

U.S. and China get together

Delegation of Chinese scientists visiting Cape Canaveral applaud President Carter's big news

Full diplomatic relations established with Peking; ties broken with Taiwan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter announced Friday the United States will establish full relations with communist China on Jan. 1 and end its historic defensive alliance with Taiwan in one stunning break with the past.

Carter announced "this final historic agreement" in a dramatic evening television address that drew reaction ranging from outrage among congressional conservatives to support from former President Richard Nixon — architect of U.S.-Chinese detente.

But an official Taiwan government statement broadcast by Taipei radio stations said the decision "has not only seriously damaged the rights and interests... of (Taiwan) but has tremendous adverse impact upon the entire free world."

Carter, beaming with pleasure after his television appearance, told reporters he is confident the Soviets — whose ambassador he informed in advance but did not immediately respond publicly — will take the move in stride.

And he said "the interests of Taiwan have been adequately protected" even without official U.S. recognition or the mutual defense treaty that will be scrapped.

In his televised address and in an accompanying U.S.-Chinese communique — announced simultaneously by Chairman Hua Kuo-feng in Peking's Great Hall of the People — Carter made public these main points:

• "Washington and Peking will establish full diplomatic relations as of Jan. 1 and actually exchange ambassadors March 1.

• U.S.-Taiwan diplomatic relations will be severed and the Nationalist island nation regarded as "part of China," allowed to have only cultural and commercial relations with "the American people."

• The 1954 Defense Treaty will be abrogated — although U.S. officials explained later that will take place only at the end of 1979, in accordance with one-year notification requirements — and the 350-400 U.S. military personnel still in Taiwan will be withdrawn within four months.

• China's Teng Tiao-ping will visit Washington at the end of January, the first Peking leader of his rank to visit the United States officially.

Relations between the once bitter enemies have been improving for more than seven years and one of the first major results of Carter's policy was expected to be an acceleration of the multibillion-dollar trade between the two countries.

After his address, Carter acknowledged to reporters the congressional leaders he had summoned to the White House for an advance briefing on his breathtaking policy announcement had given him "mixed reviews."

Supporters included Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., who said he would support R.N.C., who accused Carter of "selling Taiwan down the river" and many other equally angered conservative anti-communist legislators.

Former President Gerald Ford, notified personally by Carter, expressed his support, however, and a high-ranking White House official said he had telephoned advance word to Nixon in San Clemente, Calif., and received the congratulations of the former president.

Taiwan government has several bitter words

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — The Nationalist Chinese government reacted with bitterness today to President Carter's decision to establish relations with China and charged the move has cost America the confidence of free nations.

Taipei radio stations broadcast an official government statement saying the decision "has not only seriously damaged the rights and interests of the government and people... of (Taiwan) but has tremendous adverse impact upon the entire free world."

The broadcast said the repeated assurances of successive U.S. administrations to honor the United States diplomatic and treaty commitments amounted to nothing. "Now that (the U.S. government) has broken assurances and abrogated (the defense) treaty (it) cannot be expected to have the confidence of any free nation in the future."

The Carter announcement — its timing as much as the act itself — took the government and people of Taiwan by surprise.

Sentiments bordering on panic and outright bitterness toward the United States in general and Carter in particular swept through the island. Radio stations first announced the dramatic decision to an awaking population of 17 million.

All the top-ranking government officials moved with stunned and spent faces to an emergency meeting at 7 a.m. (6 p.m. EST Friday) but the government had no statement.

U.S. Embassy officials began working overtime to prepare to close down their office and leave the country that is one of the few in the world where nobody has ever shouted "Yankee go home!"

No matter what Washington plans to retain in official relations with the Taiwan government, the Carter move is viewed as one of abandonment.

The damage to Taiwan, according to one diplomatic observer, is immeasurable.

The U.S. diplomatic switch is expected to bring an exodus of people who can afford to leave Taiwan.

"The damage on the island's so far booming economy, particularly on badly needed foreign investment, is probably irreparable," an observer said.

Chu Liang-cheng, managing editor of the English-language China News, pointed out that Carter's decision came on the heels of the Amnesty International survey that showed human rights hardly exist in China.

"This treacherous act proves Carter's human rights campaign is hypocrisy," Chu said. "It also shows the U.S. government under the leadership of Carter and other recent presidents is just as unreliable and untrustworthy as the Soviet Union."

An international relations professor at Chungshin University said, "I can only say we made a terrible mistake in the Second World War by fighting the Japanese.

"If we had fought the Americans instead, China today would have been at worst a severed country, half of it occupied by the Russians and the other half under the protection of the United States."

Carter's announcement came before newspapers were published and television began broadcasting and there was little activity on the streets of the capital city.

The government ordered security guards to the shabby, gray American Embassy building in downtown Taipei and to homes of embassy officials in case trouble breaks out.

He's a diabetic and minus a leg, but things could be a lot worse

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News Writer

WENDELL — While losing a leg sounds traumatic for Joe Marsh, a Wendell accountant, the actual amputation came as more of a relief. "I was glad to get rid of the darned thing," Marsh said recently. "It hurt so bad and I could hardly walk."

When his doctor suggested "Let's get you a foot you can walk on" it sounded like good advice to Marsh, who has been a diabetic for 20 years.

While no one can say for sure that the amputation is the direct result of his disease, diabetes are known to be infection-prone.

His infection started in October 1975 when Marsh stepped on a used toothpick and punctured the ball of his foot under his big toe.

By the end of the month gangrene had set in, damaging the muscle of his big toe so much it was pointing straight up, and useless, Marsh's toe was removed.

Later the infection reoccurred and went into the bone. He also had an ulcer on the bottom of his foot making it painful to even try to walk.

"There's only way to get rid of infection in bone and that's to cut it off," Marsh said, cheerfully minimizing his long bout of pain and hospitalization. "Sure I get days when I'm depressed and don't feel good," he admitted, "but you can always find someone worse off than you are. Anyway, my wife won't let me feel sorry for myself."

His troubles were far from over with the demise of the infected leg. The stump would not heal.

and intends to keep working as long as he is able.

A native of Indiana, Marsh came to Wendell in 1950, finishing high school here.

It was while a senior at the College of Idaho in Caldwell, just before he turned 21, that Marsh learned he had diabetes.

Aside from a few colds, he said he had no health problems before that. In contrast, the disease showed up in his son, Joey, last year when the boy was only five years old.

Before his own disease was identified, Marsh said he "could sit down and eat a big meal and be hungry a little bit later." He also was "always thirsty" and tired.

While authorities disagree on whether or not diabetes is inherited or the tendencies are inherited, Marsh believes his condition could be inherited.

He learned he had diabetes on his grandmother's 80th birthday. Eight years later, she was found to be a diabetic.

The discovery that he had a chronic disease did not affect Marsh's educational plans. He learned to give himself daily insulin injections and went on to earn a degree in accounting.

Marsh, who professes to like sales work as well, traveled the country after college for several years until 1967 when he went into accounting. "My first love is income tax work," he said.

City of Cleveland defaults, could be facing bankruptcy

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The city of Cleveland failed to meet a midnight deadline set by three banks for payment of $15.5 million in short-term notes, throwing the nation's 17th largest city into default that could lead to bankruptcy.

Mayor Dennis Kucinich and the city council held an 11th hour meeting but failed to come up with a plan to pay the $15.5 million in notes held by six banks.

Three banks had set the midnight deadline and the Cleveland Trust Co. — holder of a $5 million note — had said it would remain open until midnight in case the city came up with a payment plan.

But the day-long bickering between Kucinich and council continued during the special meeting.

Officials had said that even though the city entered default, services would continue at a near-normal level through the use of general revenue funds. But when the funds run out in February, the city would face bankruptcy — the first such collapse of a major American city since the Great Depression.

MAYOR KUCINICH... 11th hour bickering

But at the council meeting, Kucinich said he would not go into default, at least he will not have sold our souls. I don't believe the city of Cleveland should be made available to the highest bidder.

"There will be a run of creditors on the city's assets. We will not have money to pay them. As of Monday, I will be forced to order the layoffs of about half the police force — half the firefighting force — 1,000 police officers, 500 firefighters."

The mayor said trash removal would be made only once every two to three weeks.

Earlier Friday, Kucinich offered a compromise on the sale of the debt-ridden Municipal Light Plant in an apparent breakthrough to forestall bankruptcy for the city.

But at the council meeting, attorneys for the council said the plan violated the city charter.

EPA on alert for test fallout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Friday it is activating its radioactive monitoring equipment in case fallout from Thursday's Chinese nuclear test reaches the United States.

It said a preliminary forecast indicates fallout could hit the West Coast no earlier than Tuesday, "and then only if the nuclear detonation monitoring equipment in case fallout from Thursday's Chinese nuclear test reaches the United States.

It added that radioactivity concentrations in the air over the United States in any case "are expected to be very low."

Iranian government bans demonstrations

By SAJID RIZVI
TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Troops fired on a funeral procession Friday in the city of Shiraz and the government banned all demonstrations in an effort to end months of violence aimed at bringing down the shah.
 Reports reaching the capital said at least 50 persons were killed in rioting in provincial cities over the past 24 hours.
 Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, exiled leader of the religious opposition, said in Paris the shah was mentally disturbed and ordered a nationwide strike Monday to mourn riot victims.
 Prime Minister Gen. Gholam Reza

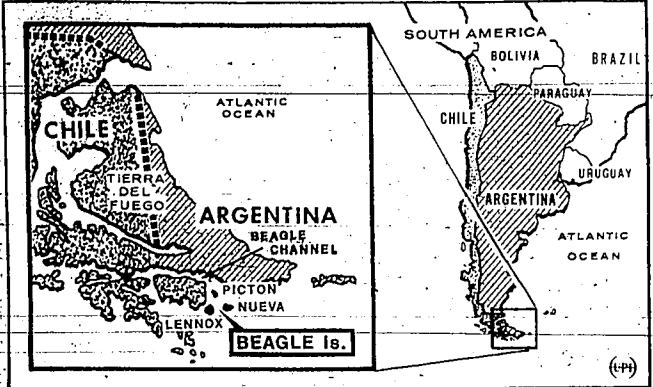

Azharl warned Iran's 67,000 striking oil workers to return to their jobs at once or face dismissal. But diplomats said it was unlikely the government would pressure the strikers too hard for fear of further confrontations.
 In the ancient southern town of Shiraz — traditionally a home of poets known as the "city of wine and roses" — soldiers opened fire on a procession of mourners carrying the bodies of those killed in Thursday's rioting.
 Witnesses said demonstrators began chanting anti-shah slogans and troops ordered them to disperse. They refused and the soldiers opened fire.
 No casualty figures were available but the witnesses said several persons were taken to hospital with bullet wounds.

 At least 24 persons were killed in Shiraz Thursday in demonstrations by tribesmen and farmers supporting the shah, according to the opposition National Front.
 Other reports said 18 people were killed in similar violence in and around Isfahan and eight more died in scattered clashes elsewhere.
 The government announced a strict ban on all demonstrations — pre-shah and anti-shah — after supporters of the monarch went on a three-day rampage of violence and arson in the provinces.

 The National Front led by Karim Sanjabi welcomed the ban and a spokesman said: "If the government had continued with that repression then the people and the Front would have responded in kind."
 Premier Azharl ordered an end to the crippling oil strike in a radio broadcast.
 He said: "I feel ashamed. While oil flows under my feet I have to go out and buy oil because some youths are influenced by the name of the shah."
 "In the name of the nation I appeal to the strikers to come back. I cannot believe that any Iranian would do such a thing to his country."

 Oil production has plunged from 5.9 million barrels a day to 1.25 million since 30 percent of the nation's oilworkers went on strike at the order of Khomeini.
 The stoppage is costing the government $60 million per day in foreign exchange earnings and has caused serious shortages of kerosene, gasoline and heating fuel.
 From his Paris exile the 78-year-old Khomeini ordered widespread strikes in support of the oil workers and a total shutdown Monday to mourn the dead in the rioting.
 The elderly leader of the majority

Shiite Muslim sect in Iran, said, "This latest attack of the shah has been due to his mental disturbances. I expect the shah to commit more and more crimes."
 "The shah is on the verge of his downfall. But he has vowed to turn Iran into ashes before he leaves."
 Khomeini declared Monday a "day of national mourning" to honor what he said were "defenseless people, machinegunned in their homes by the shah's agents."
 "Oil industry workers must go on with their strike until the downfall of the shah," Khomeini said.

War may erupt with Chile if Argentines occupy islands

By WALTER LOGAN
 UPI Foreign Editor
 U.S. intelligence sources said, Friday that Argentina might attempt this weekend to occupy one or more of the disputed islands in the far southern tip of South America, an act that could plunge Argentina into war with Chile.
 Troops on both sides have been placed on full military alert and the Chilean and Argentine navies have task forces including submarines and an aircraft carrier near the disputed Beagle Channel area.
 State Department officials, usually reluctant to comment on foreign situations involving possible armed conflicts, conceded Friday that the situation arising out of the Argentine-Chile territorial dispute was "quite serious."
 President Carter said in a televised interview Thursday night, "We have problems between Chile and Argentina concerning territory down there that could erupt into a conflict."
 U.N. Secretary General Kurt

Waldheim summoned Ambassador Sergio Diez of Chile and Enrique Ross of Argentina Thursday to express his concern over the deteriorating situation.
 State Department spokesman Hending Carter expressed concern Friday that the current tensions could get out of hand and spark a war. But in a carefully worded statement he said the United States does not believe the current tensions would do so.
 "While we do not believe that there is anything about the dispute that would cause us to think that active hostilities might result, the recent actions by both countries have created the sort of tensions that could result in events getting out of hand and hostilities beginning and escalating," he said.
 Carter said the United States "does not intend to become involved in the substance of this dispute" and that it is trying to solve the dispute through private diplomacy.
 Buenos Aires intelligence reports reaching New York said the hardliners in the Argentine military government were pressing President Jorge Videla not to give an inch and that Videla might be replaced if he insisted on further negotiations with Chile.

 One U.S. official acknowledged that, compared to past saber rattling over the Beagle Channel dispute, this was as close as the two countries have come to armed conflict. But the officials stressed that the next move was up to Argentina because it was considered unlikely that Chile would act first.
 The official said that both nations armed forces were in place. "Military there are ready," he said.
 If war broke out in the fjords of Patagonia and along the 2,600-mile border through the towering Andes, the Chileans say, Argentina would be entirely at fault on grounds Argentina has rejected international arbitration and U.S. efforts to take the dispute to the Organization of American States.

Callaghan wins vote in Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister James Callaghan won a crucial vote of confidence in Parliament Thursday and got the go-ahead to continue his government's fight against inflation with its controversial wage and sanctions polities.
 Callaghan had staked the life of his minority Labor Party government on the confidence vote, saying he would resign and call new elections if defeated.
 But the outcome of the vote had been certain beforehand with Callaghan counting enough supporters to assure him a slim majority of at least 10 votes.
 That in fact was all he got — a 10-vote majority as the House of Commons voted 300-290 to approve the government's anti-inflation policies only 24 hours after it rejected those same policies in two non-confidence votes.
 Callaghan told the House of Commons in a pre-vote speech that his minority Labor government was "not willing to give up the fight against inflation now."
 "The progress we have made is too substantial to be thrown away. The country at large would condemn us if we were to give up this fight," the prime minister said.
 Callaghan called the confidence vote after the Conservative opposition and left-wing members of his own party defeated the government Wednesday on two motions rejecting its sanctions polities.
 The motions were passed by slim margins after the government slapped economic sanctions on the American-owned Ford Motor Co. of Britain for granting wage increases higher than Callaghan's 5 per cent "anti-inflation" limit.
 Callaghan defended the sanctions as being "in the true interests of our people." But in an unexpected move, he also backed down on the Ford controversy and said he would cancel the sanctions he had imposed on the company.

Direct talks imminent Somoza accepts mediators' agenda

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Anastasio Somoza's opposition Friday accepted an agenda drafted by the United States and two other mediators for negotiations to end Nicaragua's civil strife.
 A spokesman for the Broad Opposition Front, a coalition of moderate opposition groups, said direct talks with Somoza could now begin as early as today, provided the Nicaraguan senate approves a general amnesty for political prisoners before then.
 It was not immediately clear whether the senate would act that quickly on the amnesty, which the opposition made one of its conditions for negotiating with Somoza.
 But the legislators were expected to approve it eventually. And in the meantime, another obstacle in the way of peace talks was removed Friday when the Opposition Front accepted the agenda drafted by the United States, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic.

 The agenda lists as the first priority of the talks the aims and organization of a plebiscite to determine whether Somoza resigns or remains in office until his presidential term expires in 1981.
 Both sides accepted the plebiscite in principle but disagreed over whether Somoza should stay in office — as he insists — or leave the country while it is being conducted — as the opposition has demanded.

Be fair response

Deliveries plague T-N

Morning just isn't the same without The Times-News, or so irate T-N subscribers seem to be saying.

This week's Be Fair mailbox contained half a dozen complaints concerning Times-News Sunday service, particularly on delivery morning.

And, there was a suggestion Chris Peck resign as editor after his column on The Paris women's clothing store.

But first, some thoughts on delivery.

Everyone at The Times-News knows the Sunday delivery of the paper during December has been sub-par.

The reason for the delivery problem concerns the size of the paper.

Quite simply, the T-N isn't equipped to adequately handle exceptionally large newspaper packages.

The December Sunday papers are big, sectionalized and full of advertising pre-prints. They can be delivered on time as long as the mechanical inserting equipment functions as it should, as long as every news department meets its deadline, as long as sports scores aren't late in being phoned in and the roads are good.

But if any one of these systems breaks down, a big Sunday paper may be late.

On Dec. 3, the mechanical inserter broke down.

That led to the telephoning of crews to hand insert the Sunday paper. That took time.

Some carriers didn't get their papers "delivered until after they went to church."

Then, the plotters start to ring at the Times-News.

Unfortunately, there is no easy answer to this inserting problem.

The machines work 90 percent of the time, but not all the time.

Deadlines are met most of the time but editors aren't without their flaws.

Roads aren't always clear.

What can be done and what has been done is to impress upon editors and the circulation department the importance of meeting deadlines and keeping the equipment in top shape.

And, the T-N is considering a change in its Sunday-work hours to better handle complaint calls and delivery of late papers.

Watch this column for an update on these proposed changes.

Now, on to that suggestion that Chris Peck resign as managing editor because of his flattering column on The Paris women's store.

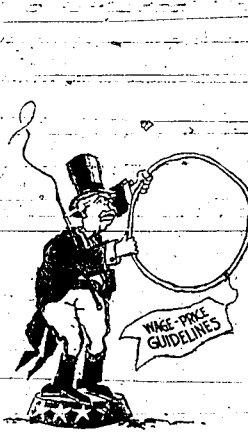

The reader took offense to the column because it was "not a story on its owner. It was about the merchandise and how wonderful it was to shop at the store."

Mr. Peck's response to this letter would be to ask the reader whether a newspaper columnist should or should not write about prominent and successful people in a community.

He feels the success of The Paris is interesting and noteworthy. Others stores may be just as successful and, in time, may be written up. The reader must remember a newspaper comes out 365 days per year, offering plenty of opportunity for other stories on successful businesses.

Keep those Be Fair coupons coming.

Yea! Crooks, not cops, handcuffed

WASHINGTON — Little by little, the Supreme Court under Warren Burger is correcting the excesses of the Supreme Court under Earl Warren. We saw this a week ago in a case involving a pair of armed robbers.

Those of us who believe in handcuffing the crooks and not the cops can raise a cheer: For once, hoorsy for our side.

These were the facts: At about 8:30 o'clock on the night of Feb. 4, 1975, two robbers burst into a Robert Hall clothing store in Baggonnals, Ill., south of Chicago. One of them swung a sawed-off .38-.30 rifle. They looted a cash register of $180, forced the employees to lie on the floor, and fled. Within an hour an alert police officer, eluded to watch for a dark Plymouth Roadrunner, spotted such a car containing two male and two female passengers.

The officer stopped the car, ordered the occupants out, and searched the vehicle. Under the front seat he found a sawed-off .30-.30 rifle; in the glove compartment he found a box of .30-.30 shells. He and other officers then arrested the two male suspects, Frank I. Rakas, 28, and Lonnie L. King, 30, alias Douglas Clontz. The two were tried by a jury for armed robbery and found guilty. Rakas got 16 to 30 years, King 8 to 24 years. Both had long criminal records.

The rifle, of course, was a key piece of evidence for the prosecution. After the verdict, defense counsel appealed through the Illinois courts, contending that the defendants' Fourth Amendment rights had been violated. It is the Fourth that protects the people from unreasonable searches of their persons, houses, papers and effects. On this issue the case worked its way to the Supreme Court. On Dec. 10, speaking through Justice William Rehnquist, a majority of the Court struck a blow for common sense. The convictions were affirmed.

Rehnquist and his four brothers went straight to the language of the great amendment itself. Fourth Amendment rights belong to "the people," which is to say, the rights are personal. Rakas and King were entitled to be protected against unreasonable searches of "their" property; the car belonged to King's former wife. Neither defendant claimed possession of the rifle and shells; thus, these were not "their" property either.

From this line of reasoning, it follows that neither Rakas nor King could have been aggrieved by an unlawful search and seizure of their property, because it was not their property that was searched, and seized. Their Fourth Amendment rights were never infringed. Thus, the rifle and shells could be introduced in evidence against them.

By its holding in the Rakas-King case, the court departed from two major decisions of the Warren era, Jones v. United States in 1969 and Alderman v. United States in 1969. These are key links in a chain of cases that established the "exclusionary rule," and the "fruit of the poisoned tree." Somewhat oversimplified, the rule says that evidence that has been poisoned by unlawful seizure must be excluded on trial of a case.

One trouble with the exclusionary rule, said Rehnquist, is that "relevant and reliable evidence is kept from the trier of fact and the search for truth at trial is defeated." Every time the exclusionary rule is applied, "it exacts a substantial social cost for the vindication of Fourth Amendment rights." True, the Fourth Amendment does provide a degree of protection for persons who are legitimately on the premises of someone else, but the rubric of "legitimately on premises" is not to be taken with blind adherence. A sawed-off rifle in somebody else's car is fair game for the cops.

The four dissenters, led by Justice Byron White, moaned that the majority had "eviscerated" the prior law and had invited police "to engage in patently unreasonable searches every time an automobile contains more than one occupant." I do not read the Rehnquist opinion that way. As mere passengers, Rakas and King had no Fourth Amendment rights in Mrs. Clontz's car. Convictions affirmed! In Earl Warren's time, it would have gone the other way.

Smallwood should play by rules

Jim Smallwood, a Twin Falls city councilman and a successful architect, should know better than to ask his fellow councilmen for special favors.

Yet last week Smallwood asked the council if a client of his could increase the number of units in an apartment without going through the normal procedures of applying for a building permit and a zoning variance.

It seems Smallwood's client applied for a conditional use permit some time back to change 10 four-plexes into six-unit apartment buildings.

That request was granted by the planning and zoning commission and the city council.

Sometime thereafter, according to Smallwood, this same client had another change of mind and asked the city building inspector if he could convert one of those six-unit buildings to 10 units.

Smallwood said the building inspector gave his client verbal approval to proceed.

Smallwood also said he showed the building inspector plans for the 10-unit building and also received a verbal okay to proceed.

Work began on the conversion to the 10-plex, but one day the building inspector showed up at the job and stopped work.

The building inspector told Smallwood he gave verbal approval to what he thought was a request to complete the originally planned conversion to six-unit building, not to turn the six-unit building into a 10-unit building.

Smallwood became angry. He asked the city council to waive the building permit requirement.

Smallwood blamed the building inspector for his problems.

But the Twin Falls city engineering department backs up the building inspector. It said at no time had a building permit been requested for a 10-unit building. No mention of a 10-unit building was made in the initial six-unit application nor in the conditional-use permit issued for the six-unit building.

As it should have done, the council told Smallwood to apply for a new building permit to build his 10-unit building.

Smallwood said the building inspector ought to get his act together.

Perhaps it is Smallwood who should get his act together.

Smallwood may have obtained verbal approval for his project at some time, but building permits are issued so there can be no mistake about exactly what will and can be built.

A building permit protects the builder. It guarantees the builder that he can go ahead with his project without interference. A verbal okay does not.

Most disturbing in this affair is the memory of Smallwood's previous attempt to circumvent established building procedures.

Earlier this year, Smallwood had to ask the council for a curb-cut variance at the new junior high school, which he designed, after he had already built the curb cut. He said he just got pressed for time, the equipment to do the job was on hand, and he didn't want to delay the work to wait for approval he knew he would get, anyway.

Smallwood knows the rules of the building business and the good reasons why they were established.

As a leading architect in the city, and especially as a councilman, he should play by those rules.

Revenge: an adult child's weapon

BOSTON — Not long ago I read an ad for a book on child psychology with the remarkable tag line, "Will your children remember you for what you did FOR them or what you did TO them?"

In a single, brilliant and thoroughly unflinching sentence, the copywriter captured the most wrenching aspect of the parent-child relationship as it's played out over generations: Guilt and Revenge.

Today, guilt is accepted as the original sin of parenting. It's a sin that comes not when we're born but when we give birth. Revenge, on the other hand, is regarded as a predictable—even reasonable—response to the unforgivable crime of malparenting.

What brings this to mind isn't Tom Hanks's suit against his parents or Nancy Friday's case against mothers. Rather, it's two more recent trips I've taken to the artistic wells of revenge.

Last week I read Claire Crawford's "Mommie Dearest," and saw Ingmar Bergman's "Autumn Sonata," and I am still dripping with their vengeance. Both of these works, one fact and one fiction, were variations on the theme of the year: mothers and daughters. In each, the mother was a strong, larger-than-life successful artist—an actress and a concert pianist.

The first, Joan Crawford, was pathologically abusive to her adopted daughter, the author. The second, Charlotte, was played brilliantly by Ingrid Bergman, was neglectful—literally or emotionally absent from much of her daughter's life.

They were walking targets for the poison pen or tongue of their daughters, each of whom seems to have lain in waiting to pounce. Claire Crawford wrote her book after her mother was dead. Eva, as played by Liv Ullmann, bided her time for seven years until her mother was finally vulnerable, in mourning for the man with whom she had lived.

Both these daughters use the magnitude of their mothers' crimes as permission for the most uncontrolled sort of attacks.

Of course, these are very different tales—as different as child abuse and child neglect, fact and fiction, Joan Crawford and Ingrid Bergman—but I think their success depends on our own instantaneous acceptance of the premise: parental guilt and child revenge as the cause and effect of human nature.

I am hardly a fan of child abuse or neglect, and you can scratch Joan Crawford off my dance card. Still, it seems to me that there has been a crucial change in the way we regard this kind of revenge.

In Greek theater, in Shakespeare, in the Bible, it was a tragedy for the child as well as the parent. But Crawford and Bergman, like so many cinematic matricide and literary character assassination as cathartic. They are even seen as "honest and healthy"—two words which cover more uncivilized behavior than was ever committed under the banner of Art in the name of Art.

In the Freudian chronology of life, as we accept it, there is a time when every child separates from his or her parents—judging them, even rejecting them. Like Eva, we change from seeing them as nearly perfect to seeing them as flawed or perhaps even crippled.

But the difference between a child of 39 and an adult of 39 may be the difference between revenge and empathy.

It isn't just the quality of mercy which is lacking in Christina Crawford or Eva. It's empathy. Neither of them seems able to see her mother in any context deeper or larger than that of her own pain—wounds inflicted, needs unmet.

They are both unrelenting in their accusations, one-dimensional in their vision. They can barely nod at the social or psychic or professional pressures on these other women. They brush away "excuses." They see only big, bad mothers.

Yet it seems to me that we are all survivors of our childhoods. We are all products of what was done for us AND what was done to us. But we flourish and "get things out of these histories. In the end, an adult is the one who stabilizes the volatile mixture of emotions regarding his or her parents with a strong dose of understanding.

Revenge is the weapon of the eternal child.

Lord Snowdon weds with Crown's blessing

By KIRSTEN O. LUNDBERG
LONDON (UPI) — Lord Snowdon, whose 18-year marriage to Princess Margaret ended in divorce five months ago, married Irish divorcee Lucy Lindsay-Hogg Friday with the blessing of the royal family.
Only the bride and groom and four witnesses — none from Buckingham Palace — were present at the 10-minute, $24 civil ceremony at the Kensington Register Office.

But a crowd waited outside in pouring rain for a glimpse of Lord Snowdon, 48, the photographer also known as Antony Armstrong-Jones, and the new Countess Snowdon, 37.
The bride, divorced from film director Michael Lindsay-Hogg in 1971, met Lord Snowdon in Australia in 1974. She works as a television-production assistant.
The wedding contrasted with Armstrong-Jones' 1960 marriage to Princess Margaret in the splendor of Westminster Abbey when thousands lined the flower-decked streets to watch the royal couple.

Friday's simple ceremony was followed by a family celebration at Lord Snowdon's home. Neither of his children by his marriage to Princess Margaret attended.
Police held back a crowd of newsmen and curious well-wishers as separate cars bore the bride and groom to the small, baroque red-brick Register Office.
Mrs. Lindsay-Hogg, wearing a blue-pleated skirt with blue and gold quilted jacket, arrived one minute before the 10:15 a.m. ceremony in a station wagon. She was halfway up the steps before the crowd recognized her.

Robert Kennedy stamp

The 1976 commemorative stamp honoring Sen. Robert F. Kennedy will be issued Jan. 1 at the Department of Justice. Kennedy was selected because he exemplified the spirit of an important era in American life and was one of the nation's most prominent political figures in recent decades, the Postal Service said.

Playboy's photographer at Brown

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — To the dismay of campus feminists, Playboy staff photographer David Chan spent this week eyeing Brown University's female students for an upcoming picture layout on Ivy League women.
"I love photographing women because they are the most beautiful things on earth. At this age a woman is like a rose in full bloom," says Chan, 41, a 14-year veteran of Playboy layouts.

A Brown feminist organization, Brown Educated Women Against Rape and Exploitation (BEWARE) — passed out leaflets on campus protesting the school newspaper's decision to run the "sexist and harmful" Playboys which asked interested women to stop by to chat with Chan at a local hotel.
"Playboy would portray Brown as admitting female students for their bodies, not for their maturity, intelligence or creativity," the group said in a letter to the newspaper. "It sets us all up as targets for sexual violence."
Chan says he can't understand what the flap is all about. "To me, a liberated woman is one who thinks for herself and knows how to have fun. Not one who's told what to do by women's groups."

Bud Weir's trembling body may have kept him alive

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — Bud Weir was exhausted but was trembling so hard he couldn't sleep.
That may be one of the reasons he's alive today.
The 37-year-old Royal Oak man, lost for nearly two days in dense Upper Peninsula woods with four-foot deep snow in some areas, faces probable amputation of all his toes and possibly part of his feet.

Still, Weir admitted Thursday from his bed at Providence Hospital in Southfield, "I'm lucky to be alive."
He and seven other Detroit-area snowmobilers left the town of Paradise early Saturday for a 40-mile journey to Newberry.
Weir became separated from the group after about 30 miles and decided to head back alone toward Paradise.

Although familiar with the area from previous snowmobiling trips, he said he somehow wandered off a Lake Superior shoreline trail. About an hour after the sun set, his machine broke through the ice into about 18 inches of water.
He decided to walk.
"Between the shoreline and high ground there was a marsh I didn't know about," Weir said. "In I went. I was soaked from head to toe. It was a terrible struggle to get out. I knew I was in trouble."
He said he kept walking all night in sub-zero temperatures, though his boots "were full of water."
Weir said he walked all day Sunday but discovered he was retracing his tracks.

Bus driver encounters a communication gap

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — There was a bit of a problem on the Riverton Express Friday because the Vietnamese bus driver miked up his instructions and refused to let any of his passengers get off.
"I couldn't believe it. He wouldn't open the doors," said Connie Tregagle, 24, one of about 60 passengers who got stuck on the Utah Transit Authority bus as they rode to work Friday.
It seems that a new driver, a Vietnamese man who had some trouble with the English language, misread his instructions for driving the express route from the suburb of Riverton into Salt Lake City, said John English, UTA marketing director.
"After he left Riverton he wasn't suppose to pick people up. But he was suppose to let them off," said the UTA official. "But he got it backwards. He was picking them up, but wouldn't let them off."

Mrs. Tregagle climbed on the bus as it approached downtown Salt Lake — just as passengers were starting to complain that they had missed their stops.
"Some passengers told him he had it wrong," she said. "I tried to get back off, but he wouldn't let me. He called his supervisor and looked the doors. He wouldn't let anybody get off until his supervisor came."
The driver parked the bus and waited. Finally an angry passenger kicked open an emergency exit at the rear of the vehicle and the riders got off.

Disco plans to hit back

NEW YORK (UPI) — Studio 54, New York's biggest and most chic discotheque, disclosed Friday it planned to strike back at the federal agents who carted off its books and records and arrested one of its owners on a cocaine charge.
An angry Roy Cohn, the disco's lawyer who denounced the narcotics arrest of Ian Schrager Thursday as a "frameup based on a phony tip," said he was considering suing the U.S. Government for destroying property, invading privacy and other wrongdoings.
Schrager, a 31-year-old lawyer and one of three owners of the disco on West 54th St., was arrested by Internal Revenue Service agents on charges of possessing five ounces of cocaine with intent to distribute.
Later, however, Studio 54 opened with one of its biggest crowds of the year with such regulars in attendance as Cohn, Truman Capote, Diane von Furstenberg, Bill Blass and Andy Warhol. So succeeding opening franchises in Los Angeles, Houston, Miami, London and in other parts of the country and in Europe.

Catholics keep schools solid

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

Famous for basics, values and shoestring budgets, Catholic schools today continue strong on the American scene for still to come.

That's the view from the top, as seen by Sister Carleen Reck and Brother John Olsen. Sister Reck is Executive Director of the Elementary Department, National Catholic Educational Association, Washington, D.C. Brother Olsen is director of the Secondary Department.

There are fewer nuns and brothers at the front of the classrooms and more lay or secular teachers for the 4.1 million students answering bells in the 8,223 elementary and 1,599 secondary schools.

"We look good," Sister Reck said, speaking of academic achievement in this era of growing lack of confidence in public schools.

"We never left the basics and we keep to a value system. We have a lot of parental cooperation and concern."

"Our teachers, for the most part, like to work in our schools."

The secular staff generally earns less than public school teachers but, as a part of their vow of poverty live in religious communities called convents, share possessions and contribute some of their services.

Sometimes there are questions about the fairness of a school operation that pays religious less and secular teachers more.

Sister Reck said other persons in society contribute services and earn less than they are worth for performance. She said they are drawn by high purpose. Examples include Peace Corps volunteers and members of the Salvation Army.

The Catholic school bill in 1977 was $1.1 billion at the elementary level and $923.7 million at the secondary, according to the NCEA Data Bank's first report on the schools and their finances, an analysis produced with cooperation from the National Center for Education Statistics.

Services contributed by members of religious orders on school staffs — nuns, priests, brothers — keep Catholic school tuitions, ranging from $10 to $20 or $25 a week from going sky-high, the figures show.

In interviews, NCEA officials reminded that since the drive for tuition tax credits for private schools continues to fall in the United States Congress, tuitions are paid out of family funds left after taxes.

Tuitions at the prestige prep schools and academies run — Jesuits, Franciscans, Benedictines and such — are much higher than $10 to $30 a week. They are in line with charges of secular prep schools.

The report on Catholic school finances says in the high schools during 1977 the value of services contributed by nuns and brothers, came to $146.1 million.

But even the secular teachers make less than public school teachers, many being the second bread-winner in a two-salary family.

The secular teachers in the high schools, many of them sole bread-winners, have been pressing for better contracts, boosting their wages to be more in line with pay for public school teachers.

Increasing unrest over this issue is anticipated by administrators of many of the high schools especially. The Catholic schools apparently get a lot for relatively little money. The administrators know how to stretch a buck.

The 1,699 secondary schools operated as private diocesan or parochial entities, spent on the average about $663 per pupil last year. The 8,223 private and parochial elementary schools put out around $463 per student. By contrast, the school bill in the public grade and high schools was $1,329 per pupil.

There is no such thing as a Catholic school system nationwide. The schools are operated as a system within a diocese and there may be a system of diocesan high schools.

But generally the schools are free-standing, run by a parish, a diocese or religious order and not subject to red tape and bureaucratic doings, according to Sister Reck and Brother Olsen.

They noted that the schools, as a result, are more flexible than public schools. This is considered a strength.

The free-standing nature of the schools also means lower administrative costs. The layers of supervisors and department heads aren't as thick as in the public school systems.

The private, diocesan and parochial schools each have their own revenue patterns.

For example, the private high schools receive 70.5 percent of their revenue from tuition and fees. Parish high schools, where they exist, receive much less from tuition and about 14.6 percent from contributed services.

In general, the parish schools hold tuition down and rely heavily on parish subsidies. Diocesan schools receive more than parish schools from tuition and fees but less in subsidies.

Symbolic gift for the pope

Former army officer and nail sculptor, Amble Sonaglia, 55, was among those who presented unusual gifts to the former Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, Pope John Paul II. He recently displayed his latest creation just before giving it to the pope. The sculpture, photographed against the backdrop of the St. Peter's Dome in St. Peter's Square, was made from old nails found in the Umbria Region of Italy. It shows the former pontiff skilling in Poland with ski poles and on his shoulders a crucifix.

First Christian holds holiday activities

TWIN FALLS — The Christian Women's Missionary Service group at First Christian Church held a special Holiday Tasting Tea Dec. 14 featuring the Robert Stuart Jr. High "Swing Choir," a reading by Chris Walton and a solo by Mrs. Shirley Hazel, "O Holy Night."

On Saturday, Dec. 16, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the New Fellowship Hall there will be a Children's Christmas Party with games, movies, pinatas and caroling at the local nursing homes. Refreshments will be provided by the losers in the choir contest. Families are urged to bring an unwrapped, good, used toy for the Salvation Army's Toy-Joy Shop for underprivileged children. All children first through sixth grade are invited. This event is sponsored by the Gospel-Seekers Class.

An adult community caroling party is planned, on Saturday, Dec. 16 at 7 p.m. All adults interested in going caroling will meet at First Christian Church to take the bus. Following this event there will be a sandwich snack buffet at Scott and Kay Baumer's home, 292 Fillmore St. This activity is sponsored by the Gospel Seekers and Keystone Classes.

On Sunday, Dec. 17, the adult choir will present their Annual Christmas Cantata. At 1:00 p.m. the Opportunity Class will have a potluck dinner. There will be an open house at the parsonage for all members and friends of First Christian Church from 2:30 to 5 p.m. The parsonage address is 1377 7th Ave. N.

That evening the youth will present a Christmas play during the 6:30 p.m.

Evening Worship Service. This Sunday marks the start of the annual "Live Nativity Scene" on the corner of Shoshone St. N. & 6th Street, sponsored each year by First Christian Church.

The public is cordially invited to attend all Christmas activities.

CHOIR'S ANNUAL CHRISTMAS CANTATA

Laying ground for later dictators

Savonarola subdued sunny Florence

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — Last month, 481 years ago, a fiery, fanatical friar became history's first "reforming" dictator, setting some of the patterns followed in our own time by Adolf Hitler and other despots.

On Nov. 29, 1494, a French army led by King Charles VIII left Florence after a sojourn of only seven days, leaving Girolamo Savonarola, a 42-year-old Dominican friar, the ruler of a city-state which in the preceding decades had made possible the revival of humanist learning, appreciation of art and the joy of life we now call the Renaissance.

Like Hitler and Benito Mussolini of Italy centuries later, Savonarola had used his awesome oratorical abilities to spellbind his followers: Like them he organized a private army. He set another precedent for later dictators when his youthful followers burned manuscripts, pictures and books termed "impure" on a night of folly commemorated as "The Burning of the Vanities" in 1497.

Another of his innovations, copied only too readily, was a corps of boys and girls who patrolled the city searching out "vanities" and willing to inform even on their own mothers and fathers.

And he may have shaken the world because of unrequited love. Savonarola was born in 1452 in the wealthy north Italian duchy of Ferrara where his father was the court doctor. With thick lips and a large hooked nose, he was an ugly young man and he was firmly rejected by the daughter of the rich Florentine family of Strozzi when he asked for her hand.

Severe and withdrawn thereafter, he forsook the study of medicine when he was 23 and joined a Dominican monastery. His first assignment was to lecture in theological philosophy in the convent of San Marco in Florence and the girl who not only turned him down but laughed at him with her friends must have been much in his mind when he arrived there in 1481.

In one of his first sermons to a mainly amused and skeptical congregation he thundered: "This city I have come to deliver this city from the devil which abounds here and return it to the rule of Christ."

Despite its initial reaction, the fame of his fiery oratory spread and eventually began to worry the bankers who had made Florence into one of the most beautiful and richest of the cities of the known world. They tried to bribe him with donations and personal gifts but he had no use for money or luxuries since he lived in self-imposed austerity in a bare cell (still preserved as it was in his lifetime), flagellating himself daily "to punish the temptation of my flesh."

He inveighed against the wealth of the Florentines and especially the sensuality of the women, immortalized in the great paintings of the day. "Ye women who glory in your ornaments, your hair, your fine hands, I tell you you are all ugly with sin," he cried.

His rejection of worldly goods made him popular with the poor who regarded him as a saint and approved of his call for a sharing of riches. Ever greater crowds came to his sermons. The convent could not contain the thousands and he moved to Florence Cathedral, then the largest church in Italy, and to this day the third largest in the world.

Control of the city's affairs began to slip from the hands of Piero Medici, who had succeeded his father, Lorenzo the Magnificent, one of the most glorious figures of the Renaissance, into the hands of the friar. San Marco Savonarola's prophecies became ever more apocalyptic. From the altar of Florence Cathedral he had begun a series of denunciations not only of Florence's evenings' activities.

A Snow Retreat is planned for the young people Dec. 27-30 in the South Hills. The youth group will host a group of young people from Sacramento, California.

The Watchnight service will begin at 6:45 p.m. on December 31. There will be singing, testimonies, year-end reports, food, fellowship, the film "Thief in the Night," and end up around the communion table at midnight.

For further information about any of these activities, please call the church office at 733-1452.

As well as serving teacher and principal of various schools,

Torkelsen has held several pastoral positions throughout the Midwest. Just prior to coming to Portland, he served as President of the Central California Conference and the Southern California Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

The North Pacific Union Conference over which Torkelsen presides is comprised of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

The morning service at the church on Grandview Drive is open to the public.

TF Nazarenes plan cantata

TWIN FALLS—"The Bell That Wouldn't Stop Ringing," a children's cantata will be presented at First Church of the Nazarene at 10:30 a.m. Sunday morning following the regular Sunday school hour. At 9:45 a.m. all classes will assemble in their regular meeting place. The adults will have their Bible study lessons while the children are preparing for their program. After the children's cantata, the pastor will conclude the morning services with his message, "Christ at Christmas."

At 6:00 p.m., Ritch Nixon and the choir will present the Christmas Cantata "Love Came Down." All services during the Christmas season will be at the regular times. Sabbath Day school at 9:45 a.m. Sabbath Day worship at 11:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m.

Those people who do not have a regular place of worship in our city are especially invited to join in the fellowship and to enjoy the spirit of Christ and Christmas at this season of the year.

Assembly of God activities

HAZELTON—December 17 will be a full schedule at the Assembly of God, Hazelton, according to Pastor J. Wesley Johnson.

The day begins at 10 a.m. with the three younger classes of the Sunday School singing special Christmas music and reciting pieces. Also featured will be special music by youth and adults.

At 11:00 a.m. Rev. Elmer L. Ridgway, a newly-appointed Assemblies of God missionary to Thailand, will be guest speaker. During their first term of missionary service, Mr. Ridgway and his wife Shirley (from Jerome)—will be involved in language studies and new church evangelism. Prior to missionary candidacy, Mr. Ridgway served as pastor of the Assembly of God in Shirley Basin, Wyo. He also served other churches in California and Wyoming in several capacities. Curious, costumes, and special music will be featured at this missions rally. A free will offering will be received for the missionaries.

Crowning the day at 7:30 p.m. will be the youth play entitled "Shelter Shortages." This is the western version of the Christmas story but the message of love and redemption is not changed. Your life will be challenged.

Following the play, treats will be given to all the children. The public is invited.

Community Christian plans

TWIN FALLS—Each activity at Community Christian Church is designed to help each person to enjoy and appreciate Christmas.

Study from the Bible is offered at the 10:30 class time of the Bible School. The worship hour at 11:00 will feature a sermon by pastor Herald Haskell entitled: "The Miracle of Christmas." The public is invited to participate in these events at the church located on Grandview Avenue, south of Magic Valley Hospital.

A special Christmas program and fellowship time will be held at 7:00 p.m. Classes of the Bible School will take part and there will be singing of Christmas carols.

This program is under the direction of Steve Preston and friends in the community are invited to attend. There will be a time of refreshment to close the evening's activity.

Kimberly Baptists slate program

KIMBERLY—The First Baptist Church of Kimberly will present "The Question" Dec. 17 at 7 p.m.

The program of the church, Adams and Birch, is open to the public.

Pastor Glenn Munkres announces church worship hours are: 10 a.m. for Sunday school; 11 a.m. for morning worship; 6:15 p.m. for church training and 7 p.m. for evening services.

ation's industrial production shows muscle

STON (UPI) — In a bright development, the Federal Reserve reported Friday that production turned in a performance last month and gains the nation is verging on recession. Industrial production, the total of the nation's mines, factories, offices, rose 0.7 percent in the best gain since the recession. The production rate, compiled with all sales lately, also in employment opportunities still exist in the economy. Retail sales jumped 2 percent last month following a 1.3 percent gain in October. The administration has been concerned that the jobless rate would begin to deteriorate in coming months as the economy slows in response to tight government fiscal policy — an anti-inflation device. "It looks pretty good," said one Commerce Department analyst who studied the industrial production report. "Based on this data, I see no recession on the horizon." The administration has projected economic growth in the 2 to 3 percent range for 1978, which they say is necessary to combat inflation. Officials also have served notice that interest rates will remain high until inflation is tamed. But some private economists have said the economy will fall into a mild recession some time next year, although not approaching in severity the one in 1974-75, which was the deepest since World War II. The 0.7 percent November increase was the largest since an identical gain in August and compared to gains of 0.4

percent in September and 0.5 percent in October. The November index was 7.3 percent above the level of a year earlier, the Fed said. Production gains "were widespread" throughout the economy, the Fed said, although the output of consumer durable goods, aside from automotive products, actually declined. In an separate report, the Commerce Department said business inventories rose 0.8 percent in October, but sales soared 2.4 percent as retailers continued a tight rein over their stocks. The total business stock-to-sales ratio at the end of October was 1.39, down from 1.41 for September. That meant businesses were not restocking as fast as consumers were buying. Because of the predicted economic slowdown, businesses do not want to be caught with excess inventories in case consumer buying dries up. That happened during the 1974-75 recession, and many businesses had to liquidate.

Recession appears unlikely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation is so deeply imbedded in the economy it could take up to seven years to "wring out," but a recession does not appear likely, chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve Board told Congress Friday. Testifying to a joint congressional economic subcommittee, Miller said the administration's anti-inflation program is working, but its long-term success will require cooperation from all segments of the American society. "I see inflation deeply imbedded in our system," said Miller, "and it will take years to wring out." Asked by Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., the subcommittee chairman, to be more specific, Miller replied, "I can see five or six or seven years ahead to accomplish this."

nominal interest rates will come down. Then, in response to questioning by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., the Fed chairman said, "A recession at this time is not likely... Today, I don't see the conditions for a recession, and I think it would be bad policy to create one." Miller's assessment coincided with a report from the Fed that industrial production in November showed the biggest increase since August and was carried no signs of an impending recession. As for President Carter's campaign for voluntary wage-price restraints, Miller told the subcommittee, "The government's overall anti-inflation program holds out the real hope that inflationary pressures can be contained, and that the groundwork can be laid for gradual attainment of price stability." But he stressed that "the success of the program requires cooperation, perseverance, and patience from all groups of our society." In contrast to Miller's generally favorable view of the president's anti-inflation and spending-cut initiatives, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said they could lead to "economic and political disaster." Conyers, expressing his views at a news conference Friday, said Carter's policies threaten "a third major recession... another massive round of unemployment, a totally unaffordable housing market, and the perpetuation of poverty."

Dollar eased in markets

By United Press International The U.S. dollar eased on all major money markets in thin trading Friday in advance of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting this weekend in Abu Dhabi. Gold's price rose. In London the price of gold closed at $277.15 an ounce, a gain of more than $3 from Thursday's $263.875. In Zurich gold rose to $265.875 an ounce, up from Thursday's $264.125.

Pinto maker raps prosecution plan

ELKHART, Ind. (UPI) — A Pinto crash that killed three teen-age girls was a tragedy, but does not justify criminal prosecution of Ford Motor Co., the giant auto maker contended Thursday. Efforts to criminally prosecute Ford for the deaths of three young women in a fiery crash are legally invalid, Ford officials said in a 50-page memo filed in Elkhart Superior Court. The memo argued several legal points requiring dismissal of the criminal suit brought by Elkhart County. "In moving to dismiss this indictment Ford in no way seeks to minimize the tragedy which occurred in Elkhart County in August, 1978, but Ford is entitled to the constitutional and other protections provided for the defendants by the laws of Indiana and the United States," the memo said.

"The indictment fails to contain the essential facts that would properly inform Ford of the manner in which it was allegedly reckless and assert the necessary causal link between Ford's conduct and the deaths." Criminal prosecution for defective automotive design or alleged failure to remedy the design is pre-empted by federal law, the memo said. Prosecution also would breach the commerce clause of the U.S. Constitution, Ford said. The county's deadline for responding to Ford's dismissal motion is Dec. 26. A county grand jury brought the unprecedented indictment against Ford on reckless homicide charges in the deaths of Lynn-Ann Judy Ulrich, teenage sisters from Osceola, Ind., and their cousin, Donna Ulrich, Roanoke, Ill. They died Aug. 19 when a van struck their Pinto in the rear and it burst into flames. A coroner's report said the victims died as a result of the fire. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has said more than 50 deaths have been attributed to Pinto rear-end collision fires since 1975. The NHTSA said the 1971-76 Pinto fuel systems susceptible to rupture.

New mortgage plans given federal OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Home Loan Bank Board approved "new mortgage" plans that will be offered as alternatives to the standard fixed-rate, long-term arrangements people are making today. The board, some 2,000 of which chartered savings and loans began offering the options as of Jan. 1. The new plans are: 1. A graduated payment mortgage allowing a homebuyer to make monthly payments in the early years of a mortgage, and increase them gradually in later years to a predetermined level. This plan "should appeal to many segments of the public, including young families whose income can be expected to rise," said board chairman Robert McKinney. "A reverse annuity mortgage allowing older citizens to borrow cash on the equity in their homes and repay the lending institution when they sell the property. Savings and loans would be required to get bank board approval for this plan on a case-by-case basis. A variable rate mortgage to be available only in California. This type mortgage allows lenders to change the interest rates a homebuyer pays after the first mortgage payment. The interest rate can fluctuate up or down depending on general interest rates. State chartered institutions in California already offer variable rate mortgages and now federally chartered institutions will be able to do so. The plan may be offered in other states in the future. Under the board's rules, each savings and loan may decide whether to offer the new mortgages, but all must continue to offer the conventional, fixed-rate payment system. The regulations also contain a sunset provision requiring the board to reassess the effectiveness of the controversial variable-rate mortgage in four years. Each of the plans already is authorized in some states for state chartered lending institutions. Senate Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire charged the board with usurping congressional power and said he will introduce legislation to curb the new plans.

The memo said the state "has simply not done much less over a number of barriers to this prosecution." Elkhart County Prosecutor Michael Cosentino said Ford's argument, in part, was that the county was trying to apply a 1977 law to a 1973 automobile design. Ford officials countered, however,

"Negotiations hold key to earnings by rubber"

Negotiations hold key to earnings by rubber

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. Chairman Charles J. Pirell said Thursday the earnings outlook for the tire industry in 1979 will depend "first and foremost" on the outcome of national negotiations with the United Rubber Workers. The tire industry's contract with the URW expires in April. Pirell also noted automobile industry negotiations slated for September and said an auto strike would seriously reduce demand for rubber industry products. The Goodyear chief also said the rubber industry outlook would depend on: "Cost increases in raw materials, particularly petrochemicals. The industry's ability to obtain price increases commensurate with cost increases. The industry's ability to improve productivity in order to make American products more competitive in world markets. The state of the general economy. None of the problems represented in some of these factors are insurmountable, and I look forward to 1979 with optimism," Pirell said. Looking at individual segments of the industry, the Goodyear chairman said 1979 will be the third consecutive year that auto tire sales will be in the 200 million ton range. "While industry sales are expected to rise 7 percent to about $12 billion next year, for some companies 1979 could be a year of positioning to find a solid base from which to launch into the 1980's," he said. "This shakeout will involve product design requirements, as well as production techniques and could include financial restructuring with actual or potential mergers, diversifications and even redeployment of assets so as to place greater emphasis on other lines of products."

Canyon route wins backing

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — Overwhelming public support for the proposed four-lane highway through Glenwood Canyon has been shown in responses to the state Highway Department, an official said Friday. Department spokesman David Grounds said the agency received 945 letters from the public in response to the canyon project. He said those backing the project outnumbered those against by a 6-1 margin. Grounds said the large response was apparently due to campaigns by Club 20, which backs the four-lane highway, and Citizens for a Glenwood Canyon Scenic Corridor, an Aspen organization that opposes the project. Letters from Glenwood Springs residents were 124-1 in favor of the project. Grounds said, which letters from Engle and Gypsum on the east of the canyon were 46-1 in favor. Grand Junction letters favored the project by a 24-2 margin, he said. In Aspen, the letters were against the project, with 13 in favor and 43 against. Letters from the Denver area were 32-10 in favor of the project.

Pea, lentil prices climb

MOSCOW — Average prices for Dec. 15 have been posted by the Pacific Northwest Pea Growers and Dealers Association. Prices for that date, the previous week and the comparable week a year ago include greens 8.50, 8.25, and 15.35; yellows 7.65, 7.30 and 16.60; blacks 8.80, 8.70 and 13.95; lentils 27.50, 25.50 and 41.10. All prices are based on U.S. No. 1 grade, quoted threshers run FOB warehouse.

Proof best way to obtain college finance aid secret to getting money from financial-aid programs — prove it. Your way to do this: ask the financial agencies such as the College Scholarship Service to figure out the total costs you can afford to finance. "need analysis" services use the same formula for all families, but you can get your own unique situation worked out. In addition, you can get unusual financial circumstances, such as the college or scholarship program, which the college or scholarship program will weigh in its final decision. You do not have to be poor to show you can't pay all expenses. Even if you are in the middle-income range, you can qualify these days for financial aid from your resources. You and your child are expected to pay something toward college expenses, according to what you can afford. If the total you pay is less than the national need analysis system, it doesn't change much from one college to another — even if you choose a costly one. What does change is the amount of aid you'll need. (2) Your eligibility is found by subtracting the amount you can pay from the total costs of the college; your child is considering. Usually you are eligible for aid equal to your need. And you will get the funds in a "package" that can include: part grant that need not be repaid; a low interest loan with special repayment schedules; and a job. (3) To find out what colleges might expect of you and your child, complete a confidential form (such as the Financial Aid Form), reporting your income, debts, expenses, assets, number of children in the family and in college. Include special heavy expenses such as for a family member's handicap. This form can be used to apply to Basic Grants and many state aid programs.

(4) You will not have to wipe out your assets to pay for college. In fact, the amount of your "protected assets" in the need analysis system can range from $10,000 to $40,000, depending on your age and other factors. After this, only 12 percent of your REMAINING assets are considered in deciding your financial strength. The following table from the College Scholarship Service gives you a rough estimate of amounts expected right now from parents with different incomes. It assumes a two-parent family, one working, one child in college. As "belpark" figures derived from averages, they cannot be used to find your precise need.

Income Before Taxes	Your Rough Contribution One Child	1,950	1,950
$14,000	$ 800	25,000	3,300
16,000	1,180	30,000	4,700
18,000	1,530	35,000	6,040

If you have three children, your expected contribution plunges. For instance, at the $14,000 income-before-taxes level, and with three children, your contribution would be roughly $280. At $35,000 and with three children, it would be $4,880. If you have more than one child in college, you will pay a slightly higher total. As a rule of thumb, find the amount that's appropriate for you in the table, divide it by the number of children in college, and add another $100-$200 per child. (5) Your child is expected to pay something as well — usually about 35 percent of current savings — for each year, about $500 from summer earnings, and something from special benefits (Social Security, etc.) if any. Say your yearly income before taxes is $20,000, and you have one child. You will pay about $1,950 for one year, your child will pay $500. To afford a college costing $7,000 a year, you would need a financial aid package of $4,550. Assuming the college has the money, and your child is accepted, your aid package might include: Grants (combination Basic Grant, state and college grants) of $1,850; Job (employment on campus under College Work Study Program) of $1,300; Loan (probably Guaranteed Student Loan, at 7 percent payable after graduation) of $1,400. Total: $4,550. These are estimates, not binding, and college financial aid directors make the final decisions on need and packages. They may change any recommendations as they wish. Stocks plunge on wide front

BY FRANK W. GLISSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, uncertain about future prices, plunged along a broad front Friday as short-term interest rates climbed on the heels of speculation the Federal Reserve was tightening credit.

Trading was moderate.

In addition, White House created considerable investor uncertainty when it asked for air time Friday night on the nation's broadcast networks to make an announcement that would have international implications.

Among the numerous rumors about what Carter would discuss was that he would formally recognize Red China and appoint James Schlesinger as the ambassador. There also was speculation Carter would discuss Middle East developments.

Against this background, the Dow Jones Industrial average, which managed to gain 2.68 points Thursday, slid 7.19 points to 805.33. The closely watched average lost 6.50 points for the week.

The New York Stock Exchange index dropped 0.30 to 53.31 and the price of a share shot 22 cents. Declines routed advances, 1,063 to 378, among the 1,955 issues traded at 4 p.m.

Selling intensity later in the day when speculation circulated Wall Street that the Fed, which late Thursday reported an inflationary $2 billion hike in the nation's money supply, would raise the discount rate if charges member banks for loans from its record 9 1/2 percent level.

The Fed early Friday reported that November industrial production rose 0.7 percent, which has been the average for the first 10 months of the year. At the same time, the Commerce Department reported a 0.9 percent rise in business inventories. Sales also rose sharply.

A major uncertainty confronting investors was the meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries of Abu Dhabi this weekend, where petroleum prices will be set for the Western world near future.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabian oil minister, said he thought OPEC members had reached a consensus on the price hike, but that he was not optimistic about holding it below 45 percent. He also said the dollar would not be backed in favor of a basket of currencies.

Big Board volume totaled 23,620,000 shares, compared with 20,640,000 traded Thursday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter at 4 p.m. totaled 25,911,428 shares, compared with 22,746,468 Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index skidded 0.91 to 143.90 and the price of a share eased 7 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ OTC index lost 0.74 to 117.41.

At 4 p.m., Simplicity Pattern was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1 1/2 to 10 1/2 after trading for the day. Trading involved a series of small blocks: Archer-Daniels-Midland was traded at 24.60 shares at 12 1/4. Gulf Oil was third, off 1/4 to 24 1/4.

Iowa Beef Processors plunged 1 1/2 to 37 1/2 after the firm and Pacific Holding Corp. called off merger talks.

The firms cited uncertain economic conditions and high interest rates as reasons for the cessation of negotiations.

National Airlines fell 1 1/2 to 36. The carrier's leaders, who at first favored Pan American World Airways' $14-a-share tender offer, Friday expressed uncertainty following a 550-a-share

Ethics board probes test tube birth

NEW YORK (UPI)—Warnings of risks to the unborn, including damaged sexual orientation, dominated a hearing Friday on the ethics of whether the government should pay for test tube baby research.

Carter gets rail dispute recommend

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A presidential board Friday sent its recommendations to President Carter for settlement of a dispute between railway clerks and the Norfolk & Western Railway that resulted in a four-day nationwide rail strike in September.

The N&W and the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks, have agreed separately to a 30-day "cooling off" period — until Jan. 14 — before any further strike action will occur.

The three-member panel issued recommendations to settle the long contract disputes that center on job security and automation.

They included the scope of the current agreement, the conversion of certain excepted or partially excepted positions to full or partial coverage under the agreement and job protection.

The board also recommended the railroad grant amnesty to all BRAC-represented employees for actions during the strike, except where substantial injury or damage to persons or property occurred.

BRAC president Fred Kroll withheld immediate reaction to the recommendations.

"After we have had time to consider most carefully the nature of the report and its implications for the future, we will make public our reactions," Kroll said in a statement.

Board Chairman Paul Hanlon of Portland, Ore., convened the panel Oct. 3 following an end to the four-day walkout that crippled the nation's rail system, halted shipments of food and caused major industries to shut down plants.

The workers returned to work after U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson on Sept. 29 signed a temporary restraining order against the strike.

BRAC first struck the N&W July 10 and expanded it to 140 railroads in September after combining the N&W was receiving financial help from other railroads under a mutual aid pact.

N&W, the nation's seventh largest railroad, operates in 15 states but is heavily concentrated in Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. It is a major hauler of coal, transportation equipment and agricultural products.

Steel hauler talks solve some issues

By United Press International
The head of independent steel haulers said Friday some of the issues in the bitter five-week strike may have been resolved after meetings in Washington with congressmen and government officials.

Violence continued along highways, however, with State police reporting 12 violent incidents on southwestern Pennsylvania highways over a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Friday.

Bill Hill, chairman of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers, said the Interstate Commerce Committee had agreed to several changes in leasing procedures that would insure full disclosure between owner-operators and the regulated carriers to whom they lease their services.

For the first time, the owner-operators will be provided with copies of rated freight bills and with all the contract documentation for the independents to determine their fair share of a contract.

Hill also said he had received a commitment from members of the House Committee on Labor and Management that they will introduce a bill providing owner-operators with the right to organize for collective bargaining. The bill would also mean independent steel haulers would be covered under provisions of the national Labor Act.

Hill said he will discuss the ICC rulings and the promised congressional action when he meets with FASH officers and chapter members on Sunday in Pittsburgh.

The burly, mustachioed FASH leader was called to Washington Thursday by a group of U.S. senators, who wanted to discuss the strike.

In the latest violence which has marked the strike since the beginning, a state police spokesman said there were eight auto-bombings, three shootings and one fire-slashing. Only one injury was reported as a result of a missile-throwing incident. William McCormick, of Baltimore, was hit in the eye by flying glass after his windshield was struck by an unknown object on Interstate 70 in Westmoreland County. The injury was minor, police said.

pointed by Joseph Califano, Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, completed a round of hearings on the issue Friday. A report on the panel's findings will be published next year.

Califano asked the panel to explore the issue after the birth in England last July of Louise Brown, the world's first test tube baby.

At present, there is no federal funding of test tube baby research, but several institutions have requested HEW grants for the research. The grants are still pending. Friday, the panel was warned that while the English infant appears normal, more experiments with Similar "in vitro" fertilizations could produce babies with birth defects. Some organizations, including anti-abortion groups, adamantly opposed any government sponsorship of test tube fertilization research, while women unable to conceive a child in the womb begged the panel to approve it.

Doris Halre, representing the American Foundation for Maternal and Child Health, the National Women's Health Network and the National Childbirth Education Association, said synthetic hormones used in in vitro fertilization could alter the offspring's sexual orientation.

"Women are currently being advised not to conceive after recent exposure to hormonal oral contraceptives," Ms. Halre said. "Current research in human behavior strongly suggests that exposure in utero to the effects of synthetic hormones can alter the exposed offspring's sexuality orientation."

She said her organizations are not against in vitro fertilization for women who seek it, but she strongly suggests that exposure in utero to researchers to fully inform them of any risks.

"... we are concerned that women may not be sufficiently cautioned that this procedure, like so many other obstetric procedures, may have delayed, long-term adverse consequences on the development of the offspring that cannot be determined or anticipated at this time," she said.

Mrs. Estelle Cohen, a private critic of obstetrics practices, said the risks of in vitro fertilization could outweigh the benefits, even for women desperate to conceive.

"I would suggest to women that they weigh their yearning for children against the right of every child to come into the world with an intact neurologic system," she said.

She called test tube baby research a "gamble with the lives of children still unborn."

Battle on school junk foods delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although public comment on the idea has been resoundingly favorable, the Agriculture Department Friday pulled back for revision its proposal to restrict sales of "junk foods" in schools.

In announcing the action, however, Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman pledged to come up with a new formula by April and, after public hearings, have final regulations in place by the time schools open next fall.

The plan proposed last April would have banned sale of candy, sodas, frozen desserts and chewing gum until after the last meal period at schools participating in the federal lunch program.

The Agriculture Department says just over 90 percent of the nation's children attend such federally assisted schools.

In her statement Friday, Mrs. Foreman said that while 92 percent of the 2,100 comments received were strongly in favor of such action, they also "raised some significant issues which deserve additional public scrutiny."

"Therefore," she said, "we are withdrawing the April proposal and will use the public meetings and written comments to help form the basis for a new one."

She announced three public hearings will be held: on Jan. 30 in Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 6 in Detroit, and Feb. 13 in Seattle.

Such hearings were not held on the initial proposal although they were required by presidential order, Mrs. Foreman said, meaning "a substantive issue is caught in a changing procedural climate."

She also said she has received numerous requests to discuss the issue with food industry representatives, and wants to do so in a public forum rather than privately.

Mrs. Foreman said comments submitted to the department raised such questions as why heavily salted snacks and cakes were not restricted.

She said the list was derived mostly from congressional debate on the law authorizing the plan.

Gas leak kills 3 at wreck

BOUTTE, La. (UPI) — A freight train smashed into a tank truck loaded with ammonia early Friday, releasing a milky cloud of poisonous gas that killed three persons and sent more than two dozen others to hospitals.

The accident, in rural St. Charles Parish across the Mississippi River and 25 miles upstream from New Orleans, drove more than 300 persons from their homes until the leak could be sealed.

"The gas was so thick it was extremely difficult to see anything," said Ernest Youngs, the first state trooper to arrive on the scene. "It looked like heavy fog and it just took your breath away."

Youngs said the three dead apparently had been inside cars near the railroad crossing when the South Pacific freight train hit the truck carrying the ammonia.

"I saw the victims lying on the side," Youngs said. "One was in a ditch. They were trying to get away from the fur... I apparently didn't get too far."

Thirty-two persons were taken to hospitals for treatment, but only one was in serious condition. He was identified as Hershel Langley of Luling, La., who was taken to Ochsner Foundation Hospital in New Orleans.

The driver of the truck, whose identity was not immediately available, was unhurt.

State police said the tank truck was hit about 6:12 a.m. as it traveled on Louisiana 317, a new highway cut through the sparsely populated region. Liquid ammonia began spilling "all over the ground" immediately and turned to gas.

"These were very toxic fumes," said John Lucas, director of the St. Charles Parish Civil Defense. "There were volunteer fire departments out there to spray the spill with heavy water fog to make the fumes drop to the ground."

Task force fails to find child killer

DETROIT (UPI) — A police task force formed two years ago to solve the ritualistic slayings of four children in suburban Oakland County disbanded in failure Friday and its commander warned the killer could strike again.

"If he's not dead, then he's in an institution somewhere," said State Police Lt. Robert Robertson. "And when he's released from the institution, whether it's a prison or a mental hospital of some kind, he'll probably strike again."

The kidnap-killings in Detroit's affluent northern suburbs, once considered a haven from crime, occurred between February, 1976, and March, 1977.

The victims were two boys and two girls between the ages of 10 and 12. All four abductions occurred after snowfalls. The boys were sexually molested. All were immaculately bathed and manacled before their bodies were dumped along roadsides or in a parking lot.

The victims were all Roman Catholics.

Three other youngsters were killed in the area during the period, but their deaths were not linked to the child-abductor blamed in the slayings of Mark Stebbins, 12, Jill Robinson, 12, Kristine Mihelich, 10, and Timothy King, 11.

Stebbins was strangled, Robinson shot, Mihelich smothered and King suffocated. The victims disappeared for periods ranging from four to 10 days before their bodies were found. King was seen talking to a man in a blue American Motors Gremlin in a drug store parking lot the night he disappeared.

The task force, which included nearly 160 state and local police officers at its peak, worked out of a computer-equipped schoolhouse in Berkley. Its operations funded by federal and local grants.

Buhl Indians roll by Glenns Ferry 59-44

BUHL — The Glenns Ferry Pilots led the basketball game twice in the first half, at 0-0 and 2-2, before the Buhl Indians took off on a scoring jaunt to crush the visiting Pilots 59-44.

"It was awful rough," Glenns Ferry Coach Gordon Brown said and then quickly added, "we got beat and that's all I going to say."

Brown said earlier that his team had a chance to beat the Indians if they were ready to play but the results of the game looked as if the out-manned Pilots were not ready for the taller and quicker Indians.

"It was a good defensive game. We are getting a little better, there and the kids are getting into shape," Buhl Coach Perry Adolfsen said.

Roland Hansen, Buhl's 6-8 center, got the opening tipoff for the Indians and quickly scored on a baseline shot with a feed from teammate Dave Davis and it looked as if Buhl was off and running.

The opening game jitters hit the Indians shortly after that as Hansen picked up a foul 39 seconds into the game and Davis tucked away two more about 30 seconds later.

Lowell Black hit the first two of his 10 points for the Pilots to tie the game but Davis and Vince Hamilton each quickly hit a basket to push the score to a 6-2 two minutes into the game.

The Pilots only hit about three of twenty in the first period as Buhl dominated the center with Hansen, Davis and Robin Jucker controlling the boards.

Buhl's Hansen caught an elbow in the mouth in the second quarter and sat out most of that period but that made little difference as the Indians hit seven straight points before Glenns Ferry could manage one.

Davis got eight of the sixteen Indian points. In the second quarter, and the starters chipped in 14 more to take a 12 point 36-22 lead into the dressing room.

Coach Brown said he would try a match-up zone in the second half to see if his Pilots could shut off the inside game but even that didn't work.

Buhl scored on an outside shot by Jim Smutney to start the second half.

Mario Arcellano answered for Glenns Ferry and then Smutney brought the home crowd to it's feet with a steal and a slam dunk.

Ten seconds later, Hansen got a steal and slammed the ball home to again bring the crowd to it's feet.

By then, the game was virtually over except for the final score.

"I don't know who will be our toughest game. The season is still too young," Coach Adolfsen said.

"Glenns Ferry's defense has given us fits for the last six years," Adolfsen said but added that his team moved the ball better than he had seen them move it this year.

The win pushes the Indian's record to 3-0 with a tough game against Marsh Valley tonight.

"They've got one kid that's 6-7," he said.

"They're always aggressive, he added.

The loss for Glenns Ferry gives the Pilots a 1-2 season record.

Huskies topple Seattle

SEATTLE (UPI) — James Woods scored 16 points Friday night to send Washington to a 91-82 victory over Seattle.

The Huskies, holding Seattle without a basket for more than five minutes in the second half, led 40-37 at halftime and pushed their lead to 62-43 with 12 minutes to go.

Washington put the game out of reach with an unusual six-point play with 8:50 remaining. Seattle center Javann Oldham was called for his fifth foul. The Huskies converted two foul shots and followed with two more after a technical was called on the Chieftain bench. Washington then put the ball in play and scored on a field goal by Stan Walker to go up 70-51.

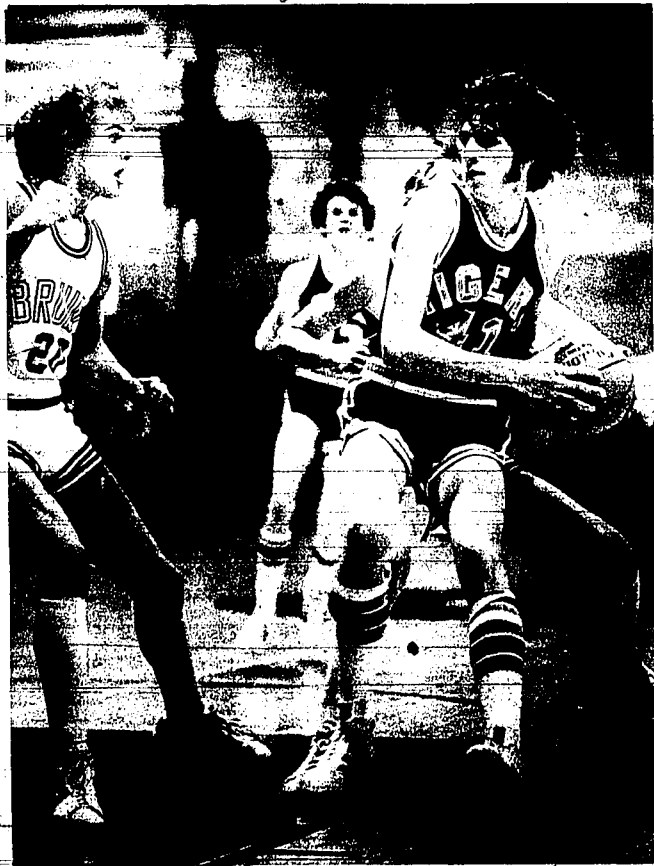

Utah gains finals

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Tom Chambers scored 20 points and grabbed 20 rebounds — both career highs — to power Utah to an 82-71 win Friday night over Hofstra in the 11th annual Utah Basketball Classic.

In an earlier game, guards Brand Robinson and Lawrence Butler led Idaho to a 62-56 victory over Georgia. The host Utes will play ISU Saturday night for the tournament title.

Chambers and Danny Vranes took control late in the first half when Hofstra leading 28-22. Chambers and Vranes scored the next 11 points for the Utes; and Vranes put them on top to stay with a steal and a stuff with 2:19 left in the first half.

The Utes, 4-3, led 37-34 at halftime and slowly pulled away in the second half. Vranes had 14 points and 13 rebounds. Gary Deane had 10 points and Donnie Rice 12. Alvin Woods had 17 points and Gary Cheslock 14 and Doug Swanson 14 for Hofstra, 3-5.

IF survives late comeback to edge Bruins

TWIN FALLS — Senior Todd Thompson drilled four straight, free throws — the last two with 12 seconds left in overtime — to let the Idaho Falls Tigers defeat the Twin Falls Bruins 64-63 Friday night.

Thompson's second pair of free throws gave the Tigers a 64-60 lead and offset a last-second bucket by Twin Falls' Jim Merkle.

The defeat, the third conference loss a row for Twin Falls, came despite a strong closing effort by Bruin Bob Brice who moved to the high post — his favorite spot — to score 10 of his game-high 23 points in the fourth quarter and get the game into overtime.

Twin Falls remains at home tonight, entertaining the Bonneville Bees.

It was a story of turnovers, missed free throws and missed close-in shots, particularly in the first quarter, for Twin Falls. The Bruins threatened to break away early until the rash of missed close-in shots and then came the free throw missing. The Bruins, who held a 14-8 lead, were tied at 17-17, two minutes into the second quarter when Idaho Falls' Rich Hill got a tip-in.

From that point, as Twin Falls struggled through a long cold snap, Idaho Falls pushed off to leads to six and seven points and owned a 32-25 intermission lead. In the second eight minutes Idaho Falls outscored Twin Falls 21-10 and that proved the difference.

Twin Falls came out with aggressive man defense in the second half and took the ball away from Idaho Falls four times. One of them was converted into a bucket by Ron Sayers but the Twin Falls turned the ball back on the other three occasions.

That tempo lasted through most of the third quarter with both sides losing the ball a lot.

Still Twin Falls did move into the lead a couple of times as Jim Crundall hit two straight for a 35-34 advantage and later Keith Gordon and Brice got go-ahead points. But on each occasion, Idaho Falls replied with points.

Idaho Falls assumed the lead at 42-41 late in the third quarter and still had a four-point lead with 5:30 left in the game. Then Sayers and Crundall collected two points each for a tie and the teams were tied at 50, 52, 54 and 56, the last time with 2:14 remaining.

An oddity also occurred there when Idaho Falls lost two players to injuries on the same play at opposite ends of the floor. Kent Mann was the first to fall when he drove, missed the shot and then fractured his knee on landing. He fell to the floor in pain.

Twin Falls ripped the ball out on a fast break with Brice taking it to the glass. There Tom McMannon tried for the block but missed and he also injured a knee in landing.

Their departure brought in Idaho Falls' first subs of the night and the Tigers immediately went into a long delay game against Twin Falls' pressing man. The Tigers held the ball until 15 seconds remained — interspersed with three timeouts — but then missed the shot. Twin Falls also missed to bring on overtime.

Brice opened that with a pair of free throws but Hill nullified those for the Tigers. David Lawrence then banged in two charities and Twin Falls turned the ball over twice on steals by Hill. After the second one with 1:12 left, Thompson made his first appearance at the line, giving Idaho Falls a 62-58 advantage with 42 seconds left. Brice replied for Twin Falls before Hill led it.

Twin Falls sophomores coasted to the preliminary way 87-49.

Filer Wildcats score 57-41 victory over Wood River

HALEY — The Filer Wildcats went into a delay game with a three point lead in the fourth quarter and then managed to sink nearly all their foul shots in defense. Deane had 10 points and Donnie Rice 12. Alvin Woods had 17 points and Gary Cheslock 14 and Doug Swanson 14 for Hofstra, 3-5.

Richfield was down eight at the end of the first quarter but couldn't match Hagerman's second quarter blitz. In those eight minutes, Hagerman threw in 25 points and at halftime had equaled when Richfield managed for the game.

Hagerman took a 20-point lead at intermission and Richfield never got closer than 16.

Hagerman also won the preliminary 77-48.

DECLO 68-49

DECLO — Declo won the battle of the Hornets Friday night.

The Hornets from Declo roared to a 20-4 first quarter lead and never looked back against the outmanned Hornets from Oakley. Final score Declo 68, Oakley 49.

"We hit pretty good and just got the lead," said Declo Coach Gary Swan. "We played a pretty good game."

For Declo the win brought the Hornets record to 5-0 for the year. Tonight they travel to Aberdeen.

In the preliminary game, Declo won 52-29.

Hagerman wins

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman Pirates went on their biggest point binge of the season Friday night as they tumbled back the Richfield Tigers 81-45.

With lanky Brad Gough tanking 22 points, the Pirates dominated both ends of the court and never were in serious trouble.

Mushers over Huskies

FAIRFIELD — Camas County Coach Lou Andersen couldn't help but be impressed with the play of three of his players Friday night.

In the Mushers 78-43 win over Hansen, 6-2 forward David Ivie pumped in 33 points and collected 12 rebounds; Tony Dalin had 15 points and 18 rebounds; and Darrel Stewart had 10 points and 9 rebounds.

"They all had a real good game," said the coach after the team's first win of the season.

The Mushers are now 1-2 on the year and "want" play again until next Thursday when they entertain Castledale.

In the preliminary, Hansen blisted Castledale 54-31.

Gooding 60, Shoshone 47

SHOSHONE — The Gooding Senators reaped a huge harvest of layups, particularly in the second half Friday night, as they rolled past Shoshone in a 60-47 victory.

The Senators gave the Senators a battle in the first half, being tied at the end of the first quarter and down by six at intermission. But in the second half Gooding cranked up its fast break and came up with several seals to score several uncontested layups.

The Senators broke into a 36-25 lead at the end of the third quarter and coasted in a guard Mike Mann scored 14 of his 22 points in the final eight minutes.

Gooding also ran off with the preliminary.

Dietrich girls win

DIETRICH — The Dietrich girl's basketball team totally dominated the Bliss team to take a 39-11 win Friday night.

Given Fowers clipped in 16 points and Chris Kelly added 10 to lead the Blue Devils.

Dietrich led 16-2 at the half and then played the substitutes for the rest of the game.

The win is the eighth straight win for the Dietrich girls.

Bliss — Robuck 2, Pratt 2, Tinker 7, Dietrich — C. Kelly 10, Fowers 16, D. Higginbotham 4, Shanna Hubert 2, Shellie Hubert 2, Stimpson 1, Bingham 2, M. Kelly 2.

Rice loses

HOUSTON (UPI) — Carl Gordon made a 20-foot jump shot with 41 seconds remaining Friday night to cap a furious comeback by Southwestern that carried the Rebels to a 76-70 victory over Rice in the first round of the Bluebonnet Classic.

Southwestern Louisiana will face Houston in Saturday night's championship. The Cougars defeated Pan American 77-55 earlier Friday.

Rigby beats Jerome

RIGBY — Defending state A-2 champion Rigby jumped into the lead at the outset and went to defeat the Jerome Tigers 67-48 Friday night.

Rigby moved into a 10-4 lead in the first quarter and expanded that to 17-8. Early in the second quarter Adams hit two straight buckets to pull Jerome to within six at one stage but the Tigers never were able to get closer.

Coach Pat Hoke and Jerome remain in Eastern Idaho to meet Madison at Rexburg Saturday night.

A&M stuns Vegas

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rynn Wright hit two free throws with 10 seconds remaining Friday night to give A&M a 10-9 upset over previously undefeated Nevada-Las Vegas in the first round of the Golden Gate Invitational.

San Francisco met the University of the Pacific in the other first-round game.

The Aggies, 7-1, had missed seven of their previous nine free throws before Wright sank his pair for a 10-9 lead. The Rebels' Michael Loyd then drove the length of the court for an uncontested layup with four seconds to go. UNLV had a chance to tie it when Texas A&M's inbound pass hit the rear of the backboard.

But Michael Burns of UNLV missed a shot and Eral Evans tumbled on a tip at the buzzer as the Rebels dropped to 4-1. Wright led all scorers with 27 points and teammate Vernon Smith added 17. For the Rebels' Brett Vroman had 16 points and Evans 17.

Pittsburgh-Denver tops today's NFL games

BY UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
A nationally televised NFL doubleheader today offers viewers a comparison between two Super Bowl contenders eagerly anticipating the playoffs and a pair of disappointments whose memories of 1978 will be mostly painful. It is a contrast which also mirrors the difference between the league's two conferences.

The first game matches a pair of AFC teams, Chicago, 6-9, at Washington, 3-7. Despite having lost four straight games for the first time since 1970 and seven of their last nine, the Redskins still have a chance to reach the playoffs as an AFC wild card team. No one, however, regards the Redskins as serious Super Bowl threats.

Washington needs a victory over the Bears plus losses by Philadelphia and either Minnesota or Green Bay to gain the playoff berth. It narrowly missed last year, when the Redskins carried coach Jack Pardee, led the Bears to the AFC wild card spot.

Since winning their first six games, the Redskins have sagged badly. They are reportedly torn by a player rift involving a group of older players.

The Bears, after making their first playoff appearance in 15 seasons last year, suffered through an eight-game losing streak earlier this season under first-year coach Neil Armstrong, who calls 1978 "disappointing for us all." The Chicago defense has been porous and the offense ineffective with the pass.

Chicago could have the AFC's only pair of 1,000-yard rushers, however. If Roland Harper gains 82 yards against Washington, Walter Payton leads the conference with 1,305 yards. Payton was expected to play Sunday despite the death of his father this week.

The ragged play of Chicago and Washington are examples of general malaise plaguing the AFC again this season. Only three AFC teams—Dallas, Los Angeles and Philadelphia—have scored more points than they've allowed compared to nine AFC teams. For the second consecutive year the AFC has dominated the interconference schedule, winning 30 of 50 games with two more Sunday.

The second half of the TV doubleheader—Pittsburgh at Denver—presents two of the AFC's top clubs in a possible preview of a first-round playoff encounter. The Steelers, with the NFL's best record at 13-2, are in the playoffs a record second straight year, while the Broncos, 10-5, won the AFC West title for the second year in a row.

Pittsburgh and New England already have clinched the homefield advantage for the playoffs so the game has little meaning, except that the teams dislike each other. The Steelers have beaten Denver once in their last six meetings and were eliminated from the playoffs last year by the Broncos. Pittsburgh defensive tackle Joe Greene reemers that loss especially well. He punched Denver guard Paul Howard in the stomach during the game and drew a $5,000 fine from the league.

"From the feeling I got around the locker room, there's a little revenge on our minds," said Pittsburgh linebacker Jack Ham. "They took it away from us last year."

In game Sunday, Dallas visits the New York Jets, Minnesota is at Oakland, Atlanta at St. Louis, San Diego at Houston, Green Bay at Los Angeles, Cleveland at Cincinnati, New Orleans at Tampa Bay, Buffalo at Baltimore, Kansas City at Seattle, the New York Giants at Philadelphia and San Francisco at Detroit. Miami hosts New England Monday night.

Five teams will battle for the three remaining playoff spots, all in the AFC. Atlanta, Minnesota and Green Bay can qualify with victories. Philadelphia and Washington need victories plus defeats by one or more of their rivals.

Bullets drop Pistons by two

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Bob Dandridge sunk a 16-foot jumper with 30 seconds left Friday night to give the Washington Bullets a 116-114 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Elvin Hayes, who scored 28 points and grabbed 18 rebounds, paced Washington as the Bullets won their seventh consecutive regular game and raised their record to 21-9, tops in the Atlantic Division. The loss was the third in a row for Detroit, last in the Central Division.

Detroit trailed 60-54 at the half but took a three-point lead into the final period on an 8-foot jumper by Leon Rozendorn, who had 13 of his 23 points in the quarter. But Hayes scored 7 points in the final quarter, including five in the final two minutes, to set the stage for Dandridge's base line jumper.

For Detroit, M.L. Carr had 21 points and Terry Tyler and Ben Poquette each had 19 points.

with less than two minutes to go.

Pete Walker had 19 points and Carr 18 for Cleveland, which led by 19 after one quarter. Milwaukee, losers of five of its last six, was paced by Brian Winters with 23 points and Marques Johnson with 18.

With Russell and Bingo Smith scoring 8 points apiece, Cleveland shot 72 percent of the floor in the first quarter to take a 37-18 lead. But Milwaukee scored the last nine points of the half to pull within two, 56-54, at intermission.

76ers by 7

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Caldwell Jones scored 16 points Friday night and dominated the boards in the decisive third quarter to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 91-84 victory over the Houston Rockets.

The 76ers, up 50-47 at halftime, broke open the game with a 30-13 surge in the third quarter. Bobby Jones had 9 points and Caldwell Jones grabbed 8 rebounds during the spree.

A three-point play by Bobby Jones gave Philadelphia its biggest lead, 85-62, with 10:54 left. But after the 76ers took an 87-66 edge with 9:43 to play, Mike Dunleavy and Rudy Tomjanovich led a 16-2 tear that brought the Rockets within seven, 83-82, with 2:46 remaining. But Doug Collins hit a jumper with 1:54 to play split the victory.

Rick Barry led the Rockets with 19 points and teammate Moses Malone pulled down a game-high 21 rebounds.

Celtics lose

BOSTON (UPI) — Rookie Phil Ford scored 19 points and paced a fourth-quarter comeback to give the Kansas City Kings a 105-101 victory over the Boston Celtics Friday night.

Trailing 94-90 with eight minutes remaining, Kansas City scored 11 straight points to take a 101-94 lead. The Kings, led by Scott Wedman, Sam Lacey and Ford during the spree, held Boston to 15 points in the last quarter.

Kansas City jumped to a 29-25 lead in the first period as Otis Birdsong hit for 11 of his 22 points and Wedman scored 9 of his 20. Chris Ford kept the Celtics in the game, scoring Boston's first 11 points. He finished with 22 points.

The Celtics tied it 55-55 at the half. Boston player-coach Dave Cowens led the comeback, scoring 10 of his 17 in the second period. In the third period, Boston scored six straight points to finish the quarter with an 80-64 lead. Cedric Maxwell finished with 27 points for Boston.

Butler ignites ISU comeback 66-56

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Guards Randal Robinson and Lawrence Butler ignited a second-half rally Friday night when Idaho State defeated Georgia 66-56 in the first round of the Utah Classic.

Utah played Hofstra in the other opening game.

In the second half, Robinson scored 13 of his 15 points and Butler 10 of his 12 as Idaho State upped its record to 1-3.

Reserve Bryan Banks added 14 points for the Bengals.

Georgia, 2-2, led 24-13 with five minutes to go in the half. But Idaho State cut the lead to 26-23 at halftime and finally moved ahead 45-44 with 9:15 to go on Banks' tip in.

Robinson had 16 rebounds and Paul Wilson 12 points and 11 rebounds for the Bengals. Walter Daniels of Georgia led all scorers with 24 points.

Borg advances to tennis cup semifinals

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (UPI) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden, Raul Ramirez of Mexico, Ilie Nastase of Romania and surprising Peter Fleming of Seabrook Island, S.C., Friday advanced to the semifinals of the $20,000 World Championship of Tennis Challenge Cup.

Borg, the top seed, was the only one among the four semifinalists who went through the round-robin group competition without defeat. On Friday he beat Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

"I was a bit lucky to win," said the 22-year-old Borg. "Tanner was serving very well and hitting very well."

"He simply played too well for me," said Tanner, the game's hardest server. "My hat's off to him."

Ramirez also qualified for Saturday's semifinals by beating Harold Solomon of Silver Springs, Md., 6-4, 6-2, earlier Friday.

In the semifinals, Borg goes against Fleming, a 26-foot-5 23-year old with a booming serve and Ramirez faces Nastase. Fleming was a last-minute substitution for ailing Vitas Gerulaitis, but he eliminated Dick Stockton and John McEnroe.

On Friday, Nastase defeated Fleming 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 with a spectacular array of volleys, dropshots and lobs. His brilliant display earned him a standing ovation from the capacity crowd of 2,000 at the tennis stadium of the Rose Hall Intercontinental Hotel.

Earler Friday, Stockton beat McEnroe, the temperamental teenage Davis Cupper for the United States, 6-3, 6-2, in a victory that briefly kept both players' qualification hopes alive, but only if Fleming stopped Nastase.

But when Nastase beat Fleming, both qualified and Stockton, and McEnroe were out.

In the preliminary round-robin competition, each victory was a $10,000 winner-take-all affair. The semifinals will be $50,000 winner-take-all contests and the winner of the final gets $100,000 in addition to his earlier earnings — a total of $180,000.

OSU picks Johnson as coach

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Pittsburgh chief assistant Jim Johnson Friday accepted the head football coaching job at Oklahoma State and promised to produce a team that could throw the ball and run inside.

Johnson, 35, chosen to replace ousted Jim Stanley, said he had not decided the makeup of his staff.

"We are going to bring in some people on our coaching staff who know the passing game," he said. "We're going to throw the football. We also will be able to run the ball inside."

Johnson said the Cowboys would have a multiple offense and a multiple defense.

Athletic Director Richard Young, who introduced Johnson at a news conference, described as "our choice, our first choice and the only person to whom the position was offered."

Young described Johnson as "dedicated, organized and super enthusiastic."

Johnson said he realized his task at Oklahoma State, which has been under investigation for about five years and is on NCAA probation, will not be easy.

"My eyes are not looking behind me. I am looking to the future. We're going to crank it up," he said.

Johnson said he hoped to have the full staff of assistants on the road and recruiting by mid-January.

"I think we can recruit successfully with the sanctimonies," Johnson said in response to a question. "There have been some problems here but I think they are in the past."

Rutgers to meet Sun Devils

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Coach Frank Burns of Rutgers University is not going to get his wish today and the promoters of the first Garden State Bowl are happy about it.

Burns was hoping the temperature would plunge into the teens for Saturday's game with Arizona State, but the weather forecast says it's going to be in the high 40s and, while that should help the game, it brings a furrow to the brow of the Scarlet Knights' coach.

It is not used to playing in cold weather and, if the artificially surfaced field of Giants Stadium was slick from the frost, Burns reasoned it would seriously hamper the Sun Devils' speed. Now it appears Rutgers will have to run for its life to keep up with its opponents.

"They're by far the quickest team we will have played," said Darl McMahon, the Scarlet Knights' defensive end-linebacker, "and artificial surface makes you two steps quicker to begin with. Their wingback, Chris DeFrance, gets off the ball faster than anyone we've seen. He gets so deep, so fast. We can't match a 9.5 speedster like that."

"We'll have to be up to our best game. We have to go for broke."

If Rutgers is going to defeat Arizona State, the Scarlet Knights will have to contain quarterback Mark Malone. Malone, a 9.7 sprinter, led the team in rushing this season with 705 yards on 143 carries.

"Because of my speed I pose a certain threat to defenses with option and sprint-out passes," says Malone. "We have excellent running backs and when we run the option and the defense comes up on me, I'll pitch the ball to a back."

"But if they leave me open, I'm going to turn upfield and run. And, when they come up on me, I'm going to put my head in there and deliver a good blow."

Rockets drop ex-Eagle

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Rockets Friday placed 6-foot-11 center Tom Barker, former College of Southern Idaho center, on waivers.

Barker, signed as a free agent June 6, has been injured since Nov. 11. A fourth-round draft pick by the Atlanta Hawks 1976, Barker played just 16 minutes in five games with the Rockets this season. He scored 8 points and had 6 rebounds.

On Nov. 11, he suffered facial cuts and bruises against San Diego and was placed on the injured reserve list.

A spokesman said Barker was expected to return to the Jersey Shore Blueets of the Continental Basketball Association, where he played after being cut by the Hawks and before joining the Rockets.

Tom Barker has received the Seagram's Seven Crown of Sports award of $10,000 and a trophy. Jack Nicklaus has won the award for the last three years. The ratings are based on a round-by-round analysis of play in every PGA tour event, with emphasis on consistency.

Bouton lands job

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Bouton, former pitcher for the New York Yankees, Seattle Pilots, Houston Astros and Atlanta Braves, has been signed as a CBS-TV sports announcer covering the Tri-State area sports scene on the 11 PM report beginning Jan. 15.

Bouton pitched for the Yankees from 1962 through 1968, winning 21 games and making the American League All-Star team in 1963.

Zorn sparks probe

SEATTLE (UPI) — The National Football League is "reviewing" statements by Seattle Seahawks quarterback Jim Zorn that he received laundered payments three years ago from the Los Angeles Rams, a Seattle newspaper reported Friday.

The Seattle Times said NFL officials indicated they would look into the case based on Zorn's comments in San Diego last week.

Shell added to list

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pittsburgh safety Donnie Shell has replaced teammate Mike Wagner on the AFC Pro Bowl team because of an error in the original vote counting, the NFL announced Friday.

The NFL changed the 40-man roster after a review of the ballots submitted by the 14 AFC head coaches and the consensus vote of each team's NFL Players Association members disclosed that Shell, a strong safety, had received more votes than Wagner, a free safety. An error was made in the initial compilation, the NFL said.

Maddox sets surgery

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Mets outfielder Elliot Maddox will undergo surgery at Roosevelt Hospital Dec. 26 for the removal of a sesamoid on his right thumb, the Mets announced Friday.

Maddox was bothered all season by the painful growth on the bone, which will be removed by Dr. James Parkes, the Mets' team physician. The surgery will not cause Maddox to miss any part of spring training, the Mets added.

Haywood hospitalized

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spencer Haywood has been sent to Lenox Hill hospital for tests to determine whether he has bronchitis, the New York Knicks announced Friday.

The veteran forward was to miss Friday night's game at Chicago and would probably be unavailable for Sunday's home game against Atlanta, the Knicks said.

Bowl games highlight today's action

By United Press International

The Independence Bowl in Shreveport, La., may be the least known of the major post-season college football games, but it will get at least one five-star review today when Louisiana Tech hosts East Carolina.

The nation's only five-star general, Omar Bradley, will attend the contest and present the Spirit of Independence Award at halftime.

Rutgers will have to devise a way to contain the Sun Devils' speed, especially the options of quarterback Mark Malone.

"We're going to have to play our best to have a chance with them," said Rutgers' linebacker-defensive end Dan McMahon. "Judging from their game films, they're the quickest team we will have faced."

Florida A&M will be without the services of leading rusher Ike Williams when it meets Massachusetts. With Williams sidelined, the burden of the offense falls on the shoulder of quarterback Alb Chester, who has gained 51 yards this year, and fullback Mike Solomon, who piked up 431 yards.

Actor John Wayne also has been invited to attend the game, and the appearance of these two distinguished personalities gives a measure of respect to a post-season game which is in only its third year of existence.

Massachusetts has an excellent defensive team, having intercepted six passes in its 44-21 semifinal victory over Nevada-Teno last week.

The Independence Bowl is one of three post-season games on today's schedule. Arizona State meets Rutgers in the Garden State Bowl at East Rutherford, N.J., and Massachusetts takes on Florida A&M for the Division I-A championship in the Pioneer Bowl at Wichita Falls, Tex.

Aside from the respective student bodies, only the most fanatic college football fan would know about the exploits of East Carolina and Louisiana Tech this season. Yet, the respective student bodies ranked defense. East Carolina, against a team that won the Southern Conference.

East Carolina's defense, nicknamed "The Swarm," held opponents to only 11 points a game and boasted the second best total defense this season in compiling an 8-3 record and winning the Southern Conference. On offense, the Pirates feature a balanced attack that features three strong rushers and an accomplished quarterback in Leander Green.

Louisiana Tech (6-4) relies mostly on the running of George Yates and the passing of Keith Thibodeaux.

There are three games slated for Dec. 22 with LSU meeting Missouri in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, Tenn., Maryland facing Texas in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., and North Carolina (6-4) taking on Pittsburgh in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.

Rutgers (9-2) will be appearing in its first post-season game ever when it takes on Pacific-10 powerhouse Arizona State (8-3) at Giants Stadium.

Before the traditional Big Four bowl games on New Year's Day, there will be four other post-season contests. On Christmas Day, Arkansas meets UCLA in the Fiesta Bowl at Tempe, Ariz., and Purdue faces Georgia Tech in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta; on Dec. 29 Clemson takes on Ohio State in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.; and on Dec. 31 Stanford meets Georgia in the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston, Tex.

Knight defends his dismissals

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight said he has more guts than any other coach in college basketball.

Knight's comment ended a week's silence about the dismissal of three players and placing of five others, including top scorer Mike Woodson — on probation.

"I'll tell you what I think, and this sounds egotistical, but I'm the only guy coaching today who will stand up and do something," Knight explained. "If I had to, I'd kick three off next year, and three the next year, and three the next, if it was a matter of principle."

Players dismissed were senior center Jim Robertson and sophomores Tommy Baker and Don Cox. Baker, a guard, was a sometimes starter last season and also started last weekend against Bradley.

Placed on probation, in addition to Woodson, were Ray Tolbert, Landon Turner, Phil Isenbarger and Eric Kirchner. Tolbert was starting center and Woodson, an all-league selection, led the team in scoring.

Neither the coach nor the university ever confirmed reports that the action against the Hoosier players stemmed from marijuana use.

TOMMY BAKER

DON COX

JIM ROBERTSON

However, one of the players reportedly involved said that the incidents started before Indiana played in a tournament at Anchorage, Alaska. The player said some team members made "experiments" with the substance, but others had used it almost daily.

Knight said he planned to use the players on probation Saturday at Bloomington against defending national champion Kentucky "as if nothing had happened."

"We'll just try as hard as we can. This thing has had more effect on how we've played to date than it will on how we'll play in the future."

He said he didn't care about an uproar the action has caused in the news media or among the public.

"Burning a bit philosophical, Knight quoted an English sounder: "Here I lie, wounded but not slain. I lie me down to bleed a while, but rise to fight again."

He said that rather than compromise his principles, he might consider quitting coaching.

"When I'm recruiting, I tell the parents that I expect certain things from their kids and then I go through all that," he said. "I tell them that playing for me will be more demanding than at any other place they could go and I believe if the parents entrust their son with me I have the responsibility that he grows as much towards his potential as he possibly can."

Petty may be released

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — NASCAR driver Richard Petty may be released from the hospital this weekend after undergoing surgery last week to remove scar tissue from an ulcer.

Brenda Williams, Petty's secretary at Petty Enterprises in Randleman, said Friday the family is expecting him home this weekend.

"Whether it will be Saturday or Sunday we don't know," she added. "He looks real good, and as far as I know he's just resting right now," she said.

Petty said earlier this year he was starting from an ulcer, but it had healed fully. A family spokesman said the operation was needed to avoid future problems.

Brewers purchase Rangers' Reggie Cleveland

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Brewers Friday purchased the veteran pitcher Reggie Cleveland from the Texas Rangers in a move a club official said would "deepen our pitching."

The Brewers sent pitcher Ed Farmer, minor-league first baseman Gary Holle and cash to the Rangers for Cleveland, 30, who has a lifetime record of 91-89 as a starter and reliever in both leagues.

"Ever since the season ended we've been looking for more experience for our bullpen," General Manager Harry Dalton said. Cleveland can be a short or long reliever and an occasional starter, and "he has five or six years ahead of him," Dalton said.

"The thing we had to do was deepen our pitching, especially in relief, and Cleveland can do that," Dalton said.

Cleveland had two 14-victory seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League before being traded in 1973 to the Boston Red Sox, where his best season was 13-9. He was 40-41 in the NL and 51-48 in the AL.

Last season he was 5-8 with Texas, had an earned run average of 3.08 and a club leading 12 saves. His lifetime ERA is 3.90 and he has pitched 1,335 innings in 319 games.

Farmer, a second year man, was 1-0 with one save for the Brewers late in the season and Holle divided last season between Holyoke and Spokane, hitting 18 homers and batting in 84 runs.

MIAMI (UPI) — Back when the schedules were made out, ABC-TV must have drooled when it saw it was going to wind up the football season Monday night with a game between New England and Miami.

No more, because the Patriots have clinched the AFC Eastern Division title and will have nothing at stake except pride. That may very well be the case for the Dolphins too.

Miami has clinched a wild card berth, but the Dolphins' incentive could be heightened greatly if San Diego beats Houston Sunday. That would mean a Dolphin win Monday night would give them the home field advantage in their playoff game against the Oilers Christmas Eve.

"We're hoping the Monday night game has some meaning for us. We're depending on San Diego for that," said Miami Coach Don Shula.

"If Houston wins it, we'll still be looking to get something out of the game," he said. "I'm sure I'll get (backup quarterback) Don Strock in. I'll also give consideration to the injured players and try to get other players in the game so they'll be ready to help us the following week."

Rock Creek crossing protested

By Bonnie Baird Jones
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Directors of the Twin Falls Highway District assured a group of nearly 75 unhappy residents Friday afternoon they would hold a public hearing before going ahead with a fill crossing of Rock Creek on 2700 East Road.

Property owners attended a meeting of the highway board to protest the proposed fill project on Rock Creek west of Twin Falls where new housing is developing on small acreages.

Residents who have built and are building expensive new homes or the canyon rim said they do not want a crossing that would destroy the aesthetic values of the area and reduce their property values. Some residents argued they contacted the highway district at the time they built their homes, as recently as last year, and were not told of any plans to build a fill.

Others objected to the fill on grounds it would ruin a beautiful area of Rock Creek, part of the view which enhances their property value.

Several persons attending expressed fear that a crossing would automatically make 2700 a through route for truck and other traffic skirting Twin Falls to the west.

Robert Colner, who lives on 2700 East but south of the canyon, said he felt if the county built the fill it would give the state and federal governments a natural location for a belt route and would increase traffic at the already hazardous Jackson corner.

Mrs. James Teater, who is just moving into her new home at the proposed fill site, urged the board to abandon plans for a crossing, but if one is absolutely necessary to consider a bridge structure. Only one person attending the meeting favored the district's proposal. Others argued against increased traffic, a fill almost on their doorsteps and the dumping of fill material in the canyon over a period of time.

The highway district had proposed a fill to provide another crossing of Rock Creek and disburse traffic over more roads. Highway Board Chairman Kenneth Poe said. He said the board has no intention at this time to go ahead with any belt route or to purposely route traffic via the new fill.

Mrs. Marvin Spacek, the most seriously affected by the proposal, owns property in the canyon. She said the fill would go on the exact site where her home sits and would render her 12 acres useless. She said the crossing would abolish her access and there is no other location for a septic tank on her land.

Poe told the group no decision would be made at the Friday meeting because the board had agreed to this prior to the meeting. He said if no decision is made at a later time it will mean there will be no crossing.

Highway board member Lloyd Shewmaker promised if the project is to go any further, a public hearing "for all of the people" will be held. He said he believed the highway board had "gotten the message" from the Friday delegation and said for one he wouldn't touch the area with a hand shovel.

The proposed crossing is about one mile from the Pole Line Bridge, which is being replaced with a fill, and residents said they can see no need for two crossings a mile apart. They urged the board to consider going further west if additional crossings are made.

The county road, 2700 East, now dead-ends on each side of the canyon. Residents from both sides of Rock Creek protested the project.

Airwest flights change today

TWIN FALLS — Hughes Airwest's reduced flight schedule from Twin Falls to San Francisco goes into effect today.

The schedule changes were announced last month. Hughes decided to drop its daily Twin Falls to San Francisco flights because additional planes were needed to service new routes the airline picked up in the nationwide airline deregulation, and because the San Francisco flight is not heavily booked most of the year.

From now on, flights to San Francisco will leave Twin Falls only on Saturday and Sunday at 4:30 p.m. and will be a non-stop flight. Before, it used to stop in Sacramento, Calif., en route to San Francisco.

Also, from January 6, the former afternoon flight from Los Angeles to Twin Falls via Salt Lake City becomes an evening flight. It formerly arrived in Twin Falls at 5:27 p.m.; now, it will arrive in Twin Falls at 11:07 p.m.

Also beginning today, an additional flight from Los Angeles via Salt Lake City will arrive in Twin Falls on Saturday and Sunday only at 10:40 p.m. and leave for Los Angeles again at 11:20 p.m.

Beginning Jan. 6, additional non-stop flights to both San Francisco and Los Angeles will be initiated.

Beginning Jan. 6, an additional non-stop flight from San Francisco will arrive in Twin Falls at 10:10 p.m. and leave for San Francisco at 10:45 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday only.

An additional non-stop flight from Los Angeles will arrive in Twin Falls at 9:40 p.m. and leave for Los Angeles at 10:10 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday only.

Cablevision going off temporarily on Sunday

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Cablevision will interrupt service to customers in Twin Falls, Filer, Kimberly and Hansen Sunday morning from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The interruption will be necessary, according to Cablevision area manager Gene Hinnour, to move the company's electronic processing equipment from 420 Main Ave. S. to the company's new Cablevision Center at 201 Eastland Drive.

Hinnour said no problems are anticipated in the move, but if problems do arise they probably would interrupt only one or two channels beyond 5 a.m.

Hinnour said early Sunday morning was picked for the interruption because it is the lowest viewing period.

The move is part of a major construction project for Cablevision which will result in the addition of several new channels to the company's programming.

EDA official due next week

TWIN FALLS — An Economic Development Administration official will visit Twin Falls next week to look into a $200,000 grant application the city has made.

The city has applied for the funds to improve the road into the Snake River Canyon on the canyon's south side just west of the Perrine Bridge.

If the city is granted the EDA funding, it will match that amount with cash and in-kind services. It has already budgeted for this year, according to City Manager Jean Milar.

Milar said the city has applied for EDA funding for this project every year for several years, but this year the chances of receiving the funding are excellent because the project is at the top of the EDA's Region 4 priority list.

Milar said the purpose of the EDA official's visit will be to make an on-site inspection of the project for which the funds have been requested. He said he does not know yet when the official will arrive.

Tax deadline Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — The deadline for paying the 1978 tax bills is only a few days away. Twin Falls County Treasurer Juanita Stettler reminds area property owners.

To avoid penalty and interest costs, owners of real property and mobile homes must pay the first installment of their taxes by Wednesday, she said.

Owners of personal property other than mobile homes must pay the full amount of taxes due by Wednesday.

Payments may be made either at the treasurer's office on the second floor of the Twin Falls County Courthouse, or they may be mailed to Juanita Stettler, Box 88, Twin Falls, with a postmark no later than Dec. 20.

Mrs. Stettler said the total tax charge for 1978 on real property is $3.32 million, compared to $9.65 million last year, a total decrease of $238,883.

Of the total, $1.26 million will be paid by public utility properties, Mrs. Stettler explained.

The mobile home tax charge in the county totals $106,500. She said taxpayers who do not pay their mobile home taxes by Dec. 20 must pay the full year together with penalty and interest costs to the sheriff.

Truancy trial over

RUPERT — Court adjourned after four days of testimony here Friday in the trial between the State of Idaho and nine children who are not attending public schools.

Fifth District Magistrate Judge Ronald Bruce will await a brief from defense attorney Wayne Loveless before he rules whether the seven children of Richard Denning and two children of Kendall R. and Connie Bingham are truant because they are being schooled at home by their parents.

Denning, of Rupert, said Loveless told the court it probably will be February before he can submit the brief summing up the defense's position that the children should not be considered truant just because they aren't being educated in the school system.

The state has argued that the youths are truant and as a result come under the court's jurisdiction through the Youth Rehabilitation Act.

The Mindokka County School Board has said it feels the children aren't receiving an education comparable to public schooling because the parents are not certified teachers, the school environment is different from the home and allows for social contact not available at home.

The Binghamns are former Rupert residents now living in Albion.

Obituaries

E. E. Halsell

JEROME — E.E. "Bert" Halsell, 79, of Jerome died Wednesday evening at his home following a short illness.

He was born Dec. 18, 1898, in Texas and attended schools there. He left Texas at the age of 29 and moved to California where he went to work for the Texaco Oil Company. He married Edna Pearl Batchelor at Elko, Nev., on Oct. 10, 1969. Following their marriage they came to Jerome where they since resided.

Survivors include his wife of Jerome; a son, Paul Reinsch; two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth (Billie) Sams of Richfield and Mrs. Ed (Florence) Evans of Clarkston, Wash.; two sisters, Mrs. Eva Bell of Tranquilly, Calif., and Mrs. Gladys Daniels of Fresno; twelve grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Burial was preceded in death by one brother and a sister.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Monday at the Hope Funeral Chapel by Rev. Vernon Kendall. Burial will follow in the Jerome Cemetery. Friends may call at the Hope Chapel Sunday and Monday until 1:30 p.m. The family suggests memorials be made to the cancer fund or charity of choice.

William Stonemets

BUHL — William Stonemets, 79, died Friday morning at a hospital in Graham, Ore.

He was born Aug. 2, 1899, in Springfield, Ill. He lived in Oklahoma, Washington, Missouri and Colorado before marrying Catherine Peterson on June 1, 1925, in Windsor, Colo.

They moved to Idaho in 1926, farming in the Cedar Draw area until 1971, when they retired and moved to Buhl.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Buhl, the Cedar Draw Grange, and the Buhl Masonic Lodge.

He is survived by his wife of Buhl; a daughter, Mrs. Adson (Georgia) Starnes of Clackamas, Ore.; a son, William, of Twin Falls; a brother, Ted, of Greeley, Colo.; a sister, Lila Walters of Windsor and six grandchildren.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Buhl First Baptist Church, with the Rev. Paul Cox officiating. Burial will be in the West End Cemetery. Friends may call at the Farmer Chapel all day Monday and until noon Tuesday. Memorials may be given to the Heart Fund.

Services

HAZELTON — Services for Monte Knight Andrus, 39, of Hazelton, who died suddenly Wednesday, will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at the Twin Falls Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in the Hazelton Cemetery. Friends may call at White Mortuary 9:30 a.m. Monday. Thursday's obituary incorrectly stated he is survived by two daughters. Mr. Andrus is survived by a son and a daughter.

FILER — Graveside funeral services for Florence Irene DeKlotz, 78, of Filer, who died Wednesday, will be held at 11 a.m. today at the Filer 100th Cemetery with the Rev. Edwin Bayley officiating. White Mortuary is in charge of funeral arrangements.

TWIN FALLS — Funeral services for Art Mason, 76, of Twin Falls, who died Wednesday at the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the White Mortuary Chapel. Burial will follow in the Sunset Memorial Park. Friends may call at the White Mortuary today and Sunday, until 1 p.m. on Monday. Mr. Mason is survived by two sisters instead of two daughters as previously reported.

PAUL — Services for Elmer Harold Sandlin Jr., 47, of Provo, former Paul resident who died Tuesday in Provo, will be at 1 p.m. today at the Hansen Mortuary. Burial will be in the Paul Cemetery with military graveside rites under the direction of the VFW, the American Legion, DAV and WWI veterans. Friends may call at the Hansen Mortuary this afternoon and evening and prior to the services today.

TWIN FALLS — Services for Dorothy May Hendrix, 63, of Woodstone Manor in Twin Falls, who died Wednesday at the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, will be held at 2 p.m. today at the White Mortuary Chapel. Burial will be in the Buhl Cemetery.

TWIN FALLS — Graveside funeral services for Mabel J. Wilson, 89, of Justamere Inn in Twin Falls, who died Tuesday, will be held today at 3:30 p.m. at the White Mortuary Chapel. Burial will be in the Sunset Memorial Park.

Minimal flow topic of hearing

HAILEY — A public hearing on plans to save Silver Creek for wildlife, sporting and other recreational uses has been set here Jan. 11 by the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

The hearing marks the first public consideration of an application to establish "minimum stream flow" on Idaho waterways.

Under the State-Water Plan, minimum flow water rights can be granted for the purpose of setting aside enough water to protect fish and wildlife habitat, water quality, aesthetic character and recreation and transportation uses of the state's streams.

The water plan, enacted by the 1978 Legislature, enables the water resources department to grant minimum flow water rights to the Idaho Water Resources Board, which becomes a legal guardian of the stream.

Once a minimum flow is established on a waterway, future water rights applications that would bring the stream below the established minimum level will be denied by the department. The water resources board must determine what minimum water level should be established on the stream.

The department will hold the Jan. 11 hearing on two applications submitted by the water resources board Sept. 13. The board has proposed minimum flows at two points on Silver Creek, a world-famous trout fishing stream south of Hailey.

The Silver Creek applications propose to establish a minimum flow of 99 cubic feet per second (cfs) at a point on the creek near Picabo, and a flow of 74 cfs near the State Highway 93 crossing of the creek between Richfield and Carey.

Under water plan specifications, the department can establish minimum flows only if the designation won't interfere with previous water rights on a stream. The Idaho Legislature must also approve minimum flows.

According to a member of the Idaho Conservation League, if the two Silver Creek applications are approved, the action will pre-empt a previously submitted application to build two commercial trout hatcheries on Silver Creek.

The hatchery application was submitted by Magic Valley Trout Farms owner Ken Ellis earlier this year.

Idaho Conservation League director Mark Ingram said Friday a minimum flow designation, which would be upstream from the site Ellis has applied for, would "pre-empt" Ellis's application because of the minimum flow level. No action has been taken on Ellis's application.

The Jan. 11 hearing, to be held at the Hailey City Hall at 9 a.m., is the first to be held on a minimum flow application.

Illegal alien registration

TWIN FALLS — All aliens in Idaho and the rest of the nation are required to report their addresses to the federal government by Jan. 31 according to officials at the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Only foreign persons with diplomatic status or who are representatives for certain international organizations such as the United Nations are exempt from the requirement.

Forms for address reporting can be obtained at any U.S. Post Office. Information on naturalization can be obtained at any office of the INS.

QUESTION...

Is it true that the Catholic Church has withdrawn its objections to cremation and that Catholics are now free to choose between burial or cremation?

ANSWER...

May 19, 1886, the Catholic Church issued Canon 1240 which forbade Christian burial to anyone who directed that his body be cremated.

July 5, 1969, Pope Paul VI, without approving cremation or giving the church preference for burial of the dead, granted permission for cremation as a restriction. The accompanying public prayers may never be held at the crematorium itself. This restriction was modified with the adoption of the new Rites at Christian Burial Service, authorized by Pope Paul on June 3, 1970, which provides that rites usually celebrated at graveside may be performed in the crematorium building itself.

One of the reasons for this change of attitude is the desire of the church to accommodate itself to the peoples of all cultures. In Japan and India, for instance, the custom of cremation has been accepted for centuries.

Horoscope

Ariens will be wise to keep a focus at home

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Be more considerate in home situations and avoid questionable conditions that could cause trouble. Make a special effort to show your appreciation of the comforts of your home.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Have more harmony with those at home and forget outside noise. Extend an invitation to dinner to good friends, though, and have a delightful time together. Don't neglect necessary marketing.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Concentrate on affairs with associates and schedule your work for the coming week. Don't jeopardize your health in any way. Study new plans in the evening and make sure they are right.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Keep focused on monetary affairs and don't get caught in any fly-by-night schemes which others may have. Set up a new budget and plan for any possible sudden emergencies.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study what your kin desire of you and try to please them. You can advance through creative plans. Avoid a known troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy at home and make things work like clockwork. If you must go out, drive carefully. Study a new interest, but don't invest anything today. Caution is the keynote.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) You get a letter that can be the means through which you can improve some condition now. Wait for a better day to handle any financial problem that may crop up.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21) You are inspired as to how to make improvements to holdings so you can add to them appreciably. Get the advice of an expert, also. Take the lead at home and improve conditions there.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21) Put those good ideas you have to work, even if they differ from the norm. Get rid of that martyrdom complex and carry on in a courageous fashion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study whatever it is that most interests you and then follow your intuitions and go after goals. Steer clear of a friend who stifles you and keeps you from accomplishing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Talk over with a clever friend whatever it is that puzzles you and get right advice. Not a good time to approach bigwigs for support.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Gain the favor of bigwigs today and then plan for bigger things ahead. Don't fall for appeals from out-of-towners or you diminish your capability to progress. Be more independent.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be alert to benefits possible from a distance or from those whose background is different from yours. Stop doing favors for one who is always asking for them and never returning any.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...he or she will like to stick close to home. Teach early to become more familiar with the world of action so as to be prepared later on for a big success there. There is a love of cooking here, so add this to the educational curriculum.

What's what

There's a romantic link to deeply religious women

Women who are highly religious tend to be exceedingly satisfied in physical romance. Or so a national magazine's survey of 100,000 women seems to indicate. Our Love and War man sees no mystery in this finding. That thing sometimes called the leap of faith is the lady's lane to religion. To take it, she must be able to let herself go, likewise a requirement of romantic satisfaction. No line chart or bar graphs at hand to illustrate exactly how these compare. Pity.

With a cat, a short meow means it wants attention, along meow means it's hungry. Or so contend the feline experts.

You knew, did you not, that the word "nausea" comes from the Greek "naus," meaning ship?

KILL

If an Australian "blackfellow" mother has more children than she can properly care for, she's permitted to kill one of them.

Q. "How much did Elton John pay for his hair transplant?"
A. $2,000. Am told he says it was worth it.

The statisticians report that ballet in 1977 attracted 15 million ticket buyers while NFL football only drew 14.5 million.

Claim is that half the tennis players over age 35 have some sort of elbow ailment.

The lawmakers of Belvedere, Calif., once passed an ordinance which reads: "No dog shall be in a public place without its master on a leash."

Which is the one religion that holds there'll be romance after death?

SICK

Statistics show parents are more inclined to call their doctors when their sons are sick than when their daughters are sick. Why is that?

If you spend one entire year of your 70 years talking on the telephone, you're just about average. As an American, at any rate.

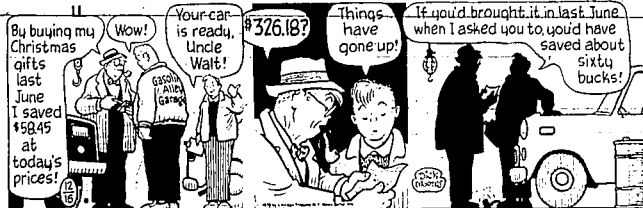

Only one of these United States left wherein you can't legally buy a mixed drink is Oklahoma.

Can you think of any member of the U.S. House of Representatives who has ever been successfully unseated for corruption. Neither can I.

Among people over age 65, the women outnumber the men by 100 to 70.

thing. Neither finesse worked for him this time, but he had not needed to try them.

Here is the winning line of play: Win the heart in dummy, cash the top diamonds to get rid of two spades, lead a third diamond and ruff with the 10 of trumps. Now lead a low trump to dummy. If West plays low you make seven. But West is too smart for that. He rises with his queen and leads another heart.

Win in your hand. Lead a second low trump to dummy. Ruff another diamond, draw the last trump, get to dummy with a heart and discard your queen of diamonds on a good diamond.

Ask the Experts

A Kentucky reader asks what a goulash hand is.

In many games after a hand is passed out, "buck" pieces or jacks are placed in suits. The hands are placed one on top of another. There are several cuts, but no shuffle and the cards are dealt five at a time, five at a time and three at a time to produce weird distributions. NEWS-PAPER ENTREPRENEUR ASSN.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South wasted no time with his simple slam contract. He won the heart lead in dummy and lost a club, finesse to West. Back came a second heart. South won this one in his own hand, drew trumps, got back to dummy with the remaining high heart, discarded two spades on the ace and king of diamonds, lost the spade finesse and the slam. "Finesses work for everyone else. Never for me," lamented South.
