Carter plans $122.8 billion for defense

By BERNARD WEINRA
©N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Carter has decided to propose an increase in next year's defense budget to $122.8 billion in order to meet the administration's pledge to bolster military spending in Europe, administration sources said Tuesday.

The figure will enable the administration to claim that the defense budget will increase 3 percent beyond normal inflationary growth, as the president has promised. But officials said that the administration would achieve the increase through government mandated pay restrictions on defense and other federal workers.

Carter informed Defense Secretary Harold Brown on the decision during the Christmas weekend, and is set to meet Brown over the next few days to work on the details of the defense budget, which represents 25 percent of all federal outlays. Administration officials said the budget figure might change slightly after the meeting, but that it would still hover around $123 billion.

Carter's closely-held decision appears to mark a compromise in the strong administration debate on how much to spend for defense at the expense of social and domestic programs. The president is expected to chop the overall budget deficit below $30 billion in the new 1980 fiscal year that will run from Oct. 1, 1979 to Sept. 30, 1980.

Although the $122.8 billion figure is about $1 billion less than what Brown had sought — and will plainly limit some military programs — the figure is clearly designed to meet Carter's promise to the Western Alliance that the United States would increase military spending by 3 percent on top of inflation.

Worried about the expansion of Soviet military power in Europe, the heads of government of the Atlantic Alliance agreed last May to increase defense spending by about 3 percent a year, after inflation, and to carry out long-term military improvements.

European leaders have said in recent weeks that any faltering by the United States would damage the administration's credibility in Europe and threaten the ability of other nations in the alliance to win parliamentary approval for defense increases. Except in recent years, most European nations have been lagging in increasing defense spending, after inflation, and have relied largely on the United States, the alliance leaders said.

No-exemption sales taxes for Idahoans?

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Property Owners Association may call for repeal of all state sales tax exemptions to help fund Idaho education, according to the group's president, Don Chance of Boise.

The proposal to cripple education, but it doesn't want higher taxes. "We want no new taxes," Chance said. "We want state and local government cut and we want education adequately funded."

Changes in NASA expected

By WILLIAM HINES

WASHINGTON — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which has never ranked very high in President Carter's scheme of things, may be headed even further into eclipse in the months ahead.

Chance told KTUV news in Boise the association's board already has approved a resolution endorsing the no-exemption plan if the Legislature needs more money to fund Idaho education.

Valley dairy farms are rolling in clover

from a high of 250,000 in 1944 to a paltry 139,000 in 1977. Except for a surge in the '50s and a weak spurt of growth in '72 and '73, dairy cows have slowly been off the farms in Idaho.

He said Tuesday his group, which put the 1 percent property tax initiative on the ballot, does not want the proposal to cripple education, but it doesn't want higher taxes.

Indeed, there is even the possibility that NASA — once a burgeoning bureaucratic empire with the seventh-biggest budget in the federal government and outposts stretching out to the moon and Mars — may cease to exist as an independent agency.

Chance said education can be funded entirely from the state General Fund without new taxes.

It wouldn't be the first time a powerful government bureau with a high-priority mission was transformed in a short period into an appendage of a new organization with broader aims.

"Idaho industry will receive substantial property tax relief from the 1 percent initiative and it is only fair that business and industry pay their fair share of the costs of supporting education and other government services," he said.

Where might Carter bury NASA, should he choose to take this step? He could look farther and do worse than to re-designate it as a major branch of the Transportation Department.

Chance said his organization supports "the concept of removing education funding from property taxes, have the sales tax dedicated to the schools and reduce state spending by that amount over the next two years during the phase-in period of implementation."

The budget that Carter will present to Congress next month almost certainly will cut heavily into NASA's funding, which for the last few years has been in the range of $3.5 billion to $4.5 billion.

Pat Harwood, president of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, told KTUV news. "If you repeal all exemptions to the sales tax, it would almost be a value-added tax on every step of production, manufacturing, or farming. You would just continue to tax each item that went into the finished product.

Valley dairy farms are rolling in clover

By KEN HODGE

MAGIC VALLEY — Royal Haven Brett Sherry is getting to be a pretty famous cow.

It's a small change, especially for the state that ranks 22nd in dairy production in the U.S., but Ray West of the Idaho Dairy Products Commission thinks the change represents more than a little flutter on the charts.

Sherry, who is expected to produce 32,000 pounds of milk this year, won grand champion at two national shows and earned reserve grand champion, or second place, in the third major U.S. dairy show. She was the only cow in history to win the "best udder" class at all three, the Eastern, the Central and the Western, according to her owner Dale Jolson of Buhl.

Smutney's Sawtooth Farms Inc. dairy herd was ranked this year as highest in the nation according to type. That means that for a herd of 125 in the nation on average rankings for best udder, best stature, body capacity and other qualities considered essential for an excellent dairy cow.

But Idaho's dairy industry is changing. In fact, dairies in Magic Valley are just plain booming.

"I think Idaho could be one of the good dairy states," West predicted last week from his Boise office. "We rank about 22nd now, but in another 10 years or so, we could get up into the first dozen states."

Alvin Smutney, a Twin Falls dairyman and former president of the Idaho Dairyman's Association, is another Magic Valley dairy farmer with a claim to fame.

As Idaho dairymen find their way into winner's circles and top sales rings around the nation, added income to this state's milk industry can only ring up on the cash register as growth.

For more than 35 years, the trend among Idaho's modest family of dairies has been exactly the opposite. Dairy cows on Idaho farms withered because of its temperate climate and plenty of high quality feed for top-producing dairy cows like Royal Haven Brett Sherry.

Alvin Smutney, a Twin Falls dairyman and former president of the Idaho Dairyman's Association, is another Magic Valley dairy farmer with a claim to fame.

"I believe Idaho is going to be one of the leading dairy states in the nation in a very short time," Smutney optimistically predicted. "There is no question that the price structure in the milk industry is such that there is profit in producing milk."

The Mormon exemption

LDS program not included in new Indian custody law

By MOLLY IVINS
©N.Y. Times Service
DENVER — In the long-time practice of putting large numbers of Indian children up for adoption or in foster care, the Mormon Church has played a role marked by its benevolent intentions but recognized by frequent criticism from Indians.

While some Indian groups have suggested that the exemption was slipped through, Sen. James Abourezk, sponsor of the bill, says, "We exempted it on purpose and out of necessity. There would have been one hell of a political fight if we hadn't."

Also, the Senate committee was presented with testimony including hundreds of letters from Indians who have gone through the program, about its beneficial effects.

The Book of Mormon, one of the key writings of the church, tells of three pre-Christian peoples, led by Jared, Lehi, and Mulek, who came to America from the Holy Land at different times. Lehi had three sons, Laman, Lemuel and Nephi. Nephi was a good man of fair coloring; Laman and Lemuel, of dark coloring, rebelled against him and tried to kill him.

Dr. Martin Topper, an Arizona anthropologist and psychiatrist who has done a study of Navajo children placed in Mormon homes, said, "I don't mean to pick on the Mormon Church specifically, but there are certainly other churches who do missionary work among the Indians. But the Mormons do want to build up a cadre of missionary Navajos to convert the tribe."

The program encourages Mormon families to take Mormon Indian children into their homes for the school year. There are 2,700 children from 8 to 18 in the program this year; more than 25,000 have gone through the program since 1954.

But that legislation almost died. It owes its salvation, in part, to an exemption granted to a Mormon program that tries to provide Indian children with the advantages of life with a middle-class Mormon family without taking them away from the reservation altogether.

Because the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints believes it has a special relationship to the American Indian, Mormons have done a great deal of missionary work among the Indians, and in the past the church encouraged Mormons to adopt Indians.

Today the Mormon church runs a program that places Indian children in Mormon families for the nine months of the school year, the Student Placement Program, and it was that program that was exempted from the restrictions of the Indian Child Welfare Act signed into law last month.

Child welfare experts say the church's law has caused some problems for American Indians.

Families who take in the Indian children are carefully selected and have the recommendation of their bishop, said Jerry Cahill of the church's press office. "I guess you could say they are really caring, non-Mormons, nonsmoking, nondrinking and churchgoing," he said. "We really try to put our best foot forward."

Special attention to missionary and social service work among the Indians — in Mexico, Central and Latin America as well as the United States.

Forward, the Lamanites were cursed by God; and, according to the First Book of Nephi, "they became a dark, and loathsome, and a filthy people, full of idleness and all manner of abomination." The Second Book of Nephi holds that, once Lamanites become Mormons, "scales of darkness shall fall from their eyes, and many generations shall not pass away among them, save they shall be a white and a delightsome people."

The program encourages Mormon families to take Mormon Indian children into their homes for the school year. There are 2,700 children from 8 to 18 in the program this year; more than 25,000 have gone through the program since 1954.

"I guess you could say they are really caring, non-Mormons, nonsmoking, nondrinking and churchgoing," he said. "We really try to put our best foot forward."

The Mormon are sensitive to criticism of their programs. The church endorsed a provision of the Indian Child Welfare Act that requires them to provide information on the location of Indian children to those tribes that request it.

The Indian Student Placement Program was exempted from the Child Welfare Act on the grounds that it is a program in which parents give permission for their children to be placed away from home. But many non-Mormon Indians — to Mormons these are "gentile" Indians — raise questions about just how voluntary and informed the parents' consent is.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The energy tax law passed by the last Congress rewards and encourages the wrong type of solar energy systems, Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said in a report released Tuesday.

The report came from the House Commerce Committee's subcommittee on investigations, which studied the problems consumers face in trying to get a good solar system for their homes.

Today's weather

Clouds will thicken up today

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert and Northside areas:

Increasing clouds today and Thursday with an increasing chance of snow showers. It will be turning cooler with overnight lows, mostly in the teens and highs 25 to 35 today and mostly in the 20s on Thursday.

Halley, Camas Prairie and upper Wood River Valley:

Increasing clouds today and again on Thursday. Chances of snow showers will be increasing tonight and Thursday with cooler temperatures. Overnight lows zero to 10 degrees and highs in the 20s today and 15 to 25 Thursday.

Synopsis:

Generally fair weather continued over most of Idaho Tuesday with increasing cloud conditions moving into the northern area. Low temperatures dipped into the teens and "clear skies" prevailed early Tuesday and until late afternoon. Some areas reported low readings in the teens and there were a few zero readings around the state. Stanley reported the lowest reading with a minus 18 and Dixie was not far behind with a minus 15.

No precipitation was recorded in the state Tuesday, according to the U.S. Weather Service in Boise.

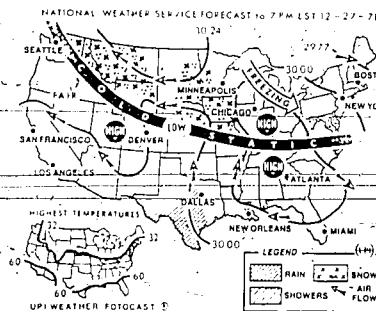

A developing storm system currently off the British Columbia coast is moving southeastward and will be affecting Idaho today with some snow shower activity and cooler temperatures.

Southern Idaho will have generally clear skies early today with snow showers mainly in mountain areas today and clouds spreading over a wider area on Thursday.

The extended outlook for Thursday through Saturday calls for cold temperatures with a chance of a few snow flurries, mainly in the mountains.

Highs are expected to be in the 20s and lows 5 to 15 degrees.

Magic Valley dairies lapping up the profit

Dairy profits are riding higher now than ever, according to West. A combination of cheap feed caused, primarily by a hay surplus and an all-time high, Minnesota-Wisconsin price series for manufacturing milk have combined to make dairying attractive.

Prices on the M-W series are nearly $10.50 per hundredweight of milk for manufacturing purposes such as powdered milk or cheese. Idaho dairy farmers reportedly get slightly more than that on the average, according to West.

Before a farmer jumps into the dairy business, he must be fairly sure of the future of the industry to warrant the large investment in equipment and livestock needed to get a start in milking cows.

While the trend in dairy cow population in Idaho has been slipping downward for years, milk production has been climbing steadily.

Dairy herds have gradually become fewer in number, but larger in size, over the years and Idaho's milk production has nearly doubled since 1944 while cows have disappeared slowly from farms in the state.

But volume is the secret to making a go of the dairy business and to milk hundreds of cows on a daily basis, a farmer must invest in expensive barns, automatic milking equipment and high production cows which can cost hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"The dairy industry means a long-term commitment," West explained. "Farmers take a little time before they get into the business. You usually get committed and it is difficult to change because of the equipment you need to buy."

Bright marketing prospects with good returns are bringing many into the business and giving others the incentive to expand their dairy facilities in the state, West said.

"All over people are adding cows to their herds, rebuilding their barns or remodeling and trying to find ways to be more efficient," he said.

The list of Magic Valley dairymen who are getting a start in the business or enlarging their herds or production facilities is a long one.

Lowell C. Kimberley, a director of the Idaho Dairymen's Association, is slowly building his dairy business because of optimism for the future of milking cows.

"I'm expanding a little bit. We are not to our potential," Ebers said last week. "I'm not going out and buying any big dairy cows, but I'm putting in some free stalls and I've put in about $10,000 to $12,000 worth of new dairy equipment — and that's not very much."

"But this is the time to do it," he continued. "The dairy business is profitable good. The difference between feed prices and milk prices is better than it has ever been. You see a lot of dairymen upgrading their equipment. A lot of dairies are to the point they are not going to expand. They are just going to get some new equipment."

The biggest addition to Magic Valley dairying is a 2,400-cow facility near Crestview on the east end of Jerome County.

Holstein Farms, owned by Aurora Capital Corporation, has built facilities for 1,200 cows on 900 acres near Crestview and a planned second phase of construction will house 1,200 more cows, according to Harley Hatch, of Holstein Farms.

Hatch manages a Holstein Farms spread southwest of Jerome where he supervises a 22-hour-a-day job of milking about 1,200 head of a 1,500-head dairy herd.

About the Magic Valley dairy industry, Hatch said, "It has grown quite a bit since I have been here. I've been here for six months."

Hatch said the secret to Idaho's growing dairy industry is plentiful feed and a good climate for growing healthy dairy cows which crank out plenty of milk.

With inexpensive hay and barley abundant in this state, Hatch said the industry should continue to boom.

"California has a real eye on this area," Hatch said. "It is easier to ship milk than it is to ship feed. Idaho grows a lot of good hay and good barley and that is the backbone of the dairy industry. Bigger money people are looking at Idaho. A lot of California dairies are coming this way because of feed, space and good clean air over here."

Hatch said Holstein Farms is using modern techniques of breeding, feeding and milking to get the most out of their dairy cows because milk production means profits.

"We call our cows heavy. If they don't produce, they go down the road," Hatch said. "We're getting to be more commercial. It seems kind of cold, but you are in the business to produce milk."

Iranian violence

continues

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Troops opened fire on mobs of anti-Shah demonstrators who surged through the streets of Tehran Tuesday, burning cars and army vehicles and shouting anti-American slogans. A witness said "the whole city has gone crazy."

The unrest also spread to the northern cities of Tabriz and Mashhad, where residents reported that a fire had broken out at a prison, holding some 400 inmates.

Witnesses said that at least 11 people were shot and killed in Tehran as troops opened fire on crowds burning cars and setting fires near Tehran University and the American embassy, which was cordoned off by a ring of troops. Residents in Tabriz said at least four people died in violence there.

As the UN opposition to the shah grew and took on an increasingly anti-American tone, oil production plunged to a new record low with the oil fields and refineries shut down by striking workers.

Pocatello to get art collection

POCATELLO (UPI) — A former Pocatello resident announced Tuesday he will donate to the city a collection of primitive art worth an estimated $3 million.

Bob Jones, a professional art dealer who lives in Los Angeles, will donate 2,000 to 3,000 pieces of art. The city plans to display them in its old federal office building when it takes title to the property.

The collection includes pieces from most African countries as well as New Guinea and Latin America, particularly Mexico, Honduras, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Peru, Columbia, Ecuador, Chile, and Argentina. Jones will make some donations himself while others will be made in conjunction with additional collectors.

Sexist and racist

Women protest Utah rape ruling

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Several women's groups Tuesday said a district court judge should resign because his reversal of a rape conviction was "sexist and racist."

The women said Croft should resign from the Third District Court bench, and they said legal steps to remove the judge should be taken if he refuses to step down.

Representatives of the organizations called a news conference to blast Croft's comments in a Friday ruling setting aside the conviction of Eugene Myers. They said the judge displayed a sexist attitude because he said Patricia Marlow, the alleged victim, "invited" the rape.

And they labeled Croft's comments racist because the judge pointed out the Myers is black, while Marlow is white.

The women said Croft should resign from the Third District Court bench, and they said legal steps to remove the judge should be taken if he refuses to step down.

"My verdict and decision had nothing to do with sexism or racism," Croft said. "After a careful review of the evidence I was left with a real and substantial doubt that a rape took place."

Rideout quoted

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — John J. Rideout, on trial on a charge of raping his wife, told a Salem police officer, "If I'd done it right she wouldn't be here to complain," the officer testified Tuesday.

Salem Detective Debbie Cleveland made the statement in response to a question by District Attorney Gary Gortmaker as Rideout's trial in Marion County Circuit Court resumed after a three-day Christmas recess.

Gortmaker did not pursue the issue and there was no further testimony about the statement.

Probably one of the greatest virtues of a Secret Service agent is to avoid showing one's face too often in public. However, that can be fairly difficult if one's job also means being in close vicinity of a public figure showing himself in public. The agent assigned to former President

Four additional bodies discovered in Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Searchers Tuesday discovered four more bodies under the home of a pudgy building contractor suspected of killing up to 32 teenage boys. This "brought" investigators eagerly tried to mine and they feared the total would rise.

Chief Edmund Dobbs of the Cook County sheriff's police said, "I feel there will be more bodies. I don't want to speculate how many."

At least five bodies were brought out from beneath a crawlspace beneath the one-floor home of John Wayne Gacy, 36, in an unincorporated area near suburban Norridge Township.

One of the bodies had been seen earlier before searching stopped for the Christmas weekend. The other four, recovered when digging resumed Tuesday, were fresh finds.

Cook County Medical Examiner Robert Stein, asked if there were more bodies underneath or around the house, said, "There are indications there are."

Gacy, charged Friday with the murder of one missing youth, has made various statements attesting to more than 20 stayings and has even pointed out to investigators where bodies could be found under his muddy, 2-foot high crawlspace, police said.

Dobbs said the nine bodies discovered so far had been found in just one-fourth of the crawl space. They were all skeletal remains "buried up" in the crawlspace, he said. He said the macabre search could last two to three weeks.

Searchers have speculated they may be digging up four to five bodies a day.

Lt. Joseph Kosenczak of the Des Plaines, Ill., police said it was "possible" the body of a teenage youth found in the Des Plaines River last month could be another Gacy victim.

The youth, identified as Frank W. "Wayne" Landrum, had underwear stuffed in his mouth. At least one of the bodies recovered from the Gacy home also had underwear in his mouth.

Police have said Gacy has admitted to tossing the bodies of some victims into rivers in the Chicago area. The search for bodies Tuesday, a mailman handed over two days of holiday mail for Gacy to a Cook County sheriff's police officer.

"They have a long job ahead of them," Des Plaines Police Lt. Joseph Kosenczak said. "You're talking about bodies that have been layered one on top of the other."

Gacy, a contractor and neighborhood clown for neighborhood children's parties, is suspected of luring young men to his home with promises of jobs in his construction company, and then raping and strangling them.

He has been charged with one count of murder for the slaying of Robert Priest, 15, Des Plaines, who was reported missing the day he was to have met Gacy to apply for a part-time construction job.

Banks will wait
Cleveland council boycotts meeting

By ROBERT SANGEORGE
CLEVELAND (UPI) — City council members boycotted a special meeting called by the mayor to discuss the city's fiscal crisis Tuesday, signaling another week of stalemated negotiations.

However, the six banks holding $13.5 million in notes on which Cleveland has defaulted indicated they would wait a little longer — until a Feb. 27 referendum on a city income tax hike — before demanding payment.

After failing to get enough council members to show up for a formal meeting, Mayor Dennis Kucinich met privately with 16 city lawmakers in an effort to resolve their differences and lift Cleveland out of default.

Kucinich had asked for the council meeting Tuesday to get approval of an ordinance aimed at persuading the banks to refinance the notes, on which the city defaulted two weeks ago.

But 17 members must be present before the council can act and only 16 entered Council Chambers for roll call. Council President George Forbes and Majority Leader Basil Russo — both bitter Kucinich foes — were absent. Russo was at City Hall, but refused to attend. The mayor met with the 16 council members who did show up.

"We've asked the mayor to recall the council president and we're asking the administration (Kucinich) to continue to work together with the council so that we can go to the six banks and work out a compromise," said Councilman John Lynch, speaking on behalf of the council members who attended the closed-door session.

Kucinich wants the council to pass an ordinance guaranteeing city income tax receipts as collateral for refinancing the $13.5 million in bank notes. Russo has termed the action illegal.

The mayor said that unless that "final step" in the process of rolling over the debt were approved by city lawmakers, he would be forced to lay off some 2,000 municipal workers — among them 875 police officers and 500 firefighters — on Jan. 2.

The mayor had said that he would be able to avert three-fourths of the proposed layoffs if the tax receipt proposal were passed.

Will King Tut exhibit be safe in San Francisco?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police searched Tuesday for the thief who climbed through a skylight to steal Rembrandt's $1 million painting "The Rabbi" and three other valuable works from the De Young Museum Christmas Eve.

Officials promised there will be adequate security when the King Tut exhibition goes on display at the museum next summer.

The priceless King Tut collection is scheduled to open next June. Officials moved hastily to assure the guardians of Egypt's archeological treasure that the golden artifacts will be safe, despite the daring and successful theft from the museum during the holiday weekend.

"Stringent security measures" will be taken to protect the Egyptian treasures, including round-the-clock patrols outside the building as well as inside, spokesman Charles Long said.

Police believe the Rembrandt, valued at $1 million, was taken by a man who tried last August to seize the same painting in a midnight holdup. He was folled then and fled without his loot after posing as a relief guard to enter the museum at midnight and pull a gun on the real guard. Another guard disarmed the man, but he escaped.

"It's probably the same nut who likes 'The Rabbi' and decided to make a second try," said Police Inspector Tom Smith. "The guy just decided to go shopping and he picked out what he liked."

This time police believe the thief, possibly with one or more accomplices, entered the museum, located in the heart of Golden Gate Park, through a skylight on the night of Christmas Eve.

At 9:15 a.m. Monday, the theft was discovered. A second Rembrandt, also worth about $1 million, and two more paintings had been removed from the walls but left on the floor of the museum's "Rembrandt Gallery."

The Tut exhibit has reportedly presented some security problems during its showing in Washington, D.C., Los Angeles, Seattle and New Orleans.

Accused police killers arraigned in California

WOODLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Accused slayers Luis Rodriguez, 23, and Margaret Kleas, 18, were arraigned Tuesday for the roadside murders of two California Highway Patrol officers.

Municipal Court Judge Clarence Walden denied bail for the couple, who were escorted to the hearing room in chains from the Yolo County jail a block away. Further requests for bail could be made Thursday when a preliminary hearing date would be set, the judge said.

A dozen sheriff's deputies stood guard as the suspects were formally charged with the execution-style slaying of CHP officers Roy Blecher, 50, and William M. Freeman, 35, killed during a routine traffic stop Friday.

Rodriguez, wearing jail-issue white coveralls, and Miss Kleas, in jeans and a blue shirt, appeared calm at the arraignment.

Rodriguez was represented by public defender Rudolf Binsch, and Miss Kleas by Sacramento lawyer Dan Sullivan.

"We'd like to get her out on bail as soon as possible," Sullivan said. "She's not guilty of any of the charges."

Sullivan said he planned to seek a change of venue in the case because "she cannot have a fair and impartial trial in Yolo County."

Califano makes health officials uneasy

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (NEA) — The doctors at the community medical facility in a low-income neighborhood here are getting a bit nervous because their distinguished visitor is unexpectedly pressing them for answers to some tough questions.

Joseph A. Califano, secretary of health, education and welfare (HEW), wants to know how the Memphis Health Center, Inc. handles teen-age girls seeking medical assistance because of unwanted pregnancies.

Not satisfied with the initial vague reply, Califano peppers the physician with follow-up queries: Do social workers as well as doctors see the young women? How qualified are the social workers? How successful are efforts to avoid repeat pregnancies? Is there a community outreach program?

Califano's rapid-fire questioning then moves in other areas: Are the needs of older patients being served? Do nurse practitioners relieve the doctors of some of the work load? How high is the turnover rate of physicians on the payroll?

Health center officials are slightly uneasy because they apparently planned to treat Califano to the dog-and-pony show that too often passes for a VIP tour, coupled with the inevitable plea for more money from Washington.

The medical unit sought $1.1 million from HEW this year, but it received less and is almost $160,000 short of meeting its budget. "That (financial difficulty) doesn't distinguish them from any other health center in the country," Califano says. "It's a very tight budget year."

The disposition of that request for additional funds remains unresolved, but what is certain is that the head of that government department, who has learned a little more about where the money goes, this year will spend more than $180 billion — by far the largest single share of the federal budget.

The experience is refreshing, especially at a time when even low- and middle-level employees of government departments increasingly are viewed as mindless, insensitive bureaucrats unresponsive to the needs of the people they supposedly serve.

At the same time, high-level government officials are perceived — not only by the public but also often by themselves — and their staffs — as potentates who are too important or too busy to personally check on the programs they finance.

More than half of President Carter's cabinet and senior staff flew here recently for the Democrat's National Party Conference, but too many of them made the requisite appearances at official functions then fled to the isolation of their hotel suits or parties with other VIPs.

Califano, however, spent most of an afternoon touring not only the health center but also two University of Tennessee facilities — a rehabilitation center for orthopedically handicapped children and a special unit at Memphis City Hospital for infants with health problems.

"I have real respect for Joe," says Rep. Harold E. Ford, D-Tenn., a local congressman. "He's the only cabinet member who wanted to see everything when he came here for the Democratic conference."

Adds a member of Califano's staff: "He never sits still. And if we're going to visit a school, for example, he'll say, 'I want to see kids, not charts. I see charts all the time in Washington.'"

During the past two years, Califano's personal visits have included inspections of a bilingual education center in Chicago, a preschool program in Denver, a hospice in Hartford, a disability retraining center in Dallas, a teen-age pregnancy unit in Atlanta and a runaway youth program in New York.

His intense interest in the programs and no-nonsense questioning have made those tours as learning experiences rather than ceremonial events. "The idea of setting productivity standards for doctors came from visits to health centers," says the 47-year-old former lawyer.

Finally, Califano notes with a smile, the inspection trips presumably help to convince the public that "we do something beside wire regulations" at HEW. Other cabinet members would do well to follow that lead. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

A good man in Africa

©1978 N.Y. Times Service

During the mid-fifties, the young chaplain of Pretoria University in South Africa was going through a period of soul-searching. Born an Afrikaner, an ordained minister of the Dutch Reformed Church, since 1949 a member of the secret Broederbond through which Afrikaners wield enormous influence in the government, the Rev. Beyers Naude was beginning to lose faith in much of what he'd been taught to believe as an Afrikaner — particularly in the system of apartheid by which the Afrikaner government had imposed absolute white control over South Africa's black majority.

Dr. Naude's doubts began through his efforts to apply his Christian faith to the social and political problems around him, and multiplied after he became in 1957 the acting moderator of the Transvaal Synod. In that post, he became acutely aware of the problems of white ministers serving black congregations, and of the harsh effects of apartheid on the people. The young minister was politically conscious, too, of what was happening throughout Africa — of the post-World War II liberation movements that, save in South Africa, were leading to independent black states. He came to believe that his own country eventually would have to face such a movement.

But by March 1960, when Beyers Naude was 45 years old and highly respected in Afrikaner church and educational circles, South Africa, if anything, even more tightly entrenched in apartheid.

That month, during a passive resistance campaign by blacks against the "pass laws" that tightly restricted their movements, white police opened fire on an African crowd in the town of Sharpeville, killing 69 people in six seconds of gunfire that caught the world's horrified attention.

Sharpeville was the turning point of Beyers Naude's life. He rebelled against his own history and the Afrikaner community; by December 1960; he was an influential and outspoken voice in a World Council of Churches meeting at Johannesburg, the findings of which were in direct opposition to apartheid.

As a result of these findings, three Dutch Reformed Churches withdrew from the World Council. Naude's own synod rejected the Johannesburg report and demanded that he retract his assent to it and confess his error. He refused, and his whole life was turned upside down.

Since 1961, Naude has been ostracized socially and politically within the Afrikaner community (always called "Afrikanerdom" in South Africa). His status as a minister was "withdrawn" and he has not been allowed to preach a sermon in a Dutch Reformed Church since 1963. On orders of that church and under the social and political pressures of Afrikanerdom, his friends fell away, and his three children were harassed, and he and his wife suffered financial hardship. His church living had to drop sharply, owing the loss of his minister's salary.

In 1963, Naude himself broke the final link to the past. He resigned from the church and accepted full membership in the Dutch Reformed Church struck back with charges of heresy and demanded that its members have nothing to do with the Institute; 55 of its ministers were forced to resign from it.

But Naude persevered, and so did the Christian Institute, winning influence and credibility among the black community and grudging admiration from some whites for their unflinching opposition to apartheid — but attracting little support from the general public.

But Naude had learned that in South Africa it was politically foolish to be morally outspoken as long as young men passed, he came to believe that severe action against the Institute was bound to come. In 1977 it did; on Oct. 19, the government "banned" 18 black organizations, the Christian Institute, its national director and its five staff men.

Now the Institute is officially defunct and Beyers Naude — 63 years old, unrepentant, undismayed and unembittered — is mostly confined to his small house and its garden in Johannesburg's (this city's) suburb of Greenside. He is not allowed to meet with more than one person at a time to prepare any educational publication, to visit any educational institution, factory, trade union office or printing house, or to set foot in any African, colored or Asian township. He cannot converse with any other named person or propagate his views in any way. He can move about Johannesburg within these restrictions only because, as friends believe, the government thinks he may lead them to "subversive" connections.

But Naude is subversive only if Christians and blacks are subversive. In banning him, in fearing him so much, Afrikanerdom and its government confessed their weakness and spread his inspiration beyond the reach of the voice they stifled. For Beyers Naude radiates, as few ever do, the Christmas spirit of good will toward men, and even in his unhappy land, in this and every season peace is surely his.

Most water projects worth funding

The State Water Plan's adoption highlighted the last session of the Idaho Legislature. But carrying out the goals of the plan may be a struggle for the new legislature which convenes Jan. 8.

The reason is the restriction on spending mandated by passage of the 1 percent initiative this fall.

While the state is faced with trying to save the public schools from a $50 million loss in local property tax revenues, much-needed but expensive water projects will demand attention, too. As proposed by the Water Resources Board, the projects would require $600 to $700 million to be completed, although federal funds and revenue bonds will supply much of this amount. Meanwhile, the board wants $1.3 million over the next two years to study and do some construction.

Here are some of the projects:

- A study of the Bruneau Plateau Project to divert winter flows of the Snake River for off-stream storage, which would then be used to irrigate farmland on the plateau.
- Participation in the A.J. Wiley Dam to be built by the state and Idaho Power Co. on the Snake River near Bliss.
- Expansion of hydroelectric power generating of the Palisades Dam in eastern Idaho.
- Study for a 50-foot-high dam on the Bear River in southeastern Idaho.
- Installing power generators in the Barber Dam on the Boise River.
- Further studies and monitoring of the Upper Snake River Recharge project.

- Studies of possible dam sites on the Weiser River.
- Rehabilitation of the South Fork of the Coeur d'Alene River.

There is little doubt the legislature will fund some of the projects. The lawmakers gave the water plan high priority and agriculture is well represented among the legislators.

But another reason for pursuing the projects is the low investment required and the obvious benefits.

For example, the Barber, Palisades and Wiley projects would require almost no outlay from the state, only the issuance of revenue bonds to be repaid via sales of electricity.

New hydro-power generating facilities and new off-stream water storage are the most crucial needs in Idaho. Whether projects supply these benefits, and are in the best interests of Idahoans should be asked by the legislature before making funding decisions.

Most of the water board's projects meet these requirements.

But one does not. It is the Bear River Dam study to be conducted with Utah Power and Light. The power company is interested not only in the small dam but, in using water possibly to cool a coal-fired power plant to be built in the area.

Many Idahoans have given coal-power low priority or have rejected it as a source of new energy. That the state water board should support Utah Power's search for coal-fired plant sites in this state, contradict the desire of a great number of Idahoans to develop other energy sources first.

Alcohol, drugs and sex

BOSTON — A couple of years ago, Liz Roberts was invited to be on a television panel which would ride across the airwaves, bearing the discouraging name, "Depression, Alcoholism, Drug Abuse and Sex."

Just the sound of the title was enough to make the 34-year-old head of The Project on Human Sexuality cringe. In one sweep, sex had been rounded up as the Fourth Horseman of the modern apocalypse. Sex was not only seen as an "act," but also as a "problem."

By then Roberts and her Harvard-based project were already busy trying to expand our limited notions of sexuality — and our equally narrow ideas about what "sex education" is. They were beginning to look at the messages children get in their own homes before the age of puberty.

"We tried to find out how does the development of our identity as a male and female have to do with how we express our sexual selves?" said Roberts. "We also decided to focus on sexual learning prior to the time when society thinks it becomes a problem."

They embarked on a two-year study of the attitudes and behavior of 1,400 parents from Cleveland, Ohio. The first comprehensive research work of its kind, the results released this week are as full of rich bits as a batch of chocolate chip cookies.

The project found that when it comes to talking about sexuality, the average family resonates with the sound of silence. Less than half of the parents have talked about menstruation, even with their older daughters.

Less than 15 percent have mentioned intercourse or masturbation, and less than six percent have talked about contraception. Furthermore, while 75 percent of parents had talked about pregnancy and birth, the vast majority had discussed it in terms of the birds and the bees.

The study is nevertheless rather sympathetic toward parents. "When I first saw the data," says Roberts, herself the mother of a 9-year-old daughter, "I wanted to call them paralyzed parents."

But parents aren't silent out of the old Victorian prudishness, she says. They're silent to silence now out of uncertainty.

For openers, the study suggests that, as parents, we are more ambivalent than ever about our own gender identity. When the fathers, for example, were asked to respond to the statement, "Women prefer strong masculine men," they showed much uncertainty than about any other issue on the questionnaire.

We are also torn between our own changing ideas about men and women and our traditional behavior. More than half of the parents believed that men and women should be in a household and family tasks, but less than five percent actually did share.

As parents, it seems we are very likely to have one set of hopes for our children's sexuality, write we offer a very different model of reality. The more men who believe that it is all right for their sons to cry, never cry themselves.

As if this weren't difficult enough, Roberts suggests that parents are trapped into silence by confusion between what she calls long-term goals and short-term risks.

"Parents want their children to live personally satisfying and socially responsible sexual lives," she says. But they are afraid. They are afraid that the girl who accepts her sexuality, who equates sexual feelings with pleasure — a long-term goal, will run the short-term risk of becoming pregnant or "unmarriageable."

"They want their sons to be open and affectionate, but are afraid that they will be judged as 'sissies' or become homosexual. The anxieties that bubbled to the surface with the sexual revolution of the past decade have produced a silence which is widespread among mothers and virtually total among fathers."

"Sex has become a woman's issue," says Roberts.

Both boys and girls receive strong messages before puberty that sex is off-limits in their family, but the boys suffer even more than the girls. Told the least, says Roberts, "they learn that they are supposed to know without asking."

The unusual study gives us some education into the sexual dilemmas we pass on from one generation to the next. But it also says something basic about parent-child relationships.

Most of us prefer to present ourselves as authoritative parents, rather than to share uncertainties. We prefer to give our children rules, rather than informed choices. If we cannot devise a flawless set of guidelines, we retreat, turning away their questions and allowing even more uncertainty and frustration to permeate into their lives from friends, television — a host of other sources.

Time doesn't sell as well for Swiss

By Don Graff
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Time was when time was a real moneymaker for the Swiss.

As recently as 1970, their watchmaking industry held 70 percent of the world market. Today, they are down to 30 percent and still losing ground.

The Swiss are having a time of it for two reasons. Japanese and American producers got a jump on them in the introduction of digital and quartz watches and the rapid appreciation of the Swiss franc is pricing Swiss-made timepieces out of the world market.

One response to falling exports of watches has been to export production operations to Hong Kong and similar cheap-labor sites, according to a Wall Street Journal report on the situation.

That, however, is — no — help. To thousands of Swiss back home whose livelihoods have depended on the industry. With companies operating at from 70 to 50 or less percent of capacity, layoffs are increasing.

It's a situation which a number of U.S. industries — textiles, garments, television sets — can well sympathize with. Unfortunately, they can't offer the Swiss any solutions because they haven't been able to come up with any for themselves.

Chalk it up to another example of how the economic times are changing.

Gandhi promises comeback after her release from jail

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi left prison Tuesday one week after her arrest and expulsion from parliament had triggered nation-wide rioting by her supporters. She immediately vowed to make another political comeback.

Mrs. Gandhi, 61, smiled and joked with supporters who mobbed the outside of the jail to celebrate her release.

She shrugged off her week behind bars as a "rest cure" and said that supporters who hijacked an airplane to demand her release were just playing "a prank."

She said she would seek another seat in parliament, which expelled her from its ranks last week because of charges that she abused the powers of her office as prime minister to block an investigation of her son's business activities in 1975.

That was followed almost immediately by her arrest, touching off nation-wide protests and clashes with police in which at least 20 persons were killed and thousands more arrested.

"It was purely a politically motivated thing," Mrs. Gandhi said of her arrest.

"Why should I be tired? On the contrary, I just had a rest cure," she said.

The former prime minister said she had "expected" members of her Indira Congress Party to protest her arrest but added that "naturally I'm touched by all the affection shown by the people."

She said "agents provocateurs" — not her supporters — were responsible for the violence.

She also received cheers from the crowd that later mobbed her home when she said she would run again for a seat in parliament from the southern India constituency where she won only last month.

Under Indian law, her expulsion from that seat does not bar her from running for it again.

Mrs. Gandhi, who ruled India for 11 years — the last 21 months of it under harsh emergency law — still faces criminal charges stemming from alleged irregularities in the 1977 election campaign which she lost.

She was jailed Dec. 19 and sentenced to stay there until the current session of parliament was adjourned. Her followers accused the ruling Janata Party of holding her "hostage" in order to push bills it wanted past through the upper house, where the opposition is in the majority.

SALT talk

U.S. blamed for pact delay

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Tuesday a new strategic arms treaty is within reach and the United States was to blame for the failure to seal the accord at the recent Geneva meeting between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The Soviet view of the Vance-Gromyko meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, last weekend was carried in commentaries by the official official Communist party newspaper Pravda and the Soviet news agency Tass.

"Headway was achieved in Geneva this time. An accord, or a drawing closer on the positions, has been found on most of the main questions on which there had been divergence of opinion," Pravda said.

But the newspaper took issue with American news reports indicating that Soviet negotiators blocked completion of a final strategic arms limitation treaty in Geneva for tactical reasons.

"Such information — or, to be more exact, misinformation — is prompted either by lack of information on the course of the talks or by a deliberate effort to distort the essence of the Soviet stand," Pravda said.

"It is not at all the Soviet stand that ought to be blamed for the SALT-2 talks still being uncompleted," the newspaper said.

The official Soviet news agency Tass, in a commentary by Oleg Anichkin, blamed the United States for the fact that the SALT-2 negotiations have dragged on for nearly five years.

"Much time and efforts have been spent on finalizing the agreement — and no responsible figure can deny the fact that the causes of the delay in reaching an agreement shall be looked for in the United States, which deviated from the coordinated principles of holding the talks," Tass said.

The Soviet agency charged that the United States attempted to seal into SALT-2 a position of strategic supremacy for itself.

"The striving of the American side to seal in the right to a supremacy in strategic armaments and thus obtain unilateral advantages lead to an unjustified delay in concluding an agreement," Tass said.

But the agency also said that progress towards an agreement had been made at the "latest meetings between Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance."

Turkish soldiers on alert

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — The army rushed 6,000 paratroopers to the southeastern city of Kahraman Maras Tuesday to enforce the martial law imposed after three days of the worst street fighting in nearly 10 years. The government said more than 100 persons died.

Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit, who summoned his cabinet into emergency session, said early Tuesday that martial law was also being extended to Ankara, Istanbul and 10 other "sensitive" cities where violence between rival Moslem sects could erupt.

"This is a rebellion against the Turkish state, so martial law is needed," Ecevit said. "These events are not only directed against the government, but also against the Turkish state."

Parliament Tuesday night approved the imposition of martial law by a vote of 450-1 with one abstention. Eighty-seven members did not show up for the vote.

A force of 6,000 Turkish commandos and paratroopers was dispatched to Kahraman Maras, a city of 150,000 people 400 miles southeast of Ankara, where the fighting broke out Friday.

The official toll for the Kahraman Maras clashes was put at 101 killed and 150 injured. But unofficial sources said the toll could go higher because many of the wounded were in critical condition.

Unofficial reports also said that the clashes had already spread to the Mediterranean port of Adana, where six persons were reportedly killed, and to Istanbul, where one person was killed.

The government's report on the clashes did not mention the Adana or Istanbul deaths but said that 100 persons had been arrested by noon Tuesday.

Refugees keep looking for a port

HONG KONG (UPI) — A freighter crammed with 2,000 Vietnamese refugees steamed towards Hong Kong Tuesday to join another refugee-packed vessel anchored offshore after being refused permission to land.

A spokesman for the Hong Kong Marine Department said the captain of an unidentified 600-ton freighter radioed Sunday that he had picked up more than 2,000 refugees in the South China Sea and was on his way to Hong Kong.

"We've had no further contact from the ship," which had left Thailand bound for the port of Brunei on the northern coast of Borneo on the South China Sea, the spokesman said.

The vessel first tried to land the refugees in Brunei but was refused permission, sources said. It then set course for the British colony of Hong Kong.

"When and if the ship arrives its status will be established as well as those on board and appropriate action will be taken," a Hong Kong government spokesman said.

Physician says Jim Jones didn't have long to live

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Peoples Temple leader Jim Jones had an extremely high fever with other ailments and only a few weeks to live at the time of the mass suicide murders at the cult's Guyana settlement, Jones' personal physician said in an interview published Saturday.

Carlton Goodlett, a San Francisco physician and psychiatrist who treated Jones, his family and other cult members, said Jones had lost 30 to 40 pounds since the doctor had last seen him in August. Jones was running a temperature of 105 to 106 degrees when he ordered the mass suicide-murder of more than 900 cult adherents.

"You die at 107 to 108," Goodlett said. "His systolic blood pressure was 200. He had diabetes. He could not have lived more than two or three weeks."

Goodlett made the comments in a copyrighted interview with Figaro, a New Orleans weekly newspaper.

Goodlett served as physician from 1971 to 1976 for Jones and his family in California, "as well as the majority of the Temple," he said. Until the mass deaths, he said, he was unaware that Jones' physical condition had deteriorated so badly.

"At no time did Jones indicate to me that his medical condition was so extreme that he would go stark raving mad," the doctor said.

Cafe offers a free lunch

DALLAS (UPI) — Business was brisker than usual at Fran's Cafe, but no one was standing in line to pay a tab.

Instead, people were waiting to partake of owner Marcus Capalito's Christmas present to Dallas and his customers — a free lunch.

As people entered the restaurant, Capalito showed them to their seats. They then ordered their favorite dish and left, without paying a cent.

"It's a Christmas gift," he said. "We're thanking Dallas for a good year. We've had some good, loyal customers. It's for them."

The free lunches weren't restricted to regular customers. A sign announced the gratuitous food a couple of days before the Friday offering and several customers said they decided to come with friends, but the owner said he was prepared.

Boy gives up Christmas to save sight

By DOUGLAS STANGLIN
MOSCOW (UPI) — David Ross, 13, gave up Christmas at home in Michigan this year to fly to the Soviet Union for treatment of a potentially blinding disease.

David, a junior high school student from Westland, Mich., and his father, Ralph Ross, arrived in Moscow Dec. 17 to make arrangements for the boy to undergo a special enzyme treatment at the Gelmholtz Institute of Eye Diseases.

100,000 Americans and involving the progressive deterioration of the retina and ultimately, blindness.

Since his arrival, David has received twice-daily injections of the enzyme and will have received a total of 21 injections before he leaves Moscow Friday.

His father said American eye specialists told him that David's vision was deteriorating to the point where he could be blind in five years.

He said the doctors were unaware of the Soviet treatment "and were not very interested."

Ross, a Ford Motor Co. computer specialist, said the trip to Moscow made over the Christmas holidays so David would not miss too much school — cost $1,000 and "will have to be repeated in about six months. There is no charge for the Soviet doctors."

Ross said when he first learned David was suffering from the disease a year ago, he sent 45 letters all over the world asking for information on possible treatment.

But he had only limited success until he read about treatment at the Soviet Institute given to an English miner's daughter, Fiona Cummings, who said she had made excellent progress.

Natural gas called ideal fuel for cars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Gas Association, expanding its campaign for new customers, released a study Tuesday describing natural gas as an ideal fuel for automobiles because it is much cleaner and less costly than gasoline.

AGA President George Lawrence said almost 3,000 cars powered by natural gas, or methane, already have been put on the road successfully on an experimental basis. He urged a stepped-up development effort for such vehicles. The study said it costs 1.8 cents a mile or less to fuel a car with methane, compared with 3.1 cents for diesel fuel, 4.3 cents for gasoline and 12.2 cents for electricity. It showed air pollution from natural gas compares favorably with that of electric cars and is less than that of gasoline or diesel cars.

Lawrence also issued a year-end statement criticizing the Energy Department for refusing to approve liquefied natural gas (LNG) projects on the East Coast and the Gulf Coast. He said it was "short-sighted" for the department to rule that domestic natural gas supplies are adequate.

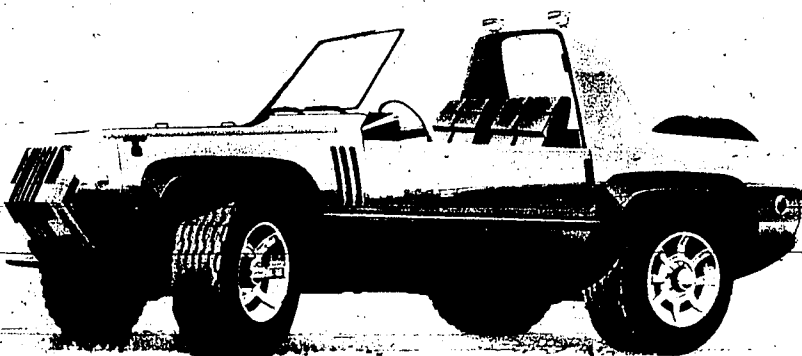

"Importation opens the world's rich resources of natural gas to American energy users, providing an alternative to oil importation at lower cost and with virtually no environmental problems," Lawrence said. "Thus, LNG should be the preferred import."

He expressed hope department officials in the future will compare the cost of LNG and other gas imports, which are more expensive than domestic gas, with the cost of oil imports. The natural gas industry now has a surplus of gas, partly because industrial users switched to other fuels after suffering sharp gas curtailments in the past two winters and partly because new energy laws have brought more gas to the interstate market.

The AGA, which represents 300 gas utilities, has launched campaigns in recent weeks to sign up more residential and industrial customers and to portray natural gas as fuel that can help electric utilities meet clean air laws. The association's study of natural gas as an alternative fuel continued that campaign.

Bus

In the rough in style

Innovation in four-wheel drive vehicle design will accelerate in the 1980s to meet diversified demand, says Richard Teague, vice president of styling for American Motors. This futuristic concept by Teague suggests the direction such vehicles may take. The Jeepster II would feature extensive use of rugged but light materials, total soft front and rear panels, a built-in structural roll bar, flat glass folding windshield and aluminum or fiberglass detachable doors. The 100 inch wheelbase vehicle would be powered by a four cylinder turbo gasoline or diesel engine and would have independent suspension on all four wheels. It would be 160 inches long, 65 inches wide and 60 inches high.

Futures end day at easier levels

(Courtesy Sinclair & Co.)
CHICAGO — Mostly easier, except for sugar and precious metals. That was Tuesday's trend in commodity futures trading. Commodities News Service said Marine potatoes drifted lower on selling spurred by delay in announcement of a potato diversion program. Prices fell 6 cents basis May on the opening and continued to decline most of the day, settling unchanged to 12 cents lower with May leading the way at 6.55 per hundredweight. Volume was 1,795 lots.
 Live cattle sustained small losses in light trading, estimated at 16,770 contracts, with settlements off 7 to 75 points. Anticipated heavier cattle marketings today and some pressure from the pig crop report were principal factors.
 Feeder cattle ended mixed but mostly easier, settling from 20 points higher to 65 lower on a trade of 1,560 contracts. The trade generally followed fat cattle.
 Pork bellies ended locked limit down across the board for the second trading day as a result of bearish interpretation of last week's hog report. The trade totaled 1,364 contracts.
 Live hogs were also down the daily limit in most contracts as a result of the bearish interpretation of the hog report. Nearby February was off 112 points at the close with most distant futures were off 142 to 5 points on a trade of 764 contracts.

 Holiday lassitude from here and abroad allowed easier patterns to dominate wheat, which drifted around 2 cents down before steady short profit taking shaved losses. The close was 1 1/2 cents down to unchanged.
 Corn closed 1/4 cent higher to fully steady after pricing of March, May and July contracts developed during the day. The trade was generally fractionally mixed.
 Liquidation of long soybean positions continued but declined more rapidly in thin trading because of stop-loss selling. Liquidation also erased hints of a recovery near the close, and beans ended 10 1/4 to 7 cents down. Oil fell sharply at the opening but recovered to close with January and March at their highs. Oil ended unchanged to 10 points lower. Meal ended down 3.00 to 1.60.
 New York Sugar 11 closed with losses of 13 to 14 points but still staged a strong recovery due to trade support. Volume was 57,100 lots. Active March ended at 8.37 cents a pound, off 13 points.
 New York Comex silver settled 320 to 400 points higher on a trade of 11,000 lots. Moderate late advances were attributed to a rally in gold which produced mixed short covering.
 New York Comex gold was thinly traded but settled 4.90 to 5.20 higher on late-short covering. Volume was 12,500 lots, of which more than 8,000 traded after noon. Iranian unrest and a weakening dollar produced support for gold.

Lawmakers vow to scrutinize dues-paying

Editors note: This is the second in a series on Idaho government's membership—in national—and regional organizations.

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE—Key Idaho legislators said this week they will closely examine the state's membership in regional and national organizations to determine if all existing memberships are necessary.

Their comments came after a Times-News inquiry disclosed Idaho government officials, in the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government, last year paid $194,634.64 membership fees and dues to 139 regional and national organizations. That study showed the seven elected officials and the 19 department heads in the executive branch paid $162,594.64 for membership fees in 136 national and regional organizations. The Idaho Supreme Court has a membership for the entire state judiciary in one organization, and pays yearly dues of $2,250. The legislature pays $20,000 to belong to two organizations.

Legislative leaders in both parties have agreed passage of the 1 percent initiative was a voter demand for reduction of government at all levels. Several leaders said a closer examination of the organizations to which government officials now belong might contribute to that reduction. Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, the Senate Pro Tem, said he was "appalled" at the number of organizations to which Idaho government officials belonged.

"I think it's preposterous," Budge said. "I realize some of the organizations are beneficial in that they are a meeting of peers and they provide valuable input. But this boggles the mind. There's almost a bureaucracy outside of the bureaucracy."

The legislature "will take a close look at this," Budge said. The legislature convenes in Boise Jan. 8. Minority Leader Ch. Chase, D-St. Maries, also voiced concern. "I think it will be a real good idea to take a look at some of these. It is my experience that we don't get any good out of some of these meetings. Many are just a free vacation for government people who go to them."

"People are up-tight about government growth," Chase said. "I think we have all kinds of areas where we can save some dough and this sounds like one."

Chase said he would be "licked to death" to examine organizational memberships. "I think a lot are just free tickets to ride to conventions."

Speaker of the House Ralph Imladed, R-Twin Falls, said he was "pleased someone is looking at this. It's one of the areas where I have been concerned for some time."

Olmstead added that membership fees and dues "are probably the tip of the iceberg. The real money is what is spent on travel and room and board while at those conventions the organizations hold."

Oldest said many of the organizations made contributions to Idaho, but added the House would "examine all of them to determine which ones we can weed out."

House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, told the Times-News "everything is going to have to be re-examined, largely because of passage of the 1 percent initiative. Every expenditure should be scrutinized very closely, but to the best of my knowledge, we've been doing that in the past."

But McDermott noted opinions may vary on which organizations are "worthwhile."

"There are associations which may be particularly worthwhile that might be deemed terribly essential to the state, the more rural areas," McDermott said. "In the other areas, the rural constituencies might not think the associations are beneficial."

McDermott cautioned that Idaho might be practicing state socialism in "eliminating memberships. We must be careful in these associations, the smaller state. The state is one of the few where the state is the owner."

Developer takes on Ketchum

KETCHUM — A Blaine County developer is suing Ketchum for more than $3 million in damages he claims he has suffered because the city denied approval of preliminary plans for a 40-unit subdivision.

Curt Curtis, doing business as Skyline Development Company, filed suit Friday against Ketchum and a host of city officials in Fifth District Court in Halley.

The developer has served the city notice of a claim for $3,035,000 for "inverse condemnation" or the "wrongful taking of property" which he wants to develop as the Skyline subdivision.

In response to Curtis' legal action, Ketchum officials said Tuesday they are contemplating a countersuit against the developer for harassment of public officials.

Ketchum Mayor Jerry Sleffert said, "Since he sued everybody but the waitresses at the Pioneer (Saloon), I regard his suit as intimidation of citizens' participation in a volunteer government. In other words, it is an attempt at intimidating those citizens who participate on a volunteer basis in local government."

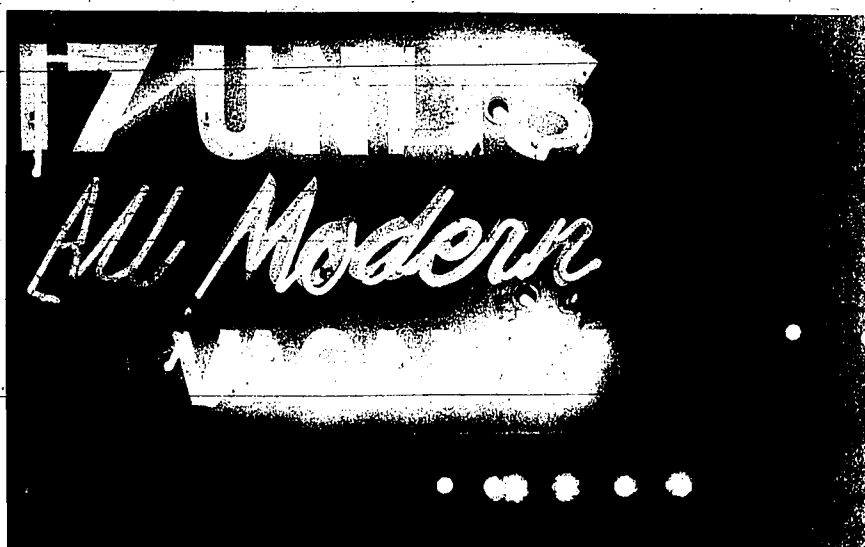

Sleffert added, "Until we examine the suit further, it would appear the suit is malicious in nature."

Curtis named personally as defendants in the suit Ketchum's mayor, city administrator, city planner, city building inspector, city attorney and the members of both the city council and the zoning commission.

The Ketchum City Council denied a building permit for the Skyline subdivision in southeast Ketchum on Sept. 26 after the zoning commission recommended the project's preliminary plans be denied approval because of inadequate road access.

Curtis charged in his complaint that the city's subdivision ordinance is unconstitutional. He claimed it deprives him of equal protection under the laws and allowed a taking of his property without due process of law.

In addition to the $3,035,000 in damages, Curtis also asked the court to issue a legal order directing Ketchum to issue a building permit for the Skyline project.

Sun Valley area Innkeepers are suffering from many vacancies and cancellations

Busy season bombs

No snow hurts resort bookings

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — 'Tis the season to be jolly, but hotel and motel operators throughout Ketchum and Sun Valley are not smiling very brightly as they wait for snow to fall in this resort community.

Two months ago Christmas holiday room reservations were fully booked throughout the area. But few local innkeepers are putting out vacancy signs in the middle of what should be their busiest season.

While heavy snowfalls have been reported in other ski areas in the West, Ketchum and Sun Valley still await their share of the precious white stuff. Meanwhile, cancellations and early checkouts threaten to spoil the holiday season for local resort operators.

"It's been bad," acknowledged Jerry Note, the worried manager of Ketchum's Holiday Inn. "At this point — seven o'clock — we're even with last year. The thing is that people are still coming but they are not staying."

Note predicted if snow doesn't fall soon, his hotel and others in the area will suffer heavy cancellations and checkouts.

Already, guest counts have dropped at many local lodges. Barbara

Tucker, manager of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce and Resort Association, noted some hotel operators are reporting up to 50 percent vacancies.

Tucker said people are coming to spend their holidays in the area, but after a few days skiing on limited runs now open on Bald Mountain, they're going home or to other ski resorts.

Local merchants and resort operators alike are crossing their fingers that snow will soon fall, but at the Elkhorn Village Inn officials have gone one step further.

Steve McCrea, director of Elkhorn's marketing, announced Tuesday the beginning of the "great 1978 Elkhorn snow dance."

In an effort to entice guests to remain in Sun Valley, Elkhorn officials have dropped a $2 cover charge for the resort's nightly entertainment and knocked down the price of mixed drinks from about $1.50 to 75 cents.

"We're trying to create a festive atmosphere so if they're thinking about leaving, this will sway them," McCrea noted.

The great "snow dance" began Tuesday afternoon with a free cocktail party for all guests and McCrea said the gratis parties will continue until it snows.

Broker retracts telegram on potato diversion

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls commodity broker has changed his mind about a proposed potato diversion program after a telegram he sent last week reportedly helped delay the program's approval.

In a wire sent Tuesday to the White House, Alex Sinclair of Sinclair and Co. moderated his stand on a federal plan to convert about 9 million sacks of Idaho spuds to cattle feed and other uses.

Potato growers in Idaho this fall asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture to buy nearly $24 million worth of Idaho spuds to remove them from the market in hopes of improving cash prices for potatoes still in storage.

Discussion of the diversion program was reportedly still in progress at the White House Tuesday, according to LaVerelle Stecklein of Blackfoot, outgoing president of the Potato Growers of Idaho.

Stecklein said Gerald Murphy, general manager of PGI, went to Washington, D.C., to spend Tuesday explaining PGI's position on the diversion. Murphy was expected to attempt to refute charges made by Sinclair and others the diversion would be inflationary.

Stecklein, however, who originally opposed the program for a variety of reasons asked that his comments not be used in making a decision about the program.

"I wish to withdraw my wire from consideration in regards to the potato diversion," Sinclair told Alfred Kahn, White House inflation fighter, and James McIntyre, head of the Office of Management and Budget.

After he expressed his opinion of the program to key White House officials last week supporters of the program "have been laying it to me," Sinclair said.

"It is a very touchy subject with me and with the growers. I think the whole thing has been blown out of proportion," Sinclair said. "I'd just as soon see them have the diversion so they can't hang me up on the scaffold. I was just giving them a suggestion."

Sinclair initially opposed the program because he said it would not be good for the potato industry in the long run. He said paying growers to divert potatoes would merely reward overproduction and aggravate the effect of a glut on the market.

But his opinions were "more philosophical than full opposition," he told White House officials in Tuesday's wire. "I favored a supply and demand program rather than a reward for overproduction."

But in Tuesday's telegram, Sinclair said current cash prices farmers are receiving for their spuds "are lower than I realized." He told Kahn and McIntyre "some support for the farmer is probably necessary to avoid a drastic curtailment in next year's production."

Part of the pressure on Sinclair came from Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who last week accused Sinclair of protecting his potato futures position and that of his customers by opposing the diversion program.

"The administration has been hit by a barrage of complaints by market speculators who have used the pretense of inflation to put a hold on a decision to implement a diversion program for Idaho growers," Church charged.

Sinclair said he answered Church's second message Tuesday to the Idaho senator.

He told Church his short position in the futures market as a seller of futures contracts was not responsible for his stance on the diversion program.

He said most of his customers, too, are hedgers, who are attempting to protect their potato crops with futures contracts.

"Hedgers cannot be hurt by diversion for several reasons," Sinclair said he explained to Church in a separate letter to the Idaho senator. "Any permanent price rise in futures due to an improved balance in supply and demand will be offset by a corresponding improvement in the actual cash market."

Sinclair explained growers do not actually hedge more than 15 percent of their production in the futures market and are actually hoping their hedge will be wrong in favor of a healthy cash market.

Sinclair also argued that news of the proposal to divert about $18 million worth of Idaho spuds from the market had already pushed futures prices up and was not a reason for his opposition to the plan.

Christmas calls keep operators busy

TWIN FALLS — Christmas Day callers from the Magic Valley attempted some 42,000 calls, according to the telephone company.

Mountain Bell district Manager K.G. Mann in Twin Falls estimated 45 to 50 percent of the calls, as is normal on holidays, were completed. Mann said on a normal business day 65 to 70 percent are completed.

He said to handle the added workload there were 78 operators, working Christmas Day shifts, compared to 55 to 60 operators on normal business days.

Mann said the only "relatively slow" periods for calls was in the early morning and during mid-afternoon hours.

The busiest times of the day to call were between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. and 5 to 10 p.m., he said, traditionally the busiest hours at the phone company during holidays.

One of the more unique calls, which Mann said he has arranged every Christmas in the 10 years he has been here, took place at 9 a.m. Christmas morning. Mann said a former Twin Falls man now living in Arizona has him arrange a six-city conference call so he can speak to his children, two of whom live here.

He said very few of the holiday calls are placed overseas because "that's a very difficult call to complete when the results are as busy as they are."

Mann said the majority of the overseas calls from the Magic Valley originate in Sun Valley.

Five appointments made to hospital board

TWIN FALLS — Letters of appointment for five positions on the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Board were mailed Tuesday, according to Merle Leonard, Twin Falls county commission chairman.

He said public announcement of the board appointments will not be released until the individuals have had time to receive their notices in the mail.

The appointments to the 15-member board are for three-year terms. Each year one-third of the board is appointed.

The appointments are divided geographically among the three commissioner districts in the county, with each commissioner responsible for naming members from within his or her commissioner district.

Terms expire the end of 1978 for Joe Savage of Kimberly, board chairman, and Herb Thome of Murtaugh, who live in Commissioner Ann Cover's district; Clinton Quiley of Castleford and Ted Penney of Buhl, from Leonard's district, and Doll Smith of Twin Falls, whose district has been represented on the county commission by Bill Chaney. Chaney, who did not seek re-election, will be succeeded by Tommy Walker.

Twin Falls revamps golf course management

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Twin Falls City Council decided Tuesday to retain Don Hamblin as city golf course pro but to relieve him of his duties as course manager.

Hamblin will be replaced as course manager by a city employee from the parks and recreation department, according to a plan proposed by City Manager Jean Milar and accepted by the council.

Under Milar's proposal, which has not yet been presented to Hamblin, control of the maintenance of the course and course equipment will be taken away from Hamblin.

Hamblin's salary will also be reduced by roughly $4,000 in accordance with his reduction in duties, but he will continue to receive all receipts from the pro shop, golf lessons, cart rental and restaurant.

The "course manager" will work under the supervision of Milar. Hamblin's role in the management of the course will be to advise the manager on the condition of the course and on coordinating greenskeeping with play and scheduled events.

The five members of the council present at a work session Tuesday (Mary McClusky and Bud Cheney were absent) unanimously authorized Milar to propose the arrangement to Hamblin despite concern that conflict will result from splitting the management and pro functions at the course.

Milar told the council he recommended replacing Hamblin as course manager because, "In the past two years, Hamblin has not demonstrated any significant managerial ability on the golf course. We still have the same problems we have two years ago."

Hamblin told the council several weeks ago that one of his problems in managing the course had been difficulty in getting greenskeepers to carry out his orders. The greenskeepers are employed by the parks and recreation department.

Milar, however, said Hamblin neglected his duties as course manager and rarely gave the greenskeepers orders. He said this situation forced parks and recreation department head Arnold Bryson to step in and give the greenskeepers direction.

This resulted in friction between Hamblin and Bryson, a situation the council was reluctant to perpetuate.

Milar, however, said in presenting the proposal to Hamblin the conflict could be worked out by spelling out the respective duties of the course manager, and Hamblin and Hamblin could make suggestions on course maintenance and in what areas.

If the new golf season were not only a few months away, Hamblin might not have been retained as pro.

The council authorized Milar to make his proposal to Hamblin only after deciding by a 3-2 vote not to lease the course for the coming year. Councilmen Leon Smith, Gordon Cox and Hank Woodall voted against leasing the course this year, while Chris Talkington and Jim Smallwood voted not to rule out that option.

The reason the majority gave for its vote was that too little time remains before the beginning of the season to find a lessee and negotiate a lease.

The city has received four proposals to lease the course, including one from Hamblin.

The other three proposals were from Max Mueller of Twin Falls in conjunction with golf pro Buddy Johnson; from former city golf pro Clyde Thompson; and from Ora Wildman and Dean Oliver of Boise.

The council felt all four proposals would require further negotiation and decided to consider the proposals for next golf season.

Hamblin's lease proposal would cost the city $14,000 less to run the course than what Milar's proposal will cost, but Milar said he doubted whether Hamblin could properly maintain the course and equipment for that amount, and the council apparently accepted his argument.

Milar said the city must be careful to protect the large investment it has in the course.

Idaho highways division rotary plow at work

Highway department warns of winter road conditions

BOISE—Suddenly changing road conditions will be the rule rather than the exception during the next several months in Idaho, the Division of Highways warns.

With winter driving conditions including snow frosts, black ice and drifting and falling snow, motorists will be encountering numerous travel problems, say the department officials.

Maintenance Supervisor Andy Nielsen of the Division of Highways said his crews encounter a number of problems as they drive the 5,000 mile state highway system in winter months.

"There is an ever increasing amount of men and women experiencing difficulty driving in Idaho although service to the roads has been constantly improving over the past years," he said. "A good deal of the problem is due to the growing population and the fact many people are from other sections of the country where there is little or no snow. They simply have not learned how to drive safely on our winter roads."

He said motorists should expect to encounter snow floor and icy conditions when driving in Idaho and should take necessary precautions. Nielsen recommends motorists use snow tires during winter months, carry the chains and know how to attach them to the tires if needed.

Above all, he said, drivers must know when to 'slow down for icy conditions, but when to keep their speed up to a safe level when going uphill in order to avoid sliding off the road or back down a grade.

Drivers leaving the warmer temperatures of southern Idaho and going to northern towns must anticipate snow and ice on mountain passes and in shaded canyon areas, he said.

The Idaho Division of Highways budgets about $3 million per season to remove snow and sand and salt state highways. About 11,000 tons of salt and 190,000 tons of sand are normally used each winter.

He said about 450 highway maintenance operators work out of 74 maintenance stations in the state. They report to work about 4 a.m. to plow, sand or salt the main roadways.

"We can't work our personnel more than 12 hours at a time so it is physically impossible for the crews to be working on the roads seven days a week, 24 hours a day," Nielsen said.

He said the budget requires overtime work be held to a minimum but it must be paid on weekends. On holidays the pay is two and one-half times regular rate.

Nielsen said motorists frequently complain that a road needs sanding, salting or clearing of new snow, unaware the plows and sanding trucks passed less than an hour earlier.

"Sometimes we just get a section of road in good shape and move on to open and sand another when a second storm moves in and wipes out all evidence of the work. A motorist will think it hasn't been cleared in a week," Nielsen explained.

He said these are things the road crews must contend with in winter season.

Driver arrested after wild ride

TWIN FALLS—Paul Kevin Andrews Davis, 18, of Twin Falls, was arrested by city police Christmas night after his vehicle was alleged by several witnesses to have traveled through three stop signs, crossed City Park and crashed into a power pole at 6th Avenue North and Addison Avenue.

City police charged the young man with failing to report an accident, leaving the scene of an accident, failure to have insurance and reckless driving.

Six individuals told police they saw the vehicle, allegedly driven by Davis, speed through stop signs on Fifth Avenue East, then drive through the city park, exit onto Shulstone Street, turn onto Sixth Avenue North, slide broadside through the stop sign at Sixth Avenue North and Addison Street, cross Addison and hit a power pole.

Police said the vehicle was removed Tuesday morning. Davis was picked up at his home outside city limits by Deputy Sheriff Buddy Dewese and taken to the city police station where he was arrested following questioning.

Police reports indicated the accident occurred at 10:48 p.m. Monday.

Eight in jail enjoy Christmas dinner

TWIN FALLS—Inmates in the Twin Falls County Jail had a treat for Christmas dinner.

"Because the population dropped to eight, the lowest number jail cook Erik Mumm can remember, the budget allowed for a ham dinner," Mrs. Mumm said prisoners had Christmas dinner of ham and all the trimmings and pie.

Normally Mrs. Mumm prepares meals twice a day for about 30 prisoners. On Thanksgiving a large turkey was prepared for about 34 prisoners.

Judges and attorneys must have gotten the Christmas spirit because many inmates received probation or computed sentences just before Christmas.

"I could almost have taken the day off, but I got a little behind on Sunday and had to come in early Monday morning to make the pies," the cook said.

In addition to preparing meals for jail inmates, she always prepares a family holiday dinner for her husband, children and other guests.

Jerome accident victim improving

BOISE—A Jerome man injured in a Christmas Day accident was listed in fair condition Tuesday morning in a Boise hospital.

A nursing supervisor at St. Alphonsus' Hospital said Timothy Sauters, 18, was conscious and in fair condition with head injuries. He was transferred there by ambulance Monday night from Magie Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls.

According to the Jerome County Sheriff's office, Sauters lost control of his car on a road seven miles north and three-and-a-quarter miles east of Jerome about 8:30 a.m. Monday morning. The vehicle left the road, overturned and came to a stop in a field.

Paychecks reported lost

TWIN FALLS—A Jerome man told Twin Falls police Sunday someone took two pay checks from his vehicle while it was parked in Twin Falls.

Richard George Helsley of Jerome said he left two paychecks in a plain white envelope on the dashboard of his pickup and left the vehicle unlocked.

He said sometime between Friday noon and 4 p.m. Sunday, someone entered the vehicle and took the unendorsed checks. He said they left behind several valuable items including pistols and $3,000 worth of tools.

All members of Buhl Masonic Lodge No. 53 AF & Am are requested to assemble at the lodge Hall, Wednesday, December 27, for the funeral of brother Ray Alger.

Crowds drop Bowl games on way out?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Is interest lagging in college football's 29-day schedule of bowl games?

The answer is yes. The big bowls are expected to pack in the fans as usual and at least two have games of considerable significance. The Sugar Bowl matches No. 1 Penn State and No. 2 Alabama for the national championship and the Rose Bowl presents a typical Midwest-Far West showdown between Michigan and Southern California.

But some of the lesser bowls are in trouble because of indifferent attendance and could lose accreditation from the NCAA, putting them out of business. And even in a few of the major bowls there is evidence of discontent among participants.

Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine was much happier last year on his trip to Dallas for the Cotton Bowl than he is this season. Then, the Irish had a chance to become No. 1 with a victory over Texas and they capitalized on it. This New Year's Day, nothing is at stake for Notre Dame except pride and an empty paycheck for its Cotton Bowl game with Houston. So Devine now is talking up a future nationwide NCAA football playoff instead of bowl games.

"I've been speaking for the playoff system all along," said Devine. "I think it has been a popular thing among coaches for a lot of years."

No. 9 Notre Dame has been playing well of late and would be a contender for No. 1 under a playoff system. Devine admits there are many problems to a playoff but remains much in favor.

At Miami's Orange Bowl, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne has been playing down the negative reaction registered at Nebraska when informed that Oklahoma, whom the Cornhuskers beat 17-14 on Nov. 11, would be their Orange Bowl foe on New Year's night. Nebraska had hoped to improve its No. 6 ranking by playing Penn State or some other high-powered opponent. Now the Huskers must prove themselves all over again against No. 3 Oklahoma.

"Nobody's down in the dumps," said Osborne, apparently hoping to avoid a letdown among his players. "I think we'll go to the Orange Bowl and play well. I think our initial response was more a surprise than anything else. No one was aware that Oklahoma was a possibility. I don't think our reaction would have been negative if we had some advance warning."

The Sugar Bowl and Rose Bowl, however, are on a prolonged honeymoon. Players, coaches and fans are high on those two New Year's Day games.

The Sugar Bowl is for No. 1 in college football — current No. 1 Penn State vs. No. 2 Alabama. The Rose Bowl is a vendetta — Michigan out to reverse its 0-5 record in recent bowl games against one of its tormentors from the West, Southern California.

Said Michigan's ace quarterback Rick Leach, "We have a great deal of pride at Michigan. It means a great deal to us, especially the seniors, to come out and win the Rose Bowl."

Southern California's Charles White, leading ground gainer in the history of his conference, is equally high on the Rose Bowl game.

"We feel we have a good chance to prove to people we are the best college football team in the country if we can beat Michigan," he said.

But along the 18-game trail from the Garden State Bowl at East Rutherford, N.J., on Dec. 16 to the windup in the Senior Bowl at Mobile, Jan. 13, the strain of possible oversaturation and increasing pressure from NFL playoffs is beginning to show.

The NCAA has a ticket quota for bowl games, calling for the sale of 40 per cent of stadium capacity in addition to the tickets sold by participating teams. If the NCAA sticks to that edict, some bowls may be forced out of business.

At Atlanta, for example, promoters of the Peach Bowl learned that Murphy's Law works on Christmas Day, too. Almost everything that could go wrong, did.

Already in danger of losing its NCAA sanction because of lagging attendance in previous years, the Peach Bowl's gate appeal this year was staggered well in advance. Word came down that an injury would sideline Georgia Tech's star runner and hometown hero, Eddie Lee Ivey.

And just the day before Dec. 25 Peach Bowl, the NFL Falcons dazzled Atlanta fans with a spectacular victory over the Philadelphia Eagles to stay alive in the race for the Super Bowl. The town was talking pro, not college.

Only 20,277 turned out for the college bowl game to watch Purdue thump Georgia Tech 42-21.

The empty seats, however, didn't faze Purdue players, who were jubilant after the game and obviously delighted they came.

"Any bowl game is better than none," said Purdue's Wally Jones, who ran for two touchdowns during the afternoon.

At the two-year-old Hall of Fame Bowl in Birmingham, Ala., 41,150 spectators were almost lost in a 77,000-capacity stadium on Dec. 20 to watch Texas A&M down Iowa State 28-12. Bowl director Fred Sington noted the game came at the height of the Christmas shopping season. Further, a report that 10 Iowa State players were scholastically ineligible made it appear, he said, "that all Iowa State had left was the coach and athletic director."

The Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla., Dec. 23 drew only 31,358 to see North Carolina State defeat Pittsburgh 30-17.

While Christmas Day proved a problem for Atlanta's Peach Bowl, it was far brighter at Tempe, Ariz., where 55,277 attended Fiesta Bowl VIII in which UCLA and Arkansas wound up 10-10. The Liberty Bowl at Memphis Dec. 23 drew 53,063 and saw a deadly game — Missouri 20, Louisiana State 15.

Of the two new bowls this year, one was a success and the other a disappointment. The Garden State Bowl drew some 30,000 into the 76,000 available seats at Giants Stadium as Arizona State came from behind to drub "home team" Rutgers. But the Holiday Bowl at San Diego Dec. 22 had 52,500 on hand to watch Navy down Brigham Young 23-16.

The Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 29 (Clemson vs. Ohio State) expects a foul. In Houston's New Year's Eve Bluebonnet Bowl (Stanford vs. Georgia) there'll be a drop of 9,000 or 10,000 from last year's sellout of 51,000 because the foes are strangers to Texas crowds. Sellouts occur only if the host team is from the Southwest Conference.

While many coaches are stumping for an NCAA playoff to determine a national champion, there are numerous obstacles to such a program. One of them, as Notre Dame's Devine notes, is college exams. Another is that academic people bristle at the idea of more emphasis on college football.

A third is that the older and bigger bowls have been extremely kind to college football, both in media exposure and hefty payoffs, for a very long time.

The NCAA, for one, hates to rock the bowl boat.

Duke still on top

Fighting Illini moves up to No. 5

NEW YORK (UPI) — Illinois, ranked 16th a week ago, zoomed to the number five spot while Duke and Notre Dame remained No. 1 and No. 2 respectively Tuesday in the United Press International Board of Coaches top 20 college basketball pollings.

Duke, 6-0, was idle during the week ending Sunday, Dec. 23, and continued in the top spot with 33 first-place votes and 57 overall points in rankings by 37 of the 42 coaches in the ratings.

Notre Dame, 4-0, also idle, remained in second, collecting the four other first-place votes and 508 points. UCLA, 6-1, stayed No. 3, getting 441 points after easy victories over Fordham and Boston College. Michigan State, 4-1, received 373 points to continue in fourth place with a triumph over Cincinnati.

But it was the Fighting Illini who shook up the ratings in the third week of the season, leaping from 16th to fifth with victories over Syracuse (ninth-rated at the time) and tenth-rated Texas A&M for a surprising triumph in the Kentucky invitational. Illinois, 9-0, received 315 points, displacing North Carolina State in fifth place.

North Carolina, 1-1, defeated Cincinnati to remain in sixth place with 269 points and idle Michigan, 4-1, retained its seventh-place ranking with 256 points. LSU, 7-0, moved up from tenth to eighth with 212 points on victories over Montana State and Army.

Louisville, 7-2, beat Providence and moved from 11th to ninth with 178 points, and Texas A&M, 7-0, jumped from 18th to 10th with an upset of Kentucky before losing to Illinois.

Rounding out the top 20:

Idaho, Indiana State, 8-0, moved from 15th to 11th; Georgetown, 8-1, advanced from 14th to 12th; Long Beach State, 7-0, moved up from 17th to No. 13 with a pair of victories; Kansas, 5-3, faded from eighth to 14th after two losses; and Kentucky, 4-2, fell from 12th to 15th.

Washington State, 7-0, unranked a week ago, vaulted into the No. 16 slot; Marquette, 12th last week, dropped to No. 17 after a loss to Wisconsin, its first setback after seven victories. Syracuse, 6-2, lost to Illinois and Kentucky and plummeted from ninth to 18th; unranked Maryland, 7-2, became No. 19 with an upset triumph over North Carolina.

The UPI Board of Coaches is comprised of six coaches from each of seven geographical areas. Coaches vote weekly for the top 15 teams. Points are awarded on a 15-14-13-etc. basis with 15 points for first place and one for 15th.

Here by sections are the coaches who comprise the UPI major college basketball ratings board:

EAST — Lou Grassano — St. John's; Tom Young; Rutgers; Jack Kraft, Rhode Island; Rollo Massimino, Villanova, John Thompson, Georgetown; Jim Boehelm, Syracuse.

MIDWEST — Johnny Orr, Michigan; Bob Nichols, Toledo; Dilger Phelps, Notre Dame; Ray Meyer, DePaul; Jim Dutcher, Minnesota; Hank Raymond, Marquette.

SOUTH — Frank McGuire, South Carolina; Dean Smith, North Carolina; Lefty Driesell, Maryland; C.M. Newton, Alabama; Hugh Durham; Georgia; Norman Sloan, North Carolina State.

MIDLANDS — Joe Cipriano, Nebraska; Norm Stewart, Missouri; Joe B. Hall, Kentucky; Ted Owens, Kansas; Jack Hartman, Kansas State; Gene Smithson, Wichita State.

SOUTHWEST — Guy Lewis, Houston; Ned Walk, Arizona State; Eddie Sutton, Arkansas; Fred Snowden, Arizona; Roy Danforth, Tulane; Abe Lemons, Texas.

MOUNTAINS — Jim Williams, Colorado State; Frank Arnold, Brigham Young; Ken Hayes, New Mexico State; Norm Ellenberger, New Mexico; Dutch Belnap, Utah State; Neil McCarthy, Weber State.

PACIFIC — Bob Boyd, Southern California; Mary Harshman, Washington; Dan Belluomini, San Francisco; Carroll Williams, Santa Clara; Gary Cunningham, UCLA; Tex Winter, Long Beach State.

The following teams are probation for the full season: Hawaii, Grambling, Nevada-Las Vegas and Alaska-Anchorage. University of Idaho is on probation until mid-January.

Defensive end tops rookie vote

NEW YORK (UPI) — Defensive end Al "Bubba" Baker, once dismissed by the Detroit Lions scouts for "lacking a defensive temperament," was named UPI's 1978 National Football Conference Rookie of the Year Tuesday.

Baker was chosen on 28 ballots cast by UPI's selection committee of 56 football writers, four from each NFC city. James Lofton, Green Bay's gifted wide receiver, finished a distant second with 16 votes. No other rookie received more than three votes.

Baker, the Lions' second-round draft selection, took over the starting right end position on the first day he arrived in camp last June. Under the tutelage of defensive line coach Floyd Peters, the 6-foot-6, 260-pound Baker quickly became a menace to NFL offensive tackles and quarterbacks. He recorded 23 of the 55 sacks made by the aggressive Silver Rush defense this season.

Detroit Coach Monte Clark spotted Baker in last year's Blue-Gray All-Star Game and drafted him despite the reservations of the Lions' scouting combine.

"The scouts said he didn't have a defensive temperament," Clark said. "They said he didn't come off the ball quickly enough."

"Those experts didn't have to stand across the line of scrimmage from Baker, who has earned a unique distinction: he is the first defensive lineman selected as UPI's NFC Rookie of the Year (No. 1 rookie before 1970) since the voting began in 1955. He is the first Lion rookie to be honored since wide receiver Earl McCulloch ten years ago. His inspired play led to a late surge that transformed the Lions from lousy cats to a 7-9 record.

In a nationally televised Thanksgiving Day upset of the playoff-bound Denver Broncos, the Lions sacked Craig Morton six times, giving the public a view of Baker's intensity.

"I never heard of anybody talking their way into a sack," said Baker with a laugh, explaining his aggressiveness.

Baker had five sacks against Tampa Bay and, late in the game, his runners and blockers made a habit of chopping down on his knees. After the game, the 22-year-old end issued the Baker Doctrine:

"If any of 'em ever gets me and I feel it's not justifiable to play, the next time I tackle him I'm going to try to tear his head off."

Baker naturally draws comparisons with Dallas' Harvey Martin, the 1977 NFC Defensive Player of the Year who recorded 32 sacks last season. Baker was named to a starting right end spot — ahead of Martin — in the Jan. 29 Pro Bowl in Los Angeles.

Baker's arrival, along with quarterback Gary Danielson's rapid development, has given the Lions new optimism. Detroit has lacked an effective pass rush since the late Alex Karras-Roger Brown era of the early 1960's, but the Pensacola Foursons is back, spurred by a remarkable rookie end who has managed to totally befuddle pro scouts and offensive tackles in the same year.

Baker's considerable margin of victory in the voting is another tribute to his talents. Lofton's achievements would have won him rookie honors in many other seasons.

Al "Bubba" Baker is first lineman named UPI rookie of the year

Charles White:

USC gunning for No. 1

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — According to Charles White, the University of Southern California football team will have good reason for being sky-high when it goes onto the field on New Year's Day against Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

"We feel," he said, "we have a good chance to prove to people that we're the best college football team in the country if we beat Michigan."

"If we hadn't lost a game, there wouldn't be any question. But we did lose a game so it comes down to our final game. If all the right things happen, we can be the national champions."

White, the leading rusher in Pacific-10 history with 4,096 yards, has a logical formula for the No. 3-ranked Trojans to wind up No. 1.

"If USC beats No. 5 Michigan and No. 1 Penn State loses to No. 2 Alabama in the Sugar Bowl, White reasons, there's nobody else but the Trojans entitled to the national title since USC was a convincing 24-14 winner at Alabama in its third game of the season."

The Trojans' loss came in their fifth game at Arizona State 20-7.

"I think everybody on our team will be very enthusiastic in the Rose Bowl," noted White, "because our national championship is on the line."

"We had an outstanding team two years ago but this team is better because it has more unity. Everybody works together and everybody seems to be a leader."

White is a 5-foot-11, 183-pound junior who has amassed more yards as the USC tailback than a pair of Heisman Trophy winners, T.J. Simpson and Mike Garrett, as well as Anthony Davis, Ricky Bell, Clarence Davis and Jon

Big stakes available at Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Whether Alabama or Penn State wins the national championship, each school will go home about $1 million richer for playing in this year's Sugar Bowl.

Publicity director Charles Glueck said the 1978 Sugar Bowl purse will approach $2 million.

"We believe that we will set a record in the size of the checks to Alabama and Penn State," Glueck said. "We are expecting that the amount will be somewhere between $950,000 and $1 million."

Last year's Sugar Bowl contestants — Alabama and Ohio State — earned $933,582 each, a record. Ticket prices that went up to $15 last year are the same this year.

In comparison, Tulane and Temple, opponents in the first Sugar Bowl in 1935, received $27,800 each. In 44 years the bowl has paid more than $17.5 million to competing football teams, Glueck said.

Alabama will wind up with about $200,000 after sharing its bowl revenue with the nine other Southeastern Conference schools. Penn State, as an independent, will keep its entire check.

The money goes to the schools' athletic departments for use in upgrading facilities and buying new equipment.

Donohue apologizes for 'word'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA Coach Terry Donohue said Tuesday he was sorry if he offended anyone with an explosive outburst during a national broadcast of the Fiesta Bowl game-Christmas-dry-and-NBC said the incident was the network's "total responsibility."

Television broadcaster Mike Hafner had approached Donohue with a microphone on the sidelines during the game with Arkansas in Tempe, Ariz., just as an "offside" called an outburst against UCLA which nullified a pass interception.

"Aw, s---," said Donohue, his words instantly relayed to millions. "We take total responsibility for the incident," said Don Oilmeyer, NBC executive producer for sports. "It was an unfortunate set of circumstances. He (Donohue) agreed to an interview and as we started to commence it the flag was thrown. It's the old Murphy's law — if anything can go wrong, it will."

Donohue did not realize until after the game that his terse reaction had been broadcast.

"On Christmas Day I said that," he said. "My wife will kill me."

Donohue issued a brief statement from his home Tuesday saying that it was a reaction in the heat of the game which ended in a 10-10 tie.

"If I offended anyone I'm sorry," he said.

UCLA spokesman Vic Kelley said he thought the affair had been blown out of proportion.

"If someone sticks a microphone in your face, then they are out of line," Kelley said. "And if there are people who haven't heard the word before I don't know who they are."

Oilmeyer said his concern was that the incident did not present Donohue in a bad light.

"I feel very badly about it," he said. "I don't know about any calls (from the public) received by NBC. It's not the worst thing in the world someone could say. It's a shame, too, because it (spot interviews as a game is in progress) is a good concept."

"This won't change my attitude about the concept but it's too bad that it might change the attitude of coaches participating in live interviews. Again, it's totally our responsibility. I plan to call Donohue this afternoon."

Donohue said one of the reasons he refused to be wired with a live microphone during the game was that he wanted to avoid just such an incident. Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz was wired with a microphone during the game.

U.S. plans new yacht for '80

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A fifth potential America's Cup defender is being designed as the United States prepares for the 24th foreign challenge for yachting's most prestigious trophy in 1980.

The U.S. Maritime College at Fort Schuyler, N.Y., has a new twin sister on the drawing board for its 12-meter yacht Enterprise, which it sponsored in 1977.

Enterprise was defeated by Courageous in 1977 after a summer-long (trial) series of "Newport, Courageous, under Ted Turner, went on to defeat Australia 4-0 to keep the "aud mug" securely bolted in the New York Yacht Club trophy case.

Edward duMoulin, manager of the Fort Schuyler syndicate, said the new 12-meter will look "and act much like Enterprise, with some modifications. It is now being designed by Sparkman and Stephens Inc.

"I think Enterprise, with the proper equipment and a good crew, is just as fast or faster than Courageous," duMoulin said. "No one was unhappy with the boat."

DuMoulin was guarded in describing the changes, saying only that much of the work will be based on intuition-gained-from-sailing-Enterprise in the 1977 campaign.

The new 12-meter will be brought to Newport next summer for practice sessions with Enterprise, now in storage in Fairhaven, Mass. Olympic medalist and world champion sailor Dennis Conner will skipper whichever boat is entered in the defense trials.

Turner is expected back at Courageous' helm in 1980. He formed his own syndicate which bought Courageous and independence from the King's Point Fund last month.

Wood-hulled Intrepid, 1967 and 1970 cup defender, is also expected back as a former-skipper Gerry Conner will skipper Intrepid in the 1980 trials.

Baron Marcel Bich, the fallopenn magnate, bought Intrepid last year as a trial horse for his fleet of French 12-meters.

Other challengers expected in 1980 include a second French syndicate, an English 12-meter, two from Australia and one from Sweden.

Evangelista wins

BOLOGNA, Italy (UPI) — Alfredo Evangelista of Spain retained his European heavyweight boxing title Tuesday by knocking out 28-year-old Italian challenger Dante Cane 55 seconds into the fourth round of a scheduled 15-round bout.

West German referee Rudolf Drost said Cane raised his hand to retire, but only after the veteran Italian fighter had received the 10-count.

Evangelista, 34, had no trouble with the shorter, heavier Cane, who came out of semi-retirement to fight for the European title. The champion weighed 219 1/2 pounds to the curly-haired Cane's 227.

Evangelista was knocked out by Larry Holmes in November in an unsuccessful bid for the World Boxing Council heavyweight crown. Evangelista also lost a 15-round title decision to heavyweight champ Muhammad Ali in 1977.

Harrah's odds

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Harrah's Tuesday installed Pittsburgh as a seven-point favorite over Denver and Dallas as a 14-point favorite over Atlanta in the National Football League playoffs next Saturday.

New England was a 6-point choice over Houston and Los Angeles was favored over Minnesota by eight points in Sunday's games.

Orioles lose cash

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles, citing a drop in attendance and a higher player payroll, announced Tuesday a loss of $234,141 for 1978.

The announcement came while club owner Jerold Hoffberger and former Treasury Secretary William Simon prepared to meet and discuss the possible sale of the American League franchise.

In a statement released Tuesday, Executive Vice President and General Manager Hank Peters said the loss was due to a decline of nearly 150,000 in home attendance and a "substantial increase" in the player payroll.

The Orioles drew 1,051,792 in 1978, down from 1,190,769 in 1977. The team did not disclose the salaries paid to players.

The Baltimore News American quoted one source as saying that the sale was "90 percent complete," but Hoffberger said he had limited contact with Simon.

"I haven't even seen a contract," he said. "Have him send me a contract if he wants to buy."

Borg to marry

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Bjorn Borg, the three-time Wimbledon champion, will marry his Romanian fiancee Mariana Simionescu next year but hasn't decided "where, when or how," according to an interview published Tuesday.

Borg, 22, said in an interview with the Express newspaper, "I will try to make it a secret wedding, but I guess that's impossible. I haven't yet decided where, when or how."

When Borg and Simionescu, 22, became engaged on Nov. 5, 1976, she said, "We are not talking marriage yet — perhaps in two or three years."

Borg is the leading money winner in professional tennis this year after triumphs that included the Wimbledon, Italian and French championships.

Steelers fans line up

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Thousands of Pittsburgh Steelers fans lined up in shivering cold Tuesday to purchase tickets for the team's playoff game Saturday against the Denver Broncos.

"We haven't had any sleep, man," said Rick Indovina, 24, of Edgewood, Pa. He said he had been waiting in line since 9 p.m. Monday.

"Because it's the Steelers, and we're number one, and we're going all the way, so why shouldn't we be there?" said another fan, Alan Trusky, 11, of Shadydale, Pa.

Joe Greene, Pittsburgh's star defensive tackle, said the team should be ready.

"We were aware of what was on the line," Greene said of the Dec. 15 game against Denver that concluded the regular season for both teams. "It was individual pride, team pride and statistics. That can go a long way but it's not dollars and cents."

The Steelers ran up a quick 21-0 lead and then held off a late charge by the Broncos for a 21-17 victory.

Greene said cash will be on the line Saturday and the Steelers will not let up this time.

Bowl committees given 'hard sell' by TV

RADNOR, Pa. (UPI) — The three major television networks, worried about ratings, lobby heavily to get the best teams for holiday bowl games, TV Guide magazine says in its Dec. 30 issue.

The article said the networks, which contribute generously toward the total revenue of bowl games through long-term contracts, are constantly in touch with bowl committees to be sure they select the best teams. "Everything the networks do, and want you to do, is judged on the Nielsen ratings," the article quoted a "middle-level" bowl director as saying. "The networks want you to get the big-name team, the highest-ranked team. "But even when you get the highest-ranked team, they might not be too happy. If ranked to them means a team with a national reputation. If Alabama is 7-4, they would rather have Alabama than a school called Mississippi Southern at 10-0."

In 1976, there was a question of whether ABC offered top-ranked Pittsburgh a regional telecast as an inducement to select the Sugar Bowl, which was to be televised by the network. TV Guide said ABC officials claimed their decision to offer the regional telecast was because of the game's quality and not as an inducement.

However, the magazine quoted sports attorney Phil Hochberg as saying ABC used its position as the college football network "to the detriment of all competitors — a unique bargaining position that, in itself, raises all sorts of anti-trust overtones."

Directors of the bowls other than the four New Year's Day bowl games are more vulnerable to network policy, such as changing times for the specific games, the article said.

"The problem is, when you go to renegotiate a contract, the network says, 'Well, the Nielsen rating was low,' said one bowl director quoted in the magazine. "On the other hand, if you don't get switched and your Nielsen rating is high, they'll say, 'Well, that's because we put you in a good time slot.'" encouraged officials to set the time of the game to 3:30 p.m. EST so it wouldn't run into the network's Saturday night newscast.

The magazine said ABC allegedly tried to shift the time of the Sugar Bowl out of head-to-head competition with the Cotton Bowl to 6:30 p.m. EST, or roughly halftime of the Rose Bowl on NBC. The game also would have run into the Orange Bowl, which starts at 8 p.m. on NBC.

"We didn't want that move," said Jim Spence, ABC's senior vice president of sports. "What we did want was a rotation plan, whereby the four major bowls, switching starting time on a regular basis, would be spread out to avoid overlapping."

He said the idea was scratched "primarily because of the Rose and Orange Bowls — and, I would assume, our good friends at NBC."

Clemente honor to Parker

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder Dave Parker, the National League's Most Valuable Player, batting champion and Gold Glove winner, has been voted the Roberto Clemente Award by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Baseball

Writers Association of America for the third time in four years.

The award is given annually to the Pirates player the BBWA believes most exemplified the standards of excellence established by the late Clemente.

Rubber: A l-o-n-g s-t-r-e-t-c-h

Shoe soles, rubber bands, surgical gloves, hose gaskets, nipples for baby bottles and tires of all sizes have a common ingredient — rubber.

If it's natural rubber, which is used in all those items, it may well have come from a plantation in southeast Asia. There, the nations of Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand produce 80 per cent of the world's 3.8 million metric tons of natural rubber.

Goodyear Orient Co., a Singapore-based subsidiary of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, Ohio, supplies natural rubber for 48 plants around the world. That rubber comes from plantations and processing installations such as these on the Indonesian island of Sumatra, where these photographs were taken.

From the seeds of the hevea tree to the slowly dripping latex through the processing, testing and shipping, to the final manufacturing plant, rubber travels a long road — one that is seldom recognized by the user of the final product.

For that reason, the rubber industry stretches a long way from its point of origin.

Issue of Macs divides island

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (UPI) — Martha's Vineyard, the quaint vacation island off the Massachusetts coast, is in many ways a throwback to another time.

Few cars or people, not even fast-food restaurants.

But that too may change, and the question of whether to allow a McDonald's restaurant has split the residents of this island, which has become the summer playground of the East Coast's wealthy.

Residents have chosen up sides on the issue and committees have formed to influence the decision. No-Mac Committee spokesman Peter Barry Chowka claims the introduction of a McDonald's to the Vineyard would lead to an invasion by other chains. He calls the golden-arches proposal "the most symbolic and most real change in the island's history."

But McDonald's spokesmen say an ice cream chain, Dairy Queen, has done a seasonal business there for a decade. They say many residents welcome the proposed addition, claiming the island needs a good, inexpensive, family restaurant.

But McDonald's plans may be halted by the Tisbury Board of Health rather than by popular opinion. Corporation representatives appeared before the board last week with plans for a new wastewater disposal system.

Because of technicalities, a ruling on the sewage system was postponed. But Board of Health Chairman Dr. Michael Jacobs said he felt obliged to uphold a year-old moratorium on new sewage systems in an area that has had seepage problems.

Members of the pro-Mac group say the majority of the opposition is comprised of off-islanders — seasonal residents and tourists — and from young people who have only recently moved to the island.

Chowka, 29, a freelance writer and photographer who came to the Vineyard 5 1/2 years ago, denies both claims. "I don't think McDonald's petition has garnered nearly 2,000 signatures, he says, roughly equivalent to a quarter of the island's year-round population.

"Of those, easily 90 percent gave island addresses as their residences," he said.

James H. K. Norton, whose family members have been island residents since 1648, said he is not particularly concerned by the threatened "invasion."

He understands those who resent off-island opposition, Norton says. "They don't want to be quiet just for the sake of the tourists."

"I have no objections to a fast-food outlet with a certain level of food, a certain level of nutrition being provided, if that can be done in a way that is tasteful," he says.

"That can't be done, say anti-Mac forces.

But McDonald's spokesmen insist that they don't intend to change the design of the harborside building where the restaurant would be located in Vineyard Haven.

The fact that the building was once the Farmers Cooperative and is therefore of historical interest is one of the reasons they prefer that site.

"Wherever we go on the island, we want it to be in an existing island building which we can restore," said Manuel Fagundes, a real estate representative for McDonald's. "Presumably a building with some historic or aesthetic value."

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is an example of Victor Mollo's strategy from "The Finer Arts of Bridge." East's double of North's five-heart response to the Blackwood four notrump got West off to the heart lead and also told South that the heart finesse was going to lose so South went right up with the ace of hearts and drove trump with two tests. The slam was cold if South could find either minor suit queen. South led dummy's queen of hearts at trick four. East was in with the king and if East had simply led a third heart, South would have been able to get a useless discard from dummy on his jack of hearts and would still have had to find a queen.

However, East led the nine of diamonds at trick five. This took South's diamond finesse for him. He was able to discard one club on dummy's third diamond and we'll never know how he could have handled his queen problems if forced to attack on his own.

Why did East make that silly play? South made a psychological play. He dropped his jack of hearts under East's king. Perhaps East should have figured out that South was a low heart, but East went wrong. He didn't want to give a ruff and discard.

He led the diamond and solved all South's problems. Note that if South had not thrown that jack of hearts given the problem. (EDITORIAL NOTE: For a copy of JACOBY MODERN, write to "Win at Bridge," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.)

Welcome the New Year with gala buffet

Prepare crab casserole ahead of time for maximum flavor—and convenience

New Year's Eve is a glittering, festive affair, and what better way to provide a touch of glamor than with magnificent King Crab Supreme.

Tender Alaska King crab is combined with a choice blend of bacon, mushrooms, white wine and seasonings in this delectable buffet casserole. The dish is prepared ahead of time and refrigerated for maximum flavor as well as convenience. Simply heat through and serve to guests for a very special midnight supper.

To prepare King Crab Supreme, a savory white sauce, flavored with celery, onion, mushrooms, garlic and white wine, is mixed with crab, crumbled bacon, Swiss cheese and rice. Sprinkled with parmesan cheese, the casserole is baked until thoroughly heated.

Alaska King crab is an extraordinary seafood brought with great care from the clear Alaskan coastal waters. The huge male crabs are kept alive until processing, when they are immediately cooked and packed to insure freshness and flavor. Frozen Alaska King crab is marketed in a variety of sizes and packs to suit every need. King crab meat is also available in canned form.

The wise shopper will be sure to pick up convenient Alaska King crab as an elegant way to please family and guests, and to enhance any meal, whether in a salad, appetizer or main dish.

- 1 package 16- to 8-ounce frozen Alaska King crab, thawed or 1 can (7 1/2 ounces) Alaska King crab
- 5 or 6 strips bacon
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup minced onion
- 1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

- 1/2 dash pepper
  - 1/2 cup milk
  - 1/2 cup dry white wine
  - 1 cup shredded Swiss cheese
  - 3 cups cooked rice
  - 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Drain and slice crab. Fry bacon until crisp. Remove from skillet, crumble and drain on paper towels. Remove all but 2 tablespoons bacon drippings from skillet. Add celery, onion, mushrooms and garlic, saute until tender. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Slowly add milk and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and smooth. Stir in wine. Add crab, crumbled bacon and Swiss cheese to sauce. Mix with cooked rice. Turn into buttered 1 1/2 quart casserole. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 or 30 minutes, or until heated through. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

King Crab Supreme combines crab, bacon, cheese and rice for perfect dish.

Pita bread and leftover turkey make tasty supper sandwiches

Leftovers can be FUN. And here's a lighthearted idea from The R.T. French Co., Test Kitchens in Rochester, N.Y., that is fun to fix and fun to eat. Simply stir up chunks of turkey in a tantalizing mixture of yogurt, mushrooms and an envelope of chicken gravy mix.

The gravy mix provides a smooth, creamy and flavorful sauce, while the yogurt and scallions add a Middle Eastern flavor accent. Then the fun begins. Spoon the filling into halves (or quarters) of pocket bread — also called pita bread.

Then let everyone top their pocket sandwiches with any or all of their favorite combinations of cucumbers, tomatoes, alfalfa sprouts and olives. Serve with a steaming bowl of pea or bean soup for a delightful and delicious after-the-holiday supper.

- HOT TURKEY POCKETS
- 3 to 3 1/2 cups cubed cooked turkey
- 3 tablespoons chopped green onions
- 1/2 cup plain yogurt
- 1 envelope (1 1/2-oz.) French's Gravy Mix for Chicken
- 1 can (3- to 4-oz.) mushroom stems and pieces
- 3 or 4 round loaves pita or pocket bread, halved for 6 to 8 small loaves
- 1 1/2 cups each diced cucumbers and

- tomatoes
  - 1 1/2 cups alfalfa sprouts or shredded lettuce
  - 1 1/2 cups sliced ripe olives
- Combine turkey, onions, yogurt, and contents of gravy mix envelope in saucepan. Drain mushrooms saving liquid; add water to liquid to make 1/2 cup. Add mushrooms and liquid to turkey mixture. Cook, stirring, until mixture is piping hot, 5 to 10 minutes. Spoon into bread pockets. Serve with bowls of cucumbers, tomatoes, alfalfa sprouts and olives to spoon into filled pockets. 6 to 8 servings.

* Or use hot dog rolls.

Treat your guests to Eggnog Cheesecake Pie

Lavish make-ahead dessert cuts beautifully and tastes divine

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — To enjoy a lavish dessert is one of the pleasures of the holiday season. Many are rich, of course, but with a little will power, servings can be small and calories counted in other ways.

"Egnog Cheesecake Pie" is a tantalizing creation of pineapple in an eggnog-flavored, fluffy cheesecake-type filling. It's an easy make-ahead pie, cuts beautifully and tastes divine. The canned crushed pineapple is first cooked with its rich syrup or juice and a little sugar until most of the liquid is absorbed. This concentrates its rich flavor and deepens the color.

Before serving, decorate the pie with "chocolate" curls and candied cherries for a festive look. You'll be proud to serve this elegant pie to family and guests this holiday.

- EGGNOG CHEESECAKE PIE
- 1 baked (9-inch) pie shell
- 1 (8 1/2 oz) can crushed pineapple
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 3 egg yolks
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 (3oz) package cream cheese
- 2 tablespoons brandy
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup heavy cream
- Chocolate curls
- Glaze cherries

Bake and cool pie shell. Turn pineapple and 1/2 cup sugar into small saucepan and boil rapidly about 10 minutes, until syrup is absorbed, watching closely as syrup is reduced, to avoid scorching. Cool. Turn remaining 1/2 cup sugar and milk into top of double boiler and sprinkle with gelatin. Let stand about 5 minutes to soften. Set over boiling water, and heat, scalding. Beat egg yolks lightly with nutmeg and salt. Stir a little of the hot milk into yolks, then combine with remaining milk and cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat and cool. In lukewarm. Soften cream cheese and gradually blend in brandy and vanilla then custard mixture. Stir in pineapple. Chill until mixture begins to thicken slightly and jell. Beat cream to soft peaks, and fold into piebain mixture. Chill a few minutes longer until mixture rounds on a spoon. Turn into baked pie shell, and chill firm at least 2 hours, before cutting. Decorate each serving with chocolate curls and a piece cherry. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie, 6 to 8 servings.

EGGNOG CHEESECAKE PIE
Pie shell: Stir 1/2 teaspoon salt into 1 1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour. Cut in 1/2 cup shortening until particles are size of peas. Sprinkle with about 4 tablespoons cold milk or water, adding just enough to make a stiff dough. Shape into a ball. Roll out on lightly floured board to a 12-inch circle, and fit into 9-inch pie pan. Trim edges about 1/2 inch with thin edge of can and fold under, larding up a fluted rim. Prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake alone, even center in very hot oven (450 degrees F) about 10 to 12 minutes, until nicely browned. Cool thoroughly before filling. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie shell.
To make Chocolate Curls: Draw a vegetable peeler firmly across flat surface of squares of semi-sweet or milk chocolate. Chocolate should be at room temperature; it will crumble rather than curl if too cool.

Turn leftovers into delicious party dishes

You're "cooked out" right now. You've been serving leftover baked ham and roasted turkey to everyone and his brother in sandwiches, hashed with potatoes, cubed for gravies and garnishes, in omelets and scrambled eggs, and whatever else you've managed to think of. You've tried giving parcels of them away to your friends but they're just as stashed-up with leftovers as you are.

Instead of crying "help" every time you open your refrigerator or freezer door, cry "potluck party" instead, and throw a holiday clean-up bash. You might as well. It shouldn't cost much more than energy.

How do you do it? Call your friends and arrange with them what they can bring to make the meal well-rounded. If a few can donate additional ham or turkey if you need it, a couple of vegetable dishes should be requested, as well as some bread varieties, a few salads and an assortment of desserts.

You offer to make up the meat dish, possibly from one of the following recipes, get out the napkins and serving pieces needed, fix the beverages. Ask your guests to bring their own eating plates and flatware, and a paper bag to take their things home in when the dinner is over.

If you don't already have a delicious stretcher for leftover ham or turkey, here are two suggestions.

- HAM A LA KING
- (This recipe serves 12. Increase or decrease ingredients to suit number of guests you intend to feed.)
- 1 stick margarine or butter
- 8 tablespoons flour
- 4 cups milk
- 2 large peeled onions, studded with 10 to 12 whole cloves
- 1 bay leaf
- salt and white pepper to season to taste

- 4 cups cooked diced ham
- 5 hard-cooked eggs, peeled and diced
- 2 cups sautéed or sliced, canned mushrooms
- 1/2 seeded green pepper, minced
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 12 cooked, frozen patty shells or toast squares
- chopped parsley to garnish.

In large skillet, melt margarine or butter. Stir in flour and cook over low heat about 5 minutes, blending with spatula or spoon. Stir in slowly, the milk, being careful to keep sauce from getting lumpy. Add onions and bay leaf. Continue cooking over low heat, stirring constantly with spatula or spoon, until thickened. Season lightly to taste with salt and white pepper. Strain sauce through fine sieve or double thickness of cheesecloth; set aside.

Get ham and hard-cooked eggs ready; stir into white sauce along with mushrooms, minced green pepper and chopped pimiento. Cook over low heat until heated throughout and then serve over baked patty shells and sprinkle top of each with chopped parsley. NOTE: Steaming rice or baked or boiled potatoes make excellent bases for the creamed ham.

- CURRIED TURKEY
- (This recipe makes enough curry for 18 people. It freezes well thus making it an ideal party cook-ahead dish.)
- 1 stick margarine or butter
- 4 green apples, cored and pared and chopped
- 1 small bunch celery, topped (diced) and chopped
- 2 large onions peeled and chopped
- 4 large cloves garlic, minced
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 8 tablespoons cornstarch
- 10 teaspoons curry powder
- 3 cups chicken broth
- 8 cups milk

- 1 cup raisins
- 8 cups dried, cooked turkey
- 3 cans (4 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces
- 1 tablespoon powdered thyme

In large skillet, melt margarine or butter. Add and cook until just lightly cooked, the chopped apples, celery, onions and half of the garlic; set aside. In large saucepan or kettle, combine sugar, cornstarch, curry powder, chicken broth, milk, raisins, diced turkey, mushrooms and thyme. Cook, stirring constantly until heated throughout. Add contents of skillet which you had set aside. Do not let mixture boil. It should just bubble slightly for at least 20 to 30 minutes. Thicken more if desired with a mixture of cornstarch and water and serve immediately over steaming hot rice. The curried turkey is best when allowed to stand overnight to cool and is then warmed up the next day when you really will enjoy it more.

NOTE: To enjoy the curried turkey thoroughly, serve it over steaming rice with sprinkling of the following which can be lined up alongside the serving dish of hot sauced meat: Chopped or ground peanuts, toasted flaked coconut, mango chutney (Major Grey's is fine), diced crystallized ginger, kumquats, chopped fresh tomatoes, minced green onions, crisp Chinese noodles. Other relish leftovers from Christmas dinners are delicious, too.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS
All citrus are coming in steadily now. Prices will get lower for oranges, tangerines and grapefruit. Pizzas are becoming an American food tradition for New Year's day. You'll find some pizza sales in the stores this week.

Dear Abby

Separate heartstrings from purse strings

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.
DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a man I've been dating for three years. Three months ago he asked to borrow $3,000 to complete a business deal. He said he'd pay me back in 30 days.

I gave him the $3,000 and didn't want to insult him by asking for an IOU.
 Five weeks passed without a mention of money, so I asked him how his deal was coming. He said it fell through, but that he had used the $3,000 to repay another debt. He said he would repay me as soon as he sold a piece of property he owned.

A month later I brought up the matter of the money again and he said the property didn't bring as much as he thought it would, but he'd try to give me half of what he owed me as soon as possible.

 Abby, I mentioned the money again last evening and he said he didn't really need it in the first place; he was only testing me to see if I'd give it to him!
 Now I'm confused, angry and disappointed. The $3,000 won't break me, but I not rich either. I'm not the type to take legal steps to get my money. What do you make of this whole episode?

MIXED EMOTIONS

DEAR MIXED: The gentleman appears to be a flake. Be prepared to write off the $3,000 as tuition in the school of experience. And never lend money without a proper IOU. (P.S. If you're still in love with him, I suggest you keep your heartstrings and your purse strings separate.)

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine just got her nose re-done. Abby, there wasn't anything wrong with it, but she thought it was too big. That was last year. Now she wants to have her breasts enlarged!

What do you think of people who get themselves done over? I think it's phony, selfish and egotistical.

M. FROM KANSAS

DEAR M: You are entitled to your opinion, and so is your friend. Anything people do about their appearance that will make them feel better about themselves is all right with me. Now, what's YOUR problem?

DEAR ABBY: You always tell girls they should confide in their mothers. Well, I used to, but no more. First I made my mother promise that if I told her something in confidence she wouldn't tell anybody. She promised, and I told her. (It was something about a boy I liked.) Well, it got back to him, because my mother told my aunt, and this aunt just happens to be the biggest mouth in Scarsdale, and she told the boy's mother!

So, please, Abby, tell mothers who can't keep secrets not to feel left out if their children don't tell them anything.

SORRY GIRL.

DEAR SORRY: You're right, of course. So, to all you mothers out there: If you want to keep the lines of communication open between you and your children, never—but NEVER—betray a confidence.

Anniversaries

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE EASTON

Mr. and Mrs. George Easton

JEROME—Mr. and Mrs. George Easton, who have lived all their married lives in Jerome, will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary Saturday, Dec. 30.

The event, hosted by their six children and families, will be held at the Odd Fellows hall from 2 to 4 p.m. The Eastons were married Dec. 15, 1928, in Pocatello.

Mr. Easton has done general carpenter work through the years. He is a veteran of World War I and is affiliated with the American Legion and the IOOF.

Mrs. Easton is active in the Rebekah Lodge, the American Legion Auxiliary and the Methodist Church.

Their children are Bob Easton of Las Vegas, Nev.; Mrs. Willard (Shirley) Shropshire of Jerome; Mrs. Carl (Janet) Weis of Albuquerque, N.M.; Mrs. Avery (Jean) Floyd of Twin Falls; Mrs. Barry (Wanda) Bragg of Halley, and Mrs. David (Wilma) Sautter of Butte, Mont.

They also have 12 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren.

Friends and neighbors of the Eastons are cordially invited to greet them on this special day. They request no gifts.

Bad luck all the way

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Jerry Easley, a trucker for one month, spent an unhappy Christmas as a truck stop wanderer what would happen next.

"I've gotten more experiences in one month than other guys have gotten in a lifetime," said Easley, 28, of Keystone, Colo.

He can tell you about the time he got a front steering tire in Oklahoma or the time he slid across a median during a blizzard in Wyoming.

If that weren't enough, just before Easley and his eastbound tractor-trailer were to cross the Wyoming-Nebraska border Monday morning, one of his rear wheels fell off.

That by itself wouldn't have been too bad, Easley said, but he was already two days behind because his trailer fell off in Idaho.

"I was lucky," he said. "I was only going about half-a-mile an hour in the parking lot of some truck stop. If I had been going down the highway, I could have creamed someone."

Damage was minor, but it took 12 hours to remount the trailer, which had to be emptied and reloaded.

From Washington, Easley called his girlfriend in Kansas City, Mo., Thursday night to tell her he wouldn't be with her for Christmas.

Her reaction, he said with a grin, "was not printable."

Easley said he's mystified about his "bad" luck.

"I've been living right. I don't understand the whole damn thing. I haven't had sex, gotten drunk or told a lie. I don't know how long."
