Energy independence plan laid out

By EDWARD WALSH
C'The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — President Carter said Sunday night that the energy crisis offers the nation an opportunity to overcome a growing
"crisis of confidence" in its spirit and, promising to act boldly, laid out a series of steps he said would move
the country toward energy independence.

the country—toward—energy—independence.
In an extraordinarily self-critical speech to a national television audience, Carter announced that he is immediately imposing quotas to hold the level of 01 imported into the United States to its 1977 level of 8.5 million barriers a day—the highest in the nation's history.

The president announced other steps to deal with the energy shortage, including the "most massive peacetime commitment of funds" to develop alternative energy sources, a request to Congress to create an "Energy Security Corp." that would issue up to $5 billion in bonds for the effort, and a proposal —that—Congres—create an—Energy Mobilization Board" to cut through red tape in approving new energy projects.

None of the proposals came as a major surprise as Carter detailed has awe energy plan, which was put together during his extraordinary 10-day "domestic summit conference" at Camp David, Md.

certain to result in bitter political strife.

The questions will be: "Can we afford to do it?" and "Can we afford to do it?" and "Can we afford to do it?" the second question, of course, is strategic. Can a great power like the United States be for long dependent—in—any—degree—on—foreign—energy-supplies without being reduced to impotence and vulnerability to political and military blackmail?

Those in favor of a synthetic fuels program soon will be saying the nation's very survival depends on it.

The technology of liquelying coal and of extracting oil from shale rock or tar sands is well developed. But the yields of the biggest plants yet built are only a drop in the bucket compared to current U.S. oil im-ports.

compared to current U.S. oil Imports.

The risks in building huge synthetic oil plants are so great that private industry is not willing to undertake the investment even with government incentive subsidies. The federal government would have to provide the money up front and bearmost of the risks.

The environmental risks are sgreat there will be opposition in every community where it is desired to locate a synthetic fuel plant. The plants would give off vast amounts of carbon dioxide and other poliutants. Large shale oil plants pose the threat of water contamination in the water-shy western states. Officials of the Environmental Protection Agency shudder at the prospect of big synthetic oil plants. They say a Carter synthetic fuel program fliely would have the effect of bypassing EPA and multifying much of what it has been accomplished in the past.

But Bushness Week magazine, a leading advocate of a synthetic fuels program big enough to free the United States entircly from the hand of the Organization of Petroleum Exparting Countries, raised another important point. No matter how much synthetic oil cests, the money will be spent at home. Huge oil imports no longer would be pitting up a balance of payments deficit.

Having recently speat, several days with some European leaders considering SALT II, I am convinced that most want it ratified less because they admire the agreement than because they admire the agreement than because they fear political consequences af rebertion.

European leaders live in the shadow of the neutron weapons liasco, in which the United States encouraged European governments

Western behavior.

European leaders fear that rejection of SALT II might cause European publics to think that the "centerpiece" of U.S. Soviet relations has crumbled. There might be a tendency for European governments to decouple from the United States and seek separate accommodations. with the Soviet Union.

But to the extent that SALT is But to the extent that SALT is considered the "centerplace" of U.S.-Soviet relations, it is playing a role for which it is utterly unsulted. which is supposed to expire at the end of 1981, four years before the treaty. They worry that the protocol will have a political afterille; that weapons that were restricted by it will continue to be regarded as "problems"; and that the United States will be reluctant to proceed with those weapons.

with those weapons.
Europeans are especially, concerned, in this regard, about the fateof-ground-flaunchul-mid-con-launchedcruise missiles. The protocol limits those weapons to ranges of 600

The Carter administration says that longer-range GLCMs and SLCMs will not be ready for deployment before the protecol expires. But the administration slowed development of those weapons in anticipation of its concession that produced the range units and the same concession that produced the range of the same concession that produced the same concession th concession that produced the range limits. Many Europeans wish the United States would underscore the temporary nature, of the protocol limits: by quickly-indicating a decision to deploy,-not merely-test, long-range GLCMs and SLCMs.

It's good to see congressmen favor law and order

law and order—sort of a warm and gentle glow that helps you sleep nights.

Take George Hansen, for Instance. The conservative Pocatello Republican Just returned from Nicaragua. Now some people might think it's unseemly for their congressman to be volcing support for a Latin American strongman like Anastasio Somoza, a man some call a dictator. But not our George. He knows have and order when he sees it, eyen it those tripled pants in the glass of the sees that the sees the sees that the s can style, not on your life.

There was his 1968 run for the Senate. Boy, he was for law and order then. Why he even got that super law and order man, Dick Nixon, to come to Idaho and endorse his campaign. They even posed for pictures together. It just goes to show that these law and order patriots have a lot in common.

patriots have a lot in common.

There was his 1974 election. Wow, he was for law and order then, too.

After that election, Hansen pleaded guilty to violating two misdemeanor counts of the Election Campaign Disclosure Act. That silly old judge apparently didn't realize how much George supported law and order and kept bringing up all sorts of irrelevant things. Like the fact that George was only the third confirms when well were the little confirms are the word was the second that the confirms when well were the second that the second th

Boy, how doubt can you get? That judge should have known better when he sentenced George to two months in a federal prison. And when George's lawyer got his clean. Off the hoof by telling the judge that lansen "was stupid, but he wasn't evil;" that judge still fined George $2,000. Get whiz, that soft-headed judge, (probably a liberal with unnatural desires or worse) just didn't know a true law and order man when he saw one. He ought to be investigated, that's what. Boy, how domb can you get? That idge should have known better

. But old George got the last laugh on that judge.

He showed he was for law and order when he was late in filling his order when he was late in filling his income taxes for a number of years after 1960. In this case, however, the Internal Revenue Service didn't make the same mistake as that dumb ludge. They recognized how much George supported Jaw and order and politely slapped him on the wrist. Now the rest of us, who aren't full time law and order congressmen like George, we might. have had some problems with the IRS. But in a free country like America, anything is possible if you believe strongly enough in law and

George also got the last word with and offer.

Why, they had the temerity to tell George he couldn't sollicit funds to pay off his private, personal, non-political debts. Why those clowns thought that might open up congressmen to influence by people like Tongsun Park. Oh, those silly hureaucratis.
All George wanted was to pay off college bills, medical debts, and so forth. I mean, fighting for law and order.

college bills, medical debts, and so-forth. I mean, fighting for law and order is an expensive business. Surely as a congressman whose salairy at the time-was a patry $75,500 a year, he was entitled to solicit those funds. And gosh, he doesn't even speak Korean. And the congressman's wife, Con-

Ethics Committee nixed her husband's solicitation plan, she said they couldn't stop her, since she wasn't a congressman, and set out on the lin cup trail all by herself. Go. get 'em. Connie. Don't let those un-American bureaucrats stop you from expressing your belief in law from expressing your belief in law and order. It's a free country, isn't it?

And last week we learned constagal how much George believes in law and order.

George was ticketed for speeding, just a pality 79 miles per hour, nothing serious, mind you. Of law and order George rose to the occasion, however. He tried to talk his way out of the ticket like any good congressman would, telling the trooper he might have "congressional liminuality" from speeding tickets. But good golly, that state trooper was so dense he told George to tell it to he judge.

I aw and order was again the key

Law and order was again the key on May 18 of this year, when George was clocked doing 81 mph (but you know how unreliable those state troopers are in determining speed). This time, however, George got the last word.

He simply told the trooper he was late for several meetings, promised he would obey the law in the future, and jot off with a wanning Idaho State Police trooper Emery Webster apparently knew how much George had done to give law and order a good name in the nation and didn't issue a ticket.

Boy. That trooper deserves a citation. Why, if every law and order congressman was stopped just for some silly thing like speeding, the welfare of the entire nation might be below:

welfare of the entire indusper.

Now the rest of us who get stopped doing 81 mph in a 55 mph zone, we'd get ticketed. But then we don't believe'n law and order as much as George does.

George does.

It just goes to show. In America anything is possible if you just believe strongly enough in law and order.

-Briefly in sports

Dibbs captures title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Eddle Dibbs, who — bypassed—wimbledon—in - ander to, practice_in_the southern Florida heat, earned the biggest payday of his tennis career Sunday with a 7-6, 6-1 victory in scorching temperatures over tilring Harold Solomon in the finals of the $300,000 Forest Hills Invitational. The victory marked the last singles final under the present invitational format. Beginning in 1880, the tournament will discard its round-robin play and increase prize money, making it the world's richest tennis tournament.

Dibbs, the seventh-ranked player in the world, armed $100,000 for the win and avenged an earlier loss to Solomon in the tournament; opening match. The victory boosted Dibbs' earnings to $161,010 while Solomon came way with $40,000.

Teacher triumphs

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Fitth-seeded Brian Neucher of Los Angeles upset No. 3 seed Stan Smith of Hillon-Head-faland-S.C., Sunday, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-win the $100,000 Hail of Fame Tennis Champtonships.

The $17,500 first prize was the biggest win for Teacher, 24, who last won in Taipel, Taiwan in November.

Brown rejects offer

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (UPI) — Running back
Theotis Brown of UCLA Sunday rejected the St.
Louis Cardinals confract offer that included a $20,000 donation to charity.
Joe Sullivan, vice president of operations, said the contract was refused after he had-a-"lengthymeeting" with Brown and his representative, Leight

Bench out of game

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York catcher John Steams was named Sunday to replace the Injured Johnny Bench of the Clacinnati Reds for the National League in the All-Slar game at Seattle Tuesday night. Bench, suffering from back spasms, has been denied permission to play by his physician. Steams, named by Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda, Johns center fielder Lee Mazzilli as the only Mets on the NL squad.

Britz wins Open

FAIRPIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Jerllyn Britz knocked in a two-foot putt on the 18th hole. Sunday to stem a vallant comeback by Debble Massey and win the 1979 U.S. Women's Open Champlonship.
Britz fired a 2-under-par 69 to finish—the-tournament-at-even par 280. Massey, who double-bogeyed three holes, finished at two over par, tied with Sandra Palmer.

Orioles' deal off

BALTIMORE (UPI) — An eifort by 32 Baltimore investors to purchase the Baltimore Ordoles from owner Jerold Holfeberger is disintegrating and near collapse, the Baltimore News American reported Sunday.

The newspaper reported several of the potential investors are frustrated by lengthy delays caused by the inability to raise the $12 million Holfberger wants for the team.

Johncock wins

BROOKLYN, Mich. (UPI) — Gordon Johncock took the lead on the 47th lap Sunday and held on to win the first half of the Norton Twin Sportscar Club of America-CART Indy Car Races at Michigan

International Speedway.

Johncock, running in a Penske PC-6, took command in the first 126-miler after Al Unser, piloting a new Ground Effects Chaparral, ran out of fuel and had to be pushed into the pits.

Alzado to decide

DENVER (UP!) — Denver defensive end-Lyle Alzado, who lasted eight rounds with a somewhat merciful Muhammad All Saturday, says he'll decide today or Tuesday if he will leave football to seek a career as a professional boxer.

Alzado, an all-AFC lineman, sald after the fight Saturday he would report to camp this week along with other Bronce's veterans, but he has not yet signed a contract for the 1979 season.

Amateur to open

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP1) — The 54th U., S. Amateur Public Links championship golf tournament, sometimes referred to as the "workingman's national open." begins today with 159 players seeking 64 berths in the match-play shootout starting Wednesday.

Dean Prince of Novato, Callf., is back to defend the title he won last year 5 and 3 over Tony Figueredo at Bangor, Maine. Mike Hamblin of Twin Falls will compete.

Simple check led to arrest of wanted grain dealer

IDAHO FALLS (UP1) — A Bonneville County deputy said today a routine warrant check led to the arrest of indiced Texas grain dealer Bobby, Johnson Saturday some 219 years after he apparently drowned in the Gulf of Mexico.

Deputy Wallace Rees said Johnson was stopped by officers after allegedly driving a Grover Trucking Co. truck through a stop sign.

Officers ran a routine warrant-chock before Johnson, who had been working in Idaho under the alias of his identify.
