

Costa Rica and Panama aiding rebels?

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — A column of 300 Sandinista guerrillas led by armored vehicles invaded war-torn Nicaragua from Costa Rica early Friday with the help of Panama and Costa Rica. Foreign Minister Julio C. Quintana charged Friday.

"This new invasion is threatening the peace of the Central American isthmus," Quintana said.

"I am ready to go to Washington to present our case to the Organization of American States. I have already instructed the Nicaraguan ambassador to Washington and the OAS to file a protest before the OAS," Quintana said. He said the invasion was organized Thursday at the Costa Rican village of La Cruz, 10 miles south of the Nicaraguan border, with help from Costa Rica and Panama.

A Colombian Air Force C-130 Hercules transport plane, attempting to land at the Las Mercedes International Airport to evacuate Colombian citizens came under attack and a crewman wounded as gunfire hit the aircraft.

Witnesses said the plane landed safely but could not take off again with the evacuees.

Meanwhile, another 80 Americans left from Somoza's airfield at Montelimagon on the Pacific Ocean, en route to Howard Air Force Base in the Panama Canal Zone. An embassy spokesman said 80 more Americans would be evacuated Saturday, bringing to at least 460 the number of American evacuees since last Tuesday.

A Sandinista communique said the "Invaders 'annihilated' the 150-man national guard garrison in the border town of Penas Blancas. It also reported heavy fighting in the cities of Rivas and Jinotega and the town of Manos on the northern border with Honduras.

National guard warplanes pounded Sandinista guerrilla positions in Leon, Nicaragua's second largest city 55 miles northwest of Managua, for the second consecutive day Friday. The guerrillas have controlled most of the city for two weeks and have vowed to take over the national guard garrison there.

Fighting continued Friday in rebel-held neighborhoods of the capital, especially in the eastern sector along the highway to the Las Mercedes International Airport. Minor skirmishes between patrolling government troops and Sandinista snipers posted on rooftops and trees were reported around the city, which has suffered through six days of fighting and three days of massive looting.

The invasion was the second reported in two weeks from the Costa Rican sanctuaries established by the guerrillas. President Anastasio Somoza said the previous invasion was defeated and the guerrillas were forced to flee back to Costa Rica, Nicaragua's southern neighbor.

Quintana said he did not know how deeply the rebels had penetrated or if fighting was in progress, but amateur radio operators listening to police radios said the rebels and government troops clashed in Rivas, 16 miles north of the Costa Rican border.

Oil slick spreading in Gulf of Mexico

By United Press International Oil field freighter Red Adair of Houston, commanding divers, drillers and foundry workers in efforts to control a runaway offshore oil well north of Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, said Friday it could be a week or longer before he could stop a leak he spewed "the worst slick" he has seen in 30 years.

Through Friday more than 16 million gallons of light crude had escaped from the well at the rate of 1.26 million gallons per day, although the Petrolia Mexican, the Mexican national oil company, said half of the flow was being consumed by fire and another 210,000 gallons by evaporation.

"It's the worst oil slick I've ever seen," Adair said in Houston during preparations to cap the well, about 450 miles southeast of Brownsville, Texas. "It's a mess, but it's not going to spread oil all over the Gulf of Mexico. None of it has hit the beach."

Adair, hired by Pemex to direct the battle to control the blowout, said the well could remain uncapped for "another week or longer. You have to play it by ear."

Estimates of the size of the slick varied with the U.S. Coast Guard at New Orleans offering a figure of 1,300 square miles while Pemex said 640 square miles. The size of the slick and the difficulty in obtaining information from Pemex about containment efforts caused widespread concern along tourist-rich Texas beaches and among fishermen at Brownsville, the self-styled "Shrimp Capital of the World."

Carter and Brezhnev set for SALT

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev met for the first time Friday and, in a "good beginning" to the SALT II summit, the two leaders agreed they should meet more often.

The leaders of the two most powerful nations in the world greeted each other with a simple handshake and smiles. They met for two minutes alone but later sat together in the Vienna opera house royal box.

U.S. officials said Carter told aides he found the Soviet leader to be alert and said Brezhnev "responded quickly to remarks" in conversation. Brezhnev, who has been in ailing health, appeared to walk slowly when he first arrived in Vienna.

When a reporter asked Carter after their first meeting, "Was it a good beginning?" Carter replied, "Yes, it was."

A U.S. official said the meeting went well "under the circumstances." He did not elaborate. Later, officials said it was too early to say whether or not the summit got off to a good start as Friday morning was only "preliminary."

Officials said Carter remarked that it had taken too long for the leaders to get together — nearly 2 1/2 years since Carter first took office — and Brezhnev agreed the times between summits should not be that long.

The two men sat in baroque, high-backed red chairs, separated by small tables and accompanied only by interpreters. They talked for two minutes alone before being officially received by Austrian President Rudolf Kirchschlaeger.

arrived first at the 13th century Hofburg Palace and waited in the ornate Rose Room. Brezhnev arrived five minutes later and the two men simply shook hands.

After their short initial meeting, they met with Kirchschlaeger for 25 minutes.

The meeting was social. The real talks do not begin until this morning. Carter and Brezhnev met for a second time Friday night at the State Opera House, where they shared a box for a performance of Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seraglio."

Carter, wearing a steel blue tuxedo, arrived with his wife at the opera three minutes before the curtain went up. Brezhnev, in a dark blue suit dotted with gold medals on both lapels, Brezhnev arrived two minutes later and the leaders applauded each other.

Both men left the opera before the final act, however, apparently to get some rest before Saturday's talks. As Carter drove away, some people in the crowd unfurled an American flag for him to see.

Brezhnev, 72, arrived in the Austrian capital Friday morning amid tight security. The ailing Soviet leader walked unassisted down the stair ramp from his plane but kept a firm grip on the hand rail. His face appeared puffy and he favored his left leg as he reviewed an honor guard.

Brezhnev has been reported recently to be in better health than he has been for some time.

In contrast, the 54-year-old American president began his day by jogging 16 laps around the U.S. ambassador's residence. Carter arrived Thursday night and spent much

Mountain Bell operator Sandy Hacking pickets in front of Twin Falls office Friday morning

Phone 'pressure' protested

By DAVID MORRISSEY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Telephone company employees took to the picket lines Friday to remind customers "we're here to serve the people, but we are people, too."

The "informational picket" and leafleting, as it was called by Sandy Harrell of Twin Falls, president of local union 8110 of the Communication Workers of America, was part of a nationwide "Pressure Day," sponsored by the 600,000-member union.

"We're trying to call attention to certain working conditions which should be improved," Harrell said. He stressed no disruption of telephone services took place, and all telephone employees picketed on their free time.

Company employees picketed in front of the telephone company building and at the Blue Lakes Mall in Twin Falls.

According to Harrell, telephone employees are upset with several company actions, including underemployment resulting in "forced overtime."

"The last 10 years or so they haven't been hiring people they should be. We're two to three people short on crews both inside and out," he said.

Employees were also seeking changes in computerized work schedules, which Harrell said were unnecessarily inflexible.

"You have to ask permission to go to the restroom," said Sandee Henson, of Twin Falls, one of the picketers. "And you can't go if the computer says you're needed."

Employees also have difficulty in obtaining days off, Harrell said. According to Kenneth Mann, Twin Falls district manager for the Mountain Bell Telephone Co., work has begun to find solutions to employee problems. "Solutions aren't simple or quick, but we have some strong clues from programs already under way," he said.

The telephone company is willing to improve working conditions, he said, but pointed out some of the employee complaints resulted from efforts to improve customer service.

Computerized job scheduling is an attempt to have the most people working during the "peak demand" period of telephone use, Mann said.

Employees do occasionally have to work overtime, he acknowledged, but added "a certain amount of overtime is economically cheaper than adding additional people." If employees are added just for peak, seasonal demand periods, Mann said, then those employees must be fired when the seasonal demand ends.

The telephone company will try to reduce "unreasonable" overtime demands, Mann said. Additional workers in some areas may be hired, if a constant demand for their services is demonstrated, he said.

Scare tactic?

Malaysians issue refugee warning

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — The government said Friday it will "shoot on sight" any Vietnamese refugees trying to land in Malaysia and will tow out to sea all 78,000 refugees already in resettlement camps.

It was not immediately clear whether the fierce warning, announced by Deputy Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad, was a scare tactic or truly a new policy. But Mahathir said the police and navy would be empowered to repel any "boat people" entering Malaysian waters. He vowed the mass deportation would take place as soon as the government obtains enough boats.

"The government will arm itself with the necessary legislation soon to shoot on sight any Vietnamese illegal immigrants entering our waters," Mahathir said. "We will be harsh with them."

Refugees who scuttle their boats offshore will not be rescued even if they are drowning. Mahathir said, "because they sank their own boats, not anything else."

Malaysia and Indonesia earlier in the day appealed to Hanoi to stop casting its human "rubbish" on their shores, but a top Vietnamese official said in an interview in Bangkok he saw little chance of ending the refugee exodus.

"While telling us we are their friends, the Vietnamese keep throwing rubbish into our gardens," Malaysian Home Affairs Minister Ghazali Shafie said.

Vietnamese refugees, most of whom are ethnic Chinese, have never been welcomed in Malaysia, a predominantly Moslem country fearful of Chinese domination. Malay villagers have stoned arriving Vietnamese boat people, and the navy reportedly has towed one leaking junk back out to sea, resulting in the drowning of more than 100 people.

of Friday relaxing with his family. Surrounded by a ring of security agents, the Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and his wife had lunch in the picturesque old market town of Klosterneuburg in the Vienna woods high above the Danube River.

As the president left his lunch at a restaurant run by Augustinian monks, he was surrounded by well-wishers and autographed about 50 lunch menus.

"Good luck," a diner called.

"I think we'll have good luck," Carter replied.

Full summit negotiations begin Saturday with two meetings between the leaders and two more on Sunday. The signing of the treaty limiting strategic weapons is scheduled for Monday.

The treaty becomes effective only after approval by the Supreme Soviet and the U.S. Senate.

Saturday briefing

Rubber agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tentative agreement was reached Friday between the United Rubber Workers union and B.F. Goodrich on a new contract expected to serve as a pattern for other agreements with the "Big Four" tire and rubber companies.

Chief federal mediator Wayne Horvitz announced the settlement after eight hours of near continuous bargaining during the day.

"I have every confidence this will be ratified," Horvitz told reporters.

Ethics bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Friday passed and sent President Carter a bill relaxing some restrictions on contacts between high federal employees and their former government agencies.

These "revolving door" restrictions had led to the resignation or threatened resignations of a number of high officials, who wanted to be out of government before the restrictions became effective July 1.

Oxygen deficiency

MIDLAND, Mich. (UPI) — Tests indicated an oxygen deficiency in a nuclear power plant construction area where one worker died and 11 others were injured in an apparent argon gas buildup, state officials said Friday.

However, it was not immediately known whether the man killed in Thursday's accident, a site engineer, was told of the low oxygen level before entering the area to inspect it, a labor safety official said.

Bombs studied

DENVER (UPI) — A Rocky Mountain Arsenal spokesman Friday said visual inspections of six leaking nerve gas bombs had failed to determine the source of the leaks, and further tests may be ordered.

Art Whitney said four of the bombs were inspected Thursday and two Wednesday. But he said Army technicians and civilian advisers were unable to pinpoint the leaks.

Air-born baby

HONOLULU (UPI) — The passenger load of United Airlines' Flight 183 increased by one Friday with the birth of a baby girl 37,000 feet above the Pacific.

Airline spokesman Bill Bachran said the baby was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Kenney en route from San Francisco to Honolulu.

The pilot's message to Honolulu said only, "Passenger load increased by one — mother and daughter doing fine."

Bachran said the baby will get a 50 percent future flight discount coupon.

Bad economic news

By United Press International
A Kuwait report that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would raise oil prices by 20 percent at its June 28 meeting is "more bad news for the U.S. economy," a New York oil specialist said Friday.

In Kuwait, the weekly magazine Al Nahdha Friday quoted reliable oil sources as saying OPEC would adopt a 20 percent price increase "to compensate for the rise in the price of goods manufactured in oil-consuming states."

Gas rush explained

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top Energy Department official Friday described the overwhelming rush to buy gasoline in some areas as "a psychological phenomenon" unrelated to the real supply situation.

The testimony of Assistant Energy Secretary Alvin Alm at a congressional hearing prompted Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., to accuse the administration of lacking "any sense of urgency" in promoting fuel conservation.

Talks on Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot negotiators met for the first time in more than two years Friday in the resumption of talks aimed at settling their bitter conflict over Cyprus' political future.

The talks aim at working out a federal constitution for the divided island republic and determining the extent of land to be administered by each community.

Ears for Hefner

"Playboy" publisher Hugh Hefner, who has for years been putting rabbit ears on women, had the tables turned on him recently at a Hollywood party as a photographer lined up his photograph to make it appear that Hefner was wearing the ears.

California strike

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Action in the three-day-old strike for higher wages by California state blue collar workers shifted Friday from picket lines to the air-conditioned offices of negotiators and lawyers.

The number of strikers held steady — about 1,500 — as state and union representatives talked of trying to resolve the conflict at the bargaining table and in the courts.

More on Bakke

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The University of California is fighting an order that it pay Allan Bakke's legal fees in his reverse discrimination case and may take the issue of whether Bakke won a significant civil rights victory back to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Gary Morrison, of the university's legal staff, told UPI Friday there "is a possibility of a challenge" of an order by the California Supreme Court that the university pay Bakke's legal expenses arising from the extended litigation.

Arson suspected

HESPERIA, Calif. (UPI) — A wind-whipped brush fire that burned through three square miles of high desert, destroying 20 homes and another 30 buildings, was probably set on purpose, fire officials said Friday.

A spokesman for the Hesperia Fire District said fire investigators "definitely" suspected arson in the 1,600-acre fire because the blaze broke out in three locations Thursday afternoon.

A state Forestry Department official said the fire was also "suspicious ... because of the time it began, when the wind was highest and the fire could be expected to spread most rapidly."

Day care rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Friday proposed new rules on safety, health and nutrition at federally funded day care centers to make sure "the nightmare of poverty" does not haunt needy children.

"Working parents who entrust their infants and young children to the care of others must be confident that their child's safety and health are secure," said HEW Secretary Joseph Califano.

To foster that confidence, Califano outlined the proposed rules that would affect 1 million children from low-income families who participate in federally funded day care programs.

Iranian border posts hit by Iraqi planes

By SAJID RIZVI

TEHRAN, Iraq (UPI) — Iranian border posts and warplanes and transport aircraft were attacked by Iraqi jets in the western border region of Iran in the last few days, Iranian officials said Friday.

No casualties were reported in the attacks Thursday night on four border villages near Ilam, 455 miles southwest of Tehran, the second air raid in 10 days.

Seven people were killed and heavy damage caused in strafing and bombing attacks by Iraqi jets on six northwestern villages June 4.

Iraqi troops fired on the village of Salehabad as the warplanes strafed the area. Iranian revolutionary guards and police were rushed in, but the ground attack had ended before they reached the area.

Villagers demonstrated outside their wrecked homes Friday and condemned the Iraqi attacks as "unmanly," the radio said.

Iraqi ambassador Abdul Malik Al Yassin earlier this week apologized to the Iranian government for the June 4 attack. He said the warplanes strayed across the border while hunting Kurdish rebels in northern Iraq.

In separate developments: Iranian authorities ordered a dusk-to-dawn curfew Friday on all roads leading from Abadan and Khorramshahr, the principal cities in the Arabic-speaking Khuzestan province, to the Iraq border.

Iran has accused Iraq recently of sending arms across its border to ethnic Arab guerrillas who fought several bloody battles with government forces in Khorramshahr last month.

An Islamic revolutionary court in the northeastern city of Kermanshah sentenced and executed by firing squad Friday an army sergeant on charges of terrorizing and murdering innocent people.

He was the 299th person to be executed since Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was ousted in January, Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's government again postponed the scheduled publication of Iran's new Islamic constitution.

Yadollah Sabahi, deputy prime minister for revolutionary affairs, told reporters publication of the text was being put off until next week because Khomeini had raised "certain points." He did not elaborate.

However, Sabahi endorsed an unofficial text published Thursday by the newspaper Kayhan, which said the new constitution would give the Islamic clergy vast powers over the framing of all laws by parliaments.

Parents sued by children

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two teen-agers Friday sued their parents for money so they can attend college.

The suit was filed in Cook County Circuit Court on behalf of Kent McCarthy, 19, and Leslie McCarthy, 18, who said they want to continue their education in college but aren't getting the money from their divorced parents.

So they named their parents, who divorced in 1962 and have each since remarried, as defendants in a suit. The teen-agers' attorney said their father was a millionaire at the time of the divorce. The father's attorney said the man's net worth has dropped but he is "still substantially wealthy."

"I have never heard of children themselves asking for a support increase, at least not in this county," said Chief Divorce Judge Charles J. Fleck Jr. "It's unprecedented and it is illegal. I'll have to rule on its merits."

Their attorney, Louis C. Warchol, said the teen-agers live with their mother, Janet S. McGreevy, and she paid for Kent's first year at Texas Christian University. Leslie plans to attend college after graduation from high school.

"Their mother was receiving $25 a month for each child in support payments, but you know college can cost $5,000 a year," Warchol said. "She paid for one year and now it appears that they won't have money to pay tuition for the upcoming year."

She has filed suit for an increase in support payments from her ex-husband, Vern I. McCarthy Jr., but that has been stalled in court.

"Her request may be ruled on for a year, and these kids need the money now," Warchol said.

Warchol said he wants the assets of each parent to be examined in court and then he will ask for a ruling on how much each parent should pay towards their children's education.

Legal documents showed the father had assets of $1.3 million in 1962, Warchol said.

McCarthy's attorney, Owen L. Doss, said McCarthy is no longer worth $1.3 million but is "still substantially wealthy." He refused to estimate his wealth.

Doss said his client was "quite disturbed about the suit, and you can bet it's not going to help relations with his kids."

The suit filed by the teen-agers is based on a section of the Illinois Divorce Act that states the court has the authority to reset education and maintenance requirements for children even after they have reached adult age.

Sanction proposal goes to full House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Foreign Affairs Committee Friday sent the full House a compromise proposal that would give President Carter four months to decide whether to lift economic sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

The House version, which is supported by the State Department, would leave it up to the president to decide on the sanctions. The committee approved the measure 26-6.

A Senate amendment, passed overwhelmingly and now in a conference committee, would take the matter out of the President's hands and require the sanctions be lifted immediately.

The House committee's bill says it would be in the interest of the United States to lift the sanctions in order to encourage democracy in Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

However, the amended bill would leave it to the president to decide whether the Salisbury government has made sufficient progress toward legitimate democracy. It merely says he must report to Congress by Oct. 15.

The original bill would have given the president until the end of the year to report to Congress, but Republicans insisted on an earlier deadline.

The principal author of the House version, Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said the four-month delay would put off any American action until after crucial meetings of the Organization of African Unity in July and a British Commonwealth meeting in August.

"Negotiations are the only way to end the civil war," Solarz said. "If we lift the sanctions now, that possibility goes down the diplomatic drain."

Hydroseeding is now a way of the future. It's a very simple process. All the necessary turf establishment ingredients — seed, fertilizer, water and mulch — are mixed in a slurry and pumped onto the ground. Trucker spokesman rejects government's proposal

Protesting truckers drive rigs to the side of an overpass near Dectatur, Ala. UPI

By United Press International
The government Friday offered striking independent truckers some relief from high fuel prices but spokesmen for the drivers rejected the proposal and urged the disruptive strike continue.

Effects of the strike mounted. Violence, including shootings, prompted police and National Guard escorts for working truckers in some states. The president of the Alabama Motorists' Association, urged people not to drive this weekend because the strike has prevented distribution of gasoline. Watermelons were left to rot in Texas fields because no trucks were available to take them to market.

Officials predicted worse snarls — including possible spot food shortages — if the strike continues. The government relief plan was outlined by Interstate Commerce Commission Chairman Daniel O'Neal at a Washington news conference. It would give more money, earmarked to cover the escalating cost of fuel, to truck owner-operators who contract with trucking companies.

The order, effective immediately, permits trucking firms to pass the cost along to shippers via a 5.6 percent rate surcharge. Eventually, O'Neal admitted, the surcharge will be paid by consumers. But, he said, "No one benefits when the nation's transportation system is impaired."

"The ICC has done just about all it legally can to give you (truckers) the tools and to give your company the mandate to enable you to recover the increased cost of diesel fuel," O'Neal said.

Boise truck stop blocked

BOISE (UPI) — Following a meeting with Gov. John V. Evans Thursday, several independent truckers blockaded three Boise truck stops for an 1 1/2 hours. There was no violence. Truckers had met with the governor for an hour at which Evans made no firm commitments, but promised to back the truckers. After the meeting the truckers set up their blockades, which ended when they learned the trucker's fuel problem would be brought before the U.S. Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

At one of the Boise blockades, truckers allowed diesel fuel to be sold to only semi-truck refrigeration motors and private diesel cars.

Meantime, independent truckers in the Ontario-Payette area picketed the Oregon-Idaho Truck Stop in Ontario.

Fed up with business

© Universal Press Syndicate
 SEATTLE, WASH. — American industry, by almost any yardstick, measured up as the most successful industry in the world. Old-fashioned capitalism, imaginative inventors, able executives and a productive working force have combined to give us an unmatched standard of living. Shall we have a cheer for American business?

Yecch! I am, at the moment, fed up to the teeth with American business. It is not just the matter of the DC-10, though the grounding of that misbegotten aircraft triggers these remarks. Something seems to be happening in virtually every field of American enterprise — in manufacturing, in retailing, in the service occupations — and that something, whatever it may be, is not far removed from the long ago cry of "the public be damned."

The Federal Aviation Administration is catching a full load of blame for its indecisive handling of the DC-10. Fine with me. There is plenty of blame to go around. But what was the matter with the airline industry over all these years, that the airlines' own mechanics and engineers didn't perceive the pylon problem? What was wrong at McDonnell-Douglas that this flaw went undiscovered? What else have these butterfingers fellows overlooked?

When the FAA's order came down, the airlines faced a suddenly chaotic situation. Thousands of passengers had to be rerouted. Tickets had to be rewritten. Among the affected companies was Northwest Airlines, which does a tremendous business out of Seattle. But Northwest executives evidently felt no urgent compulsion to serve their stranded passengers. At Seattle Airport on the Friday after the order, two exhausted counter agents — only two — were struggling gamely with interminable lines of customers. Three counter positions were empty. If Northwest had thrown additional agents and telephone service into the breach, it was surely not apparent to passengers who tried futilely for hours to get information.

This attitude is getting to be characteristic of the airlines. A few years ago, veteran air travelers would have voiced a quick consensus on the worst of the major airlines — Eastern, hands down. Now opinion is divided. It is not that Eastern is much better; the others have gotten worse. Specific example: Trans World Airlines has a flight from Indianapolis to Washington that is supposed to leave at 7:15 a.m. But one Friday morning last month, the crew, that was to make the flight had become technically "illegal." Another crew had to be flown down from Chicago. But TWA felt no urgent desire to bring in the fresh crew by some special effort. No, indeed, TWA, taking its own sweet time; put the crew on a routine American Airlines flight that didn't even get to Indianapolis until 8 a.m. So who cared if a hundred passengers were to be made an hour late? Not TWA.

The airlines are not the only offenders. My wife bought a suit from Brooks Brothers; a button popped off, on the first wearing. I bought a suit from Joseph Banks; the right sleeve had been so carelessly put together that it promptly ripped loose. We ordered a turtle-shaped swimming pool float, made in Taiwan, from F.A.O. Schwartz; it arrived with a two-inch rip in a seam. We ordered some soap from Carswell-Massey; an old mail-order house in New York; they twice sent us somebody else's order, and they blamed it on their computer. Our old reliable White Flower Farm delayed so long in sending 50 ajuga that the plants were worthless when they finally arrived. A tube of tub-and-tile grout, purchased at the local Peoples Drug, sprang gasket at the first usage. At Skouffer's Hotel in Arlington, Va., two bedroom lamps were recently unusable: Their bulbs had burned out.

Is my experience unusual? Not at all. I cannot recall a time when I have heard so many complaints, in casual conversations across the U.S., about insolent sales clerks, lazy lawyers, careless food service and malfunctioning machinery. No one was surprised when the Department of Transportation exposed a pattern of ripoffs in auto repair. Recalls of defective automobiles have grown routine. The National Journal reports American businesses paid $3 billion in product liability premium costs last year — up 100 percent since 1975. It's easy to believe.

I'm ordinarily regarded as a "pro-business" spokesman, a free enterpriser to the core. But I would say to my friends in industry: This is your Dutch uncle speaking. Shape up!

Below SALT meeting

© N.Y. Times News Service
 PARIS — While the Carter administration is thinking only of the signing of SALT II at the summit this weekend, Leonid Brezhnev is already figuring out the followup to his strategic triumph: a different treaty, called "MBFR" to assure the Soviet domination of Europe with more conventional arms and armies.

I remember MBFR — "Mutual and Balanced Force Reduction" — from a blunder I made in the preparation of a Nixon speech. Seeking to shorten a dull sentence, I cut the words "and balanced" from the name of the negotiations: a horrified Secretary of State William Rogers called to say "that could cost us a couple of hundred thousand troops." I hastily stuck the words back in.

Those words — "and balanced" — are one of the keys to the long negotiations on reducing conventional forces in Europe. When the Soviets withdraw troops from Warsaw Pact positions, they are still only a day's train ride away; when the U.S. pulls troops and weapons back, we cross an ocean; hence the need for "balance," or "asymmetry" in the numbers withdrawn.

MBFR (best remembered by its jocular translation, "More Better For Russia") is the negotiation nobody wanted. When Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield called for unilateral U.S. withdrawal, the White House countered with troop-reduction negotiations. When the Soviets wanted to legitimize their conquest with a European Security Conference, we went along provided the Russians accommodated our need to defect the Mansfield amendment with troop-reduction talks.

But negotiations, with delegations drawn up in what Churchill called "vast cumbersome array" take on a life of their own. In 1975, since the Russians had superiority in numbers of troops and tanks while we had the edge in the latest nuclear-tipped theatre weapons, we proposed a deal called "option three": we would limit our modern weaponry if they would buy the "and balanced" notion in troop and tank withdrawals.

The Russians stonewalled, and for good reason: they were busily leapingfrogging our theatre-weapon advantage. By 1978, their Backfire bomber and SS-12 "Scaleboard" missile matched our cruise and Pershing missiles; as they introduced the longer-range SS-20, the tactical tables were turned.

That is when the Soviets announced grandly that they were prepared to buy the "balanced" idea, pulling out more Soviet troops than Americans if we carried out "option three" to weaken our missile force. The Carter administration was nonplussed; how could we now turn down what we had been asking for?

The Carter response was to stall. We challenged the Soviet "data base" — that is, we said, quite rightly, the Soviets were lying about their numbers.

In the coming summit weekend, in the joint U.S.-Soviet communique, the Soviets will push us again: look for a sentence about the way "the two nations (undercutting NATO) will pursue European troop reduction. Brezhnev has the initiative; Carter doesn't even have a policy.

The Soviet goals are clear: to limit the size of the West German Army and to maintain the new Russian theatre-weapon superiority. That would give them effective military control of Europe.

Our policy should be just as clear: 1. Beel up NATO's tactical weapon force with Pershing II and cruise missiles, and withdraw our moot "option three" weaker.

2. Close off the back channel between superpowers that erodes NATO unity. Keep our MBFR negotiations going in Vienna as an incentive to NATO unity: "Only in the presence of the Soviets," says strategist Edward Luttwak, "does our alliance act like an alliance."

3. Insist that any Soviet pullback have meaning — modern equipment in an entire tank army, not rusting old tanks and divisions of cooks and bakers.

4. Take the initiative with a new offer that will test Soviet sincerity: mutual on-site inspections. Spy satellites cannot count troops as well as surprise visits to barracks. Our allies, the West Germans, may not like this idea any more than the Russians, but our Joint Chiefs consider the accurate knowledge of troop and weapon strength more of a deterrent to attack than any troop withdrawals.

We know that Brezhnev intends to make a propaganda pitch for MBFR at Vienna. Unless we turn these negotiations into a genuine test of Soviet intentions, it is we — to use a favored Carterism — who will look like the warmongers.

Skylab's 'footprint' could hit you

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate
 WASHINGTON — It isn't too early to start thinking about Skylab. The latest report indicates that Skylab will fall on us "somewhere between June 20 and July 14." Hundreds of pieces of flotsam, some weighing as much as 5,000 lbs., will drop from the sky — God only knows where. Its "footprint" is said to be 100 miles wide and 4,000 miles long. According to Las Vegas bookmakers, the chances of a piece hitting a person are 150 to 1. The chances of it hitting you personally are obviously much less.

But we all know people who take a bleak view of everything and they are the ones who believe that if Skylab is going to fall out of the sky, it will fall on them.

Buzzword is in this category. Ever since he read that the space laboratory was a goner he's been biting his fingernails. "I know it's going to fall on me. I just know it."

"How can you be so sure?" I asked.

"There are four billion people on this planet. Maybe, with luck, it will land on the Ayalalab Khomani."

"This is serious," Buzzword retorted. "Do you know that Walter Cronkite has canceled his vacation so he can cover it when it falls?"

"Walter's always been interested in the space program. He covered Skylab going up, so obviously he wants to see what happens when it falls down. But just because he's worried doesn't mean that you have to be worried."

"Maybe," said Buzzword, "I should build a Skylab shelter. Then I'd be the only one safe when the sirens sound."

"I wouldn't if I were you," I warned him. "If people find out that you have a Skylab shelter and they don't, they might shoot you to get into it."

"What am I going to do?" he cried: "It will be just my luck that I'll be waiting at a gas station on the 4th of July weekend for three hours, and when I get to the pump a solar panel will come whizzing through the roof of my car."

"You've got to look at the big picture," I told him. "There is nothing that says Skylab will even fall down in the United States. It could be strewn all across the Soviet Union or China or the Riviera. That's the beauty of Skylab. Every country in the world has an equal chance of being dumped on. If I know our people at NASA they're going to do everything in their power to see that it doesn't fall on the United States — because if it does their budget is going to be cut."

"What I don't understand," Buzzword said, "is why they would put up a space laboratory if they knew it would eventually fall down."

"They didn't think it would fall down until some time in the next century, and by then most of the people who sent it up would be on retirement pay and wouldn't have to deal with it. Believe me, they're as upset about their calculations as you are. They've hired a battery of lawyers to handle the class action suits that will come out of it."

"Suppose a piece of it hits a nuclear energy plant?" he wanted to know.

"Now I think you're overreacting," I said.

"Las Vegas hasn't even put out odds on that one. The most important thing to remember when it starts raining Skylab parts is not to panic."

"What should I do?" he wanted to know.

"Go into the nearest subway station until the all-clear sounds."

"But then I'll get mugged," Buzzword said.

"Those are the chances you have to take if you want a safe and sane space program."

District judge retains ban on magazine's bomb story

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Robert Warren Friday denied a motion by The Progressive magazine that he lift his ban against its publishing a hydrogen bomb story the government says could speed the spread of thermonuclear weapons.

The reasons for the decision were secret, sent in sealed envelopes to the attorneys for the government and the magazine.

"We are disappointed but not surprised," magazine officials said in a statement. They said they would appeal this ruling. Just as they appealed the temporary injunction to the 7th District Court of Appeals in Chicago.

"The issue of a secret opinion — where freedom of press is a central issue — marks a further spread of the cancer of secrecy in the American judicial system," the statement said.

The magazine editors and lawyers have complained frequently that secrecy of certain government documents has hampered preparation of their defense.

Warren, who issued his temporary injunction March 26, had said Tuesday after closed door hearings on the motion that he would issue an in camera or secret opinion on his decision. He refused to comment why he was doing this.

The latest motion was made on grounds the alleged secret information in the story had been in public library books in the government's scientific laboratory at Los Alamos,

N. M. for three years.

The books were later removed from the shelves. It had been reported some government attorneys felt the disclosure had weakened the government's case against The Progressive.

Warren's decision to deny was in a one-page memo, but he had "carefully considered" the oral arguments made before him Tuesday. "The court concludes that the defendants' motion to reconsider and to vacate the preliminary injunction issued by this court ... is hereby denied."

The denial would seem to remove the last obstacle to the magazine's appeal of the order being heard Sept. 10 in Chicago by the 7th Appeals Court.

The pre-publication ban is the first in U.S. history. The government had lost its last attempt to do this in the Pentagon Papers case of 1971.

The story was to have been published in the March issue of the Madison-based monthly.

Pallbearers' Catholic church with casket containing John Wayne's body

John Wayne buried, quietly

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — John Wayne was buried early Friday in a cemetery overlooking the Pacific after simple Catholic rites attended only by members of his immediate family and a few close friends.

The burial at Pacific View Memorial Park followed a mass of the resurrection at Our Lady Queen of Angels Church, about two miles inland from Wayne's seaside home.

Father Marcos G. McGrath, the archbishop of Panama, who visited Wayne about a month before the actor died, conducted the service at 6 a.m.

Wayne converted to the Catholic faith on Sunday, one day before he lapsed into a coma and died of cancer at the age of 72.

The pallbearers were Arturo McGowan, a long-time friend and also a resident of Panama, who delivered the eulogy; Jack Gordean, Wayne's agent; Louis Johnson, the actor's cattle ranch partner; Dr. Robert Egan; Chick Iverson, and Ernest Saftig.

Also attending were Wayne's three sons, Michael, Patrick and 16-year-old Ethan; his four daughters, Toni, Malinda, Aissa and Marissa; 21 grandchildren; his estranged wife, Pilar; and Patricia Stacy, the actor's close friend and companion for the past several years.

Flood retrial postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A lawyer for Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., disclosed Friday his ailing client has a bleeding ulcer, and a federal judge agreed to postpone Flood's retrial on bribery charges at least until Oct. 15.

But U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch also ordered an independent medical examination of Flood after prosecutors claimed defense lawyers have repeatedly used his medical problems to delay the trial.

Defense attorney Axel Kleiboemer, who objected vigorously to the "malingering" charge, told Gasch at Friday's hearing that the congressman's "perforated stress ulcer" was only discovered on Wednesday.

He said Flood complained of stomach pains early that morning, while recovering in a hospital from eye surgery for removal of cataracts.

Supply may be lowered for guilty oil refineries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration will use its power to shift oil supplies away from refineries who have no good reason for producing gasoline below their capacity, an official said Friday.

Alvin Alm, assistant secretary of energy, said the Department of Energy is trying to find out why refineries would be processing less crude oil when crude oil imports seem to be increasing.

"The department will be meeting with those companies that do not appear to be making maximum use of growing crude oil stocks," Alm told the energy subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee. "If there is no adequate explanation for this lack of use of available crude oil, the department will consider allocating crude oil to refineries that are prepared to use it."

Later, pressed by committee members, Alm put it more strongly: "There is no explanation, for the capacity levels we see now, we will use our allocation authority to allocate crude away from firms that are not adequately using their refineries."

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said earlier in the week that some refineries seemed "unduly conservative" in maintaining a level of inventories of crude oil, when products are needed, to alleviate shortages.

Schlesinger Thursday called last week's drop in U.S. refinery utilization to 84.5 percent of capacity from 87 percent the prior week "disappointing," "troubling," and a possible "irritant."

House wants some facts about fuel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Provoked by growing gasoline lines in and around the nation's capital, the House Friday demanded straight answers from the administration about why there is a fuel shortage.

By a 340-4 vote, the House approved a "resolution of inquiry" which said an earlier report from the Energy Department was only "technical compliance" with the requirement for an assessment of the crisis.

"The people are puzzled," said House Republican John Rhodes of Arizona. "They are angry. They don't understand why this has to be, and frankly, I don't either."

"I think you can boil it down to about five or six causes," Rhodes said following the vote.

"We want an opinion from the Department of Energy and the president as to what happened," he said. "Why do we have a shortage? Why do we have people waiting in gas lines."

"There will be a resolution of inquiry on the floor every day until we get the answers."

The debate apparently was influenced by the worsening supply situation in Washington and suburban Maryland and Virginia where long gasoline lines — and hot-tempered motorists — are becoming commonplace.

Soviet Christians seek President Carter's help

HOUSTON (UPI) — Soviet Christians are looking to President Carter, their "brother in the faith," to pursue human rights in Russia where the government continues to persecute Christians, says the first of five exiled Soviet dissidents to be reunited with his family in the United States.

"Even now, believers are happy he stands up for human rights in the Soviet Union," exiled dissident Baptist leader George Vlins said during a news conference Thursday at the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention.

"Vlins, 51, freed with four other dissidents six weeks ago from the Siberian prison where he spent the past five years, said Carter's 1976 election elated Soviet Christians who "rejoiced that their brother in the faith was elected to such a high office."

Drive-In Church opens for summer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Drive-In Church began its 23rd year of summer services last Sunday at the Twin Falls Motor-Vu Drive-In Theater. The interdenominational worship service begins at 8 p.m. and pastors of the community serve on a rotating basis.

The drive-in church was begun by former Kimberly minister Paul Kenny, who recognized the need of a convenient church service for people on the road and for the elderly who can no longer climb stairs.

The snackbar roof doubles as an altar and the services are broadcast through speakers to each car. The church maintains that the substance of religious beliefs rests in the minds and souls of those who believe and not in the external trimmings of an organized church.

TWIN FALLS — The Christian Center will have a church potluck beginning at 7 p.m. Sunday, followed by a film presented by Dave Denault.

Some churches withhold support of Rhodesia

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. churches supporting the struggle for black rule in southern Africa are reluctantly concluding the United States must maintain its economic sanctions against the new biracial government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia, Congress is pressing President Carter to lift the sanctions now that the breakaway British colony has elected a black majority government, albeit with strong powers reserved under white control.

For the 10-million member United Methodist Church, in particular, the situation is extra-complex because the new black prime minister of the Salisbury government, Abel Muzorewa, is a United Methodist bishop.

Muzorewa received much of his education in the United States and his wife and daughter have been living in Nashville, Tenn., since his home in Rhodesia was bombed in 1977. The resultant quandary for United Methodists is summed up in an editorial in the current issue of New World Outlook, the denomination's mission magazine.

"Reluctantly — because, after all, a brother United Methodist bishop whom we greatly admire has been elected prime minister — we must conclude that it would not be wise for the United States to drop sanctions at this time," it said.

THERE IS THERE IS ANOTHER WAY

The sign said, "Smile if you love Jesus." So I smiled all day long, and people thought I was a staff worker for Jimmy Carter.

The sign said, "Hank if you love Jesus." So I hanked, and a policeman arrested me for disturbing the peace in a hospital zone.

The sign said, "Wave if you love Jesus." So I waved with both hands. Lost control of the car. And crashed into the back of a Baptist bus.

Oh God, I can't smile, or hank, or wave.

How will Jesus know I love Him? There is another way.

Close to contract

RUPERT — Minidoka County School District teachers are one step away from a new contract which would increase their base pay from $9,000 to $9,450 per year.

A tentative contract agreement for the 1979-80 school year was ratified Friday afternoon by members of the Minidoka County Education Association, by a 10-6 vote.

The ratification now puts the tentative agreement on the Minidoka County school board's desk for final approval. The matter is expected to come up at the board's Monday meeting.

The tentative agreement between MCEA and school board representatives was reached last week. Negotiations began in mid-winter, Stevens Heiner of Heyburn, MCEA negotiator, said Friday.

Heiner said the negotiations were not marked by great differences in the positions of the teachers and the board. Teachers had requested a 7 percent increase in base pay in addition to longevity allowances. The board had supported a 7 percent increase that would have included longevity pay increases.

The differences between those added up to no more than $300, he added. The tentative agreement lies roughly between the two positions.

Benefits such as medical and dental insurance, grievance procedure, personal leave and time allotted for grading were left unchanged by the new contract, Heiner said.

Law mower missing

TWIN FALLS — A 21-inch self-propelled John Deere lawnmower valued at roughly $250 was missing Friday from the residence of Elwood Pettigill, 600 3rd Ave. W., Twin Falls police said.

The reported theft occurred sometime between 9 p.m. Thursday and 8 a.m. Friday. Police found tire marks leading from the Pettigill back yard to the driveway and out onto the street.

Suspect or suspects were unknown Friday.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — Rodger Harris, 34, of Twin Falls, has pleaded guilty to three misdemeanor charges in connection with practices as a naturopath.

Felony charges against the naturopathic physician were dismissed, his attorney Wayne Loveless of Pocatello explains, and only three misdemeanor charges were retained.

In plea bargaining sessions between the defense and the Twin Falls prosecution attorney, Harris agreed to plead guilty to one charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and two charges of practicing medicine without a license, all reduced to misdemeanors. A Times-News story on Wednesday stated the man pleaded guilty to one misdemeanor and two felony charges. The Times-News regrets the error.

Mishap starts fire

RAPT RIVER — A truck heading west on I-88 Friday evening lost the rear axles of its 52-foot trailer, igniting a weed fire along the highway median.

No one was injured and the accident caused only slight damage to the rig, Idaho State Police said.

Burbage R. Justice of Twin Falls, was driving about two miles west of the Rapt River Store, 28 miles east of Burley, when the rear axles of his empty trailer dropped out from under. As the trailer dragged, sparks were emitted, igniting the median grass.

Idaho State Policeman Lamont Johnston said the fire lasted about two hours and burned about a half mile of median before Bureau of Land Management firefighters put it out.

Justice was unharmed by the accident and Johnston estimated damage to the truck, owned by Ida-Cal Freightlines Inc. of Nampa, at $200.

Inattentive driving

BERGER — A Jerome woman was cited for inattentive driving Friday when her car went off the road two miles north of Berger on Highway 93.

Nancy Rae Short, 27, 504 E. C St., Jerome, was heading north on Highway 93 about 6:17 a.m. when she apparently fell asleep at the wheel of a 1975 Datsun, Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said Friday.

The car first went off the right side of the highway and then veered back across the left side and over the road's embankment, Munn said. The vehicle ended up in a wheat field.

No injuries to Mrs. Short were reported and no other vehicles were involved. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $600.

Theft reported

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police are investigating the theft of $150 in cash from Sandwich Wood, 705 Blue Lakes Blvd. N.

The burglary occurred sometime between 8 p.m. Thursday and 8:30 a.m. Friday, Police Chief Tim Qualls said Friday. Suspects were unknown at that time.

Peckham seeks Montana job

BURLEY — Cassia County School District Superintendent William Peckham has applied for a Montana school job that would pay him up to $18,000 more per year than his current salary.

Peckham, interviewed by the Missoula, Mont., school board Thursday night, could not be reached for comment.

Missoula school board chairman Gary Eudally said his board will choose between Peckham and five other finalists by July 1 to fill the vacant position of elementary school superintendent. The yearly salary will be in the $35,000 to $38,000 range, Eudally said.

Although Peckham has not told the Cassia County school board he is looking for employment elsewhere, "It is probably a matter of finance," said Mrs. Woodhouse.

Oakley said she had heard rumors to that effect.

QUESTION...

What death benefits are available to dependents of a veteran who died in service, or as a result of a service connected disability?

ANSWER...

Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC) is payable through the Veterans Administration to a widow, child or dependent parents of a veteran dying after January 1, 1957, as the result of a service connected cause or a compensable disability.

DIC payments to a widow are based on the pay grade of her deceased husband. Commencing at $260 monthly, the payments range to a maximum of $664.00. Widows with children under age 18 receive an additional allowance for each child.

Benefits may also be payable by Social Security and the Servicemen's Benefit Plan.

State takes over emergency fuel programs

BOISE (UPI) — State Fuel Emergency Services Director Chris Smith Friday said the state will take over the federal set-aside programs for gasoline and fuel Monday. Smith said the programs "do not constitute a solution for the current fuel crisis and do not bring more petroleum products into the state." "Under the state set-aside programs the Offices of Fuel Emergency Services in the Idaho Office of Energy will be able to redirect a small amount of petroleum product to users and areas of the state experiencing hardship or emergency circumstances," Smith said. Operation of the program by the regional office in Seattle was "less responsive" to calls from Idahoans because of the large workload, Smith said. Gov. John V. Evans requested funds from the Pacific Northwest Regional Commission to start an in-state program and eliminate the delay. Under the program, 5 percent of the gasoline and 4 percent of the diesel supplied to the state by the oil companies is set aside for allocation by the state office. Emergency services and vehicles will receive first priority for allocation from the program, Smith said. Agriculture will receive next priority, followed by public transportation, commercial and industrial use, and agricultural transport and private vehicles. Applications for fuel from the program can be made by calling 384-7777.

Church leads Symms in Boise poll

BOISE (UPI) — The latest opinion poll by KTVB television in Boise revealed Friday that Sen. Frank Church is currently more popular in Ada County than Rep. Steve Symms. A random telephone sample of 324

Ada County participants showed that a head-to-head contest for the U.S. Senate between incumbent Democrat Church and Republican Symms would give Church the edge. Church was the choice of 36 percent of the participants while Symms attracted 26 percent. Thirty-eight percent said they were undecided.

The same participants were asked their presidential preference between incumbent Democrat Jimmy Carter and Republican Ronald Reagan. Reagan was far and a way the overwhelming choice with an acceptance rating of 45 percent, while Carter attracted only 21 percent.

Seventh crash victim found

GRANGEVILLE (UPI) — Searchers recovered another body Friday afternoon downstream from where a Forest Service DC-3 plunged into north Idaho's whitewater Selway River Monday.

Forest Service spokesman Steve Waterman said the unidentified victim of the second-worst aviation disaster in Idaho history was found in a pool a mile or two downstream from the crash site.

BLM asked to withhold lieu lands

BOISE (UPI) — The legislative Lieu Land Committee voted Friday to ask the Idaho state director of the Bureau of Land Management to withdraw any lieu lands selected by the state from the agency's wilderness study.

Sen. Majority Leader Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, expressed concern that if the BLM included federal lands owned the state in the selections made by Idaho they would be tied up for several years. Little asked the committee to adopt a motion that the BLM director review the lands being studied for inclusion in the BLM's wilderness study to determine if any were among the 24,000 acres being requested by the state.

In A-1 football State board OKs playoff

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Crowning of an Idaho A-1 football state champion was assured Friday when the board of control for the Idaho Interscholastic Activities Association voted to implement a playoff plan beginning with the September season.

In reality, it proved the board could react to a "gun at the head" situation since A-1 football had come to that point in the state. However, at the same time, the action raised a vigorous protest from A-1 basketball coaches since the grid playoffs will infringe on the usual basketball domain.

In the state playoff ruling, the A-1 football teams will be broken down into "comparable programs," including wildcard berths. While the state board was meeting in Boise Friday, the Southern Idaho Conference was getting together in Pocatello. There was telephone interchange between the two.

As the matter stood, barring reversal later, Twin Falls was put in a division with Nampa, Idaho Falls and Pocatello. The schedule already assures that those four teams will meet this season. The one with the best record among the four will automatically gain a berth in the final round of eight.

Since Minico has left the SIC and its schedule and since the SIC for all purposes is now dead footballwise, the Spartans will be in a wildcard situation. Minico will play its schedule and be compared with the overall records and assumed strength of the Twin Falls division plus the Highland, Skyline and Bonneville division for the wildcard spot.

In essence, the divisions have the four northern schools in one, the three Boise schools and Meridian in the other, the Twin Falls division and the Highland division. Wildcards will be available among Minico and the two south to eastern divisions, one wildcard to the northern division, one to the Boise division and one to the best A-1 representative in the Cross State Conference.

Twin Falls Principal Frank Charlton said Friday night that while the playoffs are on for this fall, the system is not rigid.

"Our (SIC) athletic directors felt the football should be the SIC in football. It did for this year but the formula for deciding teams in another year could be altered," Charlton said. "And it might be that the SIC teams want to come up with a play for selecting a champion and I'm sure that could be arranged — at least on a divisional basis."

Basically, the playoff format is a sop for the excellence of the Boise city schools, which have dominated the SIC and A-1 division to a point that the other schools did not want to participate against Borah, Capital and Boise.

Had this situation not evolved, it is highly possible that those three schools would have been left with seldom an Idaho team on their collective schedule. Meridian, which draws a large percentage of its enrollment from students who consider themselves to live in Boise, has a standing directive from its school board to vote with the Boise schools.

The playoff plan automatically reduces the number of regular season games to nine, meaning the Veterans Day traditional season closing date will now be the opening of the playoff season. The state semi-finals will be played about Nov. 18 — the Friday occurring closest — and the finals will be played the Saturday after Thanksgiving.

This already has caused apprehension among A-1 basketball coaches who see the possibility of the football season carrying to within a week of the cage openers. Since most rely at least in some part on athletes in both sports, the basketball coaches feel themselves getting the short end of the stick in preparation time.

"I have always felt that it was good for my basketball players — especially the big men — to play football because it got them ready for the wars under the boards," one coach says. "When a boy comes to me and asks whether he should pass up football to concentrate on basketball, I've always told them to play football if they desired. But if they (football teams) are going to cut into a possible three weeks of practice time, after this any boy who asks me the same question is going to be told to stick with basketball."

Charlton said this point had been discussed and a suggestion made that the regular football season be cut back to eight games. This would restore at least a week for all possibilities. But Charlton also pointed out the playoffs would effect only eight teams on the normal Nov. 11 date, four the following week and just two to the finals.

Mark falls in first day of AAU

WALNUT, Calif. (UPI) — The women's stadium record of 60.44 seconds in the 400-meter hurdles was broken in three successive heats Friday on the opening day of the national AAU track and field championships at Mt. San Antonio College.

Debbie Esser of Iowa State, the 1979 AIAW champion, won the first heat in 59.72 seconds, setting a new stadium record. That record lasted less than three minutes as Ester Alfonso of Dayton, Ohio, won the second heat in 59.64 seconds.

Before other contestants had finished congratulating Alfonso, Edna Brown of Temple University, kicking strongly in the final 100 meters, clocked a 59.55 seconds in the third heat.

Michelle Hawthorne of Berkeley, Calif., who had set the old mark April 29 in the Mt. San Antonio Relays, was a close second to Alfonso in 59.34 seconds in the same heat.

Edwin Moses, who holds the world record at 47.45 seconds in the men's 400-meter hurdles, took the lead in the first 40 yards and never let up to breathe to victory in his heat in 49.70 seconds, the day's fastest clocking.

James King was the only other intermediate hurdler to break 50 seconds. He won the third heat in 49.95 seconds. Other heat winners were Quentin Wheeler in 50.22 seconds and Gregg Byram of Oklahoma in 50.87 seconds.

Evelyn Ashford, the American record holder in the 100 meters, came within 12-hundredths of a second of her record in winning the first heat in 11.19 seconds. Brenda Morehead of Tennessee State sprinted the second fastest 100, winning the fifth heat in 11.20 seconds.

Defending men's 100-meter champion Clancy Edwards was nearly eliminated. He had to open up with a tremendous burst of speed in the final 20 yards to take the fourth and last qualifying place in the second heat. His time was a slow 10.45 seconds. Edwards got a bad start and was two meters behind the field in the first 20 yards. Rich Edwards was off to a fast start and led all the way, winning in 10.32 seconds.

James Sanford, runner-up in the NCAA meet while competing for the University of Southern California, won his heat in 10.38 seconds. Jim Hart had the fastest time in the 100 meters, winning his heat in 10.28 seconds.

Tom Watson still wearing that grin

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Tom Watson couldn't think of one word to describe his round Friday in the 79th U.S. Open Championship. But he did come up with a series of them which he said pretty much told the story.

"Sloppy, careless, poor judgment," said the PGA's leading money winner. "It was a day when I didn't have much control."

Watson, who has made it known how much he would like to win the Open, called by the shots when the day began and proceeded to triple bogey the first hole.

"Starting out with a seven is a slap in the face," said Watson, who, despite his six over par 77 finish, still managed his famous Watson smile. "It's hard to come back from that. You've just got to chalk it up as one of those days."

The player of the year and leading money winner the past two years saw his chances for a first Open win vanish when he failed to make the cut.

Watson blamed his problems on a lack of confidence.

"I would really like to win this tournament, but I don't think I've ever come in on the upswing," said Watson, who captured the Memorial Tournament at Dublin, Ohio, in his last start. "I had a lack of feeling and a lack of confidence. I have no excuses. I'm not the kind of guy to make excuses."

Nelson ties for lead Watson fails to make cut at Open

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Late-finishing Larry Nelson equaled the best round of the tournament with a 3-under-par 68 Friday to share the second-round lead with Tom Purizer in the U.S. Open, but the big shock came when Tom Watson failed to survive the cut.

Both Watson and Jack Nicklaus duffed their way to rounds of 77. But while Nicklaus managed to live for another day, Watson, a four-time winner this year and golf's leading money earner in three years, missed the cut of 151 by one shot.

Nelson, a slender Georgian coming on strong this year with his first tournament victory and two third-place finishes, sizzled under 90-degree temperatures and moved into the lead by himself with a birdie on the 16th hole. But he bogeyed No. 17 to fall back into a tie with Purizer at 3-under 159.

"I never get too excited being the leader at the halfway point, but I'm happy about it," Nelson said.

Purizer, an early starter, shot a fine 69, and although he claimed he didn't deserve it, his name stood alone on the leader board for some six hours before Nelson caught him.

Hate Irwin, the 1974 Open champion, matched Nelson's round of 68 to move into third place at 142, the only other player in the field of 153 to match par for 36 holes, and Bill Rodgers was another stroke back at 143 following a 72.

Watson opened his round with a triple bogey and never recovered, adding a double bogey and five bogeys to wind up with a 6-over-par 77 and a two-round score of 152.

"I'm very disappointed," said Watson, who is finding the Open championship to be a personal jinx. "I shot myself out of the tournament. It's a terrible feeling. Starting out with a seven is a terrible slap in the face. It's hard to come back from that. You've got to chalk it up as one of those days."

Nicklaus fares just slightly better, picking up four bogeys and a double bogey on his first seven holes, finally settling for a 77 that left him at 151 and assured him of a couple of more rounds of golf for the weekend.

Purizer, prying himself to be a man of contradictions, calls himself a conservative player, one who doesn't make many birdies. Yet, he has blistered the back side of the difficult Inverness Club course for nine birdies in two days. And he complains that he isn't playing well, yet he was the only man through two rounds to remain under par.

"I'm pleased the way my score came out, but I'm not pleased at all with the way I'm stroking the ball," said Purizer, who has won only once in five years on the tour. "That leaves something to be desired. I'm going to have to hit the ball better than I did the last two days."

Nevertheless, the 27-year-old Arizona wouldn't be taken back if he happens to go on to win the Open.

"I can't speak for the public, but I feel like I'm a good enough player to win," he said. "Hitting it the way I am, I am surprised I'm leading."

Purizer started out the day in a five-way tie for the lead with Len Hinkle, Andy Bean, Len Graham and Kelth Fergus, but Purizer was fortunate enough to play early in the morning before the sun had made the putting greens super slick, while the others went out in the afternoon.

Graham, the 1976 Open champion, shot a 75. Bean had a 76, and Fergus and Hinkle each had 77.

Hinkle, incidentally, despite the presence of a newly planted tree to the left of the eighth tee, once again used a shortcut by driving onto the adjoining 17th hole, then crossing back to the eighth green, and for the second day in a row he got a birdie.

Abner Doubleday and the origin of today's sports

Did the sport of baseball really begin with some guy named Abner Doubleday chewing a piece of Carefree sugarless gum and telling his girl: "Oh, don't take the world too seriously?"

Anyone who believes that would probably go around telling others that the game of golf was invented by some shepherd, way back, when passing the time away hitting rocks with his crook.

Only problem is, the latter story is true. Believe it or not, history says there once was this talented shepherd who was the Tom Watson of his time. He could reportedly hit rocks into rabbit holes from a formidable distance, and would accept challenges from other lonely shepherds. The sport supposedly took off from there.

Sports buffs have been keeping records ever since modern day sports began at the turn of the century. But what about sports before the turn of the century? They were certainly there, but information regarding them is strictly hearsay.

It is questionable whether some of the hearsay is true, but true or not it is none-the-less interesting.

For instance, football supposedly got its start a few years after the Danes vacated England in 1042. Some workmen, excavating an old battlefield, uncovered a skull that undeniably was that of a Dane. The men kicked the skull to show their feelings, and it soon became popular to dig for skulls and kick them around.

Supposedly the game became known as "Kicking the Dane's Head," and later, when skulls became scarce and pig's bladders were substituted, "Kicking the Bladder."

It was not until the 12th century that the sport became known as "futeball," and the change to football followed shortly thereafter.

How about hockey? Another bored shepherd, probably the brother of the one who invented golf, supposedly developed a game similar to modern hockey using what else as a stick but his crook.

The French name for a shepherd's crook is "hoquet," and an Englishman who learned the game reportedly brought it back to England calling it "hokay," the English spelling of the French pronunciation.

The French are also responsible for the game of tennis. The most commonly suggested origin of the game is that it comes from the French word "tenez," meaning get ready or get set. The French reportedly yelled "tenez" just prior to serving the ball as a warning to their opponent.

Another explanation says that the game was originally played with five members per team, making the total number of players on the court at one time 10. The game, therefore, was called "tenez." Take your pick of explanations.

Tennis scoring also has French origins. Most sports fans have heard the term "goose eggs" used for zeros in scoring, and the French word for egg is "oeuf," pronounced "loveh."

Another Englishman reportedly heard the term, and went home calling no score in tennis "love."

Badminton was popularized by none other than the Duke of Beaufort, who had the distinction of hosting the first badminton tournament on his estate named Badminton.

Back to golf. It has already been determined that the game was invented by a clever shepherd, but how did it get its name?

The shepherd must have been Dutch, because the Dutch for club is "klof," and the Dutch word meaning to place in a hole is "putten."

Another popular game is bowling, and the Germans take credit for inventing that one.

The game supposedly originated as a religious ceremony during which evil heathens were driven away by knocking down sticks with a rolling stone.

The stick was called a "kegal," an all-purpose utensil used by the Germans. Bowling pins today are still referred to as "kegs," and bowlers as "keglers."

Who knows, if all the above are true then maybe Abner Doubleday did chew Carefree sugarless gum.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

We are only in six today. West opens the seven of trumps. East follows and all trumps are out. At this point there is a safety play to bring the slam home against any combination of adverse cards.

The key card is your club eight. You cash the ace of clubs at trick two, ruff a heart, lead that eight of clubs and let it ride after West shows up. East will return a spade, but you rise with the ace. Then you enter dummy with a trump and lead the nine of clubs for a ruffing finesse. You will get to discard your queen-seven of spades on the last two clubs. Suppose West had followed to that second club. You would finesse dummy's jack. If he held, you would get one spade discard on the king of clubs and would not lose a club trick.

Suppose the finesse lost. You would get one spade discard on the king of clubs and a second one on dummy's fifth club which would be sure to set up. Once each opponent had played two clubs no one could have three clubs left in his hand.

A West Virginia reader asks if we invite a slam in response to partner's standard notrump opening bid.

No, we don't. Even if partner has a maximum 10 points, a slam is doubtful since we have 4-3-3 distribution and all small spot-cards.
