

Vietnamese encircling Phnom Penh

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — China has written contingency plans for a fast air evacuation of diplomats and Cambodian officials in Phnom Penh, now under virtual land encirclement by Vietnamese forces, Thai aviation sources said Sunday.

The Vietnamese invasion by Saturday had cut all access to Phnom Penh except a highway to Thailand and the capital's Pochentong airport, intelligence sources said.

The aviation sources said China had sought and received Thai permission for "one or two" Chinese planes to evacuate personnel from Phnom Penh whenever Peking feels the Vietnamese invasion force threatens the Cambodian capital.

Thai sources said the Chinese planes would fly over Thailand's air space, the sources said. But unlike other flights to Cambodia, the Chinese asked for the date of the evacuation flights to be left open.

A Chinese jetliner was to fly to Phnom Penh Sunday on an undisclosed mission, which diplomats speculated could be the beginning of an evacuation of non-essential personnel.

They said the Chinese flight to Phnom Penh Sunday might begin an air evacuation of diplomats, aid workers and some government officials.

Saturday, the United States called on Vietnam Saturday to withdraw its troops from Cambodia but admitted "we don't like the Pol Pot regime."

In Washington, a government source said China has massed a buildup of troops, tanks, heavy artillery, MIG-19 fighters and J-28 bombers near its border with Vietnam over the past five or six days.

FBI director worries about Chinese spies

By GREGORY GORDON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director William Webster says he is worried that the opening of full U.S.-Peking relations will bring hordes of Communist Chinese spies into America under student and diplomatic cover.

He said he has already begun beefing up FBI counterintelligence forces to handle this anticipated espionage problem, which may focus on attempts to ferret out U.S. technological secrets.

In an interview with UPI, Webster said the recognition of China "unquestionably will present new challenges to the FBI, which has the responsibility for foreign counterintelligence in this country."

He noted U.S. officials expect China will eventually send about 2,000 envoys of various kinds to the United States, seeking "parity" with the Soviet contingent — and several hundred exchange students as well.

That influx, he said, will present a problem that "in terms of the national interest, we need to be concerned about."

Referring to the exchange students that have already begun arriving, Webster said, "If they are not coming over as espionage agents, they are coming over as intelligence gatherers."

It is common knowledge among western intelligence experts that communist nations routinely assign students, trade envoys and the like to supplement the work of professional spies by gathering technological, military or political information relevant to their needs.

Webster also suggested the United States could face a parallel espionage threat from the disgruntled Nationalist Chinese, whose diplomatic relations were broken when Peking gained recognition.

"We have the question, of course, of the Republic of China (Taiwan)," he said, "whether its posture will change — whether we have to keep track of them, too."

Anyone would probably consider stopping to see Niall Irish and this old traffic light

Lighting up

Niall Irish has this thing about old but beautiful traffic lights

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
BUHL — Ever since Niall Irish was about eight years old, he has wanted his very own street light.

Not just any street light, says Irish, but one like those on the corners of Main Avenue when he was a boy growing up in Twin Falls.

"I don't know why, but those old fashioned poles with the glass globe on top were beautiful and I wanted one," Irish says.

Several years back the old lights began to vanish. An urban renewal project which gave Twin Falls a new mall also wiped out Irish's lights.

"I guess they were sold for scrap because the poles were cast iron," he said.

Last year, when he had about given up hope of finding any, he mentioned his unusual search for the outdated street lights to a friend, Alvin Machacek. The friend told Irish he had a relative living south of Buhl who had a couple of the lights but wouldn't part with them for anything.

"We talked about them and I drove by the Machacek home where they were and saw them. I decided I had nothing to lose so one day I just called up Vic Machacek who had moved to California, and asked if he would sell them. I expected him to turn me down, but instead he said 'since he didn't live in his former home anymore, he didn't have any use for them," Irish recalls.

Irish immediately went to work removing the lights and taking them to his home. He has now refurbished and installed them at his country home where they are on display and in use.

Irish says the lights, according to Machacek, didn't come from Twin Falls, but rather from Buhl. He said they were removed during a modernization program and Machacek saw them at Langdon's scrap metal yards about 30 years ago and purchased them as a novelty.

Division on wane for GOP

By ADAM CLYMER
N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Republican Party, whose internal battles have often been as passionate as those it fought against the Democrats, is beginning the 1980 presidential campaign less divided than at any time since World War II.

Old issues that cracked the party, such as civil rights and the nation's role in world affairs, have so aged and changed that Republican disagreements about them are now questions only of degree and judgment, not of party morality.

Many leaders who stirred passions, such as former Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, a lightning rod of conservative fury for 15 years, have retired.

These historic shifts, described by Republican leaders in a series of interviews, coincide with short-range advantages: a cohesive mood arising from success in the off-year election; a Republican perception of President Carter as weak, and the comparative ease of opposing without the responsibility of governing.

But the party has enjoyed cohesive moods before, especially in the months before the 1968 election, without building any lasting accord.

This time, party leaders, especially Bill Brock, the national chairman; Howard H. Baker Jr., the Senate minority leader; and Ronald Reagan, a presidential hopeful — have worked effectively to emphasize issues that unite Republicans and to employ political techniques that make the most of that apparent unity.

These developments, crystallizing the month after the Democrats staged a serious quarrel in Memphis over the philosophy of their own party, may still not have a crucial impact in 1980.

Even the optimistic Brock concedes that if Carter can curb inflation without bringing on a serious recession, he will be very difficult to beat. "And we don't underestimate the advantages of incumbency," Brock added. The last time Republicans took the White House away from Democrats in peacetime was in 1920.

Other Republicans, especially in the Reagan camp, are haunted by the thought that Carter may not be the Democratic nominee. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts would be tougher to beat, they say, despite the cleaner ideological lines such a campaign would offer.

Whether these changes in the party help decide the 1980 election or not, it seems likely to Republican leaders that they are fundamental and signs that the party has a future, even if only 20 percent of those who voted in November, according to a poll by The New York Times and CBS News, called themselves Republicans.

The unity that is developing has a conservative cast. Republicans in the Senate have moved a bit to the right, and conservatives dominate the growing presidential field.

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, probably the least conservative of the Republicans planning presidential bids, says, "The specter of gravity of the party has moved to the right."

Good morning!

Gov. John Evans inaugurated in the cold Boise air

Mormon president Spencer W. Kimball, center, and wife talk to Gov. Evans after inauguration

By MARK SHENEFELT
BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans, the first Mormon elected governor of Idaho, was inaugurated in front of the Statehouse Saturday along with other oath-taking state officials who braved chilling 10-degree weather.

The 53-year-old Evans, who ascended to the governor's office when Gov. Cecil Andrus became Interior Secretary in 1977, said Idaho's problems never will be solved completely, but he said the state has taken the first step toward that goal.

Amid light, sparkling snow falling from mostly clear skies, Idaho Supreme Court Chief Justice Allan Shepard administered the oaths of office to Evans and six other statewide elected officials — Lt. Gov. Phil Batt, Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa, Auditor Joe R. Williams, Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Mook, Attorney General Dave Leroy and Public Instruction Superintendent Jerry Evans.

Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball was scheduled to join Evans on the inaugural platform, but the 83-year-old leader of the world's four million Mormons missed the ceremony because his flight from Salt Lake City was late.

But Kimball made it to the Statehouse in downtown Boise in time to greet Evans in his office and wish him success during his four-year term.

The descendant of an eastern Idaho pioneer family, Evans rose from being mayor of Malad to the governorship after years as a state senator and lieutenant governor.

In his 12-minute inaugural address to a crowd of several hundred shivering persons, Evans said Idaho will enter the next decade as a healthy, economically sound state, though as a state with its share of problems.

Evans, who defeated fellow Mormon Allan Larsen — as Larsen, a Republican, based his campaign on tax relief and the 1 percent property tax initiative — said the state must strike a balance between providing tax relief and essential government services.

The governor said the state will continue to face air and water quality and growth problems, but he said his administration will fight to see the state survives its troubles in the 1980's.

"When I assumed the office of governor of the state of Idaho two years ago, I pledged an administration of honesty, openness and competence. I have honored that commitment. Today, I renew that pledge of honesty, openness and competence and add to it the promise of innovation."

Prior to his speech Evans received an artillery salute and was honored by a flyover of National Guard fighters and helicopters. He smiled throughout the National Guard demonstration.

While Evans talked of his plans for the state, his elected colleagues huddled behind him on the platform bundled in winter clothing.

Leroy, the nation's youngest state attorney general, 31, was the only official to forsake a topcoat.

"I do not believe our citizens have said, however, that they want local government destroyed, or our school system crippled. Next to our families and homes, our schools and our communities are the foundation of our society."

Civilian government takes over in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—A new civilian government took power in Iran Saturday, a year after the first anti-shah riots, but it faced immediate opposition from the same forces which had pushed Iran to brink of civil war.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, who received the new cabinet of moderate Premier Shapour Bakhtiar, said he felt "more at ease" with a civilian government in power but added he was tired and needed a rest.

Bakhtiar, a 63-year-old lawyer who has been denounced by the opposition National Front which has led the anti-shah campaign, said he hoped the shah would stay on the Peacock Throne even if he left the country temporarily.

"There is a place for the monarchy in the Iranian constitution," Bakhtiar said.

There has been speculation that if the Shah took a vacation abroad it could spell the end of his reign. Temporary court-officials have denied such a possibility.

Blackfoot Threatened

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (UPI)—Flooding over banks and through canals along the Snake River west of Blackfoot, the result of ice jamming the river, worsened in the Riverbank Saturday night according to Ed Barris, director of disaster services.

Barris said water has flooded fields and that "We have given-up trying to contain it—and are sandbagging homes." He added all homes along the south side of State Highway 39 could be threatened.

McIntyre plans to stay

(N.Y. Times Service)

WASHINGTON—Despite criticism that he lacks the stature for the job, James T. McIntyre Jr. plans to stay on as President Carter's budget director and says that by virtue of one year's experience at the helm, "I'll be a much more effective budget director for the president."

"I know a lot more about dealing with Cabinet officers and congressmen than I know last year," the 38-year-old McIntyre said in an interview Friday.

Gacy photographs

CHICAGO (UPI)—Color photographs of an unfilling sex victim—one of dozens of young men police say were drugged by John Wayne Gacy—have been recovered from the suspected mass sex slayer's home, investigators said Saturday.

Two color Polaroid prints of Robert Spisusch, 23, were found among Gacy's possessions, police said. One showed the young man sprawled across Gacy's bed, nude and unconscious.

Arson motive sought

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police and fire marshals Saturday sought a motive for an arson fire that destroyed 12 stores and was allegedly set by Bobby Halpern, a 45-year-old ex-convict who tried to come back as a heavy-weight boxer, and two other men.

Police arrested Halpern along with retired New York City police officer Angelo Colavito, 43, and Donald Morse, 21, just after midnight near a row of burning stores in the Bronx.

Mining rule denial

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Interior Department Saturday denied reports it was delaying strict new controls on strip mining because of fears the rules will be inflated.

The New York Times said in its Sunday edition the regulations were being delayed six months, until August, but an official said the regulations are planned for release in mid-February.

Dederich writ filed

KINGMAN, Ariz. (UPI)—Synanon founder Charles Dederich, facing conspiracy and attempted murder charges in a rattlesnake attack in California, was depressed and crying during an interview with a psychiatrist, according to court records.

A report by Dr. M.B. Ruland was included in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, filed Friday to prevent Dederich's automatic extradition to California. The writ was filed hours before the 4 p.m. deadline for Dederich to fight extradition.

The petition said Dederich, 66, is mentally incompetent to assist in defending himself against charges that he conspired to kill Los Angeles attorney Paul Morantz by placing a rattlesnake in his mailbox.

Ruland said Dederich wept "copiously" and was "classically depressed" during an evaluation.

Frozen sperm study

HOUSTON (UPI)—Artificial insemination with sperm that has been frozen appears to reduce significantly the chance of a miscarriage or that offspring will have birth defects, a researcher reported Saturday.

Dr. Armand M. Karow Jr. of the Medical College of Georgia said a survey of more than 1,500 children born from thawed donor sperm found less than 1 percent with abnormalities compared with birth defects in about 6 percent of the general population.

Never to trial?

PEKING (UPI)—The widow of Chairman Mao Tse-tung and the rest of the "Gang of Four" may never be brought to public trial for the crimes attributed to them, a Chinese legal expert said Saturday.

"There has never been a public trial of chieftains who represented a wrong line in the (Chinese Communist) party," said Chang Chung-lin, a deputy director of the Law Research Institute of the China Academy of Social Sciences.

Spanish killings

MADRID, Spain (UPI)—Gunmen killed a young civil guard and his fiancée Saturday and King Juan Carlos appealed to the army to remain loyal to Spain's fledgling democracy in the face of rising Basque terrorism.

The escalating terrorist campaign presumably by Basque separatists has killed five people in the first six days of the new year, including the military governor of Madrid Province, the adjutant to the military governor of the Basque Guipuzcoa Province and a police demolition expert.

Mass arrest in Peru

LIMA, Peru (UPI)—Peru's military regime Saturday arrested 100 left-wing labor leaders hours after declaring a national state of emergency and suspension of constitutional rights in a move to break a general strike called for next week.

The government action came shortly before midnight Friday in the form of an official communique released by military assistant Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez's Council of Ministers.

Under the terms of the declared 30-day state of emergency, police have the right to enter private homes without warrants and arrest and hold citizens incommunicado without charging them. A supplementary decree from the Interior Ministry gave military censors the right to halt publication of limited-circulation magazines that "cooperate toward subversive ends."

Chinese feelings

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A majority of Congress opposed the establishment of U.S.-China diplomatic relations if it meant breaking the defense pact with Taiwan, the American Conservative Union said Saturday.

The organization said in a statement it based its findings on a poll of 270 congressmen and 68 senators. The full Congress totals 535.

Guideline hiding?

DENVER (UPI)—Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union President A.F. Grosprion Saturday said Saturday oil companies were "hiding behind" President Carter's voluntary wage-price guidelines and that the union would negotiate without regard to a 7 percent ceiling on pay raises.

Union contracts with the oil companies expire at midnight tonight. Grosprion said he would decide at that time whether to call a strike if an agreement had been reached.

"They would limit the pay raises of the wage earners of this country but will do nothing to keep prices from rising at their usual rapid rate," Grosprion told reporters.

Big Four leaders end island summit

SAINT FRANCOIS, Guadeloupe (UPI)—The Big Four Western Alliance leaders ended a two-day summit conference Saturday by endorsing the U.S. recognition of China and assuring Moscow normalization of relations with Peking would not impair detente.

"The four leaders, concluding the 'sunshine summit' on the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe, pledged to pursue detente and said they hoped for the early conclusion of a strategic arms accord — SALT II — between the United States and the Soviet Union."

Carter called the summit the most successful conference he had ever attended.

Carter, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France, British Prime Minister James Callaghan and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt spoke to newsmen on the lawn of a hotel where the talks were held.

As they spoke, a breeze off the Caribbean fluttered through the palm, Croton and Lady's Young trees. A nearby beach had been cleared off all sunbathers, including the topless.

"I have never attended a conference that has been so successful," Carter said. He said for him it had been "delightful, enjoyable and profitable."

Carter said all the leaders were determined that the normalization of relations with China "should never be an obstacle to detente" and expressed the hope that in the future, better relations with China could become "an avenue to strengthen our ties of friendship with the people of the Soviet Union."

He also said the Western allies had given the United States "constructive support" in the SALT negotiations and other talks in which the United States had taken the lead.

Giscard, who hosted the talks on this tropical French Caribbean island, said the discussions among the four went into "considerable substance and depth."

COX-HOWARD & Associates REALTORS

SHOULD YOU INVEST IN A HOME IN 1979??

Are home buyers, standing on the brink of a price collapse?

According to NEWSWEEK MAGAZINE — JANUARY 1, 1979 — the evidence says no! In fact, the housing market is in far better balance than the bare price facts make it appear.

Housing prices have proved remarkably recession resistant. Even if the rate of price increase should slow a little in 1979, due to an economic slowdown "the pause would be more than offset later on", says Tom Harter, research director of the Mortgage Bankers Association. The annual return on many home buyers' actual cash investment has run in the area of 20%. To the question, "How long can it go on?" most economists and real estate analysts answer, "At least ten years and possibly more."

The tax benefits of homeownership are greater than ever, now that the first $100,000 in profits are tax-free after age 54. This sharply lowers the lifetime cost of home owning as compared with renting, and gives homes a better net yield than other forms of capital gain.

If you buy a good house now, the odds are that you won't regret it!

Nixon's Saigon promise never did materialize

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard Nixon covered Saigon into accepting the 1973 Vietnam war cease-fire and then promised military support that never came when Hanoi resumed its offensive, according to a new study of the fall of Vietnam released Saturday.

"You can count on us," the study quotes Nixon as telling South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu after Thieu succumbed and agreed to the truce.

The study, done for the Defense Department by Rand Corp. researchers, also said Thieu feared the Americans would have him assassinated but he believed to the end they would intervene to save his country from communist conquest.

Researchers interviewed South Vietnamese officials and military officers, some of them close Thieu advisers, in the study of how and why South Vietnam collapsed within two months in 1975.

Another strange CIA case revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA once developed a secret mind-control plan to induce an unwitting foreigner to assassinate one of his country's leaders or, "if necessary," an American official abroad, newly released documents show.

The chilling plan was part of Operation Artichoke, the intelligence agency's 23-year program of experimenting with exotic poisons and drugs for use in mind and behavior control.

The three-page, 25-year-old memorandum detailing the assassination plan was obtained by American Citizens for Honesty in Government under a Freedom of Information suit.

The citizens group is sponsored by the Church of Scientology, an organization that has been feuding for years with the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and a number of other federal agencies over its tax-exempt status.

Recent congressional investigations have found that the CIA plotted the assassination of Cuban leader Fidel Castro and some other foreign leaders.

The CIA says none of the plans was carried out. And it called the mind-control plans purely hypothetical.

The newly released, censored memo shows, "The Artichoke team visited (blank) during period 8 January to 15 January 1954.

Agreement in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Illinois lawmakers agreed Saturday to take their already approved 40 percent raise in two steps and the Carter Administration said it was satisfied the plan would meet the president's anti-inflation guidelines.

The legislators met in an all-night special session called specifically by Gov. James R. Thompson to roll back the lump-sum pay hikes, which were approved over his veto by a Jan. 6 duck session.

The lawmakers voted themselves $8,000-lump-sum pay increases Nov. 20. The action immediately aroused angry public criticism, the ire of Carter's inflation fighters.

Graceland's iron gates to be closed

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Faithful fans who make the pilgrimage to Elvis Presley's gravesite Monday to commemorate the late singer's 44th birthday will find the iron gates to his mansion closed.

Dwindling crowds, poor weather and a lack of privacy have prompted the entertainer's father, Vernon Presley, to restrict access to the grounds of his son's Graceland mansion.

Visitors can now walk through the meditation garden where Presley is buried alongside his mother Friday, Saturday and Sunday only — weather permitting.

A small fountain, religious statues and a stone wall containing stone-glass depictions of religious scenes encircle the simple bronze plaques that mark the gravesites seen by more than half a million people in the year after Presley's death of hypertensive heart disease Aug. 16, 1977.

The crowds topped 6,000 a day in August 1976, but Dick Croft, chief of security at the mansion, said the flow of visitors has slowed to as few as 400 a day. He said those numbers should increase around Easter, and again next summer.

But this birthday, members of the Presley family and close friends will be the only ones allowed at the gravesites.

Judge to rule in Graiver case

NEW YORK (UPI)—A judge is expected to write an end Monday to the most intriguing part of the "Graiver Affair"—ruling Argentine mystery man David Graiver died in a 1976 Mexican plane crash and is not living it up in a secret hideaway on millions of dollars looted from a New York bank.

Graiver family attorneys plan to ask state Supreme Court Justice Arnold G. Fraiman to dismiss an indictment naming the 35-year-old Argentine as the kingpin in a $50 million conspiracy to defraud the now-defunct American Bank and Trust Co. on the grounds that he is dead.

"I have very serious doubts as to whether Mr. Graiver is alive," Fraiman said during pre-trial motions last week in the Manhattan district attorney's case against Graiver and four other ABT officers indicted in the fourth largest bank failure in U.S. history.

A grand jury decided to indict Graiver last April on the basis of a claim by an ABT client that he had seen the Argentine in the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., airport. The reported sighting occurred several weeks after Graiver's chartered jet crashed near Acapulco on Aug. 7, 1976.

Two U.S. pilots and one unidentified passenger died in the crash.

The indictment heightened speculation that Graiver, suspected of using $12 million in funds extorted-by Argentina's Montonero guerrillas to help buy ABT, had staged the accident to mask his escape with millions that still have not been traced. ABT toppled five weeks after the crash.

"Unless the district attorney has some additional evidence" over and above the Fort Lauderdale sighting, Fraiman said, "my inclination would be to grant the motion to dismiss the indictment on the grounds that Graiver is, in fact, deceased."

Graiver family attorneys say a death certificate issued by the Mexican government—constitutes legal proof the financier is dead.

Graiver's younger brother could not identify the charred remains from the wreckage as those of the financier, but he claimed a torso and had it cremated. The cremation—a departure from the custom of the family's Orthodox Jewish faith—means Graiver's death never can be proved conclusively.

Nevada nuclear dump gets first deposit

JACKASS FLATS, Nev. (UPI) — The desert area where the United States has been exploding nuclear bombs for 27 years, under consideration for use as a "radioactive garbage dump," has received its first shipment of waste from a commercial nuclear reactor.

The Department of Energy confirmed Friday that three-year-old waste from a Florida nuclear power plant was recently placed in a concrete, above-ground site.

The nuclear waste capsule weighs several hundred thousand pounds, a spokesman said and contains some 210 fission products — including strontium 90, cesium 137, plutonium and uranium 235.

It marked the first shipment of waste from a commercial nuclear power plant in an experimental program announced almost a year ago to determine whether the Nevada Test Site should be used as a storage facility for radioactive wastes.

Similar nuclear waste will be stored in dry wells at Jackass Flats as well as granite shafts at Yucca Flat during the next year, said a department spokesman.

Waste from another nuclear power plant is scheduled to arrive this week. A government spokesman said the first fuel assembly arrived in southern Nevada in early December from a nuclear power plant at Turkey Point, Fla. It was encased in containers he said would withstand the impact of a speeding locomotive and carried on a flatbed truck for analysis first in Columbus, Ohio.

"They characterized the spent fuel, meaning they determined the gross radioactivity on the surface, determined the weight and checked for defects," said DOE spokesman David Miller.

The waste, upon arrival at Jackass Flats, was placed in a stainless steel canister which was put in a silo with walls of cement, three feet thick.

Miller said the concrete silo, measuring about 20 feet high and seven feet in diameter — will remain in place about a year as part of the research and development program to determine if it is affected by the elements.

Traffic lighting fantastic

"I am sure glad he did. I imagine all of the rest have been cut up for scrap and the bulbs broken or sold," Irish says.

When Machacek bought them at the salvage yard, he had enough foresight to buy two extra glass globes. One of his was broken by a hail storm after he left them up at his farm-home. When Irish went to get them, he found one extra glass globe in the barn where it had been stored.

"One of the glass globes is labeled 'Patented in 1920' and I imagine that is about when they were installed. I have been told they were not the first street lights in downtown Buhl," Irish says.

Irish said in his search for the lights he contacted all of the small towns and the large ones. Boise officials told him most of the lights had been scrapped, but the few that were saved there were not for sale. Irish says they are now being put back into use in the restoration of "Old Boise" in the main downtown area of that city.

Once Irish heard the old Buhl lights were stored on the city reservoir property, but he apparently got there too late. They had all been hauled away for scrap metal.

"I was looking for even just part of one of the old lights and I tried to find the globes, only to be told there were none, but they would cost $100 if available," he said. "I heard of a man in Blackfoot with one and drove up to talk to him. He had a globe but wouldn't sell it."

Irish says Machacek paid $25 for the lights when he bought them at the salvage yard and he sold them to Irish for $50 each.

"I wouldn't sell them for a million," says the current owner.

Several weeks ago Irish made another discovery. He found an old traffic light in the city storage barn at Buhl and offered to buy it. Buhl City officials were about to let it go for a dollar or two just to get it out of their way when they decided maybe it was not city property. State Highway Department crews had removed it many years ago during improvements to U. S. Highway 30 which is also the main downtown Buhl street. The city contacted the state but officials there had no interest in the light.

Irish bought it for $5. He said it is against the law to hang it in public view, even on private property, so he may hang it in the corner of a family room or bar in his home.

Irish says it had been in the Buhl city shop for 40 years and was fairly new when taken down so it works in every detail. It has three large lights in each of the four sides and there is a visor-type shield over each one. Even the little light globes are in working order, he says.

Irish said the bulbs in the traffic light are antique and no longer made. The light which once hung in the center of the main intersection of Buhl is much larger and heavier than the modern type.

Irish, a carpenter, has placed his street lights on concrete foundations. He dug trenches through frozen ground for wiring, and has both lights hooked up and operating. He has painted the 14-foot high poles black. The metal tops which go above the white globes are also painted black. The poles were painted a silver color when Irish acquired them, but he thinks the black is probably closer to the original design. He said the glass at the top of the globes is purple with age.

With a 200 watt bulb in the globes, they will throw a light for about 90 feet, Irish says. He doesn't use them a lot as they are mostly for decorations. He has located one light near the front entrance of his home and another at the rear.

The traffic light is also in working order and Irish has hooked it up and can operate it. There is a timer unit inside which can be set to change the light at various intervals. It all works perfectly, he said.

The red lens on the light at the top of the three on each side has the word "stop" written across it but the yellow and green lights are plain.

Irish says he doesn't know anyone else who collects old street lights, and doesn't really understand his own fascination for them. When the first told his family about his purchase of the lights, he said, they thought he was crazy, but now that they are up in place and operating, everyone agrees they are worth the effort. Irish says his parents, Leonard and Edna Irish, are antique collectors and are beginning to understand his unusual collection.

Group takes UFO sighting seriously

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — It's a bird... a plane... a close encounter of the first kind? Just possibly. At least two American UFO experts — one now living in Idaho — say the recent New Zealand sightings of unusual aerial phenomena deserve closer examination.

Movie fans need no explanation of "close encounters." But for the uninitiated, the phraseology was coined to describe sightings of UFO's (unidentified flying objects).

A close encounter of the first kind refers to a sighting of an unidentified flying object.

A close encounter of the second kind refers to discovery of some physical evidence of a UFO encounter, such as scorched grass at a landing site.

A close encounter of the third kind, in addition to being a successful box office attraction, means an actual encounter with the intelligence or beings responsible for piloting a UFO.

Serious students of UFO's seem the description "flying saucers," (a term first used, incidentally, by an Idaho pilot in 1948 to describe UFO's he had seen) as Hollywood exploitation of what should be a serious study.

"We're not saying what sightings are," says Paul Kiepe, of Payette. "Or that all sightings are the same thing, only that all unknown sightings should be examined."

Kiepe is the Idaho representative of the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization, an international organization formed in 1952 to promote serious, scholarly study of unidentified flying objects. With a membership of approximately 2,500 persons, "top-heavy with academic people," according to International director James Lorenzen, the Tucson-based organization gathers and correlates UFO data.

Kiepe says his knowledge of the New Zealand sightings of this week, which were filmed by two separate New Zealand television film crews, has been limited to newspaper reports.

Those reports quoted the film crews as saying a "brilliant object" like a volcano "flashed a pulsating light across a pre-dawn sky. The first of the two sightings was also picked up by New Zealand civilian aircraft radar, leading defense authorities in that country to place its armed forces on 'ready alert' and request copies of the film for additional study.

But Kiepe cautioned authorities in that country for saying the film crews Japanese fishing boats reflected on clouds." Lorenzen said he had telephoned the research organization observers in New Zealand, "and they're checking into it."

Lorenzen said — APRO members would examine the possibility of the radar malfunctions. "But as far as we're concerned, mundane sources appear to be ruled out."

His organization has an international consulting staff of approximately 50 scientists who offer technical advice to APRO. Lorenzen said, adding their expertise would be sought in this case.

had seen only the planet Venus, even before they had examined the film. That is a "cover-up" answer that has been used by government authorities in this country to explain away the unknown, Kiepe says. In this particular sighting, Kiepe says, the object could not have been Venus because of the planet's location in the sky.

Lorenzen also expressed skepticism at the "Venus" explanation. "There has been quite an effort to discredit this," Lorenzen told the Times-News. "But most of the efforts have been a quite wild. They've even suggested what they saw were lights from

Canal considered for power source

BY KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A hydroelectric generator on the Low Line Canal in Twin Falls County is "a good prospect," according to a local canal official.

Stockholders and board members of the Twin Falls Canal Co. will hear an engineer's report on proposed power generation on the canal at their annual stockholders meeting Jan. 9 at the College of Southern Idaho.

On that day, stockholders will also vote for a new board of directors, according to Thomas Olmstead of Twin Falls, chairman of the present board.

All five members of the current board are up for reelection on an annual basis. Incumbents Olmstead, Jose Benington of Castleford, Bryan Harris Jr. of Hansen, William Rude of Filer, and William Watt of Buhl are running unopposed for another term on the board.

At the meeting, board members and stockholders will hear a report by James Patrick, a California engineer, on the feasibility and costs of installing a low-head power generator on the Twin Falls canal.

Three potential power generating sites have been proposed for the Twin Falls Canal Co. system and the Northside Canal Co. system.

One, at Milner Dam, could be used in the winter months to generate up to 50 megawatts of power.

The proposed generator on the Low Line Canal could operate during the summer irrigation season and generate somewhat less power.

And a site at Wilson Lake on the Northside near Hazelton would also generate a small amount of power during the summer months.

Together, the three power stations could generate nearly half the electrical output of American Falls Dam.

The stockholders at Tuesday's meeting will also hear local and financial reports on the canal company, according to Olmstead.

He said financially, rising costs had created a deficit in costs of operating and maintaining the canal last year.

As a result the company has boosted its annual operation and maintenance assessment from last year's $3.50 to a higher $4.50 per share of water for the 1979 irrigation season to help defray rising wage and equipment costs for maintaining the canal system.

"With the high inflation percentage and the raise in wages for crews, it was kind of dipping into our budget a little so we decided to raise it," canal company manager Clifford Montgomery explained.

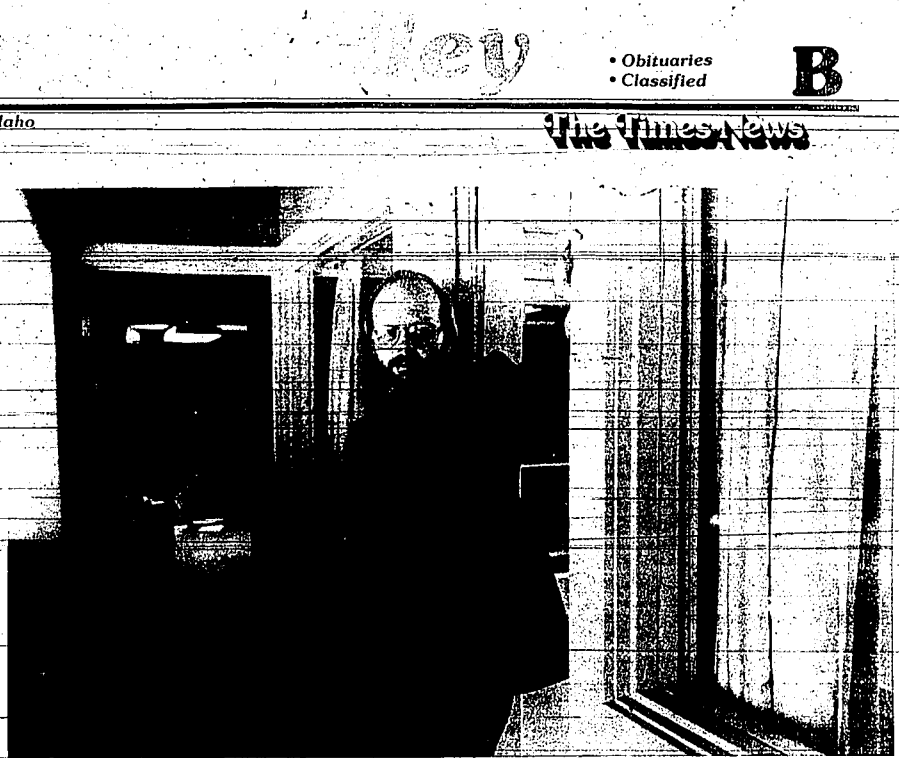

Costs for equipment — essential to canal work have risen dramatically in recent years, according to Montgomery.

He said a new backhoe purchased by the canal company this year cost about $20,000 compared to about $15,000 four years ago for the same piece of equipment.

He said until recent years the canal company has budgeted about $32,000 for new equipment.

"I imagine if we go ahead and approve all the equipment we need this year, it could cost $70,000 to $75,000," Montgomery added.

Spread over the 202,000 total shares of water in the canal company, the increase in assessment will generate $202,000 of new revenue to help wipe out last year's deficit and pay the tab for canal work during the coming year.

Center boosts teacher skills

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Teacher Center for southeastern Idaho is opening in Twin Falls with Dr. Bedford "Buck" Boston as director.

Officially known as the Southeast Idaho Teacher Center Consortium, the project is basically a cooperative program utilizing all aspects of the educational community to help teachers do a better job.

Dr. Boston has been in Twin Falls the past few weeks arranging for office space which has been donated by the College of Southern Idaho in the CSI vo-tech facility on Kimberly Road.

He stressed that the center, which is funded by a $97,611 three-year grant from the U.S. Office of Education, is not an experimental program.

Instead it is a proven concept of helping teachers improve their skills, by having the center staff serve as "brokers" to provide resources, such as experienced teachers helping other teachers, available right in the area.

It has been found that having outside experts come in and give teachers "injections" is not really met, the teachers' in-service needs, the director said.

Throughout the past few decades wherever Teacher Centers have operated, it has proven much more effective to first let teachers themselves decide what resources they need and then try to match those needs through the "brokerage" process, Boston said.

This could be as simple as one experienced teacher going into a classroom to demonstrate her proven skills for a younger colleague who feels the need of help in teaching one particular subject, Boston said, or tapping into the most advanced media skills available in the community.

The center in Twin Falls will not be a place where people go, he stressed, although this concept has been utilized in some areas.

Rather the new director and the three field agents, he will hire, "to complete the staff will use all possible communication methods to work individually with teachers in each of the districts to learn what they consider they need to do a better job.

The conviction spread to the U.S. that neither universities nor local or state administrators were adequately providing "organization resources — money, materials or whatever was needed for staff development," Boston said.

Gradually both universities and educators on state and federal levels and on north to include 53 school districts, Twin Falls was chosen for the headquarters because of the cooperation of Dr. James Taylor and Dr. Roy Stravener of CSI in providing office space.

The federal grant can be spent only for staffing and communication costs.

Since the center's program is to "in essence help each local school district with its own staff development," Boston is confident that most of the districts will decide to participate since no outlay of money is needed.

Implementation details such as releasing a teacher to help in other classrooms, are among the "brokerage" aspects on which the center staff will concentrate.

Teacher centers began some 50 years ago in England when teachers would gather in homes or garages after school to share ideas, plan curriculum and generally help and encourage one another.

The conviction spread to the U.S. that neither universities nor local or state administrators were adequately providing "organization resources — money, materials or whatever was needed for staff development," Boston said.

Gradually both universities and educators on state and federal levels became involved. In 1975 the U.S. Office of Education began to support the program.

As administrators realized the concept is "non threatening," more centers have developed throughout the East and California in the past decade, Boston said.

He launched a center similar to what is planned for Southeastern Idaho in Cedar Knolls, N.J. in 1976.

Boston said the "three field agents, known in educational jargon as "planning assistants" will be hired for each of the Idaho Education Department's regional districts 1, 5 and 6.

These individuals who must be teachers will try to develop their communication to individual teachers through a network of one teacher in each building.

Boston was hired by the Southeast Idaho Teacher Center Consortium board, launched in 1977 by Dr. Herbert L. Smith, then Idaho State University teacher corps director and a former Twin Falls High School teacher.

The policy board, which wrote the grant, includes 11 teachers, 3 representatives from higher education, 3 trustees, 3 community representatives and one superintendent.

Twin Falls man given grant to produce films

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls film maker Randall Morgan has been given a $20,000 grant to produce 10 short instructional films on soil conservation practices for irrigators and farmers.

Each film will be five to 10 minutes long, according to Morgan, and will be available to county agents throughout the area for instruction in soil conservation methods.

Much of the content of the films will come from extra film shot by Morgan in producing a 23-minute film on solutions to river pollution caused by irrigation.

The longer film, entitled "Hold This Land," was produced by Morgan in cooperation with Dr. David L. Carter and was narrated by Robert Redford.

Three of the 10 films are scheduled to be completed by the end of this month, Morgan said, and the rest will be finished a year from now.

The Environmental Protection Agency awarded the grants for both the long and short films.

Morgan is also completing work on a film, entitled "Twin Falls County, A.D. 2002," which should be ready for air about a month, Morgan said. The film deals with the effects of growth on all areas of the county.

Public meetings will be held in communities of the county so residents can view the film.

Those meeting dates will be set when the final version of the film is completed.

Two injured in accident

TWIN FALLS — Two drivers were treated for injuries and two vehicles demolished in one of about a dozen traffic accidents in Twin Falls Friday.

Kirk Harshbarger, 39, of Twin Falls was hospitalized overnight Friday, and the other driver, John J. Podyboy, 65, of Twin Falls was treated for minor injuries and released.

City police said Harshbarger was traveling west on Minidoka Avenue and Podyboy was turning left from Shoshone Street South onto Minidoka Avenue.

Police said as Harshbarger rounded a curve on Minidoka, his vehicle crossed the center line of the street, and he crashed head-on into the Podyboy vehicle.

The accident occurred Friday at 10:50 p.m.

City police said the rash of traffic accidents, which began Thursday with snow-created icy and slick streets was continuing Saturday.

Although many of the streets were bare, a number of intersections are still icy. Officers said motorists traveling on the bare traffic lanes are not anticipating icy intersections as they leave the main streets, and numerous accidents have occurred, most of them,

Shop, home lost to fire

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff's officers in Twin Falls County are continuing their investigation of a fire early Thursday morning that destroyed a shop and home on the Leonard Martin farm southwest of Twin Falls.

Officers said the fire was reported at 4:02 a.m. Thursday, and by the time Fire Department men and equipment arrived, both buildings were in flames.

Martin told officers he had accidentally cut a hole in his gasoline tank which may have caused the fire in the shop. It then jumped to the house, he said. The house is located about 20 feet from the shop.

Mrs. Martin was hospitalized with smoke inhalation and released Saturday.

Barn destroyed by fire

TWIN FALLS — A small barn on the Larry Featherston property on Falls Ave. E. was destroyed by fire early Saturday.

Sheriff's officers reported the fire call was received at 10:10 a.m., but engines from the Kimberly and Filer Fire Departments were unable to "save" the building. The "bar" structure was engulfed in flames when the firefighters arrived.

Featherston told officers he had a heating lamp in the building for the livestock, and somehow the valves pulled the cord down, letting the hot light rest in straw, and causing the fire.

He said all of the animals escaped the fire, and it was confined to the barn.

Iranian unrest prompts couple's trip to Idaho

KING HILL — An American couple employed by Morrison-Knudsen, who left Iran before Christmas because of the recent unrest over the shah's human rights policies, is back in Boise.

Wayne Sugg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Sugg, his wife Velma and their two children spent the New Year's holiday with his parents after returning to the U.S. the day after Christmas.

The couple spent part of the holidays vacationing in Greece and Holland, where they visited relatives, after leaving Iran's riot-plagued capital of Tehran shortly before Christmas.

The two had worked for M-K's Tehran office since last June. They reported there still are M-K employees in Tehran's northern section. The riot occurred mainly in the southern part of the capital of 3.5 million people.

M-K, one of 300 American firms affected by the unrest, has numerous projects south of the capital, building dams, bridges, highways, transmission lines and nuclear plants.

After leaving Tehran, the younger Sugg called his parents from Greece to let them know they were safe.

Then, after several days touring Athens, the couple, with daughter Teri and son Scott, traveled through the Greek islands, visited relatives in Holland; stopped in England and flew over the North Pole en route to Seattle and Boise.

Mrs. Hugh Sugg, Wayne's mother, told the Times-News her son and daughter-in-law were told not to speak of the recent problems in Iran because they still have friends in the country.

State jail inspector proposed

TWIN FALLS - County commissioners, sheriffs and other elected officials in the Magic Valley area will meet in the coming week, primarily to discuss the proposed naming of a state jail inspector. Merl E. Leonard, chairman of the Twin Falls county commissioners, said at the time the Twin Falls commissioners were visited by a committee set up to study facilities, it was made clear this county, and Leonard said, and other counties, favor continuing the present jail inspection program. "Apparently they are planning to go ahead and establish a state jail inspection department with staff and other taxpayer expense. We think the county commissioners in the various counties can adequately inspect their own jail facilities," Leonard said. Leonard said he felt the purpose of the study committee was to set up equal jail standards on a statewide basis and the creation of a state jail inspection department was not a definite plan.

East rips West with record-breaking show

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Russell Davis of Big Ten co-champion Michigan scored a record six touchdowns Saturday in a dazzling performance to lead the East to a 56-17 romp in the annual Shrine East-West game.

The 6-foot-2, 220-pound running back rushed for 200 yards in 27 carries and was the standout offensive performer in the game, scattering many of 1979's best college players.

The East, down 17-7 at the half, scored seven times in the second half, five of the touchdowns coming on turnovers, to turn the game into a rout.

Davis' six TDs were the most scored by a player in the Shrine game in 30 years. The 56 points set another record, and Dave Jacobs of Syracuse added a third mark with eight extra points.

The five East turnover touchdowns were set up on three pass interceptions and two fumble recoveries. Don Besallieu of Georgia Tech had an interception and a fumble recovery to lead the East defense, which shut down the West in the second half.

With Steve Dils of Stanford and Mike Moroski of California-Davis completing 14 passes for 156 yards, the West dominated the first half and was on its way to its fourth straight victory.

But the game was turned around after the intermission as Davis, who scored the East's only first-half touchdown on a 1-yard run, ran wild.

His second TD came on a one-yard smash, and he followed with scoring runs of 14, 3, 19 and 2 yards.

Steve Atkins of Maryland accounted for the other two East touchdowns on runs of 5 and 4 yards while the West scored on a 1-yard pass from Dils to Don Warren of San Diego State, a 17-yard run by Ralph DeLoach of California after a fumble recovery and a 49-yard field goal by Kevin Shea of St. Mary's.

East scores Hula win

HONOLULU (UPI) — Rick Leach of Michigan hit Scott Filkeke of Penn State with a 14-yard touchdown pass with 20 seconds left Saturday as the East overcame a 24-0 deficit and fought back for a 29-24 victory over the West in the Hula Bowl.

Leach, who passed for touchdown passes and 185 yards, and East running back Ted Brown of North Carolina State were named co-winners of the offensive player award. East linebacker Tom Cousineau of Ohio State was named defensive player of the game.

Brown rushed for 147 yards on 11 carries, and sparked the East with a 74-yard TD run with 34 seconds to go in the third quarter. Until then the East trailed 24-0.

The West registered 10 points from Texas kicker Russ Erdleben, who booted field goals of 38, 22 and 24 yards as well as one extra point.

U.S. routs Canadian all-stars

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Dave Marler of Mississippi State passed for three touchdowns — two of them to Vanderbilt's Martin Cox — to lead the United States to a 34-14 victory over Canada Saturday in the second annual Can-Am Bowl football game.

Marler hit the elusive Cox with a 34-yard touchdown throw in the second period and connected with him in the third period for a 36-yard touchdown.

Marler's other touchdown pass was for seven yards in the first period to Tony Stephens of Florida.

The U.S. added another touchdown in the third period when Ira Matthews of Wisconsin went 58 yards on a punt return. The final score came on a nine-yard touchdown pass from Dave Rader of Tulsa to Gregg Laetsch of Furman on the first play of the final period.

Canada scored in the first period when Jamie Bone of Western Ontario passed 14 yards to fullback Jim Reid of Wilfrid Laurier, and added a second touchdown late in the final period on a one-yard plunge by Bone.

The second touchdown was set up by back-to-back pass interference calls against the Americans.

Canadians go one-two in downhill

MORZINE, France (UPI) — Canada's Ken Read won the men's World Cup downhill Saturday to notch his second victory of the season and lead Canada to its first 1-2 World Cup sweep in four years.

Read edged teammate Steve Podhorski by less than a half second and Italy's Herbert Plank finished third.

The victory was tainted by the fact the Italian team, which which frequently protests results on technical grounds, staged an official protest that Read was wearing "non-regulation" clothes.

Unlike other competitors, Read did not have his trousers passed and marked by the organizers. World Cup officials must approve the suits to make certain they give sufficient protection to competitors and now must have Read's clothes tested in Berne, Switzerland, to ensure his trousers were sufficiently porous.

Depositions taken in Fairbanks case

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — University of Colorado athletic director Eddie Crowder was in Boston Saturday for depositions in the suit filed against him and the university by the New England Patriots, who are trying to keep coach Chuck Fairbanks from breaking his contract.

CU President Roland Rautenstraus said Crowder, his attorney Charles Drega and university counsel Richard Thayer flew to Boston Friday to file depositions in the suit.

Federal District Judge David Mazonne issued a temporary restraining order last Tuesday preventing CU from signing Fairbanks to a contract as coach. He has scheduled a hearing Friday on a permanent injunction.

Brega, who represents Crowder in the case, has said he hopes the suit can be settled out of court. Brega also represents Denver Gilmann, a CU booster Bill Vickers, who also is a defendant in the Patriots' suit. Crowder announced nearly three weeks ago that Fairbanks, who has four years remaining on a contract with the Patriots, would be the university's new football coach. Fairbanks initially was suspended by the New England owners, but then was allowed to return to coach during the playoffs.

Two days after the Patriots lost in the AFC playoffs to Houston, New England filed the suit in federal court. "We want to get this thing over with as quickly as possible," Brega said. "The temporary restraining order is not important because one is usually granted in a case like this."

"But if we win the hearing on the 14th, that will be a significant factor because that decision will have a large part to do with how the matter is finally resolved."

Deacons upset Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Wake Forest guards Frank Johnson and Mark Dale, working from a spread offense, combined for 41 points Saturday to lead the Deacons to a 66-60 Atlantic Coast Conference upset of 20th-ranked Maryland. Johnson scored 23 points and Dale 18 as the Deacons, 7-5, 1-1, ended the Terrapins' eight-game win streak. Albert King topped Maryland, 10-3, 1-1, with 20 points.

offense at the start of the game and stayed in it when ahead or with the score tied. The Deacons went ahead 44-21 with just under seven minutes left in the first half.

With Johnson and Dale handling the ball much of the time, Wake Forest built a 50-38 lead with 10 minutes to play.

Maryland closed the gap to 58-52 with five minutes to play but the Deacons sank 8 of 10 free throws in the final minutes to wrap up the win.

Michigan St. downs Minnesota

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Top-ranked Michigan State, paced by Ron Charles with a career-high 19 points, subdued stubborn Minnesota 69-62 Saturday in a regionally televised Big Ten basketball game. The Spartans, winners of their first two conference games and nine of 10 for the season, were trailing 42-29 early in the second half before hitting a 21-6 scoring streak. Terry Donnelly's jump shot with 10:35 left put MSU ahead 50-48.

Charles, a junior forward, slammed home a dunk shot a few minutes later to give the Spartans a 56-50 lead and they held off the Gophers the rest of the way.

Notre Dame beats Villanova

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Sophomore Kelly Tripucka scored a career-high 28 points Saturday to lead second-ranked Notre Dame to a 75-64 victory over Villanova. Tripucka, whose final total was high for a Notre Dame player this season, scored 15 of his points in the second half as the Fighting Irish, 6-1, boosted a 30-22 halftime lead by as much as 17 points.

The Wildcats, 7-6, held their last lead of the game at 10-8 early in the first half before Tripucka and Rich Brannan combined for 18 points to build the eight-point halftime advantage.

Tech surprises Texas

LUBBOCK, Texas (UPI) — Kent Williams, Ben Hill and Jeff Taylor took turns getting hot in the second half Saturday and sent Texas Tech rolling to a surprisingly easy 92-74 drubbing of the Texas Longhorns. It was the opening conference game of the year for Tech, which had compiled an 8-2 interconference record and Texas fell to 1-1 in league play after beating TCU in its conference opener Thursday night.

Tech overcame an early five-point deficit and moved away to a 41-35 halftime advantage and dominated play early in the second half.

Iowa stuns Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Ronnie Lester scored 17 of his 27 points in a stunning second half comeback Saturday to lead unranked Iowa to an 85-79 Big Ten upset of 12th-ranked Michigan. The Wolverines led at the half 44-38 and carried a lead through much of the second half. But a gradual Iowa rally was capped when Steve Walle's lay-up with 6:59 left put the Hawkeyes ahead 67-66.

With about four minutes to go and leading 71-66, Iowa started its decay. The strategy paid off as the Wolverines repeatedly committed fouls in their frantic attempt to pull even. Lester quarterbowed the stall and had five points during that period from free throws. Forwards Mike McGee and Alan Hardy paced Michigan with 18 points each. The Wolverine lost put their record at 7-3 for the season and 1-1 in the Big Ten. Iowa is 9-2 overall and unbeaten in its first two conference games.

LSU shocks Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — DeWayne Scates scored 25 points Saturday to lead sixth-ranked LSU to a 93-89 Southeastern Conference victory over eighth-ranked Kentucky.

Scates got scoring support from Ethan Martin with 19 points, Al Green 15 and Ernest Brown 14. Kentucky, now 5-4 overall and 0-2 in the conference, was led by reserve Dwight Anderson with 16 points.

Kentucky led by as many as eight points, 60-52, with 15 minutes remaining in the game after the Wildcats came from a 45-41 advantage at the intermission.

LSU, now 10-0 overall, then scored the next 12 points to take a 64-60 lead and never trailed again before 23,272 at Rupp Arena.

The lead changed hands six times and the game was tied three times in the first half.

The victory was the Tigers' first ever against the Wildcats in 21 games between the two teams in Lexington.

Illinois wins 14th ih row

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Sophomore forward Mark Smith scored 16 points Saturday to lead a tough Illinois defense and the University of Illinois to a 74-58 Big Ten victory over Northwestern.

The Illini defense, which leads the nation in defensive field goal percentage, held Northwestern in the first half to only 10 of 30 from the field in taking a 31-23 halftime lead.

The victory was the third-ranked Illini's 14th straight this season and second road victory in a row in the conference. Illinois' 14 victories is one more than the team had all of last season.

Illinois grabbed a 27-14 lead with 7:23 left in the first half after hitting 10 of its first 14 shots from the field.

Illinois broke the game open midway in the second half as Smith limited a 16-2 scoring spurt to give Illinois a 66-41 lead with 4 minutes remaining. Rob Judson added 12 for Illinois.

Northwestern, which fell to 4-7 overall and 0-2 in the Big Ten, was led by Mike Campbell with 10 points.

Americans triumph

LONDON (UPI) — Americans John McEnroe and Peter Fleming, aided off a spirited comeback by Britain's Mark Cox and David Lloyd Saturday reach the final of the $200,000 WCT World Doubles tennis championships.

The U.S. pair, looking as though they would walk away with the match, was forced to go the full distance before gaining a 6-3, 6-7, 6-3 victory in a tense one hour, 42 minute semifinals.

NASCAR to start

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Cale Yarborough, the No. 1 stock car driver in the world the past three seasons, and Richard Petty, who used to be No. 1, will be two of the men to beat next today when the NASCAR Grand National schedule gets under way.

The $155,000 Winston Western 500 around Riverside's 2.6-mile, eight-turn road course is the first of 31 NASCAR events in 1979.

Yarborough will be at the wheel of his Junior Johnson Oldsmobile to begin his campaign for an unprecedented fourth straight Grand National championship.

Navratiilova in semis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova of Mission Hills, Calif., ousted fourth-seeded Australian Dianne Fromholtz, for a 6-4, 6-3 semifinal victory Saturday in the $125,000 Washington stop on the women's pro tour.

The victory advanced Navratilova, 22, the defending champion, to today's championship singles match against the winner of Saturday's other match between 16-year-old Tracy Austin, seeded second, from Rolling Hills, Calif., and unseeded South African Ilana Kloss.

Nancy Lopez marries

MEDFORD LAKES, N.J. (UPI) — Golfer Nancy Lopez, who had the greatest single season in the history of the LPGA last year, was married to Tim Melton, a Harrisburg, Pa., sportscaster Saturday, her 22nd birthday.

Lopez, whose record-breaking year saw her become the first woman golfer to win over $200,000, was visibly nervous as she climbed out of a 1935 maroon Rolls Royce with her father, Domingo, at the small Protestant Community Church.

New Hall of Famers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Carmen Salvo of Chicago, Billy Golembiewski of Detroit and Glenn Allison of Los Angeles have been elected to the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame.

The selections marked the first time since the initial election in 1941 that three players were elected on a national ballot, ABC officials said Saturday. The three men will be inducted in ceremonies at Tampa, Fla., April 26.

Salvo, 45, led the balloting of the nation's sportswriters, broadcasters and Hall members with 137 votes. Golembiewski, 49, got 115 votes while Allison, 48, was third with 110.

A total of 104 votes are required for election, officials said.

Geiberger scores victory in Monterey golf event

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — Al Geiberger, who shot a closing round of 6-under-par 65 at the Laguna Seca Golf Ranch course, finished the 72-hole event in a tie at 276 with former touring pro George Bayer, who also had a 65, and amateur Bobby Clampett of Carmel, Calif.

Clampett, the California amateur champion last year, closed with a 67.

The Bobcats scored 165 points in the day-long event while Minico claimed second at 143. Twin Falls No. 1 had 81, followed by Jerome 64, Twin Falls No. 232, Buhl 42 and Gooding 28½.

The tournament was sponsored by the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club, under direction of President Steve Berg, and provided all the ribbons, trophies and clerking help in addition to financial underwriting.

107 pounds — Melchon Burley, over Whitehead, Burley, third fourth, Yonida, Burley, over Baifer, Gooding.

Tigers register second straight

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers used a six-point play midway through the second quarter to build an insurmountable lead in defeating the Gooding Senators 59-48 Saturday night.

It was the second straight win for the Tigers after an all-losing December. The game was filled with scoring in the first half and scoring droughts in the third quarter. Gooding never did fully recover its scoring touch and was unable to challenge after halftime.

Jerome bounced out to a 10-point lead early in the game with Gooding closing within one before the period ended. Early in the second quarter Gooding stayed hot on the heels of the Tigers. But with Jerome leading 18-16, Gooding was hit with a pair of technical fouls. Jerome converted all four free throws and then scored after the ensuing inbounds pass.

From then on Jerome always had at least a five-point lead.

In the third quarter Jerome managed just six points while Gooding had only five. The Tigers started warming up again in the final period and with 5:21 moved ahead by 14 on a shot by Mark Kerley. Graves and Scanlon replied for Gooding and the Senators then went into a press that forced four straight turnovers. But Gooding couldn't capitalize on those extra possessions and two straight buckets by Kerley, the last with 2:18 remaining, pushed Jerome ahead by nine points and the Tigers coasted in.

Glenns Ferry 75, Wendell 31

WENDELL — The Glenns Ferry Plots won their Canyon Conference record, to 3-0 Saturday night with a surprisingly lopsided 75-31 decision over the ice cold Wendell Trojans.

Wendell really was never able to give Glenns Ferry much of a tussle. In the early going Glenns Ferry leaped ahead and the route started with an Eric Fulton follow shot late in the period. At that point Glenns Ferry went up 18-9 and coasted home.

Wendell	10	10	0	15	10	10	10	31
Glenns Ferry	23	15	2	25	15	15	20	75

Blackfoot 55, Burley 54

BURLEY — The Burley Bobcats scored the highly-regarded Blackfoot Broncos, but fell just short Saturday night in dropping a 55-54 decision in the Cross State Conference.

The shorter Bobcats had a chance to pull the game out with about three minutes left but then missed a couple of close-in shots off. Coach Ron Gillet's four-corner to seal its doom: "Never more than four points separated the teams as Burley hustled the boards well and managed to hold a two-takedown advantage."

Wood River 52, Filer Wildcats 32

FILER — The Wood River Wolverines took the ball inside and controlled the boards Saturday night in collecting a 52-32 decision over the Filer Wildcats.

Wood River had three men in double scoring figures, headed by Durham with 15 points, one more than guard Kelly Aldinger.

Filer was playing without two usual starters, lost for disciplinary reasons. Coach Wayne Humphreys said it hadn't been finally determined whether the two starters, both juniors, would be returning to the team.

Filer had a poor shooting night and its six-point second period marked the first time this year the Wildcats hadn't scored in double figures.

Dietrich 59, Richfield 54

DIETRICH — The Dietrich Blue Devils pulled out a 59-54 overtime win over the Richfield Tigers Saturday night on the strength of the Tigers' foul problems.

Dietrich's Marc Perron's clutch steal and basket with seconds in the game forced the overtime and it was then that Richfield's floor leader, Vic Naylor, was benched with his fifth foul.

With the loss of Naylor, the game turned to Dietrich.

Dietrich	18	18	3	28	18	18	23	59

Kimberly 57, Valley 42

EDEN-HAZELTON — The Kimberly Bulldogs clamped a smothering man defense on the Valley Vikings in the first and third quarters Saturday night and returned home with a 57-42 decision.

It was the first Canyon Conference win for Kimberly after two losses and the Bulldog defense drew praise from losing Coach Bill Mitchell.

Declo 48, Shoshone 45

SHOSHONE — The Declo Hornets hit five of 10 foul shots in overtime to squeeze out a 48-45 win over the Shoshone Indians.

Declo is 8-1 on the season and rated number one in state A-3 polls.

Bliss 50, Carey 42

CAREY — Bliss ran up a nine-point first half lead and went on to score a 50-42 victory over Carey Saturday night.

SAFEWAY BINGO 2000

Two ways to Win.
New game cards.
Scratch & Match all new tickets.

Win up to $2,000 instantly! Over 105,000 cash prizes available!

OFFICIAL RULES

SERIES 88-82

1. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. Find a Free INSTANT BINGO ticket and collect a Free INSTANT BINGO card on the back of participating Safeway Stores - one ticket per adult (18 years or older) per store.
2. NOT TO PLAY - All collector cards are identical.
3. INSTANT WIN - Use edge of coin to gently scratch off the more ends and bingo boxes on the face of the ticket, to reveal the prize available and four (4) bingo numbers. Compare your four bingo numbers to numbers on the bingo grid. If your numbers match a complete straight row of four boxes on the grid, (either horizontal, vertical, or diagonal) you win amount shown in the prize circle.
4. COLLECT & WIN - Each ticket has two perforated bingo pieces at the bottom. Scratch on the silver squares to reveal bingo numbers. Separate the perforated piece from the matching bingo number spaces on the other side of the perforated card, using the special slit cut into card to reveal the piece. Collect bingo numbers to properly complete any straight row of four boxes, (either horizontal, vertical, or diagonal) and win the amount shown for that bingo grid.

NOTE: No pieces needed in spaces marked free in other game. Free spaces are not transferable. PRIZE IS LIMITED TO AMOUNT SHOWN ON COLLECTOR CARD. RECALL: 8% OF THE NUMBER OF ROWS COMPLETED.

3. PRIZE CLAIM - Collectible card with completed row card with completed row to Store Manager or authorized personnel for verification. All submitted game tickets and collector cards, pieces should be included on the back side, in the presence of store personnel. Prizes of $100 and over will be paid by check.

4. Only materials marked Series-88-82 may be used for this promotion and only when legitimately obtained from authorized personnel at participating stores.

5. We reserve the right to reject and void any promotion materials containing printing of other errors.

6. Promotion materials will be void if illegible, altered, mutilated, forged, tampered with in any way, not obtained legitimately, whose prohibited by law, or IF ANY PORTION OF WORD IS REMOVED or spot is exposed.

7. All materials submitted for verification become the property of Safeway Stores, Inc. The liability for prize claim is the responsibility of the prize winners.

8. Free supplies are available at 60 Safeway stores located in Idaho (19), Montana (20), Nevada (2), Oregon (1), and Wyoming (6). Employees of Safeway Stores, Inc. and its advertising agencies, its game suppliers, and members of their immediate household families are not eligible to play.

9. This promotion is scheduled to end on April 8, 1979. It will officially end on the date when the last ticket is printed or when a newspaper announcement of promotion termination will be made. All prizes must be claimed within seven days after announcement or they are forfeited.

10. This promotion may be reprinted when this series ends.

Goldwater foresaw Taiwan treaty repeal

By JAMES KILPATRICK
WASHINGTON — On May 10, 1978, six months before President Carter made his announcement on relations with China, Sen. Barry Goldwater published a monograph in which he anticipated precisely what the president would attempt to do. Goldwater's essay is must reading now.

That Mr. Carter would undertake to abrogate our 1954 treaty with Taiwan on his own presidential say-so. The Goldwater monograph, published under auspices of the Heritage Foundation, convincingly demolishes Mr. Carter's bold bid to arrogate a treaty-breaking power to himself alone.

Yes, it appears, presidents occasionally have announced the abrogation of treaties — but only under circumstances that do not apply in the matter of Taiwan. In the past 50 years, nine such terminations have been undertaken by the White House. Two of the announcements were withdrawn. The remaining seven involved instances in which a treaty had been patently breached, or changed circumstances made implementation no longer possible, or new law had intervened.

Goldwater cites chapter and verse. By way of example, Roosevelt in 1939 announced our withdrawal from the London Naval Treaty of 1936. The reason was self-evident: Europe was in a state of war and the treaty had canceled itself.

At about the same time, Roosevelt notified Japan of our intent to terminate the Commercial Treaty of 1911. Again, the circumstances were compelling. We were bound under a later Nine Power Agreement to respect the territorial integrity of China.

In 1962, President Kennedy proclaimed termination of a 1902 commercial convention with Cuba, but his action provides no precedent for Mr. Carter and Taiwan. Kennedy had clear authority for his action under three separate acts of Congress.

From the very beginning of the Republic, dating back to John Adams' day, abrogation of a formal treaty has required congressional sanction. The rule is consistent with the entire structure of constitutional government. A president cannot make a treaty by himself; he has to have the consent of the Senate. It follows inexorably from this requirement that a president cannot unmake a treaty by himself, either. He has to have the consent of the Senate — or, as precedents demonstrate, the consent of the Congress as a whole.

Is it supposed that a president, by his own dictatorial fiat, could repeal a statute? Could a president, for example, simply announce one morning that he had abolished the income tax, or sold off a national park, or rewritten the laws on the licensing of drugs? Plainly not. But treaties stand equally with the Constitution itself and the acts of Congress as the supreme law of the land.

Other presidents have understood this. In 1835, President Pierce wanted to suspend a commercial treaty with Denmark. He first asked and received the consent of the Senate. In 1919, President Grant proposed to suspend a treaty of commerce and navigation with Belgium. He got his permission from the Senate. Two years later, Grant was concerned about a treaty of extradition with Great Britain. "It is for the wisdom of Congress to determine whether the article... is to be any longer regarded as obligatory on the Government of the United States."

Goldwater cites other precedents involving Presidents Hayes, McKinley, Taft, Wilson and Harding. He concludes flatly that "no president acting alone can abrogate, or give notice of the intention to abrogate, our existing treaties with the government of Taiwan. If the 1954 treaty is to be abandoned, it can only be done with the approval of two-thirds of the Senate or a majority of both houses."

One race nobody wins

LONG BEACH, Calif. — The life of a Grand Prix racer is a good one. His is one of the world's most glamorous sports. He competes in elegant settings, before crowds of sophisticated and adoring fans. Women follow him from country to country. Men envy him.

There are hundreds of professional football players in the world; hundreds of professional baseball players. But in all the world, there are only 25 or 30 men who can drive a Formula One race car effectively; eight or ten who can win a Grand Prix race.

Gunnar Nilsson was one of those men. He always thought he might die inside a race car; he wasn't prepared to die the way he did.

During one race at Long Beach, Nilsson was involved in a crash while driving at 160 miles per hour. "He had injured his neck," Pook said. "And when he got back from the hospital, he said, 'It's not such a bad idea, jolting your neck in California. You should have seen the two nurses in the emergency room. I'm thinking of having a crash again.'"

Nilsson was due to visit Pook a year ago, when he had to cancel at the last minute. He had injured himself in a race, or so he thought; he assumed that his seat belts had pinched him too tightly and had caused a problem in his groin.

He had a doctor check it out. It was no groin injury. It was cancer.

Doctors in Europe operated, and then the chemotherapy treatments began. Gunnar Nilsson's weight dropped from 160 to 125. He had to stop racing.

Grand Prix race, and he said to Pook, "See, I'm beating it. Get my room ready. I'm coming to see you in California."

He never made it. He went back into the hospital in October. A mutual friend called Pook, and said, "It's bad with Gunnar. They're slanting the doses of chemotherapy into him as hard as they can, and it's not getting any better."

And then, one night, the phone rang at Christopher Pook's home in California.

It was Gunnar Nilsson, calling from his Charing Cross Hospital bed in London.

"I'm having a pretty tough time, Chris," Nilsson said.

Nilsson said he had a favor he wanted to ask Pook.

"I've set this fund up," he said. "We've got to beat this monster. Three-fourths of the cancer patients I see here in the hospital are children. I want to do something for them. I want this fund to buy equipment for the hospital. I want to leave something. I'm asking you to head up the drive in North America."

Pook said that of course he would do it. And then Nilsson said:

"Chris, I have something to tell you. It's all over. It's too bad. I've given up the fight. We've had some fun, some good days. But it's over. Take care, old boy."

Pook thought: You can prepare yourself for a friend to die in a race. You can prepare yourself for that, and so you try not to get too close to a racer, because you know it. It's a cruel business. But you can't prepare yourself for friend to die like this.

He didn't have to think about it long. The next day the news moved on the wires.

Gunnar Nilsson, Grand Prix driver, was dead in London. He was 29.

Coyote ranches next for Idaho?

Here's a little fact for Ripley's believe it or not:

At current market prices, coyotes are worth more than sheep in Idaho.

That's right.

Coyote pelts used for fur coats now bring about $70 apiece.

A 100-pound lamb at the close of trading at the Idaho Falls feedlots Friday brought only $61 to $63.

Maybe Idaho sheepmen are missing a good bet.

Rather than press for more coyote control on the range, perhaps they should kill their sheep and start developing coyoto herds.

Think of it. The woolgrower could butcher his sheep and feed lambchops to young coyote pups.

Raising a coyote probably would cost less than raising a lamb and few critics will venture into the herd to kill the coyote young.

When the dogs mature, they could be skinned and the pelts sent to furriers for coats. In the fashion centers of the world it appears coyoto coats bring more money than wool shirts, anyway.

The coyote carcasses would then be sent to dog food factories for an extra few dollars.

Sheepmen could buy winter homes in Arizona and an entire new industry would be born.

Crazy, right?

But is it any crazier than the current market anomaly where a coyote is worth more than a sheep?

KART a big success in Ketchum

The weather may be sub-zero in Ketchum these days but the hearts of townspeople and tourists alike should be warmed by one success of the winter.

That is the Ketchum Area Rapid Transit system, or KART.

A month old, the Ketchum free-bus transportation system already looks like a sure winner.

From Elkhorn to downtown Ketchum and on to Warm Springs, the KART buses roll, taking skiers to the mountain and resort workers to and from jobs.

The only real complaint voiced against KART so far concerns the lack of service to Hailey and the Lower Wood River Valley.

In time, the bus system should expand south even if a toll is charged.

But congratulations, KART, for an imaginative way to help solve the transportation problems in Ketchum.

ERA also helped men gain rights

Although the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution continues to face an uphill ratification struggle, a new federal study indicates that similar amendments to state constitutions are having a positive effect in the 14 states that have them.

The report by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights suggests that white women are the primary beneficiaries of state ERAs, men also gained some new rights.

A number of ERA states, for instance, have now "sex-neutralized" their allocation of workmen's compensation benefits. These are used to be awarded to survivors or dependents of a male worker but not to survivors or dependents of a female worker unless they could prove they were reliant upon her income. Now there's one rule for all.

Despite the progress in the states with their own ERAs, the Civil Rights Commission still sees a national amendment as crucial. "Although reform of the laws is possible on a state-by-state basis, such a route is both plodding and haphazard," the commission said.

California: special effects not worth admission price

CALIFORNIA NOTES — Spending the holidays in California compares to seeing a bad disaster movie.

After the show, you feel as though the special effects weren't quite worth the price of admission.

California shows it all. High voltage, quick change entertainment beckons at every freeway exit.

Coming over Donner Pass from Reno you can smell California, a sweet, perfumed fragrance of decadence at $100 an ounce.

California days begin with the rev of 10,000 Jaguar engines whining out of the foothills, transporting pressed bodies to the high-tech industrial parks.

Cars run bumper-to-bumper, the rich coming down from the hills into the haze, the not-so-rich coming up from the valleys, ignoring the haze as they fiddle with the dials of their FM radios.

Nothing is left to one's imagination in California. If you can think of it, somebody will manufacture it and sell it. Be sure we won't run short of new marvels. Californians all work on computers, software and electronics, passionately pushing us toward the 21st century before the light changes.

After work come the California nights.

Punk rockers everywhere. Boys work at gas stations during the day but turn into sleaze celebs at sundown. Skinny ties around their necks, crazy-dropped hair on their heads, then punk out or rock on.

Rock on, California, to the red raw beat of the discs, in your repositories of the sleek and sassy.

Senses overflow in California.

Eyes burn at noon, armpits sweat at afternoon tennis, stomachs burn at late evening repast.

People eat, not to survive, but for the sake of their salivary glands.

A perfect soufflé, a Pinot Chardonnay, a fitting end to a California day.

California living means not standing still. The days run by. People jog, subdivisions creep, the night sky

Ceillulte is sin, cellulose is a good food.

Look good, feel good, that's California. Nobody is a hero, but everybody can be a star. Learn Steve Martin's routine. I'm a star. I'm a star.

Check your mind in a passing store window. Check your mind with a full up of EST.

That's California. Decadence in technicolor, lush green hills topped with chocolate brown sports cars and redwood tubs.

Spots of decadence meet the girl next door with a "tiny little" mood around his neck.

California, the place where mood overruns meaning, body conquers mind and everybody lives on the pages of People magazine.

The show bares all, but the admission price is too high.

Support for reappointment of Robert Lenaghan

Editor, Times-News:
As a retired oil co. executive, it is understandable why Wm. Chandler would rather see coal hauled to Idaho via oil-powered diesel locomotives for coal plants producing electricity than to have electricity transmitted to Idaho via UHV transmission lines. However, information furnished by Pacific Power & Light, BPA, and others states that the BTU loss for each of these two types of electrical supply will be about the same. Consequently, the environmental factors involved favor the location of a power plant closer to the fuel source, and the property taxes involved should go to mitigate the ash disposal, air pollution, social problems, etc., encountered by the area involved. In addition, the 1 percent initiative will reduce the property taxes any utility would pay in Idaho.

Mr. Chandler failed to mention other states, such as Washington, allow a longer time for their PUC's to render decisions in rate cases, also the time allowed the Idaho PUC to make a decision has already been reduced two months by the legislature.

Mr. Chandler failed to mention that Idaho Power (IPCo) can purchase surplus BPA power for their summer load. In fact, IPCo during the first nine months of 1978 purchased nearly 790 million Kwh's from BPA from 3 mills to 3.5 mills per Kwh, which is cheaper than a coal plant can produce electricity. In addition, the exchange of more power between IPCo and other utilities is a possibility, especially when IPCo's partner in the Jim Bridger plants, PP&L sold 2 percent fewer Kwh's in 1977 than in 1976, thereby requiring less system generation. Therefore, the need for a 500 Mw. coal plant by IPCo is farther away than Mr. Chandler wants to admit.

This writer owns stock in 10 western utilities and these utilities are prosperous, except one which is having trouble with its nuclear plant, furthermore, only one of these utilities has a higher bonding rating than IPCo. In addition, IPCo paid higher dividends in 1978 than some Western utilities.

To blame Bob Lenaghan for troubles IPCo may or may not be having is very unfair, especially since many of IPCo's costly financial commitments, which could have affected IPCo's credit standing, were made before he became a commissioner. The Pioneer Plant decision was unanimous! Bob Lenaghan should be reappointed and confirmed again!

Respectfully,

Kidwell rapped for Symms criticism

Editor, Times-News:
Wayne Kidwell has done it again in an Associated Press interview conducted by Steve Smith, Kidwell hurled harsh and totally groundless criticism at Steve Symms with announced relish in the opportunity to oppose Symms in the Republican primary for the U.S. Senate in two years. Earlier this year Kidwell withdrew from the race for governor in an emotional press conference. After reading his recent well timed and well publicized tirade against Symms, we will have his next tantrum; only one thing is sure, he will manage to have a news reporter near by.

complete rejection of Kidwell's criticism. Perhaps Wayne has not forgotten that Symms defeated him in the 1972 primary election for Congress. As Sen. McClure said recently, Kidwell should forget past actions and look forward, not backward. Idahoans have never favored politicians who try to build their careers by trying to tear down the careers of others. If Kidwell is not confident of running on his own accomplishments, he should not run at all.

Keeping Hamblin right decision!

Editor, Times-News:
The large turnout of arena golfers for Tuesday evening's Twin Falls City Council meeting was a tribute to Twin Falls professional Don Hamblin. Council members used good judgment when they gave Hamblin the authority for maintenance of the Municipal Golf Course. The golf course advisory committee is to be commended for backing the pro and keeping a decision on a matter which would have reduced his management responsibilities. Twin Falls is fortunate to have the talents of Don and Alice Hamblin at the golf course and this fine family in our community.

Tax form shows government robbery

Editor, Times-News:
In the front page of my 1978 Federal Income Tax Form booklet there is an interesting section on "Earned Income Credit." Just one sentence at the beginning of that section reveals the true intent of our federal government. The sentence reads, "If you can take the earned income credit, you can subtract it from tax you owe or get a refund even if you had no tax withheld from your pay."

There you have it, folks: Redistribution of wealth. Socialism. The federal government is taking your tax money and giving it (and I mean giving your cash) to someone else without your permission. It can't be any clearer than that. It is robbery. I wish someone would show me where that is written, intended, or even implied in the United States Constitution.

The power to tax is the power to destroy. If there is no conspiracy in our federal government, why is this happening? How is it happening?

If the American people do not act soon, our grandchildren will never know freedom.

U.S. could help fleeing Vietnamese

Editor, Times-News:
It is a sad state of affairs this world finds itself in, this season of "good will to men" when a few boatloads of 2,700 Vietnamese refugees cannot find a country that will take them in.

How ironic! First we devastated their country through so-called "police action." Now that these people only seek the life they would have gotten had America won that conflict for them, America, nor anyone else, wants them!

As an immigrant to America myself, I can remember the translation given to me by my father, of the words written on the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty, which read in part: "Give me your tired, your poor, Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free."

The wretched refuse of your teeming shore
Send these, the homeless tempest-tost to me . . .
I would like to think that these words can still stir the hearts of Americans into helping solve the tragic problem these refugees present.

Time has come to impeach Carter

Editor, Times-News:
The time has come to impeach a President! When Mr. Carter issued his personal edict for betraying the Republic of China into the bloody and brutal hands of the Communist-Chinese, he also betrayed himself as a lack of the communist conspiracy and as an enemy to every free government on the face of the earth. His action would in fact convey the mantle of legitimacy upon the tyrants, torturers and slavery which once brought the communists into power and are still used to subjugate 500 million people on the mainland of the investigating Taiwan.

while his friends the communists are massively arming against us using our own technology.

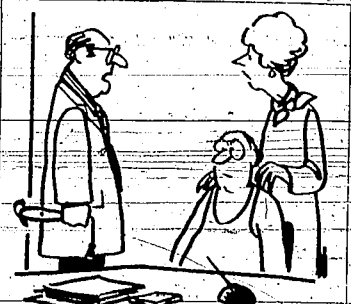

On the other hand, he has provided economic and diplomatic support to communist nations and terrorist groups who are working to overthrow free governments like Taiwan. And, of course, all of this is documented.

So now is the time to stop him and let him know that he can no longer exercise the prerogative of a dictator under our Constitutional Republic. In short, it's time we put an end to this conspiracy. We have neither a legal nor a moral obligation to betray our friends and commit suicide. We have, in fact, the inalienable right and responsibility to support the Cause of Freedom and we must do it now!

Religious group prompts a move

Editor, Times-News:
A long-time friend and Twin Falls businessman sent me a letter to the effect from your Dec. 7 newspaper, entitled "Story play showed bias against LDS."
Now, I am not a Mormon but an Irish Jew! Born in Alaska Feb. 5, 1904. Thirty years at sea. Here in southeast Arizona since 1949. Never in all my 75 years have I experienced such discrimination, such lack of justice as I have here.
This is a 75 percent Mormon dominated community. I am on my way to Twin Falls to make my new home away from these religious ferreles.

Will one percent initiative victimize voters in Idaho?

Editor, Times-News:
A recent Lewiston Tribune editorial is on the subject of percent victims. I take it that I am one of them in that I supported the limit on taxing savings and/or debts in real and personal property. I felt that the legislature will have to go to the democratic tax on my income to make up much of the money lost. The Tribune calls this pathetic expectation. I don't know what the IEA thinks of it, politicized and reactionary as it is.

Well, yes and no, I'd say. I am hoping that the legislature will face economic and political realities. However, I think we, the people, just had to join this issue at this time, letting the chips fall where they may. If all is lost but the education gained as we go to this tooth and claw politically, it will be worth while. We will better know the enemy and the issue.

every community and still have to sit back and let legislators sabotage this 1 percent reform? By the good Lord in Heaven, they don't — unless their reactionary leaders don't lead or lead in the wrong direction, Corrigan style.

Suggestions for getting adequate power to Idaho at lowest cost

Editor, Times-News:
This writer has testified before four hearings conducted relative to the 500 kilovolt transmission line the Pacific Power & Light Co. proposes to build from Midpoint, Idaho, to Malin, Ore.

less, consequently the cost of this transferred power will be less. . . .
3. The BPA line would run closer to the center of the generation systems of all Northwest utilities and Idaho would be able to receive returned power at less cost, whereas Idaho isn't scheduled to receive a single kilowatt hour of power. The PP&L line will transmit, as the power is scheduled to go to SW Oregon or Northern California.

To hear the wall and cry of certain leaders of education and their press friends, I recall the learnings. I have been wondering when this part of the Establishment will give the call to end it all now that they face telling those making the money to pay a fair share via the income tax, deductible as such a tax is. Instead it should be the time to do what is right for our country and go out there and see it that no legislator shirks his duty. The legislators should see that the two to three times broader tax base in income from the wealthy in the counties is used to take up any loss of property tax that is really needed in public coffers. Watch NEA and IEA. We might be their victims by sine of omission or commission before this is over.

Coyotes can't plunder if sheep and cattle are watched over

Editor, Times-News:
Oh, yes, Mr. Fairchild, I have always felt great pity for the sheep and the lamb and complete disgust for the taxidermy and misery ways of their owners. You see, 20 years ago we had sheep and lambs with a coyote running across our field every morning. But we got off our duffs, watched and cared for them, had no losses and didn't kill any coyotes, either.

If you want to see something really sickening, come out to the foothills where I live and watch our great sportsmen fly helicopters and airplanes shooting the coyotes from the air, where they do not have a chance to escape at all; on land where there aren't any sheep or cattle, but richly this is the way this type of men make enough to buy their Christmas cheer. I've often wondered where the expression "When God made man, she was only joking" came from, but now I know.

Some governors gain potential for presidency

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Until recently, the national political status of governors was something like Mr. Dooley's description of "the vice presidency": "You can't be sent to jail for it, but it's kind of a disgrace." For years, the federal establishment was regarded as the cutting edge of problem solving in American government. Washington was the fountain of ideas and the leadership to deal with both foreign and domestic problems and Congress was where presidential candidates came from. State government was pictured as unwilling or unable to deal with much more than highways, schools, courts and prisons. With few exceptions, governors were regarded as low politicians devoid of either the clout or vision to operate on a national stage.

Jimmy Carter changed that perception in 1978 when he became the first governor since Franklin D. Roosevelt to win the presidency. The 14th governor since Thomas Jefferson to occupy the White House, Carter's success has forced the presidential makers in both political parties to look to the statehouses as well as the Capitol Hill — in seeking national leadership.

terms did not expire this year, will be important figures in the presidential picture in the next decade.

At least two of the governors who were elected to second terms last month already are considered prime prospects for 1980. Neither Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California nor Republican James Thompson of Illinois have admitted they are going to run for president, but no one would be surprised to see either in the primaries.

The new crop of governors, which includes 13 freshmen and one "re-tread" governor, provides a more varied picture than usual. While some are the usual stereotype — middle-aged lawyers who worked their way through legislative and party ranks to achieve their state's top elective post — there are some interesting exceptions:

- Lee Dreyfus, the Republican governor-elect of Wisconsin, is a speech professor and college administrator who knocked off the GOP establishment choice for the job and defeated the incumbent Democrat.
- In this day of "cool" candidates who play to the television set, the portly Dreyfus — donned — a red — vest — and bumped around the state in an old he takes over in Arkansas, is a

Secretary of Defense for four years, 33-year-old Rhodes scholar — and a graduate of two eastern colleges. He says he had "Potomac fever" when he was younger but now doesn't care all that much about going to Washington. Hillary Rodham, his wife, also is a lawyer and probably the only first lady of a state to retain her maiden name.

- Fob James, George Wallace's Democratic successor, is the inventor of the plastic dumbbell, which helped him earn a fortune in the sporting goods business. Before that, he was an All-American football player at Auburn, a Canadian professional player and a Republican fundraiser.
- Hugh Gallen, the upset conqueror of New Hampshire's Republican Meldrin Thomson is a automobile dealer, a former minor league baseball pitcher and a one-time roadbuilder with the Civilian Conservation Corps. In a turnaround of the usual pattern, he is an Oregonian who went east to make his fortune.
- Hugh Clements, to be the first Republican governor of Texas in 105 years, is a former oil field worker who built biggest drilling company in the world. He also was the deputy but never has held elective office. During the campaign he plopped a rubber chicken down in front of his opponent at a banquet.

- Harry Hughes is experienced in government, he served in the Maryland legislature and headed the state Transportation department — but made his mark by refusing to go along with politics as usual. He quit the transportation post when he started getting political pressure on Baltimore subway contract awards. He went on to upset the sitting governor in the Democratic primary.
- Victor Attyeh, Oregon's Republican governor-elect, also has extensive experience in state government and politics — 20 years in the legislature and a previous run against Democratic Gov. Bob Straub. What sets him apart is the distinction of being the first governor of Syrian extraction and almost surely the first owner of an oriental rug business to head a state.

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.
... D-California

Clinton is the youngest man in the group, Clements, at 61, the oldest. There are four new governors in their 30's, six in their 40's. The average age of the group is just under 48 years.

- Six of the new governors never have held elective office before, although most have served in some government post. The newcomers to campaigning are Democrats Edward King of Massachusetts and James of Alabama and Republicans Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania, Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, Clements of Texas and Dreyfus of Wisconsin.
- Both Democrat John W. Carlin of Kansas and Republican Albert Quie of Minnesota list themselves as dairy farmers, while Democrat Bruce King of New Mexico, who is returning to a second term in the governorship he occupied from 1971 through 1974, and Democrat Robert Graham of Florida are cattle ranchers.
- But the law, as is so often the case among elected officials, is the predominant occupation of the new governors. And, with law enforcement continuing as a key element of politics, it probably is not surprising that four of them are moving up from state attorney general.

Republicans Robert List of Nevada and William Janklow of South Dakota and Democrats Joseph Brennan of Maine and Clinton of Arkansas all were the chief law enforcement officers of their states.

Pennsylvania's Thornburgh held a post near the top in the Justice Department, assistant attorney general in charge of the railroad division and is a former U.S. attorney for Western Pennsylvania.

- Other lawyers among the freshmen governors include Charles Thomas of Nebraska, who was both a state attorney general and secretary of state; Graham of Florida, a graduate of Harvard Law School; Democrat Dick Riley of South Carolina, who also served 14 years in the state senate; and Tennessee's Alexander, a corporate lawyer who once served as a White House aide.
- Two of the new governors are leaving Congress to serve in their state capitals.
- Quie of Minnesota had served 20 years in the House, moving to key positions on both the Education and Labor and the Agriculture committees. He also was one of the key men in the revolt of the Republican "Young Turks" against GOP Leader Charles Halleck that began Gerald Ford on his march to the presidency.

Nebraska's Thone also has extensive service on Capitol Hill, working for many years as an aide to Sen. Roman Hruska and then winning four terms as a member of the House.

Aside from New Mexico's King, who is the only former governor in the new class, Democrat George Hight of Oklahoma was the highest ranking state officer to step up to the governorship. Hight was lieutenant governor of Oklahoma for 16 years after eight years as a state legislator.

- Massachusetts' King also held a high visibility state post — executive director of the Massachusetts Port Authority. King was the only candidate who was able to defeat his own party's elected incumbent governor (Michael Dukakis) in a primary and then overcome the inevitable party split to win the general election.
- Maryland's Hughes beat acting Gov. Blair Lee III in the Democratic primary, but Lee was the lieutenant governor who was serving in an acting capacity in place of Marvin Mandel, who was suspended after conviction on corruption charges.
- However, the new crop of governors did knock off an unusually high number of incumbents seeking re-election. Carlin beat Republican Robert Bennett in Kansas; Gallen knocked out Republican Meldrin Thomson of New Hampshire; Attyeh beat Democrat Bob Straub in Oregon; Quie beat Minnesota Democrat Rudy Perpall; Dreyfus whipped Democrat James Schreiber in Wisconsin; and Brown and Schreiber also were defeated by governors who inherited the job.

Of the 20 new governors, 11 are Democrats and nine Republicans. However, with retirements and primary defeats, the net result of the elections were to increase the number of Republican governors from 12 to 18, the GOP's high point since 1972.

The election also gave the Republicans control of five of the seven largest states in the nation. The Democrats held on to California and New York, but the Republicans captured Pennsylvania and Texas and held on to Illinois and Ohio.

Republicans gain in electoral votes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic governors still outnumber Republicans 22 to 18 after the 1978 elections, but the lineup is not nearly as discouraging for the GOP in electoral vote terms as it was in 1976.

Five states with a total of 84 electoral votes that were carried by Jimmy Carter two years ago dumped Democratic governors and elected Republicans this year. They were Pennsylvania (27), Texas (26), Wisconsin (11), Minnesota (10) and Tennessee (10).

At the same time, three states with a total of 15 votes that had been carried by Gerald Ford went from Republican to independent to Democratic governors. They were Kansas (7), Maine (4) and New Hampshire (4).

- If Ford had carried the states that went to GOP governors this year and Carter had carried the states that fell to the Democrats, the Republican candidate would have had 39 more electoral votes. And Ford would have won the election, 300 electoral votes to 238.
- Bill Clements, to be the first Republican governor of Texas in 105 years, is a former oil field worker who built biggest drilling company in the world. He also was the deputy

Wallace leaves office reminiscing of near-miss

By BOB LOWRY
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George Wallace sat slumped in his wheelchair, puffing on a long black cigar as he stared wistfully at a yellowed newspaper clipping under his glass-topped desk.

"I wish we could take this glass and get the full impact of it," he said, tugging at the heavy plate glass with his stubby fingers. "This was a very significant editorial at the time. It was made."

The clipping was an editorial cartoon that appeared in a Milwaukee newspaper shortly after Richard Nixon had soundly beaten Sen. George McGovern in the 1972 presidential election.

The cartoon showed McGovern swerving off the road in a jumpy, slaming into a tree, and saying, "This is All George Wallace's Fault."

Wallace beamed as he read the cartoon aloud.

- "There were a lot of them (editorials), like this," he said. "In other words he (McGovern) blamed me for losing the presidency. I don't know whether it's right. I didn't endorse him."

Shooting left him mellow

As the 59-year-old Wallace prepares to leave office after an unprecedented three terms as governor and four tries for the presidency, he seemingly is a man trapped by the bittersweet memories of 1972.

It was at once a year of ecstacy and agony for him.

- "That could have been my year and had I not been shot, he (McGovern) would not have gotten the nomination," Wallace said.
- "When you win states like Michigan with a majority over the top national Democrats and get tremendous write-in on the Republican side of the state all over the United States," he added, "it's very well indicative of a nationwide constituency."

Wallace was leading in delegates and popular votes when he was gunned down in a Maryland shopping center in May 1972 on the eve of primary elections in Maryland and Michigan, which he won while fighting to stay alive in a Silver Springs, Md., hospital.

- "The shooting — which left him a paraplegic — effectively ended Wallace's quest for the presidency. It was a pinnacle he never reached again in national politics, but he still likes to reflect on his near-miss and McGovern's last-minute desperation move."
- "You know he (McGovern) called me three times before the election wanting to come down here and let me endorse him on national television,"

Wallace said. "He said I could turn the corner for him."

- "He called the night before the election from an airport and asked me to announce the next day that I had voted for him. I told him I would think about it. He told me he wasn't trying to pressure me because he knew I was sick."
- "But he said everywhere he went in Michigan and Pennsylvania that people would tell him he could turn the corner if he had my support," Wallace recalled. "I told him I didn't think one man could turn the corner for him, but it made me feel good."
- Wallace, once known as the "fight'n judge," has mellowed considerably in his politics, philosophy and religion since his brush with death six years ago.
- The man who cried "segregation forever" at his inauguration as governor in 1963 now says that his venom was aimed at the federal government and not at blacks.
- "I never did consider being for segregation in the days we had it in this part of the country as being against black people," he says. "It was the attitude of the majority of the people that it (segregation) was in the best interest of both races."
- "Our fight was against the federal government. There was no animosity aimed at black people. I think you know that since we lost the legal battles in that field, we now look to the future instead of the past."

"I never said an unkind word against people because of their color," said Wallace. "I did say I was for segregation in the days I was for it, but that was not my expediency."

- "But that is past since it is past, and it's good that it's past and gone, we should look forward and not backwards."
- Wallace confesses to having a "deep religious experience" while he lingered between life and death in 1972.
- "I've come to know how fragile and uncertain life is because in one moment I was healthy and strong and the next moment I was lying on the ground about dead. All that in the twinkling of an eye. That could happen to anyone, anytime, anywhere."
- "It means that everyone ought to live his life in such a manner that he is prepared to go within the twinkling of an eye."
- "I'm a very religious man," says Wallace. "I was brought up to believe in the Christian faith and I believe every bit of it. I'm a fundamentalist Christian and I believe every word of the Bible."
- "I believe Christ came to earth to take our sins upon his shoulders so that we may have eternal life. I've not always been the best man in the world and I've not always lived up to the profession of the Christian faith as I should have," he said, "but you can always get forgiveness if you're sincere about it."

- Even though he is paralyzed and lost one wife to cancer and another in a bitter divorce, Wallace says he has no regrets about his political and personal life.
- "I frankly think it's been worth it," he says. "Knowing what I know today, I'd do it all over again because my involvement in national politics has helped changed the complexion of the American political thought."
- "Since I believe in my own mind that it was meaningful, I'm satisfied and would do it over in spite of the price I paid. After all, you live only a short life."

IS THERE NEW HOPE FOR 'DURABLE' DISEASES?

★ HEART TROUBLE
★ ANGINA ★ CIRCULATORY DISORDERS ★ STROKE

RODGER HARRIS, N.D.
FIELDING HARRIS, N.D.
Doctors of Naturopathic Medicine

HEART DISEASE is the number one killer in our times. In the typical city in the United States, 50% of all deaths are from cardiac related disease. There are many different types of heart disorders, but the most common and most disabling type results from a lack of blood to the heart muscle itself. The coronary blood vessels become hardened and thickened, and their openings become gradually narrower, starving the heart muscle for oxygen. The heart responds, much like an irrigated field responds to having its water shut off, by increasing its pumping action to plug up one of the narrowed heart blood vessels. This causes the arteries as described above producing a heart attack.

ANGINA is the name of the pain that is caused by an overworked heart which lacks sufficient blood supply. It occurs in the chest, is paroxysmal and suffocating, and is usually followed by a feeling of impending death, and usually follows the rhythm of excitement.

CIRCULATORY DISORDERS are also of many types, but the major concern is with hardening and thickening of the arteries as described above restricting the heart. The coronary condition can occur in varying degree to any of the important organs.

Stroke is a condition in which the blood supply is suddenly cut off to a portion of the brain. There are two general types, although the resulting damage is about the same for both. In one, the narrowed and thickened blood vessel becomes plugged up by a clot. In the other, the vessel becomes so fragile it breaks. If it wears out it is usually the result of aging. The results is usually disastrous with death or partial paralysis occurring.

THERE IS NEW HOPE FOR ALL OF THESE CONDITIONS. At the Twin Falls Naturopathic Clinic, Drs. Rodger and Fielding Harris utilize natural methods including dietary and nutritional treatment and the hyperbaric oxygen chamber for these and related conditions. This treatment procedure has recently received national side publicity as the "Wallace's 60 Minute TV program" held in California last fall.

Companies raise methods of stalling creditors to fine art

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — "The check is in the mail," is still the excuse of the unimpressive debtor, but cash-flow problems created by inflation have raised the practice of stalling creditors to a fine art, says John Gordana.

Gordana runs Equitable Adjustment Service, a collection agency for such blue chip clients as American Cyanamid, Johnson & Johnson and Schering Corp.

Gordana says he is intrigued by the high degree of sophistication displayed by debtor companies to keep creditors from bringing the law down on them.

"Of course, the ancient device of sending a partial payment on the delinquent account still is widely practiced," he said. "So is the time honored and unimaginative lie, 'The check's in the mail.'"

But there are much more adroit ways to stall for a few days or even a few weeks, he said.

One of the most ingenious is to send a check in payment for the bill but to use a little gadget that demagnetizes the magnetic ink in the Federal Reserve' transit number and the account number, those queer little figures in computer alphanumeric, at the bottom of the check. This will cause the bank's computer to throw out the check and by law the bank then is required to sort it by hand.

Since banks now have small staffs for this hand work the check may take up to three weeks to clear.

Meanwhile, the debtor supplier who sent it has use of the money.

A perfectly legal, and on the whole not unethical, method of delaying payment is to have checking accounts in banks scattered around the country. One pays bills with checks drawn on the bank farthest from the creditors' office. For a big company, even a few days delay in clearing a check can improve cash flow and save a significant amount of interest.

But it's not so ethical to draw checks to pay bills on bank "A" and the next day transfer the funds to bank "B." When the creditors howl about the bouncing checks, the debtor company says innocently, "Oh, we had some trouble at the bank and decided to make a change, a few checks got caught in transit."

Equally reprehensible is the practice of photographing a cancelled check for a previous order of the same amount, after altering the date on the face of the check, as proof of payment, then haphazardly claiming it was just a mistake.

Another one of these stalling errors is to put different amounts in figures and the spelled-out money amount. "We did that? Just send the check back and we'll send you another."

Many businesses, especially small ones, have felt the impact of the severe credit squeeze that has pushed interest rates near record highs, Gordana said.

"These crackdowns which destroy lots of small businesses, used to occur every three or four years," now they come every three or four years."

Spud growers ready to divert part of crop

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer
BURLEY — Idaho potato growers are eager to divert part of a record spud crop out of the market and last Wednesday many learned how it will be done.

At two public meetings — one in Idaho Falls and one in Burley — an official of the Potato Growers of Idaho and other federal agriculture officials outlined what is known about procedure for the mammoth diversion.

A total of 9 million hundredweight of western and midwestern russet potatoes is slated to be taken from cellars, mutilated and fed to livestock in about 12 states to help buoy up market prices growers can get for the remaining portion of the 1978 crop.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will pay growers $2 per hundred-pound sack for their spuds during the first 30 days of the diversion and $1.75 per sack for the final 30 days.

About $16 million of federal money collected as import duties on agricultural commodities coming into the U.S. will be used to fund the program.

Clifford Ouse, assistant secretary of agriculture, who is in charge of the program, said payment for diversion would be made after the potatoes have been diverted and milled.

He said the program ceiling is definitely 9 million hundredweight and no more.

In the event a farmer should spread his spuds on a field to freeze for later grazing of livestock, half the payment would come after the spuds are put on the ground and the other half when animals had grazed off the tubers, Ouse said.

Ouse said spud diversion would be allocated to each state according to its share of national potato production. He did not say what Idaho's share of the diversion would be, but said it would be figured on a percentage basis.

He said he expected final regulations for the program to be announced no later than Jan. 12.

"We don't want to start the time clock on it until everybody is ready," Ouse explained. "We will announce the date of signing of the regulations about the first of the week."

He said regulations for the program must be signed by officials of the Food Safety and Quality Service. That agency and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will administer the program.

Gerald Murphy, general manager of PGI, told growers at Wednesday's meeting Idaho now has about 55 percent of the nation's surplus potatoes stored in local cellars.

It would be one-half of one percent of all spuds diverted, or about 150 pounds for every 300 sacks.

The spuds must sample at the rate of 90 percent U.S. No. 2 process grade or better, Brubaker explained. No sorting of spuds can take place if the load is to qualify for diversion.

He said a grower can estimate weights and volumes of spuds if he wishes, but piles must be level. Inspectors will measure a pile of potatoes and multiply by a factor of 2.4 to get approximate weight.

How to save on overseas travel

Plan ahead, stick to your schedule, perhaps (literally) get up early in the morning to buy your ticket — and with the variety of travel rates now in effect, you can save as much as 70 percent on a week-long vacation trip to Europe or the Caribbean.

With the off-season, pay-ahead fares, for instance, a seven-day tour of Britain can cost a couple as little as $163 for budget-hasties vs. a typical $496 at on-season, first-class prices in effect only a week earlier or later.

Or a one-week Barbados stay could cost as little as $74 for two off-season against a typical $2,522 at a plush place there in-season.

In addition, depending on what's important to you, you can pick accommodations and flights almost cafeteria-style at just about any price in between the above limits.

A one-week junkie to Britain could stack up as follows, according to Pan Am and British Airways. More than a dozen New York-London fares might be in effect, ranging from a $1,406 round-trip first-class ticket ($1,694 for the supersonic Concorde) down to $253 for off-season standby trips, mid-October to April.

In between, you might pick a traditional "economy" (coach) seat for $764 on-season, $636 off-season; an Excursion ticket from $499 to $699; an Advance Purchase Excursion from $349 to $377. Be on guard against weekend surcharges which can add $60 to a round trip for two.

The $253 standby fare, a further $56 saving, is just that: you get up early, go to the airport, wait in line to pick up your one-way ticket, maybe repeat the process for your return.

As for London hotels, rates this year range from $15 per night per person double-occupancy to as much as $30, $110 at a luxury spot. Add $7 to $10 a night at most places for on-season rates. Meals run about $25 a day per person. Package tours may save you 3-10 percent for week-long stays.

You can save still more at other British Isles places, says the British Tourist office. At typical English country inns, rooms are $17-$25 a night; food about $15 a day; rental cars $140 weekly for unlimited mileage.

In most other European lands plan on spending more. United Nations statistics show: London living costs about the same as New York; Switzerland costs half as much again; Paris, about 30 percent more; Bonn, nearly 40 percent higher; Rome, about 10 percent less.

Currency fluctuations make overseas trips a gamble, but advance pay plans can lock in rates for you.

For a Caribbean holiday, the on-season is mid-December to mid-April. And since even the most distant of the Islands (Barbados or Aruba, for instance) are only about 2,100 air miles from New York vs. 3,450 New York to London, your week will cost less overall.

Carrier of six months chosen for recognition

TWIN FALLS — A youth who advanced from substitute to regular carrier six months ago, Chris Walton, has been selected Times-News carrier of the week.

Walton's selection, recognizing his outstanding service to his customers, was announced by H. Ross Torgerson, circulation director, and William E. Howard, publisher.

Walton has delivered his route in the northern section of Twin Falls on a regular basis since this past June 1, when he took over the route from Lori Sampe. Prior to becoming the regular carrier, Walton was a substitute on that route.

CHRIS WALTON carrier of week

Born in Twin Falls, Walton's interests include sports and Boy Scouts, in which he holds the rank of Star Scout and is a patrol leader in Troop 65. Interested in music; he plays the piano. He is a member of the First Christian Church.

His hobbies include collecting baseball and football cards, reading such general information books as almanacs and atlases, drawing cartoons and participating in such sports as swimming, baseball, football and basketball.

Options for distribution use

Question: Our employer is abandoning our company retirement plan. What options do we employees have for using the distributions we receive to establish our personal retirement plan and avoid paying income tax on the distribution?

Answer: You should explore the following three options:

1. Take cash and pay the accumulated taxes.
2. Take cash and establish an IRA (individual retirement account or annuity) or IRA rollover which protects the accumulation from immediate taxation.
3. Have the plan trustee buy an annuity or a deferred annuity which is "annuitized" through a Master Terminal Funding contract. This annuity is known as a qualified non-transferable annuity because it is qualified under Section 401 of the Internal Revenue Code. As in the IRA rollover, no taxes are due when the pension plan proceeds are paid into it.

However, the 401 annuity has certain advantages over an IRA rollover:

- In a qualified 401 annuity, withdrawals, if necessary, can be made before age 59½ without the 10 percent federal penalty levied against IRA accounts (aside from taxes due).
- Voluntary employee contributions to a plan can be used in a qualified 401 annuity, but not in an IRA rollover.
- Funds may be left to accumulate past age 70½ in the 401 annuity if the individual remains employed, though payout must begin by that age in an IRA rollover.

- Payout longer than life expectancy (such as a 20-year period) is possible in the qualified 401 annuity as long as it does not extend beyond age 70, but this cannot be done in the IRA rollover.
- Proceeds of a qualified 401 annuity avoid Federal estate tax on amounts paid to a named beneficiary and attributed to the employer's contributions.
- Also, the first $5,000 paid to a beneficiary in a qualified 401 annuity is free of income tax, if no withdrawal has been made prior to the contract owner's death.

A number of insurance companies offer a 401-annuity. The annuity provides the investor with safety while it continues to accumulate funds without tax-off-the-high rates of interest currently being paid by some insurance companies.

I am sending you a list comparing rates currently being paid and the names of the insurance companies. This list is available to the public by writing or telephoning Mr. Smith at Edward G. Smith and Associates, P.O. Box 111, Twin Falls, Idaho 83401; telephone: 734-4464.

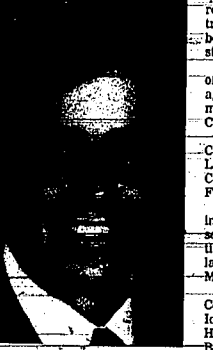

Mr. Smith will answer questions of an investment nature if directed to him at the above address or telephone number.

Bank appoints Shelby to area advisory unit

POCATELLO — Dale L. Shelby of Twin Falls has been appointed to the Twin Falls advisory board of Idaho Bank and Trust Co.

J. Grant Bickmore, bank president, said advisory board members meet quarterly with bank management to review economic conditions and trends. The bank maintains advisory boards in each of the four areas of the state it serves.

Bickmore said Shelby's knowledge of the Magic Valley area and of agriculture will aid the bank in meeting financing needs in Twin Falls County.

DALE L. SHELBY board member

Shelby, president of Shelby's Park Center and the Shelby Land and Livestock Co., has lived in Cassia County most of his life and in Twin Falls the past 15 1/2 years.

He developed and operated markets in Twin Falls, Buhl and Burley and self-serves hundreds of service stations and mobile home parks. The land and livestock operations are at Molton, Idaho, and King Hill.

Shelby has been awarded the Cassia County grassman of the year and Idaho promoter of the month honors. He has also been active in church and Boy Scout activities.

Shelby and his wife, Betty, are the parents of five children.

Kerbs promoted

BURLEY — Wendy Kerbs has been promoted to assistant factory industrial engineer at the Ore-Ida Foods plant here.

Kerbs has been administrative secretary to the factory industrial engineer since 1976. Her new duties include support through operational studies and recommending to factory management potential and significant cost reduction projects.

She will also assist in gathering data required to develop direct cost standards and to determine economic feasibility of planned capital expenditures and the use of manpower and equipment.

A 1971 graduate of Iowa State University with a degree in business administration, she has completed some graduate work at Idaho State University.

Buhler earns award

TWIN FALLS — Twayne O. Buhler has earned the National Quality Award for 1978 for his outstanding production in insurance.

Associated with the I.O. Buhler Agency of Occidental Life Insurance Co. of California, Buhler received the award from the National Association of Life Underwriters. This is the second time he received the award.

SEATTLE — A seminar on initiating exports to Japan is scheduled Jan. 19 at the Washington Plaza Hotel.

Designed for the new and experienced exporters, the seminar is the first in a series of three arranged by Kyodai, a Seattle based management education service which focuses on operations with the Japanese.

Evergreen State College, Olympia, Wash., is coordinator for the seminar.

branch administrator

Switzer advances

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. — Mel Switzer Jr., formerly of Twin Falls, has been promoted to senior vice president and branch administrator for the County Bank of Santa Cruz.

Switzer, who joined the bank in 1976, moved up from vice president and branch administrator after a year in that slot. He will continue to administer the bank's 13 branches, auto finance center and bank card center.

Switzer was with the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. for three years and also spent five years as a national bank examiner.

Optimism high

LOS ANGELES — Business optimism is high in the West, the Western Business Forecast of Prudential Insurance Co. shows.

For the 12 state area, the survey for the first quarter of 1979 is expected to show gains, in the opinion of 65 percent of those interviewed. Thirteen percent think business will stay the same and 22 percent expect a drop.

In Montana, Utah and Idaho, 56 percent expect business to increase, 32 percent anticipate a decrease and 12 percent expect no change.

Canadian banks hike prime rate

TORONTO (UPC) — Chartered banks Friday boosted their minimum lending rates by 0.5 percentage point to 12 percent in response to the Bank of Canada's hike in its prime lending rate to a record 11.25 percent.

Federal opposition parties bitterly denounced the Bank of Canada's seventh increase in prime lending rates since March and called on the federal government to "rethink" it because it was counter-productive to the economy.

Royal Bank of Canada, Bank of Montreal, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Toronto-Dominion Bank, Banque Canadienne Nationale, Bank of Nova Scotia and other chartered banks were quick to respond to the federal bank's action.

The nation's chartered banks announced minimum lending rates would go up 0.5 percent to 12 percent effective Friday. Interest rates paid on non-chequable accounts were boosted 0.5 percent to 9.5 percent effective from Jan. 1.

Farmers see good, bad in commodity actions

By KATHLEEN BURNS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government intervention in raw commodity prices this past week brought mixed reactions among farmers and ranchers.

There was support for potato subsidies and increased sugar-import fees among the agricultural community, but cattlemen were angered by the White House's decision to boost beef imports.

As of Jan. 1, sugar import fees will raise the price of raw sugar to 15 cents a pound.

Potato producers will receive substantial subsidies for diverting more than 9 million hundredweight potatoes from the market to food for livestock.

With the cattle sector, beef imports will be boosted 5.2 percent for 1979. Imports of beef, mutton, veal and goat will increase from 1,492 million pounds in 1978 to 1,570 million pounds for 1979.

The beef announcement came on the heels of a statement by the American Meat Institute predicting beef prices would soar by 40 cents to 50 cents a pound by summer.

The new sugar import fees will be 3.33 cents per pound for raw sugar and 3.87 cents per pound for refined sugar and certain sugar syrups. The previous fees, in effect since Jan. 20, 1978, were 2.7 cents a pound for raw sugar and 3.22 cents for refined.

Carol Tucker Foreman, acting secretary of agriculture, said the fees will be reviewed quarterly and adjusted, if necessary.

In addition, if the world sugar price differs by 1 cent or more during a 10-day period for the market price objective, fees will be revised within three market days, she said.

According to U.S. agricultural experts, without the use of tariffs and fees, the consumer price for sugar would drop below $1 for a 5-pound bag. Last summer, sugar sold for $1.23 for a 5-pound bag at the retail level while the raw sugar price was 13.5 cents per pound.

An increase in prices to 15 cents a pound could boost the consumer price level by .15 cents per pound this winter.

In November, sugar deliveries were 843,034 short tons, down 10 percent from the previous year. January-November deliveries were down 2.5 percent, according to the Agriculture Department.

For the first 10 months of 1978, domestic sugar production for the U.S. mainland was 2.5 million short tons, down 14 percent from the previous year. Hawaiian sugar production also dropped by 7 percent.

Imports from the Dominican Republic, the leading U.S. supplier, were down 16 percent, while imports from the Philippines were down 42 percent.

To aid potato farmers who have been overwhelmed by a bumper crop, the government will pay farmers an estimated $39 million to divert potatoes into cattle feed.

Farmers will receive $2 per hundredweight for the first 30 days of the diversion and $1.75 per hundredweight for the second 30 days. Because of the diversion, the average price of fall crop potatoes is expected to rise by 20 cents to 26 cents per hundredweight.

Consumers will pay an average of one-half cent to one cent more per pound for fresh potatoes because of the government subsidy.

Direct subsidies and higher market prices should bring potato growers an extra $75 million to $80 million for their crop, said John Simpson, an Agriculture Department official.

In 1978, the total fall crop of potatoes reached 318.7 million hundredweight, almost a 4 percent increase above the previous record set in 1976.

States that produce a majority of the russet potato crop are Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Northern California, Colorado, North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

While potato producers may have been pleased by their sudden bounty, Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, voiced "many reservations" over the government's largesse.

NATURAL GAS IS IDAHO'S LARGEST SOURCE OF UTILITY ENERGY.

Most people in southern Idaho are not aware of the importance of natural gas as a primary energy source. They are also unaware that gas offers the highest end-use energy efficiency for space heating and water heating.

GAS SUPPLY FOR IDAHO HAS NEVER BEEN BETTER.

We have enough gas on contract today to add 100,000 residential customers. A surplus of gas actually exists in the Pacific northwest.

FUTURE ELECTRIC GENERATING FACILITIES ARE UNKNOWN.

Hydro-electric generating capability in southern Idaho is virtually fully developed. Future electric generating plants will be fueled with coal or nuclear energy which will increase cost and decrease the efficiency of electricity for heating.

IDAHO CAN'T MAKE IT ON ONE ENERGY SOURCE.

An abundant supply of natural gas for residential heating and water heating is available now at a lower cost to the homeowner than electricity (IPC & UP&L rates). Balanced energy - the best use of gas and electricity - is the solution.

Gem winter wheat seedings increase

BOISE (UPD) — Idaho's 1979 winter wheat seedings were up but production was expected to be lower as condition of the crop as of Dec. 1 was the lowest since 1975, the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said.

Seedings of 960,000 acres rose sharply from the 870,000 seeded last year, the agency said, but expected production at 37.2 million bushels is down 15 percent from last year as the increased acreage is more than offset by lower prospective yields.

"Moisture supplies were adequate at seeding time, although in some localities soils were too wet for good seedbed preparation," the agency said. "This resulted in some fields having thin stands."

"With little or no precipitation between seeding and the last part of November," the service added, "development of the wheat crop has been slow and spotted."

The service also reported production of red meat in Idaho in November totaled 41 million pounds, unchanged from the previous November.

Cattle slaughter during the month totaled 59,900 head, down 5 percent from a year earlier. Total live weight slaughtered, however, at 66.1 million pounds decreased only 2 percent as average liveweight increased two pounds while sheep and lamb slaughter totaled 500 head with average liveweight at an estimated 110 pounds.

The service reported that hog numbers on Idaho farms Dec. 1 totaled 79,000 head, up 32 percent from the previous year. It noted increases in both breeding and market hogs.

Doug and Mary Liz Jones of Twin Falls

Community leader role key to award

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An active role in community leadership and diversification on his farm brought recognition to a young Twin Falls farmer this winter.

Douglas Jones and his wife, Mary Liz, who farm southwest of Twin Falls, shared the Young Farmer and Rancher Award presented annually to a young farm couple by the Magic Valley chapters of the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation.

Jones said to win the contest he and his wife listed their farming and community accomplishments on a 10-page application form.

They included their work with the Farm Bureau — Mary Liz is active in the women's program — and their participation in community affairs.

In addition, the couple entered information about their work on the family farm where Jones recently built a new machine shop and storage building for farm equipment.

"We have taken on a new enterprise," Jones added. "We started a liquid fertilizer business."

Jones also helps with the family custom farming business by combining peas, beans, alfalfa seed, clover seed, grain, corn and, this year, some soybeans, which are relatively new to Magic Valley.

Each year, Jones said, he works with agents from the Mackay-Ferguson Co. testing farm machinery by using it in the family combining business.

As part of their work, Jones said he and his family drive their combines from bureau to Castleton during harvest each year.

Jones currently serves as Twin Falls County president of the Farm Bureau. He also served as a delegate to the legislative session at the annual Farm Bureau convention in Boise last December.

As a representative from Twin Falls County, Jones helped farmers from around the state formulate Idaho Farm Bureau policies to be published in a policy book for the state's legislators.

In the past, he also served as the district director for the Young Farmers and Ranchers Program, designed to promote leadership among young farm people.

The Young Farmer and Rancher Program sponsors discussion meets which test the public speaking ability of young farm people, according to Jones.

Each contestant is asked to prepare a talk to be given before an audience from memory on some current topic of interest. Judges pick the best entrant who then moves to a higher contest.

Last year, Mary Liz, one of the few women to compete in the discussion meet, won the Idaho state meet and went on to the nationals where she was one of only two women competing in that larger contest.

"It is good experience, good for leadership roles in any area," Jones said. "It is organized so we will have some good trained leadership in the organization in the future."

As part of the Young Farmer and Rancher program, Jones and his wife will attend the annual Leadership Training Conference at the Holiday Inn in Boise Jan. 31, Feb. 1 and 2.

Zimmatic Lateral Move... the cost-cutting breakthrough in irrigation

LINDSAY IRRIGATION OF IDAHO
Highway 24, RUPERT, ID. 436-0209

An innovative concept in sprinkler irrigation, Lindsay's Zimmatic Lateral Move can reduce labor and energy costs while irrigating 98% of a field with optimum uniformity of application.

Zimmatic Lateral Move can be designed in lengths up to more than a half mile. The design simplicity of the exclusive guidance system allows it to reliably maintain a straight course up to a mile or longer. There are no complicated remote signals or underground components that are potential maintenance problems. And Zimmatic Lateral Move is the only system that allows you to locate the water supply ditch where you want it.

You'll find Zimmatic Lateral Move requires less water and operating labor than surface irrigation and initial investment costs are less than solid set. — offering you significant savings in overall costs.

The Lateral Move can irrigate many tight soils with low water intake rates that other mechanical sprinklers cannot match. Every Zimmatic Lateral Move system utilizes proven Lindsay parts and carries an extensive warranty program.

Come in and talk with us today. We'll show you how to increase your yield with maximum field coverage while saving water, labor and operating expenses with Zimmatic Lateral Move.

The Capp Finish-It-Yourself House™

THE HOME YOU WANT AT A PRICE YOU CAN AFFORD

Finish-It-Yourself means just that. By doing the finishing work on your new dream home, you can save thousands compared to the cost of having a contractor build the same house on your lot. Capp homes are custom-built by craftsmen who take pride in their work and use top quality construction materials. The result is a home you'll take pride in for years to come. Here's how it works.

YOU DECIDE WHERE TO LIVE.

First, select the area where you'd like to live, then find a nice piece of property. If you already own a lot, you're all set.

CUSTOM DESIGN YOUR FLOOR PLANS.

You can select from our collection of 52 models and you can customize any of our plans or we'll build from your plans. Either way, your home can be completely pre-constructed.

SELECT YOUR OWN FEATURES.

Capp provides you with the quality materials you specified to complete your Finish-It-Yourself Home. You select the roofing, siding, and all the interior features, kitchen and bathroom accessories, doors, windows, flooring, lighting fixtures — the works. You plan your new home exactly the way you want it.

WHAT WE DO.

Capp custom-builds your home on your foundation according to the plans and Capp specifications. We install sub-flooring, interior stud partitions and exterior doors and windows — so you wind up with a home that's enclosed and ready for you to finish.

WHAT YOU DO.

What's it like to finish a house yourself? Things like plumbing and wiring aren't all that tough with the help of Capp instruction manuals. But even if you need outside help, you'll still save money by being your own general contractor and eliminating the middleman. Remember, the more you do, the more you can save. And when you're finished, you have a home that's worth a lot more than you paid for it.

52 MODELS FROM $25,000 to $83,680*

THE PARK VIEW™

This 3-bedroom, 2 1/2 bath home is well-suited for entertaining as well as everyday living. The finish work, featuring sliding patio doors, expands your living area onto the great outdoors.

Conservation draws emphasis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary Bob Bergland said Wednesday the Agriculture Department's conservation programs for 1979 will be oriented more toward conservation than enhancing crop production.

He acknowledged past criticism among environmentalists of the $190 million Agricultural Conservation Program's emphasis "toward increased farm production at the expense of soil and water conservation."

Bergland's remarks were prepared for his signing of procedures for the 1979 conservation-oriented program.

He said the new program "takes a new and vigorous approach to meeting the soil, water and pollution problems in rural America."

Farmers place value on "practices aimed at saving the soil, improving woodlands, keeping lakes and streams clean and cleaning up after natural disasters damage farmland," the secretary said.

Farm marketing course scheduled

GOODING — An extension course in marketing and farm management will be offered by the University of Idaho this month.

Gooding County Extension Agent Ed Koester will be the instructor for the course, to be organized Jan. 10. It will be limited to 20 persons and will probably be taught in Gooding. Complete details may be obtained from Koester at his office by calling 934-4401.

Some of the topics to be covered, Koester said, include farm budgets and enterprise analysis, alternative methods of record keeping, income tax management, diagnosis of farm business problems, credit and decision making.

Association plans Twin Falls meet

TWIN FALLS — The 71 Livestock Association plans its annual winter meeting Jan. 12 at the Blue Lakes Inn in Twin Falls beginning at 10 a.m.

The agenda for the meet includes reports on range lands by both the Bureau of Land Management and the U.S. Forest Service.

Officials from the BLM will report on the Rangeland Improvement Act, current status of Environmental Impact Statements in the state and the BLM roadless area inventory.

Forest Service officials will discuss current programs, their Roadless Area Review (RARE II), a bighorn sheep transplant program and grazing fees for 1979.

Lettuce crop damage rumors denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government says there's no truth to reports that retail iceberg lettuce prices might rise to $2 a head because of damage from a worm immune to pesticides.

"There is no foundation to rumors that half of this year's winter crop of iceberg lettuce will be destroyed by the budworm," said Agriculture Department economist William Paterson.

"The cold snap in early December sent prices up to $6 a carton (of 24 heads) and they are now in the $6 to $7 range," he said.

Shipments are back to normal but prices continued high because of uncertainty about future supplies, he said.

South Korea plans to increase rice crop

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korea plans to produce 6.64 million tons of rice during 1979, up from 6.35 million tons in 1978, according to a government plan. Other 1979 goals for grain production include 1.54 million tons of barley, 464,200 tons of beans, 170,500 tons of corn and 720,500 tons of potatoes and sweet potatoes, according to the Agriculture-Fishery Ministry.

R<sub>x</sub> for Raptors

TWIN FALLS — "Bye, Mama," Norm Scott yelled. As he said the words, the hawk was already soaring over the deep chasm of the canyon.

"No," Scott said laughing, "she's gone."

Celebrating release after a month in captivity, the big, two-year-old red tail hawk swerved and flapped across the sky. She ignored a flock of pigeons below that might have been prey. Instead she headed for an invisible thermal current, the natural air draft that attracts many birds to the canyon. In a minute she was nearly out of sight, gliding comfortably hundreds of feet above the river on the thermal.

That morning the hawk had been pronounced "cured" of a complicated case of organic phosphate poisoning that also injured her foot and, later, her beak. She had been discovered nearly dead by a Fish and Game Department official in Jerome Dec. 13.

For five days she was treated by Twin Falls veterinarian William Strobel, who flushed the phosphate out of her system and injected her wing muscles with daily doses of an antidote to the poison. Although she was soon over the poisoning, she developed calcium deposits from the phosphate. The deposits, which are a common result of phosphate poisoning, crippled the hawk's talon, or claw. Strobel transferred her to falconer Scott, who began trying to heal the talon.

Scott had to crack the talon every day for two weeks to loosen the deposit. The healing process was delayed when the bird cut her beak trying to escape from a cage where she was kept overnight at the Fish and Game Department's Jerome Game Farm. Scott also had to force-feed the hawk for the first few days, as the bird refused to eat. Scott said the behavior is normal for captive birds.

By Jan. 2 all was healed and she was ready to be released. Scott took the caged bird to a point along the Snake River canyon, 400 feet above the water. He peeled off the leather ankle straps used to hold her and cradled her like a baby at the edge of the canyon. Then, he held the impatient bird at arm's length and let go. At once she spread her wings to their full three-foot span and soared away from her guardian.

At that moment, she became another member of the growing list of rehabilitated raptors that have passed through the care of Strobel.

The veterinarian last year treated more than 50 birds of prey, a category that includes hawks, eagles, falcons, owls and vultures. All but a few have been released back to the wild. Some ended up in the Boise City Zoo because they underwent amputations and weren't able to survive in the wild. Only one of Strobel's patients died, a male eagle that had been hit by a car.

Strobel, who learned raptor surgery and care from a friend in medical school, is a regular pet doctor who treats raptors on the side.

Although other vets in Idaho take on wild bird patients, Strobel is probably the busiest.

One reason is that he gets all birds that are brought to the Jerome Game Farm, where Fish and Game houses its main raptor care program. Under the program, Fish and Game officials bring the doctor injured birds of prey. The program began a year and a half ago, when the department installed wire cages for raptors at the game farm. They have other raptor care programs around the state, but the Jerome program is the most extensive, the department says.

Although Fish and Game doesn't budget money to pay Strobel, the department gave him $250 last year as a token reimbursement and supplies him with some pigeons for bird food.

The $250 made up the department's entire raptor care fund.

MR. AND MRS. ROSEL H. WALKER

Mr. and Mrs. Rosel H. Walker

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Rosel H. Walker, Twin Falls, will be honored with an open house in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The event will be held Jan. 13 from 1 to 5 p.m. at 151 Heyburn Ave. W. and will be hosted by their children and grandchildren.

Rosel H. Walker and Elaine Wilson were married Jan. 10, 1929, at Oakley. The marriage was later solemnized at the Salt Lake City LDS Temple. Walker was engaged in many occupations until 1951. He then joined the Union Pacific Railroad bridge and building crew, where he worked until 1964 when he was injured in a bridge mishap.

The Walkers are parents of three children, Hal Wilson Walker, America Falls, Mrs. George H. (Myrna) Scott, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Gordon L. (Deann) Durrant. They have 14 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

All friends and family are invited to the open house.

Thousands of years ago the ancient hunter smeared paint over his nakedness. Paint made him feel greater than he was.

Was he a sissy? Hardly. The strongest guy in the tribe always wore the most paint.

Later, man discovered that the fat of animals would protect his skin from the elements, and he oiled his face and his body. The strongest guy got the most fragrant oils.

Thus "cosmetics" were created — by man and for man, not woman. But woman was not to be denied.

Having her babies and biding her time, woman outsmarted man over the course of many civilizations and centuries. She gradually snatched his paint and his oils. Eventually, "cosmetics" became associated first and foremost with femininity. The man who used them was considered less than manly in most cultures, reaching a near stigma if he smelled better than she in the late 19th Century.

But along came the contemporary man with his health kicks, head shops and Cardin suits in the 1960s and set off a new wave of men's "cosmetics." Call them toiletries and grooming aids if that soothes your psyche. But the fact remains that American men are rediscovering the joys of smelling sweet, taking better care of their skin and hair and even simulating nature's sunkisses to make them look better than they otherwise would.

Macho men along with the not-somacho types are using colognes, moisturizers, bronzers, treatment masks, peeling creams and sundry other toiletries and grooming aids.

Sales of these men's products hit an estimated $1.27 billion in 1977. If the growth rate holds, the total will top $1.33 billion this year. More and more men are going to skin-treatment salons, especially as increasing numbers of these places are established for them, often as a part of hairstyling salons. They're getting permanents and hair coloring, not to mention all the toupees they're ordering.

Men are getting nose jobs, eye jobs and face-lifts from plastic surgeons. They exercise and diet. They want to feel good and look even better.

Instead of smelling like Old Spice or Aqua Velva after shave lotions, the more affluent are more likely dousing themselves with so-called "prestigious designer fragrances. Among the dozens are such names as Bill Blass, Polo by Ralph Lauren, Geoffrey Beene's Grey Flannel, Halston, Hermes' Equipage, Yves Saint Laurent, Chanel and Lagerfeld. Now there's even a Van Cleef and Arpels fragrance for men. It's getting simpler to say who isn't into men's fragrance these days.

Promises are legion. Packaging usually hints, if not reeks, of roaring animal magnetism.

If Avon were really on its toes, it would do an "Avon calling" commercial in which the caller is a man. It has Avon men going door-to-door these days. Avon, incidentally, was the first of all the cosmetic companies to dip into products for men — way back in 1896 with a California Cream Shaving Soap. Its current list of men's toiletries and grooming aids totals roughly 40 products, from shaving soaps to colognes and what it calls body splash.

Aramis, launched by Estee Lauder in 1964, has become something of a modern-day pioneer in the field. Fast-moving and innovative, the line currently has more than 80 products — including three new skin-care systems geared to various types of skins, beards and climates. Last year, Lauder added Devin, with about a dozen products from antiperspirant to cologne and moisturizer with country fragrances.

While colognes and after shave draw a lion's share of the sales of men's toiletries and grooming products, skin-treatment products represent perhaps the fastest-growing area of this market.

Skin-care specialist Georgette Klinger came out with her first products for men and established her first men's salon in New York in 1972. Today the men's business in her New York, Chicago, Beverly Hills and Bal Harbour (Fla.) locations accounts for about 15 percent of her total business. Klinger said her men's and women's business are both growing at the same rate, approximately 25 percent a year.

One of the newer lines, which doesn't have a fragrance or promise the ultimate in sex appeal, is Sheldon Simon's Therapeutic Skin Care Program for Men. It has five products to be used each day — a preshabe scrub, shave foam, facial soap, facial scrub and facial conditioner. The soap and the scrub come in three formulas — for dry, normal and oily skin. Simon will be in Chicago Feb. 12 to introduce his products at Marshall Field & Co.

Police officer not amused

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Nineteen-year-old Mark Alter thought it would be funny to point his toy gun at another motorist on a highway, but an off-duty policeman didn't appreciate his brand of humor.

Alter, of Massapequa, was fined $100 Wednesday and received a warning from a Nassau County District Court judge, who placed him on six months probation.

Alter pleaded guilty last Nov. 14 to charges of menacing and reckless driving.

Police said Alter, a student at St. John's University, was driving his car on Southern State Parkway last October when, as an apparent joke, he pointed a toy gun at a motorist in another car.

New York City Police Officer James Anderson, who was off duty, didn't appreciate the joke. He arrested Alter after an 80-mile-an-hour chase along the parkway.

Fish and Game official Dick Norrell, who heads the department's non-game species programs, said he would like to increase funding for the raptor rehabilitation program.

But he said even the department's game animal programs, which are the top priority, are short of funds. Since the non-game species don't produce license revenue like game animals do, it would be hard to finance non-game programs, he said.

For the moment, Fish and Game devotes time rather than money to the program. Employees scout for injured raptors and bring them to Strobel.

Norrell said the most realistic future source of funding for the raptors program would be a tax on sporting goods, similar to the existing tax on hunting equipment. He is also hopeful that increasing public concern may help the raptors program.

"Only in the past five or six years there's been more interest on the part of the public in protecting raptors. We have more and more birds brought in," he said.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, a division of the Department of the Interior, has committed money to helping birds of prey. Bald eagles are eligible for federal funds because they are classified as an endangered species, so the agency pays Strobel's expenses if he treats an eagle.

All birds of prey are classified as "protected" species under Idaho law, which means there are fines and other legal penalties for damaging them. But one person involved in the raptor rehabilitation program estimated 75 percent of injured birds they bring in have been shot.

In the year and a half since Strobel began working in the raptor rehabilitation program, he has developed a local reputation for treating birds. Now, about half the birds he treats are brought by people from Twin Falls who find injured raptors while hunting or driving. He has treated short-horned and great-horned owls, one rare flammulated owl (a 6-inch owl which hadn't been sighted in Idaho in over 60 years), sparrow hawks, eagles and rough leg and sharp-shinned hawks.

The vet treats the birds mostly by giving them drugs in careful dosages, and operating to reset broken legs and wings.

If funding for his work is ever established on a regular basis, Strobel plans to build bigger, safer cages for the birds. Then injuries like the beak cutting won't happen.

"But for now, the vet works mostly at his own expense. A bird operation, delicate work, takes about an hour. Raptors remain in his care at the hospital for an average of three to seven days.

Not many doctors have time to give free care. Strobel says he treats the birds because nobody else will.

"We've got to, or we won't have any raptors left," he explains simply.

But his efforts and those of Scott, who spends many hours feeding, healing and training raptors for Fish and Game, are based on more than a sense of responsibility. Both men seem to have a fascination with birds, an interest which has driven Scott to train himself as a falconer, and which, in Strobel's case, comes across in hunting.

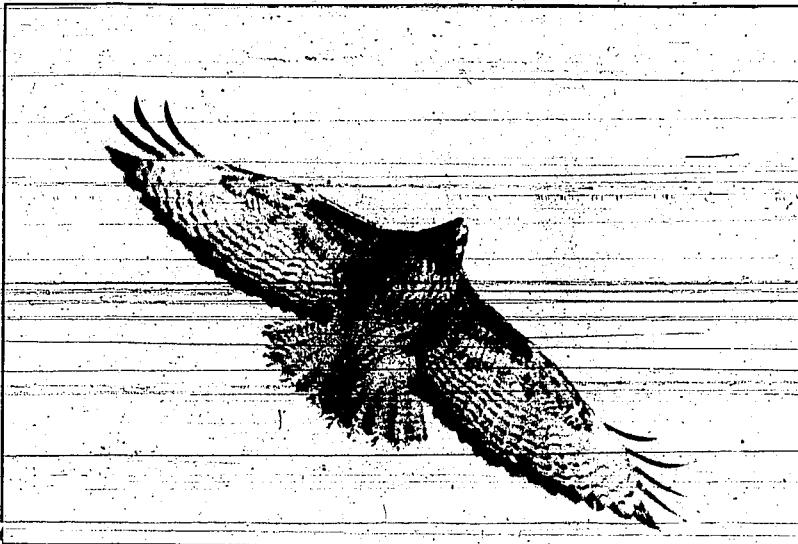

"I'm an avid hunter," Strobel said. A hunter, he said, knows raptors "have a purpose for being there." He noted that raptors are ecologically important for controlling rodent populations. Eagles and some kinds of hawks eat birds, but mostly their rodent control benefits outweigh their impact on bird populations.

Both Scott and Strobel see no conflict between these activities, which hinder rather than extend the life of birds, and their rehabilitation efforts, which do the reverse. They say they understand and appreciate raptors.

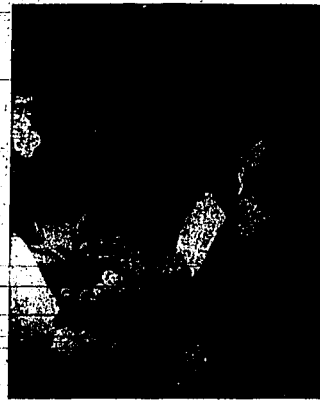

Scott thinks they should rehabilitate only those birds that can retain full health. From now on, he says, birds that can't be fully healed won't be treated at all.

Those who have seen a captured wild animal released know the sense of joy provoked by the sight. It's as if your own sense of freedom is extended.

The efforts of Strobel and Scott only make a small slab at repairing the damage done to birds by careless hunters, cars and telephone poles each year. The work of the doctor and the falconer is largely a symbolic act. They give their time and energy because they realize that an individual hawk, with his unusual sense of dignity and boldness, is worth preserving.

MR. AND MRS. KEVIN PARNELL
Slaugenhaupt-Parnell

BOHL — Shawn Slaugenhaupt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Slaugenhaupt, became the bride of Kevin Parnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Parnell, all of Buhl, Nov. 25.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized at the Buhl First Baptist Church by Rev. Paul Cox before baskets of fall flowers flanked by candleabra with orange tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown trimmed in rose-patterned lace featuring an empire waist with the full skirt flowing into a semi-cathedral train. Her chancelier lace headpiece held a tiered bridd illusion fingertip veil.

As tokens of sentiment, the bride wore the traditional blue garter and a pearl necklace given to her by her sister, Cheryl Scribner of Silver Bow, Mont., was matron of honor for her sister, Susan Parnell, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

Mistyly Parnell, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl and Tony Scribner, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

John Barness, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man and Roger Taberner served as groomsmen.

Ushers were Bill Parnell, brother of the bridegroom, and Alan Slaughter, brother of the bride. Jerry Shafer and Bryan Howerton lighted the candles.

Mrs. Tom Parnell was organist with Tom and Susan Parnell as soloists.

At the reception following the ceremony the bride's table, covered with white lace, featured a four-tiered cake decorated in orange and gold with rust and green accents and topped with miniature wedding scene.

Tori Inchausti was in charge of the guest book. Loy Spencer of Logan, Utah, and Becky Barness of Twin Falls cut and served the cake. Mrs. Ray Barness and Mrs. Ed Wheeler, aunts of the bridegroom, served punch and coffee.

Special guests were M.A. Parnell of Greenville, S.C., bride's father of the bridegroom.

MR. AND MRS. JORDAN DIMOCK
Allen-Dimock

FILER — Tamara Lynne Allen of Filer and Jordan Dimock of Olympia, Wash., were united in marriage Nov. 21 at the Peace Lutheran Church in Filer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Allen of Filer, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lois Dimock of Olympia, and Ned Dimock of Alsea, Ore.

The Rev. R.C. Muhlly performed the double-ring, candlelight ceremony before an altar decorated with arrangements of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Reuben Lierman, played the wedding marches and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Joyce Harding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long gown of ivory chiffon and lace, accented with satin ribbon. The gown featured a capelet bodice, long, full sleeves with ruffled cuffs and a flounced hem. She wore a tiera of white orange blossoms and green leaves which had been worn by the bride's paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Matilda Lierman, at her wedding. She carried a bouquet of white and white daisies, and carried a lace-trimmed hankerchief borrowed from her great-grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Held, Portland, Ore.

Maid of honor was Nancy Davis.

Best man was Ray Abrok of Pullman, Wash. Robert Feller of Boise served as usher.

The reception was held in the church Fellowship Hall.

Mrs. Don Lierman and Mrs. Mike Feller, aunts of the bride, cut and served the cake, punch and coffee. Cheryl Cox distributed the gold and white rice bags which were made by Mrs. Virginia Feller, Linda Sharp, Susan Gower and Donna Mueller presided at the gift table. Karen Lierman was in charge of the guest book. Chris Lierman, Greg Lierman and John Feller were gift carriers.

Special out-of-town guests included Mrs. Lois Dimock, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Dimock, and Ray McDuffy of Seil Rock, Ore., grandfather of the bridegroom.

The bride was graduated from Filer High School and is attending the College of Southern Idaho. The bridegroom is attending Washington State University and will be graduated in January with a degree in animal science. The couple will live in Filer.

MR. AND MRS. BOB BRUNZELL
Gould-Brunzell

WENDELL — Dianna Gould of Meridian and Bob Brunzell of Wendell exchanged wedding vows Nov. 18 at the United First Methodist Church in Nampa.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Gould of Meridian and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. D.A. Brown of Wendell.

The Rev. Joe Housh, pastor of the church, officiated over the double ring rites. Wedding music was sung by Brent Walker, accompanied by his daughter, Lori Walker.

The bride wore a gown of white lace and chiffon enhanced by a chapel train and waist-length chiffon veil. She carried a bouquet of Fuji poms, gold button poms and bronze daisies.

The bride was attended by Micki Foster as maid of honor. Meredith Lindley was flower girl.

Best man was Fred Blackburn. Serving as ushers were Del Gould and Beryl Passmore. Jason Gould was ringbearer.

The wedding ceremony was partially written by the bride and the bridegroom and the wedding was held in the same church where the bride's parents were married.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

Assisting were Marla Beckwith, Coleen Farley, Candi Cochrane and Jan Sevy.

Following a wedding trip to Long Beach, Wash., they are making their home in Cambridge where the bridegroom is an instructor and coach at Cambridge High School.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID CALLEN JR.
Johnson-Callen

JBROME — Terry Johnson of Jerome and David Callen Jr. of Chicago, Ill., exchanged wedding vows Dec. 22 in the Assembly of God Church in Jerome.

Rev. Leslie Lewis performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Johnson of Jerome and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Callen of Salmon.

The bride wore a full-length gown imported from England which was enhanced with Chantilly lace on the bodice and train. Her fingertip veil was trimmed with lace roses. She carried a cascading bouquet of blue carnations and white daisies.

Maid of honor was Betsy Jacobson. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Roy Devlissier of Solvang, Calif., Mrs. La Nard Orr of Boise and Mrs. Ted Fields of Jerome.

Best man was Dennis Pelligrove. Serving as ushers were Mike Brown and Carl Bloomsburg. Ringbearer was Chad Fletcher. Flower girl was Jenny Bennett.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

Assisting with the reception were Nadine Meyer, Deana Fletcher, Robin Piercefield, Jeanne Callen and Wendy Storer.

After a wedding trip to Grand Targhee skd resort, the couple will attend school in Chicago. The bride is currently attending the College of Southern Idaho nursing program and the bridegroom is a student at the Trinity Seminary in Chicago.

Smith-Rogers

EDEN — Tisha Smith of Ranier, Ore., and Greg Rogers of Eden exchanged wedding vows Oct. 6 in the Church of Christ in Twin Falls.

The candlelight ceremony was performed by Nevada Damell before an altar framed with a fern-decorated archway. Music was provided by the Church Singers with Jim Rogers, brother of the bridegroom, as soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Smith Jr. of Ranier and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Claude A. Rogers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long old-fashioned cream colored gown with a lace-trimmed veil. She carried a bouquet of orange roses and silk and dried flowers in yellow, brown, orange and white.

Matron of honor was Mona Robb, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Cindy Wright and Carrie Smith.

Best man was Dave Barnes. Serving as ushers and candlelighters were Kelly Human and Brent Hutchins.

Ringbearers were Michael Robb and Angle Daniels, nephew and niece of the bride.

A reception was held after the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered cake accented with orange and yellow flowers and featuring an orange fountain under the cake. There were two heart-shaped cakes in front.

Dol and Clara Masters were in charge of arrangements. The cake was served by Mrs. Masters, punch and coffee were served by Sherry Way and Connie Ulrich.

Karen Stringer was in charge of the guest book. Christy Smith and Connie Ulrich were in charge of the gifts.

A story with a happy, healthy ending

Fear of the unknown is something to which no one is immune, especially a family with a history of genetic disorders. For them, pregnancy is an anxious time. A March of Dimes-supported genetic services program at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, is helping to allay those fears. The program is headed by Miriam Wilson, M.D., chief of genetics division.

BONNIE KELLOGG, R.N., talks with Mario and Maria Scalin about their chance of having another child with a birth defect. The couple's second child, Leonardo, 2, was born with Down syndrome.

THE SCALINIS were referred to the program by their physician. They learned that there was a one per cent chance of Down syndrome recurrence in a subsequent pregnancy.

BOUNCING BABY Javier Scalin was born September 9, 1977, weighing in at 10 pounds, one ounce. Mrs. Kellogg examines the youngster regularly. He is healthy and growing well.

THE FAMILY decided to have another child. Amniocentesis, a test of fluid surrounding the fetus, showed the unborn baby was indeed healthy. This prenatal diagnosis allayed the parents' fears.

HAPPY FAMILY and a happy ending: Mrs. Scalin and sons Fernando, 4, Leonardo, 2, and baby Javier visit with public health nurse Bonnie Kellogg who guided the family through an anxious time.

Are you now ready for the Codfather?

By JOSEPH ST. AMANT
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Codfather, no connection with the Godfather, is a cheerful nutritionist who believes many human ailments can be cured or relieved with cod liver oil and an old-fashioned diet that includes butter and eggs.

Dale Alexander, who delights in the name Codfather, believes cod liver oil should be taken regularly by adults as well as infants. It has long been prescribed for babies to avoid rickets, a disease that softens the bones. It is an acknowledged source of vitamins A and D.

Alexander, 50, has been preaching the cod liver oil gospel since early in his career when he saw it relieve the pain his mother had from what was then called "rheumatism" and now comes under the heading of arthritis.

He extols the virtues of cod liver oil and his other diet suggestions in such books as "Arthritis and Common Sense" and "Dry Skin and Common Sense." The arthritis book, written in 1950, has sold more than one million copies.

Alexander believes the body should be fed from within — like a motor car.

He said cosmetics are a waste of time because they don't do a proper lube job on one's skin.

"The skin is the true barometer of the entire body," he said.

Aside from cod liver oil, he advocates whole milk and eggs in his diet and butter rather than margarine which he says is treated with hydrogen to prevent it from melting in the box.

"Margarine pollutes the body," he said. "It produces sebum which clogs the pores and causes acne among other skin ailments."

He is unafraid of the cholesterol in butter and eggs, he said, because it is not the same as the natural cholesterol found in the blood. He identifies in his books physicians who believe as he does — about cholesterol. — Those doctors opposed to butter and eggs feel they may cause clogging of the arteries.

Alexander is against carbonated drinks and iced drinks of any kind.

"The ice cube is one of man's most dangerous inventions," he said. "Ice water makes the edge of your food."

Never drink water with music and never but never eat anything out of a can are among his other precepts.

His cod liver oil oriented diet will, he claims, strengthen the bones of young and old alike, and bring a shine to the skin and the hair.

Readers seek answers on hyperventilation

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
 Dear Dr. Lamb:
 My problem is dizziness, loss of balance. I am a nervous person, and my doctor says that I have hyperventilation. Will you explain to me what hyperventilation is and what causes it? How does breathing in a paper bag help this condition?
 Dear Reader:
 The kind of dizziness you are talking about is associated with a sense of faintness. That's different from the dizzy sensation some people describe associated with a false sense of motion. The impending faint is most often associated with inadequate circulation to the brain. Most of us have experienced the more common example of this — when one is lying down and jumps up quickly there may be a momentary swimming and faint sensation.

 Hyperventilation causes you to feel faint because it affects your circulation. I can't be certain that you are having hyperventilation as the cause for your faintness. It might be useful for you to have more information about the fainting problem. For that reason, I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-2, Fainting, Loss of Consciousness Or Syncope. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

 Most episodes of fainting occur when the person is standing upright and rarely when seated. The problem basically is too much blood in the legs and not enough in the head. This is associated with an excess accumulation of blood in the veins of the legs in most instances. That's why people who are prone to fainting episodes sometimes benefit from support hose or devices that prevent the pooling of blood in the legs.

 Hyperventilation means over-breathing. Every time you exhale, you blow out carbon dioxide, your body becomes depleted of its normal amount of carbonic acid. The loss of acid causes your body to become too alkaline. Since it is induced through breathing, we call this respiratory alkalosis.

wide variety of symptoms. Not only can it cause faintness, but it can cause numbness in the face, particularly around the lips. It can even cause spasms in the muscles of the hand and arm. The severity of the symptoms literally depends on how much over-breathing a person is doing.

Home education not Erma's bag

By ERMA BOMBECK
 I read a spine-chilling statistic the other day.
 Educational theorist John Holt predicts that within the next ten years, more than 500,000 U.S. families will be schooling their children at home.
 Have you any idea what that means at our house? It means our kids will be close to 35 by the time they graduate. My husband holds three college degrees. I hold one. We have never been able to tell our children anything.
 "I said, 'Children, today is Tuesday... ergo, tomorrow is Wednesday,' they would cock their heads to one side, squint at me suspiciously and say, 'Are you sure?'"
 I know it seems like a wonderful idea — having the children sitting around a study table at night singing "Inchworm," but trust me, I'm a pioneer parent who goes back to the days when parents alone shouldered the responsibility for preparing a child for his place in the world... the days before they offered driver's education in the schools.
 Now, there's a bit of home education guaranteed to stunt your growth. Maybe home education would have worked when the kids were younger. I had the "tear factor" going for me then, I would reach out to pick a piece of lint off their jacket, put their collar outside a sweater, or pat them on the head, and they would flinch. They were never really too sure. As years went by, they came to know me too well and they stopped flinching.

 I stopped by my son's room the other night, poked my head in the door and said, "How's it going?"
 He said, "The Celtics are ahead by two."
 "Mom, fella," I said, "that will never do. I'll help you with your homework. Got a pencil?"
 He spread out on his desk his "School Organizer," a notebook that looked like a General Services warehouse.
 "Could we talk about math?" I asked. He turned on his calculator with the printout and asked, "What do you want to know?"
 "Want me to read through your essay?" He flipped the cover off his electric typewriter and said, "It's done."
 "I can give you Spanish words," He pointed to his audit cassette tapes and said, "No need."
 "Hey, how about some history questions?" He said, "I borrowed a computer from the library. It's all there. I just push a button."

I closed the door softly. Why did I have the feeling that it was only a matter of time before I would be replaced by a box, a beep and two dry cell batteries.

Cacti need special care during winter

By Judi Main
 ©Chicago Sun-Times
 Are your column cacti developing hunched figures from lack of light during winter months? Do they grow fat during the summer, weak and spindly during the short-day seasons, then fat again as light intensity increases in the spring?
 Not only is this growth habit unsightly as your cactus grows tall and branches, but the fragile growth may be unable to support this weight. Foliage plants are easily pruned of their weak, winter growth. Column cacti and "organ pipe" cacti, however, are prized for their towering, uninterrupted stalks and, lacking foliage, are unable to hide the unsightly stumps of annual pruning.
 To prevent this roller coaster growth, nature places plants in dormancy. Lack of light and cool temperatures are accompanied by periods of drought to slow the food-making process and, therefore, cell formation. By mimicking nature, you can prevent weak growth.
 During winter months, it is impossible to give cacti too much light. The intensity at northern latitudes is far less than the levels in more southern climates where cacti normally grow. Humidity and pollution also block the sun's rays so that, even on the brightest days, cacti can use artificial lighting.

 Banks of fluorescent lights are the most economical method of lighting your plants but are only practical for small cacti unless you have a room where these fixtures line a ceiling. Incandescent spotlights are more suitable for large specimen plants since they are more portable.
 Do not place incandescents too close to your plants. These bulbs, unlike fluorescents, give off enough heat to scorch tissues within inches of the lamp.
 Since cool temperatures trigger dormancy, it is important not to overheat your cacti during winter. Most will tolerate temperatures down to 40 degrees. If you have radiators or heating vents around your windows, place your plants in the coolest area of your home and use artificial lighting.

The Secret of Our Success... We SELL MORE for LESS

Making Homes Beautiful

by JoAnn Rose

PRIVATE CORNERS

After the holiday hubbub, most of us welcome a chance to be by ourselves, all in a private corner. Such personal sanctuaries are a valuable part of planning for any home, a welcome bonus in livability, at any season.

Even a small bedroom can offer such a retreat for the woman of the house, a place to relax and be by herself! If she chooses, to sew or knit or read, have a cup of coffee or just "take a breather."

The first thing to provide in such a private corner is a comfortable chair, or a chaise, with a table for a lamp, knick-knacks and other small needs. If you have a hobby that needs storage, consider a small storage piece that can double as a lamp table.

Almost equally important, give your private corner a personal touch — with a special favorite color or a fabric, with plants or accessories you like, with something that speaks privately to you — one of you.

Looking for a pretty bedroom chair or chaise, that special table or lamp that is just right for any corner of your home? Stop in and browse through our collection of quality home furnishings, and get your new year off to a lovely start!

Her four grandchildren am't letter perfect

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN.
Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This may seem petty, but it has irritated me for a long time. My only son lives out of state with his wife and four children who are from 8 to 18 years old. I have sent the children expensive gifts on their birthdays, Christmas, Easter, as well as from my travels. Would you believe that I have NEVER received a personal thank-you note from any of my grandchildren? Oh, I get a "thank-you," but it is always written by their mother, who says something like, "Billy is too busy to write, so I am thanking you for your thoughtful gift, etc. etc."

Every time I get one of these mother-written thank-you notes - I am resentful and hurt. My grandchildren are capable of writing their own letters and should do so. My daughter-in-law is a lovely person, always doing for others in her volunteer work, but she is failing in her duty to teach her children the importance of good manners in this regard.

Perhaps if she were to see this in your column (which I know she reads in the Chicago Tribune), she would get the hint and mend her ways.

GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Readers seldom see themselves in my column - they see only others. What about your son? They're his children, too. Why shouldn't he share the responsibility of helping his children cultivate good habits?

Tell your son and his wife how you feel about their children's proxy thank-yous. And it wouldn't hurt to tell the kids, too.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 33, divorced (no kids), attractive, and I'd like to quit working and marry a man who can take good care of me? (Please, no lectures on "Where's your pride?") I was married for nine years to a guy who was allergic to work. I took care of him all that time, and now I'd like to be on the other end of that kind of deal.)

I'm dating a 52-year-old man who wants to marry me. He qualifies in every respect. (He has money and doesn't mind spending it.) There are only two things wrong with him. He has a potbelly - which really turns me off. And he smokes cigars. (About 10 a day.)

Would it be a mistake for me to tell him I'll marry him if he gets rid of the potbelly and cigars?

MIDGE

DEAR MIDGE: Yes. If he were to agree to lose the potbelly and give up the cigars, you'd have no guarantee that he wouldn't develop another pot and resume cigar smoking. Take him as he is, or not at all.

Pop music, films make news in '78

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International
Billy Joel made it big in 1978. Keith Moon and Terry Kath died. The Rolling Stones weathered a Canadian storm. New Wave began showing its stuff. And disco was hotter than ever.

But the biggest story in popular music during 1978 was the movies. After a couple of dozen years of regarding one another with a kind of envious antagonism, America's two most popular art forms, film and pop music, finally decided that they weren't such strange bed partners after all.

And the result was a mutually reinforcing relationship: hit-movies built ground music - and hit records lifted from film soundtracks.

Following closely in the footsteps of 1977's "Saturday Night Fever" came "Grease," a discofied 50's retrospective with John Travolta in the title role, and "Sgt. Pepper," in which the Bee Gees demonstrated how silly it is to assume that because you are talented musically, you are talented dramatically.

But there were other success stories. "The Wiz" was a class by traditional Broadway-musical-on-film. "The Buddy Holly Story" was unexpectedly successful in capturing the mood of rock at its inception. And "The Last Waltz," Martin Scorsese's clear-eyed vision of The Beatles' final concert, wrote the film into a more recent era of rock's evolution.

All of these record-film combinations made money; some of them made a lot of money, even by Hollywood standards. So we can be certain there will be more.

Aside from the silver screen, Billy Joel was the top success story of the past year. A pop-rock-cabaret veteran, Joel finally hit his stride in 1978 and both of the albums he released during the year - "The Stranger" and "52nd Street" - made the No. 1 spot on the sales charts, a rare achievement indeed.

The Bee Gees continued their domination of the singles market. At one point the Brothers Gibb, their younger sibling, Andy, and another member of their musical family, Samantha Sang, held down five of the top 10 singles chart places among them.

Inevitably, there was a share of tragedy - 1978, the pop music story. Drummer Keith Moon of The Who the band whose early hit "My Generation" included the line, "Hope I die before I get old" - died of drugs and alcohol at age 30. And guitarist Terry Kath of the band Chicago shot himself, while demonstrating that his gun wasn't loaded.

The Rolling Stones (feared for a time on the brink of disaster when guitarist Keith Richard faced heroin trafficking charges in Canada; a conviction could have meant the Stones would never appear in the United States again. Despite the tension, the Stones released one of the finest albums of their career, "Some Girls," followed that with a highly successful U.S. tour, and Richard was eventually cleared of the most damaging accusations.

Punk rock managed to acquire a worse reputation than ever as bassist Sid Vicious of the defunct British band The Sex Pistols was charged with murdering a woman companion in New York. But most of the best bands that could be grouped under the umbrella label of New Wave, a broader and more sophisticated category than punk, made some of the most innovative, intelligent music of the year.

The Cars, a Boston New Wave group, debuted with one of the 1978's best records, "Talking Heads and Blondie continued to build on their art school roots, and the bizarre, mechanistic DEVO alienated almost everyone - and spent a lot of time laughing about it - in private.

Among the up-and-coming pop stars, the most obvious bet was Nick Gilder, whose "Hot Child in the City" was one of the year's best singles. And veteran session guitarist, Robert Johnson turned up at year's end with a new, driving rock 'n' roll collection, "Close Personal Friend."

There was innovation from rock veterans as well - Jackson Browne released the definitive "on the road" album, a collection of all-new material recorded live, "Running On Empty."

CBS brings the new year in with top ratings

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer
NEW-YORK (UPI)— CBS started the new year "right" — by learning it was the top-rated network for the final week of 1978 and "in command" of second place for the television season that began last September.
All this was accomplished with a very solid performance in the "upper-middle class" of the ratings for the final week of 1978, with only one show in the bottom ten and only two shows in the bottom 20.

"ABC continues its dominance for the season, and there is no doubt the network will wind up in first place for the season. Its old standbys such as "Laverne & Shirley," "Three's Company" and "Happy Days" remain the top three shows in the ratings.

More striking in the new show department, it has two solid hits in "Mork & Minky" and "Taxi," with "Vegas" and "Battestar Galactica" well within the survival zone.
"Battestar" has suffered low audiences the last two weeks because of the holiday weekends. Still, the poor ratings indicate a weakness in what had been billed as the most promising show of the season before its premiere last fall. The CBS lineup of Sunday shows fared much better, despite the lessening-of-television-viewing-interest on Christmas and New Year's Eves.

CBS also had some good news in that "Les Miserables" turned out to be the kind of special that gives the miseries to the opposition, winning its time period — which means taking over last Wednesday night.

Another plus for CBS was the huge audience for the NFL-playoff game, which lopped over into the 7-8 p.m. (Eastern time) period, pushing the rest of the schedule forward an hour. Although the game doesn't show up in the official Nielsen ratings because the statistics on audience aren't final, estimates indicate it will wind up in third place in the ratings with a 49 percent share of the audience.

Not all the news is bad for NBC: Its highest rated program was "Quincy" tied for 19th in the ratings with "Incredible Hulk."

Television series offers to help parents understand children

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most demanding, difficult, bewildering — and important — jobs is one for which practically no one receives any training or even very much help.

The job is being a parent and almost everyone who has tried his hand at it has wondered, at one time or another, what he or she was doing wrong — or right.

Now there's a television series offering to help parents understand their children — without loading them down with unsolicited advice. It's called "Footsteps," a 20-segment series sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education, that began on PBS Jan. 6.

The danger in reviewing "Footsteps" is that as soon as you say it's educational, the audience smoothers a yawn. Try it, you'll like it. First and foremost, "Footsteps" offers charming entertainment, occasionally moving family drama, and some of the most adorable children you'll ever see.

The format opens with Penny Marshall ("Laverne & Shirley") and Rob Reiner (late of "All in the Family") briefly introducing the subject — a child's feeling of identity in the first episode. They will alternate as hosts with Mike Farrell of "M-A-S-H" and his actress-wife, Judy.

Although Marshall and Reiner are husband and wife, they don't speak from their experience as adults. Instead they remember what it was like to be kids — he wanting to be in show business as a child and feeling overpowered by his father's talent, she jealous of the kids to whom her mother gave tap dancing lessons in the basement and who demanded so much of her mother's time.

The main section of the program dramatizes a theme, using one of five families to make the point. In the first episode it is the Sandbergs — he's a lawyer, she's a newspaper reporter — they have two children, Allison, 5, and Chris, 3.

Allison increasingly during the day feels "invisible" — Mommy pays too much attention to Chris and is too busy to listen to her while in school; the teacher doesn't see her and picks another child to be queen in a play. That sets up the problem. The message is clear — children's naughty behavior can signal a problem and parents can find special ways to help children.

Bonfire stresses opinion

MIDLAND, Pa. (UPI) — To stress their opinion that "smoking stinks," the owners of Ernie's Pharmacy will make a bonfire of some $600 in tobacco products.

Ernie Dostalik and Mike Hornick have already emptied the display case that once held pipe tobacco and cigars and filled the shelves with candy.

At noon Monday, 80 cartons of cigarettes and $200 worth of cigars and pipe tobacco will go up in a bonfire as part of the nationwide "Smoking Stinks" campaign the American Cancer Society will kick off the same day.

The pair could have halted future orders and sold their inventory without financial loss, but they said smoking was too serious to keep silent about.

"You really can't take it too lightly," Dostalik said. "We're in the health care business and we just feel we shouldn't add to the health problems of people."

Hornick, who used to smoke three packs a day, said he is not worried about losing money from retail sales of the products.

"It was a convenience for the customers," he said. "That kind of convenience we don't really need."

Test for heartburn helps in diagnosis

By ROSALIND ROSSI
CHICAGO (UPI) — Some people get sick of their work.
Dr. Thomas DeMeester says one of his patients, a sea captain, got sick on the high seas. Another patient, an auto mechanic, regurgitated every time he bent over a fender or got under a car.

A 24-hour test developed by DeMeester helped diagnose whether these patients should have surgery to prevent them from developing extreme heartburn, a burning pain that rises in the chest and may radiate into the neck, throat and even the face.
DeMeester, an associate professor of surgery at University of Chicago's Pritzker School of Medicine, said the procedure is particularly helpful with children, elderly and the handicapped if they cannot adequately describe their symptoms.

Heartburn, which has nothing to do with the heart, is caused by a weak valve between the esophagus and stomach which allows gastric content to come back up into the esophagus. Heartburn usually occurs after meals.

"Certain things weaken the valve—chocolate, wine, fatty foods—and will make a borderline case worse," DeMeester said.

"Antacids may temporarily relieve the burning sensation, he said, but heartburn victims can be monitored to determine whether they should be treated with drugs or surgery.

The test, which costs about $100, involves placing a probe above the lower esophageal valve. The probe is connected to a recorder which notes whenever gastric juices regurgitate through the valve.

The test can determine the reflux cycle and thus help doctors in prescribing nightly or daily drugs.

It also is used to determine how adequately a patient's valve prevents regurgitation. If regurgitation occurs during more than 20 percent of the monitoring time, a patient's lower esophagus may be scarred and narrowed and surgery may be recommended.

DeMeester said the technique is unique in that it can detect problems before there is scarring of the lower esophagus.

If caught at this early stage, patients can undergo surgery to reconstruct the valve so it works normally. He said the surgery is a simple, 45-minute procedure that costs about $400.

If the valve is badly scarred, more expensive surgery would be necessary in which sections of the colon are substituted for parts of the esophagus. The procedure costs about $1,500, he said.

The minor surgery, he said, is an alternative to a possible lifetime maintenance on antacids or drugs, at the cost of $30 to $35 a month.

DeMeester said the minor surgery, recommended after monitoring, has been used successfully on patients who complain of heartburn during work or play, including the troubled sea captain and car mechanic, a submarine seaman who got sick every time the sub took an angular dive, and a golfer who regurgitated whenever he placed a tee in the grass.

It also was used successfully on a young boy with insomnia.

"A mother came into the office one day complaining that her son couldn't sleep at night," DeMeester said.

Woman faces spouse abuse charges

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — A 20-year-old, 5-foot-1 woman who "attacked" her 5-foot-9 husband and threatened to kill him was arrested and charged with spouse abuse.

Orange County Sheriff's Deputy Bradley Margeson said Earbaretha Thomas "was wild," when he arrived at the trailer she shared with her husband.

Margeson said Thomas had several scratches on his neck and arms.

"I tried everything in my power just to get her to calm down. She wasn't about to stop," he said.

Mrs. Thomas was jailed in lieu of $25 bond on charges of spouse abuse, disorderly conduct and breach of the peace.

Margeson said Mrs. Thomas measures 5 feet 1 inch and weighs about 140 pounds and her husband is 5 feet 9 inches and weighs about 155 pounds.

No excess radioactivity found in milk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No excessive radioactivity from China's Dec. 14 nuclear test has been found in the latest milk sample taken by the government.

The report was based on 54 milk samples from a nationwide surveillance system, the Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday.

The EPA said none of the samples taken Dec. 26 and Dec. 27 showed radioactivity in excess of what would normally be expected without a nuclear test.

Seniors running numbers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Police are dropping for a way to combat local racketeers who have discovered a new and particularly disheartening breed of numbers runner — the senior citizen.

While officers are reluctant to arrest elderly persons, they say they must enforce the law and discourage mobsters who are all too aware of the advantages of using senior citizens as foot soldiers.

Vice squad officers say numbers writers know judges are not likely to impose heavy fines, bail or jail sentences on a senior citizen.

Since the mob routinely pays fines and bails out its runners, this means substantial savings. And short — if any — jail sentences mean their elderly runners will be ready to go back to work in short order.

The problem was vividly illustrated recently by the arrest of a 90-year-old man, the oldest suspect ever apprehended, police said. Charges against the man were dismissed Dec. 21 on account of his age.

Vice Detective John Mook said senior citizens take to running numbers for economic reasons — either out of financial necessity or simple greed.

Mook pointed out that many elderly persons are on a fixed income and need additional cash to meet basic living expenses. He said some senior citizens reinvest their earnings in the illegal lottery in hopes of reaping a windfall.

Economical Spanish onions versatile and tasty

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)
Onion lovers know they have a special treat in store when they bite into Sweet Spanish onions. These onions are more economical during this season and may be baked, used in an excellent onion soup or sliced to top a hamburger.

Here is a different onion recipe that calls for green pepper, tomato, celery and a touch of garlic in a wine sauce. Baked Onions Provencale may be prepared in your microwave unit, too.

BAKED ONIONS PROVENCALE

3 medium Idaho-Oregon Sweet

- Spanish onions
  - 3 tablespoons olive oil
  - 1 clove garlic, minced
  - 1 cup chopped green pepper
  - 1 cup diced tomatoes
  - 1/2 cup chopped celery
  - 1/2 cup dry white wine
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
  - 1/2 teaspoon basil
- Peel and halve onions. Place, cut sides up, in a shallow baking dish. Sauté garlic, green peppers, tomatoes and celery in oil for 5 or 6 minutes. Stir in wine, salt, pepper and basil. Pour over onions. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes, or until onions are tender, basting occasionally with liquid from baking dish. Makes 6 servings.

Microwave method: Peel and halve onions. Arrange in a flat microwave-proof casserole, cut-sides up. Place oil, garlic, green pepper, tomatoes and celery in a microwave-proof dish. Cover and microwave on high for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring once. Stir in wine, salt, pepper and basil. Spoon over onions. Cover and microwave on high for 14 to 16 minutes or until onions are tender. Give dish one-quarter turn every 5 minutes. To serve, spoon juices over onions.

Baked Onions Provencale includes a special vegetable-wine sauce

Combination dishes add flare

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)
Winter root vegetables such as parsnips, carrots, rutabaga and turnips make excellent side dishes when served individually. But try combining two or more of them for a new taste treat.

These versatile vegetables may be sliced, diced, mashed, curled, shredded or pureed. Next time you want to change on the menu, serve mashed turnips and carrots or mashed carrots and parsnips. Both dishes go well with meat, fish or poultry — and vegetarians will find the combinations a pleasing departure from their regular fare.

MASHED CARROTS AND PARSNIPS

- 4 carrots, pared and sliced into 1-inch rounds
- 4 parsnips, pared and sliced into 1-inch rounds
- Bolting water
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh onion
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper

MASHED TURNIPS AND CARROTS

- 1 large yellow turnip, pared and quartered
  - Bolting water
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 6 carrots, pared and sliced into 1-inch rounds
  - 1/4 cup milk
  - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
  - 1/4 cup chopped fresh onion
  - 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- Place turnips in a saucepan. Add bolting water to cover, then add salt. Cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until vegetables are fork tender. Drain.

Turn into a large mixing bowl. Add milk and beat with electric mixer or rotary beater until smooth. Or turn vegetables into an electric blender container, add milk, cover and process until smooth.

Add beans to meatless menu

TWIN FALLS — Because of high vegetable protein content, dry beans are a perfect ingredient for meatless dishes. When combined with other grains such as corn, wheat or rice, their protein content becomes as valuable as that obtained from meats.

Some tasty main dish ideas include a hearty bean and vegetable soup topped with cornmeal dumplings, chili beans spooned over rice, or baked beans served with bran muffins.
