

Uncle Sam told who to pay off, how and when

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Before it became out and out illegal for American businessmen to bribe foreign officials, State Department officials apparently offered citizens information on the proper way to make a payoff.

The Justice Department says there are no grounds for prosecution.

The issue came up recently when Chicago attorney Alexander Hehmyer wrote the Justice Department and the Wall Street Journal — a letter outlining what he was told at the State Department in 1974.

The man to whom the letter was addressed, Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann, said he had little indication that government officials knew about specific payoffs and he told UPI. "You have to think very hard about it before prosecuting such a case."

Heymann noted that the law forbidding overseas payoffs was not in effect at the time of the 1974 briefing Hehmyer mentioned in his letter.

Hehmyer, who contends government encouragement of bribes would make U.S. prosecution of businessmen impossible, said in an interview State Department officials were right to share their information.

"If they didn't know about it, they would be incompetent, and if they did know about it, they owed it to us to tell us about it," he said.

A former intelligence officer, Hehmyer said the State Department simply did for businessmen what the OSS did for paratroopers who were dropped behind enemy lines: Give them information that would permit them to survive in a foreign and sometimes hostile environment.

In his letter to the Justice Department, Hehmyer described a 1974 briefing at the State Department for a business group going to Saudi Arabia.

He said he asked about the practice of bribes and was told, "Such payments were probably best handled through a properly connected agent and were especially expected in Saudi Arabia."

Hehmyer said the businessmen were told the going rate was "from 5 to 20 percent, depending on the political situation and the nature of the project."

The State Department said it has been unable to locate any records which indicate that department officials condoned or encouraged illicit or improper payments.

Hehmyer said, "Did the State Department directly encourage bribery? Probably no. But they did encourage U.S. business to go into a country where payments are standard and they told us about the system. For that I give them an A."

A State Department official who attended the 1974 briefing, said the department was aware of business practices in the Middle East, including the paying of bribes to the royal family.

But, he said, "It is a big jump from knowledge about the common practice to a charge that we were in complicity."

In his interview with UPI, Hehmyer said his business group also got advice on bribes from the U.S. Embassy in Riyadh.

He said a high-ranking American official there objected to the practice of bribing Saudi military men on grounds the money would make officers more independent and might cause political instability in Saudi Arabia.

As for his letter to the Justice Department, Hehmyer said, he has not received "a word or a whimper" in return.

Carter uses phone appeals to revive stuck peace talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Sunday telephoned Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to describe a new formula aimed at settling the Mideast peace talks.

The White House said Carter called Sadat from the White House shortly after noon and phoned Begin in Toronto at mid-afternoon from a Maryland farm, where the President was attending a prayer session.

Later in the day, Begin stopped off in New York and met for more than two hours with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to discuss the formula, which Vance had worked out with Egyptian and Israeli negotiators in Washington.

Begin said the Israeli cabinet would "make the proper decisions" in the matter.

Details on the proposal were not made public, but the Washington Post said in its Monday editions the compromise is reported to include a new one-page draft letter on the West Bank-Gaza strip issue.

The Post said the agreement calls for the letter to be exchanged between Israel and Egypt when they sign a peace treaty. The newspaper quoted Israeli sources saying the draft letter reflects Israel's agreement to the principle of resolving the West Bank-Gaza "problems, but does not include specific dates and details which Egypt had sought."

Sources told UPI the compromise formula was reached in talks that began Saturday morning and ended at 1 a.m. EST Sunday with a 3 1/2 hour meeting between Vance and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

But the sources cautioned that final agreement depends on the consent of both governments. Officials in Cairo and Jerusalem earlier rejected terms worked out by their negotiating teams in Washington.

The Vance-Dayan meeting at the State Department was the culmination of a day of bargaining that saw Vance visit the Washington hotel where the Egyptians and the Israelis are staying.

The secretary of state — accompanied by his chief mediator, Alfred Atherton — engaged in a sort of minishuttle, going from one part of the hotel to the other to sound out the two sides on ways to end the deadlock.

The sources reported a total of more than seven hours of meetings extending into the early hours of Sunday.

The major problem was the text of a treaty preamble about negotiations for the future of the Palestinians living in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The Egyptians want a firm, explicit commitment for talks to end Israel's military rule in the occupied territories. The Israelis have objected to, the subject being mentioned at all.

Shah's foes denounce leader's arrest

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The National Front opposition attempting to topple the shah from his throne Sunday bitterly attacked the arrest of their leader and said the strike against the military regime was still effective.

A member of the opposition group predicted many strikers probably would return to their jobs Monday, however, because they have to work to earn money to live.

American oil sources said the strike by oil field workers had eased slightly. Production Sunday at Iran's major site, Houston, was 2 1/3 million barrels — about one third normal.

Iran's domestic energy needs consume about 675,000 barrels of oil per day.

The National Front said its weeklong strike was still effective and gave no indication the protest would end. The Front member who predicted a back-to-work trend asked not to be identified.

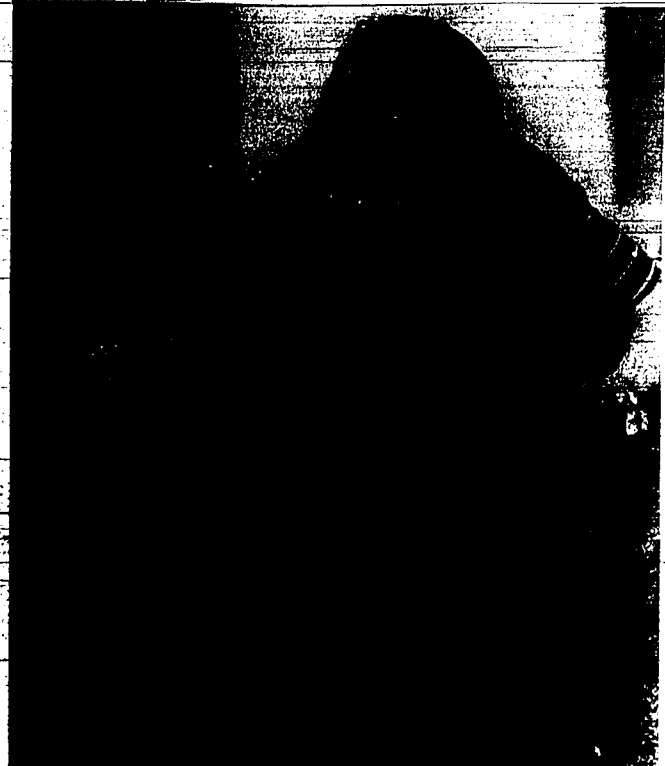

The bazaar in the heart of Tehran was practically deserted, giving dusk by a statement issued at the Front Sunday. The five-party coalition of religious and political groups seeking to end Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's reign.

The National Front said the government's seizure of its leader, Karim Sanjabi, and Front spokesman Derush Foruhar was "a crime." The two were arrested at Sanjabi's home Saturday night, as dozens of foreign correspondents looked on, just before a news conference.

A spokesman said the two were arrested because the government fears "the unity of religious and political leaders."

Despite the empty bazaar, thousands of Iranians reported for their jobs Sunday, the first working day of the new week. Many government employees were on the job. Some buses were running, contributing to Tehran's horrendous traffic jams.

This one's right on target

Cutting loose with a shot in the YFCA rifle shooting championships is Henke Plankley, 9, who went on to place first in the fourth grade division of the competition in Twin Falls on Saturday. A field of about 40 competed, considerably fewer than a year ago but regarded as a good turnout considering the adverse weather. Other winners in the various grades were Tony Sinclair, first; Mark Neilson, second; Zack Sinclair, third; Chris Newman, fifth; and Mark Olson, sixth. Overall winners were Neilson for first through third grades and Olson for fourth through sixth.

Toxic chemicals under attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new campaign for government scientists to track down and control toxic and cancer-causing chemicals in the environment was set in motion Sunday.

HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. announced that four existing federal agencies have allocated $40 million for the 1979 budget of the government's new National Toxicology Program.

The departments include the National Cancer Institute and the Food and Drug Administration, Califano said.

The secretary said only a small number of the more than 7 million existing chemicals have been tested for possible cancer hazards. Yet as many as 60,000 are now believed to be — or have been — in commercial use in the United States.

"The phenomenal technological advances in this country have brought with them unfortunate and unforeseen byproducts creating serious health hazards as in the case of asbestos," Califano said.

He referred to asbestos used as a shipbuilding component to which thousands of American workers have been exposed since World War II. It has been shown to cause lung and other cancer up to 30 years after exposure.

"We must act quickly and with all available resources to identify and control the many toxic substances to which our citizens are exposed," said

Califano.

In addition to asbestos, other publicized and highly toxic chemicals include vinyl chloride, used in the manufacture of some plastics and found to cause liver cancer. And the insecticide Kepone and the controversial family of PCB (polychlorinated phenyls), used in the manufacture of some electronic components, that were found to have contaminated parts of the Great Lakes and the Hudson River.

The new program will be headed by Dr. David P. Rall, who also will retain his post as director of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences.

Califano said the new toxicology program will accelerate and improve research, detection and control efforts involving hazardous chemicals.

"It has also directed this program to develop a long-range, comprehensive plan to protect Americans from the premature, disease and long-term illness so frequently associated with toxic substances in the environment," he said.

The HEW secretary pointed out that an estimated 600 to 700 new chemicals are introduced into commerce each year and that even under the new program, testing priorities and goals must be carefully set.

Currently only about 500 chemicals each year receive thorough government and industry tests, he said.

And each controlled experiment using animals takes from three to six years and costs at least $50,000.

Industry hid work hazards of asbestos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Internal documents from asbestos companies indicate there may have been an industry cover-up of the health dangers of asbestos exposure dating back to the 1930s, it was reported Sunday.

The Washington Post said many of the documents were turned over last month to a House Education and Labor Subcommittee looking into an asbestos-related disease.

The Subcommittee on Compensation, Health, and Safety held hearings in California last month on proposed legislation to compensate asbestos victims or their families from public, as well as private, funds.

Medical experts said workers exposed to asbestos can contract potentially fatal forms of cancer 20 years later.

The documents, obtained through legal proceedings against one of the nation's largest asbestos manufacturers, are being circulated among attorneys for use in a number of lawsuits against the insulation company.

More than 1,000 suits have been filed against the asbestos industry, with claims that it hid the danger of

Doughboys salute fallen comrade

FERE EN TARDENOIS, France (UPI) — Arms raised in silent salute, 11 World War I doughboys stood at the grave of a fallen comrade Sunday, the sound of taps echoing from their bugle choruses.

The 11 are members of the last surviving U.S. veterans' drum and bugle corps of World War I. Their ages range from 79 to 87.

The doughboys' trip to France for ceremonies marking the 60th anniversary of the armistice of World War I was paid for by contributions from their fellow townspeople of Saint-Sauveur, Mich.

The grave belonged to Pvt. Edmund K. Grego of the 88th Central Postal Directory, killed at 27 by German shrapnel in the Alsace campaign.

He was the brother of one of the men of the drum and bugle corps, Jack Grego, now 88, and was in the same outfit as the bugle corps commander, Oral "Mac" MacIntyre, 72.

Grego and MacIntyre, 72, came upon the small white marble cross, use of U.S. American crosses and Stars of David standing row on row on a closely trimmed grass slope.

"Well, this is it," Grego said. He and his wife sank to their knees and crossed themselves. Edna burst into tears.

They had left their bugles behind when they visited the U.S. One Army military cemetery near Fere en Tardenois, 70 miles northeast of Paris. So they recruited the tax driver, Brian King of Loud to play taps on his harmonica.

Earlier the group with their wives and friends had had a picnic lunch in Belleau Wood — a famous World War I battle site.

"It's a beautiful new landscape," remarked "It was different when I was here before. The shells had blown the leaves off the trees and there weren't many trees," said MacIntyre.

Vandals blamed for derailment, evacuation of 500

SHARON HILL, Pa. (UPI) — Authorities said Sunday they believed vandals tampering with a track switch were responsible for the derailment of a 100-car freight train carrying sulfuric acid that forced the evacuation of 500 families in this heavily populated Philadelphia suburb.

A spokesman for the Chessie System, operators of B&O railroad lines, said the company was assuming that vandals had thrown the switch. It was reported that the switch was thrown just before the train arrived giving the engineer no time to stop.

A state police spokesman said the FBI removed part of the switch from the crash site to examine it.

"It was definitely not an accident," the spokesman said. "The FBI has taken pieces from the switch itself and all indications are that it was tampered with."

The Chessie spokesman said three diesel engines derailed along with 19 cars that were bound for Portland, Maine, from the Potomac Yards in Virginia. He said the spilled acid came from one of two tank cars carrying the substance.

Hassan arrives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — King Hassan of Morocco, a close ally of the United States and a moderate voice in the Arab world, arrives today for a three-day talk with President Carter and other high American officials.

The Camp David accords are expected to dominate Hassan's two White House meetings with Carter Tuesday and Wednesday. The monarch is also expected to seek continued U.S. military support for Morocco, particularly aircraft.

Maine veterans condemn award given film

WATERVILLE, Maine (UPI) — The Maine Veterans Coordinating Committee has voted to condemn an award given by the head of the Veterans Administration to the movie "Coming Home," starring actress Jane Fonda.

The committee said Saturday it condemned the film because it was a prime example of the negative image Vietnam veterans have been subjected to in American television and film.

Economist Friedman says at Carter plan

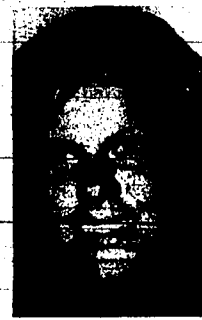

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's anti-inflationary program "will not work," a Nobel Prize-winning economist said Sunday.

Millon Friedman, a former presidential economic adviser, said, "The only way to cure inflation is for the government to spend less and to print less money."

The federal government, by imposing voluntary wage and price controls, is attempting to "shift the responsibility for its own mistakes to labor and to business."

Carter's program is the first step toward mandatory controls which will come "probably early in 1980," Friedman said.

Atlanta man charged in kidnaping, death of coed

MICHELLE STERN ... slaying victim

ATLANTA (UPI) — An Atlanta man was charged with murder and kidnaping Sunday in the slaying of a popular Emory University coed who was abducted with her date early Saturday, taken to an abandoned house and shot.

Homicide Lt. W.K. Perry said George Edward Burnett, 19, was arrested in southwest Atlanta early Sunday, questioned and then charged with two kidnappings of murder, two counts of kidnaping and two counts of armed robbery. He was being held without bond.

Perry said he was "more than satisfied" with evidence linking Burnett to the murder of Michelle Louise Stern, 18, the daughter of a New York City dentist. Burnett was also charged with killing his former "running mate," Bobby Bernard Williams, 22.

Perry said Burnett and Williams kidnaped Miss Stern and her date but after the coed was killed trying to escape, Burnett turned the gun on Williams to silence him.

Williams was found shot once in the head in the trunk of the car in which the couple was kidnaped.

The naked body of the freshman Emory student was discovered sprawled face down on the side of a road in southwest Atlanta, several blocks from where the body of Williams and the car were found.

Dollar advances

TOKYO (UPI) — The dollar opened the week at 188.80 yen in Tokyo Monday, up from 188.10 at Friday's close.

The dollar has now recouped most of the loss it sustained last week after a dramatic comeback two weeks ago.

Dealers attributed the recovery to concerted market intervention by central banks of the United States, West Germany and Japan.

Searchers find tools in rubble

JOPLIN, Mo. (UPI) — Rescue crews digging through the ruins of the collapsed Connor Hotel bring into a basement passageway late Sunday and discovered tools of workers buried beneath tons of concrete and steel.

Authorities and volunteers began digging operations soon after a portion of the historic nine-story hotel caved in Saturday, trapping at least three — and possibly as many as six — workmen in the basement.

The work tools — which included gas tubes, jack hammers and blow torches — were found in an air vent leading to the building's elevator shaft. No workers were located nearby and authorities held out little hope anyone would be found alive.

The Connor Hotel collapsed as demolition workers made final preparations Saturday to blow it up Sunday. Authorities said at least three workmen were trapped in the basement of the structure, with others saying as many as six people were buried in the rubble.

About 100 police officers, firefighters, National Guard troops, construction company employees and volunteers dug through the debris with bulldozers and heavy cranes. Progress was slow, however.

City leaders Sunday night agreed to allow pedestrians in the downtown area during business hours Monday, but said vehicles would be barred while digging operations continue.

Medical advice columnist dies

DETROIT (UPI) — Funeral services were scheduled Monday for Dr. George C. Thosteson, whose medical advice was carried in his syndicated newspaper column, "To Your Good Health," for two decades.

Thosteson, 72, died Friday at his home in suburban Bloomfield Hills.

The Detroit native and Wayne State University Medical School graduate specialized in internal medicine until 1958. There he quit his practice to devote his full time to his column, which was distributed by Field Newspaper Syndicate.

Thosteson was a founding member and past president of the American Diabetes Association and was also a member of the American Association of Science Writers.

He is survived by his widow, Elizabeth, two sons and three grandchildren.

Cattlemen say Carter's veto slap, no surprise

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Cattle producers attending the 80th American Royal livestock exhibition said Sunday President Carter's veto of the beef imports bill was a slap at the industry but came as no surprise.

As he watched judging of young prize cattle, cattle producer Carlton Noyes said the President put short-term politics ahead of the need for a sound cattle industry and future-sufficient supplies.

"I do feel that he is making a tremendous mistake in putting politics ahead of the good agriculture we can do for this country," said Noyes, president of a group that produces Limousin cattle from France.

There was no disagreement between the industry and the administration on a formula in the bill designed to raise imports when domestic production is low and reduce them when it is high.

The disagreement involved a provision in the measure that would have severely restricted the president's authority to increase or suspend beef imports.

Carter, in vetoing the bill Saturday, said it would have taken away his only tool against inflation in that area.

Cattlemen said when they made money this year, for the first time after four lean years, the President is noting consumers had to pay higher prices for meat — sought to appease them with a June 8 announcement to increase imports. The result was a drop in domestic prices.

Greg Martin, executive director of the North American Limousin Foundation, said the veto eventually would hurt consumers.

When they made money this year, for the first time after four lean years, the President is noting consumers had to pay higher prices for meat — sought to appease them with a June 8 announcement to increase imports. The result was a drop in domestic prices.

Greg Martin, executive director of the North American Limousin Foundation, said the veto eventually would hurt consumers.

Martin, of Denver, said cattle producers must be convinced there will be stability in their business before they rebuild herds and provide sufficient livestock to keep consumer beef prices reasonable in the long run.

He predicted cattle producers would get out of the business, rent or sell their land and thus reduce long-term supplies of beef.

"People are just not willing to take those chances anymore," he said.

Floyd McGowan, a San Antonio, Texas, producer of Limousin cattle, said the president's action jeopardized the nation's supply of quality meat, which cannot be imported.

Imported beef is used primarily for hamburger and sausages.

"There aren't many cattlemen to vote so nobody cares," he said.

Shah fears another Lebanon

NEW YORK (UPI) — The shah of Iran believes the type of socialist Islamic republic urged by opposition leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini would lead to another Lebanon, Newsweek International magazine said Sunday.

The shah gave an audience to the magazine's bureau chief, Arnold de Borghgrave, last week. Though not permitting direct quotes the shah authorized de Borghgrave to express the shah's views in his own words.

Newsweek said the shah feels Khomeini's plan would split Iran into three or four autonomous units, and that Moscow eventually might annex the area closest to the Soviet border on the Caspian Sea. He believes the Islamic Republic idea would destabilize the entire area, including Saudi Arabia and the Gulf sheikhdoms, and this would mean either the beginning of World War III or the strategic surrender of the western world.

According to Newsweek, the shah thinks the Soviets still have the overall objective of controlling the Persian Gulf and the oil shipping routes to western Europe and Japan.

Spending limit will need 'tough' Carter approach

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is going to have to be "tough" and say no to lot of Democrats in his efforts to limit federal spending, presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan said Sunday.

Appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," Jordan also said he expects Walter Mondale to remain as vice president should Carter seek reelection.

"It is impossible, given the economic conditions in this country for the president to increase expenditures on programs, however attractive. So this president is going to have to be tough in the next two years and say no to a lot of people, a lot of people in the Democratic Party," Jordan said. He reiterated the President's commitment to bringing the federal deficit to $30 billion or below.

"We cannot have it both ways," Jordan said. "We cannot continue to run huge federal deficits and expect the other sectors of our country to cooperate on our inflation battle."

Jordan said the president has not made up his mind whether he will run for a second term in 1980, although he commented "most presidents do run for reelection."

It is likely that Vice President Walter Mondale will occupy the second slot on the ticket, Jordan said in a strong endorsement of Mondale's role in the administration.

"I can't imagine a circumstance, if the president runs, that Vice President Mondale would not be on the ticket," Jordan said.

Jordan discounted suggestions that recently elected congressmen were "less friendly" to the president's programs.

"On some issues, they are more in tune with the president's philosophy" of "better government, not more government," Jordan said.

Jordan predicted that the changes in Congress would not hurt a vote on a SALT II treaty or agreement.

"SALT II will be the most important thing this Congress has to vote on," Jordan said.

Jordan stressed that the administration was optimistic about a final agreement and said it "will dictate our defense posture in the world. It will shape the tone and quality of our relationship with the Soviet Union."

On a personal note, Jordan said he had not yet made up his mind whether to sue syndicated columnist Jack Anderson for stories concerning Jordan's role in an alleged bribery attempt involving fugitive financier Robert Vesco.

IMF should assist dollar, Burns says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns said Sunday the International Monetary Fund should monitor exchange rate policies worldwide to help the dollar.

Burns, now a scholar at the American Enterprise Institute in Washington, made the suggestion in a speech at the Van Leer Institute in Jerusalem. A text was made available to reporters in Washington.

The IMF was created in 1944 to help stabilize currencies and maintain orderly trade markets following World War II. There are presently 132 member countries.

While praising the IMF as an institution "well suited" to guide the international economy in monetary policies, Burns prodded the organization to more closely monitor exchange rates, compliance among members and intervention by individual central banks.

"I hope also that the fund may see fit to reform its operational procedures, so that its lending resources, for the most part, are made available only when borrowing countries agree to firm conditions of financial rectitude," he said.

Burns cited Italy and the United Kingdom as examples of nations that have taken IMF advice and moved to stabilize their currency and monetary policies.

"The IMF will need to conduct its business in ways that command full respect of its members," Burns said.

Basic needs inflation rate beating index

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation rates for such basic necessities as food and shelter are rising even faster than the overall Consumer Price Index, a Washington economic coalition group reported Sunday.

The Exploratory Project for Economic Alternatives designates certain necessities in its gauge of the economy. These necessities account for 70 percent of the expenditures made by 80 percent of all American families.

For the first nine months of 1978, food prices rose at an annually adjusted rate of 12.8 percent; housing, 12.5 percent; household energy, 8.7 percent; and medical care, 8.3 percent, the group said.

The CPI for the first nine months was 9.5 percent adjusted on an annual basis.

"Unless a carefully targeted strategy is added to the president's wage and price controls package, the entire effort could be scuttled as food, interest, energy and other non-wage costs skyrocket next year," said Gar Alperovitz, EPEA director.

He said the double-digit inflation rate for basic necessities is twice that of the administration's planning target of 5 1/2 percent.

Giveaway charged in cheap Western coal leases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Authorities are leasing hundreds of thousands of acres of coal land to big fuel companies for as little as 41 cents an acre in a massive giveaway of America's resources, a public interest group said Sunday. The Council on Economic Priorities said such energy giants as Exxon are leasing lands in the American West containing billions of dollars worth of coal for "pitiably low" payments.

"Lease issuance procedures have amounted to coal giveaways," the research organization said in a 192-page report on western coal-leasing and development.

The council said the low rates encourage speculation and discourage development. It said only 11 percent of all federal coal leases and 1 percent of state leases were in production last year.

"Federal and state governments and Indian tribes have repeatedly issued leases at the first sign of interest, long before the demand for coal became competitive," it said. "The fee is usually just a few dollars per acre."

The report said the payments by leaseholders of valuable coal tracts "are pitifully low and contribute to the speculative holding of land."

"Leasees paid the federal government and Indian tribes approximately $1 per acre in rent in 1977," it said. "The six state governments collected an average of just 41 cents per acre."

The council said "roughly 31 percent of federal leased land is controlled by the five largest leaseholders" in the West. It said the top five holders of state leases control some 45 percent of the leased land in each state.

"Peabody Coal alone controls over one-third of all Indian leased coal land," the report said.

The council said Exxon, through its subsidiary, Carter Oil, is the largest holder of federal, state and Indian leases in the West with 161,355 acres.

The report identified other big leaseholders as Peabody, Mapco, Ark Land and Consolidated Coal, a subsidiary of Continental Oil.

It said "a major failure of the Department of Interior's leasing program is that current leasing reforms do not generally affect the administration of existing leases."

"By essentially ignoring past actions, the government has turned its back on the continuing adverse effect of its inept and outdated 1920 program," the report said.

The New York City-based CEP described itself as a national public interest research group that publishes six studies or reports annually.

Haig may become politico

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alexander Haig, the "boy wonder" who rose from colonel to four star general in four years and was instrumental in the Watergate resignation of Richard Nixon, may have his eye on a new challenge: running for national office.

Administration sources have disclosed that 53-year-old Haig demanded and received an extension of one instead of the normal two years in his presidentially-appointed post as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

That means Haig has the option of leaving his job in November 1979 — in time for the 1980 election.

Current speculation in military circles is that the controversial general might aim for the Republican vice presidential or even presidential nomination.

Haig declines to say why he asked for the unusual one-year term.

But GOP sources say he has let it be known that he is "bored" with his NATO post, described by aides as largely a public relations job.

They admit — along with Democratic sources — that Haig's name is hardly a household word among voters, despite his Watergate role as White House chief of staff.

And they agree that Haig, whose voting address is listed as New Jersey, has no political base in that state or elsewhere. His earliest crack at a Senate seat from his home state would be against Democrat Harrison Williams in 1982.

System breaks down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans love to hear about events that demonstrate the government set up for them two centuries ago operates the way it is supposed to. What followed Watergate, we were told proudly, showed that "the system works."

"We put a lot of faith in that system. We restrain ourselves from taking the law into our own hands because we have a judicial system designed to punish law breakers and make whole those who are victimized."

"We shy away from revolutions and coups because we have elections at regular intervals when we can remove from office officials who have overstepped their authority or betrayed their trust."

"These parts of the system obviously do not work perfectly. But we have been able to make improvements in them when shortcomings have pointed out, as was the case when it became clear the poor were not getting adequate representation in the courts. But we cling to our belief that as trial by jury and free elections basically are the best instruments to enforce our laws and choose our leaders. We affirm the legitimacy of trials and elections by accepting their results even when they are not what we wanted.

Now we are being told that the election process in this country is being subverted. The villains are not some pious mad alphas seeking to take over the country. In the classic phrase of Walt Kelly's comic strip possum, Pogo, "We have met the enemy, and they are us."

Americans appear to be giving up on voting.

The voter turnout in 1976 was lower than 1972 and it has been going down since 1960.

The turnout always has been lower in mid-term congressional elections than in presidential years. In 1964, 46 percent of those eligible to vote cast ballots in House and Senate elections; in 1974, 36 percent voted.

If that is a constant trend, sometime early in the 21st century, the United States will hold an election and no one will vote.

There is every indication that the turnout will continue its downward trend in the voting today. The Committee for the Study of the American Electorate compared 1978 and 1974 primaries in 35 states and the District of Columbia. Voting declined in 22 of them.

"All of this is 'too bad,' but people may be overlooking some of the real problems low turnouts can bring about. Committee co-director Maurice Rosenblatt says, for example, the lower the turnout, the easier it becomes for "one issue zealots" to decide elections.

Whether the issue is abortion, homosexuality, gun control, prayer in schools, or marijuana decriminalization, it becomes more likely all the time that small, tightly organized groups will be able to impose their will on the majority simply by voting while the less motivated stay home.

Without any reflection on the political accomplishment of Jeffrey Bell. It is hard to argue that the system is working when the public career of a man like Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., can be ended by a primary in which only 11.4 percent of those eligible to vote cast ballots. This is the kind of development that can bring the very legitimacy of the election process into question.

And that could be real trouble. If the processes of self-government become suspect, how long will it be before self-government itself is in jeopardy?"

Art Buchwald Haves versus have-nots

WASHINGTON — My wife and I were watching the Evening News when Walter announced that President Carter had given the go-ahead to the Defense Department to start making the components for a neutron bomb. Walter said that while the components would be manufactured, they would not be assembled at the present time.

My wife, whose only weakness is she doesn't keep up on sophisticated nuclear weaponry, turned to me and said:

"What's a neutron weapon?"

"It is designed to kill people without destroying property. We call it an enhanced radiation weapon," I told her.

"Who's we?"

"Those of us in the military-industrial complex."

"Are you in the military-industrial complex?" she wanted to know.

"No, but some of my best friends are. It's one helluva piece of hardware. With the right warhead you can zap a battalion of Soviet tanks 80 miles away," I said.

"Why do we need it?" she wanted to know.

"That's the most stupid question I ever heard. We need every type of nuclear weapon we can get. We've got hydrogen bombs and atomic warheads, and Nike and Polaris missiles. But they're too powerful to use in the field. The neutron weapon fills the gap and lowers the kill threshold to just the right level to fight a civilized war."

"Do the Russians have it?" she asked.

"They certainly do not. All they have is monster weapons that can destroy entire cities. They're in a lot of trouble."

"I guess I should know this," she said, "but if the Soviets don't have a neutron weapon and we do, how do we prevent them from using their monster weapons after we use our small ones on them?"

"Because if they use their monster ones they know we'll use ours, and then we'll destroy each other," I said patiently.

"But if we use the neutron weapon against their armies in the field, won't we be destroying them? They're certainly not going to stand by and see all their men and tanks destroyed without retaliating with everything they've got."

"I'm sorry but I'm not at liberty to answer that at this time," I replied.

"Can I ask you another question? If we have developed a smaller weapon that just kills people and doesn't destroy property, what is to prevent the Soviets from doing the same thing?"

"They don't have the know-how to make a neutron bomb or they would have before now."

"That's what you said about the atomic bomb after World War II."

"Can you keep a secret?" I asked her.

"You know I can."

"Carter really doesn't care if we have a neutron bomb or not. But he wants a SALT treaty very badly. Even if the Soviets agree to one, he'll have a hard time getting the senate to approve it. So by announcing he was going ahead with the neutron bomb, he'll win over the senators who are against SALT."

"Then," she said, "Carter's not going ahead with the neutron weapon to impress the Soviets, but to placate the U.S. Senate."

"Now you're recanting on," I said.

"I think I'll watch the Gong Show."

"How can you watch the Gong Show at a time like this?" I asked.

"Because it makes a lot more sense than building a neutron bomb."

Freedom center parking a mess

There ought to be a drivers training course on parking lot etiquette and a book of standards for parking lot design.

The Blue Lakes Shopping Center, since opening its new indoor mall, would be a good source of bad examples on both counts. Though there are probably other such hazards around, Blue Lakes' huge blacktop maze could be the perfect training ground.

Getting in, out and around the lot is a real art.

And Saturday's snowstorm amplified the problems.

Some drivers seem to lose all common sense or to lose their bearings when they enter a large parking lot. Inevitably someone threatens a head-on confrontation by driving down one of the lot's traffic lanes on the left side.

But when the snowstorm obliterated the already dim yellow stripes marking the parking stalls at Blue Lakes, the traffic lanes shrunk to mere alleys as cars and trucks parked at random.

Some clear markings on that lot would do wonders and make the mall's customers appreciative rather than irritated. Some suggestions:

The traffic lanes need stripes dividing the lanes.

Exits and entrances ought to be marked by signs.

The parking stalls could stand a better paint job and poles or signs showing the ends of the rows.

Finally, the merchants and owners of the mall might consider diagonal parking stalls. There would be some loss in numbers of spaces but getting in and out would become easier.

Freedom of religion, press one battle after another

In the history of this Republic, the fight for freedom of religion antedates even the fight for freedom of the press. The two struggles have this in common, that they never end. It is one battle after another. In Frankfort, Ky., the other day, freedom won a glorious victory.

A Kentucky Circuit Court Judge, Henry Meigs, handed down an opinion completely vindicating a group of Christian fundamentalist congregations that have set up their own private schools. Metaphorically, at least, the court posted a sign in front of the schools that will say to state officials: Hands off! The schools need to comply only with public regulations having to do with health and safety. For the time being, pending appeal, the state cannot enforce rules governing the who and what and how of teaching.

The Kentucky battle had all the elements of high drama. Every powerful force in the commonwealth was arrayed against the fundamentalist parents and their children. Back in May of 1977, for reasons that never became clear, the state board of elementary and secondary education suddenly began a crackdown on church-sponsored private schools. The board denied accreditation to 20 such schools, and it ordered local school officials to prosecute parents who enrolled their children in non-approved institutions.

In the fall of 1977, the Christian parents were put ominously on notice

Winning Idaho legislators may envy the losers

It is the process of cautioning taxpayers not to expect immediate miracles.

Immediate headaches are another thing altogether. Considering some of the problems Idaho legislators will face next year, it's a wonder the winners in this year's legislative races aren't envying the losers.

One of the first headaches will stem from the existing Idaho tax structure. It just isn't that bad. About half the states take more in taxes than Idaho does, about half less. For 20 years the Republican Party has controlled the Idaho Legislature, preaching fiscal conservatism and keeping a tight grip on the pursestrings. All things considered, they haven't done that bad a job.

Idaho government, like any state government, has its share of waste, duplication of effort and questionable programs. But anyone who paints a picture of repeated wasteful excesses doesn't know the facts.

What that means is the massive cuts demanded by the present initiative may go right through the fat and into the bone. Idaho's legislators may discover the demand to tighten belts is supported to start with the other guy's belt.

There isn't any problem with sharply reducing government. The Pope greets Rome's mayor, takes possession of basilica

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II exchanged greetings with Rome's Communist mayor Sunday and took formal possession of the city's St. John Lateran basilica in his role as bishop of Rome.

The traditional rite at the basilica in a southern Rome working class district came 23 days after the former Polish Cardinal Karol Wojtyla was elected pontiff.

In taking possession of the basilica in the terror-plagued capital, the pope said he was praying that love would take the place of hatred and civil strife.

"The new bishop of Rome desires above all that we remain in the love of Christ and that this love is always stronger than our weaknesses," he said.

"I pray that this love will help us change the spiritual face of our community because before this love, hatred, envy, ill will and perversity disappears, whether in social or interpersonal matters."

The pope's reference to social problems came after Communist Mayor Giulio Carlo Argan reminded him of the crises facing Italy's capital.

"It is my duty to say that Rome is not a happy city and in its suffering has a thirst above all for justice and solidarity," Argan told the pope during a brief meeting and handshake at the foot of the city hall near the ancient Roman Forum.

"Notwithstanding the efforts to change its chronic condition," Argan said, "Rome still remains a city torn by social injustices, beggared by unemployment, the lack of houses, of social assistance and culture."

"Too often," Argan said, "this uncertainty propels youth into the illusions of drugs, crime, terrorism."

Argan, who was 38 at the time, was the civilian commander of the three-man Apollo 11 crew.

"That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind," Armstrong said as he stepped from the module onto the lunar surface.

Armstrong now teaches aerospace engineering at the University of Cincinnati, where he heads the department of engineering and medicine.

Ex-astronaut's finger re-implanted

LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Former astronaut Neil A. Armstrong was the first man to walk on the moon, was reported in satisfactory condition Sunday after surgeons re-implanted his severed finger.

The 46-year-old Armstrong entered Jewish Hospital Saturday night to undergo surgery on a severed left ring finger by a team headed by Dr. Joseph E. Kutz.

Kutz and hospital officials said it would be at least Thursday before the success of the operation could be determined. However, he said initial indications showed the blood supply to the finger was restored.

Armstrong's finger was ripped off Friday when he jumped off a truck at his suburban Cincinnati home and his wedding band caught on a barn door.

"A hospital spokeswoman said Armstrong and his wife had asked for privacy while he recuperates at the hospital. Armstrong has routinely refused all interviews in recent years.

Armstrong initially went to Bethesda Hospital in Cincinnati but was sent Saturday evening to Jewish Hospital, which has performed numerous limb re-implants.

On July 20, 1969, Armstrong became the first man to walk on the moon when his lunar module dubbed the Eagle operating out of Apollo 11 landed on the surface of the moon.

Cardinal demands
LUBLIN, Poland (UPI) — Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński advised the Polish state Sunday to pension off all its censors and demanded permits for more Roman Catholic publications.

"I ask you for freedom of speech," the Catholic primate told students and professors of the Catholic university. "In order to achieve this, censors should be given high pensions and be thanked for their work."

The audience for Wyszyński's apparently off-the-cuff remarks included Kazimierz Kukulski, the minister in charge of religious affairs.

Wyszyński, speaking at anniversary celebrations of the Roman Catholic University of Lublin, the only one in Eastern Europe, said both the university's needs and his demands should be easy to meet.

"It should be no problem to expand limits for press and publications," he said.

The Catholic Church in Poland frequently has complained that circulation of Catholic papers and books is too low for a nation 85 percent Catholic.

"They were 90 of the toughest, most dedicated men I have ever met," he said. "No force could have withstood them because they had absolute faith in what they were doing."

Sanchez then was assigned to spy on a force being trained by former Cuban President Carlos Prío Socarrás in the Dominican Republic, but he said, "I couldn't do it. I discovered that most of these people were my friends, former colleagues ... I couldn't betray them."

As a result, Sanchez lost favor with Castro and moved to Denver.

"It was the biggest mistake of my life. I let my heart rule my head and hardly a day goes by but I don't regret it," he said.

"But to live in Cuba, you would have to love the revolution. Otherwise life would be hardly tolerable."

Property sold off
PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — Even the rich seem to find rising costs and taxes too much to handle.

Unable to contend with the two nemesis, the grandson of financier J.P. Morgan auctioned off between $100,000 and $500,000 worth of the contents of the late magnate's Constitution Hill mansion over the weekend.

Alexander Perry Morgan Jr. said things like taxes, heating and other homeowner costs forced him to move from the huge brick mansion built in 1897.

Saturday's auction included 16th century Italian chests, stained glass from a medieval French cathedral, portraits by 17th century Dutch masters, sleighs and chamber pots. Prices ranged from $20 to $30,000.

The house itself is slated to be converted into eight condominium apartments later this year with 64 additional units to be built on the grounds.

Sinatra mob tie hinted in photos

NEW YORK (UPI) — The federal government reportedly plans to introduce as evidence at a bankruptcy trial photographs linking Frank Sinatra with top mob figures, including they said the pictures would be presented during a trial in U.S. District Court in Manhattan involving the Westchester Premier Theater.

The Tarrytown, N.Y., theater went bankrupt two years ago, after the mob allegedly skimmed off profits from money-making concerts staged by Sinatra, Dean Martin, Paul Anka and others.

The news said, "The Sinatra connection is not clear and the government will not comment."

The government will introduce into evidence a photograph showing Sinatra posing with Gambino and several other unidentified top mobsters, according to the report.

Gambino, who died in October 1976, was considered the Boss of all Bosses of organized crime.

Mediators ask new directions on Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Three foreign mediators in the Nicaraguan crisis flew home for consultations Sunday amid reports of new clashes between government troops and guerrillas.

The departure of the mediators coincided with a new stalemate in the peace talks, which some political analysts believe could trigger a fresh rebellion to topple President Anastasio Somoza.

U.S. mediator William G. Bowdler and his colleagues, Alfred Obols of Guatemala and Ramon Emilio Jimenez of the Dominican Republic, left Nicaragua Sunday but sources said they will return Tuesday or Wednesday after consultations with their governments.

"The mediation effort continues," one source said. "They are going back to have consultations." The mediators' aides remained in Nicaragua.

There were unconfirmed reports of a new clash Saturday near the Costa Rican border, which rapidly is becoming a "militarized zone." Security sources said at least two suspected guerrillas were killed.

The Nicaraguan National Guard spokesman, Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar, confirmed reports of a skirmish Friday between troops and suspected Sandista National Liberation Front guerrillas on the Nicaraguan-Costa Rican border.

But Aranda Escobar denied Costa Rican press reports that Nicaraguan troops had invaded the neighboring nation in pursuit of the guerrillas.

Diplomats believe that if mediation efforts collapse civil war will be inevitable due to the popular demand for the ouster of Somoza, whose family has ruled Nicaragua for more than four decades.

Body from Bible time found?

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — An Egyptian newspaperman reported today he saw a coffin that monks told him contained the remains of St. John the Baptist, the man who baptized Jesus Christ and was beheaded at the orders of King Herod Antipas.

The reporter for Al-Ahram said he was shown the coffin at an ancient Christian monastery in Egypt's western desert.

He said he was told the body was found in a cave below an old church in the St. Makkar monastery, a fortress-like building built by Egypt's Orthodox Coptic Church in A.D. 360. The monastery is located in the Natroun Valley, about 60 miles north west of Cairo.

If the body is really that of John the Baptist, the discovery could rank among the most important of all time, and Al-Ahram urged scholars and Egyptologists to ascertain its authenticity.

According to the tradition of the Coptic Orthodox Church, the body of John the Baptist was removed from Palestine to the Mediterranean city of Alexandria in the 5th century A.D.

It was taken to the monastery in the 11th century and hidden there because the Christians of Egypt were facing persecution at the time, tradition says.

Italy hideouts raided

ROME (UPI) — Police raided two guerrilla hideouts in Naples Sunday and said one of them had been used by a terrorist killed in a shootout last week that left three other people dead.

Police sources also said they believe a recent surge of terrorist violence was launched by extremists linked to the Red Brigades guerrillas who kidnapped and killed former Premier Aldo Moro six months ago.

"They said stolen documents" they found on the brother of a major suspect in Moro's murder linked him to the Red Brigades.

The brother was shot and wounded Monday at a roadblock at the railroad station in Latina, 47 miles south of Rome. Three accomplices escaped and police intensified their hunt for them.

Officers said the two hideouts were discovered in Naples. They said one had been used by Roberto Capone, killed in the Wednesday shootout that also left Magistrate Fedele Calvosa, his police bodyguard and driver dead near the southern town of Patrica.

Officers refused to say what they found in the hideouts.

But police sources said a full-scale anti-terrorist investigation led them to believe a recent spate of terrorist attacks in southern Italy was being carried out by either members or associates of the Red Brigades.

Uganda claims attack by Tanzania repulsed

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Tanzania said Sunday it launched its expected counter-offensive, but Uganda claimed it repulsed the attack and that many Tanzanian soldiers were "eaten by crocodiles" in a tropical river dividing the two armies.

Tanzania said the fighting was still raging Sunday night, 24 hours after the start of the attack, but did not indicate whether the offensive had been successful.

"It has been officially announced in Dar es Salaam today that the Tanzania people's defense forces have launched a major counter-offensive against Idi Amin's aggressor troops which crossed the common border and invaded the Kagera River area of northwestern Tanzania," the communique said.

It added the offensive began Saturday night and was "aimed at destroying the enemy forces which are in the area."

Earlier, Tanzania's official press published refugee reports from the war zone charging Ugandan troops with murder, rape and pillage.

Uganda first announced the renewal of fighting in a communique from Kampala but said the Tanzanians had been repulsed with heavy losses.

Famine grips Ethiopia

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Ethiopia is facing what may be the worst drought and famine in its history, with more than 2 million people near starvation, relief officials said Sunday.

The latest crisis spot, officials said, was in north-central Tigre province, where more than 98,000 peasants are in desperate need of help.

Radio Ethiopia reported the future of the nomad Afar tribesmen in the area is threatened because their cattle — their major means of support — had little grazing land left and appeared doomed to destruction.

The League of Red Cross Societies earlier said 2 million people faced starvation in the Wollo region of central Ethiopia.

Officials said the spreading famine was approaching the dimensions of that of 1972-73, when as many as 250,000 people died.

That famine, considered the worst in Ethiopia's history, also had far-reaching political impact. Angered by official indifference, the army began a "creeping coup" which eventually resulted in the overthrow of the late Emperor Haile Selassie in September 1975.

Chilean plots spread out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The murder of an exiled Chilean general and his wife in Argentina and the wounding of a Christian Democratic politician and his wife in Rome were carried out on orders of a former Chilean secret police chief, the chief witness in the Letelier murder case says.

The Washington Star Sunday reported the witness, Michael Townley, has linked the secret police chief, Gen. Manuel Contreras Sepulveda, with the assassination plots against Gen. Carlos Prats in Argentina and Bernardo Leighton in Rome.

Townley, one of Contreras' agents in the Chilean secret police, has pleaded guilty to his part in the Washington, D.C., car-bombing murder of Orlando Letelier, a former Chilean Cabinet minister and ambassador, and Letelier's American colleague Raul Karpis Moffitt, in 1976.

Prats and his wife were killed in the bombing of their car in Buenos Aires on Sept. 30, 1974, and the Leightons were wounded in a gunshot attack in Rome on Oct. 6, 1975.

Chilean sources, the Star reported, said Townley acknowledged that he, also, was a part of the Prats and Leighton assassination plots on orders from Contreras, although they have stopped short of naming Townley as the "hit man."

Dear Abby

Sandy wins place in her heart — not her lap

By IGABILL VAN BUREN
 © Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.
DEAR ABBY: My name is Sandy (short for San Diego) and I became acquainted with your column while being paper-trained.
 I can't read or write because I'm only 3, and besides, I'm a mongrel dog. Someone bought me from the Humane Society for $12.72. (That's the donation, plus the state sales tax.)
 When you said, "I don't care WHERE I'm entertained, as long as a dog doesn't come and sit on my lap," I was shocked!
 I love people and want to help my family entertain guests, so I jump into their laps, look into their eyes and wag my tail. Almost everyone likes me.
 My friend, Rover, said we should run you out of the Canine Corps, but I stuck up for you and said you are a nice lady who does much good for many people.

 Can't you find a spot in your heart for me, too? I love you.
HURT IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR HURT: I love you, too. And please be assured that I do have a special in my heart for you. But not on my lap. Especially when I'm all dressed up in a beige lace dress and your paws are all sticky from a freshly tarred driveway.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently received an invitation to the wedding of my cousin, who lives 500 miles from us.
 There was no indication on the invitation that our children were not included. (Usually, when they don't want children they put "NO CHILDREN" on the invitation.)

 Well, I went out and spent a small fortune outfitting my kids for the wedding — and then found out they weren't wanted!

Perhaps I should mention that they are not babies, and are pretty well-behaved.

Don't you think the invitation should have indicated "NO CHILDREN?"
HURT IN VA.

DEAR HURT: Not necessarily. The invitation was addressed to you and your husband. Had they wanted your children, their names would have appeared on the invitation, along with yours.

DEAR READERS: I mourn with millions the loss of the late and beloved Pope John Paul I. His humility was inspirational, as is evidenced by these words he wrote seven years ago:

"Some bishops resemble eagles who glide majestically at high levels. Others are nightingales who sing the praises of the Lord in a marvelous way. Others are poor worms on the lowest bough of the ecclesiastical tree who only stop, seeking to offer some small thought regarding the great themes I belong to the final category."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them out your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 6709, Los Angeles, Calif. 90006. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

C-4-C schedules disco fashion show

TWIN FALLS — A group called "C-4-C" will hold a disco fashion show Dec. 9 to raise money for a new intensive care pediatric unit at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.
 "C-4-C, Concern for Children, is planning a spectacular show to raise a spectacular amount of money for the much-needed pediatric unit.
 C-4-C hopes to raise $18,000 to $20,000 from the show and has pulled out all the stops to achieve that goal.
 Hospital administrator James Rosenbaum said the existing intensive care unit at the hospital is primarily for adults and does not lend itself readily to pediatric care.

 The show will be held at the Blue Lakes Inn at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 9 and will be a formal affair.
 Nearly 40 local models, 25 women and 15 men, including former Miss Idaho Irene Link, Betty Smith from KMYT Channel 11, and Kathy Street from the Sophisticated Lady health studio, are being trained in disco dancing by Connie Jones, who teaches disco dancing at the Countdown.
 Jeff Torres, also a teacher at the Countdown, will perform solo disco dances during the show.
 The Blue Lakes Inn has donated the use of its banquet facility for the show, the three-tiered platform on which the models will perform, plus the hors d'oeuvres and the first cocktail.

 Mountain States Printing has donated posters, tickets and advertising.
 Several door prizes have also been donated, including a $450 river trip from Idaho River Co., two $400 one-year memberships to the Sophisticated Lady, and dinner and wine for two at the Sandpiper Restaurant.
 The women's fashions will be coordinated by Virginia Telford of Teresa's and the men's fashions will be coordinated by Roper's.

 Women's hair fashions will be created by Studio One, Carjo's and New Beginnings, and men's hair fashions will be created by Marcia's Hair-Salon-for-Men.
 Make-up will be done by Chamb're Cosmetics.
 Tickets are available from Faye Williams at the Blue Lakes Inn, 734-5000, from LeWana Henry at Mountain States Printing, 734-1333, and from Jane Bybee, 733-4306. Tickets will cost $50.

Weddings

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND MAVENCAMP

Miguel-Mavencamp

HAGERMAN — Lynda Lea Miguel and Raymond Alan Mavencamp of Hagerman exchanged wedding vows in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints Nov. 3 in Hagerman.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Miguel of Phoenix and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon J. Mavencamp of Hagerman.

The ceremony was performed by Elder Richard Parrott. Soloist was Stacey Smead and organist was Mrs. Leonard Condit.

The bride wore an ivory gown of eyelet enhanced with butterfly sleeves and an empire waistline. Her headpiece was a wreath of fall flowers. She carried a bouquet of daisies, crysanthemums, babies breath and greenery. She also wore a pearl necklace of her grandmother's.

Matron of honor was Nancy Knott. Bridesmaids were Mary Mavencamp and Stacey Smead.

Best man was Steven Knott. Serving as ushers were John Mavencamp and Fred Mavencamp.

A reception followed the ceremony in the dining hall.

The bride's table was centered with a cake made and served by Nancy Knott of Buhl.

Wilton Burton was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. John Mavencamp served coffee and Mrs. Dana Gilmore served punch. Mary Mavencamp, Karen L. White and Elaine Smidley attended the gift table.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Hagerman where the bride is employed by Hagerman Trout Processors and the bridegroom is with Buckeye Land & Cattle.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL CARPENTER

Huether-Carpenter

TWIN FALLS — Delra Jo Huether of Twin Falls and Michael Carpenter of Weiser exchanged wedding vows Oct. 28 at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Boise.

The candlelight ceremony was performed by Rev. Martin Heinke of Boise. Organist was Phyllis Roberts.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Huether of Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Chrestesen of Weiser.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of ivory erinckle gauze accented with lace insets and enhanced with a sabrina neckline and long, full, sheer sleeves with wide lace cuffs. She wore a halo of yellow rosebuds and baby's breath in her hair. She carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds, baby's breath and greenery with ivory streamers.

Matron of honor was Sandra Hartung.

Best man was Frank Holmes. Serving as ushers were Pat Ryan and Dean Guyer.

A reception was held at the church after the ceremony.

The bride's table featured a three-tiered wedding cake with yellow and orange roses, topped with a blown glass cherub encircled in a heart.

The cake and punch were served by Mary Ann Sullivan and Lori Clifford. Robin Roth of Mountain Home was in charge of the guest book.

Special guest was the bride's grandmother, Norma Botcher of Twin Falls.

The couple will reside in Boise where the bride is an accountant with Idaho Power Co. and the bridegroom is assistant manager of Radio Shack.

Health

Cancer of the colon queried

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb,

Will you please answer some questions for me about cancer? Can cancer of the colon or rectum be found by a finger examination? If so, will this cause fluid to accumulate in the stomach, hips, feet and legs? Will this cause constipation and is milk of magnesia harmful to take as a laxative? What is the approximate life span from the time of detection of cancer of the colon?

Dear Reader,
I am glad you are asking about this because cancer of the colon and rectum is the second most common cause of cancer deaths in both men and women. A high percentage of these can be found by a finger examination of the rectum that, of course, implies that the cancer is in the rectal area within the reach of the finger.

That's one of the reasons a good, competent medical examination will include a finger examination of the rectum in both men and women. To not do such an examination really means to fail to provide a complete, adequate, physical examination which could detect cancer of the rectum.

The finger examination itself will certainly not cause the accumulation of fluid in the hips, stomach or anywhere else. If you have cancer involving the obstruction of the drainage of the lymph nodes in the pelvic area, then you might expect some swelling and other problems.

Anytime there is an unexplained amount of blood in the bowel movement, a person should have an examination. It can be a sign of cancer. Blood from higher up in the digestive tract may be black because of the digesting process on the blood itself.

Cancer of the rectum can cause constipation but, of course, most cases of constipation are caused by other problems, usually poor dietary habits and lack of proper bowel function. Frankly, I am not enthusiastic about using any chemical laxative. Milk of Magnesia or others.

Bulk laxatives are all right for individuals who do not get enough bulk in their diet, but most of the chemical laxatives, if they are taken persistently, lead to chronic laxative habits that cause bowel problems rather than relieve them. They certainly have no place in the treatment of cancer of the bowels.

The best approach to preventing constipation is a good diet that contains bulk and regular living patterns. To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Spastic or Irritable Colon and Constipation. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1801, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

One of the important signs of cancer of the colon is a change in bowel habit. If a person has a normal pattern, and then develops persistent diarrhea for no cause, or if a person suddenly develops constipation for no apparent cause, it's time for a medical examination.

You can't tell how long a person is going to live after a cancer of the bowel has been found, unless you know how far advanced the cancer really is. A small cancer detected and removed sufficiently early can be completely cured. That's why a rectal examination is so important.

Virgos should pay bills as soon as possible to build up their credit

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This day you considerable concern where money and possessions are concerned. Good judgment is now yours. Expand the aspects lift and you have unusually good judgment where all matters of a business or personal nature are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Study carefully problems concerning practical matters and by evening you solve them. Don't force your views on others during the day and then tonight you advance in your endeavors.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): You find it difficult to gain your goals, but later, all works out much better for you. In the evening, the personal wish will not materialize until evening. Get routine work done early.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Something you have in mind could bring you more worry, so forget about it. You have a delightful time socially this evening, but be sure to be with congenials only.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Avoid a friend who is having troubles during the day, since you can help only in the evening. Do not let your personal wish will not materialize until evening. Get routine work done early.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): An outside affair cannot be handled wisely until evening. Take no risks where community affairs are concerned. Avoid one who has an insulating tongue and could hurt you with others as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): You have fine ideas now but wait until another day to put them in operation. Be prompt in paying bills and build up your credit.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21): Study into commitments you have made and then you know best how to perform them. Don't argue with loved ones during the day. Evening then becomes a mutually happy one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21): Be more understanding others and calm during the day. A pesky civic matter becomes an opportunity to advance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You want to get much done but delays occur during the day. You are not feeling quite up to par so take necessary health treatments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): After your work is done, get into the right kind of recreation that pleases you most. If loved one is irritable, try to please. Avoid one who is trying to come between you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Find the right answers to problems at home early. Don't talk over new interest with others at this time. Entertaining at home brings you unexpected rewards.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You have to be most accurate in whatever you do and then conditions become easier. Not a good day to have talks with associates.

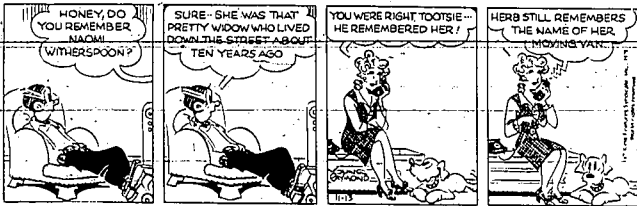

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will forever be getting into one kind of trouble of other. Parents must exercise much patience, but once grown up, your progeny will then use fine judgment and can accomplish a good deal, having learned through experience There could be a fine artist in this chart.

What's what

Jules Leotard was no fool when it came to him practicing for his trapeze act

Ever wonder how the first of the daring young men on those flying trapezes got courage enough to work up the first act? He practiced on ropes and rings suspended over water. Jules Leotard was the fellow. The water was the swimming pool in his father's gymnasium in Paris. He introduced the act on Nov. 12, 1859, at the Cirque Napoleon. Nobody in the audience understood how he'd practiced over water, so everybody was stunned at the sight of him flying from trapeze to trapeze overhead. Quite a performance. His name wound up as the name of his costume.

At least seven insurance companies in Switzerland offer nothing but mountain-climbing policies.

The school for panhandlers in New York City charges a tuition of $100.

TV WATCHERS
Q. "You know those TV watchers who make up the Nielsen rating audience? How much do they get paid?"
A. The Nielsen field man first offers $25 as a one-time payment for the privilege of installing the electronic monitor. That goes into a closet, usually. The company then agrees to pay half of any future TV repair costs plus a token $1-a-month for every TV set in the house.

Q. "What was the first country to outlaw capital punishment?"
A. Both Finland and Russia did that in 1826. Then Russia later reinstated it.

Q. "How much money did Bing Crosby make out of his recording of 'Silent Night'?"
A. None, according to Bob Hope, who said Crosby refused to exploit religion, so turned the 'Silent Night' royalties over to American orphanage missions in China.

Q. "Where's the worst inflation?"
A. In Chile, I'd guess. Since 1970, it has averaged 188 percent every year.

LOVE
"How do I love thee? Let me count the ways." Elizabeth Barrett Browning wrote it, as everybody knows. But how many ways did she count? If you said nine, you win the stogie.

The letter "y" in Anglo-Saxon was pronounced like "ih." So if you want to say it right in the yesteryear way, "Ye Old Curiosity Shoppe" would be pronounced "The Old..." so on.

Iran oil shutdown may force higher prices up

By JOHN F. SIMS
UPI Business Writer
NEW-YORK (UPI) — The longer rulers keep Iran's oil spigots turned LEGAL NOTICE

off, the greater the chance we'll have to pay higher prices for oil.
The shutdown of oil production in Iran is no real threat to world supplies in the short run but could cause major disruption in the long term and upward pressure on the world price of crude oil, according to experts.
The Organization of Petroleum
Exporting Countries, which Iran
Persian Gulf sheikhdom of Abu Dhabi in December to talk prices.
An American oil company executive in New York summed up what affect the Iranian production shutdown might have on that meeting.

"A month ago we were expecting a zero to 5 percent price hike, now we're looking at a 5 to 10 percent increase."
The benchmark price of oil has been at $12.70 a barrel for nearly five years.
Adequacy supplies and political stability are being pushed by Saudi Arabia, have kept the OPEC nations from carrying through on frequent warnings that a price rise is essential.
The meeting in December is expected to change that situation.

Energy Secretary James
Schlesinger said in Tokyo at the end of a visit to China recently the oil strike in Iran did not pose any immediate serious threat but could have a "marked impact" on oil prices if the industry is idled for months.
French Foreign Minister Louis De Gaulle agreed on the long-term threat of the oil strike but said the matter what government is in power in Iran, the receipt of oil revenues is a necessity.
An American oil company executive said: "As far as the immediate world supply situation is concerned there is no real problem."

The oil shipment — in tankers, tank
"arms, etc. — will see to supplies for 30 to 60 days."
Iran has been producing an average of 5.6 million barrels a day, and exporting 87 percent of it.
Iran provides 8 to 10 percent of world supplies, and most of the shortfall can be picked up by the other oil producers, especially Saudi Arabia which has the capacity to increase its output by about 2 million barrels a day.

"But even Saudi Arabia would not keep its production at 10 million barrels a day for long," the oil executive said. And the Kuwaitis have already said they won't increase production unless the situation gets worse.
Countries most affected by the Iran shutdown are Israel, which normally receives more than half its oil from Iran, Japan and Denmark, which gets 40 percent of its imported oil from Iran.

Utah to Nebraska gas pipeline planned
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) —
Colorado Interstate Gas Co. and People's Gas Co. of Chicago are awaiting approval from CIG's board of directors and the Federal Regulatory Commission on plans to construct a 900-mile natural gas pipeline from Utah to eastern Nebraska.
CIG officials in Colorado Springs said the plan for the $500 million pipeline was scheduled to be considered by the company's board of directors at a meeting this past weekend.
O.C. Davis, chairman of People's Gas in Chicago, said some portions of the new system could be in operation by late next year.

Much of the gas would come from newly discovered wells owned by the Anschutz Corp. of Denver. One of these wells recently tested at 33 million cubic feet of natural gas daily.
The 38-inch line, spanning nearly 900 miles from the Overthrust belt of Utah to eastern Nebraska, would be one of the largest in the region.
Plans call for the pipeline to be built in three segments.
"A 450-mile stretch from Beatrice,
Neb. to Cheyenne, Wyo. It would be connected into an existing pipeline from Amarillo, Texas, to Chicago, and will be owned by Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America, a subsidiary of People's, and a subsidiary of Columbia Gas System Inc. A portion of the line would cross northeastern Colorado.

"A 300-mile segment from Cheyenne to Green River, Wyo., to be owned and operated by CIG.
"A 100-mile segment reaching into the Anschutz fields in eastern Utah, to be owned by Natural Gas Pipeline, CIG and Columbia Gas. CIG would operate the segment.
"Our first program began two years ago when our pipeline company agreed to fund exploration by the Anschutz Corp. on some 47,000 acres in the Overthrust belt of Wyoming, Colorado and Utah," said Davis.
"Several important discoveries have been made."
Davis said People's Gas Co. has entered into more than a dozen other ventures in the Rocky Mountains.
"Perhaps the most important of these will be a second agreement with Anschutz in which we acquired a 50 percent interest in oil and gas leases covering about 7 million acres along the Overthrust belt, running from Utah and Utah down to Arizona and the Mexican Border," said Davis.
"Some preliminary exploration efforts are already under way, but we expect our major effort to begin next year."

Dollar deterioration threatens

(First in a series)
The chaotic deterioration in the value of the U.S. dollar through most of 1978 has created an almost insurmountable dilemma for the nation and is threatening disaster for the Western World.
The Carter White House's own inexperience, inadequacy (if not outright ineptitude) have been prime factors which have brought our country to this near-crisis — and no matter how much can be attributed to Carter's prolonged learning-on-the-job phase, his administration cannot escape the blame.
In the process, these four facts have emerged with blinding clarity:
(1) The fundamental force behind the demoralization in the U.S. dollar — the most revered, desired currency in the world a mere few decades ago — is our relentless, and recently accelerating rate of inflation. This is THE EVIL above all other economic evils. No paper currency can long survive a steep inflation's vicious impact upon its nation's economy, moral standards, confidence, leadership.
None ever has. Ours cannot either.
(2) Inflation has placed us in the horrible dilemma of damned if we do, damned if we don't. And although we could have — with appropriate policies and timing — escaped the dilemma, we didn't.
On the other side, if U.S. economic policy is designed to curb inflation substantially, and to fight the equally dangerous psychology of inflation (which, so often, is self-fueling) that that expectations of inflation spur inflation, then the danger becomes very real: a business downturn in 1979 — with all that implies about rising joblessness, business bankruptcies, etc.

And the business recession danger has intensified as the Federal Reserve System, determined to do all it can on its own to control the price-wage spiral, has lightened the screws on credit to the point where double-digit interest rates have returned for loans to the nation's prime borrowers for home mortgages, for borrowers across the board.
On the other side, if U.S. economic policy is geared to maintaining production, profits, sales and employment at what are deemed tolerable "political" levels, then the almost certain result is persistent inflation, culminating in what could be the worst depression since the catastrophic 1930s.
(3) Despite the contempt for U.S. economic policy fumbling which other national leaders (Germany, Switzerland, Japan, in particular) have shown to such an embarrassing degree, there is NO OTHER MONEY powerful enough at this time to replace the U.S. dollar as the reserve currency of the world. There is no other currency capable of supporting the expansion of global trade so imperative if world prosperity is to be sustained.
pneumonia.
Of course, the economic shilly-shallying within the United States cannot go on. Thus the president's phase II anti-inflation policy, to be analyzed in a future column in this series.
Finally, at the top level of our nation, the realization at last seems to have sunk in that we must reduce our current "underlying" annual inflation rate of at least 8 percent which — when compounded, so that the 8 percent rests on a previous annual rate of 8 percent which in turn rests on a previous annual rate of 8 percent, etc. — would slash the dollar worth 100 cents in the marketplace today to 43 cents in only 10 years from now!
That alone would destroy our own society from within. That alone would pull down the rest of the free world with us.
Next: What form of inflation are we fighting?

There's no 'magic pill' to curing alcoholism

By LORAYNE O. SMITH

TWIN FALLS — It's easy to get sober, it's staying sober that's difficult.

The staying sober was the subject recently at the last of three-week seminar on alcoholism sponsored by the Mental Health Association.

Directors of two treatment centers in Magic Valley, plus Ogden Van Pool, regional substance abuse director for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, coordinator, all agree there is "no magic pill" to cure alcoholics.

But they said that while no one type of treatment works for everyone, a large percentage of people are being cured if they are receptive to treatment.

Alcoholism is a preventable disease whose incidence has become a national emergency, Van Pool said, but it is difficult to arouse public opinion because of the widespread acceptance of drinking in American culture.

"When we quit laughing at drunks and debunk the idea that it's mainly to drink, when we reach the time a female alcoholic is no longer protected and any problem drinker can seek help openly without ridicule, we will start making some headway on the problem," Van Pool said.

There's a good chance no treatment will work if the family is not involved, he said.

All speakers agreed that Alcoholics Anonymous seems to be far the most effective program for helping people stay sober the rest of their lives through its 12 steps for living it day at a time.

Carl Bergstrom, director of the Idaho Regional Treatment and Training Center at Gooding, attacked the myth that "you have to hit bottom before you can be helped" and that no one can force an alcohol into treatment.

"It's true the person has to cooperate with the treatment, but alcoholics are being forced into treatment all the time," Bergstrom said, "through ultimatums from employers, judges who offer treatment in lieu of jail and family pressure."

There is no statistical difference, Bergstrom said, in the ways "forced" persons and those who voluntarily seek treatment respond. He urged the kind of "tough love" which causes relatives, or employer to say "We care enough about you to make you get treatment."

Two general truths about alcoholics, Bergstrom said, are "a certain amount of denial" and usually some type of crisis which has brought them to a treatment facility. This can vary from a genuine religious experience, a driving accident, family confrontation to a court decision.

The Gooding center also is getting more client referrals from physicians, according to Bergstrom, who formerly was associated with the Hazelden alcohol treatment facility in Minneapolis.

The 28-day primary treatment program at the Gooding center includes detoxification, rehabilitation and aftercare. A nursing staff is always on duty and minor tranquilizers sometimes are given "if it looks like the person is going into the D.T.S.," Bergstrom said.

Rehabilitation means admission by the alcoholic of his drug dependence and learning about ways to cope with his emotions such as anger, self pity or guilt.

This is done through self-awareness group therapy, individual and family counseling. Family participation is an important part of the Gooding center program.

The Twin Falls facility, which also includes the Women's Crisis Center, provides intermediate care, contrasted to primary treatment at the Gooding center. The two facilities complement each other, Van Pool said.

Stewart to promote downtown

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls downtown merchants have hired a full-time manager to promote and represent their businesses.

Perhaps in response to the new Blue Lakes Shopping Center Mall or perhaps because "downtown" merchants have realized that the downtown mall is a distinct and integrated shopping area and should act like one, downtown merchants have decided to coordinate their public relations and promotions through a mall manager.

That man will be Bob Stewart, who for the last 2 1/2 years has been the manager of Penney's in Twin Falls. Stewart, 47, who has worked for Penney's for 22 years and who specialized in marketing in college, will begin his duties as mall manager immediately. He will work out of the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Stewart said his duties will include representing all merchants on the downtown mall, organizing all advance advertising and promotions, preparing budgets for advertising and promotion, organizing necessary committees, and heading the downtown merchants membership drive.

"Most areas like shopping centers do have promotional managers and mall managers," Stewart observed.

He said the downtowners "see the need" for coordinated future planning for more stores and better parking facilities, among other improvements, and he added, "It's time to have someone work on it full time to make sure that we stay healthy."

Stewart said the 96 existing stores between Sears and Peterson's Western Wear are enough to need and to afford a full-time manager.

Stewart said with its great variety of stores, businesses and banks, the downtown has "everything to offer."

"I believe strongly in the downtown," he summed up his feelings about the area it is now his job to promote and help grow.

Cheryl Hymas — concerned about tax-cutting effects

Blood drive begins today at church

TWIN FALLS — The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in the Twin Falls United Presbyterian Church, behind the courthouse, today and Tuesday.

Chapter officials are hoping to reach the 200-pint quota this time, according to Ron Phase, public relations chairman.

Honors fell only seven short of the quota at the last drawing. That was the closest Twin Falls has come to reaching the quota in the past two years, he said.

The drawing will be conducted from 2 to 6 p.m. today and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Your special gift of life is used by children and adults with a host of medical problems including leukemia, cancer, anemia, kidney and liver disease as well as by those undergoing open heart surgery and accident victims. Phase said.

Persons in good general health 17 through 65 years old, willing to take about one hour of their time to give blood, enable the Red Cross to fill these requests. Phase said.

The Red Cross says the blood gets from those who have it to those who need it, but the organ donors can't supply the blood. "We have to get that from the donors," Phase said.

On 1 percent She's proud of local voters

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

JEROME — Cheryl Hymas of Jerome, Magic Valley's only member of the State Board of Education, is proud of the fact that voters in all but one area cordly opposed the 1 percent initiative.

"I'm glad they didn't get carried away on the emotional idea of saving tax money," she said. "I believe that if the facts had been better known, the initiative would not have been approved statewide last Tuesday."

One of two women members on the state board, Mrs. Hymas, a former teacher herself, is greatly concerned about the effect passage of the 1 percent initiative will have on education.

The initiative limits property taxes to 1 percent of market value with actual implementation to be worked out by the legislature.

The uncertainty about just how the tax rate will be carried out, plus the repeated charge that the initiative violates the Idaho state constitution, has led to a number of inquiries from several public agencies and departments in the state, including Mrs. Hymas said.

Since half of a property tax is used to pay public schools and educational gets 70 percent of the state's general fund budget, it will be extremely difficult even to maintain the status quo in Idaho education, she said.

To deal with the present level of maintenance and operation, education budget will mean about a 10 percent cut in services, she said because of inflation and increasing enrollment.

The state board members believe that the 1 percent would mean a cut in the state educational program and that it is a type of new tax, whether sales tax or property tax, will be necessary to pay the increased cost of education.

Mrs. Hymas said she has found "no one" who understands that all sales tax money in the state essentially goes to education.

"Just because it isn't earmarked that way people don't realize that it actually does go for schools because the sales tax has revenue less than that of the general fund used for education," she said.

Idaho ranks at the bottom of the 50 states at an estimated 1977 expenditures per pupil in public schools, according to National Education Association research statistics.

Nationally the 50th state is 10th in teacher salaries below those of surrounding states.

And to compound the problem, Mrs. Hymas says is the fact that Idaho has the highest per pupil tuition and other state fees in the nation.

"We are one of only seven states to have a growing state population," she said.

Mrs. Hymas has served on the State Board of Education for a little over a year. She was first elected in September 1977 to fill the remaining term of a March 1982 after the resignation of Dr. Robert T. Hays.

The first year of the new board members' tenure has been a busy one, with many legislative proposals and the hope of the new board members over which the board has jurisdiction is difficult to grasp, she said.

Just reaching through the fog of many legislative proposals to get up to the larger issues is a frustrating task, she said.

Mrs. Hymas feels the same frustration for the state's education. She said she is disappointed that the state has no statewide public schools in the state and she is disappointed that the state has no statewide public schools in the state and she is disappointed that the state has no statewide public schools in the state.

Fire department still investigating fire at supper club

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The smoke inhalation victim of an early Saturday morning restaurant fire in Twin Falls died next to the back door with a key lying on the floor nearby and his burned pants pulled down to his knees, the Times-News has learned.

Twin Falls County Coroner Clyde Edwards said an autopsy at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by Dr. David Mike showed James J. Bridgeman, 26, of Twin Falls, died of asphyxiation from smoke inhalation in the blaze at The Captain's Table, 162 Washington St. S., shortly after 2 a.m. Saturday.

Edwards said the man's pants were pulled to his knees and the belt and zipper weren't undone. He said Bridgeman had some third-degree burns between his crotch and ankles and some burns on his face, but nothing serious enough to have killed him.

In addition, there were feathers on his body from a burned downed jacket he was wearing. The coroner said Bridgeman, who was found in an area of the building which hadn't burned, may have been pushing his pants down when the jacket caught on fire.

Officials at the scene said a key, which may fit the back door, was found near the body. All three exterior doors to the supper club were locked.

When asked if there were indications the fire was started by arson, Twin Falls Battalion Fire Chief Ted Poulton replied, "Not specifically. Nothing that we can put a finger on. There's no definite proof of anything as yet."

Police Chief Tim Qualls said he isn't ruling out arson, adding he hoped to be able to release more information on the fire by noon today.

According to the initial fire department report, fire officials feel Bridgeman may have been leaning in the restaurant basement and moved to the back door where his body was found. Poulton said Sunday the basement door is a trap door and was open when firemen first entered the building. It had been closed.

Poulton said while what caused the fire isn't known there are strong indications the blaze began in the basement.

The flames destroyed the interior base and part of the roof, fire officials said.

Building owner Jim Lash Jr., of Twin Falls, told the Times-News the wooden structure — the Chico Club in Kimberly until it was moved to its present site 16 years ago — probably will have to be razed.

"It looks totaled. There's nothing left to do but take a bulldozer and push it over, as far as I can see. An insurance adjuster might look at it differently," Lash said.

He said he only owned the shell of the building, worth about $60,000, and that Kevin Terris, of Filer, owned the business and the interior furnishings. Altogether, Lash estimated the land and building worth $130,000 to $140,000.

Terris had remodeled the building into The Captain's Table in the last year. Prior to that, Lash said, Terris had leased the building from him and continued to operate it as the Military Inn.

He said the door on the south side of the building, fronting the parking lot, was equipped with a push handle for emergencies and didn't need a key.

Festival program

GOODING — Antique Festival will herald in the 1978 Christmas season with something special for young and old alike.

"Tinsled Dreams" features an original piece by Harold Wyndham, entitled "An Exiles Pilgrimage at Christmas" focusing on the spirit of Christmas.

The theme is lightened by "The Night Before Christmas" which is a nostalgic favorite to many, as well as "Frosty the Snow Man."

A children's story, "Santa Mouse" takes an imaginative view of how a mouse can have his Christmas.

The program is available from Dec. 18 through Dec. 22.

Rahe Building sets opening celebration

TWIN FALLS — The Rahe Building, a new 10-story office building, was opened today with a grand opening ceremony. The building is owned by the Rahe family and is being operated by the Rahe family.

The new building is a 10-story office building located in the downtown area of Twin Falls. It is a modern building with many amenities and is expected to attract many new businesses to the area.

The opening ceremony was held at the building and was attended by many guests. The building is expected to be a major addition to the downtown area and will provide many new jobs for the community.

The Rahe family has a long history in the Twin Falls area and this new building is a testament to their commitment to the community. The building is a fine example of modern architecture and is sure to be a landmark in the downtown area.

Stealing artifacts is becoming big business

DENVER (UPI) — Thieves, ignoring an outdated federal law, are making a big business of stealing historical artifacts and reselling them on the black market, said archaeologists attending a regional convention.

Colorado state archaeologist Bruce Rippeateau, addressing archaeologists attending the 36th annual Plains Conference during the weekend, said Colorado loses $150,000 worth of historical artifacts each year to professional pot hunters.

The antiquities market has expanded from regional sales in a curio shop to being shipped to Phoenix, Los Angeles and Texas, Rippeateau said Saturday.

He said pottery from Colorado's Mesa Verde site has been found for sale in California.

Rippeateau recounted several examples of such thefts in Colorado, including a case in Dolores in which two men were caught bulldozing a pueblo village mound in April 1977. Damage was done to skeletal material and old pottery.

Rippeateau had urged the district attorney to prosecute the two, but the official declined because only a portion of the land in question was publicly owned.

In Cross Canyon in January 1978, two men were seen collecting what amounted to 800 pottery shards and several stone and bone items from a pueblo village of considerable depth in the village, said Rippeateau. The two men were prosecuted and fined $75.

Many archaeologists believe the fines aren't in keeping with the value of what is damaged.

"The maximum fine is $500, but the pots brought them maybe $9,000," said Robert Collins, assistant U.S. attorney in Albuquerque, N.M.

Violators are prosecuted under the American Antiquities Act, passed in 1906 and not revised since.

"In 1906, $500 was a lot of money," said Collins. "Today, it's the cost of doing business — business overhead — to these guys."

Max Wilkind, surveillance ranger for the Bureau of Land Management in Cortez, Colo., said the thieves use a network of citizen band radios to alert each other to the presence of government agents in an area.

Foreign relations group Church plots changes

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church said he plans to make the Senate Foreign Relations Committee equal to the president, in determining American foreign policy. The Idaho Statesman reported Sunday in a copyright story.

Church, the new chairman of the committee, said he did so even if it means confrontations with the president.

"The committee is not an arm of the presidency, and we as senators are not subordinates to the president," Church said, indicating he wants to rejuvinate the committee to the stature it had during the Vietnam war when it was chaired by Sen. J. William Fulbright.

The Idaho Democrat will take over the post upon the retirement in January of Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala.

"I think the president, as the chief architect of our policy abroad, is entitled to the benefit of the doubt whenever that can be given to him, and is generally entitled to as much support as possible. But there will be times when I will disagree or a majority of the committee may disagree with presidential policy," Church said.

"Then, I think it is the role of the committee to be the chief spokesman for the Senate — as an independent branch of government — to make the reasons for that disagreement clear, and, if necessary, to conduct a public debate on the question."

Church said America has wasted billions of dollars on nuclear weapons he said never were intended for use. He said he advocates spending military appropriations money on conventional weapons to "steer" "much more likely" non-nuclear threats.

Also, he said the United States should get more in return for Foreign Aid.

Plane crash victim found Sunday on mountainside

CODY, Wyo. (UPI) — The body of a fourth victim of a light-plane crash in the Wyoming wilderness was found Sunday, not far from the twisted wreckage of the aircraft high on a snow-covered mountainside, a search official said.

Rescuers, hampered by a winter storm believed partly responsible for the plane crash, had been looking for Beverly Shepard since Thursday. They had found her tracks leading from the crash site when they were dropped at the scene by helicopter.

Inside the four-place Grumman American were the bodies of three other Idaho Falls residents: Gene Frank Mayer, 32; Marjorie Eielso Frudent, and pilot Mark John Hayes, 31.

Park County Search and Rescue Coordinator Eric Lie said Mr. Shepard's body had been buried by the snow. Searchers spotted strands of hair in the snow and dug out the body, he said.

All-four bodies were airlifted to the Cody city fire station Sunday.

Police arrest suspect in burglary at Boise

BOISE (UPI) — Police have arrested a 20-year-old Boise man in connection with a burglary-kidnap incident Friday night at a Boise apartment.

David Lee Thompson was being held Sunday in the Ada County Jail on charges of first-degree burglary and two counts of second-degree kidnapping.

Investigators of the federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board were investigating the accident, a Park County sheriff's spokesman said.

The strong winter storm — the season's first — dumped up three feet of snow on the crash site and plunged temperatures below zero. On Saturday, rescuers headed toward the site, about 50 miles south of Cody in the primitive Absaroka Wilderness, were turned back by 60 mph winds.

The plane went down Wednesday, an hour after it took off in bad weather on a flight from Cody to Rexburg, Idaho — and just as the storm moved into northwest Wyoming.

Authorities abandon search

BOISE (UPI) — Authorities have abandoned an active search for escaped Idaho State Prison inmate Walter Balla.

An Ada County Sheriff's Department spokesman Sunday said officers assigned to surveillance duty in hills north of Boise have been recalled because no signs of Balla and an unidentified accomplice have turned up since Tuesday.

Two women who live in the apartment told police a man wearing a ski mask entered their apartment through the unlocked front door late Friday night, hit one of them on the head and ordered them to undress.

Symms' aide quits after victory

BOISE (UPI) — Helen Chenoweth, Rep. Steve Symms' campaign manager, has left the Idaho Republican's staff, according to an Idaho Statesman copyright story.

Chenoweth apparently was dropped Wednesday, one day after Symms scored a comfortable reelection victory over Democrat Roy Truby.

Jim Mertz, Symms' campaign chairman, said Chenoweth's departure appeared to be amicable. "It's really a matter of terminology as to whether it was a dismissal or resignation," Mertz said.

Symms and his administrative aide Bob Smith were out of town and unavailable for comment.

An unidentified source quoted by the Statesman claimed Chenoweth's severance may have arisen because of friction between her and three other women on the staff.

Mertz said the split stemmed from "a difference of opinion about the management of the staff. The kind of person Steve Symms is, he wants to have an active role in the management of the staff."

Cowboys coast to victory over Packers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry was almost apologetic after the Cowboys whipped the Green Bay Packers 42-14 Sunday to snap a two-game losing streak.

"I still say the Packers are a good football team," he said. "They just happened to catch us on a hot night, and everything was going for us."

Landry called the victory "our best game of the season," adding, "We played with enthusiasm and emotion, and that's something we haven't had in recent weeks."

But if Landry was surprised by his team's one-sided victory, running back Tony Dorsett wasn't.

"I've always said the Cowboys had the potential to be this good," said Dorsett, who gained 149 yards in 23 carries and scored two touchdowns. "I don't care who we play, when we want to win and when we're hungry like we were today, we can beat anyone."

Packers Coach Bart Starr had little to say after the defeat, Green Bay's second straight.

"The Cowboys came in here with a string of losses and played a very fine game," he said. "We played poorly but you saw a team today that played like a Super Bowl team."

The surprisingly easy victory gave the Cowboys a 7-4 record and enabled them to remain one game behind first place Washington in the NFC Eastern Division. Green Bay, which once led the NFC Central Division by three games, dropped into first place tie with Minnesota.

Robert Newhouse also scored two touchdowns and Roger Staubach threw a pair of scoring passes to lighten Billy Joe DuPree to lead the rout. Newhouse, who had 101 yards in 18 carries, scored on runs of 14 and 3 yards.

Staubach, who completed 19 of 31 passes for 200 yards, threw scoring of 8 and 18 yards to DuPree.

Staubach, who completed 20 of 31 passes for 200 yards before giving way to Danny White early in the second half, threw TD passes of 8 and 18 yards to DuPree.

The Packers scored on a 1-yard plunge by Barty Smith and an 18-yard pass from reserve Bobby Douglass to Steve Odom in the closing minutes.

The Packers got a break in the game's opening moments when Mike Douglass recovered a fumbled punt by Butch Johnson on the Dallas 15. Three plays later, Smith scored from the 1.

But the Cowboys retaliated with a methodical 99-yard drive, tying the game on Newhouse's 14-yard run.

Cowboy safety Randy Hughes then intercepted a David Whitehurst pass and returned it 24 yards to Green Bay's 47. On third down, Staubach hit Tony Hill with a 14-yard pass and two plays later Dorsett scored from the nine.

Dallas continued its dominance by driving 59 yards on its next series and scoring on Staubach's 8-yard pass to DuPree for a 21-7 halftime lead.

Staubach led the Cowboys on scoring drives of 65 and 63 yards in the third quarter to put the game out of reach.

The defeat was the second straight for Green Bay, which was booted several times in the second half by the crowd of 55,256.

Whitehurst, who completed just 3-of-16 passes for 31 yards, finally was replaced by rookie Dennis Sproul in the third quarter. Sproul, however, was carried off the field with injured ligaments in his left knee after being sacked in the fourth quarter.

Douglass threw for a touchdown on his first pass of the season.

Turner sparks Denver 19-7

CLEVELAND (UPI) — "They'll never catch George Blanda," says veteran kicker Jim Turner.

Turner, 37, moved into the No. 3 spot on the all-time NFL scoring list Sunday by kicking two field goals and an extra point to spark the Denver Broncos to a 19-7 victory over the Cleveland Browns.

A crowd of 70,856 witnessed Turner's feat, which dropped former Cleveland Browns kicker Lou Groza into the fourth spot in scoring.

"It's gratifying to get my 1,350th point, and especially doing it in Cleveland," Turner said. "It's tough kick in Cleveland Stadium because of the winds and grass."

After Denver quarterback Craig Morton moved the Broncos 80 yards to a second quarter touchdown, Turner kicked field goals of 44 and 20 yards in the same quarter. But he failed to add to his career total when he missed an extra point conversion after the final Denver TD in the last quarter.

"I never played against Groza and I really don't know how far I can go," said Turner, who now trails second-place Fred Cox by 15 points and Blanda by 650 on the all-time scoring list. "I'll just play one game at a time."

Morton, who completed 16-of-28 attempts for 230 yards, found Haven Moses to be his best target — connecting with the 11-year pro five times for 115 yards.

"We had bad field position early in the game and it kept our offense from opening up," Morton said. "The 1 started to get better protection, our field position was better and our offense started to open up."

After Cleveland's Don Cockroft missed field goal attempts from 40 and 19 yards out, Morton started to find the target and moved the Broncos to a 7-0 lead.

Starting on their own 20, the Broncos moved 80 yards in eight plays, with Riley Odums grabbing a 25-yard scoring pass from Morton, with 64 seconds left in the first half.

Morton, who hit on only 2-of-6 passes for nine yards in the first period, connected on 4-of-5 during the scoring march for 20 yards.

Denver took a 10-0 lead early in the third quarter after taking a Cleveland punt on its own 48. Morton tossed a 22 yard pass to Haven Moses and another 9-yarder to Dave Preston to set up Turner's first field goal.

The Browns bounced back to score after Preston fumbled a Cleveland punt and Gary Parks recovered for the Browns on the Denver 12. Mike Pruitt bowled over from the one three plays later and the Browns never again threatened.

After the Cleveland touchdown, Morton moved the Broncos 78 yards to the Browns three, where Turner hit a field goal.

Bobby Maples recovered a Keith Wright fumble on the Cleveland 24 with 3:16 left in the game when the Browns rookie couldn't handle a Denver punt.

Six plays later, Lonnie Perrin cut off tackle for Denver's final touchdown.

Madden hoping for No. 101

CINCINNATI (UPI) — John Madden figures to get started on his second 100 NFL coaching victories Monday night when his heavily favored Oakland Raiders take on the pathetic Cincinnati Bengals in a nationally televised game.

Madden last weekend became only the 13th coach in the 59-year history of the NFL to guide a team to 100 victories. And, he did it in only his 10th season, an achievement shared only by Don Shula.

Madden's No. 100 was Oakland's 20-0 conquest of Kansas City and No. 101 is expected to be even easier, that is, if the Bengals play like they've been performing 90 percent of the time this year.

Cincinnati, the biggest disappointment in the NFL, has the worst record in the league — 1-9 — and that mark figures to only grow worse with the likes of Oakland, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles on the schedule.

Oakland's record — 6-4 — is really not that impressive for a Raiders unit, but at least Oakland has plenty of playoff incentive, something the Bengals lack.

The Raiders are locked in a battle with their mortal enemy, Denver, for the championship of the AFC West. Even if the Raiders fail to win the division, they know they've still got a shot at a wildcard playoff spot if they build a decent record.

Although Ken Stabler has been shouldering some of the public blame for the club's mediocre record because of the 21 interceptions he's thrown, a Raiders' official says the main problem is that the team has 10 new starters this season for a variety of reasons — injuries, trades and long-time veterans not playing to their old standard.

Veteran running back Clarence Davis is out for the season with a knee injury and, as hard as it seems to believe, Oakland is actually starting a rookie at running back — Art Whittington from SMU, who rambed for 136 yards last weekend.

Oakland insiders insist Stabler's 23 interceptions — he threw only 20 all of last year — really haven't hurt the team all that much. Several have come on desperation bombs at the end of halves and several have been unlucky tips.

Three of the four Oakland losses were close and could have gone either way. The Raiders have been blown out just once, 27-7 by Seattle, when the young Seahawks were much more ready to play than Oakland.

By contrast, Cincinnati has really only played well in one game — two weeks ago when they went into the Houston game 0-8 and shocked the overconfident Oilers, 28-13.

But last weekend the Bengals went back to their old lethargic ways and looked anemic in a 22-13 loss to San Diego.

At this point, the Bengals are just trying to finish out the season without suffering too much more damage to their pride and hope to gear up for next year.

Same two battling for roses

By United Press International

And it came to pass in the Pacific-10 Conference, pretty much as everyone expected, to a showdown between UCLA and Southern California for the league championship and the Rose Bowl berth that goes with it.

The only surprises along the way were losses by the Trojans to Arizona State a month ago and by the Bruins this past Saturday to Oregon State.

So, this Saturday the two Los Angeles giants, who have dominated the conference the past half dozen seasons, will fight it out in the Coliseum for the right to represent the Pac-10 against the Big 10 champ in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena on New Year's Day.

While Southern California was eliminating the defending conference champion Washington Huskies, 28-10, in Los Angeles, the Bruins were upset by Oregon State in Corvallis, 15-13, Saturday.

Outside of losing to ASU and a scare from Stanford, the Trojans have had things pretty much their own way. Ranked No. 5 last week, they more than likely will move up a couple of notches this week on the strength of their 8-4 record.

UCLA, meanwhile, has struggled most of the season. Inconsistency on offense has been UCLA's big problem season long and unless Coach Terry Donahue comes up with the answer by Saturday the Bruins are in trouble.

Quarterback Paul McDonald surprised the Huskies with his pinpoint passing and fullback Lynn Cain ran for 128 yards to feature USC's victory over Washington. McDonald, a left-handed sophomore who has improved with each game, completed 12 of 18 throws for 192 yards and two TDs. The Huskies did a good job of stopping Charles White, a leading candidate for Heisman Trophy honors, holding him to 47 yards, but they couldn't handle Cain.

UCLA, meanwhile, was beaten soundly by Oregon State. Kieron Walford's second field goal of the game — a 36-yarder with 3:08 remaining — accounted for the winning points. But it was the Beaver defense that made the victory possible, holding the Bruins to two first downs in the second half and shutting out quarterback Rick Bashore, allowing no completions and making an interception.

Stanford, the Pac-10's top offensive team, played well on defense for the second straight week.

Colts surprise fumbling Seahawks

SEATTLE (UPI) — Ron Lee ran 14 yards for one touchdown and Bert Jones passed 12 yards to Glenn Dougherty for another Sunday to lead the Baltimore Colts to a 17-14 victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

Lee's scoring run with 8:20 left in the fourth quarter gave the Colts a 17-7 lead. The short three-play 29-yard drive was set up when a Baltimore punt bounced off Seattle's Ken Geddes and was recovered by the Colts' Stu O'Dell.

Baltimore had taken a 10-7 lead with 9:58 left in the second quarter on Tom Linhart's 22-yard field goal. Baltimore cornerback Norm

Thompson recovered a Seattle fumble at the Seahawks' 31 to put the Colts in position for Linhart's kick.

David Sims scored both Seattle touchdowns on runs of 44 yards and one yard, his ninth and 10th touchdowns. Sims, playing in his first game since suffering a knee injury three weeks ago, finished with 106 yards rushing on 14 carries.

Jones' scoring pass to Dougherty with 3:14 left in the first quarter capped an 84-yard drive on the Colts' first possession of the game and gave Baltimore a 7-0 lead. Jones left the game early in the fourth quarter, apparently having injured a tender right shoulder.

Jones completed 12-of-17 passes for 128 yards. He hit his first six passes of the game, including three third-down completions to running back Don McCauley on Baltimore's first scoring drive. McCauley caught 10 passes for 88 yards.

Seattle scored with 1:05 left in the game to make it close, with Sims' 1-yard run completing a 50-yard drive. But the Colts recovered Seattle's onside kickoff attempt and ran out the clock.

Three players were ejected — Seattle's Keith Simpson and Baltimore's Tim Bayler for fighting and the Colts' Reese McCall for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Rams edge Steelers on Pat Haden pass

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pat Haden rolled right and threw a 19-yard touchdown pass to Willie Miller between two Pittsburgh defenders with 5:27 left Sunday to lift the Los Angeles Rams to a 10-7 mud splattered, mistake-filled victory over the Steelers.

On an unseasonably cool Southern California night with the temperatures in the 40s, the Rams pulled out the game with a 56-yard, eight-play drive that was highlighted by a 26-yard run by John Cappelletti. The burst came on a 3rd-and-1 on the Pittsburgh 36. The former Heisman Trophy winner appeared stopped at the line of scrimmage but bounced off to his left and went to the Steeler to before being bumped out of bounds.

After Lawrence McCutchen ran up the middle for no gain, Haden fired on the run to Miller, who caught the ball between Steelers Mike Wagner and Donnie Shell

Pittsburgh took a 7-0 lead on Terry Bradshaw's 14-yard touchdown pass to Lynn Swann in the third period and the Rams trimmed that to 7-3 when Rafael Septien kicked a 37-yard field goal.

The victory gave the Rams a 9-2 record and allowed them to keep a two game lead over Atlanta in the NFC West. Pittsburgh, which entered the game with the best record in pro football, also fell to 9-2 and had its lead over Houston in the AFC Central cut to two games.

The game was marred by horrendous conditions. The Coliseum natural grass turf was chewed up badly Saturday during the Southern California-Washington college football game and it was virtually impossible for the Steelers and Rams to run outside toward the sidelines.

The game was marred by frequent penalties and even was extended one play when the Rams' Pat Thomas was called for interference on Bradshaw's desperation pass to Swann as time ran out. Roy Gerela's 23-yard attempt for a tying field goal attempt with no time showing on the clock was well short of the goal line.

Los Angeles intercepted Bradshaw three times, twice in the opening quarter and the third time by Rod Perry that gave the Rams the ball on their own 49 with 2:28 left.

After a scoreless opening half, the Steelers took the second half kickoff and went 70 yards in eight plays for a 7-0 lead. Bradshaw hit a leaping Swann in the end zone over Thomas for a 14-yard TD pass with a 51 game in the second half.

It was Bradshaw's 19th TD pass — a career high. On the drive, he completed passes of 26 and 15 yards to tight end Randy Grossman.

The Rams came right back and went 50 yards in 14 plays to position Corrad for a 37-yard field goal at 10:40 of the third quarter. The Rams had to settle for the three points, after Haden, on a 3rd and 7 from the Steeler 9, was sacked for an 11-yard loss by a blitzing Wagner.

The Rams, who have been stymied by their own mistakes frequently this season, had three holding penalties in their previous drive before their touchdown march. But they didn't make any mistakes during their TD drive that took 3:37.

Cappelletti, the five-year pro from Penn State, gained 106 in 20 carries, only the third time that he has gained 100 yards in an NFL game. Haden completed 14 of 28 passes for 132 yards.

Bradshaw connected on 11 of 25 for 125 yards and Franco Harris got the ball 22 times for 50 yards.

In the second period, Corrad missed a 25-yard field goal 6:56 before halftime and a 31-yard Gerela field goal attempt was wide with 38 seconds left in the first half.

Oilers' Rob Carpenter leaps for joy after scoring touchdown.

'A second half team'

Oilers slip by Pats

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The Houston Oilers seem to thrive on comebacks and Sunday was no different when they wiped out a 23-point deficit and came away with a 26-23 victory over the favored New England Patriots.

The Oilers came up dry in the first half except for an 8-yard touchdown run by Rob Carpenter in the second quarter. Meanwhile, New England put 23 points on the board at intermission on three field goals by David Posey and runs of three and seven yards by Horace Ivory and Steve Grogan.

But the Oilers, whose last six victories have included five second-half rallies, stunned New England in the second half, holding the league-leading Pats offense to a mere 11 plays. Carpenter and Earl Campbell scored on 1-yard runs and Rich Caster caught an 8-yard Dan Pastorini pass with 2:39 left for the game winner.

"We're a second half team," said Caster in a joyous Houston locker room. "We don't want to do it all the time, though. But we proved something today. Some other team would have given up when they were down by 23 points."

Caster easily outmaneuvered Dick Conn and was wide open to haul in Pastorini's scoring strike.

"We just caught them on man-to-man coverage. Anytime that happens, we figure we can beat them. This has to be the most gratifying win of the year," Caster said.

Carpenter, who rushed for 33 yards on 11 carries, suffered a probable tear in the medial ligament in his right knee. Oilers team physician Tom Cain said it was likely the second-year running back would undergo surgery and be lost for the year.

Pastorini, who hit on 15-of-28 passes for 209 yards, also was elated by the heart-stopping win.

"I think it is the best game we played together as a team all year," he said. "Especially a team like New England; they don't have a weakness."

The Oilers raised their record to 7-4, piling up 18 first downs in the second half after only six in the first 30 minutes. New England, their seven-game win streak snapped, is tied with Miami for the AFC East lead with identical 6-3 marks.

"Houston did a good job, especially in the second half," said Pats linebacker Rod Shoate. "They are a helluva team. But we're 8-3 and I'm happy with that."

New England played a nearly flawless first half, scoring the first five times it had the ball. Posey had field goals of 32, 34 and 37 yards. Ivory's run was a dart up the middle and Grogan scored on a bootleg around left end.

With the score 23-14, Willie Alexander picked off a Grogan bomb at the Oilers 28 and Houston marched 72 yards in 15 plays to close the gap to 23-20.

Campbell's touchdown, his eighth of the year, set a team record for rushing scores for one season.

The key play in the drive was a fake field goal in which Pastorini took the snap and pitched it forward to Carpenter, who ran 18 yards to the New England 13. Carpenter was later taken off the field after an apparent serious injury to his right knee.

The winning Oiler drive came when New England failed to capitalize on a fourth-and-2 situation on the Houston 41. Grogan rolled left but was unable to hook up with Russ Francis, who was open down field.

Moseley's 'rhythm' keeps Redskins ahead of Dallas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mark Moseley compares his field goal kicking to a golf swing. "I try to do everything the same way every time," said Moseley. "I try to keep everything in rhythm."

Moseley had the rhythm three times in four tries Sunday, including a 45-yard kick 8:32 into overtime to give the Washington Redskins a 16-13 victory over the New York Giants.

Four minutes earlier, he had missed from 35 yards out. "The one I missed, I just blew it," said Moseley. "Everything was good, I just missed it. The biggest thing that concerned me was (special teams center) Teddy (Fritsch) going down."

Fritsch was injured when the Giants punted on their first possession after Moseley's miss. He came back to make the snap on Moseley's winning field goal but was taken to a Washington hospital after the game with two broken ribs and kept overnight for observation.

Moseley admitted Coach Jack Pardee's decision to go for "the first overtime field goal on first down surprised him."

"I was ready but it did catch me by surprise," said Moseley. "I thought we might wait at least until third down." But Pardee didn't wait.

"I didn't want to risk a fumble, and we were in good field position (at the Giants' 18)," said Pardee.

Moseley's game-winner came on fourth-and-one at the Giants' 28.

Joe Theismann, who completed 22-of-35 passes for 270 yards, twice passed the Redskins into field goal range in the overtime. With 4:50 elapsed, Moseley was three feet wide to the right on a 55-yard field goal try.

After New York was forced to punt after just three plays, Theismann passed 19 yards to John McDaniel for a first down at the Giants 37. On third down, he hit Mike Thomas for four yards to the 28, setting up Moseley's winning field goal.

The Redskins drove 53 yards in seven plays for the tying touchdown in the final two minutes of regulation time. Thomas scored on a 1-yard run with 63 seconds to play after Theismann completed five straight passes for 30 yards.

Giants defensive tackle Troy Archer picked up a Theismann fumble and rumbled 20 yards with nine minutes to play for a 13-6 lead. Defensive end George Martin hammered Theismann from behind, causing the fumble. Archer scooped it up and outran Redskins guard Ron Seal to the end zone.

Moseley kicked field goals of 47 yards in the second quarter and 33 yards in the third quarter for the Redskins, 8-3, who snapped a four-game losing streak to the Giants. Joe Danolo kicked 32 and 29-yard field goals for the Giants, 5-6.

Miami edges Bills 25-24

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Delvin Williams ran for touchdowns of 25 and 28 yards and the Miami Dolphins held off a late rally Sunday to defeat Buffalo 25-24 and rack up an NFL record 18th consecutive win over the Bills.

Williams, the NFL's leading rusher entering the game, pushed his season total to 1,057 yards, picking up 144 yards on 28 carries. His performance overshadowed Bills' running back Curtis Brown, who gained 112 yards on just 12 carries.

The Dolphins had taken a 25-17 lead following Garo Yepremian's 24-yard field goal in the third quarter and appeared to have the game wrapped up with just 6:02 left when quarterback Bob Griese fumbled on the Buffalo 10. The ball was recovered by Bills linebacker Randy McClanahan, who returned it all the way to the Miami 5.

Six plays later, Joe Ferguson hit Frank Lewis in the end zone with 3:31 left for a touchdown.

The Dolphins were forced to punt on their next possession but the Bills failed to convert on fourth down and Miami took over, letting the final 68 seconds run off the clock.

Deflected pass helps Atlanta

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Alfred Jackson caught a deflected pass from Steve Bartkowski and went in to complete a 57-yard touchdown play with 10 seconds left Sunday to lead the Atlanta Falcons to a 20-17 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Atlanta trailed 17-13 when it took over the ball at its own 43 with 19 seconds to go. On the first play, Bartkowski — who completed 16 of 33 passes for 218 yards — lofted a bomb in the direction of two Atlanta receivers.

The ball was tipped high in the air at the Saints' 15 and Jackson smuck along the right sidelines to pluck the ball from the air at the 10 and run the rest of the way untouched. The touchdown capped a furious 17-point second half Atlanta rally.

Atlanta's Tom Mackel kicked a 35-yard field goal in the third quarter, and Haskel Standback scored from one yard out in the final period.

It was Atlanta's fifth consecutive victory and kept the Falcons' wild card playoff chances alive.

Many of the sellout crowd of 70,000 already had left the stadium when the Saints, leading 17-13, recovered an Atlanta onside kick with 54 seconds left in the game. The Saints ran three consecutive plays on the ground and gained eight yards.

King roiled off a 75-yard touchdown run Sunday to help the Detroit Lions register a 34-23 victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The victory by Detroit, which scored the most points it has accumulated at home since moving to the Silverdome in 1975, left both clubs at 4-7. The 34 points were the most allowed by Tampa Bay since Pittsburgh scored 43 on the Bucs in 1976.

Hill caught touchdown passes of 2 and 14 yards from Danielson and wound up with seven receptions for 106 yards. Danielson completed 15 of 24 passes for 206 yards.

Vikings 17-14
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Chuck Foreman dived for two touchdowns, and the Minnesota Vikings fought off a second half Chicago rally Sunday to defeat the Bears 17-14.

Viking linebacker Fred McNeil blocked a 37-yard field goal attempt midway through the fourth quarter to protect the Viking lead built on a 25-yard kick by Rick Dannefer in the second quarter.

The Vikings, keeping the pressure on division leader Green Bay, improved their record to 7-4. The Bears suffered a club record eighth straight loss in a single season and dropped to 3-8.

Walter Payton, leading rusher in the NFL, broke through the Vikings' line for 19 yards and a touchdown to cap an 18-yard third quarter drive that cut the Viking lead to 17-14.

Eagles 17-9
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Harold Carmichael caught touchdown passes of 18 yards and six yards from Ron Jaworski Sunday to carry the Philadelphia Eagles to a 17-9 victory over the New York Jets.

Carmichael, a 6-foot-8 wide receiver who now has caught at least one pass in 91 consecutive games, made a diving reception of Jaworski's pass in the end zone with 4:17 left in the first half to climax a 78-yard drive that was aided by a controversial personal foul penalty against the Jets.

The Eagles, clinging to a 10-9 lead in the fourth quarter, clinched the victory with 1:53 to play when Carmichael outpaced 5-9 New York cornerback Bobby Jackson and hauled in a 6-yard pass from Jaworski. The drive was set up after rookie linebacker Reggie Wilkes recovered Bruce Harper's fumble at the Jets 44.

Cardinals 16-10
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jim Hart threw touchdown passes of 15 yards to Al Chandler and five yards to Pat Tilley through the rain Sunday to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to their third straight victory, 16-10 over the San Francisco 49ers.

The first rainfall in the Bay area in seven months fell throughout the game and resulted in at least a dozen dropped passes. Wide receiver Fred Sotomoro dropped four for San Francisco, two of which might have been for touchdowns.

The Cardinals' receivers dropped at least six on Hart, but when it counted the most, the St. Louis quarterback hit his receivers as the Cardinals improved to 3-8.

Scott Bull, a three-year veteran, made his first start of the year for San Francisco but it hardly made any difference, as the 49ers lost for the 10th in 11 games.

Chargers 29-23
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Rookie John Jefferson grabbed a 44-yard pass from Dan Fouts lying on his back in the end zone on the final play of overtime Sunday to give the San Diego Chargers a 29-23 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

The victory — San Diego's third in a row — kept alive the Chargers' faint playoff hopes.

Both teams made errors in overtime. Kansas City's Arnold Morgado fumbled on San Diego's 17 when he was hit by Fred Dean and Mike Fuller pounced on the ball for the Chargers.

San Diego then drove the length of the field only to have Lydell Mitchell fumble on the Chiefs' four. Kansas City was unable to move the ball and San Diego took possession with just two minutes left in the extra period.

Starting at the Chiefs 48, Fouts took the Chargers in for the score in seven plays. He apparently disigned the try for a field goal as he used up all the time on the clock for his game-winning touchdown to Jefferson.

Irwin runs away with PGA win

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Hale Irwin of the United States shot a final round two-under-par 69 Sunday to win the $115,000 Australian PGA Golf championship by a runaway eight strokes.

Irwin, only the second foreign player to win the PGA, collected a check of $23,000 with his 72-hole score of 278. Australian Graham Marsh, who closed with a disappointing round of 75 after trailing Irwin by only two strokes at the start of the day, wound up second at 296 to earn $13,800. Spain's Sevy Ballesteros, closing with a 69 for 288, was third for $8,625.

It was the first victory for Irwin since the Texas Open 13 months ago.

"It was a matter of keeping my confidence, keep trying and eventually it would all fall together," said Irwin, the 1975 U.S. Open champion.

"I'm delighted my putting has returned to the form of years past. It's been a hard luck story for the last 13 months, so naturally it's a relief to win again."

Marsh's chances of overtaking Irwin at the Royal Melbourne course ended at the third hole with a double bogey, while Ballesteros played a superb round which included five birdies.

Irwin, who opened the tournament with a record 64, joins South African Gary Player as the only foreign players to win the PGA crown in the 69-year history of the event.

Decision today on Idaho game

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Whether Idaho and Idaho State meet on the football field this season will be decided today when the schools' athletic directors discuss the situation.

The Bengals did not arrive at Moscow for their scheduled clash with the Vandals Saturday night because their chartered aircraft developed engine trouble and had to return to Pocatello.

Glenn Alford, ISU sports information director, Sunday said Bengals' Athletic Director Milton Holt will attempt to resolve the situation Monday when he talks with Idaho Athletic Director Bill Belknap.

The Bengals left for Moscow only three hours before game time and could not make the kickoff when their Key Airlines plane was forced to abort its flight.

Both teams have one game left. The Vandals entertain Fresno State next Saturday while the Bengals host Nevada-Reno.

Pistons trim Boston Celtics

BOSTON (UPI) — Kevin Porter and rookie John Long combined for 20 fourth-quarter points Sunday night to lead the Detroit Pistons to a come-from-behind 128-123 win over the Boston Celtics.

The loss was the sixth straight for the Celtics, 2-12, and the 10th in their last 11 games. Detroit, 6-10, won their second road game of the year.

The Celtics had a 105-100 lead early in the fourth quarter as Dave Cowens popped in six of his game-high 34 points. But Long, who had 24 and 10 in the final frame, carried a jumper at the five minute mark to give the Pistons the lead for good, 112-111. Porter wound up with 22.

The Celtics took a 29-28 lead after the first quarter on an eight-point burst to open the game.

Corro takes rest
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Middleweight boxing champion Hugo Corro of Argentina had a day of rest Sunday following his successful title defense against Rodrigo Valdes of Colombia, although he was concerned about his injured left hand.

The 25-year-old Corro, who scored a unanimous 15-round decision over Valdes Saturday, injured the knuckles of his left hand in the seventh round. Despite the injury, he said he would not be hampered during the final rounds because Valdes didn't throw enough punches to force the fight.

Borg defeated
STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Third seeded American John McEnroe, 19, upset top seeded and three-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden, 6-3, 6-4, and will meet compatriot Tim Sullivan in the final of the $100,000 Stockholm Open Grand Prix Tennis Tournament.

It was the 22-year-old Swede's first loss to a younger player.

China dumped
OAKLAND (UPI) — Center Bill Cartwright pumped in a game-high 33 points and four of his teammates scored in double figures Saturday night as the University of San Francisco to a lopsided 103-59 exhibition win over the national team of the People's Republic of China.

Japan on top
ONJO, Japan (UPI) — Japan beat the United States 2,274-2,226 in the team competition and swept the top four places in the individual contest in the eighth U.S.-Japan Professional Golf match which concluded Saturday.

Isao Aoki, winner of this year's world match play championship in England, shot a 70 in the final round and won the individual title with a total of 15 under-par 273.

American final
HONG KONG (UPI) — Elliot Teitelcher and Pat Dupre won their semifinal matches Sunday to set up an all-American final in the $78,000 Hong Kong Tennis Festival Classic.

For the winner, it will mark his first Grand Prix circuit victory.

Teitelcher, a 19-year-old from Los Angeles who is seeded eighth, defeated sixth seeded compatriot Hank Pfister.

For horse of year Not setting race record hurts Slew's chances

NEW YORK (UPI) — The $100,000-added Stuyvesant at Aqueduct Saturday was the vehicle for Seattle Slew's farewell performance, but the big colt's failure to break the track record no doubt affected his chances for a second consecutive horse of the Year title.

Slew, who now retires to stud duty at Spendthrift Farms in Lexington, Ky., defeated four undistinguished rivals in the 11th mile Stuyvesant in 1:47.25, two ticks off Hilda Riva's five-year-old mark of 1:47 and well off Secretariat's American mark of 1:46.25.

To be sure, he was carrying 134 pounds — the highest ever toled by a Stuyvesant winner since Man O'War's 135 pound impost in 1920 — and as trainer Doug Peterson put it, "We weren't about to abuse the colt just for a record."

Nevertheless, a record-breaking time in the race would have considerably aided Slew's bid to take the championship from Triple Crown winner Affirmed.

Last year, after becoming the first undefeated Triple Crown winner in history and then not racing again after his only loss on July 3, Slew was by a 2-1 margin over Furoco.

This year, the voters — representing the Thoroughbred Racing Association, National Turf Writers and the Daily Racing Form — remain bitterly divided between Slew and Affirmed, and there is some support for turf star Exceller, who defeated Slew in the Jockey Club Gold Cup on Oct. 14 and is the richest thoroughbred in training.
