

China's Teng arrives in U.S.

Times-News wires

WASHINGTON — Chinese leader Teng Hsiao-ping spent the first evening of his Washington visit sampling American hospitality at the home of National Security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Teng, his wife, and leading members of his party slipped away from Blair House shortly after 6 p.m. for the previously-unannounced engagement, the White House said.

The spokesman stressed the dinner was "informal" and a follow-up to an invitation from Brzezinski to Teng when they were lunching together last May in Peking and laying the groundwork for opening full diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Keeping his promise to give Teng a "typical American dinner," Brzezinski served roast beef. His children, Jan, 15, Mark, 14, and Mika, 13, waited on table.

Teng, who rose from political disgrace to the halls of power in China, arrived in the United States Sunday to usher in his dream of a new age in Sino-American relations.

The Chinese guests included Teng, his wife, Chao Lin, Deputy Prime Minister for technology Fang Yi and his wife, Foreign Minister Huang Hua and his wife, and ambassador Chi Tse-min.

Besides Drzezinski and his wife, the American guests were Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and ambassador-designate Leonard Woodcock and their wife, Michael Oxenberg of the National Security Council, and State Department Far East expert Richard Holbrooke.

Teng's Washington visit officially begins Monday when President Carter welcomes him to the White House.

A crowd of several hundred American officials, Chinese diplomats and journalists met the vice premier at Andrews Air Force Base at the start of a historic mission to cement the about-face in Sino-American ties.

Teng's white U.S.-made Boeing 707 — emblazoned with the red and yellow flag of the People's Republic of China — landed at the base outside Washington just seconds before 1:30 p.m. MST.

Minutes later, Teng emerged from the plane to the applause of well wishers, waving and applauding back as he walked down the red-carpeted ramp to the tarmac.

Vice President Walter Mondale, the senior American official at the airport, led Teng through the crowd to a limousine that took the Chinese leader to Blair House across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

It was the first visit of a major Chinese communist leader to Washington since the Red Army of Mao Tse-tung drove Chiang Kai-shek's American-backed Kuomintang forces from China's mainland in 1949.

In 1972, Teng, who had been purged at the start of the Cultural Revolution, was in the limbo reserved for "unrepentant capitalist-roaders" in the China of Mao Tse-tung. But he was rehabilitated in 1973, then cast out of office again three years later for the proposal. It was said, of Mao's death, he bounced back to power in 1977. In the summer of 1977, he was purged after Mao's death.

Teng has carried his American connection far beyond the balance-of-power diplomacy that preoccupied Premier Chou En-lai when he visited Nixon in 1972. He travels in the next week from Beijing to Miami Co. in Hapeville, Ga., to the Hughes Tool Co. in Houston and the Boeing Aircraft plant in Everett, Wash. He will be beaming back to his own country the message that American capitalism has a big role to play in China's future.

Nixon returns to D.C.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon returned to Washington Sunday night for his first visit to the White House after four years of self-imposed exile.

He is expected to spend at least three days in Washington during the visit of Teng Hsiao-ping. The Chinese vice premier and other Chinese leaders expressed their desire to meet with Nixon during their eight-day stay in the United States. Nixon will have a private visit with Teng on Wednesday. Nixon resigned the presidency on Aug. 9, 1974, as a result of the Watergate scandal.

At the invitation of President Carter, Nixon will make his grand re-entry into the White House Monday when he arrives for the black tie state dinner honoring Teng.

The invitation to Nixon evoked some criticism on grounds that it would appear to vindicate him but Carter told a news conference "I have no apology to make. I think it was a proper thing to do and I am very pleased President Nixon has accepted our invitation."

50 killed by army in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Army killer squads poured automatic rifle fire into hundreds of massed anti-government demonstrators in the streets of Tehran Sunday in the greatest mass carnage in months.

Witnesses said at least 50 persons were shot dead and hundreds spread throughout Tehran — the second time in three days the capital was bloodied following a new government crackdown on public protest.

The renewed killings further imperiled Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar's delicate peace mission to Paris for talks with exiled religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, whose return to Iran could bring civil war.

New difficulties arose in Paris where Khomeini said he would refuse to receive Bakhtiar unless Bakhtiar first resigns from office. But officials in Iran said Bakhtiar would make the trip anyway.

As darkness fell over Tehran rifle fire crackled through the dimmed streets and the situation became totally chaotic. Several hospitals said they were full to overflowing with wounded and dozens more were being carried in by relatives and friends.

At one hospital troops opened fire on people bringing bandages and cotton batting for the wounded. Doctors again appealed for blood donors.

Thousands of demonstrators began blaring their horns through the evening in protest at the latest killings.

After hours of shooting, the capital's hospitals were crammed Sunday night with casualties and relatives and friends by the thousands began streaming into the center of Tehran with bandages and other medical supplies or merely seeking information.

Fresh violence was also reported in Iran's provinces and there was an assassin's attempt against a pro-Shah member of parliament.

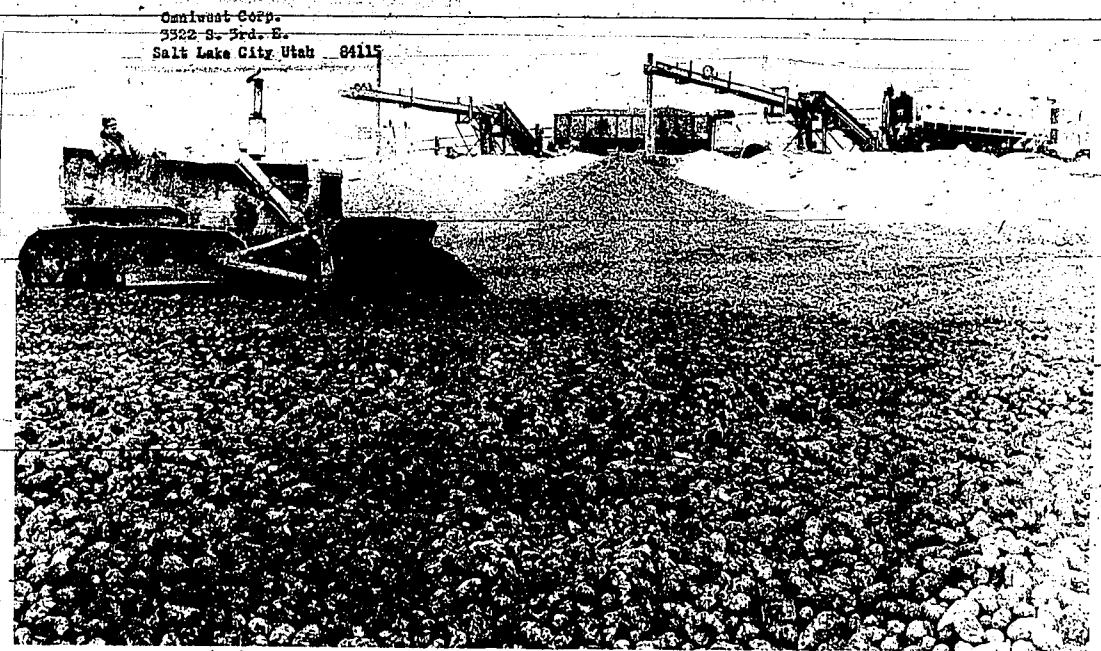

The latest clashes in Tehran were unexpected, following an announcement by Iran's leading clergy a few hours earlier they would grant Bakhtiar a 48-hour "truce" pending the outcome of his Paris visit.

But when thousands of demonstrators gathered near Tehran University in defiance of a government ban, army and gendarme snipers, operating from rooftops opened devastating fire.

Protesters hurled Molotov cocktails, bricks and stones at the troops and then rampaged through large sections of the capital, burning six buses and damaging automobiles and buildings.

The main battle seceded through a main square near the university where Moslem clergymen staged a skin to protest the government's continuing actions including the closing of all airports to block Khomeini's return. Witnesses said small "killer squads" of troops moved through the reeling crowds "firing at everything and everyone in sight."

Troops stopped women from lifting dead and wounded into the scores of ambulances which converged on the scene.

Potatoes pile up in Eden

Diverted Russet potatoes, which will be fed to cattle, have piled up at the Jones Land and Feed Co. in Eden. The two-week-old federal potato diversion began to help potato farmers find a market for their crops was slow getting started, as farmers feared they would damage potato stocks if they opened their cellars in cold weather to get potatoes to sell to the government for animal feed. But with warmer temperatures last week, growers began delivering thousands of sacks of potatoes. Under the diversion program, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is paying growers $2 for each sack they convert to cattle feed or starch. Friday the USDA said Idahoans can divert another 200,000 hundredweight of potatoes, including 16,000 more for Twin Falls County. With the additions, the government program will soak up four percent of Idaho's 1978 potato harvest.

Boise listed among most active housing markets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Boise is predicted to be among the top 10 most active housing markets in the nation for 1979.

The complete list includes the Ontario, Pomona, Riverside area in California; Allentown-Bethlehem in Pennsylvania; Austin, Texas; Boise; Greensborough, N.C.; Johnson City, Tenn.; Naples, Fla.; Norfolk-Newport News, Va.; Oklahoma City; and Tucson, Ariz.

The list is made up of communities that will show the largest percentage increases in new housing starts in 1979, said Jackson W. Goss, president of Tiger Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

Lenders, mortgage bankers, builders, realtors and Tiger's national sales force compiled the list from building permits and applications for construction and mortgage funds.

Goss said the Ontario, Pomona, Riverside area of Southern California is the only repeat from last year's top 10. "There are nine surprises," he said, with job opportunities playing an important role in most of the hot housing areas.

"For example, major energy-related industries moving to the Johnson City area will boom this area into the top 10."

The market survey indicated, the detached single family home will be the most sought in 1979. "Townhouses are not as strong this year," Goss said, with the exception of Tucson where the demand is continuing.

Goss also forecast good news for some of the larger urban areas.

"The downtown boom in Detroit is spreading to the suburbs," he said. "There is tremendous demand in Syracuse and Buffalo. Also look for increased housing starts in Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Denver and Phoenix."

prices have yet to dampen demand. "No matter who you check with, whether it's a mutual saving bank in Boston, a savings and loan company in Des Moines or a mortgage bank in Los Angeles, demand for housing still is very, very strong with no sign of a let-up."

Goss said first-time buyers will account for more than half of the sales in 1979. He said the average age of the first-time buyer is 25 and more than 90 percent of the first-time buyers are under 35.

"We look for 1.8 million housing starts in 1979 and that, in my opinion, is a conservative guess," Goss said. "The steepest change in our economic mentality could be housing starts over the 2-million mark this year."

Laetrile-using child

"Our concern is for Chad"

BOSTON (UPI) — Assistant Massachusetts Attorney General Jonathan Brant said Sunday the state's main concern is for the welfare of little Chad Green, who is suffering from leukemia, and not prosecution of his parents, who fled to Mexico so the boy can get Laetrile treatment.

"Our concern is for Chad, not the parents. We are trying to find a way to protect him," Brant said.

Gerald and Diane Green of Scituate, Mass., fled with their blond, blue-eyed 3-year-old last week to a Laetrile clinic in Tijuana, Mexico, in defiance of a court order barring them from giving Chad the controversial drug.

Plymouth Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra also ordered the Greens to stop feeding the boy massive doses of Vitamin A as part of a special metabolic diet.

Brant said he felt the judge's decision was clear and justified by the evidence that had been presented during recent court hearings.

"The issue is that the evidence in the case demonstrated that the child was suffering from cyanide poisoning as a result of being given the Laetrile, and that he was suffering from vitaminosis as a result of the excessive amounts of vitamin A and C," Brant said.

A petition was filed Friday in Plymouth Superior Court asking that the Greens be held in contempt for taking their son, a ward of the state, to Mexico for the Laetrile treatments. A hearing was set for Wednesday on the motion.

However, when asked if any charges would be brought against the couple, Brant said, "We are not seeking to punish the Greens, that's not the issue. We are trying to protect his child."

Meanwhile — the Greens' lawyer George Donovan said he will ask the Massachusetts Appeals Court Monday to lift the order prohibiting the couple from treating their son with Laetrile, rather than chemotherapy.

The child's case has drawn national attention as a test for the drug, which some medical experts hail as a cure. Others, including the federal government, have denounced it as worthless.

The couple and their son disappeared last Wednesday, the day after Volterra issued his order. They were located Friday in Tijuana at the Laetrile clinic of Dr. Ernesto Contreras.

Hijacker Irene McKinney (center) is escorted to jail by FBI agents

Woman hijacker faces possible 20 years in prison

NEW YORK (UPI) — A gaunt, 49-year-old unemployed writer who commandeered a United Airlines 747 jet with 21 people aboard by claiming she had nitroglycerin faces up to 20 years in prison, federal officials said Sunday.

Irene McKinney of Cypress, Calif., hijacked United Flight No. 8 from Los Angeles to New York Saturday and demanded that several Hollywood stars present her "cause" to the American public over television.

At 2 a.m. Sunday after the plane had sat on the ground at Kennedy Airport for six hours, Mrs. McKinney was overpowered by an FBI agent who had been negotiating with her.

Authorities grabbed her small flight bag and found it contained nothing but personal effects, including her airline ticket and perfume.

FBI spokesman Quentin Ertel said Mrs. McKinney, who is estranged from her husband, was booked at the airport on a charge of air piracy, which carries a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and 20 years in prison.

However, when she is arraigned by a magistrate in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn Monday, authorities could reduce the charge to that of hindering an air crew in its performance of duty, Ertel said. That charge carries a maximum penalty of a $1,000 fine and one year in prison, he said.

None of the 119 passengers and 12 crew members aboard the plane was injured in the ordeal which began when Mrs. McKinney allegedly passed a note to a flight attendant that said actors "Jack Lemmon, Charlton Heston or the Bionic Woman (Lindsay Wagner) should find a note in a telephone booth" at Los Angeles International Airport.

Heston, dressed in a dark jogging suit, went to the airport with FBI agents, but no note was found there.

Later, Mrs. McKinney handed FBI agents in New York a 25-page "religious type" letter that was "quite incoherent."

When the woman was overpowered by FBI agent Walter Yess, a cheer rang through the United terminal where anxious friends and relatives of passengers had been waiting.

But one passenger said the atmosphere aboard the plane had been festive all along.

Arrest of East German spy made public in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — An East German nuclear physicist and his wife have been arrested and charged with spying while he was working at the French National Scientific Research Center, French officials said Sunday.

The physicist, Rolf Dobbertin, 45, described by French officials as a "high-level scientist," and his wife were questioned Jan. 19 in Paris. They were formally charged Jan. 25 by the state security court with aiding a foreign power — East Germany — to the detriment of French interests.

The officials said Dobbertin, who posed as a West German and worked in the research center for 15 years, had confessed to being a spy and transmitting information to East Germany concerning work at the laboratory on high-powered laser beams.

Dobbertin was jailed while his wife, 41, was free pending their trial because she must care for their 11-year-old child, the sources said.

The Dobbertins were caught when an East German official defected Jan. 18 to West Germany and gave Bonn authorities information on the Paris-based couple. West German security agents immediately tipped off their French colleagues, the officials said.

Dobbertin, born in Schwerin, East Germany, was educated at Humboldt University. He was recruited by the espionage service around 1959, given a West German passport and sent to Paris where he studied at the Pompidou Institute.

In 1963 Dobbertin was hired by the French research center. At that time he met a West German girl who was studying French in Paris.

Andrus sells oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus Sunday announced the second round of sales of offshore oil and gas leases in the Mid-Atlantic Outer Continental Shelf.

Andrus said the Feb. 28 sale would include 619,987 acres off the New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia coasts. The tracts are from 50 to 80 miles offshore, at depths of 177 to 2,461 feet.

Last November, Andrus removed 27 tracts from the sale because of "substantial geophysical evidence of geologic hazards," the department said in a statement.

Majority disapproves of U.S.-China ties

By ADAM CLYMER
N.Y. Times Service

After more than a month of publicity and explanations for the administration's decision to establish full diplomatic relations with China, a substantial plurality of the American people still disapproves of recognizing Peking at the expense of relations with Taiwan, according to the latest New York Times-CBS News poll.

But support for the policy, already strongest among higher income and more highly educated groups, showed a modest increase over that in an earlier poll.

Overall, 32 percent of 1,500 Americans interviewed between last Tuesday and Friday said they felt President Carter "should have pushed for closer ties with Communist China even though that meant breaking off relations with the Chinese Nationalists on Taiwan." 46 percent disapproved and 22 percent said they had no opinion.

The test sample was also closely divided, as were most of the demographic subgroups within it, over Carter's decision to invite former President Richard M. Nixon to the state dinner Monday night at the White House for China's senior deputy premier, Teng Hsiao-ping. Overall, 55 percent approved and 42 percent did not.

Republicans tended to support the invitation to the former president, with 64 percent in favor and 32 percent opposed.

Democrats opposed the invitation by a ratio of 51 to 46. The group that approved the change in relations was the most approving of the invitation.

Opinion on the basic question of recognizing Peking while breaking relations with Taiwan has undergone relatively little change as measured by polls in the last two years.

A Times-CBS poll taken in December on the weekend after Carter's announcement of recognition showed 27 percent in favor and 45 percent opposed. Two years earlier, when the question was put in terms of future recognition at the cost of breaking relations with Taiwan, 28 percent approved and 42 percent did not.

The percentage of those expressing no opinion has declined a bit.

National wage insurance begins fight in Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration kicks off its campaign Monday for congressional passage of a law to protect cooperating workers against high inflation in 1979, a key part of the president's anti-inflation program.

Chances are excellent that Congress will kick it right back again.

Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal is expected to make a strong plea for approval of the plan during testimony before the Tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, where considerable opposition to it already has surfaced.

The plan becomes effective should inflation exceed 7 percent this year. It calls for a $2.5 billion "real wage insurance" tax credit to reimburse workers who agree to follow the new guideline holding wages to a 7 percent ceiling.

It would give a percentage rebate to complying employee groups equivalent to the percentage by which the cost of living during 1979 exceeds 7 percent. It would apply only to the first $30,000 of earned income.

It is the only major tax proposal the president included in the $331.6 billion budget he submitted to Congress last week. Administration officials estimate about 47 million workers in the 96 million work force would be included in the plan.

But even before Blumenthal could make his pitch, the plan was in deep trouble in the committee. Many panel members said it would not help slow inflation much. Some said the plan would be too costly and difficult to administer.

Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., has said he does not support the plan outright, but unless substantial support for the measure surfaces early in committee hearings, it would be shelved.

A committee source told UPI, "It's a nice idea, but unless they can outline for us in detail how it's going to work, it won't go."

Blackjack king named

LAS VEGAS-Nev. (UPI) — Elton Miller, 61, of Denver, defeated six other players Sunday to win a $50,000 first prize at the first Championship of Blackjack.

Miller surged into the lead with two straight aces and face card blackjacks with 23 minutes remaining of play and soon going away in the two-hour finals. His $3,720 total far outdistanced Norman Hem, Singapore, who totaled $1,132.

Debit life insurance sellers victimize poor, study shows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Debit life insurance, sold door-to-door and paid for monthly or weekly in small amounts, is victimizing the poor and undereducated with high prices for scanty coverage, a Federal Trade Commission study said Sunday.

Some policyholders pay more in premiums than they will ever get back in benefits and sometimes spend grocery money to keep the policies paid up, the FTC staff study said.

It said state regulatory agencies should crack down on the industry by limiting its profits and how much insurance it can sell, by ordering it to issue paid-up policies to those who have paid up as much as the policy is worth; by limiting how much insurance can be sold to any one household; and by conducting consumer education campaigns.

The report said that, contrary to the popular belief that such insurance is on the way out, there are more than 700 million such policies in force in the United States — about one for every two people — and premiums amount to $3 billion a year.

The typical customer, it said, earns $3,000 to $10,000 per year, is non-white, female and living in the South or Midwest.

Although the policies are sold in every state, it said, there is a particular concentration in the Southwest. The report cited these examples: "One elderly black woman in Oakland, Calif., was sold a $1,000 ten-year pay life insurance policy on her grandson, under the guise that it would provide an educational endowment of $1,000 over 10 years. Only after she had paid monthly premiums for 10 years was she advised that the policy would pay off its face value only on her grandson's death."

"In Tennessee, one elderly woman until recently spent $99.85 per month on 30 life and health policies out of her Supplemental Security Income of $177.80."

Weather nasty

Snow moved out of the Midwest across the Great Lakes into the eastern Ohio Valley and middle Atlantic Coast states Sunday and freezing temperatures descended over the Northern Plains and Rockies.

Monroeville, Ind., was layered with 7 inches of snow and 6 inches fell at Crawfordsville before the storm system moved out of Indiana Saturday night.

Five inches of snow fell on the nation's capital since midnight while Pittsburgh and Akron, Ohio, each reported 3 inches. Hazardous driving conditions were created by persistent snow that fell along the eastern seaboard.

About 7 inches of snow fell overnight in the northeast mountains of North Carolina and up to 4 more inches were expected. Three-foot drifts were massed by winds gusting to 35 mph.

Wanda Jackson, a Watauga County Sheriff's dispatcher in Boone, N.C., said the highway patrol was requiring chains or studded tires on main roads where wind-whipped snow reduced visibility to near zero.

"You can't see beans," she groaned. "We're behind the courthouse and I can't see it. Everything is white. I'll put your eyes out."

Today's weather

Cold, snowy weather likely to continue

Twin Falls, Burley and Jerome areas: Occasional light snow will continue through Monday. Low temperatures of between zero and 4 above tonight, highs Tuesday in the mid-50s.

Italian bridge collapse deadly

BERGAMO, Italy (UPI) — A highway bridge over the Brembo River collapsed early Sunday, plunging two automobiles into nearly 50 feet of water where the 8 occupants apparently drowned, police said.

Officers said the central arch of the 32-year-old stone bridge, which is near the northern city of Bergamo, collapsed because of swift currents in the river gnawed by heavy recent rains.

Pope John Paul II rides in an open car through Puebla, Mexico on Sunday

Marxism, Catholicism don't mix, pope says

PUEBLA, Mexico (UPI) — Some listeners hissed Pope John Paul II Sunday when he told a stadium crowd of 200,000 to remember Christ was not a political revolutionary.

Pope John Paul II laid out his line to political activists in the church: There is no room in his church's teaching for Marxist analysis, ideology or political action.

"This idea of Christ as a political figure, a revolutionary, as the subversive man from Nazareth, does not tally with the church's teaching," said the Polish pope, the first from a Communist nation.

The speech was considered one of the pope's most important in his 105-day reign and was interpreted as setting the course for the church in the future, particularly in terms of demonstrating John Paul's attitude toward the pope's so-called "liberation theology" already deeply rooted in Latin America but spreading to other parts of the world as well.

The rise of "liberation theology," allying the church in Latin America with Marxist revolutionaries, is the most controversial debate of the 17-day meeting.

Rockefeller cremated, funeral today

NEW YORK (UPI) — The body of former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller was cremated Sunday.

A private memorial service is scheduled for the former Vice President today on the powerful family's Pocantico Hills estate in Westchester County, a family spokesman said.

Rockefeller, one of the nation's wealthiest men and a four-term governor of New York, died of a heart attack Friday night at the age of 70.

Aides originally said his body would be cremated Monday morning, followed by a private memorial service scheduled for 11 a.m. at the family cemetery at the Rockefeller estate.

There was no explanation why the body was cremated a day earlier than planned.

George Taylor, a family spokesman, said the cremation took place "sometime Sunday morning at a Westchester crematorium." He would not identify the crematorium or its exact location.

"I'd prefer not to, if you don't mind," Taylor said.

Limousines carrying the late politician's relatives pulled through the high gates of the estate Sunday, as the family assembled for the private ceremony.

Family spokesman Hugh Morrow said David Rockefeller, Nelson's brother and chairman of the board of Chase Manhattan Bank, was flying into Kennedy Airport from the Weststar Golf Sunday afternoon, and was due to arrive at the Tarrytown estate early Sunday evening.

Morrow said most of the Rockefeller family, including Nelson's wife, Margareta, "Happy," and six children, Rodman, Ann, Steven, Mary, Nelson Jr. and Mark, had gathered at Kykuit mansion on the 250-acre estate located 20 miles north of Manhattan by late Saturday. About 70 relatives were expected for the service.

It was originally reported that Rockefeller died at 10:15 p.m. at his office on the 56th floor of Rockefeller Center, and was found slumped over his desk by a bodyguard.

However, it was later revealed that he died in a private office in a fashionable four-story brownstone owned by the Rockefeller family at 43 W. 54th St., just off Fifth Avenue.

Police said two officers went to the townhouse at 11:10 p.m. after a call was placed to the 911 police emergency line.

Waiting at the townhouse were Mrs. Megan Marshack, described as "a coordinator of his art books," and Secret Service agent Andrew Hoffman, who admitted the officers.

Morrow Sunday explained the lag between the time Rockefeller reportedly suffered the attack and the time two police officers went to the townhouse as an error.

"A person inaccurately gave the time of the heart attack as 10:15 p.m. It was actually 10:10," he said. "The whole sequence of events that followed is a book about it, but I'm not working on it."

He said that at the time of the attack, Rockefeller was slumped over his desk.

The police later joined by firefighters attempted in vain to revive Rockefeller before taking him to a hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 12:06 a.m.

The funeral will officiate at the private funeral home Monday at the family estate at Pocantico Hills.

A memorial tribute, for family, friends and those personal friends and national and international public officials will be held Friday, Feb. 2, at 11 a.m. at Riverside Church with the Rev. William Stevie Coffin presiding.

Housewife sells 'glass plate' for $40; worth $1,700

NILES, Ill. — The story of a small fortune, lost because a housewife had no idea her glass plate was a collector's item, recently came to light.

In a letter to J. R. MacArthur, chairman of The Bradford Exchange, world's largest trading center in collector's plates, a Madison, Wis., woman wrote: "I had a Lalique 1965 plate... which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you at that time."

The plate she sold is actually valued at more than $1,700. Although MacArthur points out that this price is exceptionally high, he said, "It is frankly others may be losing hundreds or thousands of dollars by not knowing what their plates are worth."

To aid in identifying valuable plates, the Exchange issues a report that includes current prices on more than 900 plates, guidelines on what to look for and when to buy, and the plate evaluation checklist used by the Exchange.

Hospital costs jump 53% since 1974

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To spend one day in an average American hospital in 1974, a patient had to pay about $18. Today, the charge would be $181, or 53 percent more.

But that's just the average. Out West, government figures show, in one-day hospital stay may run as much as $24.

"Few people stay just a day, however. The average is six," the government says.

Using statistics like these, the administration will try again this year to put a legal lid on soaring hospitalization costs. Last year, it failed. Congress wasn't interested.

"There will be no clearer test of the commitment of this Congress to the anti-inflation fight," President Carter said recently, "than the legislation I will submit again this year... to hold down inflation in hospital care."

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano told a Senate hearing last week the legislation will be submitted within the next month.

Without it, he said, health care costs "will eat up more than 13 cents of every federal dollar by 1983."

The main features of the proposed bill are similar to the one defeated last year. It will call for voluntary guidelines but would impose mandatory controls if they are not met.

The main culprit in all this is inflation.

Hospitals are paying much more today for things like food, paper, rubber goods, utilities. Those prices are beyond a hospital administrator's control.

But there are other reasons.

One has to do with demographics. Hospitals depend on their locales for business. If an area is losing population, each patient must pay more so that the local hospital can maintain high health care standards.

Then there are the technological breakthroughs. None comes cheaply. A hospital administrator has little choice when he must decide between cutting costs and purchasing an expensive machine that may save lives.

Carter contends that "over the next five years my proposals will save Americans a total of $60 billion, of which $25 billion will be savings in the federal budget."

The industry bristles at federal aid and rejects the 97 percent annual cost increase cap the administration is pushing. Hospitals have offered to, reduce expenses by 2 percent each year, i.e., if expenses went up 10 percent in 1978, 8 percent would be the 1979 target.

Administrators say several other things can be done to hold down expenses:

- More extensive use of home care;
- Pre-admission testing to see if a person could be treated at home;
- Same-day surgery;
- Providing a second doctor's opinion for free before a patient undergoes surgery;
- Less expensive facilities for the terminally ill, freeing hospitals to treat patients who can benefit from it;
- Establishing "surgery centers" where surgery is the sole specialty;
- Retirement of unused hospital beds.

Critics of rising hospital costs say the United States is "overbedded as a nation."

But what of the administrator who has just done away with 150 unused beds and learns there has been a railroad accident that injured 75 people.

As one hospital industry spokesman put it, "You cannot compromise the quality of health care."

Two federal agencies, the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation and the Army Corps of Engineers, have built hundreds of dams in 17 western states.

The report, released last week, recommended creation of a Federal Dam Safety Office, plus preparation of materials at dam sites to aid in dam failure.

"Each agency should immediately formulate an emergency preparedness plan in appropriate detail for each existing structure," the report said. "These plans should be made available to the general public."

The report also called for each federal dam-building agency to "immediately undertake a thorough review of the practices that could affect the safety and integrity of these structures."

Government reports on the collapse of the Teton Dam noted several design and construction defects that may have been due to Bureau of Reclamation procedures.

Carter told any dam can fail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special panel has told President Carter that any dam can fail and the government should prepare nearby residents for emergency escapes.

Carter ordered a review of federal dam safety practices in April 1977, almost one year after the collapse on June 5, 1976, of the Teton Dam near Rexburg.

Eleven persons were killed and millions of dollars worth of property and livestock were lost when the dam collapsed, sending a 20-foot wall of water down the Snake River.

"Perhaps the most fundamental principle of dam safety is recognition that every dam runs some risk of failure," said the report from Dr. Frank Press, director of the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy.

The report said federal and other dam builders should not become "complacent, overconfident, and perhaps even arrogant in the belief that they know with certainty how to build a dam that will not fail."

spokesman said Secretary Cecil Andrus has decided that the Bureau of Reclamation must redesign the partially built Auburn Dam in California due to earthquake risk.

The Auburn Dam, estimated to cost $1 billion, was to have been one of the world's largest and tallest dams. Some experts said if the dam failed, a 20-foot wall of water would have hit Sacramento in two hours.

At the same time, the department announced that a fault runs the length of the O'Neill Forebay Dam, a crucial facility in California's water delivery system.

The department said some 2 million acre feet of water will pass through the 10-foot-high dam this year, enough to supply half a million acres of cropland and about one-half of California's residents.

"According to bureau design engineers, the dam is moderately plastic in nature and would retain its integrity in all but the most violent seismic events," the department said.

Sen. Kennedy will push for capital punishment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy says he will use his new powers as Judiciary Committee chairman to try to bring a death penalty bill before the Senate even though he opposes capital punishment.

In an interview, Kennedy, D-Mass., recalled that, during last year's Senate debate on his proposal to revise the entire U.S. criminal code, he promised some allies he would work for consideration of a capital punishment bill that meets the Supreme Court's guidelines.

"I indicated I would do everything I could to see legislation reported out of the committee, and I stand by that commitment," he said. "Even though I have a personal objection to it, I understand the views of members of that committee."

He added, however, that last year "there were some very strong members in opposition to a death penalty bill" who were able to bottle it up, "so there is no guarantee the measure will get out of committee this time."

The bill likely to be submitted would overcome the Supreme Court's objections to the death penalty by setting up specific guidelines for a jury to consider before imposing the death penalty. The court ruled the death penalty unconstitutional on grounds it was applied unevenly in the various states.

The new legislation would require two court proceedings — one to determine the guilt of the defendant and the second to determine whether he should be sentenced to death.

Kennedy, who succeeds retired Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., at the helm of the Influential Judiciary Committee, also said he doubts Congress will approve gun control legislation this term.

"I've strongly supported legislation dealing with handguns and particularly Saturday night specials," he said, "but we face a very powerful opposition in the National Rifle Association."

"The only purpose really for Saturday night specials are providing individuals and not for sport, but the National Rifle Association has been able to bottle up that kind of legislation in the committee for years, and I expect they will probably be able to face us down again."

Kennedy also said he brings to his new job a deep concern over the problems an average American citizen has in getting justice.

"There are interminable delays in the courts, and access to the courts in too many instances, to many different groups, is not available," he said. "Beyond this, the cost is virtually prohibitive."

"This is bringing about an increasing skepticism and cynicism about the whole rule of law... There is no easy answer, but it is an essential concern that I have."

On other topics, Kennedy said:

- He will revive anti-trust legislation requiring break-ups of energy monopolies to keep oil and gas companies from controlling such alternative energy sources as coal, uranium and solar power.
- He opposes California Gov. Edmund G. Brown's call for a constitutional convention to pass an amendment requiring a balanced federal budget. He said that proposal is "sound economic policy" and expressed concern such a convention might "threaten some of the most basic and fundamental human liberties."
- He is determined to increase substantially the number of women and blacks on the federal bench and is considering delaying action on senatorial nominations for states where only white males are proposed for new district judgeships. He said it could take at least 18 months to confirm all the 117 new judges and added, "it might be that we'll take those nominees that seem to be more representative and put them on the front of the list. I suppose that way others may get the word."
- He expects Jimmy Carter to be the Democratic presidential nominee in 1980, and to win re-election with Kennedy's support.
- But Kennedy said he too is running: He jogs a mile four or five days a week.

Mothers determine strength of our society

By LIZ MITCHELL

American Library Association
CHICAGO — She took a late flight here so she could have more time with her elder son, who had the flu.

Ethel Heffner, senior teaching associate in psychiatry at the Cornell University Medical College, had planned to arrive early enough to settle in for a good night's rest before she immersed herself in the media blitz for her new book. But when her son got sick that wintry December day, she rearranged her schedule to administer a little tender loving care.

This change in plans is significant because the book she came to promote is called "Mothering." Its author is a staunch advocate of motherhood, and even though her son is 22 years old, she still feels it's important to be accessible whenever possible.

In fact, Heffner thinks it's important that we all be more accessible to one another. "The problem of dialogue has been pinpointed as a problem of motherhood," she says, "but it is widespread in society, partly as the result of adapting to technology. The mother-child relationship is both prototype and microcosm. To interrupt destructive interactions in the whole of society, the place to start is with the mothers and their children."

"Mothering," subtitled "The Emotional Experience of Motherhood After Freud and Feminism," is an inquiry into the ways child rearing — and by extension, adult society — have been irrevocably changed by psychological theory and women's liberation.

Reflecting on the tension many modern women experience juggling family and career, Heffner ponders, "Did we break some eggs in the women's movement we might rather have sat on 'til they were hatched?"

Talking with this tiny, gracious lady and reading her book, it's clear she feels feminism has fallen short of true liberation. Over and over she returns to her conviction that the women's movement, "by implication, at least," has equated motherhood with slavery and "the old women the important things are 'out there,' outside the home."

"The housework component of mothering is seen by some as an extension of slavery," she says. "It's not — it's just something that has to be done." Every job has its drudgery, she points out, and laughs at her own discovery of the drudgery of the business trip, once perceived as a special male experience.

By advocating the art and dignity of mothering, Heffner is not suggesting we turn the calendar back and insist women's place is in the home. "There is time in a woman's life for many careers," she maintains. Citing the cycles of her own adult careers, she tells of the satisfactions of each.

As a young bride, she was happy to pursue her own work while her husband — communicator Richard D. Heffner — established his career. "It is hard to rust out of childhood into motherhood without first functioning in society," she says. After seven years she took a 10-year hiatus from her counseling career to be home with her two sons, now 19 and 22.

Today she has returned to teaching and is co-director of the Nursery School Treatment Center at New York Hospital-Payne Whitney Clinic, where she works with children who have developmental disabilities — and with their mothers. Add, she has written her first book.

"For many years we both worked on behalf of his career," Mrs. Heffner explains. "Now we both work on behalf of mine."

Likening her husband's support to the nurture a mother gives a child or a traditional wife gives her husband, she is clearly delighted at the reciprocity of their lives and work. It's unfortunate, she says, that "many women seem to have embraced the ethic of male success rather than valuing the civilizing effects and nurturing joys which once were our contributions to society."

"Women offer a different approach to conflict — traditionally women have sought resolution by taking an empathic approach as the most liberating method of child care."

Heffner opens her book by thanking her sons "for their patience while I learned — and for making lunches while I wrote — my love and my thanks."

Mightn't a radical feminist interpret that as an apology for letting her career interrupt her motherly mealtime chores? "Oh, that is a private message," she explains, noting that cooking is one son's hobby.

"I remember when he was younger, he came home from visiting a neighbor who had baked Italian goods and he remarked, 'Now, she really knows what being a woman is all about. I responded that it must be rough to have a Mom who doesn't love to cook, and he looked at me thoughtfully. 'Oh, no,' he said. 'You helped me with my papers, and I'm not sure if she could.'"

Heffner's still pleased at this example of her child's ability to understand the trade-offs in life. She sees it as part of the unfolding process by which mothers teach children "to meet their own goals, to develop the capacity for autonomous functioning."

"This is a slim book, and its subject is monumental; thus it's only an appetizer, not a full feast. But Heffner touches on a number of important topics, ranging from a keen analysis of 'authoritarian' and 'permissive' approaches to child rearing to her concern that communal child care may lead to destructive conformity."

"Mothering" is both an essay on the history of child care and a primer of eminently practical and empathic advice for mothers. Most of all, it's a plea for society to pay attention to what's happening to modern motherhood.

Heffner has great admiration for the art of mothering, but she doesn't place mother on a pedestal. She speaks of mothers "not in a mystical sense, but as the person who is there, who is involved. The mother is the best advocate for the child, the last bastion in a highly industrialized society where you can still have a one-to-one relationship."

Tracing motherhood through Freud and feminism, Heffner believes, "We're at a wonderful time today. Because things happen so fast, we can see the outcome of our experience and do something to change it. This acceleration means a single generation has the capacity to reflect upon itself."

Reflecting on the state of mothering today, she pleads for renewed interest in this most elemental of all jobs. "We have not yet provided mothers with the tools they need to meet the responsibility with which they are charged," she stresses. "Autonomy and independent judgment are needed as much for mothering as they are in the professional world. But while we have acknowledged and addressed the need in the latter case, we have not in the former."

A society whose mothers fall, concludes Ethel Heffner, is a society that falls.

Keep mayor Smith in office

Competence isn't a quality bestowed equally among public officials.

Many men and women elected to official positions assume seats in city hall not because they are good leaders but simply because they are well-known in a community and deserve patronage at the polls.

Twin Falls, fortunately, has a mayor who displays above average competency as a city official.

Leon Smith is an articulate, well-educated man who seems to have chosen to serve on the city council out of a sincere belief he can help his city become a better place to live.

Because mayor Smith is far from the worst of mayors, the recall drive against him has seemed oddly out of place these last few months.

In his years on the city council Smith has shown many of the qualities public officials should bring with them to government but often don't.

For example, Smith keeps abreast of the issues before the city council. Better than many past and present council members have done, Smith approaches his work as something requiring the exercise of a brain not just the exercise of a jawbone.

The mayor will listen, then talk, and never listen.

His detractors argue this is not so. They charge the mayor is stubborn and insensitive to the people's will.

It appears Smith's detractors have confused stubbornness with vision.

Smith thinks the city of Twin Falls needs to anticipate future problems of population growth, highway planning and urban expansion. For this reason, he often refuses to take the easy way out on issues important to the future of the city.

In particular, he stubbornly has held to the vision that Twin Falls would be a better place to live if all city streets had sidewalks, gutters and storm sewers.

The vision is correct even if the price of a local improvement district to complete this vision seems too high right now.

The organizers of the recall against Smith correctly argue if the people who must pay for an LID don't want it they shouldn't be forced to have it.

But of course, in Twin Falls, they weren't forced to pay for an LID because the city council as a whole rejected the idea.

Mayor Smith didn't go along with the rest of the council. But a mayor who still thinks sidewalks and gutters will improve his city also shouldn't be forced from office just because he voted his conscience one time.

In short, the LID issue is no reason to recall Leon Smith.

Twin Falls faces rapid population growth and expansion into rural agricultural areas in the coming years. A city such as this needs a visionary mayor, a mayor with a conscience who won't cave in at the first whiff of controversy.

If anything, Twin Falls needs a mayor like Leon Smith. The city will benefit from a man sticks to his vision.

Rather than turn him out at the polls tomorrow, residents should cast a vote of support for a man with the intelligence and determination needed to help Twin Falls become a better place to live.

Constitutional convention

WASHINGTON — The Congress has a piece of unfinished business left over from 1971. In the two houses have nothing better to do, which is most of the time, they ought to get at it. This is an act to provide for the holding of a Constitutional convention.

Once again the states are applying pressure. At the last count no fewer than 22 states had filed petitions with the congress, asking that a constitutional convention be called in accordance with Article V of the Constitution. The petitioning states want an amendment to require a balanced federal budget. They are going at it the hard way.

Not many persons are acquainted with the "state application" provision of Article V, and this is not surprising; the provision never has been successfully invoked. Every amendment to the Constitution thus far has come into being through the familiar procedure by which two thirds of each house of congress approves a proposal and sends it out to the states.

The founding fathers, fearful of an intransigent national legislature, wisely provided an alternative course. The congress on the application of the legislatures of two thirds of the several states shall call a convention for proposing amendments. Note that the provision is not discretionary; it is mandatory. The Congress "shall" call.

Over the past 19 years, every state in the union at one time or another has petitioned the Congress in this fashion. Amendments have been sought embracing everything from polygamy to prohibition. Early in the century, so many states petitioned for the direct election of senators that Congress itself put in motion the resolution that resulted in the Seventeenth Amendment. At the time of a study by the American Bar Association in 1971, more than 300 such petitions had been filed.

The ABA report stemmed from a sudden onrush of state applications having to do with the issue of reapportionment. Many of the state legislatures were infuriated by the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote, decree in Baker v. Carr. They set about passing resolutions, many of them identically phrased, demanding that Congress call a constitutional convention to undo what the high court had done.

Then as now, 34 states (representing two thirds of all the states) would have triggered the call. Amazingly, by mid-1967 the count actually got to 32. Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois, grand marshal of this remarkable parade, was ecstatic. His colleague, Paul Douglas, was aghast. Douglas suggested that if a 34th application should materialize, Congress ought to refuse the call anyhow. That set Dirksen into flights of oratory scarcely equalled since Cicero took off on the Carthaginians. Such senators as Javits of New York, Proxmire of Wisconsin and Robert Kennedy of New York denounced the very idea of the Constitutional convention.

The issue led to another, and in October of 1967 the Senate Judiciary Committee conducted hearings on the whole business. The hearings led to a bill sponsored by Sam Ervin of North Carolina that passed the Senate 84-0 in October of 1971. Then interest waned, and nothing much had been heard of the matter until the latest campaign began to gather momentum.

Frudence suggests that Congress send for the Ervin bill and trot it around the track once more. It seems to be doubtful that 12 more states will make application under Article V, but you never know. It would be far better to provide the machinery now than to hustle up a bill, as the ABA study explained, in a time of "divisive controversy and confusion." An act should provide for validating the applications, for electing and paying delegates to a convention, and for other housekeeping matters.

For the record, even a faint prospect of a constitutional convention gives me the willies. Scholars disagree, but there is good reason to believe a convention could not be limited to proposing a single amendment on tax limitation. A convention could conceivably propose a complete rewriting of our fundamental law. The wisest course would be for Congress voluntarily to restrain its profligate impulses, and meanwhile, to revive the Ervin bill — just in case.

Station KAAD on legislator's hit list

BOISE — Most newspaper reporters have a rather strong bias against television reporters. With but a few exceptions, the world of video seems to be of one form rather than substance, where a hot-catch and a hair-dryer are more important to an anchorman than his knowledge of facts.

At press conferences, television reporters are usually the ones with the snuff questions, indicating their ignorance of subject matter.

Many of the print reporters I know have had the disturbing experience of hearing one of their stories read word for word by the pretty-faced blond on the local television station, but with the byline and the name of the newspaper suddenly removed and replaced with the television station's call letters.

In this atmosphere of intense distrust of television, it is rare to hear print reporters praise television reporting. Yet in Idaho one station consistently draws such accolades.

That station is Boise public television station KAAD. In the four years I have watched this station cover the legislature I have never failed to be impressed. Its reporters are sharp, honest and fair. Among the dozen or so newspaper reporters who cover the legislature, full-time, the print professionals, KAAD receives the highest rating.

KAAD is not just the finest television station in Idaho, it is one of the best I have seen anywhere.

Which brings us to the question which is the point of this column. Why has KAAD been threatened with being knocked off the air?

Public television has always existed in the never-never world of government support, for what would otherwise be a profit-making business.

The idea is that a station not tied strictly to the confines of commercialism can provide viewers with a higher caliber of program, broadcasts which otherwise would be money-making failures and just wouldn't appear on television.

In most states, including Idaho, this has been the case. Excellent movies, broadcasts of opera and symphonies, intelligent discussions by great minds of national and world problems, superb reporting of important events — all have been the daily fare of "public television" viewers.

When public television first started in this country, there was some opposition from persons convinced private stations should be the only stations on the air.

Today, after years of public television providing quality programs that private stations refuse — or are financially unable — to broadcast, most of that opposition has disappeared.

Public television, most now admit, is an idea that has worked, one blossom that has bloomed in the wasteland of television.

Unfortunately some have never given up their hopes of scuttling entirely public television. One is Idaho State Sen. David Little, now the co-chairman of the powerful Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

In the past few Little has charged KAAD with being distorted and broadcasting-biased presentations. What appears to be sticking in Little's craw is not any well-known, long list of abuses, but one single program, a documentary, sponsored not by KAAD, but by a University of Idaho affiliate station, on "cedar thieves."

The program examined small-town-loggers who steal timber from the large forest holdings of big timber companies.

The program was a solid, well-presented documentary. It has received acclaim from many critics.

The real problem here is not public television in Idaho. It is that through seniority and the removal of two talented chairmen from the joint committee, Little has now reached a position of power where he can vent his wrath on anyone with whom he disagrees.

A bigger man would realize that assuming a position of such power by definition means a larger obligation to listen to all sides of each story.

So far Little hasn't shown that as his style. And it isn't just public television that's on his personal hit list. A presentation earlier this year on the Public Utilities Commission budget, by PUC President Robert Lenagan, brought forth a rambling diatribe from Little. He didn't like Lenagan, or the PUC, but he didn't have any solid reasons why, either.

An informal survey I conducted among some Magic Valley legislators last week produced some strong support for KAAD from persons with differing philosophies. Rep. Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls, called the station "fair — and factual." Rep. Steven Antone, R-Rupert, said he had "learned a lot" from KAAD broadcasts. Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, said he couldn't think of any instance where KAAD had ever tried to be unfair. Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, called their programs "very good." He's giving both sides. Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Burton, Idaho, said he was pleased whenever there are 30 days of day-to-day legislative happenings through KAAD broadcasts.

These legislators don't always agree with everything they see on television — or read in the Times-News for that matter. But they realize discussion of the world means occasional discussion of unpleasant things. They, and most of their colleagues, realize an informed electorate is infinitely preferable to an uninformed electorate.

Legislators like these will likely be able to rein in Little. Public television in Idaho probably won't be scrapped. But at one man, armed only with blind hatred, an idea he doesn't understand, could threaten such an institution, is frightening.

Red Brigades hideouts found

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Anti-terrorist police stepped up their investigation of the Red Brigades Sunday following the arrest of six members of the massive group in two hideouts in the northern industrial city of Turin.

As Premier Giulio Andreotti's minority Christian Democratic government collapsed — following withdrawal of crucial Communist party support — police officials began releasing details of a massive search operation that concluded over the weekend after three months of planning.

Police said six Red Brigades members — four women and two men — were arrested in two hideouts over the weekend in an operation that had 160 officers taking part in the search of 34 apartments suspected of harboring gang members.

Police said two of those arrested had taken part in the killing last Nov. 8 of state prosecutor Fedele Calvosa and two police bodyguards near the southern town of Patrica.

Calvosa, a leading anti-terrorist investigator, was gunned down by a team of four or five assassins.

The First Line guerrilla organization claimed responsibility for the attack but investigators said evidence found in the latest raids indicated Italy's various ultra-leftist terror gangs were either closely allied or part of the same overall group.

Among the evidence found in the two Turin hideouts, police said, were Red Brigades documents referring to the Calvosa killing and other attacks, dossiers on Italian politicians and justice officials and a quantity of weapons and ammunition.

In Rome, police reported that firebombs had caused light damage during the night at offices of the ruling Christian Democratic party and of the ultra-rightist Italian Social Movement party.

Another firebomb exploded four automobiles in a Rome garage, officers said.

CIA now predicts Chinese modernization can work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA has issued a report predicting China will be able to carry out its dramatic modernization program "despite formidable problems."

Issued shortly before Chinese Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping's arrival in the United States, the unclassified analysis said, "Peking seems capable of resolving its difficulties in ways that will allow satisfactory gains in consumption and at the same time permit investment and industrial growth."

The report, by the CIA's National Foreign Assessment Center, said, however, that the problems facing Teng and the post-Mao leadership are immense:

—Worker unrest. "Peking not only has to face up to the problems of lost purchasing power and wage reform, but it must also convince the worker that this government is fair and can be trusted. It must come up with a package of wage increases and bonuses and... ensure the availability of goods at prices that leave the worker with real gains."

—Management. "It is unlikely the political and technical leadership will be able to solve management problems quickly and efficiently and without making serious mistakes that will hamper programs."

—Shortage of resources. As agriculture becomes increasingly mechanized, it will be necessary to increase petroleum consumption to meet new goals. Demand is outstripping the oil output, meaning shortages will occur that could cripple parts of the economy.

—Mechanical. These problems include "poor machine quality, lack of standardization and a limited range of equipment," in such areas as farm machinery.

—Financing. "A major financial constraint is China's limited capacity to earn foreign exchange." China may have to accept foreign loans and credits, and even cooperative ventures in such areas as oil exploration.

British labor threatens to 'pile on the agony'

LONDON (UPI) — Britain gained some respite Sunday from a series of damaging strikes, but one labor leader promised to "pile on the agony" this week.

Truck drivers who squeezed the whole country with "flying pickets" to blockade companies and organizations not involved in their strike, such as hospitals, seemed ready to go back to work.

A union official said the truckers' three-week-old strike was "crumbling" because employers were caving.

In a management spokesman said "the strike is collapsing" because drivers were accepting their bosses' original settlement offer.

Other contributing factors were a court decision against "secondary" picketing of premises not involved in the strike, and Prime Minister James Callaghan's unusually forceful condemnation of labor unions which "strike first and talk afterward."

Truck drivers' union leaders were meeting Monday to hammer out future policy.

Another crumbling dispute was one which stopped all trains during four one-day strikes in two weeks. It was submitted to arbitration, with no further walkouts in the meantime.

Callaghan scheduled talks Monday with the Trades Union Congress, the national central labor organization. The Sunday Telegraph newspaper said he was prepared to "give union leaders unprecedented influence over economic planning, including the size of wage increases" in return for stiffer union discipline.

But statements from other unions seemed to ensure that Britain would remain a land where the only things certain were death, taxes and more and more strikes.

"We intend to tighten the screws this week," said a spokesman for manual workers employed by local governments — everyone from garbage men and street sweepers to nurses and airport staff. "There will be a very considerable extension of our action."

Terrorist explosion kills two in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — A terrorist bomb planted in a garbage can exploded in a crowded square in Netanya Sunday, killing two persons and wounding 34 others, four of them seriously.

A police spokesman said a man and a woman were killed in the blast which shattered windows of nearby shops, including a coffee house where many people were sitting and enjoying the sunny winter day in the coastal town about 25 miles north of Tel Aviv.

Witnesses said the pavement was covered with blood.

In Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization said the bomb was planted by a special guerrilla unit named for Abu Hassan Salameh, the PLO leader who died in a bomb explosion last Monday which Palestinians blamed on Israeli agents.

Italian infant dies from fever

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — A 7-month-old girl died of mysterious causes in Cardaselli hospital Sunday in the 42nd such death in the area over the past 11 months, officials said.

They identified the infant as Maria Luisa Avellino, who was taken to the hospital Saturday suffering from high fever and breathing difficulties.

The symptoms were almost identical to those of the other infants who died in the city, most of them at the Sagobono hospital.

Health investigators have said they believe the children have died from a mysterious virus that causes high fever, breathing difficulties, coma and finally death.

The mysterious deaths began last February and have been increasing in frequency in recent weeks.

LEON SMITH

The majority want him but the majority must

VOTE NO on the Recall

These are the facts:

1. All council meetings are public — not secret. State law says the majority of the council may close the meeting to privately discuss law suits and personell (Idaho Code 67-2345). Mayor Smith is but one vote of seven.
2. Leon is voting a conservative. Recalling him will not cut spending. He is only one vote of seven.
3. Recalling Leon Smith will not change our council/city manager form of government.

To find out where you vote call 733-0860, 733-8912

THESE ARE THE REAL ISSUES:

1. If Mayor Leon is recalled a precedent is set. Does this mean every unpopular decision (at least to a special interest group) will result in the recall of a Mayor — or chairman of the County Commission, or president of the school board, or chairman of the highway district?
2. Will this type of intimidation frighten local government officials from making important and necessary decisions for the good of the whole community?
3. Will unhappy special interest groups be entitled to bring repeated recall elections at great expense to the taxpayer?
4. Will this harrassment discourage knowledgeable, competent people from running for local office — resulting in a council that vacillates with the mood of a vocal few, avoids responsibility in order to remain popular, and becomes less and less competent with each election?

Vote NO on Recall January 30th

What's what

Girls in single bars approached by suitors once every 17 minutes

Our Love and War man has looked into some of what goes on in a singles bar. He has learned, for instance, that the typical young woman therein, whether remarkably attractive or otherwise, is approached by some fellow on an average of once every 17 minutes. What's meant by "approached" is simply "talked to" with no pickup play necessarily intended. Hello. How are you? Having a good time? That sort of thing. Every 17 minutes doesn't seem all that frequent, does it? This research also reveals that the prettier of the girls are approached no more frequently than those less so.

The tiger beetle emits a fragrance something like attar of rose. That's good, for the tiger beetle. It eats bees.

It's illegal in Salem, Va., to leave your house without knowing where you intend to go.

MOST POPULAR SONG

Q. "What was the most popular song among American soldiers during World War II?" "Lili Marlene," right?

A. Almost but not quite. "Gee, But I Want to Go Home" was the most popular among the boys in the barracks. "Lili Marlene" was more of a Hollywood number for combat scenes.

Q. "What's 'oncology'?"

A. The medical specialty that deals with cancer. And as a medical specialty, might mention, it was only recognized in this country for the first time five years ago.

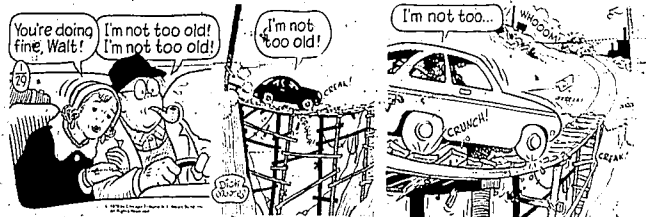

ROOF THATCHERS

The roof thatchers of Old England extended their caves quite a way out from the walls. Idea was to keep the runoff water from seeping back under the houses. Where the water hit the ground was called the drop line. Clearly, if somebody on the outside wanted to listen to what was going on in the inside, said party had to stand close to the wall, inside the "eavesdrop," hence that expression.

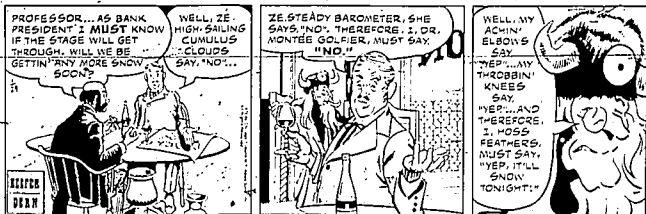

"It's Greek to me" is just about the most common expression in the language, no? It has its counterpart in other languages. The Greeks say, "It's Chinese to me." The Poles say, "I'm hearing a Turkish sermon." The Finns say, "That's a Pig German." The Germans say, "It's Kauderwelsch" meaning "It's from Bohemian villages."

Nursing mothers need well-balanced diets

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

UPI Health Editor
 "Many doctors have the wrong notion," Gal Storz Brewer said, breast-feeding 19-month-old Cornelia as she talked.
 "They have this idea that most pregnant women are well-nourished unless they're falling down."
 "The truth is a diet that perfectly nourishes isn't all that common. Most expectant mothers need to concentrate on how they put their meals together, making sure the nourishment's there."
 Mrs. Brewer, wife of a doctor, is Director of Instructor Training and Certification for SPUN — the Society for the Protection of the Unborn Through Nutrition.
 She also is the editor of "The Pregnancy After 30 Workbook" (Roadie) — a collection of programs for safe childbearing.

Dr. Tom Brewer, President of SPUN and a graduate of Tulane University School of Medicine, nods agreement with his wife's precepts. They are in tune with his, which are based on 27 years' experience.
 The Brewers also believe in breast-feeding as the best nutritional start for a child.

Brewer, who put in some time as a research fellow at Howard Hughes Medical Institute in Miami, Fla., said the most impressive proof of his no-risk diet for pregnancy "came at clinics in California."
 From 1963 to 1976 he conducted a demonstration nutrition education project in the public prenatal clinics of the Contra Costa County, Calif., Medical Services.

He said there was not one case of convulsive toxemia among 7,000 women in the project during that period. He credits keeping the women off all drugs including diuretics or water pills — and keeping them on a balanced, no-junk-food diet.

One mother dies every 18 hours of complications of convulsive toxemias, according to Mrs. Brewer. She said other severe toxemias are involved in one prenatal death every 15 minutes.

Brewer said the National Institute of Health funded a study of the California experience but, it has not yet published the study.

The obstetrician claims it is better for pregnant women to keep their eyes on their diets than on the scale.

He said babies have the lowest incidence of brain damage when the mothers gain 35 or more pounds.

He advises eating food to taste, enough water to satisfy thirst, and the "no risk" diet described in the workbook.

Parts of the workbook are written by husbands and wives who have been through experiences they recommend to other expectant parents.

Among contributors are Dr. Victor Berman, an obstetrician-gynecologist and his wife, Salee, an obstetric-gynecologist nurse practitioner. Founders of the Natural Childbirth Institute in Cuver City, Calif., they noted about women over 30:

"They have been told by doctors... they are much more likely to have a difficult pregnancy or a defective child because of their age."

"We have found that sound nutrition throughout pregnancy, preparation for childbirth, and avoidance of drugs and smoking are important factors in reducing complications for mother and baby to the absolute minimum."

Dear Abby

10-minute calls expensive

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.
DEAR ABBY: Over the years you have advised wives not to phone their husbands at work unless it's absolutely necessary. I disagree.
Nothing brightens a father's day like hearing, "Hi, Dada," from his 2-year-old son whom he hasn't seen for two days because he's had to work overtime.
As for management complaining because it wastes company time, management would be wise to encourage 10-minute "sunshine" calls. It does wonders for their employees' morale.

However, there should be a few rules: Emphasize that your call is not an emergency so your husband isn't interrupted in the middle of something important, if he doesn't work near a phone, put a quarter in his lunchbox so he can call you.
Also, never tell him what the kids did wrong or anything that might upset him. Keep it light and cheery. He'll love it. My husband does.

BETTY M.

DEAR BETTY: Your husband may love your "sunshine calls," but I'll bet his boss doesn't. In business, time is money. Say your husband makes $6 an hour and you babble away with him for 10 minutes a day, that's $1 out of the boss's pocket. If he has 1,000 employees, each making $6 an hour, and each taking 10 minutes a day to discuss domestic trivia, it costs the boss $1,000 a day!
If you MUST call daily, let hubby call you on his lunch hour. A guy who's on the phone is not on the job — unless he's a bookie.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 11-year-old girl whose parents are divorced. I live with my mother. Mom has her boyfriend living with her and everybody knows they aren't married.

My problem is this: I have a best friend I'll call Debbie. Debbie's parents will let her come to my house and stay all day; but they won't let her sleep overnight. What's the difference?

PUZZLED IN LAS CRUCES

DEAR PUZZLED: Debbie's parents probably fear that if they allow her to spend the night in a home where an unmarried couple is sleeping together, Debbie might think they approve of it — which they do not.

DEAR ABBY: I have a gripe I would like to air. Just before Christmas, I receive a Christmas card with my newspaper: "Merry Christmas from Johnny Jones, your newspaper carrier!"

I also get a Christmas card, "From Elmer Smith, your postman." And another one "From George Brown, your garbage collector."
Abby, I never see any of these people during the year, but there were times when I would have liked to see them to ask why my newspaper was late again, or why I find so many letters in my box that aren't addressed to me. Or why my garbage cans are never put back where they belong!

I don't mind tipping for extra service, but it bugs me to get a "bill" for mediocre service that I've already paid too much for.

STEAMED IN PALO ALTO

DEAR STEAMED: Those aren't greetings, they're warnings.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mignon's early birth not hindering growth

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — For an infant who may be the most premature baby ever born, Mignon Faulkner is sure "wiggling around a lot" in her hospital crib and is developing a personality of her own.

Mignon was born Nov. 17 after only 23 weeks gestation — 17 weeks premature. She weighed only 17 ounces at birth, but Wednesday she was a hefty two pounds, 14 ounces, according to doctors at San Diego Children's Hospital.

"Every pound is a milestone," said hospital spokeswoman Diane O'Brien. "She definitely has developed a personality of her own. She's very active and has been wiggling around a lot."

Physicians said Mignon's birth was the most premature on record. Dr. Richard Henderson, the baby's doctor, said Mignon is doing well and may be released in about three months.

According to Dr. Henderson, one of the major problems with premature babies is lung development. While Mignon's lungs were not at a normal stage of development for a newborn baby, he said they were more developed than would be expected for a baby 17 weeks premature.

She still requires a respirator to help her lungs take in oxygen, Ms. O'Brien said, and because of a mouthpiece, her crying cannot be heard.

But "she cries," Ms. O'Brien said. "You can tell."

Mignon's parents, Curtis and Myrna Faulkner of San Diego, visit the baby daily and are allowed to touch her. Ms. O'Brien added, but cannot hold her because of the respirator.

The couple has three other daughters, ages 15, 14 and 10, all born prematurely.

Woman on right labeled leader, on left insecure

Clothes make the woman says university teacher

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — It's been said clothes make the man, and a new study by a Pennsylvania professor shows clothes also make the woman.

Dr. Rebecca Holman said she surveyed almost 200 male and female Pennsylvania State University students for their reactions to seven pictures of the same female model dressed in different styles.

The professor said she found a number of significantly different views about the woman, depending on the clothes she wore.

"A woman wishing to be known as a feminist might choose one style... (and) a woman who did not wish to be seen as a feminist might choose another style in that same situation," according to the Penn State marketing professor.

"None of the seven styles of clothing was, by most standards, revealing or daring," Dr. Holman said.

Each of the 200 subjects saw only one picture and was given the same questionnaire.
Each was asked to agree or disagree with statements such as whether the woman was from an affluent family, was a women's libber, a sorority member, a leader, was self-assured or sexy looking.

The results showed, for example, that subjects who saw a picture of the model in jeans, a sweater and a corduroy jacket, said she was a self-assured leader, in a sorority and interested in women's liberation.

But the same model dressed in jeans and a v-neck sweater was seen as lacking in self-confidence and being unsympathetic with women's liberation.

"The same model wearing the same sweater and shirt and shoes but with widely belted jeans and a leather jacket trimmed in fur was perceived as not in a sorority and not from an affluent family," Dr. Holman said.

"By understanding the messages sent out when we wear clothes, the reasons behind different product choices might become clearer," said the marketing expert.

"The study is part of a stream of research into how products communicate meaning," said Dr. Holman who has done similar research with curvy brands of

Nation's economic expansion expected to slow

TWIN FALLS — As cited in the First Security Bank newsletter, the national pace of economic expansion is expected to slow substantially through 1979, said Kenneth J. Newman, vice-president and manager.

A sluggish, recessionary type economy will likely develop sometime in the second half of this year, reports First Security, but the sharpness and duration of this downturn will be less severe than the 1974-75 recession.

The outlook for inflation through mid-1979 remains bleak, asserted the newsletter, recognizing that inflation must be slowed, the commitment by the administration and the Federal Reserve will be severely tested as slower economic growth will likely precede significant progress on the inflation front.

The availability and cost of credit will perhaps be the single most important factor influencing business activity. At year-end the prime lending rate was 11 3/4% and the supply of outstanding credit increased rapidly during 1978. While it is believed that interest rates have yet to peak, stated the newsletter, the uncertainty surrounding the effectiveness of voluntary wage-price guidelines, the strength of the dollar and the future course of monetary policy, cloud the issue. The publication indicated that increase — expected to continue at 2 1/2 percent in 1979 — provides the basis for additional economic expansion.

According to the newsletter, business conditions and economic growth in Idaho have optimistic forecasts.

expected to vary in a range near 6 percent — one-half percent above the average of 1978.

The 10 percent mortgage usury law, perhaps the most serious concern facing the Idaho economy in 1979, helped lower the number of building permits issued in the second half of 1978 by 43 percent. Because the cost of money in the secondary mortgage market is now in excess of 11 percent, this source of mortgage financing is essentially unavailable, thereby limiting mortgage financing and home building. If the law is not adjusted, warned the newsletter, the number of building permits for new dwellings will decline by an additional 15-20 percent in 1979.

Business

Interest rates will peak sometime after mid-year within one percentage point of present rates.

In mid-1978, Idaho's population was 878,000, an increase of 21,000 people. The sustained rapid population increase — expected to continue at 2 1/2 percent in 1979 — provides the basis for additional economic expansion.

Continued high livestock prices will favorably affect the agricultural industry in 1979. Because beef cattle inventory continues to decline and consumer demand remains strong, choice steer prices should average about $69 per hundredweight. The crop price outlook for 1979 is marginal, following record harvest in 1978. The 1979 winter wheat seedlings rose sharply but production is expected to decline as a result of lower yields.

Kennecott shuts down

MCGILL, Nev. (UPI) — Kennecott Copper Corp. said Friday it will be suspending its smelting operation temporarily next month, resulting in the layoff of another 150 persons at the eastern Nevada works which has been virtually shut down much of the year.

Dean Kerr, general manager of the Nevada Mines Division, said the shutdown will last at least three months in order to undertake repairs on reverberatory furnace and boiler. The company's big open pit mine has been closed several months, but the smelter was operating to handle concentrate shipped from Utah.

"Current supplies of concentrate have been worked down and it is necessary to temporarily cease smeling until these supplies again have built up," Kerr said.

He said that during the closure period, operations of the Nevada Northern Railway will be reduced to an "as needed basis."

The company "once" maintained about 1,100 employees at the mine and smelter, but several layoffs reduced this to a few hundred.

You can still get a tax break for '78.

It's not too late. You still have until April 16 to open and deposit to your First Security Individual Retirement Account and get credit on your '78 tax return. You can tuck away up to $1500, or 15% of your income, (more if you have a non-working spouse) to earn 8% continuous interest. And defer all the taxes on both principal and interest until you withdraw the money when you retire. By then, you may be in a lower tax bracket.

If you have a Keogh plan that was opened before December 31, 1978, you can add to that 'til April 16, too.

So look at the alternatives, IRA or IRS. We think you'll make the obvious deduction.

Aid with tax returns near for Idahoans

TWIN FALLS — Many Magic Valley taxpayers who need help preparing basic income tax returns will find free assistance close to home, according to Walter Eddy, IRS Director's Representative for Idaho.

A "basic" return would be Form 1040A or the 1040 with Schedules A&B or B&C. Taxpayers needing help with complex returns (beyond the scope of the "basic" type) are urged to seek professional assistance or to contact the IRS Office.

The aid is provided by community-minded individuals and groups who volunteer part of their free time to reach taxpayers needing tax-preparation assistance but are unable to afford private help. The public service activity is called "VITA" (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance), and the volunteers are IRS trained.

"Although the Internal Revenue Service also offers free tax assistance," said Eddy, "many taxpayers prefer VITA assistance because VITA offices are more conveniently located and volunteers are available on a more flexible schedule."

Anyone needing assistance is urged to bring the tax package mailed by the IRS and other pertinent documents like W-2 Forms and interest statements to:

New York's Bonwit Teller may close

NEW YORK (UPI) — Another famous high-fashion store on Fifth Avenue, Bonwit Teller, appeared Friday to be nearing closure.

Real estate operator Donald Trump disclosed that he has an agreement to buy the building in which the store operates.

Retail trade circles said some Bonwit Teller job employees were looking for jobs and expected the store to close by midyear. The store is owned by Genesco, Inc., of Nashville, the diversified manufacturer and retailer.

A Genesco official said Friday that at this point he could not comment on Trump's disclosure. But he conceded that there had been reports in retail circles for some years that Genesco would close Bonwit Teller. Trump did not discuss his plans for the building except to say he was also buying the Bonwit Teller name and the store's fixtures but not the merchandise.

Halogen headlights coming for U.S. cars

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — The American automobile industry may turn gradually to the halogen gas headlights long used in Europe as the result of a new development by the Sylvania Corp., Danvers, Mass. This would result in generally brighter headlights with less power consumption and perhaps a modest improvement in gasoline mileage.

What Sylvania, a division of General Telephone & Electronics Corp., has accomplished is to make the first sealed beam halogen headlights. American law requires the easily adjusted sealed beam headlight as original equipment on all American-made cars. The European style halogen headlight is legal in America only for foreign-made cars since the inside of the lens, the reflector and the outside of the halogen capsule are open to moisture, dirt and other contamination that can make the light beam deteriorate both in intensity and direction.

The great advantage of the halogen headlight is that the tungsten filament is sealed in a hard glass capsule filled with halogen gas. In this environment, the filament can be heated to a much higher operating temperature, resulting in a whiter, more powerful light than the conventional American sealed beam headlight gives.

On high beam, this light will increase seeing distances for motorists by more than 50 percent, according to Sylvania.

On low beam, the halogen headlamp draws five fewer amperes of electricity than the conventional sealed beam tungsten lamp. This is a big enough saving so that, theoretically, the size of the alternator and battery could be reduced sufficiently to cut the engine's fuel consumption by two-tenths of a mile to the gallon or four miles to a 20-gallon tankful.

However, cutting the size of the automobile's generator and battery depends on many things besides the lights — on how big the engine is and how many amperes of power the starter pulls and on how many electrical accessories the car has. European cars usually have smaller generators and batteries because they have smaller engines.

Nevertheless, Ford Motor Co. has decided to adopt Sylvania's new sealed beam halogen headlights as standard equipment on the 1979 Lincoln Versailles and has indicated it will adopt them on some other Ford models in 1981.

Richard de la Chapelle, a Sylvania vice president based at Hillsboro,

N.H., who had much to do with developing the new lamp, said Sylvania had plenty of experience with halogen lamps for photography, aviation and other specialized light applications. The task in mating European halogen technology and American sealed beam technology was mainly one of adapting big-scale mass production methods to the hybrid lamp.

"We solved that by sealing the halogen filled bulb containing the tungsten filament into the glass lamp reflector," de la Chapelle said. "The glass front lens is bonded to the reflector. The assembly is pressure tested and aimed so it will be adjustable by all the standard headlight aiming devices used in American garages."

The lamps are being produced now at Salem, Mass. If the U.S. auto industry shifts to them on any substantial scale, Sylvania will start them in a much larger factory at Seymour, Ind.

Sylvia Porter Buyers' bargain store guide

As you try to stretch the buying power of your dollar to the limits of your know-how, ingenuity and patience in 1979, it's a virtual certainty you'll turn in increasing millions to shopping the various forms of discount stores — ranging from thrift shops to consignment stores, to factory outlets, self-service basements, etc.

It's abundantly clear you already are traveling this route in mounting numbers — and discount store patrons now cross all categories of incomes, ages and occupations. There no longer are any lines, economic or social, separating the customers.

But are you as aware as you should be of the distinctions between the various types of bargain stores? Probably not, and thus:

THRIFT SHOPS: Usually are connected with religious or charitable organizations, manned by volunteers from the organization and offering a wide variety of durable goods.

In thrift shops, you will find: used clothing, appliances, linens, sporting goods, furniture, bric-a-brac, jewelry, paintings, books and, from time to time, unusual objects. You will not find all the items at all times and the conditions of the articles as well as the prices quoted may differ sharply. Donations to these stores often are tax-deductible and the sponsoring organization receives a modest profit from articles sold.

As a customer, be sure to check the hours and days that thrift shops you want to patronize are open.

CONSIGNMENT SHOPS: Offer you the same variety of goods as thrift shops. But almost surely, you will pay more for what you buy.

The reason: consignment shops are privately owned and are operated to return a profit to the owners. The shop acts as a middleman between buyer and seller, and thus the merchandise usually will be in a better condition than in the thrifts and it may be of higher quality (but not always by any means.)

Estate items are not uncommon offerings in these stores. You, the seller, get a percentage of the sale, and the store itself earns the balance. You, the buyer, benefit by purchasing slightly used articles at a fraction of original cost. So, if you are seeking quality goods (but not necessarily this year's models), you'll frequently find exceptionally good buys at the consignment shops.

FACTORY OUTLETS: Provide you, the consumer, with an opportunity to shop for new merchandise where it is manufactured. You must go to the factory, during designated hours, usually weekdays — although some stores open for specified hours on Saturdays. At the outlet, you may purchase what is available, and often, you'll find second, discontinued styling or irregulars at cut prices. Cash normally is required, or a personal check or a nationally-known credit card. There are no deliveries.

Although clothing outlets are the best known, other articles may be bought: for instance, Seth Thomas, in Thomaston, Conn., offers an assortment of clocks.

DISCOUNT STORES: Sell you new merchandise, in-great-volume, at a discount, often without a label. In most cases, you must pay cash, or its equivalent in the form of a personal check. In some stores, you may use a major credit card, and in a very few cases you may use the store's own credit card. The drawbacks are: no returns, the inconvenience of carrying purchases home, the lack of complete selectivity (in size, color, style, model), the crudeness of a common dressing room, the scarcity of sales help.

None of these factors, though, has deterred you from shopping the discount route. ...1977-78 was the third successive year of improved earnings for member stores," reports Richard L. Hersh, president of the National Mass Retailing Institute (a large trade organization of self-service discount stores). Looming, for instance, a pioneer: in the concept of selling high fashion women's clothes without labels on a cash-and-carry basis, reports earnings for the past 12 months up a spectacular 67 percent and sales in a recent 52-week span up 25 percent.

Caldor, a major discount store in the Northeast specializing in appliances, sporting goods, electronic and electrical devices, has written another, similarly spectacular success story.

And a final guide: study your favorite department store's so-called "bargain" basement, which may carry designer clothes as well as bottom-of-the-line seconds-and-low-markup goods.

As the 1970s draw to a close, we are well into the "era of thrift." Learn to practice it well and benefit thereby.

Hoping to instill new interest in a historical society, club members listen closely to former president

Historical group rejuvenating

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Is appreciation for history becoming a thing of the past? Members of the Twin Falls County Historical Society hope not, but interest in their organization has waned in recent years. Membership has fallen off and remaining society members have started a campaign to rejuvenate the group.

Our decline in membership is because people that are interested in that kind of thing are usually older and every year everybody gets a year older," outgoing historical society president George Holmes of Twin Falls said.

In his six years as president of the organization, Holmes has watched historical society membership peak at about 200 members then fall to less than 150. But other members remember a roll call of as many as 450 members.

But getting young people interested in anything historical is no easy chore, according to Holmes. "It would be hard to get anybody interested who wasn't at least college age," he added. "A lot of young people come out to the museum and really enjoy it, but as far as getting them to help run the organization, that's a different thing."

The group needs participants for its four field trips a year and help in maintaining the county historical museum near Curry Crossing west of Twin Falls. The museum is open for the six warm months of the year and caretakers handle most of the maintenance, Holmes said. Society members are needed, however, to help sort and organize new acquisitions to the museum.

"We need members that are interested enough to help run the place," Holmes said. By stepping down as president this year and helping reorganize the society, Holmes hopes to see vigor return to the withering organization.

Last week, the group elected five new three-year board members and will reorganize the board by spring, he said. The group will also review its by-laws and update them where necessary. Holmes said he thinks a 15-member board of directors is unwieldy and the number should be reduced, although members have no definite plans for reducing the size of their board.

New board members are: Carl Zikes, Bill Patton, Pete Creed, Jim Leon and R.D. McKinney, all of Twin Falls County. He said the job of president of the organization does not have to be a lot of work if committees are all doing their jobs and said present members are reorganizing their committees for the coming year.

Water, sewer Buhl citizens identify needs

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
BUIHL — Citizen input to qualify the city of Buhl for a Housing and Urban Development grant for street and water improvements show several areas where moderate and low income families cannot afford improvement costs. Mayor Dale Christensen said the Buhl Jaycees assisted by taking questionnaires to several areas in the community where streets and water pressure need upgrading.

"The survey was taken by the Jaycees to areas where we had 100 percent response to our proposed Local Improvement District saying residents could not afford the costs," Mayor Christensen said.

In addition two public hearings were held last week asking for citizen comment. The mayor said only about 25 persons responded through the public hearings. One area of the city where residents are served by a 4 inch water line and pressure is poor was covered by the Jaycees survey showing low to moderate income residents in most of the homes. Another area where street improvement is needed but moderate to low income families feel costs are too high was covered in the survey.

showing these residents are not able to pay the cost of improvements.

Christensen said to qualify the city for the HUD grant for water, streets or housing improvement, residents in areas must be below $11,119 in annual income. The Jaycees survey shows a number of families in this category, some with as many as eight members in the family, Christensen said.

He said the information will be used by the city in making application for approximately $100,000 in grant money for water and street work in such areas.

Housing he said, was not a factor, apparently, as the survey failed to bring out any comments on housing.

Mayor Christensen said the city must submit pre-application information for the grant by Friday and expects to have it in the mail by that time.

Last year the city of Buhl applied for funds to cover the city's water reservoir but failed to qualify in the upper few communities for the limited amount of money available. The mayor said Buhl was 15th on the list with $500,000 available for qualified applicants. He said this year $300,000 is available in the grant fund Buhl is making application for and the city will ask for about one third of that.

Kimberly, Hansen take top oratorical awards

TWIN FALLS — Young orators from the Kimberly and Hansen area walked off with top honors in the 1979 oratorical contest sponsored by the Twin Falls Optimist Club Saturday. Both first place winners were from the Hansen-Kimberly Junior High group. Dori Whittaker, 13, won first place in the girls division and Michael Wall, 12, won in the boys division.

Contest chairman Chuck Hallett said there were 26 finalists competing for honors and representing schools in Twin Falls, Filer, Buhl, Kimberly, Hansen and Burley. The contest was open to anyone 16 and under with original orations written on the subject "In My Youth, I See..."

Miss Whittaker spoke on "In My Youth I See no success can come from failure in the home." The subject of Wall's address was "In My Youth I See Idaho is a great state and we must keep it that way."

Each contestant spoke for four minutes. Winners will represent the Twin Falls club in zone contests which will also be held in Twin Falls in April.

Second place winners included Sheila Gerber and Bob Mitchell, both of Twin Falls. Miss Gerber attends Twin Falls High School and Mitchell, Robert Stuart Junior High school. Finishing in third place were Kimberly Langford, 13, also of Kimberly, Hansen, and Donald King of Burley Junior High School.

Hallett said school instructors assisted in the contest including Clark Sullivan and Carol Sullivan from Kimberly-Hansen, Juan Watson of Robert Stuart, Geneva Pappalardo and Pauline Harper, both of Buhl; Gary Bowyer and Marilyn Knigge and Jackie Parke of Filer; Marilyn Kistler and Helen Herziger of Verá C. O'Leary in Twin Falls, and Cleone Moncur of Burley.

Prizes for the contest were Don Baker and Mark Wright, a CPA, both of the Dale Carnegie school; Mayor Leon Smith, and Roy Strauss of CST.

Five want to be new county sheriff

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee will have five candidates to consider in selecting a man to recommend for appointment as Twin Falls County sheriff.

Five men have announced they are seeking the appointment and are submitting applications and resumes of their qualifications to the Republican party officials. The central committee will then make a recommendation to the board of county commissioners.

The central committee will meet today to review the applications. James Munn, chief deputy and acting sheriff since the death of Corder and Deputy Buddy Dewese are in the running for the job.

Ivan (Ike) Kistler, a former chief deputy for Corder and now a member of the Twin Falls city police department and James Campbell, chief of police at Kimberly are also asking consideration for the appointment.

Kistler's biography ran last week in the Times-News. Another person running is Jerry Packer, a parole officer from Twin Falls.

Jerry Packer

TWIN FALLS — Jerry Packer, a parole officer from Twin Falls, has entered his name in the race for Twin Falls County sheriff.

Packer, a former member of both the Twin Falls County sheriff's department and the Twin Falls Police Department, has been an Idaho parole officer for the past two years.

He joined the police department as a patrolman in 1964 after four years in the U.S. Marine Corps. In 1969 Packer left the police department to become a deputy in the sheriff's office.

As a deputy he was a juvenile officer and also worked in criminal investigation. In 1977 he went to work for the state Bureau of Pardons and Probation, citing better benefits and more time to spend with his family.

Packer said the parole job also broadened his experience. "This particular job gave me an opportunity to work in other areas of law enforcement such as court and other institutional organizations like the (Idaho State) penitentiary in Boise." Packer said he sees returning to the sheriff's office as an opportunity to serve Twin Falls, on one hand, and a personal sacrifice on the other. "It's going to be a sacrifice. It's not an advancement in the sense of money and free time for my family," he said. "But I feel as a dedicated law enforcement officer and citizen I can improve the department to a more professional one."

Packer said there's room for improvement in several areas of the Twin Falls department.

He called for more direction from the top, a system to evaluate and promote officers based on merit, and more thorough background checks of potential employees.

He promised to investigate charges that coverage of Castleford and Buhl is less comprehensive than in the county as a whole.

James Campbell

KIMBERLY — James Campbell, the 35-year-old Kimberly chief of police has asked for the appointment as Twin Falls County sheriff.

Campbell said he has discussed the appointment with his city council and has their support in his bid for the county position.

Campbell has nine years law enforcement experience as well as two years with a leading Twin Falls law firm as legal investigator and office manager.

Campbell has an estimated 1,000 hours in law enforcement training in all phases of police work. "I think over the past nine years as Kimberly police chief, I have demonstrated my ability to work within a conservative budget and at the same time provide the best possible service to the people and the least possible expense to the taxpayers. I think my record stands by itself," Campbell said.

"I would want to continue the high quality law enforcement our citizens have come to expect in this county. I also favor an open door policy. I think it is imperative that people have a flow of information to the sheriff's office and that they have an input to let the county law enforcement agency know what they want. This is important in helping us give better protection and service to all of the county residents," Campbell said.

He said he has obligated himself and his family to his career in law enforcement. "I am sincere about my enthusiasm for law enforcement and loyal to my profession. Naturally I feel the position of sheriff would be a step up in my career and in my ability to serve the people of this county," he said.

Buddy Dewese

TWIN FALLS — Buddy Dewese, 43, a deputy in the Twin Falls sheriff's office has entered the race for appointment of a new Twin Falls County sheriff.

He has served as a deputy, being appointed by the late Sheriff Paul Corder Oct. 1, 1971.

Dewese was born in Indiana and reared in Amarillo, Tex. He is a member of the Republican Party and married to a Twin Falls woman. He and his wife, Marlene have three children, ages 12 to 21. Mrs. Dewese is a nurse and currently works for the Mountain Bell Co.

Dewese has 75 college credits at the College of Southern Idaho, most of it in law enforcement training, the equivalent of some 1,200 hours. He also holds an intermediate certificate from the Post Academy at Pocatello. His training has included numerous law enforcement fields, everything from Spanish to criminal investigation.

Prior to joining the sheriff's office he was employed in Twin Falls by Bill Warkentin Ford agency and, before coming to Twin Falls was employed by the federal government for nine years.

He worked for the government as an aircraft mechanic and in other positions. Dewese also served five years in the army with the First Infantry Division and three years in the active reserve in Texas.

He has also been active in community service, having served on the board of directors for the American Red Cross, assisted in United Way and is a member of the Masonic Lodge Kaylor 94 AF and Am and the Magic Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star. Dewese serves on the advisory board of the Parents Without Partners.

"I believe I would be able to do a good job as sheriff of Twin Falls county, and could infuse some programs which would benefit the sheriff's staff as well as the people of Twin Falls county. There are a lot of things I would like to do. I know it is a 24-hour a day job and I would like an opportunity to do my best in the capacity of sheriff," Dewese said.

James Munn

TWIN FALLS — Deputy Sheriff James Munn, who has submitted his application to the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee for appointment as county sheriff said he feels his experience and background qualify him for the position.

"I feel I could serve the welfare of the people of the county in the interest of safety, good law enforcement and good judgement and can work well with other law enforcement agencies, the courts and other elected officials," Munn said.

He submitted his application and resume to the committee last week, seeking the post vacated by the death of his former boss and long time friend, Paul Corder.

Munn has 13 years of law enforcement experience. He joined the sheriff's office in 1969 and has filled every capacity of a deputy sheriff from that time to the present. He has worked in civil matters, criminal investigation, narcotics and has been in charge of the jail. During the long illness of the late sheriff he has given the authority of managing the sheriff's office and has been in charge of the jail. He has also been in charge of personnel.

In addition to his work in Twin Falls County, Munn spent 10 years in the U.S. Airforce in this country and in Germany as an air police officer.

He has about 700 hours training in law enforcement work including training in the air force military police programs.

Munn was born in Twin Falls in 1936 and attended schools here and in Filer, graduating in 1958. He completed two semesters at Idaho State College in Pocatello and has attended a number of law enforcement courses since joining the Twin Falls Sheriff's department.

He and Janet Church were married in Twin Falls in 1955 and have two children, James R. 18 and Julie, 16. Munn served briefly in this area, was employed as assistant airport manager here and worked with the Wells-Nevada Stage Lines as a driver and sales representative prior to joining Corder's staff. He was appointed chief deputy in October, 1976. He said if appointed he has no plans to make personnel changes in the office, but will try to maintain a high quality professional type law enforcement in the county.

Local Texaco stations uncertain about gas

TWIN FALLS — Texaco service station operators in Magic Valley said Saturday they have received no official word from company representatives about the announced reduction of gasoline supplies to retailers in February.

But they tend to be optimistic that the cutback will not have any serious effect for area motorists.

Most Texaco station managers contacted in Twin Falls and several other Magic Valley towns Saturday predict the situation will be no worse than the allocations made in 1973, based upon 1972 consumption.

Wall Thueson, owner of Wall's Texaco in Jerome, was one of the most optimistic.

"I don't look for any sensational problem," he said. "I think we'll have all the gas that we need if all the dealers are placed on a 1972 allocation."

He predicted that other oil companies also will be reducing supplies to their retailers, but he does not believe limiting of gas supplies to the 1972 consumption will "cause any hardship or any change for the people of this valley."

It is possible that in other parts of the nation which have experienced significant population growth in the past five years, the 1972 allocation could cause a shortage for motorists, Thueson said.

"The very worst thing that people could do, here or anywhere throughout the nation, would be to start a run on gas supplies," he said.

Joe "Buck" Buckingham, manager of Buck's Blue Lakes Texaco in Twin Falls, said "They haven't told us anything yet. I just know what I read in the paper." But he agrees that the announcement undoubtedly will mean stations will be limited to the allotment made in 1973, based on the previous year.

A spokesman at Mendocino's Texaco in Twin Falls, also predicted "It shouldn't be too bad, unless people get stupid and make a run, but if they just act normal, it won't be too serious."

Alice Armstrong, co-owner with her husband of Chuck's Auto Service on West Addison in Twin Falls, said "All we know is that the price is taking another raise. Every time we get a new truckload of gas there's price hike."

Costs too high

City of Buhl to stop plans for expansion of airport

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

BUHL — Concern over rising costs of land acquisition, a drop in federal participation and the 1 percent initiative have prompted Buhl to abandon airport expansion for this year.

Mayor Dale Christensen said the city still hopes to expand the Buhl runway to 3,900 feet and make other improvements sometime in the future, but city council members have decided to "back off" expansion for now.

As a result the city has withdrawn its application for state and federal funding.

Buhl had applied for and been granted funding by the state and federal agencies for the first phase (mostly land acquisition) of the master airport plan.

Worthle Rauscher, administrator, Division of Aeronautics for the Department of Transportation, in Boise, said the Federal Aviation Administration had approved 83 percent of both the $171,000 needed for land acquisition and the $43,000 needed for relocating two families, whose property would be purchased for expansion of the runway to the east and west.

He said the federal government now pays 83 percent of such projects and the remaining 17 percent is divided evenly between the state and local governments.

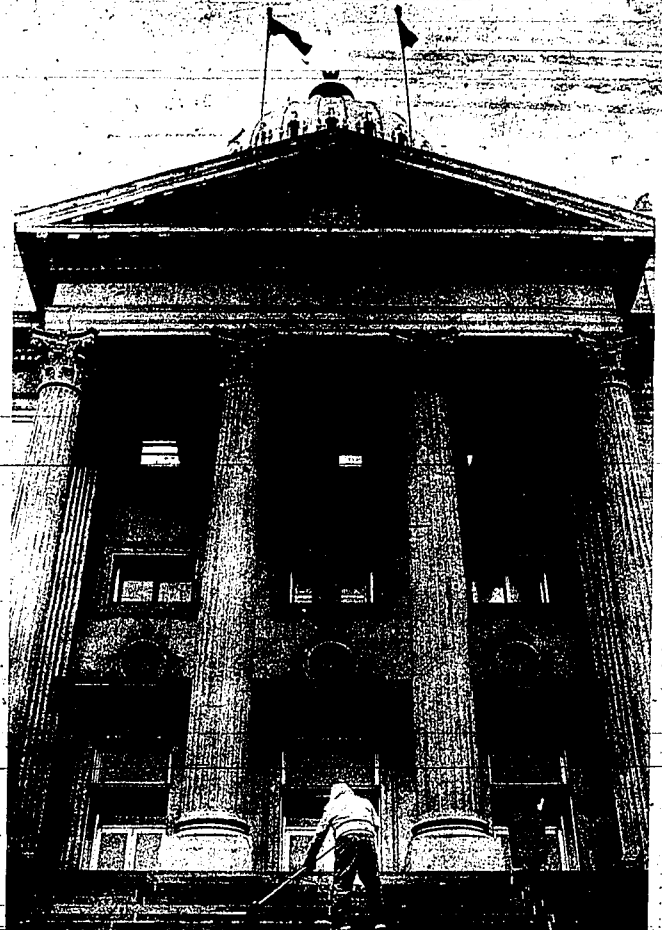

Rauscher said the funds will simply be used for other airport projects in the state. Buhl may reapply within a year or two when it is ready to move ahead on the project.

Christensen said the city has been assured it can retain a high priority for the federal funding even though delaying the expansion a year or more.

"We have so many critical needs in Buhl, including our water system, plans for a Local Improvement District for streets and a waste water treatment facility. We are forced to do something about these. Our council is thinking conservatively and feeling we cannot proceed on too many fronts at one time and in-view of the 1 percent and a need to hold down taxes generally," Christensen said.

Ralph King of the engineering firm of Smith and Kangas Engineers Inc. of Boise is currently completing the Buhl airport master plan. Christensen said King presented one proposal to the city and is now making some changes recommended by the council.

It is scheduled to be ready in final form in March. The council had already approved the first phase which involved purchasing land to extend the runway.

IF miss wins title

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Seventeen-year-old Jill Hall, Idaho Falls, won the Idaho State Junior Miss Scholarship Program on the University of Idaho campus Saturday night.

Her first attendant was Paoletta Kristyn Hlger, also 17.

Zoeller runs away from San Diego field

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Fuzzy Zoeller used the experience of two second-place finishes last year to get him by treacherous playing conditions Sunday and win the $250,000 San Diego Open by five strokes.

It was Zoeller's first career victory in an event on the PGA tour and he wrapped it up with an even-par 72 on a day in which wind, rain and hail pelted the seaside Torrey Pines South Course.

Zoeller, 27, started the final round with a two-stroke lead and his even-par 72 resulted in an easy victory over Tom Watson, Arnie McNiekie, Wayne Levi and Bill Kratzert.

After opening the tournament with a 76 in near gale-like winds Thursday, Zoeller shot a pair of 67s in the middle two rounds and finished with a 72-hole score of 6-under-par 282. The victory was worth $16,000 and boosted his career earnings to $291,041.

"Now I know I can win," he said. "Winning again won't be as hard as winning the first time. But I'm not going to change anything. I got here playing the way I do, and I'm going to keep on playing the same way. There is no question I learned a lot from being close last year, and I learned a lot from winning, too."

Sunday, despite the adverse weather which at one point forced a 12-minute suspension of play, Zoeller played like a man who wanted only to win. Just five other players shot a lower score than his 72 as the wind gusting at times to more than 30 mph and played havoc with the seaside Torrey Pines South Course, half of which was exposed to the elements.

Zoeller, who shot 67 in the middle two rounds, had a 72-hole score of 6-under-par 282 and he won $16,000 to boost his career earnings to $291,041.

After taking the lead in the third round, Zoeller said he was not frustrated by the lack of victories on the tour.

"When you win as much as I did last year," he said, "winning isn't everything."

While players all around him made mistakes, Zoeller, who started the final round with a two-stroke lead over Jerry McGehee, played steadily if not spectacularly. He took bogeys on the 1st and 4th holes, but recovered for a birdie on the 6th, parred all the way to the 18th and then made a 10-footer for his second birdie.

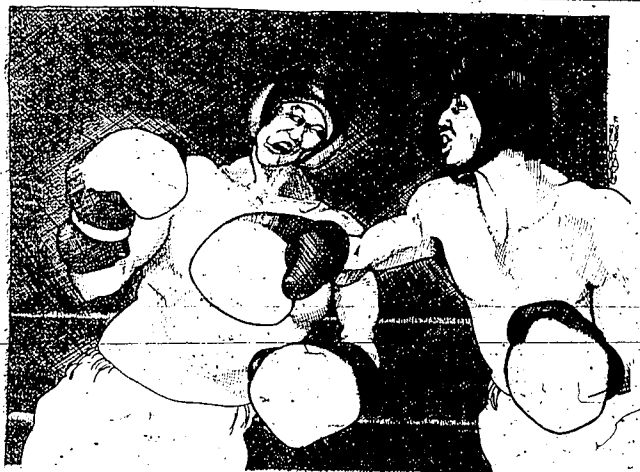

Tom Watson, winner of five events in 1978 and PGA Player of the Year, shot 71 to tie Arnie McNiekie, Wayne Levi and Bill Kratzert for second. They had 1-under-par totals of 287.

Tied for third at even-par 288 were Lee Trevino, Vic Bealardo, Jerry Pate and McGehee. Second place was worth $16,500 while $8,093 went to the third-place finishers.

It was the second highest winning score ever in the San Diego Open. Jack Nicklaus won the 1969 title with a 284 as only four players finished under par.

"Strong gusting winds on Thursday made playing conditions difficult, so Zoeller's opening 76 was not that bad a score."

Tommy Aaron, who had to fight his way into the tournament through the qualifying round, shot a 69 for the first-round lead while McGehee had a 67 Friday for the second-round lead. Aaron added rounds of 70, 75 and 76 to finish far back in the field of 80 survivors.

For Gooding matches Sanction at first refused

By GARY ELIASSEN

Times-News writer

GOODING — The Amateur Athletic Union originally refused to sanction Saturday's fights sponsored by Gooding boxing promoter Bud Godby. Godby claimed the denial was based on harassment and a "way of getting back at him" for his successful promotions and fights.

The AAU denies this. According to David Norris, president of the Snake River AAU Association, the sanction wasn't granted because the fights were to be held the same night as another fight in Boise and because the Gooding Boxing Club didn't meet AAU registration standards.

Without the blessings of the AAU, the fights could never have been held. Boxers registered with the organization are banned from participating in those matches not sanctioned by the AAU.

The fights went off on schedule, however, after AAU boxing chairman Tim Brennan of Boise consulted just said I would have to take it up with Brennan and that he wouldn't give the fights a sanction."

Brennan, the AAU boxing chairman, stressed he didn't authorize the original letter denying sanction.

"But the final approval did come from me," he admitted. "After I talked with some of the other respected coaches in the organization, we all agreed that we should go ahead and sanction the match."

Godby said before he knew of Brennan's action, he wrote a letter to Robert J. Surkein, the national AAU boxing chairman and an Illinois insurance executive.

"Godby wrote me," Surkein said. "So I called Brennan and talked to him. But I found out that the sanction already had been granted."

He added that he, too, has been involved in discussions concerning Godby's promotional activities.

State boxing officials have been closely watching Godby for the past several years after several state coaches complained of the promoter's "tactics." The Times-News has learned that the latest concerns were voiced in early December just prior to the AAU's original decision not to sanction the matches.

At a Snake River AAU Association meeting in Boise (including representatives of all sports), coaches brought up the subject of Godby and asked what could be done.

Association president Norris reportedly told the coaches that it was up to them to begin policing their own group and that no official action would be taken by the his organization.

No decision apparently was reached by the coaches on what to do, and they left the meeting with no plan of action.

What concerns the coaches, according to Norm Vollmer, southeastern Idaho boxing commissioner, are reports that Godby has advertised fighters who have no intention to fight, has placed fighters' names on trophies before fights have occurred and has failed to send his club to other boxing matches in the state. Questions also have been raised regarding where money earned from amateur fights sponsored by Godby is going.

No action planned

BOISE — State boxing commissioner Dale Trumbo said his office will take no action against boxing promoter Bud Godby because it can't be proved anything illegal has been done.

"Yes, I'm aware of some of the charges which have been made. They have been discussed for sometime," he said.

Trumbo said it wasn't within his purview to look at the books of an amateur boxer promoter. This legal right, he said, comes under the Idaho Tax Commission.

Alternatives available to the Amateur Athletic Union in dealing with Godby include putting him on probation or withdrawing his AAU sanction. The AAU so far has not done this.

"I'm just hoping the AAU can work this problem out," he said. "I don't want to raise any controversy which will stop boxing over here in Gooding."

"The program has good fights, and it's good for the kids," he said.

Trumbo admitted there were some "grey areas" which are hard to prove such as where the money is going, deceptive advertising, and misleading the public.

Connors beats Ashe in 3 sets

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors never allowed his intensity to diminish Sunday and crushed 10th-seeded Arthur Ashe, 6-4, 6-1, to win the $40,000 first prize of the $250,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.

The 35-year-old Ashe started slowly in the match Sunday as he did Saturday, when he came back from a two-set deficit to defeat Vilas Gerulaitis. But Connors didn't allow him any breathing room to recover in the topside duel, that lasted just one hour, 56 minutes.

"Even when I was up two sets to love, in the back of my mind I knew how he came back yesterday," said Connors, who won 14 of the 15 sets he played in capturing this tournament for the third time in four years.

"There was more mental pressure on me in the third set to keep up the pace. I didn't want one service break in the third set. I wanted two or three. I just wanted to keep the pace up and get off."

Connors did so with stinging baseline shots that kept Ashe pinned back against the baseline. Ashe was never allowed to volley as effectively as he did in reaching the finals and was forced to keep scrambling.

In addition, Connors was consistent on his service, not even allowing Ashe a break point until the eighth game of the second set, when he lost serve leading 5-2.

"Jimmy hits the ball in a straight line and you have to get to it a little quicker than with Gerulaitis or (Guillermo) Vilas," said Ashe, who just met Connors and defeated him in the 1975 Wimbledon singles final.

"You have a second time to get those balls. When they're hit in a straight line you're really got to go."

Ashe also admitted he lost the effects of Saturday's 3-hour marathon duel against Gerulaitis.

"I feel like somebody just beat me with a stick," Ashe said. "Sure I felt a little tired. Anybody would have felt fatigued today. I don't care who you are."

As he did Saturday, Ashe again started sluggishly Sunday. Connors broke his serve in the match's second

Jimmy Connors powers his way to championship game, setting the game up when he backhanded a second serve by Ashe up the line.

Connors held his serve in the third game to go up 3-0 with the help of three unforced errors by his opponent. Both players held serve, and in the ninth game, Connors took the set on his serve when Ashe netted a backhand.

The 26-year-old Connors broke Ashe twice in the second set in the third and fifth games, taking a 2-1 lead on a crosscourt forehand and a 4-1 advantage with a forehand passing shot on a return of serve.

But from 1-5, Ashe held serve for the seventh game, broke Connors for the first time in the eighth game over Connors netted forehand and long forehand volley, and held serve again to pull within 4-5. Connors however came back to capture the set on a picture-perfect drop volley.

Ashe appeared to be mounting a comeback in game two of the third set when he had Connors at break point thanks to two double faults.

CSI baseball recruit chooses pros over going to school

MAGIC VALLEY — CSI baseball coach Jim Walker sustained a setback when one of his recruits opted for a professional baseball contract following the free agent draft earlier this month.

Knight, a fresh pitcher out of Kallispell, Mont., signed while he was still home and hence won't be available to the Golden Eagles.

"I felt really bad about it," Coach Walker said. "Not so much for us although I feel he could really help our team this year. But I understand he only got $2,500 and the standard rookie league contract. I tried to explain to him that his college scholarship had a value of at least $10,000. But he wanted to try professional ball. It wasn't the money, obviously."

Additionally, Scott Job, a Utahn who played two years for the Golden Eagles, also signed after being tagged in the secondary draft.

Twin Falls Athletic Director Duke Wiseman currently is having some trouble with the Title IX people concerning the equality of programs offered boys and girls at Twin Falls.

The Bruins felt they had six and six, but the bureaucrats said Twin Falls couldn't count drill team as part of the program.

"The thing that is killing is the demand for gymnasium time," Wiseman tried to explain. "Each of our basketball teams spend about an hour and a half to two hours a day practicing. We only have one gymnasium and there are only about 16 hours per day when it can be logically used. The drill team for years has used the gymnasium from 7 a.m. to school time in the mornings. If the drill team didn't have that time slot, Coach (Ron) Bird would love to take his sophomore practice to that time period. We feel that if there is direct competition for gymnasium time like that, then the drill team's use should be counted as part of our extra-curricular activities and be judged on the same merits of the competitive teams."

The answer, of course, would be to eliminate drill team. But who is brave and/or foolhardy enough to try that?

Currently Twin Falls is having a use-only gymnasium drafted and hopefully will be able to raise the structure immediately north of the existing field house. That will open a lot of practice time during the winter demand peak. But it isn't built yet either.

Wiseman also feels that with the pinch of inflation and the 1 per cent tax, Twin Falls soon will have to review its athletic position. He surmises — and bases this on the projections from economic advisers — that the Bruins may have to trim two sports.

Aul Ostyn, district commissioner for officials in football and basketball, feels that Magic Valley coaches are laying themselves open for some real surprises in the next couple of years.

"The coaches just aren't giving these young officials a chance to get into tournament games. They all want the veterans. I can understand that. But the truth is, the men who are getting the best rankings also are the ones who are close to leaving the officiating game. The transition from the old to the new regime is not going to be smooth," he says.

Ostyn notes it appears to him that the geographical location of the officials also is going to be changed. "For the past many years our top-ranked officials have come from the Burley-Rupert area. I'm talking about guys like Frank Urquigen and Bob Matthews — you know what they are. They're all telling me now that they're about done, maybe a year or two, but the end is coming up fast. For my money the better of the younger officials is coming from the central part of the area. Filer, Twin Falls, in Utah area."

"These are the guys that the schools should be using in tournaments now, particularly this year. But all the lists are about the same. They all want the veterans. I know what the coaches doing the voting are thinking — that they might not be coaching in another year or two and they want it now. But football and basketball are going to be in this area longer than any coaches and if we can't help the young officials coming up, they are all going to suffer."

"I get getting complaints about our officials now but I get around and I feel from top to bottom we have the best association in the state. We hold more clinics on mechanics, more rule meetings and more reviews than any other district. Like every other association we have weak officials and strong ones. But the problem now is we don't have very many intermediate officials, the ones on the verge of having the ability to step into a big game with a big crowd and make the calls. Part of that is because the officials become discouraged early in their career by abuse from the crowds and schools and the lack of being able to see any rewards coming up once they have become experienced veterans."

Will China be admitted to 1980 Olympics?

LONDON (UPI) — The re-admission of China to the Olympics, recent Soviet political moves over the 1980 Moscow Games and a head-on clash with FIFA, one of the most powerful sports federations, will head the agenda when the executive board of the International Olympic Committee meets at its headquarters in Lausanne next week.

The nine-man board is also scheduled to sign the second part of the two-tier contract with Los Angeles for the 1984 Summer Olympics amid signs the IOC is not happy with the way the California organizing committee is being formed.

Other problems facing IOC President Lord Killanin and his executive board are the accreditation for journalists from Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty and the shortage and price of accommodation at Lake Placid during the 1980 Winter Games.

The re-entry of China to the Olympic Games — China last competed in London in 1948 — has become a matter of certainty following President Carter's move to re-open full diplomatic links.

But China's re-appearance still poses a tricky procedural problem for the IOC which until now has been thinking of trying to ease Taiwan out gently.

The executive board will be looking for a diplomatic solution to put before the main IOC session when it meets in Montevideo, Uruguay, in April. But unless Taiwan is dropped completely, the IOC knows Peking will not rejoin the Olympic fold.

On the Moscow Games, IOC members have not been hiding their anxiety over recent political statements from Soviet leaders.

On a recent European tour, Soviet sports minister Sergel Pavlov stirred up a hornets' nest in West Germany when he said West Berlin athletes should be identified separately from the West German team. The Soviet Olympic Committee later issued a statement denying any such proposal.

But it was one of Pavlov's other remarks that caused considerable unease at Olympic headquarters and some fringed activity in Tel Aviv.

Pavlov said the Soviet Union regarded as "serious provocation" Israel's continuing ties with South Africa. The statement led some Olympic observers to believe the Soviet Union was considering fueling an offensive by Arab and African countries to get Israel banned from the Moscow Games.

In Tel Aviv, Yitzhak Ofek, president of the Olympic Committee of Israel, announced Israel was cutting ties with South Africa. But the next day after a stormy meeting, the committee softened its line.

IOC leaders now are awaiting Russian reaction.

The threat of a black African boycott similar to the one in Montreal in 1976 appears remote because the Soviets are anxious for full African participation at Moscow. But the one cloud on the horizon is the South African Rugby tour of France in September this year.

It was New Zealand's rugby tour of South Africa that led to the Montreal walkout at the last moment and if the French rugby federation goes through with its invitation to the Springboks, there could be similar trouble in Moscow.

"This tour could pose big problems for the Moscow Olympics," admitted Killanin. "It is quite possible that African countries could react as drastically as they did in Montreal."

Action will continue Wednesday and Thursday night and resume the following Monday. The double elimination event could carry into the following Wednesday.

The A-3 tournament doesn't have the pressure of the other districts since both the champion and runner-up will advance to the state playoffs in Lewiston the following week.

The battle lines appear pretty well drawn and none of the teams will be a surprise to the other. Key to beating Filer is holding Debbie Allen off the boards and scoreboard and keeping a hold in the face of Jarolimiek.

The court's most consistent two are the Cousins, Wendy and Tracy Schwarz, while Shoshone's tandem usually is Barb Borrichon and Karun Ngoufines. However, Shoshone has a couple of other weapons in its arsenal who have had big nights. But that is true of the others to a little lesser degree.

Glenns Ferry pegs its hopes for a form reversal on the return to health of Amy Wertz who has missed the last two games.

She carries most of Glenns Ferry scoring and rebounding hopes. DeLo rides the scoring and rebounding of Hatt. But it appears that the two state representatives will come from the Filer, Shoshone, Valley triumvirate. Anything else would have to be considered a major upset.

A-3 tournament for girls to open tonight at Wendell

WENDELL — With three co-champions in the Canyon Conference part of the field, the fourth district A-3 girls basketball tournament, opening tonight at Wendell, figures to be a barnburner.

Filer, Valley and Shoshone walked through the league without a loss and looks looms splitting with each other.

The conference was not based on a home-and-home situation, however, something that will prove true next season.

Filer drew the opening round bye at the tournament organization meeting Friday afternoon and will sit out until Tuesday. Additionally, the bye drew the A-3 title into an excellent position — based on season performance — to gain the semi-finals before running into one of the three considered top contenders.

The tournament will open with Wendell taking on Glenns Ferry at 6:45 p.m. Monday and Shoshone meeting Kimberly in the nightcap about 8:30 p.m.

Wendell's night it again will be winners with Filer playing the Wendell-Glenns Ferry winner at 8:30 p.m., after Valley and DeLo square off at 6:45 p.m.

Following that round there will be another draw to determine which of the losers will have the loser bracket

At last... Brian Marron hit the qualifying time in the breaststroke to qualify for Y Nationals

Swimming his way to college

By GARY BLIASSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One year ago Brian Marron was on the verge of giving up swimming. It hadn't been a good year for him.

"I just wasn't getting the times I wanted in my races," said the highly-competitive 17-year-old member of the Magic Valley Swim Club. "I thought swimming wasn't worth it anymore."

But he was determined not to quit, and these days he's taking a more positive approach toward what he can accomplish in swimming.

Over the weekend during the Snake River AAU Association's Junior Olympics swimming competition, Marron came through with a good enough time in the 200-yard breaststroke (2:29.7) to qualify for a berth in the national YFCA meet which will be held in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. in April.

"That was one of my goals," he said as he was waiting for his next race to begin Saturday. "Boy, that's great."

Marron was competing at the meet for the club, but he also was competing as a YFCA member.

Marron realistically admits that he has a long way to go. His times are still far below where he wants them to be, and he's still finishing second and third in many races.

But his coach thinks Marron is just beginning to swim at his potential.

"Brian's got the brains and talent to go a long ways," said Pete Blumenthal. "If he sticks with it and doesn't get discouraged, he can make a team in college."

Though he hasn't decided yet where he might go to school when he graduates this spring from Twin Falls High School, Marron would like to give college swimming a try.

"I'm hoping I can get a scholarship," said the slender, well-built Marron, "but it's tough when you figure all the other top-notch swimmers there are in the country."

Going to the Y national meet is a big first step as it will give him a chance to get some national recognition — something which hasn't been able to get since there isn't a high school program in the state of Idaho.

"Idaho is one of only two states which don't have competitive swimming in high school," he said. "That really hurts, and it's just not a good atmosphere to be around."

Currently a summer high school meet sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union serves as a state meet for that age bracket, he said.

Though he has been hampered somewhat in Idaho, Marron has been around swimming most of his 17 years.

At age 10, when his father was stationed with the Air Force in Guam, he joined a local swim club.

After four years there, his family moved to Riverside, Calif. where he swam for the high school team and lettered as a freshman.

Since coming to Idaho in 1976, Marron has turned his main attention to the breaststroke. He placed fourth in the state last year with the 100 and 200 yard events in 1976. In 1977, he improved to second place in both events, and then in 1978 fell to third and fourth.

After last year's letdown, he's made up his mind this year to get back on the right track. Saturday's qualifying time was a good beginning.

Greer Stevens edges Fromholtz for title

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Greer Stevens, playing in only her second tournament since major knee surgery 10 months ago, outstayed Dianne Fromholtz 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, Sunday to win a $150,000 women's tour event and her first major victory.

The unseeded Stevens' victory in the first meeting between the two young players brought her a check for $30,000, which she said she may use to buy a cow milking parlor on a farm she plans to buy in her South African homeland.

Stevens, wearing a clumsy-looking knee brace, took charge late in the first set and seemed on her way to a straight-set victory over the fifth-seeded Fromholtz.

But Fromholtz, 22, took charge late in the second set, winning the last four games easily.

She ran her string to five in the first game of the third set, but Stevens rallied and the two played evenly until the seventh game, when Fromholtz ran into trouble.

"I got a couple of double faults and got a little unerved. That turned the match around and Greer won," Fromholtz said.

"I think I got a break when it was necessary. That was the deciding factor," Stevens said.

U.S. surprises skating world

TRONDHEIM, Norway (UPI) — The United States team, led by Eric Heiden and his sister Beth, emerged as the surprise winter Sunday in the three-nation speed skating meet, defeating host Norway and the Soviet Union.

Golden Eagles indoor track fortunes rising

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Right now we have five who I think can perform with anyone" in the national junior college track field, says CSI coach Karl Kleinkopf.

The coach believes that sophomore Greg Simons has the best 60-yard dash time in the nation and two Colombians, sophomore Jairo Correa and frosh Hernandez Hernandez, have to rank with the best distance men in the nation.

Kleinkopf currently is working with 24 men and seven women — just getting the latter program started.

"We have potential but it is all a matter of how hard some of these people want to work," Kleinkopf says. "But there are five who are impressing me right now." But Simons, the Bermudian Olympian, is the showpiece in the short events. He has clocked 9.3 100-yard dashes and Coach Kleinkopf believes, could become a contender in everything up to the 800. "But you go with him in the one (100), two (200) and four (400 meters) and a couple of relays and you can only ask the human body to do just so much."

Simons turned in his 6-1 flat 60 in the mildome a week ago and the Track and Field News currently carries Harvey Glance at 6.17 as the best. "It's all a matter of how the track experts will rate it," Kleinkopf says. "Greg's time was handied at the dome and anyone they usually want electronic timing. They say you should have 15-hundredths for handied against electronic. On that basis, Greg has the best in the nation.

So far Simons hasn't had any of the leg problems that plagued him last year.

"He is such a talent that if he worked hard at it I'm sure he's a world champion class athlete," Kleinkopf enthuses. Correa, who ran second in nationals last year, broke the CSI record for the two-mile when he clocked an 8:48. "I was really pleased with Jairo because the two-mile is just too short for him. He'll be a lot stronger in the longer distances. He went out with a 4:24 first mile and that's a heckuva split."

The coach professes his next remark with "now I didn't have anything to do with this" and that brings us up to Hernandez, the Colombian junior national champion.

"He's a friend of Jairo's and Jairo wrote him a letter telling him to come here. I never recruited him but I did tell Jairo that if he came I would try to get him some help with books or something like that. Hernandez worked for Xerox in Colombia and they provided some education money for him."

"But at the dome he romps in with a 3:53 1500 meters and that equates out to about a 4:05 mile," Kleinkopf said. "It just tickles the heck out of me because he's running with Jairo in practice and I think those two will make us as strong as anyone in nationals in the distances."

"Hernando ran a 4:22 mile and came back with a 9:27 two-mile and he'd laid off two weeks getting here."

The coach also believes CSI will be strong in the hurdles with Wally Palmer. "We haven't been able to do anything more than stretch over the hurdles but in his first fifth-of-highs at the dome Wally does a 7.61. That qualified him for nationals on his first flight. He's a natural athlete and the thing we'll want to work on the rest of this spring will be the intermediates. He has a best of 53 something but I feel he can improve on that considerably."

"Our surprise of the week is that we have a pole vaulter," Coach Kleinkopf continued. "(Twin Falls grad) Bobby Mingo had planned to go to Boise State but we talked with him and he decided to go with us. He's been vaulting all fall and winter with a friend. They've got some kind of big farm building with a run way and two pits. His best right now is 14-6 but he's banging the heck out of 15 feet and I'm sure he'll get it before long. Bob can be an excellent junior college vaulter and end up at a four-year school."

The rest of the field events, usually a problem for CSI, took another surge upward with the enrollment of Bermudan Curtis Charles. He's a high, long and triple jumper and should be capable of points in all three CSI meet. His best is 6-8 in the high jump and 48 feet in the triple jump. "We are setting a goal of 51 feet for Curtis in the triple and we hope he makes it this year," the coach said.

Kleinkopf also feels that Jerome product Dave Hole will help the Eagles in the long jump. "We aren't able to get much work in that event and last week Dave couldn't hit the board and didn't get a legal jump at the dome. But I feel that his first legal jump will be over 23 feet. Dave's a lot stronger and maybe even in better condition than he was in high school."

Switching back to running, the coach said he felt Englishman Mark Littlefield will become a 47-plus quartermiler for the Eagles. "I'm impressed with his attitude and willingness to work," Kleinkopf said.

"These are the individuals who are looking good right now and like I said earlier we have potential among the others. Right now they're just not working or performing like we'd like to see them. We didn't get the discus-shooter in at semester like we thought we would so we'll be out on the campus trying to get someone to help us there."

Ali not to box?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Three-time world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali told about 1,500 Ohio State University students Saturday he will never box again but will head a world-wide service organization.

"I'd be a fool to go in the ring again," he said in a 90-minute lecture. "If I lose a decision now I wouldn't be able to talk like this."

Ali answered a question about who might take his place with the retort, "When I leave, the game drops flat."

WBA fight tonight

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Mexico's slugging Pipino Cuevas, who has disposed of seven challengers by knockout since capturing the World Boxing Association welterweight crown 2 1/2 years ago, will put his crown on the line for the eighth time tonight when he takes on once-beaten Scott Clark of Orlando, Fla.

Cuevas, 21, will take a 29-5 record with 27 knockouts against the 28-year-old Clark, the WBA's No. 8 147-pound contender who has a 28-1 record with 19 KOs.

Talks on Colts

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Baltimore Colts' owner Robert Irsay has scheduled a today meeting with Los Angeles officials to hear their pitch on moving the NFL team to the West Coast. But Irsay says he plans to keep the team in Maryland.

The meeting Monday is the second round of talks on a possible move by the Colts to Los Angeles. Irsay said the talks were a device to pressure Baltimore County officials into speeding up the approval of the team's plans to build a training camp in Owings Mills, Md.

Irsay told a Baltimore radio station that owners of the Los Angeles Coliseum promised during a Saturday meeting to spend $50 million to improve the stadium, which becomes vacant after the 1980 season when the Los Angeles Rams move to Anaheim.

Biathlon victory

RUHPOLDING, West Germany (UPI) — East Germany's Klaus Selbert, missing only one shot, won the individual 20-kilometer biathlon Sunday in the first round.

A year ago, Selbert managed to place only seventh in this distance and third in the 10-kilometer race.

"But I got exactly the right wax this time, and this bone-hard course was just perfect for me," Selbert said after winning the first title in this year's biathlon series.

Kinnunen triumphs

TRENTO, Italy (UPI) — Jorma Kinnunen, a 32-year-old customs officer from Finland, won the "Lund March" cross-country ski event Sunday by edging Austria's Rudolph Kapeller.

Kinnunen covered the 32.4 mile course in four hours, 19 minutes and 3.7 seconds to Kapeller's time of 4:20:51.

Other finishers in the grueling event included: 3. Aurillo de Zolt, Italy, 4:21:18; 4. Pentti Tormala, Finland, 4:22:42; 5. Matti Kusko, Sweden, 4:23:34; 6. Heikki Ripatti, Finland, 4:24:52; 7. Pentti Tormala, Finland, 4:25:38; 8. Pentti Grohn, Finland, 4:25:43; 9. Alpo Virtanen, Finland, 4:25:54; 10. Jonas Andersson, Sweden, 4:26:15.

Fairbanks debut

AFC, NFC matched in Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Embattled Chuck Fairbanks, who is having all kinds of legal problems in a bid to break his contract to leave the New England Patriots and take a job at the University of Colorado, will coach the AFC against the NFC in the NFL's Pro Bowl tonight.

Fairbanks received another setback Friday when a federal appeals court in Boston refused to set aside an order barring him from taking the Colorado job.

The Patriots' coach, making his Pro Bowl head coaching debut, has remained mum about his personal problems this past week, explaining, "I don't want my personal problems to be a distraction to the Pro Bowl."

Asked if Monday night's game would be his last pro-football coaching job, Fairbanks replied, "I really don't know."

About 50,000 fans are expected at 6 p.m. at the 71,314-seat Memorial Coliseum in the first Pro Bowl game in Los Angeles in seven years. In last year's Pro Bowl at Tampa, Fla., the NFC overcame a 13-0 halftime deficit to post a 14-13 victory.

After the Steelers' 35-31 victory in the Super Bowl at Miami, the Pro Bowl has a tough act to follow.

Fairbanks' quarterback, Terry Bradshaw, who will be playing in his first Pro Bowl, had the greatest day of his nine-year professional career in the Orange Bowl by passing for 318 yards and four touchdowns on 17 completions in 30 attempts.

The AFC will be trying to take a 5-4 lead over the NFC in a rivalry that began with a 27-6 triumph by the AFC at Los Angeles in 1971.

"I think," Bradshaw said, "we're definitely the better conference and I think we're definitely more exciting. I think it's a carryover from the old AFL. The coaches in the AFC seem to have more wide open offenses."

"After the Super Bowl, everything is anticlimactic but I'm looking forward to this game. This is my first chance to play in it and I want to do well."

The Miami Dolphins' Bob Griese will be the other AFC quarterback.

Pat Haden of the Los Angeles Rams and Jim Hart of the St. Louis Cardinals were the NFC quarterbacks a year ago but neither one will be in this year's Pro Bowl. Roger Staubach of Dallas and Archie Manning of the New Orleans Saints will quarterback the NFC Monday night.

"There's a lot of pride that will be at stake," insisted Staubach, who will be appearing in his fourth Pro Bowl, "and we'll be trying our hardest to win. I know I'm looking forward to the game."

"Sure, there was a letdown after losing the Super Bowl but I'll be ready by the time the game starts. There has been a new look to the Pro Bowl the last couple of years. The players who are out are really hurt. Nobody calls up and cancels out anymore."

Tennis group supports new Prix regulations

LONDON (UPI) — The International Tennis Federation (ITF) Sunday backed controversial rules drawn up for this year's Grand Prix circuit, raising the prospect that the world's major tournaments could go ahead without the headline stars of the game.

After a five-hour meeting delegates from 22 countries in the ITF reaffirmed their support for the Men's Professional Tennis Council (MPTC) which insists contracts for this year's circuit carry a clause directing the players to compete in six designated tournaments, including those with low prize money.

Bjorn Borg, Jimmy Connors, Vitas Gerulaitis, Juan H. Enriquez, and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina have so far refused to sign contracts containing the clause which puts a question mark over their participation in Grand Prix tournaments including Wimbledon and the U.S. and French Opens.

Swiss win captured by Luescher

G A R M I S C H P A R T E N K I R C H E N, West Germany (UPI) — Peter Luescher of Switzerland edged American Phil Mahre by only three hundredths of a second to win the Kandahar World Cup slalom Sunday and topple three-year World Cup king Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden.

Luescher, 17th in Saturday's downhill clocked an aggregate 7-minute 26.11 seconds in the two runs and also won the weekend combination. In the process, to collect extra points and jump into the lead in the standings with 173 points.

Mahre, White Pass, Wash., who clocked 1:28.14, was second fastest on the second run and confirmed his form as the best American prospect of the season, boosting his overall points total to 106 with a second-placing in the weekend combination.

Bulgarian Peter Popangelov finished third in 1:26.26, Italian Piero Gros was fifth at 1:27.10 and Liechtensteiner Andreas Wenzel was sixth at 1:27.15.

Stenmark, despite posting a typically blistering second run of 42.05, could only manage fourth place with a time of 1:26.76. It dashed his hopes of taking a record-equalling fourth World Cup crown. Gustav Thoen of Italy is the only skier to have collected four World Cup titles.

The quiet Swede is second overall with 135 points and can only score a maximum of 150 from the slalom and giant slalom disciplines unless he abandons his intention not to compete in downhill races.

Stenmark has suffered from the introduction of a new points system favoring the all-round skier.

Wyoming Cowboys liven race in WAC

By PETE HERRERA
United Press International

Wyoming coach Jim Brandenburg's game plan against Brigham Young University Saturday called for 40 minutes of "very hard, tenacious defense." Brandenburg's timing was off, but the Cowboys' effort wasn't.

Wyoming provided the rest of the Western Athletic Conference with a major assist by halting the Cougars' four-game winning streak in league play with a 71-69 overtime victory at Laramie.

Coupled with Utah's sweep on the Wyoming-Colorado swing, the Utes and Cougars are now tied for the league lead with 4-1 records. The two Utah powers have opened up some daylight on the rest of the field, with San Diego State moving into third place with a 2-2 record and Texas El Paso, defending champion New Mexico and Wyoming all at 2-3. Colorado State trails with a 1-4 record.

BYU, which had dumped Colorado State 98-83 on Thursday, watched a three-point lead disappear in regulation on a sparkling three-point play by Wyoming sophomore Charles Bradley.

Center Doug Bessert hit four free throws in the overtime before missing the front end of a one-and-one situation with 12 seconds left. That gave BYU one last shot at a tie, but a jumper by guard Scott Runia fell off the rim.

Utah, beaten by BYU on the Utes home floor last week, got back into the title picture by sweeping its first road trip in the WAC this year. The Utes, behind Dan Vranes' 25 points and Tom Chambers' 19, crushed Colorado State 96-75.

San Diego State, the league's first year member, picked up its first conference victories by downing New Mexico 78-72 on Thursday and UTEP 62-61 Saturday. The win over the Miners came on a 40-foot jumper by guard Tony Gwynn at the buzzer.

UTEP led throughout most of the game but missed an opportunity to pull out the victory when guard Earl Fuller missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw situation with 41 seconds left. The Aztecs worked for the final shot and Gwynn hit it. San Diego State is now 12-6 overall while UTEP drops to 10-8.

New Mexico, which had lost seven straight road games, stunned Nevada Las Vegas in a non-league game 102-99. The victory came on the Rebels' homecourt and gives the Lobos an 11-8. Junior center Larry Belin continued his torrid shooting streak, leading New Mexico with 29 points.

College basketball Top teams take tumble during weekend

By CATHERINE WOLF
UPI Sports Writer

The football ratings mean a lot, but the basketball ratings don't mean a thing," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith Saturday night after the second-ranked Tar Heels were upset by Clemson, 66-61. "I hope our guys know that."

Some other coaches may not agree but at least five of the top 10 teams are thinking about it after being upset by unranked opponents over the weekend.

Nike Dame's two-week reign atop the ratings was dealt a severe blow when Maryland's Larry Gillson sank what he called "just another foul shot" with one second remaining to complete a three-point play and give the Terrapins stunning 69-66 upset over the Fighting Irish.

The rest of the casualty list: fourth-rated Michigan State was stunned by Northwestern 83-85, No. 8 Illinois fell to Michigan 56-54, and No. 10 Louisiana State was surprised by Georgia 93-88.

"I wanted to shoot it as normal as possible," said Gillson, an 84 percent free throw shooter who endured two tense timeouts strategically called by Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps before shooting the crucial basket. "I wanted it to be like one of the 50 I shoot every day in practice."

Down by two with five seconds left to play, the Terrapins got the ball and worked to tie the score with the final shot. Greg Manning drove the left baseline and passed off underneath to Gillson, who scored as he was fouled by Irish center Bruce Flowers.

"The play worked perfectly, getting the ball to Manning and then to Gibson, that close to the basket," said Maryland Coach Lefty Tripucka. "But a three-point play? I couldn't plan something like that."

The Irish, whose only other loss this season was to Kentucky on Dec. 31, rallied from a 12-point deficit in the second half to take their only lead of the game with 2:08 left on a basket by Kelly Tripucka. Two free throws by Stan Wilcox gave the Irish a four-point lead 30 seconds later.

Ernest Graham paced Maryland, 12-5, with 28 points and Gibson added 11.

Bobby Conrad and David Poole hit two free throws each in the final seconds as Clemson upset North Carolina in an Atlantic Coast Conference match. Larry Nicks scored 21 points, including 13 in the first half as the Tigers, 12-5, took a 30-29 lead into intermission. Al Wood paced the Tar Heels, who never trailed by more than four points until the final second, with 23 points.

"We've been playing about 32 minutes of good basketball and tonight we played about 38-39 really good minutes of basketball," said Clemson Coach Bill Foster. "It was a heckuva win for us."

In other games involving the top 10 ranked teams, No. 3 Indiana State whipped Creighton 77-69, remain unbeaten in 18 games, No. 7 UCLA defeated Washington 86-81 and No. 9 Ohio State edged Indiana 66-63 in overtime.

Larry Bird, the nation's leading scorer, was held to a season-low 17 points but Indiana State beat Creighton for the second time in a week. Carl Nicks scored 16 for the Sycamores while Creighton's John Johnson tallied 20.

Led by Rod Roberson's 20 points, Northwestern reeled off 10 straight points at the start of the second half to upset Michigan St. for its first Big Ten victory in eight games: Spartan Earlvin Johnson led 28 points but Greg Kelsner was held to four points, 10 below his season average.

Forwards David Greenwood and Kiki Vandeweghe combined for 45 points to lead UCLA over Washington. Greenwood scored 24 points to become the Bruins' fifth-highest career scorer with 1,439 points, passing Sidney Wicks on the all-time points list. Vandeweghe equalled his career high with 21.

IOC wants to ban Radio Free Europe

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee is considering banning Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty from the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

The controversial issue over the two U.S.-funded radio stations which broadcast to Eastern Europe from West Germany will be high on the agenda when the IOC's nine-man executive board meets Monday and Tuesday at its headquarters beside Lake Geneva.

But Lord Killanin, the IOC president, made it clear both RFE and Radio Liberty were unlikely to be allowed any accredited journalists at the next Summer Games when he gave a news conference last week in Moscow.

"Basically, representation is decided on a participation basis and on the basis of how much correspondents report back to their own countries," Killanin said.

"I think it is important to stress that these stations are not broadcasting to countries to which they belong, or which they have been accredited for. They are broadcasting to countries which already have accredited representatives," Killanin said.

Although RFE and Radio Liberty were represented at the 1976 Montreal Games, their journalists had their accreditation revoked at the Innsbruck Winter Games earlier that year on a technically following a Soviet protest.

The Soviet Union has made clear it will not accept RFE or Radio Liberty journalists in Moscow because it does not regard them as true sports reporters.

How Model T bidding went sthal. As for grand slams I had a simple rule. He did not bid them. He said: "Modern experts claim there is no way to bid spades in any number of bidding sequences, but that Model T bidding you have shown there was short, simple and effective."

 Oswald: "Very few experts of that early day knew the correct way to play the heart suit. In fact, lots of today's players would go down at the slam. Not Hal! He drew trumps, cashed his ace of hearts, stripped the hand of clubs and diamonds, led a heart toward his hand and drew trumps with the queen. West took his king but he gave Hal a ruff and discard."
 Oswald: "I play what you bid. He was sure to make the slam if East held the heart king or if West held it singleton or guarded just once."

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Alan: "How about some hands that show the bidding by the best of the early contract players?"
 Oswald: "We didn't have much science in those early days. One of our problems was how to bid the jump from one to four was definite slam try. Opener could then guess about bidding six. The late Hal Sims was the greatest exponent of the 1-4-5

A Virginia reader asks if the grand slam bonuses have always been 1,000 net vulnerable and 1,500 vulnerable.
 No. From 1933 to 1935 they were raised to 1,500 and 2,500. This proved most successful.

Gritty grammatical dilemma not resolved by new movie

By JOAN MOWER
COLUMBIANA, S.C. (UPI) — Documentary filmmaker Stan Woodward admits his new film "It's Grits!" falls in one area — it never resolves the grammatical dilemma of whether "grits is good or grits are good."

What the 36-year-old South Carolina moviemaker's film does determine, however, is that Southerners love their grits with a passion that often is puzzling to their Northern friends.

When it comes to grits, Woodward's low-budget film leaves few stones unturned. Nearly every segment of society, from black children to stereotypical rednecks to illustrious New York Times food critic Craig Claiborne, is interviewed on the subject.

"I love grits soufflé, even Yankees love it," insists Claiborne as he prepares his delicacy in his New York kitchen.

Claiborne, one of the world's best-known cooking experts, grew up in Sunflower, Miss., where he said he developed his taste for the white, lumpy, corn-based food that "is routinely plunked on breakfast plates across the South."

But the film, which also explores the history and production of grits, proves conclusively the mushy substance is not just a breakfast food.

"You can eat grits anytime, for breakfast, lunch or dinner," says one "actor."

Woodward, who calls his film a "celebration of what I think the best of Southern culture is all about," wasn't content to let the people who know all about grits — those living south of the Mason-Dixon line — do all the talking.

So, he took his camera to the streets of Brooklyn where, among other things, he found a young man who told him: "Yea, grits. That's that Italian food isn't it!"

"It's Grits!" is a fast-paced, mouth-watering documentary accompanied by lively music.

In Columbia, where it has been shown only four times free of charge, it has drawn standing-room crowds.

Woodward, a native of Spartanburg who is the filmmaker in residence at the South Carolina Arts Commission, got the idea for the film three years ago while eating breakfast in his favorite diner — 1900 Block.

"I noticed that only about three people asked the waitress to hold the grits," said Woodward. In a fit of inspiration, he ran back to his office, grabbed a camera and returned to the restaurant.

"I was taken by the spontaneity of people who wanted to talk about grits," he said. "It was so fresh and exciting that it evolved into a much larger project."

With a little seed money from the commission and the help of the National Endowment of the Arts, Woodward began his search for the true meaning of grits.

He trekked to high-school football games, amusement parks, corn fields and restaurants, asking people how they felt about grits.

To help finance the project, Woodward took out some personal loans.

Antique sword brings $13,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 316-year-old Japanese infantry sword with the tested ability to cut through five human bodies in one blow was sold at auction for $13,000.

The sword is one of a handful of Japanese weapons with the five-body attestation engraved on its hilt. It was sold to an anonymous dealer.

In the days of the Japanese Samurai, military swords were tested on cadavers strung up in a row so warriors could cut through them at waist level.

The sword was one of a collection consigned to the Sotheby Parke Bernet galleries by Bumpel Usui of New York.

It was forged by the noted swordmaker Nagisa in 1663. The pre-sale gallery estimate of the sale price was $7,500 to $10,000.

New York dealer Leighton Longhy paid the top price in the sale — $13,500 — for another infantry sword attributed to the great Bitchu Sadatsugu.

Judge rules growling dog legal weapon

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — A state appeals court has ruled a dog can be an offensive weapon under New Jersey law.

The ruling was made by Appellate Division Judge Milton E. Conford, who reviewed the delinquency conviction of a juvenile identified only as J.R.

J.R. was found guilty of delinquency and assault with an offensive weapon — the dog he sicked on a man and his 6-year-old daughter in a park.

When J.R. ordered his dog, Rusty, to "sic 'im, sic 'im," the animal growled and menaced with its teeth, causing the two to cower, the court said.

J.R. challenged a lower court's finding, questioning whether Rusty could be considered an offensive weapon.

Conford, in his opinion, said state courts have called unloaded guns and starter pistols offensive weapons.

And he said the U.S. Supreme Court had found that a shoe can be an offensive weapon under the right circumstances.

Nude male sketch hangs anew

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A controversial sketch of a nude male that was removed last week from the hallway of the Erie County Legislature is going back on display.

Legislature Chairman Albert Abbot said lawmakers have "no choice" but to put the picture back in the hallway following a recommendation by the county's Board on Art and Culture in Public Places.

Board Chairman Larry Griffith said his group looked at the work and decided it should be displayed along with a drawing of three female figures among the collection of portraits and pastoral scenes.

"We don't feel these pictures are pornographic," Griffith said. "Nudes, both male and female, have been a proper subject for artists and viewing public down through the years."

The male sketch was removed last Thursday at the request of legislators Ronald Bennett and Michael Alessi.

Alessi had taped paper over part of the picture.

Meanwhile, women legislators and staff members had demanded that either the female sketch come down too or the male sketch go back up as an expression of sexual equality.
