

Newest get-rich scheme: Get a franchise for a speed trap

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The tiny community of Jordan Valley near Oregon's border with Idaho has a police chief who earned $102,117 last year by operating a "speed trap" under a city contract that gives him most of the fines and bail forfeitures, The Oregon Journal reported Wednesday.

Chief Paul John Arritola's income is revealed in traffic-law documents filed with the Oregon Department of Revenue.

Arritola refused to talk to The Journal, wrote reporter James Long, but Mayor Ed Krupp said Arritola "has done a pretty good job."

In July 1977 the City Council awarded Arritola, who spent seven years as an Oregon state policeman, a five-year contract to provide police services. He purchased a radar set, a 1977 Dodge and hired an assistant for $800 a month, the paper said.

"It was interesting to watch," one law enforcement officer told The Journal. "Jordan Valley is an L-shaped town. When you go around the corner on Highway 95 you take ahead and see a sign that says 'Speed Limit 40.' People assume they can do 40 when they see the sign. It induces them to speed up in front of a school."

"Arritola or his helper would sit outside of town, up ahead of that sign, and shoot their radar back toward town. They'd catch one car after another speeding up in front of the school."

The Oregon Automobile Association, upset about the system, tried to obtain a copy of Arritola's contract, but was denied, said Bobb Knepper, general manager of the auto club.

However, a nearby newspaper, which carried a series of articles on the speed trap, obtained a copy of a letter from Jordan Valley's city attorney, Melvin L. Walter, in which Walter told the city council the arrangement was legal, "but ethically it stinks."

Arritola faces more than outrage from some public areas over his methods and salary.

A Malheur County grand jury last week indicted the chief on three counts of tampering with public records and one count of giving a false statement to the state Board of Police Standards and Training.

He is charged specifically with giving a false estimate of expenses in connection with the police department operation in September, October and November 1978.

He is also charged with allegedly stating falsely to the police standards board that his contract arrangement was being dropped, in an effort to win accreditation.

Carter brings hope, realism to Middle East

By United Press International

President Carter arrived in Cairo today, expressing "hope tempered by sober realism" that he can persuade Egypt and Israel to fulfill "the dream of peace."

Officials acknowledged that Carter's open-ended mission — unprecedented in the records of presidential itineraries — was by no means assured of success.

But during a one-hour refueling stop in the Azores off Portugal, White House Press spokesman Jody Powell outlined Carter's determination to clinch a peace treaty to end 30 years of war between Egypt and Israel.

"We'll stay as long as we have to," Powell said.

An American official on Air Force One declined to say whether Carter was preparing to offer large new sums of military aid, as has been reported, as an inducement to Israel and Egypt to conclude the treaty, which would be the first pact ever between Israel and an Arab nation.

Carter gave his dramatic, high-risk peace mission a favoring of bipartisan support by inviting a small group of Republican and Democratic members of Congress to a private White House briefing just before his early evening departure from Washington.

They remained for "nationally televised departure ceremonies on the White House lawn and stood in a line behind Carter as Vice President Walter Mondale told him his mission marked "perhaps the most important and difficult mission of your presidency."

Carter was accompanied on the flight by his wife, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

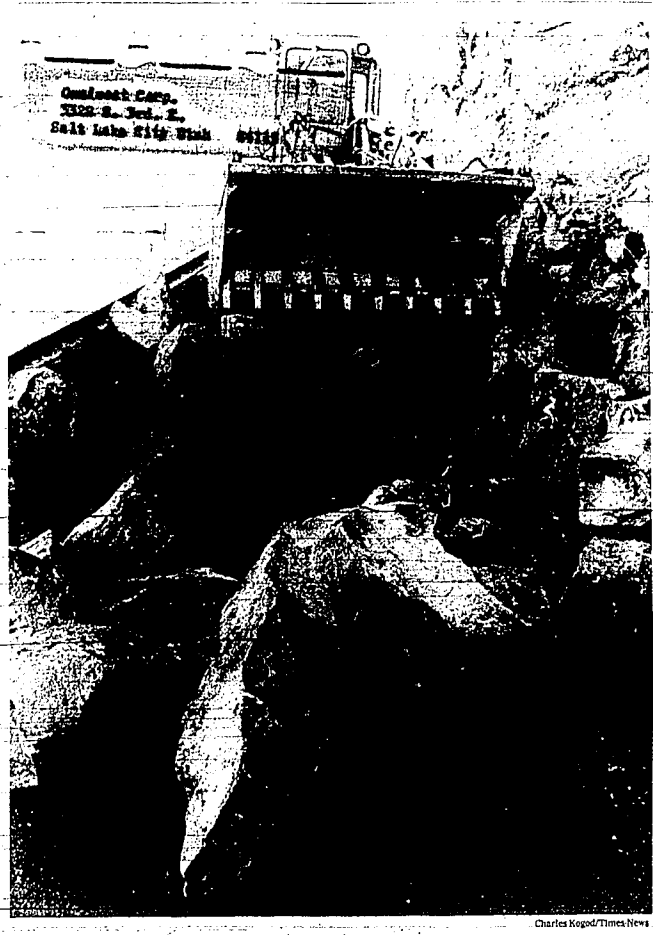

In Moscow, Idaho, Sen. Frank Church said Wednesday peace in the Middle East may be close at hand.

The Idaho Democrat, speaking at the University of Idaho's Boren Symposium in Moscow, said "I think we may be on the threshold of peace at last in the Middle East."

"We won't know of course, until the last card is played. But I think we have reason to be hopeful."

In Cairo, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said the Carter proposals were "positive" but might have to be modified.

"I think the chances of peace exist at the present time," he said. "These chances are rather good."

Rock slide in canyon hits road

TWIN FALLS — Several tons of rocks rolled across Canyon Springs Road early Wednesday morning, blocking traffic in and out of the Snake River Canyon for nearly two hours.

No damage or injuries were reported, although one lonely golfer was trapped at Canyon Springs Golf Course unaware that he had narrowly missed being swept away by the deluge of boulders.

City Manager Jean Miller said the slide was "nothing unusual," and he added that city crews are called to clean up slides on the road frequently. He said the city has applied for federal funds to improve the road.

Trapped by himself at the golf course was Times-News sports writer Randy Frey, who could not understand why his partner had not shown up and why the golf course was still not open at 10:15 a.m. He had arrived at the course at 9 a.m., seconds before the slide occurred.

For Frey, almost being swept away by rocks was "nothing unusual." Since moving to Idaho from California in January, he has had a series of near misses.

Not used to icy roads, he turned his car in a complete circle while heading home from work late one night. A week later he was driving on a portion of road, supposedly covered by running water. Actually, it was ice and he sailed off the road but was unhurt.

Rushing from a game a few nights later, he received a speeding ticket, and later he broke his window trying to roll it down while it was frozen.

He did get in nine holes of golf, and faithfully paid when course employees finally showed up at 11 a.m.

Sen. McClure in Reagan camp

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hundreds of backers including some big name politicians and celebrities launched Ronald Reagan's drive for the 1980 GOP nomination Wednesday and claimed Reagan's conservatism now represents the American mainstream.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., announced formation of the "Reagan for President Committee" and said he was confident the former California governor would make his formal announcement in three to seven months — depending on political developments.

Sen. James McClure of Idaho was one of those joining the committee. "I have joined this group because I believe Governor Reagan has exemplified the political philosophy with which I feel most comfortable and with which the people of Idaho have actively demonstrated their support in the past," McClure said.

The list of 365 Reagan supporters was by far the most impressive put together by any 1980 contender. It included six senators, 21 House members, one governor and three cabinet members from the administration of Gerald Ford, who nosed him out for the 1976 nomination.

It also included such show business stars as John Wayne, Frank Sinatra, James Stewart, Pat Boone and Jimmy Cagney.

Will the Arabs help defeat Church?

LEWISTON (UPI) — Saudi Arabia will contribute to an effort to defeat Sen. Frank Church in the 1980 Idaho Senate race, Church said in an interview published this week.

Church, saying he will have to rely on out-of-state funds more than ever to win re-election, cited figures showing 85 percent of the winners in the 1978 congressional elections lost their opponents.

Other comments the Idaho Democrat made to the Lewiston Morning Tribune enraged Rep. Steve Symms, the conservative Republican who has been mentioned as a likely opponent for Church next year.

Church, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he disapproved of Symms and Sen. James McClure "carrying favor" with Arab governments which Church said are seeking his ouster.

"If they wanted to, the Arabs could buy all of Idaho out of miscellaneous funds," Church said.

"I find it astonishing that some elected officials have visited Libya at the expense of that government, which has been proven by the CIA as the most effective terrorist government in the world," Church said in reference to Symms.

"I don't travel anywhere at the expense of a foreign government," Church said. "I will not carry water from them. If they think they can force me to do their bidding, they are wrong. They'll soon see how wrong they are."

Church said he was gratified that Morrison-Knudsen Co. had resisted reported attempts by Saudi Arabia to "silence" him as a supporter of Israel.

Symms said he was "absolutely amazed that after 22 years in the Senate, Frank Church doesn't know that congressional travel subsidized by foreign governments is prohibited by law.

"He insulted the people of our state with his remark that Arabs could buy Idaho," Symms said. "Idahoans simply are not for sale. It is unfortunate that our senator holds the citizens of our state in such low esteem."

Symms said his 1977 trip to Libya was funded by the House Interior Committee.

Certificate-of-need at issue

Idaho Senate prepares for big health debate

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — A proposal to give the state final say over some health industry expenditures heads for lively debate on the floor of the Idaho Senate within a week.

The measure, designed to keep future Idaho medical costs in check and prevent the immediate loss of $12.3 million in federal health care dollars, has been voted out of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee.

But senators pointedly refused to let "do pass" recommendation on Senate Bill 1181, acknowledging the certificate-of-need legislation called for in the measure faces tough opposition on the floor. Tuesday, SB 1181 was unanimously sent to the full Senate without recommendation for future action.

Certificate-of-need legislation, a controversial issue, in recent legislative sessions, would require health care facilities or health maintenance organizations to obtain prior approval for certain costly expenditures. Designed to prevent expensive duplication of existing medical services and facilities, CON legislation would require the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare to approve:

- The construction of a new health care facility or health maintenance organization.
- A capital expenditure of $150,000 and over.
- A change in bed capacity of 10 percent of licensed capacity, or 10 beds.
- The offering of any new institutional health service.

Physicians with private practices or group practices of physicians would be required to obtain a certificate of need if considering:

- A capital expenditure of $150,000 or more for a single piece of health care equipment.
- The addition of a health service which would be unnecessarily duplicative of existing health services.

Committee Chairman John Barker, R-Buhl, told committee members SB 1181 contained numerous amendments suggested by the Idaho Medical Association and private physicians. Those amendments made the measure fair to all parties, Barker said. "I think this is a good bill," Barker added, "this is the best one in at least 10 particular years on this subject."

Barker told legislators Idaho will likely lose $12.5 million in federal health care funds unless some form of CON legislation is passed. A letter from HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. to Gov. John Evans, recently warned of such a cutoff, Barkers said.

In that letter, received by Evans last Oct. 30, Califano said, "The department's position is that the statute requires that the secretary withhold the federal funds . . . if a State Health Planning and Development Agency does not administer a certificate-of-need program meeting federal standards."

The federal funds in jeopardy now support Idaho alcohol and drug abuse prevention programs, health care professional educational training programs (including a program at the College of Southern Idaho), rural health care clinics, immunization programs, crippled children's programs, emergency medical services programs, venereal disease control programs, maternal and child health services, comprehensive public and mental health services, cardiovascular disease programs, family planning services and a number of other programs.

"A Certificate-of-Need program is only one way of restraining future health care costs," Klein said. "We do not claim it will immediately cut current medical costs, but it will definitely impact future medical costs by preventing the establishment of unnecessarily duplicative services and unneeded beds or facilities."

Thursday briefing

Defense Department's number-three man resigns

WASHINGTON — A major administration effort to reorganize the Pentagon has been jolted by the abrupt resignation of the Defense Department's third-ranking officer, who has clashed with the Pentagon's powerful bureaucracy.

The official, Stanley B. Resor, a former secretary of the army, told Defense Secretary Harold R. Brown last week he was planning to leave his newly created job as under-secretary-for-policy after serving only nine months. Brown was described by aides as "upset" over the decision, which is set to be announced next week.

Defense officials made it plain that Resor's resignation came after strenuous fighting within the Pentagon and, in the words of one official, "classic bureaucratic maneuvering" to prevent Resor and his small staff from making substantive changes in the operations of the Defense Department.

Inflation report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Food prices will continue to soar through March and consumers will face sharp increases in energy costs as usual until the end of June, the administration's inflation monitors said Wednesday.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability said farm prices have climbed at a 40 percent annual rate in the November-January period.

Anti-Amin drive

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Tanzanian forces bent on driving Uganda's President Idi Amin from power launched a new attack Wednesday up a major highway leading to the capital of Kampala, diplomatic and military sources said.

Uganda's Defense Council held an emergency meeting and named Amin chief of staff of all the armed forces, giving the burly president-for-life day-to-day command of his battered army fit what appeared to be a last-ditch effort to stop the march on Kampala.

Batteries banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Batteries that power emergency radio transmitters in 60,000 or more planes — one-third of the U.S. air fleet — must be removed promptly because they may explode or burst into flames, the Federal Aviation Administration said Wednesday.

An FAA spokesman said a mandatory "airworthiness directive" ordering the removal of all lithium sulfur dioxide batteries was sent to owners of U.S.-registered aircraft because of a rash of incidents involving exploding batteries in the past six months.

European agreement

PARIS (UPI) — France cleared the way Wednesday for the adoption of a new European monetary system by settling a three-month-old dispute with its Common Market partners over farm subsidies.

An Elysee Palace spokesman said President Valery Giscard d'Estaing told a meeting of his cabinet that the dispute over farm prices has been settled to his satisfaction and that the Common Market can go ahead and adopt the new European Monetary System — known as EMS — as early as next week.

Captain held hostage

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (UPI) — The crew of the freighter Kuwait Horizon, who seized the vessel and held its captain hostage, refused to allow U.S. officials to move the ship from the Army munitions terminal Wednesday, but the owners said they didn't want to "elevate this to the point of hostility."

William Harris of Wilmington, representing the owners, the National Maritime Agency of Kuwait, refused to term the situation a mutiny.

Explosion in Texas

CRYSTAL CITY, TEXAS (UPI) — An explosion and fire Wednesday destroyed a chemical company plant and spread poisonous pesticide gas into a "big black cloud" that forced 6,000 residents to flee.

There were no deaths or injuries resulting from the explosion but two persons were hospitalized with injuries sustained in traffic collisions during the frantic rush to flee the area.

Resor declined to discuss his reasons for leaving. One defense official said that Resor was "frozen out" or "completely isolated" by ranking officials who resented his appointment over them. Another senior defense official, close to Brown, said it was the "nature of the building" to block any streamlining or change, especially when bureaucratic turf was involved.

ITT case dropped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government, saying it could not go to trial without exposing CIA secrets, Wednesday dropped its perjury case against an ITT vice president accused of concealing the company's efforts to influence Chile's 1970 election.

The government's motion to dismiss the charges against Edward J. Gerrity Jr., a senior vice president of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., was filed with U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson.

'Fuzz Busters' illegal

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — The Michigan Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday that police radar detectors, commonly known by the trade name "Fuzz Busters," are illegal under a state law prohibiting scanners in motor vehicles.

A state police spokesman said motorists caught with the devices had been prosecuted in only two of Michigan's 83 counties because of confusion over whether they actually were prohibited by state law.

Runoff election

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Joe Hoisinger, chief aide to Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., whose slaying triggered the Peoples Temple mass-murder in Guyana, and a veteran member of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors will compete for Ryan's seat April 3 in a runoff election.

Hoisinger and William Royer, a Republican, led a field of 12 candidates in a preliminary election Tuesday in which voters could cross party lines.

Taiwan legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Wednesday rejected two amendments aimed at improving Taiwan's diplomatic status in America and the vote margin indicated compromise legislation approved in committee probably would pass without major change.

An vote of 57 to 38, the Senate rejected the amendment proposed by Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., to set up a U.S. liaison office in Taipei instead of the private corporation the administration has proposed to handle future relations.

New facts on agent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI summaries of secret interviews with the Chilean agent who admitted killing Orlando Letelier, and the agent's travel records, show that he was in three other countries at times when prominent opponents of the present Chilean regime were assassinated or attacked.

The evidence suggests to federal authorities and lawyers familiar with the case that the assassination of Letelier, a former Chilean foreign minister, was not an isolated incident but part of a pattern. However, to obtain the extradition of the assassin, a U.S. citizen named Michael Vernon Towley, now 36, the United States promised the Chilean government that it would not turn over evidence to other governments.

Big galaxy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Astronomers have discovered that a "new blue" galaxy known as NGC 1961 is the largest of its kind, with 10 times the mass of the Milky Way and billions of "hot young stars," the National Science Foundation said Wednesday.

While man has known the galaxy existed for more than 100 years, it was studied for the first time recently by three astronomers who were surprised to learn how huge it was.

Health care legislation to be debated in Senate

In testimony before the committee, Klein referred to a recent survey by the American Health-Planning Association. The study contacted 76 percent of the 263 health systems agencies in the nation, Klein said.

"The following proposed capital expenditures for health care facilities and services were found to be not needed by the reviewing bodies: 5,717 short-term hospital beds, representing $533 million; new hospital equipment, representing $51 million; hospital renovation projects, representing $45 million; 42,100 skilled nursing facility/intermediate care facility beds, representing $613 million; skilled nursing facility/intermediate care facility renovation projects, representing $20 million.

The dollars spent on American health care gain a special significance, Klein said, because "42 cents of every hospital dollar is derived from taxes, so it is important how that dollar is spent."

Barker acknowledged Tuesday CON legislation had faced tough opposition in past sessions and that he indicated opposition again this year. But amendments to SB 1181 have cleared up several past objections, Barker said. These amendments include:

- Expenditures by physicians or institutions for office space are not restricted by CON legislation.
- Costs for minor surgery on patients not requiring hospitalization are exempted from coverage.
- Expenditures for the repair or replacement of equipment are exempted from coverage.
- The sale of equipment by a physician retiring from practice is excluded.
- Not all duplication of services is barred, only what is determined to be "unnecessarily duplicative."
- The CON law automatically expires in three years unless specifically re-enacted by the Legislature.

The measure now goes before the full Senate.

In 1978 a Certificate-of-Need Bill died in the Senate on a vote of 7 to 28.

Silkwood arguments presented

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The attorney for the heirs of Karen Silkwood said Wednesday she had ingested plutonium in her body to cause cancer at the time she died in a car crash, but the lawyer for the defendants in the $11.5 million suit said her contamination was minimal.

Bill Paul, lawyer for Kerr-McGee Corp., defendants in the personal injury suit filed by Ms. Silkwood's family, said the nuclear worker was tested shortly before she died in a car wreck.

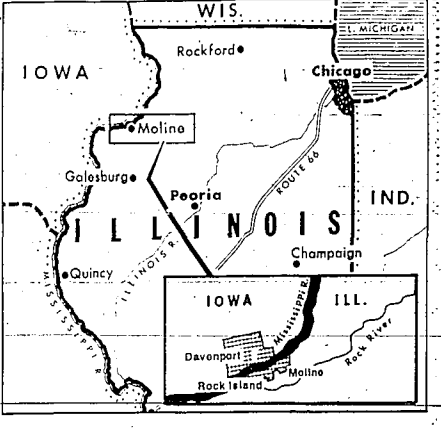

"The tests showed the extent of contamination was not quite a quarter of the established safe levels," Paul told a four-man, two-woman jury.

The family attorney Gerry Spence argued, however, Ms. Silkwood, 28, had "suffered enough plutonium contamination to cause two cases of cancer."

"The autopsy showed Ms. Silkwood had enough plutonium in her nose, lungs and other parts of her body to cause cancer on the spot," Spence said.

The lawsuit, filed in behalf of the woman's three children, alleges Kerr-McGee was negligent in providing safe working conditions for workers at its nuclear plant where Ms. Silkwood was employed.

Paul said the main question in the lawsuit was how and why plutonium made its way into Ms. Silkwood's apartment. Kerr-McGee's investigators found evidence of the radioactive substance in her bathroom and refrigerator shortly before her death.

Midwest, New England threatened by floods

By United Press International

Ice-choked rivers in northern New England, overflowing with snow runoff caused by two days of heavy rains, Wednesday forced hundreds of persons from their homes.

With spring less than two weeks away, officials across the upper Midwest implemented emergency plans in anticipation of a thaw.

Forecasters said "could-turn-record snowpacks into record floods."

A seven-mile long ice jam pushed the rain-swollen Connecticut River out of its banks and isolated the town of North Stratford, N.H. — submerging its main street under seven feet of water.

Flood waters surrounded or inundated the two major industries in the town of 1,000 and drove 165 people from their homes.

Flooding caused by ice jams, two days of rain and snow melt forced evacuations in two other towns in central New Hampshire and closed scores of roads in Vermont, New Hampshire and western Massachusetts.

Khomeini criticizing his new government

By SAJID RIZVI
 TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Oil flowed into the hold of the first American tanker berthed at an Iranian port in more than two months Wednesday, as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini complained his appointed premier's government was acting just like the shah's regime.

Khomeini's revolutionary courts executed six more persons, all Tehran men accused of raping and driving into prostitution teen-age boys who had come to them for food and shelter.

Khomeini's criticism of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, the Moslem leader's most caustic remarks yet about his chosen successor for the shah's last regime, came after details of newspaper reports that Bazargan already had quit.

The ayatollah sent a message to all government ministries ordering officials to observe austerity and reform their "non-Islamic, pre-revolutionary ways."

"The provisional government is behaving just as governments behaved in the days of (Shah) Mohammed Reza (Pahlavi)," Khomeini said.

Bazargan has complained that Khomeini's supporters are interfering with the work of his government, and asked them to stop it.

At the Kharg Island terminal, reopened Monday after a 69-day break in Iranian oil production while Khomeini's revolution forced the shah to leave his homeland, the super-tanker Al Ryah loaded 160,000 tons of light and 90,000 tons of heavy crude oil bound for the American Ashland Oil Co.

Tehran oil industry sources said the purchases by Shell and Ashland made Iran confident its overpriced oil would continue to find buyers.

Negotiations on long-term deals already have started between the National Iranian Oil Co. and Japanese and West European customers, the Iranian sources said.

Iranian newspapers claimed Shell's purchases had caused a split within Iran-Participants-Ltd., a consortium of 14 major oil companies that until recently had bought Iranian crude at discount rates. Shell was a key member of the consortium.

NIOC chief Hassan Nazih declared last week that Iran would no longer deal with the consortium, and said NIOC would sell oil to the foreign firms only on an individual basis.

Six men accused of raping teen-age boys face Islamic revolutionary firing squad Wednesday in Tehran

Fighting continues in Yemen

KUWAIT (UPI) — Pro-Western North Yemen said its Marxist foes in South Yemen attacked border positions with Soviet-built MIG21 jet fighters Wednesday, and South Yemen reported heavy ground fighting.

As international concern grew over the escalating conflict on the edge of the Western world's vital oil shipping lanes, the first air strikes in the 13-day war were confirmed by a State Department spokesman in Washington.

He did not specify whose warplanes were involved, however, and stressed "our information on what's taking part on the ground is fragmentary."

South Yemen claims its forces are not involved in the border fighting between the two tiny states at the southwest tip of the Arabian peninsula. The South Yemen regime says — insurgent — North Yemeni "peoples revolutionary forces" are battling North Yemen's army and "achieving constant victories."

In Sanaa, North Yemeni Prime Minister Abdel Aziz Abdel Ghani met with U.S. Ambassador George Lane Wednesday for talks described as concerning "bilateral relations."

The conflict between the two Yemens has become a source of friction between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Washington demonstrated its concern by ordering a naval task force, including the aircraft carrier-Constellation, to sail from the Philippines to the Arabian Sea.

In addition, 7,000 antitank rockets and ammunition for Vulcan anti-aircraft guns were rushed to North Yemen last week, and the State Department gave Saudi Arabia permission to use U.S.-supplied weapons in North Yemen — if necessary.

Hot words still flying in Indochina

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Bolstered by fresh Soviet military aid, Vietnam Wednesday accused China of staging "barbarous acts of war" that threaten chances for a peaceful withdrawal of the Peking invaders.

Laos, a close ally of Hanoi, charged Peking with threatening to expand the 19-day war by massing 500,000 troops near the point where the Chinese, Laotian and Vietnamese borders join.

Western military sources said there were signs of disengagement in some areas of the 450-mile border between China and Vietnam, but military analysts said so far no Peking troops have left Vietnamese territory.

Radio Hanoi reported 426 Chinese were killed or wounded in fresh fighting in the north and northwest, and that Peking troops blew up two bridges — spanning the strategic — Ky Chang River and looted nearby villages.

It said the stiffest battles were around Lang Son, a provincial capital which Western intelligence reports said was captured by the Chinese last week.

"Chinese aggressors yesterday and this morning continued to carry out many barbarous, criminal acts, including plundering people's houses and wanton shelling," the Vietnamese broadcast said.

The Soviet Union stepped up its support for Vietnam, sending a warship and two reconnaissance vessels into the American-bull port of Da Nang for the first time ever, reports from Washington said.

What China won — and lost — in Vietnam

By DREW MIDDLETON
N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — China's operations in Vietnam have illustrated the truth of a classic military axiom: Mass without mobility cannot easily or swiftly achieve war aims.

The Chinese Army had numerical superiority over Vietnam in almost every category — men, guns, tanks and it was unable to score the smashing victory that it sought because of the relatively slow pace of an offensive carried out by what was basically a marching army.

The invasion also demonstrated that, in the words of a pollburo statement circulated in Peking on Saturday, the army was not equipped to fight a modern war. Deng Xiaoping (Teng Hsiao-ping), the senior deputy premier, said much during his visit to the United States last month. He said China, "with its limited and defensive military capabilities," could not start a war. He was talking about a world war, but it is evident that these restrictions also applied to an operation with limited objectives as in Vietnam.

Chinese withdrawal has begun. Nor is there evidence that the Vietnamese, despite a series of defiant broadcasts, are attacking the Chinese in strength. There is a consensus among American and West European experts that militarily the invasion did not come up to Peking's expectations.

But it was also said that in some important respects the Chinese Army succeeded in teaching the Vietnamese "the lesson" it was sent to impart.

According to authoritative sources, the Chinese succeeded in taking the important town of Lang Son and three, possibly four, provincial capitals. Bridges were blown up and more will probably be destroyed as the Chinese retire. Utilities were destroyed and factories gutted. The fighting generated a stream of refugees, estimated by some sources in the hundreds of thousands, who fled on the roads before the advancing Chinese.

This devastation is expected to complicate Vietnam's already shaky economy.

for modernization under the government's present programs. But China's military needs and conflicting priorities suggest that it may be a decade before the ground forces can change from a marching army to a motorized one.

Vietnam's reaction to the invasion seems to experts to have been surprisingly lethargic. Flushed with victory over South Vietnam in 1975 and convinced that they drove the Americans out of Indochina, the Vietnamese, in the view of French and American sources, appeared certain that their frontier forces and militia could stem the Chinese invasion.

They were wrong. The forces fought well, especially in checking the Chinese thrust into the coastal plain in the area of Thanh Mai, southwest of Lang Son. But they lacked the heavy weapons needed to halt a drive as formidable in manpower and guns as that deployed by the Chinese.

The Vietnamese high command also appeared unwilling to commit any of the three to five regular divisions deployed in a semicircle for the defense of Hanoi and Haiphong. When it did, it was almost too late. The commitment of these troops, which were apparently used piecemeal, sufficed to check the Chinese advance, but not to turn the tide of battle, especially at Lang Son.

This inexplicable refusal to use the best troops is akin to the mystifying Vietnamese failure to attack the invaders with a qualitatively superior air force. It may be, as some US Air Force officers have suggested, that Vietnamese pilots have insufficient training in the support of ground operations.

The Chinese withdrawal across the frontier is scheduled by Peking to end by Wednesday. Military analysts said the movement could be complicated by two factors. The first is the logistical problem of moving the army with insufficient transport over poor roads. The second is the danger that the Vietnamese will hang on the flanks of the Chinese, cutting up small parties, shelling the columns and forcing the rear guard to turn and fight.

According to the analysts, Chinese warning that such operations could provoke a resumption of the invasion may restrain the Vietnamese. By late Monday no serious clashes had been reported.

This story uses the new Pinyin spelling for Chinese proper nouns. When traditional and Pinyin spellings differ, the traditional spelling appears in parentheses. Drew Middleton is the military correspondent for The New York Times.

At the height of the American war in Vietnam, Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., suggested that the United States simply announce that it had won the war and was withdrawing its forces. Are the Chinese, perhaps unconsciously, following the senators' advice? Military analysts in Washington, Tokyo and at North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters in Belgium reject this interpretation of the Chinese withdrawal.

There is no objective evidence in Washington that the

Great weekend for basketball

Basketball, to some minds, is the greatest game ever invented.

Based on the simple premise of putting a ball into a hoop, basketball easily outdistances football, baseball, tennis, track or soccer as a participant and spectator sport in America.

The game, played by both boys and girls from childhood until old age, is universally popular because it is both easy to practice and to play.

Only a durable rubber (or leather) ball and an iron hoop nailed to a piece of plywood are needed to transform the most common driveway or patio into a basketball court.

From a spectator's standpoint, few sports match basketball's excitement.

The action begins at the opening tip-off and continues virtually unabated for the entire game. Even penalties produce points.

And the basics of the game remain so simple, so straightforward, an unathletic audience can understand what is going on in the game without noticing the elements of finesse so evident to the connoisseur.

The game has infinite subtlety.

Strength, speed and height play essential roles in the game, but such delicate talents as dribbling a ball behind one's back and passing it without looking at its intended target contribute to the winning combination.

And a good actor is a priceless asset on a basketball court.

Yes, some sports fans doubt the supremacy of basketball as a spectator sport.

These skeptics should take their doubts to the College of Southern Idaho this week for a review of this game of games.

All day today, Friday and Saturday, the best small high school teams in Idaho will compete for the state A-4 championship.

The Murtough Red Devils and the Camas County Musers, two teams well known in southern Idaho, are the favorites.

High school basketball tends to generate the most passionate spectator participation of any game. The cheering, the crying, the performances beyond the natural talents of the athletes involved make high school basketball games a classic among sporting events.

Besides watching the A-4 state championships, basketball fans will get a chance to see the exceptional College of Southern Idaho Golden-Eagles compete for the Region 18 junior college title.

The CSI Eagles are favored to win the regional title and move one step closer to the national junior college tournament.

Leading CSI will be a number of players who certainly will become the stars of the NCAA in future years.

Basketball is a great game. This is a great weekend to view the wonders of the hardwood.

Carter's gamble

By HEDRICK SMITH
N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — As the White House sees it, President Carter's Middle East peace mission this week is a make-it-or-break-it venture with political significance for the president far beyond the delicate diplomacy of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

With one bold stroke at what seems the most critical moment of his presidency, Carter has a chance not only to assure a peace agreement but to rescue his domestic political fortunes with a dramatic display of leadership and to reverse the momentum of events abroad that has been running against Washington since the overthrow of the Shah of Iran.

But if the president's opportunity is great, both his allies and his rivals sense, he is taking grave risks. Some of Carter's advisors cautioned him about the diplomatic and political consequences of coming home without producing a peace pact. "To the extent that there was concern about his risking it," said one presidential aide, "it was concern that the president was rolling the dice — but then he was rolling the dice for the right reason."

It is a gamble that won immediate favor on Capitol Hill both from those who have lately been criticizing the president for weakness and irresolution, like Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and from those who have praised his "cool-headedness" under fire, like Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Almost to a man, politicians took it for granted that Carter had the deal all set. They assumed that he had not only won the consent of the Israeli cabinet and Prime Minister Menachem Begin for his compromise proposals, but he also knew before heading for Egypt that the terms were acceptable to President Anwar el-Sadat.

"I think he's taking some risk and if he's taking more risk than I think he's taking, he's crazy," Javits exclaimed. "I assume he already has assurances from the Egyptians that it's a likely deal. If he's going with the idea of selling the Egyptians, then he's taking a very, very, very big risk."

Judging by Begin's reaction at 10:45 Monday morning to a call from the White House — just after Carter had called Sadat, Jackson also said he presumed the deal was already struck. "Begin took a call while we were at Blair House — I don't know if it was from the president, but who else? — and he put it down all smiles," Jackson said. "He was a jubilant man. I put Begin's smiles and his trip here together, and I feel that the final touches must be there."

But the president's closest advisors insist that this line of reasoning is incorrect. While some of the new ideas have been discussed with Sadat in general terms, they say the Egyptian leader will not hear the specifics until Carter's special envoys — Dr. Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security advisor, and Ambassador Alfred L. Atherton, his Middle East mediator — reach Cairo Tuesday and then the president himself will have to do the persuading.

"Don't think that just because Jimmy Carter's going to Egypt, that he's got it all wrapped up now," cautioned one senior presidential aide. "Even if Sadat acquiesces to these terms, there are still other issues to settle."

Why then put his presidential prestige on the line and risk another blow to American influence after the setbacks of recent weeks? Why undertake such high profile diplomacy rather than inviting Sadat to Washington for another round of talks?

The president's reasoning, according to those around him, was that this was the moment to move and that he had to seize it personally once Israel accepted his proposals. Any time lag would have given eyes of a peace treaty elsewhere in the world and critics of its terms in Egypt and Israel a chance to mobilize and to sabotage what in Washington's eyes has become a last-ditch effort.

The diplomatic calculation is that, risky as it is, the highly exposed personal diplomacy of the president offers the best prospects for success. By going the second mile to Egypt and to Israel at his own suggestion, Carter is trying to accommodate Arab sensitivities and then move swiftly to close the circle, not just with Begin but the entire Israeli Cabinet so that the peace process cannot unravel once again.

"If there's an additional psychological burden on both sides to be more forthcoming if the president goes to see them," suggested one high administration official, "Sadat is not going to want to have Carter leave Egypt empty-handed," suggested one high administration official. The mechanics are 15 to 20 percent better this way than for Sadat to come here."

And though the president's intimates insist that it would be unreasonable for the president to engage in a mediating shuttle, a stop in each country would do much to ease suspicions on all sides. "We invited Sadat here now; it would look to the rest of the Arab world as though Carter and Begin were ganging up on him," said one official. "And if Carter and Sadat reached agreement, there would be rumblings and uneasiness in the Israeli Cabinet about where they stood. We know from experience that these agreements can be torpedoed by little things. So, having the president go to them, all at once, is the best way to handle it."

More reluctantly, the Carter entourage acknowledge the strategic and political factors that influenced the president. In the Near East and elsewhere, the United States has been badly buffeted and has needed some opening to dramatically demonstrate its power and to reverse what one official termed "the negative momentum" of events.

Politically, the president has been so hurt by the recent strain in relations with Israel and the controversy over his brother Billy's remarks about American Jews that some around him doubt that he can ever recover among the American Jewish community unless he produces an Egyptian-Israeli peace pact.

More broadly, the polls show his approval ratings at an all-time personal low of 37 percent and his foreign policy less popular than that of Richard Nixon. Some have read this as evidence that Carter had to take some bold and activist initiative, and that after resisting pressures for intervention in Iran, he had his best opening in the Middle East.

Some politicians think that Carter will benefit whether he fails or succeeds on his peace mission simply because he attempted it. But within the White House, a few influential aides regard this as a make-it-or-break-it venture in which Carter must succeed or his standing as steward of American foreign policy will be permanently impaired. They fear the ultimate alternative to success is another war in the Middle East and new Arab oil embargoes that will not only disrupt the American economy but maim Carter politically. Others in the Carter entourage, noting the sudden progress of the arms talks with Moscow and a favorable House vote on a critical trade issue, are now hoping that the eyes of events has begun to turn in Carter's favor. "This man's been a hard-luck president," observed Church. "If he can pull it off, I hope he can get the full measure of credit."

But with sarcastic humor, one of his close associates betrayed a touch of skepticism on that score. "If there's a peace treaty," he joked, "it will be those two nations that made it happen. And if there isn't, it'll be our fault."

Carter rebuilds Israeli link

WASHINGTON — "This will bring you luck," said Menachem Begin at the Blair House kosher dinner on Friday night, offering President Carter a piece of challah, a traditional yellow bread with braided crust, that had just been blessed.

In that case, you'd better give me a big piece," said the president, only half joking. At this stage of the Middle East negotiations, Carter needed both fresh luck and a change of tactics.

Evidently the president realized that he has been badly advised since the Camp David euphoria of last fall. His first blunder was to fail to let Egypt and Israel conclude their separate peace immediately. Instead, he broke the momentum with the disastrous "Saunders mission" to the Mideast, which mobilized "moderate" Arabs and Palestinians into outspoken opposition to the Sadat agreements.

Carter's second blunder was to plank the face of Egypt's backing away from the accord, to side with Egypt and to seek to jam an "ifly" peace treaty down Israeli throats. Even Carter's supporters concede that this December display of petulance was not only foredoomed, but introduced a new fear of American unreliability to Israel at just the wrong moment.

His third blunder was to pretend, right up until this past weekend, that the differences between Egypt and Israel were "insignificant," as if by minimizing the changes sought by Sadat he could make them disappear. Common sense suggests that if Sadat did not consider the changes he demanded significant, he would not have insisted upon them.

What caused the president to change his tactic from one-sided on Israel? One reason was the stark fact that the only Mideast leader he could get to accept his invitation to come to Washington was Begin.

King Hussein, a long-time American friend, not only refused to join the talks at any stage, but publicly humiliated the U.S. president by issuing a list of questions, to which Carter meekly replied.

Prince Faisal of Saudi Arabia, who had been successfully demanding our most sophisticated jets, repaid American kindness with a whopping oil price hike and the pointed cancellation of his trip to Washington; when the White House tried to explain that the cause was really the prince's diabetes, the prince made it known that the snub was intended to be a snub.

Sadat refused to attend another summit at Camp David, since he could hardly adopt a position less demanding than the pro-Egyptian position the Americans had been pressing on the Israelis.

Therefore, Carter — with few-chocks left to turn — had reason to be grateful to Begin for honoring his invitation, thereby giving the White House a decent excuse to duck an embarrassing couple of dinners with angry Democrats in California.

Other reasons crowded in for colling off the heavy-handed pressure on Israel.

(A) The U.S. public, and even U.S. officials, began to see how Israel was being asked to give up real security and real territory in return for a treaty that now had two gaping legal loopholes.

(B) The Jordanis, take it or leave it. Carter attitude had unified Israeli public opinion to resist an imposed settlement.

(C) Sadat's interest in signing after he left the heat from the Saudis, was obviously waning.

Some take a dim view of Koch's plan

NEW YORK (UPI) — The budget-minded administration of Mayor Edward Koch has dimmed the lights at City Hall — to the howls of secretaries, reporters and even deputy mayors.

The 167-year-old sandstone and marble building began assuming the appearance of a dusky, medieval monastery last week as custodial workers started replacing one light bulb after another with ones of lower wattage.

Diane Coffey, the mayor's chief of staff, said Wednesday that the complaints began immediately.

"Everybody's kicking and screaming," she said.

"I can't see," complained one secretary working under a newly dimmed lamp hanging several feet above her from her office's two-story-tall ceiling. "I had a headache all day yesterday."

Robert Hummel protest bishops' decision

Bishop defrocks homosexual priest

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The Roman Catholic bishop of Richmond has defrocked a self-avowed homosexual priest, saying a homosexual lifestyle is not compatible with a priest's vow of celibacy.

Bishop Walter F. Sullivan made the decision to defrock Robert Hummel, 33, Tuesday, several months after a newspaper published a conversation with Hummel on his sexual preference and its implications on the church.

"By choosing a homosexual lifestyle, he has, in effect, withdrawn from active ministry as a priest of the church," Sullivan said. "All priests have made commitments to lives of celibacy and have freely chosen to be bound by the church's discipline.

"Although we do not condone the homosexual lifestyle, we should not at the same time condemn nor punish the homosexual," Sullivan said. "Father Hummel knew the consequences of his action when he made his public announcement."

Hummel said Tuesday that Sullivan may have "leaped to an erroneous conclusion based on the published reports."

The priest said his preference for a homosexual lifestyle did not mean "I have broken my vow of celibacy. I have made no public statement about that."

Margaret Trudeau featured

NEW YORK (UPI) — Margaret Trudeau's husband slugged her after she left him but it gave her pleasure because "it showed he really loved me," a Ladies Home Journal article released Wednesday said.

Mrs. Trudeau also reveals she and her husband, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, agreed before they were married that he would not pay ransom if she were kidnapped.

Further, she said she believes he always held against her some of the things she told him before they were married about her past, including a fling with drugs in Mexico.

About the fight that resulted in her getting a black eye, she said, "Actually, I was quite pleased. It was the first time in a very long while that I'd been able to really get a response from Pierre. It showed that he really loved me."

"In a strange way, it made us closer. I'd wanted more time and attention than Pierre was able to give me and I guess I felt this was his way of showing he cared."

The magazine said Trudeau hit his wife in a fight sometime after they separated in May 1977, agreeing not to say anything to embarrass the other and to keep low profiles.

"Margaret's much publicized visits to discotheques, touring with the Rolling Stones, and interviews in which she sometimes was more than frank than she should have been; obviously bent the understanding. It resulted in Margaret getting a black eye," the Journal article says.

Billy must pay $242 a day for alcoholism treatment

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Billy Carter, the president's beer-guzzling brother, was paying $242 a day Wednesday for treatment for alcoholism at the Navy Hospital which treated former first lady Betty Ford and Sen. Herman Talmadge of Georgia.

Carter, 41, was flown to the Navy's Alcoholic Treatment Center Tuesday from a Georgia hospital where he had been under treatment for bronchitis.

Tandy Rice, Carter's booking agent and president of Top Billing Inc., said

Carter would remain at the Navy hospital for five to eight weeks and would personally pay for the treatment which the hospital said would amount to $242 per day.

"The tempo, stress and strain of Billy's life, as evidenced by the events during the last six weeks, have built to a frenzied crescendo," Rice said. "The pressure on Billy increased daily and Billy gave in to it."

"The strain of the Libyan issue and the unfortunate statement concerning Jews has been enormous. All of this, compounded by Billy's health problems, has been difficult for Billy to handle."

Carter was criticized for alleged anti-Jewish statements he made in connection with a U.S. tour by officials of the Libyan government.

Capt. Joseph Pirsch, head of the alcohol unit at the medical facility and one of the nation's top medical authorities on alcoholism, said in a prepared statement that Carter "has been admitted as a voluntary patient" and will be under treatment.

Prostitutes in the House

LONDON (UPI) — An unusual group of women voters visited the House of Commons to press their case, but to the relief of their clients they refrained from threats to contribute to the debate.

The ladies, more familiar with the streets outside than the public gallery, applauded when a bill to liberalize prostitution passed its first reading by 134 to 50 despite vigorous opposition from a Protestant clergyman.

The bill is unlikely to get any further action and become law because so many others are ahead of it.

But the result must have delighted not only the prostitutes in the gallery but also their high placed clients.

The campaigning prostitutes had threatened to name some of their important customers if the bill was defeated. But immediately after the vote, a spokeswoman said there was now "no need" to tell all.

Marvin promises new view

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Lee Marvin says the court is going to get a look at his six-year relationship with Michelle Marvin "from a different perspective" when he testifies again today in the landmark property settlement case.

Marvin appeared on the witness stand earlier in the lengthy trial but that was under questioning by Miss Marvin's attorney, Marvin Mitchellson, and the actor's lawyer was limited in cross examination to subjects that Mitchellson had raised.

He was scheduled to begin what is expected to be several days of testimony Thursday.

Marvin told reporters that his story this time around would go into a number of aspects of his 1964-1970 affair with the former supperclub singer that did not come up during her testimony or his previous appearance.

Asked whether he had any "surprises" in store, Marvin said his testimony would "include areas we haven't gone into before."

"I think the court is going to hear about this from a different perspective," Marvin said. "And the cross examination by Mitchellson should be interesting."

The trial was in recess Wednesday to give a 24-hour rest to Mitchellson who suffered a coughing spasm in court Tuesday and was taken to a hospital in an ambulance with an oxygen mask over his face. He was examined and released within a few hours. Doctors said he had "a little touch of bronchitis."

The court clerk said Mitchellson had telephoned Wednesday morning "to report that he was feeling all right but that his doctor had recommended a day off."

The trial was in its eighth week and tempers on both sides have become frayed.

Voyager discovers ring of space debris around Jupiter

Thursday, March 8, 1979

Brad Smith of Voyager 1 team describes Jovian ring, shown in artist's depiction

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Voyager 1 has discovered a flat ring of rocky space debris several miles thick orbiting the planet Jupiter, scientists reported Wednesday.

The startling find makes Jupiter the third planet in the solar system known to be encircled by chunks of ice or rock. Saturn's spectacular rings were discovered in 1610 and rings were seen around Uranus two years ago.

The outer edge of Jupiter's ring begins 34,000 miles from the top of the planet's turbulent clouds. The width of the ring is unknown but extends at least 5,400 miles in toward Jupiter.

The discovery was an unexpected scientific bonus in the robot spacecraft's journey of exploration. It already has returned more than 16,500 pictures of Jupiter and five of its moons, and the probe is now headed toward a November 1980 rendezvous with Saturn and its spectacular ring system.

Jupiter's ring has been invisible from Earth because of its thinness and its transparency when viewed from any angle except straight on.

Dr. Bradford A. Smith, of the University of Arizona and head of the scientists analyzing Voyager's pictures, said the ring was spotted during a single long-shot look Sunday for a possible ring around Jupiter in the planet's equatorial plane.

"We were very lucky," he said at a news conference at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory control center. "Incredibly, the edge of the ring fell within our field of view."

The lens on Voyager's telescopic camera was left open 112 seconds and, thanks to a slight nodding motion of Voyager, the resulting picture produced six edge-on images of the ring. Each appeared as a bright line across a dark background.

Smith said it was not known how far the ring extended in toward Jupiter. The size of the particles also was not known, but Smith estimated that they orbit Jupiter every 7 hours.

"As an intuitive guess, we're talking about pieces of rock that may be tens of meters or perhaps hundreds of meters," he said.

He said the ring thickness could be no more than 18 miles thick, and probably was considerably less thick.

How the ring was formed is also a mystery. But Smith said it could be material left over from when Jupiter formed 4.5 billion years ago, or it could be debris from the break up of a satellite that wandered too close to Jupiter. The gravitational forces of Jupiter are so strong that a moon within 65,000 miles of the planet's clouds would be crushed by tidal stress—the little potato shaped moon Amalthea, the first known satellite out from Jupiter, circles the planet at an average distance of 70,000 miles.

Dr. Bruce A. Murray, a planetary scientist who heads JPL, said the find was the result of "an extraordinarily elegant job of using the opportunity and the spacecraft equipment just exactly right."

Saturn's rings were discovered by Italian astronomer Galileo in 1610. He didn't realize what they were and reported seeing "cup handles" in his rudimentary telescope.

Uranus' rings were discovered

March 10, 1977 by Cornell University astronomer James Elliot while observing Uranus through a telescope aboard a space agency airplane converted into a flying laboratory.

Scientist pooh-poohs fear of experiments

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. James D. Watson, Nobel-prize winner who helped unravel the code of life — DNA — sees no more reason to fear experiments with genes "than there is to panic about the Loch Ness Monster."

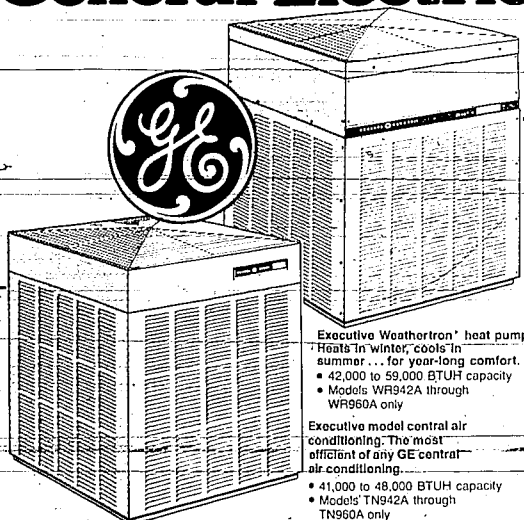

Some scientists and laymen have expressed fear that mixing DNA from different genes, called recombinant DNA research, might produce a monster disease or terrifying new life forms.

Reporting in the current issue of "Nature," a British science journal, Watson urged British and American government officials to stop interfering with recombinant DNA experiments. The laboratory work, genetic engineering, aims at ways to tame puzzling diseases, including cancer.

New Chrysler chief pitches for switch

DETROIT (UPI) — Lee A. Iacocca, who was dubbed "The Father of the Mustang" when he was a top executive for Ford Motor Co., is making a personal appeal to Mustang owners to join him in switching to Chrysler Corp. Iacocca, who became Chrysler president four months ago after being fired from a similar position at Ford, sent letters to 550,000 Ford owners suggesting they trade in their cars for Chryslers.

Mustang drivers got this pitch: "The car you now own is a good one. I'm proud to have had a hand in its development. However, it may now be time to replace your Mustang. If it is, I know you will find it to your advantage to consider the Dodge Omni 024 as a superlative replacement." A four-color brochure describing Chrysler cars is enclosed along with Iacocca's personal business card. Iacocca's customer pitch is only the latest in a series of maneuvers directed against the company that employed him for 32 years before he was unceremoniously dumped by Henry Ford II. He also has recruited three former Ford executives and stolen away one of its main advertising agencies. A Chrysler spokesman said the mail campaign was Iacocca's own idea and the firm has never before used such a personal touch in trying to lure customers.

Jet fuel pinch grounds some flights

By United Press International Texaco Inc. announced Wednesday it would begin allocating jet fuel as United, Eastern, Delta and Continental Airlines canceled more passenger flights to conserve fuel for their heavily traveled routes. Although the 10-week shutdown of Iranian oil production triggered the jet fuel crunch and other oil shortages, the new Iranian government indicated it would export more oil daily than most U.S. experts had banked on.

United, based in Chicago, said it is seeking regulatory approval for a 1.2 percent hike in all fares — effective May 15 — to offset the higher cost of fuel, labor and other goods. United boosted fares 0.7 percent in January. American Airlines also has proposed a 4 percent across-the-board fare increase, effective May 15. In White Plains, N.Y., Texaco — a major jet fuel supplier — said it would allocate aviation supplies starting Friday on the basis of 80 percent of each customer's estimated requirements for this month or their actual purchases in March 1979. Shell Oil, which supplies 25 percent of United's jet fuel, has restricted deliveries to 100 percent of the 1978 level on a month-to-month basis. Standard Oil of Indiana, a supplier for Northwest, is allocating its jet fuel at 80 percent but said "there has been no interruption of airline service because of our supply problems."

A spokesman for Houston-based Exxon USA, which has not allocated aviation fuel, said it is "continuing to assess its supply capability in light of the Iranian crude oil production cutback." Meanwhile, Phillips Petroleum Co. said it had revised its gasoline allocation program to 75 percent of the base amount from the earlier level of 70 percent. The Bartlesville, Okla., company said a change in the Energy Department's base period for gasoline allocation had prompted the revision — not greater availability of gasoline supplies.

If the United and American moves are a bellwether of future trends, Americans could find the rising cost of world crude oil reflected in higher domestic airline fares. United has suspended 429 departures, or slightly more than 3 percent of its 12,000 weekly flights, for the rest of March because of the jet fuel shortage. About half of the 429 affected United flights are weekend departures. Miami-based Eastern, which canceled 31 of its lightly traveled flight "legs" between cities Tuesday, said it will decide daily which en-route stops to eliminate on the basis of a read-out

MOSCOW (UPI) — The economic counsel to the Japanese Embassy told the University of Idaho's Borah Symposium Tuesday that strategic cooperation between the United States and Japan must not be disrupted by economic conflicts. "This cooperation is vital for peace in Southeast Asia," said Kotchi Matsura, who noted that the economies of Japan and the U.S. are intertwined and complementary. "There is $37 billion in combined trade between the two nations," he said.

Also addressing the symposium was Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, who said the U.S. must turn more towards strengthening its internal economy, rather than relying on "any international-trade system rigged in our favor." "The collapsing dollar abroad finally brought home a painful truth — that America's economic position in the world has been seriously eroded over the year and a fundamental change in our outlook is long overdue," Church said. The Idaho senator said the erosion of America's economic preponderance is directly related to a single-minded concentration since World War II on this nation's global power struggle with the Soviet Union. "If we are seeing the end of an American era, it is not because we have lost the superpower race with the Soviet Union over strategic superiority, but because we are losing our capacity to compete with our allies," Church said.

Smoking American easier in China

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — American-made Viceroy, Kool and Kent cigarettes soon will be sold in China. Plans to sell the cigarettes to China were announced Tuesday by Roy E. Barrell, vice president of the Louisville-based international division of Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. "We are pleased to have the opportunity to sell our brands in this new market environment with such vast potential," Barrell said. B&W's parent company, B.A.T. Industries, has reached agreement to sell English and German cigarettes in China, according to Barrell. Barrell declined to specify how many cigarettes will be sold to China under the initial agreement, but called the order "significant." The initial order calls for selling Viceroy King size and 100's, Kools and Kent King size and deluxe 100's, Barrell said.

Carter given strong sendoff

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market was President Carter's routing end on his make-or-buy Middle East peace mission Wednesday by staging a broad-based rally. Trading was active.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up about 12 points at one time, rose 7.71 points to 834.29. Analysts said late profit taking and a report that Mexico would raise oil prices soon trimmed the gain. The Dow climbed 11.61 points on Monday before slipping 0.78 point Tuesday.

The New York Stock Exchange index climbed 0.34 to 55.22 and the price/earnings share jumped 19 cents. Advances routed declines, 1,088 to 383, among the 3,119 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Also adding the market were reports that post-revolution Iran soon will produce between 3 and 4 million barrels of oil a day. While the total is below Iran's previous level of 5.5 million barrels, it is higher than many observers had anticipated. Iran resumed exporting Monday after a 69-day shutdown.

Leading OPEC officials said the price hikes by member countries to make up for the Iranian shortfall would be temporary. Buyers reportedly were beginning to resist high spot-market prices.

On foreign exchanges, the dollar lost ground against Japanese and European currencies. Gold was higher.

Big Board volume totaled 29,930,000 shares, up from the 24,490,000 traded Tuesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter at 4 p.m. totaled 31,770,230 shares, compared with 25,697,000 Tuesday.

The American Stock Exchange

index rose 0.67 to 164.82 and the price of a share jumped 5 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ OTC index gained 1.18 to 125.61.

At 4 p.m., UV Industries was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 33 1/2 following block trades of 110,000, 200,000 and 150,000 shares at 34 each. The firm, which has announced liquidation plans, is fighting a takeover bid by Sharon Steel. Sharon Steel stock gained 3/4 to 22 on the Amex.

Seaboard Coast Line Industries was the second most active issue, unchanged at 25 following a block trade of 356,000 shares at 24 1/2. Great Western Financial was third, up 1/2 to 26 1/2.

Gambling stocks attracted attention. Caesar's World, the fourth most active NYSE issue, climbed 1/4 to 52. Playboy Enterprises gained 1/4 to 20 1/2. Hilton Hotels 3/4 to 26 1/2, and Del E. Webb 5/8 to 20.

Among the blue chips, Du Pont rose 1/4 to 133 1/2. General Motors 1/4 to 55 1/2. Union Carbide 1/4 to 38 1/2 and International Paper 3/4 to 44.

Exxon, another blue-chip issue, gained 3/4 to 51 1/2 in active trading. Exxon Tuesday revealed a sharp cutback in its gasoline allocations. Seaboard, which provides specialized services for oil drillers and producers, gained 1/4 to 99. Other energy related issues were mixed.

Imperial Corp. of America, a 4 1/2-point winner Tuesday, shed 2 1/2 to 21 1/2. Reliance Group revealed it had bought 1 million ICA shares Tuesday, bringing its holdings to 20 percent in the firm. Reliance stock added 3/4 to 38 1/2.

Warm weather measures only a bit above normal

KIMBERLY — Although the past two days may have seemed extra warm, take it from the National Weather Service it's nothing unusual.

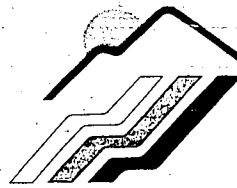

The all-time record high for March was 80 degrees recorded in 1928 while 1976 had a high March reading of 76 degrees.

High reading in Kimberly Tuesday was 54 and about the same temperature was reported by mid-afternoon Wednesday. Record high for March is 69 degrees in 1968 while high for March 7 is 66 degrees recorded in 1956.

William Galkin of the National Weather Service in Kimberly said temperatures are actually pretty close to normal. Normal is around 48 degrees for the high and 26 for the low.

He said the reason it seems warm to Magic Valley residents is the fact January was so cold and February was cold and cloudy. Normally February has some warm sunny weather.

As for precipitation, Galkin said it is still a little below normal for the water year with 3.2 inches recorded since Oct. 1 when the new water year began. This is 1.01 inches below normal, he said. As yet only 13 of an inch has fallen in the month of March. Since much of the moisture in January fell on frozen ground and ran into creeks, canals and river channels, Galkin said the soil moisture is probably well below normal, too. He said while fields are still wet, the moisture probably does not extend very far down.

Advice on 1% sought

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Public hearings will be held March 12 and 26 to gather public advice on where the City of Twin Falls should make cuts to comply with the 1 percent initiative.

Council member Mary McClusky, chairperson of a special committee studying city government to determine where cuts are feasible, announced the dates of hearings Monday.

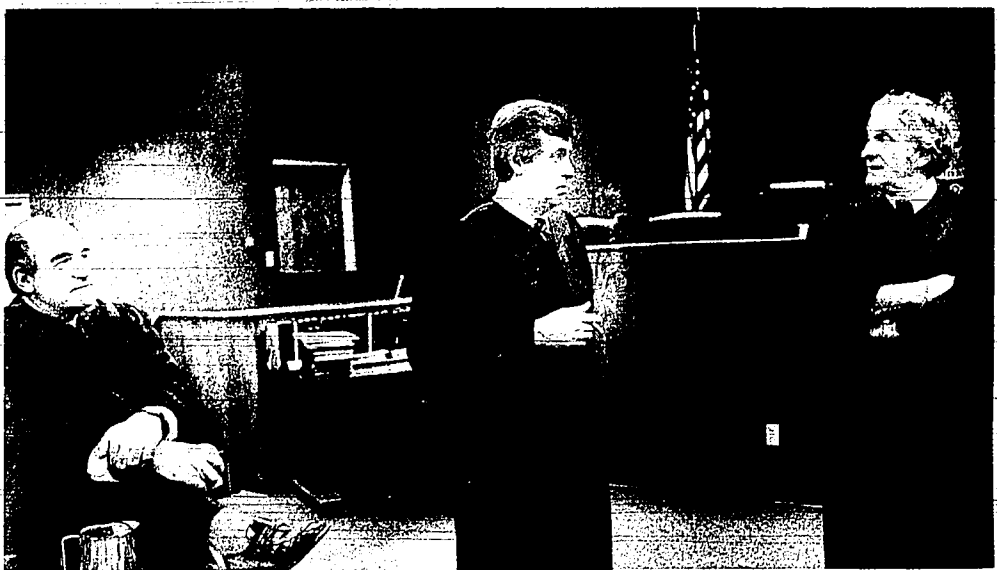

Both hearings will be at the City Hall at 7:30 p.m. McClusky asked that all comments, even those delivered orally, be submitted in written form to the committee at the hearings.

The committee was formed in December to come up with proposals for trimming either city services or personnel or both to prepare for the reduced revenues anticipated as a result of the initiative.

The committee has already met with representatives of each department of city government, and once public comment has been gathered, the committee will present its findings and proposed solutions to the rest of the council.

McClusky said the public will be given a final chance to comment sometime after that and before a final solution is adopted.

Councilmen Jim Smallwood and Chris Talkington also serve on the committee.

Blue Lakes N. to be patched

TWIN FALLS — "Ask and you shall receive" is not the motto of the Idaho Department of Highways, but that's what happened when the Twin Falls City Council wanted a street patched up.

Monday, at the urging of councilman Hank Woodall, the council unanimously agreed to ask the highway department to smooth out the bumps and fill in the gaping potholes in Blue Lakes Boulevard North between the North Five Points intersection and Heyburn Avenue.

When the Times-News contacted the district highway department office in Shoshone Wednesday afternoon, the city's request had not yet been received.

But about an hour later, maintenance superintendent Bill Thomason said a crew would begin repairing the street this morning, weather permitting.

"We're going to dig out the holes and patch it up as good as we possibly can," Thomason said.

He added that the street may need a complete resurfacing and if so he predicted the job would be done this year.

He said the street was supposed to be repaired last year by a contractor involved with a street widening project in that area but was not finished before bad weather set in.

High court atmosphere changes

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The once rigid and formal atmosphere surrounding the State Supreme Court has been relaxed somewhat in recent years, although the high degree of dignity continues.

On Dec. 4 of last year a seven-month experiment began which allows cameras in the court room when Idaho Supreme Court Justices are in session in Boise.

The new policy applies in Boise only, and did not carry over into sessions in Twin Falls this week, but Justices were agreeable to the requests of photographers after the formal session was adjourned for the day.

The broadcast and photographic coverage of proceedings was limited to the Supreme Court building's courtroom in Boise and guidelines were set to maintain the dignity of the court proceedings. Television cameras are restricted to the pressbox overlooking the courtroom and still cameras may be used from seats in the courtroom providing they are unobtrusive. Camera coverage is restricted to the working press.

Since facilities are far more limited in the district courtrooms where the Supreme Court meets while holding sessions in various parts of the state, the experimental program was designated for Boise's sessions only.

Officials say depending on recommendations following the experiment, other sessions may be open to such coverage in the future.

The pilot program which goes as far as allowing television filming of actual court sessions is a seven-month trial. It was approved as an experiment following a study and report of a 16-member committee on coverage of Supreme Court proceedings. When television camera crews, newspaper photographers and radio men moved into the courtroom Dec. 4 in Boise, it was the first live photo and radio recording of Idaho Supreme Court proceedings in the history of the state.

Justice Joseph J. McFadden headed the 16-member committee which recommended the cameras in the Boise courtroom.

The report recommended, and the Supreme Court justices approved, that the court should open its formal proceedings for broadcast and photographic coverage. The advisory committee which included judges, lawyers and representatives of the news media, expressed the belief the procedure would be an educational one which would enlighten the public about the judicial process. The committee also said such coverage would heighten public awareness of legal rights and responsibilities.

Supreme Court justices said the coverage of the December session in Boise was characterized by professionalism and cooperation on the part of the media with court officials. A Salt Lake City television station filmed some of the proceedings for a special feature. Boise State University's business School Marketing Department is preparing an evaluation of the effects of camera coverage and the Supreme Court will review the entire program at the end of the seven months.

"It has been only a few years ago that not only the Supreme Court but many district courts would not permit persons to enter the courtroom unless they were dressed in what the court considered proper attire. No newspapers, magazines or other reading material could be carried into the courtroom and never a camera, even though it was not going to be used, according to the word of the individual carrying it. Most judges still insist on respect and courtesy in the courtroom and persons planning to attend the Supreme Court sessions should keep this in mind or they may be asked by the bailiff to leave."

Supreme Court sessions in Twin Falls as well as Boise are always open to the public and many area schools take advantage of attending sessions in Twin Falls to help students better understand the state's court system and proceedings.

Justices to hear crop and personal damage suits

TWIN FALLS — Sessions of the Idaho Supreme Court, covering appeals from 5th Judicial District Court judgments and verdicts, will conclude Friday morning or early afternoon and the five justices will return to Boise.

They will ponder the appeals that were argued in Twin Falls and sender decisions within the next several weeks.

A total of 15 cases handled by 5th District Judges were appealed for the current session.

First on today's agenda at 9 a.m. will be the appeal in the case of Anderson and Natziger versus G.T. Newcomb Inc. involving alleged crop damages from the late delivery of sprinkler irrigation systems.

At 10:30 a.m. the court has scheduled arguments on a personal injury damage suit brought by Kenneth G. and Lillian Mann against Javier Francisco Gonzales and E.M. Gulbranson.

The Manns appealed the jury verdict which denied Mrs. Mann any damages for injuries suffered in an auto accident. The afternoon case for today involves Les and Diane McNeill who appealed action by the district court denying them settlement in the alleged irregularities in the sale of a motor boat to them by Joe Gister of G. and G. Manufacturing and Sales Co.

Wednesday sessions concluded about 3:30 p.m. after the high court heard oral arguments in another three cases. One involved a personal injury damage claim in which the district court found no negligence on the part of the defendant and which was appealed by the plaintiffs, another personal injury claim involving a fall down the stairs of a Sun Valley condominium and the appeal of a property settlement.

Boycotting bean growers threaten blacklist

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Seed companies that don't change their ways and their contracts may find their names on a growers' blacklist, bean farmers warned Tuesday.

Seed bean growers who are boycotting bean companies by refusing to sign 1979 crop contracts said this week if the boycott fails, they may beef up their protest with the list.

Contract Beans, Inc., a 240-member seed bean growers group, launched the boycott last month. The main objective of the group, whose members equal about half of the Magic Valley seed bean growers, is to get rid of "germination clauses," a common contract feature which says companies do not have to pay for a crop if it doesn't meet certain quality standards set by the company.

The growers say they are unfairly blamed for seed failures, which they claim are usually the fault of the company that develops the seed. An estimated 90 percent of the country's bean seed is grown in the Magic Valley.

Only a handful of Magic Valley's 20 seed companies are guilty of unfair termination practices, according to the growers.

members Tuesday if those companies don't change their contracts, they may be singled out in a detailed list of contracting practices to be compiled later this year.

The Tuesday meeting was the first time the group's members met to discuss the "voluntary" contract boycott.

Growers expressed mixed reactions to the boycott. Some said it should go farther, while others said they fear it will do more harm than good.

"This meeting is ridiculous unless we say the boycott is mandatory," said one grower. "Now is the time to put some teeth into it."

But the directors shied away from that step, claiming they need more growers behind them. The 10 directors of the growers group are bound to honor the boycott, and other members are being asked to do so voluntarily.

"If we sit hard on a boycott, we'd see some tractors blown up, some drills filled with cement and maybe even some tar and feathering," warned board member Louis Reinke. "Our biggest enemy is amongst ourselves."

Warned another grower, "We'll sit here and boycott, and they'll go to our neighbors and sign a contract. We'll be out in the cold."

"Instead of an official strike, most members said the group should increase its membership and bargaining power. The membership also unanimously called for a target 7 percent increase in contract prices this year."

Most companies are sticking with last year's prices, both company officials and growers said. Seed companies responded to the boycott Wednesday with little or no comment.

Rogers Bros. Co. President Harvey Mouth refused to comment on whether his company, or Gallatin Valley Seed Co., owned by Rogers, had been affected by the boycott.

Northrup King Production Manager Mack Maupin said he doesn't know what the boycott will mean to his company, which hasn't offered 1979 contracts yet.

But one seed company official, who preferred not to be named, said his company is negotiating for bean acreage outside the Magic Valley, and might contract a lesser percentage of its beans here, "depending on what happens in the next 60 days."

"It's not just price; it's because of reluctance to sign and support of this organization (Contract Beans, Inc.)," the official said.

company commented such a move would be "a pretty drastic step" and one that could cost more than it would save in the long run.

According to Contract Beans Inc. Board Chairman Dee Kecker, the proposed "blacklist" would be a way to make growers aware how companies stand on various grower concerns, including germination requirements, date of payment and milling practices. The list would help growers choose a company with which to contract.

While Kecker predicted such a list could include "every company one way or another," growers said some companies are worse than others.

Growers say companies are not paying them when they turn in their crops.

Fire damages home

WENDELL — Fire of an unknown origin caused about $1,500 damage to a home in Wendell Wednesday afternoon.

The fire at the home of Wanda Martinez, 220 5th Ave. E., started around noon Wednesday and burned a corner of a bedroom before members of the Wendell Volunteer Fire Department could extinguish the flames.

Fire Chief George Wahler said there was little structure damage to the house but extensive smoke and heat damage to the contents. Wendell Police Chief Otis Lumpkin said an 8-month old child received minor burns in the fire.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Joint panel approves 11 mills of tax relief

BOISE (UPI) — In a measure that may get this session of the Legislature on the trail to final adjournment, the House Revenue and Taxation Committee called for introduction Wednesday of a bill to cut property taxes 11 mills.

A companion measure would dedicate any surplus in the general fund at this fiscal year to further, but one, school tax relief. The committee also referred to the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee still another bill which would cut property taxes an additional 2 mills.

Because the 11-mill bill requires an appropriation of $29,975,000 from the state's general fund to replace revenues lost by eliminating property taxes at the local level it is one of the keys to final adjournment.

By sending that amount of money back to the local level, the Legislature would be cutting-back—an equal amount of funds available for state spending next year.

The 2-mill bill referred to the joint budget committee would cost an estimated $5,450,000 in state funds. A House-Senate subcommittee that drafted the tax cuts questioned whether there would be more than $30 million available for tax relief and recommended the budget committee decide if the state can afford the additional $5.4 million.

Because of their impact on the general fund the tax cut bills are considered a key to final adjournment. Once the Legislature and the governor agree on tax cuts they can start final work on next year's budget — the last major stumbling block to adjournment.

Before the Revenue and Taxation

Committee voted to introduce the tax cut — which is aimed at phasing in the 1 percent property tax initiative — Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, questioned the philosophy of the bill.

— High — a member of the House-Senate subcommittee that drafted it, said it takes only $26 million — not $30 million — to reduce property taxes 11 mills. He said it contains $1 million worth of "sweeteners" for several school districts to make it more politically attractive.

The bill eliminates the last 4 mills of the old 9-mill county school levy. The last legislature cut off the first 4 mills. And it cuts the school maintenance and operation levy to 20 mills from 27. Funds lost locally are to be replaced by the state.

Meanwhile, the tax committee also called for introduction of a bill that will exempt junior college districts from the 1 percent initiative — allowing a majority of voters in them to override mill levy limits.

Option tax measure effectively killed

By DAVID MORRISSE
Times-News writer
BOISE — Idaho city governments were sent away empty handed Wednesday when a key House committee twice refused to grant powers of local option taxation.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee first killed House Bill 216. That measure would have given voters of local governments the right to approve local sales taxes, use taxes, income taxes, hotel-motel room occupancy taxes and liquor-by-the-drink taxes.

Mayor Ernest Starr argued in favor of the measure, insisting local governments needed some form of alternative taxation in order to deal with cutbacks mandated by the 1 percent initiative. "The people who voted for the 1 percent initiative were misled to a degree. They were told that the fat would be cut out of government and no basic services curtailed."

But in most city governments, Starr said, local property taxes go directly for urban services. Starr said "90 percent of our property taxes go for basic services." By reducing property taxes, the 1 percent initiative may end up reducing police and fire departments and other needed services.

Several committee members objected to some specific clauses within HB 216 while other committee members objected to the entire philosophy of allowing local option taxes. HB 216 was held in committee, thus effectively killing the bill.

The committee also held a second local option tax bill until Attorney General David Leroy could review sections of the measure and determine if they complied with requirements of the 1 percent initiative. HB 259, sponsored by Rep. Gordon Hoffield, R-Jerome, would give local governments the right to institute local option income taxes.

Under Hoffield's plan, individuals would be taxed on gross income or the assessed value of their property, whichever is most. According to Hoffield, his bill had been in effect last year "would have taken $150 million dollars off the property tax and put it on the income tax."

Hoffield said he expects an opinion from Leroy within the week.

Should Hoffield's measure be killed, then no local option taxation measures will remain before the Legislature.

Tie-breaker kicks off juco play

TWIN FALLS — Ricks and North Idaho, teams that split home court decisions during the season, meet in a rubber match at 4:30 p.m. today at CSI to see which will advance to the region 18 Junior college basketball tournament.

The winner moves to 3 p.m. Friday when it will take on Southwestern Oregon Community College with College of Southern Idaho meeting Chemeketa at 5 p.m. Those two winners play for the regional championship at 9 p.m. Saturday.

North Idaho ripped the Vikings by 29 points in Couer d'Alene while Ricks hung a seven-point loss on the Cardinals at Rexburg. They wound up tied for second among the four Idaho Junior colleges competing for the right to compete in post-season play.

Both teams usually like a little quicker pace to their basketball and of the two Ricks likes it faster. North Idaho Coach Rolfe Williams doesn't usually zone but would-against Ricks today because the Vikings will be more physical underneath — but not by much.

Ricks can be expected to zone.

Ricks will have a height advantage underneath with 6-10 Chris Owens at center and 6-6 Todd Anderson and 6-7 Larry Tobler at forward. North Idaho relies on a little better quickness in 6-5 Gordon Herbert, the team's leading scorer, and 6-3 Wendell Denton at forward. The center is 6-4 John Bell.

The challenge for Ricks will be in containing Claude Butler, North Idaho's quick guard. He will be facing Tony Oreino and/or Dave Seber most of the time. North Idaho's defensive guard is Scott Thomas.

Meanwhile, fans planning to attend the regional games are reminded that close cooperation will be needed to keep it and the state A-4 tournament, being held in conjunction, on a narrow time schedule.

Friday's regional openers will be at 3 and 5 p.m., sandwiched between two A-4 sessions. The A-4 meet will run at 11:30 and 1 p.m. and leave about 35 minutes between the last A-4 game and the first regional. The A-4 will resume at 7:30 p.m., again allowing only about a half hour for crowd exchange.

The high school consolation and third-place games will go at 1 and 2:30 p.m. Saturday with the Junior college consolation at 4:30 p.m. The A-4 finals are set for 7 p.m. with the regional finals to start between 9 and 9:30.

All attendees are asked to follow instructions to facilitate these transfers. The crowds in the gymnasium will be asked to leave through the north doors — seldom used — for balcony viewers and the lower ramp for those seated on the floor. Not until the gymnasium is emptied will the following section fans be allowed into the seating area.

To accommodate regional fans, ticket outlets have been set at the CSI bookstore, Shirley and Wyatt's and Osco drug. A ticket booth will be set up outside the gymnasium about 45 minutes prior to session starts. The remainder will be sold at the usual access doors.

A-4 tourney opens today

By RANDY FREY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — All the talk concerning who is the team to beat in the A-4 state basketball tournament will come to an end this morning as action begins in the annual tourney at the College of Southern Idaho.

A-4 coaches have been surveying Murtaugh, Camas County, Cascade and Nezperce are the teams to beat, but beginning at 1 p.m. today those teams will have to prove it on the court.

Four games will be played today, with defending champion Nezperce taking on Cascade in the opener followed by Camas County and Mackay at 2:30.

Spectators will then be asked to clear the gymnasium to make way for fans who wish to view the North Idaho-Ricks junior college battle for the final spot in Friday's Region tournament.

The same gym-clearing procedure will take place Friday.

Tonight at 7:30, A-4 action will resume with Plummer taking on Raft River followed by Murtaugh and Greenleaf-Friend's Academy at 9.

Greenleaf plays in the Western Idaho Conference, a league made up of both A-3 and A-4 schools. The Grizzlies finished second behind A-3 school McCall-Donnelly, which is headed to its state tourney.

The Grizzlies were the runner-ups in the District III tournament, losing to Cascade in the finals.

"I was that final game with Cascade, and I'm wondering how Cascade beat them," said Murtaugh coach Barry Berg.

"They are a good-looking ball team with about five kids who can handle the ball real well," he said.

Greenleaf coach Bill Burns said his team is going to have to play tough defense to win. "Any team which goes to state is good, so I think the team which plays the most consistent, hustling defense is the team which will win," Burns said.

The Grizzlies are paced by 6-2 senior Larry Choate, who is averaging 18.4 points and 10 rebounds per game.

Burns described his team leader as being "kind of skinny, but a player who makes the best of his size by getting good position."

Another team which likes to rely on its defense is Plummer High School, Raft River's first-round opponent.

The Pirates were co-champions of the North Star Conference with three other teams, but they swept through the District I tournament without a loss.

Plummer coach Warren Shepherd likes to use a balanced attack and let his defense dictate what the offense will do.

Allan Haas is the team's leading scorer, averaging 15 points per game, but in three tournament games all five Plummer starters were in double figures.

Plummer will be getting its first look at Raft River, a team which qualified for the tournament by beating Bliss in a battle of district runner-ups.

The Trojans, a run and gun team, will not use any new tricks in the tournament, said coach Olan Wallace.

To be successful, Wallace said Raft River will have to fast break and keep the tempo of the game in its favor. The Trojans will rely heavily on the success of their full-court press.

Another team which will press heavily is Nezperce, the District II champion.

The Indians finished second in the White Pine

Conference only to beat conference champion Deary twice in the season-ending tournament.

"We like to control the ball as much as possible and get some easy shots," said coach Terry Gorton.

"Mostly, we are a defensive-oriented team," he said. "We like to put on as much pressure as possible, using a lot of full-court pressing."

Clarke Bradley is the Indians' leading scorer and rebounder, averaging 19.8 points and 10.5 rebounds per game.

The Indians' first-round opponent will be Cascade, a team which will enter the tournament with a lot of question marks.

Since winning the District III title, coach Val Tyler has lost his top scorer and playmaker, Cary Gandy, for disciplinary reasons and may have lost his second-leading scorer, David Eisenbeis, due to a sprained ankle.

"We have some rebuilding to do after the year, not before a state tournament."

The key to Cascade's success may be winning the first game. The more time Eisenbeis has to heal, the better the Rambler's chances.

Also looking to win the first game is Mackay, which will open with Camas County. The Miners have split with Camas in two meetings, but the Miners win was much more convincing.

"We will have to plug up the middle and make them come out a little bit," said Mackay coach Mike Marinae. "The first game will be the big hurdle for us."

Ted Hensley is Mackay's big gun, averaging 13 points per game. Shane Rosentrance handles the rebounding chores, averaging 10 a game.

Games tomorrow will begin at 11:30 and 1 p.m. due to two college games in the afternoon. Night games will begin at the same times.

Wilson and Giles voted into shrine

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Lewis "Hack" Wilson, an awesome slugger comparable to anyone in baseball history but who couldn't handle Mr. Boozie, was voted into the Hall of Fame Wednesday along with Warren Giles, for 50 years a model of decorum and executive ability.

Wilson, whose drinking problem marred his career and tortured his life, holds two of the most imposing records in baseball — the National League record of 56 homers and the major league mark of 190 RBI, both set with the Chicago Cubs in 1930. Charlie Grimm, a member of the Veterans Committee of the Baseball Writers Association which voted in the two new members, described the RBI record as "unbreakable."

Giles, whose career spanned 50 years and included the general manager's job of the Cincinnati Reds, became the president of the National League in 1951. A cherubic, friendly man, Giles was a firm executive whose chief claim to fame was strengthening the authority of National League umpires. Former umpire Joeko Conlan describes him as "the best friend the umpires ever had."

Seventeen of the 18 members of the Veterans Committee participated in the voting with 13 votes needed for election. Wilson and Giles will be formally inducted into the shrine in Cooperstown, N.Y., Aug. 5, along with Willie Mays, for 22 years a star with the New York and San Francisco Giants and New York Mets, who was elected by a full vote of the BBWA last January.

The announcement was made by Ed Stack, president of the Hall of Fame, who said others who received at least one vote were Glenn Wright, Cyclone Joe Williams, Charlie Grimm, Jimmy Dykes, Lefty O'Doul, Vic Willis, Jake Daubert, Chuck Klein, Johnny Mize, Wilbur Cooper, Biz Mackey, Ray Dandridge, Fred Tenney, Fred Fitzsimmons, Urban Shocker, Babe Herman, Tom Yawkey and Walter Alston.

A 5-foot-6, 200-pound barrel of a man, Wilson batted .356 in the year he led his two famous records while with the Chicago Cubs in 1930.

His drinking problems, which often affected his play and also led to numerous off-the-field personal problems and bar room brawls, accounts for an uneven career performance. He hit .345 with 159 RBI the year before his great season and 261 with 61 RBI the following year. Wilson started his career with the Giants in 1923 and ended it with the Dodgers in 1934. He had a career batting average of .307 and 244 home runs.

Wilson's problems continued after his retirement from baseball and he died penniless in 1948.

Giles, who died last Feb. 7 at the age of 82, began his baseball career in Moline, Ill., after serving as a lieutenant and mortar platoon leader in World War I. He got his first job with Moline, moved on to St. Joseph in the St. Louis Cardinals' chain, then to Rochester and finally to the Reds.

Clemson will meet Old Dominion, a 63-61 winner over Wagner, in the second round Monday night.

Kentucky's Fred Cowen hit two free throws with 21 seconds remaining in regulation to make it 55-53 going into overtime. The Wildcats had trailed 55-49 with 1:25 left.

Kentucky pulled ahead 57-55 at the start of the extra time but lost the advantage for good as the Tigers scored six straight points en route to their 19th win in 23 starts.

Ohio State 80, St. John's 66.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Kelvin Ramsey scored 16 of his 19 points in the second half and Herb Williams added 16 points to lead Ohio State to an 80-66 victory over St. Joseph's (Pa.) Wednesday night in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Ohio State will meet Maryland, a 67-65 overtime winner over Rhode Island, in the second round Monday night.

The Buckeyes, 18-10, never trailed but blew a 10-point lead after scoring the first five baskets of the game. St. Joe then ran off 10 points to tie it 10-10, but Ohio State went ahead on a basket by Williams and slowly pulled away to lead 30-21 at the half.

Ramsey, who entered the game averaging 21 points, scored only two points in the first half. But found the range in the second half as Ohio State maintained a lead from 9 to 15 points most of the final minutes. The Buckeyes' biggest lead was 18 points.

Old Dominion 83, Wagner 81.

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Ronnie McAdoo grabbed an offensive rebound and scored with three seconds remaining Wednesday night to lift Old Dominion to a 83-81 comeback victory over Wagner in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

The Running Monarchs will meet Clemson, who defeated Kentucky 68-67 in overtime, in the second round Monday.

ODU was led by Tommy Branch with 23 points and McAdoo with 21. Tommy Conrad, who directed the offense, had 15.

Wagner, paced by center Howard Thompkins' 23 points, charged to a 36-28 lead at intermission. But ODU went on a 26-12 spurt in the first seven minutes of the second half and held on for its 22nd win against six defeats.

Wagner, making its first NIT appearance since entering Division I seven years ago, dropped to 21-7.

Thompkins knotted the score at 81-81 with 41 seconds remaining when he sank a seven-foot jumper

Nevada-Reno 62, Oregon State 61.

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Mike Gray hit a 20-foot jumper with seven seconds to play and added the winning point on a free throw to give Nevada-Reno a 62-61 victory over Oregon State Wednesday night in the opening round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Nevada-Reno advances to the second round against the winner of Thursday night's New Mexico-Texas A&M game.

Virginia 79, N.E. Louisiana 78.

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Jeff Lamp hit a six-foot jump shot with six seconds to go Wednesday night to lead Virginia past Northeast Louisiana 79-78 in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

The Cavaliers, 19-3, will meet the winner of Thursday night's Alabama-St. Bonaventure game.

It was the first time in eight tries the Cavaliers have won a postseason contest.

Utags over surprise of meeting USC Friday

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — The surprise was worn off for Utah State, but now Aggie coach Dutch Belnap must figure out a way to beat Southern California in the first round of the 1979 NCAA West Regional Playoffs Friday in Los Angeles.

"After we lost to Pacific in the championship game of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association playoffs, I was surprised to learn we'd been invited to play in the NCAA's," Belnap said.

"I was really looking for a bid from the NIT, following our loss last Saturday night. But now I'm excited. I think our players deserve this."

Belnap added, "I think we match up well against Southern Cal. I guess the big question is whether Cliff Robinson will play for the Trojans. But maybe we'll be better off if Robinson does play."

Robinson will be coming off a three week layoff with little practice.

"They've been playing better without him," Belnap said, noting USC has won its last six games since Robinson has been hurt. USC is now 19-8 after finishing second to UCLA in the Pacific-10 standings, while USC is 19-10 after losing to Pacific in the NCAA tournament.

Southern Cal will be a hard team for us to beat, especially with a hometown crowd," Belnap said.

"We'll have to have a peak performance, especially from our starters, to win."

The Aggies are led by 6-foot-3 senior guard Keith McDonald, and three forwards — Dean Hunter, Brian Jackson and Preston Ballas.

Filer finds bracketing tough

FILER — Filer Coach Wayne Humphrey has done some checking around and he feels that his Wildcats will have their work cut out for them when they participate in the A-3 state tournament in Idaho Falls today.

It is the consensus that Filer, Firth and McCall-Donnelly are playing in the toughest of the brackets. However, defending champion Westside, with three starters back from that team, is no slouch.

"I got a look at McCall last Friday and I felt they were definitely the best team up in that area," Coach Humphrey said. "Rimrock got the second spot there and I felt that Fruitland was about as tough as the other two — except Fruitland didn't make it."

And while Firth and McCall-Donnelly get most of the pre-tournament notice in the lower division, the coach says he's not overlooking Kamlah at all. "I talked with some people who said that Hobart grew about three inches this year — and he was a heckuva player at 6-1 in the tournament down here last year," he points out.

But the problem for today will be McCall-Donnelly, which racked up a solid 20-2 record through the season and district tournaments.

Guard Terry Banks, at 6-2, is considered as good as will be found and he is backed by Max Larowe. They average 18.1 and 16.1 points per game, respectively. Larowe is returning to the team by claiming the rebounding lead with 12 per game.

Smith will answer with top gun Tony Smith, a 6-1 senior capable of playing anywhere on the floor, and 6-8 junior Jay Decker. They have been the Wildcats showing the most scoring punch.

But Filer hasn't been a big scoring team although it plays strong defense to help offset that.

Win or lose today, Filer will take an either Firth or Kamlah Friday evening at the Bonneville high school gymnasium. Filer plays the 8:30 p.m. feature Thursday. If it wins, it will have the same time Friday night. If it loses, Filer will play at 7 p.m. Friday. The state finals are scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday with consolation being decided at 1 p.m. and the third-place playoff at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Burley, Buhl open state play

MAGIC VALLEY — Six Magic Valley teams are among 32 who enthusiastically set off in quest of state championships today.

In gymnasiums ranging from Nampa, Twin Falls, Pocatello and Idaho Falls the four state classifications will determine their "best" team of the year by Saturday night. But the truisms of basketball is that only four will end the season on a winning note.

In an unusual happenstance, only one of the Magic Valley entries will play in the afternoon. That one finds Camas County taking on Mackay at 2:30 p.m. in Twin Falls. Ratt River meets Plummer at 7:30 and Murtagh takes on Greenleaf Friends Academy at 9 p.m. in the remainder of the A-4 schedule.

The other three play the feature night games. Burley faces Meridian at Pocatello. Buhl tests Grangeville in Nampa and Filer meets McCall-Donnelly at Idaho Falls, all three starting at 8:30 p.m.

Scoring should be the major part of the Burley-Meridian matchup. Both teams like a fast pace and both have good perimeter shooters. They matchup well individually with Burley all-time scoring champion Gordon-Kerbs against Meridian's Mark Hansen. Inside Burley has Jeff Wright and Greg Burch and Meridian has Rick Cope.

Those, of course, aren't all the players on both sides but they have been consistent scorers. Both teams have lineups marked with good quickness. Of interest here would be Friday's possible matchups in the bracket.

Blackfoot and Borah will send their winner against the Meridian-Burley victor. Blackfoot has beaten Burley twice — the last time by a point in overtime — while Meridian holds decisions over Borah. But Burley and Borah haven't met. If that happens, Burley is capable of beating the Lions due to better quickness.

Buhl, trying to improve on their second-place showing of a year ago, will be meeting a tall team in Grangeville. In fact, the Bulldogs have a 6-8 player and he is one of the few who can look Buhl's Rolland Hansen in the eye. The major surprise here is that Grangeville is 9-9 against 22-6 for the Indians. It indicates that Buhl's other size — 6-3 Robin Jaker and 6-4 Dave Davis — will be pivotal on the boards. The Buhl guard-wing situation is more than adequately taken care of by Jim Smuty and Vince Hamilton.

Butler named Big Sky MVP

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State's AM-Big Sky Conference guard Lawrence Butler, the NCAA's top scorer this season with a 30.1 average, has been named by conference coaches the league's most valuable player for 1978-79.

Butler collected six of eight votes to beat out Weber State's 7-1 center Richard Smith for the honor. Smith, a junior, also was named to the Big Sky Conference first team.

Junior forward Mark Stevens of Northern Arizona was selected the conference's top newcomer as he beat out Idaho's Don Newman, Montana State's Arnold McDowell, and Idaho State's Bryan Banks. The 6-6 junior college transfer averaged 15.4 points and nine rebounds per game and shot 76.3 percent from the free throw line.

Paul Wilson, a 6-5 junior from Idaho State, was picked the league's top reserve. He averaged 5.9 points, 5.7 rebounds, and 23.5 minutes a contest to beat out Montana's Rodney Brandon and Boise State's Mike Munde.

deJesus faces heroin charge

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Former World Boxing Council lightweight champion Esteban de Jesus of Puerto Rico, was arrested Wednesday morning on charges of trying to buy heroin from an undercover police agent.

The 27-year-old de Jesus, the only fighter ever to defeat champion Roberto Duran, was lead by police from his home in the Rio Piedras section of San Juan after he allegedly gave $300 to a narcotics agent for the drug.

De Jesus was released after posting $10,000 bail ordered by Judge Luis Miranda de Hostos but he later was set free for his home.

De Jesus won the lightweight crown from Japan's Ishimatsu Susuki in 1976 but lost it to Panama's Duran in 1978.

Kentucky gridgers suspended

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — University of Kentucky Head Football Coach Fran Curci Wednesday announced that the eight football players charged with rape and sodomy involving the daughter of a UK faculty member had been placed on disciplinary probation.

"Being consistent with our policy, the eight football players involved (in an alleged incident) will be placed under disciplinary probation, which means they will not be allowed to participate in any team functions until their cases are resolved in the courts."

"This action in no way is meant to reflect my opinion as to their guilt or innocence," Curci added.

Auburn awaits penalty hearing

ATLANTA (UPI) — Auburn University President Harry M. Phillott said Wednesday there will be a delay in the NCAA hearing new evidence which the Tigers hope will reduce their pending recruiting penalty and that it may be the end of March before a decision is reached.

Sources say Auburn is in line for two years probation in basketball and one in football for alleged violations and that the school has submitted additional evidence in hope of getting the penalty reduced.

Phillott, in Atlanta to attend the semiannual Southeastern Conference meeting, said an NCAA hearing set for this weekend was postponed because of the lack of a quorum and has been rescheduled for later in the month.

76ers draw hope from old floor

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia 76ers, who have lost 10 of their last 12 games and five in a row, lost their floor Wednesday.

And club officials hope a bit of nostalgia connected with a replacement floor will help the team.

Early Wednesday, when workmen tried to put down the basketball floor at the Spectrum they discovered it had become warped by water during the last two weeks of its stay.

A club spokesman explained the floor was not stored in its usual spot because that location was needed as dressing room space for the Ice Capades show at the Spectrum.

Skier remains critical

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Italian downhill skier Leonardo David, injured Saturday when he fell Saturday during a World Cup race at Lake Placid, N.Y., remained in critical but stable condition Wednesday at the Medical Center Hospital.

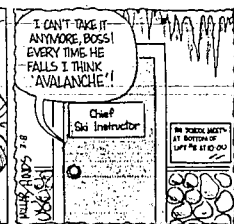

A hospital spokesman said David, 19, was still in a coma. He underwent surgery for removal of a blood clot after the accident.

Senators back fish regulation

BOISE — The Idaho Senate Wednesday refused to override the State Department of Fish and Game and let stand a prohibition against bait fishing on an eight-mile stretch of Henry's Fork of the Snake River.

An issue was Senate Concurrent Resolution 111 which would have rejected a department ruling that restricted fishing between Lower Mesa Falls and the Island Park Dam — except for the section of the river within Harriman State Park — to fishing by artificial flies, lures and single barbless hooks. The department ban prohibited bait fishing on a

Topic cup practicing continues

SUN VALLEY — Downhill training was held Wednesday and resumes today on Baldy for the Hawaiian Topic Cup downhill and slalom races Saturday and Sunday, the first World Pro Skiing event to be held at Sun Valley since 1976.

Pro racer Kenny Corcock of Ketchum, after one day of training, said the competition is going to be stiff.

"It's a really difficult downhill to do well on. There's about four guys right now that are doing well, but I think there's going to be about six or eight guys altogether running for the win in the downhill. This is by far the most challenging downhill on our tour. It's a little shorter than Snowbird, and will probably be running about a 1:30."

Corcock said although warm weather over the last few days has softened surface snow on the 2,000 vertical foot Hartman downhill course, speeds of 70 and 75 miles an hour were reached during the downhill training Wednesday.

The downhill event is scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday, with the slalom finals to be held at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Today, a slalom pro challenge is set for 2 p.m. Friday, the downhill qualifier takes place at 10 a.m., with the slalom qualifications set for 2 p.m.

Prize money of $40,000 is involved in the Hawaiian Topic Cup. Andre Arnold clinched his second straight world championship last weekend at Squaw Valley, Wash., and has chalked up 520 championship points and more than $80,000 in prize money.

Stabler asks to be traded

GULF SHORES, Ala. (UPI) — Oakland Raiders quarterback Kenny Stabler said Wednesday he is tired of being the scapegoat for his team's mediocre season last year, so he wants to be traded.

But Al LoCasale, Raiders executive assistant, said the preference of an athlete "is generally not a factor" and shrugged off the report of Stabler's request "as off-season rhetoric you just have to live with."

Stabler's Selma, Ala., attorney said Wednesday the former University of Alabama star asked him to contact general manager Al Davis with a request for a trade to another National Football League team.

LoCasale said Stabler's comments have ranged from saying his problems with the Raiders have been blown out of proportion to his present statement about wanting to play elsewhere.

"It's not a matter we want to discuss in the press," LoCasale said. "Mr. Stabler has made a real contribution here, he's a fine athlete, but any decision about personnel matters are made for the best interests of the organization, and that means winning games."

The 6-2, 215-pound Stabler, who is reportedly paid some $340,000 to quarterback the Raiders, has two years left on his contract.

"I think the time has come for me to move on," Stabler told The Birmingham News. "The decision has nothing to do with the coaching change, or because we went 9-7 last year."

All Pac-10 team named

WALNUT CREEK (UPI) — All-America UCLA forward David Greenwood was named to the All-Pacific-10 Conference basketball team Tuesday along with Bruin teammates Brad Holland and Roy Hamilton.

It was the third consecutive time Greenwood, who averaged 19.3 points per game this season, was accorded the honor. He was also selected Player of the Year.

The other first-team selections were Steve Johnson of Oregon State, Cliff Robinson of Southern California and Larry Demie of Arizona.

Second team: Don Collins, Washington State; John Nehls, Arizona; Wolfe Perry, Stanford; Kiki Vandeweghe, UCLA; Kimberly Belton, Stanford; and Purvis Miller, USC.

Honorable mention: Don Carlino, USC; Mark Radford, Oregon State; Russell Brown, Arizona; Kevin Singleton, California.

Spring calls made by local umpires?

Major league baseball may be forced to open its spring training schedule with local umpires handling the calls.

The umpires, in addition to wanting more money, are demanding more free time during the season and other benefits. Their demands are being made on an individual basis, unlike last August's one-day group walkout.

"We're going to work under the assumption that they won't work," said Dick Butler, supervisor of American League umpires. "We have already advised the clubs to plan on using local umpires. That was 10 days ago."

The umpires aren't the only ones in dispute.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, said Tuesday that pending arbitration involving the Atlanta Braves and holdout third baseman Bob Horner has been given priority status.

While the Braves continued to have trouble with their third baseman, the Kansas City Royals welcomed their's back. George Brett returned to the Kansas City camp Tuesday and said he expected to be ready for the season opener April 5 despite a three-week layoff to recuperate from surgery on his right thumb.

Brett underwent surgery in Kansas City Friday to remove calcium deposits.

"It's numb now," he said, "but the doctor says everything is OK. There were no complications."

Rain fell over most of Florida, curtailing many workouts. There were some trade winds blowing along with the rain as Boston is said to be interested in Richie Hebner, who has been reported going to the New York Mets. But one person who won't be traded is Bruce Sutter.

Chicago Cubs Executive Vice President Bob Kennedy declared relief ace Sutter an "untouchable" and suggested that other major league teams should not waste their time inquiring about his availability.

From Tampa comes word that John the teardrop is being forward to a season without those back problems. "I'm counting on catching around 140 games this season," said Bench, who reported to camp weighing 211 pounds.

Nicklaus seeks fourth Gleason title in a row

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (UPI) — The PGA tour makes its ninth stop of the 1979 tour beginning today at what has become almost the private property of Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus has won the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Golf Classic every year since 1976 when it was officially the Tournament Players Championship and last year staged one of the most remarkable late charges in history.

The "Golden Bear" birdied the last five holes for a 65 over Inverrary's tough par 72 East Course to overtake Grier Jones by a stroke and collect the first prize of $50,000.

Whether he can extend his string to four straight this weekend is a good question considering his performance at the Bay Hill Citrus Classic in Orlando last week.

Nicklaus, playing as a favor to tournament host Arnold Palmer, went into the final round well in contention, three shots off the pace set by 23-year-old rookie Bob Byman, the eventual winner. But he skied to a 78 over the demanding Bay Hill Country Club Course and dropped quickly out of the chase.

Joining Nicklaus at Inverrary will be 15 other golfers who made the top 20 money list last year. Missing will be Hubert Green, John Mahaffey, Tom King and Gary Player, who won't join the tour until the TPC at Jacksonville March 22-25.

Other top 1979 money winners present will be Lon Hinkle, who missed the cut at Bay Hill after shooting an 83, Fuzzy Zoeller, Lanny Wadkins, Mark Hayes and Byman.

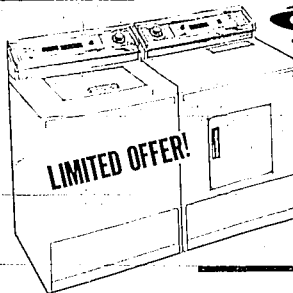

The Inverrary event—annually draws top fields. The $300,000 in prize money is obviously a big part of the reason but tournament director John Montgomery thinks there is another factor—prestige.

"Of all the new tournaments that have sprung up on the tour, only two have achieved any significance—the Gleason and the Memorial (Nicklaus' tournament at Mulhfield in Ohio)," Montgomery said. "They have leaped far ahead of the rest of them in prestige and attendance."

Six diamonds would have been an excellent contract, but it is difficult to reach in any system. After the spade lead on the diagrammed hand, nine tricks were there for the taking. But the game was too difficult, so overtricks were extremely important.

Twin Falls woman marks 100th birthday

Mandy Stewart catered Glasgow parties

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A visit with Margaret Stewart, who turned 100 Wednesday, is like a breath of heather from her beloved Scottish moors.

The Scotswoman and a sister came to Twin Falls 20 years ago to make their home with the sister's daughter, the late Helen Fenwick, in Twin Falls. Since then both the sister and Mrs. Fenwick have died, but Miss Stewart, affectionately called Mandy by her friends, still makes her home with her niece's husband, Don Fenwick.

An open house honoring Miss Stewart's centennial anniversary will be held Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Fenwick home.

Although she is nearly blind so that it is difficult for her to get around by herself, Miss Stewart admits to no aches or pains and is up and dressed daily. She enjoys reminiscing about her native land, but carefully points out that she and her sister "tried to fall in as best we could" with American ways.

She had visited the Fenwicks for several months some 10 years previous to moving to Twin Falls in 1959.

When Miss Stewart was born March 7, 1879, in Brora, Sutherland Shire, Scotland, Queen Victoria was on the British throne now occupied by her great-great granddaughter, Queen Elizabeth.

She remembers Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee in 1897 although she can't rightly say whether she actually saw the queen in person when she was in Scotland because of all the crowds and confusion. Medals were made for the historic jubilee but over the years the ones the Stewart family had have been lost, she said.

Despite Scotland's historic differences with England, Miss Stewart indicated the affection with which her countrymen now view royalty. She said "we took it hard" when the Duke of Windsor abdicated the throne to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson and that the present Queen Elizabeth is a "lovely lady who it is said puts people at ease."

"We love the royal family," she smiled.

Miss Stewart is the last survivor of her eight brothers and sisters. She described her own family as "plain country folks" and that her parents were "loved by everyone."

Her father was a game keeper for the Duke of Sutherland during her younger years.

Royalty or at least important people became fairly commonplace with Miss Stewart throughout the many years she worked as a manageress, as they say in Scotland, at a large Glasgow restaurant, supervising a staff which averaged about 30 waiters.

Supported by a team of some eight cooks, the staff catered wedding dinners, breakfasts and parties for all occasions.

The largest party she ever handled was a dinner for the late King Farouk of Egypt with 400 guests. Extra employes were hired for big events such as this, but Miss Stewart said she "always was blessed with a nice staff."

Five to six courses were common for the smaller parties, while the really large dinners featured seven to eight courses.

The Cardia restaurant, where she worked for 36 years, included one ballroom large enough for 200 couples and a smaller one for 150 pairs of dancers.

When she was not working, Miss Stewart loved to dance. She once won a dancing contest and the prize, a large cut glass vase now graces the Fenwick home.

Foster grandchildren bring cheer

By ELLEN MAY GOLDBERG
Chicago Sun-Times

Dear Jean Ann: Today is my birthday. I wasn't looking forward to it because I am so old. Eighty-five! And I am so alone. I live in a nursing home and there will be a birthday cake for me at dinner. Everyone will croak "Happy Birthday" to me. But none of my family will be here. Not a one. My two daughters and one son live in other cities. My 12 grandchildren are scattered all over the U.S. and never write to me. Is it any wonder I wasn't looking forward to my birthday today?

Then, in the morning's mail your birthday card came. Such a pretty card, bright and cheery, with your newsy letter inside, telling me all about school and what you have been doing.

I showed your card to everyone. Now it is on my dresser where I can look at it often.

Thank you, dear Jean Ann, for your loving notes and cards and for making my birthday not so lonely. If I don't write you often it's because my hands don't work so well due to bad arthritis. I am so thankful to you and to the Foster Grandchildren Program.

Your loving foster-grandma, Emily

Dear Mrs. Goldberg: Me and my brother want to be part of the Foster Grandparent Program. We are 10 and 12 and black and if any lonely old person wants us to write to them we will write back.

We live in a nice house. We have a yard and a swing and a swimming pool and a dog and two cats. Our Ma grows vegetables and we got to help weed and pick so we have lots to write about. Please send us the name of a Gramma or Grampa.

Brandon & Byron T

Anyone can become part of the program. We need an active file of young and old to keep the program moving.

The Foster Grandchildren Program is now more than a year old. During that time, hundreds of young and old people have been corresponding with each other all over the country.

I have a volunteer secretary who matches up those entering the program. She tells me that many letters have come to us expressing disappointment because no answer came back to their first letter. This is a rejection to someone who enthusiastically began a correspondence, hoping for a reply. It also takes their names out of our files until we can re-enter them after a long delay.

Unless you want to actively carry on your part of the correspondence, please do not enter. Only those who send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be eligible. In the envelope, include your name, address, approximate age and something about you. Address all mail to Ellen May Goldberg, P.O. Box 416, Highland Park, Ill. 60035.

Many nursing home insurance policies worthless

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 43081. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I have been reading your column for some time now in our local paper. My friends and I enjoy discussing some of the questions you answer for others, especially those that could potentially be answers to our own questions. Several months ago, you pointed out that it is seldom that a person on Medicare will receive coverage in a nursing facility, and we have been discussing the likelihood of this happening to one of us. We know that there are many nursing home insurance policies on the market which are rather costly. However, if it happens to be a type of insurance one feels a need to have, it would probably be purchased. Are these policies a good insurance against non-coverage by Medicare if a person has to be in a nursing home? — J.S.

Most nursing home policies will not cover you unless Medicare is also covering you. So, therefore, when your Medicare is cut off, your protection under those policies is cut off. Likewise, if you do not qualify for Medicare coverage in a skilled-nursing facility from the beginning, then most of the nursing home policies are worthless from the beginning. Many senior citizens are paying a lot of money for these policies that have no value at all, except in rare cases. If you do purchase a nursing home policy, be sure the policy will cover you whether or not Medicare is also covering you.

Heartline

Since senior citizens do usually purchase a nursing home policy or a Medicare supplement policy, and because there are several things that are a must to have in each type of coverage, Heartline has written a guide to health insurance to help point out the good and bad sides of these insurances. To order, send $1.75 to Heartline's Guide to Medicare, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: In reference to our Social Security numbers after retirement, we are cautioned on Medicare claim forms to include our complete

Social Security number as it appears on our Medicare card. This includes a certain letter following the numbers. I know from my own experience that the letter "A" stands for "wage earner" and "B" stands for "spouse of wage earner." Are there other letters used after other people's Social Security numbers to mean other things? If so, what are they? — S.L.

Those letters are Social Security claim symbols. The symbols are as follows:

- A — Wage earner
- B — Spouse of wage earner
- C — Child beneficiary survivor or dependent
- D — Widow of wage earner
- E — Young widow with child in her care
- F — Surviving parent

- HA — Disabled Worker
- J or K — Prouty special 72 beneficiary
- M — Persons with Part "B" of Medicare only
- T — Person was 65 before 1968
- W — Disabled widow

HEARTLINE: I just happened to be looking at my Medicare card the other day and noticed that there is a letter "B" after the Social Security number. Does this mean that I only have Part "B" of Medicare? I was sure that I signed up for both parts. — A.C.

As indicated in the above answer, the letter "B" only means that you are the wife (or husband) of the wage earner, and that you are eligible for Medicare under your husband's (or wife's) Social Security account.

Average house price distorts picture

Q. With the price of houses continually going up, how can ordinary working people, the biggest market for houses, afford to buy them?

A. Many people have been wondering the same thing, but as Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, recently pointed out, the overall picture isn't as grim as it may seem.

In discussing the fact that the average price of a house was well over $50,000, he pointed out something not generally realized.

TWIN FALLS — Pre-registration for a mental health symposium, "A New Approach to Aging," to be held April 24 at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls, is currently being taken with a deadline of March 16.

The course is open to the public; however, priority for registration will be given to those working with programs for the elderly and to senior citizens. Continuing education credit for the course will be available from the College of Southern Idaho.

Blood service program grows over 20 years

TWIN FALLS — From a three-hospital operation in Boise in 1949 to 50 hospitals in Idaho, Oregon and Washington today, the Red Cross Blood Services of the Snake River Region has grown.

The program was started in 1949, when it was decided by medical personnel in Boise to have a central agency to collect, process and distribute blood needed in the hospitals. The National Red Cross offices, as a result of its blood collection efforts during World War II, were called upon nationwide and Boise turned to the Boise Red Cross Chapter for assistance. Dr. Enzo Sestero was hired as the first medical director, a position he held until 1976 after 28 years of service.

At first the program was to provide for only three hospitals in Boise, but by the end of the first year of service, was serving 19 hospitals in Idaho and Oregon. Then came the fall of 1950, and the Korean War. Within two years collections had jumped 100 units a week to 600 units a week to help with the war effort. Each week, 250 units were kept for the region and the remainder shipped to Travis Air Force Base.

After the war ended in 1954, the region served by the Boise Red Cross Blood Program expanded into more counties in the Northwest, and medical research discovered many more uses for blood and blood products. The program expanded, and the center was moved twice. Last year, 29,065 units of blood were collected and 64,399 units of blood or blood products were distributed by the Snake River Regional Red Cross Blood services. Under present director Dr. Robert D. Bolin, it serves as an agent for the collection, processing and distribution of blood and offers reference lab services to hospitals concerned with testing and transfusion.

Twins have surgery

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Siamese twins Elissa and Lisa Hansen returned to the University of Utah Medical Center Tuesday to undergo another step in the surgical process to separate them at the head.

Medical center spokesman John Dvsnal said that today doctors will "tie off shared blood vessels" in the girls' heads. Dvsnal said the operation "is part of the continuing procedure aimed at possible surgical separation of the conjoined twins."

If the ultimate operation is successful, it would be the first separation of Siamese twins joined at the head.

The twins are the daughters of David and Patricia Hansen of Ogden, Utah. They were born in October, 1977, at Ogden's McKay-Dee Hospital.

The 17-month-old Hansen twins underwent a similar tying-off operation Jan. 12 at the medical center.

Dilettante Days proclaimed in TF

TWIN FALLS — Mayor Leon Smith has proclaimed March 9 to 17 as Dilettante Days in honor of the Dilettante Group of Magic Valley.

Smith's proclamation honors 21 years of Dilettante musicals on Magic Valley stages. This year's production of the Broadway musical "Camelot" opens at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium Friday.

Dilettante Days also honor the many contributions the Dilettantes have made to the Twin Falls community during 21 years of theatrical performances.

During that time, the group has given more than $30,000 in scholarships to local students of the arts.

In their early years, Dilettantes raised money which helped build the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium and assisted in developing many other local theater groups.

When the group opens the curtain on kings, knights and ladies this week, Mayor Smith hopes all citizens "will join them in their celebration by attending the performance of 'Camelot'."

Cabin fever underrated disease

SV sets potato postcard competition

BY ERMA BOMBECK
FIELD ENTERPRISES, INC.

If I ever stage a telethon, it will be for one of the most underrated diseases of the 20th century — cabin fever.

Cabin fever has been with us for as long as there has been children, but during snowstorms the disease reaches epidemic proportions.

A minister in Iowa recently noted that the city's Dial-a-Prayer number increased 125 calls a day due to the malady.

"There's no doubt about it," he said, "cabin fever is a reality and people are depressed when they're shut in and unable to get around."

Back in Ohio when the kids were little, I used to crawl out of bed every morning during the winter, fall to my knees and pray, "Please God, let there be school." For my intentions, I would offer up 18 shirts to be ironed by the end of the day, 30 pounds of hand washables to be dunked, and a promise to return the bank's call.

Everything gets through to you when you have cabin fever. It's as if you have no control over your own actions. You find yourself sitting there watching a child force a button up his nostril and saying nothing.

You see them coloring your marriage license and you mumble, "Stay in the lines." You observe the chandelier over the dining room shaking as they jump up and down on their beds above and you are numb.

You go to the window and for the life of you can't remember what color the lawn used to be ... or what the downtown area looked like. To keep in touch with reality, you count by sevens backwards ... recite the Greek alphabet ... or name the presidents in order.

Your mind drifts back to your youth when the most traumatic moment in your week was when you had used up all your no-shower days after phys. ed.

Bitterly, you envy nuns their social life and make plans for all the things you're going to do when the weather clears. These include: training for the Boston Marathon, finishing college, and dedicating your life to Population Q.

Cabin fever is nothing to kid about. I've seen women who retreat into the house just after the New Year's Eve party as vivacious, spirited women only to emerge in April pale, heavily sedated, and nearly catatonic.

Help stamp out cabin fever by taking a mother to lunch or offering to carry her coloring book. We're making progress. Due to last year's sparse donations, we have research going on. To date, one rat has responded to a cure for cabin fever.

Now, all we have to do is cure him of his acute alcoholism.

New programs give troubled youth dose of reality therapy

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two innovative programs aimed at trying to give delinquent youths "a large dose of reality therapy" as a final effort to get them to turn their lives around were explained here recently.

A newly launched project in Twin Falls to take delinquents for a realistic day at the Idaho State Penitentiary in Boise was described in detail by Gordon Simpson of Twin Falls, Health and Welfare Youth Services division, and Ralph Pierce of Boise, social worker at the prison.

The other project, handled by a private non-profit group in Pocatello known as the Anti-Litter Foundation, (ALF) simply has put into successful operation in the old idea that punishment should follow misdeeds and that properly supervised hard work has therapeutic value.

Curt Noble of Pocatello, ALF director, said, "We know we're doing something right because of the success we're having." The recidivism rate of 23 boys who have completed their work sentence picking up litter is 5.5 percent, he said.

"The other 95 percent have not got into trouble again," Noble said.

The three men spoke at the final session of a three-week seminar on youth problems, sponsored by the Mental Health Association.

Magistrate Paul Smith of Twin Falls who has served as moderator for the series, said Twin Falls has the distinction of being the first community in the state to launch the prison visitation project.

He credited Simpson's perseverance in the face of bureaucratic red tape with bringing the project to reality. The first group of five Twin Falls area youths was taken to Boise two weeks ago.

Simpson said his idea was to select boys whose "behavior problems were escalating," but that wasn't enough to "satisfy the powers that be" so the screening committee includes youths just starting to get into trouble as well as those "headed for prison."

The juvenile visitors are put through a two-hour version of the reception and diagnostic center where new inmates are strip-searched, de-loused, given white overalls and told the rules they must obey. The authoritarian atmosphere was underscored by a guard of robust build who told one "guest" to wipe the smile off his face, Pierce said.

Prison inmates are 100 percent behind the project to let delinquents "get a little dose of what prison life is really like," he said.

Pierce said the most impressive part of the day was when one of the most hardened inmates "practically got down on his knees and begged a 13-year-old to get off drugs," saying he had started that route when he was 14.

In contrast to the prison visitation worked out on official level, the Pocatello work release program conducted by ALF the past few years "started on the street level," according to Noble.

After two years of planning and with the blessing of city officials, Noble and his associates, whom he described as "qualified adults who care" have been taking crews of boys in trucks out to pick up trash and litter in Pocatello streets and alleys.

Gradually the idea has "caught on" Noble said, with many people telling him "It's about time there was something like this."

The men pick up the boys at the jail, where they are released to work for eight hours, or from school or at home. Many of the crew members are not hard-core types, but all have been in trouble, and their "sentence" is an assigned number of hours picking up trash under the direction of ALF supervisors.

On an average day the dump truck

ALF uses makes from four to five runs to the dump. In addition to the first goal of trying to reclaim boys headed for delinquency, ALF "is an effective way of getting rid of litter," Noble said.

The project, which started on a shoestring with donations from individuals and a small grant from the Law Enforcement Planning Commission, has expanded from city alleys to cleaning up county roads.

Noble said he has just received approval from the Idaho Department of Transportation to pick up trash along Interstate 80. ALF leaders are hopeful of receiving a larger LEPC grant so they "can accomplish 10 times as much."

They also hope to eventually become self-supporting from resale of aluminum cans they will gather.

Noble stressed ALF is successful because the leaders tell the boys "we're not cops, we're just trying to get something done."

"We make it plain that from this point on there'll be no lying, cheating or stealing," Noble said. "The kids in jail know if they give us too much trouble they'll be back in jail all day."

Noble and two colleagues, who accompanied him to Twin Falls, said during the question period they made it plain to the boys "they had screwed up, they have to make amends and the only way for them to turn their lives around is to realize the only way to make anything positive happen is through hard work."

Some of the boys have asked to continue with the work after their sentences are completed, "because it made them feel good," Noble said.

While the emphasis is on trash cleanup, Noble and his boys have helped move an elderly woman, giving the youths a concept of community service unknown to them.

Because ALF is not a government program, its leaders are not hampered by legal regulations.

What's what

The majority of men prefer to marry women who don't outrank them

Most men prefer to marry women who are smaller, younger and less well educated than said men. So report researchers at the University of Iowa. For some reason, this is described as "marrying down." Our Love and War man finds the description objectionable.

When black bears and porcupines get into fights—and they do! they do!—the bears are more likely than the porcupines to die. It's a slow passage, sadly. Quills in the tongue.

The playing by mall of that game called chess is a fairly old practice. About as old as mail, in fact. Cambridge University scholars were among the early folk who enjoyed it. A team of them took on a chess team in a British mental institution once. Cambridge lost.

BARBER CHAIRS

Here and there in the most remote places on the African continent are to be found old barber chairs. Enterprising exporters in this country shipped a whole bunch of them back in the 1930s. On orders from swift sellers there, they peddled them to tribal chiefs who wanted them for thrones.

Q. "Can't a lion catch a horse?"
A. Not likely. A lion will only chase its prey about 100 yards or so. The horse doesn't need too much of a headstart to get away.

The originators of the language knew what they were up to, did they not, when they put together the word "mortgage" out of a set of syllables that mean "death pledge?"

The mosquito that escapes the dragonfly dies of old age in about five weeks.

WHITE GOLD

Check that remark which said white gold was an alloy of pure gold with platinum. Tut tut. White gold is an alloy of gold with silver or nickel or both. It may contain other metals, too. But not platinum. Gold is never alloyed with platinum. An Oregon expert named Douglas Ward explained that. And others.

You know that a mule is a cross between a jackass and a horse. If you cross an alpaca and a llama, you also get a mule-like critter. It's called a machuga.

Quoth Dolly Parton: "No woman in her right mind would want to look the way I do."

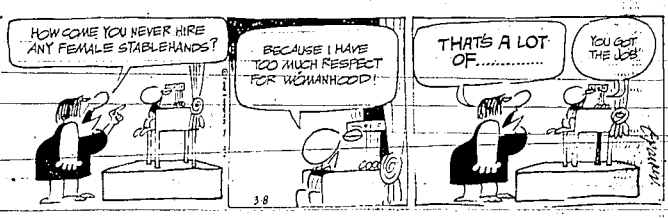

There was a time in China when the penalty for stealing a Pekinese dog was death.

Dear Abby

Wife needs clam opener to get her husband to talk

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 © The Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate Inc.
DEAR ABBY: My problem is a silent husband. He suddenly quit talking to me and he won't tell me why. The first time he clammed up we were married only six months. All of a sudden he wasn't speaking to me, and no amount of begging on my part could make him tell me what I had done wrong. He wouldn't look at me or talk to me for three whole days. Then, all of a sudden, he started talking to me just like nothing had happened. I found out four years later that he stopped talking that first time because I used his car and didn't fill up the gas tank!
 I could write a book on the different times he clammed up. The record was 13 days, and I still don't know the reason for that one. We have three children, the youngest is 5, so I'm trying to see it through, but it is rough. What is the matter with a man who acts this way?

SILENT TREATMENT
DEAR TREATMENT: I don't know, but if I were you I would try to find out. He could be immature, sick, or just plain ugly. Your husband sounds as though he has a lot of words stored up which may need to be unloaded in a doctor's office. I recommend counseling. If he won't go, go alone, and learn how to communicate with your silent partner.
DEAR ABBY: If a person wants to be hypnotized to lose weight, quit smoking, eliminate pain during childbirth, surgery or dental work or for any other legitimate reason, where does he find an honest, qualified hypnotist?
 I don't want one who hypnotizes people for fun or entertainment. I want a hypnotist with the best credentials who meets the highest professional standards.

INTERESTED IN OHIO
DEAR INTERESTED: Write to: American Society of Clinical Hypnosis, 2400 E. Devon Ave., Suite 212, Des Plaines, Ill. 60018. They recommend only the most highly qualified hypnotists.
DEAR ABBY: The lady signed TRAPPED, who discovered that her husband had been unfaithful after 25 years, could have been written by my mother, only she and Dad have been married only 19 years.
 About three months ago she caught Dad in a situation like that. She says there will be no divorce, but she has locked him out of their bedroom. Now Dad sleeps with my little brother.

He has begged Mom to give him another chance, but she won't. I am the eldest (16) but I am old enough to know that any woman trapped because she can't forgive, has trapped herself.
SORRY FOR DAD
DEAR SORRY: You may be young, but you are very wise.
DEAR ABBY: Here's how our family decided who should get what after Granny died and left no will. We all got together and cut the cards. High man got the item if more than one of us wanted it.
NO QUIBBLING
 The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet.

Nine-day week
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Economist Carlos Varsavsky thinks America needs a nine-day week. The New York University economist, astrophysicist and industrialist has received a Ford Foundation grant to work out details of his proposed triad system that would have staggered shifts of employees working two triads (three days each) — and taking one off. Varsavsky claims the system would make business more efficient by keeping offices, institutions and schools open continuously with full staffs and making weekends less congested.
