

Other states begin to feel gas pinch

By JOSEPH ST. AMANT

California's odd-even gasoline allocation plan breaking down in some areas because of a lack of enforcement Thursday and a shootout left three wounded when a con man tried to bilk drivers waiting in a gas station line.

As other states begin to feel gas shortage, a federal official said gas costs could rise legally to $2 per gallon.

In the populous Los Angeles area, some service station operators were reported ignoring the odd-even plan and police were reported reluctant to respond to complaints of motorists unless there was violence at the stations.

Assistant Los Angeles police chief Louis Sporrer issued new orders to geographic commanders instructing them to appoint a "gasoline enforcement coordinator" and to assign officers to check stations for compliance.

Violence erupted at one station in the city when a man approached lined-up motorists seeking bribes for preferential treatment. Police said the man had no connection with the station, and when the owner confronted him, the con man whipped out a pistol and wounded the owner in the chest. Police arrived and critically wounded the suspect in a shootout. One officer suffered a minor leg wound.

Meanwhile, in Washington, a plan that would force families to leave their cars home one day a week — even if they have more than one — was being considered by a group of House members Thursday.

The plan, designed by Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., and about a dozen other congressmen, would enforce the "drivesless day" through a sticker system. Anyone driving his car on the forbidden day would be fined.

Under the proposal, each day would be assigned a number — say No. 1 for Sunday — and any car with a No. 1 sticker would not be allowed on the road on Sunday. Each family would get to choose its own drivesless day and all its cars would be assigned the same number.

Moffett also proposed that motorists be required to buy a minimum amount of gasoline each time they go to a service station so they will not be able to top off almost full tanks.

The gas crunch is spreading to other states that did not feel the pinch as soon as California.

In Washington state, a side-effect was a sharp surge in bus ridership. "We are putting everything we've got into service, everything that's safe," said B. J. Carol, a customers assistance supervisor for the Seattle Metro System. "We've also leased 10 coaches from Snohomish County."

In Massachusetts, it was reported some turnpike service stations might limit motorists to $5 worth of gas this weekend.

In North Carolina, Gov. James B. Hunt asked state departments to cut gasoline consumption by 5 percent immediately. He said the state was faced with a 20 percent cutback in its gasoline allotment this month. "Ohio planned to refuel nearly nine million gallons of fuel from 115 reserves next week to help ease the crunch of Memorial Day traffic."

The tourist industry in such states as Nevada which depends on out-of-state dollars was hard hit. The entertainment industry, particularly movie houses, began to feel the effects of the reluctance of some motorists to use their precious fuel.

Sales of diesel cars rose sharply although diesel fuel in some areas was in short supply. Diesel cars were hard to find at auto dealerships.

Lawsuit may save Pioneer

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer
KOFINNO — Gov. John Evans said Thursday he may file a lawsuit to block elimination of the Amtrak "Pioneer" line, south Idaho's only rail passenger service.

"I think we need this service," Evans told the Times-News in a telephone interview, "especially in light of the gasoline shortages. The demand will probably increase for rail service."

Evans said he would instruct his staff to investigate the possibility of a lawsuit against either the Department of Transportation or President Carter to prevent the Pioneer's elimination. "If it is possible to do this, I'll go ahead with it," Evans said.

Evans said he has been supportive of the Pioneer rail passenger service since it first began. "I just sent another letter to (Transportation Secretary) Brock Adams asking him to maintain the service," he said.

The governor made his comments after learning that on Monday California filed suit to block the DOT from closing down 12,000 miles of Amtrak passenger train service in the country, including 300 miles of passenger service within California.

"We in California feel that rail passenger service in the United States should be expanded rather than cut back, particularly in light of our energy situation," said Adriana Gian-turco, head of California's Department of Transportation.

Thursday Evans made similar comments.

"It's obvious these plans (to eliminate passenger service) were made some time ago, before the gas shortages." The federal government should "rethink" its plans to reduce rail passenger service, he said.

The Pioneer line has been in operation on a two-year trial since the summer of 1977. During that period it has exceeded passenger loads predicted by Amtrak officials when the route began.

The route connects Seattle with Portland, with stops at Boise, Shoshone, Pocatello, Ogden and Salt Lake City.

If the Pioneer is eliminated, Sandpoint will be the only town in Idaho with rail passenger service.

Need for Chicano classes disputed

By BEN MCKELWAY
Times-News writer
MAGIC VALLEY — School officials in the Magic Valley see little need for a centralized bilingual education program for Chicano elementary school students.

Although many school districts already give special attention to youngsters who have trouble speaking English, the Idaho Migrant Council (IMC) has sued the state Board of Education, demanding a standard bilingual curriculum in every school district with a substantial Chicano population.

The lawsuit, filed April 11 in U.S. District Court in Boise, contends the state is violating the U.S. Constitution and federal and state laws by not providing Spanish-speaking students with the language training they need to compete with other students. The suit also claims a high dropout rate among Chicano high school students is the delayed result of communication problems in the early grades.

The problem, says IMC attorney Gabriel Robles of Boise, is that many Chicano students can't understand their teachers. Used to speaking Spanish at home, they cannot switch to English quickly enough to understand their lessons.

The solution would be more teaching in Spanish until the students have mastered English, Robles said.

"The parents pay taxes just like anyone else does, but they aren't getting anything for it," he said.

Improved bilingual programs would be funded with federal grant money that many districts already receive, costing the state no extra expenditures, Robles said. The main issue is supervision from the state Department of Education in Boise.

"The money is not used in an organized manner now," said Robles. "Districts that have bilingual programs are just dabbling. Some districts ignore the purpose of the money altogether, and some have come up with haphazard solutions. The reason we have such a mess now is that the state has ignored its duty. The state constitution makes it clear they do have power over the districts, but they don't use that power."

Jerry Evans, state superintendent of public instruction, said, "We still belong to a state that has a strong sense of local control. When you get down to the real problems, it varies from district to district, and the answers should come from the district."

Evans' views are reflected in a motion for dismissal filed May 4 by Deputy Attorney General Susan Mark of Boise on behalf of the Department of Education and the Board of Education.

Ms. Mark's brief stresses that, while some IMC allegations may be true, Robles has misinterpreted Idaho law. She said the law delegates most curriculum authority to local school districts, not the Department of Education. She said the IMC may have a greater chance of success if it were to sue an individual school district.

Last summer an IMC researcher studying six key districts in southern Idaho concluded that 92 percent of Chicano students in the Twin Falls

School District dropped out of high school before graduating. "The rates for Cassia School District and Mindoka School District were 75 percent and 76 percent, respectively."

Robles said the study started with students who were eighth graders in 1971 and ended with students who would have graduated in 1978. The dropout rates have been adjusted to take migrants and transfers into account, he added.

Frank Charlton, principal of Twin Falls High School, doubts the statistics. He says his school's overall dropout rate has been 5 to 6 percent for the past few years.

"And I am confident the dropout rate for Chicano students is no higher than for other students," he said.

In Burley, Miguel Quintero directs a bilingual education program for the Cassia School District, even though a current state law requires all subjects to be taught in English. (The IMC suit asks the court to strike the law as unconstitutional.)

The federally funded Cassia program is two years old, said Quintero, and covers kindergarten through third grade. A district-wide language test was just completed.

"If you see the test results, you're going to be surprised," said Quintero. "The kids have been improving. I don't think the IMC has anything to fight for."

Mauricio Castillo, employment-and-training counselor for the IMC in Burley, sees a need for more bilingual training, but says the worst problem is in the Mindoka County School District across the river. He said his job has convinced him there is a connection between the Chicano dropout rate and early language troubles.

Wayne Furr, superintendent of schools for the Mindoka County district, said the district is now testing students to determine the scope of the problem. Bilingual teacher's aides already work in most of the district's schools, he added.

If the tests show inadequate knowledge of English, the district will apply for federal grant money to start a program like Cassia County's.

Bodyguards with clout!

DAILY Telegraph, London
TOKYO — The Japanese police are searching among the ranks for at least 20 women officers who have received karate training to act as bodyguards when British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher arrives in Tokyo in late June.

The policemen will be assigned to Mrs. Thatcher from the time she arrives for a 20-day international economic summit talk until she boards her aircraft for London at the end of the month.

The police said that to use only policemen to guard Mrs. Thatcher would soon have proved to be impractical as there are places where the new Prime Minister might go "where policemen would not be in a position to secure her safety."

The women will be armed by the police, although those immediately surrounding Mrs. Thatcher will be the best women available for the job.

The police authorities intend to provide the heaviest security forces ever assembled in Tokyo,

Conservatives come close Canal debate fizzles out

By DON PHILLIPS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — House conservatives came within two votes of sidetracking Panama Canal treaty legislation Thursday and House leaders took the bill out of harm's way by delaying further action on it.

Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., floor manager of the treaty-implementing bill, blamed the narrow test vote victory on "on-State Department lobbying tactics, which he said included "deliberately inaccurate statements" about what the treaty would cost taxpayers.

"The 190-hour vote was to approve the Rules Committee's procedures for debating and amending the legislation."

Most bills reach the House floor under a "rule" that sets a time limit on debate and tells how the bill may be amended.

The vote was much closer than House leaders had expected and indicated the bill was in danger of defeat or of languishing amendments that President Carter could not accept.

The vote on the "rule" only allowed the bill to reach the floor and was not a direct vote on the bill itself. But conservatives led by two Idaho Republicans, George Hensen and Steve Symms, turned it into a test vote.

"It's time to send a message downtown that the United States is tired of being pushed around," said Symms.

Shortly after the vote, Speaker Thomas O'Neill said, "The vote means that the Panama bill will not be up on the floor next week. It's been pulled. We've got some work to do."

Although the House will debate the bill on Monday, it will postpone any votes of other action on it for at least two weeks.

The legislation, which would implement and finance the canal treaties ratified last year, already was much tougher than Carter wanted.

The State Department had said it would seek changes in the House bill when it reaches the Senate because certain provisions "are not consistent with either the letter or the spirit of the Panama Canal Treaty."

Murphy cited that statement by department spokesman Hlodding Carter, as one of the reasons "the bill was in trouble. He called the remark "fallacious."

Murphy also said the vote was a reflection of the "deliberately inaccurate statements by the State Department" on the treaty cost issue.

Homecoming Gary Miller of Twin Falls was the most valuable player for the Ricks College baseball team, but he said he would much rather be playing for the College of Southern Idaho. Page B3

Friday briefing

Hanna freed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif., the only present or former member of Congress sent to prison in the Korean influence buying scandal, has been freed after serving one year, it was disclosed Thursday.

Judge William Bryant of the U.S. District Court in District of Columbia reduced Hanna's six- to 30-month sentence to time already served at the federal minimum security prison at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., and placed him on special parole for two years. Had the judge not acted, the 55-year-old Hanna would not have been eligible for parole until next Sept. 6.

Hanna was released late Wednesday, a Bureau of Prisons spokesman said.

Asbestos praised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission on Thursday praised the recall of 90 percent of the 10 million electric hair dryers that contain asbestos, saying the move is an asbestos best practice.

The agency's four commissioners also took under consideration a staff request that the asbestos ban be extended to other household products such as hair curlers, pot holders, humidifiers and electric space heaters if they might present a health hazard.

Dump danger

COVENTRY, R.I. (UPI) — The Coventry-Town Council voted unanimously Thursday night to declare a state of emergency at an illegal dump in an effort to keep curiously named half-buried barrels of potentially explosive chemicals.

The declaration gives town Manager Ronald W. Owens broad powers to prevent "unauthorized access to the dump site, and to increase police surveillance of the area."

Press law

PORT TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Reeling from the version of Watergate, the South African government Thursday said it wants a law that will limit publication of any news story about corruption that it deems official approval.

Opponents of the bill, which would impose five-year prison terms for any reporters who violate its provisions, said the government, which holds 15 of the 165 parliament seats, has the power to make the bill law virtually at will.

United progress

DENVER (UPI) — Negotiators have made substantial progress toward ending the 49-day-old United Airlines strike, but talks are at an impasse over the low remaining issues, federal mediators said Thursday.

Robert O. Harris and Harry Bickford of the National Mediation Board reported that "a number of difficult issues" were resolved during negotiations this week, said federal mediator Meredith Buehler.

No White verdict

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The jurors in the Dan White murder trial Thursday completed two days of deliberations without reaching a verdict, but indicated they were still considering a defense plea to first degree voluntary manslaughter in the City Hall shootings of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

The jury of seven women and five men quit its deliberations Thursday night at 6 p.m. PDT and planned to reconvene Friday at 9 a.m.

Project funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church announced Thursday the Interior Department has released more than $10 million for public works projects made necessary in the eastern Idaho counties by the 1976 Teton Dam collapse.

Church said the funds were made available by legislation he sponsored that was signed into law last year. He said the new law was necessary because the Economic Development Administration has refused to pay for many hospital, sewer, water, street and other improvement projects in Madison, Jefferson, Blaine, Bonneville and Fremont counties.

Today's weather

Relative fair weather expected through Saturday

Relative fair weather and mild temperatures were reported Thursday. Winds were also reported through much of the area.

A range of high pressure was building, being the main reason for the fair weather conditions. This pressure system is expected to remain over Idaho for the next few days. Fair weather is expected to continue through Saturday.

Temperatures Thursday morning were generally in the upper 30s and 40s. One spot of the state was cooler, with a dip to 24 degrees.

Temperatures today are expected to be in the 50s and 70s. Winds will be generally in the 30s and 40s.

Field preparation and planting outlook Sunday through Tuesday shows fair and dry with warm temperatures well above seasonal normals.

Spraying forecast calls for winds decreasing slowly from sunset to midnight to between 4 and 8 mph.

Winds increasing to near 15 mph this afternoon.

Four-inch soil temperatures trend, maximum today up 2 degrees, minimum tonight up 1 degree. Pan evaporation .32 today and .34 Saturday.

Castro cheered in Mexico

MEXICO, Mexico (UPI) — Cuban President Fidel Castro arrived in Mexico Thursday to a cheering welcome on his first visit since he left 23 years ago to launch the Cuban revolution.

Castro, dressed in his traditional olive battle fatigues, was hailed as "one of the personalities of this century" by Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo. The exuberance of the almost exclusively mestizo sharply with the cool reception President Castro got when he visited Mexico last February. For his part, Castro returned to Mexico last year to praise — by lauding — his "valiant, wise and patriotic old ally" in the United States.

Chicano classes needed?

The lawsuit's demand for uniform testing and statewide bilingual curriculum is not popular with Magic Valley administrators.

We elect local boards so we can adapt our educational philosophy to our own community," said Buhl School Superintendent Robert Pratt. "I don't like the idea of the state telling us exactly how we have to spend our dollars."

In Twin Falls, School Superintendent James Savin feels his schools are already providing necessary language training.

"This community is not bicultural," he said. "If they have a concern about kids in their schools, they tell us, and that's good. But no one has ever approached us here with that particular problem."

Responsibility for solving all student language problems in Magic Valley schools falls on the shoulders of Mary-Lou Ollivas, the community school coordinator. But she says she is too busy to get to every child who needs her.

In top of her bilingual testing and teaching duties for Chicano and Laotian pupils, Mrs. Ollivas has a full schedule of social service work, including visits to students' homes.

"It's too much for me to handle," she said. "I have to work on some students out because I haven't got enough help."

Mrs. Ollivas hasn't always been on her own. In the past, she has supervised bilingual classes hired by the school district with federal funds. "But they always quit," she explained. "The pay is just too low for them."

Robles' brief is built around Lau vs. Nichols, a 1974 U.S. Supreme Court case in which the Court ruled that San Francisco schools were obligated to teach some Chinese students in Chinese until the pupils had a working knowledge of English.

In top to general constitutional and statutory prohibitions on racial discrimination, Robles cites several Department of Health, Education and Welfare regulations and guidelines which followed the Lau decision.

But Mrs. Ollivas says the Lau decision allows other options and was not so narrow as to require a uniform bilingual curriculum in Idaho.

Reliving the truth of Lincoln

by DALE SINGER
PACIFIC, Mo. (UPI) — Elyja Presley imitators may be more popular and make more money, but Richard Blake portrays Abraham Lincoln because he feels the former president got a raw deal in the history books and movies.

Blake, who has portrayed Lincoln more than 2,000 times in 13 years, said too many people have the wrong image of Lincoln. "They think he was a gangly man, bumbling around and talking in a deep voice," he said. "But he was a charming man, a man with charisma."

"Most historians agree that he was the type of man who, when he walked into a room, you knew he was there. If I had to choose a modern celebrity to compare him to in that respect, it would have to be John Wayne."

Blake, a slim 6-foot-4 actor complete with beard, top hat and was mole on his cheek, portrays Lincoln as a serious man, torn by the conflict of the Civil War, but still folksy and quick with a story to illustrate any situation.

Blake toured several school districts this week with a special show billed as "A Day with President Lincoln."

The appearances featured parades, speeches and mock news conferences with students posing as reporters questioning the president the day after his re-election in 1864.

Richard Blake playing Lincoln in Pacific, Mo.

Blake's appearance at Agee Junior High School was a major event. Students and teachers turned out in stovepipe hats, hoop skirts and fake beards, and the halls were plastered with signs proclaiming the virtues that should win Abe's re-election: "Start Thinkin' — Vote For Lincoln." "Roses Are Red, Violets Are Blue, Abe Is Honest, And You Should Be Too." "Vote For Lincoln — He'll Keep Your Heart From Sinkin'."

Blake arrived in a horse-drawn carriage and pressed the flesh like any politician, then addressed an assembly in the school gym.

Skylab falls this summer

BY AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency estimated Thursday the doomed Skylab space station will plunge to Earth sometime between June 26 and July 9 with July 2 the best bet.

Although the 78-ton orbiting laboratory will be the heaviest chunk of space debris ever to return to Earth, the Air Force North American Air Defense Command said man-made objects are now falling out of orbit on the average of more than one a day.

The Battelle Laboratories, studying on the hazard posed by Skylab, estimated there was a one-in-156 chance Skylab debris will cause one casualty somewhere within a broad band around the globe. NASA has said the chances of being hit by a piece of Skylab are less than being hit by a meteorite. The Battelle study, said during the past 20 years, there have been seven verified injuries from meteorites with no verified fatalities.

The re-entry estimate for the six-year-old space station is two weeks later than a calculation issued a month ago. NASA spokesman William O'Donnell said one reason for the change is that solar radiation activity diminished last month. The radiation heats the outer atmosphere, causing it to expand.

It is the drag caused by the very tenuous upper fringes of the atmosphere that is responsible for Skylab's slow descent. As the 110-foot assembly slows, its orbit drops closer to Earth until the atmosphere is too dense for Skylab to maintain the speed needed to stay in orbit.

About $4,800 per body Jonestown bill presented

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government spent $4.4 million recovering the 909 Jonestown massacre victims — about $4,800 per body — according to a preliminary accounting released Thursday by a congressman furious at the taxpayer expense.

The General Accounting Office said its reckoning was based on calculations made as of Jan. 16, which would cover the main clean-up and airlift operation, but "does not include costs incident to final disposition" of unidentified bodies.

The Justice Department filed suit in January to recover all costs from the California-based Peoples Temple, sponsor of the Guyana jungle commune where Jim Jones and 908 of his followers died in a murder-suicide ritual last November.

In releasing the GAO report prepared at his request, Rep. Edward Beard, D-R.I., berated the government for not acting faster to recover the taxpayer expense generated. "It was a proper decision legally," Beard said of the recovery operation "but it was a political decision."

decision was made, "let's pick up the bodies because the Government of Guyana refuses."

"Guyana just washed their hands of it."

"I am anxious to see recovery of these funds so our taxpayers will not have to foot the bill," he said. Federal investigators have estimated the Peoples Temple may have up to $12 million in Swiss and other foreign bank accounts. A Justice Department spokesman said Thursday the State Department had asked the governments involved to freeze these funds.

The GAO report said Washington had no recourse but to send in medical rescue squads to clean up the death camp, treat survivors, collect bodies and return them home.

U.S. needs to improve train system

A Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho Friday, May 18, 1979

By MIKE ROYKO
©1979 Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — When I first began riding trains, it wasn't because I liked them. I didn't like airplanes.
At one time, I liked airplanes. But I happened to ride one that went in the wrong direction. Straight down, toward the Sea of Japan.
With only a few hundred feet to spare, the Air Force pilot straightened it out and we didn't join the fishes after all.
But you've ever spent 5 or 10 seconds nosediving toward a ocean, while all around you grown men are shrieking, praying, fainting, vomiting, and bug-eyed with terror, you suddenly appreciate a slower, more tranquil form of travel.
That's when I developed a fondness for ships, trains, buses—almost anything that allows sufficient time for my dull life to flow beneath my eyes.

Ships are my favorite. I've crossed both oceans round-trip—the Pacific on troopships and the Atlantic on the now-mothballed SS France. You meet a better class of people on troopships, but you eat better on the liners.
At first, I didn't like trains, especially in the pre-Amtrak days when most American railroads were trying to get out of the unprofitable passenger business, and discouraged riders by providing indifferent service.

But I rode enough good trains to eventually become an addict. I've crossed this country several times, east to west and north to south. I rode the length of it, through much of France, and parts of Germany, England, and Canada.
There isn't a better way to see a country, soak up the scenery, relax over a book or meal, enjoy a few bells in a club car, sleep it off, and meet interesting people.

Do airplane passengers meet each other? I suppose so, but how can they be really sociable when most of them are quietly praying that the wing won't fall off?
Because most people don't ride trains, most people don't realize that in recent years American trains have improved. Amtrak, within the limitations placed on it by Washington bunglers, has improved the food, on-train services, reservation system, courtesy and cleanliness.

In a few ways, Amtrak's trains are even better than Europe's. They're not as fast: or as frequent and the tracks aren't as smooth. But ours are more comfortable, especially if you want to spend a few dollars extra on a sleeping room. Many European trains aren't air-conditioned, and you haven't appreciated air-conditioning until you've been on an Italian train in July, sharing a compartment with an Italian family of five that is munching salami and breathing on you.

Despite some improvements, most of Amtrak's publicity has been bad. That's because most stories about Amtrak are written by people who seldom ride trains and don't know what the trains were like before Amtrak.

There's the perennial story reporting that many of Amtrak's trains still arrive late. So they do. But planes arrive late, too. They become stacked up or are rerouted or are grounded by weather. And I, for one, would rather arrive an hour late while sitting in a train's club car than an hour late while ordering 10,000 feet above a city wondering if the air-traffic controller is going to have a nervous breakdown.
Occasionally there is a story about a train being derailed, or going to all the places people want to go. It doesn't even have enough employees to answer the phones and tell callers that much.

And under the present plans for future train travel—as conceived by a chaotic Congress, memo-brained bureaucrats, and the White House's panicky Peanut Gallery—things will just get worse.
People in other industrialized nations must think we're crazy. After years of danger signals that energy is going to become scarce, we're the only country to have let our most energy-efficient mass-transportation system stagnate and shrink, and to discourage people from riding trains. While other countries have improved their railbeds, designed modern equipment, and introduced faster and more comfortable trains, we've done precisely the opposite.

The government created Amtrak. But it made the terms of its existence almost impossible. And when Amtrak flopped, as it had to, the government blamed Amtrak instead of blaming itself.
If all large American cities were suddenly faced with a gasoline crisis, and authorities decided to cut back on bus and subway service, we'd have riots. But that, in effect, is what the federal government has done: We're going to face fuel pump shortages, and the government is simultaneously cutting back on trains.
But it's not too late, and I have a suggestion to turn things around.

Yet only in the case of trains has a subsidy been considered sinful. Billions for highways are fine because we love our cars. Billions for airlines are fine because we love modern time. But trains? They're old-fashioned, slow, not part of our modern time or needs.

Oh yeah? Well, lately the phones at Amtrak have been ringing off their cradles. Between the fuel crunch, the rising cost of gasoline and the United Airlines strike, hundreds of thousands of travelers are frantically trying to find a train they can ride.

And, if the fuel shortage turns out to be genuine and recurring, this rush for a seat on the train will happen over and over again.

Unfortunately, the trains aren't there. Amtrak doesn't have the equipment or manpower to carry all the people who now want to ride. It doesn't have the tracks going to all the places people want to go. It doesn't even have enough employees to answer the phones and tell callers that much.

The President should stop listening to his Department of Transportation. It's as full of fools as his Energy Department.

Instead, we should swallow our pride and turn for help to our old enemies, the Germans and Japanese. Even the Italians, if they leave the salami out of the deal.

We should hire them to come here and show us how to put together modern passenger rail system that works.

In exchange, maybe we could offer to stop running all those old World War II movies on late TV? We'd better do something, or we'll wind up as a nation of hitchhikers. With nobody out there to pick us up.

Solar energy needs a push

After some initial enthusiasm, the movement to develop solar energy has lost steam. Progress is so slow, according to one housing expert, the solar energy industry would disappear without government aid.

Steve Spigel, solar marketing expert with the Real Estate Research Corp. in Chicago, addressed an Idaho Solar Energy Conference session in Boise this week, and pointed to several problems with solar energy:

- Unrealistic optimism about the speed with which solar energy could develop has now led to skepticism, since the pace has dragged.

- Most home buyers believe they would have difficulty reselling a solar home.

- It is more difficult to sell a solar home because the equipment ups the cost anywhere from $1,500 to $12,000.

- Home builders take the wrong approaches in selling solar homes.

None of these problems mean solar home heating is uneconomical or that such system cannot repay itself.

But, Spigel points out, people buy homes not merely for a roof over their heads but also as an investment.

The nuts and bolts of buyer and seller confidence cannot be ignored.

Spigel said Idaho dealers, builders and realtors would do well to make sure a solar home, among other things, is well-built, located in a neighborhood with homes of comparable value and is resellable.

He said they should not unduly emphasize the solar equipment but should convince the buyer that his extra heating system will save him money on heating bills.

In other words, the days when a solar heating system would sell a house by itself are gone, if they ever existed.

The federal government is not heavily committed to spurring the development of this resource. Most experts see solar energy as a very minor part of the energy picture for the rest of this century.

But that part could be more or less minor, and if solar energy can supply a few more percentage points of the nation's needs, it could make a big difference.

Solar energy is in limbo, but it doesn't have to be. Solar home building, buying and selling could become a healthy market.

The cost of solar heating equipment will not decrease substantially, but traditional energy costs are sure to rise.

Solving SALT dilemma

© N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — SAFIRE — A MEGALOMANIAC, when confronted with the complexities of strategic arms limitation talks, many Americans respond with "My Eyes Glare Over."

In due time, readers and pundits will come to grips with the substance of the great debate about the continuation of a Soviet threat weight advantage versus the erosion of our lead in missile accuracy. For the moment, let us take a look at the politics of SALT to find out where the debate is likely to lead.

In one month, Carter will walk to Vienna to sign a SALT II treaty with Leonid Brezhnev. Since the Soviet leader was supposed to come to Washington for the signing, our concession to his preference for a European location has been accompanied by a series of leaks about the deterioration of Brezhnev's health.

For example, at a recent dinner with French President Giscard d'Estaing, Brezhnev is said to have had to eat the entire meal with a spoon. The French hints from U.S. sources that it is on the list but serves another purpose, too. If we don't grab the deal, Brezhnev offers, we are told, we'll soon be faced with a devil we do not know — and who can tell what some Slavovian hard-liner will demand in the future?

After Carter crosses Brezhnev's trembling hand across the bottom of the page, the president will quickly submit SALT II to the Senate for ratification. The White House hopes the Foreign Relations Committee will report the treaty out in four weeks, so that the Senate can debate the matter in the late summer and come to a vote "routinely" in October "permitting the president to take his Nixonian pre-campaign trip to China."

That timetable is unrealistic. The Senate learned in the Panama Canal debate that it is capable of joining the treaty-negotiating process, and has shown that its leaders are capable of improving upon the administration's best efforts. Carter can protest that "Brezhnev is not Torrijos," but a precedent is a precedent. Besides, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, who put across the canal treaties, needs desperately to "get well" with conservatives.

The likelihood is that the debate will go beyond the treaty to deal with the entire range of Soviet-U.S. relations. This "linkage" will not suit Carter, because it will force him to make major commitments on other defense expenditures to win support for the treaty from senators rightly suspicious of Soviet actions worldwide.

In the end, the Senate will neither accept nor reject the present treaty. Come November, or soon after the year-end recess, the Senate will pass two or three amendments to the treaty, which amount to demands that the president renegotiate it with the Russians. Not mere "reservations," which the Soviets can shrug off — but specific changes — to get a better bargain.

Too many amendments would be taken to be a subtitle of the treaty, probably, senators concerned with national security would concentrate on including the Soviet Backfire bomber in the weapons systems to be controlled, which Brezhnev has mightily resisted; they may also press for a verification amendment.

At the same time, senators concerned with genuine disarmament would come at the treaty from the left, amending the section on the proposed SALT III treaty to require more progress toward arms reduction at SALT III.

The Carter administration will fight all amendments, insisting that the Russians will not give another inch, and Ambassador Dobrynin will surely back him up. But Carter being Carter, he will offer the Senate a compromise on the treaty's three-year "provision" that "if the damaging concession we made that limits our use of cruise missiles (first revealed in this space two years ago, as part of a harangue against dovish negotiator Paul Warnke).

The White House will tell the Senate that it is okay for us to refuse to accept the protocol's cruise missile limitation as setting a precedent, and to demand that we deploy that weapon as soon as the protocol ends.

Thanks a lot, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, and others will say, we'll take that — but we want the amendments, too. The president, as the 1980 primaries begin, will try to pass the issue as a plea for peace and disarmament and they're not," his Democratic opponents not just Gov. Jerry Brown, but a candidate of the Jackson wing, like Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan will be saying: "We're for peace with security, and the president should go back and try harder."

If the president then refuses to renegotiate the amended treaty with the Soviets, he looks bad; if he does try, and fails, he can say, "I told you so," but does not look good if the Russians make concessions to the Senate that they would not make to the president, he looks terrible.

The "saline" solution? The president and the Soviets will hold the Senate amendments in abeyance until after the U.S. election. That's not bad for U.S. security; the newly elected president will then be dealing from strength.

Spasm of pessimism passes through U.S.

©1979 N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Nothing fundamental has changed in this country in the last few weeks, but suddenly the mood seems different: more confused, quarrelsome, and pessimistic. The basic facts about fuel, food, prices, jobs and politics remain about the same — that is to say, not very good — but the public perception of the facts has changed from indifference and irritation to anxiety.

What is it that has brought about this turn in the public mind? It is, I think, not only a lack of gas, but a lack of trust among the people in the leadership of their institutions and in one another; and therefore, a tendency to assume the worst.

frustrated owners are lining up to fill their tanks, and adding to the shortages they fear the oil companies.

The president blames the Congress. The Congress blames the president. The president accuses the oil companies of gouging the public for windfall profits. The oil companies blame the administration for regulating them too much. Senator Kennedy blames Carter for not regulating them enough. Everybody around here seems suspicious of everybody else, with some particular villains — the OPEC countries, and particularly Secretary of Energy Schlesinger, who is even blamed for making pipe smoking unpopular.

This contentious and conspiratorial atmosphere these days extends to other fields. It took 30 years to arrange a compromise peace between Israel and Egypt, but the exaggerated expectations of what was accomplished — by the vicious reaction of Saudi Arabia toward Egypt, and by the continuing and inevitable economic problems of Egypt and Israel.

Like-wise, the reaction here to the conclusion of a second strategic arms agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union, after seven years of hard bargaining, has produced no sense of achievement. It hasn't even introduced a careful analysis of the main question: whether the United States would be more secure with a SALT treaty or without it. Instead, we are having a bitter debate about the treaty's shortcomings, influenced and shortened by partisan politics.

All this dramatizes, and exaggerates, the national and international problems that are admittedly serious, but also emphasizes the negative — and erodes the natural confidence of the American people.

Actually, the divisions in the nation today are not as critical as they seem in the news. The headlines of the press or the sudden flashes of conflict on the TV screen. It is of course the duty of the opposition leaders in the Congress to oppose, to question, and compel answers to their doubts. But this conceals the larger area of agreement that exists on most fundamental political issues in Washington.

For example, the seven Republican candidates for the presidency are obviously not going along with President Carter now on his SALT agreement with the Soviet Union. They haven't even seen the text of the proposed treaty, and have honest doubts about its meaning.

They are all hedging their bets, waiting for the developments in the Middle East and for the outcome of the next month's summit meeting between Presidents Carter and Brezhnev in Vienna. Even if they agreed with Carter, they probably wouldn't say so, for these arguments will go on for months, and it is their express desire that get them invited on the national TV talk shows, where they get free time and get their faces and ideas before the public.

The name of the political game here now is publicity. Kennedy knows that the Congress will not approve his appeals for much larger taxes on the oil companies' wind-fall profits, or his national health insurance plan. But he believes, with some justification, that these will be major political issues in the 1980s, and meanwhile he is sort of supporting the president, while challenging him for the headlines and the cameras.

So everything for the time being is a little mixed up here. Carter is moving to the right, to the dismay of the liberal Democratic power centers that helped elect him, and even Ronald Reagan in his conversation with Bill Moyers on Public Television this week, sounded a little more moderate in his appeals for voters in the middle.

It could even be argued that this is, not all too bad. The gas crunch was bound to come, and the long lines of cars in California, have at least made the people pay attention to the problem of conservation that Carter has been trying to dramatize, without success, for years.

Nothing that has happened in the last few weeks has created a crisis but rather has merely brought the facts to the surface of public attention. The problems of fuel, of arms control and of the Middle East remain but they are probably more manageable than most people seem to think.

Election commission picks Tiernan as its chairman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Rep. Robert Tiernan, publicity rebuked for making $2,000 in personal calls on government telephones and sued for not paying his campaign bills, was elected chairman of the Federal Election Commission Thursday.

The six-member bipartisan commission elected the Rhode Island Democrat for a one-year term without debate to succeed Pennsylvania Republican Jean Alkins. The FEC elects its own chairman and usually alternates party membership.

Tiernan, who has served on the FEC since it was formed in 1975, was nominated by fellow Commissioner Victor Thomson.

Tiernan's election came while the FEC is under heavy attack from public interest groups and Congress — largely because it has not completed audits of the 1976 presidential election at a time when it should be gearing up for the 1980 campaign.

Tiernan still owes nearly $4,000 in debts from his 1974 House campaign when he was defeated. The FEC sets the regulations under which such debts can be written off.

Last year Washington's posh George Town Club sued Tiernan and won repayment of $1,300 he owed them for fundraisers held during the 1974 campaign.

In 1977 it was disclosed Tiernan used his FEC telephone over a 25 month period to make about $2,000 in personal telephone calls — most of them to run his bankrupt hockey club, the Rhode Island Reds.

Artist defends Eastland portrait

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Artist Charles Merrill Mount said Thursday his new Senate portrait clearly depicts Mississippi's James Eastland and not North Carolina's Sam Ervin because Eastland "has a nose like a lemon slice" while Ervin's is "more like a cucumber."

Mount, who is suing for payment, defended both the artistic and financial aspects of his painting at a news conference conducted in the hearing room of the Senate Judiciary Committee, where the portrait hangs.

Eastland, D-Miss., was a long-time chairman of the committee before he retired in 1978.

Although the portrait has been hanging since Oct. 7, 1978, the controversy surrounding it arose only last month when Mount, 51, of Arlington, Va., filed suit against the University of Mississippi Foundation, which commissioned it.

He had billed the commission for $15,450 for two pictures of Eastland, but was offered only $3,000 in payment. His standard price of $5,000 per portrait, plus frame, was well known, he said.

Bomb information at the library

By JOHN J. FIALKA
 @Washington Star
 WASHINGTON — A report containing precise details of the trigger mechanism of hydrogen bombs was on public file for more than four years in a government library in New Mexico.

The Department of Energy says the report should have been highly classified and is attempting to round up copies of the document that are known to have been removed from the library.

Duane C. Sewell, assistant secretary of energy for defense programs, admitted Wednesday that a 1975 declassification of the report "was a serious error."

The report gives the weight, size, configuration, placement and nuclear yield of various devices used by the Atomic Energy Commission in secret H-bomb testing in the mid-1950s.

Sewell told The Washington Star, which had obtained a copy of the report, that reprinting any parts of it could pose "serious national security problems" for the United States.

After receiving written assertions by the Energy Department that the documents were sensitive, The Star turned its copy over to a Senate subcommittee that has oversight responsibility for nuclear weapons.

In a letter, Peter Brush, general counsel for Sewell's office, warned that any reprinting of the document would amount to a violation of the Atomic Energy Act and would result in an automatic investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"We consider that this document contains restricted data that has never been declassified although perhaps erroneously marked as declassified," Brush said.

The report was found last week in the public stacks of the Energy Department's library at Los Alamos, N.M., by Dmitri A. Rotov, 23, an economics major on leave from Harvard, who was working as a researcher for the American Civil Liberties Union.

Rotov, an amateur expert on nuclear weapons, is a familiar figure at the library, which also receives a steady stream of foreign visitors.

Last year Rotov provoked what the Energy Department referred to as a "thorough" re-examination of the same library stacks after emerging with the plans for the TX-7, a lightweight, highly efficient nuclear warhead used on early missiles.

Amendments back nuclear safeguards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amendments sponsored by Idaho Sens. Frank Church and James McClure to promote nuclear safety were combined and approved by the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee Thursday.

The amendments provide for $18 million to expand safety research for light water nuclear reactors and a $10 million "quick response" program to be available immediately in case of a mishap at any nuclear power plant in the country.

Subpoena powers demanded

By SCOTT MACLEOD
 MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (UPI) — President Carter's special commission investigating the Three Mile Island nuclear accident Thursday demanded Congress give it subpoena power to take testimony from state and utility company officials.

The Senate responded almost immediately, approving without objection a subpoena power resolution. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., had rushed through his Judiciary Committee. The resolution would not take effect, however, until approved by the House, which next meets on Monday.

The Kennedy resolution "did not contain a provision proposed by Carter last week to give the commission the power to close meetings to the press and the public."

John Kemeny, chairman of the President's Commission on the Accident at Three Mile Island, said Thursday the subpoena power and authority to take testimony under oath were necessary to preserve the panel's credibility, and that commission members might resign if the powers were not granted.

"I hereby call publicly on the federal executive branch and Congress to give us the powers the American people want us to have," said Kemeny, president of Dartmouth College and a former Albert Einstein assistant.

"If the powers are not given to us over an extended period of time, I would suspect the whole commission would resign," he said.

Kemeny, president of Dartmouth College and a former Albert Einstein assistant.

"At the White House, press secretary Joe Egan said the president was made aware of the situation, and would like it resolved as expeditiously as possible."

Fowell said Carter still expected the panel to meet its six-month deadline for reporting to him.

Commission member Lloyd McBride, president of the United Steelworkers of America, said he did not want to give official witnesses a "license to fool around with the truth."

"In the public's eye we would be a pussycat commission (without the powers)," added Commissioner Carolyn Lewis, associate professor of journalism at Columbia University.

The panel was to begin Thursday an on-site investigation of the causes of the March 28 nuclear accident and how officials responded. Gov. Dick Thornburgh and three other high-ranking state officials had been slated to testify Thursday, and officials of Metropolitan Edison Co., part-owner and operator of the plant, were to appear Friday.

However, after 8-3 approval of a motion from Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt to delay that testimony, the panel voted 11-0 to take no testimony from state or power company officials until the "subpoena legislation" is approved. Kemeny, as chairman, did not vote.

"To interview without the use of subpoena power and sanctions of perjury would probably be a mistake," Babbitt said.

Supporting both motions was commission member Ann Trunk, a resident of Middletown, who must find a babysitter for her six children while she serves as a citizens' representative on the panel.

"I think the community will feel more comfortable if we have subpoena power," she said. "We have been lied to. We have to get the truth. We should tell Washington we won't move until we get subpoena power."

It was the second commission's first visit to Middletown, where on April 1, after touring the stricken facility, Carter said he would be "personally responsible for investigating and informing the American people about Three Mile Island."

Gerry Harley edges past his own record

A record by a whisker

LONDON (UPI) — Gerry Harley, the world's fastest barber, beat his own world record for quick-shaves — but this time only by a hair.

Harley shaved 203 faces in 60 minutes Wednesday, two more than he did for his last performance and 73 more than when he first set the record April 1, 1971.

And he ran out of volunteers. Assistants drafted a host of young college men, draped them in towels and gave each of them a two-blade safety razor while they waited for Harley's touch.

But some of the volunteers got bored with the exercise and left before Harley could whip the hair off their cheeks and chins.

Efforts to pluck more volunteers from the streets met with mixed success so some of those already committed to the exercise ended up being shaved as many as seven times.

Cheryl Tiegs' husband in cocaine bust

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — Cheryl Tiegs' husband, director Stan Dragoti, arrested when customs agents found about an ounce of cocaine hidden under his shirt, has admitted another cache of the drug found aboard his plane belonged to him, judicial sources said Thursday.

Dragoti's admission may have been intended to protect his traveling companions, the sources said.

The American director was arrested Sunday while passing through Frankfurt with a group of Americans heading for the Cannes film festival in France.

Judge Werner Dinde, who will preside over a hearing to determine whether Dragoti must remain in jail pending trial, Thursday said any bail was unlikely because Dragoti is a non-German.

Investigating magistrate Wolfgang Jakubski said two West German attorneys representing Dragoti called on him Wednesday to offer to pay bail, but he opposed any release.

"Dragoti has a great penalty to expect ... as much as two or three years," Jakubski said.

Capricorns should perk up property with repairs

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is the day to sit back and observe what others are doing and to avoid expressing any critical opinions of those activities which you do not like. By being quiet and getting in tune with those about you, you could make considerable headway.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care not to annoy others in any way today. Elevate your thoughts to that which is inspiring. Steer clear of arguments in any social contacts you make.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Showing admiration for bigwigs who have done you many favors is wise and staves off any possible misunderstandings. Be more willing to compromise on some bill instead of flatly refusing to pay it and get good results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study well into new situations and don't jump recklessly into anything as yet. Your hunches are not very good now, so don't follow them implicitly — use mature judgment.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listening carefully to advice of closest tie can bring about fine results. Know what your obligations are and how best to handle them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take time to be kind to a partner who is irritated and needs gentle handling. Don't try to do your own thing at a difficult nature today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get right to work on whatever is important and take advice from partners also and this becomes a very productive day. Take time to improve health in some way. Forget the social for now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Finish tasks before going out for recreation. Relax and be more willing to meet expectations of loved ones and increase mutual happiness. Avoid a known troublemaker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) If you are considerate of those who dwell with you, you gain their understanding and affection. Not a good day for entertaining.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your best success today comes from writing, communicating with others on the phone, etc. Regular associates will be very willing to cooperate now. Make the most of this.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Perk up your property with needed repairs. Try to please others more. Be objective if you have problems you need to solve.

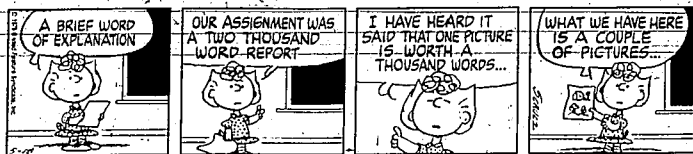

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Sharpen up your appearance so that you can get out socially later and make a fine impression. Plan how to save more money for possible emergencies later on.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go to an expert for the advice you need and then use it wisely. A loved one needs help with some problems, so be sure to help where you can. Show you are devoted and thoughtful.

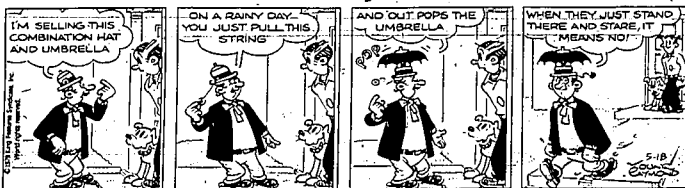

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have different ideas and views from others and should be taught about whatever is standard, which combined with the unusual can make for pioneering that could prove successful throughout the lifetime.

What's what

Watching moon coming over horizon this way can be pain in neck; check engineers' pay

Scholars years ago determined that the moon on the horizon looks only half as big when it's viewed upside down. To see it this way, those scholars had to stand on their heads. To get a clear sighting free of surrounding construction, they undertook the research from atop a university lab building. It was utterly scientific. I have no doubt. Still, the picture of those scholars all standing on their heads in a row on top of a building just as the moon was coming up, this picture lingers in the imagination. Close your eyes. Do you see them? Do you hear an eery howling in the distance?

The Illinois Department of Public Aid routinely sends out a form letter that reads: "Your assistance benefits will be discontinued. Reason: It has been reported to our offices that you expired..." These letters are addressed to the dead.

SNAKE EATER

O. Didn't them used to be a circus sideshow character who actually ate live rattlesnakes?
A. Believe you refer to that old faker Herman J. Oberschler. He was billed as Bosco the Snake Eater. It was all in a day's work for Herman to eat about 100 bearnaises stuffed into frankfurter casings painted to look like rattlesnakes. His two-pronged talents included the ability of fuffage to paint the casings realistically and the ability to manipulate them so as to make them look alive.

Highest paid business executives in the country have engineering degrees. A study by the College Placement Council Foundation shows that.

Almost two-thirds of the victims of forcible rape were acquainted with their attacker before the crimes.

HAIR

Each hair on your head has a lifespan of about five years. After that, it falls out. And another starts growing in its place. If you're lucky, a hair grows about half an inch a month. So the ultimate length of any hair should be about 30 inches. This, in reply to a query as to why your hair doesn't grow down to your knees.

The typical baby whale at birth is about half its mother's size and weight. The buoyancy of the water that permits such. No dry-land mammal could navigate during pregnancy with a baby half her weight, that's clear.

High schools not relevant says education commissioner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Plunged by crime, overcrowded classes and a high drop-out rate, high schools are growing obsolete and no longer meet the needs of many students, U.S. Commissioner of Education Ernest Boyer said Thursday.

Boyer said the comprehensive high school most Americans attend after elementary instruction needs to be reformed to prepare students academically and also equip them for productive work.

"I believe the so-called comprehensive high school in this country is becoming obsolete," said Boyer in an address to the National Conference on Public Confidence and the Schools. Later, in a telephone interview, Boyer said, "There should be more specialized programs in high schools that relate to the special interests of students — specialties in arts, sciences, health care — so that students will be able to concentrate in areas that touch their own interests and talents."

In his speech, Boyer said these course deficiencies are part of the reason 25 percent of high school students leave before they graduate. He said that in some cities the number is 40 to 50 percent — "a national disgrace."

"Equally shocking is the climate in many of our urban schools," he said. About 20 percent of all senior high schools have five or more reported crimes each month. Eleven percent of secondary school students have something stolen from them every month.

A total of $600 million a year is spent on repairing school vandalism. Schools are "impossibly overcrowded," he said. In Columbus, Ohio, Boyer said, there is one student counselor for every 631 students. In New York City, the ratio is 942 to 1 — a situation Boyer called "pathetic."

All the crime, crowded classrooms and drop-outs have made student apathy a serious problem, he said. "Much of what is taught in school is relevant — but much is not," he said. He said while the world's nations grow more interdependent, the knowledge of those other countries and their cultures is "very, very small."

Progressive Conservative leader Joe Clark cheered in Montreal park

Trudeau appeals for help

TORONTO (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau appealed to citizens of Quebec Thursday to help him form a strong Liberal government to protect their French language rights and guarantee their share in Canada's wealth.

Trudeau told 300 people in a Montreal area park that it was only through a strong mandate that his 11-year-old government had been able to protect French Canadians in the past.

Both Trudeau and his principal opponent, Conservative leader Joe Clark, spoke in the Montreal area Thursday, campaigning for the May 22 election.

Trudeau said the French in Quebec would have been "eaten up" without protection in the constitution and French speaking people in other parts of Canada would have been "eaten up" without protection of the federal Official Languages Act.

"Quebecers can't hide themselves in Quebec," he said. "We want people from Quebec... who want a government that will speak for all Canadians, wherever they come from, no matter what language they speak."

Trudeau has campaigned hard on the theme that Canada needs a strong central government to deal with the oil-rich provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan and to handle the forthcoming Quebec referendum on independence from Canada.

"We know in a country as big as Canada, we need a strong government to maintain an equilibrium," said the 59-year-old prime minister said.

Mid-Africa massacre denied

PARIS (UPI) — The Central African Empire Thursday denied accusations by Amnesty International that Emperor Jean Bedel Bokassa's imperial police massacred up to 100 schoolboys, but the human-rights group stood by its statement.

The premier of the landlocked former French African colony, Henri Madoou, denied all massacre charges by Amnesty International and the newspaper Le Monde and said he was astonished that the accusations were made without sending investigators to Bangui.

"If in fact arrests were made during the demonstrations of last April 18, the 50 or so students and pupils apprehended, all of them over 16, were freed April 20 by order of his majesty the emperor," Madoou said.

Amnesty International, in a statement from its London headquarters, said it stood by its original report that the children "were killed by members of Emperor Bokassa's security forces after they were arrested in Bangui on April 18."

"Despite denials by the Central

African government, Amnesty International stated that in the past few days it had received independent confirmation of the killings, "this came from a number of authoritative sources though their identity cannot be disclosed for fear of retribution," Amnesty said.

Amnesty denied it had received an invitation from the Central African Empire to investigate conditions in the country. It said the invitation was still under consideration when it got news of the slayings.

NOTICE OF HEARINGS
DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT
ON THE WASTE ISOLATION PILOT PLANT (WIPP)

The Department of Energy's Idaho Operations Office announces that public hearings will be held on a draft environmental impact statement entitled, "Waste Isolation Pilot Plant (WIPP) DOE/EIS-0026-D." The statement was prepared to assess the environmental impact of the pending proposal to design, construct, and operate a licensed waste isolation pilot plant for the permanent disposal of radioactive transuranic (TRU) wastes for research and development on various high-level waste forms in a mined repository, and for a disposal demonstration in an intermediate-scale facility for thousands of spent fuel assemblies for commercial nuclear power reactors. The reference WIPP facility will be located on the site now stored at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL). A complete notice of these hearings with procedures to be followed appeared in the Federal Register April 18, 1979.

The hearing will commence at 9:00 a.m. on June 5, 1979, at the Intermountain Science Experience Center, 1776 Science Center Drive, Idaho Falls, Idaho. Hearings will also be held on June 6-7, 1979 in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The proposed facility is being considered for siting in Eddy County, New Mexico.

The Department of Energy intends to use the WIPP EIS as the environmental input into future decisions concerning the proposed WIPP project. These include, but are not limited to, withdrawal of Federal and State land in the Eddy County area; moving into the final phase of detailed design and construction of the repository, including selection of a construction contractor and long lead time equipment procurement; and submission of a comprehensive license application to the NRC should licensing be authorized by the Congress. The purpose of the hearings is to afford an opportunity for public comments regarding the draft statement. The agency will explain the background and purpose of the WIPP and the contents of the draft environmental statement during the hearing.

The hearings will be conducted by a Presiding Officer who has not been named yet.

Persons, organizations or governmental agencies wishing to appear and make a presentation in the proceedings should send requests to Mr. Eugene Beckert, WIPP Program Office, Mail Stop 8-107, Washington, D.C. 20545 (301-353-3253), not later than the close of business on May 18, 1979. The person making the request should provide a concise summary of the proposed oral presentation and a telephone number where he or she can be reached. Each person selected to be heard will be notified by DOE before May 23, 1979, of the time allotted to their presentation and their presentation time during the hearings. After notification, each person selected to be heard must submit a copy of their proposed statement to the WIPP Program Office five days before the hearing date.

DOE reserves the right to arrange the schedule of presentations to be heard and to establish the procedures governing the conduct of the hearing. The length of each presentation may be limited, based on the number of persons requesting to be heard. Questions may be asked of participants only by the conducting the hearing and there will be no cross-examination of persons presenting statements. Any person in the audience who wishes to ask a question of the hearing, submit a statement, or make a comment to the presiding officer, the presiding officer will determine whether the question is relevant and whether the time limitations permit it to be presented for answer. Any further procedural rules needed for the proper conduct of the hearing will be announced by the presiding officer.

Interested parties are also invited to submit written comments with respect to the EIS to the WIPP Program Office at the Washington, D.C. address listed above. The envelope should be marked with the designation "Draft EIS on WIPP." All comments and related information should be received by DOE by July 6, 1979, in order to insure consideration. Any information or data considered by the person furnishing it to be confidential must be so identified and submitted in writing. Any materials not accompanied by a statement of confidentiality will be considered to be nonconfidential. DOE reserves the right to determine the confidential status of the information or data and to treat it according to its determination.

A transcript of the hearing will be made and the entire record of the hearing, including the transcript will be retained by DOE and made available for inspection at the DOE Freedom of Information Office, Room 7A-152, Forrestal Building, 1000 Independence Avenue SW, Washington, D.C. 20540, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Additional DOE public comment transcripts will also be available for inspection at the Freedom of Information centers. Any person may purchase a copy of the transcript from the court reporter. A limited number of copies of the draft environmental statement will be made available at the hearing. In advance of the hearings, single copies are available by writing to the Public Affairs Office, Idaho Operations Office, U. S. Department of Energy, 350 Second Street, Idaho Falls, Idaho 83401.

LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
... testifies at hearing

Evidence by auditor presented

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government auditor said Thursday Daniel Minchew, Sen. Herman Talmadge's former aide, used no more than $17,655 of the $39,000 that passed through a secret bank account Minchew allegedly set up for Talmadge.

The remaining money, which Minchew says went to Talmadge or his family, remains unaccounted for, said Lawrence Sullivan of the General Accounting Office.

Talmadge has denied any knowledge of the secret account at Riggs National Bank and has accused Minchew of embezzling the campaign contributions and falsely claimed Senate expense money that went into the account.

Sullivan, testifying before the Senate Ethics Committee, presented a detailed analysis of Minchew's financial dealings for the years 1972-77.

He said $17,655 came from the secret account and was used for Minchew's private debts.

Of that amount, $5,000 was used by Minchew for about four months and then deposited in Talmadge's regular campaign account.

Of the approximately $21,000 remaining in the Riggs account, Sullivan said, "I can't certify that Daniel Minchew didn't use all the money, but it did not show up in his financial transactions based on our review."

Proxmire pulls a switch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who has given out 54 Golden Fleece awards for bureaucratic waste and bungling, pulled a switch Thursday and bestowed a rare Award of Merit on the Army and one of its assistant secretaries.

It was only the seventh merit award Proxmire has made since 1975, the year he inaugurated Golden Fleece. This one went to the Army and Dr.

Ferry Pierre, assistant secretary for research, development and acquisition. In a statement, Proxmire explained:

"The Army and Dr. Percy get the special Merit Award for presenting to Congress the most readable and honest presentation in my memory on the needs of the U.S. Army."

"Coming from me, this award may surprise the Army, but it is well deserved."

Figures on personal income, factory use slowdown hints

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans' personal income advanced during April at the slowest pace since President Carter took office and factory capacity dropped sharply, the government said Thursday.

Coupled with Wednesday's twin reports that both industrial output and housing/construction fell last month, many private economists now believe the United States may be hard-pressed to avoid a recession later this year.

The administration is slightly more optimistic.

The Commerce Department reported personal income rose by just $8 billion — or 0.3 percent — to $1.86 trillion during April.

It was the smallest gain since January, 1977 when Carter was sworn in as the nation's chief executive.

By comparison, wages and salaries of Americans plus such other monetary factors as Social Security income climbed 1.2 percent during March and 0.8 percent in January.

In a separate report, the Federal Reserve Board said U.S. factories operated at 84.9 percent of capacity during April, a steep drop from the 86.1 percent March level.

"The economy has definitely cooled off," said one government analyst. "No one can deny there is weakness. It could be the harbinger of a recession or it may not. It's anybody's guess."

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, has said a recession is a certainty unless inflation falls below the double-digit level.

The Commerce Department said April's slower income growth was "partly due to work stoppages," which reduced wages and salaries in trucking, manufacturing and air transportation by about $5.5 billion! In addition, flooding in some sections of the country chipped off another $1 billion in construction pay.

Personal income is a closely watched economic indicator. When income rises, it means there are more dollars available for consumers to spend in groceries, department stores and other retail establishments.

The Fed said the drop in factory capacity reflected declines in industrial production caused primarily by last month's trucking strike.

Automobile production was heavily affected by the strike because there was no way for auto factories to obtain parts.

Exhaust problems bring Chevrolet recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency Thursday ordered General Motors to recall another 67,900 Chevrolet Chevettes which it said do not meet clean air exhaust rules.

The recall brings to 107,000 the number of '79 model Chevettes which have had to be recalled from dealers because of the problem.

The latest recall involves Chevettes with automatic transmissions and a standard 1.6 liter engine. A similar recall in April involved 40,000 cars with the same transmission but with a "high output" 1.6 liter engine.

"In both cases," the EPA said, "the cars were exceeding the carbon monoxide limit." Chevette assembly plants are located in Wilmington, Del., and Lakewood, Ga.

"The agency said GM has informed it that it has changed its production line procedure to correct the problem."

Firm beef prices forecast

ROME (UPI) — The U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization predicted Thursday world beef prices would stay firm this year well above 1976 levels because demand for imports was still outpacing supplies.

FAO's intergovernmental group on meat also predicted 1979 meat output would expand at last year's pace of 2 percent with rapidly rising pork and poultry meat output offsetting a further decline in beef. No increase is expected for sheep and goat meat, the group said.

The group said meat consumption is likely to increase, with smaller supplies and higher prices of beef encouraging a switch to greater consumption of pork and poultry.

It said combined production in major beef trading nations — the United States, Canada, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Argentina and Uruguay — will drop to 17 million tons in 1979 from an estimated 19 million tons last year.

Futures finish mixed after up-and-down day

CHICAGO — Live cattle turned in strong gains in early trading but other meats were weaker in commodity futures trading Thursday.

Grains were mixed as the most deferred contracts. There, gains of 15 to 100 points were posted in light trading.

Feeder cattle sold off after an early rally and closed lower for the day save in spot May and two distant contracts.

Live hogs closed down the 150 point limit in nearby June while other months ended 137 to 35 points down.

Heavier marketings at major terminals provided the pressure.

Pork bellies closed 190 to 37 points off after a drop in the first three months to contract lows.

Wheat finished 6 to 5 cents lower under pressure from the decision to release the farmer-held wheat reserves. Corn reversed its recent decline and moved higher with the help of strong covering, finishing 3 to 1 1/2 cents higher.

Soybeans emerged from the doldrums, scoring substantial gains and advancing 4 1/2 to 10 cents. Meal gained 3.70 to 1.50 while oil finished from 15 points up to unchanged.

New York Sugar 11 closed 3 points lower to a point higher in dull featureless trading. Spot July was off 3 points at 8.06 cents a pound.

New York Comex silver closed off 220 to up 740 points with forward months showing the most decline. Short covering provided a brief recovery from a lower opening, but prices sagged again before late short covering ascribed to steady gold prices.

Impact of rail cutback not certain

MOSCOW (UPI) — The manager of Polatch Corp.'s Polatch Mill has refused to speculate how much the discontinuance of the Boyllville, Wash., Milwaukee Road route will affect his operation.

But Paul Tobin did say "Trucks do provide an alternative for us to some degree at the present time but not to the full extent that would be necessary."

The Interstate Commerce Commission has proposed, in its plan to reorganize the financially ailing Milwaukee Road, cutting the route.

"Somebody is going to have to present some viable alternative," he said, adding the possibility of severe cutbacks or termination of operations is remote.

Oil issues lead stocks higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks, aided oil industry issues, scored their biggest gain in seven weeks Thursday amid investor hopes that interest rates and inflation would ease soon if the economy slows down.

Trading was fairly active. The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rallied to gain 2.60 points Wednesday, climbed 14.47 points to 842.95, the sharpest gain since it rose 15.54 points March 27. The Dow had fallen sharply since reaching a 1970 high of 878.72 on April 10 and brokers said that many stocks attractively priced for bargain hunters.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose .65 to 56.25 and the price of a share gained 46 cents. Advances routed declines, 1,167 to 348, among the 1,903 issues traded at 4 p.m. EDT. Traders were encouraged by signs the economy may be cooling off enough to ease pressure on the Federal Reserve to tighten credit. Should that happen, interest rates might ease.

Recent government reports showed April housing starts and permits, industrial production, factory operating rates and personal income either declined or showed small increases. The only problem with the slowdown theory is that these figures were heavily influenced by labor strife in the trucking industry and at United Airlines.

The dollar, however, showed considerable strength abroad amid reports the Energy Department had switched policy and was encouraging companies to buy more overseas.

That move apparently was aimed at alleviating gasoline shortages in California and selected other states. Observers were concerned widespread shortages could disrupt industrial production.

Big Dow volume totaled 30,550,000 shares, up from the 28,350,000 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index scored 2.62 to 173.84 and the price of a share climbed 21 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ composite OTC index gained 1.09 points to 130.44.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter at 4 p.m. totaled 35,573,400 shares, compared with 27,252,528 Wednesday.

Oil drilling and service stocks won attention. Baker International gained 1 1/2 to 41. Fluor Corp. 1 3/4 to 39 3/4; Hughes Tool 1 3/4 to 49 3/4, and Schlumberger 1 1/2 to 72 3/4.

Among the oils, Superior Oil rose 1/2 to 38 1/4; Murphy Oil 3/4 to 52 1/4; Exxon 1 1/2 to 51; Mobil 2 1/4 to 70 1/4; Marathon 1 1/2 to 35 1/4; Ohio Standard 2 1/2 to 32 1/4; California Standard 1 1/2 to 47 1/4; Ohio Standard 2 1/2 to 50 1/4, and Cities Service 1 1/2 to 61 1/4.

Volatile Charter Co., the second most active NYSE-listed issue, added 1 1/2 to 17 1/2. The company Tuesday signed an agreement to acquire Carey Energy Co. for $500 million.

Amerasia Hess, a big winner lately, was the third most active issue, up 1 1/2 to 35 1/4. Purchased reports said analysts believe the oil firm will report strong earnings.

Simplicity Pattern was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1 to 12 after a block trade of 197,400 shares crossed at 11. Texas Utilities was third, up 1 to 19.

Among the blue-chips, IBM gained 2 1/2 to 309 1/4 and Du Pont 2 1/4 to 136 1/4. Alcoa, American Telephone & Telegraph, General Motors, International Paper and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing were point-sized winners.

F.W. Woolworth, a Dow average member, gained 2 to 28. The company is engaged in a legal battle trying to block a takeover bid by Braxton Ltd. of Toronto. Braxton stock rose 1/2 to 19 1/4 on the Amex.

Gasoline thefts on increase as prices move past $1 mark

By United Press International
Gasoline thieves ripped off pumps in Florida, Michigan, and Massachusetts this week as prices topped the $1-a-gallon barrier in at least three states, UPI's nationwide Gas Watch survey found Thursday.

Police reported gasoline heists have replaced CB radio thefts as the No. 1 larceny crime in Jacksonville, Fla., and a Massachusetts official warned station owners to lock their tanks because "there's an easy buck to be made on hot gas."

"Tanker trucks siphoned off 4,300 gallons of gasoline this week from two service stations and a commercial plant in Lowell, Mass.

Motorists helped themselves to $279 worth of gasoline at a Detroit service station, where attendants had left the pumps unlocked, Detroit police said they had received complaints recently that drivers were casing stations after closing time.

With Sunday closings hitting the 90 percent mark in some parts of the nation, attendants had left the pumps unlocked. Detroit police said they had received complaints recently that drivers were casing stations after closing time.

The solution to the shortage is to let gas prices go up," a Richmond, Va., station operator said, but the gasoline crime wave could also get a boost from an average 2 cent jump in pump prices around the country this week.

The Shortstop Market chain, with more than 135 self-service outlets in northern California, had the steepest price in the survey at $1.199 a gallon for regular leaded gas. Identical to its bargain price for a gallon of milk.

"We solemnly swear that when gasoline becomes plentiful again, we will once again have the lowest gas prices in town," said John Roscoe, president of 24-hour chain, which has posted a sign saying "Please limit your purchase" outside its Davis, Calif., pumps.

In Boston, a Beacon Hill station broke through the $1 barrier and boosted regular leaded to $1.008 a gallon and regular unleaded to $1.048.

"I've just gone up along with everybody else," the Beacon Hill station owner said. "It's just that somebody had to be the first to go over a dollar in New England, and it's me."

A full-service Texaco station in Honolulu held the line for the third consecutive week at $1.02 a gallon for its premium leaded. But nearby stations complained bitterly that cost-conscious motorists were flooding their pumps with unwanted business.

Even an Exxon self-service station in Dallas, with the best buy in the survey at 79.3 cents for regular leaded, was feeling the price squeeze. The station hiked prices by 3 cents a gallon this week.

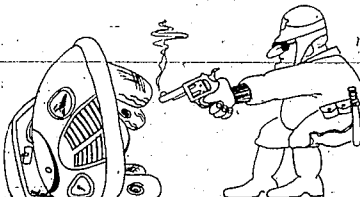

A spot check of 34 stations showed pump prices climbed by as much as 5 cents a gallon this week in Oklahoma, 3 cents in Utah, and 2 cents in Colorado, Missouri, Wisconsin and New England. Motorists in the Dakotas, Arizona and Florida watched prices inch up by about a penny. "We can't keep up with gas prices," moaned Hawaii's Consumer Protection Office, which will begin checking pumps once a week instead of monthly.

The Jacksonville, Fla., police said the number of gasoline thefts began creeping upward about three months ago and accelerated as pump prices escalated. A Florida station owner now is losing about $300 a month to gas crooks, compared with only $50 a month last year.

"Instead of robbing banks, they're turning to gas stations," a Lowell, Mass. police officer said. "But at least there won't be any shooting."

Rupert sewage problems multiplying

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Problems related to the $6 million sewage treatment plant are growing in a number of directions.

Mayor W. F. Whitton said not only several landowners in the vicinity of the lagoon system claiming damages as a result of a recent cell wall break, but also the state and federal funding may be denied.

In a meeting Tuesday night, the city council learned two county residents are claiming $178,941 as a result of damage to fields, loss of soil and damage to irrigation pumps after the break in a lagoon wall allowed 30 million gallons of partially treated effluent to escape.

Part of the effluent reached the property of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Crane and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Shaw. The Shaws estimate damages at $45,000 and the Cranes at $123,941.

City officials denied the claims for damages but turned the claims over to their insurance company. There is still a question as to responsibility in the failure of the newly-constructed lagoon cell walls.

Whitton read a letter to the council in which the director of the Environmental Protection Agency in Idaho, Warren McFall, advised the council the federal government will pay only a small portion of the costs of the project because of inadequacies in lagoon construction.

The state and federal agencies had been expected to pay 90 percent of the treatment plant costs and the city only 10 percent.

In the letter, McFall reminded the city the state and federal agencies do not have to pay if construction does not meet their specifications.

McFall said rip-rap work on the road into the lagoon site was "very poorly done" and more than half of the rip-rap work failed to meet federal specifications.

Other substandard work listed by McFall's letter included the absence of slope on the shoulder of the road as specified. McFall said the government would not help pay for the rip-rap on the roadway job.

The letter also stated drilling and blasting of rock in one of the lagoon cells was not necessary once the extent of the rock problem was known. McFall was also critical of the fact the EPA was not notified immediately of a rock problem encountered during construction of one of the lagoon cells.

The council members indicated the city will not accept responsibility for the rip-rap problem but did not specifically blame for the situation.

Danny Fosdick, project engineer for the project engineering firm of Hamilton and Veal is preparing a response to the letter from McFall, Whitton said.

Another claim has been filed against the city in connection with the lagoon cell rupture March 18. The A and B Irrigation District has asked the city to pay for the cost of removing water from the district's drain well after effluent reportedly flooded the well.

Refunds expected shortly

BOISE — If your state income tax refunds seem slow in arriving, they are.

But it's not as bad as last year. And tax relief, according to the State Department of Revenue and Taxation, is spelled eight weeks.

"Well, it's an eight week perimeter, give or take a few days," Steve Miller said, explaining the time it takes for an Idaho tax return to be processed and dropped in the mail. Miller, the department's director for revenue operations, said that's really a short period.

"Last year it was 12 or more weeks," he said.

Delays in 1978 were caused largely by adoption of a new computer data processing system, Miller said.

This year's returns are going out more rapidly even with a heavier work load. In calendar year 1978, 234,000 Idaho tax returns were processed by the department. To date, 280,000 have been filed in 1979, with another 10,000 to 15,000 returns expected to be filed by the end of the year, Miller said.

Delays are also caused by tax returns which contain errors or require special attention, Miller said. Last year about 25 percent of Idaho tax returns fell in this category. This year, it is down to 15 percent.

"We redesigned the form," Miller said, explaining the decrease.

But even if 1979 is better than 1978, Miller acknowledged Idaho returns aren't processed as rapidly as those sent to the federal government.

"Basically they have more manpower and equipment than we do," he said. Idaho is operating at "about maximum capacity" for the manpower and equipment it has, he said.

Final ruling on new house due Monday

TWIN FALLS — Gene Huggins should know by Monday if he can build his new home on the Snake River Canyon rim or if he must abide by a 50-foot setback recommended in the Twin Falls County zoning ordinance.

Huggins wants to build his home about 20 feet from the canyon wall north of Filer and has obtained a geologist's report stating the condition of the canyon wall there is safe to at least 20 feet within the rim.

An hearing was held by the Twin Falls County Commissioners Thursday morning for Huggins, who opposed an earlier denial of his request by the county planning and zoning commission.

Merit E. Leonard, chairman of the county commission, said the zoning board denied the plan on a basis of the county ordinance.

The board also noted that both engineers and a canyon study committee have warned against locating structures any closer than 50 feet and have recommended studies be made on conditions of the canyon rim even if housing is to be located 50 feet from the edge.

Leonard said discrepancies apparently exist among local authorities as to how close to a structure were permitted too close to the canyon rim and injuries or death resulted.

Following the hearing, commissioners delayed a decision on the appeal until 11 a.m. Monday in order to clarify the legal responsibilities in the case.

Leroy rescission suit attacked

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Attorney General David Leroy's suit on rescission of the state's ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment was of "doubtful legitimacy" and "should be seriously questioned," the Idaho League of Women Voters board said Thursday.

The unanimous vote on the statement came as the league prepares for its state convention in Twin Falls today and Saturday, expected to be attended by more than 10 percent of the league's 500 Idaho members.

But the league's state board of directors said no formal recommendation for action will be made until a legal analysis of Leroy's suit is completed by the national league headquarters.

Leroy's suit, filed earlier this month and joined by the Arizona attorney general, questions whether a state can rescind earlier ratification of a proposed constitutional amendment, and if so under what conditions that rescission can take place.

The league directors raised two specific objections to Leroy's action. Of major concern, their statement said, is "the ripeness of the issue of rescission" prior to ratification by the required 38 states.

"It is possible, the statement said, that unless the required number of state ratifications is achieved, the Supreme Court will not consider the case if it comes up to the court on the basis of the issue not being ripe."

The state board also objected to the expense to Idaho taxpayers of Leroy's action.

"The expenses of the outside law firms already contracted to brief the case, the expenses in time and travel to the office of the attorney general and court expenses are all significant expenses to the taxpayer," the board said, adding "the cost to be incurred in a case of doubtful legitimacy should be seriously questioned."

Blood pressure clinic — A free blood pressure screening clinic will be held today from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. on the downtown mall in Twin Falls.

The blood pressure screening is being offered in conjunction with National High Blood Pressure Month which is now being observed.

The South Central District Health Department is conducting the program to give everyone an opportunity to have his blood pressure checked at no charge.

Dr. Wayne Carter, medical director of the health district, urged residents to take advantage of the free service today in front of the Penney's store on the mall.

Carter said a person should have his blood pressure checked at least annually to protect against heart disease, kidney failure and vascular disease.

Two-car accident — Three persons were treated for injuries Wednesday night following a two-car accident at the intersection of U.S. Highways 93 and 30, west of Twin Falls.

Twin Falls County sheriff's officers reported an eastbound vehicle driven by Brian Lee Beeson, 26, of Bull, and a westbound vehicle operated by April Jesette Price, 31, of Blackfoot, collided at the highway junction about 6:40 p.m.

Officers quoted Beeson as saying he looked for traffic pulling onto U.S. 30 from U.S. 93 as he approached the intersection and that the westbound vehicle turned left into his path as he entered the intersection.

Both drivers suffered minor injuries as did Rebecca Hoobler, 35, a passenger in the Blackfoot vehicle. All three were taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance. They were released following emergency treatment.

Tuesday night he said he was convinced D'Nealian was a good system.

The board Tuesday also approved new social studies textbooks recommended by a faculty curriculum committee.

Old-time roundup — Idaho State Police and Jerome County sheriff's officers got a taste of the Old West Thursday.

A trailer carrying 36 head of cattle tipped over on I-80 and the law officers had to perform a small roundup — some of it on horseback.

Sheila Eliza Hall said the driver, Bill Ester Barnhart, 50, of Hagerman, was uninjured but he was cited for drunken driving.

The accident occurred about 30 miles east of Jerome about 5:13 p.m., when Barnhart apparently drifted off the highway and swerved to correct the situation, Hall said. The sudden swerving rolled the rear trailer and released 36 head of cattle. Another 35 head remained in the back of the truck and several animals were seriously injured in the accident.

Cattle that escaped scattered as far as two miles.

State Police and Jerome Sheriff's officers rounded up many of the cattle with their police cars, but the cattle owner, The Burley Livestock Commission Co., had to bring in some men on horseback to secure the rest of the scared animals.

Hall said one of his deputies abandoned his police car to ride his own horse and help with the roundup.

It took about two hours, but the cattle were corralled and the Interstate cleared of men, cars, trucks, trailers and cattle.

Motorcyclist killed — A Filer motorcyclist was killed Wednesday night when his vehicle left U.S. Highway 30 west of here and flipped end over end twice.

The victim, Lester Leroy Bledsoe, 41, was traveling east about 11:45 p.m. at the time of the accident. Cpl. James Whitehead of the Idaho State Police said, as Bledsoe entered a curve about two miles west of Filer, the machine failed to negotiate the curve, left the north side of the roadway and went out of control.

Bledsoe, who was not wearing a helmet, was thrown from the machine on the first roll over. County Coroner Cloyce Edwards said the man died almost instantly of massive head injuries.

Handwriting system — The Twin Falls School Board has unanimously approved a new handwriting system for students from kindergarten through eighth grade.

Opposition to the "D'Nealian" program, which will cost the district $2,000 for textbooks and teacher training, was heaviest among teachers and parents in the Sawtooth Elementary School area. A majority of teachers in the school district approved of the switch, however.

Board member Robert Knighton had questioned the plan last week, asking for more time to investigate alternative writing programs.

Nothing found after report of air mishap

BURLEY — Cassia County sheriff's officers made a ground and air search in the Sublett area Wednesday night after receiving a report of a downed aircraft but found nothing.

Under Sheriff William Crystal said a truck driver on the Interstate highway reported seeing a plane with the nose up but black smoke pouring out the back. The trucker told officers the plane appeared to lose altitude as it disappeared from sight.

The report was received about 8:30 p.m.; Crystal said, and several four-wheel-drive units went to the area to search. A helicopter also flew over the area before total darkness.

Crystal said no evidence of a crash could be found and information from Mountain Home and Hill Air Force bases indicated both had jet trainers on maneuvers in that locality.

"We also checked with Civil Air Patrol officials," Crystal said, "and they told us the black smoke is normal for a jet when making a turn."

Murder hearing finishes

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — The preliminary hearing for a Twin Falls man charged with second degree murder ended Thursday after the defense attorney put his only three witnesses on the stand.

At the close of the hearing, Magistrate Mel Edwards allowed attorneys to submit their final arguments in writing no later than next Thursday.

Edwards said he expects to rule by the following Friday or Monday whether Tisdale will be held for trial.

Attorney James May called only three witnesses Thursday morning in defense of his client, Charles Patrick Tisdale, 31, of Twin Falls, who is charged with second degree murder in a January shooting here.

May called three law enforcement officers including dispatchers from the sheriff's office and police station and Twin Falls County Deputy Sheriff Buddy Devesse.

The witnesses testified as to a delay in getting officers to the Tisdale home where David Nylander, 27, of Boise, was fatally shot on the night of Jan. 18.

In the four-day preliminary hearing, May has questioned and cross-examined witnesses to show police and ambulances were delayed in reaching the scene of the shooting because of an improper address message.

Tisdale called Magic Valley Ambulance personnel following the shooting, according to testimony, but the ambulance driver believed he said Highland rather than Highland.

When the ambulance and police found the rupture address Nylander was pronounced dead at the scene from a bullet wound in the neck, witnesses said.

Officers testified Tisdale told them he shot the victim because the victim was molesting Tisdale's wife and Tisdale was attempting to protect her.

Taped interviews in which Tisdale answered questions from officers about the shooting were played in court.

The tapes, introduced by Prosecution Attorney Jeff Stoker, included statements from Tisdale saying he shot Nylander and telling of incidents leading up to the shooting and his efforts to call police and an ambulance following the shooting.

When Wrigley winds blow, balls will fly

CHICAGO (UPI) — Aided by a 18-mile-per-hour wind blowing out to left field, Philadelphia and Chicago turned the national pastime into a thrilling assembly of fireworks on Saturday night by belting a record-tying 11 home runs between them, including three by the Cubs' Dave Kingman, as the Phillies squared out a 23-22 victory on Mike Schmidt's 10th inning homer.

The 45 runs was four short of the major league record set by the same two teams at Wrigley Field in 1922. The 11 home runs equaled a record set by the Cubs and Phillies in 1908, and the 50 hits, which included 22 for extra bases, was two short of the National League record for two teams in an extra inning contest. The Phillies tied a club record for most runs in a game previously set on

Aug. 25, 1922, against the Cubs. They also set a club record for most total bases and most home runs allowed. Schmidt's homer in the 10th off losing reliever Bruce Sutter — the Cubs' sixth pitcher — was his second of the game and 14th of the season. Bob Boone drove in five runs for the Phillies, including three with a home run, and Garry Maddox and Pete Rose knocked in four runs apiece. Bill

Buckner, who had four hits, drove in seven runs for the Cubs and Kingman knocked in six. Larry Bowa had five of the Phillies' 24 hits. Buckner had a grand slam homer and Jerry Martin and Steve Ontiveros added solo blasts for the Cubs while Maddox and starting pitcher Randy Lerch also blasted home runs for the Phillies. Philadelphia scored seven runs in the first inning when Schmidt and Boone both unloaded three-run homers, but the Cubs came back with six runs in the first-inning, three coming on Kingman's first homer of the day. The Phillies scored eight runs in the third with Maddox contributing a three-run homer, and the Cubs trailed 17-4 going into the bottom of the fourth when Kingman hit a two-run homer and Steve Ontiveros followed with a solo blast. In the fifth the Phillies added four more runs, but the Cubs scored seven runs in their half of the inning: as Boone unloaded his grand slam and Martin belted a solo blast. Chicago added three more runs in the sixth, and after the Phillies got one back in the seventh, the Cubs tied the score in the eighth with a pair of runs.

Umpires say subs must go

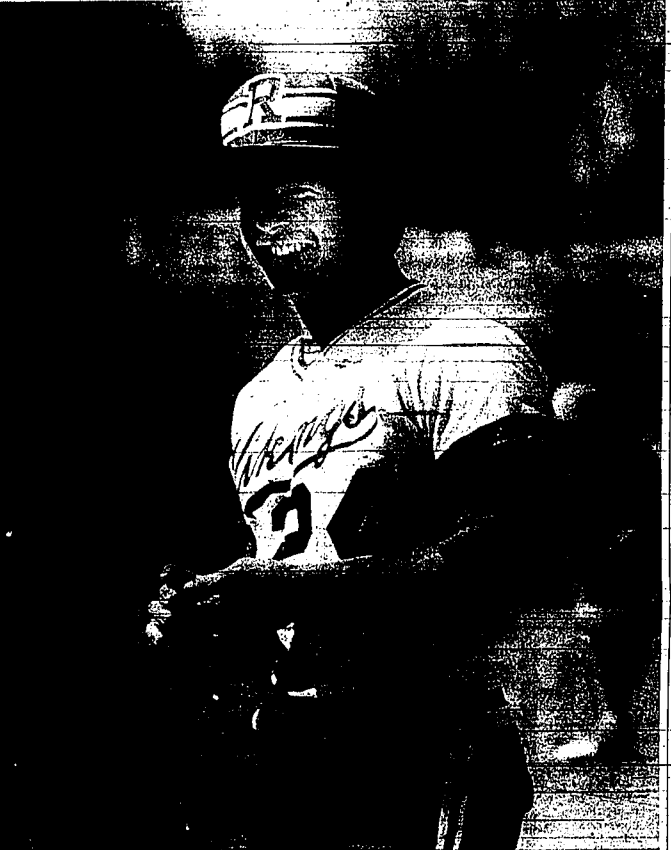

(By 1979 Chicago Sun-Times) Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn didn't say yes and didn't say no, but it's 99 per cent certain the 52 regular major league umpires will be back on duty Saturday. The ump's will not have to work with the substitutes who replaced them during their two-month struggle for higher wages and fringe benefits. Of the 52 subs hired by the American and National Leagues, either six or eight — the figure varies — are professionals recruited from the high minors and signed to major league contracts. These half dozen or so ump's will be vacation replacements for the regulars. Although not all of the issues have been resolved, each of the regulars will be given two weeks vacation during June, July and August. The league presidents don't want any subs working in the September stretch, when pennant fever is peaking. It is not known whether the league presidents, during the three-month vacation period, will attempt to mix any of the regulars with the subs. The mixture could be inflammatory. The regulars regard the subs as "scabs." "There is a lot of bad feelings against them," acknowledged veteran American League umpire Dave Phillips. "And it's not going to go away overnight. They're marked men." The subs probably will be lumped together and assigned the least important games. If eight are hired there will be two four-man crews, with each of these crews working a six-week major league schedule while the other works the minors. There also is the question of whether the subs will be welcomed into the union, the Assn. of Major League Umpires. Most of the regulars don't want them admitted, but they may have no choice. Attempting to hire a fellow employe from union membership is likely to prompt litigation.

Miller back tossing baseballs

Three years off does not slow him up

By RANDY FREY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Gary Miller hadn't pitched a baseball in three years, yet he showed up at a summer clinic last year at the College of Southern Idaho and earned himself a full scholarship to pitch at Ricks College. He was then named team captain before the season began, and following a 3-0 record on the hill he was named the teams most outstanding player. Miller often wonders just how good he could have been had he not gone on his LDS mission right after high school and been away from the sport for so long. The Twin Falls High School graduate spent two years in Munich, Germany, and during that time he said he never once had his hand on a hardball. "When he came back he was 21 years old and eager to attend college. He had declined a track scholarship at Boise State University prior to leaving for Germany, and now he was wishing he had that financial aid entering college. That's what brought him to the CSI baseball clinic — the outside chance of somehow still being able to throw the baseball. "I hadn't thrown since I was 18 and playing American Legion ball," Miller recalls. "I was really nervous and afraid I wouldn't be able to throw a strike. But I did OK and coach (Val) Dalling asked me, 'If I wanted to come play for Ricks.' The next day, Miller said he could not lift his arm above his head. Miller really wanted to attend Brigham Young University, but decided at the time he would probably have a better chance of playing at a two-year school. Now he is not sure he wants to go back to Rexburg. "I am getting married this summer and would like to stay here in Twin and play for CSI," Miller said. "(Jim) Walker is a really good coach who knows his stuff, and I would like to play for him. If you want to be a good pitcher even when you're the guy to help you get there. "All the guys at Ricks say how good a coach he was," Miller said. "He would even help us out during the game. He would tell me between innings what I was doing wrong even when I was pitching against him. "Of Miller's five losses this year, two were to Dixie College and two to CSI. In the two Dixie games he tossed three-hitters but still picked up the loss. In his final start of the year last weekend against CSI, he was touched for three runs in the first and then shut out the Eagles the rest of the way. Had Miller had some hitters behind him, he might have won six and lost just two. "The weather really hurts us at Ricks," Miller said. "We had some talent up there, but we had only six outdoor practices all year." Ricks does have an indoor facility, but the baseball team is allowed to use it for only two hours a day. The tennis and track teams are there before and after the baseball team. "The pitchers at Ricks receive no coaching, having to throw on their own and help each other out. Under the system, Miller said they simply did not get enough work. "I want to go somewhere where they are really serious about baseball," he said. "And CSI has one of the best baseball programs around."

Miller said Dixie and Snow colleges have expressed interest in having him play there next year. Walker has not talked with Miller about playing for the Eagles. And should Miller decide to leave Ricks, he would have to get a waiver from Coach Dalling to be able to play for another school. If not, he would have to sit out a year. Miller is a building construction man who has hopes of being able to keep playing baseball even while continuing his education at a four-year school. The stocky, blond-haired athlete started his baseball career in the Twin Falls Tee League. He worked his way through the youth programs, playing Pony League and American Legion ball. He was always a pitcher, being able to throw hard ever since he can remember. His bread and butter pitch is still the fastball, although he now mixes it up between a curve and forkball. Miller knows his three years away from the game have hurt his pitching career, but he thinks he can still help a good team. "I guess I could have been in a lot better shape when I came back, but I could still throw it as hard as ever," he said. "I don't think it effected me as bad as it could have." He says he has improved a lot this year, although he still needs to work hard on his control. But with plenty of determination to go along with his strong arm, he hopes to keep pitching, and preferably for a winner.

Canadiens win again, lead series

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yvon Lambert set up two goals and the Montreal Canadiens, protecting goalie Ken Dryden as if he were Fort Knox, defeated the New York Rangers 4-1 Thursday night to take a 2-1 lead in the Stanley Cup finals. The victory reestablishes the home-ice advantage — surrendered in a 4-1 New York victory in the opener — for the three-time Cup champs with Game 4 of the best-of-seven series set for Madison Square Garden Saturday night. Montreal was relentless in its forechecking attack, denying the Rangers any chance at a sustained offense. And Dryden, rested to the Montreal goal by an injury to Bunny LaRoque before Game 2, was virtually untested. The Canadiens took a 2-0 lead on first-period goals by Steve Shutt and Doug Hascup, who cut the Rangers' lead in half with a freak third-period goal. Mario Tremblay and Jacques Lemaire wrapped things up with two goals within 22 minutes.

CSI keeps four alive at nationals

EUGENE, Ore. — Greg Simons and Jafo Correa romped easily into the finals in their specialties as CSI maintained its pace for a high finish in the national junior college track and field finals. Meanwhile, Diana Dolezal posted the third fastest time of the day in advancing to the women's 100-yard hurdles and the CSI girls moved into the semi-finals of the mile relay with a time of 4:03 — four seconds off the best. Coach Karl Kleinkopf said "everything considered I feel we ended today in just about the position we expected to be. We had hoped to get the relays in but we just couldn't run with the teams here." Simons posted the day's best of 46.9 in the 400 and at 20.9 was three one-hundredths of a second off the best in the 200. "He stopped and watched the rest finish in his heat and only one other guy was in the 47s," the coach said on the 400-meter run. "Greg also eased up in the 200. So I think he has a good shot at two first places." Correa toyed with his 5,000 meter heat, winning in the last 100 yards while "Hammer" Hernandez, who moved into the steeplechase finals without any preliminaries, was sixth. "Jafo ran a smart race," Kleinkopf said. "He knew he had that 10,000 ahead of him tomorrow (Friday). He'll be going again Solomon Chebar, a Kenyan, running for Essex County, N.Y., and Pedro Flores of New Mexico." "We hope that with the girls not having to run anything but the mile relay — except for Delores — that they can slip into the top three," Kleinkopf said. "I think there is a good chance we'll be the highest point team from our region. Ricks was wiped out today in everything but the pole vault, which they could easily win, javelin and decathlon."

Preakness shapes up as two-horse race

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — There seems to be little doubt as trainers and bettors alike that Saturday's running of the Preakness shapes up as another two-horse race. But unlike the highly anticipated confrontation between East and West in the Kentucky Derby — the match between Spectacular Bid and Flying Paster that never materialized — the Preakness will pit the General Assembly as the main challenger in Bid's quest to become racing's third consecutive triple crown winner. In all, only five colts were entered Thursday for the second leg of the tripartite crown, all Derby starters. It marks the smallest field since 1948 when only three rivals showed up at Pimlico to face the 1 1/4- and 1 1/2-mile races. As expected, Bid and 19-year-old jockey Ronnie Franklin remained the solid 1-2 choice in leaving from post No. 2 on their home track. But General Assembly, who ran a surprisingly strong race to finish second in the Derby, was rated the 3-2 choice under LaFitte Pincay Jr. He will leave from the outside. Others entered include Golden Act, third in the Derby under Sandy Hawley and who will break from the No. 3 post at 6-1; Flying Paster, a disappointing fifth in the Derby, will leave from the rail as the third choice at 5-1 under Don Pierce, and Screen King, longshot in the field at 12-1. Sixth in the Derby, Screen King will break from the rail in the Preakness. All will carry 126 pounds in the race, which will be telecast by ABC from 5 to 6 p.m. EDT. Delp, who has surprisingly toned down his bragging since returning to Maryland, still feels Bid is by far the best colt in the race. "There are the best 3-year-olds in America," Delp said Thursday morning, after the grey colt blew out three furlings in a snappy :34. "But if this were a poker game I'd be holding a straight flush. LeRoy Jolley, he'd draw one card with General Assembly and have a straight flush too, but lower cards. And the rest, they take three cards each." Indeed, Spectacular Bid brings a bankroll of $558,287 into the Preakness, the most ever for a 3-year-old so early in the year. With the winner's purse of $165,300, he could become a millionaire for owners Harry Teresa and Tom Myerhoff, who purchased the son of Bold Ruler for just $37,000. "Should he win his 12th straight stakes race in the Preakness, Bid could become racing's 12th triple crown winner by also taking the June 9 Belmont Stakes and join Seattle Slew and Affirmed as the third to do so in three years. "Because of his Maryland connection — Delp, Franklin and Myerhoff are all Marylanders — Bid is expected to draw a record crowd of 50,000 to Pimlico Saturday. The National Weather Service forecasts sunny and warm weather through Saturday, conditions that not only insure a hard and fast race track, but may prompt a reversal by Flying Paster. The bay colt had won nine of his 10 races in California, including the Hollywood and Santa Anita Derbies for earnings of more than $100,000. However, a week of rain in Louisville turned the Churchill Downs strip into a morass and it was clear Flying Paster could not handle it. "All I wanted was a fast race track," said Gordon Campbell, the trainer of Flying Paster. "He's a long-striding horse and physically could not handle the surface, which was drying out and cuppy (loose). My estimation of him hasn't changed at all — my colt can run a lot better than he did in the Derby." Most of the secondary attention, has turned to General Assembly, the first son of Secretariat to run in the triple crown as in the Derby, the colt turned in a sharp workout Wednesday morning in going five furlings in :58 2/5. Three days before the Derby he worked the same distance in :57 2/5. "He seems to run well when he works well," said Jolley. "He's coming into the race fine, but these are all good horses." Golden Act seems the obvious fourth choice. A stretch running little colt, he may surprise the leaders should they over-extend themselves too early. Screen King, a leaner in New York this winter, defeated General Assembly in the Bay Shore and barely missed taking the Wood Memorial before his setback in the Derby. "I said my horse just didn't like the track, but I'm not looking for excuses," said trainer Luis Berrara. "He was jumping up and down. He runs like a kangaroo. But when he runs his race, he's unbeatable." Delp and Myerhoff, however, remain confident their colt will not let his hometown fans down. "General Assembly is definitely going to be close," said Delp. "But if I thought this was a two-horse race, a match race, I'd take 1 to 2 and bet my kids. But they're not going to miscue. It's going to be a race, but I'm confident. And if they make him run fast enough, there will be a track record."

Scores and stats

You just don't cheat in PGA golf

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Larry Nelson is not all that chipper this week. But he's not all that sad either.

He's sort of in between, all because of a golf ball that moved ever so slightly on the 15th fairway at the Preston Trail Golf Club last week.

Because the ball moved while Nelson was preparing to hit it, he called a one-shot penalty on himself. That one shot cost him a chance to be involved in a playoff in which Tom Watson eventually beat Bill Rogers.

But because Nelson upheld the integrity of the game, it's hard for him to feel all that bad.

"I got exactly what I deserved," Nelson said. "Anybody with any conscience at all has to do the same thing."

As long as Nelson is coming in for notoriety, he would rather it come because he had won a golf tournament, which he did for the first time earlier this year.

Bruins plan awards night

TWIN FALLS — Athletes of the year and the KEEP sportscasters $500 scholarship winner will be named at the Twin Falls high school spring awards night Monday.

Athletic Director Duke Wiseman said these announcements will highlight the night although letter winners in the spring sports also will be honored.

Nominations for the girl athlete of the year are Brenda Litham, Susan Sweet, Tammy Asher, Molly McRobert, Nancy Atkinson and Corine Dow.

The Hank Powers award, named for the long time Bruin coach and athletic director, nominees are Mike Snodgrass, Mike Newberry, Rob Newell and Pat Allison.

Those vying for the KEEP scholarship are Mike Snodgrass, Rob Newell, Mike Newberry and Tammy Asher.

Wiseman said athletes, scholastic standing and citizenship are part of the formulae for the major honors.

Borg hurt, loses match

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Triple Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg was injured in a fall during a third round match Thursday and was forced to retire from the $175,000 West German Open tennis Championships.

The Swedish star was leading American Elliot Teitscher 4-1 in the first set when he fell and apparently pulled a muscle.

A's moving to Venezuela?

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Venezuelan businessman already a member of the organized baseball family said Thursday initial talks with Charles Finley made him "optimistic" that the Oakland A's could be bought and eventually transferred to Caracas.

Roberto Well, who heads the Miami team in the Triple A Inter-American League, said he talked with Finley Wednesday and would speak with him again next week.

Well said Caracas would make an excellent site for a major league team because (1) "it is averaging 7,388 fans for its first 10 dates, outdrawing all other Triple A teams and some big league teams including Oakland," (2) Caracas is a city "of four million people of high-purchasing capacity," (3) "the weather is the best in the world for baseball," (4) "the country is politically and economically stable," and (5) the city is in the process of building a new 60,000-seat stadium.

Penn St. leaves Eastern 8

SHAWNEE ON DELAWARE, Pa. (UPI) — Penn State, striving to boost its basketball program to the level of its football program in terms of national prestige, Thursday announced it will withdraw from the Eastern 8 Basketball League at the end of the 1980-81 season.

Edward M. Czeka, Penn State athletic director, made the announcement to the other seven members of the three-year-old Eastern Athletic Association, sponsor of the Eastern 8 games, at the group's annual meeting in the Poconos.

"We felt that it was in the best interests of Penn State's basketball program to withdraw from membership in the Eastern 8," Czeka said. "We have set very high goals for our basketball program and we feel those goals can best be achieved as an independent."

NCAA investigates Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Chancellor Barbara Uehling of the University of Missouri-Columbia announced Thursday the NCAA is conducting an inquiry into fund-raising efforts of Missouri fans to help head football Coach Warren Powers pay off a debt he incurred in leaving Washington State.

The inquiry involved an interpretation of the section in the NCAA constitution which places responsibility for the conduct and control of the athletic program with the member institution, she said.

The university will appear before the NCAA Committee on Infractions, she said, to present its position. She said she would not comment further on the inquiry until the university has presented its case.

Powers agreed to pay Washington State $5,000 to get out of his three-year contract and take the Missouri coaching position. Under the agreement, Powers paid $5,000 before he left the Washington school. He must pay the balance over a three-year period with 3 percent interest.

Stabler not in camp

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI) — Quarterback Ken Stabler did not show up Thursday when the Oakland Raiders opened a compulsory special mini-camp.

Stabler's absence put the Raiders in a position where they may have to fine the quarterback since the camp, which runs for only three days, is mandatory.

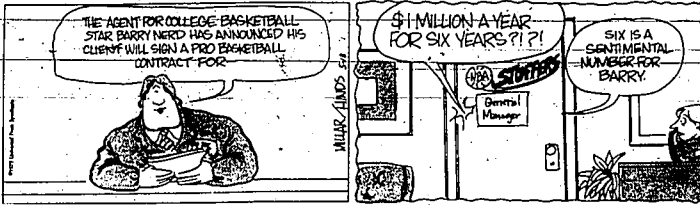

There was no word from Stabler himself but new head coach Tom Flores said he is "optimistic" the controversial quarterback will play with the team again this year.

After a well-publicized confrontation with a California sports writer in Gulf Shores, Ala., Stabler demanded the Raiders trade him. Reportedly, he has backed off from that stand and now is looking for an apology from club managing general partner A. Davis, who was critical of Stabler's play last season.

Asked if Stabler would be fined for not showing up Thursday, Flores backed off.

CSI set to defend its crown

ROSEBURG, Ore. — The College of Southern Idaho spent Thursday practicing on the Umpqua College baseball field in preparation for the annual region baseball tournament, set to begin with two games today.

CSI will face Lindenton College of Albany, Ore. in its opener with host Umpqua playing Treasure Valley in the second game. It is a double-elimination tournament, with the winner advancing to the National Junior College Baseball Tournament in Grand Junction, Colo.

"In a double elimination tournament it is important to win that first game," said CSI coach Jim Walker. "And Lindenton is a good ballclub."

Walker will start Brian Lunden in the opener, the sophomore righthander with a 9-0 record this year.

"If Brian is on, he will be tough," Walker said. "If not, I will bring in Lee Cline. He's our stopper, the man with the savvy."

Walker declined to make any prediction as to how well the Eagles might do, saying only "we will be in the hunt." CSI is the defending region champion.

Bullets now a confident team

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Having returned from the brink of oblivion, the Washington Bullets see their future as bright and rosy.

The Bullets, who lost three of the first four games of the best-of-seven NBA Eastern Conference championship series to the San Antonio Spurs, are at home for Friday night's seventh game. To them, that's all that's necessary.

"We're going home and you couldn't ask for anything more," said Bullets forward Elvin Hayes. "The Spurs had two chances to put us away and they didn't do it. Now, it's our chance and we're going to take advantage of it. We'll all be ready Friday. You can look for 1,000 percent effort."

The defending champion Bullets are within a game of becoming only the third NBA team to come back from a 3-1 deficit and win a seven-game playoff series. To stay alive, they had to down the Spurs twice — 107-100 last Sunday at Capital Centre and 108-100

Wednesday night in San Antonio. Bullets coach Dick Motta feels his team has things under control.

"We played a good game Sunday and this (Wednesday) is just a continuation," said Motta. "We started the playoffs flat, but we've been improving steadily the last two games and, traditionally, when we hit a streak, we stay there for a while."

"It's something we've given away and had to fight to get it back, but now we seem to be playing our game again. I feel very encouraged about the seventh game."

Reserve forward Greg Ballard has perhaps been the difference for the Bullets who are playing without their top sixth man, reserve Mitch Kupchak, hospitalized with back spasms.

"It's been tough without Mitch, but now we're getting a spark from the bench," said Motta. "Greg's had a tremendous series, he's been a factor in every game."

Ballard has used his shooting touch to aid his muscle around the backboards. He has hit 30 of 42 shots and pulled down 37 rebounds in this series.

"I'm gaining more and more confidence with my shots," said Ballard. "I'm looking for them more now, because it's been going in for me. I don't think San Antonio was worrying too much about me at first."

Spurs guard James Silas agreed.

"When you think about the Bullets, you think about Elvin or Bobby Dandridge or Wes Unseld," said Silas. "You don't think about Greg Ballard."

The Spurs will Friday night.

Colonial lead held by Thompson

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI)—Leonard Thompson overcame gusting Atlantic winds Thursday to lead a 5-under-par 65 and open a two-shot lead over Lee Trevino and Bruce Lietzke in the first round of the $300,000 Colonial National Invitational.

Trevino, who has twice finished second this season, but he has not won a tournament since he captured last year's Colonial, missed a six-foot putt on the final hole that would have given him a share of the lead.

"I was up until 1 a.m. working on my putters," said Trevino, who had one of his best putting rounds in weeks. "I imagine my caddy will keep this putter overnight so I won't mess with it before tomorrow's round."

Thompson, who led his exemption last year when he was only third on the money list, missed only one green all day.

"It ain't no snap to shoot 65 here," said Thompson, the bulky nine-year-four-footer. "I hit a lot of short hole shots. The wind came up a lot more than I thought it would and the wind was a big factor."

"The wind blew across on almost every hole. And it's the wind that causes a few noted players not to play here."

Trevino set a tournament record last year with a 12-under-par 288, but the scenic, tree-lined Colonial Country Club course showed a hint of its untouchability with the tricky winds.

Grier Jones was alone in fourth place with a 67 and among the large group at 68 were Jerry Pate and local hero Lindy Miller.

Leading money-winner Tom Watson shot a 71 even though he hit only seven greens.

"It was either the worst round I ever shot or the best round I ever shot, depending on how you look at it," said

Watson, who won last week at the Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Thompson, No. 22 of the money list this year, ran his birds-pulls of four, 18, 15 and two feet on the front nine and dropped in a 15-footer on the par-3 13th for his 65.

Trevino got going with four straight birds beginning at the ninth hole.

"I must have 200 putters at home," said Trevino, who had complained of putting problems last week. "Tomorrow I might come out here and putt with a banana. Golf will drive you crazy, but I love it!"

Lietzke, the tour's sixth leading money-winner, said the wind was not so strong as it was tough to figure.

"It didn't seem to blow all that hard," Lietzke said. "But it was tough to know just where the ball was going to go. This golf course is holding it's own. You can't miss a tee shot here and expect to do any good."

Tarkanian case headed for court

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The Nevada Supreme Court ruled Thursday a suit in which basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian challenged an order barring him from the athletic program at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, should be returned to a lower court for trial, with the NCAA as one of the parties.

In 1976, the NCAA Committee on Infractions began enforcement proceedings involving UNLV. It alleged Tarkanian had violated NCAA recruiting rules.

In April, 1977, the committee recommended penalties be imposed on UNLV for the alleged violations.

Among the committee's findings was a charge Tarkanian had either contacted or arranged for others to contact principals involved in the investigation in an effort to discourage them from reporting violations to the NCAA, or to give untruthful information to the investigators.

UNLV was told to sever Tarkanian from the university's athletic program during a period of probation. UNLV appealed, contending its own investigation showed no violation had occurred. The NCAA upheld its committee, however, and University President Donald Bagler notified Tarkanian the "university is simply left without alternatives."

As the situation now stands, regardless of the outcome of this litigation, the NCAA may claim a contractual right to bind the university to enforce the NCAA's decision by sanctions it deems appropriate.

THE ENGINE IS OPTIONAL

When you buy a car, you expect to select a few options. But when you buy a Peugeot 504, there's one option you may not have expected. The engine. You see, where most cars only give you a choice of engine size, Peugeot actually gives you a choice of gas or diesel engine.

What's more, the things most cars give you as options, we give you as standard equipment. Including power front windows, power steering, sliding sunroof and tinted glass. Come in and see the Peugeot 504. And be sure to tell us if it's a sedan or wagon you're interested in. Because the body is optional too.

District Kiwanians to meet at Burley

Kiwanis leader Hilman Solberg

TWIN FALLS — Hilmar L. Solberg, Appleton, Wis., will be the featured speaker at a meeting of the Utah-Idaho District of Kiwanis International to be held Saturday at the Ramada Inn in Burley. Solberg was elected president of the Kiwanis International at the organization's 63rd annual convention in Miami Beach, Fla., in June 1978. As president of Kiwanis International he represents some 25,000 Kiwanis members in more than 7,000 clubs worldwide. Solberg is an 18-year member of Kiwanis. He is advertising manager for the farm equipment division of Koehring Company, a large manufacturer of heavy construction equipment in Appleton. He is currently on a leave of absence. Solberg has held leadership posts at every level of Kiwanis, commencing with the presidency of the Kiwanis Club of Appleton. He has been a member of the Kiwanis International Board of Trustees, the organization's 18-man governing body, for six years. He is active in professional, community and church affairs in addition to his Kiwanis responsibilities; with emphasis on work with young people and with the Salvation Army and the Appleton Memorial Hospital. Solberg and his wife, Arlene, have two married daughters, a married son, and three grandchildren. The district convention will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday with a board meeting, followed by business sessions throughout the day. A luncheon is scheduled at noon. A social hour is planned at 6 p.m. preceding the banquet set for 7 p.m. Some 360 Kiwanians and their wives are expected to attend the event. Clifford Jackson is chairman of arrangements for the district meet and Keith Stoddard is president of the host Burley club.

Dear Abby

Rape victim still a virgin

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old high school junior. A year ago I was raped on my way to school. I believe I have dealt with the situation very well, but my problem is this: Am I still considered a virgin?

I realize that technically and physically I probably am not, but since this was done without my consent and cooperation, in another way of looking at it I'm still a virgin. If ever I gave myself to anyone, My husband is the one.

This question has bothered me a lot and I hope you can give me an answer since I respect your opinion very much.

I am signing my real name, but if you print this, please sign it.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Putting the physical and technical aspects aside, you are as virtuous as a virgin. And you certainly may consider yourself virginal.

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman, expecting my first child in three months.

Last month my husband's grandfather died. He was loved and respected by all who knew him. The entire family felt a tremendous loss.

My husband's family has let me know that our child is to be named after Grandpa Albert. If the baby is a girl, she will be named Alberta. I am told:

1. too, loved Grandpa Albert, but I hate that name. I offered a compromise, saying I will use Albert or Alberta for the child's middle name, but not for the first name.

My husband and his family insist that it has to be Albert or Alberta. Can you help me?

EXPECTING

DEAR EXPECTING: It appears to be you against your husband and his family. I think they are unfair to demand that you give your child a name that you dislike. Your compromise seems fair enough to me. Stick to your guns. If you lose, your child will bear the name of one of the world's most brilliant scientists.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday our 4-year-old daughter disappeared suddenly. One minute she was beside me in the kitchen, and the next minute she was gone. I nearly went crazy looking for her in the yard, in and out of the neighbors' houses, searching frantically with tears in my eyes and a lump in my throat.

Finally, just before sundown, when I was nearly exhausted and hysterical, a neighbor spotted an old refrigerator stored in the corner of our garage! He opened the door and out tumbled my daughter, blue and practically lifeless. With the help of a quick-thinking neighbor and the fire department, the child was revived, and thank God, now she is all right.

Abby, please urge parents to position discarded refrigerators with the doors turned toward the wall so kids can't open them. If anything had happened to my child, I'd never have forgiven myself.

THANKING GOD

DEAR THANKING: I appreciate the timely reminder. Parents, please REMOVE the doors from stored refrigerators, cabinets or other potential "coffins" for curious and adventuresome children.

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know." Write Abby: 132 Leaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Time and inconvenience no excuse for improper daily diet

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb,
 I enjoy your column very much and all the valuable information that you give us. It does annoy me, however, when you put down vitamin supplements. While it's true that they're unnecessary if one eats a well-balanced diet, how many people do, and on a daily basis? Most of the people I know either do not like, cannot afford nor have no time to prepare fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grain bread and cereals, etc., every day. Vitamin supplements are practical and inexpensive when people will not or cannot eat properly every day.

Dear Reader,
 It seems to me like you've wasted a lot of time being annoyed. I don't disagree with the use of vitamins for people who need them and that certainly includes people who do not eat a balanced diet. And I have no objection to older people in particular taking one simple all-purpose vitamin tablet on a daily basis.
 What I do object to are the false claims about curing a variety of diseases with vitamins, extending from preventing all forms of human colds, curing arthritis and eliminating cancer. All of this is phony baloney. It's important for the public to realize what vitamins won't do, as well as understanding how important they are in their diet.

 So, basically, we don't have any real disagreement. However, I would disagree with you that it's difficult to prepare fresh fruit. It doesn't take me much time to prepare a fresh apple or to peel an orange or a banana. And it doesn't take much time for me to pour out a bowl of Shredded Wheat and add some nutritious fortified skim milk to it. Also there is a wide variety of good whole wheat bread and cereal breads available in almost any supermarket today.

 I don't believe time and inconvenience are an adequate excuse for not eating a balanced diet. Motivation is another factor, and I know that happens with people who live alone at all ages.
 Incidentally, I also do not think that a standard all-purpose vitamin tablet is going to hurt anyone as long as he doesn't use it as an excuse not to see a doctor for a major medical problem that he has that seriously needs medical attention. So, maybe you'll be less annoyed unless you don't happen to like apples, pears, bananas and oranges.

 As a peace offering, I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-5, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.
Dear Dr. Lamb,
 I am 63 years old and have a spastic colon. Since I've been taking wheat bran before breakfast and eating roughage, I don't have any problem with constipation. I would like to know what causes that full feeling and if there is a remedy. I eat nothing fried, spicy or greasy and eat no pie or cake, in fact, practically no sweets.

Dear Reader,
 That full feeling may be because you are full. The bran you consume swells with moisture and provides more bulk than you've probably had before. The other possibility is that when you first start using quite a bit of bran, you may have more gas.

Previously unreleased jazz offered in series clarinet and Lee Castle on trumpet.

NEW YORK — They come from private collectors, personal tapes, unissued alternate takes and unedited masters — but mostly, they come from the vaults and archives of Columbia Records. They are called the Contemporary Masters Series; extraordinary releases that make up much more than a five-issue series, since no matter how long ago they were recorded, most of these jazz records never have been released before.

The latest release in the Contemporary Masters Series has six titles — four of them double LPs: discographical documentation of a "jazz giant," a rare tape brought to light after two decades unissued and unreleased material from two modern giants in their prime; a gorgeous session buried in the vaults since 1961; and a marvelous small-band Duke Ellington date. Unknown Session.

"The Lester Young Story, Vol. 4: Lester Leaps In." These two records continue the saga of the tenor saxophonist who changed the course of jazz soloing in the late Swing Era through the nine months from June 1939 to March 1940. Included are all four takes of "Dickie's Dream" and both takes of "Lester Leaps In," one of Young's most famous outtings with Count Basie's Kansas City Seven.

Also here are some big-band Basie dates that are closer to the style of late Swing Era jump than the earlier blues-band-that-came-out-of-Kansas-City-in-1939; three songs with Billie Holiday; and an odd session by organist Glenn Hardman & his Hammond Five featuring Young on tenor sax and

"Don Byas-Bud Powell — A Tribute to Cannonball." Byas succeeded Lester Young in the Basie Band in 1940, and brought a good stepped-in the full-toned vibrato of Coleman Hawkins coupled with an intense curiosity about the then-emerging bebop movement. Bud Powell was the seminal bebop pianist, a tremendous influence on contemporary jazz piano.

These sides, produced in Paris in 1960 (both Byas and Powell were expatriates in Europe) by the late Cannonball Adderley, are rare, precious gems by two giants of different eras who meet with mutual respect to make gorgeous combo music — ably abetted by Kenny Clark, drums; Pierre Michel, bass; and Idrees Suliman, trumpet.

"Live at the Beehive." Clifford Brown & Max Roach. These tapes survived the auto crash that took the life of Clifford Brown in 1956. At the time, the 22-year-old trumpeter was the most brilliant new star on the jazz horizon — dazzling fans and contemporaries alike with his brilliant technique and fiery inventiveness. Some of that fire is preserved on these tapes of a jam at a South Side Chicago bar, making it a must for Brownie's fans.

"Always Know" Thelonius Monk. Terry Adams, pianist with the rock group NRBQ and a confirmed Thelonius Monk fan, was given the producing job here and has come up with an inspired mix of solo, quartet, trio and big-band material from the Monk vault, circa 1962-68. Most of it never has been issued, and only one selection ever has been issued unedited.

Miller's 'Salesman'

A tragedy in the American manner

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Giving the community something different in theater entertainment and at the same time affording some talented Twin Falls residents an opportunity to do what they enjoy most — perform, is the purpose behind Company One.

Currently, Company One is performing in an American tragedy, "Death of a Salesman." The play opened Thursday night in the Elks Lodge and will continue through Saturday night. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Ed Britt, who directs the play, feels it is the best thing Company One has done in four years of productions in Twin Falls.

"Arthur Miller wrote the play in 1949. It was intended to bring out some of the problems of society of that time but it is just as applicable today as it was 30 years ago," the director says.

"The play has weathered well in the 30 years and is one of the most challenging undertakings of Company One," Britt says.

"I think our audiences will be delighted with it. Our cast is excited about it and every player is turning in a top performance. While it is a tragedy, it also has some light moments and some very dramatic ones," the director says.

the dramatic organization known as Company One is to provide variety and to present plays and productions not undertaken by other dramatic groups.

Organized five years ago, the group has been presenting three productions a year for the past four years in addition to holding clinics and presenting programs for high schools in the area.

Britt, who has directed dramatic and musical shows in Seattle, Portland and Keeneland before coming to Twin Falls, is like the postman who takes a walk on his day off. Britt teaches drama in the Twin Falls junior high schools, but he spends his evenings and weekends helping Company One bring dramatic and musical entertainment to the community.

"Death of a Salesman" is something other theater groups have have not done, but it features some well-known community talent as well as a number of new faces. Britt says the organization provides everyone an opportunity to do what he wants to do in helping with the productions.

"We are always looking for new talent and everyone who wants to get on stage gets on stage. Those who want to work off stage are also given the opportunity. This gives us a lot of new people every year, and it broadens our public interest," Britt says.

The wife of Willie Loman, the "salesman," is new to the organization this year and in only her second role is playing a major and difficult assignment.

"She is extremely enthused about the part of Linda Loman and her performance is excellent," Britt says.

Art Frantz, a favorite Twin Falls performer and veteran of many Dilettante and Little Theatre productions, plays Willie Loman. His son, Matt Frantz, plays the salesman's eldest son in the show. Mrs. Spink says there's a natural father-son relationship there and helps the play along with some real true-to-life performances.

Some other members of the cast include Curt Leslie as "Happy" Loman's youngest son and Bernard, a friend of the Loman boys, is played by Joel Newton.

"The woman" is played by Trudy Dilworth and Charlie, a neighbor and brother of the salesman, is played by Jan Olsen. Other cast members include Tom Kolouch as the boss; Ted Winkle Mantel as Uncle Ben, an older brother; the secretary, Cindy Peatcher, and Stranley, the waiter, by Derek Young. Miss Forsight, a woman in the bar, is played by Jackie Meacham and her friend, Letta, by Jenny Leslie.

Mrs. Spink said the Company One productions began as street theater and gradually moved indoors. Productions have included musicals, comedies, drama and tragedy. Some of the favorites include "A Streetcar Named Desire," in the first season; "Fantastik" and "Godspell." Last year the group presented another tragedy, "A Dolls House," which proved popular with Magic Valley theater fans.

Financing is always a problem for local theater groups and Company One is no different.

This year some patrons have helped with the show-sponsoring. "We try to keep our admission costs the same as a movie so tickets this year are $3 and we think most of our fans will get more for their money than they will from the average movie," Mrs. Spink says.

Offering the benefit of training and experience, members of Company One present workshops and entertainment for the high schools in Magic Valley. Shakespeare workshops involve a scene or two presented by the Company One members followed by explanations and discussions. Improvisational workshops in which students are encouraged to improvise their own work are also offered in the high school tours.

Members of Company One work hard, says the director, and their only reward is the enjoyment they get from pleasing their audiences and working at their favorite hobby which for most is being on the stage.

The show this year is on the ground floor of the Elks building in a facility used for the first time. Britt said the stage area at first presented a problem because there is a large column in the center.

"We decided we couldn't move it, so we would have to use it. It turns out the column makes an excellent separator for our story and gives us an unusual and interesting aspect," Britt says.

'Heaven' an evocative film vision

By SHELLY KINZEL
Times-News writer

There are those who feel that film is basically the art of the motion-picture-camera—characters, even screenplays, are secondary to the visual effects achieved by this technological wonder. It is as if the camera is a huge brush painting images on a gigantic 35- or 75-millimeter canvas.

Terrance Malick, a dynamic young filmmaker, is apparently of this school. In his latest feature "Days of Heaven," the camera captures the essence of a time, place and group of people in the history of our country. The story is set in the early-1900s and depicts the lives of three impoverished itinerant workers—a young drifter, his pre-adolescent sister and his lover—who poeas—as his sister. The film is entirely narrated by the young girl, whose matter-of-fact descriptions are both innocent and perceptive.

The simple and almost classical plot relates the desperate attempt

Connery returns

as James Bond

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sean Connery will return to the role of James Bond after all, starring in "Warhead," a $22.5 million film for producer Kevin McClory.

Connery, who created the role of England's secret agent 007, will costar with Orson Welles in the role of Blotfeld and Trevor Howard playing M, the head of the British Secret Service.

"Warhead" was originally titled "James Bond of the Secret Service." Roger Moore, who has portrayed Bond in recent years, will continue to act in 007 films too.

of the lovers to improve their lot. As they sack wheat from early dawn to nightfall; Bill (Richard Gere) notices that a rich, young farmer (Sam Shepard) has taken a liking to Abby (Brooke Adams). He also discovers that the young man has only a short time to live. Loathing himself, he, nevertheless, urges Abby to marry the farmer, their only way out of a bleak and hopeless future.

Abby reluctantly agrees, still pretending that Bill is her brother. For a brief and blissful interlude, the four experience "days of heaven," a time of carefree idleness and tranquility. But as in all classical tales, their original sin and eventual betrayal dooms them to tragedy and destruction.

Although the people are real and the action often dramatic, I found myself emotionally detached. Again, this may be attributed to Mallick's technique—he is more interested, for instance, in creating meaning through camera angles than through dialogue. We, intellectually, appreciate the plight of these characters, but we are more likely to be moved by the awesome spectacle of figures silhouetted against a twilight sky, or the shocking sight of hoardes of grasshoppers devouring a wheat field.

"Days of Heaven" is an intriguing visual experience. One may or may not relate to Mallick's style—but he is an imaginative and innovative filmmaker, whose work should not be missed by the serious filmgoer.

Retreating rapidly from—the concept of film as art, we move on to a second new feature appearing at the Twin and Jerome cinemas. "Fast Break," starring Gabe Kaplan, is another film which catches in its momentary popularity the theme of the "underdog" athletic team making it to the top.

Kaplan, in his familiar Kotter role, plays David Greene, a would-be basketball coach abiding his time as the manager of a New York City delicatessen. His big chance arrives in a letter from the newly appointed president of Cadwallader University, a small, undistinguished college in the state of Nevada. The president makes Greene an offer: only a basketball fanatic would refuse—$80 for each game won and a three-year contract at $30,000 a year if Greene can beat Nevada State, one of the nation's top ten teams.

Kotter, excuse me, Greene recruits four black ghetto-kids appropriately named Hustler, D.C., Freacher and Swish. The latter player is one of Cadwallader's own—a muscle-bound, blood football player dubbed "Bull." The rest of the story you've seen before; only the dialogue has been changed to prevent lawsuits.

Familiarity, however, does not always breed contempt. Despite its predictability, "Fast Break" provides amusing and enjoyable entertainment. Salty ethnic humor, funny situations and appealing performances compensate for a lack of originality. Add to this the excitement of top-notch basketball playing and you have the formula for a successful box office seller.

Gossip

Q: Do you think All MacGraw and his beau, producer Larry Spangler, will be getting married soon? —D.D., Bayside, N.Y.

A: I think that the romance is winding down. They're not fighting, but they're not the lovebirds they were a few months ago, either.

Q: How has Jerry Van Dyke, of the TV series "13 Queens Boulevard," coped with being so overshadowed by his more successful brother, Dick? —J.M., Needham, Mass.

A: Jerry conceded he's always been pretty much in Dick's shadow ever since their high school days when Dick was on the honor roll and the country with a new PG rating, supposedly because of toned-down language. Is this result of preparing the movie for TV showings? —T.H., Seattle.

A: Not exactly. Plans for reshaping the "Fever" blockbuster have been in the works for a long time. Basic intention was to capture the previously untapped young audience by diluting and deleting some of the film's R-rated language, much of it mouthed by John Travolta. John himself has re-dubbed certain original raw moments, simply by synching new milk-shake dialogue to fit his lip movements. Different scenes, where John delivered his earthy dialogue with his back to the camera, were easier to do. Ironically, despite all these expensive changes, the flick still contains situations — especially a heavy sex episode in the back seat of a car — that come off as explicit and very adult, to say the least.

Q: Haven't heard much about David Frost and his romances. Anybody new in his life? Anybody fitting "him" again? —B.T., Huntsville, Ala.

A: Amazingly enough, Frost's current romance with actress Carol Lynley is still going strong. The two have been together for more than eight months and close friends are cautiously predicting that it could mean wedding bells.

SEETHING SELLERS: Only a few weeks ago actor Peter Sellers was complaining bitterly that Sophia Loren had left him out of her autobiography. And now in a complete turnaround he's threatening to sue ex-wife Britt Ekland if she dares to print any of his letters. In her life story which is due to be published next fall Peter and Britt were married for four years and have a 14-year-old daughter, Victoria.

Q: [The] "Three Women" movie, which I enjoyed extremely in the movie, "Three Women" has become some kind of psychiatrist. Does that mean this talented and beautiful lady has completely chucked her acting career? —H.W., San Antonio.

A: Janice, who first scored in Josh Logan's stage play, "Picnic," has become a successful "lay analyst" for some time. In reality, "Three Women" represented a career detour because, according to friends, acting was never Janice's first love, anyway. In fact, she's always had mixed feelings concerning this profession. The auburn-haired beauty, who's married to actor Ben Gazzara, originally planned on becoming a nun, and later set her sights on the ballet. Actually, acting was her third choice. Miss Rule never voluntarily reveals her public identity to patients in therapy unless they happen to recognize her, and then she fesses up. Meanwhile, Janice is continuing her schooling so she can become a psychiatrist.

Q: I was a piano and her's gotten a lot of publicity about her acting ability. What about her next picture, "Sumburn"? Any word on that? —N.S., St. Paul, Minn.

A: My screening spy reports that Farrar's new film is a melodrama with comic overtones. Farrar looks sensational but word is that she comes off on screen like a second-rate Dyan Cannon. It's really Joan Collins who walks off with the film thanks to a hilarious and very sexy drunk scene she shares with Charles Grodin. Meanwhile, the vain Farrar exercised her star's prerogative by killing a lot of shots of herself. She turned thumbs down on the stills for no apparent reason. Maybe she's upset about the pictures.

NIP AND TUCK: Friends are saying that a famous TV interviewer is looking surprisingly good for his middle years. Would a man who claims he's modest and certainly not vain have had a touch of plastic surgery? He refused to comment, alas.

...it backfizzed

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL: Brand new bride Phyllis George is learning the hard way what it's like to be a politician's wife. She's been campaigning with husband John Y. Brown, who wants to be governor of Kentucky and has been flying from town to town in a small plane. After a particularly rough flight she got off ready to be sick and asked somebody to bring her something to settle her stomach. A newspaper photographer took her picture and it ran in the local paper with a caption which wondered whether Phyllis drank before noon. The former Miss America sat down and wrote a letter to the paper's editor pointing out that the drink was "Alka Seltzer on the rocks."

while he was goofing off. But that's permitted him to be pretty much himself, says Jerry, while Dick has been stuck with maintaining a "successful" image. But Jerry is pretty successful himself these days even though the TV series hasn't been "renewed." And don't forget he has his own nightclub in Encino, Calif., which, we're told, is going great guns.

'Hallmark Hall of Fame' leaves NBC's nest for CBS

By JERRY KRUPNICK

Newhouse News Service
NEW YORK — "The Hallmark Hall of Fame," in the forefront of quality television drama for almost three decades, has suffered a drastic decline during the past few years.

It is difficult to pin down just when "Hallmark" started to slip, but the final departure several years back of super producer-director George Schaefer could well have been the turning point.

As a result of its decline, "Hallmark" has been getting less than preferred treatment from NBC, the network which has housed its productions for the past 28 years. Where a "Hallmark" presentation used to be considered one of NBC's top gains, now it has often been relegated to weak programming nights and token publicity efforts. It definitely has ceased to be a peacock feather in NBC's scheduling cap.

Starting this fall, it would seem, NBC simply won't have "Hallmark Hall of Fame" to kick around anymore.

In a joint announcement by the greeting card people and CBS, it was revealed Wednesday that a new adaptation by Paul Monash of "All Quiet on the Western Front" will be aired by "Hallmark" on the Big Eye some time during the coming season.

Richard Thomas and Ernest Borgnine will star in the classic World War I story, which is being directed by Delbert Mann and produced by Norman Rosemont, both men of distinction in television drama.

There is still some question as to whether the move to CBS will be permanent. However, it is definite that there will be more "Hallmark" shows on that network. Still to be determined is the status of NBC and ABC. Is the former out of the picture for good? And is there a chance for the latter to get a piece of the action?

No matter what, the current move to CBS is being greeted with huzzas by that network. George Schaefer has done much work for CBS in the past few seasons and is the man responsible for its forthcoming "Blind Ambition" multi-drama, which airs for eight hours on four consecutive nights starting May 30.

Now if CBS can only get George and Donald J. Hall to kiss and make up.
