possible the governor was "just speaking without thinking," she added. Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, said he too was "angry" at Evans. "Even though he got a 60 percent margin I don't think it's any mandate," Barlow said. "There were too many factors in the election that went the other way. It wasn't a love-in for John Evans."

Criticism also came from Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding. "The people have spoken on the initiative and we have to support it," Brooks said. "I think the governor was way off base. It bordered on arrogance."

"I was optimistic we could work with the governor until today," said Rep. Jim Golder, R-Boise. "But he's come out fighting and said it's my way or nothing. I thought he was more astute than to say something like this."

Has 1% weakened Idaho against a nuclear war?

LEWISTON (UPI) — Along with threatened cutbacks in public employment and government services, add nuclear attacks to the list of areas that could be affected by passage of Idaho's one percent tax initiative.

At least that was one of the contentions to come out of a Civil Defense exercise on the impact of a nuclear holocaust devastating metropolitan Spokane. As the session progressed Thursday, discussion turned to the question of who should pay for evacuating as many as 30,000 Spokanites to north central Idaho.

"Let me tell you," began Nez Perce County Commissioner Vera White, "passage of the one percent initiative means that Nez Perce County cannot fund a nuclear fallout."

Also to come up during the meeting was whether evacuees would be allowed to bring their pets with them.

Salooning and saluting the veterans

By LONNIE BERNWALD Times-News writer TWIN FALLS, Nov. 11 (UPI) — Thirty years ago, Idaho's first World War veterans parade was held in downtown Twin Falls. The parade was a simple affair, with veterans marching in formation and bands playing patriotic music. The parade was a simple affair, with veterans marching in formation and bands playing patriotic music. The parade was a simple affair, with veterans marching in formation and bands playing patriotic music.

Proclaimed by treaty a holiday between 1946 and 1947 that day. Five thousand people gathered at Perrine for a parade to the courthouse. At 1 p.m. the Twin Falls band played and there was dancing in the streets at the intersection of Main and Niagara. Band and Elser residents celebrated Tuesday. The people of Elser paraded through the streets carrying a dummy of the Kaiser, which later on was hung from a tree and burned. Then the joyous parade straddled two steers and three sheep at a trot.

Band residents add spikes to drive into a coffin would bury the Kaiser in effort. Forty dollars raised from the sale was donated to the war effort. While Idahoans and other Americans at home received letters and news to arrive from overseas, World War veterans were still fighting. Paul Stettler of Twin Falls is a member of the 128th Battalion of the 32nd Infantry Division. He says that his life was like on the front in France during the closing days of the war. "I remember the Americans have struck us yet, so I suppose we can guess just where we are," he says.

"The allies have done wonderful things in the past three months and the way things look now the chances of the war ending this year are good. Tell me all about the fourth Liberty loan — know it will be a success as all of the boys at the front feel the people at home are backing them to the limit. We are back from the front for a day or two of rest, although they never take us back far enough that we can't hear and feel the rumble of the artillery and see the flash of the guns at night. Have been through two real big battles and have come through with flying colors. In the last battle "Foreign Legion" and the "French Blue Devils." We attacked a nest of about 30 enemy machine guns and completely wiped them out. The Germans have many machine guns and a few light field pieces that we have to face. They have drawn all of their heavy guns to the rear, leaving the machine guns and light artillery to hinder our advance. The men that are left behind have orders to fight to the last man." Stettler returned safely to Twin Falls after the war. He moved to Nevada, where he lived to age 72, when he and his wife were killed in a fire in their home in 1966.

Saturday briefing

Search for plane

CODY, Wyo. (UPI) — Rescuers struggled through swirling, near-blizzard conditions in the mountainous high country of northwest Wyoming Friday to reach a plane, believed to be carrying four persons, that crashed into a mountain.

"We have made visual contact with the wreckage," said Eric Lee of Park County Search and Rescue. "As for the status of the victims, we don't know."

Authorities said a single-engine Grumman American left Cody Wednesday on a flight to Rexburg, Idaho, piloted by Mark Hayes, 30, of Idaho Falls, Idaho. The Wyoming Civil Air Patrol said it was believed three other persons were on board the missing plane.

The crash site was in the same area as the source of a signal from an emergency transmitter beacon.

No dilly dallying

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Prime Minister Ian Smith Friday warned the United States: not to "dilly dally" any longer in helping arrange a peace conference for Rhodesia. The biracial government clamped martial law on another nine zones, giving government troops control of 65 percent of the country.

Smith, speaking at a ball celebrating the 13th anniversary of his unilateral declaration of independence from Britain, urged Washington and London to set up early talks between his regime and the guerrilla Patriotic Front or risk being overtaken by events.

"I say to the United States and British governments, after all the hullabaloo that they've been making about this all-party conference, that if they continue to dilly dally as they are doing now, that the opportunity which is before them will slip past," he said.

Angry farmers

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Angry white farmers in Zambia who say rampaging black guerrillas have beaten them and searched their homes at gunpoint met Friday to discuss the sudden wave of anti-white violence.

The move followed a meeting with President Kenneth Kaunda Thursday night in which the farmers aired their charges that Rhodesian guerrillas have virtually created a state within a state.

"Farmers are fed up with the increasing lawlessness in rural areas," said Commercial Farmers Bureau chairman George Bender.

UNESCO talk

PARIS (UPI) — Arab nations including Egypt will ask the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization on Monday to again condemn Israel on a charge of human rights violations in occupied Arab land and cut Israel off from UNESCO funds, Israeli delegates said Friday.

"Who said we pay a half million dollars in dues to UNESCO each year in order to sit here and be insulted all day long?" the Israeli sources said. "People in Israel are very nervous now and it will not be easy for them to swallow UNESCO sanctions again."

The sources said they "regret" the participation of Egypt in the condemnation at a time of Israeli-Egypt peace moves.

Tax change urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Banking Committee chairman Henry Reuss said Friday that to ensure success for the wage-price control program, Congress must change its new tax cut bill even if means diluting the legislation's effect.

Reuss, D-Wis., said President Carter should submit the tax changes as soon as Congress reconvenes Jan. 15.

"Without them," Reuss said in a letter to anti-inflation chief Alfred Kahn, "the wage-price program's chances of success are slight."

Back home

Irene Miller hugs her daughter Teresa, 12, after alighting at San Francisco International Airport Friday, returning home from her conquest of the 26,845-foot peak of Annapurna in Nepal. The 42-year-old physicist from Palo Alto, Calif., and Vera Komarkova of Boulder, Colo., were the first Americans — and first women — to ever reach that summit. Two other members of the climbing team were killed during the climb.

Iranian struggle

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A key leader of the National Front opposition to the shah vowed Friday to "continue our struggle" against the regime, hinting that he would do nothing to stop the strikes that have crippled the country.

Reports from Iran's southern oilfields, including the largest at Abadan, said that workers who had returned to their jobs went back out on strike because of the attitude of the troops sent to supervise them.

Tanzanian charges

Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania (UPI) — Tanzania charged Friday that Ugandan troops launched an orgy of murder, rape and destruction when they invaded the country last week and again vowed to "destroy" Ugandan President Idi Amin.

Tanzania's government newspaper, the Daily News, released the first specific reports of the death and destruction from the Ugandan invasion and seizure of 710 square miles of Tanzania last week.

Monkey rampage

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Wild monkeys in southern Ethiopia went on a hunger-crazed rampage, devouring a woman and two young boys and herds of livestock, Addis Ababa radio reported Friday.

The destruction of natural habitat in the area during the guerrilla war which has raged in the area for more than a year may have sparked the outbreak of "monkey madness."

Airline routings changing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Within 45 days, several hundred cities will reap the first fruits of a new airline deregulation law by getting back non-stop air service they had lost. Many communities will gain airlines that never before have visited.

The sudden route expansion will turn Hawaiian Airlines, until now a local carrier in the island state, into an interstate airline with a route network stretching from Baltimore and New York on the East Coast to San Diego and Portland, Ore., on the West Coast.

Five other airlines that now are only local or commuter carriers also will get their first Civil Aeronautics Board route certificates, and three will follow Hawaiian into interstate service.

Altair Airlines will enter the interstate market on the East Coast. Air California will expand into several western states, and Pacific Southwest Airlines will extend its routes from California into Nevada.

Swift Aire Lines and Golden West Airlines will remain California carriers, but gain their first CAB route certificates within that state.

Tomorrow

Among the stories in tomorrow's Times-News:

- Twin Falls city officials have received complaints from residents about people selling "energy saving" devices and home smoke detectors and fire alarms. Pressure tactics have apparently been used to peddle high priced home alarm systems. The energy-saving devices are also extremely high priced and are illegal for electrical contractors to install. Some residents fear they have been exploited, while others were able to fend off the salesmen and report the incidents.

Photographs displayed in T. Cullen Davis trial

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jurors who heard a week of testimony about two meetings in which the slaying of a divorce judge was allegedly plotted saw poster-size photographs Friday depicting meetings between T. Cullen

Davis and an FBI informant.

The judge, identified as the target of the scheme, also on Friday testified he had seen the millionaire defendant criticize him in a television interview. The photographs and testimony highlighted the opening week of prosecution efforts to prove Davis, 45, conspired to have District Judge Joe H. Eldson of Fort Worth killed last August.

Four poster-size photographs and 26 smaller pictures were the first pieces of evidence actually showing Davis' Aug. 18 and 20 meeting with David McCrory, who went to the FBI with allegations of the industrialist's efforts to have Eldson killed. Prosecutors have yet to offer tapes made by a hidden recorder or videotapes made Aug. 20 of the second Davis-McCrory meeting at a restaurant parking lot.

FBI photographer George Ridgely was the first of four witnesses who said in his testimony he had seen Davis and McCrory meet.

Hearing planned in Rock Springs

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UPI) — Although he has not decided whether to take the case, defense attorney Gerry L. Spence plans to be in Rock Springs Monday for a preliminary hearing on a murder charge against a police official accused of killing a potential grand jury witness.

"When I show up there Monday, I will be ready to either turn back" or assume the defense, said Spence Friday from his Jackson, Wyo., office. The attorney has gained a reputation in Wyoming as a highly successful murder trial lawyer.

Environmentalists make accusations

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — A coalition of Northwest environmental concerns accused timber interests of trying to "stuff the (Roadless Area Review and Evaluation) ballot box" during the recent public comment period conducted by the Forest Service on the wilderness study.

Lewiston environmentalist Mort Brigham of the Citizens for North Idaho, a wilderness organization, is among those calling for an investigation into the ballot box stuffing charge.

According to the group, the timber industry intimidated and coerced its employees into writing anti-wilderness comments on form letters which then were sent to the Forest Service.

Nixon ending his exile

By ROBERT D. INDERMAN
GRAPEVINE, Texas (UPI) — Claiming his post-watergate political exile in his California home was over, former President Richard M. Nixon Friday made the first of a three-state series of public appearances before a small but enthusiastic group of supporters.

"I guarantee you this is not the last of my public appearances," Nixon said. "This is just the first of many I plan in the future. Officially you can say, 'I'm out.'"

The small crowd at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport applauded, and several supporters yelled, "Keep coming out, Dick, keep coming out. We love you."

"Don't worry, I will," Nixon replied.

Nixon autographed his recent biography and sheets of paper thrust at him by supporters outside a private reception in his honor at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

"I have already come out to talk to the public. This isn't my first time," he said.

Nixon arrived on a commercial jet accompanied by Secret Service agents and aides. He appeared healthy and tanned and wore a dark suit, a light pastel shirt and a red tie.

Nixon said he was planning more appearances in the United States and an overseas trip sometime after Thanksgiving. The former President told one reporter he would travel to Europe, and would appear on a televised, two-hour question-and-answer session in Paris and another at Oxford University in England.

More reporters than supporters awaited Nixon's arrival at the airport. Reporters were ordered to stand behind ropes in a hallway outside a private reception room.

Meany doesn't like Carter conservatism

By DREW VON BERGEN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Calling Jimmy Carter the most conservative president in his lifetime, George Meany says if the 1980 elections were held today, Carter would lose.

"Both Carter and organized labor, Meany predicted, are in for tough times ahead based on the results of Tuesday's mid-term elections.

"Carter turned out very poorly in terms of 1980," said the 84-year-old president of the AFL-CIO, calling him "the most conservative president in my lifetime."

Meany's comments were contained in reports of a lunch gathering Thursday with a group of newspaper reporters at which the wire services were excluded.

Meany assessed the effect of the president's anti-inflation program as "zich" and added: "It is quite obvious that Carter has opted for more unemployment."

Judging from Tuesday's results,

Meany said about the only thing Carter can count in 1980 is the South. He said GOP gubernatorial victories in Texas, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Minnesota boded ill for Carter's reelection bid.

"If the election were held tomorrow, I don't know how he could possibly win it," Meany said. "The greatest thing Carter has going for him is the Republicans."

Despite his distaste for Carter, Meany said he saw little else in the Democratic Party to solve his problem.

He said the AFL-CIO would not participate in party activities, and would not attend the mid-term convention in Memphis, Tenn., next month.

New envelope regulations postponed until spring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New postal rules regulating the minimum size of envelopes will not go into effect until this spring so companies have time to produce mailable bills, the Postal Service announced Friday.

The agency said its governing board has also postponed the effective date of regulations banning other items that can jam machinery.

The Postal Service said plans to implement a new 13-cent surcharge for oversized mail this spring.

The Postal Service's board of governors postponed the effective dates for the new rules at its monthly meeting Friday. The original date had been Nov. 30.

President signs bill for banking revisions

By LAURENCE McQUILLAN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday signed into law the most extensive revision of the nation's banking laws since the 1930s, an overhaul spurred in part by disclosures made during an inquiry into practices by Bert Lance.

The banking measure limits preferential or excessive loans provided to bank insiders — a key element of the investigation into Lance, who was forced to resign as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Lance, a Georgia banker, had made heavy use of insider loans before he joined the administration.

Carter acted without comment, even though he issued statements on six of the nine bills he signed into law Friday.

Other bills approved included extending the Consumer Product Safety Commission for three years; enlarging the National Park System and authorizing $725 million to repair urban recreation areas, and amending U.S. drug laws.

The banking bill, by banning the "insider" dealings, eliminates what the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation found to be the cause of 60 percent of all bank failures.

It also imposes restrictions on officers of one bank holding directorates in other banks in the same geographical area. The FDIC is given greater authority in approving new branches for state banks that are not members of the federal corporation.

Women are the big losers in gonorrhea cases

ATLANTA (UPI) — A federal health official said Friday between 50,000 and 80,000 young women are being robbed of their future motherhood each year as a result of gonorrhea.

Dr. Paul J. Welsner, director of the national Center for Disease Control's Venereal Disease Division, called gonorrhea "an unbelievable problem. It's a very serious health problem in this country."

"We estimate that between 50,000 and 80,000 young girls and young women are made sterile by gonorrhea every year," Welsner said. "It really robs young women of their future motherhood."

The ailment also causes some infertility in men, but he said "it is the young women who are bearing the burden of this problem."

A nationwide venereal disease screening program conducted by the federal government turned up 188,200 cases of gonorrhea in 4,294,044 women in a six-month period, the CDC said Friday.

Heimlich defends maneuver

By ARTHUR J. SNIDER
©Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — Dr. Henry Heimlich, developer of the Heimlich Maneuver, designed to stop one from choking on food, has charged that a 14-year-old boy's brain was damaged because his rescuer followed Red Cross advice as he choked on a peanut butter sandwich.

Red Cross instructions call for first slapping the victim on the back four times before applying the Heimlich technique, which involves squeezing the upper abdomen to force out the blockage.

Heimlich has opposed the slapping maneuver strongly, arguing that it wastes valuable time and is not effective in increasing artificial air flow.

"The proof of this lies in a court's recent award of $352,000 in damages to the boy," said Heimlich in an interview here. "It was an expensive way to find out back blows don't work."

The choking boy, Gary L. Daniels, of Harrisburg, Pa., partially able to breathe, stopped breathing completely after a teacher in a Harrisburg school hit him on the back.

"This apparently wedged the sandwich tighter," said Heimlich. "The teacher continued to give him back blows, and the child lost consciousness. A second teacher then performed the Heimlich Maneuver. Gary's life was saved but he was already brain-damaged and has been in a coma for over two years."

In its defense, the school district cited the Red Cross instructions for administering back blows first. Testimony showed that literature describing the Heimlich Maneuver had been distributed to Harrisburg schools several months prior to the incident.

Heimlich said the Red Cross itself sees a conflict. He cited a Red Cross booklet, "First Aid for Foreign Body Obstruction of the Airway," calling for the four rapid back blows

Be Fair response

Where are the pro scores?

Few complaints but a number of suggestions about basketball scores.

The paper has considered such a contest and may initiate such a competition this spring. But for now, the paper's photography staff and editors are snowed with the daily process of putting out the big pre-Christmas papers.

Yet another reader suggested to the Times-News proofreaders how to hyphenate words.

The paper occasionally splits a word in the wrong place, the reader said.

Unfortunately, this hyphenation problem is actually a computer problem. All type in the Times-News is set and justified by a computer that has a memory of where to hyphenate common words but sometimes has to guess where to hyphenate uncommon words.

Computers usually guess wrong. Two more readers complained about the Times-News stock quotations running day to day without any change.

Yes, it did happen last week because a backshop worker forgot to flip a switch and get the updated returns.

Then, the worker compounded the problem by putting the day-old stocks in the paper.

It was a one-time problem and has been corrected as a result of the Be Fair complaint.

A final Be Fair reader complained about the TV schedules run in the Idaho Weekender on Fridays. The schedules don't match what is being shown on area TV stations, the reader fumed.

The editor of the Idaho Weekender will call the TV log service and see what the problem is.

That's it. Keep those Be Fair coupons coming in.

There's something happening here

Those residents of the Magic Valley who hold to the belief there is "nothing to do around here," should be having second thoughts and taking a second look.

Especially this weekend, the area has been blessed by a gang of special events and happenings.

And the diverse mixture of opportunities to get out and do something is enough to please any taste.

This week, Head East, a band on the hard rock edge of the top-40 drew 2,500 concertgoers to CSI. The show was tape recorded for possible inclusion in a live album by the group, and the performance Thursday seemed to be perfect for the audience, who ended up out of their seats and on their feet.

Friday night, another nationally known group, Second Acts, drew a surprisingly large crowd of 600 to the Christian Center in Twin Falls. These musicians are among the best Christian rock and roll songwriters in the country and have been leaders in that brand of inspired contemporary music.

For other tastes, there is still a chance before the weekend is over to get in on some action.

The CSI students' annual "Ski Swap" is again giving snow lovers a chance to get bargain equipment. It continues today from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the CSI gym.

Also at CSI will be a performance of the play "Dear Liar," which is based on letters of George Bernard Shaw.

Sports fans have opportunities too. The CSI Eagles basketball team plays its first regularly scheduled game of the season tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the college.

Pianist Carol Sue White is being brought to the area by the Magic Valley Music Teachers Association at the CSI music department for a concert Sunday at CSI at 3 p.m.

Last week saw such talent visiting the Magic Valley area as country music pioneer Ernie Tubb at Jackpot; Idaho's best-known hard country band, Tarwater, at Buhl; a distinctive raku pottery maker in Sun Valley; and the spirited Twin Falls High School drama students performing the classic play "Picnic."

Tubb, who seems to have invented the word "country music," is a member of the Country Music Hall of Fame and a Grand Ole Opry regular.

Coming up, classical music lovers will get another treat.

Violinist Eugene Fodor, whom some may remember from all places, the Johnny Carson Tonight Show, will appear twice with the Magic Valley Symphony. The concerts are in Twin Falls at CSI Nov. 28 and in Ketchum at Wood River High School Nov. 27.

Other opportunities for things to do which should be mentioned are regular film series (the current one is a children's film festival) at the Sun Valley Opera House and regular art exhibits in the Upper Wood River Valley and in Twin Falls.

In recent weeks, the buzz of events has put the lie to the sometimes justified feeling that there is little to do "around here."

It's a pleasant surprise to find it proven wrong.

The struggle over solar power

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) — An intense behind-the-scenes struggle has developed within the Carter administration over the extent of the federal government's commitment to solar energy as a source of power in the 21st century.

The previously unpublicized conflict has been confined in recent months to the Domestic Policy Review on Solar Energy, a government-wide task force established last spring by President Carter to propose solar options for the future.

The policy dispute is likely to erupt in public before the end of this year because members of the study group are in disagreement over virtually every fundamental issue relating both the character and scope of the federal commitment to solar energy.

Compounding the problem are the conflicting signals that have come during the past year from the president, who initially proposed a sharply reduced budget for solar research and development during the current fiscal year.

But soon after the potential of solar energy began to capture the imagination of the public, Carter dramatically shifted his position and made a "Sun Day" pilgrimage to the federal government's Solar Energy Research Institute in Colorado.

In a speech there, Carter announced that he had instructed the Department of Energy (DOE) to shift $100 million of its current funding, initially earmarked for nuclear programs, to solar research.

He also quoted with approval a Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ) study which estimated "that we could meet as much as one-fourth of our energy demands from solar sources by the end of this century and perhaps more than half by the year 2020."

The study group is composed of representatives of approximately 30 federal departments and agencies. But DOE dominates its work because it controls the secretariat, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger is chairman of the full task force and another DOE official heads a key subcommittee.

Many DOE officials, long committed to the wholesale expansion of the country's nuclear power capability, have been notably cool toward the notion of the harnessing the sun, wind, tides and other forms of solar power as a major energy source.

They are, however, willing to accept the concept of large-scale, capital-intensive solar collection and distribution systems operated for the profit of private utility companies.

On the other side of the issue are those in favor of passive, small-scale, decentralized solar systems under local control, with the benefits of the new technology available to people in all income brackets.

Those criteria were emphasized by many of the witnesses at the 12 public hearings conducted around the country by the study group, as well as several smaller but vociferous federal agencies represented on the government task force.

Although Carter endorsed the goal of using solar power to meet 25 percent of all national energy needs by the year 2000, the study group first suggested that the maximum practical figure was in the 15-to-20 percent range and now has lowered that estimate to only 8-to-12 percent.

The study group has given only cursory attention to the potential of alcohol as a substitute for petroleum in the production of auto fuel and has totally ignored subjects such as solar storage, harnessing tidal energy and using solar power to propel electric autos.

The solar enthusiasts on the federal task force, who soon may take their case to the public, noted that the president likened the challenge of harnessing the sun's power to the bold action taken by the United States to meet "the challenge of the space race."

But after haggling over almost two dozen draft versions of its recommendations to the White House, the study group has produced only a collection of inoffensive, unimaginative proposals that will thwart rather than promote the growth of solar energy.

Choices and changes echoed in a baby's cry

Everything changes. We used to hang out together. He was kind of a wild one. He would drink and smoke his dope and stay out late and try to remain a kid forever. He seemed to think it would never be any different.

I lost track of him for a few years. I knew he had married, which surprised me; girls didn't use to last longer than a few nights with him. Then I saw him again.

"I want you to come home with me and see my new daughter," he said.

It amazed me. It shouldn't have, everybody grows up. So he was a father.

We drove to his house. His wife was waiting. The baby, just a few weeks old, was asleep.

"Don't wake her," the wife said.

"We won't, we won't," he said.

We climbed the stairs. The door to the room was open a crack. The baby slept on her stomach.

We didn't say anything. He just looked at his daughter with what seemed to be pride. I looked too, and thought about it.

We went back downstairs. His wife made us sandwiches. Then the two of us went for a walk around the block, and he talked about it.

"I was in the delivery room," he said.

"I'll tell you, it takes your breath away. It's not just the idea of a new life that's there because of you. It's your own life changing too, right in front of your eyes."

"I never thought of myself as being a father. Certainly not before I got married, and even afterwards, it was just something that didn't seem like it could be a part of me. So many of us seem to feel that way, and I've been trying to figure out why it is. We aren't the first generation to pass through these stages of life, and yet it feels like some amazing frontier that we're the first people to explore."

"I think a lot of it, the reluctance to have a child, probably comes from selfishness. I know I did with me. From the time I was 18 years old and went away to college, I was only concerned with what gave me pleasure. My pleasure became my absolute right, and I even resented giving up my freedom when I got married. All through my 20s I guess I didn't change much, because all of a sudden I was turning 30 and I still didn't have a child and hadn't really given it much thought."

"I looked around me and I saw a lot of other people the same age, with the same story. No kids. I never read anything about it anywhere, but I think it really is a phenomenon. I don't think it has anything to do with Zero Population Growth or anything like that. It's more like people just don't want to grow up. Having a baby is probably the most dramatic sign there is of growing up. Like getting married used to be, before marriage got so screwed up."

"And I thought to myself, well, you don't have too much more time. If being loose and easy is that important to you, you'd better get used to it, because you're 30 now and 40 comes next and there's a lot of years after that to think about your decision."

"So we did it. It didn't take us long to decide that it was right. I mean, there comes a time when you think about the way you used to live, and you realize that it's not the way you want to live the rest of your life. I'd never give up the things I did during the past 10 or 12 years, but the fact remains, things change."

"I used to be scared that having a child would be such an imposition. That's the wrong word, but you know what I mean. No matter where you go, a child is always going to be in the back of your mind. Is the baby OK? What's the baby doing? I didn't think I was ready for that."

"But the other stuff gets pretty empty after a while. You can't run around wild all your life, after a while you realize that you're going to end up pretty unhappy and lonely if you do that too long."

"In a way I think having that baby is the best thing that ever happened to me. I go to bed at night and I hold her, and for the first time in my life I'm thinking about someone other than myself. It makes me want to be careful. Looking back on it now, it seems that I had so little regard for myself. I wasn't responsible to anyone else, so nothing mattered."

"Now I look at my daughter, and I realize, I see that I am, what I become, is going to mean a whole lot to her, too. She makes me want to do well, if you can understand that. She makes me want to be not so careless with my life."

"Maybe I'm fooling myself into thinking that I've become a different person just because she's in the world now. But I feel different. The first moment I saw her, and it's been with me for every moment since she's been here."

"She's just a few weeks old, and I'm sure that this spell will wear off eventually, but I'll tell you one thing no one can argue with. One moment she doesn't exist, and then the next moment she's born, and in that one moment you fall in love with someone."

King conspiracy theories scrutinized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Assassinations Committee Friday began a full-scale review of the conspiracy theories surrounding Martin Luther King's murder and said at the outset "not many can be dismissed quickly."

"Taken together, these unanswered questions weave a sinister story," committee chief counsel G. Robert Blakey said in concluding an introductory summary of the loopholes critics have found in the evidence suggesting James Earl Ray alone killed King.

"What is suggested here (by the theorists) are the actions of a sophisticated group that must, of necessity, involve officials of government," Blakey said.

"The implications of these suggestions, if only some of them are true, would be frightening indeed in a free and democratic society. Some, but not many, can be dismissed quickly."

The panel moved into this final phase of its two-year, $5-million investigation into the King and John F. Kennedy murders after announcing it will not recall Ray for further testimony.

Ray's lawyer, Mark Lane, had insisted his client had more to say in support of his claim he did not kill King and was framed by those who did.

Ray is serving a 99-year term in Brushy Mountain, Tenn., state penitentiary. He recanted his original guilty plea years ago and spent four days in August trying to convince the House panel — and the public — he is innocent.

Although it seems clear a panel majority believes Ray pulled the trigger in the April 4, 1968 assassination in Memphis, Tenn., the hearings have also produced testimony that weakens two assumptions underlying that conclusion.

One is the issue of motive, in which investigators have generally assumed Ray's reason was pure racial hatred.

Agency kickbacks investigated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the Small Business Administration said Friday investigators will try to determine whether agency employees took kickbacks as part of a multi-million-dollar fraud in a program that provided loans to minority-owned businesses.

SBA Administrator A. Vernon Weaver told a news conference that President Carter has promised whatever manpower is needed to investigate the latest government scandal Weaver said could cost taxpayers $22 million.

"So far, what we see is a failure of our own people to follow our regulations," Weaver said. "If I thought it was just carelessness, I wouldn't be sending 10 people to New York to investigate."

Weaver said he told Carter Wednesday dozens of minority-owned businesses have failed to repay low-interest SBA loans they were advanced to help develop the capability to handle government contracts.

He said Carter told him to "get to the bottom of it" and Attorney General Griffin Bell will announce a Justice Department effort in the probe next week.

Weaver said the scandal in the 10-year-old advanced loan program appears to involve the failure of SBA employees to properly monitor minority contractors to ensure their federal loans went for stated purposes and were repaid.

"We find serious abuses of our standing operating procedures in giving out advanced payments," Weaver said.

In one case, he said, a group used "some of the proceeds of the advance to purchase a race horse, which certainly violates a principle of the law."

"The horse died," Weaver said.

Stockpiles for a war insufficient

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. equipment and ammunition stockpiles would not last more than a few weeks in an high-intensity war in Europe, a new mobilization test shows.

Defense sources said Friday the just-completed test also indicates there would be manpower shortages and mobilization problems at the onset of such a conflict.

The month-long test — "Nifty Nugget '78" — was conducted by headquarters units of all branches of service from Oct. 16 to Nov. 2.

Although the experiment included test alerts of 600 reserve units, it was designed primarily to measure administrative and logistic performance during mobilization.

Nifty Nugget '78 was based on a scenario of a major European war that followed months of East-West tensions with adequate warning of attack.

An announcement said it "revealed a number of shortcomings in examined categories." Defense sources said these included:

• Stockpiles of armored troop carriers and trucks, and of some types of ammunition. The test showed there were in danger of running out before more could be produced after the first few weeks of fighting.

"It indicated the status of major items and equipment were not sufficient to sustain a long war," an official said.

Pornography kingpin in custody

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Pornography czar and homicide fugitive Mike Thevis was taken from the Hartford Correctional Center Friday afternoon after the FBI was ready to move again Friday, but this time in the custody of U.S. Marshals. Male freedom?

KENTFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Bill Cushing, 34-year-old divorced father of two, wears skirts all the time. He believes he's a pioneer of male freedom. Dressed in a shag-length blue denim skirt with a fly in the front, Cushing no longer causes eyes to turn as he strolls between classes at the College of Marin campus in the suburbs north of San Francisco. "Hey, man, I'm a macho dude," he told an interviewer who asked him about his sexual preference. "You can ask my girlfriend." He says wearing a skirt isn't necessarily transvestism. He says it makes him attractive to girls. "I don't impersonate women," he said. "I'm just plain Bill. I get no sexual arousal out of putting on women's clothes." He says he shaves his legs because he doesn't like the feel of his skirt swishing on hair. They have got used to him on the campus, but Cushing, a former construction worker, says he has trouble finding work.

Thevis' eventual destination would not be disclosed. As an escaped federal prisoner, Thevis can be held without bond and returned directly to prison without court proceedings.

Concert canceled

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The lead singer for the British rock group Black Sabbath went to sleep in the wrong room of a Nashville hotel Thursday night and caused the cancellation of a sellout show before 12,000 fans while police frantically searched for him.

Li. Sherman Nickens said authorities had thought "John 'Ozzy' Osbourne may have been kidnapped or been the victim of some other form of foul play.

The singer turned up early Friday, Nickens said. "HERE'S a man who makes a lot of money and has never missed a show in 10 years," Nickens said. "He doesn't drink or use dope. He disappears and his people are so frantic. So it was possible that something happened to this man. While all the time he's sleeping."

According to Nickens, Osbourne had gone up to the 15th floor of the Hyatt Regency in Nashville and saw a maid coming out of a room. He said the 29-year-old singer went to the room Thursday afternoon and woke up at 4 a.m. Friday.

"We had detectives scouring the city all night long," Nickens said. The $100,000 paid by the rock fans was or will be refunded, authorities said.

Pope John Paul mobbed by nuns

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II fought his way through an enthusiastic crowd of 13,000 nuns in the Vatican Audience Hall Friday and jokingly told them, "I thought nuns were good people."

It took the Polish-born pope more than half an hour to cross the hall as the nuns applauded and tugged him by his sleeves and cassock. "I thought nuns were good people," the pontiff said. "Instead, they are people who make much noise, energetic people who want to destroy the pope in their first meeting, or at least his soutine."

"I'm very happy," the pope said at the end of the one-hour audience.

Norman Rockwell will be buried today

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — In "The Springtime Painting," artist Norman Rockwell depicted himself and his family happily riding their bicycles away from the Stockbridge-Town Cemetery. Heat's on Ponti

ROME (UPI) — Film producer Carlo Ponti, the husband of actress Sophia Loren, is in for more trouble with Italian justice, court sources said Friday.

They said magistrate Paolo Dell'Anno has notified Ponti and five of his aides that he is investigating possible fraud charges against them for allegedly obtaining millions of dollars in undue state subsidies.

Cornelia Wallace indicated Friday she was romantically interested in a man from Florida, but refused to discuss possible marriage plans.

Miss International TOKYO (UPI) — A 20-year-old, Los Angeles beauty whose ambition is to become a good housewife and mother Friday won the 1978 Miss International contest.

Katherine Patricia Ruth was selected from among 43 contestants from around the world. She measures 34-24-35 and weighs 121 pounds.

Peeling for Lord CLEVELAND (UPI) — Kellie Everts says her arrest this week for allegedly performing in the nude was "a special favor from God."

Ms. Everts, a former Miss Nude Universe, appeared before

Municipal Court Judge Theodore Williams Thursday on a charge of "prohibited conduct."

Men allowed

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The Minnesota Filles women's professional basketball team announced Friday that men reporters will be allowed in the women's locker room for post-game interviews.

J. Gordon Nevers, general manager and president of the Filles, said the club will not discriminate against reporters seeking locker room interviews.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Actor-comedian Danny Thomas said Friday he will return to Grand Rapids in six months for a second operation to restore use of his left index finger.

Old lady fights back with Mace

MIAMI (UPI) — A "grandmother-type" 71-year-old woman who became annoyed Friday at a teenager who blew cigarette smoke in her face on a city bus, whipped out a can of Mace and chased the youth down the aisle, her spray can going full blast.

In the procedure she sprayed six other passengers and touched off a wild melee aboard the bus. The youth and five of the other passengers were taken to a hospital but later released after treatment for inhalation of the immobilizing gas.

Police spokesman Charles Kelly identified the woman as Madeline Howard, 71, of suburban Coral City. "She's a little grandmother type, 5-foot-4, 110 pounds," said Kelly. Kelly said police reported the incident as an assault and aggravated battery but no charges were filed pending a decision by detectives and Dade State Attorney Janet Reno.

Kelly said the incident occurred late in the morning in downtown Miami aboard a Metropolitan Transit Authority bus. Mrs. Howard, a retired cook, told police that a 13-year-old boy lit a cigarette and blew smoke in her face. When she asked him to "put out" the cigarette, he refused, so she appealed for help from the bus driver. At the driver's request, the youth put out the cigarette.

What's what

Economics, not morality leads to one motel's policy

A motel owner reports he refuses to rent rooms to single women unless they promise not to entertain members of the opposite sex therein. It's not a matter of morality, says he. Their private lives are their own business. But his years of experience have taught him that women who have affairs like to steal things as memento of the occasions. They take the towels, washcloths, subway, even the Bible. He can't afford their love lives, he says.

"Kleck" in German means ink blot. It was the nickname of Hermann Rorschach as a child, long before he invented the famous ink blot test. His dad was an art instructor. Hermann dabbled in ink sketches during his school years.

Am asked how that sport of fencing came to be so called. The word originated from the Middle English "fens" which was short for "defense."

HITLER

Q. Did Adolf Hitler acknowledge the existence of any living relatives?
A. Only one. His older half sister, Angela Hitler.

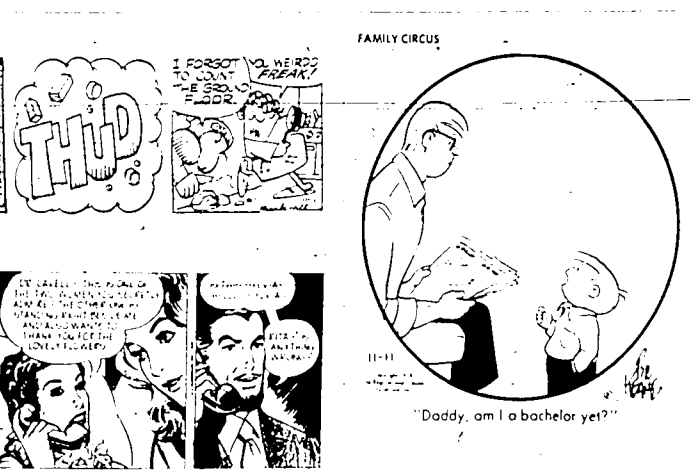

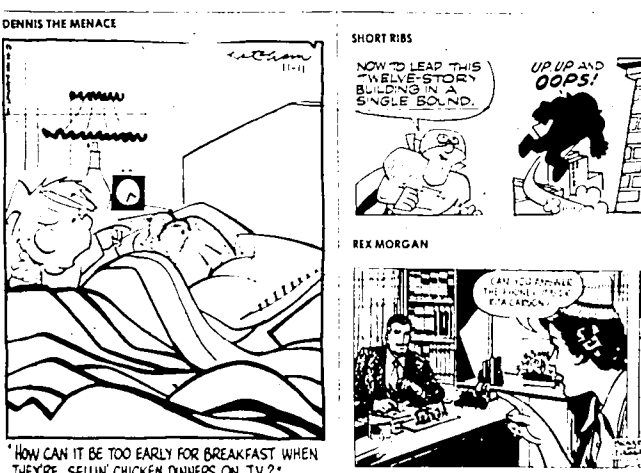

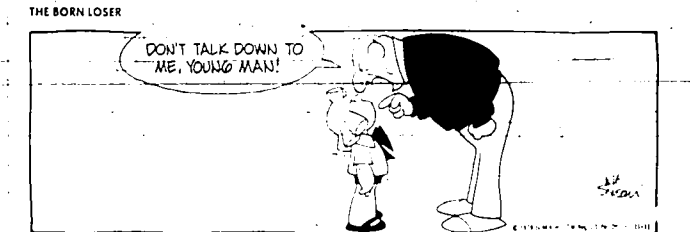

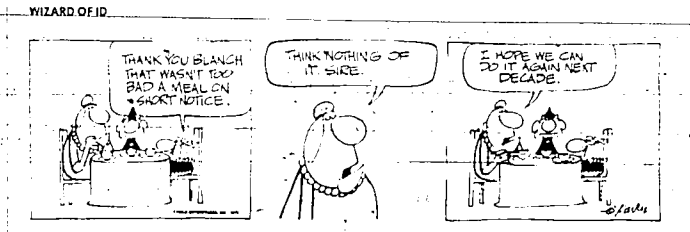

Item No. 825C in our Love and War man's file has to do with irritating-by-men that irritate women, and vice versa. The most irritating male comment that's fairly common appears to be "Isn't that just like a woman!" The most irritating female comment is a little more difficult to pin down. But just about any observation will qualify if it's put into the form of a question that begins: "Why didn't you...?"

ICELAND'S TV

In Iceland, television shuts down all day every Thursday. And all of the month of July. This lets the TV workers take their weekly day off and their yearly vacation. Owners of TV sets pay an annual license fee of $55. That supports the one-channel state network. Icelanders say they'd rather turn the thing off Thursday and July than pay a bigger license fee to hire more help.

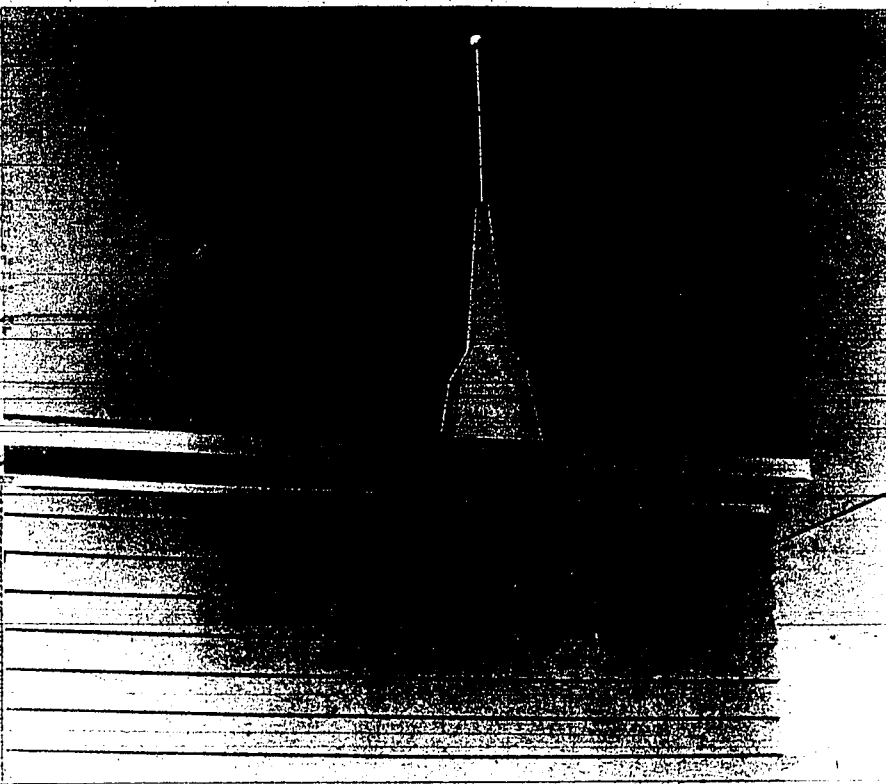

"If there is a sick man in your house, whether your father, husband or son, you may as well cancel all of your engagements, settle down next to him, and take charge." So advised Madame Dariaux, that expert counselor to women. "Spread a fine white towel on the bedside table. Arrange on it all the potions and pills the doctor has certainly not failed to prescribe. This will add a note of seriousness. Place the telephone in an adjoining room. Speak softly. Smile. Remain at hand. A sick man is like a spoiled baby who cries when left alone in the dark, and the more domineering he is in normal life, the more infantile he becomes when he is ill."

Australia is known to the Australians as "Oz."

"How can it be too early for breakfast when they're sellin' chicken dinners on TV?"

Open meeting plan divides council of churches

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

When it was first proposed, the idea of opening the vast majority of meetings of the National Council of Churches and its various units looked like it would have clear sailing.

In fact, it seemed so much a part of the style and stance of the interfaith organization that some wondered why it hadn't been done before.

But when the governing board of the National Council meets in early November, what once looked like an easy proposition will face some tough opposition from inside the council itself.

The open meeting amendment, which has been developed over a two-year period, would open all meetings of the governing board including committees and subcommittees, working groups and most other meetings of the council.

"The council is committed to openness and toward that end this rule shall be constructed liberally," the proposed addition to the bylaws says.

But Dean Kelley of the council's division of church and society has raised some questions about the proposed changes that are being taken seriously in the NCC and that could lead to the substantial weakening of the proposed change.

"There is much to be said for 'openness,'" Kelly says in a statement being circulated within the council, "when it does not obstruct higher values."

For Kelley the higher value at stake in the open meeting question is that of religious liberty.

"One of the essential qualities of life within the church is a relationship of confidence and trust of the members in each other," Kelley said.

He cited a number of instances of government intrusion, through grand juries compelling church workers to testify about the internal affairs of the church, which threaten to inhibit the internal openness necessary for trust.

"The proposed bylaw — in some instances — poses just such a threat or inhibition, and — in those instances — would ensure openness to outsiders at the price of the loss of openness among those inside," he said.

Kelley argued that meetings open to the press would not be open to the exchanges that need to take place between members.

He suggested as a hypothetical case a meeting of the Division of Overseas Ministries which might discuss the alleged use of missionaries by the CIA. Kelley said such a topic could not be discussed in an open meeting "without jeopardizing the welfare, if not the very lives, of those and other missionaries, since any press coverage of such discussion would be seized upon by some foreign governments as confirmation that missionaries are tools of the CIA."

But Warren Day, executive director of the NCC's news and information services, said he believes the open meeting amendment "is crucial to improving credibility and trust among the members of the constituent communions" as well to improve the acceptance and authority of recommendations the interfaith organization makes to the public at large.

Day argued that the proposal in no way would jeopardize the confidentiality of privileged communications.

He also said that he was concerned with Kelley's use of the terms "insiders" and "outsiders" and that for Kelley's proposed changes in the open meeting amendment, "you would have to consider anyone not an official member of a particular committee an outsider."

Rev. Lindstrom: self avowed arch conservative

By ED LION
PROSPECT HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI)

The Rev. Paul D. Lindstrom often quotes from the Bible on his desk, reads Soldier of Fortune magazine, proudly talks about contacts with top mercenaries in the world and urges parishioners to own guns.

The balding, intent man, who wears an American eagle in his lapel, is not your average pastor.

Lindstrom, 38, founder of the non-denominational Church of Christian Liberty, is national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee and a self avowed arch conservative who makes Ronald Reagan look liberal by comparison.

Lindstrom made International headlines in 1968 with a campaign to press for "a judgmental strike in the name of godliness and justice" against North Korea after the U.S. spyship Pueblo was captured.

At its peak, the committee had 10,000 members, lobbied with the government to take more action to free American POWs in Indochina and even recruited mercenaries for its "Gen. Douglas McArthur Brigade" to launch raids on communist POW compounds.

Now that the Vietnam War is over, Lindstrom still keeps busy with conservative causes.

Lindstrom's latest project involves reopening a church mission in Rhodesia where 13 people died last June in an attack by black nationalist guerrillas. He says his 250-member church has sent 10 American and British former special forces soldiers to assess the needs of the mission near the embattled Rhodesian town of Umfali.

He said he also is setting up Global Press International — a conservative, Christian-oriented news agency. He said will fill gaps left by what he considers an all-to-liberal press.

Lindstrom said he has more than 100 correspondents worldwide and soon will have the most extensive Western news network behind the Iron Curtain.

subduing of the world and conquest for King Jesus and the glory of his kingdom."

But before the "kingdom of Jesus" on earth can be realized, said Lindstrom, his eyes-widening, "the international conspiracy of communism must be utterly destroyed from the face of the earth. I have pledged myself to that."

Lindstrom said Christianity and Marxism are "diametrically opposed — like black and white, good and evil."

He said Marxism undermines the family, religion, social freedoms and the right of property — all things exalted by the Scriptures.

Gesturing from his hands as if in the pulpit and frequently quoting the Bible, he said communist countries are trying to blanket the world under a cloak of oppression and sap its spirit.

Actors to perform

HAZELTON — The Covenant Players, an international repertory theater company, touring throughout the northwest in November, will be making a Magic Valley appearance Nov. 20 at 8 p.m. at the Valley Presbyterian Church.

The troupe appearing here is one of more than 50 touring groups which travel continuously throughout the 50 states, Canada, Europe, Asia and Australia.

Founded as a local drama group in Los Angeles in 1963, the Covenant Playe a have performed in 27 countries in five languages. They have performed in churches, shopping centers, aboard naval vessels, on street corners, in schools, etc.

Using drama and the audience's imagination they stimulate and challenge people to think about their complex society and their own responsibility within it. No elaborate stage props or scenery are used.

The Covenant Players will be performing in the Eden and Hazelton schools the morning of Nov. 20. They will conduct an acting workshop at Valley High School in the afternoon followed by the evening performance at Valley Presbyterian Church.

And at his parish school, Christian Liberty Academics, he operates a home study curriculum program for parents who do not want their children exposed to some of the "socialistic, immoral" concepts he said are taught at public schools.

"I don't consider myself a knight templar," Lindstrom said in an interview at his church office adorned by a photograph of the late Chinese Nationalist leader Chiang Kai Shek and Japanese martial armor given to him by a former Green Beret.

"I am one of a Christian army going forth. We are moving onward as Christian soldiers in spiritual warfare. We've pledged our lives, fortunes and sacred honor for the teachings of the Scriptures that my commitment goes far beyond the four walls of the church," said Lindstrom, a graduate of University of Illinois and Trinity Theological Seminary.

Lindstrom conceded some injustices occur in conservative countries he supports, but he said none was comparable to the "evils and sinfulness of communism."

Lindstrom accused Washington of being weak in the face of communist expansion and said the best policy for America would be to attack Laos, Vietnam and Cambodia and sever all ties with the Soviet Union and China.

Idaho

Tax battle in Boise looming

BOISE (UPI) — Lt. Gov. elect Phil Batt said Friday night the Legislature is more likely to devise its own approach to the 1 percent property tax limitation than it is to follow Gov. John Evans' lead.

Batt, who appeared on the KTVB Viewpoint program, also said he is concerned that early signs of partisanship that he said seem to be building up between the legislature and Evans.

Evans has said he will favor a homestead exemption and other tax reform alternatives rather than try to make the 1 percent workable.

But Batt said the Republican legislative leadership is not likely to buy the governor's plan.

"The criticism I have of the governor's plan is that it takes an entirely different view from the initiative itself," Batt said. "I think the people voted for the initiative for two reasons. One, they wanted the government to stop growing. The other is that they wanted the property tax to be relied on much less heavily than it has in the past.

"The governor's recommendation would not address the second part of their concern. Therefore I don't think we can accept the governor's recommendations. But I do believe that substantial changes are valid in the instrument and I think the Legislature can be expected to make substantial changes."

Otter suggests Evans select tax plan panel

BOISE (UPI) — Former state Rep. C.L. "Butch" Otter of Caldwell wants Gov. John V. Evans to appoint a committee to work up a plan for implementing the 1 percent property tax initiative.

Otter told the Idaho Press Club Thursday such a committee should include people both for and against the controversial measure which won voter approval Tuesday.

A spokesman for the vacationing governor, however, said Evans will not support such a proposal. He said Evans will consult many groups when he prepares his tax package for the next Legislature.

Wednesday, Evans said he did not believe the 1 percent plan was the best method of providing property tax relief and that he might urge passage of a homestead exemption instead.

Meanwhile, House Minority Leader Patricia L. McDermott, D-Pocatello, said she cannot support Evans' alternative to the initiative. She said she agrees with him that the initiative was not the best way to provide tax relief but she said the people rejected other alternatives.

And, she said, she promised the voters in their district that she would work to implement the initiative as written if it passed in the district.

Ada voters dislike listing

BOISE (UPI) — Ada County voters expressed their dissatisfaction with the candidates from three political parties Tuesday by writing in a number of others for governor.

Writers included C.L. "Butch" Otter, Vernon Ravenscroft and Larry Jackson, unsuccessful candidates in the August GOP primary, Donald Duck, Mickey Mouse, former Gov. Robert E. Smylie and "the empty chair."

The latter choice apparently referred to the empty chair that Allan F. Larsen debated in television commercials when Gov. John V. Evans refused to debate him.

Police seek young women

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State Police said today they are seeking two young women who might have information on the activities of a murderer in Idaho; a trucker who was found dead at an interstate rest stop.

Police said the women, both about 18 years of age, were reported at Rufus, Ore., on Oct. 25, the same day Joseph Wesley Green, 25, was seen at 7 p.m. at a motel in the community along the Columbia River. This was the last time Green was known to have been alive, officers said.

Fluoride levels increase

POCATELLO (UPI) — Two University of Idaho researchers have reported increases in fluoride levels of vegetation eaten by cattle near the FMC and J.R. Simplot phosphate plants in Bannock and Power counties.

Farmers there have complained for several years that the pollution caused by the plants poisons their cattle and, in many cases, rots the teeth of the animals.

Professors A.C. Wiese and J.L. Barrus said fluoride levels in range grasses south of the plants have reached up to 118 parts per million this year. State and federal standards set 40 parts as the safety limit.

The fluoride apparently is emitted from the smokestacks of the plants and falls onto the vegetation, which is consumed by the cattle.

Idaho whooper makes trip

BOSQUE DEL APACHE, N.M. (UPI) — A whooping crane hatched last spring in southeastern Idaho has arrived in New Mexico's central Rio Grande Valley to spend the winter.

Wildlife officials said Thursday the young bird is the second whooper to arrive at the Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge this fall. A 2-year-old bird named Ida arrived about three weeks ago.

Nine whoopers, including three hatched this year, are expected to migrate to New Mexico for the winter.

Wildlife officials are attempting to create a wild flock of the rare birds to increase their chances for survival. The only established wild flock of whoopers migrates from Canada to the Texas Gulf Coast each fall.

Moscow campus attacks bring extended patrol

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police Chief Clark Hudson has ordered additional patrols of the University of Idaho campus in response to increasing rumors about assaults on women.

But Hudson said other than a complaint of an assault and a later episode involving an ambulance on campus, he has nothing to indicate a serious problem at the school.

The incidents have apparently caused widespread concern. A Moscow radio station, KIPR, reported getting more than three dozen calls Thursday night from concerned individuals.

The situation developed Tuesday when a young woman claimed she was abducted at knife-point and held for five hours before managing to escape. The incident is still under investigation.

Rumors springing from that incident were given further momentum when an ambulance was seen on campus Wednesday night.

But while Hudson confirmed an ambulance was on campus, he received no complaint or report of foul play.

Medical bureau elects

LEWISTON (UPI) — Dr. Robert C. Colburn has been named chairman of the Medical Service Bureau of Idaho board of directors.

Wayne Olin was named president and chief executive officer.

The Medical Service Bureau is a non-profit health corporation which does business in the state as Blue Shield of Idaho.

Man still critical

BOISE (UPI) — Paul Crank, 30, Emmett, remained in critical condition at St. Alphonsus Hospital Friday from injuries suffered in a water tower fall Tuesday.

Crank was hurt when a ladder on which he was standing slipped inside the newly installed tower of the Desert View Water Users' Association. He fell about 30 feet to the bottom of the empty tower.

Architect Jim Smallwood's plans combine energy-efficiency with modern design and organization.

New O'Leary far cry from the old

TWIN FALLS — The new O'Leary Junior High School should be ready for students near the first of the year and the change will be like going from night to day for the students.

That evaluation was expressed by O'Leary Principal Carl Snow as he toured the new facility recently. "I think it's just great," Snow said when asked his opinion of the $4.25 million structure.

"The old school is just too small. We're holding band in one room upstairs that used to be a classroom and leaks like a sieve," Snow said.

Another problem has been the noise that travels from the gymnasium and invades every classroom.

But the problems will soon be over. In the new O'Leary, there are three distinct buildings with three distinct functions, Chief Architect Jim Smallwood said.

They are the main classroom building, the fine arts building and the gymnasium building. The main classroom building contains the library-media center, two classroom wings, a multipurpose commons area and the administration offices. The multipurpose area is also the lunchroom.

The fine arts building has a 372-seat auditorium, music practice rooms and classrooms for dramatic arts.

The gymnasium building has one regulation gymnasium which will hold up to 1,300 people and a smaller gym, which will be used for physical education classes but will seat 500 people.

Along with the gymnasiums, the building also contains the vocational-technical class areas for sewing, homemaking, woodshop and drafting.

"This way, we can open up specific buildings without having to open up the whole school," Smallwood explained.

Having three buildings saves heating the whole school for one event in the gymnasium or the fine arts auditorium.

While the soon-to-be-vacated 60-year-old school is drab inside and out, the new school's interior is decorated by bright colors and large designs on the walls.

Some of the designs will help students find their way around.

Each classroom is labeled with a number on the door hard to miss. The numbers are nearly three feet tall and run the length of the door.

Students will be able to take advantage of a library-media center in the new school.

That area will hold the library books but will also house a listening center where the students can listen to music or specially prepared tapes.

Smallwood said one of the biggest advantages of the new school is that it spreads the students out and allows the teachers better control in the classroom.

Smallwood said $4.25 million will pay for the buildings, the landscaping including grass and trees, a fully furnished football field with uprights, an eight lane all-weather track, the fencing for the grounds and blacktopping for the parking lots.

He said if the money to be received from the sale of the old school building downtown is subtracted from the total cost of the project, the money for the new school is well spent.

Smallwood said several energy-saving ideas were incorporated into the school.

Those included small windows that save on heat loss and an electrically-saving lighting system that uses about 40 percent fewer light tubes.

Other innovations include tones instead of bells to signal the class changes; a separate administration area that can be sealed off during summer and winter vacations to conserve heating and cooling costs; and an emergency call system that can alert administration officials if there is trouble in any classroom.

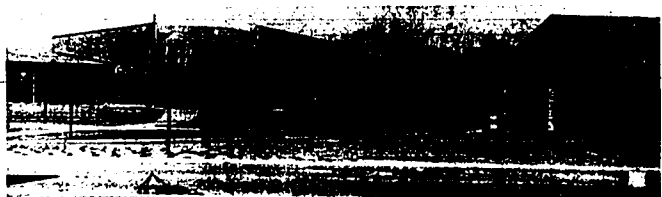

Smallwood said the building contractor is on schedule and should finish construction in January.

Two classroom wings have been completed and cleaned and will be ready for use soon.

Work is still going on in the gymnasium and the fine arts buildings and contractors are still working on the new heating system which should be completed by the time the students are ready to move in.

Principal Carl Snow looks forward to occupying bright, new school

School tests huge heat pump

TWIN FALLS — When the students of O'Leary Junior High School step out of the cold and into the warmth of their new school in January, they will be taking part in a heating experiment.

The heating system in the school is not a new type but does happen to be the biggest ever constructed. It's called a heat pump, which is a glorified, reversible air conditioner.

"It is the biggest thing we've ever made," said Ron Zimmer, the man who is installing the system. "As a matter of fact, we had to hire another company to move the thing out of the plant because it was so big."

Zimmer is the production manager for Tempmaster in Kansas City, the manufacturer of the new junior high school's heat pump.

The heat pump was the only practical heating alternative, school architect Jim Smallwood of Twin Falls said.

"It was strictly a matter of economics of operation. We could have chosen a hydronic unit or a resistance type system," Smallwood explained.

A hydronic unit heats water in a boiler and the resulting steam is used to heat air through a heat exchanger. The heated air is then blown throughout a building. The boiler is heated by natural gas or coal.

An example of the second type mentioned by Smallwood, a resistance system is the baseboard electric heater installed in homes and businesses.

The heat pump, however, has the ability to take heat from cool air and take coolness from warm air.

While that sounds like a bit of science fiction, the system works and works well in moderate climates.

The heart of the system will be two huge compressors that will compress a gas into a liquid.

When the gas is compressed into a liquid, it absorbs heat from the surrounding air. The heat is then captured and blown through the building.

When the pressure is released from the liquid and it condenses into a gas again, the process is reversed and coolness is collected from surrounding air.

While it takes a certain amount of electricity to produce an increase in air temperature of one degree, a heat pump uses perhaps half that amount of energy to produce the same amount of heat.

The heat pump does have limits, Smallwood said. That holds true, generally, down to 40 degrees.

Smallwood said.

Below that, the cost of heat-pumping equals or exceeds that of the two other types of heating systems.

Because of that, the heat pump system also has what Zimmer calls a bank of resistor heating coils that will take over when the temperature is too cold for the system to work effectively. Those resistor coils are like a giant electric furnace.

One other innovation built into the school is what Smallwood calls a zone system.

In many older buildings, when a room gets too warm because of the people there, a window is opened or the air conditioning goes on.

At the O'Leary school, if one area gets too warm, the warm air will be re-routed to another part of the school that is too cool.

"Instead of losing all that heat to the outside, it will be moved to another area and re-used," Smallwood said.

"The one nice thing about the heat pump is that it can be combined with solar heat," Smallwood said.

If the cost of solar equipment drops and it becomes economically feasible to combine the two, Smallwood says it could substantially reduce the cost of heating the main school building.

"I'm reluctant to say too much about it (the heating system), in case it doesn't work as well as expected," Smallwood warned, but added, "We did all kinds of computer analysis on the system and it should work very well."

Monitoring equipment will be installed to watch the system's performance. After all the information is in, the technical data will be published in some of the heating trade publications.

Until the experts are through going over the system, the junior high students will have their chance to pass their own judgment when they occupy the new school.

Cable TV Co. losing money on Jerome service, hookups

By LAWRENCE WALD
Times-News writer

JEROME — Cable TV service may be cut back in Jerome unless the cable company is allowed to raise rates.

Magic Valley Cable Vision manager Gene Ritnour told the city council Tuesday if the city doesn't lift controls on rate hikes, the company will be forced to cut repair services and some channels in the city.

He asked the council to clear the way for him to raise monthly rates and installation charges.

"We've got to have relief of certain types of service," Ritnour told the council. He said the company has lost $4,000 in Jerome because rates are lower there than in other Magic Valley communities.

Magic Valley Cable is prevented from changing rates by a city ordinance that set the original cable sales and requires a public hearing before rates can be changed. Although that ordinance was passed to comply with Federal Communications Commission regulations, the FCC has since changed its rules.

Two years ago Ritnour asked the council to repeal that ordinance, but the council didn't. Since then three of the four members have been replaced, so the current council didn't know about the rate request.

But they agreed Tuesday to think about Ritnour's request, and to give him an answer in two weeks. Jerome city attorney Rob Williams said the ordinance could either repeal the ordinance or hold a hearing to change the rates.

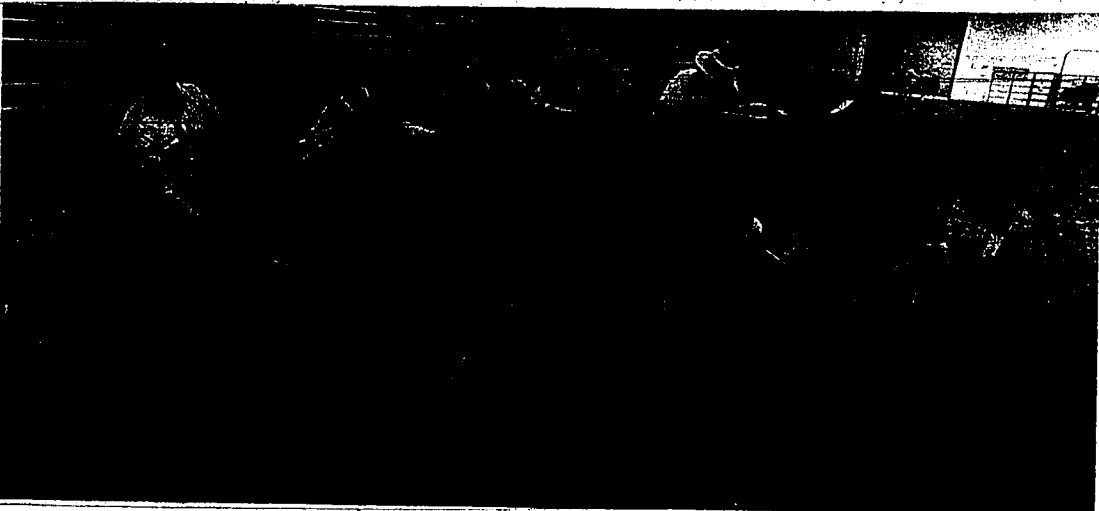

If the ordinance isn't repealed, the cable company will have to continue asking for permission from the city for future rate hikes.

TWIN FALLS — A carefully trimmed and groomed "SBR Citation" walked calmly away as Grand Champion Bull in Friday's polled Hereford show at the College of Southern Idaho.

Ranchers and breeders from Utah, Oregon and Idaho brought their choice animals to show. Sponsored by the Idaho Polled Hereford Association, the show will be followed by an auction in the Idaho Expo Center today at 12:30 p.m. The show and sale are the first such events to be held in the new Expo Center.

Owned by the Split Butte Ranch of Rupert, "Citation" won top honors over a field of 58 prize Hereford bulls gathered in the Expo Center for the IPHA annual show and sale.

Judges named SFHC 84 Roundup as Reserve Champion Bull in the competition. Roundup is the property of Schock Polled Hereford Co. of Vida, Mont.

In the heifer division, MB Beau

Gold Miss owned by Michael Braun of Jerome was named Grand Champion Heifer over a field of 17 prize Hereford heifers.

And SBR Miss Reflection owned by Split Butte Ranch of Rupert won Reserve Heifer.

David Chadwick, IPHA director, said he expects today's sale to be the best the association has ever sponsored.

"Every year they are getting better," Chadwick said.

Gov. Evans ringside

BOISE (UPI) — If you needed a double take when you thought you saw Gov. John V. Evans sitting hear ringside in Caesars Palace Friday night, your suspicions were correct.

The governor and his wife attended the World-Bowling Council heavy-weight championship fight between Larry Holmes and challenger Alfredo Evangelista as guests of Gov. and Mrs. Mike O'Callaghan of Nevada.

"They were going to Las Vegas anyway for a vacation and Mr. O'Callaghan asked my mom and dad if they'd like to come to the fight," said Susie Evans, the governor's daughter. "They thought it might be fun so they did."

Evans, who will return to Idaho Sunday, sat in the second row.

SNRA funding increased to $47.8 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church said Friday President Carter has signed into law an omnibus package bill which contains major provisions for Idaho.

Idaho provisions include:

• Legislation implementing a compromise classification plan for the St. Joe River in north Idaho. The compromise was worked out earlier this year by a citizen committee and calls for classifying 66.5 miles of the upper reaches of the river under the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

• A provision to hike the authorization allowing the Forest Service to acquire land and scenic easements in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area from $19.8 million to $47.8 million. Church said the increase is necessary to continue the acquisition program within the Sawtooth in the face of rising land values.

• Legislation establishing a new category of national historic trails under the National Trails System. The legislation designates four trails — the Oregon, Mormon Pioneer, Lewis & Clark, and Alaska Gold Rush — for immediate inclusion in the new category.

Classification of the river has been a matter of controversy for years. Under the new law, the main stem of the St. Joe above its confluence with the north fork at Spruce Tree Camp would be classified as a recreational river.

27-year-old Ketchum woman killed in two-car collision

HAILEY — Lori Blum, 27, of Ketchum was killed in a two-car collision on State Highway 75. The accident occurred on Thursday night on Highway 75. According to investigating officer Idaho State Police-Cpl. Glen Schwartz, Ms. Blum was traveling south on highway 75 five miles north of Hailey when she hit ice and spun backward into the oncoming lane of traffic. The accident occurred about 6 p.m. Thursday night on the Hidden Hollow bridge north of Hailey.

Schwartz said the 1962 Triumph sedan was on the bridge and spun around and the back of the car struck a 1972 Chevrolet pickup head-on. The pickup was driven by Brian Jacobs of Ketchum. Schwartz said witnesses at the scene said the small sports car burst into flame on impact. The accident tied up traffic on the bridge for about 30 minutes, he said. Jacobs and a female passenger received minor injuries and a child riding in the Jacobs' vehicle was injured. Schwartz said there had been a skiff of snow in the Hailey area Thursday afternoon which got the roads and bridges wet, and the drop in temperature caused ice spots on the bridge, causing the accident. He said the woman apparently died from the impact and not from the resulting fire. Schwartz was assisted by Deputies Farnworth and Ramsey of the Blaine County Sheriff's office.

CSI's Taylor speaks

State board silences plan to review Lewiston college

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News writer

JEROME — Dr. James Taylor Friday said Idaho should be discouraged from any attempt to "price students out of the (educational) market."

The College of Southern Idaho president urged the members of the state Board of Education meeting in Jerome to keep student costs low because he is "a firm believer that education is probably better for the state than it is for the student."

A well-educated population means less welfare, better political participation and more people paying taxes on constructive employment, the junior college president said.

Friday morning's board session focused on long-range planning for post-secondary education with board consideration of first-draft reports from committees studying access and programs. The board took no action and will continue the planning process in later meetings.

Taylor also urged the board to consider that in the future fewer students will fit the traditional 18-22 age bracket of unmarried, fulltime students. The state universities and colleges will have to play a greater role in remedial education, he said, because of the continuing shift toward older, more parttime students.

He estimated nearly half of students at CSI come "unprepared to handle post-secondary work." Board member Cheryl Hymas of Jerome said she was concerned about providing equal opportunity for education but not necessarily free education.

"Education should be within the limits of the student to pay, but also within the limits of the state to provide," she said.

Board members informally agreed to eliminate a proposed study on the future status of Lewis-Clark State College from the program committee report on long-range planning.

The most controversial proposal in the draft study recommended an investigation of the "advisability of changing the role and mission of the Lewis-Clark school to a local junior college district, offering associate degrees and supported by local and state funds."

Board member John Swartley of Boise said the recommendation should be dropped because he feared even a suggestion of a status change would "hurt" current accreditation studies and the school's bonding rating.

Mrs. Hymas said the proposal was "too specific at this time, will undermine morale and may cause students to leave."

But board member Janet Hay of Nampa expressed concern over future funding, a theme which surfaced often during the two-day state board meeting in Gooding and Jerome this week.

She said if education faces funding reductions "we must be able to investigate many drastic measures." She urged focusing on not just one institution, but "on everybody."

During the closing session Friday afternoon a conflict surfaced over what Milton Small, the board's executive director, termed "basic policy differences" with the Idaho Historical Society, one of nearly two dozen state agencies over which the State Board of Education has responsibility.

Small said state legislative and administrative officials have said the board must "exercise more fiscal control" over the historical society which has its own board of trustees.

Several board members said they objected to assuming control of another board, but Small said, "If we don't work it out, there'll be legislation to put it right in our pocket." Arthur Hart, director of the historical society, said he would be happy to work with state board staff members to develop more clearly defined fiscal procedures.

State board members approved an additional $2,900 increase in the 1980 budget request of the historical society to provide for a $6,000 salary increase the society board granted Hart earlier this year.

In other action, the board:

- Approved appointment of Dr. Charles McQuillen as University of Idaho dean of the College of Business and Economics, effective Feb. 1, 1979, at a salary of $38,500. He currently is employed with the Senate committee on budget in Washington, D.C.
- Adopted a meeting schedule for fiscal year 1980 which reduces the normal 11 sessions to nine.
- Authorized Boise State University to appoint a financial consultant for the proposed bond sale to finance construction of a $14 million multi-purpose pavilion.
- Accepted the resignation of Dennis Haarsager, Idaho's educational television coordinator and agreed to appoint a committee to search for his successor.

Holmes decks Evangelista in seventh

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Larry Holmes refused to belittle challenger Alfredo Evangelista after winning every round before knocking him out in the seventh round Friday night.

"I didn't think it was no easy fight," Holmes said as he slipped a beer at a post-fight news conference. "He wasn't an easy opponent. I wish it was easy — I wish every fight was easy."

The one-time Muhammad Ali sparring partner was in a playful mood after the one-sided victory in his first title defense since taking the WBC version of the championship away from Ken Norton.

Holmes joked with reporters and paused once to ask, "Am I funny?"

"I feel he (Evangelista) is a worthy opponent. The guy had an awkward style. I tried to confuse him by changing my style. I figured as long as I could keep hitting him with the left jab, I was okay."

The seventh-grade dropout, who earned $1.4 million for the scheduled 155-round bout, said: All, who is recognized by the World Boxing Association as champion, should "either fight me or quit."

"I talked to Muhammad yesterday (Thursday) and he said he'll quit when he's ready. I don't know what All's going to do. Nobody knows what he's going to do. But I feel his next fight should be with me."

Previously, Holmes has coarsely said because of his admiration for Ali he would rather not fight the 36-year-old three-time champ. Now Holmes seems interested what could possibly be a $10 million fight.

All for other future opponents, Holmes said he would be interested in a rematch with Norton or a fight with Jimmy Young.

"I will not let NBC, ABC, CBS or you guys (press) dictate who I fight. I want to be a fighting champion and I want to fight all comers. I feel boxing owes guys who worked hard to get in the top 10 a shot at the title. I would not go around or duck anybody."

Holmes bombed Evangelista with an assortment of punches throughout the first six rounds. His most effective punch was a heavy left jab to the face and he also rocked Evangelista on numerous occasions with right uppercuts to the jaw.

What finally started Evangelista on the way out was a withering body attack in the fifth and sixth rounds. As Evangelista stood against the ropes, Holmes delivered punching left hooks to the liver and then it was obviously just a matter of time before the challenger would go down for the first time in his career.

When the seventh round opened, Evangelista came charging after Holmes and missed with a wild left hook. The challenger then took two strong left jabs to the face and spilled blood. Just before the knockdown, Holmes lagged Evangelista with a left to the body and a right to the head.

Holmes, a former All sparring partner, delighted the capacity crowd of 5,300 at Caesar's Palace in the fourth round when he put on an imitation All boxing performance. He came out dancing with his arms down and flicked the challenger from Spain with left jabs to the face.

Alexis Arguello of Nicaragua successfully defended his World Boxing Council junior lightweight title for the third time by scoring a unanimous 15-round decision over Arturo Leon of Tucson, Ariz.

Arguello, 26, knocked Leon down with a left hook to the jaw in the sixth round for the fight's only knockdown. Otherwise, it was pretty much of a dull fight as the Mexican-born Leon was able to elude Arguello and last 15 rounds without a mark.

Arguello, who suffered his first defeat in five years in a non-title fight against Vilomar Fernandez in New York Sept. 28, weighed 130 and had to lose a pound for Friday morning's weigh-in. Leon weighed 128½.

Arguello's knockdown came as a result of a crumpling left hook to Leon's jaw in the opening minute of the sixth round. The punch caught Leon coming in and he pitched forward. It didn't appear he would make it up but he struggled to his feet at the count of nine.

Leon weathered Arguello's onslaught of left hooks and rights in the final two minutes and even delivered a flurry of his own at the bell.

Judges Duane Ford and Hal Miller scored the fight 146-139 while Judge Harold Buck had it 145-140. UPI had Arguello the winner, 147-137.

Ken Norton, who lost his "paper title" in his last Las Vegas appearance, started on the comeback trail with an impressive third-round knockout of Randy Stephens.

Norton clubbed young Stephens through the first two rounds and put him away with an explosive left hook at 2:42 of the third round. Stephens lurched forward for a few steps after being hit and then went down for the count.

Norton, Los Angeles, weighed 220½ while Stephens, a 25-year-old fighter from Dallas, weighed 208½. Stephens attempted to get up at the count of 10 but referee Harry Krausse counted him out as he tried to get up.

Alfredo Evangelista's title hopes end in dreamland per game. So far this season, he has completed 130 passes for 1,110 yards and six touchdowns.

Spoon's favorite receiver is Greg Smith, who is second the conference in receptions per game. Smith has caught 45 passes for 634 yards and five touchdowns.

In last week's 34-12 loss to Weber State, Spoon completed 17 passes for 130 yards and two touchdowns, including a 14-yard scoring strike to Smith. But Idaho Coach Jerry Davitch believes his defense can rise to the occasion and hold Spoon and the ISU offense in check.

"I'm sure if the kids have faith that we've corrected the situation in the punting game, they won't have any trouble getting up," Davitch said. Davitch's reference to the punting game stemmed from last week's 48-10 loss to Boise State, which took advantage of Idaho's punting failure and turnovers deep in the Vandals' territory to win the game.

"It's difficult to keep a football team playing with any emotion this late in the season when they've had as little success as we've had, but we had the emotion the whole game," Davitch said.

Going into Saturday's Kibbie Dome contest, Idaho leads its 'Big Sky' Conference series with Idaho State 3-0.

Michigan, Ohio State and Michigan State share second place with 4-1 league records, and the Wolverines will appear at winter Northwestern, while Ohio State entertains Illinois, without in the conference with four losses and two ties.

Should the front runners win as expected Saturday, Purdue plays at Michigan the following week to give the Wolverines a shot at producing a four-way tie for the league lead with a win. The following week, though, Michigan plays at Ohio State and one of the two, or both, will be knocked off the top rung.

In the fifth game Saturday, Iowa takes a 1-4 Big Ten record to Indiana 2-3. Purdue's Jim Young, despite the Boilermakers' overall 7-1 record, expressed concern about the Badgers because "they have skilled athletes capable of the big play. They've moved the ball against everybody and their skilled people offensively can hurt you."

The Boilermakers' "feel good about our position right now," he added, "but it's the end of the season that counts."

Michigan's Bo Schembechler said the Wolverines' problem "right now is not to look past Northwestern," and cited his defense as improved. "An attacking defense is what Michigan is known for," he said. "We're not that big so we have to go after the opponent."

Woody Hayes of Ohio State took a philosophical view of the coming weeks. "All we can do is continue to win and hope for the best," he said. "We are pretty well set on our starting lineup now. I don't know how good we are but we can make the big play."

Northwestern's Rick Venturi, looking at the Michigan game, refused to be downcast, and said "right now, I'm just happy to be alive."

Big Sky will ponder 'scout rift' in secret

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Saturday's meeting between officials of Boise State College, Northern Arizona University and the Big Sky Conference to discuss alleged scouting violations will be closed to the news media and the public.

Big Sky Commissioner Steve Belko was to have met Friday with NAU Athletic Director Hank Anderson and Boise State Athletic Director Lyle Smith. The meeting was rescheduled after it was learned that Smith would not arrive in Flagstaff until late Friday afternoon.

NAU head football coach Joe Salem has accused Boise State of violating conference rules by scouting Lumberjack football practice.

Salem said Bob Rodrigo, a physical education instructor at Cal State-Hayward, showed up at the NAU campus Tuesday, claiming to be a scout for the Pittsburgh Steelers. He asked to see films of the team in action, and wanted to talk to the players and coaches.

Salem said he became suspicious and checked with the Steelers, who replied they had not authorized Rodrigo to scout the Lumberjacks.

NAU officials said they have learned that Rodrigo is a former coaching associate of Jim Crimer, head football coach at Boise State. They also said Rodrigo has worked at Crimer's summer sports camp in California.

Information gathered at Saturday's meeting will be forwarded to the Big Sky Athletic Directors' Council, which will present recommendations to the President's Council.

Also to be discussed at the meeting were charges that Boise State did not send game films to NAU on schedule as required by league rules.

Reed leaves Knicks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willis Reed, under heavy criticism for falling to revive the sagging New York Knicks, will leave his post Saturday and be replaced by his former coach, Red Holzman.

Reed, who led the Knicks to two championships as a player, was expected to turn New York into a playoff contender. Although the Knicks advanced to the second round of the playoffs in his first year as coach, a troubled beginning at the start of this season placed his job in jeopardy.

The Knicks, 6-8 and in fourth place in the Atlantic Division, have just completed a six-game Western road trip, which the team's management regarded as crucial to Reed's future.

The Knicks dropped four of six games on the swing, the final defeat coming Thursday night to Denver when they lost 116-109 after trailing by as many as 30 points. The two victories on the trip came against San Diego and Seattle.

Since the start of the season, Reed and the management at Madison Square Garden have been at odds

ISU to test Idaho secondary

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho State University Bengals will have their last opportunity this year to win a Big Sky Conference game when they travel north to meet the University of Idaho Vandals Saturday.

Coming into the 8 p.m. game, ISU had only a slightly better record at 2-7 than the Vandals at 1-8.

But the Bengals feature quarterback Mike Spoon, who currently leads the Big Sky in passing completions

Rose bowl chase hits lull

CHICAGO (UPI) — Purdue, Michigan and Ohio State could be excused Saturday if each keeps an eye on the other while trying to win a football game.

The three are solid favorites for their Big Ten football games against second division opponents, but none of the three can afford an upset without a drastic effect on its hopes for a Rose Bowl berth and conference championship or a share of it.

Michigan State, though not as heavy a favorite for its contest against Minnesota, would be in the same position except the Spartans are completing an NCAA penalty which rules them out of bowl games. Yet Michigan State could claim the league title or part of it.

Purdue, boasting its longest winning streak since 1945, five games, and leading the Big Ten with a 5-0 record, plays at Wisconsin, with three game losing streak and a 2-3-1 conference record.

Michigan, Ohio State and Michigan State share second place with 4-1 league records, and the Wolverines will appear at winter Northwestern, while Ohio State entertains Illinois, without in the conference with four losses and two ties.

Should the front runners win as expected Saturday, Purdue plays at Michigan the following week to give the Wolverines a shot at producing a four-way tie for the league lead with a win. The following week, though, Michigan plays at Ohio State and one of the two, or both, will be knocked off the top rung.

Capital blanks Meridian

BOISE (UPI) — Don Ames ran for first ball touchdowns of 80 and 5 yards Friday night to lead the Capital Eagles to a 30-0 win over the Meridian Warriors in Meridian.

The Eagles were in command all the way, falling only on two conversion attempts, thanks to Ames' brilliant running. Kevin Graves added a third touchdown and a Jeff Holman to Don Coleman two-point conversion led the game at 20-0.

The contest was the final Southern Idaho Conference game for both teams. Boise and undefeated Borah battle it out Saturday with both teams vying for a league championship.

Lyle sent to Texas in 10-player trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sparky Lyle, the American League's Cy Young Award winner in 1977 who became disenchanted when relegated to second-line status in the bullpen, Friday got his wish to be traded when the New York Yankees sent him to the Texas Rangers in a 10-player deal.

YANKEE SPARKY LYLE

... becomes Texas Ranger

The Yankees dealt Lyle, the 36-year-old left-hander, plus catcher Mike Heath, pitchers Larry McCall and Dave Rajsch and utility infielder Domingo Hiram to Texas for center fielder Juan Beniquez, pitchers Dave Griffith, Paul Marabellia and Mike Griffin and outfielder Greg Jenson. The Rangers also received an undisclosed amount of money.

Righthand 20 was considered the main player in the deal as far as the Yankees were concerned. The youngster struck out 127 batters and walked only 49 in 91 innings at Tulsa of the American Association this year. He was 5-5 as a starter.

"We're in love with Righthand," said Yankees president Al Rosen at a news conference announcing the trade. "He's a left-handed power pitcher and we've had great reports on him. The of our scouts said he thinks he's another Ron Guidry. I don't think that's possible for it's rare to know he's considered in that class."

Texas originally did not want to part with Righthand, but the Yankees insisted upon the left-hander in order to complete the deal. Righthand was bothered by a minor arm problem at the end of the season but Rosen said it was "nothing serious."

Rosen said he had spoken to Lyle about the trade and that the lefty reliever was glad.

"Sparky seemed elated," Rosen said. "He hopes they work his butt off. That's what he wants. He is one of the greatest left-handed relief pitchers the game has ever known. He's a great competitor."

Lyle said he thanked the New York Yankees for trading him to the Texas Rangers and said he expects to approve the deal officially after speaking with Texas center fielder Brad Corbett Saturday.

"I won't go there unless I can better myself and pitch the way I want to pitch," Lyle said from his home in Demarest, N.J. "But Dick Moss (Lyle's agent) told me he didn't anticipate any problems and I doubt there will be any."

As a 10-year veteran who has spent more than five years with the Yankees, Lyle must approve the deal. He said he had not yet talked to Corbett but hoped to do so sometime Saturday.

"I haven't done anything yet," Lyle said. "I'm waiting to talk to Texas."

Lyle has two years remaining on his current contract, but Corbett is believed ready to lengthen it at a strategic increase in salary. Corbett will also have to give his assurance that Lyle will be the main man out of the Rangers' bullpen.

Lyle said Al Rosen, the Yankees' president, called Friday to inform him of the trade that sent the 34-year-old left-handed relief pitcher and former Cy Young Award winner to Texas in 10-player deal.

"I told him that and that I would get back to him after I talked with Texas," Lyle said. "I expect to do that tomorrow. I feel fortunate because for the second time in my career I'm getting to go where I want. When I was with Boston I asked to be traded to the Yankees in 1972 where I could play for Hal Blass. At this point I want to play for Texas. I asked to be traded there back in spring training."

Asked why he picked Texas, Lyle said, "They're a contender and I can do a good job for them. I think there's a lot of work there. To be effective I need a lot of work and that's what I'm expecting to get."

It's also what he wasn't getting any longer in New York. Lyle reached the peak of his outstanding seven-year career with the Yankees in 1977 when he won the American League Cy Young Award, the first relief pitcher ever to do so. But with the Yankees' acquisition of free agent Rich Gossage for $2.75 million, Lyle was used with less frequency and rarely in crucial situations last season.

CSI to have Williams for home tilt tonight

TWIN FALLS — Christmas came early for Coach Mike Mitchell and Jerry Williams, returned to the practice court.

After two days of wondering, the Eagles' returning score-rebounder, Jerry Williams, returned to the practice court.

The last time Williams was on the floor, it was literal — laying on his stomach and writhing in pain. He wrenched his back during a rebound melee against Mark's Music in the Shrine-Benefit game Wednesday night. It was feared at the time it was slipped disc and he might be done for the year — the first semester at least.

It seems that he pinched a nerve which gave him an immediate pain but it eased off steadily and he was able to practice with no problem today," Coach Mitchell said Friday night.

Williams had missed most of the pre-season practices due to a back injury sustained shortly before he returned to school in August.

The coach said whether Williams actually will play will depend on how he feels Saturday night. If there is any question, he will be held out and hopefully be ready to go in the season-opening tournament in Hutchinson, Kans., next Thursday night.

With or without Williams, the Eagles will take on the Mountain Home air base Plainlanders at 7:30 p.m. today at the CSI gymnasium.

The Plainlanders evidently are back to a caliber of play they enjoyed several years ago when they were a good opponent. They come to Twin Falls with a dose of optimism.

"I talked with their coach and he said he felt his team was untested. He told me he felt we would probably be the first one to give them a test," Coach Mitchell said. "They are 5-0 and I don't know who they've been playing except they coasted over fifth air force base twice."

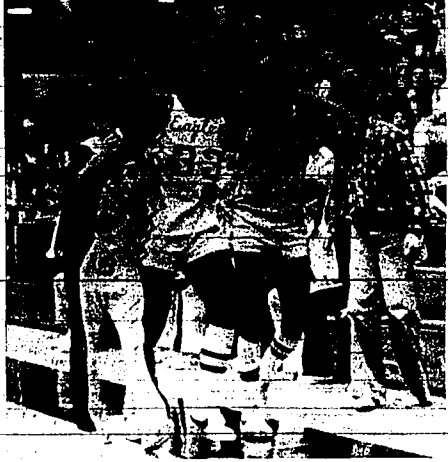

"They start three 6-6 men underneath and their guards are 6-4 and 6-1 — so they sound like a pretty good ball team," he continued. "We won't know what to expect from them."

The Eagles returned to the practice floor for heavy work on defense and rebounding following Wednesday's opener. Those two phases of the game, particularly the rebounding, drew strong criticism from the coach.

"Well, we've worked on defense quite a bit," the coach answered the question, "but mostly we've been working on rebounding. We've been trying to get them to understand where the cutting lanes to the board are and things like that."

The coach said he anticipated his charges playing a little better this time around.

The Eagles will remain in action Monday night, hosting the NNC Jayvees at 7:30 p.m. and take off Tuesday morning for Kansas. After a three-game stint there, they return to Twin Falls for the K and T Steel Invitational tournament over the Thanksgiving weekend. They have just two home games scheduled after that before the holidays.

Philadelphia outlasts Bullets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maurice Cheeks hit a free throw with eight seconds left Friday night to lead the Philadelphia 76ers, who earlier blew a 32-point lead, to a 123-122 NBA victory over the Washington Bullets.

Cheeks' free throw gave the Sixers a 123-120 advantage. Bobby Dandridge scored on a layup with five seconds left for the final margin.

Julius Erving, who led the Sixers with 26 points, put his team on top 122-120 with 1:11 left. Erving's driving layup seconds before had tied the game 120-120. Philadelphia's last-minute heroics blunted a rally that saw the Bullets charge from a 63-31 deficit in the second period to take a 113-106 lead in the fourth quarter.

Elvin Hayes sparked the Bullets' rally, scoring 29 of his game-high 36 points in the final half. Doug Collins added 24 points for the Sixers.

Washington, which once trailed 13-0, took its first lead of the night at 99-98 on Charlie Johnson's follow shot with 8:30 left. A three-point play by Hayes gave the Bullets a 113-106 edge, their largest of the evening, but ahead 120-118, hitting the stage for Erving's game-winning points.

Bucks beat Houston

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Brian Winters scored 27 points, Marques Johnson had 26, and Quinn Buckner scored 16 points and added a career-high 18 assists Friday night, leading the Milwaukee Bucks to a 131-126 win over the Houston Rockets.

Houston scored nine straight points, four of them by Moses Malone, to take a 110-104 lead with eight and a half minutes remaining but Milwaukee outscored the Rockets 16-1, four by Winters, to take a 120-111 lead with three minutes left.

Malone led Houston, matching his career-high 39 points, and added a game-high 20 rebounds Calvin Murphy had 26 points for the Rockets and Mike Newlin 20.

Jazz tames Spurs

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Guard Pete Maravich scored a season-high 41 points and the New Orleans Jazz held San Antonio to its lowest scoring output of the season Friday night, defeating the Spurs 133-102.

Leading 66-43 in the third quarter, the Jazz broke open a close game by outscoring the Spurs 16-4 during the next 4:30 to take an 82-67 lead. New Orleans outscored San Antonio 30-18 in the quarter.

League-leading scorer George Gervin led the Spurs with 30 points. Leonard "Truck" Robinson added 20 for the Jazz.

Maravich scored 20 in the first half as the Jazz gained the lead for good on his layup making it 37-35 with 8:21 left in the half.

Piscataway Blazers

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (UPI) — Bernard King had 31 points Friday night and the New Jersey Nets scored six points in the last two minutes to defeat the Portland Trail Blazers 91-86.

With 1:40 remaining Tom Owens of Portland hit 2-of-3 foul shots to put the Trail Blazers ahead 86-85. But Eric Money of New Jersey hit a basket from the top of the key, George Johnson followed with a free throw and Ed Jordan made 3-of-4 foul shots in the final 30 seconds.

Al Skinner scored 19 points and Jordan 18 for New Jersey. Portland was paced by Owens with 25 points and Maurice Lucas with 20.

The Trail Blazers, who led 37-36 at the half and 65-62 at the end of the third quarter, fell to 7-4. New Jersey raised its record to 9-6.

Woman heads Times sport page

NEW YORK (UPI) — A former editor of a women's sports magazine has been named sports editor of the New York Times.

The appointment of Lee Anne Schreiber, 33, was announced by A.M. Rosenthal, executive editor of the Times.

Miss Schreiber will head a staff of 35 reporters, editors and columnists. She will have overall responsibility for the daily sports pages, the enlarged Sunday sports section and SportsPages.

A former editor in chief of Women's Sports magazine, Miss Schreiber joined the Times last February. In 1974 she became a writer for Time magazine and covered the 1976 Olympic games.

Todd activated

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — New York Jets quarterback Richard Todd, who suffered a broken collarbone on Sept. 24, has been given permission to suit up for emergency duty in Sunday's game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Todd, who was hurt when he was slammed down by Washington's Karl Zosch and Dave Butz while attempting to pass, had been throwing lightly until this week. He threw for the first time with pads on Thursday and Jet doctors gave their approval for his return after an examination on Friday.

49ers rehire Thomas

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Even though the San Francisco 49ers have won only six games in two seasons, club owner Ed DeBarolo Jr. has extended general manager Joe Thomas' contract by four years through the 1986 season.

Thomas was signed to a six-year agreement when DeBarolo bought the 49ers after the 1976 season. In 1977, Thomas' first as general manager, the club won five games and lost nine, and this year the 49ers are 1-9.

While the 49ers have been foundering, Thomas has been criticized by newsmen and fans. But DeBarolo said he thinks his general manager has done a good job, and Friday he backed his view by extending Thomas' contract through the 1986 season.

Phipps gets nod

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nine-year veteran Mike Phipps will quarterback the Chicago Bears Sunday when they play the Minnesota Vikings in Bloomington, Bears Coach Neill Armstrong announced Friday.

Phipps, who hasn't had a National Football League start since November 1976, replaced Bob Avellini in the second half of the game against the Seattle Seahawks last Sunday. Phipps directed the Bears to a field goal and three touchdowns.

"Mike came in in the second half last week and played well," Armstrong said. "He's patient, a good quarterback, prepares himself well and deserves to start."

Correa rups for US title

CHICAGO — College of Southern Idaho's Jalro Correa is rated a good chance to bring home the Golden Eagles first individual national running championship Saturday.

Correa, along with Bob Foster, will be the only Eagles in the national junior college cross country finals at University of Illinois. The team failed to qualify in regionals last weekend.

"Jalro is among the top three in the nation," Coach Karl Kleinkopf said. "There are two others who are within seven seconds. Still, that means we only know the top times of those schools that have reported. And it is very hard to equate the differences in courses and altitude and things like that."

Heisman on line with Big 8 title

NEW YORK—The featured college football match-up — Oklahoma at Nebraska — will go a long way to only determine the Big Eight championship but the outcome of the Heisman Trophy race as well. Billy Sims, the mercurial presence behind the Sooner attack, is coming off another 300-yard game — his third of the season — and has got to rate as the odds-on favorite to capture this year's Heisman.

In a word, the Sooner offense is awesome. In addition to Sims, Oklahoma boasts one of the all-time great backfields in recent memory. Kenny Kling, who has been through a loss only once in his career at Oklahoma, is averaging over seven yards per carry. David Overstreet is averaging 10.5 yards per carry while Jimmy Rogers rounds out this track team with an 8.8 average. Then there is QB Thomas Lea, with seven TDs and a 6.3 rating average to go along with impressive passing credentials.

Defensively the Sooners have several standout performers who have the pro scouts drooling. Reggie Kinlaw, Phil Tabor and Darryl Hunt could all very well wind up being drafted in the first two rounds by the NFL.

The Cornhuskers will have their hands full, but they have the home-field advantage as well as a potent offense led by Rick Berns and I.M. Hipp — one of Sims' competitors for Heisman honors — which has the capacity to move the ball against the Sooner defense. In addition QB Tom Sorley gives Nebraska a substantial edge in terms of passing. This edge, however, is lacking by the Sooners' top-ranked kicking game featuring Uwe von Schamann. Oklahoma is 5-1.

LSU at Alabama — This game is yet another showcase for Charles Alexander, LSU's sensational runner who is also well-placed in the Heisman case. Third-ranked Alabama, featuring an offense keyed by Jeff Rutledge and running backs Tony Nathan, Major Ogilvie and Steve Whitman, will provide a stirring test of the LSU defense centered around the efforts of end John Adams, coming off an excellent performance against Ole Miss in which he had five sacks.

The obvious key will be how well the Tide contains Alexander the Great. Charles has rushed for 859 yards, a 4.3 average and is the second-ranked rusher in the NCAA with a 122.7 average per game while also ranking third in scoring with 10.3 points per game, Alabama by 13.

"West had bid and rebid diamonds, without very many high cards and it was reasonable to assume that he had a six-card suit. Hence, it was up to you to suggest the possibility that East would ruff a high diamond. You should win the first diamond with dummy's king and lead the king of clubs. West would take his ace and give his partner a diamond ruff, but East would be ruffing a small diamond, not a high one. Then when West got in with the ace of spades that would be the third and last trick for the defense..."

You respond one spade to your partner's heart opening. He rebids two hearts. A New York reader wants to know if you bid again. "We do not. We prefer to let our partner struggle with two hearts rather than bid on to what is likely to be a worse spot. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.) (Do you have a question for the experts? By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The student let the diamond lead come around to his ace and led his singleton club. Everything would have come up roses except that West went right up with the ace and continued with the jack of diamonds. East ruffed dummy's king and after a period of thought led a spade. West got in with the ace and cashed the winning trick, the 10 of diamonds. "Could I have done anything to contact?" asked the student. "You really had no excuse to land in the soup," replied the Professor.
