By ARTHUR J. SNIDER

CHICAGO — A survey of a million Americans shows that your lifespan may be reduced slightly if you sleep more than seven to eight hours a night or less than four.

The data emerged in a massive study to seek the causes of cancer by the American Cancer Society 20 years ago. One of the questions asked was: "How many hours of sleep do you usually get a night?" Six years later, the same people were again visited by the society. Only recently have the findings been analyzed.

Allowing for illness, age, insomnia and other variables, men who reported sleeping usually less than 4 hours were 2.8 times as likely to have died within the six years as men who reported sleeping 7 to 8 hours. The ratio for women was 1.48.

Men and women who reported sleeping 10 hours or more had about 1.8 times the mortality rate of those reporting 7 to 8 hours.

"These results do not prove that mortality could be reduced by altering sleep time," cautioned Dr. Daniel F. Kripke of the department of psychiatry, University of California at San Diego. "A longer-term study would be needed. Despite the enormous size of the survey, the conclusions must be interpreted with caution because the reports are subjective responses."

No relationship was found between sleep duration and cancer.

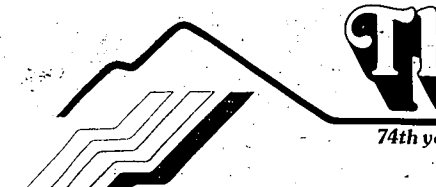

The most commonly reported sleep time was "8 to 9 hours" among both men and women of all age groups. However, many younger people reported sleeping "7 to 8 hours."

"It is comforting to find confirmed the commonplace idea that most people sleep close to 8 hours a day," wrote Kripke in the American Medical Ass'n's Archives of General Psychiatry. "In contrast to the notion that many people get by with little sleep, only about 1 person in 500 who did not complain of insomnia reported sleeping less than 5 hours. Fewer than 2 per cent reported sleeping 10 hours or less."

The survey also tended to support the reports from sleep clinics that most people who complain of insomnia actually sleep the normal range of hours.

"It is interesting that over twice as many women as men complained of insomnia," the psychiatrist noted. "Women also reported a much higher incidence of sleeping-pill use."

The statistics showed that those who used sleeping pills "often" were 50 per cent more likely to have died within the six-year period than those who never used them, but Kripke said it would be a mistake to conclude that sleeping pills cause death any more than the availability of rope results in more suicides.

Legislators give a listen to CSI's woes

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — In one of the year's more unusual budget sessions, College of Southern Idaho President Dr. James Taylor Tuesday told legislators, if needed, he would give back $74,000.

That is the budget increase proposed for CSI for the upcoming fiscal year.

Taylor said the amount was small enough that it could be either used by the college or returned. CSI had requested more than $800,000.

Taylor met with members of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee and said he understood the need for budget cuts mandated by passage of the 1 percent initiative and that this constituted at least part of the reason CSI was earmarked for an increase of only $74,000.

"I understand your problems," Taylor said. "I'm here this morning not to ask for any more money. If that $74,000 is too much, I'll give it back to you." If the state needs the money elsewhere, Taylor added, "I wouldn't feel badly about you taking it."

Taylor wasn't saying CSI didn't need the money. The Twin Falls institution, he stressed, has all the problems of any growing education facility. But state funds are only part of the CSI funding base, he added. If the state didn't provide the needed revenue, Taylor said, he would try to locate it from other sources.

Taylor defended the contribution CSI had made to Idaho. The two-year institution "has provided 2,700 jobs," he said. The strong vocational education programs "have prepared young people and old people by providing them with salable skills. It is much better to have them in the work force making a contribution to our society than to have them with a BS or BA, and on some kind of federal relief."

State school faces cutbacks

BOISE — The Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind faces a possible elimination of two full-time staff positions, unless it receives additional state funding, according to the Gooding school's superintendent.

Kelly W. Tolzin, in testimony Wednesday before the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, requested $32,300 in additional funding for maintenance and operational expenses, personnel costs and travel expenses for staff assistants who regularly visit deaf and blind children needing instruction.

According to Tolzin, budget recommendations by Gov. John Evans will keep the school "slightly ahead" of the existing inflation rate. But rising costs, plus a cutback last year in travel expenses, now mean sharp financial belt-tightening for the school.

The request for the additional $32,300 was made to cover those costs, Tolzin said. If the funds are not reinstated, "We have to look at the possible elimination of two positions."

"If we have to eliminate positions, then the end result will be a lessening of the quality of service we provide," Tolzin said.

Tolzin gained support for his request from Dr. John Swartley of Boise, a member of the State Board of Education, who told committee members "I would like to urge you to ignore the 1 percent initiative in this instance and fund this institution at its level of request."

The state school has been in existence since 1907, Tolzin said, and has been in Gooding since 1911.

According to state law the Gooding school exists to provide children who have hearing and visual impairments the educational opportunities "to acquire the skills and knowledge necessary to meet their maximum intellectual, physical, social, emotional and vocational potential."

Currently there are 114 deaf children at the Gooding school, 27 blind children and 27 who are multi-handicapped.

The governor's fiscal year 1980 budget recommends $2,385 million be appropriated for the Gooding school, an increase of $189,400 from the previous fiscal year.

According to Evans' press secretary, Steve Leroy, "We have never been told that this disallowance ($32,300) would jeopardize any position there. In fact, it would just reduce the increase. Mr. Tolzin has not communicated this to the budget office."

But Leroy said the governor's office would recommend the funding request, and that no final decision on funding for the Gooding school would be made until the situation is fully explained.

Twin Falls City Clerk Edythe Koontz registers voters for the recall election

Poll says Smith will stay

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Voters intend to keep Leon Smith as mayor of Twin Falls in Tuesday's recall election, according to a Times-News telephone survey conducted one week before the election.

The Times-News contacted 116 registered voters randomly selected from lists of registered voters on file at City Hall.

Nine of those voters (7.8 percent) said they do not intend to vote in the recall election.

Of the 107 who do intend to vote, 48.6 percent answered "No" when asked if Leon Smith should be recalled.

Saying "Yes," that Smith should be recalled, were 32.7 percent, and 18.7 percent were undecided.

Upon hearing the results, Smith commented, "My only reaction would be that it bears out what we've known all along. If our supporters don't get out to vote on Tuesday, then the recall will be successful, because it's going to be a close race. We all know that," Jim Williamson, the chairman of the committee pushing for Smith's recall, took a different view of the results.

"I don't think there will be any way of calling it for sure. I still think the majority of the people are going to vote for the recall. I don't think this poll was very accurate because a lot of people were calling me and objecting to the fact that they were asked to say how they will vote," he said.

"I think it's going to be more than a close race," he continued. "I think it's going to be an overwhelming majority against the mayor. That's the feeling I get from talking to people on the street and going door to door. I really feel there's that much opposition."

The 107 voters surveyed total roughly 3 percent of the voters registered as of Wednesday to vote in the recall election.

City Clerk Edythe Koontz said Wednesday over 3,500 city residents were registered to vote in the recall election, the largest total of voters registered for a city election since 1971, when 4,311 were registered.

Mrs. Koontz said 200 city residents registered Tuesday, 170 Monday, and 150 Friday. Registration deadline is Saturday at 8 p.m.

She said absentee ballots have been coming into her office at a record rate.

For Smith to be recalled, his opposition must draw a majority of the votes cast Tuesday, and that majority must equal at least 1,153 votes, the number of votes Smith received when he was elected in 1975.

Mrs. Koontz, who has worked for the city for more than 20 years, said she remembers elections in which as many as 6,000 voters were registered, when serious issues, such as liquor by the drink or the dog leash law, were on the ballot.

Inflation quickens the pace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation, the American consumer's biggest worry, soared 9 percent during 1978 for the second fastest cost-of-living surge in three decades, the government announced Wednesday.

The Labor Department reported that prices climbed by 0.6 percent in December, but would have been 0.2 percent higher except for a sharp decline in California property taxes—a direct result of Proposition 13.

Prices charged consumers for food, housing and medical care were the largest contributors to the steep inflationary upsurge last year, the department said in its final report on 1978 consumer prices.

President Carter has promised to bring inflation down to tolerable levels, and has geared his entire domestic policy to accomplishing that goal. The administration has forecast a 7.4 percent inflation rise in 1979.

With the exception of 1974, the rate last year was the highest since an identical 9 percent increase in 1947. It was the 10th time in the past 65 years that inflation has been 9 percent or higher.

Inflation soared at a 12.2 percent rate during 1974 when the nation was mired in a deep recession and struggling with the effects of Arab oil price hikes.

Behavior of pricing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Following is a breakdown of retail price behavior during December and for all of 1978, as reported by the Labor Department Wednesday:

FOOD
The cost of food at the grocery rose 0.8 percent during December after a 0.2 percent rise in November. For all of 1978, food and beverage costs—lumped together for statistical purposes—jumped 11.6 percent, the single largest rise of any cost-of-living component.

Prices of meat, milk and other dairy products rose sharply last month. Fresh fruit and vegetable prices declined, but by less than in November.

HOUSING
Housing costs rose 0.4 percent, the same as in November. But for the full year, housing prices jumped 9.9 percent over 1977. Home prices rose by 1.1 percent last month and mortgage interest costs soared by 1.6 percent. However, some of the sting was eliminated by a sharp decline in property taxes.

Home heating oil prices went up 1.3 percent, the fourth consecutive large gain.

CLOTHING
Clothing prices were unchanged last month and rose by just 0.3 percent for the full year, the smallest increase of any sector.

TRANSPORTATION
For the second straight month, transportation costs rose by 1.2 percent to finish the year 7.7 percent ahead of 1977. Most of the December gain was attributed to a 2.5 percent increase in used car prices and a 1.0 percent jump in gasoline prices.

MEDICAL CARE
The cost of medical care is a major concern to the administration. It tapered off significantly during December, rising by just 0.4 percent after a 1.1 percent November increase. Still, medical care prices were 8.8 percent higher for the full year.

ENTERTAINMENT
After rising by only 0.2 percent in November, entertainment costs increased by 0.7 percent last month, mostly because of steep charges for magazine and periodical subscriptions. For the full year, entertainment prices were up 2.8 percent.

But has the Moslem leader agreed?

Bakhtiar urges Khomeini to postpone return

By RAYMOND WILKINSON
United Press International

Iranian Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar today urged Moslem opposition leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to postpone his planned return to Iran for three weeks, an informed Iranian political figure said.

In return, Bakhtiar pledged to hold elections for a constituent assembly to decide between an evolving constitutional monarchy and the "Islamic republic," Khomeini has vowed to form in Iran, Dr. Seyfeddin Nabavi said.

In Tehran, the official spokesman for Bakhtiar said he had no knowledge of reports that Khomeini had agreed to postpone his return to Iran for three weeks. The last information available to him, the spokesman said, was that Khomeini still planned to try to come to Iran Friday.

Nabavi said Bakhtiar did not offer to resign, though an eventual resignation was implicit in his offer to hold elections for a constituent assembly within four months.

Nabavi is a medical doctor and a politician, secretary general of the Islamic Liberal Party, and physician to both Khomeini, 78, and Jafar Tehrani, 81, who resigned under pressure from Khomeini Monday as head of the shah-appointed Regency Council.

In Tehran, Bakhtiar's government ordered all airports in Iran shut for three days from midnight Wednesday to prevent a triumphant return Khomeini from 15 years of forced exile in Paris.

Bakhtiar's offer was in a letter delivered Wednesday night to Khomeini by a special emissary.

Earlier Wednesday, Khomeini spokesman Ibrahim Yazdi denied having heard about Bakhtiar's request but added, "It would not make any difference. . . . All we want Bakhtiar to do is to get out."

Khomeini aides said Wednesday the ayatollah, his entourage and reporters would leave around midnight Friday for Iran and would turn back to Paris only if every airport in the country remained physically blocked.

The official word from Iran, broadcast by the state-run Tehran Radio, was that "the military closed the airports in view of strikes by air traffic controllers and Iran Air employees who have been refusing to work for the past three to four weeks."

Thursday briefing

Bergland says food prices will rise about 7.5%

... makes predictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland predicted Wednesday that food prices would increase about 7.5 percent this year, but that farmers will not get rich from the increases.

He predicted the price rises would range between 6 and 10 percent but "an increase somewhere between these two extremes appears most likely."

Last year food prices rose 10 percent, with the farm value of foods rising 17 percent. The secretary forecast the farm portion of the overall food bill will rise between 5 and 10 percent in 1979.

Bergland said costs of processing, transporting and distributing food would increase 7.5 percent, about the same rate as last year, and costs of imported foods, fish and beverages would rise 5 percent.

The secretary, appearing before the Senate Agriculture Committee to discuss the current state of farming, said food in groceries would rise about 7 percent and food in restaurants about 6 percent.

He said farmers would be hurt if inflation continued unchecked, even though their cash receipts probably would increase.

Inflation would "continue to push up the cost of production inputs as well as family living costs and diminish much of the producers' real purchasing power," he said.

Bergland presented a generally optimistic picture of farm income last year compared with depressed conditions in 1977, pointing to a 14 percent increase in farm exports; net income at the second highest mark in history and a 12 percent increase in value of farm real estate.

During questioning, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., asked, "Are we really playing around with statistics about how well the farmers are doing?"

Bergland replied, "Yes sir, we are."

'Holocaust' setting records on West German TV

BOHN, West Germany (UPI) — "Holocaust," the American TV dramatization of the Nazi extermination of Jews, is setting West German television rating records, the state-run network said Wednesday.

It estimated 14 million to 16 million viewers watched the first two installments of the four-part series on Monday and Tuesday.

The viewing audience Monday was 33 percent of West Germany's 19 million sets and Tuesday it was 36 percent, the network reported.

"This is a record for the Third Channel, where a 20 percent audience is considered ... a network thanks to Bert

ATLANTA (UPI) — The National Bank of Georgia has decided to thank former bank President Bert ... for his assistance ... instead of asking him to reimburse money lost in dealings with Lance and his relatives and friends.

The board of directors refused Tuesday to adopt recommendations to seek repayments for money lost in dealings with Lance, President Carter and board member John Stembler and to remind Lance that he is responsible for helping the bank collect several shaky loans made to his relatives and business associates.

Payette arrest

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (UPI) — Acting on a tip, Payette police questioned and then arrested an unemployed Payette man on four counts of manslaughter Wednesday in last Friday's death of four persons in a hotel fire.

Police Chief Jerry Quada identified the suspect as Robert Mitchell Arnette, also known as Mike Arnette, 21, Payette. Quada said Arnette was charged with four counts of involuntary manslaughter and was held in Payette County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bond. He indicated Arnette will be arraigned on Thursday.

Nevada test

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (UPI) — United States Scientists detonated the first announced underground nuclear test of the year Wednesday.

The explosion was detonated 1,070 feet below the desert surface.

The test was not felt by residents some 70 miles away in Las Vegas.

Fuel agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has agreed to arrange delivery to Iran of 200,000 barrels of motor fuel and diesel oil to help that politically troubled oil-rich nation overcome energy shortages, the State Department disclosed Wednesday.

The fuel will be shipped to an Iranian port from an oil barge in the Persian Gulf.

Today's weather

The snow is still sticking around

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert and Northside areas:

Periods of light snow or snow showers will continue early today, decreasing later with partly cloudy tonight and Friday. Patches of white fog are expected Friday. Overnight lows mostly in the teens. Highs both days in the 20s.

Camas Prairie, Halley and Upper Wood River Valley:

Periods of light snow or snow showers will continue through today, turning partly cloudy tonight, with a chance of snow showers through Friday. Overnight lows 5 to 15 degrees and highs in the upper teens to mid 20s.

Synopsis: A weak cold front moved across the central mountains Wednesday afternoon with a second more vigorous cold front on the Oregon coast and appearing to be sliding to the south.

Snow fell over a good part of Idaho Wednesday and was expected to continue in the southern portion during the night. The front along the coast is expected to swing far enough to the south to miss Idaho but the eastern part of the state will receive continued snow today from the first front.

Low temperatures reported Wednesday morning included a 21 below zero at Stanley and a high of 21 at the Fern Ranger Station during the afternoon. Temperatures ranged from 15 above at Idaho Falls to 29 at Lewiston.

The extended forecast, Friday through Sunday calls for continued cold weather with below seasonal temperatures. Highs should be in the teens and 20s while overnight lows will remain in the subzero and teens. However, subzero temperatures are forecast for the high country. Snow showers are likely through much of the period with a likelihood of widespread snow in the north on Sunday.

The long range forecast calls for cold and snowy through Monday.

Special interest funds favored the incumbents

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special interest groups poured $32 million into congressional elections last year — and most of the money went to incumbents, a Federal Election Commission report said Wednesday.

Doctors through the American Medical Association — real estate dealers and automobile and truck dealers were the big spenders of the campaign, with "unions" coming in fourth.

The report summarized spending by political action committees for the two year period leading up to the 1978 congressional elections and in some cases, the figures will be revised upwards when final reports are filed.

"The enormous growth in interest group giving to congressional candidates — nearly triple in the past four years — is a disastrous development," said Common Cause vice president Fred Wertheimer of the report. "PACs have become a direct threat to representative government in this country."

"Congress must act to provide a new campaign financing system for itself, before it is too late to correct this fundamental flaw that now exists in our political system."

The report showed that 1,360 political action committees raised more than $77 million and spent $32 million on congressional candidates. House candidates received $23 million and Senate candidates $9 million. Incumbents received nearly 60 percent of all the money, while challengers and candidates for open seats each received about 20 percent.

The AMA was the big spender, pouring about $1.5 million into campaigns. Second was the National Association of Realtors with $1.1 million and third was the National Automobile Dealers which spent just under $1 million.

The United Auto Workers was fourth with $897,000 followed by the AFL-CIO with $830,000.

Pope says he'll mediate Argentina-Chile dispute

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II Wednesday offered his personal efforts as a mediator to help Argentina and Chile settle the border dispute that brought South America to the brink of war little more than a month ago.

The Vatican announcement, coming less than 24 hours before the pope's departure for Latin America, was cheered in both Buenos Aires and Santiago. But officials in both capitals put off issuing any formal statements until they could study the situation further.

"The announcement was received with evident satisfaction," a spokesman said at Chile's Foreign Ministry.

The pope's original action to intervene in the territorial dispute last month, when he dispatched Cardinal Antonio Samore as a peacemaker, was believed to have prevented a war.

The two South American powers have long disputed the ownership of several islands in the Beagle Channel at the remote southern tip of the continent facing Antarctica. The barren bits of territory have gained considerable strategic importance in recent years, largely because of the fishing rights they provide for whatever nation holds sovereignty.

After a year of fruitless negotiations, Argentina and Chile were bristling with mutual animosity. Armies on both sides were alerted until Vatican envoy Samore, during 14 days of shuttle trips between the two capitals, won two agreements that averted armed conflict.

The foreign ministers of both nations signed a non-aggression pact Jan. 8 in Montevideo, Uruguay, plus a separate request for the pope's help in future negotiations. They promised to "consider any ideas the Holy See expressed."

Wednesday's announcement by the Rev. Romeo Pancipelli, the Vatican spokesman, said: "John Paul II has agreed to the request that the government of the Republic of Chile and the government of the Republic of Argentina address to him to urge a mediation of the Holy See for the purpose of guiding them in negotiations and assisting them in the search for a solution to the controversy" about the southern zone of the two countries.

Funding for CSI argued

Taylor stressed CSI, like most other educational institutions in Idaho, did have a need for more funds. The $7,000 could be used for but it was a small enough increase that it could also be returned. Taylor said the initial CSI funding request for next year contained several items not approved in the governor's budget.

"I asked for a building for vocational education on my campus," Taylor said. That request had been for $100,000 in state monies, which would then be matched by an equal amount of federal monies. "The federal monies are available, the facility is badly needed, and it would be bad for us if we didn't make our tax dollars go as far as they can."

But Taylor pointed out only part of CSI's funds come from state general fund appropriations. Of a total yearly operating budget of $5,150,000 outlined in the governor's proposed budget for fiscal year 1980, only $1,945,500 is from general funds. The remaining sources of revenue include sales and liquor taxes, tuition and fees, federal monies, and other funds.

"Taylor said "if the state doesn't increase the money CSI needs, the school will seek aid from other sources. Noting that under the 1 percent initiative, local bond levies would have to be passed by a two-thirds majority, Taylor said, "If there is anyone in this state who could get a two-thirds override, you're looking at him."

Taylor urged committee members to exempt junior college districts from that two-thirds restriction now written in the initiative. "If we lose our local taxing authority, we'd have no recourse but to come to the state. If the state didn't give us the money, then within two years we could go out of business."

Taylor said Twin Falls and Jerome counties, the two counties comprising the CSI junior college district, had voluntarily agreed to support the school when they joined the district. "Those people knew when they formed that district they were going to have to tax themselves," Taylor said.

In 1966, when a $3 million bond issue for construction of buildings on the CSI campus was placed on the ballot, "It passed by 85 percent," Taylor said.

No final decision will be made on CSI funding until all education budgets have been examined by the joint committee.

Snow paralyzes Midwest again while winds whip the South

By ROSALIND ROSSI
United Press International
Snow fell across the blizzard-ravaged Midwest Wednesday, closing hundreds of schools, delaying air traffic and snarling highway and commuter traffic.
The slow-moving storm stretched from Alabama to the Great Lakes. It dumped up to 9 inches along its path and winds stacked the snow into six-foot high drifts in some areas.

The storm system pounded the Atlantic Coast with heavy rain from the Virginias to southern New England, where some rivers and streams already were full from last week's rains.

In the South, high winds and small tornadoes ripped through parts of Florida.
By early evening the snow had let up slightly, but strong winds continued to cause problems for motorists and residents braced for sub-zero temperatures forecast by the National Weather Service.

Hardest hit was Chicago, still reeling from the Blizzard of '79's record snowfall. Some motorists abandoned cars on snow-clogged expressways, many commuter trains were delayed or halted, and schools closed again.
Many Chicago businesses and plants shut down early and trains used emergency schedules to combat crowds on the evening rush homeward.
A motorist in Mount Prospect, a northwest Chicago suburb, mistook the Chicago & North Western Railroad tracks for a parking lot and got stuck in half-foot snows, delaying commuter trains for nearly an hour.

A Milwaukee-bound Amtrak train struck and killed a woman and her 4-year-old son when the pair, apparently blinded by the blowing snow, tried to cross the tracks in Chicago and walked in front of the train.

Snowplow crews at O'Hare International Airport — the world's busiest — struggled to keep one of 10 runways open.

This just isn't Chicago's year

CHICAGO (UPI) — The nation's second largest city, still recovering from a blizzard that buried it last week, Wednesday got "the worst" of a new storm that tore through the Midwest.
Nine inches of snow and wind gusts to 40 mph created near blizzard conditions. Blowing and drifting snow closed highways and schools, snarled commuter service and left only one runway open at O'Hare International Airport.
"The situation is bad," said a spokesman at the world's busiest airport. Many airlines canceled flights to the East and those destined for the West were delayed several hours.

"Chicago is getting the worst of it," National Weather Service forecaster Paul Kubecka said. "Midway (Airport) is reporting visibility of three-quarters of a mile with snow and blowing snow. No one else comes close temperature-wise or visibility-wise."

At noon, the temperature dropped to 20 degrees, with a wind chill factor of 5 below zero.

U.S. economy may alter Carter's budget plan

By HEDRICK SMITH
N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Carter stands a strong chance of protecting the basic thrust of what administration officials call his "lean but merciful" 1980 budget because it generally suits the frugal mood of the new Congress.

But even congressional supporters of Carter's fiscal conservatism warned Monday that the main challenge to his budget strategy may come late in the year from the American economy.

If it does not perform according to what many see as the "overly optimistic" forecasts of the president's economists, they say, it could not only balloon the budget deficit and play havoc with the whole economic strategy but put a question mark over the political future of his presidency, because he has made this budget his economic platform for the 1980 elections.

And no matter how the economy moves, Congress is set to challenge the president's spending priorities, with liberals attempting to switch funds from the increased budgets for defense and foreign aid and basic research to the domestic social programs that Carter has trimmed back by more than $12 billion from their normal growth.

Even as it was unveiled, the Carter budget was caught in a crossfire of conservative Republican complaints that it was not nearly tight enough and liberal Democratic charges that it made the poor and disadvantaged pay too much for increases in military spending.

Within hours, Democratic committee chairmen as well as influential Republicans were predicting that Carter had little hope for passage of his wage insurance proposal, faced doubtful prospects on $900 million in cuts in Social Security benefits and could not count on more than $2 billion in savings through legislation to curb the sharp rise in hospital costs.

Still others asserted that it was virtually certain that Congress would alter Carter's plans to increase foreign-aid from $7.3 to $8.2 billion and would find ways to shave savings off his projected figure of $153.8 billion for defense. "There's no question, those will be vulnerable areas," predicted Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, the Senate Budget Committee chairman.

"You're going to find enough flexibility in that budget so that Congress will adjust the spending priorities by about $5 billion," Muskie forecast. "That's quit a bit."

The kind of combative congressional session that Carter faces this year was signaled by the critical response his budget received in a private session with the House Democratic Steering Committee on Monday.

Later, the Democratic leadership threw its public support behind the general austerity thrust of the president's budget with some suggestions that Congress would try to cut the deficit below the $29 billion figure that Carter proposed. But both House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts and Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the majority leader, declared that they were prepared to fight the president on specifics.

"I did not become speaker of the House to dismantle the programs that I've worked all my life for," O'Neill declared.

MASSACHUSETTS AND SEN. ROBERT C. BYRD OF WEST VIRGINIA, THE MAJORITY LEADER, DECLARED THAT THEY WERE PREPARED TO FIGHT THE PRESIDENT ON SPECIFICS.

Church could face problems in 1980

Idaho's Sen. Frank Church this week assumes his duties as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee in the U.S. Senate.

Also this week, a group of conservative Idahoans has organized what they call the Anybody But Church Political Action Committee.

The battleground for 1980, then, seems to be set.

Sen. Church, an ambitious man who has already run for president once and hasn't yet shed his White House ambitions, pilots perhaps the most important committee position in Washington.

That can help his national standing in 1980, 1984 or beyond.

But his highly visible chairmanship of foreign relations may not help Church's image at home.

The Anybody But Church committee, with the help of national conservative organizations, has made it clear they are mounding the best-orchestrated challenge ever to Church's 22-year reign in the Senate.

And the Anybody But Church committee bets Church will be most vulnerable in Idaho because of his foreign relations policy.

They point out that Church has not taken the same view of his electorate on the Panama Canal. He favored signing the new treaties with Panama giving that country control of the canal in the year 2000.

Many Idahoans didn't like that.

Nor have some Idahoans liked Church's comments on normalization of relations with China.

Some will not like Church's probable support of a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviet Union.

Whether these opponents of Church's foreign policy are a majority or not doesn't matter as much as whether they are well organized.

A well-orchestrated attack against Church could quickly frighten the Republican majority in the state to back an anti-Church candidate to avoid the wrath of the screamers and the criers.

Church, respected in Washington for his foreign policy expertise, may have trouble convincing Idahoans — he is not partially responsible for what is perceived as a softening of the American spine on foreign policy matters.

He must convince Idaho he hasn't gone soft.

His second problem will be convincing Idahoans that no senator should stay in office for 30 years.

Church, among the 10 most senior members of the Senate, will begin his fifth six-year term if elected in 1980.

In other states, longevity in the Senate has worked against incumbents. In 1978, for example, 20 of the 100 seats in the Senate turned over, meaning the 95th congress is the largest freshman class in Senate history.

And 11 of the new Senate freshmen are Republican, only 9 are Democrats. Again, this could be a harbinger of bad news for Church.

Perhaps the most articulate and politically wise senator ever elected in Idaho, Church will not give up his seat willingly.

Already, he is talking of making sure the U.S. honors its commitments to Taiwan, both because he believes we should and because he knows it will sound good in Idaho.

On the issue of big government, Idaho's Democratic senator also appears to have read the message of the people: Church's economic pronouncements lately have sounded downright miserly compared to a few years ago.

And Church still has his one big trump card. He can get things done in Washington like no one else in the Idaho delegation.

For those reasons he will be tough to beat.

But as this week showed, a great many people in Idaho have begun doing their best to defeat him in 1980.

Who will replace Maggie?

WASHINGTON — It was a big day for Warren G. Magnuson — apparent from the way he beamed up at Vice President Walter Mondale, who administered the constitutional oath to consummate the Washington Democrat's election as president pro tempore of the U.S. Senate.

A largely honorary position, the president of the Senate is not necessarily a powerful person, merely a very senior member.

Magnuson is certainly one of the more powerful Senate presidents. His immense power lies not merely with his chairmanship of the Senate Appropriations Committee; it extends throughout the federal government.

The power stems not only from Magnuson's 34 years as a senator; but from his very sophisticated, crafty political astuteness.

Anyone watching Magnuson walk from his Senate seat to the back of the chamber, from which he was escorted to the rostrum by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., noted that the 74-year-old senator walked down the shallow steps of the floor like most people would descend a ship's ladder — very gingerly.

When Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., another very powerful Senate president, was in his late 80s, he used a cane and tottered about the Senate floor. But that was over a decade ago.

The median age of senators has fallen since then, perhaps because the voting public won't accept great age in its U.S. Senators any more.

Some will tell you that Magnuson is as canny as ever. But the lack of physical ease with which he moves and his impaired hearing quickly cast him in the role of a man much past his prime. It casts doubt on whether Magnuson could stand the test of tough primary and general election campaigns.

This all feeds speculation that Magnuson's Senate career will end in 1980, at the termination of his sixth term.

If you talk about Magnuson's future with members of the Washington congressional delegation and their staff assistants, three scenarios emerge again and again.

First, the Brock Adams scenario. This version has the Secretary of Transportation and former Washington state congressman already preparing to run for Magnuson's Senate seat. Adams, it is noted, has good connections with business and has been an effective campaigner. One Washington congressman suggests that if Adams declares his intentions, Magnuson will decline to run for re-election.

Second, there is the Norm Dicks scenario. The former Magnuson assistant, who is congressman from Pierce County, is something of a carbon copy of Magnuson — a pork barrel, meat and potatoes old-style liberal Democrat. One House staff member says Dicks is Magnuson's clone.

Dicks is personally close to another former Magnuson aide, Gerry Grinstein, who parlayed his association with the senator into a lucrative Seattle law practice. As Washington state's pre-eminent political lawyer, Grinstein recently added a thoroughbred to his stable when he hired former Rep. Lloyd Meeds.

"Grinstein's cocked pistol" is how one staffer describes Dicks, meaning that if Magnuson were to falter on the way to 1980, Grinstein would quickly move Dicks in to the race.

Meanwhile, the national Republican party can be expected to bet heavily on all Senate seats up in 1980, because the party is so close to evening the split in the upper chamber. Given a credible candidate like Washington Attorney General Slade Gorton, the Democratic candidate — be it Magnuson or someone else — will certainly have a race.

Caveat emptor. It's only speculation. But the Magnuson succession question is probably the most whispered, pervasive off-the-record topic of conversation these days among Washington's political cadre on Capitol Hill.

Iranian revolution fuels serious world dilemmas

By JOHN B. OAKES
N.Y. Times Service
The Iranian revolution has not yet ended. No matter which way it goes and how it will ultimately affect the people of Iran, it is already shaping up as a sure "plus" for the Russians, a big "minus" for the United States, a major threat to the Saudis, a near-disaster to Israel — and a new imperative for Egyptian-Israeli peace.

The Soviet Union. For all their ritualistic support of the Communist Tudeh party within Iran, and of clandestine radio propaganda broadcasts from Soviet soil, the Russians had established a modus vivendi with the shah, for whom they had built a huge steel mill in return for large quantities of natural gas. They have too large and restive a Moslem population within their own southern borders to relish seeing him overthrown by a militant Moslem-nationalist movement, such as that directed by the Ayatollah Khomeini from his sheltered sanctuary in France.

However, now that the shah is gone, Iran — economically prostrate and politically in chaos — presents the Russians with a target of opportunity of which they will take full advantage as they constantly probe to extend their influence if not empire toward the oil and water of the south.

The United States. Synthetic optimism is now being to be cranked out in Washington. "I'm paid to be an optimist," said one high official the other day as he commented that Khomeini is really not so bad after all "and will bring only a little segregation and censorship" in his train.

But neither the optimism nor President Carter's frantic and belated support of the shaky regime of Prime Minister Shahpur Bakhtiar can cover the ignominious strategic, diplomatic and intelligence defeat that the United States has suffered with the inex-cusably unanticipated overthrow of one of our closest allies.

The Bakhtiar government and, A PORTIORI, Khomeini's xenophobic state that is likely to succeed it will have to keep their distance from the United States — and we from it.

With the closing of an American listening post in Iran, Carter has already found it necessary to express agreement with Bushkin's statement that Iran will no longer serve as "policeman of the Persian Gulf," although the billions of dollars of American arms sales to the shah in recent years have been based on the premise that Iran, along with the Saudis, would do exactly that.

The Saudis. The toppling of the shah represents a direct threat to the rulers of the Persian Gulf oil sheikdoms, especially the largest and the richest of them all, Saudi Arabia.

While always worried by the potential danger of Iranian imperial expansion in their direction, the Saudis also saw in the shah's autocratic rule, backed by his formidable American-supplied military machine, the most effective force for anti-Communist "stability" in the Middle East.

His departure is not only a warning to absolute rulers elsewhere that they too can be overthrown but also a reminder that they need peace and tranquility even more than they may need Jerusalem.

With the shah's exodus, the Saudis now need to work more closely than before with President Sadat of Egypt, the only other major Moslem anti-Communist leader in the region, whom they heavily subsidize. The Saudis and Sadat both need tranquility, stability and peace.

Are the Saudis flexible enough now to reverse their recent hard-line position and persuade their client

Sadat to move toward an easing of Middle Eastern tensions by going ahead with the pending peace treaty with Israel, instead of digging in his heels to prove his unwonted "loyalty" to the Palestinians?

The Israelis. The shah's overturn has even more serious implications for the Israelis than the loss of Iranian oil, which accounted for at least 60 percent of their needs.

With the shah's removal, as a potential restraining force on the nearby radical rejectionist Arab regimes, notably Syria and Iraq, and with the possibility that Iran's revolutionary turmoil may ultimately extend to the ultra-conservative and cautious Arab sheikdoms across the Persian Gulf, Israel's lonely position in the midst of a generally hostile and increasingly turbulent Islamic Arab world becomes more precarious daily.

Iraq and Syria are in fact proceeding with their projected union faster than expected. King Hussein of Jordan is again flirting with them; and negotiations over Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank, as envisaged at Camp David, seem further off than ever.

It is an irony of history that the overthrow of an autocratic Moslem ruler 1,000 miles away should place the future security of democratic Israel in such increased jeopardy. But it would be worse than irony — it would be catastrophic — if Egypt and Israel, both so desperately needing peace, now let the present (and final?) chance of achieving "a slap through their fingers" again.

HERMAN TALMADGE
in hospital

Talmadge hearing continues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Ethics Committee Wednesday heard a plea to exclude major evidence from its investigation of Sen. Herman Talmadge, now in hospital for treatment of alcoholism.

Talmadge's Washington attorney, James Hamilton, met with the ethics panel for 25 minutes to request a prompt hearing on five motions to exclude critical evidence of alleged financial wrongdoing from the disciplinary proceedings against the Georgia Democrat.

Chairman Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., told reporters the promptness of its action on Hamilton's motions depends on Talmadge's health, but they should be "disposed of in January," with the actual hearings beginning by late February.

Talmadge, 65, checked into Bethesda Naval Hospital Monday night. His office said treatment for alcohol abuse and exhaustion is a thorough physical examination will take "several days."

Hamilton wants to exclude documentary evidence turned over to committee investigators by Daniel Minchew, Talmadge's chief accuser and former top aide. Hamilton alleges the damaging materials were removed from Talmadge's offices without his consent.

Talmadge, now in his 23rd year in the Senate, faces investigation of charges of possible violations of federal laws or Senate rules. The most serious of the alleged unorthodox financial dealings concern false Senate expense claims and a secret Washington bank account in Talmadge's name through which some $39,000 in funds were funneled.

The money included about $13,000 in illegal Senate expense reimbursements and $26,000 in largely unreported campaign contributions.

Minchew, who opened the secret account in Talmadge's name, is cooperating with the committee under a grant of limited immunity. A federal grand jury is also investigating Talmadge's finances.

Democrats approve resolution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats adopted a sense-of-the-caucus resolution Wednesday that calls on tax-writing congressmen to consider cutting Social Security taxes.

The proposal, adopted by the House Democratic Caucus, was the first issue other than ethics discussed in the caucus session Wednesday. The caucus quit for a month without completing its consideration of ethics matters.

Rep. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., proposed the Social Security resolution. Its effect is a suggestion to the Ways and Means Committee to find out if Social Security taxes can be cut without hurting necessary benefits.

Congress passed a law in 1977 to increase the Social Security taxes. The increase in 1981 will be from 6.13 to 6.65 percent, which Dodd called "a monumental leap that will have a negative effect on both price inflation and the unemployment rate."

Dodd's resolution did not suggest any specific plan for the Ways and Means Committee, but said that committee should take "any and all actions necessary" to bring some relief before the 96th Congress ends Jan. 1, 1981.

"It should be no surprise to anyone that the two most important problems are inflation and unemployment," Dodd said, adding that Social Security tax increases will aggravate both problems.

Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Texas, said the taxes could not be cut without either reducing benefits or threatening the solvency of the system.

"Does anyone really think we are going to cut the benefits of Social Security?" Pickle asked.

Pickle said he feared the resolution would "lock the committee into a position it cannot easily get out of."

Senate subcommittee hears temple stories

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. Jim Jones of the Peoples Temple cult had an estimated 150 foster children under his care — and at least one of them died at his Guyana horror camp, a Senate subcommittee was told Wednesday.

The others are unaccounted for, said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who held hearings on institutionalized children — delinquents, orphans and the retarded — being starved, beaten and sexually abused in facilities run by unscrupulous businessmen or cultists for high profits.

Assistant Attorney General Drew Days and 11 other witnesses testified about and documented cases of horrible abuses of children in both private and public care facilities, many subsidized by the state and federal government.

Cranston used the mass murder-suicide at Jonestown as the focal point for the hearings, announcing the General Accounting Office will have a preliminary report in a few weeks on whether the missing children were, in fact, victims of the mass cyanide poisoning.

He said the GAO is matching names of the Jonestown dead against names on In California foster care records.

"If names turn up on both lists," he said, "it means the Rev. Jim Jones may have received hundreds of thousands of dollars in government child support and that some of the children died in the Jonestown tragedy."

Local California officials have confirmed that 150 Mendocino County children had been placed in foster homes connected with the Peoples Temple and that Vincent Lopez, 15, Jonestown fatality, was one of them. Synanon, a controversial California cult, was reported getting more than $2 million a year in public funds for the care of 200 children in Marin County.

Author and investigator Kennet Wooden testified that it may be hard to account for the Jonestown foster children because Guyanese authorities did not require fingerprinting of anyone under 16.

He said 270 bodies are still unidentified.

Gromyko and pope chat a lot

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met in the foggiest audience of the pontiff's 3-month reign Wednesday, discussing the problems of Russian Catholics, the Middle East, human rights and world peace.

The discussion, on the eve of the pope's departure for Latin America, lasted two hours. Vatican officials could not recall any meeting between a statesman and a pope that was so extensive.

"As is customary, no official statement was issued on Gromyko's private discussions with the 58-year-old pope, who has fought communism all his life in his native Poland.

But Vatican sources said the pope was particularly concerned about Catholics in the Soviet Union.

Up to 96 percent of the Baltic nation's 3 million are believed by the Vatican to be Catholic.

On Christmas Day in his 24-language greeting to the world, one of the tongues used by the polyglot pope was Lithuanian.

Gromyko, in Italy for a four-day official visit, was heavily guarded by a dozen police motorcycle outriders and four carloads of counter-terrorist police as he drove into the Vatican through the Arch of Belts. It was the Soviet envoy's sixth audience with a pope, but the first with John Paul, who was elected Oct. 16.

Gromyko was greeted with military honors by a detail of

POPE JOHN PAUL II ... on the way to Latin America

Renaissance-uniformed Swiss guards bearing halberds and pikes. He met the pope at the threshold of his private study.

Also present at the talks were Monsignor Agostino Casaroli, the papal foreign minister, and the Soviet ambassador to Italy.

Earlier Wednesday, greeting a group of youths in his last general audience before leaving for Latin America, the home of nearly half the world's Roman Catholics, the pope waved a sombrero in air and asked the faithful to pray for him to be "a messenger of peace."

The pope said he was looking forward to meeting "the great Mexican people" and praying at the shrine of Guadalupe for the salvation of the whole world.

He said his Polish homeland's Catholic devotion "permits me to understand the peoples, the church, the continent whose heart beats in the shrine of the Mother of God in Guadalupe."

"An estimated 1.5 million people will see the pontiff in Mexico, but major temporal and spiritual affairs also lie ahead.

Michele winds up testimony

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Michele Marvin wound up her testimony in her landmark $1 million suit against Lee Marvin Wednesday, alleging in a parting shot that the actor persuaded her to quit using contraceptives which led to three pregnancies and an abortion.

The 46-year-old former mistress of the actor spent almost six days on the witness stand seeking to prove that Marvin promised to share all his wealth with her in return for her companionship from 1964 to 1970.

Marvin was scheduled to begin his testimony later in the day as an "unfriendly witness" called by Miss Marvin's attorney, Marvin Mitchell.

Under questioning by Mitchell, the former singer-dancer said she used contraceptives during sexual relations with Marvin during their first months together and then they had a "discussion."

"Lee said that contraceptives kind of bothered him physically and also psychologically," she said.

"What did you do?" asked Mitchell.

"I quit using them. For a month I took birth control pills and then I stopped that."

"Because they made my breasts larger and they bothered Lee."

Under earlier cross examination by Marvin's attorney, David Kagon, Miss Marvin told of taking trips with the Oscar-winning actor to London, Hawaii, the South Pacific and Tokyo, and it mestic travels to New York, Tucson, Ariz., Aspen, Colo., Squaw Valley, Calif., and Baker, Ore.

Firelady keeps on fighting

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Firefighter Linda Eaton Wednesday stuck to her vow and again breast fed her son at the fire station. A couple hours later, she was out the door sent home by city fathers without pay.

Assistant City Manager Dale Helling said city officials "are firm in our stance, we feel we are right, we won't consider any compromise."

Ms. Eaton, a 25-year-old who has never married, said she is planning legal action against the city and will continue nursing at the fire station Friday; her next day on the job. She said she will not back down against threats that she may lose her job.

"They are not going to back down, so I guess we will have to take the fight to the end," she said.

Ms. Eaton received a one-day "dismissal" without pay Monday after she nursed the baby in the privacy of the women's locker room. Fire officials also placed a letter of reprimand in her personal file.

She had asked Fire Chief Robert Keating for permission to have her 3 1/2-month-old son, Ian, brought to the firehouse by her sister during the firefighter's 24-hour shift.

However, the request was denied and Helling told her in a letter "legal and functional" problems would arise if her request was approved.

Helling said difficulties would arise if a fire call came in during a feeding and the baby had to be left in the firehouse without its mother.

Pennsylvanians trying to kick TV habit

HUNTINGDON VALLEY, Pa. (UPI) — Students and their families in Lower Moreland School District Wednesday began kicking a habit — television.

The experiment started as a project in a high school class but spread throughout the Montgomery County community. Hundreds of students and their families pledged to keep their television sets unplugged from 8 a.m. Wednesday through midnight Friday.

Students from kindergarten through 12th grade in the suburban Philadelphia school district vowed to take part.

William Pezza, a social studies teacher, said several hundred of the district's 3,000 students had signed cards pledging to tune out television for the next few days.

The decision to break the television habit grew out of a family sociology course as part of a project by two high school students.

"We were talking in class about the role of TV in society and as we sing its impact on kids' study habits and the impact on family living, and the fact that people watch television instead of communicating or interacting," Pezza said.

Financial demands

Mailer divorce reads like a novel

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (UPI) — The plot could be out of a mass-market paperback. Four wives, two mistresses, nine children, an Internal Revenue Service probe, and a flamboyant author who says simply he can't pay them all.

The main character, however, is no two-bit novelist. Pulitzer Prize winning author Norman Mailer began his sixth hour of testimony Wednesday in the continuing divorce trial involving his fourth wife.

Mailer Wednesday continued to detail the financial liabilities that he says have left him "deeply in debt."

His indebtedness, he has conceded under questioning, is due in part to his lusty lifestyle.

The critically acclaimed author told the Barnstable-Probate-Court trial he cannot afford to meet the financial demands of his fourth wife because he is saddled with $1,000 weekly payments to two mistresses.

Mailer, who won a Pulitzer Prize for non-fiction in 1969 for 'The Amities of The Night,' is contesting his wife's demand for $52,000 a year and custody of their two teen-age children.

Beverly Bentley Mailer, whom the author married in 1963, is suing Mailer for divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. The couple has been separated for several years.

She also is seeking the deed to the couple's house in Provincetown on Cape Cod and an apartment in New York City.

Mailer told the court he now pays his wife $400 a week and is responsible for an additional stipend to support eight of his nine children.

Weekly payments of $600 to his current mistress, Norris Church, and $900 to a former mistress, Carol Stevens, have also deflated his available income, Mailer has testified.

The Internal Revenue Service has a lien against Mailer's property for failure to pay back taxes.

Chad's parents to appeal

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI) — The parents of 3-year-old Chad Green today plan to appeal a court order that bars the use of Laetrile and massive vitamin doses to treat their son's leukemia.

Attorney George Donovan, representing Gerald and Diane Green, Wednesday filed notice they would appeal to the Massachusetts Appeals Court.

They are challenging Tuesday's order by Plymouth County Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra that they end the treatments they have given the blond, blue-eyed boy in addition to chemotherapy.

"The issue is whether or not a chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States of America is more qualified than you or I to make a determination as to which medical treatment you should have," Donovan said.

A busy day for Virgos

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are apt to act too hastily just now. Take time to consider future policies. Organize your ideas and plan on a very solid and secure structure. Be practical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You want to expand but make sure you know exactly how to do it and get the okay of bigwigs, too. You can gain backing from all types of individuals now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Gain advice from one who is an expert in high finance and then put ideas to work successfully. Kin don't understand your potential, but later on will do so.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A partner questions you in the morning, but don't give answers until later after you have checked facts and figures. Show that you are a logical thinker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get work finished early and then work out any new deals and problems with partners. Try a new tack at your work and get better results. Be careful of outsiders.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan arrangements for the near future before you get involved in all that work ahead of you. Put a special talent to work that can add to present income, give you more prestige.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is important you give more attention to home affairs early. Then handle business affairs well. Delegate the social to the early evening and be with congenials.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to help good friends early and then you can handle affairs in the evening. Be sure to take care of correspondence. Look into a new and interesting project.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make early decisions about monetary matters and then come to a better understanding with associates. Study a new outlet that could prove lucrative. Add to success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make personal plans early and later you can improve business affairs. Know what it is you most want and then get wheels in motion to get your aims.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Once you have formulated a plan, carry through in a clever and sure way. Seek out persons and activities that best fall in with your plans. Forget any foolish ideas you may get.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) The morning is the best time to jot over plans that concern good friends, then get into your own private affairs. Confer with an adviser who has good ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle community affairs well and then make your personal life more so you want it to be. Get needed advice from a prominent person you know. Evening is fine for being with good friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...he or she will have great ideas of wealth and power and will be able to place them on a practical basis and realize a good deal of success. Give a good education and teach right basics early in life.

What's what

The sequoia may be world's largest tree, but not the largest plant

A taven type might win a bar bet or two with this one: What's the tallest sort of plant? No, not the sequoia of California. It's seaweed. In the waters of the Southern Hemisphere, some such plants grow 600 feet tall.

The late Robert Ripley not only created but illustrated his renowned, "Believe It or Not" panels. However, it was how he illustrated them that was most noteworthy. He drew all his cartoons upside down.

Some doctors say the application to the eyes of wet tea bags reduces swelling and puffiness. Remember that, if your teabags are swollen and puffy.

You know those sodium vapor streetlamps? Trees under them grow a lot faster than trees under other streetlamps.

SALUTATION

Q: "How do I open a letter when I know the name of the person who'll get it, but I don't know whether the party is a man or a woman?"

A: "Dear Sir or Madam" is the salutation recommended by the better authorities. Maybe so. Doesn't make for much of an intro, though, does it? Personally, I prefer to write "Mr." and then strike over the "r" with an "s" like so: "Ms." That's tricky.

Q: "Printers ink rubs off newspapers onto your hands, but why doesn't it do that off books?"

A: Book publishers use ink that contains varnish. They also dry it in gas ovens. Newspapers can't take that much time, not if they want to put out news.

Q: "How do you account for the fact that cake mixes don't sell well in Japan?"

A: Most Japanese don't have ovens.

Vance gives a SALT talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Wednesday the United States and the Soviet Union could reach a SALT II accord "in the near future." Other officials said the administration is hoping for a U.S.-Soviet summit "in Washington in March."

Vance also assured the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that any strategic arms limitation pact would be submitted to the Senate as a treaty — thus requiring a two-thirds vote for ratification, as demanded by a number of congressional SALT critics.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., gave an upbeat appraisal of the chances of ratification after the committee had met with Vance for nearly three hours.

"I deeply believe that if the Foreign Relations Committee finds a treaty worthy of an affirmative report, that the treaty will get the necessary ratifying votes in the Senate after a hard struggle," Javits said.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the panel's chairman, told reporters: "The committee has now been positively assured that the SALT treaty will come to the Senate in the form of a treaty and thus the Senate, in its exercise of its constitutional powers, will deal with it."

John Connally tosses his hat in the '80 ring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally announced Wednesday he is running for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination — the first candidate — of both — nationwide — prominence and political strength to enter the GOP race.

Ronald Reagan, Gerald Ford, former CIA Director George Bush, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee and other potential contenders have not yet formally declared their intentions.

The 61-year-old Connally, who became a Republican in 1973 after service in Richard Nixon's Cabinet as Treasury secretary and who was acquitted of Watergate-era corruption charges, nonetheless joined an already crowded field.

Rep. Phil Crane of Illinois, Republican National Committee official Benjamin Fernandez and former Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota have already announced. Bush, another Texan, has formed a campaign committee that will legally make him a candidate in mid-February.

Greeted by cowboy whoops from supporters and family, Connally's announcement speech hit hard at the Carter administration and the Russians and did not duck his association with Nixon or his acquittal on bribery charges in the Watergate years.

His candidacy drew a blistering comment from Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who was the Democratic presidential candidate in 1972 when Connally ran "Democrats for Nixon."

"He's the perfect symbol of the double-talking, double-crossing politician," said McGovern, adding that Connally "combines the worst of both Watergate and Vietnam."

Apprised of McGovern's broadside, Connally quipped, "I gather from his statement that he's not going to lead the Democrats for Connally in 1980. I'd say he's a mad McGovern."

Other Republican contenders welcomed Connally into the field, including Reagan, who is considered by many the current front-runner for GOP nomination despite his failure to declare.

Asked during his National Press Club address if his Watergate indictments would hurt his candidacy, Connally replied:

"A jury — 10 blacks and two whites — gave the answer for all time and that was simply 'not guilty.'"

As for Nixon, Connally said: "My relations with him were decent and honorable. When I was secretary of the Treasury I served the nation, not him."

Connally attacked the Carter administration, as being "wrong for the times in which we live."

"The leadership we so desperately need has not evolved from this administration, and it is growing increasingly clear it never will," he said.

John Connally and wife Nelle arrive for announcement UPI

Department of education still wanted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will call for a department of education when he gives Congress an expanded version of his national goals Thursday, but there will be no specifics on health care or welfare, officials said Wednesday.

White House officials told about 130 members of the Ad Hoc Committee on Education that the message will call for an independent department of education — breaking this category away from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Press secretary Jody Powell said Carter will wait until Thursday to send Congress a more extensive version of the State of the Union message he delivered to a joint session Tuesday evening.

In the past, the administration has submitted the message on the same day the president made his address. The delay this time apparently was designed to generate more public attention.

"This will be obviously much longer and more detailed," Powell said. "It will deal with specific proposals to the Congress."

Powell then qualified that by saying some of the plans it will deal with "will be proposals that will be made at some point during the year and the exact details ... are not determined at this point."

In other words, Carter will discuss the decision to do something about reorganization, the welfare system and hospital cost containment, but is not ready to say just what he wants done.

The president said Tuesday night he wants a major reorganization of government operations involving economic development and management of natural resources.

"We do know that we intend to move in those two areas," Powell said Wednesday. "Exactly what plan we will propose there is something that's yet to be determined."

"About the same thing is true on the first step for a national health insurance."

Republicans say they'll fill the void

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican leaders of Congress said Wednesday President Carter abdicated his leadership responsibilities in his State of the Union message, and the GOP would try to take up the slack.

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said Republicans would develop a legislative agenda for the 96th Congress which would include tax cuts, welfare reform, foreign policy and defense, to fill the void they said Carter had left.

The two men appeared at the first of what they promised would be a series of joint press conferences, to be held about every two weeks throughout the year reminiscent of the GOP's "Ev and Charlie show" when Sen. Everett Dirksen and Rep. Charles Halleck held their regularly.

Baker and Rhodes were in unusually good spirits with Baker peppering the conference with wisecracks and a touch of homespun humor. Even the more reserved Rhodes appeared to enjoy himself.

Carter's speech, delivered Tuesday night, was the major topic on their minds.

Baker said the speech was "almost totally devoid of any new initiatives."

He said Carter had a national audience and the whole Congress in the only speech mandated by the Constitution, but failed to inspire the country or to offer any new initiatives.

"I think the President lost a great opportunity," Baker said.

Sun-study spacecraft at point of no gravity

By JOHN NOBLE WILFORD
N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — All spacecraft orbit something — usually earth or the sun, and sometimes the moon and planets. For the first time, however, there is a spacecraft between earth and the sun that appears to be orbiting nothing. It is circling a libration point, a point in space where the opposing gravitational forces of two large bodies (the sun and earth, in this case) are exactly counterbalanced.

The spacecraft, called the International Sun-Earth Explorer 3 (ISEE-3), is attracting attention not only because of its purpose, which is to study the sun from its vantage point one million miles from earth, and to act as an early warning system for solar activity that could affect weather and communications on earth.

The mission is also being watched by space planners because there has been considerable interest in libration points as ideal locations for future space colonies, for relays to facilitate communications with the far side of the moon and for staging lunar and interplanetary operations.

The existence of libration points was postulated in 1772 by the French-Italian scientist Joseph Louis Lagrange. He was able to prove that there are five of these gravitational null points associated with any two-body system in space. Three of these points lie 60 degrees ahead of and behind the moon in its orbit, and also 180 degrees ahead. Two others are on the earth-moon line — one on the near side about 30,000 miles from the moon, and the other an equal distance beyond the moon.

Early in this century, the Trojan asteroids were discovered to be under the control of libration points in the sun-Jupiter system. Astronomers in the 1950's observed several patches of light at certain libration points in the earth-moon system. Dust particles, some of them perhaps left over from the original matter out of which the solar system was created, had been trapped at some of the more stable of these points.

The ability of a libration point to trap a third body has not gone unnoticed by proponents of human colonies in space. Gerard O'Neill of Princeton University identified L-5, the libration point trailing the moon by 60 degrees, as the possible site for a huge artificial world supporting 10,000 people. It became the namesake for the L-5 Society, a group of space-colony enthusiasts headquartered in Tucson. Since such locations are also called Lagrangian points, a scientific publication began an account of the proposals with the headline "Home, Home, on Lagrange."

The first experiment in using a libration point, the ISEE-3 mission, was planned by Dr. Robert W. Farquhar of the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md. The spacecraft, which was inserted in its unusual location last November, is not fixed at the point, but is in an wide orbit, taking six months to complete a single revolution.

"The orbit," Farquhar said, "has been designed to pass slightly above and below the ecliptic (the plane in which the planets revolve around the sun) so that it will avoid excessive solar interference with spacecraft communications back to earth stations. To a person observing ISEE-3 from our planet, it will appear to be orbiting the sun, but it actually traces a kind of halo above earth."

Because the centrifugal and gravitational forces acting on the spacecraft are counterbalanced, ISEE-3 should remain in its orbit for at least 10 years. Small propulsion engines will be fired about eight times a year to maintain the spacecraft's orbital position.

According to Jeremiah J. Madden, manager of the project for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, ISEE-3 is "sort of an early-warning satellite for activity on the sun." It can detect solar wind particles speeding away from the sun a full hour before two other earth-orbiting spacecraft can do so. "This is the first time such correlated measurements have ever been accomplished on a regular basis," Madden said.

Further uses of libration points are being examined. Farquhar said Goddard scientists hope to send another sun-watching satellite into an orbit of a sun-earth libration point in 1983.

Flag-waving Israelis welcome Vietnamese

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — The people of Afula welcomed 100 new Vietnamese neighbors, including 65 children, to their new Israeli homes Wednesday with flags, flowers and candy.

"Israel is a good country," said On Nir, 23, a television repairman from Ho Chi Minh City, after he stepped off an El Al flight from Athens with his pregnant wife, Tran Le Phan, 20.

"She's supposed to give birth this week to our first child," Nir said proudly. Their baby will be a Sabra, the Israeli term for a native born child.

Just a few days ago the couple was jammed with more than 2,000 other Vietnamese aboard the rusting refugee ship Tung An, anchored in Manila Bay off the Philippine Coast.

At Ben-Gurion airport the Vietnamese were given residence and work permits. Then they were bussed to Afula, 12 miles south of Nazareth, where they were greeted by 1,000 schoolchildren waving blue-and-white Israeli flags.

Mayor Obadiah Eli welcomed the refugees and said, "First they'll be given apartments and in the next few days we'll start teaching them the Hebrew language."

"We already have several job offers and families have volunteered to adopt our new arrivals."

Each of the 15 refugee families was assigned a modestly furnished apartment. Afula residents laid out a spread of flowers, cakes, candies and fruit for their new neighbors.

Tran Xu, 41, a former store owner, left Vietnam in October with his wife, Duong Di, 39, and six children aged 6 to 17.

"I had never heard of Israel before," he said. "But when we were told on the ship the government would accept us, we decided to apply."

"At last we will be able to live in freedom," he said as he waited to fill out Israeli residence papers.

"With such a warm welcome, we have the feeling that we have now come home again," said Tran Thuan, 38, a former English teacher from Ho Chi Minh City, which he still calls Saigon. He arrived with only his 10-year-old son. "My wife and younger son were drowned when our boat collided with a ship at sea," he said.

Members of a group of 66 Vietnamese refugees, in Israel since 1977 when they were picked up by an Israeli ship, will help the new refugees adjust to their new surroundings.

"The first group is managing well here," said Dr. Tran Quang Hoa, now working at Tel-Hashomer hospital near Tel Aviv.

U.S. agencies correct in '56 Suez estimates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. intelligence agencies correctly predicted Israel, Britain and France would take military action in 1956 to keep the Suez Canal open but wrongly believed Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev was on the verge of falling from power.

Publication Wednesday of once-classified transcripts of secret sessions of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in 1956 provided the historical notes.

Allen Dulles, then CIA director, told the panel Nov. 12 following Israel's Oct. 29, 1956, move into the Sinai towards the canal:

"Certain information with regard to these British-French-Israeli preparatory intentions and (probable) intention of the Egyptians were obtained through intelligence channels of various agencies of the government."

"The intelligence community was convinced the Israel attack would take place well before that attack was made, and as soon as the nature and character of the attack and the surrounding circumstances had been analyzed, it also estimated that the British and French would intervene in the conflict."

Intelligence predictions on Khrushchev's fate, and of the dramatic Hungarian uprisings of the same year, were notably off-target.

"Khrushchev" lasted eight more years — until October 1964.

Atherton heads for Cairo, more talks

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — U.S. Middle East envoy Alfred Atherton concluded a round of talks with Israel and prepared to leave for Cairo Wednesday for further discussions on the key issue of whether an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty takes precedence over Egypt's commitments to its Arab allies.

"We have made progress and we will welcome Atherton and his party upon their return to Israel from Egypt and will continue the talks," said chief Israeli negotiator Eliahu Ben-Elissar at the end of talks with Atherton in Jerusalem.

Atherton told newsmen that after talks in Cairo he would return to Israel and hoped to resolve the chief remaining difference — whether an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty takes absolute precedence over Cairo's defense pacts with its Arab allies.

He said he also would be carrying to Cairo Israeli views on security arrangements in the Sinai after it reverts to Egyptian control and an article that commits the two parties to fulfill the treaty regardless of other undertakings.

Atherton said "a great deal of time" had been spent on the main obstacle — Egypt's demand that the peace treaty not take absolute precedence over Cairo's defense pacts with its Arab allies.

"We have succeeded in resolving most of the points with regard to this issue but we have not resolved them all," Atherton said.

The cabinet empowered the Israeli negotiating team to continue talks with Atherton "with the purpose of trying to eliminate or minimize the remaining differences" between the sides, Israeli sources said.

The sources said, "quite some progress" had been made in the negotiations. They said there has been more agreement than disagreement, indicating all that remains is resolving the wording in the interpretive letter.

The dispute seems to center on how to define aggression.

Israel is concerned Egypt could come to the aid of a sister state that has gone to war with the Israelis under the pretext of the Jewish state being the aggressor. The Arabs always have labeled Israel the aggressor.

Israel thus is looking for ironclad wording that would prevent such an allegiance.

Car invades bedroom

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Michael James Jr., 9, got a rude awakening Tuesday. He woke up to find a car at the foot of his bed.

Police said a speeding auto smashed through the front of the family's seven-room house, trapping Michael inside his bedroom.

The room was covered with debris, but he escaped injury.

The crash pushed the house off its foundation.

Wyoming senators OK 65 mph, challenge U.S. speed limit

CHIEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Wyoming's Senate Wednesday adopted a 65-mile-an-hour speed limit, approving a challenge to the federal government's national 55 mph limit despite warnings it could cost the state almost $2 million in highway funds.

The measure now goes to the House of Representatives, along with a companion bill to reduce speeding fines to $5 for speeds up to 75 mph. Backers say the move could trigger a protest against the 55 mph limit among western states.

The 55 mph limit, imposed in 1973 as a fuel conservation measure, has drawn bitter criticism in the region, where motorists often face long, barren stretches of nearly empty highways. "You're bored to death at 55 mph," Sen. Dick Sedar, a Casper Democrat, said.

Republican Sen. Cal S. Taggart of Lovell, the chief proponent of the bill, said he had been told by lawmakers in Washington State, Montana and New Mexico that they would introduce similar legislation.

"We've started a snowball that's gaining momentum every minute," Taggart said.

The 20-10 Senate vote Wednesday was its third and final action on the bill. The measure gained the support of four lawmakers from earlier votes. The lawmaker said his GOP colleagues in the House told him chances for that body's passage of the bill are very good. Republicans dominate both houses of the legislature.

Earlier, the senators rejected a move to appropriate $51.7 million in state funds to replace federal highway funds in jeopardy. Supporters said the lawmakers could meet that problem in special session if Washington cuts off the highway money.

Safety code violations

PAYETTE (UPI) — The Payette city building inspector said Tuesday the Bancroft Hotel, which burned to the ground Friday, killing four persons, did not meet some of the city's building and safety code requirements.

Jim Lewis said hotel owners Eugene and Clayton Daines have been working the last two years to bring the hotel up to fire safety standards. Several improvements have been made, he said, but other requirements still had not been met when the fire struck.

Hughes Aircraft strike ends

TUCSON (UPI) — The 13-week-old Hughes Aircraft Co. strike officially ended Wednesday as part of the 1,100 employees who walked off the job returned to work.

James Whitten, business representative of the International Machinists and Aerospace Workers Union Lodge 933, said the contract was signed at about 12:30 a.m.

Whitten said workers would be allowed back on the job without losing the seniority they had before the strike began and insurance and medical benefits were reinstated. The union agreed to a no reprisal clause for workers crossing pickets lines during the strike and would not proceed in grievance procedures for at least 30 days so the guided missile manufacturing plant could get back into full production.

Whitten said some workers were back on the job today but would be allowed until Wednesday next week to return.

Phosphorus tank car burns in Wyoming after being blasted open.

Railroad gangs repair tracks at site of phosphorus blaze

TIE SIDING, Wyo. (UPI) — Workers Wednesday labored to reopen three main lines at the site of a freight train derailment and phosphorus fire that lasted 39 hours, a Union Pacific official said.

The derailed train, which began with the derailment at 4:15 a.m. MST Tuesday, said Ed Schafer, UP spokesman in Omaha, Neb. The effort to dissipate the blaze was helped by the use of explosives earlier Tuesday.

"There's no fire in the area. There're just some hot areas that the fire department is watering down," Albany County Sheriff's Sgt. Mike Friel said in Laramie, Wyo., Wednesday morning.

Workers cleared all the derailed cars by 7 a.m. and then began laying temporary track. Schafer said he expected two of three main lines to be reopened later in the day.

On Tuesday, with the fire still spewing white non-toxic chemical smoke, UP officials sent in a crew of Army demolition experts, who blew a hole in a phosphorus car that was still burning. Phosphorus down a steep embankment, where it burned. The fire level was reduced in the car.

Workers rolled a second, burned out phosphorus car down the embankment and then pushed the still burning car down the grade. Later, a third phosphorus car which Schafer said was intact was carefully moved off the track.

The fire occurred, railroad officials said, because the two phosphorus cars ruptured. Phosphorus ignites on contact with air, they said.

The fire also burned one load of coal and a boxcar carrying an undetermined cargo, Schafer said. The cause of the derailment may never be known "because of the severity of the fire," he said.

Meanwhile, residents of the sparsely populated area around the site 12 miles southeast of Laramie, were instructed by the Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Environmental Quality on safety precautions for themselves and their livestock. People were told to air out and clean their homes.

Barry Combs, another UP spokesman in Omaha, said 90-100 railroad workers labored under lights Tuesday night to clear the area.

Grand jury credibility under fire

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UPI) — The defense for Ed Cantrell, top Rock Springs policeman accused of first degree murder, began its case in a "mini-trial" Wednesday by attacking the credibility of a state grand jury that investigated this energy boom city.

Cantrell, 51, is accused of murdering city undercover agent Michael Rosa July 15, 1978, two days before Rosa was to have testified before the grand jury. Rosa died from a gunshot. Cantrell's attorney, Casper trial lawyer, Gerald Spence, has said the killing done in a police car with two other officers present, was committed in self defense.

The hearing in justice of the peace court, which began in November and resumed Monday, is designed to determine whether a trial should be ordered for Cantrell, who is on a leave of absence from his post as Rock Springs public safety director. The proceeding has been dubbed a "mini-trial" by observers because of its extensive nature. Spence has subpoenaed 17 witnesses.

Spence began his case by calling Lawrence A. Yankee, special prosecutor of the now defunct grand jury.

Spence said in court he was trying to prove that the grand jury was politically motivated. He asked Yankee whether Ford Bussart, an attorney who was elected to the state Senate in November, acted as the grand jury's unofficial representative in Rock Springs.

Yonko said Bussart did not maintain an unofficial office for the grand jury.

Spence said that Robert Johnson, the incumbent whom Bussart defeated, was under investigation by the grand jury. Yankee said information about Johnson may have been presented to staff investigators, but nothing was ever submitted to the grand jury itself.

In response to another Spence question, Yankee said he took notes from telephone conversations with grand jury investigators, but that the notes were "gone" within two days. "Would you consider that keeping notes a part of any standard competent investigative procedure?" Spence asked.

"Yes," Yankee said. Throughout the questioning of Yankee, the wiry Cantrell sat in the courtroom, occasionally talking to friends and taking cough medicine for a cold. He was wearing a string tie, a brown western jacket and cowboy boots. His wife was at his side.

In testimony Tuesday, former Sweetwater County Coroner Peter Vase said that Rosa's hands were in his bag and around a wine glass when he was shot. Prosecutors had said that Rosa could not have made a move for his gun if he were holding a wine glass.

Consumer spending key to future of economy

By EDWIN DARBY

Chicago Sun-Times
Fearing recession down the road, are we all going to panic, padlock our wallets, tear up the bank credit cards and quit spending?

Is that — a cutback in consumer spending — then going to make a recession certain? Pleasant answers to both questions are popular among economists these critical days when the economy may be approaching a turning point. The gloomier economists can even see an economic collapse because we're all piling up installment debt, or so the Federal Reserve figures say, and we're not saving much away in savings, as everybody knows without consulting an outside authority.

"The consumer is the key to the timing of the economic correction that we believe is near," Merrill Lynch Economics Inc. says in the January edition of its Business Outlook publication. But the Merrill Lynch economists do not think we're in for a "significant slowdown" in consumer buying this year because of inflation on purchasing power and the burden of the debt already accumulated by too many Americans. And they do think the future holds "an economic decline precipitated by a consumer who is forced to retrench." Even so, they say, it will be a "moderate recession" of short duration as consumer spending once again picks up late in 1979.

Maybe we'll get away with that or something even less painful. There are those economists who argue that short of everybody going broke, and they can't see that in 1979 or 1980, the level of consumer spending doesn't matter. Sure, retail sales may fall for a few months and in the current situation Detroit may suffer temporarily, but over the long haul no fundamental damage will be done. This is theoretical economics. It may not be much comfort at 2 o'clock in the morning on the 31st of the month when you are worrying about how to pay the first-of-the-month bills. But it does bolster an optimistic view of the future.

"On a personal or intuitive level," says Roger C. Kormendi, associate professor of economics at the University of Chicago graduate school of business, "you say to yourself that if consumer spending drops off the economy will turn down. But look at the economic data over the years since World War II. I am not convinced that consumer spending had any causal effect on the business cycle. I am not convinced that it determined either boom or recession."

What Kormendi is getting at might be termed "slice of the pie" theory. If people tug the purse strings tighter, where does the money go? Most naturally, it goes to pay off old debt, and it goes into savings of one kind or another. It becomes the slice of the pie for somebody else. The department store, the bank, the finance company has more money in its coffers. One way or another the money gets put to work in the economy, making up for John Q. Public's decision to adopt austerity.

On the basis of economic theory, the shift is from consumer spending to capital spending by business. The money goes into the bank, the bank lowers interest rates to stimulate loans, and corporations borrow to expand the business. The economy picks up. (It that's the way it works, mortgage rates also come down as the savings and loan associations accumulate more money and more people get interested in buying a house.)

All this theory aside, and it may be of small comfort to anyone caught in the switches, the people at Household Finance Corp., the largest personal cash loan company in the country with several billions outstanding in loans, don't hold with the idea that the consumer is overburdened.

Naturally, Household Finance does not welcome the idea of being caught with large numbers of bad loans, so it does its best to gauge the financial health of its public. From loan applications, the company knows the income of the people who borrow from it. And, of course, it knows how much of that income must be used to pay off the loan from Household. The ratio between income and payments is the figure the company watches.

In 1978 Household's outstanding loans increased 12.5 per cent, vice president Jack Downing says. More people borrowed more. But, on average, they were paying less of what they made to keep current with HFC. (And delinquencies were lower.) Last year, on average, 37 per cent of income was going to pay-off the HFC loan. In 1977 the average was 41 per cent. "We see no reason for alarm," says Downing.

Proposition 13 brings decline in California consumer prices

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Thanks to property tax savings from Proposition 13, California's major metropolitan areas bucked the rising national trend and showed a decrease in the latest Consumer Price Index figures released Wednesday.

The December index for Los Angeles and Orange counties showed a 0.5 percent decrease, while the November-December figures for the San Francisco-Oakland metropolitan area dipped 1.2 percent. The San Francisco-Oakland figures are only reported every other month. Nationally, the index rose 0.6 percent for the month of December.

In June California voters overwhelmingly approved Proposition 13, which set severe limits on local property tax levels in the state. The first tax bills under the law came due in December and were reflected in the Consumer Price Index that month for the first time.

Taxes under Proposition 13 showed a reduction of as much as 60 percent from the previous year. Property taxes are included by the Labor Department in the cost of housing, and in Los Angeles-Orange, housing costs fell 1.8 percent in December. In San Francisco-Oakland, the two-month cost of housing fell 3.2 percent.

For the year 1978, the index for San Francisco-Oakland rose 7.2 percent and the Los Angeles area climbed 6.9 percent, compared with a national increase of 9 percent.

The Labor Department said without the impact of the California reductions from Proposition 13, the national index for December would have shown an increase of 0.8 percent instead of 0.6 percent.

The Labor Department said the Los Angeles-Orange figure was the first drop in the index in that area in nearly three years.

Births drop, income rises

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The declining birthrate has brought about a 15 percent increase in per capita income because more money is being spread among fewer people.

But, despite the increase, the average household made no real income gain beyond inflation between 1970 and 1977, the Census Bureau said.

The bureau said one reason real household income did not rise was that the number of persons in the average home declined during the seven years studied and more people were living alone.

The South had the highest proportion — 28 percent — of the very rich, those with the top 5 percent of income.

The bureau said median household income rose from $8,734 in 1970 to $13,572 in 1977. But inflation ate it up. Median household incomes varied substantially among whites, blacks and Spanish people in 1977.

Camp time now counts as service

SEATTLE — Time spent in internment camps during World War II can now be counted as civilian service by certain Japanese-American federal employees and annuitants.

Public Law 95-382 allows credit for any period an employee or retiree was interned or otherwise detained after reaching 18 years of age. The time period involved is from Dec. 7, 1941, through Dec. 31, 1946, and confinement must have been under a policy or program of the United States established in the interests of national security.

PL 95-382 applies in the case of individuals who entered federal employment after their internment. A 1969 law provided credit for those whose careers were interrupted by the war-time measure.

Current employees who might be affected should contact their agency personnel office because benefits such as tenure, leave, eligibility for immediate annuity, or for continuation of life insurance and health benefits may be involved.

Those already retired, or survivors of deceased annuitants or employees should write to the Office of Personnel Management (formerly the Civil Service Commission) to have their annuities recomputed to include credit, without deposit, for periods of internment.

Recalculation of annuities will apply only to months beginning more than 30 days after the Commission has received the request so annuitants are urged to act as soon as possible.

In order to verify periods of internment, the full name of the individual (both Japanese and Americanized version if applicable), date of birth, name of camp and dates of internment must be provided.

Books opened for Elkhorn condominiums

ELKHORN — A new chapter in the Ketchum/Sun Valley real estate boom — opened Monday when the Elkhorn resort began accepting reservations for a new 88-unit condominium project.

In less than 24 hours, four people had made the $3,000 deposits required to reserve a unit in the new Sunburst project.

Although the project has not yet received financing and the completion date is scheduled for the late fall of 1979, Elkhorn has been besieged with inquiries from interested buyers about the 2-bedroom and 3-bedroom townhouse condominiums that now exist only on the resort's drawing boards, according to Elkhorn president John Harker.

Interest in the project began last summer after the 72-unit Ridge condominium project sold out before ground was even broken.

Because of the flood of inquiries, Elkhorn has devised an allocation system through which the 88 Sunburst units are distributed for sale to Realtors throughout the area. If the units are not sold by the individual Realtors by Feb. 9, they go on the open market.

Amtrak cutbacks in works

By MICHAEL F. CONLAN
News Service
WASHINGTON—Amtrak riders are even deeper cut in service than one-third already anticipated—and higher fares, too, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said in a recent interview.

Adams said he had not completed a recommendation to Congress on what passenger train—route—should be cut.

But he left no doubt that his preliminary recommendation of last year—that 8,100 miles should be dropped from Amtrak's 27,000-mile network—is being revised upward.

"Ticket prices should at least keep pace with inflation, the transportation clock added.

Adams touched on several other issues during the interview:

- He said he has had some "informal discussions" with President Carter on the inflationary impact of proposed regulations that would require mass transit operators to make their systems totally accessible to handicapped persons. Adams specifies that he did not get into specifics on the proposal, which would cost between $2 billion and $8 billion.

- He said government lawyers are preparing a memorandum on whether existing subway and light rail (trolley) systems could be exempted from the total accessibility requirement, thus cutting costs by 50 percent.

- He said he would hold a meeting next month in Boston with automakers, inventors and university researchers to draw up an agenda for an April "summit conference" on development of a "socially responsible car." He also challenged the auto industry to exceed government regulations that require 1965 model cars to get at least 27.5 miles per gallon.

- He said he is "not involved" in any political horse-trading over the Carter administration's goal of deregulating the trucking industry and also keeping the upcoming Teamsters contract within the wage increase guideline of 7 percent. The Teamsters oppose both deregulation and the guideline.

Adams, a former congressman from Washington State, said he thinks Congress will support his twin desires to maintain a national rail passenger system and narrow the ever-widening percentage gap between Amtrak's operating expenses and fares.

Adams observed that in the national interest to have at least a minimal system available nationwide, "said Adams. He cited national defense and the possibility of another oil embargo as reasons why passenger service should not be pared back to a handful of short-haul routes.

Adams observed that the proposed cutbacks, which Congress can delay and recommend changes to, have been even more extensive.

Currently, Amtrak is riding along on a federal operating subsidy of $600 million annually, and some in the administration wanted to slash $100 million from that figure.

The president this week proposed $52 million in his fiscal 1980 budget. Adams said: "I had to fight to get THAT."

End to phone tolls sought

CHICKAMAUGA, Ga. (UPI)—Chickamauga is 10 miles by road and 5 cents by long distance phone call from Chattanooga, Tenn., the nearest big city, and that has angered citizens of the small north Georgia town for 22 years.

"They are still trying to get toll-free service to Chattanooga and the petition before the Georgia Public Service Commission by 1,842 local residents is said to be the longest standing petition of its type.

"Some there may be some relief based on the PSC decision to reopen the case. Some of the commissioners said they'll even come to town to look into the local phone company's operations.

Further aggravating the problem is the fact that both Ringgold and High Point, two other small towns about the same distance from Chattanooga, have toll-free lines to the Tennessee city through different systems.

"Doctors, schools, hospitals, large stores, just about anything you want to find out about is long distance," said Mrs. Beth Baldwin, who said she is tired of paying 35 cents for a three-minute long distance call.

"Some people here can't afford to call their neighbors," Mrs. Baldwin said.

The telephone service is furnished by Chickamauga Telephone Corp., a family-owned firm whose general manager, Art Barnes, feels some of those seeking toll-free service have no idea of the cost.

Nation's top independent TV station now in Magic Valley

Atlanta 'dish' sends WTCC signal to Idaho

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Beginning today Magic Valley Cablevision will add WTCC-TV, an Atlanta, Ga., independent station, to its basic cable TV service.

The new station, to be aired on Channel 8, brings to nine the number of TV broadcast stations available to subscribers, according to Gene Ritnour, Cablevision manager.

He said the Atlanta station, known as the No. 1 independent station in the nation, will be available via satellite to most of the firm's subscribers in Twin Falls, Kimberly, Hansen and Filer, but a few isolated customers may not be able to receive it.

The manager said the weather information subscribers have been receiving on Channel 8 will be moved to Channel 10 starting at 9 a.m. today and will become "Cablevision's Special Events Channel."

The WTCC signal will be received at Cablevision Centers, the recently constructed receiving station at 261 Eastland Drive in Twin Falls.

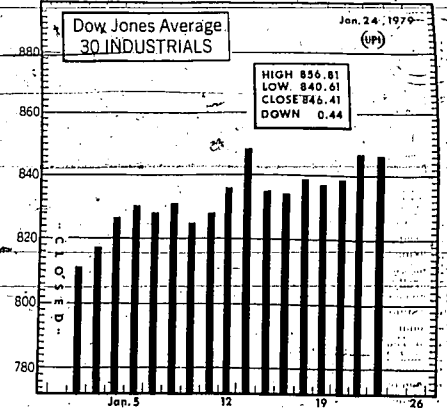

While Cablevision employees have not been able to move into the new facility because of weather conditions delaying completion of outside construction, the central processing and switching equipment has been installed there, Ritnour said.

"Cablevision Center" will originate a special telecast starting at 5 p.m. today introducing WTCC Channel 17 Atlanta and the RCA satellite transmission control center. Regular WTCC programming will begin at 5:30 p.m.

Ritnour said Wednesday that he had been advised by WTCC officials in Atlanta that a visual welcome to Magic Valley would be aired by the station Thursday evening—which will be seen by an estimated 3.5 million viewers.

On the air 24 hours daily, WTCC's programming is oriented toward family viewing and features up to 40 movie showings a week, a heavy schedule of children's programs and live telecasts of Atlanta's major league sports teams: the Atlanta Braves, National League Baseball; the Flames of the National Hockey League; the National Basketball Association Hawks and pre-season games of the NFL Atlanta Falcons.

In addition the station carries basketball games of the Atlantic Coast Conference and Southeastern Conference, Ritnour said.

Weather worries give meats boost

CHICAGO — Meat and metal futures were stronger Wednesday. Commodity News Service said live cattle ended at or near the day's highs, closing 127 to 50 points higher. Life of contract highs were posted in every month except December and it matched its earlier peak. Heavy snow and abnormal cold prompted the buying, along with firmer dressed beef prices. Volume was 21,973 contracts traded.

Feeder cattle closed at or near the day's highs after another strong session which saw an advance of 80 to 120 points. Speculation about weather related production problems and strength in live cattle were behind the advance. Volume was 1,992 contracts.

Live hogs gained 147 to 55 points, closing at or near the day's highs and reaching contract highs in the four nearby months. Speculation about marketing disruptions was the major factor in the advance. Volume was 7,428 contracts.

Pork bellies closed up the 200 point limit in the first four months and August ended 180 points higher as weather and marketing uncertainties made an impact. Volume was 3,324 contracts as most prices locked limit up early in the day.

New York Comex gold gained 4.90 to 6.00 higher on a volume of 30,000 lots on dismissal of President Carter's State of the Union message and hints of a coming change in South Africa's currency system.

New York Comex silver gained near the limit in all months, settling 1,930 to 1,880 points higher on a final estimated volume of 23,000 lots, including 8,260 in switches.

New York Sugar 11 lost 8 to 10 points on a trade of 3,995 lots. March succumbed to persistent pressure and slipped to a low of 7.95 cents a pound.

Maine potatoes finished a quiet day off 9 cents to unchanged with active May settling at 6.78 cents, off 8 cents. Volume was 1,338 lots. The finish was near the day's lows.

Wheat went up half a cent lower to 1 1/2 cents higher, following a downturn in corn and soybeans and led lower by March.

Corn finished higher despite a break in soybeans as exporter buying dominated, encouraging speculation about expanded overseas corn business. The close was 3/4 cent higher to 1/2 cent lower.

Soybeans plummeted to close on the lows after a midday rally, with rainfall in Brazil a key factor in the break. Beans ended 10 to 4 cents down with March settling at 7.23. Meal was down 2.40 to 60 cents and off of 32 to 42 points.

Record earnings for Boise Cascade

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade Corp. had the best year in its history during 1978 as income hit $137.7 million, or $5.02 per share, compared with $115.6 million, or $4 per share, in 1977.

The firm also reported sales hit a record $2.6 billion during the year, compared with $2.3 billion the previous year.

Phone company offers answer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Telephone Co. has its own solution to the problem of a soaring cost of living.

A notice mailed to customers said, "We've asked the Public Service Commission for a $160 million annual in-state rate increase, effective in November 1979. In addition to a pending $80 million request filed last May."

The notice was headlined, "Higher rates asked to offset continuing impact of inflation."

Key senators may hold up confirmation

Chicago Sun-Times

Key senators are threatening to withhold their approval of James M. Stone as the new chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

They say they won't confirm Stone's nomination until they learn who President Carter will name to two additional vacancies on the five-man commission. At least one senator, Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., has publicly stated that he wants the White House to reappoint the present occupants of these seats.

One of the seats is held by Democrat Rood Dunn, whose appointment to the commission actually lapsed last April. He has been serving in limbo ever since.

The other seat is held by Gary Seavers, the Democrat who has been acting chairman of the commission since William T. Bagley vacated the chairmanship last November. Seavers' term will end in April.

Several members of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which will weigh Stone's appointment before it's put to the entire floor, say they won't consider the future of the CFTC on a piecemeal basis — especially in view of the many complaints they've heard about the effectiveness of the young agency.

"As you know, the CFTC has gotten off to a very shaky start since it was created in 1975," Huddleston wrote to Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga. last week.

Ski campaign launched

KEETCHUM — Since the last major snowfall Jan. 11, the Keetchum-Sun Valley Chamber Resort Association and Sun Valley Co. have cooperated in a nationwide publicity campaign aimed at letting the general public know that skiing conditions are now favorable.

Prior to the storm on the 11th, only limited skiing was available on Bald Mountain, where manmade snow facilities made it possible for runs to open on the Warm Springs side. At present, all 10 lifts on "Baldy" are operating in addition to another two lifts on Dellar Mountain. Snow depths are considerably less than at this time last year. However, the number of skiers at Sun Valley has increased from approximately 1,000 daily at the first of the year to 2,500 the past week.

Among those involved with the publicity campaign are Tyrolan Lodge manager John Sturmy and Scott McCrea of Elkhorn, representing the Chamber-Resort Association, and Shannon Besoyan with Sun Valley Co. Sturmy said there were some negative comments circulating about conditions that may have been true prior to the last major snowfall that are no longer the case, and that a continued effort has been made since Jan. 11 to inform the media about the improved conditions at present. The marketing effort has been concentrated in the Northwest, California, Chicago and the East Coast.

So far the publicity campaign has been aimed at sports writers and travel columnists, with no funding specifically earmarked for advertising.

Gallegos, Abe Garcia, Norman Smyer and Arthur Stapleman.

Marcelino Gomez, Beverly Gorringe, Arlene Huber, Russell Shelby and Herbert Smith, all Shelby, received 10-year awards, along with the following people from the Hoeyburn plant: Helen Banner, Hubert Brake, LaVelle Cranney, Elsworth Daniels, Erna Evans, Myrtle Kelly, Catherine Marcotte, Lee Miller, Scott Osterhout, Melba Parton, Roy Parton, Maxine Rasmussen, Elvina Schnabel, Lloyd Tuttle and Leila Faye West.

Ten-year awards were given to Willis Bentley, Eduardo Campos, Leona Craythorn, James Edwards, Doris Gibson, Selenio Gonzales, Gustavo Mata, Ben Neilwert, Woodrow Shearer, William Ward and J.W. Young, all of Burley.

Heyburn 10-year recipients were Olivia Aguerro, Jerry Berg, Winford Bonner, Edwin Carrill, Keith Crane, George Darnell, Virginia Davis, Doris Draper, Rhea Evans, David A. Fenstermaker, Maria Q. Garcia, Oscar Garcia, Mary Griffith, Alvin Graves, John F. Griffiths, Kent Hammond, Johnny D. Helmer, Belva

Board recognizes former chairman

TWIN FALLS — Joe Savage of Kimberly, who has served for the past 12 years on the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board, was honored by fellow board members at a dinner Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Savage were guests of honor at the event at the Holiday Inn. Clarence Hoffield, who is the new board chairman, expressed appreciation of the group for the dedicated service Savage gave to his board post. Savage was appointed in October, 1966, when his father, the late W.B. Savage, retired. Together father and son have served a total of 32 years on the board. Each has been both treasurer and chairman.

Burley Simplot plant honors workers

BURLEY — Over 100 employees of the J.R. Simplot Co. Food Division were honored at the company's annual awards banquet recently at the Ponderosa Inn.

Magic Valley residents representing Simplot Food Division operations at Hoeyburn and Burley were recognized for having 10 or more years' service with the company.

The dinner, the second of four being held this week, saw 415 employees throughout the company receive awards for their long employment with Simplot.

Presenting awards were J.R. Simplot, chairman of the board of the Idaho-based company; John M. Dahl, vice-chairman and chief executive officer; division president James E. Conrad, plus several other Simplot officials.

Receiving special recognition for 30 years' service was Andy Halbert, Hoeyburn.

Twenty-five-year service awards went to Byron Fairchild and Verla McLaws, both of Hoeyburn, and Donald Shell and Florence Shill, both of Burley.

For 20 years of service, wrist watches were presented to Burley employees Ray Hopkins, Jose Martinez, Rita Taunson and Hugh Whittaker; and from Hoeyburn Lorone Ballard, Sarah Devine, Richard

Shortage of mortgage money may ease soon

Chicago Sun-Times

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — The shortage of mortgage money should be relieved this spring by new loan plans unveiled by the Federal National Mortgage Assn. (Fannie Mae).

Three new programs, scheduled to be launched within 90 days, will help eliminate the financing problems that have impeded development of a professional urban remodeling and rehabilitation industry, Oakley Hunter, chairman and president of Fannie Mae told members of the National Assn. of Home Builders at the groups' 35th annual convention here, yesterday.

The new Fannie Mae Urban Financing programs are designed to:

• Finance urban home acquisition and rehabilitation;

• Give commercial banks and savings and loan associations a new way to borrow money from Fannie Mae for urban reinvestment.

• Establish a long-term commitment program to cover lenders' urban loan obligations.

"These programs offer a range of financing tools to the enterprising builder-rehabilitator who wants to break into the growing urban housing market," Hunter said. "That market may be especially ripe now, as potential home buyers, facing the alternative of soaring new home and transportation costs seek less expensive, more conveniently located older city homes."

Fannie Mae, a federally chartered but privately owned corporation, is the nation's largest single supplier of home mortgage money.

Evans gets flood damage report

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer
BOISE — Gov. John Evans will receive paperwork today showing why Twin Falls and Cassia counties should be declared a disaster area from recent flooding.

Paul Massie, a communications and research specialist for the Idaho Bureau of Disaster, said the report will include his assessment of flood damages from Jan. 11 and 12.

It will be up to the governor to determine whether to ask the Small Business Administration for the disaster declaration, he said. Evans said after the flooding he would aid in getting that declaration from the SBA and the Farm Home Administration.

Massie said damage to the trout farm industry in Twin Falls County, which has been estimated at $200,000, has been the hardest to ascertain.

"Most people contacted don't have a feel for the dollars involved — about 60 percent of the people I've contacted at this point," he said Wednesday afternoon. "Most of them don't even have a ballpark figure."

He explained that many were farmers who operated a fish pond for additional income. He said the farmers could pinpoint losses to their land but they did not know the operational costs of a fish pond.

Although SBA help is pending, people whose lands and homes were damaged can receive assistance from the FmHA and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, announced Tuesday an FmHA program for Twin Falls County farmers that would provide emergency, low-interest loans to cover damage to crops, buildings and commercial fish ponds. Farmers who can't receive help from other sources can apply to local FmHA offices.

ASCS has an ongoing Emergency Conservation Program that would pay 80 percent of the costs; or up to $10,000 to one farmer, to restore damaged farmland, permanent fences and dams, ponds and irrigation systems that were destroyed.

Elaine Hine, an ASCS program assistant in Twin Falls, said that so far two persons have filed out loan applications and several others have made inquiries.

Mert Leonard, chairman of the Twin Falls County Commission, said Wednesday initial estimates put total damages in the county at $1.6 million.

He said he expects that figure to increase after the spring thaw when more damage will be visible. Leonard said that applies especially to roads.

"The invisible damage will show up later," Leonard said, "and I reckon it will be a considerable amount of road maintenance, with the high cost of oil for patching and repairs."

He said the fish industry report of $900,000 in losses is the largest single figure reported, with the Buhl Highway District next at $557,000. He said the district had nine bridges washed out and 10 miles of roads damaged.

That doesn't include the cost of retraveling roads hit by flood waters, Leonard noted.

Next comes $21,000 in damage reported by the Filer Highway District, followed by the $900 average each Massie estimated to some 75 to 100 homes.

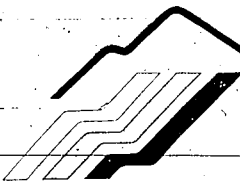

Leonard said Massie's estimate appears to be low. He said 80 percent of the estimates he has seen are above $900, including some reporting $1,500 to $2,000 in damage.

Leonard said the $1.6 million damage estimate does not include losses of the Twin Falls Canal Co., which suffered two breaks in its canal. He estimated the company would make the repairs itself at a cost of between $50,000 and $75,000.

Bill Crystal, director of disaster operations for Cassia County, said the City of Albion had $12,000 damages to homes and businesses, but that there were no other damage estimates for other sections of the county. He said there were some people reporting flooded basements.

He said people asking for help in covering flood damage losses are being told to apply to the appropriate participating federal agency for funds.

Sugar growers to sell beets to Amalgamated

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley sugar beet growers whose livelihoods were threatened by the closure of U and I Sugar Co. have found a buyer for their 1979 crop.

The Amalgamated Sugar Co., which already contracts with many Magic Valley growers, told U and I growers in Minidoka and Cassia counties Monday they can sign Amalgamated contracts this season.

"Amalgamated, which will be the only sugar processor in Idaho when U and I closes its processing plants, will add all 20 U and I growers from Cassia County, 28 from Minidoka and possibly more from American Falls."

But U and I sugar beet producers further east might not be offered contracts from Amalgamated.

"They don't know whether they'll go east to the Aberdeen-American Falls area," said Richard Holyoak, who attended contract talks Monday as secretary of the Cassia County Sugar Beet Growers.

U and I plans to shut its Idaho Falls factory at the end of March, unless someone assumes ownership and operation of the plant. So far no one has made an offer.

Amalgamated has assured the growers it can handle up to 25,000 acres of beets at their Twin Falls, Paul, Nampa, and Nyssa, Ore. processing plants. That's a good chunk of the 31,175 acres that 223 Idaho growers had contracted to U and I last year.

Amalgamated officials said they'll offer the U and I growers the same contracts their other growers are currently making down at the bargaining table. That contract is expected to match last year's, which assured growers 60 percent of each dollar of processed sugar sales.

Amalgamated is able to add the extra contracts because its four plants are only running at 80 percent capacity, according to Delyte Bennett, manager of the company's Paul plant. He said it would be impossible, however, to take the full volume of eastern Idaho beets, which are grown in the Upper Snake River area east of Minidoka County. He said the excluded growers would probably be those in the Upper Snake River area, because of prohibitive shipping distances.

Grant Nelhaar, an Upper Snake grower representative, acknowledged some of the more than 200 growers in the area would have difficulty shipping to Paul or Twin Falls because of transportation costs.

While promising relief to the U and I growers, Amalgamated Vice President Larry Corey reaffirmed that Amalgamated isn't interested in taking over the U and I plant.

"There's no possibility whatsoever" Amalgamated will buy the U and I plant, Corey said.

So far no company has accepted U and I's offer last November to sell its four plants, in Idaho, Utah and Washington.

The growers don't want to operate the plant on a cooperative basis, as Washington growers are considering doing.

"We're not experienced in the field of processing beets or selling sugar," Nelhaar explained. He also said the sugar farmers, who already have large capital investments in growing machinery, aren't willing to invest more.

Corey said Amalgamated will wait until the U and I plant closes before negotiating with U and I growers.

"If plans go into effect, we'll talk to those growers," Corey said.

Nelhaar expressed surprise at the late date Corey set.

The latest Upper Snake River Association has ever signed a contract was mid-March, he said.

Blick wins close election

TWIN FALLS — An act of female chivalry gave Benny Blick of Castleford the chairmanship of the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee in voting Wednesday night.

Blick and Elaine Phillips were nominated for the chairmanship which was vacated Jan. 1 by the resignation of Laird Noh. The current 45 precinct committee members were either present or represented by proxy votes.

When the secret ballot vote was counted there were 22 votes for Blick and 22 for Phillips with one vote for George Blick.

Noh, who served as chairman during the balloting, said unless the individual who voted for George Blick wished to state his or her intentions, another secret ballot would have to be taken.

Mrs. Phillips conceded the election to Blick and pledged her support to him as chairman.

"I don't think anyone would confuse me with George Blick, and I believe whoever voted the ballot meant to say Benny Blick," she said.

Blick admitted his middle name is George, after his father, long time Republican party member and former legislator.

Mrs. Phillips was elected vice chairman, the position previously held by Blick. She defeated George Detweiler in the balloting for that position.

In his campaign speech, Blick, 35, said he has lived in Castleford all of his life, is a former U.S. Army captain, active in the Young Republicans, in which he served as state chairman and held national office, and a graduate of the University of Idaho.

Driver's license

BOISE (UPI) — Four House members introduced legislation Tuesday to eliminate the need for a written examination upon application for renewal of a driver's license.

Cable TV company defends Jerome rate increase

JEROME — Magic Valley Cable Vision Manager Gene Ritnour told the Jerome City Council his company will still be making down at the bargaining table. That contract is expected to match last year's, which assured growers 60 percent of each dollar of processed sugar sales.

Amalgamated is able to add the extra contracts because its four hookups but he warned the city officials the franchise agreement does not require the firm to provide services that weren't profitable.

When Ritnour was absent Mayor Marshall Eversheart, asked if he didn't fear the installation rate hikes being asked would mean fewer people would sign on to the cable system.

Ritnour said the suggested rates are the same as those in all other Magic Valley towns and there has been "no difference in activity" since they went in November 1976. He said the rates are lower than the Idaho and national cable installation averages.

Besides tripling the basic installation fee, Ritnour wants to double from $7.50 to $15 the fee for relocating an outlet and quadruple the fee from $5 to $20 for reconnecting an existing outlet.

He also is seeking two new fees of $5 and $10 for changing the name of an account and relocating an outlet when a serviceman is at a home, respectively.

Ritnour told the council he didn't know what the chances are of getting the Federal Communications Commission to approve a waiver allowing Boise television stations to be shown in Jerome.

He said the waiver included permission to broadcast all three commercial stations because any station not included on the waiver might ask the FCC to deny the request.

Having to include all three stations complicates the process, he admitted, because of Twin Falls station KMYT's recent loss of the right to broadcast the ABC network shows.

Ritnour explained that one of the Boise stations is an affiliate of ABC, the number one network in the U.S. The possibility having the ABC signal brought into the area and taking away viewers could cause KMYT management to ask the FCC to deny the cable company's waiver.

Ritnour said the city would not have this problem if there were under 1,500 hookups because it would not come under the FCC's simultaneous protection regulations. There are 1,643 residences hooked up to the Jerome system, he said.

Capps said at the end of the 35-minute hearing that the council would take action on the request at its Feb. 6 meeting.

In the valley

Plant ideas suggested

BOISE — A state official says a few cost-saving suggestions were the most significant changes recommended in a meeting Tuesday on the new $4.1 million Jerome sewer plant.

Tom Korpalski, an environmental engineer for the Department of Health and Welfare's Division of Environment, said the suggestions were discussed by state and federal officials and the city's project engineering firm, CH2M Hill of Boise.

Korpalski said some corners may be cut by eliminating some roads in the plant and changing the landscape design, but the plans should be finalized by the engineers in March so bids can be let.

Korpalski indicated construction should begin by late spring or early summer.

Sheriff post sought

TWIN FALLS — At least seven individuals have expressed an interest in being appointed Twin Falls County sheriff to succeed Paul Corder who died Saturday at the age of 59.

Wednesday night, the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee decided to take no action until following the funeral of the late sheriff this afternoon.

County Chairman Benny Blick of Castleford called another meeting for Monday night to review applications.

He asked anyone interested to submit a written resume of their qualifications to himself or Elaine Phillips, vice chairman, of Twin Falls, by Saturday.

Blick said county commissioners have asked for a recommendation so the vacancy can be filled around Feb. 1.

Chief Deputy Sheriff James Munn, who is acting sheriff until an appointment is made, and James Campbell, Kimberly chief of police, have announced plans to seek the position.

Party members listed others who have indicated an interest as Deputy Sheriff Buddy Dewese, Deputy Sheriff Harold Jensen, former deputies Tom Majors and Jerry Parker and Ike Kistner, who ran against Corder and lost the Republican nomination at the last sheriff's election.

Four Jerome snowmobilers spend night in South Hills

TWIN FALLS — Four Jerome snowmobilers were safe at home Wednesday night after spending Tuesday night huddled around a fire in Third Fork Canyon in the South Hills area.

Acting Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn said the four walked out of the steep canyon Wednesday in waist deep snow and arrived at the Diamond Field Jack Snowmobile area exhausted but in good condition about 3:45 p.m. Wednesday. Their machines had become stranded in deep snow in the canyon area Tuesday afternoon.

Search for the men from the Diamond Field Jack snowmobile area, 35 miles south of Twin Falls, began early Wednesday morning when members of the missing men's families contacted officers.

The four included Darwin Shulsen, Lynn Wilding, Jim Rowbottom, and Mike Sutter, 27, all of Jerome.

They left their homes Tuesday afternoon, planning to return by 8 p.m. When they failed to arrive at 6 p.m. Wednesday, worried wives called the Twin Falls sheriff's office and a searchers were mobilized.

Munn said the search and rescue units from Twin Falls and Jerome Counties went to the area about 9 a.m. and the Cassia County Search and Rescue unit moved in from the east, searching between Oakley and the snowmobile area.

"The men went over the top of Pike Mountain and dropped into the Third Fork drainage area, ending up in a deep canyon. Apparently it was too steep for them to get their machines out in the new loose snow," Munn said.

The men built a fire to keep warm and spent the night in the open, huddled beside it. They waited until about 1 p.m. Wednesday for rescue, and when none came, they began walking out leaving their machines behind.

Munn said there was four to five feet of snow in the area and much of it was new and loose making travel difficult.

"We had machines all around them, but just didn't happen to find them," Munn said of the search. He said low clouds and a day-long snow storm prevented use of airplanes in the search and made it difficult for ground crews to see any distance.

Water-power contract returned for revision

KING HILL — The King Hill Irrigation District isn't entirely happy with a proposed contract it received from the Idaho Power Co. and has sent the proposal back for revision.

Idaho Power gave the district's board a contract Monday which was drawn up as a counter offer to terms the district proposed earlier.

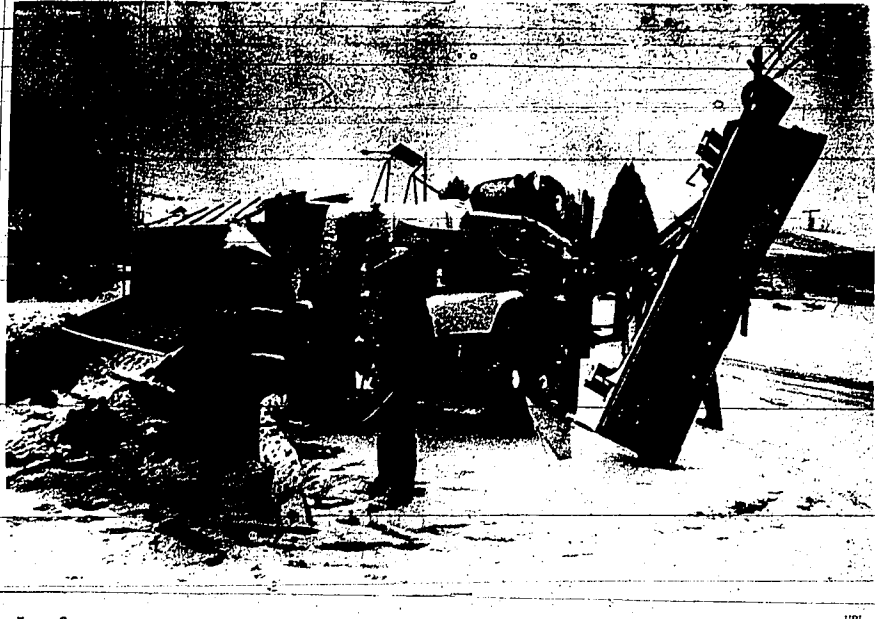

The power company and the irrigation district are trying to come to terms on a joint canal-power plant construction project. Earlier Idaho Power said it will pay King Hill $1 million, plus an annual 14 million kilowatts of electrical power in exchange for use of King Hill district water in a power plant.

Although board Chairman George Larsen said the two groups agreed on major financial terms, King Hill Attorney John Ringert said there are "conceptual" differences and disagreements about wording of the contract. Ringert declined to elaborate.

"But the attorney said, 'We have conceptual and other differences which have to be resolved before an agreement can be reached.'"

Ringert said Idaho Power attorneys promised to give the King Hill board a revised draft of the contract as soon as possible.

Ice favors no one

No, not even this sand truck was immune from slipping and sliding on Denver's snow covered streets Monday. The driver was uninjured when, trying to avoid a collision, the truck slid into a curb, causing its load to shift and the truck to overturn. Winter snowstorms continued to pass through the area this week.

Carson, Bloom seated on Jackpot town board

JACKPOT, Nev. — Two new members have been seated on the town advisory board of the unincorporated city of Jackpot for 1979.

They are Richard (Dick) Carson, owner-operator of the Blue Sky Trailer Court and Laundry, and Robert (Bob) Bloom, who operates the Chevron service station and towing service.

Carson came to Jackpot from Reno where he operated a grocery store. Bloom, formerly owned a gasoline station in Ely.

The two replace Guy Keep, general manager of Club 53, and Marlan (Walt) Walters, owner-operator of the Hillside Market. Chairman of the board is Albert H. Huber, president of Cactus Pete's Inc. He was re-elected for 1979 and Carson was named vice chairman.

The unincorporated town is managed by Elko County with Jay Snyder as liaison between the advisory board and county.

Jackpot now has an estimated population of 800 with 236 registered voters.

Town board members say they plan to enlarge the town's sewer lagoon system's capacity to a 3,000-population size. A bond issue passed last summer will provide for enlarging the grade school to double its present size this summer.

An application has been filed with the Federal Aviation Administration for major improvements to the town's mile long airport.

Motion denied in rape case

TWIN FALLS — Fifth Judicial District Judge James M. Cunningham denied a motion Monday by the attorney for Rodney W. Starr, 25, for psychiatric and psychological evaluation.

Starr is charged with rape of an adult Twin Falls woman Oct. 30, 1978.

Judge Cunningham took a motion for discovery by Starr's attorneys under study.

The Twin Falls man is scheduled for trial in District Court next week. He is represented by Jon Schindlering of the law firm of May, May, Sudweeks and Fuller.

Jerome residents oppose project

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

JEROME — Most of the 50 Jerome residents who voiced opinions Tuesday night spoke against the proposed $400,000 North Fillmore street improvement project.

Many, who live between Main Street East and 16th Street where the construction would be done, objected to widening the street.

The fear voiced at a public hearing before the Jerome City Council was that widening more than a mile of North Fillmore from the present widths (28 to 36 feet) to 44 feet would disrupt the residential area.

"Mrs. S.J. Beem, 1011 N. Fillmore, said she didn't want to see "a nice residential street" turned into a "freeway."

Mrs. Willard Weigl, 622 E. First, said the proposed urban development project would open the street up to more traffic as the surrounding areas develop.

then?" the speaker asked.

A county resident, Gail Gunning, who lives on a corner of North Fillmore just outside the city limits, told the council his corner is the beginning of the drag strip down North Fillmore now.

Jerome Police Chief Howard Dubois said he doesn't feel the speed of traffic will increase because his policemen use radar to catch speeders and "most people are responsible."

Evans noted a lot of visibility problems will be cleared up when the street is aligned.

He said crosswalks and stop signs should be installed at the corners of Fourth and Sixth streets because children cross to and from the school there.

Evans told the residents protesting the widening that the street would become a residential "collector" thoroughfare under the urban development plan, which the federal government recommends be 44 feet wide where there is enough right-of-way available.

The city has adequate right-of-way to meet that recommended width, he noted, without having to buy more property, which would raise project costs.

Obituaries

JEROME — Gayle E. Forsyth, 38, of Jerome, died Tuesday evening at her home after lengthy illness.

She was born June 29, 1940, in Chicago, Ill. She attended public schools there and attended college Culver-Stockton at Canton, Mo., and the University of Chicago. She was employed by the National Dairy Council and later worked as an airline hostess for TWA.

She was married to Danny R. Forsyth July 29, 1961, in Kansas City, Mo. They lived in Connecticut, Oklahoma, North Carolina and Missouri before coming to Jerome in 1972.

She was a member of the United Presbyterian Church. She had served on the Jerome Library Board, Jerome Recreation Association and the City Planning Zoning Commission. She was listed among the 52 Outstanding Young Women of America for 1974 and was Idaho's representative for this award's program.

Survivors include her husband of Jerome, one daughter, Laura Lea Forsyth, and one son, Danny

For Forsyth Jr., both Jerome; two sisters, Patricia Paulson of Providence, R.I., and Joyce Huritz of Buffalo Grove, Ill.; one half brother, Harry Andersen Jr. of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday in Hove Funeral Chapel. Burial will be in the Jerome cemetery. Memorials may be made to a favorite charity.

Bernice V. Conklin — Bernice V. Conklin, 50, of Jerome, died Tuesday evening at St. Alphonsus hospital in Boise. Funeral services will be announced by Hove Chapel in Jerome.

Mario Day — Jerome — Mario Day, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Day of Jerome, died at birth Tuesday at St. Benedict's Hospital.

Survivors include his parents of Jerome; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Dunham of Mt. Vernon, Wash., Mr. and Mrs. Delman Lucifotti of Lebanon, Penn., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Day of Jerome; great-grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Dean Clark and Mrs. Alice Clark, both of Jerome, and a great-great-grandmother Mrs. Dora Andrews of Jerome.

Graveside services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Friday at the Jerome Cemetery by Rev. Glenn Walman, under the direction of the Hove Chapel. Friends may gather at the cemetery at 12:55.

Services

TWIN FALLS — Services for Clara E. Pereboom-Wilson, 75, of Twin Falls, who died Tuesday morning, will be held at 11 a.m. today at White Mortuary Chapel with Elder S.O. Gracisco officiating. Burial will be in Twin Falls Cemetery. Friends may call at the mortuary today and until noon Friday.

RUPERT — Funeral services for Paula G. Lopez, 73, of Rupert, who died Monday will be conducted today at 11 a.m. at the Rupert Spanish Assembly of God Church. Burial will be in the Rupert Cemetery.

Friends may call at the place of service one hour prior to the funeral.

KIMBERLY — Services for Sheriff Paul Corder, 59, who died Saturday, will be conducted at 2 p.m. today in the Reynolds Funeral Chapel. Masonic graveside rites will be conducted at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. The family suggests memorials to the Shriners' Cripple Children's Hospital or the Mountain States Tumor Institute in Boise. Friends may call today until time of services.

Gooding ambulance dispute solved

GOODING — The rift between Magic Valley Ambulance Service and Gooding County has been healed.

County Commission Chairman George Lemmon said the rift was a problem in communications and everything was straightened out during a meeting with MVAS vice president Gordon Annis Monday.

Annis said MVAS will now be able to use county-owned equipment in the company ambulances without any problem.

"Yes, everything's all straightened out. It was just a big mush of misunderstanding," Annis said.

Lemmon said the county has released the $1,100 monthly payment to the ambulance firm.

The problem began Jan. 8 when commissioners George Lemmon and Will Thomas inspected the old county ambulances and found radios and equipment missing.

That equipment had been transferred into the new ambulances owned by the ambulance service. Because of the missing equipment, Lemmon ordered the check to the service held up.

Last week, Annis said he wondered why the firm hadn't received the monthly check and called Lemmon to ask about it. As a result, the commissioners met with him Monday and apparently resolved the problem.

Lemmon said MVAS will be able to use the equipment "until they get new equipment."

The previous county commission decided to discontinue using the county-owned ambulances because of the $6,000 annual insurance costs.

When the new ambulances arrived, Annis said the equipment in the old ambulances was transferred to the

Panel backs constitutional convention

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — A House committee said Tuesday inflation and an unbalanced budget have caused so much harm that America should take a step not tried in nearly 200 years.

By a vote of 12 to 7, members of the House State Affairs Committee approved and sent to the full House of Representatives, House Concurrent Resolution 7. That measure calls on Congress to pass a constitutional amendment requiring a federal balanced budget.

Should such an amendment not be adopted, HCR 7 calls on Congress to convene a national constitutional convention for the express purpose of drafting a balanced budget amendment to be submitted to the states.

No national constitutional convention has been held since 1787, when the existing federal constitution was drafted to replace the Articles of Confederation.

HCR 7, which has been adopted by 21 states in varying forms, sparked spirited debate.

Arguing in favor of the measure was House Majority Leader Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth. Little acknowledged some constitutional scholars have questioned whether a convention could be restricted to just one subject. An unrestricted convention, he acknowledged, might cause numerous problems.

But Little said other lawyers have argued a restricted subject convention is possible. The "real problem" facing the nation, he added, is inflation. Recent polls show 81 percent of Americans support a constitutional lid on spending, he said. "I don't think there's any other way to go than this when 81 percent of the people in the United States favor a constitutional amendment to have a balanced budget," Little said.

Once enough states call for the proposed amendment, Congress would act to adopt it, Little said. The alternative of a constitutional convention would act merely as additional pressure to force the issue, Little added.

According to the U.S. constitution, a constitutional convention may be called "on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states." Little was supported in his arguments by Rep. Herb Fitz, R-New Meadows, who told committee members, "With a trillion dollars indebtedness, we don't have a chairman's chance of coming out of this without a depression." He didn't like the idea of a constitutional convention, Fitz said, but he liked inflation even less. "This is the lesser of two evils we have in front of us."

But several legislators sharply attacked the proposed resolution.

House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, a Pocatello Democrat and an attorney, said Idaho and most Western states, because of their small populations, would have little representation in any national convention. That convention could take actions detrimental to Western interests, McDermott said. "All of the West could vote no on this new constitution and it still would pass,"

McDermott said. "To endanger that, for however laudable a goal, isn't worth the risk."

Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise, also criticized the measure. Bunting warned some legal scholars believe the convention could not be restricted just to the subject of balancing the federal budget and might legally rewrite the entire constitution.

"I am very unwilling to sign a contract that will humiliate this nation before all the nations in the world," Bunting said.

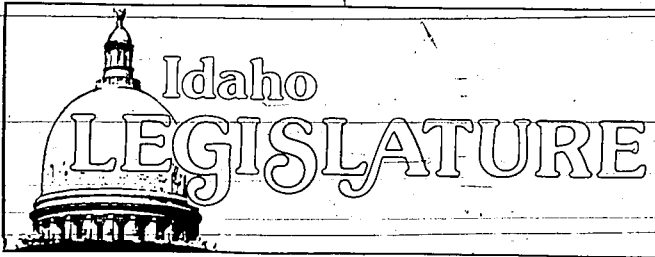

Rep. Steve Scanlin, D-Caldwell, was also critical of the proposal. There would likely be the same number of delegates at the convention as now serve in the population-based House of Representatives, Scanlin said. That means Idaho will have "4 out of 435 votes," he said. The committee is "playing with dynamite." Scanlin said, adding there were better ways to balance the budget.

Voicing against the measure were McDermott, Bunting, Scanlin, Rep. Mel Hammond, D-Rexburg, Rep. C. Wendell Miller, D-Idaho Falls, Rep. Carl Braun, D-Orofino, and Rep. Dwight Horsch, D-Aberdeen.

HCR 7 will likely come up for a vote in the full House within two weeks.

Democrats kill proposal for state spending limit

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — On a near party-line vote, Idaho Senators Wednesday rejected an attempt to set a constitutionally mandated ceiling on yearly state government budgets.

Although more senators supported the measure than opposed it, Senate Joint Resolution 101 failed to receive the two-thirds majority it needed and died on a 20-15 vote. Every Republican and one Democrat supported the resolution. All Senators opposing it were Democrats.

The proposed constitutional amendment, sponsored by Sen. Dean VanEngelen, R-Burley, would have set a floating lid on what Idaho state government could spend each year. That ceiling would rise or fall each year depending on increases or decreases in Idaho individual incomes, as averaged over the previous three years.

Debate over the measure consumed the entire morning senate session, stretched through the noon-time recess - used by Democrats to plan strategy in a closed door caucus - and lasted well into the afternoon. More than half the lawmakers in the 35 member Senate argued for or against the proposal, or raised questions concerning its potential impact.

In a detailed 20 minute presentation VanEngelen explained every section of his measure, and the impact it would have on Idaho. Much of that impact, he said, would be preventative.

"We've got a good conservative government in Idaho," VanEngelen said. "We can look at Idaho with pride."

But a permanent lid on spending was needed, he said. "The best time to put out a fire is when it's small." This measure would be "a promise to your children," VanEngelen said, "that government will grow only in relation to their ability to pay."

But Sen. Lester Hartvigsen, D-Malad, while praising VanEngelen for his work in preparing SJR101, questioned whether the spending limit should be placed in the state constitution. "This amendment has the potential of causing more harm than good. For instance, it sets a ceiling, but experience tells us that ceilings often become floors."

The intent of the measure was good, Hartvigsen said, but didn't require a constitutional amendment. "You don't need a constitutional amendment to cut spending."

Hartvigsen also said the legislature was acting hastily in the "emotional atmosphere" created by passage of the initiative. "Many claimed the state

But Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, insisted a constitutional prohibition was needed. "Statutory limitations on taxes and on expenses historically have not worked," High said. The U.S. Congress has a statutory limitation by increasing the national debt that is regularly surpassed.

Support for the measure also came from Sen. Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell, who quoted Franklin Roosevelt on the need "to cut the cost and fat out of government."

"Every politician for 45 years has said the same thing," Bradshaw added.

The resolution was also criticized by Sen. Ron Twilgate, D-Boise, who said the best way to reduce government is the reduction of taxes. The constitution "should be amended only for very important reasons," he said.

Sen. Cy Chase, D-St. Maries, also criticized the measure, saying it had been brought to the Senate floor before there could be public hearings on it. Chase said several of the legislators might change their minds and support the measure if, through public hearings, they could have questions about the resolution answered.

A move by Chase to force the bill back to committee for the purpose of holding a public hearing died by one vote, 16-17.

Two measures similar to the VanEngelen amendment have been written. One has been drafted by Rep. Wendy Ungrecht, R-Boise, and one by Gov. John Evans. Both of those proposals are expected to come before legislative committees within the next two weeks.

Chase says tax reform vital to 1% limit implementation

BOISE (UPI) — Senate Minority Leader Cy Chase, D-St. Maries, told fellow Democrats Wednesday legislation to eliminate tax inequities was vital to the implementation of the 1 percent initiative.

"Without it, I'm afraid we will freeze the inequities forever and it will never get done," Chase said at an Ada County Democrat Central Committee luncheon in Boise.

"We need to pass legislation that will force the utilities, property used in manufacturing, processing and fabrication operations to pay the same as everyone else," he said. "Otherwise, under the present system they will continue to get enormous windfalls in tax relief at everyone else's expense. Forcing these people to pay on an equal basis will give more relief to the homeowners."

Chase also said usury legislation must be passed that will loosen up the housing industry while still protecting the consumer.

"This legislation should be passed with an emergency clause so it would be law immediately upon the signature of the governor," he said.

The North Idaho Democrat charged House Republicans with attempting to put through a bill that would remove all restrictions on interest rates.

He said he was certain that the measure would not pass because "we need some reasonable lid on interest rates to protect the public."

Noting that reapportionment would be back, Chase called upon Democrats to begin laying the groundwork now to gain control of at least the Senate, where two votes would change the complexion.

"It will be crucial to the Democratic party that we have some control when the jockeying around of districts starts," he said.

Women's prison study urged

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Kenneth Stephenson, R-Nampa, persuaded the House State Affairs Committee Wednesday to ask for a $2,500 feasibility study of putting a women's prison at State Hospital North in Orofino.

Stephenson's bill, which the committee agreed to introduce, calls for the Division of Public Works to make the study and report back to the Legislature by March 1.

He said he felt some changes would have to be made to provide security for the women convicts. But he said he believed it would be cheaper than putting a women's facility at the penitentiary south of Boise.

Legal consolidation bill introduced

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to consolidate all legal services for the state under the attorney general's office was approved Wednesday by introduction by the State State Affairs Committee.

Attorney General David Leroy said the bill would be a management device and would establish a ground rule for dealing with legal questions.

The committee also introduced a bill by Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, urging Congress to refrain from withholding or threatening to withhold federal funds from the state as a means of requiring the state to follow federal policies.

Congress members sent to the floor for confirmation the gubernatorial appointments of Virgil Farmer, Nampa, the Soil Conservation Commission; the Rev. T.C. Halpin, Rafting Commission, and Dr. Norman D. Gardner, Commission for the Blind.

Black Butte listed for wilderness study

SHOSHONE — The Bureau of Land Management will include the Black Butte Crater area north of Shoshone in a list of wilderness study areas limiting mining of the lava rock by an Oregon company.

State BLM Director Bill Mathews said he and Shoshone District BLM Manager Charles Haszler have agreed to include the crater in a study to determine what BLM lands should be classified as wilderness.

Distinctive Lava Stone of Bend, Oregon, filed mining claims in November on more than 900 acres of lava flows, including the Black Butte Crater.

Mathews said the wilderness study would not allow mining in the study area until a decision is made whether the crater is classified as a special wilderness area.

Haszler said about 4,000 acres of land including the Black Butte Crater will be included in the study.

Only the community rock pit now operated by the BLM and 40 acres next to it will be excluded from the study, he said.

Mathews said the 40 acres next to the community pit was excluded because people have taken some rock from those lands.

"My guess is that the (Shoshone)

District will issue a decision within the next 10 days," Mathews said.

That study designation will stop all mining activity until the BLM can determine whether the area has distinct wilderness qualities that should be retained, Mathews said.

If the crater is classified eventually by Congress as a wilderness area, Haszler said it would create a court case to determine whether the 1872 mining law holds authority over the land or the federal wilderness laws passed in the last few years by Congress.

The BLM is now in the process of conducting a review of all lands under its jurisdiction to determine how it all should be used. That study is much the same as the RARE II study now being completed by the Forest Service.

With the designation as a wilderness study area, Haszler said there will then be a 90-day public comment period.

"Public comment will be weighed very heavily in the decision," Haszler said.

It may take several years before the Black Butte Crater and other wilderness study areas are designated wilderness because Congress has until 1990 to complete those decisions.

Mathews also said the BLM must still decide whether the mining claims filed by Distinctive Lava are valid.

That determination includes whether the rock is valuable and marketable and whether it has distinctive qualities that make it more valuable than ordinary or "common" stone, he said.

If the mining claims are ruled valid by the BLM, Distinctive Lava will have mineral rights on the crater area and would be able to mine the lava rock. The only exception is the wilderness study area.

Distinctive Lava co-owners Roger Powell and James Robinson said they would take the matter to court if the mining claims are denied by the BLM.

According to federal and state mining laws, Distinctive Lava can begin to take the rock out as soon as the State Department of Lands approves the mining reclamation plan or 60 days after the filing if the state takes no action.

The Distinctive Lava Stone mining reclamation plan complies with the law, Department of Lands Assistant Director Jack Gillette said Tuesday.

"Their plan is in order and meets the law under our sections of the code," Gillette explained. The reclamation plan covers only 40 acres of land but only two acres of that 40 may be mined. When the two acres have been mined and the land repaired, Department of Lands employees will inspect the two acres to see if the reclamation plan has been met.

According to the state mining reclamation law, mining companies must post a bond to cover the cost of repairing any damage caused by the mining and Distinctive Lava has posted a $500 bond per acre to cover any reclamation expenses.

After the lava rock is taken and the land repaired, Distinctive Lava can move to another section of the 40 acres and remove the rock from that section, one State Department of Lands employee said.

Robinson said he and Powell plan to begin to take rock from the two acres "shortly after the 19th." The limiting factor would be the weather, he said.

He said there is no accurate estimate of how long it would take to remove the rock from the 40 acres.

The two men say they have people waiting for the stone but the cold weather has slowed the laying of it.

Twin Falls, Jerome wrecker operators condemn 'cruising'

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

JEROME — Wrecker operators in Twin Falls and Jerome counties say there is not really a feud over who can take calls on the Interstate in Jerome County and only one wrecker operator is unhappy.

Dave Coffelt of Valley Towing in Twin Falls, said he has never had any problem doing business in Jerome County. He said he doesn't go there unless on official business and doesn't "cruise" the Interstate looking for business.

John Odell, owner of John's Kimberly Road Service and Towing, charged last week he was being chased out of Jerome County by sheriff's officers trying to save business on the Interstate for Jerome County wrecker services.

Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall said his only interest and that of his deputies is to prevent a wrecker from driving to the scene of an accident or breakdown and towing the vehicles away after another wrecker has already been called by his office.

Hall said he calls any wrecker the vehicle owners specify, even if they have to come from as far as Salt Lake City. But he said in the event of a serious injury in which someone might be pinned in a vehicle, he calls the closest wrecker.

Hall said he didn't like "cruising" and didn't think it was good business, but he would not force anyone out of the county for doing it. Odell said he had been stopped and told to leave the county on two occasions and had been questioned several times on what he was doing in the county.

Coffelt said he does lots of towing in Jerome County and has never had a problem. He said he agrees with Sheriff Hall that the closest wrecker is the one to call, especially to get injured people out of their vehicles or to clear busy traffic lanes of overturned trucks or other traffic-blocking wrecks.

John Nussbaum agrees. He said he does business on the north side of the river, when he is called to pick up a car or to a wreck scene.

Mrs. Nussbaum said they do not believe in cruising. It is too costly and time-consuming and there is enough business without going out in search of it.

Jack Parrott of the Eden-Hazleton area says his wrecker is usually the one called for accidents on the Interstate area east of the Kimberly-Hansen Interchange. He said he has no complaints about the way the business is divided by law enforcement officers when there is a no-preference call.

Parrott said Sheriff Hall has to make some regulations and he supports them. "He cracks down on us, too," Parrott says, "if we overstep our authority. It has to be that way and we realize it. I think the sheriff and his men are being as fair as they know how to be."

Parrott said there have been instances when Citizen Band Radio reports have been received during especially icy conditions, calling Jerome wreckers to some distant part of the county for a reportedly serious accident.

"When we get there, we find nothing, but we have been out of reach for a period of time and other wreckers have been called to breakdowns and to help people who have skidded from the roadway. This is one of the things the sheriff is trying to help eliminate," Parrott said.

Office closed for Paul Corder funeral

TWIN FALLS — The drivers license office in the Twin Falls county courthouse will be closed this afternoon for the funeral of Sheriff Paul Corder.

Acting Sheriff James Munn said the license office will be open in the morning but will close at 1 p.m. He said the sheriff's office personnel will be given time off to attend the services which will be held at 2 p.m. Only one dispatcher will be on duty and men and vehicles from other agencies will answer sheriff's calls during the afternoon.

Sheriff Corder, 59, died Saturday of cancer. He had been hospitalized only about a week prior to his death but had undergone treatment for some two years.

Munn, chief deputy under Corder, has been named acting sheriff pending appointment of a successor to serve until the next regular election. Services will be in the Reynolds Funeral Chapel with Masonic rites at the graveside in Sunset Memorial park.

Texas outlasts Baylor 77-76

WACO, Texas (UPI) — Phillip Stroud and Jim Krivacs hit six free throws in the final 40 seconds Wednesday night to fight off a Baylor comeback and give the 16th-ranked Texas Longhorns a 77-76 victory over the Bears.

The Longhorns' sixth straight triumph kept Texas atop the Southwest Conference Standings with a 6-1 record. Baylor, playing before its largest home crowd in history, slipped to 4-3 in SWC play.

Tyrene Branyan scored 26 points for Texas before fouling out with 1:03 to play and Krivacs added 23 to the Texas attack.

Branyan and Krivacs combined for 32 points as Texas jumped to a 44-35 lead with less than two minutes to play in the opening half, but Baylor scored the last seven points of the first half to cut the Bears' halftime deficit to 44-42.

Baylor, however, could not score for the first 5 1/2 minutes of the second half and Texas jumped to a 10-point lead. Baylor tied the game at 59-59, but Texas scored the next six points and was never led again.

Krivacs made both ends of a one-and-one situation with eight seconds remaining to give Texas a three-point advantage and clinch the contest.

Louisville trims St. Louis

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Bobby Turner scored 24 points Wednesday night to lead fifth-ranked Louisville to an 80-65 triumph over St. Louis for the Cardinals' seventh straight win.

Turner, a 6-foot-3 junior forward, shot 8-of-12 from the field as Louisville improved its record to 16-3 overall and 3-0 in the Metro Conference.

Freshman guard Jerry Evans came off the Louisville bench to add 12 points and a game-high four assists.

St. Louis, 6-11 overall and 1-1 in the Metro, was led by Craig Shaver, who had 20 points and 10 rebounds.

Louisville, after trailing 18-9 midway through the first half, took the lead for the first time, 31-30, with 49 seconds remaining in the half when Darrell Griffith hit two free throws.

Duke overpowers Virginia

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Mike Gminski scored 24 points Wednesday night to lead sixth-ranked Duke to an 84-66 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Virginia.

The Blue Devils shot 67 percent from the field, 70 percent in the first half, and had little trouble notching their 13th win against three defeats. Duke is 4-1 in the ACC, a half-game behind league-leading North Carolina.

The Cavaliers, 11-5 overall, didn't lead after Gminski's short jumper gave Duke a 17-16 lead midway in the first half. The Blue Devils built their margin to 37-31 at halftime.

With Gminski and Jim Spinakel doing the bulk of the scoring, Duke built a 52-39 lead with 15 minutes to play and opened a 75-51 bulge with just under three minutes left.

Jeff Lamp, the ACC's leading scorer, led the Cavaliers with 21 points.

Notre Dame routs Fordham

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Bruce Flowers scored 16 of his 18 points in the second half Wednesday night to power top-ranked Notre Dame to an 85-53 rout of Fordham.

Flowers scored 9 points in 49 seconds in one stretch during the second half as the Irish routed their 12th victory in 13 games. Notre Dame led 38-28 after a sluggish first half and pulled away easily after intermission.

For Notre Dame, Rich Branning had 13 points, Orlando Woolridge 12 and Bill Lalmbere 11, all in the first half. The Rams were led by Tom Kavanaugh with 14 points. Dud Zingale, a 7-foot freshman, added 10.

In the matchup of the Tripeuka brothers, Notre Dame's Kelly outscored Fordham's T.K., 11-10.

Fordham made just 36 percent of its shots from the field in the first half. The Irish, who lead the nation in field-goal percentage, hit 15-of-30.

Kansas beats Iowa State

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Center Paul Mokeski scored 17 points to lift Kansas to an 80-71 victory Wednesday night over Iowa State.

The Jayhawks outscored the Cyclones 16-2 over a 6:30 span midway in the first half to take a 23-11 lead. Mokeski scored 10 points in the first half as the Jayhawks, losers of their previous two games, built a 43-21 lead.

Johnny Crawford and Booty Neal each added 12 points for the Jayhawks, who upped their league record to 2-3 and overall mark to 10-6.

Andrew Parker scored 27 points, including 19 in the second half, to pace Iowa State, which fell to 3-2 in the conference and 9-9 overall.

Arkansas topples SMU

DALLAS (UPI) — Sidney Moncrief tossed in 23 points Wednesday night to lead Arkansas to a 79-67 victory over Southern Methodist in a Southwest Conference game.

Moncrief hit 8-of-15 from the field and 13-of-15 from the line, including four straight technical foul shots. Phil Hale hit 10-of-16 from the line and finished with 18 points for SMU.

The Mustangs, playing without leading rebounder Brad Branson, were forced to go to a man-to-man defense. Arkansas, leading all the way, took a 43-26 advantage at the half.

For Arkansas, Scott Hastings had 11 points, and Tony Brown and Keith Peterson in each. SMU's Johnnie James had 12 rebounds in 19 minutes. Arkansas raised its overall record to 12-4 record and conference mark to 4-3. The Mustangs fell to 7-9 and 2-4.

Texas Tech edges Houston

LUBBOCK, Texas (UPI) — Geoff Huston hit a pair of free throws with six seconds remaining Wednesday night, giving Texas Tech a 70-68 victory over Houston.

George Walker of Houston tied it 68-68 before Huston made his game-winning foul shot.

Kent Williams had 17 points to lead Tech. Victor Ewing paced the Cougars with 17 and Walker added 16. Houston is 3-5 in the Southwest Conference and 9-9 overall. The Red Raiders are 4-3 in the conference and 12-5 overall.

K-State slips past Oklaks

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — Steve Solder scored 24 points to pace Kansas State to a 77-73 overtime victory over Oklahoma State in a Big Eight game Wednesday night.

Mark Tucker of Oklahoma State had 27 points, including a 30-footer with two seconds left that sent the game into overtime.

Colorado tames Missouri

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Emmett Lewis scored a game-high 21 points Wednesday night to propel Colorado to an 82-69 victory over Missouri in a Big Eight game.

Missouri, 3-4 in the conference, rushed to a 24-11 lead midway through the first half as center Curtis Berry scored 6 of his team-high 16 points in the span. But the Buffs, 2-3 in the Big Eight, took a 44-37 lead at intermission.

In the second half the Tigers failed to threaten Colorado, which built an 18-point lead with 3:28 remaining.

Iona runs streak to seven

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Dave Brown scored a season-high 27 points Wednesday night to lead Iona to a 97-89 triumph over Fairfield to the Gaels' seventh straight victory.

The win, Iona's 10th in the last 11 games, raised the Gaels' record to 14-4. Fairfield dropped to 9-8.

Brown hit 11-of-15 from the floor and grabbed 9 rebounds to spark Iona, which shot 63 percent from the field. Kevin Hamilton added 23 points and Mike Palma chipped in 20 points and 7 assists.

Syracuse increases win streak

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Hal Cohen scored 24 points, including 4 in overtime, to help 13th-ranked

CSI invades Ricks tonight

TWIN FALLS — A slightly up tempo and a lot of defense are the two major prongs of Coach Mike Mitchell's game plan.

He and the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles put it into effect at 8 p.m. today at Ricks College and a lot is riding on the line.

It's the first regional battle of the season for the Eagles, who carry a 15-1 record, fourth spot in the national rankings and fourth best junior college defense into the fray. It is one of six CSI plays that will be used to determine the regional entries and host designation. It is ultra important because North Idaho currently is running 16-1 and showing no sign of being easily ousted from home court consideration.

"There's no doubt this is a pivotal game," Coach Mike Mitchell said Wednesday night. "If we can win this one we'll have our next three regional games and home. And I have to feel if we can come out of that with a 4-0 record it puts a lot of pressure on the other teams."

The coach said his game plan is based on a scouting trip to Rexburg. "They definitely like a quick tempo," he said of the Vikings. "And I have the feeling that a slowdown by us might not effect them. It might make them look better. So we want the pace of the game to be a little quicker than usual but not as quick as they seem to want it."

Defensively the Eagles will be in a man game applying as much pressure as possible. "How long we can play that probably will depend on the number of fouls. If we start getting in foul trouble, we'll drop back into a zone."

The confrontation should be best at the forward positions where CSI's Jerry Williams and David Thrift will be going against the Andersons of Ricks, both in the 6-6 area. "I felt when I watched them their forwards were the strong part of their team. They still have the big Australian playing the post and he gets a lot of rebounds. At guard they have one starter back, Orsino, and then Dale Stevens. He's a 6-4 player out of Illinois and the night I watched them he must have had about 30."

"With that starting lineup I don't know if they could go to a spread offense. Maybe they can. But I would think they would have to go to the bench for a couple of adjustments to get into a slowdown against us," Coach Mitchell said.

"We are expecting a zone," he answered the next obvious question.

Offensively CSI will be trying something new, something the coach has installed over the past few practice sessions. "We've got it prepared," he said of the new offense. "But I don't know if we've worked with it long enough to keep it running smoothly against game pressure."

The coach also noted that Ricks will be a little shorter in height but a little brawnier on the boards. "We definitely have to keep them from getting the second and third shots on their end and, of course, we'd like to get some tips on our end," he said.

Summing up Mitchell said "It's going to be a hard win. They are at home. We're not playing all that well right now and judging from their scores lately Ricks seems to be an improving club."

And what about Saturday's encounter with Central Oregon. "To be truthful I don't know a thing about them. Who they've got back or what their record is. That's something we can start getting together Friday morning," he said.

Richard Prospero will quarterback CSI against Ricks tonight

Top seeds advance in net meet

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors, faced with playing a late substitute for the second straight night, defeated Erik Van Dillen 6-1, 6-1, while the other four top seeds kept pace Wednesday night in the $250,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Championships.

Second-round winners also included

No. 2 Guillermo Vilas, 6-4, 6-3, over Buster Mottram, No. 3 John McEnroe, 7-5, 6-1, over Stan Smith; No. 4 Vilas Gerulaitis, 6-4, 6-1 over Zeljko Franulovic, and No. 5 Eddie Dibbs, 6-4, 7-5 over Cliff Drysdale.

Also advancing were seventh-seeded Harold Solomon, who defeated Andrew Pattison, 6-0, 6-3; ninth-seeded Roscoe Tanner, who took care of Tom Leonard, 6-3, 6-2, and 10th-seeded Arthur Ashe, who outlasted Harry Ressen, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4.

Connors, who defeated alternate Van Winitsky Tuesday night, was believed to have already advanced to the next round after an injury forced his scheduled opponent, Peter Fleming, to default. But tournament officials ruled that because Fleming had a first-round bye and had not played, he could be replaced by an alternate.

But the defending champion made quick work of Van Dillen, sending him scrambling for his smashes from the baseline. Connors took the first set on a double fault and won the match when Van Dillen netted a forehand from the baseline.

Vilas, playing here for the first time in four years, was content to exchange baseline strokes with Mottram early in the match but later rushed the net more frequently. A backhand volley gained Vilas the first set and an overhead smash, clinched the match for him.

McEnroe and Smith held their serves in the first 11 games of their match, but the 19-year-old left-hander broke Smith with a backhand volley to take the first set and built up a big advantage in the second set with a strong first serve.

Gerulaitis, rushing the net effectively, overcame a service break that helped Franulovic tie the score and won the first set. He took control of the final set by breaking his opponent's serve in the second game and dominated the match the rest of the way.

Solomon's ground strokes were accurate as he made short work of the erratic Pattison.

In other matches Wednesday night, Pat DuPre defeated Colin Dibley 3-6, 7-6, 7-6 and Hank Pfister routed Sherwood Stewart 6-1, 6-0.

Dibbs came back from a 4-2 deficit in the second set, running his 37-year-old opponent from side to side along the baseline and rushing the net occasionally. Dibbs fought off break point in the final game and won the match with a crosscourt volley.

Tanner's strong serve and frequent rushes to the net helped make him an easy winner over Leonard. He served two aces in the ninth game to win the first set, then broke Leonard in the third and seventh games of the second set.

Ashe overpowered Ressen early with his serve in a battle of veterans before Ressen came back. Ashe led 4-0 and 5-1 in the third set, but Ressen drew within 4-5 before Ashe netched his 20th ace and took the match with a backhand.

Barazzutti took the last four games of the first set to gain the advantage, but Masters came back to sweep the second set and win the first four games of the third to take the match. Nastase seemed to fall apart in his match in the third set after a lengthy argument over a line call. Harold Solomon had to qualify for the tournament, put him away with a passing, backhand volley.

Valley drops Pilots, shares league title

EDEN-HAZELTON — The Valley girls solved Glens Ferry's full court press in the second quarter Tuesday night and went on to claim a 54-30 victory and a share of the Canyon Conference girls basketball championship.

The victory left Valley at 10-1 for the season and 7-1 in the conference, tying them tie with Fossil and Shoshone Valley winds up its regular season Thursday night by hosting the Buhl Indians.

Glens Ferry, playing without top scorer and rebounder Amy Wertz, turned to a press and held the favored Vikings to a 6-4 first quarter lead. But in the second period Valley got behind the press several times for close-in points and hurried into a 24-13 halftime lead. The Vikings led it with an 18-point third period.

Valley's Jayvees also won 23-10. Glens Ferry ..... 4 13 20 30 Valley ..... 10 24 42 54 Glens Ferry — Willis 1, Anderson 7, Morrison 4, Heath 15, Guy 3, Valley — Black 1, W. Schwarz 14, Bloxham 5, Dixon 15, T. Schwarz 5, Colson 8, Day 6.

Eddie Dibbs unleashes a slam for indoor tourney win

Filer sets sights on Canyon league crown

MAGIC VALLEY — It was only a couple of weeks ago that the Canyon Conference was being touted as the tough basketball race of the year.

Going into this season's biggest weekend, that race is being pretty badly blunted by the Filer Wildcats who hold a big two-game lead over everyone in the lost column and look awfully tough.

Because while Filer still will be looking at its top three competitors over the second half of the season, those same three will be cutting each other up to Filer's possible benefit.

The Wildcats have two big battles this weekend, the first coming Friday night when they travel to Declo, one of the three teams in second place two games back.

Filer can take another big step Saturday night on a neutral court, playing the defensive-minded Kimberly Bulldogs in a battle at College of Southern Idaho. The game originally was scheduled for the Filer gymnasium but shifted to Saturday night where it will be the first half of a doubleheader. College of Southern Idaho will meet Central Oregon in the nightcap.

Kimberly has proved good at dodging bullets, particularly since it lost that pre-Christmas game to Glenns Ferry and opened the new year by bowing to Filer. However, that was by only a point and since the Filer and Kimberly gymnasiums came out of the same WPA package, there really isn't a great deal of homecourt advantage.

But Kimberly can't afford to lose this one because three games back with six to play would stretch plausibility.

While that one will highlight Saturday night, there will be a showdown in Fairfield from which the Northside Conference champion will spring. The Bliss Bears, excellent in league play with a double fault here and there out of the league, draws the challenge of taming the Mushers on the Fairfield floor. Coach Jerry Couch's Bears gave the Mushers a good hustle before falling by six earlier this month.

Right now Camas County leads Bliss by one in the lost column and can't afford to lose two. Camas County has three of its last four conference games on the home court and since the Mushers already are running unbeaten, two would seem to much to make up. Bliss can get into the with the victory but will have just one of three final loop games at home.

The weekend is dotted by a record 25 games with 14 of those coming Friday night.

On the road the big battle will be at Mountain Home where the Buhl Indians will be trying to take the lead in the SCIC. Mountain Home is eligible for the SCIC title although the Tigers do not play Wood River. The championship is based on percentage. Buhl already has that upset loss to Gooding to overcome but a win at Mountain Home would give the Indians the league since it plays more league games and can surmount a better percentage. That's what decided that year.

Wood River will be looking for a little revenge when South Fremont comes to Halley Friday night. The Eastern Idahoans drilled the Wolverines by 17 prior to Christmas.

Jerome will be home both nights for Cross State Conference play. The Tigers will host the tough Rigby Pirates Friday night and go against Madison of Rexburg Saturday.

Gooding steps out of the SCIC to entertain Glenns Ferry, which has dropped two straight.

In the Magic Valley Conference, undefeated and pace-setting Murtaugh will be home to the inconsistent Hansen Huskies. Hansen does things like score 30 points one night and 60 the next. But Murtaugh has been a consistent all year and being at home.

Oakley, surviving an overtime scare at Hansen Tuesday, stays on the road by traveling to Castelford, another team that fluctuates up and down in point production. Murtaugh also will have an eye-out toward Malta where the Rat River Trojans, and Hagerman Pirates, their closest competition to this point, will be trying to eliminate one another.

On the Northside, Camas County has that key game with Bliss. Meanwhile, Richfield goes on the road to Carey, where the Panthers are looking for their first win of the season.

The Canyon Conference has its battle lines drawn up among the leaders and cellar-dwellers. Filer faces a tough task in trying to stop Declo at Declo while Kimberly will be at Wendell. Valley travels to Shoshone and the winner of that one will leave the conference basement in the hands of the other.

Buhl has to be concentrating on Mountain Home Friday night but the Indians also have to be giving stray thoughts to Saturday. That's when Gooding, which knocked them out earlier, comes to the Indian gymnasium.

In other action, Wood River comes down the hill to play at Shoshone while Dietrich will be home to the Carey Panthers.

Richfield and Camas County step out of league play to host non-district foes. Clark County will be at Fairfield while Mackay comes to Richfield.

Again the Canyon Conference has a slate of those matchups that could scramble the league standings.

While Kimberly and Filer are fighting it out at CSI, Declo takes the long jump to Glenns Ferry while Valley returns home to entertain the Wendell Trojans.

Twin Falls invades Meridian, hosts Indians Saturday night

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls runs into two different styles and Minico straddles the state this weekend in Southern Idaho Conference battles.

Twin Falls will be at up-tempered Meridian Friday night and return to Twin Falls Saturday to play the more deliberate Pocatello Indians.

Minico faces an awesome chore, trying to beat Highland in Pocatello Friday and then hopping back across the state Saturday to play Borah in Boise.

Twin Falls holds a victory over Meridian thus far but Coach John Astorquia knows it isn't an easy challenge. In the home game, Twin Falls benefitted when sharpshooting guard Hansen went out in the third quarter on fouls. That can't be expected to happen again.

Taking care of the ball and using the height advantage are the two things Coach Astorquia is stressing to his

For the home match with Pocatello, Coach Astorquia says "It's the third man" who will be the key to the game. Pocatello has a pair of men about 6-6, McAughy and one of three Swenson. He anticipates these two will be underneath against the Bruins. The difference then will be a guessing game between Coach Astorquia and Coach Jerry Koester on how the Indians will defend against top gun Bob Brice.

This game does allow for a little "good news" for fans. In all probability there will be a lot of man-to-man defense. Not much of that has been seen in Twin Falls' high school or college by opposition in the past few years and particularly this year.

"I'm sure Coach Koester has a zone. In fact, he used it when he got in a little foul trouble against Burley earlier this year. But I also know he prefers the man game." Coach Astorquia said.

Pocatello doesn't have the height to go against Twin Falls as from those two 6-6 lads it drops to about 6-2. But the Indians reply with excellent quickness, not the least being the Branch brothers.

"Pocatello likes to get inside offensively. I don't know how well they shoot from the outside. The night I scouted them Robert Branch hit about four straight critical jumpers for them against Burley. But other people have said they tend to be erratic from the outside. I hope it's a down night for them Saturday.

Minico made possibly its best showing but bowed in the closing minutes by a point to Highland earlier this month. It is fact that Magic Valley teams always have trouble making any kind of showing in the Ram gym. Both Twin Falls and Minico have faced deficits of 20 to 26 points in the first quarter. Its the type of thing Coach Bill Gonzalez can expect on his maiden voyage there.

Saturday the Spartans will be facing an inside-baseline attack. Borah has a good scorer in Kyle Bickenstaff who plays and shoots out of the corners and baseline well. Additionally, Ereksun has become a strong player at 6-5 for the Lions inside.

Hubbard fights back from debilitating injury

DETROIT (UPI) — It's not easy watching a man of great athletic ability struggle along at 50-75 percent efficiency. But Coach John Orr of Michigan now has one more reason to admire Phil Hubbard.

"Hubbard isn't well," Orr said as he praised his player's fortitude against injuries. "I only hope he continues getting better."

The 6-foot-7 senior Michigan center has heard so much about his wounded left knee the questions are probably paining him more than his leg is.

"I've got nothing to say," he was overheard snapping to a writer after his first 40-minute game of the season, a 76-69 Michigan loss last Saturday to Big Ten leader Ohio State.

Hubbard has gone through a lot so far this season — and it's showing. With his junior eligibility, he's playing like he's lived half of the circles in Dante's "Inferno."

The formerly explosive All-Big-Ten center was slowly rounding into form at the beginning of the season when he got bumped on his bad left knee during a holiday game. The knee puffed up again a couple of weeks ago after another jolt and suddenly Hubbard was in a sweat.

"It was a setback. And you get a little leary," Orr said. "He had a knee (operation) and you don't know if you're going to walk — that goes through your mind."

"He's done a super job," Orr said, hotly. "A super job. I've got more respect for him now than I ever had. Especially after... what... he's... been through and what he's done."

"I hope his leg gets well and he comes back next year," said the Michigan coach, whose team's record has suffered right along with its star center.

"I hope he comes back next year and makes some of those guys eat everything they've said about him. I'm sure he's going to do it."

One of the reasons people have been disappointed — and expressed it — are the high standards Hubbard set before injuring his knee during the World University games in 1977. Only a healthy Hubbard could equal them.

"His scoring average of near 15.5 points per game compares favorably with his pre-injury norms of 15.1 and 19.6."

But so far in his comeback, the explosiveness, the Canton, Ohio, native displayed his freshman and sophomore seasons just isn't there. As a result, he has to think about doing things that formerly were natural.

"The mental strain is showing. What Hubbard needs is a boost — but all he gets is kicked around."

Some over-expecting Michigan fans have begun expressing their displeasure verbally and long-dormant critics are surfacing.

"I can't do anything about how long Hubbard's knee takes to heal," Orr said.

"I don't blame people," he said. "That's their business. I feel we're doing a helluva job just hanging in there under the circumstances."

"Once we get it back—together physically, we'll be all right."

Wrestlers schedule five duals tonight

MAGIC VALLEY — Fourth district wrestlers head into a busy final 10 days of the regular season Thursday with a schedule of six games.

All the dual matches will be completed by next week as the teams start readying for the district tournaments. The combined event will be held at Buhl high school gymnasium Feb. 6, 7 and 8.

Moving toward that season highlight, duals become the vogue after six weeks of tournament-type competition.

On Thursday night class A-1 favorite Burley will play host to the Madison Bobcats. Buhl, an A-2 contender for certain, will entertain the Minico Spartans while the Declo Hornets, running unbeaten in duals this season, will entertain the Gooding Senators.

In other action, Twin Falls travels to Halley to meet the Wood River Wolverines Thursday while Valley hops across the river for what could be a good tussle with the Kimberly Bulldogs.

In Friday's lone match, Twin Falls will travel to Buhl to meet the Indians.

DeBartolo offers $12 million cash for Finley's club

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A spokesman for sports millionaire Edward DeBartolo Sr. Wednesday night said the financier had offered $12 million to Oakland A's owner Charles Finley to buy the American League team and move it to Louisiana.

Vincent Bartimo, DeBartolo's authorized representative in the search for a baseball team for the Louisiana Superdome, said the cash offer was made last week.

Sources close to the negotiations said Finley was interested in selling the A's for $9 million, with an additional $4 million going to the Oakland Coliseum Authority as compensation for breaking the baseball team's remaining nine-year stadium lease.

Sources told UPI the remaining $1 million would be made up by the American League baseball teams and the National League San Francisco Giants.

Bartimo refused to comment on the negotiations other than to say the $12 million was offered to Finley last week.

"If the offer is accepted and approved by the league," Bartimo said in a telephone interview, "in our estimation it would take 96 hours to consummate the deal and move the team to New Orleans."

Any sale of the A's is contingent on approval of 10 of the league's 14 owners. Last year, when Denver oilman Marvin Davis bought the A's, Oakland Coliseum officials rejected a reported $3 million cash settlement to relocate the A's from the lease.

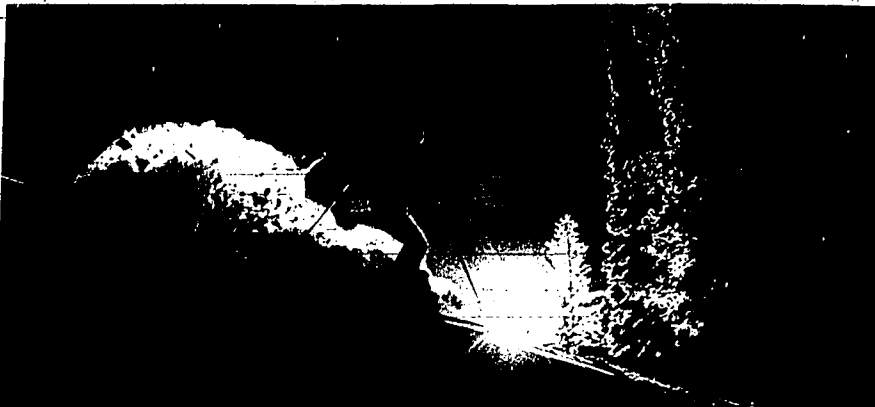

The rental agreement runs through 1987.

Bartimo, the general manager of DeBartolo's National Hockey League Pittsburgh Penguins and Louisiana Downs in Bossier City, La., said the fact that Oakland drew just one million fans during the last two seasons indicates the $12 million purchase offer is equitable.

Bartimo refused to indicate if DeBartolo was negotiating with any other teams for a possible shift to New Orleans.

The proposed sale of the A's prompted Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veeck to say recently that moving the team from Oakland to New Orleans would be like "jumping from the frying pan to the fire."

Bartimo, however, said the city could support major league baseball and cited DeBartolo's financial stability, which includes multimillion-dollar real estate holdings and three thoroughbred race tracks across the country.

State invited to help purchase Orioles

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Private investors who want to keep the Orioles in Baltimore will put up half the estimated $12 million sale price of the American League franchise and ask the state for a $6 million loan to pay the balance, a citizens group said Wednesday.

Mayor William Donald Schaefer's committee, formed several weeks ago in response to reports that former Treasury Secretary William Simon would buy the Orioles and move them to Washington, said legislation will be introduced "immediately" in the General Assembly to approve the loan.

Owner Jerold Hoffberger was in Jerusalem and was unavailable for comment. However, a committee spokesman said Hoffberger was told of the plan before he left and was "sincerely interested."

Gov. Harry Hughes said last week he would favor a loan if it was all that would keep the team in Baltimore.

Hughes said Wednesday that "any proposal would have to be reasonable and would have to meet all legal standards of the state. I would also imagine it would need the approval of the General Assembly."

Eight investors, headed by developers James Rouse and Harvey

Reds selling tickets despite disruptions

CINCINNATI (UPI) — If Cincinnati Reds fans are upset over the loss of Pete Rose and Sparky Anderson, ticket sales don't show it.

Reds President Dick Wagner says ticket sales for next season "are up, the best we've ever done" at this stage.

"We have had some cancellations, but we've had good increases," said Wagner.

Rose, the most popular Red when in a Cincinnati uniform, went the free agent route and signed with Philadelphia after negotiations with Wagner broke down. Anderson, the equally popular manager, was fired last November and replaced with John McNamara.

The Anderson firing in particular inflamed a backlash in Cincinnati. "Boycott Opening Day" bumper stickers made their debut, one woman hung Wagner in effigy on her front porch, and a tongue-in-cheek "Lynch Wagner" party planned by a disco was cancelled when the disco management thought fans were taking the party too seriously.

But Wagner said the Reds have sold "well over" 14,000 season tickets to date for this season. He added the most the club has ever sold at this point was around 14,800 tickets.

The Reds established three major league attendance marks last season, despite finishing behind Los Angeles. The Reds became the first team to draw 2.5 million paid fans at home three consecutive years, the first to draw in excess of two million fans both at home and on the road two straight years, and the team to draw the most fans on the road in one season — more than 2.3 million.

NFC stars lose two Cowboys

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The NFC all-stars, who will face the AFC all-stars in the Pro Bowl Monday night, lost defensive end Harvey Martin and defensive tackle Randy White of the Dallas Cowboys.

They were declared out Tuesday by the Cowboys' team physician.

Martin suffered a partially torn hamstring in his right leg in the Cowboys' 35-31 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers in Super Bowl XIII at Miami Sunday and White fractured his left thumb in Dallas' 29-9 victory over the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC championship game Jan. 7.

Martin will be replaced by Ezra Johnson, a second-year pro from Green Bay, and Doug English, a fourth-year player from Detroit, will replace White.

The loss of Martin and White left the number of Cowboys on the NFC team at seven.

Meyerhoff, were named. A spokesman said other investors did not wish to be named.

Schaefer said he would not "start lobbying the legislators until I know how the governor feels about it (the loan). But I think it is a very solid proposal."

Hoffberger has been trying to sell the team for several years. The club has lost money three of the last four years, including $24,000 last year.

He has said publicly he would give first preference to a buyer who would keep the team in Baltimore. Simon, who began negotiating with Hoffberger in December, said he would have the Orioles play at least 13 games in Washington in 1980.

Vikings exercise options

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings said Wednesday the club has renewed the options of 12 players who will be in the option year of their contracts in 1979.

In addition, the Vikings have 11 players who could become free agents Feb. 1.

Mike Lynn, Vikings general manager, said the club is picking up the options for the 1979 season of the following players: Bobby Bryant, Greg Coleman, Wes Hamilton, Sammy Johnson, Robert Miller, Steve Riley, Scott Studwell, Fran Tarkenton, Bob Tucker, Harry Washington, Sammy White and Rickey Young.

Writer 'busted' seeking Stabler interview

MIAMI (UPI) — A California sportswriter who has been feuding with Ken Stabler says he was set up for a cocaine bust in Alabama while he was trying to get an interview with the Oakland Raider quarterback, it was reported Wednesday.

Bob Padecky of the Sacramento Bee said in copyright stories in the Bee and the Miami Herald Wednesday he was able to convince police at Gulf Shores, Ala., that the cocaine had been planted and he was released.

He said he was driven under armed guard to the Pensacola, Fla., airport because police said his life was in danger from drug dealers.

He said officers told him reporting the story might get him killed and would also ruin a widespread investigation of drug peddling on the Gulf coast.

Stabler said he knew nothing about the drug investigation.

"There's never been anything like that here. I don't think there ever will be," Stabler said. "It's absolutely ridiculous, absurd. I don't have anything to hide. It's crazy."

Padecky, 32, said he and Stabler had been feuding since last month when he wrote a story about what Stabler's neighbors at Gulf Shores and Foley, Ala., thought of him.

The incident began when Stabler, who had the worst year of his pro career in 1978, called the Sacramento Bee sports desk to set up an interview for Monday with Padecky.

"I want to spill my guts about the whole season," he was quoted as saying.

Padecky said he met Stabler as scheduled at one of the quarterback's two restaurants Monday morning. Stabler said he had some business to do elsewhere and led Padecky from Lefty's to B.J.'s to the Silver Dollar Lounge.

The writer said Stabler ripped into him verbally at the Silver Dollar Lounge, but still promised to grant the interview.

"He just rips me up one side and down the other. He says 'You are out to get me. I can't believe it. No one has ever done this before,'" Padecky said.

"After about 10 minutes Stabler left."

"In five minutes, Kenny calls me again. This time he wants me to go back to B.J.'s," Padecky said. "This is the third runaround. I'm Polish, but I'm not that stupid. I know something is wrong."

As he pulled his rental car out of the parking lot, Padecky was surrounded by three squad cars.

"They spread-eagled me and told me to 'fess up and throw me in the slammer,'" Padecky said.

Sgt. A.D. "Gotton" Long said he had received a telephone call describing Padecky's rental car and giving its license number.

"He said there would be cocaine at the left tire in the wheelbase," Long said.

He said when he checked there he found a magnetic key case containing less than an ounce of cocaine.

Padecky was arrested for possession of cocaine, but after he was interrogated for awhile he convinced Long and Police James E. Maples that he had been set up.

He said five armed officers then drove him to the Pensacola airport where he caught a plane out.

Maples and Long asked Padecky and the Herald not to print the story and became angry when they were told it would be published. Maples called Alabama Attorney General Charles Craddock for help in stopping the story.

"He just said Stabler had called this reporter into town to give him a story and then, once he got him there, gave him a hard time. And they'd had an anonymous call that a rental car matching a certain description would be at some nightspot and a dope deal was going to go down," Craddock said.

"Chief Maples never said anything to me about Stabler, other than he was giving the reporter a hard time for asking questions of the townspeople concerning Stabler's having a bad year," Craddock said.

Diagnostic 'map' to aid knee injury

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — A University of Akron medical research team believes it has come up with a diagnostic tool that in some cases may eliminate the need for exploratory surgery to determine extent of knee injuries in athletes.

The researchers have been recording what amounts to a sound track of the knee. The sound, as the knee moves, can be fed into a computer which will, in turn, produce a graph "like a topographical map," said Dr. Ivan A. Gradisar.

"An unhealthy knee sounds like two pieces of sandpaper rubbed together," he explained.

Dr. Richard A. Mostardi, a university biologist who conducted knee experiments with animals, explained, "A healthy knee sounds like nothing. Everything fits together. There's practically no sound."

Mostardi played football for Kent State University, the Cleveland Browns and the Minnesota Vikings. The graph is used "to evaluate the condition of the joint surfaces of the knee," Gradisar said.

The computer bank also can store the sounds of a number of knees and researchers can call up a comparison to predict diagnosis and prescribe treatment.

"It's a painless procedure," Gradisar said.

To date, the procedure has been used mostly with arthritis patients. But one pro football player was advised against having knee surgery after his knee was sounded, Gradisar said.

Writers blamed for Texas sale

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — During the 1977 season, Texas Rangers owner Brad Corbett became so depressed with his slumping team, he announced at a news conference he would sell the club at the conclusion of this season.

Nothing came of it.

Now Corbett says he's depressed again, this time with the reporters who cover the Rangers. And the mercurial owner, who made his fortune in plastic plumbing pipe, again says he wants to sell the Rangers.

"Do you know what it is to pick up the paper to have your kids come home and to think you're a screaming idiot and that everything you do is wrong?" he said earlier this week.

"I think it's time (to get out), and when I get out, I'll just have my day with the press."

"I hope, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that within the next six months I can unload the ball club. And it could be to some Arabs. And you guys (reporters) can cut them up."

Corbett said he was depressed with the "bad press" he has received about his recent trades and free agent acquisitions and the end-of-season firing of manager Billy Hunter.

Even the team's top hitter and last season's most valuable player, Al Oliver, was quoted in local newspapers questioning Corbett's post-season unloading... of starting outfielders Bobby Bonds and Juan Beniquez, first baseman Mike Hargrove, pitcher Len Barker, third baseman Toby Harrah and a wealth of young farm talent.

Mallory nixes Ohio State job

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Bill Mallory said Wednesday he had rejected an offer to become the defensive coordinator at Ohio State because he wants to continue as a head coach.

Mallory, fired last November as head coach at the University of Colorado, said he had been somewhat interested in the Ohio State job.

"But I want to stay a head coach at the collegiate level. I feel something will open for me. I'm going to pull back and pursue it this way."

Mallory said he had no definite job possibilities but felt something would develop.

Mallory also said he had reached a tentative agreement with CU in a dispute over receiving pay for the remaining years on his contract.

Former 'land cruiser' relaxes with music

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — When Ralph Day was 13 years old he was employed on an historic task — although at the time it just meant a summer job.

The longtime Gooding resident came to Twin Falls in June, 1909, with his parents from near Craigmont in northern Idaho. He was born in Wauitsburg, Wash., in 1895.

An uncle, Joe Day, already engaged in the booming real estate business in Twin Falls as settlers sought land under the Carey Act, hired young Day and his own son who was 16 for $3.50 per week to clear land parcels on the Jerome and Rogerson tracts.

Day describes their method as "land cruising."

Essentially the two young boys, after locating the land parcels by the cruising operation, simply burned the tall sagebrush with a coal oil burner. There were no air pollution laws or EPA to worry about in their work.

Their employer provided them with a team of horses, a Mormon hack, some baled hay, barrel of water, blankets and food to last a week (consisting of canned tomatoes and corn, crackers and cheese), a compass, the coal oil burner and a map showing the location of the land they were to clear.

Thus armed, the two drove out into the trackless sagebrush into the general area of the property they were to clear. When they found a corner stake they would tie a white rag to the rear wheel of the hack and by using the compass would proceed straight east, for example, until after so many turns of the wheels they would stop and find another corner stake.

They repeated this "cruising" operation until the land they were supposed to clear was found. Since the land was spread over a large area the boys could only clear about three parcels a week.

"When we came in (to Twin Falls) at the end of the week we would report to the (Barks and Day) realty company. They never questioned us," Day said.

Apparently, the boy's "cruising" fulfilled one of the major provisions for "proving up" land under the Carey Act.

"Everyone seemed happy about our work," Day said, "but the company, the landowners and the government."

But he admits that on a few occasions when the boys couldn't find heavy burnable brush on the land they were supposed to clear, they would set fire to brush on adjoining land.

"One time the realty company people did mention the smoke seemed to be a little farther west than it should be," he laughed.

But like any youthful summer job, the "land cruising" only lasted until school started. Day attended eighth grade at Lincoln School in Twin Falls.

In February, 1910, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Day, moved to Artesian City, a then new settlement about six miles south of Murtaugh. An area of land about six miles wide and 30 miles long, extending from Rock Creek to Oakley had just been opened for homesteading.

The core of this project was land owned by J.E. Bower, who Day recalls as an early landowner who decided to subdivide his holdings into parcels varying from 10 to 100 acres. Day thinks the land sold for about $100 per acre, considerably more than what pioneers paid for the Twin Falls tract which by this time was all taken.

Artesian City was enhanced with hot springs where a natorium was built. The natorium was a popular place during the World War I years, Day said.

The homesteading venture at Artesian was ill fated because Bower and other developers had badly overestimated the water available from Dry Creek for irrigating. There also were several warm artesian wells scattered throughout the area, and these were highly advertised to attract Eastern settlers. But not only did the creek fail to flow, as it had in flood years, but the water level in the artesian wells dropped and pumps then did not have the capacity to provide the necessary water.

But despite the poor farming situation, the community hall at Artesian was the center of a lively civic life in pre-World War I years, including literary society programs and debates and square dancing. In addition to the hall the "town" boasted a school, one store and a livery stable besides the natorium, as Day recalls.

Brought up on music, Day played the fiddle, and his son organized a three-piece orchestra which played for dances throughout the area from 1910 to 1916 when he joined the Marine Corps in World War I.

The Artesian hall could accommodate 16 squares, according to Day, and for $20 Day and his fellow musicians, the late Art and Edith Wilson who later lived in Buhl, "would play all night."

The rye waltz and finger polka were among the oldtime favorites, with the "rag" considered the modern dance of the times.

"We'd just jazz up some of the old tunes when dancers wanted the "rag," Day grinned.

The Day musical group would drive up to 20 miles one way to play at the country school houses which dotted all pioneer settlements. They played from Rock Creek to Oakley, including Murtaugh, Marlon and Churchill.

Once a man rode his horse into the hall and waved his gun, but the floor manager took the gun away and led man and beast safely outside. Another incident could have been more serious as the man, whom Day recalls as Henry Workman later sentenced to the state penitentiary, pistol whipped his brother-in-law.

No one interfered in this unscheduled "entertainment" since everyone believed the gun was probably loaded.

Day's father later was associated with the late D.B. Moorman, grandfather of Mark Moorman of Milner, and purchased a ranch in the Milner area. After he returned from overseas military service in France, Day worked for his father in the seed business. In 1922 he went into business for himself, renting a building for $15 a month in Murtaugh. He handled seed and grain and later beans.

In 1928 he married Delbhl Blake, whose father, the late Joe Blake, sold garden produce to grocery stores in Twin Falls. The couple moved to Gooding in 1938 where Day operated the Western Warehouse Co. until it burned in 1962.

He still is active, often driving 100 miles in a day during the summer to keep tabs on his farms which he now rents out.

Mrs. Day who taught math and science at the Twin Falls High School from 1923 until 1928, has been state president of several organizations including the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The Days have three children, Roberta Kistler of Seldotun, Alaska; Rev. Stanley W. Day of Meridian and Rosemary Lioma of Gooding.

Day has been unable to continue his fiddling and piano playing for many years now because of a muscular problem but he diverted his love for music toward composing as a hobby. He has had several songs published, but asked if he ever made any money on any of them, said, "Only a pittance." Two of the publishing firms he dealt with went broke.

Day is an active member of the Gooding Rotary Club, regularly attending the weekly luncheons despite the icy driving conditions. He often participates in arranging programs for the club and recently told them about the "land cruising" activity.

"I like action," he confided, "upon returning home from Rotary Club last week undeterred by snow covered streets.

Idaho rates high at elderly's housing meeting

LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

HANSEN — A Hansen woman who attended a grass roots housing symposium for the retired in Washington, D.C., returned home last week "thanking God Idaho is not like the rest of the United States."

Mildred L. Howard, administrator of the Senior Citizen Center at Kimberly said she was the "only representative from Idaho at the symposium sponsored by the Federal National Mortgage Association Jan. 11-13 at the Capital Hilton Hotel.

Some 120 senior citizens were invited to the expense-paid gathering to discuss housing-related issues. Participants were divided into round table groups of 10, Mrs. Howard said.

During these discussions, Mrs. Howard said she "came to the conclusion that Idaho is not part of the United States; we do not seem to live like other people and I thank God for that."

Most of the delegates lived in high rise apartment buildings or condominiums "completely separated from the rest of the community," where guards and even nurses were common, Mrs. Howard said.

"They absolutely could not believe that my husband and I have three acres of land and the town is built around us — that we all have space enough to live and breathe (in Idaho)," she said.

Referring to the Kimberly center which serves Murtaugh, Hansen and Kimberly and the telephoning and visiting of older residents by both church members and neighbors, Mrs. Howard said there seemed "none of that there" — at least as reported by the representatives from the nine other states in her round table group.

Instead the emphasis was on how elders were afraid to walk down stairs, go to a store, or go out at night alone.

"They talked about guards who come along periodically to knock on the apartment door to see if they are OK. They don't seem to have the family affiliation like we do," the Hansen woman said.

Delegates from the southern states, New York and Massachusetts shared the same fear of crime, she said. They seemed especially frightened of young people and even children who might attack them or snatch their purses.

Because of this fear, symposium participants suggested new housing for the elderly should have shopping areas close by with some sort of protection.

The overriding issue was the need-for-more-senior-housing, "no matter where you live or how you put it."

Mrs. Howard said the discussion indicated many elderly Americans live in rural isolation near poverty, although there were some delegates at the meeting, such as the one from Sun City, Ariz., where money was no problem.

Lack of transportation for seniors also was discussed. In contrast to cities like Washington, "where there's a bus on every corner," Mrs. Howard said, in many states the only public transportation available is that provided by the senior citizen centers operated through the Office of Aging.

She was pleased to learn that, compared to the other states represented, Idaho has "way more senior citizen centers which provide at least twice the program of any other state I heard about."

"I was really pleased that Idaho is so advanced, providing so well for the elderly, even though we know we aren't reaching everyone, for lack of outreach workers," the Idaho delegate said.

"I was constantly asked, 'How can you afford to provide your senior citizen program?'" Mrs. Hansen said. The answer is local support which seems lacking in many other states.

"They depend entirely upon state or federal funds and don't have support of businesses, farmers and organizations like we do here," she said. "The RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program) is everywhere in the U.S. but they don't seem to have the volunteers that we have."

All discussions were taped and the computerized findings of the check before the symposium will be made public by the mortgage firm, a federally chartered, privately owned corporation which is the largest single supplier of home mortgage funds.

Mrs. Howard remained in the capital several days after the symposium ended to meet with Idaho congressmen. She also attended several Senate committee sessions and toured the headquarters of the National Council of Senior Citizens, a legislative group which has no official connection with the senior citizen organizations operated under the Office of Aging.

No taxes owed? Still file a return, a refund may be in store

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: Both my wife and I are over 65. We are retired on Social Security but both of us work and earn as much as we can without affecting our benefits. Someone recently told us that if we had earned under a certain amount in 1978, that we did not have to file an income tax return for 1978. Is this true?—L.T.

Whether you must file an income tax return depends upon your income and filing status. The 1978 Federal Income Tax Guide suggests that you should file a return even if you do not owe any taxes due to the possibility of a refund.

If you need other information, you should call the toll-free IRS else to handle his final affairs. I am trying to do it. Most of the medical and hospital bills have been paid by Medicare. One bill which is still outstanding is for the ambulance service which took him to the hospital when he had the stroke. I service to a hospital or skilled nursing facility only when (1) the ambulance, its equipment and personnel meet Medicare requirements, and (2) transportation by other means could endanger the patient's health. Medicare insurance will only pay the reasonable charges for transportation to the nearest facility equipped to provide the services you need.

Transportation under these conditions also applies when being transported from hospital to skilled nursing facility, hospital to hospital, or skilled nursing facility to your home.

Medicare will cover 80 percent of the reasonable charges for an approved ambulance service. You can obtain a Medicare Request For Payment form at a Social Security office.

Con men plague senior citizens

WASHINGTON — Senior citizens frequently are the targets of confidence schemes, according to the FBI.

The bureau has issued a "crime resistance alert" to help older homeowners beware of unscrupulous "repairmen."

One of the more common schemes involves criminals posing as home repairmen or representatives of utility companies.

Selecting a victim who lives alone in a remote area, the "repairman" convinces the victim that minor household repairs are necessary. They require little time and the bill generally is less than $10.

The "repairman" asks to be paid immediately and persuades the homeowner to pay by personal check — for "record keeping" purposes. He may also request the homeowner prove the check is good by revealing the amount in the checking account. The "repairman" usually will offer to "assist" his victim by completing the face of the check after it is signed by the victim. He then subsequently raises the amount of the check before cashing it. If the victim has revealed his account balance, the check may be raised to within a few dollars of that sum.

But this scheme need not be successful, the FBI says. Preventive measures might include:

—Representatives of utility companies should have identification or their identity and purpose may be confirmed through a telephone call to the company in question. Use the number listed in the directory, not the one given by the would-be repairman.

—Should you be visited by a "repairman" you do not know, consider checking his record through established sources, such as local tradesmen, credit bureau, etc., prior to agreeing to any repairs.

—Never allow anyone to complete your check, and when writing the amount, write to each margin, making alterations more difficult.

—Do not ever reveal the balance of your banking account.

Medical cause of fatigue rare

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.,
Dear Dr. Lamb,

I am desperate for any information you can give me—I get very tired, so tired that I can't seem to stay on my feet. Before this started I was doing a lot of walking and shopping. I have been having this trouble for over six months, and it's getting worse.

I went to my doctor and he didn't seem to know what was tiring me. This irritated me so much that I almost had a nervous spell. I started losing my hair and at present I don't have enough to put up in curlers. My laboratory tests included thyroid examinations which were completely normal. I am losing my hair rapidly. I hardly have any left.

I put some Clorox in a hair spray bottle to get rid of the larger bottle and I can't remember if I used it by mistake or not. I have made an appointment with the dermatologist because of my hair problem but I don't understand this being tired all the time.

Dear Reader,
You did the right thing by having a medical examination. There are many causes for fatigue. In 80 percent of the cases no medical cause for the fatigue can be found. But that means one out of five cases of fatigue is associated with some medical problem.

It's pretty difficult to treat a person's fatigue unless you have a good understanding of what is causing it. If you really had low thyroid function that could cause you to be tired. Any number of medical illnesses, including infectious diseases such as tuberculosis, can cause fatigue.

Other hormone changes besides inadequate amounts of thyroid hormones can also cause fatigue. A good example here is a person who has low function of the adrenal gland. In its extreme form we call this Addison's disease. Weakness, weight loss and pigmentation of the skin may occur in this condition.

In the 80 percent of people who have no associated medical cause for fatigue, it is often caused by life style and psychological factors. Some people are bored because they don't have any goals in life. Others aren't enjoying life for a variety of reasons. One way to add a little zest to living is to do something every day that you enjoy.

Other people have a depression. These occur for a variety of reasons, but are most apt to occur in middle life. Often, depression to the point that it causes severe fatigue and inability to be active requires professional help.

To give you a better idea of fatigue, what causes it and what you can do about it I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-6, Fatigue: Feeling Tired and Wary. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. This Health Letter will also provide you some helpful suggestions about what you might do about your life style to combat your tendency toward fatigue.

You should see a dermatologist if your hair is falling out. This can be associated with nutritional problems. If your diet has changed drastically in association with your current episodes of fatigue, that might be a factor.

Nervousness sometimes causes a loss of hair and as you well know, conversely, if you lose a lot of hair that can cause you to be nervous, too. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Pennies by the Inch' counts towards kid's hospital fund

SALT LAKE CITY — The 1979 "Pennies by the Inch" campaign for the Primary Children's Medical Center in Salt Lake City will take place Feb. 5 through Feb. 17, and volunteers will be calling on homes in the Magic Valley.

Families are asked to "stand tall" and contribute one penny (nickel, dime or quarter) for each inch of height, according to Mrs. Dorothy E. (Betty) Wells, chairman for the campaign. Funds raised will make it possible to provide medical care for needy children at Primary Children's. It has long been the policy that all children, without regard to race, religion or ability to pay, will be admitted and treated at Primary Children's—from all Intermountain states. Last year over $780,000 was raised through the campaign, an important part of the total $1,000,000 expended for charity care at the specialized children's facility. (Physicians at Primary Children's contribute their skilled services when caring for needy children, so "only hospital" expenses incurred in treating charity cases are reimbursed through "Pennies By The Inch" donations.) Primary children's is the only full-service pediatric facility between Denver and the West Coast. All services, equipment, physicians and specialists are geared especially to caring for children. The hospital's important service to the broad area is providing critical care not available in most community hospitals.

Dear Abby

Counseling gives insight

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.
DEAR ABBY: I've read your column for years, but this is my first letter to you. I'm glad I can put this in a letter because I could never ask anyone face to face what I need to know.

I'm 18, and can't count all the guys I've gone all the way with. Why am I such a no-good? Is something wrong with me? I was raped by my cousin when I was 11, and from then on it's been one guy after another. Some of them I didn't feel a thing for. All a guy has to do is sweet-talk me a little and he can get anything he wants.

I'm not real cool, and I'm not stacked or anything, but guys seem to dig me because I'm friendly. I don't do drugs, and alcohol makes me sick. I'm all screwed up about sex. It doesn't mean anything special to me. It's just a way to get acquainted.

Is there any hope for me, Abby? I'd like to be respectable, but I don't have any money for a shrink. What can I do?

EASY IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR EASY: Call the mental health clinic nearest you. It is listed in your telephone book. Tell them Abby suggested that you go there for counseling. (It's free for those without money.) You will not be put down or judged for your past behavior. Instead, through counseling you will learn to understand why you became so permissive and casual about sex. You will also learn how to build your self-esteem and change the course of your life. Please, please, seek their help. Then write to me again and let me know of your progress. I care.

DEAR ABBY: A dear friend of mine is an attractive young divorcee with three small children. Lately she's been spending her weekends out of town with her boss, who is married.

Here's the problem: She has been leaving her children at her mother's on weekends, and telling her mother that she's spending the weekend with us. I realize this is wrong. My husband says he has covered up for her for the last time, and if I don't tell her she can no longer use us as a coverup, HE will tell her.

I can't tell her, Abby. It would be like the pot calling the kettle black because I was no better than she is before I was married. What should I do?

ARIES

DEAR ARIES: Your friend "the kettle" could be brewing up an explosive mixture of evidence which could cost her custody of her children and bring much unhappiness to the family of her married boyfriend. You're not a "pot" anymore, so tell her, without sitting in judgment, that you'll no longer be a party to this game.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Winter blues brightened by sun resort fashions

By PATRICIA SHELTON

Chicago Sun-Times
Aah, winter! How you thrill to the touch of its icy fingers up and down your spine! How you cherish every day until spring comes.

Bull! It's miserable, confining, dreary and depressing. What's more, you'd like to tell it to shove off. And then you'd like to shove off to civilized climes and the sun's caresses.

Why don't you? You don't have anyone to keep the kids, and, worse yet, you don't have a thing to wear after you do your shoving? Tell the kids' father they're his worry for a couple of weeks, and then go shopping for some cheery resort clothes that you can wear all next summer.

Budget traveler or a first-class splurger, you can find plenty of free-and-easy resort duds to stop traffic wherever you go.

Designer Hermina Kuk's shapes are slim. Colors are lively — strong pastels and primary brights. Prices run from $20 for some tops to $50 for dresses good-looking enough to wear to a fancy restaurant.

Fabrics are easy-care cotton-polyester jersey and silk-polycotton slubs. They have the look and feel of "naturals" with the wrinkle-resistant and no-sag qualities of synthetic fibers.

Robbie Bee has been experiencing rather phenomenal growth since it started moving out of middle-of-the-road missy clothes and pushing for high fashion eight years ago. It has soared from gross sales of less than $1 million in 1970 to more than $6 million this year. Based upon orders for resort and spring merchandise, president Bob Glick is predicting that sales will top $9 million in 1979.

For luxury lovers who are getting a little tired of on-again, off-again fashion trends, once-wild Billy Falcon has decided to go classic with much of his resortwear. He's approaching high fashion's slumdown with a soft, sleek touch in a mix-and-match collection of separates and dresses.

Whatever you want to do, there's something good-looking to do it in — from bright-colored terrycloth separates to sophisticated silks that can be worn a lot of different ways. Prices run from about $50 to $114 for most of the pieces.

Falcon fans who like to really romp now and then will find strapless rompers in cottons and silks, starting at $65. They're color-coordinated with skirts and jackets, for moments when timidity takes over. Falcon also has done a romper in transparent tuchia mousseline, which (we've been advised) he will give to any sunshine-seeker who has nerve enough to wear it.

Bulgarian folk assembly to give CSI performance

TWIN FALLS — "Pirin," the Bulgarian National Folk Assembly, will be featured at the Magic Valley Community Concert Jan. 30 at 8:15 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

The company of 70 artists, including dancers, acrobats, a women's chorus and state folk orchestra, is making its first American tour this year. "Pirin" has been acclaimed in some 20 countries on three continents—Europe, Asia and Africa—proving the kind of handsome, professionally polished troupe which stirs audiences to standing ovations.

Cyril Stefanov is the artistic director who welds together the multiple details of an exciting production. The performances recreate Bulgarian history which dates back 4,000 years through the Thracian, pre-Christian era to the present. A land of startling contrasts, Bulgaria boasts incredible mountain ranges, the Black Sea coast, the plains of the Danube and rolling hills of surpassing beauty.

The artists are adorned by many designs and exotic costumes which best show off the folk customs of yesterday and today. "Pirin" apparel is an eye-popping parade of silks and embroideries, headpieces, jewelry, vests, caps and pantaloons which add up to visual splendor.

Women, law conference scheduled

BOISE — A conference titled "Idaho Women and the Law: Independence of Self" will be held at Boise State University Friday and Saturday, Feb. 2 and 3, with nationally known speakers and Idaho lawyers and educators on the program.

The conference will cover such topics as "The History of Women and the Law," "The Status of Women in Idaho," and "The Role of the Law: What It Can and Cannot Do," and "Women as Victims of Crime." Workshops will be given on crime, economics, reproductive freedom, education, domestic relations, and politics. Speakers will include Marilyn Wessel, Journalist from Bozeman, Mont., Attorney Merry Munter, and Emilio Viano, sociologist from the American University in Washington, D.C., who will speak during Friday evening's dinner program on "Women as Victims of Crime."

The two-day conference is sponsored by the Boise YWCA and Boise State University through a grant from the Association for the Humanities in Idaho. All interested persons are urged to register early. Conference registration fee is $5 plus $4.95 for the optional Friday evening dinner where Emilio Viano will speak. Some fee waivers will be available on request. Mail registration and fee (make checks to Idaho Women and the Law) to Tina Alexander, Project Director, Boise YWCA, 720 Washington Street, Boise, 83702.

Tri-Delts plan second meeting

PORTLAND — Members of Delta Delta Delta women's fraternity will hold their second biennial Northwest District Meet at the Thunderbird Motor Inn at Janzen Beach in Portland on April 20 and 21.

Over 230 delegates and members from 16 alumnae chapters and members from all parts of three states where there are no alumnae chapters are expected.

Delta Delta Delta is one of the largest women's fraternities in the nation with 106,000 members and was founded in 1888 in Boston.

All members interested in attending should write to Mrs. William McDaid, 1185 Forest Meadow Way, Lake Oswego, Ore., 97034, for more information.

Kramer installed as Castleford Men's president

CASTLEFORD — Terry Kramer was installed president of the Castleford Men's Club Monday night in the annual banquet for organization members and guests.

He succeeds Curt Darrow. Other new officers include Bob Winson, vice president; Charles Latham, secretary-treasurer and Ken Twedy, usher. Winson was re-elected and Terry Kramer was formerly secretary-treasurer.

About 300 persons attended the banquet in the high school cafeteria Monday evening. Dr. Richard D. Gibb, principal speaker, discussed changes at the University of Idaho, where he is president. He said the people of Idaho pay $30 million to operate the University and its programs each year and the University wants to offer practical and realistic training for future businessmen, industrialists and professionals.

He said some 50,000 people take certified public accountant exams and only five in 25 in Idaho pass. This is a high average, he said, with only one in 25 passing in some states.

"This indicates we need better and more practical training for our college students," Gibb said.

The university president said the University of Idaho medical school has a one of a kind program it will be working on this year.

"About 40,000 people in the United States die of snake bite each year. That's more than die in traffic accidents, but there is no research to provide protection for these people.

"We at the University of Idaho hope to come up with a vaccine we can administer to children at about two years of age which will make them immune to the poison of snake bites throughout their lives," Dr. Gibb said.

He said the National Science Foundation has agreed to fund the research and the University of Idaho is the only place this research is being conducted.

Dr. Gibb said if such a vaccine can be developed the life saving value would be tremendous.

Gibb said the University is attempting to run an economical program as possible, keeping the taxpayers' plight and current living costs in mind.

TWIN FALLS — Frederick R. Pepperkorn, son of Mrs. Loretta A. McNurlin of Twin Falls, recently received Army staff sergeant chevrons during a promotion ceremony at Fort Meade, Md. Presently assigned as a supply specialist for the U.S. Army Baltimore-Washington District Recruiting Command, Sergeant Pepperkorn's duties include maintenance of a 140 vehicle fleet driven by approximately 150 Army Recruiters. He also has received two awards of the Good Conduct Medal during his past seven years of Army service.

Sgt. Pepperkorn

TWIN FALLS — Larry Dean Trout, son of Lewis and Maxine Trout of Twin Falls, has been assigned to the Yuma Proving Ground in Arizona as part of a test board for a new advanced attack helicopter, which will tentatively replace the AH1 Cobra helicopter. A 1969 graduate of Twin Falls High School, he re-enlisted Jan. 10 at Ft. Bragg, N.C. He was previously crew chief on the Cobra and Huey helicopter at Ft. Bragg.

TWIN FALLS — Maj. Duane E. Hardesty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd E. Hardesty of Twin Falls, recently was presented the Meritorious Service Medal at Ft.

Ord, Calif. The Meritorious Service Medal is awarded by authority of the President of the U.S. to members of the Armed Forces who have distinguished themselves by exceptional achievement in the performance of their official duties.

Major Hardesty's previous decorations include three awards of the Bronze Star Medal, at least one for heroism, the Air Medal, the Joint Service Commendation Medal, three awards of the Army Commendation Medal, at least one for heroism and the Combat Infantryman Badge. He is currently a student at Ft. Ord, where he resides with his wife, Jan.

OAKLEY — Marine Pvt. Paul R. Goringe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay F. Goringe of Oakley, has completed the infantry combat training course at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif. A 1978 graduate of Oakley High School, he joined the Marine Corps in August 1978.

TWIN FALLS — Marine Sgt. Terry D. Obenchain, son of Dan and Mary Obenchain of Twin Falls, recently participated in exercise "Varsity Lance" off the Southern California coast. He is a member of the 5th Marine Amphibious Brigade, 1st Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif. A 1974 graduate of Twin Falls High School, Obenchain joined the Marine Corps in December 1972.

WENDELL — Navy Airman Debra L. Diehl, daughter of Omer and Lois Diehl of Wendell, has reported for duty at North Island Naval Air Station in San Diego. A 1974 graduate of Wendell High School, she joined the Navy in June, 1974.
