

Pickup protest Thursday

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News writer

BUHL — They call themselves "Carter's Martyrs," and Thursday they'll drive their protest pickups through the Magic Valley.

The reference to martyrs by pickup leader Vernon Herzinger is a jab at President Carter's agricultural policies, which the Buhl farmer doesn't like.

To make his displeasure known, Herzinger will lead a pickup truck procession of unhappy farmers through 11 Magic Valley towns in a day-long protest Thursday. The pickup parade will roll down the protest path in support of the American Agricultural Movement's tractorcade, which is currently in Washington, D.C.

Herzinger would not estimate the size of his support.

Leaders of the Magic Valley "cade" are calling for many of the same things as the national group: 90 percent parity in farm prices, strict controls on agricultural imports, a ban on commodities futures trading and development of a gasohol industry in Idaho. To attract the attention of Idahoans, they've posted these demands on their pickup trucks, which they'll parade through main streets in Buhl, Filer, Twin Falls, Kimberly, Hansen, Jerome, Shoshone, Gooding, Wendell, Bliss and Hagerman Thursday.

The protesters say they are acting out of frustration about low farm profits and skyrocketing production costs. By taking to the streets, they want to let non-farmers know what bothers them about the state of agriculture.

"Farmers are usually retiring types," said Herzinger, who plastered both doors of his pickup with day-glo signs saying "Ban Futures."

"But if you get them mad enough to go back to Washington, you know something's wrong," he said. What's wrong, according to the potato grower who has been a member of the Idaho Farm Bureau since 1951, is that farm prices have fallen way below "parity," a yardstick which compares current farm prices to prices in the years from 1896 to 1914.

Herzinger said the protesters want 85 to 90 percent parity, a concept which he called the "minimum wage" of farming.

"Parity will guarantee us something," added his wife Betty Jean, a sympathizer of the AAM.

Herzinger feels farm prices "are no longer based on supply and demand," and instead have come under control of "speculators" and commodity speculators. To correct that situation, he supports an end to commodities futures trading.

Vernon Herzinger of Buhl, leader of the Magic Valley pickupcade

Herzinger said the pickupcade will also be demanding stricter government control over agricultural imports, especially sugar and beef. He feels such controls will stabilize farm prices. Herzinger and his brother Glenn organized last year's Magic Valley tractorcade, an event in which 250 tractors rolled along the streets. That was a last minute protest, organized only one day before it occurred.

This year, the veteran organizers have made more elaborate plans. With help from Pat Moore, a Castleford farmer, the brothers set up a phone network to inform farmers of the procession and to coordinate police escorts throughout the towns along the route.

What do the protesters hope to accomplish?

"We hope Congress will sit up and take notice," Herzinger said. He said he doesn't know how many local farmers will steer their pickups along with the march. If the turnout is strong, he'll consider further efforts.

If not, "I'll go back home and get ready to plant again next year," he said.

EDEN — The American Agriculture Movement's tractorcade is a "blackeye for agriculture," declared Jerome County Farm Bureau President Carl Montgomery Tuesday.

Although the farm bureau leader said he has no gripe about plans of local AAM supporters to stage a pickupcade in support of the national tractorcade Thursday, Montgomery said he doesn't "go along with what they're trying to accomplish."

"There's nothing wrong with that as far as trying to attract attention to farm prices," he said. But he called the goals of the national movement, which the pickupcade is supporting "unrealistic."

"They're asking for 90 percent parity. There's no way that can ever be achieved," the bureau leader said.

He called their demand for a strict curb on agricultural imports "inflexible" in light of the current international trade climate.

"We're always wanting to export our surpluses. We need to have some sort of reciprocal deal,"

Montgomery said. He said he'd like to see a "floating limit" established, so the U.S. can adjust import levels to current domestic crop availability.

About the American Agriculture Movement's demand for an end to commodity futures trading, Montgomery of Eden said the American Farm Bureau strongly supports the futures trading and believes it "reflects a need of the market system for transition of certain types of risk." The bureau has even called for an expansion of futures trading to other commodities.

Chinese impressions

By PATRICK OSTER
Chicago Sun-Times

SEATTLE — Pornographic movies, hot dogs, hamburgers, planned obsolescence, rodents and advertising were among the most vivid impressions made on Chinese reporters accompanying Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping on his U.S. tour.

"We were not prepared for what we saw," said a reporter attached to Hainhua, the official Chinese news agency, remarking on an X-rated movie he and his colleagues were able to see for $4.00 in their hotel room during the Houston portion of Teng's trip.

"We have strict censorship in our country. Not so long ago, we had only seven films that could be seen in all of China. We became bored with them — all Chinese. Now we have Charlie Chaplin's 'Modern Times' which must be 30 years old, and 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame.' We watched the classic version with Charles Laughton. But we got a new one with Gina Lollobrigida. She has become quite popular," the wry reporter said of the bosomy image Miss Lollobrigida conveys in that film.

Over a crab and salmon dinner at a restaurant on the outskirts of this city, a few reporters and officials of the Chinese foreign ministry also remarked on the fancy food they had been fed throughout their tour, particularly the frequency of expensive vegetable dishes.

"There is a lot of good American food — hot dogs, hamburgers and so on — but we never saw it," one reporter said. One meal that the reporters found memorable was the Texas-style barbecue offered them at an amateur rodeo they attended in Simonton, Tex.

"That was good," said one reporter, who added that he found the rodeo quite bizarre.

Reporters, who had been briefed on the sites of the United States before they came, were surprised at how little of them they actually saw. One had particularly been impressed by the images he saw of the Grand Canyon in a travelogue he viewed before coming here — and he regretted not being able to see it.

Having seen the modern nature of Japan's buildings (during Teng's recent trip to that country) the reporters were not awed by skyscrapers. But they did realize that they were seeing the growing, dynamic cities of the United States not the older ones. The reporters and others in the Chinese delegation had a lot of time to watch U.S. television in their hotel rooms. And, according to one Hsinhua journalist, they were struck by the frequent interruptions of programs by commercials.

"Every five minutes, the program stops," remarked one reporter, who noted that Chinese television, which is on only a few hours a day, has no commercials.

There followed a discussion of the pros and cons of advertising, with the Chinese noting that commercials just added to the cost of a product, while a few U.S. reporters made the point that ads also increased a business — and its workers — chances for profits.

The reporters also were impressed with Americans' penchant for buying

DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — Robert Lenaghan Tuesday called former staff members, who criticized him as Public Utilities Commission president, "prostitutes" attempting to perform a "hatchet job" through deliberate misstatements of fact.

Lenaghan also charged there had been a "well orchestrated campaign" to destroy his credibility, involving the paying and coaching of witnesses who appeared before the Senate State Affairs Committee Monday. Much of that effort was directed by former Republican gubernatorial candidate Vernon Ravenscroft, Lenaghan said.

Lenaghan's charges came in an interview Tuesday, following a marathon 12-hour confirmation hearing Monday before committee members. The Senate must confirm last month's re-appointment of Lenaghan by Gov. John Evans to a second six-year term on the PUC.

At the hearing, three former PUC employees — Gary Montgomery, Arthur Hadley and Kenneth D. Smith — charged Lenaghan with abuse of his powers while the PUC president. Montgomery and Hadley were subpoenaed before the committee while Smith sent a sworn affidavit from his home in Nevada.

According to the former staff members, Lenaghan:

• Encouraged them to lobby utility representatives in supporting higher PUC budgets and salaries.

• Criticized a staff member for notifying a fiscal analyst of a $60,000 budget error in favor of the PUC.

• Used a PUC car for private, unofficial uses.

• Caused high turnovers in staff through poor administration of the PUC.

Tuesday Lenaghan flatly denied all the charges.

"I absolutely didn't" order staff members to pressure utility representatives, Lenaghan said. "I never had even the slightest inclination."

About the budget error, Lenaghan said, "The incident never took place." Lenaghan said the PUC budget always contains a financial "cushion" in the event of an expensive consultant study is needed and that there was never a reason for the PUC to attempt to conceal funds.

Lenaghan also said his accusers were blaming him for problems over which he had no control. Most of the staff resignations they discussed, he said, occurred when he was not the PUC president. Only the president of the commission has control over personnel matters, Lenaghan said.

Education cited as reason

Idaho gonorrhoea rate among lowest in U.S.

BOISE (UPI) — A state epidemiologist said Tuesday improved venereal disease education is a prime reason why the gonorrhoea rate in Idaho during 1977 was one of the lowest in the U.S.

Dr. John Mather, a State Health and Welfare Department epidemiologist, said attempts to reach and educate the 17-to-30 age group during the past several years seems to be working. Mather made the comment after a U.S. Center for Disease Control report was released Tuesday indicating Idaho and Utah had two of the nation's lowest rates of gonorrhoea in 1977.

The study indicated Idaho had 216 cases per 100,000 people during the year. The lowest rate was 132.7 cases per 100,000 in New Hampshire and the highest was 1,356 per 100,000 people in Alaska.

"I can't be certain," Mather said, "but we've seen a decrease in Idaho in the last four or five years. We think this is due to the attempt we have made to reach the people most likely to get gonorrhoea — the 17 to 30 age group."

Mather said education involves explaining what the disease is, describing its symptoms, telling people what can be done about it, and recognizing that it's just another disease.

Mather said an important part of that education involves self-referral encouragement.

"We've been able to get people who have the disease to get ahold of their contacts and ask them to go in for medical care — diagnosis and treatment," he said. "Since the disease is a short-term one, this is probably occurring faster than we can keep track. There appears to be a great deal of self-referral."

Mather said the border migration to Idaho from metropolitan areas surrounding the state — including Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake City, and Los Angeles — may be keeping the rate of gonorrhoea higher than it should be. He cited syphilis as an example.

The Center for Disease Control said Idaho's syphilis rate during 1977 was 9 cases per 100,000 people.

The Chinese reporters have some good and bad views of the U.S. But they weren't given all of the America they wanted to sample foreign — particularly Japanese television sets, electronic goods and automobiles. "Americans used to be the preeminent car manufacturers in the world. Now it seems the Japanese have taken over," one visitor said. The Chinese also were amused by Americans' apparent desire to buy new cars. "It seems it is not fashionable to have a '78 car in 1979. There is so much waste. And all seems planned. Nobody wants to keep a car very long. On American muscle, the journalists said they found the black muscle of the Broadway show "Eubie," provided as part of a cultural show in Washington, D.C., very strange. "It was so animated," said one, "and the dancing too."

Occidental subsidiary tried to correct problems

WASHINGTON — Occidental Petroleum Corp's chemical subsidiary was trying with mixed success to correct hazardous waste disposal problems for a decade before federal and state authorities discovered health problems among people living near the dump sites, according to the company's internal documents.

Nearly 500 pages of memos, letters and other data about Occidental's problems in Niagara Falls, N.Y., provide a profile of how a chemical company tried to deal with its increasingly troublesome problem of disposing of organic waste materials.

The chemicals leached into the Niagara River, leaving a residue that was still poisoning fish years after the company had stopped manufacturing it. Children playing on ground in which chemicals were buried suffered burns that required medical treatment. A mysterious plume of smoke rose from the ground, apparently due to chemicals exposed to air. Paint on houses neighboring a dump is visibly stained in a matter of hours.

Vietnam criticized

TOKYO (UPI) — Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping said Wednesday Vietnam "must be punished" for its conquest of Cambodia, further raising fears that Peking may launch an attack against its communist neighbor.

"The Indochina question does not stop at being a bilateral matter between Vietnam and China," Teng was quoted as saying by Japanese officials. "It is a question on which the peace of the world depends. Vietnam must be punished for its actions."

Billy and the Libyans

WASHINGTON — Insisting he had heard no criticism from the president about his controversial dealings with a group of Libyan businessmen, Billy Carter has renewed his friendship with the 27-member Libyan People's delegation.

"The Libyans are the best I've got in the world, I think right now," Billy said Monday night at a gala reception given by the touring Libyans he had entertained recently in Georgia.

Ping pong ruling

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A town of Hamden employee who was hurt playing ping pong is entitled to workmen's compensation benefits, the Connecticut Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The worker, Richard A. McNamara, was employed by the town's public works department when he fell and severely injured his right ankle playing ping pong on April 15, 1975. He was playing just before he was to report to work.

Iranian joke?

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar Tuesday dismissed as a "joke" any rival Islamic government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and warned again he would "take any kind" any attempt to take power in Iran by force.

Tens of thousands of Khomeini supporters marched in the capital and cities throughout Iran and reports said they virtually had taken over the centers of Isfahan, Iran's No. 2 city, and the holy city of Qom.

Pickled brain

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A writer, claiming his brain had been pickled by beer, containing 3.2 percent alcohol, has filed a $2 million lawsuit against Coors Beer, the tavern owner who sold it to him.

Woodrow W. Bussey filed the suit Monday against the Adolph Coors Co. and tavern owner Adrian Lovett. Bussey claimed he has been a regular customer of the tavern since May 1978 and "consumed much Coors beer, which was supposedly non-intoxicating."

Youth service

WASHINGTON — A panel of prestigious Americans called Tuesday for "universal recruitment" of the nation's youth for voluntary public service.

A leader of the group said the United States should "call on the young to have them serve the nation in an intensive way for one year of their lives."

Moore speaks

ALDERSON, W.Va. (UPI) — Political extremist Sara Jane Moore said Tuesday she planned to get rid of the woman accomplice who joined her in a short-lived prison escape, even if it meant killing her fellow inmate.

Mrs. Moore, 48, a matronly radical serving a life term for trying to assassinate former President Gerald Ford five years ago, told reporters upon returning to the Federal Reformatory for Women she could not go through with the plan.

Commandment issue

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — Posting a general version of the Ten Commandments in Kentucky public school classrooms would compromise all religions, an attorney said Tuesday in arguing against a state law requiring they be displayed.

Attorney William Stone said the law passed last year "to be religiously and historically accurate, should probably require the full version of all Ten Commandments — the Jewish, Catholic, Protestant, whatever — not just the short versions."

GSA hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government witnesses said Tuesday the General Services Administration is wasting hundreds of millions of taxpayer dollars each year by failing to take full advantage of bulk-purchase discounts.

It is even possible for an individual consumer to get a better discount on a single item than the government gets by buying the item in volume, they told a Senate subcommittee on federal practices.

Deadly floods

BRASILIA, Brazil (UPI) — At least 200 people have died in rain-triggered floods ravaging central Brazil, another 200,000 are homeless and virtually all ground links between northern and southern Brazil cut off, government officials reported Tuesday.

Outbreaks of typhoid and food riots were reported in the stricken area.

Psychic scores

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Psychic M. Kathryn Rhea has helped Northern California authorities locate a body for the second time in less than a week.

The body of Victoria De Santiago, 36, was found Monday night in a remote area of Eastern Fresno.

Sixth grade terrorism

MARIANNA, Fla. (UPI) — Two 11-year-old boys, one armed with a pistol and the other with a hunting knife, grabbed a schoolgirl as hostage and tried to take over their sixth grade classroom in what police said Tuesday was a bid to get their names in the newspapers.

They were quickly overpowered by their teacher and five classmates and later charged with aggravated assault.

The time referred to by Mr. Smith, Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Hadley was under the presidency of Mr. (Karl) Sturtilitt," he said.

Lenaghan also denied he had used a state car for private purposes. "A commissioner's time belongs to the state of Idaho 24 hours a day," he said, adding he was called on to perform many official duties after normal working hours. His use of PUC autos had been limited to those duties, he said.

The PUC president charged Ravenscroft of futility with coaching the witnesses against him. Ravenscroft "rounded them up, subpoenaed them, and sat there with a previously formed list of questions," Lenaghan said. It was "obvious," he added, that Ravenscroft "paid and recruited witnesses; he admitted it."

"I'm always surprised when I see people prostitute themselves in this manner," Lenaghan said. "Mr. Smith, Montgomery and Hadley, by deliberately misinforming, are prostitutes before the committee by the way they handled it."

Late in Monday's testimony, Ravenscroft acknowledged he had paid a witness who appeared before the committee. Ravenscroft told the Times-News his private consulting and lobbying firm had been retained by several independent contractors, irrigators and truckers who opposed Lenaghan's confirmation. To help present the testimony against Lenaghan, Ravenscroft said, he brought to Idaho Mike McHugh, a Washington State energy expert. McHugh was paid a $300 honorarium to testify, Ravenscroft said.

Also on Tuesday, the Idaho State Journal newspaper said it had discovered lists of prepared questions and follow-up questions which were put to Lenaghan opponents at the hearing.

Tuesday, Ravenscroft acknowledged he had distributed the questions, but denied he "coached" the two former staff members who presented the testimony.

Pension proposal supported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration Tuesday gave hesitant support for legislation to provide better protection for spouses of workers who die before retirement, and a tax break to companies that initiate pension plans.

The surviving spouse of a participant of many years of service who dies prior to reaching retirement age can lose all benefits.

"This primarily affects widows between the ages of 45 and 60, many of whom have little work experience and very limited," if any, sources of income," he said.

The testimony came on the first of three days of hearings on a bill sponsored by Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., to overhaul the 1974 Employee Retirement Income Security Act.

That law placed under federal supervision about 500 million pension plans and over a billion welfare benefit plans. An estimated 40 million Americans — about half the workers in the private sector — are covered by such plans.

The new bill would consolidate administration of ERISA in a commission instead of being scattered in the Labor Department, Internal Revenue Service and Pension Benefits Guaranty Corporation; provide tax credits for employers who start new plans and tax deductions for those who pay into a company plan or contribute to an individual retirement account, and improve pensions for a surviving spouse.

Juror in the Flood case had inside information

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During jury deliberations in the trial of Rep. Daniel J. Flood, the lone juror holding out for acquittal told the others of information he said he had received from a "confidential source" outside the courtroom. The trial judge said Tuesday that the episode was unprecedented in his almost 50 years of legal practice.

The juror reportedly said later that he had made up his statement, which was "damaging to three prosecution witnesses, and that it was only a joke. People involved in the case said that the information had no apparent basis in fact."

term Democratic congressman from Pennsylvania. A juror later said the deadlock had arisen from a single colleague's refusal to vote for conviction of a man as old as Flood, who is 75.

The holdout, who was identified as William Cash, also reportedly met privately with the jury foreman in the jurors' bathroom. They came out with the offer of a "deal" in which the holdout would go along with a guilty verdict on one of the counts if the other jurors would vote for acquittal on the other 10.

Candidates' paper mountain keeps growing

By MILES BENSON
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The blizzard of '79 has hit the Federal Election Commission — a paper blizzard dumped on the agency by an ever-growing list of candidates running for president in 1980.

Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.) says he'll add his own flurry of documents this week becoming the 34th candidate to file with the FEC, which will begin distributing federal campaign funds to qualified candidates next January.

Few of the candidates will be able to raise $5,000 in 1978 or less contributions in each of 20 states as required to qualify for federal matching funds. Most of the "candidates" are political unknowns who filed for the fun of it and may never be heard from again. Some 270 people filed as candidates in the 1976 presidential race.

But for the serious candidates like Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, Rep. John Anderson (R-Ill.), John Connally and George Bush of Texas — and now Dole, who is forming a "Dole for President Exploratory Committee" — the initial paperwork is only the beginning of a long series of reporting requirements. There will be annual reports, quarterly reports, monthly reports and special reports.

Ronald Reagan, the former governor of California who is the acknowledged early front-runner for the 1980 GOP nomination, has not filed as a candidate with the FEC. On a recent visit to Washington, Reagan included the FEC among the government regulators he claims are strangling the nation in red tape.

"Our political action committee created with surplus funds from our last campaign has two lawyers and a public accountant on retainer — that's one quarter of the full staff required to comply with the paperwork required by the FEC," Reagan told a business group.

This year, in addition to the initial reports required from candidates and their campaign committees, White House aspirants must provide quarterly reports of contributions and expenditures, plus a year-end report due Jan. 31, 1980.

In 1980, the candidates will be required to file monthly reports on contributions and expenditures plus a special report 70 days before the election, another one 30 days after the election, and a final year-end report on Jan. 31, 1981.

And that won't be the end of it. FEC lawyers, accountants and clerks are likely to be shoveling their way through the '79 paper for several years to come.

The agency still is conducting audits on the financial reports of several candidates who ran in 1978, including the winner, Jimmy Carter.

Farmers set an old tractor on fire on the Mall near the U.S. Capitol during second day of protest

Farmers protest, then herded back

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police opened barricades around a farmers' protest encampment Tuesday long enough for a convoy of tractors to stage a lumbering demonstration around the White House but herded them back before they could cause rush hour chaos.

Farm spokesmen made the short trip up Capitol Hill to present their demands to congressional leaders. Others boomed Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland when he appeared at a House committee hearing.

About 135 tractors out of the estimated 1,400 heavy farm vehicles penned by police barricades in the mile-long Mall between the Capitol and the Washington Monument joined the mid-afternoon parade.

Under terms of an agreement negotiated between leaders of the American Agriculture Movement and D.C. and National Park Police, the tractors had to be back in the Mall encampment by 5 p.m.

There were no serious incidents and traffic was disrupted only briefly.

On Monday, the first day of the AAM demonstration for higher crop support prices, 20 farmers were arrested, mostly on disorderly conduct charges. And morning rush hour traffic was backed up as far as 12 miles by the tractors entering the city.

The White House parade was good-tempered, with farmers and their families riding in the scoop of a backhoe and on the cab roofs, playing guitars and waving flags.

The tractors were plastered with signs such as "Dump Carter," "Peace, Hope, Fairly" and "Cows may Come and Cows may Go, but USDA (Agriculture Department) Bull goes on Forever."

Police removed only one bus from their barricade of the Mall area, between the Washington Monument and the Capitol, to let the tractors through.

Other buses, garbage and tow trucks and police vans remained bumper-to-bumper at all exits to prevent a repetition of Monday's epic traffic snarl.

Several dozen farmers listened quietly as Bergland discussed American farm exports before the House Foreign Affairs Committee but some boomed him as he left the hearing room.

Bergland told reporters told he felt many of the farmers faced real financial problems but some were "driven by greed."

On the Mall itself, restless farmers raced other tractors up and down the road, overturning one. Another knocked down a tire hydrant opposite the Agriculture Department, releasing a gushing torrent until firemen were able to shut off a major water main.

About 2,000 of the farmers rallied at the West Front of the Capitol to hear Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson and farm state congressmen praise their demonstration and support their price demands.

Jackson called for a "new political coalition" between farmers and the underprivileged, because those unable to make it on the farms move to urban centers which cannot provide for them.

Rep. Bo Ginn, D-Ga., referring to last week's visit by Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping, told the farmers "You are a helluva lot more welcome here than a bunch of Chinese, Communists."

Farm leaders called on the crowd to attend Wednesday's appearance by Bergland before the House Agriculture Committee, which moved its hearing to the Big Ways and Means chamber to accommodate the expected throng.

The permission for the White House demonstration was worked out in an hours-long session between by D.C. and National Park Police and about 40 "wagonmasters" of the protest.

Economist has amendment idea

By JAMES E. ROPER
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Economist Alan Greenspan has proposed a constitutional amendment to require a two-thirds vote in each house of Congress for passage of any appropriations bill.

Only in that way, he says, can Congress be kept from spending too much money. But Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) says it would "lasso and hog" Congress.

Greenspan, who was a member and chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents Nixon and Ford, testified Tuesday before the Senate-House Joint Economic Committee, which is studying the Carter administration budget for fiscal 1980.

Advocating more budget restraint than President Carter has shown,

Greenspan said: "We would not be terribly far off" to project a certain amount of over-spending for each day that Congress is in session. These expenditures, he said, are just as uncontrollable as other government outlays that are labeled uncontrollable.

"We can probably resolve the outlay growth problem by requiring that all budget authority, appropriations and expenditure bills be passed by two-thirds, rather than a simple majority, of both houses and signed by the president," Greenspan said.

"A presidential veto in that case would merely require that the two-thirds vote be reaffirmed."

Greenspan said after the hearing that he had studied the problems of politics and spending for a long time and finally reached the conclusion that the best way of discouraging spending would be the two-thirds rule rather than any of the current proposals to limit Congress's power to tax or spend or run budget deficits.

Under the two-thirds rule, he said, Congress would have power to respond quickly to emergency conditions that could not be anticipated in the other proposals to impose budget restraint.

The Greenspan proposal got a hostile reception from Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, who was presiding at the Joint Economic Committee session.

He demanded to know why Greenspan wanted to "lasso and hog" Congress when in 24 out of the last 25 years, Congress had cut White House budget proposals.

Speed bill near death in Wyoming

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee, which voted Monday to shelve a bill to raise Wyoming's speed limit to 65 mph until the current legislative session is over, voted Tuesday to effectively kill the bill by making it more difficult for supporters to revive the measure.

The committee's decision to "indefinitely postpone" the bill late Monday was changed Tuesday to "do not pass," House Speaker Wayne Morton of Natrona County said.

Backers of the bill still can have it referred to a friendlier committee with a simple majority vote of the House, but it will take a two-thirds majority for the bill to go directly to the House floor for debate.

Under Monday's decision by the committee, it would have taken a simple majority to have the bill sent to the floor for debate.

Monday's vote was criticized by the lawmaker who was the chief supporter of the bill in the Senate, Big Horn County Republican Sen. Cal Taggart.

Proxmire favored a bill he introduced Monday to require a balanced federal budget whenever real growth in the national economy was 3 percent or more. "Below that," Proxmire said, "we'd have a budget deficit and a stimulative effect."

Exceptions could be allowed during times of military emergency, Proxmire said.

Greenspan replied that Proxmire's approach no doubt would significantly improve chances of controlling inflation, but said he still liked his own plan better.

Few signs yet

Kahn says Americans accepting guidelines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The leader in President Carter's fight against inflation said Tuesday Americans are showing "impressive" acceptance of the wage-price guidelines, but inflation probably will not show the effects until summer.

"It is obvious to me that both management and labor are taking the standards seriously, and are making strenuous efforts to reach settlements in compliance with them," said Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

In testimony to the economic stabilization subcommittee of the House Banking Committee, Kahn said of the 500 biggest companies sent letters by Carter to ask for their compliance, more than 200 have said "they intend to comply with the price standard."

"It is abundantly clear that people all over this country are taking the president's program seriously — very seriously," he said.

He said inflationary pressures of recent months may be slow to abate.

"There is still some bad news ahead, just generally," he said, "because of the accumulation of past effects. I expect to see by late spring or the summer ... some evidence of deceleration."

America remains divided on China policy

By HENRY S. BRADSHER
Washington Star

SEATTLE — The visit by Teng Hsiao-ping to the United States has turned "only part" of the Carter administration's hopes for new governmental understanding with China and new public appreciation of that country.

It has left Americans still divided over the wisdom of close friendship with the large Communist country. The vice premier's tour produced a mixture of euphoria over closer relations with 1 billion Chinese and skepticism about China's intentions and motives in its overtures toward this country.

The ambivalence was strongest among American businessmen. That generally conservative community has been torn between a desire for the increased trade that China now wants to have and a reluctance to deal with the Communist regime.

But the administration could be satisfied that the subject of greatest public concern when normal relations with China were announced Dec. 15 seemed to fade away. That was concern whether China would try to capture Taiwan once the U.S. defense treaty with Taiwan ends at the end of this year. After Teng spent an afternoon on Capitol Hill turning away questions about Taiwan with soft answers, the subject seldom came up again.

The administration hope that Teng would go easy on the Soviet Union while in the United States was unfulfilled.

U.S. officials had let Teng know in advance that they would not appreciate having American platforms used to complicate relations between Washington and Moscow. But Teng did it anyway, not only answering questions with calls for understanding and common actions to oppose the Soviets but also putting his anti-hegemony line into prepared speeches.

In the third key area of U.S. sensitivity before Teng arrived, the vice premier was leaving Monday with the administration still uncertain what to expect on the China-Vietnam border.

Teng gave President Carter no inkling of whether China might use its military buildup on the border to attack Vietnam in realization for Hanoi's invasion of Cambodia. Carter made it clear to Teng that he thought any widening of the skirmishes that have been occurring on that border would be unwise and might cause Soviet counteraction.

Having failed to get any feeling that it was exerting a restraining influence on Peking, the administration is now condemned to wait nervously to see what happens next in Indochina. Its only possible action is to make it publicly clear that any attack on Vietnam did not receive Carter's blessing.

Because of the recent friendship treaty between Vietnam and the Soviet Union, any Chinese action in Indochina might complicate the Moscow-Peking-Washington triangle, but Teng's visit left that triangle knocked lopsided enough already. While Carter wanted to balance the longstanding U.S. working relationship with Moscow by establishing normal contacts with Peking, Teng sought to pull the United States off balance in China's direction.

The administration denied that it was tilting, but the Soviet Union was quick to complain. There was some feeling in both Moscow and Washington, however, that the situation would naturally right itself in time.

By avoiding any endorsement of Teng's more hostile comments about the Soviets, U.S. officials hoped the comments would be seen as purely one-sided and quickly forgotten as factors in the superpower relationship. And even the Kremlin's leading specialist on relations with the United States, Georgy Arbatov, commented that he did not expect the U.S. euphoria over normalization to last long.

Teng's anti-Soviet line was emotionally awkward for a lot of Americans.

His message coincided with a current now running in the country of growing concern about the Soviet military buildup. It agreed with and reinforced worries about Soviet activities in Africa and other parts of the world.

It was, therefore, readily received by many Americans, except for a gnawing distrust of its source, China, a country that the U.S. public had been encouraged by its leaders to hate and fear from the Korean War, through the U.S. plunge into Vietnam, did not seem the right source for such a message.

A taxi driver in Houston expressed this mood while Teng was visiting there. "He's got a Russian problem and he wants us to help him out," the driver commented suspiciously about Teng's warnings of hegemonism.

The administration, especially national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, had wanted to normalize relations in order to obtain some leverage on Moscow. The idea of playing "the China card" was to force the Kremlin into realizing that it had to be more evenhanded with a United States that also is friendly with a potentially major power on the Soviet border.

Teng's statements seemed intended to turn the visit into his playing of "the America card" against the Soviets. The administration did not want to play, and many Americans were skeptical.

This skepticism did not stop Teng from receiving friendly receptions in some places to offset the pro-Taiwan demonstrators — and the Maoist minority that accused him of betraying the true Chinese version of communism.

But there were few public displays of warmth toward the vice premier. And none of the cities that he visited presented him with symbolic keys for fear of antagonizing some of their citizens.

Houston's Mayor Jim McConn gave Teng a $240 pair of Texas spurs. But his city has friendly ties with Taiwan's capital, so he refused to give the visitor a key to Houston, which costs $3 cents.

Punk rock: May it rest in peace

When punk rock star Sid Vicious died from a heroin overdose a few days ago, the un-Christian but commonly heard epitaph spoken for him was, "he got what he deserved."

Vicious, the non-talented bass player of the Sex Pistols punk rock band, died the very day he was freed on bail from second degree murder charges stemming from the stabbing death of his girlfriend.

Let us hope the death of Sid Vicious also entombs that uncouth mutation of music built on the punk rock craze.

Neither Sid Vicious nor punk rock should have achieved the notoriety they did.

There is nothing noble about being doped out, violent, or untalented.

Yet these were the only attributes Vicious and the Sex Pistols brought to the stage.

They gained notoriety for sticking pins through their cheeks, vomiting on their audiences and playing elementary three-chord music.

On top of that, Vicious made headlines on his own by stabbing his girlfriend with a hunting knife and killing her.

Punk rock was bad news. It was violent, drug-dependent, seedy.

Much of rock music is good news. The music has helped raise two generations of American teen-agers. Bands like the Bee Gees, Boston, and others have given America music to dance to in the 1970s.

Rock is too good to have its name ruined by the likes of Sid Vicious.

His death, thankfully, may be the final blow to the aberration known as punk rock.

Still no answer in Rhodesia

The white 4 per cent of Rhodesia's population last week approved a constitution that would give the black 96 per cent limited self-rule after a new government is elected April 20.

But that doesn't mean the country's white supremacists have been reformed.

Nor does it mean the despair over Rhodesia's future has been lifted.

Whites will retain 28 per cent of the seats in parliament and a proportional number of cabinet ministries. Beyond that, the constitution was crafted subtly and at length to keep the reins of the Rhodesian system in white hands indefinitely.

As of the despair; 12,000 guerrillas of the black Patriotic Front, which will have nothing to do with the new constitution or the government — it authorizes — roam the land, continually escalating the racial bloodletting that began 10 years ago. Rhodesians — blacks mostly — are dying in that war at the rate of 500 a month.

Prime Minister Ian D. Smith sold his constitution to whites on the hope that it might lead to U.S. recognition and the lifting of trade sanctions, which have helped bring Rhodesia's economy to its knees. But even he gave these hopes only a 50-50 chance.

Conservatives in Congress can be expected to press for such concessions, but the Carter administration will have its back up. It has been building its new African policy on a foundation of black nationalism in opposition to white supremacy in southern Africa. This policy would fall into ruins with concessions to a regime designed by Smith, who rose to political prominence on white-supremacist convictions.

Dick Clark, former Democratic senator from Iowa, wrote recently in the New York Times: "A sanctions-lifting vote could seriously erode if not fatally discredit the entirety of Carter's African policy, shattering African expectations of America's commitment to racial justice."

And it would do so without the likelihood of saving Smith's kind of Rhodesia. That Rhodesia began to die decades ago in the stone hearts of the 4 per cent.

Olympic seal can be bought

and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON — With the advent of the 1980 Olympic Games, the prestigious seal of approval carrying the legend, "Selected for Use by the U.S. Olympic Committee," will soon appear on dozens of items in supermarkets and department stores.

Notwithstanding that — deceptive endorsement, this country's Olympic athletes do not necessarily use any of the food, toiletries, clothing, sports equipment or other merchandise that carries that sponsor's symbol.

The Federal Trade Commission has discovered that marketers of various products purchase the right to use the official seal by making a "substantial contribution" — typically ranging from $50,000 to $500,000 — to the U.S. Olympic committee.

That revelation is contained in a "research" FTC staff report on the little-known but highly influential organizations that develop quality, safety and performance standards for products or certify that the products meet those standards.

Although it engages in a questionable "certification activity" for millions of dollars, the U.S. Olympic committee isn't truly a certification group because its principal interests lie elsewhere.

A typical certification organization — probably the best known to retail consumers — is Underwriters Laboratories, whose "UL" symbol of safety and quality appears on hundreds of electrical appliances ranging from kitchen blenders to oil furnaces.

In the 1960s, UL certified aluminum as a safe replacement for copper in home wiring. Although there now is considerable evidence that aluminum might pose a serious fire hazard, "at no time did the UL standards state or require disclosure of the hazards," says the recently released FTC report.

Approximately 20,000 standards, affecting the design and performance of everything from light bulbs to turbine generators, have been promulgated by more than 400 professional societies, trade associations and other standard-setting organizations.

Dominating the field are two organizations: The American National Standards Institute, responsible for almost 6,500 standards, and the American Society for Testing and Materials, which accounts for more than 6,200 standards.

Consumer representation in the standard-setting process usually is either nominal or nonexistent, with organizational leadership invariably drawn from the same major corporations that produce many of the products being evaluated.

The new FTC report says that 60 percent of ANSI's officers and directors are employed by producers (including such corporate giants as Exxon, General Motors, AT&T, IBM and Du Pont) while 40 percent of ASTM's directors are affiliated with marketers.

One striking example in the report involves the Illuminating Engineering Society, which establishes standards for lighting levels in schools, stores, factories and other public facilities.

Approximately two-thirds of the IES board of directors is composed of representatives of lamp and fixture manufacturers or public utilities, according to the FTC staff.

Increased lighting levels obviously produce higher consumption of the products sold by those two industries — fixtures and electricity. To nobody's surprise, the FTC report cites evidence that IES lighting requirements often exceed levels necessary for adequate vision.

Finally, the dominance of old-line, established corporations tends to perpetuate existing technology, to the detriment of new, small, innovative manufacturers whose advance products could threaten the market dominance of the bigger firms.

"In extreme cases, the standards forum has become little more than a playground for special interests," says the FTC staff in proposing needed new regulations that would open standard-setting proceedings to consumers, small businesses, and others who long have been underrepresented.

Hearings on the proposal are to be held this spring in San Francisco and Washington. The FTC has recently become an activist agency, aggressively pursuing a variety of consumer interests — but none is more important than this issue.

Carters benefitted from a sweetheart audit

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service, charged by its own manual of procedures with the mandatory auditing of every president's tax returns, appears to have been lying down on the job in the case of the Carter family businesses.

On June 7, 1978, John Henderson, IRS district director in Atlanta, sent the Carters the A-OK examination report prepared by local agent William Balastini. That meant that the investment tax credit Jimmy Carter had claimed on what he swore was $1 million in personal selling and warehousing facilities was approved — which saved the Carters over $60,000 in cash and wiped out their personal tax liability for three years.

But since that time, some information has been coming to light about that loan the Carters received from Bert Lance's bank. According to statements made to Jeff Gribb of The New York Times by officials of the construction company that built the warehouse, and verified by the president's brother-parasite, only about $700,000 was used for the new shelter and warehouse. That left some $300,000 unaccounted for.

Where did that money go? If any portion of it was diverted from the stated purpose of investment in plant to some other purpose — whether indirectly funding a political campaign, which the White House denies; or any other purpose — then that might not only have broken election laws but may have been construed as income, subject to tax.

On the other hand, if — as Billy Carter stated — "the $300,000 surplus was shifted to the peanut commodity account," then a claim of an investment tax credit for that portion of the money would be improper, and if done intentionally, would be tax fraud.

Something else we have learned, from a recent report forced out of the National Bank of Georgia by the Controller of the Currency and the Securities and Exchange Commission: In 1975 and 1976, as Jimmy Carter's presidential campaign hungers for money, Bert Lance appears to have made it possible for the Carter family business to have $225,000 cash on hand while it was delinquent on $600,000 in debts to the bank.

Another item, courtesy of The Los Angeles Times: In early 1977, the president's business partner, who refused to answer grand jury questions on finances on ground of self-incrimination, borrowed $148,900 from Carter Farms, Inc., of which 91 percent is owned by Jimmy Carter. Billy Carter then borrowed an additional $150,000 from other sources.

Why? On whose behalf?

In his refusal to answer questions about Carter finances, Press Secretary Joseph L. Powell cites the president's lack of interest in his own business during the campaign; nor can he locate the letters from banker Lance accommodating Carter of his demand for preferential interest rates. The press secretary always reminds frustrated questioners: The IRS audited the returns, so all must be well.

But someone intimately familiar with internal IRS procedures tells me that the figures made public so far fall to show: (a) how much money was actually spent on facilities eligible for investment credit; (b) whether sufficient third-party double-checking was done, as in any proper audit; and (c) what, if any, cash diversions took place and for how long. On the basis of telephone interviews with District Director Henderson and tight-lipped Atlanta chief examiner Myron Jolkovsky, I suspect that the audit on which Carter leans so hard falls short of what the manual mandates.

Since the IRS cannot investigate itself, and since the Lance grand jury has not asked the IRS in Atlanta for retained workpapers, responsibility for investigating the sweetheart audit now rests with the newly constituted bipartisan Joint Committee on Taxation, Rep. Al Ullman, chairman; Sen. Russell Long, co-chairman.

Maybe Jimmy Carter knew nothing of the details of his own business, including a total of $7 million in loans; maybe his partner-brother has no reason for taking the Fifth Amendment; maybe the pattern of evasion by Kirby and Powell are just for practice; maybe no misfeasance exists in the IRS Atlanta office. And maybe not.

Let's find out, and thus remove a question mark that hangs above the finances of Carter and the integrity of our tax collectors. The able congressional staffers who conducted the most recent presidential review audit — Bernard Shopin, and Mark McConaghy — are still available to the committee. Let them pull the Carter personal and business returns from 1973 to 1977, plus the IRS transmittal letters and underlying workpapers to see what was done and not done in the mandated audit. Let them follow the money trail wherever it leads.

Only the Joint Committee can be fair to both the public interest and taxpayer privacy. President Carter, if he has nothing to hide, should welcome this chance to affirm the personal honesty of his family, his closest associates, and himself.

Teng stops for chat with Japanese leader

By MASASHI KURAMITSU
 TOKYO (UPI) — Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, on his way home from his historic visit to the United States, met with Japanese Premier Masayoshi Ohira Tuesday to try to enlist Japan's support in Peking's anti-Soviet campaign.

During his American tour Teng called for an alliance between the United States, Japan, China and Western European nations to oppose the Soviet Union.

Japanese sources said that Ohira told the 75-year-old Teng during their 90-minute talk that Japan's diplomatic policy calls for promoting friendly ties with all nations.

"Japan's basic foreign policy is designed to develop balanced relations with China and the Soviet Union and all other nations," one official said.

The sources said Teng also is expected to seek Japan's support for the overthrown Cambodian government of Premier Pol Pot which is fighting Soviet-backed and Vietnamese-led Cambodian forces.

Japan denounced the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia and stopped millions in aid it had pledged to Hanoi in fiscal 1979.

Nevertheless, Tokyo is reluctant to become involved in the Sino-Vietnamese dispute, government sources said.

Teng appeared cheerful when he stepped from the plane upon his arrival from Seattle, Wash., but because of fatigue and a cold he caught in the United States he asked to be excused from a dinner prepared in his honor by Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda.

Japanese officials said the dinner will be held as scheduled with Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua attending.

After meeting with Ohira, Teng was scheduled to call on former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, who is on trial on a charge of receiving a $1.67 million bribe from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. while he was in office. Tanaka restored diplomatic relations between Japan and China in 1972.

Teng is also scheduled to visit former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda, who stepped down in December after losing to Ohira in an election for the presidency of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party.

Taiwan issue still cloudy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "keep Taiwan safe" movement has numerous backers in Congress ranging from Barry Goldwater to Edward Kennedy, but it was clear Tuesday there were "fundamental" disagreements over how to handle the issue.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, illustrated the problem during a hearing on the administration's Taiwan legislation.

Church said he personally wants Congress to make a "clear expression" of its concern about the future of Taiwan, but indicated that other proposed resolutions would commit the United States to a stronger defense of the island than it has under the soon-to-end mutual defense treaty.

He cited a resolution offered by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., which he said would have the United States "take whatever action may be necessary to preserve the independence and freedom of the government of Taiwan."

Church said the 1954 American treaty with Taiwan says only that if Taiwan is attacked, the United States would decide on appropriate action, then take the matter to the United Nations.

The approaches taken by Sens. Kennedy and Goldwater — both of whom favor resolutions in support of Taiwan — also differ widely.

Goldwater, R-Ariz., urged "a strong defense commitment," and said Congress should approve legislation stating "that the United States will oppose aggression by communist China against the government and people of Taiwan."

Kennedy, D-Mass., said any congressional action should be limited to showing "our continuing interest in the peaceful resolution of the Taiwan issue."

He said the resolution he and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., are sponsoring would not "commit our country to specific actions under hypothetical circumstances — a policy which successive presidents and Congresses have wisely refused to adopt."

Kennedy said a threat to Taiwan from China was "unlikely."

Cranston said the agreements reached between Carter and the Chinese leaders "include adequate assurances about the future of Taiwan."

Vietnam issued indirect warning

By HELEN THOMAS
 UPI White House Reporter
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Tuesday issued an indirect warning to Vietnam that the United States is committed to keeping Thailand secure from foreign invasion.

Carter reaffirmed U.S. interest in the security of its old Asian ally, menaced by Vietnam's invasion of neighboring Cambodia, in welcoming Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan to Washington for two days of talks.

In private talks following the greeting ceremony, Carter promised Kriangsak he would seek congressional approval to transfer to Thailand $1.5 million worth of small arms ammunition and artillery shells left over from Vietnam war stocks, a White House spokesman said.

He said the president also pledged the United States would "strengthen our security position in Asia and that of our allies" through similar efforts to improve the military readiness of allied forces.

"Our nation is intensely interested in preserving the integrity and freedom and security of Thailand and (seeing) that you brothers stay invited," Carter told Kriangsak at a welcoming ceremony on the White House South Lawn.

"And, as you well know, the bilateral commitment and multilateral commitments made in the Manila Pact are the basis for our security agreements with you and your people."

The 1954 Manila Pact created the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization, originated by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as a defensive alliance aimed chiefly at Chinese and Soviet aggression in the Cold War era.

"It creates a vague pledge among signatories to consult and act jointly to fend off aggression, but it does not contain any irrevocable, automatic requirement to commit troops to that endeavor."

Although Carter did not mention Vietnam by name, Thailand's chief security concern is the Vietnamese troops reportedly massed near its eastern borders, inside Cambodia, in the aftermath of Hanoi's overthrow of Cambodia's Chinese-backed Communist regime.

Some security analysts fear the Vietnamese drive to mop up Cambodian resistance will carry over into Thai territory, and Carter's frame of reference was obvious.

"You come at a very important time when you are again witnessing conflict at your very shores and borders," he said.

"Following the visit of Vice Premier Teng (Hsiao-ping) of the Peoples Republic of China, our conversations will be very important to me."

He and Kriangsak conferred for about 90 minutes just after the late-morning welcoming ceremony.

Officials said they expected Kriangsak to ask for sophisticated U.S. weaponry, including planes and tactical missiles, and U.S. help in restocking the estimated 140,000 Vietnamese "Boat People" who have poured into Thailand seeking sanctuary.

A course in warfare on the air

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The exile radio of the fallen Khmer Rouge Cambodian regime said Tuesday it will begin broadcasting an educational course on guerrilla warfare to teach loyalist listeners how to kill Vietnamese.

The one-hour, daily course on guerrilla warfare is scheduled to begin Wednesday, from 7 to 8 p.m. local time each evening. Presumably, troops will be expected to apply their lessons later in the night.

Last weekend, the radio — which beams its broadcasts into Cambodia from China — instructed its loyalist listeners to "kill three or four Vietnamese a day, or better still a dozen," in order to drive out the Vietnam invasion force now controlling Cambodia.

The Tuesday broadcast monitored in Bangkok said "compatriots and friends are invited to listen" to the guerrilla warfare course.

The Khmer Rouge radio also claimed new battlefield successes in Tuesday's broadcast, but also conceded some setbacks.

"It claimed loyalists killed 163 Vietnamese in a series of battles late last week. The locations of the battles were in areas the loyalists had earlier claimed they fully controlled."

In a telegram sent to the United Nations, Teng Sary, former foreign minister of the fallen Khmer Rouge regime in Cambodia, said Khmer Rouge forces had killed 10,000 Vietnamese and pro-Hanoi Cambodians in fighting for control of the Indochinese nation since the Vietnamese invasion last Christmas.

Taking one cancer at a time

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Fourteen-year-old Michael Southerland of Miami, Fla., whose younger brother died of leukemia, whose older brother had a leg amputated because of cancer and whose father had a cancerous brain tumor removed, is scheduled to have his fifth cancer operation today.

"We take one cancer at a time," said Michael's mother, Sarah Jane, when asked at Children's Hospital how the family was able to stand up to their troubles. "If another (cancer) comes, we figure that will be the last one."

Michael had a cancerous tumor removed from his back at Children's Hospital in his fourth cancer operation last week. Now, a different type of cancer has been found in one of his vertebra and the vertebra is to be removed from his spine Wednesday. A rib will be taken from his chest to support his backbone.

Michael said he gets moral support from his 16-year-old brother, Steve, who had his cancerous right leg amputated at Children's Hospital four years ago.

"Steve really supports me," said

Michael. "He is my backbone." Michael said he was initially "upset" after learning another cancer operation was needed so soon after last week's surgery. But he said he gained courage after talking with his brother.

"I'm looking to my brother," he said. "He's my idol."

Steve, a freshman at the University of Florida, has come to Cincinnati to be with Michael before and after Wednesday's surgery.

In 1967, Jeff, the family's youngest son, died of leukemia.

Michael's father, Raymond, a Miami police officer who had a malignant brain tumor removed in 1976, was asked about his family's future.

Agent claims Marvin was 'driven to drink'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lee Marvin was "driven to drink" by his live-in girlfriend and he used to ask, "How do I get rid of this broad?" the actor's agent, Meyer Mishkin, testified Tuesday.

Mishkin, in his second day on the witness stand in the trial of Michelle Trola Marvin's million-dollar breach of contract suit against the actor, said in 29 years of association, he had never heard of "Lee Marvin holding up production on a motion picture" because of drinking or any other problem.

The agent also testified Marvin, on more than one occasion, asked him, "How do I get rid of this broad?" The question was put, Mishkin said, when Marvin was complaining "in general terms" about problems with his girlfriend.

"I told him that was his problem," said Mishkin. "I did tell him on one occasion that if it was up to me, I would get rid of her."

During an argument over admissibility of testimony on Marvin's drinking habits, Superior Court Judge Arthur K. Marshall remarked, "Haven't you ever heard of the phrase 'being driven to drink'?"

The judge thereupon instructed Mishkin to proceed with his testimony about Marvin's drinking on the South Pacific island of Palau where he made a movie called "Hell in the Pacific."

From Loveland, Ohio 'Valentine Lady' keeps those cards coming

LOVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — America's "Valentine Lady," the 66-year-old widowed grandmother who a year ago personalized more than 14,000 valentine greetings for people around the world, is hard at work on her labor of love again this year.

"I'm starting my seventh year on this project and I love it more every year," said Doris Pflester. "I'm just glad I'm still around to do it. It's something to be thankful for, makes me glad I'm alive."

Mrs. Pflester became the "Valentine Lady" seven years ago when she agreed to handle a Loveland Chamber of Commerce valentine-remailing project by herself.

People from across the country and around the world send valentines to this tiny southwestern Ohio community to be re-mailed carrying a postmark from the "land of love."

Mrs. Pflester postmarks each Valentine greeting "Loveland" and also stamps a picture of Cupid and the message, "There is nothing in the world so sweet as love" on the envelope.

Instructions for the "Valentine Lady's" services:

- (1) Address all cards in the usual manner, but do not put a stamp on the envelopes.
- (2) Put all envelopes in a larger envelope, enclose money (not stamps) for proper postage, plus two cents for each card for the Loveland Chamber of Commerce fund.
- (3) Mail to "Valentine Lady," P.O. Box 111, Loveland, Ohio, 45140.

"On the night before, an argument started and continued for hours," Mishkin related. "Lee and Michelle slept in separate bedrooms. On the following day, Lee continued with his drinking. That was the only time I saw him out of control."

"I suggested to Michelle that she stop badgering Lee, nagging him, et cetera, and just leave him alone."

The testimony on the Palau drinking incident was elicited from Mishkin by David Kagon, attorney for Marvin, in an apparent attempt to show the six-year relationship between the couple was not the "love match" indicated by the plaintiff.

What's what

No need to worry if your body fat freezes; alcohol may make your days gray

Human fat turns solid when its temperature drops to about 45 degrees F. That's too cold to matter. What's left of the human won't care. But the fat of a hibernating animal remains liquid at far lower temperatures. Thus such a beast can survive. How low a hibernator's temperature can drop without killing it I just don't know. Do know that many a scientist has tried to take the body temperature of a hibernating bear. But the bear keeps waking up. Clearly, it has to be awkward for the scientist, caught in the bear's cave that way with an icy thermometer in hand. And pretty startling for the bear, too, undoubtedly.

A drink or two of liquor tends to lower your ability to distinguish colors. A drink or two of coffee tends to brighten that ability. That's what Air Force researchers claim.

It's a matter of record that no American Indian before the coming of the white man ever used the word "squaw."

SIGN VIOLATIONS

Q. "What signs, besides those to direct traffic, are violated most frequently?"

A. Studies indicate they are: Keep out. No smoking. No trespassing. Wet paint. Keep off the grass. Hands off.

Q. "Why is an independent oil prospector called a 'wild cat'?"

A. Goes back to the early days in eastern Pennsylvania when an explorer about to light out was said to be heading for wildcat country.

Some of the prognosticators think the average age of retirement will drop to 38 by the next turn of the century.

CONVICT STATUS

There's status, too, among calculating criminals doing time. The rapist is disgusted by the child molester. The robber looks upon the burglar as a second-rater. The narcotics peddler regards the arsonist as a fool. The confidence man thinks the extortionist is a crude bungler. The murderer is not necessarily given much deference, not unless said killer executed the work repeatedly in cold blood. Most murderers did away with family members during blind rages: They as a group are among the least dangerous of all convicts.

A well trained swimmer will cover 25 yards underwater with five or six strokes. But the average swimmer takes 10 to 15 strokes to swim that far underwater.

Fewer people commit suicide in New Jersey per capita than in any other state.

Galaxy center puzzling

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Some mysterious and violent process, possibly a "black hole," is at the center of our galaxy, the Milky Way. Scientists at California Institute of Technology revealed Monday.

A black hole is believed formed by the collapse of matter such as stars or planetary systems into such a dense mass that even light can escape its gravity.

Two astronomers working at Hale Observatories in this country and in Chile have scanned infrared radiation at the center of the galaxy to produce the first "pictures" of the Milky Way's nucleus.

In a separate set of observations, Caltech said, four other astronomers have also looked at the galactic center at a particular wavelength of infrared emissions that indicate an ionized form of the gas, neon.

The gas is in rapid motion, but is surprisingly cool the astronomers said.

The region of the nucleus is three light-years in diameter and is crowded with stars totaling millions of times the mass of our sun.

Eric Becklin of Institute for Astronomy in Hawaii and Gerry Neugebauer of Caltech published results of studies in a scientific journal last December.

They used the Swope one-meter telescope at the Hale Observatories in Chile for the scans of the galactic center. Other astronomers produced data on the temperature and motion of the interstellar gas near the center of the galaxy.

Some astronomers, Caltech said, believe that a supermassive black hole, containing several millions suns' worth of matter, collapsed to an extremely dense state and exerted enormous gravity at the galactic center.

The intense radiation from gas at the center, they said, could be due to the energy released when matter falls into the black hole and is consumed.

But evidence of a black hole is still only indirect, the scientists said.

The Milky Way is a flat spiral of 100 billion stars about 100,000 light-years across and 2,000 light-years thick. Our own solar system lies in a thinly populated area thousands of light years from the nucleus.

Scientists overwhelmed by pictures

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Voyager 1, investigating the gaseous atmosphere of Jupiter with cameras and instruments, has sent back more than 4,000 photos of the giant planet, which scientists have termed "overwhelming" as a Jet Propulsion Laboratory spokesman said Monday.

Voyager 1 was 17.4 million miles from Jupiter, heading for its closest encounter of 174,000 miles March 5. It will take more than 15,000 photos and transmit them back to JPL before the planet's gravity hurls it toward Saturn.

"We're getting into the Far Encounter, Phase One," Don Bane of JPL said. "That means they're getting to the point where they are taking two pictures horizontally and two vertically of the planet instead of trying to get the whole planet in one frame."

The space probe was 38.8 million miles from Earth, traveling toward Jupiter at more than 29,500 miles an hour.

The picture and scientific data were being transmitted through space to JPL at the speed of light but at that distance it takes more than half an hour to cross the void of space.

Bane said engineers also were seeing dramatic changes in the jovian atmosphere within one day, or a little more than 10 hours.

The planet is very dynamic, "very alive right now," he said. "Engineers and scientists say the pictures are 'overwhelming,' and they are seeing new radiation from Jupiter they have not seen before."

Voyagers 1 and 2 were launched in 1977 on different trajectories toward Jupiter. Voyager 2 is now about four months behind its sister ship and will duplicate much of the scientific examination of Voyager 1 before it, too, is thrown through space toward Saturn.

Joint radiation testing planned

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union and the United States will participate in a joint biological satellite experiment at the end of the year, the Tass news agency said Tuesday.

The experiment will use rats and female quails to check on the effects of cosmic rays during space travel.

"This experiment will yield scientific information needed for improving methods of protection from space radiation," Tass reported.

MADALYN O'HAIR

...appeal turned down

Slogan opponent hopeful

AUSTIN, TEXAS (UPI) — A U.S. appeals court has rejected Madalyn Murray O'Hair's demand to have "In God We Trust" removed from U.S. currency, but the atheist leader still is optimistic about her suit.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans rejected Ms. O'Hair's suit Monday by upholding an Austin judge's ruling. But the federal court said issues in the case "are not free from doubt."

"Oh, beautiful," Mrs. O'Hair said when told of the court's comment. "I didn't expect that much from them. I'm absolutely delighted to hear they made that kind of admission."

It was a suit filed by Ms. O'Hair that brought about the landmark 1963 U.S. Supreme Court ruling banning recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public school classrooms.

Her latest suit, which contends the reference to God on currency is a violation of constitutionally guaranteed separation of church and government — the same contention she made in the Lord's Prayer case — will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court and Ms. O'Hair was optimistic about its fate.

"Naturally we are going to appeal. I have some hope that even a Nixon-appointed court — and you know that court is bad — may still have some awareness of the need to re-establish separation of church and state," she said.

Mrs. O'Hair said even if she loses her appeal to the high court, she will be "delighted the suit has stirred doubts among the judiciary about the reference to God on money."

"I think it's important for the people of the United States to find out whether we are a theocracy or a democracy," she said. "I think it's awfully important at this time to make a distinction between these two," she said.

The concept of our money pretty clearly sets out that we are a theocracy, that Jesus Christ is above the court system or the politics and laws of the land.

"When I did research for this case, it was pretty obvious the congressmen who passed the laws were saying the same thing. I don't know where this leaves the Jews, Moslems, Buddhists, and I certainly don't know where it leaves agnostics and atheists."

The atheist leader said she does not have much respect for the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals — although she is pleased with its comments on her suit.

"I think there is a certain amount of intellectual dishonesty in their decisions, because they know what they are doing is protecting a majority demagogic idea, and rather than challenge that with a proper interpretation of constitutional concepts, they bow to demagoguery."

Song satire brings suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some people didn't think Saturday Night Live's "I Love Sodom" routine — a poke at New York State's successful "I Love New York" campaign — was so funny.

On Monday, a national publisher sued NBC-TV for $50,000, charging the network violated copyright laws and "maliciously" identified New York State "with the infamous biblical den of iniquity, vice and corruption, Sodom."

A complaint filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, Elmers Music, Inc., of Bedford Hills, N.Y., said the "I Love New York" song was satirized on the "Saturday Night Live" program May 30, 1978, and again in a rerun, when performers sang "I Love Sodom" — a parody of the original musical composition "I Love New York" was created and written by Steve Karmen, the court papers said.

Payment curbs urged to cut health costs

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a renewed push on spiraling hospital costs, the Blue Cross and Blue Shield associations Tuesday recommended payment curbs for many routine diagnostic hospital admissions tests for non-surgical patients unless medically justified.

The move, capable of shaving $1.3 billion off the nation's $60 billion hospital bill, was announced by the associations' President Walter J. McNERNEY.

Tests in the new curbs include chest X-rays, electrocardiograms and lab tests such as urinalysis and a check for venereal disease. Radiologists and pathologists, drawing commissions on costly of such tests in many hospitals, were expected to feel the first financial pinch of the proposed curbs.

The proposal was phase 2 of the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Medical Necessity Project, devised in 1977 in consultation with the American College of Physicians, the American College of Surgeons, the American College of Radiology and other doctor groups.

Phase 1 put curbs on payment for 42 surgical and medical procedures of dubious medical value. According to the health organization — insurer of 112 million — some $27 million a year is being saved as a result.

Also recommended to be phased out were routine payments for 26 diagnostic laboratory procedures now considered outmoded, unnecessary, unreliable or of no proven value. Where such tests are done, the curb was expected to affect both the pathologist's commission and the hospital's income from the laboratory.

McNERNEY said the recommendations to the more than 100 Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans across the nation will probably be effective everywhere within a year. He said he expected some local health plans to adopt the curbs within three to six months.

"The point of this recommendation is to encourage medical professionals to think about the costs of procedures routinely performed," McNERNEY said.

"The American College of Physi-

WALTER MCNERNEY
...plans attack on hospital costs ans has stated that the injudicious use of diagnostic tests contributes greatly to the cost of medical care."

Regarding admissions batteries, McNERNEY emphasized that no curb was recommended on such tests done routinely when patients are admitted for surgery.

Such tests, in that instance, are considered a medical necessity. McNERNEY said the new strategy was developed after consultation with the American College of Physicians. The majority of patients hospitalized annually are put in for medical and not surgical reasons. The admissions tests on the Blue Cross-Blue Shield list add about $6670 each bill, a study of the Federal Employees Benefits Programs has shown.

It was in figuring the elimination of these tests for the medical-only admissions that analysts came up with the figure of $1.3 billion as the possible payoff for cost-conscious deliverers of health care.

There are nearly 37 million hospital admissions in a year and from an estimated 60 per cent are for non-surgical reasons.

New junk food war begins

DETROIT (UPI) — Government, school and health officials called Tuesday for a ban or strict limitation on school lunchroom sales of foods like candy, soda and soda pop that hasten tooth decay and threaten good nutrition.

Industry representatives condemned such restrictions on so-called competitive food items as arbitrary, saying they would rob school officials of control over school policy.

The comments came in daylong public hearings by the Department of Agriculture on proposals to restrict so-called "junk food" sales in schools participating in the $3 billion national school lunch program. The session was held at Henry Ford Hospital.

"I believe we should protect those children from those who would make profits by selling them second-class foods that cause their teeth to rot and hasten the onset of nutrition-related disabilities," said Maryann Mahaffey, president pro tem of the Detroit City Council.

Mrs. Mahaffey, chairwoman of a statewide nutrition panel, urged a ban on the sale of candy, soda pop, frozen desserts and chewing gum until after the last lunch period in schools participating in the lunch program.

Such a ban was proposed last April but later withdrawn. Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Foreman said the department hoped to have new regulations in effect by September.

Also favoring the restriction was Michael Dineen, assistant director of food services for the Detroit public schools.

"For the USDA not to take a strong stand and ban these junk foods from our nation's schools, in my opinion, would be a tragic mistake," he said.

Epidemic in Italy

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — The "dark disease" of Mount Vesuvius that has killed 59 babies has reached epidemic proportions with some 400 infants now suffering its symptoms, a doctor leading the fight against the mystery illness said Tuesday.

Dr. Giulio Tarro, a former colleague of U.S. Polio vaccine pioneer Dr. Albert Sabin, said a vaccine to treat the disease has been developed in the United States by an American doctor but that it is not yet ready for use on humans.

 Educated at Oxford, the son of an aristocrat knighted by the British, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto for all but the last year of his life has been better acquainted with Savile Row than with row.

ZULFIKAR ALI BHUTTO
 ... sentence upheld

With his death sentence for planning the murder of a political opponent upheld Tuesday by the Pakistani supreme court, Bhutto was one step closer to the gallows and another step removed from the world he had known until his conviction in September, 1977.

During his 5½ years as ruler of Pakistan, Bhutto was most often seen in a stylish Western dress, a sharp contrast to the baggy trousers and flowing shirts of most of his countrymen.

He was known to prefer a Scotch and soda at night, though Pakistan is a Moslem nation and Islam bars alcohol.

It was those habits, among others, that the opposition singled out during the 1977 election campaign that marked the beginning of the end for Bhutto.

"Bhutto gets his shoes from France and Italy because Pakistani shoes are too hard for his feet," opposition leaders said, ridiculing Bhutto to crowds of laughing, cheering listeners.

Although he readily conceded belonging to "the privileged class" because of "the advantages of the system," in office Bhutto presented himself as a defender of the poor.

"For economic and social justice, I will move as fast as is necessary to see the burden of the common man lifted," he said on Dec. 20, 1971, when he took office.

He promised "food, clothing and shelter" to his countrymen and began to do so.

Pakistani army units on guard

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI) — The government Tuesday ordered army units to guard public offices and utilities in a move to prevent outbreaks of violence following a Supreme Court decision upholding the death sentence of former Premier Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

Police arrested hundreds of opposition leaders, including Bhutto's wife and daughter, following the court decision in an attempt to head off any pro-Bhutto demonstrations.

Bhutto's lawyers said they would ask the court to reconsider its decision to dismiss Bhutto's death sentence but legal sources said a different verdict was considered highly unlikely.

The former prime minister is still popular with many Pakistanis and the government sent emergency army reinforcements into the capital to guard railways, public utilities and government offices to prevent any outbreaks of violence. All universities closed.

If the court declines to review its decision, the 51-year-old former premier could appeal for mercy to President Mohammed Zia-ul-Haq, the man who deposed him in a July, 1977 military coup. But Bhutto said he preferred hanging to begging Zia for mercy.

In London, Prime Minister James Callaghan Tuesday personally appealed to Zia to spare Bhutto's life. Callaghan told the House of Commons, "I believe the consequence of clemency will be more beneficial to his country than carrying out the strict application of the law."

In a more emotional outcry from the British capital, the former prime minister's 19-year-old son, Shah Nawaz Bhutto, swore revenge if his father's sentence is carried out.

In other appeals, U.N. secretary general Kurt Waldheim, Amnesty International and Norway's prime minister Odvar Nordli sent messages to Zia calling for clemency.

The court voted four to three to uphold Bhutto's death sentence for allegedly ordering the murder of a political opponent. The three Supreme Court members who voted to overturn Bhutto's conviction also voted to acquit one of five policemen accused of attempting to carry out the assassination.

Young claims U.S. shut eyes in Iran

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Andrew Young, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, said in an interview published Monday that the developments in Iran could have been foreseen but the United States deliberately closed its eyes.

He criticized a policy of dealing only with foreign rulers and ignoring opposition groups.

Young attributed the unrest in Iran to the shah's ignoring the social and religious repercussions of new oil wealth.

"We in the West believe we have separated church and state, but in America we never would make a decision on an important social question without first asking the advice of the Catholic bishops and the Protestant churches," he said.

"There is a fine balance between religious organizations and the government which cushions some results of technological progress."

nationalizing major industries, incurring the wrath of Pakistan's "22 families" who controlled much of the wealth.

Yet for all his pronouncements on behalf of the poor, Bhutto always appeared a man very much at ease with Westerners and those educated there.

He was born Jan. 5, 1928, the son of Shah Nawaz Bhutto, a leader of the aristocracy in Sindh province — the capital of which is Karachi — and a prominent politician in what was then British India.

He was educated at the University of California in Los Angeles and Berkeley and then went to Oxford where he earned a law degree.

When the military took power in 1958, Gen. Ayub Khan named Bhutto commerce minister. At 30, he was the youngest cabinet minister in any South Asian country.

Bhutto held numerous cabinet posts after that, including the foreign affairs portfolio and became a familiar figure at the United Nations, where he presented Pakistan's case boldly and with sophisticated bearing. He liked to talk and would ramble on in speeches or interviews as his listeners often became restless and his aides frantically tried to reschedule his appointments.

But in jail, few have been allowed to visit him. He has lost weight and appears pale, where formerly he was robust.

"I occupy my death cell, which is 7 feet by 10 feet," he said two months ago when he appeared before the Supreme Court. "It's nice to see people again."

Natural resources office on cabinet appears likely

WASHINGTON — President Carter is likely to approve the establishment of a new Department of Natural Resources that would replace the present Interior Department, according to White House officials.

Less certain, though, is whether he will go along with a recommendation that a Department of Development Assistance be set up to take over all of the functions of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and some of those of the Department of Commerce.

A number of White House aides believe, however, that he will follow that advice. "In reorganization, the president always seems to take the bold options," one official remarked.

In any event, Carter is expected to reach a decision this weekend at Camp David on his plans to reorganize the federal government in 1979, and he may disclose them publicly this week.

The president has pledged to make a "major" effort at reorganization this year. "We must extend major reorganization efforts to education, economic development and natural resources," he said in his State of the Union address Jan. 23.

The administration is already committed to the creation of a new Department of Education, James McIntyre, director of the Office of Management and Budget, testified on behalf of that proposed agency before the Senate Government Affairs committee Thursday.

Congress must pass legislation for it to be established, but no congressional action would be required to reorganize the departments of Interior, Commerce and Housing and Urban Development. The changes would go into effect 60 days after being submitted to Congress unless either the House or Senate vetoed them.

The most popular of these changes is the proposal for a Department of Natural Resources. Its chances of winning Carter's approval look "very good," said a White House official.

The new agency would replace Interior, keeping all but several of its minor functions. Significantly, Natural Resources would gain the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration from Commerce and the U.S. Forest Service from Agriculture.

Surprisingly, the proposal for a Department of Natural Resources has not encountered much bureaucratic opposition. Nor has there been much criticism of it from outside the government.

Two weeks ago, Carter put off a decision on the reorganization proposals so that officials could consult with Congress and special interest groups. That consultation is now completed, and the advice collected has been conveyed to the president.

Some controversy surrounds the two options offered Carter for reorganizing Commerce and HUD. Under the more sweeping one, the Economic Development Administration would be shifted from Commerce to a renamed HUD, the Department of Development Assistance.

The new agency would pick up some other responsibilities as well, making it a much larger and more powerful department.

Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps, among others, has opposed this option. A tamer alternative, more favorable to Commerce, would put public economic development programs in HUD and private ones in Commerce.

Whatever choice Carter makes, a later effort may be made to put international trade functions under one roof.

Army lacks riflemen, tank crewmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army's top leaders have acknowledged that despite their insistence the volunteer system is working, they are "significantly short" of such combat troops as infantrymen and tank crewmen.

The chief of staff, Gen. Bernard Rogers, told the House Armed Services Committee there is "a drastic shortfall in our manpower program."

Army Secretary Clifford Alexander agreed "we must do something about" the shortage, but did not change his opposition to restoring a peacetime "draft," as suggested by some lawmakers.

Neither official gave figures on shortages. But they acknowledged them in reply to panel members who objected to their prepared statement, which said "we have attracted adequate numbers of qualified men and women" under the volunteer system that replaced the draft six years ago.

Rep. Robin Beard, R-Tenn., cited "horrendous" readiness figures he said show the Army would be able to field less than half the infantry troops it would need 90 days after a mobilization was ordered.

Both Alexander and Rogers defended the prepared statement about overall numbers in the active Army. But under questioning, Alexander said shortages in combat branches now make them "barely adequate" to carry out missions.

He said the Army last month began paying a $3,000 bonus to attract high school graduates to sign up for four years as tank crewmen — the most critical shortage area. It is the highest such bonus ever offered.

While recruiters came close to meeting overall quotas last year, they have had a tough time finding enough volunteers for combat jobs which do not provide training that can be used later in well-paying civilian jobs.

Alexander said an Army recommendation to restore peacetime registration for an emergency draft has not been accepted so far by the Defense Department. While he wants registration for the first time since 1975, he has consistently opposed actually drafting people in non-crisis situations.

On another subject, Rogers acknowledged publicly for the first time that the new XM-1 battle tank "has been experiencing some test problems" with its engine, fuel system and suspension.

Carter water policies stir Congress' wrath

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is accused of undercutting the authority of Congress with his new water policy.

Rep. John Myers, R-Ind., said the plan that sets policy standards on how funds are spent effectively means that Congress will be a rubber stamp for the president's decisions on water projects.

"What you're saying is we play your ball and you'll play with us," Myers said. "If we don't like the president's water project selections, we'll have confrontation as we have in the past."

Congress is "not about to give up our stewardship" over water projects, said Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb.

Carter and the House Public Works Appropriations Subcommittee have clashed frequently on water project spending. Last year, the panel approved a $10 billion public works appropriations bill with $3.2 billion for water projects which the president vetoed. The House upheld the veto.

Carter's water policy calls for states to pay a greater share of project costs, stresses conservation, and seeks complete funding of projects at the time they are approved by Congress.

M. Bowman Cutler of the Office of Management and Budget said water projects are funded on a yearly basis and that this makes it difficult for states to understand long-term funding commitments.

Cutler said that once funding begins, it is "practically" impossible to stop a project.

U.S. firm to work on Chinese hotels

Architect's drawing proposed Shanghai project

HONOLULU (UPI) — Agreement with the Chinese government to design a $50 million, 1,350-room, 38-story hotel in Shanghai and a $30-million, 600-room, 12-story hotel in Kowloon was announced Monday by a Hawaiian architectural firm.

The projects are believed to be the first U.S.-designed structures accepted by China.

The firm of Wimberly, Whitensand, Allison, Tong and Goo Architects, Ltd., said their client is a joint venture composed of the Travel Service of the People's Republic of China and the Kuok Travel Service of Hong Kong.

Construction of the Shanghai project, to be known as the Huashan, is scheduled to begin in July with expected completion in the summer of 1981. The Kowloon project, which will be the first of a two-phase complex, is scheduled to begin a few months after the Shanghai hotel is started.

The hotels will be built and operated by the Chinese government with technical and managerial assistance from Kuok Travel Service, the architectural firm said.

January car sales best in six years

DETROIT (UPI) — A sales surge at the close of the month and the strong momentum of General Motors Corp. helped the nation's automakers record their best January in six years.

The Big Three car firms report passenger car sales in January totaled 624,718 units, up 12.7 percent from a year ago and the best performance since the onset of the 1974 recession.

Foreign carmakers reported a 5 percent decline from January 1977 with estimated sales of 137,200 units. Their share of the U.S. market slipped from 20.5 percent a year ago to 17.8 percent last month.

General Motors, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. each reported sales gains in the closing 10 days of the month.

The improved January total, however, came mostly on the strength of GM's record performance. The No. 1 automaker, with sales of 382,350 units for a 25 percent increase, was the only individual firm to finish January ahead of last year's pace.

Ford reported January sales of 168,807 units, down 3 percent from its year-ago level. Chrysler's sales of 73,561 cars amounted to a 1 percent fall-off from last year's pace.

Farm policies forum subject

CALDWELL — Senators Frank Church and James McClure will discuss U.S. farm policy options at a Feb. 14 forum in the College of Idaho's Jewett Auditorium.

The 7:30 p.m. public meeting is the kickoff event for the Idaho-Oregon Agricultural Exposition, a four-day trade show opening here Thursday, Feb. 15.

An official of the U.S. Department of Agriculture will take part in the farm policy forum, presenting an overview of agriculture's economic prospects. Also participating will be Frank Lundberg, special assistant to Gov. John Evans, who will discuss the future of public lands in agriculture.

Church is expected to give special emphasis to programs for developing new markets for agricultural commodities, legislation affecting the sugar industry, and the moratorium on interstate water diversion studies. McClure's special topics will be water for irrigation, development of hydroelectric power, and migrant labor.

Helen McKinnon, executive vice-president of the Caldwell Chamber of Commerce, will be the moderator of the forum.

More than 160 farm machinery and agribusiness firms will have exhibits at the Simplot Stadium Complex during the four-day farm show. Exhibitors are encouraged to bring families and the general public will be held in the College of Idaho throughout the week.

Ceremonies formally opening the Idaho-Oregon Agricultural Exposition are scheduled for 9 a.m., Feb. 15, in Jewett Auditorium. Gov. John Evans will give an address of welcome and Anita Muns, dean of the University of Idaho College of Agriculture, will present a keynote speech on government policies in agriculture.

Other speakers Thursday morning will be Sheri Chapman, executive director of Idaho Water Users Association, and Stephen Shipley, vice-president of Mountain States Legal Foundation.

The agricultural show is sponsored by the University of Idaho Cooperative Extension Service, the College of Idaho, area chambers of commerce, and agricultural organizations and commodity groups.

Meats score solid gains, grains ease

CHICAGO — Meats were stronger in Tuesday's commodity futures trading.

Commodity News Service said live cattle advanced 52 to 122 points, rebounding from Monday's sharp losses. Light marketings helped. Volume was 31,007 contracts. Feeder cattle gained 107 points to the daily limit of 150, following the trend of live cattle. Volume was 4,392 contracts.

Live hogs set contract highs in most months, but were off the highs, closing at 75 to 35 points up. Volume was 6,760 contracts. Pork bellies gained 132 to 65 points but were off from gains of as much as 200 points. Volume was 5,186.

Maine potatoes settled 2 cents off to 4 cents higher with May up a penny at 6.80 per hundredweight. Volume was 910 contracts.

Wheat was 2 1/2 cents to a half cent easier with nearby March under some pressure as the trade followed soybeans. Corn was bid early by speculative "profit taking" and failed to recover, finishing from half a cent to a cent down.

Soybean complex prices faded on the close, finishing with modest gains in back months. Beans settled from up 2 cents to down 9 1/2, meal was 2.90 to 90 cents off, and oil was up 25 points to 28 down.

New York Sugar 11 closed 8 to 10 points firmer as the board except for January which gained 15 points. A narrow trading range of about 6 points stifled activity and the volume of 3,620 lots included much switching.

New York Comex gold settled 3.40 to 3.00 lower on a volume of 36,000 lots.

New York Comex silver settled 150 to 120 points higher on a trade of 23,000 lots. All months except February gained at least 100 points.

Ramseyer was elected board president; Jones was chosen vice-president, and Leonard was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Citek said he is certain that Holst's humor and message will be enjoyed.

Hospitals listen to patients

At Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis patients turn on their TV sets every morning to learn about tests and procedures they may encounter during their hospital stay.

At St. Vincent's Hospital in New York City patients in the intermediate coronary care unit meet with the hospital's post-myocardial group to have questions answered about their heart attacks, their recovery and how to prevent further attacks.

At an Arizona hospital, while waiting for their prescriptions to be filled, patients watch a film about proper use of the medication, possible reactions, what to do if they have a reaction.

Do you want to know why your hospital took four blood tests? Whether a second set of X-rays was necessary? What will happen when you go into surgery? What your reaction will be to new medication?

To answer such questions as these, 6,500 hospitals across the nation belonging to the American Hospital Assn. are now undertaking patient information programs with the object of telling you all about your case. For all the evidence suggests that the well-informed patient recovers faster, suffers less pain and anxiety, uses the right kind of care at the right time, stays healthier in general.

Not only do you have a right to ask questions concerning your treatment, but you owe it to yourself to do so," says Alex McMahon, president of the AHA. "The priestly physician is disappearing," adds Paul C. Bruckner, chairman of the Dept. of Family Medicine at Philadelphia's Thomas Jefferson University. "Patients want answers instead of being told, 'You have a pain, here are some pills.'"

The new programs are as diverse as the patients they serve.

(1) A special program to help tell young children what a hospital stay will be like and lessen their fears is going on in 10 Connecticut hospitals. Video cassettes, wall posters and pamphlets tell children what to expect when they have an operation, wear a cast, have tests taken. Pre-admission tours allow children to examine instruments, put on surgical clothing.

(2) Parents who often have felt excluded from the birth of their child, are getting answers to their questions through family-centered maternity care programs in hundreds of hospitals. They then can decide (as at Roosevelt Hospital in Manhattan) whether to use a physician or midwife, have the birth take place in a bedroom-like "birthing room" or the delivery room and have their husband in the care of their newborn.

(3) Cancer patients at William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, Mich., have regular Q & A sessions with a team composed of doctors, nurses, pharmacists, dietitians and discharge planners. Patient and team work together, sharing the patient's anxieties and exchanging information honestly and fully. Before discharge, the patient and his family can find out what to expect during recovery.

(4) What's more, hospital staff and physicians are also learning how to listen to questions: At Stanford University Medical Center, a new course introduces physicians-to-be to patient care through the eyes of the patient. Students meet with patients and families to discuss the emotional and financial aspects of illness. Hospitals also are encouraging you to help answer the questions of other patients if you have been involved in a similar illness.

(5) If you are having a mastectomy, chances are you will be visited by an attractive volunteer, who from her own experience, will answer your questions about clothes, your emotional relationships.

(6) Parents of children with heart defects have formed an association at Johns Hopkins Children's Center Hospital and meet regularly with hospital specialists to get answers on how to prepare their children for surgery and hospitalization.

(7) The Stroke Information classes at Washington Hospital Center, D.C., are not for patients, but for families and friends of patients who have had a stroke. At weekly sessions, families find out how to meet the patient's needs in every area.

Does it work? Yes! One hospital evaluated the results of 1,400 questionnaires in which patients' answers were 81 percent positive and only 19 percent had suggestions or complaints. And McMahon cites such results at surveyed hospitals as: decrease in emergency room use by diabetics and asthmatics; cut in hospital days for hemophiliacs; improved compliance by patients with medical regimens; reduced post-operative complications, etc.

The basic reason: your feeling that you are not just a card fed into a computer but a partner in your treatment.

Utahns have plan to purchase U&I

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A coalition of Utah lawyers may buy all four U and I Sugar Co. plants and share ownership with Idaho sugar beet growers, a grower representative said Tuesday.

Grant Nelbaur, president of the Eastern Idaho Sugar Beet Growers Association, said a Salt Lake City attorney, Robert Dennis, told the association Jan. 29 a group of investors is thinking about purchasing and operating the plants, if growers will buy 9 to 10 percent of the stock. Their purpose in proposing this is twofold," Nelbaur said. Besides helping raise capital to buy the plant, he said "the growers would be more inclined to be concerned about success of the factory" if they had a financial stake in it.

Nelbaur said 87 percent of the association members, all former U and I contractors, endorsed the concept in a vote at the Jan. 29 meeting.

Unless someone wants to buy out the U and I plants, the Utah company plans to close them, this spring, leaving 223 eastern Idaho growers without a buyer for their 1979 beet crop. Although the Amalgamated Sugar Company has promised to contract with some of those growers, the association hopes the plant would be kept open by a new owner.

Dennis didn't tell the growers who the investors are, or whether the group has made a price offer to U and I. Nelbaur said the asking price of the Idaho Falls plant is $1.6 million, so the growers would be asked to contribute between $80,000 and $160,000 towards the purchase.

According to Nelbaur, growers would invest in the new company as individuals, not as an association.

If a deal is worked out between the Utah investors and the growers, the investors will take care of running the plant and sale terminals, which are at Idaho Falls, Toppesh, and Moses Lake, Wash., and Garland, Utah. The growers will own stock in the company as preferred, or nonvoting stockholders, and will contract with the investors just as they formerly did with U and I.

Nelbaur said the growers would have nothing to do with operating the plant. He emphasized that the arrangement would not be at all like a cooperative, which the growers have steadfastly opposed.

He noted U and I has offered to help any buyers run the plant for a year, for an undisclosed fee.

Last November U and I offered to sell all four of its plants because of financial losses. When no buyers appeared, the company said it would shut down the plants between now and July.

Although Nelbaur called the Utah proposal "very beneficial" to eastern Idaho growers, he cautioned against banking on a firm deal.

"Nothing has been negotiated," he said.

But he added, "We hope we can get an answer soon because we're running out of time."

Dorothy Griffin wonders where she will live when she is evicted from the Justamere Inn

Elderly lose low rent haven

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Dorothy Griffin stared out of the window of her living room on the upper floor of the Justamere Inn and worried aloud. "I'm trying to find a place to move to that I can afford. I'm on social security and I'm having one hell of a time."

Dorothy Griffin, 57, is one of 16 residents of the Justamere Inn who received notice last week that they will have to find new homes by the end of February.

She is not certain she will be able to find an apartment where she will be able to afford rent and utilities on her monthly social security income of $187.

She pays $60 per month for her three room apartment in the Justamere Inn, including utilities, and she gets a further break on her rent for doing the janitorial work in the building. It will be difficult for her to match that rent elsewhere in Twin Falls.

Dorothy's problem illustrates the difficulty senior citizens on fixed incomes have finding affordable housing in Twin Falls.

And now the Justamere Inn, long the home of senior citizens with little to spend on housing, is slated for conversion to professional offices.

"It's a shame," Twin Falls Housing Authority director Charles Capps said of the closing of the Justamere Inn.

"There's not very many places that the elderly can find with all utilities paid that they can afford if they're on social security," he noted.

One of the few places seniors can find low-cost housing is at the Twin Falls Housing Authority.

But the housing authority has about 30 units too few to meet the demand from the elderly, so there is a six-month waiting list to get into one of the 140 government-subsidized, elderly units the authority administers.

Dorothy has three weeks to find a new home.

Other than the authority, Capps said he knows of no other place in Twin Falls where a room with utilities paid can be had as cheaply as the Justamere Inn.

He said utilities alone usually cost a renter $80 per month.

"That's why he mourns the passing of the Justamere Inn as a residence.

But there appears to have been little choice for the new owner of the Justamere Inn, Twin Falls attorney Kent Taylor.

Taylor said the cost of upgrading the building for residential purposes would be prohibitive and utilization of space for that purpose would not allow for adequate parking.

To preserve the former hotel, which was built in 1910 and is on the National Register of Historic Places, Taylor plans to convert it to professional offices and to tear down a structure on the rear of the property to provide parking space.

He said the only alternative to his plan is to raze the building and start from scratch.

The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission apparently agreed with Taylor and approved his plan because they too wanted to preserve the building.

Taylor said he thinks there is adequate alternative housing available for Justamere residents, because of his "knowledge" only four of the residents are still without new homes less than one week after receiving their eviction notices.

Capps said two of those residents have placed their names on his waiting list in the last week. But the fact that other residents have found new housing does not help Dorothy Griffin.

She has looked in the newspapers for new housing, but she said, "I couldn't start to walk (she has arthritis) and I don't have money to take a cab."

"There is no phone in the Justamere Inn."

Dorothy Griffin is worried, but she still has her pride. "I'm not crying. I'm just saying it's just a hard thing to do."

Blaine schools pay Riggs $30,000

HAILEY — The Blaine County School Board has hired a new interim superintendent and paid their former superintendent $30,000 in a negotiated resignation settlement.

The board indicated the change was necessary to regain effective leadership of the schools.

The school board voted unanimously Tuesday to hire Blaine County School Psychologist Richard Jones as the "interim superintendent" for School District 61.

Jones replaces former Superintendent Dr. Norman Riggs, who resigned Jan. 26.

Riggs' resignation was a negotiated settlement, according to Blaine County School Board Chairman John Tracy.

Riggs, who came to the district in July of 1977, had 17 months left on his contract when he offered his letter of resignation to the school board less than two weeks ago, Tracy noted.

The school board chairman estimated the approximate value of Riggs' remaining contract at about $45,000 but he said the board agreed to pay him $30,000 as a negotiated settlement. Tracy acknowledged that the negotiated agreement was "as good a settlement as we could have expected."

The school board hired Jones to fill the superintendent's position until the district can hire a new chief administrator.

In a press release issued Tuesday, the school board indicated Riggs' lack of leadership in the district was a primary cause for his sudden resignation.

"Confronted as we were with teachers and administrators, hampered by low morale—and the seemingly ineffective leadership in our chief administrative officer, we had to face some hard choices," the release explained. "It was our unanimous opinion as trustees that an immediate change in leadership was called for."

Tracy said the district has had about six inquiries concerning the superintendent's position since Riggs' resignation, but so far no one has formally applied for the job.

Evans asks agency again for disaster declaration

BOISE — Gov. John Evans has asked the Small Business Administration to reconsider its decision not to declare Twin Falls County a disaster area as a result of flooding in January.

Steve Leroy, the governor's press secretary who announced Evans' request Tuesday afternoon, said the reconsideration was "based on our assessment of the damages caused to approximately 12 fisheries located near Buhl."

"Our own damage assessment shows that five of these businesses sustained 25 percent or more damage," Leroy continued, "as is required by the SBA before their declaration." He noted the 12 fish farms were not covered by insurance.

In addition, the press secretary said Evans is considering asking for federal highway disaster aid. The governor ordered his staff to begin "the process of appealing to the Federal Highway Administration for possible declaration for disaster monies for losses to roads and bridge systems in the Twin Falls County area."

Leroy said some staff members met Tuesday with Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl; Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer; and Rep. Roy Brackett, R-Twin Falls, to discuss the damage, which included some nine bridges and at first count 10 miles of county roads.

Damages suffered by the dozen fish farms have been estimated at $81,000. Ken Ellis of Valley Trout Farms Inc. reported the highest individual loss of $331,000, Leroy said, with damage at several sites running between 5 percent and 100 percent.

Leroy said Charlie Jensen of C. and J. Trout had the highest overall percentage loss at 80 percent, with damages estimated at $13,500.

Damage from flooding Jan. 11 and 12 has not qualified for a disaster declaration and federal grants, but the Farmers Home Administration is offering disaster loans to qualified applicants.

Wendell man found innocent

BOISE — A Wendell man was found innocent of a charge of intimidating an Internal Revenue Service agent in U.S. District Court here last week.

A 12-person jury found Bob Brinkman, 37, innocent after deliberating about 15 minutes last Friday.

Brinkman was accused of threatening an IRS agent in the Twin Falls office on Nov. 20, 1978. He claimed he only called the agent, Frank Needham, a "punk" and shook a finger at him for calling his wife at work about "back taxes" the couple owed.

Trailer blocks grade

CLEAR LAKES — A semi-tractor trailer slammed into the canyon wall on the Clear Lakes grade nine miles north of Buhl Tuesday afternoon and blocked the road for nearly four hours.

The accident occurred about 1:40 p.m. but the road was not open for traffic until 5 p.m. because a crane had to be sent from Twin Falls to remove the damaged truck.

Idaho State Police Cpl. Chuck Cox said no one was injured in the accident.

Robert Dickerson Jr. of Chubbuck was driving a belly-dump tractor-trailer unit up the grade when he met another tractor coming down the road. Dickerson attempted to move to the left as far as possible and the right wheels were pulled into a cement drain ditch which caused the truck to slam into rocks along the road, Cox said.

The trailer stayed on the left side of the narrow road and the tractor unit was whipped across both lanes of traffic, blocking the road.

Cox said some of the diesel fuel spilled into the drain ditch when one of the tractor's fuel tanks was ruptured. He said some of the fuel was washed into the Clear Lakes Trout Farm water supply but no damage estimates were available from the trout farm.

Inquest scheduled

GOODING — A coroner's inquest into the death of Joseph "GIP" Kienlen, 61, of Buhl, will be held Thursday in the Gooding County Courthouse.

Kienlen died Jan. 30 at a Boise hospital from a blow to the head received in an altercation at a Hagerman Bar Jan. 27.

The inquest will examine the cause of death, how and possibly why he died and try to determine who was involved in events leading to the death.

Gooding County Sheriff Earl Brown said 22 persons had been subpoenaed to testify. County Prosecutor Severt Swenson said charges could be filed against those involved in the death if the inquest indicates there is evidence.

Councilman chosen

KETCHUM — A journalist, A.G. Block, was appointed to the Ketchum City Council Monday to replace Phil Swisher, who recently resigned.

Block, 32, said he's pleased with the appointment: "I've been involved with city government for a long time. At some point after going to a number of meetings, you want to make decisions instead of simply writing them down."

Block said he told Mayor Jerry Selfert recently that he was available, and was not surprised he was selected. "I'm pleased he had that confidence in my ability."

When Block accepted the position he retired from his job as correspondent for the Idaho Statesman at Boise, where he has held since August, 1978.

Fire burns apartment

JEROME — Fire damaged an apartment at 1200 S. Davis St. here Tuesday afternoon causing an undetermined amount of damage.

Jerome Fire Chief Lynn Bingham said the fire appeared to have started in a ball closet where some cleaning materials were stored.

A witness at the scene said Michelle Falconberg was the renter of the apartment but was not living there at the time because the roof in the bedroom area needed repair.

Bingham said the fire was reported about 5:25 p.m. Tuesday and was extinguished in about 15 minutes. The closet area was burned and the kitchen and living room areas received smoke and water damage.

Gooding decision held

GOODING — The Gooding City Council Monday night decided to wait until its next meeting before naming a replacement for former city council member Kim Crompton.

Crompton resigned Jan. 8 to attend the University of Idaho.

Monday, Mayor Don Morrow asked the council to approve Lowell Fields, who owns and operates a truck line in Gooding, to fill out Crompton's term, which ends Dec. 31.

Councilman Harold Reed said a few other names have been mentioned for the council post, and the mayor and council agreed to wait until its Feb. 20 meeting so that those people could be discussed.

Home damaged by fire

HOLLISTER — A furnace fire at a home about 10 miles north of Hollister burned through the building's basement and main floor Tuesday afternoon before fire crews extinguished the blaze.

The Hollister Volunteer Fire Department fought the fire for about 25 minutes before extinguishing it, according to fire department officials.

The fire broke out about 5:40 p.m. in a home owned by Twin Falls resident Les Jones, fire officials said.

The home was occupied by Kimberly-High School Wrestling Coach Patrick Vallant and his family. Vallant was notified of the house fire during a wrestling match and left the mat to rush to the scene.

No one was on fire when the building's furnace apparently caught on fire, but a dog was killed in the blaze.

Idaho State Police prepare for 1 percent

Sgt. Kurt Williams, Idaho State Police, holds old, costly shoulder insignia

BOISE — Idaho State Police are hoping the 1 percent initiative will not mean further reduction in police personnel and to ward off such drastic measures, state officers are seeing some changes in everything from their motor vehicles to their trousers.

Public Information Officer John Rooney with the Department of Law Enforcement, says, however, it is likely the present 169 officers in the field may reduce in time.

"We are doing a lot of things to hold down costs," Rooney said. "Our officers are wearing a simplified patch that costs far less to make than the previous elaborate insignia and before long their trousers will be made of a different material."

In the case of the trousers, he said, it is not necessarily a cheaper quality that will save money, but rather a longer wearing material.

The present ISP uniform trousers are made of wool and dacron. In the future, they will be all wool and are expected to last longer and thus save money. The price of the former trousers was $30 and the new style will be about the same figure but another saving may be made as the old style was expected to go up in price.

Rooney said most of the cost-saving factors which have been ordered by the department are "nickel and dime" cuts, but added together, they will amount to quite a saving each year.

A group of special patrol officers known as "Task Force 55," hired through federal funding to help control freeway traffic and enforce the 55 mile an hour speed limit, is being disbanded, Rooney said. The federal funding is no longer available. The governor in his budget message said the state cannot afford to pick up the bill. The cost was about $300,000 a year.

These 10 officers, five in the Boise area and five in the Pocatello area will not lose their jobs, but will be absorbed into the regular state police system as other officers retire, resign or leave for other jobs.

The new black and white vehicles state patrol officers now drive are also less costly than the old blue and whites which had to be custom painted. The new black and whites are ordered in that color combination and then sent to the Idaho State Penitentiary where inmates attach the decal type white stripes over the hood.

Officers are also driving less expensive models than in past years. When a state car is wrecked, Rooney said, the motor or other salvagable parts are saved and then used to repair state owned cars that have been worn out by excessive mileage.

The Department of Transportation does the mechanical work and prison paint crews handle the new look for the old cars.

The driver handbooks that nearly everyone who takes a driver test obtains from the sheriff's office is also less expensive. Once printed in color and slick finish paper with color photographs on the cover, it is now a cut down version.

It once cost 27 cents a copy to print. Now at half the size with no cover pictures and using news print type paper, the cost is 10 cents a copy.

Rooney said a printing consists of about 318,000 copies, a supply that lasts more than a year.

There are some good breaks for the drivers, too. The Idaho state driver's test has been changed to a partial one — to save paper and the state is taking a close look at other printing costs such as registration and licensing fees.

"We submitted a request to cut license plate costs by about $77,000 a year. This would have changed the reflectorized license plates from a full reflector covering to a partial one — just the letters and numbers, but the House Transportation Committee turned it down," Rooney said.

Another sizable saving is being made in the ammunition used by state officers for fire arms practice. The state now purchases raw materials, uses some existing equipment and manufactures its own for practice instead of purchasing commercial ammunition.

Rooney said the state officers' guns are also being changed to a newer type weapon.

He said a review of the weapons carried by state police showed the average gun was 20 years old. They are being sold to collectors and other interested persons at $8 more per unit than the cost of new Smith Wesson 28 revolvers. The review of the guns showed about 60 percent of them were defective — broken or older.

Rooney said the department is hoping to retain at least the present size force. In 1970 a study of the state police force coverage showed a maximum of 227 field officers was needed and a minimum of 239.

"We now have 169 field officers or about half of what we needed for adequate highway safety in the state eight years ago," said.

He said with cutbacks in local law enforcement agencies, more and more demands are being made on state police. He said the Idaho State Police are receiving more and more requests for assistance in local law enforcement matters and this will probably continue as the economy moves expands.

Like many local law enforcement agencies, Idaho State Police officials are hoping their personnel will not be cut and they are willing to economize elsewhere in order to have men and women to continue to handle the existing and growing workload.

House approves vote bill

BOISE (UPI) — The House approved S-18 and sent to the Senate Tuesday a bill giving the Legislature latitude on the date for an advisory vote on proposed amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

At present, state law requires the Legislature to submit such a constitutional proposal to the electorate at the next general election. This measure would allow the lawmakers to submit it at that or a subsequent election.

Floor sponsor T.W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, said the bill not only would save the taxpayers some money as well as allow time for an educational campaign prior to the advisory vote.

"I do have fear of an issue coming from Congress and being submitted to the people without any educational process for their advisory vote," he said.

Minority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said this bill simply would allow the Legislature to drag its feet on a proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution and not submit to the people for years.

Congress could propose an amendment to require a balanced federal budget, he said, and the Idaho Legislature could tie it up for a long time.

"I think the intent's good in this but it's a bad piece of legislation," he said.

Minority leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said all the bill does is simply try to save the taxpayers a little money and keep the ballot from becoming cluttered with too many proposals.

Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Coeur d'Alene, said the law now on the books is only "good as your conscience."

He said one Legislature cannot bind another and a subsequent Legislature could write in language disregarding it.

Sentence legislation introduced

BOISE (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee introduced legislation Tuesday to establish mandatory minimum sentences for people who use or threaten to use deadly weapons while committing felonies.

A new chapter implementing a constitutional amendment approved by the voters in November, the measure applies to those who have been convicted of a previous felony within 10 years and sets a five-year minimum sentence.

It also allows the court to establish a greater minimum sentence up to a maximum of 15 years. And, the bill stipulates, this additional sentence shall run consecutively with the sentence imposed for the crime or crimes committed.

"The mandatory minimum period of five years incarceration shall be served without eligibility for parole less any allowance for good time," the bill states.

Attempts to reject pay hike insufficient

BOISE (UPI) — Passage of two separate resolutions rejecting legislative pay increases did not meet down the pay hike, Attorney General David H. Leroy said Tuesday.

After the House blocked consideration of a Senate resolution through parliamentary procedures on the final day for action, Majority leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, asked for an attorney general's opinion.

Gov. John V. Evans recommended elimination of the program as "one means of cutting back on expenditures in the light of the 1 percent initiative."

Elimination of the state meal inspection would result in the federal government doing all the inspections and it would require changes by Idaho meat packers to meet the separate standards required by the federal government.

State Agriculture Director Wilson Kellogg said the department could not continue the program if the budget would be cut 16 percent.

"There's not that much fat in our least pay hike.

Stymied in the Senate by parliamentary procedure, the House resolution rejected the salary boost but accepted the increase in expense allowances. The Senate resolution, blocked in the House, rejected both.

Leroy advised Little — not in a formal opinion but in legal guidelines — that neither resolution fulfilled the criteria for constitutional rejection of the citizens' committee recommendations on legislative pay because:

— Although each was sent to the other body for passage, there was no passage in either case by the second house.

— Neither resolution was signed by the presiding officers of both houses.

Elimination of meat program could shut down packers

BOISE (UPI) — A joint legislative committee was told Tuesday elimination of the state meal inspection program would put a number of Idaho meat packers out of business and lead to illegal mobile plants.

Gov. John V. Evans recommended elimination of the program as "one means of cutting back on expenditures in the light of the 1 percent initiative."

Elimination of the state meal inspection would result in the federal government doing all the inspections and it would require changes by Idaho meat packers to meet the separate standards required by the federal government.

State Agriculture Director Wilson Kellogg said the department could not continue the program if the budget would be cut 16 percent.

Judge approves Kootenai jail plan

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Federal Judge Ray McNichols has approved the county commissioners' plan to deal with fire, health and sanitation problems in the Kootenai County jail.

McNichols ordered the commissioners Sept. 29 to submit a plan to deal with problems at the jail within 90 days.

Guard requests funding for planned expansion

TWIN FALLS — The National Guard asked the Twin Falls City Council Monday to help pay for an expansion of the guard's army here, but the council appeared to be looking for a way to duck the request.

Lt. Col. William J. Orton, facilities engineer for the Idaho National Guard, asked the council for $6,400 as its share of the estimated $2,000-plus cost of a new 2,198 square foot regimental staff meeting room and additional off-street parking at the National Guard Armory on the eastern edge of the College of Southern Idaho campus.

Orton pointed out that the armory is a joint federal-state-city facility, and in the agreement by which the armory was originally built, the city agreed to participate in any expansion of the facility.

Now, Orton said, the federal government has agreed to pay $56,000 or 75 percent of the cost of the planned expansion if the city will renew its participation agreement and contribute to the cost of the expansion.

The state of Idaho has also budgeted $14,300 for the project.

Mayor Leon Smith informed Orton that the city no longer has any obligation to participate in construction costs of the armory because it sold the land it owned surrounding the armory to CSL and transferred all obligations of its agreement with the National Guard to the college.

According to assistant city manager Tom Courtney, City Attorney Chuck Brumbach said the request agreement is no longer binding on the city.

Orton agreed and asked the council to sign a new participation agreement.

Councilman Chris Talkington said even if the council decides the city has an obligation to participate in the project, there is no money in this year's budget for that purpose. Orton was prepared for that response and said construction is over a year away and an appropriation next year would be soon enough.

Councilman Jim Smallwood asked Orton if he could complete the project without help from the city, and Orton said he could only "by knocking something out."

"I might be able to get by. I would go ahead without it if I had to," he said.

He pointed out that the planned parking lot will provide additional parking for the soon-to-be-completed Frontier Field as well as for the armory, and in response to another question added, "I don't necessarily need $6,000. I will take whatever I can get."

The council took the question under advisement and promised Orton a decision, but not necessarily any money, soon.

Twin Falls council overturns commission's sign decision

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council Monday overturned a decision of the Planning and Zoning Commission to allow three signs on a new building on Shoshone Street.

The commission recently told companies located in the Rabe Building at Shoshone Street and 11th Avenue North they could erect three signs of roughly 21 square feet each, one on each corner of the triangular building.

The building is visible from two major arterial streets, Shoshone Street and Addison Avenue, and the companies in the building wanted traffic on both streets to be able to find their offices.

The commission, which reviewed the request because the building is in the design review zone established by the zoning ordinance, decided to allow the three single signs listing the names of all the companies in the building.

But the building, which houses professional offices, constitutes a special use in the R-6 zone in which it is located. All signs for special use buildings must be approved by the city council.

The council decided three signs is too many for the building and voted 4-2 to allow only one sign on the corner of the building near the intersection of Shoshone Street and 11th Avenue.

The council also denied the request of two of the companies in the building, Allstate Insurance and Person to Person, to erect individual signs of roughly 20 square feet, fearing that forests of signs would spring up around professional buildings if they granted the request.

The council also decided that since the R-6 zones are developing rapidly, the zoning ordinance should be changed to provide for professional signs in those zones so the council will not have to consider separately each sign request.

The council instructed city administrators to include that change with other changes recommended for the zoning ordinance, which is currently undergoing a six-month review.

Commissioners in Caldwell

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners from Twin Falls will be in Caldwell today and Thursday to attend a statewide jail seminar.

Commission Chairman Merl Leonard said the three commissioners will meet with other county commissioners and sheriffs in the state to discuss jail standards and federal requirements for jail operations.

Leonard said the state "backed off" on a proposal for establishing an office of jail inspection in Idaho. Law provides county commissioners with the responsibility of inspecting the jails in their own counties and making certain they meet state and federal requirements. But the association of county officials, including sheriffs, objected to creating a state inspector to take over these duties.

Decision on Justamere Inn will be reviewed by council

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council has decided to review last week's decision by the city Planning and Zoning Commission approving renovation of the historic Justamere Inn.

At the urging of city councilman Jim Smallwood and city attorney Chuck Brumbach, the council decided to discuss at its next meeting whether to uphold the commission's decision to permit Twin Falls attorney Kent Taylor to convert the apartment building to professional offices.

In granting approval, the planning board overlooked the fact that Taylor was unable to provide the number of parking spaces required for the development by the city's zoning ordinance.

The commission indicated it gave Taylor permission because it was the only way to preserve the building, which was built in 1910 and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Smallwood, the council's liaison to the commission, told the council at a work session Monday, "The decision was based on nostalgia and not on good business sense."

He said the building's historic value is not enough reason to exempt the developer from the parking requirements of the zoning ordinance, especially when finding adequate parking is a problem afflicting all businessmen in the downtown area.

For that reason, he said, "The decision is not in the best interests of the city."

Brumbach's objections were delivered to the council by assistant city manager Tom Courtney, who said Brumbach felt the council should review the commission's decision.

Manpower up 12.8%

'78 police arrests up 47%

TWIN FALLS — Arrests by Twin Falls city police in all types of crimes rose by 47 percent in 1978 over the 1977 figures, while manpower in the department rose only 12.8 percent.

Traffic lieutenant for the department, Cliff Sharp, said 1978 is off to a good start for his division with a 61 percent increase in accidents this January over January of 1978. So far in February, Sharp said, motorists are averaging nine accidents a day with 36 investigated as of midnight Monday. During this January, largely because of the unusual weather and long periods of time with ice and snow covered streets, police investigated 239 accidents. In 1978, the first month officers investigated 148 accidents, according to Pat Hafler of the records department.

Of all of 1977, city police arrested 19,909 individuals compared to the 1978 arrests totaling 29,239. These figures include the parking meter citations, Sharp said. In 1977 there were 12,800 overtime parking violations and in 1978, 22,166, an increase of 66 percent. Sharp said this is partly due to more meters in use in the city and partly because of additional personnel working on the parking meter detail.

The total number of calls to which officers responded increased 12 percent from 15,303 in 1977 to 17,104 in 1978. Sharp said these are calls received in the station on which one or more officers were dispatched but does not include the many inquiries, license checks or other matters handled by dispatch personnel and office employees.

Moving traffic arrests totaled 1,816 in 1977 and increased to 2,399 last year, an increase of 32 percent.

Accident investigations for 1977 totaled 1,621 and in 1978, 1,708, or an increase of 11 percent.

In 1977, Sharp said, the department had 47 officers, adding six to bring the total to 53, a manpower increase of 12.8 percent.

During 1978 Tim Qualls was named chief of police, replacing retiring Frank Barnett. A revision in department heads and staff authority was made shortly before the end of the year.

Evidence decision sought

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UPI) — Justice of the Peace Nema Stafford James ruled Monday that a district judge will have to determine if four boxes of state grand jury evidence, originally thought to be shredded, can be admitted as evidence in Ed Cantrell's preliminary hearing on a murder charge.

An inventory of the four cubic feet of evidence Monday revealed "illegally scores of items material to this case," said Cantrell's chief defense attorney, Gerald Spencer. Existence of the material was revealed unexpectedly Monday by former state grand jury assistant prosecutor Fred Reed, who testified the evidence gathered by the grand jury had not been shredded by the state archives department as originally believed.

Earlier Monday, Spencer accused Sweetwater County Undersheriff Lenard Meacham of deliberately destroying a tape recording of the first interview with two witnesses to the shooting of undercover policeman Michael Ross.

The interview with Rock Springs police officers Matt Bider and James Callas was conducted by Meacham about two hours after Cantrell shot Rosa in a parked, unmarked police car the night of July 15, 1978. Bider and Callas were in the car during the shooting.

Cantrell, who is charged with first-degree murder, has said he shot Rosa in self-defense.

Spencer said the interview was vital because the "first statements by witnesses... still in the heat of the experience are generally... truthful." He then accused Meacham of destroying the tape because it would help Cantrell.

Meacham denied the charge, saying while he and Cantrell had a stormy relationship, "I bear Ed Cantrell no ill will." He said he offered the tape to Christopher Cross, deputy director of the state Criminal Investigation Division, and CID agent William Olmstead. But they refused it because they planned to conduct their own interviews with Bider and Callas, he testified.

Replanting cuts rapped by McClure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure said he wants to know how President Carter's proposed budget cuts for next year will affect the production of seedlings used for reforestation of national forest lands.

Government reports indicate that 4.7 million young trees were destroyed last year by the Forest Service because of inadequate funds for reforestation. Carter has proposed cutting reforestation money further, from the current budget of $92.9 million to $67.8 million, a reduction of more than $25 million.

McClure said he has asked for reports from the National Regional Foresters. To determine whether seedlings again will be destroyed. "Growing trees for reforestation is at the very least, a two-year operation," McClure said. "While President Carter may foreclose future generations of timber growth by trimming his budget now, I am extremely concerned if young seedlings are destroyed. They simply cannot be replaced rapidly."

Columbia channel open to shipping

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Bonneville Dam navigation, frozen to a standstill by an ice jam on the Columbia River since last Thursday, returned to near normal Tuesday after eight tugs broke through the ice Monday night.

Ed Ashley, Bonneville project engineer, said tugs and barges resumed traffic up and down river at about 7 p.m. Monday. "It is looking good," he said. "If more large ice comes down on us, we'll just have to break it out of there again."

Ice floes stacking up against the back of the dam had halted river traffic late last week, but temperatures in the high 30s Monday allowed the tugs to break up the ice.

Lab radium spilled

HONOLULU (UPI) — A small amount of radium was spilled in a Queen's Hospital lab Monday.

Dr. Carl Boyer, chief of the hospital's radiation therapy, said personnel in the lab were checked for contamination but the tests proved negative.

Boyer said the spill occurred when a technician closed a lead-lined drawer and clipped the top of a partially exposed centimeter-and-a-half long platinum capsule containing 10 milligrams of radium.

Beer bill directed at Coors

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — Coors beer would be prohibited from sale in the state of Washington if a new bill banning "unpasteurized" beer becomes law.

The measure was introduced by freshman State Rep. John Javanovich, D-Seattle. The bill is co-sponsored by State Reps. Gary Lux and Rick Bender, Seattle, and Gary Scott, Sultan, all Democrats.

The sale of Coors was authorized just two years ago after a marathon battle in the legislature over probably the most smuggled-in alcoholic in the state's history.

Javanovich said he was not inspired by pro-labor forces agitating because Coors employees voted to decertify the union last year.

"I don't belong to a union and have no quarrel with anyone on that score," said Javanovich, who is in the marine supply business.

But John Meyers, North King County Coors distributor, said the bill is "strictly a move by union-backed representatives to get Coors because 71 percent of their employees voted to decertify the union."

Meyers said he didn't know Javanovich but he did know Rick Bender's background — son of James K. Bender, president of the King County Central Labor Council — "and you know where he's coming from."

Javanovich explained his reasons for drafting the bill.

"I was apprehensive about unpasteurized beer," being a potential health hazard, he said, adding, "In the Army, once we got hold of some bad beer and it really made everybody sick."

Meyers cited the arguments two years ago which resulted in granting Coors exclusive franchises in the state.

"We didn't hear any of these arguments when Adolph Coors had a union shop two years ago."

The bill seems headed for problems, however, over whether or not Coors is pasteurized and what that term exactly means.

James Wotmack, assistant director of the State Department of Agriculture dairy foods division, said the state has minimum standards for heat pasteurization of dairy products, but nothing mentions beer.

Meyers said Coors is pasteurized by the "sterile fill" method, a process now used on milk in Europe which produces a shelf life of six weeks without refrigeration.

Hiker deaths not linked to alcohol

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — Blood tests showed Monday that alcohol was not a contributing factor in the Jan. 17 deaths of three young men in the rugged mountains near Rose Lake.

A broken vodka bottle found near the body of one of the young men led investigators to suspect alcohol may have contributed to the tragic end of what began as a recreational outing.

But Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Hooker said the tests showed a sparse .02 percent alcohol in the blood of one of the victims and none in the blood of the others. The three — George Bornitz, 24, Gary Lee Goodson, 21, and Terry Goodson, 19, all Rose Lake — froze to death while snowshoeing in the Rose Lake area.

Thieves take 'youth drug'

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Thieves climbed a barbed wire fence and chopped their way through a wooden door and made off with 25,000 capsules of the so-called "youth drug" Gerovital from the Rom-Amor Pharmaceutical plant Monday.

Rom-Amor is the only Gerovital plant in the country and officials say the capsules would have been sold for $15,000 but could go for double that on the black market.

Pharmacies in surrounding states have been notified of the theft. Meanwhile in Reno, Wes McVey, executive director of the Washoe County Medical Society, says he doesn't know any physicians who are prescribing Gerovital, despite an advertising campaign.

Kenneth Shoenrock, president of the Northern Nevada Pharmaceutical Society, says he thinks there may be only a limited number of druggists stocking the drug.

Rom-Amor has advertised there are about 17 pharmacies in Reno carrying Gerovital and 11 doctors in Northern and Central Nevada willing to prescribe the drug.

Wrestling leads to Burley, Declo, Gooding

By LARRY HOVEY

BUHL — Declo, Burley and Gooding came out of the abbreviated first round of the combined district wrestling tournament with team leads Tuesday night.

Declo piled up 24 points to lead the A-3 division, followed by Kimberly at 19, Valley 16, Filer 10, Glens Ferry 6, Oakley 5 and Wendell 2. In the A-1 division, Burley jumped into a big lead at 17½, followed by Twin Falls at 6 and Minico with 4.

most of the crowd had left, moved into the lead with 17 points while favored Jerome had 16 and Buhl, the team voted most likely to succeed should Jerome-Faller, had 14. Wood-River was in fourth place with 7.

The first round was mostly a matter of straightening out the innumerable byes in the unfilled weights. Action resumes at 4 p.m. with the championship semi-finals in all three divisions. The A-1 schools will lead it off with the A-2s going at 5 p.m. and the A-3s at 6 p.m. consolation play where the once beaten wrestlers try to stay alive.

The championships, team and individual, will be concluded Thursday night beginning at 5 p.m. with A-3, A-2 and A-1 finals being wrestled. The A-1 and A-2 wrestleoffs, pitting the second and third places, will be held after that.

The A-2s from this area will send their first and second places in each weight to the state in Nampa next week. The A-2 runners-up will meet the third place individuals from the third district while the A-3 fourth district third place will meet third district third places in a special wrestleoff at Mountain Home Saturday afternoon. The winner of those will move on to state, along with the champions.

The A-3 class provided one surprise when defending state heavyweight titlist, Curtis Gorringer, didn't show up. Oakley school officials said he had been dropped from the team for disciplinary reasons.

In a sidelight, Kimberly Coach Pat Vallant was called away from the gymnasium between sessions due to a fire in his home.

Wood River coach Terry Tracy tried in vain to inspire her team

By RANDY FRYE
Times-News writer

BUHL — There were two completely different basketball games Tuesday night in the girls A-2 district basketball tournament here.

Game number one was a high-scoring, run and gun, lots of fouls-type game in which Jerome outlasted Wood River 57-51, while game number two saw little or no fouls, plenty of good defense and a 32-23 Buhl win over Gooding.

With the win, Buhl advances to the tournament finals Thursday against the winner of the Jerome-Gooding game tonight. Wood River is eliminated from the tournament. It was one of those nights for Gooding in which everything the Senators seemed to throw up trickled off the rim instead of going through the net. Gooding Coach Karen Tressel would probably attribute it to poor luck while Buhl coach Tom Chivers said it was good defense.

"We're a defensive team, not an offensive team," he said. "When we beat them earlier in the year we did it with defense, when they beat us they won big."

Chivers was happy to be playing at home, saying it meant a lot to his girls to have the crowd behind them.

The first two and one-half minutes of the game went by without a basket scored before Buhl's Sid Howard grabbed an offensive rebound and followed it in for the game's first points.

Before Gooding could get on the scoreboard with just over a minute to go, Buhl had an 8-0 lead, and the Indians led 10-4 at the end of one period.

Buhl made it 20-13 at the intermission, and each team scored two baskets in a cold-shooting third period. Tenison mounted in the closing minutes as Gooding twice closed the gap to seven points and had opportunities to get even closer only to have the ball refuse to fall through the hoop.

Buhl's Elaine Hellwig led all scorers with 10 points while teammate Ruth Nelson had eight.

By contrast, Lori Garrison was the high scorer in the first game of the night, and she did it with 22 points to spark her Jerome Tigers to victory.

It was a game which saw three girls foul out, two in the third period.

Jerome coach Wes Gates, whose Tigers lost to Gooding 54-52 in overtime in round one, was worried about his girls letting down late in the game as had happened a night earlier. His fears almost came true.

"We couldn't make a foul shot last night and Gooding made all of their's," Gates said. "We practiced free throws today."

Things looked comfortable going into the final quarter against Wood River, the Tigers up by 12 points.

But then came three of four missed foul shots, a couple of turnovers and just like that it was 54-40 Jerome with only two minutes to play.

But Garrison, who was all over the court both offensively and defensively, broke the ice by hitting both ends of a one and one situation and Shellie Box hit another foul shot to give the Tigers the win.

Tonight's Jerome-Gooding game is set for 8 p.m. in the new Buhl gymnasium, with the championship game scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m. If a second championship game is necessary, it will be played Friday night.

Eagles to face Utah Tech

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho opens a two-game week tonight when the Golden Eagles host Utah Tech but the big game of the week comes Friday when Treasure Valley comes to town.

Additionally, the CSI girls hit their first two "must" games for regional purposes when they entertain Ricks at 6 p.m. today and Treasure Valley at the same time Friday.

CSI already holds a victory over Utah Tech, winning the game in Utah against the Provo school. But Coach Mike Mitchell said something new is added for this one — the return of Matt Midgley to the Utah Tech lineup. Midgley missed the first CSI encounter due to a broken hand. He was the team's top scorer last year and since returning to the lineup has scored well.

"I remember him from last year. He's a good shooter," Coach Mitchell said. "How much he improves the team is the question. I'm certain he would have to improve them at least some."

The other guard is Gary Gardner, a 6-0 guard, while 6-8 Ron Walker is in the middle. With Midgley out, Utah Tech's best scoring against CSI was provided by guards Ron Tait and Phil Ratnes. Tait, 6-5, scored 16 while Ratnes had the great first half with 15 points, although the Eagles contained him with just one point in the second half.

"We are expecting a zone defense," Coach

Mitchell said to the surprise of no one. "I know they would like to run with the ball."

In Treasure Valley CSI faces one of those "must" games since it will count toward which teams will enter and which will host the regional tournament.

The CSI girls face those matches in both outings. Ricks probably will be a strong team while the strength of Treasure Valley isn't known.

Coach Lloyd Hardesty and his girls have to win at home. But they will not be playing for the host designation. The women's regional already has been sited in the Montana-Wyoming district although the town hasn't been selected.

Shoshone captures state tourney bid by downing Filer

WENDELL — Shoshone outlasted Filer 46-43 in overtime Tuesday night to win a berth in next week's state A-3 girls basketball tournament.

Karen Magoffin provided the punch to the Indians' attack as she collected 18 points and hit a shot as the buzzer sounded in regulation time to send the game into an extra period.

For Filer, it was a disappointing end to a successful season, as the team had tied for first with Shoshone and Valley.

With the win, Shoshone earns the right to go with Valley to the state tournament Feb. 15, 16, and 17.

But first it must meet Valley tonight in a "playoff" for the seeding. If Shoshone wins, another game will be played Thursday evening, but if Valley wins then the Vikings take the top seed.

Shoshone jumped to a 30-23 halftime lead, and it looked like it might coast in with the victory. Filer's leading scorer, Debbie Allen, collected four fouls in the first quarter and had to sit out most of the second and third quarters. She eventually fouled after scoring eight points in the fourth quarter.

Filer also lost two other girls to fouls. But the Indians were also having their foul problems as Brenda Webb also was "lost" to fouls before the overtime period.

In that overtime session, Shoshone scored with 59 seconds left to take a 45-43 lead. Filer was unable to find the bucket, and with a "second" left Magoffin clinched the victory with a free throw.

In the junior varsity portion of the tourney, Kimberly edged Filer 25-20 for the championship.

Minico's defense too much for Twin Falls girls

RUPERT — The Minico girls came out in a tough, aggressive defense Tuesday night to snuff past Twin Falls 54-37 and into the finals of the district A-1 girls basketball tournament.

The result means a re-pairing of the first round Wednesday night when Twin Falls returns a visit to Burley. The Bruins edged the Bobcats in the first meeting Monday in Twin Falls. The loser Wednesday night goes to the sidelines while the winner will entertain Minico Thursday. The Spartans now must lose both Thursday and Friday to miss on the championship and trip to the state tournament next week.

Minico's smothering defense never let Twin Falls get its offense rolling. However, it did give the Bruins an opportunity to win the game at the free throw line but they couldn't capitalize on it. Twin Falls' best chance came in the first half when Minico Totals presented them with 23 free throws — most of the bonus variety — but the Bruins hit just eight of 23 from the line. For the night Twin Falls was 15 for 41. Minico didn't have nearly as many chances at the foul line but held the lead throughout the game. The Spartans jumped into a five-point lead in the second quarter and pretty well marked time for a six-point intermission lead. It all turned Minico's way in the third period when the Spartans racked up 13 points while

Twin Falls managed just seven. It was a repeat in the fourth quarter. Minico having its best eight-minutes of the night for 19 points and blowing easily into the victory. Minico's Jayvees made it a sweep winning the first game 31-29 in overtime.

Twin Falls	5	16	23	37
Minico	10	22	35	54
Twin Falls — Catham 7, Muldoon 2, Harr 14, Kaiken 7, Shelby 3, Atkinson 1, Proctor 2. Minico — Jensen 11, McIhan 10, Brown 6, Ross 10, Shockey 4, Thurston 4, Kaddel 4, Goodman 4, Davis 2.

Murtaugh tops Pirates; nears league crown

MURTAUGH - The Murtaugh Red Devils led all in defeating Hagerman 62-60 Tuesday night and moved to within a win Friday night of the Magic Valley Conference basketball championship.

Bill Buckley worked the inside for 25 points and game honors while Hagerman's attack was hurt when center Brad Gough fouled out. However, Bob Pepper came up with his best night of the season, hitting 19 points, to keep Hagerman from completely falling out of it.

The barburner came in the preliminary where Hagerman posted a 73-70 victory in three overtimes.

Mt. Home 56, Glenns Ferry 49

MOUNTAIN HOME - The Mountain Home Tigers took advantage of a mid-game cold streak by Glenns Ferry and took a 56-49 decision Tuesday night.

Glenns Ferry led the A-1 Tigers 13-11 at the end of the first quarter but then ran into all kinds of shooting misery. The Pirates hit only three of 29 field goal attempts in the middle quarter and when the final period started the Tigers held a 45-26 advantage.

Glenns Ferry sliced back with a 23-point fourth period but never was able to challenge.

Raft River 52, Burley Jrs. 45

MALTA - The Raft River Trojans turned back a slowdown by the Burley juniors to take a 52-45 decision Tuesday night.

The Trojans kept the tempo going fairly well with an aggressive defense and broke things open in the third quarter. Burley had led 20-17 going into the decisive period but Raft River scored 19 points while Burley could muster but six.

In the final period Raft River slowed down the tempo to waste out the clock.

E. Minico beats Stuart

RUPERT - East Minico rallied from behind in the closing minutes to overturn the Robert Stuart Junior High School freshmen 49-46 Tuesday afternoon.

Stuart leaped into a 13-point lead by scoring 21 points in the second quarter but East kept coming back, especially in the third period when it turned some turnovers into a 15-point quarter.

Stuart's eighth grade, paced by Brock Miller's 14 points, won its game 46-39.

Top Idaho boxers set for Saturday

TWIN FALLS - A "strong lineup" of state and national boxers have been announced for Saturday night's fights at the College of Southern Idaho.

"There will be a lot of champions coming in," said Dick Adams, organizer of the fights. "Many of these fighters will be participating in the golden glove championships a month from now."

In addition, Adams said the Lewiston boxing club will be sending about six fighters to Twin Falls. This will be the first time these boxers will be fighting in the local area, he noted.

"It's going to be a good bunch of fights," he said, "and ticket sales are starting. There is 8 p.m. at the CSI gymnasium with advance tickets available at Newton's Sports Center, Donnelly's, CSI and at the door."

Tentatively lined up to fight are: Rich Anderson (Meridian) vs. Gus Hernandez (Lewiston); Chance Reese (Meridian) vs. Mike Grow (Lewiston); Rick Adams (Twin Falls) vs. John Williams (Meridian); Mike Brennan (Boise) vs. Chris Harbaugh (Gooding); John Q. Hardy (Meridian) vs. Henry Chavez (Blackfoot); Val Eddy (Boise) vs. Doug Dollinger (Blackfoot); Mark Knapp (Twin Falls) vs. Dave Trimble (Boise); George Knapp (Twin Falls) vs. Mark Thompson (Pocatello); and Monte Anderson (Boise) vs. Reid Dykeman (Pocatello).

Other possible fighters include Lloyd Ulbarri and Chad Hickey, both of Meridian.

Fairbanks won't coach for team next year

BOSTON (UPI) - Chuck Fairbanks, barred by court order from coaching at the University of Colorado, would join the unemployment ranks unless the order is overturned, a university official said Tuesday.

Early Cooley told the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals a lower court injunction prohibiting Fairbanks from taking the Colorado job "removes his only employment alternative."

He said Fairbanks, who announced last week he was quitting the New England Patriots, has no desire to return to the professional coaching ranks.

"It's the only game in town argument," Cooley said. "The injunction forecloses to him the only job around. There has never been the slightest doubt he is through with professional football. He wants to return to the college ranks."

Judge Bailey Aldrich noted Fairbanks felt the same way in 1977, the year the coach signed a five-year contract extension with the Patriots.

The court took the arguments under advisement and gave no indication when it would rule.

Fairbanks informed the Patriots shortly after the Jan. 29 Pro Bowl game that he was no longer working for the NFL club, even though there are four years left on his contract. But the Patriots have blocked Fairbanks' intended move to CU through court action in Massachusetts and Colorado.

New England attorney John Blish disputed Cooley's arguments, saying he felt the lower court injunction "prevents the irreparable harm which will exist" should Fairbanks leave.

Walker sparks Cavs rally

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) - Fouts Walker came off the bench to trigger a 37-point third period and John Lambert pulled down 22 rebounds Tuesday night to spark the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 119-109 victory over the New Jersey Nets.

Walker, who missed the last four games with a knee injury, entered with 7:40 left in the third period and the Cavs trailing 62-61. In the next four minutes, he led an 18-3 Cleveland spree as the Cavaliers set the Nets, to their fifth straight loss.

Seven Cleveland players scored in double figures. Campy Russell finished with 19 points, including 11 in the second half, and Bobby Smith added 17.

The Nets, rebounded 59-58, were paced by Eddie Jordan with 18 points and Eric Money with 16.

26 points. New York's Earl Monroe came off the bench for 9 points and the Knicks outscored Seattle 18-4 to build an eight-point edge and an eventual 56-51 halftime lead. The score was tied seven-times in the third period before Glenn and Williams combined in a late surge to give New York an 85-81 advantage going into the fourth quarter.

Atlanta 104, Boston 100

ATLANTA (UPI) - John Drew scored 23 points and Atlanta limited Boston to 43 points in the second half Tuesday night when the Hawks registered a 104-101 victory over the Celtics.

Drew, who scored Atlanta's last six points, was aided by Eddie Johnson with 18 and Steve Havens with 17, offsetting a game-high 27 points by Boston's Cedric Maxwell.

Boston took a 35-25 first-period lead and expanded it to 12 points shortly before halftime. But six straight points by Atlanta cut Boston's lead to 58-52 at intermission. Atlanta tied it 65-65 on Drew's jumper with 6:51 left in the third period, and the Hawks' preceding defense carried them to an 82-77 lead going into the fourth period.

Boston fell behind by as many as nine points midway in the final period, but the Celtics closed within three with 2:19 remaining. Drew then took command, scoring 4 points in 14 seconds.

New York 108, Seattle 99

NEW YORK (UPI) - Mike Glenn scored a season-high 25 points Tuesday night, including 17 in the second half, to help the New York Knicks to a 108-99 victory over the Pacific Division-leading Seattle SuperSonics.

Bob McAdoo also scored 25 points and Ray Williams added 17, including 13 in the second half, as the Knicks posted their third straight victory after a six-game losing streak.

Gus Williams, who scored eight of the Sonics' first 10 points and sparked a 10-4 run to lead Seattle to a 20-12 lead in their first 7:30 of play, paced Seattle with

CSI falls to 17th in poll

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) - On the strength of a 24-0 record, Navarro College at Corsicana, Texas, retained its top spot in the National Junior College Athletic Association basketball ratings Tuesday for the fourth week.

Southern Idaho at Twin Falls, 29-2, ranked sixth last week, fell to No. 17 despite winning four games.

Navarro received 191 points and 12 first-place votes in balloting by 22 regional NJCAA directors to stay ahead of Westchester of Valhalla, N.Y., whose 19-0 record earned 172 points and four first-place votes.

Moving up to third the week from fourth was Dodge City, Kan., 23-1, while Panola of Carthage, Texas, 23-3, slipped down one notch. Hounding out the top five was Three Rivers of Poplar Bluff, Mo., 23-1, which had been tied for eighth.

Brevard Junior College of Cocoa, Fla., split two games to fall one spot to sixth with a 16-2 record, and Chattanooga Valley of Placetas City, Ala., hung onto its seventh spot for the third week with three wins and a 21-1 record. In eighth was North Idaho at Coeur d'Alene, 20-2, which moved from 14th in losing its only game last week. Ninth was the Community College of Baltimore, 20-2, down one rung from a tie for eighth last week.

Moving up to 10th from a tie for No. 10 was Edinboro, Pa., 22-2.

Pittsburgh-Bradford, Pa., fell one notch to No. 11 this week with an 11-0 record. Staying at No. 12 was Western Texas at Snyder, 20-2, and again at No. 13 was Niagara of Sanborn, N.Y., 13-2. Southeastern West Burlington, Iowa, moved up from eighteenth to No. 14 on the strength of one win to 19-1.

Tied for No. 15 Tuesday with identical 17-4 records were Mercer County of Trenton, N.J., previously tied for No. 13, and Jackson, Mich., moving up from a tie for sixteenth last week.

Cowley County at Arkansas City, Kan., won two games to 20-2 but dropped from No. 15 to eighteenth, barely ahead of two newcomers to the poll. Suomi Junior College at Hancock, Mich., used its 13-0 record to gain the No. 19 spot, while at the bottom of the top 20 was Tunxis Community College at Farmington, Conn., 12-2.

Chattanooga, North Idaho, Baltimore-Podunk, Western-Texas and Tunxis each received one first-place vote in the balloting.

Dade, Dean take first in handball

IDAHO FALLS - Playing handball together for the first time worked like a charm for Ray Dade and Wayne Deano on twins Friday evening.

The doubles team captured first place in the St. Valentines Tournament at the Idaho Falls YMCA last weekend.

Dade, 27, and Dean, 33, hadn't even played doubles together until they got on the court last week for the eight-team tournament.

"That's the funny thing about it," said Dade. "We just decided to give it a try."

Dade and Dean made it look easy in their first three matches as they didn't lose a game in the championship - match, winning - came together as they had to go to a tie breaker to down Kurt Melnes of Boise and Jim Wright of Idaho Falls.

Final scores were 21-13, 17-21, 11-3. Dean also placed third in the singles competition.

Spartan women want same treatment as men

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday issued a temporary restraining order barring Michigan State University from treating members of its women's varsity basketball team differently than members of its men's squad.

U.S. District Judge Noel P. Fox, in a hearing conducted by telephone, ordered MSU to allow the women players the same amount of money for meals on road trips and the same sleeping accommodations afforded men.

A $500 bond was to be filed with the court and a show-cause hearing scheduled later.

The ruling came in a complaint filed Monday by the 12-member women's varsity basketball team charging MSU and its board of trustees with practicing sex discrimination. "If these girls are going to play a rough game then they do need proper rest and proper nutrition," Fox said in issuing the order.

The women asked that the university be prevented from continuing its discrimination against women athletes and that compensatory and exemplary damages be awarded.

The National Organization for Women picked Michigan as its pilot state to test Implementation of Title IX which requires equal educational opportunities regardless of sex.

"Over the past 10 months the team and its members have repeatedly complained to Michigan State University, its board of trustees, its administrators and to state and federal agencies about practices and policies of the university which deprive team members of equal opportunity in athletics," the complaint charged.

The complaint said the budget for the varsity men's basketball program for the 1978-79 school year is about $120,000, plus scholarships and coaching salaries, while the budget for the women's program is $13,500.

"Among the complaints for which plaintiffs and former team members have sought relief since March 1978 is the difference in meal and room allowances (provided male and female players)," the complaint said.

The complaint said women are allowed only $11 a day for food and must sleep four to a room when they are playing a road game, while men are allowed $16 a day for food and sleep two to a room.

The women charge, among other things, that their 12-member team is allowed only 18 pairs of shoes per season while the 15-member men's team is allowed 120 pairs. The women also noted they must drive by car to their road games while the men fly.

The women first filed an informal sex-discrimination complaint with the MSU Department of Intercollegiate Athletics on March 7, 1978.

The complaint was presented to the school's board of trustees and also was filed with the MSU Anti-Discrimination Judicial Board and with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

NHL All Stars Bobby Clarke and Borge Salming are all smiles at practice session Monday

NHL readies for Russians

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scotty Bowman spent Tuesday tackling a task he knows to be largely impossible: making a team out of 25 NHL players.

This is the routine coaching predicament for All-Star games. But this All-Star setup is anything but routine.

When the NHL plays three games for the Challenge Cup beginning Thursday, it will be facing a Soviet National team that has practiced intensively for five weeks. All the players grew up in this same system. Some, like Boris Mikhailov, Vladimir Petrov, and Valeri Kharlamov, know each other from years on the same line.

Bowman did not attempt to minimize the problem. He did not even hurry for a solution, even though only two days remain.

"We haven't even tried to form lines," he reported after glancing at a few forward line combinations. "All you can do is be patient. We have a few guys who played together on their own teams."

Those include team captain Bobby Clarke and Bill Barber of Philadelphia, Darryl Sittler and Lanny McDonald of Toronto, Steve Shutt and Guy Lafleur of Montreal, Ulf Nilsson and Anders Hedberg of the New York Rangers, and the New York Islanders' intact trio of Bryan Trottier, Mike Bossy, and Clark Gillies.

Bowman will encourage each line to play its own style. Four different approaches to the game will not help team cohesiveness, but the coach feels he must make some compromises.

"What they do during the season is what they do best," he said. "We like them to do certain things, but there is no point in asking a player to do something that will hurt his own effectiveness."

On defense Bowman faces even more problems since the only combo with any working experience together is his Canadian team of Larry Robinson and Serge Savard. Ron Greschner, delayed in Edmonton, did not skate. Nor did Denis Potvin, inconvenienced by a fire in his apartment.

Bowman may need his strong checker, Bob Gainey, as a defenseman, and he will not hesitate to use him in that role.

"A lot depends on what happens with Potvin," he said. "If he can play, we'll put him with Borge Salming. I'd like to keep Savard and Robinson together."

Assistant Coach Harry Sinden believes if anyone can make sense out of the roster it is Bowman, who has coached Montreal to three straight Stanley Cups.

"He's a good hockey man," said Sinden. "He's able to analyze the game. He gathers all the information together, then decides."

The Soviets themselves may help the decision.

"They have pretty good balance," conceded Bowman. "There is the Kharlamov line, and the (VIKTOR ZHUKOV-SERGEI KAPUSTIN-HELMUT BALDERS) line. Another line scored nine goals in four games."

"We can't afford to put all our checkers together."

"I think Scotty wants to put at least one solid defensive player on each line," added Sinden. "That would put Gainey on one line, Clarke on another, and Don Marcotte on another."

While they ponder these points, NHL officials are busy with other upsetting thoughts. They feel a suspiciously smooth complexion to the Soviet workouts.

"They're just fooling-around-out there," said Sinden. "I feel they're going to do something different. They may go with four forwards and one defenseman. I don't mean the same extra-forward playing defense. I mean four guys attacking with just one back."

This just complicates Bowman's job. Not only must he give some cohesion to the NHL, but he must also figure what the Soviets are doing.

"At analyzing the opposition," Sinden said, "he's the best there is."

At this rate, he's also the busiest.

First time winner

SHIRLEY CARDWELL

By GARY ELIASSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Five years ago Shirley Cardwell of Twin Falls didn't even do much bowling.

But last weekend she won her first major tournament and took home the top prize in the Women's State Bowling Association scratch tournament at Miller's Magic Bowl.

"It's the first tournament I've ever entered," said the 165 average bowler who got her start in bowling when she and her husband were looking for an activity five years ago.

Cardwell won $419 for first place in the tournament. Total purse was $1,632.

Though she had bowled in the first four scratch tournaments around the state, this was her first good showing. Her average in gaining the victory was 193 and gained her a second place in the qualifying round behind Kay

Harris of Boise.

But in the roll-off competition, Cardwell defeated Harris 167 to 152 for first place.

In other scores during the qualifying round, Ada Baum of Boise beat Deanne Moore of Twin Falls 197 to 101, Ruth Brown of Fayette beat Baum 171 to 162, and Cardwell beat Brown 234 to 148.

In the men's competition at Bowladrome, Ltd., E.C. Cullen of Boise captured the top prize by downing Bob Bywater of Rupert 174 to 166.

In the qualifying rounds, Bywater had been in first place with a scratch score of 1759, Ron Hendricks of Pocatello was second with 1,671, Ray French, third, 1,650, Cullen, fourth, at 1,648, and Jim Jacobsen of Boise, fifth, 1,645.

There were 172 entries in this event and more than $3,500 worth of prize money was awarded. Barton's Club 93 contributed another $200.

Bengals go on road for game with Boise

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho State is finding out fast there is no rest for the weary. The Bengals, coming off a pair of conference losses last weekend, travel to Boise Thursday for a game against Boise State — which upset the league-leading Weber State last week. The Bengals then return home to face the scoring Nevada-Las Vegas. The Bengals fell into a three-way tie for second in the Big Sky Conference after dropping an overtime squeaker 76-75 to Northern Arizona, then losing to Weber State 85-68. And coach Lynn Archibald knows his hands are full. "It's a battle to get to the playoffs and we have the biggest battle of them all," he said. "We have to win both our home games and two of three on the road to be assured of getting in the playoffs. That would put us second or third. A 7-7 mark would probably tie for fourth." BSU coach Jim Criner, whose Broncos are in last place with a 3-6 conference record, also is concerned. "We need to play as hard as we did the last time we played ISU and play with consistency," he said.

Golf course to get mower

TWIN FALLS — One percent fervor failed Monday to clip out of the city budget a mower to clip the greens at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

When Assistant City Manager Tom Courtney asked the city council to approve the expenditure of $4,795 for a greens mower, council member Mary McClusky asked the council to postpone approving the request.

McClusky, chairman of a committee investigating where the city can make cuts to help prepare for the implementation of the 1 percent initiative, said the purchase of the mower should wait until the committee's report is submitted.

Courtney pointed out that the money for the mower was provided in the current city budget, and he added that $4,795 is an excellent price for the mower, a price the city will not be able to match later.

Councilman Bud Cheney observed, "You can't run a golf course without a greens mower," and moved approval of the request. The council approved the request 5-2, with McClusky and Chris Talkington casting the only dissenting votes.

Hoyt outstanding wrestler

BOISE (UPI) — John Hoyt of Northern Arizona used four dual match victories to earn Big Sky Conference wrestler of the week honors for the second time this season.

The 126-pounder scored a pin, two superior decisions, and a decision over opponents from New Mexico, Arizona, Southern Utah, and New Mexico Highlands as he improved his record to 11-3-1.

Hoyt beat out Idaho State's Dave Pacheco and Boise State's Scott Barrett for the honor. Both won two matches last week.

The trackster of the week honor went to Bob Peterson of Idaho. The junior high jumper cleared a lifetime best and school record of 7-1 1/2 in the Golden Bear Indoor Track Meet at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Also considered for the honor were Doug Beckman of Idaho, Ezzard Wilson and Dennis Smith of Idaho State, Steve Collier of Boise State, Dave Scully of Montana State, and Craig Fletcher of Weber State.

Roth tops bowling

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Mark Roth was the overwhelming choice as 1978 Bowler of the Year in a vote by members of the Professional Bowlers Association. The Sporting News announced today.

Roth, of North Arlington, N.J., received 517 votes out of 555 cast. Earl Anthony received 20 votes, Tommy Hudson six and the rest were scattered.

Roth, who also won the honor the previous year, captured $134,000 in prize money and rolled a record high average of more than 219 in 1,047 games.

Joe Groskind, a 30-year-old native of Memphis, Tenn., was named PBA rookie of the year. He averaged 209 in 25 tournaments, winning $20,370.

Minter unanimous winner

LONDON (UPI) — European middleweight champion Alan Minter of Britain Tuesday scored a unanimous verdict over one-time contender Rudy Robles of the United States to boost his hopes of taking Argentinian Hugo Carr's world title in the fall.

The British fighter maintained a steady barrage of jabs and body blows but the Mexican-born American from California took it all and often surprised Minter with some high looping haymakers in a bruising ten-round encounter.

Daniel leads LPGA

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Beth Daniel fired a 2-over-par 74 Tuesday to take one-stroke lead after the first round of the 72-hole Ladies Professional Golf Association's winter qualifying tournament.

Daniel, the 1975 and 1977 U.S. Amateur champion from Charleston, S.C., toured the 6,100-yard Bent Tree Golf and Racquet Club course in 38-36.

One stroke back at 75 was Marga Stubbelfield of Kailua, Hawaii.

Evans, McClure to highlight wildlife confab

By GARY ELIASSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Gov. John Evans and U.S. Sen. James McClure will be the featured speakers during the state convention of the Idaho Wildlife Federation Feb. 16-18 at the Holiday Inn.

Gov. Evans will speak to the group at a luncheon scheduled for noon on Feb. 17, while Sen. McClure's talk is set for the banquet that evening at 7.

According to Donald Zuck, state president of the wildlife federation, more than 100 people are expected to attend. He said the federation is the largest conservation education-oriented group in the state.

The group attempts to create an awareness among people for the wise use and proper management of the earth's resources including soil, water, air, forests, minerals, plant life and wildlife.

Persons representing the state Fish and Game Department, Bureau of Land Management, Idaho Conservation League, and the forest service are expected to speak.

Following a welcoming ceremony by Twin Falls Mayor

Leon Smith, the convention will get underway Feb. 16 at 1:30 p.m. with a presentation by Albert Van S. Pulling, professor emeritus of biology at Idaho State University. He will present a paper on population, education and natural resources.

At 2 p.m., a panel discussion on South Idaho's fish-farming is planned. Panel members will include Orville Bradley, director of CSI's vocational technical program; Terry Patterson, instructor for CSI's fish technology program; Larry Cope, of the Clear Springs Trout Co.; William Webb, regional director of the Idaho Fish and Game's Jerome office; and Edward C. Shokal, a retired Hagerman exploratory research chemist.

At 3:45 p.m., Don Martin, fishery biologist and water quality specialist with the state water quality bureau, will give a slide presentation on national forest road development. He will discuss the impact on water quality and fish habitat in some roaded water sheds versus some unroaded stream habitat in the Clearwater Drainage.

Dennis Swisher, a rancher and cattleman from Jordan Valley, Ore., will talk about "Resource Values Needing Protection" in the Owyhee and Bruneau Rivers at 4:30.

That evening the organization will meet in committees and discuss proposed resolutions.

On Feb. 17, Ed Schneegas, director of wildlife in Region One of the U.S. Forest Service in Missoula, Mont., will open that day's activities at 8:30 by discussing elk timber management relations.

He will be followed at 9:30 by a panel discussion on the "Challis Issue." Moderator will be Phillip W. Schneider, Portland, Ore., northwest regional executive of the national wildlife federation. Panelists will include William Meiners, vice president of Idaho Wildlife Federation; J.W. (Bill) Swan, president of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association; William Matthews, director of the state Bureau of Land Management; and Walt Bodie, regional wildlife biologist.

At 11:30, Joseph Greeley, director of the Idaho Fish and Game Department will speak, followed by the noon talk by Gov. Evans.

The afternoon will include E. Randall Johnson, president of the Idaho Honey Producers Association and owner of Honeygold Corp. of Nampa; and a panel discussion on the Sawtooth National Forest, Cassia Division with Donald Aldrich, regional director of the national wildlife federation as moderator and panelists Gary Richardson of Boise, organizer of the Idaho Conservation League; Jack Hougard of Twin Falls, forest planner for the Sawtooth National Forest; Carl Nellis of Jerome, wildlife research biologist for the fish and game; and Marvin Taylor, irrigator and agriculturist for the soil and water conservation district.

At 4 p.m. Aldrich Bowler, of Billis, will present research which was done by his son, Dr. Peter Bowler, assistant dean of environmental sciences at the University of California at Irvine. The paper deals with the environmental impact of the proposed Wiley Dam near Bliss.

An overview of the wildlife federation will be presented in a film at 4:30.

Sen. James McClure will highlight the evening at 7, followed by an awards presentation.

On Feb. 18, the convention will close with election of delegates for the national convention and choosing of new officers.

Minimum flow legislation not introduced this year

By RANDY EREY
Times-News writer

JEROME — Minimum flow on Silver Creek will not become a reality this year, but if the Department of Water Resources pursues the matter further it could come about by early 1980.

By law, a minimum flow proposal had to be introduced to the state legislature within the first five days of its session to be considered for this year.

Stu Murrell, regional conservation educator for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, said it was not introduced and will thus have to wait until next year.

The Department of Water Resources conducted the state's first minimum flow hearing Jan. 11 in Hailey City, Hall.

Silver Creek was the topic of discussion, and in particular protecting its fish and wildlife habitat, water quality and recreational value.

The Silver Creek applications would establish a minimum flow of 99 cubic feet per second at a point near Pico, and a flow of 74 cubic feet per second near Highway 93 close to Carey.

Murrell said minimum flow would help protect and maintain the fishery and help provide sufficient water for migrating rainbow and brown trout which inhabit Silver Creek and the Little Wood River.

The state legislature enacted last year a water plan which enables the Department of Water Resources to grant minimum flow water rights on state streams to the Idaho Water Resources Board.

Previously, there were no provisions for establishing minimum flows for fishery or other recreational uses of Idaho waters.

Silver Creek was the first minimum flow hearing brought before the Department of Water Resources, and its success or failure will set a precedent for other top quality waters in the state, Murrell said.

Fish and game Winter feeding not easy

TWIN FALLS — Winter feeding of pheasants and other small game is difficult and expensive, according to Gary Will, Region 4 game manager.

Since the game are spread over a large area, the extreme cold can also cause death even if there is an adequate food supply, he noted.

"This is particularly true for valley quail and chukar partridge," he said. "For example, quail were found frozen to death along the Clearwater River during the severe winter of 1968-69 even though they had full crops. Temperatures of 20 below zero were recorded during that period."

Will said the present winter illustrates the need for good winter cover in the Magic Valley to protect the birds from the cold. Many areas of Region 4 are lacking in this vital part of the pheasant habitat.

"About 50 pheasants were observed utilizing a cover patch only 30 yards across that remained in a circular sprinkler area in Golden Valley," Will said.

Lack of adequate cover also exposes them to greater predation by hawks, owls, eagles, and coyotes.

A study conducted in South Dakota in the 1960's showed that spring pheasant populations were about the same on a large area in which feeding had been attempted the past winter as compared to a similar area nearby in which no feed had been distributed. It also proved to be prohibitive as to the costs involved per pheasant saved.

"There is an annual die off each year in a small game population of about 75 percent. This occurs from freezing, starving, disease, and predators whether or not they are hunted. Fortunately, small game populations have the ability to bounce back rapidly if spring nesting conditions are favorable," he said.

Will said a person who wishes to feed pheasants on their property should locate the feed away from roadsides to prevent additional mortality from vehicles. They should also provide grit along with the feed to lure the birds away from gravelled roadsides. All types of small grains are suitable for upland game bird feed.

"This ATA trapshoot is designed for all new shooters as well as for the more experienced ones," he said. "There will be a total of 300 ATA registered targets."

Water quality on agenda

TWIN FALLS — A program on water quality will be presented Tuesday during the Twin Falls Fish and Wildlife Conservation Corporation meeting.

The presentation will be given by the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Twin Falls Fish Hatchery on Canyon Street.

Crater conditions good

TWIN FALLS — Snow conditions for cross-country skiing, snowshoeing and other winter activities at Craters of the Moon National Monument are now considered fair to good.

According to Neil King, acting superintendent, recent snows have resulted in a snowpack of 10 to 15 inches.

The seven-mile loop road through the monument is closed to vehicles and makes a natural ski trail. Skiing off the road is not advised because of the sharp, fragmented lava that covers most of the monument, he said.

The lava rock and hidden caverns may damage skis or result in injury to a skier who falls.

Overnight camping is permitted within the monument, but because the campground is not plowed, visitors will be camping in the snow. Woodfires are not permitted within the monument and the use of gas stoves is suggested.

The visitor center is open every day except for holidays. Current weather, skiing conditions and other information can be obtained by calling the monument headquarters at 208-527-3257.

Service looks at streams

PORTLAND, Ore. — Ways of reserving instream flows for fish and wildlife have been identified by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The information is contained in a series of 13 reports under a study announced by Lynn Greenwall, director of the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Through its Western Water Allocation Project, the service has identified the existing laws, procedures and methods for reserving the flows of western streams and rivers to protect fish and wildlife.

The 13 states in the report include California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

"Diversion of water from streams and rivers is one of the greatest threats to fish and wildlife in the water-short West," said Greenwall. "In the allocation of water under western state law in the past, fish and wildlife have generally been given little or no consideration. Water is frequently allocated to higher priority uses until a stream is reduced to a trickle and is unable to maintain a viable fish habitat."

"Over the years numerous projects have been constructed to irrigate land, provide flood protection, generate electric power and provide supplies of domestic and industrial water."

Spartan women want same treatment as men

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday issued a temporary restraining order barring Michigan State University from treating members of its women's varsity basketball team differently than members of its men's squad.

U.S. District Judge Noel P. Fox, in a hearing conducted by telephone, ordered MSU to allow the women players the same amount of money for meals on road trips and the same sleeping accommodations afforded men.

A $500 bond was to be filed with the court and a show-cause hearing scheduled later.

The ruling came in a complaint filed Monday by the 12-member women's varsity basketball team charging MSU and its board of trustees with practicing sex discrimination.

"If these girls are going to play a rough game then they do need proper rest and proper nutrition," Fox said in issuing the order.

The women asked that the university be prevented from continuing its discrimination against women athletes and that compensatory and exemplary damages be awarded.

The National Organization for Women picked Michigan as its pilot state to test implementation of Title IX which requires equal educational opportunities regardless of sex.

Over the past 10 months the team and its members have repeatedly complained to Michigan State University, its board of trustees, its administrators and to state and federal agencies about practices and policies of the university which deprive team members of equal opportunity in athletics," the complaint charged.

The complaint said the budget for the varsity men's basketball program for the 1978-79 school year is about $120,000, plus scholarships and coaching salaries, while the budget for the women's program is $13,500.

"Among the complaints for which plaintiffs and former team members have sought relief since March 1978 is the difference in meal and room allowances provided male and female players," the complaint said.

The complaint said women are allowed only $11 a day for food and must sleep four to a room when they are playing a road game, while men are allowed $16 a day for food and sleep two to a room.

The women charge, among other things, that their 12-member team is allowed only 18 pairs of shoes per season while the 15-member men's team is allowed 120 pairs. The women also noted they must drive by car to their road games while the men fly.

The women first filed an informal sex-discrimination complaint with the MSU Department of Intercollegiate Athletics on March 7, 1978.

The complaint was presented to the school's board of trustees and also was filed with the MSU Anti-Discrimination Judicial Board and with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Bowman did not attempt to minimize the problem. He did not even hurry for a solution, even though only two days remain.

"We haven't even tried to form lines," he reported after glancing at a few forward line combinations. "All you can do is be patient. We have a few guys who played together on their own teams."

Those include team captain Bobby Clarke and Bill Barber of Philadelphia, Darryl Sittler and Lanny McDonald of Toronto, Steve Shutt and Guy Lafleur of Montreal, Ulf Nilsson and Anders Hogberg of the New York Rangers, and the New York Islanders' intact trio of Bryan Trottler, Mike Bossy, and Clark Gillies.

Bowman will encourage each line to play its own style. Four different approaches to the game will not help team cohesiveness, but the coach feels he must make some compromises.

"What they do during the season is what they do here," he said. "We'd like them to do certain things, but there is no point in asking a player to do something that will hurt his own effectiveness."

On defense Bowman faces even more problems since the only combo with any working experience together is his Canadian team of Larry Robinson and Serge Savard. Ron Greshner, delayed in Edmonton, did not skate. Nor did Denis Potvin, inconvenienced by a fire in his apartment.

Bowman may need his strong checker, Bob Gainey, as a defenseman, and he will not hesitate to use him in that role.

"A lot depends on what happens with Potvin," he said. "If he can play we'll put him with Borge Salming. I'd like to keep Savard and Robinson together."

Assistant Coach Harry Sinden believes if anyone can make sense out of the roster, it is Bowman, who has coached Montreal to three straight Stanley Cups.

"He's a good hockey man," said Sinden. "He's able to analyze the game. He gathers all the information together, then decides."

The Soviets themselves may help the decision.

"They have pretty good balance," conceded Bowman. "There is the Kharlamov line, and the (Viktor Zhukov-Sergel Kapustin-Helmut) Balderis line. Another line scored nine goals in four games."

"We can't afford to put all our checkers together."

"I think Scotty wants to put at least one solid defensive player on each line," added Sinden.

"That would put Gainey on one line, Clarke on another, and Don Marcotte on another."

While they ponder these points, NHL officials are busy with other upsetting thoughts. They feel a suspiciously smooth complexion to the Soviet workouts.

"They're just fooling around out there," said Sinden. "I feel they're going to do something different. They may go with four forwards and one defenseman. I don't mean the one out on the forward playing defense, I mean four guys attacking with just one back."

This just complicates Bowman's job. But he must not give some cohesion to the NHL, but he must also figure what the Soviets are doing.

"At analyzing the opposition," Sinden said, "he's the best there is."

At this rate, he's also the busiest.

First time winner

By GARY ELIASSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Five years ago Shirley Cardwell of Twin Falls didn't even do much bowling.

But last weekend she won her first major tournament and took home the top prize in the Women's State Bowling Association scratch tournament at Miller's Magic Bowl.

"It's the first tournament I've ever entered," said the 165 average bowler who got her start in bowling when she and her husband were looking for an activity five years ago.

Cardwell won $119 for first place in the tournament. Total purse was $1,632.

Though she had bowled in the first four scratch tournaments around the state, this was her first good showing. Her average in gaining the victory was 193 and gained her a second place in the qualifying round behind Kay

Harris of Boise.

But in the roll-off competition, Cardwell defeated Harris 167 to 152 for first place.

In other scores during the qualifying round, Ada Baum of Boise beat Deline Moore of Twin Falls 197 to 121, Ruth Brown of Payette beat Baum 171 to 162, and Cardwell beat Brown 204 to 148.

In the men's competition at Bowladrome, Ltd., E.C. Cullen of Boise captured the top prize by downing Bob Bywater of Rupert 174 to 166.

In the qualifying rounds, Bywater had been in first place with a scratch score of 1759, Ron Hendricks of Pocatello was second with 1,671, Ray French, third, 1,650, Cullen, fourth, at 1,648; and Jim Jacobsen of Boise, fifth, 1,645.

There were 172 entries in this event and more than $3,500 worth of prize money was awarded. Barton's Club 93 contributed another $200.

Bengals go on road for game with Boise

FOCALTELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho State is finding out fast there is no rest for the weary.

The Bengals, coming off a pair of conference losses last weekend, travel to Boise Thursday for a game against Boise State — which upset the league-leading Weber State last week.

The Bengals then return home to face the scoring Nevada-Las Vegas.

The Bengals fell into a three-way tie for second in the Big Sky Conference after dropping an overtime squeaker 79-75 to Northern Arizona, then losing to Weber State 85-68. And coach Lynn Archibald knows his hands are full.

"It's a battle to get to the playoffs and we have the biggest battle of them all," he said. "We have to win both our home games and two of three on the road to be assured of getting in the playoffs. That would put us second or third. A 7-7 mark would probably tie for fourth."

BSU coach Jim Criner, whose Broncos are in last place with a 3-6 conference record, also is concerned.

"We need to play as hard as we did the last time we played ISU and play with consistency," he said.

Golf course to get mowed

TWIN FALLS — One percent fervor failed Monday to clip out of the city budget a mower to clip the greens at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

When Assistant City Manager Tom Courtney asked the city council to approve the expenditure of $4,795 for a greens mower, council member Mary McClusky asked the council to postpone approving the request.

McClusky, chairman of a committee investigating where the city can make cuts to help prepare for the implementation of the 1 percent initiative, said the purchase of the mower should wait until the committee's report is submitted.

Courtney pointed out that the money for the mower was provided in the current city budget, and he added that $4,795 is an excellent price for the mower, a price the city will not be able to match later.

Councilman Bud Cheney observed, "You can't run a golf course without a greens mower," and moved approval of the request.

Hoyt outstanding wrestler

BOISE (UPI) — John Hoyt of Northern Arizona used four dual match victories to earn Big Sky Conference wrestler of the week honors for the second time this season.

The 126-pounder scored a pin, two superior decisions, and a decision over opponents from New Mexico, Arizona, Southern Utah, and New Mexico Highlands as he improved his record to 11-3-1.

Hoyt beat out Idaho State's Dave Pacheco and Boise State's Scott Barrett for the honor. Both won two matches last week.

The tracker of the week honor went to Bob Peterson of Idaho. The junior high jumper cleared a lifetime best and school record of 7-1 1/2 in the Golden Bear Indoor Track Meet at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Also considered for the honor were Doug Beckman of Idaho, Ezzard Wilson and Dennis Smith of Idaho State, Steve Collier of Boise State, Dave Scully of Montana State, and Craig Fletcher of Weber State.

Roth tops bowling

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Mark Roth was the overwhelming choice as 1978 Bowler of the Year in a vote by members of the Professional Bowlers Association. The Sporting News announced today.

Roth, of North Arlington, N.J., received 57 votes out of 555 cast. Earl Anthony received 29 votes, Tommy Hudson six and the rest were scattered.

Roth, who also won the honor the previous year, captured $14,000 in prize money and rolled a record high average of more than 219 in 1,047 games.

Joe Greskin, a 30-year-old native of Memphis, Tenn., was named FBA rookie of the year. He averaged 209 in 25 tournaments, winning $20,370.

Winter unanimous winner

LONDON (UPI) — European middleweight champion Alan Minter of Britain Tuesday scored a unanimous verdict over one-time contender Rudy Robles of the United States to boost his hopes of taking Argentinian Hugo Corro's world title in the fall.

The British fighter maintained a steady barrage of jabs and body blows but the Mexican-born American from California took it all and often surprised Minter with some high looping haymakers in a bruising ten-round encounter.

Daniel leads LPGA

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Beth Daniel fired a 2-over-par 74 Tuesday to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the 72-hole Ladies Professional Golf Association's winter qualifying tournament.

Daniel, the 1975 and 1977 U.S. Amateur champion from Charleston, S.C., loured the 6,100-yard Brent Tree Golf and Racquet Club course in 38-36.

One stroke back at 75 was Marga Stubblefield of Kailua, Hawaii.

By GARY ELASSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Gov. John Evans and U.S. Sen. James McClure will be the featured speakers during the state convention of the Idaho Wildlife Federation Feb. 16-18 at the Holiday Inn.

Gov. Evans will speak to the group at a luncheon scheduled for noon on Feb. 17, while Sen. McClure's talk is set for the banquet that evening at 7.

According to Donald Zuck, state president of the wildlife federation, more than 100 people are expected to attend. He said the federation is the largest conservation education-oriented group in the state.

The group attempts to create an awareness among people for the wise use and proper management of the earth's resources including soil, water, air, forests, minerals, plant life and wildlife.

Persons representing the state Fish and Game Department, Bureau of Land Management, Idaho Conservation League, and the forest service are expected to speak.

Following a welcoming ceremony by Twin Falls Mayor

Leon Smith, the convention will get underway Feb. 16 at 1:30 p.m. with a presentation by Albert Van S. Pulling, professor emeritus of biology at Idaho State University. He will present a paper on population, education and natural resources.

At 2 p.m., a panel discussion on South Idaho's fish farming is planned. Panel members will include Orville Bradley, director of CSI's vocational-technical program; Terry Patterson, instructor for CSI's fish technology program; Larry Cope, of the Clear Springs Trout Co.; William Webb, regional director of the Idaho Fish and Game's Jerome office; and Edward C. Shokal, a retired Hagerman exploratory research chemist.

At 3:45 p.m., Don Martin, fishery biologist and water quality specialist with the state water quality bureau, will give a slide presentation on national forest road development. He will discuss the impact on water quality and fish habitat in some roaded water sheds versus some unroaded stream habitat in the Clearwater Drainage.

Dennis Swisher, a teacher and cattleman from Jordan Valley, Ore., will talk about "Resource Values Needing Protection" in the Owyhee and Bruneau Rivers at 4:30.

That evening the organization will meet in committees and discuss proposed resolutions.

On Feb. 17, Ed Schnegas, director of wildlife in Region One of the U.S. Forest Service in Missoula, Mont., will open that day's activities at 8:30 by discussing elk timber management relations.

He will be followed at 9:30 by a panel discussion on the "Challis Issue." Moderator will be Phillip W. Schneider, Portland, Ore., northwest regional executive of the national wildlife federation. Panelists will include William Meiners, vice president of Idaho Wildlife Federation; J.W. (Bill) Swan, president of the Idaho Cattleman's Association; William Matthews, director of the state Bureau of Land Management; and Walt Bodie, regional wildlife biologist.

At 11:30, Joseph Greeley, director of the Idaho Fish and Game Department will speak, followed by the noon talk by Gov. Evans.

The afternoon will include E. Randall Johnson, president of the Idaho Honey Producers Association and owner of Honeygold Corp. of Nampa; and a panel discussion on the Sawtooth National Forest, Cassia Division with Donald Aldrich, regional director of the national wildlife federation as moderator and panelists Gary Richardson of Boise, organizer of the Idaho Conservation League; Jack Hougard of Twin Falls, forest planner for the Sawtooth National Forest; Carl Nellis of Jerome, wildlife research biologist for the fish and game; and Marvin Taylor, irrigator and agriculturist for the soil and water conservation district.

At 4 p.m. Aldrich Bowler, of Bliss, will present research which was done by his son, Dr. Peter Bowler, assistant dean of environmental services at the University of California at Irvine. The paper deals with the environmental impact of the proposed Wiley Dam near Bliss.

An overview of the wildlife federation will be presented in a film at 4:30.

Sen. James McClure will highlight the evening at 7, followed by an awards presentation.

On Feb. 18, the convention will close with election of delegates for the national convention and choosing of new officers.

By RANDY FREY
Times-News writer

JEROME — Minimum flow on Silver Creek will not become a reality this year, but if the Department of Water Resources pursues the matter further it could come about by early 1980.

By law, a minimum flow proposal had to be introduced to the state legislature within the first five days of its session to be considered for this year.

Stu Murrell, regional conservation educator for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, said it was not introduced and will thus have to wait until next year.

The Department of Water Resources conducted the state's first minimum flow hearing Jan. 11 in Halley City Hall.

Silver Creek was the topic of discussion, and in particular protecting its fish and wildlife habitat, water quality and recreational value.

The Silver Creek applications would establish a minimum flow of 99 cubic feet per second at a point near Picoabo, and a flow of 74 cubic feet per second near Highway 93 close to Carey.

Murrell said minimum flow would help protect and maintain the fishery and help provide sufficient water for migrating rainbow and brown trout which inhabit Silver Creek and the Little Wood River.

This state legislature enacted last year a water plan which enables the Department of Water Resources to grant minimum flow water rights on state streams to the Idaho Water Resources Board.

Previously, there were no provisions for establishing minimum flows for fishery or other recreational uses of Idaho waters.

Silver Creek was the first minimum flow hearing brought before the Department of Water Resources, and its success or failure will set a precedent for other top-quality waters in the state, Murrell said.

Fish and game Winter feeding not easy

TWIN FALLS — Winter feeding of pheasants and other small game is difficult and expensive, according to Gary Will, regional game manager.

Since the game are spread over a large area, the extreme cold can also cause death even if there is an adequate food supply, he noted.

"This is particularly true for valley quail and chukar partridge," he said. "For example, quail were found frozen to death along the Clearwater River during the severe winter of 1962-63 even though they had full crops. Temperatures of 20 below zero were recorded during that period."

Will said the present winter illustrates the need for good winter cover in the Magic Valley to protect the birds from the cold. Many areas of Region 4 are lacking in this vital part of the pheasant habitat.

"About 50 pheasants were observed utilizing a cover patch only 30 yards across that remained in a circular spruce area in Golden Valley," Will said.

Lack of adequate cover also exposes them to greater predation by hawks, owls, eagles, and coyotes.

A study conducted in South Dakota in the 1960's showed that spring pheasant populations were about the same on a large area in which feeding had been attempted the past winter as compared to a similar area nearby in which no feed had been distributed. It also proved to be prohibitive as to the costs involved per pheasant saved.

"There is an annual die off each year in a small game population of about 75 percent. This occurs from freezing, starving, disease, accidents and predators whether or not they are hunted. Fortunately, small game populations do have the ability to bounce back rapidly if spring nesting conditions are favorable," he said.

Will said a person who wishes to feed pheasants on their property should locate the feed away from roadsides to prevent additional mortality from vehicles. They should also provide galling along with the feed to lure the birds away from gravelled roadsides. All types of small grains are suitable for upland game bird feed.

Desert trail on agenda

TWIN FALLS — A report on the Desert National Science Trail Feasibility study will be given to members of the Magic Valley Trail Machine Assn., Inc. tonight at 7:30 in the Coors Hospitality Room.

Officers of the club also are scheduled to be confirmed.

Trap shoot at Pocatello

POCATELLO — The Pocatello Trap Club will hold its annual Lincoln Day shoot Sunday at the airport site.

According to Royce A. Randolph, the meet will start at 9 a.m., with registration at 8 a.m.

"This ATA trapshoot is designed for all new shooters as well as for the more experienced ones," he said. "There will be a total of 300 ATA registered targets."

Water quality on agenda

TWIN FALLS — A program on water quality will be presented Tuesday during the Twin Falls Fish and Wildlife Conservation Corporation meeting.

The presentation will be given by the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Twin Falls Fish Hatchery on Canyon Street.

Crater conditions good

TWIN FALLS — Snow conditions for cross-country skiing, snowshoeing and other winter activities at Craters of the Moon National Monument are now considered fair to good.

According to Neil King, acting superintendent, recent snows have resulted in a snowpack of 10 to 15 inches.

The seven-mile loop road through the monument is closed to vehicles and makes a natural ski trail. Skiing off the road is not advised because of the sharp, fragmented lava that covers most of the monument, he said.

The lava rock and hidden caverns may damage skis or result in injury to a skier who falls.

Overnight camping is permitted within the monument, but because the campground is not plowed, visitors will be camping in the snow. Woodfires are not permitted within the monument and the use of gas stoves is suggested.

The visitor center is open every day except for holidays. Current weather, skiing conditions and other information can be obtained by calling the monument headquarters at 208-327-3257.

Service looks at streams

PORTLAND, Ore. — Ways of reserving instream flows for fish and wildlife have been identified by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The information is contained in a series of 13 reports under a study announced by Lynn Greenwall, director of the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Through its Western Water Allocation Project, the service has identified the existing laws, procedures and methods for reserving the flows of western streams and rivers to protect fish and wildlife.

The 13 states in the report include California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

"Diversion of water from streams and rivers is one of the greatest threats to fish and wildlife in the water-short West," said Greenwall. "In the allocation of water under western state law in the past, fish and wildlife have generally been given little or no consideration. Water is frequently allocated to higher priority uses until a stream is reduced to a trickle and is unable to maintain a viable fish habitat."

"Over the years numerous projects have been constructed to irrigate land, provide flood protection, generate electric power and provide supplies of domestic and industrial water."

A story of a two-cent hook

During a fishing trip to Washington state last year, I had as a fishing partner one of the cheapest fishermen I have ever had contact with.

Before going fishing early one morning last fall, Chuck Rote of Freeman, Wash. assured me that his secrets of Liberty Lake east of Spokane would produce our limits in a couple of hours.

We both jumped into our waders and float tubes before daylight and headed in opposite directions. My forte was using a leashed wily fly. After 2 hours of trying every shallow in my end of the lake, I finally gave up with one fish about 12 inches long.

I headed back to camp, only to find Chuck cooking up a two-pound rainbow with hashbrowns for breakfast.

I hung my head and pride... and asked, "Okay, Chuck you had em tied up, yes?"

Chuck remarked that us city dudes spent too much money on gear and

"Lures," he remarked to my how do you do it question. "Don't buy em, make 'em." "Now," he said, "I'll introduce you to my two-cent hook."

That afternoon I caught and released 13 fish with the use of Chuck's "two-center."

Chuck, like most of us fishermen has a tackle box full of old lures given to him at Christmas, or used until the fish lose interest. From parts of these old lures, Chuck made several lures...

I fell in love with the "two center" and have tried it at Magic Reservoir and Salmon Reservoir with mixed success.

The most effective way I have found to use the "two center" is to attach a cheater to it. String a nightcrawler on one of the barb of the two-center.

Some hot spots during the winter:

Deep creek is full of fish after our winter flood. Fish hatcheries washed out, and down the creek went the fish. Any at all will do.

Most winters I like to catch medium-sized channel cats below the Bliss power-plant. This winter I only have made it one. Many of the Glenns Ferry fishermen fish this area and some of the secrets I have found were: cross at the bottom of the dam and there is an overflow channel on the far side.

Cast into this channel with a good-sized sinker and just let it set with worms or cut bait. You will notice some back current at the end of this over-flow channel and this seems to be the best spot.

It is a one or two person place to fish, so if it is taken you can climb down to the river below the power plant and still get some good action.

Might even hook a sturgeon in these waters—(You must return all sturgeon.)

Mahre moves up to third in races

JASNA, Czechoslovakia (UPI)— American Phil Mahre, his confidence sky-high as his sights set on a back-to-back victory when the World Cup men's ski circuit moves on to Sweden for Saturday's slalom in Are.

The 21-year-old from White Pass, Wash., Monday picked up his first World Cup slalom win of the season and in doing so upset Swedish ace Ingemar Stenmark, who was edged out of second place by Italy's Leonardo Davidi.

Mahre's victory boosted his World Cup points total to 123 and took him to third place in the standings behind Swiss skier Peter Lüscherz (174) and three-time champion Stenmark (135).

The young American clocked an overall time of 1:42.84, 83 seconds faster than his two rivals. He led the field after the first run with a time of 53.74 seconds and then shrugged off the handicap of losing his hat and his goggles to post the second fastest second run of 49.25.

David finished second with an overall 1:43.81, while Stenmark, the hot favorite, had to settle for third place in 1:44.65.

As an extra bonus for the Mahre family, Phil's twin brother Steve finished a respectable 31th in 1:44.90 to complete the best day for the U.S. men since the Mahres won last season's giant slalom and special slalom races at Stratton Mountain, Vermont.

Phil Mahre, recounting his victory, said he told himself "This is my chance," as he began the second run. "Stenmark was like a wedge between my brother Steve and I in the standings. I was sure either Steve or I would be the winner.

"The second heat was just perfect," Phil Mahre said. "Sometimes you have a day like that where everything goes fine."

Steve Mahre was also jubilant. "I managed the second heat better than Stenmark and set a course with the most difficult runs immediately after the start," Steve said. "When I saw that Stenmark was in trouble I knew that this was my race. The second heat really invited you to take more risks and go on the attack."

Spectacular Bid opens new season

HALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI)— Spectacular Bid, last year's juvenile champion and a cinch to be the glami hor of early 1979, opens his 3-year-old campaign at Gulfstream Park today against a field of only three challengers.

The dark gray son of Bold Ruler-Spectacular apparently has scared off some of the competition with a series of workouts befitting his name. Last week he came just two-fifths of a second off the track record of 1:15 for 6 1/2 furlongs.

Trainer-Grover "Bud" Delp also may have cut the field with some remarks he made in the two weeks leading up to Wednesday's $25,000 Huchesse Handicap.

These Gulfstream races are history before they're run. From the horses I've seen around here, they won't be competitive," says Delp, who admits to being a little outrageous at times. "I'm looking for a walkover one of these days."

A walkover is a race with one horse, in which the thoroughbred has scared off the rest of the field.

came close.

Opposing his Hawksworth Farms colt, ridden by Ronnie Franklin, will be Northern Prospect, Medaille d'Or and Dat'O'Gold.

Spectacular Bid and Medaille d'Or, Canada's 2-year-old champion last year, will share high weight of 122 pounds. Carrying 114 pounds will be Northern Prospect, winner of two stakes races this winter, and Lot Gold, runner-up in the Tropical Park Handicap.

Spectacular Bid won seven of nine starts as a 2-year-old including his last five stakes races. In his last two starts he defeated General Assembly, a highly regarded offspring of Secretariat, and Calumet Farms' Tim the Tiger, in the Champagne and the Laurel Futurity.

Leroy Jolley, who trains General Assembly, says he plans to try his colt against Spectacular Bid again, hoping the transition from two to three years old might have turned the tables. Tim the Tiger underwent surgery for a bone chip in his right rear leg last month and is out of training until September.

Krokstad claims victory in biathlon

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI)— Terje Krokstad of Norway fought sub-zero temperatures and a field of World Class competitors Tuesday to capture the 10-kilometer biathlon over the course for the 1980 Winter Olympics.

Krokstad, a 22-year-old carpenter from Trondheim, skied over the rugged Mt. Van Hoevenberg Olympic course in 34:29.19 to top the 70-man field. Krokstad's time included two 150-meter penalty laps for hitting the two-ring on his second of two target shots. He had a bulls-eye on the first target.

The first competition of the Nordic pre-Olympic events was held for over an hour and a half because rifles were not functioning in the minus-12 Fahrenheit temperature.

"The course was good," Krokstad said, "and I'm used the cold. But it was a little windy shooting today."

In second place was Yvon Mongel of Remiremont, France, who was timed in 35:19.75, including two penalty laps, hitting the one-ring on both targets.

Heikki Kola of Saavola, Finland, was third with a 35:25.92.

Lyle Nelson of Boise, Idaho, placed 20th for the best United States racer with a time of 37:51.18.

Norwegian edges Eppel in slalom

BERCHTESGADEN, West Germany (UPI)— West Germany's Christa Kinshofer won Tuesday's World Cup giant slalom by more than two seconds over teammate Irene Eppel for her third victory of the season.

Austrian World Cup leader Annemarie Moser-Proell took third place.

Kinshofer, whose previous World Cup victories were in Val d'Isere and Les Gets, posted the fastest times for both runs. She clocked 1:04.57 on the first heat and followed with 1:06.19 for an aggregate of 2:10.76.

Eppel had an aggregate time of 2:12.29 with runs of 1:05.70 and 1:06.59, while Moser-Proell was 2:19.55, overall following heats of 1:05.51 and 1:07.04.

Euro-cup win to Dahlum

BIBBONE, Italy (UPI)— Bente Dahlum of Norway edged together two Soviet rivals Tuesday to win the European women's slalom event in the central Tuscany mountains.

Dahlum's runs of 1:15.09 through 45 gates in the first heat and 1:10.02 through 46 gates in the second heat gave her a total time of 2:25.10, more than a full second ahead of Torill Floestad, also of Norway, who finished second with a total of 2:26.22.

Lyle Nelson of Boise, Idaho, placed 20th for the best United States racer with a time of 37:51.18.

had opened one heart, suit marked with both minor, suit ace.

He Counted winners and losers and saw that he had plenty of winners if he could knock out both aces before West had time to establish three heart winners.

He asked, "How can I make my contract?"

That was quite a problem, but he finally solved it and came up with an unusual play. He went right up with dummy's ace of hearts.

He knocked out West's ace of clubs. West continued with the deuce of hearts. East played the 10 and now South was ready with the second step in his campaign. He let East hold the trick.

East could not lead a heart. He didn't have one. So East led a diamond. West took his ace and after a lot of thought cashed his king of hearts. If he hadn't done that South would have made an overtrick.

Note that if South had let the first heart ride around to his queen West would have been able to establish three heart tricks before South could knock out both aces.

Brighten your menu with this low cholesterol chicken dish

Low cholesterol meal appealing, economical

NEW YORK — For several years the American Heart Association has designated February as Heart Month, and has stressed the importance of low-cholesterol diets. Although the emphasis on serving low-cholesterol foods to help reduce the risk of heart attacks is no longer a new idea, new recipes incorporating these principles are always welcomed.

So brighten your winter menus and give your family a year-round Valentine by serving Chicken D'Or, a low-cholesterol recipe developed in the R.T. French Company Test Kitchens in Rochester, N.Y.

As in all low-cholesterol recipes, it is important to remove skin and excess fat from chicken before cooking as this is where the majority of cholesterol is concentrated. Then brown the chicken pieces in a small amount of liquid vegetable oil.

Enhance the chicken with a golden delectable sauce, using prepared yellow mustard and maple syrup, then garnish with colorful peace salads. A tossed green salad with Zesty Salad Dressing can be prepared in a jiffy while the chicken finishes cooking. Brown sugar and Worcestershire sauce add an appealing flavor to this homemade oil and vinegar dressing.

Serve your chicken dinner with rolls and vegetable oil margarine plus a whipped gelatin dessert and coffee.

CHICKEN D'OR (Golden Chicken)

- 1/4 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 frying chicken, cut up
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 can (16-oz.) sliced peaches
- 3 tablespoons French's Prepared Yellow Mustard
- 2 tablespoons maple-blended syrup

2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
Combine flour, salt and pepper. Remove skin from chicken if desired; shake chicken in seasoned flour until well coated. Brown in oil in large skillet. Drain peaches, saving 3/4 cup syrup. Combine the 3/4 cup syrup with mustard and maple syrup; pour over chicken. Cover; simmer 40 to 50 minutes, until chicken is tender. Stir in peaches and pimiento; heat 5 minutes longer. 4 to 5 servings.

ZESTY SALAD DRESSING

- 7/8 cup oil
 - 1/2 cup vinegar
 - 1 tablespoon brown sugar
 - 1 tablespoon French's Worcestershire Sauce
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon paprika
 - 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
- Combine ingredients. Serve on lettuce or coleslaw. Makes 1 cup.

Low calorie casserole puts shape into meals

NEW YORK — It's the old scenario: ACT I: You've just stepped off the scale. (Staggered would be more like it.) The poundage is suddenly Beyond Acceptable Limits. (Good title, that, for a diet book!) You can't bear to look at your rearview reflection in the mirror. (Tight Jeans may be "in" but this is ridiculous.)

ACT II: You go on a starvation diet. You lose 10 pounds in four days. (Joy and elation!)

ACT III: You take to your bed. Total exhaustion — and despair — set in. You run the gamut of emotions from A to C, and that means Chow. It also means Ciao, Baby, to the diet — and an instantly thinner you. (In your heart, you know crash diets never work.)

It's a foregone conclusion you'll have to make some sacrifices (not necessarily burnt ones) to the Gods of Lower Weight. But you don't have to deny yourself ALL of your gastronomic favorites. You can easily rewrite that sad-sack diet script with good ideas culled from interviews with the formerly over-endowed.

Here is a suggested menu starring two quick-fix interesting, individual tuna casseroles. Each recipe calls for just one regular-size can of tuna. And each produces one meal for two — or two meals for one. (Neat arrangement, eh?) Best of all, the calories add up to a mere 250 per serving. Eliminate bread and you can probably bring in a full meal for under 350 calories.

Dieter's Tuna Cheese Casserole has cottage and blue cheeses, broccoli, tomato and, of course, tuna. The Tuna-Vegetable "Mini" comes to table all baked up in a luscious custard — somewhat like a crustless quiche. With a little imagination, you can vary each recipe with different vegetables and different seasonings.

MENU

- Clear Vegetable or Mushroom Broth
- or
- Tuna-Vegetable "Mini"
- Mixed Salad with Low-Fat
- Yogurt Dressing
- Melon with Berries
- or Grapefruit Half
- DIETER'S TUNA CHEESE

CASSEROLE

- 1/2 cup creamed cottage cheese
- 1/4 cup skim milk
- 1 tablespoon crumbled blue cheese

- or Gruyere
 - 4 teaspoons chopped scallion
 - 1 can (6 1/2 or 7 ounces) tuna in water
 - 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 package (10 ounces) frozen broccoli spears, thawed
 - 1 small tomato, sliced
- Combine cottage cheese and milk in container of electric blender, cover and process until smooth. (Or beat cottage cheese with an electric mixer until smooth, then add milk.) Dieter's Tuna Cheese Casserole

Special treats for dieters

BY AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA FOOD EDITOR

DIETING IS DIFFICULT

— especially when you have a sweet tooth.

Cutting calories and increasing exercise will help most people slowly remove extra pounds and keep them off. It is wise not to skip meals because you may gorge yourself when you do eat.

For a special reward that reduces the urge to splurge on a sundae with all the toppings, make some lower-calorie carrot-slice bars or tea muffins. Keep them handy as your occasional dessert treats.

CARROT-SLICE BARS

- 1/2 cup sunflower-oil margarine
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour

- 1 teaspoon baking soda
 - 1-1/2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1/4 teaspoon cloves
 - 1 cup mashed cooked carrots
- In a large bowl, blend margarine, brown sugar and vanilla. Mix flour, baking soda, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and cloves. Stir into margarine mixture. Blend in carrots.
- Turn into a greased 15-by-10-by-1-inch baking pan. Bake in a 350-degree oven 20 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool. Cut into 2-by-1-inch bars. Makes 75 bars containing 30 calories each.

TEA MUFFINS

- 1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1-1/2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
 - 1/2 cup soft sunflower-oil margarine
 - 3/4 cup skimmed milk
 - 4 teaspoons lemon juice
 - 1 egg white, stiffly beaten
 - Sunflower seeds (optional)
- In a large bowl, mix flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Stir in lemon rind. Add margarine and break up with a fork. Add milk and lemon juice. Stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Fold in egg white.
- Brush 2-inch muffin cups with margarine. Spoon batter into cups, filling 2/3 full. Top with a sprinkling of sunflower seeds. Bake in a 425-degree oven for 20 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 15 to 20 muffins.

Get into a big 'stew' over winter menus

Did you know that you can actually profile a country by the stew it makes? Well, you can, and the test of that theory came last week when Roumiana Rineva was asked what the stew was like in her country, Bulgaria.

Miss Rineva is a member of the folk ensemble "Pirin" which entertained us so magnificently with extraordinarily fine Bulgarian folk music and dancing and singing. The group's extravagantly embroidered, "brilliantly colored" costumes were of a surprisingly more Middle-Eastern influence than one would expect as were Miss Rineva's descriptions of Bulgarian cuisine and especially their stew.

"The hearty main dish in Bulgaria is 'Gyuvetch' or winter stew, and you can rest assured, it's colorful and prepared pretty much the same way we do our stews. And, like all other country's stews, 'Gyuvetch' uses indigenous and readily available vegetables and meats.

Following are a few different recipes for stews. You may notice that each particular one describes the temper of its originators.

"GYUVECH"

- (Bulgarian Winter Stew)
- This stew is customarily baked in a pottery casserole.
- 3 pounds veal shoulder, cubed
 - 3/4 pound lean raw pork, cubed
 - 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
 - 1 large clove garlic, peeled and minced
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - salt and pepper to season to taste
 - 1 cup hot water
 - more water to cover meat
 - 2 sweet green peppers, stemmed and seeded, wedged
 - 2 potatoes, cubed
 - 2 onions, peeled and cubed
 - 2 tomatoes, peeled and wedged
 - 1 small eggplant, cubed
 - 1 cup fresh green peas in season (may use drained canned or frozen)
 - 1 raw egg per serving
 - cayenne pepper
- In large skillet, combine cubed veal, cubed pork, vegetable oil and garlic. Thoroughly brown meat, stir-ing occasionally. Sprinkle meat with the flour and a little salt and pepper.

- Add 1 cup hot water and deglaze the bottom of the casserole by scraping with a wooden spoon. Cover skillet and simmer meat about 30 minutes. Meantime, preheat oven to 325°F. Scrape skillet contents into earthenware casserole. Add more water to cover meat. Now add green pepper, potatoes, onions, tomatoes and eggplant. Cover and bake 1 1/2 to 2 hours. If peas are used, put them into stew 10 to 12 minutes before removing from oven. Put canned or frozen just last minutes before serving. Serve stew in individual bowls, topped with a raw egg and sprinkled with cayenne pepper. Makes 6 to 8 servings.
- SCANDINAVIAN STEW
- 4 tablespoons margarine or butter
 - 1 1/2 pounds boneless beef cut into 1-inch cubes
 - 2 large onions, peeled and chopped
 - 2 bottles or cans (12 ounces each) stale beer
 - 3 bouillon cubes (beef or chicken)
 - 3 cups water
 - salt and pepper to taste

- 1 large bay leaf
 - 6 medium-sized potatoes, peeled and cubed
 - 6 tablespoons margarine or butter
 - 1/4 cup chopped green onion tops (may substitute chopped chives)
- In Dutch oven, melt the 4 tablespoons margarine or butter. Add meat and onions and cook, stirring often; until onions are cooked but not browned. Add the beer, bouillon cubes and water. Simmer, covered, over low heat for 30 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper and add bay leaf. Add potatoes and continue to simmer, covered, until meat is tender and potatoes have fallen apart and have thickened the broth. This will take 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Serve steaming hot in individual bowls with 1 tablespoon margarine or butter on top and sprinkled with the chopped green onion. Makes 6 servings.
- AMERICANIZED SLOW COOKER FRENCH BOUILLABAISE
(Fish Stew)
- 2 pounds boneless fish fillets, cut into 1-inch cubes
 - 1 pound shelled shrimp

- 1/2 pounds scallops
 - 2 cans (1 1/2 pound each) whole tomatoes
 - 3/4 cup dry white wine
 - 1 large onion, peeled and finely chopped
 - 4 stalks celery, minced
 - 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- Put all ingredients into slow cooker and mix gently. Cook on low heat for about 3 hours. Serve hot with toasted garlic bread. Makes 6 to 8 servings.
- IRISH LAMB STEW
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
 - 1 shoulder lamb chop (8 oz.), meat cut from bone into chunks, keep in bone
 - 1 carrot, peeled and chopped
 - 1 small onion, peeled and minced
 - 1 chicken bouillon cube
 - 1/2 cup water
 - 1/2 cup tomato juice
 - pinch each salt, pepper and ground thyme
 - 1 medium-sized potato, pared and cubed
 - 2 teaspoons flour to thicken, if desired.

In saucepan, melt margarine or butter. Add lamb pieces; cook 2 to 3 minutes, or until browned. To saucepan add carrot, onion, bouillon cube, water, tomato juice, salt, pepper and ground thyme. Cover; simmer 45 minutes. Add potato; cover and simmer 15 minutes longer, or until potato is tender. Remove bones. Take saucepan from heat. Remove a few spoonfuls of juices; mix them with flour and stir this mixture into stew. Return saucepan to heat and cook 2 to 3 minutes longer, or until thickened. Remove to serving dish.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS:

Watch for margarine sales this week. You'll see priority potatoes of all varieties available. Lettuce has gone down some. Heavy rains in California last week might cause prices to climb again soon so try to satisfy your rabbit-cravings now. Tuna fish will be on sale in some markets. Learn to stretch your meats if they aren't going to go down in cost.

Dear Abby

'Big Mac' habit forming

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I met Mac two years ago. It was love at first sight — for me. I'm 29, divorced and self-supporting. Mac is a handsome, 37-year-old Irish cop, separated from his wife.

He takes me to nice places when he can afford it, but he's usually broke because he loves to gamble. (Mostly, sports and the horses.)

I'm always buying tickets to sports events, theaters, etc., and we eat at my place a lot. Mac hates for me to spend my money on him, but I can't help it. I want to be with him as much as possible.

He begs me not to get "too serious" about him because he doesn't want any permanent involvement, but he's too late. I'm already in love with him. He keeps reminding me that I am his best friend. Abby, I don't want his friendship. I want love and marriage.

Is this situation hopeless?

HURTING IN MANHATTAN
DEAR HURTING: Yes. A one-sided love is slow torture. And the chances for his friendship developing into the kind of love you want are about 1,000 to 1. If Mac hasn't heard about gamblers Anonymous, clue him in. There's a chapter near him — listed in the phone book. It's well worth the gamble.

DEAR ABBY: I am being severely criticized for giving a relative a vacuum cleaner and all the attachments for a wedding present.

Granted it's not nearly as glamorous as something in silver or crystal, but these kids are just starting out and they don't have very much, and I thought a practical gift would make more sense.

If I'm wrong, please tell me so I won't go the practical route again and get laughed at.

AUNT ROSE IN SPOKANE
DEAR AUNT ROSE: Don't apologize for your gift. It's reassuring to know that there are practical folks like you who refuse to get sucked into giving gifts that are more ornamental than useful.

DEAR ABBY: My husband refuses to make out a will. He has high blood pressure, prostate trouble, emphysema and diabetes.

I am so afraid that after skimping and saving for 47 years, he will die and leave me nothing. Everything we have is in both our names.

I am his beneficiary, as he is mine, on our life insurance policies. Legally, is this enough? Or do I have to worry about his relatives suing me for what they may claim is their fair share? They haven't bothered about him for the last 10 years, but they're the kind of people who would move right in and make trouble if there was any money in it for them.

Write back fast, Abby. I have no one else to turn to and every time I mention a will my husband blows up.

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: Ask a lawyer what will happen to your husband's assets should he die leaving no will. The laws vary in different states.

Peplums and bustles featured

PARIS (UPI) — The Christian Dior fashion salon concentrated on the rear in its spring-summer 'high' fashion show Monday: peplums and a bustle-like pull-in-the-back-like-an-old-fashioned riding habit.

Dior designer Maie Bohari joined the Paris trend for wider shoulders and a vague feeling of the 1938-50 period, when Lana Turner, Claudette Colbert and Hedl Lamarr made fashion headlines.

Bohari's addition to this season's collection was a lankie top cinched around the waist to the point of suffocation with a wide leather belt. The fullness jutted out in back in peplum fashion over the new narrow and shorter skirts or straight trousers.

Evening gowns of white chiffon printed in bright colors had "bubble skirts" that bubbled mainly in the back, giving a silhouette of a riding skirt in the days when women rode side-saddle.

Wide, soft leather belts in contrasting colors tightened the waists of practically everything in the collection. Shoulders were squared off on coats.

In other words, Dior has joined the trend for wider shoulders, narrow, shorter skirts and tight waist.

There were lots of little tailored suits with fitted, wide-shouldered jackets edged with scallops over narrow skirts. After last season's rush for shorter, above-ankle trousers, the Dior trousers were long again.

For evening, one heavenly outfit was a white trouser suit with a casual tailored jacket over a bare white top glittering with silver and crystal beads. It looked just right for Princess Caroline of Monaco, who could hardly watch the show because she was surrounded by four layers of eager photographers.

Pierre Cardin's collection of super-wide Fu Manchu shoulders, as in ancient mandarin costumes, was less wearable for most women. But the Cardin collection was the most imaginative and creative so far, each outfit a work of art in the perfection of its balance of form and color, of detail and cut.

Foot injury can lead to heel spur

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb, Recently I experienced severe pains in my right foot. After that, my right heel was very sensitive to step on.

My doctor says it is a spur on my right heel, and if he operates on it, the spur will return. He says this was caused by a foot injury. Can you give me some advice on this condition.

Dear Reader, Many good doctors do not like to operate on heel spurs. Why? Because, frequently it isn't the real cause for the symptoms.

What is a heel spur? It's just a bony growth that may develop on the bottom of the heavy heel bone or at the back of the heel bone. The one that people associate with trouble in walking is one on the bottom of the heel.

The spur, however, usually develops in relationship to an injury. The ligaments and muscles that stretch lengthwise across the arch of your foot attach at this bony part of your heel. Whenever they are pulled on excessively, they may cause a localized injury. The injury involves the muscle and tendon area of the heel. That's why it may swell and sometimes get red.

The pain and swelling may occur when the tendons and tissue are injured in this area even if there isn't a heel spur. Also, you can have a heel spur that develops for other reasons that are not associated with any injury. In these instances, the X-ray evidence of the heel spur is not associated with any symptoms.

The bottom line is that you can have a heel spur without symptoms or you can have symptoms of heel pain and not have a heel spur. This is the basic reason why many doctors question whether the "heel spur" itself has anything to do with heel pain that patients experience.

Since the pain in the heels of many patients is often associated with injury to the soft tissues and not the bone, appropriate treatment is directed toward the soft tissue. You do this by decreasing the strain on the arch, ligaments, tendons and other structures that attach to the bottom of the foot.

One classic way, of course, would be just to stay off your foot entirely. The absence of weight bearing will remove the strain on the foot, and the pain will gradually disappear. The practical disadvantage here is that it is not good for a person to be that inactive and off his feet all the time.

In addition to resting the foot as much as possible, doctors sometimes change the weight bearing on the foot. This may be done by rotating the foot so you walk on its outer edge.

This removes the strain across the arch.
