

OPEC prices rises up to 24%

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — OPEC Thursday increased the price of oil by at least 24 percent in a move that will boost U.S. fuel prices 4 1/2 to 5 cents per gallon, and blamed the hike on the thirst for energy in industrial nations like the United States.

Although the 24 percent increase was slanted on the base price of oil, which went from $14 to $17.40 a barrel, the oil cartel also approved a series of price differentials that will boost the average price above $20 with a $23.50 price ceiling.

The 13 member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said their new prices would take effect July 1 and last through the end of this year.

However, if the effect of 1979's cumulative price increases — 33 percent in March and 24 percent now shook the world's financial equilibrium and devalue the oil producers' U.S. dollars, they said they might ask even a further increase before the end of the year.

Even Saudi Arabia, which fought to keep the price increase moderate, said further action might be necessary if the Arabs and other oil producers suffered a 5 percent dip in the value of their petrodollars.

The Saudi oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, speaking softly and showing the strain of three days of tough bargaining, told reporters at the end of the conference that it was up to the Western world "as consumers" to determine how long the new prices remained in force.

Unless the advanced industrial nations cut consumption and focus on alternative energy sources, "We are going to face a real disaster," he warned. Estimates of the new prices' effect on the United States ranged between 1 1/2 and 5 cents per gallon on all fuel products — gasoline, diesel fuel, home heating oil. U.S. analysts said the effects of the increase would be felt in 30 to 60 days.

In addition to boosting the base or "benchmark" oil price to $18 per barrel, the OPEC ministers continued the surcharge system they formalized in March — allowing individual nations to add extra fees in a whatever-the-market-can-bear system.

They also continued the long-standing system of allowing "market premiums" for high-quality oils but at the same time set a $23.50 per barrel price ceiling.

Saudi Arabia said it would stick to the new "benchmark" price of $18 per barrel, but a majority of the other producers promptly announced prices of $20 and more.

Libya said it would go all the way to the $23.50 limit — a 61.6 percent jump over the March base level.

Iran said its price would be between $21 and $22 per barrel. The United Arab Emirates said its price would be between $21.36 and $21.56 per barrel.

In what amounted to an ultimatum on the value of the U.S. dollar, which OPEC uses for its oil deals, the group said it would convene a special meeting and might abandon the greenback as a price standard if its value eroded further.

"If the dollar goes down by more than 5 percent I think this will be a good justification for some members of OPEC to call for an extraordinary conference," Yamani said.

Big Seven leaders work on compromise to conserve energy

TOKYO (UPI) — President Carter and leaders of the world's six other industrial giants bargained down to the wire today on a compromise plan to cut oil imports each country battling to defend its interests.

Carter and leaders of Japan, British, West Germany, France, Canada and Italy held a 2 1/2 hour meeting on the final day of the Tokyo energy summit to consider a draft compromise reached by their aides in all-night bargaining.

They were unable to agree during the morning session and told their foreign ministers and energy aides to redouble their compromise efforts on the so-called Tokyo declaration.

Carter warned that the United States and its industrial partners face an "economic watershed" over the new oil prices, and said it is "imperative" they cooperate to conserve energy.

"There is no one in the world," Carter said, "who will fail to suffer from these extraordinary increases."

The leaders broke for a Japanese-style lunch served by kimono-clad attendants before plunging back into the effort to resolve their differences on how to cut the West's oil imports by 2 million barrels a day.

In the face of a 24 percent price increase Thursday by oil-producing nations, each country at the summit was arguing about its need for proportionately larger energy supplies.

Canadian Prime Minister Joe Clark, for example, spent 25 minutes expounding on "Canada's special needs," a spokesman said, adding "most of the other countries can accept targets which we cannot."

He said the compromise agreement would establish oil import goals until 1985, but there would be "separate commitments" by Japan, Canada and the United States as opposed to the European bloc.

A European delegate earlier said the compromise was beginning to fall into place and a high-ranking U.S. official said the Big Seven were "clearly tending in the direction of a compromise."

Carter's warning was somber. "The OPEC nations have just increased their prices again by an extraordinary amount. The cumulative effect of these increases has been a 60 percent increase in the price of oil since last December," Carter said in a prepared statement. "This causes an economic watershed for the United States and the rest of the world. There is no one on earth who will fall to suffer from these extraordinary increases in oil prices."

At the heart of remaining differences was the American insistence that each of the seven countries accept specific commitments for the remainder of 1979 and for 1980 on reducing their imports of crude oil. Japan and Canada aligned themselves with the Americans.

"One agreement that emerged on the first day of the summit was a vague commitment to 'significantly increase' the Big Seven's intake of Vietnamese refugees. Only the United States, in a separate statement, made a specific commitment — offering to double the number of boat people it accepts each month, from 7,000 to 14,000.

Japanese security measures, which transformed the New Otani and Okura hotels into virtual fortresses, failed to prevent a smoke bomb from exploding in one vacant room. An extremist group claimed responsibility.

The radicals warned their next target would be the Okura, prompting police to conduct a search of every room. Most of the leaders and their aides are staying in the two hotels and 30,000 police in Tokyo have transformed them into virtual armed camps.

Four thousand leftists also staged 10 separate demonstrations around Tokyo to protest the summit.

Windfall measure approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House members, anxious to report they had acted on energy before facing gas line weary constituents during the July 4th holiday, Thursday approved a 60 percent windfall oil profits tax bill but not the tougher, 70 percent tax rate sought by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The legislation passed by a voice vote after daylong debate. It now goes to the Senate, where it is expected to undergo substantial changes.

President Carter, originally proposed a 50 percent tax rate for the windfall profits expected to accrue to producers from the phase-out of price controls which began June 1.

Before passing the windfall tax bill the House defeated, 229-188, a Republican effort to recommit it to the committee with instructions that oil companies be allowed tax credits on windfall revenues plowed back into increased oil production.

The House also defeated, 241-172, an amendment by Reps. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., and James Shannon, D-Mass., that would have prolonged the period during which price controls would have been phased out on already discovered oil from July 1984 to May 1985.

In the highlight vote of the day, the House approved, 236-183, an amendment by Reps. James Jones, D-Okla., and Henson Moore, R-La., cutting the tax rate to 60 percent from the 70 percent figure sought by the committee.

The House wanted to complete action on the windfall profits tax legislation before facing constituents angered by gasoline shortages and soaring prices at the pump.

Reducing the windfall profits tax rate from 70 percent to 60 percent would cut the tax bite by at least $6 billion, according to congressional staff figures produced before the oil producing nations announced their latest crude oil price hikes.

The House decision disregarded a warning from Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore. "If you go home with anything less than 70 percent," Ullman said during Thursday's debate, "you are going to have problems."

The windfall tax would be effective Jan. 1, 1980.

Cattle and crops looking for an exit

By LONNIE ROSENWALD Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Cherries, potatoes, grain and cattle may not get out of Idaho this week.

As the nationwide strike by independent truckers finished its second week, Idaho had only spots of trouble. Although independents haul 85 percent of all farm goods in the country, most crops here haven't been harvested yet.

This year's cherry crop and last year's potatoes and grain are having troubles though.

Wilson Kellogg, director of the Idaho Department of Agriculture, said 75 percent of the state's cherry crop is being put in brine because "farmers can't depend on getting them to market."

Some shipments of stored grain from north Idaho and some incoming food shipments are being held up, Kellogg said. But major supermarkets in Twin Falls have their own truck fleets to haul food from Salt Lake City distribution centers.

In southern Idaho, the strike has primarily hurt trucking itself, potato shipping and cattle shipping.

Austin Hall's truck brokerage office in Twin Falls is normally a busy depot from which 300 to 400 trucks depart every day on contract to producers and receivers all over the West.

Thursday only 25 trucks went out. Staff in the quiet office is down more than a third, through vacations and layoffs.

Hall, head of the largest truck brokerage in the Magic Valley, tries to console an idle trucker over the phone.

"I'm sure things will start moving here, hopefully in the next few days," he told him.

Hanging up he said, "It's got to break. These trucks have got to move, and the consumers can't afford it either."

Hall said most of the stalled shipments are potatoes.

"Our volume is down by about 30 percent," said Don Rasmussen of Holland Jones Potatoes, a Rupert shipper. The firm usually ships two trucks a day, but this week it couldn't get any trucks until Thursday.

Cattle buyer Frank Baker said cattle sales are off and prices have suffered. A chain reaction, starting at feedlots in the Midwest, is slowing the industry, Baker said.

Packers aren't buying because they're afraid they won't be able to ship the beef. As a result, cattle are "piling up in feedlots," according to Baker.

Prices stayed steady this week, instead of rising the predicted $3 to $4 a hundredweight, he said.

Some feedlots, like Olmstead's in Twin Falls, have their own trucks, and haven't been hurt.

The McFort beef packing plant in Boise can't find enough veal and poultry.

Even if truckers wanted to drive — and most don't — Hall said he's reluctant to dispatch them.

Manager Pete Peterson said "I personally don't want a driver to get hurt, or a truck to get burned," he said.

Idaho tops the millionaires-per-capita list

©N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — You don't have to be a Rockefeller or a Ford to be a millionaire today. With a little help from inflation, the once-exclusive class of American millionaires is no longer a tight little club. Some 520,000 Americans — 0.25 percent of the United States population — qualify as of the middle of this year, according to a marketing study released by the U.S. Trust Corp.

The distribution of millionaires around the United States is uneven. Not surprisingly, those states with the most population tend also to have the most millionaires. For example, New York tops the list with 51,631 millionaires. California ranks second with 33,509, while Illinois comes in third with 31,138.

But when it comes to millionaires per 1,000 population, the most populated states fall far behind. Surprisingly, Idaho heads that list with 28.65 millionaires per 1,000 people. Maine is second with 7.72 per 1,000.

Poorest in millionaire production is Wyoming; with only 84 — 0.19 per 1,000 people.

Although neither the bank nor anyone else actually has a list of these millionaires, the trust company has developed a computer model that calculates the millionaire population in the United States. This is the first year that the results have been released publicly, although U.S. Trust has spun out the projections internally for more than a decade and says they come close to the data on wealth occasionally published by the government.

"The market we seek is the high net worth individual, and we regard this as pretty reliable information," said Thomas A. Meffe, executive vice president at U.S. Trust, which manages some $6 billion in personal assets. "We draw on a lot of different sources to make these projections." Meffe said, including the surveys of wealth published occasionally by the Internal Revenue Service. (The last government data available are from 1972.)

The number of millionaires in America this year is up 15 percent from mid-1978, when there were 450,000 millionaires, the trust company figures show. A millionaire was defined as someone with a net worth of $1 million; it did not include debt. The two most recent government studies of wealth in the United States put the number of millionaires at 121,000 in 1969 and at 180,000 in 1972.

"Real estate ownership plays a big role in millionaire density," explained Meffe. "Individuals who own a great deal of land, particularly in some of the farming states, find themselves millionaires very quickly because of the large increases in land values," he said.

The Northeastern region of the country appears to have more than its share of millionaires relative to its population.

owner farms and therefore a concentration of wealth. He contrasted this trend with land sales in the Midwest and California. A steady population growth in the Midwest has meant farmland there is more often converted to housing. In California it is corporations, rather than individuals, who have purchased much of the farmland.

"The number of farms is way down, compared to what it was in 1935," said Carlson. "A tremendous consolidation has been going on."

He said in Idaho the sale of farmland has led to bigger single-

Change of venue?

MIAMI (UPI) — Defense attorneys, prompted by a prospective juror who said Miami women are so frightened of Theodore Bundy to serve on his jury, asked Thursday night that Bundy's murder trial be moved a second time.

The motion for a second change of venue was filed by defense attorney Margaret Good during a late evening session that ended with 11 jurors tentatively seated.

Chief Circuit Court Judge Edward Cowart, who earlier this month moved the trial from Tallahassee to Miami, did not say when he would rule on the motion.

Nuclear plant plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to polish an image badly tarnished at Three Mile Island, the nuclear industry Thursday unveiled a multi-million dollar program featuring a reactor safety watchdog group.

The new Nuclear Operations Institute will establish and enforce reactor safety standards with the cooperation of participating utilities, Floyd Lewis, chairman of Middle South Utilities of New Orleans, announced for the industry.

FAA under fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal safety investigators Thursday accused the Federal Aviation Administration of taking a lax attitude toward safety violations by small commuter airlines.

The criticism by the National Transportation Safety Board was contained in a report on the Sept. 2, 1976, crash of an Antilles Air-Boats amphibious plane near Ft. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

New York chosen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic Party decided Thursday to return to New York City and the scene of Jimmy Carter's 1976 triumph for its 1980 presidential convention.

The vote was not even close. Twenty-three members of the party's site selection committee backed the Big Apple while three went for Detroit and two for Philadelphia.

Bank robbery

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (UPI) — Four men held a bank manager and his brother hostage in their home for several hours Thursday, forced the manager to open the bank vault and escaped with at least $100,000, the FBI said.

The heist at a branch of the Citizens National Bank of Waukegan apparently was well-planned, FBI spokesman George Mandich said, because one-inch thick cables to the television cameras inside the bank were severed.

Protests rejected

By United Press International

Prime Minister Menachem Begin Thursday rejected U.S. protests about Israel's use of American-made F-15 Eagle jets in dogfights with Syrian warplanes over Lebanon.

Begin said the F-15s — the most modern planes in the Israeli arsenal — were carrying out a legitimate act of self-defense Wednesday when they shot down five Syrian warplanes over Lebanon, an official spokesman said.

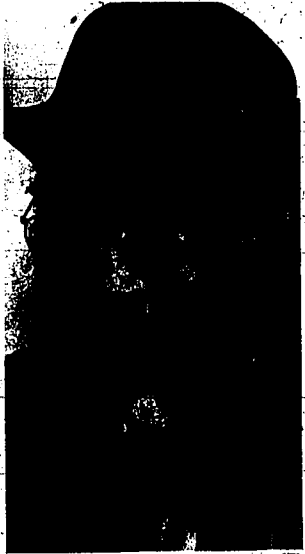

SALT II talk

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — The United States got the best possible deal in the SALT II negotiations: "a draw," says the former U.S. chief negotiator.

The strategic arms limitation treaty doesn't provide enough arms reduction in his opinion, Ambassador Paul Warnke, who headed the U.S. negotiating team until Oct. 31, 1978, said Wednesday. "But it's a very significant beginning. I could devise a much better treaty than SALT II. (But) I couldn't negotiate it."

"In a sense, an arms control treaty has to be a draw. The side that loses would not accept defeat."

The treaty improves U.S. security and ensures that our retaliatory force is stronger than the Soviet strike potential, said Warnke, who now is special consultant to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

The real thing

The nation's new silver dollar, scheduled to go into circulation July 2, is pronounced the real thing by Shad Heller, the Silver Dollar City, Mo., blacksmith. The new Susan B. Anthony dollar coin costs 9 cents to make against 1.8 cents for the $1 bill, but it will last 10 times longer in circulation.

Closer look urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court told federal judges Thursday they must take a closer look at appeals by state prisoners who charge their convictions were based on insufficient evidence.

The court overruled, 5-3, its own 1960 decision that a U.S. judge reviewing such a claim need only consider whether there is "any evidence" to support a state-court conviction.

Indian suit

RENO (UPI) — A suit on file in U.S. District Court Thursday challenges a federal regulation requiring Indians to reside on or near their native reservation before they can receive Indian general assistance.

The Nevada Indian Legal Services brought the action against Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus on behalf of Frank Gladie, a North Dakota Chipewy who lives near the Elko Indian Colony, and Colburn Pete, a native of the Duckwater Reservation of Central Nevada who lives in North Las Vegas.

Tornadoes kill three

By United Press International

More than a dozen tornadoes ripped across the Northern Plains Thursday from North Dakota to northern Iowa, killing three people in Iowa and apparently causing extensive property damage in several areas.

The three victims were killed by tornadoes that churned through the Iowa communities of Manson and Algona.

Authorities said another twister tore through Mountain Lake, Minn., and extensive damage was reported by another slashed through the town of Nashua.

Elsewhere, an unrelenting heat wave blistered the Southwest and a band of thunderstorms played havoc with the nation's midlands, pushing rivers over their banks and sending tornadoes racing over the flatlands.

House votes to let Carter keep Rhodesian sanctions

By DON PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted Thursday night to allow President Carter to maintain sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia, giving Carter one of his greatest foreign policy victories in Congress.

The victory could be short-lived, however, because the Senate voted earlier to end sanctions immediately. The vastly differing bills must be reconciled in House-Senate conference committee.

Technically, the House voted to end sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia on Oct. 15 unless Carter declares it is in the national interest to continue them. The practical effect of the bill, therefore, is to allow Carter to do anything he wants to do.

The House first rejected an effort by conservatives to remove sanctions effective Dec. 1.

In one of the more emotional of recent House debates, the House voted against an amendment by Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., which would have forced Carter to come back to Congress for permission to continue the sanctions beyond Dec. 1. The vote against the Broomfield amendment was 242-147.

The Senate had voted 52-41, to require Carter to lift the sanctions immediately.

Republicans and conservative Democrats heatedly contended that the government led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa was a freely elected majority government which should be recognized and encouraged by the United States.

"Either we believe in the ballot box or we don't," said Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., said that the underlying bill represented no change at all in Carter's powers and was a "totally wrongheaded and sanctimonious position."

However, most Democrats and a number of moderate Republicans said the ending sanctions would pull the rug from under Carter's Africa policy and would be against the best interests of the United States.

Why does Idaho top rich list?

A second factor is skyrocketing land values in the Boise area, says Carlson. Demand for land has jumped so fast in the last decade that established landowners were big winners.

But Carlson thinks the majority of the millionaires may have moved here within the last five to seven years for the scenery and the recreational opportunities. Modern transportation and communication now enable a businessman to live wherever he wants and run a corporation headquarters thousands of miles away, he said.

"He can plug a telephone into a computer terminal and get all the financial reports he needs," Carlson said, adding that a millionaire can always fly to an important meeting and be back in Idaho the next day.

Bank deposits per capita in the Sun Valley area are the highest in the state, he said, and the housing trend indicates an influx of middle-aged people rather than retired people.

Kenneth Middleton, manager of the First Security Bank in Keetchikan, agrees with Carlson's theory.

"There are a lot of people making a lot of money up here," Middleton said. "It's the same old story: if you have money, you make more money. The rest of us just sit and watch, usually."

Closed school may be leased or sold

Among the stories in tomorrow's Times-News:

- Minidoka County School Board members will consider either leasing or selling the now abandoned Pioneer School tonight. The six-classroom elementary school was closed after the district's override levy failed earlier this month. Because of pending financial shortages, the board opted to close the school, transferring students and teachers to other elementary schools in the district.

Congressmen wanting end to married bias

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cutting a wedding cake, a congresswoman and two senators called Thursday for an end to bias in the federal tax system against married working couples.

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., said if a bill the group has introduced passes, "we can let the wedding bells ring out all over the land."

Calling it a "quit in the tax code," Mathias said the tax penalty against married working couples "actually encourages two-earner couples to save money by divorcing and simply living together."

He said the Internal Revenue Service estimates more than half of all taxpayers are married, and that two-earner couples.

"In other words, as many as 38 million people ... are being discriminated against. They want and deserve an end to this inequity," Mathias said.

Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., who stood between Mathias and Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, to cut a wedding cake, told reporters, "We have about 1.8 million people living together in this nation who are not married. The marriage penalty tax is a big reason."

"We have a tax system that is a livid blow" to the nation's family structure, Mrs. Fenwick said. "It is destructive. This tax penalizes divorcees marriage. It just doesn't make sense."

Jepsen said he agreed and was glad to co-sponsor legislation to correct the situation.

Under present income tax law, if two working people get married, their taxes usually rise because their combined income pushes them into a higher tax bracket.

House delays food stamp vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Thursday delayed until after the July 4 congressional recess a vote on a proposal to increase authorized food stamp spending.

The measure, intended to prevent foodstamp cutbacks this summer, had been scheduled for a vote Thursday, but was removed from the agenda following the lengthy debate on the windfall profits tax bill.

The House, after a brief session Friday, was scheduled to recess until July 9. The food stamp bill will be rescheduled when Congress returns.

The food stamp bill would raise the ceiling on fiscal 1979 food stamp spending by $20 billion to $6.8 billion to prevent across-the-board cutbacks in benefits in August or September.

The authorization ceiling was imposed by Congress in 1977 to try to place limits on the rising spending for food stamps.

But spending this fiscal year is close to hitting the ceiling because greater-than-expected food inflation has pushed up costs of the program.

Cooler and windier weather for Saturday

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert and Gooding-Jerome area:

Continued hot today, turning cooler and windy Saturday. Fair weather. Fairly clear tonight and Saturday with chance of a few thundershowers and associated strong gusty winds. Overnight lows 50s, highs today mid-90s, and mid-90s Saturday.

Halley, Camas Prairie and Wood River-Valley:

Hot today, turning cooler and windy Saturday. Fair tonight except for chance of isolated afternoon and evening thundershowers. Lows in the 40s, highs today near 90 and Saturday 80 to 85.

Synopsis:

Mostly clear skies and a little cooler temperatures were the rule over Idaho Wednesday. Fair weather continued Thursday but temperatures warmed into the mid-80s and 90s at most stations Thursday afternoon. Lows generally were in the upper 40s and 50s.

High level moisture again moved into the area from the southwest and should bring a few widely scattered thundershowers to the extreme southwestern section. Thundershowers will be a little more general across the area Friday and Saturday during afternoon and evening hours.

Haying outlook for Sunday through Tuesday shows cooling temperatures and scattered showers or thundershowers, especially Monday and Tuesday, which will hinder drying.

Spraying forecasts calls for winds 5 to 10 mph this morning, becoming 10 to 15 mph in the afternoon with strong gusty winds in the vicinity of thundershowers.

Utah and Nevada show similar trends, fair and hot today and Saturday, with gusty winds developing in the afternoons.

Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Friday, June 29, the 180th day of 1979 with 185 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Saturn and Jupiter.

The birth on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

William Mayo, founder of the famed Rochester, Minn., Medical Center bearing his name, was born June 29, 1861.

On this day in history:

In 1846, two years before Israel became a nation, the British arrested more than 2,700 Jews in an effort to put down terrorism in Palestine.

In 1970, the last American troops were drawn back into South Vietnam from Cambodia.

In 1972, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled capital punishment, as then administered, was unconstitutional. It also ruled sources of information must be revealed to state grand juries.

In 1977, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the death penalty could not be used in punishment for rape.

A thought for the day: British poet Lord Byron said, "Speak not of men's creeds. They rest between man and his maker."

Somoza vows to remain as president

Friday, June 29, 1979 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-3

Sardinista guerrillas share lunch during a break in fighting.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The United States asked President Anastasio Somoza to resign Thursday "in the name of humanity," but the Nicaraguan strongman vowed to stay in office and said he would dissolve congress if it asked him to quit.

The congress had been called into session at noon Thursday, but it was unable to obtain a quorum because opposition members, apparently taking Somoza at his word, boycotted the meeting.

About 1,500 Sandinista guerrillas and their teenage volunteer supporters pulled out of eastern Managua under cover of darkness early Thursday to spare the civilian population further punishment from the national guard. The guerrillas had held the area for nearly a month.

Guard patrols had moved through the eerily quiet eastern sector almost all the way to the outskirts of the city by Thursday noon, finding only abandoned trenches and barricades and frightened civilians in their shanties.

"We left because the bombings were hurting the civilian population too much," a Sandinista commander told UPI correspondent William F. Gentile. The Sandinistas headed for the rebel-held city of Masaya south of the capital.

U.S. sources said the new American ambassador to Nicaragua, Lawrence A. Pezalla, personally delivered a "strong letter" from President Carter to Somoza.

Carter's message urged Somoza, whose family has ruled Nicaragua for 43 years, to resign "in the name of humanity and for the good of the country," the sources said.

Chicago mayor speaks on success of women

By Jane Byrne, Mayor of Chicago
1979 Chicago Sun-Times

Editor's note: Mayor Byrne delivered this talk, one of her first statements on women's issues since she took office, at a meeting of The Chicago Network, a new group of women in business, the professions and the arts.

It's important for women to recognize each other as part of a group to which we all belong: a group with higher expectations.

More often than not, we women in business and the professions become single-minded in our careers and think: Where can I go from here? But as we can see from looking at women in the Chicago area, we have proceeded in a wide variety of directions — from international labor leaders to university presidents. And each has succeeded in a different way. We have to look again and recognize each other, not only to praise, but to help one another and strengthen the stature of our own position — as the influence of women in the professional world widens.

I can understand this concept of a women's network especially well after my experiences in the two recent elections. Between my efforts without the Democratic organization during the primary and then with its support in the general election showed me that, while an organization cannot make you a success, it can certainly lighten your burdens. We don't exist in a vacuum; we have to become familiar with all the resources available to us if we want to succeed in this increasingly complex world. We can learn from one another at the same time that we create role models for girls and young women just entering the job market.

There is still an enormous job to do in informing women of their professional potential. Although the number of women in the labor force has doubled during the past generation, the proportion of women in low-level jobs has increased steadily. Although the number of working mothers rises every year in this country, the federal government has yet to establish an equitable national day-care program. Although the number of women returning to the labor force after childbearing constantly increases, we have done little to utilize the potential of part-time labor. These and other situations illustrate the fact that, although successful women are in the spotlight more than ever before, we still have a long way to go before women as a group are treated equally.

The increasing demands of the economy will affect women at work as rising costs force more women to augment family incomes and rising unemployment forces greater competition for jobs. Things will become more difficult for many women before they get easier.

I hope that women in leadership positions will be able to address these issues and bring about some real changes in corporate, educational and industrial policy through their pooled influence.

At the same time, however, we have to recognize that there are certain things a network of business and professional-women simply cannot do. It can't make a success out of anyone. A woman must have the brains, the instincts and the determination to succeed before she can take advantage of any opportunity or the effort which will be made.

Many of us are old enough to remember that when we began our careers, there were few or no role models for us. When I became commissioner of consumer sales for the City of Chicago, there were no other female commissioners for me to talk with. When I was widowed and had to raise an infant child alone, there were no women's groups to give me advice.

I had to learn, by trial and error and careful thinking, what the best ways were for me to live my life and solve the problems I faced. I am sure that most women in business and professions today can say the same. Although that made our lives harder, it also gave us the experience and the final sense of accomplishment that now adds dimension to our achievements. I hope that women will continue to look to themselves for the individual characteristics that shape their own successes.

I also hope women recognize that, in some way, all of us are public figures, and that we will be more visible and more accountable in our jobs than any man. We when we take sides in an issue, and I certainly hope we've put an end to comments about women's proverbial monthly moods.

However, we'll continue to be judged more strictly on our professional and personal conduct, and our successes and failures will be closely watched. We all have to learn to endure the spotlight and to live normally in spite of a certain unavoidable public scrutiny.

In all of this, we must look at ourselves not as women, not as part of a group in the job market, not as a statistical phenomenon — but as individuals, as capable human beings. The next phase of the women's movement will, I think, be less social and more emotional, as women learn to live productively with their increased responsibilities.

The successful woman of the next decade will have a marked advantage over us in many ways, but she may lack the experience that comes from pitting herself against the challenges of the real world. I hope that we do not turn women into a false realization that the climb to equality is over. In reality, it is just beginning.

When women learn to respect personal strength and discipline and to accept the responsibility for their own decisions, we'll see more successful women.

Mike Royko

Old no-war movement

CHICAGO — A major war has broken out among some of the chic members of the old anti-war movement.

I don't know all the gory details because I haven't seen a recent copy of the New York's Village Voice, which keeps up on such things. But the conflict was touched off by Joan Baez, the folk singer, and all-purpose socialist activist.

Ms. Baez, who used to sympathize with the North Vietnamese when we were blowing them up, recently placed an ad in several major newspapers, telling the Vietnamese government off for the way it is now brutalizing people.

The advertisement said: "Instead of bringing hope and reconciliation to war-torn Vietnam, your government has created a painful nightmare that overshadows significant progress achieved in many areas of Vietnamese society."

Before placing the ad, Ms. Baez asked other well-known anti-war people to sign their name to it. Some did, such as poet Allen Ginsberg, who achieved great fame in 1963 by sitting in Chicago's Grant Park chanting "Ommmm, ommmm, ommmm."

But surprisingly, many of the most prominent former doves refused to sign.

That seems inconsistent. If they did not like this country abusing the Vietnamese, then they should also disapprove of the present Vietnamese government abusing the Vietnamese.

However, some of the doves said that the torturing and imprisoning of people in Vietnam is just sort of a growing pain by the new government, and they don't want to criticize it prematurely. I guess that means that the Vietnamese government will eventually finish torturing and imprisoning people it doesn't like, and then will become a benign, kindly government.

The most surprising rejection of the ad came from actress Jane Fonda and her husband Tom Hayden, who used to be a leader of the anti-war movement.

As 1960s historians will recall, Ms. Fonda abandoned a career as a screen sex symbol to become an anti-war activist, although the war was well under way before she finally noticed it was going on.

Her rejection of the ad disappointed Baez because Fonda is now this country's most famous, all-around, throbbing social conscience.

"I told Jane that her name would have meant more than anyone else's," said Baez.

"I'm sure that is true. Presumably, upon seeing Jane Fonda's name on the ad the Vietnamese government would have been horrified that she is mad at them. And someone in that government would have exclaimed: 'Oh, my, come and look quick, Comrade Win Sun Dun. Here is copy of ad placed in New York Times really telling us of good.'"

"For what, Comrade Yang Dang Bang?"

"If say we oppress people, torture them, put them in prison, and make them eat day-old egg roll."

"So? What's sense of winning war and being big boss if we can't kick people around?"

"Look at name here in ad. Name Jane Fonda."

"Oh my goodness. Jane Fonda mad at us? Jane Fonda, star of screen and winner of Oscar? You think same Jane Fonda?"

"Only one Jane Fonda."

"But she like us in old days."

"No more. She say we bad boys now."

"Oh, I feel terrible. What good is life, Jane Fonda no like us? What can we do?"

"Only one thing to do. Release all political prisoners. Stop torturing people. Become good guys."

"You think Jane Fonda forgive us then? Maybe give me autograph?"

"Maybe even autograph picture for wall."

"Oh, happy day, happy day. Release all prisoners." On the other hand, by now the Vietnamese government has seen the ad without Jane Fonda's name on it. And we can only guess at their reaction:

"Look this, Comrade Win Sun Dun. Ad in New York Times say a bunch of real vicious guys."

"Who cares what imperialist dogs say? Pass me Times crossword puzzle."

"But Joan Baez sign ad. She like us in old days when U.S. bomb us."

"So what? She just folk singer. Who cares what folk singer say? Tell truth, I do not even like her last record. Is Jane Fonda name on ad?"

"Let me look. No, no Jane Fonda name on ad."

"See? Jane Fonda, star of screen and Oscar winner still like us. And she big in People magazine. Joan Baez not big in People magazine."

"Then what we do is OK?"

"Sure, is OK. Go arrest 10,000 more people, put them in prison."

"Can I tickle feet and torture?"

"Pull out fingernails, too. They no like, tell them to call Joan Baez. Who cares? She no screen star."

Well, maybe some day Jane Fonda will change her mind and direct her awesome influence toward present conditions in Vietnam.

As soon as somebody writes an exciting script on the subject.

Counties waste their refuse

Solid waste is being wasted. The tons of garbage and junk that provide such a headache for counties to dispose of each day not only go into the earth as unused energy, they cause an expenditure of more energy.

Machines and manpower must bury the stuff in landfills.

Landfill sites fill up, and counties must purchase new ones.

Health regulations require extra effort and handling for certain materials.

The end result of most present day waste disposal is lost money and the real usefulness of waste makes this a shame.

But some counties in the Magic Valley are considering a solution to the problem that would help themselves out in the process.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Tommy Walker Sr. is excited about the possibilities and he should be.

Like many timely innovations, this one is simple and has a wide potential.

The solution is to buy a plant to burn the waste and produce steam for manufacturing, generating electricity or other purposes.

The plant is already on the market and in use. Sold by a Kirkland, Wash., firm, the "Consumat" plant eats a minimum of 100 tons of waste a day.

It only requires start-up fueling to get the fire going.

The cost is about $1.7 million, not including land.

Walker figures the plant would easily pay for itself since the county now spends about $200,000 annually on solid waste disposal.

Partial federal funding may be available from the Department of Energy. What's more, the plant is a revenue producer. The burning waste heats water into steam. That could be sold directly to manufacturers or processors or used to generate electricity.

Walker says two firms in the area are interested in purchasing steam or power from such a plant.

The county would then be deriving revenue from what is now a money drain.

Garbage burning has other assets.

Ash from the plant could be used for such things as road construction.

The plant can burn sludge from sewage treatment plants.

Walker says if the county failed to interest anyone in buying steam or electricity, the energy could power an alcohol still to use excess crops and crop waste products.

Another by-product is recyclable metals gleaned from the garbage. These also can be sold.

The Washington firm's plant is already in use at Bellingham, Wash., and a Virginia town.

Cassia County and Twin Falls County are both investigating the garbage burning operation and others in the Magic Valley are interested.

A close look at the plant and discussion with those who use it should be made, and if warranted a study of its feasibility here should be commissioned.

The opportunity to take the present burden on every county's back and turn it into a benefit sounds good enough to be true.

Some alternate plans for Skylab's fall

By ROGER SIMON
1979 Chicago Sun-Times

By now, some of you may know that a 77-ton, 12-story monster space station called Skylab is going to come crashing to Earth in the next few weeks.

Scientists, who now predict July 12 the most likely for Skylab to fall on us, say they may at the last minute be able to "bump" Skylab to less-populated areas if it looks like Skylab is heading for Big Ben or the Eiffel Tower or Disneyland.

These are, of course, the same scientists who goofed up with Skylab in the first place, so Skylab may land just about any place, not land at all, head for Pluto or turn into green cheese for all we know.

Since first writing about Skylab a few days ago, I have received hundreds of phone calls from readers asking the same thing: Why don't we blow it up with a missile?

This, I thought, was a good question. So I called the Skylab people, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), Christine Duncan of NASA told me the following:

"We don't really have a missile that could disintegrate it. We don't have anything powerful enough. It would just blow it into chunks. Then, it would be harder to keep track of all the chunks as it fell. We'd prefer it to stay one big chunk until the very end."

I admit that Ms. Duncan's statement surprised me. I thought that for all those billions of dollars we spent on missiles, we'd have one big enough to take care of a crummy 77-ton object. I thought we could blow up the Kremlin if we wanted to.

This plan will not prevent death or injury, but it will make the relatives feel better.

— The S.L.E.W. Plan: This stands for Skylab Early Warning. Groups of unemployed youths will be given federal funds to stand atop tall buildings (the World Trade Center in New York, the Sears Tower in Chicago, the Walgreens in Omaha) and yell when they see Skylab.

Government approved yells include:

"Yoo-hoo! It's falling!"

"Oh-oh!"

"Way!"

problem is to let the price of gas go up as high as possible so that poor people can no longer drive.

Next month, if Skylab falls on the poor, it would solve their other problems, like eating and breathing.

Some criticism of this plan has already been made. When asked how he could condone taking the lives of such people, Sen. Hayakawa responded: "You call that living?"

— The Lawyers' Plan: Teams of personal injury lawyers will follow Skylab around the world. Armed with binoculars and briefcases, these so-called "satellite chasers" will wait for Skylab parts to crush somebody. Then the lawyers will rush up and file lawsuits.

This plan will not prevent death or injury, but it will make the relatives feel better.

else's space and bumping them out.

If this fails, NASA officials promise to position Jerry Brown underneath Skylab.

— The Bill Veck Plan: The owner of the Chicago White Sox has realized that the "only way" for his team to win a pennant this year is to destroy every other team in the American League.

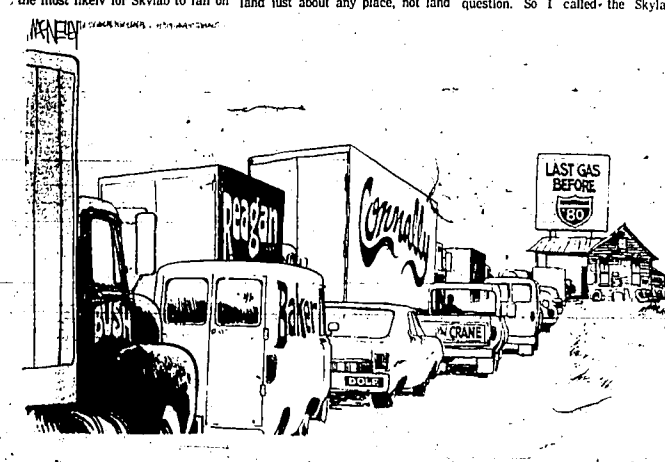

On July 12, the day Skylab is most likely to fall, the Sox will be playing a night game at home with the Detroit Tigers. Veck's plan is to have Skylab fall on Baltimore, Boston, Milwaukee, New York, Cleveland, Toronto, Anaheim, Kansas City, Arlington, Bloomington, Seattle and Oakland.

Even though half those teams are likely to be playing road games in other cities that day, Veck wants to take no chances.

"Actually, it only leaves us with one problem," Veck said. "How the hell are we going to beat Detroit?"

— The Jane Byrne Plan: The mayor of Chicago will fire Skylab or suspend it for a month. "I didn't vote for me, it didn't work for me, to hell with it," she said. "I'm not saying Skylab will have a letter from its ward committeeman, I'm just saying we have more qualified applicants."

If this fails, Mayor Byrne said she would launch an alderman into space to try and bribe Skylab.

Talks fail to shift past trucking impasse

By United Press International — Trucker leaders met with federal officials in Washington Thursday in an attempt to resolve the independent truckers strike but came away accusing the Carter administration of foot-dragging.

The strike moved into its fourth week Thursday with new gunplay and grocers' warnings of impending food shortages. But the striking truckers said the Carter administration seemed in no hurry to end the walkout.

"I don't know if the White House is in bed with the Teamsters or the regulated carriers, or is just inept," Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association, said at a news conference following two meetings with Stuart Eizenstat, President Carter's domestic affairs adviser.

The administration, he said, is engaged in "a classic case of foot-dragging and manipulation of the press."

Independent truckers are striking against the 55 mph speed limit, rising diesel fuel prices, availability of fuel and weight restrictions. Parkhurst said the strikers were unsatisfied with a surcharge proposed to cover added costs for diesel fuel, saying they needed the same rates as the major carriers.

He said the truckers also were pressing for modernization of length and weight limits on trucks and written guarantees from the energy department and oil industry promising adequate fuel.

"If any trucker goes back to work, they're foolish," he said, backed up by about 20 fellow truckers.

Blockades and convoys slowed or halted traffic in New York and Chicago. Three shooting incidents were reported along Arkansas highways.

Police said a 14-year-old boy was struck in the arm, leg and chest by bullet fragments when a sniper opened fire on a truck along U.S. 67 in Clay County, Ark. The boy apparently was hitchhiking and got a ride from the driver of the truck, investigators said. The victim was treated at a hospital and released.

ALFRED KAHN talks to Congress

Gasoline rationing proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alfred Kahn, President Carter's chief inflation fighter, told Congress Thursday the government should again consider imposing gasoline rationing.

Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, also said the new crude oil price increases proclaimed by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries could add as much as 2 percentage points to inflation in the United States this year and next.

"I feel that when the American people get mad enough about having to wait in line ... they will be prepared to go to some system that directly limits consumption," Kahn testified on the rationing issue.

He carefully qualified his remarks by saying rationing was "one legitimate solution" and that he was not necessarily making a formal recommendation to the president.

But pressed by congressmen as to his own opinion, he said, "My view is that we really ought to consider rationing."

Kahn and Barry Bosworth, executive director of the council, said existing mandatory price controls that apply to the petroleum industry are not controlling gasoline price rises. They said most large refiners are complying but many smaller refiners and gasoline stations are not.

Bosworth said mandatory controls will not work when there is a shortage because there are too many ways to get around them.

He said trying to reduce consumption through high prices is "too costly" and unfair to those least able to pay.

Standing in gasoline lines is one form of rationing, Bosworth said, but it also is costly and unfair.

"Some can afford to wait in gas lines, some people can't," he said.

Kahn said the only remaining option is rationing.

Big cars not selling very well

DETROIT (UPI) — The scarcity of gasoline has caused a 35 percent decline in sales of luxury cars and other big models, but dealers predicted Thursday the switch to fuel economy would "blow over like it did four years ago."

In some parts of the country, dealers surveyed by UPI said long lines at gas stations had sent motorists shopping for bigger gas tanks instead of smaller cars.

The main concern of prospective luxury car buyers, said sales manager Bob Werley of Martin Cadillac in West Los Angeles, is not price or mileage but "how far can I go between visits to the pump."

A full tank of gas in a 1979 Cadillac Coupe de Ville, for example, will give its owner up to 500 miles on the highway — all for just $29.

"I think the thing that bothers them more than anything else is that they can't get the gas," said St. Louis Cadillac dealer Roy Willmzig. "It's not the mileage situation so much."

At the Lincoln-Mercury dealership in Coral Gables, Fla., luxury model sales are down 25-35 percent.

"Auto dealers are getting killed and the allied industry is hurting," said sales manager Bob Nobel. "And it's all for no real reason other than apprehension. People are confused and if we only report that big car sales are off, we compound the problem."

"Things are not as critical as people think. Within a short time, most of this will blow over like it did four years ago."

In the past 60 days, though overall car sales are behind year-ago levels, deliveries of subcompacts — both domestic and imported — have increased a whopping 49 percent. A Toyota dealer in Boston reported sales up 80 percent over 1978 levels.

Vernon Presley buried beside Elvis

By FRANK THORSBERG
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Vernon Presley, a one-time sharecropper and father of rock star Elvis Presley, was buried beside the grave of his famous son Thursday following a brief, private service that included the playing of Elvis' recordings of several hymns.

Presley, 63, died of heart failure Tuesday at Baptist Hospital, the city hospital where Elvis was pronounced dead after collapsing at his estate, Graceland Mansion, Aug. 16, 1977.

Parker, Elvis' former manager, and Memphis Mayor Wytke Chandler were also present.

A crowd of 250 onlookers began gathering outside the 13-acre estate several hours before the 11 a.m. ceremony for the former laborer.

The ceremony was similar to the held for Elvis, minus the crowds. It was conducted by the Rev. C. W. Bradley of the Woodlake Church of Christ in Memphis and the Rev. M. H. Kennedy of Bessemer, Ala. In addition to brief readings from scripture, Elvis' recordings of "Amazing Grace" and "Peace in the Valley" were played.

Elvis' former wife, Priscilla Presley, their 11-year-old daughter, Lisa Marie Presley, and Vester Presley, the elder Presley's brother, were among the mourners. Col. Tom

Cousteau's son dies in crash

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The pilot son of celebrated French oceanographer Jacques Cousteau died Thursday when his World War II-vintage Catalina aircraft crashed into the Tagus River, the Portuguese national news agency ANOP reported.

Authorities said that of eight persons aboard the newly overhauled plane, the Calypso, seven injured survivors were rescued by fishermen near the Alverca crash site, 13 miles east of Lisbon.

Officials say trade deficit shrinking despite increases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. trade deficit with the rest of the world has been growing for the past two months, but the government believes it is shrinking in the long run.

"We think definitely this year's trade deficit will be smaller than last year's," the Commerce Department's chief economist,

Courtenay Slater, said. "If you look at just the last two months it's getting worse, but I think it would be a mistake to interpret that way."

Record for Northwest set by grain exports

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Overall wheat exports from the Northwest broke all records during the 1978-79 marketing year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported.

The department also reported that despite the upheaval in Iran and a resulting one-month cutoff of wheat exports to the country from Oregon and Washington ports, Iran wound up as the second-best customer for Northwest wheat during the year.

Iran, with its 37.7 million bushels of wheat purchased in the year, was second only to Japan, which bought 39.5 million.

347.6 million bushels — a figure 7 percent higher than the record reported in 1975-76.

About half the wheat, according to the department's figures, comes from the region. The rest comes to Portland, Longview, Wash., and other ports from the Plains states.

Although port operators should be pleased with the export figures, Northwest farmers saw a far lower increase in exports.

Exports of Northwest wheat increased less than 1 percent over last year — one of the poorest crop years in recent history, because of drought conditions — to 172.3 million bushels. Even with the slight increase, Northwest white wheat exports failed to match figures recorded in three of the last four years.

Fuel lack slows Milwaukee Road runs

CHICAGO (UPI) — The president of the Milwaukee Road says a slowdown in freight service to most Midwest customers will begin this week due to low diesel fuel supplies.

Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas will be affected more by the slowdown than Washington, Idaho and Montana because fuel supplies are adequate in the three northwestern states, Worthington L. Smith said Wednesday.

In the Midwest, the railroad will either cut the frequency of service or consolidate trains, Smith said.

Garbage may soon become an asset

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A costly nuisance for county governments is the disposal of solid waste, but Twin Falls County Commissioner Tommy Walker Sr. says one day counties may be asking for more garbage.

Twin Falls County is one of several in the Magic Valley looking at garbage and other wastes as a source of revenue.

Walker explained the solution to the costly disposal of solid waste in landfills lies in construction of a plant which uses waste products for fuel. Known as "Resource Recovery," the system requires obtaining a site and either purchasing the plant or leasing it from the manufacturer.

He said heat from the plant could generate steam which could be sold to industries for energy or used to produce salable electricity.

"If we purchase the plant, we could amortize it in about 10 years and it would then begin bringing revenue into the county general fund," Walker said.

"If this falls, we could establish our own gasohol plant and operate it with the surplus steam energy," he said.

He said even if there were no revenue return, the county would be well ahead. It now spends about $200,000 a year for solid waste disposal.

Walker explained fossil fuel would be necessary to start the burning, but once it reaches a certain temperature, the solid waste becomes fuel. As long as it is kept burning, there is no further fuel costs.

Ash from the plant could be used in road construction and sludge from the operation could also be put to beneficial use.

Twin Falls City, Councilman Chris Talkingdon said such a plant could be erected by the city or shared by the city and county to burn sewage treatment plant sludge. He said no investigation has been made yet, but the city has been told sludge could be used for plant fuel and would burn, even in a wet state.

The city's present sludge disposal problem might be turned into a profit through the Resource Recovery method, he said.

Such a plant, the "Consumat," is marketed by Widjac Corp. of Kirkland, Wash. It requires about 100 tons of waste a day to operate.

Twin Falls County handles about 150 tons daily, Walker said. He said there are two industries in this area interested in purchase of steam or power produced by such an operation.

"We would have to acquire land in a suitable position, within about 1,000 feet of our user and would still have to haul the waste, but not a great distance from the towns. Everything but metal would be burned and we would have to segregate this," he said.

Walker, who says he is always interested in new innovations, adds the system has been proven in Salem, Va., which is about the same size as Twin Falls, and Bellingham, Wash. There has to be a better way of meeting solid waste problems in the counties and cities, Walker said.

Estimated costs of putting the system into operation, not including land purchase, is about $1.7 million. This would include $200,000 for the building; $1.1 million for the equipment; $75,000 for "rolling stock" such as loaders, forklifts and other items; $35,000 for a scale; $12,000 for furniture and fixtures; $25,000 for a Drifted burner for stumps and debris; $180,000 for engineering and mobilization; and $100,000 for contingencies.

Tom Fleming, executive director of Region 4 Development Association, said in some instances matching funds are available for at least part of the system through the Department of Energy.

Under a 10-year financing program, commissioners feel the costs could be paid off by diverting funds now used for landfill operations and from revenue from the sale of steam and other by-products including metals for recycling. A constant supply of garbage is essential, Walker said.

Cassia County is also currently investigating such an operation. Several other boards of county commissioners attending a fourth district meeting of the Association in Idaho counties Wednesday in Jerome also expressed interest in a new means of handling solid wastes.

County funding requested

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — County officials in Magic Valley have been asked by the regional office of the Department of Health and Welfare to help make up some of the loss in state funding for local programs.

But one official says the counties may decide instead to operate the programs themselves if state services are cut.

Kent Henderson, regional director for DHW, met Wednesday afternoon with the Fourth District Idaho Association of Counties in Jerome to ask for about $228,000 annually from the eight Magic Valley counties. He said this would allow the state agency to continue youth services and mental health programs, both of which are considered of major benefit to the area.

In the Youth Services program, the state agency provides for the needs of juveniles that are living out of their homes by reason of court action—or problems—within the families.

Henderson and other DHW officials told county commissioners while the agency is not funded by property tax revenue and thus immune to the 1 percent cuts, the state has reduced the DHW budget to help provide relief to educational cuts.

As a result, DHW is faced with cutting programs or finding other methods of funding.

Three possibilities were listed by Henderson and other DHW as a means of continuing services.

These included contracting with the counties for the services on an annual basis, billing the counties on a fee per case, or including the services in each county's district court budget.

Mert Leonard, Twin Falls county commission chairman, said the state could drop the two programs and the counties could assume responsibility.

"We could take over the mental health and youth services ourselves and pay our own costs," Leonard said. "Frankly, most of the commissioners seemed to favor doing this if the state drops the services."

Leonard said the county officials have taken the matter under advisement and will discuss it in individual commission meetings and again at the district level before making a decision.

He said county commissioners felt local doctors in the various counties could be hired to help in mental health areas and counties could resume a former practice of hiring juvenile officers to work with youth.

Rescuers get ready for the worst

TWIN FALLS — After 1,200 hours of training in rappelling down rocky canyon walls, Tom Cogswell of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Search and Rescue Unit says he doesn't like

"We all do it but it is serious and dangerous business. The ideal situation would be to maintain a high level of training and proficiency but never have to go after anyone." Cogswell and seven other members of the search and rescue group practice about one night a week on Snake River Canyon walls north of Twin Falls. Because of the many canyons here and their attraction for hikers and some adults, accidents which require rappel talent are inevitable.

The unit rappel team has completed two full days of training here and another two in Salt Lake City under experienced members of the Salt Lake County Rappel Team.

Only this year did the training become possible in Twin Falls County. The county commissioners purchased about $1,200 worth of rappel equipment, enough for four climbers. Through fund raising programs such as the upcoming July 5 highwire acts, the volunteer search and rescue unit members have equipped two more climbers.

Other members of the rappel squad are learning to assist climbers with belay lines, the life saving safety ropes that are used in each descent into the canyon.

Cogswell's members are stressed the seriousness of the work and want to discourage anyone who is not trained and properly equipped from giving it a try. He suggested persons who want to do climbing contact local sporting goods stores that supply equipment.

"They must have proper equipment and instruction. The store operators can furnish the equipment and direct them to instructors," Cogswell said.

He added the rock on canyons in this area is lava and is filled with cracks which makes it unsuitable for sport climbing.

Cogswell says most of the other team members, like himself, have no interest in mountain climbing — just rescue work.

As part of the training, they are learning to carry litters over the canyon rims to make believe victims and to lower air tanks and cutting equipment. This would be needed in the event a car went over the canyon and it was necessary to extricate somebody.

Rappel crews would be the first on the scene and if the victim was inaccessible they would have to bring the injured to the top of the canyon. For this reason the Rappel squad also undergoes training in extrication or quickly cutting open a wrecked vehicle without injury to the occupants.

This is one of the "summer season" phases of the county search and rescue program which also includes diving for drowning victims and search of mountain terrain under summer conditions. Mounted posse members and four-wheel drive groups also aid in searches.

New site for sludge being eyed

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls has asked the Bureau of Land Management for permission to dump its sludge in Jerome County.

But Jerome County Commissioner Chairman Mel Grindstaff has vowed to fight to keep Twin Falls sludge out.

The city has filed an application with the BLM for permission to dump sludge on land located north of the Ferrine Bridge, south of I-80, and on both sides of Highway 83. The area includes the site contemplated for the proposed regional airport.

The application is one of three filed by the city with the BLM. The other two are in Twin Falls County south of the city, one on the south slope of Hub Butte and the other west of Berger. The BLM will hold public hearing on the city's applications before granting permission for any dumping. No hearing date has been set.

When asked what he thought of the Twin Falls application, Grindstaff said, "I don't feel very good about it."

"Why don't you want it on your side?" he asked.

Grindstaff said he has not asked his fellow commissioners about their feelings on the question, but he added, "I'm sure that I am reflecting their sentiments on it."

He said the commissioners "definitely" will "put in our formal opposition to it with the BLM before the hearing. We'll put in a formal protest. Twin Falls has lots more BLM land in their county than we have in our county."

Twin Falls City Manager Jean Milar said the city has looked a number of other potential sites, including some in Jerome County.

"We have looked at Jerome County north of the freeway, in fact north of Flat Top Butte," Milar said.

The city has also looked at other sites—in Twin Falls County—but distance from the city's sewage plant and the cost of hauling have been a prime determinant of whether applications have been filed, Milar said.

On some of the sites inspected, he said, "we start getting so far away the economics are just out of the question."

The Jerome County site is the closest to the city's sewage plant, and thus more economic, than any other dump site used or considered.

Funds wanted to buy land

WASHINGTON — The Forest Service has asked Congress for the authority to use $1.9 million from the Land and Water Conservation Fund to buy scenic easements in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

The Forest Service has had no money to buy scenic easements in the Sawtooth area since 1977. A number of landowners have negotiated settlements with the government, but have yet to be paid.

Both the Senate and House Appropriations committees are expected to act on the request within the next few weeks.

Sen. Frank Church said Thursday he was "very optimistic" the funds will be available soon.

Church said the funds are necessary "if the government is to maintain its credibility with local landowners. Promises were made long ago which must be kept."

Burglaries solved

TWIN FALLS — Nine burglaries have been cleared up in Twin Falls with the arrest of a 16-year-old boy, Police Chief Tim Qualls reported Thursday.

He said the youth was taken into custody Tuesday night in Twin Falls and is being held in connection with the theft of $327 in the nine burglaries.

In all instances, Qualls said, unlocked homes were entered and purses or wallets taken. The money has not been recovered and most of the wallets and purses are still missing.

In most cases, the officer said, the housewife or couple would be working in the front or back yard when the house was entered by the opposite door, which was unlocked. The frequency of the burglaries brought a warning from Qualls to residents to lock their doors if working outside.

Qualls said there will probably be more arrests made. He said five other burglaries of homes and cars which occurred about the same time are still under investigation.

The burglaries attributed to the juvenile in custody occurred between June 10 and 25, Qualls said.

Body identified

FAIRFIELD — The body of a 66-year-old murder victim found 26 miles north of here April 26 has been identified as Gordon W. LeBarge.

The body was found by Sheriff Harold Lee wrapped in canvas, after an anonymous phone call was received concerning its location.

"According to information gathered by the sheriff and other law enforcement officials, LeBarge was visiting in the Hansen area during the latter part of September 1978," Camas County Prosecutor Jack Varin said Thursday.

Varin said death resulted from a stab wound in the back, and the killing apparently took place close to where the body was found.

He said there was no evidence of a struggle, although the length of time between death and the discovery of the body, about six months, makes this uncertain.

LeBarge's last known address was in the Columbus, Ohio, area. Prior to that, the victim had lived in Florida. Varin said a motive for the killing has not been established.

But he said authorities are seeking a New Orleans man for questioning in connection with the homicide.

Annexation question now in Hailey court

By JIM SHULL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The trial in the State vs. the City of Hailey got under way in 5th District Court Tuesday.

Blaine County Prosecuting Attorney R. Keith Roark is challenging Mayor Emory Dietrich and the Hailey City Council's annexation of the Northridge subdivision.

The council is charged with violations of the Idaho Open Meetings and Local Law Planning Acts by taking a straw vote approving the annexation of the 182-acre parcel north of Hailey March 21 and approving 12 acres within the subdivision bordering the east side of State Highway 75 for commercial zoning.

Documents filed by Roark in May ask that the city ordinance passed by the council be declared null and void. Roark contends no notice or minutes of the March 21 meeting were provided, and that the 12-acre business zone violates the city's comprehensive plan, passed in early 1978.

Dietrich broke a 2-2 deadlock of the council by voting in favor of the annexation and business zoning.

On Jan. 11, the council voted for a conditional annexation, providing for development of the area on five conditions, part of the annexation contract. Those conditions include the posting of performance bonds on road, sewer and water improvements; and that each phase of the proposed development be spelled out.

In court Thursday, Dietrich termed the March 21 meeting and others with Groves and said no notices of the meetings were published because he felt the contract provisions spelled out Jan. 11 were adequate.

Dietrich said, to his recollection, Groves promised the city a new $2,000-gallon-per-minute well in exchange for the business zoning.

Limited residential zoning only was recommended to the council by the Hailey Planning and Zoning Commission.

Idaho gas supply adequate

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State Automobile Association Manager Ken Miller said Thursday that a gallon gasoline has reached Idaho, but motorists will have an adequate supply available for the weekend and July 4.

Miller said the AAA weekly survey showed another increase of a penny per gallon in the 59 stations called. He said, in general, there seemed to be a better supply of gasoline available than a week ago, probably because of reduced driving by motorists. He attributed less driving to higher prices and shorter operating hours.

The AAA manager said motorists should plan to buy gas before 8 p.m. on weekdays and not depend on Sunday availability. There are 24-hour stations in Boise, Twin Falls, Buhl, Idaho Falls, American Falls and Pocatello, Idaho; Baker, La Grande and Jordan Valley, Ore.; and Winnemucca, Nev.

A majority of stations will be open Sunday and on July 4. Purchasing no-lead gas in Idaho Falls may be a problem, and gas is available in Lowman, but AAA was unable to determine if any but regular was available.

Premium gas was priced at $1.01.8 in a station in Baker, Ore., and $1.00.9 in Pocatello, the AAA reported. One station in Boise reported a penny reduction in price.

Electricity conservation urged

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Co. urged its customers Thursday to increase conservation of electricity to reduce a record level of consumption that the firm said was putting a heavy drain on its resources.

Idaho Power President James E. Bruce said the company "faces the very real possibility of generating deficiencies due to water conditions and the use of emergency measures to supplement the power supply."

He said emergency measures would mean that Idaho Power would fire up its oil-powered turbine at Halley and seek power purchases from other western utilities.

"All of us should take steps to conserve even more than we already are doing to help reduce the load and hold down the cost of service," Bruce said.

The executive said electricity for FMC Corp. and Monsanto Co., which operates elemental phosphorus processing plants in eastern Idaho, had been cut by as much as 23,000 kilowatts to enable Idaho Power to keep power flowing to its residential, commercial and irrigation customers.

Bruce appealed to customers to raise air conditioning thermostats, adding the heavy consumption primarily was due to air conditioners and irrigation pumping. But he said another cause was that Idaho Power has more customers now than ever before.

The record hourly power use figure Thursday was 1.8 million kilowatts, topping the previous summer peak of 1.69 million kilowatts.

"Heavy irrigation pumping is materially reducing flows in the Snake River, thereby reducing the amount of water available for generation at all our hydroelectric plants," Bruce said.

Napkin gimmick fails for used car salesman

A San Diego used car salesman thought he had a pretty bright notion. He distributed special napkins in bars and cafes around town. Imprinted on those napkins was the promise that each would be worth a $25 credit toward the purchase of any car on his lot. Couple of college boys together drank 48 beers at 20 cents each, then took the 48 napkins to the lot as the payment entire of $1,200 for a car. The salesman refused. But a judge convinced him to settle up as promised.

Q. Where'd black-eyed peas come from?

Orioles get new lease

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles will play at Memorial Stadium next season, but their new lease is for one year instead of the usual two years, club officials said Thursday.

General Manager Hank Peters notified the city Wednesday the team wanted a one-year extension of its two-year lease, which expires at the end of this season. Hank Peters waited until Saturday, the normal two-year lease would have gone into effect.

Mills wins air race

JACKPOT, Nev. — Motel owner Robert Mills, Idaho Springs, Colo., did 590 miles in four hours, 18 minutes recently to win Category A in Cactus Pete's Third Annual Air Race from Denver to Jackpot. The class was for planes 149 mph and under.

Jackson's back for Yankees

NEW YORK (UPI) — The confrontation or non-confrontation is at hand.

The New York Yankees Thursday reinstated Reggie Jackson to the active list and the 33-year-old slugger, sidelined since June 2 with an injury to his left leg, today will have his first opportunity to play since Billy Martin was rehired to manage the team.

Jackson, who has been feuding with Martin ever since he joined the Yankees in 1977, created a brief controversy following Martin's return by asking to be traded. He recently modified his stand, saying he would play for the Yankees and do whatever he is told.

Asked whether he would play in the outfield, as he did early in the season under manager Bob Lemon, or as a designated hitter, Jackson deferred to Martin.

"That's for the manager to say," Jackson said. "I tell the man I'm ready to play and it's up to him."

In the past, Jackson has often said he wants to play the outfield, while Martin prefers him as a designated hitter, especially on artificial surface fields where the manager believes Jackson has his most trouble.

Martin, who has refused further comment on the Jackson situation all week, again refrained from commenting Thursday when reached in Toronto.

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner was not available for comment.

The outfield, which was already well-stuffed, has become even more crowded during Jackson's absence with the addition of Bobby Murcer Tuesday.

Steinbrenner, hoping to avoid the clubhouse turmoil that has plagued the Yankees for two seasons, says Martin and Jackson must co-exist in peace.

"We need Reggie," said Steinbrenner. "We've got to have him to make a real run. And I feel he's enough of a man that he and Billy can get their heads together."

Jackson, who has been taking extensive batting practice the last few days, did not join the team for its game Thursday night in Toronto. He says he would like to play Friday, when the Yankees open a four-game series with their arch-rivals, the Boston Red Sox.

To make room for Jackson, the Yankees placed right-handed pitcher Ed Figueroa on the 21-day disabled list, effective Monday. Figueroa is experiencing continued soreness in his right elbow.

Giants deal Matlock to Pittsburgh

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants, admitting their pitching staff has not come up to expectations, traded two-time National League batting champion Bill Madlock to the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday for right-handed pitcher Ed Whitson and picked up veteran reliever Pedro Borbon from the Cincinnati Reds in a separate deal.

A total of eight players moved in the deals, including six in the Giant-Pirate trade.

Madlock, who won the batting title in 1975 and 1976, was reported unhappy with the Giants. He was benched twice by Manager Joe Altabelli for a brief period but the club said last week their differences had been patched up.

Madlock, who can play second and third base, was batting .261 with seven homers in 69 games. He will be joining his fourth team in seven seasons, having played for Texas and the Chicago Cubs.

Along with Madlock, the Giants moved left-handed pitcher Dave Roberts and infielder Len Randle, who was playing for Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League. In exchange, the Giants received left-handed pitcher Al Holland and right-handed pitcher Fred Breining and assigned them to their farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Darling

JEROME — Mr. and Mrs. Grant Darling will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary at an open house Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. at the home of William and Diane Moore, 608 Second Ave. E. in Jerome.

The couple are most of their lives but have resided in Boise the last seven years.

The open house will be hosted by their children, Sandy, Terry, and Jody Darling, Mrs. Eunice DeLoss, Mrs. Darling's sister, and Mrs. Diane Moore, a niece.

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Kinyon

BUIH — Mr. and Mrs. Denver Kinyon will observe their golden wedding anniversary with an open house July 8 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Lincoln Courts Center in Buih.

The event will be hosted by their children, Mr. and Mrs. David Kinyon of Castleford, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson of Harper, Ore. The couple also has four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinyon were married July 7, 1929 in the Buih Christian Church with her brother, the Rev. Wilber Goff, officiating. The couple has farmed and raised livestock in the Buih area since their home south of Castleford since 1934.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend. The couple requests no gifts.

Phone project needs helpers

TWIN FALLS — A new, expanded Telephone Reassurance program for the elderly is being launched in Twin Falls, according to Scott Lawhead of the Community Action Agency.

The program, which needs both volunteers to call and elderly people who request the daily contacts, is jointly sponsored by the CAA and the Senior Citizens Center.

Both agencies are mandated to provide such services under the federal Senior Citizens Outreach program and federal money is available to fund the administration of the telephone reassurance program, Lawhead said.

There already are people in the community waiting to receive daily calls, Lawhead said. Anyone willing to make one or two calls per day to an elderly person as well as those wanting to be phoned is urged to contact either Lawhead at the CAA at 733-9515 or the Twin Falls Senior Citizen Center, 734-5084.

Also anyone who knows of someone who might be interested in participating in either aspect of the program is asked to contact either agency.

Telephone reassurance programs started more than 20 years ago when an elderly woman in Saginaw,

Mich., was stranded on her kitchen floor, the victim of a severe stroke.

A friend, Mrs. Grace Sample McClure, had been trying for eight days to reach her friend on the phone. Finally, after trying to get neighbors to help, she checked herself and discovered the tragedy. The woman lived a few months more, but never regained consciousness.

Mrs. McClure was so concerned that she set up the first telephone reassurance program within the year. The idea has since spread throughout the country, Lawhead said, and is still growing today.

Besides the measure of personal safety which the telephone calls ensure, a reassurance program is a good way for people living alone to keep in touch with someone who cares.

Many elderly and handicapped persons living alone go for days without having contact with any other human. A friendly phone call every day or every other day can be a real boost of confidence to the person called. In some cases, such a simple thing as the telephone program could mean the difference between a person being able to remain in his or her own home.

Movie premier nets $2,400

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Alcohol Rehabilitation Center netted nearly $2,400 on the premiere performance of "Main Event" last week, Greg Fuller, board chairman, said Thursday.

"This is one kind of charitable event in which everyone benefits," he said, "because the people who purchase tickets get to see an enjoyable movie, there is a minimum of effort and the center benefits from the generosity of local business people and residents."

Barry Meyers, director of the Men's house and the Women's Crisis Center, both operated by the MVARC, said the funds would be used in operation of both facilities.

The houses average 20 some residents each month. Many of the persons are able to work but still need a structured environment with counseling sessions and group therapy evenings.

Both Meyers and Fuller expressed appreciation to Roy Roper, manager of Interstate Amusement Co., who obtained the Barbra Streisand film for its premiere showing.

Home tour story Sunday

TWIN FALLS — Because of space limitations, the story about the Oklaty tour of homes, scheduled for today's paper, will be run in Sunday's Valley Life section.

The luxury homes of the late

Victorian era are being remodeled and once more inspiring interest among Cassia county residents. Couples often compete for ownership of the town's old homes, most of which were built in the late 1800's and early 1900's.

Dear Abby

Complaints about scents make good sense

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: If people are "entitled" to clean air, devoid of cigarette smoke, why aren't they entitled to clean air, free from the scents of perfumes, colognes, after-shaves, etc., which also can make people sick?

I am allergic to scents. They give me a migraine headache. My nasal passages become irritated and swollen, and I have difficulty breathing.

It is torture for me to be helped by a heavily perfumed salesperson. Or to stand in line with perfumed people, get trapped in an elevator with them, sit next to them in a waiting room or theater, or wherever people gather. Room sprays of all kinds are disaster to me!

In writing this I hope scent-users will become aware of how offensive they are and will be satisfied with a daily bath and an unscented deodorant.

ALLERGIC
DEAR ALLERGIC: Thanks for a letter about scents that makes sense.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter (an only child) and I have a beautiful relationship even though she is 37 and I am 67. She is happily married. She and her husband invite me to be with them very often and we always have a wonderful time. I met my husband six months ago, Abby, but when he was alive we saw a lot of "the kids."

"Well, the kids are planning a vacation and want me to go with them. We enjoy the same things and always have a great time together. Some of my friends have told me it is not "the kids" to be with my kids so much. They say I shouldn't go on a vacation with them, that they asked me just to be nice. My kids say if I don't go with them they won't have as much fun."

I have other interests and friends, and do not feel as though I am clinging to my children. Perhaps I need another point of view.

MRS. R.
DEAR MRS. R.: If you feel that their invitations are sincere, and their enjoyment of your company is real, pay no attention to the suggestions from friends. Join the kids and have a good time!

DEAR ABBY: This may sound silly, but it is a big problem with me. My boyfriend, 25, started to shave the hair off his chest about a year ago, then he began shaving his arms. I asked him why he did this and he said he didn't like the looks of all that hair. (I never thought he was particularly hairy.)

When he turns up with all the hair shaved off his lower extremities! This really bothers me, Abby. Nobody sees his legs so why does he need to shave them?

Now he claims that body hair is "unclean."
How can I convince him that body hair isn't dirty, and that he should stop all this silly shaving?

IN LOVE WITH A HAIRLESS GUY

DEAR IN LOVE: Your boyfriend's problems could be more than skin deep. But as long as HE doesn't consider his obsession with body hair a problem, it's no problem. If YOU do, I'm afraid that's YOUR problem.

Do you hate to write letters of condolences, congratulations, and thanks? It's not difficult when you let Abby guide you in her booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Party planned

RICHFIELD — A retirement party honoring Ethel Conner, who is retiring as postmaster of Richfield, will be held Saturday from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Clifford Corner home. Everyone is welcome. Mrs. Conner requests no gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Bogar

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Bogar will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary July 8 with a reception at the fellowship hall of the Twin Falls First Christian Church from 2 to 5 p.m.

Ralph Bogar and Keren Smith were married April 28, 1929, at Coldwater, Kan. They lived in Enid, Okla., where Mr. Bogar worked for the Champlin Refinery Oil Co. They later moved to Wichita, Kan., and then to Belpre, Kan., where they owned and managed a restaurant until 1941 when they moved to Twin Falls. Mr. Bogar worked as a meat cutter in various markets in Magic Valley. He is presently semi-retired and is employed part time at Kimberly Cold Storage. Mrs. Bogar was employed several years at Valley Nursing Home. The couple are active members of the Twin Falls First Christian Church, and have been active in community service.

The reception is being hosted by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Elwin Bogar of Ogden, Utah; Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Carlson of Lynnfield, Mass.; and Mr. and Mrs. James T. Bogar of Corvallis, Ore., and families.

Friends and neighbors of the couple are invited to attend the reception. The couple request no gifts.

Dr. Lamb

Eczema is something to live with

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb,
My son has had eczema since birth. We have doctor after doctor and still takes them but we really can't see very much help from them. As a baby and a child we tried to wash his foods.

What is lacking? I had a poor diet before his birth. Isn't there some way one can correct this? I insisted on good foods thereafter. We have three daughters and they have no problems. What could he take to help his system and is there a diet he could follow?

Dear Reader,
The first question is the diagnosis. You need to be sure that it is simple eczema and that your son has. If that is correct diagnosis, I suspect he is going to have to live with it all of his life. It's true that some children or infants have eczema as a condition and it disappears. In such instances it's often related to an allergic reaction to cow's milk. In other instances its onset is associated with the introduction of wheat cereal into the diet or eggs.

You need to understand that this is an inherited condition. Incidentally, it has nothing at all to do with your diet during the time you were pregnant with your son. At present there is nothing you can do about such inherited characteristics any more than you can change the color of your eyes or other inherited features.

The primary problem in eczema is a dry, itchy skin caused by this inherited characteristic. The other skin manifestations — weeping, redness, crusting — are usually secondary reactions. These may be from an infection directly related to the scratching and irritation of the skin. One of the prominent features of the disorder is the excessive itching that occurs.

When a person inherits this characteristic there are numerous different factors which can precipitate an attack. This might be contact with nothing more than wool clothing. Incidentally, these people usually do better wearing clothing made of cotton fibers because they are less irritating to the skin.

When a person has infections, reddening and other problems, the first goal in treatment is to correct these complications. This may involve taking antibiotics.

Because the problem is related to drying of the skin, it's important to prevent loss of moisture from the skin. One approach to treatment is to avoid taking baths. In severely affected patients, doctors often recommend total cessation of baths for long periods of time. A cleansing fluid that contains no oil or greasy material is used instead. It's important that the air in the house be adequately humidified.

Readers who want to know how to delay aging of the skin and such changes can send 50 cents with a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for the Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10109.

'Old Cowboy Blues' on the racks

Braun Brothers' disc out

By CARTER WILSON
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The Braun Brothers long-awaited debut album, "Old Cowboy Blues," has just been released. It's an outstanding first effort, highlighting Muzzie's well-crafted songwriting and singing abilities, complemented by Gary's fine vocals and superb harmonica and drum work.

As an added bonus, their father Mustie adds accordion and piano tracks, their brother Bill does background vocals and a host of Idaho's finest musicians rounds out the instrumentation.

The album paints an Idaho landscape, which sings of lost love, a cowboy's life and a longing to return to the places and memories which we cling to in our present lives.

Opening cut is the released single "Yankee Fork," featuring the toe-tapping fiddle of J. Robert Houghtalling. Muzzie's fine song deals with finding a "good old gal" to settle in with during the cold winter up on the Salmon River. A great kick-off to the album-and-your-boots-too-song.

"Old Cowboy Blues," the title track, features Muzzie's rich voice along with Gary's excellent cowboy harmonica. Mustie's accordion phrasing is tops, adding a bit of Tex-Mex flavor, while Chuck Backe's steel is flawless. Fence posts, tortillas and a night campfire all come to mind.

The ensemble does justice to "Idaho," a tribute to our state by Bruce Coburn. Wayne Lowe's electric work and vocals by Marti Iverson, Belinda Bowler and Bill Braun create the backdrop. John Sebastian on cowboy wheels. Hats off to Mr. Coburn.

The pace is then picked up with "I'm Gonna Run Away from Civilization," dealing with chucking our present lifestyle and escaping to uncomplicated places. We travel there via fast and clean exchanges among Kerry Curtis on banjo, J. Robert on fiddle, Gary on harmonica, Wayne on acoustic, with Michael Jones holding it all together with his driving bass lines.

"Side one" concludes with a surprise on one of Muzzie's tunes. Sue Markley, singing in an Emmylou Harris style, floats in and out of Chuck's fine steel solos. They take a classic approach to a rodeo love song and it comes off great with Gary's help and Rick Strickland's cello.

Side two begins with my favorite cut on the album, "Never Look Back at Idaho." The excellent production work captures Muzzie at his best, while the three Braun Brothers croon chorus parts that would make the Sons of the Pioneers proud. Simple clean lines on the steel float with the voices to put this song in a class with Michael Nesmith's best work.

"Old Man from Boise" is also a knockout, with Floyd Cramer piano by Mustie and a great walking bass line by Michael. It's a cowboy-jazz arrangement that really swings. This song's story is a tale about an old man playing harmonica who appears in different cities as the singer travels, haunting him and his subconscious until finally a melody strikes—with the singer reminding him that his long-lost father used to play that same song. Great imagery as the old man slips away and the father's image is manifest in the melody the singer carries with him to this day.

"Massachusetts Woman" is the struggle between the love of a woman and returning to Idaho. Caught between the two, he needs them both and asks her to come home with him. The arrangement, Keith Carroll's bass and Rick's cello bring it all, and the girl, back home.

"Rodeo Man," and "Love You, Yes Indeed," round out the album, keeping the themes and enhancing the view that the Braun Brothers see from their Stanley window. Tasteful country arrangements, uncluttered and classy, further showcase Muzzie and Gary's abilities.

The excellent production work of Silver Hollow Recording Studio in Twin Falls is to be applauded. The sound is clean and the work by the musicians involved first class.

What's new at 4 in the morning?

By LONNIE ROSENWALD
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS—It's 4 a.m.
Only workers just getting off the graveyard shift and chronic insomnia are still awake.
A low budget sci-fi flick has just ended, and most TV stations are going off the air with a heraldic version of "America the Beautiful."
Few of the country's millions of cable viewers are going to stay up to watch news, especially local news from Atlanta, Ga. That was Bill Tush's thinking, and that's why he created the Early Morning Update.

The early morning news is not like news, as you know it. It has few scoops, no live mini-clips, no former pro-football stars doing the sports. In fact, it's no more than "rip-and-read" news clips taken to unimaginable limits of comedy.

As the show opens, Tush, seated—behind—a microphone, begins reading the news. It's the same stuff you heard on the networks at 6 p.m. But suddenly, he drops the script and the seriousness falls away.
The camera crew begins to gawk from the shadows of the set. They boo and make catcalls.

Tush's co-anchor, Tina Seidman, reads a tennis story, mispronouncing every name in the match. The crew tries to help Tina, but she only stumbles more.
Tush announces a guest. He ushers in a magician, who sits beside him and pulls scarves from the air while Tush reports on airplane crashes, gas shortage and wars.

Interruption: the Daily Trivia Question:
"On this day 200 years ago, Massachusetts Gov. Winthrop introduced what tool to American society?"

Answer: the table fork.
First, you're not sure what's going on. After all, who hasn't watched a local news show and, as near-illiterate celebrities exchange tirade jokes and innuendoes, wondered "Come on, this must be a joke?"

Especially when Toni Holt, in Hollywood launches into her gossip report. She bears a striking resemblance to Rona...uh...what's-her-name.

But when a German shepherd comes on the next night and starts "reading" the news with a ventriloquist, you know the line between fact, and farce has been crossed.

(The dog was actually trying to clear out a mouthful of peanut butter. He later broke loose and strolled across the news desk for a few minutes, finally leaping off the set while the crew broke up in laughter.)

The son of a truck driver and a bindery worker from Pittsburgh, Tush got into broadcasting in the 11th grade of vocational high school where he was learning carpentry. After graduation he went to work as a traffic reporter for seven Pittsburgh radio stations. In 1968 he signed on with CBS-affiliate WEDG-TV. Four years later he left his job as program director there and moved to Atlanta.

After a short stint at radio WGST, he began doing TV news in 1974 at WTGC, Ted Turner's Atlanta "superstation." WTGC, a local station, is carried by cable TV companies to 46 states and 4 million subscribers.

The late night new show was programmed to fulfill FCC requirements. It was a low budget 15-minute segment—aired whenever the 8' nightly movie happened to end.

Tush began doing the news straight, reading copy from a wire service teletype. But, who can blame him for feeling a little rebellious, a little risqué at 3:30 a.m.?

"One night we did something a little bizarre," Turner said. What he did was to show film from his birthday party at a local ice cream parlor.

"No one at the station said anything. So we did it more and more," he said.

When Ted Turner found out, he didn't seem to mind. After a while, the complaint mail leveled off. The show developed a cult following among young Atlantans.

It does take a somewhat rare audience to appreciate the "1978

Gay Right Award," presented to a professor who studied homosexual sea gulls.

But today Tush claims a broad-based audience, and an audience level that is "going up all the time."

The show has been compared to "Weekend Update," the NBC Saturday Night live news parody. But Tush says he started six months before Dan Akroyd and Jane Curtin and their crew.

Tush's guests have included Georgia legislator Julian Bond, Peter Fonda, comedian Pat Paulsen, Cheech and Chong and a Playboy Playmate-of-the-Month.

You don't have to be famous to get on the show. Recently he got a letter from a man who planned to drive blindfolded from Columbia, S.C., to Atlanta. Tush says he'll invite him to appear, "if he doesn't kill himself."

Another regular is Brother Love, a chubby priest whose sermons are woven from punk rock lyrics.

Speaking of music, the show has several theme songs, including "Sleeping with Your TV On," "It's a Dark Night My Love" and "Pajama People."

Surprisingly, Tush's news philosophy is the same network thinking that led to "happy talk," that ridiculous banter carried on between newscasters.

"I enjoy entertainment more than gloom and doom," he said. Recently, he saw an NBC documentary on nuclear war. "They scared the hell out of everyone," Tush remembers.

Walter Cronkite, he is not. He reminds you more of Johnny Carson, delivering the news in one liners.

"There's a looseness people can look at. There's a realism. Too many local news shows go out and hire guys that are all good looking, people who just sit there," he says.

In spite of what he says, Tush resembles the fine-featured newsmen he's criticizing. Except for a slight crossing of his right eye, his styled brown hair, mustache and slightly goaty smile could get him onto any news set.

Fortunately, at least for his fans, he has no plans to "go straight."

"I have created my own little corner, and I don't know of any other stations that do the kind of shows we do," he explained.

WTGC doesn't collect ratings, so Tush judges his popularity by his mail—a couple of hundred letters a week.

He won an Emmy Award for "Bill Tush Looks Over 1978," a New Year's Eve show that was intentionally aired with a three-minute delay.

Inspiration for such stunts? "I thought it up raking leaves," Tush remembers.

(Early Morning Update is aired in the Magic Valley. Check local listings.)

NEW YORK (UPI)—There's a station that in the next year will offer "Star Wars," an F. Scott Fitzgerald series, "Masterpiece Theater," live jazz and a highly acclaimed 30-minute news program.

Eat your heart out, television fans—that's the fare available on the 220 stations affiliated with the National Public Radio.

All the big stars were on radio—Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, the kind of top names not available to television—and the fast-developing world of broadcast news starred the likes of Edward R. Murrow, live among the bombs from the Nazi blitz of London.

Along came television, and network radio splintered into hundreds of disc jockey-dominated stations occasionally interrupted by an all-news outpost.

Today radio's counterpart to public television, National Public Radio, has become the biggest radio network in terms of programming. Of 471 of its member stations, 50 hours per week, including 18 series.

Presiding over the network is Frank Mankiewicz, best known perhaps as Robert F. Kennedy's press secretary.

NPR serves about 5 million listeners per week on a budget of about $12 million in fiscal year, going up to about $15 million in the upcoming year.

"There's a renewal of interest in radio," Mankiewicz said in an interview. "I see it in commercial radio, too, but I think we're leading the way. There are still an awful lot of top 40 rock stations from morning 4 1/2 night, or all news. But we are beginning to see drama on commercial radio as well as on NPR and there are interesting experiments all across the board.

"Radio revenues are up—maybe people are getting a little tired of television, a little bored with it."

Mankiewicz has the answer for anyone interested in variety. NPR is going satellite. Eventually there will be down-links (receiving antennae) at every station, as well as 15 up-links or transmitting stations, spotted around the country.

"That will make as a totally different radio system than any other—the sound will be absolutely perfect, with the highest sound fidelity, because there'll be no wire at all," Mankiewicz said.

"Secondly, and most important we will have between four and 20 channels available at one time to broadcast on. At all times we will have at least four channels."

That would allow NPR to broadcast an important public event live on one channel, offer a concert or another, perhaps drama on a third and Spanish language programming on a fourth.

The system is scheduled to begin operations in March 1980, and Mankiewicz hopes to begin broadcasting "Star Wars" at that time, complete with the original sound, track and as many cast members as he can obtain.

John Wayne's death is certain to bring a revival of interest in much of his work. Some of his films worth watching for a true appreciation of his talent are:

"Stagecoach" (d. John Ford, 1939) Few prints are available, but if this film appears on late night television, it would be worth the time to catch it.

"They Were Expendable" (d. John Ford, 1945) This is vintage Wayne at war. The film, although somewhat dated today for its loving praise of war machinery, represents the best of Wayne's war films during World War II.

"Fort Apache" (d. John Ford, 1948) This was the first of several films Ford made to glorify the American cavalry. The film was noted for its fair approach to the Indians. Costars included Henry Fonda and Shirley Temple.

"Red River" (d. Howard Hawks, 1948) "Red River" is a must for anyone who respects westerns. It is also a good chance to see Montgomery Clift in his first film role.

"She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" (d. John Ford, 1949) Not yet 40, John Wayne was already playing an older man. That he succeeded says more of his talent than his credits have suggested.

"Sands of Iwo Jima" (d. Allan Dwan, 1949) Wayne received his first of two Academy Award nominations for the role of Sgt. Striker. The film represents Wayne's best war film performance.

"The Quiet Man" (d. John Ford, 1952) If for no other reason, watch this film for the famous fight marathon between Wayne and Victor McLaglen.

"The Searchers" (d. John Ford, 1956) In his book, "The Great Movies," critic William Bayer calls this film one of the finest westerns ever made. It was certainly one of Wayne's finest and marked the pinnacle of Ford's career in westerns.

"The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" (d. John Ford, 1962) The stars are tarnished a bit by age and the director's eye not as sharp, but Liberty Valance has achieved a reputation through the years as the quintessential western.

"McLintock" (d. Andrew V. McLaglen, 1963) Probably one of the funniest and most entertaining Wayne films ever made.

"True Grit" (d. Henry Hathaway, 1969) William Wolf wrote in Cue magazine: "When the John Wayne retrospectives are in full swing, this will loom as one of his finest movie triumphs." Enough said.

"The Cowboys" (d. Mark Rydell, 1972) One of the finest and most moving of Wayne's later performances.

Alienate yourself out of your skin

By SHELLY KINZEL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — People go to the movies for all sorts of reasons. One, apparently, is the sheer joy of being scared half to death. If terror is what you crave, I can think of no better source than "Alien," a new science fiction thriller currently at the Twin and Jerome cinemas.

"Alien" is one of the most frightening and absorbing features I have ever seen. The plot is simple and basic — getting something evil before it gets you. The "something" in this film is an alien organism which has the ability to undergo continual metamorphosis, and each transformation is more grotesque than the one before.

Most of the action takes place aboard the Nostromo, a commercial space towing vehicle which transports mineral ores from other planets to Earth. On one such mission, the crew intercepts a transmission of unidentified origin, which by law they are required to investigate. Their exploration takes them to a strange planet where three of the crew members find the fossilized remains of a gigantic unknown creature. As they continue "to search, one man discovers a bed of strange egg-like structures.

It is at this point in the story that the horror begins. Any other details would give away the many shocks and surprises which keep the audience riveted to the screen. Unlike many plots, this one is completely unpredictable. Several of the events are so unexpected that you may very well jump out of your seat.

"Alien" capitalizes on one of man's most basic fears — fear of the unknown — and makes this unknown a horrifying reality. Superb editing combines, with unusual special effects to create a film in which the tension never diminishes until the very last few moments. By then, unless you are a heartier soul than I, you may find yourself physically and emotionally exhausted!

On the lighter and brighter side, a new Barbara Streisand comedy also opened at the Jerome Cinema and the Mall Cinema in Twin Falls. "The Main Event" once again teams Streisand with Ryan O'Neal, but although they are an appealing duo, the film suffers from a far-fetched and nonsensical script.

Barbra plays the head of a large perfume company. At the height of her success, she is told by her ex-husband lawyer that her business manager has embezzled all of her money. Her only asset is a prizefighter whose contract her manager bought as a tax shelter. She immediately contacts Eddie "Kid Natural" Scanlan (Ryan O'Neal) with the idea of using his muscles to make some money. The only problem is that "the Kid" has not fought in years.

What ensues is an absurd fight training sequence, a love-hate romance and a "cutesy" ending. The entire film in fact, is a little too cute and a little too unbelievable. Ryan O'Neal with his pretty face and slightly expanded waistline is not terribly convincing as a prizefighter, nor are the fight sequences. There are some humorous scenes and even some risqué dialogue, but mostly the film is a vehicle for showing off Streisand's stunning wardrobe and her shapely derriere.

"The Main Event" is what you might call light-hearted fluff. Ms. Streisand, I believe, is capable of much more. I keep hoping that she will expand her horizons rather than selling herself as a neatly packaged commodity.

Females score a major first for TV movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The first major studio-network television project featuring an all-female starring cast and an all-female creative team will take over "The Walls Came Tumbling Down," a two-hour NBC movie.

The drama will star Cathryn Damon, Sandra Locke, Tina Louise, Stella Stevens, Loretta Swill and Paula Prentiss. Behind the cameras will be executive producers Ellen Wittman and Wendy Riche with Jacqueline Babbitt as producer. Ann Zane Shanks will direct the script written by Joanna Jane Crawford based on the novel by Babs H. Deal.

A: Partially. Steve's long suit is comedy, and he harbors few delusions that he'd be a hot property as a dramatic actor. He does, however, want to cut down his stand-up comic casino and concert appearances in favor of making movies. Even so, he'll have a hard time since his personal appearance schedule numbers a host of dates, for more than $2 million. Steve is also making a movie titled "The Jerk," which is anything but serious and dramatic.

A: Not quite always. One recent morning we spotted Jackie browsing through some magazines in a tiny stationery shop located on New York City's Third-Avenue. As she stooped over, riffling through various publications, Jackie appeared tired. Surprisingly, her hair was uncombed and she was wearing no makeup; her cheeks were wrinkled. Truth to tell, Jackie looked just like any other 49-year-old mumbly who'd recently woke up and tumbled out of bed, not at all like the well-groomed and disciplined Jackie we usually see.

Women Who Made America Great:
 A History Quiz

Celebrating a patriotic holiday such as the Fourth of July usually means giving our forefathers their due credit. But what about the great women who played an important role in our nation's history? Here is a fascinating quiz about a few such women. Who was the first woman member of Congress? Name a lady Pony Express rider. Who beat Phineas Fogg's record of circling the world in 80 days? There are more colorful women in America's history books. Identify them in this week's FAMILY WEEKLY quiz.

We'll show you how to cut the number of hearing aid batteries you're using in half.
