

Economy slows down; inflation rises

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's rate of economic growth slowed abruptly but inflation increased during the first three months of this year, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

The gross national product — the value of all goods and services produced in the country — grew at an annual rate of only 0.7 percent during the January-March period after adjustment for inflation.

That compared with 6.9 percent growth during the last three months of 1978.

But throughout the entire economy, inflation rose at an annual rate of 8.7 percent in the first three months of the year compared to 8.2 percent for the previous three months and 7.4 percent for all of 1978.

The administration was expecting a slowdown and even wanted one during 1979 because it considered the recent growth too rapid for the health of the economy. It did not expect such a sharp slowdown.

"This rate of growth is below most projections made for the early part of the year," said Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps. "It is a slower pace than we expected. I think most people were projecting something around 2 percent for the first quarter."

But she said it does not portend a recession — the administration expects a temporary pickup in the second three months of this year, and it forecasts economic growth a little over 2 percent for 1979 as a whole, compared to last year's 4 percent.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller said he believed the new statistics "are consistent with my feeling that the first quarter would show the slowdown that we need."

Miller said the economy may "bounce back" during the April-June quarter, but that he would be watching closely to make sure the recovery is not too strong.

"If that bounceback means a GNP growth of less than 2.5 percent, then I think we're in good shape," he said. "If it should show more strength than that then we would have to seriously consider some further restrictive monetary action."

The administration believes a growth rate around 2 percent offers the best chance of gradually reducing inflation without tipping the country into a recession which could throw millions of Americans out of work.

Mrs. Kreps was more concerned about the inflation figures for the first three months of the year. She called that "our major concern."

Although inflation remains much too high, she said, "there are good reasons to think that the worst of it may be behind us." Much will depend, she said, on how well the public cooperates with President Carter's voluntary wage-price guidelines.

Mrs. Kreps told a news conference she sees these economic trends ahead:

—Consumer spending will probably continue moderate growth, somewhat slower than the growth in incomes, which would allow for a further rise in the rate of personal saving.

—Home construction may rise further in coming months but will fall considerably short of last year's pace during most of 1979.

—Energy prices will continue to rise.

—Farm prices have begun to slow substantially, and this should show up in grocery stores in a month or two.

Mrs. Kreps said the January-March slowdown in economic growth was due partly to bad weather "but part of it represents a slowdown that will persist and is consistent with the administration's expectation."

Carson leaves 'Tonight Show' on Sept. 30

C.N.Y. Times Service

LOS ANGELES — Johnny Carson, host of "The Tonight Show," one of television's most successful and profitable programs, has told the National Broadcasting Company that he plans to leave the show Sept. 30, after 17 years.

Fred Silverman, president of NBC-TV, which has been beleaguered by low audience-popularity ratings and the failure of many of its new shows to find audiences, has made an urgent appeal to Carson to remain on the program.

But as of Thursday, sources close to Carson said his decision was final.

Silverman has been pressing Carson in recent months to increase his appearances on the late-night talk show, and this was said to have led to tension between the two men. But a source close to Carson said that this was not the principal reason for his decision to quit.

"I'll be 57 years on the 30th of September," Carson's associate said, "and he just wants out. He wants to do something different."

Carson has told friends he wanted to remain with NBC, at least through the expiration of his present contract in April 1981, but to work only as the host of periodic time-time specials. He is also said to want to perform in motion pictures and make more appearances in concerts and Las Vegas showings.

The departure of Carson would appear to be a serious economic setback to NBC, which, under Silverman, is attempting to make a comparative comeback against its network rivals, ABC-TV and CBS-TV, and which is under fire from many of its affiliated stations for failing to do so.

According to NBC, "The Tonight Show" is seen by an average of 15.2 million Americans nightly. The show is estimated to gross $115 million a year in advertising revenues.

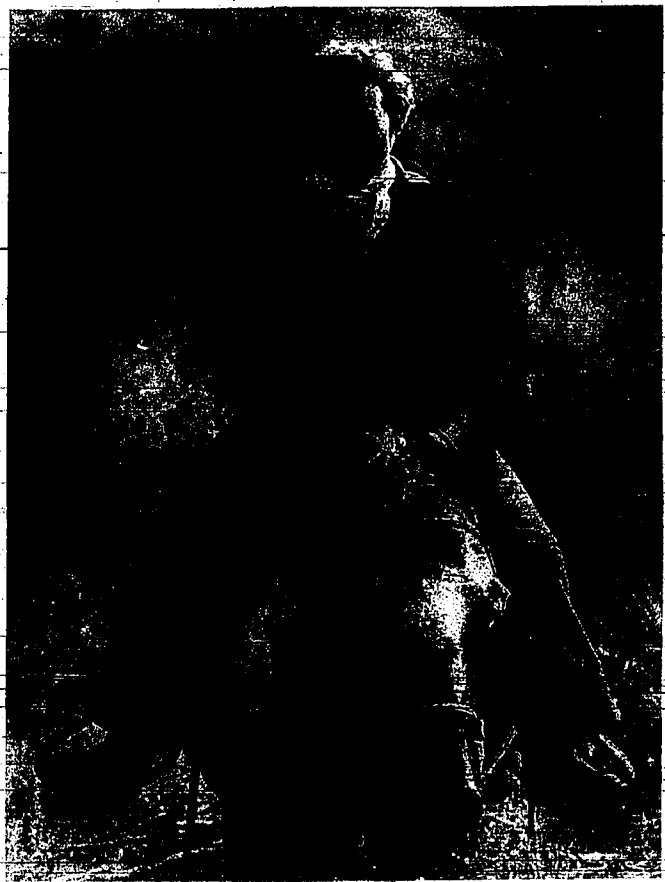

Disclosure of Carson's intention comes at what many consider an inopportune time for the network and its parent company, the RCA Corporation.

RCA will hold its annual shareholders' meeting in New York on May 1, and representatives of NBC's affiliates are scheduled to meet here May 13-16 for a review of fall programming.

Both meetings are expected to be forums for sharp questioning regarding the failure of Silverman, who acquired a reputation as something of a wonder-worker in previous jobs at CBS and ABC, to bring NBC out of its third place in the popularity standing.

Carson took over as host of "The Tonight Show" from Jack Paar in 1962 and is one of the wealthiest men in the entertainment industry. He has extensive holdings in real estate, banking, business enterprises and other fields.

In December 1977, he extended his contract with NBC by two years to 1981 — at a salary then reported to be almost $3 million a year.

Utah governor sees cover-up in atomic tests

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah Gov. Scott Matheson charged Thursday that the government covered up the impact of fallout from Nevada open-air atomic testing and urged a joint congressional hearing to compensate victims of the radiation.

The hearing was conducted by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate health subcommittee, and Rep. Robert Eckhardt, D-Texas, chairman of the House subcommittee on oversight and investigations.

Matheson said he would introduce legislation to move the responsibility for radiation research from the Department of Energy to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

He said Eckhardt said they would study the question of compensation and what safeguards must be taken in monitoring present nuclear activity to prevent any future problems.

Matheson said that when the atomic testing began in 1951 the Atomic Energy Commission assured southern Utah residents "there was no danger," and the people believed it.

"Today Utahans are not nearly so accepting" of the harmful health effects of which they may have been the unwitting recipients.

Matheson said that when sheep died in southern Utah during the testing, the Atomic Energy Commission told the public that fallout was not the cause. He also said that the AEC cut off funding for thyroid cancer research before it could be completed and suppressed a 1963 study which showed that leukemia rates in the state were abnormally high.

"This is the most blatant example of instance upon instance of official evasion and manipulation of the facts about the health impact of fallout," he said. "On the whole, I am convinced that the government has lied in the years of governmental inquiries has been the truth."

Matheson compared the atomic testing with the recent nuclear accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania, noting that pregnant women and young children were not evacuated from southern Utah 26 years ago.

"We are warned those of us in Utah and Nevada, who received 1,000 millirems per hour after a single test in 1953 — a dose 40 to 500 times higher than that which triggered the evacuation near Three Mile Island," said the 50-year-old governor who was brought up in the southern Utah town of Parowan.

"In the name of national security we lost our perspective for public health and the credibility of the United States government lost some real ground."

Matheson asked that Congress appropriate funds for further study on the impact of the fallout, and that the lawmakers find a central library for the collection of all research and other documents concerning fallout.

"Finally, I urge Congress to study possible avenues for compensating victims of the government's wrongdoing," Matheson said. "I also urge Congress to consider means of providing health care and health monitoring for those who may suffer from the consequences of fallout exposure years from now or in generations to come."

Rhodesia's elections proceeding better than expected

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — The government said today about 50 percent of the eligible voters have cast ballots in Rhodesia's first majority rule election.

Prime Minister Ian Smith said "we're home and dry" in his efforts to get diplomatic recognition from the United States and other Western powers.

In southeastern Rhodesia insurgents Wednesday night burned out all the tribal villages in a 15-square-mile area of the Mzimba tribal reserve.

Army commanders at the scene said the guerrillas ordered the hundred of villagers to flee to the hills so that they would not be able to vote. The insurgents then systematically burned down the huts.

The military command confirmed the incident and reported another 83 war deaths.

The government's election directorate announced Wednesday at 2 p.m. when rural polling stations closed, 1,428,612 of the eligible 2.8 million voters had voted in the election, which began Tuesday and ends Saturday.

This meant that by the government's reckoning 48.7 percent of the electorate had taken part in the election despite a black guerrilla effort to wreck the polling.

Urban polling stations closed at 7 p.m. Election officials said it is a foregone conclusion that returns from the urban areas will push the turnout above the 50 percent mark.

Balden Bell, an American election observer here for the House of Representative study committee, which advises about 100 congressmen on foreign relations matters, said he believes the Carter administration will lift trade sanctions against Rhodesia if the poll tops 55 percent.

"I think it would be foolhardy to take any other course," he said.

A black Rhodesian leader said Wednesday that guerrillas ordered tens of thousands of Rhodesians to defying their leaders and urging people to vote in the nation's first balloting for a black majority government.

On the third day of polling, as the count climbed close to an absolute majority, Smith said as he emerged from the voting booth, "It looks like we'll make over 50 percent and so we're home and dry. How can anybody argue against that!"

The tall, graying prime minister, who hands over power in about five weeks to the black victor in the election, dipped his fingers vigorously in the indelible ink that prevents "multiple voting" and then moved to an empty booth next to two blacks to mark his paper.

Smith, who once vowed there would be no black majority rule in his lifetime, "was limited to a choice of black parties. The polling station was a central library for the collection of all research and other documents concerning fallout exposure years from now or in generations to come."

Cocaine ring busted

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News Staff Writer

SUN VALLEY — Drug enforcement officers have arrested nine men and two women in the Sun Valley-Ketchum area in connection with a large cocaine dealing business.

The 11 arrests came Wednesday after a three-month investigation by a special state and federal task force, and more arrests are in the process of being made, Federal Drug Enforcement Administration officials announced Thursday.

Those arrested range in age from 19 to 33. They were identified as Ronald Craig Olson, 30; Brian Kirk Zedlerich, 19; Owen Edward Jordan, 33; Kenneth Warren New, 33; Robert Roy Thrower, 29; David Roscoe Blampied, 33; Peter Henry Sedwell, 19; Joseph Stuart Leary, 26; Spencer Bryant Gouch, 33; Barbara J. Kantzenzin, 29; and Pamela A. Paugh, 22.

Federal officials say the arrested individuals were arranged before the U.S. Magistrate in the federal courthouse in Boise late Thursday afternoon where they were taken following the arrests.

John Rooney of the state narcotics office in Twin Falls said the arrests were made Wednesday afternoon in various locations around the Sun Valley area. He said the charges are cocaine related and result from buys made by undercover agents over the past three months.

Of the 11 suspects, some were charged with delivery and some possession of cocaine.

Rooney said the arrests involve a large operation in the Ketchum-Sun Valley area and will "pretty well clamp down the business" of drug operations in that locality.

In a brief press release, the federal agency Thursday said the arrests were the result of an intensive three-month investigation by a task force from the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, Idaho Bureau of Investigation, Narcotics Division, and U. S. Marshall's office with the cooperation of local law enforcement officers.

Gas prices up

BOISE (UPI) — Gasoline prices at 30 selected southern and eastern Idaho stations showed an average increase of between 3 and 4 cents per gallon from March 23 to Wednesday.

(But in Hawaii, as the picture at right shows, gasoline topped the $1 a gallon level on Thursday. See related story on the Hawaiian gas prices on page B-3.)

Friday briefing

New eruptions feared from simmering cone

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent (UPI) — Fearing new eruptions, the government cleared more people from the reach of volcanic Mount Soufriere Thursday but said it was unlikely the entire island would be evacuated.

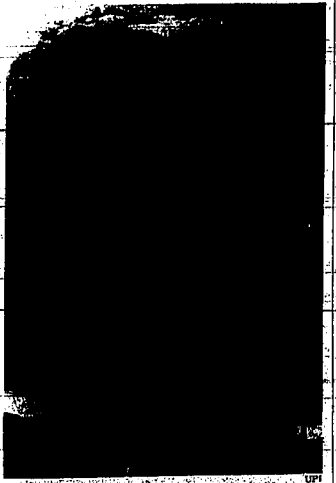

In an ominous development, there were reports of tremors around Mt. Pelee in the Caribbean island of Martinique. In 1902, a Mt. Pelee eruption two days after Soufriere blew up, killed 30,000 persons.

Soufriere's 1902 eruption killed 2,000 people but its latest series of blasts have killed only two persons — two children — because of a massive evacuation after the first blast Friday.

Authorities, predicting a more destructive blast from the volcano, extended the evacuation zone by another half-mile in an attempt to clear residents from two-thirds of the 19-by-11-mile island.

A government spokesman said steam was pouring from a crack seven miles south of the crater at Park Hill where the ground was "hot as hell."

The government's Radio St. Vincent said scientists had predicted heavy eruptions Wednesday night but that instead, the crater trembled with seven minor eruptions. It said the lack of a major eruption had created "a new situation."

Lax PSA crew caused worst U. S. air crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The failure of the crew of a Pacific Southwest jet to keep in view a light plane it collided with, over San Diego last fall was cited Thursday as a probable cause of the worst U.S. air disaster.

LAX cabin procedures by the crew also were noted by the National Transportation Safety Board in its report of a staff report on the probable causes of the Sept. 25 disaster.

The pilot of PSA Flight 181, a Boeing 727 traveling from Sacramento and Los Angeles to San Diego, was seen in a 1978 report of 144 persons, including 11 crew members, as the plane crashed into the sea.

The single most important factor was the failure of the crew to comply with provisions of its visual separation clearance and inform the controller they lost sight of the smaller aircraft, said NTSB Chairman James King.

Other board members agreed with that assessment in a straw poll King conducted.

"I think the Cessna was a victim," said King.

He said the PSA jettiner was "the burdened aircraft" with the complete obligation to avoid the smaller plane.

During the prolonged discussion, board member Francis McAdams said of the crew "perhaps no one was paying too much attention" to the Cessna. He criticized language used by the crew that included such words as "I guess and I hope," as revealed by a transcript of the recording.

McAdams said at least one member of the crew should have been assigned to watch for the small plane.

One reason they lost contact was the lax search area in the "hot zone," McAdams said.

"Any competent pilot would not miss seeing traffic which has been pointed out to him not once, twice, but three times," said Lloyd LaGrange, an air traffic control specialist on the NTSB staff.

Rideouts divorced

SALINA, Ore. (UPI) — John and Greta Rideout, whose conflicting tales of marital violence made international news, were granted a divorce Thursday.

The petition for divorce, submitted by Mrs. Rideout, cited irreconcilable differences which have existed for a considerable time in the marriage.

The Salena couple were adversaries in the nation's first trial of a husband accused of raping his wife while they were living together. Rideout was found innocent.

Both Rideouts said they were relieved to get the divorce over with. In separate interviews, they both said they are on friendly terms and hold no hard feelings toward each other.

Today's weather

High pressure continues to build

Twin Falls: Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas: Sunny days with frosty nights through Saturday. High temperature today near 55 degrees and on Saturday near 60. Overnight lows 30 to 35 degrees.

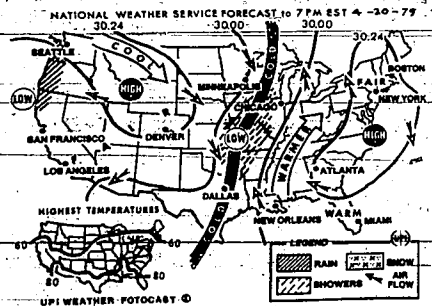

Cannas: Frairie, Halley, Wood River valleys: Mostly sunny today and Saturday. High temperatures 55 to 65 degrees both days with overnight lows in the 30s.

Stippled: High pressure continued to build over Idaho on Thursday, although scattered rain and snow showers persisted in the extreme north and west. No measurable precipitation was recorded at reporting stations, although some showers developed over mountainous areas.

Winds: Winds decreased slowly during the day on Thursday although the Magic Valley and eastern Idaho reported brisk 20 to 25 mph an hour winds during the day. Tuesday's heavy rain and winds fell to the NW and low 30s over much of Idaho, with Stanley's 18 the coldest.

The extended forecast and field preparation and planting outlook for Sunday through Tuesday calls for fair Sunday but with scattered showers over the mountains and an increasing chance of showers over southern Idaho Monday and Tuesday. Temperatures will be near normal with highs of 55 to 65 degrees and lows from 30 to 40.

The grayling and dusting forecast calls for winds of 5 to 10 miles an hour through this afternoon. The four inch soil temperature maximum should be 4 degrees higher today and the minimum tonight should be up a degree. Pan evaporation is predicted at 25 inch today and 23 inch Saturday.

Lightning hits tanker

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (UPI) — An oil tanker was struck by lightning and exploded late Thursday at the Sun Oil Co. docks on the Neches River. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

A Coast Guard spokesman the explosion sent balls of flames into the air and crewmen scattering into the water.

The Coast Guard spokesman in New Orleans said the tanker Sea Tiger, with a capacity for 250,000 barrels of crude oil, exploded about 10 p.m. after being hit by a bolt of lightning.

The vessel was located about halfway between Beaumont and Port Neches, Texas, the spokesman said.

Federally-funded center collapsed, nobody knew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two federal agencies received Sen. William Proxmire's Golden Fleece Award Thursday for financing a community center "in the middle of nowhere" in Michigan, so inaccessible it collapsed without anybody noticing.

Proxmire, D-Wis., charged "mindless funding and lack of oversight" on the part of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Economic Development Administration.

Proxmire said the agencies provided $279,000 for construction of the center, and a road leading to it, in the woods of rural Merrill Township, Mich.

In 1975, he said, HUD approved $100,000 for the center itself without determining that to serve two small towns, it was to be built "in a virtually inaccessible forest half-way between."

"It lay idle — unpainted, unlandscaped and unfurnished — from its completion until its collapse," Proxmire said. During this time, he said, the township asked EDA for $290,000 more to build the road, received $179,000 — and never completed it.

National Guard mans New York prison

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The National Guard was called out Thursday to help maintain New York's 21,000 prisoners as the state sought to cope with the first systematic strike by correctional officers in its history.

Gov. Hugh Carey announced that 8,000 National Guardsmen had been called to active duty to help with "life support services such as food, maintenance and water supplies."

Carey told a news conference that ordering guardsmen to assume roles as actual prison guards was "not contemplated at this time." The guardsmen began gathering at local armories immediately.

No disturbances were reported at any of the state institutions as the walkout went into its second day.

The state's estimated 21,000 prisoners were locked in their cells and were taken to meals in small groups by supervisory personnel and state police.

Calling the strike illegal, Carey said the state was seeking criminal penalties against the strikers, including fines and possible prison terms. The fines could include payment for all costs to the taxpayer, including the total cost of calling up the Guard, a Carey spokesman said.

The Guard would aid state police, supervisory personnel and some non-striking corrections officers who have been working overtime since the job action began Wednesday.

Carey said state troopers had been guarding the perimeters of the prisons, as well as holding wall posts.

Oregon Magazine prints 16 words

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon Magazine went on sale Thursday with the first half of a disputed article by a former CIA agent. Sixteen words the CIA wanted removed were still in it.

The magazine's editor, Tom Bates, refused to tell which 16 words were the disputed ones. But other deletions made after consultation with a CIA attorney were blacked out.

The article in the 48,000-circulation monthly magazine, by former CIA agent Jay Mullen and entitled, "I Was Idi Amin's Basketball Czar, Is a humorous look at his experiences while stationed in Uganda.

The controversy arose after Mullen submitted the article for review in accordance with his agreement as a former CIA agent. Bates agreed to remove references to the identity of an African agent for the CIA, but declined to delete the additional 16 words. The government took no further action.

Carter tries to talk liberals into supporting SALT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has assured three liberal senators in writing that the emerging SALT II accord will not spark a new strategic arms race with Russia.

But it appeared the three remain unconvinced — retaining prospects the treaty might be battered from both left and right in Senate ratification debates. Disclosure of Carter's effort to placate liberal treaty critics came as Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin resumed SALT II negotiations with a one-hour meeting Thursday — their 18th meeting this year.

In his personal letter dated March 21 and released Thursday, Carter was trying to talk Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., William Proxmire, D-Wis., and George McGovern, D-S.D., out of their threat to vote against SALT II.

Those three last month opened a breach in what had appeared to be solid liberal support for SALT II. They said U.S. negotiations were weakening arsenals too much in their efforts to please conservative, defense-oriented senators and military men.

The "emerging pact," they said, contains loopholes that will allow the nuclear arms race to continue unabated.

"I assure you," Carter said in his letter, "that, if the agreement is ratified — as I expect it will be — I will not permit the result to be a new strategic arms competition."

'Good News' movement rocks Methodists

By GEORGE VECSEY
New York Times Service
WILMORE, Ky. — This bluegrass town, so small that freight trains slash right across Main Street, is also the home of the Good News evangelical movement, which is shaking the United Methodist Church.

The Good News emphasis on "orthodox" beliefs and spiritual revival has become a major political force within the Methodist Church, which has 9.7 million members, and the same evangelical zeal is being expressed by groups within other Protestant denominations. Recently, many evangelical groups have formed ecumenical alliances.

But Good News is something special among these groups. Because of its catchy name and the influence of its bimonthly magazine, it is causing tremors in Methodist centers in New York, Nashville and Dayton.

"Evangelicals have always been more inclined to attend prayer worship than work together," the Rev. Charles W. Keyser, the founder of Good News, said. "Now we are telling evangelicals to use the structure, to get involved, rather than leave the church."

The Good News movement — made up of an undetermined number of conservatives around the United States — is now building a coalition with some of the larger congregations, and church leaders are concerned about a conservative influence at the 1980 General Conference. In the last few months, Good News has been attacked by a Methodist social action group and several bishops.

"They claim they are just being religious, but their political and social views are typical of the 'new right,'" said the Rev. George McLain of New York, executive secretary of the United Methodist Federation of Social Action.

No conservative middle-American movement could have chosen a more representative setting than Wilmore, a central Kentucky town a few miles south of the wealthy horse farms. It has 2,000 residents, and there are 2,000 students and faculty members at Asbury College and Asbury Theological Seminary.

Wilmore is the base for Good News because Keyser moved here to teach journalism and to connect with the conservative Methodist faction at Asbury.

Keyser, a former public relations man in Illinois, said that he was an agnostic until 1959 when he attended a Billy Graham crusade in Wheaton, Ill., "and took the step forward." He entered divinity school and was ordained in 1965. Almost immediately, he felt at odds with Methodism.

Methodism, founded by John Wesley in England in 1729, has been a powerful and socially active denomination in the United States. Once the largest denomination in this country, it has lost 1.2 million members since 1964 and has yielded first place to the Southern Baptists.

"I felt the Methodist Church needed to renew its historical Biblical beliefs," Keyser said. His beliefs that Methodism has been dominated by "humanists" who veered from "Scriptural Christianity."

The central message of Good News, according to Keyser, is that "Scripture is unequivocal."

"We do not allow reinterpretation," he said. "We believe the job of the church is to bear the message of Christ, the redemption of all sinners."

We feel the church has been picking up the currents of the culture and putting a Christian message on it."

In his 1966 essay that founded Good News, he listed five major beliefs: the inspiration of Scripture; the virgin birth of Jesus; "a somewhat Christ on the cross paid the price of transgression"; the physical return of Jesus, and the resurrection of Jesus. He feels that many Methodists have strayed from emphasizing those beliefs.

He charged that Methodism was lax on homosexuality, allowed "clergy and bureaucrats to run the show with no accountability," was too lenient in sexual values and supported questionable causes. In overseas missions, such as "terrorists in Southern Africa."

He also said that Methodism emphasized "social issues ahead of worship" and was too permissive about abortions.

In 1966, Keyser planned a magazine to express his views but could not think of a name until his wife, Margaret, said, "It will be good news if this magazine ever gets published."

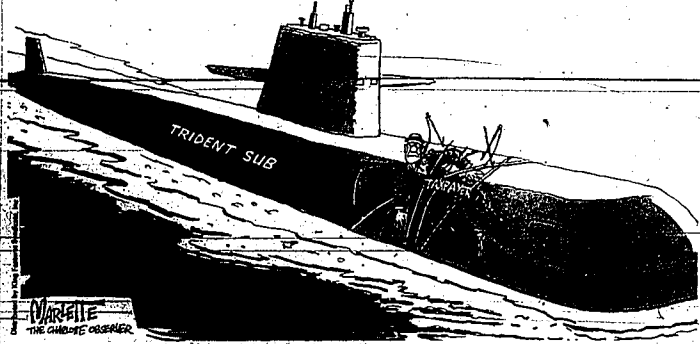

Good News flourished as a magazine, with a circulation of 15,000. It also has paperbacks and pamphlets, publishes a newsletter for women, offers to conduct revivals and plans to elect conservative delegates to all regional conferences this year.

"A lot of our critics see us as a menacing political force — and we are that," Keyser said. "But we are also an ad hoc fellowship of Christians. If we did not accomplish our task, we would dissolve in a minute. There is nothing permanent about Good News."

In the last generation, Methodism has been a leader in ordaining women (a stand opposed by Good News), and its social action department has supported most aspects of the civil rights, antiwar and anti-poverty movements. It has put considerable money and energy into most of the social causes "considering them a Christian mission."

In January, the Methodist Foundation for Social Action, which is not supported by the denomination and has often been on the liberal edge of Methodism, charged Good News with "rigid, traditional fundamentalism" that employs "distortions, confrontations, McCarthyism and witch hunts" which would alienate which would alienate the church with those who "rob the poor and crush the afflicted."

Presidential primary seen as economic boon to Idaho

Editor, Times-News:

In recent action the Idaho House of Representatives passed a bill to abolish Idaho's Presidential Preference Primary election so that the state might become one of the sponsors of the bill, pointed out that only 34 percent of the electorate participated in the may 1976 presidential primary and that the primary "serves no useful purpose."

I would like to reply to Representative Hammond's arguments.

I concede that only 34 percent of the registered voters turned out for the last presidential primary, but to be honest it should also be pointed out that this is the highest turnout for any primary in the last four years. According to statistics compiled by the Idaho Secretary of State's office turnout for the 1974 August primary was 34 percent, 30 percent in August 1976, and 35 percent in August 1978.

I strongly disagree with Representative Hammond's allegation that the primary "serves no useful purpose." It enfranchises the entire electorate of the state in the process of picking presidential candidates. Seventy-five percent of each political party's delegation to the national nominating conventions are determined by that party's rank and file in the primary election.

In 1976, $197,852 was spent by the presidential candidate in Idaho. I think it is foolish to suggest that this kind of investment is going to be made in a state that does not hold a primary. It is of great importance to a small state like Idaho to draw presidential candidates to the state to learn first hand of the needs and concerns of Idaho's citizens. Especially when it comes to issues concerning Idaho's water and other natural resources.

It also seems likely that the state of Washington will soon join Idaho, Oregon, and Nevada with a presidential primary on the fourth Tuesday in May. This Pacific Northwest primary could develop into one of the most important primary election dates in the campaign, in the process focusing attention on the concerns and desires of the citizens of the northwest states.

I believe that if the state Legislature really wants to economize by eliminating a primary election that they should do so by combining the state and presidential primaries on the fourth Tuesday in May, eliminating the August primary.

Tuma case no victory for laetrile

The lines between the two issues become confused. It should be pointed out this week's decision in the Jolene Tuma case was a victory for due process of law, not for the controversial substance laetrile.

Tuma is a Twin Falls nurse. Three years ago she discussed different forms of alleged "alternative" cancer treatments, including laetrile, with a patient who had cancer. She did not first obtain permission from the patient's doctor to conduct the discussion and later admitted that at the time she knew little if anything about laetrile. She was later ordered suspended from nursing for unprofessional conduct.

The Idaho Supreme Court said Tuesday the state Nurse Practice Act does not contain a clear definition of unprofessional conduct, or a method for giving a formal warning to discontinue such conduct. Without those legal guidelines and safeguards of individual rights, the court said, Tuma's suspension cannot be upheld.

In the long run, this may be a good decision. Doctors and nurses will both benefit by more clearly defining their respective roles in relation to patient care.

What is unfortunate is that in some minds the Tuma case became a laetrile issue. Tuma, some charged, was not suspended for counseling the patient, but for mentioning laetrile. Some saw her reprimand as part of an overall design to prevent this cheap, easy "cure" from reaching cancer victims, thus forcing those patients to undergo more expensive forms of therapy.

The persons who made these arguments, who included in their midst more than a few state legislators, will now likely see Tuma's reinstatement as a victory for the substance produced from apricot pits.

That is not only unfortunate but misleading. The Idaho Supreme Court has not addressed the effectiveness of laetrile.

It is doubtful they ever will.

And while it may be argued no final assessment of laetrile has yet been made, most accepted medical authorities still dismiss the substance as little more than a gimmick.

Doubtless more nonsense will be voiced in future days about the Tuma case dealing a blow to the "conspiracy" of doctors trying to keep laetrile from cancer patients.

Such a theory is fiction and misses the import of this week's court decision.

Nuclear power development must continue in Idaho

Editor, Times-News:

Nearly 20 years ago, an accident caused the death of three men at the nuclear plant near Idaho Falls.

But I believe people exposed to radiation will experience cell reduction and will be serious and may be actually benefited.

The Reader's Digest told of the Japanese fishermen who were covered by atomic ash from a test conducted on a nearby island. They were found to lack cells after it. Transmutations were given and one died, not from the radiation but from the transfusion which caused hepatitis. Cancer is often treated by radiation.

The book, "Dr. Issels," by Gordon Thomas, tells that Dr. Issels of Bavaria, Germany, who treats incurable cancer cases has found that by curing the cancer, the white and red blood cell contents drop from 6,000 to almost zero, and that if the patient had diabetes, cirrhosis, asthma or rheumatism; these and a number of other diseases also disappeared. (Pages 157 and 312).

The book, "Vital Signs," by John Langone, tells that cells removed from a recently deceased and implanted in a suitable medium, will start to grow and form colonies. He explains that cells have been grown in laboratories around the world for years. From Ames-Diagnosics.

The book, "Ross Peterson," by Allen Spraggett, tells that each cell in the body, and there are trillions, is in the state of growing or with itself.

A doctor of the California University states that an increase in cell production causes cancer susceptibility.

Dr. Egami of the Life Science Research Institute of Tokyo is growing cells in a media which has the same cell contents blood.

Dr. Aleksandrowicz of the Polish Academy of Science says cancer is characterized by an abnormal increase of white or colorless cells. A doctor of the Hospital and Tumor Institute Laboratory of Houston, Texas, finds that freezing cells from animals, done carefully, does not injure cells and will allow them to grow in a proper medium and keep indefinitely.

Dr. Thosteson tells that too many cells cause Polycythemia, a disease. Doctors report that cancer is an overgrowth of cells. It would seem from these reports that cells are connected with disease and that their eradication does not necessarily cause death.

View cells in the forbidden fruit that Adam and Eve ate? Is nuclear radiation in minimal amounts really harmful? Can nuclear waste be put to beneficial use?

Only time will tell and these questions answered. Meanwhile, let us continue to develop nuclear energy and find out.

The truths about oil

WASHINGTON — What makes the public in this country the best informed in the world is that we have so many "experts" who can be called upon when we are faced with a problem. Whenever I get confused about oil, I seek out Prof. Heinrich Applebaum, who heads the Fossil Fuel Think Tank at the Seven Sisters Institute of Technology.

"Professor, is there really a serious gasoline shortage in the United States brought about by a cutoff of oil supplies from Iran?"

"Yes, there is."

"That's bad," I said.

"Au contraire," he said, "that's good, because, according to the CIA, despite the shortfall from Iran, gasoline production for January and February was up by 4 percent over the previous year."

"Then it is possible the oil companies manufactured the crisis so they could raise prices and make windfall profits?"

"That is the conclusion some people reach. But, without the incentive of higher prices the oil companies would be unable to supply the needs of the consumer for the rest of the year. The companies need these windfall profits to drill for new oil."

"How do you feel about decontrolling domestic oil prices?"

"I don't feel good about it."

"Then you are against it?"

"Not necessarily. If you decontrol oil prices the price of gasoline will go up at the pump, and this could lead to much-needed conservation in this country, which everyone agrees is necessary."

"That's good," I said.

"It's good if it works, but the problem is that the American people will pay whatever it takes to feed their cars, even if it means giving up feeding their families. A dollar-a-gallon gas doesn't seem to frighten people as much as it did a few years ago. But we do know it will play a major role in upping inflation."

"That's bad," I said.

"No one likes high inflation, but by pushing up the price, we will be able to afford to process shale oil and recover other fuel that up until now was unprofitable, thus making us more self-sufficient than we are today."

"That's good," I said. "How do you feel about closing gasoline stations on weekends?"

"No one likes to see a gasoline station closed at any time, particularly when the gauge on your car is near empty, but it could save millions of gallons of gasoline — but then again it could."

"I beg your pardon?"

"If you close gasoline stations on weekends everyone will start topping up their tanks during the weekdays so they will always be full. This could use up more gasoline than we would save by weekend closings."

"That's bad," I said. "Should we blame the OPEC countries for the sorry mess we're in now?"

"I don't see anything wrong with blaming them as opposed, for example, to those countries that don't export any oil. At the same time we should not forget the environmentalists who have prevented the building of refineries, which the oil companies have insisted is responsible for shortages of gasoline, particularly the unneeded kind."

"So on the basis of all your studies and projections where are we now?"

"Exactly where I said we should be at this stage of the game except for certain uncertain variables, such as James Schlesinger's pipe, which I forgot to feed into my computer."

Church defended

Editor, Times-News:

It is with appreciation that we write this note to thank you for the wonderful story you published about our family being reunited after so many years.

We would also like to make mention of the missing persons service the Salvation Army performs for only a small fee, and the fact that Senator Frank Church was so willing to do anything he could to help with our search. It is good to know that there are willing helpers and it is also good to know just where this help can be found. So we would like to say "thank you" to each and every one who not only helped but who rejoiced with us when the search ended."

When one reads about one's own family in the local paper, believe us it's quite a thrill. Thank you.

To boil or not

Editor, Times-News:

To boil or not to boil — that is the question that confronts the residents who live near the Rupert city lagoon.

Our concern is about the situation concerning the "iness" up that hill the more I boiled, just boiling mad.

The breakage of the lagoon and the spilling raw sewage all over the country is bad enough, but when it runs down one of the main drain valleys that surround the lagoon and get into our underground water — well, enough is enough.

Let me try to say all the reasons why our water. There is at least three drain wells near the lagoon and all the laterals in this area drain into more drain wells at Cap Holly, plus the lagoon was built on a rocky terrain with large crevices underlying — and any breakage will immediately go underground.

When the system was proposed, we hired an attorney when we couldn't get the city officials, County Commissioners and the local newspaper to bring out the facts concerning this site. Over 200 area residents were contacted and all signed a petition against the location.

We also contacted Gov. Andrus, the Secretary of Interior, and all the senators, both federal and state, along with EPA and Dept. of Health and Welfare to have a more complete study. All to no avail. We were laughed and verbally abused.

This is no longer a local issue as all the residents of Hagle Valley get their water from the Snake River aquifer and should be very concerned and come forward at this time to protest our water supply.

It is time that the welfare of a neighborhood should be back in the hands of the people that it affects and not a bunch of paid government officials who are afraid of their jobs so a bunch of engineers and contractors who are just money grabbers.

Our area was one of the most beautiful in the county, but the city of Rupert has turned it into an undesirable place to live.

We are prepared to do whatever we have to do to get this "mess" cleaned up.

Editor, Times-News:

I noted the recent letter from Jack Donner, Twin Falls, to the Editor of the Idaho Statesman complaining about Sen. Church and the recognition of China by the United States.

Mr. Donner evidently hasn't read the news carefully. I am sure there must have been good coverage in the Times-News as there was in the Idaho Statesman that the Senate passed legislation by an overwhelming vote of 90-0 to tell the government in Peking that the United States will not stand by if the mainland seeks to take over Taiwan.

That legislation continues the American interest in the security of our friends in Taiwan.

It was the Senator who wrote that legislation and he was responsible for seeing that it passed.

Mr. Donner is wrong in his condemnation of Sen. Church. Instead, he should be commending the Senator for standing up and insisting on a bill providing reassurance for the people of Taiwan.

'Fleece' for collapsed center stirs storm of charges

WHITE CLOUD, Mich. (UPI) — Federal agencies spent $279,000 to build a community center in the woods two miles from the nearest road. The building was so remote that, when it collapsed three years later, no one noticed.

The building began in late February under heavy snow but the incident went unnoticed until the rubble was spotted by a wandering woodsman.

In fact, most of the 300 residents of Merrill Township, for whom the center had been built, had forgotten the place ever existed until Thursday, when Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., made it the object of his latest Golden Fleece Award.

Proxmire compared the collapsed structure to a tree falling in the wilderness out of range of the human ear.

"It lay idle — unpainted, unlandscaped and unattended — from its completion until its collapse," Proxmire said.

Proxmire roasted the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Economic Development Administration for "mindless funding and lack of oversight."

HUD approved $100,000 in 1975 to build the center in a secluded spot more than two miles from any road. After construction began, the community sought and was granted funds to build a road to the center. The building collapsed before the road was completed.

"The whole thing was just a lot of stupid planning," said township Supervisor James Ware, 73. "The site, the construction, the road, all these things... Just one mess after another."

"I inherited this damn mess (in 1977), and I'm still trying to clean it up."

Ware laid most of the blame on the federal government.

"HUD was stupid in granting the money," he said. "They never looked into the application, never supervised the construction and plans and never inspected it to see if it was going up right!"

ROGERS C.B. MORTON cancer victim

Republican standout dies at 64

EASTON, Md. (UPI) — Rogers C.B. Morton, a giant of a man who served the Republican Party as member of Congress, in the Cabinet and as national chairman under Richard Nixon, died of cancer Thursday. He was 64.

A family spokesman said Morton, who had battled cancer for years, had "been quite ill for the last few weeks."

Morton, a moderate who was highly respected by Republicans and Democrats alike, served as a congressman from Maryland's Eastern Shore from 1963-1971 — and also was Nixon's national party chairman from 1968-1971.

He resigned from Congress when Nixon appointed him secretary of the interior in 1971, and he served four years in that post. He was Nixon's energy policy coordinator in 1973. President Gerald Ford appointed him commerce secretary, and when Morton quit because of ill health in 1978, Ford made him a special counselor for economic affairs in the White House.

Morton, 64, was a farmer in Kentucky his early years, then raised beef cattle as a gentleman politician-farmer on his sprawling, 200-acre estate near the Chesapeake Bay in Maryland.

He is survived by his wife Anne, a son and a daughter, and his brother Thurston, a former senator from Kentucky who also was a GOP national chairman in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

The heir apparent to Thurston when his brother graduated to the Senate, Morton, whose consummate love was politics, refused to accept certain election to the House of Representatives from Kentucky.

He moved to Maryland to "strike out on his own" in the early 1950s, and "to live with Maryland. It was good farm land and it bordered on good waterways. And it was close to Washington."

Morton graduated from Yale in 1937 and served in the artillery in the armed field artillery when World War II started, working up to captain.

He became president of Ballard and Ballard, a food processing and livestock feed company which later merged with Pillsbury Co. Then he launched his love affair with politics, winning a House seat in his first try for office.

Long journey ends driving for Bessie

CASEYVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — With her car in tow, Bessie Richardson drove a truck loaded with all her furniture and belongings 1,700 miles from Coolidge, Ariz., to Caseyville, and now she thinks she's through with driving — at age 83.

Mrs. Richardson lived in Arizona more than 20 years before deciding to move from Coolidge to live with her recently widowed daughter, Lillian Molla of Caseyville.

Mrs. Richardson woman rented a large truck for the four-day trip. "I couldn't get all my things in a small U-Haul," she said.

She and her traveling companion, Ina Sproul, 78, admitted missing a few turns on the way "because neither of us had good eyes."

Mrs. Richardson also said she was annoyed driving because the truck would not go 80 miles an hour.

"You can't drive a U-Haul very fast," she said.

"That's all we did we were crazy," she said. "But I had driven trucks before. And we met the sweetest people. I guess they felt sorry for us because we were old."

Elderly woman loses home but regrets leaving big tree

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Thirty-three years ago, Mrs. Mary G. Council bought a small wood frame duplex, two blocks from the state capitol, planted a rare ginkgo tree in the backyard and settled down for life.

Now she finds her property is part of section on which the state plans to put a new district court building.

The sprightly 87-year-old widow, who is proud her brown hair "is not dyed," has been given until June 30 to move.

But she'll be leaving with the satisfaction of knowing she and the state meet her asking price of $67,045, which was about 10 percent above the appraised value.

Secretary of State George Firestone termed her "a very tough bargaining woman." Comptroller Gerald Lewis, who agreed to go over the appraised price only because a long court condemnation proceeding would cost even more — said "She's got us over her."

"It's made me real nervous, real sick," she said Thursday. "The state shouldn't be able to walk into someone's yard, order them to sell and tell them how much it's going to pay for the land."

Her home is the last privately-owned house on the block, and she loves it. "I feel like I can almost reach out and touch the capitol," she said. "I can walk to church, to the stores and the courthouse. Best of all, the (Florida State) students walk by here on their way to town and they stop and talk to me."

"I love the students," said Mrs. Council who lives alone and gets a small income from renting the other side of her house.

She's also sick—at the thought of losing her rare Chinese tree, which has grown from a 24-inch sprout to a magnificent tree reaching 70 feet into the sky.

"It's one of the oldest kind of trees in the world and I've been glad to state to save it, but it probably won't," she sighed.

Take time out for the good things in life.

Guinness still blows over record

BRANDON, S.D. (UPI) — Rudy French and his wife hold a world jogging record of 40 miles, but even the Guinness Book of Records people don't want it.

French and his wife, Rose, made a two-mile run this week — not too unusual considering the popularity of jogging. But French did all the running. His 118-pound wife went along for the ride — atop his shoulders.

French said he got the idea as a joke several weeks ago. Then someone told him it could set a world record and he began training.

He started running with weight belts, then ankle weights, then a back pack. His wife, he said, was "the next natural progression."

French said he was sure it was a world record because he contracted the publishers of the Guinness record book and was told the publishers had no record of any other such attempt.

"They also told me it would not get in the book because it was not a popular event," French said. "And they didn't know anybody crazy enough to do it."

Mrs. French said she had no doubt her husband would make the distance.

"I knew he would make it, he'd die rather than be broken," she said.

Even if his record is broken, French said he doesn't think he will ever do it again. "I had my doubts at the one-mile post — boy that hurts," he added.

Fruit knife, bank chase fail to work

TOKYO (UPI) — Police Thursday arrested a 20-year-old jobless woman who tried to rob a bank by chasing several male clerks around the office with a fruit knife.

They said they believe Kiyomi Miyata of Oyama city, about 38 miles north of Tokyo, is the first woman to attempt a solo bank holdup in Japan.

She said Miyata first entered the Oyama branch of the Industrial Bank and pointed her knife at a young woman customer, shouting a demand for 1 million yen ($4,651). The customer fled.

Miyata then entered the bank office and chased the officials. Teruo Toyama, a male clerk, suffered a slight forehead injury when he fell while fleeing.

Miyata was subdued by the clerks after a brief struggle and turned over to police.

She told them she was having a hard time getting enough money to survive. She said she was living with a 24-year-old man in an apartment.

But they were arguing to meet a payment for a $1,225 damage award for a traffic accident the man caused in February.

Horoscope

Scorpios will be wise to avoid new activities

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Although you do not have any means by which to put a positive plan into motion, nevertheless you are able to find the right means by which to build a more up-to-date set of circumstances that can later be put into motion. Be more detailed about your specific aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Decide early which friends you want to have in your life in the future and contact them, show how much you appreciate them. Be more practical in going after your aims.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study how you want your career to trend and take steps in such direction. Get your credit rating improved by right methods. Don't be so irascible with family and have more happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go after information you need and then many interesting situations develop from which you can profit. Use good Judgment and don't rely solely on your intuition.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study debts and credits and get your affairs in better order. Show affection for your mate instead of antagonizing this person. Don't permit outside to disturb harmony. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to come to a better understanding with associates, so confer with them early for best results. Relieve tensions with those who oppose you. Showing kindness to others pays off.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is important that you handle work before going off on some foolish time-wasting activity. Find a better way of improving health and be more dynamic. Avoid that person who saps your strength.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Enjoy recreation that is not too expensive and get good results. But first finish any important work. Don't try to project yourself too much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Make others aware of what it is you want. You'd like to delve into a new outlet, but it would be premature.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Pay visits to others, but take care you do not argue with them. Show kindness and all is well. Take no risks with your good fortune.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You feel like redecorating, but count the cost well first. Plan to save more money in the future. Postpone plans for now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Know what your subconscious aims are and how best to achieve them, gradually and safely. Make sure your health and appearance are good before dealing with others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Seek out an adviser and handle confidential matters wisely. Talk to them, do not argue with loved ones. Show more thoughtfulness instead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have every ability to take care of any situation that arises since the hands are quick and the hands are nimble and there is a comprehension of whatever is complicated. Teach early not to act as though constantly doing an overly dramatic part on the stage.

What's what

Most of the padded bras go to northern states; Cole Younger the badman went straight after jail

The bra industry reports that most of the falsies marketed in this country are sold in the northern states.

Hollywood taught us a lot about Wild West badman Cole Younger, did it not? What it didn't teach us, though, is that when Cole got out of jail, he went legit—in the tombsone business.

In there a World War II Army enlisted veteran lit your family? If so, ask him if he can remember the name of his first sergeant? That query was put to 1,123 such vets at a reunion recently, and 92 percent came up with Old Sarge's name.

Lot of well-intentioned younger folk don't realize that many elderly people resent the patronage of designations such as "Senior Citizen." This comes to mind because of a note I heard from a man who identifies himself as "Old Goat." Writes he: "The next time some squirt calls me Mr. Senior Citizen, I'm going to punch him in the mouth!"

OVERBROUGHT BRAIN
Q. "The history books say that William the Conqueror once moaned, 'Send me a man who can remove the beehive from my overbrought brain.' Did he ever find such a general to take over?"
A. He wasn't looking for a general. He was looking for a quick cure for a hangover. He didn't find any.

Q. "When a wife, ditzy as well as her mother-in-law in China, the husband is always supposed to take the side of his mother. I've read that. Why?"
A. Theory there is he can get another wife but; not another mother.

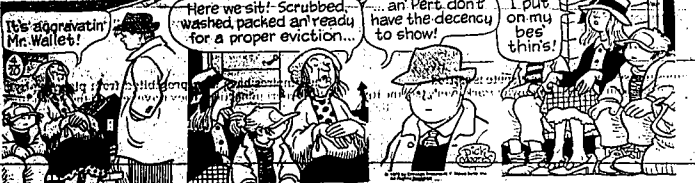

HENRY VIII
In the footnotes of history is the report that King Henry VIII, who had all three wives decapitated, once asked the Duchess Dowager of Milan to marry him. But she declined, saying, "I have but one head. If I had two, one would have been at your service."

What would the radioactive atmosphere smell like in the event of a nuclear explosion? Like a thousand cheap stogies in the air," said the late John Foster Dulles.

Only one national holiday in this country commemorates a death. Can you name it? Say Mother's Day. In honor of Anna Reeves Jarvis of Grafton, W. Va., She died in 1905.

Full slate of playoff games in NBA

By United Press International
 "We desire and desire to see Washington Coach Dick Motta wants from his National Basketball Association defending champions. The lack of both has derailed the Bulls with the Atlanta Hawks at 1-1 in their quarterfinal playoff series.
 "We've got to start moving better and get the ball up court," adds Bob Dandridge, the only player who seemed to be exhibiting desire and hustle in Washington's 107-99 second game loss. Dandridge scored a game high 36 points.
 "The series switching to Atlanta doesn't mean too much to Coach Hubie Brown, who thinks a home court advantage represents just the barest of edges in a game. However, two straight wins in Atlanta would push the Bulls to the brink of defeat in this best-of-seven series.

"We have to respect the Hawks," comments Bulls guard Kevin Grevey. "They're hungry and they're coming after us."
 "Kansas City hasn't had much luck on home court and now Philadelphia and Los Angeles try the hardwood in their favorite arenas. The Kings lost their opener to visiting Phoenix, 102-99, while the Sixers and Lakers lost a pair on the road. Philadelphia dropped 119-106 and 121-120 decisions in San Antonio and Seattle took a pair at home from Los Angeles, 112-101 and 108-103 in overtime.
 All clubs resume action Friday night.
 Some observers blame the lack of Kansas City past playoff experience with the Kings' opening game loss, but a three-point loss is hardly a yardstick to measure their ability.

 Sam Lacey, who played in a losing Kansas City cause during the 1976 post-season games, calls Alvan Adams the key to any Phoenix triumph. His ability to keep Adams down to 10 points and six rebounds helped make the game close.
 "He's involved in everything," Lacey says of Adams. "Everything they usually run off the offense comes to him, and he's looking for cutters. So if you can take him out, it's got to make a difference."
 Alan Bristow, whose foul shot for San Antonio with four seconds remaining beat Philadelphia, realizes the Spurs can't take the Sixers too lightly with their power potential of Julius Erving and Darryl Dawkins.

"I'm sure they'll try something different up there," says Bristow. "We've got to keep the intensity, but if there can do it, I think the Spurs can. We've got to go up there and play just as hard as we did down here."
 Los Angeles must find a way to stop Gus Williams to get back into contention against Seattle. Williams matched his career high of 38 points Wednesday night after scoring 27 points in the Sonics' opening game victory.
 "It looked like Williams was playing with no one in front of him," was the criticism Los Angeles Coach Jerry West leveled against his Lakers.
 Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens just smiles and says of his new-found playoff start: "When Gus is in a streak like this, nobody can stop him by themselves."

Briefly in sports

Butler top NCAA scorer

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Lawrence Butler of Idaho State beat out Indiana State's Larry Bird for the national scoring title in NCAA Division I for the 1978-79 season.
 In final statistics released Thursday by the NCAA, Butler won the title with an average of 31.1 points a game while Bird, who led Indiana State to a second-place finish in the NCAA tournament, finished second with a 28.6 points per game average.
 Bird also finished fourth in the country in rebounding with an average of 14.9 per game.

CSI sells banquet tickets

TWIN FALLS — Bill Blair, head basketball coach at University of Colorado, will be the featured speaker at the CSI athletic banquet Thursday night.
 Golden Eagle Booster President Jim Beal said the banquet is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at Littletree Inn. He noted the banquet hall will seat 300 and 125 of those spots will be taken by athletes, coaches and guests.
 The remainder of the tickets will go on a first come, first-served basis.
 Those interested in purchasing tickets should contact Beal at Osco Drug any time during the day or any booster club member.
 Girl athletes will be honored in volleyball, basketball and track and girls athletes will be honored in cross country, basketball, baseball and track will be present to boys by coaches of the respective sports.

Meisterlin LPGA leader

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Debbie Meisterlin took the lead in the $100,000 Ladies Classic Thursday with 6-under-par 7 despite erratic putting not even hypnosis could cure.
 "I made some really sick putts," said the blond golfer from Del Mar, Calif. "I can't have shot 10-under if I was putting good enough. My only problem is putting."
 No one else even came close.
 Connie Challen, of Silver Springs, Fla., was four strokes back at 71, as was Debbie Massey of Bethlehem, Pa.
 Meisterlin made seven birdies — five of them in the first nine holes.

Richardson blasts Yankees

KEARNEY, Neb. (UPI) — Former New York Yankee standout Bobby Richardson says the front office was inept in its promises to return coach-manager Billy Martin as manager.
 "I don't think Billy will go back to Manager," Richardson said Wednesday, adding statements by Yankee management last year indicating Martin might return to the helm "were more of a crowd appeasement" move than anything else.
 Richardson — who is married and current Yankee Manager Bob Lemon — says he is "not" and "current" Yankee Coach Tom Post was good manager — the type who could "bring the team together."
 "I personally thought Billy was a good manager. He's the type of manager I'd like to play under," Richardson said.

Mayor says Jazz to stay

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Basketball fans have faithfully supported the New Orleans Jazz — one of the weakest teams in the National Basketball Association — and should not lose the club, Mayor Ernest Morial told NBA owners Thursday.
 In a telegram to the other 21 team owners, Morial said the Louisiana Superdome is a good home for the club. Jazz owners Sam Battistone and Larry Hatfield have announced they are considering a move to Los Angeles.
 The dome has been the scene of the five largest regular-season crowds in NBA history. The Jazz, holders of the worst record in the league this season at 26-56, averaged nearly 9,000 paid fans there during the season.

Mann grabs Tallahassee lead

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Bob Mann, a five-year pro who never has won an individual PGA title, fired an 8-under-par 64 Thursday for a one-stroke lead at the end of the first round of the 11th annual $100,000 Tallahassee Open.
 Tour rookie Lindy Miller posted a second-place 65 and veteran Chi Chi Rodriguez was in third position with a 66, two strokes behind Mann.
 Scheduled at 67 were Jim Knoll, Bob Murphy, Wayne Levi and Tim Simpson.
 Ed Sneed, who blew a five-stroke lead in the final round of the Masters tournament last Sunday, came in with a first-round 68 that tied him with nine others.

York's success stuns Lyle

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former New York Yankee pitcher Sparky Lyle said Thursday he didn't intend for a book about his old teammates to become a best seller — "it just sort of got out of hand."
 Lyle wrote about his 1978 season with the world champions and although he claims "Bryant Zoo" was written in jest, he doubts that.
 Lyle's own former Georgia Tech pitcher and ex-teammate Reggie Jackson view it as a slap.
 "I don't dislike Jackson as a person," Lyle says, "only as a ball player. Still, I wouldn't be reluctant to walk into the Yankee dressing room if the occasion presented itself."
 The 34-year-old Lyle, 1977 Cy Young Award winning pitcher in the American League, isn't sure of the reception from fans at Yankee Stadium Friday night when he returns there for the first time with his new team, but he wants to assure the Yankees he "here to kick some Yankee backside and either beat them or pick up a save."
 Lyle's own detractors and analysts in Lyle's book is about a May 1978 game against the New York Mets in which Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles is alleged to have said he'd throw the ball into the stands and let the runners come around if it would hasten the end of the game.
 Lyle says Nettles made the statement in jest, citing the infielder's fabulous reputation as a joker.

Fires a 69

Watson early T of C leader

Call. (UPI) — Tom Watson, who lost a sudden-death playoff to Fuzzy Zoeller in the Masters Sunday, bounced back Thursday with a 3-under-par 69 to grab the first-round lead in the $300,000 Tournament of Champions.
 The tour's leading money winner this year with $175,066, Watson finished the 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club layout with a one-shot lead over Ron Streck, a third-year pro from Tulsa, Okla., who missed eight cuts in 1978.
 Watson, 29, from Kansas City, Mo., birdied three of the first four holes and carded 33-36, winding up with five birdies and a pair of bogeys. One of his birdies came on a 20-foot putt on the par-4, 394-yard eighth hole.
 The PGA Player of the Year in 1977 and 1978 looked relaxed and rested despite his disappointing second-place finish at Augusta, Ga. in a three-way playoff with Zoeller and Ed Sneed.
 "It's like night and day," Watson said when asked to describe the difference in playing at Augusta and La Costa. "The pressure here is non-existent. I usually don't play well with no pressure but I had a very good round today."

 Watson said the secret to winning this tournament — and its first prize of $54,000 — was driving consistently all week.
 "I hit four shots in the rough off the tee today," he said. "Driving is even more important this year because the fairways are narrowed a little bit. The key to playing this course boils down to driving. Driving is paramount."
 Streck, 24, a former Tulsa University player, missed the cut at the Masters last week and is bidding to get unattached after capturing the San Antonio, Texas Open last September.
 "I was going to get married late last year," Streck said. "But my girl and I broke up and I didn't practice in November and December. I've played badly this year and I think it's because I should have practiced."

 Zoeller, who won at the Masters in his first start there, just his back in a practice round Wednesday and said it was still bothering him Thursday when he carded a disappointing 77. Defending champion Gary Player of South Africa shot 71 and Jack Nicklaus, a five-time T of C winner who finished one shot back of Zoeller, Watson and Sneed at the Masters, had an opening-round 72.
 Also dethroned at 71 with Player, two shots back of Watson, were Dr. Gil Morgan, the golfing optometrist from Oklahoma, Victor Regalado of Tijuana, Mexico, and Ray Floyd, who won the event at the Masters last year in Greensboro, N.C.
 Tied at par-72 with Nicklaus were Lee Trevino, Jack Newton, Bruce Lietzke, Lee Elder and Jerry Pate.
 The tournament has an elite field of 28 players who have won PGA-sponsored events during the past 12 months.

TF romps to track victories

POCATELLO, Twin Falls boys and girls gobbled up 23 of the 35 first place and swept to track wins over Highland and Blackfoot Thursday.
 "It was a very interesting day," Coach Jerry Kleinkopf said. "We fought off who was ready to compete in the mile of the week and who wasn't. It was a cold day and the wind had a bite in it. So anyone with snaffles or anyone who didn't want to run, we let sit out. We were making changes right up to the last moment. Overall, it was a very relaxing meet."
 It was "relaxing" because the bulk of the team is scheduled to run in the Boise relay Saturday afternoon and evening.
 The coach was pleased with the showing of his underclassman halfmilers, particularly sophomore Eric McManaman who turned in a 2:06.5 in his first try at the distance.
 Joe Stansell posted his best — 15.6 in winning the highs and Stuart Stary had a 41.3 in the intermediates.
 In the girls division, Cindy Crow again won twice and Tammy Asher stayed unbeaten at two miles. Laurie Kalken unhooked her best yet. In the discus at 118 feet and came back with a strong 41-9 in the shotput.
 Engelhart won both hurdles for Twin Falls to join Crow and Kalken in the double winners club.

Striking umps backed by Boston labor group

BOSTON (UPI) — Striking major-league umpires, backed by the 600,000-member Massachusetts Labor Council and sympathetic Boston police, announced Thursday they would picket all Boston Red Sox home games this season until their dispute is settled.
 "We are going to pick Fenway Park every day the Red Sox are in town until this thing is settled," said Richie Phillips, the attorney for the umpires. "I'm counting on the fans to support this strike and stay home. I think this action will have an adverse effect upon the Boston Red Sox."
 Phillips joined Boston Patrolmen's Association President Chester Broderick and council president William Cleary at a news conference to announce plans to picket Saturday's game between Boston and the Kansas City Royals. Broderick announced police would not cross the picket lines and Cleary said he hoped other unions would follow suit.
 "We will support the pickets at Fenway Park and we will ask our membership (600,000 across the state) to boycott all Red Sox games until this strike is settled," Cleary said.
 He said the council expected all union boycotters, technicians, ushers, concessionaires and ticket-takers not to cross the umpires' picket line. "If it all comes together, the game would have to be canceled," he said.
 Boston Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan said he would head up private security forces should the police honor the picket lines.
 "We are preparing to bring in security people to supplement the regulars should the police not cross the picket lines. It should not pose a problem, though I would expect the police to come in in the event of a disturbance in the ballpark. There have been no threats from other unions and we expect a full house," Sullivan said.

Sullivan said the Red Sox normally employ 60 to 65 private security people and about 18 policemen when attendance is about 20,000 — or 13,000 less than a sellout. He said more enforcement is added for bigger crowds.
 The umpires have been prohibited from picketing by a federal court injunction. They have termed the picket lines "international."
 Broderick said if there was a disturbance at the ballpark, the management could call 911, the police emergency number. He called the civilian security officers at the ballpark "Mickey Mouse" and "seabs."
 Phillips said he hoped the union support could cancel the game, but expected management would find a way to play it.
 "Baseball management has always told the umpires to take it easy as far as salary goes. Well, this year we'll leave it," Phillips said.
 Phillips also spoke about the groundswell of labor support around the country.
 "We've been invited by labor unions in many major-league cities to take out the strike. I'm meeting with labor officials in Detroit. Next we go to Chicago and St. Louis until we've been to all the major league towns," he said.
 "The umpires are overwhelmed by the labor support they are receiving," he said. "They don't seek to be millionaires. We hope this will bring major-league baseball management to the bargaining table."
 Lee MacPhail (president of the American League) said two weeks ago that the umpires would go broke and be back to work in a short time. Well, the umpires are already broke but they are stronger than they ever have been before and they feel they will win this strike," Phillips said.

Eagles return to Twin Falls with red-hot bats, nine wins

By RANDY FREY Times-News writer
 TWIN FALLS — Nothing makes College of Southern Idaho baseball coach Jim Walker smile more than a baseball team which can hit the ball harder than the Magic Valley winds blow.
 Walker loves the sound of the bat meeting the ball, and he loves to see "frozen rope" line drives pounded in every direction.
 He was all smiles last week when his Golden Eagles completed a three-state road trip with a 3-2 record, largely due to an awesome display of offensive power.
 And he hopes to keep smiling tonight when CSI entertains Treasure Valley Community College in a 6 p.m. game at Harmon Park.
 The game was originally scheduled for 8 p.m., but it was moved up due to the cold weather.
 It will be the eighth meeting of the season for the two teams, CSI holding a 6-1 edge in the series. The "Eagles" will square off again Saturday in a double-header beginning at 1 p.m.
 "They have just come back from a good road trip, so I expect a real battle," Walker said. "We have a big edge in the series, but any time you play a team that many times it is scary."
 Walker expects TVCC to come with pitcher Scott Long in the opener, saying he has been effective against the Eagles in the past. CSI beat Long for the first time in two years earlier in the season.
 Rich Kellogg will start for CSI, having impressed Walker with a six-hitter against Orange Coast in the Wendell Pickens Easter Tournament in Southern California.
 The Eagles finished with a 2-2 record in the tournament, and Walker said he received several compliments about his team.

 "The kids got looked at," he said. "I've had several calls from some California schools, so they must have liked what they saw."
 What they saw was a lot of hitting, something not normally seen in the Golden State.
 "Those California teams have great pitching, great defense and they like to chip away with bunting and running," Walker said. "I like to hit the ball."
 But Walker said his Eagles have been hitting the ball a little to much in recent games, and he plans to stress execution in the final weeks of the season.
 "You live and die by the long ball," he said. "We have got to get our act together and start executing the little things. I plan to take some more gambles on the bases and get the kids back in the philosophy of pecking away."
 Walker hopes to come back with pitchers Brian Lunden and Leo Cline Saturday, hoping to get complete games. He has lost three pitchers with injuries.
 Freshman Darryl Banks was admitted to a Reno hospital Sunday, still suffering from tonsillitis. Walker said he has not heard from Banks all week, and he said one of his players told him the hard-throwing right-hander had to have his tonsils removed.
 Pitcher Rick Eckelberry is out for the season with tendinitis in his throwing arm, and hurler Tim Brennan is out as well. Infielder Robbie Grant broke his finger on the road Friday and will be lost for the remainder of the season as well.
 After the long road trip, Walker gave his team the entire week off. He said he hasn't seen the team since Sunday, saying they have reached a time of the year where they need some time off.

Lakers win coin flip, first draft pick

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Bulls General Manager Rod Thorn expressed disappointment Thursday about losing the coin flip with the Los Angeles Lakers for the NBA's top college draft pick.

Thorn said, "I'm disappointed, but there are seven top flight players in this year's draft."

"The first choice obviously is a better position and I think the Lakers are after Ervin 'Magic' Johnson. It depends on whether he comes out to declare his hardship."

Johnson, the most valuable player in this year's NCAA playoffs, has played two years for Michigan State and has until May 11 to declare whether he will give up his amateur status.

"I'm not certain who we would draft," Thorn said. "There are many ways to go and we may even trade our choice."

When Thorn was asked whether he thought the Boston Celtics would sign Larry Bird of Indiana State, who was picked by Boston as its first choice in last year's draft, he replied: "I believe it's 75-to-25 they will sign him. We would be interested in trading for him. I think what it would take is two starters and a future draft choice."

Boston must sign Bird within 24 hours of this year's June 25 draft or lose signing rights to him.

Thorn indicated nothing has been done within the past week about bringing in a coach for the Bulls.

Thorn said he would have called heads anyway, despite a poll of 3,300 Bulls' fans last week which indicated that 1,898 fans were in favor of calling heads.

Tails has been the winner 10 times in the last 11 flips. Ironically, the last time "heads" came up was in 1976, when Atlanta won the choice over the Bulls. The Hawks picked John Lucas and Chicago chose Scott May of Indiana.

Red's Seaver stops Braves on two hits

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ken Griffey and George Foster hit homers and Tom Seaver pitched a two-hitter Thursday night, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 2-0 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

The victory was the second against two losses for Seaver, who struck out five and walked three while turning in his second complete game in the season and eighth shutout of his glittering 13-year career.

Griffey's homer, his first of the season, came in the third and the Cardinals tied it in the fourth. Keith Hernandez singled, stole second and advanced to third on Barry Foote's throwing error. Hank Aaron's home run in the fifth gave the Cardinals a 2-0 lead.

Seaver's two-hitter was his best since his first major league start in 1967. He struck out 11 and walked three in seven innings.

Minico tops Poky, hosts Burley today

RUPERT — The Minico Spartans, after seeing a five-run lead cut to one, came up with two decisive tallies in the sixth inning Thursday and nipped the Pocatello Indians 9-7.

The Spartans built up a 7-2 lead over the Indians during the fifth inning and then watched Thompson nullify most of that with a grand slam homer in the sixth inning.

Minico then led it with two runs in the bottom of the frame, making DeBell's solo homer in the seventh for Pocatello meaningless to the final outcome.

Trent Ferrin went the distance for Minico, yielding 11 hits but besting Pocatello's Dan Bailey. Bailey allowed nine hits to Minico and Pocatello backed him with errorless defense.

After the teams traded single runs in the first, Minico took the lead when John Patton lived on a dropped third strike. Ron Barras doubled and Kevin Dean picked up two RBIs with a hit and Scott Maggard drove in the third run.

In the fifth, two errors and a walk set up two RBIs for Ferrin's single and Seodall drove in another.

Patton got the Spartans going in the decisive sixth when he led off with a triple. After Barras walked and stole second, Minico went for a double suicide squeeze bunt — dropped by Dean — and both runners scored.

Minico will entertain Burley in a single game Friday afternoon.

Airlines to swarm on Sun Valley as Key finds buyer

HAILEY — Key Airlines, which was to abandon its passenger flying business this month, will continue operations under new ownership. Johns-Manville Corp. has reached an agreement in principle for the sale of the airline, one of its subsidiaries. According to Key Airlines Manager Brent Wiseman, Rocky Mountain Helicopters of Provo, Utah, will buy the assets of the company, and take over operations May 1. "Key plans to continue scheduled service on all our routes we are currently operating, without any interruption at all," Wiseman said. The selling price was not disclosed. With Key continuing its flights, the Sun Valley area will soon have three airlines providing service. Mountain West Airlines, utilizing commuter-type aircraft, smaller than Key's 50-passenger Convair 440s, added Halley to its schedule in March. In May, Gem State Airlines, based in Hayden Lake, Idaho, will also begin service. When asked if he feels three airlines might exceed passenger demand, Wiseman said, "I think the communities up there and travelers going in and out will certainly have an abundance of schedules and equipment to choose from, and I think that will be good for the area." Friedman Airport Manager, Mont Stocking's answer was, "I think it's going to be interesting, to say the least." Earlier this year, Key announced it would cease all regularly scheduled passenger service in May due to financial losses. Based in Salt Lake City, Key Airlines provides connections to Boise and Sun Valley. Currently Key maintains four flights daily to Friedman Memorial Airport in Halley, including an arrival and departure linked to Salt Lake City, a daily departing and outgoing flight to Boise. "We are in a constant state of change on flight schedules, trying to reflect the activity of the Sun Valley area. For example, during the ski season, we have 18 flights scheduled on Saturday," Wiseman said. Gem State is adding a fourth 18-passenger Swearingen Metro 2 to its fleet, and will begin operations in May, once refurbishing work is completed. Gem State also plans to add 50-passenger Convair 580s to the line in June, which will also serve Sun Valley.

Judge chosen

TWIN FALLS — Michael R. Redman, 33, a Twin Falls attorney since July of 1975, was named Thursday afternoon as the new magistrate in Twin Falls County. Phillip Becker, Gooding County magistrate and chairman of the 5th Judicial District, announced the appointment Thursday afternoon.

He said Redman was selected from a field of six candidates during the magistrate commission which began in Twin Falls at 10 a.m. Thursday. Seven individuals had originally expressed an interest in the appointment but one of the men, Ronald Howen of Boise, withdrew. His application prior to the Thursday meeting of the commission.

Redman will take office June 1, succeeding Paul Smith who submitted his resignation to the Twin Falls County commissioners and the magistrate commission a month ago.

Redman graduated from law school at the University of Cincinnati and did undergraduate work there and at the now nonexistent Mackinac College in Michigan. He and his wife, Vera, are natives of Dayton, Ohio. "We came to Twin Falls with no special ties here. We were looking for a better place to make our home and rear a family than Dayton. We had been looking for a long time when we came here and decided we liked Twin Falls," Redman said.

The Redmans are the parents of three daughters ranging in age from 3 months to 5 years. Redman joined the law firm of Walker and Kennedy in July of 1975 and in 1977 opened his own office here.

"I decided to apply for the magistrate position because I feel it will allow me an opportunity to make use of a lot of experience and education that I am not using as a lawyer. It offers a broader base approach to my profession and gives me an opportunity to serve a bigger sphere of the people than a client to lawyer relationship," Redman said.

He said he is especially interested in work with juveniles which is part of the magistrate duties. He was part of the Up With People program for many years, both as a participant and as an advisor, and has worked with the youth group of the Methodist church since coming to Twin Falls.

"I have some things I would like to see done in magistrate court, such as streamlining the pretrial procedures to speed up the court scheduling. I say this, however, as an inexperienced individual, since sometimes what looks good on paper and sounds good doesn't work out in reality," the new magistrate said. Redman said he plans to work with the two other lawyer magistrates during the coming month to familiarize himself with procedure. He said he is looking forward to working with both Daniel Meehl and Mel Edwards. He will also be completing pending cases and closing out his office in preparation for the new job. Others whose applications were considered by the commission were Carol Alired, a Twin Falls teacher who applied as a lay magistrate and attorney, Henry Rutter and Maurice Ellsworth, both of Halley; Tom Gray of Twin Falls and Michael Kinsela of Boise.

Attorney Michael Redman was chosen from among six applicants

Region 4 rejects state ranking plan

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Region 4 Development Association Advisory Board Thursday turned a cold shoulder to a proposal for a state plan to set priorities for federal grants to local governments.

The advisory board adopted a resolution, which called for keeping priority setting with the state, but the establishment of a state plan, which appeared to propose to do this for the local agencies.

Karl Tueller, of the state planning office, told the group the state has been asked by the Farmers Home Administration and by many other federal funding groups including the Economic Development Administration. The purpose would be to provide information to help the agencies determine which local community projects should be funded, on a basis of need and importance in the over-state picture.

He said his office is attempting to meet these requests but wishes to establish a statewide plan, which would help provide information to the state planning office.

Colin County commissioners, made the motion adopted by the group. He said he feels this is the whole function of groups such as the Regional Development Association and this is what the advisory board and the paid staff of Region 4 have been doing. He said he cannot see turning the responsibility over to the state.

Several other board members said they could not understand Tueller's proposal or find any major benefit from it.

Tueller said this is the prerogative of regional groups and his office will continue to work with the Region 4 staff but added he feels there is a need for a statewide coordination of such a planning system. He said Region 4 is doing a good job and his only hope is to help them continue and to assist areas where less local planning is available.

In other business, the region 4 board reviewed federal 701 planning and study funds available for this year and applications from member cities and counties.

On recommendation from board member Art Rattburn, the board voted to divide the $11,625 available this year, giving five areas a share. The board allocated $4,625 to Burley and Cassia County for a study of consolidating facilities and services for both city and county agencies.

Rattburn said this is a pilot type study. He said the study will be done by Burley and Cassia County but can guide other areas in similar consolidations. J. Weldon Beck of Cassia County said the total need for such a study is estimated at $9,000.

Because priority went to Lincoln County for $2,000 to be used in bringing zoning ordinance into line with a county land use plan already in effect, Jerome county was given priority for $2,000 for a study of Burley and Gooding County.

and Kelowna were allocated $1,500 each for similar completion work on comprehensive land use planning. Anita Lemmon, CEPA program coordinator, announced the summer youth work program is now available with $392,000 available. She asked board members to apply for youth workers as work is now being selected and said 305 youth ages 14 to 21 participated in last year's program and as many should be available this year.

Marshall Everheart, mayor of Jerome, was seated on the board to represent his city.

$670,000 damage suit filed

TWIN FALLS — Injuries suffered by a Twin Falls man in a traffic accident last October have resulted in a $670,000 damage suit.

Robert and Peggy Taylor of Twin Falls have brought suit against Ted Wray, Hartline and Michael Kent Cameron.

The complaint filed in 5th Judicial District Court alleges Taylor suffered permanent injuries when a vehicle in Wray's control, driven by Taylor, was rammed from behind Oct. 29, 1978, on Blue Lakes Boulevard North in Twin Falls.

The complaint says Taylor was riding in a small car driven by Cameron which was traveling north but was in the process of turning left on Cameron Avenue when another vehicle, driven by Hartline, crashed into the rear of the Cameron vehicle.

Taylor charges negligence on the part of both drivers. He asks the court to award him $100,000 exemplary and punitive damages, $300,000 medical expenses, $300,000 for future medical costs, $300,000 for past and future pain and mental anguish, $200,000 for loss of enjoyment of life, $100,000 for permanent physical impairment and $50,000 for loss of consortium.

The plaintiffs say Taylor suffered neck and back injuries which have left him permanently impaired. They are represented by the law firm of Hepworth, Nungester and Felton.

750 expected to walk, run for March of Dimes Saturday

TWIN FALLS — An estimated 750 walkers and runners in Twin Falls will head out for a 20-mile route Saturday morning to help raise money for the March of Dimes. Rick Carrio, Twin Falls walkathon chairman, said their efforts should bring in between $20,000 and $25,000 for the charity.

The event is open to everyone regardless of age, and the walkers who obtain $50 or more in pledges will be eligible for prizes. Carrio said walkers will register at the city park on Shoshone Street beginning at 9 a.m. and will begin their walk at 10 a.m.

"We have changed the route a little this year to avoid traffic problems," Carrio said, "but essentially it will follow the same general direction as in the past." The participants will travel behind the city fire engine to Lynwood Shopping Center, and will have police escorts to Ace Hansen's auto agency on Blue Lakes Boulevard North. From there they go east on Pole Line road one mile, then south to Falls Avenue and east again to one mile past the Twin Falls park road. Then walkers head back to Kimberly Road, to Blue Lakes Boulevard and then to McDonald's where the walk ends.

Carrio said city, county and state police will assist as will the Idaho National Guard members.

Check points will be set up along the route with National Guardsmen giving out refreshments donated by local merchants and business firms. The Magic Valley Chapter of Amateur Radio Operators will furnish communications throughout the route and with the help of the National Guardsmen will provide "push-out cars" to pick up those who do not finish the full 20 miles. They will also have first aid supplies available to help blistered feet and meet other emergencies.

Everyone who finishes the walk gets a "Big Mac" and a drink as the guest of Bill Kyle of McDonald's. He will also serve a regular burger, and small drink to everyone who goes 13 miles or more. Everyone who enters with $50 or more in pledges will have a chance at the many prizes and each additional $50 in pledges will give the walkers an additional chance.

The prizes include a entire stereo sound system valued at more than $1,000, donated by Ron Victor of Sound Limited; a free dinner from Skipper's for everyone who finishes the 20 miles; T-shirts from KLLX radio; a Polaroid camera from Penny Wine Drugs; a whistle switch from Mel Quale; a $25 gift certificate from Pay Less Drug; hiking boots, running shoes and jogging suit from Newton's; multiband radio from the left side of the roads facing traffic except on Kimberly road where they should use the right side of the highway.

Carrio said the committee is urging all walkers and runners to stay on the left side of the roads facing traffic except on Kimberly road where they should use the right side of the highway.

He estimated the first runners will be coming in by around 11 a.m. to noon and walkers will continue to finish up to 4 p.m.

Last year, with the jogathon for tennis courts held just a week ahead of the March of Dimes event, about 600 walkers participated. This year, with no conflicting events and a walkathon for the same purpose in Jerome County, Carrio said he hopes to have about 750 participants. He are still stored in the Hancy warehouse at the time the suit was filed last year and declared they had offered $10 per hundred weight but the plaintiffs had declined to sell the peas, saying they wanted $35 per hundred weight.

Judge James M. Cunningham ruled against the defendant, ordering the firm to pay the remainder owed on the 1977 crop and to pay 8 percent interest for a total of $9,833.75.

The plaintiffs said they planted 35 acres of Alaska variety peas for Hancy Seed Co. The defendant was to pay 8.25 cents per pound for 40 percent of the seed when delivered in the fall of 1977 and the remaining 60 percent was to be paid for at market prices.

The Chapmans said they received only $1,000 from the defendant and were owed a total of $11,936. The plaintiffs asked the court to order the defendant to pay $9,236.16 plus interest and other costs.

The defendants stated the peas

Court orders seed company to pay Home burglarized

TWIN FALLS — A 5th Judicial District Court judge has ordered Hancy Seed Co. of Twin Falls to pay two Canyon County farmers $9,833.75 allegedly owed the farmers on a 1977 pea crop.

John and David Chapman brought suit against Hancy Seed Co. of Twin Falls charging the firm had failed to pay for $2,890 pounds of peas which the farmers raised under a contract with the Twin Falls firm.

Home burglarized

JEROME — A Jerome home was burglarized Wednesday morning.

Robert Taylor, 503 N. Fir St., reported several rifles, several hundred dollars in cash and some hunting equipment were stolen from his home after someone kicked in a door and ransacked the house. No one was home at the time.

Idaho 'too poor' to curb speeding

BY MARK SHENEFELT
BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans plans to announce a voluntary energy conservation program for Idaho next week, but he says the state right now is too poor to punish more highway speeders.

The governor says Idaho, because of the 1 percent property tax initiative, cannot declare war on breakers of the 55 mph limit as Utah Gov. Scott Matheson did earlier this week by hiring 18 more state troopers to enforce it.

Matheson also ordered the Utah Highway Patrol to stop issuing warning tickets — even for minor violations of the 55 limit — and urge Utahns to form car pools, drive less and take vacations within the state.

Gov. Evans' press aide, confirmed Thursday that the chief executive will announce on Wednesday a series of voluntary steps to curb energy consumption in the state.

Leroy said general ideas still are being discussed and Evans has not decided on what recommendations he will make.

Chris Smith of the state Office of Energy said Thursday his office is preparing a list of possible measures which Evans will review in the next few days.

"We're doing a thorough review of a whole range of options," Smith said.

Areas which most likely will be included in Evans' plan, Smith said, are steps to cut gasoline usage and measures that would reduce the use of energy in home, public and industrial heating.

Leroy said the governor has not made up his mind what areas will be emphasized in the conservation plan, while Smith said the largest concern right now is seeing there is enough energy to get the agricultural growing season off to a good start.

"You don't prescribe major surgery for a hangnail," Smith added, saying Idaho now is experiencing only minor "spot shortages" of energy.

"So far things have been very localized and I have not seen evidence that any users are going without products," Smith said. "Some supply systems are experiencing different degrees of difficulty in supplying different products."

"We are looking very closely at the beginning of the agricultural season. It is not one of those things that can wait."

Leroy said a tight money situation in state government is enduring because the 1 percent measure is preventing Evans from authorizing large amounts of spending to cut energy.

"At this point this is about all we can do with the money available," Leroy said. "I don't foresee an expansion of actions by the state police. We will put the emphasis (on energy conservation) in other areas."

The state police force has 10 officers, 5 stationed in Boise and 5 in Pocatello, whose prime responsibility is enforcing highway speed limits.

Honolulu gas prices shatter $1 barrier, set upward pace

By United Press International
Gasoline has broken the $1 barrier in Honolulu, where a full service station is charging $1.02 a gallon, premium leaded — the highest pump price in the nation, UPI's weekly Gas Watch survey showed Thursday.

The H & C Texaco station in Honolulu is using a 90-page booklet issued by the state to compute the $1.02 a gallon price since its pumps are calibrated to compute only up to a three-digit limit of 99.9 cents. A car wash comes with the $1-plus gasoline.

At the other end of the price spectrum, a pump-it-yourself station in Dallas had the best bargain anywhere of 65.5 cents for regular unleaded gasoline.

A spot check of service stations around the country found gasoline prices had jumped in the past week by 5 cents a gallon in northern Indiana, 4 cents in Florida's Miami area, 3 cents in Louisiana, 2.5 cents in Rhode Island, 2 cents in Utah and New York, and more than a penny in Iowa.

Consumer complaints of price gouging escalated, and the Energy Department slapped subpoenas on two Manhattan service stations suspected of overcharging at the pump.

In Nebraska, however, the price of regular unleaded dropped by four-tenths of a cent in the last week — the only state in the survey to report a let-up at the pump.

Full-service prices for regular leaded gasoline ranged this week from a low of 70.9 cents a gallon at a small grocery store in Des Moines, Iowa, to 95.9 cents in Honolulu.

Regular leaded could be found at self-service outlets for as little as 65.5 at the Dallas station with the cheapest price in the nation and as much as 83.9 cents a gallon in San Francisco.

Iowa also had the unbeatable buy of 74.9 cents a gallon for regular unleaded at a full-service station around the state, while Honolulu had the steepest full-service price for the same grade at 99.9 cents a gallon.

Motorists were able to buy regular unleaded for only 68.5 cents this week at a self-service station in Dallas, but some drivers in San Francisco paid a nationwide high of 87.9 cents a gallon — after pumping it themselves.

Premium leaded gasoline sold for only 78 cents at a full-service station in Baltimore — a far cry from $1.02 for the same grade in Honolulu.

Dallas grabbed the spotlight again with the lowest self-

Hosos Aesentista high priced celebrity service price of 71.9 cents for premium leaded. But premium leaded went for 90 cents at full-service outlets in Chicago.

Several full-service stations in South and North Dakota offered premium unleaded at 82.9 cents a gallon. Boston and New York tied with the highest full-service price of 99.9 cents a gallon.

Some stations in San Francisco and Florida are shutting down their self-service pumps to prevent motorists from guzzling them right out of business, the survey said.

Lines of five and six cars deep formed this week at some self-service pumps in Indiana and 11 independent discount service stations in St. Louis, Mo., closed temporarily because of gasoline shortages.

Panel seeks recall of hairdryers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission staff, citing public concern about the possible health hazards of hairdryers containing asbestos, Thursday asked the industry to voluntarily recall millions of dryers.

The panel's staff also asked major hairdryer makers to issue warnings about the situation prompted by the disclosure that the dryers contain asbestos, which has been identified as a cause of cancer when inhaled in sufficient quantities.

The request will also contain notice the Federal Trade Commission staff has decided future advertising for hairdryers with asbestos may be unfair and deceptive unless it explains there is a "controversy" over their use.

The CPSC is sending out letters to about 10 manufacturers asking them to take voluntary action, including public notice to consumers and recall where necessary. The letters also tell the companies the CPSC could such action.

The panel has not determined to what extent such dryers are health hazards. But it has listed more than 100 hand-held dryers which used asbestos as part of their construction and which might be hazardous if the mineral is blown into the user's face.

The staff will also ask the CPSC to launch an investigation of 50 companies which make commercial hairdryers. A union representing barbers and beauticians had asked for such a "probe" and the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health have already launched a similar investigation.

Striking haulers hurt steel plants

By United Press International
Striking steel haulers have forced an about-face by Teamster Union leaders on endorsing a work stoppage which will mean the layoffs of at least 5,000 steelworkers by next week.

Teamster officials, who agreed to a master freight contract with the trucking industry last week, had ordered the striking steel haulers back to their jobs.

However, local officials in Ohio and Pennsylvania were notified Thursday that the union had reversed its stand and endorsed the strike.

Republic Steel Corp., headquartered in Cleveland, Thursday announced it began shutting down finishing mills in northeastern Ohio, laying off hundreds of workers.

Social Security extension logical

(Last of four columns)

More than 107 million American workers pay Social Security taxes within a single year.

That's the vast majority of us. But specifically excluded by law are U.S. senators and congressmen, their staffs, and about 1/4 million federal Social Security employees not covered in a larger group of about 3.7 million state and local government employees, most of whom could be covered at the state's option.

More than 70 percent, or about 9 million of the 12.4 million state and local government employees, have been brought under Social Security. Of those covered, 72 percent are covered under their own state or local retirement system as well.

This is a point that federal employees make in defending their retirement system against charges that it is too generous. SS retirement benefits, they note, are designed as a floor of protection — a base on which other forms of protection, such as an employer-retirement pension, can be built. The Civil Service Retirement System was set up before Social Security employees were designed to serve as a complete pension program.

This, federal employees resisted when Congress in the 1950s began extending Social Security coverage. They had been paying 7 percent of their entire salaries into the Social Security fund for health benefits, and they feared that some benefits might be scaled back while Social Security taxes were slapped on them, too.

The military retirement system and Social Security were never added together, and there were no similar problems.

When the coverage proposal was revived during the financial troubles of the Social Security system in 1974, federal employees resisted being added to the program, "to ball out the program."

Actually, the concept of Social Security as the basic system for all categories of workers makes a lot of sense. The lack of coordination between civil service and SS systems creates gaps and inequities and critically affects the protection of workers who move back and forth between civil service and jobs in private industry, as many do. If you go to work for the federal government, you do not have survivors protection until you have been on the job for at least five years. Under SS, the children of a young worker and the worker's surviving widow or widower, caring for the children are eligible for benefits if the worker had only a year and a half of SS credits out of the three-year vesting death.

If SS were extended to public employees, it also would wipe out any chance of civil service retirement qualifying for top-heavy retirement benefits — civil service benefits plus Social Security-earned moonlighting in a job covered by SS or through a pension plan.

Bad play blows slam game

Scoreboard showing North and South scores for a bridge game.

South's play had been really costly. He was in the diamond, drew trump and led a club toward dummy. West played the seven and East started an ace with the eight. Back to his hand with a second diamond and a second club. East played low again and South was back in dummy with no way to get to his hand to lead the third club.

Charlotte Crockett makes a living and a life on her ranch

HANSEN — The pickup truck, loaded with 100-pound bales of hay, rolled unsteadily across the pasture, trailed by a herd of hungry cows.

Charlotte Crockett slowed the truck to 5 miles an hour, shifted it into automatic drive and, while it kept rolling, jumped out. Using a small axe to break the plastic twine around the bales, she began knocking blocks of hay off the truck onto the pasture for the cattle.

Diving suddenly across the truck bed she grabbed the last bale and climbed back in the truck just in time to steer away from a creek.

She drove back to her house, dumped two buckets of grain into the trough where three horses were feeding, scattered more grain in the hen house and went into the kitchen to wait for her helper, Bill Brockman, to arrive. Half the day's feeding was finished on Charlotte Crockett's 200-head cattle ranch.

Charlotte has managed the ranch, sunk between the hills of Rock Creek Canyon 10 miles from the nearest town, Hansen, for 17 years. She is 63 years old, a widow and a grandmother of 11, who has lived around Hansen all her life.

Charlotte started running her own ranch in 1962, when financial problems forced her husband to cut his land and cattle holdings and leave the ranch to work as a truck driver. After he died in 1964 she stayed with the ranch and, over time, rebuilt the herd from 40 head to today's 200.

Bill Brockman, a neighbor, helps Charlotte feed the herd she keeps at a second ranch four miles up the road.

"Bill is a real good friend," Charlotte said.

Brockman ranches down the road, works for Charlotte for an hourly wage and sharecrops 15 acres of hay on her land. He also comes over for branding and cattle roundups. When feeding the second herd, Charlotte drives while Bill and his son Jim pitch hay.

When money is tight, as it has been in recent years, Charlotte lets her paid workers go and depends on friends to help run the ranch. Fred Tattersall used to drive over from Eden to help out, and her daughter and son-in-law come from Blackfoot during branding.

Charlotte lives alone in a house that was once the ranch house for the Crockett family property. Today, it is surrounded by the newer ranches of other Crockett descendants.

Cattle are not the only ones, of course, who have to eat. Charlotte's daughter and son-in-law and their family of four came to town this year to help with branding, and stayed for four days.

So the day before they arrived Charlotte broke away between feeding and the afternoon roundup to work in the kitchen. She baked three pie crusts, boiled potatoes for a bushel of salad and made applesauce.

There was some unexpected time left over.

She used the time to sip tea, read from a folder filled with a homemade collection of poetry given to her by a friend, watch a pair of eagles ride a thermal over the cliff behind the house and put out apples for the squirrels that live in two oak trees by the back door. Charlotte has been watching those eagles for a couple of years. They nest by a swimming hole by the cliff, where they are viewable only through binoculars.

Three bird guides and a wildflower identification book rest on the counter in Charlotte's dining room. Those books show more wear than any of the farm literature piled up on the coffee table.

Trees have been planted around the boundaries of the house, including a two walls of mature spruce, a cross-bred weeping willow and white birch in the front yard. In back is a small orchard and garden, mostly filled with flowers.

Next to the garden are the hen house and the horse corral. Charlotte sells the eggs in town. She keeps three horses for roundups on the ranch.

Bill and Jim drove back up the driveway at 1:30 p.m. Charlotte powdered her nose and put chapstick on her lips.

"Come on, fellas, I've got lots of work to do. What do you say we get moving?"

Charlotte drove over to the roundup site with two high school students who work for her in their free time.

"I told Bill to unload a couple of horses here," she said as the truck approached a bend in the road, "but I don't know if he'll mind me."

The truck appeared on the straight away. Charlotte pulled over and directed the two high school cowboys to ride into a draw to look for cattle and divided everyone else among the trails leading further into the canyon.

Relatives and friends make branding a special occasion

Sitting straight-backed in the saddle, with the reins in one hand and the other thumb hooked in the rear pocket of her jeans, Charlotte rode down a cliffside trail, where a herd of deer were roaming across a ridge above.

She rode two miles into the canyon to a spot where she had a hunch she'd find some cattle — and sure enough, about six cows were grazing there. Making a semi-circle around them, she chased them back to the corral to be held until branding.

Thursday night one of the cowboys found two calves sick. One died by nightfall. They were the two largest calves, each worth about $250, so Charlotte decided it was worth having a vet come out to the ranch to try to save the second. An autopsy performed on the dead calf failed to find the cause of death, so the second calf was given a blood transfusion as a last resort. It died that afternoon.

Any rancher would hate to lose two good calves right now. Like most others, Charlotte hopes to move her operation into the black for the first time in a long while. It's the first year she hasn't had to borrow money, and she also could afford to replace her pickup. Even though she has quadrupled her herd in 15 years, she had to sell off two tractors and several haying machines to pay operating expenses. She keeps old-style books in which each entry is hand-scripted as the bills come in. Feed, at $22,000 a year, is the major ranch expense.

Charlotte worked in town once before she got married, as a clerk in a five and 10 cent store. She didn't like working inside and she hated having a boss.

"It wasn't for me," she says. She has such a passion for being outdoors that she sleeps on an open porch, only retreating to the bedroom when the temperature goes far below zero or when the bugs drive her inside.

Branding is one job Charlotte cites when she talks about the "hard" part of running a ranch. During branding, she organized a work crew of 10, each individual assigned to rope, tag ears, give shots or clip horns. Only after the calf was thoroughly worked over through those processes did Charlotte step in to brand it.

Armed with the searing iron, she balanced her right foot on the calf's thigh and pressed the brand into it. The calf bellowed and lurched away from the brand in pain, but it stayed beneath that foot.

Charlotte branded 110 calves the first day, and 50 more on Saturday. The work took all of Friday and most of Saturday. On Sunday Charlotte teaches a Bible study class for young married couples at the Kimberley Christian Church.

Not all the students may know whether the kind, grandmotherly teacher has come in from a week of housework and embroidery or a night of pulling a problem calf from its mother's womb. Running a ranch is a living to Charlotte Crockett. Most ranchers would that's the reason they're in it.

Charlotte takes time out from branding to play with granddaughter, Mindy

Omlet flip started chef on his career

KETCHUM — How does the owner and chef of a fine continental cuisine restaurant learn the secrets that win over even the "finest-gourmet's" palate?

For Russ Armstrong, one of three judges in the April 7 Times-News Cookoff, it all began when he was a kid growing up in New York City. He passed by chance into a restaurant window. There he saw a breakfast cook flipping a beautiful omelet, and he had the first premonition of his life's calling.

"My first recollection of any interest in cooking," says Armstrong, a co-owner of Le Club restaurant in Ketchum, "is watching this guy flip an omelet and I remember being tantalized by that."

Armstrong's path from New York City to Ketchum was a long and winding road with stops at the world-famous Waldorf-Astoria, the Los Angeles Country Club, and other restaurants from New Jersey to Montana.

But now, at the age of 32, his restaurant is one of the finest in Ketchum and Sun Valley and has been featured in gourmet food magazines like Bon Appetite and Gourmet.

This classic story of success starts in New York City. After his revelation in the breakfast-restaurant window, Armstrong remembers when he was 14 and his father bought a restaurant. He spent many hours "hanging around" the kitchen, where one of the cooks allowed the young chef-to-be to help with the day's preparations. Several years later, he attended a career guidance session at his high school and his counselors sent him to the Molly Pitcher Hotel in Red Bank, N.J. "This was when he decided he wanted to go to hotel and restaurant school.

After applying to schools in Europe, a lucky break occurred for the young Armstrong. His brother, who was working as a bus boy in New York's famous Waldorf restaurant, introduced Russ to the restaurant's head chef. The introduction resulted in a four-year apprenticeship at the Waldorf.

After four years, though, Armstrong says "I decided I'd really missed the boat by not going to college." He enrolled at Fairleigh Dickinson College in New Jersey, but well before graduating he regained his ambition to be a chef.

"I realized then cooking is my life," he recalls.

A long line of jobs followed which took him to restaurants in New Jersey, Los Angeles, Missoula, Mont., Boise and finally Sun Valley. Armstrong worked for five years for the Sun Valley Co. — first as the chef of the Challenger Inn, then as chef at the Lodge and finally as director of the company's food and beverage division.

In August 1977, Armstrong and Mike Harder, the manager of the Sun Valley Duchin Room, left the company to start their own restaurant in Ketchum. The result, Le Club serves continental cuisine, specializing in French, Austrian and German dishes.

Super walk Saturday

TWIN FALLS — The 1979 March of Dimes Super Walk will begin Saturday at 8 a.m. from the Twin Falls City Park, according to Rick Carrico, Twin Falls chairman.

Walkers will walk 20 miles to help prevent birth defects, with each walker asking for pledges per mile. After the walk they will collect their pledges according to the miles completed.

Prizes donated from local merchants include a Kenwood Stereo System valued at over $1,000 from The Sound Co.; two $100 cash awards from Quality Roofers to the boy and girl ages 1 to 12 who collect the most money; hiking boots, jogging shoes and suit from Newton's; a pizza and a pitcher of Pepsi to all walkers from The Grizzly Bear; a multiban radio from Radio Shack; gift certificates from Payless Drug and Olson's; a whistle switch from Mel Quale's Electronics; a free dinner to all walkers from Skippers; a Polaroid Camera from Penny Wise Drug; and a Big Mac to all finishers and a regular hamburger to all who go 13 miles from MacDonald's.

Open house set Sunday

The family and friends of William S. "Bill" Saxton announce an open house in honor of his 87th birthday from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday, April 22, at the YFCA in Twin Falls.

Mr. Saxton was born in Upton, Utah, on April 16, 1892. He and his wife, Kathleen, have been residents of the Idaho area, farming in Declo, Buhl, Twin Falls and Kimberly. Mrs. Saxton died Feb. 23, 1966.

He retired from farming in 1957. He has since lived on Locust Street in Kimberly. Attending the open house will be his eight children and a brother. The family requests no gifts.

Reelers to dance

RUPERT — The River Reeler Square Dance Club will hold a dance Saturday at the IOOF Hall in Rupert. The dance will coincide with the Rupert High School graduation night. Caller will be Gerald Hurst.

Dear Abby

$400 worth of Easter clothes proved an expensive lesson

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© by The Chicago Tribune

New York News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I met this good-looking girl who waits on tables in a place near where I work. She came on like a sweet country kid who worked hard for a living and wouldn't let a guy get to first base with her, which I liked.

Well, I took her home from work a couple of times, and all she'd give me was a goodnight kiss at her door.

I asked her what she wanted for Easter and she gave me a list of clothes to buy and where to buy them. I went around and bought all the things she wanted, which set me back $400.

After I gave her these gifts, I asked her how about driving to Palm Springs for the weekend. She said nothing doing — she wasn't "that kind" of a girl.

She already wore the clothes I gave her, so what do I do now? After all, $400 bucks ain't cheap.

have enough to eat all winter. Call it a $400 lesson.

DEAR ABBY: Greg and I have been married for seven years and have two children. I noticed he was rather nervous and jumpy lately, but I thought maybe he'd been putting in too much overtime at work. He finally broke down and confessed that he had been carrying on with a friend of mine. (She's also married.) I was in shock!

He claims she threw herself at him and he was only human, so I should try to forgive and forget because it's all over now. I've honestly tried, but do you think I should be expected to socialize with this woman and her husband as though nothing had ever happened between her and my husband?

I told Greg I didn't care to socialize with this woman anymore and he became angry with me. In order to avoid arguments we've been going out as a foursome, but it bothers me to even look at her.

I know that Christians should forgive, and I have prayed to the Lord for my feelings to change, but I still feel the same toward her. What should I do?

UNFORGIVING CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Keep praying, but to thine own self be true. And unless you feel completely comfortable with this woman, tell Greg that you, too are "only human," and you'd rather not be in her company. The Lord will understand.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend's mother lets her kids call her "Yetta," and I think that's neat.

I tried calling my mother "Shelia" and nearly got hit in the head.

My Mom said when kids call their parents by their first names it shows a lack of respect, and there would be none of that in our house.

I wonder how you feel about that, Abby.

DEAR SONIA: I think your mother's wishes should be respected. Are you the lonely face in the crowd? Friends make you a winner, and Abby tells you how to win them in her booklet, "How To Be Popular—You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (25 cents) envelope to Abby: 133 Laaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Touring troupe to perform at CSI

TWIN FALLS — The Young Ambassadors, an internationally-known performing group from Brigham Young University at Provo, will present a musical message of brotherhood and friendship at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium Wednesday, April 25, at 8 p.m.

The group consists of 24 singers and dancers, a 10-piece band, and a six-member technical crew. Their appearance in Twin Falls is part of a six-week tour scheduled for Idaho, Washington, North and South Dakota, Colorado, and the Canadian provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba.

According to director Randy Boothe, who has also directed the Disneyland All-American College Singers and Show Band, this year's show will include selections from Broadway musicals and popular music. They will perform such hits as "Brand New Day," from the Broadway show "The Wiz;" the disco "Boogie-Oogie-Oogie;" and Earth, Wind and Fire's "Fantasy."

The LDS Twin Falls Stake and West Stake are sponsoring the concert. Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for students and children under 12. They are available at the Prime Cut Restaurant on Blue Lakes Boulevard North and at the Century 21 office, 108 Addison Ave. W.

A special concert for high school students will be held April 26 at 7 p.m. at the LDS Stake Center on Maurice Street. There is no admission charge and the public is welcome.

Women singers in 'good ol' harmony'

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Everyone who enjoys barbershop music has a treat in store May 6 when the Twin Falls chapter of Sweet Adelines presents its annual show, at 8 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Evelyn Meyer directs the local singers who practice each Tuesday night at the United Methodist Church. Participants do not have to be accomplished musicians or even read music, according to Jennie Lee, who helped organize the chapter in 1972.

"If you can harmonize and enjoy having a good time singing, come join us," she said.

In addition to selections by the 25-voice chorus, the performance will feature individual numbers by several quartets, both local and from out-of-state.

The headline quartet, known as the Treasure Tones, is from Missoula, Mont. Its members, Audrey Beagle, Grace Scale, Carol Demmons and Janet Jensen, won first place in the regional competition two years ago, allowing them to compete at an international show in London.

Ms. Beagle and Demmons both are employed by the Forest Service. Ms. Scale works in a law office while Ms. Jensen recently was elected justice of the peace.

The Commentators, a Magic Valley men's quartet, and the Sweet Adelines' own quartet also will sing. A novice group, the women's quartet includes Maxine Traut, Katie Eihlers, Evelyn Meyer and Pat Martin, all Twin Falls.

The Magichords of Magic Valley, the male counterpart to the Sweet Adelines, also will participate in the annual show, Ms. Lee said.

Although the purpose of the male barbershop groups who also are organized on a national level and the Sweet Adelines is identical — promotion and enjoyment of barbershop harmony — the two organizations have no official connection.

Barbershop music, historically linked with the Gay 90's era in the late 19th century, traditionally was associated with male singers. However, since music always has transcended persons, time and place, it was not unusual that women should find as much enjoyment in four-part harmony as men.

The first Sweet Adeline group was started in 1947 in Tulsa, Okla., and has now spread throughout the world, according to Ms. Lee. There are some 29,000 members in the 22 regions throughout the United States. Chapters also flourish throughout the world, including such countries as Japan, Canada and Britain.

Twin Falls is in Region 6 which includes Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Montana. Each year the local chapters hold regional competition which is scheduled for Salt Lake City today and Saturday. Some of the Twin Falls members are attending, but the chorus is not participating this year.

The Twin Falls chapter has competed on the regional level twice, in Reno and Denver. In 1977 members hosted the Regional competition in Twin Falls when the Missoula Treasure Tones won first place.

Ms. Lee said 1977 was the first time the regional competition has ever been held in a city as small as

Twin Falls and "it took us nearly two years to get ready for it."

The regional event draws up to 800 singers, with some individual choruses having as many as 98 singers on the rosters.

Twenty singers are required to form a Sweet Adeline chapter. When the Twin Falls group was organized seven years ago by Ms. Lee and Andrew (Rip) Gerdes, the first director, there were 32 members.

Other directors over the years have included Burt Hulsh, Mary Baun and Bob Lazano.

Mistress of ceremonies for the May 5 show will be Kathy Corbally of Pocatello, judging chairman for Region 6.

Tickets are $3 and may be purchased in advance at the Music Center, Sullivan's Music and Mark's Music, or at the door the night of the performance.

Magic Valley Chorale

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Chorale joins with the Boise Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in presenting Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony" Thursday, April 26, at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

CSI bands stage concert

The College of Southern Idaho Concert Band and Stage Band will give their final concert of the school year this Sunday, April 22, at 3 p.m. in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium.

The Concert Band, directed by Thomas Breske, will perform Gustav Holst's "Jupiter." Soprano Mary Kirkey and baritone Gary Kirkey will be featured guest soloists in selections from "Cabaret" and "Carousel." Teresa Schmidt will solo on a euphonium and Michiko Murakami will perform a piano solo.

The Stage Band, directed by music department head Lawrence Curtis, is composed of both students and adults from the community. Their specialty is big band jazz. They will play a variety of vintage, ranging from old standards such as "My Old Flame" and "On Green Dolphin Street" to popular tunes of the 70s.

Admission to the concert is free and the public is invited.

Movies & Music

'The North Avenue Irregulars' is as square as a city block

By SHELLY KINZEL
Times-News Staff
Sometimes it hardly pays to leave your TV set. Unless films shown in movie houses offer something special or provide another dimension, why bother to relinquish the comfort of your easy chair? This is precisely my feeling as I viewed "The North Avenue Irregulars," the latest release from Walt Disney Productions.

The film, although entertaining, is still the same formula comedy, ground out regularly for Disney's weekly TV series. Fortunately, the actors are top-notch, the action slick, and the material innocuous enough not to offend anybody.

The plot is about the Reverend Mike Hill (Edward Herrmann), who arrives at his new post only to find that the town is overrun by mobsters. When he is asked by Treasury agents to help stop the gambling syndicate, Hill decides to enlist the support of some trustworthy men. Unable to find even one, he handpicks five of his female parishioners, among whom are flashy divorcee Claire Porter (Cloris Leachman), harried housewife Vicki Simms (Barbara Harris) and church organist Jane Prindle (Karen Valentine), engaged to a wealthy mama's boy.

The crazy capers of these five bungling crime fighters provide much of the film's merriment. Slapstick, wild car chases, and general pandemonium keep the action lively. The characters are appealing and, of course, virtue triumphs over evil. The only inventive idea, however, is the conversion of a prim church official (Ruth Buzzi) into an ardent CB-er with the handle "ecumenical enchantress."

Outside of this imaginative flah, "The North Avenue Irregulars" is as regular as can be pleasant family fare which will inevitably appear on your TV screen next season.

Walt Disney Productions, at least, strives to maintain a certain standard of quality, which is more than I can say for the producers of "Buck Rogers of the 25th Century," a feature which epitomizes "junk" entertainment. I use the term "junk" literally, because the film is a conglomeration of waste products from all of today's current science fiction. "Buck Rogers" is not a spin-off or a take-off, but a total rip-off.

The same plot relates the adventures of William Buck Rogers (Gil Gerard), an American astronaut whose rocket ship was blown out of orbit in 1987 and has been drifting through space for five hundred years. Blissfully fast-frozen, Buck does not awaken until thawed aboard a Draxian vessel, Draconia, we learn, is now the most powerful planet in the universe and is secretly planning to destroy Earth.

Buck, under the watchful and lustful eye of Draconian Princess Ardala (Pamela Hensley), is permitted to return to his native planet. Here he encounters Col. Deering, another curvaceous kewpie doll (Erin Gray), and a friendly drone who wears an even friendlier talking computer around his neck. This melted down version of C-Threpto is the only one, alas, who believes Buck's story. Armed solely with used material from "Star Trek," "Star Wars," and several James Bond thrillers, Buck masterminds a totally unoriginal scheme to prove his innocence and save the day.

Perhaps the makers of this futuristic fiasco intended a clever spoof, but the film is neither exaggerated nor witty enough to be instead is a nonexciting plot and an abundance of cheap jokes. Take, for example, the seduction scene between Buck and Princess

Ardala:
She: You could unseat my father.

He: (with a leer) Your father's seat is the farthest seat from my mind!

"Buck Rogers of the 25th Century" may be only one small feature, but it is a giant step backwards for the film industry and the entire science fiction genre. And guess what, folks! Judging from the final sequence, we can expect to see at least one sequel. My only suggestion is that it be properly titled "Star Trash."

Chaddy Drown of Twin Falls peers over her oils on redwood

Twin artist's painting destined for Oregon museum

TWIN FALLS — An oil painting by Twin Falls artist Chaddy Drown will soon be donated to the Tillamook County Museum in Tillamook, Ore.

The painting, however, is not your usual oil on canvas. Entitled "Brighton Saw Mill," this picture is painted in oils on a 2-by-6 piece of sandblasted redwood.

The painting represents the Brighton, Ore., saw mill as it looked in the early 1920s.

The painting was commissioned as a memorial to Thomas B. Watt Sr., general manager of the Brighton Mills Co. from 1916-1927.

Watt's son, Twin Falls resident Charles J. Watt, commissioned the painting.

Ms. Drown says the picture was painted from an old photograph of the Brighton Saw Mill. The scale of the picture is blown up many times and covers most of the large piece of redwood.

The painting will become part of the Tillamook County Museum's special collection on the logging and lumber industries.

When Children Leave Home,
What's A Mother To Do?

There's no reason why a mother has to experience long-term depression or loss when her children leave home. It is a major transition period, but the changes it demands can be positive. This week we tell you how several women coped with their postparenting years. Most of them found being 50 years old meant a time of tranquility and one for pursuit of other interests and dreams. Read their stories in this week's FAMILY WEEKLY.

Video disk riding wave of the future shock

By LES BROWN
N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — For 12 years, in his various capacities at the National Broadcasting Co. ranging from program executive in Hollywood to president and chief executive, Herbert S. Schlosser has been engrossed at this time of year in the preparation of the network's fall program schedule. All that is behind him now, because Schlosser was relieved of the NBC presidency last June. But he is again engaged in the work of putting together a new season's fare — this time for what is to be the first "season" of a new television technology, the video disk.

In his new position as executive vice president of the RCA Corp., the parent company of NBC, Schlosser is responsible for developing the initial "rule" of software, or prerecorded program material, for RCA's disk playback units, which are expected to begin being marketed in the next 12 to 18 months.

The units are, in effect, phonographs that play video material through television sets. Expected to cost $400 each, the units, which are about the size of a portable typewriter, play grooved disks that resemble long-playing audio records and carry two hours of program material. The disks are to be priced between $10 and $17, depending on the licensing arrangements with copyright owners.

Schlosser's role is a critical one. Because the demand for the playback units is expected to be governed by the appeal of the materials offered on the disks, in an initial catalogue of 250 titles.

"This is a market," he said, "that accumulates programs of broad appeal and limited appeal — Dolly Parton and the Metropolitan Opera. A magnificent production of 'Hamlet' will sell for 10 or 20 years, while a movie like 'Saturday Night Fever' will have to sell day while it's hot."

"What makes this different from the beginnings of such industries as radio and films is that we already have a huge reservoir of material to draw from — current movies, classic movies, concert, instructional films, news footage and old television shows. Can you imagine what it would mean to the 'Star Trek' buffs to have the whole series on disks?"

With so much available to be put on disks, and so much opportunity to create new material for the new medium, Schlosser's problem at the moment is how to reduce the possibilities to an enticing catalogue of programs that represents the range of what can be presented on disks. The catalogue is to be augmented with new titles every month once the playback unit is on the market.

Magnavox, RCA's sole competitor in the video disk field at present, has begun the test-market process with its playback console, one that is engineered differently from the RCA machine and uses lenses instead of a diamond stylus. Limited quantities of the Magnavox unit, developed by MCA-Phillips, have been on sale in Atlanta since December, and next month they will also be marketed in Seattle.

But although Magnavox was first in the market, Roy H. Pollack, RCA's group vice president with overall responsibility for the consumer electronics division and the new Selectavision video disk operation, says that the lead is not significant and that the much-larger RCA of the RCA unit will be an important factor in the public's acceptance of the technology. He says that RCA's home video recorder overcame the earlier entry of the Sony Corp.'s Betamax recorder.

Schlosser said his company has already acquired the rights to 200 M-G-M films, 100 films from 20th Century-Fox and 50 from other sources, including such titles as "Citizen Kane," "High Noon" and the original "King Kong."

He predicted the motion-picture companies would put their new releases on disks before making them available to pay-television, because the films would earn more money on disks. According to Schlosser, the pay-television and pay-cable concerns have been paying the film companies between 25 cents and 50 cents a household for each title; they would receive $2 for every disk sold.

"The movie companies have nothing to lose and a whole new market to gain," Schlosser said, "and the consumer would be paying something close to the price of two admissions to the theater and the cost of a baby sitter. Besides that, the consumer would be able to watch the movie again and again, and with the 'search' feature on the playback unit could limit the watching to favorite scenes."

Why would RCA create a new product that might compete with the profitable network and stations it owns?

"RCA," Schlosser said, "has always been in the forefront of technology. If we didn't develop this system, someone else would. You can't stop technology."

But then he said he doubted the networks would be seriously affected by developments such as the video disk "beyond having the corners knocked off the huge audiences they draw."

"These things can exist side by side, as television and radio now do. There are certain things each of these media do better than the others. For instance, people love weekly series. We can't do them on disks, and we can't do news either. With all that is happening in technology, I think network television is going to continue to be very strong. Its strength is that it's an advertising medium."

Carl Sagan to explore cosmos for PBS

By RICHARD F. SHEPARD
N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — Dr. Carl Sagan, the scientist and writer whose book "The Dragons of Eden" won a Pulitzer Prize for nonfiction, will write and serve as host of "Cosmos," a new television series that will cost $8 million to make and will appear on the Public Broadcasting Service next year.

Sagan, who is director of the Laboratory for Planetary Studies and the David Duncan Professor of Astronomy and Space Sciences at Cornell University, said Tuesday that the 13-part series would not dwell on astronomy alone, but would deal with science in general "in the broadest sense." The programs, a joint production of Carl Sagan Productions and station KCET-TV, Los Angeles, will be filmed at 40 locations and will make copious use of models and special effects, including computer animation, back and front projections, explosions, tank shootings.

"I think people could turn the sound off and still enjoy the series," said Sagan.

Dr. James Lopez, president of KCET, said Tuesday that the program was "undoubtedly the highest-budgeted project in the history of public television to date."

The programs will explore spacecraft missions to the planets, black holes, the origin of matter, the human brain, time travel, communication among the whales, the death of the sun and life on other worlds. They will look into Hindu cosmology, cosmic catastro-phies, Martian canals, the deciphering of the Egyptian hieroglyphics and so on. Among the special effects will be the "Cosmos Zoom" in which the viewer will hurtle by spaceship into firmament upheavals. With a "Cosmic Calendar," 15 billion years of earth history will be compressed into a single cosmic year. Journeys past will include a trip to the re-creation of the great, long-gone library of ancient Alexandria. Another excursion will be to Holland during the 17th century, a golden period when the little country's ships girdled the globe, its painters were outstanding, and its scientists were opening new frontiers.

CHAMBER MUSIC. By Doris Grunbach. 213 pages. A Henry Robbins Book-E.P. Dutton, $9.95.

The soliloquy in "Chamber Music" are Caroline McLaren, very young and very old; her husband, the American composer Robert McLaren; Robert's friend Churchill Weeks, a student and teacher of music; and Caroline's friend Anna Bach, who comes to nurse Robert during his long and painful descent into death and who stays to love Caroline. They are all strung instruments. The music we hear occurs in the chamber of Caroline's heart. It is quite beautiful.

Doris Grunbach is best known for the intelligence and savor of her literary criticism and for her "The Company She Keeps" (1967) in "Chamber Music," her first novel in 15 years, she handles incidental materials with such cool authority, such metronomic precision, such unobtrusive care that the effect of the prose is subversive. We are accustomed to sex in contemporary fiction as Wagnerian opera or punk rock; we no longer listen. The insinuations of "Chamber Music" allow us to be surprised; indeed, we are captured by craft.

The novel purports to be Caroline's memoir, written at age 90, at the request of the trustees of the McLaren Foundation. The business of the McLaren Foundation used to be the financing of the McLaren Community, an artists' colony for composers established in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., as a memorial to Robert McLaren and run by his widow. The community burned down many years ago, but the foundation is applying to the federal government for a grant to restore it. Caroline's account of the past might help. She agrees to remember for her own reasons; she has "extraordinary truths" to tell and she is "comforted by the realization that there is no one I know alive to be surprised at me."

We are off, then, to Boston and her childhood in the 1890s; to her piano lessons and the tea party at which she meets the charming and ambitious Robert; to turn-of-the-century Frankfurt, Germany, where, while Robert studies composition and conducts his own music, his 17-year-old bride and his bitter mother compete for his affections. Neither wins. Back, then, to New York and Boston and Robert's fame and Robert's disease and Robert's dying and the advent of Anna and the creation and destruction of the McLaren Community.

"Chamber Music" is a marvel of what to leave out of a novel. There is specification, but no redundant groveling. We learn as much as we need to know of the auxiliary characters, and no more. We are made to feel that we are in Philadelphia and Boston and Frankfurt, but there are no guided tours. I am tempted to say that the book is all bone; instead, it is all strings—gut and nerve—and each vibrates. The silences are intervals in which to think before the music starts again. Every note evokes and fades.

This mastery of deployment of silences, of reticences, applies as much to Caroline as it does to the novel. The novel, after all, is her memoir. She is not acquainted with irony. She lacks a sense of humor. She isn't interested in politics and literature.

The Old West when new

Photography and the Old West, by Karen Current and William R. Current (Abrams, $19.95)

This may be the most thoughtful and best picture album yet produced of Americans going west. The text is interesting. But, as in the case of most books of photographs, the text is neither overly necessary nor of prime interest.

The photographs are all—and in this book they are wonderfully chosen.

The quality of the prints no doubt suffered due to the careless handling by 18th-century printers. But what comes through is the next best thing to have gone west with the pioneers.

Educators give ABC's Vietnam special A+

"Friendly Fire," an "ABC Theatre" special three-hour presentation, has been endorsed for viewing by the National Education Association, the largest professional association of educators in the country.

"Friendly Fire," based on

C.D.B. Bryan's critically acclaimed book, will air Sunday, April 22, at 7 p.m. on the ABC Television Network.

Commenting on this "ABC Theatre" presentation, John Ryor, president of the NEA, said, "Friendly Fire" deals sensitively with a turbulent period in American history and the effect of the Vietnam War on one family. We especially recommend this program for viewing by junior high school and high school students."

"Friendly Fire" stars Carol Burnett and Ned Beatty as Peg and Gene Muller, parents of a young soldier sent to Vietnam, in this true story of a fifth generation American family and its search to find out what really happened to their son. It is a story about the family's growing bitterness over the government's seeming indifference to their son's death, attributed to "friendly fire."

Martin Starger is executive producer of "Friendly Fire" for Marble Arch Productions, with Phillip Barry producing. The screenplay is by Fay Kanin, who also is co-producer. The director is David Greene.
