

Overhaul of reclamation act OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee approved 12-3 Thursday legislation to overhaul the 1902 Reclamation Act, Sen. Frank Church announced.

"I think the Senate will approve this legislation," Church said after the committee vote. "Senate approval will then give the House of Representatives time to act this year so we can finish action and send the bill to the president for his signature."

"The courts have made it clear that by the end of this year, or soon thereafter, the 160-acre limitation will be strictly enforced, which means that many thousands of farms in the West will be pulled apart and we will be faced with a condition of chaos in the countryside."

The major thrust of Church's legislation is to raise the 160-acre limitation to 1,200.

"When it was first established, the 160-acre limitation made a great deal of sense," Church told the committee. "It was as much land as an individual family could manage, and it would furnish an individual family with a good living. But today, in most cases and in most places, that is no longer the case."

Among major features of Church's bill are:

- The 160-acre limitation is raised to 1,200.
- The concept of equity is established for the first time in reclamation law, meaning in areas of shorter growing seasons, or with land of less productive value, the acreage limitation would be raised.
- The residency requirement in existing law would be abolished in favor of a proprietorship test, in which those who benefit from reclamation projects would have to derive a significant portion of their income from the land.

• Once the federal share of a project has been repaid, federal restrictions of ownership would be removed. The committee adopted an amendment, supported by Church, which would allow waterusers, acting through their water districts, to negotiate with the Interior Department to accelerate repayment to the government.

United States asks Somoza to step down

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Anastasio Somoza's national guard said Thursday the soldier who shot and killed ABC-TV correspondent Bill Stewart was himself slain later while battling Sandinista guerrillas in Managua's eastern slums.

In Washington, the United States for the first time publicly called for Somoza's resignation.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told an emergency meeting of Organization of American States foreign ministers that the solution to Nicaragua's civil war "must begin with the replacement of the present government with a transitional government of national reconciliation."

He outlined a five-point U.S. proposal calling for Somoza's resignation, a cease-fire and the dispatch of a special OAS team — and possibly a peacekeeping force — to aid in the transition.

But the Sandinista leadership, in a communique broadcast by Costa Rican radio Thursday night, rejected Vance's proposal and vowed to continue the war "until we win or die."

"We will not accept any mission of the OAS. We refuse any action by the OAS. We will fight to the end until we win or die," the statement signed by the high command of the Sandinista Liberation Front said.

Vance accused the Somoza government of "persistent and widespread" human rights violations and said "this terror was brought home vividly to the American people yesterday with the cold-blooded murder by a national guardsman of an American newsmen."

About 50 journalists, including almost all representatives of the three American TV networks — about half of the foreign press corps — left Nicaragua Thursday either in protest against Stewart's killing or because of reports their Intercontinental Hotel had been targeted by the guerrillas as a military objective.

Foreign reporters were summoned to Somoza's heavily fortified command bunker in downtown Managua, ostensibly to question the soldier, Pvt. Pedro Gonzalez, who had been reported "under arrest" for Stewart's execution Wednesday.

Instead, his squad leader, Cpl. Lorenzo Brenis, announced that Gonzalez had been killed in combat late Wednesday. Brenis gave no further details.

His statement was greeted with angry cries of derision by the journalists present.

(The American reporter's death aroused a storm of protest in Washington, where outraged members of Congress Thursday demanded Somoza's ouster and denounced him as "the Idi Amin of Latin America.") Brenis said he did not witness Stewart's execution, but had asked Gonzalez what happened when Stewart was shot. "He tried to run away and I shot him," Brenis quoted Gonzalez as saying.

At this point most of the reporters walked out of the news conference. A guard spokesman said Brenis faced a court martial as Gonzalez' accomplice in Stewart's death.

The three American networks' television crews left Nicaragua to protest the death of Stewart and Juan Espino, an interpreter hired by ABSA.

FBI ordered to help keep roads open

By United Press International

Independent truckers escalated their protest over high fuel costs into a nationwide strike Thursday. The governors of Florida and Wisconsin declared states of emergency and President Carter ordered the FBI to help keep the nation's highways safe from spreading violence.

Carter said violence and lawlessness will not be tolerated in the truckers' strike. He ordered the FBI to "provide all appropriate assistance" in keeping the nation's highways open.

"In recent days we've seen truckers' strikes throughout our nation," Carter said.

"We all know that independent truckers do play a vital role in the economy of our country and my administration is trying to work with them to meet their legitimate grievances."

But gunfire still riddled trucks that stayed on the roads, despite a move by the powerful Teamsters Union to gain protection for working truckers. At least one non-striking truck driver has been killed.

Wisconsin Gov. Lee Dreyfus ordered a state of emergency, citing civil disturbances by the strikers.

Rhode Island Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy put the National Guard Thursday on alert and ordered state police escorts for fuel trucks to prevent protesting independent drivers from cutting off gasoline supplies.

Meanwhile, President Carter asked Congress to phase out many federal rules on the trucking industry, saying "mindless" government interference is blocking competition and costing consumers $5 billion a year.

The plan would cut deeply into powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission and ease controls on truckers over a three-year period.

The trucking industry prefers the current situation to Carter's plan and the head of the group's largest trade association promptly accused the president of bowing to political pressure from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. by "accepting his radical approach to... deregulation."

Kennedy, who joined the president for the announcement, has long been a strong advocate of deregulation and will sponsor Carter's plan in the Senate.

Carter, acknowledging the proposals will be challenged, characterized opponents of the plan as "some truckers who now have a non-competitive advantage."

Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons said, "Because of lack of regulation and union representation, the non-union independent truckers are going broke and are now trying to break the country with them."

Idaho truck stops open, but not much business

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There was plenty of fuel but no buyers at Idaho truck stops Thursday.

Striking independent truck drivers didn't follow through on threat they would blockade four truck stops in Boise and one in Twin Falls Wednesday night.

The fuel stations stayed open but empty Thursday, as truckers left the highways and went home during the second day of a statewide truck strike.

Truckers left from the roads to protest high fuel costs and insufficient rate increases.

Bob Sterling of the Idaho Independent Truckers Association said 70 percent of the independents are off the road. About half of them are home, and the rest have parked off the road, Sterling said.

No violence has been reported in the state since the strike began at midnight Tuesday, according to the state Department of Law Enforcement.

Wednesday rumors that striking truckers would close the pumps at midnight at four truck stops in Boise and one in Twin Falls were heard on CB radios. But truck stop operators said Thursday morning there had been no trouble.

Instead, truck stop operators found empty stations.

"Hardly anybody's coming through at all," said Nelly Gamble of the Rancho Truck Stop in Boise. Five truck stops in Pocatello have been blocked by empty trucks since Monday.

Major J.L. Snyder of the State Police said truck traffic is moving, although there are fewer independents on the road.

No cargo will be damaged by the halt in deliveries, Sterling said, because refrigerated trailers will keep their cooling systems going. But the cargo won't move.

State officials continued to watch and wait Thursday. Many said they can't do much for frustrated truckers.

"Most of the questions they're raising are federal ones. There's little more we can do in a direct sense," said Kirk Hall, director of the Idaho Office of Energy.

Sterling agreed it's up to Washington to help.

"It's going to have to come out of there," he said. Nevertheless, the strike is accomplishing something, he contended. "People are more aware."

Near the top of trucker demands is permission to raise freight hauling rates. On June 1 they were granted a 7 percent increase and will get another 7 percent July 1. But Sterling said they want at least another 7 or 8 percent.

"We weren't making that much money to start with," said Sterling, who earned $18,000 in pre-tax wages and profits in 1978.

Sterling said truckers also want lower fuel prices and a 65 mph speed limit.

The state may provide some relief through the use of its emergency set aside program.

Two construction firms say dam disaster not their fault

BOISE (UPI) — Two worldwide construction firms denied Thursday allegations by three insurance companies that they were responsible for flood damage in eastern Idaho as a result of the 1976 Teton Dam disaster.

In answering lawsuits filed June 1 in U.S. District Court, Morrison-Knudsen Co., Boise, and Peter Kiewit Sons Co., Omaha, Neb., said they merely followed contractual obligations with the federal government when building the dam.

The just-completed earthen structure collapsed June 5, 1976, killing 11 persons and causing millions of dollars in damage.

"Negligence, if any, was passive and secondary" on the part of M-K and Kiewit, said the answer to suits filed by St. Paul Fire Marine Insurance Co., Harco National Insurance Co. and National Union Fire Insurance Co.

The defendants said they "had no duty to advise" the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation — which designed the dam — of any design deficiencies which could have caused it to burst.

The two firms also are the targets of legal action by the federal government, which filed a suit earlier this year to recover $8 million it paid to flood victims. The government itself is the subject of dozens of suits by insurance companies in connection with the dam break.

M-K and Kiewit asserted the government had total control over the project and the contractors followed their agreement to the letter. In further defense, the firms said that because the government by law is immune to claims by insurance companies arising from the disaster, they too legally are entitled to this immunity.

The insurance companies alleged the government and the dam contractors "jointly and severally" are liable for damages caused by the dam collapse.

"The defendants held themselves out to be world-renowned experts in design and construction of earth-filled dams," the insurance firms said. Kiewit and M-K denied this and all other allegations.

M-K and Kiewit said, "The government provided an extensive inspection, testing and quality control program which it operated to evaluate all work by the contractor before acceptance."

"The defendants had no control over the quantity or quality of materials, the location of the dam, or the manner and methods in emplacement of embankments or adjoining abutments."

Hounded gas thief out-Foxed

TWIN FALLS — City police officer H.E. Fox takes advantage of every opportunity in the performance of his duties.

Wednesday evening while bringing a juvenile into the police station for booking in connection with a gasoline theft, the juvenile leaped from the police car and took off on foot.

Fox gave chase on foot and the pursuit led to City Park where the local kennel club was holding a dog obedience training session.

Fox quickly sized up the situation and asked JoAnn Loveland if the doberman pinscher she was working with was well trained.

Learning the doberman was being trained in police work and search and rescue service, Fox accepted the owner's invitation to go after the suspect.

The dog and Fox cornered the escaping juvenile at the corner of Fourth Avenue East and Shoshone Street.

When confronted with the large, fierce-looking dog, the juvenile offered no further resistance, Fox said.

The police report showed the young man was one of three juveniles apprehended by police at Friedman Bag Co., where they were observed taking gasoline out of a truck on the firm's parking lot.

Iranian judge offers reward for anyone who kills shah

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A judge of Tehran's revolutionary court Thursday offered a $131,000 reward for anyone who carries out the death sentence ordered in absentia for Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. The judge, Sheikh Saadeh Khalkhali, said that although a team of Islamic "hit men" was in Mexico hunting for the exiled monarch, the reward was available to anyone.

He also repeated an earlier offer of amnesty for the shah's wife, Empress Farah, if she made her husband's arrest possible or killed him herself. "Anyone who assassinate the shah will receive a hero's welcome in Iran," Khalkhali said. "His name will glitter in history."

Parquat classified hazardous

WASHINGTON — Federal health officials have concluded that paraquat, the herbicide used to kill marijuana plants, may seriously harm the lungs of smokers and have suggested stopping the spraying of Mexican fields.

Studies conducted by the Public Health Service at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta and the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences in Raleigh found that persistent exposure to paraquat can be extremely hazardous.

"Lung damage from intermittent or short-term exposure may be reversible, but frequent high-level exposure over a long period of time can result in a severe form of lung damage called fibrosis," Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said in a letter to other federal executives.

He is seeking comments from Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and the administrator of the Environment and Protection Agency, Douglas M. Costle, in an effort to present to Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance a uniform opinion that the United States cease supplying paraquat to the Mexican government.

Under the terms of the International Securities Assistance Act of 1976, Califano was ordered to have a studies performed and report the results to Vance.

Califano said the Public Health Service studies had found widely varying levels of paraquat in marijuana supplies around the country, with the heaviest concentration in that available in the southwestern states.

A new test for cancer

BOSTON (UPI) — A test has been developed capable of detecting "as few as one abnormal cell in 100," in the blood of cancer patients, it was reported Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The technique uses a device developed more than 10 years ago at Stanford University and could aid in the early diagnosis and treatment of soft tissue cancers like the lymphomas, said Dr. Kenneth A. Ault, who developed the test.

In research at Boston's Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Ault "tagged" cells with a fluorescent molecule that attaches to the surface of cells. They are passed through a laser beam in a cytofluorometer, measuring the amount of light they reflect.

"The machine can detect about 10 cells in 100," he said in an interview. "In some patients we may be able to detect as few as one abnormal cell in 100."

The cell he studied is called a B lymphocyte, the type of cell accounting for 80 to 90 percent of all lymphomas. The cells proliferate rapidly in the blood stream, spleen and lymph nodes, he said.

campaign to hunt down the monarch, since a secret tribunal condemned the shah and his wife, his brother, Gholam Reza, and her mother, Fairideh Diba, for treason.

Khalkhali, who disclosed the $131,000 reward Thursday in a series of newspaper interviews, also said the shah's children were exempt from any of the revolutionary court's decrees against the Pahlavi family because they were not involved in any of the pre-revolution killings blamed on the shah.

As Khalkhali pressed the campaign against the shah, Iran's new justice minister, Ahmad Sadr Haj Syed Javadi, announced he hoped to obtain a general amnesty for thousands of former officials of the shah's government. Such an amnesty was announced a short time after the mid-February revolution, but never implemented.

Tomorrow The heavyweight political bout

Among the stories in tomorrow's Times-News:
• A good political fight at the presidential level is like a heavyweight championship bout, in the view of New York Times columnist Tom Wicker. He says the fight gets more headlines than it may deserve and promises more than it may deliver. And everyone seems to enjoy the spectacle, no matter how senseless. So it was this week when President Carter made his now-famous off-color remark about Ted Kennedy. Read it Saturday in the Times-News.

Catholic church sues federal government

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Catholic church Thursday sued the federal government for the first time in history, seeking to knock down a law they claim would force bishops to condone and finance abortions. The complaint seeks an immediate temporary restraining order against enforcement of the Pregnancy Discrimination Act, and rulings that the law violates the Constitution's First and Fifth Amendments.

Resistance increased Skylab fall expected sooner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Skylab's new position racing sideways through the tenuous upper fringes of Earth's atmosphere is expected to speed up its fall by four days to around July 12, the space agency reported Thursday.

The broadside style of orbital travel increases Skylab's resistance to the few air molecules at its 163 mile altitude, thus slowing the big station and hastening its descent into lower and lower orbits.

When the abandoned spaceship, weighing 78.5 tons, reaches an altitude of an estimated 80 miles, the air will be so thick Skylab will be unable to maintain the speed needed to keep it in orbit.

The North American Air Defense Command predicted the orientation Skylab maneuvered into Wednesday will cause it to re-enter the atmosphere between July 7 and July 17 with July 12 the most likely date. The previous estimate placed the fall around July 16.

Skylab will disintegrate when it hits the thicker portions of the atmosphere and the heat of air friction will burn up much of its aluminum structure.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration expects about 500 pieces capable of causing injury to survive and fall in a zone 4,000 miles long and 100 miles wide.

More than half of the pieces will weigh under 10 pounds, NASA said. Thirty-eight are expected to weigh more than 250 pounds of which 10 will be over 1,000 pounds and two 3,900 pounds or more. NASA said Skylab contains no radioactive material.

The heaviest piece expected to hit Earth is a lead-lined film vault the size of a refrigerator.

Carter's 'I'll whip his —' deliberate

By TOM WICKER
 O.N.Y. Times-News Service
 WASHINGTON — A good political fight at the presidential level — it gets more headlines than it deserves and promises more action than it may deliver. And everyone seems to enjoy the spectacle, no matter how senseless.

So it was this week when President Carter, apparently tired of being threatened by Sen. Edward Kennedy, remarked to some congressmen that if Ted Kennedy ran against him in the primaries, he'd whip what The New York Times daintily referred to as the senator's —. That is the kind of thing that took Muhammad Ali a long way, but it may not work as well for what some ringiders think is no more than a light-heavyweight from Georgia lightning over the weight.

The remark obviously was not spontaneous; Carter's church thinks it so unlike anything a good Baptist should say that there is talk about reprinting him. Moreover, those who heard it were not only permitted to tell the press but on the president's letter; a White House aide specifically urged them to leak. That made the episode seem rather more like a deliberately planned challenge than a bit of bravado.

No doubt Carter and his political strategists had two purposes in mind: to add to what appeared to be growing pressures on Kennedy to make his position clearer, and to reassure Carter supporters that their man is a tough competitor ready for a fight and confident of winning.

Kennedy took the challenge calmly enough — but in an interview with Adam Clymer of The Times remarked rather pointedly that "I'll were to run, which I don't intend to, I would hope to win." And he's steadfastly maintained his enigmatic position that he "expects" and "intends" to support Carter next year.

Name of this changed the basic reality that Kennedy rather than Carter now appears to be the popular favorite of the Democratic party. Polls accumulate to attest to that fact; draft Kennedy movements of varying strength can be spotted everywhere; all those disappointed by the Carter administration seem to be looking to Kennedy for salvation. And it seems more obvious every day that Carter, in Pat Moynihan's phrase, is "governing by the sufferance" of Kennedy; he is certainly leader of the Democratic party by that sufferance.

However unwisely, Kennedy seems resolved not to put himself further in or further out of the presidential race any time soon. Credible reports persist that he is either encouraging or not discouraging draft movements in the write-in campaign on his behalf in New Hampshire. The Washington Post reports, for example, that while recently campaigning in Iowa for Sen. John Culver, Kennedy did not snub but dealt cordially with leaders of that state's draft Kennedy movement.

Probably Kennedy hopes the growing potential of his candidacy will give him more leverage with the Carter administration on health care and other legislation. It keeps him in position to run, moreover, if Carter should withdraw, or decline further in the polls, or suffer disastrous primary losses to Jerry Brown of California. And the senator has genuine political differences with Carter. The fact remains that his seeming availability is splitting the party and damaging the administration.

In these circumstances, the president can hardly be blamed for trying to reassert himself; the question is whether a frontal challenge is the best tactic, since it will hardly "scare out" Kennedy and may only offend him.

In 1960, in somewhat similar circumstances, Vice President Richard M. Nixon felt his nomination by the Republican party was threatened by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, then a popular newcomer with a great name. The governor had taken sharp issue with Eisenhower administration defense policies that Nixon would have to defend in the coming campaign.

Nixon dealt boldly with that situation through the surprise "Fact of Fifth Avenue." He flew to New York and struck a bargain on defense policy with Rockefeller that angered Eisenhower but gained the effective support of Rockefeller and took him out of the race. And even those Nixon backers who did not like the bargain had to admire Nixon's adroit maneuver.

That suggests a likelier strategy for Jimmy Carter than threats to whip Ted Kennedy's —. What the president needs is not just Kennedy's acquiescence or even his discouragement of draft movements; Carter needs Kennedy's support, and the Democratic party needs a resolution of its threatened split. Seeking that support and that resolution is the kind of political leadership Carter most needs to display.

Sen. High's 1 percent comments debated

Editor, Times-News:
 In a recent article in the Times-News, Senator High said that a search for tax equalization is what really caused the 1 percent initiative to come about. It is interesting also, that Senator High now says the 1 percent law is going to be the cause of a bidness tax increase on residential homes and that farmers and business people will do well under the 1 percent law.

It is more interesting to remember that prior to voting on the initiative, Senator High said the 1 percent initiative would drive the farmers off of their land if it became law. But, most interesting of all is the comparison between High and our county assessor, Bill Clark. Clark recently filled the front page of the Times-News with remarks that the farmers would really be hurt by the 1 percent. Maybe Times-News could interview them together and then give the public a balanced opinion.

Perhaps Senator High should be reminded that the 1 percent law did not come through the back door, as is the case with most laws he is familiar with. The issue was publicized and debated more than any other before or since. And, the thousands of voters signing the petitions to place it on the ballot represented clearly the greatest voter response in the history of Idaho.

I want to correct Senator High on a basic fact. It was not a search for equalization of taxes that prompted us to put the 1 percent on the ballot. In fact, equalization was never mentioned in any of our meetings. We placed the issue before the voters for one reason, and only one. To reduce property taxes.

I hope that is not too difficult for Senator High and Bill Clark to fathom. It was not designed to reduce taxes for one group and raise them for another. The 1 percent law, which is the law of the voters of the State of Idaho, would not raise anyone's taxes.

The initiative clearly stated that Property in Idaho could not be taxed more than 1 percent of its market value. Even the term "market value" was defined very specifically to be the assessor's established market value for 1978. This term was a key part of the initiative, and if the legislators take that part out of the law, then and only then, could taxes go up. If you did take it out or do take it out then you should assume the responsibility of raising property taxes. Don't blame the 1 percent law for your meddling with the people's law.

Maybe, it will take a constitutional amendment with the next initiative to teach you and your comrades in the legislature that the voters do not like the heart cut out of their law in order for you to stay in good graces with the big tax spenders!

Positive Change offer declined

Editor, Times-News:
 I am writing in response to your Bill Barlow's letter of June 5, 1979. The goals and objectives of the Positive Change Committee to "elect men of unshakable convictions and strength... men who will tell the truth..." and "men who will reflect and vote the sound judgment of the people of Idaho" are commendable.

Seeking out the voting records, philosophy and performance of our elected officials is laudable. But, to then zero in on Senator Frank Church and in the next breath say that "Understand, we are not talking about a negative, anti-Church campaign" is deplorable and down right disgusting. Just who are you trying to kid?

Many of those select members of the Positive Change Committee are so far right that they would make Robert Welch, father of the John Birch Society, look like a left-winger.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to participate in "an exercise of citizen democracy" and to contribute to this "proud and freedom loving," "voter education" group. I must, however, decline the offer for I do have to face myself in the mirror each morning.

Mobile owners should support revised bill

Editor, Times-News:
 An open letter to the Mobile Home Owners of Idaho:
 In December, 1978, the Mobile Home Owners Association of Ada County was formed. The objective was the passage of a Landlord-Tenant Bill to legally define the rights and responsibilities of the Mobile Home Park Owners and the Mobile Home Owner. The bill was introduced in and passed the Senate, but died in the House as a result of the activities of one unscrupulous representative. A revised Landlord-Tenant Bill will be introduced in the 1980 Legislative Session, and statewide support will be of major importance. The western states of Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Montana have a law governing Mobile Home Landlord-Tenant relations and this law is needed in Idaho to prevent abuses by some park owners.

The name of the organization has been changed to Idaho Mobile Homeowners Incorporated, a statewide organization. The state will be divided into six districts, with two directors to be elected from each district to elect state officers and direct activities of the association.

With some 50,000 mobile homeowners in the State of Idaho a Landlord-Tenant Bill is overdue. Opposition from group investors, the Apartment Owners Association, Realtors Association and other groups who do not come out openly, is the reason your support is needed. Mobile Home living is in its infancy, with the high cost of conventionally built housing and high interest rates.

Dues of $2 per household will entitle the member to one vote in any general voting of the membership. With your help the passage of a bill is possible. For further information call 208-736-0376 or write to:

Vet defends Vietnam cause

Editor, Times-News:
 Of the recent article appearing in the Times-News concerning the Vietnam Memorial, I would like to add my comments. Having spent and fought 18 months in Vietnam, I, too, feel that I gave a big part of my life to that country, but my feelings are not that of frustration and bitterness, but rather a commitment of something I believed in, a commitment that I was there fighting for freedom, to deter communism, in any way possible. Yes, it was a dirty political war, a war where many young men gave their lives, where a few men became rich, while many suffered, but I truly think that most people believed we were involved for a cause, not because it was a mistake.

Our only problem was that we did not take our cause serious enough.

Airman misjudged his duty

Men in the armed services carrying Bibles is nothing new. But the airman at Mountain Home who was honorably discharged this week for reading his Bible while on sentry duty acted as if he were the first.

Air Force security policeman and born again Christian Steve Ristau in his new found zeal raised a ruckus and demanded martyrdom.

But instead of crucifixion by way of a court-martial all Ristau got from the Air Force was ordinary bureaucratic reaction.

It simply discharged him. Now Ristau can enter the seminary and become a minister. That should satisfy everybody.

The airman's officers upon discovering he was reading while on sentry duty tried to follow policy and ordered Ristau to stop. He resisted and refused to stop carrying his Bible on sentry duty.

He and some of his colleagues argued reading the Bible is different from other reading. They claimed a mystical exemption because of the subject matter and its benefits and they took it upon themselves to question the enforcement of policy.

Ristau said he would not have resisted if he had been reading Playboy.

Reading is reading.

If a sentry is any more alert to his surroundings while reading the Good Book than while reading a bad one, perhaps book publishers should be told.

Another argument has a familiar ring. Parents hear it regularly from their children. "Everybody reads on sentry duty," Ristau and his fellow airmen have said.

Apparently they have yet to learn a large organization (on earth anyway) is fallible. Ristau reacted to that fallibility as if it were the work of Satan. Somehow, he imagined he was being persecuted.

His imagination was probably fed by his favorite literature.

James Kilpatrick Golden Roamers arrive

© Universal Press Syndicate
 VANCOUVER, CANADA — An Alaskan cruise by way of the inland passage turns up some of the most beautiful scenery on the North American continent. This particular cruise has turned up something else as well — one of the happiest, warmest enterprises of recent discovery — the Golden Roamers of Washington State.

Twenty-two of the Roamers boarded the Princess Patricia when she sailed north from Vancouver. They got off at Skagway to continue by bus into the wilds of the Yukon. Fourteen other Roamers came aboard in their place for the ride back south toward Seattle. They ranged in age from 65 to 8. No teen-agers at a high-school picnic ever had more fun than these oldsters on their "Alaskan Adventure."

This particular enterprise is the loving labor of Jim Kretling of Seattle. He is a big, bulky guy in his late 40s — competent hands, a hundred-watt smile. He came up with the idea of chartering travel clubs restricted to persons over 55. Some months ago he brought the state of Washington, chiefly in Seattle and Spokane. Upward of 1,500 persons have signed up at annual dues of $15 for singles, $25 for couples.

At the moment, the Golden Roamers consists mostly of a small Seattle office, a middle-sized van, a large bus and the two hard-working fellows named Jim. Five local chapters are scattered about the state of Washington, chiefly in Seattle and Spokane. Upward of 1,500 persons have signed up at annual dues of $15 for singles, $25 for couples.

Over the past year, one or the other Jim has escorted a brood of oldsters to Reno for seven days at $115 all-inclusive; to Hawaii for 14 days at $1,200; or merely to Vancouver, Portland or the Longacre Raceways for the day. This autumn will see the Golden Roamers on a transcontinental look at fall foliage from New England to North Carolina. Another group will head for the British Isles.

Less ambitious members will roam to Portland for the Festival of Roses. Call them tours, excursions or adventures — these trips are the breath of life to old folks on the go.

The Roamers who signed up for Alaska were divided into two groups. Kretling, shepherded the larger group of 22 onto the Princess Patricia, kidded them along, played bridge with them, looked after their tickets and baggage. Meanwhile Jim Belov had gone ahead with his smaller group, driving the Roamers' bus over the Alcan. Highway. They traded places at Skagway.

Before Kretling talked him into joining the firm, Belov had been making a living, inconspicuously, as a professional gambler. He is still bemused at his sudden emergence as den mother to the geriatric set, but he loves it.

"Old people," he says, "are absolutely the greatest. They want to see everything. They don't want to miss anything. On one of our trips to Reno, a 92-year-old stayed up all night playing blackjack and shooting craps. In Alaska, wild horses could have kept them away from a car-can show. They took a two-hour boat trip down the Yukon — they're curious and they're knowledgeable and they're fun." Their elderly charges look upon the two Jims as a pair of favorite nephews. May Hilder, 88, of Spokane, recalled an incident on a muddy road somewhere out of Whitehorse. The Roamers' bus went into a dangerous slide down a hill and across a bridge, barely missing a big truck. "Jim Belov was just great," she said. Her eyes sparkled. "He got that bus under control, and we got out of there." She hadn't had so much fun in years.

Kretling's hope, after he gets more experience under his belt, is to franchise the Golden Roamer chapters in other states. His present operation is earning a small profit, but he has kept introductory prices unrealistically low. He and his sidekick are working too constantly to permit sufficient planning and management. This is a small business that may make it, or may go under. It's hard to say.

But the market is there. A recent report from the National Committee on Careers for Older Americans puts the number of Americans over 55 at 46 million — about 20 percent of our total population. Such a potential-for-roamin' in the goamin' could keep a fleet of steamships sailing and a host of buses rolling. On to the golden years! The best, as they say, is yet to come.

Job sharing, a small but growing phenomenon in the private employment sector, has gained a foothold in the political world as well — at least in the state of Washington, where the House membership this year was evenly divided (49-49) between Democrats and Republicans.

To avert the paralysis that could have resulted from this partisan deadlock, the Washington House simply appointed one Democrat and one Republican each to the offices of speaker, floor leader, chief clerk, sergeant-at-arms and committee chairmanships.

Amazingly enough, the job-sharing worked relatively smoothly throughout the legislative session. The two speakers, luckily indeed, were close personal friends and managed to cooperate nicely in the top leadership post.

Committee co-chairmen and other forcibly paired leaders learned to work together amicably, and political bickering was greatly reduced. Republicans and Democrats alike pronounced the experiment a success.

The Minnesota House, the only other legislature in the nation with a similar partisan deadlock (67-67), didn't attempt the job-sharing approach used in Washington but instead tried to parcel out leadership posts and committee majorities more or less equitably between the two parties.

House approves legislation for Panama Canal transfer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Thursday passed legislation implementing and funding the transfer of the Panama Canal to the government of Panama by the year 2000, handing President Carter a foreign policy victory that almost escaped him.

The final vote was 224-202.

After flirting for weeks with the idea of either forcing Panama to pay the entire cost of implementing the treaty or killing the bill entirely — both options would have left the situation in confusion — the House turned back all negative amendments of any substance and passed the bill.

It now goes to the Senate, which ratified the treaty last year and which is expected to easily pass an implementation bill.

Debate on the final day of consideration — was dominated by charges that the Panama government is one of the most repressive in the world.

"Panama has one of the worst human rights records in the world," said Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md.

Proponents agreed Panama was far from a democracy, but said the United States could not impose its form of government on another country, and that the transfer of the canal was a different issue.

"This is really an outrageous intrusion into the affairs of a sovereign state," argued Rep. David Bowen, D-Miss.

The treaty was produced by years of negotiations and survived weeks of Senate debate before its ratification.

NIKOLA KAVAJA
... faces extradition

Serbian hijacker gives up

By ALISON SMALE SHANNON, Ireland (UPI) — A Serbian hijacker armed with explosives who hijacked one jet from Chicago to New York and another across the Atlantic surrendered Thursday to Irish authorities, ending a 23-hour, two-continent ordeal.

The abrupt surrender by the hijacker, who was described as "a man willing to die for his cause," came as a surprise to the air crew that ferried him to Ireland. He faced extradition to the United States, where he faces sentencing on a conviction of conspiracy to murder.

Two U.S. Air Force F106 jets shadowed the American Airlines 707 as it crossed the Atlantic under command of the hijacker, but they made no move to intercept the captive plane.

Minutes after the jet landed at Shannon, the hijacker, Nikola Kavaja, descended a ramp and announced, "I am going to surrender." The 45-year-old Paterson, N.J., man gave himself up to Irish Police Superintendent John Duddy.

Kavaja turned over the package he had kept clutched to his chest for almost 23 hours. Experts said it contained explosives.

Kavaja's meek capitulation ended a 3,400-mile voyage of air piracy that began at 12:28 a.m. EDT Wednesday on an American Airlines 727 jetliner carrying 137 people from New York to Chicago's O'Hare Airport when he threatened to detonate the explosives he was carrying.

After his surrender, Irish police spokesman Thomas Kelly said the package contained "a dangerous object which is capable of exploding and doing damage."

Kavaja had been scheduled to be sentenced in Chicago Thursday along with five other Serbian nationalists for conspiracy to murder diplomats from Yugoslavia, whose president Josip Broz Tito is a target of hatred among Serbian partisans.

Kavaja freed the passengers in Chicago, then ordered the plane to New York, where he transferred to along-range American Boeing 707 and said he wanted to go to South Africa. But at the last minute, he changed his destination to Ireland. With his lawyer, Deyan Ranko Brashich who boarded the plane in Chicago, and a flight crew of three volunteers, Kavaja streaked across the Atlantic to Shannon.

The plane landed at 2:50 p.m. (9:50 a.m. EDT), and Kavaja told the control tower over the plane's radio, "I'll just show myself."

But as he walked down the aircraft steps accompanied by attorney Brashich, he said, "I am going to surrender."

Referendum for Quebec next spring

QUEBEC (UPI) — The people of Quebec, the largest of Canada's 10 provinces, will be asked in a referendum next spring whether they want separate status from the rest of Canada, Premier Rene Levesque said Thursday.

The leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois said the wording of the question to be posed in the mainly French-speaking province would be announced before Christmas and the long-awaited referendum held in 1980, "probably after Easter."

"In my opinion, autumn will serve as a period of reflection on the future of Quebec and its relations with Canada," Levesque said. "We envisage a great referendum debate that will bring Quebec to announce freely, for the first time in our history, the national direction that we want."

"The government hopes that this decision will be taken under the best possible conditions, without scrambling and without too much slowness."

The 56-year-old controversial premier announced the timing of the referendum in the Quebec legislature.

Committee OKs synthetic subsidy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the face of growing anger over gasoline shortages, the House Rules Committee Thursday approved a $2 billion subsidy of synthetic fuels and said unlimited amendments can be offered on the House floor.

The action opens the way for a full-fledged debate on how far the government should go in subsidizing high-priced alternatives to foreign oil.

What's what

Mexico City's policemen pick up needed money by pawning their guns despite heavy penalty

Sir, where did you first meet the lady who was to become your wife? Our Love and War man has some statistics on that, too: About 44 percent of the couples met at work, 11 percent at the homes of friends and 18 percent at restaurants. No breakdown is at hand as to exactly how many proposals were made where. It is known, though, that most of these highly significant queries were put forth in cars.

Policemen in Mexico City can be fined the equivalent of $1,000 for not carrying a gun. Odd bit. At least 75 percent of the city's policemen have pawned, sold or allegedly lost their guns. A quick way for them to get small cash, that.

Thirteen percent of the women over the age of 18 are widows.

CACTUS

Am asked the whereabouts of the biggest grower of cactus in North America. No, he doesn't operate in the southwestern deserts of the United States, or you might guess. The distinction is said to belong to Ben-Veldinus of Dundas, Ontario, Canada. He grows 3,000,000 a year in 14 greenhouses and ships them all over.

How well you hear evidently has something to do with your personality type. Or so the researchers now report. In studies at the University of London, they found that outgoing gregarious folk—so-called extroverts—don't hear as well generally as do the quiet loners—the introverts.

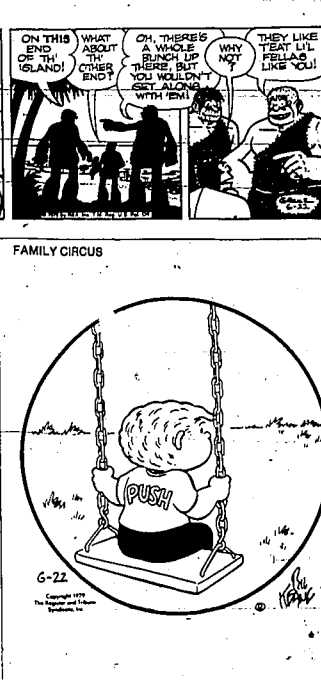

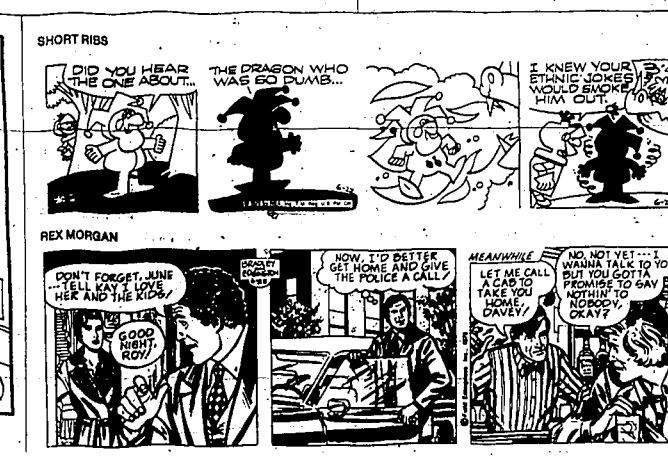

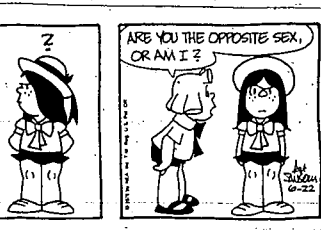

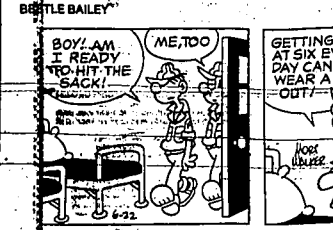

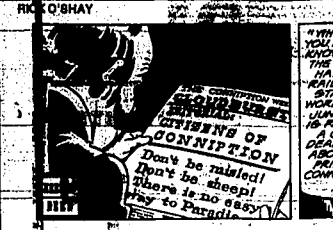

If you describe that dog as man's best friend, please note: A psychiatric study indicates far more women than men develop deep emotional ties to their pet dogs.

MARSHAL MARSHALL

What was needed by the U. S. Army during World War II was a rank comparable to field marshal. But the man designated for that rank was Gen. George C. Marshall. He said emphatically he would not be addressed as Marshal Marshall. So the field marshal rank was not used. And the Army got its first five-star general.

Trade payment figures boost stocks toward modest gains

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, buoyed at the outset by trade payment figures, held on Thursday to register a modest gain as investors worried about economic uncertainties.

Trading was active.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up nearly 6 points at midday, managed to gain 3.61 points to 843.64. The closely watched indicator edged up 0.43 point Wednesday after finishing unchanged the day before.

The New York Stock Exchange index climbed 0.28 to 57.91 and the price of a share added 14 cents. Advances topped declines, 872 to 570, among the 1,869 issues traded by 4 p.m. EDT.

A rally was sparked by the government's report that the United States had a $157 million balance of payments surplus in the first quarter, the first black ink registered since 1976.

But, late in the session, the government said May durable goods orders rose 2.3 percent following an 8.2 percent plunge in April. Non-defense capital goods orders, a key barometer of future economic activity, rose a slim 0.7 percent after falling 12.8 percent the month before.

The reports tended to indicate the economy has slowed, but just how much has stirred debate. The figures don't seem to indicate a recession but led to hopes that interest rates would continue to ease.

After the NYSE closed, the Federal Reserve reported the nation's basic money supply declined $2.6 billion in the latest week, a substantial improvement from the $6.9 billion surge the week before.

Some observers said the market has been churning while investors wait to see what the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries does at its June 26 meeting in Geneva.

Crown Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia said in an interview in Thursday's New York Times that his government has no plans to increase oil production, indicating the next round of OPEC price hikes will be substantial and kick up inflation around the world.

Big Board volume totaled 37,100,000 shares, compared with 33,790,000 traded Wednesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 39,176,280 shares, compared with 35,539,080 Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 2.26 to an all-time high of 199.83 and the price of a share jumped 18 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ OTC index gained 0.26 to a record 136.71.

Caesar's World was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 1 1/4 to 3 3/4 following an opening block of 200,000 shares at 34 1/2. The New Jersey Casino Control Commission, with numerous conditions attached, has granted Caesar's World a certificate to operate an Atlantic City gambling casino beginning next Tuesday.

Grains score strong gains

CHICAGO — Grain futures advanced strongly again Thursday.

Commodity News Service said wheat closed 17 to 18 cents higher on reports of sizeable sales of corn to Russia and wheat to Mexico. Corn rallied on the close on short covering, settling 6 1/4 to 9 1/4 cents higher.

Live cattle gained 45 to 92 points in a light, lackluster trade, with deferreds up as much as 145 points. Pork bellies skidded to close 90 to 5 points down after an early wave of buying concentrated in July.

New York Sugar 11 closed 1 to 9 points down save for spot July and January which were 7 and 5 points higher, respectively.

New York Comex silver closed 400 to 450 points higher but off highs after hectic profit taking and position squaring. International Monetary Market gold ended 110 to 300 points higher in an uncertain market.

Addison Avenue opening for traffic

TWIN FALLS — Addison Avenue between the West and North Five Points intersections will open for traffic today for the first time since March.

Bill Merritt, engineer for the Department of Transportation, Division of Highways, in Twin Falls, said barricades will be removed and traffic can return to normal between the two intersections.

"We want motorists to know they will still encounter some equipment and workers at West Five Points as the work on that intersection and Washington Street will not be completed until about July 15," Merritt said.

He said striping and other final touches on the $1.4-million improvement project were completed Thursday afternoon. It will be midmorning, he said, before all of the barricades and closed signs are removed but traffic will then be able to use the new four-lane roadway fully.

He said the highway department is glad to be able to announce completion of the project and appreciates the patience of residents and motorists during the past four months.

Not all residents have been patiently waiting for completion of the construction which included widening from two to four lanes and reconstruction of the entire street.

Homeowners complain the torn-up street and heavy equipment have created constant dust and noise problems and many have had difficulty getting in and out of their property. Motel owners, service station operators and other business owners and managers say they have already lost a lot of business.

Most agreed the improvement was much needed and they knew there were going to be some slow weeks during construction, but they want some of the summer season business that is now beginning to peak.

Several motels on Addison Avenue West report a definite decline in business this year over the same time last year. One operator said the tourists just can't get to his motel from the east and a lot of good customers, who stop about once a month or maybe just annually are not showing up this year.

Don Pleper's Service Station estimates business is down about 30 percent. The station is located in the first block west of the five-points intersection and most motorists want to miss the intersection so they leave Addison Avenue at Martin Street and go on Heyburn Avenue, Filer Avenue or even Falls Avenue. The station manager said the project is an important one and will help business in the long run but he hopes the contractor will be able to complete work by mid July so business as usual can resume.

Edith Schmidt, owner of The Dunes Motel, said her motel isn't getting any business from the Interstate or other eastern directions. She said she spent money earlier in the year making improvements and needs a few good months of tourist business to help cover the costs.

Ewil Garrett of the Apollo Inn estimates his business has declined about 10 percent. He said once Addison Avenue opens at Five Points North, tourists who are now getting lost will probably find their way to Addison Avenue West and business will improve.

Bill Merritt, Idaho Department of Transportation, Division of Highways engineer in Twin Falls, said although Addison Avenue between the two five points has been closed since work began, the Five Points West intersection has been open most of the time.

"When we have to close it for work during the day, we always open it again at night."

Throughout the construction period the contractor, Peter Kiewit and Sons, has been able to keep several present streets open for crossing Addison Avenue and there has been little difficulty for cross-town traffic.

Neilsen submits low bid

By RAY SULLIVAN

JEROME — Second effort appears to have saved the city of Jerome $50,000 and earned a Twin Falls company the chance to build Jerome's new sewage treatment plant.

In the second bid opening on the plant since April, the apparent low bid opened Thursday from Neilsen and Co. of $4,218,700 was some $40,000 under the bid of Valley Inland Pacific Constructors Inc. of Tualatin, Ore. VIP's bid this time was $4,258,540.

Mayor Marshall Everheart said the bids will be reviewed thoroughly and the bid awarded by July 4 or shortly thereafter.

Neilsen has until 8 p.m. tonight to submit a complete breakdown of its bid to the city or the second lowest bid will be chosen, pending city review.

Five bids were opened in April and revised by the city in May. On the advice of City Attorney Robert Williams, all bids were thrown out by the council after problems developed among the three lowest bidders. Three firms submitted bids Thursday.

The third came from Sletton Construction Co. of Great Falls, Mont., which finished third both times. Sletton's bid was $4,438,870.

Ironically, Neilsen this time bid about $30,000 less than April's apparent low bidder, VIP.

The three bids were well below project engineer CH2M Hill's estimated construction price of $4,711,000.

That surprised some city officials who had feared a rebid would mean the engineer's estimate would be exceeded the second time around.

Williams advised the first round of bids be rejected for two reasons:

- VIP refused to accept the city's condition that it revise its trench rock excavation price of $50 a cubic yard.
- Neilsen and Sletton both indicated they would take court action to stop the city from awarding a revised bid to VIP for $4,281,040.

Thursday, Neilsen's bid included a figure of $76 a cubic yard for trench rock removal, VIP, $58 a cubic yard, and Sletton, $65.

There's a new weatherman to blame

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

KIMBERLY — There's a saying in southern Idaho, "If you don't like the weather, wait a minute," but some residents prefer to take their frustrations out on the area's only weather man.

William "Bill" Galkin is now the official in charge of the U.S. Weather Service in Kimberly. He has no boss and no employees. Galkin took over the operation as a one-man weather service office when Maurice Faubion retired recently.

Galkin says he doesn't have any more control over the weather than anyone, but he gets the blame if it rains on someone's newly cut hay or if there is too much sunshine. Everyone has his own preference about weather. When it snows in the winter, Galkin is a hero to the skiers, but a villain to the motorists and outdoor workers.

"Galkin doesn't mind. It is all part of his job as a 'weatherman.'"

As the official in charge at Kimberly, Galkin does everything involving collecting and issuing weather information. His day starts at 7 a.m. and he tries to close the office at 3 p.m., but seldom gets everything buttoned up in time.

He makes two weather observations a day in Kimberly. The information is then fed to Boise, the official forecast office for Idaho. The forecasts for Magic Valley and Camas Prairie are tailored to the specific needs of the area which are largely agricultural.

Previously the Kimberly Weather Service was an agricultural advisory meteorology station to provide agricultural weather information. Since a cut in budget, Faubion's position in that capacity has not been filled.

"We still slant our reports and our public relations work to agricultural interests because that is the prime interest in this area," Galkin says.

A recording that provides a continuous telephone forecast is updated three times a day and Galkin spends time each day with radio, newspaper and television personnel who provide public weather information.

"We are starting a new weather service in Magic Valley," Galkin says. "The new service will give continuous and updated information on a radio frequency of 162.400 for civil defense or national emergency use."

The reports will be updated by the Boise office and will be available only on special radio equipment with dials extending to 162.400.

Galkin didn't set out to be a weatherman. In fact, except for a turn of events after he joined the U.S. Navy, he might have been a veterinarian or a cabinet maker.

Prior to his four years with the Navy, he obtained an associate arts degree in animal husbandry. Since there wasn't much opportunity in the Navy to further these studies and very little demand on the high seas for veterinarians, he switched to weather.

While in the service he completed two special weather training courses. Also, he has a degree in mathematics from the California State Polytechnical University at Pomona, and one year of meteorology from San Jose State College in California.

He began his weather service career in 1959 after leaving the Navy. His first assignment was on a mountain top in California. After that he went to the South Pole where he worked 75 feet below the surface and collected atmospheric information.

Galkin says he has seen more of the world in the Weather Service than with the Navy.

After leaving the South Pole, Galkin was married and took his wife to Alaska for a honeymoon. They stayed and operated a man-wife weather station at McGrath in central Alaska.

"I taught my wife to be a weather technologist and we operated the station for two years," he says.

The Galkins then returned to California where he worked for the Pacific Weather Patrol—and his weather travels included Japan and Vietnam.

Galkin came to Kimberly from Boise because he felt it would be an opportunity to use his agricultural training.

Idaho Power files lawsuit

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power Co. has filed a complaint against a group of property owners living in California in an effort to obtain right of way for a power line from the Hunt substation to the Nevada state line.

All of the defendants in the suit are residents of California but own land between Eden and Jackpot.

The power company officials note approval of the transmission line has been received from the Public Utilities Commission in Idaho and efforts have been made to purchase needed right of way from the land owners but they have refused to sell.

The company seeks condemnation of a strip of land 70 feet wide across the properties. Owners named in the suit include Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Kueny, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McFarlane, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Taylor, Theodore Taylor and Patricia Broadman.

Idaho Power Co. asks the court to determine a suitable value of the right of way to be paid to the property owners.

The transmission line is proposed between the Hunt Station and the Sierra Pacific Power Co. lines near Jackpot. It is for the purpose of wheeling power and exchanging power between the two companies.

Man killed in crash

JACKPOT, Nev. — A California man was killed early Thursday in a single-car accident south of here, Nevada state troopers reported.

Officers said Clint Harless, 31, of Vallejo, Calif., was killed when the car in which he was riding went out of control 10 miles south of Jackpot and rolled over several times.

The accident occurred at 8:45 a.m. Thursday on U. S. Highway 93. The driver was taken to Elko for treatment of injuries.

Trailer falls

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Rex Goley told police someone entered her travel trailer while it was parked at Gateway Travel services and took $225 worth of bedding.

She said workers apparently left the door unlocked and burglars entered it sometime prior to Wednesday and removed a cushion which forms a bed in the trailer and three patchwork quilts. Police are investigating.

Cub scout outing

TWIN FALLS — Approximately 400 cub scouts from throughout Twin Falls County will gather at Dierkes Lake park today and Saturday for "Super-cub" Days.

Co-directors Ramon and Judy Searle said the two days of contests, games and instruction give the young scouts a taste of the excitement of camping.

Also scheduled for the noon hour today, is an "egg drop," in which raw eggs packed by scouts in small containers will be dropped from an airplane or helicopter from about 600 feet to the ground to see if any remain unbroken.

Farm accident

HEYBURN — A 14-year-old Heyburn boy was listed in stable condition late Thursday after suffering injuries in a farm accident about 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Ronald Leroy Gransbury, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gransbury of Heyburn was dragged 150 feet beneath a sugar beet packer.

Deputy Sheriff Earl Aston of Minidoka County said the boy was operating the tractor pulling the packer, which is used to break up ground around the sugar beets. He fell from the tractor, apparently when it hit a rough spot in the field, Aston said. He was pinned under the steel packer equipment and dragged and pinned to the ground until the tractor piled up enough dirt to force it to stop.

Another worker, Richard Jolley, who was operating equipment on the same farm, found the boy pinned under the equipment. Deputy Aston said it was necessary to call the Minidoka County Search and Rescue team with extrication equipment and to get the packer from the tractor to free the boy.

He estimated the youth was pinned under the equipment about two hours before rescue was completed. Aston said a doctor came to the scene to administer medical assistance while the rescue squad worked. Aston said the accident occurred on the Lonnie Easton farm near Paul.

The youth's lower body was under the equipment and he suffered a fractured leg and pelvis and possible internal injuries.

He was taken to the Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley.

Stop signs out

TWIN FALLS — The stop signs on Maurice Street at Ninth Avenue East were eliminated Thursday, the city engineer announced.

The stop signs on Ninth Avenue East at the intersection will remain in place.

The stop signs on Maurice were eliminated because traffic volume showed there was no need for a four-way stop.

Bordewick dies at 81 in Boise

TWIN FALLS — Emil Bordewick, 81, former co-owner of the Times-News and a long time Buhl resident, died Tuesday in Boise following an extended illness.

He had been in the newspaper business approximately 30 years, as co-owner and co-publisher of the Times-News from the 1930's until 1960 when the paper was sold.

Bordewick was born at Hartley, Iowa, and lived in Vinton, Iowa, before coming to Twin Falls County to manage farms owned by Vinton interests. In addition to his interest in the newspaper, he maintained ranching interests throughout most of his life.

He was a member of the Twin Falls Kiwanis club and of local golf associations.

He married Liza Arrington of Boise at Elko, Nev. Dec. 25, 1967, and moved to Boise at that time, but continued to own a home in Buhl for a number of years.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Helen Jean Bordewick of New York City, a brother, Ralph Bordewick of Buhl, and a brother and sister in Vinton, Iowa. Funeral services and burial will be in Vinton today.

Mercantile exchange head defends new spud contract

BOISE (UPI) — The president of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange said Thursday the exchange did not launch a new potato futures trading contract for its own benefit but because of its importance to American agriculture.

Al Johnson, vice president in charge of legislation for the growers, said the group had never favored futures trading.

The major cause of disapproval of the contracts was the effect of futures trading on Idaho's price and quality level as compared to that of other states.

Clayton Yeutter told Idaho Potato Growers "whether you trade potatoes is not as important to us (Chicago Mercantile Exchange), but it is to you and to U.S. agriculture."

"It (futures trading) depletes Idaho's image and price advantage in the market," Johnson said.

Yeutter agreed that futures trading would be disadvantageous to the Idaho potato grower.

NBA approves three-point field goal

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (UPI) — The National Basketball Association's Board of Governors Thursday voted for experimental use of the three-point field goal and dropped use of a third official.

Under the new field goal rule, similar to that used by the old American Basketball Association, shots made from beyond 22 to 24 feet will be awarded three instead of two points.

The three-point play decision, made by representatives from each of the 22 NBA teams, passed by a narrow margin. It will expire at the end of next season.

"There was a very close vote," said NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien. "The basic thrust was the traditionalists debating those who have experienced the three-point play. I would term it a lively debate."

Although coaches and general managers overwhelmingly favored the use of a third official by a vote, the owners struck down a proposal for its continuation.

"The board said the advisory committee did not in their view think there was satisfactory evidence there was a plus factor to show its success," O'Brien said. "The owners felt more comfortable with two officials."

The NBA employed 38 referees last season and expects to hire only 25 or 27 this season, NBA supervisor of officials Norm Drecker said. The extra officials cost an estimated $500,000 to $1 million, he said.

"Frankly, it was felt by the board that improvement in refereeing, if any, did not justify the expense," said Joe Axelman, general manager of the Kansas City Kings and chairman of the NBA competition and rules committee.

The board also approved the sale of the Houston Rockets to Albuquerque, N.M., businessman George Maloof. A decision on the transfer of Los Angeles Lakers ownership to Jerry Buss was delayed to gather more information. Meanwhile, the governors approved a rule forcing teams to get the ball from out of bounds after a basket into the front court in 10 seconds, even if it is hit out of bounds by a defender. The clock will not be reset.

A proposal to legalize zone defense was vetoed by the rules committee.

And a resolution was adopted making all fines issued by the commissioner payable directly by the player with no reimbursement from the franchise.

O'Brien said the board will review the television committee report Friday.

Leads Canadian Open

Disqualified last year, Nelson's back

OAKVILLE, Ontario (UPI) — Jack Newton returned to the scene of his biggest disaster Thursday when he ripped through the opening round of the $50,000 Canadian Open with a 7-under-par 64 to take a two-stroke lead over tournament favorite Tom Watson.

Newton, disqualified from the second round last year because his caddy stood in his putting line to help him with his stroke, broke the course record of 67, held by nine others.

"It is something I want to forget," the 29-year-old native of Sydney, Australia, said of last year's mishap.

Jeff Thomsen of Twin Falls carded a 74 in the opening round of the Canadian Open Thursday. He posted a score of 32-36 and currently is 10 strokes off the pace. It is Thomsen's first appearance in a PGA tour event.

"I came in here determined not to let it happen again and make amends for last year," Newton said.

"I played out of my socks," Newton said after his halves of 32-32 over the 7,000-yard par-71 course. "I was unlucky not to have shot better."

Newton, winner of the 1978 Buick Open, started the day with a bogey on the first hole, then got his game rolling in search of the $53,000 first place purse.

He birdied the fourth and then eagled the fifth, sinking a 25-footer. He eagled again on the 13th after reaching the green in two, then birdied the next two holes.

After he bogeyed the 16th hole, Newton came on strong at the 18th, carding an eight-footer.

Watson, who defeated Newton in a playoff to win the 1976 British Open, needed just 25 putts to record a 5-under-par 66 and stand alone in second place.

Johnny Miller, who is without a tournament win since 1976, finished in a three-way tie for third place with a 4-under 67.

Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, and Lee Trevino who recovered his putting stroke to sink a 30-footer and a 15-footer also shot 67s.

Watson, the leading PGA money winner, promptly announced his game is back in the groove after falling to make the cut at the U.S. Open last week.

"I'm happy with the way I scored. I think I'm playing well enough to win," said the 29-year-old Missouri native.

"I putted very well today, and that's the reason I scored," said Watson, who sank eight birdies and had no bogeys.

Watson started on the back nine. He exchanged wholes for par on the 14th and 18th, then put together a string of four birdies for a 32 coming home.

On the front nine he birdied three holes (Nos. 3, 5, 6) to move within one stroke of Newton approaching the ninth tee. But on the ninth, he drove past the green, then chipped back short for a bogey.

Zoeller entered the club house shaking his head, after his four-under round moved him only as far as third place.

"Tom Watson, what can you say about the guy. I really feel sorry for him. What's he made only about $300,000 this year? You just go out playing for second and hope for the best."

CSI still contends for rodeo crown

LAKE CHARLES, La. — It is possible that the College of Southern Idaho could have more cowboys in the finals than any other school competing in the national intercollegiate rodeo championships.

"If everything goes the way we would like it to, we have a good chance of placing eight people in the finals and finishing quite high in the rodeo," said Shawn Davis, CSI rodeo coach.

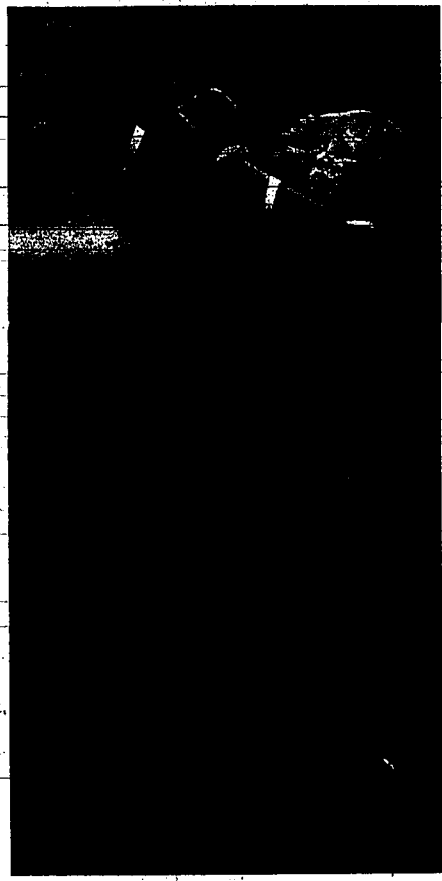

"Tomorrow (today) is the last go-round, and total points on two head will determine who makes the finals," he said. "We will either come through real big or go completely out."

Southeastern Oklahoma still leads the men's team standings with CSI nowhere near the top. But Davis said several of his riders still need to complete their second rides.

Doyle Parker will go into the finals of the calf roping ranked either sixth or seventh, Davis said. And Monte Webb turned in a 3.72 in the steer wrestling to grab the early lead.

Delwin Amy has a total of 128 on two heads in bareback riding to rank fifth entering the finals, and Parker is still ranked third in the bull riding.

Who's got it?

Things did not go well for the Valley softball team Thursday in its game with Hunter's Auto Town and RV Center. Shortstop Tammy Andrus (left) and rover Shanna Turner collide here while the ball falls safely to the ground, one of the many plays that led to Hunter's run for Hunter's Auto Town. After four innings, Hunter's held a 2-3 lead. International League play is held every Tuesday and Thursday at Harmon Park.

Search for Minico coach

RUPERT — The obvious point in the basketball coaching job at Minico High School is that it will be filled from within.

And there are urgent reasons for that: "And all the reasons are dollars."

When Billy Gonzalez resigned to return to his home turf in West Virginia, it actually saved the baseball program at Minico. To make sure baseball stays "saved," the new baseball coach must be one already in the system.

This means that Billy Gonzalez the teacher won't be replaced. That is where the savings is found. However, Gonzalez isn't the only teacher that won't be replaced this fall at Minico. Some 22 teaching positions won't be filled and that converts into more children per classroom.

Baseball Coach Rick Baumann heatedly denies that the initial announcement that baseball would be abandoned was a ploy designed to stir up the populace and then return the sport into favor once the water had been tested.

"It was gone," Baumann flatly states.

Baseball has become the second favorite sport at Minico — nothing will replace that area's love for basketball unless we miss our guess badly. The school, with, we understand, some private individuals personally co-signing the note, had just installed fencing around the Spartan field at a pretty good cost.

But with the financial crunch on, the only way baseball and some other programs in the school district could be continued was through belt tightening in some other spot.

On the basis that these programs were worth trying to continue, the board went to the "in-system" idea of hiring. It directed that letters inviting applications be sent to all coaches in the district. Not all, to be sure, are interested.

But two who have applied are assistants Rick Baumann and Craig Dexter.

The situation with Baumann is a rough one in that the Minico board has a policy under which no one person can be head coach of two sports. Asked about that, Baumann said "I don't know what their stand will be on that."

Making the matter more complicated is the fact that when Baumann applied for the job, he technically wasn't baseball coach because there was no baseball program. Taking it a step further, it would seem that some assurances would have to be made concerning the baseball program should Baumann indeed continue with his basketball application.

If he would give up on his pursuit of basketball and then in another year see the baseball program abandoned, it would be a bit of a sticky wicket. The thing that one must always remember is that the 1 percent will not be in effect during the approaching school year. If it doesn't produce the dire consequences some administrators are predicting, there is no problem. But if it does, then other things must surely be trimmed for the following year.

Baumann says that the matter of choosing would be difficult. On the one hand he enjoys coaching baseball and believes that program is on a solid footing that will continue to produce winners for a long while.

On the other hand "it's a class A-1 (basketball) job and there aren't many of those available." There again he can refer to the known history of Minico where basketball is king and each and every boy in the entire county puts in more time trying to become a Minico basketball star than any other thing.

One thing that all the applicants currently are wondering about is the matter of an assistant coach. There is the possibility that the budget might not stretch to the point of providing more than a sophomore and a varsity coach.

In such a situation, one of two things must happen. Either the junior varsity team (comprised of basically juniors) must be trimmed or the coaching of the JV team would have to be undertaken by one of the basketball coaches or shared by those two.

With the exception of Capital, Minico has put more reliance on a junior team than any other SIC school. It schedules 20 games for the juniors, the same number as the varsity plays. Minico also has put some of its brighter juniors on that team with the hope that the extra on-court experience will help them more than playing second team on the varsity. That, of course, is a matter of opinion for individual coaches. But Minico has felt it pays off and it appears that at least some of the applicants for the head coaching job would like to see that program continued.

Without an assistant coach, it would be a difficult assignment.

Sparse crowd sees A's win

By United Press International
With all of 2,132 fans in the stands, the Oakland A's upset the Kansas City Royals 10-7 Thursday for only their second victory in 11 games.

Tony Armas, Wayne Gross and Dave Reardon each homered to power Oakland. Armas hit a two-run shot in the third inning off Royals' starter and loser Steve Busby, 2-5. Reverting led off the fifth with his fifth homer against Royal rookie Bill Paschall. Gross homered in the eighth for Oakland's final run.

Steve McCatty, 9-2, went 7-2-3 in his third outing and striking out two as the A's won only their second game in the last 11. McCatty was relieved by Bob Lacey in the eighth and Dave Heavler in the ninth.

Oakland, which trailed 3-0 after the top of the first inning, scored six times in the first three innings. In the first, Duane Murphy scored on a sacrifice fly by Reverting. In the second errors by Kansas City's Frank White and George Scott enabled the A's to take a 4-3 lead.

In other AL games it was New York 3, Toronto 1, Milwaukee 2, Minnesota 2, Boston 3, Detroit 2, Chicago 9, Seattle 3 and Texas at California in the lone National League contest.

was Los Angeles 6, Atlanta 4. Bobby Brown and Lou Piniella stroked run-scoring singles to spark New York over Toronto. The Yankees took advantage of two errors by Toronto left fielder Al Woods to score twice in the second off loser Dave Lemanczyk, 7-4.

Paul Molitor collected three hits and drove in the winning run in the seventh inning with a two-out bunt single to give Mike Caldwell and the Brewers a sweep of their three-game series with the Twins.

Fred Lynn's eighth-inning sacrifice fly scored Jerry Remy with the winning run and Dennis Eckersley pitched a seven-hit ball to lead Boston over Detroit. Eckersley, 8-3, pitched his sixth complete game, striking out seven, but threw 128 pitches.

Lamar Johnson capped Chicago's five-run first inning with a two-run homer, powering the White Sox over Seattle.

Steve Yeager cracked a three-run homer and Reggie Smith added a two-run shot to lift Los Angeles over Atlanta.

With Atlanta leading 1-0 on the strength of Gary Matthews' 16th homer—his 1,000th career hit—the Dodgers knocked out Braves' starter and loser Mickey Maher, 2-8, with a four-run outburst in the fourth.

Borg set to defend Wimbledon net title

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Bjorn Borg will have to beat both Jimmy Connors and John McEnroe to win Wimbledon for the fourth year in a row, and that is just the kind of challenge the Swede needs next Monday when the 33rd All-England Championships start.

New Zealander Anthony Wilding was the last man to win the men's title four consecutive times, but that was 66 years ago. The amateur players of that Edwardian era would find modern tennis a puzzle and this year's first prize of $40,000 simply incredible.

Not that Wimbledon is about money. It is now possibly the only tournament where the $81,000 of prize money is strictly secondary.

The title is everything. It still motivates Borg — even after his third-in-a-row triumph last year.

"I want to be known as one of the greatest," said the Swede in a rare, private moment recently. "I want people to say, 'He was one of the great players.' That is why I am more hungry for a fourth successive win. Then I can be sure."

"I still want other things. I want the U.S. Open title because I have never won it. But Wimbledon this year is my priority," Borg said.

The draw has not been kind to him, however. Although McEnroe, who beat him in the WCT finals last month in Dallas, is seeded No. 2 to meet him in the final, Connors, the third seed, lurks in his half of the draw and will be heading towards a probable semi-final clash.

It will be the ninth race of a 10-race card. El Jam failed to defend his inagural title this season with a seventh place finish, but he has since taken a first and a second in two other races. Overall is the only other horse in the field to have won a race this season. First post for the twi-light racing will be at 5 p.m.

Ozark may be out of job

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Phillies General Manager Paul Owens, noting "the handwriting is on the wall," has indicated that Manager Danny Ozark's job may be hanging on the team's series this weekend against the Montreal Expos. Owens, interviewed by local reporters Wednesday night in Atlanta before the Phillies' game against the Braves, hinted that an embarrassing series like the last one in Montreal, when the Phillies were shut out in three straight games by the Expos last month, could mean Ozark's job.

Lemon All-Star manager

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Lemon, who was replaced this week by Billy Martin as manager of the New York Yankees, will manage the American League All-Star team July 17 in Seattle, the league announced Thursday. Lemon, who replaced Martin last July and led the Yankees to their second consecutive world championship, was moved into the front office six months ahead of schedule when Martin returned Monday.

Three indicate they will play at CSI

TWIN FALLS — Three basketball prospects have indicated they will attend College of Southern Idaho next season. Coach Tom Weirich said Thursday the trio has "not signed anything but they've said they will come here." Tallest of the trio is 6-8 Larry Furlow of Newark, N.J., who originally had planned to attend University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Coach Weirich described Furlow as an active forward who can rebound well and provides good mobility at that spot — key to his game plan of the forwards filling player of the year after leading the Meridian Warriors to the state A-1 basketball championship this spring. The coach said recruiting continues and he is confident the Eagles will have a representative team. Like all coaches he wants the big guy in the middle. "If we get the one we're talking to, we'll be good there. We're also talking to three or four more quick forwards and hoping to get at least two of them," he said.

Joining Furlow here will be 6-0 guard Ricky Wilson from Chicago. "Ricky was a blue chipper coming out of Chicago two years ago and went to Henderson County, Tex., his first year. Due to a death in his family, he didn't attend school last year. He will be a sophomore with one year of eligibility here," the coach said. Best known in Twin Falls will be 6-3 Rick Cope, who was named the Southern Idaho Conference

Vegwert leads junior golf

BURLEY — Laurie Vegwert posted her second best score ever on Burley-muny Thursday, carding a 76 to take a six-stroke lead in the IGA Junior girls state golf championship. Vegwert, playing her home course, has a best of 73 here and her previous second best was a 77. Her 76 gave her a six-shot lead on Gayleen Johnson, also Burley. There are the only two girls entered in the 17-18 age division.

The tournament will conclude with a final 18 holes today.

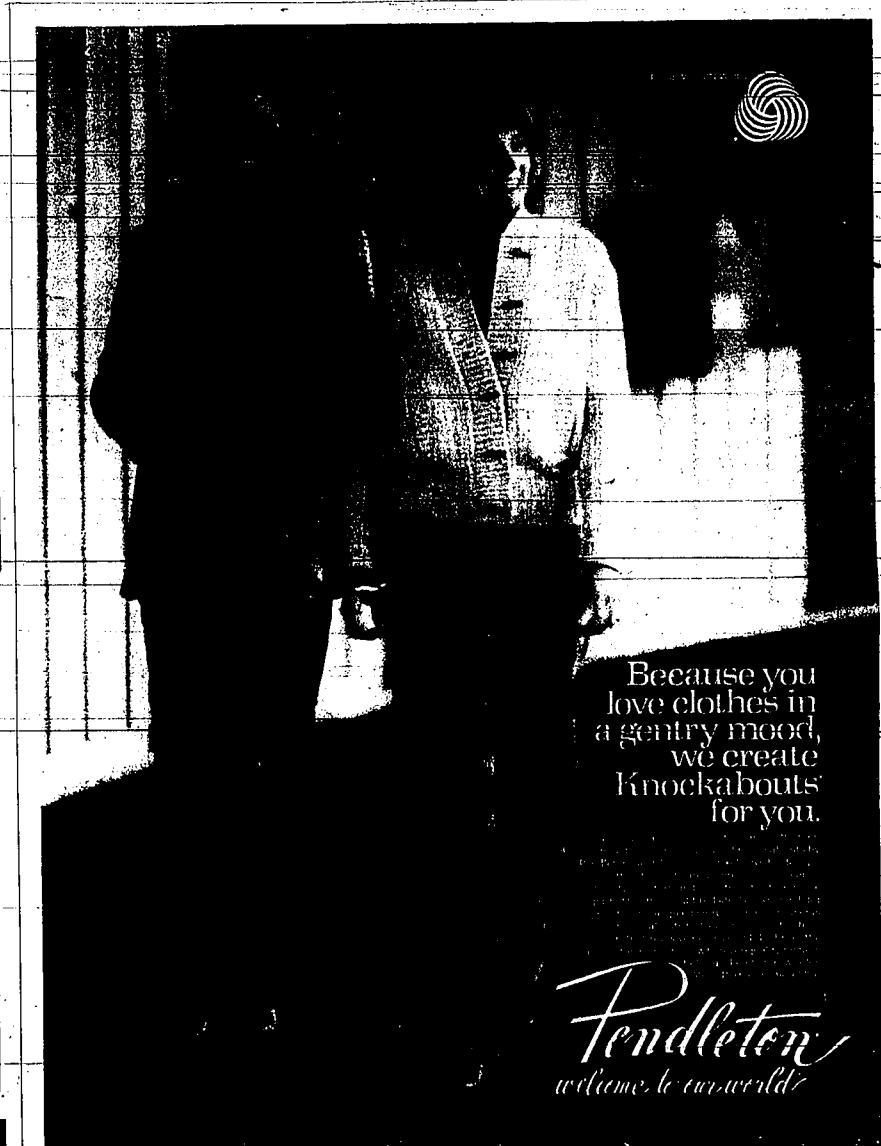

Leaders by age division include: 17-18 years — Laurie Vegwert, Burley, 76; Gayleen Johnson, Burley, 83. 15-16 years — Andrea Jackson, Boise, 84; Rose Schneider, Boise, 86; Chris Frost, Burley, 87; Carol Huff, Boise, 89; Judy Tilt, Emmett, 90; Veretta Griggs, Idaho Falls, 93; Peggy Tye, Boise, 94; Shawn Newcombe, Burley, 114. 13-14 years — Leslie Johnston, Idaho Falls, 97; Tia Liles, Boise, 97; Julie Lemelin, Twin Falls, 97; Laidella Stamba, Pocatello, 111; Tracy Land, Pocatello, 114; Sherry Jones, Boise, 118. 11-12 years — Rachelle Wall, Burley, 111; Teri Newcombe, Burley, 112; Nancy Olsen, Boise, 114; and under — Jennifer Hornell, Boise, 97 for nine holes.

Franklin reinstated by Delp

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jockey Ron Franklin, suspended by trainer Bud Delp following the 19-year-old's arrest in California on drug charges, was reinstated Thursday and will return to riding within the next few days.

Delp said Franklin, who rode spectacular bid to victories in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, was a "victim of circumstances" Monday in his arrest on charges of possessing cocaine in Anaheim, Calif. The trainer suspended Franklin indefinitely Wednesday after learning of the arrest but changed his mind after speaking with the 19-year-old.

"As far as I'm concerned, Ronnie can ride today," Delp said. "The decision is his."

Franklin could have ridden two of Delp's horses at Pimlico Thursday, but decided not to. He is expected to resume riding Friday or Saturday.

The 19-year-old Dundalk, Md., youth, who rides almost exclusively for Delp, was arrested in the parking lot of Disneyland after a guard saw him "cutting up a white substance with a razor blade." He was released on $1,500 bond, but must appear in court June 28 for a preliminary hearing.

Delp said he will attend the hearing and speak in Franklin's behalf. Franklin could receive a year in prison if convicted.

"I am behind him all the way. I'm not saying Ronnie was right in what he did, but I think who he is had a lot to do with it," Delp said. "I heard his story and I believe him. He's a 19-year-old boy and he's susceptible to temptations."

— Franklin was on the West Coast to ride in the All-Star Jockey Classic at Hollywood Park, in which he finished 10th. After the race, he stayed over to visit relatives, and played with his brother, his cousin and a family friend to Disneyland.

The group stopped to buy some beer before they reached the park, Franklin said, but they hid it when a security guard saw them.

According to Franklin, someone in the car handed him some cocaine — he was not sure who — and he was looking at it when the guard came back and ordered the four out of the car.

Dear Abby

Dad's friends worry daughter

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
The Chicago Tribune

N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: At 82, father is becoming increasingly frail and forgetful. He has substantial means and has lived alone with a housekeeper since Mother died five years ago. I am his only child (a daughter) with a family of my own. I check on him daily to be sure he has everything he needs. I've invited him to live with me but he's reluctant to give up the home he's lived in for so many years.

Now the problem: Some former friends who wronged Dad in business years ago have suddenly started to visit him regularly. They've introduced him to a young member of their family and he has become quite infatuated with her. The dollar signs in her eyes are obvious to me, but not to Dad.

I don't want to deprive my father of any real happiness in his last years, but neither do I want him to fall prey to these opportunists I do not trust. What, if anything, should I do?

CONCERNED IN CALIF.

DEAR CONCERNED: How much your father should be protected "for his own good" and whether he's competent to make his own decisions are proper questions to discuss with his lawyer and physician. In the meantime, spend as much time with your father as possible but resist the temptation to bad-mouth his new friends.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps you will put this letter in your own words and tell my husband that he needs help. He won't listen to me.

He is 60 pounds overweight and, to make matters worse, is diabetic. He has a wonderful family who loves him very much. Whenever one of us reminds him that he needs to lose weight, he says, "So if I die, you will be left well-off."

Please, please, help us to help him. He is a dear and wonderful person. I want him around to see his grandchildren grow up, and he won't be around if he doesn't take better care of himself.

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: An obese person KNOWS he needs to lose weight, and being constantly reminded of it will only make him feel guilty — which will make him feel rotten, which will cause him to eat to feel better.

If he chooses to dig his own grave with his fork, no one can stop him. But if he really wants to help himself, let him write to me and I'll tell him what to do.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful diamond ring which was given to me by my mother-in-law when I became engaged. It was given to her by her mother-in-law, so I consider it a priceless heirloom.

When the time comes, I will offer the ring to my son for his bride — and that poses a problem because I have twin sons!

How should it be decided which twin gets the ring? Should it go to the first-born twin? Or should they draw straws for it?

They are only 17 now, so I have time to make that decision, but I would appreciate your suggestions.

MOTHER OF TWINS

DEAR MOTHER: The son who becomes engaged first should inherit the ring. And if the twins should announce a double engagement, let them draw straws.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BIG JOHN IN YAKIMA, WASH.": Never spill in a well. You might have to drink from it.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Wendell fiddler enters competition in Wejser

WEINDELL — Joe Sites of Wendell fiddled his way last week to seventh place in the national Grand Master Fiddlers contest in Nashville, Tenn.

The Grand Old Opry Company and the Country Music Association invited him to their eighth annual Western-Music Jamboree in Nashville last week, and paid his expenses while there. A Boise man, a fiddler who had faith in him, sent him the plane ticket to attend.

When Sites heard the Old Time Fiddlers as a senior in high school, he was inspired to learn to play the fiddle. His mother bought his first fiddle from Swap and they are now six years old, and he has been competing in and winning fiddling contests for the last four years.

Sites is the youngest Idahoan ever to receive the title of Idaho State Champion Fiddler, which he has held for the last two years. He was a high-point winner in an Oklahoma contest last fall, and placed third in the Golden Spike competition in Ogden last year.

This week he is in Wejser participating in the national Old Time Fiddler competition, where he was rated in the top 10 the last two years.

Blazing a wide trail through America's self-consciousness

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With all the dedications being made in recent days, it's hard to remember what John Wayne exactly was. After all, he traveled in circles that included presidents, senators, governors, millionaires, and generals.

John Wayne was an actor, a fact several ignore when mentioning him. And in the wake of Wayne's death, it seems entirely possible that only his reputation as an actor will remain.

To say he was a great actor is a falsehood. Wayne was not a great actor by any stretch. His abilities were limited. But within those limits he was a good actor. And that talent, however meager by some standards, was awesome in the proper vehicle and responsible for one of the most celebrated and successful careers in movie history.

Throughout 50 years and some 200 films, Wayne became an American institution. He was forever the rugged outdoorsman, fiercely independent, who would rather live or die as the case may be or his own peculiar code of conduct.

If that sounds rather fitted, so be it. Perhaps much of Wayne's success was drawn from an intense understanding of the ways of the past if not so much in the present.

But he was also a man of many contradictions. In his first patriotic, Wayne did all of his fighting from the safety of a Hollywood backlot. A shoulder injury prevented him from serving in the military during World War II.

A staunch conservative, Wayne's final message to Congress was a plea on behalf of the Panama Canal treaties.

Known as one of America's most popular stars, Wayne spent the first decade of his career trapped in Grade B westerns including a stint as the first singing cowboy, Singin' Sand, long before the world had ever heard of a fancy cowboy named Gene Autry.

By no means was Wayne unrelated to this century. But he remained one of a handful who possessed if not an accurate, then surely a beautiful, picture of the Old West. Jack Ford, Howard Hawks, Ward Bond, Walter Brennan.

Wayne was the sole survivor of that group. And until his death, he provided a vision of the old days when Ford was making westerns and Brennan would whine about some ailment beside Wayne just before the final showdown.

His passing ends a major chapter in the western genre. The genre and Wayne seemed linked from the early days when both were resurrected together in Ford's 1939 masterpiece, "Stagecoach." And both matured together through the 40 years.

For many, Wayne was the first and last cowboy star they will ever know. Few contemporary actors seem plausible in the role if for no other reason than they relate to 19th century settings with 20th century perceptions and emotions. For Wayne, the reverse seemed true. Only in the most savage conditions — winning the West, gunfights, barroom brawls, war battles — was Wayne at home.

But Wayne was only part of the picture, as evidenced by the sheer number of bad films he appeared in. Alone he was merely a popular actor with an engaging personality.

He was fortunate enough to work with people who understood both his character and took the time to make the most of his years.

But first Wayne had to become a star of merit to work with the likes of Howard Hawks or Henry Hathaway. And that took ten years.

Wayne spent the bulk of the 1930s cranking out horse operas on a one-take basis. None were much good. But he gained two valuable tools from the experience.

First he learned how to act, the hard way. Every mistake was recorded for audiences to see time and again.

Second, and more important, he endeared himself to the youthful audience of that age usually attending Saturday matinees. That age group would one day grow up to Grade A pictures, providing Wayne with a solid core of fans.

The break came in 1939. John Ford, much to the chagrin of his financial backers, had decided to place Wayne in the lead of his new picture. The backlot bosses were skeptical. Why make a major John Wayne film when theatres need only to put up one of his numerous serials against it.

Ford held out. And "Stagecoach" was born.

Wayne began working in films as a stagehand and bit actor for Ford in the late 1920s. Loyalty may have been one consideration for Wayne's selection. But Ford apparently never showed it.

Every day during production, Wayne was subjected to the "old man's" venom — bitter denunciations of his acting talent and his association with horse operas. But there was apparently an ulterior motive for this treatment.

By making Wayne angry, Ford figured to capitalize on his emotions. And he wanted to shake any bad habits Wayne had acquired from the quickies.

Ford was also a master diplomat. He had assembled some of the best-known acting talent he could find in "Stagecoach," including Thomas Mitchell, who would win an Oscar that year for "Gone With the Wind"; John Carradine, Donald Meek and Claire Trevor. And the possibility that some of these people might have resented playing up to a Grade B western star was not remote.

But Ford's constant abuse of Wayne earned their sympathy and respect.

There's no proof that Ford planned it that way. Then again, Ford was famous for his treatment of his actors.

The films were a great success, marking both the return of the western as a major art form and the emergence of John Wayne as a first class star. Surprisingly enough, Wayne's home studio, Republic, failed to immediately recognize the impact and released two more Wayne Grade B films in 1939.

But the studio soon caught on when the likes of Cecil B. DeMille and John Ford wanted to borrow their star.

The years 1939-1948 marked the first phase of the John-Wayne character. Here he was the young roger in "The Spokies," the mercenary in "Flying Tigers," the young cowpoke with an endless streak of luck in "War of the Wildcat." He had his share of the ladies, including Mariene Dietrich, Joan Crawford, Joan Blondell and Paulette Goddard.

If his career had remained here, it would have been memorable. But Wayne's career was unlike that of most major stars of the age. Clark Gable and Robert Taylor seemed to wither with age. Humphrey Bogart managed to hide a good deal of his, as did James Stewart and Henry Ford.

Wayne capitalized on it.

The milestone was Howard Hawk's "Red River." Wayne was no longer the romantic lead. Instead he portrayed a bitter old father figure to then-newcomer Montgomery Clift. The role of Tom Dunson forever changed the Wayne character. And for much of the 1940-1958 period, it represented a phase including some of the best of his work. Among the roles of this period were his Captain Britties in Ford's "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" (1949), Sgt. John M. Stryker in "The Sands of Iwo Jima" (1950), Col. York in Ford's "Rio Grande" (1950), Ethan Edwards in Ford's "The Searchers" and Sheriff John T. Chance in Hawks' "Rio Bravo" (1959).

As he passed the age of 50, Wayne was hit with a number of personal and professional failures. His largest professional disaster was "The Alamo," a film he financed and directed. Although the film would later make money for Warner Brothers who later bought it, Wayne's personal fortunes sank as a result.

During this time, he turned out a surprising number of mediocre films with the exception of Ford's "The Man Who Shot Liberty Bells" (1962).

His fortunes slipped even further when it was discovered that Wayne had cancer. He recovered, but only to face an uncertain future as an aging, broke cowboy star with 3/4 of one lung.

His first move following his recovery from cancer was a film for Henry Hathaway, "The Sons of Katie Elder." It was shot in Durango, Mexico. The mountain air was thin and Wayne required an oxygen tent. But somehow managed as he did several times during the late 1960s while filming in the high Mexican country.

Few have understood how a man could function with such intensity with less than one lung. One biographer, Maurice Zolow, considered several theories including one that claimed Wayne never lost a lung. But he finally summed it up with this explanation: "There is only one John Wayne and he did not experience cancer as you and I might experience the disease. Truly, he seems to inhabit a dimension of being, as Churchill and Stravinsky and Picasso and Chaplin, peopled by supernatural creatures."

The Duke in his Oscar-winning role in "True Grit"

As part of his financial recovery, Wayne signed a multi-picture deal with Paramount. It was a powerful performance which marked the only time in his career that the Wayne character died halfway through a film.

Many felt the film would have made a grand farewell for Wayne. It was not to be — at least not yet.

But Wayne did have his swan song. "For his last picture, "The Shootist" (1976), Wayne played the part of an aging gunslinger dying of cancer. The symbolism grows even stronger in that the Wayne character is dying of cancer in the digestive tract, as well as the use of film clips from earlier Wayne films and a cast of actors who had all appeared in one of Wayne's previous films — Lauree Bacall, James Stewart and Richard Boone.

And for the clincher, Wayne appeared with the same mustache he had not worn since "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon."

It did not fare well at the box office, strangely enough. Perhaps the message in the film was too prophetic for most moviegoers to accept.

Manhattan's too-familiar faces

By SHELLY KINZEL
Times-News writer

As an ex-New Yorker and devout Woody Allen fan, I expected to be rhapsodic about his latest release. Instead, I found "Manhattan" stale, overloaded with Allen clichés, stereotypical characters and too many lines which strain to be funny.

Like "Annie Hall," "Manhattan" is about a select group of urbanites, namely, the intellectual, artistic elite who in Allen's films also happen to be super-neurotic and insecure. In this particular film Allen plays a writer who is basically the same character Allen always plays — a witty egomaniac with huge hangups about his sexual prowess and a pervasive fear of death. His screen companions include his best friend (Michael Murphy), his best friend's wife (Anne Byrne), his ex-wife (Meryl Streep) who is writing a book about their breakup, a 17-year-old girl (Mariel Hemingway) with whom he is having an affair, and an attractive, high-strung young woman (Dianne Keaton) who is having an affair with his best friend.

We've seen all of these characters before with their varying degrees of neurosis, self-destructiveness and hostility. They are all Allen "types," but unfortunately he doesn't add any new dimensions or insights. It becomes boring to watch the same characters with the same problems without exploring their behavior from a different perspective.

I appreciate Allen's attempts to become more serious in his films, but a departure from pure farce or satire necessitates stronger character development. Allen's characters are too often superficial caricatures who we don't see as three-dimensional individuals.

The only unusual relationship Allen presents is the one between himself and a teen-ager. While I can accept that 42-year-olds have affairs with young girls, I find this particular liaison difficult to believe. An insecure, middle-aged man might find a fresh-faced, uncorrupted child-woman appealing, but I doubt that she would become a solution for his problems, especially for a man as sophisticated and analytical as the one Allen portrays. Mariel Hemingway also seems much younger and less worldly than most high school seniors in New York.

The film might also be considered an ode to New York City. The black and white cinematography is enchanting and captures the unique atmosphere of a magnificent city. The "Big Apple," however, serves more as a romantic backdrop than an intrinsic part of the film. Allen loves the city and his people are certainly New Yorkers, but the film is not particularly about Manhattan, only a very small segment of its population.

"Manhattan" certainly has its share of Allen's wit and wry commentary about life and the human condition. As one of his ardent admirers, however, I would like to see him branch out into other themes or styles of expression. Whether it be self-indulgence or insecurity, "Manhattan" is a restatement of what Allen has done before rather than a creative leap of his ample intellect and imagination.

Graham Parker live-on-tape

ATLANTA — WTCC (Channel 17) presents "Onstage at the Agora," featuring Graham Parker and the Rumour, Saturday.

The performance was taped live at the Agora Ballroom in Atlanta and marks the first in a series of "live-on-tape" productions planned by WTCC and The Agora.

A fast-rising British newcomer to the American music scene, Parker's style is contemporary rock that is both mature and exhilarating. Highly acclaimed by rock music critics on both sides of the ocean, Crawdadly described Parker's first album, "Howlin' Wind," as "rock and roll of classic structure." Rolling Stone awarded the band its "Red Suspenders Award" for New Band of 1976.

The hour-long program incorporates many of Parker's most dynamic and popular songs, such as "Protection," "You Gotta Be Strong" and "Local Girls" into a you-are-there concert closeup format that is charged with the energy and emotion that can only be generated between a high-caliber rock performer and a live audience.

Gossip

there was to interview and no story.

Q: You mentioned that Ali McGraw's romance with Larry Spangler was over, but is she serious about a new man? — T.G., Stroudale, N.Y.

A: All does seem quite taken with her co-star Peter Weller in her latest movie, "Just Tell Me What You Want." He's bright and young, a few years younger than 40-year-old Ali. They were separated, however, when Peter was in New York and Ali was back home in Malibu with son Joshua taking a rest before going on a promotion tour for her recently released movie, "Players."

Q: My eyes were riveted by a color photograph in the May issue of Town & Country of Fred MacMurray, Gregory Peck and James Stewart taken at the bar of Chasen's restaurant in Hollywood. The men look just great — but where, oh where are their wives? — T.B., Duluth, Minn.

A: Relax. Each member of this trio of Hollywood legends — Fred, Greg and Jimmy — quite naturally invited his lovely spouse to dinner at the restaurant. Actually, we hear the ladies — June Haver MacMurray, Veronique Peck and Gloria Stewart — had such a gab-and-gossip fest, the poor "famous" guys could hardly get a word in edgewise; so they got in the picture.

Q: Who's going to portray the Lone Ranger in the movie version of the old radio and TV shows? — H.L., Evanston, Ill.

A: We don't know and neither do the producers. Although they expect to begin production in the fall, the masked man, Tonto and even Silver haven't yet been cast. Movie-insiders are speculating that because one of the producers is a close associate of Robert Redford's, Redford himself might wind up in the lead. It's doubtful, since who in their right mind would pay to see that gorgeous Redford mug behind a mask?

Q: I was impressed when Julie Andrews sang for free at a recent tribute honoring "My Fair Lady" creators Lerner and Loewe. Was that Julie's way of saying thank you since that marvelous musical made her an international star? — K.L., New Rochelle, N.Y.

A: Yes and no. Yes, Julie was among a big turnout of theater and film stars volunteering their services to honor lyricist Alan Jay Lerner and composer Frederick Loewe. But there were some interesting strings attached in her case. To make sure she would show up Julie insisted that she be flown to New York and that she be put up in the very expensive Waldorf Towers.

Q: Did Steve Allen, even though he remains my favorite late-night TV personality, really think he had a shot at replacing Johnny Carson? Just when did Allen host the "Tonight Show"? — A.C., Clinton, N.J.

A: Johnny's decision to stay with the show pleases Allen, who thinks Carson should stay with the show even though some Allen fans think he'd be a pretty good successor. Steve hosted the "Tonight Show" from December 1954 to January 1957 — a drop in the ocean compared with Carson's 17-year stretch.

PETER CRISS ... Kiss and makeup

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: Is it true that Robin Williams has so many other more attractive offers that he's decided to leave the "Mork and Mindy" TV show? — U.L., Joliet, Ill.

A: Not quite. When we last checked, Robin, after being locked in furious negotiations with the show's producers, came up with a sweet new contract for another season, for which production is supposed to start in two weeks. Seems Robin gets at least $30,000 per segment, plus a hefty slice of all the merchandising revenues derived from his character. The producers balked but with Robin's popularity at a crest, Robin's demands were met — and the show goes on.

Q: Heard on a news program that the reason Dorothy Lamour didn't show at Bob Hope's Film Society bash in Lincoln Center in New York was that she was busy writing a book, a pretty lame excuse if you ask me. Dorothy's presence would have been such a sentimental natural, am I right in thinking this was a cop-out? — O.H., Simsbury, Conn.

A: Could be. Dottie has a darned good memory. Back in the '50s, the star took her nightclub act to the Versailles, a chic Manhattan spot. She invited Bob Hope and Bing Crosby (her screen pals in those famed "Road" comedies) to her important opening. Right up to the very moment she walked on stage, the actress was heard anxiously whispering, "I do hope the boys can make it. It would mean so much to me—Well, they didn't. And now, it looks as though it's come round robin.

Q: As a big fan of the rock group, "KISS," I often wonder exactly how long it takes them to climb into their freaky costumes and paint or weird makeup before each concert performance. — T.Z., Narnet, N.Y.

A: As you're probably aware, members of "KISS," Ace Frehley, Gene Simmons, Peter Criss and Paul Stanley, are rarely photographed in public without their bizarre makeup. Because most of their fans can hardly recognize these famed rock stars as nature, it's easy for the singers to slip into their dressing rooms; usually one hour before curtain time. Once inside, it takes each fellow about 45 minutes to apply his intricate and very far-out scary makeup.

AWE-STRUCK-WRITER: When Woody Allen was in Paris, Françoise Sagan had an assignment to interview him for a French publication. Sagan, who has spent her professional life in the heady world of celebrities, finally met her match. She was so impressed and intimidated at meeting that famed actor-writer-director that she was left speechless, unable to ask a single question. As a result

Public television takes cue from networks and standardizes

By LES BROWN
O.N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — What is standard procedure for most commercial television stations around the country will become an innovation for public television next fall — the simultaneous broadcast of the same programs on the same evening and in the same time sequence.

That is what is known as "networking" in the commercial world, but it is a concept that was rejected several years ago by public broadcasters who, in the main, have chosen to assert their local independence and autonomy. They have been doing this by pre-empting, delaying or rescheduling the national program sent out by PBS or by otherwise rearranging the PBS schedule to conform to their local programming commitments.

Now, however, a majority of public television stations have come around to thinking that they might be able to gain greater public attention and larger audiences next fall with a uniform prime-time schedule that could be promoted — as past schedules could not — with national advertising and publicity campaigns.
