

San Francisco mayor slain in office

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor George Moscone and a top city official were shot to death at City Hall Monday.

A city legislator who had quit but wanted his job back was charged in the assassinations.

Moscone, 49, and Supervisor Harvey Milk, 48, were killed in separate shootings shortly before Moscone was to announce that he had decided not to reappoint the suspect, Dan White, to the Board of Supervisors, San Francisco's equivalent of a city council.

"He was a wild man, just a wild man," sobbed Terry Wallen, a city employee who saw White running through City Hall buildings between shootings.

Police said White, 32, a former city policeman and fireman, confronted Moscone in the mayor's office. They had gone alone into Moscone's private office, where White allegedly pulled a .38-caliber revolver and shot the mayor three times.

Then, police said, White crossed City Hall to the Board of Supervisors offices, asked to talk to Milk, who opposed his reappointment, and shot him, three times. Both victims apparently died instantly.

After calling his wife at the small restaurant they own, White surrendered a half-hour later at a nearby police station to an officer who had been a friend when White served on the police force. He was booked on two counts of investigation for murder.

Moscone had been mayor of San Francisco since 1975. Milk was elected to the board last year and gained national attention because he ran as an avowed homosexual. White also was elected last year, in his first try for political office.

White was held at San Francisco's

Hall of Justice, isolated from other prisoners. Asked if he had anything to say as he was escorted into the building, White shook his head and said, "I've got no comment."

For hours after the shootings, stunned city employees gathered in groups in the corridors of City Hall, weeping and holding one another.

Moscone's wife, Gina, and his mother were at a funeral when the shootings took place and did not know about them immediately. But they were informed before they returned home and went quickly inside. Police were stationed outside.

Police Chief Charles Gain clamped a gag order on his department.

"This's going to be a prosecution to follow, and in order to meet all the requirements of a fair trial, we are not going to issue any other details or statements or any evidence or any other thing that we have on this case than you already have," said Deputy Police Chief Clem DeAmelis.

Dianne Feinstein, president of the Board of Supervisors — the equivalent of a city council — became acting mayor until a new mayor is elected by the supervisors.

The assassinations stunned San Francisco, still recovering from the horror of the mass suicides in Jonestown, Guyana, of Peoples Temple members, most of them San Francisco area residents.

There apparently was no connection between the cases, although Moscone had appointed Peoples Temple leader Rev. Jim Jones as head of the San Francisco Housing Authority in 1976.

White, a city fireman until his successful election in his first try at political office, had no known connection with the Peoples Temple.

Rudy Rothenberg, executive deputy mayor for fiscal administration, said

GEORGE MOSCONE ... fatal interview

White came to Moscone's office without an appointment shortly before 11 a.m. PST and asked to see the mayor. He said Moscone came out and escorted him into a private sitting room adjoining his main office.

Mel Wax, Moscone's press secretary, said while the two talked in private he and other aides heard noises but did not recognize them as shots. He said White left by a side door after the meeting.

When Rothenberg and Wax went into Moscone's office for an 11 a.m. appointment, he found the mayor dead of three gunshot wounds.

"When I went into the back office, I saw the mayor dead," Wax said.

After leaving Moscone's office, White crossed the building past the central rotunda, and into the outer office of the supervisors.

Ms. Feinstein told a shortened regular afternoon meeting of the board, "We share a sense of outrage, shame, sorrow and anger."

To stop or not to stop at tracks?

By DOUG TULLIS
Times-News writer

RUEPHIT — Seven people have been killed in automobile-train accidents in four Magic Valley counties since 1974 — all in Minidoka County.

According to the State of Idaho Transportation Department, Division of Highways reports for 1974 through 1977, Minidoka County had 21 automobile-train accidents which resulted in four deaths.

Three deaths last month raised the toll to seven killed at railroad crossings in Minidoka County since 1974.

Twin Falls, Jerome and Cassia counties had 37 car-train accidents in the same period but there were no deaths, according to the reports.

Part of the reason for the higher number of accidents in Minidoka County is the greater mileage of tracks compared to the other three counties.

One factor that could have contributed to the accidents is the lack of stop signs at railroad crossings in Minidoka County.

Highway districts in Twin Falls and Jerome counties have installed stop signs at all railroad crossings but Minidoka and Cassia counties have not.

Twin Falls Highway District Commissioner Floyd Dayley said he thought stop signs "definitely" were a factor in reducing automobile-train accidents.

Minidoka County Highway District Manager Robin Kraus said stop signs may help but they tend to create problems.

"They make lawbreakers out of everybody," he said.

Often, Kraus said, people ignore a stop sign at a railroad crossing. If they approach a crossing and repeatedly never see a train passing, they gradually tend to ignore the sign.

Union Pacific Railroad spokesman C. R. Rockwell said stop signs may or may not be a factor in the accidents in Minidoka County but the difference in the number of crossings and the number of miles of mainline and spur tracks is a factor.

The deaths of the three young people near Paul last month, however, have prompted public and railroad officials to seek a solution to prevent automobile-train accidents there.

Rockwell said the most effective solution would be to build an overpass at each railroad crossing. In reality, that is out of the question because the expense is far too high, Rockwell said.

Other alternatives include cross-lock signs, stop signs, blinking light signals and gates that stop traffic from entering the railroad crossing.

The biggest factor is the alertness of the driver.

Driver awareness is the most important thing in preventing these accidents, Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said.

"You tell them over and over and it doesn't do any good," he added.

Rockwell backed him up.

"Preaching railroad crossing safety is a lot like preaching highway safety — after a while people become insensitive," Rockwell said.

Other than trying to get drivers to respect the crossings, Rockwell said his company is doing all that is possible to place a warning on each public crossing.

That costs money, however, because there are about 2,000 public crossings in Idaho and about the same number of private crossings that go to homes or farms.

After overpasses, the second safest crossing device is safety gates, Rockwell said.

We seldom have an accident at gates but there are people who have gone around them and there been accidents, Rockwell added.

Crossing gates with lights and barriers cost about $100,000 to install.

The second safest type of warning device is a set of flashing lights but these are expensive for to install at every crossing.

"Offhand, just a flashing light will run around $30,000 because there has to be a back up system. They're battery powered so they're reliable," Rockwell said.

The high cost comes from the circuitry which activates the lights when a train is approaching.

One means the railroad uses to eliminate serious accidents between trains and buses and trucks is a near miss program.

Usually, an engineer can see what company a truck is from or what school district a bus comes from.

The school district or the company is notified and the driver is usually warned to be more cautious.

Abuses cheat elders

©New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — A congressional investigation of insurance fraud has concluded that the nation's senior citizens are paying $1 billion a year in premiums for health insurance policies they do not need.

In many cases, according to the House Select Committee on Aging, many of the 15 million people eligible for Medicare who have been sold supplementary insurance have policies with fine print denying payment from more than one policy.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., 78, who heads the committee, charged that abuses in the sale of health insurance to the elderly had become a "full-scale national scandal."

Pepper's committee will open hearings into insurance abuses Tuesday that will make public the results of a six-month investigation its staff conducted into sales practices in nine states and the District of Columbia where half of the nation's elderly reside.

"We have found that many unscrupulous insurance agents have been preying on the fears of the elderly and selling them three, four, five and sometimes as many as 30 different health insurance policies, although they generally contain a clause saying that only one policy will pay," Pepper said.

As health care costs have risen dramatically, the share of the elderly's health expenses paid by Medicare has fallen from 88 percent in 1966 to about 37 percent today. The Medicare program extends to people 65 and older partial coverage for both doctors' fees and hospital charges.

Viewed another way, during Medicare's first year in 1966, the average out-of-pocket costs of health care for each beneficiary was $41 a year. Today, it is more than $1,100.

This large increase has led to the popularity of supplementary medical insurance because many retired people are afraid that without additional coverage a bout of illness would plunge them into bankruptcy even with Medicare paying part of the bills.

Carter brings pledge, plea to Utah audience

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — President Carter came to Utah with a pledge to investigate the effects of nuclear fallout on the state's population and a plea for the rest of the nation to copy the Mormon Church's belief in a strong family.

Carter Monday accepted a special family unity award from church President Spencer W. Kimball at a Family Week observance in the Salt Lake Mormon Tabernacle.

The president outlined any mention of the Equal Rights Amendment, which he supports and the Mormon Church opposes. But he praised Utah's Mormon founders for including their own version of the ERA in the state constitution adopted in 1895.

The ERA group had urged Carter to make the issue a top priority in his 11 months in office. It also called ratification of the amendment in several states.

True to the president's speech, Scott Matheson asked Carter to look into complaints of southern Utah residents that they have an abnormally high cancer rate as a result of effect of atomic bomb tests in Nevada during the 1950s and '60s.

Carter responded by promising

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano to re-evaluate government studies of the leukemia rate in Utah and to reorganize 1960s research on the incidence of thyroid disease in the state. He also promised to launch a nationwide health study of evidence of cancer in other areas.

"I have asked Secretary Califano to work closely with the state officials as he proceeds, and I have asked the secretary of Defense to investigate the nuclear fallout issue," said the president. His statement was released by White House Press Secretary David Saxon.

Kimball presented Carter with a wreath of a family in honor of his program that featured the Mormon Temple as a symbol of the strong family unit. He also presented Carter with a special award for his support of the ERA.

As was the custom, the President and three pro-ERA groups, the Utah Equal Rights Council, the Utah Mormon and Friends for the ERA and the Salt Lake chapter of the National Organization for Women, gave the president another special award for his support of the amendment.

It was accepted by White House

Consumer Affairs Advisor Esther Peterson, a native of Utah, a Mormon and a supporter of ERA.

The line has come for the Equal Rights Amendment to be passed, said Mr. Peterson, during the brief ceremony. And that it can be done with the support of the Mormon Church.

Carter earlier said he would support the amendment. But he said that Mormon early in the campaign encouraged women to attend church and included in the state constitution a clause guaranteeing men and women the same civil, political and religious rights, including equal pay.

"And we are now the first president that same commitment through the Equal Rights Amendment," he said.

But being with such values, he said, the nation needs a strong family unit.

The strong family unit, he said, is the best way to pay for a government that is great. The government spends a great deal of the tax dollars and we must pay for our families and our work and our homes.

As the president spoke, a group of women sang "The Blessings of a Family."

The welfare programs that have been passed in the past few years are a result of the strong family unit, he said. The president said that when a father has a strong family unit, he is able to support his children and his family.

Tuesday briefing

FBI laxity rapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The staff of the House Assassinations Committee accused the FBI Monday of falling short in investigating the murder of Martin Luther King Jr. by failing to check out a possible conspiracy by James Earl Ray's family.

Chief Counsel G. Robert Blakey said the agency brushed off indications one of the convicted assassin's brothers might have been the mysterious "stooge" blamed by Ray for the crime. He said a bitter feud between the men who headed the FBI and Justice Department at the time — J. Edgar Hoover and Ramsey Clark — may have been responsible for the inadequate investigation.

But a 106-page study by the committee staff reported "no evidence that these specific deficiencies" were caused by Hoover's "well-documented hatred" for the slain civil rights leader. The committee chairman, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, said, however, the panel must decide whether the FBI's campaign to discredit King contributed to his death by creating a climate that made murder possible.

The committee appeared to be convinced that Ray pulled the trigger of the rifle that fired the fatal bullet into King in Memphis on April 4, 1968.

Ray is serving a 99-year sentence in Brushy Mountain State Prison in Tennessee for the murder.

Strong arm of the law

An Iranian student demonstrator is restrained by a Salt Lake City policeman outside the Mormon Tabernacle Monday during President Carter's speech. About 200 Iranian students protested American support for the Shah. Five persons were arrested after a scuffle broke out between police and the demonstrators. Carter did not see the demonstration.

Carter agrees to meet Egyptian prime minister

By United Press International
President Carter has agreed to meet Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil later this week, signaling a resumption of the stalled Middle East peace negotiations, U.S. officials said in Washington Monday.

They said Khalil would bring the formal Egyptian reply to an American compromise proposal that would set up local government councils in the West Bank and Gaza by the end of 1979.

Egypt had proposed a deadline of mid-1979. Israel has refused to accept any firm timetable. The Egyptian-Israeli talks have been stalled on the issue for nearly two weeks.

The Khalil-Carter meeting is expected Thursday or Friday.

Meanwhile, a high-level Cairo committee Monday completed the report on Egypt's position and an Israeli report from Cairo said President Anwar Sadat may be suggesting a compromise.

Sadat will meet with the committee, headed by Vice President Hosni Mubarak, Tuesday for a final review of the Egyptian reply before dispatching it to Carter with Khalil.

Truck driver ambushed

By United Press International
A truck driver was shot from ambush Monday on the Pennsylvania Turnpike in the latest incident of violence in a strike by independent steel-haulers and the nation's largest steel producer said the strike has caused a 30 percent cutback in shipments.

Meanwhile, a hearing scheduled today in U.S. District Court in Cleveland on the strike was postponed for a second time, until Jan. 2. The court will decide then whether to grant a permanent injunction to prohibit striking members of the Ironworkers Association of Steel Haulers from harassing and threatening other truckers.

U.S. pressure sought

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiry appealed to the United States Monday to put political and economic pressure on the white regimes of South Africa and Rhodesia to change their racial policies.

He won immediate pledges of support from UN Ambassador Andrew Young and from Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa.

Guyana launches probe into Jonestown deaths

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (UPI) — The government of Guyana began its own investigation into the Jonestown mass suicide Monday, ordering troops into the jungle commune to seek documents and any other clues to the deaths of more than 900 members of a California religious cult.

There was growing evidence that the Rev. Jim Jones had ordered the ritual suicide in a fit of despondency over fears that a U.S. congressman's investigation could mean the end of the cult before he could make arrangements to transfer it to Cuba or the Soviet Union.

Jones, who turned increasingly Marxist in recent months, spoke frequently in his sermons of taking his believers to one of the Communist countries, and one of his legacies was a suitcase containing $500,000 in cash and instructions to take it to the Soviet Embassy to further his plans.

But the mass suicide began before the money could be delivered by three members of the cult — Tim Carter, 28, of Boise, Idaho, his brother Mike, 20, and Michael Prokes, 32, of Modesto, Calif. They stashed the suitcase in a chicken coop and were picked up by Guyanese authorities. Guyana later confiscated the money.

The 23 survivors of the suicide sat around their seedy hotel rooms Monday or napped while waiting transportation to the United States. Another 46 at the cult's headquarters in Georgetown remained under heavy guard. One of the 46 has been charged with murder in the deaths of Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., and four other Americans; another was charged with the murder of a mother and her three children at the headquarters.

More answers to the mystery of Jones' last hours of decision were placed together from statements from the "few survivors" including Tim Carter, who carried the suitcase of money which contained a letter to the Soviet Embassy in Georgetown.

Another possible clue came from a note apparently written by Jones in a fit of despondency following the Ryan airport massacre and his reported fear that Ryan's investigation of reports that temple members were being held in near slavery would mean the end of the cult.

The FBI in Washington was studying what it called a two-paragraph note of despair found on Jones' body. Its full contents were not disclosed and hand writing experts were checking to see whether Jones actually wrote the note but the FBI emphasized its tone of despair.

In Washington, the State Department Monday declined to comment on any aspects of the investigations surrounding the Jonestown massacre, including a reported suicide note, alleged plans for the cult to go to the Soviet Union and other issues regarding this matter.

The last of the U.S. troops on the million-dollared Ryan's last HH135 helicopter Monday, placed it aboard a C141 transport and left the country. Before leaving, Jonestown they burned their uniforms because of the danger of disease from the rotting bodies they had sent back to the United States.

According to the Pentagon, the body retrieval operation cost U.S. taxpayers approximately $9 million, which figured out to about $10,000 per body. The final transfer of 184 bodies was in 83 aluminum cases.

Plan to fly survivors to U.S. still in doubt

CHARLESTON AFB, S.C. (UPI) — The State Department Monday cast doubt on how many, if any, of the Peoples-Temple survivors would be flown to Charleston Air Force Base where the FBI was waiting to question them about the murder of California Rep. Leo Ryan.

U.S. Attorney Thomas E. Lydon, quoting from a State Department Tuesday before any of the approximately 80 survivors of the death cult would be flown from Georgetown, Guyana, to the Air Force base.

"It is still our plan if a substantial number of survivors of the Jonestown tragedy want to leave Guyana together they will be flown to Charleston by military aircraft sometime this week," the statement said. "It is also possible at this point for us to speculate as to how many of the survivors would be aboard such a flight."

Lydon said he was told by the State Department that some of the survivors may decide to return to the United States by other means and some may not wish to return at all.

More refugees ashore

KUALA TRENGGANU, Malaysia (UPI) — More refugees east from Vietnam landed along the Malaysian east coast Monday despite stepped-up marine patrols and navy sorties reported. Another 60 were reported en route to the ever growing flotilla.

The navy said detection has been difficult because of the small size of the Vietnamese boats and the rough seas along the 700-mile coastline.

Diplomats said the fate of more than 1,000 Vietnamese refugees still aboard the Hai Hong freighter off this Malaysian port rests with the United States after other Western countries have resettled 1,800 of them.

'Ex-' tops suspect's background

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dan White, charged with killing Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk, is a 33-year-old ex-fireman, ex-patrolman and ex-policeman — who went back to his old station to turn himself in.

He is also an ex-supervisor, the position he was trying to regain at the time Moscone and Milk were killed in City Hall Monday.

White's life in politics began a year ago with his election to the Board of Supervisors, San Francisco's legislative body, from a district of middle-income wage-earners in the southern part of the city.

His election as a supervisor appeared to launch him on another career. But on Nov. 10 he resigned from the board, citing financial pressures. The part-time office pays only $9,800 a year.

A boyish-looking member of the police department and later the fire department, he came from a family of 17 children.

His police career spanned 2 1/2 years in two separate tours, interrupted by a year of private security work for a school district in Anchorage, Alaska. His police tours were from January 1969 to October 1970 and from September 1971 to May 1973.

It was at the police department's Northern Station, where he first served as a patrolman, that White turned himself in to police last night after the shootings.

As a patrolman, his record was not outstanding but he had exceeded, according to Capt. James Shanahan and Lt. Bruce White, several commendations for arrests made after auto crashes.

As a fire-fighter he served before in the area of San Francisco. He was scheduled to receive a medal this Thursday for helping save the lives of two persons during a fire in a store building in August 1971 and the department stated by him to see he was rewarded.

The man still remembers the awful night he left San Francisco for his hometown after White's arrest.

White joined the fire department in 1963 after returning from a military where he served as a parachute jumper. There was never any thought of his joining another fire department. He was a member of the fire department for 10 years and had a great deal of respect.

Veteran Republican governor says tough campaign remains

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — A veteran GOP governor and a Republican who won a statehouse job for the first time this year warned Monday the 1978 victory will not spark a national party comeback unless followed by a campaign to woo traditionally Democratic voters.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan and Gov.-elect Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania delivered essentially the same message to the Republican Governors' Association meeting at Colonial Williamsburg.

"Let's not delude ourselves," Milliken, the second most senior GOP governor, said in prepared remarks. "It would be premature to claim our victories signaled any real resurgence to the Republican Party nationally... we have yet to prove we really have kicked the habit of snatching defeat from the jaws of victory."

WILLIAM MILLIKEN... warning for party.

Thornburgh, one of the Republicans who increased the GOP governors from 12 to 18 by ending the long-time Democratic rule in Pennsylvania, said the secret was "to go to the traditional Democratic constituency," particularly blacks and union members whose allegiance "has softened" in recent years.

Thornburgh said Republicans can insist on "ideological purity" from their candidates, "but we will end up on the short end of the stick."

Milliken echoed: "We preach the policy of the open door. But as a party we don't always practice it — or deserve it."

Any "regional strategy" such as appeals to southern states or the Sun Belt is "not only morally wrong but politically stupid," said Milliken, who won his third full term this year to become second in seniority behind Iowa governor Robert Ray.

The governors also focused on the tax revolt and found it less intimidating than many found it earlier.

Virginia Gov. John Dalton, opening the three-day meeting, said the movement was less a protest against government itself than against unresponsive elected officials.

"I would suggest to you that American taxpayers today are finding concrete expression in the Proposition 13 syndrome for their frustration that their own taxes are not solving their own or the nation's problems," Dalton said.

Gov. Otis Bowen of Indiana noted that while most limits on taxes and spending were approved Nov. 7, two of the three measures closest to Proposition 13 failed.

Bowen said he believed that meant voters wanted "something less than a meat-ax approach to government spending and taxation."

Aspirants won't get much help

©Newhouse News Service
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Two potential Republican presidential candidates from Texas will not get any special help from the new GOP governor of their state if they run against each other.

Governor-elect Bill Clements, attending the Republican Governors Association annual meeting here, said former Gov. John Connally and former Ambassador George Bush are "both long-time, personal friends."

seeking the 1980 GOP presidential nomination. Clements also said he got campaign help from former President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, both considered potential candidates in 1980, in his own race for governor.

"I'm on the horns of four dilemmas, and I'm not about to get into that mess," Clements, a former deputy secretary of defense under Ford, said at a press conference here.

Asked about the possibility of a favorite son candidacy of his own in Texas, Clements, who spent approximately $6 million in his gubernatorial election, said: "That issue hasn't really come up."

Although he refuses to even express a preference for any Republican candidate in the early maneuvering for 1980, Clements contends President Carter is in serious political trouble in Texas.

"He was in trouble before I got elected, and he's in more trouble now," Clements said.

"I intend to do everything in my power to deny him Texas," said the newly-elected governor who will take office in January.

Clements and Texas state GOP Chairman Ray Barnhart said they plan to hold a GOP delegate-selection primary in Texas on the date when both parties nominate candidates for state offices.

There is no state primary in Texas now, but the GOP leader, the state plans to hold one after Barnhart said.

If the Democratic legislature tries to pass a law stopping them, "we will take them to court," Clements said.

Mayors, Carter share one view

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — City mayors and President Carter Monday found unexpected harmony on the need for austerity in government.

Carter told the annual convention of the National League of Cities he will propose "severe limits" on federal aid for cities in his 1980 budget. Afterward he spoke with a smaller group of mayors and assured them they will be fair in assessing their cities' needs.

"You know what it is to face unlimited demands with limited resources," Carter said. "All of us will have to suffer from these restraints." League President Tom Moody, mayor of Columbus, Ohio, replied, "I can pledge to you we will support you in the inflation fight."

Mayor Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y., said Carter showed an understanding of the problems of cities.

"Many of us came with the apprehension that we'd be the first to be cut," Alexander told reporters. "The president instantly cut these fears with his promise that the administration will be even-handed in its budget planning."

"I am pleased and relieved with the president's program. We were afraid it might be much harsher."

Although Carter did not specify what, if any, city aid programs he considers likely candidates for budget cuts, Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles offered to cooperate in spending reductions.

"This year's going to be very critical," Bradley said. "We'll work with you in taking our fair share of cuts."

"Is there any mechanism that we can use to propose programs we think could be cut?"

Carter, obviously pleased by Bradley's comments, referred the mayor to a number of presidential assistants, then added: "You're right, Tom. Even in normal times, cooperation is advantageous."

Mayor John P. Rousakis of Savannah, Ga., who will succeed Moody as league president, told Carter cooperation on economic issues "is starting to spill over some states but not all." He urged the president to weigh carefully the needs of all regions of the country.

Carter said he is optimistic about the success of his anti-inflation program.

"I do not anticipate a recession or depression," he told the mayors. "No economic adviser who works with me believes there will be an economic recession in 1979."

Record showing by GM leads car sales surge

DETROIT (UPI) — A record sales performance by General Motors Corp. pulled an otherwise sluggish auto industry to a 13 1/2 percent gain in mid-November, the automakers reported Monday.

Combined sales of the Big Four car firms during the Nov. 11-20 period totaled 247,233 units compared with 217,801 for a year ago.

It was the highest mid-November figure since 1973. GM's delivery of 126,661 passenger cars during the eight business days of the period amounted to a 27 percent increase over the company's performance a year ago. The Nov. 1 automobile's average sales rate of 19,266 cars per day topped the end of 1974 at 17,722.

Year-to-date statistics to report final shipment totals and have opportunities remain good for the future, GM's vice president Robert J. Paul said.

American Motors Corp. each reported declining sales for the period, continuing a slump that has afflicted the three firms for most of the autumn.

Ford, which was hurt earlier in the fall by low supplies of its new full-size cars, reported sales of 80,902 units, a 10 1/2 percent decline from a fairly strong showing a year ago.

Chrysler, also hurt this fall by slow acceptance of new car production, reported sales of 22,243 cars, a 9 percent decline from last year. AMC's sales of 4,689 units amounted to a 12 percent drop.

Each of the companies reported record sales of trucks and commercial vehicles. GM sold 87,719 units, Ford 34,231, Chrysler 11,177 and AMC Jeep 1,722.

GM's car sales amounted to 62 1/2 percent of the mid-November domestic car market. Ford took 24 1/2 percent of sales, Chrysler 11 percent and AMC 1 1/2 percent.

Alert signal never issued

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — An alert signal was never issued for a nuclear power plant in Missouri because of a malfunction in the plant's monitoring system, officials said Monday.

The plant, which is owned by the St. Louis-based utility, is one of the nation's largest nuclear power plants. It is located near the city of St. Louis.

The plant's monitoring system is designed to detect any abnormal conditions and issue an alert signal if necessary.

The plant's safety system is designed to prevent any release of radioactive material into the environment.

Man shoots accused slayer of sons

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — A 57-year-old man Monday shot and killed the accused slayer of his two sons as the suspect was being led in chains into the Bexar County Courthouse to face trial, authorities said.

Sheriff's officers said Juan Rodriguez emerged from a crowd watching 15 chained prisoners entering a side door of the courthouse and pumped six bullets into Jimmy Garza, 31, killing him.

The father then quietly dropped his pistol to the sidewalk and surrendered. He was charged with murder.

Supreme Court rejects newsman's appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court rejected an appeal Monday from New York Times reporter Myron Farber, who spent 39 days in jail for refusing to let a judge inspect his notes and records on a murder case.

The justices let stand contempt convictions imposed on Farber and on the Times, which paid a total of $285,000 in fines for its position in support of the reporter.

Without comment, the court declined to review the highly publicized fair-trial versus free-press case.

Farber no longer is in danger of being sent back to jail. But he told UPI he regrets the court's rejection because it leaves in "a state of limbo" questions about "the ability of reporters to preserve the confidentiality of their sources and at the very least to receive a full and fair hearing."

He said these issues have been arising with increasing frequency in recent years, and expressed confidence the high court would address them in some future case and clarify its stand.

The Farber case was one of hundreds the Supreme Court acted on Monday on its return from a two-week recess. Among other things, the justices agreed to consider this term whether police illegally seized hundreds of magazines and reels of film from an adult bookstore in Wawayanda, N.Y., with a justice of the peace selecting the offending materials during a raid.

John Warner captures Virginia Senate seat

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Republican John Warner was certified Monday as winner of the Senate race in Virginia by a vote margin of less than 1 percent — a victory his wife, Elizabeth Taylor, declared to be "absolutely marvelous."

Warner, a guest at the Republican Governors Conference in nearby Williamsburg, had a more subdued reaction.

Equal pay law ruling let stand by justices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday let stand lower-court rulings that the federal law requiring equal pay for male and female employees doing the same job may be applied to state and local governments.

The justices turned down an appeal by the Greensboro, N.C., school board, which argued that it, as a subdivision of the state, was immune from the statute's provisions.

In 1976, the Supreme Court ruled invalid amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act which for the first time extended the law's minimum wage and maximum hour provisions to almost all employees of states and their political subdivisions.

It said Congress may not use its authority to regulate interstate commerce in this kind of a way, forcing upon states its position on such essential decisions are to be made regarding the conduct of integral government functions.

Carter fills panel posts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Monday appointed nine persons to the American Battle Monument Commission, including four generals and one admiral.

Named to the panel were: Gen. Louis Wilson, commandant of the Marine Corps; Gen. Anna Mae Hayes, chief of the Army Nursing Corps, and Gen. Benjamin Davis Jr. and James McGavin.

The Greensboro Board of Education relied on that opinion in challenging efforts to make state and local governments subject to the Equal Pay Act, which it described as a provision of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Following complaints that it violated the law by paying some of its female custodians and athletic coaches less than men who held the same job, the school board went to federal court in North Carolina seeking a declaratory judgment that it and its employees are not subject to the equal pay requirement.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — White House press secretary Jody Powell commented Monday President Carter sent a memo to CIA Director Stanislaus Turner criticizing the intelligence community's failure to forecast the gravity of civil strife in Iran.

Powell commented after published reports appeared last week that the president was sorely distressed over the intelligence community's failure to predict the Iran upheavals.

But Powell insisted to reporters, accompanying the president on Air Force One, the memo "wasn't a chewing out."

Other guys win round in tough world of politics inside Teamsters Union

BY JERRY FLINT
ON Y. Times Service

FLINT, Mich. — In the world of teamsters, something unusual happened this month.

The other guys won. Under the banner of the rebellious Teamsters for a Democratic Union, Richard Sebastian led a seven-member slate that swept every incumbent from office in Local 332 here, a drivers' and warehousemen's local with 4,000 members.

Norse coin first link to Vikings

LONDON (UPI) — A British coin expert believes an 11th century Norse penny found in an Indian rubbish heap in Maline may be the first "tangible evidence" that Vikings discovered America 400 years before Columbus. "Now, at last, a Norse artifact has been found below the 49th parallel," said Peter Seaby, chief of the coin firm of B. A. Seaby Ltd.

Seaby said Monday the coin "is almost certainly a Norse penny." That, he said, could demonstrate conclusively that when Columbus sailed the ocean blue in 1492 he was trailing far in the wake of the Vikings. "Coins, which can be accurately dated and identified, are a classic weapon in the historian's armory." Seaby said. "Here we have what is almost certainly an 11th century European coin, the first such discovery below the 49th parallel."

Seaby said the coin was discovered in 1961 on an early Indian site within yards of the coast of Maline, but only recently identified as a Norse penny. He said photographs from the Maline state museum confirmed his belief that the coin belonged to the reign of Olaf Kyrrre between 1067 and 1083.

"This could be epoch-making," he said. Seaby said the newly identified coin was not the only evidence that somebody beat Columbus to America.

"That the Norse did visit North America from Greenland to well-trodden America from the evidence of the sagas and confirmed by excavations of the habitation site in the Sacred Bay area of northern Newfoundland," he said.

Seaby cited a recent voyage to show it was possible that N. Brindman, an Irish monk who lived even before the Vikings, could have crossed the Atlantic in a leather boat. The Norse penny, though it was found in 1961, had been unrecognized up to now, Seaby said because everyone thought it was an early English coin. That when Harry Robertson of the Harlow, Mr. Flint brought him a photograph, Seaby said, it certainly was not recognizable as an English coin.

The coin was stamped on the reverse side with a cross which Seaby said is typically Norwegian.

Seaby said he compared the pictures with five coins of Olaf Kyrrre in the British Museum and matched it against illustrations in a great variety of reference books.

go but over the years little seems to have shaken the structure of teamster leadership. An international president was jailed, pension fund investments have been tied to racketeers and an occasional murder has been reported. None of that was an important part of Sebastian's campaign.

"We said we would give the union back to the members," the 6-foot-plus, 250-pound truck driver explained. "We didn't run against Fitz," meaning Frank E. Fitzsimmons, president of the International union.

The issues at Local 332 were the right to elect business agents, who are now appointed, to get better results on grievances and to end an "autocratic dictatorship" of the entrenched local leaders, Sebastian said.

The Flint victory is the most impressive but not the only victory the rebels have achieved. Last month, Jack Farrell, a Teamsters for a Democratic Union activist, won the presidency of a 7,000-member local in Oklahoma City and early this year a slate from the rebel organization won control of a local in Green Bay, Wis. Other insurgents have won posts in a teamster local in Jacksonville, Fla., and are campaigning for office in a half-dozen other cities.

These victories are mere pinpricks to the giant teamsters, the nation's largest union with more than two million members. Even the Teamsters for a Democratic Union, the closest thing to organized insurgency within the union, boasts only 3,000 members.

"We don't have an electoral strategy. Elections are a tactic," said Pete Camarata of Detroit, who lost an election at Local 299, possibly the best known of all teamster locals because it is the home base of the late James R. Hoffa, the former international president, and his successor, Fitzsimmons.

Camarata, a 285-pound loading dock worker, is co-chairman of the rebel organization and candidate for the presidency of the international union in 1981, which is a tactic to win publicity in teamster house organs.

The rebel group emphasizes campaigns to change local union bylaws, pushing, for example, for elected business agents and stewards. It emphasizes complaints about productivity slowdowns or inadequate grievance handling and hopes to build strength on dissatisfaction that might come from the new national master freight agreement to be negotiated next spring.

"Maybe it will take 10 to 15 years,"

Camarata said, "but at the next convention it won't be one guy standing up and getting his head beat in." At the 1976 national teamster convention, Camarata was the only delegate to speak up against the union's leadership and he was roughed up after the meetings.

Violence, however, has not been a particular problem of the rebels. More troublesome is the tag of Communist or Socialist that teamsters put on them. Both Camarata and Ken Palf, a founder of the rebel group and now its paid organizer, concede they belong to a small group, not a political party, known as the International Socialists, and they believe socialism is coming someday.

In the fight for control of Local 332 in Flint, incumbent leaders identified the rebel candidates with the flag of the Soviet Union and pictured them as under the control of a bright red octopus.

The teamsters are the bargaining agent for the police in Flint.

Another problem is the teamster reputation for winning lucrative contracts. Drivers and loaders earn $7 to $10 an hour, and Fitzsimmons says, over the last 12 years, earn $22,000 a year.

She'd rather collect garbage than welfare

MIAMI (UPI) — Alma Sumpter would rather collect garbage than collect welfare and she proves it every morning.

The 115-pound woman may be the only female garbage collector in Florida.

Mrs. Sumpter, 50, asked about a job on a Miami garbage route when she had trouble finding work seven weeks ago. "I had been about the rats and the snakes and the worms," said Bill Sumpter, a garbage department superintendent. "But she wanted to get off welfare. She wanted to earn her own living. She talked like she could do the work."

It would not be half as hard as picking tomatoes at nursing mental patients, as she has done in the past, Mrs. Sumpter said.

"Just put me on the truck and tell the men to keep up," she said.

The best part of the job, she says, is the $5.49 an hour that she earns.

"I wouldn't be married to anything except those cans," she said. "And it beats being on welfare. I hope a lot of other women get the hint... and get off welfare."

Nixon uses campaign style in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — Adopting his old campaigning style, former President Richard Nixon plunged into a luncheon crowd of 200 outside his hotel Monday, laughing, shaking hands and waving.

Ending a day and a half of seclusion in his 26-room suite in the Ritz, Paris' top hotel, Nixon moved into the crowd on the elegant Place Vendôme, chatting and joking as he did in 1974 when he visited the French capital as U.S. president.

Nixon is on a four-day visit — his second abroad since leaving office in the Watergate aftermath — to appear on a two-hour live talkathon Tuesday night on the government-owned French television channel.

After shaking hands all around, Nixon drove to the Charles de Gaulle Institute, once a private office used by the late French president and now a museum. Nixon was escorted around the museum by Adm. Philippe de Gaulle, son of the late president.

"It was very moving to be in the place where President de Gaulle wrote his memoirs," Nixon told a knot of reporters. Asked if he thought de Gaulle was the greatest world leader of his time, Nixon said, "He was a great president. He remained my friend even when I was on my knees

Nixon has ruled out replying to any questions by reporters during the TV show. He will accept questions and telephone calls by French viewers.

However, he scheduled a one-hour news conference for Wednesday just before he leaves by air for London, his next stop.

The TV program lasts three hours. There will be mostly filmed interviews, covering Nixon's career. Nixon is reported to have seen this portion of the program and to have given it his full approval.

Brezhnev protege moves up

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist Party member Kirill T. Mazurov stepped down from the powerful Politburo Monday and Konstantin Chernenko, a protege of President Leonid Brezhnev, was made a full member of the top party organization, the official Tass news agency reported.

Tass said Mazurov stepped down after 13 years in the Politburo "on his request because of his poor health." Even in situations where a politburo member is removed, it is almost always announced as occurring at his request.

Mazurov, 64, was one of the younger members of the ruling Politburo. He rose to membership in the top body in March 1965.

The plenum, held in advance of the Supreme Soviet session scheduled Wednesday, also named new alternate members to the Politburo: Edvard Shevardnadze, secretary of Georgia, and candidate member Aleksandr Tikhonov, first deputy chairman of the Council of Ministers.

Japanese prime minister out

TAKEO FUKUDA ... loses out to rival

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda, shung by a surprise defeat Monday in a party primary, withdrew from a runoff election and opened the way for long-time political rival Masayoshi Ohira to become Japan's new premier.

Ohira, general secretary of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, will be unopposed in the final round of voting for the party presidency Friday and was expected to become prime minister when Japan's Diet (parliament) convenes in early December.

Fukuda, a bureaucrat-turned-politician, announced he would not seek re-election shortly after the final vote count for the party presidency showed he had lost to the 68-year-old Ohira by a margin of 550,891 to 472,523. Two other candidates totaled 286,875 votes.

Presidency of the Liberal Democratic Party, the largest in parliament, automatically carries with it the post of prime minister.

"I am not going to run in the runoff election," Fukuda told a nationally televised news conference. "Frankly speaking, I was surprised at the outcome (of the election). As I said before, I would respect the outcome and I will do so."

He declined further comment, citing an old Japanese proverb, "A defeated general does not talk of his men."

Ohira told a separate news conference, "I would like to express my respect (to Fukuda) for making the decision (to withdraw from the runoff election). His decision reflected his wish to avoid unnecessary confusion in the party."

In Washington, the State Department had no direct comment on the electoral defeat of Fukuda, but said it was confident the United States would have the same "cordial and productive" ties with Ohira's government.

Fukuda became prime minister in December, 1976, succeeding Takeo Miki who stepped down to take responsibility for an election setback suffered by the party.

Ohira served as foreign minister under former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, who resigned in the face of charges that he used his post to accumulate a fortune. Ohira negotiated Japan's normalization of relations with China in 1974.

Tanaka subsequently was arrested and indicted in connection with the $12 million Lockheed payoff scandal. He has resigned from the party but still retains strong influence and backed Ohira in the fight against Fukuda.

Under party rules, two top vote-getters are eligible for a runoff election, but with Fukuda's withdrawal, Ohira will be chosen as party president unopposed for a two-year term and will assume the premiership.

The LDP holds the largest single party strength of 253 seats in the Diet's 511-seat lower chamber. The remaining seats are divided among five major opposition groups and minor parties. There are 11 vacancies.

Defense linkup OK'd

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan and the United States agreed Monday to set guidelines on joint forces designed to deter enemy attacks from air and sea, senior U.S. officials said.

Officials said the guidelines specifically called on both countries to lay the groundwork for future coordinating efforts such as joint exercises.

"One purpose of the guidelines is to authorize military-to-military training," said one official who asked not to be named.

The officials made the remarks after the completion of the 17th meeting of Japan-U.S. Security Consultative Committee at the Foreign Ministry.

The two countries agreed to set the guidelines after nearly 2.5 years of negotiations.

Officials taking part in the meeting included Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda, U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield and Adm. Maurice F. Weisner, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Pacific forces.

The guidelines aim to commit the U.S. forces to defend Japan, a role America has long played in Western Europe.

Company's chief still finds time for fishing

CYANAMID SUPERVISOR JOHN CARL DIPLACIDO ... started as an office boy in Erie, Pa.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Supervising eight chemical plants for Cyanamid Co. in the Gulf Coast states interferes mightily with John Carl DiPlacido's love of fishing, but he still manages to catch an awful lot.

DiPlacido lives on the Dog River near Mobile, Ala., and has been a resident of the nation's eleventh largest port since 1944.

They have a saying in the South that there is no professional southerner quite as avid as a transplanted Yankee and DiPlacido admits he is no exception to that maxim. He just plain loves Mobile, which he has seen grow from a rather small coal, iron and cotton port and fishing town to a cosmopolitan city of 225,000 with big diversified manufacturing interests.

DiPlacido's love of fishing began when he was a small lad jiggling for rock panfish on the banks of Lake Erie at Erie, Pa. Since then he has fished at one time or another for almost everything except the giants of the ocean.

From his home on the Dog River, he can get through Mobile Bay in his power boat out to the reefs where the red snappers and groupers abound in 45 minutes.

"The fishing all around Mobile is wonderful," he said. "We have plenty of freshwater bass as well as the saltwater varieties, and the saltwater fishing has been greatly improved by artificial reefs created by sinking old ships in deep water or even by dumping old automobiles at lesser depths." He said the red snappers, the Gulf's most famous delicacy, are usually found in water 90 feet deep or more.

Many northerners are disappointed when they order red snapper in a restaurant or buy it in a fish market; it just doesn't have the flavor and texture of fresh caught red snapper.

"There's a way to tell if red snapper is good," DiPlacido said. "Look at the gills. If they are still red, the flesh will be firm and flavorful, but if they've turned whitish, don't buy the fish."

This is a professional as well as personal opinion from DiPlacido. Some years ago Cyanamid discovered that fish could be better preserved by dipping or spraying them with a solution containing the antibiotic acromycin. DiPlacido got the Mobile commercial fishermen to use it. "They quickly learned that they didn't find any more red snappers with whitened gills when they brought in their catches if they used acromycin."

DiPlacido not only is an enthusiastic fisherman but he loves other wildlife. He and his wife, Marie, have a colony of around 25 raccoons that come to their yard.

"We must buy a hundred loaves of stale bread a month to feed them," he said. "The raccoon is a friendly, intelligent animal and is tolerant of people but you can't really tame him like a dog or cat. Years ago our Belgian shepherd dog caught a baby raccoon and brought it home alive. Marie bottle fed the baby and it has been with us about 15 years now. Although it is tamer than those that just come to be fed, it still will not tolerate the control and familiarities a dog or a cat will."

DiPlacido was practically born into Cyanamid. He started in 1928 as an office boy for Kalbfleisch Corp. in Erie where his father worked. Cyanamid bought Kalbfleisch the next year. Young Johnny learned his college chemistry in evening technical school classes in Erie and Utica, N.Y., where he had become an assistant manager of a Cyanamid cased plant. He traveled over a lot of New York state buying milk curd as the raw material for the cased.

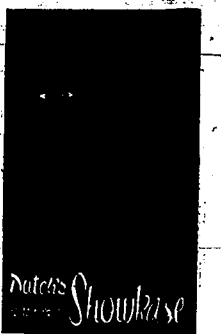

Next he was sent to Benton, Ark., as works manager of a bauxite mine, then landed in Mobile in 1944.

Under his leadership, Cyanamid's Mobile plant became the nation's largest supplier of what are known as "wet-end" chemicals for the paper industry. The kraft and other paper mills in the Gulf states were booming.

In the decade from 1960 through 1970, he was given additional supervision over plants in Springhill, Demopolis and Childersburg in Alabama, Monticello, Miss., De Ridder, La., Georgetown, S.C., and Plymouth, N.C.

The company has asked him to stay on but at present DiPlacido is more inclined to retire next February so he can get in more fishing time.

He has always been a very active chap. He had his own airplane as well as a speedboat while he was working in Utica and also owned one of those classic Auburn boat tail speedsters. If he had kept it, it would be worth a fortune on the antique car market, now.

Doctors discover alternative

By PAMELA G. HOLLIE
C.N.Y. Times Service

LOS ANGELES — When the malpractice-insurance crunch hit California two years ago, rates soared sky high — even higher than in New York, whose premiums for malpractice insurance tripled.

Theodore N. Hariton, a Tarrans, Calif., physician who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology, saw his malpractice premiums leap from $8,000 a year in 1975 to $36,000 a year in 1976. So Hariton, like nearly 40 percent of the nation's other "high-risk" doctors, gave up his conventional coverage and joined a malpractice-insurance company where all the owners were doctors, all the policyholders were doctors and all the policies covered malpractice.

Hariton's premium dropped to $12,000 and fell further after that.

"There has been phenomenal development of doctor-owned malpractice insurance companies," according to Louis J. Carow, deputy executive vice president of the Council of Medical Specialty Societies, an extension of the American Medical Association in Chicago.

"About 30 state hospitals have joined the trend," Carow said in an interview. "Nineteen physician-owned insurance companies have been formed by this medical society in the last three years, and dozens of others have been formed outside of medical societies."

Of the estimated 280,000 physicians who have to carry malpractice insurance, only about half can be considered high-risk, mainly because they practice such specialties as brain surgery or obstetrics. Of that number, some 17,000 are members of doctor-owned insurance companies. Those companies have grown so rapidly that those affiliated with medical societies have, by themselves, assets of $770 million and an estimated capitalization of $780 million.

So far, the fledgling industry is doing well. Lots of money is pouring in. Little is going out. Though about a half of the new companies have been able to lure outside experts, some of the companies are proud of their growth and good fortune are paying dividends and reducing premium rates to insurance classes. However, skepticism abounds over the suggestion that has captured the new medical society carriers. Some are already wondering if the new companies have any idea of what is in store for them in the years ahead.

"I'll make at least four years for the really bad malpractice cases to surface," one insurance specialist said. "And there there is a guarantee program. If you're in the first year, the industry will have no previous knowledge of what happened to you. Even in 1978 there will still be some cases from 1973."

It was such potential exposure to claims plus inflation, expensive out-of-court settlements and a generally ill economy that has caused some doctors a year ago to form their own insurance companies. A few would-be doctors are already looking at their own policies. These companies hope, and to protect themselves, to raise their rates for the high-risk categories.

A company was initially required to raise $5 million to start. After approval by the California State Insurance Department, the company was permitted to begin operations in April 1978 with a $1.5 million surplus. The ratio of premiums to surplus is now a healthy 1 to 1.2. One doctor has members and $1.5 million in assets.

Animal surgery at Greenacres Pet Hospital resembles procedure used with humans in regular hospitals

Medicine and animals

Most medical breakthroughs to save human life were first practiced by veterinarians and tested in animal clinics

TWIN FALLS — Almost anything modern medical science can do to save human lives is also available to today's pets if the owner values the animal enough to make the effort.

Veterinarians in Twin Falls say most medical breakthroughs which are now saving human lives were first practiced by veterinarians and made available to human patients only after being proven in animal clinics and veterinarian colleges.

Veterinarians in Magic Valley agree if the owner really wants to correct a serious health problem for the pet the means is there. There is a strong similarity between illnesses and injuries suffered by the pet and his owner, and in medication and treatment.

Veterinarians in Twin Falls are performing delicate surgeries almost daily which closely parallel those in major hospitals and medical centers around the country.

A pet can have a bone plate to correct a badly shattered leg, an organ removed, a glass eye, a gold tooth or, yes, a pacemaker.

Dr. William L. Strobel of the Green Acres Pet Hospital in Twin Falls says he frequently has to attach a gold or porcelain crown to a dog's tooth. Robert Hill of the Hill-Bernal Laboratories, who provides dental work for many local dentists, makes the crowns for Dr. Strobel's patients.

Animals suffer all of the same ailments and diseases that we do, so it follows that treatment and medication are almost identical, says Dr. L. A. Jackson of the Twin Falls Veterinary Hospital.

Dr. Jackson, who has practiced in Twin Falls since 1962, most of that time with his brother, Dr. M. Jackson, says he has treated many dogs and cats for children. The pet services usually would be covered under animal conditions.

He said there is a trend toward specialization in veterinary medicine today, and the medical doctors' specialization in larger areas are now specializing in demanding, demanding areas such as cancer such as Twin Falls. However, he said the veterinarian has to be a generalist in many fields.

Dr. Charles Donnelly of Green Cross Hospital says bone repair is one of the more advanced treatments for dogs and many dogs were undergoing bone replacements before the practice was open to humans.

"Heart problems are very common in dogs, and heart surgery is available for pets, including repair of valves and arteries," Dr. Donnelly said. "However, I doubt it would be done in Twin Falls. I feel it should be done by doctors who are accustomed to it rather than by someone who might not have such a case more than every year or two."

Heart surgery for a local pet would likely involve sending the pet to a large city where it is a more common practice, he said.

Another veterinarian, Dr. Charles Mancoske of Twin Falls, said one of the most advanced procedures used in the care of animals over the past 10 years is the use of gas rather than an intravenous injection as an anesthetic.

"About 10 years ago we used an intravenous shot to put the animal to sleep for surgery. If the surgery lasted over an hour, doctors required a second shot. Sometimes we had to wait the night waiting for the animal to recover from the anesthetic," he said.

He said with the use of gas animals that used for humans in all hospitals, the animal recovers within a few minutes and there is no danger of loss of consciousness or pain to the pet.

Typical of the surgeries being performed on a regular basis in major metropolitan hospitals in Magic Valley is the procedure used in removing a kidney patient.

The kidney is removed after the patient is put to sleep or under a general anesthetic. The patient is then placed in a position where the kidney is held in place by a clamp. The kidney is then removed and the patient is placed in a position where the kidney is held in place by a clamp.

The procedure is similar to that used in humans.

"Ginger," a Sheltie owned by Tom Nelson, Twin Falls, Dr. Strobel and his veterinarian technician assistant, Jean Smith, scrubbed, donned sterilized surgical gowns, caps and masks, identical to those used by the surgical staff of a regular hospital.

The surgical staff worked under a surgical spotlight in a sterile surgery room. Before going into the surgery department of the animal hospital, the dog was administered a temporary shot which put her to sleep. She was then placed on a gas-emitting machine for constant anesthesia during the surgery. This was operated by a second assistant, Melody Brown.

The dog was covered with sterile surgical cloths leaving only the shaved leg and the animal's face exposed.

The operation required about an hour. First an incision was cut along the front of the leg. The kneecap was moved to the side to expose the bone beneath the cap. The groove was then cut deeper to hold the cap. With the patella back in place, inside and outside suturing was completed, and the dog was placed in recovery. Within a few minutes the patient was beginning to respond.

Dr. Strobel said the dog would automatically carry the leg until it healed sufficiently. The animal usually recovers in a week. This is a common ailment for many breeds of dogs, he said, and frequently affects both legs.

When both legs are involved, he said, the world first knew it was a tear, and then knew with the second surgery, he said.

Dr. Strobel said most of the intricate surgeries he performs are not for expense, offering to show dogs for nothing but family pets. Offering to perform the surgery of pets he said, are some men more willing that owners of expensive purchased animals to pay for surgery.

At one time, said veterinarians have the animal under a bag of anesthetic gas, which is compared to human medical cases. When the surgeries are finished, the animal is held in the same position as the human patient.

"It just isn't logical to charge the same fees," says Dr. Donnelly, "even though some of our surgeries may be more difficult. When you are operating on a 200-pound man compared to a 10-pound poodle with a leg bone of only a few inches, there is more of a challenge," he said.

Speaking of unusual requests from pet owners, Dr. Strobel said, "If you want your dog to be the first on your block with a gold inlay, it can be done. If your dog or cat loses an eye in a fight with the pet next door, a glass eye can be provided for appearance only, of course."

Both Dr. Jackson and Dr. Donnelly say it is not uncommon to remove an organ because of injury or illness. Often the spleen, one kidney or even one lung can be removed and the animal continue a fairly normal life.

Veterinarians must also deal with thyroid problems, anemia, cancer and very frequently leukemia. Blood transfusions are given when needed and blood tests the treatments are made in the same laboratories as those providing human-based tests.

Dr. Mancoske said the cost of medical care is just part of the expense to pet owners these days.

"Having a pet is becoming a luxury. Look at the increased cost of cat and dog food," he said.

Dr. Mancoske said he has noticed a trend in the past few years back to smaller pets. A few years ago the Dalmatian, St. Bernard and German Shepherd were among the most popular dogs. Now, he said, his own customers are going back to small dogs with smaller appetites.

Dr. Jackson said he treats the overpopulation problem of animals in that as some would have you believe, he said, neutering and spaying of pets is becoming more and more popular.

Dr. Mancoske said the day is not far off when many surgeries for pets will be treated available and easy to do.

'Rev.' wants no reverence

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.
DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter from one who signed himself "Reverend L.W. Van Dellen," you replied, "Dear Reverend Van Dellen."
Abby, "Reverend" is not a title like "Doctor" or "Rabbi" or "Father." It is an adjective descriptive of character—not an office.
The World Almanac puts it this way: "A clergyman should never be referred to as 'this Reverend,' or addressed as 'Reverend Blank.'"
"Reverend" should be used only as "Honorable" is used. It is "The Reverend Mr. Blank," or "The Reverend Dr. Blank," but never "Reverend Blank."
Please, Abby, never address a clergyman as "Reverend Anybody." It's simply not done.

YOUR FAITHFUL FAN IN L.A.

DEAR FAITHFUL: The whacks for me with a stack of "Presbyterian Outlooks," from whence came this appropriate jingle:

"There is a certain fellow
Who makes me want to burst,
He never fails to hail me with,
'Hello, Reverend Hurst!'
If two things make me mad,
This one is the first,
When some guy introduces me with,

"This is Reverend Hurst."
As just a common 'Mister'
I'd acknowledge him to hurt;
But I would like to punch the man
Who calls me 'Reverend Hurst.'"

DEAR ABBY: I work in a mail order house, and would you believe that about 20 percent of the people who place an order send us cash—and forget to send their names and addresses?

We have no idea who they are or where they live. We could just cry. All we can do is wait until they write again, complaining that they have not received their order, then we can fill it.

Please print this. It may help.

Health

Obstructed leg artery causes concern

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
I am a male, 54, and have been told that I have an obstruction in my femoral artery. I just had a thorough physical in the hospital. My physical condition is good. I had a checkup initially because of back pain and pain in my hip and leg when walking.
My doctor said I may need an operation for the obstruction in the artery. First he said I should stop smoking for three months and he would check me again. He said no doctor would operate on me because of my heavy smoking.
I have stopped smoking. My question is, "How much risk is involved in this type of operation and was he on the level about not smoking?" I am going to retire at 60 and there will not be any medical bills any more. Would it be better to have the take care of as soon as possible?

Dear Reader:
First, from the economical, reasonable, I would hope that you would be able to have your medical problems settled while you have medical insurance.

Such procedures are usually expensive, not because of the doctor's bills so much, but because of the hospital costs, the operating room costs and all the other things which seem to run up the cost of medical bills to astronomical levels these days.

Smoking can be an important factor in obstruction of the arteries to the legs and I wholeheartedly approve of your doctor's insistence that you stop. It might also relieve some of the problems that you have as far as circulation to the leg is concerned.

I also think you should try to limit your fat and cholesterol in your diet to stop the formation of fatty cholesterol deposits if at all possible. For that reason, I am sending you the Health Letter number 11, "Low-Fat Living" (Adherence).

Other readers who want this issue can send 30 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to the care of the newspaper, P.O. Box 1241, Health City Station, New York, N.Y. 10013.

The past that you've had in your hip and leg when walking was probably from inadequate circulation to that area. If you have a localized obstruction in the artery, a bypass operation is often helpful.

The surgeon puts in a new synthetic tubing that opens above the obstruction and empties below the obstruction. This detours the blood around the obstructed area. In this way, circulation is improved to the hip and leg area.

Obviously, for such an operation to be successful you have to have a localized obstruction. In other words, you need to detour below the obstruction. If the artery is obstructed all the way down to the foot, there is not much opportunity to put in a detour graft.

Witch doctors' power is a matter of logic, which is only natural

Exceedingly clever, the African witch doctor. Traditionally, his ilk has been called into tribal criminal cases. Say six men are suspects. No evidence definitely proves any one guilty. The witch doctor directs each to eat a handful of grain. He then points to the guilty man and utters the appropriate condemnation. Time and again, subsequent proof turns up to show the witch doctor was right. How did he know? The guilty man was the more scared. That blocked the free flow of saliva. He had the most difficulty swallowing.

Q. "Why is the Rotary Club so called?"

Car rental agency just wants to do good job

Jean G. Barrier is the protagonist in car rental battle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jean G. Barrier, a Frenchman who resembles the actor Jean Gabin, is the protagonist in a David and Goliath battle in the car rental industry.

Silver-haired and heavy-set with dark eyes sparkling, Barrier did not appear to be acting when he told a reporter he thoroughly enjoys his role as David with his Ajax rent-a-car firm battling for a share of the market against the conglomerate-owned Hertz, Avis, National and Budget.

He picked the name Ajax for his little company because it's easy to remember and because of its prime alphabetical positioning. The name carries a connotation of strength and courage from the original Greek warrior Ajax and Barrier has plenty of both.

Barrier served as a paratrooper with the French army in Vietnam and migrated later from France to Canada with just $250 in his wallet.

He peddled pots and pans on the streets of Montreal, got into the pharmaceutical business and came to southern California to learn the car rental business in 1964. He worked for others until 1969 when he started the Gibraltar car-leasing company and spun off Ajax as an independent firm in 1973.

Ajax claims rates from 40 to 49 percent lower than other companies. Barrier concedes the larger companies have more resources but thinks they lose something in personal service because of their remote ownership. Hertz is owned by RCA, Avis by Norton Simon, National by Household Finance, and Budget by Transamerica.

Barrier has placed advertisements claiming a daily rate 49 percent lower than that of Hertz on a full-size car. Ajax offered a Buick Regal at $19.90 a day with no mileage charge up to 100 miles. A comparable Hertz rate would be $38.95 a day, the ads stated.

Barrier was asked if he felt he could hurt Hertz?

"I don't think we hurt them a bit," he smiled. "They don't care. You must realize that Hertz dominates the industry. It is probably twice as big as Avis, No. 2."

He laughed when asked to comment on the sniping in ads by companies in the car rental business, particularly Avis' slogan, "We're No. 2, we try harder."

With a Gallic shrug of the shoulders, he said:

"If you're the dog, you don't mention the flea. If you're the flea, you mention the dog."

Barrier said Ajax rates are made possible because he has a lower overhead than the larger companies. For example, he does not have a location at Los Angeles International Airport but has 200 cars close by. Patrons are shuttled by bus and station wagon.

"It costs us about $25,000 a year in overhead at LAX," he said. "It costs Hertz and Avis $400,000. What's more even after you get a Hertz car, you have to ride a bus to pick it up. So where's the big saving in time?"

Discount is his business and he noted that the airlines are running near capacity after offering 40 percent discounts on fares.

His argument to prospective car renters is, "Why have supersaver fare in the air and pay premium when you land?"

Barrier has seen Ajax grow steadily with franchises and licensed dealers. Gross income was only three-quarters of a million in 1974, by 1977 it was $23 million. The projected volume for 1978 is $38 million and for 1979, $55 million.

"We are in the top 10 car rental agencies now," said Barrier. "My personal goal is to get us into the top five among discount companies. Our growth proves obviously there was a need for another discount company. Otherwise, we wouldn't be here."

He said, "Word of mouth is our best advertising," but he does not neglect the printed page. His ads now feature actors Lloyd Bridges and Robert Stack in prestige endorsements.

"Just like No. 2 tries harder," were the new kid on the block and we want to make an impression," he said.

"I know a lot of our employees by name. How could the president of Hertz? It's too big. We have franchises — owner-operators — and they take more of an interest in the business."

Marathon legislative session predicted

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The 45th Idaho Legislature hasn't yet begun to meet. But lawmakers already are predicting the session could be a marathon, perhaps nearing the record 97 day legislative session of 1890.

The 1890 marathon occurred during Idaho's first year of statehood. Two legislators, Rupert Rep. Steve Antone and Rep. Phil Batt of Wilder, Idaho's Lieutenant Governor-elect, predict the coming legislative session will last 80 days and Rep. Dan Kelly of Mountain Homes is predicting a 90-day session.

A constitutional limit in 1890 placed a 60-day ceiling on bi-annual sessions. That limit lasted until the 1960s, when sessions began running 5 to 10 days past that basic limit.

In 1969, legislatures began meeting annually and since that date, legislatures have averaged 71 days each.

While legislators are disagreeing on the number of days they will remain sequestered in the statehouse, they're in unanimous agreement on the reason for the extra days: passage of the budget-busting 1 percent initiative.

Interviews with several Idaho lawmakers Monday indicated there are several likely methods by which the 1 percent initiative could be implemented: but none of the implementation measures will be passed overnight.

"I've heard talk of making it effective the first day of 1979 and the first day of 1980," said Sen. Phil Batt, R-Wilder, who will in January give up his Senate pro tem job for the post of Lieutenant Governor. Some persons, Batt added, have mentioned the possibility of moving the enactment date back to Jan. 1, 1981.

"I think we should be cautious in implementing the initiative," Batt, a 12-year legislative veteran said. Not ing the initiative itself makes Oct. 1, 1979 as the date the new law would go on the books, Batt suggested moving that enactment date back to Jan. 1, 1980.

"I think we can move it back three months," Batt said. "That will give us some time and an interim committee can deal with it carefully." But Batt said he doubted legislators would agree to postpone the enactment date any longer than a few months. "I think we'd be violating the intent of the initiative if we do that," he said.

Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, also predicted the initiative would produce a long session and probably not be implemented fully until 1980.

"There are too many ramifications to do all this year," Antone said.

Chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, Antone said this year's legislature would be "complicated but harmonious."

But he warned legislators should expect many hours spent in study of the initiative. "It overrides so many areas of the code, we just have to work with it carefully," he said.

Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, said it was likely legislators would choose to enact the initiative "in gradual stages, with part of it becoming law this year and part next year." Kelly said lawmakers will be less concerned with when the measure should be enacted than they will be with the impact of what it is they are enacting. "I think we are all confused about what this will do," Kelly said. "Until we're sure we know we'll hesitate before moving on it."

Noting legislators will have "many concerns other than the 1 percent," Kelly predicted the session could stretch to 90 days.

Twin Falls plant fails miserably

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — After its best month ever in September, the Twin Falls waste water treatment plant failed to comply with federal pollution standards for most of October.

More disheartening for city officials was the now clear suggestion that the plant cannot function as it originally was designed.

For the first nine days of the month, the plant was able to meet the Environmental Protection Agency's discharge pollution standards but only by bypassing some of the solid waste treatment machinery at the plant.

The city trucked sludge from the plant to a dump site out of town.

When plant personnel attempted to operate the facility as it was originally designed to function, the multi-million dollar system could not meet EPA standards.

The plant failed to meet EPA discharge standards for the last 20 days of the month, according to plant performance statistics obtained from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

In early November, when the plant was returned to the operating mode which had been successful in September, plant discharge again were brought into compliance with EPA standards, according to city engineer Gary Young.

Now, the plant's discouraging October performance appears to reinforce information released by James M. Montgomery, Consulting Engineers at a meeting in Boise more than two weeks ago that the sewage treatment plant is unable to handle the amount of waste it was originally designed to treat.

At the Boise meeting, Montgomery Engineers said the Twin Falls city council could react as much as $4.2 million to expand the Twin Falls sewage plant to enable it to handle the amount of waste it was originally designed to treat.

When the plant was completed in 1968, the two peak days of a total of 30 million, it was supposed to handle an average flow from Twin Falls and surrounding communities plus some industrial waste for the next 20 years.

Montgomery Engineers added that the plant is presently operating at or near this maximum capacity.

And though the plant is presently meeting EPA standards, it is not at all in a straight line as to which things are done in the plant, the two cases of an environmentalist.

Swindler sentenced to federal prison

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY — An elusive swindler who enticed numerous Magic Valley business people into dubious financial associations, was sentenced Monday to two years in federal prison in Utah.

After being apprehended in September by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, Joseph Lebdew Royale was convicted Nov. 10 of lying to a federally insured bank when applying for a loan. U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins, in Salt Lake City, sentenced Royale Monday to two years in federal prison without probation.

used by Halley residents Tod and Marilyn Triple in a multi-million dollar lawsuit, charging the elusive mortgage broker and several others swindled them in a white-collar fraud scheme.

The Triples sought Royale's help to find financing for a Hitch Rack Motel in Halley.

Royale never did find the financing for the Triples but the Halley couple claimed he and several other mortgage brokerage firms helped them fall into financial ruin.

The couple gave up their motel in Halley Oct. 15 because of debts allegedly incurred during their association with Royale.

The couple pursuing a $2.3 million damages lawsuit against Royale and others. Tod Triple said he and his wife currently face bankruptcy.

"I am glad that he isn't going to hurt somebody else now," Triple remarked Monday. "I'm already there. I can't change my situation now. I just have to do the best I can."

Ketchum attorney Lee Schender, who was representing the Triples in their lawsuit, said litigation can continue against Royale, even though he is in prison.

Fran Carlson and L.A. Stevens, both Halley business people, are two other Magic Valley residents who encountered Royale.

Carlson, owner of a small secretarial service in Halley, said Royale owes her money for secretarial work she performed for him.

Stevens, a mortgage broker, charged Royale threatened to kill him when he warned Royale not to interfere with his clients.

Carbickino said Royale could be prosecuted for other proven crimes the FBI might turn up in its investigation.

Even though Royale now is locked up in federal prison in Salt Lake City, FBI agents say federal investigations will continue into his dubious business activities in Idaho, Utah, Texas, and New Jersey.

FBI agent, Frank Carbickino of Twin Falls said Monday the bureau will continue looking into possible fraud and extortion violations committed by Royale.

Reportedly a convicted bank robber and forger, Royale introduced himself earlier this year into business circles throughout the Magic Valley.

He said he was a mortgage broker and offered for a fee to find bank financing for large construction projects.

Businessmen organize to fight air cutbacks

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley businessmen are organizing to fight through the legislature the proposed cutbacks in federal air traffic control.

Representatives from the Magic Valley Business Association will meet today to discuss the proposed cutbacks.

Swine producers to meet in Burley

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer
BURLEY — Nitrites in processed meats are here to stay — and they should be, according to a group of specialists who will address the Idaho Swine Producers convention in Burley Dec. 1 and 2.

Dr. John Jacobs, of the University of Idaho, will explain to swine producers at the convention how reformed pork products are made. Jacobs and other animal experts will address the two-day convention which opens for registration Friday at 10 a.m. at the Ponderosa Inn near the I-80 interchange in Burley.

"My talk will really be an educational type thing," Jacobs said from his office in Moscow. "Most producers don't really know what happens with products and how they are made."

Jacobs explained reformed pork products are made from pork shoulders from which fat and bone has been removed. Processed meat products must include legal amounts of sodium nitrite to prevent formation of toxins by botulism organisms.

"Nitrites are pretty cut and dried. The government is correct in requiring their use," Jacobs said. "We have to have a certain amount of them in parts per million in our products because of botulism."

He added reformed pork products are often more economical because the bone and fat has been removed. Consumers who purchase a picnic ham often pay for bone and fat which amounts to a third of the weight of their ham.

Legislators sit and listen to questions from Charlie Hatch of Twin Falls auto dealers

1% dominates talks with legislators

TWIN FALLS — State legislators Monday listened all day to voter worries about implementation of the 1 percent initiative.

At a "Meet Your Legislator" session sponsored by the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, special interest groups took 30 minutes each to air their concerns about the coming legislative session.

Approximately 35 persons met with the legislators during four hours of meetings, chamber representatives said, and most of the discussions centered on taxation and the 1 percent initiative.

According to the legislators, voters asked numerous questions about the 1 percent initiative and also raised questions about local improvement districts, education, recycling, and taxes.

The overriding concern at the meeting was the 1 percent initiative and its effects.

Rep. Brackett suggested governmental groups immediately revise all potentially affected budgets.

The legislators agreed the Senate and the House must form a joint committee, as they did for last year's State Water Plan, and put together an implementation plan for the 1 percent initiative before it goes before the legislature for a full debate and vote.

Water interests expressed the need of additional legislation to further implement the State Water Plan.

Additional minimum flows were requested. Thirteen minimum flow requests have been presented to the Water Resources Board.

Also, proposals were made to establish a water supply bank and to allow change of the nature of the use of water, such as for hydroelectric power or irrigation.

Some expressed concern over canal breaks and the possibility of a larger break occurring close to town.

The Twin Falls Futures, a downtown group, sought legislation to arrange for funding of additional parking.

Auto and Recreational Vehicle Dealers discussed the bonding of dealers and the difficulties of survival for a small dealership. They charged that too much legislation passed favors big business in the auto industry.

According to Brackett, the local improvement district plan took a "back burner" to the 1 percent initiative issue.

Dick Burwell, a Coors distributor, proposed to coordinate a recycling plan in the Twin Falls area. The plan would be similar to one in Arizona, called BIRP, which is a successful and self-sufficient program recycling all types of litter.

Burwell's proposition was well-received by the legislators.

Two men charged with rustling

TWIN FALLS — Two men were arrested on a charge of cattle rustling in Twin Falls Saturday.

According to sheriff's deputies, the two were picked up for questioning Saturday afternoon after the Elko (Nev.) County Sheriff's Office sent a message that two men were wanted for butchering two cows south of Jackpot Saturday morning.

The two men charged with grand larceny were identified as Findley Paul Genn, 32, of Kirkland, Wash., and Michael Terrance McCurdy, 31, of 268 Filer.

They were picked up at McCurdy's home about 3:30 p.m. Saturday by city and county law enforcement officers and arrested at the sheriff's office about 8 p.m.

Each man posted a $3,000 bond and must appear before Elko County authorities on the cattle rustling charge.

Genn also was arrested by Twin Falls police on a charge of failure to appear that was discovered when they checked his background.

Land board urged to snatch up top acreage

BOISE (UPI) — Sidestepping a suggestion it recommend a lawsuit, the Legislative Lieu Lands Committee merely urged today that the Idaho Land Board rapidly proceed to obtain the best possible lands for the state.

House Majority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said the Land Board was aware of the problems in obtaining federal lands owed the state and it was the board's responsibility to make the selections.

Therefore, he suggestion, the committee's recommendations to the board is that "as rapidly as possible it get the most valuable land possible for the State of Idaho."

The Idaho Land Board meets in Boise Tuesday to consider lieu land selections.

Deputy Attorney General Guy Hurlbutt, representing the state Department of Land, suggested to the Lieu Land Committee in light of recent decision in a Utah litigation against the Bureau of Land Management, Idaho file a lawsuit in federal court so the state would not lose potential revenue.

The U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in favor of Utah, saying the federal government had a duty to turn over lieu lands selected by states and that upon application for these lands equitable title should be entered on the date of application.

Hurlbutt said the California State Land Commission had informed Idaho of a possible appeal of the 10th Circuit Court decision to the U.S. Supreme Court so that the ruling would apply to the entire country and not just states under jurisdiction of the appeals court.

The reasoning behind an appeal, he said, was that the Secretary of Interior decision the ruling in the Utah case could apply only in the 10th Circuit Court area and not to states outside that jurisdiction.

Hurlbutt said Idaho should be entitled to revenue from lands it files on from the date of application.

"A lawsuit in federal court would protect our rights," Hurlbutt said.

But House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, and Senate Minority Leader Cy Chase, D-St. Maries, argued against a lawsuit and suggested that the board get on with its selections.

"I think we should get our lands signed over and then litigate the revenue matter," Miss McDermott said.

"Let's quit gibbling around," Chase said. "It's time to move and quit messing around."

Chase said it was time the Land Board makes up its mind and proceeds with the state's selections.

Prior to the 10th Circuit Court ruling, the board had reached an agreement with the BLM over the selection of some 27,000 acres of land, but withheld completion of the agreement because it felt it could obtain better lands in light of the appeal's decision.

It was the prior meeting of the Lieu Land Committee, and Chase suggested the next Legislature should not reappoint it.

He said the voters want the Legislature to start cutting back and the end of this committee was a good start.

"There's not question is has done a good job, but it's served its purpose. Let it die out and not start it up again." Little said he felt the committee had achieved considerable for the state.

"For the money spent, the time and effort, it has achieved a great deal," Little said.

Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, a member of the Land Board, commended the committee for an excellent job.

"We wouldn't have been in the position we are today without the function of the committee," he said.

"The committee did commendable work. It's been very valuable to the state."

Church urges students to ask for jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen Frank Church Monday advised Idaho students seeking jobs with the federal government this summer to apply as soon as possible.

"Competition is keen for these jobs because there are many more applicants than jobs available," Church said.

Summer jobs with the federal government are filled by competitive examination. Students who submit applications by Dec. 15 will be tested in January. Students who submit applications after Dec. 15 but no later than Jan. 17 will be tested in February.

If all cases applications to take the competitive examination must be submitted by Jan. 17, Church said. "Competition for the jobs is stiff. There will be less than 10,000 jobs available in federal agencies next summer but if your experience leads from more than 10,000 applicants will be received."

Applications are available at federal job information centers and change placement offices. The U.S. Service Commission or the service director is located at 200 House Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20541.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ailing an increase in occupational accidents, Idaho Gov. George Hansen renewed today his campaign to slash the occupational safety and health administration.

The charged the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics findings showing a dramatic increase in occupational deaths and injuries. Hansen said OSHA is the government's most dangerous agency and that occupational agencies and should be abolished.

After seven years of operation, Hansen said, OSHA has done nothing to prevent workers' deaths and injuries. He said he would like to see the federal health and safety agency abolished.

The state Republican said he would like to see the state's occupational safety and health commission abolished. He said he would like to see the state's occupational safety and health commission abolished.

Heisman Trophy

Oklahoma's Sims the favorite

NEW YORK (UPI) — Billy Sims of Oklahoma, the nation's leading rusher, is expected to win college football's most coveted prize — the Heisman Trophy — today when the Downtown Athletic Club presents its annual award to the "outstanding" player in the country.

Although only a junior, Sims has electrified fans with dazzling runs this season and has established the Big Eight Conference's single season rushing mark with 1,762 yards. He leads the nation in yards per game (180.2), scoring (20 touchdowns) and yards per carry (7.6).

"From the film that I have seen and what the pro scouts tell me, I feel sure Sims is the best back in America," says Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer. "We've never had anyone with his combination of speed and power."

If Sims wins the Heisman, he will become only the sixth junior in the 44-year history of the award to achieve college football's highest individual accolade. He also would become the third Oklahoma player to win the trophy, joining Billy Vessels (1952) and Steve Owens (1969).

Sims' stiffest competition is likely to come from running back Charles White of Southern California, quarterback Rick Leach of Michigan and quarterback Chuck Fusina of Penn State.

Running backs Charles Alexander of Louisiana State and Ted Brown of North Carolina State and quarterback Jack Thompson of Washington State also should do well in the voting, which is conducted among more than 1,000 sports writers and sportscasters from across the nation.

White's credentials are almost as good as Sims. Also a junior, White has rushed for 1,608 yards and scored 12 touchdowns. He also is the all-time rushing leader in the Pacific Ten with 1,944 yards.

Included in White's statistics was a standout 200-yard effort against Notre Dame on national television Saturday. However, that game isn't likely to help White much since most of the votes have already been tallied.

"I honestly believe he's the favorite," says White's coach, John Robinson. "I think he's just playing so well and he's had his best games in the biggest games. He's been on national television and he's had a story in Sports Illustrated."

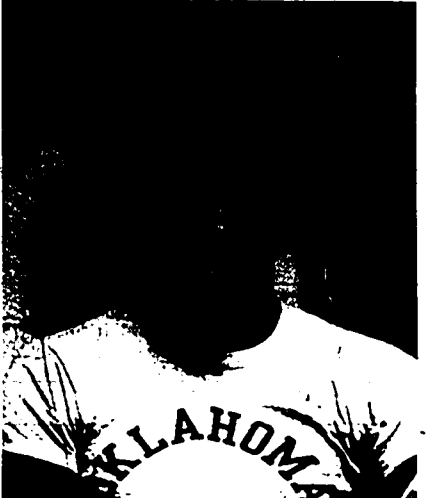

The only thing that might be against Charlie is that I think people in other parts of the country identify more with the best player in their area than the people do in the West."

Fusina and Leach will be judged more for their leadership abilities than for straight statistics. Fusina's name can't be found among the top 15 in passing, yet under his guidance at quarterback Penn State has won 22 of 23 games over the last two seasons.

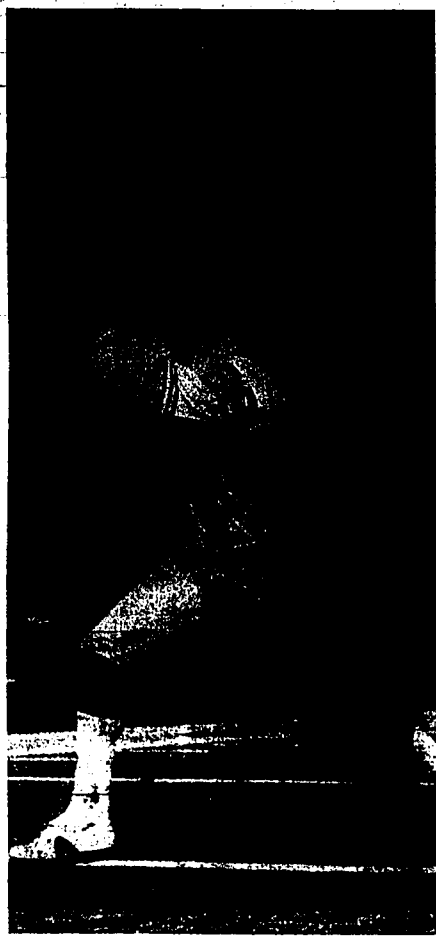

Leach's name doesn't appear among the top 25 passers, yet no player in NCAA history has accounted for more touchdowns (81) running and passing than the Michigan quarterback. With Leach at the helm for the past four seasons, the Wolverines have posted a 38-4-2 record.

He is the best football player in the United States of America," Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler says of Leach. "If he doesn't win the Heisman Trophy, I will be much surprised. He is the greatest football player I have ever been associated with."

Alexander, Brown and Thompson figure to do well in the voting in their regions. Alexander, though injured part of the season, is the SEC's all-time leading rusher. Brown holds all of North Carolina State's rushing records and Thompson is one of college football's all-time leading passers.

Billy Sims ... will he win?

Steelers' Lynn Swann catches 23-yard pass for touchdown

Steelers up record by beating 49'ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw threw three touchdown passes, two to Lynn Swann and another to John Stallworth, to end Pittsburgh's scoring drought and give the Steelers a 24-7 victory over the San Francisco 49ers Monday night.

The win was the Steelers' 11th in 11 starts and gave them a two game lead over Houston in the APW Central Division with three games to go.

Bradshaw, who now holds the Pittsburgh record for TD passes in a season with 22, hooked up with Swann on 23 and 25 yard passes in the first half and capped the scoring in the final quarter with an 11 yard strike to Stallworth.

Steve Largent III returned a blocked punt for the Steelers' first possession of the game with a 60 yard punt for 42 yards.

The Steelers went on to the record while the San Francisco 49ers and Houston Oilers had caught up to Pittsburgh for 24 points in the second half. Swann caught two touchdowns and John Stallworth had one.

But Bradshaw quickly regained control in the first half when he completed

10-of-14 passes for 145 yards. San Francisco got its only points in the third period on a 3-yard pass by Paul Horfer after the 49ers recovered Rocky Bleier's fumble on the 5-yard line. It took four snafus by Horfer to get the ball into the endzone.

The Steelers, with Franco Harris sitting out most of the second period and all of the second half with a pinched nerve in his left arm, had trouble moving during the final two periods until the scoring drive.

In their first six possessions in the third and fourth quarters, the Steelers hunched the ball away three times and punned the same number of times before they scored on the Bradshaw-Stallworth 77 pass.

San Francisco had several scoring opportunities, but were unable to capitalize. They reached the 10 and 11 in the first half and the 21 twice and the 34 in the second half but got nothing. The 49ers were stopped by three interceptions, a missed field goal and a big loss on the line early in the second half.

Harris, who missed the game with a 146 yards rushing performance, led the Steelers to victory.

Pedroza retains his crown in featherweight division

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Hard-punching Panamanian Ernesto Pedroza landed off an evasive attack to challenger Enrique Nolas to retain his World Boxing Association featherweight crown by unanimous decision Monday night.

Pedroza, 23, was never in any real trouble as he outboxed his 26-year-old Puerto Rican challenger through the seven rounds.

The Panamanian took advantage of his greater height and reach to control the challenge. He did some damage in the ninth and 10th rounds. He was managing to land some blows in Pedroza's head and jaw with the clean punch quality resulting in both knockouts.

Ernesto Nolas, 26, had two good rounds the first 10-14 Judge Marvin Tucker, James J. Frazier and Robert 190-191 and Bernard Goetzman, Father of Puerto Rico had it 10-10. The United Press International card showed 10-10 for Pedroza.

It was Pedroza's second successful defense since he took the crown last April from Carlos Batista of Spain in the United States. The champion's record moved to 10-0-1 including knockouts.

Nolas' record stands at 27-1 following the loss to Pedroza. He had a challenge and fight scheduled for the next few months.

Ernesto Nolas is a Panamanian boxer who has fought in the United States and Puerto Rico. He is a former world champion in the featherweight division.

SIC decision in the best interests of the league

TWIN FALLS — There appears to be considerable misunderstanding on one crucial point: the Southern Idaho Conference did not vote when it abandoned football as a state sport.

There has been a lot of talk about what the school board on Sun Day has done that has caused the confusion. It is the fact that the school board has decided to remain active in the sport. It is the fact that the school board has decided to remain active in the sport.

The second point that needs clarification is the response of other A-1 schools not in the SIC. They seem to be taking the threat of the A-1 proposal that the state board members is a possibility to refuse.

What the threat of the A-1 proposal is that the school board is forced into the situation. But the fact is that the school board is not forced into the situation. Therefore, if what we hear is true the school board will not under any circumstances join the A-1 proposal. It is no problem here as it is Blackfoot, Caldwell, Mountain Home, the Northern School, etc. are already declining to join.

The plan simply urges the system to be adapted as a concept. The SIC schools will remain as they are. Those who do not wish to join the A-1 proposal will be left out of the A-1 proposal. Those who do not wish to join the A-1 proposal will be left out of the A-1 proposal.

with a great year. There is still a lot of work to be done in the area of membership and fundraising. The number of people who are members of the league is still very low.

The next thing that has to be done is to get the school board members to agree to the proposal. The school board members are the ones who have to make the decision. They are the ones who have to make the decision.

This is the only way that the school board members can be convinced. They are the ones who have to make the decision. They are the ones who have to make the decision.

U.S. team opens with tennis win

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Billie Jean King, hinting once again she might retire from major singles competition following this tournament, helped the powerful United States crush South Korea 3-0 Monday for the most impressive win in the opening round of the $130,000 Federation Cup.

King, a six-time Wimbledon champion, has legs scarred from knee and cartilage operations and said she was "sick and tired of continued surgery" in trying to get fit enough for international meets.

The 35-year-old American was in good form Monday, though, when she teamed with Chris Evert to beat the Korean tandem of Choi Kyung-mie and Chaen Jong, 6-1, 6-0, in doubles. Evert had earlier beaten Hahn Yoon-ja, 6-1, 6-0, in the second singles match after Tracy Austin, the pigtailed student from Rolling Hills, Calif., made a magnificent debut in the team competition with a lopsided 6-0, 6-0 win over Choi Kyung-mie.

The top seeded U.S. team lost only two games in six sets, winning the three matches in 135 minutes. Argentina dumped Denmark 2-1, Indonesia beat the Philippines 2-1 and Great Britain subdued Spain 2-0 and was leading in the third set of the doubles when bad light and rain stopped play.

The first Canadian-New Zealand singles was tied at one set all and will be resumed Tuesday.

AAU awards Texas 1980 diving trials

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — The AAU Monday awarded the 1980 Olympic swimming and diving trials to the University of Texas and the Olympic weightlifting championships to the city of Philadelphia.

Action was taken at the AAU's 81st annual convention. The weightlifting trials will double as the national championship in 1980 and will be held at the Spectrum. The AAU also said the 1979 weightlifting national championships will be held at the Lee World facility in Totowa, N.J., that the 1979 national junior weightlifting meet would be held in Chicago and that the 1979 national junior Olympic weightlifting meet would be held in Topeka, Kan.

Jim Schmitt of San Francisco and Dick Smith of York, Pa., were named as the Olympic and Pan American weightlifting coach and trainer.

The Olympic diving trials were awarded to the University of Texas on condition that the school can clear the facility for dates in June of 1980. Longhorn athletic director James Royal made the presentation to the Olympic swimming committee. The committee also had received bids from Long Beach, California State and the U.S. Olympic National Center in GaitHER, Ark.

The Texas Olympic team never headed the AAU Junior Diving National in 1977 and the AAU Junior course return national in 1977.

There was a possibility however that Texas may have lost the trial. Depending on scheduling there is the possibility of a conflict with when the two meets committee meetings Tuesday morning were expected to resolve the situation.

Another announcement by the swimming committee said George Hunter of the University of Texas, San Antonio, is the new national head coach of the event.

Sliker leads Brunswick Open

GLENDALE HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — Gil Sliker of Washington, D.C., a four-time winner after five years in the Professional Bowlers' Association tour, had a pin count of 1,777 in the opening eight games Monday to take the nearly final round lead in the $125,000 Brunswick World Open.

Sliker, 39, failed to average 200 for his first three games but then rolled nothing but 200s, closing out with 200 and 230 to grab a six-pin lead.

George Fagnano, Channahon, Ill., had the runner-up spot with a high game of 273 in a 70-series

BYU team to beat in WAC

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of college basketball previews, sectioning the upcoming season by geographical sections. Today: The Rockies.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The University of Utah hosts the 1979 NCAA championships, and Ute coach Jerry Pimm has an interesting scenario for his team.

"Pimm, in his fifth year, figures Brigham Young is the team to beat for this year's Western Athletic Conference title. So that means Utah must finish second in the WAC again to earn the league's runner-up berth in the NCAA tournament."

The Rockies

The Utes would then be an at-large team, possibly in the Midwest Regionals again, and may get a third chance to meet BYU in the NCAA finals.

"It's tough enough to get to the NCAA first round once," says Pimm. "We've done it the last two seasons, but we haven't won that second game. Now we'd like a third chance."

The Utes won the WAC title in 1976 and beat St. John's in the NCAA West opening round before losing to Nevada-Las Vegas in the semi-finals. And last year they were second in the WAC. But after beating Missouri in the Midwest Regionals, they lost in the semis again, this time to Notre Dame.

The WAC's coaches picked BYU to win the conference's 1979 title, and said Utah should finish runner-up again.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see BYU win the WAC," said Pimm. "Potentially, they're the best team in the Rockies. They have the talent, but they're young and I've seen many young teams fold in final weeks' pressure."

Based on the strengths of returning starters, and the potential of new players, BYU and Texas-El Paso should be solid this year. The Cougars return five starters, and UTEP four. Utah and San Diego State have three starters back, and defending champion New Mexico two.

Weber State, with all six starters — that's right, six — back, should easily win another Big Sky Conference title. And the Wildcats could make it three teams for the state of Utah in the NCAA tournament. And Nevada-Las Vegas will easily be the top independent now that Utah State has joined the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

BYU is led by sophomore guard Danny Ainge, the top returning scorer in the WAC. Pimm says, "Ainge could be the most prolific career scorer in WAC history, if he wasn't such a terrific team player."

Ainge set a single-season scoring record at BYU in his freshman year with 632 points for a 21.1 point per game average. Also back are 6-foot-10 center Alan Taylor who averaged 14.4 points, and forwards Keith Rice and Glen Roberts.

Rumla started with Ainge last year, averaging 11.3 points per game, while Baliff was the No. 3 guard. And Craig is back from a Mormon Church mission. In 1976 he averaged 8.5 points per game from the guardline.

But Arnold says Rice — who averaged 13.3 points per game — and Roberts "are our No. 3 and No. 4 forwards right now." He said freshmen Devin Durrant and Fred Roberts — Glen's 6-foot-10 younger brother — "have pushed the two veterans out." And Arnold said 6-foot-8 freshman Steve Trumbo may be the No. 3 forward.

"We have more experience, size and shooting ability now," Arnold says. "But youth may be a problem this year. Frankly I can't predict how we'll do, but this is one of the best teams we've had at BYU in recent years."

Utah also returns a super sophomore in 6-foot-7 forward Danny Vranes. Vranes averaged 12 points per game last year. He also had seven rebounds per game and led the Utes in blocked shots.

The Utes lost forward Jeff Jenkins and center Buster Matheny, but they return 6-foot-5 guard Earl Williams; sometime starter Greg Deane at forward, and 6-foot-9 center Tom Chambers.

Jerry Tarkanian's Nevada-Las Vegas Rebels have 7-foot center Brett Vroman, a transfer from UCLA, plus guards Tony Smith and Ray Williams, and forward Earl Evans.

Weber State returns four starters who averaged double-figure scoring last year — guard Bruce Collins (18.8), forward Dave Johnson (13.2), guard Ben Howland (11.5) and center Richard Smith (10.1). Also back are forward Kurt More and guard Mark Mattos. Mattos was a parttime starter last year due to injuries.

Texas-El Paso coach Don Haskins returns Tony Burns and Roshern Amie at forwards, center Anthony Burns and guard Earl Fuller. Haskins also has two highly-recruited freshmen in center Terry White and guard Mike McDuffen.

San Diego State, in its first year in the WAC, is expected to be an immediate challenger for the league title on the play of forward Kim Goetz, guard Mike Dodd and 6-foot-11 center Steve Malovic. Goetz averaged 17 points per game last year, while Dodd hit 14 and Malovic 13. And Malovic led the Aztecs in rebounding with 7.8 per game.

McDowell top player

BOISE (UPI) — Montana State's Arnold McDowell has earned the Big Sky Conference's first player-of-the-week honor of the 1978-79 basketball season. It was announced Monday.

The 6-7, 185-pound junior forward sank 23 of 33 field goal attempts and scored 48 points over the weekend in leading the Bobcats to one-sided nonleague wins over Mesa and St. Louis State. McDowell also grabbed 12 rebounds, made five steals and dished two assists. He is a transfer from Odessa Junior College in Texas.

Bobcats top league in offense

BOISE (UPI) — Second place Montana State and fifth place Weber State finished their Big Sky Conference seasons as league leaders in total offense and total defense, figures released by the Big Sky conference show.

MSU, which held onto an NCAA Division I-AA top 10 spot for most of the season, finished its league schedule as the total offense leader while WSC led the league in defense.

Figures released by the Big Sky Conference show MSU averaged 377.2 yards per game and 5.2 yards per play over a six-game conference schedule. The team's total offense was 2,263 yards.

Weber State allowed 232.7 yards per game and 3.6 yards per play, and a total of 1,356 total yards for six games to lead the league.

Following MSU — which slumped near the end of the season and lost its bid for a conference title to Northern Arizona — in total offense were Weber State, 358.0 yards per game; Northern Arizona, 348.5; Boise State, 345.5; Idaho, 334.1; Montana, 272.2; and Idaho State, 263.6.

Northern Arizona led the league in rushing offense, running for 244.8 yards a game, while Montana had the highest rushing defense, allowing only 125.3 yards per contest.

In passing offense, Weber State again led the league with an average of 223.5 yards through the air per conference game. WSC also led in passing defense allowing just 82 yards per game. No other team allowed less than 100 yards per conference contest.

NAU finished the season with the most potent scoring offense, averaging 38.8 points per contest. Idaho State scored the fewest points — 11.8 points a game.

Defensively, Montana allowed the fewest points per game — 14.0 — compared with Idaho, which allowed 44, the most of any team.

Individually, all conference quarterback Morris Hedges of Weber State led the league in total offense with 103.7 yards yards per game. Tailback Alan Clark of Northern Arizona, also an all-conference pick with BSU's Cedric Carter, was second with 172.7 yards a game.

Racing ring uncovered

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — The Thoroughbred Racing Integrity Bureau has uncovered evidence of a ring of gamblers who bet on races at Hawthorne race tracks and other racing similar cases at tracks in Massachusetts and Kentucky, it was announced Monday.

In a prepared statement, TRB President Clifford W. Wickman said an investigation of the alleged ring at Waterloo, N.Y., by the New York State Thoroughbred Racing Authority has determined that a group of gamblers called "Payday" was active from 1976 to 1978. Wickman said the group had been "discovered."

Wickman said the group had been "discovered" at Waterloo, N.Y., and was shipped to Waterloo, N.Y., by the New York State Thoroughbred Racing Authority.

The horse has been impounded at Waterloo and the Federal Bureau of Investigation has received the case.
