

President meets press

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Faced with an ailing economy, a faltering SAFT treaty and the threat of a Kennedy challenge, President Carter will meet the Washington press corps Tuesday for the first time in two and a half months. Carter, who has cut back news conferences in the nation's capital in favor of meetings with the public and press around the country, has formally fielded questions in Washington only twice since spring. He is virtually certain to be questioned at the 1:30 p.m. MDT news conference about soaring inflation and the Senate's reluctance to ratify the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty. He is also likely to be asked about the presence of Soviet troops in Cuba and the possibility of Sen. Edward Kennedy challenging him for the Democratic Party's 1980 presidential nomination. Other questions are apt to be about the slow pace of the Israeli-Egyptian peace negotiations, his poor standing in opinion polls and black calls for talks between the United States and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

U.S. presses NATO missile deployment despite warning

The Washington Post WASHINGTON — U.S. officials are determined to push ahead for NATO approval of deployment of new U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe despite Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's warning against doing so. Officials said Monday that the number of such missiles targeted on the Soviet Union from NATO bases will depend on whether Moscow agrees to limit its missile systems aimed at Western Europe. The U.S. plan, approved last week by a high-level NATO group, is to negotiate limitations on these missile systems once deployment is under way. Assuming that the NATO foreign ministers and their governments approve the plan, the United States will begin a slow, phased production and deployment of 1,000-mile-range Pershing 2 or 1,500-mile ground-launched cruise missiles beginning in late 1983, officials said. At the same time as production starts, the United States, representing the NATO allies, will attempt to get the Soviet Union to enter into talks aimed at reducing, or freezing, the number of Soviet 2,500-mile-range SS20 missiles. According to U.S. intelligence sources, about 120 SS20s are deployed in Western Russia.

U.S. officials, pressing for NATO support of the medium-range missile program, have argued that without a plan to build and deploy the new missiles, Moscow has no incentive to limit or reduce its SS20 deployments. Currently, the longest-range U.S. nuclear system in Europe is the 400-mile Pershing 1 system. In his speech Saturday, Brezhnev warned that introduction of the new missiles "would change essentially the strategic situation on the continent." He charged that those pushing the new systems are attempting "to ensure military superiority for the NATO bloc." U.S. officials, however, maintain that the Soviets have a monopoly on intermediate-range missile systems, with 500 SS4s with a 1,000-mile range and 90 SS5s with a 2,000-mile range. The newer SS20s, officials said, have been replacing these earlier missiles, some of which are nearly 20 years old. In his Saturday speech, Brezhnev said the Soviets had not increased the number of medium-range missile launchers aimed at Western Europe and "the yield of the nuclear charges of these missiles has even been somewhat decreased."

Pentagon officials Monday said Brezhnev's facts were correct but their meaning was deceptive. "The SS20 has three warheads, the missiles it is replacing has only one," a Pentagon official said yesterday. "A Soviet warhead total aimed at NATO is increasing while the launchers stay the same." Under the NATO plan approved last week, a target of 572 medium-range missiles was set for presentation to the NATO ministerial meeting in December. There was no final determination of how many would be Pershing 2s and how many would be ground-launched cruise missiles, a Pentagon official said Monday. He added that the target level was far from final.

Norton Ridge fire burns uncontained

CHALLIS — Forest Service firefighters Monday pushed back the estimated control line of the 800-acre Norton Ridge fire after it jumped fire lines on the north and south side of the blaze Sunday. An additional 65 acres were destroyed before fire lines could be re-established around the escaped area. This delayed finishing a 2-mile line across the southeast area of the fire until Monday, Forest Service spokeswoman Velda Lawrence said. About 70 firefighters were dispatched Monday, up from 70 involved Sunday. The total cost of the fire-fighting effort is estimated at $300,000, Lawrence said. A man-caused five-acre fire located four miles north of Sleeping Deer Lookout and 12 miles southeast of the Norton Ridge blaze was reported Sunday. Four loads of fire retardant were dumped on the fire and 12 smoke jumpers parachuted in Sunday. Forest Service officials expected to control the fire with little trouble, Lawrence said. The Forest Service is warning hunters and other outdoorsmen to be extremely careful with campfires because of the unusually high fire conditions. General hunting season opens Oct. 25. Lawrence added the forest service may have to close down some areas of the Challis Forest because it does not have the crews to fight fires. Many of the crews consisted of college students who have returned to school, she said.

Chase sets hot pace before quiet ending

TWIN FALLS — An Arco man Monday told Twin Falls police on a four-hour-long high-speed chase through the city and into Jerome County. Noryn Pathed, 19, of Arco, was arrested about 8:10 a.m. and charged with reckless driving. He was later released on his own recognizance. No injuries were reported. Pathed was carrying a passenger, Kevin J. Turner, 18, of Arco. Officer Bob Magel first spotted Pathed cutting across the Union 76 station on Blue Lakes Boulevard North onto Filer Avenue. Magel said he intended to pull the driver over for a warning against such maneuvers. But as he turned onto Filer, Magel said he only caught a glimpse of Pathed turning north onto Lincoln. From there, he followed the accelerating 1973 Mercury Monterey through a zig-zag path of city streets heading northwest towards Pole Line Road at speeds approaching 100 mph. Pathed managed to side-step a police block set at the intersection of Pole Line Road and Washington Street north, heading back toward Union 76. Blue Lakes Boulevard. By then, three police units were in pursuit. The fleeing car reached speeds in excess of 90 mph as it headed south on Blue Lakes and was clocked at 101 mph on the Perrine Bridge, Magel said. After turning west onto the Old Jerome Highway, Pathed turned onto a gravel road located in the Big Little Ranches. Police said he was traveling at speeds up to 85 mph. As they followed the northbound vehicle, police were blinded by dust. At the high rate of speed the vehicles were traveling, Magel added, sirens were practically out-paced and could give little warning to traffic. Police lost the vehicle six miles west and one mile north of the Big Little Ranches. But by that time, officers from Idaho State Police, and the Jerome and Gooding County sheriff's offices had set up watch posts along the major arterial routes. Pathed was intercepted by Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall at the intersection of the Old Jerome Highway and Barton Road. He surrendered peacefully, police said. He was arrested and charged with reckless driving, and later released on his own recognizance. He said the need to drive he engaged in the chase because he had run a stop sign and was scared. Pathed also said he was worried that police would discover a minor drinking beer in his car, Hall said.

Montanan solo campaigner

By DAVID MORRISSEY Times-News writer PHILIPSBURG, Mont. — The Riddick for President campaign doesn't have any political buttons yet. That may be because the supporters of this underdog effort want to cut campaigning costs to the bone, and because their candidate refuses to accept political contributions larger than a dollar. But it might also be because no company makes a button large enough to contain both the name of candidate Merrill K. Riddick and that of his Puritan Ethic-Prohibition-Magneto-hydrodynamics Party.

Admittedly, it's not the catchiest name in the world. And unlike "I Like Ike," and "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too," it doesn't even rhyme. But the 24-year-old retired Montana miner wanted a political organization unique from the Democrats and Republicans — which he says are more alike than different, anyway. So far, no one has accused him of stealing from either party's platform, or from their vote totals, for that matter. Riddick's campaign effort, run from a small brick building sandwiched between a bar and a funeral home in this tiny Montana town, has yet to make a dent in the established power structure. So small is this electoral challenge to date that a phone has yet to be installed in the combination home, office and campaign headquarters. But Riddick's no newcomer to politics, and no quitter, either. So the months between now and November 1980 will see him criss-crossing the country, challenging incumbent Jimmy Carter at every opportunity. That challenge will be limited by the minuscule budget of his shoestring campaign, which is largely financed from occasional Social Security and Army pension checks. Riddick is an Air Corps veteran of both World Wars, who among other things claims to have at one time given flying lessons to young Franklin Roosevelt. Riddick's meager funds usually go to purchase two-month Greyhound bus passes, which take Riddick and his message from state to state. Frequently the octogenarian campaigner sleeps on the bus to avoid hotel room costs. "In the last few years I have had about 25 America passes," Riddick wrote in a letter to the Times-News. "They are sort of an Aladdin's Carpet. With these passes I can travel all over the continent. I have been in every state many times." For most of those trips his only companion is a brown leather suitcase, filled with a change of clothes, an occasional study of Western water problems, and sometimes a copy of Hunter S. Thompson's "Fear and Loathing on the Campaign Trail."

Vitamin C may help prevent some cataracts

The Los Angeles Times LOS ANGELES — Vitamin C may help prevent a type of cataract that is believed to be caused by light, according to a Maryland eye researcher. Light shining into the eyes can trigger a photochemical reaction that produces a chemical that has been shown to be damaging to the eye lens, said Dr. Shambhu D. Varma, director of Eye Research at the University of Maryland. The experiments also disclosed that an adequate level of Vitamin C protects the lens from the toxic damage

Varma told a science writers seminar in ophthalmology here Monday. The fluids in the human eyes normally contain an exceptionally high level of Vitamin C — 30 to 50 times the level found in the blood, according to Varma. The level of the vitamin is low in nocturnal animals and high in animals that are active primarily during daylight hours, he said. The toxic substance Varma found to be damaging is superoxide, a breakdown product of oxygen. In his experiments he found that Vitamin C acts as a scavenger of superoxide. Light as a cause of cataracts has been under serious investigation for only about a decade. Varma's work does not prove that superoxide causes cataracts, nor does it prove that Vitamin C protects against them in humans. But it does suggest a relationship between good nutrition, light and cataracts. Other types of cataracts may be caused by diabetes, infections, senility, too much or too little oxygen, certain drugs and certain wavelengths in the electromagnetic spectrum.

Contractors in diabetes, who are at least six times more common than in non-diabetics, are believed to be caused by an abnormally high level of sorbitol, a sugar, that accumulates in the eye of diabetics. The body produces sorbitol only when the concentration of glucose reaches a certain level — as it does in diabetes. An enzyme called aldose reductase breaks the glucose into sorbitol. Pathed managed to side-step a police block set at the intersection of Pole Line Road and Washington Street north, heading back toward Union 76. Blue Lakes Boulevard. By then, three police units were in pursuit. The fleeing car reached speeds in excess of 90 mph as it headed south on Blue Lakes and was

Gas price boost may spur new search

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Canada's decision to boost the price of natural gas exports to the United States by 23 percent next month may spark new Arctic gas exploration, a U.S. gas industry spokesman said Monday. George Lawrence, president of the American Gas Association, said the increase is in line with Canada's efforts to bring the gas price up to the cost of crude oil. Canada said last Friday the price of gas exported to the United States under existing licenses will rise on Nov. 3 from the current $2.80 per 1,000 cubic feet to $3.45. "It might hasten Arctic exploration," Lawrence said. "The end result might be a helluva lot more gas closer to home."

He said the new natural gas price is the equivalent of paying $20 for a barrel of oil — about the same as the world market rate for crude petroleum. He said the Canadian hike was anticipated, not an unpredictable spinoff from last month's gas pact between the United States and Mexico. The United States agreed to an initial import price of $3.025 per 1,000 cubic feet for small volumes of Mexican gas, with future increases pegged to an index of world crude oil levels. Canada exports about 60 billion cubic feet of natural gas to the United States last year, most of it consumed in border states and Northern California. The gas is a major fuel source in border states, but they compared to the total annual U.S. consumption of 29 billion cubic feet. The day before the new price was announced, an official of a Washington state gas firm said a rise to the $3.45 level might trigger more "bituminous heavy" industry to choose an alternative boiler fuel available in the region. But Lawrence said the low price of oil in the Pacific Northwest was "a unique situation" because of surplus Alaskan crude arriving at refineries in the area. "We're going to have to get the industry used to thinking in terms of the long haul," he said. "I think the Canadians have historically been attentive to the need to find their gas out of the industrial market." Under a 1978 law, the United States will phase out controls on domestic gas in interstate pipelines by 1985, including the fuel to trade at world market levels.

Police inspect wreckage of commuter plane following crash at Cincinnati airport

Commuter flight's plunge during takeoff kills eight

FLORENCE, Ky. (UPI) — A commuter plane on route to Nashville, Tenn., lost power in one of its engines Monday and crashed on takeoff at the Greater Cincinnati Airport, killing all eight men aboard.

The two-engine Piper Navajo, owned by Comair, a commuter and charter service, crashed at the airport, located across the Ohio River from Cincinnati, as it was taking off from the southbound runway.

"It was a pretty bad scene," said Boone County Coroner Don Slith. "Half of the victims were still in their seats with their seat belts fastened."

Slith said the impact of the crash was so great that most of the victims died of head injuries.

"I don't think there was anyway anybody could have survived the crash," he said.

Four of the victims were from Cincinnati and the others were from the Cincinnati area, Slith said.

"The plane got to 200 feet in the air when the pilot advised the control tower he had lost an engine," said chief air traffic controller San Juan Borrero. "Shortly after that, he crashed about three-quarters of the way down the runway. It was about 800 feet to the right of the runway."

"There was no fire or explosion, officials said.

"From all indications, the pilot almost landed the plane instead of having it crash," said Tim Donovan, a spokesman for Comair, which is based at the airport. "It may have been just bad luck, because had he gotten a few feet further maybe all would have walked away from it."

"The plane landed virtually intact." Two of the victims, both of whom died at Booth Hospital in Florence, were identified as Thomas J. Oatts, 52, of Loveland, Ohio, and Jeffrey Lake, 29, of Cincinnati, who died about 1 1/2 hours after the crash.

The dead at the scene were not immediately identified.

Donovan said the plane earlier had carried passengers from Cincinnati to Cleveland and had returned from Cleveland to Cincinnati to pick up passengers for the flight to Nashville.

He said Comair has had only one previous problem recently and that was when a landing gear did not function but there were no fatalities in that incident.

"The pilot did a marvelous job with the airplane," said Donovan. "All of our pilots are trained to fly with one engine. Why it went down, we don't know. The plane and the engines had just recently been overhauled."

Comair is a regional airline based at the Greater Cincinnati Airport and is owned by a group of northern Kentucky businessmen.

Oil company disputes claim gas lines could return soon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A major oil company disputed claims that the United States could face long gasoline lines and closed service stations again by the end of October because of current emphasis on heating fuel.

Atlantic Richfield Co. said it "does not foresee severe gasoline shortages and the return of service station lines in October."

Industry analyst Dan Lundberg, who publishes the Lundberg Letter, warned of the possible shortage.

"Much of the public has been lulled by the true situation," he said, adding that oil companies expect to produce 5 percent less gas this month than they did last October.

However Arco said in a statement released "In response to apparent concern about impending gasoline shortages" that "industry-wide, gasoline inventories are at normal levels and ahead of last year's levels."

"Arco said the oil industry "appears to be on target for meeting the Department of Energy's inventory goal of 240 million barrels of heating oil."

"Therefore, we don't expect that the heating oil buildup will come at the further expense of gasoline production," the oil firm said.

Lundberg said it could be late October before the DOE and the Carter administration "wake-up to the fact that the public's desire for gasoline" might "prematurely" draw down the supply of fuel."

Lundberg said he cannot predict how much gasoline motorists will use this month, and although signs point to a potential shortage, the chances of an actual shortage depend a lot on whether the public continues conservation efforts.

He said October is a "long" 31-day month and "that represents a hell of a lot of volume."

Cancellation of the odd-even sales rationing plan in many California counties may have given the public the impression that there is no longer a gas crisis, he said.

While motorists have accommodated themselves to using less gasoline during the summer months, he said, there is no assurance they will continue to conserve.

Higher prices accounted for part of the reduced consumption, Lundberg said, but he cautioned against thinking that even higher prices would mean continued conservation.

He estimated that a 50 percent increase in prices would be required to cut gasoline consumption by 5 percent.

NATO buildup target
CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Soviet Union's plan to reduce its troop strength in East Germany may be a move to try to deter NATO from increasing its nuclear weapons strength in Europe, NATO Commander Gen. Bernard W. Rogers said Monday.

Picket lines at Seabrook

SEABROOK, N.H. (UPI) — A few hundred protesters set up picket lines Monday at the gates of the unfinished Seabrook nuclear power plant, the stubborn core of a vanquished legion that spent the weekend trying to take over the facility.

Hundreds more, overwhelmed by chilly weather and the might of the law, packed up their sleeping bags, bid farewell to the construction site and headed home — which, in some cases, was as far away as California.

"More and more of them have to leave because of outside obligations," said Jane Wilson, 22, of Boston, a spokeswoman for the group.

An estimated 400 of the original group of 2,000 demonstrators were still on hand.

For two days, the protesters rushed the six-foot-high fences that surround Seabrook with wire cutters and ropes.

Their plan was to turn the $2.6 billion, 120-acre construction site into a vegetable-producing commune, but it never came close to fruition.

Each step of the way, hundreds of state troopers from five New England states beat them back with Mace, billy clubs, fire hoses and attack dogs.

Defense chief declares Soviet unit no threat

MIAMI (UPI) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Monday the Soviet brigade in Cuba does not pose a military threat and the SALT II treaty should not be held "hostage" because of the Russian troops.

Brown, who visited the new Caribbean Contingency Joint Task Force headquarters in Key West before steps in Miami and Jacksonville, said President Carter has "effectively neutralized the presence of the Soviet brigade."

Last week the president outlined a series of responses to the troops that included establishment of a 100-to-100-man task force at Key West, and stepped-up military maneuvers in the Caribbean.

Brown also noted that the president had received assurances the status of the Soviet brigade will not change and would not be moved from Cuban soil or military adventures, but denied the United States has accepted the status quo in Cuba.

"Let no one mistake our power and our will to deter aggression by Soviet or by Cuban forces," Brown said.

"The appropriate reply to continued Soviet political and military assertiveness — such as that represented by the Soviet brigade in Cuba is 'not to hold SALT II hostage, but rather to fashion in each instance a diplomatic and military response of our own,'" he said at a Miami Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

Brown urged that Senate consideration of the SALT II treaty move forward. Critics of the treaty have threatened to stall action until the Soviet troop question is resolved.

After inspecting the new headquarters at Boca Chica Naval Air Station in Key West, Brown said he thought the measures taken by Carter were "a very effective response."

Inflation major issue

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy said Monday inflation would be a major campaign issue if he challenges President Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy has said that the administration's record on managing the economy will be a key issue if he enters the 1980 presidential races.

"Were I to run, I would run on the issues that matter most to the people, and I think the first is the question of inflation and continued escalation in the cost of living that affects every family," Kennedy said in an interview with the Boston Herald American.

"We had 7 percent inflation (in 1976) and now it is 13 percent," Kennedy told the newspaper. "That's something everyone understands in higher mortgage rates, higher food prices, higher energy costs and higher medical costs."

Kennedy, D-Mass., said the issue of leadership would be a major factor in the 1980 election.

No button big enough

This isn't the first time Riddick's been a candidate. He ran for governor of Montana in 1968 and U.S. Senator in '72. His campaigns called for increased development of Montana's natural resources and a series of irrigation canals connecting most parts of the landlocked state with the Missouri River.

After those efforts were unsuccessful, Riddick decided to "raise the ante and run for U.S. President in '76."

It was about this time Riddick got the idea for the Puritan Ethic-Prohibition-Magnetohydrodynamics Party.

Riddick said he is a key to a revolutionary new method of generating electricity from organic matter.

According to the Montana candidate's campaign literature, MHD means, well, something relating to phenomena arising from the motion electrically conducting fluids in the presence of electric and magnetic fields.

That's not exactly the stuff from which campaign slogans are made.

But it's not the only part of Riddick's campaign, either.

Take the Puritan Ethic-Prohibition part of his platform. Riddick isn't out for ban alcohol, and he says morals aren't easily legislated. But he thinks congressmen and other elected politicians are ignoring the moral beliefs implicit in the nation's basic documents. "If we don't like the morals involved in the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence, then we should change them," he insists.

One violation of those morals, Riddick says, is federal financing of elections. That's his very name and simple, he says, akin to giving politicians free booze or cigars. Riddick also shuns campaign contributions larger than a dollar, believing that small contributions have fewer strings attached.

Riddick plans to come through Idaho during his campaign. But presently he's looking for a vice presidential candidate. Asked who he had in mind, Riddick replied in one recent interview, "Right now I would like to get Evel Knievel to run. Maybe he should run for President" and he will make an ambassador to Pago-Pago. "Right now I'm just taking the campaign as it comes."

CONTRACTS

The big movie makers in Hollywood signed their actors and actresses to standardized contracts. But those for the actresses weren't the same as those for the actors. The actresses were supposed to get five extra days off every month. No such provision was in the men's contracts. Theory was that a natural matter need be considered. Supposedly, actresses faces puffed up periodically, making them unphotogenic.

Soviet student latest to join defector ranks

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — A young naval engineering student who jumped ship has become the latest Russian to request political asylum in the United States, the FBI announced Monday.
 Igor Aleksandrovich Ponomarenko, 19, left the phosphate vessel Alexander Grim last Tuesday with the help of an intermediary. He contacted U.S. officials Sunday from Brooksville, Fla., a small community about 20 miles north of Tampa.
 The FBI said it notified the State Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service. The Russian embassy in Washington was notified of the defection by the State Department.

A U.S. official said it was not known if Soviet officials plan to talk with Ponomarenko to determine if his request for asylum is voluntary, but indicated such talks could be expected. A U.S.-Soviet agreement allows representatives of each country to interview defectors before asylum is granted.

"I can't comment on why he left the ship," said Philip A. McNeill, special agent in charge of the Tampa FBI office.

"He apparently left the ship through an intermediary he had on shore. That intermediary has been in contact with our office and Ponomarenko has asked for asylum in the United States."
 A reporter for The Tampa Tribune talked with Ponomarenko at an undisclosed location Sunday. He said the young Russian said he sought asylum in the United States because he wanted to study engineering in this country, and because he had a great love for popular music.

Five prominent Soviet performers, however, defected in recent weeks, cutting the Soviets to cancel an American tour planned by a Russian symphony orchestra.

Ponomarenko was reported to be a student at the Soviet Naval Engineering Institute, but was serving in a seaman aboard the freighter. The vessel, which has his homeport of Odessa painted on the funnel, was scheduled to leave Oct. 2. But authorities said it still was at anchor in Hillsborough Bay, apparently awaiting word from officials of the Russian Embassy.

Rites today for ex-slave Charlie Smith, 137

BARTOW, Fla. (UPI) — He liked his fine whiskey neat. And he liked smoking cigarettes. "Nothing wrong with that," said Charlie Smith, age 137.

The former slave — the nation's oldest resident — died Friday. Funeral services were being planned today by his 70-year-old son, Chester. A resident of the Bartow Convalescent Center for seven years, Charlie had been in failing health for several months.

Judge backs plea bargain in theft case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Monday upheld a disputed agreement under which nine leaders of the Church of Scientology pleaded guilty to a single count in connection with an alleged conspiracy to steal government documents.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey entered his ruling on Columbus Day, just 24 hours before the church members were to stand trial on a 28-count indictment.

Richey ordered the opposing lawyers to appear Friday "whereupon the court will pronounce its findings in respect to the agreement of each of the accused" based on evidence the government will submit this week.

Chief prosecutor Raymond Banoun promptly said the U.S. attorney's office would file a notice of appeal contesting the validity of the plea agreement.

Attorneys for the church members, including Mary Sue Hubbard, wife of church founder L. Ron Hubbard, had negotiated with prosecutors over a possible plea in September, days before they were originally to stand trial.

The dispute arose "whether defense lawyers met the prosecution's 5 p.m. Sept. 23 deadline for accepting the terms of the agreement, proposed by U.S. Attorney Carl Raab."

The judge, who conducted hearings last week, said the government proposal allowed the church members to back out of their guilty pleas if not given assurances of prosecution for the same offenses in other jurisdictions.

Church attorneys had sought the assurances before accepting the agreement, the judge said, and one defense lawyer finally telephoned Banoun "a few minutes after 5 p.m." to seek clarification.

The church lawyer then accepted the plea on the condition there be no further prosecutions. While Banoun refused to get such assurances, Richey said they were "explicitly part of the offer."

Crime figures' trial faces another delay

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Trial of five major organized crime figures, hailed as likely to chronicle activities of the Mafia in Southern California over the past 25 years, has 20 days delayed pending decisions by the court on a half dozen motions filed by their attorneys.

U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson set a new date for the filing of the motions. Neither the lawyers nor the defendants were expected to be in court. Pregerson will not set a date for start of the actual trial until he has ruled on the motions.

Defendants in the case are Samuel Orlando Selortino, Dominic Brooklier, Michael Rizzello, Jack Loeicero and Louis Tom Dragna.

They are charged with racketeering, largely involving the pornography industry, conspiracy, extortion and obstructing criminal investigations.

Federal Organized Crime Strike Force prosecutors James Henderson and Hamilton P. Fox III will attempt to prove that the defendants were involved in the murder of San Diego Mafia boss Frank "The Bomp" Bompensiero, who was gunned down near his home in 1977.

They are to get charged specifically with Bompensiero's murder "with obstruction of justice in the case. FBI reports showed that Bompensiero had been a government informant and furnished information to the bureau for more than 10 years.

Their indictment was based in part on the testimony of former mob member Jimmy "The Weasel" Pratianno who pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting the obstruction of justice in Bompensiero's murder and who is being kept in protective custody. He is expected to be the key witness of the trial.

The trial originally was supposed to begin last June. It was postponed on motions filed by the attorneys after evidence was brought in of the involvement of Joseph "Joe Bonanno" Bonanno Sr., 74, a reputed Mafia don, in the Bompensiero slaying.

Justice's jail tour ends in controversy

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — West Virginia Supreme Court Justice Darrell V. McGraw Jr. said Monday he was beaten by police and handcuffed after he attempted to begin a tour of the Kanawha county jail.

Kanawha County Sheriff G. Kemp Melton said the jurist would be arraigned before a magistrate on two counts of battery for assaulting two deputies and two counts of obstructing justice.

"We are damn well going to arraign him," said the sheriff, adding that the incident remains under investigation.

McGraw, who was taken under guard to a Charleston hospital, said he went with his clerks and two members of the press to inspect the jail after a teen-ager hanged himself there last week.

McGraw said a state Supreme Court decision precluded the defendants from being jailed with adult inmates and he wanted to check the facilities.

"I asked to see the place, and they were willing to let me in and not my staff and the press," McGraw said. "I took the position it doesn't do any good for me to go in there and say what I saw."

According to McGraw, as he turned to leave, "I said jokingly, 'Okay guys, let's go in.' My humor is not good humor."

He said two sheriff's deputies in the doorway grabbed him "and one guy in the back jumped across everybody and started hitting me in the face."

He said there were "a bunch of deputies there, six or seven or eight."

Melton said the trouble flared when McGraw walked into the jail unannounced, demanding to go inside in the company of his staff and members of the news media.

"The justice came down here and made no contact with me whatsoever," Melton said. "He had not made a request to come into the jail or view the jail, or inspect it."

"If he had, I would have granted permission for him to come in. I have done this with the press and other people in the past. I certainly would have allowed that McGraw's staff and reporters. If he had explained to me why, I wouldn't have kept the media out."

Naval order may be void

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The Virginia chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union said Monday last week's Navy order prohibiting servicemen from attending a Ku Klux Klan rally or counter demonstrations appears unconstitutional.

Chan Kendrick, executive director of the Virginia ACLU, says he believes the directive violated servicemen's First Amendment rights, but that he has made no decision on whether to take the case to court.

"I think the order was clearly improper and unconstitutional," said Kendrick, who has been asked by the KKK for legal assistance. "I don't think the order would hold up in court."

Kendrick said, however, the case has been referred to ACLU attorneys and military experts in Washington for a review before a final decision is made on the KKK's request.

"I've asked for a second opinion," Kendrick said in a telephone interview from his Richmond office. "We hope to make a decision by the end of the week."

Clint potential violence, the Navy prohibited servicemen from attending a KKK rally in Virginia Beach on Friday as well as counter demonstrations at the ocean-front function.

BACK TO HEALTH

By Michael Hanline D.C.

It seems so hard to understand why we've all heard of acquaintances who merely reached to one side or stepped to pick something up and had their back "snap out" with severe pain resulting.

In most cases, it wasn't that final little twist that did all the damage. A series of small injuries over a long period of time can do the trick. You may not notice any pain by itself... have felt the "spine" in a vulnerable condition. Finally, some simple everyday activity added that extra misalignment that caused pain so severe it had to be treated.

Chiropractic adjustments can correct minor misalignments before they cause major trouble. For your appointment, just phone.

Laboratory tests efficiency of fireplaces, stoves

By BOB LOWRY
AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — In a futuristic-looking room lined with shelves of shiny aluminum, Auburn University engineers are working out the energy efficiency of wood-burning fireplaces and stoves for the first time ever.

The experiments are expected to provide valuable data for consumers interested in wood for home heating as prices of heating oil and natural gas continue to climb.

The laboratory on the outskirts of the sprawling campus opened June 1 this year in cooperation with the Fireplace Institute, a trade association representing manufacturers of wood-burning stoves, fireplaces and accessories.

About 20 units were tested during the laboratory's 90-day break-in test period, says Barry Ferner, executive secretary of the Chicago-based association.

But consumers looking for EER-labeled units will find few this fall and winter, Ferner said in a telephone interview. He speculated it would be November or December before even one or two models appeared in stores.

"We hope consumers will see wider distribution to EER-labeled units by the fall of 1980," he added.

Manufacturers need not belong to the association to have their products tested by the lab, he said.

"There is a tremendous interest in going back to wood," said David Dyer, a mechanical engineering professor at Auburn who helped design the lab. "With heating oil helping to drive up the price of gas, people will see more interest because people just can't afford it."

Dyer estimated some homeowners in the northeast can expect to pay up to $1,000 for heating fuel this winter.

"People who are running on natural gas right now are going to be in the same situation as people with heating oil because of gas price deregulation," he said. "But people have access to wood and really it's the only way out."

"I think the most important thing about this lab is that it's the first time we've gotten real data on how stoves and fireplaces work," he says. "People have been using wood for centuries, but nobody knew much about it."

The lab's 16-by-20 foot calorimeter room has a fireplace and stacks of Douglas fir in selected sizes to insure a constant fuel source. The room has double thick walls, ceiling and flooring. Twelve-inch-thick fiberglass makes it airtight, prevents heat loss through the walls and allows accurate measurement of energy output. Three large air conditioners maintain temperatures at a constant level so the exact heat output can be measured.

The data is fed into a computer that gives the unit's BTU per hour rate and efficiency percentage.

A second test, performed solely on stoves, measures the amount of heat lost up the flue. The data from this test is also analyzed by computer.

Dyer, who advocates wood as a primary fuel, installed a heat return insert in a fireplace in his home and used the fan from his electric heat pump last winter to blow the warm air through his 3,600-square-foot house.

"It (the fireplace) heated the whole house because its BTU output was about equal to my heat pump," he said.

A colleague, Glenn Maples, spent about $30 last winter to heat his home. Most of the money was for gasoline to run a chainsaw to chop his own firewood. A cord of wood costs about $25 in the Auburn area.

But before buying a wood-burning fireplace or stove, he suggests consumers be sure of what they're getting.

"A standard masonry fireplace loses about 90 to 95 percent of its heat up the chimney."

Workers at Auburn University's new laboratory analyze gas samples emitted by wood blaze to determine energy efficiency of fireplace

Needlepointer defends hobby; sends dishrag to prove point

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
The Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Apparently mss. needlepointers are too busy to defend themselves, so I must come to the rescue with my first letter to Dear Abby!

I'm referring to a letter criticizing women who needlepoint or knit while attending meetings, visiting with friends or whatever. You were right when you said it's "therapy for some who need to occupy their hands, and it beats smoking," although I'm sorry that some needleworkers smoke.

However, I wish you had pointed out that doing something with one's hands, whether it is needlepoint, knitting, crocheting or embroidery, does NOT reduce one's ability to listen or converse.

At a recent gathering of the girls, someone asked me what I was knitting. I said, "I'm knitting a dishrag."

"Humph," she grunted, "what a psychological skills taught health pros"

TWIN FALLS — A workshop called "Psychosocial Intervention for Health Care Professionals" will be held Oct. 24 in the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Conference Room D, Annex A, from 1 to 5 p.m. and again from 6 to 10 p.m.

The workshop, which is designed to help allied health and service professionals develop and facilitate ongoing psychological resources for patients and families, is sponsored by the Southeastern Idaho Center for Health Resources, Inc. (SICHR), which is based at Idaho State University. The workshop will be taught by John J. Dawson, director of the Patient and Family Support Institute, Inc. of Boise.

There is no fee for the workshop, but registration should be mailed in by Oct. 19 to Southeastern Idaho Center for Health Resources, Inc., (SICHR) Idaho State University Campus Box 602, Pocatello, Idaho 83401. For information call (208) 236-2836 or 336-5950.

waste of time!"

I just looked up and said, "When I get through I'm going to have a dishrag. What are YOU going to have?" (She graciously admitted that I had a point.)

I'm enclosing the dishrag as a gift for you, Abby. Please use it and see if you don't agree that needlework is not only therapeutic, but useful as well.

DEAR PAULA: Thanks for the dishrag. It wiped me out!

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for years, but this is my first Dear Abby letter. At the bottom of your column you say: "If you need help with your problems, write to ABBY," and could I ever use help with mine?"

I am program chairman of our PTA, and I would like to start off with something especially meaningful pertaining to children since this is the Year of the Child, but I can't find a thing Can you come to my rescue?"

DEAR FAITHFUL: How's this? "A child is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is going to sit where you are sitting, and when you are gone, attend to those things which you think are important. You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they are carried out depends on him."

"He will assume control of your cities, states and nations. He is going to move in and take over your churches, schools, universities and corporations . . . the fate of humanity is in his hands."

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked if a

Wrong! Actually the bride walks down the NAIVE!

The nave is that large separation in the center of the church dividing the church in half. The aisles are on the SIDES.

BAKED CHICKEN BREASTS
 3 whole chicken breasts
 (skinned and boned)
 6 small slices boiled ham
 6 small slices swiss cheese
 1/4 cup flour
 1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon sage
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 1/2 cup salad oil
 1-1/2 cups cream-of-mushroom soup
 1/2 cup dry white wine
 1 cup fresh mushrooms

Cut each chicken breast in half; pound until thin with edge of saucer. Place ham and cheese on each piece of chicken; roll up and tuck ends in; fasten with tooth pick. Dip chicken rolls in mixture of flour, parmesan cheese, salt, pepper and cheese. Save leftover flour-mixture. Chill chicken for at least one hour. In large skillet heat oil and saute chicken on all sides. place in casserole, add soup, wine and mushrooms. Bake at 350 degrees for 1-1/2 hours—add some milk so the chicken won't dry out. Serve over rice, mashed potatoes or noodles. Boil skins and bones. It makes a nice broth for noodles or noodle soup.

Gasoline prices: What pumped them up?

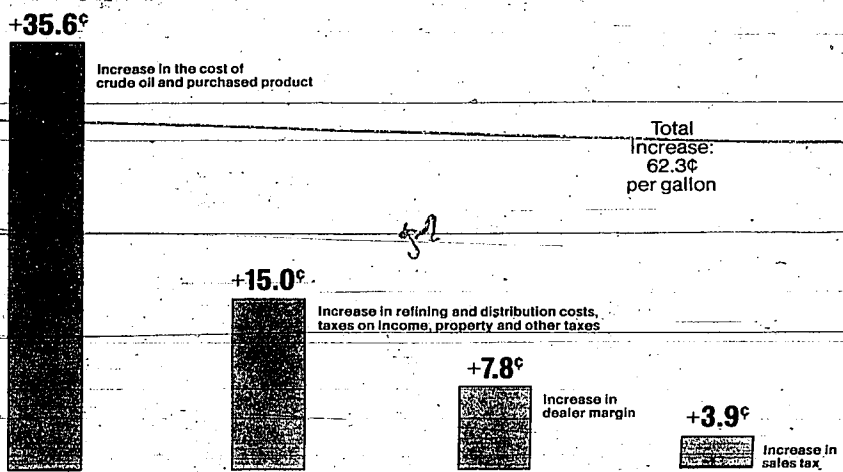

There are some very real, but not always recognized, reasons why the price of gasoline has gone up a lot since the pre-Embargo days of 1973:

Average price per gallon Chevron regular gasoline in Los Angeles.

In six years, a 62.3¢ price increase* — here's what caused it:

Greatly increased costs for crude oil, refining and distribution are the biggest reason for the price increase, as illustrated in this graph:

Chevron's profit — a very small part of the price

*The price increase includes Chevron's profit increase, which averaged 1¢ per gallon on crude oil and petroleum products sold worldwide. In other words, while gasoline prices have gone up 62.3¢ per gallon in the last six years, little of this represents Chevron's increase in profit.

Speeding development of our domestic energy sources can help reduce America's vulnerability to sudden changes in the price or availability of foreign crude oil. In turn, this would help achieve greater price stability at the pump.

It would also help if everyone did an even better job of conserving energy.

Thank you for listening.

Fed's action bolsters dollar; gold drops

By United Press International
Foreign exchange and bullion markets reacted resoundingly Monday to weekend credit tightening by the Federal Reserve, scrambling to buy dollars and sell gold while debating the impact of the Fed's strong stand.

European dealers, who had pushed the dollar higher late last week in anticipation of a dollar-support package, were nevertheless surprised at the sharpness of the rise.

Gold, meanwhile, continued the decline that began when the dollar-support rumors hit the market. In London it plunged to $374.50 an ounce from Friday's $387.50 and in Zurich to $372.50 from $385.50. In New York the selloff continued, pushing gold down to $368.35 at the close.

In response to wild speculation that it resulted in record highs for gold and near-record lows for the dollar, the Fed:

- Raised the discount rate charged on loans to member banks to a record 12 percent.
- Tacked on an additional 1 percent reserve requirement for member banks. Edge Act banks, and U.S.

branches and agencies of foreign banks and broadened the liabilities to which the reserve applies.

• Announced the Fed's open market desk would permit greater fluctuations in the federal funds market without intervention. "Which" would presumably push that key rate higher) and would concentrate instead on the money supply.

The Fed's announcement capped a rumor-filled week that had left markets in disarray.

In Frankfurt, where the dollar had been selling at record lows, it soared almost four pfennigs, closing at 1.7350 marks, compared with Friday's 1.7685 marks.

In Zurich, the dollar surged to 1.6170 Swiss francs from 1.5785; in Paris to 4.2150 francs from 4.1325; in Brussels to 40.065 Belgian francs from 29.445; in Amsterdam to 1.7350 guilders from 1.6522; and in Milan to 827.05 lira from 816.55.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose to 223.20 yen, up from Friday's close of 222.90.

In London the pound fell 4 cents to $2.1815.

• Even while buying dollars, European dealers questioned whether the strength would last.

A West German banker said he had doubts about the Carter administration's determination to fight inflation.

• The Federal Reserve wants stability, but the administration is out for re-election, he said.

A Swiss dealer, noting that U.S. banks were closed Monday for a holiday, said "it still remains to be seen whether the effect is temporary or whether there is a real dollar recovery."

But New York dealer James Sinclair said "these measures are an indication of the Fed's willingness to pursue the fight against inflation and should have an extremely positive impact on the dollar provided the Fed doesn't cancel it out by supplying reserves to the banking system."

Sinclair noted particularly that "utilization of the reserve requirement" and its extension to include Eurodollar borrowings is most meaningful as a tool in controlling the creation of money."

Sinclair also said gold would remain under pressure "if the Fed carries through with its intentions."

Business

Errors in spud report cited

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mercantile Exchange said Monday that there were "numerous errors" in a recent article in the Potato Grower of Idaho, a trade publication, that claimed "rumors" run the New York Mercantile Exchange has promised to take a close look at the Maine and Russell contracts."

The publication stated that "a move to ban trading of potato futures is gaining ground, as federal regulators have promised to take a close look at the Maine and Russell contracts."

The exchange said it was not aware of any move to end potato futures trading, much less one "gaining ground."

The Merc said the article, which said potato organizations have been leading a fight to outlaw potato futures trading, "contained many errors."

According to the publication, "investor interest is waning in the troubled New York Mercantile Exchange Maine Round White contract and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange revised russet contract has emerged with barley a yawn."

Potato organizations say that futures trading may die of a natural death because of the lack of investor interest, according to the publication.

Potato Grower said, "the russet's sliver, the Maine White contract, has acted as a blight on the family tree. Beset by delivery and price manipulation problems, the contract has ruined the reputation of all potato futures."

In May, Michael Marks, New York Merc chairman, told state and government officials, CFTC representatives and potato industry people how the Merc board decided to liquidate the April and May 1979 potato futures contracts because some 90 percent of the potatoes offered against the March contract failed to meet quality specifications.

In addition Marks proposed adding potato growers and packers to the Contract Advisory Committee. It was done.

These representatives of the potato committee have played an active role in overseeing the contract, according to the exchange.

Trading, formerly averaging 3,000 to 5,000 contracts daily, has fallen off to a listless few hundred, because investor interest have turned to precious metals, according to the exchange.

The Merc said that rumors that the exchange wants to dump the contract are totally untrue, and that a revised contract for potatoes is presently being studied by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

Union submits contract today

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers union submits its tentative agreement with the Ford Motor Co. to a rank-and-file advisory council today for a crucial pre-ratification test.

The 206-member UAW Ford Council will hear details of the pact, then vote on recommending approval by 107,000 Ford workers.

Last month, a similar group of General Motors Corp. workers approved a new contract by acclamation, and the pact subsequently was ratified by a large margin.

UAW officials said they expect the Ford contract, patterned on the GM settlement and similar in money gains, will win a similar vote of confidence.

Justice allows Amtrak to discontinue trains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Byron White Monday lifted an appeals-court order that had kept three money-losing Amtrak rail lines operating despite plans by the passenger service to shut them down.

The brief order that White signed vacates the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals' decision to give a reprieve to the Chicago-to-Houston Lone Star, the Chicago-to-Seattle North Coast Hawatha and the Chicago-Memphis lines.

An Amtrak spokesman said the trains would be allowed to make their scheduled Monday runs before they were shut down.

In its request before the high court, Amtrak argued it was losing $200,000 for each day the trains were allowed to run. The passenger service said it would be irreparably harmed if the appeals-court action were not set aside, because there was no way to recover the money.

On Friday, the 10th Circuit in Denver ordered Amtrak to keep the trains running until it could hear oral arguments Oct. 25 on an attempt by Kansas, Minnesota and Nashville, Tenn., to block discontinuation of the service.

Official denies cut in Saudi oil

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Information Minister Mohammed Abdo Yamani Monday denied a Western newspaper report that his country had decided to stop producing extra oil above its self-imposed 8.5 million barrel a day ceiling for three more months.

Yamani told the state-run Saudi press agency that "the report has no basis in truth and Saudi Arabia has not yet taken any decision to this effect."

Crown Prince Fahd announced in Jeddah Sept. 29 that his country had decided to extend its decision to increase its oil production for another three months in order to help consuming nations through the winter.

Pea prices posted

MOSCOW — Average prices for Oct. 4 have been posted by the Pacific Northwest Pea Growers and Dealers Association.

Prices for that date, the previous week and comparable week a year ago include greens 9.90, 10.35, and 6.80; yellows 9.15, 9.45 and 6.80; blacks 9.55, 9.85 and 8.40; lentils 29.20 and 15.95.

All prices are based on U.S. No. 1 grade, quoted thresher run FOB warehouse.

Debt major threat to economy

© Field Enterprises, Inc.
(First of a Series)

Among the greatest threats to the U.S. economy — and in fact, to economies the world over — is the massive total of debt, consumer and international, overhanging our financial structures. Should the current business slide in our nation deepen, broaden and endure far beyond most expectations now and turn from a recession into a major slump, a key reason would be our inability to handle these debts.

Millions of Americans who are way over their heads in debt right now, could all too easily fall from a position of basic trouble into a trap from which bankruptcy would be the only escape. A startling number of nations, the underdeveloped and Third World countries particularly, are so overloaded with debts to our banks that they could not possibly repay, that should we permit them to default, the defaults could drag down our entire banking system.

The pattern is scary — and the more you know about it, the more frightening the pattern becomes.

But we can handle even this challenge with shrewd, timely policies, and we must do it. With powerful, imaginative leadership in Washington as well as in central private-policy-making positions, I remain confident we will, indeed, achieve it.

But I am not downgrading the dangers! And neither must you, just consider these few statistics.

- Out of every 18 consumers in America, at least one is now in deep, unmanageable debt, according to conservative estimates, compared with one out of 20 in this squeeze as recently as 18 months ago. (This means that on average, they owe an amount equal to 60 percent or more of their gross annual income in installment debts.)
- Total consumer installment debt alone has catapulted to the $295 billion mark, remaining month after month, the largest consumer debt outstanding in U.S. history. Hidden behind those dollar totals are individuals who are becoming frantic — realizing more and more that they have deliberately borrowed their way into an intolerably weak financial condition.
- This debt — excludes home mortgages, it alone adds up to roughly $4,600 for every American family today, compared with current average U.S. income of $15,500.

- Meanwhile, the buying power of this average family is down! As summer ended, the purchasing power of the typical U.S. consumer was sickening 3.5 percent lower than a year ago. The result? Consumers are borrowing to make up for the loss of their buying power — and as the recession deepens, and the inflation spiral whirls higher and higher, more and more consumers borrow to try to "beat" it. (And that, I might remark parenthetically, is about the worst of all personal financial policies to follow.)
- Are you borrowing to pay for food on your table?
- Have you recently asked for a new loan before repaying an old one? Are you digging into your savings' nest egg merely to get the cash to cover everyday routine expenses?
- Are you taking cash advances from your credit cards to pay for the most ordinary monthly expenses — such as rent, electricity, phone?
- Are you seriously considering taking out a consolidation loan, so that you can repay all of your loans and then be left with one big monthly payment on the one big loan — thinking this maneuver will solve all your financial woes at once?

If your answer were to one of these questions is "yes," you almost surely are way over your head in debt.

Who is this American who gets over his or her head in debt?

IT'S YOU!

You may be a $50,000-plus executive working for one of America's Fortune 500 companies. Or you may be a family receiving welfare. Or you're somewhere in between.

In fact, you're merely typical of a consumer over your head in debt, if this is your profile:

- Head of a three-person household in your mid-30s.
- A gross annual income of around $13,500.
- Installment debts averaging $7,200 to nine different creditors.
- Spending roughly $38 per month more than you earn per month, by using credit to fill the gap!

"I still remember last winter... cold, bitter, miserable! Yet we supplied plenty of heat to every customer."

Natural gas users in Idaho are fortunate; they aren't faced with an energy crisis. That's because supply is more than ample, even into the next century. If you heat with oil and are concerned about its cost and supply this winter, changing to gas is your best alternative.

Both the U.S. Department of Energy and the Idaho Public Utilities Commission recommend the use of natural gas over oil and electricity for residential space heating. The reasons are simple: Adequate supply and maximum efficiency.

So call now, natural gas makes cents.

Shootings erupt in Basque area as home rule vote nears

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Suspected Basque guerrillas trying to wreck a home rule statute Monday machine gunned a cafeteria crowded with policemen and wounded 11 people.

In a separate attack they killed a police chief. The attacks came only hours after Interior Minister Antonio Ibanez Freire arrived in San Sebastian in the Basque country to discuss security measures with local government officials. Three men carrying submachine guns walked into the Garcia cafeteria in San Sebastian where some 20 people, mostly policemen, were eating lunch and sprayed them with three volleys of gunfire. Police said eight policemen and three civilians were wounded in the attack. Two of the policemen were reported in critical condition in a hospital Monday night suffering from head wounds. Authorities blamed the attack on members of the ETA, the Basque Land and Liberty separatist band.

Less than an hour after the cafeteria attack, two men shot and killed Police Chief Carlos Sanz, 48, as he parked his car near the bullring in Pamplona, the capital of the partially Basque province of Navarre, famous for its annual bull run. Sanz, the 11th victim of political violence this year, apparently saw his killers approaching and, ducking their first shots, drew his own pistol before being shot down, witnesses said. In the province of Santander, bordering on the Basque country, gunmen shot dead two sergeants of the paramilitary guard before dawn and seriously wounded a third. Police initially blamed the attack on political terrorists, but later said they had arrested two bank robbers in connection with the killings.

LEGAL NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that the Idaho Fish and Game Commission, in accordance with Section 36-104, Idaho Code, will hold a regular quarterly meeting October 25 and 26, 1979, at the Holiday Inn on Blue Lakes Boulevard in Twin Falls, Idaho. Sale meeting will commence at 1:00 p.m., October 25.

The Commission will consider seasons and bag limits relating to the taking of fish (other than anadromous salmon and steelhead) during 1980. The following substantive changes are recommended:

Statewide
Fishing regulation changes for 1980 are generally limited to small boundary changes, editing to clarify wording, and minor date changes. The only regulation change of statewide significance is to change the word "and brook trout" limit in Areas 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 from "10 brook trout" in addition to the general trout limit because the "10 in addition" wording allowed a total catch of 18 brook trout in some waters which could not sustain a brook trout. Regulation Changes by Area include:

Area 1
Change the definition of the stream mouth at Clark Fork and Hayden Lake tributaries to better delineate boundaries. Open Pond Oreille Lake to year-round fishing for bank and ice fishing. Change the Priest Lake opening date from "April 15" to the Saturday nearest April 15. Opening the Snake River to year-round fishing and increasing kokanee limits on Coeur d'Alene Lake will be discussed at public hearing.

Area 2
September 10 closing date for all wild cutthroat streams where harvest is allowed is recommended, while catch-and-release streams will remain open through September 30. The 10-fish brook trout limit is recommended for all waters of Area 2 for the first time, and a 5-fish coho limit in addition to the regular trout limit is recommended for Wata Lake.

Area 3
Mid-summer fishing closures on salmon spawning streams in the upper Salmon River tributaries will have the same dates: July 7-August 31, in 1980 rather than be staggered as in the past. Some changes are recommended on the Middle Fork Salmon River catch-and-release segment to provide more protection for Bolly Varden and the native steelhead run which is in seriously depleted. Trout, coho and kokanee limits in Hella Canyon of the Snake River will be changed to correspond with changes in Oregon's limit on the boundary waters.

Area 4
It is recommended that kokanee bag limits be removed during the snagging seasons on the Deadwood River and Anderson Ranch Reservoir tributaries, all Creek and Lima Creek, tributaries to the Anderson Ranch Reservoir will be open. However, the snagging season dates will be changed to correspond with the timing of the run. The trout, coho and kokanee limit at Cascade Reservoir will be reduced from 10 fish to 5 fish to better distribute the catch among the increasing numbers of fishermen.

Area 5
Additional waters at Hagerman Hatchery and Wildlife Management area will be open on March 1 to afford the anglers around a 40-day early season fishery. Because of poor carryover of water and fish, no ice fishing season on Magic or Little Wood Reservoir is recommended. Carey Lake will open to fishing on August 1 after being closed for two years to reestablish the bass and bluegill population.

Area 6
An editorial change to clarify the regulations on use of bait minnow in the upper Snake drainage is recommended. McTucker Ponds, a newly developed gravel pit area is added to list of year-round waters. Boone Creek and the lower forks of the Teton River are recommended for year-round season. A 10-fish brook trout limit is recommended for Rock Creek and tributaries in the Robinson Creek drainage. An additional segment of Henrys Fork below Ashton Power Dam will be placed on general season to protect a concentration of spawning trout in the spring. Deer Reservoir near Malad is recommended for 2-fish trout limit in an attempt to reduce fishing pressure and grow larger trout. Bagging of a reduced cutthroat run at Henrys Lake, it is recommended to reduce the 10g limit from 5 fish to 2 fish until increased hatchery stocking replenishes the population.

The Commission will also consider an amendment to the 1979-80 game regulations to prohibit the use of dogs to take bear in management units on January 1, 1980 to June 30, 1980, and any other business which may properly come before it at that time.

A public meeting will be held the evening of October 23 commencing at 7:30 p.m. to receive testimony relative to the above subject matter. Additional comments on the above matters may be made in writing to the Chairman of the Commission, P.O. Box 25, Boise, Idaho 83727.

Hunger widespread in Idaho, council says

BOISE (UPI) — More than 13 percent of Idaho's population lives below the poverty level and many of those people are hungry because of the state's "active political and economic inaction," a report of the Idaho Hunger Action Council says.

The first-of-its-kind report, written by the council and the Idaho State Economic Opportunity Office, says most of the citizens who suffer from a lack of food are either children or senior citizens.

To alleviate "widespread hunger" in the state, the report recommends Idaho legislators pass a Good Samaritan law which would give tax breaks to farmers, food processors and retailers donating food to non-profit groups feeding the hungry.

Geographical barriers to delivering food in isolated reaches of the state have caused difficulties in transporting food to hungry people, the report states.

The report states the Idaho Office on Aging estimates 118,100 senior citizens are eligible for, free to reduced-cost meals while only 25,387 of those people are participating in a food program.

The report also recommends elimination of the state sales tax on food and development of a state "food policy" program to target some of the agricultural products grown in the state for low-income people.

Oil explorer, chopper pilot die in crash

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — A Rocky Mountain Helicopter Co. pilot and a C.G.G. oil exploration firm employee died today in the fiery crash of a helicopter which ignited a one and one-half acre forest fire in the Targhee National Forest 50 miles east of Idaho Falls.

Idaho State Patrol spokesman Charles Rector, Idaho Falls, said pilot Tom Carter, out of the Provo, Utah, company's Boise office, and Denver and Jackson, Wyoming-based C.G.G. employee David Corbin died just after noon when the craft burst into flames on impact near the Thompson Creek area of the Palisades Ranger District.

Matthews to Idaho: 'Must protect land'

BOISE (UPI) — Friends of the Earth President Edwin Matthews told Idaho Conservation League members that Idahoans have an "incredible" responsibility to protect the state's wilderness.

He said it is "essential" that today's Idahoans work to protect their environment so people 50 to 100 years in the future also will have wilderness.

Schools overcrowded Kimberly voters face bond issue

By BEN MCKELWAY

KIMBERLY — Already bursting at the seams, Kimberly schools face an overcrowded future unless voters pass a $1,200,000 school bond issue next Tuesday.

Recent population growth has caused an enrollment increase that is sure to continue as Kimberly makes the transition from peaceful farm town to Twin Falls suburb.

Kimberly residents will elect a mayor Nov. 6, and both candidates have endorsed the bond issue.

Escapees nabbed in Michigan

BOISE (UPI) — Two Idaho State Penitentiary escapees were captured Sunday in Michigan after a high-speed chase.

Theodore T. Dickle, a convicted murderer, and robber William Hackworth were arrested by Menominee, Mich., police and charged with escaping Sept. 28 from an Idaho prison farm.

Police gave chase after a Marinette County sheriff's deputy made a routine identification check on 2 men sleeping in a car in western Marinette County. The car, which had been reported stolen in Illinois, was pursued by Marinette County sheriff's officers and police units from Marinette and Menominee. The chase ended when the car struck a light pole.

No one was injured in the chase or capture, police said. They said a search of the vehicle found 3 rifles and 2 handguns, but no shots were fired during the chase.

Dickle, who once lived in Marinette, Wis., across the Menominee River from where the pair was captured, was sentenced to 3 consecutive life terms in 1952 for murder, including the November 1952 rape and slaying of a 10-year-old Boise girl. While in custody awaiting sentencing for that murder, he confessed to the May 1962 murders of a Montana Home Airmen's wife and 2-year-old son.

Tainted chickens destroyed

TOWNSEND, Mont. (UPI) — Some 35,000 chickens contaminated by PCB which had leaked into a feed additive were destroyed at Montana Farms, Inc., during the weekend.

The birds were among 112,000 chickens Montana Farms must destroy because of contamination. The PCB leaked into a feed additive at the Pierce Packing Co. of Billings, Mont. Ralph Morand, owner and operator of Montana Farms, said all of his flocks must be killed.

Montana and federal officials said the contamination of eggs, poultry and 2 hogs by the polychlorinated biphenyls leak at Pierce poses no health threat. But they describe its impact on Montana poultry producers with the same word — "devastating."

About 53,000 contaminated chickens earlier were destroyed in Montana. The destruction of chickens at Montana farms will bring the total number of contaminated chickens killed in Montana, Idaho and Utah to about 700,000.

The contamination also has been found in 14 other states and Canada. Morand said more than one million eggs have been destroyed at Montana Farms, in addition to tens of thousands of eggs earlier destroyed by Montana poultry ranchers.

Rare page in old Bible costs $6,500

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Book collector Jacob Zeitlin has paid $6,500 for a single page from a rare 15th Century Gutenberg Bible.

The sale was one of many negotiated Sunday at a benefit auction held at the plush Bel Air estate of the late hotel magnate Conrad Hilton. The auction raised $25,000 for Immaculate Heart College.

The page purchased by Zeitlin came from an incomplete copy of the Bible donated to the school by the Edward L. Dehony estate. There are reportedly only 48 remaining copies of the Bible, which was printed by Johann Gutenberg in Mainz, Germany, in 1456.

The page was a historical landmark for the rest of the Western world and the last complete copy was sold for $2 million.

Several other rare books and art pieces from the college's collection were put on the block, including a 15th century woodcut by Albrecht Dürer, which was bought for about $1,500.

The Hilton estate is also for sale at $16 million, making it one of the most expensive houses ever offered for sale in Los Angeles.

Nursing program to be phased out

NAMPA (UPI) — Northwest Nazarene College at Nampa plans to phase out its 2-year nursing program in 3 years when current students have completed the course.

Dr. Darrell Marks, NNC science department chairman, said the program is being phased out because of the small number of students participating.

He said the school will continue to offer pre-nursing along with other pre-professional courses.

Idaho law grant

BOISE (UPI) — The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration has awarded $89,947 to Idaho to research, design and implement an improved prosecutor system in the state.

A recent study of the state's prosecutor system found wide discrepancies in prosecutors' salaries and work loads.

Briefly in sports

Bruins on TV

TWIN FALLS — Bruin football is on the air. For the first time in KMYT-TV's history, a taped television telecast of Twin Falls High School football will be provided local residents Saturday.

KMYT plans to air the second night's Bruin game with Meridian in Bruin Stadium and re-broadcast it Saturday immediately following the World Series on Channel 11, according to Steve Sizer, sports director for the television station.

This will be the second such telecast of Magic Valley football since the current season began. The first game broadcast was Jerome vs. Buhl.

"We've had a good response so far," said Sizer. "We feel it allows the teams to get more exposure, and it's a very easy program to sell to the community."

Sizer will be doing the play by play, while Ed Peterson, former Buhl coach and now vice principal at Jerome High School, will provide the color.

On Oct. 26, the station will re-broadcast the Burtley-Minico clash. In addition, it hopes to continue the coverage during basketball season.

Bronco films tonight

TWIN FALLS — Game films of Boise State University's 37-35 victory over Montana last weekend will be shown tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Littlefree Inn.

The meeting is the weekly session of the Bronco Athletic Association.

Autocross on Sunday

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Sports Car Club will host its annual "Me-N-Ed's Autocross" Sunday at the north parking lot of the College of Southern Idaho.

Technical inspections and practice runs begin at 10 a.m., and the official times runs begin at 1 p.m. Me-N-Ed's Pizza Parlor of Twin Falls will provide trophies.

An autocross is a test of driver skill and automobile handling by maneuvering between pylons during an electronically-timed run. Only one car runs on the course at one time.

Automobiles are classed according to rules established by the SOLO II rules of the Sports Car Club of America which matches horsepower, weight and other characteristics of automobiles.

A technical inspection precedes the event to establish minimum safety requirements. Drivers are required to wear helmets and seat belts.

Entry fee is $1 for entering the practice runs which will enable drivers to become familiar with the type of maneuvers which might be encountered during the official runs. This includes acute gates, one-eighties, slalom, clover-leaf and increasing (or decreasing) radius turns.

Fees for the timed runs are $4 for a member of any sports car club or affiliation and $5 for others.

There is no charge for spectators.

For more information contact Harold Gerber at 733-1422.

Bowling tourney ends

IDAHO FALLS — Two Boise bowlers captured October's Idaho Scratch Bowlers Association championship Sunday at Skyline and Bowl-ero Lanes.

Jackie Thomas came back from third place in the qualifying rounds to win her division in the head-to-head competition.

She defeated Judy Woodson of Pocatello 110 to 106. Lettie Madsen of Idaho Falls 215 to 205, and Ann Nielsen, the top qualifier from Boise, 160 to 169.

The final standings were Thomas, Nielsen, Madsen, Woodside and Pat Goodwin of Idaho Falls.

In the men's competition, Cullen had the top qualifying score of 1,755 for a 218 average. He beat Boyd Joyce of Idaho Falls in the playoffs 212 to 161.

The WISBA will be bowled next at the Cosmopolitan Lanes-In-Boise Nov. 3-4. In December, it will be bowled at the Magic Bowl in Twin Falls and in January at the Bowladrome in Twin Falls.

Rose wins contest

TWIN FALLS — Stan Rose, the owner of S. Rose Interiors, 320 Main Ave. N., is this week's Times-News Plugkin-Picks winner.

Rose tied with three others with four misses in the contest, but won because he was only five points off the combined score of the Idaho-Idaho State tiebreaker score. The combined score was 51 points, while Rose picked the score at 46.

Those three who were tied with him included Van Olsen of Twin Falls, Joe H. Sanders of Rupert, and Everett Martin of Buhl.

The games Rose missed were Houston vs. St. Louis, California vs. Oregon, Maryland vs. Penn State and Texas vs. Texas Tech.

"It was the first time I entered," said a surprised Rose after learning of his win. "One of our helpers here came in with a paper and convinced me to enter."

Rose said he got lucky in predicting a couple of upsets.

The contest entry blank is run in each Saturday edition of the Times-News. The winner receives $25.

'Sky' picks Allioti

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State quarterback Joe Allioti and Idaho defense end Larry Barker were named today Big Sky Conference offensive and defensive football players of the week.

Allioti, a 6-4, 185 pounds junior, is the first player of the 1979 season to be named player of the week twice.

WAC honors Wilson

DENVER (UPI) — Brigham Young University quarterback Marc Wilson, who held four national collegiate football records outright, added a fifth last week in leading the Cougars to a 38-15 victory over Hawaii.

For his play in the game, Wilson was named Western Athletic Conference offensive player of the week.

AAU agrees to sanction Jerome meet

JEROME — The Amateur Athletic Union has sanctioned the recent Southern Snake River Artistic Tournament held in Jerome.

The official sanction means that several state records — including many by local and state contestants — are now in the record book.

According to Mike Requa, meet director and manager of The Fitness Center in Twin Falls, the AAU agreed to the sanction after it was realized that several contestants who held AAU cards had competed illegally. The AAU, he said, was considering banning some of the participants from competition for one year.

Snake River AAU Association convinced the state AAU to instead give its approval to the meet.

New records which were established by local and state people at the meet included:

- Barbara Hess of Jerome, 111 pounds, records for squat lift at 200 pounds, bench press at 110, and dead lift at 270.
- Mike Clason of Payette, 148, dead-lift record at 540 pounds.
- Ron Axman of Twin Falls, 275, records for squat lift at 605, bench press at 300, and dead lift at 610. Axman broke records which were previously held by Dick Haynes of Twin Falls at 555, 315, and 575 respectively.

Requa also reported that Jerome has a good shot at staging the state championships here next April.

Usually held in Boise, the state has has renounced its meet to the Northwestern U.S. Championships.

"Jerome is the only other place in the state which has put on a meet," said Requa. "So we have a good chance to get it."

Other meets coming up include the Western Open at Provo, Utah, Dec. 1, and the Big Sky Open at McCall, Idaho, in February. Several local people are expected to take part in both.

Jazz tickets now on sale

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah Jazz ticket manager Becky Hinton has announced that tickets for the historic first regular-season NBA game ever played in Utah are now on sale.
