

Crew stranded near Primitive Area fire

CHALLIS, Idaho (UPI) — About 100 firefighters from California national forests were stranded 15 miles from a more than 600-acre man-caused fire burning in the Challis National Forest Friday when heavy clouds of smoke grounded helicopter transportation into the rugged terrain.

Plans to have firefighters on the lines by nightfall were cancelled late in the day when smoke-blackened skies did not clear as expected. Light winds kept the fire within a line built on the northern edge of the blaze but also hampered crew transportation to the flaming timber located about six miles from the site of this summer's 35,000-acre Mortar Creek fire.

Challis forest planner Gordon Reid said crews from the Shasta, Mendocino and Trinity national forests in California were stranded at fire base camp at Indian Creek throughout the day. He said they were frustrated to learn that flames licked heavy timber along the southern boundary of the blaze, threatening to spread if night temperatures and humidity did not slow the fire's advance.

Reid said 23,000 gallons of retardant dropped on the fire Friday kept "hot spots" from spreading, as did the dosing with 40,000 gallons of the chemical Thursday. He said the aerial battle against the blaze was successful, but noted that fire strategists are eager to place the total of 149 awaiting firefighters on the lines.

The 48 firefighters — most of them smokejumpers from LaGrande, Ore., California and Boise — dropped from aircraft into the area Thursday and continued to be the only ground crews on the lines throughout Friday, Reid said.

"They've been working more than 24 hours now," Reid said Friday night. "They're tired and dirty. I just hope we can get some relief to them Saturday."

Challis information officer Jim James said firefighters still face the possibility that the out-of-control flames could sear several thousand acres before the fire is brought under control.

The man-caused fire was spotted

Thursday morning, licking trees in a 15-acre section on Norton Ridge, near the still-black earth that was scorched by the Mortar Creek blaze.

Before a fire-control effort could be launched, the fire, termed the Norton Ridge blaze, spread to 100 acres. By nightfall it consumed 430 acres of commercial-grade timber.

The base camp was set up about 15 miles southwest of the fire at Indian Creek, where fire boss Gordon Stevens and a fire management crew continued to map a firefighting strategy late Friday, James said.

The Big Baldy lookout crews spotted the fire about 8 a.m. Thursday. It started about two miles from the Norton Creek lookout which is closed for the season.

James said smokejumpers were flown to the fire immediately but, like the large Mortar Creek fire, it is burning in extremely steep, tough terrain that is heavily timbered.

Four additional crews were called and it had been hoped about 148 men would be on the firelines by Friday night. Because of smoke and other conditions these crews were not able to reach the Indian Creek headquarters until late Friday afternoon.

Only 22 fresh fire fighters could be taken to the fireline before flights were canceled.

Only 60 firefighters were available for Friday night including 38 men who had been on the line for some 24 hours, forest officials said.

James said the exact cause of the fire is under investigation but there is no question but that it was man-caused.

He said the public should be aware of the extremely serious conditions in all area forests this fall because of the long dry and hot periods experienced this summer.

Any opportunity, he said, a serious forest-fire or-rain fire can start.

In terrain such as the Norton Creek Ridge it is extremely difficult to control a fire once it gets a good start, he warned.

Tractor-like machine lays underground telephone cable where none has been before* outside Murphy Hot Springs near the Bruneau River canyon

Lines laid for Murphy, Three Creek

Where no phone has ever gone before

By BEN MEKEL-WAY
Times-News writer

MURPHY-HOTSPRINGS — By Thanksgiving this tiny community of mobile homes along the east fork of the Bruneau River will lose a bit of its isolation.

And 23 secluded cattle ranches tucked away in the desert draws between this resort and the town of Rogerson, about 50 miles to the east, will also feel a little closer to the rest of the world.

After a century without a busy signal, the Three Creek area will soon have telephone service.

Friday evening the new Rural Telephone Co. dropped a cable over the canyon rim and down into "the hot hole," local slang for the town around the springs. For the past week, a huge tractor-like cable-laying machine has been creeping 11 miles westward from the Three Creek school, burying a continuous underground cable. When it finishes next week, the crew, from the Burley firm of J.D. Dayley & Sons, will have sown 37 miles of their new technology.

After the cable is extended to ranches east of the one-room schoolhouse, an automatic switchboard will be installed in the school's garage, according to Thomas Irwin, the California telephone engineer who formed the independent telephone company and heads the project.

"Although Irwin said neighbors along the line should be able to call each other by late November, he added that it will probably be next year before his customers can reach anyone else.

For long-distance service, the company must tap into the Bell System with a microwave transmitter to be mounted on Signal Butte and powered by wind-generated electricity.

As soon as the local system is operational, Irwin can apply to the Federal Communications Commission for a microwave license. The waiting period for that license will be the main cause of the delay, Irwin said.

Irwin and his wife Wilma live in Sacramento, Calif., where Irwin works for the Rural Electrification Administration. Although he has supervised REA telephone projects, he and Mrs. Irwin have taken on the Three-Creek project as their own business. REA officials introduced the ranchers to Irwin last year. The agency turned down the ranchers' loan request because the system will have too few customers.

Irwin originally estimated the total cost of the system at $110,000, but he now says inflation will probably drive the figure higher. After the Idaho Public Utilities Commission granted Irwin's company a Certificate of Convenience and Necessity in June, Twin Falls Bank and Trust loaned his company $50,000. Each customer has also loaned Irwin $500 toward the project. And many have contributed their own time to planning the system.

"The farmers have been terrific," said Mrs. Irwin. "We couldn't have done it without them. They're all such nice people. I can't get over it."

Rancher Chet Brackett will do "touch up work" on the underground cable after the Irwins return to California next week. Randall Brewer, another Three-Creek rancher and president of the Magic Valley Cattlemen's Association, will oversee the system after its completion. Irwin said he is looking for a local retired telephone repairman who could be on call in case complicated repairs are needed.

Mrs. Irwin will handle the billing from her Sacramento home.

During the cable-laying, the Irwins are living in their travel trailer at Murphy Hot Springs.

Next spring Irwin will mail questionnaires to residents of Jarbidge, Nev., asking if they want the system extended to them. If the response is favorable, Irwin said, he will start the application process through the Nevada Public Utilities Commission.

Service to Jarbidge would probably require another microwave transmitter on a nearby hilltop, he said, since telephone poles are too costly and the road to the Nevada outpost is too rocky for an underground cable.

Connally: return land to states

DENVER (UPI) — Republican presidential aspirant John Connally Friday endorsed the "Sagebrush Rebellion" and proposed the return of the millions of acres of federally owned western land to state control.

Connally, campaigning in a region where President Carter's popularity has sunk and speaking on an issue close to the hearts of many officials, said the federal government owns more than 60 percent of the land west of the Rocky Mountains.

"The lands (under federal control) are available for Western jobs, for Western industry, for Western places of residence, land owned and managed by faraway bureaucrats who comprehend neither Western attitudes nor concerns," he said.

Speaking first at a $200-a-plate fund-raising breakfast, then to a news conference and later to a realtors group in Colorado Springs, the former Texas governor said he supported the move to return federal lands to state control.

"The 'Sagebrush Rebellion' started in Nevada and has gained popularity in other western states with heavy federal land ownership. Connally said he would propose legislation to transfer large parcels of land to the 13 most affected states.

"To those who denounce the merits of the 'Sagebrush Rebellion,' to those who question its need, I would simply point north to Alaska, the longtime whipping boy of economic liberals, of environmental purists," he said.

He said federal ownership of land in Nevada and has gained popularity in other western states with heavy federal land ownership. Connally said he would propose legislation to transfer large parcels of land to the 13 most affected states.

"If the federal government wishes to utilize Western lands, let it buy them. And let the taxpayers from all 50 states equally divide the cost. The West was never intended to serve as a playground for the rest of America."

The federal land ownership and preservation of large tracts as wilderness was counterproductive to the goal of energy self-sufficiency, Connally said. He said the proposed Energy Mobilization Board was another example of usurping local control.

"They just demand more (coal and oil). They don't understand the West," he said.

Connally's opposition to new western projects although additional water supplies would be needed for energy development.

Despite economic downturn

Unemployment rate drops unexpectedly

© The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate fell unexpectedly from 8 percent in August to 7.8 percent in September, despite a slowdown in economic growth, the Department of Labor reported Friday.

The surprising, although slight, decline in joblessness came as the total number of Americans at work rose by a record-high 67,513,000.

Most government and private economists have been predicting that a surge in unemployment would accompany a business recession. But Department of Labor experts said there was no sign yet of any serious weakness on the job front.

"The employment situation strengthened in September," Janet L. Norwood, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, told a congressional Joint Economic Committee hearing on the employment report. She said the latest figures were part of the "mixed signals" on the direction of the economy.

On the national scene, virtually all of the reduction in unemployment since August occurred among adult women, mainly married women, and part-time workers. Jobless rates for adult men, teen-agers and full-time workers remained the same.

There has been a slowdown in the growth of employment in the last six months — the number of jobs has climbed by 2.5 million since September, 1978, while unemployment has remained fairly steady around the 5.8 percent level in the last 12 months.

The Carter administration has forecast a rise in the jobless rate to 6.6 percent by the end of the year, which would mean an additional 800,000 persons on the unemployment rolls.

Some private economists have issued even gloomier forecasts of 7 percent or 8 percent unemployment in the months ahead.

For example, Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates,

Inc., a non-profit group associated with the University of Pennsylvania, has predicted a steady climbing joblessness to a peak of 7.8 percent by next fall.

Unemployment in September totaled 5,985,000, compared to 6,149,000 in August. The decline reflects pressure on President Carter to endorse a tax cut or additional spending programs to counter recession-related increases in the jobless rate.

Other statistics also reflected a stronger job picture. The number of so-called "discouraged workers" — those who say they are not looking for a job because they believe none is available — dropped by 90,000 in the third quarter to 740,000.

The overall percentage of civilians employed or looking for work rose to 63.9 percent in September, matching the all-time high attained in February, and March.

The average work week and overtime hours were unchanged last month, while the average weekly earnings of rank-and-file workers rose by $1.07 to $222.50 in September, an increase of $16.61 a week compared to a year ago.

White House economists said that the September report tended to confirm administration forecasts of a mild recession and underscored that inflation is the major problem facing the country.

Good morning!

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite record interest rates and a sagging economy, Americans kept reaching for their credit cards in August, the Federal Reserve Board said Friday.

The Fed said the growth of consumer credit held steady at $2.45 billion in August, almost identical with July's $2.44 billion pace.

Slow borrowing totaled $27.58 billion in August, an increase of $23 million over the July level and the highest since May's $27.9 billion.

The biggest increase came in the revolving credit category, which includes credit cards issued by banks, gasoline companies and major department stores.

There was $787 million in revolving credit outstanding in August, an increase of $35 million from the previous month.

Meanwhile, repayment-of-old-debt totaled a record $25.14 billion, a rise of $22 million from the previous month.

At the end of August, Americans owed $299.8 billion, 15.5 percent higher than a year earlier.

There has been growing concern among some members of the administration that Americans are taking on more debt than they can handle — especially during a period of economic downturn when some jobs may be on the line.

The Federal Reserve said that if consumers continue to borrow for the next 12 months at the same pace they did in August, consumer debt will increase of a 10 percent rate for the year compared with 19 percent for 1978.

Comptroller of the Currency John Hamilton sent letters to the more than 4,000 national banks last month warning of possible "excesses" in the extension of bank credit and multiple lines of credit.

He asked bank officials to be more choosy before extending new credit to potential borrowers.

Pope attacks moral issues

Pope John Paul II is applauded by priests as he enters Holy Name Cathedral in Chicago.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, in a multi-edged condemnation of "moral permissiveness," told America's 50 million Roman Catholics Friday they must faithfully adhere to church law prohibiting artificial birth control, abortion and homosexual acts.

His tough talk to the 300 U.S. bishops who constitute the American church hierarchy was, immediately assailed by feminists and some dissident church factions, but accepted as a simple reaffirmation of traditional Catholic doctrine by the bishops and many church members.

"The pope is 100 percent right," said Alexander H. McFadyen, a 70-year-old "immigrant" from John Paul's native Poland who was part of an afternoon papal mass at Grand Park.

"We have to learn what is God's wish ... I prefer to think that this is a message from God and not just theology. We have to obey because of what we ask from God."

John Paul unequivocally sided with the church's 1968 stand against abortion as "an unspeakable crime" and said that "homosexual activity, as distinguished from homosexual orientation, is morally wrong."

But the pope took a more conciliatory tone in his afternoon mass, which drew 1.5 million cheering, singing and banner-waving people to the site of the bloody rioting that marred the 1968 Democratic Convention.

Comparing the many factions of the Catholic church to the diversity of America's own ethnic background, he urged his audience to avoid polarization by working to achieve harmony and "consistency of doctrine."

"Let love then build the bridges across our differences and at times our contrasting positions," he said.

About an hour before the mass, the pope prevented police from arresting an admirer who scaled a fence and ran toward the pontiff shouting "Holy father I love you." When police seized the man, John Paul told officers to "bring him to me." He then embraced the young man and sent him back into the crowd smiling.

"When our holy father pardons someone, you can't intercede," acting police Superintendent Joseph G. DiLeonardi said. "The pope is our supreme commander."

The pope began the fifth day of his week-long U.S. visit by addressing a Hispanic group and celebrating mass at a Polish-American church where he delivered his homily in Polish and told the congregation to cherish its heritage.

Hitting hard on issues that have been dividing the American church for decades, he told the bishops they must be "absolutely faithful" to all church teachings and protect church members "against the onslaughts of materialism, against rampant secularism and against moral permissiveness."

NOW: pope out of touch with U.S. flock

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pope John Paul II is "totally out of touch" with the majority of Catholics and his popularity is based on his position and personality, not on his statements, the president of the National Organization of Women said Friday.

Eleanor Smeal, talking at a news conference on the first day of a NOW national convention expected to draw 3,000 persons, also said the coming year before the 1980 presidential elections would be politically important for women.

"Women's issues must be in the forefront," she explained. "We have less than 1,000 days to ratify the ERA."

She "survival issues" such as equal pay for equal work and reproductive rights were the most important issues for women.

Mrs. Smeal wore a blue armband to express "my solidarity with Catholic feminists protesting the unequal treatment of females in the Catholic Church."

She conceded that the pope had been met by adoring crowds throughout his U.S. travels but said she did not think his realization of the church's position against women priests, abortion, divorce and artificial birth control had not caused Catholics with differing opinions to change their minds.

In fact, she said, his speeches may have generated more support for the ideas by "setting the church hierarchy even farther away from the people."

"The majority of Catholics believe in equality for women," she insisted. "They believe in reproductive rights and birth control."

Infectious laughter pays for woman in audience

A woman named Ann Ghalla hives out to stand-up comedians. Her job, to sit centrally in the audience and laugh at the comic's jokes. When she turns it on, it's infectious. Others thereabouts start laughing, too. She has done it on the Johnny Carson and Merv Griffin shows, and a bunch of others. At last report, she was making $100 a performance, but that rate may have gone up. Those in the know say her presence is almost a guarantee for the jokster that the audience will break up with laughter.

Rumors help stocks advance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Traders Friday paid more attention to rumor than fact with the result that stock prices closed higher in one of the New York Stock Exchange's busiest days.

A $250-million NYSE-led takeover of the NYSE's listed shares, putting it seventh among the most active sessions. Volume Thursday came to 38,800,000 shares.

The Dow Jones industrial average was a gainer throughout the session, finishing 7.51 points higher (897.61). The Dow was up more than 10 points earlier, putting it briefly over the 900 level. Had it finished there, it would have been its first time over 900 in more than a year.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.62 to 63.39 and the price of a share added 32 cents. Advances topped declines, 978 to 526, among the 1,897 issues over the composite tape as of 4 p.m.

A number of items that ordinarily influence the stock market crupped up but some analysts said particular pressure came from the persistent rumor that the United States was preparing a dollar-support package. The dollar has taken a pasting on foreign exchange markets for a long time.

The Carter administration's reaction has vacillated between denial and comment. Several monetary officials abroad, however, have been quoted as saying that such a package is necessary.

The dollar lost ground on the European exchange, but closed higher in Tokyo. Some pressure on the currency came from a demand by an 'Speculative fury' pushes gold higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gold and foreign exchange markets were again dominated by what an observer called "speculative emotional fury" Friday as the week with gold sharply higher and the dollar mixed.

Gold, which had lost about 50 cents this week, opened sharply lower in London only to shoot up by about $15 an ounce on reports, called "ridiculous" by the Federal Reserve, that chairman Paul Volcker had resigned. These rumors also weakened the dollar.

Counter rumors that the Treasury would announce a gold sale over the weekend pushed gold back up. There was also some "bargain hunting" after the sharp correction this week," said Marc Berkowitz, trader for James Sinclair & Co.

Bullion and money markets have been extremely volatile this week on just such rumors, perhaps fueled by the fact that most of the world's central bankers and monetary authorities were in Belgrade at the International Monetary Fund World

Nevada judge goes easy on cattle rustlers

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

ELKO — Two Twin Falls men convicted of cattle rustling charges last spring were placed on probation, but Nevada parole officers for 30-month state prison sentences.

Judge Joseph O. McDaniel of the Nevada 4th Judicial District sentenced Paul Genn, 32, and Mike McCurdy, 32, both of Twin Falls, to 30 months each in the Nevada State Prison, but then released both on probation.

The action brought criticism and comments of disappointment from a number of cattlemen who have worked with officers in the case for the past year.

Genn and McCurdy were arrested in Twin Falls just after two cows were reported killed Nov. 25 on the San Jacinto ranch in Elko County. The two defendants had a dead animal in the back of their pickup truck when arrested. Police reports said the vehicle was owned by McCurdy and driven by Genn. Testimony in the case indicated the two first took one of the animals to the McCurdy home in Twin Falls and were en route to a processing plant in Jerome to have it dressed and cut when arrested.

Elko County Prosecuting Attorney Thomas Springfield said both men would likely have gone to state prison had the defense not introduced a federal narcotics agent from the state of Washington at the Tuesday sentencing session. The agent, Jeff Rowe, told the court Genn had assisted his department in at least one arrest on the sale of narcotics. He said Genn was assisting as an informant in other cases.

Judge McDaniel said since prison inmates look with great disfavor on informers, he could not enforce the sentence for Genn without endangering his life. He said he had no choice but to place him on probation in spite of prison term recommendations from the county prosecutor and the parole officers who made a presentence investigation. Both the prosecutor and parole officers recommended 30 months in prison for each defendant.

In granting probation to McCurdy, the judge said since it appeared Genn was the leader in the incident, it would be unfair to send him to prison and allow probation for Genn. Judge McDaniel fined each of the Idahoans $2,000 and ordered McCurdy to stop drinking. He told Genn to continue to serve federal narcotics efforts in Washington.

A 13-member jury found both men guilty of the formal charge of unlawful killing of range cattle. The verdict came last May 25 after a week long district court trial in which Judge McDaniel set a new precedent by allowing courtroom photographs and recordings of the proceedings.

The animal found in their vehicle at the time of arrest was owned by Bruce Kunkel of Hollister. Another that was killed and left behind on their ranch was owned by Leroy Messner, another Hollister cattleman.

Both men are members of the Salmon River Cattlemen's Association. The organization represents a number of stockmen who own small herds of beef cattle but collectively run about 7,000 head of cattle on the San Jacinto range during summer months.

Lloyd Shewmaker of Kimberly, a spokesman for the cattle association, said he attended the sentencing along with a number of other Idaho and Nevada cattlemen because of industry-wide interest in the case.

"I for one am now ready to support mandatory sentencing," Shewmaker said Thursday.

"Our judges do not have the courage to carry out provisions of the law so the people have no choice but to legislate the sentences," he said.

"The cattlemen have put up rewards out of their own pockets to apprehend and convict thieves. We have worked over a year on this case, bringing 17 witnesses to testify and making countless trips to Elko and being met with countless delays. When the jury brought in the convictions we felt it was worth the effort and this case would go a long way toward helping cut down our losses in cattle" from the open range," Shewmaker said.

Shewmaker said the 7,000 head of cattle on the San Jacinto as well as thousands of other range animals are open targets for the rustlers.

"We have almost no defense against these thieves unless they are punished when caught, to show others they must pay for their crimes," Shewmaker said.

In the Nov. 25 case, a trapper, Terry Hansen, provided officers with information about the killing of the animals. He was attracted to the area by hawks circling above the remaining dead animal and the entrails which were discarded after the other was butchered. Hansen reported the incident to Idaho and Nevada authorities and a search for the thieves began. An officer in Twin Falls who had read the report of the cattle-killing spotted the McCurdy pickup in Twin Falls a short time later.

Mike Mogensen, executive vice president of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association in Boise, said since the crime occurred in Nevada Hansen is not eligible for a $1,000 standing reward offered by the Idaho Cattlemen. He said at the same time the organization has been following the Genn and McCurdy case with a lot of interest and members are greatly disappointed in the way the year's effort ended.

"With increasing beef prices, Mogensen said, cattlemen face higher and higher losses through rustling on the summer ranges.

"Situations such as this (the sentencing) shoots down our whole program," Mogensen said.

New owner says Leader to stay same

GOODING — The new publisher of the Gooding County Leader said he doesn't plan to make any changes in the paper immediately.

Cary Grosh, who took over the paper Oct. 1, said, "We want people to find out we're not going to change anything." He said he's happy with the product that is being produced now.

"The newspaper appears to be able to run itself," he said.

Grosh, his partner Frank Crowe, of Stoyton, Ore., and their wives formed O.I. Publishing Inc. to buy the Gooding County Leader and the Lincoln County Journal. The company also bought the rights to the Camas County Courier of Fairfield and the Hub City Voice of Wendell. Neither of those papers is currently being published. And Grosh said there are no immediate plans to begin publishing either one.

Grosh comes to the Gooding paper after two years as an advertising account executive in Boise for the Idaho Statesman. Prior to that he worked for Crowe, as an advertising manager for the weekly Stoyton Mail. Crowe, who joined in May 1976, has owned the Stoyton Mail for 14 years. He is a member and past chairman of his local community college board.

Crowe and Grosh purchased the paper from Bob Crompton, who bought the paper in May 1976. Crompton will move to Princeton Falls to help direct the Power County Press, Aberdeen Times and the Litho Print in Pocatello. He will be editorial and publisher of both the Press and the Times.

Hunt Camp ceremony called off

TWIN FALLS — Claiming they have been "harassed" with telephone calls, Seattle Japanese-Americans cancelled a tentatively planned Sept. 13 ceremony at the site of the former Minidoka Relocation Center.

Idaho Japanese-Americans have been calling people in Washington, urging them not to attend the ceremony, said Frank Chin of Seattle, one of the organizers of the event.

According to Chin, Idaho Japanese-Americans are upset over the part of the ceremony that called for a planned burning of a guard tower, similar to the towers at the World War II camp.

Japanese-Americans in Idaho are afraid the ceremony will cause a backlash against them, Chin said.

The event will be rescheduled at a later date, he said.

The Minidoka Camp was one of 10 camps erected during World War II to house the entire Japanese-American population of Japanese-Americans. Concentration camps in all but name, they kept Japanese-Americans behind barbed wire and under armed guard for nearly three years.

Jones drops Senate bid

BOISE — Jerome attorney Jim Jones Friday announced he would support Republican Congressman Steve Symms in the 1980 senatorial race.

Jones, who unsuccessfully sought the Republican nomination for 2nd District Congressman in 1978, had earlier said he was considering a Senate challenge.

Jones said he decided to stay out of the race "so that Republican supporters able to present a united front in their effort to replace Sen. Frank Church," Jones said.

Appliance dealers hope for higher farm prices

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If furniture and appliance sales are any indication, and they usually are, Twin Falls nearly slipped into a recession during the first half of the year.

"But because farm income is up this year, appliance dealers now expect their best year ever. All thoughts of a recession vanished when sales picked up in July.

Furniture and appliance dealers are often among the first hit by a recession. Inflation and high interest rates — which don't decline until a recession is well under way — discourage people from buying houses. And when people don't move, they don't need new furniture to put in their new homes.

The housing market here has been gradually slowing down for about a year, said Doug Follow, a real estate leading officer in Twin Falls at First Security Bank of Idaho. He said it will probably stay slow until at least the spring because people are waiting to see what happens to the economy.

A poll by a Boise research firm also found a slowdown in the housing market. Only 6 percent of the people interviewed said they planned to buy a house in the next year. In 1977, 11 percent said they planned to buy a house within a year.

"Not only has the housing market slowed down, it also doesn't contribute as much to furniture and appliance sales as it used to.

Elvis Cain, who founded Cain's Furniture and Appliances in Twin Falls almost 34 years ago, said the high cost of houses is causing more people to "move into a new house with their old furniture."

Richard DeLeon, the manager of Dial Finance in Twin Falls, said furniture and appliance sales were very slow for the first six months of the year. "Nobody was buying anything," he said.

DeLeon works with several furniture dealers here, buying their "retail paper." The paper is a sales contract for something sold on credit.

In effect, a dealer arranges a loan for his customer with a finance company when he sells on credit. The finance company pays for the appliance and the customer makes his payments to the finance company.

"Although national trends such as inflation, high interest rates and uncertainty about gasoline supplies held sales down, the local economy seems to be rebounding.

DeLeon said appliance sales will probably be higher than last year. He has purchased more contracts this year than he had at this time last year, he said. "But it's all been in the last two months."

Representatives of other finance companies tell similar stories. Steve Prime, manager of Avco Finance, said his volume indicates that furniture and appliance sales are down slightly for the year, though July and August were good months. B.W. "Chappie" Chapman, manager of Pacific Finance, said from what he's seen furniture and appliance sales are up a bit.

Appliance dealers are eager to talk about July.

Roy Williamson, a salesman at Banner Furniture, said sales in July were up 67 percent from sales in July last year. Jack Yasaitis, who owns the Blue-Lakes Showcase, said his sales in the summer have been double what they were during last summer. And Ken Nukaya, owner of Ken's TV and Appliances, said his sales in July were 150 percent above his sales in July a year ago. He said his sales for the year are probably "lagging" a bit behind last year.

He expects the year to be a good one, though. Typically, 40 percent of his total sales come in the last three months of the year. Since it is a good year for farmers, it should be a good last quarter for Ken's.

In the first half of this year, farmers in Idaho were paid $50 million more for their products than in the first half of 1978, according to figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. That was an increase of 0.6 percent. The bulk of Idaho's farm products are sold in the second half of the year, and the prices for many of those products are higher now than earlier in the year. "I get ready for the expected sales surge. Cain said he's been "buying like crazy."

His sales manager, Les Hazen, said at the beginning of the year they paid too much attention to national reports of an impending recession and didn't buy enough. Now, he said, "It looks like a banner fall."

It's all thanks to the farmers, too. "Our hearts go out to the farmers. His livelihood is our livelihood," said Hazen.

At the beginning of each year, farmers try to predict what kind of year farmers will have. He has to know if the farmer will come in from the fields in the fall with enough profit to buy a new couch or television.

"Because of his dependence on the farm economy, Yasaitis uses a simple strategy at the Showcase. "You just try to survive for eight months and then hit it hard in the last four," he said.

Buhl man seeks $500,000 from insurance company

TWIN FALLS — William F. Barta is asking more than a half-million dollars in damages from an Ohio insurance company which he charges refused to pay benefits during the illness and death of his late wife.

In a complaint filed in 5th District Court here, Barta states he participated in a group insurance policy through the Buhl Corp. The policy was with Nationwide Life Insurance Co., an Ohio based firm and defendant in the suit.

He said his wife was named along with himself as one of the insured and while the policy was in full force Feb. 2, 1978, his wife was hospitalized in the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital with cancer of the colon. He said medical bills amounted to $19,937 of which the defendant firm is bound by the policy to pay 80 percent. He said he has demanded payment of $15,549.79. The insurance firm has refused to pay.

The reason given, he said, was that certain conditions involving his wife, Violet, were not disclosed at the time the original policy was written, and had the information been known, Mrs. Barta would have been dropped from coverage.

Barta states he has met all requirements of premium payments and has met other terms of the insurance company.

In addition to the $15,549.79, Barta is asking the court to award him $150,000 for office damages. Barta, represented by the firm of Hepworth, Nungester and Felton asks a jury trial on his complaint.

Schlafly enters Idaho ERA debate

BOISE (UPI) — Equal Rights Amendment opponent Phyllis Schlafly filed requests in Boise federal court Friday, seeking the right to oppose the National Organization for Women's motion to intervene in the ERA lawsuit.

Schlafly has filed suit against the federal government seeking recognition of the Legislature's rescission of its ERA ratification vote. The lawsuit also asks that the ratification deadline extension passed by Congress be declared unconstitutional.

NOW has until Oct. 10 to respond to motions filed against its attempts to intervene in the lawsuit. The U.S. Justice Department has opposed NOW's intervention as has Mrs. Schlafly.

NOW is permitted to intervene, the court cannot prohibit any other group including STOP ERA — from also intervening in the action.

Prison rules remain intact despite escape

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State Penitentiary officials plan no changes in convict classification despite second-guessing from armchair wardens following the escape of a minimum-security murderer.

Warden Ed Dermitt defended the prison's classification review committee, which determines, basing its decision on an inmate's record and behavior, whether to keep prisoners in maximum or minimum security sections.

In her brief, on which Callister has not acted, Mrs. Schlafly cautions the court to carefully consider the NOW request, saying, "A favorable ruling on NOW's motion will transform this court of law into a political free-for-all."

The pleadings to date show that the government's framing of the issues and NOW's statement of interest substantially overlap and, indeed, are as indistinguishable as tweedledee and tweedledum.

Bad water in Bruneau

BOISE (UPI) — Another Idaho town, Bruneau, has contaminated water as a result of coliform bacteria infiltration, state health officials said today.

David Sanders of the Idaho Environment Division said samples taken recently from Bruneau's drinking water system showed excessive amounts of the bacteria, which could cause disease.

Residents have been urged to boil their water for at least five minutes before drinking it, or add two drops of chlorine bleach to each quart of drinking water and let it stand for 30 minutes.

The cause of the water contamination in both cities is under investigation, Sanders said.

Poison weed alert issued

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Citing a report of the deaths of 16 cattle during a desert drive, two Canyon County veterinarians have warned ranchers to keep their animals away from the poisonous range weed halogelton.

Dr. Stuart D. Lincoln, director of the University of Idaho's veterinary medicine teaching center at Caldwell, and Dr. Baxter A. Black of Nampa, a Simpli Livestock Co. veterinarian, said this week in a report prepared for a science journal that the poisonous weed usually is hard to find but very dangerous.

The halogen-plant is not very palatable, but cattle and sheep may eat it in toxic quantities after a period of food deprivation, the report said.

The doctors in their report described an incident in which cattle died on a halogelton during a three-hour drive in the southwest Idaho desert.

Most BLM land not in wilderness

CARLSBAD, Calif. (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management said Friday it has found that 31.6 million acres, or 65 percent of the lands under the agency, would not be suitable for wilderness.

Ed Spang, the state director for the BLM, said the remaining 33 percent will be inventoried during the next six months to see if where wilderness characteristics, if any, can be identified.

He said those lands which did not meet the wilderness criteria would also be discarded.

Bucs capture National League title

By MIKE TULLY
UPI Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — Even in an hour when he was the acknowledged MVP of a three-game playoff series sweep that gave Pittsburgh its first National League pennant since 1971, Willie "Pops" Stargell showed why he is the guru of the Pirates' clubhouse.

Despite driving in three runs with a solo homer and a two-run double to give the Pirates a 7-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds that sent them to the World Series, Stargell preferred to discuss the contributions of his teammates.

"They talk about Bert Blyleven and the big games," Stargell said, referring to the pitcher who allowed eight hits and struck out nine in pitching his first complete game since Aug. 15. "Well, there ain't any bigger one than this."

That was Stargell's way of defending Blyleven, who nine years ago became the youngest pitcher ever to perform in the playoffs, but who has since been criticized for a supposed inability to win in the clutch.

"I don't think that the Reds were flat so much as I think Bert Blyleven was devastating," added Stargell.

The victory enabled Pittsburgh to avenge three previous playoff losses to the Reds. It also made the Pirates the first East Division team since the 1973 New York Mets to win the playoffs and ended the season for Cincinnati, which rallied under Manager John McNamara to edge out Houston in the West.

"There's not too much you can say," said McNamara. "Nobody wants to lose. We had two good ballgames and today they got the good pitching. How do I feel about being swept? Terrible. We just haven't hit for the last two and a half weeks. It started in the middle of September. We beat Houston two ball games, scored nine runs in the first and seven runs in the second. Ever since then our run production has fallen away off."

The Pirates won the right to face either Baltimore or California in the Series, which is scheduled to begin Tuesday in the American League city.

The victory seemed so assured that during the seventh-inning stretch, a group of Pirate wives performed an impromptu dance of jubilation in the area behind the home plate screen. The crowd of 42,240 which braved rainy weather roared and waved banners from the fifth inning on in expectation of the pennant clinching victory.

Pittsburgh Friday experienced none of the trouble it had in the first two games, both of which went to extra innings. The outcome avenged three previous playoff losses to the Reds and ended the hopes of Cincinnati, which had defeated Houston in a tough stretch drive in the West despite the loss of superstar Pete Rose to Philadelphia.

Blyleven coasted to the triumph as Pittsburgh disposed of Cincinnati starter Mike LaCoss in the second inning. It was Blyleven's first complete game since Aug. 15 against San Diego. He struck out nine batters, the last, Cesar Geronimo, to end the game.

Sensing victory at hand, the Pirates quickly opened a 1-0 lead in the first and scored in each of the next three innings.

In the first, Omar Moreno walked and stole second. Tim Lincecum then sent a grounder to shortstop Dave Concepcion, who tried to throw to Moreno at third. His throw was high and both Moreno and Foll were safe. Moreno then scored when Dave Parker hit a fly ball to left field.

The Pirates used another sacrifice fly to extend their lead and knock out LaCoss in the second. Phil Garner led off with a triple and held when Blyleven grounded out. After Moreno walked, Foll hit a fly to center to score Garner. When LaCoss ran the count to 2-0 on Parker, Cincinnati Manager John McNamara replaced him with Norman, who retired the side.

With the score still 2-0, second baseman Garner saved a run in the third when, with Dave Collins on second, he dove to his right to backhand Concepcion's single and prevent it from going to the outfield. George Foster then struck out, stranding Cincinnati's third and fourth runners of the game.

Stargell and Madlock pushed Cincinnati closer to elimination in the third when they each hit solo home runs. It was Stargell's second homer of the series, the first for Madlock and the two off Norman tied a league playoff record for most off a pitcher in one inning.

Stargell struck again in the fourth to give Pittsburgh a 6-0 lead. Blyleven led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Moreno. After Parker walked, Stargell grounded a double into the right-field corner, delivering two runs and knocking out Norman.

All that point, in a manner representative of Pittsburgh's clutch play during the season, the Pirates had scored six runs on only five hits.

Angels alive in AL series

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — The California Angels got rid of the halos on their caps a few years ago but it obviously didn't cost them any points with the man upstairs.

For what seems like the umpteenth time this season, the Angels won a game they should have lost and it kept them alive in the American League playoffs. Two outs away from watching this year's World Series on television, the Angels rallied for two runs in the ninth inning Friday night to defeat the Baltimore Orioles 3-2 and send the best-of-five series to a fourth game Saturday afternoon.

In a way, the Orioles were done in by two of their own. Al Bumbry, the Oriole center fielder, dropped a line drive by Bobby Grich which allowed the tying run to score and ex-Oriole Larry Harlow then blooped a double to left field to knock home the winning run.

The Angels' winning rally began when Rod Carew doubled with one out to knock out starter Dennis Martinez. Don Stanhouse, who had saved a victory last week in the Sunday game, came in and complicated matters by walking Brian Downing on a 3-2 pitch. Stanhouse, however, appeared to be out of trouble when Grich hit a low liner toward Bumbry in center field. Bumbry charged the ball, got it in his glove then dropped it, allowing Carew to score the tying run.

"It was a huge break for the Angels because Carew, who had gone all the way to third, thinking the ball would fall for a hit, would have easily been doubled off second base to end the game."

"I should have caught it. I took my eye off the ball at the last second," said Bumbry, a better than average outfielder. "I was not thinking double play. I just wanted to catch the ball."

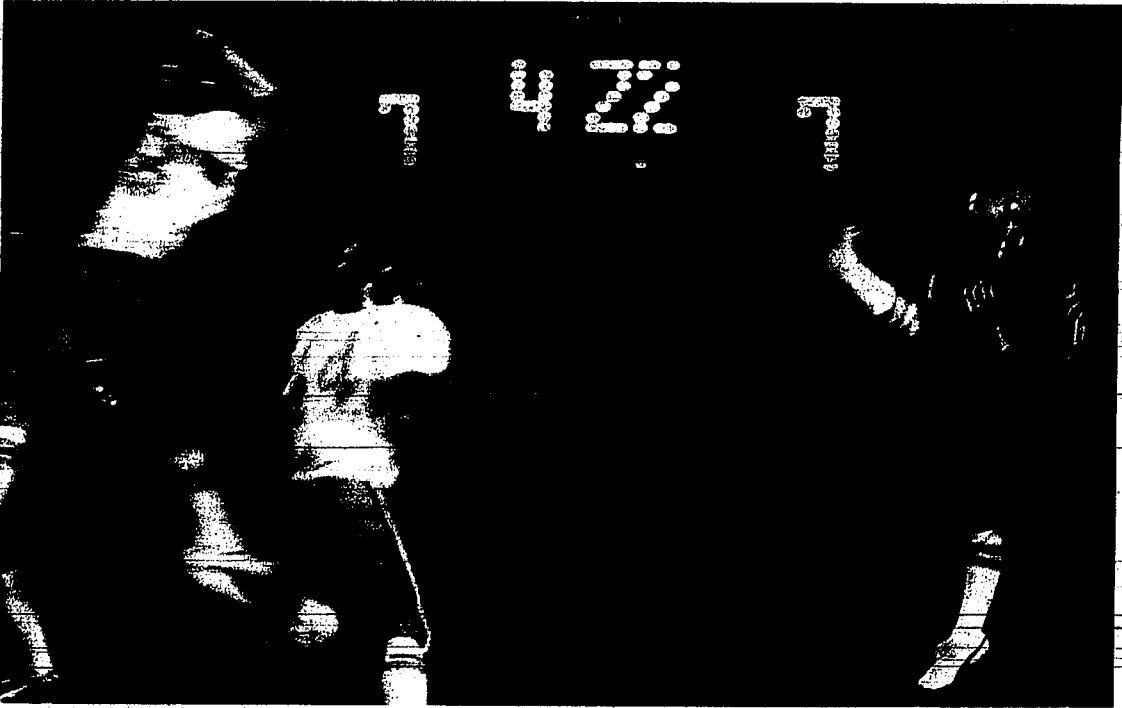

"Most of the time Bumbry would have had the ball," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver. "Bumbry made a hell of an effort. He's going to take a lot of grief across the country. At might be criticized but with an effort like that, a man should never be criticized."

Given a reprieve by Bumbry's error, Harlow cashed in by blooping a double to left in front of a hustling John Lowenstein and Downing raced home with the winning run.

Harlow earned a hit on a short and a triple when traded to the Angels last winter. "Sure, I'm happy to beat Earl Weaver but I'm happy we're still in the playoffs. There's no special feeling about beating my former team."

Carew was probably the happiest about the turn of events.

Buhl's Mark Schaal had this punt blocked by a rushing Wood River defensive line, and the ball went out of the endzone for a safety.

Buhl survives Tigers' scare 22-21

BUHL — With all the verve of a Mississippi gambler, Mountain Home Coach Dick Pease put all the marbles on one roll of the dice Friday night.

It came up snake-eyes for the Tigers who saw the undefeated Buhl Indians stop a two-point conversion run to overtime just six inches short and that margin gave Buhl a 22-21 decision — and probably the South Central Idaho Conference title.

It was a gutsy gambling call by Pease who knew from the outset that the entire season rode on the outcome. It culminated in a night in which Mountain Home definitely outplayed the Indians in the first half and then the teams battled almost evenly through the second half.

Buhl took its first lead, two minutes from the end of the game but Mountain Home tied it with 34 seconds left, bringing on the overtime. Buhl scored on its fourth overtime play. Bruce Walden getting the last half yard. John Ristenra then booted the decisive extra point.

Mountain Home struck on the first play, Rich Grimmer hitting Chris Eastman for the overtime touchdown. Then during a timeout, Pease made the decision: "Perhaps helping him there, however, was the fact his place kicker had just missed the extra point that would have decided it in regulation play.

Grimmett went on a pass-run rollout option, tucked the ball away and charged the goal line. The Indians just survived that challenge.

"We were very fortunate to win," Buhl Coach Gregg Smith repeated and repeated after the game.

"No," he answered a question, "the idea of kicking a field goal (on fourth down in overtime) never crossed our minds. We felt they'd been giving us the dive for Walden all night long and we knew that was what we were going with."

With his Indians down 7-0 and outplayed in the first half, Coach Smith said there were no halftime adjustments made at halftime.

"We didn't talk about offense, or defense. We talked about playing with heart and playing with pride. It's easy to be a winner but it's hard to be a champion and keep playing like a champion," he said.

It was fitting that Walden be the one posting the final two Buhl touchdowns because it was his 156-yard rushing led Buhl win. Conversely, Grimmer deserved to get the two-pointer for his night's work.

Those two rose to the fore because each side took away the other's considered top offensive weapon. Mountain Home concentrated on stopping Mark Schaal, the league's second top rusher, and held him to 66. Meagwhile, Buhl went everywhere when the loop's top rusher, Rick Love, went hold him-well in check — with a penalty helping early. That left Walden and Grimmer to steal the spotlight.

The game was only seconds old when Buhl appeared in trouble: Love romping all the way with the kickoff. But that was nullified by a penalty and the game turned into a defensive struggle.

Buhl put together a drive, gaining a first down inside the Mountain Home 10 but fumbling it away. Bob Bechler scooped it up for the Tigers and ran it out to the 35. The Tigers went on from there to a first down at the Buhl 25 and two plays later Grimmer, a junior, uncorked a 21-yard bomb to Eric Cutler, Mountain Home and the conference's leading receiver.

Beats Clark County Castleford ups record to 6-0

DUBOIS — The Castleford Wolves could be headed toward a possible season-ending title showdown with North Gem.

The Wolves stomped Clark County 46-16 Friday afternoon to rack up their sixth straight victory, without a defeat, Castleford is currently tied with western North Gem in the conference.

If both can hold their undefeated pace, the Oct. 20 winner will wrap up its first trip to the state eight-man playoffs. The Wolves will take a week off to prepare for another key game against Camas County Oct. 19.

"It was our best game by far," beamed Coach Randy Clark after the triumph. He praised the bench and the offensive line.

Although Clark County was expected to be as tough a challenge as the Wolves' "mud" mix this season, Coach Clark's crew had no problems. Castleford boomed to a 14-0 first-quarter-lead and padded that to 22-0 by intermission.

Bob Bulkeley started it with a 14-yard run in the opening minutes and Bill Cothren converted. Later in the quarter, Cothren threw to Bulkeley on a 35-yard pass play and Dave Ensusna added the extra point to make it 14-0.

Ensusna romped 16 yards for the third Wolf score and Cothren got the fourth with a one-yard lunge. Also in the second period, Jim McSpadden and Ted Laird hooked up on a 50-yard pass play that put Clark County on the board.

Castleford got the only touchdown in the third quarter when Ensusna produced a four-yard romp.

In the final period, Cothren scored from the 22 and then the one to push Castleford to its final total. Clark County replied with another bomb, this one a 40-yarder from McSpadden to Darren Bender.

Suffer sixth loss

Bruin fumbles costly against Bees

IDAHO FALLS — Bonneville capitalized on a series of first half fumbles and went on to defeat winless Twin Falls 29-14 Friday night.

The Bruins gave the Bees their first two touchdowns with fumbles inside its 15-yard line but the defensive unit kept the Bruins in check by twice turning Bonneville back inside the five after other turnovers.

Due to the miscues, Twin Falls had very little offense in the first half and a touchdown in the closing minute of the second period appeared to have the Bruins on the verge of a blowout.

But then quarterback Gary Krump and flanker Lars Hovey, teammates since the first grade, clicked on a couple of bombs to pull Twin Falls back to within seven points — only to see Bonneville shove it out of reach with a four-quarter score.

It was a decided change for Twin Falls which through its first four games was getting most of its offense in the first half. The big difference was Krump, harried and battered all year, who was given a little more time to pass — despite the fact three linemen were missing due to disciplinary problems and a wedding in the family.

Hovey had five catches for 132 yards and a touchdown, including a pair of long ones that put teeth in the Bruins' two scoring drives.

Bonneville threatened early when, due to penalties, Twin Falls had to punt from its end zone after receiving the kickoff. The punt reached only to the Bruin 30 and the Bees immediately rolled to a first down at the nine. The Bruin defense stopped that at the three but two plays later Twin Falls fumbled the ball back at the nine. An interception again saved the Bruins but another fumble 41 minutes later couldn't be turned back.

Bob Down led a ground attack that paid off in a three-yard touchdown run 41 seconds into the second period. Scott Waddison got it on a quarterback rollout and Mark Pratt booted the extra point.

Late in the half defensive plays by Jim Smallwood and Pat King stopped another Bee thrust at the 20 but a penalty and a quarterback sack were followed by another fumble at the Bruin 16 with 61 seconds left. Three plays later Bob Acevedo bolted in from the three on a trap play.

Twin Falls' offense suddenly came to life in the third quarter when Krump and Hovey hooked up on a 37-yard pass. Hovey making a one-hand catch and romping to the Bonneville 26. Krump then passed to Rick Tegan and Ron Goodwin for two first downs and after a punning play, Tegan punched the ball into the end zone for a strike. The two-point play failed.

Bonneville rebounded with a drive, beating a fourth and five situation at the Twin Falls 35 on a flat pass. Wednesday wound that up with a one-yard sneak and Pratt was called for a foul on its next possession. Twin Falls scored again, the touchdown set up on a 54-yard bomb from Krump to Hovey that carried to the one. Krump punched the six-point score and then threw it Goodwin the two-pointer.

But that was all the scoring the Bruins had left and Bonneville moved out of reach with its final score.

The defeat was the fifth straight for Twin Falls this season and its 15th in a row since knocking off Minico in last year's season opener. Bonneville raised its record to 2-3.

The cards the winning line is hard to find, but it is designed to win against a 5-1 heart break provided that the second heart does not get ruffed by a single trump. Of course, you can't handle a 4-0 trump break, but if that were the case you would have been doubled for your diamond game.

Here is the winning play. Lead a high heart at trick two and continue, discarding the queen of spades.

West ruffs and undoubtedly plays a second club. You ruff in dummy, lead a spade to your ace, ruff your last club, ruff a spade back to your hand and play the ace of diamonds to win up losing just two trump tricks.

Ask the Experts

An Iowa reader asks the meaning of the three trump bid in the partner's opening sequence: 1 club, 1 spade, 3 no trump.

It shows a very good hand and implies no desire to play in spades.
