Farmer priority revoked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday revoked an order giving farmers top priority for diesel, freeing supplies of the hard-to-find fuel for angry truckers who are staging a nationwide strike to protest the shortage.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who announced the decision for Carter, said the order giving farmers special treatment — known as Rule 9 in the farm community — would be ended immediately.

The rule was put into effect May 11 to insure farmers had 100 percent of the diesel they needed for spring planting, and it was not scheduled to end until July 31.

But with the onset of the increasingly violent truck strike, and the close of the planting season, Carter decided to end the program earlier, to the disappointment of farmers.

He also revoked a special allocation for truckers who had gotten high priority — those who move perishable farm goods and goods used in petroleum production.

Bergland said the truck strike has caused the government concern "about the actual and potential disruption of the processing and movement of farm products to U.S. and overseas markets."

Idaho Gov. John V. Evans said Friday President Carter made a "horrible mistake" in voiding rule 9.

Evans said Carter gave in to the protests of diesel-starved independent truckers and that the move will create "utter chaos" in the United States because farmers will be forced to watch their crops rot in the fields and the people will not have enough to eat, Evans said. "This alarms and upsets me. The president has gone too far."

Evans called on Carter in a letter to the president to establish controls on allocation of diesel fuel as exist now for gasoline.

He said without the 100 percent diesel fuel guarantee, Idaho's farmers will lose 25 percent of the fuel they need to harvest their crops this year.

Evans said he would try to drum up support for his proposals today at Salt Lake City when he meets with other western governors at a conference on war issues.

Meanwhile Sen. Frank Church said Friday in Washington that Carter's decision "is terribly shortsighted."

"Let's not forget that the one sector to the American economy that brings in large earnings abroad is agriculture," Church said. "Farther than panaling the farmers, the Administration ought to be finding out why we face the current situation we are in and taking the steps necessary to correct it."

Rupert, Heyburn truck stops blocked

HEYBURN — Local truckers blocked and boycotted Rupert and Heyburn truck stops Thursday, calling for cheaper fuel and changes in trucking regulations.

Truckers blocked the Stinker and Hub-66 truck stops near Rupert Thursday night and Friday morning. Heyburn truck driver Jerry Teal led the boycott after he said Hub owner Dean Bailey gave him permission to block the station's pumps and later "went back on his word."

"He made an agreement with us and then this morning he told us he would tow our trucks away if we didn't move," Teal said.

Bailey refused to comment. Teal had pulled his truck in front of the diesel fuel pumps at a Heyburn truck stop at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and refused to move. Across town, Teal's friend Jerry McClure blocked the pumps at the Hub 66 station.

Teal said Bailey and Stinker manager Hal Rowley gave them permission for the blockades. The blockades were lifted at 2 p.m., and Teal contacted other truckers on the CB asking them to boycott Hub 66 in protest.

"The purpose of the blockade, according to Teal, was to focus public attention on the trucker's plight.

"We're going to draw attention and maybe slow down some of the truck traffic," he said.

Teal, 42, an independent driver, had planned to stay parked for a couple of days, or "until we see what Carter's come up with on his word."

Minidoka County Sheriff Ray Jarvis said Friday morning he hadn't heard any complaints about the blockade and was "not concerned," as long as the roads are kept clear.

Motorists were allowed to buy gasoline throughout the protest, but not diesel fuel. Most cooperated with the blockade, according to Teal.

"Some car drivers come in and want to buy (diesel) fuel," he said. "But most truckers see the island is blocked and they bypass it."

Teal, who left the road in protest 15 days ago, appealed to farmers for sympathy.

"Farmers don't realize if we haven't got any fuel we can't haul the farm products. If they raise the product, what are they going to do with it if we haven't got fuel to haul it?" he asked.

Some of the woes Teal complains of are high fuel costs, lack of uniformity in state trucking laws and the 55 mph speed limit, which he says is "outdated."

He wants the speed limit hiked to 60 mph, a change that would enable him to improve his gas mileage 50 percent, he claimed.

In Twin Falls, two trucks, parked at United Oil Co., 192 Kimberly Road, were damaged between 10 p.m. Thursday and 5:30 a.m. Friday by vandals, according to police reports.

Officials at United Oil told police someone took a can of red spray paint and painted the truck tractors with the word "strike" and streaks of paint.

A sharp object was also used to puncture tires on the trucks. Officers said there were seven flat tires on the trucks Friday morning.

Gary Wignall, manager of United Oil Co. here, said he didn't know if the vandalism is part of the truckers' strike and that he has had no other problems. He said damage would amount to about $150 as the tires were not destroyed and can be repaired. He said it appeared an ice pick was used to puncture them.

Independent truckers posted picket outside a Chevron pipeline terminal west of Pocatello Thursday after pulling their 18 wheelers away from three Pocatello truck stops.

Law enforcement officers asked the truckers not to block the road in front of the Chevron station after two rigs penned a tanker truck.

"They decided to pull out of the truck stops Thursday after failing to muster enough trucks and manpower to shut down diesel stations in American Falls, Blackfoot and the surrounding areas.

About 10 of the truckers then drove to the Chevron Terminal to stage a demonstration. State Department of Law Enforcement Director Kelly Pierce, who was in Pocatello for a peace officers' convention, and Idaho State Police troopers were on hand to calm truckers and make sure no violence erupted.

Independent truckers' strike leaving tons of food rotting

By United Press International
Independent truckers tightened their grip on the nation's lugular Friday, leaving tons of food to rot, pushing up grocery prices, choking off gasoline supplies and forcing industries to shut down. One trucker was shot.

National Guard troops escorted convoys of fuel to gas-starved cities. Florida Gov. Bob Graham issued an order commanding all privately owned tank trucks to move gasoline.

Gunfire greeted trucks that ventured onto strike-closed highways in defiance of the shutdown. One trucker was shot and wounded near Knoxville, Tenn., when he stopped his rig and got out to check a CB radio report that one of the truck's tires was loose. He suffered an arm wound.

Commandeered gasoline trucks were loaded at Florida's Port Everglades and left on delivery runs Friday afternoon with a National Guardsman armed with a loaded M-16 rifle riding beside each driver. Motorcycle policemen cleared the way for the heavily guarded convoy and handled escort duties.

In Houston, officials said about 325 tons of bananas — $104,000 worth — might have to be dumped at sea because angry truckers have blocked unloading operations at the port of Galveston banana pier.

Independent truckers, pressing demands for higher freight rates, more fuel, lower fuel prices and higher speed and load limits, went on strike 16 days ago in the midlands and sought to impose a nationwide shutdown two days ago.

Since then, produce has been left to rot on idle loading docks in the South and West, where crops were being harvested. In the East, some farmers did not even bother to harvest potato crops and let the spuds rot in the ground for lack of trucks to get them to market.

The Armour Co. packing plant in Worthington, Minn., shut down Friday because it could not find refrigerated trucks to ship the meat from the 4,500 hogs it butchers daily.

Grocery chains said how much hardship consumers will feel will depend upon how long the truckers keep up the pressure. And there were signs the pressure may be easing.

STRAP, a splinter group of independent drivers in 13 states, said its members will pull out of the strike Monday. A STRAP spokesman said the group will give the government until July 15 to meet all the independents' demands. If the demands aren't met, another strike will be called, the spokesman said.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, in Valley Forge, Pa., for a conference, said Friday he hopes the Carter administration's decision to take fuel reserves previously designated for farmers and allocate them to transportation will end the protest and violence.

Major grocery chains reported no immediate shortages because of the strike but said some could materialize by early next week and that the strike would cause almost immediate increases in the prices of produce and meat.

They said that, while a prolonged strike could leave bare spots on the grocery shelves, there would be adequate food supplies and cautioned against panic buying.

Gasoline shortages, however, were a problem — partly because of the truckers strike and partly because of already low supplies.

A spokesman for Wausau Homes, which manufactures pre-built houses, said it would close Monday because of the strike. The firm, based in Wausau, Wis., relies on independents to deliver its goods. A company spokesman said 500 to 600 workers would be idled.

Blockades choked fuel and food distribution centers. Truckers Friday blockaded the loading docks of the Stop and Shop Co. distribution center in North Haven, Conn. The truckers allowed the center — which serves 78 Stop & Shop stores in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Jersey — to ship produce and meats until 6 a.m., then completely shut down the dock.

Water

Supply bank discussed in Boise

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Water Resource Board Friday discussed the creation of a statewide water supply bank and received an offer to build a proposed dam near Soda Springs.

Department of Water Resources western regional supervisor Dave Shaw suggested that water rental for the water supply bank should be handled by local committees, but some board members expressed concern that the board should have the ability to override local committee decisions.

Shaw said all leases must be approved by the director of the department and could serve as the final review.

"I don't think the board would work as well as local committees," said board member Donald Kramer of Castleford. "If we get the people with the water, they will be more willing to make the exchange. We have always been the big bad guys at the agency."

Department Director Stephen Alfred said regulations forbid local committees from making decisions on natural water flow, but they could decide upon stored water issues.

Alfred said the supply bank would allow water right holders to use excess water and avoid the risk of losing their water rights. He said by law, a water right holder can lose his water rights if he does not use his water for a five-year period.

Board Chairman Joseph McDevitt asked if the bank might be used as "a refuge for someone to put their water rights into the bank rather than forfeit them."

Alfred reminded him that he must approve the lease and said "the right holder will get more out of a lease by selling it than by leasing it."

"We want to provide a financial incentive to people who just have water laying there to get it into the market," Alfred said.

The board decided to appoint a committee to make final proposed regulations on the water supply bank.

In other action, Don Gilbert of the Last Chance Canal Co., Soda Springs, said his company was interested in constructing the proposed dam near Soda Springs on the Bear River at the Caribou site.

The board said they could not give Gilbert a binding agreement, but assured him that they would not forget his offer.

The first step in July will be to hire an engineering consulting firm, according to DWR spokesman Murland Packer.

The study will determine whether or not the gravity flow irrigation project is economically feasible. If so, the DWR will decide among various designs for a canal and off-stream storage system, how many acres to irrigate, where to divert water from the Snake River, and how to fund the project. Also to be determined is who will be eligible to farm the land.

Besides the new farmland, the project tentatively would provide additional water to 51,000 acres of existing farm land.

Bruneau Plateau project study OK'd

BOISE — The Idaho Water Resources Board authorized a study of the Bruneau Plateau Project Friday.

At a regular meeting the six-member state board told the Department of Water Resources to proceed with a $220,000 feasibility study of the irrigation project which would bring 59,000 acres of new farm land into production. The land is located southwest of Hagerman and east of Glenns Ferry south of the Snake River.

The 1979 Legislative authorized funding for the first year of a two-and-a-half-year study. Friday the water board, which sets state water policy, passed responsibility for the study over to its engineering and research arm, the Department of Water Resources.

The DWR plans to begin the study July 1, although

Jeremy Thorpe acquitted of plot-to-murder charges

LONDON (UPI) — Former Liberal Party leader Jeremy Thorpe and three other men were found innocent Friday of charges that they plotted to murder one-time male model Norman Scott, who claimed he was Thorpe's homosexual lover.

A three-woman, nine-man jury delivered the unanimous not guilty verdicts in an Old Bailey courtroom throbbing with tension. It had been 52 hours since the jury retired — an unusually long time in a British trial. The trial itself was in its 31st day, again a lengthy trial by British standards. Thorpe, once voted Britain's most popular politician but now out of office and unemployed, stood impassively to hear the verdicts with his co-defendants — former Liberal Party treasurer David Holmes and businessmen John Le Mesurier and George Deakin. But soon he looked to the right over his half-glasses and flashed a smile at his second wife, Marion. There was no outburst or demonstration in court, although Judge Sir Joseph Cantley had to shout at reporters stampeding to telephones.

EEC to curtail oil imports

STRASBOURG, France (UPI) — Leaders of the nine-nation European Economic Community pledged Friday to curtail oil imports sharply, provided the United States and other major industrialized countries do likewise. This is the message members of EEC — more popularly known as the Common Market — will take to next week's economic summit in Tokyo with the United States, Japan and Canada. They said EEC is prepared to hold energy imports during each of the next five years to below the total for 1978 — that is 470 million tons — but they will not make the effort alone. "The effort to restrict oil consumption can only work if a comparable effort is made by other industrialized countries," French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing told reporters. Giscard said agreement among the other major oil users on a joint energy strategy could form the basis for closer cooperation with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The 13-nation OPEC meets in Geneva next week to peg oil prices for the second half of 1979.

Be Fair! Some stories need bylines

Stories written in the first person, but missing a byline, were criticized by one Times-News reader this past week.

The article, headlined "Fed up with business" appeared on last Saturday's Opinion page. Throughout the article several references were made to "I," "my" and "me." The reader was right. A byline should have appeared on the story, even if it was on the Opinion page.

First person references without bylines leave out one of the most important of journalism's five W's, namely who.

Our new Saturday paper also drew comments from a reader sympathetic to carriers. This person advocates dropping the Saturday paper so that carriers would have the opportunity to sleep in one day a week.

Last year, we expanded our weekly number of newspapers from six to seven. Our intention was to provide Magic Valley readers with up-to-date local, national and sports news every day of the week. The Saturday paper particularly allows us to provide our readers with more area sports and religion news.

Our carriers range in age from 9 to 15. Delivering newspapers is one of the few moneymaking opportunities available to these youngsters. They usually spend only a half hour to an hour delivering papers each morning. True, our carriers seldom get to sleep in, but they do get the chance to learn some of the intricacies of the business world and enjoy the satisfaction of earning their own money.

The American metric plot thickens

It's had enough that the country is facing the torturous task of paying 80 cents or more for a gallon of gasoline. But now someone is telling us that this would be a great opportunity for filling stations to start selling gas by the liter instead of the gallon.

There must be some sort of an un-American plot out there. First unbelievably high gas rates and then getting rid of the gallon! Why don't we change the colors of the flag, get rid of mother and impregnate apple pies with vodka while we're at it?

What's the logic behind conversion to liters? The metric board claims that most of the nation's 113 million gasoline pumps are incapable of computing sales of more than $1 per unit, and therefore, if there is a conversion to liters (which are much smaller than gallons), the pumps would have to be changed to a more accurate extra digit, or at least they would have to be changed for quite a while yet.

A weak argument at best. But, hold on a minute. The metric board is saying that such a move would save money? Let's take a second look at this.

According to the metric board, switching pumps to liters would cost about $79-million less than converting them to measure amounts higher than $1 per gallon. Now, perhaps it's true that any information from the metric board can't be trusted, but a little checking here and there outside of that board's realm has established these figures as accurate.

This sheds a whole bunch of new light on the metric issue. Here we have been led to believe that not only metric was un-American but that metric conversion would cost the country an incredible amount of money. But if it's true that we can save money here and there with metric, can conversion be all that bad?

Perhaps there has been an anti-metric plot feeding us with propaganda all these years. Maybe we should stop blindly accepting the words of the anti-metric zealots and look at the facts a little closer. The metric opponents make a big deal about the expense of going metric, but the metric folks may very well have a point when they talk about the long-term saving metric will bring. It could very well be true that we have been selfishly favoring our own short-term interests while sacrificing the economic future of our children and grandchildren. Can such a state of affairs be classified as an American ideal? Sure not.

Let's listen more to these metric board folks if they're so intent on saving us money, and perhaps let's even encourage them to press on with some more metric stepping stones.

Unfortunately, however, there will always be a sizable number of Americans who won't go along with a change no matter how logical it may appear. And that is the big reason why a voluntary approach to metric (which is the current U.S. policy on the matter) is probably doomed. Sometimes a nation, like a parent to a child, must do what it sees as best for the people even if the people scream and holler about it.

Metric conversion will be a tough pill to swallow, but perhaps we should do it now instead of later, and maybe even save some bucks in the bargain. Surely saving money can't be considered as un-American.

Godfather's gift horse

WASHINGTON — The fight of private universities to obtain funding becomes more desperate as each year goes by. Even Harvard seems to be up against the wall when it comes to finding new money. The situation has become so crucial that President Derek Bok, the school's ayatollah, has just issued a strong defense for accepting "labeled money" as long as it benefits his university.

In a recent "White Paper," Bok said that his university is willing to overlook the "unsavory behavior" of some benefactors because an "institution will do more by using such funds constructively than by forcing the donor to keep his money."

Bok also said that the university could be accused of "honoring immorality and legitimizing unethical conduct" by naming buildings and professorships and scholarships after donors with questionable reputations. But he said, "In practice, recipients of gifts and awards have regarded the use of a donor's name more as a way of acknowledging the source of the donation than as an affirmation of his moral character."

The White Paper couldn't have come out at a more opportune time. Don Corleone, the Godfather, who had been wondering what to do with all his ill-gotten gains, decided it was time to make a contribution to his son's alma mater, Concrete State University. He asked the president of Concrete State to visit him at his well-guarded home on Long Island.

The president was ushered in by one of Don Corleone's bodyguards. He kissed the Godfather's hand.

"I called you here because I want to make you a proposition of a gift horse."

"Yes, Godfather," the president said nervously.

"I want to give Concrete State University $5 million for a new bulletproof law library. As you know, I have devoted my life to the law."

"Everyone knows that, Godfather."

"I have to tell you this is labeled money and comes from illegal enterprises such as gambling, drugs, loan-sharking and other activities that my family has been engaged in since we had to go out of the bootlegging business. Perhaps you won't accept it?"

"Don't worry, Godfather, money is money and Concrete State never asks where it comes from. Of course we wouldn't want it to infringe on our academic freedom."

"I understand that. I assure you the family has no interest in moving in on the university. For one thing, you people are located in the Bronx and we operate out of Queens and Brooklyn."

"Then I don't see any problem," the president said. "We can use the money for constructive purposes, while if you kept it it would probably go for some unsavory enterprise."

"That's exactly what I thought. I think education is very important, particularly when it comes to producing good lawyers. I wouldn't be here today if it wasn't for my lawyers. The Feds have been trying to get me for years, but they haven't laid a finger on me. Now I want you to understand that I will have to give you this contribution in cash, as unfortunately it doesn't pay for me to have a bank account."

"We'll take it any way we can get it, with no questions asked," the president said.

"There better not be," the Don said.

"How can Concrete State acknowledge your generous gift?"

"I thought maybe 'The Don Corleone Law Library' might look nice chipped in marble above the entrance, and maybe a quote like, 'He Made Us an Offer We Couldn't Refuse.'"

"Yes, that might be possible, but I want you to understand that just because we will name the building after you does not mean that we are affirming your moral character."

"That's understood. Here's the money in a satchel. It was just collected this morning."

"Thank you, Godfather," the president said, kissing his hand again. "If there were more unsavory people like you we wouldn't have to worry about our kids getting a decent education."

In wind, fashion yields to modesty

By MIKE ROYKO
Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — While walking across a windy downtown plaza, I saw a pretty young woman and immediately felt sorry for her.

She appeared to be suffering from a physical disability. She walked hunched forward and lifted her skirt. Both her arms were thrust straight down, and her hands rigidly against her right thigh.

As she crossed the plaza, I thought how sad it was that she had to go through life dragging herself around that way.

She entered the glass-walled lobby of the building, and suddenly she began walking normally.

For a moment, I couldn't understand why she had been walking so grotesquely. Then, another woman on the plaza gave me the answer.

"She was hunched over as severely as the other had been. But she leaned to her right side and her hand tightly clutched her skirt."

Of course. She was wearing a slit dress. Both had been wearing slit dresses. But because the plaza was windy, they were preventing their dresses from flapping open in the breeze.

Since then, I've made a point of closely observing women who wear slit skirts. And when the wind blows, almost all of them are overwhelmed by modesty and take measures to prevent their thighs from being exposed.

Most of them do as the two women I mentioned above. Others take the big purse-strategy cage trick, holding it in front of them like a leather fig leaf.

On one particularly breezy afternoon, I stood on the IBM plaza, one of the windiest places in town, and made my observation. It was a terrible thing to see. Half of the women who crossed the plaza walked like Quasimodo, the unfortunate Hunchback of Notre Dame.

This forces me to conclude something that might offend a few women, but I have to say it. Despite their liberation, their independence, their many new freedoms of action and thought, a large number of modern female persons still are thimble.

What else can I think about people who would spend money to buy garments that are clearly designed to display their thighs. Then they scuttle around like Igor to prevent their thighs from being displayed.

I asked a woman why she would buy a slit skirt in the first place, if not to display her limbs.

She said: "It's the fashion."

Exactly. Millions of women who probably don't even want to flash their flesh in public are buying these slit dresses because some French pervert of a clothing designer has decreed that they are "the fashion."

A scientific experiment I conducted confirms this. The experiment works this way: Whenever I see a woman wearing a slit dress, I make a point of staring at the slit. I mean, I really gawk. I stretch my neck and bulge my eyes and give it an intense leer.

And do you know what the women do? They glare at me. They look angry or indignant or disgusted, as if I am some sort of degenerate.

What does that prove? It shows how ridiculous they are, that's what.

Remember, the idea of a slit skirt is to make a woman look sexy. It is all part of the new fashion trend toward "The Lusty Woman," as Esquire magazine ballyhooed it. For months I have been reading about slit skirts in Time, Newsweek, the New York Times and Women's Wear Daily. I have studied all the picture layouts of models with their slit skirts blowing in the breeze. And not one of the pictures has shown a woman crouched or, frantically grabbing her skirt as if protecting her lower body from a deviate dwarf.

If the idea is to make women look sexy, whom are they looking sexy for? A fireplug? Their own mirror? Small dogs?

Of course not. They are supposed to be displaying their thighs and looking sexy for men. That is a law of nature.

Yet, when I respond in an appropriate and perfectly natural way — by leering and gawking at their flashing thighs — rather than being pleased that their slit dresses have had their intended effect, they are indignant.

That is illogical. If they wear dresses that have an exhibitionist intent, then they should be delighted by the attention. They shouldn't scowl at those of us who respond by admiring their limbs.

And when the wind blows, they shouldn't go through all those physical contortions to conceal that which their dresses want to reveal.

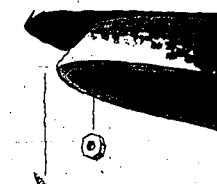

This is just another example of how women, while really fine creatures in many ways, are less sensible than men.

Year after year, a handful of suspicious-looking characters who call themselves clothing designers issue their commands: Wear your dresses short and wear boots and look like a hooker. Now throw them away and wear them long and look like a frump. Now wear like a gypsy fortune teller. Now look like a farm wife. Now wear spike heels. Now show your thighs.

And every time the pimps of fashion give the word, all these supposedly independent, liberated, free-thinking, enlightened female persons obediently trudge to the clothing stores. With that attitude, they might as well be fetching a pipe and slippers.

In contrast, most men laugh at or ignore changes in male fashions. Except for certain men who would wear purple leotards if Gucci or Pucci told them to, most of us stay with the classic look that might be called "1955 Robert Hall."

Study reveals housewives' guilt

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Modern housewives enjoy their roles as homemakers but may feel guilty because of the feminist movement's emphasis on the need for fulfillment through outside work, researchers have reported.

Alfreda F. Iglehart of the University of Michigan Survey Research Center said her study of more than 700 women — housewives and non-housewives — disapproves of the too popular view that they are "bored, isolated drudges."

"The rhetoric against housework tends to ignore the rewards of child care, community involvement and civic activities, all of which make homemaking a very viable way to enhance feelings of self-worth," she said.

Iglehart surveyed 628 housewives and 149 employed women and compared the results with a 1957 study of 337 housewives and 231 working women.

In 1957, Iglehart said, social norms were rigid, particularly for mothers with young children. Wives were expected to stay home, and working — even for economic reasons — had a degree of stigma attached.

Trends which developed over the next 20 years, including later marriages, improved birth control methods and the women's movement, prompted women to seek fulfillment outside the house.

Hijacker sentenced on previous charges

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal judge Friday called Nikola Kavaja, a Serbian nationalist who staged a two-nation plane hijack drama, a "dangerous man" and sentenced him to 20 years in prison on previous bombing and conspiracy charges.

Kavaja, 45, of Paterson, N.J., arrived in Chicago to face U.S. District Judge Hubert Will on charges of bombing a Yugoslav diplomat's home in 1975 and conspiring to bomb the Yugoslavian Club in Chicago in 1978.

Kavaja's arrival in Chicago marked the end of a two-day, two-nation drama that began Wednesday when he hijacked a New York-Chicago plane and surrendered to authorities in Shannon, Ireland on Thursday. He was transferred to Chicago Friday after a stop in New Jersey.

Kavaja had hijacked the plane to obtain the release of Rev. Stojilko Kavjevik, who appeared in court with Kavaja and four other Serbian nationalists on the Chicago bombing conspiracy charges.

"Forget what happened yesterday," Judge Will told the courtroom. "He (Kavaja) is a dangerous man based on what he said here in court today."

"I think he declared war on us," Will said. "So long as there's a war to fight he'll fight it. I think he said he's a one man army. He's declared himself to be a soldier in a peaceful civilian society."

Kavaja had told the judge, "I've never killed a child, a woman or an innocent man but I will always kill an enemy. I have never asked mercy from anyone. I am an anti-communist and a soldier."

Moon Children can gain more free time if they take care of new duty, avoid troublemakers

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to wind up typical activities that require your attention and then an more efficient course of action to follow for the future. Secrets come to light later in the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good time to contact an expert who can show you how to become more productive your career. Improve your health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Attend to monetary matters you have been procrastinating about and you will soon be more safe and secure.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Tap your subconscious mind for novel ideas that can be made to work profitably for you. Establish more harmony at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of new duties now as you will have more free time in the days ahead. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Seek new friends who will separate with you in whatever your plans may be. Don't admit an outsider to take advantage of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) Handle those outside tasks and be efficient at them. Being very active today will keep boredom away. Express happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21) Talk over your personal goals with close friends and they will help you attain them. Be less critical of others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21) Be more aware of your responsibilities and duties than more efficiently. Discuss the future with family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to understand what others expect of you and then carry through wisely. Control your temper at all times.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Schedule your time and activities well so you can accomplish more. Sidestep one who is detrimental to your progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Think over what needs to be done to make the future happier for yourself. Take time to engage in favorite hobby.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The morning is fine for going after personal goals, but be sure to finish one project before you take on another.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will do well in such fields as publicity, writing and sales. He or she will find ways to make your progeny template whatever has been started and then there can be real success during lifetime. Sports are a good outlet here.

Dutch pipeline carries milk to mainland; rich Arabs pay bill at shop

An Arab oil millionaire spent $65,000 in a London shop. After he left, the sales clerk discovered that the charge card machine had smudged not only his signature but his account number, too. Completely illegible. And nobody knew who he was. The store manager shrugged and told bookkeeping to bill every rich Arab who had an account there. So far, say the correspondents, who do not always tell the truth, 10 Arabs have paid the bill.

An undersea pipeline 9.23 miles long connects the island of Ameland off the Dutch coast to the mainland of The Netherlands. The island's dairy farmers built it. Had to. Bad weather kept interrupting their shipments. Through the pipeline is pumped milk.

You know that delicious edge of crisp fat around a charcoal-broiled steak? It has twice as many calories, ounce for ounce, as sugar.

DRIVERS

Women drivers tend to obey the traffic laws better than do men, except in one sort of violation. They are less inclined than men to pay attention to that sign that reads "Yield." So reports the California Highway Patrol after a study of the matter. It's not unusual for a woman driver to get a ticket for failure to yield the right of way, evidently.

If a little green tree frog takes up residence next to an American pitcher plant, that pitcher plant may starve to death. The plant eats insects attracted to a sweet fluid in it. But the frog eats insects, too, and some insects drawn into the neighborhood by the aroma of the plant. And the frog is just a little niftier at catching those insects than is the plant.

NO WORMS

Q. Is there any place outside the polar regions that has no car-worms?
 A. Understand Central Manitoba does without those angleworms. Know of no other.

In Melbourne, Australia, sex offenders such as rapists categorized as dangerous are treated with injections of female hormones to reduce their compulsions.

So you want to grow better-looking roses, do you? All right, bury a banana peel or two--no more than three--at the base of each rose bush.

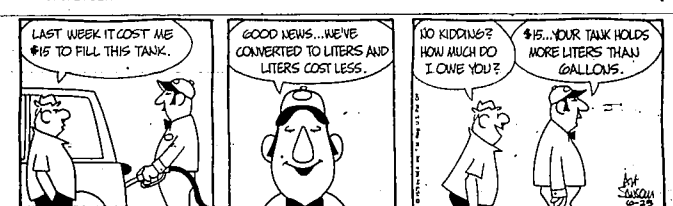

It's not unusual for a single thunder cloud to carry as much as 300,000 tons of rain.

Religion

Religious items profit pockets

By KENNETH R. CLARK and PETER MACLEER

United Press International Religious artifacts are big business. Religion offers faith, hope and the promise of eternal life for millions. But for a few, it means money.

It was big business in Jesus' day when he kicked the moneychangers out of the temple, charging they'd turned it into "a den of thieves." It remains big business in subsequent centuries when hawkers of relics sold vials of Mary's milk, St. Joseph's breath, hairs from Noah's beard and enough splinters from the "true cross" to build a fleet of ships.

All that's needed are the right artifacts — from splinters of the "true cross" to New Testaments.

Today, the business is bigger and better than ever:

- The Shroud of Turin, believed for centuries by some to be the cloth that wrapped the body of Christ, has spurred a spate of commercial efforts on the strength of scientific testing that might authenticate that claim.

- Archaeological digs — particularly the dig at Ebla in Syria, where 15,000 clay tablets bearing such ancient biblical names as Abraham, Sodom and Gomorrah have unearthed a political favor — are suffering eclipse of what scholars call the real historical meaning.

- A claim by Egyptian monks that they have found the bones of John the Baptist and the prophet Elisha brings headlines all over the world and a steady stream of curiosity seekers to the "graveyards" at a remote monastery in Egypt's western desert.

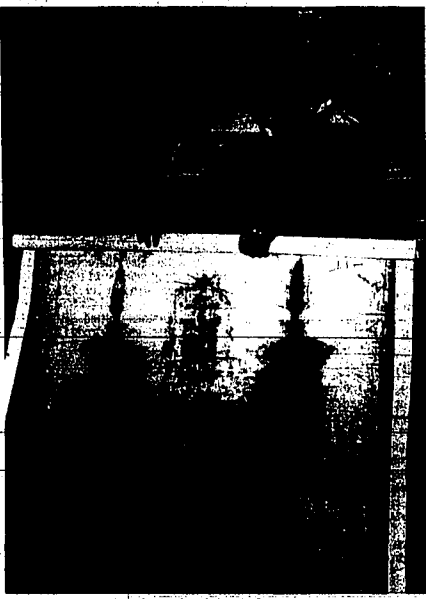

- "The Word," Irving Wallace's novel about the intrigue over the reported find of a new Gospel, hits the best-seller lists and several years later draws an audience of some 60 million people as a television mini-series.

- Thousands of people each year flock to shrines like Lourdes in France or Guadalupe in Mexico. There is even a steady traffic to Lake Arthur, N.M., to see the "Sacred Tortilla," the mournful image of Jesus Christ burned into the dinner a woman was cooking for her husband.
- Amateur archaeologists, spade in one hand and the Bible in the other, still search for ancient artifacts such as Noah's Ark and the ark of the covenant from biblical times to a brisk business in shops throughout the Near East.

Why all the fuss?

"I think people have a very strong gut interest in their own history and sources," says Madeline Noveck, associate curator in charge of Middle Eastern Art and Archaeology for the Brooklyn Museum in New York City. "The thing that I'm seeing happen in the world is a renewing of the Holy Spirit in the charismatic movement, particularly in the historic churches," said evangelist Oral Roberts.

"It's a question of need," said Jerome Goldblatt, a New York holographer and communications expert converted from agnosticism to Christianity through his study of the shroud. "We all need God — whether we know it or not. And whether we know it or not, we're all searching for him."

Father Rinaldi of New York holds Shroud of Turin replica.

Blood reported dripping from Jesus' portrait

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI) — A Roman Catholic pastor plans an unofficial investigation into claims that blood dripped from the eye of a picture of Jesus Christ in the home of Willie Mae Seymore.

Four members of the Seymore family claim they saw blood flowing last week from a plastic covered portrait of Christ hanging in their home. The report has attracted more than 1,500 people since Saturday.

The Rev. Albert Gallegos, communications director of the Archdiocese of Santa Fe, said Thursday the Rev. Kevin Meynhan, pastor of the Assumption Catholic Church in Roswell, would conduct the preliminary investigation beginning Friday.

"In all honesty, I cannot comment on this phenomenon since I have

WHAT YOU DON'T KNOW CAN HURT YOU!!

It sure can! It has for years and will continue. Remember when you didn't know the formula to prevent polio? And pneumonia killed millions because we didn't know about penicillin? Children die every year because they didn't know the contents of a bottle they drank from. It's true spiritually too! If you don't know the Truth, he can't be set free. Communion is committed to preaching the Truth every week. Remember... who you don't know CAN hurt you!

Jerome teachers, board settle

JEROME — A 7 percent salary hike and full medical coverage for teachers were part of a contract agreement reached Friday night between the Jerome School District and the Jerome Teachers Organization.

Contracts will now be typed up by the district and sent out to teachers' signatures. Teacher negotiator Wesley Gates said teachers will be called and urged to sign the contracts. The negotiators for both sides also agreed to add another pay scale for teachers with 13 years of experience who hold bachelor's degrees and 30 or more hours of additional education. Elementary teachers will get two 30-minute duty-free preparation periods a week and duty-free lunch periods. The 7 percent salary increase is half a percent less than agreed last week. The teachers' negotiating team accepted the lower figure because the money from the additional half percent will go toward hiring an elementary physical education teacher, and thus give the 46 elementary teachers the preparation time requested.

The district agreed to pay full medical coverage only for the 1979-80 school year. It also agreed to administer a dental plan for the teachers, with the teachers paying the entire premium.

School board Chairman Jerry Galien said the board agreed to pay full medical coverage because the total premium will drop to $28.50 per employee per month. That is less than the district paid last year when teachers picked up part of the premium.

Two persons injured in motorcycle mishap

TWIN FALLS — Two persons were injured Thursday night in a car-motorcycle accident at the intersection of Second Avenue East and Fourth Street East.

Gary E. Marsh, about 22, a passenger on the motorcycle, was listed in fair condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Friday evening and Dee Mitchell Whitaker, 25, was treated and released Thursday night.

Twin Falls city police said Whitaker was operating the motorcycle, traveling north on Fourth Street. He apparently did not see the stop sign in time to stop his machine before he entered the intersection.

Cubs claiming record for 650-foot egg drop

TWIN FALLS — Publishers of the Guinness Book of World Records take note.

Cub Scouts of the Falls District of the Snake River Area Boy Scout Council managed to drop 81 eggs from an altitude of 650 feet Friday afternoon without breaking them.

The 81 surviving eggs were part of 400 that were dropped from an airplane over the Dierkes Lake area during a Cub Scout Day Camp program.

Judy and Ramon Searle, Cub Scout commissioners and chairman of an annual two-day Cub Scout camp program, set up the egg drop as part of this year's special activities.

Mrs. Searle said each boy wrapped and packaged an egg with packages not permitted to exceed four inches square in size. One boy used just an egg carton portion with one egg in it and the egg landed unbroken.

Mrs. Searle said the plane was piloted by Lee Heider with Michael Barney as passenger and official egg dropper.

This is the first such program undertaken by Cub Scouts in Idaho, as far as Mrs. Searle knows, and the first time an egg has survived a 650 foot drop. The previous record was 600 feet. The Cub Scouts plan to submit their record achievement to the Guinness Book of World Records.

The leaders said the eggs were dropped in a field near the lake, but all didn't land where they were supposed to land.

"We had some that just did miss some of our spectators," she said.

Egg dropping was not the only activity at the day camp which will conclude about 8 p.m. today. A water fight with balloons and trash cans full of water concluded Friday's activities. It was Cub Scouts against the 125 leaders and the leaders lost, Mrs. Searle said.

Today the program will be highlighted by a fish scramble. A number of small pools will be built in the area and filled with 200 trout.

Children will try to catch the fish with their hands and the catches will be cooked for dinner tonight.

Costly trip for Graham

TWIN FALLS — Steven B. Graham, 18, of Twin Falls, thought a stroll through town would do him some good.

But the stroll was a costly one, landing Graham back in the Twin Falls County Jail with a $5,000 bond.

Graham was arrested June 7 on a first degree burglary charge by Twin Falls police. Magistrate Judge Daniel Mehl Wednesday released him to the Magic Valley Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center.

Graham left the center at 10:40 p.m. Thursday. He apparently wandered throughout Twin Falls until he was picked up by Twin Falls police at 1:51 p.m. Friday.

Graham's bail was ordered reinstated to $5,000. He is now in the Twin Falls County Jail.

QUESTION . . .

Because most of his friends have passed away, arranging pall bearers for his father's funeral will be difficult. Will you be able to do something about this for us?

ANSWER . . .

Serving as pall bearers at the funeral of a friend is one of the most solemn and respectful things we do as adults in our human relations with each other. We know, however, there may come a time when personal friends are not available, and should this happen the personal or our Funerals Home will serve as pall bearers.

When friends are available to serve as bearers, we contact them from a list furnished to us by the family. We advise the bearers of the time and place of the funeral service and furnish their transportation when requested to do so.

Shobans to cut back fishing

FORT HALL (UPI) — The Shoshone-Bannock Tribal Council, after meeting Friday, announced plans to close all fishing for the rest of 1979, said Friday. It would not fish in its treaty waters until Sept. 16.

Tribal Chairman Gilbert Teton threw out a proposal by Gov. John V. Evans and Interior Department officials, calling it "another attempt to buy off Indians with beads and trinkets."

Evans had offered the Shoshone-Bannocks a "symbolic" fishery July 7-8, then suspension of fishing for the rest of the year in an effort to save the endangered chinook salmon, which is returning to its spawning grounds in Idaho at a record low number this year.

The governor also offered the Indians delivery of 2,000 hatchery jacks and spawned salmon from several Columbia river fish hatcheries. The Nezperce Tribe already has agreed to a similar pact with the government.

"Two endangered species are at stake here — preservation of the chinook and the treaty rights of the Shoshone-Bannocks," Teton said.

"If the salmon survives, people should thank the Shoshone-Bannocks," Teton added, blasting the state and federal governments for allowing the chinook salmon to be over-harvested in the Pacific Ocean and harshly affected by Columbia River dams.

U of I cuts approved

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — The state Board of Education approved program and personnel reductions for two University of Idaho programs Friday despite concern over the future of agricultural research in three northern Idaho counties.

The board acted on recommendations by university President Richard Gibb to implement a board approved declaration of financial exigency for agricultural research and the cooperative extension service.

Both programs received fiscal year 1980 appropriations which fell short of most controversial was Gibb's recommendation to eliminate two positions at the Sandpoint Agricultural Research Station, although College of Agriculture Dean Aulis Mullins said the station would be maintained as a field testing site and the area will be served through other College of Agriculture personnel.

But Mullins agreed service would be reduced at Sandpoint and at other stations throughout Idaho because of an inadequate legislative appropriation.

"We can't cut $500,000 out of our programs of extension and research without reducing service," Mullins said.

He added he hopes one day the state will again provide "continuing basic support for programs that are an investment in Idaho's future."

Don Howe of Bonners Ferry, a past president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, said the Sandpoint station is the only one in Idaho with forest-type soil.

More Bible carrying airmen relieved at Mountain Home

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — The controversy over Mountain Home Air Force Base security policemen and their Bibles continues to smolder with two security airmen being relieved of their duties Thursday after being observed carrying Bibles.

Capt. George Thus, base information officer, said airmen Doug Bickford, Klamath Falls, Ore., and Chris Christensen, New York City, were relieved pending an investigation for dereliction of duty.

honorably discharge from the Air Force after refusing to stop carrying his Bible while on guard duty.

Bickford said he and Christensen reported for guard duty Thursday and were carrying their Bibles. He said they were approached by Senior Master Sgt. Lynn Gilk, who checked their orders and relieved them of duty.

Air Force officials say reading of the Bible or any other reading material while on duty violates regulations.

Thus said among actions Grover may take against Bickford and Christensen are dropping the charges and issuing a letter of reprimand to the airmen or recommending formal military court action.

Top fiddler

WEISER (UPI) — First place in the men's division of the National Oldtime Fiddlers Contest at Weiser was won Thursday night by Rick Younsford, 24.

He beat out Jim Hoels of Ashland, Ore., who placed second, and Stan Gurnsey of Kirkland, Wash., who received third place honors.

Youngblood, who placed third in the 1979 Idaho State Open, won for his performances of Forked Deer, Chancellor Waltz and Twinkle Twinkle Little Star.

Search continues for pilot's body

GRANGEVILLE (UPI) — Forest Service officials said Friday searchers would patrol the Selway River over the weekend, looking for the body of the pilot of the DC-3 that crashed June 11.

Forest Service spokesman Steve Waterman also said salvage workers would attempt to lift a major piece of the aircraft from the river with a logging helicopter.

The recovery operation, scheduled for first light Sunday, was postponed Wednesday because of inclement weather. Waterman said the weather forecast for Sunday "looks good."

Nine persons are known dead as a result of the crash, while two others survived. The pilot, Marvin "Whitley" Hachmeister of Boise, the 12th occupant of the Forest Service plane when it dropped an engine and went down, is the only one not accounted for.

"We think the body will come up now," Waterman said. "They say a body in the water will come up from the bottom anywhere from nine days to three weeks, depending on how cold the water is. It's been nearly two weeks, so we plan to have a river watch this weekend."

"If the pilot is not in the wing section to be lifted out of the river Sunday, then we will go back to searching the pools and eddies with divers like we did in finding the other bodies," Waterman said.

Hot water incentives proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church Friday introduced legislation to speed up the commercial utilization of geothermal resources, including those in Idaho.

Church said he hopes the bill will be included as part of an omnibus energy development bill now pending before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. He said hearings on the bill will be scheduled next month.

The Idaho Democrat said the present laws encouraging development of geothermal resources are outdated and cumbersome.

"If we're ever going to develop this attractive alternative resource, we have to provide incentives for industry to take the necessary risks to get the job done," Church said.

"Government-sponsored pilot projects are helpful in developing geothermal technology, but now we need to get industry moving into the field to develop this resource."

The bill establishes a federal loan program to encourage industry to drill geothermal wells, covering 50 percent of the costs of drilling and confirmation of wells. The bill also sets limits on the time officials have to consider applications of leases.

Another section changes the acreage limitation for leasing from 20,000 acres to a limit, allowing developers to lease up to 12 sites per state.

Watson up by three-strokes

OAKVILLE, Ontario (UPI)—Tom Watson, disregarding heavy winds and the "fear factor" shot an aggressive 3-under-par 69 Friday for a three-stroke lead after two rounds of the $350,000 Canadian Open golf championships.

"I'd rather be in the lead than behind," the leading PGA money winner said in dismissing a suggestion he should play more conservatively and make a late charge for the $63,000 winner's purse.

"That's the fear-factor...the fear of leading."

Watson, shooting for his fifth PGA title, came through the first two rounds at the Glen Abbey course with a 7-under 135.

"When you're behind, you make mistakes and you suffer for it. This way you have more room for mistakes."

Of the players who finished in the top 10 Thursday, only Watson and Donald Weir, an obscure Michigan pro in his second year on the tour, withstood the 25 mph winds to break

Briefly in sports

WR wins
JEROME — Bob Shay blasted a two-run home run to lead the Wood River American Legion to an 11-7 victory over Jerome Thursday night.

Shay's home run came in the first inning. Wood River mounted a 3-0 lead.

"We just went cold at the bat," said Coach Marty Hurd of Jerome. "And Wood River played one of its best games of the year."

After Wood River mounted a 4-1 lead, Jerome stormed back with a Brad Calkins home run and doubles by Bob Adams and Terry Kestle to take a 5-4 lead.

The loss dropped Jerome's record to 6-4 on the year, while Wood River is now 4-9.

Slalom today

MAGIC RESERVOIR — A water ski slalom is being held today at the Hot Springs Landing.

Sponsored by the Liquid Powder Water Ski Club, a newly organized group in the Wood River Valley is sponsoring the event. It is 4-8 a.m. and continues throughout the day.

Member Wes Nash of Ketchum said boats will be provided, and a number of donated demonstration skis will be available for use. Area merchants have donated prizes with the categories in the slalom to include novice, intermediate, and expert divisions.

At a similar event held late last summer, 60 contestants and about 150 spectators were on hand.

Track meet

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (UPI) — Rinaldo Nemeiah and Greg Foster will be among the missing, but many of the big names in track and field will compete today in the first New Jersey Olympic Track Classic at Rutgers University.

Nemeiah, who ran in Europe this week, and Foster, his chief competitor, have elected to skip the outdoor invitational Olympic fund-raising meet, leaving the 100-meter hurdles rather weak. But a formidable group of the key 1980 Olympic figures will be there and several exciting matchups are slated.

The Invitational Mile — 1,500 meters — may be the best competition of the day, with New Zealand's John Walker, who won the Olympic gold medal at Montreal in 1976, probably set to go against the likes of NCAA champion Don Paige of Villanova, who finished second to Steve Scott in the 1,500 meters at the AAU championships in Walnut, Calif. last week, and Steve Lacy, who finished fifth. Meet officials are also hoping to induce South Africa's Sidney Marce into the mile.

Memphis State

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The NCAA put Memphis State University's football and basketball programs on two-year probation Friday, but immediately cut the penalty in half because of the university's help in investigating recruiting violation charges.

Officials with the NCAA Infractions Committee in Shawnee, Kansas, said the second year of probation was suspended because the university showed it "is committed at the present time to full compliance with the NCAA legislation."

Jazz trade

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls Friday traded guard Wilbur Holland to the Utah Jazz for guard Ricky Williams.

Holland, 28, a 6-foot guard with the Bulls for four seasons, averaged 14 points per game last season.

Williams, 22, a 6-foot-1 1/2 guard drafted by the New Orleans Jazz in the 1978 NBA college draft as a junior eligible, opted to return to Long Beach for his senior year. His total collegiate scoring average was 13.1.

Celtics deal

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics, with little hope of getting the swift guard they need out of next Monday's draft, are again letting Ernie DiGregorio know they are still interested — but only on their terms.

"We are interested in Ernie DiGregorio, we always have been," Boston Assistant General Manager Jeff Cohen said Thursday.
