

Carter may pay the price for SALT

By WESLEY G. PIPPETT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House indicated Friday the administration might not oppose increases in defense spending which Henry Kissinger and several senators have named as the price for support of SALT II.

Press secretary Jody Powell defended the administration's record on defense spending. "And, without mentioning the former secretary of state by name, he said the Senate ratification discussion flowing out of Kissinger's suggestions could be 'healthy and constructive.'"

But, Powell said, "we cannot make defense decisions in terms of trading for votes."

Kissinger, along with Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and John Tower, R-Tex., proposed during Senate hearings this week the additional defense spending of "we order of $3 billion."

"We welcome such a discussion," Powell said. "We hope it will lead to a consensus that will permit the sort of defense spending that will guarantee our national security and correct some problems that have developed in the past. There will clearly be, as in any such discussions, differences over precise levels and priorities."

"This administration from the outset has been concerned about problems developing in our overall defense posture, problems that we did develop over the last 10 or 15 years."

Powell said Carter moved "rapidly after taking office" to modernize the NATO force force "which has moved forward—perhaps more successfully than anyone could have expected."

"This administration has proposed defense budgets to Congress which have been in excess, the previous two years, to levels Congress has been willing to provide," Powell said.

"I must confess there were occasions over the last two years when the president's efforts to deal with these problems left us feeling somewhat lonely in the political arena."

"There were occasions no longer than 5-6 months ago in which the president's insistence—we needed increases to deal with the situation in Europe and strategic forces was met primarily in the public arena by very strong opposition."

Meantime Carter drew enthusiastic support from Polish-American leaders at a 45-minute meeting which also included Polish-born national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Aloysius Mazewski, Chicago, president of the Polish National Alliance and the Polish National Congress, expressed disappointment that there are not more Polish-Americans on the White House appointments list.

"But he said Carter is 'better off in our community than it is pictured on an entire national level.'"

In other White House developments—

—Carter presided at the swearing-in of Patricia Roberts Harris as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

—Greg Schneider, Carter's closest personal aide in the 1976 campaign, resigned as deputy communications adviser to join a political consulting firm and serve as a consultant in Carter's 1980 effort.

—Powell, discussing the slight increase in unemployment during July, said Carter was personally gratified by a decrease in black unemployment from 11.9 percent to 10.8.

Alaskans balk New capital move stymied

© New York Times Service
ANCHORAGE — At first it sounded like an idea out of a simpler time, such as the mid-19th century, when state capitals in the West were mostly a set of files and official seals that tended to drift from one city to another as power ebbed and flowed.

Five years ago the people of Alaska voted to move the capital from Juneau in southeastern Alaska to a place to be selected by a committee that was barred from picking either Fairbanks or Anchorage.

Then and now, State Sen. Bill Ray of Juneau hated the idea. "They've only batted 333," he said, noting that moving the capital might have cost the first two times it was on the ballot.

While the issue remains unresolved, Ray and his allies have succeeded in blocking the move, with the deadline in the 1974 initiative just over. "We lost in October 1969. In the long run, opponents of the capital shift may lose, but they have not lost yet."

"The people were sold a bill of goods," Ray said in an interview. "Then, when they looked at the whole card and saw what it would cost, they didn't have that kind of money."

Last November, Ray and his allies succeeded in winning approval of a ballot measure sponsored by a group called "FRANK," an acronym for "Frustrated Responsible Alaskans Needing Knowledge." The measure they moved came to be known as the FRANK Amendment, and that undoubtedly helped its passage.

The measure requires that voters approve a general obligation bond that would finance the entire cost of the capital move, including the construction of a city for 37,500 people at a rural site picked by the selection committee two years ago. The site is at Willow, about 35 miles north of Anchorage.

What will be included in such a bond measure? Will it include the cost of building service stations and restaurants as well as legislative chambers? That such questions are argued gives an indication of the disarray that Ray and other opponents of the move have caused for those who support the proposed move.

In the same election that won approval of the FRANK initiative, the state's voters turned down a $966 million bond issue to build a new capital.

"Defeat of the bond issue shifts the burden to the legislature to produce a plan simpler than one for building a city for 37,500 people," George Morrison, a member of the Capitol Site Planning Commission, said after the election.

About 22,000 people live in Juneau, and the city's economy is firmly fastened to the state government payroll. Juneau nestles on a slope between a Pacific Ocean fjord and two 3,500-foot mountains, and is one of the most picturesque state capitals in the nation.

Mountains, glaciers and the sea surround the city. No highway leads there, and most people come and go by air.

About half of Alaska's 400,000 citizens live in the Anchorage area, which is more than 550 air miles northwest of Juneau. Because of severe climate of the interior, most major business enterprises, including the oil companies that have brought great wealth to the state in the last 10 years, have their headquarters in Anchorage.

Energy proposals postponed Congress leaves a backlog of work

By STEVE GERSTEL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress moved into a month-long recess Friday with little to show for seven months of toil and enough left over to keep the session going into December.

The House broke away early, abandoning the Capitol late Thursday and leaving the Senate laboring for an extra day.

It recessed late Friday afternoon until Sept. 5.

Vice President Walter Mondale fired a parting shot as his former colleagues left the city, accusing Congress of not making "adequate progress" on President Carter's energy proposals.

"The people of this country have a right to demand action," he said in a statement.

Posioned for at least a month were proposals for a standby gasoline rationing program, a windfall oil profits tax, an energy mobilization bill to cut red tape blocking energy projects, and an ambitious program to develop synthetic fuels.

Despite long lines at gas stations earlier this summer and constantly rising gasoline prices, Congress has adopted only one energy conservation measure — maximum and minimum thermostat settings. And the House has indicated it wants to repeal that provision.

Earlier this year, Congress signaled its intention to curb spending by adopting a fiscal 1980 budget of $32 billion with a deficit of $23 billion and a pledge to balance the budget by 1981.

Faced with writing the "second budget resolution" by mid-September, it must "take account of the recession, the prospect of increasing unemployment and the need to finance the synthetic fuels program."

Republicans are clamoring for an across-the-board tax cut to stimulate the economy.

Energy alone could occupy Congress much of the fall, but the Senate faces two other time-consuming issues — SALT II and the trial of Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.

After nearly a month of committee hearings, supporters of the strategic arms limitation treaty are slightly more optimistic about ratification.

But the treaty is not expected to reach the Senate floor until October and estimates are the debate will last at least six weeks, with the outcome in doubt.

Shortly after the Senate returns in September, the Ethics Committee will make its recommendation in the case of Talmadge, charged with financial misconduct. The expectation is the committee will recommend the Senate punish him, but perhaps only by issuing a "reprimand."

Many issues await compromise efforts by House-Senate negotiators. They include restrictions on federally financed abortions; creation of a Federal Education Department; military aid to Turkey; and implementation of the Panama Canal treaty.

On the plus side: passage of a major trade bill; initial funding for the MX missile; the establishment of non-diplomatic relations with Taiwan; language that could force Carter to lift economic sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia; confirmation of many federal judges; and the swift confirmation of Carter's new Cabinet nominees.

Evans Friday said he would "favorably" endorse a one cent increase in Idaho's sales tax to offset the pinch brought on by the 1 percent tax initiative.

"We are recommending as a possible way of eliminating the pressures on property taxes, raising the sales tax by one cent or broadening it to include some services," he said.

In an interview on a televised news program in Boise, Evans said he would support a form of revenue sharing between state and local governments — such as increased sales taxes — as a way of lessening the effects of the property tax limitation.

Evans said the state could collect an increased amount of sales tax with little extra cost and "could funnel it down to the local governments."

He said some of the city and county officials he had spoken with were in support of revenue sharing, but he would not support the increase without the support of Idaho's citizens.

But Republican Senate leader James Risch of Boise said he was "very surprised" by the governor's proposal.

"I'm very surprised he would suggest such a thing," Risch said. "I couldn't support a sales tax increase because I don't think that's what the people want."

Further, Risch said he did not think the Legislature would support such a measure.

"I don't think the Legislature would pass that or even come remotely close," he said. "The Legislature now is opposed to any tax increases, generally."

Israeli search and destroy unit hits Lebanon

United Press International
Israeli troops and tanks were the biggest search-and-destroy mission in eight months Friday, trekking silently past U.N. lines in darkness to attack two fortified Palestinian guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon.

Israeli gunboats and artillery followed up the assault by pounding a string of Lebanese villages and Palestinian refugee camps, and the state-owned Beirut radio reported.

The Israeli command said troops of the crack Golani Brigade killed at least 10 guerrillas in their strike on the bases, a 30-mile stretch of the frontier near the Lebanese village of Kawkaba. The Israelis said they suffered no casualties.

Lebanese officials said five men were killed and five others wounded in the 30-minute battle.

The assault marked the biggest action of its kind since Jan. 19, when two other guerrilla bases were attacked in the central sector of southern Lebanon.

"It was not a minor raid," an Israeli spokesman told AVIV said.

The attack, the second in about 10 days, came against a backdrop of growing U.S. annoyance with Israel's search-and-destroy policy and moves to limit Israel's use of American weapons in its war against the Palestinians.

The State Department has confirmed indirect contacts through European countries between Washington and the PLO to work out an agenda for the upcoming U.N. debate on the Palestinians, a pro-Israel newspaper said Friday the countries involved included Germany, France and Austria.

The Israeli entered Lebanon on foot shortly after midnight Friday, a military spokesman said, and apparently were aided by their Christian allies who man a 6-mile-deep buffer strip between the Palestinians and the frontier.

The infantrymen walked past

Norwegian U.N. troops, spokesman for the United Nations said, and Lebanese militants said, and launched a surprise attack against the first base but were spotted and fired on by guerrillas at the second one. A U.N. spokesman denied the Israelis crossed their lines.

The bases, defended with bunkers and part of a chain of guerrilla posts strung along the northern perimeter of the buffer strip, belonged to A. Fatah, a major component of the Palestine Liberation Organization, the Israelis said.

Beirut radio reported Israeli artillery and gunboats shelled southern Lebanon, setting off an ammunition dump in one Palestinian village — one and killing 10 civilians and a Lebanese soldier.

"The shelling was very intense. It was a night packed with terror and fear. We heard helicopters dropping the enemy shellfire," one resident of the coast town of Tyre told visiting reporters.

Rabbi Shapiro leads the casket of Augie Ratner at his funeral.

Augie would've liked his big funeral crowd

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Augie Ratner had his long-planned funeral Friday and the rabbi who presided said he could imagine Augie watching from another world, chomping on a Havana cigar and muttering "Not bad, not bad."

He contributed to hospitals, bought bicycles for poor kids and was liked and admired for his good nature and generosity. He died in a nursing home Wednesday, apparently of a heart attack. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

Eight years ago, Ratner, a fun-loving, good-hearted ex-boxer and bar owner, was so curious about how many people would attend his funeral he ran an ad in a newspaper asking who planned to come, then drew up a guest list.

Friday, he packed them in at the Temple Israel. "Augie would be pleased to see all the guests who came and he would welcome with a grin those who didn't make reservations," said Rabbi Max Shapiro.

"Who knows. He may be somewhere with a big Havana cigar in his mouth, saying, 'Not bad, not bad.'"

Augie ran one of the last strip joints in downtown Minneapolis until he refused to accept a buy-out offer from a friend of celebrities and unknowns.

Top brass arrested in municipal sweep

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (UPI) — New Britain's police chief, fire chief, and another top city official have been arrested as a result of a grand jury investigation into alleged municipal corruption.

A police sergeant and a deputy fire chief were also taken into custody Thursday and a warrant was issued for the arrest of a police captain who has been on indefinite leave since last year.

The investigation is centered on the alleged sale of promotions in the police and fire departments.

Arrested on a variety of counts were Police Chief Thomas Ormsby, Fire Chief Raymond Gafati, police Detective Sgt. George Sabadi, Deputy Fire Chief Robert Hackett and Civil Service Commission Chairman Frederick Haddad.

Chief State's Attorney Austin McGulgan said a warrant also was issued for the arrest of Edward Kluch, captain of detectives.

Ormsby was charged with one count of perjury and released on a written promise to appear in Superior Court in Hartford next Tuesday. The other four were all released on bail ranging from $15,000 to $2,000 and ordered to appear at the same time.

Wallace rejects segregation

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace said Friday he realized — after his famous stand in the schoolhouse door — that segregation was wrong and that his political career was not founded on racism.

Wallace said his political life was built around his opposition to big government. "After we lost the legal battles, we figured out it wasn't good," he said in an interview with UPI. "It (segregation) will never come back and everyone who thinks so is just mistaken."

Twenty-one percent of our people are just not going to live in a segregated fashion and I can understand their feelings," he added. "I still oppose government policies of quota and personal quotas. I think we ought to have absolute freedom of choice and if it requires them to be bused, then provide the transportation, whether they're black or white or red or yellow." When he was growing up in Alabama, Wallace said most people believed segregation "was in the best interest of everybody concerned."

Begin's hospital stay over

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Sporting a new pair of tinted glasses, Prime Minister Menachem Begin came home Friday from 15 days in the hospital and pronounced himself fit and fortunate the stroke he suffered was small and not crippling.

Begin left Haddassah Hospital by automobile for at least a week of rest at home on doctors' orders. He will be 66 Aug. 13 but planned to observe the birthday with his family Saturday.

Alides said Begin will not preside at Sunday's Cabinet meeting, which will discuss "what angry, Israeli officials view as a U.S. swing toward the 'Palestine Liberation Organization.'"

Begin suffered a heart attack in March 1977, and had been hospitalized periodically for exhaustion. He has limited himself to vacations of only two or three days.

Birds of Prey expansion draws fire

By UPI and the Times News
BOISE (UPI) — Bird lovers and real estate developers, some warring over the land, packed a Boise hearing room Thursday night to voice their opinions on the Bureau of Land Management's proposed expansion of the Birds of Prey National Area.
Under the proposal, 719,914 acres of federal, state and private land in Ada, Owyhee and Elmore counties would be designated by Congress as the Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area.
Of that total 515,257 acres are federally owned, 43,619 acres are state owned and 161,037 acres are privately owned.
The proposal would prohibit further conversion within the world famous sanctuary, of public lands to private farms under the Desert Land Entry and the Carey Act programs. But the proposal would allow existing uses of the land, such as grazing, to continue.
Kenneth Robinson, a state senator from Boise and publisher of the Idaho Citizen, supported the expansion by saying 160,000 acres in the area had already been developed and that studies had shown that most of the impact of the development of new lands is negative.

"Pumping from the Snake River would deplete water supplies resulting in less electricity," Robinson said. "We would have to pay higher rates to make up for it."
The subsidy (to new Carey Act and Desert Land Entry farmers) would be enormous.
He said Idaho farmers would suffer because increased land development meant increased farm output.
"Idaho farmers suffer from depressed prices now," he said.
More land development would also decrease the amount of rangeland available for grazing, he said.
Presently there are 320 Desert Land Act and 40 Carey Act applications filed on lands within the proposed enlarged sanctuary.
Support for the enlarged bird sanctuary also came from the Idaho Cattlemen's Association. President Bill Swan, of Rogerson, said his group endorsed the expansion if amendments were included to maintain the 66 grazing permits presently allowed in the area.
Steven Payne, Boise, Idaho representative of the Wildlife Society, said he "failed to understand how any development interest could come before this group in opposition to this."

"This is not a land grab," Payne said. "This land is administered by the BLM for the nation's benefit, not for just a few."
He cited the national outcry when the Bald Eagle neared extinction, and asked "must we wait until all the birds of prey are near extinction before we act?"
"He said farm development caused increased nest abandonment and the use of agricultural insecticides would endanger the birds."
"The public would receive a mere stipend for the land and be held responsible for the additional energy needed by irrigators," Payne said.
But Rayola Jacobson of Grand View said she lived one-half mile from the area and saw "the raptors come into the valley and feed over the irrigated land."
Boise State University professor of geology Mont Warner expressed concern for the possible petroleum deposits beneath the area and how they might be removed without endangering the birds.
He said data he had gathered indicated there was a "strong possibility that large reserves of oil and gas lie under the area."

But according to the proposed enlargement plan, existing mining claims, leases and permits would not be affected by establishing the conservation area.
Opposition to the enlargement also came from Southwest Idaho Developers Association President Jack Streeter, who said his organization realized that raptors needed protection, but "the problem is this — how much land is necessary to do this?"
Vernon Ravenscroft warned the proposed expansion of the Birds of Prey National Area might give the BLM power to impose "flow regulations on the entire Snake River system."
Testifying in behalf of the Idaho Carey Act Development Association, Ravenscroft said while the BLM seeks protection for raptors, its environmental impact statement contains "broad language on fish management, while sturgeon protection and water flow control."
"That language, coupled with the 'implied water rights doctrine' recently enunciated by the federal solicitor's office, could mean a total elimination of stream flows within the Birds of Prey sanctuary," he said.

Rupert sewer system

Another break ends bad week

By MARY V. TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer
RUPERT — Rupert's $6.5 million sewage treatment plant ended this week pretty much as it started — in a sewer with city officials and residents.
The system suffered another malfunction Friday, resulting in sewage escaping into the city drainage ditching system, which resulted from a broken pipe connecting the pipe to a pump in pump station 2.
That station has been a source of several problems this week. Most notable among them was an incident Saturday in which a broken pipe allowed sewage to flood the station.
"That forced the diversion of several million gallons of partially treated sewage into the Snake River. The area's largest employer, Magic Valley Foods, closed down Monday to keep pressure on the city system."
City crews had just finished repairing pump station 2, when an inspector Thursday found a main diversion box on a 75-acre lagoon revealed a possible pending disaster.
Crews found leaks from three metal corrugated pipes leading into the box. Subsequently water was eating away at the lagoon dike.
Crews were still at it Friday afternoon examining what may have been another leaking pipe.
An evaluation report prepared by CH2M Hill voiced concern about the use of corrugated pipe noting possible water seal problems inherent in that type of pipe.
But apparently the pipe joints were also leaking.
Rupert city engineer Don Courtright Friday said the corrugated pipe would be replaced with a high pressure plastic pipe made of polyvinylchloride (PVC).
A possible disaster was avoided, but for some, it was a very close call.

Rupert Mayor W. F. "Bill" Whitton said the dike may have collapsed, allowing millions of gallons of treated sewage to escape into the city drainage ditching system in a matter of days.
A similar incident occurred March 16. Whitton believes the two may have been related.
"Crews on the scene Friday pointed to a six-inch depression in the dike made by a climbing tractor."
One estimated the dike may have collapsed within a week.
As has been the case so often, officials hope this may be the end of their problems. But that optimism was probably lost several malfunctions and months ago.
The best Rupert officials can hope for now is assigning the fiscal responsibility.
"That is no light matter," Whitton estimates the repair bill at nearly $500,000. And repairs, unlike construction costs, have been borne completely by the city.
Another problem is the drain of resources the sewage plant places on city programs. One city water crew member estimated his visits this year to the plant consuming about 30-40 workdays. And he said that type of drain is certain to affect the city's water projects.
Whitton, for one, is getting tired of it. Despite the fact that he was elected mayor of the project, he began, and despite his vocal opposition to it, his administration has been added with what of the problems.
"What action the mayor and the city take now is an open question," Whitton said Thursday he will be consulting city council members and others before drawing up a game plan.
He added little on that topic will be made public for at least 30 days.
Some are probably wondering if another plant problem will wait that long.

Shooting victim identified

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls youth who died of accidental gunshot wounds Thursday afternoon was identified Friday by Police Chief Tim Qualls as Kevin Smalley, 17, who resided at 456 Second Ave. N. in Twin Falls.
Smalley died shortly after 4:30 p.m. after being injured at 1526 Bel Air Circle. Police reported Smalley and a number of other boys were in the basement of a home at that address when the accident occurred.
The boys were removing a scope from a .22 caliber rifle, police said. Officers said Wayne Smalley, about 15, younger brother of the victim, then took the gun to empty the chamber. He had removed a spent round and was removing the remaining live rounds when the gun discharged. Officers said the weapon was pointed toward the couch where Kevin Smalley was lying at the time. The bullet entered the lower right rib cage area.
Others who were in the basement at the time included Rodney Easter, Greg Gillman and Greg Anderson, about the same age as the victim.
Acting Coroner Gordon Annis said the death has been ruled accidental and no inquest will be held. He said the young man died shortly after the fatal shooting at the home at 1526 Bel Air Circle.
Smalley was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smalley of Buhl and was a former resident of Buhl. He had attended school there and in Hagerman, Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl is in charge of arrangements.

Rangeland burns

SHOSHONE — Two grass and brush fires Friday night burned about 565 acres near Shoshone before Bureau of Land Management crews controlled the blazes.
Both fires were apparently man-caused, BLM Shoshone district fire dispatcher Roger Kelley said.
The larger fire, located eight miles northeast of Shoshone, burned about 600 acres. The fire started about 5 p.m. and was controlled by 8 p.m.

In the valley

Joy riding charged

TWIN FALLS — One adult and two juveniles have been charged with "joy riding" by Twin Falls police in connection with the reports of nine missing motorcycles.
Police Chief Tim Qualls said Vernon Hudelson, 19, and two juveniles, ages 16 and 17, all of Twin Falls, have been taken into custody following investigation of the missing motorcycles. Qualls said all of the cycles were recovered. They were apparently taken from homes of the owners, used briefly and then abandoned in exchange for others.
All three suspects were scheduled to appear in court in connection with the joy riding charges. Qualls said the misdemeanor charge is necessary where there is no evidence to indicate the vehicle was taken with the intent of depriving the owner of its use.

Boy, babysitter injured

TWIN FALLS — Two persons were treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Thursday following a two car accident at Fifth Avenue West and Second Street West.
Ronald B. Robinson, about 5, was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Linda Eller. Linda Eller, 24, and the driver were taken to the hospital for treatment of injuries and the little boy was kept overnight for observation.
City police said the Burk vehicle and one driven by Lyle Fredrick Kiser, 40, of Filer, collided at the intersection about 4:30 p.m. Kiser was cited for failure to yield right of way. He was traveling south east on Fifth Avenue West, and the small car driven by Miss Burk was headed northeast on Second Street West.

Car, bicycle collide

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls boy was injured Friday when his bicycle entered the path of an approaching car. Twin Falls Police said.
James G. Blackmeyer, 12, of Twin Falls, suffered a fractured ankle and extensive lacerations from the accident, Twin Falls Ambulance attendants said.

Blackmeyer was northbound on Fourth Street North. He apparently failed to stop at the stop sign on Fourth Street at Addison Avenue and ran into the path of a 1971 Datsun driven by Michael Dickson, 24, of Kimberly, police said.
Dickson was headed east on Addison Avenue.
The boy was taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he was listed in good condition.

Grazing hearing scheduled

WASHINGTON — Senate hearings into Bureau of Land Management grazing practices are set for Aug. 24 in Hailley, Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said Friday.
The hearings to be conducted by the Senate Appropriations Committee will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Wood River Senior High School.
Testimony will be taken from officials of the BLM, representatives of farming and livestock organizations, state and local elected officials and private citizens.
"The BLM is drafting Environmental Impact Statements on 212 grazing units in the western states. Three have been drafted in Idaho so far, two of which would cause cutbacks in livestock grazing of over 70 percent to some ranchers," McClure said.
"As a member of the Appropriations Committee, I requested these hearings to determine exactly how the BLM is using the money we give them. The taxpayer is spending millions so the BLM can draft these environmental statements," McClure said.

Hollister awarded grant

WASHINGTON — Hollister has been awarded a $17,000 grant to provide additional financing of its new domestic water project.
The grant was approved by the Farmer's Home Administration, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, announced Thursday.
The new funding supplements an earlier loan of $90,000 and two grants totaling $94,300.

Bliss port gets equipment

BOISE (UPI) — In-motion vehicle weighing equipment will be installed under Interstate 80N near the Bliss Port of Entry next week, the state Transportation Department said Friday.
The automated unit, to be located 1,000 yards from the port's weigh station, will have the capacity to count vehicles, determine gross and individual weights on tandem axles as well as the axle spacing and speed of a vehicle.
By determining the volume of traffic plus the types and weights of vehicles, the department said it will be able to forecast pavement life and plan pavement designs to reduce costs and save energy.
The weigh-in-motion program also is meant to speed up delays for truckers at weigh stations.
Officials said the equipment near the Bliss station will undergo a year-long series of tests to determine its accuracy.

Drivers spurn seat belts

BOISE (UPI) — It appears drivers in Boise have the edge over Twin Falls motorists in concern for personal safety.
A four-city study recently conducted by the Idaho Association of Women Highway Safety Leaders indicates that of more than 1,400 Boise drivers observed, 87 were buckled up. The study showed 25 of 674 drivers in Twin Falls strapped themselves in.
Forty of 186 front-seat passengers put on seat belts in Boise, while four of 332 passengers in Twin Falls did.
Drivers and passengers in Couer d'Alene and Idaho Falls put on their seat belts at a rate falling between Boise's high and Twin Falls' low.
Combined figures show that 7 percent of the drivers in Idaho use seat belts.
The Idaho Transportation Department, meantime, says the value of using safety restraints has been reinforced by an analysis of 1976 through 1978 motor vehicle accident reports.
The analysis indicated that a higher percentage of persons ejected from vehicles are killed or suffer incapacitating injuries than those who are not ejected and that the chance of being ejected from a vehicle as a result of a traffic crash is greater if seat belts are not used.

Fire destroys mobile home

BUHL — A Buhl man was homeless Friday after fire destroyed his mobile home, Buhl firemen said.
No injuries were reported.
The structure, owned by George Timmers of Buhl, caught on fire about 5:30 p.m. Seven firemen from the Buhl Fire Department arrived at the scene located about one mile north of Buhl shortly after.
The fire was declared out about 7 p.m.
The fire gutted the structure, Buhl fireman Raymond Larray said. No estimate of damage was available at that time, he added.
No reason for the fire was known Friday night. The case was being investigated by the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department.

Cat was not rabid

TWIN FALLS — Residents in the vicinity of Alta Drive in Twin Falls were breathing a bit easier Friday after tests at the Department of Health Laboratories in Boise revealed a cat that died Tuesday night did not die of rabies.
The cat was picked up by Animal Control Officer Keith Saville in Twin Falls Tuesday after it had bitten four persons and one dog. The biting incidents were not reported until residents in the neighborhood noticed the cat crying as if in pain and acting strange.
Officials feared the cat could have contacted rabies from a bat or rodent and if so, would have infected at least four people and one dog, and possibly other animals and children in the area.
Will Buhler, supervisor of the Health Department laboratory in Twin Falls, said he was notified Friday by the Boise laboratory officials that the cause of the cat's death was not determined but that it was not related to rabies in any way.

Group hopes to make junk into treasure through trade

BOISE (UPI) — A non-profit Idaho organization has turned a program that ideally would have one company's environmental junk into another's treasure.

Hazardous and non-hazardous waste will be sold or traded through the infant "Waste Watch" program, administered by the Western Environmental Trade Association Inc. of Idaho.

"We're pretty excited about its potential," said an executive director of state energy conservation programs. "This is a throw-away society and we can't keep going along like this for very much longer. This is a way to get it turned around."

Ms. Brinch said the state's support of the program is "moral support." She said the Office of Energy is helping the organization advertise the program and giving it technical assistance, but that no funding is involved.

The first step in the program is being taken now, said WETA-Idaho Executive Director Kent Lamberson. The organization recently began advertising the program in this month's issue of "Waste Watch," a list of wastes offered for trade or sale.

confidentially, because, Lamberson said, "Frankly, many firms don't want to be identified as generators of potentially hazardous waste."

Ms. Brinch suggested confidentially is desired because without it some firms would be revealing trade secrets.

So far, Lamberson said, he has lined up two firms who want to advertise their waste.

He said the types of waste which could be listed include wood pulp, sawdust, dried sewage, metals and various chemicals.

The benefits of the program could be a reduction in administrative costs, environmental damage and energy use, he said.

Eventually the program in Idaho could lead to an "active" waste management program, in which waste processing plants would become the central point of waste transactions. Here, the energy conservation and other benefits would increase greatly.

The "passive" WETA-Idaho program involves simply the listing of wastes and not its handling or sale. The state and other parties involved will be agreed upon by the parties involved.

"The economics are going to be a question that I can't answer," Lamberson said, indicating it is unknown how many firms will be able to make money by getting rid of trading or selling their waste.

"Basically what we are doing is offering a way for them to expose their unwanted material to the world and hope there will be a taker. If this succeeds, it will be a tremendous way to achieve energy conservation. It's just totally wide open."

He said similar programs have been established in Oregon and Washington.

Ms. Brinch said the idea for the program came from a study of industrial and commercial energy conservation in the state. "A number of people said waste exchange would be helpful," she said.

The Energy Office paid an Oregon waste management official travel to Idaho to advise the Industrial and Commerce Advisory Task Force, which approved the idea and Lamberson approved it over the state.

Ms. Brinch said the state cannot get directly involved in the program because the Freedom of Information Act would not allow the state to participate in a program of confidential nature.

She said it is too early to say whether the state some day may become involved in waste exchange and management.

Farmers may face spot diesel shortages

BOISE (UPI) — State energy officials said Thursday Idaho's fuel supply will increase slightly this month, but might experience sporadic diesel fuel shortages because August traditionally is the highest fuel consumption month.

State emergency fuel services officer Chris Smith said the effects of a diesel shortage would be worse than a gasoline shortage because motorists are able to conserve gas, while farmers and other diesel users cannot.

"We can drive less, take shorter vacations and use other methods without cutting into lifestyle,"

Smith said. "But there isn't the flexibility in diesel use as there is with gasoline. The demand is fixed so the supplies will be tighter."

Smith said agricultural diesel fuel users may go by through a harvest season, but they may not be able to top off their tanks.

Gas dealer group says credit cards accepted

POCATELLO (UPI) — Dale Willis, president of the Idaho Service Station Association, said Friday his organization has no knowledge of operators refusing credit cards and demanding cash only.

Ken Miller, manager of the Idaho Site Automobile Association, said Thursday in his weekly gasoline summary that motorists should be prepared to pay cash for purchases as there is a move to take credit cards with only cash being taken.

Willie said he didn't know where Miller obtained his information, but he has heard of it. He said if this is the case, it was an isolated incident.

He said it could stem from a misunderstanding over recent U.S. Department of Energy regulations, which said service station operators could charge for such services as providing air for tires or washing windshields.

Willie said service stations around Idaho still were providing these services free. He said some station operators get a little unhappy when motorists fill up at a self-service station and then come to their stations and ask that their air pressure be checked or windshields cleaned.

But, Willie added, they still provide the service although they wonder why a customer won't pay an extra cent or two for gasoline and get the extra service.

Forest fire jumps lines

By United Press International

Flames jumped containment lines Thursday as a week-old fire refused to die, and blasted across an additional 1,100 acres in the Challis National Forest.

Some unburned timber inside literally exploded and the fire spotted to the west, burning across an additional 1,100 acres at the Forest Service spokesman Dale Dufour. "We have 1,100 acres involved." The fire last week burned

2,250 acres, with the flare-up bringing the total to 3,350.

Dufour said 75 men were mopping up the fire Thursday afternoon when the break-out occurred under 95-degree heat, 7-percent humidity and 15-mile-per-hour wind.

"It wouldn't have made any difference if we would have had 500 men there when it happened," said Dufour, adding the fire was burning on the east side of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River in the Mortar Creek area.

"It's out of control. We're in the process of getting a lot of troops back into the fire. We built quite a good fire line overnight, anyway."

The man-caused fire that broke out July 25 had been announced contained earlier this week.

Meanwhile, Bureau of Land Management crews were cleaning up a lightning-caused fire near Castleford that had scorched 12,200 acres of range and grass-land. This fire also leaped containment lines, but firefighters contained it again Thursday evening.

Couple sues over Tetor Dam break

BOISE (UPI) — Two eastern Idaho couples have filed suit in U.S. District Court, claiming the federal government willfully refused to pay damages incurred during the 1976 Tetor Dam break.

LaVerl and Ruby Singleton have asked for nearly $123,000 in damages and Pete and Norma Angell want $121,400. They claim Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus and the Bureau of Reclamation must begin making partial payments prior to the final settlement of claims under the Tetor Dam Disaster Act of 1976.

The four claim the act requires the government to provide for the expeditious consideration and settlement of claims.

This suit is the latest in a series of lawsuits against the government over the collapse of the dam.

Couple sues over Tetor Dam break

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church said he introduced legislation requiring an exchange between the federal and state government for land necessary to maintain elk herds near Dworshak Dam.

Church said the legislation is needed because of the elk losses resulting from the construction of the dam.

The senator said Idaho owns 4,600 acres of land on the North Fork of the Clearwater River known as Smith Ridge, which are which they would be willing to exchange for Smith Ridge, Church said.

He said the two parcels of land are comparable in value despite the difference in acreage.

Church wants elk land trade

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Police officers involved in a convenience store shootout last month testified Thursday that a woman accused in the incident shot a store clerk in his head.

Sharon Price Whitte, 24, of Baker, Ore., is charged with first-degree murder and four other felony charges in the robbery.

The store clerk, Russell Whitaker, 19, did not die; but the woman is being prosecuted under a law that says a person can be tried for murder if someone is killed during the commission of a felony.

Patrick D. Hutchinson, 30, also of Baker, Ore., is under police suspicion as he and a woman, allegedly Whitte, emerged from the store with Whitaker after police had surrounded the building.

All three officers involved testified at a preliminary hearing in magistrate court that the woman shot Whitaker.

Judge William D. Jordan ordered the hearing continued in Aug. 13, when Whitaker's testimony could be heard. He is hospitalized at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise, having lost one eye as a result of the shooting and severe damage to the other.

RONALD HAMILTON
QUESTION
The home my husband and I own is mortgaged. Is it true this mortgage will be paid automatically if either of us passes away?
ANSWER
Mortgage redemption insurance is usually carried only upon the life of the husband although the wife may also be insured. Insurance for the purpose of paying off a mortgage is not automatically included in mortgage. Some lenders, however, may require coverage upon the life of the husband as a condition for making a loan. Insurance to pay off a mortgage includes both life and fire insurance. Decreasing term insurance is the most popular form of mortgage insurance and, like all life insurance, is paid to the surviving spouse, not to the mortgage holder. In this aspect, mortgage redemption insurance differs from credit life insurance which is paid directly to the lender.
Insurance carried for the purpose of paying a mortgage is not expensive and is one of the basic things a young family buying a home should investigate. Information can readily be obtained from your life insurance agent.

'Bull-baiting' denied in Scientology lawsuit

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A Scientology minister testified Wednesday that the "bull-baiting" technique used in Scientology courses are aimed at helping future ministers learn not to over-react to parishioners during pastoral counseling sessions.

help a student overcome reactions to them. He said he had seen no occurrences of "pushing a student's buttons" — exploiting guilts and sensitive subjects.

Garry McMurry, lead attorney for the plaintiff, had Cota read from a Scientology document which said in part, "The coach may say anything or do anything except leave the chair. The student's buttons can be found and trumped on."

The Rev. Jeffrey Cota's testimony contradicted earlier testimony by a witness for the plaintiff in a $6 million lawsuit against three Scientology organizations and three leaders of Scientology.

The earlier witness in trial of the suit in Multnomah County Circuit Court was Diana Morgan, a former member of Scientology who said "bull-baiting" involved verbal and physical abuse and occasionally sexual contact. She said the drills were designed to make students dependent on their instructors so it is "easier to brainwash them."

Cota said "bull baiting" involved distractions created by the coach to

Munson plane crashed after power failure

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — The fiery crash of a private jet flown by New York Yankees baseball star Thurman Munson may have been caused by a loss of engine power, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator disclosed Friday.

Air Safety Investigator Edward McAvoy, stressing that his conclusions were tentative, also said information from two passengers who survived Thursday afternoon crash indicated Munson was unable to escape the plane because he struck his head inside the cabin, when the jet first touched down.

Witnesses to the airplane crash near the Akron-Canton Regional Airport told federal investigators that they did not hear any sound from the engines as the plane approached the Akron-Canton airport, also an indication that the craft may have lost power. Munson, an All-Star catcher, lived in nearby Canton.

Other witnesses reported that the wheels of the aircraft were down for a landing, but Munson, who was at the controls of the aircraft, was starting to pull the wheels up before the crash occurred.

McAvoy said the aircraft first touched down in a field, skidded about 200 feet to a roadway, and finally stopped. "The airplane probably was burning as it stopped on the roadway."

The Summit County Coroner's office ruled Friday that Munson died of "asphyxiation from inhaling toxic substances" in the aircraft fire after the crash.

McAvoy also told reporters at a news conference a few feet from the crash scene that Munson reported a problem earlier in the Thursday flight "in which he had icing on the engine."

But Munson did not report any flight problems just prior to the crash. "Everything was normal. There was no transmission from the aircraft indicating any trouble," McAvoy said.

The investigator also noted that the weather at the time of the accident was "beautiful," and that the plane's speed before it first touched was 107 mph, 12 mph above stalling speed.

Describing the crash, McAvoy said the plane's approach was not level, with the left wheel hitting the ground first.

"He just missed a tree, indicating a very radical rate of descent. So we're concerned about power (loss)," he said.

McAvoy explained the plane's two engines would be examined by federal aircraft engine specialists to determine conclusively whether the craft actually lost power prior to the crash.

The NTSB will determine the cause of the crash.

Munson was practicing landings and testing the twin-engine Cessna Citation jet when the crash occurred.

But Munson's father-in-law, Anthony Dominick, said Munson was flying his recently purchased aircraft because it may have had some problems. He did not say what type of problems that the plane might have had.

The eight-seater plane with three on board, Munson, flight instructor David Hall, 32, and Jerry Anderson, 31, a friend of Munson's, was approaching a runway from the north.

Rescue squads and firefighters extinguished the fire and tried to rescue Munson from the cockpit of the plane. However, he was already dead when pulled from the aircraft.

The other two men were being treated at area hospitals.

Munson will be buried Monday at Sunset Hills Burial Park in Canton. The Yankees have chartered a plane to fly team members to Canton for the funeral. They will return late Monday in time for a night game with the Baltimore Orioles.

The Yankee office was swamped with telegrams and phone calls from players of the past and present and club officials in both leagues to express their sympathies.

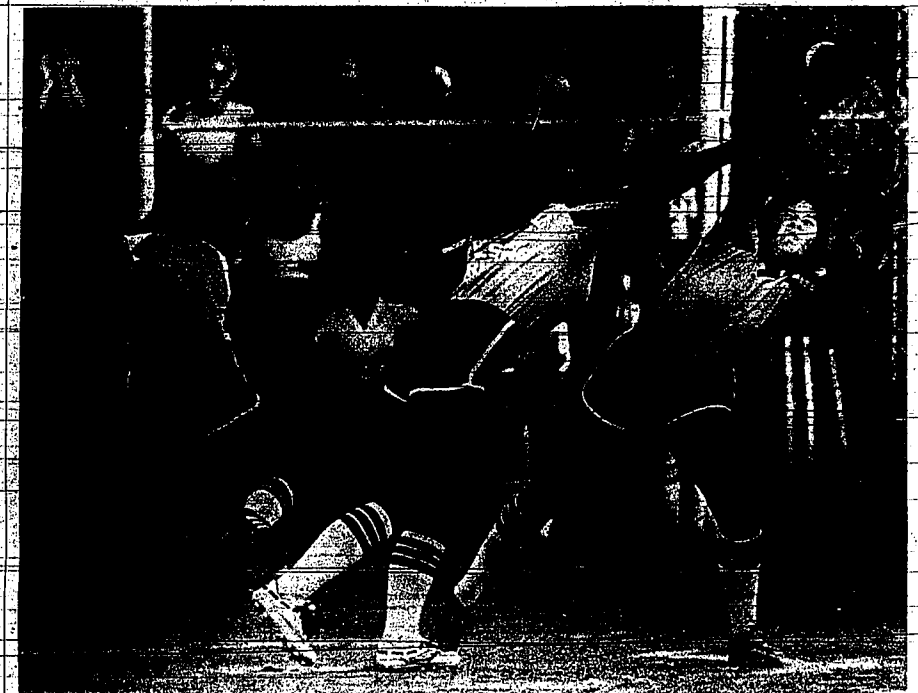

A Munson plaque will be placed on the center field wall to join other Yankee immortals — Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle, Casey Stengel, McCarthey, Ed Barrow and Jacob

There are three monuments in center field dedicated to Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Miller Huggins.

In recent years, the club referred to Mrs. Eleanor Gehrig as the first lady of the Yankees. Henceforth, all functions and special occasions, the team will refer to Mrs. Gehrig and Munson as the first lady of the Yankees.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey and New York Gov. Rockefeller Friday ordered that flags on all city and state buildings be flown at half staff on Monday in memorial to Munson.

Koch called Munson "the cornerstone" of the New York Yankees and said his death would be mourned by all New Yorkers. Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes said Munson "represented the highest qualities of American sports heroes."

Tourney ends youth baseball

League tournaments were played Thursday and Friday nights at Harmon Park to cap off a summer of youth baseball in the city.

This year also marked the first time the Kevin Hamilton Memorial Trophy was presented to the program's most inspirational player, and the award went to Curt Cramrine of the Coca Cola team in the Donut League.

Twin Falls Youth baseball in Twin Falls came to an end Friday night when Carpenters Local beat Ellis Repair 5-0 to win the Midleg League (sixth grade) Tournament.

League tournaments were played Thursday and Friday nights at Harmon Park to cap off a summer of youth baseball in the city.

This year also marked the first time the Kevin Hamilton Memorial Trophy was presented to the program's most inspirational player, and the award went to Curt Cramrine of the Coca Cola team in the Donut League.

Terry Miller of the Twin Falls City Recreation Department said the award will go each year to the player who best exemplifies the type of character displayed by Hamilton while he was a member of the youth leagues.

Results from the tournament:

In games Friday, K&T Steel beat Blue Lakes Trout Farm 2-14 to win the Park League (second grade) tournament. In the Division 2 Park League championship title, the Flying Service won the Division 1 title.

Victors downed EAR Ink 4-3 to win the Pony League (fourth grade) title. Doug Miller was home run for Victor, which also won the regular season championship.

Carpenters Imports won the Pee Wee League (sixth grade) regular season title with Dixon Park second. Deot Grill, however, came from third place to win the tournament championship.

Swansea won both the season championship and the tournament. In the Division 2 Park League championship title, the Flying Service won the Division 1 title.

After tragic death Yankee fans pay tribute to Munson

NEW YORK (UPI) — They came with handkerchiefs and tear-filled eyes and assembled by the thousands, filling Yankee Stadium and turning it into a make-shift funeral home for just a moment.

Few cared to watch the game that Thurman Munson loved so dearly. Thoughts of elusive pennants and miracle comebacks, usually a top priority among these people, were replaced by grief.

It was as if the entire crowd had absorbed a collective blow to the mid-section.

"Thurman, we'll miss you," one banner said.

"Forever in our hearts," said another.

A third simply read "15 — Thanks."

Light rain began to fall about one hour before the start of Friday night's game between New York and Baltimore, yet only a small group of people retreated to shelter. Munson's tragic death the day before had left his friends and admirers weak with sorrow.

A prayer was offered by Terrence Carroll Cooke and Robert Merrill sang "America The Beautiful."

Earlier, the Yankees attempted to take batting practice but didn't have their hearts in it. Players from both teams wore memorial bands on their left sleeves and all flags were lowered to half-mast. For 10 minutes after Cooke's prayer, the crowd stood and cheered with occasional cries of "Thurman, Thurman" arising.

An image of Munson's face was flashed on the center field scoreboard and the roars grew louder.

Long Piniella, possibly Munson's best friend on the club, kept his head bowed as the crowd sang "The Ball Game" by Red Baggett-Jackson, who wiped away a tear with the tip of his glove.

Munson sought trade to Indians

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees were discussing giving Thurman Munson his wish — that he play for the Indians — shortly before Munson was killed in a fiery plane crash Thursday.

Indians President Gabe Paul revealed that Yankees owner George M. Steinbrenner called him a few days ago and said Munson still wanted to play for the Indians.

"He wants me to try to work something out," Paul quoted Steinbrenner as saying. "Are you interested?"

"Of course," Paul replied. "Let's think about it and see what we can put together."

The All-Star catcher long had wanted to play in Cleveland while other players were mauling the ball club. Munson lived in a house nearby Canton, wanted to play for the Indians so he could be closer to home. Munson died in a plane crash near Akron-Canton Airport.

Munson was as tough as they come," said Paul, who was president of the Yankees until two years ago. "He was fearless."

"He played hurt. Oh my, how he played hurt. People don't know how much he suffered from injuries, but he refused to get out of the lineup. He was absolutely unafraid of anything. In a way, that's what killed him. Those private planes should be left to the professionals."

"He didn't get the press his ability and his ability to play the game. He was a ball player. He was a ball player. He didn't like him much because he was something out," Paul quoted Steinbrenner as saying. "Are you interested?"

"Of course," Paul replied. "Let's think about it and see what we can put together."

PGA championship tourney Crenshaw leads by one

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — Ben Crenshaw, running out of time to cash in on his "can't miss" label, burned wet Oakland Hills for the second straight day Friday with a sizzling 67 that gave him a 4-under-par 138 and a one shot lead midway through the $350,000 PGA Championship.

Crenshaw, who has far more second-place finishes than his six PGA tour wins, fashioned a 67 after an opening round 69 to take a one stroke lead over Rex Caldwell, Jay Haas and David Graham, each of whom scored 137.

Tour non-winner Caldwell was runnerup for the second straight day after adding a par 70 to his opening 67. Third-year pro Haas was 68-69 while nine-year veteran Graham reversed the rounds.

In a group of four with 138 were Alan Taple, whose 65 equaled the competitive course record, first-round leader Tom Watson, Jerry Pate and Bruce Lietzke, each of whom had twin 69s.

Watson sagged to a 7-over-par 72 after singing the damp, slow-playing 7,014-yard course for a 68 in the opening round of the chase for $60,000 in first-prize money.

Rod Pumphrey carded a 69 to join six other golfers at 139, three shots off the pace. Don January, 1967 PGA champion, Hubert Green, Graham Macrae and Artie McNickle reached that total with rounds of 69-70; Ron Streck had 69-71 and Leonard Thompson went 72-67.

A total of 18 players cracked the supposedly invincible Oakland Hills' par of 70. There were 15 par breakers in the first round.

Jack Nicklaus put a round of 73 next to his disqualified 72 and barely made the cut of 146, which qualified 74 players for the final two rounds.

Some of his fellow tour travelers weren't so fortunate. Arnold Palmer followed his opening 61 with a 74 and didn't make it. Two-time U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin flunked out with 73-75 and host pro Al Mengert missed with 76-71.

"I have to be pleased with my position and my score," Crenshaw said. "This is my first time playing Oakland Hills."

Crenshaw, 27, has so many "almosts" to his credit the word is almost part of his name. He graduated with honors to the pro ranks in 1973 and zoomed to the No. 2 spot on the money winning list in 1976 with a $257,750 total.

However the Austin, Tex., resident dropped back to 16th with earnings of $123,841 in 1977, was 21st with $108,395 last year and stands 10th so far this season with $149,549 in winnings.

Crenshaw capped his sixth tour win at the start of the season in Phoenix but has finished second-best three more times. In the Canadian Open, when he lost a playoff to Larry Nelson, in the Western and when he led Jack Nicklaus for runnerup in the recent British Open.

"I'd dearly love to win here," Crenshaw said of his bid for his first win in a major tournament. "This course has produced some great champions in the past."

"I feel like I'm playing well," he said. "I'm a firm believer that you've got to knock on the door before you can enter."

"It was kinda weird," the free-wheeling Caldwell said. "I would have felt better if I had teed off early. As it was, I sat around waiting."

"It was so long I felt like I was teeing off on Saturday," cracked the Everett, Wash., native who now golfs out of Tallahassee, Fla. "I've never teed off that late before."

"It wasn't quite the same Friday," said Caldwell, who was 67-70 for his total but played a steady second round. "I did a lot of work out there."

"I'm kind of disappointed with my play in the majors," said Graham, native of Australia who now lives in Delray Beach, Fla. "I'm a straight hitter and have good long irons. The thing you demand in a major tournament is accuracy — and that's what I play."

Landry leads Colts' win; Dolphins clip New Orleans

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Greg Landry, playing his first game for Baltimore after 11 years with the Detroit Lions, hit Reese McCall with two touchdown passes Friday night to lead the Colts to a 17-14 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in the NFL preseason opener for both teams.

In another game, Miami downed New Orleans 14-7.

Landry, traded to the Colts after last season, hit McCall with a 7-yard TD pass with 7:52 remaining in the game to cap an 14-0 lead.

Landry, who hit 14 of 20 passes for 126 yards, also connected with McCall for a 17-yard touchdown in the third quarter. Baltimore's other points came on a 60-yard field goal by Tom Lindart in the first quarter.

Cleveland-Franklin scored on a 1-yard run and Billy Campfield added a 5-yard TD run for the Eagles.

Ron Jaworski, who played only the first half, completed 6-of-17 passes for 110 yards and directed both Eagles' scoring drives.

Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones, who missed all but three games last season with an injured shoulder, played two offensive series in the first quarter and completed 5-of-7 passes for 61 yards.

His 30-yard completion to Randy Burke on the Colts' first possession moved Baltimore to the Eagles' 14, but the drive stalled at the 6-yard line and the Colts settled for Lindart's field goal with 9:19 left in the first quarter.

Jaworski started Philadelphia's first scoring drive with a 41-yard punt to Harold Carmichael that put the Eagles on the Colts' 20. An offside penalty against Philadelphia's first scoring drive with a 41-yard punt to Harold Carmichael that put the Eagles on the Colts' 20. An offside penalty against Baltimore moved the ball to the 19. Herbert Montgomery needed three carries to take the ball to the 1 yard line. Campfield scored on his second try two seconds into the second quarter.

Philadelphia's Frank Bicknauer recovered a fumble by Ron Darrk off Colts' 28 on the 14 following kickoff. The Eagles followed to the 14 before Nick Mike-Mayer missed a 31-yard field goal attempt.

Baltimore's generosity was not repaid, however, as Herm Edwards intercepted Landry's first pass as a Colt and returned to the Baltimore 31. Jaworski's 29-yard pass to Keith Kreffe and a personal foul against Sanders Shiber moved the Eagles to the 5-yard line. Campfield took it in from there for the score with 5:58 left in the second half. The Colts' first scoring drive was capped by Guy Benjamin hit Miami Cefalo for a 21-yard pass early in the fourth quarter, then connected with the young receiver on a 7-yard scoring pass two plays later Friday night to give the Miami Dolphins a 14-7 triumph over New Orleans in the preseason opener for both teams.

After a shanked, 19-yard punt by Gabe Ratter, a draft choice, Russell Erbeben of Texas, the Dolphins took over on the New Orleans 33 early in the fourth quarter with the score tied 7-7.

After gaining five yards on an offside penalty, Benjamin found Cefalo on the right sidelines for a 21-yard gain to the New Orleans 7-yard line. Two plays later, the two second-year men combined again for a 7-yard pass caught in the middle of the end zone.

New Orleans had opened the scoring in the first quarter when quarterback Archie Manning, the NFL's Offensive Player of the Year in 1978, scrambled over from the 1-yard line.

The lonely life of a pro athlete's wife

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a three-part series.

By SANDRA L. LATIMER
United Press International

Being married to an athlete or a coach can be a lonely life.

When relief pitcher Doug Bair and the rest of the Cincinnati Reds are on road trips, Bair's young wife, Connie, sometimes drives a 12-hour round trip to West Virginia to be with her parents.

Jeanline Duncan, wife of former Cleveland Indians catcher and now bullpen coach Dave Duncan, worked at her college degree and now awaits the birth of their first child.

Other wives have children to occupy their time while a few have full-time jobs.

Sandra Burson, wife of Jim Burson, basketball coach at Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio, at times uses her experience in her 35 years of married life to counsel wives of assistant coaches.

"Many assistants' wives come to me complaining about their husband being away so much," she said. "But I just tell them, 'We know where they are, what they're doing and it's healthy. It's something they want to do and I know they'll be home sooner or later.'"

Kathleen McNamara, wife of Cincinnati Reds Manager John McNamara, says when a husband has a profession like this, "You have to be able to be in charge of everything, assume total responsibility of the children, home, money. There is no division that 'this is your job and this is mine.'"

Connie and Doug Bair have been married less than two years. The first year they were married, Connie, admitting she was the "biggest coward you ever saw," spent the road trips with her parents in West Virginia.

"I didn't know too many people in Cincinnati, so instead of staying home and being scared, I went to visit my family. But this year I've done better," she said. "We've bought a house and there are more responsibilities. But it still gets lonely and Doug calls quite a lot, but those long distance calls put a strain on the budget."

The Duncans have been married for five years and have done "a lot of moving — from Cleveland to Oakland, back to Cleveland, to Baltimore, to Tucson where they have a permanent home. They lived in Dallas one year and in Chicago for a while.

"If you want to know how to move, ask a ballplayer's wife," she laughed. "I need 12 hours for my BA degree. You won't believe how many schools I've been in. I enroll for a few hours wherever Dave is."

Bonnie Anderson, wife of Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson, doesn't really mind the loneliness, being kept busy with four-year-old Matt and eight-month-old Megan.

"If he had a 9 to 5 job, I would have a tendency to take him for granted, and he would, too," she said. "When he comes home, I'm really glad to see him. It makes me appreciate him more. It's nice to be away from one another, although the four-year-old misses his daddy."

Players and coaches are away from home for training camp, practice and road trips. Some are gone for speaking engagements, promotions and special clinics and camps.

Leslie Griffin, wife of Cincinnati Bengals running back Archie Griffin, says "it's always lonely" with Archie working in the off-season, doing promotional jobs and clinics and keeping in shape.

The Griffins maintain a home in Columbus, Ohio, and an apartment in Cincinnati for six months during the season. Even though the Bengals practice at Wilmington College in Wilmington, Ohio, near Cincinnati, she doesn't see her husband much at that time.

"I've don't have too much time even then to spend with their families," she said.

She often wishes Archie would spend more time with family-oriented activities and with their two young sons, Anthony and Andre.

But the Griffins do find time for picnics together and socializing with friends and playing cards, "but we don't play as partners — not many husbands and wives do."

Elaine Williams, wife of former major league pitcher and now Columbus, Ohio, Clippers pitching coach Stan Williams, has a hard time getting her husband to understand she doesn't want to work.

"She had a small job when they were married when he was with the Los Angeles Dodgers. Now that their children are grown, I have no desire to work, although Stan keeps asking me if I'm sure I don't want to get a job. I really don't have a profession or career, so I do a lot of reading and making afghans."

Kessinger can still play ball

CHICAGO (UPI) — Don Kessinger, who resigned as manager of the Chicago White Sox Thursday, has been placed on the restricted list and is still eligible to be an active player this season, team officials said Friday.

Players are put on the restricted, or inactive list, for unusual reasons and as such are still eligible to play ball, a spokesman for the club said. He emphasized that Kessinger only retired as manager, not as a player for the club.

However, the Sox have called up shortstop Harry Chappas from Iowa to fill in Kessinger's spot on the roster.

Kessinger, 37, Thursday ended a noble experiment as player-manager and announced he was leaving both spots. He said he planned to return home to Memphis, Tenn., "to sort things out." He will be paid for the remainder of the season unless he signs with another club as player.

At Harmon Park District softball tourney to end

TWIN FALLS — The four remaining undefeated teams in men's district softball action will square off this afternoon at Harmon Park as the annual tournaments draw to a conclusion this weekend.

Irving's Red Hots of Sun Valley will face Snake-River Tire of Twin Falls in the A tournament semifinals at 12:30 p.m. with Basterrechea of Gooding playing Big-O-Tire-of-Buhl in the B semifinals at 2 p.m. Wrapped around the semifinal games will be a full day of losers' bracket games beginning at 10 a.m. Today's final game is set for 7:30 p.m.

Still alive in the A tournament are Independent Meat-of-Twin-Falls, Club 93-Twin Falls Merchants of Twin Falls, Century 21 of Ketchum and K's-K & W Masonry of Rupert.

In the B tournament, Ramsey Heating of Burley, R & R Lounge of Buhl, Kurtz of Wendell and Hawkins of Buhl are still hanging on with one loss.

Ramsey's will play R & R Lounge at 10 o'clock this morning followed by Kurtz and Hawkins. All games will be played on Diamond 1.

Rams, Raiders to preview season opener this evening

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The defending AFC West champion Los Angeles Rams begin their pre-season schedule tonight at the Coliseum against the Oakland Raiders in a preview of the regular season opener for both squads.

The Raiders defeated the Dallas Cowboys, 20-13, last weekend in the Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio. Los Angeles and Oakland will meet Sept. 2 in the season opener.

The Rams were 12-4 last year and captured their sixth NFC West title. It will be their first game under new majority owner Georgia Rosenbloom, widow of Carroll Rosenbloom who drowned April 2 while swimming in Florida.

Ram coach Ray Malavasi said he plans to substitute freely against the Raiders. Much of his attention will be focused on the largest and probably most talented group of running backs in the club's history, including three backs returning from leg injuries.

Cullen Bryant, last year's leading rusher, will start alongside the club's all-time leading rusher, Lawrence McCutcheon, who is recovering from leg injuries that kept him on the sidelines much of last season. Test their timing in game conditions for the first time since knee surgery last year will be the highly touted tandem of Elvis Peacock and Wendell Tyler.

Pat Haden will start at quarterback but Malavasi will also use backup Vince Ferrerama. Backup quarterbacks Jeff Rutledge and Dan Kendra also may see action.

The Raiders will play their first game under new coach Tom Flores, who replaced John Madden during the off-season. The Raiders struggled to a 2-7 record under Madden last year, their worst season since 1964. They had made the playoffs in each of the six previous years.

Ken Stabler, who reported late to the Raiders training camp, will see his first game action against the Rams. He will play the first quarter and a bit more, Flores said. Jim Plunkett and David Humm will divide the rest of the time.

In last week's game against the Cowboys, interceptions by Charles Phillips and Clarence Duren set up two Errol Mann field goals to provide Oakland's margin of victory. Humm started and completed six of 12 passes for 69 yards. Art Whittingham scored one touchdown on a 1-yard run and rookie Henry Williams ran 63 yards for the other Oakland touchdown.

scored the game's only touchdown on a 16-yard draw play on Seattle's first possession of the game. Sims was the leading game's ground-gainer with 101 yards on 11 carries.

The Vikings scored all of their points on field goals, two by Rick Danneker and one by Tom March. Tommy Kramer, starting in place of the injured Fran Tarkenton, hit 14-of-28 passes for 154 yards but could not get Minnesota into the end zone.

Herrera's try for extra points after Sims' touchdown was blocked but on Seattle's next possession he hit a 20-yard field goal to give the Seahawks a 9-0 lead with 7:10 left in the first quarter.

Hollins doesn't think Blazers will keep him

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Lloyd Hollins, one of the premier guards in the NBA, says he doesn't think he'll be playing at Portland this coming season because he believes the club is anxious to trade him to a possibly power forward Maurice Lucas to.

"Personally, I prefer playing in Portland," Hollins said. "But whether the Blazers know I do not know. I almost was traded to Chicago just before the collegiate player draft. If they do trade me, I hope the better, because I would rather they do it now than wait until September and into training camp."

Hollins, who will be entering the final year of his five-year contract in the next season, would become free agent at the end of next season unless a new agreement is signed. He said last season he would have liked to renegotiate his agreement but that wasn't done.

"I know the Blazers know what I want, and they might not think I'm worth it," he said. "So they say 'we have him for a year,' then he'll be gone at no compensation, so why not trade him now, when we can get something?"

The former Arizona State star has a partial no-trade clause in his agreement that he would not be traded without his permission to any team in a cold weather climate. His permission is required, he said, for his trade to Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Buffalo or Cleveland. "But I would have gone to Chicago."

He says he and Lucas both appear to be in the same position, but acknowledges the Blazers have a different situation at power forward with Michael Thompson. "I've been with him with a broken left leg, suffered last Monday while playing basketball with the national team of his native Bahamas."
