

Carter ends cabinet purge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter dismissed Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and Transportation Secretary Brock Adams Friday and said he is "well pleased" with the lightning purge that sacked five of his 12 Cabinet officers.

"There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that I and my administration will now be better able to serve this country and to resolve those problems and meet those challenges which I described to the American people in my address Sunday," he said.

Looking grim, Carter made a brief appearance in the White House press room to ring down the curtain on the two-day Cabinet house-cleaning that shocked and angered many members of Congress.

Assistant Senate Republican Ted Stevens went so far as to suggest Carter may be having "some sort of breakdown" or "mental problem" — an assertion dismissed by the White House as "not worthy of comment."

In the finale of the Cabinet purge, Carter fired Adams less than 24 hours after the transport chief publicly defied the authority of the new White House chief of staff, Hamilton Jordan, and questioned Carter's own commitment to energy-saving transportation policies.

Carter also accepted the resignation of Schlesinger, who has taken the brunt of public fury over gasoline shortages and nominalized Dept. of Defense Secretary Charles Duncan, a Houston millionaire, to succeed him.

Planting his feet wide apart at the press room lecturn and speaking in a slightly trembling voice, Carter said the "major changes" he has made in the Cabinet "are all consistent with the traditional view of one leader to another in each case will be orderly and properly conducted."

"I do not expect any further resignations from the Cabinet," he said, pledging to fill vacancies left by the shakeup — at the Transportation and Housing and Urban Development Departments — "without delay."

"I am well pleased with all the changes," he said. "Every single change has been a positive change."

He expressed his "thanks" to the five officers turned loose, appealed for "the full support of the American people" and walked out staring straight ahead and ignoring reporters' questions.

This is the final tally of the Cabinet reshuffle: Schlesinger, 59, out as energy secretary in favor of Duncan, 52, a former president of White Collar. Duncan told reporters "I think the American public is coming to realize that we do have an energy crisis." While gasoline lines are easing, he said, "there is always the possibility they will return." He said he is "friendly" in the "oil industry" but "no business ties of consequence" with them.

Adams, 52, ousted one day after announcing he might quit even though Carter wanted him to stay. He set conditions that infuriated the White House and one administration source told UPI "nobody gives orders to the president." Officials said Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor will fill in as interim transportation secretary until a permanent successor is named. Claytor will then succeed Duncan in the No. 2 Defense post.

U. S. halts Korea troop withdrawal

(c) The Washington Post WASHINGTON — President Carter Friday abandoned for the rest of his term of office one of his most controversial international initiatives — withdrawal of U.S. ground troops from South Korea.

A White House announcement read by president assistant Zbigniew Brzezinski said additional large-scale withdrawals were being postponed at least until 1981, when the situation will be reassessed.

The principal reason given for the change was the recent increase in the U.S. intelligence estimate of North Korean ground forces. The White House statement said new reductions in American combat elements "should await — credible indications that a satisfactory military balance has been restored and a reduction in tension is under way."

Carter formulated his plan to withdraw U.S. forces as long ago as January 1975, when he was a long-shot candidate for the presidency, and he stuck to his idea with determination, after taking office.

With little support from anyone else and against the strong misgivings of South Korea, Japan, the U.S. military and powerful elements in Congress, Carter ordered the phased withdrawal in spring 1977 and strongly defended the move.

Carter fired Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub as chief of staff of U.S. forces in Korea for saying the planned pullout would lead to war. But as opposition continued, he shifted the timing so that the scheduled withdrawals started slowly, then postponed the departure of most of the first group scheduled to leave in February. He put further withdrawals "in abeyance" to study the new intelligence.

The authorized U.S. troops strength in Korea has been reduced during Carter's presidency from about 41,000 to about 38,000; but most of this was due to the departure of missile and support units whose withdrawal had been planned.

The only combat force withdrawn as a result of Carter's initiative was a single infantry battalion of 674 men.

Nation's economic growth slips to lowest level in four years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The recession of 1979 began during the second quarter as economic growth fell to the slowest rate in four years, new government statistics indicated Friday.

The dismal economic picture, however, did not deter the Federal Reserve Board — which acts as the United States central bank — from boosting one of its key interest rates to the highest level in history in order to support the weakening dollar abroad.

The decision to increase the Federal Reserve discount rate from 9.5 percent to the new level of 10 percent was made despite the danger that tighter credit may delay a recovery from the recession — and could make the recession even deeper.

The Fed indicated it was a chance worth taking in order to insure that the dollar does not go into a tailspin, as it did for much of 1978.

"The United States will not permit a renewal of depreciation of the dollar to undermine its efforts" to tame inflation and energy problems in the United States, said outgoing Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal.

Blumenthal said he "strongly endorsed" the move, which was also approved by G. William Miller, the Fed chairman who will replace Blumenthal at Treasury.

The Commerce Department said the U.S. economic growth rate plunged at a 3.3 percent annual rate during the April-June quarter — mainly due to a sharp falloff in automobile and truck sales. The decline was sharper than anticipated by government economists and was the largest drop since the first quarter of 1975, when the Gross National Product fell 5.1 percent.

The gloomy second quarter performance followed a 1.1 percent rise during the first quarter.

The decline was "centered to a very large extent in the automotive sector, underscoring the sensitivity of our economy to changes in petroleum prices and availability," said courtney Slater, the Commerce Department's chief economist.

Mrs. Slater said she expected another drop in the current July-September quarter, but the recession will be "of limited magnitude and fairly short duration."

The administration has already said the nation will be in recession for the remainder of this year with growth declining by 0.5 percent over the entire four quarters.

The Gross National Product, the truest measure of economic performance, is the value of all goods and services produced in the United States, adjusted for inflation.

Two consecutive quarterly declines in GNP is considered an official recession.

The only remaining question is whether the negative growth will be mild and last only two quarters, or as long as the pessimistic economists and other branches of government believe it might.

Tanker collision causes history's worst oil spill

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Tobago (UPI) — Millions of barrels of crude oil gushed into the Caribbean Sea Friday from a collision of two burning supertankers in the worst oilspill in history. Police reported 29 men missing and presumed dead.

Tobago police said a total of 81 people were aboard the two vessels and that 52 persons survived.

Trinidad-Tobago Oil Minister Errol Mahabir told Parliament more than 3 million barrels of oil were lost in the collision between the 1,139-foot Atlantic Empress, under lease by Mobil Oil Corp., and the 1,065-foot Liberian-registered Aegean Captain during a rainstorm at dusk Thursday.

The Coast Guard previously reported 16 million barrels lost, already enough to make it the worst oilspill in history.

Police said the Aegean Captain carried 35 crewmen and the captain's wife, for a total of 36 and the Atlantic Empress carried 43 crewmen along with the wives of the captain and one crewman for a total of 45 aboard.

Police quoted survivors as saying one of those missing and presumed dead was Romipal Kumar, an Indian, leaped overboard, struck his head on the hull and disappeared.

They said both ships had crews that included Greeks, Liberians and Indians.

The skipper of the Atlantic Empress, Capt. Pashalis Hatzipetroy, was hospitalized with burns.

"I want to fight the fire from the inside," Zissakis told Tobago police, who furnished him a boat to approach the blazing ship.

Both vessels burned furiously along with the sea around the ships. The Atlantic Empress listed 40 degrees to the right with its entire hull ablaze, flames shooting 40 feet higher than its smokestack. Blazing waves covered its deck and it trailed a column of smoke half a mile wide for more than 60 miles.

The Aegean Captain, also ablaze, was under way by a tugboat in an effort to get the spilling crude oil away from the silver-white tourist beaches of Tobago.

The burning oil slick spread quickly and by Friday afternoon, 18 hours after the Thursday dusk collision, it covered 25 square miles. The slimy oil turned the turquoise seas to a grimy gray. Waves carrying the oil lapped at the beaches of Tobago.

The Coast Guard said Friday afternoon that about half the oil had already spilled from the two tankers.

The Atlantic Empress was carrying 270,000 tons — more than 2 million barrels of crude Middle East oil to the United States; shipping sources said.

The other supertanker, the Liberian-registered Aegean Captain was carrying 200,000 tons — 1.42 million barrels — of crude on board, the sources said. It had loaded the oil in the West Indies islands of Curacao and Bonaire. All 36 crew members of the Aegean Captain survived the crash, but many of them suffered severe burns.

The combined load of the two supertankers was almost 3.5 million barrels more than 200 million gallons of petroleum.

The two burning wrecks, abandoned by their crews and captains, had drifted to within seven miles of the shoreline of Tobago, part of the twin-island republic of Trinidad and Tobago, about 1,000 miles southwest of Puerto Rico and 20 to 30 miles off the Venezuelan coast.

While Trinidad has oil refineries and factories, Tobago is a quiet and peaceful tourist resort, famed for its clean beaches.

Preparations for efforts to contain and clean up the spill were under way late Friday.

Mobil Oil sent five people "for remedial purposes, to insure that the spill is properly controlled," shipping sources said.

And Texaco, though neither tanker involved is owned or chartered by it, sent two tankers and a firefighting tugboat to the scene to assist in rescue and clean-up operations.

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Land Board has charged Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus in a lawsuit with "arbitrary and injunctive" abuse of the law in withholding lieu land selections from the state.

Specifically, the suit — filed late Thursday in U.S. District Court — asks for declaratory and injunctive relief against the former Idaho governor, for the government's refusal to transfer ownership to the state of some 21,000 acres.

The board claims the land, selected by the state for replacement for area lost through homesteading and inclusion in federal reservations, should have been turned over to Idaho when it submitted its selections several years ago.

The suit says the government has no right to deny transfer of title on the land for environmental, property-value or other reasons. Citing federal statute and Idaho Code, the board also says the Public School Endowment Fund — which operates with interest of property granted to the state dozens of years ago by the government — "shall forever remain inviolate and intact," and therefore the government is breaking the law by delaying the land shift.

Andrus has "unlawfully withheld and unreasonably delayed" the transaction, the board says, adding that the government has no right to claim "disparity of value" on the 5,000-acre Hoo Doo Unit.

Andrus has balked at giving Idaho the Hoo Doo unit because he said the land is more valuable than land Idaho lost before making its selections. But the board argues the law requires the government to turn over land of "equal acreage," with no right by the government to turn over only low-value land.

The Bureau of Land Management told the state last October it would not turn over land in Caribou County because the BLM had granted mineral leases on the land. The board argues these mineral rights should belong to the state.

Also a sore spot with the board was the government's sale of $700,000 worth of timber from lands selected by Idaho. The suit asks for people damages on all sales made by the federal government from such lands.

A similar suit by the state of Utah against the government is before the Supreme Court.

The Idaho Land Board for a time decided to wait for a decision on that case, but now has decided it can wait no longer, as it says Idaho is losing money every day the government does not give up control of the lieu lands.

For sale: 1 small town

HUMPHREY — The town of Humphrey, Idaho, is for sale.

The whole town. Located on Interstate 15 by the Idaho-Montana border, Humphrey consists of two cabins, two garages, three outhouses, a store, a house and a gas pump. For a mere $55,000 you can buy all this, 6.8 acres including a graveyard with tombstones dating to the 1800s; and your very own zip code: 83428. And you won't have to put up with noisy neighbors, either.

Humphrey, pop. 0, was put on the market by its mayor, sheriff, dogcatcher and sole owner, Leif Isaacson, who lives in Rigby.

Once a bustling metropolis of 25, Humphrey served as a long station for the railroad. The creek behind the store was dammed and huge chunks of ice were cut from the small lake and loaded into freight cars. The last residents moved from the general store seven years ago and left. But the town's still a speck on most road maps.

Since placing two ads under "town for sale" in the Idaho Journal-Idahoan, Isaacson said he's received 250 inquiries. Half are interested in the spot as a vacation home — the town is bordered by the National Forest and offers fishing and hunting — half as a business venture. One man, apparently concerned about "the only neighbor" he'd have to know who was buried in the graveyard.

"The reason I'm selling the town as a 'town' is to appeal to ego," Isaacson said. "Out of 10 million people I'm probably the only one who owns a town."

Moon astronauts gather

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The men of Apollo 11 celebrated man's first landing on the moon 10 years ago Friday by looking to the future, urging the nation to meet today's problems by copying the resolve that forged the path to the moon.

"We sincerely hope that other projects, not only in space, but in all areas of the national challenge, will find the sense of purpose and spirit that sustained Apollo," said Neil A. Armstrong, commander of that historic expedition.

It was Armstrong, 45, now a part-time engineering professor, who first set foot on the moon's Sea of Tranquility July 20, 1969, and said it was "one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind."

Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin, 49, who followed Armstrong out on the dust mantling and ancient lava flow, said President John F. Kennedy's decision to shoot for the moon was a political act with one objective — to beat the Russians. Such determination is needed, he said, to deal with today's problems.

The three former astronauts also met with President Carter, giving him a flag that had been carried to the moon.

Appropriation approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, showing little inclination to re-light old emotional battles, Friday passed the $72.7 billion appropriation for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. The vote was 67-19.

The bill, annually a vehicle for vigorous debates on abortion, busing and occupational safety, now goes to a committee with House members where differences will be negotiated.

Junta cheered by crowd

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Tens of thousands of Nicaraguans sang, rang bells, fired guns and cheered their approval of the revolution that ousted President Anastasio Somoza Friday in a tumultuous welcome for the revolutionary junta.

The arrival of the provisional government that plans to rule the war-torn country for three-to-four years, before calling elections, set-off a rally-attended by an estimated 100,000 people who poured into a city square.

Four members of the junta drove in from Leon, the provisional capital. Throngs at every town and hamlet along the highway cheered as they passed.

The junta was greeted by the peeling of bells in the Roman Catholic cathedral adjacent to the national congress and the shouts of the crowds who shouted such slogans as "Patria Libre!" (Free fatherland) and "Viva Sandinista Nicaragua."

Oregon fire battled

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (UPI) — Wary firefighters strengthened fire lines around the 9,700-acre Bryant Mountain fire Friday, hoping to call the largest forest blaze in Oregon this year under control by next Saturday.

Ranchers and members of the Bonanza Fire Department helped turn back the flames Thursday, from buildings in the California border area, about 25 miles southeast of Klamath Falls.

The blaze, burning at 5,000 feet, was blackening conifer, larch, sage and other brush in an area that included some commercial timber. The timber loss was valued at $1.5 million.

There were 520 firefighters on the lines.

Ambassador nominated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, brushing aside traditional diplomatic considerations, Friday said he will nominate Thomas Watson, former chairman of the board of IBM, to serve as ambassador to Russia.

Watson, 65, has been a major force in U.S. industry for decades. However, nothing in his background reflects the normal foreign experience often weighed for such assignments.

"I approve" by the Senate, Watson would be the first non-career diplomat to hold the post since World War II.

Execution stay denied

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court in a unanimous decision Friday refused to stay the execution next week of condemned killer Howard V. Douglas.

Douglas' hopes of avoiding the electric chair at 7 a.m. Thursday now are pinned on Federal District Judge Ben Krentzman in Tampa. Feeling chances of getting a postponement from the state court were slim.

Douglas' lawyers have already filed an identical appeal with the federal court.

GOP hits into Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top Republicans Friday night said President Carter's energy plan will just build a bigger bureaucracy, but not solve the nation's problems.

Republican National Chairman Bill Brock, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and House Minority Leader John Rhodes of Arizona appeared on an ABC special giving the GOP equal time to rebut Carter's Sunday night speech.

Carter's plan calls for creation of an energy security corporation and an energy mobilization board to help increase domestic fuel production.

But the GOP leaders said that approach would just mean more red tape.

SALT II battle static after week of hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate supporters of SALT II tried Friday to tie together a diplomatic tightrope a bipartisan list of treaty reservations strong enough to please U.S. hawks without scaring off Soviet hardliners.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., worked behind-the-scenes on the reservations as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee wound up the first two weeks of SALT II ratification hearings.

Church, chairman of the panel, and Javits, the ranking Republican, were hesitant to introduce the list unless assured of significant support in the Senate.

"We are discussing possible understandings and reservations which would have a large enough consensus so that would be appropriate for me and Sen. Javits to offer them," Church said after a closed committee meeting.

The reservations would be tacked onto the SALT II package without changing the text of the treaty itself.

The Kremlin has adamantly opposed textual alterations, but has yet to take a stand on adding a document to the package.

The reservations would deal with controversial issues such as the Soviet Backfire bomber, which has been exempted from the treaty, and a loophole that could permit development of new missiles through improvements in old ones.

The Senate Democratic leadership said friends and foes of the superpower arms treaty apparently failed to make significant gains during the first two weeks of hearings.

"The opponents don't seem to have scored many heavy points,"

Assistant Democratic Leader Alan Cranston said. "But as yet there is no discernible change in senators' positions. An awful lot of them are reserving their positions."

But the California lawmaker said critics of SALT II were expected to flex their muscles next week when the Senate Armed Services Committee begins hearings aimed at laying out the weaknesses of the pact.

Cranston predicted the Armed Services hearings would be "the toughest week" so far in the Senate debate over the second U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks treaty.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown, the lead-off witness Monday, is expected to duel with Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., probably the most formidable critic of the treaty.

Pope plans October visit but Vatican quiet on tour

By United Press International — Pope John Paul II will visit America in early October, and he will address a session of the United Nations, U.N. spokesmen announced Friday.

There had been widespread reports that the pope would make a worldwide tour of the country, meet President Carter at the White House and address a session of the United Nations.

Begin ailing

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin has a minor blockage in a brain artery that is affecting his vision and balance and the 65-year-old Israeli leader has been ordered to rest, his doctors said Friday.

Interviewed on national television, Assa Harel, director of the Hadassah hospital where Begin has been hospitalized since Tuesday, expressed confidence Begin will be able "to function normally" after a period of complete rest.

Harel said that Begin's ailment will not affect his judgment.

But the hospital director said Begin will have to confine his attention to "weighty state matters" and avoid "risky" decisions during the post-hospitalization convalescence period.

Harel said Begin will have to spend 10-14 days in hospital and then rest at home for an as yet unspecified period of time.

Almanac

By United Press International — Today is Saturday, July 21, the 202nd day of 1979 with 163 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

American author Ernest Hemingway was born July 21, 1899.

On this day in history:

In 1861, the first major military engagement of the Civil War occurred at Bull Run Creek in Virginia, about 35 miles southwest of Washington, D.C.

In 1873, outlaw Jesse James held up the Rock Island Express train at Adair, Iowa, and escaped with $3,000.

In 1930, the U.S. Veterans Administration was established.

In 1961, Air Force Capt. Virgil Grissom became the second American to rocket into space. His Mercury capsule ride lasted 16 minutes.

A thought for the day: Ernest Hemingway wrote, "The world is a fine place and worth fighting for."

Earlier Friday, Vatican press spokesman Rev. Romeo Ranelli said the church would neither confirm nor deny the trip.

"We intend to maintain strict silence and that silence prevails in the entire Vatican," Ranelli said.

The U.N. spokesman said Secretary General Kurt Waldheim had invited the pontiff to visit U.N. headquarters and to address the U.N. General Assembly.

He said the pope has accepted the secretary general's invitation and will come to U.N. headquarters at the beginning of October.

In Washington, a spokesman for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops said he understood the Vatican would announce the visit on Saturday, and that his speech to the General Assembly on Oct. 2 would be followed by a "pastoral visit" to the United States.

But the officials stressed that the Vatican made it clear that it would announce no other cities on dates of the pope's itinerary than the U.N. visit.

Earlier speculation said that the visit would be for 10 days but Catholic sources said Friday it would probably be "for about a week."

Vatican sources had speculated that the absence of a formal denunciation to a tacit confirmation of the trip was at least under consideration.

The Vatican usually denies rumors outright when they are baseless. Observers point out that the pope's Mexican trip in January and his triumphant June return to his Polish homeland.

U.S. church officials have said they believe "strict silence" before the trip, but lack official notification from the Vatican.

The pope has privately expressed interest in visiting the United States. Twice in recent weeks he told crowds at his weekly general audiences that the church's largest contingents were Americans.

John Paul II had been the second pontiff to visit the United States.

Pope Paul VI addressed the United Nations during a 14-hour visit in October, 1965. He also visited the Vatican pavilion at the New York World's Fair and celebrated a mass at packed Yankee Stadium, an event that became known as the "Sermon on the Mount."

VA benefits boost set to House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen said Thursday the House Veterans Affairs Committee has developed a package of bills aimed at meeting the needs of both young Vietnam veterans and aging veterans of earlier wars.

Hansen, a member of the committee, said that the bills have problems-reducing to civilian life.

"We owe them any help they may need in overcoming psychological problems caused by their service," Hansen said.

The Idaho representative said legislative hearings have made it plain the Veterans Administration has not planned adequately for the influx of World War II veterans expected to seek care in VA medical facilities during the years ahead.

"The average age of World War II veterans is 60 years and they will be subject to the usual illnesses and infirmities of old age," Hansen said.

Hansen said the committee has passed to the House a bill increasing the rate of compensation paid veterans who were disabled in service by 8.3 percent and the same increase to their dependents and survivors.

QUESTION...

What is the policy of your Funeral Home concerning visiting hours?

ANSWER...

In the very early days of American history the friends of a deceased person maintained a vigil, or as the Irish called it, a "wake," until the time of the funeral and burial. With the acceptance of modern funeral service the vigil moved into the home and the wake has been replaced by visits or calling hours. Different customs prevail in various geographical areas and among certain ethnic groups.

In Twin Falls friends may call at our Funeral Home every day of the year from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. There may be a specific time during the day when the family will have to receive their friends. When this occurs we publish in the local newspapers. The family will receive their friends at the Funeral Home today from _____ until _____. We maintain a register of visitors so the family may have a record of all those who call.

Our Funeral Home is equipped, staffed and maintained for the purpose of creating a "home away from home" at this time for the comfort and convenience of the family and friends.

Three arrested for thefts

TWIN FALLS — A three-county investigation following a string of recent burglaries led to the arrests Friday of three men and recovery of most of the stolen items valued at more than $3,000.

Twin Falls and Jerome county sheriff deputies said Christofal Garza, 18, and a man calling himself Phillip Barton, 35, both believed to be from Texas, were arrested in Jerome Friday afternoon and charged with possession of five stolen guns valued at about $1,200 and some stolen tools.

Jerome County Sheriff Elze Hall arrested the two on 1-80 on information provided by the Wendell police. The arrest was made at 5 p.m. The two were traveling in a car seen leaving the scene of a Wendell burglary.

Upon further investigation, Jerome sheriff deputies found the two may have been involved in burglaries in Jerome and Gooding counties. Garza and Barton were also charged with burglary.

The investigation also pointed to two burglaries in Twin Falls Thursday in which $1,500 worth of rifles, TV sets, stereos and clocks was taken.

Based on that information, Twin Falls police and sheriff officers executed a search warrant at the Knotty Pine Motel in Twin Falls.

Officers recovered a majority of the stolen items and arrested a third man, Gilbert Garcia Garza, 26, also believed to be from Texas, charging him with possession of stolen property.

Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn said more arrests were pending Friday night.

Idaho Bank and Trust teller Lori Huffaker in Twin Falls finds new, higher building temperatures an adjustment

Bob DeLashmuit/Times-News

Building thermostat settings vary

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Your chances of escaping the summer heat are better in a supermarket than in a public building or a bank, according to a Times-News survey of area buildings.

But even that relief is in jeopardy. Since Monday, office workers, shoppers, college students and restaurant patrons have probably found public buildings warmer. A presidential mandate which went into effect Monday — limits thermostat settings in public and most commercial buildings to no lower than 78 degrees in summer and no higher than 65 degrees in winter.

The limits are designed to conserve energy. Congress approved them in early May.

The mandate carries the power of law and penalties for violation have been set. Civil fines are not to exceed $5,000 for each violation and criminal fines are not to exceed $10,000.

Idaho has not decided whether to participate in enforcing the law, pending more information from the federal government.

Although the thermostats were limited, temperatures were not as cooperative. Temperatures climbed into the high 90s this week and many building thermometers registered well into the 80s.

Such limits are nothing new to federal and state buildings. But the new mandate also includes local government and most commercial buildings. Exceptions include residential buildings, hotels, hospitals, health care facilities, nurseries, elementary and day-care schools, and facilities which depend on certain settings on temperature and humidity.

An example would be firms using computers with a warranty that would be voided by higher thermostat settings.

By Thursday, most Twin Falls area public buildings were either in compliance or working towards compliance. That was not the case in some Twin Falls commercial buildings.

A Times-News check of area public buildings showed thermostats set at 68 degrees at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 78 degrees at the Twin Falls School District, 411 administrative offices, 78 degrees at Twin Falls City Hall, and 78 degrees at the College of Southern Idaho.

CSI settings were made earlier this week. But the mandates have been questioned by the Board of Trustees.

"I just don't believe the levels they've established are realistic," college president Dr. James Taylor told the board Monday. Taylor said the levels for winter would reduce college personnel efficiency.

tioned the government's enforcement ability. "It may be posted, but by god you don't have to abide by it," he said. "We don't abide by half the laws we have now," he added.

The temperature situation in the courthouse is relatively unknown, Twin Falls County Commissioner Ann Cover said. Although the building's air conditioning system is set at 68, temperatures are not consistent and difficult to regulate, she said.

A problem lies in the buildings' energy inefficient features such as high ceilings, Cover said.

Cover said the county will be discussing solutions to the problem with architect Richard Heindel.

The county also plans to install thermometers to monitor room temperatures, she said.

The scene at many of the area's commercial buildings was somewhat different. Most were not complying by Thursday. The survey showed thermostats set at 73 degrees at Mountain Bell, 72 degrees at Woodworth in the Blue Lakes Mall, between 72 and 76 degrees in Buttrays Foods/Osco Drugs in the mall, 78 in the mall itself, 70 in the Sandpiper, 76 at Twin Falls Bank and Trust, 78 at Idaho Bank and Trust National Bank, 78 at Idaho Bank and Trust on Shoshone Street, and 72 at the Times-News office.

Most building managers contacted indicated a willingness to cooperate.

Times-News General Manager Wiley Dodds said he was unaware the limits were law and indicated settings will be adjusted.

Twin Falls Bank and Trust property manager Bob Bartlett said the bank's thermostat setting was gradually being increased to allow employees' time to adapt. The 78 setting was expected to be reached Friday, he said.

"We will follow the government all the way," Mountain Bell office manager W. Dean Gibson said. But, he added, adjusting the building's air conditioning system requires a specialist who had not yet arrived.

Some managers wondered if the guidelines legally applied to them.

Woolworth store manager Ed Andersen said he is waiting for company instructions. "We will check into it with our company to see what the correct guidelines are," he said.

Court stays execution

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court has stayed the execution of Duane A. Osborn, giving the murder convict's lawyer time to appeal the sentence and conviction.

Chief Justice Charles R. Davidson said a stay of execution to allow time for appeals is automatic under Idaho's new death-by-injection capital punishment law.

Osborn last month was sentenced to die Aug. 20 at the Idaho State Prison by injection of a poisonous substance.

Earlier this week, the state Corrections Department agreed on the method of carrying out the death sentence. Three volunteers in another room would pump plungers, with one of the injections being lethal.

Osborn was sentenced to death by 6th District Court Judge Arthur Oliver.

Threats of reprisals prompt security around murder case

TWIN FALLS — A preliminary hearing date to see whether first-degree murder suspect Mahmoudshawi "Mo" Yousef Benedict should be bound over to district court has not been set.

But that does not rule out the possibility the hearing will be held anyway, keeping the date secret from the public.

Rasheded, 38, a Palestinian, is charged with the murder of his nephew, Shawkat Shukri Ali, 31, also a Palestinian, Saturday when shot once in the head with an automatic handgun in the office of the El Rancho Motel, 380 Addison Ave. W. All was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise.

Threats of reprisals have increased security measures in the case. Jerome police put a brother, Sam Yousef, under guard at St. Benedict's Hospital. Yousef was admitted to the hospital Sunday after suffering a possible heart attack. Jerome Police Chief Howard DuBois said threats precipitated the use of guards in the hospital corridor.

The guards were removed Thursday afternoon after members of the family had returned to Israel, DuBois said.

Poor health forces retirement

IDAHO FALLS — Bob Stelling, a canon in the Episcopal Diocese of Idaho, has been forced to retire on doctor's orders.

Idaho Bishop Hanford L. Both your Bishop and your Diocese will be ever grateful to him for his extraordinary competence in the prodigious amount of work he has done in our behalf for the past 21 years; serving as layman, Lay Reader, NSP and full-time priest, on numerous committees and commissions, the Idaho Falls vestry, the Diocesan Council, as NSP assistant to Bishop Footle, Vicar and first priest at Meridian, and as Canon to the Ordinary in my office for nearly 6 1/2 years."

What's what

Hereditary differences set men, women apart, researcher concludes

What makes men and women different has nothing to do with their environment. Those differences are completely hereditary. So insists a lady scholar who said she came to believe her contention while working at a primate lab where she studied chimpanzees. Nobody taught those chimps how to behave in a male or female way, she said, and yet their mannerisms are distinctly representative of sex. The males tend to bluff and bully, she said, and the females are inclined to meek, fawn and bribe with their bodies.

Albion P. Armour invented the door-to-door telephone booth. Whatever else he did it is not in the record at hand. But that was sufficient, anyhow, for his purpose. Fifty years ago, he just put together that one little hinged device, sold his patent rights for $3 million, and retired. Until his death 30 years later, Mr. Armour didn't worry much about money. Hardly at all, in fact.

LIFELINE

Q. Is there any reason to believe the old fortune-telling claim that a living person's longevity can be predicted by the length of the lifeline in the palm?

A. No, sir, that one has been debunked pretty thoroughly. Two University of Washington researchers measured the lifelines on the palms of 51 cadavers—some job—and correlated their lengths to the height, weight and age at death. No linkage. Clearly, the lifelines were absolutely insignificant.

Q. What makes real bird's nest soup so expensive?

A. The extreme danger in gathering the nests! They're built by bay swallows on the ledges of sea cliffs on the coast of Thailand. Those ledges are slippery. Many a bird's nest harvester has fallen to death.

Q. What's an "archaic smile"?

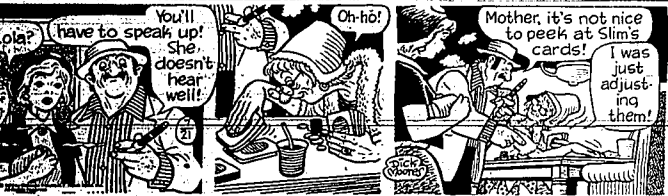

A. An expression that faintly suggests a smile. You might say the Mona Lisa exhibits an archaic smile. It also was depicted on a lot of Old Greek statues.

GESTATION

A pregnant blue whale delivers in just about half as much gestation time as does a pregnant elephant. Odd bit. The larger the animal, usually, the longer its gestation period. But that blue whale is the exception. Her tongue alone can weigh as much as the entire elephant. Another exception is the female gorilla. She needs about the same amount of time as does a woman.

Irwin keeps Open lead

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — Despite succumbing at last to the cold, wind and driving rain, Hale Irwin nevertheless maintained a two-shot advantage over Spaniard Sevy Ballesteros Friday after the third round of the British Open.

Irwin, guilty of only a single bogey while fashioning successive rounds of 68 the first two days, suffered a double bogey and three bogeys in tormenting weather conditions against a single birdie. But he watched with approval as playing partner Ballesteros experienced similar agony with a double and Ballesteros, even with par at 213, were the only players to match par over the demanding 6,822-yard Royal Lytham St. Annes course. Only six men managed to break par Friday, and four of them went out early in the morning when the sun was shining and the wind was temperate.

With all his woes, the 34-year-old Irwin, wearing braces on his teeth, is only 18 holes away from becoming the fifth man in history to win both the U.S. and British national championships the same year. He captured the U.S. Open at Toledo, Ohio, last month.

"It will take good golf for me to win tomorrow. I know I have it in me and I hope its there waiting to jump out of the box tomorrow."

Irwin, starting the day with a two-shot lead, saved the advantage when Irwin bogeyed the 10th and Ballesteros took his double bogey. But the American bogeyed the third hole when his approach shot landed in the right bunker, getting that back with his only birdie on the seventh.

The 22-year-old Ballesteros narrowed the margin to a single stroke when Irwin bogeyed the 10th and 11th holes, but he gave those back with bogeys on 14 and 15—the first one the result of a poor tee shot and the second coming when he pulled his approach into the rough.

Irwin thus was sitting on a cozy three-shot lead coming to the 17th, where he had a good drive to the edge of the fairway. But he bunkered his second shot, barely cleared another bunker coming out, chipped to the bank of the green and put-putted for a double bogey.

However, Ballesteros lent a helping hand when he bogeyed the hole.

"It was very difficult to do a good score with a double bogey and a bogey on the first three holes," Ballesteros said. "I was not much lucky today. Maybe I saved my luck for tomorrow. I think I can still win."

In 1975 he was leading and I finished second. This time I am second, and finish first. I have waited a long time for the opportunity to win and I want to try very hard tomorrow.

The cut for the final round of the top 60 and ties was established at 227, 14 over par, and among the casualties were Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller and Gil Morgan, both at 223.

Lee Trevino, losing five shots on the 13th to 15th holes, including a triple bogey on 13, nevertheless had a 74 to stand at 218 after a late, containing edge at the start of the day, fell to 219 after a 76—Ray Floyd shot a 71 for 220 and Ed Neely had a 70 for 221, where he was joined by John Schroeder (71), Walter Armstrong (73), Hubert Green (73) and Orrville Moody (76).

Athletes pull out of games

MOSCOW (UPI) — One by one the star foreign athletes invited to compete for the first time in the Soviet Spartacade are pulling out of the showpiece summer games and the intended dress rehearsal for next summer's Olympics, it rapidly turning back into the all-Russian benefit performance it has always been.

But the heart of the U.S. track and field team will probably miss the games for a different, if familiar, reason — Soviet bureaucracy. The games open today in Moscow.

U.S. track coach Jimmy Carnes said Friday Steve Scott, Steve Lacey, John Powell and Francis Larrieu still had not received visas to come to Moscow.

"I don't think Scott will make it," said Carnes. "He was supposed to be running in the 800 meters tomorrow. He is somewhere in England at the moment. He just haven't been able to get the bookwork done."

"I haven't given up on Lacey and Powell yet, though. But you know you've got trouble when you have to depend on reports and visas for the Soviet Union," added Carnes, from Gainesville, Florida.

American stars who were pulled out even before the visa hassles include Ed Moses, the world 400-meter hurdles world record holder; high jumper Franklyn Jones; hurdler Greg Foster and Willie Smith, the fastest man over 400 meters this year.

Although some 2,500 foreign athletes have been invited to compete for the first time at the Soviet's national summer games, it was not the top track men or women the organizers how many have made it to Moscow. But none of the 85 countries involved have sent its top athletes in any of the 25 sports being staged.

Even Cuba has withdrawn trackmen Alberto Juantorena, Silvio Leonard and Alejandro Casenas and Olympic heavyweight champion Solto Siverio, who will not be coming either, according to Cuban team officials.

Henry Rono, the quadruple world record holder from Kenya, will be another missing face and none of the wrestling and shooting, but the organizers are coming because they are preparing for the Europa Cup finals in Turin, Italy, Aug. 5.

The games have already been going for two weeks in some sport-like wrestling and shooting, but the official opening ceremony will be held Saturday.

The newly modernized Lenin stadium, centerpiece for next year's Olympics, will almost certainly have every one of its new 108,000 seats filled. The pagantry — one of the most impressive aspects of Soviet showmanship.

Watered down

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — On Thursday, Jack Nicklaus offered a suggestion that the Royal Lytham St. Annes golf course be watered. On Friday, he sounded like a man who had drowned in the water.

"The greens and approaches were too well watered," Nicklaus said after shooting a 2-over-par 78 for 214, leaving him only three shots behind leader Hale Irwin after three rounds of the British Open.

"I don't like to be complaining, although it may sound that way, but everything seemed very slow. I don't object to watering, but to change the way the course plays for two days is not right. That is the only thing I would object to."

"I said last night it needed water, but not that much. You are playing to a hard fairway and all of a sudden get to a green and you don't know which is watered and which isn't. But it's the same for all of us."

bogey on the second hole, when he lost his tee shot near the railroad tracks, and picked up four more bogeys for a round of 78.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, also over par at 73, was only three shots behind Irwin and Tom Watson, despite a 76, also was well behind the other strokes away.

"The golf course played extremely tough today," said Irwin, who completed his round in heavy rain, "but I emphasize that fact — I don't like it. But I still have my nose in front. Even though I played poorly I didn't lose ground, and maybe I got my bad round out of the way."

"The nature of this golf course is one of seess back and forth, and you can't sit on any kind of lead. Then there's the looming figure of Mr. Nicklaus, Tom Watson and all the other guys who shoot in there today. It's still a wide open game."

Can the Cubbies keep winning ballgames?

By Joe Goddard
©1979 Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — The Cubbies? They could win a pennant, sure. But they probably won't. History is against them, and they're getting better. Not great, but good. And they're getting better. It is a 25-man team. That may sound silly, considering every team has 25 men. But general manager Bob Kennedy has provided 25 players with ability and desire to win. Herman Franks is using every one of them.

He has an exceptional bench. The reserves either are hitting over .300, or providing fine fielding, or both.

He has an underrated defense. It's stingy up the middle for the first time since Randy Hundley, Don Kessinger, Glenn Beckert and you-name-him in center. Now it's Barry Foote, Ivan DeJesus, Ted Sizemore and a big name, Jerry Martin.

And the hitting. Most of all, the hitting. Timely hitting. So timely that no deficit is too big. The Cubs are hitting from behind under all kinds of adversities, including the elements.

Franks knows it is so-o-o-o important to keep playing his 25 men the second half of the season the way he did the first half. It gets so hot and muggy in the old park on August afternoons. Players traded by the Cubs eventually confess that, yes, they did gas out in August and run on empty in September.

"I know that because this is my first summer here," said Foote, "but I remember Hundley telling me that he wishes now he hadn't caught 150 games a year for four, five, six years in a row."

Foote is one of those who will need second-half rest. He has been in 76 of the first 86 games. Bill Buckner is another. It's foolish for him to play both ends of doubleheaders. He is certain to suffer muscle fatigue if he does.

This applies to all regulars, really. Even the splendidly athletic DeJesus.

Now about Kingman. It is asking too much of him to continue producing runs in Part II of the season the way he did in Part I.

Kingman has a history of second-half self destruction. A columnist at the All-Star Game said Kingman is a whoope cushion on the seat of a franchise. That's not entirely fair. He is a boon to a franchise at the gate, where people funnel into the park to watch Kong hit 'em out. But in the long run of a long season, Kingman invariably finds a way to be missing. "Injury. Ego. You name it, he'll find it," said the journalist.

Speaking of history, that's part of the problem. The Cubs are history in October. They haven't been in a World Series in 33 years.

The Cubs? They could win a pennant, sure. But probably not this year.

All together now: "Wait until next year!"

Walker likes outfielders who can "hit it a country mile." So far, all he has been able to find are outfielders who can hit singles.

There is some good news in CSI recruiting, though, and it comes with the best crop of infielders to hit town in many years.

And to top that, two players off the Twin Falls High School and American Legion baseball teams will play for the Eagles next spring.

"Craig Beutler and Logan Easley will be coming

Tigers deal Staub to Montreal Expos

Detroit Tigers dealt 16-year veteran Rusty Staub to the Montreal Expos Friday in exchange for a player to be named by Dec. 31 or cash in lieu thereof.

The spokesman said he had no word who would replace Staub as designated hitter for the Tigers. Staub, the left-handed hitter, had been lifted from the lineup at times this season when Detroit faced left-handed pitching.

Staub, the American League's leading designated hitter in 1978, suffered through a June slump that brought his batting average down to .268. He had gotten off to such a strong start after ending his holdout that some observers began to question the validity of spring training.

He was expected to ask to be traded at the end of the season.

A club spokesman said Staub's contract, which runs through the end of the 1980 season, was turned over to Montreal "for a player to be named by Dec. 31 or cash in lieu thereof."

Now the Detroit Tigers deal 16-year veteran Rusty Staub to the Montreal Expos Friday in exchange for a player to be named by Dec. 31 or cash in lieu thereof.

Staub, a six-time All-Star and an early-season holdout with the Tigers, has been a major disappointment this year after sitting out the first month in a contract dispute with management.

Two come from Tucson High School in Arizona, where they played for an ex-teammate of Walker's. Both also achieved all-city status in Tucson.

Robert Aguilar is a 64, 150-pound first baseman who is coming to CSI with credentials of being a good power hitter. Walker is hoping he may be the guy to take up the slack left with Jim Good's departure.

Ray Quiroz is a small second baseman in the mold of Rocco Zundano. He is quick, has a sure glove and wields a powerful arm.

"He also is dying to come," Walker said. "He is a real enthusiastic kid who loves to play the game. But I'll tell you what, there is going to be a real battle for the second base spot."

Another second baseman is Perry Byrne of Boise, the only high school second baseman in Idaho who Walker feels plays the base correctly.

Mike Bouke of Lewiston also will be coming, and his strong suit is hitting. Walker said he is a good power hitter for a "little guy."

Coach Walker contracts rare recruiting disease

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho baseball coach Walker is suffering these days from what he terms, "the Romero-Good Syndrome."

It is a rare disease which strikes only baseball coaches, usually following a successful season.

The symptoms: headache and dizziness brought on by worry over not having recruited just the right athlete.

The cure: find two baseball players who can somehow fill the shoes of Albert Romero and Jim Good in the CSI outfield.

Good set new home run and RBI records at CSI this spring and was drafted by the Detroit Tigers, while Romero also fielded well enough to earn a full scholarship at San Diego State University.

"Every year good outfielders are a dime a dozen," said Walker. "But this year they are just not there."

Walker likes outfielders who can "hit it a country mile." So far, all he has been able to find are outfielders who can hit singles.

Walker's best years are ahead of him. He has the tools to be good. I like the way Easley throws. He can pitch and maybe play the outfield."

But the two Twin Falls products will find the condition mighty stiff with more than 50 ballplayers expected in camp when fall practice begins in August.

Walker has already signed 14 letters of intent, including two from Canada, two from Arizona, one from Georgia and one from Michigan. The coach said they are all coming to CSI with good credentials.

"Pitching is what the Eagles need most, and heading the list of recruits is Brian Peck of Missoula, Mont. Walker said the 63-right-hander is the best high school pitcher in the northwest."

Peck will be joined by Berry Coughlin of Lethbridge, B.C., a right-hander who was highly sought after by professional scouts. Walker said Coughlin has excellent breaking pitches and should be one of the mainstays of the Eagles staff.

Another pitcher is Rogers Cole of Milan, Mich., who at only 5-7 can throw the ball 92 miles per hour.

"He was in the May issue of Sports Illustrated (Faces In The Crowd) for striking out 21 batters in a row," Walker said. "No one can figure out how he throws the ball so hard."

Other pitchers include Mike Walters of Lewiston and Terry Schaffer of Parma. Both are right-handers with excellent fastballs, Walker said.

But CSI baseball fans know hitting is what Walker likes best, and there are plenty of hitters on his recruiting list.

Two come from Tucson High School in Arizona, where they played for an ex-teammate of Walker's. Both also achieved all-city status in Tucson.

Robert Aguilar is a 64, 150-pound first baseman who is coming to CSI with credentials of being a good power hitter. Walker is hoping he may be the guy to take up the slack left with Jim Good's departure.

"He also is dying to come," Walker said. "He is a real enthusiastic kid who loves to play the game. But I'll tell you what, there is going to be a real battle for the second base spot."

Another second baseman is Perry Byrne of Boise, the only high school second baseman in Idaho who Walker feels plays the base correctly.

Mike Bouke of Lewiston also will be coming, and his strong suit is hitting. Walker said he is a good power hitter for a "little guy."

Jeff Thompson of Oregon, Ohio leads the shortstops coming to Twin Falls. Thompson was the MVP in the Kentucky All-Star Tournament and was sent to CSI by a friend of Walker's who is a professional scout.

Another shortstop is Ken McFadden of Carson City, Nev. Coming out of the same high school as Good, McFadden has good power, above average speed and "a gun for an arm."

In the outfield, Walker has just a couple of recruits. Frank Millard of Acworth, Geo. is the top prospect, coming to CSI after leading the Macon University varsity in hitting last season.

Kelly Boren is an outfielder who will report from Twin Falls, Calif. where Walker hit he was a three-sport "all-everything athlete."

And behind the plate Walker has signed Kim Koleyk of Calgary, Alberta, a catcher who was offered a professional contract by the St. Louis Cardinals. Walker terms him "a good one."

Now the CSI coach must figure out what to do with all the "bodies." Add or the returning athletes and many walk-ons he expects, Walker will have to trim the squad down from 50 to 28 by the time the season begins in March.

About that time he will undoubtedly be suffering from another disease: The I Don't Know Who To Let Go Syndrome.

Opening lead: ♠ J

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Their is a special bridge astigmatism that causes the declarer to look so hard at part of a hand that he fails to consider all possibilities.

South started the spade and diamond suits very carefully. He finally concluded that he should play two rounds of trumps before going after diamonds.

He discarded one diamond on dummy's ace of clubs, played dummy's queen of trumps, led a second trump to his 10 and relaxed when both opponents followed. Then he led a diamond to dummy's king and a second diamond to his ace. East swung out and South's grand slam had been sunk without a trace.

It had been an unnecessary loss. South had looked to see the extra chance that dummy's fifth heart gave him.

Once trumps broke, South should have played ace, king and then ruff a small heart from dummy. Back to dummy with the king of diamonds, another heart ruff and the grand slam would be there. South's 13 tricks would be six trumps, ace-king of hearts, dummy's fifth heart, ace-king of diamonds, a diamond ruff and the ace of clubs.

Had hearts broken 5-2 South would still have been able to try for a 3-2 diamond break.
