

U.S. accused of spying on South Africans

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Prime Minister P.W. Botha Thursday accused the United States of spying on South Africa by using the U.S. ambassador's personal airplane as a spy plane. He ordered the expulsion of several U.S. diplomats.

Botha told the nation in a live television speech that U.S. Ambassador W.B. Edmondson's $90,000 Beechcraft Super King air-cruiser with a high speed spy camera under the pilot's seat, was used to photograph secret installations.

"I am bitterly distressed to learn how South African hospitality has been abused," he said. "These actions against South Africa are actions which I would have anticipated from the Russians, but not from the leading Western country."

The prime minister said he ordered the ambassador's twin-engine turboprop, capable of carrying 10 people, grounded until South African security officials inspect it to make sure all spy equipment is removed.

In Washington, State Department officials did not deny the charges of aerial spying but suggested the South Africans were trying to raise the issue to distract attention from their political troubles.

"You can figure out several reasons for the timing, but the one that seems to make the most sense is that this is domestic politics," a senior State Department official said. "The South African government is in real trouble because of their scandal, and they have need for a foreign scapegoat."

Officially, the State Department issued a one-paragraph statement saying it requested the South African action to expel the U.S. diplomats.

"We regret the action... it is particularly unfortunate that the South African government chose to act as it did at a time when we are engaged with it in seeking solutions to the problems in Namibia and elsewhere in southern Africa," the written statement said.

Spokesman Anita Stockman identified the U.S. officials who have been asked to leave as U.S. Air Force Col. Alvan M. Crews, the defense attache in South Africa; U.S. Air Force Maj. Bernd McConnell, the assistant U.S. air attache; and crew chief Master

Sgt. Horace E. Wyatt.

The U.S. military attache's office is comprised of six officers and seven enlisted men, Miss Stockman said. She said the Beechcraft was assigned to the defense attache but was sometimes used to transport Edmondson.

Botha, whose speech appeared to be an effort to cause maximum embarrassment for the United States, said the United States had committed a "grave violation of South African sovereignty."

He did not name the diplomats who were ordered to leave South Africa on one week's notice.

The prime minister said expulsion of the diplomats would not necessarily lead to a break in ties with the United States. But there was little doubt that relations between the two countries were extremely tense.

Observers said Botha's sharp and sudden action against the United States appeared to have been precipitated by the disputes over the issue of independence for South West Africa (Namibia).

Hiring freeze up for debate

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — City Council members in Twin Falls Monday night will discuss whether to lift a hiring freeze and fill eight to 10 job vacancies in various city departments.

In order to cut spending, the council last December had City Manager Jean Millar notify all departments that vacancies in permanent positions should not be refilled.

Since then, Millar said, about 10 city jobs have been vacated by retirement, death, or resignation.

"We are getting to the point where the city has to decide if we are going to operate with fewer employees and reduced services or with full crews and timely services but at a higher cost," Millar said.

He said in December the council also called for a freeze on revenue sharing money for several major city projects.

At the Monday night meeting city officials will discuss lifting these orders so the city can proceed with a Sixth Avenue drain system and improvements on Washington Street North.

Three of the city employee vacancies are in the police department. Police Chief Tim Qualls said C.I.M. in I.D.S. will be retired, communications and vehicle maintenance for the department, retired recently and two other officers resigned. These were Gary White and Clair Walker. Both Walker and White were uniform patrol division, Qualls said.

"An example of what the council must decide," Millar said, "is our situation in the police department. If we can put only two cars in service day, then instead of responding to a traffic accident in five minutes, it may take us 25 minutes. There may even be some minor accidents we don't get to at all."

Other departments with permanent job vacancies include engineering, the water department, airport and sewage treatment.

Millar said the city can operate without filling the vacant positions, but if the council considers that "fat" in the budget, then council members must be ready to accept the fact that services will be reduced.

He said another example is in the water department. During summer months a crew is spending 100 percent of its time on new water meters and water connections. Usually the orders are filled about a week to 10 days after they are received.

"When we have to tell people calling for the service that it will be two weeks to 20 days or that we can get to them next month, then we have to be prepared for the complaints," Millar said.

Also, building inspections might be delayed by the volume of requests so that a contractor had to hold up work until city inspectors could get to the building site. This could present a problem for the building industry.

Schlesinger to urge Carter to solidly back solar plans

By RICHARD HALLORAN
C.N.T. Times-News Service

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Energy James R. Schlesinger has recommended to President Carter that the federal government spend $2.5 billion to stimulate the development of solar energy in the mid-1980s.

If Carter adopts the recommendation, it would mark the first stable federal commitment to solar energy, the administrator so far having limited itself to rhetorical support and modest increases in the Department of Energy's budget.

In a recent memo to the president, Schlesinger also recommended the following:

- That Carter commit himself personally to the advance of solar energy.
- That the administration form a partnership with all sectors of the economy to promote solar power.
- That the president set specific goals for solar energy to demonstrate his leadership and to challenge Americans to meet them.
- That Carter announce his decisions and commitment in a nationwide address or a message to the Congress.

The memo, a copy of which was obtained by The New York Times, comes as advocates of solar energy and the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania push their form of energy over that of nuclear adherents.

A poll published by The New York Times this week showed that 42 percent of the American people believe that the energy crisis can be solved in the next five years by making electricity from solar energy. Thirty-six percent did not agree with that and 22 percent said they didn't know. The most optimistic estimate by solar advocates would have 25 percent of the nation's energy can be produced by solar power in the year 2000.

Schlesinger's memo was written in the context of the overall energy problem, not in response to the skepticism generated by the accident at Three Mile Island. It follows a policy review within the administration promised by the president when he attended a Sun Day celebration in Denver last May. Schlesinger summarized the review and made his recommendations.

Administration officials said that a "decision memorandum" for Carter was being prepared by Stuart Eizenstat, his senior advisor on domestic affairs, and that the president's solar message was expected within a few weeks.

In his televised speech about energy on April 5, Carter indicated that he might be receptive to recommendations such as Schlesinger's. He said then that besides conserving and producing more energy from present sources, the United States must turn to "the most promising part of our battle for energy security—shifting to more abundant sources of energy."

Carter said that, among other forms of energy, "we can turn increasingly toward the ultimate source of all our energy—the sun."

Transcripts show information gap in nuclear crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission was operating almost "totally in the blind" for hours after the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant released a cloud of radiation March 30, two days after the crisis began, transcripts of taped secret commission meetings showed Thursday.

The documents showed that the five commissioners and their top staff members were getting little information from the operators of the crippled central Pennsylvania plant after the morning release of radiation.

Between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m., the commissioners had little idea of how much radiation was released or whether the "plummet" of radioactivity had already passed the people whose evacuation was being considered.

Eventually the NRC recommended that Gov. Dick Thornburgh order the evacuation of pregnant women and small children from a five-mile area around the plant. Thornburgh did advise, although not urgent, such an evacuation.

At one point NRC chairman Joseph Hendrie told public relations officer Joe Fouchard, "It seems to me I have got to call the governor. We are operating almost totally in the blind. His information is ambiguous. Mine is non-existent and — I don't know, it's like a couple of blind men staggering around making decisions."

The documents were released by the NRC to Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz.

The five commissioners got together just before 9 a.m. Friday morning, March 30, and whenever all five were together over the next eight days, the meeting was considered a transcript.

The transcripts were filled with "inaudible" notations and on subsequent days laughing and "expletives," particularly in the March 31 session where the NRC and its staff discussed how to deal with the press.

Photographed juveniles on probation

By JEFF SHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ten juveniles who were caught in the act of drinking beer in Shoshone Falls Park by a Times-News photographer have been placed by a special form of juvenile probation by the Twin Falls Police Department.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said following an investigation that was touched off by the publication of the photograph, all 10 juveniles admitted to a police detective that they were drinking beer and agreed to sign "behavior agreements."

Qualls said although four of the individuals were over 18 years of age, all were treated as juveniles because of the closeness of their ages. Five were 17 and one was 18 years old.

He said the police launched their investigation after the picture appeared in the paper. He said the picture was used to identify the suspects.

"We wouldn't have had this without the use of the photograph," he said, but he added that the picture alone was not sufficient evidence to prove a violation had been committed because from the photograph "you can't tell what's in the containers."

In interviews with detective Gene Ritchie, all 10 juveniles admitted that they were drinking beer.

"I hate to use the word 'confess,'" Qualls said. "They've agreed that it was beer."

Qualls said he did not know whether Ritchie informed the juveniles of their rights before interrogating them, but he said such a warning is standard department procedure.

He also said the juveniles in the photograph weren't "picked out special" for the investigation. "Our practice is to investigate any instance in which there is probable cause to believe that a violation occurred," he said.

Qualls explained the behavior agreement used in this case is a form of juvenile probation "sponsored by our court system" and signed by a juvenile, his parents, and a police officer. In the agreement, a juvenile who has been charged with a violation agrees to refrain from "bad" types of behavior for a specified period of time in lieu of going to court.

The Northwest energy bill

Among the stories in tomorrow's Times-News:

- The nuclear accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania may have a major impact on how the Northwest energy bill will be debated in Congress. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., re-introduced the legislation last Thursday. While Jackson denies any effect on his bill from the accident, a number of Northwest Congressmen told Washington correspondent Steve Forester it will definitely be a factor.
- Read it in Saturday's Times-News.

On this agreement there are 11 stipulations about being involved in any other violations," he said, adding the agreements "throw the responsibility on the youngsters to prove that they want to do right."

The behavioral agreements mean "if any of these 10 people wish to continue on in violations, it has been explained to them that the next violation, regardless of what type, could route them into court and their second offense would also include the first one," Qualls said.

Qualls did not know how long these particular agreements will remain in effect, but they usually run for 30 to 90 days.

Times-News managing editor Chris Peck explained why the picture of the beer-drinkers appeared in the paper.

"The newspaper took the picture and ran it because we thought it fairly represented what some people see as a problem at Shoshone Falls Park," Peck said.

He also noted, "As of today, which happens approximately this time every year, we have hired a part-time employee to patrol the falls area with full police powers."

Sexual relations may be hazardous to your memory

By WARREN TALBOT
 BOSTON (UPI) — A person's memory may be influenced by sexual intercourse, a New York neurologist said in a report Thursday.

Dr. Richard Mayeux of the Neurological Institute of New York said a sudden loss of memory — a syndrome called "transient global amnesia" — usually lasts for several hours before returning to normal and there is no reason for a person to abstain from sex.

"There have been several cases where patients have experienced 'profound memory loss and disorientation' following sexual intercourse with their spouses. Mayeux said in a report in the New England Journal of Medicine. He said "most patients experience only a single episode," and it is not usually medically serious.

"The syndrome of transient global amnesia is manifested by an abrupt onset of profound memory loss and disorientation without change in consciousness. The episodes last for several hours, but memory gradually returns to normal," he wrote.

"There have been very few cases where a person experienced more than one episode," he said.

location, time and date. He was unable to recall events of the previous day. The patient's blood pressure was high," he wrote.

"A 66-year-old woman with hypertension had noted the onset of visual blurring ... after sexual intercourse with her husband, she suddenly experienced confusion and disorientation and could not recognize her surroundings. Twelve hours later her mental state returned to normal," he wrote.

"The patient has been able to return to her usual activities, including sexual relations with her husband."

Board inquiry

Pilot claims he didn't erase tape

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The pilot of a TWA 727 jetliner that went out of control, did a double barrel roll and plunged in a five-mile supersonic nose-dive with 86 persons aboard said Thursday he did not erase the flight tape and does not know who did.

Harvey "Hot" Gibson said the National Transportation Safety Board that as a pilot, he normally does erase the tape after each safe flight, but because of the nature of the April 4 flight, he did not.

"Not to my knowledge, I don't recall erasing it," he said in reply to a question by John Ferguson of the safety board.

The erasure of the flight recorder tape was discovered after the plane landed. Gibson said the recorder, which tapes everything said in the cockpit, can only be erased after the plane's brakes are set and cannot be erased in the air.

"It was doubtful the tape could shed any light on what happened, since it is designed to catch only the last 30 minutes of any flight. Since the TWA jet was in the air about 45 minutes after the trouble, there would have been nothing about that period on the tape.

The plane was en route from New York to Minneapolis when it swerved to the right, did a 360-degree barrel roll and nosedived five miles in a few seconds.

"The tape could only make the other two crew members (the co-pilot and flight engineer) look good. They did a real good job," said Gibson, who is an experienced acrobatic pilot of small planes in his spare time.

The safety board is taking depositions from the crew of the jet. Also asking questions at the proceeding were representatives of the Federal Aviation Administration, the Airline Pilots Association and Boeing Co.

Gibson, who learned to fly in the eighth grade, has logged more than 23,000 hours of flying time with 4,000 hours of time in 727s.

He said he climbed from a cruising altitude of 35,000 feet to 39,000 feet to escape strong head winds and noticed "a slight buzz."

"I had it on automatic pilot and detected a slight buzz, barely noticeable. I saw the wheel starting to turn slowly and the airplane started to roll to the right. The automatic pilot was trying to correct it."

He said he took over manual control, but the plane started to roll. When it came out of the roll, it was nose down and continued into a second roll. He said the flight instruments were not functioning during the 525 mph dive.

Dramatic photograph of Tuesday's devastating tornado bearing down on Wichita Falls, Texas

Tornado victims still seeking shelter

By PATR. TEAGUE
 WICHITA FALLS, Texas (UPI) — City and state officials Thursday called for donations of mobile homes, campers and tents for thousands of residents left homeless by a disastrous tornado that left only concrete foundations where homes once stood.

Mayor Kenneth Hill said as many as 8,000 residents were displaced by the violent storm that killed as many as 60 people in Texas and Oklahoma, injured another 600 and laid waste to an estimated $300 million worth of property.

Many victims spent the past two nights in city-erected shelters at Midwestern State University, churches and in private homes.

But the mayor said many more were sleeping in cars and in makeshift lean-tos. Some were staying in the shattered rooms of their roofless homes rather than risk a chance they might be looted.

"We are providing plenty of security but you can't convince those people of that," he said. "They need shelter tonight. They needed it last night."

A dusk-to-dawn curfew which went into effect Wednesday night was to stay in effect "until things have righted themselves," the mayor said.

In Austin, Gov. Bill Clements appeared for donations of food, kitchen utensils and other necessities to help victims of the tornado. The governor said according to figures at least 1,000 homes were razed to their foundations and another 1,000 were heavily damaged.

"The devastation is hard to understand without seeing it," he said.

"When you see 1,000 homes devastated and the ground as smooth as the top of a table, I can't think of anything those people wouldn't appreciate."

The governor also said it was incredible the casualty list from the tornado was not higher.

"They had about 25 minutes warning. Once they identified the tornado, it was well utilized. Otherwise the casualties would have been tremendous," he said.

Hill said clean-up crews had found two more bodies in the rubble Thursday, raising the total of dead in Wichita Falls to 44.

More tornadoes strike Midwest

By United Press International
 A swarm of tornadoes swept down on the nation's midsection and torrential rains sent floodwaters coursing through streets and into homes Thursday.

The spring assault left at least seven people dead.

Three teen-age sisters drowned in floodwaters that swept through a neighborhood near the town of Louisville, Miss., one of numerous areas hard-hit by severe thunderstorms that pounded Mississippi.

The girls and their mother were trying to escape their flooding home at the Center Ridge Community, authorities said. The girls were following their mother and were swept away by the floodwaters from an overflowing creek.

Rescue teams worked through the morning evacuating low-lying areas around Louisville.

"It turned low-lying areas in and around Louisville into oceans," Fire Chief Terrell L. Sinclair said.

A tornado smashed through the tiny community of Steens, Miss., damaging more than 50 homes and outbuildings. No major injuries were reported.

Soviets' Soyuz 33 capsule makes emergency landing

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet space capsule carrying a Soviet commander and the world's first Bulgarian cosmonaut made an emergency landing Thursday night after failing to link up with two comrades aboard the Salyut 6 space lab.

The Tass news agency said the Soyuz 33 capsule set down 220 miles southeast of Dzharkazan in the Soviet republic of Kazakhstan. Soviet commander Nikolai Rukavishnikov and Bulgarian engineer Georgi Ivanov reportedly were in fine condition.

It was nearly midnight in Kazakhstan when the descent module made its emergency landing almost exactly two days after launch.

"The fast action at night by the rescue team ensured the quick location of the descent module and the removal of the cosmonauts," Tass said.

The Soyuz 33 capsule had attempted to dock with the manned Salyut space lab Wednesday night, but that part of the mission was scrubbed only a few miles short of the target.

Gay date hearing granted

CUMBERLAND, R.I. (UPI) — A student, walkout was averted Thursday by a stern warning at Cumberland High School, where "emotionally drained" Paul Guilbert waited to learn if he will be allowed to bring a male date to his junior prom.

Cumberland High officials have refused to sell prom tickets to Guilbert, 17, an avowed homosexual. The School Committee, after initially refusing his request for an appeal, later agreed to hear it.

"A formal hearing on the merits of the student's request will be granted," School Committee Chairman William J. O'Connell said Thursday. He said the committee first wants an outline of the legal issues in the precedent-setting case.

Guilbert has contacted the American Civil Liberties Union and National Gay Task Force to discuss a possible court suit. Both groups agreed to assist in the fight, but the youth hasn't decided whether to pursue it.

Guilbert, who has been spat upon and taunted by some fellow students, has attended school regularly. School officials have kept an eye on him through the day to make sure he is not harmed.

"He's very emotionally drained," Principal Richard B. Lynch said.

A student walkout to protest the prom issue was averted shortly before it was to begin at 11 a.m. Thursday. Lynch announced over the public address system that any student who walked out or took part in a protest faced immediate suspension.

But the building emptied, anyway, when someone pulled a fire alarm. Students were back in class five minutes later.

Horoscope

Leos have to use wisdom in getting points across; Scorpios must show devotion to their mates

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have the chance now to work out a course of action that could bring added success in your line of endeavor. Contact persons whom you would like to be associated with in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get an early start on unfinished work you have to do and plow right through with enthusiasm. Show mates that you are truly devoted.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Talk over policy matters with associates and come to a fine agreement. Situations arise now that can prove advantageous for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure all that accumulated work is taken care of before you start weekend social activities. Budget your money wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to make early plans for weekend pleasure you wish to participate in with good friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have fine ideas about handling home affairs, but be sure to use wisdom in putting them across. Keep active and feel better.

VIRO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study a puzzling matter and you can gain the benefit later. Try to be of greater service to others at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Forget frivolity and get down to the most practical matters that need your attention. Bid adieu one who imposes on you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You will have to persevere more if you are to gain your most cherished personal wish now. Show more devotion to mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make the right decisions concerning personal matters and gain your aims. Strive for increased happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact good friends of quality and plan the future wisely. Make the evening a happy one from a social standpoint.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Know just where you are headed in business affairs and use positive methods for best results. Show more consideration for others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have excellent ideas that should be worked out with persistence so that you can gain the benefits. Be charming with others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a very inquisitive mind and will study problems and come up with the right answer. Work in laboratories is best suited for your progeny, be it in medicine or whatever. A gifted person in this chart.

What's what

The marriage counselors may soon find assistance in a fancy instrument that reveals our 'vibes'

Our Love and War man is looking into the remarkable claim that an encephalograph, the instrument that measures brain waves, can also measure affection between two people. Theory is that how well people meet and mesh with one another depends on the brain waves they send out and receive. What the youngsters call vibes. And the instrument supposedly can detect these vibes and figure out their intensity. Would think a couple all wired up that way to a machine might have a little trouble transacting, but maybe not. Anyway, there may be a market for encephalograph among marriage counselors, and the medical suppliers ought not overlook that.

BRIDGES

Q. "Doesn't Venice have more bridges than any other city in the world?"
A. No, sir, that distinction goes to Amsterdam. With 636 spans.

Sick children of ancient Egypt were fed skinned mice.
Q. "In which states do people on the average make the most money?"
A. Alaska, Connecticut and New Jersey. That's income per person. And the states where the people make the least money are Maine, Mississippi and Vermont.

Yes, some Swiss watches are made in Hong Kong.
Q. "Do frogs drink water?"
A. Maybe, but there's no record that anybody has ever seen a frog take a drink of water. Evidently, they absorb all the water they need through the skin.

MUSIC OVER MILITARY

And it's noteworthy, too, that the Moscow national orchestra is larger than its army! Appealing, that. Music before military might.

Some service stations have set up coin-operated dispensers to sell compressed air. A quarter will get you four minutes' worth.

When Chaucer wrote of "bones," he meant dice. When he wrote of "goons," he meant thugs. That slang has been around for quite a spell.

7-Up was first put on the market as a hangover help.

Blind biker at midway point

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hop on a bicycle, close your eyes, start pedaling and don't stop until you've gone around the world.

That's what it is like for Tore Naerland, a Norwegian cyclist who was in Hong Kong Thursday in the middle of his bicycle trip around the globe. Naerland, 24, is blind.

Naerland hopes to pump fast enough to beat by one day Jules Verne's hero Phileas Fogg who cascaded across the skies to circumnavigate the earth in 80 days.

Accompanied on a tandem bike by his sighted partner, Marit Voster, 21, and Haakon Bjoraa, who follows the cyclist in a supply car, the team, the "Biking Vikings" — have roamed through France, Italy, Egypt and India, before flying from Calcutta to Hong Kong.

Having finished more than half of their 7,000-mile journey since begining in London March 1, their purpose is to let the world see that blind and disabled people can enjoy more of the adventures of living.

Later Thursday, they left Hong Kong for Tokyo. From there they will travel to the United States, and hope to make it to London by May 18.

Cody denies popes wanted him removed

CHICAGO (UPI) — Archbishop John Cardinal Cody said a report that Pope John Paul II and his two predecessors unsuccessfully tried to remove him as archbishop of Chicago is "a dirty lie."

Cody, the often-criticized spiritual leader of the nation's largest Roman Catholic diocese since 1965, denied the assertion by the Rev. Andrew M. Greeley, in his forthcoming book "The Making of the Popes, 1978," said Pope Paul VI, John Paul I and John Paul II all tried to get Cody to step down.

"Pope John Paul I, Greeley wrote, 'had given orders for the replacement of Cardinal Cody. The papers of the Cody case were in his hands when he died.'"

Pope John Paul II offered Cody a "job in Rome, which he (Cody) declined" last December, Greeley wrote. Pope Paul VI tried the same tactic in 1979 and Cody "obstinately refused." Pope Paul VI's offer, the book said.

"That's a dirty lie and you can quote me on that," Cody told the Chicago Sun-Times Wednesday. "Pope Paul was my friend. If he ever offered me a job, I would have been the most obedient man in the world."

Jerry, Linda elude newsmen

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and his petulant companion Linda Brown are eluding newsmen as they flee from Nairobi in the dead of night to a secret Easter hideout in Kenya's big game country.

—Aides banded together, newsmen they did not know where the couple had gone.

But other sources said they had left for Kenya's beautiful Masai Mara game park, a region on the edge of the famed Serengeti Plains teeming with elephant, rhino, water buffalo and wildebeest.

They planned to spend at least two and possibly three days recovering from a hectic round of official engagements and constant buffeting from newsmen, which Miss Housatid found so intolerable she threatened to cut the trip short and return to the United States alone.

More than 2,500 say 'mass of the chrism'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II knelt and washed the feet of 12 old men Thursday in the ancient Holy Week rite of humility intended to show that the leaders and the lowest members of the church are all equal before God.

Before the Holy Thursday ceremony, the pontiff and more than 2,500 clergymen renewed their vows and said the "mass of the chrism" together at the biggest concelebrated service in the 1,600-year history of St. Peter's Basilica.

The pope knelt at the crypt below the basilica's main altar, surrounded by about half of all of Rome's parish priests, 22 cardinals and 40 bishops, and prayed that all Catholic priests would keep their priestly vows strong.

The foot-washing ceremony later, a rite believed to be a reproduction of Christ's gesture toward his apostles at the Last Supper, was at the Basilica of St. John Lateran, the vast and ornate 4th-century church built by the Roman Emperor Constantine.

John Paul II wore white robes, knelt and washed the feet of the 12 white-robed old men.

Portrait dealing suspended

BOSTON (UPI) — The battle to keep Gilbert Sina's portraits of George and Martha Washington hanging in the rotunda of the Museum of Fine Arts shifted Thursday from the law courts to the wallets of the city's art patrons.

Mayor Kevin H. White will drop his request for a temporary restraining order to block the sale of the paintings, following the announcement of a voluntary eight-month suspension of negotiations by the Boston Athenaeum and Smithsonian Institution. William Smith, an attorney for the city, said Thursday.

"I suspect we'll ask the court to take off our request because there is no impending doom that needs to be enjoined," said Smith, who Thursday was awaiting written confirmation of the suspension of sale talks between the two cultural institutions.

John Rodgerston, an attorney for the Boston Athenaeum, said that private library which has owned the portraits since 1831 is willing to consider other offers — but that the $5 million price tag stands.

"We must receive $5 million for the portraits, from whom it doesn't matter, as long as they are reputable," agreed Augustus P. Loring, treasurer of the Athenaeum. "We might think twice about the Ayatollah or the Shah."

"We are bending over backward to play the game, and I think we should. We owe it to the community," said Loring.

The decision by the Athenaeum and the Smithsonian to suspend negotiations followed Wednesday's announcement by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and other political and civic leaders of a fund-raising campaign to buy the portraits for the Museum of Fine Arts.

"I never wanted to see the things go out of the Boston area," said Loring. "But my committee of three sat down and after a lot of thrashing about decided they must remain in the public domain."

Dallas pump prices cheapest across nation for gasoline

By United Press International
Dallas had the cheapest pump price in the nation this week, 65.5 cents a gallon for regular leaded gasoline, but New York City motorists paid the steepest price anywhere—99.9 cents for premium unleaded, a UPI survey showed Thursday.

Americans may have trouble finding gasoline this Easter weekend, with at least 40 percent of the service stations in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Indiana, Wisconsin, Colorado and Oregon planning to close Sunday.

Spot checks revealed that Sunday closings, shorter operating hours, shortages of one or two grades of gasoline, limits on gas sales per customer, and waiting lines at stations were spreading to most parts of the country.

Prices jumped by as much as 4 cents a gallon in Missouri this week, 3 cents in Louisiana, and 2 cents at pumps in Texas, Michigan and Vermont.

The Dallas self-service station with the best nationwide buy of 65.5 cents for regular leaded raised prices by 2 cents a gallon in the last week, the survey found. On the other hand, motorists willing to pump their own gas paid as much as 79.9 cents a gallon for regular leaded in Phoenix and Los Angeles.

A Texaco full-service station in the heart of Manhattan had the distinction of charging the highest price in the United States, 99.9 cents for premium unleaded. Nevertheless, business was brisk.

Motorists in parts of Minnesota, however, could find premium unleaded for 77.9 cents a gallon this week.

Regular leaded gasoline at full-service stations ranged from a low of 69 cents in Baltimore to a high of 87.9 cents in Detroit, according to the weekly survey.

Full-service stations in Dallas and Baltimore tied for the best bargain on regular unleaded gas this week at 74 cents a gallon. The top price for this grade was 91.9 cents a gallon at self-service outlets in Detroit.

Dallas also had the cheapest self-service price for regular unleaded at 68 cents a gallon, but one pump-it-charged 88.9 cents for the same grade.

Premium leaded gasoline sold for a nationwide low of 71 cents a gallon at self-service stations in Dallas and Helena. The full-service price went as high as 93.1 cents a gallon in Chicago.

Woolworth takeover bar sought

NEW YORK (UPI) — F.W. Woolworth & Co., the variety store chain, filed suit in New York federal court Thursday to block the proposed $55 a share takeover bid by Brascan, Ltd. of Toronto.

The suit accused Brascan of violating state and federal securities laws and said the takeover proposal involved misuse of inside information. It demanded that Imperial Bank of Commerce in Canada be required to cancel the $70 million loan it granted Brascan to finance the deal.

The suit also said the takeover proposal involved violations of margin requirements, failure to comply with Investment Company Act of 1940 and raised the question of possible violation of various state liquor laws.

After the Woolworth board meeting Wednesday, Chairman Edward G. Coburn said that the Brascan offer was made possible by the bank's loan, which he said was improper because the bank also is Woolworth's biggest lender.

"Canadian Imperial has had full access to the most confidential information with respect to the company's financial status and future prospects," Gibbons said.

He said it was "inconceivable" that the Canadian bank would have agreed to lend "such an enormous sum" to Brascan without "relying on inside, highly confidential information."

Gibbons said the "unethical" actions of Canadian Imperial "permeated and tainted the entire offer," and that the offer raised moral and ethical questions of a most serious nature.

He added, "The best interests of Woolworth shareholders would be served by the company's continuing as an independent, publicly held company."

Wyoming group scores slurry pipeline plans

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Federal regulators could take over development of the Little Big Horn River if a coal slurry pipeline is allowed to transport the river's water to the Texas Gulf Coast, the Wyoming Outdoor Council says.

The council, one of the state's strongest environmental lobbies, urged Gov. Ed Herschler to cancel approval for the development of the river water and its export through the pipeline.

"Wyoming may be forever committed to the export of that water as a matter of national interest," Jack Pugh, member of the council's board of directors, said. "Once the shipment of coal to Texas via the slurry pipeline is begun, the operation will come under federal interstate commerce regulations and Wyoming may never be able to regain state use."

Herschler has until roughly the end of May to decide whether to allow diversion of 230,000 feet of a water stream enough to meet the needs of a city of 150,000 — from the Little Big Horn. Texas Eastern Transmission

Corp. wants to use 20,000 acres to pump pulverized coal through the pipeline to generating plants.

The law firm's clients, with their great demands for water, are a sensitive issue in arid Wyoming. Texas Eastern won permission from the 1979 Wyoming Legislature in large part because it said the balance of the water taken from the Little Big Horn — which now flows into Montana largely untouched — could be distributed to farms, ranches and towns as the line snakes southward.

The law firm, however, gave Herschler the option of canceling the permission should problems develop. At a public hearing into the proposal at Sheridan last month, Texas Eastern President Dennis Green warned that only enough water for the pipeline might be available after expected lengthy water rights litigation is finished.

Montana Gov. Thomas L. Judge and state Sen. Crow Indian Nation claim rights to part or all of the river water. Both have threatened legal action to stop diversion of the river.

Pre-Easter evening up leaves futures mixed

CHICAGO Commodity futures ended mixed Thursday, the last day of trading before the Easter weekend.

Commodity News Service said liquidation from both long and short sides of the market stabilized live cattle at the close, with settlements up 75 to 45 points, except for spot April which was 132 points higher. Volume was 37,170 contracts traded. Feeder cattle ended at the high end of the day's range with gains of 100 to 75 points on a trade of 200 contracts.

Live hogs settled 12 to 45 points off in nearby contracts but 20 to 7 points higher in the back. Some late short covering took pork bellies off the lows for the day but they ended the session 27 to 55 points off on a trade of 4,202 contracts.

Speculative buying contributed to a firmer opening in wheat but late selling, seen by some traders as evening up, led to a close 1/4 cent lower to 1 cent higher. Corn faltered after reaching an early high, and finished down 1/4 cent higher to 2/4 cents down. Commission house liquidation of soybeans broke the market and sparked downturns in both oil and meal. Beans finished 17 to 6 cents down, meal lost 3.10 to 99 cents and oil fell 61 to 20 points.

Maline potatoes closed 18 cents lower to 5 cents higher with November leading the decline at 6.06 per hundredweight. Volume was 96 lots traded.

New York Sugar 11 finished 15 to 6 points lower, weakening sharply in the final minutes on heavy selling. Spot may finished then weakest at 7.96 cents a pound. Volume was 5,750 lots.

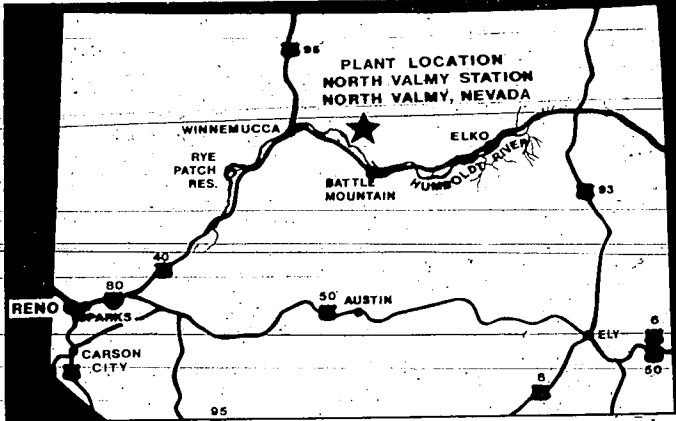

New York Comex gold steadied and in an uneventful trade gained 40 to 30 points on a turnover of 18,000 lots. New York Comex silver advanced 70 to 20 points on slow covering an position squaring ahead of the weekend. Volume was 10,000 lots including 1,488 switches.

Airwest considering added Boise flights

BOISE (UPI) — Hughes Airwest is considering expanding its Boise schedule with new non-stop flights to Oregon, Washington and Colorado cities.

Hughes Vice President Mike Murphy told the Boise Chamber of Commerce Wednesday the airline is looking at Boise as a collection and distribution hub for flights from the Pacific Northwest cities of Spokane, Seattle and Portland to Denver, Salt Lake City, Phoenix and Las Vegas.

He said the airline is looking at the possibility of starting non-stop flights linking Boise with Eugene, Ore., Tuker, Wash., and Denver.

Nevada power project OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has granted Idaho Power Co. authority to participate in the construction and operation of the North Valmy Power Plant project at a cost of $167 million.

As a result of the decision, Idaho Power's application to build a 500-megawatt, coal-fired plant in Idaho has been dismissed. The commission agreed with the company that its efforts to build the plant would cease if participation in the Valmy project were granted.

In its decision, the commission said it will allow Idaho Power one-half interest in Valmy Unit No. 1, which is under construction, and Valmy Unit No. 2 — in conjunction with the Sierra Pacific Power Co. of Nevada. Each firm is entitled to 50 percent of the output of the project and must cover 50 percent of the costs.

The plant is a coal-fired facility located near North Valmy, Nev. Total capacity of the two units will be 500 megawatts.

The first unit, expected to generate 250 megawatts, may be operational by late 1981. The second, which also will generate 250 megawatts, will be placed in operation in late 1984.

According to an agreement between the two firms, Sierra Pacific will provide coal as fuel for the first unit under contract with the Southern Utah Fuel Co. It is expected that Idaho Power will supply coal for the second unit from the Black Butte Mine near Tropic Springs, Wyo.

In its order, the commission said that joint participation by Sierra Pacific and Idaho Power will lessen the financial impact on customers for anticipated energy needs. Lower costs for more customers should result, it said, with two companies carrying the financial burden.

Amtrak tests new French turbine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amtrak said Thursday it is testing a new French-built turbine engine which gives 41 percent more power than the engines now used in Amtrak's Turboline trains.

The engine would allow Amtrak to use one engine instead of two to power its turbine trains, resulting in a 25 percent fuel saving.

The new engine, which Amtrak has not yet decided to purchase pending final test results, would be used in the corporation's fleet of Turbolines which operate on several lines out of

Union flays alien usage

SALINAS (UPI) — The United Farm Workers Union says illegal strike-breakers in the 12-week-old lettuce strike.

"The Immigration Service has been raiding companies where our members work, but they go to the edge of struck fields and then stop," Lisa Feldner, a spokesman for the union, charged.

Sergio Guerra, a striking UFW member, said that where there is no picket line, the Border Patrol arrests aliens. "But when there is a picket line, they don't go in and arrest the illegals."

Roland Kemp, a spokesman for Sun Harvest Co., target of the strike, denied that his firm was recruiting illegal aliens.

"As far as we know, all are legal green carders," he said. "We are going through the normal hiring procedures. There is no higher percentage of illegals among those we are hiring than among our union workers."

Expansion plan revised

CHICAGO Sun-Times
CHICAGO — The plan to expand membership of the Chicago Board of Trade has been revised to create only 375 new associate seats, according to chairman Ralph N. Peters.

The new plan would replace a previously approved scheme—that would have created a new associate membership for each of the 1,402 full memberships at the exchange, as well as the 100 memberships restricted to trading in precious metals and financial instruments.

The new proposal is likely to be submitted for the approval of the directors of the exchange when they meet next Tuesday, said Peters.

Twin Falls Co. sugar beet growers get low-cost insect control with THIMET

Get an early start on your pest control program this season with THIMET[®] 15-G soil and systemic insecticide at planting time.

THIMET can help keep aphids, beet root maggots, leafhoppers, mites and leaf-miners from reducing your sugar beet yields.

- Protects from inside each plant for weeks.
- Harmless to beneficial insects when applied in the soil.
- Can be applied to foliage later for control of aphids and mites.

THIMET 15-G gives dependable, long-lasting insect control for sugar beets. Whether you plant to use THIMET in the ground or on foliage during the growing season, you'll get effective insect control at the right price. Use pesticides effectively. Read and follow label directions carefully.

Telephone workers expect to strike Monday

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Some 18,600 Communication Workers of America members, including eight Western Electric workers in Twin Falls, expect to leave their jobs Monday morning unless company officials offer to negotiate work contract measures before then.

Michael Taylor of Twin Falls, spokesman for the Idaho workers covered under the CWA-15 contract said if Western Electric Co. officials do not back off on their reported position of refusing to negotiate under any threat of work stoppage, the 18,600 union members are expected to leave their jobs at 7:30 a.m. Monday.

Taylor said this would not, in itself, endanger telephone service to customers in Twin Falls and vicinity. But, he said, since other workers of Bell Telephone Co. would probably honor picket lines, if picket lines are set up, telephone customers might encounter some problems. Taylor said long-distance callers not using direct dialing would probably encounter delays or other difficulty.

He said the Western Electric workers, who handle equipment, installation and maintenance for Mountain Bell, are working under a three-year contract with another year until expiration.

Taylor said since the contract was negotiated and adopted, costs have increased to a point where certain workers are subsidizing the company in order to do their jobs.

He said only Article 13 of the contract is covered in the union request for negotiation.

The workers are now paid 15 cents a mile for mileage when furnishing their own vehicles for company work. Taylor says this is way below the cost of operating and maintaining an automobile. Per diem pay is $17.50 per day for on the site work, also below cost, the union says.

"When we, in this area, for example, have to go to Ketchum for a week or two for a special installation, we get $17.50 per day for three meals and a room. There isn't a place in the Ketchum area where you can even get a room for $17.50, so we are subsidizing the company by paying costs above that which we are assigned ment away from home," he said.

Taylor said the decision to stop work came from the Local 8490 president in Denver, Colo., after the president of 24 unions around the country sent in their votes. Taylor said there are about 72 communication workers in Idaho involved in the work stoppage.

Taylor is the former Idaho state representative of the communication workers and is spokesman for the Twin Falls area.

Citizens seek no-smoking law

TWIN FALLS — A citizens' group plans to ask the Twin Falls City Council to pass an ordinance to restrict smoking in restaurants and other public places, councilman Gordon Cox said Wednesday.

Cox said he was recently approached by citizens seeking advice on how to approach the council in requesting passage of an ordinance to require that restaurants provide separate dining areas for smokers and non-smokers.

Cox said it was his impression that the requested ordinance would also encompass other restrictions on smoking in public places, but he said he had not seen the total proposal.

"They only mentioned restaurants, but I'm sure it would not be limited to only restaurants," Cox said.

Cox said he would not reveal who approached him on behalf of the anti-smoking group because "they're not organized, but they're not organized."

He said the group indicated it would probably present its proposal to the council "within the next two or three weeks."

"It's going to be a thing that will come from the general public, not from any special interest group," he said.

Cox said he advised the group to contact the council armed with facts and figures, and only after talking with restaurant owners in the city.

Cox pointed out that the Prime Cut Restaurant segregates smokers and non-smokers in its dining room, and he said he has heard that the response has been favorable.

Cox, who is a bishop in the LDS Church, said he will not present the request to the council or sponsor the group in any way because he does not want to confuse the issue with his religious beliefs. The LDS Church prohibits its members from smoking.

Idaho State Law prohibits cigarette, cigar and pipe smoking at public meetings of government agencies.

Buhl finds no basis for free park rule

BUHL — A policy of long standing, but one which was apparently completely unenforced, has been dropped by the City Council.

Eastman Park, a major park facility in Buhl, has been used only for free activities for as far back as old timers can recall because "everyone said you can't charge for events in the park."

The park was donated to the city for a park many years ago and somewhere along the line the "no charge" policy came into being.

Because unusual to this effect was found in the recorded deed, city council members asked several months ago if anyone could come up with a foundation for such a stipulation.

Tuesday night Mayor Dale Christensen said the plea received absolutely no response.

"I guess we can go ahead and charge for entertainment and concessions," Christensen told the council.

The issue came up when Jaycees, sponsoring the annual Sagebrush Days celebration, launched an investigation.

For years, bingo games and other paid food and game booths of Sagebrush Days have been held in the streets or on school grounds near the park because everyone believed the no-charge policy was part of the deed and the land was given to the city. But apparently no one had checked it out until this year.

Sagebrush Days will be held during the July 4th holiday. Jaycees Jim Barker told the city officials Tuesday. He said Jaycees are hoping other community organizations will join in making the celebration the kind of event it has been in previous years which will attract Magic Valley residents to Buhl for a full day of festivities.

He said pony rides and other activities will be held in the park and the revenue will help cover costs and maybe help the Jaycees pay for their building and other expenses.

"Last year we had a terrific crowd for our parade because everyone wants to see the Sagebrush Days parade, but in everyone went home," Barker said.

The Jaycees want to provide the leadership, but they want support from churches, other civic organizations and city officials, Barker said.

"We have only about 15 Jaycees and that just isn't enough manpower to put on the kind of celebration expected for 1979."

Twin Falls County zoning administrator Ed Woods makes a point about planning and zoning efforts

Land dividers anticipate zoning plan

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A lengthy list of farm owners have recorded their farms in 5-acre plats in order to avoid the 20-acre minimum farm size. If and when the Twin Falls County comprehensive plan is adopted, zoning administrator, "This tells us something. It tells us people do want to franchise their land, even in prime agricultural areas."

Woods, who compiled the list, and Twin Falls city planner, LaMar Orton, addressed the Twin Falls Kiwanis club's luncheon meeting Thursday covering the progress of urban and rural planning.

Planning and zoning officials in Twin Falls County have exhausted every conceivable ramification of land use planning in an attempt to develop a plan suitable to the local needs, Woods said.

Woods said for the past three years the county has been attempting to develop a plan which would give consideration to agriculture as the prime economic source in this area and at the same time protect private citizens' rights as land owners.

"We have pretty well resolved such facts as where we should locate schools, roads, utilities, industry and business developments. What we haven't resolved is land division," Woods told Kiwanians.

He said on the issue of land division the presently proposed county comprehensive plan calls for a minimum of 20 acres in the agricultural zone with any further division requiring a sub-division plat or planned unit development and public hearings.

Woods said if a plan is not developed and enforced there will be small subdivisions scattered throughout the farming districts of the county, and he said farmers say there can be no successful mixture of housing and farming.

"We owe our farmers some protection, but at the same time, how can we tell a city resident he cannot move into the country unless he intends to become a farmer?" Woods asked.

He explained the present effort to establish "areas of impact" around each of the cities and towns in the county, saying the cities would have zoning jurisdiction over these areas but would not have to provide city services. This would give the cities an opportunity to plan for growth, he said.

Woods said in addition, fracturing of land is being planned along all canyons, creeks and possibly even canals. Most of this land is not suitable to farming, he said, and will provide the owner a far better return on his investment. If it is permitted to be sold for housing.

Orton said the city of Twin Falls is also working on its own comprehensive plan to guide growth and development at a "moderate" rate over the next 20 years.

He said studies indicate there will be a 2 percent per year growth in Twin Falls which constitutes a moderate rate of development. It is anticipated by the city at this time the population increase rate will mean about 41,000 residents in Twin Falls by the year 2,000.

Orton said the city's plan will be ready for public presentation on May 7 and ready for an initial public hearing on May 15 with a Planning and Zoning Commission recommendation to the City Council shortly after that time. Orton said the city continues to seek public input into the plan. He urged Kiwanis members and their friends to study the proposed city plan and offer comments.

Dr. Steve Lincoln, a former city councilman, said the reason some land owners are opposed to the 20-acre minimum land division is purely an economic one. He said the county plan provides, once the farmer sells off 50 acres, the land owner can go ahead and subdivide it.

"The farmer wants an opportunity to subdivide and reap the benefit rather than letting the realtor or developer gain the profit," Lincoln said.

O.A. (Gus) Kelker, member of the county zoning commission, served as program chairman. He reviewed the efforts by both city and county zoning groups in the past several years to prepare suitable land use programs.

Casual poachers easier to catch than pros

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last story in a five-part series on poaching.)

By RAY SULLIVAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If a poacher doesn't sport a blood-red letter 'P' on his hunting jacket, how can he be spotted?

Simple, wildlife officials say. Most of the time just look at the legal hunter.

A poacher is usually an opportunist, a hunter who takes a big game he decides not to throw back even though he's caught his limit. Or a guy out spotlighting jack rabbits who happens upon a deer or other wild game.

"He is an individual who is doing something else and happens upon an animal in a compromising situation," said Russell Kozacek, senior conservation officer with the Idaho Fish and Game Department in Borah, Ind.

"He can be spotted easily and get out easily — one that is close to the road."

Kozacek thinks there are two types of illegal hunters. First is the person who kills an animal out of season.

"The person kills the buck to get the average hunter in the field," Kozacek said. "But you've got individuals in the field in the hunting season who will justify killing an extra animal for a friend or wife. I think that type of illegal hunting is fairly extensive."

Kozacek and his colleagues say most legal hunters fitting the latter category are "loose," people living near the area where they poach, both in and out of season.

Kozacek says a preponderance of closed-season violators are locals — "That's who we catch, anyway" — while in-season violators are shared equally with outsiders.

Conservation Officer Jerome J. Crawford-Carroll, a regional enforcement officer in Jerome, defines two other kinds of poachers:

- Deliberate poachers. Someone kills simply to kill something

- Party hunters. Groups of people hunt in teams, who try to fill everybody's tags, sometimes including the wives' tags. The problem arises when a group splitting up into two or more teams runs into a game herd and fills the limit for everyone. Their action is unbeknownst to the other teams, who meanwhile have run into another game herd and have done likewise.

"It's amazing how successful those ladies are on the first hunt of the season!" Carroll sardonically said.

He implied the annual hunting season phenomenon of the majority of the animals early in the season is in reality the men using their wives' tags.

The casual hunters are caught more often, Carroll believes, because they "bungle into a check station. They're not as professional and they're easier to catch. And the amazing thing is catching them doesn't seem to bother them."

He isn't sure how much professional poaching is going on in Idaho since he's only had "inklings" of people catching trout and selling them to restaurants.

"Yes, it's extensive. I know this year of two bighorn sheep that were killed by professional poachers, individuals who are killing the animals for a large amount of money. One of the sheep sold for $2,500 and the other for $3,500. I know one of them went back east and I don't know where the other one went."

He said into bighorn sheep are known to have been illegally killed in Lemhi County, in which much of his patrol area is located, in 1977.

"When we find an illegal sheep killed, we are only finding a small fraction of what is happening. A lot of these animals you find, it is just coincidental. You really don't find very many of them, I think," he said.

"The real bad, chronic violator is damned difficult to catch," Carroll concludes from experience. He ruefully recalls when he worked in the field he had one poacher cockily tell him, "You cannot find me enough for what I take anyway. When I go out I know where you are."

"I tried to catch him," Carroll says. "He moved on. I never did catch him. He said he killed every mouth of the year."

Fines that poachers are docked are no longer as small as when Carroll had that conversation, thanks to the Civil Penalties Act passed by the Idaho Legislature last year.

"The law provides for minimum penalties the courts must assess to reimburse the state for the loss of a natural resource. On top of that penalty, judges also may fine a hunter for the misdemeanor act of poaching itself."

An example of the new fine system is a case involving five deer poached from the Minidoka Wildlife Refuge near Ruching last year.

The 15-year-old Heyburn youth who did the poaching ended up being fined a total of $1,415, with only $150 of that dismissed. The remaining $1,265 fine included $1,000 in accordance with the Civil Penalties Act, which sets a deer's value at $200.

Additionally, 5th District Magistrate Judge Ronald Bruce assessed him a misdemeanor fine of $100 for killing the animals, another $150 for unlawful transportation of them, $15 in court costs, suspended his hunting license for three years and put him on probation a total of 3 1/2 years.

As well, Bruce levied a $300 fine on the man who started the deer in his Rupert packing plant.

Those heavier fines may gradually help overworked game officers in their fight to control poaching, Kozacek says.

In the first half of the 20th century, Kozacek points out there were fewer people in Idaho making demands on the wildlife resources, which often were more plentiful.

Yet the size of the fines indicates the courts put a higher value on the animals than, he says.

Kozacek compared the average fines paid in Idaho from 1947 to 1977 for all fish and game cases. In 1947 they averaged $20.85. Today they average that average has risen to $38.44.

Restricting the study to just fines for big game violations in closed and non-seasons, Kozacek found the average fine in 1957 amounted to $20.62. In 1967, the average had crept up four cents to $20.66.

The big game fine average increased substantially for the 10 years from 1967 to 1977, Kozacek admits, rising from $20.66 to $32.26. However, he says, with inflation devaluing the dollar that hasn't meant much.

"In terms of today's dollars, the average fine for big game animals in 1967 would have been $22.29. If it were today's dollars, penalties have not kept pace with inflation."

Forest closes roads at higher elevations

TWIN FALLS — Spring moisture in higher elevations has again prompted the Sawtooth National Forest to close some 30 roads in the Twin Falls and Burley Ranger districts.

The road closures will remain in effect as long as necessary to prevent road damage such as rutting and erosion. Forest officials say the purpose is to save heavy road maintenance funds.

ehicles driving on soft and muddy roadbeds create deep ruts with melting snow then washing them even deeper. As a result one-way roads become almost impassable for motor vehicles during the spring and summer months.

Forest Supervisor Ed Fournier said district personnel will monitor the road conditions and will reopen sections of the roads as they dry out sufficiently. All roads should be open by early June, he said.

Persons traveling in forest areas are asked to observe closure signs and abide by regulations.

All closed roads will be posted at points of closure. "Road Closed Ahead" signs will be posted at turnoffs of major roads leading into closure areas.

A list of the roads closed, many of which are still under snow and impassable, in the Twin Falls Ranger District include:

Oakley to Rogerson from the east fork boundary to the west boundary, a distance of 43.5 miles; South Fork of Shoshone Creek from the intersection of the Oakley-Rogerson road south along Shoshone Creek to the junction with Thoroughted Springs Road, 5 miles; Big Cedar Road from the forest boundary to the Dry Creek Road, 13 miles; Buckhorn Road from the forest boundary to Big Cedar Road, 7 miles; Copper Creek Road from the boundary to the Oakley-Rogerson road, 4 miles; Indian Springs Road from the boundary to the Oakley-Rogerson Road on Shoshone Creek, 7.9 miles; Hopper Gulch Road from the boundary to intersection with the Oakley-Rogerson Road on Shoshone Creek, 7.5 miles; North Cottonwood Road from the forest boundary to the Oakley-Rogerson Road, 10.7 miles.

Closures on the Burley district include:

South Heglar Road from the forest boundary to Indian Fork, 9.2 miles; Sublett Road from Sheep Canyon Road to South Fork Sublett Road, 14.2 miles; Hartley Canyon Road from the boundary to the Sublett Road, 5 miles; Clark's Basin Road, from the boundary to Wildcat Road, 3.6 miles; Clear Creek Ridge Road, from one-mile north of the Meadows to Bench Road, 3.2 miles; Wildcat Road from the boundary to Clark's Basin Road, 6.3 miles; Fish Creek Road from the boundary to Skyline Road, 2.1 miles; Lake Cleveland Road from the intersection with Howell Canyon Road to the lake, 1.1 miles; Thompson Flat campground and summer homes from Howell Canyon Road to the campgrounds and summer homes, 1.8 miles; and the skyline road from Fish Creek Road, two miles north.

Forest officials say persons violating the closure orders are subject to fines up to $500 or imprisonment up to six months or both.

Housing zone extended on Pole Line Road

TWIN FALLS — Extension of a 250-foot wide strip along Dry Creek Canyon near the new Pole Line Road crossing was approved by county commissioners following a hearing Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Davis, owners of the property, had previously had the 250-foot frontage along the creek zoned residential-agriculture for the construction of housing.

On the advice of their engineer, the owners asked for an additional 100 feet in width to allow for better planning and a roadway to better serve the housing lots.

Commissioners approved the 350-foot width but cautioned the Davises they should advise prospective home owners of the nearby junk farm which could cause odors under certain conditions.

County Zoning Administrator Ed Woods said the residential-agricultural zone runs about a quarter of a mile along the canyon and is located on the east side and south of the new Pole Line fill crossing being built. He said each lot would have to consist of a minimum of one acre in size and all building sites would have to be approved of the South Central Health District.

Canyan road reconstruction may fall on city's shoulders

TWIN FALLS — A plea by the city of Twin Falls for aid in paying for widening the Canyon Springs Road into the Snake River Canyon has netted the city title to the road but no money.

In a recent meeting with private property owners, district officials of the Canyon Springs Road plan, local utility officials and officials of government agencies with an interest in the canyon, City Manager Jean Miljar outlined a city proposal on how to improve the road could be shared.

The city recently received a $200,000 grant from the Economic Development Association to improve the road, but must come up with matching funds to obtain the money.

The city has budgeted $50,000 for the project, so Miljar asked the plant's private property owners and utilities for $30,000, and the county, the Twin Falls Highway District, the Idaho Fish and Game Department and the Bureau of Land Management for $13,800 each.

Miljar explained the plant's industrial users' share was based on their proportionate use of the plant. Idaho Frozen Foods, the largest contributor to the plant, was asked to pay the bulk, roughly $59,000, of the industrial users' shares.

The private owners' shares were based on use of the road, and Canyon Springs Golf Course owner Joe McCollum drew the biggest burden, $27,000. Idaho Power Co., Mountain Bell and Intermountain Gas Co., each with facilities in the canyon, were asked for $1,000 each.

The remainder of the cost would be split equally between the four government agencies.

Thus far Miljar's proposal has drawn no offers of money from the individuals and organizations involved, except from Otis Fletes of Independent Meat Co., a plant user, whose suggested cost share is $466.

County commissioner Merl Leonard has questioned whether the county can legally contribute to the improvement of a private road, (the road is owned by McCollum, who grants the city an easement), as has the Twin Falls Highway District.

Thus McCollum has offered to give the city title to the road, Miljar said.

Even McCollum's generous offer, however, has not prompted any further offers of help for the city.

Obituaries

Clara Teller

TWIN FALLS — Clara Teller, 100, Twin Falls, died Thursday morning at a nursing home here after a brief illness.

Born Jan. 31, 1879, in Kentucky, she moved with her parents and brothers to Missouri in a covered wagon. On Feb. 7, 1897, she was married to William F. Teller in Missouri. They lived in Missouri for several years before moving to Kearney, Neb., and in 1930 came to Twin Falls where Mr. Teller engaged in farming.

Mr. Teller died in 1960.

Mrs. Teller was one of three surviving charter members of the Mary-Martina Class of the First Baptist Church, of which she was a member.

Surviving are a son, John Teller of Twin Falls; two daughters, Ruth Ogilvie of Deadwood, S.D., and Mrs. Lizzie Hendricks of Seattle; two sisters, Mrs. Holly Strout of Kearney, and Mrs. Dixie Welby of Newton, Kan.; eight grandchildren, 26 great-grandchildren and 14 great-great-grandchildren.

Eight other brothers and sisters preceded Mrs. Teller in death.

Funeral services will be announced by Reynolds Funeral Chapel.

Ida V. Gee

RUPERT — Mrs. Ida V. (Granny) Gee, 86, died Wednesday in Minidoka Memorial Hospital at Rupert.

Gee was born March 1, 1893, at Oakley. She was a lifelong Magic Valley resident. She married Morris A. Gee July 31, 1914, at Burley. He died Sept. 26, 1943.

Mrs. Gee was a member of the LDS church, Daughters of the Utah Pioneers and the senior citizens. She was well known for her arts and crafts and gardening.

Surviving are seven sons and daughters, Carl M. Gee of Marysville, Calif., Glenn H. Sparks of Portland, Ruth Heinrich of Rupert, Bonnie Fredrickson of Seattle, Jay Gee of Kirkland, Wash., Joyce Allen of New Meadows, and Lyle J. Gee of Seattle; a granddaughter that she raised, Kay Anderson, Snohomish, Wash.; two brothers, Clifford Nelson of Colton, Calif., and Odell Nelson of Sacramento; a sister, Mrs. Dagmar Hert of Colton; 21 grandchildren; and 27 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by a son, two daughters, two grandchildren, two brothers, a sister and her parents.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Joseph Payne Memorial Chapel with former Bishop Verrill Chesley officiating. Burial will be in Pleasant View Cemetery in Burley. Friends may call at the Fayer Chapel this afternoon and evening and prior to the funeral on Saturday.

Harley Douglas Shaw

Harley Douglas Shaw, 76, of Filer, died Thursday at his home.

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls county automobile dealers submitted bids for furnishing a four-wheel drive pickup and a passenger car to the county sheriff's office in a bid opening this week.

County commissioners presented the bids to Sheriff James Munn to determine if they meet specifications and will award a purchase contract at 2 p.m. today.

Bids were received from Rangem inc., in Buhl, and Bill Workman Ford and Bob Reese Motors, both in Twin Falls, for the four-wheel drive pickup truck and from Reese and Workman on the passenger car.

County commissioner chairman Merl Leonard said the apparent low bid on the pickup truck, with trade-in, was from Rangem in the amount of $3,498 for a GMC vehicle. The apparent low for the passenger vehicle was $5,076 from Workman Ford for a 1979 LTD sedan.

Other bids on the pickup included Workman, $5,994 and Reese, $5,258. On the passenger car, the Reese bid was $5,999.

Leonard said the pickup will be used by the range deputy for duty in outlying desert and mountain range areas and other rural sections of the county. The passenger vehicle will be used by deputies for regular county wide work.

TWIN FALLS — Mark Cofer, 16, of Burley is recovering from two broken wrists, cuts and fractures of the face and broken ribs suffered in a motorcycle accident in Snake River Canyon Sunday.

Relatives said the young man, who was fortunate enough to survive the 125 to 150 foot plunge of his cycle from the canyon rim near the Twin Falls park Sunday, will have to return to the hospital for surgery on facial bones but otherwise he is recovering.

The youth's motorcycle left the top of an overcropping of rocks just above the park and went off the road into the park about 5:30 p.m. Sunday. He was thrown from the vehicle on the first bounce, about 25 feet down from the canyon rock wall and the cycle continued about 125 feet further, coming to rest on rocks below.

The vehicle was demolished, and the young man was lucky to survive the crash, officers said. He was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by the Magic Valley Ambulance Service and sheriff's officers notified from the hospital.

Filer board holds special policy meeting

FILER — Work on school policies took up most of the time at a special meeting of trustees of School District 413 at the Filer High School last week.

An advisory committee has been named to work with Superintendent Ray Baker and Principal Bill Heaps on school-related studies and projects.

Members consist of Jim Herrett, Lois Cammack, Margaret Vincent, Donna Humphreys and Dave Tetter. The committee discussed the book "Philosophy of Education."

Trustees authorized the selection of best athlete of the year at the school to the state speech contest to be held in Idaho Falls. The board approved the continuance of driver education classes.

Non-tenured teachers will receive notices by Tuesday, Baker said.

Principal Marshall and Randall Wilson will attend an "economics conferences at Boise with workshop material to be used in government classes. Principals will notify the special education and kindergarten teachers they may attend a workshop in Boise this month.

Superintendent Baker announced his "Little Boxers" will present an assembly to the community at the elementary school and the public is invited.

School board meets

FILER — The regular board meeting of trustees of School District 413 will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at the Filer High School.

NBA teams to resume chase for title tonight

By United Press International

Dan Issel will be the man on the spot again tonight when the Denver Nuggets seek a second straight victory over the Los Angeles Lakers in the first round of the National Basketball Association's playoffs.

The 6-foot, 9-inch, 240-pound former Kentucky ace, filling in for the injured George McGinnis, has the unenviable job of taking the scoring slack for the unobjectionable Denver star. He and Tom Boswell "got the job done" Tuesday night when the Nuggets took a 1-0 lead in the best of three game series with a 110-105 triumph over the Lakers.

David Thompson added 27 against the Lakers and, of course, is always a threat to score 40 or more in any given game.

The Lakers, however, are favored by 5 1/2 points to even the series if only because Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is one for a big game. Jabbar was held to 23 points in the Lakers' opening game loss.

Philadelphia will be at New Jersey, Atlanta at Houston and Phoenix at Portland in the other games tonight.

The underdog Atlanta Hawks rallied in the third quarter behind Dan Roundfield Wednesday night and upset the Houston Rockets 109-106 on the road in the first game of their best-of-three Eastern Conference preliminary playoff series. The Rockets now face the almost-Herculean task of trying to even the series tonight in Atlanta — where the Hawks have preyed on unsuspecting opponents all season. Atlanta has won 16 straight at the Omni and posted a league-best 34-7 home mark in the regular season.

"The 16 in a row doesn't mean a thing," said Atlanta center Steve Hawes. "We know they'll be ready to play."

But Houston hardly seemed ready Wednesday, when the usually hot-shooting Rockets hit only 42 percent from the field. Rudy Tomjanovich was held to nine points, and Rick Barry and Calvin Murphy scored only 12 points each.

Atlanta Coach Hube Brown said those figures were no accident.

"Houston didn't shoot well." Brown said of his team's fourth victory in five games against Houston this year. "But I'd like to give us some credit, too. Our defense got them farther out from the basket than they were used to." Moses Malone kept the Rockets alive, scoring 23 points and grabbing 17 rebounds, but Roundfield was not intimidated by Houston's All-Star center.

"When I guard him, it's quickness against quickness," said Roundfield, who scored 23 points and grabbed 18 rebounds before fouling out with 2:07 to play and Atlanta leading 103-103.

The Rockets pulled to within one point before John Drew hit a free throw and Tree Rollins blocked Mike Newlin's potential game-tying jumper with 40 seconds to play.

The Rockets led by seven at halftime, but the Hawks scored eight straight points early in the third quarter to take the lead for good with 7:05 left.

In the only other game last night, Philadelphia beat New Jersey 122-114 to take a 1-0 lead in their Eastern Conference preliminary series.

Julius Erving scored 28 points and the 76ers led from start to finish en route to victory over the Nets. The second game tonight will be played in Piscataway, N.J.

New Jersey Coach Kevin Loughery was ejected from the game by referee Earl Strom with 4:13 remaining and had to be restrained from going after Strom by four players and assistant coach Dave Wohl. The incident was triggered after John Williamson, who led New Jersey with 33 points, and Henry Bibb squared off momentarily. Trainer Fritz Massman also was ejected as the Nets were hit with five technicals.

The Trail Blazers are confident they can take the series, despite losing a 107-100 decision in Phoenix Tuesday night.

"If anything, I think this gave us confidence," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay of the loss. "We can play much better and we still came within an inch of winning."

Maurice Lucas blamed himself.

Lucas, an All-Star forward, had only nine points in the first game and said afterwards, "I think I let the team down as far as my offense was concerned." He was 3-for-14 from the floor.

Paul Westphal and Walter Davis, a pair of Phoenix All-Stars who combined for 53 points in the first game, bettered the Suns — who had 53 — against Portland this year — stand a good chance of ending the series Friday night.

Westphal said, "Portland is one of the best teams in the NBA at home and it will be a tough task to beat them in Portland, but it is better going in with a win."

Lietzke one up on field

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Bruce Lietzke, comparing his round to "an easy stroll in the park," registered four consecutive birdies on the back nine to shoot a 5-under-par 67 Thursday and take a precarious first round lead in the Masters Championship.

Tom Watson, the 1977 Masters champion and runner-up last year, opened with a 69 despite an attack of nerves and Jack Nicklaus, managing only his second subpar round in the last five tournaments, gave his confidence a big boost with a 60.

"I haven't been playing well all week as a 69 in the opening round of the Masters puts more confidence in my hand."

Leonard Thompson, also extending confidence that he can win the Masters, took the first three holes double bogged with Watson, Joe Imman and Ed Snodgrass at 48, and bracketed with Nicklaus another stroke farther back were Andy Bean, who had an eagle on the par-5 eighth, Craig Stadler, Billy Casper and Tom Graham.

Rod Runsett, who along with Watson and Hubert Green, all finished one stroke behind 1978 champion Gary Player, double bogged the final hole when he twice hit into some branches, but still salvaged a 70 to finish in a group with Larry Nelson and George Senneker.

Ray Floyd, Jack Newton and Fuzzy Zoeller.

Lietzke, winner of the Tucson Open earlier this year even after pulling a stomach muscle in the second round, said if nothing could have been easier than shooting a 67 in the Masters.

"I never had the ball in trouble until the 18th hole," said Lietzke, who had retired from golf before deciding to try the pro tour in 1974 and is playing in the Masters for only the second time. "It could have been a course record with some good putting."

"The round was very uneventful until the last hole. I broke the franchise on the 17th. I made four consecutive birdies from 13 to 16 and wasn't really aware of it until I missed a 4-footer hole that he was the fifth leading money winner on the 77 tour with more than $90,000.

"Yes, I was a little bitter and anxious to get home to northwest Oklahoma for some fishing," said Lietzke. "I decided to work on my car Saturday and Sunday rather than watch the Masters."

The way Lietzke was playing Thursday, the

Watson, the first man in 15 years other than Nicklaus to enter the Masters as the favorite, registered seven birdies on the first 13 holes, but admitted to being a bit nervous.

"I didn't play at ease at all today," said the man who was the tour's leading money winner the last two years. "There have been times when I've played well and been at ease, but not today."

"But I'm always excited to play in the Masters and I'm ready for it. I wish it had started on Monday. The greens are beautiful. If you miss a shot you can't blame anyone."

Thompson, in the first group to go off Thursday morning, gave an indication of the low scores to come on a mild, overcast day when he birdied three of the first eight holes. Following his round, he declared himself a good choice for the championship since the long

Augusta National suits his game.

"If I didn't think I'd win I wouldn't have come down here," he said. "One of the things I do well in is drive, and you have to drive well here. Most of the guys who win here drive a long way."

"If I can continue to drive long and straight as I have been, I have as good a chance as anybody — better than most, I'm already in with a 68."

New Orleans fires Baylor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — New Orleans Jazz coach Elgin Baylor, a former Hall of Fame forward who led his team to the world record in the National Basketball League this past season, was fired Thursday in a move that surprised no one.

"It will be like getting out of prison," Baylor said last week in anticipation of his firing.

Jazz owners had granted Baylor a two-year extension on his contract early this season even though the club was playing horrendous ball. New Orleans finished 26-56, worst in the NBA.

Baylor, who coached the Jazz for three full seasons after being thrust into that position when Butch Van Breda Kolff was fired, had a combined record of 88-135 (.399). But he took the Jazz to their first playoff game of the playoffs last season despite a knee injury to guard Pete Maravich that sidelined him for 32 games.

"Many of the ballclub's problems had nothing to do with Elgin's ability as a coach but it is our feeling that a change is needed at this time to benefit all concerned," Jazz managing partner Larry Hatfield said in a prepared statement.

The ownership of the Jazz has enjoyed its relationship with Elgin over the past few years. He is truly a class guy."

Hatfield said the club was committed to paying Baylor for the remaining two years of an estimated $75,000-a-year contract.

Baylor felt the end was near when club officials traded All-Pro forward

Leonard "Truck" Robinson to Phoenix over Baylor's objections. The deal was necessitated when Robinson and the temperamental Maravich battled egos. Because Maravich has a no-trade clause in his contract, Robinson was the one to go.

Baylor publicly complained about Robinson's loss and how he was not informed of the deal until after it was made. Baylor was unavailable for comment Thursday.

Hatfield, who spoke for the executive committee consisting of principal owner Sam Battistone and local minority owners Sheldon Betschok and Lee Schlesinger, blamed the Jazz players on the slow start, saying they were not motivated to play.

The Jazz, who have been trying to negotiate with officials in Salt Lake City for a new home, now must hire a general manager and a new head coach. The club has been without a general manager for more than a year after Lewis Schaffel left in a dispute with management.

"There doesn't seem to be any hurry (to hire a new coach)," said Jazz spokesman Dave Fredman. "The draft isn't until June 25. It's our advantage because it's a late date."

Baylor was a willing assistant to the fiery Van Breda Kolff from 1974 to 1976. He took command in the middle of the 1976-77 season and the Jazz finished the season with a 35-47 record. New Orleans missed the playoffs by two games in 1977-78 with a 34-43 record, then struggled this year with Maravich on the sidelines for nearly half the year.

Indy 500 survives threat of boycott

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The threat of a boycott of the prestigious Indianapolis 500 by a splinter group from the U.S. Auto Club dissolved Thursday when officials delivered 74 entries for the May 27 race.

U.E. "Pat" Patrick, president of Championships Auto Racing Teams — CART — said delivery of the cars was only to meet the technical requirements of the Speedway entry blank to file by the midnight Sunday deadline.

He said CART members were not giving up their fight to have the Speedway's adoption of U.S. Auto Club turbocharger pressure restrictions rescinded.

"In the meantime, I have instructed our attorney to advise us on our options in the event our differences with USAC and the Speedway are not satisfactorily resolved," Patrick said in a statement.

He said those turbocharger rules were "unlawful and arbitrary" but that the Speedway entry blank allows it to reject or alter any rules of the U.S. Auto Club which officials do not consider to be for the best interests of the race.

Entries represented cars for 18 CART teams which featured the top drivers for the championship car division.

The CART teams entering cars included Alex Morales, Co. of Anaheim, Calif., three cars for Pancho Carter; Dan Gurney's All American Racers of Santa Ana, Calif., two cars for Mike Mosley; Cannon Racing Team of Oakwood, Ill., one car for Larry Cannon; Chaparral Racing, Ltd. of Midland, Texas, two cars for Al Unser; Conquesta Racing of Indianapolis, two cars for Lee Kunzman; Fletcher Racing Team of Phoenix, Ariz., three cars for Steve Krisloff.

Tom Franz of Englewood, Colo., entered one car which he will drive. Others entered were Gehlhausen-Reath Racing of Jasper, Ind., two cars for Spike Gehlhausen; Hoffman Auto Racing of Milford, Ohio, three cars for Steve Saldana; Intercoast Racing Corp. of Newport Beach, Calif., three cars for Danny Ongais; Jerry O'Connell Racing Team of San Jose, Calif., three cars for Tom Ligon; Lehigh Valley Racing Team of Midland, Texas, two cars for Tom Bagley.

Also Team McLaren of England, three cars for Johnny Rutherford; Patrick Racing Team of Indianapolis, four cars for Gordon Johncock; Penske Racing of Reading, Pa. five cars for drivers Rick Mears and Bobby Unser; S & M Electric Co. of Syracuse, N.Y., one car for Larry Voser; Walmeyr Inc. of Dayton, Ohio, two cars for Salt Walther, and Bill Alsop of Woodstock, Vt., two cars which he plans to drive himself.

CSI drops in rankings

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) — Palm Beach Junior College (Fla.) received 13 of a possible 17 first place votes Thursday to claim the top spot in the season's first National Junior College Athletic Association baseball rankings.

The College of Southern Idaho, ranked seventh last week, dropped out of the top 10.

Palm Beach, 46-6, collected 173 points to hold a 54-point lead over runner-up Mesa Community College in Arizona. No. 3 Ranger of Texas needed two first-place votes and 116 points.

Rounding out the top 10 are St. Louis, Meramec, Mo.; San Jacinto, Monroe, N.Y.; Lake City, Fla.; Wilson State, W. Va.; Middle Georgia and Lin Tech, O.

Upset Lietzke out to get revenge

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Bruce Lietzke, this year's first-round leader, admits he was "a bit upset" last year when he wasn't invited to the Masters as a matter of fact, he decided to work on his car rather than watch the golf tournament on television.

The rangy Texan got his first invitation to the Masters in 1977 after winning the Tucson and Hallawell Opens, but wound up with one more shot than it took to make the top 24 and wasn't invited last year.

"I was a little bitter and anxious to get home to northwest Oklahoma for some fishing," said Lietzke. "I decided to work on my car Saturday and Sunday rather than watch the Masters."

The way Lietzke was playing Thursday, the Masters was watching him. He wound up with a 5-under-par 67 when he missed a four-foot putt on the final hole and that was good enough for a one-stroke lead over a quartet of 69 shooters.

"I could have had a course record if I had had a good putting round," said Lietzke after missing five putts of eight feet or less. "I was close to the hole all day."

Lietzke ran off a string of four straight birdies starting at the 13th hole — missing eagle putts of 20 and 25 feet on the par five 13th and 15th holes — and missed a five-foot putt at No. 17 that would have been a fifth straight birdie.

"I broke my thumb on 15 and probably won't be able to hit that shot," Lietzke said.

and then missed that four-footer he needed to keep that two-stroke lead.

"I'm not complaining," said the 27-year-old University of Houston alumnus who earned a berth in this year's Masters by winning the 1978 Canadian Open and then got 1979 off to a good start by winning the Tucson Open again. "It is very surprising to be reading a real confidence builder."

But then Lietzke indicated he might need more confidence building than that when he added, "I don't feel like I'm playing well enough to win this week."

Lietzke pulled a muscle in his stomach on the final hole of the third round at Tucson and although playing in pain the next day he held on to win.

"My game is not in as good shape as it was when I lost to Tucson," said Lietzke, "and I was surprised to win there too."

Softball meeting tonight

TWIN FALLS — The final meeting of the Twin Falls Softball Association before the start of the season Monday will be held tonight at 7:30 at the Little Tree Inn.

Carl Putzier, vice-president of the softball association, said all players and coaches have to have their money and team rosters turned in by tonight or their team will be dropped from the league.

All players or prospective players should attend the meeting. Putzier said since rosters will be turned in tonight, any coaches seeking additional players can be contacted at the meeting.

Skiing ends this weekend

TWIN FALLS — The local ski season is coming to an end. Skiers in Magic Valley who haven't "hung up their boards" as yet will have to take advantage of the slopes this week end or ski in Wyoming, Utah or other out-of-area resorts.

Both Pomerelle and Sun Valley will officially close for the season after Sunday's skiing, the Sawtooth National Forest report states. Other resorts closed last weekend and although more storms and cold temperatures have improved conditions, resort owners say interests of skiers have turned to golf courses, farming and other spring activities and crowds are not sufficient to meet operating costs.

Pomerelle will have a spring fling on Saturday with races, fun contests, costumes and a host of prizes including a $100 cash award and many merchandise gifts.

Sun Valley reports 45 inches of snow at the top of Baldy for the season's last weekend.

Senators nab tennis win

GOODING — The Gooding Senator tennis team overpowered Jerome 8-4 Thursday.

The win followed a shut out over Wendell 11-0 on Wednesday.

Gooding — Mann (0) def. Blevins 6-1, 8-7; Root (0) def. Goicoechea 6-0, 6-0; Thorne (1) def. A. Barrio 6-0, 6-0; Johnson (0) def. Walker-Everson 5-7, 6-2, 6-3; Dey-Jagler (1) won by for.

Jerome — Root (0) def. Fernandez 9-0, 6-0; Mobley (1) def. Bauman 8-2, 8-2; B. Johnson (0) def. Hartman 6-0, 6-0; Richter-Mayberry 7-5, 6-3; France-Anderson (0) def. Blevins 6-0, 6-0; G. De. Holland-Jones 8-0, 8-0; P. Barn-M. Arkosh (0) def. Blevins 6-0, 6-0.

Gooding's best match will be April 17 at home against Wood River.

Louganis takes charge

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Greg Louganis, already the medalist in the 1-meter springboard competition, Thursday took the lead in the 3-meter board going into the finals.

Greg Louganis, a diver for Michigan, Vin Naddoroff, was followed by Phil Boggs of Ann Arbor, Mich. In third was Matthew Chelton of Munster, Ind.

In the women's 1-meter diving, Kelly McCormick of Los Angeles, held the early lead in the second day of competition. She was ahead of Janet Ely Thorburn of Dallas, a two-time Olympic competitor, in second place and Chris Seufert of Ambler, Pa.

Gridders acquitted

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Kentucky Coach Fran Curci said Thursday night eight players, who have been cleared of rape and sodomy charges, will not play football for a year. He said his decision had nothing to do with the charges.

The charges filed against eight members team last July dismissed a separate charge of sexual abuse against one player also was also dismissed.

Second ranked team

Eagles gain split in California tourney

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. — College of Southern Idaho took a look at the No. 2 ranked team in the nation and one of California's better ones Thursday and came away with a split.

The Eagles won 15-14 to second-ranked Mesa, Ariz., in the opening round of the Wendell Pickens tournament and then, behind superior pitching by Rich Kellogg, defeated Orange Coast, Calif., 4-1.

When it was all over a completely wrung out Coach Jim Walker said "if we'd really been lucky we could have won two today. But I think we should feel lucky in getting a split. These are two of the best teams I've seen. That first game was nothing but frozen ropes all over the field and Kellogg was just out-gauging that last game. Great Orange Coast. Just outstanding."

"I like this, though," he continued. "It makes us play so much better going up against these kind of teams. We had to have a little bit, but we hit the ball hard right with them. That last game you know we were dragging — 18 innings today and 12 games in the last five days. I don't know who we are going to throw tomorrow. Everyone is coming off just one day except (Darrell) Banks but he's still sick. We took him back to the doctor today. Maybe we'll have to come back with Kellogg."

For most of that first game with Mesa, however, CSI was falling steadily backward. Mesa scored once in the second, four in the third and three more in the sixth. But in the bottom of the sixth the Eagles erupted for 10, count 'em, ten runs.

Rocco Zengano got things started with a single and Tony Wilson drew a walk. They moved up on a wild pitch and Jim Good drove in both with a double. After that CSI put together four walks with an Al Romero three-run homer and a Jim Good homer to move ahead 10-8.

In the seventh, CSI retired Mesa without damage. "Our kids are jumping up and down, shaking each other's hand — and the umpire's yelling 'play ball,'" wanker said or the first inking the Eagles had that all the tournament games would be nine innings. "That really took the wind out of us."

Mesa bounced back into the lead with three in the eighth and took it out to 15-10 in the top of the ninth. But CSI

Rookies lead PBA toumey

PALATINE, Ill. (UPI) — Tour rookies Jim Poulos and Alvin Lou took over the top positions Thursday after three rounds of a $100,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

Poulos, 19, of Des Moines, Calif., moved from 14th to first place as he averaged 249 in the round, including a 300 game. The left-handed Poulos was named amateur bowler of the year for 1978 by a bowling publication and has won several junior championships.

Poulos totaled 4,190 for 18 games as the top 24 bowlers now move into match play competition.

Lou of El Cajon, Calif., jumped from fifth place to second, 80 pins behind Poulos. Lou's best finish in his initial season is fifth in Kansas City, while Poulos had his best tournament in Alamogordo, Calif., finishing 18th.

Second-round leader Butch Soper of Whittier, Calif., is third with 4,139 for 18 qualifying games. Joseph Groekind of Memphis, Tenn., averaged 237 Thursday, moving from 18th to fourth place with a 249 in the 1978 PBA rookie of the year. Groekind is nine pins ahead of Krizan Ellenburg of Mesa, Ariz., who rounds out the top five.

Among the top five bowlers, only Soper and Ellenburg have won pro championships. Soper was first in Baltimore in 1978, while Ellenburg captured last year's masters championship.

Bruins drop pair to Meridian

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Well, the pressure's off now. Maybe our young kids can relax a little now and start hitting and playing."

Twin Falls Coach Ron Watson stood near the plate at Joycee Park Thursday summing up a day in which his Bruins dropped a doubleheader 4-2 and 9-5 to Meridian and probably fell out of the western division, SIC, title chase.

It is hard to imagine being in trouble with the ball within 45 feet of home plate but that was the case as Twin Falls gave up three runs from that position to drop the opener in the top of the seventh. Meridian beat the Bruins like stepchildren through the first three innings of the nightcap before Twin Falls regrouped and came back at the end.

"At least the day ended on a positive note," Watson said. "It tore my heart out to lose that first one — especially the way we did. It kinda took the wind out of our sails. But while it looked like we could lose that second one 11-0 or 20-0, the boys got themselves back up and we scored those late runs."

"We're still hopeful of getting to state through the district tournament. We just have to keep our young players improving, especially with the bats," he said.

Meridian's Rick Lane outbatted junior Kerry Brown for the opening win, giving up just two hits against four for Brown. In the nightcap, Mark Wright showed good ability to keep the ball down and was sneaky fast in dominating the Twin Falls lineup through the first four innings. By then Meridian had piled up a 9-1 lead.

"We see more finesse pitching from the Boise area throwers," Coach Watson said. "It didn't seem (that Lane) threw much different (pitches) but he was very smart with them. Very smart pitching."

Brown fanned six of the first seven men he faced and no-hit Meridian through the first four and two-thirds innings. But errors between him, and he fell behind 1-0. That came when Dean Brokaw lived on an error and Brown then misplayed a wild throw to first on a squeeze that allowed Brokaw to come in.

Lane similarly held Twin Falls in check for five innings although the Bruins missed a good chance by leading the bases in the fourth before going out. But the Bruins rallied into the lead in the sixth when Logan Easley drew a walk and Craig Beutler's high pop to short left was dropped. Lynn Thorpe drilled a double to right field to chase both men across.

But in the seventh Brown issued his first walk to the lead off man, retired Forrest Green on a fielder's choice but Tim Chapman drew another pass. The tying run scored on a bloop single to right by Rich Moore and then came the crusher.

A wild pitch set the runners in motion, followed by a throwing error and by the time Twin Falls had the ball corralled again, Meridian had a 4-2 lead and held it.

In the nightcap Moore, Grant Schmeckpeper and Doug Sheels greeted Bruin lefty Mike Ferrell with three hits and two runs in the first and chased him in the second with three more tallies — two of those scoring on a pickoff throwing error. An inning later a two-out error at second let two more runs in and a wild pitch and ground out got two more for Meridian in the fourth.

By then it was obvious Twin Falls wasn't playing with great intensity.

But John Wotter then slammed the door and Twin Falls tried to come back.

The Bruins, who scored in the first on a double by Brown and Beutler's single, got three in the fifth. With one away, Easley lived on a fielder's choice and Beutler's bounce was erred. Sophomores Gary Krumm and Lars Hovey delivered RBI singles and a throwing error sandwiched the third run in between.

In the seventh, Easley lived on an error and eventually scored when a pick off throw went awry. Monday and invades Borah for two Friday.

In another doubleheader, the Meridian sophomores swept Twin Falls 11-7 and 4-3.

Cable TV to initiate baseball

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major league baseball found an additional way to share in the sports dollar Thursday with the announcement that it has entered into a one-year national cable television arrangement to broadcast Thursday night games for 23 consecutive weeks this season.

Cable television is an intriguing area that we are anxious to explore," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn of the agreement with UA-Columbia. "This can be a great promotional vehicle for baseball, and it will bring weeknight prime-time games to areas normally out of reach of major league telecasts."

An estimated two million cable subscribers in 47 states will benefit from the telecasts that begin April 26 with the Cleveland at Kansas City game followed by Baltimore at California. Areas within a 50-mile radius of a major league franchise will be blacked out. The three states that failed to fall into the fold are in New England — New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island.

There could be up to 40 games beamed via satellite to cable television subscribers. Numerous commentators are on tap, with a western game immediately broadcast after an eastern telecast. There will be no extra charge to customers who view the games.

"We won't be taking anything away from baseball coverage," assured Kuhn. "Instead, we'll be taking in a vast audience that heretofore may have been isolated from watching major league baseball."

BYU signs Greg Kite

DENVER (UPI) — Seven basketball players have signed national letters of intent with four Western Athletic Conference schools, with Brigham Young picking up 6-foot-11 Houston, Texas center Greg Kite.

Kite, a straight "A" student at Madison High, averaged 17.8 points and 13 rebounds during his last season. BYU also picked up 6-5 Pete Aguiar, an all-city pick from Evander Childs High in the Bronx, New York.

New Mexico announced the signing of 6-9 forward Walter Stone of Erie, Pa., who averaged 21 points and 15 rebounds, as well as the signing of 5-10 guard Phil Smith of Mater Christi High in Astoria, N.Y.

Buhl to host Broncos

Buhl — College football makes an inquest appearance in Magic Valley April 28 when the Boise State Broncos will stage their annual Blue-White scrimmage at Buhl's Bowers field.

The scrimmage will pit the offense against the defense with a special scoring formula to determine the winner. It is part of Boise State's public relations campaign in the state and is a no-admission charge to those attending.

The scrimmage will start at 3 p.m. and run for about two hours. All candidates for the fall campaign will play in the game, including the four varsity quarterbacks.

The offense will score six points for a touchdown and one point for a first down. The defense will get six for a touchdown (returning an interception), two points for an interception and/or fumble recovery, and one point for stopping an offensive drive or making a goal line stand.

The Broncos currently are completing their second week of spring training and working out each day.

Head Coach Jim Criner said he was happy with the first week, especially with his team's attitude and effort.

"From a coaching standpoint, the single outstanding trait so far has been the aggressive attitude of the team," he said. "There are plenty of mistakes being made out there but that's to be expected. However, the entire team, particularly the defense, has shown the ability to run very well and we are happy with the progress," Criner added.

Criner said the defense is ahead of the offense and he expects to see that at the end of the week. He said defensive tackle Doug Scott, nose guard Willie Tufo, linebacker Dan Williams and strong safety Rick Woods have displayed excellent play on the field.

Criner also said he was pleased with the secondary and linebackers for honoring their pass responsibilities.

Offensively, junior running backs David Hughes, Cedric Minter and Terry Zacher have been out of most of the contact to allow the other backs an opportunity to be evaluated by the coaches. Criner said Greg Ward and Phil King have been very good at times.

CSI to play benefit game

RUPERT — College of Southern Idaho basketball team will take on six opponents and then wind up battling amongst itself in the interest of the Minidoka County Red Cross Wednesday night.

Criner said a formidable task as appears at first blush, since the Golden Eagles will be playing only five minutes against each new aggregation.

The whole thing starts at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Minidoka County High School gymnasium.

Guiding light behind the night of basketball is Bruce Turner who said the idea came to him while he was trying to get the Red Cross back into the community.

"The Red Cross hasn't had a fund raiser here for six or seven years, and because the population in the area is spread out, it's hard to get an organization for Red Cross. I thought that we'd get better participation from the county community if we involved as many residents as we could; and get a super team like CSI going one-on-one with our local schools."

Turner said that pre-function donations (read that tickets) haven't been too heavy as yet "but I'm told that in Southern Idaho the gate generally does a lot better than the pre-game sales." He added the Minidoka county Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs currently are in a ticket sales challenge.

CSI's first foe will be an eastern Magic Valley high school all-star team composed of five suating seniors from schools in Minidoka and Cassia counties. Second will come the Minidoka Kiwanis team and then the Minidoka high school girls team will play the Eagles. The first half will wind up with the Rotarians trying to corral CSI.

In the second half, Dr. Kassie's powerful line of female players will have to stand the Minidoka team of the opposition winds up with the Drift Inn, district champions and representatives from Magic Valley to the state recreation basketball playoffs, meeting CSI.

The final 10 minutes of the benefit will have the Golden Eagles divided equally and playing an intra-quad scrimmage.

Tickets for the event are available at Paul Drug, KAYT Radio, Pancake House, Jane's Flowers, Milco-wrestling team members, J.C. Fenney's, Second Street, Minidoka, Minidoka News, Minidoka Pin Ladies and the Burley high school office in the Burley-Rupert area.

Pans from outside Mini-Casita may obtain tickets at the CSI bookstore or J.C. Fenney's in downtown Twin Falls.

Nuggets, 76ers, Blazers, Hawks picked to win

PHILADELPHIA — When Dan Issel outdueled Kareem Jabbar in the Denver Nuggets' 110-105 victory over Los Angeles in the opening game of their two-out-of-three NBA playoff series, he put basketball immortal Jerry West one step away from being history as the Laker's coach.

West, whose coaching ability is in inverse ratio to his on-court performance, will be finished with L.A. somewhat earlier than most people think. Which is why the Nuggets are favored to close out this mini-series despite the fact that the Lakers rate a 4-point edge in their game at the Forum tonight.

Donny Walsh, called on to replace coach Larry Brown and handicapped by the loss of George McGinnis, has the Nuggets playing particularly well. This series comes down to coaching and Walsh is the reason Denver is favored — that plus the way David Thompson has been prepping for the playoffs.

It's a toss-up situation in Portland tonight even though the Blazers are favored by 3. The Phoenix Suns, 107-103 winners Wednesday night, have too much depth and too much health to lose this series to a team crippled with an assortment of ailing players. If Maurice Lucas doesn't play up to par, Portland's late season efforts will end prematurely, especially if they are again unsuccessful in containing the Sun's magnificent three: Adams, Westphal and Thompson.

In their closing regular season efforts, the New Jersey Nets were playing the Philadelphia 76ers, nearly even; spilling a series with only one point difference. In tonight's game, Philadelphia by 1.

The advantage swings to the Atlanta Hawks in the second game of their series against Houston. I rate Atlanta by 2 because of the home court edge, yet Rick Barry will continue to make the difference in this series.

IN SATURDAY'S FIGHT in New Orleans, I rate the lightweight champion Mike Rossman 2-1 over Victor Gairdeez.

Hockey teams no match for Russia in cup play

MOSCOW (UPI) — In what could prove to be a one-sided battle, the Soviet Union lined up as the clear favorite to win its 16th title at the World Ice Hockey championships which open here Saturday.

Boasting an .861 winning percentage in world tournament play and still pumped up from its devastating success over the NHL All-Stars in New York last February, the Russians are undeniably at the top of the hockey world.

They are also the only one of eight competing national teams able to line up their best players. If anything the team looks more powerful than the squad which romped home in New York.

All-star defenseman Vyacheslav Fetisov and bulky left-winger Alexander Yakushev have rejoined a team whose coach, Victor Tikhonov, frowns on juggling lines because all four units produce equally well.

Since their first international appearance in 1954, the Soviets have lost only five points to outsiders and, pined against Sweden, West Germany and newcomer Poland in one of two qualifying groups, they are virtually certain to reach the round-robin playoffs involving two teams from each group.

Czechoslovakia, Canada, Finland and the United States will fight it out for the other two playoff berths.

TOP DOG

TWIN FALLS — Hardly an adult or child can resist giving a pat or a complimentary word to the shiny or fluffy well-groomed dog seen in competition with his fellow pooches.

But when the Snake River Canyon Kennel Club of Twin Falls stages a public obedience and conformation event, members are not thinking just about their own beautiful animals. They are concerned about better care and brighter futures for countless other dogs. Club members say their programs will benefit all dog owners and dogs.

"Our biggest goal is to promote responsible dog ownership," says Jean Dowd president of the young and still struggling club.

Club members are all enthusiastic and responsible dog owners who believe in proper care and training, mixed with a lot of love for their own animals. They are working to eliminate such problems as pet abuse, uncontrolled breeding and the many dogs produced each year for pound disposal or those destined to live the short and miserable life of a stray.

Anyone can join the Snake River Canyon Kennel Club, says Mrs. Dowd. The members are not even required to own a dog, but they must be interested in educating dog owners and promoting club goals.

Last year the club assisted a number of young 4-H club members with dog projects, sponsored a rabies clinic with the cooperation of the local Veterinarian Medical Association and conducted programs on the grade schools. This spring the club held its fourth conformation and obedience fun match and hopes to be able to stage AKC sanctioned dog shows in the near future.

Mrs. Dowd explains it will be another year before the club is mature enough to apply for sanction by the American Kennel Club.

Once that status is achieved, the club will be holding major dog shows in the Twin Falls area.

Gus Carles, club member, who like many other area dog owners travels to shows around the country each year, estimates 1,000 to 2,000 dogs will be brought to Magic Valley for sanctioned shows.

"I traveled 40,000 miles last year with my dogs on the show circuit. I know big shows bring a lot of business to a community and do a lot to inform the public about the value and enjoyment of dogs," Carles said.

"We don't just raise beautiful obedient dogs for show competition," says another club member, Joann Loveland. "Our own Doberman Pinschers are being trained for use by the Twin Falls County Search and Rescue Unit to help find lost persons or criminals. We are also training them to sniff out drugs for additional assistance in police work."

Many other club members keep their dogs busy and happy during hunting seasons and compete in field trials.

On Sunday the spring fun match of the SNAKE RIVER CANYON CLUB attracted 116 dogs and their owners from throughout southern Idaho to Twin Falls. Area dog lovers were given an opportunity to see some rare and beautiful breeds. A soft coated Wheaten Terrier owned and shown by Lois Hancock of Pocatello went home with the best in match award.

High scoring obedience dog was a Doberman Pinscher owned by Barry Hegsted of Idaho Falls. The top junior handler was Mark Reas, 13, of Burley with his Labrador Retriever.

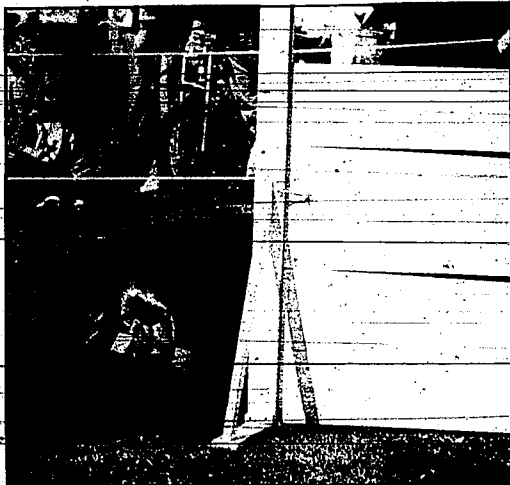

There were 88 dogs competing for best of match honors, 49 dogs in the obedience events and 14 junior handlers. A Vizsla owned by Bob and Kathy Riess of Bellevue won the sporting dogs event and a Borzoi (Russian Wolfhound) owned by Jara Kincheloe and Ray Brinlee of Boise topped the hounds division.

Other winners were a Shetland sheepdog owned by Margaret Dueszabou of Blain, working dogs: A Shet 12a owned by Tina Christensen of Pocatello, toys: a Lhasa Apso owned by Robert and Mary Jane Hankey of Boise, non-sporting dogs.

An upcoming dog event is an obedience clinic June 9 and 10 at the Sun Valley Holiday Inn. It will feature an internationally known trainer, Bill Koehler. A resident of California, Koehler has trained animals for Disney film productions and formerly instructed the U.S. Army K-9 corps.

Weddings

SGT. AND MRS. JAMES LOWE

Jen-Lowe

RUFERT — Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lowe of Rupert announce the marriages of their son, Sgt. James Michael Lowe, to Lin Shu Jen, of Taiwan, Republic of China, on Feb. 8, at Taichung, Taiwan.

The bride graduated from an electronics school and has been employed by the telephone company in Taichung.

Lowe graduated from the Twin Falls High School in 1965. He graduated from the Navy and Marine Aviation and Electronic Technical training school in Memphis, Tenn. He also graduated from Idaho State University Technical Aviation Science school at Pocatello. He joined the Marine Corp and served as a crew chief in the helicopter wing in Vietnam. He is now stationed in Okinawa.

An open house will be held for the couple when they return to the United States in the near future.

Boy unhurt by nail in heart

EL CAJON (UPI) — A 12-year-old boy should be able to lead a normal life, even though his lung still contains the half-inch nail that drilled through his heart, doctors say.

Michael Adamson Jr. was learning to use a power mower last Saturday from his father, Michael Adamson, 33, when the mower kicked up the nail, driving it into the boy's chest.

Adamson said he was unaware his son, 8-year-old Manny, saw his older brother run around the side of the house and collapse, grasping his chest and gasping for breath.

Running to the boy, Adamson tore his shirt off and saw a bloody hole. "I was dialing (the telephone), then I heard Manny call, 'Dad! Dad! He's dying,'" Adamson said, so he put the unconscious boy in his truck and took him to the Lakeside Fire Department, where he received first aid until taken to El Cajon Valley Hospital.

Dr. Lamb

Mature beef, veal equal in cholesterol

Dear Dr. Lamb, I am confused: Is this statement correct? Veal is naturally a very young animal and the meat has practically no fat, even though he may have just come off his mother. Usually extreme fat and heavy marbling come only after long time in the feedlot and it is difficult to get enough marbling unless you carry them to around 1100 pounds. This is why it is very hard to get proper marbling in very much smaller baby beef carcasses. This is why baby beef labeled meat also appears more lean.

I am a heart patient and have always bought veal when it was available and the less fat, smaller baby beef. Have I been wrong in thinking that the damaging, saturated fat comes almost entirely in the excessively fat covering and marbling? Some of your statements would lead me to believe the fat is in the fleshy parts as well. Of course, I know when we measure cholesterol in the blood, that the blood largely comes from the fleshy areas of the animals.

As a point of comparison, if you took ordinary round beef and separated all the visible fat from it, only 4.7 percent of this weight would be fat. So, if you're interested in the fat content, there's no particular advantage to using thin class veal rather than the separable lean from round steak. Beyond that, if you use the round of rump in the medium fat class of veal, 9 percent of its weight is fat and in the fat class, 12 percent of its weight is fat.

Part of the fat in beef or veal is in the muscle fibers itself, the kinds of fat that you can't cut away when you trim away fat for food preparation.

The fatter the beef to begin with and more marbling, the more fat it will contain. But I'd like to stress again that if you use lean cuts of ordinary beef and remove all visible fat, you can do just as well with mature beef as with veal or baby beef. Both have about the same amount of cholesterol.

Part of the trick in all this is how you prepare the food. For that reason I am sending you 'The Health Letter' number 932, Kitchen Power For Weight Control. It will give you some tips on preparing meats so they will contain the least amount of fat and, hence, the least amount of calories while maintaining all the important nutrient values.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. As this issue I am sending you points put, a lot of the important aspects of weight control and avoiding fat intake are related to kitchen power and pot will power.

Incidentally, much of the blood volume in your body is in the blood vessels of the abdominal viscera and the thorax rather than skeletal muscle which you refer to as fleshy areas.

Engagements

Deborah Simon

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. William A. Simon of Fairfield announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Deborah Linn, to Matt Alan McLarnon of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice W. McLarnon of Moscow.

Miss Simon graduated from Camas County High School in 1976 and presently attends the University of Idaho. She will graduate in December with a degree in clothing textiles and design.

Matt, also at the University of Idaho, will receive his bachelor degree in business management and finance this May. He intends to enroll fulltime for a graduate degree in business administration in September at the University of Idaho.

The couple will marry June 10 at the Fairfield Community Church.

Ground transport

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — What has 90 feet and carries $500 million on its back? A device called a "strongback dolly" used for ground transport of NASA's space shuttle orbiters. The feet are Firestone transter radial tires — 80 of them on the truck that pulls it. The dolly isn't geared for fast getaways, however, it moves at a sedate pace of from three to five miles an hour.

New salad-relish

Toss drained canned pineapple chunks with mixed bean salad. Add a generous measure of chopped cucumber and diced tomato. Serve as a salad-relish with meat loaf, plump Frankfurters, or broiled fish.

Joyce Rice

FILER — Mr. and Mrs. Leon Rice of Filer announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Joyce to Rick Hammond, son of Mrs. Wonda Harr.

Miss Rice is a 1978 graduate of Filer High School and is presently employed as a dental assistant by Dr. Steve Lincoln.

Hammond is a 1978 graduate of Twin Falls High School and is employed by All-Ways Plumbing.

The couple plans a May 17 wedding at the Filer LDS Church.

TOPS leaders are installed

TWIN FALLS — Joymae Stone was installed leader of TOPS ID#3 of Twin Falls during its annual installation of officers April 4.

Margaret Grant was installed as co-leader, Vida Coontz as treasurer, Deane Morrison as co-treasurer, Gladys Doyler as secretary and Della Blades and Mary Pletz as weight recorders.

Meetings are held at the City Hall Council Room at 1 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Foreign Oscar

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Nineteen countries have submitted entries for consideration for Best Foreign Language Film of 1968 for the 51st annual Academy Awards presentations. Nations competing for the Oscar are Brazil, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, West Germany, Hungary, India, Israel, Italy, Japan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Mexico, The Netherlands, Philippines, Poland, U.S.R. and Yugoslavia.

Mother pox

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Universal Pictures is deliberately bringing a stage mother pox down on its head this month with an open casting call for the studio for a 6-year-old girl to play the title role in "Little Miss Marker." The dimpled darling who wins the role will costar with Walter Matthau and Julie Andrews in a remake of the picture which made a superstar of Shirley Temple back in 1934.

Divorce invades all U.S. media

By GEORGIA DULLEA
O.N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — A funny thing happened to one million American couples on their way through life last year. They got divorced.

The surrendering of so many marriages is sad, of course. Nevertheless, there are those who see comic possibilities in marital tragedy, those who say the time has come for thorough television screen, in the funny papers and even on the therapist's couch.

Not everyone is smiling. Indeed, some are scandalized by "Spitsville," a three-month-old comic strip about divorce, originating on a New York City drawing board but appearing elsewhere in more than a dozen daily newspapers. In a letter to The Seattle Post-Intelligencer one reader wrote that "Spitsville" encourages "the downfall of the American family unit."

For others, divorce is a fact of American family life. They never could relate to Blondie and Dagwood Bumstead, Carmen and Marcus Singleton, the divorced characters in "Spitsville," strike them as just folks: She is into yoga, jogging, therapy, TM, EST, etc. He is into bowling, paying alimony and falling asleep in front of the television in his bachelor pad, which is decorated with dirty socks and beer cans.

Their daughter, Aida, lives with Carmen and visits with Marcus on weekends. They go to the zoo a lot. They also go to junk food joints where

Marcus ignores Carmen's orders to "buy her something healthy for a change." Then he begins tapping the shoulders of strange women and asking if they would mind taking his little girl to the ladies room. "You know the biggest barrier between daddies and their daughters?" Aida says. "It's the public rest room!"

Dear Abby

She wants advice on getting back her divorced husband

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© by The Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate
DEAR ABBY: I'm divorced and miserable. Even though I was the one who asked for the divorce, it was a terrible mistake.

I know there must be thousands of divorcee "scorers" (men as well as women) who would give anything to get back with No. 1 but they don't know how to go about it.

Abby, will you please ask readers who have divorced, regretted it and got back with No. 1 again to write and tell you how they accomplished it? I'll do anything!

SORRY IN ST. JO, MO:
DEAR SORRY: All right. Readers? And please let me know how it was the second time around with No. 1.

DEAR ABBY: Our 18-year-old daughter has graduated from high school and has steady employment, so now she says she can do as she pleases. She is living at home (free), but she doesn't care what anybody thinks about her actions.

T.F. junior gets state DECA post

TWIN FALLS — Jeff Warren, a junior at Twin Falls High School, was elected state vice president of the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) at the annual DECA Career Development Conference held in Moscow the last week of March. Along with other Idaho student representatives, he will attend the National DECA conference in Houston, Texas, the second week of May.

Keep Idaho beautiful month noted

NEW YORK — Coinciding with the national recognition of Keep America Beautiful Day 1979, the entire month of April has been declared "Keep Idaho Beautiful and Clean Month" by Gov. John V. Evans. In an official proclamation, Evans stated that "April 23 is recognized nationwide as KAB Day" and encouraged "all Idahoans to participate in the statewide effort to do all they can to improve the beauty of our physical surroundings."

Civic groups, government agencies and businesses throughout the state are getting up to start recycling centers, landscape, remove dilapidated housing, and work to prevent littering.

Groups wishing to participate in this year's Keep America Beautiful Day can write KAB for a packet of project guides and quantities of the KAB Day poster featuring Iron Eyes Cody and the Appaloosa horse he rode in the Tournament of Roses Parade. Mr. Cody is the "concocted Indian" of KAB's Ad Council campaign. All KAB Day materials are available at cost from: Keep America Beautiful, Inc., 99 Park Avenue, New York, New York 10016.

Why onions bring tears to people

HONOLULU (UPI) — Onion fumes possibly create sulfuric acid when it mixes with tears, thus offering one explanation why people cry over sliced onions. Four scientists from the University of Missouri-St. Louis, led by Eric Block, co-authored the report presented at the meeting of the American Chemical Society and the Chemical Society of Japan. While the scientists said they did not know how the minute quantities of a sulfur compound in onion fumes induces tearing, "we note that dissolving the compound in water leads to the formation of sulfuric acid and suggest that low concentrations of sulfuric acid might also be produced in the eyes of those who cut onions."

Her "old-fashioned" parents want to know if we have the right to set some rules for her. We have asked her to be home by 1 a.m. when she goes out on a date. (She's been coming home anywhere from 2 a.m. to 4:30.) When we object to her going to her boyfriend's apartment to watch TV for an evening she says, "we have 'dirty minds.'"

She tells us if we don't "get off her back" she will move out and rent with girlfriends. Of course she is trying to assert her independence, but we think she's overdoing it. Please give us bewildered parents some guidelines.

BEWILDERED:
DEAR BEWILDERED: Tell your daughter to sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out exactly how "independent" she is. Advise her that when she is able to support herself entirely — and that means pay for her room, board, clothes, transportation, entertainment, travel, doctor, dentist, and insurance, then she may live where she chooses, and by her own rules. But as long as she lives with you, she will have to live by yours.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been making an issue out of our 3-year-old grandson's choice of toys. He enjoys playing with his sister's dolls and his mother's shoes.

My husband says this is an indication that the boy has homosexual tendencies. Could my husband's suspicions about his grandson be a reflection of his OWN repressed homosexual desires? I wonder because he seems to hate woman — particularly me. He attacks sex as though it were a contest. When it's over, he is surly and mean. No love, no tenderness or closeness. I submit but I don't enjoy it.

I am not worried about my grandson, but I am worried about my husband. Am I justified?

NAMELESS, PLEASE:
DEAR NAMELESS: Only a trained psychoanalyst would be able to determine whether your husband is projecting his own "homosexual tendencies" to his grandson.

His attitude about women and lovemaking is no more conclusive proof of homosexual tendencies than your grandson's choice of toys.

The teen years are the questioning years, Abby has the answers to all your questions in her book, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Write Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Standouts

N. Stanley Standal, Jr. of Bliss was picked for honorable mention in the Doane Award selection, the highest honor the University of Idaho chapter of FarmHouse Fraternity can bestow on an active member. Standal, a senior agricultural mechanization major at UII, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norma S. Standal of Bliss.

Connie K. Swanson of Twin Falls was among 77 University of Idaho women named "Little Sisters" of the FarmHouse Fraternity at Moscow during the chapter signing formal. Also honored were Krista J. Sturtevant of Hagerman, Stephanie L. Claborn of Kimberly, and Kelly R. Connor of Paul.

Roger Bruce James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth James of Twin Falls, was recently awarded a scholarship to Valparaiso University in Indiana. A senior at Twin Falls High School, he will enroll in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Karen Daw, a Hansen High School senior, won sweepstakes for her sales talk at the State Speech Festival held in Idaho Falls recently. Her talk was on using scarves as an accessory. The Top of the Stair at the Paris in Twin Falls supplied the scarves for her talk. Two other Hansen students won Superior ratings at the Festival—Lisa Walker for her humorous interpretative reading and Gwen Powell for after-dinner speaking. Margaret Neirwh, their coach, accompanied the girls to Idaho Falls.

Nicholas Floyd Frey, son of Mrs. Barbara Sablin of Twin Falls, will graduate from the University of Salt Lake City Law School May 16-Frey, with his wife, Julie Ann, and three children, currently resides in Salt Lake where he is employed for the U.S. Attorney. He is a 1967 Twin Falls High School graduate and has attended the University of Oregon, Brigham Young University in Provo and USL.

University of Utah honor roll students were recently announced. Included were Margaret Ann Clark of Albion; Dale Lamar Anderson and Robert Marvin Deas of Burley; Carol Vincent of Piler; Steven Deo Sargent of Murtaugh; Grant E. Severe of Oakley; Craig D. Hepworth and Daniel K. Baird of Rupert; and Kelvin Jay Barrus, Pamela Margaret Parker, Janene Marie Webb and Timothy O. Driscoll of Twin Falls.

Kristine Olavarría of Twin Falls will perform as the page in the University of Idaho Opera Workshop performance of "The Marriage of Figaro" scheduled for April 18-21 in the Moscow campus auditorium. Music for the romantic plot interlarded with intrigue is by Mozart.

Carol Seddon, daughter of Frances Seddon of Piler, has been selected to represent the School of Health Sciences on the Boise State University Faculty Development Committee. Seddon, assistant professor of the Medical Records Technicians Program, recently completed teaching a six-week course in medical terminology to personnel at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise. She also has published a booklet titled "The Idaho Code: A Synthesis of Statutes Significant for Health Practitioners."

Melva M. Nusbaum, daughter of George

Nusbaum of Twin Falls, was named a "member in course" along with 24 other Texas Christian University students to the prestigious liberal arts honor society of Phi Beta Kappa.

Linda DeKlotz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert DeKlotz of Piler, has been awarded a $100 scholarship from the Idaho Society for Respiratory Therapy. DeKlotz, a junior at Boise State University, is majoring in respiratory therapy major next year at BSU.

Diane Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Gibbs of Kimberly and a freshman at Boise State University, participated in the spring concert tour of BSU musicians.

Debbie Cox of Castletford has been elected treasurer of Gamma Phi Beta Sorority at Idaho State University in Pocatello. The daughter of Marvin and Jerrl Cox of Castletford, she is a junior majoring in business.

Driving to work fantasy foiled

By ERMA BOMBECK

Since I work from home, I fantasize a lot on how it would be to climb into the car every morning and drive into the city to an office in carpeland.

I see me sitting behind the wheel looking cool... my lip gloss shimmering and my solar hair looking like an unmade bed as I sip my Spartan breakfast of black coffee from a steaming mug.

Sometimes, a man three times larger than his sports car with license plates "MACHO 1" pulls next to me and tries to catch my eye, but I stick shift into low gear and pull off, leaving him in a cloud of exhaust without a thread of hope.

Oh, I could pull it off. After all, I'm not without credentials. I have transported three dogs to the vet with three children (one with stomach flu and one blowing bubbles from his own anally in my ear) arguing over two windows in the back seat when an umbrella opened automatically.

It's just that the opportunity didn't present itself until yesterday when I found myself in the early morning traffic going into the city. This was my chance to fulfill my fantasy. I ran a brush through my hair, put on a skirt, topped by a jacket with one of those five-foot scarfs that just hang around the neck. Next came the lip gloss, and finally the mug of steaming hot coffee.

When the motor finally turned over, the vibration spilled part of the coffee all over the dashboard where it dripped down on my leg, causing me great pain.

I balanced it on the console and reached for it a few times but cars were passing me on the right and cutting in. One time when I shifted gears, my entire hand went into the cup and sloshed coffee all over.

Valley favorites

JUDY KORB
2422 25th Drive, Burley

MARSHMALLOW EGGS
2 envelopes Knox gelatin
1 cup boiling water
2 cups sugar
pinch salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
Dissolve gelatin in 4 tablespoons water. Let set 5 minutes. Add boiling water, sugar, salt and vanilla. Beat with mixer until it holds together well enough to drop by spoonfuls into flour molds, about 7 to 10 minutes. Flour molds are made by pressing a hard boiled egg into pan of flour deep enough to make an impression. After the gelatin mixture has set up, gently turn over in mold, then shake off flour. Dip in warm chocolate. You may color marshmallows or add fruit and nuts. Use dipping chocolate: almond bark or Hershey bars. Add 1/4 of one flat bar of paraffin wax to 1 pound of chocolate for dipping. Be careful not to get chocolate too hot.

The Times-News will pay $5 each week for Magic Valley Favorites. The weekly winning recipe will appear in the Sunday edition of The Times-News. If you have a favorite recipe, mail it to the recipe department, care of the Valley Life editor. The recipes become the property of the Times-News and cannot be returned.

Seafood sale scheduled as YFCA benefit

TWIN FALLS—The YFCA bi-annual seafood sale is coming again. A good variety of seafood from Alaska will be brought down by truck to be offered at bargain prices by the YFCA. Proceeds will go to carpet their mini-gym and lounge. Order forms may be picked up at the library, Penny-Wise Drug Store, Safeway, the YFCA, McDonald's, and North's Chuck Wagon. Pre-orders must be into the "Y" by April 20. The seafood truck will be at the Lynwood Shopping Center April 26 through April 28.

Tornado power: vast and deadly

Texas city's new look isn't pretty

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (UPI) — It looked like a cutaway dollhouse. The roof of the modest, one-story frame house had been plucked neatly from its walls, leaving bright blue and yellow rooms bare to the sky. The furniture, like the rear outside wall, had disappeared. And if any people had been inside when the tornado struck, they must have been picked up and scattered like so much of the rubble that littered southeast Wichita Falls Wednesday.

From a thousand feet up, the capriciousness of Tuesday's tornado was striking.

It skipped up and down across the southern part of the city, leaving entire neighborhoods in ruins. Adjacent subdivisions remained untouched.

The roots of a new brick apartment complex were peeled back by the force of the half-mile-wide tornado, leaving rafters exposed and splintered. Newly planted shrubs and trees were uprooted and stripped of leaves, windows shattered, bricks torn from their mortar.

A nearby pond had shrunk by a third, its banks extended by tons of debris that had been hurled into the water.

Traffic — what little remained — was moving slowly. Only a few persons could be seen trying to salvage belongings in the junkyards that had been their homes.

The tornado skipped over a neighboring subdivision, then returned to the ground a few blocks to the east.

Entire blocks were left without a house intact, walls either dashed to the ground or missing altogether. Many homes had been flattened as if swatted by an enormous hand.

In one subdivision, the houses left standing were roofless. One roof, intact even to its shingles, lay in a neighboring backyard, amid the litter that had only moments before been neatly kept yards and gardens.

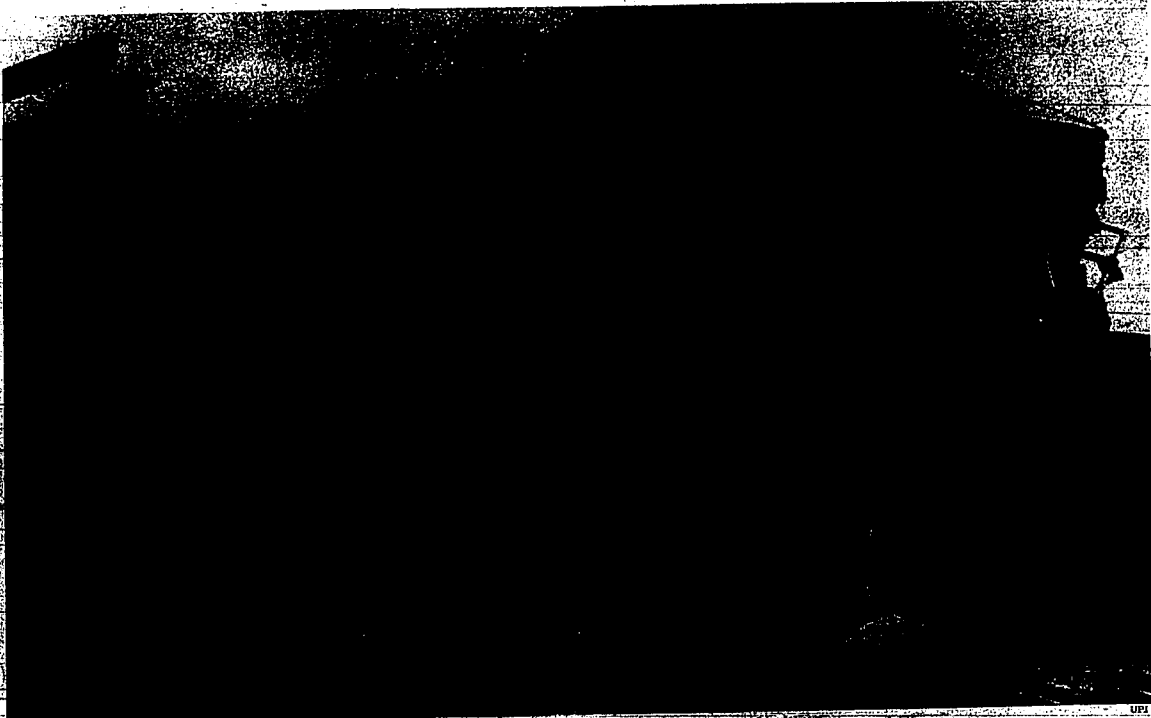

At a nearby shopping mall, battered cars were askew — some overturned, some in piles where they had been tossed by the wind. The roof of a J.C. Penney store had caved in, showering rubble into the aisles below.

At the football stadium where the Pioneer Bowl is played each year, light towers snapped and fell into the stadium, hurling the press box into the concrete stands below.

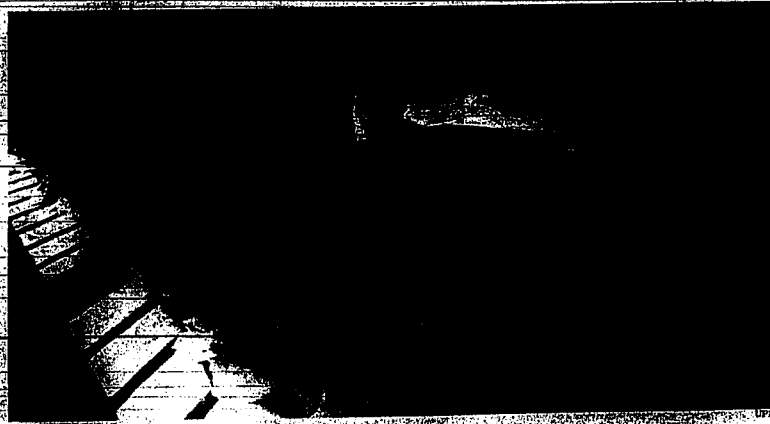

The orderly furrows in precisely plowed farm fields along the southern edge of the city were dotted with debris — sheets of plywood, broken lumber, shingles, window frames, car doors, shards of sheet metal.

A huge, storybook red barn in a nearby field had lost its roof and yellow-green bales of hay were strewn about the barnyard.

A concrete grain elevator on the southeastern edge of town appeared unscathed but the six enormous gray barns that surrounded it were flattened, their roofs caved in, nearby railroad cars flipped over on their sides.

Year's death toll surpassed quickly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In just a few minutes the tornadoes that left death and destruction along the Texas-Oklahoma border killed more people than all the twisters in the United States last year.

The tornadoes that tore a swath through the Southwest late Tuesday killed 60 people and injured another 600. Last year, officials said, 54 people died in 288 tornadoes that caused millions of dollars in property damage. In a typical year, about 100 Americans are killed by tornadoes. In 1974, 148 twisters hit 13 states and Canada within 18 hours, killing more than 300 in the worst such rampage in U.S. history.

In preparation for the tornado season every spring, government scientists warned last month the 1978 tornado death toll was unusually low.

Scientists say twisters result from specific atmospheric conditions. The funnel clouds occur, they say, when there is unseasonably hot humid air at the earth's surface, cold air at middle levels, and strong jet stream winds at upper levels.

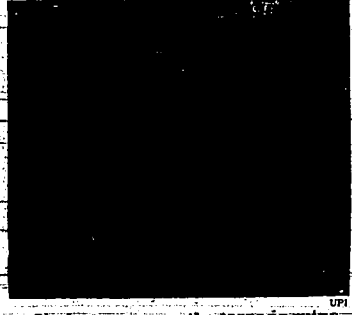

Tornadoes carry winds of up to 250 mph. The part of the country where this week's storms hit is along the western edge of "tornado alley" — stretching from the Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes. With summer, the prime tornado area moves eastward to Florida and the Atlantic Coast. The Far West generally sees fewest tornadoes.

Officials urge the following safety steps during a tornado alert:

- Stay away from windows, doors and outside walls, and protect your head.
- In homes and small buildings go to the basement or an interior part of the lowest level, and get under something sturdy.
- In high rise buildings go to interior small rooms or hallways.
- In mobile homes or autos, leave them and find a sturdy building. If there is no shelter, available lie flat in the nearest ditch with your hands over your head.

Inventive breed of energy engineers emerging

BY BOYCE RENBERGER

D.V.C. Times Service

They have invented an inexpensive solar heater, made with burned-out fluorescent tubes, that pasteurizes water, assuring a supply of safe drinking water for poor families in the tropics.

They have developed a hermetically sealed grain storage bin that impoverished farmers can build out of local materials. It enables the farmer to preserve the 20 to 40 percent of his grain that is often lost to pests, a loss that may rob his family of adequate food.

They have designed and produced a tiny turbine powered by a country stream that will generate 1 kilowatt of electricity for a farm family. It costs $150 and is designed to work for five years without repair.

"They" are an extraordinary new breed of inventors, scientists and Third World. Although they have often discovered it independently, many of these new leaders espouse the philosophy of the "appropriate technology" movement, an approach born in the industrialized world to use people's material needs with simple, low-cost hardware and processes.

In the industrial North, the movement's small-scale, energy-efficient technologies often represent retreats from the trend toward ever more massive, more resource-consuming industries. "A.T.," as the philosophy has come to be known, is part of the "back to the earth" movement.

It is embracing not as a retreat from heavy industrialization but as a sensible, perhaps essential, step toward industrialization and durable economic progress.

This view is an outgrowth of the bad experiences many poor countries have had in recent decades when they tried to leap-frog into Northern-style economy by importing steel mills and huge manufacturing plants. That route, they found, often led to social chaos with too few skilled technicians and a rural-to-urban migration that crippled food production and expanded the unemployment problem.

The result was often greater dependence on the industrialized North instead of the independence the Southern countries were seeking.

A wiser alternative, many leaders now believe, is encouraging simpler, smaller-scale technologies, designed locally and applied broadly. This approach, they feel, not only meets a country's grass roots needs but also builds a pride in achievement and self-reliance that is often disastrously sapped by imported technology and technicians.

Perhaps the best example of the movement is Los Gaviotas, an appropriate technology research and development center in the largely unsettled Llano region of Colombia. Los Gaviotas, named for the freshwater gulls that frequent streams in the 300,000-square-mile Llano plains, was conceived about 18 years ago by Pablo Lugari Castellón, a 32-year-old community organizer.

He believed that the largely uninhabited region offered a better future for Colombia's exploding population than did continued migration to the cities or the further settlement of mountaineers, where erosion was a severe problem. Lugari felt that a research center established in the Llano could develop ways of settling the region without disturbing its ecological balance. After six years of growth, Los Gaviotas now attends to the agricultural, medical, educational, transportation and supply needs of 100,000 settlers.

Los Gaviotas has designed and tested six new devices: a pedal-powered yuca grinder that does two months' work in a day, permitting Llano farmers to raise and export the starchy root; an inexpensive windmill that pumps irrigation and drinking water in breezes of only 5 miles an hour; two kinds of low-cost water pumps, one hand-powered, the other electrical; the solar heater that pasteurizes water, and the small steam-powered turbine.

Similar rural technology centers are springing up in a number of countries. In India, for example, native researchers are developing small-scale devices that convert biological wastes of all sorts into gas fuel for cooking and heating. Technicians in Lesotho, in southern Africa, are developing ultra-low-cost housing construction materials and techniques. In the Philippines, engineers are producing farm machinery adapted for the farmer who has more land than he can work by hand but who cannot afford or make good use of conventionally sized farm machinery.

At the Zambian government's Mount Makulu Agricultural Research Station, rural engineers have developed a grain storage bin, called the Ferrumbu, that is structurally stable, waterproof, rat-proof, insect-proof, fireproof and resistant to erratic temperature fluctuations. Rather than producing the bin themselves, the engineers have made step-by-step plans available to anyone who wants to build one himself. A Ferrumbu that holds one ton of grain costs just $20 to build.

In an example of how the industrial world can contribute to the appropriate technology movement, the Ferrumbu was designed with the assistance of a Danish expert in grain storage. Rather than adapting Northern storage bins, he helped the Zambians design a new system suited to poor farmers in the tropics.

Some of the new technologies are of larger scale. At a pair of new laboratories in Peru and Bolivia, for example, Latin American scientists have developed a method of refining copper ore that is cheaper, safer and simpler than conventional processes. It can handle low-grade ores that had been too costly to refine, and it is likely to mean that earnings from copper exports will grow because of lower production costs.

The conventional refinement method uses sulfuric acid to separate copper particles from rock in crushed ore, and the spent acid often polluted streams. The new results can now be achieved by putting the crushed ore in vats of bacteria that occur naturally in the ore. The micro-organisms separate out the metallic particles and can be disposed of safely. Such a technology was unlikely to come from the developed world because it is slower.

One of the first international agencies to discover the appropriate technology phenomenon was the United Nations Development Program, which is helping technological centers in developing countries get in touch with one another. Although technologies have always diffused one way or another, the process can be quite slow in the absence of an active means of communication. It took 600 years, for example, for the stirrup to reach Europe from China in A.D. 700. It was six centuries before the mechanical clock made the same passage, reaching Europe around 1300.

In modern times, the transfer of technology has been much faster, but the chief lines of communication have been between industrial countries or from those nations to the developing world. There has been little technology transfer among developing countries.

To improve this situation, delegates from most of the world's countries met in Buenos Aires in August for a major United Nations conference on "Technical Cooperation Among Developing Countries."

Although the conference went largely unnoticed in the industrial world, it established many new links among developing countries that are likely to speed the sharing of ideas. Many developing nations are finding that, despite vast cultural differences, they share many problems for which they can also share solutions.

After learning about Los Gaviotas, for example, an official of the South Pacific Appropriate Technology Foundation, based in Papua New Guinea, said he discovered a remarkable similarity in philosophies and expected to share ideas with the Colombians. Los Gaviotas, in turn, learned about India's work on simple bio-gas units and plans to adapt that technology.

After North Sea oil, it's coal for Britain

By THOMAS L. FRIEDMAN
LONDON (UPI) — "What are you going to do when the well runs dry?" asked Britain's Undersecretary for Energy Alex Eadie.

"We've dug up our minds, it's coal."

When the Middle East and North Sea oil wells pump no more — and sooner or later they will — Britain plans to run its cars, power its factories and produce its petrochemicals with the fuel that first made it an industrial giant — coal.

Not ordinary coal, but coal turned into gas.

"Coal is not just a lump of black stuff you throw on the fire," said Keith Beeston, spokesman for the British National Coal Board (NCB). "Once you liquify coal, what you've actually got is oil."

"You can either look at coal as solid oil or as liquid coal."

After coal is in liquid form, said Beeston, "you can make virtually everything from it that you can make from oil with the existing oil refining technologies."

The British government recently granted the National Coal Board, which runs the coal industry, nearly $1 billion to design two plants for extracting oil from coal.

Although Britain hopes to be energy self-sufficient by 1980 — using North Sea oil and gas, coal, and atomic energy — it expects to remain so for only a decade.

By the 1990s, experts expect oil to be extremely expensive and extremely scarce. Britain's North Sea reserves will be on the decline and it will have to limit petroleum to premium uses like motor transport.

At that point, the British government wants to be ready with the technology to switch gradually from an oil-based petrochemical industry to one based on liquified coal.

"The oil companies are investing in coal as fast as they can," said Beeston. "They see the writing on the wall. They realize that their existing crude oil is limited in quantity and subject to all sorts of political uncertainties."

Britain is looking at two methods for turning coal to oil, both of which have successfully produced gasoline and other petrochemicals in laboratory tests at the NCB research center in Cheltenham.

Using the "liquid solvent extraction" technique, a hot chemical solvent is poured over coal, dissolving it into a tarry liquid. Hydrogen is added — oil contains twice as much hydrogen as coal — and it is then refined. The end product, researchers say, is ideally suited for refining into transport and aviation fuels.

The College of Southern Idaho Drama Department presents Thornton-Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth" on April 19, 20 and 21 at 8:15 p.m. in the Theater 118 of the Fine Arts Center. Tickets are available at the CSI bookstore or by calling 733-9554, ext. 234 or 258.

"An Evening with Rodgers and Hammerstein" will be presented Friday, April 13, at 8 p.m. at the LDS 7th and 11th Ward Building on Eastland Drive. North Camille Cox and Milton Barrus will perform solos, duets and piano duets.

Miss Cox of Twin Falls received her BA from Brigham Young University, studied at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria, and studied voice at Roosevelt University in Chicago. She is a member of the Magic Valley Chorale.

Milton Barrus, biology teacher and science department head at Twin Falls High School, has sung with the University of Idaho Vandaleers and studied piano with Steven Romanio. He has served on the board of directors of the Magic Valley Chorale for four years, two of which he served as president. He is also a charter member of the Twin Falls Magichords Barbershop Chorus and a tenor in the Freeway Four Barbershop Quartet.

The public is invited and there will be no admission charge.

"Friday Night Live" features the premiere of Twin Falls filmmaker Randall Morgan's film "A Good Place to Live," which deals with future planning of Twin Falls County. The program is sponsored by Book Magic and Open Space. Admission is $1 and reservations are advised as seating is limited. For more information and reservations call 734-8039.

The Utah Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Arden W. Waits, will perform in concert Monday, April 20, at 8 p.m. in the college of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium. The program will include Purcell's "Chaconne in G minor," Brahms' "Symphony No. 1 in C minor," Rossini's overture to "La Gazza Ladra," Chabrier's "España," and Offenbach's overture to "Orpheus in the Underworld."

The orchestra will give a matinee performance April 30 at 3:30 p.m. for students and senior citizens. The program will include Beethoven's "Symphony No. 8 in F major" (first movement), Thomas' overture to "Mignon," Saint-Saens' "Phaeton," Grieg's "Preludes" from Hobberg Suite, Prokofiev's "Birtch" and "Wedding" from Le Kije Suite, and Borodin's "Polovetsian Dances."

The concerts are sponsored by the Twin Falls Music Club. All tickets for the evening performance are $5; students' and senior citizens' tickets for the matinee are $1.50. Tickets are on sale at The Music Center, Warner's Music Store, Sullivan Music Store and Ann's Hallmark Shop in Twin Falls; and at Kimberly Drug in Kimberly. For reservations call 733-2811 in Twin Falls, 543-4503 in Buhl, and 324-3170 in Jerome, or any Music Club member.

"Debbie: Diary of a Mormon Girl," a musical, will be presented Monday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Tickets are $5 (main floor) and $4.50 (balcony) and for groups of 10 or more there will be a 50c discount per ticket. Tickets are available at the LDS Institute, 526 Falls Ave., Monday, April 16, through April 23, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Any remaining tickets will be available at the Fine Arts Auditorium from 6 p.m. until curtain time.

Filet

The Filer High School Drama Department presents four one-act plays Friday, April 20, at 8 p.m. in the Filer High School auditorium.

The plays include "Reunion on Gallows Hill," "Oggaline and the Time Machine," "The Love Knot," and "For the Love of a Worm." Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students. Students with activity tickets and children under twelve will be admitted free. Tickets will be available at the door.

Sun Valley

Visiting artist Kenda North will present a workshop in Experimental Dye Transfer Processes at the Sun Valley Center's Photography Department April 23-27. Anyone with a working knowledge of darkroom procedures in black and white photography is eligible to attend.

Miss North will be guest speaker at the Center's weekly Visual Arts lecture Thursday, April 24, from 7:30 p.m. at the Ketchum/Sun Valley Community School. She will speak on contemporary photography ranging from "straight documentary to hand-colored work" by 40 American artists. The lecture is free to the public. For further information, call 622-3571.

Caldwell youth group presents Passion Play

TWIN FALLS — The youth group of the Valley United Pentecostal Church of Caldwell will present a Passion Play tonight, April 13, at the First United Pentecostal Church, 168 Locust St. N., at 7:30 p.m.

The performance marks the 17th annual presentation by the group, which has toured throughout Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Caldwell Pastor Norman Rutzen, author of the play, says he based the script on the Holy Scriptures, and that all of Christ's lines are Biblical quotations.

The group has over the years developed an array of costumes, props, taped sound effects, and lighting techniques. New music is written each year for the production and this year the church's musical director, Don Christensen, has written "It's Too Late" to follow Judas' soliloquy. Christensen, beside his role as Pilate, will accompany himself and singers Sally Riggins and Susan McCullough on electric piano.

Rehearsals began in January for the 35-member troupe. Some have played the same part for years.

Pastor Rutzen, who also serves as director, said the play has been "very profitable in attitude (changes)," and especially those participating in the production have often experienced dramatic changes in their religious sensibilities.

The public is invited to attend and a free-will donation will be taken.

Readers theater: All your mind is a stage

By SHELLY KINZEL
Times-News Writer
 Readers theater, according to Fran Tanner, CSI professor of speech and drama, is really an unfortunate term.

"Too often people think of it as a group of actors reading aloud from a script in a rather dull manner. This couldn't be farther from the truth, because readers' theater requires over-actors' imagination than conventional theater.

"Very little costuming or scenery is used. The actors do read from scripts, but their voices, facial expressions, body movements and gestures must project characters and situations. Often pantomime is employed to suggest an action or setting. As Mrs. Tanner aptly states, the emphasis in this experimental technique is on creating an "aura" rather than on the visual aspects of production. It must, therefore, be exciting to both the participants and the audience.

When an audience's imagination is stimulated, possibilities are limitless and satisfaction runs high. Professor Tanner related that many people, even inexperienced theater-goers, find readers theater more challenging and entertaining than conventional theater. "It is not uncommon to have someone phone me the day after they have seen a readers theater show, exclaiming with enthusiasm about the action or a piece of scenery. And they are surprised when I point out that that particular action or piece of scenery did not really exist, except in their imagination. When our audience does this, we know we have succeeded in our readers theater realm."

At the present time, Mrs. Tanner and her readers theater class are rehearsing a production of Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth," which will be presented on April 19, 20 and 21 at 8:16 p.m. in Theater 119 of the Fine Arts Center. This Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy was a great success when it first opened in 1943, and may be even more significant in modern times.

The play follows the progress of a typical American family from the Ice Age and the Flood down through the end of the last world war (whichever one it might be). George Antrobus of Excelsior, N.J., his wife, two children and their maid "of-all-work" survive fire, flood, war and pestilence, hanging on "by the skin of their teeth." Through a thousand reincarnations, they suffer every disaster known to mankind, but somehow emerge with hope for the future. In an age of anxiety about nuclear hazards, this antic fable should have even more impact than when it was first produced.

The production, which will bring down the curtain on the 1978-79 season of the CSI Drama Department, promises to be an exciting one. The cast of performers includes talented young people from all over Idaho. Steve Brophy (Bellevue) will appear as Mr. George Antrobus, Denette Cloyd (Caldwell) as Mrs. Maggie Antrobus, Debbie McKenna as forensic scientist Gladys Antrobus, Alan Chess (Shoebone) as Henry Antrobus, readers theater groups have won Bonita Carlson (Nampa) as the fortune teller and broadcaster and paired at national interpreters Teresa Jones (Twin Falls) as the theater conventions in Utah, Montevideo and Canada.

Those who are intrigued by this appearance by Mary Ann Anderson Stanger as Sabine the maid, become active participants by Mrs. Stanger, a former student of CSI, appeared in numerous productions and may best be remembered for her role as Emily in Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." This latter production was also performed in readers theater style.

Mrs. Tanner first introduced readers theater at CSI in the late 1960s. Since then, at least two full-length readers theater productions have been included in the drama department's repertory each season. In addition, shorter shows are presented and toured to Magic Valley grade schools and high schools, and a 25-minute presentation is created each year as an intercollegiate CSI Forensic competition. The CSI Forensic readers theater groups have won several trophies and have appeared at national interpreters' conferences in Utah, Montana and Canada. Those who are intrigued by this unusual theatrical style may easily become active participants by enrolling in a Readers Theater CSI workshop, offered annually by the CSI Speech and Drama Department. If, however, you prefer the role of spectator, do go out and purchase a ticket for a school evening in the theater. Tickets for "The Skin of Our Teeth" are available at the CSI bookstore or by calling 733-9554 Extension 234 or 258 for immediate reservations. General admission is $2 for adults, but a special discount rate of $1 is available for children, high school students, senior citizens, and all CSI students and faculty. One reminder before leaving for the theater—bring an ample supply of imagination!

Poco finally hits the top

By MARK SCHWED
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Rusty Young of the country-rock group Poco says his first big success is his retirement as the top steel guitar player in the world have added up to make this the best year in his life.

Although Poco has put out a number of regionally popular tunes in its eight year history, the group has never had a solid national hit. But things are changing. Poco's recently released album "Legend" has resulted in one pop hit, "Crazy Love," and Young says the album contains other tunes destined to become hits.

"I don't really know what the difference is," says an enthusiastic Young, who wrote the most successful song the group has ever cut. "Maybe we took more time making this album than any other since the beginning."

For the latest album, Poco enlisted the help of Jackson Browne's original producer, Richard Orshoff, who mellowed Poco's lively rock sound to the more laid back style of Browne.

"It was the first time we let a producer choose the material for one of our albums," Young says, still trying to explain the group's recent success. In fact, Poco has gone without a producer for the past five albums.

"Some of our earlier songs are what you'd call 'classic turntable successes.' People like the record and there is usually some good airplay but there wasn't any follow-through," Young says with a slight accent that reveals his Colorado upbringing.

Anything for a quick buck

By RICHARD FREEDMAN
Newhouse News Service
As if "Battlestar Galactica" weren't enough, its executive producer, Glen A. Larson, has now come up with yet another quickie, cheapie cloning of "Star Wars" — right down to the glamorous princess and the cute robot.
Even though the film is intended for the big screen, "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century" has all the earmarks of a movie originally made for television rather than a movie you pay $4 to see. Production values and acting are both minimal.

The hero, who made his comic-strip debut a half-century ago, this time finds himself frozen in time-space war for five centuries until he can be thawed out by Princess Ardala (Patricia Hensley), who likes to dress up as a cross between a Valkyrie and a cooch dancer.

She is the daughter of King Draco (Joseph Wiseman in a two-minute role) who, we are told, already owns three-quarters of the world and is now hankering to play monopoly for the world.

Our own poor planet has undergone an atomic holocaust, leaving practically nothing but Chicago, which hardly looks the worse for wear. While Princess Ardala is pretending to a great friendship for the remnants of our civilization, she secretly vows, like a noble Hitler: "Tomorrow I conquer Earth."

Our only defender is Col. Wilma Deering (Erin Gray), a nonsense military blonde who doesn't take Buck Roger's sexist wise-cracks at all well, but ultimately succumbs to his derring-do.

Rogers is played by Gil Gerard as a friendly sort of god who would seem more at home in Gasoline Alley than probing the twin mysteries of space and women. His most notable achievement is to transform a sedate electronic minuet being danced at a diplomatic ball into electronic boogie.

To do "Buck Rogers" justice, if it lacks the monumental special effects of "Star Wars" or "Superman," it also lacks the cloying piety of the one and the solemn pretentiousness of the other.

In this sense it is truer to its comic-strip origins by never really taking itself seriously. Since it doesn't pretend to be anything but cheap and campy it has a certain raffish charm lacking in heavier contenders for the space sweepstakes.

"Buck Rogers in the 25th Century." A poor man's "Star Wars" in which the comic-strip hero saves what is left of earth by deciding correctly between a blonde Air Force colonel and a red-headed princess from a distant planet who is up to no good. Strictly for the kids. PG. One star.

Ormandy: The constant conductor

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG
N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — Eugene Ormandy has been the last of the American-based conductors who have dedicated their lives to a single orchestra. In the old days there were musicians like Frederick Stock in Chicago, Leopold Stokowski in Philadelphia and Sergi Koussevitzky in Boston, not to mention a group of less-famous conductors, who stayed in their cities for substantially a full season year in and year out, keeping outside engagements to a minimum and devoting all of their energies to a single orchestra factor: "their" orchestras.

Today things work differently. Thanks to the jet plane and international pressures on major talents, conductors seldom give more than half their time, if that, to any single orchestra. They have commitments to opera and recording sessions; they are in demand as guest conductors; they contend that it is important to their careers to appear everywhere.

When Ormandy replaced Stokowski in 1938 as conductor of the great Philadelphia Orchestra, he clearly was determined to make that assignment his life's work. And he did. When he started, there were doubts about his ability to maintain the Stokowski standards. Stokowski had made the Philadelphia Orchestra one of the world's supreme virtuoso instruments. Though Ormandy had created a funk in Minneapolis, was he the one who could carry on the orchestra's traditions?

Ormandy was, and he did. For 44 years he has kept the Philadelphia Orchestra in the top rank of the world's symphonic ensembles. He proved to be a thorough musician; a conductor with an infallible ear, a fast study (his tests of memory are legendary in the business), a secure technician.

His programs seldom were innovative. Although Ormandy has conducted his share of contemporary music, his real interests have been in the 19th century. He conducts relatively little Mozart and Haydn, concentrating on the repertory from Beethoven through Richard Strauss and Mahler. Ormandy was conducting Mahler long before the current craze for that composer.

Thus his programs have, on the whole, tended to be unadventurous. That has irritated many of the younger critics, and in recent years Ormandy has not been receiving happy press notices from them. His interpretations are also considered by the younger critics to be rather bland, with an emphasis on surface elements and an orchestral sonorities rather than on the meat of the music.

But among many other critics and professionals Ormandy is held in great respect. It has been pointed out by them that only a highly skilled conductor could have taken over so flamboyant a personality as Stokowski and, for more than four decades, have kept the Philadelphia Orchestra in such brilliant condition. And as an interpreter, he has been serious, honest and reliable. For a so-called virtuoso conductor — and in many respects he is — he has never bent the music to satisfy his own ego.

His performances of Beethoven, Brahms and the other classics have varied very little through the years. When Ormandy joined the Philadelphia Orchestra, he was already a fully formed musician, and he has adhered to a conception of the scores that stresses fidelity to the printed note. The brilliant sound that he has been able to evoke from his players has blinded some listeners to the essential solidity of his interpretations. As a literalist, Ormandy may not have had the flashes of inspiration that other conductors have brought to the music, but his performances have never been less than eminently satisfactory.

The general feeling is that Riccardo Muti will be his successor. Some years ago Ormandy seemed interested in Istvan Kertesz, the brilliant young Hungarian conductor, but that career was unfortunately cut short by accidental death. (Kertesz drowned while swimming in the Dead Sea.) More recently, Muti has been the principal guest conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and there is every indication that the young Italian is the leader in the Philadelphia sweepstakes.

As conductor laureate, of course, Ormandy will continue to lead the orchestra with which he has been associated for so many years, and he will continue to add to his discography, which may well be the largest of any conductor who ever lived. It is safe to say that only a superior musician, and one who also has captured the public imagination, could have remained on top for so many years.

John Udpike rarely strikes immediately at the heart of a matter. He paces around the specific details of the where and what of the who he writes about. When you begin to wonder what he's driving at, suddenly he pounces.

The stories in "Too Far to Go: The Maples Stories" (Fawcett Crest, $2.75), an original paperback, eminently worth your time and money, delineate the death of a marriage. Udpike's concerns are not for such things as what the husband does for a living or where he met and married his wife. He throws out hints about these basics, but his real hooks are his earnest explorations of the interior of the husband's mind.

This book contains 17 stories written from 1956 through 1976 and mostly published in the New Yorker. Fawcett rounded up all the stories for this paperback, and Udpike contributes a short foreword in which he states: "That a marriage ends is less than ideal, but all things end under heaven and if temporarily is held to be invalidating, then nothing real succeeds. The moral of these stories is that all blessings are mixed."

The stories are told from husband Richard's point of view, looking at his wife, Joan, their four children, two cats and dog, and the variety of houses they live in. Udpike concentrates on Richard's many perceptions—his feelings as he donates blood, his reactions to his wife's affairs, the way to tell the children about the divorce and in one marvelous scene, the horrible impatience of waiting late one night for his wife to come home. You know why the divorce is necessary as Richard thinks: "And Joan? Whom does she love?... She must love the children, for they flock to her like sparrows to suet. They fight bitterly for a piece of her lap and turn their backs upon their father, as if he, the source and shelter of their life, were a grotesque intruder...."

Some of these stories were adapted for a recent NBC drama with Michael Moriarty as Richard and Blythe Danner as Joan. Unfortunately, few of the emotions and motives Udpike gives his couple were translated to the small screen.

Another highly recommended collection of short fiction is "Love Stories" (Popular Library, $2.90), edited by Martin Levin. His ground rules for the anthology, he writes, are: there must be "two-creatures who find one another uniquely magnetic, and each must be changed by that feeling. So we read Isaac Bashevis Singer's tale of a roue, providing for a son who is not his. And Kurt Vonnegut Jr. on the love of a simple man for a childhood sweetheart, Joyce Carol Oates at her grisly best, on a professor whose constant love confines his wife to a tortured conclusion, Willa Cather on a quiet man, an artist, his dog and a first friend. The list of contributors includes Vladimir Nabokov, F. Scott Fitzgerald and John O'Hara.

Footnote

There are occasions when a TV adaptation of a book is a godsend, if only to bring it into public consciousness. One is the April 25 C.B.B. Bryan's "Friendly Fire" (Bantam, $2.75), the story of an Iowa mother's determined pursuit to find out how her son was killed in Vietnam. The story of U.S. government coverups, even to disguising the mother as a subversive, is a horror, but the mother's strength is a profile of one woman's courage. Carol Burnett will star.

Phil Donahue added to 'Today' show

By FRANK SWERTLOW
© Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — Phil Donahue, king of daytime television, will become a Chicago-based special interviewer for NBC's morning Today program.
However, Donahue will continue to broadcast his syndicated daytime show—the No. 1 program in the industry—from independent Channel 9 here.
The move, which takes place in May, is expected to boost Today's ratings because of Donahue's drawing power with American women, about 5 million of whom watch his syndicated show on about 160 stations.

Under terms of the three-year arrangement with NBC, Donahue will broadcast three 8-minute interviews a week for Today.

Ironically, Donahue, 43, started his career as the announcer at the University of Notre Dame's station who introduced the Today show to early morning viewers.

Les Crystal, president of NBC, told the Chicago Sun-Times that he recently resumed talks with Donahue and concluded the deal "after a meeting (in Chicago) and two or three phone calls.

"We just were clever," said Crystal. "We had an idea and we talked to him, and he was very enthusiastic."

A key to the arrangement apparently is Donahue's ability to retain his own staff to produce the Today interviews.

Crystal said that the Today segments will be similar in style to Donahue's syndicated show: An interview with both Donahue and his audience asking questions.

However, Paul Friedman, executive producer of Today, will confer with Donahue and his staff on selection of topics. Some of the interviews will originate outside Chicago, usually when Donahue is on location with his talk show.

Although Donahue is joining the staff of Today, his actual status with the network is that of an independent producer operating separately from the broadcasting company.

Donahue's show is unique in that he shows his audience in the show by getting them to ask his guests questions. And the themes of his shows are social issues rather than pure entertainment.

Old Time Fiddler on 'Over Easy'

FAIRFIELD — Manny Shaw, 71, of Fairfield will be featured on PBS' "Over Easy," hosted by Hugh Downs, Monday, April 16. An Idaho rancher and fiddler for more than 60 years, he recovered from stroke paralysis and disproven doctors' diagnoses that he would never fiddle again. The show airs on Channel 7, KUED, at 6:30 p.m.
