

U.S., Soviets may be near SALT pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Soviet Union hope to wrap up a strategic arms limitation agreement this month, paving the way for a possible January summit meeting between President Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, administration officials said Monday.

The State Department said it is now planning for a meeting between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, which would be preliminary to any Carter-Breznev session.

Officials outside the State Department indicated the Vance-Gromyko meeting probably would be held in Geneva about Dec. 20.

If Vance and Gromyko can settle final details on the SALT-II agreement, Brezhnev and Carter may meet for the first time, possibly in Washington in January, for the signing ceremony.

Officials would not confirm a Time magazine report that a "tentative agreement" had already been reached, but State Department sources said the deal Vance and Gromyko will meet indicates some further progress has been made on the long-negotiated SALT II.

Vance and Gromyko agreed at their last meeting in October they would get together again "when there was something to meet about."

"There ought to be something other than us going back again to the same place where we left it," one State Department official said.

Two meetings last week between Vance and Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin apparently helped remove most of the remaining obstacles to an agreement.

Carter said recently that only "tiny" differences remain between the two sides. He told the Democratic conference in Memphis last Friday.

"We hope to sign an agreement which will strengthen the security of the United States, (and one that) will provide for accurate verification, and will substantially reduce the threat of nuclear war."

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Monday "Planning for a (Vance-Gromyko) meeting is under way. I have no details to offer you today ... and I can't confirm or deny dates, nor can I speculate what a possible meeting would mean in terms of SALT or future meetings."

The SALT issues still to be resolved after the last Vance-Gromyko meeting include the number of warheads the U.S. could deploy on a new intercontinental missile; whether the United States could deploy conventional armed cruise missiles, and restrictions on the Soviet Backfire bomber.

The White House is anxious to get the agreement concluded so it can be sent to the Senate early next year. Opponents of the proposed SALT pact are expected to wage a stiff fight against Senate ratification.

Star of Bethlehem probably occurred

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (UPI) — An astrophysics researcher says computer analysis shows a series of "celestial happenings" almost 2,000 years ago could have created an unusually bright object in the sky about the time of the star of Bethlehem.

"The star of Bethlehem was probably a real celestial happening and all of the components which could have caused it are still in existence," said David Moore, now a Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory Information officer.

St. Matthew wrote in the Bible that a bright star guided the wise men to the infant Jesus in Bethlehem.

Moore said the research into possible causes of the star of Bethlehem was conducted four years ago at the U.S. Naval Observatory in Washington. He said he initiated the research while a science writer for National Geographic.

"It had become a matter of speculation at that time that the star of Bethlehem was just a theoretical description rather than a real celestial happening," said Moore. "We decided to start a computer search for celestial happenings about the time of the star of Bethlehem and came up with all kinds of interesting possibilities."

Moore said there were several instances in which planets align to create brighter than usual objects in the sky.

"Jupiter and Saturn came together about three times during the year 8 B.C.," Moore said. "And in 6 B.C. Mars, Jupiter and Saturn all appeared to come together to form what looked like one bright star."

Moore said the most interesting discovery was that Halley's Comet appeared in B.C. about 22 degrees north of the equator.

"That's about the latitude of Bethlehem and it could have appeared that the comet was hovering directly over Bethlehem," he said.

Moore said while all the celestial occurrences happened from 6- to 11 years before history records Christ's birth, there have been changes in the calendar which would compensate for the apparent error.

"There is speculation that Christ was actually born 6 to 11 years earlier than is commonly accepted," Moore said. "When we take into consideration that these celestial events were occurring then, it is kind of an interesting coincidence, if nothing else, it's unusual that all of these celestial occurrences were happening at roughly the same time."

Moore said Jupiter and Saturn align about every 125 years, while the combination of Jupiter, Saturn and Mars occurs only once every 805 years. The next time Jupiter and Saturn will align again will be in 1984, he said.

Halley's Comet, which comes around about every 75 years, is expected to make its reappearance in 1986, Moore said.

Shah, U.S. assailed

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Two million protesters shouting "Down with the bloodsucking shah" and "Yankee go home" stomped through the capital Monday to the beat of tom-toms, forcing the shah to cancel a traditional appearance at a downtown religious ceremony.

The protest in the capital was mostly peaceful, but bloody clashes between demonstrators and troops broke out in the cities of Isfahan and Mashad.

Rate boost approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interstate Commerce Commission Monday approved an overall 7 percent freight rate increase for the rail industry, balancing the financial plight of a number of railroads with President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines.

In agreeing to reduce their request, the railroads became the first major industry to fall into compliance with Carter's wage-price guidelines, which call for a maximum 7 percent price increase by business and industry.

State panel finds bias against deputy applicant

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Human Rights Commission has found "probable cause" to believe that the Twin Falls Sheriff's Department discriminated against a Mexican-American who applied for a deputy's job.

The commission, in a letter detailing the findings of its investigation of a complaint filed by Richard Galvan of Twin Falls, concluded there is "probable cause to believe that complainant was discriminated against."

Twin Falls Sheriff Paul Corder declined to comment on the case, referring all questions to county Prosecutor Frank Dykas.

Dykas also declined to comment, as did commission officials.

The commission based its conclusion on several findings, including the fact that Galvan is more highly qualified for the position than three men hired for similar positions since Galvan applied for the job.

Also influencing the commission's conclusion was the fact that the sheriff's department said it did not hire Galvan because he applied after the three men hired instead of him. The department told the commission it hires solely on the basis of chronological order of applications, even though those men were not hired in the order in which they applied.

Galvan, 32, who operates Ricardo's Restaurant in Twin Falls, was born in Texas, grew up in Twin Falls and attended schools here.

He earned an A.S. degree in law enforcement from the College of Southern Idaho in 1969 and not long after went to work as a law enforcement officer for the City of Blackfoot.

He worked there for two-and-a-half years as a patrolman and four-and-a-half as a detective, of which two-and-a-half years were spent in charge of the Detective Division.

He said he then went to work for Bingham County as a narcotics investigator, but was released when a new sheriff took office and abolished the position.

Galvan also said that before he was hired in Blackfoot he applied for jobs at the Twin Falls Sheriff's and Police Departments in 1969.

He said Sheriff Paul Corder refused to give him an application form at the time and Chief of Police Frank Barnett "wouldn't even give me the test to take."

Jump fatal for former official

BOISE (UPI) — Former Idaho Liquor Dispensary Administrator William Webster jumped to his death from a sixth-story apartment window Monday in an apparent suicide, authorities said.

Webster, 65, also was a former Democratic state representative and senator from Coeur d'Alene, Ada County Coroner Steve Jablonski said. Webster died from massive internal injuries.

Police were called to the Imperial Plaza apartments in downtown Boise by Webster's wife, Bernadette. Officer Rick Townsend said he found the body in bushes on the north side of the building below the couple's apartment window.

"He walked out onto a mezzanine-type thing outside his window and apparently jumped off," Jablonski said.

Acting Liquor Dispensary Administrator James Raugh said Webster's wife was "quite hysterical" when he talked to her after her husband's death.

Webster retired from his liquor dispensary post last August after serving as administrator since 1971.

Former State Rep. Townsend said Webster had suffered from a severe diabetic condition in recent years.

"In my estimation, it was a situation he could cope with in his younger days," Terrell said. "But it grew progressively worse in the last few years."

"He was just one tremendous fellow. He was a great friend to the citizens and to Idaho. He was just tops."

Webster was elected to the House in 1959 and served several terms before retiring for a time and then winning a term to the state Senate.

Tax court says research for personal reasons Roots hunters owe income taxes

© Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — The U.S. Tax Court has ruled that an association devoted to searching out the genealogical roots of one family must pay federal income taxes even though associations doing similar research for religious purposes are tax-exempt.

The ruling came in the case of the Callaway Family Association Inc., which has more than 600 members across the United States.

The Tax Court decided that the association's research on the Callaway family in the United States since before 1700 was primarily for the personal gratification of family members rather than for general educational purposes as the association claimed. The ruling meant that the association is subject to income taxes, and contributors to the association cannot use their donations for tax deductions.

The Internal Revenue Service has sought to tax some family associations in the past, but the Callaway case marked the first time that the IRS has been sustained on this point by the Tax Court.

The IRS conceded that the Callaway Association carried on some general educational activities, such as sponsoring lectures and through its tracing of the Callaways' movements across the country, adding to knowledge about settlement of the nation, the Tax Court concluded, however, that most of the research was "for and about" Callaways.

The Callaway Association, in suing for tax-exempt status, relied heavily on an Internal Revenue ruling granting tax exemption to an association that compiled a family's genealogy for the Mormon church. The Tax Court rejected this argument, saying there was a difference between the Callaway and the Mormon associations.

"The Mormon church," the Tax Court said, "follows a practice of getting up family groups to study the genealogy of each member family back to Adam and Eve. This is part of a broader goal of the church to record the names of all deceased persons and to perform baptism upon them since Mormon theology holds that salvation for the dead can be effected by the living."

"The names of all known ancestors collected by each family group are stored in a central location. These records, they believe, will be the basis for judgment on the last day, since deceased ancestors of members may be accepted into the church through their living family members."

"It is evident that family genealogical associations play an integral role in Mormon religious practices. Accordingly, (the) revenue ruling analogized the exempt status allowed for the practice of the Mormon church to cases which have upheld trusts for other religious practices, such as Catholic masses for the dead and Hebrew memorial services for the repose of souls.

"The law of charity has traditionally recognized trusts for these and similar religious purposes be charitable on the theory that the religious purpose of the trust is of spiritual benefit to all the members of that faith and the general public well."

W. Augustus Parlee Jr., treasurer of the Callaway Association and a vice-president of the largest bank in Washington, D.C., said the Callaway Association would have to pay about $1,000 in back taxes and would not have enough money to appeal the adverse ruling of the Tax Court.

"From associations that had been formed to prevent cruelty to animals," he said, "we would have been tax exempt."

"That apparently gets higher priority than studying people."

Tuesday briefing

Somoza outlines amnesty bill

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Anastasio Somoza revealed the text of his sweeping amnesty bill Monday night and called on congress to approve it before Christmas to bring "peace and tranquility to Nicaraguan homes."

But political strife flared anew in Nicaragua, and in one incident a Spanish Roman Catholic priest turned Sandinista guerrilla was shot and killed near the Costa Rican border.

In a nationally televised speech from his presidential office known as "the bunker," Somoza said amnesty will cover all civilian and military people who committed political crimes from March 3, 1967 — the date of the last amnesty — until Monday.

He said the government will automatically release all political prisoners and Nicaraguan consuls abroad will issue visas to all exiled Nicaraguans once the congress approves the bill.

It is assumed amnesty would cover the estimated 1,500 Sandinista guerrillas, about 1,000 political prisoners and thousands of exiles.

The government also freed 66 more political prisoners, raising to 111 the number of prisoners released in three days.

Conductor Fiedler under knife

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Pops conductor Arthur Fiedler was reported in "fair" condition late Monday after undergoing brain surgery at Tufts New England Medical Center.

The one-hour operation on the 83-year-old maestro was a "limited procedure" to correct problems that had been affecting his mobility and gait, a hospital spokesman said.

Fiedler was admitted to the hospital last Saturday after experiencing difficulty walking.

The internationally famous conductor was wheeled into the operating room at 9:30 p.m. Monday, following two days of "detailed neurological examination," the spokesman said.

The hospital has consistently declined to disclose the nature of Fiedler's illness, saying only he has been receiving therapy for a mobility problem.

U.S.-oil cutoff threatened

NEAUPHLE-LE-CHATEAU, France (UPI) — Exiled Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini threatened Monday that his political supporters in Iran might halt oil deliveries and cancel contracts with the United States and other foreign countries that continue supporting the Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

This is the first time the ayatollah's bitter rival has warned of the possibility of a halt to oil shipments if his supporters' power in troubled Iran.

Khomeini issued his warning from his suburban Paris retreat, France, which depends on Iran for only 3 percent of its oil, which he permitted Khomeini to make public statements and he has been doing so almost every day since arriving Oct. 6.

Synanon founder disappears

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Charles Dederich, 66, founder of the Synanon drug and alcohol treatment program and a suspect in a murder plot, checked out of a hospital Monday and was taken to an undisclosed location.

Dederich, free on $100,000 bond in connection with an Oct. 10 rat-snake attack on Los Angeles attorney Paul Morantz, was removed from St. Joseph's Hospital "because of problems there," defense attorney Thomas Thines said.

Lawyers claim strike illegal

By United Press International
Lawyers for seven steel companies sought to prove in U.S. District Court in Pittsburgh Monday that the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers is a businessmen's group, not a labor union, and takes in fleet owners as members, and that therefore its strike is illegal.

FASH chairman Bill Hill denied the charge saying fleet owners — owner-operators who have more than one truck — are not allowed into FASH. He said members are suspended from FASH when they are found to be fleet owners.

Chrysler plans shutdowns

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. said Monday it will shut down three of its North American car and truck assembly plants for two weeks next month to trim inventories, idling 15,700 hourly workers.

The No. 3 automaker also said that when one of these three plants, its Hamtramck, Mich., facility, resumes production, nearly 1,300 employees will be laid off indefinitely due to assembly line adjustments.

In addition to the Hamtramck plant, the shutdowns will affect Chrysler assembly facilities in Newark, Del., and St. Louis.

Evans pledges to help Gem farmers in market

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans pledged Monday to assist Idaho farmers and ranchers in creating new markets for their products, but said voters have limited government's power to implement "blanket programs" toward that goal.

The governor, speaking to the Food Producers of Idaho, said exporters must further explore markets in Asia and Latin America if Idaho's agricultural economy, and the sugar and sheep industries in particular, is to improve.

"We have to rethink our traditional concept of international trade," Evans said. "We cannot expect people to buy from us just those things which are in surplus from one year to another. They are no longer willing to accept only what we think they should have."

Evans noted, "This year, the problems in the agriculture sector are to some degree not as dramatically defined but still seriously concern us." He said he would continue to work with the Carter administration and Congress to aid Idaho's beleaguered sugar industry.

"The failure to establish a meaningful national sugar policy, despite the efforts of Senator Church, is having a serious impact on our beet growers and our agricultural economy," Evans said. "We must continue to be united in seeking a viable sugar program soon from Congress."

"I have sent messages to the president conveying that need and will continue to do so."

Idaho's livestock industry is flourishing this year, Evans said, but he warned ranchers not to become complacent as "meaningful legislation" still is needed to stabilize the market.

The sheep industry's viability is declining at an alarming rate, which can be reversed only by maintenance of the industry's labor market and effective predator control, Evans said.

The state's chief executive also vowed to seek relief for potato growers. He said the potato industry has produced "too much of too high quality" and created a surplus.

But relief may be delayed or come in incomplete form, Evans said.

"The people will no longer allow blanket governmental programs everytime a problem arises," he said.

"We must now all make critical choices in what we will demand of society in relation to our individual requirements."

"This is the responsibility of agriculture in Idaho — to match our production to our markets; to match our growth with our way of life; to match our future with our past; to match human needs with our desires."

Evans said Idaho's agricultural base remains strong and must continue to do so if the state's economy is to survive.

Gem rights panel finds bias against deputy job applicant

Galvan applied again for a patrol or detective position with the Twin Falls Sheriff's Department March 16, 1977.

Galvan said he was told at the time there were no openings for patrolmen or detectives. According to information in the commission's letter to Galvan, the sheriff's department said it had an opening for a permanent radio desk position at the time.

Galvan said he indicated a willingness to work on the desk because all persons hired into the department are initially placed on the radio desk and then promoted.

The department said two of three men hired to fill positions on the radio desk after Galvan's application was filed are still on the desk and one has been terminated. One of the men hired indicated on his application an interest in a patrol position.

Galvan said at the time he applied, a patrolman left his job with the department and there was an opening. The department said a patrolman did leave at that time, but his job was filled by promoting a radio dispatcher. The department also said it hires according to the order in which applicants apply.

The commission found, however, that of three persons hired by the department since Galvan applied, the first person hired was the last to apply.

None of the three men hired were as highly qualified as Galvan.

One of the men hired had three years experience with a security company. Another had experience as an auxiliary officer with a local police department and holds a deputy card with the Twin Falls Sheriff's Department. The third has an A.S. degree in law enforcement with six post-academy courses and 1½ year experience as a dispatcher.

Galvan has eight years experience in active police work, an A.S. degree and 19 post-academy courses.

The department currently has one Spanish-surnamed employee, a woman working in the traffic license division.

The commission estimated the Spanish-surnamed portion of Twin Falls' population at 2.8 percent.

The commission will attempt to conciliate the complaint in meetings with Galvan and the sheriff's department.

If no solution agreeable to both parties can be reached, a public hearing will be scheduled.

Thousands pay respects to Golda

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Golda Meir, herself draped with the blue-and-white flag of the nation she led through five tumultuous years and its cruelest war, lay in state Monday on a black bier while thousands paid their last respects.

American dignitaries led by the mother of President Jimmy Carter — were among the first of 69,000 mourners to pay farewell tribute in the vast plaza fronting Israel's parliament building to the Russian-born, American-bred woman who died of cancer Friday at 88. The former prime minister's body was to lie in state for 20 hours.

Lillian Carter, herself 80, walked slowly on the arm of a woman Israeli army captain to the front of the bier where she stood for 30 seconds. She walked around it once then folded her hands and offered a brief prayer. Her companion wept.

The remaining Americans in her delegation of about 30 followed, among them former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who wore a black skullcap.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin returned home Monday and sped immediately from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem to pay his respects. He praised Mrs. Meir in a brief, arrival statement as "a great daughter of the Jewish people."

Today's weather

Improving weather for a day or two, but then...

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley, Rupert districts:
Partly cloudy today becoming fair tonight and Wednesday. Highs both days near 40 with overnight lows 20 to 25 degrees.

Halley, Camas, Prairie, Lower Wood River Valley:
Variable cloudiness with snow flurries today becoming fair tonight and Wednesday. Highs both days 32 to 37 degrees with overnight lows between 15 and 20 degrees.

Synopsis:
A weakening Pacific cold front crossed Idaho Monday evening, bringing scattered rain and snow showers and a flow of warmer air to much of the state. Drier air is following the front and comfortable cloudiness is expected today and Wednesday. Temperatures are expected to be slightly cooler through Wednesday.

Scattered rain and snow showers accompanied the front, with light snow at Molton, Salmon and at Baker, Ore., with light rain in the Lewiston area. Warm air ahead of the front pushed afternoon temperatures as high as 47 at Boise, but cold air in the upper Snake River valley held readings 20 at Idaho Falls in the middle 20s.

The state's lowest temperature Monday was 1 below zero at Stanley.

The three to five day forecast calls for periods of rain or snow in both valley and mountain areas on Thursday and again about Saturday. Temperatures will be about normal for the season.

The same cold front that crossed Idaho Monday brought snow and rain in Oregon and Washington, with high winds and ice across Wyoming and Montana. In the opposite corner of the nation, Florida reported heavy rain with up to 13 inches at River Beach.

New England was shivering in extreme cold, with Northern Maine near zero. The Great Lakes region was mostly cloudy and cold and the northern third of the nation and the Rocky Mountain region were snow covered. Fair skies covered the rest of the southern half of the nation, and temperatures were mild in these areas.

The nation's warmest spot Monday was Islamorada, Fla., with 85, while Alamosa, Colo., was the coldest at 23 below zero.

Lufthansa employe points to where he was told to lie on cafeteria floor

Cargo hangar raiders escape with $3 million

NEW YORK (UPI) — Masked gunmen staged a daring pre-dawn raid at a Lufthansa Airlines cargo hangar at Kennedy Airport Monday, handcuffed nine employees and fled in a black van with about $3 million in cash and up to $500,000 in other loot. The money — five shipments of U.S. currency — was en route to Chase Manhattan Bank headquarters from a bank in Frankfurt, West Germany, according to a bank official. Inspector William Cox, who is in charge of detectives for the Port Authority, which operates the airport, said the exact value of the money lost was not known but it was believed to be between $3 million and $5 million. Cox said six, possibly seven, gunmen were involved. Authorities were searching for a dark Ford van. "He said one of the robbers held a gun at the head of a Lufthansa employe, believed to be the night manager, and forced him to open a safe where the money was stored in a first-floor "high value" room. The gunman also forced the employe to deactivate a silent alarm protecting the area. Both Cox and Walter Yoos, FBI agent in charge at the airport, said Lufthansa employees and others at the airport were being questioned to determine whether the gang had inside help. "This is being fully investigated," said Cox. A spokesman for Lufthansa said a portion of the valuables was 30 shipments of gold, pearls, jewelry and checks, all with a total value of $300,000. Cox said the currency was "used" and therefore no serial numbers were available.

Port Authority police gave the following account of the events leading up to the robbery: Six or seven men arrived at the cargo area shortly after 3:30 a.m. in a black van described as a 1978 or 1979 Ford Econoline series 150 vehicle. They cut a chain protecting an unguarded gate at the north end of the building and then drove the van through the gate. This enabled them to bypass a guard who was stationed on the perimeter of the ramp area at the rear of the sprawling cargo building building 251. They drove the van into the ramp area where they were met by another Lufthansa employe, Kerry Whalen, who had just returned after making a cargo delivery. He was hit on the head, apparently with one of the weapons and forced to get into the rear of the van. Whalen's shouts were heard by Ralph Rebmann, a guard at a door where cargo trucks drive in and out. Rebmann opened the door to find out what was happening and he was grabbed by one of the bandits. Several of the men then confronted a third employe who they threatened to kill along with members of his family. If he did not take them to the "high value" room. While the loot was being removed from the safe, some of the other bandits rounded up six other employees, some of whom were in a third-floor cafeteria. All nine employees were taken to the cafeteria where they were forced to lay face down on the floor and were handcuffed. One of the robbers held all of them at gunpoint until the gang was ready to leave. Whalen, who was bleeding profusely, received five stitches to close his head injuries. Police said the entire incident took one hour.

Ex-Hughes aide extradited

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (UPI) — Former Howard Hughes aide John Meier was ordered extradited to the United States Monday to face two charges of obstruction of justice. County Court Judge Ray Paris ruled there was sufficient evidence to extradite Meier to Salt Lake City. "If there is evidence that could be introduced at a trial, then (we) must extradite...," he said. Defense lawyer John Taylor had argued throughout the week-long extradition hearing that the evidence produced by lawyers for the U.S. Justice Department was "flimsy and contradictory." Meier was taken into police custody under Canada's Extradition Act on the basis of two charges of obstruction of justice filed in Salt Lake City in connection with a civil suit filed against him by the Hughes Tool Co. "Taylor said he would appeal Paris' ruling on the grounds that the evidence heard was not sufficient "to send a Canadian south in chains." Meier, who came to Canada in 1972 and became a naturalized citizen more than a year ago, has 15 days to file an appeal and apply for a writ of habeas corpus which, if granted, would free him on bail.

School bus crash hurts 21

SOMERSET, Ohio (UPI) — Two school buses collided near Somerset Monday, injuring at least 21 children, officials said. The buses, carrying about 50 students each, were believed to be from the Sheridan School District. Fourteen of the injured children were taken to Good Samaritan Hospital and seven were taken to Bethesda Hospital, both in Zanesville. Attendants at Good Samaritan said injuries consisted of lacerations, fractures and one abdominal injury. There were no reports on conditions, but hospital officials said five children were admitted and nine were treated and released. The Ohio Highway Patrol was investigating the accident.

Advance notice slated

CENTRALIA, Ill. (UPI) — Disaster drill planners in Marion and Clinton counties say there will be no communications foudlups in future drills. Seeking to avoid a "very wolf" syndrome, they said police and other agency department heads will be notified in advance the same day the next time a disaster drill comes off. A Nov. 2 test simulated a collision between a freight train and a Salem church bus northwest of Centralia. Police, unaware it was only a drill, found grass paint appeared "victims" at the scene and radioed calls for all available ambulances. A sheriff's deputies left a tavern fight. An ambulance broke down a garage door and Clinton County Sheriff Jerry Dall, fuming that, "It's a wonder we didn't have a bunch of people killed," talked of filing a "false report" charge. Some two dozen officials met this week to evaluate the drill and agreed to meet later to set up a guidebook for future mock disasters. Rita Bingham, chairman of the St. Mary's Hospital Disaster Committee in Centralia, admitted there had been a foudlup in communications Nov. 2. Dave Heavener, administrator of Salem Memorial Hospital, said he believed the "drill went well" but that police and ambulances responded so well that towns were left without adequate protection.

Santa act ends in jail

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pedro Romanski was under arrest today on a series of charges including criminal impersonation. An alert transit police officer spotted the 33-year-old Manhattan man standing by a red cardboard. Volunteers of America chimney, soliciting money from passersby in a subway station below Macy's department store in Herald Square. "It was Romanski's costume — or lack of it — that tipped Officer John Novak to the fact that something was amiss. "I inquired because this individual was not in a Santa Claus get-up," Novak recalled. As he questioned Romanski, along came Santa — also known to Scroogees and other non-believers as 60-year-old Chris Schmidt — vigorously indicating that the chimney was his.

Intelsat picks shuttle, competitor for launches

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 102-nation communications satellite organization has selected both America's space shuttle rocket plane and its European competitor, the Ariane rocket, to launch advanced communications satellites in 1981 and 1982.

Air Force grounds transports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force Monday grounded its entire fleet of more than 700 C-130 transport planes, the third time in the past week that military aircraft have been suspended from action. Spokesmen for the Air Force's Military Airlift Command said the four-engine Hercules jets had been restricted from flying by the MAC commander as a result of a crash Sunday in which five crewmen were killed. More than 1,500 C-130s of various models are in service in 43 nations worldwide. Notification of the grounding was also sent to those nations. Military spokesmen announced later in the day that a ban on flying 235 of the planes was being expanded to include the Air Force's 812 military Air Force, as well as more than 300 assigned to National Guard and Reserve units. Lockheed Aircraft Corp., manufacturer of the plane, said owners of models corresponding to the ones grounded by the Air Force were being advised to strictly observe maintenance rules, but that no further action would be taken until the cause of the crash was definitely determined.

A spokesman for the International Telecommunications Satellite (Intelsat) consortium said Monday that the organization's board of governors decided to launch two of its new Intelsat 5 spacecraft with the space shuttle and one with the European Space Agency's unmanned Ariane rocket. The decision, made in Paris last Thursday, represents a breakthrough for ESA because it marks the first time a rocket not made by the United States has been selected to launch one of Intelsat's commercial communications satellites. The first four Intelsat 5s will be launched by American Atlas-Centaur rockets. Both ESA and the American space agency had hoped to win a contract to launch the fifth, sixth and seventh Intelsat 5s.

Frederic D'Aleste, director of launchers for the National Space Studies Center in Paris which directs the Ariane program, has said that the Ariane was "compellingly keenly" with the shuttle to launch communications satellites in the 1980s. The shuttle and the Ariane are products of different philosophies: NASA is developing its reusable rocket plane to replace the one-time-only type of rockets that the Ariane represents.

The object of the shuttle is to reduce the costs of space operations. ESA officials have made it clear that ESA nations will subsidize Ariane's cost to make it competitive with the shuttle. Intelsat said the total cost for the three launches, and associated costs, would be $82 million. The Intelsat spokesman said it was difficult to break down that total but a space agency official said the prices to Intelsat for the shuttle and Ariane were "virtually identical."

Not that the shuttle nor the Ariane has yet flown in space and the Intelsat spokesman said—that made—the organization's decision a difficult one. The shuttle is scheduled to make its first test flight into orbit late next September, six months behind schedule. The Ariane, which tentatively targeted to make its first test launch into orbit next July from the launch base at Kourou, French Guiana. A test firing of Ariane's first stage last week at Vernon, France, appeared to be successful, although engineers are still studying test results on new engine nozzle material. The Ariane's third stage exploded Nov. 28 at Vernon due to an ignition failure.

Guyana state minister questions U.S. laxity

BOSTON (UPI) — Guyana's minister of state Monday said his government had not been negligent in following Jim Jones and his followers to settle there, but questioned why the United States had not investigated the cult. Christopher A. Nascimento, 41, said the American media asked the wrong questions about the mass-murder suicides of Jones' Peoples Temple followers. "Why don't they ask why all these disenfranchised people left the richest, most developed nation in the world to come to an undeveloped jungle to start a new life for themselves," he said. "People ask us why we didn't investigate," he said. "Well, maybe they should ask why the American people didn't investigate, since they (People's Temple) were in their country longer than they were in ours."

Temple religious sect either committed suicide or were murdered. "Until that happened, I'm sure I can't assume no one would have heard of Guyana," said Nascimento. "And now, since this has happened, I think I can suggest that few of you even know much about Guyana."

Nascimento said the Guyanese government welcomed the People's Temple group because it needed to populate a large area of the country with good farming potential. "You have to remember Guyana is 12 years old, and we're about at the stage of our development that you (America) were when you were pioneering the west," he said. He said the government allowed the People's Temple into the country because, "they wanted to settle on the land, they showed a capability of investing money, and therefore didn't have to borrow."

"Also, they had agricultural skills, their approach to organizing the settlement was close to our objective, and were multiracial. We felt all this would be beneficial to our nation."

It was the third grounding order for a U.S. military aircraft in the past week. The Air Force's $12 million AWACS radar planes have been restricted since last week because of fuel pump trouble and the Navy also has stopped flying its T-3C trainers because of a recent fueling incident.

Air Force officials said MAC grounded the Air Force's 812 military Air Force, as well as more than 300 assigned to National Guard and Reserve units. Lockheed Aircraft Corp., manufacturer of the plane, said owners of models corresponding to the ones grounded by the Air Force were being advised to strictly observe maintenance rules, but that no further action would be taken until the cause of the crash was definitely determined.

Drill sergeant fined, demoted

FORT JACKSON, S.C. (UPI) — Drill Sgt. Willie Alexander was fined $2,672, reduced to private and given a six-month prison term Monday by a military jury that convicted him of causing the heat-stroke death of an Army recruit on his first day of basic training. Alexander was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter and dereliction of duty for the death of Pvt. Wayne Krassow of Cynnet, Ohio, July 29. Alexander, 24, of Timmonsville, S.C., was acquitted of similar charges for the death of Pvt. Lester Watts of York, S.C., and also was found innocent of charges of maltreatment of the two 18-year-old trainees.

U.S. opens doors to refugees

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States announced Monday it is ready and willing to give homes to an increased number of Indochinese refugees but said other countries must do the same.

The conditional U.S. pledge was given at a closed-door meeting of top officials from involved governments chaired by Paul Hartling, the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

Hartling said governments should adopt "more liberal and flexible resettlement criteria" and that "a major increase in resettlement opportunities is urgently needed."

The United States has accepted some 175,000 Indochinese refugees since 1975. He said 50,000 will be resettled in the United States in a 12-month period between May 1 of this year and April 30 next year.

"We are prepared to take more refugees from Indochina but... before we make longer term plans, we will be assessing the response of the international community," he said.

Both U.N. and U.S. figures show that Vietnamese are fleeing their country at a rate of 1,000 per month.

Delegate Vo Van Sung, the Vietnamese ambassador in Paris, said people are leaving his country for economic reasons and that Vietnam needs international aid after 30 years of war.

Newsom put forward an initial four-point U.S. plan that calls for greater financial contributions to the High Commissioner's office for refugee aid, increased offers for permanent resettlement by the international community, more equitable sharing between other Southeast Asian countries of Malaysia's and Thailand's refugee burden, and the enforcement of a code that ships head distress signals from refugee boats.

Australian immigration minister Michael Mackellar said the flow of refugees from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia is so heavy it is difficult to find homes for those already in camps. By next June, he said, Australia will have settled 21,500 refugees from Southeast Asia and will take in 10,500 annually.

In Malaysia, the United States has accelerated its resettlement processing of several thousand refugees but the intake seems to fall short of the target set by Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Robert Oakley.

Oakley said as many as 30,000 refugees will be moved to the United States in the next five months but the U.S. Embassy in Malaysia estimates a maximum intake of 2,000 a month for the next six months, making a total of 12,000 refugees.

Begin tells Nobel Chairman Aase Linae she's 'hero'

Mideast treaty isn't dead yet

By United Press International

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Monday he is willing to extend the Dec. 17 deadline for signing a peace agreement with Egypt but Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said the Sunday deadline should be kept.

Vance met Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for the second time in two days and said afterwards they had made "good progress" toward reaching a compromise on the two outstanding issues.

The American secretary afterward flew to Israel for the funeral of former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and talks with Begin.

As Vance spoke, Sadat stood two steps behind him and did not appear cheerful. "No comment from me today," the Egyptian leader said.

"We have made good progress during our discussions," Vance said. "We have not yet completed the discussions. There are still one or two items that still have to be further explored and we will be discussing them tomorrow on my return from the funeral of Mrs. Meir."

Vance indicated he was carrying "new ideas" to Israel.

Vance was asked if the target date of Dec. 17 could be met.

"I do not know," he replied. "I shall do everything I can working with the parties to help overcome the remaining obstacles. As I have indicated, if it is necessary, after going to Israel, to engage in a form of shuttle for a period of time, I would be willing to do so."

"It is up to the parties to decide whether or not they can reach agreement (by Sunday). And having talked only to the Egyptians at this point, I really cannot do any more than guess and I do not think it would be wise for me to guess."

"I think we ought to try and see if we can wrap things up by Dec. 17, the date set by the parties," Vance said. "I am not predicting that this will happen, but we certainly ought to try, and do it. Dec. 17 is an important date."

President Carter said last week the deadline is "very, very important," and sent Vance on a Middle East swing to try to find an agreement this week.

Begin, speaking to a news conference in Oslo, Norway, where he picked up his share of the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize on Sunday, said he could not exclude the possibility of signing a treaty by Dec. 17.

"Realistically, you have six days left," Begin said. He said that if Egyptian demands made the signing impossible by that date, "then I say we should continue. We should not give up hope."

"We are prepared to extend (the deadline) if necessary," Begin said. However, Begin said he could not give any commitments to extending the moratorium on building Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank of Jordan or the Gaza Strip.

"The cabinet will take decisions on this issue," Begin said. Asked about his personal feeling on the settlement issue, Begin replied that Israel had an "absolute right" to establish settlements but that he had undertaken to halt the settlements for three months and he would keep it.

Begin said he still believes "in my heart" that a peace treaty will be signed. He said if Sadat should invite him to Egypt for another meeting, he would accept.

"I will never reject an invitation from him," Begin said.

The two outstanding issues are Egypt's demand for a timetable for Arab autonomy in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and a confirmation of its defense obligations to other Arab states.

Pope issues appeal on human rights

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II Monday issued his strongest appeal yet on human rights in a letter Vatican officials said was aimed at Communist nations.

The Polish-born pope said governments are increasingly resorting to torture and even killing to suppress political dissidence and religious practice.

"We cannot ignore that the world we live in today offers too many examples of situations of injustice and oppression," he said in a letter to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim marking the 30th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

"One is bound to observe a seemingly growing divergence between the meaningful declarations of the United Nations and the sometimes massive increases of human rights violations in all parts of society and of the world," the 58-year-old pope said.

John Paul II, who as Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Poland struggled for years to ensure religious liberties in his native Poland, said he was particularly concerned about the freedom of worship.

"Forms of government still exist under which even though freedom of religious worship receives constitutional recognition, the powers of government are engaged in the effort to deter citizens from the profession of religion and to make life difficult and dangerous for religious communities," he said.

Though he did not mention specific human rights violators, Vatican sources said it was clear the pope's reference applied in particular to suppression of religious practice in Eastern Europe and other nations under Communist regimes.

Religious practice and the morality it entails holds society together and is beneficial to the state as well as the individual, the pope said.

"Why then is repressive and discriminatory action practiced against vast numbers of citizens who have had to suffer all sorts of oppression, even death, simply to preserve their spiritual values," he asked.

The pope said there had been some progress in guaranteeing human rights, but far from enough.

"This can only sadden us and leave us dissatisfied of the current state of affairs," he said.

China restores honors to olean-era marshal

HONG KONG (UPI) — Marshal Peng Dehuai, commander of China's forces in the Korean War and defense minister until his purge for criticizing Mao Tse-tung 20 years ago, has been posthumously restored to a position of honor.

Japan's Kyodo news agency reported Monday that Radio Peking broadcast favorable comments about Peng based on a book review that appeared in the Liberation Army daily newspaper.

It was the first published or broadcast mention of Peng in China since his purge in 1959. The first was a wall poster calling for his restoration two weeks ago.

The book review "creates moving portraits" of Peng who is the military hero of the now re-issued novel

Defense of Yenan, the official New China News Agency said.

Peng, who led the Chinese army during the Korean War and was named defense minister in 1954, got into trouble five years later during an expanded meeting of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee meeting.

Peng, an outspoken critic of using army troops for non-military purposes such as farming, sharply criticized the failures of the so-called Great Leap Forward, an economic thrust orchestrated by Mao.

Peng also was a strong advocate of modernized weaponry while Maoists supported the idea that China's defense must be based on large numbers of soldiers in the army.

Tut reaches New York

The Treasures of Tutankhamun exhibition was opened to the press Monday in New York City at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Public display will begin Dec. 20 and continue until mid-April, 1979. In this wood carving, being examined by a reporter, the boy king is portrayed ready to harpoon a hippopotamus of Seth, the god of evil, during a religious rite.

Santa-suit trade boom anticipated

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — E.N. and Faye Egldio are celebrating their 28th year of providing would-be Santas with proper attire.

The couple rented their first suit to a prospective Santa in 1950 — a red suit trimmed in real fur, hand-stitched by Mrs. Egldio — because they needed additional money for the family at Christmas.

"We began because we never had enough money at Christmas and we had little children. Now we are retired and it helps us to celebrate Christmas better," Mrs. Egldio said. "It's a way to meet people. There are a lot of people looking for Santa."

The couple's supply of suits is stored in their home. The Santa suit comes with its own special carrying case — designed to hide the suit from prying young eyes. The Egldios said they even will let Santa change at their home before he makes his appearance to keep the secret hidden.

"Now we've got 25 Santa suits. Our supply includes your regular Santa suits, Mrs. Santa suits and a new one — baby Santa suits. All our Santas have the complete suit, leggings, beard and wigs," she said.

Santa can still be outfitted fairly reasonably with prices ranging from $8 to $18, said Mrs. Egldio.

Outings by ersatz Santas, however, have been hampered by the severe weather and the rental business has suffered.

Egldio said the chilling temperatures and snowy weekends of late November and early December forced some seasons to postpone or cancel their holiday parties.

"We will pick up on Christmas eve; we always do," he said. "But early on, it has been very, very slow."

Californian captures honors in backgammon

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — David J. Leibowitz, 22, of Los Angeles, won the amateur title and $128,400 in prize money at the second Annual World Backgammon Championships Sunday.

Leibowitz, a recent cum laude English and history graduate of Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., defeated Jack Barney, a computer programmer from San Jose, Calif., in the finals at the Dunes Hotel.

Barney took home $51,400 for second place.

They were among 600 amateurs who paid $50 to $60 entry fees to play in the five-day tournament.

Young karate champion waiting for Christmas

ST. ALBANS, W.Va. (UPI) — His doctors call 9-year-old Matt Hodges "the bionic kid."

The St. Albans boy, who won a black belt in karate at the age of six, will be experiencing a real Christmas this month for the first time since he fell ill with a malignant brain tumor two years ago.

"He's looking forward to Santa Claus coming, and all the toys he can handle," Pam Hodges said of her son.

"Last year he could have cared less about toys. Now he's starting to play with them again."

Matt's parents were told by the Guinness Book of World Records in June 1976, that he was the youngest karate black belt in the world.

He competed in karate tournaments until the following April, when he became sick after winning a tournament and fell into a 31-day coma. When he emerged, he could not walk or talk.

"They say he just lost a year of his life completely," Mrs. Hodges said. "He can't remember last year's Christmas — at all. Last year — is a complete dream to him."

Four operations and monthly visits to Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. for chemotherapy treatment have sent Matt's tumor and cancer into 100 percent remission.

His speech and mobility have returned, and he went back to elementary school in St. Albans in September. His mother says he will resume karate this winter "for exercise only," to rebuild the right side of his body which was paralyzed while he was in the coma.

"His doctors think the remission will be permanent," Mrs. Hodges said. "They call it a miracle of God. They call him a superboy — the bionic kid. Medically speaking, Matt should not be with us."

Matt's mother said he must make 10 more trips to Washington for chemotherapy treatments. The trips cost about $320 each and have, until now, been paid for from a charity fund set up at the St. Albans Bank.

"It's the people that help Matt get his medicine because his medicine is not here in West Virginia," Mrs. Hodges said.

Horoscope

Capricorns should be a little patient with their own labors

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Look into whatever your basic interests are and see how you can get them in proper order for putting them into effect during the next good day. Your mind is laudably fitted to making decisions you can carry through with later.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Get whatever information you need for a project you have in mind before putting it into operation. Contact friends for whom you have had little time lately.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Do whatever will help you to make your money go farther. Set up a better budget for the future that you can really follow.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Improve your health and appearance where necessary. Don't neglect pressing business matters. Enjoy company of good friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Take care of pesky chores you have been putting aside and have more order about you. Confer with an expert in a matter that is important to your welfare.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Concentrate on what you can do for good friends and vice versa today. You can gain a personal aim if you apply yourself more seriously.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You have to study more if you are to gain a fine goal you have in mind. Talking your position over with one who is influential can be most helpful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Try a new tack where a project you are working on has you stymied. Go after the data you need. Make right contacts and get good results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Think about any agreements you have made and carry through with them without delay. Do little favors for loved ones and have more harmony.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Be more willing to do those small favors for associates that will please them and improve the relationship. Do whatever will give you added prestige in the community.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Get your work done even though there may be some delay, but take them in your stride. Listening to what co-workers have to say is wise. Adopt a more cooperative spirit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You want to go out socially but have to plan for such early for best results. Be thoughtful of loved ones and gain favors. Avoid one who likes to put you in a bad light with others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Take care you do not annoy those at home. Improve home surroundings where you can. Not a good day for entertaining.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will do everything in an original fashion, so be sure to teach orthodox methods early. Teach early to complete whatever is started, but to forget that which is absolutely impractical.

What's what

Captain John Smith was a sneaky so-and-so, but he saved his scalp

That Pocahontas married John Rolfe is widely known. Likewise, widely known is the fact that the really loved Captain John Smith. Question arises as to how Captain John managed to break up with her. He wanted to get back to England, but he thought the Indians might get all shook up, if he just dropped her. So after he sneaked aboard an out-bound ship, his friends ashore affected a fake grave, then sent for Pocahontas to tell her that her gentleman friend had died while she was overjoyed. Pretty sneaky.

Q. "How come television can show pictures of currency while newspapers can't legally do so?"

A. What's outlawed is any reproduction, such as a photo graph or photographic plate, that counterfeiters might use. Videotaped reproductions are useless to counterfeiters.

LOW TREASON

Has anybody ever been convicted of "low treason"? That's what I asked. Turns out there was, indeed, a crime of low treason. Or more precisely, "petite treason." In old England, if a wife killed her husband, she deprived the king of a useful subject, so was guilty of petite treason, likewise a hanging offense.

Camas development launches new Idaho real estate concept

FAIRFIELD — A new concept in land ownership in Idaho is being launched on Camas Prairie.

Even though many local residents may be unaware of it, real estate history is being made. In their picturesque county since Roger C. Crandelmire decided last August to "share" ownership and use of his $6.5 million, 4,000-acre ranch northwest of Fairfield.

Instead of subdividing, which in past years has aroused considerable opposition from Camas residents, Crandelmire will keep the operating cattle ranch intact, but divide the ownership.

Each owner will be deemed an "equal undivided interest" in the entire spread which, with its current $2 million worth of improvements, including an unusually luxurious house, heated swimming pool and spa, plus unmatched mountain scenery seems well named as "Hidden Paradise Ranch."

With each individual "undivided interest" the buyer shares ownership in everything from the restored original homestead and other ranch houses to the bridges in the unique log barn with its own tiny apartment with restroom.

More importantly, owners can use the commodious spread for vacation and recreation use whenever they wish, according to Don Jacox, business manager.

The price tag? The first 100 "undivided interests" are going for $10,000 each with a 10 percent discount for cash. Jacox said monthly payment schedules can be worked out. Price of the shares will increase as other amenities are added.

While the Camas project is the first to utilize this joint ownership concept in Idaho, the idea has been successfully tried in northern California, Jacox said, where 2,500 owners share in a 5,000-acre recreation complex.

Where do the buyers come from? Not from Idaho, at least not from Magic Valley, and most certainly not from Camas Prairie.

Most of the 60 buyers so far are from out of state, Jacox said. He is confident that the first 100 shares will be sold by January.

Many people in this area are not aware of the project, he admitted, or don't understand how the new concept works. A recent advertisement in the Times-News brought no response.

"But the majority of people who come up here, buy," he said.

What would happen if all the owners (who could eventually total 250 individuals or families) want to enjoy their "undivided interest" at the same time?

Jacox said surveys have shown that out of any 100 families, only about 10 percent will use the ranch at any given time. Space and the great variety of recreational facilities already available at "Hidden Paradise" tend to give credence to Jacox's assurance there won't be any overcrowding problem.

"Think of the variety of things you can do here," he said. "While one person might fish, another wants to hike, or ride horseback, swim, play tennis, sit on the porch enjoying the scenery, while some adults might want to play bridge in the main house or lodge."

The ranch already has adequate facilities for 10 families with enough "elbow room" on its 4,000 acres crossed by three mountain streams to provide adequately for picnicking, camping and the entire range of outdoor activities winter or summer.

There are many miles of open country for cross country skiing with 27 miles of "let down" fence installed with this growing sport in mind.

Snowmobile enthusiasts won't conflict with skiers for the machines will be run on the other side of the mountain, all part of the Crandelmire spread or the adjoining 39,000 acres of forest service land on which the ranch currently has grazing rights.

Jacox, who came here a year ago to "complete the project," obviously believes in the development, for he and his wife, Cindy, have purchased their own "undivided interest."

If nothing additional is ever added to Hidden Paradise Ranch, the facility currently provides a great flexibility of recreational use, nestled among the seclusion of the Soldier Mountain foothills with its nearby skiing area.

However, Crandelmire promises to spend another $1 million for construction of additional living units and other facilities ranging from the handball and racquetball courts to golf course and wilderness lake. These improvements will be done to meet the desires of the owners as determined by the board of directors of the already formed, non-profit Hidden Valley Ranch Association. Each shareholder has one vote in the corporation.

Crandelmire, who has extensive business interests throughout the country in gas, oil and real estate, became interested in Camas Prairie years ago when he used to come to Sun Valley to ski. Five years ago he started purchasing land here, eventually gaining ownership of three adjoining ranches which now comprise the Hidden Paradise spread.

He repaired the original homestead once owned by Bashford Smith, and three years ago started what is described as a "$4 million improvement program."

His construction of a log barn fancier than many dwelling places and the lavish main house with its sunken tub, walk-in wine cellar, "art gallery" entrance and imposing living room had created considerable interest from area residents before the current development project began.

While Crandelmire was viewed with the restraint local residents usually reserve for "outsiders," the Jacoxes are considered part of the community.

Jack Frostenson, chairman of the Camas County Planning and Zoning Commission, agrees with Jacox's claim that the new concept of ownership for obvious recreational use poses none of the problems to the county that traditional subdividing brings.

There will be no need to keep back roads open to get children to school or wonder where jobs could be found for an influx of new residents — problems posed on the prairie about four years ago when a Wisconsin "mall order" firm wanted to develop a large area near Corral.

The developer has been careful to retain the ranch "the way God made it," according to Jacox, with all utility poles and wires installed underground. He has only helped nature a little by creating small lakes from the meandering stream where tame ducks along with horses grazing in a pasture add to the peaceful country atmosphere.

Frostenson said he had no opinion on the project until the development expands, but is glad the ranch is not being divided into small parcels.

"They seem to be willing to work with the local people," the planning commission chairman said.

County Clerk George Gill has much the same opinion. He said no deeds have yet been filed in the project.

Aside from wondering, like many Magic Valley residents, who would pay that kind of money for what we already have, Gill jokingly said his only concern is that "they have one person pay the taxes."

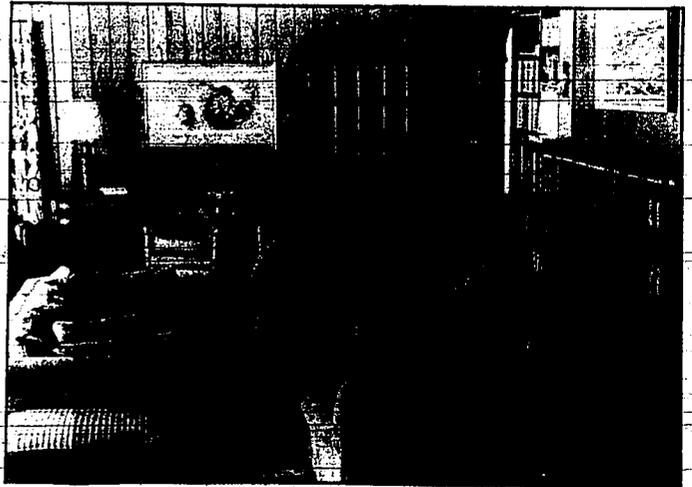

"I'd hate to have to send out 250 tax notices," he laughed.

Dear Abby

Bedwetting cure criticized

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I don't go along with your advice to quickly wash the sheets and say nothing to a 7-year-old child who continues to wet the bed when doctors can find nothing wrong.

I cured my 8-year-old son of constant bed-wetting by making him sleep in a diaper every night. If the diaper was wet, I hung it out on the line where all his friends could see it. That cured him fast!

MISSOURI MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I object to your type of "cure." Humiliating a child creates resentment which can be far more damaging to the parent-child relationship than bedwetting.

P.S. Another writer wrote that she "cured" her daughter of bed-wetting by forcing her to sleep on the bare bed springs! I think such "cures" for bed-wetting are clearly child abuse.

DEAR ABBY: What can I do about a husband and father of three boys who refuses to use a deodorant? He claims that the odor of perspiration is "masculine" and only sissies and women use underarm deodorants. You can imagine the embarrassment he causes the boys and me.

He works in a factory and plays softball every evening. To make matters worse, he now refuses to bathe daily. He bathes only once a week, and sometimes it's two weeks between baths! He claims too much bathing is bad for the skin.

I have run out of ideas. He sweats like a horse, and I can smell him 20 feet away. He reads your column every day and thinks you're smart. Maybe you can help me. Thank you.

STIMBLED.

DEAR STUMPED: I'm stumped, too. A person who refuses to bathe or use deodorant deserves to be shunned. So if he refuses to clean up his act, let him do a single.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was married recently in an all-white church wedding—one of the most beautiful ever held in this town. It was a dream come true. To say she looked like an angel is not just a mother's pride. I can't describe the joy that was in her father's heart and mine. When the newlyweds returned from their honeymoon, they calmly told us to expect a grandchild in about four or five months! That means our daughter was at least three months pregnant when she walked down the aisle. She must have known it at the time. How could she have done this to us? We loved this child more than life itself.

HURT AND DISAPPOINTED

DEAR HURT: The real test of love is to love our children when they do everything right and make us proud of their accomplishments. But when they disappoint us (as children sometimes do) we can demonstrate our love by showing compassion, understanding and forgiveness. Try it. You'll have fewer regrets.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 8700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Holiday traveler advice given

CHICAGO (UPI) — The poignant description of holiday travel in "Jingle Bells" — "Oh, what fun it is to ride in a horse-drawn sleigh..." — just does not apply in this day-and-age, a psychiatrist says.

Getting together with family on holidays is not as easy as people expect, and those who are caught unaware often become hostile, said Dr. David A. Rothstein of Michael Reese Hospital.

"Although letting the folks is not the same as sledding through the woods to grandma's house, remember, even that was not really so pleasant," Rothstein said. "It was snowy-cold and the sled often got stuck."

Even travel by private car is not necessarily pleasant, because driving is stressful, he said, not mentioning the possibility of snow and ice on winter holidays.

Rothstein, a member of the Psychosomatic and Psychiatric Institute, urges holiday travelers to be realistic when they start their trips.

"Today's unpleasantness is caused by the crush of people. Expect it, as well as frustrations, delays and rudeness."

"From the moment you leave your house you are in strange surroundings. You are off-familiar turf, in unfamiliar territory. You have to rely on strangers to get you safely where you are going. It is very frustrating for most people to lose such control and independence."

"Consequently, many people develop holiday travel hostility."

Rothstein does not suggest avoiding the trip.

"Just think of how lucky you are to have a family to be with at this time. And don't expect too much once you're all together."

He advises travelers to plan ahead.

"Leave a day early and come home a day late rather than fight the mobs. The worst thing to do is squeeze out a little time for a big trip."

Pack snacks and gum.

"This will help you avoid long lines at food counters and restaurants," he said, and "...the chewing will give you reserves an outlet."

"And, by all means, don't pick this time to diet; you've enough stresses in travel and reunion."

Rothstein also advises people to take along plenty of reading matter, games, needlepoint, knitting or their favorite timecopier.

"In other words, prepare to wait longer than you expect. If things get so frustrating that you have to blow off some steam, go ahead. But keep in mind that if you get the ticket agent, conductor or flight attendant upset, he or she won't feel much like serving you."

Health

Vitamin C won't help

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
Now that we are in the cold and flu season again, I would like to know what ever happened to the idea that vitamin C prevents colds? Should I take lots of vitamin C this winter to protect me or is it just a waste of money?

Dear Reader,
Unfortunately, a number of carefully planned research studies have failed to show that vitamin C does any good in either preventing or curing a cold. Originally one study suggested "it might decrease the symptoms or shorten the duration of the cold," but the results were questioned by the same group of investigators proved this to be a false lead.

I am sending you Health Letter number 3-3, Vitamin C. (Ascorbic Acid) to give you information on what vitamin C will do for you. You do need it in the diet. The best source is the diet to get it from a well-balanced diet that includes plenty of fresh fruit and vegetables.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 101, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
You may think this is an odd question but it is important to me. What are the symptoms of tapeworms in humans? How does someone get it?

Dear Reader,
It depends on what kind of tapeworm you are talking about. You can get a tapeworm from fish, or you can have a beef tapeworm or a pork tapeworm. The fish tapeworm is the largest tapeworm in man and it may be 10 meters long and have over 4,000 segments.

Infection with the tapeworm is not rare among people who make their own gefilte fish. They may sample it while they are making it. You can protect yourself from fish tapeworm by being sure the fish is adequately cooked before it is eaten or if the fish is frozen for 48 hours at minus-10 degrees C. Fish tapeworm is most common in Canada, Northern United States, Alaska, Central Europe and the Scandinavian area around the Baltic Sea.

The fish tapeworm can cause severe anemia. For some reason the tapeworm has a great affinity for vitamin B-12 and folic acid. Since the worm absorbs these from the intestine, it doesn't leave enough for the person who has the tapeworm. This can result in pernicious anemia and the multiple complications that are associated with it.

By contrast, a beef tapeworm is not likely to cause any specific symptoms. Sometimes mild distress in the pit of the abdomen has been described or loss of appetite. The worms may be five to 10 meters long. It's a relatively uncommon problem in the United States, although it does occur in South America, Mexico and areas where raw beef is eaten.

The pork tapeworm is more dangerous in many ways than either the fish tapeworm or the beef tapeworm. In one stage of its development it can penetrate the intestinal wall and invade the body tissues producing a variety of different symptoms. This is a rare infection in North America and Western Europe.

In all of these the adult worm attaches itself to the wall of the intestine and the ribbon-like segment may break off and be passed in the stool. The loss of the segmented, ribbon-like structures of the body that are passed does not eliminate the worm from the intestine. As long as the head remains attached firmly in the intestinal wall, it can continue to grow more segments.

Only hearty disrobe during nudist club's winter season

CROWNSVILLE, Md. (UPI) — Bonnie's father slipped his quietly in the small, crowded cabin, never batting an eye as his 27-year-old daughter and his neighbor's blond wife disrobed in front of a dozen men, women and children.

For Will, who has spent unclothed weekends and vacations for half his 50 years, the fact that his daughter and her friend, Jean, would undress in the midst of a small party was not worthy of comment.

Except for shoes, Will was naked. Will and his family have been nudists since the 1950s, when their weekend sojourns to the Pine Tree Club, a 106-acre nudist camp, were cherished by the nationwide American Sunbathing Association.

Nudists may be out of the closet, perhaps, but in cold weather they're not necessarily out of their clothes. Almost all Pine Tree members attending an "Older's" one recent, chilly weekend remained dressed the day, although a few hearty souls sat naked among those clothed.

"When it's cold, we wear clothes," said Lin's wife, Joanne. "We're not nuts."

Easily unrippable sweat suits and bath towels are favorites among Pine Tree members. They often dress up for parties or other social events and are required to wear clothes when they dance.

Like most southern nudist clubs, Pine Tree is open-year-round. Most clubs north of Maryland operate only on a seasonal basis.

Most members of nudist clubs are families. The American Sunbathing Association includes 150 clubs with 20,000 members. It estimates there are another 100 unaffiliated clubs with 40,000 members.

Pine Tree's more than 800 adult members, and their children, eagerly talk of their penchant for going naked. Legendary tales include one about Ellery, a former Pine Tree manager and diehard nudist who, as the story goes, got cold while fixing a leaky sauna in the snow — so he came inside and got some gloves.

Bearded, balding Eric, a government information officer, sat in the club's crowded recreation hall with only a towel wrapped around his waist.

"When you enter the gate, your troubles leave you," he said. "When you leave, they're out there waiting for you. But you feel better."

Nudists generally go by first names only, seldom discuss their occupations, readily concede they lead two separate lives, deny they are more sexually promiscuous than others and contend their habit of going unclothed is usually healthful.

Two years of testing by the Maryland Heart Association revealed that nudists at Pine Tree have a substantially lower incidence of high blood pressure than the national average.

Among the club's members through the years have been clergymen, legislators, policemen, firemen, government workers, teachers, and photographers.

Impulse buying prevails

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Forty per cent of all purchases made are done on impulse and more than half the purchases involve costume jewelry, women's sportswear and shoes, meals and snacks.

"Impulse buying doesn't just happen by itself," said University of Idaho family economist Betty Turner. "It is often the result of subtle pressures placed on the consumer."

Businesses know most shoppers buy because of how they're marketed or displayed. "Many firms conduct motivational research to determine what 'turns on' most potential customers. Then the findings are applied to marketing techniques and the devices — to promote products."

She said motivational research shows that coloring a product or package bluish white creates the psychological effect of "super cleanliness" while pastel colors denote elegance and bright colors suggest feelings of forwardness and aggression.

She said more than 75 per cent of all packaging space consists of symbols denoting quality many consumers would like to have like strength, femininity, ormasculinity, beauty and popularity.

Words, like "chewy," "curvy," "sexy," also can be powerful and suggestive, as can the age and sex of the individual purchaser. "Children like a lot of wrapping," for example. "It is often the result of impulse now and then. But when impulse buying takes over and you suddenly realize your budget is all out of shape, it's time to analyze your shopping habits and learn to buy with a plan."

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Andrews

FILER — Mr. and Mrs. Ed Andrews of Filer will be honored at an open house on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary on Dec. 17, from 2 until 4 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church in Filer.

The event will be hosted by their children and families, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Andrews of Filer, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Petersen of Buhl and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Andrews of Jerome. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews were married Dec. 21, 1928, at Rexford, Kansas. They moved to the West End in 1936 where they farmed most of their married life in the Filer area. Upon retirement the couple moved into Filer where they now reside. Both are members of the Filer First Baptist Church. The couple also has seven grandchildren.

Friends and relatives are invited. The couple requests no gifts.

MR. AND MRS. ED ANDREWS

Doctor says no woman should die from cancer of the cervix

United Press International
Dr. Arthur C. Upton, head of the National Cancer Institute, is greatly saddened every time he hears a woman has died of cervical cancer — the kind that strikes the neck of the womb.

"There is no reason for any woman today to die from cancer of the cervix," he said in an interview focusing on critical choices in the cancer battle.

In 1979, 7,400 American women will die as a result of cancer of the cervix, usually because it was diagnosed too late.

"Every death from cancer of the cervix represents a failure on our part," Upton said.

"We should not permit it to happen. With periodic screening we could rescue these women."

Periodic screening involves the pap smear test. Cells in matter removed from the neck of the uterus are examined. Treatment is begun if suspicious-looking cells show up.

The pay-off, which would become fatal cancer of the cervix is stopped dead.

Upton would like to see more massive periodic screening for this type of cancer, saying that approach is a sure way of "rescuing the women who would be doomed without such case-finding."

"Balancing priorities" is the most critical choice in the nation's cancer battle these days, according to Upton.

The key, as he figures, is "seeing that the most promising and important treatment, research and prevention are supported."

"In treatment," he said, "there are exciting leads. We can now cure some disseminated cancer."

"The pessimistic outlook of 20 years ago has become obsolete. In the next decade or two there may be treatment developments that will allow us to rescue the majority of cancer victims."

On prevention, he cited more than periodic screening for cervical cancer. He talked about better screening for early breast cancer.

Mammography, the center of a controversy among cancer fighters, could help find cancer in women over 50 before it gets to the late stage.

The diagnostic technique involving radiation is not recommended for younger women except under special circumstances at this time.

For women 50 and over, however, what about fears that the test involving radiation might cause more cancers than it finds?

Doctors are divided on the subject. Even among watchdog public health departments in many states there is concern that much x-ray equipment is not inspected regularly or may be ancient and leak radiation.

The United States Bureau of Radiological Health estimates probably two-thirds of the mammography equipment is not likely to overexpose radiation.

Radiation stays in the body and an x-ray this year added to those taken in previous years build up the level.

Heavy levels in susceptible persons have triggered cancers. Among other evidences of this were the cancers developing in survivors of the two atomic bomb blasts in Japan during World War II.

There is no question in Upton's mind about mammography saving lives of older women by finding early blooming breast cancer.

He noted that years ago the radiation dosage in x-ray equipment — x-ray of the breast — was one rad. Today is just one-tenth that.

"The risk of mammography in women over 50 is far outweighed by the benefits," Upton said, explaining that a woman would need to have something on the order of 1,000 mammograms over the rest of her life to increase the normal breast cancer risk. The recommended rate is about one a year.

The NCI budget is nearing $1 billion a year but Upton said money is always a problem.

"The more money, the greater the opportunity to invest on all fronts," he said. "The more odds you can play the more likely you would not miss some things."

Upton said available funds make it impossible to fund fully half of the proposed research projects submitted by capable scientists.

"The most difficult task is weighing the pros and cons of the many different approaches and make sure we don't waste a nickel," he said.

On treatment, limited trials are underway with two substances which hold some promise: interferon and thymidine, a compound found in the body.

The American Cancer Society is funding the interferon test; the material is very expensive but artificial interferon is on the scientific drawing board. Results will not be known for some months.

The thymidine test is going on at the Baltimore Cancer Research Center, an NCI-affiliated facility. Thymidine, which eliminated cancer tumors in animals, was rushed to a try-out in humans much more speedily than usual. The outcome is expected early next year, perhaps in January.

At the NCI, Upton indicated, the trend is to quicken the testing in patients of investigational drugs showing promise in experiments with animals.

To go through the ordinary time-consuming route to proof positive or proof negative about a substance might mean cancer victims dying needlessly.

The quick testing of anticancer agents that look excellent in laboratory animals is just one segment of an aggressive new approach in cancer treatment.

Poly-treatment (combined treatment) is the rule for breast and other cancers in a number of top medical centers.

In the case of breast cancer, a combination of chemotherapy (therapy with chemicals or drugs) and x-ray may be given before surgery. Or the lump alone may be removed and the patient put on a drug or combination of drugs.

The one-two-three approach to therapy, according to scientists reporting to the National Cancer Institute, is leading to some dramatic results in certain childhood cancers.

A type of leukemia is one. Bone cancer in children, when treated with a combination of surgery, radiation and drugs, is being put on the run in more and more these days.

That is the kind of therapy given Sen. Edward Kennedy's son who lost a leg in the bone cancer battle that saved his life.

Dr. Upton also talked about laetrile. He is the cancer expert who called for a trial to evaluate the controversial substance in patients.

"The trial will be mounted early next year," he said. "We should have the answer six months after the start."

Speaking of his decision to call for a laetrile trial, Upton said:

Despite tradition, mistletoe harmful to trees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kissing under the mistletoe is as old and firmly rooted as almost any Christmas tradition — but the white-berryed plant itself is a parasitic killer of the hardwood trees in which it grows.

In its latest bimonthly magazine, the National Wildlife Federation said, "for centuries, people all over the world have considered mistletoe to be a charm against disease, witchcraft and infertility." English and Japanese peasants believed eating mistletoe would make a barren woman fertile, and African Wagos wore its leaves to protect themselves from injury. Swedes made sword handles from mistletoe to ward off witches, and other Europeans wore the plant to guarantee a successful hunt. French physicians prescribed it as an antidote for poisons and one 17th century British doctor said it was "good for the grief of itch, sores, toothache and the biting of mad dogs and venomous beasts."

The federation said the plant flourishes in clumps on trunks and branches of hardwood trees, robbing the host of water and nutrients and often killing it. Only one animal — the Australian mistletoe bird — feeds on it. It said the custom of kissing under the mistletoe may stem from ancient Norse mythology, when mistletoe was dedicated to the goddess of love.

Las Vegas blues hit Vaga$ star

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Las Vegas is a nice place to visit but... That is the sentiment of Phyllis Davis, the gorgeous blonde of the new "Vegas" TV series who must make her home in the desert gambling spa for the duration of the show.

Phyllis, who is single, discovered there are certain built-in perils for an unmarried woman in the glamorous town which bills itself as the entertainment capital of the world.

She lives in a suite at the Desert Inn Hotel smack in the middle of Las Vegas' famed "strip," a string of luxury hotels featuring razzle dazzle floor shows, big name stars, gaudy casinos — and a few spectaculars featuring nude show girls.

Millionaires from all corners of this celestial paradise converge on the gaming tables to shoot craps, play blackjack, baccarat, roulette and a half-dozen other games of chance.

Oil rich Arabs, stock exchange bigshots, movie moguls and all the rest are not averse to a little action from the ladies either, as Phyllis discovered.

The lobbies, restaurants, bars and casinos are no place for a proper lady to loiter. Passes at the dice tables come second to those made at delectable blonde actresses.

"One night after we'd completed shooting for the day I walked into the lounge of one of the hotels and a hooker sidled up to me," Phyllis said, laughing. "She obviously thought I was one of the girls."

"She asked me, 'Any sign of security officers in here tonight?' I got the message in a hurry.

"Now I spend most of my time hiding in my room and ordering meals from room service. What else can I do? My living room is the lobby and my family room is the casino. And I sure can't sit around in the bar."

Not that Phyllis is an innocent abroad. She's just about as early as this year was Dean Martin's favorite playmate.

Phyllis doesn't have a romantic interest although she is besieged by offers. Especially from guys who have seen her in her skimpy show girl outfits on the series. She doesn't date any of them.

Most of the big rollers are married. The others are guys with funny haircuts in polyester suits from middle America who figure themselves to be the answer to a maiden's prayer.

"There's no one I want to go out with in Vegas," Phyllis said. "I haven't been interested in a man since Dean and I broke up last June. Once in a while I'll have dinner with members of the crew from the series. But that's it."

"When I'm not working I jog around the Desert Inn golf course or go to the gym and work out. On Sundays I do a lot of shopping for clothes. My wardrobe is really building up."

"Most of the people on the strip are transients, and you can't build a relationship with a man who's in town for just a couple of days. You can't even get to know them."

"The people who work in Las Vegas are mostly in the service business for the hotels and casinos, or involved in the big shows. They start work about the time I get back to the hotel from the set."

"They work all night and sleep all day which is just the opposite of my schedule. So I'm not left with too many options."

"Vegas attracts the big gamblers all right. I've seen men drop $50,000 at the crap tables in a few minutes and think nothing of it. That's a very tempting get used to. Some of them ask me to gamble with them for luck. No thanks."

"When I go into the casinos the pit bosses and dealers are very protective of me. Most of them advise me not to gamble."

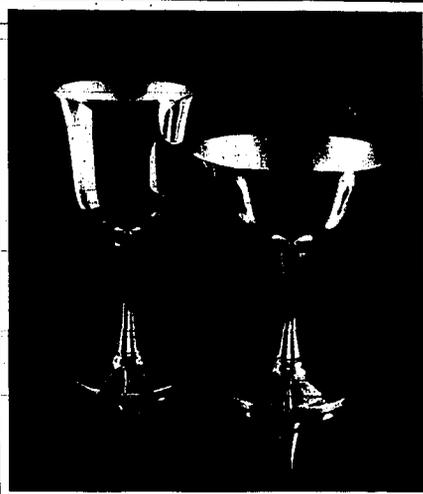

"But I've learned how to play the dollar slot machines pretty well. Since I've been up there I've hit the $150 jackpots at least a dozen times. Of course, I put about $300 down into the machines before they hit. I'm ahead of the slot machines but I lose at baccarat."

Chance for refund in Firestone recall

Our '78 Chevrolet came with Firestone "500" tires when we bought it new. Within about a year, two of the tires had blown out and the Twin Falls Firestone dealer gave us two new tires free. Naturally, we thought we ought to replace the other three "500's, too, so we traded those in, paying a total of $149.09 for the three new model tires. Aren't we entitled to a refund now as part of the big recall? — Debby Knapp, Jerome.

It doesn't look good, but there may still be a chance. If you had the serial numbers for those tires, you would probably receive a full refund, but those numbers might be lost forever.

Serial numbers are important because they pinpoint the manufacturing date. And even though this tire recall is the biggest ever, it only covers 500's that were made between certain dates. If so, if your three-tire trade-in had been what Firestone calls an "adjustment" due to some visible defect in each tire, the dealer would have had to write the serial numbers on his copy of the sales ticket. But in your case, it was "what Firestone's Akron, Ohio, headquarters calls 'customer satisfaction only,' and consequently no such records were kept. If it had been an "adjustment," the letters "NVAC" would be on your sales ticket.

But don't give up yet. All refunds for the defective radials are handled through Akron now, so it might be worth it to pick up a "Recall Refund Request" form from the dealer and mail it in, anyway, keeping a copy for yourself.

Before you go send in the form, get all the documentation you can from the car dealer who sold you the Chevrolet. Somebody somewhere must have a record of those serial numbers, and it might help if you can prove that every model that year was equipped with 500's. You might even want to write to Detroit.

To call Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. at their toll-free number for consumer questions, dial 1-800-321-9338. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration may also help. Their free number is 1-800-424-9333.

I was told that the Firestone "500's" I have on my car are included in the recall, but the Firestone dealer here says he can only give me 50 percent off the price of new replacement tires. Is he right? — Burley reader.

The key here is the serial numbers on your tires. They are the numbers that come after the letters "DOT" on each tire. Write them down before you do anything else.

The dealer says your tires were manufactured before the period covered by the recall and are therefore only eligible for the 50 percent program that Firestone has voluntarily set up for other tires.

To be absolutely sure, you might want to send a Recall Refund Request form to Firestone's main office. If the tires came with the car, enclose some proof of when and where you bought it, along with the make and year. Good luck.

NOTE: Action Line will study every problem or inquiry, but it is not possible to answer or acknowledge every one. They will be chosen for general reader interest. And shared with all readers of the Times-News. Give us a try! No anonymous letters, please. If you say you don't want your name printed, it won't be, but we still need to know it.

My wife ordered a subscription to Baseball Digest from a solicitor for International Clearing, Ltd. Later, when she tried to pay the price as us by making it a three-year subscription, we requested a refund. In late June they sent us a letter stating that they would make an immediate refund as soon as they received a copy of our cancelled check for $13.50. We sent it, but we still don't have our refund. — Dr. Frank Vosika, Kimberly.

International Clearing sounds like a good company — a good one to stay away from, that is. The tape that answers their telephone says they will answer all inquiries by letter, but they don't. Neither did they respond to a Nov. 9 letter from Action Line.

However, Rick Morgan of the Consumer Frauds and Crimes Section of the Ohio Attorney General's Office is quite familiar with International Clearing. Because of trouble in the past, the company usually jumps when he calls them, says Morgan. But first he needs to hear from you directly; he needs copies of your check and all correspondence concerning the order. Send these to him at 30 E. Broad St., Columbus, OH 43215.

The South Park Slinker Station has a regular gasoline price of 66.9 cents posted on its sign and pumps. I was suspicious, though, and when I stopped the pump at exactly one gallon, the price meter was nearly to 68¢. — Twin Falls reader.

By now we have all learned not to trust the big oil companies. Maybe we will have to take a closer look at our local dealers, too. Your test is a good one for all of us to make at our favorite station. Although we're only talking about a penny here, it could easily be more.

Action Line duplicated your test at the same pump Dec. 6, and the gauge stopped exactly halfway between 67 and 68¢. The woman on duty said they charge the lower of the two prices when this happens. Otherwise the station goes by whichever number shows the most.

The state Bureau of Weights and Measures says setting a machine high on purpose is illegal. But since the "on purpose" part is so hard to prove, the bureau usually assumes that false calibration is a machine error. When an error is found, the local inspector gives the station 30 days to hire a service company to fix the faulty gauge. If the station fails to meet this deadline, the pump is wired shut until it is fixed.

Although the bureau tries to inspect every station at least twice a year, they don't always reach you. That is, there are only eight inspectors in the state. You can report your test results to local inspector Howard Worcester, whose office number is 734-5112. Keep trying if there is no answer; he spends most of the day in the field. If you just can't reach him, the bureau's number in Boise is 384-2345.

John A.T. Robinson of England has been writing books that reportedly "set the teacups rattling in recollections." I can't find out if these books are published in the U.S. and by whom. Even the address of the London (I assume) publisher would help. — D.M. Holy, Burley.

Three of Robinson's books are available from Westminster Press. They are Honest to God ($1.95), The Human Face of God ($3.95), and Redeeming the New Testament ($4.95). To order, add 50 cents a book for shipping charges, or a flat $3.00 if you want more than five books. Then add 3 percent for sales tax. Mail your check to Westminster Press, Attn: Room 905, 130 S. Juniper St., Philadelphia, PA 19107.

Another Robinson book, Can We Trust the New Testament?, is available from William B. Eerdmans Publishing Co. for $2.45. No shipping or tax charges here. Write to the Bookstore, 156 Maple St. S.E., Grand Rapids, MI 49503.

And a fifth one, But That I Can't Believe, published by Collins World Publishing Co., is out of print. However, if you send a postcard to Needham Bookfinders, 2317 Westwood Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90061, they will start a search for it and let you know if they succeed.

Saudi newspaper predicts oil price boost of 5% during '79

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Oil prices will rise about 5 percent next year, the Saudi daily Al Bilad predicted Monday.

In a report from Abu Dhabi, where the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will convene next Saturday to set oil prices and policy for the coming year.

The Jeddah newspaper said OPEC was "likely to increase oil prices by 5 percent" for 1979.

Quoting "well-informed sources," the Saudi daily said "there is a near-unanimous agreement on this increase."

It said the U.S. dollar would continue to be "the dominant currency" in OPEC transactions, but a new pricing formula to be laid down to be implemented in the event of further deterioration of the dollar.

Al Bilad did not elaborate, but there has been considerable pressure within OPEC in the past year to replace the dollar with a basket of currencies for calculating oil prices.

The OPEC states raised their prices 10 percent in 1977 — Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates hiked prices only 5 percent in the first half of the year — and froze them in 1978.

"They all have agreed on the need for an increase in 1979, citing the decline of the dollar for cutting into oil revenues as well as world inflation and the price freeze of the past year."

In a front-page commentary today, the newspaper Saudi Okaz said the oil price increase will be "confined within two limits: first, it will not rise to such an extent as to harm the world economy, which would eventually reflect on the interests of the oil exporters, and second, this moderate increase will be applied in stages of unequal percentages in 1979."

Arab oil ministers began arriving in Abu Dhabi today for the 21st conference of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), which opens Tuesday as a preliminary to the OPEC conference.

Libya's oil secretary, Iz el Din Mabrouk, said on arrival that a hike in oil prices had become inevitable.

Idaho spud production at record

BOISE (UPI) — Potato production in Idaho during 1978 has surpassed a Nov. 1 estimate and made necessary the use of storage facilities not used for years, the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said.

A new predicted total of 97 million hundredweight is 10 percent more than 1977 and 2 percent above last month's projection of 93 million hundredweight, the service said.

The increase resulted from a favorable growing season coupled with excellent harvest conditions, the service said. Also, a small increase in harvested acreage and a record yield helped raise the yearly figure.

Most potatoes escaped heat stress, water supplies were adequate and irrigation demand generally remained constant. The service said weather conditions during the harvest probably were the best in several years, resulting in minimal damage to the crop.

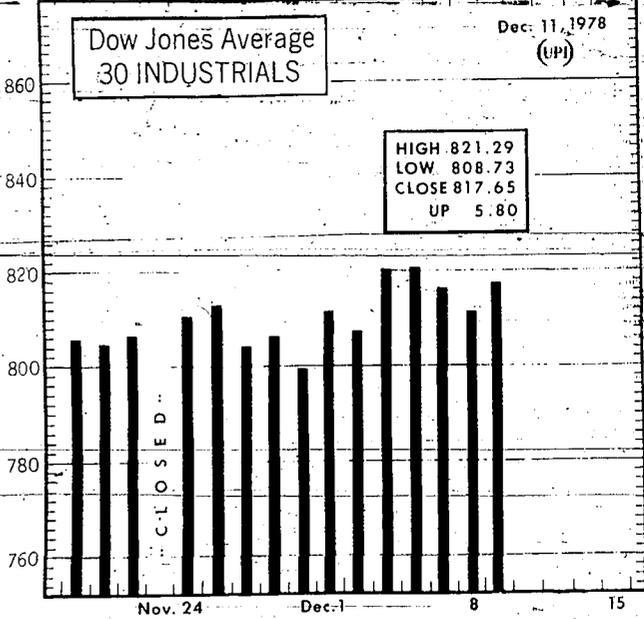

Beech lists fifth record year in row

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Beech Aircraft Corp. Monday reported its sixth consecutive record year with a 39 percent increase in net income and a 26 percent increase in total consolidated sales.

The company's fiscal year ended Sept. 30.

Total consolidated sales passed the half-billion dollar mark for the first time in company history, reaching $527,510,511, an increase of 26 percent over last year's $417,419,646.

The firm said both its commercial products and those in the defense and aerospace industries have shown "excellent growth" during the past six years.

Eastern makes $425 million offer for National Airlines

MIAMI (UPI) — Eastern Airlines offered $425 million Monday to buy National Airlines — already sought as a merger partner by Pan American and Texas International Airlines — to create the nation's second largest air carrier.

Frank Borman, president and chairman of Eastern, said at a news conference Eastern wasn't attempting to merge with National. "We want to buy it," he said.

L.B. Maytag, chairman and chief executive officer of National, said in a prepared statement that he had received Borman's proposal, offering $50 a share for National's outstanding stock. Maytag's statement said the proposal "was unsolicited and that no comment on the situation could be made until it was fully studied and considered."

Borman said combining Eastern and National would create an airline a shade larger than American Airlines, the nation's No. 2 air carrier, but barely three-fifths the size of giant United Air Lines, the largest.

Texas International, which began the battle for control of National with an announcement July 11 that the small regional carrier had acquired 9 percent of National's stock, now owns about 24 percent of the stock.

Pan American World Airways, which entered the competition a month later, now owns about 22 percent of National's stock. National's board of directors has recommended that shareholders approve Pan American's offer of $41 a share for National's stock at the company's annual meeting Jan. 15.

William T. Seawell, Pan Am chairman, called the Eastern bid "obviously anti-competitive, whereas the Pan Am-National Airlines merger will stimulate airline competition."

E.F. Dolansky, president of National, apparently triggered Borman's decision to enter the bidding by testifying during cross examination by Texas International's attorneys at a federal hearing last week that National was prepared to entertain higher offers than Pan American's.

Manufacturer calls in toy construction sets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Parker Brothers is recalling a toy construction set because of two accidental deaths associated with it, the Consumer Product Safety Commission announced Monday.

The company decided to remove the Riviton Construction Toy from the market after the death about two weeks ago of a 9-year-old New Jersey child, a commission spokeswoman said. She said the child apparently choked to death on a rubber fastening rivet.

An 8-year-old Menomonee Falls, Wis., boy died in the same manner last January, she said.

The commission said the company announced a voluntary recall of the 900,000 sets, which had been distributed nationally during the past two years. The commission said more than 125,000 sets are being held in inventory in two company warehouses in Salem, Mass., and Des Moines, Iowa.

Parker Brothers reported to the commission that 27,000 of the Riviton construction sets have been returned.

The firm, a subsidiary of General Mills, Inc., is asking all consumers to return the product for a full refund to the store where they bought it.

Look, out at the bank, it's Superman, again

Shooting for millions with millions

By DONALD C. BROWN JR., United Press International
 Superman bounds into his latest flight of fancy this week. His mission: To snatch at the purse strings of America.
 Heroes go for big bucks these days. Pete Rose got more than $3 million. But then he is only mortal. About $50 million already has been spent in the hopes the Man of Steel can fly into the financial stratosphere in his first feature film, with Warner Communications, Inc., clutching his cape tail.
 After Sunday's premier Sunday in Washington, "Superman" will be shown at other benefit previews in New York, Boston, Chicago and Los Angeles before its general release across the country and Canada Friday.
 The Washington premier — a benefit for the Special Olympics for retarded youngsters — was a glittering example of the increasingly popular formula of combining politics and show business to launch new commercial ventures.
 The promoters of Superman came up with a triple draw — the president; Mrs. Carter, who served as honorary chairperson; and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who, along with the other Kennedys, is a strong supporter of the Special Olympics.

Tickets went for from $15 to $1,000 a head, with purchasers of the latter being invited to an exclusive reception Saturday by Ambassador and Mrs. Fumihiko Togo at the Japanese Embassy. Holders of $50 tickets went to a party Friday at the Rockville, Md., home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Sargent Shriver.
 Guests at a pre-show supper Sunday at the Kennedy Center dined on breaded chicken steaks, baby shish kebabs, green vegetables and dip, and chocolate cake. They got to mix with various cast members, including Christopher Reeve, who played Superman.
 Warner executives aren't making a prediction of the film's ultimate success — "I'd rather not venture a guess," says one — but it's obvious they have dreams of the "Star Wars" $275 million gross in the U.S. and Canada and its $400 million merchandising record.
 Warner is ready to cash in on the super-hype — in more ways than one. No fewer than six subsidiaries of the huge conglomerate are involved with "Superman" in hopes of coloring that big red "S" green:
 • Warner Bros. Inc., which is distributing the film. In addition, the television production unit may produce programs on how the movie was made and the premiere parties.
 • DC Comics, which receives 2.5 percent of the film's gross for the use of the "Superman" character and which will distribute 500,000 copies of a $2.50 collector's issue of the 1938 comic book in which Superman first appeared.
 • Warner Books Inc., which has nine offerings connected with the film ranging from an original novel to a $7.95 package of blueprints of Superman's secret hideout, "The Fortress of Solitude."
 • Warner Bros. Records, which is planning to release a soundtrack album to coincide with the movie's opening.
 • Licensing Corp. of America, which will also get 2.5 percent of the film's gross and will also receive royalties from the flood of "Superman" products being rushed onto the market. LCA already has added 40 licenses to the 100 it had before the movie's debut was announced.
 • Atari Inc., is planning a Superman pinball game.
 • It's certainly the biggest project of this kind that any film company has ever done," said Bob Rolnitz, information director for Warner Communications.

 Warner executives say the buildup has done its job for the long awaited movie — plans for "Superman" were first announced in May 1974 at the Cannes Film Festival.
 "We've had such phenomenal acceptance of the products without anyone seeing a frame of the picture that when it finally breaks, the business will go wild," said one executive.
 Before the movie was released, the spinoffs were selling. Warner's says 1,000 retail stores will set up boutiques to sell Superman products.
 In Bloomingdale's, a large, chic New York department store, Christmas shoppers are already browsing through the "Superman" boutique that includes everything from bibs to bath towels, T-shirts to jute bags and "super sizzle" jeans to $50 jogging shorts.

An infant Superman shows his folks a thing or two

Real Metropolis isn't exactly super

By SAMUEL O. HANCOCK
 METHUEN, Ill. (UPI) — Five years ago, the only Metropolis in the nation — a small town of 11,000 in a community of 7,000 — had its own coming out party for the invincible crime fighter from Krypton. It was loads of fun while it lasted.
 The town adopted Superman in a $250,000 promotion only to see its dream of a Disneyland-like Superman Center fade by a storm's end.
 The opening of the "Amazing World of Superman Exhibition Center" in 1973 brought media representatives from around the world to the community on the banks of the Ohio River. The visitors still come, but at a comparative trickle.
 A few months ago, town leaders talked of hosting the world premier of the new feature length movie, "Superman," which premieres this week at theaters around the globe. But that was before a fire in August shut down the Massac Theater.
 Guy Lehr, an attorney and owner of the Massac, said he had not had any contact with the movie producers before the fire, but would have been happy to co-operate in showing the film.
 "It's exciting to the local people and we hope they do very well," said Lehr.
 Clyde Wills, 33, editor and publisher of the weekly Metropolis Planet, has a Clark Kent credit card he calls his own. And he receives Superman mail regularly.
 He blames the gasoline shortage of 1977 and a delay in the opening of Interstate 24 at the east edge of town as the main reasons the Superman dream didn't reach its intended heights.
 "But I think the movie will be important in getting more visitors here next summer," said Wills, his eyes twinkling behind horn-rimmed glasses.
 "We still have people on their way to Florida from the north stop by here to make pictures. And Perry White, a newspaperman from Oklahoma, dropped in several months ago."
 Les Easterday, executive secretary of the Massac County Chamber of Commerce, said the Superman premiere is a "promotive boost" to business and tourism.
 "There's no doubt that the effort in 1973 put Metropolis on the map," said

Easterday. "And I believe it led to this movie."
 Youngsters and adults from around the nation still write to Metropolis to ask about Superman and his home. And if they drop by the chamber, they can see a Superman phone booth.
 The chamber still sells a "Superman of Metropolis Award" at $10 a throw and proceeds from the sale go to the east edge of town.
 Robert Buchanan, owner of the Western Auto store, still sells Superman T-shirts from a stock he bought five years ago and hopes the movie boosts sales.
 "It's questionable what the movie will do for us, but I'm hopeful," said Buchanan.
 Bob Westerfield, 50, owner of a dry cleaning establishment and a running back for the Cleveland Browns and Green Bay Packers from 1949-52, led the Superman promotion offensive five years ago and sees the movie as a harbinger of better days.
 "We have had businesses here we didn't have five years ago," said Westerfield. "I see a continuation of growth. I see tons of mail arriving here and I think the news media will be back here."
 Cathy Roark came to Metropolis from Carlisle two years ago and operates the Town and Country Cafe next to the Metropolis Planet.
 "We could use some help from Superman," she said, "I keep looking for him, but I haven't seen him yet. I have seen a lot around here who think they are Superman."
 Goldie Bremer, president of the Metropolis Business and Merchants Association, sees Superman as a "gold mine" for the town. She and her husband moved to Metropolis 12 years ago from Chicago.
 "I think we are sitting on a gold mine," said Mrs. Bremer. "We are planning a birthday party for Superman next year, probably in late July. We are hoping to get Wonder Woman, Batman and Robin, and, of course, Superman to come. After all, what would a birthday party for Superman be without Superman?"

Free Merrill Lynch "2-in-1 Seminar" on: The new tax law and how it affects investors...plus important "tax-reducing techniques"

This big event is actually two Seminars in one. It takes a close look at virtually every factor that can affect your current income tax situation — including the provisions of the new tax law. It suggests practical ways to take advantage of or cope with them.
 The 2-in-1 Seminar features an exclusive slide show on "Tax-Saving Opportunities," and a presentation on videotape by Bernard Hughes, noted theater and television personality, discusses and analyzes the new tax bill's provisions. The Seminar gives you an ideal opportunity to get briefing on such subjects as:
 • How the new tax bill provisions will affect capital gains taxes
 • What the new law's impact will be on corporate taxes
 • How the law's "structure" will affect home sales
 • What the new tax law means to those inheriting property.

- How the new tax law could affect your retirement
 - How it will affect tax shelters
 - How to get "tax-free income" — with municipal bonds, bond funds and investment trusts.
 - How to select the "right" Keogh or IRA plan.
 - The dramatic (and little-known) advantages of tax-deferred annuities
 - And more.
- If you want to know where you stand with regard to the new tax law — if you want to know where and how to gain increased tax advantages on your investments — you have an excellent opportunity to find out by attending this exclusive free 2-in-1 Seminar.

Automakers balking at Brock Adams' re-invention plea

Detroit says major breakthrough is needed in engineering research

By JEFFERY L. SHELTER
UPI Auto Writer
DETROIT (UPI) — It will take a major engineering breakthrough for the nation's automakers to meet a government challenge to re-invent the car by the 1990s, industry officials say.

Researchers working on new power sources for cars of the future say they are years away from perfecting a practical replacement for the traditional gasoline-powered internal combustion engine.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams last week told the auto companies they have little more than a decade to do the job or the nation may be caught short when petroleum supplies begin to dwindle near the turn of the century.

He urged the automakers to begin now "developing a radically new, energy-efficient power source that will reduce the country's dependence on gasoline for transportation needs."

"I'm talking about re-inventing the car, and coming up with a superior vehicle for the future," Adams said in a Detroit speech.

Top officials of the Big Four auto companies said their engineers have been working for years on such projects. They tentatively accepted Adams' invitation to attend a summit conference on the subject early next year, but voiced skepticism it would speed things along.

"Everybody wants to improve fuel economy, not just because the government demands it but because it sells," a Chrysler Corp. spokesman said. "But people don't seem to realize the tremendous technical detail that goes into trying to prove out a new development."

"Putting a deadline on it isn't going to help it along one iota."

Ford Motor Co. Chairman Henry Ford II said it was "like trying to cure cancer in five years. You can't order somebody to invent something."

Ford, Chrysler, General Motors Corp., American Motors Corp. and other auto-related firms have spent millions of dollars in recent years, much of it from federal grants, to perfect a practical new power source for cars.

High on the list of possibilities are battery-powered electric vehicles, electric "hybrid" engines, gasoline turbines, and programmed combustion or stratified-charge engines.

Other less dramatic alternatives include expanded use of diesel-powered engines and turbochargers. Both already are in use in some vehicles.

But automotive engineers described their task as a tough one because of bugs in technology and the difficulty of making a new car cheaply enough that motorists can afford to buy it.

Oil firms warned to meet demands

By IRAR ALLEN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Senate Energy Committee Monday warned the oil industry it faces more regulation if it can't "meet and keep pace with the requirements of the public."

The warning came from Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., at a hearing on why Shell Oil Co. rationed gasoline to its dealers, a move he and other Democrats said met with public skepticism.

Deputy Energy Secretary John O'Leary, along with Shell spokesmen, said there currently is an "adequate" supply of gasoline industrywide but that some companies are in trouble because they can't supply enough high test unleaded gasoline.

O'Leary, predicting "tight" supplies of unleaded gasoline through 1980 and even tighter supplies after that, said some companies — Shell and Texaco included — declined because of the price regulations to retool their refineries to take into account a known demand for unleaded gasoline.

J.H. DeVine, a Shell vice president, admitted his company "miscalculated" a 25 percent higher demand this fall. But Shell's general manager for oil products, Ron Hall, said in response to criticism from Jackson that "we don't need marketing specialists when we have to sell at three cents under cost."

He was referring to the complex four-year old price controls, which had the effect of forcing Shell to sell its highly popular unleaded gasoline — the highest octane on the market — at three cents a gallon below the price for other brands. Shell said that control, and increased driving during good fall weather, accounted for its shortage.

But Jackson said that in light of air pollution rules which took effect in 1975 and required more autos to use unleaded gasoline, the industry knew or should have known of the new demand — it went from zero in 1972 to 36 percent this year and is projected at 50 percent of the market in 1980.

"The oil industry is not just another business. It's a business affecting the public interest, and there's going to be more regulation unless you — and the other companies have the ability to meet and keep pace with the requirements of the public," Jackson said.

"The oil companies appear to be offering the public a choice between shortages and overpricing gasoline prices. I can think of no strategy less likely to gain the industry's objective of decontrol."

OPEC meeting scheduled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Arab oil producers began gathering Monday in Abu Dhabi to discuss oil prices for 1979 and a Saudi newspaper predicted oil prices will be hiked no more than 5 percent next year.

Arab oil ministers started to converge in Abu Dhabi for a meeting of the 10-member Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries that precedes the full OPEC parity.

One of the arriving ministers, Libyan Oil Secretary Iz el Din el Mabrouk, said a price increase had already been decided and that the OPEC ministers would be discussing the amount.

The OPEC states raised prices by 10 percent on Jan. 1, 1978, though Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates kept their prices at 5 percent for the first half of the year and froze them in 1978.

United Arab Emirates Petroleum and Mineral Resources Minister Manajeh Said al Otaiba told the Emirates News Agency the prices of other commodities and services have been increasing.

Federal judge rules Medicaid eligibility eased in 15 states

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge has struck down HEW guidelines that 15 states were using to impose strict Medicaid eligibility standards on 75,000 to 50,000 nursing home patients.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Charles Richey on Friday apparently will bar evictions of aged, blind or disabled Medicaid persons from nursing homes if their spouses, living outside the institutions and earning incomes, fail to contribute regular monthly payments toward their care.

"This is a victory for elderly people who have been forced to pay amounts for their spouses that they cannot possibly pay," said Stephen Allen, a lawyer for the National Senior Citizens Law Center, which challenged the HEW rules.

The 15 states follow the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Supplemental Security Income rules to decide whether a nursing home resident qualifies for free care under Medicaid. But the federal guidelines also permit states to use stricter standards, based solely on the income of a nursing home resident's husband or wife.

The Senior Citizens Law Center, representing the "Gray Panthers Organization," contended the guidelines were too arbitrary and should not be based on how much money the "outside spouse" earned, but on how much available income that spouse had available to contribute to the patient's medical care.

"By requiring the outside spouse to automatically contribute 'X' number of dollars, they were forcing a lot of people to choose between paying for care of their spouse in a nursing home and foregoing pay for their own necessities," Allen said.

Lawyers pressing the lawsuit against HEW noted that in one case, a Mississippi man could not contribute $4 a month toward his wife's Medicaid costs and she was evicted and died.

The 15 states that were using the stricter standards are Connecticut, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Utah and Virginia.

This delivers Idaho's largest supply of utility energy. It's a gas meter.

The purpose of this message is to bring into perspective the importance of natural gas as a primary energy source for southern Idaho. Most people don't know that natural gas is Idaho's largest source of utility energy. There is also a widespread misunderstanding about future supplies of gas. The truth is, gas supplies for Idaho have never been better. We could add 100,000 new residential customers with the gas already under contract. Future electric generating capability for Idaho is unknown. Natural gas is available now to fill the residential energy void for heating and water heating. It's the balanced energy approach. Think about it when you consider how you should heat your home and hot water.

FBI studying role with Secret Service

By ED ROGERS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI told Congress Monday it is taking another look at its relation to the Secret Service so that it will be better prepared to deal with — or prevent — assassinations of presidents and other national leaders.

FBI Director William Webster testified before the House Assassinations Committee, which is reviewing preparations of the nation's major intelligence, protective and law enforcement agencies to deal with the slaying of American public figures.

working on the problem. "Mr. chairman," said Webster, "within legal bounds, the FBI will not hesitate" to do all in its power to prevent the assassination of another president or public figure or track down those responsible. "But we cannot be sure," he said.

Webster said the Secret Service is responsible for protecting the president and the FBI "is not regularly informed of the president's movements."

President remains firmly committed to economic plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, heartened by Democratic Party support, is more firmly committed than ever to his anti-inflation campaign despite its dampening effect on some social programs, White House aides said Monday.

Carter remains in disagreement with Sen. Edward Kennedy's push for a comprehensive national health insurance plan in the next session of Congress, the aides said, but considers his relation with Kennedy "amicable."

Carter told the board of directors of the NAACP at a White House meeting Monday his "heart is in the right place" on social programs but reiterated that federal spending must be tightened to bring inflation under control.

The president won an impressive 622-521 vote of approval for his anti-inflation program from the Democrats' mid-term convention in Memphis last week, but failed to lift the delegates to the pitch of enthusiasm Kennedy aroused with his fighting speech for national health insurance.

The Memphis meeting and the health issue both came up at Monday's cabinet session, Carter's first since the Nov. 7 election, deputy press secretary Rex Granum said.

He also announced Carter will hold a news conference Tuesday at 11 a.m. EST.

"The president and this administration came away from the mid-term conference with an even firmer commitment to fighting inflation," Granum reported.

Granum said Carter believes he and Kennedy have "a very amicable relationship" despite their different views on health insurance.

"It is certainly well known there is disagreement between this administration and Senator Kennedy over the method of phasing-in of a national health insurance program," Granum said.

"It is our basic principle that we should pass one thing at a time and see how each works before going on to the next," Granum said, adding the administrator's first legislative priority is hospital cost containment.

Supreme Court news

Bakke-type court case looms large

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today stepped into the middle of a "reverse discrimination" dispute that could prove even more significant than last year's highly publicized Bakke case.

The justices agreed to review lower-court rulings by Brian Weber, a Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. worker, to the effect that whites were illegally discriminated against by a union regulate job training program reserving half of all openings for blacks.

At issue is whether employers must admit past discrimination — and thus open themselves up to suits by minorities — before they can voluntarily adopt racial preferences designed to make up for past discrimination by society at large.

By adopting its on-the-job training program as part of an industry-wide agreement with a union in 1974, Kaiser had hoped to head off suits by blacks and to comply with executive orders obligating federal contractors to take affirmative action.

It wound up being sued by a white man.

The Supreme Court issued orders in hundreds of other cases and gave a series of opinions before starting its month-long Christmas recess. The court:

- Agreed to review the constitutionality of a welfare provision that provides aid to families with unemployed fathers, but denies it to families where the mother is the breadwinner and has her job.

- Unanimously upheld a section of the Social Security Act that allows federal benefit payments for the blind, disabled or elderly to be suspended whenever anyone receiving them leaves the country for a month or longer.

- Agreed to examine questions about congressional privilege that have delayed the opening of the bribery trial of former Rep. Henry Helstoski and limited evidence the government may present against him at trial.

- Upheld 6:3 the New Jersey procedure that imposes a mandatory life sentence on a murder defendant who is convicted by a jury, but allows a lesser sentence for someone who pleads "no contest" and does not insist on going to trial.

In the Weber case, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decided that Kaiser's training plan illegally discriminated against whites because it gave preferential treatment to blacks without any showing that the company had discriminated against them in the past and thus needed to supply a remedy.

Last summer, the Supreme Court ruled 5-4 that Allan Bakke, a white applicant to the University of California medical school, was discriminated against by an admissions program which set aside openings for minorities in each freshman class. In that same ruling, the high court agreed to hear a suit affirming an

Nevadan ERA law still stands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday dismissed an appeal by Equal Rights Amendment supporters that it overturn a Nevada law providing for a non-binding referendum to determine voter opinion on ratifying the amendment.

The justices declined to hear arguments on whether the referendum last month, in which voters rejected ERA ratification 2-1, breached a provision in the Constitution which leaves ratification of constitutional amendments to state legislatures.

The Nevada Legislature approved a law in 1977 providing for an advisory referendum to be placed on the general ballot in the November election.

Five Nevada ERA supporters last attempts to halt the referendum in the lower courts and last fall failed to win a stay from Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist to block the Nov. 7 vote.

They urged the high court to find the law unconstitutional because it altered the "mode of ratification" by providing citizen participation in the state's amending process which "in its practical impact ... will supplant the deliberative decision of the legislature."

ERA lawyers also said the law interfered with the ratification process by requiring the Nevada legislature to defer its vote until it received the advice and recommendation of Nevada voters, and to postpone any vote on the amendment until its 1979 session.

Nevada is one of 15 states which have not yet ratified the ERA amendment. Three more states are needed to make the amendment part of the Constitution.

Home-teaching

By BRENDA W. TOTTEN
CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The Hampshire Board of Education Monday rejected a mother's request to educate her daughter at home, but agreed to consider whether to abolish the regulation which bars home education in the state.

Betsy Tompkins of Nelson vowed to carry her fight "wherever it needs to go to defend human rights."

The board, by a 4-2 vote, said there would be "no further educational hardship" in the case of 9-year-old Heidi Tompkins, who dislikes public and private schools and enjoys learning at home. Mrs. Tompkins said she would like to have her daughter at home, using the Calvert System of home study, than she could get at school. People traveling abroad or living in remote areas have used the Calvert System for decades.

Board Chairman William Britten, one of the two who sided with Mrs. Tompkins, said it probably would be months before the question of the possibility of home education is settled. He said a public hearing will be required.

Smith recall drive short of signers

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Citizens' FIRST group pushing for a drive to recall Twin Falls Mayor Leon Smith failed to gather enough signatures by their deadline Monday to force a recall election.

But the recall movement is not dead.

"According to the Idaho Code, recall backers have an additional 30 days to 'perfect' the petitions they have gathered.

Late Monday, Mary Williamson, wife of Jim Williamson, chairman of the Citizens' FIRST group pushing for the recall, turned over to City Clerk Eddythe Koonitz petitions bearing 750 to 800 signatures.

But only "around 450" of the signatures on the petitions are those of registered city voters and will count toward the 523 signatures needed to force a recall election, Mrs. Williamson said. Her estimate is based on a comparison she has made of the signatures on the petitions with city voting rolls.

Although it appeared the recall drive had failed, Mrs. Koonitz said it is not over yet. She said the Idaho Code states that "the petition must be perfected within 30 days of the date that the city clerk finds the petition defective for lack of certified signatures."

Mrs. Koonitz said when she finishes verifying the signatures on the petitions (which must by law be completed within 10 days), if there are not enough to force an election, she must notify Citizens' FIRST that the petitions are defective and by how many signatures.

She said the group will then have 30 days to either gather more signatures or to convince people who signed the petitions to register to vote with the city.

Mrs. Koonitz said if and when 523 signatures have been collected and verified, she will immediately notify the mayor, who then has five days to resign or force a recall election. The election must be held within 30 to 40 days of the mayor's decision.

The announcement that the recall drive had fallen short came as a surprise, since Jim Williamson said in early November enough signatures had been collected to force the election.

Williamson said Monday his statement had been based on the number of signatures collected, not on the number verified, and that 300 of the people who signed the petitions were not registered to vote in city elections.

He said up until Mrs. Koonitz informed the group of the time allowable for perfecting the petitions, "We thought we might be whipped."

"But now we won't be," he predicted. "We'll get them (needed signatures) within the 30 days."

Wendell police look different now

Otis Lumpkin rose from animal catcher to Wendell chief

By DOUG TULLIS
Times-News writer

WENDELL — From dog catcher to policeman is a tough jump but Wendell's new Police Chief Otis Lumpkin says the toughest part of the transition was getting accustomed to having uniforms, guns and handcuffs.

Lumpkin, the former city dog catcher, was sworn in as Wendell City police chief Nov. 21 after graduating from the Idaho State Police Academy in Pocatello November 17.

"The only thing that proves it that they were hard up," Lumpkin joked about his promotion.

The new police chief did not want the job when he moved here in 1974 after spending 20 years in the U.S. Air Force.

"I went to work for the city in the sewer and water department as a maintenance man, you know, fixing water and sewer pipes," he explained with a soft Southern drawl.

After being discharged from the Air Force, Lumpkin and his wife, the former Dixie Brown of Wendell, lived in his home state of Virginia and then to Spokane, Wash., before finally settling in Wendell.

In 1977, Lumpkin was working in the sewer and water department and "was the city dog catcher on the side."

Until that time, the city had only one police officer and he had problems forced him to be away from the job for periods of time.

As a result, the city finally hired Lumpkin. "I said I'd take it until they found someone else. Jim Burke was chief but he was off for a while and I worked alone as an officer for three months, seven days a week around the clock."

"It can get pretty tough on one man. Sometimes, I'd get to bed at three and then someone would call at 5 a.m. I'd take care of the problem and try to go back to bed and an hour's sleep and so I'd just get up," he said.

When Burke resigned as the city police chief, the city council offered the job to Lumpkin.

"I said, 'Just like that?', and they said 'yes.' I told them I'd have to take a look at it and tell them what they needed."

Lumpkin then began to compile a list of equipment the police department would need to operate. That list included uniforms, guns, handcuffs and markings for the police cars.

"I took them a list of things that ran about $22,000 more than the department was budgeted for last year. The council looked at it and didn't say anything. Finally the mayor asked the council members what they wanted to do and they decided to buy it. They didn't even cut one dime," he explained.

Most of the $22,000 increase will not be needed again next year because the equipment included things that were desperately needed.

Once when Lumpkin and another police officer were making an arrest, they had to borrow a pair of handcuffs from a state patrolman to take the prisoner in custody.

Uniforms were another much needed item.

"We'd go to work in anything we wanted to — levis, shirt, anything at all."

That was all right for local citizens but newcomers couldn't tell who the officers were.

"With the uniforms at least people could tell you were a cop, not that you'd been out plowing the south 40," he said.

The town has accepted Lumpkin and the two officers he has hired wholeheartedly.

"We've had 100 percent acceptance. These are the finest people you'd ever want to meet," Lumpkin said with some pride.

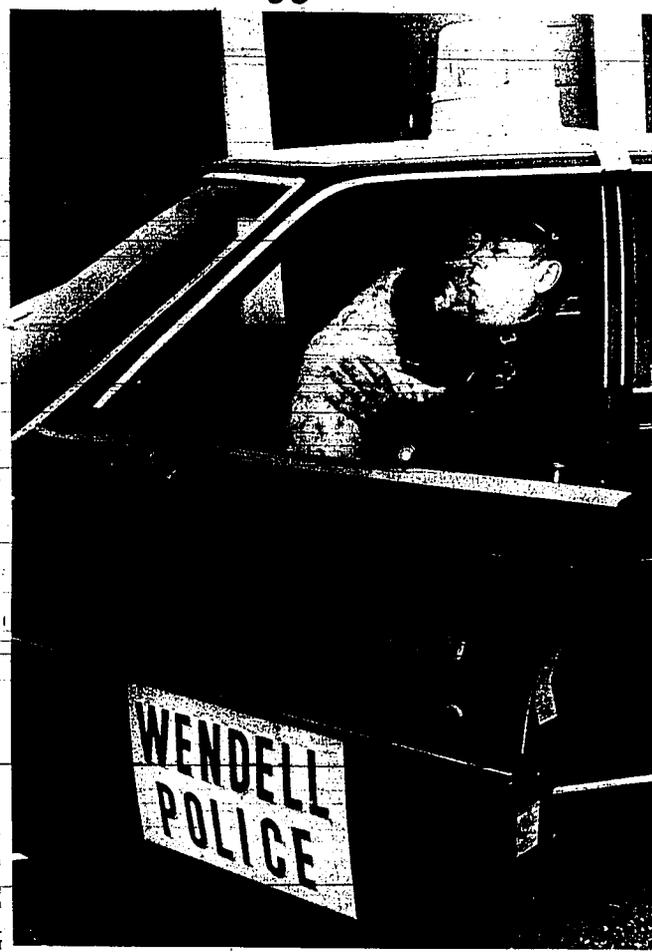

Wendell has few major crimes, but speeding is a major problem the three officers have to contend with.

"It's a straight shot from here to Gooding and they get rolling pretty good," he explained. "We've cut it down an awful lot, though."

Because he has had to deal with the best and the worst of human beings, Lumpkin says his view of people has changed a little.

"With this job, you get a little different perspective of people than on an eight-to-five job."

Even with the difference in perspective, Lumpkin says the people of Wendell are his prime responsibility and without them, he wouldn't have a job.

Lawsuits likely over ski rates

KETCHUM — The Skiflation Committee voted Monday to sue the U.S. Forest Service if the agency changes its decision to dislose Sun Valley Company financial records.

The Skiflation Committee's legal threat came after the Forest Service agreed last week to reconsider its original decision to release the information to the Ketchum-based group fighting against lift rate increases at the Sun Valley resort.

When the Forest Service announced in mid-November it would release the resort's financial records, Sun Valley Co. promptly sued the government in federal court to block disclosure.

Judge Aldon J. Anderson, chief of U.S. District Court in Utah, ordered the Forest Service temporarily not to release the information until the case could be heard in court.

But last week, before the case was formally argued in federal court, the Forest Service agreed to let Sun Valley Co. make additional arguments why the government should not release the information. The case was then temporarily remanded to the Forest Service from federal court.

The Skiflation Committee, however, made it clear Monday the group would not back down on its request for the information under the federal Freedom of Information Act.

Skiflation Committee member Craven Young announced that if the Forest Service overturns its original decision, "Skiflation will immediately sue the Forest Service in federal court in Idaho for disclosure of that information."

One way or another it appears the disclosure issue will end up in court because Sun Valley Co. can resume its lawsuit against the Forest Service if the agency upholds its original decision to release the information.

A new Forest Service decision on the financial disclosure isn't expected until January.

Also, the Skiflation Committee resumed its legal fight Monday in its battle against rate increases in the ski industry. Young said the committee plans to appear before both the Ketchum and Sun Valley city councils to seek support for federal legislation putting new controls on ski resorts operating on public lands.

Members of the Ketchum-based group returned last week from Washington, D.C., where it appealed Sun Valley Co.'s lift rate increases to Forest Service executive officials.

They are still trying to turn the proposed $22 million Southern Idaho Regional Airport in Jerome County into a reality.

The land is located southeast of the intersection of U.S. 93 and Interstate 80-N.

SIRAA drafts means for dissolution, county withdrawal

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

JEROME — Trustees of the proposed regional airport in the Magic Valley want to give counties a chance to withdraw from the plan after their drabbing in the November election.

The Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority board of trustees Monday night voted to submit two bills to the 1979 Idaho Legislature dealing with procedures for withdrawal from or dissolution of a regional airport authority.

The four-member board voted unanimously for the legislation, drawn up by SIRAA attorney Pete Snow.

The first bill outlines how a county could withdraw from a regional airport authority. Petitions, signed by not less than five percent of the registered voters in a county, would be required to be submitted to the county clerk's office in order to hold an election to decide whether the county should withdraw from the authority.

A majority of the voters would be needed to approve the withdrawal, pending payment of the county's share of the authority's debts.

The second bill allows for an automatic dissolution of the authority if it contains less than three counties. That number was chosen, Snow told the board, since it takes a minimum of three counties to form an authority.

The second bill also allows the board of trustees on a majority vote to call for a dissolution election among the member counties if the trustees feel "that there no longer exists any worthwhile reason" for the authority to continue.

A majority vote of all voters in an authority's counties would be needed to dissolve the airport authority.

The Idaho Transportation Department would certify election results and order any authorized dissolution.

Each of the four "SIRAA board" members, led by chairman Dale Garner of Rupert, voiced the opinion that they hope SIRAA will continue to operate. But they felt such legislation is needed since there currently is no way under Idaho law for a county to withdraw from a regional airport authority.

The board members feel they have the support to continue the authority because they said residents have contacted them, urging them to do so.

The trustees went on record saying they are still trying to turn the proposed $22 million Southern Idaho Regional Airport in Jerome County into a reality.

The board announced Snow to draw up a deed application to file with the Federal Aviation Administration for more than 2,000-acre-of-Bureau-of-Land-Management land in Jerome County on the proposed site of the Southern Idaho Regional Airport.

Election today

RING HILL — Eligible voters in the King Hill Irrigation District go to the polls today to vote for three of five board of director seats in the district.

After a landslide approval Saturday of a bond issue for as much as $2.8 million to replace their broken siphon, the electorate will vote today on renewal of the board positions.

The election is expected to be a routine one, although the district is in the midst of planning to rebuild the head end of its canal system which failed last August.

Incumbent Eugene Ascuna of Bliss is officially unopposed for his board seat in Division 1, but Thomas Chafin of Pasadena Valley has announced a write-in campaign.

Issues in the election are unclear, according to Chafin. He said he thinks some of his neighbors "just figured it was my turn."

In Division 4, incumbent board chairman C.J. Russell is running unopposed, although rumors of a possible write-in candidate are circulating.

And in Division 5, Vaughan Spangler of Hammett is also unopposed for his board seat.

The board of directors last week upheld an advisory vote of King Hill water users and chose alternative number 4, siphon replacement project, for getting their canal system back in shape for the 1979 irrigating season.

King Hill voters approved a bond issue at Saturday's election to raise funds for construction costs of about $2.2 million projected for the siphon replacement alternative.

Jeweler robbed

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police are looking for a jewel thief who got away with a handful of diamond rings he snatched from a store counter Monday.

Police chief Tim Qualls said the thief, who posed as a shopper, grabbed five or six diamond rings he was examining on a tray at Zales Jewelry Store.

Qualls said during an earlier visit to the Blue Lakes Mall shop the same day, the suspect made an appointment to view the jewels. When the thief returned at approximately 8:20 p.m., a clerk placed the ring-filled tray on the counter in front of him.

The suspect grabbed the jewels and ran from the store. A bystander chased after him without success.

No estimate of the value of the theft was available.

Qualls said.

He said police are looking for a white male, who is 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs between 150 and 160 pounds.

Terris charged

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police arrested Kevin R. Terris, owner of the recently destroyed Captain's Table Restaurant, on a charge of receiving stolen property Monday.

Terris, 35, of Filer, was arrested at the Twin Falls police station on the charge, which involved a stolen automobile, Police Chief Tim Qualls said.

Terris was released after posting a $10,000 bond. Qualls said police are still investigating "for other incidents of receiving stolen property."

The Captain's Table was put out of business recently when a fire completely destroyed its interior.

A man was killed in the fire when he was trapped inside the building. The police are still investigating the incident for possible arson.

Bondsmen reply to Lincoln County suit

By DOUG TULLIS
Times-News writer
SHOSHONE — A bonding company that bonded former Lincoln County

Treasurer Myron Johnson has asked that the suit by Lincoln County against the company be transferred to Federal District Court in Boise.

Lincoln County officials are resisting the move and are asking that the suit be tried in Fifth District Court in Shoshone.

Lincoln County filed suit against Fidelity and Deposit Co. of Maryland in October to recover funds that were misappropriated by Johnson when he was Lincoln County treasurer. Johnson resigned suddenly from his post in Oct. 1977 after serving in that office for 36 years.

An audit of county records revealed $130,000 was missing from county coffers.

The 69-year-old Johnson pleaded guilty to six counts of misappropriation of public funds in June of this year and was sentenced to 10 years in the state prison by Fifth District Judge Douglas Kramer.

A second bonding company, Western Surety Company, also bonded Johnson but asked that the Lincoln County suit against that company be dismissed because of the "lack of internal control."

Western Surety also said the public accountants that audited the Lincoln County financial records did not conform to proper practices in auditing. "Of course we're going after the bonding companies for the money,"

Lincoln County Commissioner Everett Ward said. "If you can't recover the money, what's the reason for having the bonds?"

Lincoln County seized Johnson's property and possessions a year ago and has recently sold a car, boat, motor and trailer.

An auction is planned for mid-January to sell the former Johnson home and lots in Shoshone.

The proceeds of those auctions will be applied toward the $130,000 Johnson misappropriated.

Lincoln County officials filed suit against the bonding companies to recover the difference between the proceeds of the auctions and the lost $130,000 plus court costs, lost interest and attorney's fees.

No date has been set for a hearing on the transfer of the case from Shoshone to the Federal Court in Boise.

Jerome two-year-old's death ruled accidental

JEROME — No charges will be filed in the fatal shooting of a two-year-old boy by his uncle in Jerome last week, Jerome County Prosecutor Eugene Fredricksen said Monday.

Fredricksen said an investigation of the fatal shooting of Armando Aragon by David Aragon, 28, of Jerome, last Wednesday morning showed the incident was an accident.

Questions about the incident arose because details told by David Aragon to Jerome County sheriff's deputies after the shooting were not correct, Fredricksen said.

The prosecutor said Aragon's version of the shooting accident may have had discrepancies because he feared the incident might affect his probation for an offense in another, Magic Valley county.

While it may have been wrong to hide the facts, prosecution could not make the boy's uncle feel worse than he already does, Fredricksen said.

He said the youngster was shot with a .45 caliber ball from a black powder pistol which had misfired several times just prior to the shooting. He said David Aragon thought the weapon would not fire and was not loaded. Aragon was trying to take the cap off when it misfired, striking the boy in the eye.

SALMON — Robert Donald Patton, 57, of Salmon, formerly of the Kimberly and Twin Falls area, died Saturday in Salmon after being in poor health for several years.

Born Aug. 10, 1921, in Derby, Kan., he came to the Kimberly and Twin Falls area with his family at the age of eight. He was graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1938 and attended the University of Idaho Southern Branch in Pocatello for one year. He entered the United States Army in May, 1942, and served during World War II in the Asiatic and Pacific theaters. He was discharged in January, 1946.

He was married to Elma Lee-Williams on Sept. 20, 1947, at Twin Falls. They lived on a farm near Twin Falls for five years, then moved to Cobalt where he worked as a miner until 1958, when they moved back to Salmon where Mr. Patton worked for the Inarmountain Lumber Co.

Surviving are his wife of Salmon; four sons, Bob Patton of Reedpoint, Mont., Dennis Patton of Dillon, Mont., Doug Patton of Boise and Ron Patton of Salmon; a daughter, Vickie Adams of Toole, Utah; six grandchildren and a brother, William Patton of Salt Lake City.

Graveside services will be conducted at 3 p.m. Wednesday at Sunset Memorial Park with Rev. Kenneth Himple of the Church of the Brethren. Military rites will be conducted by the American Legion. Arrangements are under direction of the Jones and Casey Funeral Home at Salmon.

Kernell L. Anderson

TWIN FALLS — Kernell L. Anderson, 65, of Twin Falls, died Monday at a local rest home after a short illness.

He was born Jan. 31, 1913, at Rockford, Ill. He graduated from Twin Falls High School. He served in World War II in the U.S. Navy at radar installation and held the rank of chief.

He was the office manager for Coca-Cola Bottling Company, working with his late father, Carl Anderson.

With a partner, he formed Anderson-Fairbanks Radio Repair Service. Later he farmed and then became a real estate salesman. He was a member of the Catholic Church and a past member of the Elks Lodge.

He married Marie Guley in 1949 at Elko, Nev. She died in 1955.

Survivors include a son, Steven Anderson of Twin Falls; a brother, Armour Anderson of Twin Falls; a sister, Mrs. Robert (Vivian) Fulton of Twin Falls.

He was preceded in death by his father and two brothers. Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the White Mortuary Chapel by Father Perry Dadds. Burial will be in the Twin Falls Cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel until 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

W.B. Savage

KIMBERLY — W.B. Savage, 88, of Kimberly, pioneer rancher and produce dealer, died Sunday evening in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after a short illness.

Born April 22, 1890, at Beersheba, Tenn., he came to Idaho in 1910. In 1912 he and a partner, the late Albert Brown, built one of the first potato cellars in Kimberly. Savage had been in the potato produce business ever since.

He brought much land in the Kimberly and Rock Creek areas under cultivation using pumps for irrigation. He fed cattle on many of his farms and hoped to see big packing plants come to this area in connection with local cattle feeding and slaughtering. He served on the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board of directors from 1946-1966 and on the Kimberly School Board for 12 years. He was active in Democratic Party politics and was Kimberly precinct committeeman for 15 years. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and a life member of the Twin Falls Elks Lodge.

He married Agnes Rehner at Beersheba, Tenn., on Jan. 10, 1917.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Joe S. Savage of Kimberly; two daughters, Mrs. Willette Nail of Hansen and Mrs. June Hoggard of Kimberly; a sister, Vernia Tate of Gooding; and 12 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by a son, Ed, a daughter, Dorothy, two brothers, John and Sam, and a sister, Bessie Brown.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at White Mortuary in Twin Falls with the Rev. John Wood officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park. Friends may call at the mortuary until 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. The family suggests memorials be made to the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Fund.

Bessie Herrick

Buhl — Bessie Herrick, 94, of Buhl died at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Sunday.

She was born June 26, 1884, in Adams County, Iowa. She married Charles Oscar Herrick Jan. 26, 1910.

She came to Idaho in 1934. Except for a few years in Kimberly, they farmed southeast of Buhl until their retirement when they moved to Buhl where she had since resided.

She was a member of the Buhl First Christian Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Hazel Callison of Winterset, Iowa, and Mrs. Geraldine Wiseman of Twin Falls; a son, Russel Herrick of Buhl; six grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Farmer Chapel in Buhl with Dr. James Huck and officiating. Final rites will be in the West End Cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel today until 6 p.m. and Wednesday until noon. Memorials may be made to the First Christian Church in Buhl or to the memorial of a person's choice.

Services

TWIN FALLS — Services for Bryan S. Ploit, 78, of Twin Falls, who died Saturday, will be held at 2 p.m. today at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park. Friends may call until time of services today.

BURLEY — Graveside services for James King, infant son of Lewis and Yvonne King of Burley, who died Friday, will be held Wednesday in the Memorial Garden of the Valley Cemetery at Sandy, Utah. Local arrangements are under the direction of McCulloch's Funeral Home in Burley.

FAIRFIELD — Services for Maymie V. Howard, 65, of Fairfield, who died Friday, will be at 10 a.m. today at the Thompson-Sears Funeral Chapel in Gooding. Burial will be in the Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding. Friends may call at the chapel until time of services.

BUHL — Graveside services for Grace Todd, 88, former Buhl resident, will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the West End Cemetery at Buhl. Arrangements are under the direction of Hopkins-Buhl Funeral Chapel.

Magic Valley U.S. bonds sales strong

TWIN FALLS — Savings bond sales by Magic Valley county chairmen in October ranked among the top in the state with Gooding county now at 113, percent.

Gooding County, with A. Schubert Jr. as chairman, sold $9,174 in bonds during October, to bring the year's total of $95,122, well above the goal of $84,000.

Twin Falls County is at 77 percent of its 1978 quota with $37,600 in sales in October and a total of $332,192 for the year. P.J. Hamilton of Buhl is county chairman.

Other counties, based on October sales, total sales, percent of quotas and chairmen, include:

- Blaine: $21,752, $49,402, 83 percent.
- E.B. Taylor, chairman; Camas: $1,081, $10,834, 57 percent.
- C. Scoggins chairman; Cassia: $6,198, $124,643, 77 percent.
- G.Y. Anderson chairman; Elmore: $27,261, $323,484, 52 percent.
- R.S. Cook chairman; Jerome: $5,193, $51,977, 59 percent.
- C.E. Harder, chairman; Lincoln County: $1,832, $20,355, 64 percent.
- Minidoka County, $7,276, $86,498, 45 percent.

Reservoir district votes

TWIN FALLS — Two directors of the American Falls Reservoir District are running unopposed for re-election to their board seats today.

John M. Barker of Buhl is seeking re-election to his seat in precinct number 7 and Armin Schroeder of American Falls is unopposed in a bid for his seat in precinct 1.

About 400 voters turned out for last year's election when three board posts were on the ballot. Voters in the seven precincts represent the Northside Canal Co. in Jerome, the Twin Falls Canal Co., the Martin Canal near Idaho Falls, the Aberdeen-Springfield Canal Co. near Aberdeen and the Woodville Canal in Blingham and Bonnevillie counties.

The polls will be open between 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. today in all seven precincts. Voters in each precinct will vote for both candidates regardless of the precinct in which they reside.

Polling places in the Magic Valley area include: for precinct 5, the Twin Falls County Courthouse; for precinct 6, Filer City Hall; for precinct number 7, the Twin Falls County Mutual Fire Insurance Co. office in Buhl and for precinct 2, the Northside Canal Co. office in Jerome.

Summer jobs open at BLM

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone district of the Bureau of Land Management is accepting applications for summer employment. Charles Haszler, district manager, has announced.

Most job openings are on the district fire crew, although a limited number of persons will be employed in the resource management field.

Those wishing to be considered for employment should submit Standard Form-171, available at post-offices and most federal offices to State Director, Idaho (951), Post Office Box 042, Boise, Idaho 83702.

Applications must be received by Jan. 15 to be considered for the 1979 field season, Haszler said.

TWIN FALLS — Sixteen-year-old Peter Graefe of Twin Falls owns his own color television set as a result of winning first place in the Cystic Fibrosis bowl-a-thon Saturday.

He won top honors in the event by gathering 85 sponsors for a penny a pin and collected a total of $137 for the benefit event.

Winning was judged on the number of sponsors, although other bowlers added more money to the Cystic Fibrosis bowl-a-thon drive by bowing a higher score with fewer sponsors.

Second place, a 10-speed bicycle went to Chad Miller, 12, also of Twin Falls. He brought in $234 for the fund drive with 75 sponsors. In third place with 40 sponsors was Lorraine Smith of Twin Falls. She received a bowling ball.

Judy Brashear, chairman of the bowl-a-thon, said this is the first to be held in Twin Falls. It was sponsored nationwide by the Circle-K Corp., which furnished the top two prizes. Magic Bowl, where the event was held, donated the third place prize. The chairman said $2,100 was raised through the bowling.

Mrs. Brashear said 23 young residents of the community bowled in the event. She said the winner, young Graefe, is automatically entered in state competition, again on a basis of the number of sponsors. Two television sets will be given state winners.

ADVERTISEMENTS

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age

Chicago, Ill. — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 9884, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Illinois 60646.

TWIN FALLS — Questionnaires on the subject of planning and zoning in Twin Falls are now available at City Hall.

The questionnaires are the first phase of the city's effort to develop a comprehensive plan for the city. The questionnaires were developed by the city's planning consultant.

Planning administrator LaMar Orton said the city ran out of the questionnaires last week as public interest in city planning exceeded the supply of questionnaires, but a second batch of questionnaires has been received and is now available in his office.

Jerome hosts FFA district competition

JEROME — Eighty to 100 members of Future Farmers of America will participate in a district FFA contest at the Jerome High School agriculture department today.

The contest begins at 1 p.m. and will include contestants from 10 schools in the western portion of the Magic Valley.

The contestants will be tested on their knowledge of entomology, and weeds and crops.

Class canceled today in Burley school

BURLEY — Kindergarten classes at the Springdale school in Burley have been canceled for today due to furnace failure.

A spokesman for the Cassia School District said the students should be out of classes only today but it may stretch into Wednesday.

"Every time they open the door to repair the furnace, they get a lot of smoke in the building and so they are canceling the classes to get it fixed," the spokesman said.

If there is a question whether the kindergarten classes will be held Wednesday, parents should contact the school.

Lawmakers prefile motion to reject pay hike

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Republican Senate majority leaders prefiled Monday a resolution to reject a 2.5 percent legislative pay raise recommended by a citizen's committee.

The Citizens' Committee on Legislative Compensation recommended that the pay for the legislators be boosted to $3,200 from $3,000 per year as well as hiking legislative expenses, effective Dec. 1 when the new lawmakers took office.

An attempt was made at the organizational session of the 45th Legislature last week to reject the recommendation, but a vote on the measure was blocked in the Senate when the Democratic minority refused to suspend rules to introduce the resolution.

Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Poietello, originally had offered the proposal in the House, but it was decided to begin the resolution in the Senate because that body already had organized and the House had not.

But Senate Democrats, unhappy because the majority wanted to reduce the number of pages selected by the minority from four to three, refused to go along with the GOP to get action on the resolution.

Later, Democratic leaders explained that they had offered to run the pay rejection resolution, but they did not feel they were obligated to act on two other Republican resolutions. Those resolutions would have allowed the Joint Budget and Revenue Projection committees to meet prior to the start of the regular session Jan. 8 to begin deliberations.

The concurrent resolution prefiled to block the pay raise was signed by Senate President Pro-Tom Reed, Budget, Sofia Springs; Majority Leader James Ritch, Boise; Assistant Majority Leader J. Wilson Steen, Glenns Ferry, and GOP Caucus Chairman Walter Yarbrough, Grand View.

It was one of four measures prefiled with the Secretary of Senate's office. Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, and Sen. Is Merrill, D-Blackfoot, prefiled the other three.

Merrill's bill would require that at the time of recording each deed transferring title to real property there would be accompanied by affidavit the value of such property.

The two bills by Mitchell would:

- Make review by the attorney general's office a prerequisite before assignment of a ballot title for initiatives and referendums.
- Provide a fiscal statement on all appropriation measures.

Church targets sugar program, revised 1902 act

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Sen. Frank Church said Monday his top priorities in the next Congress will be passage of a bill completely restructuring the 1902 Reclamation Act and enactment of a domestic sugar program.

Church told the Food Producers of Idaho session in Boise he plans to reintroduce the proposed Reclamation Reform Act soon after Congress convenes Jan. 15. His bill would scrap the 1902 law and replace it with a law he said was "attuned to modern agricultural needs."

He said the 1902 act was adequate when a farm family could make a living with a mule and a plow and 160 acres but in these days of high capital investment and mechanized farming, the old law is completely out of date.

Church said he wants to replace the 1902 law with one that would increase from 160 to 1,200 acres, which could be held by a single individual, a family, a partnership or a small corporation. He also noted the proposed law provides for the first time for "equivalency," which would base the limitation on the productivity of the land. The 1,200 limit would thus be raised for land in areas with shorter growing season or lower productivity.

In addition, Church's bill would abolish the present residency requirement in place of a proprietorship test to insure that those who own or lease the land actually work it.

Church said the other priority is securing passage of a domestic sugar program that will make it possible for beet growers in Idaho to stay in business.

His bill would set a domestic price of 16 cents a pound for sugar, with future increases provided to reflect the upward trend in the cost of production.

soon on this legislation."

He noted subsidized foreign sugar dumped on the U.S. market has forced down the price of U.S. sugar to levels far below the cost of production. He said his bill would assure an adequate domestic price through import restrictions — a plan that provides stable sugar prices, does away with support payments to farmers and actually "provides income to the U.S. Treasury."

Church said the administration "has indicated a willingness — at last — to try and work out an acceptable bill" and hopefully there will be early passage.

PUC limits utility contributions to research group

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission Monday placed a ceiling on what Idaho Power Co. and Washington Water Power Co. can contribute to the Electric Power Research Institute for research and development.

Any money collected for research and development from rate payers which exceeds a schedule drawn up by the PUC must be refunded or used for local research and development of renewable resources.

The PUC said it implemented restrictions because it said customers of the two companies have been paying for EPRI projects at a rate above the national average.

Utah Power & Light Co., found by the PUC to be close to the national average in EPRI collections and contributions, was allowed by the PUC to contribute to EPRI according to its present guidelines.

Coyotes plague air base

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — Mountain Home Air Force Base security police have been ordered to shoot prowling coyotes on sight.

Master Sgt. Lyle Gilk said the animals have been roaming the base at night, killing domestic animals and carrying them off. Gilk said the coyotes are working in pairs containing up to four members.

In addition to the shoot-on-sight edict, Gilk said, security police have given several airmen permission to attempt to trap the coyotes.

"The predators have frequented the base for two weeks, apparently because of cold weather and their search for food, according to Gilk."

"The sergeant said he believes dogs and cats allowed to run loose have attracted the coyotes. He advised airmen and their families to keep their pets locked up at night."

Some Idahoans expert at marijuana farming

BOISE (UPI) — Some Idahoans are developing the expertise to grow high-quality marijuana in large quantities, said a spokesman for the Idaho Law Enforcement Department.

John Rooney said more marijuana these days is being home grown rather than imported. "These people seem to be getting to know what they are doing," he said.

In the past year three marijuana farms in rural areas have been discovered and raided by state narcotics agents. The combined take was 7,000 pounds of the plant at an estimated street value of $560,000.

A September raid at a greenhouse north of Blackfoot in eastern Idaho netted agents 6,630 pounds of marijuana in the form of six to nine-foot plants. Agents arrested a 30-year-old man at the scene.

In June, authorities did not make any arrests but seized 300 pounds of marijuana growing east of Lewiston.

And in a third operation, again in eastern Idaho, 64 pounds of the plant was found. A young couple was arrested.

Richard Cade, chief of the state's narcotics division, said he doubts the three raids represented "the tip of an iceberg."

"I think if that were true," he said, "we would be getting some feedback from the drug field. And because we are not getting that kind of feedback it leads me to believe there are not huge crops of marijuana being grown in Idaho."

But Tom Moss, Bingham County deputy prosecutor, said the Blackfoot greenhouse raid "wasn't really that bizarre. I think there's a lot more of it around. It just hasn't been found."

"This guy had a row of popcorn next to the greenhouse walls. That provided a nice little barrier. It wouldn't surprise me at all if there are similar operations in the state."

Introducing Person-to-Person A new kind of Financial Center.

You get your own special person. For personalized financial service.

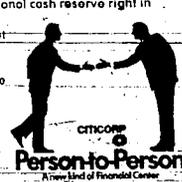

We took the best that banks have to offer and the best that finance companies have to offer. And then we combined them with the kind of personalized service no one else offers.

The result is a new kind of financial center, built to take care of your special needs.

We call it Person-to-Person Financial Center.

1. Your own special person. Our whole reason for being is to give you individual, truly personal financial service. We assign you your own Account Executive who is there to help you with all your personal financial matters — one person to another.
2. Tailored Loans for a Custom fit. If you need a loan, we can tailor the perfect one to fit your special needs. For instance, you can wait six months before making the first payment. Or skip three payments every year. (If you're a salesman with a slow season, that can be a lifesaver.)
3. Financial planning. In addition to helping you borrow money wisely, we help you manage your money wisely, too. We hold free seminars giving you solid information on how to budget, save, shop, plan for the future.
4. Free shopping advice. We give you free advice about the best buys on a variety of products — even if you don't take a loan from us to buy it. For instance, there are our monthly Consumer-Grams, full of money-saving tips and up-to-the-minute shopping information. We also keep a library of detailed fact sheets that let you compare the difference between cars, appliances, vacations, etc. Because it pays to be well-armed before you spend.
5. Home Equity Loan. No matter how much your house originally cost, it's worth more today. You can borrow up to $25,000, or more, on that increased value. And you can use the money for any major purpose. And just like our Tailored Loans, you get flexible repayment plans fitted to your needs, including letting you take more than ten years to pay.
6. Convenience Accounts. With a Convenience Account, we establish a line of credit for you, so you have money whenever you need it. You carry a book of personalized Payment Orders from us that you write out like personal checks. It's like having a personal cash reserve right in your pocket.
7. Created by Citicorp. We not only give you truly personal service, we give you truly professional service. Because we've been created by Citicorp, one of America's foremost financial institutions.

From one person to another, we hope to see you soon.

In a crowded garage Ron Axtman has been practicing his weight lifting three times a week for two years

Ron Axtman has dedicated his last two years to being . . .

A power lifter

KIMBERLY — Powerlifter Ron Axtman's face tells his story.

Full of determination and courage, the face tells the story of a man who has resolved to be known nationwide for his weight lifting ability.

"It's taken a long time for me to realize that I'm capable of going out and competing on a national level," he said Monday afternoon as he lifted weights in his make-shift weight room in his tiny garage. "That's the important thing, setting a goal for myself, and then going for it."

The 245-pounder already has made a name for himself around this area, and he's well on his way to national recognition. He's rated number 62 in the nation in his weight division.

Last week at Salt Lake City, he took home the outstanding lifter trophy at the BYU Western Power Open. He also placed first in the 275-pound weight division.

Monday he began training for the Idaho Power Championships which come in April at Boise and also for the Junior nationals in July at Whittier, Calif.

A former semi-pro football player for the Boise-Wis-Raiders, Axtman trains approximately three days a week. Monday was his first day back on the training block since his championship in Salt Lake City.

"During training, I'll drop down about 60 pounds from what I normally lift and begin building back up," he explained.

At Salt Lake City, Axtman, a policeman in Twin Falls, lifted 570 pounds in squat competition, 405 on the bench press and 625 dead lift.

The total of 1600 pounds far outdistanced his nearest rival who lifted 1400.

In powerlifting, there is no individual award for each division but only a total poundage award. This differs from Olympic competition in which lifters jerk the weight above their heads.

"Each week that I train until April, I hope to add about 10 pounds to my total each week," he said.

By the time April rolls around, he believes his powerlifting total will be about 1,745 pounds which he feels would put him in good position to place high at the meet.

Though only competing for two years, Axtman has the determination of a veteran. His wife Sheila can testify to that.

"Ron will come home from the graveyard shift (with the police) and sometimes I will hear him out in the garage lifting weights," she said. "It's just something which he has been doing ever since his football days."

Those days with the semi-pro team got Axtman hooked to powerlifting, he remembers.

"I weighed only about 145 pounds when I was in high school and even back in college I was only about 190," said the former football standout at Great Falls Central High School in Montana. "But once out of high school and with the pros my weight started going up."

Axtman credits two local people, Mike Requa and Dick Haines, with helping him to find out what he was doing wrong with his lifting and helping him improve his technique. Both men are lifters themselves.

"In powerlifting, 90 percent of what you accomplish is because of your mental attitude," he commented. "They worked with me over at DeWitts (Gym) and now things are going better."

One of his strongest lifts, the squat, requires having the bar travel in a straight line along his back with his chest forward.

"If you can get in that groove, you can slick 'em," he said.

A mirror often comes in handy for the lifter to see his mistakes and improve on his style.

"It's a little crowded in this garage, but it's near my family and that's the way I want it to be," said Axtman, looking around the weightlifting room he has created in his 'garage' next to his house. On the walls are reminders about his lifting, including a congratulatory note from his wife and kids after last week's triumph.

Someday Axtman hopes that he can build another facility in his backyard, and then eventually he dreams that he can own his own gym.

"I guess everybody has something they aim for, and that's what I want — a place where I can rent equipment and help other people lift weights," he said.

His wife gives her wholehearted endorsement to the idea.

"He tells it better than I," she said. "The whole family shares his ambitions."

And while sometimes the ambitions cause friction (like when Sheila wants to go somewhere and Ron would rather work out), the two, and their three children, haven't let setbacks get in their way.

"Sure, there's days when I don't want to go out and lift, but then my wife reminds me and then I feel good again," he said.

He laughingly adds that most powerlifters don't reach their "peak" until about the age of 45.

"Just think I've got about 15 more years of this," he said looking over at his wife.

Chances of Carew trade 'excellent'

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Chances are excellent Minnesota Twin superstar Rod Carew can be traded to an American League team or, if nothing materializes, to the National League San Francisco Giants, his agent said Monday.

... trade ahead

Twins President Calvin Griffith has offered Carew $2 million over five years but Carew has said he wants $3.5 million to stay with the Twins, which he'd prefer, or more than that from any other club.

He turned down $3.5 million from the Giants Friday just before the interleague trading deadline but left the door open to resume talks when AL-NL trading reopens in mid-February.

"We would like to have the matter cleared up as soon as possible," said Jerry Simon, Carew's agent. "I don't say with the Twins, because it appears it has to be cleared up in the foreground of a trade."

Griffith, just unpacked after attending the baseball meetings in Florida, said Monday his five-year $2 million offer to the first baseman "has not changed one iota."

"We're not trying to do anything at the present time," he said in regard to possible American League trades involving Carew. "We're just taking inventory and sending out contracts."

Simon called AL trade possibilities "wide open ... but if we don't get that accomplished I think a trade with San Francisco could be worked out in the next interleague trading period."

At this point, he said, it's the Twins' move. "They have to talk to us. We can't talk to any team without their permission. But this is only Monday and we're not expecting any phone calls that fast."

Carew has presented a list of teams he would consider joining. The AL possibilities are Kansas City, Boston, New York and California. NL teams are Philadelphia, San Diego, Cincinnati—and now San Francisco.

As a player with 10 years in the league and more than five with one team, Carew has the right to veto trades. If offers fail to attract him, he can play out his option next season and then become a free agent.

While Giant owner Bob Lurie believes Carew wants to stay with the Twins, Simon considers that question "academic."

Griffith, who has a reputation for refusing to pay big salaries, was asked whether money was the sole obstacle in negotiations with his best player.

Johnny Bench named in New Jersey suit

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds' catcher Johnny Bench was named a defendant Monday in a federal court suit filed by a New Jersey woman who charged that a batting machine he endorses malfunctioned and blinded her in one eye.

Claudia Sandelin of Salem, N.J., sought damages of $500,000 in her suit for injuries sustained from the "Johnny Bench Batter-Up" machine—a mechanical device which tosses a plastic ball for batting practice.

The suit also named as defendants the Cincinnati Reds baseball club, the Fonas Corp. of Latrobe, Pa., manufacturer of the machine, and Buddy's Sporting Goods of Salem, where the plaintiff purchased the item.

The suit said that on May 31, 1977, Sandelin was "observing the machine in action" when a fiberglass wand snapped off and struck her in the left eye.

"The plaintiff is now blind in that eye and has suffered "permanent and severe shock to her nervous system," the suit said.

It alleged that the defendants "breached" their safety warranties and that their negligence made the machine unsafe.

Mann joins NBC crew

NEW YORK (UPI) — Carol Mann, a longtime regular on the LPGA tour, has been assigned by NBC-TV to work on its men's golf coverage for 1979, the network announced Monday.

NBC will televise 11 tournaments in 1979, beginning with the Bob Hope Desert Classic at Palm Desert, Calif., Jan. 11-14.

Pro football Redskins still have playoff chances

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite the fact they have lost seven of their last nine games and are in a state of near-collapse, the Washington Redskins still have a chance to make the NFL playoffs as a wild card entrant.

It's up to the Redskins, 8-7, to defeat the Chicago Bears, 6-9, Saturday at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium and then hope for Philadelphia, 8-7, and either Minnesota or Green Bay, both 8-6-1, to lose Sunday. It's almost a replay of a year ago.

Last year, the Redskins needed to beat Los Angeles on the final Saturday of the regular season and then had to pull for the Bears to lose on Sunday. Washington won, but the Bears also won the following day and went into the playoffs leaving the Redskins at home.

"I like the idea of playing first and determining our own fate to that extent," Redskins Coach Jack Pardee, who coached the Bears last year, said Monday. "Last year, we had to wait around until Sunday. I'd rather have it this way, knowing we have to go out and win, not sit around and wait."

In a must-win situation Sunday, the Redskins fell, 20-17, as Atlanta practically clinched a wild card spot when Tim Matze kicked a "second chance" 22-yard field goal after the time had expired. Redskins defensive tackle Perry Brooks blocked Matze's 37-yard attempt on the previous play.

but defensive end Tom McDole was detected offside on the play.

"I've watched stop action and slow motion replays of the play and I still don't think Ron was offside. I thought Ron made a perfect play. Their center (Paul Ryczek) picks up the ball to make the snap on kicks," said Pardee, demonstrating with a football in the Redskin Park equipment room.

"It isn't a good way to snap, because it gives the defense a quick start, but a lot of centers in the league do it. It isn't illegal and I don't think he was trying to do anything to draw us offside. He snapped that way on every kick. We even told the officials about it before the game."

Pardee refused to be too upset with the officials, calling the officials who worked Sunday's game "an excellent crew, and I still think that today."

"They didn't over-officiate the game. It was a hard-hitting game and the officials didn't do anything to discourage aggressiveness. They did a good job of keeping an emotional game under control."

"It was just a judgement call by the official (line judge Al Sabate) and (head linesman Bruce) Alford backed him up on the call. The fact that a call like that puts a team in the playoffs makes it more difficult to take."

Celebrating U.S. win

Sunday, the win clinched the Davis Cup for the U.S. for the first time since 1972.

Houston's Bethea recalls '69 game

HOUSTON (UPI) — Elvin Bethea was the only member of the Houston Oilers to have played in the team's last playoff game, and Monday he wrinkled his brow as he recalled that painful experience.

"We should have stayed home. We had no business being in the playoffs," Bethea said. "Oh yeah, I was excited about it at the time. But when it was 35-0 at half, I just wished we had stayed home."

That 1969 Oilers team finished the season 6-7-2. The game Bethea referred to was a 36-7 defeat of Oakland which determined one berth in the AFL championship game.

From 1969 to this past Sunday, Houston players have had no reason to interrupt their Christmas shopping. But the string was broken when they beat New Orleans 17-12, improved their record to 10-5 and won the right to play Miami in a Dec. 24 playoff game no matter what they do in a final regular season game against San Diego Sunday.

"I say that I was happy does not describe what I felt when we came off the field yesterday," said Bethea, an 11-year veteran defensive end. Between the 1969 playoff game and 1974, when Coach Bum Phillips arrived in Houston, the Oilers won nine of 56 games.

"It feels good to be in the playoffs, either at home or away," fourth-year head coach Phillips told reporters at his Monday news conference.

His team defeated San Diego Sunday, the Christmas Eve game against the Dolphins will be in the AstroDome. On the other hand, a combination of a Houston loss to the Chargers and a Miami win over New England Sunday would shift the game to Miami.

"We need to beat San Diego, bad," Phillips said. "We're going in just like it was a playoff game. We're obligated to do that for the respect of our fans and ourselves. Miami is tough to play anywhere. New England is going to find out this weekend down there."

Asked if backup quarterback Gifford Nielsen might replace Dan Pastorini in Sunday's game, Phillips said, "We've got to win the game. We need to play at home." Phillips said he would have a healthier team against the Chargers.

"We did not get anyone reinjured Sunday," he said. Pastorini (cracked ribs) and running back Earl Campbell (three cracked ribs) played a full shift against the Saints.

Rookie Campbell gained 63 yards to maintain his NFL rushing lead at 1,369 yards, and he remained in the game as the Oilers ran out the clock on a final offensive series. Television commentators questioned Phillips' decision to risk further injury to Campbell.

"We had to keep the ball as long as we could," the coach said. "And we've got a guy there that's gonna be the rookie of the year and maybe the outstanding player in the NFL."

Olympic committee approves most points in LA pact

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — The U.S. Olympic Committee Executive Board has unanimously approved the major points in an agreement with the private sector in Los Angeles for the establishment of the 1984 Olympic Games Organizing Committee, an official announced Monday.

The announcement was made by Robert J. Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, following an executive board meeting last weekend.

"We are gratified that we have been able to conclude successful discussions with the Los Angeles private sector as a prelude to the establishment of the policy making and executive groups to carry on preparations for the 1984 Olympic Games," Kane said.

The main points of the agreement include: • The Los Angeles Olympic Games Organizing Committee will include 52 persons with 10 to be appointed by the USOC. In addition, the two International Olympic Committee members for the USA — Douglas F. Roby of Ypsilanti, Mich., and Julian K. Roosevelt, Oyster Bay, N.Y. — will be members.

• The executive committee will be a management committee charged with the responsibility for the day-to-day operations. In the group of 20 members, five will be appointed directly by the USOC. The two IOC members for the United States will serve as non-voting members.

• The Los Angeles representatives and the USOC agreed it would require a 75 percent vote of the executive committee for approval of the initial budget covering capital, operating and administrative expenses.

• There will be a $50 million limit on capital expenditures. Any expenditure over the established limit would require a three-fourths vote of the executive committee, except for capital expenditures funded by outside sources, such as the U.S. government.

• The USOC will have a liaison person on the working staff of the organizing committee.

Also to be included in the final contract to be worked out between the officers of the USOC and representatives of the private sector in Los Angeles will be an indemnification up to $50 million for an excess of expenditures over income.

It was further noted that the selection of a general manager and a public accounting firm, as well as the selection of a general insurance agent, would be accomplished in discussions with the USOC and the Los Angeles members of the organizing committee.

For any excess income over expenditures generated by the Games, it was mutually agreeable that 40 percent of the surplus would remain with the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee for the enhancement and expansion of amateur sports, another 40 percent would accrue to the USOC and the remaining 20 percent would be for the benefit of amateur sports national programs in the United States to be allocated to the national governing bodies through the USOC.

Angelo State gets ready for finale

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Top-ranked Angelo State (Texas), unbeaten in 13 games this year, will battle Elon (N.C.) College, 11-1-1, for the NAIA Division I football championship Saturday in the City of Palms Bowl at McAllen, Texas.

Angelo State, which has a 15-game winning streak going back to last season, bounced No. 2-rated Western State (Colo.) 35-3 last Saturday to advance to the title game. Elon, rated No. 6 in the final NAIA coaches ratings, beat Grand Valley State (Mich.) 13-7.

Jerry Aldridge, a 6-foot-2, 210-pound senior running back who has a string of 16 consecutive games with 100 or more yards rushing, is one key to Angelo State's offense. Aldridge had 1,483 yards and 12 touchdowns during the regular season.

The other key is senior quarterback Mark Embry who has connected on 106 of 215 passes for 1,745 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Elon is led by Bobby Hendrix, a 6-foot-1, 178-pound sophomore halfback, who has 1,329 yards and 18 touchdowns, and senior quarterback Mike Currin, who has 1,272 yards and seven touchdowns in connecting on 81 of 196 passes.

Defensively, Angelo State is led by senior linebacker Kelvin Smith, 6-0, 230 pounds, who has 146 tackles.

Tourney seeks more teams

TWIN FALLS — Teams still have time to enter the annual O'Leary Basketball Tournament sponsored by the Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School Lettermen's Club.

The tournament will be held Dec. 20-23 at the junior high gymnasium, according to O'Leary Athletic Director Clarence Phillips.

"We're looking for any organized basketball teams which want to participate," he said.

About eight teams already have signed up to play, but he noted there was room for a few more.

Those who would like to play should contact him by calling 733-1701 or calling him at the school.

Steelers name Bradshaw their most valuable player

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who has thrown a league-high 76 touchdown passes while leading the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 13-2 record and the AFC Central Division title, Monday was named the team's Most Valuable Player.

It marks the second consecutive year that Bradshaw's teammates have voted him the award. "This is really a great honor for me," Bradshaw said, humbly. "I never thought I'd get it. Once in my career is enough. That's reward enough just to get it once. I was satisfied, even if I had never won it again.

"We have so many on this team that have had such a great year and they all voted for me. I just can't believe it. I'm not good at accepting things like this. I'm really touched that they think so much of me."

Without a doubt, Bradshaw is winding up the finest season of his nine-year pro career. Going into the Steelers' final game of the regular season at Denver this Sunday, Bradshaw's records also show 187 completed passes in 354 attempts for a 52 percent and 2,784 passing yards. He is the only quarterback in the NFL to throw a scoring pass in 14 of the 15 games.

He is the first Steeler ever to come close to a league passing title, trailing New Orleans' Archie Manning and Dallas' Roger Staubach by only a hair this week.

Whether he overtakes them or not, he is a solid candidate for league MVP honors, but even that award may not top the one his teammates have bestowed upon him.

"I think this one's probably better," he said. "These guys know me here. They're my friends. I've worked with them since last July. We've come a long way together."

"I've never won the other (league's) so if I ever cross that, ask me then what I think. Right now I'm having a hard time just handling this one."

Bradshaw's performance on the field and his friendly, "down-home" manner off the field have made him a young leader on the team.

League honors forward

BOISE (UPI) — Montana State forward Leroy Moreno and Weber State's 6-5 swingman Bruce Collins have been picked to share Big Sky Conference player-of-the-week honors.

Moreno, a 6-6 player from Washington, D.C., helped his team to victories over Western Illinois, 86-63, and Pacific, 83-66, by scoring 33 points and snaring 19 rebounds.

22 rebounds and made six steals as the Wildcats crushed South Dakota State, 80-50, and Texas-Wesleyan, 101-63, and lost to Long Beach State, 69-67.

Also nominated for the award were Sean McKenna, Boise State; Paul Cathey, Gonzaga; Don Newman, Idaho; Lawrence Butler, Idaho State; John Schroeder, Montana; and Mark Stevens, Northern Arizona.

WAC foes not having much early year luck

By United Press International
There's an old saying that it's not the size of the dog in the fight that matters, but rather the size of the fight in the dog. But that doesn't apply against Western Athletic Conference basketball teams.

Two weeks into the season, the league's seven teams have built an impressive 28-10 record against non-conference opponents. The first-most of the teams' early season schedules are filled with such notable as Augustana, Phillips College, Drexel and Midwestern, it's still tough to separate talent from mismatches.

But at least preseason favorite Brigham Young, defending champion New Mexico and league newcomer San Diego State have started to build reasonable credentials.

BYU, off to a 6-1 start, captured its own Cougar Classic over the weekend, downing St. Joseph's (Pa.), 90-71, and Big Ten member Purdue, 76-64. Forward Devin Durrant, one of two freshmen who has earned a starting spot, and sophomore gunner Danny Ainge combined for 47 points in the tournament victory over Purdue.

Ainge, who scored 21 points against Purdue and 41 in the two-day tournament, was named the Classic's Most Valuable Player.

San Diego State's 4-1 record includes a 77-75 win over San Francisco on the Dons' homecourt. The Aztecs, who lost their season opener to Oregon State, now have won four straight, including a 65-57 victory over Toledo Saturday.

New Mexico lost most of its firepower from the 1977-78 championship team that led the nation in scoring. But Coach Norm Ellenberger simply rebounded with a new crop of junior college standouts.

The Lobos, once again averaging over 90 points per game, finished second to tough Arizona State in the Fiesta Classic last week and this week raised their record to 4-2 with an 81-74 win over New Mexico State. The victory avenged an earlier 96-59 loss to the Aggies.

Larry Bell and Everett Jefferson, two of those new recruits, combined for 45 points in the victory over New Mexico State.

Winning, which is supposed to be one of the also-ones in the "chase" begins, pulled off the major upset of the week, beating previously unbeaten Texas Tech, 66-65, on the Red Raiders' homecourt. The Cowboys are now 4-1.

Texas-EI Paso, full of sophomores, juniors and potential, has won five of its first six games. The Miners saw a four-game winning streak snapped by George Washington, 81-71, in the opening round of the First Union Invitational at Charlotte, N.C., Friday but bounced back to defeat Hofstra.

Japan makes run at China in games

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Japan grabbed a fistful of medals in the 8th Asian Games Monday, pulling to within striking distance of China with the swimming competition coming up in which they could sweep the golds.

The Japanese picked up 10 golds, three silvers and four bronze medals Monday but could not pull even with the Chinese, who continued to dominate gymnastics thanks to brilliant performances by their women.

At the end of Monday's play, China led the medals table with 16 gold, 12 silver and 15 bronze—Japan, which had only four medals entering the day, finished with 10 gold, four silver and seven bronze medals.

A strong North Korean delegation was third, picking up two golds—one after a bitter dispute—in gymnastics and another in weightlifting.

The North Koreans had a total of eight gold, seven silver and five bronze medals after the third day of the Games, which opened last Saturday in the Thai capital.

Sources close to the Japanese swimming team said they would not be surprised if they took all 29 golds in swimming. Japan won 21 events in the Tehran Games.

The track and field events get under way at midweek with the Japanese again favored.

Japan's gold-medals Monday came in the opening event, the 100-kilometer team cycling, followed by the men's foil. The Japanese also captured three men's gymnastic events, the team and individual 10-meters air pistol.

The Chinese women swept all but one of the gymnastic golds while the men shared honors with Japan.

North Korea won a share of the gold after heated protests by a North Korean judge, who had given compatriot Kim Gwang-Jin a much higher rating than other officials. After a lengthy argument, Kim's score was corrected, enabling him to tie China's Huang Yu-Pin.

Sage team competes in state tourney

IDAHO FALLS — Three members of the Sage Gymnastics team of Twin Falls competed in the United States Gym Federation Class III state championships last weekend.

Katie McRoberts, Wendy Perry and Ellen Buck all placed in the meet in different events. The gymnastics team is in its sixth month of operation.

Buck, 10, placed fifth in floor exercise with an 8.1 and Perry, 9, placed sixth with 8.05.

Perry finished the day with her highest all-around score of 32.05 and Buck also scored her highest with 31.9.

McRoberts, 14, placed fourth on the bars with 8.7 and sixth on the vault with 8.8. She finished with 33.25 points in the all-around competition.

According to national rules, a girl who scores a minimum of 33.00 points at the state meet must move up to Class II for the next year. McRoberts will be joining the six member Class II team at Sage.

Sage finished in ninth place in the tournament with 97.2 points. Wings Gymnastics of Boise captured first.

Next for Sage will be a Class II meet Saturday at Boise.

Final day for races

SUN VALLEY — Mark Tache of Aspen, Colo., and Catherine Bruce of Corning, N.Y. won their respective slalom races at the Western Holiday Ski Classic at Sun Valley Monday.

Tache edged Cory Murdock of Tahoe, Calif., the giant slalom winner Sunday, with a time of 1:20.21 to Murdock's 1:21.34.

Other top finishers in the men's division were Hansi Standeiner of Seattle, Wash., 1:22.50; Mike Durtch of Boulder, Colo., 1:23.03; and Garrett Walker of Sun Valley, 1:23.05.

In the women's competition, Bruce beat Mary Seaton of Hancock, Mo. with a time of 1:22.11 to Seaton's 1:23.78.

Margaret Crane of Plymouth, N.H. came in with a 1:24.03 followed by Jane Tibball of Alberta, Canada with 1:25.27 and Flavia Fult of Colorado Springs, Colo. 1:26.78.

Another slalom race will be held today beginning at 9 a.m. With the conclusion of that race, an awards ceremony will be held at 4 p.m.

This will bring to a close the five-day racing classic at Sun Valley.

Clinic set on skiing

JEROME — A free cross country clinic is planned Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at Pioneer Hall in Jerome.

The clinic, sponsored by the Jerome Recreation District, will include a variety of information on proper equipment, necessary clothing, skiing techniques, safety and nearby skiing areas. The clinic will be instructed by Bob Rasso, a cross country racer and instructor who runs the Elephants Perch in Ketchum.

An on-the-snow clinic is planned for January in the Ketchum area. Registration will be taken at the Wednesday meeting.

For more information contact the Jerome Recreation District at 324-5767.

New contract Everything's with Rice

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Rice looks great and feels even better. Why not?

How would you feel if you were about to lay $5 million on you and there was a chance the same thing could happen to you all over again before you were through?

Primarily because he has both age and ability on his side, Jim Rice could wind up being a free agent twice. If he plays out his present option with the Red Sox, he'll become available to the highest bidder at the end of the 1980 season and even if he signs for five more years then, he'd be only 32 when that contract runs out.

... feelin' good

Look at Red Carew. He's 33 and the Giants are willing to pay him more than $3 million. And don't forget last week's signee, Pete Rose, who's 37, a young 37, and got more than $3 million from the Phillies.

Rice is only 25 and generates more power than Rose and Carew put together. He had the kind of year that was almost too good to be true, winning the American League's MVP award going away, and what the Red Sox want to make sure he doesn't do now is go away.

He has two more years on his present contract and Haywood Sullivan, the Red Sox executive vice president and general manager, and Al Curran, the club's attorney, are talking to Rice and his attorney, Tony Pennacchia, about a new contract.

Pennacchia already has given the Red Sox Rice's figure and Sullivan has told him he'd get back to them.

When the Yankees signed Luis Tiant not long ago after he had chosen his free agency with the Red Sox, Carl Yastrzemski called Tiant "the heart of our pitching staff" and said the Yankees had "torn away our heart."

Pennacchia considers Rice more than merely the heart of the Red

Sox offense, he considers him "the best ballplayer in the game today."

To support his contention, all Pennacchia has to do is point to Rice's 139 RBI, 46 homers, 213 hits, 406 total bases, 15 triples and .600 slugging percentage making him the league leader in each of those departments. Rice's .315 batting average was third best in the league.

I don't know the exact figures, but I'd say Rice is asking for somewhere around $5.2 million over the next seven years and that would include a bonus up front. Broken down, that comes out to better than $700,000 a year and if it sounds like a lot to you, it does to me. But you have to bear in mind the Phils gave Rose more than that, the Red Sox gave Fred Lynn a bonus of $875,000 alone two years ago along with a comparable four-year contract extension, and Dave Parker very likely will get at least $800,000 a year with the Pirates.

Rice was in Orlando, Fla., during the baseball meetings last week for a promotional venture he was involved in with Ron Guidry and Dave Lopes and seeing him and talking with him briefly, I couldn't help but feeling a bit sorry for him despite the fact he'll probably get that $5 million or close to it.

Everywhere he went, everybody badgered him, offering him tons of advice, wanting to know how much he'd like from the Red Sox, and how he felt about Pete Rose getting as much as he did.

At times, it was hard, but Jim Rice always kept his cool. He has good character, is a genuine person and doesn't necessarily feel he has to be the highest paid player in the game. The more people keep asking him about it, though, the more it annoys him because he senses a degree of challenge in the questions.

On his flight from Anderson, S.C., to Orlando last Tuesday, Rice met Rose on the plane when Pete got on in Atlanta. Rice congratulated him on his new contract and they talked awhile.

When Rice arrived in Orlando, he was constantly asked about his contract and was he going to ask for more than Rose did?

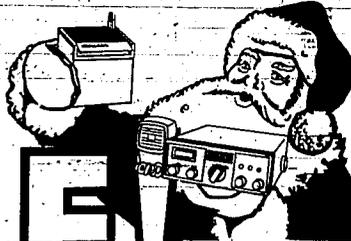

"Pete Rose is Pete Rose," he said. "What he did is strictly his business. I'm Jim Rice. I have two more years on my contract. Who knows? I might be worth even more by then."

In all likelihood, Rice will sign a new contract with the Red Sox. They've already agreed on the length of it. Five years. Now it all comes down to one basic thing: money.

"In my opinion, Jimmy is the best ball player in the game today," says Pennacchia, naturally partial. "Being the highest paid player is not the most important thing to him. He's not on an ego trip. Historically, players who play out their options have problems. Jimmy would rather not, and that's why he'd just as soon eliminate future potential problems now."

U.S. scores win in women's skiing

PIANCAVALLO, Italy (UPI) — Abigail Fisher of South Conway, N.H., had nothing but smiles after "going for broke" to become the first U.S. woman skier to win a World Cup race in three years.

The 21-year-old American won a special slalom Sunday, nipping Frances Perrine Pelcy by one hundredth of a second over two runs. Fisher's surprising triumph was the

Ski areas change reporting ways

WOODSTOCK, Vt. (UPI) — Several New England ski areas have a new method of reporting slope conditions in order to reduce the likelihood of factious lawsuits, according to a ski industry spokesman.

Milton White, a New England Ski Areas Council staff member, said Sunday signs now advise skiers that conditions are subject to change.

The switch came about because ski areas are unwilling to guarantee good or safe skiing, Moore said. An injured skier might report he was hurt because he fell on a patch of ice and was ill-advised that conditions were good, he added.

At some ski areas, signs are posted near lift windows informing skiers the sport is hazardous. And the number of safety displays and guides at the areas is increasing.

first World Cup victory by an American woman since Cindy Nelson won a downhill in 1975.

Italy's Claudio Giordani and Fisher teamed up to win the slalom. McKinney were clocked dead even in third place.

Fisher now has 25 points in the world cup standings, only three behind early leader Anne-Marie Moser Proell of Austria. Moser Proell had her troubles and finished seventh, nearly two seconds behind Fisher.

"I went for broke, which is the way I always do things," the petite Fisher said after the race.

"Sure, I make mistakes, and most of the time I only manage one good run. But this time something clicked and each run went like a dream."

Fisher was fifth in the first run and third in the second to give her a winning time of 1 minute, 48.81 seconds, a flash ahead of French whiz-kid Perrin, who came in at 1:49.82.

While Fisher drew the laurels, McKinney got most of the praise. The 16-year-old rookie, ranked 21st in the world going into Sunday's race, made her World Cup debut memorably by tying Giordani in third.

"My mother was a ski instructor who married a football player and had eight tall blond kids," said the diminutive McKinney. "Then she got divorced and married a jockey. Guess which batch I come from."

and wind up with 12 tricks? The answer is that South hadn't seen any cards, but he was playing as safely as possible for his contract. He was pleased that a diamond had not been opened and wanted to make sure that West—wast—ever—going—to get in to lead a diamond. So he ducked the first spade. Then he made that unusual trump play without really caring if the finesse lost. The point being that if the finesse lost the best defense could do would be to cash one diamond plus the spade and the trump.

As South, you hold:

West opens one heart. Your partner overcalls two spades. East passes. An Oregon reader asks what he should bid.

This is a place for the two-heart cue bid. If partner can find any stronger bid than two spades, you can go into Blackwood.
