United contract reached

DENVER (UPI) — Negotiators for United Airlines and striking ground workers Saturday reached tentative agreement on a new contract to end a 50-day strike that has grounded the nation's largest domestic airline.

Terms of the 36-month proposal, which would be retroactive to Nov. 1, 1978, was not released.

The agreement is subject to ratification by 19,600 rank-and-file members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. The union rejected two previous contract proposals before walking off the job March 31.

A spokesman at IAM local headquarters in Denver said union members were awaiting details of the contract so they could set up a meeting and determine when the ratification vote would begin.

Both the union and United have declined to reveal the specific sources of contention during the lengthy negotiations on a contract to replace the one that expired last November.

The tentative agreement was announced Saturday at a hastily arranged news conference that followed an abrupt and unexplained change in the scheduled meeting with the news media.

"After 11 days of negotiations in Denver, I'm happy to report negotiators reached a tentative agreement on a 36-month contract at 3:30 p.m. (MST)," said federal mediator Robert Harris.

United Airlines President Percy Wood and Louis Schroeder, president and general manager of District 141 of the union, were present at the news conference. Harris made statements on the tentative contract point.

The strike forced the nation's largest airline to cancel all scheduled flights through May 26. A United spokesman in Chicago said the shutdown had resulted in a nearly $10 million daily revenue loss but the airline hoped flights would resume within days of contract ratification.

The contract is ratified by the middle of next week and will begin limited operations May 28 and expects to have full operations 7-10 days later," said spokesman Jim Kennedy.

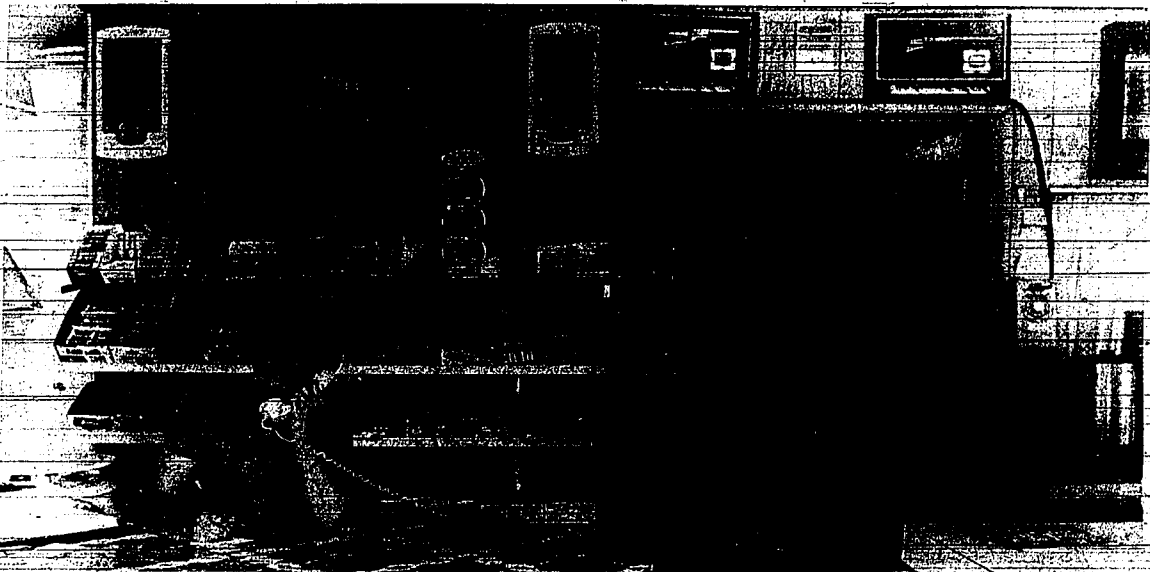

Kennedy said the airline would call its 54,000 employees back to work if the contract is ratified but had no plans to hire additional workers.

"We would hope we would be able to entice our travelers and other travelers back to United but we aren't putting any additional staff on," he said. "We should have plenty to handle the volume."

An agreement was first reached by negotiators on Feb. 2, but union members failed to ratify it on March 31. A second tentative agreement reached March 19 also was rejected by union members. Both rejections came before the strike was called on March 31.

Harris and federal mediator Harry Bradford held a meeting May 10 with the negotiators in Denver. Parties were unable to resolve differences in two earlier meetings — April 3-4 in Washington, D.C., and April 23-27 in Denver.

Harris commended the bargainers for meeting "in a cooperative spirit, resulting in a settlement to end a strike that has severely impacted thousands of air travelers across the nation in the past several weeks."

Helen Young takes phone messages for phone-less residents of the Three Creek area from her Rogerson store and service station

No phones for homes on the range

By LONNIE ROSENWALD Times-News writer

ROGERSON — The main threads of communication for the scattered ranches west-of-here are the thrice-weekly mail deliveries and trips to town for groceries and machine parts.

There are no telephones. Each ranch along the road that starts at Rogerson and stretches west to the distant Nevada border seems like an outpost.

This is the Three Creek community, a string of about 20 ranches whose physical isolation belies some of the names and positions of the owners: It lies only 30 miles south of Twin Falls and U.S. Highway 93 touches its borders.

But while telephones and rapid mail service were turning the rest of the country into a global village, Three Creek was left out.

Over the years the ranchers have worked out a system with the Rogerson Service Station, a combination gas station, grocery store and lunch counter at the tip of the road.

Owners Ralph and Helen Young take calls for Three Creek residents and post their messages on the store bulletin board, 65 miles away from some ranches. And the Youngs' phone breaks down about once every two weeks.

But that makeshift communication network may be replaced.

On Monday the Three Creek ranchers will go before the Idaho Public Utilities Commission in Twin Falls to support a California engineer, who wants to form a company and install the first phone system. The proposed Rural Telephone Co. would be one of the smallest systems in the country and one of only a few new ones built in years. New phone service would be a convenience especially for people who are accustomed to driving five, 20 or 65 miles, sometimes through snow and darkness, just to make a phone call.

"You never stop and think of all the things we use the phone for," said Helen Young, sitting by the service station phone.

Although Three Creek is isolated, some leading Idaho officials live up the road.

Three-term State Representative Noy Brackett's ranch is located in the place people are thinking of when they say "the middle of nowhere." Fifty miles of dirt road to Buhl and 40 miles of paved highway to Rogerson form the only link between the ranch and the commercial world. If any of Brackett's thousands of constituents want to get in touch with him on weekends, they might as well forget it.

When Frank Church phones ICA President Bill Swan, which Young says is often these days, he goes through the same ritual as Swan's numerous other contacts across the country. Church puts a call through to Young at the service station asking her to leave a message on the bulletin board. When Swan's wife makes the 25 mile trip to the station, she picks up the senator's note.

On his next trip to Rogerson, Swan will return the call and charge it to his credit card.

Another Idaho leader, Twin Falls Assessor Bill Clark ranches nearby. When Merle Roud's relatives called the service station last year to say his mother was dying in a hospital in Boise, Helen Young did something she only does in death emergencies. She jumped in her truck and drove out to deliver the message to Roud.

But the news arrived late, and Mrs. Roud died while her son was on the road to Boise.

Such emergencies, along with hard winters and an increasing dependence on the commercial world made the ranchers yearn for some way to hook up immediately with stores, relatives and emergency service.

Young women having babies and starting labor wanted a way to call ahead to hospitals. Farmers wanted to call around to make sure the truck parts they needed were in before driving 70 miles to Twin Falls to get them.

Some people just wanted to talk to their friends and relatives.

FBI finally to get a charter

By PHILIP TAUBMAN O.N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration will soon send to Congress a governing charter for the Federal Bureau of Investigation that imposes extensive, but not absolute, restrictions on the bureau's employment of controversial investigative techniques, including the use of informants, undercover agents and covert criminal activity.

The proposed charter, the first in the FBI's history, spells out the duties and powers of the bureau; setting precise standards and procedures for the initiation and conduct of investigations. It specifically requires the FBI to observe constitutional rights, and establishes safeguards against unchecked harassment, break-ins and other past abuses.

At the same time, it authorizes illegal actions in certain circumstances, and it expands FBI access to private, confidential information. It sanctions use of mail surveillance, trash searches, and recruitment of journalists as informants. It also exempts information about informants from disclosure through Freedom of Information requests.

The charter, a copy of which was obtained by The New York Times, is undergoing final White House review and should be forwarded to Congress within the next two weeks, according to Justice Department officials.

The administration has already lined up at least tentative support in key quarters. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, played an active role in the drafting of the measure. He will seek some modifications, but not wholesale revisions, according to Senate sources. FBI Director William H. Webster, who also contributed extensively to the charter, supports the final draft, according to Bureau spokesman Homer Boynton.

"Even the American Civil Liberties Union, long a critic of FBI conduct, seems reasonably satisfied.

Middletown tells its horror stories

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Middletown Mayor Robert Reid and other citizens told a presidential commission Saturday they were alarmed at how officials responded to the Three Mile Island accident, but differed over whether the nuclear power plant should close permanently.

Reid angrily blamed the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission for allowing the March 28 nuclear accident to occur and, characterizing Metropolitan Edison Co. as an alien force that did not fit in with the community, accused Met-Ed officials of not telling the truth.

Reid was among a few dozen witnesses called to speak at the hearing of the President's Commission on the Accident at Three Mile Island.

The panel had cancelled hearings Thursday and Friday because Congress did not give it power to subpoena witnesses.

The House was expected to give final approval for such authority on Monday. The commission felt it could take Saturday's testimony because the witnesses did not have direct official responsibility for the March 28 accident.

The commission wants anti-nuclear powers so it can ensure the credibility of the testimony from such persons as Pennsylvania officials in charge of the evacuation plans and power plant and federal regulatory officials in charge of the plant itself.

"I'll start out by asking you a question. Why was Met-Ed issued a license to operate Three Mile Island, when, at the time, I know this plant was not safe?" Reid said angrily.

Reid said he talked on the telephone with a Met-Ed official at about 11 a.m. on the day of the accident and was told no radiation had been released. But, Reid said, he learned from a radio report 20 seconds later that radioactivity had been emitted. He said the Met-Ed official "called back several hours later to reverse his statement.

Reid said he felt Pennsylvania could abandon nuclear power, and he blamed the federal government for pouring money into the space program but not developing clean ways of burning coal, a plentiful state resource.

But Reid stopped short of declaring an opposition to reopening Three Mile Island, which Met-Ed officials plan to do within three years.

Reid said if the plant reopens, full-time radiation detectors should be set up and monitored by borough officials to check possible threat to public health.

An official of a nuclear watch group in Newburytown, Mickey Minnich, disbelieved to halt the reopening, even if it meant losing his job as assistant principal of Steel High School in Steelton.

All of a sudden, Amtrak is booming!

By United Press International Amtrak, besieged by thousands of new customers who fear gasoline shortages, is running trains at near-full capacity in every section of the country and is particularly hard-pressed in Southern California.

The Los Angeles-San Diego trains are so full that more than 100 passengers had to stand in the aisles one day last week. Amtrak projects it will carry 120,000 passengers this month on the run, just 5,000 shy of the record set during World War II.

Throughout the nation, reservations are booked weeks in advance and there aren't enough ticket agents to handle all the telephone calls. A UPI spot survey showed it took up to two hours to get through to some reservations desks.

More trains are being rushed into service and Amtrak is hiring additional personnel to try to cope with the crunch before Amtrak's usually busy summer season starts on Memorial Day.

"Are we busy?" one reservations operator in Washington, D.C. asked. "I don't have any seats to sell you. Seats are sold out. Boy, are we sold out!"

"It's really unbelievable," New York reservations manager Ken Karchinski said. "The agents are going off the wall because we cannot answer the telephone. Most of our long distance trains are either sold out or up to capacity for the next two weeks."

"We're busy as hell," said a ticket clerk in Denver, who refused to give his name. "We're sold out everyday. We're bombed out for Memorial Day."

"Our phones are very busy," said San Antonio reservations manager Lester Noble. "About as fast as I hang it up, it rings again. Some people try as long as two days to get through."

But Southern California, where gasoline is a rare commodity these days, is the busiest for Amtrak.

"We've put everything we've got on," said Bill Kennedy, acting terminal manager at Los Angeles's Union Station. "A lot of the trains (to San Diego) are standing room only and some have been so full there is no more room to stand."

"And we're getting lots of scound conditions going north and east too," Kennedy said.

Amtrak is booming!

Three Creek isolated

This year Randall Brewer's wife and three kids moved to Twin Falls so his oldest daughter could go to high school. (The Three Creek School ends after eighth grade.) They come back to the ranch on weekends.

According to Hank Wieland of the U.S. Independent Telephone Association, new phone companies are formed in the United States only about once every two years. In fact, the number of independent phone companies is declining — 40 or 50 small independent phone companies close or merge with larger companies each year.

The Rural Telephone Co. would be the 1,528th independent phone company in the country, which is increasingly dominated by the Bell Telephone Co., Continental Telephone Co., and General Telephone Co.

Rural Telephone would be the 17th phone company in Idaho, according to Don Dixon, vice president of the Rocky Mountain Telephone Association.

However, several parts of Idaho, including Lowman, Council and scattered ranches have no phone service. The Rural Telephone Co. would be one of the nation's smallest phone companies, serving 24 families with about 40 phones. The nation's smallest system, a Virginia company, has 12 phones. Only half a dozen companies have less than 100 phones, Wieland says.

Three Creek has tried for years to install a phone system. In 1963 the PUC turned down a Three Creek application because the system at the time was too small to be judged "unreliable." The PUC has to certify new or extended phone service, which is considered a public utility.

The Rural Electrification Administration, a federal agency which brings phone service to small communities, turned down Three Creek's bid for a loan because it had too few customers.

The community has an outstanding record of fighting for other services. Several years ago the ranchers prodded Twin Falls County to pave their single access road, now smooth and well-maintained. And last year the U.S. Postal Service backed off from an effort to decrease Rogers mail service to twice a week when 90 ranchers packed into a postal meeting to protest.

Thomas Irwin, a former REA engineer from Sacramento, Calif., was introduced to Three Creek residents by REA officials last summer. A telephone engineer with 20 years experience with the REA, Irwin bills himself as an expert in small rural phone systems.

The inexpensive secondhand system he has scrapped together for Three Creek includes a used automatic switchboard and war surplus phone cables.

Each subscriber has to contribute $60 toward the system and a laborer to help with construction. When the engineer and his amateur crew are finished burying 37 miles of cables between the rangelands, they will plug into the Mountain Bell network at Burley.

Brewer will be in charge of repairs and Irwin's wife Wilma will handle the billing from her home in California.

Just the bare facts for New York's mayor

Immigrant experiences in America. The production was staged by an extended family group of Jewish Hungarian refugees who fled from Hungary because they were about to be arrested for not conforming to the standards of Socialist Realism of the East Bloc nation.

"Do you object to the woman's nudity, or her weight?" Koch asked.

"Both," replied the caller. The mayor promised an in-depth investigation — turning the affair over to his Midtown Enforcement Project, which normally deals with such matters as massage parlors, peep shows and pornography shops.

Investigators for the project followed the mayor's directive and looked into the caller's complaint. Their report, a copy of which was obtained by UPI, follows:

To: Mayor Koch
From: Midtown Enforcement
Re: "The Squat Theater"
We have investigated the complaint regarding a production at the Squat Theater on 23rd Street during which a 250-pound woman was reported to have performed nude in a storefront window.

"It is true that this performance did indeed occur as described. It was, however, part of a radical avant garde theater group's play entitled, 'Andy Warhol's Love.' The play itself was not written by Andy Warhol. Nor did Warhol have any connection with this production, which has been described as the reflection of recent

"The theater group is considered a serious group of artists who came to this country seeking freedom of expression through innovative methods." By the time the Midtown Enforcement Project had completed its investigation, the rotund woman had dressed and taken her show to Amsterdam. But Koch kept the report on his desk, occasionally reading it for visitors and declaring it the best example he had found yet of "what it's like to be a New York mayor."

"The woman has been described as an authentic American which who acts out a real witch's ceremony in the window. She was not cooking. It is doubtful that her act would be declared legally obscene.

Idaho, Nevada incomes climbed 13% in 1978

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Individual income increased by 11.2 percent last year to $7,810, rising faster than consumer prices in all states except Alaska, the government reported Saturday.

The Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis said inflation, measured by price increases throughout the economy, rose 6.8 percent, leaving a real gain in income of 4.4 percent. The bureau said personal income rose fastest last year primarily in states that had big surges in farm income. North Dakota had a 27 percent hike. Idaho, which was ranked 36th with a $6,813 average, and Nevada, which ranked third with a $9,032 average, both climbed 13 percent.

States with the smallest increases were Alaska, West Virginia, Hawaii, Maryland, New York, Illinois, Maine, Missouri, Minnesota and Ohio.

If the 11.2 percent income increase is measured against the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index, which records what the average person pays at retail level, the real gain would be only 2.2 percent because the 1978 CPI recorded 9 percent inflation.

Carter's financing to be amended a bit

ATLANTA—President Carter is amending the trust arrangement under which his personal finances are handled in an effort to comply with the new Federal Ethics and Government Law, according to Robert J. Lipschutz, the president's counsel.

Last Tuesday, just before the law's provisions took effect, the Office of Government Ethics granted Carter 15 extra days to comply with the law, and it will study closely the independence of Carter's trustee, according to top officials of the office.

The president's trustee is Charles H. Kirbo, long his close confidant, who has served in a variety of roles in the Carter administration but who says his role in government is now diminishing.

The ethics office's decision regarding the president's trust could also affect other senior members of the Carter administration who have similar arrangements, Lipschutz said.

The law requires the president to provide new details about his personal finances unless his trust meets certain standards, including a trustee who is independent.

The role of the trustee is a sensitive one, especially now, because he is the custodian of the records of Carter's Warehouse and other information being examined by a federal grand jury here. The grand jury is investigating the finances of the warehouse under the auspices of Paul J. Curran, a special counsel to the Department of Justice.

The president's current trust, which holds his 62 percent interest in Carter's Warehouse as well as other assets, was set up shortly after his election and placed under the trusteeship of Kirbo-Carter, under this arrangement, is isolated from his personal finances and as a result has not disclosed details of his holdings since 1976.

However, the new ethics law, which the president signed last October, requires detailed financial disclosure in the absence of a "qualified blind trust."

Without such a trust, the president would have to disclose for the first time details of his finances since 1976.

City Council of Eden, Idaho will accept applications for city clerk thru June 6th.

Convict grasps at last straw

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—Convicted murderer John Spenkelink grasping at what could be his last legal straw, asked the Florida Supreme Court Saturday to stay his execution—one of two scheduled next Wednesday at Raiford Prison.

The other convicted killer scheduled to be put to death, Willie Jasper Darden, filed for a stay with a circuit court judge Friday within hours after Gov. Bob Graham signed the death warrants for the two men, paving the way for the first executions in Florida in 15 years.

If the executions are carried out, they will be the first in the United States since Gary Gilmore went before a firing squad in Utah in 1977.

The U.S. Supreme Court has rejected appeals from the 30-year-old Spenkelink on three occasions and his chances of winning a stay were regarded as slim.

Darden, however, has several appeal routes he could follow and thus stands a better chance of escaping the execution next Wednesday.

Spenkelink told the state's highest court—this execution should be blocked to allow the court to consider an appeal filed earlier this year in Tallahassee Circuit Court. The motion said "substantial" issues are raised in the appeal.

Assistant Attorney General Ray Masly branded the Spenkelink appeal as "absolutely and utterly frivolous" and predicted it will be turned down.

Chicago: Culture lives along with commerce

By GEORGE F. WILLY
© The Washington Post Company
CHICAGO — Orange boxcars of the Illinois Central railroad rumble between wings of the Chicago Art Institute. The museum exuberantly leaps across "The Main Line of America."

To get from the museum's main section to the one on the other side of the tracks, you pass down a walkway toward the luminous blue of the stained glass windows created by Marc Chagall in honor of — really — the fine arts in America and the memory of His Honor, Richard J. Daley. Its setting and its history, the Art Institute, 100 years old on May 24, a symbol of this city, and an illustration of an admirable relationship between commerce and culture.

Seen from offshore, Chicago presents one of the world's loveliest cityscapes. The "Gold Coast" apartments are perhaps the nation's most striking concentration of the rich. But Chicago still is a working class city of these small, proud houses you pass on the way in from O'Hare airport. It still is, to some extent, Carl Sandburg's city of the broad shoulders, hog butcher of the world, stacker of wheat, and all that. Yet in addition to being a great blue-collar metropolis, and because it is that, it also has a magnificent museum.

Its collection is less comprehensive than that of New York's Metropolitan or Washington's National Gallery, but it is second only to these American museums, and its collections of Impressionists is unsurpassed in America. It is a monument to the entrepreneurs, and civilizing women, who built Chicago after the 1871 fire.

The Art Institute was begun as a brave assertion of civility in a rough-and-tumble city. Those who have done the asserting through the years have included some of the most famous names in American business — Armour, Palmer, Ryerson, Field, Ward, McCormick.

But as a Chicagoan has written of the Art Institute, "in a larger sense, it is also a product of countless stockyard laborers and department store clerks, plant employees and sawmill workers, all of the anonymous hordes whose toil built the fortunes that purchased it. In that sense, they built it with their own rough hands."

The rough, or at least unpolished manners of some of the men who bought the Institute's first paintings provoked ridicule. When a Chicagoan said of his purchase of fine Dutch paintings, "They are corks, every one of them," a New York newspaper said, merrily:

"We have no doubt whatever these corks are the largest specimens... that Mr. Hutchinson could find in Europe. He probably paid $1,000 a foot for them, and we assume the citizens of Chicago will give him a triumphal procession along the lakefront when they arrive, carrying them and him in huge floats, drawn by a team of milk-white Berkshire hogs."

But when the laughter died, Chicago had a collection of corks, built with the self-confidence characteristic of the city. Without waiting for learned opinion to give its imprimatur to the Impressionists, Chicagoans made pilgrimages to Monet at his lily pond, and with the help of a friend, Mary Cassatt, the American painter, they made superb use of their money.

Today the institute has more dues-paying members (65,000) than any other American museum. In the mid-1960s, about 750,000 people visited it each year. Now 1.6 million do, and 2 million when there is a popular special exhibit.

There is a general boom in museum attendance, and no single explanation seems satisfactory. There is, of course, more leisure time; and a larger portion of the population has attended museums. But it also is true that museums are one measure of society's attitude about the present. The more complex and bewildering the world seems, the more people think they should know about the past.

One of the institute's most exhilarating exhibits is not in a room, it is a room. It is a piece of Chicago's past: the restored Trading Room. It is a splendidly ornate space that suggests how relatively impoverished our senses are in today's public places.

And it is altogether right that works by two alumni of the School of the Art Institute, Thomas Hart Benton's "Nighthawks" and Grant Wood's "American Gothic," elemental American urban and American rural, hang side by side, beside the railroad tracks, in the elemental American city.

Overcutting the forests

WASHINGTON — Like most professions, forestry has its conventional wisdom. That is, a set of assumptions, which have gained general acceptance because they have been repeated so many times without being sophisticated, advertising campaigns paid for by the timber companies, the popular belief is that private industry manages the commercial forests in an effective manner. At the same time, the oft-repeated phrase is that the U.S. Forest Service is not doing a good job of managing the national forests.

In the debate over RARE II wilderness legislation, you will hear these maxims repeated as gospel again and again. According to the conventional wisdom, the Forest Service is not harvesting its dead and dying trees, so that new timber growth is being choked.

At the same time, private industry supposedly isn't plagued with a tree mortality problem: it harvests the commercial forests effectively and has planted and nurtured new crops of trees for future decades.

However, data recently assembled by the Library of Congress indicates that this conventional wisdom about the nation's forests does not square with reality.

The generalizations are that industry is a good manager, that the feds are terrible and that the small private owners are not good. That conventional wisdom is not true," said Robert B. Wolfe of the Library's Congressional Research Service. "When all is said and done, are you growing more trees than you are cutting?" Is how Wolfe poses the basic question of forestry. "The data indicates that industry has not changed from being the largest continuous deficit cutter in the whole country."

In sum, Wolfe's data indicate that the U.S. Forest Service is cutting its share of national timber holdings and that it is making major inroads on its stock of dead and dying timber. The report also shows that the small private woodlot owners are doing a good job of increasing their growing stock and controlling their stock of dead and dying timber.

Wolfe, a member of the Library's Environment and Natural Resources Policy Division, authored the report which is doubly titled, "Overview of U.S. Forest Situation." It was done at the request of Sen. Herman Falmagne, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The graphs in Wolfe's report depict changes in timber growth, mortality and harvest over the 25-year period from 1952 to 1977 on lands controlled by the U.S. Forest Service, other public agencies (the Bureau of Land Management and the states), private industry and the small private woodlot owners.

Both the Forest Service and other public forests appear to be cutting softwood saw timber in an amount proportional to their share of the nation's forests. The U.S. Forest Service, with 18 percent of U.S. forest land, accounted for 20 percent of timber removals. Other public forests, with 10 percent of the forests, accounted for about 10 percent of the removals.

But the forest industry, with 14 percent of U.S. forest land, accounted for 34 percent of the removals. In fact, the most alarming development depicted in the Library report is on the graph which shows its change in growth over removals. In other words, when growing stock is measured against stock which has been removed, is there a net increase or decrease in timber supply?

The forest industry appears to be eating into its growing stock, its capital. Industry showed a 5.5 percent decrease in the size of its growing stock, which is remarkable when it is pointed out that industry embraced its land holdings by 14 percent over the 25-year period.

"The industry maintained a classic overcutting status," said Wolfe. "What about the Forest Service's inability to remove the trees and dying trees from the national forests? National forests, with 18 percent of the land, accounted for 29 percent of the timber mortality. The national forests also registered the biggest decrease in mortality over the 25 years among the four ownership groups.

"With a 26 percent decline, the national forests did better than anyone else did," commented Wolfe. "While losses on the national forests are double their proportion of acreage, the marked decline suggests that patterns of cutting have been making inroads on earlier far higher mortality losses."

Private industry's share of annual mortality in all forests was disproportionate with its share of all forest lands; it had 18 percent of the mortality, with 14 percent of the land. "The theory that management solves everything isn't necessarily true," commented Wolfe. "Private industry shouldn't have the level of mortality they have."

Figures for the forest industry should be qualified in one respect: They depict the industry as a whole; among timber companies there may be great differences. Finally, these are national figures, undifferentiated by region. Wolfe intends to compile regional statistics, which should tell us a lot about public and private timber management in the Northwest.

Town gains by new water system

Tuesday, the city of Hazelton's future will be decided. On that day, voters will choose whether or not to reach into their pockets to fund an improved water system.

Hazelton need to come up with about half the cost of a new water tank, a booster pump, a third well, additional water lines and a loop. The town's share, $285,000, would be paid by residents through higher monthly water bills.

Hazelton has been unable to grow because of inadequate water system. A moratorium on subdivisions and new major building has existed for years.

A fact of life for residents has been their inability to do the dishes while someone is taking a shower, and vice versa.

But much more serious is the town's limited ability to fight fires.

Insurance companies class Hazelton in their second-highest possible fire rating. The present 45-year-old, 30,000 gallon water tank can provide water to a fire for only 30 to 45 minutes.

With a new 250,000 gallon tank, firemen can pump much more water for two hours solid, enough to fight a major fire or two separate fires.

The tank and increased water pressure would drop Hazelton's fire rating three classes and should save residents money on their insurance premiums.

Pressure would increase from about 20 pounds per square inch to between 45 and 65 psi.

The base monthly water bill will rise by only $4, from $3 to $7 for the town's 200 water users. Exemptions for senior citizens and low-income residents will be granted by the city council on a case by case basis. There is room in the finances to handle the exemptions.

Hazelton has attracted new residents and kept old ones in the past, because of its pleasant, small town atmosphere, but many residents work and shop elsewhere. Young people usually have no reason to stay.

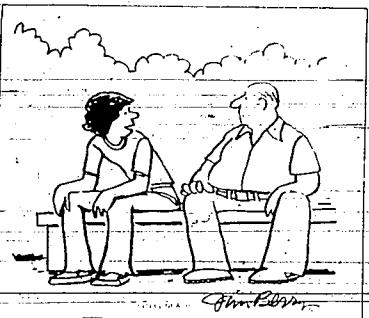

The town could use a business or light, small industry — something a number of Hazelton residents desire.

But without a decent water system now, the town cannot thrive.

The new water system would allow the moratorium on housing to lift. But new housing, if it comes, would have to pay its own way to gain Hazelton services, including water.

Counting a drop in insurance premiums and an end to inconveniences at the faucet, Hazelton residents have nothing to lose by upping their water bills a few dollars for a greatly improved water system.

What lies behind the scene of Idaho's ERA lawsuit?

BOISE — Idaho legislators were busy struggling with the 1 percent initiative this past session. So a plan to sue the federal government or Congress for not accepting their rescission of Idaho's ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment didn't get much discussion.

The suit was proposed last fall by Rusty Barlow, a Pocatello representative, in the Rush of a Supreme Court victory. His father, Bill, had successfully challenged the constitutionality of an attempt by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration to inspect his plumbing business without a search warrant.

But this year's Legislature had its hands full without trying to pass a resolution to have the attorney general file an ERA lawsuit.

That move, while probably successful, would have stirred up debate and a constitutional legal case can be expensive.

But as luck would have it, someone came to the rescue.

The suit was a lawsuit filed by Attorney General David Leroy on behalf of the Idaho and Arizona legislative leaderships last week in federal court in Boise but prepared by the Mountain States Legal Foundation, a private group based in Denver.

The case challenges both the government's failure to remove Idaho's ratification from the books and Congress' right to extend the ratification period by three years.

The foundation became interested in the case last December, after seeing a number of academic "moot court" legal cases produced by leading law schools like Stanford and Yale universities.

Some of the members of the foundation, which plans to pay for all the costs of the Idaho-Arizona suit, are Albert Carlson, chairman of the board of Idaho Power Co., Tom Gonsor, chief legal counsel for Boise Cascade Corp. and Bill Calhoun, head of the Day Mines in northern Idaho.

A Boise lawyer is orchestrating the suit. His name is John Runtt, the man who took Bill Barlow's case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Runtt and his law firm did the leg work in Idaho for Mountain States, rounding up support from legislators and Republican state officials. Chased down were about 20 legislators, including the majority leaders of each house, Sen. Reed Budge of Soda Springs and Speaker of the House

Ralph Olmstead of Twin Falls.

The leadership signed a letter on April 13 to allow them to be represented in the suit.

This support allowed Leroy to say he filed the suit on behalf of Idaho legislative leaders, a condition he placed on the possibility when Barlow proposed it last fall.

Olmstead told me if the movement for the suit had started earlier during the session "it would have been a landslide."

With the filing of the lawsuit has come criticism on three major points — its chances for success, cost and partisanship.

First came a strong, widely accepted argument that the case will be thrown out of court on the question of "ripeness."

The federal courts, including the Supreme Court, set a requirement that a case be an actual conflict. Critics say nothing has happened because the amendment has not been ratified, so there is no conflict.

Runtt says this is an "obstacle" in the case, but he is claiming once the amendment becomes ratified, a lawsuit would come too late.

The suit will probably be "quite costly," Runtt says, but the Mountain States Legal Foundation plans to bear all major costs, because it sees it lawsuit as a matter of public interest of enormous significance.

Runtt maintains the whole question of ratification could bring on a fundamental constitutional crisis.

What happens, he asks, if the president orders the government to certify the amendment as valid, once the 38th state has given its approval?

Runtt says at that point, if his lawsuit has obtained a court injunction barring such an act, a "true constitutional conflict" between the powers of the courts, the executive and Congress could take place.

Those who are in on the case now believe that the question of the amendment's procedure is ripe for trial. They say it is nonsense to wait until the ERA is ratified and that "imminent danger" must occur at some point.

Considering Runtt's success with the Barlow case, it may be premature to dismiss the effort of him, Idaho, Arizona and the Mountain States Legal Foundation.

Tax suggested for petroleum sales used for exploration

Editor, Times-News:
 Opener letter to:
 Senator Frank Church,
 Boise, Idaho
 Dear Senator,
 We are very disappointed in the manner in which the Carter administration has handled the current oil crisis. Removing price controls to create profit incentive for the oil companies to seek new oil supplies is asinine at the best. To give a profit, bloated monopoly even more profit, in fact, unlimited profit, completely invalidates any and all effort to control our runaway inflation. This country and the entire world operates on an oil economy. Every other facet of our industry and our very existence is economically tied to the price of oil. To assume that the oil industry will use that excess profit for oil exploration is as fool hardy as the price decontrol.

 A far better approach would be a five percent pay reduction on all petroleum sales to be used solely for oil exploration and new energy research. This tax would generate in excess of 3.5 billion annually, exclusive of commercial and industrial sales. This program could work along the lines of the federal highway program, which while not perfect has been reasonably successful and has managed to get the highways built.
 The same "competitive" bid technique the federal government could also find the oil, if there is any to be found. This oil would then be made available to the oil industry to be refined and sold with a profit limitation.
 While this is a brief outline of a practical solution to a complex problem, it makes a lot more sense than throwing the entire nation to the mercy of the unscrupulous oil industry. The Carter Administration oil policies remind me of the "Continental Mobster" of the Mid-19th century. I sincerely hope there are enough free-thinking members of Congress like yourself to turn this situation around.

Give to prevent mental illness

Editor, Times-News:
 Today we know that mental illness affects more Americans than any other disease and in many cases can be prevented. This can be done through education and research.
 This May, Mental Health Month, your neighbor will be coming to your door for help for mental health. I urge you to give generously. The Mental Health Association of Idaho needs your support because
 • mental illness can be cured
 • one out of every six persons has emotional problems severe enough to require help from a professional
 • education of parents can prevent some emotional problems in children
 Your support is needed to accomplish this.

Small business delegate needs help

Editor, Times-News:
 I need your help! I have just been elected as a Northwest Regional delegate to the White House Conference on Small Business to convene in Washington, D.C., January of 1980. Between now and that time, it is my responsibility to ascertain the specific problems faced by the small business man/woman from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Alaska which can be translated into recommendations for legislation.
 I am one of the founders and coordinator as well as owner of two of the thirty-three businesses in the shopping complex Gilman Village. It was one of the first endeavors at a mutual support system for women in business. I have also been an active member of the Women's Advisory Board at Bellevue Community College's Women's Center for five years, have worked with the development of Focus on Part Time Careers as well as to function as an independent counselor to women in business.

 Consequently, my area of interest focuses on Women in Business. To effectively represent that groups' concerns, I must broaden my exposure to them. That's where I want your help. They need to know that I am a vehicle to be heard at the Federal level in 1980.
 For the first time in a generation, the political climate seems right for small business to significantly affect legislation that governs them. Women in business must become aware of that and get their specific issue to me so that we will be heard.

Reporter rapped for Hansen stories

Editor, Times-News:
 David Morrissey is at it again. On a slow news day, Dave starts calling around the state — picking names at random, no doubt — until he finds someone with something bad to say about Congressman Hansen.
 David tends to ignore "minor" news stories like George's efforts to stop the Panama Canal giveaway. (George calls it a "payaway." We are going to call it Panama ELLER. BILLION DOLLARS to take our canal.) The Times-News must have missed the April 7 edition of the Washington Post which had two editorials about Congressman Hansen's amazing accomplishments in this area.

 Who knows, maybe four years from now, Morrissey will discover what George is doing and write a story on this issue. I can see the headlines already: PANAMA'S FRANK CHURCH MEMORIAL CANAL, STOLEN BY GEORGE HANSEN. MARY ANN STANGER Hansen

City wasted money on useless pipe

Editor, Times-News:
 The City and State presided over a very expensive funeral last month. They buried an 18-inch pipe. Or, Joe Koon said it was 18-inch, which means it could be from 4 to 38 inches. They have no use for the pipe, by the way. I guess that is why they spent a hundred grand or so, more or less approximately, to bury it. I mean, that pipe is not intended to do a day's work, ever.
 When I talked to the state engineer, he said quite logically, "If we didn't need it why put it in, I'll call the City." That was the mistake, he had to try and talk logic to the City Dads. See what it got him, they buried the pipe.
 Now, if he could have called and said, "I've got someone to pay you not to put in the pipe under the table — No pipe Easement! Ask the City Dads and they'll cry Easement!" But don't mention easement waivers which would have saved a cool hundred grand.

 Just say Easement. Remember, don't embarrass what passes for an attorney for the City by making a logical suggestion such as easement waiver. It would have had to come from the state. It would have to have been applied for some time back. It would have saved one hundred grand!
 Who got paid off? What is this that an easement which nobody would even mention when I started raising hell over that nuisance ditch on Austin is suddenly worth over $100,000? An easement which is out before the end of the year.
 You got ripped off good this time, taxpayer, and you got ripped off by the Council of Seven, no exceptions for ignorance, and the city administration. Oh, yes, and the ineptitude of a thoroughly worthless City Attorney. If you think I'm conning you, get to the phone and call a Council member, or the City Engineer, or Joe Koon.

between. Perhaps, if the bureaucrats in those states where "surveillance gaps" exist, kept the same tours as the agriculture industry, they would know more about their facts and figures. ## Bureau of Reclamation not responsible for dam failure

Editor, Times-News:
 I don't think that a lot of people know or understand just how the Bureau of Reclamation operates. I will try to explain in this letter who builds the dams. The Bureau of Reclamation is the designers and builders. They also select locations for the dam. The contractors just do the work as the specifications and the Bureau's inspectors require.
 This is in regard to the Bureau of Reclamation's charges that Morrison-Knudsen and Peter Kewit and Sons are responsible for the failure of the Teton Dam. How can they make such charges? The Bureau of Reclamation selects the dam sites well in advance of the letting of the contract and who ever the contractor may be, does work according to the Bureau's specification at all times during the construction of the dam by the Bureau's engineers and inspectors.
 I know, I worked under their inspection for 15 years, over five years on Boulder Dam then to Nevada, Arizona, on the Imperial Dam and the Gila Project, then the Davis Dam. I also worked for the Bureau of Reclamation as a carpenter for over a year and three power plants on the All American canal and the power house at Parker, Arizona. All that work was under the supervision of the Bureau of Reclamation.
 The contractor has nothing to do with designing the dam or after their reclamation work. Now in regard to the formation of the area where the Teton Dam was built. All I know is what I read in the paper and it seems to be a porous type of formation and not of a solid rock formation in that case. After the Bureau let the contract and the contractors moved in to do the job, the first thing that is required, and part of the Bureau's specifications, is that the contractors are to remove all loose debris from the footing of the dam and the abutments that anchor the dam to the natural earth to the satisfaction of the Bureau. After that has been done then holes should have been drilled into the footings at a reasonable distance apart and grouting guns attached to them so that the grout could be forced into all the crevices. That's to keep the water from penetrating the earth fill in under the dam. The earth fill is selected by the Bureau, not by the contractor. I believe if the Bureau of Reclamation would have done the things mentioned above properly, the dam would be there today.

 When the Bureau of Reclamation handed the contractors the final check for the work done, that was an acknowledgment that the contractors had done the work in a satisfactory manner and to those that, last of all they had it was the Bureau of Reclamation that built the dam. The contractor just did the work.

Who cleans up after the horse?

Editor, Times-News:
 In last week's Times-News, I saw an item of interest to me. I noted where a lady in Boise conserved gasoline by riding her horse across the city to her job as school bus driver, and after her day's work she again mounted her horse and rode home again.
 Now this interested me because I happen to own a little dog weighing approximately four pounds; and most places I go I am compelled to carry a pooper-scooper. Now, I wonder if this lady had the foresight, or hindsight, to take a pooper-scooper along on her long trip across town?

Editorial accusation resented

Editor, Times-News:
 Your editorial "Paying the Piper" appeared in the Nampa City Press on April 18. You obviously feel that a Certificate of Need law should have been passed. I respect your feelings but I resent your accusation that our legislators "let their feelings of malice get in the way of common sense." Dorothy Reynolds and Elaine Kearnes probably resent it more but for different and more obvious reasons.

 I'm convinced our legislators, especially those from Canyon County (Wesche, Stephenson, Reynolds and Scanlin) voted against the Certificate of Need law because they were not convinced it would save money nor did it need to be so restrictive. This is common sense, not defiance.

Gasoline hunting resumes

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International
Gasoline stations by the hundreds in the Los Angeles area Saturday defied a state directive to open on weekends and, at those which did provide a few hours of pumping, lines were as long or longer than ever.

Station operators, half of them ordered to open on Saturday and half on Sunday, said there was no point opening when they had no gas and a few said bluntly the government had no right to tell them when to work.

One of the few bright spots in California was San Diego where the crunch seemed to be easing and lines at some stations were down to only a few cars.

"It's like everybody stopped being crazy all of a sudden," said one attendant.

There were scattered but ominous indications the "California syndrome" might be spreading in the face of feared increased shortages by the Memorial Day weekend next week.

In New York City, a UPI reporter driving to work down Queens Boulevard early Saturday morning said he saw only one station open and 20 closed.

Rudolph Molnar, head of the Pennsylvania Service Station Dealers Association, predicted about 90 percent of dealers would be out of gas by the end of the month. He said the hardest hit areas would be Pittsburgh, Erie, Philadelphia and Harrisburg.

"It's going to be a rough summer," Molnar said. "It will start with high test and unlead and it won't end there. When we have an energy czar who said six months ago the price would hit $1 a gallon, the oil companies will make sure that happens."

The American Automobile Association predicted that only about 10 percent of the 1,500 stations in the Washington, D.C., area would be open Sunday.

Adams urges car research

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Transportation Secretary Brock Adams Saturday likened the administration's push to develop a fuel-efficient car to American space efforts following the launching of Russia's first satellite in 1957.

At a news conference, Adams said an accelerated program in the development of basic auto research would be similar to the technological efforts that went into the space race.

"We are really lacking in basic research," he said.

President Carter met Friday with members of the auto industry and scientific community to discuss a new initiative in basic research into automotive technology.

Adams said his department plans to submit a research outline to Carter within four months.

"We must use our technology to stop using the automobile in a way that puts us in chronic gas lines and chronic energy shortages," Adams said in outlining plans for developing a blueprint for action.

Wages lag behind prices and they can't catch up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Barry P. Bosworth, who administers President Carter's wage-price guidelines, has a "crucial message" for the average American.

Wages, Bosworth said in an inflation- and lagging-behind-places and in the present economic situation they can't catch up.

For an indefinite time, he said, the average income of Americans is not going to grow—and may even decline in relation to inflation.

Bosworth said inflation will not be solved until the American public absorbs this message and accepts a period of austerity in its standard of living.

At 38—he looks even younger—Bosworth is executive director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, which supervises the guidelines program launched last October.

Under it, businesses are asked to voluntarily hold their average prices and increase this year one-half percent below the amount they increased in 1976-77. Labor is asked to hold average wage increases to 7 percent.

During the year ending in March, the average weekly earnings of Americans, adjusted for inflation, declined 1.7 percent.

The average worker's hourly pay rose 9 percent, but he worked fewer hours and consumer prices rose 10 percent during the 12 months ending in 1978.

"The reason 'real' incomes are not likely to increase, Bosworth said, is that American productivity—output per hour of the last year—increased only 0.4 percent in the first year.

Only by producing more efficiently, he said, can Americans increase their real standard of living and keep wages up with cost increases in food, fuel and housing.

Bosworth concedes that, after the first six months, the wage-price guidelines face extreme problems.

He says the reason is parts of the economy not easily controlled by the guidelines haven't behaved as expected.

Last fall, the administration expected the program to operate in a favorable climate of slowing economic growth with modestly rising food and energy prices.

Balanced 1981 budget?

THURMONT, Md. (UPI)—President Carter's economic advisers have told him he may be able to submit a balanced 1981 federal budget next January, with an outside chance of having room for a tax cut, administration officials said.

The officials stressed, however, that the strategy depends heavily on the actual rate of inflation and the nation's overall economic picture.

Carter made a major issue during the 1976 campaign of claiming he could balance the budget after one term in office. He drifted away from the deadline during last year's campaign efforts for members of Congress, saying instead, "We are working forward in the future to having a balanced budget."

The initial estimates showed a balanced budget might be possible if federal spending can be limited to $569 billion. The estimated revenues would be $569 billion for fiscal 1981, for a surplus of about $4 billion.

NRC wants more nuclear facts secret

By JOHN J. FIALKA
Washington Staff

WASHINGTON — While the Department of Energy has become embroiled in an increasingly complicated fight over secrecy laws, its regulatory counterpart, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, has been quietly pushing Congress to expand its powers to make certain kinds of information secret.

The NRC proposal, now pending before House and Senate committees, would amend the Atomic Energy Act to create a new category of secrecy called "safeguards information," the new classification would bar disclosure of such items as security plans for nuclear power plants, and transportation plans for radioactive wastes.

Asked about the proposal, Leonard Bickwit, general counsel of the NRC, said new legislation is needed to give the NRC more power to deal with incidents of sabotage of nuclear facilities and theft or diversion of nuclear materials.

The NRC and the nuclear component of DOE were created in 1975 when Congress split the Atomic Energy Commission in two, one part designated to regulate nuclear power and the other to promote it. The powers of both agencies are still generally governed by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, written at the height of the cold war, which bases its punishments on the degree of risk to national security.

That act created what some lawyers now contend is a "gray area" around civilian nuclear facilities. Until fairly recently, anyone could obtain detailed plans, including security plans, of civilian nuclear facilities merely by paying the Xeroxing fees. In the NRC's public document room:

A presidential order was issued to protect such information, but it, too, was couched in terms of national defense.

"Say you have the possibility of sabotage of a plant. If it were providing weapons material the executive order would suffice," said Bickwit.

"But if we're talking about nuclear materials unrelated to national defense, we're concerned that we don't have that power under the President's executive order," he added.

The new proposal sent to Congress last year by the NRC and approved last week by the House Interior Committee, would also prevent unauthorized disclosure of information that could "have a significant adverse effect on the health and safety of the public."

The legislation would also bar "studies, reports and analyses" concerning safeguarding of nuclear materials or facilities, from disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act.

Carter urges senators not to amend SALT II

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says any substantial Senate amendment to the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty — a potential strategy for the pact's foes — "would be unacceptable" to his administration and the Soviet Union.

In an interview with visiting editors Friday that was released by the White House Saturday, Carter said rejection of the pact by the Senate would interrupt "with serious consequences" the drive to control nuclear weapons.

Carter is fighting an uphill battle to win Senate ratification of the pact, which he and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev will sign in Vienna during their June 15-18 summit meeting.

Moscow, China wanted the United States Saturday that signing the nuclear arms accord with the Soviet Union will be disastrous if Washington underestimates "Soviet adventurist ambitions."

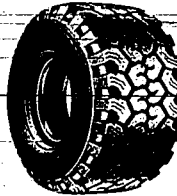

The official New China News Agency, in a Hong Kong broadcast, monitored in long Kong, said the second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty to be signed in Vienna next month was "tricky" and "incomprehensible."

A little too friendly?

LAKESIDE, Calif. (UPI) — It is in fact, the ball python wrapped took more than sheriff's deputies the other end of its body around and firefighters early Saturday to Flaite's visiting friend. convince a 9-foot female python to release its bite on her master's sheriff's deputies. "They came running in with bars and axes," said Pratt, 18. "My husband's snake had latched onto me and we were both watching television," he said. "Someone moved a little too quickly, I guess, and she bit my belly." Gentle coaxing didn't work and Then paramedics arrived and one remembered reading that snakes have an aversion to foul odors. A capsule of smelling salts was broken under the snake's head and an hour later Colombia released her grip on Flaite and his friend.

Neck and neck in Canada

BY RICHARD VAN ABBE
OTTAWA (UPI) — Two days before Canada's national elections, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's Liberals were running neck and neck with Joe Clark's Conservatives, but the incumbent got good news from a survey Saturday.

A Gallup poll showed the Liberals and Conservatives tied with 37.3 percent voter support, and gave 19 percent to a third party — the socialist New Democrats.

Since the start of the two-month campaign that ends with Tuesday's balloting, Conservative leader Clark has pinned his hopes on the possibility voters were weary of the controversial, sometimes arrogant 59-year-old Trudeau and his 11-year-old Liberal government — a view supported by early surveys.

Clark, 39, has repeatedly said Canadians would be voting for Trudeau indirectly if they cast their ballots for the New Democrats and their leader, 43-year-old Ed Broadbent.

The survey showed the NDP is now favored by 19 percent of the voters, although it has virtually no chance of forming a government.

The boost to the NDP, up 3 percent from a poll at the start of May, apparently resulted from a nationally televised debate between the three leaders last Sunday in which Broadbent was surprisingly impressive. But although it now seems more likely the anti-Trudeau vote will be split between the Conservatives and NDP, the Liberals still have an uphill battle.

They are sure of victory in only one province — Quebec, their traditional stronghold. Trudeau faces strong Conservative challenges in western and eastern Canada and the prairies.

The party must make a strong showing in Ontario, the most populous of Canada's 10 provinces, if it hopes to remain in power after May 22.

Broadbent was predictably euphoric when he heard the news of the poll. "Obviously I'm delighted and it confirms information from our canvassers that we have been building support steadily since the debate."

BLM study won't affect Bruneau project

By LONNIE ROSENWALD

BOISE — An environmental impact statement on farm development in southwestern Idaho won't affect the Bruneau Plateau Project, Idaho Water Resources Director John Alfred says.

Alfred said Friday the Bureau of Land Management study, which described financial and environmental losses from development of 111,000 acres of new land, "probably has little effect on the Bruneau Plateau Project." Although the proposed project lies in the study area, the EIS only examined the impact of irrigation by night pumping. Alfred noted the Bruneau Plateau Project, now under development, would divert water flows from the Snake River at near Milner Dam to winter storage reservoirs.

Alfred said the BLM study would have an effect on future Desert Land Entry projects, which are mostly high lift pump operations.

"We don't think and haven't thought for some time that this is the way to develop new land," Alfred said about pump irrigation.

The BLM study, which was based on State Water Plan irrigation proposals, found extensive farm development would have negative financial impacts on energy and farm prices.

Alfred accused the report of "always leaning toward the negative impacts" and playing down positive impacts of farming on some wildlife species. While he noted the report mentioned certain game birds would increase in numbers due to the development, the study did not emphasize these benefits as much as the negative effects.

The DWR head also faulted the study for taking water depletion, and their effects on power generation, out of context. Compared to power plant bypass requirements of fisheries, Alfred said the farm diversion would be "a small item."

He added the power estimations were based on peak demand periods and ignored low-use level such as nighttime demand.

He criticized figures used to show the impact on farm prices from the added production of new farmland.

"We gave them data" from our econometrics model but they didn't use it. Some of their figures were off by a factor of 10 from our figures," he said.

Alfred also said the study "misrepresents" the state's entitlement to Carey Act lands. The report said the state would have to petition the Secretary of the Interior for reclassification of lands for Carey Act withdrawal.

"They have little discretion on whether they reclassify lands. If it's in the public domain and we request it, there's no reclassification," he said.

BLM spokesman Jim Gabetas, however, said the court ruling did not "eliminate the secretary's discretion over how much or what kind of land could be transferred from the federal government to private use."

National interest will be the basis for the secretary's determinations, he said.

Gabetas said gravely low proposals weren't evaluated because "not enough is known about them." He denied the report is slanted toward negative impacts.

"They were highlighted on an equal basis," he said. "The report did point out the positive impacts on certain wildlife by farming."

Bodies found by the river

MAGIC VALLEY — Two bodies were found within a few hours of each other Saturday along the Snake River.

The body of Colleen Page, 21, of Heyburn, who drowned just a week ago when she was swept over Shoshone Falls, was found on the south side of the river about 7:10 p.m. Saturday by members of the Jerome County search and rescue squad.

Three searchers, working in a boat, found the body floating just below the view point of the falls on the south side of the river, Sheriff James Munn of Twin Falls County reported.

At the time the woman's body was located, Jerome and Cassia county officials were removing another body from the river near Murtaugh.

Deputy Sheriff Don Taylor, in charge of investigations for Cassia County, said the body has not been identified, but an autopsy is planned either today or Monday. He said it is believed the subject is a male. The remains had been in the water for a considerable time.

The body was spotted about seven miles west of Milner by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morrill, who were canoeing in the area. Taylor said the body had apparently drifted to the location and had washed onto the bank.

Taylor said the subject was wearing levis but identification will probably have to be made by dental records because of the condition of the body.

He said he could not comment on whether the body could be that of Steven Taylor, about 28, of Pocatello, who has been missing since March 30, when his car was found destroyed by fire near Oakley.

Earlier this month the body of Taylor's companion, Paul Kennedy, 24, also of Pocatello, was found in the river near Milner.

Deputy Taylor said the Cassia County search and rescue unit and deputies from Cassia and Jerome counties removed the unidentified body from the canyon about 7:45 p.m. Saturday.

He said a helicopter flown by Lee Baker was able to land on a small sandbar and pick up the body. Rough terrain in the area made it difficult for officers to recover it without the help of the helicopter, he said.

Miss Page was carried over Shoshone Falls last Saturday afternoon while she and two companions were attempting to cross a narrow swift channel on rocks above the falls. She slipped and fell into the stream and was quickly carried out of reach of her companions.

Search of the river has been underway continuously since that time.

Sheriff Munn said the search and rescue units from both Twin Falls and Jerome counties have kept up a relentless but fruitless search for a full week, and their efforts payed off Saturday.

Munn identified the men who located Miss Page's body as Dick Blamires, Lloyd Martin and Mike Larsen, all of Jerome.

He said there was no question as to the identity because of clothing and other identifying information. Her body was taken by boat to just below the Idaho Power Co. plant on the north side of the river and transported by Magic Valley Ambulance.

Sallee Gasser of Pocatello, new president of the Idaho League of Women Voters, enjoys picnic lunch Saturday

Women voters to aid projects

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho League of Women Voters will lend their support to modernizing the Idaho Constitution, revising the state school funding formula and continuing land use planning in the coming two years.

Delegates to the league's 15th biennial state convention closed two days of business meetings Saturday afternoon in Twin Falls by adopting the official program for leagues in Idaho for the next two years.

New officers for the coming two years were also elected Saturday afternoon. Sallee Gasser of Pocatello will assume the office of state president, succeeding Beth Lindsay of Boise.

Mrs. Gasser has served as state league secretary, second vice-president and voter service chairman and has been president of the Pocatello league.

Other new officers are Sandra DeKlotts of Boise, first vice president; Kathleen Warnick of Moscow, second vice president; Pat Chase of Pocatello, secretary; and Linda Milam of Idaho Falls, treasurer. Serving as a new board of directors member is Katrina Berman of Moscow.

In their program on "constitutional revision," league committees will support such revision items as optional forms of county government, a shortened executive ballot, retention of annual sessions of the Legislature and retention of the initiative and referendum processes. The league will oppose constitutional restrictions on taxation or spending.

The league supports revision of the state school fund distribution formula to achieve greater equalization of educational opportunity and taxation statewide and supports increased state funding for public schools. Other items supported are school district reorganization, special education for all exceptional children, public kindergartens, career education and vocational education opportunities for all students.

The women delegates voted to work for management of Idaho's endowment lands to provide maximum revenue consistent with good land management policies, protection of the environment and preservation of future values.

On local land use planning, league members are in support of state planning when the local governments fail to take action and prepare comprehensive land use plans. Strong emphasis by the league was placed on continued public participation in local level planning policies and consideration of the public interest in land use decisions.

The league calls for a tax structure in Idaho which is balanced, equitable, adequate and easy to administer. The league's taxation program also calls for opposition to rigid limitations on very increases in budgets or taxes and calls for no more than 60 percent majority requirements in elections to approve tax levies or bond issues.

Delegates want property appraisal and assessment practices that treat all properties in a like manner in all counties. They also urge more informative and understandable assessment and tax notices. League members also favor continuing circuit breaker tax relief for the senior citizens and low income taxpayers.

The league hopes to help local governments meet the anticipated problems from the 1 percent law by supporting studies of local government financing. These studies would include distribution of federal and state funds such as sales taxes, which could soften the blow for local governments.

The study for local government financing is a new study proposal and the only one recommended as a new undertaking this year.

Another new step by the league for the coming biennial calls for forming a task force to study juvenile rights. The task force members will be appointed at the state level and will undertake a study to determine how the Idaho League of Women Voters can best approach juvenile rights studies.

The state convention opened Friday morning in the Holiday Inn here with some 50 official delegates attending Saturday sessions included reports from committees and local leagues on activities over the past two years.

Newly elected president Gasser told the delegates she hopes to see improved communications and a membership increase during her two-year term. She said the league is gaining strength and recognition from many levels and she said she wants better organization, "not necessarily more, but better," before the end of 1981.

Two deaths added to road statistics

MAGIC VALLEY — Two traffic fatalities have been added to the 1979 record in Magic Valley.

Idaho State Police reported Kenneth Russell, 15, of Mindoka, was dead at the scene of a single-car accident about 9:10 a.m. Saturday on State Highway 24, 2 1/2 miles north of Rupert. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Dean who reside in the Mindoka area.

ISP Cpl. Robert Connor said the young man was northbound on the state highway when his 1976 pickup traveled 350 feet before swerving back onto the roadway and just missed an oncoming southbound vehicle with three occupants.

In swerving to miss the oncoming car, Dean's pickup again left the highway on the right side, traveled up a canal bank and rolled over twice. The driver was thrown out and the vehicle rolled on top of him killing him almost instantly. Officers estimated his car was traveling about 70 miles per hour when he left the road.

Friday night, Brad Craig, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Craig of Jerome, died in St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise where he has been receiving treatment since being injured May 10 in an accident in Twin Falls.

The young man was the passenger in a vehicle which was traveling east on Falls Avenue when it collided with another vehicle traveling south on Washington Street about 10 p.m. Thursday.

Craig was flown to Boise and had been in critical condition with head and internal injuries since that time. He was a student at the College of Southern Idaho.

Garbage cans to be replaced South Hills cleanup campaign planned

TWIN FALLS — Summer campers and picnickers in the South Hills will be on their honor this summer when the Forest Service launches a new plan to keep campgrounds clean.

The Sawtooth National Forest will replace the small garbage cans at each campsite in the Twin Falls ranger district with one large three-yard dumpster at each of about eight major campgrounds.

"We are asking them to walk a little way and dispose of their trash and garbage, but we think the system will make for a better and cleaner camping program in the South Hills," said forester James Prunty.

This year, the Sawtooth National Forest is contracting with Magic Valley Disposal Co. of Kimberly to collect garbage in the Twin Falls district.

The contractor will place large dumpsters in each of the major campgrounds along Rock Creek Canyon, between the forest boundary and the Diamond Field Jack Snowmobile Area. They will be emptied once a week.

"We think this will be an improvement. The small garbage cans attracted flies to the campsites and created odors. The large covered dumpsters will be located away from the picnic and camping facilities which should alleviate the fly problem and make for a more pleasant atmosphere. It should also end the problem of spilled garbage and trash

Red Cross Bloodmobile traveling to Wendell

WENDELL — The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Wendell Monday from noon until 4 p.m. at the American Legion Hall.

Blood Drive Chairman Leona Ambrose said those desiring to give blood should be from age 18 to 65 with a minimum weight of 110 pounds.

The Wendell High School junior class is challenging the senior class to see which class can donate the most blood, she said.

Prunty said in preparation for the new season, members of the Magic Valley Snowmobiles Club will hold a work party Saturday at Diamondfield Jack winter play area. The volunteers will be cleaning up debris from the winter. Prunty said snow is melted in most areas enough to allow workers to get in and clean up the parking lots and around restroom and picnic facilities at the play area.

Because of the shortage of gasoline anticipated in coming months, Prunty said "forest officials" are looking toward heavy use in all area campgrounds. He said at the present level of use, most campgrounds are filled on weekends, but on weekdays use is quite light.

Kiwanians greet their leader

HILMAR SOLBERG
...Kiwanis president

TWIN FALLS — Hilmar Solberg, an organization of nearly 1,000 members dedicated to serving the people was described here Saturday as one of the most rewarding achievements in his life.

The speaker, Hilmar Solberg, president of Kiwanis International, flew to Twin Falls Saturday morning on his way to attend the 1979 Kiwanis district convention in Burley. He said the goals of Kiwanians around the world are world service to others and leadership within the organization.

One of the major undertakings in his term, Solberg said, has been to assist youth.

"This means different things in different parts of the globe, but generally we find Kiwanis Club members are working to make the youth of their countries be more responsible citizens. We don't pretend to adopt the position of parents, but we hope to help young people in our communities the right directions to good citizenship," Solberg said.

He said Kiwanis clubs have done this by helping organize Key Clubs for high school students and Circle-K clubs for college age youth in nearly all parts of the world. He said Kiwanis clubs promote scholastic accomplishment and try to teach youth to get along with other people through cooperative projects.

Growth is one of the goals of the current Kiwanis president. He said new clubs being formed in the United States and other countries.

"No, we do not have any clubs in China as yet, but we do have some in Taiwan and maybe one day we will include China in our membership," he said.

Solberg, who is an advertising executive for Koeberling Farm Equipment in Boise, Idaho, is taking two years leave from his work to devote full time to his position.

Energy department allocates federal grants to Idahoans

BOISE (UPI) — Ten Idaho proposals have been selected to receive federal grants under a regional U.S. Department of Energy Appropriations Technology Program, Gov. John V. Evans has announced.

Evans congratulated six of the 10 winners in a ceremony in his office Friday. Three winners are from the Magic Valley.

The Region X program grassroots program was intended to foster simple, innovative and locally appropriate ideas on the use of alternative forms of energy.

More than 1,200 proposals were received from individuals, Indian tribes, non-profit groups and small businesses in Alaska, Washington, Idaho and Oregon. Idaho had the second largest response in the region, with approximately 100 applications for every 3,500 residents.

The Idaho grants range from $600 to $34,600 for projects such as a solar process alcohol plant, insulating shutters for window glazing and a low-head hydro turbine.

Erik Norquest, Boise, received the $34,600 award for his low-head hydro turbine. Other recipients were Thomas E. Gaynor, Pallasades, solar process alcohol plant; Victor Mark Murry, Samuels, residential wind powered generator; Snake River Battery, Blaine, storage batteries from recycled auto batteries; Brian Cuser, Fairfield, solar assisted heat pump; Mark A. Williams, Moscow; Fish Breeders of Idaho, Inc., Buhl, steel-well pressure refrigeration; William J. Quapp, Idaho Falls, phase change salt energy storage system; Breckenridge & Calhoun, Coeur d'Alene, bio-mass converter, and William T. Disman, Pingree.

Broader trade near for U.S.

By ROBERT CRABBE
PEKING (UPI) — The United States stands on the threshold of an era of greatly expanded imports of goods from both China and the Soviet Union.

In Canton, Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps initiated a hastily concluded general trade treaty with the Chinese government that called for China to receive "most-favored nation" status in its commerce with the United States. That grants China the same minimum tariff rates Uncle Sam charges Japan, Western Europe and other favored trading partners.

The same favor almost certainly will be accorded the Soviet Union as a result of the successful conclusion of the SALT II talks on nuclear weapons control.

As a result, the State Department will achieve its long-standing goal of assuring that China and the Soviet Union get most-favored nation status at the same time.

Before Mrs. Kreps came to Peking, diplomatic sources in the Chinese capital "doubted" a trade treaty between China and the United States, which did not fully normalize their relations until Jan. 1, could be wrapped up during her visit.

However, the SALT agreement, which forecast most-favored nation status for the Soviets, gave the Chinese an incentive to move quickly. And Mrs. Kreps wanted the political coup of wrapping up the treaty during her tour.

Working-level Chinese and American economic diplomats negotiated non-stop during her visit to enable Mrs. Kreps and Chinese Foreign Minister Li Qiang to initial the pact before the end of the Commerce secretary's 10-day China tour.

One acute question was how to protect American firms that supply technical know-how to China from patent infringement.

Another complication was the question of emigration from China and the Soviet Union.

Legislation authored by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., in 1974 barred the United States from granting most-favored nation status to any country that did not give its nationals freedom to emigrate.

The Jackson amendment was designed to force the Soviet Union to permit the emigration of Soviet Jews. However, its language could have been applied to China or any other nation.

Despite the Soviet government's open resentment of the Jackson amendment, 50,000 Jews are reported being allowed to leave the Soviet Union this year.

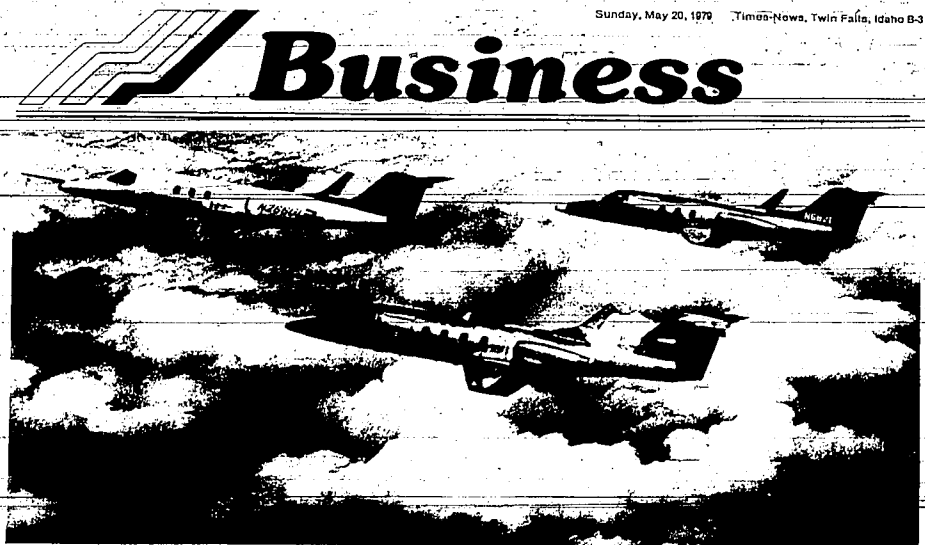

China came to terms by allowing increasing numbers of Chinese to emigrate to the United States. The majority of Chinese-Americans are of Cantonese origin and the new emigrants, most from the Canton area, will be joining relatives.

Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping (Teng Hsiang-ping) mocked American officials who raised the emigration issue during his February visit to the United States.

"How many Chinese do you want?" Deng asked. "Ten million? Twenty million?"

One short-range effect of most-favored nation status for China will be to spur Chinese exports to American since these will now qualify for lower tariff rates.

China conducts trade through government agencies and its own tariff system allows imports of goods that the government considers desirable.

Three Lear jets, totaling more than $5 million, fly in formation.

Maker labels jets tool for business

By THOMAS D. BILLAM
WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Trying to sell a million-dollar business jet as a badge of business leadership rather than a status symbol is a problem Gates Learjet's sales program.

The status symbol reputation came, according to Jim Greenwood, the firm's vice president for corporate affairs, from early promotion campaigns that tried to make the term

"Learjet" synonymous with business jet.

"Because of that we got the image of the Learjet as a status symbol," he said. "While that's really quite flattering, we'd rather have it looked upon as a useful piece of essential working equipment."

Hundreds of corporations, using Learjet's argument that time is money, apparently can justify the expense of a plane costing between $1.6 and $3 million. Learjet delivered its 900th jet in May and has a backlog of orders — each requiring a nonrefundable deposit of at least $100,000 that will take six to eight months to fill.

Learjet officials tell prospective buyers the Learjet retains its value very well, with many models having been resold at 110 percent of the purchase price, even figuring initiation. Learjet owners explain in a company monthly magazine how their planes helped business through "efficient use of executives' time."

Statistics show the most profitable companies are the largest corporate flyers — of the top Fortune 1,000 corporations, 87 fly 120 Learjets — but the contribution of time-saving Learjets toward corporate profits is difficult to pinpoint.

Learjet officials point out the company is the technological leader in business jets and has the largest share — 28-1/2 percent — of all civilian business jet sales. No. 2 is rival Cessna — which builds its Citation just across Wichita's Midcontinent Airport — with 15.7 percent.

Fuel efficiency and speed are two key points repeated in most Learjet advertising for its nine models, including three large-body jets not yet in production.

A Learjet official said, "In the beginning Learjet was seen as a luxury, and in some instances almost a toy of the rich. It was owned by a lot of entertainment types, and found in a lot of splashy situations. That's all really changed now."

Because of annual increases of orders, Learjet has increased production 50 percent in two years. But the company is watching expansion carefully, Greenwood said officials have not forgotten the 1970 recession caused the company to enter 1971 with a $13 million deficit.

For the first nine months of fiscal 1979 ended Jan. 31, Learjet had earnings of $7.27 million on sales of $200.1 million.

W.M. BUNCE ... retiring in June retire in June.

He will be succeeded by James W. Herrett, currently secretary-treasurer and a director of the firm.

Bunce joined Acme in 1969 from his management of the Filer Elevators and has been involved in administration of the company since. Acme has developed from a blacksmith shop to international prominence as a manufacturer of farm equipment, marketing its draper chain, potato planters and farm tool line throughout the United States and in selected overseas markets.

Bunce has been active in community and state affairs and is currently a director of the Idaho Employers Council, of which he recently completed a two-year term as president.

Herrett joined Acme in 1970, serving in a variety of administrative capacities as well as performing duties in the shop complex during his youth. A University of Idaho graduate with a degree in business, he served as an Air Force fighter pilot and saw combat duty in Vietnam.

Herrett is married to the former Grace Leonard. They have four children and live on a farm southwest of Filer.

Tax system reform proposed to keep economy out in open

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — The American tax system is driving so much of the economy underground that radical reform is needed to keep this segment from dangerously reducing national output, says Dr. Peter Gutmann.

Gutmann is the professor at Baruch College of the City University of New York who has sounding alarms in recent years about the underground economy — that segment of the population which works "off the books."

In the current issue of the academic journal Taxing and Spending (Institute of Contemporary Studies, San Francisco), Gutmann says the present tax system establishes too great a barrier to social mobility. The system makes it too difficult for intelligent and ambitious persons to accumulate wealth and too easy for the greedy to keep their wealth.

"To solve the problem," Gutmann would cut income and capital gains taxes which he says would increase opportunities for upward mobility, and at the same time raise inheritance and gift taxes, which would affect the wealthy.

Gutmann's views about the effect of tax rates on revenue collections appear at first glance to resemble the controversial Laffer Curve — high rates erode the supply of both labor and capital.

But Gutmann concludes that most underground income is created in legal business; the illegality comes from the wholesale tax evasion that results.

"Gutmann says there has been a general change in public morality and attitudes about paying taxes, especially among younger workers who grew up at a time when protest against government was socially acceptable.

Gutmann believes the underground and "off the books" economy in the United States amounts to $220 billion a year, or 10 percent of the Gross National Product.

The big mechanism of the underground is cash transactions — no checks or receipts, Gutmann says, as he has said before, that "big as the wheel of crime." Transactions in it is a very small part of the underground economy.

Most underground business is completely legal, except for the tax evasion and false bookkeeping involved. He says sales tax skimming is one of the most important aspects.

Union New Yorkers pay their 8 percent retail sales taxes, thousands of merchants in the state steal from 15 to 25 percent of the tax receipts, he contends. This gives them an extra profit of 1.5 to 2 percent on every dollar of sales. The same goes on in many other states.

Gutmann is convinced that more vigorous enforcement of the present tax system is impossible and would only make matters worse.

Trade winds

Jones on staff

TWIN FALLS — Rock Jones of Caldwell has joined Twin Falls Beverage, Inc., as vice president. Jones has been vice president of operations for the J.R. Simplot Co. food division with operational responsibility for all of its potato processing plants. Jones' wife, Kathy, and their three children will move to Twin Falls at the end of the current school term.

Office filled

BOISE — Paul D. Peterson, 39, College Park, Ga., has been selected administrator of the Idaho Dairy Products Commission. He will succeed Ray West, the present administrator, who is retiring in June after 39 years of work in the dairy industry. Peterson has 17 years of experience in dairy sales and promotion and most recently has been a marketing consultant for the United Dairy Industry Association in the 12 southeastern states.

Mart in works

SALT LAKE CITY — A downtown business landmark, the Auerbach Building, is being renovated into the International Merchandise Mart. When work is completed by next January, the six-story building containing 250,000 square feet will provide showroom space for 300 permanent tenants and 20,000 to 30,000 square feet of trade show area. The Auerbach department store in downtown Salt Lake City was closed in February.

Dividend declared

SKOKIE, Ill. — Directors of G.D. Searle and Co. have declared a cash dividend of 13 cents a share of common stock, payable June 4 to shareholders of record May 14.

CRAIG JENSEN ... supervisor

Manager named

TWIN FALLS — Craig Jensen has been appointed assistant vice president and manager of the new Twin Falls office of United Security Mortgage. Jensen is the former manager of Commercial Credit Corp. here and has lived in Twin Falls for the past four years. He will supervise mortgage lending activities of the Boise-based firm throughout the Magic Valley.

Income gains

DAVIS, Calif. — Pacific Standard Life Insurance Co. reports net income of $28,844 or 9 cents a share for the first quarter of 1979 and income from continuing operations of $24,790 or 8 cents a share for that period. Figures for the comparable period in 1978 include net income of $31,874 or 1 cent a share and income from continuing operations of $20,072 or 1 cent a share.

WILLIAM ASSENDRUP ... heads agents

Buhl man elected

BUHL — William Assendrup of the Clear Lakes Agency has been installed as president of the Professional Insurance Agents of Idaho. His term of a year will continue through next April. The organization includes 145 agencies and more than 300 independent insurance agents from throughout Idaho.

Franchise set

SALT LAKE CITY — Don Judd and Ted Judd, Pocatello natives now in business in Salt Lake City, have acquired the Idaho franchise for McWilly's ice cream shops. They plan an expansion to at least nine outlets in the state in the next 18 months. There is currently a McWilly's ice cream parlor in Burley.

DON JUDD ... set to expand

Collections up

TWIN FALLS — Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Co. collected over 242,000 pounds of that metal during March, paying the public $48,400. Of that total, 59,120 pounds was collected by the Reynolds-Albertson's Jobs recycling program. Reynolds maintains a recycling center in Twin Falls and mobile recycling stops are made in Burley.

Repair service moves

TWIN FALLS — Keith P. Anderson, owner of Anderson's Small Appliance Repairs in Twin Falls, has announced a new location for his business.

The business is now located across Main Avenue from Sears, having moved from 627 Main Ave. W. to 428 Main Ave. N.

In his new shop, Anderson will also be selling Regal small appliances such as coffee makers, frypans, griddles and slow cookers. He will be able to service these at no cost up to 3 years, depending on the warranty on each appliance.

Anderson has been repairing small appliances in Twin Falls since 1967 when he was forced to give up his job at Desjardins after 15 years because of a heart condition.

He opened the shop following completion of a year's training at the College of Southern Idaho. Anderson was the first deaf student to attend CSI. He says he has received appliances from several other areas of Idaho and from California, Oregon, Utah, Nevada and Montana.

A resident of Jerome, he will keep his shop open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will be closed all day Saturday. He keeps parts on hand for nearly all major brands of appliances, including Sunbeam, General Electric and Hamilton Beach. He can offer two day service if parts are available in his shop. When parts must be ordered service is usually possible over one to two weeks.

Youngsters receive bats

TWIN FALLS — Five Twin Falls County youngsters received aluminum baseball bats from Reynolds Aluminum Co. Thursday in the Twin Falls County Commissioners' office.

Darrell Helder, sold waste director for the county, said the four will be awarded the bats because of the large amount of aluminum cans they turned in during the Johnny Horizon Day clean up earlier this month.

Because there were no girls turning in collections of waste aluminum for recycling, all five awards go to boys. Winners in the order of the most aluminum contributed are Gene Montgomery, 13, of Buhl; Michael Lee Ruffel, 8, of Kimberly; and Gene Ahlborn, 9, Brian Clark, and Brian Burmick, 8, all of Twin Falls.

Bill Leary of Reynolds Aluminum and Merl Leonard, county commission chairman, conducted the awards presentation.

Family home ownership best investment over decade

QUESTION: Do you have any idea how many homes there are in the United States? Funny you should ask. There are 55 million single family dwellings in the United States at this time. A bulletin issued by the National Association of Realtors provided several interesting facts. The value of these homes represents $2.2 trillion. In fact, that $2.2 trillion represents one-fourth of the entire wealth of the nation. One-third of all the single family homes are free and clear of any mortgage loan. The same report indicated that of the 55 million single family homes, 43 million of these households are owned by the people who reside in them. The other 12 million are owned either as investment properties or as second homes for occasional use.

It would also appear that people who own these homes have a pretty sizable equity in them. The way the figures indicate, the total mortgage debt against the $2.2 trillion is only $700 billion. Whether you bought your own home by accident or on purpose, it seems that you have made a pretty good investment. Over the past 10 years single family homeownership, as an investment, has outperformed every other money-making scheme on the market today including stock market, oil wells, gold, diamonds, old coins, and the like.

QUESTION: I have been reading about "time sharing" as a means of acquiring a vacation home. Just how does this work?

ANSWER: "Time sharing" is a new concept that has tremendous possibilities for people who want to have a vacation home but do not want to have all of their money tied up in a piece of property that they only use just occasionally for a couple of weeks of skiing or a week or two of sunshine in the Caribbean. The possibilities are almost endless and I personally think that it is going to be one of the real boons to the leisure living that we seem to be going toward.

The system is relatively simple. Instead of buying a house or a condominium for your own use, you buy it on the basis of "time sharing units" for say, one, two or three weeks time for a year. The balance of the occupancy is sold to other people for their two or three weeks per year.

Thus, you have what is, in effect, 20 or 30 people who collectively own a condominium in Honolulu or Puerto Rico or even Sun Valley, and it is yours — all yours — for the yearly period for which you have purchased it. The price of the building may run slightly more for the total price than if you bought it 100 percent for your own total use. For example, in the Virgin Islands I know of one time share unit of a particularly choice property is going for $3,000 for a permanent two-week-period-per-year right of occupancy. This right goes on indefinitely as long as you own it or until you sell it to someone else.

Naturally there are a few management problems involved in how to handle taxes, repairs, furniture or scheduling to avoid overlaps. Usually these developments have a large number of units and have professional management available to coordinate all these various ramifications and problems.

I understand there is even one time share project available now in the McCall area that is being developed at this time, as well as one in the Island Park area in Idaho. Frankly, I think it is an appealing way to have a vacation home on a permanent basis without tying your capital up in large amounts for a long period of time. We will be watching this market carefully to see how it develops and keep you advised.

QUESTION: Does 1979 look like a good building year?

ANSWER: No, it doesn't. As a matter of fact there is some indication that we may be starting a period of a severe housing shortage because of the tremendous demand that has been coupled with an anti-housing mood that is beginning to permeate the country. A Senate sub-committee is investigating this matter right now and indicates that there is a severe crisis in housing development as the production is running well behind the anticipated annual rates. (2.2 percent less).

One of the big items that is really creating great difficulties is the selfishness in many towns where they have tried to force people to build someplace else. The stifling regulations on affordable housing and all of the other red tape in many communities will increase housing costs as much as 20 percent.

That is true right here in Twin Falls city and county. Many city councils and zoning boards have a lot of people on them who have an anti-housing bias and do everything they can to put burdens and regulatory restrictions on all phases of construction. The result, obviously, is not only a higher price house but also a scarcity of affordable housing. President Carter has recognized this problem and is putting pressure on the mayors and governors throughout the United States to become more responsible in achieving the nation's housing goals.

Duplicative reviews, high administrative costs, unnecessary delays in permits and inspection, irresponsible moratoriums and unnecessary restrictions in the name of safety and environment have run up costs to the point that the public has been severely hurt in obtaining adequate housing.

QUESTION: We have an offer to sell our house subject to the person obtaining a Farm Home Administration loan. If we accept this offer I have heard that it could take two or three months for the loan to come through and we wouldn't know for some time whether or not the deal was good. What do you advise?

ANSWER: Two or three months is unbelievably fast speed for a Farm Home Administration transaction. From what I have been able to learn they are out of money and will not have any to lend until next October or November. This means that if you sign an offer your house could be off the market for many, many months and then you don't know where you stand until they get around to processing the papers late next fall.

My advice is, do not agree to this type of contingency unless you have a provision that enables you to keep the house on the market and accept other offers that may come along during that time. A competent realtor can structure the earnest money in this fashion to help you sell it, or better yet, keep you from getting in a bind for a long period of time, while hoping that maybe financing may be available to your buyer.

Wyoming governor blocks coal line

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Wyoming Gov. Ed Herschler Friday blocked plans for a $1.8 billion coal pipeline to the Texas Gulf Coast, saying the project posed too many unanswered questions.

The governor's decision meant plans of Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. to use 20,000 acre feet of Wyoming water to pump 25 million tons of coal a year to Texas were finished for the present at least.

"After considerable review and analysis I have determined that it is not in the best interest of the State of Wyoming to enter into a contract with Texas Eastern on the proposed coal pipeline at this time," Herschler said.

"The primary reason for my decision is that there are too many questions which must be answered before I am convinced that the proposed coal slurry pipeline would serve the best interests of the state."

Herschler said some of the unanswered questions were: whether it was right for Wyoming to allow the export of its "precious water resources to Texas," how much water would be made available to Wyoming after Texas Eastern used its allotment and whether there had been thorough examination of the implications for the environment.

Texas Eastern planned to divert 42,580 acre feet of water from the Little Bighorn River at a point just south of where the river flows into Montana. The water to be used in the slurry pipeline would be stored in reservoirs. Water in excess of the 20,000 acre feet needed for the project would be made available to the state. Montana had threatened legal action if Herschler had allowed the project to proceed to the next step, drafting of feasibility studies. In addition, the Crow Indian Nation in Montana had also laid claim to the Little Bighorn water under Indian water rights.

Western thermal hotspots untapped

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Geothermal hotspots capable of yielding the energy equivalent of 1.3 trillion barrels of oil remain untapped under lands in the West and parts of the Gulf Coast, the U.S. Geological Survey says.

A 163-page Geological Survey report, issued Wednesday, noted that geothermal energy now being recovered in the United States represents only a small fraction of the available resources and that geothermal power use is on the increase.

"Geothermal energy is clearly coming of age, as demonstrated by the rise in growth rate of geothermal electrical generating capacity worldwide" — from 7 percent after World War II to 16 percent in the 1970s, the report said.

The Geological Survey said major geothermal resources remain untapped in New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana and other western states, as well as "geologically favorable areas" in Gulf Coast states like Texas and Louisiana.

Revised forms ready

BOISE — The Internal Revenue Service has announced that revised estate tax return forms and instructions are now available at IRS offices.

The forms, revised in January 1979, are Form 706, United States Estate Tax Return and Form 706NA, United States Estate Tax Return, Estate of nonresident not a citizen of the United States.

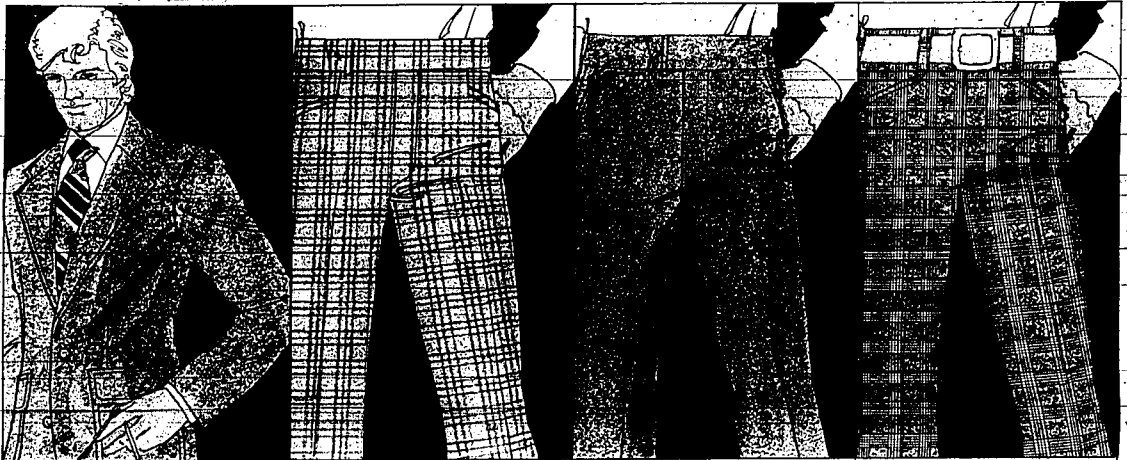

The IRS also announced new Form 706-A, United States Additional Estate Tax Returns.

Charnock transfers to Arizona

BOISE (UPI) — Appointment of new state editors for Arizona and Idaho was announced Friday by United Press International.

R. Richard Charnock, currently Idaho editor, has been appointed Arizona state editor, and Robert Van Buskirk has been named to succeed him in Boise.

Charnock succeeds Herbert F. Surret, who is retiring after 30 years with UPI.

The appointments were announced from New York by H. L. Stevenson, editor in chief and vice president of UPI, who said Charnock and Van Buskirk will report to Reeve Fenington, general news editor for the western states.

Charnock, 49, a graduate of Arizona State University, joined UPI (then United Press) in Phoenix in 1953. He was transferred to Salt Lake City in 1955, and later that year was appointed bureau manager in Billings, Mont.

In 1957, he was named Montana state manager in Helena, and moved to Boise as manager in 1959. He was the 1974 recipient of the Sandor S. Klein Newsman's Newsman award, the highest award of the Idaho Press Club. He and his wife, Betty, have six children and seven grandchildren.

Van Buskirk, 46, who was born in Salt Lake City and raised in Malad and Boise, Idaho, is a graduate of Boise Junior College. He joined United Press in 1948. He also worked for the Boise Statesman, where he was sports editor at age 19, and in public relations for the Sperry-Hutchinson Co. Van Buskirk has been in UPI's Boise bureau for the past five years.

Surret joined UPI in Phoenix in 1949 while attending Arizona State. He has been Arizona state editor and Phoenix bureau manager since 1964. He plans to teach journalism part-time at Arizona State and do freelance writing.

Ways to avoid tax liability

Question: I am 37 years old and recently changed jobs. My wife and I have two children, and my salary is $30,000. I am in a 28 percent tax bracket. When I left my former employer, I received a lump sum distribution of $37,500 — my interest in the company's retirement plan. I understand I have to include this distribution in my income for 1979 which will mean a big tax burden for me. Do you have any suggestions or alternatives to help me avoid this tax liability?

Answer: From the day of receipt of your distribution, you have 60 days to establish an Individual Retirement Account; otherwise, you will have to report the $37,500 as income for 1979.

If you choose to pay federal income taxes this year and invest the balance at 7 1/2 percent compound interest, here is how much you will have 28 years from now when you are 65 — $120,160. On the other hand, if you put your money into an Individual Retirement Account thereby deferring all federal income tax on your money and all federal tax on interest, dividends and capital gains that your money will earn and if you invest that money at 7 1/2 percent compound interest, you will have $300,300 at age 65.

Your alternative is really the Individual Retirement Account. What you invest in is another matter. I am not suggesting you place the money in a 7 1/2 percent investment or even a more liberal fixed income investment. For at 7 1/2, 8 1/2, or 9 percent, you will lose value since inflation is now ranging at 13 percent annually. You must consider a higher-yielding investment, preferably something returning about 15 percent annually. They do exist. In fact, one such investment has shown an average return of 18 percent a year for the last 25 years. Last year it returned over 24 percent. With such an outstanding record covering a long period of time, an investor can be comfortable with this investment whether used as a direct investment or through an Individual Retirement Account.

I am sending you information on the Individual Retirement Account and also on this investment.

Question: Some years ago I bought a mutual fund for income purposes. The price is just about what I paid and the return is 8 1/2 percent. I need all the income I can get since my husband died last year. I hate to sell this fund but would appreciate your help if you know of an investment providing a greater return. Taxes are not a consideration.

Answer: Your return is poor on this investment, and it can be improved considerably. Since you already own a mutual fund, you must consider replacing the one you have with another offering you a more liberal return. You probably paid an initial sales charge when you made your investment, and you would have another sales charge when you reinvest in a new mutual fund.

However, if you can increase your income dramatically, for example 5 1/2 (your present return) to a 15 to 18 percent average annual return from the new investment, then obviously, it is well worth making the change. Of course, mutual fund returns are not guaranteed, but an investor has the benefit of reviewing management's record over an extended period of time which gives proof of management's ability and past success for their shareholders.

Literature on the suggested mutual fund has been sent to you. It is available to the public by writing or telephoning Mr. Smith at Edward G. Smith and Associates, Financial Planning Consultants, 219 2nd St. N., Twin Falls, Idaho 83301; telephone 734-4464.

Employers need identification numbers

BOISE — Every employer required to pay federal employment taxes such as income withholding, Social Security, and unemployment, or give tax statements to an employee, needs an employer identification number, according to Philip N. Sansotta, Internal Revenue Service District Director.

The number must be used on all

Coal output listed
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Coal Association estimated bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended May 12 as approximately 15,465,000 tons. Production for the corresponding period in 1978 was 15,310,000 tons.

business documents the employer sends to the IRS or to the Social Security Administration. The IRS said that an EIN is an additional number and should not be confused with the Social Security Number which the employer uses on his or her individual income tax return.

An employer needing an EIN should get an application Form SS-4, "Application for Employer Identification Number," from a local IRS or SSA office. Many post offices also stock this application. The completed Form SS-4 should be filed with the area Internal Revenue Service Center, according to Sansotta.

Employers wanting to learn more about their Federal employment tax responsibilities can attend the EEO Small Business Tax Workshops sponsored by the IRS. Information about the next Workshop can be obtained by calling the Boise office, toll free: 1-800-632-5590.

Idaho Power granted extension of service

BOISE (UPI) — The state Public Utilities Commission has granted Idaho Power Co. permission to extend electric service to the Clear Creek area of Boise County.

The commission order allows the utility to construct a distribution line for 139 individuals who have applied for service and to extend service to future customers who want it.

Beverages offered in southern Idaho

PORTLAND, Ore. — Two new beverages will soon be available at markets in southern Idaho.

Bob Rogers, general manager of Production Canners-Western Merchandisers Inc. in Portland, said Double Cola and Ski, both of which are headquartered in Tennessee, will be sold in independent grocery stores in early June.

Double Cola includes two drinks — cola and sugar-free cola. Ski is a mountain-fresh citrus-type beverage.

The beverages will be canned by Production Canners and distributed in the west by Western Merchandisers, Inc.

Production Canners-Western Merchandisers have headquarters in Portland, Ore. and Seattle, Wash.

With minor changes the commission accepted an agreement reached by property owners and Idaho Power after 11 years of negotiations between the two groups. The lengthy process was due in part to the highly diversified nature of the landowners, the commission said.

Commissioners noted some landowners wanted no electricity; others wanted it only for summer recreation and many year-round residents desired a continuous source of power.

The IPUC said the decision represented a departure from the usual method of extending power lines.

Frontier Airlines picks Boise manager

BOISE (UPI) — Frontier Airlines announced the appointment of Roger Sorenson as sales and service manager when the airline begins service June 1 between Boise and Denver.

Sorenson will be responsible for all of Frontier's sales and passenger service activities when the airline inaugurates its new service and will supervise a passenger service staff of 14.

The new manager joined the airline as an agent in Las Vegas in 1970 and is presently sales and service manager.

Cost. Supply. Efficiency.
3 reasons to go with gas heat.

We think they're pretty good reasons, too. Consider this. Electric energy rates are higher than gas and electric rates are predicted to increase more rapidly than gas over the next 15 years. Today gas supplies for southern Idaho are excellent. So good in fact, that we could double our residential heating customers with existing gas supplies under contract. Just like the electric rates, future electric generating capabilities are unclear at this time. When you talk about efficiency, there's really no comparison. The end-use efficiency of gas for heating and water heating is more than two times as efficient as electricity. It's obvious that the use of natural gas for heating and water heating is the sensible approach. Natural Gas... it's a natural.

An important energy message from

THE ENGINE IS OPTIONAL

When you buy a car, you expect to select a few options. But when you buy a Peugeot 504, there's one option to select you may not have expected. You see, where most cars only give you a choice of engine size, Peugeot actually gives you a choice of gas or diesel engine.
What's more, the things most cars give you as options, we give you as standard equipment. Including power front windows, power steering, sliding sunroof and tinted glass. Come in and see the Peugeot 504. And be sure to tell us if it's a sedan or wagon you're interested in. Because the body is optional too.
PEUGEOT It's tougher than it has to be.

Spectacular Bid makes it look easy

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Spectacular Bid established himself as the next Triple Crown threat Saturday when he demolished four other 3-year-olds to take the $235,300 Preakness Stakes at Pimlico.

It was the smallest profit since 1948, when Citation returned $2.10 for winning the Preakness. As they went down the stretch for the first time, General Assembly and Flying Paster challenged for the lead and set early fractions of :23 2-5 and :40 4-5 while Spectacular Bid and Golden Act stayed well back.

Trainer Bud Delp, smiling broadly, admitted that Cordero gave Franklin some trouble but said it just wound up making his roll run better. "Around the first turn, Cordero's colt took my colt wide and threw some dirt in my colt's face," said Delp. "All it did was make me mad. He just ran all that much harder. He was perfectly calm all day and there was no problem."

It was the biggest margin of victory by a Preakness winner since 1974, when Little Current stilled Cannonade to take the 99th running of the Stakes by seven lengths. Bid now heads into the June 9 Belmont Stakes with a chance to become racing's 12th Triple Crown winner and third in as many years. Should he take the 1 1/2-mile Belmont, Spectacular Bid would join Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Omaha, War Admiral, Whirlaway, Count Fleet, Assault, Citation, Secretariat, Seattle Slew and Affirmed as Triple Crown winners.

Tigers sweep A-2 track meet

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — It had to be the perfect picture to end a perfect day for Jerome High School track.

Senior veteran, team captain and three-year queen bee Andrea Cannedy, her fiery redhair seemingly glowing more fiercely, was walking around "missing" every Jerome Tiger, boy and girl. There were tears, laughs, grins. Because the Tigers had just nailed down both ends of the state A-2 track championships.

their blocks. "We felt we had enough time to come back here — (to the bullpen) check in and then walk up here," Cannedy smiled. "Obviously, we didn't."

The two then had to run to the other end of the field and get set up while the rest waited. "I was so embarrassed," I was shaking. The guy (starter) kept saying 'don't be nervous, take your time' but I couldn't quit shaking," she continued.

"I knew they would be tired going into the 220 but how much more tired do you think they were after sprinting up the field to get into their blocks?" Coach Andrew said, shaking his head with a wane smile that probably wasn't there when it was happening.

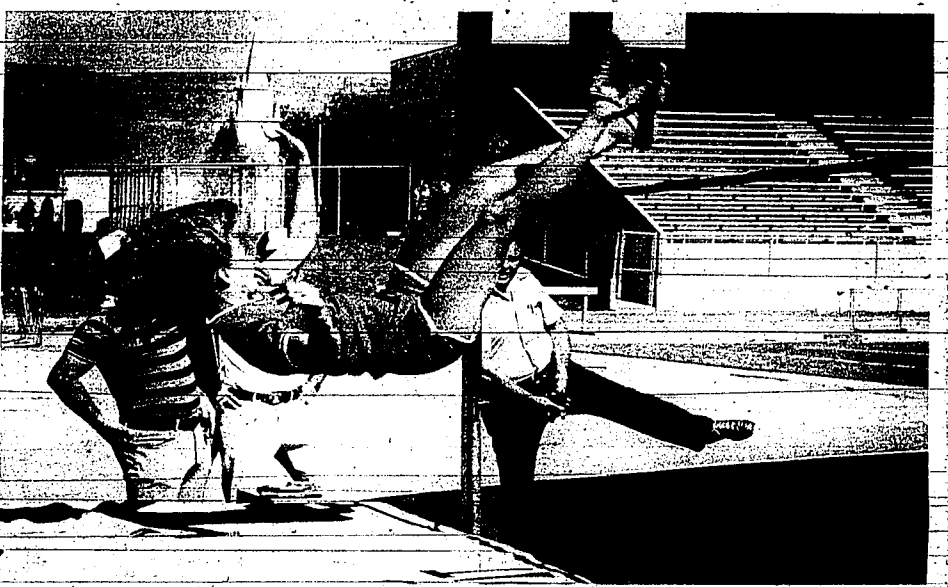

Secrelated story page D3

The Tigers did it with a strong show in consistency and the ability to pick up in some areas to offset a stagger or two in others.

But for Magic Valley it all just wasn't Jerome's day. Buhl, the defending champion, came up with a strong effort and finished in a second place tie with the Bishop Kelly boys. Jerome boys' coach said after the meet had ended, "I'll be able to be there now."

"I thought our girls did pretty much as we expected," he continued. "Becky Adams gets that first in the long jump which was a big plus and then I thought our relays did an outstanding job. We came into this as the fifth ranked 880-yard team and won it. I know, when Cannedy and Sobotka went one-two in the 100 we had a good shot at the 450 (yard relay) and then our medley and mile relays came through well."

In the boys' sprint also was all roses. One of the happier moments came when sophomore Armando Lopez won the intermediates. "We had penciled him in for third on our estimates but he really ran well down the stretch," he said. "He's a stunner, stutler stepped on the first couple three hurdles or he would really have blown them away."

Bruin girls capture state title

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — It opened with a fizzle but closed with a bang Saturday when the Twin Falls girls swept from behind to claim the state A-1 track and field championship.

The Bruin girls pulled themselves off the deck to wrench 40 points out of the last four events and overhaul Borah 82-76. Meanwhile, the Twin Falls boys, with Steve Carpenter grabbing an individual first and the Bruin medley adding another, came up with a good day. But as expected they finished behind champion Capital, Borah and Pocatello.

— first for a while until the Pocatello kick. Then came the 220 and Proctor and Jones were ready. Proctor was well behind coming off the turn but churned up the straight-away and edged Capital's Valerie Dworak in a double-lean finish. Jones popped into fourth for a 14-point event.

After that was the key mile and Coach Kleinkopf was apprehensive. "That fall really has shaken Cindy," he said. "I've said all year that the guts on the Twin Falls track team is in the girls' distance corps and this will prove me right or wrong."

who failed to place in the discus in a surprise, anchored the Bruin medley to victory. Twin Falls had one of the bad medleys around three weeks ago but then started adding people to it. One of those was Newberry who finished in the top 15 in cross country but since then had no running training at all. It was feared that if he went into training at the late date, he would be too torn down to be effective. Therefore, he would run just one half-mile per week — during meets and anchoring the medley.

Carpenter, Mark Libert and Pat Allison gave Newberry the lead — all of the 10-yards coming on Allison's quater-mile lead and Newberry quickly hustled that into 30. He stayed there and was happily wagging his index finger to signal victory as he crossed the tape and the rest of the field closing on him hard.

For track summaries page D2

Carrie Jones and Ginger Proctor disappointed by getting fifth and sixth in the 100, the girls went on to further surprise by going unplaced in the 880-yard relay and then in a real reversal, Junior Cindy Crow was tripped in the opening 220 of the 880-yard run and fell from an expected second to sixth. By that time Twin Falls was squirming and Borah, piling up hurdle and relay points, was off to a big lead.

But remember those Bruin girls names. They extracted their vengeance.

Blue cheerleader section in the half-mile left the whole Blue cheering section unamused. "They tripped me," the little Bruin said fighting a losing battle against a quivering chin and misty eyes.

— He turned out to be right. Crow ran second almost all the way and finished there behind Cooper and Alene's double distance champion Nancy Woods. Tammy Asher tacked on a fifth place — to go with her third place finish in Friday's two mile — and the combination kicked Twin Falls into an unsurmountable six-point lead over Borah.

"I felt like I was going to throw up all the way around," said Crow, her knees and elbows skinned from the earlier fall. "A few times I thought about just running off the track and onto the grass. But I didn't."

For the second time in two weeks Twin Falls had to run within two places of Borah for a team title. Last time, in the SIC finals, the mile relay team was disqualified and Borah won. This time, Dolezal put on another aneurish finish to put the Bruin baton in second place into the Lions and nail-down the victory.

The crowning disappointment came for Minico senior Todd Heiner. The defending champion went unplaced in the long jump with three straight scratches in preliminaries. "I knew I scratched the first one and I didn't know about the second jump. It was so close," the dejected youngster said. "But I moved back on the third one — I just wanted to qualify for the finals (and get three more jumps) — and it really fell good. It was a long one. I think long enough to have won it but long enough at least to get into the finals. But the officials said I scratched. Everyone else told me I didn't." Heiner said, shrugging his shoulders and walking off. It deflated him for the day as he finished sixth in both the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

NBA championship showdown begins

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Two teams on what their coaches call "an upswing" meet today in a rematch of last year's NBA Championship Series.

The defending champion Washington Bullets host the Seattle SuperSonics in the opening game of the series, one which should be decided within a few feet of the baskets.

Bullets Coach Dick Motta sees his team "on an upswing" after recovering from a 3-1 effort to defeat San Antonio for the Eastern Conference title. The Bullets rallied from 10 points down in the fourth quarter Friday night to eliminate the Spurs, 107-105, on a Bob Dandridge basket with eight seconds to play.

Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens' best bet is that his team is in the proper mood after being down 3-2, and recovering to down Phoenix for the Western Conference championship.

"When we were down, three games to two, I told the players we were at an advantage," said Wilkens, "and I think winning the series proved it. I really feel this way."

Both teams have big, strong, physical front lines who like to knock people around. The Bullets' Wes Unseld, Elvin Hayes and Dandridge goes up against Seattle's Jack Sikma, Paul Silas and John Johnson.

"If this isn't the most physical series in NBA playoff history, I'll be surprised," said Motta. "Compared to last year, Seattle is more physical, and that's our best game, too."

Linn-Benton downs CSI for region title

ROSENBURG, Ore. — College of Southern Idaho was supposed to be the team with the hitters, but it was Linn-Benton College of Albany Ore., which pounded the ball Saturday on route to the region 1B baseball title.

After mashing Treasure Valley Community College 15-2 in an earlier game, CSI took the field with hopes of sweeping two games from Linn-Benton to capture the title. The Eagles never had a chance.

"It was a massacre," said CSI coach Jim Walker. "Linn-Benton scared us. They earned it."

What Linn-Benton did was score three runs in the first inning and never look back, romping to a 17-1 victory over the slumped Eagles.

"We were hanging," Walker said. "Our bats were completely dead. It is one tired bunch of kids I have with me right now."

Saying hindsight is always 20-20, Walker said afterwards he probably should have saved Darryl Banks for Linn-Benton. Banks tossed a four-hitter to beat TVCC in the opener.

Rich Kellogg started the second game and did not last the first inning. Mark Johnson took over and blanked Linn-Benton in the second inning before giving up two runs in the third and three in the fourth.

Walker then came back with Banks but he was too tired to be effective, so he cleared his bullpen by throwing Kevin Donner. Linn-Benton responded with four more runs in the seventh and five in the eighth.

The odds on coming back to win this tournament after losing the first game are very, very tough," Walker said. "You have got to have a group of gutsy kids to do it."

CSI looked as if it was ready for the long day when it went to work on TVCC, pounding four home runs in the seven-inning win. The game was shortened because of the lopsided score.

Jim Good and Andrew Barbee both cracked two home runs a piece, and CSI scored six times in the seventh inning on just two hits in the win.

Lynn leads Boston over NY

By United Press International
 The Boston Red Sox started feeling the New York Yankees breathing down their necks again and they decided to do something about it.
 Fred Lynn drove in two runs Saturday, including the game-winner with a seventh-inning single, to spark the Red Sox to a 4-3 victory over the Yankees.
 Lynn knocked in Boston's first run in the opening inning when he doubled home Rick Burleson, who had reached on an infield hit and advanced to second on a throwing error by losing pitcher Ed Figueroa, 35. Lynn scored on Jim Rice's single to left.
 In other games, Baltimore edged Toronto 4-3, Cleveland blanked Detroit 6-0 and Oakland trounced Milwaukee 12-4.
 Lee May snapped a fifth-inning lead with a two-run homer and Don Stanhouse pitched out of a ninth-inning jam, leading the Orioles to triumph. Jim Palmer, 5-2, struck out four and walked one over 7 1-3 innings before giving way to Tim Lincecum and Stanhouse.
 Jim Norris drove in five runs with a pair of homers and three Cleveland pitchers combined on a four-inning lead the Indians to victory. Norris capped a three-run fourth inning with a two-run shot following a sacrifice fly by Rick Manning and a single by Andre Thornton.

 Jeff Newman belted a homer and drove in four runs and Dave Revere pounded out four hits, including a pair of doubles, to drive in three others, highlighting a 14-hit Oakland attack. John Johnson, 1-0, scattered six hits over seven innings.
 In AL night games, Minnesota was at Kansas City were postponed due to rain, California beat Chicago 10-6 and Seattle shutout Texas 4-0.
 Carney Lansford and Bobby Grich hit homers to highlight a seven-run first inning and the California Angels coasted to their fifth straight victory, a 10-6 decision over the Chicago White Sox.
 Home runs by Julio Cruz, Leon Roberts and Ruppert Jones backed the six-hit pitching of Floyd Banister, pacing the Seattle Mariners to a 4-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.
 Banister, the ex-National League southpaw who lost a 1-0 decision the last time out, struck out six and walked two in going the distance for the first time this year. It was his second win against five defeats.

Bucs get boost from Rooker

By United Press International
 Jim Rooker is slated to be a part of the Pittsburgh Pirates' 1979 season.
 The 36-year-old left-hander, making his first start of the season, scattered three hits over 8 1-3 innings and Dave Parker belted a solo homer Saturday to lead the Pirates to a 3-0 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.
 Rooker, 1-0, walked two and struck out one to post his first win since last Sept. 14. Rooker, who was placed on the disabled list March 29 with a sore elbow, needed help from relievers Enrique Romo and Grant Jackson after yielding a bunt single to Ted Sizemore and a walk to Sam Mejias with one out in the ninth.
 Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis defeated New York 9-4, Montreal trounced Philadelphia 10-5, Cincinnati nipped Los Angeles 5-4, San Diego nipped Houston 4-2 and San Francisco swept a pair from Atlanta 4-2 and 7-5.

 A two-out, 12th-inning error by third baseman Richie Hebner opened the gate for six unearned runs, leading the Cardinals to victory.
 Andre Dawson and Warren Cromartie belted home runs during a four-run, fifth-inning and Tony Perez and Ellis Valentine homered during a three-run seventh to propel the Expos to their victory.
 Johnny Bench's bases-loaded single highlighted a three-run third inning to carry Cincinnati past Los Angeles.

Lopez leads in LPGA

CLIFTON, N.J. (UPI) — Defending champion Nancy Lopez, making the best of cold, rainy weather, birdied the first three holes and went on to shoot a 3-under par 73 Saturday that gave her a 1-shot lead after the second round of a $100,000 LPGA tournament.

Hall of Famer Mickey Wright, her old bones wearing well despite a second day of horrible conditions, missed a chance for a share of the lead when she bogged her 17th hole for a 1-over 74. She was tied at 144 with Kathy Ahera, with whom she had shared the opening round lead. Tour rookie Beth Daniel, with a 4-under 33 on the front nine, wound up with a 72 for a 36-hole score of 1 under 145, where she was tied with Jo Ann Washam, also with a 72.

Lopez, who has won three of her last six tournaments and finished second in the other three, started her round on the back nine and sank biggie putts of 20, six and 10-feet. But it was at this point that the second rain delay of 26 minutes interrupted her streak — and her concentration.

Kupchak out of hospital

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Mitch Kupchak, the Washington Bullets' supersub center-forward, was released from Sibley Hospital after treatment of muscle spasms in the lower back, the club announced Saturday.

A team spokesman said Kupchak's playing status will be determined on a daily basis and that he will continue heat, sound and whirlpool treatments.

Kupchak, who was hospitalized May 7, was the leading scorer among NBA reserves.

The Bullets defeated San Antonio 107-105 Friday night to take the Eastern Conference playoffs and will meet Seattle at Sunday in the opener of the best-of-seven championship series.

Solomon reaches tennis finals

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Harold Solomon of the United States and Jose Higueras of Spain won the semifinals matches Saturday in the West German Open Tennis Championships.

Solomon took five sets to defeat West German champion Uli Pinner, who extended the American more than had been expected. Solomon dropped the first set 3-6, took the next two 6-3 and 6-2 and then lost the fourth 2-6 before going on to end the three-hour match with a final 6-2 game.

Pinner was the first German since 1974 to reach the finals of the West German Open championships.

Higueras had an easier time with Elliot Teltscher. He beat the American 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

Solomon and Higueras will meet today in the finals of the $175,000 tournament.

Dolphins sign Yepremian

MIAMI (UPI) — Veteran kicker Gary Yepremian signed a contract Saturday for his ninth season with the Miami Dolphins.

Yepremian, 35, a native of Cyprus, spent two seasons with the Detroit Lions in 1966-67, but was released after the 1967 season and was making neckties in a Michigan basement when the Dolphins signed him in 1970. He has been a fixture with the Miami team ever since.

New world walk record set

VALENCIA, Spain (UPI) — Olympic champion Daniel Bautista of Mexico set a new world record in the 20-kilometer walk Saturday with a time of 1 hour, 22 minutes and 15 seconds.

Bautista, 26, bettered the Soviet-held record of 1:22:30 by 15 seconds in a five-nation race between walkers from Spain, Mexico, Sweden, West Germany and Hungary.

Borah wins in state tennis

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — Borah and Bishop Kelly took the state open tennis trophies home to Boise Saturday after the Lions blasted Capital 71-39 in class A action and the B-K Knights slashed Wood River 64-46 in class B.

Borah won despite Scott Gerrity's upset for Boise in the singles championship over Borah's Ed Perkins, 6-1, 6-3.

Boise finished third in the two-day tournament at the Elkhorn courts with 36 points, followed by Highland, 24.

Class A girls singles winner was Susie Hulstrand of Borah.

Following the Knights and Wood River in class B were Welsler, 37, and Gooding, 28.

Boys singles titleist was Chris Langdon of B-K, while Ginger Hirooka of Wood River snared the girls trophy.

Waltrip grabs pole position

DOVER, Del. (UPI) — Darrell Waltrip won the pole position Saturday for today's $149,000 NASCAR Mason-Dixon 500 stock car race at Dover Downs International Speedway with an average speed of 136 mph in his Chevrolet.

Qualifying at the track was originally scheduled for Friday but was delayed by rain. Sunday's Mason-Dixon 500 starts at 11 a.m. Buddy Baker took the No. 2 position in a Chevy, followed by Bobby Allison in a Ford, Terry Labonte in a Chevy and Neil Bonnett in a Mercury.

Bates, Ochsner lead A-3s

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Writer

BOISE — Kacie Sue Bates of Murtaugh rose to the No. 2 spot among national prep girl high jumpers and Filer's Brian Ochsner added state championships No. 8 and 9 Friday and Saturday.

But basically, it wasn't a shiny weekend for Magic Valley's entrants in the A-3 state track and field championships.

For a while Valley and Filer were in the girls team race but ended up back in the top 10. Carnas County boys' hopes for a run at the title ended in a bunch of reversals and a very strong Kamiah Club onslaught.

Bates, runner-up at state last year, broke the overall Idaho mark with a leap of 5-10 Friday and some research overnight showed her 5-10 as the third best in the U.S. this season. Surely, one of those ahead of her is Colleen Rlenstra who could well be the best in the U.S. as a senior in Sparks, Nev. Rlenstra, as a freshman, set the 5-9 standard as a Buhl Indian three years ago. She had cleared 6-1½ and was No. 1 in the nation last year.

Bates went "staring" at such things, however. First, she wanted to win the duel with defending champion Lauri Johnson of Filer. She did at 5-4, then led Johnson's classification record at 5-6½ and went on to the 5-10 mark.

"I felt strong and was jumping well all day. But I was nervous all day, too," the Murtaugh junior said.

Ochsner romped off with the mile and two mile and tried to make a run at both records. He holds the mile mark. But there was no competition as Terry Lee, Camas County junior, again seconded him but from well back.

Ochsner still wouldn't talk about records. "No one is running good times today on this track," he said. "When you run into a slow time day, you just run to win."

Asked if he felt shoulder-to-shoulder pressure could have driven him on, Ochsner shrugged. "It's nice to have that gap between you and the next guy...in case something happens."

Valley made its run in the girls division on the strength of a second-place long jump and then a title in the 100-yard hurdles by senior Wendy Schwarz. But chances to enhance that diminished when the 440-yard relay team — the defending quartet and three of the incumbents returning — fell to fifth. In the intermediates, a nemesis for Wendy all year, the Valley co-valdicatorian ran into troubles and finished sixth.

Little T.J., Tami Jarolimek, of Filer won the two mile and got up in the late going for the title in the half-mile to help Filer. But Lauri Johnson couldn't find any sprint points this year and that — along with the high jump runner-up finish — prompted the blonde to say "this has been a terrible day."

Kip Perkins joined Bates in the Murtaugh winners circle by winning the pole vault at 13-3 with Keith Lemons of Camas County second. Lemons and John Kirtland were integral to the Mushers' bid for a high ten finish but Lemons couldn't equal his good times in the intermediates and fell unplaced and Kirtland couldn't find any points in the sprints.

The other individual championship taken by Magic Valley athletes was the quarter-mile in which Richfield's Sindi Smith out strained defending champion Cindy Brunton of Troy down the stretch to win by a couple of yards.

The 60-second barrier has been Smith's goal all year. But like everyone else, the youngster found out the BYU track wasn't fast Saturday. She ran a 61.8. Smith immediately dismissed the 60-far mark. "I've never been able to break 61 on this track," she said, but added she was happy with a gold medal and the chance to get another year spring.

Wendy Lancaster grabbed second in the long jump.

Lowell Black of Glens Ferry got up in the final several yards to grab second in the half-mile.

Simons sets mark in 400-meter run

EUGENE, Ore. — Greg Simons of the College of Southern Idaho set a new national junior college 400-meter dash record Saturday as the national championships drew to a close.

Simons, a sophomore, ran a 45.91, nearly a second ahead of the old record of 46.5.

He then came back and placed fifth in the 200-meter competition with a time of 21.4. The winning time was 20.6.

"He just didn't have enough rest in between races," said Coach Karl Kleinkopf. "Thirty minutes isn't enough."

Simons had run a 20.7 in the preliminaries on Friday.

In the 5,000 meter run, Jalro Correa captured second behind winner Sullivan Chebor of Essex, N.J. Correa's time was 14:19.34, while Chebor finished in 14:25.42. On Friday, Correa placed fifth in the 10,000 meter run.

Hernando Hernandez took 10th in the 10,000 meters with a time of 15:08.6.

The girls' mile relay squad placed fifth by running a 4:03.4 clocking. Team members include Carolyn Valez of Priest River, and Diane Scott, Barbara McGinnis, and Diana Dojezal, all of Twin Falls.

"We're really tickled they could win," said Kleinkopf.

Hernandez failed to place in the steeplechase, and Curtis Charles went 49-1½ in the triple jump but also failed to place.

The meet was won by New Mexico Junior College, with Essex finishing second. CSI had 21 points and finished about 10th place.

Hey America, want a free quart of motor oil?

As incredible as it may seem, Conoco wants to give you a quart of our best motor oil — free.

Why? Because we're out to prove just how good New Generation All Season Motor Oil really is.

We know the best way to prove it is through performance, not talk.

So when you try it, you'll find that our oil can save you money three ways.

First, it saves money on oil because it goes 15,000 miles or one year** (whichever comes first) between changes.

Second, it saves money on gas. When you combine it with good car care, you can improve gas mileage.

Gas Shortage finds its way to major league ballparks

CHICAGO (UPI) — Spot shortages of gasoline, coupled with rising cost of the fuel, may affect attendance at some major league ballparks where adequate mass transit alternatives do not exist.

A United Press International survey of major league baseball clubs indicates the effects of the gasoline crunch have been minimal so far.

However, in several cities, including those on the West Coast, team officials are worried about the availability of gasoline in the summer months could have an impact on attendance and eventually on team revenues.

Most teams indicated no firm plans were set by either league or individual teams to try to minimize problems with expensive, hard to find gasoline.

"There is at least one exception — the San Francisco Giants. The club handed out flyers to fans outlining public transportation outlets and sent out elaborate schedules detailing mass transit stops.

A spokesman for the Giants said gasoline problems will hurt them most on the weekends, when the Giants have recently been drawing crowds from nearby Fresno, Modesto and Stockton.

Downstate in Los Angeles, where the odd-even gasoline purchasing plan has been under way for two weeks, the effects already have been felt. An official of the Los Angeles Dodgers said the team failed to get an expected sellout of a recent weekend series with the Philadelphia Phillies.

"We were looking for 50,000 people on each date," he said, "but instead, we had figures in the low 40,000s."

The spokesman said the gasoline situation helped cut the attendance because people were becoming "more conservative" on where they would use their cars. The official said sections of Dodger Stadium usually occupied by people who buy tickets the day of the game have been "a little less crowded than we had anticipated."

Mike Bertani, ticket director for the St. Louis Cardinals, said the possibility of gas rationing and shortages would affect the team, which draws heavily on the weekend from a five-state area including Iowa, Arkansas, Illinois, and western Kentucky and Tennessee.

"We're aware of it and we're talking about it," he said, "but right now, it's all hypothetical. Until we know the president's plan, we don't know how to react to it."

Tom Mee, a spokesman for the Minnesota Twins, said all clubs were "alerted" by the commissioner's office at the start of the year and instructed to "explore avenues for dealing with a possible shortage."

But Mee said action was left up to each club and little can be done this year. But he forecast the possibility of more doubleheaders and earlier starting times.

Bob Hope, an Atlanta Braves spokesman, was more optimistic and doesn't anticipate major changes in scheduling.

"I don't think it would affect us that much," Hope said. "Baseball's schedule is set up to accommodate people's best interest anyway, around their schedule."

Dick Hackett, vice president of marketing for the Milwaukee Brewers, said the degree of the gasoline shortage may dictate what teams' responses might be.

"If people can't drive in here and get a tank of gas to go home," he said, "it's going to be a problem. But I don't anticipate that problem."

Boston Red Sox spokesman Dick Bresciani said the city should not be as hard pressed as others.

"We're in a much better situation than many big cities," he said. "Boston is fortunate to be a city with a good municipal transit system."

Arthur Richman of the New York Mets echoed a similar assessment but admitted the public may be less willing to use autos to go to a baseball game.

Bob Devoy, ticket manager for the Chicago White Sox, said his club usually only draws from an area "well within driving distance" of Comiskey Park and that adequate mass transportation is available for his team and the neighboring Chicago Cubs.

Schlitz to sponsor pro rodeo

Administration reverses stand on gasohol

By SONJA HILGREN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration, accused of opposing gasohol, indicates it has reversed its stand. Both Agriculture and Energy department officials appeared before a House Agriculture subcommittee this week to highlight policies they would encourage production of alcohol fuels. That pleased congressmen from farm states, but they remained skeptical of the government's commitment to the fuel. Deputy Secretary Jim Williams surprised the subcommittee when he said Agriculture Department officials would make idled cropland available for growing crops for gasohol. "If there is a demonstrated market demand," Assistant energy secretary Alvin Alm, who has supported alcohol fuels for several months, said alternative liquid fuels have a place in the nation's long term energy policy. He said the administration is developing a policy to "reduce dependence on foreign oil in the short term and develop renewable and essentially inexhaustible sources of energy in the long term." Alm said the current capacity to produce 20 million gallons of alcohol a year could increase to 300 million gallons by 1982, with gasohol reaching 5 percent of gasoline consumption, and gradually to higher levels. But a key aspect of his testimony was his opposition to growing additional crops for alcohol production. He said in the next decade alcohol feedstocks would not be food crops, but waste materials or distressed grain. "An impetus for some of the shifts in attitudes about alcohol fuels appeared to be President Carter, who proposed a permanent extension of a 4-cent-per-gallon exemption in excise taxes for gasohol. And he proposed a program of $11 million to farmers and cooperatives for 100 small-scale alcohol plants. Agriculture Department officials indicated that despite the announcements, an anti-gasohol bias exists. They called attention to the "ifs" in Williams' statement and said officials were biding their time to see if gasohol fever subsides. They expressed strong resistance to converting crops to alcohol, partially because of the unreliability of crop production. Subcommittee hearings were called to consider a proposal by Rep. Berkeley Bedell, D-Iowa, to replace the farm program by encouraging farmers to grow crops for alcohol fuels on currently idled land. Both the Energy and Agriculture Departments failed to endorse the bill, although Williams said he would like to work with committee members on legislation if they felt that current authority was insufficient. During the hearings, congressmen had different views on the kind of policies a pro-gasohol administration should pursue. Rep. Floyd Filthian, D-Ind., asked if Alm was telling the subcommittee what they wanted to hear or if there was a new policy thrust. Alm said an increase in research, funds for alcohol plants and especially the 4-cent excise tax exemption were "tangible realities." "The program, I think, is a very aggressive program," he said. The Energy Department is aware of reports that some oil companies are prohibiting their affiliated stations from selling gasohol and "we're looking into it," he said. He said gasohol, a mixture of 10 percent ethanol and 90 percent gasoline, would be useful to supplement unleaded gasoline, which is in short supply. Currently, 35 percent of gasoline is unleaded and the percentage will rise to 75 percent or more by the mid 1980s, he said. Rep. Tom Hagedorn, R-Minn., said administration policies were a "double here and a double there."

The $11 million for small plants was "a hastily put-together program" to appeal to farmers in the Midwest, he said. "I'm disappointed in the magnitude of your support," he said. Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Ill., criticized the Energy Department for proposing $23 million for research and development in fiscal 1980 — up from $7.7 million in fiscal 1977 — out of $3.5 billion spent for all energy research. Although sharing the skepticism, Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., defended the level of research and development. He said alcohol production could stall in research when the real need was for commercialization. Glickman asked if Alm supported spending more money for federal loan guarantees for alcohol plants.

Boycott renewal probable

BURLEY — A seed bean growers' boycott which ended last March will be resumed next winter, according to the chairman of the board of Contract Beans Inc. Dee Kelcher of Burley told the Times-News a boycott carried on by seed bean growers against companies they contract with succeeded in pushing up contract prices and left some companies short of growers. But he said the boycott will be called again next December because companies haven't acceded to grower demands. A seed company representative said the boycott had some effect on raising contract prices and indicated his and other companies were still seeking farmers to sign contracts. But the representative attributed the contract problem to increased acreage, rather than to the boycott. Kelcher also said a list of growers who violate growers' demands will be circulated among Contract members in January. The boycott was declared against seed companies which require certain quality standards before they will pay for contracts. Contract Beans Inc., a 240-member growers group, has asked companies to drop this "germination clause" from their contracts. Not all of Magic Valley's 20-30 seed companies were the target of the boycott. Some companies don't have germination requirements in their contracts. Kelcher said the boycotted companies took no action on the request because it came too late. The growers also protested company practices of late payments and excessive clean outs or sifting out of low quality beans. Contract called the boycott off March 15 because banks were pressuring farmers to sign contracts, according to Kelcher. But some growers never signed and many switched to commercial beans instead, Kelcher said. "There was a feeling we went as far as we could," Kelcher said. "But there was some success. We did bring the price up." He said the price climbed $2 to $3 on beans which are hardest to grow. He added that the increase in the growers' holding out for better terms. The seed company man said prices on some varieties were up, but that inter-company competition was responsible for the increase. "The boycott wasn't the cause of the rise, he said, "although it might have been in some cases." "We didn't notice too much boycotting. There was some. The farmers are in a bind and a lot of them held back to see if the price would go up," he said. His company is still short of acreage and will increase the number of contracts until the May 25 planting. Bean acreage in the Magic Valley is "way up" this year, he said, blaming that factor for yet-unsigned contracts. He said his company will wait and see if growers present their demands next year. "If a serious problem exists we want to work with them to try and solve it," he commented.

Close look at development advised

EDEN — Farm development administered by the state should be paid for primarily by those who develop and farm the land, Idaho Water Resource board member James Shawver said. In an interview, the newly appointed board member also said the cost of development should be looked at closely because of currently depressed farm prices. The Department of Water Resources is studying the feasibility of a water board-proposed, 110,000-acre farm development project on the Bruneau Plateau. Shawver, an Eden farmer and member of the board of the North Side Canal-Co., said other important factors in evaluating new farm projects are the added cost to the state's electrical wires and the impact of more crops on existing farmers. "The cost of the project should be looked at to see if the people who are going to use it can exist under the cost of developing new land," Shawvers said. Energy cost increase "very definitely should be weighed heavily in developing new land," he added. However, he defended the proposed Bruneau Plateau Project, saying the new farms would depend on gravity flow, not electrical pumping. Shawver said farmers who receive land from state administered development projects should pay most of the project study and construction cost. The state should pick up the remainder, Shawver made no comment on Gov. John Evans' proposal to finance water project studies through a tax on the electrical bills of all Idahoans. On another current water board issue, Shawver said he won't push for legislative approval of minimum flow designations of Idaho streams. The water board has recommended designating some streams minimum flow as protection against further diversion, but has so far not forwarded those recommendations to the legislature.

Once minimum flows are approved by the legislature, further water rights applications cannot be granted. The designation is intended to protect fish and water quality. "I wouldn't necessarily be an advocate of pushing them through the legislature," Shawver said. "Other projects would be as important." He said his position in the canal company, which he has held for seven years, does not constitute a conflict of interest and he doesn't plan to resign from it.

Cattlemen review BLM range data

ROGERSON — The Idaho Cattlemen's Association will send a range scientist to the Bennett Hills grazing area to "check up on" data collected by the Bureau of Land Management. The BLM recently completed an environmental impact statement for Bennett Hills which recommends reducing grazing by 35 percent in order to stop range erosion on the 547,000-acre public range area between Fairfield, King Hill and Shoshone. The recommendation was made based on surveys of forage and soil conditions made by the agency in 1976 and 1977. "The BLM plan will be reviewed at a public hearing May 30, and if it is approved, would go into effect in 1980." ICA President Bill Swan of Rogerson said Monday the association thinks the BLM proposal may be based on "invalid" data. Swan said the ICA will hire a range scientist to examine some of the range conditions on which the BLM based its plan. While Swan declined to say which data he suspects, he noted some of the agency's forage surveys were done during the drought in 1977. Swan also said the grazing cuts would amount to a 54 percent rather than 35 percent reduction, because many allotted grazing units are already voluntarily not being used. The association was carried out a similar range survey in Challis when that grazing area was under BLM study. Swan said the Challis effort, carried out by four range scientists, was influential in changing Challis reduction plans.

New FFA Chapter president Robert Winkle received the gavel from former president Bret Dixon. Other new officers will be Melinda Pangburn, vice-president; Karen Hansen, secretary; Greg Hutchins, treasurer; Richard Pangburn, reporter; and Kevin Stigle, sentinel. Letter awards went to Kent Metcalf and Hank Buschhorn, first year; Kevin Stigle, Rob Sellers and Greg

Valley FFA members honored during dinner

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Outstanding Valley FFA members were honored recently at their annual parent-member banquet at the high school. Kelly Stigle was named the Star Chapter Farmer, and Richard Pangburn received the Star Chapter Greenhand award. Three boys, Curt McEwen, Kelly Stigle and Mike Strucek, who had been awarded their state Farmer Degrees earlier in the year were recognized. Chapter Farmer Degrees were given to Doug Grant, Rob Sellers, Kevin Stigle, Bob Henry, Wade Johnson, Scott Johnson and Hank Buschhorn.

Hutchins, second year; Robert Winkle, Mike Strucek, Melinda Pangburn and Verlyn Lohnes, third year; and Kelly Stigle and Curt McEwen, fourth year. Foundation awards were given to Mike Strucek for crops; Melinda Pangburn, public speaking; Kelly Stigle, beef, livestock and swine; Greg Hutchins, sheep, poultry and home improvement; Curt McEwen, dairy; and Verlyn Lohnes, farm mechanics. Special recognition was given to the members of the various judging teams who helped the Valley FFA Chapter win the Sweepstakes Trophy for the Eastern Magic Valley District again this year. Valley Chapter has won the award four out of the last five years.

Fuel supply crisis threatens farmers in Midwest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Officials of Farmland Industries Inc. have warned Midwest congressmen the region is near a crisis because of poor supplies of petroleum for crop planting and harvesting. John Anderson, president of the Kansas City, Mo.-based agribusiness concern, said Tuesday unless the Department of Energy acts immediately, "petroleum will not be available in required quantities in late May and June" for planting and harvesting. Anderson said the government must re-evaluate the capacity of the Coffeyville, Kan., refinery operated by Farmland Industries by June 1. The refinery needs an immediate allocation of crude oil for June 1-Sept. 30 so it can provide gasoline and diesel fuel for farmers, he said. In the long term, agriculture must have a priority for crude oil assigned at the refinery level, he said. Anderson suggested establishment of a petroleum set-aside for agriculture, under which each refinery would set aside 1 percent of supplies each month for a pool which could be directed to areas of agricultural shortage.

Letter awards went to Kent Metcalf and Hank Buschhorn, first year; Kevin Stigle, Rob Sellers and Greg Honored guests, besides the parents, included school trustees Glen Reed and Larry Anderson and their wives, district FFA president Kelly Stigle, State FFA reporter Bob Pangburn and last year's chapter president Dan Pangburn.

Chemical timebomb in Iowa?

CHARLES CITY, Iowa (UPI) — For half the 50 years Salsbury Laboratories has helped provide a sound tax base and jobs in this Iowa town of 9,000 residents, authorities now say it has also been creating an environmental timebomb.

In 1953, the firm began depositing chemical waste with state approval at a site called LaBounty along the Cedar River flood plain.

Charles City's No. 1 employer, a leading manufacturer of livestock pharmaceuticals, dumped byproducts from production of livestock chemicals including a feed supplement that cuts the maturation time for broiler chickens and a first-ever mass vaccine.

Tons of waste accumulated along the river, which flows south to the population centers of Waterloo and Cedar Rapids.

Armed with geologic samplings, Salsbury was confident underlying bedrock and upward pressure beneath the site prevented seepage into the river or an aquifer (a water-bearing bed of rock, sand or gravel) that provides drinking water for 300,000 people throughout northern Iowa.

But in late 1977, that confidence was challenged. The Iowa Department of Environmental Quality, in an action contested in the courts, ordered Salsbury to remove potentially hazardous waste from the site at a cost some pegged at up to $50 million.

Tests showed as much as 195 pounds of arsenic were entering the River daily. Traces of a chemical dye known as ONA were found in drinking water supplies downstream, raising the specter of contamination from the Salsbury plant.

In all, government officials estimated, the site contained six million pounds of arsenic and at least 26 organic compounds, 17 of them designated priority pollutants by the Environmental Protection Agency.

LaBounty was listed among 103 sites around the country the EPA deemed potentially dangerous to public health.

"What we have is a potentially explosive environmental situation — an environmental timebomb — just waiting to go off," said one state official. "What we're trying to do is defuse it."

Despite the company's charge of "public hysteria," the Salsbury case was likened to the Love Canal at Niagara Falls, N.Y., where suspected cancer-causing agents were detected in homes built above buried chemical waste.

DEQ Director Larry Crane placed LaBounty in the top 10 and probably one of the top five most dangerous chemical waste deposits in the country, igniting a fierce debate over whether LaBounty could trigger an environmental disaster comparable to the Love Canal.

Salsbury officials amassed evidence to bolster their contention the threat is not as serious as officials implied.

The EPA analyzed wastewater from the plant and concluded there was a strong likelihood it was carcinogenic, but the finding was challenged by Salsbury and analyzed by the state.

J. Pat McDonnell, Salsbury's pharmaceutical development and analysis manager, said the EPA concentrated the water 160 times before testing and noted tests by private and state laboratories disputed the finding of carcinogenicity.

"It's sort of like the saccharin thing," McDonnell said. "If you feed a rat enough of it, you'll have different results from what you'd have under normal conditions."

McDonnell said the government used "scare tactics" to highlight the danger posed by the Salsbury waste.

Testing by a Salsbury-hired firm, he said, showed a toxicity level equivalent to alcohol and less dangerous than herbicides freely applied to nearby farm fields.

Salsbury is not accused of violating environmental standards, either in its discharge of treated liquid waste or runoff from the LaBounty site.

Rather, the controversy revolves around differing scenarios concerning the fate of millions of pounds of arsenic and other pollutants.

The possibility of large-scale contamination hinges in part on the stability of the underlying geologic foundation and upward pressure it exerts to prevent waste from seeping underground — and threatening the right to drink water.

Salsbury officials insist the rock structure is sound. As long as the pressure holds, there is little chance of contamination and they argue there is no evidence it will subside or reverse.

"It was there in 1953 and it's there now," said Russell Smith, chemical production and engineering manager. "Unless you have a force driving these chemicals down, nothing's going to happen."

The government, however, takes a different view.

Crane insisted there are no assurances hydrostatic pressure prevents downward migration of the pollutants will not bbb. And if the pressure falls or the underlying bedrock fissures, he said, contamination could occur.

"We're very concerned about what might happen if we lose that pressure," he said. "We're not saying it will happen, but it could and if it does it'll be too late to do anything about it."

Conflicting threat assessments have stymied action on isolating the waste. Since December 1977, Salsbury has shipped its byproducts — at much higher cost — to a government-approved out-of-state disposal site.

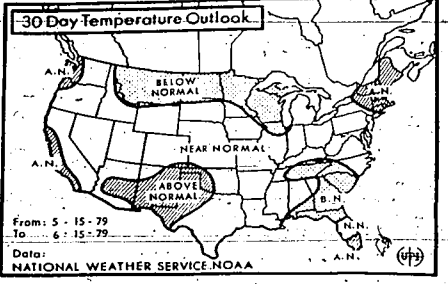

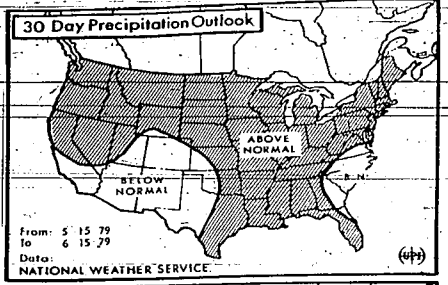

Moves to ensure the LaBounty site's safety, however, have been hampered by Salsbury's out-legal action and what an Iowa legislator termed "one of the worst cases of being caught in the bureaucratic maze I've ever seen."

The evolution of the Salsbury case, discloses — a string of bureaucratic obstacles and policy decisions that two decades later appeared to have been wrong. It is regarded by government officials as epitomizing an emerging national crisis — the problem of coping with industrial wastes that for years were buried, injected into waterways or simply dumped, as in the LaBounty case.

To some, a major Cooper said, Salsbury is a victim of changes in the government's anti-pollution program, classifying as hazardous organic chemicals the company never considered when its dumping began in 1953.

"We're as anxious to resolve all these questions as they are — even more so, with the uncertainty hanging over us," he said. "Maybe if we'd known 25 years ago what we know now we wouldn't have this potential for hazard. But we didn't."

"We were going with state of the art and now we have these organics that no one knows what to do with."

Crop, livestock check scheduled this month

BOISE — Earlier this year farmers indicated plans to cut back on feed grain acreage and increase land going to soybeans and ranchers reported another decline in the nation's cattle herd.

Just how many acres actually went into production this season and how many livestock are on hand? A nationwide survey in late May and early June will develop estimates to guide farmers in their future marketing. The results of the survey will inform all agriculture interests and policymakers on what to expect from agriculture this year.

In the earlier report farmers planned to boost acreages going for soybeans, durum wheat and cotton while cutting back on corn, sorghum, oats and barley. A cattle count at the start of 1979 showed the fourth consecutive annual drop in the cattle numbers. Hog numbers are the largest since the early 70's with spring and summer farrowing intentions indicating continued expansion.

Richard C. Max of the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service cites the importance of producer cooperation in developing reliable current indications of acreages and livestock. Representatives from his staff will interview a cross-section of farmers and mail questionnaires to others to gather data for the estimates. Similar surveys will be carried on in all States.

National and State estimates will be published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Board. A report on 1979 spring planted acres will be available June 25, followed by July 11 with estimates of yield and production for major crops.

Milk output climbs

BOISE (UPI) — Milk production in Idaho totaled 138 million pounds during April, 5 percent more than during the same month last year, the state, Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has announced.

Milk per cow on farms, 960 pounds, was 30 pounds up from 1978. The number of milk cows on farms, 142,000, was increased 2,000 over April 1978, the service reported.

Nationally, April milk production was calculated to be 10.6 billion pounds, slightly lower than the 1978 figure, the Idaho service said.

Challis girl wins medal for 4-H work

MOSCOW — Mary Chivers of Challis has received a silver medal from the Idaho Veterinary Medical Association Auxiliary for excellence in the 4-H veterinary science project.

Other qualified participants who received a silver charm (girls) or key chains (boys) were Robin Hall, Jean Neumeyer and Alice Woodward, all of Bonneville; Jim Boyd of Caldwell; and Lisa Thyssen of Coeur d'Alene.

Also honored were Laurie Elliott of Hagerman and Janet Taylor of Wendell.

Further information about the award program is available from county offices of the U. of I. Cooperative Extension Service.

Shortage of slaughter cattle closes packing plants in Midwestern states

©New York Times Service

WICHITA, Kan. — The most severe shortage of slaughter cattle in more than 20 years has forced meat-packing plants and slaughterhouses in Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and other Middle Western states to lay off hundreds of workers and reduce sharply their operating hours.

The cattle shortage has also caused a dramatic increase in beef prices. Hamburger now costs more than 32¢ a pound in some cities, and various cuts of beefsteak have risen by more than 25 percent over the last six months, merchants report.

Beef industry analysts, like the industry itself, attribute the shortage primarily to ranchers' liquidations or reductions of their cattle herds over the last two years, because of depressed beef prices. They discount suggestions that a trend toward economic centralization in the industry is responsible.

"The entire industry is in a very tight squeeze," said Charles Harness, a spokesman for Iowa Beef Processors Inc., the nation's largest beef processing company.

Nevertheless, the Department of Agriculture announced last week that it was investigating possible anticompetitive effects of joint ventures and mergers in the beef industry. And Secretary Bob Bergland, in testimony before the House Committee on Small Business last week, noted a "heavy trend toward economic centralization" in the beef industry.

One of the companies under federal scrutiny is the MBPXL Corp., a Wichita-based beef-processing company that, with five plants in Kansas, Missouri and Texas, is the nation's second-largest beef processor. In January, MBPXL was purchased by Cargill Inc., bringing under joint corporate control Caprock Industries, a cattle-leasing company in Texas and Kansas.

Over the last three years, MBPXL reported purchasing $7 million worth of cattle from Caprock, but an MBPXL spokesman said that purchases have been "at an arm's length" since the merger.

Iowa Beef Processors, which operates nine plants in Iowa, Nebraska, Texas, Kansas, Minnesota, Idaho and Washington, has also developed a joint venture, with feed lots in Northwestern states. Its spokesman said.

But contract buying and joint ventures in the beef industry represent "a really insignificant factor in the cost and in the overall supply," according to Tommy Beall of Cattle-

Fax, a Denver-based research service that is operated by the National Cattlemen's Association.

"In almost all instances, the big companies are in the same boat as the little guys, when it comes to buying beef," he said. Most purchases are more than a week before delivery to processing plants, he added, and "everybody has to pay what the market will bear."

Beall noted that both of the nation's largest processing companies have laid off workers recently. Iowa Beef Processors announced layoffs of 575 employees at its plants in Dakota City, Neb., and Fort Dodge, Iowa, and MBPXL has laid off 230 workers at its Wichita plant.

The industry slowdown is most pronounced in this state, where 700 workers have been laid off in the last month. All eight of the state's beef packing and slaughter plants have shortened their hours of operation.

"The price of cattle is simply too high for us to make our normal operation profitable," said Darrell Steggs, plant manager of the Hy Plains Company's dressed-beef plant in Dodge City, where operations have been cut from a normal six-day workweek to 24 hours each week.

Choice steers sold off feedlots to Kansas meat-packing plants now average 78 cents a pound, he said, up from an average of 47 cents a pound in early May last year. Hy Plains, which normally processes 3,600 cattle each week, reported processing 1,354 cattle in the last week of April.

Beall of Cattle-Fax said the rising beef costs over the last year "have been caused, very simply, by a problem in supply." He said beef delivered to market this month represents an annual consumption rate of 105 pounds per capita, down from 120 pounds per capita in May 1978.

The beef shortage "is more severe, and has occurred more quickly" than anything in the past, he asserted. But he predicted that the situation "should be remedied as herds are expanded to meet the demand over the next two years."

Winner announced

MOSCOW — Pamela Fleischmann of Idaho Falls is state winner in a 4-H beekeeping essay contest, according to Chuck Thomas, assistant state 4-H leader at the University of Idaho.

Miss Fleischmann, who wrote about "Products of the Honey Bee Colony," including the nutrients in honey, will receive a book about bees, and her essay will be submitted in competition for a $250 national prize.

The national award winner will be announced about June 1.

Farm credit amount hiked

TWIN FALLS — The House Agriculture Committee has increased the amount of credit available to farmers.

The committee set a new credit ceiling of $5.8 billion a year in Farmers Home Administration funds which are available on real estate, farm operating, water-sewer, community facility and business-industrial loans. Last year's limits totaled $3.9 billion, and the administration had proposed a lid of $3.5 billion.

The House bill provides for yearly increases similar to those in recent years.

The bill also allows towns of up to 20,000 people to get water-sewer loans compared to the current limit of 10,000. Other amendments allow loans to be made for gasohol production, earmark 25 percent of all funds for low-income borrowers and make legal resident aliens eligible for disaster loans.

Here's suggestion how to control damage from cutworms

FOLLING GARDENERS WHO SET OUT

Home cutworms — tomatoeaters, peppers, eggplants and other transplants often find a sorry sight the next day: something lopped off the plants. There are two animals which can cause this — rabbits and cutworms. If the cut is made on a plant you can be sure it's a rabbit injury. If the plant is moved off at the soil line, it's cut worms, a greasy graying caterpillar which hides under stones and debris during the day and does it cloak and dagger work at night. Control: wrap each transplant with a piece of wax paper (inservsed an inch below soil line), or use a half barrier carton of plastic. Anise, bark around the stem will keep the cutworm away. Chemical control consists of dusting some Sevin around the plant at time of planting.

What snips the tips out of your young plants soon after they are set out? This is the work of starlings and grackles. For some reason they swoop down and grab the top, yanking the entire plant out of the ground. Covering young plants with baskets or crates when they are fully rooted is the only control.

SAVE THOSE SEEDS?
Millions of dollars are wasted on used paint brushes and surplus seeds "after the job has been finished." No reason why you can't keep excess seeds near for next year. Best way to keep the vigor and longevity of left-over seeds if you follow this simple, inexpensive method for storing: (1) unfold and lay out a stack of four facial tissues. (2) Place two heaping tablespoons of seeds in the middle corner. (The dry milk must be from a freshly opened pouch or box to guarantee dryness). (3) Fold and roll the facial tissue to make a small pouch. Secure with tape or a rubber band. (4) Place the pouch in a wide mouth jar and immediately drop in packets of leftover seeds. The tissues will prevent seed packets from touching the desiccant. (5) Seal the jar tightly, using a rubber ring to shut out moist air. (6) Store the jar in the refrigerator. NOT IN THE FREEZER.

Remember dried milk is "hygroscopic" — meaning it will take on moisture, so rewrap the jar any time you remove seeds.

NOW'S THE TIME TO: Mulch rose bushes with peat, oak leaf compost, cocoa bean shells, etc; plant more seed of chives in pots — divide old clumps every three years, and keep a few heads cut off, clean out the fireplace and store the ashes in a garbage can to keep them dry for later use; if you're planting a tree or shrub in clayey soil, be sure to put a couple inches of perlite in the bottom of the hole.

GROW DAYLILIES
Home gardeners don't grow enough daylilies. There are over 14,000 cultivars of daylily (Hemerocallis) with new ones being added each year. If you're keeping them in the garden, keep in mind that the newest and most expensive varieties are not always the best performers. Here are some good varieties that have durability, plenty of blooms, a long flowering season, as well as gracefulness: Anne's Lily; brilliant red; Buddha, dot mahogany; Cornwall, glistening, clean orange; Cherry Cheeks, raspberry pink; Ed Murray, deep red maroon; Heavenly Harp, crystalline diamond dusted yellow and pink blend; Jim Cooper, vermilion red, Lovers Moon, golden orange; Oriental Ruby, carmen-red and one of the best; Rozavel, raspberry-pink with an apricot throat; Wining Ways, an all-time great with yellow flowers.

Hemerocallis or daylilies will grow in sun or shade. They have no serious insects or disease problems. With a proper selection you can have blooms spring, summer and fall.

SPRAYING PLANTS:
Here are some guidelines to follow if you are going to spray house plants or shrubs. Don't spray on a hot day. Spray in the morning if possible, between 6 to 10. This will give the moisture time to dry off before evening. Also, when air or plant tissue temperature is about 90 degrees or higher, damage will likely occur. On bright sunny days, leaf tissue temperatures may be 5 to 15 degrees higher than the surrounding air. Avoid temperature extremes outdoors, either high or low, since slow-growing plants (due to cool weather) are more likely to be damaged. Never spray plants when they are in need of water.

Wilted or dry plants are very sensitive to spraying.

Wettable powders are usually safer to plants than the emulsions because they don't contain emulsifiers and solvents. Powders may leave an objectionable residue on the leaves, especially on ornamentals. If you use aerosol spray cans, apply at temperatures lower than 75 degrees F. They will damage plants when applied above 85 degrees F. Hold the can at least 18 inches away from the plants.

ALCOHOLIC INSECTICIDES
Use of alcohol for killing mealybugs and scale on plants. We implied that ethanol and rubbing alcohol were one in the same substance. An organic chemist tells us that ethanol is the ingredient in all wines and spirits. Rubbing alcohol is isopropanol and is toxic to humans when taken internally. Conclusion: Use the rubbing alcohol on your plants (2 parts to 1 part plain tap water). Don't drink it. We didn't mean to imply that you can safely drink rubbing alcohol.

CLEANSING FOLIAGE:
Most foliage plants have a residue of dust and deposits of minerals from the watering system, such as iron and calcium. Also algae may grow on leaves as well as on clay pots due to humid conditions.

Suggestion: Add some detergent (1/2 teaspoon) to a gallon of water and wash off leaves, using a soft cloth or sponge.

QUESTION BOX
QUESTION OF THE WEEK: R.F. of Burley. "It would like to redo my perennial bed (13'x3'). In the background I have pink phlox, shasta daisy, (plain and double), and three Ostrich plume fern. I want to fill in with other perennials to keep the area in constant bloom. Can you suggest something that can be planted between the plants?"

You really don't have too much space to add to your fine list, but we could suggest a few more for extra color. How about day-lilies? Or Hosta (Marginata-alba), a long-lived plant that needs little care. Astilbes are wonderful, about a foot high and coming in pink, red and white spikes. Ideal for cut flowers. With right selection astilbes flower for the better part of the summer. All they need is summer moisture, plus light shade (or full sun).

You don't have to rely on flowers alone for late summer effect in your garden. Two good foliage plants include blue fescue (festuca) and Silver Mound Artemisia. These fine edging perennials need good drainage and bright light for spectacular show. If you have room for a good background plant, try the Monkshood (Aconitum), reaching four or five feet high. This over-100-year perennial has a long blooming period and needs to be staked. Plant is toxic and a routine word of caution is in order if kids are around.

F.R. of Declo: "We grew many plants from seed and at time of transplanting the stems were darkened and constricted. What caused this?"

What you probably had is Rhizoctonia, a fungus that causes the stems to darken, to become constricted and look like a wire, at the soil line. Rhizoctonia may attack all plant parts, but causes diseases of seedlings mainly. The problem called "damping-off," where tissue topples over from the fungus. Although rhizoctonia is not commonly spread by airborne spores, it is very frequent ly. Its appearance in growing media, where it can rapidly spread itself through the soil. Control: Try a soil drench of Benlate, 1 tablespoon to a gallon of water. Commercial growers use PCNB (Terracot, but care has to be used as plant damage may result).

C.D. of Rupert: "Is it true you can grow potatoes from pieces cut from a mature potato?"

Yes, these are called "potato sets," pieces cut with just a part of the flesh and an "eye." In fact, if you plant potato peelings (with an eye or sprout) you will get yourself a good crop of spuds. Good types to try: New Norland, Norchip, Kennebec (late and light resistant), Red Pontiac (red skin and white flesh, good for boiling) and Norgold Russet.

Hydro power short course set in Idaho

MOSCOW — An intensive short course in small scale hydro power feasibility, planning and design will be offered this summer at the University of Idaho.

The short course is being sponsored by the Office of Continuing Education, the College of Engineering and the Idaho Water Resources Research Institute.

Two sessions are planned, one June 18-22 and one Aug. 20-24. The course is designed for engineering teachers and engineering consultants.

Participants will gain a working knowledge of techniques to teach or to proceed with feasibility procedures for the study of hydro plants of small scale. A brief examination of pumped-storage hydro will also be made.

The short course includes lectures, problem laboratory sessions, homework and work with small calculators and IBM Fortran computer programs.

The short course will meet in the Janssen Engineering Building. Enrollment is limited to 35 students and the later session will be held if preliminary response is great enough. There is a $250 registration fee which includes a course syllabus, a copy of "Low-Head Hydro," computer time, coffee and refreshments during classroom sessions and a dinner. Information or pre-registration are available through the Office of Continuing Education, University of Idaho, Moscow, Idaho 83843, telephone (208) 885-6486.

Costs averaged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Group Insurance policies offered by employers can afford to provide coverage regardless of an employee's health because most such groups contain enough healthy members to offset those who are not. This allows costs to be averaged over the whole group, says the Health Insurance Institute.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER 5000 Series WINDROWER

The DUAL AUGER HEADER is back, — and it's better than ever!!

The versatility of the new header is unmatched by any competitive machine. The Dual Auger header lends itself to harvesting a variety of crops which other headers cannot handle satisfactorily, such as peas, various seed crops and cereal grains like wheat, oats, barley, rye, etc. It also handles regular crops like alfalfa, wild hay and grasses, including grass seed.

This header is of a patented design with two augers per side which floats the crop on top of the augers and conveys it to the center where it is deposited in a windrow.

Just Cheek These Features:

- Precision mainframe on header
- "Precision" wobble type knife drive, fully enclosed in oil bath.
- Chassis mounted hay conditioner with steel and rubber rolls, height adjustable, lifts automatically with header. May be locked up in storage position when not in use on certain crops.
- Master and slave cylinder always lift header level.
- Electrically operated variable speed reel drive available as an option.
- Wider opening in back sheet for handling heavy crops.

William Harrah biography under way

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — He turned a bingo parlor into a multi-million dollar gambling empire and still managed to remain a man who could pass unnoticed on the street.

When William Harrah died June 30, 1978, at the age of 68, his name was mentioned in the same breath with millionaires like Howard Hughes and John Paul Getty.

But most people in Idaho, where Harrah often spent vacations, never recognized the tall, soft-spoken man who walked among them. They never suspected he was the king of Nevada gambling casinos and one of the richest men in America.

Harrah, that quiet and aloof figure who stood back from the public limelight throughout life, is likely to step forward into a clear light now.

James Belson, a former director of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, has been commissioned by Harrah's last wife, Vera, to write Harrah's biography. Belson's assignment is to portray the man who ruled a vast gambling empire in Nevada, owned the world's largest antique car collection and purchased prize lands throughout Ketchum, Sun Valley, Stanley and McCall.

For the past two months, Belson says, he has been working closely with Mrs. Harrah — interviewing her and collecting stories and anecdotes which reveal the private side of her late husband.

Trained as an engineer at UCLA, Harrah started on his road to success in 1937 when he opened a bingo parlor in Reno with six employees. Today, Harrah's officials say, the corporation employs more than 6,800 people in its summer peak season.

"He was a fascinating guy," Belson said, after returning to his home in Ketchum from a recent research trip to Southern California. "He was a perfectionist who gave incredible care to detail. It is a true Horatio Alger story."

Having largely completed his interviews with Mrs. Harrah, Belson

Ketchum cemetery final resting place of gambling king has now launched into historical research, tracing Harrah's roots back to their source in Venice, Calif. Along the way, he has been interviewing Harrah Corporation executives, entertainment people and others who knew the quiet millionaire.

During a recent trip to California and Reno, Belson said he interviewed comedian Don Rickles and Liza Minnelli for the book. Other likely interviews will plumb the memories of close Harrah friends like Bill Cosby, Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr.

"They all had a great respect for the man," Belson observed about the performers who knew Harrah. "He himself was kind of reserved and understated. But on the other hand, he had a great respect and admiration for people who could stand up and perform."

From these interviews, a portrait of the man is slowly beginning to emerge. It is the portrait of a hard-working and humble man.

"I guess the man that is emerging is a very careful perfectionist," Belson said. "He was someone who gave attention to every detail and took notes on every idea that came along.

He built up a gambling business and an antique car collection always attempting to do the best. He started on his own and worked really hard. . . . He was held in awe by the people I have interviewed."

Belson said he hopes to complete the book sometime in 1980.

Tourists only people interested in Spuds

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — In the case of Spuds, it's all in a name.

Spud cigarettes are not made with potatoes, are not rolled in potato skins and don't even have a picture of a potato on the package.

Every year, a token stock of the obscure cigarette are turned out at the Phillip Morris plant in Richmond, Virginia. Spuds are sold in a few grocery stores, only in Utah and Idaho.

The only place to buy Spuds in southern Idaho is the Circle K store on Main Street in Ketchum, where tourists like to buy a pack to take home as a souvenir of the famous potato state.

The cigarettes are token remnants of a brand that, along with another "lost" brand called Fleetwood, was taken over by Phillip Morris in 1944.

Phillip Morris deemed both failures shortly after.

But 35 years later, the international tobacco producer keeps rolling up several cartons of Spuds each month in order to protect the "Spud" trademark.

The regular tobacco cigarettes, sold in a modest red and blue striped pack, are distributed by a traveling tobacco salesman from Twin Falls named Eddie.

Although most retailers refuse to sell Spuds, Eddie has managed to sell enough packs to protect the rare, possibly valuable "Spud" trademark for the giant multi-billion dollar Phillip Morris Corporation.

Spuds, a non-potato product that was introduced in the 1940s and nearly phased out in the 50s, have nothing to do with potatoes except the name, and are in fact made from a blend of tobacco similar to Marlboros.

R.A. Lively, Phillip Morris tobacco plant manager in Louisville, Ky., one of two plants where Marlboros, Benson and Hedges and Meigs cigarettes, cigars and other tobacco products are made, said Spuds are one of many phased out brands Phillip Morris keeps making.

"We may have one machine in one line in the Richmond plant which is used for a couple of hours on one day of the year to make these," said PM Vice President for Public Affairs Frank Saunders.

Ketchum Circle K manager Al Dunlap probably sells the lion's share of Spuds produced in the country.

Dunlap says Eddie brings in five cartons every two weeks, which sell easily.

The cigarettes are in great demand among tourists, he said, and have even won over some regular customers.

A Phillip Morris promotional agent said the company may want to market Spuds again "someday," but until then will just keep turning out the perfunctory truckload.

Spuds may be a negligible, forgotten part of the company's $8 billion a year sales operation, but the product illustrates the tremendous value of a trademark.

"Marks are worth money," Saunders explained. "Look what Coca Cola does to protect its mark. They even sue little nickel and dime counter-joints that say they sell Coke and then give out something else."

PM doesn't go that far, but the company deploys teams of special trademark lawyers all over the world to do nothing but protect the company's hundreds of different brand names.

"It's a whole big art," Saunders said of the trademark business.

The fussy corporate trademark worries officials in the busy Trademark Division of the Federal Patent Office in Washington.

Since the first trademarks were registered by the patent office in the 1880s, 750,000 marks have been claimed. Trademark officials say companies often register six names for one product just to protect their options.

Section 7B of the Trademark Act of 1946 says that registrants are "owner of the mark and reserve exclusive rights to use the mark in commerce."

But the registrant has to keep making and selling the product in order to protect the trademark. Trademark officials can't possibly check every trademark to see if it's being used, but registrants have to submit an affidavit five years after their claim saying they are using the mark.

"Others seeking to use the mark may challenge a claim, especially if the registrant hasn't used it in two years. Challenges are submitted to the Patents board every day, according to a spokesman for the patent office.

The volume of registrations and challenges is tremendous, complained one trademark official who asked not to be identified. The trademark board reviews new applications and challenges to existing registrations daily.

"We just have no control over it," the official said.

No one has yet tried to challenge Phillip Morris's claim to Spuds. But Saunders says Phillip Morris will keep making some to make sure its trademark is safe.

Wedding plans vary among new brides

NEW YORK — Valerie and Diane are getting married, and what interests them most, along with over 2,243,000 other women who will marry this year, are the plans for their own weddings.

Valerie, who is planning the most elaborate wedding of the three, started preparations 15 months ahead, just six weeks after she met and fell in love with Stephen.

She plans to have a nuptial mass, wear her mother's wedding veil of Spanish lace, and to have eight wedding attendants. She selected her silver and crystal patterns even before her engagement was announced and plans to use heirloom china given to her by her great-grandmother.

Mindy's plans are somewhat less elaborate. She and her fiancé made all the wedding arrangements themselves. She has chosen a Mexican wedding dress in beige cotton.

"I fell out of place in lace wedding dresses," she said. "Besides, the Mexican dress was much less expensive."

In another break with tradition, Mindy plans to attend the festivities before the wedding ceremony. "It's my wedding and I don't want to be locked up in a little room while everyone else is drinking champagne," she said.

Diane, a magazine editor who enjoys horseback riding and backpacking, is taking an even more individualistic approach. Among other things, she is designing her wedding dress and those of her two attendants.

"I want a prairie look, with white eyelid dresses, high button boots and maybe even parrots," she said, "and the flowers are going to be bunches of black-eyed susans and other field flowers. I may braid some in my hair or tuck them in my sash but I don't think I'll carry a bouquet."

Her parents' backyard will be the setting and several friends who play guitar, fiddles and banjos are providing the music. Instead of hiring a photographer to produce a formal wedding album, Diane plans to have a friend with a camera do the photography. For a final independent touch, Diane is not going to be "given away" by her father but will instead walk down the grassy aisle with her husband-to-be.

Twin Falls juniors named to Boys State

TWIN FALLS — A dozen young Twin Falls High School junior-class members have been selected to attend the annual Boys State program next month in Boise.

Boys State, sponsored by the American Legion, offers outstanding students an opportunity to participate in an educational program on state government.

While in Boise delegates from throughout the state will hold mock legislative sessions and elections to select state office holders who will participate in their own version of state administration.

Joining the American Legion post in sending the delegates to the state event will be 10 businesses, civic organizations and individuals.

Frank Mogensen, chairman of Boys State for the American Legion, announced delegates following selection by the judges.

The 12 young men are juniors in the Twin Falls high school and were selected on a basis of leadership, honors and awards, athletics, extra curricular activities, career choice, hobbies and 15 percent on the basis of written essays.

Delegates and their background include:

Shawn Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Perkins, who is sponsored by George K's restaurant. He is a member of the LDS Church and is active in his church, the Boy Scouts of America and Outdoor Living Association. He is a member of the school debate team and hopes to enter law or the Fish and Game Department as a career.

Erent Tomlinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Tomlinson, sponsored by the Rotary Club, is a member of the Methodist Church and is interested in music and Christian Education as a career. His activities include: Boy Scouts, the debate team, Interact and Key Club, Ski club, the Madrigals and is an honor roll student. He is a guitarist.

Casey Munger, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Munger will be sponsored by the Twin Falls Association of Insurance Agents. He is a member of the LDS Church and is interested in engineering, math and travel as a future career. He is president of his class and is in "church work" and scouting.

Jim Atkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton Insurance Agency. He is a member of the LDS Church and is interested in music and sports. He is president of his Scout Explorer Post and is the LDS Teachers Quorum. He is a member of the Madrigals and Forensic League.

Allen Denison, son of Mr. and Mrs.

Boys state delegates

Denison, Randy Neal, Darren Holman, Lynn Hansen and Jim Atkin. Front row delegates include Mike Prater, Joe Stansell, Brent Tomlinson and Casey Munger. Ten businesses, civic organizations and individuals will join the American Legion post in sending the delegates to the state event. Sponsored by the American Legion for many years, the annual event provides youths first hand participation in state governmental procedures.

Calvin R. Denison, will be sponsored by Berg Insurance Co. He is a member of the LDS Church and interested in architecture and sports career fields. He is active in church programs and Boy Scouting. Has an all "A" grade record and is active in the school band and Children's Theatre. He is also a cross country runner.

David Scott Marron, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Marron, will be sponsored by the Legion Post. He is a Catholic church member and interested in medical science. He is a Boy Scout, on the debate team, Outdoor Living Association, Anatomy and Physiology Club and the Medical Explorer Post.

Randy Neal, son of Mrs. Elyllis Anderson, will be sponsored by the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee. He is a member of the LDS Church and hopes to enter politics or architecture as a career.

He is active in Boy Scouts; the Young Republican Club, the International Club, school pep band, and the H-Y Club.

Joe Stansell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stansell, is sponsored by the American Legion and is a member of the Christian Church. He is interested in skiing but has not decided on a career as yet. He is a Boy Scout and interested in the Idaho Industrial Arts Association. He is a member of the German Club; H-Y and Varsity Club, and is a cross country runner.

Darren Holman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Holman, will be sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. A member of the LDS Church, he is thinking of a career in dentistry or music. He is president of his explorer Scout post and of the LDS Church Quorum. He performs with the Madrigals; is camp instructor for Boy Scout camp and attended National Jamboree.

Jay Akkerman, son of Mary Akkerman, is another American Legion-sponsored delegate. He is interested in theater arts and stamp collecting. He served as student technical director for his theater group, is a member of the Idaho All State Choir and the Madrigals and the International Thespian Society.

Lynn Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs.

Dee R. Hansen, is a member of the LDS Church and is interested in medicine, music and stamp collecting. Active in Boy Scouts, he is an assistant scoutmaster, member of the All State Choir, the Madrigals, Twin Falls High School concert choir, Pep Band, Outdoor Association and International Club. He is sponsored by the Lions Club Inc.

Mike Prater, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Prater, is sponsored by the Elks Club. He is interested in sports writing as a career. He is active in Boy Scouts and is president of the Student Forum. He coaches Little League Baseball and won first place in "radio" news competition for Northwest Media contest. He also writes sports for the school paper.

Alternates include David Connolly and Duane Crockett.

RECLINER REVOLUTION

It wasn't too long ago that most decorators regarded the overstuffed "recliner" with dismay . . . often for good reason. These older recliners offered much in comfort but very little in style or fashion. They were often bulky, ungainly, and hard to place in the room, unless stuck out in Dad's den out of sight.

There's been a revolution in recliners since that time, and the results are making even the most dubious decorator change his mind. Comfort is still there, but now there is a fashion flair to match the comfort.

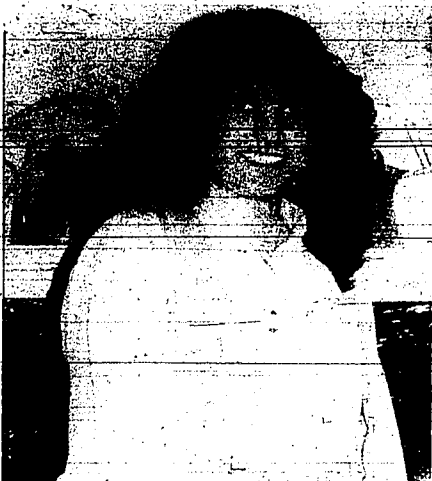

The big improvement is that recliners need not look like recliners. Many are scaled down in size without sacrificing comfort. They are more in proportion, do not need as much space, and can often take the place of the traditional lounge chair in the most elegant setting. There are rockers, too, or rocker-recliners. Again, the styling and covering (in fabrics or vinyls) make them much more versatile.

You'll find these chairs a happy choice for Dad (remember, his day comes up in June), and for the family room or den where many hours are spent reading, relaxing or watching TV. And you'll find a happy choice in our collection of fine recliners now on display.

Dear Abby

Husband leaves wife after 51 years

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After 51 years of marriage, our father has left our mother. They've had their fights over the years, but we never thought it would come to this.

Dad left mother for a 48-year-old nurse he met six years ago when he was in the hospital for a prostate operation.

Now that this has come out, everybody is saying they knew about dad and this nurse all along. Dad is 79 and mother is 77. Mother is so humiliated that she hasn't been out of the house since dad left.

What do you think of this mess? How can we get dad to come to his senses and come back to mother? It's the talk of the town.

DISGRACED IN LONG ISLAND
DEAR DISGRACED: Stay out of it. And you needn't feel "disgraced." A person can disgrace only himself.

DEAR ABBY: Do all marriages go stale after 25 years? Ours has. My husband and I don't seem to have much to talk to each other about anymore. We used to talk about our kids, but now that they're grown and gone, we're out of conversation.

I have no major complaints, Abby, but the old excitement is gone. We watch a lot of television and read, and we do have friends, but when we're alone together it's pretty dull. We even sleep in separate bedrooms now. Is there some way to recapture that old magic? I don't expect him to chase me around the bedroom like he did 20 years ago, but we're much too young for rocking chairs.

We still love each other, but...
THE SONG—HAS—ENDED
DEAR SONG: I highly recommend MARRIAGE ENCOUNTER. It's a weekend course in how to revitalize a ho-hum marriage. It first came to my attention when several enthusiastic readers (some married over 40 years!) wrote to tell me that the experience had improved their marriages extremely.

I checked it out and found it to be a legitimate, church-sponsored program. Nothing kinky or far out. For more information, inquire at your church or synagogue.

DEAR ABBY: Among my acquaintances is a 66-year-old widow who has suddenly announced that a "distant cousin" has come from Canada to live with her.

She claims he is her age (he looks much younger) and recently lost his wife. This friend says she feels much more secure with a man in the house. She owns her own home, they drive her car, and all he seems to do is drive her around and help with the household chores. She claims they share expenses, but I heard from a reliable source that her bills are still paid by HER personal check.

Her home has only two bedrooms. One she had converted into a sewing room. After her "cousin" moved in, I noticed that the sewing room is still a sewing room, which means they both share her bedroom.

When people ask if they have plans for marriage, she laughs and says, "We are cousins!"

What do you make of this setup?
FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: I think every 65-year-old widow should be so lucky. Now, what's YOUR problem?

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her books. "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (26 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Anna Sophia Hurtado-Trujillo

Mexican exchange student in Elmore

GLENN'S FERRY — Anna Sophia Hurtado-Trujillo, foreign exchange student from Hermosillo, Sonora, Mexico, is living with the Robert Millen family in Glenn's Ferry.

She finds the schools somewhat different in the United States, but believes this is due to attending an all girls school before coming here. She also finds the food different, and misses her favorite Mexican dishes. She enjoys hobbies of horseback riding, volleyball, fishing, as well as home economics, mathematics and science classes in school.

She will have one more year to attend the Colegio Lux, a Catholic girl's school, when she returns. Then she hopes to become a dentist and plans to study dentistry in the United States. She has become very fluent in English since arriving in the U.S.

Children as young as 6 try suicide

By DEBORAH FRAZIER
DENVER (UPI) Children as young as 6 react to a combination of family upheaval, pressure at school and stress by considering and sometimes even trying suicide, a New York psychiatrist told a meeting of the American Association of Suicidology.

Dr. Cynthia Pfeffer, assistant professor of psychiatry at the Cornell Medical Center, studied 58 children, ages 6-12, who were treated at the Albert Einstein Bronx Municipal Hospital for psychiatric problems and found 72 percent were suicidal.

"People are surprised. They can't imagine it. But these youngsters said they wanted to die. They wanted to kill themselves. They felt hopeless," she said in an interview during the conference in Denver.

Disruptions in the family — such as a divorce, alcoholism, the death of a parent, poverty — due to a father leaving or losing his job or physical abuse — create severe anxiety in young children, she said.

If the child has a low self-concept and communication within the family is poor, Dr. Pfeffer said, the risk of suicidal behavior increases. She is continuing the study with a group of children at Cornell.

Prior to an actual suicide attempt, she said, a child's behavior will alter dramatically. Dr. Pfeffer said the youngster may become severely depressed, have temper tantrums, run away or begin doing poorly in school.

"There are signs. It is just a matter of a teacher, friend, clergyman or someone noticing them," she said. "An attempted suicide follows a period of depression and is not impulsive, although an additional problem may provide the trigger."

More than half of the children in the study group attempted to jump from a window, while the others took drug overdoses, attempted to stab themselves or intentionally walked in front of a vehicle, she said.

"When many of these things occur, the child's death is reported as an accident. We know the accidental death rate for young children is higher than the rest of the population. It could be some are suicides," she said.

Musicians are needed for 6th army band

TWIN FALLS — Sgt. Jim Welch of the Twin Falls Army recruiting station has announced that the Army is recruiting musicians to fill vacancies in the ranks of the Sixth Army Band.

Musicians who are proficient in trumpet, trombone, bassoon, baritone, oboe, saxophone, French horn, or clarinet may audition, and if chosen will be able to join the Army for a minimum 12-month assignment to a unit of their choice.

Additional information is available at the Twin Falls office or call collect at 733-2671.

Nutritional plus

DALLAS (UPI) — Research has revealed another nutritional advantage to breast feeding infants.

Biochemist Gary W. Evans says he and co-workers have identified a component in breast milk that may help babies who consume it absorb zinc more efficiently.

The component is pyridine-2-carboxylic acid, also called picolinic acid.

Evans said the discovery may help medical science in its study of a rare inherited disease, acrodermatitis enteropathica, that is sometimes fatal if it is not diagnosed and treated in time.

Evans' presentation was made at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. The research studies were done at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Laboratory in Grand Forks, N.D.

Thrombus one of most common causes of stroke

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. (Newspaper Enterprise Association) Dear Dr. Lamb, A year ago I had a stroke. My neurologist believes the stroke was caused by a thrombus. My cardiologist believes it could have been an embolus from the heart due to an irregular heart beat. My family doctor tells me the neurologist is right. He says my stroke occurred in my right middle artery in the brain and it is impossible for an embolus to reach this artery from the heart. Who is right? Is it impossible for an embolus to reach the right middle artery coming up from the heart? Dear Reader, You can develop an obstruction of an artery in the brain either way. A thrombus means a simple clot. In the artery it's usually a complication of fatty-cholesterol deposits. The fatty material is somewhat like a pimple and may rupture and a little hemorrhage starts within the artery and the clot forms. That is the most common cause of strokes. The clot that forms in the arteries in the brain to cause a stroke is exactly the same as a clot formation that can occur in the artery to the heart and cause a heart attack. In both instances the underlying problem is usually fatty cholesterol deposits. Now the arteries that go to most of your body, including the brain, come from the left side of the heart. If you have a significant irregularity of the heart — and I mean something besides an occasional skipped beat — you can develop clots in the left side of the heart. A good example here is atrial fibrillation. The left atrium may be fibrillating or just twitching, so to speak, at rates as fast as 500 beats per minute. Under these circumstances, it never really contracts in a rhythmic manner. A clot can form in the left atrium, pass into the left ventricle, which is the lower heavy pumping chamber of the heart, and then flow out with the blood through the arteries. The clot may lodge in the brain and cause a stroke. A clot that develops in the veins in most locations cannot go to the brain. If you have a clot in the leg, for example, associated with thrombophlebitis, it will follow the veins as they get larger and move upward toward the right side of the heart. It will enter the right atrium. It can pass down into the right ventricle which is the lower pumping chamber for the right side of the heart. It can flow out through the pulmonary artery to the lungs.

Edith Ann Fiala

Karen Andrews

JEROME — Mr. and Mrs. Roger Fiala of Jerome announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Edith Ann, to Rodney Ira Waite, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Waite of Jerome.

Miss Fiala is a 1978 graduate of Jerome High School and has attended the College of Southern Idaho.

Waite is a 1976 graduate of Vallivue High School and has fulfilled a mission to Brazil for the LDS Church. He is presently employed at Hamilton Drug in Jerome.

The couple plans a June 29 wedding in the Idaho Falls Temple.

TWIN FALLS — Dr. and Mrs. Dale H. Andrews of Missouri City, Texas, announce their engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Karen Lee, to Kirk Charles Barrus, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Gene Barrus of Twin Falls.

Miss Andrews will graduate from Brigham Young University in December with a degree in communications.

Barrus graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1975 and attended BYU one year before serving a two-year mission in Austria for the LDS Church. He has since resumed his studies at BYU, majoring in advertising.

The couple plans a July 10 wedding in the LDS Temple in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Y seeking director for camp

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley YFCA is looking for a person who would like to serve as its resident camp director from July 15 through August 15.

Persons interested in applying should contact Chuck Upton, at 733-4384 for an application and interview.

The camp director's position is the top position in the camp and requires a person who can not only relate with the young people who are campers, but who can direct and supervise a staff of cabin leaders and program specialists.

The position permits the director to have his or her family attend free of charge.

YFCA director, Chuck Upton, said applications will be accepted until June 1.

Camas writers publication now available

FAIRFIELD — "The Fairfield Tractor Company," the fourth annual publication of Camas Writer's Workshop, can now be purchased from businesses in Twin Falls and Fairfield.

The Workshop, which spent the winter working on the publication, uses an abandoned building in downtown Fairfield as the back-ground for four stories which span over decades to portray the Camas Fair and its people. Its cover was designed by Bob Briggs, a Fairfield teacher.

BYU graduates from Magic Valley listed

PROVO — Brigham Young University graduated 2,202 students at the 104th spring Commencement exercises on April 20. These students also received diplomas in addition to those who received degrees in December brought the total for the school year to 3,335.

BYU is operated by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and is the largest church-related university in the United States.

During the April Commencement, university officials conferred 1,591 bachelor's degrees, 163 doctorate degrees, 394 master's degrees and 48 associate degrees.

Magic Valley graduates include: From Burley: Antoni Jon Allred, Mary Ann Gerra Clayton, Christine

Hansen, Allen E. Maxson, Keith Leon Blauer, David Lionel Crane, Joseph Wesley Howard, Larry D. Dilte and Thomas J. Holmes, all receiving bachelor degrees; and John E. Clark with a master's degree.

Barbara Bar Flingsy from Carey, Myrna Darrington of Declo, Arlen Wayne Morgan of Hazelton, Norman H. Badger and Russell Winward Blair of Heyburn, all received bachelor degrees; also Julie Kay Howell of Heyburn received an associate degree.

From Jerome: Karla Kay Hyder received a master's degree and Suzanne L. Vanleishout a bachelor's degree.

Leonard J. Langford, Sharie Stout of Kimberly, Joy Verloren-Goodman of Murtaugh and Eileen Okelberry of Outlook received bachelor's degrees.

Thane Rodney Hansen received a bachelor's degree and Warren M. Harper, both of Paul, received a master's degree.

From Rupert: Steve R. Bradshaw, Yvonne Griffin, Marilyn Cree Hawkes, Crystal Rae Vanover, David Clyde Coats, Clay Dwight Handy, Brian L. Mackay, Regina Coats and Lynne Rensae-Handy received a bachelor's degree and Paul S. Nel a master's degree.

Craig L. Christensen, Preston C. Evans and Larry LeGrande Nelson were recipients of master's degrees.

Kent Rulon Chandler of Wendell received a bachelor's degree.

Dog obedience clinic set

TWIN FALLS — The Snake River Canyon Kennel Club is sponsoring a dog obedience clinic June 9 and 10 at the Twin Falls Holiday Inn.

According to Sharon Patterson of the Kennel Club, the clinic was originally scheduled to be held at the Holiday Inn in Sun Valley. However, the Holiday Inn has changed ownership and the new owners will not honor the commitment, so the clinic has been changed to Twin Falls.

The clinic will be conducted by Bill Koehler of Ontario, Calif., who is a national authority on dog obedience. It will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day, with the first day planned for novice, and the second for open utility training.

POTATOES AU GRATIN WITH SOUR CREAM

8 to 10 medium potatoes, cubed and cooked
 1/2 stick margarine
 1 can cream of chicken soup
 1 cup sour cream
 1/4 cup chopped green onions
 1/4 cups shredded Cheddar cheese

Cook peeled and cubed potatoes in a small amount of salted water until tender. Drain. Put potatoes in 9x13-inch pan. Heat margarine and soup until blended, stirring. Cool slightly. Blend in sour cream, onions and cheese. Mix well and pour over potatoes. Bake at 325 degrees for 90 or 40 minutes or until heated thoroughly.

Can be mixed night before. Can be reheated nicely in Microwave oven.

Hagerman wants art, crafts

HAGERMAN — Entries in the Hagerman Country Arts and Crafts Fair, which will be held August 31 at the Hagerman City Park, are now being accepted. The fair features original and unique arts and home crafts, musical entertainment, square dancing, puppet shows, and food concession stands, as well as a country store filled with homemade food and farm produce.

Any persons interested in securing display or concession space for the fair may call or write the general chairman, Fern Pothier in Hagerman, or call 837-5613. The cost of space is $5 per 15 feet.

Tumor institute approved

BOISE (UPI) — The American College of Surgeons Commission on Cancer has awarded a three-year certificate of approval to St. Luke's Hospital and the Mountain States Tumor Institute of Boise.

The approvals program was instituted in 1956 by the ACS to encourage advancements in cancer therapy.

Dr. Dean E. Sorenson, ACS state chairman, said the program assures that cancer patients receive multidisciplinary consultation before, during and after treatment.

Model CX8172W

Sylvania beat RCA and Zenith. That's right. The Superset has done it again. In a recent independent survey, over a thousand people saw three unidentified "diagonal color" TV pictures side by side. They were asked to pick the one with the best overall picture. And the people's choice was clear — The Sylvania Superset over Zenith and RCA. We're not the biggest. But a lot of people think Sylvania has the best picture.

No whispers disturb Buhl Christian Academy

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News writer

Buhl.—You walk into a room and it's hard to believe this is a classroom for 28 students all at their desks and working hard.

The waving arms, snapping fingers and shuffling feet, the whispering and talking found in most school rooms are absent at the Clear Lake Christian Academy where students from kindergarten age through the tenth grade are all seated at their own cubicle desks and engrossed in their studies.

Even when they get up to pore through reference books or grade their own papers by the example books, they are quiet. They do not even look up when visitors come into the room. One mother said she was in the room for half an hour before her two sons were even aware she was there.

The Academy, sponsored by the Magic Valley Baptist Church of Buhl, is one of a large number of independent schools which are using the Accelerated Christian Education concept of letting pupils progress at the pace they set for themselves. Strict discipline is maintained and an air of quiet stressed so pupils may devote their full attention to the work before them.

The large brown building in the northern part of Buhl serves a dual purpose. During the week it is the classroom for the students, but on Sundays the desks are folded away and the room becomes the auditorium for church services by the Rev. Clinton R. Keaton, pastor.

The Rev. Keaton's son, David Keaton, and David's wife, are the teachers for the school which began classes last fall with 14 students and now has doubled in enrollment. Rev. Keaton expects the number of currently enrolled students to more than double this fall when school resumes.

The church hopes to build on to the main auditorium this summer, as they must either build or turn away students, he said.

The school aims to have on teacher for every 15 students and is now in the process of training a teacher's aide to help with additional students. Parents of children attending the academy include a college professor, a doctor,

Although maintained by the Baptists, it makes no distinction between students enrolled and accepts both Catholics and Protestants.

Church sponsored schools are definitely on the rise, according to the Rev. Keaton, who said every day three new church schools are opened somewhere in the United States. Parents who deplore the lack of discipline in many schools, are entering their children in ACE schools where teachers believe in spanking if necessary, and do so, after first obtaining the parent's approval.

Children learn to love discipline, says Rev. Keaton, who points out his school has very good parent cooperation and the school has no problems with any of the children.

The students come from ordinary Christian homes where parents want the best for their children, and so-called "problem" children are turned away. Children set their own paces to proceed, pinpoint their weaknesses and set levels for improvement.

Parents pay tuition for their children and volunteers from the church also help with expenses of the school.

The academy accepts no help whatever from the government and does not want any government assistance as that would mean government control. ACE schools print their own textbooks and workbooks and refuse to teach evolution or any other studies which are against their principles.

There are no hot lunch programs and students bring their noon lunches. Transportation also must be provided by the parents, many of whom make up "car pools." However, if enough pupils come from one area to make the use of a van feasible the school will provide one, said Rev. Keaton. Students are now coming from most of the surrounding towns in Magic Valley.

The ACE curriculum is in use in over 2,500 schools in the United States.

The regular school term is from September through May. Night classes are held in both high school and college level subjects. This last semester half of the students at the academy were listed on the school's honor roll.

The academy classroom at Buhl is a cheerful one with white walls, bright blue desks and red accents. To gain a teacher's attention, a student places a small American flag in a slot on the top of his desk. When the teacher sees the raised flag, he or she will come over and help the student with any problem.

The school also uses the patriotic colors in school uniforms. Both boys and girls wear red shirts or blouses with navy slacks or skirts. Rev. Keaton and his son also wear navy blue uniforms, red shirts and red and white ties. Mrs. Keaton wears a navy jacket and skirt, and the jackets of all three have arm emblems depicting an American flag, an open Bible and an eagle.

Chapel service is held every Wednesday morning with guest speakers. Each morning the students devote five minutes to studying some aspect of the Bible. The school hopes to include music studies in the future.

Instead of a mid-morning and afternoon recess, the students are given a 15-minute break each hour. There is a 30-minute lunch break, and small work tables in the classroom double as lunch tables.

The school has an athletic program of games and exercises and hopes to include basketball and soccer next year. Classes are taken on field trips such as a recent one to the Bliss power plant.

The school has some parties and social events, but Rev. Keaton believes most of the children have access to that type of entertainment in their own homes or churches.

At Wit's End There's only one way to beat system

By ERMA BOMBECK

I love the story about the Burbank appliance dealer who was having a tough time getting rid of discarded appliances. He kept putting them in the alley but there wasn't a service organization or a city truck in the world that would pick them up.

Finally, he got a brainstorm. He marked a price on them and by the end of the day they were all stolen.

"Sometimes, when you can't beat the system, you just have to work within its confines. I found that out long ago with children. The only way we could get one of the kids to wash and wax the car was to let him have it for a date.

To get the lawn mowed, we invested in a riding mower. They killed one another for the chance to cut the grass. When my daughter's bedroom became a fire hazard, all I had to do was say, "Why don't you have a slumber party?" Within hours, she had brought it up to health standards.

It was sneaky, but I used to move letters by putting a note on them saying "DO NOT TOUCH. THIS IS FOR THE PARTY."

The other day I was at the phone when I noted a message scribbled in my husband's handwriting: "Carpers

6 p.m. dinner, Wednesday."

Well, I wasn't going to be caught with my decor down when they came to dinner. I set about replacing light bulbs in every room in the house, bought live plants while before there had been death and brownness. Cleared off the counter-top. Took the ironing board down, bought a set of matching glasses and took all the empty shampoo bottles out of the shower.

I brought in the sled from the porch, scratched a "THIS HOUSE IS BEING PATROLLED BY A TWO-YEAR-OLD" decal off my kitchen window and took a manger scene out of the bookcase.

My husband looked around and said, "I forgot to tell you. We're invited to the Carpers' for dinner Wednesday."

I had been beaten at my own game.

Sun Valley Center community arts program offers scholarships to teachers

SUN VALLEY — The Sun Valley Center Community Arts Program has announced that it will offer half-tuition scholarships to 100 teachers of both public and private schools for the Center's Idaho Teachers' Week, June 11-14. Three workshops — Introduction to black and white photography, raku pottery and introductory photo silk screen processes — have been scheduled to provide new tools for teachers. One graduate credit will be offered through Idaho State University. Director of the Center photography department, Ellen Manchester, will teach basic black and white photography. The workshop will cover basic operation of a camera, proper exposure and development, discussion of film types, enlarging, printing, history and aesthetics of photography, group critiques, experimentation and discussion of project ideas for school teachers. No previous darkroom experience is necessary, but teachers must provide their own 35 mm camera plus film and paper.

Jim Romberg, director of the ceramics department, will demonstrate hand-building and wheel-throw techniques, glazing methods for raku, construction of simple raku kilns, glaze and clay formulation, and will discuss the history and philosophy of raku with slides of contemporary work. Tuition includes clay, glazes and firings.

The introduction to photo silk screen will be taught by graphics department director David Wharton. The workshop will provide an introduction to all aspects of the photographic silk screen process as applied to teaching, including the production of t-shirts. No previous experience is necessary. Tuition includes direct emulsion, Kodaliths, ink and solvents. Paper will be additional.

Interested teachers should send a request for a Community Arts Program scholarship to Teachers' Week, Sun Valley Center, Box 656, Sun Valley 83353 or call 622-8371. The request should include a $30 balance of tuition payment and should specify the workshop of interest. Enrollment is limited to 15 participants in each workshop.

The Real Estate Commission of Idaho consists of four members from four geographical areas of Idaho. I represent the Central Idaho area, generally known as Magic Valley, in carrying out the duties of the Real Estate Commission in enforcing the Broker's Law and the Rules and Regulations that clarify the law's intent.

The commissioners are appointed by the governor for a four-year term. Normal practice is to rotate the chairmanship with the senior member of the commission acting as the chairman of the Real Estate Commission during his final year as commissioner.

The commission meets 10 to 12 times a year, plus miscellaneous meetings for special hearings, and is charged with the primary job of carrying out the intent of the Broker's Law and to promulgate the rules and regulations that are necessary to supervise the industry. State law requires that Real Estate Commission members must be Real Estate brokers and they must have at least five years experience as a broker to be eligible for appointment. The approval of the budgets and supervision of the administration and the hiring and supervision of the executive director is one of the primary functions of the commission. The commission also determines maximum license fees, which are currently $40.00 per year for each licensee.

Realtor encourages support and use of the Real Estate Commission of Idaho

There are approximately 7,000 licensees currently in Idaho, 1200 of which are inactive. About half of the licensees are members of the Idaho Association of Realtors, which is a trade organization that promotes educational programs and sets up standards for the members to meet to be able to belong to the association. While all the commissioners usually are members of the National Association of Realtors and the Idaho Association of Realtors, they are concerned with problems of all real estate licensees and schedule and program all rules and regulations for the benefit of the industry, whether or not the licensees are Realtors.

In carrying out the duties of making sure that the rules and regulations are supported and complied with by all licensees, the commission has a staff of investigators that visit each real estate office in Idaho at least one time per year to audit their trust accounts and make sure that the depositor funds, forms, and other documents are being properly handled and accounted for. They also investigate various complaints that come in from the public or the industry concerning the questionable practice of any real estate licensee in the state.

Most of the approximately 20 complaints a week are based on lack of communication between the real estate broker and the client. Usually, an explanation on the part of one of the parties involved is sufficient to solve the situation. Very few serious violations of the rules and regulations occur.

Fortunately, the rules provide that the commission will not get itself involved in squabbles or disputes between real estate offices that involve commissions or brokerage fees. This matter is left for the brokers to solve themselves with the assistance of the local real estate boards.

When a violation has occurred, the commission investigators attempt to solve the problem as quickly as possible through education of the broker, if it is of a minor nature. If the complaint is of a more serious nature, involving the misuse of trust funds; for example, then a more thorough investigation is made and hearings may be held before a hearing officer, who determines whether or not the rules and regulations have been violated.

If it is found that the violation has taken place, the commission then has several courses of action that it can follow. These include the issue of a reprimand, which is used for the less serious violations, or they can include suspension of the license, or in more serious cases, complete revocation of the license. If the license has been revoked, as happens from time to time, the licensees must wait at least two full years before they can apply for a new license.

The commission also has the authority to levy fines up to $2,000.00, of the license in addition to the other courses of action, such as revocation, suspension, or reprimand.

We have found, over the years, most of the complaints can be easily solved by communication between the local real estate board and/or the secretary of the board, or between the broker's offices involved and the clients. It is our suggestion that the first steps in any complaint, if it appears to be a relatively minor matter, be taken up with the local real estate board, who prove themselves to be extremely sympathetic to the position of the public.

The real estate industry is very conscious of its image and is doing a great deal towards trying to improve its image by being quite severe in its enforcement of the local board rules and the Realtor's Code of Ethics. They are very responsive to the public's complaints and will bend over backwards to resolve these to the satisfaction of the person complaining just to avoid the problem of litigation or possibly loss of public credibility that could occur if the local board were indifferent to the problem.

Dictionary of important real estate terms

To the typical home owner or prospective buyer, a house is a home, not a collection of terms like "assessed value," "amortization" and "equity."

But these terms are used in residential real estate sales and many people find them difficult to understand.

Here are definitions of some of the terms that home owners or buyers may encounter.

Absentee of title - The history of a property, noting all documents turning over the property from one owner to another. This document is necessary in the sale of property to assure the buyer that the purchase was not faulty at any time in the property's history.

Assessed value - The value set on real estate by local governmental assessors for the purpose of determining taxes. It is usually determined by taking a percentage of the property's market value.

Amortization - The process of eliminating a mortgage loan, usually by equal payments at regular intervals over a specific period of time.

Appraisal - An estimate of quantity, quality or value. The process through which a determination of property value or property facts are obtained.

Certificate of title - A document, prepared by a title company or attorney, usually given to the home buyer with the deed stating that title to the property is clear.

Closing statement - A listing of the debits and credits of the buyer and seller to determine the amount of the financial settlement between the two.

Condominium - A form of ownership providing for individual ownership of a specific apartment or other space, together with an undivided interest in the land or other parts of the structure in common with other owners.

Cooperative apartment - An apartment owned by corporations, either for or not for a profit, or for trust, in which each owner purchases stock to the extent of the value of the apartment.

Earnest money - Advance payment of part of the purchase price to bind a contract for property.

Easements - A right of way granted to a party authorizing access over the owner's land, such as to utility companies. Also, the right to receive air and light through agreement with the owner of an adjacent property.

Equity - The dollar value of the property owner. It is equal to the difference between the owner's original purchase price and the amount still outstanding on the mortgage.

Escrow funds - Money given to third party (frequently a Realtor or lawyer) to hold until all conditions in a contract are fulfilled.

Home mortgage - A long-term loan, usually 20 years or more, for buying a house.

Lien - A charge against the property, making the property security for payment of the debt.

Market value - An expert's estimated highest price which a buyer would be warranted in paying. It differs from market price in this way: Market value is what the property is considered to be worth, and market price is what it can be sold for.

Points - A one-time charge by a lending institution to increase the interest yield from a mortgage loan. In effect, points are prepaid interest charges designed to make a mortgage loan's yield competitive with the yield from other types of investments. Points are paid by the seller of the home, but the charge frequently is accounted for in the price of the home. Special assessment - A tax for public improvements, such as paved streets or new sewers. Survey - The process of determining the exact measurements and boundaries of a piece of land.

Finale, closing the deal

You've found the house. Now, the all-important mechanics of closing the deal.

Contract, mortgage and settlement, or closing, need not be traumatic, say the housing experts at the American Bankers Association.

Once you have found the right house and agreed on a price, you and the seller will sign a contract, obligating him to sell and you to purchase at that price, provided a mortgage can be obtained.

Generally, you will make a deposit, usually placed in escrow and later applied toward the down payment.

The contract usually is a pre-printed form, subject to amendment and additions. Thus, any verbal promises made during the bargaining should be written into the contract. You may want to consult your lawyer before signing anything.

Usually, the contract will specify a time limit within which the purchaser must obtain a mortgage. It should specify that in the event such a commitment is not secured the seller must return the deposit, or if he wishes, extend the time.

The contract should specify which fixtures, appliances and items like carpeting or window air conditioners are included in the sale and which do not.

Not all real estate agents are real!

REALTOR has become synonymous with selling real estate - nothing could be further from the truth. All real estate agents are not REALTORS! The Twin Falls Board of REALTORS with its 22 members are among the 3700 real estate agents in Idaho who are eligible to use the term REALTOR.

The designation of REALTORS doesn't come automatically to members in Twin Falls. After they have successfully passed their state license exam and only if they affiliate with a broker holding REALTOR status may they apply to become REALTORS. A full-day Orientation Course is required by the Twin Falls Board prior to receiving the designation. The course entails a careful study of the Code of Ethics set forth by the National Association of REALTORS, an understanding of the Idaho Association of REALTORS and the Idaho Real Estate Commission. Also included are segments on the local Board projects, objectives and activities, and a study of the Twin Falls Multiple Listing Service and its functions. At the end of the day-long seminar there is a 100 question open-book test which each of the applicants may take home, complete and return to the Central Office within a two-week period.

That still doesn't complete the program - at the next general membership meeting a local attorney or judge is asked to come in and administer the REALTOR pledge to these prospective members - the pledge is signed by the administering official, the board president, and the member and is suitable for framing. The REALTOR pin is given to these members at this time. Only after the above steps have been completed may the prospective member use the term REALTOR in his advertising and display the pin on his lapel.

The members of the Twin Falls Board of REALTORS are proud of the REALTOR "R" and do their best to uphold the Code of Ethics and other rules and regulations necessary to function as a real estate agent who has achieved membership as a REALTOR.

Water your lawn after a rain?

Chicago (NFS) - Think of your lawn as a sponge. One that realization sinks in, so will the water you sprinkle on it. Especially right after a good rain.

That advice comes from Dick Brickman, president of Theodore Brickman Co., landscape architect and contractors in Long Grove, Ill.

"Water poured on a dry sponge will run right off," he said. "But give the sponge a chance to become damp, and it will soak up the water. A dry lawn is the same. Most of the water you apply by sprinkling will run off at first.

"IT'S BETTER to sprinkle for a half-hour, then wait another 30 minutes before resuming sprinkling. This will give the lawn a chance to become moist, and it will absorb the water more readily."

The best time to water your lawn, oddly enough, is right after a heavy rain. Most of the rain will run right off into the street, but some will remain to moisten the lawn. Water your lawn right after that, and the water will be absorbed without a pre-soaking.

Home computers not science fiction

If the idea of having a computer in your home sounds fascinating, here's some news that will interest you.

The "personal" computer is no longer a science fiction item. It is available today.

Thanks to modern technology, thousands of families, individuals, schools and businesses are now discovering the benefits of using their own computer.

One of the most popular of the new "personal" computers is Radio Shack's TRS-80. Microcomputer System.

With the TRS-80 you can begin with a basic system (about $600), which includes a computer/keyboard unit, 12" video monitor, cassette recorder and power supply.

Later, more computing power (memory) and accessories such as printer, disk systems and telephone couplers can be added to increase the computer's capabilities.

Programming (telling the TRS-80 what to do) is done via the keyboard with a simplified computer language called BASIC.

The TRS-80 can be made to respond with words, numbers and graphics displayed on its video monitor.

The cassette recorder is used for programming the microcomputer with "pre-recorded instructions" and for storing programs and data on cassette tapes.

Pre-recorded program cassettes for a variety of business, educational and home applications are available, as well as many games, just for fun.

Cassettes that teach BASIC language and computer programming, algebra and other subjects are also available.

In "The Future," "personal" computers like the TRS-80 may be used for automatic control of your home's lights, appliances, heating and cooling.

Someday you may even do your "shopping" and banking through a computer—connected to your telephone.

We are living in an increasingly computer-oriented world, and "personal" computers will be a common tomorrow as television sets are today.

BRING THE EXCITEMENT and convenience of "personal" computers into homes, schools and businesses everywhere with Radio Shack's famous TRS-80 Microcomputer System. Rapid practical applications, such as bookkeeping, data storage and education, the TRS-80 can also be used to play an almost unlimited number of games for family fun and entertainment.

Play it safe, burglar proof your home

Making your home as burglar proof as it can be can give you peace of mind and serve as an attraction to potential buyers when you decide to sell, advises Dale Patterson, Manager of the Blue Lakes Office of Gem State Realty.

Better home security has been the subject of national research by RELO/Inter-City—Relocation Service, reports Gem State Realty, local member of the national City Relocation Service, reports Gem State Realty, local member of the national oldest and largest broker-owned and directed residential real estate referral service. More than 1,100 RELO member firms in more than 10,500 communities nationally report household security to be a growing matter of concern to the thousands of transferee families they assist in relocating to new localities. Because such families are newcomers to their neighborhoods, they are especially vulnerable to theft, the research suggests.

In many communities, the local police will send an officer out to perform a security survey at your home and it's all free of charge! Locks, doors, door frames, windows and lighting will be surveyed and suggestions made as to how you can better secure your home.

Some communities also offer a locks program for low income, elderly or handicapped people in certain neighborhoods. Here, the police or community personnel actually come into the home and install locks—where they are needed.

Better locks "There are several things you can do to prevent break-ins, Dale Patterson stated. "For starters, police recommend that exterior doors be equipped with single-cylinder dead bolt locks. Choose a lock with a bolt at least one inch long. The further the bolt extends inside your door, the better."

"Solid doors, or compressed core doors provide the best protection at outside entrances. Hollow core doors can be kicked in and broken down. Any door with a center panel less than one-half inch thick should be replaced or reinforced. Door frames should be secure, not loose," Patterson cautioned.

"Windows can be secured to eliminate the possibility of being pried open. Most burglars, police authorities report, avoid breaking glass due to the fear of attracting attention."

DALE PATTERSON

"For sliding glass doors or windows, cut a stick or broom handle the length of the bottom track and place in the track. This will keep them from sliding or being lifted up and out of the track. To make them even more secure, drill a hole through the door or window frame and into the casing at the top—insert a nail or sturdy steel pin."

"On sash windows, drill a downward sloping hole through the top of the bottom window into the bottom of the top window and insert a pin or nail. Lowered windows are bad security risks. Either protect with a grate or grill or remove and replace."

"Remember," Patterson points out, "windows are often the best means of emergency escape in the event of a fire. Do not make them so secure that they cannot be opened from the inside."

OTHER PRECAUTIONS "What more can you do to make your home safer and more valuable when resale time comes? Place heavy duty wire screen or bars over easily accessible basement window. Install lights over all doors and mount double cones on each corner of the home to illuminate all exterior walls. Keep your hedges and bushes trimmed low and eliminate burglar's best hiding places. Install an alarm if necessary, but check first with your local police force for suggestions and local regulations and purchase if from a reputable alarm or security company."

"While installing locks and doors, etc. may cost you, there are many precautions you can take which are free," Patterson added. "You can and should engrave valuable property. Borrow an engraving tool at your nearest police office and each your driver's license or social security number on anything metal, wood or plastic. Engraving discourages theft and increases the chance of recovering stolen property. Sensitive equipment like calculators and family heirlooms or delicate jewelry should be photographed. Record and keep serial numbers of photographic equipment, television and stereo equipment and other easily fenced property."

"Get to know your neighbors and set up a neighborhood watch, looking after one another's property and report suspicious incidents to police." "Use common sense. Thirty to forty percent of all burglaries are completed because entry is made through unlocked doors," Patterson observed. "Law enforcement officials say that eighty to ninety percent of burglaries are crimes of opportunity. The victim provides an opportunity to a burglar by something he or she does or doesn't do."

"If you have any questions, consult your local police," Patterson concluded. "They are experts and are there to help you, the citizen and home owner—When it comes to the security of your home and possessions, the old cliché about the proverbial 'once of prevention' really applies."

Use more plastic in bathrooms

Chicago (NFS) — If you're thinking about remodeling your bathroom in 1979, chances are better than ever that most of your bath fixtures will be made of reinforced plastic.

In 1978, close to 35 percent of the bathtubs installed in the country will be made of fiberglass or thermo-form plastics, according to Universal-Rundle Corporation, New Castle, Pa., a leading manufacturer of all types of bathroom fixtures.

In addition, an increasing percentage of bathroom sinks are being made of fiberglass in colors to match fiberglass bathtub and shower units.

RESEARCH official at Universal-Rundle says consumers are becoming increasingly attracted to reinforced plastic fixture.

"From our surveys, we know they like its warmth, its ease of cleaning, its attractiveness and its energy absorption," one researcher said.

"If an elderly person falls in a fiberglass tub, for example, it will absorb some of the falling body's energy and partially cushion the fall.

Get the right insurance for your home

Have you increased the amount of insurance on your home recently? If you haven't, it might be smart to review your policy to make certain you have enough coverage to pay for repairs or replacement.

According to the Insurance Information Institute, many home owners now have inadequate protection. An analysis of fire losses in one state showed that only one home owner in three carried enough insurance to cover even half of the replacement value of his home.

Insurance people recommend that you maintain "insurance to value" on your home. This means that your insurance coverage should equal the fair market value of your home, excluding the noncombustible foundation and the lot.

The face amount on your policy is the maximum amount you would be paid if your home was destroyed.

But unless you have increased your insurance coverage regularly over the years of ownership, you probably will be underinsured in the event of total loss. Inflation has caused home values to soar in the past several years.

The co-insurance clause found in most standard policies is another reason for keeping insurance coverage up to date.

This means that the owner agrees to maintain insurance equal to a state percentage (usually 80 percent) of the home's value. If you fail to maintain this amount, you and the insurance company must share the loss — the difference between that percentage of the home's value and the actual percentage covered.

It's the right time to invest

Is this a good time to invest in property? Are prices too high? Are interest rates too costly? Can I afford to save the deposits needed for the security? These are the types of questions you have to answer yourself.

When will a better time come your way? It is difficult to imagine the costs of new building decreasing in the future. Every forecaster predicts an increase in almost every item that makes up a Real Estate investment.

Land will surely not decrease in value. No more is being made and with the increase in future population growth, demand will force prices to go higher and higher.

Material items are costing more daily. Most sellers will add an increased figure in all future purchases.

Our local area here in Idaho will be more in demand in the future. Population is bound to shift our way whether we like it or not. Magic Valley is a great place to live as visitors soon learn.

With inflation increasing at a rate of almost 10 percent a year, are interest rates of nearly 12 percent costing any more than yesterday's 6 percent figure? Remember years ago investments had to be repaid a zero inflation dollar amount. We do not like the.

inflation item but most investors feel it is here to stay.

We still have many properties listed at a value far below the national $64,000 house figure. This will not always be this way.

After all consideration there is no doubt that this is still a good time to invest for your future security.

If you think property is too high now, wait until next year.

Invest in yourself instead of your landlord.

Stop and consider the amount of money you've paid for rent over the years. You've probably spent more than enough to invest in a home, yet you have nothing to show for it. In fact you may even be able to buy a home for monthly payments that are lower than your present rent and still enjoy a sizable tax benefit.

As your local ERA® Real Estate professionals, we can give you the assistance you need to find your first home and move in.

We'll help you understand the local market, familiarize you with the purchasing procedure and give you the information you need to make a smart buy.

Don't waste another dollar. Start investing in your own future instead of your landlord's.

A Real Estate Comment

MIKE GREY
Gem State Realty

A real estate agent must be competent before learning to become successful. Buyers and sellers of real estate have a right to professional treatment from their agents.

If you are a seller client, I always evaluate your property by comparing similar properties that have sold within the past year. If you are a buying client, before signing a purchase agreement, we drive you past comparable properties that have sold in the past year. Do not get in such a hurry that you fail to determine what your needs are and the best way to satisfy them. Whether buying or selling, I ask my clients to write down all the positives and negatives relative to their situation and then help them make a balanced judgment.

Make certain that you work with an agent who can explain your rights and responsibilities before signing an agreement of any kind. Don't be afraid to consult your attorney or accountant. They would rather advise you before the transaction than correct a bad situation.

It is very common in the real estate business for people to work with agents because of friendship or referral from a friend or relative. Don't be fearful of asking the important questions of agents chosen in this manner.

After you have selected an agent, have faith and demonstrate loyalty. The more loyalty you can project as a buyer or seller, the better the performance of your agent. Many people like to intimidate their agent by working with several Realtors. They think they get better action that way. If you do, don't be surprised if you are pressured to sign on the dotted line. You will be inviting return intimidation as a normal psychological defense.

Real estate ownership is the most significant investment most people make.

After several years in the title insurance business, banking and real estate—I have gained some insights to share with potential real estate clients.

The real estate business is getting more complex each day. No one person can specialize in all areas of real estate effectively.

1979 realtor of the year

Mike Gray, Associate Broker for Gem State Realty, has been named Realtor of the Year by the Twin Falls Board of Realtors. Gray was honored at a banquet on May 1.

Gray founded his own real estate firm, Mike Gray Realty, eight years ago. He merged his company with Gem State Realty on September 1, 1978.

The selection was made in recognition of Gray's many contributions to the Real Estate Industry, including Chairman of the State Realtor-Lawyer Committee and State Directorship for the Idaho Association of Realtors. He is also active in legislative activities for the real estate profession.

Gray's continuing education in the real estate profession has gained him the Graduate Realtor Institute Designation and he has been given the distinction of being awarded the Certified Residential Specialist Designation by the Realtor National Marketing Institute.

Gray presently serves the community on the Twin Falls

Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors. Past services include the Twin Falls County Fairboard for nine years serving as President for three years, the Twin Falls City Council, a charter member of the College of Southern Idaho. Dormitory Commission, and he has received the Junior Chamber of Commerce Distinguished Service Award.

Gray is married to Rita Gray, also a Realtor at Gem State Realty. They are the parents of five children.

Why is OUR magazine so special to YOU?

Our Homes For Living magazine is special because it's the one that can carry pictures and descriptions of the home you're going to sell... and the home you're going to buy. There's nothing complicated about it either. Just picture the home you want to sell in this magazine. It's distributed here and through our network of REALTORS® in 9,000 communities throughout the United States and Canada. That way you also reach those out-of-town buyers who account for one-third of all homes sold.

Our magazine is also the perfect way for you to look for a home — either here or out-of-town. Just tell us where you're going and we'll show you the magazine from the nearest Homes For Living member.

When you consider that more than one-and-a-half million magazines are published each month, you can appreciate how incredibly effective it can be in helping you sell or buy a home.

Special? You bet it is. And it's exclusive with Homes For Living. Call us today.

Preparing your home for showing

One of the keys to selling a home quickly is its proper preparation for showing.

First Impressions are lasting, so make sure the front door is fresh, clean and scrubbed-looking. Keep the lawn trimmed and edged and the yard free of refuse.

New paint and wallpaper can mean not only a quicker sale, but also a higher price. Draperies and curtains should be open to let the prospect know how cheerful your home can be.

Dripping water discolors sinks and suggests faulty plumbing, so fix any leaky faucets. Also repair loose knobs, sticking doors and windows, warped cabinet drawers and other minor flaws. Display the full value of utility space by removing all unnecessary articles.

New listing — close to Harry Barry park. Only $38,000.

ERA has warranty programs

Twin Falls, Idaho, May 20, 1979—A home buyer and seller have a tremendous investment in the house they have just bought or are selling.

Realizing this fact, and as a result, ERA (Electronic Realty Associates) developed two unique warranty programs to protect the home buyer and seller," said Bob Jones, Broker, ERA-ROBERT JONES REALTY, 1620 Blue Lakes Blvd North, Twin Falls, Idaho.

"Under ERA's Home Buyers Protection Plan (BPP), the buyer is protected for one year against major operational failures of that home's central heating, electric air conditioning, plumbing and electrical systems... built-in appliances, water heaters, softeners, and accessible sheet metal ductwork. Homeowners pay only a pre-selected deductible per service call regardless of the cost involved," Jones said.

According to Jones, in the next 12 months, more than $5 billion worth of homes will be covered under the two warranties and in excess of $1.8 million in claims will be paid to home buyers and sellers.

"Homes covered by the warranties are given brief inspections to make sure the major components covered are in working order. When a breakdown occurs, a toll-free phone call to ERA results in a call to a service contractor in the area for prompt service", Jones said.

The ERA-Claim-of-the-Month involved a young couple in Goffstown, New Hampshire. Two days prior to closing and moving into their newly purchased home, it was discovered that the furnace had failed. The local ERA heating contractor immediately inspected the furnace and confirmed that the heating system was beyond repair and he was authorized by ERA to install a new furnace. When the new buyers moved in 3 days later they had a new $1,800.00 furnace.

Their cost? - nothing - thanks to the ERA-Sellers-Protection Plan purchased by their former owner.

"Both warranty plans take a lot of headaches out of buying and selling a home", said Jones. "When a buyer or seller calls and complains that his heating system failed, we can alleviate his worries by telling him the system is covered. The two warranty plans are basically peace of mind."

I am your home

I AM YOUR HOME, product of nature and man and machines...thousands of skills at their best...to make living easier for you.

I am the symbol of man's progress from the days of the cave—I lighten your tasks. I make strong your spirit. I make secure your future. I make enjoyable your leisure house.

Keep you safe from the elements. I shut out the cold and the snow, the wind and the rain. I make you warm or cool. I bring you beauty and color and light. I frame for you the everchanging magic of trees and flowers and sky. No king of ages past possessed as much.

I am built to endure. I can cradle your young at birth, shape their character at youth, comfort them in their maturity, shelter them in their sunset years.

I am your companion, your friend, your host, your servant, your bodyguard, your bondsman. I am your proudest possession. I will grow nearer and dearer to you through the years. I will be loved because of the storms I have helped you weather, the heights I have helped you climb, the tears I have dried, the joys I have created.

I am the expression of your faith in a way of life. I am the fruit of your labors and the spark of your incentive. I am a bulwark against tyrants. I am yours—your stake in America, a nation made free and great by men and women who—like you—believe in the stronghold of enterprise.

One of the more important functions of the Real Estate Commission is to encourage a continuing education program. As a result, the Real Estate Commission sponsors, either directly or through the Idaho Real Estate Education Counsel, a number of courses in Real Estate Law, Real Estate Appraisal, Marketing Techniques, Real Estate Finance, as well as advanced courses in these same areas.

One of the more important functions of the Real Estate Commission, which brings it into contact with the public, is the sponsorship and the supervision of courses in real estate essentials. This is a 30-hour course required by law to be completed before a real estate license can be granted. It covers the bare essentials of the real estate field and provides license applicants with basic knowledge in the areas of the law, forms, practice, principles, and the terminology that is common to the industry.

I would emphasize that this is only a 30-hour course and the minimum knowledge required to pass the Idaho real estate examination is greater than that provided by that course. For all practical purposes, successful passing does require additional study and reading. A number of courses are given by private individuals and real estate schools throughout the state that supplement this course with 3 and 4 day

"prep" courses, that are designed to carry the real estate licensed applicant into the real estate business to a greater extent and thus help better help him to pass the exam. My own observation is that it is generally essential for the applicant to take both courses if he is to give himself a fair chance to pass the exam.

The same examination given in Idaho is the one given in Oregon, Utah, Washington, California, and Colorado, to name a few of the states that operate under the same basic examination requirements. The examination consists of 100 multiple choice questions on real estate principles in general, and an additional 50 questions on Idaho state law. Interestingly enough, the successful passage of the 100 question examination will also qualify you as having passed the license exams in the above states without retaking that portion of the exam. Each state, however, will have a similar 50 question exam on their state laws that apply to that state, that must be passed if you want to be licensed in another state.

Currently, the Idaho passage rate is typically from 50 to 55 percent of those taking the examination. There are several hundred people taking it every month and it appears that the numbers taking the exam will continue to increase as more people become interested in the real estate business, for one reason or another, and decided to enter on either a full or part time basis.
