

Idaho's anti-55 mph bill motors to House

BOISE (UPI) — By a one-vote margin, the House Transportation Committee agreed Monday to introduce a bill to raise Idaho's maximum highway speed limit to 60 mph from 55.

Action on the proposal came after the Senate Transportation Committee, for the second time at this session of the Legislature, refused to introduce a proposal to increase the maximum speed limit to 65. The House committee vote to introduce was 6-5 with one member absent.

Rep. Myron Jones, R-Mald, principal sponsor of the bill, said threats to take away federal highway money by raising the speed beyond 55 mph are tantamount to "blackmail" and urged the committee to ignore them.

"Most people are traveling 65 or over," Jones said. "We are raising a generation of youth in total disrespect for the law. I very seldom go under 65.

"They say we are going to lose a lot of federal dollars," Jones said. "When we start looking at federal dollars in that light we're submitting to blackmail."

State Transportation Director Darrell Manning urged the committee not to introduce the proposal. He said it will cost Idaho $40 million in federal aid this year and $65 million each year hereafter.

In addition, Manning said, not only is there an energy crisis highlighted by civil turmoil in Iran but without federal aid "we cannot maintain our transportation system."

"Without that maintenance the economy is going to suffer more than anything you've seen," Manning said. "We will be a Northwest Appalachia."

"It's no different than the human body," he said. "If you destroy the circulatory system you destroy the body. If you destroy the transportation system you destroy the economy. Fight the battle where it is: in Washington, D.C."

Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, disagreed. "I don't think any of us are trying to destroy anything," Barlow said. "We just want to get where we are going. I resent the federal government telling Idaho we've got to drive 55 out in these wide open spaces."

Barlow and Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley, both said they, too, drive faster than 55 mph on the highway. But they disagreed on what a higher speed limit would do. Hale said he used to creep up to 80 and 85 when the speed was 70 on the interstate.

"Now, when I get around 70 miles per hour I get scared," Hale said, adding that because of the 55 mph limit motorists are reducing their maximum speed by 10 to 15 mph.

Law Enforcement Director Kelly Pearce picked up on that point in urging the committee to turn down the bill for life-saving reasons. Many cars today are a lot smaller than the Oldsmobile Toronado he drives, he said.

"In today's standard automobile at 70 miles per hour you're whizzing along awfully fast," Pearce said.

Increasing the speed limit to 65 mph from 55 mph, he added, increases the number of fatal accidents by 52 percent.

Rep. Joe Wagner, D-Lewiston, said he favored a 60 mph speed limit for Idaho. But he said he feared the loss of federal funds, too. He suggested, unsuccessfully, the committee send a memorial or resolution to Congress or to the president.

Anti-Americanism sweeps Tehran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A wave of Anti-Americanism swept Tehran Monday as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini completed his takeover of Iran. The military ended its resistance peacefully when Khomeini's rag-tag forces marched on the imperial palace and key bases at the stroke of noon.

The shah's imperial guards, tears streaming down their faces, meekly surrendered their rifles and tanks to the ill-equipped mobs. Scores of the soldiers had died in a last stand earlier in the day.

Youthful insurgents, shot up two hotels lodging Americans, threatened Americans with their rifles in the streets, pillaged the U.S. Communications Agency where they tore apart pictures of President Carter and looted office equipment.

Three Americans, including Los Angeles Times correspondent Joe Morris, have been killed in revolutionary violence. Washington announced that 69 U.S. Marines and six big passenger-carrying helicopters were en route to Turkey to stand by should any emergency evacuation of the 8,000 Americans in Iran be necessary.

Gummen captured the international communications agency of the U.S. Embassy and systematically ransacked it. Revolutionary guards looted watches and looters smashed and tore up pictures of President Carter and looted typewriters, projectors, automobile tires and typing paper.

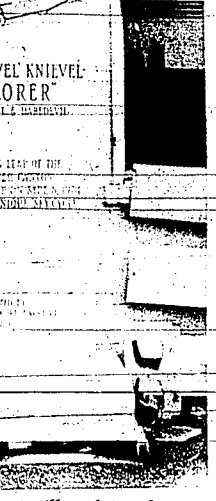

In Washington, Carter told a news conference the United States "stands ready to work" with Khomeini to bring independence and stability to Iran, while expressing deep sympathy for Americans "to minimize bloodshed and prevent intervention by outside governments ... and ensure the independence of Iran."

Evel's marker unclaimed ... four years later

TWIN FALLS — Officials at Volco Inc., in Twin Falls have a six-foot tall granite marker they would like to get rid of, and they wish the owner, Evel Knievel, would come and get it.

The stuntman recently has been serving time in a California jail after attacking a former associate with a baseball bat.

He has not returned to Twin Falls since the 1974 jump.

However, it is located in the Volco building instead of at the jump site. Warren Barry, of Volco, was asked by Knievel to pick it up along with other material at the site following the jump attempt.

"It just ended up here," says Larry Slatler of Volco. "We can't sell it because it doesn't belong to us, and we can't send it to Knievel and we don't know what to do with it."

The marker was made by a Missouri monument firm known as Rock of Ages Monument Co. Volco officials say they don't know who ordered it or if it is paid for, only that they have it.

Knievel still owes a bill at Volco, but the company doesn't want to sell the marker to cover the bill. If Knievel wants it, Slatler said.

Knievel in 1974 attempted to jump the Snake River Canyon in his rocket-powered Skycycle.

Judge jails county commissioners

CARROLLTON, Ohio (UPI) — Probate-Juvenile Court Judge Patricia Anderson, who wants a $13,000-a-year raise in her budget and jailed three county commissioners for refusing to grant the increase, said Monday the commissioners had defied the law.

Commissioners Dale Williamson, Robert Kellor and Robert Smith served one day of a 10-day sentence last week before they were released by the 7th District Court of Appeals in Youngstown.

Former Commissioner Kenneth A. Widder has started a fund-raising drive for the three commissioners and said Monday nearly $900 had been raised so far.

Floodwaters disappearing around Twin Falls County

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Flood conditions improved in most areas of Twin Falls County Monday as waters from melting snow began to disappear.

Sheriff James Munn said most of roads where water was creating driving hazards have now been marked and motorists are urged to watch for deep water along the sides of roads as long as the warm weather continues.

Floyd Dayley, manager of the Twin Falls Highway district, said two roads are still closed in the Berger area. One is just west of Berger and the other on the east.

Another road in that area was opened to traffic Monday as water subsided enough to permit traffic.

One northeast of Twin Falls was closed but is now open, Dayley said. A pipe which was installed on the county road just south of Falls Avenue at the Shoshone Falls turn off, was covered with gravel because it was too late last fall when the installation was made to do any paving. Water running from a higher field washed across the road, taking out the gravel fill and leaving a foot deep cut, Dayley said. The road was closed Sunday night but reopened Monday after repairs were made.

Mrs. Lee Blitzenburg, who lives about five and one half miles south of Curry in the Berger area, said her family used bales of straw and the third cutting of hay to barricade their home, corrals and other buildings. She said as a result the buildings escaped damage but lots of top soil washed out of plowed fields and into borrowpits, roadways and adjoining fields.

She said apparently water is still coming from snow in the Shoshone Basin and other areas and washing through fields and pastures. Damage will probably require heavy equipment to fill in washes and clean or rebuild irrigation ditches.

Corrals and fields on the Victor-Kerbs property were still flooded

Monday and a light rain was beginning to fall, residents south of Twin Falls said.

Sheriff Munn said a road between Clear Lakes and Bonbury's swimming resort in the west end of the county was closed Monday morning. Some damage in this area remains from the January flooding, he said.

Clifford Montgomery, manager of the Twin Falls Canal Co., said Monday he believed the worst was over for the present time. He said there is still a lot of water in laterals, especially at the ends of the system where the laterals are smaller and unable to carry a large flow of water.

He said most of the snow on the ground in the vicinity of the Twin Falls Canal Co. system is now melted and the ice which has been jamming the canals the past several days is melting.

"A lot of it went out last night and yesterday and I think if we don't get a lot of moisture we will be in good shape," Montgomery said.

Guerrillas down Rhodesian plane

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Guerrillas firing Soviet-made missiles Monday shot down an Air Rhodesia turboprop plane that crashed into a ravine and killed all 59 people aboard, military sources said.

Airliner sources said some of the passengers aboard the plane were Americans and Europeans. No identities were available, however.

The Viscount aircraft was taking off from the northern resort city of Kariba, the same place where a similar attack in September killed 38 persons. Guerrillas gunned down 10 other people who survived that crash.

After word of the tragedy outside Kariba spread Monday, passengers aboard a second flight leaving the town were warned their plane might be shot down.

"It was horrible everyone was frightened out of their minds," said one passenger in the second flight. "People were crying all over the airplane."

Air Rhodesia manager Pat Travers confirmed there were no survivors among the 54 passengers and five crew members aboard the flight, which was bound for Salisbury.

Helicopters circling the site of the crash reported the plane hit a ravine and exploded in flames.

Military sources blamed the disaster on Soviet-made ground-to-air SAM-7 missiles fired by anti-government guerrillas, who claimed responsibility for the September crash.

A spokesman in Zambia for Joshua Nkomo, who claimed his guerrillas shot down the Rhodesian airliner last September, said a statement would be issued Tuesday.

Among the first to hear of the disaster was Lt. Gen. Peter Mills, head of Rhodesia's armed forces, and his wife. They were aboard the second Viscount, waiting to take off from Kariba at the time of the crash.

As the news was broadcast to the pilot, Mills was called into the cockpit. When he returned, he told a British correspondent aboard that there was a "bit of trouble."

Winter of '79 coldest, snowiest ever

By United Press International
Snow swept the Midwest Monday — making this winter the snowiest in history in some areas — and New England shivered in a record cold wave.
Snow fell from the Dakotas and Minnesota across the Great Lakes to Pennsylvania. A major, new storm was brewing in the Rockies and forecasters warned of heavy snow and possible blizzard conditions in the mountains and the Plains.
The National Weather Service reported Chicago's season snowfall reached 82.4 inches early Monday — a tenth of an inch more than the old record, set only last year. The weather service said 1.8 inches fell Sunday. An additional 3.3 inches had fallen by Monday morning and more snow was on the way.

Traffic on area expressways was slowed and commuter trains and buses also were bogged down. Portions of northern Indiana got more than four inches of new snow and many rural schools shut down. Freezing rain made travel hazardous in other parts of Indiana.

Heavy snow turned driving into a nightmare in parts of central Ohio Monday. Dayton got 5 inches of new snow and Columbus 4. Traffic was so congested in Columbus it took some suburban motorists 3 hours to drive downtown to work.

The Ohio State patrol reported travel was "extremely hazardous" across most of the state.

Fire controlled

WHITING, Ind. (UPI) — Firefighters contained and finally doused a spectacular fire that raged for 12 hours at a large oil refinery Monday, forcing some 400 persons from their homes. No one was injured.
Apparently, no one was in the vicinity of the original explosions and fire, authorities said.
The blaze, which sent flames leaping 100 feet into the night sky, started in two diesel fuel storage tanks at Amoco Oil Co.'s Standard Oil Division refinery. The flames were contained within five hours. Authorities said the fire was finally extinguished several hours after that.

Reservation fire

OWYHEE, Nev. (UPI) — Fire destroyed a residence on the Duck Valley Indian Reservation early today. A fire department spokesman said five persons may have been killed in the blaze.
The fire started at about 1:30 in this small city, located near the southeast Idaho-Nevada border.
"I understand there were five people killed," the spokesman said.
Police could only confirm "there are victims inside the house."
No identities were given and no other information was available.

Stevens hit again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Labor Relations Board Monday issued its 18th decision against the J.P. Stevens textile manufacturing firm, ruling that a wholly owned subsidiary violated federal labor laws in firing two workers for union activity.
The NLRB affirmed a decision of Administrative Law Judge John Dyer on a complaint brought by the United Rubber Workers union against the Northampton, Mass., plant of Stevens Elastomeric & Plastic Products, Inc.

ABA bans cameras

ATLANTA (UPI) — The American Bar Association defeated a proposal Monday to ease a section of the ABA's Code of Ethics banning coverage of trials by cameras and other electronic devices used by the media.
Rejection of the proposal by a voice vote came despite the fact that 25 states and the District of Columbia allow some form of electronic coverage of trials.

Allegheny propjet flips, 2 killed, 26 injured

CLARKSBURG, W.Va. (UPI) — A Washington-based Allegheny Airlines propjet crashed in a snowstorm Monday on takeoff from Benedum Airport.

A crew member and a passenger were killed and 23 others were injured.

In Washington, Allegheny Airlines identified the dead crew member as First Officer David Baites, Beaver Falls, Pa. The dead passenger was identified as Mary Sturm of Fairview, W.Va., one of 21 passengers on the plane.

Capt. Robert Everly of Camp Hill, Pa., the pilot, and flight attendant Deborah Freedland, Pickersville, Ill., were among 23 people hospitalized overnight for treatment of injuries and observation. Everly was listed in serious condition.

Among the injured was pop music entertainer Leon Redbone, who had performed over the weekend on the West Virginia University campus. He was reported in good condition with a hip injury.

An Allegheny official said the plane was en route to the nation's capital, with a scheduled stop in Morgantown, W.Va. The jet is equipped to accommodate 25 passengers and a crew of three.

The plane landed upside down about 100 feet beyond a runway. There was no fire. The left wing was sheared and the fuselage was broken in the mid-section.

A National Weather Service spokesman said the airport was engulfed in "light snow showers" at the time.

Teams of investigators descended on the airport hours later, including officials of the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board. And Allegheny said the airlines, as it routinely does in accidents, would send a team of investigators to conduct its own probe.

Sally Bishop, Pickersville, Ill., said the plane had just left the airport when it began to "rock back and forth."

"All of a sudden, it flipped," she said. "I didn't realize what was going on. All of a sudden we were hanging from the ceiling. Then everybody panicked, and they were all trying to get out the best they could."

All aboard the plane were removed from the wreckage within an hour and 40 minutes of the crash.
"The plane started to take off," said a woman survivor. "It then began shaking very badly and rocking. Then the plane just flipped over. A stewardess told us to just get out the best we could. We were upside down, strapped into our seats."

The twin-engine Mohawk en route to Washington with a scheduled stop at Morgantown, W.Va., went down at 1:30 p.m. The plane's takeoff originally had been scheduled three hours earlier but was delayed because of snow on the runway.

Bob Fry, an airport control tower supervisor, said the plane lifted off the ground but then dropped, flipping over on its propellers.

Fry said that shortly after the plane took off controllers lost sight of it because of blowing snow. Controllers then received emergency signals from the plane but attempts to reach the pilot by radio failed.

After checking with radar units in Cleveland, which failed to show the plane in the air, the controllers assumed the plane had gone down and dispatched emergency vehicles.

"We couldn't see what happened. We had no indication of the altitude of the aircraft," he said.

"We had no indication from the pilot before the crash. We have no idea what caused it."

Rockefeller heirs seek 'clarification'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two members of Nelson Rockefeller's family are calling for a clarification of the events surrounding the former vice president's death.

"We just want the truth," Rockefeller's grandson, Steven Jr., told UPI Monday in a telephone interview from his home in New Canaan, Conn. "The issue is simply whether he could be alive now."

"There is not in my estimation any scandal," Steven, an 18-year-old high school student, said. "We just want clarification."

His father, Steven Rockefeller Sr., stood by earlier statements calling for a resolution of the conflicting accounts about Rockefeller's death from a heart attack Jan. 26 in a Manhattan townhouse.

"I would hope that this matter will be clarified in the near future," Steven Sr. said in a telephone interview from his home in Middlebury, Vt., where he is a professor of theology at Middlebury College. "Beyond that, I am not making any statements."

Steven Rockefeller Jr. is the only son of Anne-Marie Rasmussen, the Norwegian maid who worked at the former New York governor's Fifth Avenue apartment and whose Cinderella marriage to Steven Rockefeller Sr. caused a sensation 30 years ago. The couple is divorced and the father has since remarried.

Steven Jr. is the first Rockefeller grandchild to speak out about his grandfather's death.

"I loved Granddaddy," he said in the telephone interview. "He was an inspiration to me. Had he been a more practical man — thorough in his own bodyguard protection — maybe this wouldn't have happened."

He added, "Nobody knows whether he made a mistake; no one knows. We do know now there was no one there to take immediate care" of him.

Wyoming's challenge to 55-mph law dies

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Compromise legislation directly challenging the national speed limit of 55 mph died Monday in the Wyoming House of Representatives, effectively killing the speed limit issue for the 1979 legislative session.

Wyoming had led the nation in a federal suit Monday to ease a section of the federal 55-mph speed limit, a fight that gathered the support of several other states in the West.

The compromise measure would have decreased fines for motorists traveling between 55 and 65 mph. It had been proposed as an alternative to a more straightforward bill approved by the Senate Jan. 24 that would have raised the speed limit to 65 mph.

The House debate dealt not only with the question of fines, but also with the speed limit issue itself. After a decisively adverse vote, House Majority Leader Russ Benney termed the 65-mph bill "dead" for the 1979 session.

The bill to reduce fines drew only 20 supporters in the 62-member House. It would have decreased speeding fines to a mere $5 for motorists traveling between 55 and 61 mph, but stiffened penalties to $30 for those driving between 61 and 75 mph and $45 for those driving 75 mph and over. It called for a minimum fine of $45.

The passage of the bill in the Wyoming Senate had spawned similar movements in nearly a dozen other western states. Lawmakers say the 55-mph is detrimental to western interests because of the vast distances between communities.

Alligator skins, bobcat pelts soon may be exported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal officials Monday decided to ask an international convention on endangered species to allow limited export of alligator skins for the first time in 10 years and to review restrictions on the export of bobcat pelts.

Register notice, said they will propose that the status of the American alligator be reduced from those of animals about to become extinct, which bars all exports.

Under the proposal, alligator trade would be permitted on a limited basis. The U.S. alligator, on the verge of extinction about 20 years ago, has increased in population to about 600,000. Domestic commerce in reptiles was resumed in 1972.

The proposals will be made at the March 19-30 meeting in Costa Rica of 47 nations participating in an international treaty on trade in endangered species.

After kidnapping

Body of 11-year-old found

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — The daughter of the Grand Rapids civil service director was kidnapped from her school-crossing guardpost Monday morning. Her body, handcuffed behind her back, was found a few hours later in an expensive residential neighborhood.

Police said there had been no arrests.

It was the latest in a rash of kidnappings in the area in the last six months.

The girl, Linda VanderVeen, 11, a sixth-grader at Mulick Park Elementary School, was guiding other students across the street when a black car pulled up near her, a man jumped out and grabbed her, threw her into the car and sped off.

Her fully clothed body was found at 5 p.m. EST, 8 1/2 hours after she was kidnapped. In a residential area about 1 1/2 miles from the school, a police spokesman described it as an "apartment-condominium type neighborhood ... It's kind of an exclusive, expensive area."

Police said the girl's hands were tied behind her. No other details of the discovery were immediately released.

The cause of death also was not immediately known. The body was taken to a hospital so police could search for fingerprints.

The victim was the daughter of Andrew VanderVeen, the city's civil service chief, a spokeswoman for VanderVeen's office refused comment on whether VanderVeen's position might be related to the abduction.

Thomas Domagalski, the city's elementary education director, said he saw a passing motorist who had seen the abduction pull his car in front of the getaway car.

"The guy got out of his car and went over there to see what was going on and almost got run over when the guy backed up," Domagalski said.

Police said the motorist chased the car on foot for several blocks along snow-slicked streets, but lost him.

In August, Tammi Lea Pearo, 12

was kidnapped in Conklin, a small nearby farming community, as she rode her bicycle home from a grocery store. Her nude, decomposed body was found more than a week later in a heavily wooded area northwest of the city. Two men were awaiting trial in that incident.

How can misalignment of spinal vertebrae result in pain in the legs? This occurs when one of the vertebrae of the lower spine is displaced and is no longer perfectly aligned with the adjacent vertebrae.

The spinal nerves that provide feeling for the legs pass through tiny passages in the spinal vertebrae. Any displacement and resultant misalignment of the vertebrae can cause compression, pinching and thus irritate the nerves. The pain that results is felt in the legs.

Low back and leg pains respond well to chiropractic techniques, as thousands have discovered. Learn what chiropractic treatment can do to end your back pain. Please call for an appointment.

Coffee can costs cut

United Press International

The nation's biggest coffee roasters Monday cut wholesale prices on ground coffee by 5 cents to $2.48 a pound in a move that should appear on supermarket shelves within a month.

Folger Coffee Co., the No. 1 roaster, and Hills Bros. Coffee Inc., the No. 3 roaster, said the price reductions were effective immediately.

MJB, a smaller West Coast roaster, lowered its list price on ground coffee to $2.48 from $2.53 a pound.

Folger, a division of Procter & Gamble Co. in Cincinnati, also reduced the wholesale price on a 13-ounce can of its flaked coffee to 2 from $2.04.

Hills Bros., headquartered in San Francisco, trimmed the price tag on its high yield coffee by 1 cent to $2 for a 13-ounce can.

Other people inspire journalist

By ROGER SIMON
©1979 Chicago Sun-Times
This is my 500th column. I didn't sit down and count them, but a very kind reader told me that this was going to be the one.

I should point out that 500 columns is not quite the milestone it seems. There are columnists in this country who passed the 500 mark sometime during the Korean war.

But still, it is one of those round numbers that weighs heavy on the mind and makes you feel as if you should do something about it.

In commemoration, I was going to write something glib about the practice of journalism. Somehow, it didn't turn out that way.

This is a strange thing to do for a living. In some ways it is a lot like juggling or balancing things on your nose. It takes a knack. It looks harder than it is. It impresses people.

Unlike juggling, however, we use other people and not Indian clubs or rubber balls to do our act. We use the stuff of other people's lives to fashion our work. And we do it, mainly, whether they want us to or not. And we don't think about it all that much.

I am always fascinated that people want newspapers to be better than they are. People stand in the freezing cold at the scene of a mass murder to catch a glimpse of a body bag, but they also complain that the press is filled with too much violence.

I'm not saying our motives are that much higher than yours. Curiosity and the thrill of covering a story are probably bigger motivations for what we do than the fancy explanations that we dream up in our speeches on a free press.

We live in a society that has combined extraordinary laws protecting free speech with the extraordinary technology to carry that speech.

We live in a country that has an insatiable appetite for information, gossip, news, tidbits, rumors, hints and downright lies.

We live in a country that, above all things, wants to know about everything. We are all gawkers at the train wreck.

Newspapers are going to tell you what you want to know and a few things that you don't. We are going to give you the facts and the commentary and the cartoons and the coupons. We are going to tell the truth as best we can determine it, which means that sometimes we will lie. When we find out, we'll probably say we're sorry.

We are not going to be on the cutting edge of social reform in America. I can't remember any newspaper kicking off the fight for civil rights or the fight against the war in Vietnam.

You're going to have to do those things yourselves. Once things get going, the newspapers will cover the story. Editorial pages will offer comfort and support and advice and maybe change a few minds.

And, on rare occasions, a newspaper will stand up on its hind legs and take on everybody and everything. Those are the times that make us proud of our profession.

I once read that the motto of the old Chicago Times was: "It is a newspaper's duty to print the news and raise hell." I don't know if that really was the motto, but if I ever own a newspaper, that's the motto I'd want.

I think newspapers, in general, do a hell of a job. We don't like to say that much. We are a very nervous industry. Anyone who claims to speak for the public is usually very nervous about just how isolated from the public he really is.

So during Spiro Agnew's famous attack on the press, some of the media did a lot of soul-searching and then decided to roll over and play dead. Some fought back.

The press didn't turn out to be right and Agnew wrong just because Agnew was a crook. Agnew was wrong because he dreamed up cozy con-spracies to describe how the press operated.

I don't know many reporters who sit down—and worry—about the great issues of a free press when they write a story. They go out to the story and they grab it and they write and they build it up to the city desk.

They scream when the story ends up on Page 50 with the last paragraph cut off and they back in the warmest glow in the world when it's Page 1. Somehow it all works. Truth, justice, and the American way somehow get served.

It's a simple profession with simple joys. I still remember what it felt like to get my first byline. In college, the Associated Press would send you a check if they used one of your stories on the wire. I've still got my first one. I remember what it felt like when a newsman named Ward Just, who was my first boss in Waukegan, Ill., sent me a note saying that if I wanted to try a column, it was OK with him. I remember that when I left his paper to come to the big city that I was scared and he said not to be. "It's just a newspaper," he said.

Reporters always end up quoting other reporters when they talk about journalism. The following was written by Stanley Walker, a famous editor and author. It has been quoted before, but it's worth repeating:

"What makes a good newspaperman? The answer is easy. He knows everything. He is aware not only of what goes on in the world today, but his brain is a repository of the accumulated wisdom of the ages.

"He is not only handsome, but he has the physical strength which enables him to perform great feats of energy. He can go for nights on end without sleep. He dresses well and talks with charm. Men admire him; women adore him; tycoons and statesmen are willing to share their secrets with him.

Alternatives to 55 mph

Following Wyoming's example, the Idaho legislature has decided to play around with the federally-mandated 55 mile per hour speed limit.

A bill raising the Idaho speed limit to 65 mph will motor to the House this week or next.

The bill probably shouldn't be passed because it could cost the state $40 million in federal highway funds.

Without the federal money, Idaho's transportation system would rapidly disintegrate, according to state transportation director Darrell Manning.

"If you destroy the Idaho transportation system, you destroy the economy (of Idaho)," Manning warned the House Transportation Committee.

That kind of pronouncement will surely frighten the full House into opposing the anti-55 mph bill.

Before the bill dies, however, a few philosophic words should be directed to the federal government concerning the nationally-mandated 55 mph speed limit.

The national speed limit saves an estimated 4,500 lives per year on the highways and the bill shaves perhaps 2 percent of the total gasoline consumption in the nation.

But the national speed limit also typifies much of what is wrong with government these days.

The law tries to regulate the lives of 100 million drivers without regard for differences in geography or driving requirements.

Western states such as Wyoming where the anti-55 mph drive began and Idaho where it currently is being debated, make a good case for a higher speed limit.

Ben Franklin said "time is money" and time spent driving western highways at 55 is time and therefore money wasted for truckers, salesmen and private motorists.

At a U.S. Transportation Department-sponsored driving clinic for truckers last fall, some professional drivers actually got better mileage driving above 55 than they did driving the speed limit.

Western states certainly should share the burden of energy conservation. But it would seem the government should consider relaxing the 55-mph speed limit in the west if states such as Idaho and Wyoming would agree to some other kind of energy-saving plan to make up for the fuel burned by driving over 55.

For example, cars with properly inflated tires or tuned properly would save the same 1 to 2 percent of the fuel conserved by driving 55.

Or, maybe Idaho could impose stricter insulation laws on houses and commercial buildings to save fuels.

The 55-mph national speed limit is based on good intentions.

But the law infuriates many westerners because they feel the law doesn't fit the particular driving requirements of the West.

On that point, the anti-55 forces are correct.

If the Idaho legislature can come up with some alternative energy-saving plan for the government, perhaps the feds would ease off on the threat of cutting highway funds and on the unbending enforcement of the 55-mph speed limit.

Distant neighbor, Mexico

©1979 N.Y. Times Service
MEXICO CITY — It is 30 years since Octavio Paz wrote the "Labyrinth of Solitude" — the classic study of life and thought in Mexico. Now we find him in his cluttered and noisy penthouse in the very center of Mexico City, reflecting on the visit of President Carter and still musing about the difference between our two countries.

He agrees that formal relations between the United States and Mexico are friendly, despite some differences over oil and illegal aliens, but, he insists, he insists, are neighbors and strangers.

"The great difference between us," he says, "is not economical, not political — not because you are very rich and we are very poor. The difference is historical.

"You in the United States were born with the beginning of the new world, with reform, liberalism, criticism, and democracy, and capitalism. And we in Mexico start with the old empire, the Aztec empire. It was young but it was very old because it was the inheritor of the old theocracies of this part of the world — the oldest thing in history. And then arrived a power — the Spaniards. So we are a mixture of the pre-Columbian and the Roman-Catholic Church's counterreformation — and this is a very great difference."

and power of the United States and its allies in the Western world. This he hopes may be corrected in the last quarter of the century, and yet he sounds pessimistic about the moral foundations of the West and talks of this very much like the Soviet philosopher, Solzhenitsyn. But in sort of an epilogue to his classic book, Paz makes the following statement:

"The sickness of the West is moral, rather than social and economic. It is true that their economic problems are serious, and that they have not been resolved; on the contrary, inflation and unemployment are on the rise. It is also true that poverty has not disappeared, despite affluence. Several groups — women, racial, religious and linguistic minorities — still are or feel excluded. But the real, most profound discord lies in the soul.

"The future has become the realm of horror, and the present has turned into a desert. The liberal societies spin tirelessly, not forward, but round and round. The hedonism of the West is the other face of desperation; its skepticism is not wisdom but renunciation; its liberalism ends in suicide and in inferior forms of credibility, such as political fanaticism and magical chimeras. The empty place left by Christianity in the modern soul is not filled by philosophy, but by the crudest superstitions. Our erudition is a technique, not an art or a passion.

"He is no less pessimistic about the relationships between the United States and Mexico. "In general," he says, "Americans have not looked for a Mexico in Mexico; they have looked for their obsessions, enthusiasms, phobias, hopes, interests — and these are what they have found. In short, the history of our relationship is the history of a mutual and stubborn deceit, usually involuntary, though not always so."

Federal budget has the last word

BY STEVE FORRESTER
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — The federal budget has a way of laying certain arguments to rest.

Members of the administration might spend several nights in argument over a theoretical question, but the budget has the last word.

So it is with the President's Timber Policy Task Force and the theory that the government might fight inflation by increasing the cut from the national forests.

President Carter commissioned the Timber Policy Task Force to explore that economic notion, which he floated during a speech to editors last spring.

The economic theory was that if the government allowed a heavier harvest of timber from the national forests, there would be more timber on the market; hence the price of lumber and the price of new housing would fall.

Leading administration exponent of this theory was Barry Bosworth, director of the President's Council on Wage- and Price Stability. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus joined in to urge an increase in the cut from the national forests.

The Timber Policy Task Force went round and round discussing and arguing this theory. Eventually, government lawyers explained the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974 to Bosworth, telling him that the national forests could not simply be harvested to suit the needs of government economists — that if the administration intended to violate provisions of the law regarding allowable cut from the forests, it would end up in court.

Draft memorandum after draft memorandum circulated among task force members. The game among journalists was to track the latest draft, as it made the rounds.

Interior Secretary Andrus was generally available for a tart comment about the impotence of the task force, and he would reiterate his earlier remark, that the draft memorandum was "washed-over-Pabulum."

$159.3 million. This decrease represents not just a relative decline in dollars, but an absolute decrease in the timber harvest, since the Forest Service has estimated that to maintain timber sales at a level equivalent to the 1979 sales, the budget requirement would be $171.6 million. The $159.3 million budgeted by Carter is $12 million less than that base figure which the Forest Service calculated.

That means 700 million board feet less will be prepared and offered for sale from the national forests during Fiscal Year 1980.

That's not all. Budget figures for reforestation and stand improvement are slashed drastically — by $25 million, from $92.9 million to $67.8 million.

The president's budget for timber sales, and management and for reforestation and stand improvement has two important implications: one for the Northwest and one for the nation's economy.

For a region whose timber economy relies heavily upon timber sales from the national forests, this kind of planned deceleration at both ends of the timber cycle — reforestation at one end and harvest at the other — presages a slowdown for the lumber economy.

It should be pointed out that in the Western states (Alaska, Washington, Oregon and California) during 1977, national forests provided one-third of the wood cut. By contrast, national forests in the southern states during 1977 provided about 7 percent of the wood cut in that region.

What is being taught in the Mexican schools about the United States? Officials at the U.S. embassy know that what we call "the Mexican war" is defined in the school books of Mexico as the unfair war "of the American intervention" that took half of Mexico's territory and added it to the territory of the United States.

But beyond that, U.S. officials here are just beginning to study this question and it may be significant that even Carter's speechwriters know so little about Mexico that they came here to talk to Paz before preparing the president's remarks to the Mexican Parliament.

Paz, a handsome and energetic man now in his 60s, is critical of the one-party political domination of Mexico. The dominant bureaucracy of the state here is more worrying than corruption, he says. Both the press and education, he thinks, are unduly influenced by the left.

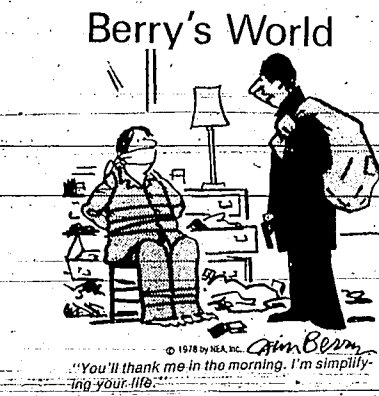

There is little realignment in Mexico, he agrees, that Latin America has been defended from the tumults of the world in this century by the energy and power of the United States and its allies in the Western world. This he hopes may be corrected in the last quarter of the century, and yet he sounds pessimistic about the moral foundations of the West and talks of this very much like the Soviet philosopher, Solzhenitsyn. But in sort of an epilogue to his classic book, Paz makes the following statement:

"The sickness of the West is moral, rather than social and economic. Girl Scout cookie boycott urged in L.A.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Girl Scout troop Ms. Alfred was joined by former Girl Scout field director Ellen Jahn, current Field Director Ann Bridgen and Social Services Union official John Lelpe.

She was supported by some past and present Girl Scout officials. Gloria Alfred, head of the local chapter of NOW, suggested the money normally spent on the door-to-door cookie sales be put into local troops where it will provide more services for young girls.

She urged area residents to "boycott" the cookie sales when the girls begin ringing doorbells Wednesday in Los Angeles to take advance orders.

Instead, she urged that the $1.25 normally spent on a box of cookies be handed to the saleslady with the stipulation that it be used by the local

They twiddled and twiddled

DALLAS (UPI) — Thumb-twiddling fraternity brothers Ben Sheeran and Brian Fewell have set a record.

In this case, they not only claim a record for marathon thumb twiddling, but they also claim it's something nobody else has ever done.

Sheeran and Fewell, both 19-year-old Sigma Chi Delta pledges at Dallas Baptist College, twiddled their thumbs for 26 hours.

"It was just a once in a lifetime weird thing you have to do," Sheeran said Sunday. "It's just like Hillary's mountain. He climbed it because it was there and we did this because no one ever had before."

The world's arbiter of what is or isn't a record, the Guinness Book of Records, does not now have a mark for thumb twiddling, but Sheeran has been in contact with the British publication and hopes their efforts will be noted in the next edition.

"I think there's a pretty good chance that it will," he said. "We really did work on it. We had an independent judge there all the time. We'll be sending them the newspaper clippings this week." Sheeran and Fewell started their marathon at 4 p.m. Friday, and finished at 6 p.m. Saturday, twiddling for 55 minutes per hour to earn a five-minute break.

The object of the marathon was to raise money for their pledge class. Sheeran said about $130 was raised. Aside from being tired after their 26 sleepless hours, Sheeran said he and Fewell were no worse for their efforts.

"My hands are a little stiff, but not as much as I expected," he said. "There were no real problems."

"In the first couple of hours you had to think about moving your thumbs, but after that it was just an unconscious action — they just kept following each other around."

Sunday during church, however, Sheeran said he did notice a strange after effect.

"I was listening to the sermon and when I looked down I saw my thumbs going around. I stopped that right away," he said. "And last night I had nightmares — twiddle, twiddle, twiddle...."

Pot almost legalized

LITTLE ROCK (UPI) — Marijuana was on the verge of being legalized in Arkansas until legislators discovered the blunder Monday.

A bill designed to consolidate drug enforcement activities in the state Health Department had zipped through the House on an 84-0 vote last month and was in the Senate when the gaffe was discovered.

At the end of the eight-page bill was a clause repealing numerous conflicting laws. One of those was a 1973 law defining marijuana as an illegal controlled substance. If the bill had continued through legislative channels and had been signed by the governor, then the listing of marijuana as a controlled substance would have been removed from law.

Belly dancer strives for exotic conditioning

By GAIL WILLIAMS
ATLANTA (UPI) — Bellies roll, shoulders shimmy and hips quiver when Gaia Avrill leads classes for women seeking to learn the exotic and sensual — though often misunderstood — ancient art form of belly dancing.

There is a lot more to belly dancing than just learning to move one's belly, says the 33-year-old native Atlantan, and the faint-hearted often drop out of classes once they find out.

Moreover, she explains, the dances are intended to be sensual — not sexual — although many might think the latter.

Gaia, who has been belly dancing five years, decided to take up the art form after hearing classes would be offered in Atlanta. She had no idea she would get "hooked" on belly dancing; and turn professional.

"I began taking lessons just because they offered it here for the first time that I ever knew about," she says in a soft southern drawl against a backdrop of haunting Middle Eastern music playing in the background.

It was her first instructor, Zira Yoseph, who encouraged Gaia to become a professional belly dancer. Zira — who now lives in New York — prepared Gaia for her first public dancing debut after only a year of "off and on again classes."

"And I was 'horrible,'" recalls Gaia, laughing. Her debut was at a restaurant-lounge in the famed Atlanta Underground called The Down Under, which is no longer in business.

Since that time, Gaia has danced at private parties as well as in restaurants and lounges in Atlanta, Rome, Ga., and Greenville, S.C.

Wrapped in layers of colorful chiffon veils and skirts, midsection bare and taut with snake-like bracelets encircling her arms and ankles, Gaia interprets — with her body — the many moods of Middle Eastern music.

She began teaching belly dancing about as casually as she had begun taking classes.

"What made me decide to begin teaching was that a next door neighbor's daughter had to be in a talent show and had nothing to do. So I told her mother I would teach her to belly dance," recalls Gaia, adding, "I could barely do it myself."

She said the neighbor's daughter "really got a kick out of it," but that the performance was controversial for the times.

"It was quite controversial for her at that time to get up in high school and belly dance," says Gaia. Belly dancing was even controversial in her own home at first because her artist husband was not particularly interested in his wife becoming a professional belly dancer.

In fact, she added, "it was probably not something most southern women ever thought they would be doing."

But she said it "didn't take long" for her husband to change his mind.

"After all, what did he know about belly dancing (at first); what had he ever seen?"

Soon, said Gaia, some of the women in her husband's office wanted to take classes.

Presently, Gaia — who is four and a half months pregnant with her first child — teaches three classes a week, two for beginners and one for advanced students.

She continued to dance publicly up until her fourth month of pregnancy, abdomen still flat.

Gaia says her students, mostly working women between the ages of 20 and 40, take up belly dancing for different reasons. Many in the advanced class want to become professionals. Others pursue it as a hobby. Some do so in an effort to firm and strengthen the abdominal area.

Although she has known several women who have firmed their abdominal areas by taking classes, she feels belly dancing is an all-over body conditioner.

Total fitness weight trainer's goal

By IRENE LANK
 Times-News writer

The push-pull, sweat-groan of weight training is becoming increasingly popular in the Magic Valley, as well as the nation.

"Weight training for overall conditioning and fitness may be the fastest growing sport in America today," says Steve DeWitt, owner of the DeWitt's Gym in South Park. "Gyms — that cater to women as well as men — are springing up all over the country. People are striving to become totally fit and you can't achieve that with jogging and calisthenics alone. Weight training makes you gain muscle tone and strength and get rid of unwanted fat."

Weight training is often mistakenly referred to as weight lifting, a competitive sport. Some Magic Valley residents are trained weight lifting competitors.

For example, LeRoy May of Jerome is a competitive power lifter who holds the Intermountain record for the 600-pound deadlift. Gary Seydita of Twin Falls is preparing as a body builder for the Mr. Idaho contest in April. And Jerome policeman Dale Lowe and several of his fellow officers work out regularly at DeWitt's Gym because they are interested in top physical conditioning.

Many more Magic Valley residents are active in weight training as opposed to weight lifting. "Weight training also involves lifting heavy weights — such as barbells and dumbbells — or working out on exercise machines on which you push, pull or lift against a system of pulleys. The physical results are similar to those of calisthenics, but they come faster and are more pronounced, helping to motivate the participant. Benefits of the sport include:

- Weight training increases the strength and endurance of muscles, improves flexibility, and — as women are now discovering — restapes your figure to attractive proportions.
- Weight lifting builds upper body strength needed for such activities as returning a tennis serve or gripping a golf club.
- Orthopedic surgeons and physical therapists often prescribe working-out with weights. To foster recovery from an injury or illness.
- Weight training may not burn a significant number of calories, but it can help you achieve a trimmer appearance by replacing flabby fat with firm muscle. And, contrary to popular belief, women who work out with weights won't develop bulging muscles. Those are determined by a male hormone.

DeWitt, who is 36 and has worked out with weights for 15 years, is now the designer and manufacturer of weights, benches and machines that he uses in his own gym and that he sells nationwide to schools, colleges and private gyms. He says his healthy equipment sales are one barometer of "Americans' increasing interest in becoming physically fit."

In May, DeWitt will open a new facility, which will feature instruction for men and women and a private workout room for women.

The College of Southern Idaho offers weight training through regular classes and a special daily physical fitness class for adults.

"People are becoming more aware than ever before of their need for total wellness and fitness," says Bob Wright, head of the CSI physical education department. "We have close to 150 students enrolled in classes which incorporate weight training and about 50 community people who come in regularly and work out on our equipment. About 15 of these adults are women."

Janet Latham and Sheryl Thornton are two of those women.

Sheryl says: "Janet and I have been working out with weights and jogging for five years now. My reason? After having my fifth child I decided I wanted to get back into shape. And believe me, this has done it. It has not only given me the energy to do everything I want to do, but it keeps me firm. Occasionally, when I have had to lay off my regimen for a few weeks, I feel a tremendous loss of fitness. That is why I have continued working out. Having a friend to enjoy it with helps. I see Janet and I keep each other motivated."

Sheryl, a 35-year-old woman who can easily benchpress 60 pounds and legpress 240 pounds 50 times each, says she is not doing anything another woman could not do with the same effort.

Buell Crane, Twin Falls' 78-year-old Gold medalist and world class athlete in Senior events works out with weights at CSI regularly. He says, "It is an absolute requirement for me. To stay totally fit for the track and field events that I compete in, I work out about three times a week."

Dave Meeks, KMVT sports newscaster, is another frequent CSI weight room user. He says, "I like the feeling of complete fitness that I get from the weights. I'd like to enter some marathon runs this summer and I feel the marathons will help build my endurance and stamina."

The Sophisticated Lady Fitness Salon, which has been operating in Twin Falls for over a year, uses weight training as a major facet of each member's individual program.

"Depending on the results of the fitness evaluation that we give each lady on her first visit we find that most women can use the weight machines to some extent," says Debbie Ingram, manager of the salon.

"The more fit a woman becomes, the more she can increase her use of the weights."

Ingram continues, "The kind of routine we set up for a woman depends on just what she would like to accomplish. Most want to lose inches. This can be done not only through weight loss, if that is a goal, but through strengthening and firming up the muscles. Even women who are not overweight need this. Much of this can be achieved by working out with weights."

The Ballbusters Racquetball Court in Twin Falls has just completed a new weight room for use by both men and women who are members or non-members of the club. Lorie Vanhooser, who has had training in physical education, set up the Ballbusters physical fitness program for women which includes an exercise class and the regular use of weights.

Vanhooser says: "Besides figure control, both men and women find immense benefits from working with weights in other areas, too. One's self-image improves, stamina and energy increase, sleep comes more easily, blood circulation speeds up, (which among other things creates a nicer complexion), cardio-vascular exercise is provided if the weights are used correctly, and working out with weights provides another area of outside interest and social contact."

Cost of popular indoor sports must include fees, equipment

By DOUG TULLIS
 Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Equipment for various indoor sports — from shoes to rackets — can vary significantly in price and quality.

Take bowling, a game that has been around since old English days. It holds the interest of several hundred participants and, each year, another manufacturer brings out a new ball guaranteed to give more pin action and better scores.

Bowling can be inexpensive — $3-$4 a visit including rent of the shoe and ball — or it can become expensive for those who are tournament-bound.

Racquetball is rapidly catching up with bowling as a popular indoor sport. As in bowling, facility rentals are part of the costs. Court fees range from $2.75 an hour to $3 an hour, depending on the time of day a person wants to play. Daytime hours cost the least for court time while the evening time requires the higher price.

Equipment is generally available at the courts and ranges from 50 cents to $1 for a racquet.

If the player preferred to buy his own equipment, he could start with an initial investment of $65. For that $45, the racquetball enthusiast can buy a $15 racket with a choice of several different brand names; an $18 pair of canvas basketball shoes and $10 worth of shorts, sock and shirt.

The hotdog in the sport will want to start with the top-of-the-line Leach-Gronoble 100 racket at $125; a pair of $35 Adidas leather racquetball shoes; a $50 White Stag polyester exercise suit; a $10 pair of eye guards, $20 worth of color coordinated shorts, shirt, sock and sweat bands for wrist and head; an $8 can of racquetballs and a genuine leather carrying bag especially designed for racquetball lovers. Total investment, about $250.

For those who don't have a mind to hit a ball against a wall for an hour or try to knock down some sticks of wood, city basketball and volleyball leagues draw plenty of participants.

Those leagues are easy to get into if a team needs players and those interested can come up with the fees to play.

In the way of equipment, there are few items needed other than shorts, shirt, shoes and sock.

Beyond that, some like to have a basketball to practice with. A good leather ball made exclusively for use on a hardwood floor can cost as much as $20 or more. Rubber basketballs are available for about $6 but are not very durable.

There is one ball available made of a new combination material that reacts much like leather but can take the punishment of a concrete court. That ball costs about $30 and is available at several sporting goods stores throughout the valley.

For those wanting to get into body building or stationary exercising, a complete line of weights, pulleys and treadmills are available.

A 110-pound set of barbells averages about $40 but for the individual wanting something heavier, a 500-pound Olympic weight set is about $450.

If that isn't fancy enough, a few manufacturers offer a complete gym set called a universal gym for about $1,500. Those sets include stations or positions for several individuals to work out.

Besides weightlifting and body building equipment, some people enjoy jogging on a treadmill or exercise on an exercise bike.

A lightweight treadmill will cost about $60 while the institutional models will run over $300.

An exercise bike can be purchased for as little as $35 but those with the speedometer and variable pressure adjustment can go as high as $150.

If the cold weather spoils opportunities for outdoor recreation, take heart.

For the fisherman, the winter season provides a perfect opportunity to practice fly-fishing.

Beginners can get into that aspect of fishing for as little as $10 for a beginners kit.

For those well advanced, there are plenty of feathers, quills, yarns, lures and hooks that can keep anyone happy in the cold months.

For the hunter, cold weather is the perfect time to relax shells used in the hunting seasons.

Prices for reloaders, powder, primers and other equipment range from as little as $30 on up, depending on what additional dies are needed.

If, the active sports don't interest you, a few sporting goods stores offer indoor sporting activities ranging from darts to billiards.

Darts may seem to be an inexpensive game for kids, but the purist can buy a $50 set of matched, weighted darts and a genuine hog bristle dart board for $49.

Dear Abby

Retiree's 'help' too much

By Abigail Van Buren

©The Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.
DEAR ABBY: My husband recently retired, and he is driving me crazy. Julius and I have been married for 44 years and we're both in good health. He was always so involved in his business he had no time to develop any hobbies. He worked and I took care of the house. Now he's home and underfoot all day supervising the cleaning, laundry and cooking!

When the phone rings, Julius runs to answer it. If it's for me he has to know who is was and what was said. When my bridge club meets here, he hangs around listening to every word. The ladies feel inhibited and uncomfortable.
 I find myself looking for excuses to get out of the house alone. (Julius even goes with me when I go marketing!)
 I love him, but I hate to think of spending the rest of my life under these conditions. So what can I do about Julius?

—FRUSTRATED IN FLORIDA
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Your problem isn't Julius—it's your reluctance to level with him. Tell him what's on your mind. Gently, lovingly, honestly and IMMEDIATELY! Then together investigate activities for retirees in your community. (Florida is loaded with them.) Search out other couples like yourselves. Get involved in community service, politics and volunteerism. Enroll in adult education classes and discover the arts, music, painting or gardening. Get into nutrition, meditation or travel! There's a whole new world out there just waiting to be discovered. And don't forget to thank God you still have your health and each other.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a very pleasant office and enjoy my job. My boss is kind and friendly, but he's fat. Incredibly dull, and old enough to be my father.
 He often asks me to have lunch with him, but I usually refuse. I accepted a few times last year only because I didn't want to hurt feelings. But I do not enjoy spending my lunch hours with a boring old man.

Another girl I work with is having the same problem with him. You could help us both by answering this. Are we obligated to go to lunch with him?
—FED UP WITH LUNCH

DEAR FED UP: No. Lunching with the boss does not come with the territory.

YFCA seeks fitness activities to satisfy everyone's needs

By RANDY FREY
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With a goal of getting everyone involved in some sort of fitness activity, the Magic Valley YFCA claims to "have a different physical activity to satisfy almost everyone's needs."

Whether it's volleyball, swimming or jogging and whether it's for infants six months old or adults 100 years old, physical director Gudrun Hallows says the Magic Valley YFCA offers it.
 "We want to stress activity," Hallows said. "Fitness is our main concern here at the Y."

The YFCA was formed last May when the local YFCA and YWCA, plagued by financial problems, decided to merge. The letters now stand for Young Family Christian Association.

"There has been a lot of confusion because a lot of people think the letters stand for Youth For Christ," said Hallows, who added that the family concept has become quite popular in recent years.

Although the local center does contain a small chapel, Hallows said physical activities, and not religion, are the main concerns of the group.

The Magic Valley YFCA currently has about 1,000 members with a membership drive underway now in an attempt to add to that number.

Hallows said it is hoped that through the membership drive the YFCA can raise enough funds to pay for the operation of programs. That way, she said, money will only have to be collected to pay instructor salaries.

Programs currently offered by the YFCA include youth basketball, wrestling swimming, gymnastics and more. For adults the Y offers ski lessons, volleyball, judo, aerobic jogging, swimming, Simnastics, Swimnastics and others.

The YFCA also offers an adult fitness program, and Hallows said she really wants to expand on that class in upcoming years.

"We want to get to the point where people can make appointments and we can give them tests to determine their various fitness levels," she said. "Then we can prescribe a fitness program for them to follow."

Two of the more popular adult classes now offered are the Sim-nastics class and the aerobic jogging, although the latter has been hurt a bit by the cold weather.

Simnastics is a new concept which involves aerobic dancing and swimming as a means of exercise rather than the traditional floor exercises. Hallows said the Simnastics classes are currently overcrowded.

Jogging is now taught at night in the All Purpose Room, with joggers running to a tape record which tells them when to start and stop. Another aerobic exercise, this one brings joggers along at their own pace.

When the weather becomes more springlike, Hallows said the aerobic jogging will move back outdoors.

Future programs call for a free "Learn to Swim" lesson in March sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

Five runs have also been planned, with the first, the Family Run, set for April 28. It will be a 5,000 meter and 10,000 meter run.

The Falls to Falls run is set for May 19, followed by the Ladies Run June 16 and the Half Marathon, a 13-mile run around town, Aug. 25. In October the runs will conclude with the Rim Run.

Day care is provided at the YFCA as well from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Hot lunches and snacks are provided to the children ranging in age from infants to children five years old.

And although physical activity is the main concern of the Y, non-athletic programs, including candle making, belly dancing and leather tooling, are also offered.

All instructors at the YFCA are residents of the community who are interested in that particular field. Hallows said some instructors come from the College of Southern Idaho and all are very competent teachers.

And for those who do not like a structured program, there is open swimming and an exercise room complete with weights, a bicycle, treadmill and more.

"We have all sorts of programs, and all we need right now is for the word to get out," Hallows said.

The local YFCA is located on Elizabeth Boulevard in Twin Falls.

Racquetball courts work for squash

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Several squash professionals agree that with several lessons and a fair amount of practice a newcomer to the game can play well enough not to embarrass himself.

Best of all, it doesn't cost a fortune to start.
 "There's not as many people playing, and there's just not the wide range of equipment that you have in tennis," said Kenny Johnson of Baltimore's Downtown Racquet Club.

An average squash racket costs about $15, although many of the better players spend as much as $50, he said. Balls run as high as $3 a piece.

While tennis whites are usually mandatory for big tournaments, "they wear about anything to play in during the week," said Eddie Shaffer of Baltimore's Maryland Club.

But many public clubs now feature squash courts. The U.S. Squash Racquets Association reports there are more than 1,000 places around the country to play.

Those who are not purists have learned to play on racquetball handball courts. The size difference is minimal, and the only major modification needed is the addition of a "telltale" — a metal sheet that rings when a ball is served too low.

What's what

Medical, law students are greatest book stealers

Students in medical and law schools lead the list of those people who most frequently steal books from public libraries. Or so the researchers now report. They say further that the books most frequently stolen have to do with religion, auto repairs and gardening.

Our Language man would like to put together a dictionary of words that aren't, but sound like they should be. You know the kind: Imaginering, Infatigulating. These have been around awhile. But how about these? Gripdich meaning grip plus friction. Tenniferd-so terrified as to be pertified. Any others?

The World Trade Center's Twin Towers in New York City are diagonally juxtaposed to each other for a specific reason. Has nothing to do with aesthetics or site limitation. If they were parallel, the high winds eddying between them would create a tuning-fork affect. They'd vibrate themselves to destruction.

FUEL ADJUSTMENT

Electric utility companies nationwide added a stunning "fuel adjustment" charge to the bills of their customers after the Arab oil embargo a few years back. They blamed a petroleum shortage. Recently, researchers looked at rate increases levied by 100 of the nation's largest utilities. Those companies that use significant amounts of nuclear power to generate their electricity have boosted their rates by an average of 27 percent more than have the firms that rely on other powers.

Seaman for years have held the superstition that even numbers are unlucky. That's another reason the traditional cannon salutes are always fired in odd numbers, like 21.

How many motors do you have in your house. The average home, it's said, has 30.

CLOWN COLLEGE

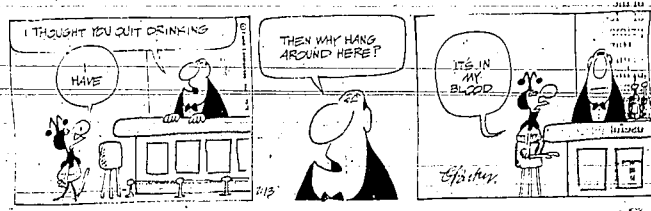

Maybe you've read about the Clown College at Venice, Fla. It takes 60 students for an eight-week course each year. They're taught juggling, rick walking and acrobatics. They are hired annually by circuses. Liquor, drugs and romantic action are prohibited on campus. The college rule is: "Clown around, but don't fool around!"

The higher the town's altitude, the lower its cancer death rate. That's what the medical researchers recently found out. They don't know why, for sure.

House taxwriters begin implementation of 1%

BOISE (UPI) — Five weeks of study behind them, House taxwriters are ready to start working on implementation of the 1 percent initiative this week and consider at the same time up to $35 million in property tax relief.

Rep. Morgan Hunter, R-Ola, chairman of a House-Senate subcommittee on the initiative, said he expected to present his initial bill on implementation before the full tax committee this week and possibly today.

Basically, the legislation is aimed at cleaning up constitutional flaws in the initiative and:

—Setting Jan. 1, 1980 as the implementation date.

—Freeing 1979 and 1980 property taxes at the 1978 level.

—Requiring reappraisal of property at 1978 levels, a reappraisal plan from the counties and giving the Tax Commission authority to reappraise if a county fails and to cut off that county's share of 20 percent of state sales tax revenue.

—Allowing two-thirds of those voting to approve local option taxes but limiting such taxation strictly to ad valorem taxes.

Still to come are bills to define farm property for tax purposes and proportionate distribution of taxes collected under the 1 percent initiative. Other subcommittees are working on these problems.

Besides this legislation, Rep. Darwin Young, R-Blackfoot, is putting the finishing touches on a proposal to cut property taxes by some $35 million. This would eliminate the final 1/100ths of the old 8-mill county school levy and cut the school maintenance and operation levy to 18 mills from 27.

This, too, could come up for consideration by the Revenue and Taxation Committee Monday if drafting is finished.

Meantime, the House debate calendar for today includes bills to abolish the presidential preferential primary election, allow the Water Management Account monies to be used to finance projects for power generation and allow issuance of deficiency warrants for emergency repair of dams.

Up for second reading in the House today and, under normal procedures, debate and a vote Tuesday is a highly controversial resolution to give state employees in-grade step increases and a 2 percent cost of living increase next year.

This one came out of the House Republican caucus late last week and was introduced on a party-line vote by the leadership Ways and Means Committee. Support for it even among the Republicans is far from solid and there is a question about whether it will pass.

A principal feature of this resolution is that it calls for financing the step increases and the cost of living hike through attrition — that is, not filling vacancies when they occur in state jobs. House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, said the attrition rate averages 22 percent a year in state government and should cover this.

Gov. John V. Evans has said repeatedly he will settle for no less than a 5.5 percent cost of living increase for state employees and is expected to fight hard for it. The Personnel Commission called for an 8 percent hike but the governor and the Legislature both seem to feel that is too high.

Evans said last month he felt the issue of state employees' pay would be a major issue of the session. Well it could be.

Attorney General asked if Lenaghan may stay on

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans asked for an attorney general's opinion Monday on whether he can, in effect, keep Robert Lenaghan on the Public Utilities Commission until a successor is appointed and confirmed.

Republicans turned down Lenaghan on a 19-14 party line vote when his reappointment to the PUC came up for confirmation in the Senate Friday.

Evans' letter to Attorney General David H. Leroy asks two questions:

—Does an incumbent Public Utilities Commissioner whose nomination fails of reconfirmation continue to hold office until his successor is appointed and qualified?

—If the answer to that question is no what is the precise time at which such a commissioner ceases to serve?

"Since the matter is of some urgency in the smooth functioning of the Public Utilities Commission during this period of transition, I would appreciate a response at your earliest possible convenience," Evans said.

Leroy said his staff already has done some research on the question and that he expects to have a formal opinion on the matter for the governor about Wednesday.

Presidential primary abolished in House

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News Writer

BOISE — After a brief four minutes of debate, the Idaho House Monday voted to abolish the presidential preference primary.

House Bill 13, which passed the House 43-25, now goes to the Senate.

Only three legislators debated the measure. Rep. Mel Hammond, D-Reburg, criticized the May primary election. He was concerned, Hammond said, about "the added expense of the election" and the "uselessness" of Idaho holding a presidential primary.

Hammond said the 1976 presidential primary cost Idaho $275,000. The 1980 primary would cost $300,000. In keeping operating expenses, Hammond said, "This expense produced no advantage, and it served us no useful purpose," he added. But Rep.

Joe Walker, R-Moscow, argued against HB 13. The primary increased voter participation in the political process, Walker said, pointing out more persons voted in the 1976 gubernatorial primary.

"The primary gives Idahoans a chance to elect their president with future presidents," Walker said.

The measure was sponsored by Hammond, Rep. Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls, and Rep. Joe Wagner, D-Lewiston.

The 12 Magic Valley representatives, all Republicans, split evenly on HB 13. Six supported it, while six opposed abolishing the presidential primary.

Supporting the measure, and its call for elimination of the election, were Reps. Stivers, John Brooks of Gooding, Vard Chaburn of Albion, Ernest Hale of Burley, Gordon Hofffield of Jerome and Mack Nelbaur of Paul.

Opposing the primary abolition were Reps. Steve Antone of Rupert, Noy Brackett of Twin Falls, Dan Kelly of Mountain Home, Lawrence Knigge of Filer, Virgil Kraus of Mountain Home and Ralph Olmstead of Twin Falls.

Cash payment bill sought

BOISE (UPI) — The House Business Committee introduced a bill today requiring retailers to pay cash for meat, milk, agricultural produce and other edible products.

The legislation prohibits licensed wholesalers engaged in the sale of products for human consumption from extending credit to any retailer although it does allow acceptance of a first-party check.

A violation of the prohibition, the bill stipulates, is punishable by an automatic suspension of the violator's wholesale license for five days. Subsequent violations in the same calendar year would be punishable by a 10-day suspension for each.

Time limit not set on legislature

BOISE — Members of a House committee agreed Monday the legislature spends too many days in Boise.

But by a 9 to 5 vote, members of the state affairs committee rejected an attempt to legally limit the time a legislature could spend in session, saying that limitation might backfire and increase the number of legislative lawmaking days.

An issue was a proposed constitutional amendment by Rep. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, to return the legislature to bi-annual legislative sessions. Chaburn noted the Idaho legislature met bi-annually between statehood in 1890 and 1963. Since that latter date, the legislature has met every year. The result, Chaburn said, has been an increase in the amount of time a legislature spends in session and in the number of laws they pass.

Clothing store will allow refund

For Christmas I bought my son a shirt and a pair of pants from Mr. Mark's clothing store. But soon after that my son decided to join the service. He would probably get laughed right out of the Army if he wore those "disco" style clothes, even on a weekend pass. So we returned them, but the man would only give us a credit slip for the $38.11, not a refund. He said we were over their 30-day deadline for refunds, but I didn't see this policy posted anywhere in the store. I don't think this is the way to run a business. The problem is that all their clothes are the new styles that my husband doesn't wear either. And my other son just want in the service, too. — Mrs. Anderson, Twin Falls.

Manager Brent Victor says you can drop by the store and pick up your refund.

I noticed some problems with Quality Unlimited Photos in your column last week. It rang a bell because my mother, Mary Evans, had her picture taken up in Lewiston in November by a man who called himself L.M. Jones, of Quality Photos Unlimited. Although he promised to have the photos to her in time for her to enclose them in her Christmas cards, he still has not delivered them. She gave him a $10 down payment, awarded an $18 bill. My mother is especially upset because she said the proofs were the best photos of herself she has ever seen. He was set up temporarily in a Lewiston bowling alley, and he even advertised special Christmas rates for senior citizens. What really made up my mind to call Jones was my mother. It was 1521 Aspen St., the same one you printed for the local company. — Marion Royer, Twin Falls.

"I just wrote them all letters," was Jones' response. He explained that the delay was caused by a photo finishing company that stopped taking orders during the Christmas rush. He promised your mother will have her photos by the end of the month. His phone number, listed under T.J. Jones, is 734-2942.

Jones says he used the Aspen Street address in anticipation of a partnership that never materialized.

I would like to know if there is any place closer than Caldwell where I might redeem my Gold Strike stamp books. I have been told that there is no longer a redemption center in Twin Falls. — L.E. Bennett, Shoshone.

This is one of two similar questions, and was covered in Action Line Dec. 5. The Caldwell center may now be closed as well, because the Gold Strike Stamp Co. was purchased by a bigger outfit. It looks like the only way to redeem the stamps these days is by writing to the company's mail order department at 12755 Slate Highway 55, Minneapolis, MN. They will also send you a free catalog if you don't have one already.

I sent away to the World Company, of Norwalk, Conn., for a can of Spray & Seal, which is supposed to fix leaking pipes. My check for $4.79, dated Oct. 20, came back canceled, but the merchandise never got here. — Twin Falls reader.

We're hot on the trail. According to the Norwalk Chamber of Commerce, Lawrence Curtis owned a maze of mail order companies, most containing the word "world" in the title. Curtis died in November, and his estate is still in limbo.

Fred Rubman, whose address is 42 Edgewood Hillside, Westport, CT 06897, has been appointed executor of the Curtis estate. At this point Rubman still hasn't figured out the financial status of the interconnected companies. He cannot yet confirm that Spray & Seal was a Curtis product, but it seems likely. He says it is just too early to know what will be done with your order, and he didn't know of anyone else who might know. So keep after him, and let us know if another month goes by without the spray-can or a refund arriving in the mail.

A year ago I sent a $6.98 check for a record of Guy Lombardo tunes. The check was canceled, but I never received the record. It was advertised on TV station KSL. — Mayme Ball Devline, Twin Falls.

The company involved is Suffolk Marketing in Smithtown, N.Y. Mrs. Phelton, in the customer service department, will mail you another record.

In the middle of December, servicemen from Gateway Trailer Center re-wrapped the heat tape on the pipes under my mobile home. The bill was $37.65. They accidentally caused a leak that got our carpet wet. They came back on Jan. 9 to fix this leak. I mentioned I also had no hot water because of some problem in the water softener. They worked at least 30 minutes with the water softener. I kept telling them to leave. If they did not know what was wrong, but they did not listen to me. (Guess I should have ordered that set of the house.) When I called a plumber later, it took him only a few minutes to fix things. I feel like Gateway took advantage of me and have told them so. They sent me another bill for $59.83. Being senior citizens, we have a huge output and little income. I don't want to put out more for an attorney, so I wish someone else would help out. — Mrs. McCollum, Twin Falls.

Contacted by Action Line, Gateway general manager Bud Allen agreed to write off the whole second bill. When we called you back, however, you had already paid the bill and seemed satisfied with a $19 reimbursement which Gateway had promised you. So it is back in your hands.

Allen's side of the story has his two men trying to leave and you begging them to stay. He says they admitted they were not familiar with water softener problems. Their wages are $16 an hour.

There was a special offer on the box of Playtex rubber gloves I bought on Jan. 4, 1978. It said I could send $1.50 and get a pair of Super Look panties that normally sell for $4.85, for a saving of $3.45. I sent my check right away, and it came back canceled, but the panties never arrived. I have written several times—but never received an answer. I know it is only $1.50, but it is the principal of it. I would appreciate it very much if you could get this order for me. — Shoshone reader.

Dawn Moretta, in the Paramus, N.J., consumer affairs office of International Playtex, said she is sorry. She will send you a letter of apology along with the panties you ordered.

I ordered a kit to make a stuffed cat when I was living with my mother in Idaho Falls last spring. By the time it arrived, I had moved here. The delivery man told my mother he would forward it to me—but something went wrong. Can you find it for me? I don't remember the company or the magazine I saw the ad in. The kit cost six or seven dollars. — Twin Falls reader.

United Parcel Service records show the cat kit was returned last June to CBS Marketing in New York City. Lisa LeFever, coordinator of CBS mail order services, figures it must be wasting away unstuffed and unsworn in some lonely New York warehouse. But LeFever will send you a brand new kit to help you forget the tragic tale. The ad you saw was in Woman's Day.

Can you find out what happened to a cake decorating booklet I sent for through KSL television station? It was an offer on the Romper Room show. I sent a stamped, self-addressed envelope, care of Miss Julie. — Sheryl Overlin, Filer.

Miss Julie, whose real name is Edna Ross, is apparently the only one who can send you the right booklet. She lives in Arizona, but she will be in Salt Lake City later this week to tape more shows. Gloria Nababe, in KSL's advertising department, will leave her a message with your address and an explanation.

On Oct. 8 I sent a check for $9.00 for a year's subscription to The Herbalist magazine, based in Provo, Utah. They canceled my check on Oct. 23. To date I have not received the magazine or an answer to my letters. I will appreciate anything you can do to straighten this out. — Velda Hargrave, Halley.

The February issue of The Herbalist was mailed out last week. It is the first issue since last July. Editor Alice Karos explains that the monthly has changed hands three times since then but is now making a determined comeback. She says your subscription will now run through next January.

The March issue might also be a little late, but the staff expects to be in high gear by April. The magazine has a new address as well: P.O. Box 53, Spanish Fork, UT 84660.

Gold rises, dollar drops

LONDON (UPI) — The political upheaval in Iran depressed the dollar on European money markets Monday but boosted the price of gold.

As is traditional in times of uncertainty, investors switched to gold. In Zurich, the price rose 62.5 cents to $247.625. In London, where the price was out of line with the level in Switzerland when trading closed Friday, gold rocketed by $6 to $249 an ounce. Gold rose a further 60 cents in early trading to $249.60 at the mid-morning fixing.

Currency dealers in London said trading on the money markets was "light."

"The dollar inevitably lost ground in view of the strife and the Iranian political upheaval over the weekend, though selling was not heavy," a dealer for Barclays bank International said.

In London, the pound traded at $2.073 compared with $2.072 at the close of trading Friday.

1978 IRA Plan Deadline Extended to April 15, 1979

IRA is a personal, tax-sheltered retirement plan established at United First under a Federal program. It allows qualified individuals to set aside up to 15% of their income, up to $1500 a year, in our qualified IRA plan, exempt from federal income taxes until they retire.

Not only is the money that an individual puts in each year tax deferred, the interest that money earns each year is also exempt from federal income tax until retirement—so an individual can end up with double the amount he or she could save in a regular savings account without IRA benefits.

There's no charge made for establishing an IRA account at United First in the first year,* and our plan is approved by the Internal Revenue Service.

The 1978 Tax Act permits an individual, establishing a new IRA account, or making a contribution to an existing IRA account, to wait until April 15, 1979 before making his or her contribution for 1978. And, this contribution can be claimed as a deduction on that individual's 1978 federal tax return.

Frigidaire appliances still will be sold

Frigidaire appliances will continue to be sold in Twin Falls despite the company's recent sale and the closing of its major Dayton plant, according to a local dealer.

Elvis Cain of Cain's Furniture and Appliance, 204 Main Avenue North, said he received a letter from Frigidaire Division of General Motors Corp. explaining the recent sale of the company to White Consolidated Industries.

The letter, signed by Frigidaire general sales manager J.T. Riley, said White will continue to manufacture products under the Frigidaire trademark. White also will maintain Frigidaire's current sales and service organization.

An earlier United Press International story described the closing of the Dayton, Ohio, Frigidaire plant which will leave approximately 8,000 unemployed. White will continue to produce Frigidaire appliances in its own plants.

Stocks hold their own Monday

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks rallied to finish Monday in slow semi-holiday trading as Wall Street held its ground despite the overthrow of Iran's government and President Carter's plea for voluntary oil conservation.

Selected oil and energy stocks attracted attention after Ayatollah Khomeini's forces overthrew Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiari's government and left an uncertain energy picture for the West. Carter said the Iranian oil cutoff posed "no immediate danger" here.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, down about 4 points at the outset, rallied to add 2.51 points to 824.84. The Dow lost 12.30 points overall last week, including 3.46 Friday.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.17 to 55.04 and the price of a share added 10 cents. Declines topped averages, 776 to 620, among 1,339 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST. The Board turnover totaled only 20,619,000 shares, down from the 24,240,000 traded Friday. Many banks and offices were closed for the Lincoln's Birthday holiday.

Carter's cautious stance on Iran-transaction contrasted with Energy Secretary James Schlesinger's warning last week that the problem could result in a worse crisis than the 1973

Arab oil embargo. The president urged Americans to voluntarily conserve energy, admitting the Iranian problem could eventually "propose" troubles here. Schlesinger last week called for "mandatory controls."

Carter is expected to discuss buying Mexican petroleum when he visits there later this week. Schlesinger, in a television interview, said the Mexican asking price was too high.

Noting January wholesale prices soared 1.3 percent, Carter said he did not expect such large boosts in future months and claimed that his anti-inflation program was "beginning to work."

The dollar was firm in Europe after a shaky start caused by the Iranian takeover. Tokyo's markets were closed for a holiday. Gold was higher on international exchanges.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 14 p.m. totaled 21,639,940 shares, compared with 25,859,228 Friday. The American Stock Exchange index rose 0.63 to 160.71 and the price of a share added 5 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ OTC index gained 0.29 to 124.05.

Energy issues, particularly those without ties to the Middle East, were strong in the wake of the crisis created by the Iranian oil cut-off. MAPCO, with interests in oil, liquid propane gas, coal and pipelines, jumped 2 to 29.7.

Clark Oil Refining, an independent domestic gasoline marketer, gained 1 to 18.8. Apache Oil, which reported a discovery, added 1 to 22.1.

Panhandle Eastern Pipeline rose 1 to 45.5. Pittsburg, a major oil producer, added 1 to 21. On the Amex Dome Petroleum rose 4 to 103.39.

Canadian Petroleum Oil 2 1/2 to 66.57. Bow Valley Industries, which said it had begun drilling for oil of Vietnam, gained 1 1/2 to 21.1.

Central Telephone & Utilities was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 1 to 26 1/2 following a block of 327,500 shares at 26 1/2.

Boeing Co., a 6 1/2-point loser last week, was second, adding 1 to 69.3.

Wall Street analysts plan to analyze Central Louisiana Electric, was third, up 1/4 to 12. Central Louisiana gained 1 to 24.1.

Xerox lost 1/4 to 56 after a block of 100,000 shares at 56. Xerox said it would contest the Internal Revenue Service's attempt to collect $38 million more in taxes.

Morison Knudsen rose 3 1/2 to 21 1/2 after the firm reported higher earnings and raised its dividend payoff. Liggett Group climbed 2 1/2 to 46 in active trading. The firm said it could not train the activity in its stock. Dynarside said it knew of no reason why its stock jumped 2 1/2 to 25 1/2.

On the Amex, averages topped declines, 312 to 256, among the 833 issues traded at 4 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 2,957,180 Friday.

Resorts International A was the most active Amex issuer of 1978. Martindale Manning was the third most active issue, unchanged at 1 1/2.

PepCom climbed 1 1/2 to 19 1/2. The firm is not immediately available for comment on its stock's rise. Iroquois Brands, mentioned unfavorably in a Business Week article, fell 1 1/2 to 30 1/2.

Scope Inc. added 1/2 to 35 1/2 after the firm had acquired 18 percent of the firm's stock. Scope officials had no comment on the action.

Saudi Arabia picks up slack in oil production

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Saudi Arabia is charging extra for some of the additional oil it is producing to offset the cutbacks in Iran, an authoritative oil weekly said Monday.

The Middle East Economic Survey said the price increase will apply during the first quarter of oil produced by the Arabian American Oil Co., the oil consortium, above the target ceiling of 9.5 million barrels a day.

"The extra crude lifted by the ARAMCO participants over and above their regular allotment will be paid for on the basis of prices scheduled for fourth-quarter 1979 under the phased price increase decided upon by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' MECS said.

At the December meeting of OPEC in Abu Dhabi, the members decided to raise prices over 1978 by 5 percent in January, 9 percent in the second quarter, 11.5 percent in the third and 14.5 percent in the fourth.

"This would work out to a 3.2 percent average increase over 1978 for the year as a whole."

Under the new Saudi arrangement, surplus oil production above the ceiling during the first quarter will be charged extra, "but is to say 14.5 percent above the 1978 price level, rather than the 5 percent applicable for first-quarter 1979."

The publication said there has been much confusion in oil circles over Saudi production and price schedules following the cutbacks in Iranian exports.

The Saudi target ceiling for 1978 was 8.5-million-barrels-a-day. ARAMCO produced at about 10 million barrels a day in November and December as the Iranian crisis worsened but this was still within the 8.5 million ceiling due to lower production earlier in 1978, MECS said.

"ARAMCO production was running at something near 10 million barrels a day for the first 19 days of January, before the company was notified of the new government regulations," MECS said.

Production was cut back sharply, MECS said, but the average for January came to 9 million barrels a day, 30,000 over the ceiling. It is this extra oil to which the fourth-quarter prices will be applied.

"MECS said the production level will be restored at least to the 9.5 million barrels a day allowable level in February and March."

"For subsequent quarters, the regular ceiling of 8.5 million barrels a day will continue to apply, with the possibility of review quarter by quarter if the Iranian oil crisis persists."

"MECS said the four Aramco participants, Exxon, Mobil, Texaco, and Standard Oil of California, "are understood to have notified their customers that they will be averaging out the higher cost of the extra crude in the price of their overall deliveries."

"The resulting increase is expected to work out at around 17 to 18 cents a barrel but there could be variations according to individual circumstances."

"MECS said the Saudi rationale for the higher prices was based on the Iranian crisis "which threatened to bring about a big bulge in oilings during the lower-priced early quarters followed when Iranian exports resumed by a corresponding reduction in Saudi output in the later high-priced periods of the year."

U.S. wants to be good customer in Mexico

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter says the United States wants to be "a good customer" for the oil and gas that Mexico decides to sell—but that price must be fair.

"Dr. Sevin Carlson, in a study prepared for the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies, says Mexico is eager to export petroleum, especially gas. The price increase will apply during the first quarter of oil produced by the Arabian American Oil Co., the oil consortium, above the target ceiling of 9.5 million barrels a day.

Merit Science Works!

Low tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco delivers taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar brands.

The 'Enriched Flavor' science of low tar MERIT, 12 years in the making, isolates and fortifies flavor components of smoke for a taste way out of proportion to tar. Can that taste satisfy the toughest critics of low-tar smoking—current smokers of high-tar cigarettes?

Read the results from a detailed, nationwide research effort involving smokers who taste-tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

Supplier won't operate sewage plant

By JEFF SHER
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A joint effort by the designers and major equipment suppliers for the troubled Twin Falls sewage treatment plant to operate the plant to prove they are not responsible for its failures has fallen apart. Envirotech, Inc., a major equipment supplier for the plant, announced to the city council Monday it will not participate in operating the plant.

Twin Falls Mayor Leon Smith said Monday the withdrawal of Envirotech's offer signifies "that all the efforts to make the plant work by the folks that built it are over." Smith said Envirotech's action supports the city's position that the plant has failed to meet federal pollution standards since it was built because it was improperly designed. He said it also means that Envirotech is no longer allging itself with other designers and suppliers in the argument over who is responsible for the plant's failures. Envirotech, in unison with plant designer Hamilton and Voeller, Inc., and equipment supplier Neptune

Microloc, Inc., had indicated they would present a plan for joint operation of the plant to the council this month. Engineer Jack Hammond of Hamilton and Voeller said the cooperation of all three companies was essential to the success of the plan, as all three companies provided equipment for or helped design parts of the plant which city officials have blamed for plant failures. The argument over who caused the plant's failures began when the Environmental Protection Agency sued the city to try and collect fines for violations of federal pollution standards at the plant. The city in turn sued plant designers and suppliers in an attempt to shift the blame for the violations. After a report by the engineering firm of James M. Montgomery Consulting Engineers, Inc., concluded that poor design and equipment caused the plant's problems, the city offered to let plant designers and suppliers try and prove otherwise by operating the plant themselves. In his letter, Walker said Envirotech will not join in operating the plant because the plant is currently being called on to process more sewage than it was designed to handle. "The results of that extensive and this expensive study by our staff leads us to the reluctant conclusion that the entire plant is very heavily overloaded from the industrial discharges of the community. The influent to the plant is significantly in excess of the plant's design capability," Walker's letter stated. Walker went on to say that until the city limits the influent to the plant to design specifications, Envirotech will not help operate the plant. The letter also points out that Envirotech equipment at the plant "is working well beyond its specified requirements." Smith said Envirotech's action indicates "that they've switched their allegiance from Hamilton and Voeller and they're now taking the position that the city's right and the plant was inadequately designed."

Walker disagreed. "I don't think they're saying that at all really," he said. He said Envirotech merely contends the plant can't be operated correctly if it is overloaded and is not making any "value judgments on plant design or anything else." Walker said Hamilton and Voeller officials are aware of Envirotech's decision, but they could not be reached for comment Monday. Smith said city officials expected "divorce" between the companies once it became apparent they would accept the accuracy of the influent statistics presented in the Montgomery report, which concluded the major problem at the plant was overloading.

Melting ice hampered fish and game officials at Milner Dam diversion project

Jerome assessor asks budget hike

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News Writer

JEROME — It will be a week before the Jerome County Commissioners decide whether to grant a 38.4 percent budget increase to the assessor's office. Assessor William Kersey requested an additional $31,065 Monday to hire three new people to do property valuations and reappraisals required by state law. The commissioners postponed action until their next regular meeting on Feb. 20 to study the request. Kersey said he needs two more appraisers and a drafting clerk to complete by June the required re-evaluation of property values in the county at 1978 levels. Many of the county's 8,000 parcels are taxed on the levels done in 1969, he explained, and valuation work hasn't been started. His request also includes $50 a month raises for several office employees, Kersey added, and promotion pay hikes necessitated by replacing Karen Smith. The deputy assessor is moving to Burley where her husband has a new job. He pointed out that his office handles valuations and appraisals on 8,000 parcels of land on a budget of $80,810 with four people, only one of whom is a qualified appraiser, besides himself. That compares with Minidoka County's 8,500 parcels, a $25,900 budget and staff of seven, he said, and Gooding County's 6,900 parcels with a budget of $106,229 and six people. Commissioner Chairman Mel Grindstaff said he didn't care how many people other counties employ. He said all county department heads could pick other counties to compare budget differences. Kersey proposes the two new appraisers be paid $600 to $835 apiece a month and the drafting clerk between $575 and $877 a month. They would do the re-evaluation and begin a reappraisal of all properties required by the State Tax Commission, Kersey added. The assessor said an untrained clerk can be hired because the job calls for judgments made by someone familiar with appraisal procedures. Besides himself, Kersey said Ed Messenger is the only qualified appraiser in the office. "One man can do so much."

Walker disagreed. "I don't think they're saying that at all really," he said. He said Envirotech merely contends the plant can't be operated correctly if it is overloaded and is not making any "value judgments on plant design or anything else." Walker said Hamilton and Voeller officials are aware of Envirotech's decision, but they could not be reached for comment Monday. Smith said city officials expected "divorce" between the companies once it became apparent they would accept the accuracy of the influent statistics presented in the Montgomery report, which concluded the major problem at the plant was overloading.

Milner Dam project cut short

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — An experimental diversion of the Snake River launched Monday ran into some unexpected difficulties. First, it took nearly all day to shut Milner Dam gates so that only one-tenth of the Snake's normal flow went over the dam. Then the Milner Reservoir, where the water was diverted, filled up faster than expected. As a result, Idaho Fish and Game Department officials who are studying the effect of reduced river flows on fish populations decided to cut the four-day experiment in half. The experiment, jointly carried out by the Bureau of Reclamation, the Idaho Power Co., the Twin Falls Canal Co., and fish and game, is intended to see what will happen if the river is diverted during winters into a proposed hydroelectric plant on the Twin Falls Canal. Monday and today Fish and Game officials will walk along the shores of the Snake River below Milner Dam, tracing fish activities and water flow patterns. During this time the flow will be reduced in stages from 4,000 cubic feet per second all the way to zero today. The Fish and Game Department requested the diversion because they are concerned about whether reduced cold weather flows, as proposed in the power plant scheme, will damage fish populations. If the $35 million plant is built, water will be diverted from the dam into the canal and would be dumped back into the river 1.6 miles downstream. Jim Cochnauer, who is leading the experiment for fish and game, said he will be charting the fish population and how it's affected by lower water levels in the river bed. Although the Snake River flow is normally cut off during irrigation season, no one knows what happens when the flow drops in cold weather. Plans to study of the effects of freezing will be hampered by the thaw, Cochnauer said. He said he expects only minimal damage to fish during the diversion, and added that if deaths start to occur, the flow reductions can be stopped.

Heideman charged with manslaughter

By DOUG TULLIS
Times-News Writer

GOODING — Carl Heideman of Hagerman was charged with voluntary manslaughter Monday in the death of Joseph "Gil" Kienlen of Buhl who died following a fight at the Wilson Bar at Hagerman Jan. 27.

Kienlen died Jan. 30 in a Boise hospital from what the Ada County coroner termed "massive head trauma." Kienlen was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after receiving the blow to the head and was later transferred to Boise. The complaint against Heideman charges him with striking Kienlen "on the left side of the face and head with his hand," causing the injury from which the Buhl man died. Heideman is also charged with assault and battery on Lynn Gneiting of Hagerman during the same fight in which Kienlen was struck. He is charged with hitting and kicking Gneiting in the face and head. The complaint says Heideman hit Kienlen "without malice aforethought."

The voluntary manslaughter charge against Heideman is a felony and carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in the state prison and up to a $2,000 fine. The aggravated assault charge is also a felony and carries a punishment of not less than three months in the county jail and not less than $100 fine or not more than three years in the state prison and not more than a $1,000 fine.

Warrants for the arrest of two men were signed by Gooding Magistrate Phillip Becker Monday, and Gooding County Sheriff Earl Brown said the two were to be arrested Monday night. After the two men are arrested, they will be arraigned before Judge Becker. No date has been set for that arraignment. According to witnesses in the Wilson Bar at the time of the incident, the two Kienlens and Gneiting were at the bar Jan. 27 when Heideman and Crist began fighting with the three men.

Rape trial opens in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — A trial is scheduled to open in 5th Judicial District court in Twin Falls this morning for Rodney W. Starr, 25, charged with rape. Starr entered a plea of not guilty to the charges in November. He is alleged to have raped a Twin Falls woman Oct. 6, 1978, in Twin Falls. His attorney, James May, filed for a psychiatric evaluation for the defendant, paid for by the state. The first motion was granted but the second denied following hearings in January. Judge James M. Cunningham did grant time and released the defendant to the custody of his attorney for a psychiatric evaluation by the defense. The trial date was changed from Feb. 5 to Feb. 13 at 9 a.m. A hearing was being held Monday on several defense motions including one to examine prospective jurors separately.

Two teenagers charged with rape

TWIN FALLS — Two teenage boys were in custody Monday on charges of raping a 16-year-old Twin Falls girl Saturday about 10:30 p.m. The incident allegedly occurred in a vehicle in the 400 block of Fourth Ave. W., Police Chief Tim Qualls reported.

He said one of the juveniles is a 16-year-old from Eden and the other is 17 and from Hazelton. Chief Qualls said the case is still under investigation and more arrests may follow. Both juvenile boys are scheduled to appear in Magistrate Court to answer rape charges.

House restricts LID

BOISE — The House Local Government Committee Monday voted to restrict the power of city councils to initiate local improvement districts. On a voice vote, the committee introduced the measure sponsored by Rep. Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls. The proposal says a local improvement district may be initiated by the city council only upon the receipt of a petition signed by at least 60 percent of the property owners living within the proposed LID.

The right of the council to initiate an LID on its own would be eliminated under the Silvers plan. Silvers said his proposal was designed to prevent city councils forcing LIDs on property owners against the property owners' wishes. Silvers acknowledged the recent LID controversy in Twin Falls and recalled the two Kienlens and Gneiting were at the bar Jan. 27 when Heideman and Crist began fighting with the three men. The measure will receive a full hearing in the committee at a later date, Silvers said.

Irrigation ruling delayed

KING HILL — With chairman Robert Lenaghen conspicuously absent, the state Public Utilities Commission heard nothing but favorable testimony on the joint King Hill Irrigation District-Idaho Power pumping system Monday. The PUC said it will try to rule on the application by Thursday. Among those testifying before the PUC were George Larsen, chairman of the King Hill Irrigation District board, who stressed the need for fast action on the application. Three representatives of Idaho Power discussed the terms of their agreement with the District. Lenaghen was not on hand for the first PUC hearing since the Idaho Senate denied him confirmation to a second term Friday.

Commission members told King Hill representatives they can't act on the proposal until they receive a formal order, and the district is expected to submit the order today. Orders are usually written by PUC staff, but Kloefer explained because of the rush, and the fact that no one opposed the application, the District was asked to write the order. The PUC will review and possibly revise it before making a final ruling, Kloefer said. Meanwhile, construction crews drove caterpillars to the project site Saturday and began work Monday. Contractor, Walter, Chapman of the Cook Electric Co. has estimated the system will be finished by May 1.

But a spokesman from his office said the absence from a hearing had nothing to do with the Senate action. "He was just very busy," said Deanne Kloefer. "He has a million things to do, among them speaking with members of the press. As far as I know he is still a sitting member on the commission." Conley Warn Jr. took over the chairmanship at the hearing, which was scheduled as an emergency meeting to rule on reconstruction of King Hill's irrigation system. King Hill is anxious for quick PUC approval so the project can be finished in time for irrigation this year. Commission members told King Hill representatives they can't act on the proposal until they receive a formal order, and the district is expected to submit the order today. County zoning commission wants local planning control

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission would like to see a county land use plan adopted here with local control of planning rather than state or federal control.

In a meeting last week, the commission discussed pending legislation which would repeal the Idaho Land Use Act of 1975. Members of the commission said they believe area legislators will vote for the repeal but suggested the commission "take a stand."

Members voted to contact area legislators and ask that they vote for the repeal, but several expressed concern the legislators might feel Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commissioners want to drop comprehensive planning.

"This isn't the case at all," said Ed Woods, zoning administrator. "They don't want to regress, but they want local control of land use planning and zoning matters."

He said the repeal of the land use act would return control to the local agencies, and county officials and zoning boards would be the ones to determine if land use planning should become part of county regulation. The Land Use Act of 1975 required all counties in the state to prepare and adopt a land use plan by January 1978. Like most other counties, Twin Falls is in the process, but has not been able to come up with a comprehensive plan which the county commissioners feel would benefit the majority of the people in the county.

In another portion of the motion last Thursday night, the Planning and Zoning commission agreed to urge the county to complete and take action on the presently pending plan. Zoning commissioners urged it be put into effect to provide local planning before state or federal planning is imposed on the county.

In other business the commission approved a cafe and store on the Bell Rapids farm project. The request for a commercial zone was granted to Michael Kenneth Miller and William Isaak.

Zoning officials also discussed the request from "Kirsty" Pigeon for permission to build a removable cover over three tennis courts at the tennis complex she is building northeast of Twin Falls.

Woods said the zoning board members voted to meet with the builder, designer and owner for more information on the proposed structure. It would be of a collapsible-type material which could be removed and folded up when not needed. It would be used only in winter months and during cold weather. Woods said it would be inflated with air to cover the courts. Zoning board members want to determine if it will meet building code standards and be acceptable in the low density residential zone where it is proposed.

Farmer seeks to amend suit

JEROME — A motion to amend a counterclaim in a lawsuit involving Western Farm Service Inc. and an Eden farmer will be heard in 5th District Court here Feb. 20.

The farmer, Henry Schutte, seeks to amend his suit against Western Farm seeking $26,810 in damages and 8 percent interest for loss of a potato crop on land that Western allegedly was to have sprayed in 1977. He also is seeking reimbursement for "reasonable legal fees."

Schutte originally was sued by the Western officials on April 4, 1977, for $11,036 they claimed he owed for the chemical spray and an open account he had with them. The corporation also seeks a 8 percent interest be included, as well as legal costs incurred.

Schutte filed a countersuit 23 days later saying he owed the firm no money and that the chemicals weren't applied to 200 of his 500 acres as contracted. In his original countersuit, Schutte asked that Western's suit be dismissed, that he be awarded $15,000 for crop losses and an additional $7,500 for legal fees.

Western Farm also has filed a third-party suit in the case saying Richard Byrd, of Gooding, and Allied Services Corp. were responsible for seeing that all of the Schutte farm was sprayed.

Fifth District Judge Theron Ward will hear the motion to amend the counterclaim at 10 a.m. in the Jerome County Courthouse on Feb. 20.

Veterans need to return earnings cards immediately

TWIN FALLS — Elizabeth Reilly, Twin Falls county veterans service officer, said it is important to veterans receiving veteran or widow pensions to immediately return earnings cards sent to them earlier this year.

She said if the payments are to continue, the Veterans Administration must have the cards returned immediately.

Cards were mailed this year, due to a change in policy, to all pensioned veterans and veteran's widows 72 years of age or older. Many persons discarded them, thinking they did not need to report.

Reilly said if the cards were discarded or lost, persons may call at her home on Mondays or Tuesdays and she will furnish new cards and assist in filling them out.

She said the regulation applies to all veterans, although the World War I and II veterans may be more apt to feel the cards were sent in error or are not necessary.

Police help stop possible suicide

TWIN FALLS — Officers from the Twin Falls county sheriff's office and city police department converged on a field south of town Monday afternoon in an attempt to prevent what residents there feared was a suicide attempt.

Sheriff James Munn, who said he preferred not to identify the individual involved, said it resulted from a family disturbance about 1:30 p.m.

He said a man, armed with rifle, went into a field near where he lives and his family feared he might try to take his own life.

Officers and the man's wife were able to talk him into surrendering the gun and Munn said a "reconciliation was underway late Monday."

Knicks trade McAdoo to start rebuilding

NEW YORK (UPI) — Working on the theory that things can't get any worse, the New York Knicks virtually conceded the current season Monday when they traded away top scorer Bob McAdoo to the Boston Celtics for three No. 1 draft choices and a player to be named.

"We can't lose much more than we have been, can we?" said Madison Square Garden President, Sonny Werblin, alluding to the Knicks' highly disappointing 25-33 record.

"We have been seeking to make a deal for some time but nobody has offered us any players of substance," Werblin added. "We also found ourselves having no first-round draft choices. We have put ourselves into a position to rebuild the team and make more trades this year and next."

"Bob McAdoo is a great player and a great person. But we haven't been winning many games."

The 6-10 McAdoo currently ranks as the third leading scorer in the National Basketball Association with a 26.9 average. He also has totaled 379 rebounds and 123 assists in 49 games.

Unquestionably, the 27-year-old center-forward will provide immediate help to the Celtics, who are struggling themselves with a 23-32 record that leaves them in the cellar of the Atlantic Division. At the same time, the deal strips the Knicks of a player who didn't fit into Coach Red Holzman's pattern, and gives them a new hope for the future if they can use the draft choices wisely.

The draft choices that the Knicks obtained are the Celtics' own, and the first-round selections of Golden State and Seattle, which Boston had obtained in prior trades.

McAdoo, who came to the Knicks from the Buffalo

Braves Dec. 9, 1976, expressed disbelief when informed of the deal.

"Why would John Y. (Celtics owner John Y. Brown) negotiate for me when he didn't want me in Buffalo?" asked McAdoo. "Remember he was the former owner in Buffalo. I just don't think he wanted me. Why would the Owner calls swap 'instant help'

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Celtics owner John Y. Brown, who once traded away Bob McAdoo when he owned the Buffalo Braves, said Monday the acquisition of the league's third best scorer will put the Celtics back on the championship trail.

"Sonny Werblin was sitting with me and (Celtics co-owner) Harry Mangurian and he turned to us," said Brown. "Take anybody on the team, McAdoo is a great talent and we felt the draft choices were of limited value. McAdoo can help us right away and restore the championship caliber," Brown said.

Brown, who traded McAdoo to the Knicks for $3.3 million and John Gianelli, said both General Manager Red Auerbach and Celtics player-coach Dave Cowens approved the trade. The player to be named, Brown said, would be "insignificant" and would not be anyone who fits into the Celtics' future plans.

Brown said McAdoo, who has three more years left on his contract—also—could help the Celtics make the playoffs this year. Boston trails the New Jersey Nets — the team they must overtake to make the playoffs — by six games in the loss column.

"We've now got the nucleus of a team that can compete with anybody," said Brown. "If you're going to talk championship in Knicks do it? It leaves them with almost nothing. What do they get in return? Draft picks, that's unbelievable."

"I'm not sure we have to concede this season," said Mike Burke, president of the Knicks. "We still got some fellows who can play basketball pretty well. But indeed we are looking to build. Without starting from game number one, we want to be fundamental in our restructuring."

McAdoo, criticized frequently for lack of team play and defensive lapses, had become a prime scapegoat for the Knicks' failures despite his scoring ability. He is the second highest-salaried superstar traded by the club this season following by a couple of weeks the dispatch of Spencer Haywood to New Orleans.

"It's disappointing that neither Haywood nor McAdoo was able to fulfill our expectations," said Burke, "and I'm sure it's disappointing for both of those young men because they're exceedingly nice young men. We can in no way lay off our lack of success on either one individually. A lot of us are to blame — the other players, management and everyone."

Burke said he felt the Knicks' new course would not begin to show results for a while.

"We definitely felt we had to go another way," he said. "Red Holzman has some ideas that are very sound ideas. I think. We are looking for young men with talent who can play together as a team. Basketball is a much more team-oriented game than, say baseball, and it's not in the best interests of a team to rely on one man so much."

"I think it will take us two or three years to become a contender again, but so be it, we have to do it."

Area girls teams scramble for facts on tourney foes

MAGIC VALLEY — The Minico Spartans draw defending champion Boise to kickoff a four-pronged attack by Magic Valley girls teams this weekend in state basketball tournaments.

Minico will be the only one of the six teams Magic Valley is sending to the playoffs to draw the 1 p.m. curtain-raiser. Coach Alice Hill's Spartans will take on Boise at that time.

Meanwhile, Buhl will meet Preston at 3 p.m. Thursday in the A-2 opening session in Post Falls. At Lewiston, the Shoshone girls will meet Prairie at 2:30 p.m. while Valley takes on Genesee in the 8:30 p.m. feature of the A-3 playoffs. Hagerman and Richfield will be playing at Burley in the A-4 thing.

Despite the fact her Spartans are facing the defending champions, Coach Hill believes Minico will have a good chance. "Last Saturday Borah upset them (in the district finals) and Borah plays a lot like we do," Coach Hill said. "They run a more deliberate offense. I feel we can do all right."

But she admitted "I'm getting pretty nervous already. I don't know how I'll be just before the game."

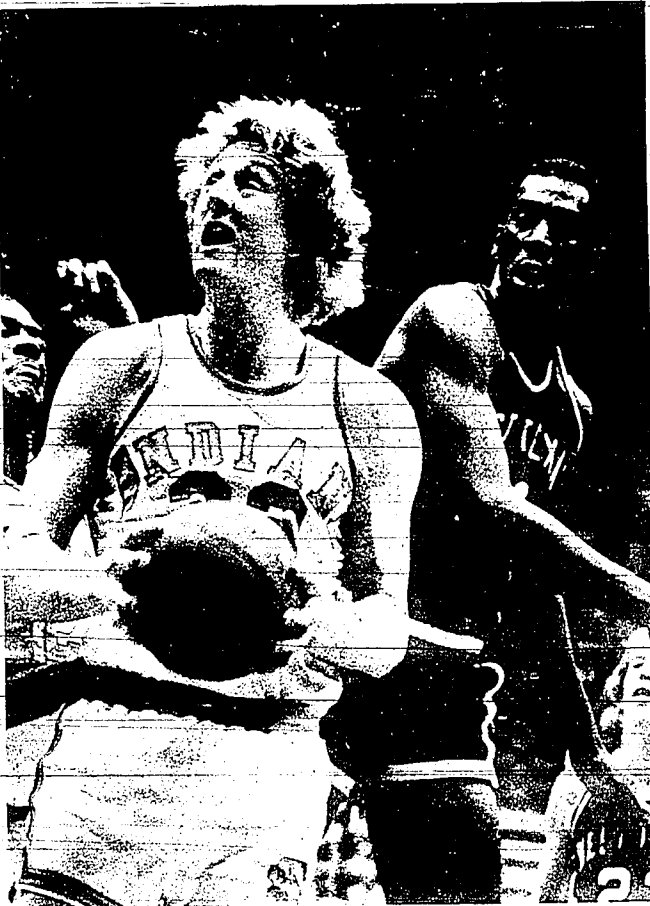

Most of the coaches are going into their tournaments blind. Coach Tom Chivers of Buhl has a story that pretty well explains it. "The Preston coach called me to ask me about our record. I told her we were 9-9. Then I asked her and she said they were 10-0 in the conference — but had lost several times outside of the conference whatever that adds up to. No," he answered a question, "she didn't tell me anything about her personnel (height, scoring average, etc.) so I didn't tell her anything about ours."

Valley's Forest Fomesbeck has a little knowledge. "We are told that they press and use a zone defense," Coach Fomesbeck said of Genesee. "They have two good shooters, Esser and Meyers, and they are their major offensive guns. I guess they aren't too tall. That's about all we know."

But the considerably more than Richfield Coach Jim Thomas knew Monday night. "They're having a playoff (between Mullan and Troy tonight) and we go against the winner," the coach said. Richfield will meet that Northern team at 2:30 p.m. after Mackay and Garden Valley lift the action at 1 p.m. at Burley.

In the night session, Kootenai will meet Highland of Cringram at 7:30 p.m. — with Hagerman meeting Midvale in the 8:30 p.m. feature game.

Shoshone will be going against Prairie at 2:30 p.m. Thursday and Prairie has been one of the powers since girls basketball came into being in the state. But Coach Ed Sandy will have to formulate his game plan as he goes along — just like the rest of them.

CSI Eagles test East Utah tonight

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho faces a formidable test tonight at Price, Utah, but there's no doubt the concentration of the week is bent toward the Thursday night rematch with Ricks College.

Coach Mike Mitchell and his Eagles will take on Eastern Utah for the first time this season and it figures to be tough.

Eastern has built a 20-4 record, has split with Ricks and generally figures to be as strong a team as the Eagles have on the second-half schedule.

"We don't know much about them. For us, the one that matters is Thursday night," Coach Mitchell said. "I hope we do more than just go to Price and put in our 20 minutes. We will have to have intensity to win there."

"But," he added, "given my druthers of a game to lose this week, it definitely wouldn't be Thursday night."

"From what we've heard, Eastern has a whole bunch of guys in the 6-4 area, they use about 10 of them a game and they like to run. But they had low scoring games with Ricks and I don't know if Ricks or Eastern went into a slowdown."

The coach said Eastern's top player is 6-5 Ricks Bakker who is averaging about 23 points per game. "I'm thinking that the Eagles may show up in a 1-3-1 zone because I don't think we want to be chasing them all over the court," Mitchell continued.

"The Eagles now are back in a position where they can govern their own destiny, thanks to Ricks knocking off North Idaho 90-77 Saturday night."

"I still have to feel that North Idaho is 'in the best position,'" Coach Mitchell said. "They're home for the rest of their regional schedule and just one game behind. Ricks has a 3-1 record and is done at home. They have to go to TWCC and come here. We have to beat Ricks Thursday night because our last two are on the road — and the last game of the season is at Coeur d'Alene."

Indiana State downs W. Texas

TERRE-HAUTE, Ind. (UPI) — All-American Larry Bird's 27 points and 19 rebounds led unbeaten and No. 2-ranked Indiana State to a 109-75 rout of West Texas State Monday night and its first Missouri Valley Conference basketball crown.

The Scymcorers, 13-0 in league play and 23-0 overall, won the title in only their second year in the MVC. However, they must still win the league's postseason tourney to qualify for the NCAA championship.

Bird, held to a career-low 4 points at Prairie last Saturday, dominated the scoring as well as the boards, setting up his teammates for numerous easy baskets. For Indiana State, Carl Nicks had 17 points and Brad Milley, Leroy Staley and Alex Gilbert scored 11 each. For the Buffaloes, George Sims scored 18 points, Eddie Harris 17 and Dan Elmer and Carl Johnson 12 apiece.

Texas outlasts Texas A&M

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (UPI) — John Wood scored a season-high 23 points Monday night when 15th-ranked Texas, the leaders of the Southwest Conference, held off 11th-ranked Texas A&M for a 65-57 victory.

Texas, which hit its first five shots, refused to be rattled by a tight press. The Longhorns made 68 percent of their field goal attempts in the first

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Mark Rhodes scored 32 points to power 16th-ranked Vanderbilt to a 65-57 victory over Alabama in a Southeastern Conference game.

Rhodes, a sophomore guard, hit 13 of 21 shots from the floor and 6-of-6 foul shots. Reggie King had 23 points and 11 rebounds.

Leading 54-51 with 3:30 to play, Vanderbilt scored 10 straight points.

Jerome-Buhl contest tops tonight's slate

MAGIC VALLEY — The Buhl Indians can clinch a tie for the No. 1 seed for the district A-2 tournament tonight when they host the Jerome Tigers in the feature of a five-game, high school schedule.

The Indians, currently at 3-1 against the other three A-2 members, could push their record to 4-1 and then face Buhl in the season final this weekend in the enviable position of "win or tie."

But there is other impetus for Jerome in this one — requiring some help, to be sure, but still an incentive. Should Jerome upset the Indians tonight and Wood River win Friday, there could be a three-way tie at the top and necessitate a coin flip.

Buhl currently is 4-1, Wood River is 2-1, Jerome 2-1 and Gooding 1-1. Should Buhl win both, it would put the Indians against Gooding when district opens, at the CSI gymnasium next week.

Jerome gave the Indians some problems their first time out, although Buhl came on strong at the end 16 win by 12 Jerome's second-half the Bliss Bears will be home to the Glenns Ferry Juniors.

In a long Wednesday night game, the Minico Spartans faced the challenge of trying to tame the Valley Conference title already in hand — go after their 13th straight victory when they host the Castelford Wolves. Oakley will be home to the Hansen Huskies in the other league battle — Raft River steps into non-league play to entertain the Minico Juniors.

In a late addition to the schedule, the Blissett tournaments will begin in the middle of next week.

Arkansas sets shooting mark

WACO, Texas (UPI) — Sidney Moncrief scored 16 points Monday night when 14th-ranked Arkansas set a Southwest Conference record by hitting 83.3 percent of its shots in the second half to down Baylor 71-62.

Arkansas, which stayed within a game of front-running Texas in the SWC, was also led by Steve Schall with 14 points, Scott Hastings with 13 and Alan Zahn and U.S. Reed with 12 each.

The Razorbacks led 33-30 at halftime before making its second-half charge. Arkansas shot 74.4 percent for the game.

SWC scoring leader Vinnie Johnson had 21 points to become Baylor's third all-time leading scorer.

"I couldn't help it," Mitchell continued, "I just broke out laughing when I saw those stats (3 of 3). I told the kids that should be a good indication to them of just how well they were playing to have an opponent score only six points from the field in the first half and still be within 13 at halftime."

Phelps finds nothing positive about loss

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Digger Phelps tried Monday to find some positive things in Notre Dame's expected fall from the No. 1 spot in the college basketball ratings, but he couldn't find many.

The Irish were on top for about one month — longer than at any time in their history — until a 56-52 homecourt defeat to UCLA at South Bend on Sunday.

"I'd like to say it would help this team or it will be a greater motivator or something terrific like that," Phelps said, "but I just can't."

One bright note Phelps did mention was the loss to UCLA might "open some eyes" of both the team and fans.

"It may do some shaking up, but that's about it," Phelps said. "Being No. 1 is great. I've never claimed that I'd rather be lower in the polls come the season at the end, pressing us, and we've just got to come back."

Phelps also wanted to stay away from who is No. 1 — Indiana State or UCLA — and preferred to discuss the upcoming Irish state.

Notre Dame begins a short road trip this weekend and should be heavily favored to get back to its winning ways — at Madison Square Garden Thursday night against Manhattan. Saturday, the Irish travel to West Virginia.

"They (West Virginia) beat Rutgers at home earlier, so we can't relax," Phelps said, "but I don't think we're going to relax. We're going back to work."

Phelps had time to reflect on the loss to UCLA, which gave the Bruins an even split in a rivalry the Irish coach considers the "best in college basketball."

"Part of the reason I'm not really down or pessimistic is that we actually played a very good game against UCLA, the films and statistics all show that," Phelps said. "We got the shots we've been taking all season long and they didn't go in. We played the kind of defense we wanted to play."

Notre Dame had ended several important UCLA streaks in the past, including the Bruins' record-setting 88 game winning streak in the Bill Walton era. So it was with some "reluctance" that Phelps accepted the Bruins, ending a Notre Dame streak.

"How can you really be disappointed or down heading into the final seven games of our season when you play the best?" Phelps said.

UCLA stopped a three-game losing streak against the Irish and also ended a 15-game home court winning streak Notre Dame had enjoyed for a year.

Notre Dame's last home court loss came one year ago — Feb. 12 — against DePaul, 69-66. The loss also gave Phelps some reason to be a little "gun shy" about appearing on national television.

"We lost that game one year ago on national television, and we've lost to Kentucky, Maryland and now UCLA on national television," he said. "Maybe we ought to play in more private."

Cards have entire team under contract

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday reached contract agreements with their four holdouts for the 1979 baseball season, eliminating the need for arbitration hearings scheduled this week.

The settlements involve shortstop

Garry Templeton, pitcher Jim Willoughby and outfielders Tony Scott and Jerry Humphrey.

Templeton, 22, hit .280 last season after a .322 mark in 1977 but committed a league-leading 40 errors.

Willoughby, 30, was obtained by the Cardinals in October in a trade with the Chicago White Sox for minor league outfielder John Scott. Willoughby was 1-6 with 13 saves and a 3.67 ERA with Chicago last year.

Tony Scott, 27, joined St. Louis in November 1976.

You can still get a tax break for '78.

It's not too late. You still have until April 16 to open and deposit to your First Security Individual Retirement Account and get credit on your '78 tax return. You can tuck away up to $1500, or 15% of your income, (more if you have a non-working spouse) to earn 8% continuous interest. And defer all the taxes on both principal and interest until you withdraw the money when you retire. By then, you may be in a lower tax bracket.

If you have a Keogh plan that was opened before December 31, 1978, you can add to that 'til April 16, too.

So look at the alternatives: IRA or IRF. We think you'll make the obvious deduction.

PGA's established stars face new crop of hungry contenders

HONOLULU (UPI) — After five events of the new PGA season, one thing seems clear — there is another new group of young players ready to challenge for the big money.

A not-so-old Hubert Green won the $300,000 Hawaiian Open Sunday, but right there at the end, pressuring him were such new kids on the block as Fuzzy Zoeller, Larry Nelson, Lindy Miller and Dan Hallardson.

Between them they had won only one tournament before, and that came two weeks ago in the San Diego Open when Zoeller broke through. Nelson has come close a couple of times, but still while Hallardson is starting out on the Tour for the second time and Miller is a rookie.

"I don't usually go around getting on a young player's bandwagon," Green said of Miller, a 1978 grad from Oklahoma State, "but that kid is some kind of player. I wouldn't mind sponsoring him because I think he is going to make some big money out here."

Miller finished in a tie at 273 with Charles Cook, and Miller Barber in the Hawaiian Open and won $12,400. It's his first pro payday.

Zoeller was second, three shots behind Green at 27, and won $32,400, while Nelson was third and won $20,400. Hallardson finished in a tie for seventh with Don January and won $9,675.

Green, of course, won the big pot — $34,000. It was his second straight victory in the Hawaiian Open and his 15th career triumph. He won with a 72-hole score of 21-under-par 267. Green shot in the 60s in all four rounds, including a 63 in the third, and had only one bogey in four days.

Strong putting, as might be expected, was the key to victory for Green. It represented quite a turnaround for Hubert, who didn't have one sub-par round in two previous tournaments this year.

"When I got to Hawaii," said Green, "I worked hard on my putting. I putted poorly in the Hope and Crosby and I knew I couldn't keep on going that way. I tried a lot of different stances here until I finally settled for one."

Hunching over the ball and placing his hands halfway down the shaft, Green made 22 birdies for the week. He goes on to Arizona now for the Tucson Open, an event in which he'll be facing most of those youngsters who played so well in Honolulu despite a week of rain and a soggy Waialae Country Club course.

Sunday's final round was played in horrible conditions with the rain slanting in from the ocean and the wind blowing at 40 miles per hour at times.

"It was unbelievable," said Green, "maybe the worst weather I've ever played in. For Hawaii, it had to be terrible. Everyone comes here to sit in the sun. Well, we never saw the sun in a whole week."

Green won the Heritage Classic as well as the Hawaiian title in 1978 to place fifth on the money list. He was the leader going into the final round of the Masters and World Series but did not win either. "It bothers Green at times that he has won only one major in eight previous years — the 1977 U.S. Open — but he says he places no great emphasis on the majors.

"Certainly I'd like to play better in the majors and win a few of them," he said, "but at the moment the only tournament I'm worried about is the next one I play in."

Blind man sues TV for 'audio' blackout

MIAMI (UPI) — A blind man filed a $200,000 discrimination suit Monday against NBC, light promoter Chris DiRades and Miami Beach because he couldn't listen to a televised account of Sunday's locally blacked out middleweight fight between Sugar Ray Leonard and Fernando Marcotte.

Attorney Ellis Rubin filed the suit in Dade County circuit court on behalf of Fred Haynes, 31.

Haynes claimed his rights were violated because NBC's nationally televised account of the Leonard-Marcotte fight at the Miami Beach Convention Center was blacked out in the Miami area.

The suit asks $50,000 per count for two counts of conspiracy to deprive Haynes and his wife of their constitutional rights, and two counts for actual deprivation of those rights.

"It's kind of an unusual case," said Rubin, the attorney who helped win the NFL 72-hour anti-blackout rule.

"I've been fighting against blackouts for 15 years," Rubin said, "and each time we've tried to stop the blackouts they went into effect when the burden of proof is so much greater."

"This time we're going in through the back door. I've got the perfect plaintiff. I think we've got a shot," he said.

Haynes claims discrimination because there was no scheduled radio broadcast, and without the audio portion — of a television account — he couldn't listen to an account of the fight.

Going to the fight would have been useless, he said, because there is no round-by-round description of the action at the convention center.

"I'm upset because they discriminate against the less fortunate," said Haynes, the father of a six-year-old daughter. He works as a machine operator at an electronics plant.

Rubin said Haynes walked into his office last Friday "out of the blue, because he knew of the attorney's reputation for opposing blackouts."

Colorado, Fairbanks begin 'waiting game'

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — The University of Colorado, still desiring Chuck Fairbanks as head football coach next season, has lapsed into a waiting game designed to put the squeeze on the coachless New England Patriots.

"That's the way we have to go now," CU President Roland Rautens-traus said Monday. "The New England Patriots are going to have to name a new coach before too much longer and this will change the situation as far as Fairbanks is concerned."

A U.S. Court of Appeals in Boston Saturday refused to remove a temporary injunction preventing CU from signing Fairbanks as head coach.

Fairbanks, who has four years left on his contract with New England, says he will not return to the Patriots and will instead become coach at Colorado.

Fairbanks was in Boulder during the weekend in negotiations with the CU football squad, advising them he officially will take over when his legal problems are cleared up. He also greeted about 25 high school prospects who visited the CU campus.

CU Athletic Director Eddie Crowder said Saturday the delay in getting Fairbanks signed is hurting the recruiting program, but not enough to hurt the school's chances of becoming a Big Eight Conference championship contender next season.

"We would prefer to have Coach Fairbanks helping with our recruiting," said Crowder. "But we still feel we will have had a good recruiting year."

"Sooner or later the Patriots are going to have to take positive action on naming a successor for Chuck as their head coach and general manager," he said. "They have claimed that Chuck is 'irreplaceable and indispensable' to their operation."

UCLA replaces Irish as nation's top team

NEW YORK (UPI) — UCLA, the one-time kingpin of college basketball, became the fourth team this season to take over the No. 1 spot in the weekly United Press International Board of Coaches ratings today by beating out Indiana State by a scant three points.

The Bruins, a 56-52 victor over previously top-ranked Notre Dame last Sunday, vaulted — past the Sycamores into the No. 1 slot despite receiving 10 less first-place votes than unbeaten Indiana State. UCLA, ranked third a week ago, received 15 first-place votes and 599 points from the 42-member Board of Coaches while Indiana State got 25 first-place votes and 596 points.

Once again, however, it was the Sycamores' lack of consistent support from the coaches which cost them a chance to move into the No. 1 spot. Six coaches, no doubt unimpressed by Indiana State's mediocre schedule, voted the Sycamores fourth place or lower with one coach picking them as low as eighth.

UCLA, on the other hand, received 24 second-place mentions and only one vote as low as fourth place.

The Bruins, who have won five UPI national championships, ended Notre Dame's four-week reign in the No. 1 spot. Duke and Michigan State also were previously ranked No. 1 in a season which has been one of the most well-balanced in recent years.

With Notre Dame, Duke, Louisville and Marquette suffering defeats during the week, the top 10 once again underwent a major shakeup.

Notre Dame dropped to third following its loss to UCLA and North Carolina replaced Duke in the No. 4 spot after scoring two impressive victories and raising its record to 18-4. LSU also advanced, moving up two places to fifth after boosting its record to 19-3.

Duke's upset loss to Pittsburgh last Saturday night cost the Blue Devils two spots in the standings as they fell to sixth.

Syracuse moved up three spots to seventh after boosting its record to 20-3; Michigan State moved up one place to No. 8; Louisville, a loser to Marquette, fell four places to No. 9 and Marquette, beaten by Detroit, slumped two places to No. 10.

Arkansas, Texas, Purdue, Temple and Georgetown all made major advances among the second 10.

Bellard forgets vow, returns to coaching

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Emory Bellard, who vowed never to coach again when he quit at Texas A&M, was named head football coach at Mississippi State Monday. Bellard, who resigned at A&M in mid-season last year, promised his Mississippi teams would be "regret-free" and would likely use the wishbone attack that he successfully implemented with the Aggies. Bellard's appointment ended days of speculation that he had been chosen to succeed Bob Tyler. Bellard, 49, had said he was through with coaching. "Women are not the only ones who have the prerogative to change their mind," Bellard told a packed news conference in Humphrey Coliseum on the MSU campus. Tyler resigned the football coaching job last month, several days after he was fired as athletic director.

Bellard built a national power at Texas A&M and in 6½ seasons compiled a 48-27 record. The Aggies also went to three bowl games under Bellard. He presently ranks 22nd among winningest active major football coaches. "I pledge that you will have my heart and soul in the effort — we will be competitive," the slow talking Bellard said. Bellard said his first priority would be to make sure all high school players who have signed Southeastern Conference letters of intent with the school are secured by the national signing date Feb. 21. He said he would move immediately to fill his coaching staff. He announced that Melvin Robertson, an assistant with him at Texas A&M, would be the defensive coordinator.

Houston topples SMU 101-94

DALLAS (UPI) — Ken Williams scored 38 points to lift Houston to a 101-94 victory over Southern Methodist Monday night in a Southwest Conference game. "The win moved Houston to a half game ahead of SMU in the league and into contention for a homecourt advantage in the opening round of the league's postseason tournament," Houston is 13-13 overall and 5-9 in the conference. SMU fell to 9-14 and 4-8. Houston broke the game open midway through the first half, outscoring the Mustangs 21-0 over a five-minute stretch to assume a 57-43 halftime advantage. The Cougars led by as many as 20 points before SMU cut the deficit late in the game. Williams, who scored 41 points against SMU earlier this year, scored 20 points in the first half. George Walker scored 20 points and Victor Ewing led for the Cougars. For SMU, Brad Branson had a season-high 31 points and Reggie Franklin 20.

Russian win deflates NHL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Clarke, disconsolate over the outcome of the Challenge Cup series, would accept no alibis for what happened to the NHL All-Stars.

He did not wish to hear praise for the Soviet National team. He looked like he was trying to exorcise the whole nightmare.

"We have no excuses," the captain of both the Philadelphia Flyers and the NHL All-Stars said softly. "When you get beat 6-0, you don't have an excuse for nothing. We just got our butts kicked."

Despite winning the first game 4-2 and owning a 4-2 lead late in the second period of the second, the NHL really never dominated — not that the Soviets did in covering the entire ice in Sunday night's decisive game.

"We were fighting for something in this series," Clarke said. "And we still haven't found it."

The NHL did not score a goal for the final 105 minutes of the 3rd-game series, and was outscored, 9-0, over that span. As the rout wore on, the Soviets gradually asserted themselves in every area of the game, including faceoffs and play along the boards. This made it even more difficult for Clarke to minimize the result.

"It's always important to do well when you play these guys," he said. Bob Gainey, the speedy forward who often experienced trouble skating with even the average Soviet skaters, listed to all the Soviet alibis and also rejected them.

"We were not playing 10,000 miles from home," he said.

Coach Scotty Bowman, who now remains in his bid to win a fourth straight Stanley Cup with the Montreal Canadiens, stressed that his players should not indict themselves despite the turn of the series.

"We all knew how strong the Soviets were," Bowman said. "We've had some successes and we've had some failures. This was not a bitter loss. We'll just have to work that much harder."

The Soviets believe the NHL met a strong foe.

"We are proud of the victory, very proud," said team captain and most valuable player Boris Mikhailov, who scored a goal in each game. "We have proved our skill."

Vacheslav Kolesov, a Soviet sports official, also enjoyed expressing the bragging rights that came with winning the unofficial world championship of hockey.

"The best two teams in the world confronted each other," he said. "And this series shows our team is better. However, it does not indicate that hockey in Canada is poorer than in our country. I think you could gather three teams like this. For our part, we could not."

Nevertheless, the Soviets showed that they have long hoped to demonstrate — and that they could play the NHL in a "best-against-best" situation. And the NHL is beginning to realize it must approach these series with a different perspective.

"I know they were much better prepared to play us than we were to play them," said Bill Torrey, New York Islander general manager, who served as general manager for the NHL All-Stars.

"I think it was a good series," continued Torrey. "They learned something from it and we learned something from it. They have learned something from us every time they have played us."

And this time, they used it all.

Ali won't leave Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Muhammad Ali said Monday he hates the snow, cold and winter weather of Chicago, but has no intention of ever making another city in the United States his home.

All discounted reports he planned to leave the Windy City and move to California. He said his plans to make every effort to keep his house on Chicago's South Side, although he has recently purchased a home in Beverly Hills.

"I hate the weather in Chicago, with all the snow and the wind whistling around," said the heavyweight boxing champ at his home. "Chicago is always going to be my home. I'm just not going to winter here."

All took the time to talk about his living situation during a presentation of a sculpture done for him by Jesse Richardson. Duplicates of the statue, priced at about $5,000, will be offered to the public in a limited edition of 50.

"All gazed at the 31 1/2-inch statue and said, 'I'll weigh as little as that I'd be able to keep my title for another five years.'"

"All has said repeatedly he plans to retire and not fight again. But when asked to speculate about his plans, he preferred to get back on the subject of Chicago.

"I'm not a working man now, and I've got so much money that I don't need to stay in Chicago for my money writers. I'm not like you guys have to put up with it," All said. "I'll spend my winters, when I have a free minute, in California and come back here. But when I see those snow flakes falling, but I'm getting on the plane and leaving."

Championship course begins

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Instead of hitting a spade of earth, Deane Bennett, PGA commissioner, hit the first two golf balls Monday at the site of the new Tournament Players Club, future home of the Tournament Players Championship.

"The first ball hit ... and the first mulligan," said Bennett after duckhooking a shot into a palm tree thick and sending his second one over a wilderness at Inlet Beach, where the $1 million course will be built.

The 6,800-yard layout will be designed by a golf course architect Pete Dye of Delray Beach, and the earthmoving will be handled by Master

WBC adopts safety rule

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The World Boxing Council said Monday that its medical committee has recommended that any boxer who has been unconscious or semi-unconscious for more than 24 hours be barred for life from further boxing.

A WBC spokesman said the recommendation was made at a medical convention held in Reno, Nev., Dec. 4.

"It is the unanimous decision ... that any boxer who has been unconscious or semi-unconscious for more than 24 hours should under no circumstances be granted a license to box again or spar," a WBC statement said.

The spokesman said that the doctors intended their recommendation to cover not only unconsciousness resulting from boxing activities but even from events outside the ring, such as car accidents.

He said the doctors' recommendation was just that — a recommendation — and not binding on any boxing commission.

Junior ski team selected

PARK CITY, Utah (UPI) — The U.S. Ski Team has named its 1979 member squad to compete in the 1979 World Junior Nordic Championships beginning Friday at Quebec City in Canada.

The women's cross country team is led by Beth Paxson of Charlotte, Vt., and Betsy Halnes of Anchorage, Alaska, both 18, who competed in several international races last year and are rated as the top U.S. athletes

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

North's three spade bid was forcing and South took to cue bid if asked South anything better than a minimum opening. This is very modernistic, but quite reasonable when you play that two-level responses are always good hands.

South's four-diamond bid carried this slam idea rather far, but he did have a good reason for a singleton in the unbid one.

North's four-heart bid accepted the idea of a slam and South took off for the stratosphere with that same 12-point hand he had been dealt.

The slam is a good one, but things started out badly when East produced the ace of clubs. Since South was king and led a second club, South ruffed and played king and queen of trumps. His plan had been to ruff a "trial" of the king of the dummy's ace of trumps, but when trumps broke 4-1 that plan had to be abandoned.

South led a third trump, cashed dummy's king of diamonds, led a diamond to his queen, cashed his last trump to pull East's 10 and had a trump since that last trump lead squeezed West out of either heart or diamond protection. This lucky heart-diamond squeeze had over come the bad luck in clubs, spades and diamonds.

Ask the Experts

A Maine reader asks if there is such a bridge term as "Four cheetle."

It is an obsolete term for a tenace such as ace-queen or king-jack.
