Waste spills from Rupert lagoon

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

RUPERT — An estimated 100,000 gallons of partly treated waste water spread over farmland near Rupert before a Friday morning break in a sewer lagoon could be plugged.

The cause of the 20-foot-wide break in the lagoon cell near dawn Friday has not been determined yet, according to Rupert Mayor W.F. "Bill" Whitton.

Before city crews plugged up the broken dike wall Friday afternoon, the treated effluent flowed for three miles over farmland southeast of the three lagoons, located five miles north of Rupert.

"At this point we have no knowledge of what caused the failure. Our basic concern is to protect the people in that area as best we can and to control the effluent as best we can," Whitton said Friday afternoon.

No people or animals were injured by the flooding, but the District Health Department in Rupert has issued a warning to residents with domestic water wells that they should boil drinking water first.

Health officials will start testing water supplies Sunday afternoon to see if they have been contaminated. Whitton said testing won't start until then because most wells are between 200 and 600 feet deep and it will take the water that long to seep down. It does.

Whitton declined comment on the amount of damage to neighboring farmland and crops because of possible litigation in the future.

City officials said the break occurred in the south bank of cell 1, the northernmost of the three lagoons, around the concrete diversion box leading to the third cell. A nearby resident who noticed the water on his land called Rupert police at 8 a.m.

Whitton commended city crewmen, county highway personnel and private contractors who diverted heavy equipment to the site, for working nonstop from 8:15 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday to plug the hole.

An Army Corps of Engineers employee, doing field inspections for the Environmental Protection Agency in Boise, will look into what caused the break early next week.

Warren McFall, coordinator for EPA construction grants in Boise, said their inspector will join state and city officials in finding out why the dike broke.

Whitton said a special council meeting on the break scheduled for 10:30 a.m. today was postponed because many officials couldn't attend.

However, he said that gives them more time to gather information and estimate the cost of damages and repairs and present it at Tuesday night's regular council meeting.

He said at that time he will ask city public works employees and officials from Hamilton and Voelter Inc., the city's engineers for the trouble-plagued $5 million sewer project, what they think caused the break.

In addition, Whitton said the council may call on an independent third party firm to investigate the problem. "We're not in a position to point fingers today," he added.

The mayor said he will fly over the lagoons and flooded area with a professional photographer to check on the damage.

He said the effluent was about 65 percent treated when the dike broke. It had been treated at the city's secondary treatment plant south of the area before being piped up to the aeration lagoons to evaporate about two weeks ago.

The mayor said the other two cells have enough capacity to treat incoming effluents. Therefore, he said he doesn't anticipate having to ask city residents not to flush their toilets in the future to prevent an overflow.

The city had repented trouble last fall and winter with the high-pressure line to the lagoons that alone cost $2.1 million of the total price. One air release valve alone malfunctioned in December for the 11th time, according to city officials.

And for a while, in 1978, it appeared the EPA was going to refuse to pay for some $120,000 in design change orders issued during construction in 1977.

McFall noted there is still some question over whether a construction firm installed the contracted-for amount of riprap on the lagoon site. McFall said that question will be cleared up this spring. The firm claims it did not put all the riprap on the lagoon cell walls but spread some along roads to the site.

Whitton complained Friday that the continuing problems are draining the city's manpower and working capital for other needed improvements, such as renovations of the irrigation system and street repairs.

"We need to be getting our manpower and our money to projects like this," he said, not continuing to expend those resources on sewer problems.

Sadat warning tests of peace will come later

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat Friday said the peace treaty with Israel should be signed only in Washington, as a tribute to President Carter, but he cautioned that would merely begin the real tests of peace.

Sadat said the issue of Palestinian autonomy in the occupied territories would decide the success or failure of the treaty and he expected Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to be a tough bargainer.

"I know Begin will be raising hell as always but, by God, I will be raising hell for him also," Sadat said.

Before Sadat's statement was made public, Begin postponed the Israeli Cabinet's second and final vote on the treaty from Sunday to Monday.

Big tasks lie ahead for envoys

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House Friday dispatched special envoys to seek Saudi and Jordanian support for the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty and made tentative plans to host a treaty-signing summit a week from Monday.

Authoritative sources said officials are "aiming at" the March 26 date for the historic ceremony, "leaving enough time to work out multibillion dollar aid packages while trying to dissuade Saudi Arabia and Jordan from joining any Arab backlash against Egypt and the west."

In a move officially disclosed only hours before its departure, a high-powered delegation left Friday for Saudi Arabia and Jordan, in that order, with the sensitive task of selling the U.S. view that this treaty is not a separate peace and will lay the foundation for a comprehensive Middle-East settlement.

The team consisted of national security advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and — in a symbolic personal touch — the president's son, Chip.

"We believe it important for the powers in the region to understand the American position on the treaty," State Department spokesman Tom Reston said.

"We want to stress our position that the arrangements are part of a process leading ultimately to a comprehensive solution of the Arab-Israeli conflict."

Later, the White House said Brzezinski also will stop in Cairo Sunday to review with results Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Christopher will go to Europe from Egypt to brief European allies.

Bomb instructions can also be found in encyclopedias

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A diagram in the Encyclopedia Americana would give a competent physicist the same information on an H-bomb as is included in the magazine article the government is trying to ban, an Illinois physicist said in an affidavit released Friday.

Editor of The Progressive magazine, Erwin Knoll, distributed copies of eight of nine affidavits filed with the court Friday during a news conference. The other affidavit, Knoll said, was being suppressed by the government until it can determine if any portions of it can be made part of the open court record.

The government has asked for a permanent injunction to ban the article by free-lance writer Howard Morland, claiming it contains top-secret information that could help other nations develop hydrogen bombs.

Progressive Magazine, a 40,000 circulation independent monthly published in Madison, Wis., is under a 10-day restraining order, issued by U.S. District Judge Robert W. Warren, preventing it from publishing or talking about the article.

The case is being called the first major test of the Constitution's First Amendment press guarantees since the Pentagon Papers case in 1971, when the Supreme Court refused to prohibit the publication of the documents on the Vietnam War.

Knoll said the secrecy issue made it necessary for all papers filed in the case to be checked by the government first. Anything containing classified information would be kept in a "closed court record."

Knoll said the affidavit of Theodore A. Postol, a physicist at the Argonne National Laboratory in Argonne, Ill., near Chicago, was split into two parts in anticipation of the suppression order so that at least part of it could be made public.

Postol is one of the half dozen scientists to whom the Progressive sent the Morland article for review before publication and before the article was restrained, Knoll said.

"It is my opinion that the article by Morland contains no information or ideas that are not already common knowledge among scientists, including those who do not have access to classified information," Postol said in his affidavit.

"It was my judgment at the time of reading the Morland article, and it is my judgment now, that the article contains no ideas or information which could not be readily concluded or obtained by any competent physicist after seeing the diagram prepared by Dr. Edward Teller for his article on the hydrogen bomb in the Encyclopedia Americana."

Postol said he has never worked as a weapons physicist nor had access to classified information.

Bank loans for peanut firm

Prosecutor being sought for Carter investigation

ATLANTA — The Department of Justice has quietly begun seeking candidates for an appointment as a special prosecutor to conduct an investigation of bank loans provided to President Carter's family's peanut business by the National Bank of Georgia, well-placed private legal and administration sources said Friday.

Terrance B. Adamson, a spokesman for the department, acknowledged that Phillip B. Heymann, the assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, had gotten in touch with several lawyers about the post, but said that Heymann had made no decision on whether an investigation by a special prosecutor was the best way to proceed.

Other well-placed government sources, however, said the move indicated that Griffin B. Bell, the attorney general, and other top administration officials had concluded that the appointment of a special prosecutor would defuse criticism that the case was not being handled properly.

It was also prevent members of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees from attempting to impose a special prosecutor on the attorney general under a new law that sets up a process for the appointment of an independent investigator for certain kinds of political corruption allegations.

According to well-placed legal and government sources, Heymann has gotten in touch with about a half a dozen prominent lawyers and asked if they would consider serving as a special prosecutor in the case. The list, several sources said, includes the names of at least two Republicans.

Heymann is expected to make his recommendation on a special prosecutor to Bell and Benjamin R. Civiletti, the deputy attorney general, next week and report to Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee. According to one well-placed government source, Bell has left the decision on the need for a special prosecutor entirely in Heymann's hands.

If the Justice Department chose to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate loans to Carter's business, it would be the first use of this avenue since Archibald Cox was appointed by President Nixon to investigate the Watergate scandal. That investigation was one of the forces that led to Nixon's resignation on Aug. 9, 1974. Heymann served under Cox in the special prosecutor's office.

There has been no formal public accusation that Carter, his brother Billy or other members of the family have done anything wrong. Late last year, however, a federal grand jury investigated the banking practices of Bert Lance, a close friend of Carter's and formerly chief of the Office of Management and Budget, opened an inquiry into some $7 million in loans extended by the National Bank of Georgia to Carter's family peanut business.

No, Pattie... there isn't a shamrock

By JEAN HELLER
Newhouse News Service
EAST LANSING, Mich. — Now, just in time for St. Patrick's Day, comes the woeful news from an eminent botanist (Are you sitting down?) there is no such thing as a shamrock.

Dr. William Gillis, a Michigan State University professor of natural science and plant pathology, says that just about this time every year five plants with perfectly good names of their own appear all over the world falsely labeled as shamrocks.

"Most of them are nothing more than white or red clover," the stuff you curse in your lawns and gardens all summer, Gillis said in an interview. Wood sorrel, lesser yellow trefoil and black medick also are frequently renamed "shamrocks" in mid-March, he added.

"I began to research the shamrock a few years ago after I became curious about just what a shamrock might be," Gillis said. "I found out that not even the Irish know for sure what it is."

However, in the course of his research, Gillis did find out what one is supposed to do with shamrocks — or sorrel, or clover — on St. Patrick's Day, March 17.

A true celebrant will wear them in a small cluster on his label all day. In the evening, he puts the bouquet in his last drink of the day (assuming he can identify the "last drink"), and then tosses the sodden plants over his left shoulder.

Gillis isn't exactly qualified for this high-minded research, being descended mostly from Scots and Poles, but he insists he had a grandmother named Donnelly, which probably counts for something.

"I know she was born in Glasgow, but with a name like Donnelly her family had to have roots in Ireland somewhere," he said.

Nonetheless, Gillis, who is from New Jersey, grew up to become untrustingly skeptical. Asked whether he believes in leprechauns, he thought for a while and then replied: "No, I don't think I do."

But what you can expect from a man who wrote his doctoral dissertation on the subject of poison ivy?

Radioactive talk

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A geophysicist testified in federal court Thursday that scientists preparing for the December 1970 Banerberry nuclear test "did not fully appreciate soil conditions" which led to the release of a 10,000-foot radioactive cloud from the underground detonation.

Dr. Wendel Weart of Sandia Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M., told U.S. District Court Judge Roger Foley the venting was due to water-saturated clay, which amplified the destructive force of the weapons-related device, near a geologic fault.

DENVER (UPI) — Four more sites of radium have been found in the city, bringing to 33 the total number of radium sites discovered in Colorado since renewed investigation.

State Health Department officials said they had about six additional potential sites to investigate. Of the sites discovered so far, 28 are in Denver, three in Montrose, one in Boulder and one in Grand Junction.

Afghanistan aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, called Friday for the United States to cut off all military and economic aid to Afghanistan because of doubts surrounding the assassination last month of U.S. Ambassador Adolph Dubs.

Church told John Gilligan, director of the Agency for International Development, during hearings on foreign aid legislation, that the U.S. should not continue aid because the Afghan government did not heed U.S. cautions when Dubs was taken hostage.

Chinese urge Vietnam to begin peace talks

By PAUL WEDEL BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — China's foreign minister Friday announced the total pullout of all invasion troops in Vietnam and called on Hanoi to begin peace talks, but Western military sources said the withdrawal was far from complete.

In neighboring Laos, the pro-Hanoi government charged Chinese troops crossed the border in two places and occupied Laotian territory at the Vietnam border.

Western intelligence sources were unable to verify the Laotian report of Chinese infiltration, which at one place on the border was said to total two battalions — roughly 1,000 men.

Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua said in Peking, "China and Vietnam should immediately hold negotiations and discuss ways to ensure peace and tranquility in the border areas."

Huang said China's armies, "after reaching their set goals in the counter-attack in self-defense against the Vietnamese aggressors, have completed their withdrawal from Vietnam and returned entirely to Chinese territory today."

Official New China News Agency dispatches quoted Huang as saying, "We do not want a single inch of land from Vietnam, nor do we want to station a single soldier on Vietnamese soil."

But the military sources said there were "still plenty of Chinese troops inside Vietnam" as of Thursday.

Hanoi, which said earlier it was prepared to start peace talks in the week following China's troop pullout, has not yet indicated whether it believes the Chinese have withdrawn to "the historical border."

The Chinese report said Huang claimed China's invasion, which began Feb. 17, defeated the Vietnamese aggressors and shattered "the myth of their invincibility," captured three Vietnamese provincial capitals and seized more than 20 other cities, towns and strategic positions.

Aside from the enormous hostility built up between the two erstwhile Communist allies during the past month, analysts said, the major sticking points in any negotiations that result may be disputed territory along the border.

Vietnam's Foreign Ministry has claimed Chinese troops moved several marker posts to alter the boundary as they recrossed the border to "return home," but Huang said the charges were "false."

In Laos, Radio Vientiane broadcast the text of a diplomatic note to China that charged Chinese troops look over a strip of Laotian territory two miles deep and six miles wide.

Laos charged Chinese "tanks, armored vehicles, artillery, infantry and cavalry troops" were lining the border at Luang Nam Tha, 225 miles north of Vientiane.

Murder plot denied

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Rena Chynoweth, the pregnant wife of firebrand polygamist Ervil LeBaron, took the stand in her own defense Friday in the trial of four people accused of slaying a religious rival of her fugitive husband.

Ms. Chynoweth, 20, one of the defendants, denied she plotted with others to kill Rulon Allred, a Murray, Utah, naturopathic doctor who was religious patriarch to several thousand Utah polygamists.

But the young women suggested that Don Sullivan, star witness for the prosecution, organized the slaying of Allred, who was gunned down May 10, 1977 in his office by assassins who appeared to be two women.

Under questioning by her lawyer, Ms. Chynoweth said she had brought a .38 caliber pistol purchased in Denver to Utah and turned it over to Sullivan the day Allred was killed.

She testified that Sullivan was upset because he had ordered a .25 caliber automatic instead of the "larger handgun."

Sullivan, pleaded guilty to a conspiracy count in the attempted murder of Verlan LeBaron, Ervil's brother and religious rival. He then turned state's witness and identified Ms. Chynoweth and Ramona Marston as the two women who killed Allred.

The killers were armed with a .25 caliber automatic and a .38 police special.

Ms. Chynoweth, her brother Mark, and Eddie Marston are charged with second degree murder in the Allred slaying. Another Chynoweth brother, Victor, is charged with conspiracy. All four are also charged with plotting to kill Verlan LeBaron at Allred's funeral.

Subway crime under attack

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Edward Koch Friday announced a new $10 million anti-crime campaign in an effort to stem the dramatic increase in New York's subway crimes.

Beginning Monday, police will be assigned to every subway train and most stations during evening hours, the mayor said.

Eight murders have occurred in the massive subway system since Jan. 1 compared with nine during all of 1978.

On Friday, a teacher was robbed of $200 on a subway train. Subway violence reported Thursday included the slaying of a deaf mute, the sexual assault of a 13-year-old girl and other passengers, the stabbing of an elderly man for no apparent reason and a token booth robbery.

Agents overpower man after plane hijacked

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A middle-aged California man hijacked a Continental Airlines jet over Arizona Friday and held it steveness-by-charge for two hours after it landed until he was overpowered by FBI agents who sneaked aboard the plane.

The FBI said the suspect, John C. Kivlen, 52, of San Rafael, Calif., demanded $200,000 and a flight to Cuba.

Kivlen, employed by a San Francisco computer firm, Fynmarsh Translations Service, was taken into custody without incident. He was arraigned on hijacking charges several hours later and bail was set at $1 million.

Court officials said Kivlen was arrested in Tampa, Fla., in 1969 on similar charges but they were subsequently dropped.

The Boeing 727, Continental's Flight 62 from Los Angeles to Miami with several intermediate stops, was commandeered shortly after it left Phoenix at 9:15 a.m.

Be fair Bogus radio station story chided

The Times-News was snookered by a man who claimed he was building a 250,000 watt FM radio station in Hagerman. Through a strange string of events, a man was able to bring this bogus story into the paper and the story was written-and-set-in-type-without going through the proper editing channels. The newspaper is sorry to say it also appeared in print. A number of readers questioned the story the day it appeared. Immediate checking by the editors found the story to be false and the newspaper has already run a correction asking people to disregard the earlier report of the bogus station, KRIG.

The Times-News prides itself on having one of the best offset printing crews in the state and a clean layout as well. If your paper is smudged, call the newspaper circulation department, 733-0931 before 10 a.m. and a new paper will be delivered to your door at no charge. One reader asked why the Times-News no longer runs the mutual funds on the daily stocks page. The paper does run mutual fund quotations at least once per week. At the request of the publisher, the daily mutual fund listings were dropped as a means of opening up additional space for other features and news.

The reasoning behind this move was that mutual funds are not as active as regular stocks and a weekly listing would still keep readers informed over mutual fund activity. Usually, the mutual fund report will appear on Wednesday's stock page. A final Be Fair coupon questioned a Bonnie Blair Jones story on the Vera C. O'Leary Junior High dedication. The story said the original O'Leary bond issue passed "by an overwhelming majority." The reader noted the bond issue, which required a two-thirds majority, passed by fewer than a dozen votes. That's true. But it nonetheless received a two-thirds majority of the votes cast and that might be construed as an "overwhelming majority." Keep those cards and letters coming.

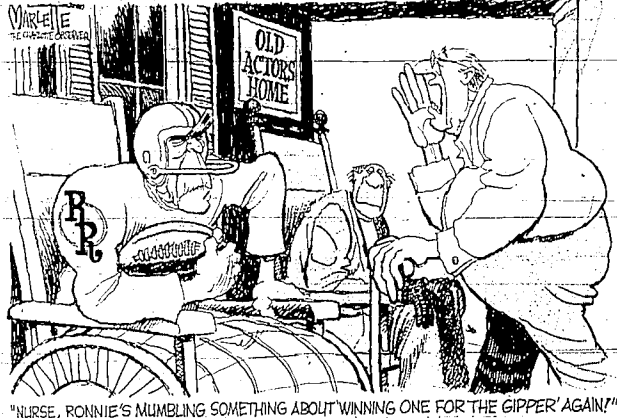

The Times-News Editorials

Do we or don't we want Amtrak?

Oh, the ambiguities of Washington! Are we to be always surrounded-by-these-double talkers? Examples of Washington ambiguity can be found everywhere but one that immediately comes to mind correlates recent government declarations on energy and transportation. On one hand we are advised it would be prudent to cut back on personal energy consumption, as we may be close to an energy crisis that knows no equal in American history. Then, on the other hand, an inherently energy-efficient transportation mode is virtually given the death blow from our secretary of transportation. In the presence of threats to our energy supply, we have Transportation Secretary Brock-Adams seemingly reverting to a system that will encourage more use of fuel - something we hardly need. Specifically, Adams wants to cut back on the funding of Amtrak at a point when Americans are just getting used to the idea of riding the rails again. Adams' arguments of Amtrak cutbacks have recently been backed by the annual report on Amtrak by the Interstate Commerce Commission (although it should be noted the ICC has become one of those regulatory agencies that sees the tail wagging the dog, i.e. speaking more for the interests of the companies it supposedly is regulating than for the American people). One cannot argue that Amtrak has been losing money, but one has to question Adams' philosophy on cutbacks. He should realize that although cutbacks may cut down on expenses, they probably will cut back more on revenue. The main task of Amtrak is to increase rail ridership and, therefore, help the United States in coping with its energy problems, hopefully, by cutting down inefficient air and highway miles. But the people won't be wooed back to the rails unless service rises to a point where the advantages are so obvious that previous transportation habits are broken. And a high level of service includes a rail system that can accommodate most people who want to go to a given city at a given time with a minimum of intermodal connecting. A study from Adams' own department shows the largest - not the smallest - possible Amtrak system would provide the lowest deficit per passenger mile.

Time to stop kicking around Billy Carter

Berry's World

"Have you given any thought to naming Billy a Scapegoat for all our problems?"

© Chicago Sun-Times Every time Billy Carter says something outrageous, the question arises as to why President Carter doesn't denounce him, disown him, or at least tell him to shut up. But the question that I'd like to see kicked around is why Billy is sought after and quoted by the news media in the first place. It has been obvious for a long time - and it is finally being admitted by some of the President's people - that Billy has problems. Among these problems, apparently, is the bottle. That has never been a secret. The first time I saw Billy, at the 1976 Democratic convention, he was wandering down a hotel corridor looking for a bottle of Jack Daniel's. And that was at an hour when most people were going to lunch. During his three years as a speck in the public eye, Billy has talked often about the vast quantities of beer he puts away, beginning early in the day. And it's said that as the sun begins setting, he switches to drinks with more jolt. In one of the many books written by a member of the Carter family, it was disclosed that Billy had a serious drinking problem years ago, and his wife almost left him because of it. Only a few days ago, he entered a hospital. The reason given to the public was a bronchial infection. But other sources indicate that he needs a rest to give his liver and hands a chance to stop quivering. So it seems likely that anytime a reporter asks Billy a question, his response is going to stagger out of a boozy fog. It shouldn't be a surprise, then, that Billy has been saying outrageous things. If you ask enough questions of anyone who is either sloshed or hung over, you will get some peculiar responses. Knowing this, why does the press keep gongding Billy into his foolish outbursts? And keep in mind that he is being goaded. It isn't as if Billy cranks out printed news releases that give his opinions, or that he calls press conferences to express them. What happens is that he will be out in public and someone will stick a microphone in his face and hit him with a loaded question. Out pops the whacky answer. The reporter has a thrilling story, somebody or other denounces Billy and again President Carter is asked why he can't do something about his brother. Maybe it's time for the news media to stop asking President Carter to do something about Billy and consider its own role. It might consider not getting envious stories and easy controversies by expelling someone who obviously isn't thinking clearly. If they knew that someone was senile, or under treatment for a mental disorder, they shouldn't push that person into giving public opinions. But they haven't hesitated doing it to someone who may be wrestling with the problem of alcoholism. The fact that Billy is a President's brother is no excuse for the press. Lyndon B. Johnson had a brother who was a lush. If someone had asked him enough questions, the answers would have probably kept L.B.J. embarrassed for weeks. But the press knew about the brother's problem and had the decency and sense of proportion to let him alone. President Eisenhower had a brother who, while a nice man, was inclined to be a fool. It didn't take booze to make him sound dumb. He was born that way. He, to could have been baited into saying foolish things. But the press knew he was kind of dopey and ignored him. In Illinois, we had a governor whose wife regularly drank so much that she occasionally fell down in public. When that happened, the cameras turned the other way and the reporters pretended they didn't see her being carried away by the state troopers. And no reporter ever considered exploiting her misery by turning one of her incoherent outbursts into a story. Admittedly, Billy's case is not quite the same. He put himself in the spotlight by being available to the hustlers who have paid him to play the country bumpkin. He showed himself to be used.

But if Billy showed poor judgment by displaying himself, that doesn't mean that the national news media has to show even worse judgment by aggravating the situation. It shouldn't take a shrink to recognize some of Billy's problems, and I'm sure most of the reporters who have extracted foolish quotes from him were familiar with them. A younger brother, only marginally successful, sadly competing with an older brother who is far smarter, better disciplined and enormously successful. A small-town rustic thrown into the glare of big-time publicity. A man of previously modest means being tempted by big money if he'll just permit himself to be made to look silly. Take those pressures and generously douse them with large and regular portions of alcohol, and you have the potential for a mental mess. And even if he were clear-eyed and cold sober, would it really matter what Billy Carter thinks of Libya, Israel, the price of oil or any important issue? He's not a public official. He holds no office, he has no power, he sets no national policy, he gives the President no advice. It just happens that he has an older brother who became President. About the only question I can see anyone asking Billy would be: "Are you sure you can make it home all right?"

World should slow the development of plutonium breeders

By ALBERT WOLHSTETTER N.Y. Times Service LOS ANGELES - The oil cutoff at Suez in 1956 led to abortive schemes for digging canals with nuclear explosives and to premature plans for nuclear electricity, especially in Europe. European hopes were soon dashed. And no one has found an economic use for "peaceful" nuclear explosives. But their military implications are evident in India - and Brazil and Argentina. The 1967 war in Sinai gave birth to grand but economically mishapen projects for making such deserts bloom by desalting ocean water while generating nuclear electricity. The 1973 war cut off oil again and spawned vast plans to build nuclear power where it was least economic, in the third world. So Iran, flaring natural gas, found itself with reactors costing six times more than originally promised - precisely the sort of grandiose, capital-intensive project it didn't need for stable development. We have a talent for drawing wrong lessons. Now the loss of Iran oil may revive some nuclear plans that were defective at birth; to commit ourselves irrevocably to plutonium breeders and to rush their commercialization. With President Carter's foreign policies generally beleaguered, his 1977 decision to delay commitment to the substitution of plutonium for uranium in generating electricity may come under renewed attack. The 1977 decision - designed to give governments time to work out forms of nuclear commerce less liable to disperse material quickly usable in bombs - met opposition from the start. The nuclear industry here and abroad had long expected the imminent coming of the fast plutonium breeder to replace reactors fueled with uranium. Our major allies who are nuclear suppliers claimed superiority in the use of plutonium, hinted broadly that our new policy was designed to favor our manufacturers, and objected that we were changing rules unilaterally. American manufacturers, who hardly conceded foreign superiority in the use of plutonium, complained bitterly that constraints on using plutonium in reactors of American origin, and on separating it from spent fuel of American origin, put Americans entirely out of lucrative world markets. The American complaint should have disposed of the notion that our anti-proliferation policy was an American industry plot. But industry here and abroad, unable to sell reactors at home, greatly exaggerated third-world markets. Nuclear "deals of the century" have collapsed not only in Iran, but also in Brazil, the Philippines and elsewhere.

For many years we neglected the danger of spreading bombs along with the breeder. Reversing the trend needs attention - more urgently than SALT-II. Delaying a commitment to plutonium is essential. Gerald R. Ford also reached that conclusion after extensive debate in the government in 1976. Congress has taken an even stronger position than the administration. Major leaders like Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany, a strong critic of the new policy, recognize that suppliers and users of nuclear energy have to work out new rules to meet the intent of the Non-Proliferation Treaty.

The world can afford to delay deciding whether plutonium will ever be an economic and safe alternative to mining uranium. Industry has repeatedly underestimated the breeder's costs and technical difficulties - and especially the time to bring it into substantial commercial use. That won't happen, on "recent industry estimates, before the second quarter of the 21st century. At that rate, it might save some 2 percent of the cumulative uranium required for nuclear power by the year 2030. In contrast, the supply of uranium looks much better than previously estimated. Current estimates, by international nuclear authorities, of the world supply of uranium "reasonably assured" at less than $30 a pound (in 1977 dollars) are two to four times larger than in the mid-60's. The corresponding cumulative requirements for uranium through the year 2030 appear now to be only one-fourth to one-fifth as high as estimated six years ago. The estimated supply of uranium then has grown on the order of 1000 percent relative to estimated demand to the year 2030. Delaying a commitment involves no important sacrifice or loss of scarce resources. But the delay that Presidents Ford and Carter have asked is the minimum permitting meaningful international reevaluation of the rules of nuclear commerce. Unfortunately, it is our major allies who have unilaterally made huge new commitments to send highly concentrated fission material to countries that do not now have nuclear weapons. The British and the French, for example, plan billion-dollar plants to export plutonium-separation services. Such new commitments pre-empt ongoing international discussion. Delaying a commitment to plutonium is only one essential to slow and limit the spreading of the bomb. We must strengthen alliance guarantees that reduce incentives for countries to acquire nuclear weapons in their own defense. Our alliances also need urgent attention.

JEAN MONNET
... EEC father

Jean Monnet dies at 90

PARIS (UPI) — French statesman Jean Monnet, the father of the Common Market, died Friday at the age of 90 in his thatched-roof cottage outside Paris.

Monnet died as the European Economic Community he founded was taking its largest step ever toward uniting Europe economically and politically.

In three months, Europeans will vote for a 410-member parliament in the first democratic election in modern history that crosses national borders.

Last Tuesday the Common Market put into effect its new European Monetary System that could lead to a common European currency and coordinated economic policies for the nine-nation group.

Best policeman is a woman

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Heather Fong, 22, is San Francisco's Police Officer of the Year.

Miss Fong, who patrols the Clement Street area, was nominated by her captain, James Ryan, who said "she is doing just a fine job. She functions as well as any male — and I'm not a great fan of women police officers. But I'd be happy to get 100 like her."

A wedding of green

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — When Marcella McGrogan weds Gordon McGrady on St. Patrick's Day 'tis sure there'll be plenty of smiling Irish eyes and lilting Irish laughter.

The couple's wedding promises to be a grand celebration, with a bridal party of 19 all decked out in the traditional green. The bride will wear white, but she, too, will have a dash of green in her garter and a necklace bearing a single emerald.

Heinz Memorial Chapel will be filled with shamrocks and green flowers.

And the fireball reception will sport green mints, white napkins and Kerry green tablecloths.

"I'm sure they'll be singing all the Irish songs and everything," the bride laughed on the eve of her wedding. "We are going to have a lot of shamrocks around, and the cake is green."

Miss McGrogan's grandfather hails from the Emerald Isle, as does McGrady's great-grandparents.

"We have a son named Patrick," the groom's father, Clarence McGrady, said. "So there's always reason to celebrate St. Patrick's Day, even without a wedding."

A third McGrogan son is named Michael.

Marvin's business manager testifies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lee Marvin set up a bookkeeping system for keeping his mistress during the last years of their affair so that his support was listed as "loans receivable" and "accounts receivable." Marvin's business manager testified Friday.

Edward Silver told the court at the property settlement trial that from March 1967 to a period after the couple broke up in May 1970 he sent Michelle Marvin checks and other remuneration totalling $72,800.

Adventists break ground for school

TWIN FALLS — Construction has begun on the new Magic Valley Adventist School complex on Grandview Drive and Addison Avenue West.

The 14,700-square-foot structure will include a kitchen, multipurpose room and gymnasium, as well as classrooms.

Owned and operated by the Seventh-day Adventist Church, the co-educational school is presently employing three teachers for their nine grade levels.

The exterior of the new building is being erected by Ullman Construction Co., of Twin Falls, and will be of Solarcrete construction. This new type of construction will give "an insulating value of R-20 to the outside walls. This is twice the insulating R-value of traditional walls," commented Gary Thietten, chairman of the church's building committee.

To save on costs, the major part of the interior will be completed through donated labor by church members and friends. Don Oltman of Oltman, Inc., will be the construction supervisor for the project.

YOU'RE ONLY HALF AS FAR FROM GOD AS YOU THINK YOU ARE!!

For the person in search of God, He often seems far away; distantly removed from us: a great supernatural power without personality. But that's not God. He loves. He cares. He grieves. He forgives. He heals. He gives. And He's close to us. So close that we're only a step away. But that last step is ours to make. He can't make it for us. Won't you take that step tomorrow? # Horoscope

Virgos should avoid any tricky outsiders; Libras can profit through their hunches

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to delve into matters you don't understand and obtain facts and figures that will be of benefit to you in the future. Later you can gain your desired goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Strive for harmony with family members. Sidelstep an opponent.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Situations arise that give you a clear picture of what is going on in your community. Take steps to improve your health.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to handle all those duties ahead of you and then plunge in enthusiastically and they are soon behind you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to be with good friends and have a good time together. You can easily gain a personal aim now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study every phase of your home life and know where to make improvements. Avoid one who is jealous of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Anything to increase your productivity is fine to do now. Avoid an outsider who is tricky and could do you harm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be positive in going after something of a monetary nature and increase abundance. Your hunches are accurate at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are magnetic today and can easily influence others to your way of thinking. A good day for meeting new personalities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are able to handle a confidential affair very well now. Confer with an expert and get the advice you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good friend can help you solve a problem you have, so see this person early in the day. Be less critical of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make new contacts that can be helpful to you in the days ahead. Make plans to improve your surroundings.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meet new personalities whose experience is different from yours and learn a great deal from them. Improve your health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who will seek the truth about everything, so be sure to give as fine an education as possible in order to make the most of this quality. Be sure to give spiritual and ethical training early in life.

What's what

It's the little things that sometimes count in presidential races

Political campaigners certainly pick some oddball critics to level at their opponents. Those who derided Martin Van Buren during his presidential bid claimed he took too many baths. John C. Fremont lost his try for the presidency against James Buchanan partly on the strength of the much-mocked fact that he parted his hair in the middle. And Thomas Dewey, some will recall, seemed almost helpless against the widespread accusation that he looked like the little man on top of the wedding cake.

If you knock on wood for good luck, you're in pretty fair company, historically. Sir Winston Churchill did that numerous times daily. So did Will Rogers, compulsively, before stepping out on any stage.

No Dutch couple under age 30 can marry without parents' consent. That was the law in The Netherlands for many years. Believe it still is.

That card player's word "trump" is just a shortened version of the word "triumph."

THE ROCK
If anything is as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar, you can count on that thing being full of holes. Gibraltar is riddled with tunnels and caves. Lot of little monkeys live in there, incidentally. What's so odd about them is they make pets of kittens.

More men than women for various reasons like their ages. Studies prove that. But when men do lie that way, they don't usually have too many years off the truth. Women, however, seem willing to knock off as many as five or 10 years, if any lying whatsoever is a part of their act.

INTELLIGENT WOMAN
Was Aubrey Menen who observed, "No woman objects to being called intelligent provided she is assured that it has done no harm to her good looks."

Age 13 is said by the experts to be the unhappiest year of the average person's life.

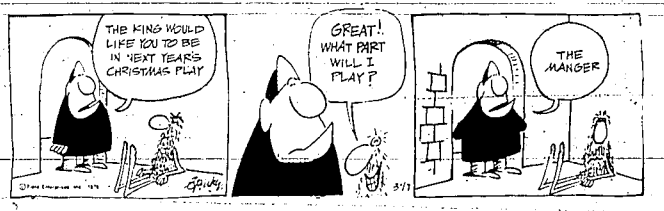

The stolen car is 200 times more likely to crash than the car still in the possession of its owner.

The widower is most likely to remarry, if at all; within two years after the death of his wife, statistics show.

"Plain as the nose on one's face" is another everyday phrase that originated with Mr. Shakespeare.

Energy issues pace advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Energy issues were processors as the stock market closed a winning week by climbing to a seven-week high despite a mixed news background. Trading was moderately active. The Dow Jones Industrial average, off a point of the outset, climbed 5.80 points to close at 852.77, the highest level since it closed at 852.77 on Jan. 29. It advanced 9.96 points for the week, including 1.65 Thursday.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.47 to 56.55 and the price of a share gained 26 cents. Advances totaled credits, 939 to 454, among 1,620 issues traded at 1 p.m. EST.

Oil stocks paced the rally that was sparked by news that President Carter plans to hold an energy conference Monday. There was speculation Carter is leaning toward decontrolling oil prices.

The market also was helped by reports that spot crude oil prices declined. But they still were above the official OPEC rate of $13.34 a barrel. Thus, inflation remains a problem.

Big Board volume totaled 31,770,000 shares, compared with 29,370,000 traded Thursday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 34,074,388 shares, compared with 31,462,388 Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 1.12 to 127.77 and the price of a share jumped 12 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ OTC index gained 0.70 to 128.55.

Oil and related stocks dominated the list. At 4 p.m., Texaco was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 3/8 to 26 1/2. Occidental Petroleum was third, up 1/2 to 20 1/4.

"Among the other energy issues, Schlumberger rose 3/8 to 104 1/4, Halliburton 3/8 to 68 1/4. Highest Total Petroleum rose 3/4 to 47 1/2. Murphy Oil 3/8 to 47 1/2. SEDCO 2 1/4 to 29 1/4. Santa Fe International 2 to 29. Lubrizol 1 1/2 to 44 1/2. Getty Oil 1 1/2 to 45 1/2. Sun Co. 1 1/4 to 46 1/2. Western Co. of North America 1 1/2 to 27 1/2. Ohio Standard 1 1/2 to 50 and Indiana Standard 1 1/2 to 60 1/2.

Texas International Co. was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, unchanged at 12. Two private investors have bought a sizable portion of the firm's stock and are seeking a combination of the company with a private firm. Texas International said it wanted to see a concrete proposal.

Tandycraft advanced 3/4 to 27 1/2. The firm set March 26 as the date for the distribution of Color-Tite Inc. shares to stockholders. Tandycraft is spinning off Color-Tite.

Sunshine Mining gained 1 1/2 to 17 1/2. The company said it was engaged in takeover talks with two interested parties who would offer more than the $15 a share proposed by Hunt International.

Sybron, a 2-point winner Thursday, rose another 1 1/2 to 22 1/2.

Cigarette-caused fire guts house

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man set his home aflame by opening the front door Thursday night. When Joseph Wright returned to his rented house at 260 Buena Vista Avenue Thursday night, he unknowingly lit a smoldering fire by opening the door and allowing air into the oxygen-depleted living room.

Investigators say the fire was caused by a cigarette left burning in the living room of the empty house. Firemen responded to a neighbor's call at 10:20 p.m. Before it could be controlled, the fire burned all but the frame of the house owned by Kauffarine Brownell.

Harkins, who investigated the blaze Friday, said the fire was apparently caused when a smoldering cigarette dropped onto a couch in the living room. Harkins speculated Wright, who was a tenant in the house, left the cigarette burning when he went out. When he returned, he unknowingly set off the flames by opening the door to the house. The fire department dispatched three trucks and extinguished the flames by 11:42 p.m. Firemen said by the time the fire was out, only the frame of the old wooden house remained.

Street closure starts Monday

TWIN FALLS — Through traffic on Addison Avenue between North and West Five Points will be completely blocked for three months beginning Monday. Bill Merritt, Idaho Division of Highways engineer in Twin Falls, said construction crews will begin closing off Addison Avenue about 9:30 a.m. Monday and should have the street completely closed off by Monday evening. The street will be closed until sometime in June, Merritt said, for resurfacing and widening. The state is funding the project because that portion of the street is part of Highway 93. Peter Kiewit Sons Co. is the contractor. Merritt said it was decided to close the street completely, rather than rework half the street at a time, in order to shorten the time traffic in the area will be disrupted. Merritt said eastbound traffic at West Five Points will be routed down 2nd Avenue West, Northbound traffic will be routed up Washington Street to Falls Avenue and over to Blue Lakes Boulevard. Westbound traffic at North Five Points will be routed down Shoshone Street to 2nd Avenue North and then to West Five Points. Traffic will be allowed to cross Addison Avenue on Jefferson, Jackson, Harrison, Tyler and Fillmore streets. Merritt said the construction company will also try to keep private driveways on Addison open as much as possible. The West Five Points intersection will also be reconstructed as part of the project. Work on the intersection is scheduled to be completed in July.

Jury exonerates Ford Motor Co.

TWIN FALLS — In one of the longest court cases in the memory of Fifth District Court officials, a 12-person jury decided Friday not to award any damages to a man injured in 1974 while operating a tree-trimming machine. Charles and Sandra McBride were seeking $350,000 general damages and $150,000 loss of income and other benefits in connection with injuries Mr. McBride suffered Jan. 24, 1974, while operating a tree trimming machine for Davey Tree Expert Co. of Filer. The complaint alleged McBride was injured when a blade from a piece of equipment sold by Ford Motor Co. and manufactured by KPS Manufacturing came loose and struck him in the back. Davey Tree Expert Co. was a plaintiff in the case along with McBride. Ford Motor Co. and KPS Manufacturing were the defendants. The jury found that McBride had not misused the machine but that Davey Tree Expert Co. was negligent in the maintenance and operation of the machine and that the company's negligence was a proximate cause of the damages sustained by McBride. The jury also found that there were no design defects in the machine's Ford 230 engine and that the machine was not in a defective condition when it left the control of KPS in 1971, thereby exonerating Ford Motor Co. and KPS Manufacturing. Based on its findings, the jury awarded no damages to McBride. The trial lasted three weeks from jury selection until the decision Friday, with Judge Theron Ward presiding.

Pickup flips over in attempt to pass

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man flipped his car while trying to pass two other vehicles on Minidoka Avenue in Twin Falls Thursday night. Marvin Lee Climer was cited for reckless driving after he tried to pass two vehicles while driving westbound in the 600 block of Minidoka Avenue in his 1973 Ford Bronco at 11:51 p.m. Thursday.

While passing the vehicles, police reports indicate, his vehicle hit the untraveled portion of the road, went out of control, flipped over twice and came to rest on its tires.

Climer sustained injuries of an unknown nature in the accident. Damage to Climer's vehicle was estimated at $5,000. No other vehicles were involved in the accident.

Negotiations gearing up

TWIN FALLS — Annual contract negotiations will begin soon between the Twin Falls Education Association and the school district administration, according to TFEA president Darwin Backlund. Backlund will meet Monday night with district superintendent James Sawin to set a starting date. Neither Backlund nor Sawin would release the names or opening positions of his negotiating team. The talks are not open to the public. Current Twin Falls teacher contracts expire July 1.

Two-car mishap injures three

TWIN FALLS — Three women were injured Wednesday evening in a two-car accident at the intersection of Buchanan Street and Sharp Avenue. Reports at the Twin Falls police department indicated a vehicle driven by Patricia Ann Parker, 35, of Murtaugh, collided with another one driven by Judy Ann Drown, 30, of Twin Falls. Officers said the Parker vehicle was traveling north on Buchanan Street and the driver failed to yield right of way to the eastbound vehicle driven by Mrs. Drown. Both drivers and a passenger in the Twin Falls car, Linda R. Thomas, 30, of Buhl, were taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance. All three were treated in the emergency room and released.

Retirement bill held

BOISE (UPI) — The House passed 36-34 Friday and then reconsidered and held until Monday a bill allowing public-employees early retirement providing that their extra benefits come out of their pockets. Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, said the present retirement rule requiring employees to be 60 years of age and with 30 years of employment needs flexibility. "Some people get sick and need to retire," he said. "They put in as many years as people fulfilling the present requirement and deserve to receive those benefits."

QUESTION...

Presuming I am qualified under Social Security, what benefits will be paid to my wife and children if I should pass away?

ANSWER...

Social Security benefits are payable monthly to your wife of age 60 or under this age if she is at least 50 years old and disabled. If your wife, regardless of her age, is caring for your natural or adopted children under age 18, she and the children will receive monthly annuities. Your wife's eligibility ceases when your youngest child reaches 18, although the children's benefits continue until age 22 if they remain full-time students in an approved college.

Examples of current monthly payments:

	Minimum	Maximum
Widow of age 60	73.30	253.50
Widow of age 62	64.50	292.50
Widow with 1 child	126.80	531.50
Widow and 2 children	126.80	620.40
Family Benefits	126.80	620.40
Lump Sum Death Benefits	253.50	253.00

Senate adopts Bear River Compact

BOISE (UPI) — A revised Bear River Compact allocating water below Bear Lake between Idaho and Utah for the first time was adopted Friday 23-3 by the Idaho Senate and now goes to the House.

The revisions would give Idaho 125,000 acre feet of water per year out of the river below Bear Lake and Utah would get 275,000-acre-feet. The water currently is unallocated.

Under the revision, the level of Bear Lake would be established at 5,911 feet. When full it has a level of 5,924.

To ratify the pact it must be approved by Idaho, Wyoming and Utah and by Congress. Both Utah and Wyoming already have approved the revision.

Sen. Mardens Williams, R-Idaho Falls, floor sponsor, said if Idaho didn't ratify the revised compact "we will be in litigation with Wyoming and Utah." He said it was the first revision in 20 years.

Although a leading opponent of the revision, Senate President Pro-Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said he would support the measure because of a lack of opposition from people in the Bear River drainage area. He added, however, he had "grave concerns" about the revisions.

Budge said it would have a tremendous fiscal impact on the economy of the area because it would effect construction around the lake and industries using well water.

The southeastern Idaho lawmaker said a level of 5,911 feet would leave many property owners on Bear Lake high above the water line. He said in a series of dry water years he feared the lake level would be reduced and never again reach its present level.

During the dry years of the 1930s, Budge said, the level dropped to 5,902 feet and "it took 15 years to bring the lake back up to the original lake level."

Sen. Is Merrill, D-Blackfoot, said ratification will be "decided in the (U.S.) Supreme Court if we don't follow through."

"In previous court cases, we've always lost," Merrill said.

Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, said the old compact has been successful and it would be "irresponsible" to change the compact at this time.

"Idaho seems to be coming out on the short end," he said.

"It appears to be a blank check for the two other states to come in and draw an air bank account of water," said Sen. Dick Egbert, D-Tetonla.

Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, expressed the fear that Idaho could be establishing a dangerous precedent because the revisions also allowed for the first time co-mingling of ground and surface water.

"If we allow ground water to supplement decreed waters," he said, "it could change the whole concept of water decree in Idaho."

Steen suggested that Idaho take a little more time to really study the effects the revisions would have on the state.

"I'm not afraid of litigation...the old established (water) rights are there," Steen said.

Authorities seek Clark extradition

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — An Alabama Corrections Department spokesman said Friday authorities would seek the extradition from Idaho of Billy Don Clark, an Alabama escapee convicted of murder.

Clark, 38, is being held without bail in the Owyhee County Jail, Murphy, Idaho. He turned himself in to Idaho authorities March 1 after 21 months of freedom.

John Hale, Alabama Corrections Department public relations director, said state law required the state to seek extradition. "Extradition papers will be filled out in the next day or two," Hale said.

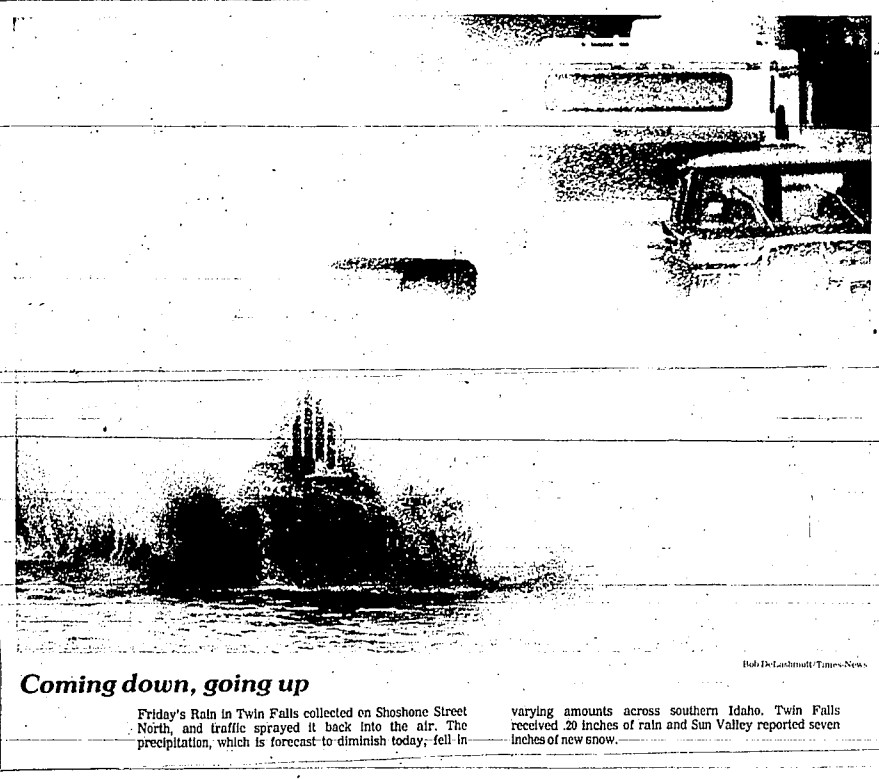

Clark walked away from the Hamilton Work Release Center in July of 1977. He had been serving a life term for the 1969 shooting death of Donald R. Gwinn.

Hale said the extradition papers will be taken to Gov. Forrest James for his signature and those papers should arrive in Idaho within two weeks.

Clark said this week he may flight extradition because he feared he might be murdered if he returns to Alabama.

An Alabama official who wished to remain anonymous told Idaho reporters this week that Clark might be killed because he had been involved in undercover investigations while in prison of both convicts and prison officials.

The official also said he believed Clark was not guilty of the 1969 murder. "On that crime he was convicted of, he was a patsy. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence. There is no way to prove it, because the ones that got the job are gone."

Stop sign runner 'guilty'

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Lee Lisher ran a stop sign. And he ran it, and ran it, and ran it.

He did it to prove a point, but in the end a six-member jury found him guilty of four counts of running the same Polkstop sign. The verdict came in after about four hours of testimony and an hour of deliberation.

The facts were not in dispute. Lisher intentionally ran the stop sign because he does not think it belongs where it is, and he wanted to challenge the decision of the Polkstop City Council to install it.

But officials would not let Lisher discuss the propriety of the sign's location with the jury and made him stick to the facts. And Lisher, who claims the stop sign presents a hazard because of the topography of the area, plans to appeal to district court.

Breeder supported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church urged the Carter administration Friday to commit itself to construct and test a nuclear breeder reactor.

The Idaho Democrat, at a Senate hearing on the administration's nuclear energy development plans, also said he opposed delays in the proposed Safety Research Experimental Facility at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Church said the SAREF project was a necessary component in the development of breeder reactors.

House balks at 99-year Center lease

By DAVID MORRISSEY Times-News writer

BOISE — The House of Representatives Thursday refused to give a private alcoholism treatment center a 99-year lease on part of the former Gooding tuberculosis hospital.

But representatives indicated they would be willing to grant a lease for 25 or 30 years, and took steps to see that a lease with these terms would be approved.

The body's action came on House Bill 291, sponsored by Rep. Dan Kelly, R-Mountain Home, and Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding. That bill would give the State Land Board permission to sell 34 of the 40 acres on which the former T.B. hospital is located, and tear down the two oldest buildings located there.

House Bill 291 would also allow the Land Board to grant a 99-year lease to the Idaho Regional Treatment and Training Center, a private alcoholism clinic now using part of the former hospital's facilities.

Employees at the center say their use of the building would free the state of maintenance costs now totalling more than $100,000 yearly.

Representatives said they had no opposition to alcoholism treatment, or to the leasing plan, but argued the lease should be for a period less than 99 years. By a vote of 46-22, legislators agreed to hold H.B. 291 until the 99-year lease specification could be amended to a shorter time period.

"I have no objection to this except for the 99 years," said Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise. "We should have the right down the road to review this. In private business this is a 99-year lease) would be a steal."

Bunting drew support from House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello. "When we're talking about a substantial investment of state lands, it seems there should be some discussion of it in committee," McDermott urged legislators to return H.B. 291 to a committee for further examination, a motion rejected by legislators.

But support for the lease came from Brooks. Representatives were overly concerned about the length of the lease, Brooks said. Some state land in Gooding has already been leased for 99 years, Brooks said, referring to the site of the Gooding hospital.

This lease "isn't going to cost the state a dime," Brooks said, and will provide the state with a needed service. Presently the state must maintain a structure that is hardly used, Brooks said.

The proposed amendments will be prepared by Friday, Brooks said, adding he expects the measure to be approved with a shorter lease period.

Fire contract bill passed

BOISE (UPI) — The House passed a measure Friday allowing county commissioners to contract with fire protection districts for fire protection in rural areas.

Rep. Jack Spurgeon, D-Coeur d'Alene, said rural areas would be receiving a free service.

"Rural areas would be receiving service without paying for it,"

Spurgeon said. "They will end up with a free ride and no one is entitled to a free ride."

But Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, argued that "with the amount of taxes being paid in this country, no one is getting a free ride."

He added "We are having severe fires in these areas and we have to get districts formed."

Move to end extension service projects 'ill-founded'

By LONNIE ROSENWALD Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho lawmakers are chopping away at the state Cooperative Extension Service budget because they misunderstand what the agency does, a service specialist charged Friday.

Community development specialist Art Rathburn of Twin Falls criticized legislators who tucked on an amendment to the University of Idaho's extension service budget discontinuing the Community Resources Development and Food and Nutrition programs.

The Senate will act today on the recommendation, which came from the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee.

Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, who brought the recommendation to the finance committee, said the programs are not related to agriculture and don't belong in the university's off-campus arm.

Rathburn, one of three Idaho Community Resource Development specialists who will lose their jobs June 30 if the cutting measure is approved, doesn't agree.

He says the programs belong in the extension service, even if they aren't farm-related. The Extension Service is also supposed to provide nutrition education, community development and 4-H clubs, Rathburn said.

"The move is now to keep the University through the Extension Service from teaching anything but agriculture off campus. But city people are taxpayers too and they have a right to services," he said.

Rathburn said Van Engelen's proposal to move the nutrition program to the Health and Welfare Department won't work. The $205,000 program is fully funded by the federal Cooperative Extension Service and the state would lose the money.

"Removing a program that's all federal money won't save Idaho taxpayers a penny," he said. The nutrition program helps 1,100 Idaho families, including 250 Magic Valley families, feed themselves cheaply and nutritiously.

The resource development program, Rathburn contends, is important to small towns which need professional advice but can't afford to pay for it.

"We work with cities and counties on their problems rather than just on agriculture. The program is designed mostly to help local people solve their own problems, whether it's an agricultural, economic, street or planning and zoning problem. We try to help by helping them use our resources and money. Then we help them look for federal and state funds to supplement that," he said.

One of Rathburn's most recent projects was organizing the Hansen Progress Committee, a group of 60 citizens of who met to solve the problems of a town that has grown from 350 to 1,000 residents in three years. With advisory help from Rathburn, the progress committee succeeded in repairing city hall, establishing a recreation program and raising funds to buy a $40,000 fire engine.

Rathburn has also worked with

Jerome, Twin Falls and Lincoln counties and other communities on such projects as assessing the impact of new development, drawing up land use plans, and coping with solid waste disposal problems.

The resource development program employs three specialists like Rathburn and one quarter-time ad-power come into its own.

"I'm confident that they will, but until that's done people in a position of authority ought not to be making commitments ahead of that accomplishment," Swisher said.

Swisher added, "The waste must be managed efficiently and then nuclear energy will be a major factor in our future."

Idaho Power ownership of Nevada plant favored

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Public Utilities Commission President-Conroy Ward Jr. hinted Friday evening Idaho Power Co. would receive permission to become a joint owner of a coal-fired power plant in Nevada.

Idaho Power wants to join Sierra Pacific Power Co. to construct a $187 million plant east of Winnemucca, Nev. The Idaho firm said earlier this week it would withdraw its application to build such a plant in Idaho if it can take part in the Nevada operation.

Ward, on KTVB television's "Viewpoint" program, said in response to a reporter's question, "I shouldn't comment in detail on something we're going to decide in the very near future, but I will say in support of your hypothesis that the documents on file with the PUC indicate that energy is relatively cheap as energy goes these days. So, I think probably you could draw some conclusions from that."

Ward also said he welcomed what he called Idaho Power's shift back toward hydropower and away from developing coal-fired plants in Idaho.

"It's very important that there has been a discernable shift in Idaho Power's philosophy, and I think that's responsive to what the people want, and I welcome it."

Idaho Power would get half the energy produced by the Nevada Valley Power Plant. Some 250 megawatts of energy would be available 1981 and another 250 in 1984.

Penn, St. John's continue string of upsets

By United Press International
The two upset specialists of the NCAA basketball tournament did it again Friday night.

Pennsylvania and St. John's each defied the odds for a second straight time and set up a confrontation Sunday for the right to advance to the final four.

Led by Tony Price, who scored 21 points and triggered a 22-5 spurt in the first half, Penn upset Syracuse 84-76 at Greensboro, N.C., to advance to the East Regional final.

In the second game, Wayne McKay put In a rebound of a missed shot with five second left to give St. John's a 67-65 victory over favored Rutgers and a date against Penn Sunday for the right to advance to the national semifinals in Salt Lake City next weekend.

Last Sunday Penn upset North Carolina and St. John's surprised Duke to move into the regional semifinals.

In the Midwest Regional semifinals at Indianapolis Friday night, Notre Dame beat Toledo 79-71 and Michigan State routed Louisiana State 87-71. Notre Dame and Michigan State meet Sunday for the Midwest championship.

Penn, 24-5, took control in the first half against Syracuse. Trailing 19-14, Penn outscored the Orangemen 22-5 over a seven-minute span to take a 36-24 lead. Price had 10 points and Tim Smith, who finished with 10, added 8 points during the burst, which sent the Quakers to a 13-point lead at the half.

"Penn played a great game," Syracuse Coach Jim Boehm said.

"They outthrust us, they outplayed us the first half. We were lucky to be only 13 points down."

Syracuse, 26-4, was led by Dale Shackelford's 16 points.

St. John's trailed 38-34 at the half after falling behind by as many as 10.

At Indianapolis, Kelly Tripucka scored 24 points to spark Notre Dame over Toledo, Notre Dame, controlling the boards and substituting frequently, took command late in the first half after five ties and one lead change, building a 43-33 halftime lead.

After Toledo narrowed the score to 62-61 with 4:50 left, Notre Dame scored 10 straight points to seal the outcome.

In the second game, All-America Earlvin Johnson scored 24 points to direct Michigan State to an easy night against LSU.

Experience

Bryant learns on U.S. level

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One of the more harped-on points in athletics is "experience."

You have to have experience to be good, to play team ball, to react properly, etc.

Then there's the exception to the rule.

It's Orlando Bryant, two-year starting center for College of Southern Idaho, and right now Orlando is just finishing up his fourth year of basketball.

Don't read that as organized basketball. Read it as basketball.

"No, I never played until I was a junior in high school...not on the playgrounds or with my friends. I wrestled some and played some soccer and some other sports in P.E. in school but I never played basketball," the 6-9 Suffolk, Va., native says.

"I was more into art. I was in the band and things like that," Orlando continues. "Then in my junior year some of my friends said they were going to go out for the basketball team. I said I would go out, too, and I made the team. If I hadn't I would have stayed in the band."

Although he is now 6-9, it wasn't Bryant's height that drew him to the game. He wasn't one of those tall youngsters walking down the hall with the varsity coach walking up and saying "you're a tall kid. Why don't you come out for the basketball team?" ala current NBA professional Tim Bassett, a CSI all-American.

"I don't remember," Bryant says when asked his height at the time. "I think I was about 5-11 or may six feet when I was a sophomore. I grew a lot the summer between my sophomore and junior year. I was about 6-7 when I graduated" from high school.

But it was his height that attracted some interest his senior year. Elizabeth City College, "about an hour's drive from my home," offered Orlando some basketball scholarship aid. He figured that was where he was going to go.

How, then, did he hear about College of Southern Idaho?

"I'd never heard about it," Bryant smiles.

"I guess Coach (Mike) Mitchell telephoned my high school coach and he was the first one who ever talked to me about College of Southern Idaho. From then I just did what my high school coach told me because I felt he knew what would be best for me. He told me he thought it would be best if I went to a junior college with a chance to play a lot because I would improve quicker," Bryant says.

Like most easterners coming west, Orlando likes Magic Valley and CSI all right but it isn't tuned to the life he is used to. In fact, that was one of the reasons that he nearly didn't return to CSI last fall. Following his freshman year, Elizabeth City again tried to recruit the youngster and there was a time during the summer that Coach Mitchell feared Orlando mightn't be coming back.

Orlando admits that the recruiting pressure was on but says Coach Mitchell shouldn't have been so worried.

"I went down there during vacation and played with some of the players in the gymnasiums. The other players were doing whatever they wanted to do (on and off the court) and the coach knew about it but he wasn't doing anything about it," Orlando says. What they were doing, obviously, was enough to get the 6-9 center back into Idaho.

Because of his rather recent introduction into the game, the fact that he is 6-9 and the other fact that he has played steadily better for the Eagles the last month, Orlando is attracting four-year college interest.

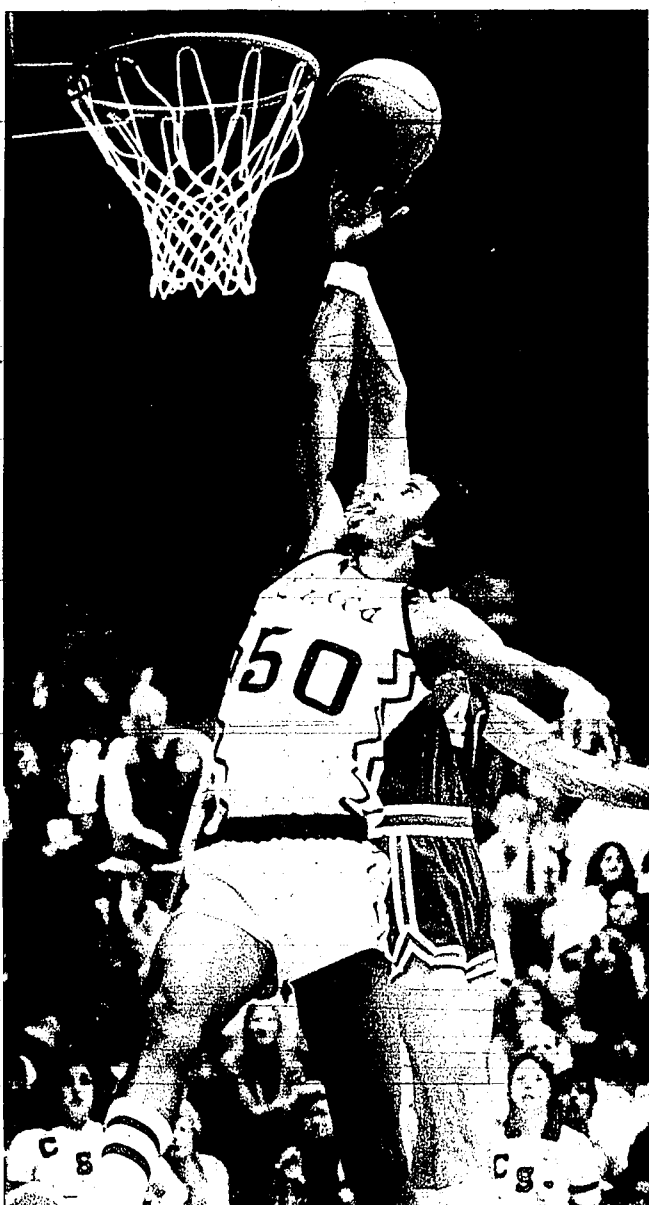

Several recruiting coaches in for the regional mentioned Orlando. There is speculation that the best route for the youngster to take would be to redshirt next year and play the two after that. This would give him another year of basketball experience.

Orlando said he believed he would enjoy a career in art, not from a teaching standpoint, however. "I don't want to teach and I don't want to coach," Bryant says. "But I would like to take some art classes."

There remains the feeling among CSI watchers who also are track aficionados that Bryant could be a strong middle distance runner, the 400 or the 800. But track doesn't interest him.

"I went out for track one year. I ran the 300 (intermediate) hurdles and the 800 but I don't remember my times. Our school didn't have much of a track program. We didn't have a track and we didn't have a high jump pit. So it was hard to get excited about track. The only time our high jumper ever jumped was in a meet."

But it is proved that Bryant, on a straightaway course, just might be the fastest of the Eagles and he has excellent stamina. He doubts, however, that track coach Karl Kleinkopf could talk him into joining the track team for his last spring at CSI.

Orlando Bryant will be stretching with all he's got tonight against Dixie

National berth on the line

TWIN FALLS — The remainder of the basketball season is on the line tonight when College of Southern Idaho meets Dixie College of St. George, Utah, for the right to advance to the national tournament.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. at CSI gymnasium.

Recent history of the inter-regional always has favored the home team but this is the first time that the national tournament berth rides on the outcome of just one game. Previously it was a best of three series, a situation that would benefit the home team most.

CSI has participated in two of the bi-regionals over the years. The Eagles defeated Arizona Western in two straight in 1971 and went on to claim second in the national tournament. Three years later, CSI had to travel to Arizona Western where it won the first game and lost the next two — the second one in overtime.

In Dixie, CSI will be meeting a team that matches up pretty well with the Eagles. That part bothers Coach Mike Mitchell a little because CSI has been used to having a pretty good height advantage this year. But the biggest worry is the flossy 54 percent shooting average the Rebels bring into the game.

"That means the Rebels have good perimeter shooting and compensates its offensive proficiency by the fact that Dixie's leading scorer is its center."

"We're really going to have to guard them," Coach Mitchell says. "Everyone I talk to says their center (Jim Gilbert) is very quick and an excellent offensive player. I suspect that he will give us the most inordinate defensive problems we've had in two years."

The coach said 6-9 sophomore Orlando Bryant will draw the defensive assignment against Gilbert.

Also causing problems for CSI is the fact that Dixie likes to run with the ball and score in transition. The Rebels will be 6-7, 6-6 and 6-6 underneath and that means they should be able to get the rebounds and outlet passing that can make a break explode. It also means that CSI, not known as a strong offensive rebounding team to begin with, will have to be more concerned with covering the break than getting to the boards.

One of the other problems Coach Mitchell has in preparing for the game is his knowledge of the Rebels is based on what he's been able to glean through telephone calls. The Rebels scouted CSI in its regional final victory against Rick's.

"I am told that they prefer man defense but we have to assume that they will use. What kind of zones they use is something we can only guess at. So we've been preparing for just about everything and that hasn't let us concentrate on anything," Mitchell points out.

Whichever team comes out on top, the next few days will be hectic.

Food as punishment not anything new to basketball

TWIN FALLS — Of interest, but not much, is an anonymous letter received about a column we wrote a while back concerning the way some teams eat the post-game meal — or how the fare can vary depending on winning or losing.

The woman, who might be the same one who called CSI Coach Mike Mitchell and chewed on him since he was one we mentioned as used food as an incentive for his players, wrote that it was "inhuman for a coach to withhold something as essential as food for simply losing a ball game."

This brings several responses to mind. We know of instances where coaches have been much more upset with the performance of their teams after a win than after a loss. Of course, we agree, that these incidences are not as rare as the other way.

Still, it must be assumed here that they have heard from the only (we assume) mother who never once threatened to put her children to bed with out supper. Or a mother who never once said "Johnny, you mow the lawn and I'll give you some money to go to the store and buy yourself a candy bar."

The plain truth is the matter of eating has been held out as incentive, punishment, etc. for a heckuva lot more centuries than mankind has played basketball.

We also were somewhat surprised to learn that the Canyon Conference went with the myriad options of dissolving ties to determine its representative to the state football playoffs.

Last fall, you'll recall, there was a three-way tie and it was "solved" through a coin flip. There was discontentment among the losers that there was a more logical way to do this.

We said at the time there were many ways of doing it but none of them designed to engender camaraderie within the league. The league disagreed and went with a system.

One item, in case of ties, the most points scored would have a bearing. When a team is ahead 56-0 and has the ball on the scoreless team's one-yard line with a couple of seconds to go, it is going to make someone very unhappy to see the leading team call time out in an effort to get one more touchdown. That mightn't be necessary for the victory, the winning coach will point out, afterward but those six points may be vital down the road. Can you hear the losing coach say "we don't mind that they made it 64-0 and then went for the two-point conversion because we know they might need it."

But that will even up two years hence when the badly beaten team has the horses and visits revenge to the tune of 89-0 — and that will even up two years after that.

The one that will bring about hard feelings, we feel, is the matter of "secret" balloting to determine the representative if the various formulae fail.

Those "secret ballots" may be secret for up to six or seven minutes. Since only one can win on the balloting, the loser are going to know who voted against them.

The only way that can work is for rapid turnover of athletic and administrative personnel — the guys who will determine the voting. The offenders and offenders have to be gone before the next voting.

We stick by our original stand. The coin flip mightn't be the best way, but it is the only one that withstands reexamination.

The move of former Idaho State basketball coach Jim Killingsworth from Oklahoma State to Texas Christian came even as a surprise to the "killer."

The word around is that Killingsworth called TCU to put in a plug for one of his assistants who had applied for the job.

The TCU athletic director said the Horned Frogs were wanting a "name coach" to get into an emphasis in basketball and would Killingsworth be interested? That apparently falls in the "speak for yourself, John," area.

Of other note, TCU earlier had called CSI coach Mike Mitchell, telling him that cross referencing around the country had brought him name to the surface several times. He was asked to send in a resume — but all that was before Killingsworth made his phone call.

Mitchell similarly has heard of late that he is the "leading candidate" for the Utah State job, opening up last week when Dutch Belknap decided to turn to a banking career.

Mitchell was told that a couple of athletic directors of four-year schools in Idaho and Utah had said he was the No. 1 choice.

"If that's true then it's the best kept secret in America," Mitchell smiled "because I haven't heard a word from anyone about it."

Highland high school Coach Rón Kruse also has been mentioned in Utah State search but the source isn't known.

NFL owners reject TV replay officiating

OLULU (UPI) — National Football League club owners concluded their annual meeting Friday by voting to use of instant replay to resolve disputes over officiating. They also made some rules changes that will make the game safer, and changed policies on roster limits and injured reserves.

By a unanimous 28-0 vote, the owners vetoed the use of instant replay to override official calls during regular-season games, after viewing a videotape of a seven-game experiment and studying a report by league officials.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle noted the use of instant replay might extend the length of games by 15 minutes. The owners were presented in situations in which a different foul call might be made when the tape was viewed than the one after the play.

However, Rozelle left the door open for more study of instant replay in future years when better technology may be available. He said there are no current plans for any more experiments in 1979.

The NFL might be inclined to reconsider if hit with another rash of controversies like those surrounding the 1977 Rob Lyle and Bert Jones plays.

The league took major steps to improve game safety. Officials will be instructed to use quicker whistles to end plays, especially plays involving quarterbacks.

Once a defensive player has a quarterback in his grasp, the official is to blow the whistle immediately, before the quarterback is thrown to the ground. The intent is to prevent incidents like the "spiking" of Terry Bradshaw by Turkey Jones in a 1976 Steeler-Bron game, and last year's play in which Jimmy Youngblood of Los Angeles slammed Minnesota's Tommy Kramer to the ground.

Kramer quivered on the ground for some time before a shocked national television audience.

The rule also would apply to a receiver who jumped in the air and was grabbed as he was coming down with the ball. Once the defensive back has him in his grasp, the whistle will sound, before another hit occurs.

The new rule will prevent quarterbacks from wriggling out of the grasp of defensive players and also make it somewhat easier for defensive players to collect sacks. But Rozelle said the increased safety would be a positive result.

Rozelle also claimed this would make it easier for officials. "The minute somebody grabs a quarterback, the referee is to blow his whistle. This will eliminate second shots and we hope it will stop a defensive player from continuing the action and riding a player to the ground."

Rozelle said the league will study a tightening of the definition of "unnecessary roughness" at its spring meeting in New York in June. Head coaches have also agreed to discuss prohibition of the dangerous chop-block technique at that meeting.

The league in Honolulu passed a rule to make throwing a punch illegal, even if the punch misses. In the past, a penalty was imposed only if the punch connected.

The owners changed the injured reserve rule so a team may bring back three players in the course of a season, so long as an injured player sits out a minimum of four games.

In the past, a player placed on the injured reserve list was lost for the entire season.

The new rule will allow a team to bring back the same player twice, but this would count as two against the total of three opportunities to move players from the injured reserve list to the active roster.

Owners junked the old system in which a team had to get down to 43 players and then add two more after waivers. The roster limit for 1979 will be 45 players, to be achieved by Aug. 27.

A new provision for claiming players will enable a team to claim guards from the waiver wire, stipulating the number they wish to take from a particular group.

A team might list five players, for example, and say it will take the first one available. They would be obligated by the decision.

In the past, teams could withdraw waivers on players except in the final outcome.

The new out-of-season schedule will be 60 players by Aug. 14, 50 by Aug. 21, and 45 by Aug. 27.

In regional finals DePaul given little chance by USF

PROVO, UTAH — Perhaps it isn't an objective analysis, but San Francisco coach Don Belluomini doesn't give De Paul a prayer of beating UCLA Saturday afternoon in the finals of the NCAA West Regional. Belluomini, whose team had just lost a semifinal game Thursday night to the Bruins by a 99-81 score, said "De Paul is a good club, but it isn't in UCLA's class. De Paul's quickness might be a factor, but UCLA is a more dominating rebounding club."

De Paul's players were able to form their own opinions, watching UCLA's impressive display from the Marriott Center stands after their 62-56 victory over Marquette in a game played earlier Thursday night.

"Impressive," De Paul coach Ray Meyer. He earlier had said he'd rather play UCLA than San Francisco although his team already lost once to the Bruins by a 108-79 margin in its season opener.

No one was more impressive than UCLA guard Roy Hamilton, who scored on 15 of 20 shots from the field and finished with a career-high 36 points. The other starting guard, Brad Holland, scored on 11 of 18 shots for 22 points.

The Bruins, who trailed by nine in the first half, shot 73 per cent in the second half in overwhelming the Dons (22-7), who were able to stay close early only because of center Bill Cartwright's 34 points.

Arkansas 'enforcer' to test Larry Bird

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Arkansas will try to stop college basketball's player of the year Larry Bird in Saturday's NCAA Midwest Regional championship game by assigning defensive "enforcer" Alan Zahn to the Indiana State star, Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton disclosed Friday.

Sutton described the 6-7, 200 pound Zahn as "hard-nosed" and not afraid of contact.

"Sutton said he knew his team must slow Bird if the No. 6 ranked Razorbacks are to win No. 1 Indiana State for the right to advance next weekend's NCAA national semifinals at Salt Lake City.

"Bird, who passes and rebounds just as brilliantly as he shoots, scored 29 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and hounded off five assists in leading the unbeaten Sycamores to a 93-77 romp over outclassed Alabama Thursday night.

"Alan Zahn will start on Bird," decided Sutton. "Alan might be the best athlete on our team. He is quick and jumps extremely well and that's the reason we feel he might be best covering Bird."

Sutton also figured Zahn has the physical assets of a football player.

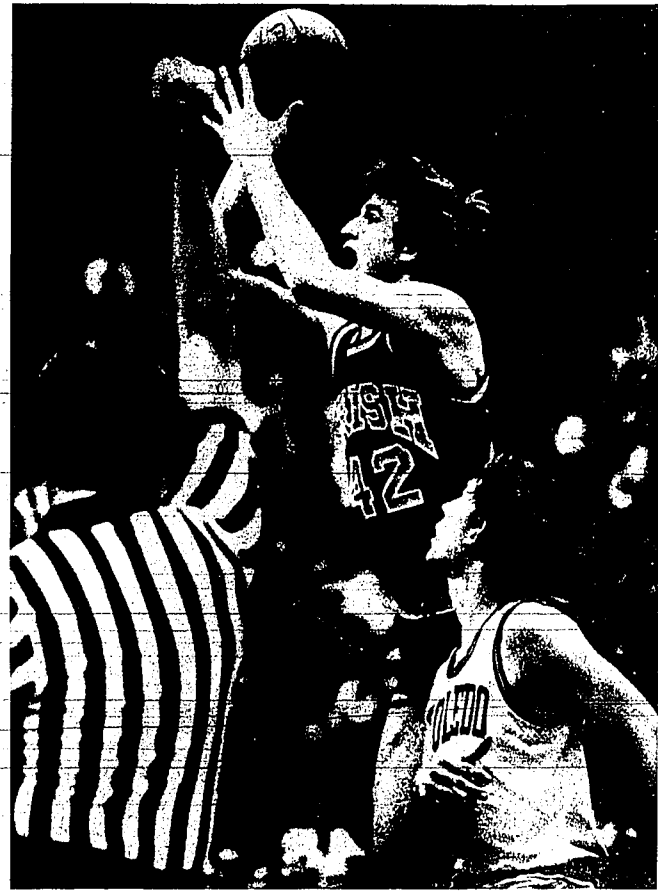

"I think he would be a great football player," he said. "After he graduates, if he wants to play football, I think some (pro) football team certainly should give him a tryout."

Asked if he considered Zahn his defensive "enforcer," Sutton said, "I think so. I think Alan is a very hard-nosed player. We feel Alan is not afraid of contact."

How will Zahn try to cage Bird?

"The thing to do is to try to keep him from catching the ball and when he does catch it, try to keep him in the middle so you can get help from your teammates," said Zahn, a junior forward.

"I think I improved my defense a lot this year. Last year I wasn't as confident defensively as I am now. I now feel I can go out and hold my own defensively."

Flying Irish Notre Dame guard Bill Hanzlik (42) jumps over Toledo's Jay Lehman (43) in a field goal attempt during NCAA playoffs Friday night. Lehman was called for a foul. Notre Dame won 77-71 to advance to the regional finals.

Rain halts baseball, track meet

TWIN FALLS — The first efforts of Twin Falls high school's spring sport teams and a College of Southern Idaho baseball game were washed out Friday afternoon.

The quadrangular track meet slated for Bruin stadium was cancelled at 3 p.m. and will not be rescheduled, reports Coach Jerry Kleinkopf.

Coach Ron Watson and his baseball team were told two inches of snow were on the ground in Elko at 11 a.m. Friday morning and the Bruins' three-game opening tour was set back. Watson said the Bruins tentatively have rescheduled the date for Tuesday and only a doubleheader will be played.

Rain washed out the CSI-Treasure Valley single game Friday afternoon and the continuing precipitation dampened the outlook for a doubleheader at 11 a.m. Saturday at Jaycee park.

Stuart nabs eighth grade cage crown

JEROME — Robert Stuart completed an undefeated season Friday night by downing O'Leary 42-39 in the Jerome eighth grade tournament finals.

The Stuart win ended a Cinderella try by O'Leary which came into the meet seeded fifth and almost pulled it off. The Cubs were down two with 10 seconds, had the ball out of bounds and appeared going for the tying shot when they threw the ball away. That led to a foul on Stuart's Oscar Salinas who hit the first one to tuck the win away.

Stuart led throughout the game and had a fairly comfortable margin at halftime. The third quarter passed in basket matching but O'Leary rallied throughout the final period to make it a do-or-die contest.

East Minico took the consolation prize by beating West Minico. The victory reversed two season losses for East at the hands of west.

Umpire talks stall

PHOENIX (UPI) — The umpires strike against major league baseball apparently has reached an impasse, and as a result, National League president Charles F. Feeney said Friday court action will be taken to end the walkout.

Feeney said the Philadelphia handling labor relations for the League Umpires Association with American League president Les MacPhail in Florida Friday and a spokesman here said, "They made absolutely no progress."

Feeney said baseball will go to court in Philadelphia next to reinstate an injunction against the umpires.

The injunction, which was obtained a year ago and specifically prohibits the umpires from any concerted action against baseball such as strike.

The umpires, seeking more money and increased benefits, have been on strike since the exhibition baseball season began on March 8. Local umpires have been working the exhibition games during the walkout.

Feeney said that he will meet with Phillips next week, but he really did not expect anything to come of it.

"I'll wait until that meeting," said Feeney, "and then we'll decide whether to go to the injunction."

Owner rips Lyle

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner Thursday called ex-Yankee Sparky Lyle a liar and said he "prostituted himself" in his book "The Bronx Zoo."

Sparky Lyle is one of the least liked athletes I ever met," said Steinbrenner, according to a Thursday New York Post.

The word he prostituted himself in his book "He violated his team's trust for the sake of a few dollars trying to sell his book," he said.

Steinbrenner defended his policies, saying, "Our system made the Yankees a winner." He also claimed that Lyle's contention that Steinbrenner dislikes Roy White is "a total outrage."

"Sparky is that not a very smart man?" Steinbrenner asked. "He's a professional athlete. He's just a dumbass. Lyle attacked me just to get a few dollars."

Gilkey award to Mingo

TWIN FALLS — Bobby Mingo of Twin Falls has been named the recipient of the Gilkey Memorial Track Scholarship for spring semester 1979. The scholarship was donated by the family and friends of Doug Gilkey who was a track all-American at the College of Southern Idaho during 1975 and was killed in an automobile accident during the fall of 1978. Mingo will pole vault this year for the Eagles. His current personal best is 14-6.

Area coaches honored

JEROME — Seven Magic Valley coaches were honored for their performances in the winter sports season by the Fourth District Coaches Association recently. The coaches' basketball honors went to A-1, Ron Gillett of Burley; A-2, Terry Adolfsen of Buhl; A-3, Rich Thompson of Kimberly, and A-4 Berry Berg of Murtaugh. Wrestling awards went to Jerry Ennis of Minico in A-1, Skip Andrews of Jerome in A-2, and Jay Darrington of Declo in A-3. Association President Tom Knowles of Hagerman said the awards will be presented to the winners during the district's coaches clinic this weekend at the Club 93 Convention Center in Jackpot.

Prescott rodeos at Ogden

TWIN FALLS — Shane Prescott, a Weber State College Junior and Twin Falls resident, took second place in bareback bronco riding and third in saddle bronc last weekend to help the WSC men's rodeo club take first place at a meet in Ogden recently. The competition was the Rocky Mountain Collegiate Regional Rodeo. Prescott resides at Rt. 3, Twin Falls.

Swim team members qualify

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls swimmers qualified recently for the national YFCA competition at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. April 25-28. Brian Marron, who in February had qualified in the 200-yard breast, also will compete in the 100-yard breast after turning in a 1:06.66 time last weekend in a three-way meet with Pocatello, Boise and Twin Falls. Sherry Stalley churned to a 2:31.9 in the 200-yard butterfly to also qualify for the national meet. Stalley hopes to qualify in the 100-yard butterfly during the regional YFCA meet next weekend at Bellevue, Wash. Both Marron and Stalley are members of the Magic Valley Swim Club. They are the only two who have qualified for the Y competition. This weekend about 15 members of the club are competing at a region 12 meet at Lake Oswego, Ore. The team will return home Sunday. The swim club plans to host the Snake River AAU Association's "C" championships April 7.

Recreation club to meet

TWIN FALLS — The West Magic Lake Recreation Club will meet Sunday at noon at the west side resort. The newly-formed organization will consider ways of improving communication among recreation enthusiasts in the area. "There's also several things we want to talk about, such as improving the road into the area, more water ski areas, etc." said Harmon. All of those interested in recreation — whether it be hunting, fishing, camping, water skiing, etc. — are urged to attend, he said.

Drift Inn claims title

RUPERT — It is off to the State B Tournament for Twin Falls' Blimpies-Dons, Kawasaki and Rupert's Drift Inn city league basketball teams. The Drift Inn won the district tournament championship Thursday night with a very close 66-61 victory over Blimpies in the Rupert city gym. The tournament final was close all the way, with neither team leading by more than six points at any time in the contest. The eight-team state tourney will run March 24-25 in Idaho Falls. Two teams from each district in the state will be on hand.

Xavier looks for new coach

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Xavier University athletic officials said Friday they are talking with assistant coaches from four schools in their search for a head basketball coach. They are Bob Staak of Pennsylvania, Roger Blalock of Purdue, Tom Miller of Indiana and a fourth whose name has not been disclosed by Xavier officials. They would neither confirm nor deny reports that the fourth is Rick Majerus, a Marquette assistant. Xavier is expected to name a coach to succeed Tay Baker in a few days.

Porsche heads Sebring race

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — Pit crews tuned their sleek, low-slung racing machines and drivers got in their final practice laps Friday in preparation for today's 27th running of the 12 Hours of Sebring endurance race. Most watchers were conceding the race to one of the 12 Porsche Turbos entered. Their only question was which of the dozen cars would survive the punishment long enough to take the checkered flag tonight. "This course is very hard on the cars, the brakes and the suspension systems," said Rolf Stommelen.

Casey coach of the year

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Don Casey, Temple University basketball coach, Friday was selected as the District 3 Coach of the Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches. Casey led the Owls to a 25-4 record this season and into the NCAA tournament where they lost in the first round to St. John's. Temple won the East Coast Conference championship and shared the Philadelphia area Big Five title with the University of Pennsylvania.

Dannon Series

Sun Valley races Tuesday

By RANDY FREY Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The Dannon Series cross country ski race tour will arrive in Sun Valley next week, with two races scheduled featuring some of the top nordic skiers in the world. And Ketchum's own Kevin Swigert will be one of the favorites when action begins with a 10-kilometer race Tuesday night on a closed loop in and around Elkhorn Village. Also Tuesday night will be a five-kilometer women's race. Races will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday morning two more races will be held at Galena Lodge, a 15-kilometer men's race and a 10-kilometer women's race.

The Dannon Series is an organized cross country circuit which features 43 races. It is a national program organized three years ago by the United States Ski Association, the national governing body of cross country skiing.

Tuesday's race is the only night event in the western series. Previous western races were held in Oregon and McCall, Ida., with the final stop next week in Jackson Hole, Wyo.

Several members of the U.S. Nordic Ski Team will compete in the Elkhorn race, including racers from the A, B and development teams.

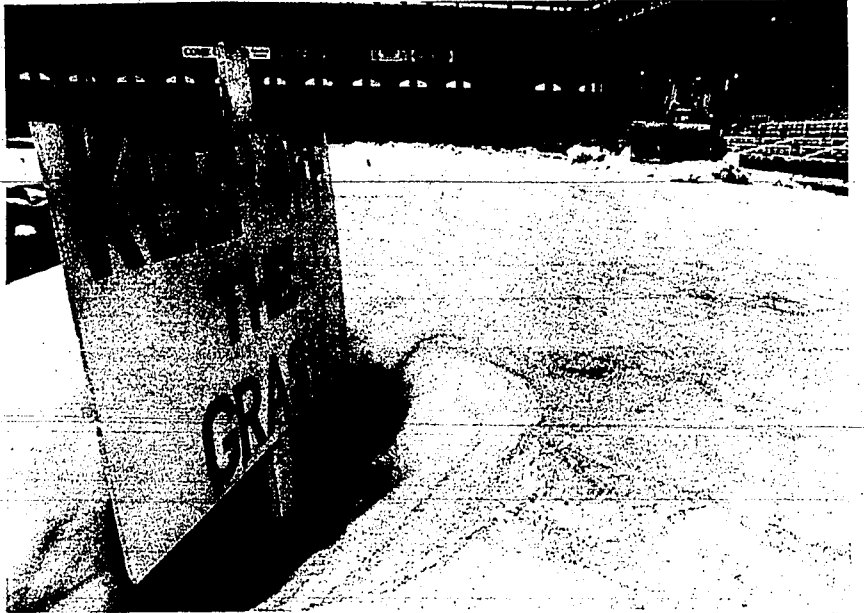

U.S. Ski Team members on hand will include Doug Peterson, Craig Ward, Tracy Valentine, Ruth Baxter and Betsy Haines.

Currently leading the Dannon Series standings for men is Bob Treadwell, who has amassed 135 points to date. Five points behind is Craig Ward and in third place with 109 points is Fritz Koch.

Leading the women's circuit is Judy Rubinowitz with a whopping 171 points, followed by Jennifer Caldwell with 138 points and Baxter with 125.5 points.

Scoring is patterned after World Cup cross country scoring. Men racers must enter seven races of 10 kilometers or more, two of which must be 30-kilometer races. Women must enter seven races of five kilometers or more, one of which must be a 20-kilometer race.

Whoever has the highest point total after seven races is awarded the Dannon Cup.

Getting ready for baseball(?)

Chicago White Sox' baseball season might be only a month away, but you wouldn't know it by looking at the Comiskey

Park. Snow plows are out in earnest beginning the long job of clearing the field and getting it ready for the opener.

Rod Carew hoping for championship this year

SUN CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — Rod Carew drilled 10 STRAIGHT pitches by manager Jim Fregosi for "base hits", then stepped out of the batting cage to help a couple of non-roster teammates on the California Angels. "I get all of my power from here to here," he told the rookies, pointing to the area of his right arm from the wrist to the elbow. "I'd suggest if you want to build your forearm lift a light weight, no more than 20 pounds, every day for as long as you can stand it." The two rookies nodded in agreement and said "thanks, thanks a lot Rod." The episode took place the other day when the Angels were in Sun City to play the Milwaukee Brewers in an exhibition game. According to Fregosi, "something like that goes on every day. Naturally, all the young players look up to Rod and he's been absolutely marvelous helping them out." "Oh, don't make a big thing out of it," Carew said later when a newsman recalled the incident. "Heck, those boys are my teammates. Maybe they won't be on the club this year but they might later. Anything I can do to help them helps me and the team. "Look, I'm no one special around here. I just want to be one of the boys, and so far everyone on this club has accepted me in that light. I don't think the fact I'm the highest paid player on the team will have any affect on anyone. We're all after the same goal, to win." Does Carew, who signed a five-year agreement with the Angels last month after being traded over by the Minnesota Twins, feel he has to be a team leader because of his status as one of the best players in baseball? "If you are asking will I go out on the field and start telling people what to do," he said, "my answer is no. But if you are asking will I go out and play hard and to the best of my ability every day, then my answer is yes. Players respect success and they naturally follow. I'm just not going to tell anyone how to play. I don't think that is the way to lead." Is Carew, whose acquisition makes the Angels big favorites with a lot of people to win the American League West, comfortable with his new team after spending all of his career in the Minnesota organization? "It's been very pleasant here," he said, looking around the field at the Angels. "I'm still adjusting and it will take a little time before I feel completely comfortable. To this point, everyone in the organization has treated me very warmly, and that's important with me. As I said, I want to be one of the guys, no more and no less. I'm sure it will all work out just fine, especially if we win. That's the big thing, to win. "While Carew has enjoyed tremendous individual success (winning seven American League batting titles in 12 Big League seasons) he never has played on a championship team. And the Angels never have finished on top, although they missed by only five games last year. "It would be nice if we could all pull it off together this year," said Carew. "There are a lot of fine players on this team and we might just do it. I'm really looking forward to the start of the season."

Phillies will allow females into locker room

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies are now allowing female reporters into the team's locker room, ending a six-month battle by a free-lance writer. Theodore Martineau, an attorney for the Phillies, confirmed that the club would not continue legal efforts in federal court to bar women sportswriters from the locker room. Samantha Stevenson, the free-lance writer, had filed a suit in federal court when she was denied admission to the Phillies' locker room last October after the opening National League playoff game against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Martineau said the Phillies are now allowing female reporters into the locker room at the club's training camp in Clearwater, Fla. "The Samantha Stevenson case is now moot," he said.

Stevenson said, "It was ridiculous from the beginning. But the real issue has always been clouded by the fake issue of male nudity. The real issue has always been to give women writers the same access to information that male writers have always had." She added that, "now we can get on with the reporting of baseball from the viewpoint of women. Now women reporters in Philadelphia can finally compete equally with men, and finally show what we can do." Stevenson said she was pleased "to see the walls come down. "But I'd really like to see them come down everywhere, not only here," she added. Stevenson had filed suit in U.S. District Court in Philadelphia against the Phillies and the city, which owns Veterans Stadium. She said in her suit that, because she was barred from the Phillies locker room during the playoffs, she was prevented from doing an assignment for Sport Magazine. She said since she was unable to do the story, she lost $1,200, the minimum fee the magazine pays for a full-length feature story. Stevenson said that now with the lifting of the ban, she will be doing an article on Pete Rose for Playboy Magazine.

Flying Poster favored in handicap

NEW YORK — B.J. Ritter's Flying Poster, the West's leading hopeful for the Triple Crown, runs today in the $75,000-added San Felipe Handicap for three-year-olds. Flying Poster had a sensational workout this week, going a mile in 1:38.2 on the training track. And his victories, like Spectacular Bid's, are also on the sensational side, averaging five or more lengths. Today he'll be a 1-2 favorite carrying 137 pounds.

His chief opposition will come from Premier Ministre, owned by Daniel Wildenstein and Instrument Landing, who ran a hot race his first time out in California but had a good record in the East.

Another contender for the Roses goes today, in the $75,000 Bowie Stakes — Harbor View's Picturesque. Picturesque won his last three races and loves to go long. Even as a juvenile he showed his preference for distance by making up ground in all his starts. At Bowie he'll be heavily favored. Billy Kilmer's horse, Raymond Earl, who won his last race by eight lengths, will be challenged by Little Reb in the $50,000 Handicap at Oaklawn Park, Ark. This year to run one-two.

THIS YEAR'S NIT could well be termed "Big Ten Showdown." Before it started it was apparent that Purdue and Ohio State were the class of the tournament, and besides there's Bobby Knight's Indiana team. Monday night, the Hoosiers and Buckeyes get another crack at each other, the last of this year.

While Kelvin Ransey, who has been in double figures for more consecutive games that anyone can remember, is the guy who lights up the scoreboard for Ohio State, forward Mike Woodson is the player the Hoosiers look to when they need a "big man." Saturday — Philadelphia 1 over New York, Detroit 5 over Indiana, Washington 2 over Cleveland, Seattle 1 over Chicago, Houston 4 over Phoenix, Denver 3 over Atlanta, San Diego 6 over Golden State, Portland 7 over New Jersey. Sunday — Washington 8 over Cleveland, Philadelphia 7 over New York, Milwaukee 1 over San Antonio, Kansas City 7 over Chicago, Phoenix 2 over New Orleans, San Diego 7 over New Jersey, Los Angeles 9 over Boston.

Western All-Stars favored in annual Easter Seals tilt

TWIN FALLS — The western Magic Valley all-stars haven't had it very easy over the years in the Easter Seals basketball bash, but they'll carry the favorite's tag into the eighth edition Tuesday night at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

The westerners will be down 5-2 when the tip-off comes about 9 p.m. It will be preceded by a similar matchup between the girls of the two divisions.

Coach Wayne Humphrey will be most of the size in this year's game, an oddity for the west side.

Coach Humphrey, who led Filer into a third place state A-3 showing, doesn't see the game as a grudge match, however. "We've got a great bunch of kids and we're having a lot of fun."

Buhl provides most of the height in 6-4 Roland Hansen, 6-5 Robinson-Jukes, and 6-4 Dave-Deve-Twin Falls center. 6-5 Eric Brian and Glenn Ferry sends along 6-5 Eric Fulton and Hagerman's Brad Gough goes 6-4.

The west's "little guys" all are over the six-foot mark. Tony Smith of Filer goes 6-1 as does Buhl's Jim Smratky, Wendell's Cliff Bunn and Camas County's Dave Ivie.

Burley Coach Ron Gillett, who also figures the game is going to be enjoyable, has Minico's 6-6 rebounding ace Lance Howard and Murtaugh's 6-4 Bill Buckley but after that the rebounding help has to come from leapers. He has a couple in his own Greg Burch and Kimberly's John Coats. But they start from 8-2 and 6-1, respectively.

The easterners will have an outside punch available in 5-11 Gordy Kerbs, Burley's all-time scoring leader. Tracy English of Valley also is a capable jumper shooter and Bob Shay and Kelly Aldinger of Wood River each have had 20-point plus nights. DeLo's 6-1 Scott Panterich has been played the inside and will have trouble adjusting to the tall timber this time around. The east also has a strong inside performer in 6-2 Kevin Baker who combines size and strength with an ability to score pretty well from 15 feet.

The matchup in size is better among the two girls teams. The west could have the tallest in 5-11 Debbie Allen of Filer but she is more comfortable playing on the wing than in the center position.

The key between the two girls teams is which will get into the basketball groove first. Some of them are out of the sport for four weeks from the end of their district tournament season until the all-star game.

The western girls team is composed of Allen and Laurie Johnson of Filer; Lori Garrison and Lori Ostler of Jerome; Brenda Latham of Twin Falls; Brenda Webb of Shoshone; Shauna Gillis of Wood River; Shelly Heath of Glenns Ferry; Rosalie Adams of Gooding and Kay Hansen of Hagerman.

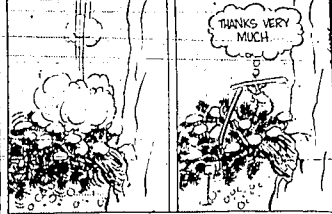

The easterners reply with Lori Vegwert and Linda Martin of Burley; Wendy Schwarz of Valley; Kim Stanger of Hoods; Kody McFarland of Murtaugh; Karen Exon of Richfield; Naomi McRae and Paula Jensen of Minico; Cheryl Crothers of Kimberly and Gwen Powers of Dietrich.

TANK McNAMARA

by Jeff Millar & Bill Hinds

HELLO, GOO? THIS IS TANK McNAMARA. I'VE GOT MY EYES CLOSED BECAUSE I MADE A LITTLE MISTAKE. I WENT OFF ON A RUN. I'M NOT EXPERIENCED ENOUGH TO SKI, AND NOW I SEEM TO BE FLYING THROUGH THE AIR.

WOULD IT BE TOO MUCH TO ASK YOU TO RUN ME INTO SOMETHING SOLID?

Kratzert overcomes wind to take lead in Doral Open

MIAMI (UPI) — Bill Kratzert, one of the few golfers to win a battle with the wind Friday, shot a 3-under-par 69 and took a one-shot lead over Alan Taple at the midway point of the $25,000 Doral Open golf tournament.

"I'm just glad to be in. I'm extremely pleased. When I was feeling off, if someone had given me an even-par in this wind, I would have taken it and run," Kratzert said.

Kratzert finished with a two-round total of 8-under-par 136, a shot better than Taple's 137. Taple, who had begun the day with a one-stroke lead over Kratzert and four other golfers, shot 71 over the par-72, 7,065-yard Doral Blue Monster course Friday.

Next at 138 were Bill Rogers with a 69, young Mark McComber with a 71 and Jack Renner with a 71. Jim Dent shot 71 Friday and was at 139. Andy Bean with a 71, Wally Armstrong with a 71, Howard Clark with a 70 and Larry Webb with a 72 were at 140.

Jack Nicklaus finished with a 74 for a 3-over-par 147, making the cut by a single stroke for the second straight week. Nicklaus said he hurt his back when he bent down to tee up the ball on the 15th hole but he said his swing improved after that.

"It was just a spasm but I'm going to go get it fixed right now," Nicklaus said.

Defending champion Tom Weiskopf shot a 69 Friday, following his 78 Thursday and also putting him at 147.

Severiano Ballesteros shot a 78 in the winds of 25 miles an hour and more for a 148. The Spanish pro thus missed the cut in his first U.S. appearance of the year.

Kratzert opened his round by knocking a sand wedge for five feet and holing it for a birdie then added two birdies on his back nine on putts of 15 and 30 feet.

"I made eight birdies and no bogeys in two days. That'll help your score," Kratzert said.

Taple also said he was happy with his round considering the wind.

"I was pretty pleased. It's pretty windy today and that's the main concern. I didn't hit it as well today as yesterday but I didn't hit it bad either. And I was putting pretty good again."

Taple birdied three times and bogeyed twice. He sank two birdie putts of 25 feet and one of 22. His bogeys came when he three-putted once and hit a 3-iron into the lake.

"Although Rogers' 68 was the best among the leaders, he also did the most complaining."

"It seemed like every hole was a cross wind," Rogers said. "It's a different wind than we are used to playing here and it's sure making it difficult."

Renner agreed mildly.

"It's tough to get the ball close to the pin on a day like this," he said.

Valley track coaches set schedules

JEROME — Magic Valley track coaches began compiling a schedule for the upcoming season when they met in Jerome Thursday night.

The coaches pointed out the schedules are not finalized with some meets to be added later probably with some shifting in the participating teams.

The schedule by track includes:

At Valley
April 4, At Valley, Glenns Ferry, Filer and Wendell at Valley.

April 17, Valley, Kimberly and Murtaugh at Valley.
April 22, Monte Andrus Invitational (DeLo, Filer, Murtaugh, Hansen, Kimberly and Valley).
March 21, Valley, Murtaugh and Wood River at Wendell 10 p.m.
March 21, Murtaugh, Wendell and Hagerman at Wendell.
April 4, Glenns Ferry and Valley at Wendell.
April 4, Kimberly, Hagerman, Cassia, Gooding and Valley at Wendell.
April 14, Glenns Ferry, Camas County, Gooding and Shoshone at Wendell.
April 20, Cassia, Wood River and Shoshone at Wendell.
April 10, open to all centers.
April 24, open to all centers.
At Carey.
March 29, Northside Conference teams and invited teams.
April 5, Northside Conference and invited teams.
April 19, Northside Conference and invited teams.
April 26, Northside Conference and invited teams.
May 3, Northside Conference championships.
Minico will host a pair of tripartite track meets against Eastern Division schools on March 30 and April 7. Filer will probably be selected to host the Canyon Conference championships on May 3 and the Magic Valley Conference title will be decided that same week, probably at Murtaugh.

Nettles denies he ever tried to throw game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sparky Lyle's charge that former Yankee teammate Grag Nettles deliberately tried to throw the Mayor's Trophy exhibition game with the New York Mets last year by committing an error in the 10th inning is being taken under advisement by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, his office said Friday.

"The commissioner just returned from Arizona and has been advised of the situation," said a spokesman from the commissioner's office. "He is not prepared to make a statement at this point. He is studying the matter thoroughly before deciding what to do."

"It will require a long hard look." In an excerpt from his book about the Yankees, entitled "The Bronx Zoo," which will be published in the April issue of Sport Magazine, Lyle, now with the Texas Rangers, says that Nettles, a Gold Glove third baseman, told him he would commit a throwing error if a ball were hit to him in extra innings in an effort to end the charity game.

The game is played annually for the benefit of sandlot baseball.

"If I get a ball hit to me, I'm going to let it beat against my chest and then throw it into the stands," Nettles said, according to Lyle.

Ron Hodges opened the 13th with a bouncer to third and Nettles, whose magnificent sure-handed play at third base helped the Yankees beat the Dodgers in last year's World Series, bobbled it and threw it 10 feet over the head of first baseman Chris Chambliss. Hodges wound up at second but died there and the Yankees went on to win the game in the last of the 10th.

After the game Lyle writes that Fran Healy, an ex-catcher and now a Yankee broadcaster whose squeeze butt won the game, went over to Nettles and condemned him for his attitude.

"I could expect that from some players on the club, but not from you. I thought you always wanted to win," Healy said, according to Lyle.

In the book Lyle's attitude about the incident was blasé.

"In a game like that, who cares? We would rather not even play the damn thing," Lyle writes. Lyle said the purpose of telling about the Nettles' incident was to show that the Mets are so bad they can't win a game when the other team tries to throw it.

Nettles, contacted in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Thursday night prior to a spring training exhibition game with the Atlanta Braves, denied he would ever intentionally make an error.

"It happened so long ago, it's hard to remember," said Nettles. "I probably made some remark about getting the game over with, but I would never deliberately make an error."

Farmers urged to watch pheasants when burning

JEROME — The Idaho Department of Fish and Game is urging farmers to think about the nesting pheasant before carrying out spring burning.

Gene DeFuss, state wildlife land manager for the fish and game department, said this is the time of year when hens begin searching for nesting sites.

He said their first choice is usually along ditch banks, fence lines, right-of-way strips or in unused portions of fields.

"Certainly, irrigation ditches must be cleared and visibility is needed for safety at road intersections, but selective burning can leave the patches that provide excellent nesting cover for pheasants and other birds," DeFuss said.

He said if the pheasants can't nest in those spots, their next choice is likely to be a hay field, which normally is a poor choice.

The peak of the pheasant hatch usually coincides with the time farmers are burning their high capacity machinery. Farmers must cut at the time when their hay is yielding top food value, and DeFuss said it is virtually impossible for the farmer to spot pheasant nests.

When a nest is destroyed, he said it can mean the death of at least six or seven chicks per acre of land.

He said hens forced to move to another nesting site can lay another clutch of eggs if they hadn't started to incubate, but the hatch will not be as good.

If patches of cover must be removed, DeFuss suggested it be done after the first of July when most of the pheasants have hatched their eggs.

Bill to give police powers passes Senate committee

JEROME — A bill which would give fish and game conservation officers police powers was passed unanimously by the Idaho Senate's judiciary and rules committee this week.

According to Howard Carroll, regional enforcement officer for the department, the bill is now before the full Senate. It was passed about two weeks ago by the house.

If the senate accepts the bill and the governor signs it into law, fish and game officers — those who are graduates of the Police Officers Standards and Training academy — would have the same powers as the state police or sheriff.

"This would be a big help to us," said Carroll. "Right now if we see someone tearing down gates out in the field, we can do little about it."

Presently, the fish and game's powers are limited to Title 36, which deals primarily with fish and game related matters, cattle rustling and littering.

The law would allow the officers to serve their own warrants on violations that occur out in the field.

Another bill affecting the fish and game — revision of certain commercial fish hatchery codes — has gone to the governor's desk.

The new bill does away with the signing requirements at the entrances to the hatchery and also removes the felony penalty from stealing from a hatchery. The new law makes the offense a misdemeanor.

Semifinal action

NIT to resume play Monday

By GARY KALE

UPI Sports Writer

Draculianse overtones may be present Monday night when the boys' team from Transylvania meet Monday night in a semifinal bracket of the National Invitation Tournament at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Actually, the only threat to peace probably will be some blood-curling screams from Alabama Coach C.M. Newton and Purdue mentor Lee Rose if the referees' calls go against them. Maybe they'll be yelling the officials' throats, too, if the penalties are too severe.

Newton and Rose formerly teamed up at Transylvania College (Pennsylvania not Romania) when C.M. was coach and Rose was captain of the 1957 basketball team.

The Big Ten is assured of a finalist in the Wednesday night championship game since Indiana and Ohio State play in the other half of the semifinal doubleheader Monday.

Purdue played its first three NIT rounds at home and Rose says his squad is now excited over the prospect of playing in New York.

"We're really happy to be in the NIT," said Rose as an obvious second thought to having been overlooked by the NCAA selection committee in the "other tournament" now in progress. "We'd like to play the rest of the Indiana when the two teams clash at the Garden.

King played with the Crimson Tide squad that lost its bid to win the NIT two years ago when he was injured. He would like to complete his New York visit as a winner.

"Regional ... he wants to return to New York," said Coach Newton. "But he wants to play anywhere, anytime."

When I was kind of poor-mouthing about not getting a bye and then having to play on the road, Reggie told me, 'Coach, let's just go and play and forget about everything else.'"

Purdue and Alabama have met twice previously and each owns a victory. Neither Newton nor Rose are particularly concerned over their next opponent if they reach the NIT final.

games right here (Lafayette, Ind.), but we got to go to New York."

Alabama star Reggie King may make Rose wish he was back home in Rose's Purdue squad split a pair with Ohio State during the regular Big 10 season and did the same with Indiana.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight had two close games with Ohio State this season, losing the first at Columbus, Ohio, 66-63 in overtime and beating the Buckeyes at home, 70-62.

"This is our rubber game this season," said Knight, who professed thankfulness for his team's invitation to the NIT.

"I've always had a great respect and fondness for the NIT going back to my days with Army," said Knight. "I think Madison Square Garden spectators are some of the more knowledgeable fans in the country."

Knight was thankful for the third round bye because "it gives our kids a chance to rest up. They're worn down. We don't have too many people. We have a 10-man squad, but we've been playing with seven most of the time."

The Indiana teams leaves for New York by university plane shortly after a home morning workout in Bloomington.

Ski area conditions look good

TWIN FALLS — Spring skiing conditions exist at all ski areas in the Sawtooth National Forest.

Soldier Mountain reports 25 inches of snow at the lodge and all lifts operating. It continues to be open Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Magie Mountain has about 55 inches of snow. The chair lift, only will be operating Monday through Friday, with all lifts open on Saturday and Sunday.

Pomerelle resort reports about 55 inches of snow and continues operation on a daily basis with night skiing, available each evening except Sunday.

Sun Valley reports 45 inches of snow on top of Bald Mountain and 17 inches in the valley. North facing runs still have good ski conditions. "Snowmaking conditions are generally good in the morning and at night. Snow softens during the afternoons so groomed trails are best at that time."

Cross-country skiing conditions on prepared trails are icy, fast and deteriorating somewhat. Generally, the snow has a very firm base which makes cross-country skiing in undeveloped areas still quite good. A avalanche danger remains moderate to high in afternoons throughout the Sawtooth NRA particularly on south facing slopes.

Northside to compete at Carey

CAREY — The Northside A-4 conference will open its 1979 track schedule March 29 at Carey's all-weather track.

Meets also will be held on April 5, April 19, and April 26. The all-conference meet will be May 3. District meets will be held May 3 and 10 at Twin Falls and Boise. All state meets will be 18-19 at Boise. All of the meets at Carey will begin at 1 p.m.

This is the third year that Carey's track has been utilized for each week's meet.

"It's a rubberized asphalt," said Carey track coach Blaine Tingley. "Ordinarily, with a regular surface, you can't get on it until late in the season, but with the all-weather surface the snow is easily pushed off."

He said Carey was fortunate enough to get the track at the same time that a similar track was built at Wood River High School. Both schools are in the same school district.

There is an excellent chapter on safety plays in "Play of the Hand with Blackwood." Here is an old hand that is well worth study. You are in three trump against a 10 of clubs lead. Can you play safe for your contract?

You certainly can, unless that lead happened to be a singleton. Just duck in both hands!

The actual hand shows East with three clubs to his queen. If he puts up his queen, South just plays his ace and gets four club tricks. If he holds the queen back, South gets only three clubs. But two spades and four diamonds get him to the magic total of nine.

If West has led from Q-10-9-8, South will play his ace of clubs next. East will show out and South will have a proven finesse.

And if West started with queen-10-small, the queen would drop on the third lead. South would collect one less trick than he could have scored, but his contract would have been safe.

The engine is optional.

What most cars offer as options, the Peugeot 504 SL has as standard equipment: power front windows, power steering, a sliding sunroof, electric rear window defogger, two-stage metallic paint, and tinted glass.

But while most cars give you a choice of engine size, we give you an entirely different kind of option: gas or diesel.

We also offer the more expected options, like air conditioning, automatic transmission and assorted AM/FM radio combinations.

We'd like to tell you more about the Peugeot 504, its standard equipment, and its options. Step into our showroom and ask about it. But be sure to tell us whether you're interested in the sedan or the wagon. Because the body is optional, too.
