By JAMES E. ROPER
Newspaper News Service
WASHINGTON — President Carter has decided on government reorganization plans to change the Interior Department into an expanded Department of Natural Resources, and to consolidate most development aid programs in the Commerce Department.

The new Natural Resource Department would take over the Weather Service from the Commerce Department and the Forest Service from the Agriculture Department. Carter, after a painful argument within the White House, decided against creation of a Cabinet-level Department of Developmental Assistance, authoritative sources disclosed. Instead, he will shift development aid programs — and the money proposed for a planned National Urban Bank — to the Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration.

In making his decisions on development agencies, Carter had to choose between two of his top aides, Budget Director James T. McIntyre Jr. and chief domestic adviser Stuart E. Eizenstat, and between the two women in his Cabinet, Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps and Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Harris.

McIntyre had argued strenuously for placing all development assistance in a new department that would take over and expand HUD's responsibilities. McIntyre reasoned that this would eliminate duplication and promote efficiency. Eizenstat, however, objected and argued that in any event Congress would not accept such a plan. Eizenstat's view prevailed.

The White House believes the reorganization plans do not require legislation, but can go into effect unless one or the other House of Congress objects. Informed sources said a decision paper on the development issue had been lying on Carter's desk since before the president visited Mexico last month, but he did not make his choice until this past Tuesday. Mrs. Harris was briefed on the decisions Wednesday. Mrs. Harris was the loser in what appears to have been a tight-lipped tug-of-war with Mrs. Kreps. Instead of expanding Mrs. Harris's HUD, Carter elected to strengthen Mrs. Kreps's Economic Development Administration, a respected Commerce agency that makes loans for business expansion.

In a surprise, the Economic Development Administration now would get the money and assignments for the proposed National Urban Bank. Carter proposed to Congress last year and again this year that the bank be set up to make grants and subsidized loans for businesses entering blighted cities. His original plan was to make it an independent agency directed in alternate years by the secretary of Commerce and the secretary of HUD.

Idaho Senate votes to limit state spending

By ROBERT VAN BUSKIRK
BOISE (UPI) — Arguing it would show the Legislature was trying to keep faith with the taxpayers, the Idaho Senate voted Wednesday to pull a lid on state government spending. By a vote of 22-13, senators approved and sent to the House a measure which would limit the Legislature from spending from the general account on amounts exceeding 5% percent of the total personal income of the state. The Senate elected a proposed constitutional amendment to accomplish the same thing, with senators arguing they preferred a statutory provision. Although opponents debated that this would allow the Legislature to spend more than it has in the past few years, floor sponsor Dean VanEngelen-Bunley said the bill "doesn't say we have to spend that much, but it says we can't spend more than that." VanEngelen said while the state was "not in bad shape now," if spending continues at a higher rate than growth "we could be in bad shape."

Committee OKs House version of spending lid

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer
BOISE — By a one-vote margin, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee Wednesday called for a constitutional ceiling on state spending.

He said the statute route "may not be the best long-term solution, but the statute is available and acceptable at this time." He said if it worked then possibly the lawmakers could come back at a later date and pass a constitutional amendment so that "it couldn't be tampered with by future sessions."

The proposed amendment to Idaho's constitution, which would appear on the 1980 general election ballot, was sponsored by Rep. Wendy Ungrecht, R-Boise. Under her plan, state spending would be limited to either a 7 percent increase over the previous year's expenditures, or to no more than "the average percentage of increase in gross per capita personal income" in Idaho for the most recent three-year period, whichever amount is least.

Sen. Kermit Kiebert, D-Hope, said the people spoke in November with passage of the 1 percent initiative that they wanted to curb government and limit spending. "By this bill," he said, "the Legislature is trying to act in good faith to what the people spoke to in November."

The measure, House Joint Resolution 4 now goes to the 70-member house, where it must be approved by two-thirds of the members. HJR 4 was sent out of committee on a 9-8 vote. Urgent told committee members merely balancing the state budget isn't enough to achieve economy in government. Idaho has always had a constitutional prohibition against deficit spending, she said. "Every year we balance our budget, but that hasn't stopped our spending."

But Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, said the 5 1/2 percent figure would "constitute an increase in budgets." He said since 1975 the legislature has appropriated "less than that amount."

The measure was also supported by Barry Stevenson, a lobbyist for the National Federation of Independent Business. A recent poll of his Idaho members, Stevenson said, indicated 55 percent favored some kind of legal lid on state spending.

Calling the measure "overkill," Sen. Ron Twilgar, R-Boise, said the proposal indicates "a lack of faith in representative government."

But the measure drew criticism from fellow Boise Republican Mike Gwarty. The measure would sharply reduce available state funds, Gwarty said. "How in the world can we fund education under this budget?"

Twilgar said the legislators were "elected to lead and not necessarily follow" and passage of this measure would signal support.

Gwarty said he favored a ceiling on state spending, but criticized the Urgent plan for setting an arbitrary limit, "on spending." The measure would "set some kind of relationship to income adjusted for inflation," he said.

Sen. Ken Robinson, D-Boise, said a survey of voters in his district indicated they favored a limitation on spending. He said this measure provides that the state can't spend more than it receives.

Jerry Albers would like to see a logical system replace haphazard groups of road signs in Jerome County

Jerome County road numbering system urged

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer
JEROME — Consider the problem of the rural postman. He must memorize names and locations — like 2 1/2 miles south, about 1 1/2 miles west, just past the Thompson place — for all his deliveries. Mail boxes are strung out along un-named county roads, and more go up each year as city dwellers move to a home in the country. Jerome Postmaster Jerry Albers visited county planners this week looking for support for a solution to the problem. He suggested a permanent name and numbering system on all Jerome County roads. Albers and his assistant, Tony Sabala, told the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission Monday a permanent system would not only help postmen but all other county services such as sheriff, fire and other emergency agencies. Albers said Tuesday the post office would not make a formal proposal and that it would be up to the county commissioners to take any action. He said he was just feeling out the situation to see if there was any support for the idea. Planning commission chairman Roy Prescott said the road naming and numbering project has a lot of validity "but the monies just aren't available to get it done."

H.E. "Hap" Wilson, a member of the Jerome County Highway District board, told Prescott the district couldn't afford the expense involved in putting signs on all the roads and then maintaining them. Most of the county roads haven't been named. Albers said that if the county wouldn't implement a permanent numbering and naming pattern that the post office would have to redo some addresses anyway by the summer.

Growth on some rural routes, especially in southern Jerome County, has been accelerating rapidly in recent years and some routes are too large for one carrier to handle. Realigning the routes would affect the addresses of 400 to 500 of the county's 1,800 rural mailboxes, Sabala estimated. Albers said a permanent system would be based on assigning a new number for a specific amount of road frontage. It makes more sense because it would eliminate address changes in the future as the county continues to grow and routes are changed to handle the load, he said.

Just how often address changes would be required in the future depends on how much growth there is, the postmaster said. If the usury ceiling is lifted the construction industry will boom, he predicted, and county growth would probably continue to expand rapidly.

A candidate last fall for a county commissioner's job, Charalotte Bell, is looking into the total cost of naming and numbering the county and will report back to the commission next month.

Amin regime threatened by Tanzania

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Uganda President Idi Amin has evacuated his family to Libya and the Soviet and Iraqi embassies are sending their personnel home because of fears his invasion-threatened regime is on the verge of collapse, western diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

According to the sources, Ugandan forces still loyal to Amin have built a defense line about 25 miles south of Kampala for a last-ditch stand against an invading force of Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles heading for the capital.

Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere said in a nationwide radio broadcast Wednesday he would be "very happy" if Amin is overthrown, but that was not his aim. He said the 4-month-old war could end tomorrow "if those were the conditions we met." These were that the Organization of African Unity condemn Uganda's aggression against Tanzania last October, that Uganda renounce claims to Tanzania territory and pay war damages, and that Uganda pledge never to invade Tanzania again.

The sources said the situation was becoming increasingly chaotic and that Amin's whereabouts were not known. They said Amin sent 80 relatives out of Uganda on Tuesday.

Should states have the veto option?

Governors debate the nuclear waste issue

Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — Nuclear power as an alternative to U.S. dependence on foreign oil is "dead" unless at least one state permits the disposal of nuclear wastes within its border, Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., has warned the nation's governors. Udall, chairman of the House Interior Committee, was responding to growing clamor for giving states the right to veto any federal project for storing or burying highly radioactive wastes from nuclear power plants and the government's nuclear weapons program. The veto option is "most important to us," said Gov. Richard D. Lamm of Colorado, "if we don't want it in our states, we should have that option." "We are right in the hot seat in this debate," interjected Gov. James R. Thompson of Illinois, "because we rely more on nuclear power than any other state. "Nuclear waste disposal is a practical problem with intense emotional and political overtones," he said. "No matter how technically sound any program involving nuclear waste may be, it won't be tolerated by the people unless they are confident that their government knows what it's doing and has given them a say." Thompson raised the issue of who is responsible for the mistakes of the past. "Who pays the billion dollars the Energy Department says it will cast to clean up the defunct (nuclear waste) reprocessing plant at West Valley, N.Y.?" he asked. "Who pays to clean up the uranium mill tailings found under a brickyard and a dozen other sites in Denver?" The federal government, Udall replied, will have to take responsibility for decontaminating the radioactive sites and disposing of the sludge stored at West Valley. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., concurred with him. "I'm not very enthusiastic about nuclear (power)," Udall declared. "I hope it will be seen by history as a transition source (of energy), but I think it ought to be given a chance." Licensing red tape and uncertainty over nuclear waste, including the disposal fees that electric utilities ultimately will have to pay, have had the effect of imposing a "nuclear moratorium" on the utilities, he said. Udall told the National Governors Conference here that the federal government must undertake a test program for disposing waste — "digra hole or find a cave." The Energy Department is pushing a pilot project to bury waste and spent nuclear fuel 2,500 feet underground in a hollowed-out salt bed near Carlsbad, N.M., but only if the state "enjoins 20 years."

Udall said he favor testing states veto such projects if they come up with well-founded objections such as technical infeasibility or public health hazards. The response from North Carolina Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. was, "If you give them the veto option, you're going to get vetoes from 50 states." "If that's the case, nuclear is dead," Udall said. To win public acceptance, he said, the government may have to provide local residents with tax breaks or other incentives. The waste site, he said in jest, could be changed to "no only place that's going to glow in the dark for 200 years."

More battles for Cleveland

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mayor Dennis Kucinich Wednesday hailed his vote of confidence from Clevelanders, but said it "was just one battle in a continuing war" against the city's financial problems and "big money and big corporations."

By 2-1 margins voters Tuesday approved raising the city's income tax from 1 to 1.5 percent and rejected the proposed sale of the financially

Democrats allow Diggs to cast vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats Wednesday refused to bar Rep. Charles Diggs from voting while he appeals a payroll padding conviction, but after Diggs cast his first major "vote" of the session, Republicans moved to expel him from the House.

The confrontation occurred when Diggs voted yes on legislation to raise the ceiling on the federal debt, just as he said he would when he cast a vote on minor matters Tuesday.

His decision prompted freshman Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., to call up an expulsion motion. Gingrich planned to press for a vote as the first order of business today.

troubled Municipal Light System. The issues were put on the ballot in an effort to lift Cleveland out of default on $15.5 million in short-term bank notes. The six local banks holding the notes delayed demands for payment until after the election.

But the election outcome still left in doubt exactly how the city will handle its fiscal problems.

Kucinich discussed the election at a news conference in which he spoke with consumer advocate Ralph Nader, who supported the mayor in the election, over a telephone hookup to Washington.

"It was a victory for consumers and taxpayers," Nader said. The $38 million additional tax will generate annually will be the most significant factor in helping the city avoid bankruptcy, the mayor said Wednesday.

"The tax hike will be the most significant part of the plan to solidify the city's finances," Kucinich said.

Jane Byrne reads of her victory in the Chicago Tribune

Chicago's big machine says it'll back Byrne

By DAVID SMOTHERS CHICAGO (UPI) — The "biggest of the big city machines," shocked by the Cinderella victory of Jane Byrne in the Democratic mayoral primary, gritted its teeth Wednesday and made grudging moves to get behind her.

The organization that Richard J. Daley fashioned over 20 years as mayor and party chairman took the worse licking of its life when Mrs. Byrne, 44, a City Hall insider turned maverick, upset Mayor Michael A. Bilandic.

It was a stunning victory won by an eyelash. With a scant 110 of 3,100 precincts yet to report, she skimmed by Bilandic, 56, by just 15,000 votes — 50.97 of those cast.

Mrs. Byrne must still face Republican Wallace D. Johnson in the regular election April 3. If she wins, she will be the first woman mayor of the nation's second-largest city.

Republicans have not won a mayoral race in Chicago in more than half a century. But they sensed a chance of victory and there was talk of replacing Johnson, a little known Loop investment banker, with a more recognized candidate.

It was up to the machine to decide whether to get behind Mrs. Byrne, the city's commissioner of consumer sales until Bilandic fired her in a row over a taxi fare increase.

Texans' sense of self endangered

By GEORGE F. WILL

WASHINGTON — Let the record show that before it was fashionable, I favored normalization of relations between the United States and Texas. We sell Coca-Cola to Texas, Texas sells us Dr. Pepper, and links between great powers have been founded on less. Who cares that Texans don't speak United States?

Recently I wrote that residents of Texas' largest city, Yewat'un, speak with accents strong enough to make even other Texans blanch. I was rebuked by a state legislator from that city, Chase Untermeyer, who said that "the real ear-wrenchers" are folks from East Texas, and from North Texas, "which, after all, is just a linguistic extrusion of Oklahoma."

Untermeyer is compiling a "Tex-lexicon" of words, or at any rate sounds, uttered by his colleagues in the legislature. The other day he sent this note:

"Please add this to your 'Texlexicon': ASS-STEER. It was used today at an appropriations subcommittee meeting by a crusty old West Texan who reminded us all of 'President Carter's ass-steer budget.'"

Untermeyer also has collected these curiosities:

HARD: Employed, as "I hard him to do the job." Also a man's name, as "Mah Wile's a cousin of Hard Hughes."

RULE: Non-urban, as "He comes from the rule area."

FORCED: A large group of trees, as "Lemme showya mah pine forced."

BAR SHUN: The termination of pregnancy, as "Bar shun is murder!"

WHORED: Difficult, as "That was a whored one."

WONT: To desire, as "Ah won't to seeya tonight."

LOWERED BARN: An English poet (1788-1824).

I am a tad skeptical about Untermeyer's claim to have heard that last item from a colleague. I suspect that generations pass without Lord Byron being mentioned in the Texas legislature. But I am glad that even Untermeyer, who is as cosmopolitan as Voltaire, has a vestigial trace of the characteristic Texas habit of fibbing to foreigners like me. I welcome evidence that Americans retain some regional differences.

But Texans—like everything else (only, as you would expect, more so)—isn't what it used to be. It is losing the splendid sense of self its history produced.

"In most states," writes T.R. Fehrenbach, "the frontier was ephemeral, lasting a decade at most. The Texas frontier—a bloody, embattled frontier both in the West and along the Rio Grande—lasted some three generations." There was "little immigration from Europe or anywhere else into the state after 1876—until the middle of the 20th century."

And "the first wave of migrants to Texas cities were Texans from the surrounding countryside—farmers and other rural residents who rarely migrated more than 200 miles."

But today, William Broyles, editor of Texas Monthly, is a voice crying in what is no longer enough of a wilderness to suit him. He is afraid that Texas—which has, after all, a history as a separate nation—is becoming "just another bland ingredient in the national melting pot."

In 1920, Texas' largest city was San Antonio, with 161,000 souls. But Texas' population has doubled since 1940. The land of Edna Ferber's "Giant" is, Broyles says, now the fourth most urbanized state, after New York, California and New Jersey. And, says Broyles—with considerable grumpiness, what passes for native Texas culture "is all too often some half-drunk impostor from New Jersey singing so-called country music."

One reason Texas' distinctiveness has diminished is that, as Broyles says, Texas' vastness has been a kind of vacuum, drawing in foreign influences from New Jersey and elsewhere:

"Hardly one of the 583 miles between London and Berlin is without several layers of history, whether of peace, religion or commerce, culture or politics. Buildings, monuments, battles, place names and locale's art, literature and music link modern Europe to the European Charlemagne, Shakespeare, a Bismarck. . . . The 510 miles between Lubbock and Laredo boast little evidence that anything ever happened."

Actually, what is distinctly Texan is to be heard, not seen. It is way Texans talk, which, praise God is not the purred, accentless talk television announcers. The homing force of broadcasting has conquered Texas. But (to put the point in Texas-talk) Broyles shrewdly raises in that the spade change is producing a new breed of Texans.

Good guys vs. bad guys

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WASHINGTON — One of the roles of a newspaper columnist is to keep everyone informed as to who are the good guys and who are the bad guys as far as the United States is concerned. I would like all of you to get out your map, pencil and paper.

Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping of the People's Republic of China is a good guy even though he has just ordered an incursion into Vietnam, because the Vietnamese went into Cambodia and Teng thought Hanol should be taught a lesson. Teng will remain a good guy in our eyes unless he uses force against Taiwan, with whom we had a special and long relationship which we just gave up by normalizing our ties with the People's Republic of China.

and that in his heart he really loves Jimmy Carter.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel is a bad guy because he won't give up the West Bank of the Jordan.

President Carter has been very harsh about Begin because he knows Israel has no oil and gas.

Egyptian President Anwar-Sadat is a good guy because he wants the West Bank of Jordan to go back to the PLO, which the United States does not recognize.

Besides individuals, the United States now has strained relations with most African countries, Canada, South America, Europe and Japan. On the other hand, we have strong ties with Saudi Arabia, North Yemen and the Vatican.

President Carter's foreign policies are working despite what you might read in the newspapers. Thanks not only to him but to his brother Billy Carter, whom the President relies on to keep up his good ties with the American Jewish community.

To sum up, the United States has never been in a better foreign-policy position and, with the friends we now have strong alliances with, we don't need any enemies.

Soviet Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev is a bad guy because the Soviets seem to be making mischief all over the world. But at the same time we want a SALT treaty with the Russians so we are pretending he is a good guy. Brezhnev may be bad, but the feeling in Washington is that there are people waiting to take his place who could be much worse. Therefore, it's better to talk to Brezhnev than to some of the other hardliners, who are furious because we asked Vice Premier Teng to come to dinner and claim we urged Teng to go into Vietnam, which we vehemently deny, although secretly we're not too unhappy about.

Reforestation for land said phony issue

The Shah of Iran was a good guy up to the bitter end, when he was forced to leave Iran on 24 hours' notice. As a matter of fact, he was the only good guy we would have anything to do with in Iran.

So when he flew the coup we didn't have any alternate good guy to support. At first we decided the good guys were the generals in the Iranian army, who backed the shah and who would probably rule the country when he left.

But the army fell apart and we suddenly had to find a new friend in the Ayatollah Khomeini, who decided to found an Islamic republic, whatever the hell that is. The United States is hoping an Islamic republic is one that will sell oil to the West, in which case Khomeini will be a good guy and be treated with all the reverence and respect we gave to the shah. The one good thing about having Khomeini for a friend is that, for some reason he decides to leave Iran again, he has promised not to visit his sister in Beverly Hills.

The president of Mexico, Jose Lopez Portillo, is a good guy, even though he has publicly scolded our President at a luncheon. The reason he is considered a good guy is that Mexico has large quantities of oil and gas, and when a country has these two things we must swallow our pride and explain to the American people that the president of Mexico was only speaking for domestic consumption,

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — How much of America's burned over or cut over forest land should be reforested? That question is at the heart of the debate set off recently by comments of Rupert Cutler, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture responsible for the U.S. Forest Service.

Cutler said on Feb. 7 that reforestation was a phony issue and that the backlog of lands needing reforestation was more a symbol than a real problem. That statement set off angry response from members of the Northwest contingent in Congress and from people in the region.

"This recent flap over reforestation is a prelude to a longer debate that will likely occur this spring, when the Forest Service issues proposed regulations required by the National Forest Management Act of 1976. Among other matters, the regulations will set Forest Service procedures for identifying lands unsuitable for timber production."

Following publication of the proposed regulations, a 60-day public comment period will ensue.

In discussing reforestation, Cutler and Forest Service officials use two numbers — 14 million acres and 90,000 acres. Of the 14 million acres that could be reforested, they say, it would be economically beneficial to reforest only 940,000 of those acres, meaning that reforesting the remainder would not be cost effective.

Why the gap between what is bare forest land and what will be reforested?

"Analysis of sites and of the cost-benefit effects of reforestation make some areas less and less profitable to reforest," said Cutler in a recent exclusive interview. "As we become more specific and got out on the ground and looked around, we found lands that didn't merit reforestation. It didn't add up to a good investment of funds."

"We've creamed off the easy sites," Cutler added. "Now the terrain is tougher. The only thing that makes this look bad is that we started with a high number. In 1973, when the Renewable Resources Protection Act was being discussed, the Forest Service had a number derived from aerial photos. It referred to a backlog of 5.5 million acres. Later the Forest Service looked and reduced the number to 3.5 million acres. Some areas were wilderness or proposed wilderness, because brush had grown up. Since then, there was quite a bit of reforestation, reducing the number to about 1.4 million acres. Now the backlog is less than 1 million acres — 940,000 acres. Is what the Forest Service has on its books."

"Reforesting this backlog is one of a dozen ways to increase timber production," Cutler continued. "Timber stand improvement, working with private owners who have more fertile lands, working with state foresters, doing cost-sharing with private owners, working with sawmill operators to use smaller trees. We can put money into all of these pockets and affect timber production."

A forestry expert on Capitol Hill suggests that Cutler is adapting the doctrine of "benign neglect" to reforestation. Benign neglect was invented by Daniel Moynihan while he was working for President Richard Nixon. The theory was suggested as a remedy for America's racial problems — neglect them and they will improve.

"Just neglect bare forest land and it will be covered by brush," says the forestry expert. "Then we won't have a reforestation problem."

But unlike some racial issues, the nation's prescription for bare forest land is pretty clearly defined in statute — the National Forest Management Act of 1976.

When proposed regulations under that act are released by the Forest Service this spring, the debate over the nature of the reforestation backlog should begin in earnest.

Anticipating Cutler's regulations, a lumberman says, "If you create the high priority reforestation items — 940,000 acres — that are economically feasible — it does not follow that you should reforest for wildlife or other multiple use categories because they are not economically feasible."

"Cutler is getting into a controversial area that's not been settled," says the lumberman. "The Forest Management Act is clear: 'Thou shalt reforest the lands and reforest to protect other multiple uses.' Is what the law says. It's a form of reclamation act."

The National Forest Management Act reads: "Lands once identified as unsuitable for timber production shall continue to be treated for reforestation purposes, particularly with regard to the protection of other multiple use values. The Secretary (of Agriculture) shall review his decision to classify these lands as not suited for timber production at least every 10 years and shall return these lands to timber production whenever he determines that conditions have changed so that they have become suitable for timber production."

Adds the lumberman, "The fear that Cutler's statement struck in the heart of Northwest lumbermen was that once lands were classified as marginal, they would never come out of that classification. You can argue economics, but that's not the point. Lurking in the background of this debate is the office of Management and Budget, to whom Cutler must address his requests for reforestation money.

"Given Cutler's and (Agriculture Secretary) Bob Bergland's personalities, they would want the whole funding level for reforestation," says the lumberman. "But they have to deal with the Office of Management and Budget and with the public expectation that federal spending must be reduced."

Cutler admits to the OMB factor. "I do have problems with OMB," he says. "This business of taking care of the soil for future generations is hard to sell."

President Carter's proposed budget for fiscal year 1980 includes a 30 percent reduction in funds for the Forest Service to replant and tend timber stands.

Scientist predicts a future population ratio of 90 percent males, 10 percent females

How would you like it, sir, if the human population were 90 percent men and 10 percent women? Neither would I. But a British scientist contends that the future ratio of men to women can be so arranged by the creation of more medication. This, says he, would be called "the elective fertilization pill." If the men were to so far outnumber the women, he reasons, the population count would fall drastically. He believes that "highly desirable" men would be so desirable as the women in that remaining 10 percent, what? If such were to come to pass, says our Love and War man, the women would be extremely busy, happy and powerful beyond belief. For awhile, at any rate. The men would probably wind up killing off one another so rapidly as to bring the population back to fifty-fifty or thereabouts.

A cheap way to save power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency said Wednesday a device the size of a cigarette pack, so simple and cheap a home hobbyist can build one in a few hours for $5, offers a way to save millions of barrels of oil annually by reducing waste in electric motors.

Frank Nola, an engineer from the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., who invented the device, said 10 firms have been licensed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to produce the device commercially.

Individuals can get free plans for building the device — called a "Power Factor Controller" — by writing to the Alabama space center, Nola said during a demonstration of the little controller at NASA headquarters.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Voyager 1, 3.7 million miles from Jupiter, Wednesday radioed back the clearest pictures yet of the great planet and its moons and a scientist said he was "happily bewildered" by the discoveries the spacecraft already has made.

One series of photos taken two days earlier of the big Jovian satellites Callisto and Ganymede revealed a series of bright spots which Dr. Bradford Smith, head of the 22 scientists analyzing Voyager's television pictures, said might be craters penetrating otherwise grayish, dust-covered blankets of ice.

Color views of the great planet itself showed unexpected turmoil in the red, orange and white clouds of Jupiter and Smith said at a news conference that previous ideas about the cloud's formation "all have been shot to hell by Voyager."

Other instruments aboard the big nuclear-powered spacecraft have discovered a glowing cloud of electrically charged particles around the moon Io and previously unknown very low frequency natural radio transmissions from Jupiter.

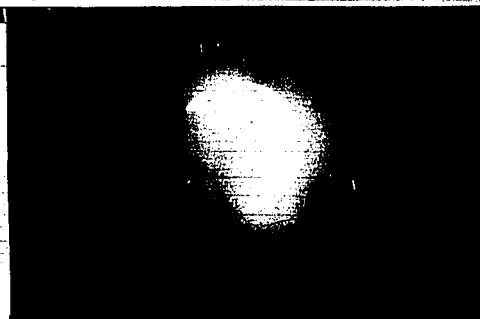

Voyager 1, with its telescope cameras taking pictures every 48 seconds, will pass within 172,750 miles of Jupiter next Monday. It then will swing within 11,800 miles of Io, 63,600 miles of Ganymede, 77,000 miles of Callisto and 455,000 miles of Europa.

The spacecraft Wednesday encountered Jupiter's "bow shock" two days later than expected. The bow shock is the region where Jupiter's immense magnetic field begins to affect the solar wind, a stream of electrically charged particles from the sun, like the bow of a ship deflecting water.

Voyager Wednesday snapped more photos of Ganymede and Callisto in addition to dozens of views of Jupiter.

Paperwork errors may cut benefits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government disclosed Wednesday that about $69 billion in earnings cannot be credited to the proper Social Security accounts because of paperwork errors by workers, their bosses or the self-employed.

An error could mean a possibly significant loss of Social Security benefits for some.

Social Security Commissioner Stanford Ross said his intention in making the disclosure was to "encourage the public to self-police" itself by checking records and making sure workers provide employers with proper information.

"The American public can be confident that we are keeping accurate track of their earnings records," said Ross. "I don't think there's any need to panic."

He said the $69 billion in uncredited earnings have accrued since 1937 and represent "only 0.7 percent of wages for which we have received adequate documentation which we were unable to correct."

"The 'incorrectable' records go into a 'suspense file,' available to any worker who believes his earnings were mistakenly reported. Ross urged any concerned worker to check.

He said it was difficult to determine if the incorrect records are those of dead, retired or current workers.

Since its inception in 1937, Social Security has received $3.7 trillion in individual wages and self-employed income. Most mistakes involved short-term and transient labor, such as restaurant or carwash employees.

Oil companies bid $41 million for offshore Atlantic leases

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's largest oil companies put up winning bids of $41.7 million Wednesday to secure potentially lucrative oil and gas leases in the Atlantic Coast's Baltimore Canyon.

The sale fell short of expectations. The U.S. Interior Department conceded that the discovery of a number of dry wells in the region might have reduced the number of bidders for drilling rights in the trough that stretches from Long Island to North Carolina.

The tracts placed on the block are located from 50 to 83 miles offshore in depths ranging from 177 to 2,461 feet. The tracts sold will bring the Interior Department royalties starting at about 16 percent. High bids amounted to $41,720,616, with the total cash placed on the table amounting to $66,065,831.

Among the dozen companies bidding were Exxon, Houston Oil, Amerada Hess, Texaco, Chevron, Tenneco and Shell.

In all, 74 bids were submitted for 44 blocks of ocean land — less than half of the 109 tracts put up for sale by the department's Outer Continental Shelf office. At an earlier auction in 1976, companies placed high bids totaling more than $1 billion on 101 blocks. Interior estimates the Outer Continental Shelf holds more than 307 million barrels of crude oil and 4.3 trillion cubic feet of natural gas — with a total value of $6.7 billion.

"We expected it would be a smaller sale, and it turned out to be a smaller sale," OCS director Frank Basile said after the auction at Madison Square Garden.

Even with the opening of the bids, the process was not officially over. The Justice Department has 30 days to review bids for antitrust purposes and Interior has another 30 days to compare them with the U.S. Geological Survey's estimate of each tract's value.

Basile, who opened each of the sealed bids before a crowd of about 100 industry executives, said results of drilling in the trough had so far been "inconclusive."

He said nine completed wells have come up dry, while Texaco has made "a significant discovery" of natural gas.

Dividends increased

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade Corp. has increased quarterly dividends on its common stock 37 1/2 cents a share, up from 31 1/4 cents paid previously.

The increase puts the dividend at a yearly rate of $1.50 per share, compared to the previous rate of $1.25.

The firm's board of directors also announced a regular quarterly dividend in line with the new rate, payable April 13 to shareholders of record March 9.

The board also declared a dividend of 75 cents per share on the firm's $3 cumulative convertible preferred stock, series A, payable May 1 to shareholders of record March 9.

"This is the sixth consecutive year in which Boise Cascade has increased the annualized rate of its dividend," said John B. Feiry, chairman and executive officer. "At the same time, the company's performance and our continued confidence in the basic strength of the business... have enabled us to carry on a substantial capital spending program for future improvement and expansion."

He said a $1.1 billion capital outlay begun in 1974 was completed on schedule last year, "and this year we have embarked upon a $2.3 billion program to be completed in 1983."

In addition, Boise Cascade announced its annual shareholders meeting will take place 10 a.m. May 8 at the firm's headquarters in Boise.

State Farm plans return

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UPI) — State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. today announced it will return $55.6 million in dividends to policyholders.

The dividends will be distributed during a six-month period beginning April 15 in 19 states and the District of Columbia, State Farm said. They will be based on a percentage of premium. The percentage varies according to state:

Alabama 0.9 percent; Alaska 21.9 percent; California 1.1 percent; District of Columbia 1.1 percent; Florida 17.1 percent; Kansas 0.6 percent; Louisiana 6.1 percent; Maine 4.1 percent; Michigan 9.4 percent; Mississippi 0.9 percent;

Also, Missouri 0.9 percent; New York 16.7 percent; North Dakota 2.4 percent; Ohio 2.3 percent; Oregon 3.7 percent; Tennessee 3.5 percent; Texas 4.7 percent; Utah 3.1 percent; Virginia 1.6 percent; and Wisconsin 4.5 percent.

The firm reported net underwriting profits of $77.3 million on sales of $4.53 billion.

Mobil puts limit on fuel supplies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Mobil Oil Corp. says the "unrealistic" supply of foreign crude oil has forced them to restrict gas supplies next month.

A spokesman for Mobil said the firm would begin allocating gasoline supplies — for all customers — during March of 100 percent of the volume they purchased in March of last year, but no more.

Maine eases oil shortage

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — A deal with the Pentagon for fuel to lift Maine out of a severe heating oil shortage was set up Tuesday, but energy officials predict the state will face higher fuel costs before the winter ends.

Maine Energy Resources Director John Joseph said he did not want to work outside of "normal industry procedures" in obtaining the 2.3 million gallons of needed fuel, but the nation's major oil dealers were "unable to deliver enough fuel in time."

Utility rate boost sought

SPOKANE (UPI) — The Washington Water Power Co. Wednesday requested permission to charge Washington and Idaho customers an additional $12.4 million annually for gas and electricity.

In Washington, the Spokane-based utility seeks a 13 per cent hike from electricity users and one-half of one per cent from natural gas users.

In Idaho, the WWP says it will seek a 13 per cent rate hike of 12 per cent and a five per cent boost in gas rates.

The WWP also seeks from the Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission and the Idaho regulatory commission permission to pass on to its customers increased costs totaling $3.1 million to pay for additional gas already purchased to handle consumer needs during this winter's two-month cold snap.

Creditors' meeting slated

TWIN FALLS — The first meeting of creditors in the bankruptcy case of Arthur David Pruntz of Twin Falls, doing business as Dave's Music Co., has been set for March 13 at 10 a.m.

The meeting has been set by the Idaho Bankruptcy Court, M. S. Young, judge. Claims against the bankrupt firm may be mailed to Young, P.O. Box 1278, Boise, 83707.

Roland O. Severson, Route 3, Jerome, will be appointed trustee in the event a trustee is not elected by creditors at the initial meeting.

The court has set May 14 as the last day for filing objections to the discharge of the bankrupt and as the last day for complaints to determine the dischargeability of any debt under the state bankruptcy act.

Creditors may file their claims at the March 13 meeting, elect a trustee, elect a committee of creditors, examine the bankrupt as permitted by the court and transact other business which may be brought before the meeting.

Chavez proposes banana boycott

CALEXICO, Mexico (UPI) — Union leader Cesar Chavez Tuesday called for a nationwide boycott of Chiquita brand bananas in an effort to pressure the parent company into settling the lettuce strike in the Imperial Valley.

The parent company, United Brands, owns Sun-Harvest Inc., one of 10 lettuce growers struck by the United Farm Workers of America.

Chavez, speaking to reporters after addressing a rally of about 1,000 persons, said he picked Chiquita as the target because Sun-Harvest had failed to bargain meaningfully and had mounted a "scab recruitment program."

A spokesman for Sun-Harvest said the firm did not think a boycott of Chiquita bananas would be effective.

"You need machinery in cities all across the country to do that," he said. "We don't think Cesar has that machinery anymore."

Several years ago, the UFW spearheaded a nationwide boycott of lettuce.

Land Use Act narrowly survives repeal try

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — A reference to Brigham Young as a master land use planner may have saved the day Wednesday for Idaho's land use planning law. The law barely survived a frontal attack and by a 2-vote margin was left on the books.

The reference to Brigham Young came in the midst of heated arguments as the House of Representatives debated House Bill 100. Falling on a 34-36 vote, the bill would have repealed Idaho's Local Planning Act of 1975, which requires local governments to adopt land use plans.

"We need good land use planning," argued Rep. Roger Guernsey, D-Boise, adding that property owners weren't the only persons who should have a say in drafting land use plans. "There are tens of thousands of other people who have a legitimate stake in land use planning," he said. Attempting to exclude those persons from the planning process through passage of HB 100 is undemocratic, he said.

"Brigham Young was a master planner," Guernsey said, referring to the Mormon leader's careful 19th century land use planning of Salt Lake City. Young would be "appalled" at this attempt to gut Idaho's local planning act, Guernsey added, because such a move was "a disregard of majority rights."

Debate lasted more than an hour, with legislators — mostly Republicans — arguing that their county's local plan was "more of a disaster" than any other county.

Rep. Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, sponsor of HB 100, reminded legislators of a fallative petition drive by the Idaho Property Owners Association to repeal the land-use planning law. He said the 1978 drive was unsuccessful but only because property owners put most of their efforts into passage of the 1 percent initiative. But before the land use petition drive was abandoned, Winchester said, "Over 17,000 signatures were gathered to put a repeal measure on the ballot."

Winchester urged repeal of the 1975 law, insisting the measure presents property owners from controlling their property. Under the law, "a private property owner does not have possession of his property because he does not have control."

Support for repeal also came from Rep. Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls, who read legislators a letter from the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Administration. In that letter board Chairman C.M. Leasing said the commission supports repeal of the 1975 Local-Planning Act "not in the spirit of rejecting comprehensive plans, land use plans or zoning, but with the thought that active commissions are capable and willing to accomplish such considerations at the local level."

But criticism of the HB 100 repeal attempts came from House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello. Many of the problems land owners now have with government officials will continue to exist with or without land use planning, McDermott said, adding, "you simply cannot legislate common sense."

Some provisions of HB 100, McDermott added, would be more restrictive of local governments' actions than the existing land use planning law.

Of the 12 Magic Valley representatives, all Republicans, eight supported repeal. Four voted against HB 100, and in favor of retaining the act.

Voting for HB 100 were Reps. Roy Brackett of Twin Falls, John Brooks of Gooding, Vard Chaburn of Albion, Ernest Hale of Burley, Gordon Hofffield of Jerome, Larry Knigge of Filer, Tom Silvers of Twin Falls and Ralph Olmstead of Twin Falls.

Voting against HB 100 were Reps. Steve Antone of Rupert, Dan Kelly of Mountain Home, Virgil Kraus of Mountain Home and Mack Neibour of Paul.

Gem State will fly to Hailey

HAILEY — New daily air service for Blaine county residents and Sun Valley guests is expected to begin in April, Gem State Airlines officials announced Wednesday.

Justin Coll, chairman of Gem State Airlines board of directors, and Tom D. Soumas, Jr., president of the firm, said the exact starting date for service depends on how soon a newly acquired Metroliner prop-jet can be readied for use.

"We have been making plans for Sun Valley service for the last several months. However, we could not release our plans until we secured another aircraft, which we did (Feb. 21). We expect to have the aircraft available for service by the end of March and we hope to be able to release a schedule by March 15," Soumas said.

Soumas said the initial service will be to Boise and Salt Lake City, which provide good gateways to and from Sun Valley. He said his firm has contacted Key-Airlines and that concern will be willing to provide ground handling services wherever necessary.

Key Airlines, which now provides daily service between the Hailey airport and Boise and Salt Lake City, has announced plans to discontinue the daily flights during four months per year due to lack of use in slack seasons at Sun Valley resort.

Gem State, headquartered in Coeur d'Alene, began its first flights last year between cities in north Idaho and Boise and recently expanded service to Twin Falls, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

Phillip J. Guldice, vice president in charge of sales and marketing, said the airline's target is to provide enough round trip flights each day to adequately serve any city on the system, "and this is what we will aim for in the Sun Valley market."

"The advantages of a pressurized aircraft is that we can schedule for where and when the passenger wants to travel, not where the aircraft is limited to go," he added.

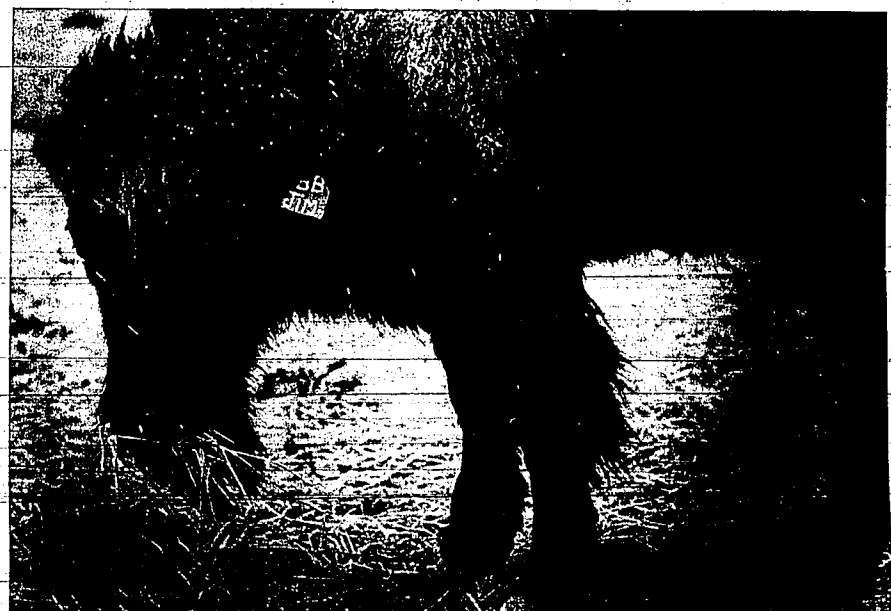

Gem State Airlines is based in Coeur d'Alene and operates three 18-passenger Swearingen Metroliners throughout the state of Idaho. Plans are to add two additional Metroliners to the fleet by September, bringing to six the planes in service from Idaho areas to connection points with major airlines.

Key Airlines will discontinue service to the Sun Valley area from April 9 of this year to June 1, and again from Oct. 1 to Dec. 15.

Key, based in Salt Lake City has been providing the only daily service in and out of Hailey although Mountain West Airlines out of Boise has also offered to make daily flights to Sun Valley for connection with Boise, Reno, Nev., Salt Lake City and other major Idaho cities.

Key Airlines flies five 44-passenger Convalls in its fleet. Airline officials say they have never been able to show a profit on the Sun Valley flights during slack season with the big planes.

Soumas said Gem is looking forward to serving the Wood River Valley area and will continue to increase service in Idaho.

Jim Miller's buffalo doesn't have to worry; beef is on the convention menu

Buffalo raising fans to gather

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — They may spend their days publishing newspapers and serving in the state legislature, but when they come to Twin Falls, they will be "strictly buffalo."

So says National Buffalo Association secretary-treasurer Judi Hebringer, who is organizing the NBA's annual winter convention in Twin Falls Friday and Saturday. The convention will attract a sampling of the eclectic crowd of people who raise buffalo in America.

"Buffalo producers range all the way from the 'down home' farmer to high falutin' businessmen who's in it for a tax shelter, to the huge packing operation," Hebringer said. Whether they run two head on a quarter of an acre of land, or keep a herd of 3,000, at the convention all will have the same buffalo thoughts on their minds, she said.

Among those who will be on hand for this year's convention will be St. Louis publisher and broadcaster Gerald Sheppard, Roy Houk (who boasts the country's largest herd), a former South Dakota lieutenant governor, a Montana state legislator and a Pennsylvania parking meter manufacturer. Other buffalo ranchers from Idaho, California, Illinois, Iowa, New Mexico, New York, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Montana, Missouri, and Virginia will attend the two-day meeting.

Beef, rather than buffalo, is on the menu, and scheduled entertainment includes subdued cocktail hours and music. But the thrust of the convention will be discussions of business and organizational matters.

Two prime topics will be the problem of substandard buffalo meat imports and a proposed state-by-state buffalo census.

The NBA is a nationwide organization of buffalo producers, founded in 1966 and dedicated to insuring the propagation of the American buffalo and promoting its products.

One highlight on the events will be a tour of the buffalo ranch of Joe Miller, Twin Falls County's only buffalo producer, and the man responsible for bringing the NBA convention to town.

Also scheduled is a slideshow of a herd at the Custer State Park in South Dakota and a talk on buffalo health care by Twin Falls veterinarian Charles Lenkner.

subdivision and other property owners in the vicinity of the College of Southern Idaho voiced opposition to a requested zone change which would have permitted building of five eight-plex rental units.

The three-acre project, a planned unit development, was proposed as a federally subsidized rental facility for qualified families and individuals.

Engineer Allen Debo of J-U-B Engineers in Twin Falls presented the proposal.

His firm had originally tabled a decision after the public hearing Tuesday night, but zoning board members decided to go ahead with action since the crowd of residents were present.

Many residents expressed the fear such a project would detract from their residential property and result in lowering of property values.

The board voted to recommend to the city council that the present R-2 and R-4 which permits duplex and

TWIN FALLS — A proposed 80-acre motel, shopping center and housing complex on U.S. Highway 93 and Pole Line Road gained the support of city planners Tuesday night.

In other action, the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission voted against a housing development on Falls Avenue.

In a standing-room-only meeting, residents of the College Meadow four-plex rentals be retained and the request for R-6 be denied.

The proposed shopping-motel-housing complex on U.S. 93 at the north entrance of the city will be sent to the city council with a recommendation for annexation as a C-1 zone on 70 acres of the 90-acre site and an R-4 on the remainder to allow for a shopping center, motel and residential medium density planned-unit development.

David Armstrong, designer, presented the proposal and no protests were lodged.

Diane Ronayne, a commission member, recommended the city Planning and Zoning Commission go on record and advise legislators of their stand against repealing the 1975 Land Use Act. Members approved her recommendation and agreed to ask the board secretary, LaMar Orton, city development director, to write the legislators.

Also, board members expressed a hope a county comprehensive plan can be adopted to give some guidance to city growth into rural areas and development adjacent to city boundaries for the overall benefit of city and farm residents.

It was announced a work session of the Planning and Zoning Commission will be held Thursday noon with the planning consultant of CH2M Hill Engineers to review the city's comprehensive plan which is now in initial draft stages.

Chapman plans to take the compromise today to the Senate Health, Education, and Welfare Committee, where it was opposed by state officials in its original form.

The final IWUA measure will relax oxygen level requirements on streams just beneath hydroelectric dams. It calls for water quality monitoring to use averages, rather than one-time measurements, to take measurements some distance downstream from dams.

The IWUA feels it is difficult to meet oxygen requirements below dams, which prevent oxidation of water. The American Falls Dam was cited last summer by the Health and Welfare Department for failing to meet the standards.

The original IWUA bill exempted dams from oxygen standards entirely, but officials said this would threaten fish populations. The compromise would allow oxygen levels below dams to drop to 5 milligrams per liter, rather than the 6 milligram level other stream waters must meet. The special standard would only apply between June and mid-October.

The proposed changes would require oxygen to be measured every 15 minutes and averaged over an hour. In place of the present system of taking instantaneous measurements, instead of sampling the water immediately below dams, health officials would take the samples at a distance downstream. Health officials would assign each dam in Idaho a distance, based on factors such as stream depth and width.

Sun-Valley to appeal Resort ordered to disclose

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON — The Skiflation Committee won the first round of a Freedom of Information Act battle against the Sun Valley Co. this week when the acting chief of the U.S. Forest Service told his agency to release resort financial information.

Sun Valley Co. executive officials, however, have vowed to continue fighting the release of financial records and they said they will take the matter back to federal court.

The Ketchum-based Skiflation Committee, which organized in May 1978 to fight Sun Valley lift rate increases, had requested the Forest Service disclose financial records relating to the resort's ski operations.

On Monday acting Forest Service Chief Thomas C. Nelson affirmed his agency's decision of Nov. 20, 1978, to release the information, which was in file with the Forest Service. Sun Valley had appealed the decision.

"This kicks it back into federal court," Skiflation member Steve Crabtree noted Wednesday. "But we won round one. We're delighted."

Crabtree said, "It's not a complete victory until we get the financials. That's the bottom line on this controversy. We feel that now, since we've won with the Forest Service, we will have a better chance of winning in federal court."

Sun Valley Co. General Manager Wally Huffman issued a one sentence release after the Forest Service decision, saying, "Sun Valley Co. will exhaust all judicial remedies available to us to prevent the information from being released."

Crabtree and other Skiflation members insist the information is important to help the public determine whether Sun Valley's lift rate increases are justified in view of the company's rate of financial return.

Sun Valley raised the price of its daily lift passes from $13 in 1978 to $15 this season and raised most other lift rates.

BOISE — The Idaho Water Users Association has reached a compromise with state health and fish and game officials, who opposed changes in water quality standards the association had sought.

IWUA Director Sheri Chapman said he has ironed out disagreements between his group and environmental officials from the departments of Health and Welfare and Fish and Game over proposed changes in water quality standards below Idaho dams.

"The Fish and Game Department told me they will support the measure, and Health and Welfare indicated they won't actively support it—but they won't oppose it," Chapman said Wednesday.

Chapman plans to take the compromise today to the Senate Health, Education, and Welfare Committee, where it was opposed by state officials in its original form.

Tax relief plan OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — A compromise proposal, apparently recalling 11 mills of school district levies and two more if money is available was approved today during a tax subcommittee meeting.

The idea will be written into bill form and presented for introduction by the House-Senate subcommittee, formed to handle the 1 percent tax limitation and related matters.

Sentencing legislation hits floor

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to require mandatory minimum sentences for repeated violent crimes has survived amendment and should come up for floor consideration in the House about Friday.

Rep. Percival Wesche, R-Nampa, tried and failed Tuesday afternoon to revise the bill to make it more restrictive and also to get felons who commit violent crimes right after they get out of prison.

Attorney General David H. Leroy and Cy Rood, Emmett, representing Idaho prosecuting attorneys, successfully urged the House Judiciary Committee to send it to the floor as is with approval.

Attorney William Tway of Boise, representing an Idaho State Bar Committee that has studied the bill the past month, said it considers the measure constitutionally defective.

Tway urged the Legislature to wait a year and let the committee write a bill that will stand the test of the courts. Committee Chairman T.W. Slivers, R-Twin Falls, chastised the bar committee for waiting so long to come before the Legislature on the question this year.

"Mr. Tway, your willingness to cooperate warms the cockles of my heart," Slivers said. "I'm getting sick and tired of attorneys coming in here and telling me how sympathetic they are."

Slivers said if the bar were so concerned about proper drafting of legislation it should have jumped onto the problem sooner and presented a measure for consideration at this session of the Legislature.

"It's my personal opinion it will be knocked over the first time it's challenged," Tway replied. "I personally don't care whether you pass it or you don't pass it."

In its present form the bill requires a mandatory minimum sentence of five years if a person is convicted of a new felony within 10 years of a prior one and uses a deadly weapon. "It is designed to implement a constitutional amendment on minimum sentencing approved by the voters last fall."

Times-News office opens

JEROME — The new Jerome office of the Times-News will hold its grand opening next week.

The public is invited to visit the office between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Visitors may register for cash prizes to be awarded in a drawing.

An open house for some 150 public officials from the northern Magic Valley counties will take place from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Crystal Mall office, the old Safeway store located at 140 N. Adams. Merchants from those counties attended a similar letter Wednesday.

Times-News Publisher William Howard opened the office in early February as part of the newspaper's drive to increase circulation and coverage in Jerome, Blaine, Camas, Gooding and Lincoln counties and to provide better advertising services to merchants.

Beginning Sunday, a special twice-weekly North Valley section of the Times-News will be added to the newspapers going to those counties taking place on the North Side. The North Valley section will appear in each Sunday and Wednesday edition of the Times-News.

ADVERTISEMENT Hearing Tests Set For Senior Citizens

TWIN FALLS — Electronic hearing tests will be given at the Bellone Hearing Aid Service office on Thursday and Friday March 1 & 2, 9:30 A.M. to 4:00 P.M.

Factory-trained Hearing Aid Specialists will be at our office at 428 Main Ave. North, Twin Falls to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding is welcome to have a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine if his loss is one which can be helped. Some of the causes of hearing loss will be explained, and diagrams of how the ear works will be shown.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test and find out whether the latest methods of hearing correction can help them hear better.

The free hearing tests will be given Thursday and Friday March 1 & 2 at 428 Main Ave. No. across from Sears, Twin Falls. If you can't get there on Monday or Tuesday, call 733-0916 and arrange for an appointment at another time. In-home testing is also available.

Ingalls retires after 31 years with Magic Valley health district

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — James R. Ingalls, who has served as environmentalist, acting director and deputy director of the South Central Health District in Magic Valley during the past 31 years, has announced he will retire in April.

Ingalls said he began working for the Health District in 1948 as one of two environmentalists who were kept busy inspecting the district's 320 Grade A dairies, the restaurants and sewage projects.

"At that time there were two field environmentalists in the whole district, but there were only about 19 food establishments in Twin Falls and a population of about 10,000 people," Ingalls said.

He said the district, because of growth of Twin Falls and other cities in the district and numerous additional governmental regulations, now has eight environmentalists working full time.

He said development of housing in rural areas has increased septic tank requests, and food establishments in Twin Falls have more than quadrupled.

Ingalls submitted his resignation during the Feb. 14 meeting of the Break-in causes Tunex damage

TWIN FALLS — A break-in at the Tunex automobile service facility on Blue Lakes Boulevard North failed to benefit the burglars, but it cost the business about $100 in damages.

This is the second break-in for the firm in the past week.

Officials told police someone pried open the rear door of the business sometime prior to 8:56 a.m. Monday, damaging the rear door by about $50 and a desk inside the office area by about the same amount. Nothing was taken, company employees reported.

On Wednesday of last week the service center area was broken into and $100 in cash taken. Another $15 in damage was reported at that time, city police said.

district health board, saying he plans to terminate his work as district deputy director April 28.

In 1963 Ingalls became supervising environmentalist for the district, and held that position until the death of Dr. Luther Thompson, district medical director. He then became acting director for several years until the present medical director, Dr. Wayne Carte, was hired in 1971.

Ingalls has since assisted Dr. Carte as deputy director, assisting with budgeting and other non-medical duties.

Ingalls, who came to Idaho from California, where he had worked as an agricultural chemist, high school agricultural teacher and during World War II, a tool designer, says he plans to continue living in Twin Falls and will "do the usual things Idaho residents do in their leisure time."

Ingalls said he has no unique hobbies, but enjoys outdoor activities as do most residents of Magic Valley.

Bucky Dent: Baseball's newest teenage idol

By FRED MCMAINE
UPI Sports Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — They were lined up three rows deep along the dugout of the New York Yankees trying to get the attention of their hero. They were teen-age girls mostly and their piercing shrieks were reminiscent of those usually saved for rock singers or movie stars.

A similar scene had been enacted a year ago in the very same place only this time the cries weren't for Reggie Jackson. Oh, sure, Reggie still commanded a large audience and he would spend his first day of spring training signing autographs for nearly half an hour after practice.

But the guy the girls were screaming for was a bow-legged shortstop with a lifetime batting average of .255 and 23 lifetime home runs.

"Buckeeeee, Buckeeeee, Buckeeeee," they screamed in unison, and each time they did a smile would come to Bucky Dent's face.

"Make no mistake about it, Bucky Dent is baseball's newest sex symbol.

It has all come about through some clever promotion work by the William Morris Agency—which paralyzed his role as the hero of last year's World Series into a bonanza that has already netted the Yankee shortstop $200,000 in extra income.

Using Dent's natural good looks to advantage, the agency promised him to hit this winter and the experience has been nothing less than a magnificent roller-coaster ride.

"It's been a dream," Dent said recently while taking a break from signing autographs for his legion of fans. "I've been very fortunate to do a lot of the things I've done this winter, but I only did the things I wanted to do. I did things I felt were important to me."

Dent also realizes that what happened to him could never have materialized if he were playing for a world championship team in, say, Chicago or even Los Angeles.

"It couldn't happen in any other city, I don't believe," said Dent. "New York is New York. It's a great town to play in for an athlete. If you're a winner, the people love you. I'd like to play there for the rest of my career, but I don't know what's going to happen after this year. I have one more year to go on my contract and I'm going to go out and play my best."

Being a public hero can have its drawbacks as Reggie Jackson has found out. It can make terrible demands on your time and do strange things to your psyche. Dent, however, doesn't plan to let anything interfere with his first love — baseball.

"I've got to put everything else aside," he says. "Baseball is number one with me. Everything that happened to me in the winter is over and I'm just looking forward to working in spring training and getting myself ready to make this team."

Dent is so eager to get back to baseball that he reported to camp about a week earlier than expected. Part of the reason was to work on a conditioning program to strengthen his legs. A serious hamstring injury last season forced Dent to miss 39 games, far more than he had ever missed before in a season.

"I'd never missed more than five games in a season before," said Dent, who is probably the most durable of big league shortstops. "I came down early this year and worked on my legs, trying to strengthen them so I wouldn't have that problem and now they're 100 percent and I'm ready to go."

One more game

Bulldogs trip Filer Wildcats

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

WENDELL — It's overtime in the fourth district A-3 basketball tournament.

The Kimberly Bulldogs saw to that Wednesday night when John Meyer and Mark McKinlay drilled five straight free throws in the last 26 seconds to put down previously undefeated Filer 43-38.

The teams rematch at 8 p.m. today and the tournament has to end. The champion will advance to the state tournament in Bonneville High School at Idaho Falls next Thursday while the runner-up goes to a playoff against the fifth district champion Saturday night for the eighth state spot. That continues to appear to be defending state champion Westside, which knocked off Malad to remain undefeated in the fifth district tournament.

Kimberly Coach Rich Thompson, asked what he felt won the game, suggested "I guess it was our red hot shooting" and then laughed.

The one thing the game wasn't marked with was hot shooting.

It marked Kimberly's first win over Filer in four tries during the season and tournament but Coach Thompson wasn't about to give up on his charges to make it back tonight.

"I don't know if that will make a lot of difference," he said of the fact it will be three straight nights for Kimberly against two for Filer. "I didn't feel we played with a lot of emotion tonight and that's what drains a team."

"I guess it's just like my wife says — these kids have to do everything the hard way. She feels that we'll come through the back door and knowing that these kids have done it the hard way, she says — be right," Coach Thompson said.

For a brief instance, it appeared that this would be a scoring game, one of the few the tournament has had.

Mark McKinlay, better known for his defense, opened with three straight long shots and John Coats added another field goal to shove Kimberly ahead 9-3. Late in the period Steve Askew and Dave Hanchey gunned the Bulldogs into a 15-5 lead, but that was the high water mark.

Tony Smith caught fire briefly in the second quarter for the Wildcats, throwing in seven points and Filer cut its deficit to 18-16 with 3:59 before halftime. Hanchey replied with two Bulldog buckets and Kevin Osborne picked up two more on a goal tending call to again make it either. But in the final minute Mark Farmer pulled Filer to within four.

Jay Decker opened the second half with four Filer points but Hanchey and Askew got Kimberly going again. It was a dull third period, Filer getting eight and Kimberly only six.

In the fourth period Kimberly held leads of one and three points until Osborne's three-point play made it 38-34. Filer's Richmond brought Filer back to within two at 1:38 — eg., scoring — Jullied when Kimberly missed five straight free throws but Filer responded with five turnovers to keep things even.

Then with 26 seconds left McKinlay led things with two charlies. Meyer followed with four straight and Filer then got the last bucket from Eric Williams.

Filer's Jay Decker got out of this predicament, but his team lost the contest

Raft River finally beats Hagerman

By RANDY FREY
Times-News writer

JEROME — It's hard to say which team has the edge when two relatively even squads meet for the fourth time and one of the teams has won all three previous contests.

The obvious choice would be Hagerman, the team which has beaten Raft River three times, including a 70-58 romp over the Trojans in a previous tournament game.

But others would say the odds would be with Raft River. After all, if one plays away long enough, success will come sooner or later.

Those who took the second choice were right on target, Raft River finally turning the trick with a 51-50 victory Wednesday night which advanced the Trojans to the finals of the A-4, District 4 boys basketball tournament.

After losing to Hagerman three times, one might think coach Oland Wallace would come up with a new game plan, but the coach had other ideas.

"It's too late in the season to start changing things," he said. "We'll just do what we have been doing all year and hope it works."

What Raft River does best is run with the ball, and the Trojans came out running faster than ever although they trouble putting the ball in the hoop.

So did Hagerman for that matter, the Pirates only managing an 8-5 lead after the opening quarter, the final two points coming at the buzzer when Mark Owsley picked up an errant inbound pass, whirled to the hoop and lofted home a 25-footer from the corner.

Raft River tied the game early in the second period when Perry Tracy put in a fast break lay-in. Minutes later Scott Bradshaw hit a baseline jumper and teammate Boyd Richins stole the ball as Hagerman came down court, lofted a long pass which Bradshaw took in stride and layed-in for two more. The Trojans led 14-8.

With three minutes to go in the half, Hagerman center and top scorer Brad Gough fouled out. The rest of the period was all Raft River.

Sophomore Jon Wilson went to work, hitting two free throws, grabbing an offensive rebound and following it home, hitting a jumper off a fast break and canning two more free throws as Raft River surged ahead 25-17.

Without Gough in the lineup, Hagerman was definitely weak. Wallace, however, would not try to foul out the big center in the second half.

"We'll just keep doing what we've been doing," Wallace said again. "Whatever happens to Brad he'll do to himself."

"You lose too much when you concentrate on trying to foul one guy out," Wallace said.

Instead, the Trojans concentrated on running the four-corners offense once they built up a 12-point lead in the second half. But the game did not end without its exciting moments.

Trailing by 10 points entering the final period, Hagerman began to chip away, scoring five straight points in the final minute to close the gap to 50-48.

Tracy went to the foul stripe with 16 seconds showing on the clock and hit the first of two to give the Trojans a three-point edge. In the end it was good he had made that free throw, Coy Pepper scoring at the buzzer to make the final 51-50.

Owsley led all scorers with 25 points to pace the Hagerman attack. Lloyd Richins had 14 for Raft River and Wilson 12.

Raft River will now play Murtough tonight in the tournament finals. Should the Trojans win, another game will be necessary Friday. Should Murtough win, the Red Devils will represent District 4 in the state tournament next week at the College of Southern Idaho.

Tournaments

Four teams to battle in Big Sky conference tourney

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Northern Arizona basketball coach Jodie Gardner says he believes all four teams in the Big Sky Conference tournament have a chance to capture the league title.

Top-ranked Weber State, the defending champion, hosts Idaho State, Montana and NAU Friday and Saturday at Ogden.

"I feel the fans are going to see three outstanding tournament games and all four participants have a shot at winning it," Gardner said, adding that he was confident about NAU's chances.

In the three previous Big Sky tournaments, the host team has won the title just once. That was in 1977 when Idaho State beat Weber State 61-56 in the finals and went on to upset UCLA 76-75 in the Western regionals.

Last year, Weber State beat Montana 62-55 in overtime but then lost a first-round NCAA playoff contest to Arkansas 75-52.

NAU, which finished the season 8-6 in league play and 15-13 overall, was paced by senior guard Troy Hudson, who ranks among the Big Sky leaders in scoring, field goals and free throw shooting. He averaged 15.4 points per game on the season and was second in free shooting with 84.5 per cent.

"Our team is certainly looking forward to playing in this tournament," Gardner said. "We're loose and no one is up tight. Troy (Hudson) perhaps summed it up best when he told the team 'Hey, guys, we're just two games away from playing in the NCAA playoffs.'"

Weber State, 22-8 overall and the regular season league champion at 10-4, hosts Montana, 14-12 overall and 7-7 in the league, in the first game Friday night. Then NAU will meet Idaho State, 14-12 on the season and 8-6 in the league.

Semi-final winners meet Saturday night and the team that wins the championship game will advance to the first round of the NCAA regional playoffs.

Texas Longhorns gets favorite's nod in SWC battle

HOUSTON (UPI) — The four coaches whose teams will meet in the Southwest Conference post-season tournament tonight all picked the Texas Longhorns to win the event.

But they all say it's best not to depend on their prediction.

"All six teams in the tournament have won at least 15 games," said Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers. "That's never happened before. And I don't think there's any doubt that any one of these teams could win this thing."

Texas Tech (18-9) will start the tournament Thursday night at the Summit by meeting Texas A&M (22-7), a team that early in the season seemed destined to win the regular season title only to finish third.

That game will be followed by a meeting between the Baylor Bears (16-11) and the upstart Houston Cougars (15-14).

Baylor defeated Houston in two regular season games while Tech and A&M split their battles. The Baylor-Houston winner faces 14th-ranked Texas in the semifinals Friday night and the

A&M-Tech survivor will meet No. 9 Arkansas in the other semifinal battle.

Houston is the team that was not supposed to be playing at this stage of the season.

But the young Cougars gained poise during the latter half of the season, badly defeated Tech in their last regular season home game and then whipped SMU in the tournament's first round last Saturday.

Duke, North Carolina State head ACC action tonight

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Sixth-ranked Duke and seventh-ranked North Carolina head into the Atlantic Coast Conference Basketball Tournament today as undisputed co-favorites but for different reasons.

On their way to identical 9-3 conference records and 20-game winning seasons, the Blue Devils and the Tar Heels have shown strengths in separate areas and have been characterized by different styles of play.

A major factor in Duke's success has been 6-11 center Mike Gminski, generally considered the best big man in the country. He leads the team in scoring and rebounding with 19.1 points per game and 9.1 rebounds.

Conversely, the Tar Heels prefer to alternate playing time between centers Jeff Wolf, who only averages 3.3 points per contest, and Rich Yanokor, who averages 6.9 points.

The Tar Heels big threat comes from forwards Al Wood, team leader with a 17.9-point average, and Mike O'Koren, who averages 14.8 points per game and leads in rebounding.

While both teams use multiple defenses, Duke's reputation is built around a tough zone, while North Carolina's swarming man-to-man defense is feared around the league.

Most observers concede Duke has the best overall talent in the conference. But North Carolina is given an edge in coaching where the Dean Smith system is viewed as instrumental in the North Carolina success story which reads as 13 straight seasons finishing no lower than second in the conference.

Further more, the Tar Heels will enter the tournament with its fourth straight first-round bye as the result of a draw, while Duke must win two straight to make it to the finals.

The tournament begins at 1 p.m. EST with second-seeded Duke meeting seventh-seeded Wake Forest. The 3 p.m. contest has sixth-seeded North Carolina State taking on third-seeded Virginia, while fourth-seeded Maryland and fifth-seeded Clemson meet at 6 p.m.

Trevino says cast will cure current Palmer putting woes

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — How do you tell Arnold Palmer what's wrong with his putting? Lee Trevino is not the only PGA player worried that Palmer won't make the cut in his own tournament, the $250,000 Citrus Classic that starts Thursday. Trevino says a wrist cast would fix the poor putting that has kept Palmer from making the cut in all of this year's tournaments.

"That's what Arnie needs," Trevino said. "But I can't go up to him and say, 'Hey, Arnie, you need a cast on your wrist.'"

Palmer's swing is still strong as ever from tee to green. He's breaking his wrists too much on putts, Trevino said, noting he had trouble putting once in Dublin, Ireland.

"My wife said when she got me home she was going to break my wrist and put it in a cast so I'd keep it stiff when I was putting," he said.

Trevino, who won the Orlando tournament in 1975 when it was known as the Citrus Open, swears he solved his problem by having a cast made for his wrist, then getting a plastic mold made.

"Then you pull a glove over it and practice on the putting green," he said. "When you pull it off, you're still keeping your wrist straight when you pull. I tried to patent it."

Palmer smiled when someone other than Trevino told him the talkative Mexican's suggestion.

"What he's saying is true about my swing," said Palmer, 49, who has won 79 titles and $2 million since 1955. "I've built up my grip some and changed putters. Of course, I've changed putters before, but hopefully it will work this time."

If it doesn't, Palmer will turn sportscaster and help describe the action for a national television audience.

He said he was pleased that 48 of the top 60 money winners on last year's tour will be among the Citrus Classic field of 144 golfers.

Chicago denies reports Sloan to be next coach

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls Wednesday denied a published report indicating they had offered a two-year coaching contract to former player Jerry Sloan.

General Manager Rod Thorn and Managing General Partner Jon Kovler said no contract offer has been made to Sloan or any other candidate. But they confirmed they talked to the ex-Bulls' guard "recently" about succeeding Larry Costello.

Thorn said Sloan is one of several candidates he has discussed the coaching job with since Costello's dismissal Feb. 9.

"But to say we have offered him a contract is absolutely wrong," Thorn said. "Jerry is one of several people I have talked with."

Thorn said he has meetings and interviews scheduled with several candidates the next two to three weeks. He re-emphasized the Bulls were in no hurry to name a successor to Costello and have no deadline set for naming a new coach.

The Bulls, in last place in the NBA's Midwest Division, are being led by Scotty Robertson, who was demoted from an assistant coach's status to an interim post the day Costello was fired. Thorn said he has not talked with or has any scheduled interview with Robertson about staying on as permanent coach.

Kovler, who labeled the Sloan report by Arlington Heights (Ill.) Herald as "totally wrong," said Thorn has handled the interviews but no decision has been made.

"Rod is doing the interviewing and we're not done yet," Kovler said. "I know definitely there are other interviews that will be held before we make a selection about a new coach."

Thorn said interest in the Chicago job has been "extremely active."

Top NASCAR drivers qualify for Carolina 500

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (UPI) — The top drivers on the NASCAR Grand National circuit open racing activities in the Carolinas today with qualifying for Sunday's Carolina 500.

While most of the attention will be focused on taking a top starting spot for the $154,000 race, the main topic of conversation will likely be the dramatic finish in the Daytona 500 that gave Richard Petty a victory and Jeff Cale Yarborough fighting it out with Bobby and Donnie Allison.

The first 35 positions in the 36-car field will be filled Thursday with the other slots up for grabs Friday and Saturday at the North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Nell Bonnett, who won the pole position last March with a record speed of 141.940 mph, left the Jim Stacy racing team last week but quickly picked up a ride in a Hoss Ellington-prepared Oldsmobile and will be out to make it two in a row.

Yarborough, who wrapped up his third consecutive driving championship at the track last fall, should also be a top contender for the pole position. He bested Bonnett's speed last fall with a track record of 142.067 mph and won the American 500.

Petty, who has won nine races at the one-mile track, should also be a contender for the pole position along with David Pearson, Daytona 500 pole winner "Buddy" Baker, this year's points leader Darrell Waltrip, and the Allison.

He's played dances for 60 years

Floyd White loves to beat time

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Floyd White plays drums so other people can dance. And he's been playing for 60 years.

The retired Twin Falls pharmacist sees no reason to quit just because he's 75.

White's first beat his snare drums with groups playing at high school and college dances. His listeners now include such groups as the Swingin' Sixties and the Twin Falls Senior Citizens.

"Floyd's Four Aces," the four-man orchestra he now heads, does not pull down the big money commanded by prestigious rock bands, but that does not bother White.

"They can go their way and we'll go ours," he said. White and his fellow musicians play country western (but not hillbilly) music as well as all the "old standard numbers."

The most he's ever earned playing for a dance is $50 and much of the time over the years it was much less. White is reluctant to talk about it, but frequently his group donates its musical services for community functions ranging from the Rubel and Burley county fairs to the annual Senior Citizen talent show.

The Aces currently have a permanent job playing for two dance groups in Twin Falls. White likes to help out such groups as the Singleites whose members "need to get some recreation just like everyone else."

White, who was born near Bozeman, Mont., on July 7, 1909, started playing drums in junior high school. He received his first snare drum when he was in the eighth grade and soon began playing with the city band in Meridian where his family then lived.

White and two uncles joined a dance band during his high school sophomore year. He formed his own group by the time he graduated from high school in 1924.

After high school, White worked for two years in a drug store to save enough money to enter the former Idaho Technical Institute at Pocatello, now Idaho State University.

Although he worked constantly to pay his college expenses, White soon organized a seven-piece group which played on truck beds during pep rallies. While he was there the school's name was changed to the University of Idaho Southern Branch, and White is a charter member of the first pep band.

In 1929 he passed the state board pharmacy exam and married the former Rachel Jones of Jerome, whom he had met at college.

By that time the Pocatello school had gone to a degree program in his school of pharmacy so White took the necessary academic courses at the College of Idaho in Caldwell while working at a drug store in Meridian. Despite a full schedule of work and commuting to classes, he played in the College of Idaho Pep band and also found opportunity to play with a dance group several times a week in Boise.

"During this time White was offered a six-month work cruise to participate in the ship's dance orchestra. It was a tempting offer, but White had a wife and career to think about. So instead the couple moved to Vale, Ore., where White had worked in a drug store with a contract to purchase.

He received his bachelor's degree in 1932. The Vale opportunity did not work out so in 1934 the Whites moved to Wendell where he put in 16 to 18 hours daily in the Wendell Drug Store. For a few years his drums were silent.

But by the time the Whites moved to Twin Falls in 1946, he had again formed a dance group. White has worked with many different musicians during his career, and he has continued to play with some of his colleagues for 30 years.

White worked at several Twin Falls drug stores — including the former Walgreen store, Tollingers, Hospital Pharmacy and Kingsbury — before retiring in 1963. He still occasionally fills in for local pharmacists.

The Whites have two daughters, Barbara Snowdarter of Pocatello and Judge Galay of Kimberly. Both girls played in bands while in school, and Mrs. Galay has continued her father's interest in drums. She has studied percussion instruments with a Boise teacher and plays in the Magic Valley Symphony.

According to her dad, "she knows a lot more about the drums than I do."

White may not have the academic music credentials, but he has something far more important — the knowledge that doing what he loves adds tempo to the lives of countless Magic Valley residents.

Increase in elder abuse disturbing

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The young have always rebelled against the old because they represented authority but sociologists in Britain are disturbed by a comparatively new phenomenon — the abuse of the aged because they are frail and vulnerable. The list of incidents in which youngsters, barely into their teens, have mistreated men and women old enough to be their grandparents has reached the point where even those social scientists who can find an excuse for any misdeed of the young are having trouble getting away from the word cruelty.

Under the headline "Young Against Old" the magazine "New Society" recounts a few of these.

In one instance, two girls about 13, wearing slittie boots, went about knocking on the doors of working class houses. If the knock was answered by an old lady who appeared to be lying alone, the girls asked for a drink of water — and followed the woman into the house.

While she was getting the water, one of the girls would attack her while the other ransacked the rooms for money and valuables.

"The cruelty of the young is no longer in the realm of the prank...it is violence against weakness, old age shorn of its authority and status. The violence represents an eruption of something much deeper which we have failed to diagnose."

In one area, a mixed group of 12 and 14-year-olds got their kicks by riding bikes through funeral gatherings on cemeteries shouting four-letter profanities. In another, 11-year-olds ripped up the little vegetable gardens usually tilled by retired men and women. In still another, an old lady who befriended schoolchildren found herself terrorized by their demands for money and unable to keep them from smashing her furniture and defacing the walls.

"During the past year incidents like these were reported from all over the country," New Society said, "and the reporting of them set off waves of imitations in other towns and cities."

"One result is that the law-and-order arguments have been strengthened, while the mitigation plea of deprivation and poverty in the inner city has been made to sound faltering and less convincing in the face of such cruelty."

"In this setting, the cruelty of the young is no longer in the realm of the prank, the deflating of gerontocentric power. It is violence against weakness, old age shorn of its authority and status. The acts of violence are not simply the aberrations of a few disordered individuals, but represent an eruption of something much deeper which we have failed to diagnose."

New Society nevertheless chances a theory for the violence. It suggests the anger and destructiveness of the young stems from the aggression of the old. The aggression against the weak and vulnerable, may express a repression of their traditional hunger for change and revolt, their impatience with the way things are, despite all the things that have been done for them.

"It quotes Kellie, 16, as saying: 'Well, it's not our fault. It is I can't help it if everything had been done before I was born. I can't help it if I've never seen death or poverty. What do you want me to do? Go out and look for it?'"

Project EARN locates jobs for over 60's

By JOLENE BABYAK

LAURENCE, Kans. — You're 65 years old, too young for Social Security? Too old for another job, right? Not in Lawrence, where the local Council on Aging has begun an employment agency for those over 55.

Project EARN, modeled on a successful program in St. Louis, has been operating since June 20 and already has more jobs than it can handle. Robert McCoy, the project coordinator and a retired businessman, said the agency concentrates on jobs for home repair, yard work and baby sitting.

"They become discouraged when no one hires them. Hardest hit are those in their 50's and 60's, too young for Social Security and too old to look good in the job market."

There are employment agencies nationwide for older adults, both public and private, but most have been gaining ground only in the last few years as more and more older adults are seeking jobs.

Project EARN in St. Louis County, EARN in St. Louis proper, as well as Lawrence EARN are funded through area agencies on aging that got their start from the Older-Americans-Act of 1965. These agencies also must receive matching local funds. St. Louis County EARN, which has been in operation since 1974, has an annual rate of 60 job placements.

McCoy, who received his training through the St. Louis office, said he's ecstatic about the new agency. Already he has placed 13 part- or full-time jobs, made 60 "placements" overall and generated about $750 worth of business a week. He has 40 applicants and is hoping to list about 75 skilled people who will be available to cover a wide range of needs.

Calls come in for carpenters, plumbers, baby-sitters, companions, sales people, odd jobs, even refrigerant specialists (one category McCoy couldn't fill). Now McCoy is looking forward to the fall when teachers with children will need baby-sitters regularly.

McCoy is excited about helping older adults. They become discouraged when no one hires them, he said. Hardest hit are those in their 50's and 60's, too young for Social Security and too old to look good in the job market, he said.

According to the U.S. Department of Labor, national unemployment in June was 6.2 percent. Total unemployment for males and females over 50 is 3 percent, or about half of the total unemployed, with females showing a significant increase. Eva Waggoner, 56, who obtained her department store position through EARN, said she searched unsuccessfully for a job more than two years.

"Wendell Kassoon, 65, works but earns less than union scale. However, he doesn't pay union dues and nothing is withheld from his check, so he doesn't complain. He also can set his own hours and quit work when he wants to."

Her husband is blind and can do little work. She applied all over Lawrence, a medium-size college town 45 miles west of Kansas City, Mo., and said she thought employers were discriminating against her but she didn't know what to do.

There are affirmative action guidelines for older adults but age discrimination is difficult to prove, McCoy said. Many firms cite their policy on age — mandatory retirement at 65 — as a reason for turning away older applicants.

Many older people are squeezed between severe inflation and meager Social Security benefits or a fixed pension. Many live on less than $200 month, said Mona McCoy, the council's outreach coordinator. Mrs. McCoy, who is not related to Robert McCoy, said the extremely poor who don't hear about the benefits and assistance programs are in the worst bind.

But money isn't the only reason EARN has attracted job-seekers. Goldie Greenfield, who is 67 and drives a mini-bus, summed it up in one sentence: "If I don't have something to do, I go bats." Greenfield drives part-time for Bus 62, a taxi service operated by the council. Greenfield has been driving trucks since she was 15, and this bus is no trick to drive, she insisted. Power steering, power brakes, "it's just like sitting and knitting," she said. "It's about as easy as I can do and still keep working."

She's a steady driver who's not afraid to "run for daylight" when there's a break in traffic, but she's careful on the pedal. Still, her customers are a little startled to see her behind the wheel.

Like many, Greenfield works for the minimum wage but is glad to do the work and feels great being outdoors.

Wendell Kassoon, 65, a retired construction and pipeline engineer, works but earns less than union scale. However, he said, he doesn't pay union dues and nothing is withheld from his check, so he doesn't complain. He said he also can set his own hours and quit work when he wants to.

His last job was remodeling the exterior of a house — prying gutters loose, setting up a concrete porch — and he enjoyed himself immensely.

Kassoon said he's had more work offered him than he wanted. "I went in, signed up, and before I got home I had a call," Kassoon said he can earn up to $4,000 a year in addition to his Social Security benefits.

The project is picking up

"But money isn't the only reason EARN has attracted job seekers. Goldie Greenfield, who is 67 and drives a mini-bus, summed it up in one sentence: 'If I don't have something to do, I go bats.'"

momentum. Employers who had never hired older adults are becoming aware of their specialties. Families have access to more experienced baby-sitters and help with yard work and odds and ends around the house.

And it all keeps Robert McCoy very happy. And why not? A Midwest writer who has written for The Kansas City Star, TVA Ambassador magazine and other publications.

Woman can't draw her own and husband's full Social Security

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexander, Ohio 43081. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: My husband and I are both retired on Social Security. I am drawing benefits from my own account as it is higher than what I would have received on wife's benefits. I am concerned about the future in that I don't know if I could meet financial obligations on my benefits were my husband to pass away before I do. Would I be able to draw my own benefits and his also, if this does happen? — B.M.

In most cases, this can be done. You would continue to receive your own full Social Security benefits and then a portion of your widow's benefits to give you a total Social Security benefit equal to the amount of your Social Security widow's benefits. If your Social Security benefit on your own work record is equal to or larger than what you could draw on widow's benefits, then you would not be eligible for any Social Security widow's benefits. You could not, however, draw your own full benefits plus your husband's full benefit.

HEARTLINE: I am not in need of retirement age, but have paid Social Security taxes for nearly 40 years. It never occurred to me until recently to wonder where money I paid in was placed. I know from reading something many years ago that our Social Security taxes are placed in a trust fund. Does this mean that all money collected through Social Security taxes are placed in this trust fund? Just curious? — R.L.

No, these contributions are deposited in three separate trust funds.

Heartline

- 1. The Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund.
- 2. The Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund.
- 3. The Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund.

HEARTLINE: I recently elected to take Medicare and am wondering how many days of coverage one may have while in the hospital. Also, how much we have to pay in regard to a hospital stay which could be lengthy. Could you explain? — M.G.

You have up to 90 days for each benefit period. The first 60 days, Medicare covers all hospital charges, except for the first $100 in charges. From the 61st through the 90th day, Medicare pays all the charges except $40 per day. These patient share amounts are subject to change on January 1st of each year. After 90 days of continuous stay in the hospital, your benefit period expires, but you can elect to use your 90 Day Lifetime Reserve.

This is 60 more days of coverage in which Medicare pays all the hospital charges except $20 per day (during the calendar year 1979). Once you use all or any part of your 90 Day Lifetime Reserve, that part can never be replaced. For example, if you use 10 days, you would have only 50 days left for use at another time. If you use all 60 days, you will never have any reserve days again. But remember that your regular 90-day benefit period will automatically renew itself after you are out of a hospital or skilled-nursing facility for 60 consecutive (or in a row) days.

HEARTLINE: My husband is retiring at age 65 in July. I am age 63 but am still employed. I really love my work and have worked with this company for 12 years. I know I became eligible for my own benefits at age 62, and that when my husband retires, I will be eligible for Social Security wife's benefits on his account. My husband says I should draw wife's benefits, but I have no intention of quitting my job. If I draw wife's benefits, can I still work, or will I have an income restriction as well? — R.C.

You can draw Social Security wife's benefits and continue working. However, you will have income restrictions. You are allowed to earn the same amount as a person drawing regular Social Security retirement, which is $3,480 if you are under age 65 and $4,500 if you are age 65 or older. To earn more would cause you to have to repay an over-payment or stop your wife's benefits altogether.

Six Twin Falls Girls' State delegates named

TWIN FALLS — Six juniors at Twin Falls High School were recently selected to attend the 33rd session of the State of Idaho Girls' State to be held June 17-23 at the Northwest Nazarene College at Nampa.

Attending will be Nancy Donnelly, Laurie Kuiken, Marny McRoberts, Michelle Petersen, Brenda Sayers, and Cindy Stansell. Cindy Crow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Crow, was selected as first alternate.

The delegates will travel to Boise where the girls will conduct a Girls' State session of the state Legislature. The sessions give the girls extensive training and practice in operation of government at state, county and local levels.

and Mrs. C.E. Donnelly, is sponsored by the Twentieth Century Club. She has been active in school activities, is a 4.0 student and is a member of the Nazarene Church MOP (Ministry of Puppets), a puppet group which performs in Idaho, Nevada, California, Arizona and Oregon. Her community service activities include being a candy stripper and performing and visiting with the Senior Citizens.

Laurie Kuiken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kuiken, is sponsored by the Twin Falls Business and Professional Women. She is active in Drill Team, Band and the Annual Staff. Her most active area, however, is in sports. She has earned a varsity letter in volleyball, basketball, track and ranked 16th at the National Junior Olympics.

Marny McRoberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil McRoberts, is sponsored by the Scrippsist Club. She is secretary of the junior class, president of the French club and has been roll-room representative for two years. Her plans are to continue to pursue her studies in French.

Michelle Petersen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Petersen, is sponsored by the Altrusa Club. She is a 4.0 student and active in school activities which include Drill Team, President of Sigma Hi-Y Club, Pet Club, Girls League and Interact. She has played the piano for 11 years and taken dancing for 10 years. She has been very active in church activities.

Brenda Sayers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sayers, is sponsored by the Rotary Club. She is president of the Twin Falls FFA Chapter, an assistant 4-H leader and secretary of the Twin Falls High School Rodeo Club. She plays the guitar, piano and cello and competes in track and tennis.

Cindy Stansell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Stansell, is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. She is Junior Class president and Altrusa Girls, and is active in sports, dancing. She plays flute and piccolo and is a member of the various band organizations. She is also Drum Major for the marching band.

The girls are sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Post No.

Dear Abby

Divorcee's prejudices show

By Abigail Van Buren
©The Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine whose divorce became final a few weeks ago has appointed me to head a search committee to find her a man. She's 40, attractive, not exactly destitute (her husband gave her a nice settlement), and good company.

She's too me (and others) not to fix her up with a man who's never been married. She insists that there is something seriously wrong with a man of 40 or older who's never been married.

She says, "They're either too set in their ways, closet gays, or they're selfish and stingy."

What is your opinion of her analysis?

—LOOKING FOR MR. RIGHT

DEAR LOOKING: Your friend needs to open her mind and let out a few prejudices.

There are plenty of men 40 and over who are still single because they've never met anyone they wanted to marry who wanted to marry THEM.

The same can be said for many women who've never been hitched.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a party the other evening where I saw a number of old friends. The wives hugged me and their husbands shook my hand. After the third handshake I lit out a shriek.

Abby, don't men realize that some women wear costume rings that cut deeply into their flesh when their fingers are squeezed too tightly? Also, some of us older women have arthritis, and a firm handshake can be frightfully painful.

So, gentlemen, please remember when shaking hands with a lady that she doesn't want to sell you a railroad or an airplane or even the Brooklyn Bridge. All she wants is a gentle little clasp.

—73 YEARS OLD IN CINCINNATI

DEAR 73: Although it's not earth-shaking, it's a hand-shaking problem with which many women (including this one) will identify.

DEAR ABBY: I am a compulsive gambler. I almost destroyed my family and myself with 35 years of hard gambling, lying, stealing and whatever it took to support my vice. When I finally hit rock bottom and owed everybody I knew, I called GAMBLERS ANONYMOUS.

That was six months ago. I admit I did it only to get my wife off my back and keep her from divorcing me, but after going to a few meetings I realized that I really had an illness and could help myself.

I have been with Gamblers Anonymous only a short time but my life has already changed. It's as though a miracle has come over me.

I know of no one who can carry this message better than you, Abby, so please print this for anyone who has a gambling problem or lives with a gambler. Have them call GA. They're in the phone book. —A NEW MAN IN L.A.

DEAR NEW MAN: Nearly 20 years ago, having heard of Gamblers Anonymous, I slipped into one of their meetings (incognito) to see firsthand how they operated. I saw a miracle in action.

No dues, no lecturing—only gamblers being taught how to quit by gamblers who had already learned. I recommend them highly. The most a gambler can lose at GA is a bad habit.

Junior club donates to Y

TWIN FALLS — The sights and sounds at Twin Falls YFCA will be updated by a $1,000 donation made recently by the Junior Club to the YFCA physical fitness program.

The presentation, made on behalf of the club by Donna Stalley, will be used to repair and refurbish the weight room and to purchase new sound equipment for the aerobic dancing classes.

This donation is the second half of a $2,000 pledge made to the Y earlier this year. The club's coupon project, Community Fair and Christmas Style Show profits combined to make the donation.

Dr. Lamb

Prostate trouble, urinary tract infection may cause problem

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
 Dear Dr. Lamb,
 I am a 59-year-old man and am very active. There may be an obstruction of my urinary tract or my bladder or my kidneys aren't functioning properly. I drink a lot of fluids, consisting of water, milk, iced tea and a six-pack of beer once or twice a week, but very little coffee.
 When I relieve myself I have to keep making trips to the bathroom and have to go immediately for I can't put it off. I have a hernia and have put the repair job off and am wondering if there may be pressure from the hernia that is affecting the bladder or kidneys. Is there any medicine that could relieve this condition? I don't recall having this problem when I was younger.
 Dear Reader,
 Many people develop problems they didn't have earlier. Of course, you'll have to have an examination to find out exactly what is wrong. You could have a urinary tract infection. Another very likely probability is that you have an enlarged prostate. The prostate gland surrounds the urethra and can obstruct the outflow from the bladder. That's the main reason many men have to have a prostate operation. Your description of your difficulties isn't sufficiently detailed for me to have a very good idea if this is the problem or not.

 A person with an enlarged prostate usually has trouble starting his stream and may have trouble stopping it. The stream is often small as opposed to the large easy flow of younger years.
 If there is a lot of trouble in passing urine, the bladder may be overdistended with retained urine, often causing a person to urinate frequently. The overfilled bladder keeps signaling that it needs to be emptied, but the person never succeeds in emptying it because of the obstruction from the enlarged prostate gland.
 Now regarding your hernia, if you're talking about a hernia in the groin, the pressure from such a hernia, if there is any at all, isn't near the urethra or bladder area.

 Dear Dr. Lamb,
 Could you tell me the benefits, if any, derived from taking alfalfa tablets? The man at the health food store said I should take them for hay fever and would not need antihistamines. I bought a bottle and the directions say take four tablets with each meal. They smell and taste so bad I can hardly get one down, much less four. Please let me know about these alfalfa tablets' benefits so I can continue to force them down or throw them away.

 Dear Reader,
 The benefits from alfalfa tablets are for the person who sells them. Don't expect them to do anything for your health, much less prevent or cure hay fever.
 These and a host of other highly advertised products are the modern equivalent of snake oil sold by a carnival barker at the traveling medical show. There are plenty of people who will listen to the claims because they want to believe some magic substance will cure all their problems. Life isn't that simple.

MRS. E. GRIGGS
 Rt. 1, Buhl
HAWAIIAN SAUSAGE CASSEROLE
 1 can (20 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained, reserving liquid
 1 can (18 oz.) sweet potatoes, sliced
 1 pint milk
 1 pkg. smoked link sausages, cooked and cut in 1 inch pieces
 3 tablespoons brown sugar
 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/4 tablespoon butter or margarine

With reserved pineapple juice add enough water to make 1 1/4 cups. Arrange pineapple, sweet potatoes and sausage in baking dish. In small saucepan combine brown sugar, cornstarch and salt. Gradually blend in reserved juice mixture. Cook and stir until thick and bubbly. Cook 1 minute more, remove from heat; stir in margarine. Pour over sausage mixture in casserole. Cover and bake at 350° F. for 35 to 40 minutes.

Engagements

Women getting professional jobs but few gains in skilled crafts

EVE WILLIS

TWIN FALLS — Ernie Willis of Twin Falls and Mrs. Charles Morris of Ketchum announce the engagement and forthcoming wedding of their daughter, Eve, to Roger Williams, son of Mrs. Afton Williams of Pocatello and the late Heber Williams.

Miss Willis is a 1977 graduate of Twin Falls High School and is presently employed at Zales Jewelers.

Williams is a 1976 graduate of Grace High School and is also employed at Zales.

A March 24 wedding is planned.

PRUDENT PROTECTION

©1979 Chicago Sun-Times
Women are making progress in gaining more managerial and professional jobs, but their gains have been few in the skilled crafts, according to a new study by the Conference Board.

The study, which looks at the efforts of 265 major U.S. companies to improve women's job opportunities, shows sharp differences in different industries.

Upward movement has been greatest in banking, insurance, retailing and communications, areas which traditionally have included large numbers of women employees. Women's progress has been slower in "male-intensive" industries such as mining, construction, heavy manufacturing, transportation, utilities and wholesale trade.

The study, using data from 1970 to 1975, said that women managers and administrators rose to 23 per cent from 19 per cent in the female-intensive industries, and to 6 per cent from 5 per cent in the male-intensive.

Women held 1 per cent of the craft jobs in male-intensive industries surveyed, unchanged from 1970; their share of craft jobs in female-intensive industries rose to 12 per cent from 11 per cent.

The study's authors concluded that substantial movement to "where the managers of managers are" is unlikely to occur for several more years.

The authors of the study are Ruth Gilbert-Shaeffer, senior research associate at the board, and Edith F. Lynton.

They looked at large companies and concluded that involvement of chief executives to the key to success of hiring and promoting programs. Most of the surveyed firms have no special program to hire and train women, but the companies have changed their transfer and promotion programs to open job opportunities for all.

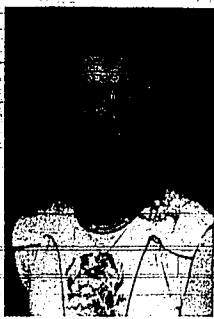

KANDI BINGHAM

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. DeLoy Bingham of Twin Falls announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Kandi, to Jim Holbrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon G. Holbrook of Chicago, Ill.

Miss Bingham attended Twin Falls High School and is a graduate of Brigham Young University. She is presently employed at the University Mall in Orem, Utah, where she is the secretary to the mall manager.

Holbrook attended Hersey High School in Chicago and will receive his BS in Mechanical Engineering in April. He has served an LDS mission to Cordoba, Argentina.

The couple plans an April 19 wedding at the LDS temple in Mantoloking, Utah.

Shots restore station to air

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The ice is gone and WGR-TV is back on the air — thanks to a .22 caliber rifle and the sharp shooting of the station's chief engineer.

Severe icing on the reflector of the station's transmission tower in South Wales forced Channel 2 to cancel programming Monday night and into Tuesday.

Children's conference set Friday

TWIN FALLS — "Children: The Challenge" will be the theme for the Idaho Society of Individual Psychology's 3rd annual conference to be held in Boise Friday and Saturday at the Anderson Center.

Dr. Oscar Christensen of the University of Arizona, one of the most noted Adlerians in the United States, is the conference speaker. Also featured on the program is Dr. Thomas Edgar, professor of counselor education at Idaho State University.

The conference is open to the public. Pre-registration is $15 and on-site registration is $19. For more information, contact Marlene Teasley at 733-4643.

Electronic courtship successful

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — Gina Gordey and Jack Dabney plan to marry May 26 in a face-to-face ceremony. It could be a major breakthrough in their long-distance, electronic relationship.

Dabney, a news supervisor for the Mutual Broadcasting System in Washington, D.C., popped the question to Ms. Gordey over the phone — which isn't so unusual.

But Ms. Gordey, a reporter for KWKH-Radio in Shreveport, said "Yes" without ever having seen her future husband.

"We owe it all to AT&T," she said. Ms. Gordey first encountered Dabney when she fed news tapes of a March 1978 train derailment in Lewisville, Ark., to the Mutual Network and he handled the call.

Ms. Gordey continued to phone in news stories but the business relationship softened as the calls increased.

"We started talking about such things as our philosophies and where we wanted our lives to go," she said.

The two exchanged pictures in December and that just added fuel to the electronic romance.

"At first, it seemed too crazy — I started having feelings like, 'Hey, I'd like to spend the rest of my life with this guy,'" she said.

"But I didn't say anything to anyone about it because it was just, too absurd. It's very much of a fairy tale."

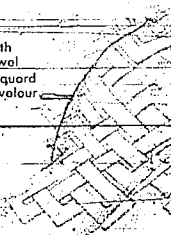

With the long-distance phone bills mounting as the couple kept in contact every other day, Dabney decided enough was enough.

"He asked me on the phone to marry him and I accepted before I even saw him," Ms. Gordey said. "After that we figured we had better meet each other. He came down here a couple of weeks ago and he was everything I expected him to be."

Tranquilizer role in helping smokers quit hard to determine

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — We were recently asked if taking tranquilizers even simple non-prescription preparations — would help smokers kick the habit.
The answer seems to be probably not.
HEW's Office of Smoking and Health says it does not recommend any technique or device and tells those who ask that "the best way to stop is just to stop."

But more detail on the subject is contained in the recent Surgeon General's report on the subject. It says research does continue to suggest that there may be some chemical aid to help ease withdrawal symptoms but identifying exactly what it is has been "frustrating and difficult."

The report says that one study was done using the tranquilizer meprobamate, a prescription drug, along with group therapy in some of the patients and no therapy at all in others. The result, it says, showed that a placebo — a sugar pill, for example — was more effective than the tranquilizer in all cases.
Not that the placebo effect should be dismissed either. There seems to be growing evidence that large numbers of persons are susceptible to various placebo effects. So taking a tranquilizer or other pill may help just because you think it does.

The report also states that a nicotine chewing gum has been developed and studies "suggest that it is significantly more effective than placebos," in easing withdrawal symptoms, although its use beyond that appears to be small.

"Current data suggest that the usefulness of pharmacological cessation aids has yet to be unequivocally demonstrated," the report concludes.
"While aids such as nicotine gum may be useful in the control of withdrawal symptoms in some smokers, current research suggests that they would need to be combined within a broader program to produce and maintain abstinence."

The most common withdrawal symptoms, incidentally, are nausea, headache, constipation, diarrhea and decreased appetite. Also reported are drowsiness and fatigue, as well as insomnia and other sleep disturbances. Inability to concentrate is also a common complaint.

Jerome sets fund event on Saturday

JEROME — A carnival will be held Saturday at the Jerome Junior High School Cafeteria at 5 p.m. to raise funds to send special education students to the State Special Olympics in Moscow in May.
Food, games, ring toss, darts, a fish pond, dime toss, bingo and make-up booth will be featured along with a raffle for a handmade afghan and baby shawl.
Sponsored by the Jerome Concerned Citizens for the Mentally Handicapped, the event will also fund summer school for special education students.
Anyone who cares to donate cooked foods or items for the white elephant booth, please call Donna Vogel at 324-5906 or Beverly Woolley at 324-2132. The public is invited to attend.

New classes told by Filer group

FILER — Volleyball, ceramics and exercise classes are currently under way in Filer and Twin Falls, sponsored by the Filer Community Education Association.
Exercise classes are held from 7 to 8 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday in the Filer Elementary School gymnasium, and volleyball is held from 7 to 8 p.m. each Wednesday.
An adult golf class will begin in March with Bill Heaps, instructor. Those interested must sign up in advance for this class.
Classes in microwave cooking, square dancing and woodworking will be presented this spring if enough interest is shown, according to Shirley Hansing, chairman. There must be at least 10 persons in each class to make it worthwhile to begin any or all of the three.
Further information may be had by contacting Mrs. Hansing at 326-4410.

Spud month proclaimed by governor

BOISE — "Official Potato Lover's Month" was officially proclaimed recently by Gov. John V. Evans to call attention to the plentiful and high quality potato crop available to consumers at reasonable prices.
The proclamation states in part that Idaho potato growers harvested a record crop of 9.5 billion pounds of potatoes in 1978 and the abundant crop is of exceptionally high quality and represents an excellent value to the American consumer.
The governor further proclaimed since potatoes are selling at lower prices than last year, an ideal opportunity exists to help consumers stretch their food dollars. Governor Evans encouraged consumers to take advantage of the plentiful potato supplies and attractive prices as a way to fight inflation.

Town dumps longtime ban on dancing

HENRYETTA, Okla. (UPI) — The city council dumped its ordinance banning public dancing inside the city limits, but the law that replaced it won't exactly have disco freaks doing the hustle in celebration.
The new ordinance sets up stiff license fees and rules out dance halls or disco locations near schools, churches, taverns or neighborhoods in which more than half the residents don't like dancing.
License fees under the new law range from $300 to $500 and city officials decreed no dance hall could be located within 300 feet of any establishment, selling alcoholic beverages or 50 feet of a church, school or residential neighborhood where more than 50 percent of the residents object.
The ordinance also requires all buildings used for public dancing be well-lighted in all rooms and meet health and safety regulations.

Service news

FILER — Marine Pvt. Michael W. Davis, son of Elmer L. Davis and Louise E. Tudor of Filer, recently departed for a deployment in the Mediterranean Sea. He is a member of the 3d Battalion, Eighth Marines, based at Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C. A 1975 graduate of Filer High School, he joined the Marine Corps in March 1978.

RUPERT — Staff Sgt. Edwin L. Sexton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Sexton of Rupert, has received the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal at Kunsan AB, Republic of Korea. Sergeant Sexton, a precision measuring equipment technician, was cited for meritorious service at Ellsworth AFB, S.D. Now assigned at Kunsan, the sergeant served with a unit of the Pacific Air Force. He is a 1963 graduate of Minidoka County High School and received a BS degree in 1970 from the University of Idaho.

JEROME — Airman First Class Ricky J. Jackson, son of Randy Jackson of Jerome, has been named Outstanding Airman of the Month in his unit at Beale AFB, Calif. An avionics sensor systems specialist, Airman Jackson was selected for professional skill, duty performance and exemplary conduct. He is assigned to the 9th Avionics Maintenance Squadron, a part of the Strategic Air Command.

GOODING — Airman Michael R. Ervin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence R. Ervin of Gooding, has been selected for technical training at Goddard AFB, Tex., in the Air Force communications analysis field. He recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. A 1977 graduate of Gooding High School, he attended the College of Southern Idaho at Twin Falls.

GOODING — Pfc. Timothy R. Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Harris of Gooding, recently participated in Level II tank gunnery training with the 3rd Armored Division in Germany. Level II tank gunnery training, conducted at the Goddard and Heintz Training Areas, is one of the two times a year when tank battalions have to fire live ammunition. Individual tank crews develop their necessary team work to take on stationary and moving targets. Harris is a tank driver with the division in Kirch Gons, Germany.

BLISS — Marine Second Lt. Samuel H. Bishop, son of Samuel and Betty E. Bishop of Bliss, was graduated from The Basic School at the Marine Corps Development and Education Command in Quantico, Va. It is designed to prepare newly-commissioned officers for assignment to the Fleet Marine Force and emphasizes the duties and responsibilities of a platoon commander. Bishop is a 1969 graduate of Bliss High School and a 1978 graduate of the University of Utah in Salt Lake City with a BS degree. He joined the Marine Corp in October 1973.

KING HILL — E/8 Joseph Hitesman of the United States Navy stationed on the USS Hainley (T-ESB-9), recently visited with his relatives, sisters, Mrs. Harold Southwick and Mrs. Raymond Betty of Glenna Perry, and his step-father and family, Denver Alfred of King Hill. He is now en route back to Guam, where he is a damage control inspector.

KIMBERLY — Chief Warrant Officer Monte C. Overacre, son of Sam and Flora Overacre of Kimberly, is home on a 30-day leave. He joined the Army in August 1972, and graduated from Army helicopter flight school in April 1976, receiving his pilot's wings. He is currently serving with the 2nd Infantry Division in South Korea. His wife, the former Gwendolyn Woodruff of Plainsview, Texas, and his son are also staying in Kimberly.

Fashion show scheduled for Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — Fashions and fun will be featured at the Welcome Wagon Club's monthly luncheon Tuesday at 12:30 at the Turf Club. Open to the public, the fashion show will feature items made and modeled by Welcome Wagon Club members, Southerner Club members and their children. Modeled will be a golf outfit, sun dress, christening dress, pantsuit, a knitted sweater, children's clothes, a hand spun woven tunic, a man's bathrobe and costumes. Two $10 door prizes will be given away. Welcome Wagon members Jan Nielson will provide background music and Cora Lee Detweiler will narrate. Tickets are $3 per person, and reservations need to be made by Sunday. For reservations call Deanna Cunningham, 734-7039, or Jan Retelst, 733-0532.
