Hank Ramsey, John Hinkle of Aberdeen, Loren Nickerson of Firth enjoy a joke at Shoshone jamboree

Vivid Americana at Shoshone's park

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE—The scene that emerged Sunday at Shoshone's city park was vivid Americana.

More than 4,000 people—some reclining on lawn chairs, others standing near the stage, still others enjoying the sun with a beer or a frisbee, and a few escaping the summer heat with a dip in the canal—came to Shoshone for the 11th Annual Old Time Fiddlers' Jamboree.

Unlike many fiddlers' events, the Shoshone jamboree is not a contest. It is an informal gathering for simple enjoyment, says its founder, Manly Shaw of Corral.

Shaw began the jamboree on his ranch in the mid-1950's.

"I had the idea that I should bring back to the public this old time fiddling and folk songs," Shaw said.

From a small gathering of 60 in 1954, the affair soon drew nearly 1,000 "at my door" by the mid 1960's, Shaw said. At the offer of the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce in 1968, he moved the event to the city park.

More than 100 musicians playing fiddles, mouth harps, spoons, banjos, guitars and harmonicas entertained the crowd. Organizing that talent keeps Shaw busy as master of ceremonies, a role he plays with relish. But the event has grown to such an extent he now has to keep things rather informal.

"When I first started, I tried to emcee every musician. But I couldn't do it in one day," he said.

Although the jamboree does not offer awards, it does draw its share of fiddle champions.

Among the notables present were Rick Youngblood of Pocatello, who placed first at the Old Time Fiddler's Contest in Weiser; Joe Sites of Wendell, who has won numerous awards during the past four years including the title of Idaho State Champion, and Craig Wilson of Nampa who won first place at the state contest in the junior jurisdiction.

Wilson was one of the biggest crowd pleasers. The 12-year-old former violin player took up the fiddle two years ago. Wilson won the state championship at the April contest in Idaho Falls.

The jamboree has taken on a life of its own during the past 11 years, Shaw said. And he is now moving to other projects, including a two-week Idaho fiddlers tour of Rumania next month.

The trip marks the first time a fiddlers group has visited the country, Shaw said.

Blue grass in Bucharest? The idea may not sound so impossible to a man who started with 60 people in the audience in 1954.

Idahoan joins Demo support for Carter

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—President Carter won endorsement for re-election from 20 Democratic governors Sunday—including Idaho Gov. John Evans—but four others abstained, despite a strong plea for Carter's programs from Vice President Walter Mondale.

The resolution of support—made in the face of numerous public opinion polls showing strong Democratic sentiment for Sen. Edward Kennedy—was adopted at a closed meeting before the National Governors Association summer conference began.

Gov. Ella Grasso, D-Conn., new chairman of the Democratic governors and author of the pro-Carter resolution, said all three who abstained said during the brief debate that they were behind the president.

"They said they wanted to make their own announcements at their own time," Grasso said.

She said there was no discussion at the meeting about a possible Kennedy challenge to Carter in 1980.

Gov. Grasso said that while the resolution "was not designed to stop anyone" from running against Carter, "we did make a commitment to him."

The resolution praises Carter for reducing unemployment, keeping peace, making government more efficient and making the governors "partners" in developing federal legislation affecting states.

The 20 governors who endorsed Carter for re-election were Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, Bill Clinton of Arkansas, Ella Grasso of Connecticut, Robert Graham of Florida, George Busbee of Georgia, John Evans of Idaho, John Carlin of Kansas, Julian Carroll of Kentucky, Edward King of Massachusetts, Cliff Finch of Mississippi.

Thomas J. Donohue of Montana, Hugh Gallen of New Hampshire, Brendan Byrne of New Jersey, Bruce King of New Mexico, James Hunt of North Carolina, Arthur Link of North Dakota, Joseph Garbarino of Rhode Island, Richard Riley of South Carolina, Dixie Lee Ray of Washington and Ed Herschler of Wyoming.

Speaking to the opening session of the conference, Mondale said America has the capacity to overcome the energy crisis.

"Its solution requires the insight of every group and sector in our society," he said.

President focuses on energy problem

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter concentrated on the nation's growing energy problems Sunday in closed meetings at Camp David with government scientists and domestic policy advisers while his chief spokesman rejected suggestions of an administration house cleaning.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell testily described reports of an impending shake-up of the White House staff and the possible ouster of Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger as "speculation."

But civil rights leader Jesse Jackson said after his meeting with Carter that the president is "reassessing his staff and Cabinet members" along with the nation's problems.

Schlesinger and Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal Sunday came to the mountaintop retreat in favor of lifting federal gasoline price and allocation controls as a means to ease demands on the fuel.

But they were opposed by Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's chief domestic adviser and head of a White House energy task force.

Powell said the discussions with Schlesinger and other energy experts lasted about five hours and that Carter found them "very helpful and productive."

Carter has held intensive meetings with governors, petroleum industry officials, representatives of civil rights and environmental groups and others since he suddenly canceled a nationwide address on energy Thursday. The talks first apparently involved Carter's troubled political future and declining popularity but quickly focused on energy and related issues.

Powell said two bipartisan congressional bills of energy will meet separately with Carter today—focusing on energy in the morning and inflation and the economy during the afternoon. Sometime later, Powell said, religious and ethnic group leaders to Camp David.

Powell said the Camp David sessions "may have a profound effect probably till the end of this century" on the nation.

Powell said the talks centered on:

- "The world energy outlook, including future supplies."
- "Strategy for reducing imports and producing alternatives, such as coal, solar energy and synthetic fuels."
- "Financing and organization to encourage development of fuel alternatives."
- "Short term spot shortages and how to handle them."
- "Public attitudes toward long and short term energy problems."

Skylab trackers narrow entry period

WASHINGTON (UPI)—America's errant space laboratory, Skylab, dropped to within 119.2 miles of Earth Sunday and trackers narrowed its expected re-entry into the atmosphere to a 30-hour period centered on 8:28 a.m. MDT Wednesday.

"It's coming down," a NASA spokesman said in relaying an updated position on the 77-ton space craft from the North American Air Defense Command. Trackers said it was taking 88 minutes 5 seconds for Skylab to orbit Earth on Sunday with the high point of the orbit at 129.3 miles and a low point of 119.2 miles—the closest to Earth Skylab has been since it was launched in 1973.

According to the latest calculations, the "window" in which NASA officials said Skylab would enter the atmosphere would be from 5:28 p.m.

MDT Tuesday until 11:28 p.m. MDT Thursday. That calculation sliced 10 hours off Saturday's predicted re-entry period and spokesmen said the time would be refined even more today and Tuesday. Officials cautioned Skylab could fall any time during the 30-hour period and 8:28 a.m. was merely the midway point.

"It could fall anywhere 15 hours on either side," a spokesman said. Maps depicting a general orbit for Skylab on Wednesday has the space laboratory at 8:28 a.m. MDT passing over Mauritania on the western tip of Africa. Should re-entry occur at that time, Skylab would be headed over Mali, Upper Volta, Ghana, then across the Gulf of Guinea and southeastern over Angola, Botswana and South Africa.

Debris would not begin falling for another 4,000 or 5,000 miles, officials said, making only Botswana and South Africa possible impact areas. But under that assumption, most of Skylab's space junk would be expected to plunge into the Indian Ocean.

Engineers believe two-thirds of Skylab will be consumed by heat as it decelerates from 16,000 miles per hour at re-entry. About 500 pieces of the craft capable of causing injury are expected to come down intact and land in a zone 4,000 miles long and 100 miles wide.

But the chances of any one individual being hit is 600 billion to one.

Idaho inmates taken into custody

BOISE (UPI)—Authorities have taken into custody two Idaho State Penitentiary inmates in connection with the stabbing Saturday of a prisoner serving a life sentence for murder and robbery.

But Warden Ed Dermitt said the names of the suspects are being withheld. The men apparently were taken into custody after authorities found blood-stained clothing in their possession. The inmates also had changed their clothing.

The stabbing occurred about 1:15 p.m. Saturday when Delbert Crawford, 34, who has been in the prison since he was sentenced to life plus 15 years in 1975, was found lying on his cell floor with apparently a single stab wound in the stomach. He is out of danger and recovering from his wound at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise.

A prison lockup was ordered for all prisoners. However, Dermitt said that lockup has been partially lifted.

"We are opening up 10 and 11 houses," Dermitt said of the two medium-security facilities which hold about 160 prisoners. "They will be released to normal activities and normal visitation."

Opinions vary on death penalty, Osborn case

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

POCATELLO—Few issues go to the core of the American justice system as does capital punishment. The debate over this issue has intensified in light of 6th District Judge Arthur Oliver's decision to sentence convicted murderer David Alan Osborn of Slatersville, Utah, to die by lethal injection.

Several Idaho attorneys last week were asked to comment on the Osborn case. Most said they were too unfamiliar with the case, aside from news accounts, to comment on specifics. But the question of capital punishment brought opinions from both sides.

Twin Falls attorney John Hepworth said capital punishment may be appropriate in some cases and "in those heinous circumstances it may serve as a deterrent to others. Hopefully it would be used sparingly."

Twin Falls County prosecutor Jeff Stoker agreed, saying capital punishment will probably remain within the judicial system. "It's something we'll have to live with in all likelihood. I'm basically a person who believes there is a place in the legal system for capital punishment."

On the other side of the bench, public defender Randy Stoker of Twin Falls said he had mixed feelings towards it. "There are cases where it is justified (such as) brutal premeditated murder done by someone who knows what he is doing. The problem from my standpoint is I don't know where you draw the line," he said.

Where that line is drawn is a crucial question, Boise attorney Ellison Matthews said. And he's unsure the line is consistent.

"It's never delt but equally or fairly," he said. "It's going to vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction, from judge to judge, and from jury to jury."

"I'm opposed to any death penalty. That's a philosophy I've arrived at after seeing both sides of the criminal justice system over an extensive period of time," he said.

Matthews was Ada County Prosecutor from 1966-1970 and was public defender from 1975-1976.

The death penalty does not provide a deterrent, he said. And it may have just the opposite effect.

"I basically feel if you allow the state to kill people, it's no different than killing anyone else. Society is saying in certain circumstances that it's all right to kill someone. That creates in the populace the feeling that it's morally acceptable in some points," he said.

But Rexburg attorney Gordon Thatcher said the new Idaho capital punishment law fills a need while providing adequate safeguards for the defendant.

"There are circumstances where there should be a death penalty. We need safeguards, but when there is a murder, there ought to be a provision for a death penalty."

Debate concerning the specifics of Osborn's case could begin later this week. Osborn was sentenced under Idaho's new capital punishment law. The law marks the state's second attempt since 1972 to enact capital punishment under guidelines set by the U.S. and Idaho Supreme Courts.

The new law provides for automatic review by the state Supreme Court. Osborn's attorney Hartwell Blake of Pocatello could begin that process this week. Blake said he will first ask the court to amend the sentence.

He has 10 days to file the motion and 30 days to file a motion for appeal. What that will come a motion for staying Osborn's Aug. 20 appointment with the state executioner.

The new Idaho law defines 10 aggravated circumstances under which the crime must fall before a judge can produce a death sentence. Oliver applied the law to the defendant: "The murder was...exceptionally heinous..." and by its commission Osborn "...exhibited an utter disregard for human life."

Blake challenged the criteria, saying the wording may be unconstitutionally vague and open to varied interpretation. "What is utter disregard from human life. There have been no guidelines set down," he said.

Good morning!

Voyager 2 cameras focus on Jupiter's ring

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The first clear pictures of the ring of Jupiter were taken Sunday as Voyager 2 approached the giant planet at more than 32,000 mph.

Voyager 2 sped by Callisto, the outermost of the four large Galilean satellites of Jupiter and made a photograph of its southern surface. The moon, then turned its cameras on two other moons and the thin ring which circles the planet.

The ring of space debris encircling Jupiter at its equator was discovered by Voyager 1 last March and that space probe made the first picture as it was hurried away toward Saturn.

Voyager 2 aimed its television cameras from below and from the top of the ring Sunday.

The pictures showed it "very faintly," Bradford-Smith, imaging team leader, said. "It has to be enhanced by computer." He said more pictures of the ring will be made Tuesday as the sun is shining on it from the south.

"The ring is a bit thin but we can't say how thin," Smith told a news conference. "It is very narrow and that makes it more like the rings of Uranus than those of Saturn."

Voyager 2 will begin close-up observations of the ring on the third day of the mission, after it passes the moon Io Sunday when it passed by at a distance of 38,700 miles. Its closest approach to Callisto was at 123,572 miles.

Pictures taken at long distance by Voyager 2 of Ganymede which, with Callisto, is believed to be mostly ice, show blue polar regions and a large brownish area in the center of the moon.

The spacecraft was 577 million miles from Earth Sunday with photo and data transmissions to Jet Propulsion Laboratory taking more than 51 minutes and 40 seconds to reach the gulf of space at the speed of light.

Voyager's nearest encounter with Jupiter will be today at 1:21 p.m. MDT at 404,100 miles. It will continue its scientific observation of the planetary system until Aug. 28, however, while it is on the journey to Saturn.

Scientific investigations of Jupiter's giant magnetic field by Voyager 2 disclosed wide differences from results relayed back by Voyager 1 in March.

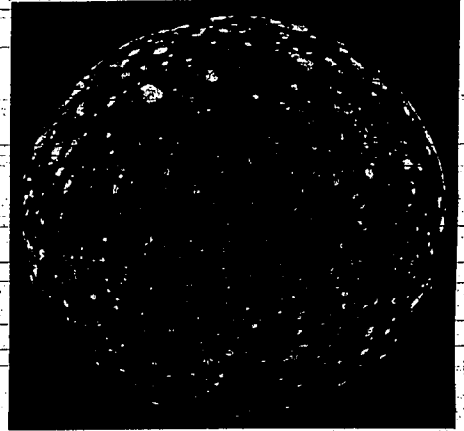

Dr. George Gloeckler said Voyager 2 was finding more carbon in the magnetosphere and smaller amounts of sulfur and oxygen among high-speed particles.

The particles were first measured at the outer limits of the magnetosphere, eight million miles away from the planet.

Some of the carbon may be from the solar wind which strikes the magnetic field, Gloeckler, of University of Maryland, said. "But it is interesting to speculate it originated in the Jovian magnetosphere and was energized to high speeds," he said.

Sulfur and oxygen are being found in amounts 10 times less than found by Voyager 1 and there is more carbon relative to oxygen.

Voyager 2's speed is increasing under the tremendous pull of Jupiter's gravity and will reach more than 50,000 mph relative to the sun as it is hurled around the planet toward Saturn.

Sandinista leaders reject U.S. offer as 'blackmail'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Sandinista guerrilla commanders Sunday rejected a U.S. offer of $100 million in reconstruction aid in exchange for assurance that any postwar guerrilla junta be expanded to include more moderate members.

The Roman Catholic archbishop of Managua Sunday criticized the government of President Anastasio Somoza, the Sandinistas and the United States.

In a telephone interview with UPI correspondent Alfonso Charry, Somoza said Sunday he will resign only when the United States can insure that his national guard and his Liberal Party will not be destroyed.

Both of Somoza's conditions were immediately rejected by the Sandinista Provisional government, based in Costa Rica.

"Our position is clear," Sandinista spokesman Ernesto Cardenal said. "We will never allow the Somoza system to continue in Nicaragua."

The guerrillas have also said the national guard would be replaced with a new army made up of Sandinistas and those national guard soldiers and officers the guerrillas proclaim to be innocent of crimes against the people.

The United States had sent special envoys to the Sandinista provisional government in neighboring Costa Rica and held out offers of massive reconstruction aid after Somoza leaves office. The offer was providing the post-Somoza junta is expanded to include more moderates. The present junta is composed of two moderates and three leftists.

Meanwhile, Msgr. Miguel Obando Y Bravo, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Managua, issued a pastoral letter read in all Managua churches that condemned "hellish actions that tend toward destruction of entire cities" which he said was "a crime against God and against humanity." It was a clear reference to the Somoza government's massive bombing of populated areas.

Israel recalls envoy

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel recalled its ambassador to Austria Sunday to protest the state welcome accorded Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat in Vienna by Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin and opposition Labor Party leader Shimon Peres agreed to issue a joint statement in parliament condemning the reception for the PLO chieftain in Vienna.

Muzorewa in Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has agreed to meet Bishop Abel Muzorewa, Zimbabwe Rhodesia's first black prime minister, and will urge him to focus major attention on strengthening majority rule at home.

Muzorewa is to arrive in Washington today for a visit that is believed beneficial in dealing with the United States policy of non-recognition of the new Rhodesian regime.

Iranian leader slain

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Gunmen believed to be members of an anti-clergy terrorist group shot and killed Moslem leader Taqi Haj Tarkhani, a close associate of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the government news agency said Sunday.

The National Iranian Oil Co. reported explosions at two oil and gas pipelines connected to the world's largest oil refinery in southern Iran. The blasts caused heavy damage but no casualties, and a spokesman said Iran's daily oil production schedule of about 4 million barrels a day was not affected.

Ferry sinks at Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — A paddle wheel ferryboat capsized as it neared a dock on a lake at the 1967 World's Fair grounds Sunday, dumping the 33 people aboard into 15 feet of water and killing at least 3, including a 6-year-old boy.

Officials of the Man and His World exposition said the three bodies had been recovered and 13 other people were taken to hospitals and treated for minor injuries or shock. Most were sent home soon after being treated.

Basques disrupt fiesta

PAMPLONA, Spain (UPI) — Basque nationalists interrupted the San Fermin running of the bulls festival Sunday with a demonstration marking the anniversary of the killing of a leftist that caused a riot and cancellation of last year's fiesta.

With fists raised, the demonstrators marched from the chapel of San Fermin through the center of the city to a U.S. office building memorial on the tree-shaded streets near the bullring where German Rodriguez, 27, was shot one year ago.

The self-policed demonstration broke up after an hour without violence. The only police present were the officers stopping traffic along the route of the march.

Strauss heads home

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — U.S. special envoy Robert Strauss left for the United States Sunday, carrying Saudi Arabia's latest position that any "interim peace settlement must be based on complete Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories."

Strauss who attended the latest Egyptian-Israeli talks on Palestinian autonomy, heard Crown Prince Fakh Bin Abdell Aziz appeal to the United States to "fulfill the legitimate demands of the Arab nations and the Palestine people," the Saudi Press Agency said.

Walla Walla prison officials repair damage from violence

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI) — While 230 inmates rested quietly in the "Big Yard" of the Washington State Penitentiary Sunday, the prison began a search for plumbing fixtures to repair 74 cells damaged during a night of violence.

The cell-smashing spree in Eight Wing of the overcrowded prison Saturday night caused an estimated $10,000 damage to plumbing and wiring. In 74 of the wings' 100 four-man cells, inmates ripped toilets and sinks off the walls and used the fixtures to batter through a concrete wall into a utility tunnel.

No injuries were reported, and no inmates escaped.

Prison officials hoped the cells would be repaired and the institution would be back to normal sometime next week, prison spokesman Dick Paulson said.

"The bottom line is we have to find some kind of holding space, at least temporarily, for all 343 inmates from the wing," said Paulson.

The 96-year-old maximum security prison, which houses about 1,400 inmates, has been under deadlock since June 15 when a guard was fatally stabbed trying to break up a fight. All of the prisoners have been kept inside their cells since then, not being allowed out even for meals. Paulson said the disturbance Saturday began around 6 p.m. with the angry chants of inmates on Eight Wing demanding to be let out to take showers.

Eight Wing, which houses mostly "lifers," has been a trouble spot since the lockdown began, Paulson said.

"The people in Eight Wing have provided the staff just about every night with a demonstration of one kind or another — hollering insults, throwing things, and this one probably started with someone complaining and it spread until it got out of control. You could call it one gigantic temper tantrum."

The violence erupted about 10 p.m. Saturday, after a day of temperatures in the 90s. A tactical squad moved into the wing about midnight and "red" prisoners in small groups from the damaged cells — to the six-acre Big Yard. The situation was under control by 5:30 a.m. Sunday, Paulson said.

Once the damaged cells were emptied, the prison staff began working around the clock to repair them.

"We've got to find some suppliers who can supply us with equipment," said Paulson. "Staff will do most of the repair. But there's a lot of repair work when you have something ripped up like that."

The prison has a long history of overcrowding.

Two months ago, three inmates took 10 staff members hostage and held them for 12 hours. The hostages were released when Superintendent James Spaulding agreed to their demands for a meeting with reporters to air their grievances.

During a cell-by-cell search of the prison since the June 15 stabbing, guards have uncovered more than 50 weapons, mostly homemade knives.

Lebanese lad faces surgery

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 7-year-old Lebanese boy, whose pelvis was broken last year by a falling 100-pound sandbag in a Beirut shelter, entered a Brooklyn hospital Sunday for a rare operation doctors hope will correct his damaged urinary tract.

Surgery is scheduled for Tuesday on Mady Imad, the youngest of four children who lives with his mother in a Bedouin suburb.

"I'm afraid of needles," the boy said in Arabic through an interpreter. "But I am hopeful that everything will be fine."

"All fine. Good good."

The brown-haired, brown-eyed second-grader and his mother, neither of whom speak English, arrived in New York Thursday for the six-hour operation.

Soviets may try for changes if Senate alters SALT terms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd indicated Sunday the Kremlin has dropped its "no amendment" stance on SALT II, but said Soviet leaders may seek further concessions themselves if the Senate amends the treaty.

Byrd, who just returned from Moscow, revealed what appears to be a significant shift in the position Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev took at the Vienna summit, when he warned against any changes in the new strategic arms limitation treaty.

Since then, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko also has said that any Senate changes to the treaty would mean an end to arms negotiations between the United States and Russia.

But when Byrd was asked on CBS' "Face the Nation" program what would happen if the Senate amended the treaty, he replied: "That opens up the treaty for renegotiation, in which case the Soviets would expect to open up some of their problem areas and probably demand some concessions."

"If there are basic changes in the treaty text itself, these would require renegotiation. In the case of renegotiation, the Soviets would say: 'Okay, you're opening up the treaty on this point, you want to open it on this, we want to open it on this.'"

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee begins debate on the treaty today and a final vote in the Senate is expected "sometimes" this fall.

SEN. ROBERT BYRD

Moscow eases stance

Senate observers believe that opponents of SALT II may have enough votes to add important changes to the treaty text. The administration is believed to be at least nine votes short of the 67 required to ratify the treaty.

"If the vote were taken today, there would probably not be a two-thirds vote there," Byrd said. "Perhaps in November, there may be a two-thirds vote, but that is by no means certain."

Byrd said he explained to Soviet leaders the difference between mafor amendments to the treaty text, and reservations which the Senate might add to the resolution by which it could approve the treaty.

For example, he said, the Senate might want to incorporate the text of Brezhnev's statement to President Carter in Vienna promising not to increase the production rate of the controversial Soviet backfire bomber above 30 a month.

"I think the Senate ought to write this in (the resolution of ratification)," Byrd said.

Byrd indicated that the Soviets now understood better the implications of such action, which would not necessarily lead to renegotiation of the whole treaty.

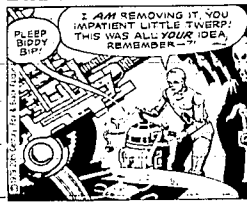

"I feel they have a better understanding of the Senate's role and of the resolution of ratification that would relieve some of the concerns of senators without altering the treaty text," he said.

On another issue, Byrd said he had raised the issue of Soviet dissident Anatoly Shecharansky, who was tried and imprisoned on charges of serving as a CIA agent in the Soviet Union.

Byrd said the conversations were "of a confidential nature" and declined to outline what was discussed.

He also said the Soviets did not give a satisfactory response when he appealed to them not to oppose the renewal of the United Nations emergency force in the Middle East when it comes before the U.N. Security Council later this month.

STAR WARS...

American 'friends' behind oil pinch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., says U.S. "friends" among the oil-producing nations are chiefly responsible for the world shortage of oil.

In a statement released Sunday, Aspin said unclassified CIA figures indicate the daily oil production of the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is running about 3.9 million barrels below capacity.

Of the total "underproduction," Aspin said, about 40 percent occurs in Iran.

But almost 60 percent, he said, occurs in Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar and Abu Dhabi.

"They are all conservative monarchies that purportedly look to the West," he said.

Aspin said Iraq, which he described as "the most militant" Arab state, was producing oil "full blast," averaging more than 3.1 million barrels a day and slightly exceeding its estimated capacity.

He said Algeria is producing "flat out" at 1.1 million barrels a day, and that Libya — despite threats to cut production — has been averaging 97 percent of its maximum production rate of 2.2 million barrels daily.

Another five OPEC countries — Venezuela, Indonesia, Nigeria, Ecuador and Gabon — are producing at nearly 100 percent of capacity, Aspin said.

Public's role backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Any effort to reform U.S. broadcast regulations must include provisions that stress the public's interest and welfare over that of the broadcaster, the U.S. Catholic Conference said Sunday.

"Any responsible rewriting of the communications laws of the country must begin with the assertion that the public's rights circumscribe the rights of the broadcast licensee," said Richard Hirsch, USCC secretary for communication. The USCC is the action arm of the country's Roman Catholic bishops.

Congress is currently considering a major revision of the Communications Act of 1934, the basic law governing television and radio broadcast, which includes provisions essentially deregulating the broadcast industry.

Hirsch, in a written statement prepared for Senate and House subcommittees considering the proposed new legislation, said the current proposals "take the final step in delivering the public's television and radio rights to commercial interests — an unfortunate trend which has been regrettably countenanced by the executive branch and by Congress since the 1930s."

The USCC was denied a request to present oral testimony before the subcommittees.

"I still remember last winter... cold, bitter, miserable! Yet we supplied plenty of heat to every customer."

Natural gas users in Idaho are fortunate, they aren't faced with an energy crisis. That's because supply is more than ample, even into the next century. If you heat with oil and are concerned about its cost and supply this winter, changing to gas is your best alternative.

Both the U.S. Department of Energy and the Idaho Public Utilities Commission recommend the use of natural gas over oil and electricity for residential space heating. The reasons are simple: Adequate supply and maximum efficiency.

So call now, natural gas makes cents.

Supreme Court decisions affect daily lives

By CYNTHIA MILLS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The daily lives of a broad cross-section of Americans have been touched by Supreme Court decisions issued in the past nine months. Before winding up their 1978-79 term last week, the justices bolstered civil liberties in some areas and tightened them in others.

Police may no longer single out an automobile and stop it just to check a driver's license and registration. A person stopped by police who has no specific reason to suspect wrongdoing may not be punished for refusing to give his name.

But a license can be suspended without a prior hearing if police suspect a driver is drunk and the driver refuses to take a breath analysis test.

As Chief Justice Warren Burger marked his 10th anniversary presiding over the court, it continued its general trend of favoring prosecutors' powers and limiting the rights of the accused.

Police don't need a warrant before using a "pen register" which records all numbers dialed from a private phone.

Federal agents can, without a separate court order, break into a home to plant an authorized electronic "bug."

A person awaiting trial on a criminal charge may be subjected to intimate body searches and some similar acts — even though the law says such a person is innocent until proven guilty.

A prisoner who seeks more say in parole release proceedings is "only" entitled to the procedural safeguards of the state of origin.

The liberal end of the court's philosophical spectrum carried the day for minorities, who won some favorable civil rights rulings:

Private employers can't take refuge in the law any more when minorities press them to set up affirmative action programs — even those with racial quotas.

The power of federal judges to issue systemwide desegregation orders requiring busing in northern cities has been reaffirmed.

But the court's rulings on women's and children's rights were mixed:

Veterans preference laws were upheld despite charges they limit opportunities for women seeking state jobs.

States were told to make it possible for husbands — not just wives — to receive alimony payments.

A pregnant teenager whose parents refuse to permit an abortion may be required to convince a judge that she is mature and well-informed enough to make her own decision, or that it is in her best interest.

Children need not be given a hearing before being committed to a mental institution by their parents.

The handicapped have no right under federal law to attend a professional school whose physical qualifications they cannot meet.

And the court said a person may be committed indefinitely to a mental institution without proof "beyond a reasonable doubt" such treatment is needed.

Laetrile users received word the court overturned a ruling allowing terminally ill patients to obtain the purported cancer cure.

Members of Congress also won some and lost some in the nation's top court:

The justices made it harder for the government to prosecute legislators who take bribes in exchange for promises to influence legislation.

But they also made it tougher for lawmakers to defend themselves against libel suits; and they said an employee may sue a lawbreaker for damages on discrimination charges.

It was an especially bad year for the media:

The court limited what type of person qualifies as a "public figure" who must prove "actual malice" to win a libel suit. And it said reporters sued for libel can be compelled to answer questions about their "state of mind" when preparing a story.

In the biggest blow, the court gave trial judges wide discretion to bar reporters — and the public from a courtroom when an accused criminal claims publicity might prejudice a trial.

Low oxygen levels in political waters, too

Political waters seem to run deep, and with a less than desirable level of oxygen, at American Falls. The reservoir district and Idaho Power Co. have been slowly attempting to meet state water pollution standards. Actions have been taken, but they seem less than optimum.

The problem, power officials say, is Idaho's 6-parts-per-million oxygen requirement. The hydroelectric plant at the Falls is not equipped to meet that level. Even a new $200,000 air-injection system, installed at the plant this weekend, cannot bring the levels up to standard.

So, Idaho Power has filed suit in an Ada County court, seeking a lower standard, passed by last year's Legislature and stopped by the attorney general. Money and the pocket from which it comes is at the heart of the issue.

There are two ways to bring the oxygen level of the plant up to standard:

One is to spill water over the dam, thereby reducing power production. To replace the losses, Idaho Power must buy power from other utilities. This money probably would come out of the electricity customer's pocket.

The second option is to install additional equipment which would meet the current standards. This money would come out of the pockets of Idaho Power and American Falls Irrigators, who would pay four cents per acre per year.

A third option, of course, is to reduce the standard to 5-parts-per million. This level is opposed by the State Department of Health and Welfare and the Fish and Game Commission because it would endanger fish in the Snake River. The money lost because of fewer fish would come out of the pockets of the extensive fishing industries along the Snake. The lower standards also would mean fewer fish for the many anglers who frequent our area.

No one really wants the money to come out of their pocket. So now the courts must weigh the pros and cons. If that fails, it's back to the Legislature.

In the meantime, there's the question of the new equipment, which only brings the oxygen levels up to 5-parts-per million. One wonders why Idaho power didn't go to the incremental expense of installing equipment which would bring the level up to current standards.

It seems this option would have saved a lot of state government time and money, and prevented the possibility of power shortages. But, it's also the option that pulls the money from Idaho Power's pocket.

Tories' new belief

© The Washington Post

LONDON — Marx's ghost, hovering over Highgate Cemetery, must be vexed. Tories have become the bold believers in Economic Man, in the economic springs of action, in an economic theory of history.

The unlikely bomb thrower in the exhilaratingly radical Conservative government is Sir Geoffrey Howe, chancellor of the exchequer: gray hair, gray suits, technocrat policy. Elections can change the governing faces; budgets can change the fate of the state. Howe's budget begins such a change.

It is, of course, her budget; the lady next door. Prime minister live at No. 10 Downing Street, chancellor at No. 11. The symbolism of British government is dead right: Economic realities define political possibilities. Margaret Thatcher's budget begins the boldest, most worthy experiment undertaken by a democracy since the war.

Personal income taxes are cut $9.5 billion. The standard rate is cut from 33 to 30 percent, a first step toward 25 percent, the top rate is cut from 83 to 60. About 1.3 million low-income people are removed from the tax rolls by raising the tax threshold. The revenue is gained by a shift from direct to indirect taxation, taxing income less and consumption more. The value added tax ("VAT"), a sales tax, goes to 15 percent. And the state will sell some industrial assets. The substantial spending cuts are termed "a very preliminary package."

Howe rejects the suggestion that No. 11 is a casino, that the budget is a gamble. But his calmness is that of a man who has placed his bet and spun the wheel and on only a roll.

successful and prosperous society without successful — and prosperous individuals."

Every society has a structure of incentives, and Britain's "leveling down" egalitarianism produced irrational incentives against work and thrift and risk, and for tax cheating and emigration. The budget begins the thinking, economic motives are bedrock. Three pence now; and more later; and much more, immediately, for energizing elites; and many other changes — all this should change behavior.

Howe has summoned animal spirits from the vasty deep. Will they come? The budget's immediate effect was a gentle criticism — the bourgeois lawlessness of shopkeepers who broke the law against Sunday openings in order to handle the surge of customers on the last day before the VAT increase. But as the elite, Disraeli said, it is a very difficult country to move, Mr. Hyndman, a very difficult country indeed.

More TV ads? No thanks

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WASHINGTON — The beauty of government servants in Washington is that they are always willing to help American citizens, even when you don't want them to.

Now you have to follow me very closely on this, or you'll get lost. The antitrust division of the Justice Department is suing the networks because they don't allow enough commercials on the air during prime time. According to a code agreed upon by the networks, TV commercials are limited to nine and a half minutes to every hour between 8:00 and 11:00 o'clock.

But lawyers in Justice, who know what's best for us, have decided the less commercials you put on TV, the higher the cost, and therefore, the costlier that you and me) has to pay more for the product advertised.

Now I know you all have questions so I will try to answer them for you.

Q: Why do we have to have more commercials? There are too many on the air as it is.

A: Because the more commercials the networks show, the less it will cost the advertiser, and so he can pass his savings on to you.

Q: How much would we save?

A: Figuring cost per thousand, you would save as much as half a cent on a bar of soap, a quarter of a cent on a roll of toilet paper, and maybe five cents on a new car.

Q: Suppose we'd rather have the shows and pay the extra money, so we wouldn't be inflated with the expensive deleted commercials?

A: Impossible. You have no say when the Justice Department institutes an antitrust suit. They know better than you do what's good for your wallet.

Q: If they put on more and more commercials, then I'll stop watching television and the advertiser won't be able to sell his product. What happens then?

A: The advertiser will be forced to raise his prices for his goods because he won't be producing as much.

Q: Can't the Justice Department officials realize that the less commercials on TV, the more the public likes it?

A: No, they can't. For one reason, they're so busy thinking up antitrust suits — such as this — they never have time to watch television. If the government lawyers can break the network code on TV commercial limitations, it will be a big feather in their caps. They can then go out and join a big private law firm specializing in defending this type of antitrust case.

Q: Why don't they spend our money and their time going after the oil companies and the big multinationals instead of messing around with how much advertising the public should have inflicted on it?

A: That's a good question, but when I called the antitrust division to ask them, everyone was out to lunch.

Q: Do you think this is a good thing or a bad thing for TV viewers?

A: It's a good thing if you enjoy watching commercials. But if you prefer to watch the programs, you could have trouble with it.

Q: What can I do as an American TV viewer to tell them it's the stupidest idea I ever heard of in my life?

A: Write to: BIG BROTHER in care of Antitrust Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C., but don't be disappointed if no one answers your letter. They're all busy people, or they wouldn't be thinking up lawsuits like this one.

Windfall taxes should benefit poor

By LARRY S. BULLOCK

State Rep. Larry S. Bullock (D-Chicago) is a member of the Illinois House Revenue Committee and a specialist in government transportation.

Rising retail prices of gasoline and home-heating oil, coupled with alarm over short supplies, have become a major worry for many people. In majority committees, there is an additional disturbing element: allegations of unequal distribution of gas supplies.

In response to concerns of my constituents and based on my experience as a consumer, it like to comment on pending national legislation and set out some facts that should be important to all consumers.

The U.S. House is moving to increase the windfall profits tax President Carter attached to his oil deregulation plan. If approved by the Senate and not subsequently vetoed by the President, this would effectively deprive the oil industry of 70 percent of the extra profits resulting from deregulation of oil prices. This means an annual addition to the nation's treasury of $6.625 billion, nearly $1.6 billion above President Carter's recommendation.

How will this new money be spent? Can it be spent in ways that will bring the most benefit to the general public, from whom it derived? If so, how? With those questions in mind, lets look back at 1962.

The average production worker earned just over $5,000 a year, according to the U.S. Labor Department. Home-heating oil was about 31 cents a gallon and gasoline was about 21 cents; each less than a third of a consumer dollar. Today, that same worker earns about $13,000 a year — 160 per cent more than in 1962. Gasoline in the Chicago area averages about 96 cents a gallon (more in some parts of the country) and home-heating oil has climbed to 75 cents. This well over a 200 per cent increase for each, more than the growth of wages.

These higher costs, inflation in general and a sluggish economy translate to fewer jobs. What might be viewed as an inconvenience to the bulk of society — white, affluent middle class — has escalated to a crisis of major proportions for minorities and the working poor, who comprise a significant proportion in urban areas.

A plan should be devised and implemented at the federal level to minimize this negative impact. Certainly, increased fuel costs hit hardest on the working poor and others with little money. A rational and sensible solution would require that revenue derived from a windfall profits tax be returned directly to the public in a logical manner.

Why not distribute this $6.625 billion like this:

Earmark 25 percent, or $1.656 billion, for expanded energy research, focusing on alternate sources (such as gasohol) to lessen our dependence on OPEC.

Give another 25 percent to a wide variety of financial assistance programs targeted to reduce home fuel needs, including foam insulation and passive solar heating.

Allocate 50 percent to direct financial relief for the working poor and other low-income persons as a rebate, based upon gas and fuel receipts.

This plan would return an average of $125 a year to 20 million of our nation's most unfortunate citizens. I expect that critics may point to its potential for increasing inflation.

To prevent that, half of the money allocated for rebates could be held in a government-administered mutual fund, rather than paid outright in cash. As a hedge against inflation this money credited to the account of each recipient — should be invested in secure, dividend-paying stocks (blue-chip) and in high-yield municipal bonds and other government securities.

This will provide additional benefits not only to those receiving the subsidy, but also will stimulate the private sector through the influx of needed dollars for capital, modernization and new construction. This, in turn, would mean more jobs in all sectors of the economy.

This could be the scenario for long-term solutions to the national energy problem. For short-term individual problems, the U.S. Energy Department has provided a toll-free number for summer vacationers and victims of price gouging: 8 0 0 - 4 2 4 - 9 2 4 6

British actor Wilding dies from fall injuries

CHICHESTER, England (UPI) — Actor Michael Wilding, Elizabeth Taylor's second husband, died Sunday from injuries suffered in a fall at his country home. He was 66 and had been in failing health for some time.

Folks in the quiet Sussex town of Chichester said Wilding, whom friends said had a history of dizziness, fell Saturday and was taken to a hospital where he died 12 hours later without regaining consciousness.

In Washington, a spokesman for Miss Taylor — who is now the wife of Sen. John Warner, R-Va., — said she was "very upset" and was planning to go to London to join the two children she bore Wilding, Michael Jr., and Christopher.

He married Miss Taylor in 1952 after her divorce from her first husband, Nicky Hilton.

When they divorced in 1957, Liz said, "I still like and respect Mike very much. It is a friendly divorce."

Wilding, who had been married four times, became a British movie idol with screen hits like "Spring in Park Lane" and "Maytime in Mayfair." His last wife, actress Margaret Leighton, died three years ago of multiple sclerosis.

His son Michael Jr., called Miss Taylor in Virginia from Wilding's bedside where he lay unconscious. Christopher Wilding was enroute to England from Los Angeles.

Wilding was brought to the hospital late Saturday afternoon and died early Sunday morning, the spokesman said. He said Wilding suffered head injuries in the fall but declined to comment further.

Nobleman hangs self

LONDON (UPI) — Lord Valentine Thynne, 41, the nobleman known in his youth as the Prince of the Beatniks, hanged himself early Sunday near his home, where the night before he hosted a party attended by Princess Margaret, police said.

The family home, Longleat, is one of the most famous in the kingdom and was the scene Saturday night of a glittering ball to raise $2 million for a private hospital.

Arians can find favors and better acceptance

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The benefits that can be yours today come from unexpected sources. Don't force anything, but be patient and wait for the various goodies to drop into your lap.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look to one who is prominent in civic circles for a favor you need and which is within his jurisdiction to extend. A loved one views you more favorably now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you adopt a new attitude, you can advance more quickly at whatever your ambitions. Meet persons whose ideas are different from your own and you can learn a good deal from them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find the best way for carrying through with your responsibilities and then fulfill speed ahead. Your mate could surprise you with added attention and bring more happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) By doing some special favor for friends you like, you ingratiate yourself further into their good graces. A public occurrence may be very pleasing to you personally.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show that you are an excellent worker. Use a more up-to-date system that will prove more efficient. Some good ideas can come from a fellow worker who is unusually quiet.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Chances are good for receiving an invitation that could make you happy so be sure to accept. Get into creative work which you can handle very well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A situation at home will take a new turn, but go along with it for best results. Do some entertaining at home. New personalities can prove inspiring.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Wait a day or two before going off on trips, running errands, and you accomplish more than a good time for corresponding and getting good results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The latter part of the day is best for handling money and real estate matters. Get good ideas and advice from one who has been most successful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Let your finest ideas come to the surface and know what best to do both in business and personal relationships alike.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Meet with a good adviser and get the information you need to make your life more satisfying. Doing something thoughtful for a loved one is wise. Come to a fine understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get away from stodgy friends you have outgrown and make new ones who are more progressive. Set different goals for yourself and use right methods for gaining them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to build a basically sound life for self because of the practical thinking here and a strong mind and body. Teach early to smile more and be charming with others in order to get good results, and to avoid arguments wherever possible.

What's what

Twenty dresses is right

Question arises as to how many dresses the well-dressed woman should own. However many she wants, says our Love and War man. But a Swiss sociologist contends otherwise. Twenty dresses is just right, says he. If she owns fewer, she is sacrificing her interests, thus prying the way for eventual self-sympathy. If she owns more, she's pampering herself, he says.

Winery owners threw a big wine-tasting party. It was a test. Different colors of wines were offered. What they found out was that nobody there would drink the green wine.

Did you realize that green beans—89 percent water—are wetter than milk—87 percent water?

Birds don't perspire.

CRYONICS

Q. Cryonics is that process in which dead bodies are frozen at minus 320 degrees F in the hope they'll someday be rejuvenated. It was introduced into the United States in 1964. How many people have since been so frozen? A. Probably fewer than a dozen.

The capuchin monkey is all mixed up. It arches its back and splits like a cat, then barks like a dog.

Q. You said that one year more cars were recalled than sold. That's ridiculous! And impossible!

A. Focusing, at any rate. In 1977, about 9.3 million new cars were sold in the U.S. In 1977, about 10.4 million cars were recalled by manufacturers.

Most usual time for an armed robbery is not during the night but between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning.

Q. Get it right! In whose honor was America named? A. Either Anasipia/Vespucci, the Medici shipping tycoon, or Richard Americe, the English high sheriff who backed John Cabot's voyage. Debate goes on.

COMMANDO

Another gimmick that tavern types can use to win bets is this: Will bet you a quarter on the corner that you can't tell me what a "commando" is. Most folk think it's an assault soldier, but that's only a recently accepted meaning of the word. The original commando was an attack force of 600 men.

NOTICE OF INTENDED RULEMAKING

This rule is not applicable to mobile home court tenants who stay at the court less than 90 days.

The proposed rules prohibit the mobile home court owners from asking for deposits to electric payment from their tenants and they require electric companies to supply meters for individual metering of tenants. The proposed rules also require electric utilities to enter into agreements with mobile home courts that individually meter their tenants for use of the existing mobile home court meters for individual billing.

Persons who want to obtain copies of the proposed rules, or to comment upon the rules, should direct their comments to the Secretary, Idaho Public Utilities, 1000 Statehouse Mall, Boise, Idaho 83720. All comments concerning these rules must be received on or before July 25, 1979.

Office construction booming

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The steady growth of the American white collar working force is producing a country-wide boom in office construction.

Economist Tom Kavet of McGraw-Hill's F.W. Dodge division said virtually every commercial city in the country is building new office structures. Chicago, Houston, Minneapolis and Philadelphia are among those benefitting most.

progress and plans for millions more. In Minneapolis, present construction will increase 8.3 million square feet of space to 9 million, while the value of major projects in Philadelphia far exceeds $200 million.

Nina Klarich, an assistant vice president of First National Bank of Chicago, said the new office construction in Chicago is "virtually all privately financed."

Chicago has no massive urban development program," Ms. Klarich said. "Nor has there been any large condensation of urban space. The developers are going out, assembling parcels and starting projects based on their best estimates of where the city of Chicago is heading."

Historic railroad line sold

DENVER (UPI) — Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad has sold its historic narrow-gauge railroad between Durango and Silverton to a company headed by a Florida businessman.

E. B. Aydelott, board chairman of D&RGW, Thursday said the line was sold to the Durango-Silverton Narrow Gauge Railroad Co., a firm headed by Charles E. Bradshaw Jr., an Orlando citrus grower.

Bradshaw called the line a "living legend, a national heritage which deserves a thriving future," and promised to improve service "in unprecedented fashion."

Aydelott said change of ownership would not be completed before next fall, after D&RGW has closed the excursion line's 1979 operations. He said the sale was contingent on approval by appropriate regulatory agencies.

Aydelott said Bradshaw met all the criteria set up by the D&RGW. Those requirements included a cash sale; proven financial ability to operate, maintain and improve the line; and assurance that "future performance would meet public expectations."

Purchase price of the line, which was established nearly 100 years ago, was not announced. But Aydelott said others who tried to buy it put the price at about $2.5 million.

Bradshaw said he would expand the operating schedule of the line, which normally runs from June to early October, and also would restore five large steam locomotives and increase the number of open observation cars for passengers.

Other plans included new tourist facilities in Silverton and a complete car shop in Durango.

The Durango-Silverton line was built in 1881-82 as part of a 1,700-mile narrow-gauge system in Colorado, New Mexico and Utah.

Truckers' gains minimal during strike

By United Press International
Independent truckers, who threatened to cut-off the nation's food supplies but finally succumbed to the lure of big-money hauls and creditors' pressures, said Sunday their gains were minimal during their four-week strike.
Members of the Independent

Truckers Unity Coalition, one of the last holdout bastions, voted Saturday in St. Louis to return to work after receiving a status report on the fast-fizzling strike.

"We had a break in the ranks," spokesman Bill Hill said of truckers who were getting big money loads of up to $5,000 to haul produce from the West to the East Coast.

"But we're getting stronger all the time," he added. "We showed the government it is possible to organize independent truckers. We have to shut down at the same time and go back at the same time."

Truckers, however, acknowledge their gains were few in the strike that began in the Midwest June 7 and quickly spread to both coasts. The strikers were protesting high diesel fuel prices, the shortage in diesel supplies and the lack of uniform weight restrictions.

Bus wreck in Colombia claims 4 / lives

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A crowded bus overturned and burst into flames just west of Bogota Sunday, killing at least 47 people, authorities reported.
A witness said the victims were trampled inside the bus because the emergency exit was closed and the bus windows were sealed.

Authorities said the crowded bus left Bogota and was on its way to Funza, 12 miles west of the capital.

GM likely target

DETROIT (UPI) — Auto industry analysts predict the United Auto Workers will strike General Motors Corp. for up to 10 weeks when the current contract expires Sept. 14, but both union and company officials still insist their differences can be settled without a strike.

There is little doubt on either side, however, that one of the chief issues when bargaining begins later this month will be UAW proposals to cushion retirees from the shocks of inflation.

Six leading industry analysts questioned by the Detroit News all picked GM as the union's likely strike target. They gave two chief reasons: GM's record $3.5-billion net profit last year and the simple fact that it is GM's turn.

Asbestos checks offered schools

By BEN MCKELWAY

TWIN FALLS — Federal funds are now available for communities wanting to know whether or not their schools contain cancer-causing asbestos.

The Environmental Protection Agency will analyze insulation material in the Seattle laboratory free of charge if Idaho school officials send in their samples by Sept. 1, according to Dr. Wayne Phillips, supervisor of support services for the State Department of Education.

"They really don't have much of an excuse now for not at least having the test run," said Phillips. A month ago the EPA mailed information packets about asbestos to every Idaho school district. Since March the agency has been encouraging schools around the country to test for the mineral and, if found, seal it off or remove it voluntarily at their own expense. A bill now before Congress would help schools meet the costs, and a nationwide citizens' group has filed suit to make the program mandatory.

Asbestos is most often found in sprayed-on wall and ceiling insulation, a light, fluffy, stucco-textured substance. After a few years, any vibration can cause the material to crumble, releasing microscopic asbestos fibers. When inhaled, the fibers lodge permanently in the lungs. Health problems, usually lung cancer, surface in 15 to 35 years, depending on the amount inhaled.

"Gymnasiums are really the worst for it because of the vibration factor," said Dr. Les Stokes, administrator of the Department of Health and Welfare's Division of Environment. Stokes heads the asbestos removal program in Idaho.

Phillips said two school districts, in Idaho Falls and Preston, have already paid private laboratories to evaluate samples, both of which were found not to contain asbestos. Several other Idaho districts are waiting for their lab results, he added.

The Department of Labor and Industrial Services has agreed to watch for asbestos on its routine school inspections next fall. The inspectors, who visit every school annually to check for safety hazards, will urge school administrators to take action if they notice a surface that looks like it could contain the mineral. Stokes expects school districts to carefully inspect their own buildings first, however, rather than relying on government inspectors. DHEW's Bureau of Environment will loan video cassette tapes about the asbestos problem to schools or community groups, with no borrower's fee.

Howard Burkhardt, chief of the bureau, said there are probably more asbestos coatings in homes and offices than there are in schools.

Schools in Twin Falls are apparently free of the dangerous fibers. "At this point we've found nothing we have concern about," said Dr. James Sawin, superintendent of schools for the Twin Falls School District. Sawin said maintenance personnel have already inspected all city schools.

Boal High School Principal Dale Thornberry said his district's inspection is still under way but has not turned up any asbestos yet.

Norman Hurst, assistant superintendent for the Cassia County School District, said his county's schools are also asbestos-free.

Custodians for the Blaine County School District did find some asbestos-covered heating pipes but have already coated them with a sealant to protect deterioration, according to superintendent Richard Jones.

A bill submitted by Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., would grant schools federal interest-free loans to help pay for the cost of asbestos removal. If it becomes law, the measure will also require the U.S. Attorney General to investigate methods of recovering the costs from asbestos manufacturers.

Leslie Dach, science associate for the Washington, D.C.-based Environmental Defense Fund, says most manufacturers knew of the danger before anyone else and sold material to schools without any warning.

Dach said his group believes the Toxic Substances Control Act holds all asbestos manufacturers liable for the hazard and gives the government power to force the companies to foot part or all of a school's renovation bill.

In May the EDF filed suit in federal court in an attempt to force the government to make school compliance mandatory instead of voluntary.

The National Parent-Teachers Association, the National Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have all issued statements supporting the EDF and a mandatory asbestos removal program.

Is Hailey in Skylab pathway?

BOISE (UPI) — If you favor longshots and wonder where Skylab might rain on Idaho, how about Hailey?

Latest government predictions indicate the craft will break up Wednesday — five or six hours. On that day, Skylab is expected to pass over the United States eight times on different orbits.

Although no cities have been mentioned specifically as being under Skylab's projected shadow, one route takes the craft from the Oregon coast to the Canadian border near Winnipeg, Manitoba. It is expected to pass over or near Portland, Ore., and central Idaho.

That is where Hailey comes in.

Hailey, the Blaine County seat, is the centermost city of central Idaho, excluding the state's long, narrow Panhandle. And if Skylab is expected to pass over central Idaho, Hailey — some might argue — is a prime target for its debris.

If you believe that and if you live in Hailey, you might want to do some planning.

Census figures released in 1976 put Hailey's population at 1,840, and some of those people might want an escape route should Skylab start dropping pieces of metal on their city.

The best escape route is U.S. 93, which intersects Hailey. That highway runs south to a small Nevada gambling Mecca called Jackpot and north to the Continental Divide, on the Idaho-Montana border.

Stops in either direction — should the falling debris become light or let up altogether — might include such landmarks as Sun Valley, the Snake and Salmon rivers, and 12,662-foot-high Borah Peak, Idaho's tallest mountain.

But the need for concern over Hailey is minimal. The government says only about 50 pieces of Skylab will survive re-entry and that no more than three pieces ranging in weight from 10 pounds to 5,000 pounds will land in any 100 square-mile area.

That means only one could land on Hailey.

Ah, that cool, cool water

Huck Finn would have delighted in this temptation on a hot Sunday afternoon. Some area youngsters took advantage of the cool water running through the Shoshone City Park to cool off from a hard day's listening to foot-stompin' fiddling.

Questions swamping agencies

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — Insurance companies in Twin Falls say they are still swamped with requests for "proof of insurance" and questions about the law which became effective last Sunday.

The state law requires motorists to carry proof of insurance in their vehicles at all times, just as they carry a registration.

Idaho State police are suggesting to callers that they have a copy made of their insurance policy and place it in the car until their insurance company furnishes a certificate of insurance specifically for this purpose.

A 60-day grace period has been established by the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement during which only warning tickets will be issued. Officers say there won't be any road blocks to check motorists for proof of insurance until they have had plenty of time to obtain policy copies or certificates.

Grant Gillette of All State Insurance Co. in Twin Falls said his company's regional office is preparing certificates of coverage which will be mailed direct to all policy holders through a computer print-out and mail program. He said it may be several weeks before this can be complete. In the meantime, requests for proof of insurance are being met by the office by making customer copies of insurance renewal slips.

Gillette said in the event a family owns several vehicles, and they are all on the same renewal, several copies have to be made to comply with the law.

Berg Insurance Co. of Twin Falls said employees are making up their own certificates of proof for everyone who calls in or comes by the office. Demands are leveling off, officials said, but about five calls a day are still being received.

Taber Insurance is also mailing certificates of proof or handing them out to policy holders who ask for them. They also say policy holders can carry renewal slips with them or copies of the renewals.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said his officers are not issuing citations for failure to have proof of insurance until they have had plenty of opportunity to comply.

Cycle crash injures man

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was reported in good condition Sunday after sustaining injuries in a motorcycle accident.

Dale R. Smith, 24, was transported to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital early Sunday morning with a broken leg and rib from an accident two miles west of Twin Falls, Idaho State Police said.

Smith was westbound on U.S. Highway 20, approaching a left turn onto a county road when he was struck by a vehicle driven by Connie J. Rountree, 16, of Kimberly. Rountree apparently did not see Smith's left turn signal and tried to pass him on the left, state police said.

No other injuries were reported. The accident occurred at about 12:38 a.m., police said.

Damage to Smith's 1971 Harley Davidson motorcycle was estimated at $500. Damage to Rountree's 1972 Ford Pinto was also estimated at $500.

Hearing set on revised county zoning ordinance

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — A public hearing on revisions of the Twin Falls County zoning ordinance to bring it into line with the newly adopted comprehensive county land use plan will be held July 18.

The hearing will be held before the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission and is scheduled for Rooms 117 and 118 of the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Zoning officials say all persons concerned with zoning regulations in the rural areas of the county should plan to attend the hearing.

One of the major changes required in the agricultural zones. The newly adopted county plan sets the minimum size acreage for classification as a farm at 20 acres. The present zoning ordinance says five acres constitutes a farm.

This means any farmer or land owner in the agricultural zone may divide land into parcels as small as 20 acres but, smaller without requesting special variance or platting land as a subdivision or planned unit development.

Special provisions are made for division of land for multiple dwellings on a single farm. In the event a close relative such as a mother, father, son or daughter wishes to live on the farm, the owner may apply for an additional building. The Review Committee of the zoning commission must inspect and recommend on the request.

A review committee, appointed by the zoning-commission chairman, is authorized to inspect and investigate conditional use and variance requests and, along with the zoning administrator, can authorize a public hearing. The review committee's action may be appealed to the zoning commission.

The revised ordinance defines a subdivision as the division of a parcel of land into more than two parcels and requires land divided into more than two parcels be filed as a subdivision plat complete with public streets and other rights of way.

Subdivisions are not permitted in agricultural, airport, commercial local, commercial general or industrial zones. However, they are permitted in residential agriculture, residential low and residential medium zones and as a conditional use in the outdoor recreation zone.

One acre minimum lot size is required in county subdivisions with approval of health department of fields. The revised ordinance changes the 50-foot setback requirement from canyon rims in the county to 100 feet. In the event of a deviation from the 100 foot setback, the written opinion of the canyon rim stability by a geological engineer is required.

A variance of 30 feet or more from the rim can be approved by a review committee, but, if less than 30 feet, a variance request procedure must be followed.

The zoning commission may hear arguments on a variance request of any zoning regulation, reject it or set a public hearing. The applicant is responsible for notifying owners of adjoining property of the hearing and filing proof of notification with the commission one week prior to the hearing.

The proposed ordinance permits approval of home occupation requests in agricultural zones by the zoning administrator, a review committee or the commission.

A request for a zone change which requires two public hearings will cost the applicant $35. One hearing will be held by the zoning board and another by the county commission.

A proposed revision of the outdoor recreation zone covers the same uses as permitted in the agricultural zone. Recreational uses already established and location of such recreational facilities as parks, churches, community centers, swimming pools and other recreational services.

According to the county plan, much of the recreational potential lies in the vicinity of Snake River and other canyons and streams. The plan calls for support of the Bureau of Land Management's plan to retain all of the potential recreation lands along the Snake River in public ownership until local and state agencies are ready to develop them.

Range fires burning out of control near Hazelton blacken 2,000 acres

HAZELTON — Almost 80 Bureau of Land Management firefighters Sunday were battling two range fires near Hazelton that had burned an estimated total 2,000 acres.

The fires were burning uncontrolled Sunday night. No livestock or buildings were endangered. Both fires, one seven miles north of Hazelton and another about 15 miles north and east of Hazelton, were man-caused. Carlos Mendiola of the BLM said. He added the fires may have been started intentionally.

The first fire was reported at about 4:30 p.m. One estimate placed the size at 1,500 acres, Mendiola said. The BLM has dispatched 50 firefighters, six tankers and five pickup pumpers to the area.

The second fire, estimated at 500 acres, was reported at 5 p.m. Four tankers and 22 firefighters were battling the fire Sunday evening.

Two planes, with a total carrying capacity of 5,000 gallons, dropped retardant on the fires, Mendiola said.

Highway projects moving on

SHOSHONE — Seven highway projects are underway in the Twin Falls and Burley-Rupert areas of Magic Valley, District Engineer Howard Johnson for the Idaho Department of Transportation reports.

He said the Rock Creek crossing on Pole Line Bridge is on schedule and should be completed in August. It will give traffic another through highway between Twin Falls and Filer.

Two sections of 14-foot diameter pipe have been installed around the pipe in the area now nearing completion.

Work also is under way on placement of arching

80-N from southwest of Jerome to the SH 50 interchange north of Filer. The major reconstructing has been completed and seal coating will be finished this month, Johnson said.

Crews also will begin this week on a unique project to remove vibrations from the Perrine Memorial Bridge. The vibration absorbers will be installed in 12 of the 40 columns supporting the bridge deck. Johnson said this will remove the wind-induced motion, vibration and noise.

Work on the Snake River interchange at the intersection of Highway 15 and Highway 80 will be finished by Aug. 15.

The area will be closed to traffic while the street section is being widened to 40 feet.

Near normal traffic has resumed on Addison Avenue and Washington Street with completion of paving on the improvement project in Twin Falls. Completion is slated for later this summer with signing, landscaping and lane striping yet to be accomplished.

In the Burley-Rupert area, there are two highway improvement projects in progress.

On the Snake River bridge deck on the Snake River interchange is being repaired. The approaches of the Burley and Heyburn interchanges are being improved. Work on the Heyburn interchange is being delayed until reinforcement steel arrives from the factory, Johnson said. Delays for over legal-width loads and median crossovers for other vehicles remain in effect. The completed work will give motorists a new travelway with a safer bridge rail.

The other project involves work on 15 miles of I-80 N from the Salt Lake Interchange to Cassia County. Heater scarification and plantmix operations are nearing completion on the westbound lane and should begin on the eastbound lane this week. There will be a plantmix surface and sealcoat on the full 15 miles when the project is finished.

Nampa woman heads board

BOISE (UPI) — The state Board of Health and Welfare Friday elected its first woman chairman in the 72 year history of the board.

Donna L. Parsons, Nampa, was elected to the post after serving on the board since 1976. She previously served as vice chairman of the board. Ms. Parsons is an assistant professor and director of the Regional Studies Center at the College of Idaho in Caldwell.

Pamela Bowen, Rexburg, was elected vice chairman of the board and Archie Service of Pocatello will serve as secretary.

At RARE II hearings Need for energy corridors cited

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — The need for Congress to authorize energy corridors in designating individual western wilderness areas was stressed last week at a Senate hearing on proposals resulting from RARE II studies.

C.P. Davenport, a vice president and assistant to the chairman of the board of Pacific Power & Light Company, said the areas should "not be an impediment to converting and transporting energy to where it is required."

Davenport's remarks came before Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., who chaired the Subcommittee on Parks, Recreation and Renewal Resources hearing on proposals resulting from the administration's Roadless Area Review and Evaluation.

PP&L provides electrical service to over 600,000 customers in Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming. Davenport said, and has a vital interests in these corridors. He provided the subcommittee a map outlining coal reserves areas in the Rocky Mountain states.

"These reserves are quite property, we believe, viewed as a resource for electrical generation to service Pacific Northwest requirements now and in the future," he said. "The map clearly indicates that the use designation of federal lands located between these coal reserves and the energy load centers to the west is a matter of significant consequence."

"Although the general locations of future energy requirements are fairly well defined, we do not know the location of future energy conversion and transportation facilities that must be developed beyond the next decade. Accordingly, we believe it is imperative that we keep future options reasonably open for the conversion and transportation of energy."

Davenport said a study by the Bonneville Power Administration and the U.S. Forest Service concluded that a minimum of seven east-west energy corridors will be needed to furnish the Pacific Northwest's electrical needs for the years 1985 through 2020. He said this determination involved several possibilities on coal and nuclear electric generation plants, and with extensive reduction in forecasted load growth through conservation.

"Higher load growth could require three times as many corridors," he said.

Davenport said that the utility believed that there was "enough information currently available from federal agencies and others to ensure that wilderness area designations will not be adverse to or in conflict with the achievement of energy policy objectives.

"Our concern is that at a future point in time when an energy transportation facility is required, be it gas transmission, high voltage direct current transmission, coal slurry pipeline, or other facility, either from the east to this region or from the Pacific Northwest to the South or Southwest, that its economic construction will not be adversely affected or prevented by land use designations being made now," he said.

Sign change on Pole Line

FILER — Pole Line road will become a through road once stop signs are changed to stop signs east of Deadman's Corner north of Filer.

The board of commissioners of the Filer Highway District voted May 8 to make the road a through road, necessitating changing the stop signs from the east and west corners to the north and south corners of the intersection.

By making the change at this time, local residents and persons who use the road frequently will be acquainted with the new stop signs before the anticipated heavy traffic resumes when the Rock Creek bridge re-opens.

Manny Shaw launches fund drive

BOISE (UPI) — A capital funds campaign designed to raise $1 million for a new wing and expanded therapy facilities at the Idaho Elks Rehabilitation Hospital got off to an auspicious start, thanks to a former stroke patient.

Manny Shaw of Corral took up his fiddle and bow to prove the value of rehabilitation, and as his fingers lightly pressed the strings while his other hand manipulated the bow, no trace remained of the almost incapacitating stroke he suffered three years ago.

"I'll do whatever I can," he said during his musical presentation to volunteers gathered at the hospital to prepare for the campaign.

cannot say enough in praise for the care I had while at Elks Rehab."

Total cost of the expansion will be $2.2 million, to be funded in part by available Elks resources and public and private contributions.

The 30-day fund drive, Idaho-Elks from 24 lodges and their community supporters will be aiming at a $1 million target by Aug. 15.

Two Idaho men were killed Saturday morning in separate automobile accidents on State Highway 55.

Pan Am sweep for U.S.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — United States athletes put on an awesome display Sunday night when the swimmers brought the curtain down on their own spectacular by sweeping the final four gold medals of the Pan American Games swimming competition and the track and field team began flexing its muscles with a five-gold medal performance.

U.S. swimmers, surging through the water like a power boat armada, won the men's and women's 100-meter freestyle, the men's 400-meter individual medley relay and the men's 800-meter freestyle to finish their week-long domination of the swimming and diving competition with 32 gold medals in 33 events. That total established a Pan American Games record and was three more gold medals than the U.S. won at Mexico City in 1975.

Not to be outdone, the track and field team, competing simultaneously with the swimmers across the street from the pool, took five gold medals to bring the U.S. total to seven in the first two days of their competition.

In track, the U.S. and Cuba split the first two head-to-head confrontations when James Walker sped to victory in the 400-meter hurdles and Cuba's Silvio Leonard nipped Harvey Glance to win the 100-meter dash. But it was all U.S. after that as Evelyn Ashford, Duncan Atwood, Henry Marsh and Kathy McMillan raked in gold medals.

Ashford made up for Glance's defeat by winning the women's 100 meters in a photo finish over teammate Brenda Morehead in a Pan Am Games record 11.07 seconds. Morehead was clocked in 11.11 and Canada's Angela Taylor was third in 11.36.

Atwood won his gold medal in the javelin throw with a heave of 276 feet, one inch. His winning throw came on his last attempt and beat two Cubans, Antonio Gonzalez and Raul Pupo.

The U.S. added its fourth gold medal when Marsh beat teammate Will McCullough and Mexico's Demetrio Cavamilas in the 4,000-meter steeplechase. McCullough led for most of the distance but Marsh, the AAU champion, took the lead in the last 200 meters and sprinted home 10 yards ahead of his teammate in 8:43.5, well off his career best of 8:28.8.

McMillan capped the night by winning the long jump with a leap of 22 feet 2 1/4 inches.

In boxing, Richard Sandoval advanced to the quarterfinal semifinals on Thursday night with a 5-0 decision over Eduardo Cruz of Ecuador but Olympian Dayey Armstrong became the first U.S. boxer eliminated when he was beaten 5-0 by Adolfo Horta of Cuba.

A stunning second straight loss in baseball ruined an otherwise solid day for U.S. teams.

The baseball team saw its gold medal chances wiped out when David Rodriguez hit a grand slam and Jesus Feliciano pitched a three-hitter and struck out 12 to lead Puerto Rico to a 4-2 victory.

Rodriguez hit his highest loaded homer in the second inning off U.S. starter Scott Gardner, who was totally ineffective as he allowed four hits and four runs and walked three in just 2 1/3 innings. Paul Zuvella of Stanford homered for the U.S.

Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's Patti Paxton and Obenchain Insurance's Caria Bowyer collision set the pace for title showdown

MVMH roars back for title in city B league tournament

By GARY ELIASSEN, Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital did it the hard way Sunday, coming back from a tough early morning loss to claim the championship of the Twin Falls Women's Softball Association B Tournament.

The hospital team, whose third baseman Chris Gibson was named the most valuable player, stormed past Obenchain Insurance twice late Sunday 17-11 and 9-4 to capture the title.

Earlier in the day, Obenchain, which became known as the "Cinderella" club of the tourney, had upset Magic Valley Memorial Hospital 13-12. But the defeat didn't set well with the B League club.

"We just got together and made up our minds to come back and play some softball," said Coach Dean Johnson, while watching his team hit the ball time after time in the first championship contest.

Johnson, Dr. John McKain and Robert Johnson directed the squad which is currently tied for first with Sunrise Construction and First Federal in the local B circuit. All three have 14-3 records.

Magic Valley Memorial Hospital got outstanding hitting in the tournament from Debbie Anderson who had a grand slam and two other home runs. Coach Johnson also cited the defensive play of Chris Williams and Patti Paxton.

Other team members include Kim Quenell, Marguerite Astorquia, Deb Hine, Coco Slinger, Sharon Porter, Theresa Bodine, Linda Johnson, Patti Little and Sharon Vickers.

For Obenchain, it was a disappointing end to a fine performance put on by the scrappy club. Entering the competition with a 7-10 season record and fifth place in the Twin Falls B League, Obenchain went undefeated through four games up until it met MVMH. Many didn't expect it to be in the finals.

Catcher Caria Bowyer of Obenchain led the tourney in hitting with a 15-22 three days and .682 average.

Others leading the Obenchain team were Terri Robinette, Laurie Kippes and Kaylynne Field. All had three home runs.

Third place went to First Federal, while Asgrow captured fourth. Both are from Twin Falls.

Other Sunday scores included: MVMH 13, Sunrise Const. 11; Obenchain 16, Arthur Anderson (Boise) 15; First Federal 12, Payless 8; Asgrow 12, Sherwoods (Jerome) 11; First Federal 11, Sunrise 4; Asgrow 14, Arthur Anderson 12; First Federal 8, Asgrow 0; MVMH 15, First Federal 12.

Garvey heads NL vote

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steve Garvey, a two-time All-Star Game MVP, edged out Pete Rose at first base and Dave Winfield-Davey Lopes and Mike Schmidt all earned their first-ever election to the National League team in the final results of the fan balloting announced Sunday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Garvey, currently batting .307 with 12 home runs and 50 RBI for Los Angeles, was elected to the team in 1978 — when he was elected league MVP — on the strength of a write-in vote and was voted the Most Valuable Player.

He has been voted to the team every year since then, and last year was again voted the MVP in San Diego with two hits and two RBI. This year's game — the 50th in the series between the National and American Leagues — will be played July 17 in Seattle's Kingdome.

The AL team will be announced today. A race in the league, Schmidt's victory at third base over Ron Cey of Los Angeles — more than one million votes — constituted the clearest decision.

Garvey's teammate Lopes will play second, ending the seven-year domination of Cincinnati's Joe Morgan. Schmidt, the Philadelphia Phillies' slugger who hit his fifth home run in three games Sunday, led all vote-getters with 3,165,549. He was selected to three previous teams.

San Diego's Winfield, near the league lead in batting average and RBI, was second in the overall balloting and first among outfielders. He was a member of the 1977 and 1978 teams. Dave Kingman, the major-leagues' leading home run hitter with 39, finished fifth among outfielders.

Ted Simmons of the St. Louis Cardinals was voted the starting catcher, breaking a nine-year streak by Cincinnati's Johnny Bench, but Simmons will not play due to a broken left wrist injury he suffered in June. The league will name a replacement, possibly Bench, who finished in second place.

Previously elected starters include shortstop Larry Bowa of Philadelphia, outfielder Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and outfielder George Foster of Cincinnati. Bowa and Foster were elected stars in 1978.

The remainder of the 25-man squad will be selected by the league. The pitchers will be announced Tuesday and the reserves Wednesday. Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda will manage the team.

Norm Jones, Farenwald top field

TWIN FALLS — Norm Jones and Steve Farenwald, both of Twin Falls, have claimed mid-season champio ship trophies at Thunderbuhl Raceway.

Jones won the Super Stock trophy in the Super Stock Class with a little help from Chuck Geska and Gary Hyde, both of Buhl. Those two racers had held the number one and two positions, but collided head on in a heat race to give the championship to Jones.

In the Hobby Stock Class, Farenwald easily took home the top award as he held onto the top position most of the first part of the season.

Last week's Fourth of July races drew about 1,000 people and resulted in some spectacular crashes and dangerous racing.

Twenty-four of Twin Falls brought the crowd to their feet in the Hobby Stock Main Event when his car rolled over three times leaving Pohlman shaken but suffering from only minor injuries.

Jim Ribbes went on to claim the Hobby Stock event, while Farenwald came home second.

In the Super Stock Trophy Dash and Main Event, the winner was Gaylon Klein of Rupert in number 88. Jones finished second.

Other results included:

- Victory Heat Hobby Stock — Rick Combes of Twin Falls first; Paul Warner of Rupert second; Jim Ribbes third; Steve Farenwald fourth; Mike Collins of Jerome fifth; Jim Ribbes sixth; Steve Farenwald seventh; Kevin Andrews fifth; Ralph Jones eighth; Jim Ribbes ninth; and Jim Ribbes tenth.
- Hobby Stock Dash — Gaylon Klein of Rupert first; and Norm Jones of Twin Falls second.
- Mini Stock Heat Race — Chuck Melrose of John Pohlman of Twin Falls first; J.P. Vasey of Twin Falls second; Paul Warner of Rupert third; Rick Combes of Twin Falls fourth; and Jim Ribbes fifth.
- Mini Stock Trophy Dash — Chuck Melrose of John Pohlman first; and J.P. Vasey of Twin Falls second.

A case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde for Legion

By RANDY FREY

Times-News sports writer
TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls American Legion baseball team put on a good impression of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde Sunday at Harmon Park.

The Dr. Jekyll show came in the opener when Twin Falls looked very good in beating Pocatello 12-5.

But the team changed into the Mr. Hyde act an hour later, blowing a 2-0 lead and dropping the second game 6-3.

"I can not figure out how the same group of kids can look so good in one game and so bad in the next," said a confused coach Gary Barker. "I guess maybe it is because they are still kids."

Twin Falls played, nearly flawless ball in the opener after a shaky first inning, which saw Pocatello jump to a quick 3-0 lead.

The visitors used three Twin Falls errors in the big inning, but would have no more help in the next six innings.

Twin Falls did commit an error in the fifth inning, but it was quickly erased with a Billy Burton to Randy Cummings to John Miller double play.

Meanwhile, Twin Falls was hitting the ball all over the park, erupting for eight runs in the third inning. Thirteen batters stepped to the plate during the big explosion.

"I don't think we have hit the ball this well all season," Barker said. "They have made a few errors, but every one has been on a hard-hit ball."

Gary Krumm started the inning with a single and quickly stole second. Scot Nass struck out, but the ball got away from the catcher and he was safe at first.

Cummings was then hit by a pitched ball to load the bases. Rocky Brown followed with a two-run double and Logan Easley with a two-run single.

Easley went the distance for Twin Falls, striking out 12 and walking only two. He gave up just three singles after the first inning.

It looked as though the excellent play was there to stay when Twin Falls scored two quick runs in the first inning to start the second game. Twin Falls had two runs in and two more runners on base with no outs when things started to turn sour.

With Cummings on third and Rocky Brown on first, Barker called for the double steal. The ball was cut off at shortstop and Cummings was out by plenty at the plate.

"Randy thought he had to go but I have been telling them all year that they do not have to go if they do not get a good jump," Barker said. "It is another of those little things that have been hurting us all year."

In the second, Twin Falls loaded the bases with Cummings being hard to third to end the inning. After that, Twin Falls did not come close to posting a major threat.

Kerry Brown sailed through the first three innings allowing just one runner to reach base. In the fourth, however, Pocatello picked up a run on three hits, and the Rebels added two more in the fifth to take the lead.

Mistakes gave Pocatello two more in the sixth and one in the seventh, and the Rebels held on for their 12th win of the year in 31 tries. Twin Falls is 14-11 after the split.

Barker said he does not know what to do about his team's split personality. He just hopes his players learn to play consistent ball by the time district playoffs begin Aug. 1.

In the meantime, he hopes it will be Dr. Jekyll and not Mr. Hyde on the field Wednesday when Twin Falls visits Minico for a single game beginning at 6 p.m.

It's the Twin Falls Cowboys

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls American Legion baseball team finally has a nickname.

After sifting through 61 entries, 45 of them different, the name Twin Falls Cowboys was lifted from the pot.

The old minor league Cowboys provided the best brand of baseball in the Magic Valley for years, and since Legion baseball is now the top game around the name seemed appropriate.

Two people submitted the name Cowboys on the same day: James Bitzenburg of Route 2 in Twin Falls and Mary Allee Florence of 9th Avenue East in Twin Falls. They will split the $35 cash prize.

Coach Gary Barker was happy with the new name, and he is already making plans to purchase new uniforms for next season with "Cowboys" written across the front.

He is also planning to change the team's colors from red to other colors more suited to the team's new nickname.

A complete list of names submitted will be printed in Tuesday's edition of the Times-News, and the Legion program would like to thank those who entered the nickname contest.

Nelson wins sudden death

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Larry Nelson, rebounding from a heart-breaking loss in a playoff last week, sank a two-foot putt for a birdie on the first extra hole to defeat Ben Crenshaw and win the $300,000 Western Open Sunday.

Nelson, who lost the Memphis Open when Gil Morgan chipped in from 70 feet, landed his second shot on the 99th-yard, par-4 hole within two feet of the cup and knocked in the putt to claim the $24,000 first prize.

It was the 31-year-old Georgian's second PGA tour victory of the year, boosting his annual earnings to $235,000.

Nelson forced a playoff with Crenshaw by knocking in a five-footer on the final hole of regulation for a 4-over-par 74. Crenshaw carded a final-round 70 to make it into the playoff.

Nelson had played steady golf until Sunday's final round, over which he made six bogeys and a double bogey on the final round to lose a one-stroke lead he enjoyed entering the final round.

Crenshaw had his own chance for a hole-in-one on the playoff, but missed a 40-footer by about two feet. Crenshaw, No. 18 on the money winning list, had avoided the bogey plague that torpedooed the other leaders over the final seven holes.
