

Congress takes pay raise; government keeps on rolling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate reversed an earlier vote Friday night and narrowly agreed to accept a House-passed compromise plan ending a deadlock that threatened to hold up paychecks for millions of government workers.

The plan, narrowly approved after hours of parliamentary wrangling, gives members of Congress a 3.4 percent pay increase and adds restrictions on the use of federal funds for abortions.

The pay and abortion issues had blocked approval of the measure needed to continue funding for government agencies whose budget authority expired Oct. 1.

The compromise was approved on a vote by the House in mid-afternoon and then sent to the Senate which first defeated the plan, 62-26, but reconsidered it's action and finally passed the bill, 48-41.

The bill was immediately rushed to the White House, where President Carter signed it at 8 p.m. MDT.

The president was concerned about the appropriations delay and directed that once the bill reached the White House it be brought to him immediately, presidential spokesman Rex Granum said.

The amendments containing the pay raise and abortion provisions were part of a continuing resolutions bill which allows all major departments to continue spending at their current level until their individual appropriations for fiscal 1980 are passed.

The continuing resolution is effective until Nov. 20, but there was considered to be no chance the pay and abortion provisions would be changed.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., urged defeat of the measure because of the pay provision. He said Congress should set an example for the rest of the nation during the present period of economic problems.

The compromise was supported by both Democratic and Republican leaders, although they said they were forced into the position because of the impending financial crisis facing government workers and agencies.

"I'm opposed to seeing the government grind to a halt," said Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker.

A conference committee worked out the compromise earlier Friday, settling differences on the issues of abortion funding and congressional pay that were attached to a bill needed to provide continuing federal funds for 1.6 million members of the armed forces and 1.25 million federal workers.

Authority to pay the military and more than half of the 2.3 million federal workers ran out Oct. 1, the start of the 1980 fiscal year. Resolutions covering the other workers already have been adopted.

Gas decontrol gets boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted Friday to remove federal price controls on gasoline and end the allocation system, but decided to retain government powers giving farmers and crucial services priority supplies in emergencies.

The vote for decontrol of gasoline prices was 191-129, a thin three-vote margin. The decision ensures that agriculture and essential services do not run out of fuel during shortages was 237-119.

Idaho Congressmen, George Hansen and Steve Symms, both Republicans, voted for decontrol.

The actions were taken on the House version of a bill to authorize a $9.9 billion appropriation for the Energy Department for fiscal 1980. The votes could be reversed later by the House or through compromises with the Senate.

Former Energy Secretary James Schlesinger proposed decontrol of gasoline prices earlier this year but President Carter rejected the idea last summer on grounds it would cause prices to skyrocket.

Energy Department officials predicted at the time that gasoline prices would stabilize around $1 or $1.10 a gallon, with or without federal control.

But Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., warned Friday that decontrol will mean prices of $1.50 per gallon or "almost anything the traffic could bear."

"Before controls," he said, "there were shortages in the market. There were shortages in all parts of the country. Eliminating the allocation structure will not necessarily eliminate the lines.

Saudis request missiles

© The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — Saudi Arabia has asked the U.S. government for permission to buy controversial American cluster bombs, each capable of spreading a killing hail of steel splinters over an area larger than a football field.

The request, which would greatly increase the punch of the F-5 jets in the Saudi air force, was described in a classified memo sent to members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

According to Pentagon officials, the Carter administration has not yet decided if it will approve sale of the cluster bombs. Maverick "smart bomb" air-to-ground missiles and Sidewinder air-to-air missiles. If the administration authorizes the deal, congressional approval also would be required.

The Saudi request for anti-personnel cluster bombs could touch off a controversy as heated as the one that preceded congressional approval last year of the sale of 60 F-15 warplanes to Saudi Arabia.

"It is a very emotional weapon and a lot of folks don't want to see the Saudis have it," a Pentagon official said.

But he added that Israel and its supporters in Congress may find it difficult to argue for tight restrictions on the weapon, which the Israelis have had for several years and which they used in combat in southern Lebanon last year.

Water rules may be relaxed

BOISE (UPI) — State environmental officials told a legislative interim committee Friday they might alter proposed water quality regulations to mollify the protests of industries, farmers and lawmakers.

Dr. Lee Stokes, administrator of the state Environment Division, said the division may loosen a rule which requires a maximum level of dissolved oxygen below hydroelectric dams.

The only violation of the present standard has occurred at American Falls Dam, in which the Twin Falls and North-Side canal companies are spearheaders.

"We may be able to support some kind of change," Stokes said.

The Legislature last session passed a concurrent resolution lowering the existing dissolved oxygen standard, but the resolution was disputed by Gov. John V. Evans.

The governor, quoting an attorney general's opinion, said the resolution was not legal because the higher oxygen standard already had been approved by the state Health and Welfare Board.

Stokes told the Joint Health and Welfare Committee that response from a series of public hearings on the division's proposed water quality standards may move officials to loosen some of the standards.

He said whether the changes will be made depends on a final review of public comments, further discussion within the division, and talks with state Fish and Game Department officials.

F&G officials fear the relaxed oxygen standard would harm fish populations.

Stokes said "significant" changes might be made in the various proposed regulations as a result of comment at hearings in Bonners Ferry, Boise, Pocatello, Coeur d'Alene, Twin Falls and Lewiston.

The division, Stokes said, is trying to be responsive to the wishes of the people who would be affected by the regulations and the Legislature.

Stokes last week received a letter from Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge and House Speaker Ralph Ortega in which the Republican leaders charged the division with "ignoring" the concurrent resolution.

Budge, in describing the letter, said, "What the bottom line here is is that they (the division) will be looking at less money unless they recognize the Legislature's action."

Visit costing millions

Castro lashes out at U.S.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Fidel Castro held the podium of the U.N. General Assembly hall for two hours and five minutes Friday, denouncing the West in general, the United States and Israel in particular and warning the gap between rich and poor was sending the world toward a new "holocaust."

Clad in green fatigues and periodically stroking his long black beard, Castro's voice grew progressively louder and his fist-pounding gestures more emphatic throughout his marathon speech, which was frequently interrupted by applause.

At its conclusion, Cuba's Communist president received a standing ovation and some Third World representatives among the 2,000 delegates in the huge domed auditorium departed from the customary gray-suit territory of the assembly and chanted "Fidel, Fidel."

From there, U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim gave a private luncheon in his honor, a routine for visiting heads of state.

Addressing the luncheon in Spanish, Castro expressed further displeasure about the United States and blamed it for plots to assassinate him.

"The United States has trained the terrorists. Now they have the problem of protecting me," he said in a very crack about the tight security that has surrounded him in New York.

"I do not know how many plans of assassination have been organized," Castro added, referring to previous admissions by the CIA that it funded a number of unsuccessful death plots, "but in the end the Americans were at fault."

Castro also complained he had been humiliated when he arrived at Kennedy airport early Thursday. He said he was asked to fill out "a lot of papers," but refused, and also tried he had to face "a very inquisitive American reporter."

He said it was "not easy" for him to visit the United States, but he felt compelled to come to the United Nations as representative of the non-aligned nations.

U.S. Ambassador Donald McHenry attended the luncheon, but U.S. officials, who have stressed that they have no desire to meet with Castro during his visit, called McHenry's presence purely "social."

McHenry also exchanged a stiff, perfunctory handshake with Castro on a receiving line after the speech. The Israeli delegates, angered by Castro's comparison of the Jewish state to Nazi Germany, did not bother.

Whole city blocks near the U.N. were emptied and thousands of anti-Castro Cuban exiles were kept a discreet distance away. There were a few scuffles with a smaller number of pro-Castro demonstrators but no major incidents.

The job of protecting Castro from potential assassins, which has already cost New York City and the federal government several million dollars, was further complicated Friday by Castro's disclosure in a Washington Post interview he plans to stay in the United States for 5 to 10 days.

The 52-year-old Cuban revolutionary gave no details of his other plans for the visit, his first to the United States since 1960.

Commissioners will probably scrap impact area

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — County Commissioners indicated Friday they will go along with the recommendations of their Planning and Zoning Commission and abandon the presently proposed Twin Falls impact area.

County Commissioner Ann Cere said action by the county zoning commission Thursday night to deny the proposed boundaries for future expansion of Twin Falls city will mean more negotiations and probably an educational program aimed at better informing the rural public around Twin Falls.

Lafar Orton, Twin Falls city planner said the city is willing to negotiate with the county on a new proposal, but added he doesn't know what the county wants. Most of the boundaries that drew a negative vote Thursday night were set at the request of the county officials, he said. Orton also said he felt there was a sad lack of understanding and mistrust on the part of rural residents whose property would be covered by the area of impact.

Persons attending the Thursday hearing on impact areas for Twin Falls and Buhl expressed concern the impact designation was just the first step in annexing their property to the city, bringing higher taxes, more restrictions and fees for services they do not want.

The Buhl Impact area proposal drew only two comments and zoning commission members approved it with only one dissenting vote. Cere (Gas) Kellner voted against the Buhl plan, after a speech urging county officials to call on legislators to repeal the Local Planning act of 1975.

In recommending the county commissioners approve the Buhl impact area, the zoning officials asked that it include a stipulation that any parcel of land in the area which is made up of 20 acres or more be treated as a farm and not subject to county rather than city building and zoning regulations.

Kellner told the crowd attending the hearing the land use law is complicated, unwieldy and few can understand it. He said it should be scrapped and rewritten in simple, enforceable and understood language.

Urging the commission not to approve the impact area proposals, Kellner said Twin Falls is a farm community, not a metropolis and a farm community needs a minimum of restrictions for the town and county.

The county officials gave their approval to revisions in the county zoning ordinance that would allow mobile homes in residential agriculture zones and call for a review committee study on any dumping into canyons in the county.

Other action included denying the AAA High Co. a conditional use to store and sort beans in the old Solomon warehouse property south of Buhl; approve a conditional use for Simplot Co. for another warehouse on

Times-News reader survey to appear again Sunday

The Times-News will publish a reader survey form for the second time with Sunday's edition.

The survey contains a listing of Times-News general features. Readers are being asked to mark their degree of interest and mail the survey back to the newspaper. The survey is postage free.

"We're very interested in what our readers think of our product as it exists today," said Managing Editor Neil Hopp. "If enough forms are returned we can use them as a basis for evaluating our product and consider making changes according to reader interest."

Saturday briefing

First Chinese cargo

American President Lines' first ship to call in the Peoples Republic of China in almost 30 years is berthed by tugboats in Hainkang harbor. The vessel unloaded 10,000 bales of cotton and took aboard the first fully containerized cargo China has shipped directly to the U.S.

Advisory group wants powers, size of nuclear panel reduced

WASHINGTON — The presidential commission investigating the Three Mile Island nuclear accident will recommend that President Carter reorganize the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to strengthen its powers in the field of nuclear safety, it was learned Friday.

The 12-member commission will recommend that the five-member NRC be scaled down to either a single commissioner or a three-member commission headed by a chairman with power to overrule the two other members. The presidential panel also will recommend that the NRC divest itself of any authority it has in the field of nuclear energy that does not relate directly to safety.

"That means things like control over nuclear exports and the regulation of weapons-grade uranium," one source close to the presidential commission said. "Whatever can be taken away from the NRC that doesn't have to do with safety, we would like to take away."

The presidential panel, known as the Kemeny Commission after its chairman, John G. Kemeny, also will recommend a major change in siting policy for nuclear power plants, the source said. Instead of plants being built as close as 10 miles to small cities, the Kemeny Commission will urge that nuclear plants be built at least 20 miles from cities above a certain size. What population figure will be used to determine which cities would be affected would be set later.

However, the membership of the committee is heavily weighted in favor of the treaty. The fact that the meaning of the vote on Glenn's motion was open to different interpretations. In one sense, it could be said the treaty survived the first of many obstacles expected before final approval is reached.

Thus his vote for a temporary commission delay was viewed with interest in the Senate. President Carter said Friday of the treaty's prospects for Senate approval.

U.S. to arm island friends

WASHINGTON — The Washington Post is moving to establish a multinational Caribbean seaport patrol force as part of its effort to show resolve in the face of Cuban and Soviet aggressiveness in the Western Hemisphere, government officials said Friday.

They added that the administration, as another part of its response to Soviet troops in Cuba and Cuban military adventurism in the Caribbean, is considering resuming sales of military equipment, but not modern weapons, to anti-Castro governments in Central America.

Senate passes aid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved an $8.1 billion foreign aid money bill Friday after voting to prohibit help to any country in the Western Hemisphere that does not oppose hostile foreign combat troops on its soil.

Stung by the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba, the Senate ushered the hemisphere amendment through by voice vote after only a few minutes of debate.

Pro-Kennedy workers out

WASHINGTON — The White House has begun a survey aimed at purging from the administration any political appointees who plan to actively support Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, the Los Angeles Times has learned.

Any men or women so identified who do not have civil service status will be promptly fired, White House officials said Friday.

Long-time Kennedy supporters are sprinkled throughout the administration. Some already have quietly contacted the senator's political operatives, according to knowledgeable sources. Others have been contacted by Kennedy operatives about working for the Massachusetts senator.

Committee defeats motion to delay action on SALT

NEW YORK (UPI) — A committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee defeated a motion that it postpone action on the strategic arms treaty with the Soviet Union, Senate sources said Friday.

The motion, which was offered by Sen. John H. Chafee, a Republican, was defeated by ten votes to five during a closed door meeting of the committee called to discuss plans for action on the arms agreement. The committee later voted to begin marking up the treaty on Monday.

The meaning of the vote on Glenn's motion was open to different interpretations. In one sense, it could be said the treaty survived the first of many obstacles expected before final approval is reached.

However, the membership of the committee is heavily weighted in favor of the treaty. The fact that the meaning of the vote on Glenn's motion was open to different interpretations. In one sense, it could be said the treaty survived the first of many obstacles expected before final approval is reached.

It is believed likely that during full floor debate of the treaty there will be other motions to put off action on the pact. Although Glenn has expressed doubts about the verifiability of the treaty, pro-treaty forces have been hoping for his support. Baker has said publicly several times that he favors bringing the treaty to a vote this year, although he would consider proposals for delay.

President Carter said Friday of the treaty's prospects for Senate approval.

Almanac

By United Press International Today is Saturday, Oct. 13, the 286th day of 1979 with 79 to follow.

The moon is moving from its last quarter toward its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

Spanish King Ferdinand VII was born Oct. 13, 1784. Actor Cornel Wilde was born on this date in 1918.

On this date in history: In 1775, the Continental Congress ordered construction of a naval fleet, thus originating the U.S. Navy.

In 1943, Italy declared war on Germany, her Axis partner earlier in World War II.

In 1978, President Carter signed the Civil Service Reform Act into law.

A thought for the day: Scottish novelist Robert Louis Stevenson said, "The cruellest lies are often told in silence."

al that "the issue in the Senate is genuinely in doubt." The president also seemed to hint that a delay until next year would be harmful, saying there would be some "partisan reaction year."

Carter, who was speaking to a group of community leaders from Minnesota and Missouri at the White House, endorsed the idea of televising the treaty debate in the Senate, commenting that "it would be a superb contribution to the awareness of the American people."

Ironically, it was Republican opponents of the treaty who in June first urged televising the treaty debate, arguing it would promote fairness by giving the opposition exposure on television to balance the president's relatively free access to airtime.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) is perhaps the most decisive voice in determining whether the debate will be broadcast. He has shown increasing sympathy towards the idea but has said the discussion could not be televised unless there were an agreement to limit debate to about four weeks or so.

Television cameras were permitted into the Senate to record the swearing-in of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller in 1974, but no legislative action in the Senate chamber has ever been televised. The debate of the Panama Canal treaties was broadcast by National Public Radio.

Two trains collide head-on HARVEY, Ill. (UPI) — A passenger train full of college-bound youngsters collided head-on with a parked freight train Friday night south of Chicago. Two railroad employees were killed and at least 25 people were reported injured.

Witnesses said the five-car passenger train, one of Amtrak's new "Superliners" en route from Cardonville to Chicago, slammed into the 49-car Illinois Central freight train at 8:15 p.m. CDV 15 the Harvey switching yards. The cause of the wreck was believed to be a switch error.

By 10:30, a spokesman said, between 15 and 40 people were being treated at Ingalls Memorial Hospital in Harvey and 10 were taken to South Suburban Hospital in nearby Hazelcrest.

The spokesman at Ingalls said most of the injuries appeared not to be serious, but there were unconfirmed reports of a few critical injuries.

Stafford's wife takes stand

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A tearful Verna Stafford testified Friday she did not stand to watch her enraged husband, Roger Dale Stafford, gun down six restaurant employees crowded into a small walk-in freezer and said he forced her to fire at the victims.

"Roger fired first and then I see him shoot the manager," Mrs. Stafford said. "I couldn't watch no more, so I turned and walked away. I heard a bunch of firing and a lot of screaming."

Stafford, 27, is on trial for six counts of first-degree murder in the July 16, 1978, slayings at the Sirloin Stockade restaurant.

Mrs. Stafford, the state's key witness, said she and Roger were about to be evicted from their Tulsa, Okla., home. They planned the robbery with his brother Harold.

New estranged from her husband, Mrs. Stafford said the trio drank heavily on the way to Oklahoma City, about 100 miles from Tulsa.

Today's weather

High pressure shows little sign of weakening

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, and Gooding show little sign of weakening today.

Continued fair weather today. Slightly cooler Sunday with a few clouds. Highs 70 to 75 today and 65 to 70 Sunday. Lows mostly in the 30s.

Harvest outlook including haying and potato, dry through Wednesday with a cooling trend. Light morning dew.

Four-inch soil temperature trend, soil temperatures generally remaining above 45 degrees through Monday but locally temperatures will drop to near 45 degrees about sunrise.

Halley, Camas Prairie, and Wood River Valley: Fair and mild today. Slightly cooler Sunday with a few clouds. Highs 70 to 75 today and 65 to 70 Sunday. Lows 25 to 30 tonight.

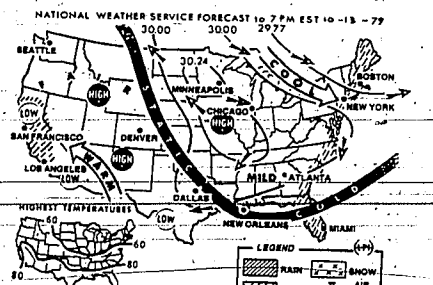

Synopsis: Clear to partly cloudy skies and very pleasant daytime temperatures dominated Idaho's weather scene Friday. High pressure that had been solidly entrenched over the Pacific Northwest for the past month remained in place and showed no signs of weakening. A weather system presently centered off the California Coast will begin to move inland to the south of the state. A few high clouds and slightly cooler temperatures may be felt over the southern portion of Idaho towards the first of the week.

Overnight low temperatures Friday morning ranged from the near freezing mark to the middle 40s. The coldest reporting station in the state was Elk City with a 22 degree reading.

Due to the continued lack of rainfall and unseasonably warm dry weather, fire danger remains unusually high. Hunters, hikers, campers, and woodcutters using the forests and rangelands are asked to be extremely cautious with campfires, matches, chainsaws, and cigarettes.

"Help me Help You!"

Hi. As the new managing editor of the Times-News, I want to get to know you better.

One way you can tell me what you like, and don't like, about our newspaper is to fill out a reader survey form we published in last Sunday's edition. Because some of you may have missed it, we'll be publishing it again this Sunday.

I came to Twin Falls because I want to help make the Times-News the best newspaper in the state of Idaho. To do that we need to produce a quality news product that you want to read.

The reader survey form contains a listing of our features. All you have to do is check a box indicating your interest. Then mail it back (postage free) or drop it off at our offices.

We'll be using the computer processing facilities at Idaho State University to tabulate the results. Then we'll study the survey with an eye toward upgrading our news columns.

Idahoans have given me a great reception in the short time I've been here. Lend me a hand with the survey, won't you?

Jury investigates possible bribe attempt by Libya

© N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury in Manhattan has started taking testimony to determine whether the Libyan government attempted to bribe top American officials to obtain export licenses for Lockheed C-130s and other military equipment, sources close to the investigation disclosed Friday.

John C. White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, appeared before the grand jury Thursday and issued a statement Friday saying, "I have and will continue to cooperate fully in the investigation." He added, "I was told that I am not a target of any investigation."

A spokesman for Robert B. Flske, the United States attorney for the Southern District where the grand jury is sitting, declined to comment on White's statement that he is not a target or on any other aspect of the investigation.

The United States attorney's office learned of the alleged bribery scheme through an informant who said the Libyan government was prepared to bribe government officials and others with up to $30 million to obtain the release of eight Lockheed C-130 cargo planes which have been sitting on the Tarmac at Grand Rapids since the Libyans purchased them six years ago.

The State Department has refused to permit the export of those planes because of Libyan aid to terrorist organizations.

The government's informant, whose identity has not been disclosed, said the Libyans were working with James C. Day Jr., a former Texas state legislator, to obtain the release of the airplanes.

The informant secretly recorded conversations he had had with Day and other alleged conspirators, according to sources close to the investigation.

In an interview Day acknowledged he had been negotiating with the Libyans to set up a lobbying office for them in Washington. However, he insisted he had reached no agreement with the Libyans and he denied participating in any bribery scheme.

Day has known White for more than 20 years. White said he met with Day last spring and rejected a request from Day to set up a meeting for the Libyans with President Carter to discuss the release of the C-130 airplanes.

Day has denied asking White to set up such a meeting.

Day and White both acknowledge meeting later the same day for between 5 and 10 minutes with Mansour Rashid Kikhia, the Libyan ambassador to the United States. The meeting was photographed clandestinely by federal agents.

According to Day and White, the C-130s were not discussed at the meeting with the Libyan ambassador, which both men described as purely "social."

When White was asked two weeks ago whether he had suggested an alternative to a White House meeting to Day, White said, "I told them to go to the State Department."

Committeewoman Kay Thomas sifts through Dade County Democratic Caucus ballot of 900 names

On 'eve of Carter 'test' Media swarms over Florida

© The Washington Post
MIAMI — The American public is about to witness a spectacle of symbiosis between politicians and the press — a chicken-and-egg game surrounding Saturday's Democratic caucuses in Florida.

The press is here in vast numbers because the politicians are here. The politicians are here because the press is. Many headlines and much TV news will follow, concerning who "won" and who "lost" in these caucuses, the first in the nation. But not a single delegate will be chosen.

The charge of "mediatization" has been flung at the early machinations of presidential campaigns — particularly the New Hampshire primary — for some time. But the Florida caucuses have elevated the media event to a whole new level. They are five months earlier than New Hampshire. And unlike the New Hampshire primary, this is merely an expression of party sentiment. In terms of the 1980 nomination campaign, nothing will happen here.

This story is in the nature of a warning to consumers of the news, an attempt to explain how the Florida caucuses became such a big deal.

"The first time I realized something was peculiar was when one of the TV stations called me and asked about who was renting my buses," says Elliott Hecker, the sales manager of American Sightseeing Tours here and until this month a man convinced that he had seen it all in the transportation business.

Hecker shrugs his shoulders in bewilderment. "Then some other people in the media called. I thought somebody was putting me on. I've handled three national political conventions. Nobody fought for buses. The Super Bowl wasn't this bad. What are they making such a big deal out of this for?"

Just about everybody affected by Saturday's Democratic caucuses here from political organizers to reporters to unsuspecting bus company executives like Hecker — feels that the fuss being made over these caucuses is completely out of proportion to their importance. Early presidential campaign politics seems to have taken on its own momentum here, illogical but nonetheless irresistible.

Florida voters won't actually choose delegates to the national conventions until March 11, but over the next month, the public will be exposed to a series of psychological struggles among candidates that will set the early tone for the 1980 campaigns.

Left to their own devices, the Democrats of Dade County would probably stay away from their caucus in droves. But the two campaigns don't intend to leave them to their own devices, and the media won't let anyone alone.

Here and in other populous Florida counties, wire-service reporters will interview every single voter emerging from the caucuses. The reason is that official results may not be ready until next week and the newspapers are eager to print the results in Sunday's editions.

Heating oil stocks hit goal

United Press International
 The oil companies that withheld home-heating oil from the market to meet the Carter administration's stockpiling goal should be able to supply consumers this winter with the same amount of fuel they received last year, a trade group said Friday.

In Washington, President Carter announced the nation has 235 million barrels of heating oil in stock after a seven-month effort by the administration to force the industry to rebuild inventories from record low levels last spring.

"This is a very gratifying action and means we will have enough home-heating oil this winter," Carter said.

"Consumers are assured ample fuel supplies for the winter and no longer have to worry about going to public shelters for adequate heat," said Robert Lynch, senior vice president of the Empire State Petroleum and Fuel Merchants Association in New York. The trade group represents 650 independent dealers in New York state.

"The refiners that had to withhold fuel from the marketplace 40 meet the federal buildup program can now raise their home-heating oil allocations to 100 percent and remove spot shortages," said Lynch.

"If this happens, consumers' storage tanks should be filled before the end of the full impact of the winter season."

Some oil companies have been forced to allocate heating oil at 70 to 80 percent of the amount they delivered last year, he said.

Bristol-Myers gets an FTC headache

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is no evidence that Bufferin is a faster or better pain reliever than aspirin, and the manufacturer should renounce such advertising claims, a Federal Trade Commission judge ruled Friday.

Bristol-Myers Co., producer of Bufferin and other pain relievers, called the findings "erroneous" and "contrary to the evidence," and said it will fight the ruling before the full commission.

The order by Administrative Law Judge Montgomery Hyun, which is subject to commission review, said Bristol-Myers should include in future ads a disclaimer of any unproven beneficial qualities of the product.

"It has not been scientifically established that the speed of relief provided by Bufferin is significantly greater than that provided by plain aspirin," Hyun wrote.

"There are no well controlled clinical studies demonstrating that buffered aspirin, such as Bufferin, causes stomach distress less frequently than plain aspirin."

And he found there is "no sufficient evidence in the record to show that consumers believe Bufferin and Excedrin have been proved more effective or safer than aspirin."

Hyun concluded that doctors do not recommend Bufferin more frequently than aspirin or other pain-relievers. He also recommended the commission order Bristol-Myers to discontinue in all future advertising that Bufferin, Excedrin and Excedrin P.M. contain aspirin, saying a "substantial" number of consumers don't realize this.

"If you do your job to the best of your ability, you shouldn't worry about the rest of the complaints - you can't help those problems." Shane T. Milward
 Times-News Carrier

That just about sums up 12-year-old Shane Milward's attitude about being a Times-News carrier. He's been doing it for 1 1/2 years and expects to do it for another 2 years. Every morning he's up at 5:30 to deliver papers on the Times-News' 4th-largest route. Sometimes people will complain about something in the paper. He knows he can't do anything about that... but he will listen. If questions come up about his service, though, he listens and then does something about it. Shane says it best: "You do what the customer requires. Be prompt—Listen to complaints and if the complaint applies to you, react. I respect my customers and I hope they respect me. It's a big responsibility, but nothing is impossible. All you have to do is try."

Draft Ford campaign initiated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vermont Gov. Richard Snelling launched a drive Friday to convince Gerald Ford there is "a good old-fashioned grass roots movement" in America ready to put him back in the White House.

Snelling mailed 10,000 letters to Republican activists across the country at his own expense — between $4,000 and $5,000. He asked them to step forward and form a draft-Ford committee.

Ford has said he is not a candidate and does not intend to be one, although he made clear he would accept a draft if he felt it had widespread support.

Snelling told a news conference in Washington his effort to get Ford into the early GOP primaries will last until Christmas. He said it would be hard, but not impossible, for someone to be nominated without going through the primaries.

"This is an effort to coalesce, not generate, existing Ford support," he said.

Floods in India deprive a million of homes

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The mighty Brahmaputra River, swollen by late monsoon rains, has flooded wide areas of northeastern India and left more than a million people homeless, officials said Friday.

Reports from Gauhati, the capital Assam state, said 13 people had been killed by floods and flood waters. Thousands of houses have been washed away or damaged, and many inhabitants of the affected areas were perched on trees and rooftops awaiting relief.

The Brahmaputra and its tributaries, which flow from the Himalaya mountains down to flat, eroded flood plains of Assam, were rising all along their courses. Officials said the situation was "still very critical".

The river was overflowing its banks at many points and, in one major breach in Darrang district, flooded 30 villages that housed 50,000 people.

Elsewhere in Assam state, officials said more than 1 million people were left homeless by floods, which inundated thousands of acres of rice paddies and the biggest tea plantation in northeast India at Manabari.

The oil towns of Dullujan and Naharkatya and the coal towns of Margherita and Ledo also were flooded. The state government "has sent an SOS to New Delhi to rush food and other relief materials and money to tide over the scarcity now prevailing in the state following devastating floods," the Press Trust of India news agency reported.

Officials were inoculating thousands of people to prevent an outbreak of epidemic, Indian Air Force helicopters dropped food and medicine to flood victims and the army evacuated hundreds of villagers stranded by water.

Runoff from a late monsoon rainstorm, unchecked by the almost treeless terrain, set off the flooding, reports from Assam said.

About 60 million acres of land in northern and northeastern India are susceptible to flooding each year and only 25 million acres have so far been protected by dams and flood banks, officials said.

Adding to the problem, the Brahmaputra keeps changing its course on the flat flood plain, making it impossible to protect many areas from the river when it suddenly overflows.

Korean lawmakers to resign

© The Washington Post

SEOUL, South Korea — Leaders of the South Korean opposition party agreed Friday that all party members should resign in protest of the government's expulsion of their president, Kim Young-sam.

In an unprecedented display of unity against President Park Chung Hee's government, the 15 factional leaders voted to back their party leader and withdraw from the National Assembly.

Unless there is a sudden overnight change of mood, their advice is likely to be accepted Saturday morning by almost all of the 27 opposition members of the 220-member unicameral legislature.

Park's party will continue to control the chamber with the help of a large bloc of members who are not elected but appointed with his advice.

But the agreement reached Friday represents a blow to his prestige domestically. It appears to reflect grass-roots opposition to the expulsion that his government and party engineered eight days ago. Observers here said the opposition party's almost unanimous decision would not have occurred unless many members had felt pressure from constituents angered by the expulsion.

Swedes urge child-parent divorce law

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — A Swedish government committee Friday proposed a law that would give children the right to divorce their parents.

Sweden earlier this year made it illegal for parents to spank their children.

But the chairman of the committee investigating children's rights, Tor Sverme, said the divorce law would only be applicable in certain cases.

"It is not our intention that a 6 year old who has a row with his parents should be able to just go out and divorce them," he said.

"But a 9-year-old child in a foster home could divorce his natural parents if they no longer showed any interest in him.

"Similarly a 16-year-old who went to live with her boyfriend would have the opportunity to divorce her parents if they objected to the relationship."

The final decision on divorce would rest with courts and minor children would remain in the court's custody.

Pope's appeal frees hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Feuding Christian factions Friday responded to an appeal by Pope John Paul II and released scores of hostages kidnapped in a four-day spree of terror across mountainous north Lebanon.

Hours after the pontiff's message was delivered to the warring sides, 100 hostages began streaming into international Red Cross centers in Byblos and Batroun, 22 and 32 miles north of Beirut.

The pope's appeal, delivered in the pre-dawn hours of Friday by Papal Nuncio Carlo Furno, appeared to defuse the latest round of feuding between right-wing Phalangists and followers of former Lebanese President Suleiman Franjeh.

Soviets fault NATO reply

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Friday warned that NATO should not "test the patience" of the Kremlin with "dangerous plans" to deploy the American Pershing 2 missile in Europe.

The official Tass news agency also suggested in its analysis that the Carter Administration was handling the question of Western European security the same way it did charges that a Soviet combat brigade operated in Cuba.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, in a speech last Saturday in East Berlin, offered to withdraw medium-range Soviet missiles from Western Russia if NATO did not deploy the Pershing 2 in Europe. He also said the Soviet Union would unilaterally pull out 20,000 Russian troops and 1,000 tanks from East Germany.

The Kremlin apparently was expressing its disappointment with President Carter's response in his news conference Tuesday to Brezhnev's proposal.

Carter remarked that the Brezhnev initiative was a step in the direction of disarmament, but not adequate to make the United States abandon its Pershing 2 proposal.

The Russians are coming. They really are — despite last week's cancellation of a national tour by the Moscow State Symphony. The cancellation didn't include the Moscow Pops — a Russian folk orchestra. The Pops will play Pittsburgh and Cleveland during the weekend and music director Nikolai Sokolov isn't worried about defections. Says he, "This is a very happy company."

If you want to be a space ace, it pays to have connections. And Bongbong Marcos has a few in both camps. Both the Americans and the Russians want to take the 22-year-old son of Philippine president Ferdinand Marcos into orbit. Invitations came Friday at a world meeting on aviation and space medicine in Manila from U.S. astronaut William Thornton and Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin. Yeliseyev, young Bongbong says he's always hankered for the stars.

He didn't look much like royalty dressed in a pirate costume, doing callisthenics while the college-staff went him down with a fire hose — but that's all part of what it takes to become an officer in Her Majesty's Navy. The only cigar customs agents in Los Angeles left — Marvin Mitchellson was the one in his mouth — and New York customs counselor Melvin Minsky says they should have gotten that one too. Mitchellson, returning from London, watched in horror as agents shredded 50 Cuban Monte Cristos he'd brought home with him. Seems it's okay to buy the embargoed staples in Havana — but not in other countries. Huffs Mitchellson, "It's unconstitutional." He's thinking of suing.

Bernard Cook might have gotten away with it if he'd just eaten before he set out. But he had to have those sandwiches. The 18-year-old Winnipeg, Manitoba, man is accused of holding up a 7-11 store, relieving a clerk and three customers of their cash. But he didn't flee. Instead he ordered the clerk to make and wrap 30 sandwiches. While the take-out order was being prepared, police arrived and arrested him. He's up on five counts of robbery.

First year for Ray's wife lonely blur

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The wife of James Earl Ray says the past year has been a blur of lonely days and nights, stares and questions, and visits to the mountain prison where her husband is serving 99 years for the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Anna Sandhu Ray, 33, a blonde, free-lance artist, and Ray were married a year ago Friday.

"I love him more now than ever before. I wouldn't trade places with anyone," she said. "I didn't think I could go through a year and be as happy as I am."

Ms. Ray said she planned to drive to the Brushy Mountain State Prison in Petros to celebrate the anniversary with her husband, now 51. She said she would give him a gold crucifix, and he was going to surprise her with a gift she suspects is a ring.

"James isn't real big on jewelry, but I thought he could carry it to remind him of me and my love for him," she said.

Mrs. Ray said she drives her station wagon to the prison twice weekly to visit her husband, who she says is in good spirits.

"Not having my husband here with me has been tough. I know it would be hard for me for awhile. But I am an artist. I don't mind being alone. I need time alone," she said.

She lives in a weather-beaten house in West Knoxville and although she said a few people might have bought some of her paintings because she's the wife of James Earl Ray, "everyone knows I didn't marry him for the money."

She said she has been taking the money from her paintings and trying to fix up the home in the hope that one day her husband will be freed.

"I want to have a nice home for James. His biggest desire is to have a regular family life," she said. "I don't intend to ever divorce him. Would love to have some children one day."

Mrs. Ray said her name often brings stares.

"People look at me as if they are afraid to ask questions. They say, 'You look so normal.'"

She said she has spent the past year talking about her husband and carrying the message that "he's innocent." She said she keeps hoping one day Ray will get a new trial.

"I feel I have accomplished something," she said, but adds the fact her marriage has not been consummated bothers her.

"This is very frustrating at times. I know he needs me."

Andrus stuck in furor over rattlesnake firing

By AP-HARRIS
WASHINGTON — The Interior Department fired a biologist for writing to one of Secretary Cecil B. Andrus' favorite French restaurants asking the owner to stop serving rattlesnake steaks.

The scientist, staff herpetologist C. Kenneth Dodd, had written to inform the owner that the snake in question, which hails from Pennsylvania, "is respectfully request that (rattlesnake) be removed from your menu."

Though the owner, Dominique D'Ermo of Dominique's promptly stopped serving rattlesnake, the letter was leaked to The Washington Star's gossip column, "Ear."

So Mr. Andrus was Andrus that, during one of his frequent outings to Dominique's, he apologized to D'Ermo, following up the personal apology with a written one later.

But it didn't end there, Thursday. Dodd was handed a letter of dismissal that included a four-page list of offenses all stemming from his letter. Included in the charges was the accusation that, because "The Star treated the letter in a cavalier fashion... a serious matter presented... as trivial and frivolous to the public."

Dodd, shaken by the abruptness and severity of the Interior Department's response, conceded Thursday that he may have been a bit overzealous, particularly in using department stationery in writing the letter. But he doesn't see why he should be fired.

"Even if I am against the rules, most people would give a simple slap on the wrist or a reprimand," he said. "It's been blown all out of proportion."

"People will try anything once," he said in a French accent as thick as his rattlesnake sauce.

Dodd wrote in his letter to D'Ermo that biologists have expressed concern about the fate of the Pennsylvania timber rattler. But Andrus, in his letter to D'Ermo, noted that the snake "is not listed as either threatened or endangered under the Endangered Species Act, and consequently, there are no prohibitions that I am aware of which would prevent your serving it in your restaurant."

However, according to federal and state authorities, Pennsylvania law prohibits the commercial sale of rattlesnakes. If they were sold and shipped across state lines — and D'Ermo said he bought the meat from a Pennsylvania source — the transaction could be a violation of federal laws that ban the interstate shipment of illegally taken game, authorities said.

Police seek fake priest

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Police said they were searching Friday for a man who — posing as a priest — blessed the home of an elderly couple and stole $110.

The man, dressed in a blue shirt and dark trousers introduced himself as a priest to Jessie Walls, 65, and his wife Doris, 70, invited inside their home Thursday, he asked for a glass of water and proceeded to "bless" Mrs. Walls and the home, police said.

He asked the woman for "a dollar and a nickel," which he said he would keep for several days before spending "if it was God's will."

Police spokesman Gus Kriuke said the suspect asked Walls to remain in a back room while he helped Mrs. Walls search for $1.05.

"In a back bedroom, the priest found $110 in cash, purses, and an envelope with $110," Kriuke said. "She told him the money was for bills and he pretended to put the money back, but as the man left, Mrs. Walls discovered the money missing."

He said the victims suspected the man to be a fake when he asked for money, but feared he would harm them if they challenged him.

Improving appearance best for Moon Children; Libras find truth pays off

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are likely to feel imposed upon early in the day, but rise above such a mood and attend to more important matters. Seek the good company of cheerful, optimistic friends.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure to handle home affairs in the morning; then join congenial laser-in-the-day at favorite recreation. Express happiness.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle routine chores and shopping, and later improve your skills and talents. Discuss new ideas with friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take a good look at your surroundings and make necessary repairs to property. Strive for harmony with family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time to study your appearance and improve where necessary. Try not to criticize others so much.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) There could be delays early in the day that are annoying, but use patience and later all is well. Be with congenials in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find the right outlet for your talents and you can be more successful. Engage in favorite hobby later in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be zealous in a business deal in the morning and later enjoy friends and cultural activities. Use your talents.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You now comprehend how best to gain success in new projects and can get the support you need. Improve prestige.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your intuitive faculties are not working accurately early in the day, so wait until they are. Avoid arguments with others.

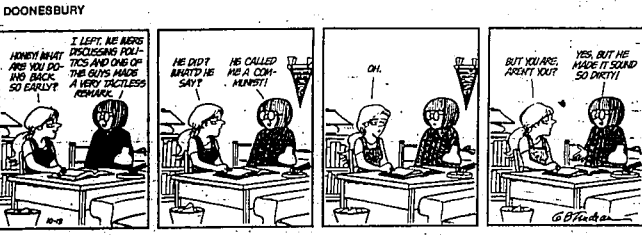

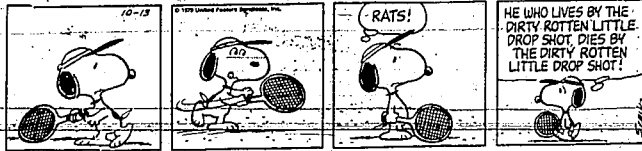

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Some annoying situation can arise that should be handled and eased quickly. Relax in the evening and ease tensions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't complain about doing work you have committed yourself to and it is easily done. Be more willing to cooperate with others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't go off on any fun tangents today, but be cheerful with those you come in contact with. Strive for increased happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one concerned with matters of importance and should have a fine education in order to achieve a great deal in life. Philosophical studies are important here. Give encouragement when it is needed.

What's what

Early training beneficial for thirsty Catalans

The Catalans—they live along the Mediterranean, Southwest France—are taught from infancy to swallow with their mouths wide open. This permits them to drink from goatskin bottles without touching the mouths of the bottles with their lips. You've either seen them or pictures of them, no doubt. Their arms stretched high, they clutch those bottles as far out as possible, and squeeze long strings of streams into their mouths, spilling none. Some trick, if you don't know how to swallow with your mouth wide open, you could never do it.

The surveytakers contend their studies prove that twice as many wives as husbands want to go out at night. NOT necessarily by herself or with the girls. Mostly, she wants her husband to take her. And mostly he would just as soon not.

You can figure a cow will spend about 18 hours a day, chewing on something.

OLDEST PLAYER

Q. Who was the oldest baseball player to play in a major league game?

A. Satchel Paige. He was 59 when he pitched three innings for the Kansas City As on Sept. 25, 1965. He struck out one, allowed one hit, but no runs.

No point in Denmark is more than 40 miles from the open sea.

Q. What's the difference between sea and coffee in yield per pound?

A. You mean cups? A pound of tea, 200 cups. Of coffee, 40 cups. Or thereabouts.

"Luck is the residue of design." Baseball's Branch Rickey said that.

Q. What proportion of the divorce suits filed in this country are dropped before they come to trial?

A. About a third of them.

NO ELECTRICITY

The capital of Equatorial Guinea is a town called Malabo. Several years ago its electric generator burned out and it hasn't been replaced. It's the only national capital in the world, I'm told, that has no electricity.

Episcopalian dean to be instituted

BOISE — Services of Celebration of the New Ministry of the Very Rev. Martin James Dwyer, new dean of St. Michael's Cathedral in Boise, will be held Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

"Clergy of the Episcopal Diocese will attend and join in procession. A reception following the services will be held in his honor."

Dean Dwyer comes to Idaho with a varied career from his parish in Minneapolis. He has personal knowledge of the mountain-west, having served parishes in South Dakota and Colorado. Dwyer is a Reserve Navy Chaplain with rank of Commander and has spent 20 years in the reserve.

Born Oct. 15, 1926, in South Bend, Ind., Dean Dwyer was raised primarily in the Chicago area.

Dean Dwyer's Navy career began during World War II when he served as a radio-radar instructor. He at first pursued a career in electrical engineering.

Graduated with a B.A. from Ripon College in 1954 and earned a Master's of Divinity from Berkeley Divinity School in New Haven, Conn., in 1957.

While serving a parish in Iowa, Dean Dwyer returned to school for an M.A. in counseling from University of Northern Iowa in 1972.

He spent another year in a seminar that culminated in a trip through Greece and Turkey, following the steps of St. Paul.

Dean Dwyer, widowed, was married in 1958. His 18-year old son is a freshman at University of Puget Sound, in Tacoma, Wash.

'Forceful' monetary policy stays in force

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (UPI) — The government's two top economic officials Friday renewed their pledge to pursue a "forceful" monetary policy, including restricting high interest rates, on grounds this is the only possible way to tame inflation.

"Nobody likes high interest rates, including me," said Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker.

But he said the board's actions last Saturday, sharply boosting interest rates and limiting the number of dollars in circulation, were urgently needed to "control the inflation problem over time."

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller strongly backed Volcker's views, and said President Carter also "has been very supportive of the necessity of this action."

The Federal Reserve's decision to crack down on credit "actually reinforces the probability of a modest recession rather than a more serious one," Miller said.

Both men gave private briefings to members of the prestigious Business Council, a group of top corporate executives meeting in this mountain hamlet to discuss the Federal Reserve's actions and other economic issues.

The executives made it clear they also support the Fed's new policies, even if this means some Americans will face extremely difficult times in coming months when trying to borrow money for homes, cars and other consumer items.

"I have yet to meet a single businessman who is not supportive of the move by the Federal Reserve," said Reginald Jones, chairman of General Electric Co.

"The Federal Reserve action was entirely appropriate and long overdue," said Clifford Garvin Jr., top executive at Exxon Corp., the nation's largest oil company.

All the executives urged the Federal Reserve to stick with its stringent policy and the administration to support it, despite possible political problems during next year's presidential primaries.

"The sooner we suffer the pain, the sooner we will be through," said Irving Sapiro, chairman of duPont.

"The inflation disease is so virulent, the medicine you take to cure it is not very pleasant," said Walter Wriston, chairman of Citicorp, the nation's second-largest bank. "To make believe the next six months is going to be fun is to lie to you."

Miller, the administration's leading economic policy maker, shrugged aside Carter's comment before a construction group in San Diego Thursday that "interest rates are too high."

The president is very supportive of these actions because he is determined to carry on the war against inflation," Miller said.

He said Carter is "looking forward to the day when we have nipped inflation in the bud and that is the day when we will begin to see interest rates come down."

Asked if the new Fed policies would do anything to reduce the severity of the downturn "relative to the total economic posture."

"And to the degree that we are forceful and persuasive and effective in dampening inflationary expectations," he said, "the more likely we are to maintain a moderation of the recession and return to conditions of balanced growth."

"A failure to catch inflation and destroy inflationary forces will deepen the recession."

Volcker defended the Fed's moves, despite problems it will cause for some borrowers:

"You don't aim for high interest rates. We aim for the control that we have by bringing the answer to the inflation problem."

Miller and Volcker predicted the recession, which started in the April-June period, should last about four quarters.

Miller noted the administration has ruled out, for now, any tax cut to combat the recession, although "we do not forego any action in the future."

Futures markets decline

(Courtesy Shear & Co.)
CHICAGO — Potato and meat futures declined Friday.

Grains and metals finished the day mixed.

Commodity News Service said Maine potatoes settled 14 to 38 cents off as fears of a bearish crop production report caused liquidation after prices touched limit down levels in April and May. Volume was placed at 1,061 contracts. May lost 38 cents, ending at 11.36 per hundredweight, while March ended at 8.23, 20 cents down.

May russet burbank lost 14 cents, finishing at 12.26 cwt.

A sharp drop in wholesale beef prices applied pressure to live cattle futures, which settled from down the 150 point limit to 125 points off in all but distant December, which was 70 points down in light trading.

All but spot October feeder cattle lost the daily 150 point limit, and the spot contract settled at 78.72 cwt., off 135 points. Most of the selling stemmed from pressure from live cattle.

Live hogs dropped as daily slaughter totals continued to climb, ending at 10,105 points down with most of the weakness in the middle months. Pork brought ended 147 to 95 points down in light trading.

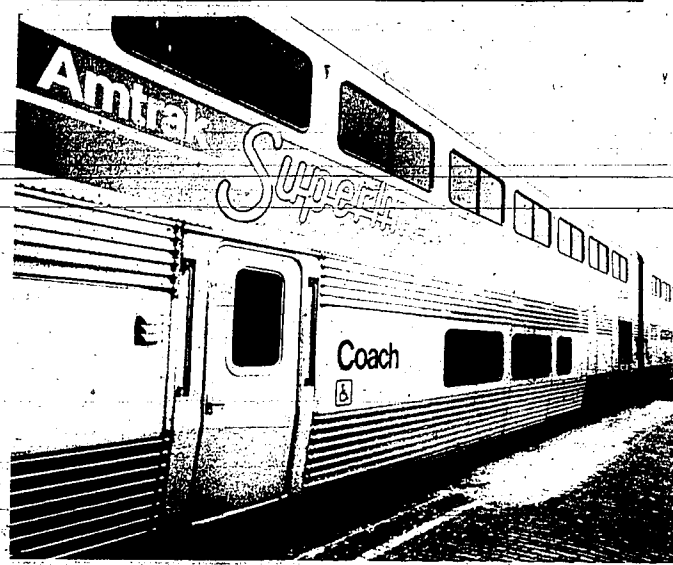

Chicago Board of Trade silver ended on a weak note as longs liquidated and shorts opened. Silver trading was unrelated to fundamental or technical factors. October was down 22.5 cents while other months were off 23.2 cents to 6.2 cents.

International Money Market gold finished mixed, from 8.00 an ounce higher to 3.20 lower after a rally in late trading which brought prices in front months near the day's highs.

Wheat ended a day of erratic activity with current crop months 3/4 to 1/2 cent higher while deferred months were 3/4 to 1/2 cents lower.

Corn posted a narrow advance at the close amid crop prospect discussions, with December up 1/2 cent at 2.814 and back months up as much as 2 cents.

Light hedging and liquidation marked the soybean complex, where beans settled off 3/4 to 9 cents, meal lost 30 cents to 1.50 and oil was up 10 points in December but other months were unchanged to down 25 points.

Superliners rolling soon

Amtrak unveiled its new bi-level Superliners in Chicago Thursday, the first long-distance passenger cars built in North America in over two decades. Alan S. Boyd, Amtrak president, said the cars are "the beginning of a new era in rail travel" for the 1980s and beyond. The new cars will enter service Oct. 28 on Amtrak's Empire Builder run between Chicago and Seattle.

AMC to build new Renaults

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. said Friday it will build a new line of four-wheeled cars designed by the French automaker Renault beginning in 1982 as part of a strengthened partnership between the two firms.

AMC and Regie Nationale des Usines Renault announced a series of steps to bolster their association, including additional investments in AMC by Renault and representation on AMC's board of directors.

The new car line will be built at AMC's Kenosha, Wis., plant and will include several styles for North American distribution, the two said. Renault will provide $150 million in financing for the project.

That will be accomplished through a four-step purchase of stock and debentures beginning Friday with the purchase by Renault of 1.5 million AMC common shares.

Eventually, the arrangement will give Renault ownership of approximately 22.5 percent of outstanding AMC stock.

The companies also pledged to establish jointly-owned finance companies to bankroll leasing operations, dealer purchases and eventually retail sales.

The two firms joined forces in 1978 with AMC agreeing to distribute the Renault Le Car. The eventual U.S. assembly of Renault-designed cars at that time was projected as part of the arrangement.

letter this week that it was suspending the dividend because it could not pay the usual 6 1/2 percent interest on shares.

The union's nine-member board estimated it could pay only 2 percent or 3 percent dividends for the quarter, totaling about $60,000 rather than the customary $140,000. But it was decided to suspend the dividend altogether because 2 or 3 percent "was too small."

Gregerson said the union's new building cost $700,000 more than expected, and excess space in the building has not been rented as had been expected.

No quarterly dividend

BOISE (UPI) — Dividends to Idaho Public Employees Credit Union members were not paid this past quarter because earnings were less than half of what they had been for several years.

Credit Union President Marvin Gregerson said members have withdrawn $470,000 — about 7 percent of the union's estimated $10 million total shares — since hearing of the dividend suspension last week.

Gregerson blamed most of the problem on funding hassles with the construction of the union's new Boise office building.

Gregerson said the credit union notified its 12,000 members by the world wheat harvest was forecast at 491 million tons, slightly below last month and 9 percent smaller than last year.

Record corn crop looks even larger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Friday raised its estimate of this year's record corn crop to 7.39 billion bushels, 4 percent more than last year's record.

With weather generally favorable over the past month, national average corn yield rose to 102 bushels per acre, compared to a September estimate of 104.6 bushels.

Last year the corn crop was 7.08 billion bushels and average yield was 101.2 bushels, surpassing 100 bushels an acre for the first time.

There was concern all summer, following a late spring, that the crop was vulnerable to early frost damage. Frost finally receded, but the Corn Belt last week, but the agriculture Department said the crop was mature enough to be safe from damage.

Prospects for a record corn crop and the third largest wheat crop allowed the United States to offer the Russians a chance to buy 25 million metric tons of U.S. grain over the next 12 months.

Officials said bountiful crops and opening of the farmer-owned grain reserve would permit the United States to sell record amounts of grain without hurting American consumers.

They said higher grain prices, based in part by Russian demand, were necessary because farmers, facing high energy costs, could not continue to sell crops below the cost of production.

But critics said higher prices of corn for livestock and swine, pork and poultry producers and encourage them to cut back on expansion. An eventual result could be smaller supplies of meat and higher prices.

Based on Oct. 1 survey, the Crop Reporting Board estimated the soybean crop, another source of feed for animals, at a record 2.21 billion bushels, up 2 percent from last month's estimate of 18 percent from last year's record crop.

Average soybean yield was forecast at a record 41.5 bushels per acre.

The wheat crop was estimated at 2.11 billion bushels, up 18 percent from last year and the third largest crop on record.

The durum wheat crop, which is used to make pasta, was estimated at 104 million bushels, down 3 percent from last month and down 22 percent from last year.

The new estimate of the spring wheat crop other than durum was 314 million bushels, down 1 percent from September's estimate and down 1 percent from last year.

The rice crop is expected to set a record 138 million hundredweight, up 2 percent from last month and up 3 percent from last year's record.

Russian crop estimate cut to 26% below '78

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Friday lowered its estimate of this year's Russian grain crop to 175 million metric tons, down 26 percent from last year's record output.

Having made a decision to continue feeding livestock despite insufficient grain, the Russians are expected to buy record amounts of grain in the world market.

The latest estimate, based on information available through early October, was five million tons under last month's estimate.

The basic reason for the smaller crop was a drought in May and June.

The decline this month mainly reflected a reduced estimate of spring wheat in the southern provinces of the Soviet Union and lowered spring wheat yield in West Siberia and the South Urals. Difficult harvesting conditions in spring wheat areas also contributed to a smaller crop.

The Agriculture Department predicted Moscow would buy 32.5 million tons of grain. The United States last week offered to sell Russia a record 25 million tons of grain, both wheat and corn, in the next 12 months.

The Russian wheat crop was estimated at 83 million tons, two million tons fewer than last month's estimate. The coarse grains crop was forecast at 22 million tons, three million tons under the September estimate. Miscellaneous grains were estimated at 10 million tons, the same as last month.

World harvest shaved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Friday predicted that the 1979-80 world grain harvest, the second largest on record, would be 1.5 billion metric tons, slightly below last month's estimate.

The grain crop was estimated to be 7 percent below last season's record of 1.57 billion tons.

The Agriculture Department said lower production estimates in Russia, India and Eastern Europe were nearly offset by higher forecasts for the United States, Western Europe and China.

The world wheat harvest was forecast at 491 million tons, slightly below last month and 9 percent smaller than last year.

The world crop of corn and other field grains was estimated at 229.5 million tons, up slightly from last month and 3 percent below last year's record.

The rice crop was forecast at 373.6 million tons, slightly below last month's estimate. Last year's crop was 383.5 million tons.

The world oilseed crop was projected at 117 million tons, compared to 158.6 million tons last year. Last month's estimate was 176.8 million tons.

World production of soybeans, the major oilseed in the United States, was forecast at a record 94 million tons.

The world cotton crop was estimated at 63.8 million bales, down slightly from September. Last year's crop was 59.8 million bales.

Brokers tackle paper work

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brokers will work out a new Exchange this morning to try to clear up questioned trades following a week of unprecedented trading volume.

The exchange Thursday ordered all its member organizations to have staff on hand between 9 a.m. and noon Saturday to deal with so-called "open items" — trades in which the parties differ over price, number of shares or other details.

The new items arise routinely in normal trading activity and must be cleared up within time limits set by the exchange. This week's volume deluge, which reached its peak Wednesday with a record-shattering 81.62 million shares changing hands, caused the number of open items to balloon.

Traps for credit buyers become bigger, deeper

"Why do you think automobile dealers are approving openly encouraging three- or even five-year car loans? They're simply making it easier to purchase a new car these days in spite of the fact that sticker prices have soared. We're busier now than we've ever been. Our counselors are seeing extremely high utility bills and we have no idea how many of our clients are going to handle heating bills this winter," said Richard G. Bennett, director, Consumer Credit Counseling Service, Omaha, Neb.

"There is an enormous lack of information on credit. Truth in Lending laws are supposed to provide people with that information. There should be a way consumers can compare interest rates and other charges on a particular kind of loan, by telephone, beforehand, an unbiased, objective source for comparison shopping credit. If you're pressed at the margin, your damn well should sit down and develop a spending plan that will help you avoid drowning in debt."

Scott Maynes, professor and chairman, Department of Consumer Economics and Housing, Cornell University.

"One of the characteristics of present consumer posture may be the fact that many are living fully up to the sum of two incomes. This is a risky procedure, totally absorbing both incomes. It leaves no margin for error, unemployment or cutbacks in working hours. I believe the key to a two-income family unit working to maximum advantage is finding a happy medium between the two incomes."

Dr. Thomas Juster, Institute of Social Research, University of Michigan.

"You can't live off the increasing value of your home. More likely, you are going to have to spend more money to maintain it, heat it and pay higher property taxes. The only time you can really pocket the difference is when you're over 55 — and then eligible to take the once-in-a-lifetime tax-free gain of up to $10,000 on your primary residence. While many economists indicate that the public may be better able to handle more debt right now than 10 years ago, for instance, these theories haven't been tested under business recession conditions as yet."

Gerard A. Lareau, president, Consumer Credit Counseling Service of New York and New Jersey.

These four are merely a sampling of remarks from respected authorities in the field of credit — and over-borrowing — but they are typical. What emerges clearly from each comment, separately and together, is a profound concern about the massive totals of personal debt we have taken on — not including our mortgage debts. What to me is striking, too, is the clear fear that the debts already may have reached the point where they will overwhelm not only the individuals concerned, but also will drag down all of us.

My personal worry matches theirs for if this nation and along with us other countries the world over, sink into another deep and prolonged economic slump, a basic contributing factor will be our inability to manage these huge debts as reduced incomes during a period when prices continue to spiral ever upward.

A new factor in the entire equation is the two-income family living to the hilt of the family's combined earnings. This just intensifies the problem of the one-breadwinner household in which spouses don't talk to each other about what each is buying on credit.

Discuss money freely and openly a fundamental of fundamentals. If you are married, think together about saving and spending what you earn. Make sure each of you knows what you are spending on credit cards — and you're buying a big-ticket item, discuss it thoroughly BEFORE you buy.

If you're a mingling single, follow this rule just as rigidly, for in a sense you have even more at stake: It is crucial that you recognize money is a power symbol, a way to express financial as well as emotional decisions. If you don't feel comfortable dealing with money in your relationship, you're inviting trouble and eventually break-up.

Don't blame anyone but yourself if you find you're sinking dangerously into debt. If you have permitted your spouse to go overboard buying on credit without your knowledge — it's your fault, too. If you have each gone off on your own and borrowed as you pleased, it's your fault as well as your partner's. You gain nothing when you try to shift the blame except endless arguments that will threaten the very basis of your relationship and that will most probably affect your job productivity as well.

Admit needing outside help if you do, and then ask assistance from any and all available sources. Don't be ashamed of your financial problems. Never try to hide from your creditors. In the last of this series of five columns, I'll submit details on the non-profit, community-sponsored agencies — the 206 Consumer Credit Counseling Service — throughout the U.S. — which will help you.

We Don't Pay Some of Our Best Workers.

You Do.

Today, on International Newspaper Carrier Day, we would like you to think a moment about your carrier.

There are a lot of people that think the Times-News pays their carriers. Not True.

Your newspaper carrier is an independent businessman. He must be responsible for making sure that his customers are happy, keeping his own books and collecting and paying his bills.

The work isn't that easy. A newspaper carrier is up before dawn 7 days a week. Lately the mornings have been getting cooler. In the next few months, we'll be having frost, below freezing temperatures and then snow. Still, the paper will be delivered every morning thanks to a small, special group of people.

Next time your carrier comes to collect why not give him or her a smile with your check. Let them know you appreciate them and the jobs they're doing.

We at the Times-News do.

Orioles take 2-1 World Series lead

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles, showing the kind of bench strength that would make the Supreme Court envious, received a four-hit, four-RBI performance from reserve Kiko Garcia and a two-run homer from substitute Benny Ayala Friday night to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 in the third game of the World Series.

The victory, which came after a one hour and seven minute rain delay in the third inning, gave the Orioles a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven series with the fourth game scheduled for Three Rivers Stadium this afternoon. Jim Bibby will pitch for the Pirates and Dennis Martinez will hurl for the Orioles.

Concerned about his team's lethargic offensive performance in the first two games of the Series, Baltimore manager Earl Weaver made four changes in the lineup and three came through with timely hits to spark a 13-hit attack against four pitchers.

Garcia, benched in favor of slick-fielding shortstop Mark Belanger in the first two games of the Series, belted a three-run triple during a five-run fourth inning and drove in another run with a bloop single in the seventh to lead the hit parade.

Ayala, playing his first World Series game, drilled his two-run homer in the third inning to reduce a 3-0 Pittsburgh lead and Rich Dauer, another newcomer to the lineup, added a clutch double that triggered the five-run fourth against left-hander John Candalaria.

Left-hander Scott McGreggor also contributed heavily to Baltimore's triumph by going the distance to pick up the victory. McGreggor, who blanked the California Angels 8-0 on six hits in the decisive game of the American League playoffs, scattered nine hits but gained a second wind after the rain delay and allowed only one run over the last seven innings.

McGreggor did not walk a batter and struck out six in becoming the second left-hander to beat the Pirates in the Series. Mike Flanagan won the opener, 5-4, for Baltimore in a routine going performance.

The Pirates looked as if they might end McGreggor's night early when they reached him for three runs and five hits in the first two innings to open a 3-0 lead. Omar Moreno ended a 1-for-10 slump with a leadoff double in the first, moved to third when a balk was called on McGreggor by first base umpire Terry Tata and scored on Dave Parker's sacrifice fly.

The Pirates then put together four hits in the second inning to score two more runs and might have had McGreggor out of there if it hadn't been for a baserunning blunder by Phil Garner.

That was all for Candalaria, but it was too late. Romo complicated matters by hitting pinch-hitter Al Bumbry, batting for Ayala, with his first pitch and Ken Singleton grounded a single up the middle to score Garcia.

Romo retired the dangerous Eddie Murray and appeared to be out of further trouble when Doug DeCinces hit a certain double-play grounder to Foil. Foil threw to Garner for the forecourt at second but the relay throw to first was wild and Bumbry scored the final run of the inning.

Pittsburgh reached McGreggor for a run in the sixth on a double by Stargell and a single by Bill Madlock, but that was the last hit they got off McGreggor. McGreggor did not give Weaver a few more grey hairs by allowing three very long outs against the wall in the sixth and seventh innings, but he retired the last 10 batters in a row.

The Orioles added their final run in the seventh when Dempsey doubled and Garcia bloomed a two-but single center.

Indians clinch SCIC

HAILEY — In the old Bud Abbott and Lou Costello comic routine, "Pocamoco" was the word that triggered the action.

"Pocamoco, Pocamoco, slowly I turn, step by step, etc."

Friday afternoon it was "pass interception" that had the same effect on the Buhl Indians.

They scored five of their six touchdowns after interceptions to storm past the Wood River Wolverines 42-0 and claim the South Central Idaho Conference championship.

The victory similarly should provide Buhl the opportunity to get back into the state A-2 playoffs to defend its title since the Indians have no A-2 schools left on their schedule. Next week they host Burley in a homecoming game, remembering that Burley is the only team to beat them in regular season for the past four years.

Wood River, which slipped below .500 for the first time this year, came out throwing against the stronger Indian line. Paul Leggett, met with some success at times, hitting on some good gainers. But the Buhl defense harassed him throughout and never let him get off a scoring punch.

Early in the game, the Buhl interception parade in the early going when he picked off a Wood River long bomb at his 10-yard line. From there Buhl rolled to score in six plays, Mark Schaal getting the last 10 yards on a run. John Rlenstra booted the first of four extra points.

Two plays after the kickoff, Rory Richardson picked off another Leggett pass at the 40. A scramble by quarterback Tim Hamilton took the ball inside the five and Schaal punched it in from there.

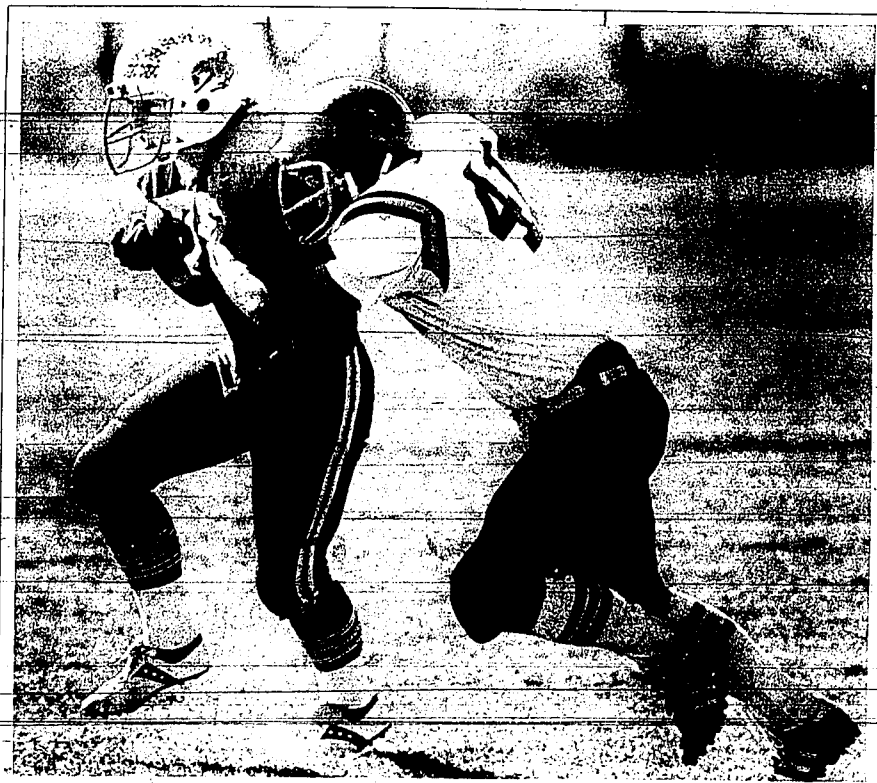

In the second period, Bruce Walden got the first of his two pickoffs and returned it to the 30. He then tackled a 23-yard burst onto that and a play later cracked in from the two.

Leggett gave Wood River hopes a little fanning late in the half when he and Seal hooked up on a 22-yard pass play that moved to the Buhl-28 but the thrust ended there.

Early in the second half Walden intercepted again and within two plays Buhl had extended its lead. Schaal ripped for 30 on the first end and Walden wound it up with 29 more. Hamilton threw the last 10 yards of the two-pointer that made it 28-0.

Later in the period, Buhl marched to another score. Schaal had a quick one on a 21-yard pass play and on a penalty. Buhl took the longer route, using five plays before Walden broke in from the six.

Late in the game Doug Walker intercepted an interception at the Wood River 39. After a Hamilton to Dennis Baxter bomb was killed by a penalty, Bryan Hodg wound it up with a seven-yard burst just four seconds from game's end.

Richfield's Gordon Rogers drops a North Gem running back for a loss in the backfield, but the Cowboys went on to win.

Homecoming tilt Cowboys overcome Tigers

By GARY ELLASSEN

RICHFIELD — North Gem's Phil Yost scored from three yards out with six minutes left Friday afternoon to lift the Cowboys to an exciting 20-16 football victory over Richfield.

The victory kept the number one ranked eight-man football team in the state undefeated and on track for a season-ending showdown with number two ranked and undefeated Castletown. Castletown was nine this weekend.

For Richfield, the loss eliminated the Tigers from any title or playoff contention as their record dropped to 1-2.

It was one of those games that could have gone either way.

The Cowboys got on the scoreboard first when Clint Straatman passed 11 yards to Shaun Crossley. The extra point failed.

"Our outside game was hurt when Naylor (RB1) hurt his ankle in that first quarter," said Jim Hendrickson who also had praise for the Cowboys' regulation.

"We had to keep the ball inside all afternoon." But despite losing Naylor, Richfield wasn't outplayed. The Tigers took the lead late in the second quarter when Gordon Rogers got loose for a 40-yard touchdown run. Rogers bulled over for the extra point to give the Tigers an 8-6 half time lead.

North Gem came back to take the lead about midway through the third quarter on a 45-yard scamper by Yost. This time the Cowboys made the extra point and led 14-8.

A 30-yard pass play from Stacy King to Rogers put Richfield back on top midway in the fourth quarter, and then the Cowboys rolled back to the clinching touchdown.

"The turning point was when we were leading 16-14 and we fumbled on the 40-yard line," said Hendrickson. "If we could have taken that in, it would have been a different ball game."

Hendrickson said he was surprised North Gem ran up the middle as much as they did, but he praised his own team's defensive efforts.

Richfield will close the season next week against Rockland.

Warriors roll by Bruins

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Meridian the running team turned into Meridian the passing team Friday night as the Warriors rolled over the Twin Falls Bruins 31-0.

More specifically it was the catching of diminutive Gary Weaver, who set up two with catches and scored the first one on a 51-yard reception. Seemingly all of those came in third and long situations as the Bruins couldn't make the big play.

When it was over Coach Bill Jones was at his most somber.

"I still feel we were right in thinking we had a chance against Meridian," he said. "But we just don't execute our blocking well enough to get anything going offensively. The only thing we can do now is try to get back together and hope we can play a good game against Pocatello next week."

"One thing I do hope," he added. "I don't know that No. 15's name but I hope he's a senior so we don't have to see him next year. He killed us with those catches and on one of them he was well covered."

For the first quarter and a half, the Bruins gained all they had. But in the closing minutes of the half, Meridian got 10 points. Everything turned to Meridian in the third quarter.

The Warriors belted for two touchdowns over the first nine minutes and Twin Falls had the ball for only three plays in between.

"I don't think we had a first down in the second half until late when the second unit hit a couple of passes, did we?" Jones asked. "We just have to start getting some offense."

The first quarter was a matter of four punts and two fumble exchanges. But five plays into the second period, Meridian took a punt at its own 18 and went for the touchdown.

It came on third and 27 when Val Eddy hit Weaver in full stride and he coasted in to complete the 51-yard play. Ken Cortez booted the point after. Twin Falls fumbled immediately after the kickoff and from the Bruin 37, Meridian moved close enough for Cortez to kick a 14-yard, 24-yard field goal with 1:22 remaining.

Meridian started its third-quarter opening drive, most of the rest of the yardage came on a 23-yard bomb to Weaver who made the catch over a Bruin defender. A play later, Charles Waite zipped in from the five and Meridian's wins were converted.

"Twin Falls immediately had to punt and Meridian had to use the rest of the quarter moving ahead 24-0. Eddy getting the score on a sneak. Early in the fourth period Meridian intercepted a deflected pass at the Twin Falls 38 and went in for the final touchdown. Roger Smith got it on a three-yard lunge.

F&G to seek public input on fishing regulations

Compiled by Gary Ellassen
Times-News sports editor

Fishing — A public hearing on the proposed 1980 fishing regulations will be held at the fish and game office in Jerome Monday at 7 p.m.

One of the proposed changes in regulations involves the Hagerman Wildlife's Management Area where Riley Creek from the bridge to the Snake River and Hagerman Hatchery effluent lagoon would open on March 1 along with the Oster Lakes.

Overnight camping would be restricted to walk-in access only.

Another change would involve opening the kokanee snagging season on Sept. 10 instead of Aug. 20 as in the past. This would preclude the kokanee snag fishing which has been available over the Labor Day weekend.

Magie, Fish Creek and Little Wood Reservoir water levels are so low that it is recommended no ice fishing be scheduled for this winter. However, Roseworth Reservoir has sufficient water, and it will be planted heavily to sustain a winter fishery.

Carry Lake is scheduled to open Aug. 1 to allow the bass and bluegill another spawning season prior to fishing. Water levels were very low in the Wildlife Management Area this summer and without the channels completed by the Department of Fish and Game during the 1977-78 drought, would probably have gone completely dry.

Another meeting of interest to local sportsmen will be the Oct. 22 meeting of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission in Twin Falls.

The commission is expected to set fishing regulations for 1980 at that meeting.

Sessions will be held in the Holiday Inn, with a public meeting set for Oct. 28, starting at 7:30 p.m. Prior to final commission action, other public meetings will have been held in each of the Department of Fish and Game's six regions.

The department reports that it will propose only one regulation change of statewide significance — a new definition of the brook trout limit.

For areas 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 it will be recommended that the regulations show a limit of 10 brook trout, not 10 brook trout in addition to the general trout limit, as specified for 1979.

The wording in this year's regulations allowed a total catch of 16 brook trout in some waters that could not sustain a heavy harvest, a department spokesman said. Another proposal expected to come before the commission will be an amendment to 1979-80, big game regulations.

The change, if approved, would prohibit the use of dogs to take bears in management unit 44 from next Jan. 1 through June 30, 1980.

The first week of steelhead fishing was both hot and cold.

The catch rate on the Snake and Salmon rivers was poor, while the Clearwater River had a very good rate.

According to the fish and game department, warm temperatures accounted for the low catch percentage on the Salmon River. Only four fish were reported being caught at the mouth of the salmon.

On the Clearwater River, anglers seemed to have better success. Steelhead were caught at a rate of one per five hours.

The steelhead season lasts through Nov. 18.

good deer movement, and there appeared to be little winter loss.

The warm, dry conditions will make hunting difficult but will provide good access into the hunting areas.

Hunters, he said, should be prepared to closely take care of their deer by skinning and covering with a game bag to allow quick cooling and to protect game from flies.

The cutoff date for deer tag sales is Oct. 16 and a person can also purchase one after that date from any fish and game office during regular working hours.

However, it shall be unlawful to use such tag until the second day following issuance. A hunter must completely cut out the vee-shaped notches on the tag for the proper month and day immediately upon bagging an animal.

Sportsmen hunting in antlered-only units are reminded they must have additional evidence of sex attached to the carcass or piece of hindquarter if they separate the antlers from the deer. The deer must have at least one branched antler to be legal, and the antlers must also accompany the carcass.

Celtics trim Rockets

BOSTON (UPI) — Cedric Maxwell scored 20 points to lead seven Boston players in double figures Friday night, lifting the Boston Celtics to a 114-106 victory over the Houston Rockets in the season opener for both teams.

The win was the first for new Celtics coach Bill Fitch and marked the first time in four years the Celtics won an opener. Rookie Larry Bird contributed 14 points in his debut with Boston.

The Celtics opened a 99-80 lead in the fourth quarter but Houston, behind Moses Malone's game-high 31 points, whittled the advantage down to three points with 4:45 remaining. M.L. Carr, who had 15 points in his first game as a Celtic, then gave Boston a 100-101 lead with a field goal and Boston held on for the win.

Bird and Maxwell each scored four points to spark an 11-2 blitz opening the second half, with Kings 105, Bucks 103

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Otis Birdsong hit a 10-foot jumper with 32 seconds remaining Friday night to spark the Kansas City Kings to a 105-103 season-opening victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Milwaukee scored nine straight points "at the end" of the first quarter to take a 31-25 lead and maintained that advantage until ex-Buck Ernie Grunfeld hit a shot from the corner to give the Kings their first lead, 67-65, with 9:46 left in the game.

The score was tied seven times after that before Brian Winters converted a technical foul against Kansas City coach Cotton Fitzsimmons to put Milwaukee in front, 103-102.

NETS 102, Cavs 95 PISCATAWAY, N.J. (UPI) — John Williamson scored 23 points, Richie Richardson 22 and Tommie Calvin Nait contributed 20 points and 19 rebounds in his NBA debut Friday night to pace the New Jersey Nets to a 102-95 triumph over the Cleveland Cavaliers in the season opener for both teams.

Cleveland's Bobby Smith scored his 10,000th career point with a jumper 31 seconds into the fourth quarter. The basket lifted the Cavs into a 70-74 lead but New Jersey regained an 83-82 lead on Kelley's tip-in with 5:54 remaining. The Nets went ahead for good when Kelley emptied a jumper with 4:53 left to make it 85-81.

Williamson then sank a pair of technical foul shots and Kelley added a free throw to complete the three-point play and give the Nets an 88-84 lead.

Mike Mitchell led the Cavs with 15 points.

BIRD has mixed emotions about first pro contest

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Celtic rookie Larry Bird looked upon his NBA debut Friday night with mixed emotions.

Bird was happy because the Celtics downed the Houston Rockets 114-106, but he was not pleased with his own performance.

"I didn't play enough. I got into foul trouble early. When I don't get to play, it doesn't help me. I only fouled out of two college games in my career and now I've been in four in the first nine games," he said, including eight preseason games in his camp.

The rookie appeared poised, however, both on and off the court.

"I wasn't nervous out there. I was just fouling," he said. "I was always called 'Bird' in high school. The first couple of games, I'll have to learn their system and play to it."

Bird, in addition to scoring 14 points and hauling down 10 rebounds, brought the capacity crowd of 15,320 to its feet on numerous occasions with a passing display that gave him five assists in 37 minutes.

"I made some errors out there. There were times when I overpassed and there were times when I should have hit open men, but as the season goes on, I'll be better," he said.

Bird started the Celtic scoring when he laid in a rebound but felt no special thrill in scoring his first basket.

"There is no special kick out of it. I feel that any time I get inside I can score. My problem was that my mother's shot just wasn't there," he said after hitting on 6-of-13 shots.

NETS 102, Cavs 95 PISCATAWAY, N.J. (UPI) — John Williamson scored 23 points, Richie Richardson 22 and Tommie Calvin Nait contributed 20 points and 19 rebounds in his NBA debut Friday night to pace the New Jersey Nets to a 102-95 triumph over the Cleveland Cavaliers in the season opener for both teams.

Cleveland's Bobby Smith scored his 10,000th career point with a jumper 31 seconds into the fourth quarter. The basket lifted the Cavs into a 70-74 lead but New Jersey regained an 83-82 lead on Kelley's tip-in with 5:54 remaining. The Nets went ahead for good when Kelley emptied a jumper with 4:53 left to make it 85-81.

Williamson then sank a pair of technical foul shots and Kelley added a free throw to complete the three-point play and give the Nets an 88-84 lead.

Mike Mitchell led the Cavs with 15 points.

76ers 93, Bullets 92

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Darryl Dawkins hit a field goal with 14 seconds remaining Friday night to give the Philadelphia 76ers a 93-92 victory over the Washington Bullets in the season opener for both teams.

Dawkins scored 24 points and grabbed 18 rebounds and teammate Julius Erving added 27 points as the Sixers retained their mastery over the Bullets at the Capital Centre, where they did not lose a game last season.

The Bullets trailed 89-82, after an Erving layup and free throw, but rallied behind two jump shots by Kevin Grevey, one by Elvin Hayes and a Greg Ballard layup to cut their first lead since the first quarter, 90-89.

After the first few minutes Hansen, which was running undefeated until meeting Murtaugh last week, looked like it was in for a long night.

On the second play after the kickoff, Trent Robinson broke off tackle and romped 90 yards to show Oakley ahead 6-0. The Hornets conversion passed failed.

Oakley then forced Hansen to punt in four plays and in a near repeat performance, two plays later Mark Cranney hit tight end Rick Robinson who legged it into a 70-yard scoring bomb.

After that, however, the Hansen defense kept Oakley out of the end zone.

Hansen marched 50 yards in the second quarter to get back into the game, Cooper Erbe sneaking for the last yards. He then rolled out for the two-point conversion.

It stayed at 12-8 until the waning three minutes when Hansen got the ball for the last time at its own 30.

Twice the fumbles kicked the title away, but Hansen prevented defense for running plays that carried to the 35. It was from that point that Hansen won it.

Skyline 39, Bees 20

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Skyline was down 20-7 in the first quarter but exploded for 17 points in the second quarter to take a 39-20 half-time lead for a 39-20 Southern Idaho Conference over Bonneville Friday night.

Nick Olson ran for a 14-yard touchdown on the option and threw a 75-yard touchdown pass to tight end Matt Set. Jason Cato ran for 59 yards in the middle of the third touchdown.

On the fourth down, after a goal after on Bonneville's second possession of the third quarter, Bonneville marched 96 yards in 15 plays and they held the one-yard line, despite Ben Bullen's plunge attempt off left tackle.

Skyline then took off on its own one-yard line and ran 99 yards for the score, which saw Dennis Patrick plunge over from the one-yard line.

A hunter education course is set for Oct. 29, 31, Nov. 2, 5, and 7 at CSI from 7 to 9 p.m.
The number of students will be limited to 20. Persons 11 years of age or older are eligible to attend.
Hunters 12, 13, and 14 years old will not need this course to purchase a license in 1979, but beginning Jan. 1, 1980, it will be required.
Contact Don Botcher, 733-1289, for more information.

Phoosah season opens today in nine of Idaho's northern counties.
South of Idaho County, including the Magic Valley, hunters must wait until Oct. 27 for opening day.
A season similar to 1978 is predicted by the state fish and game department. That year an estimated 80,000 hunters harvested more than 377,000 roosters — the highest number recorded since 1973.
With a productive nesting season now behind them, waterfowl throughout British Columbia and Alberta are beginning to congregate on traditional staging marshes for the long flight that will take them south to favorite wintering areas far from their summer homes.

Alberta and BC provide a large share of the nesting population in the Magic Valley.
The fact that this fall's migration is getting underway later than normal in western Canada can be attributed, in part, to mild September weather and a prolonged summer nesting season, according to officials of Ducks Unlimited.
"Our DU (Canada) field reports indicate that the buildup of staging populations of waterfowl has come about slowly during September and early October," said DU Executive Vice President, Dale E. Whitesell, "but the first arrival of cold temperatures is quickly going to move those birds now scattered across small ponds into more concentrated populations on larger marshes."
"What's important to realize is that this later-than-normal staging pattern is being caused in part by the extended nesting season. We're simply pleased that this summer has proven to be a particularly productive one for waterfowl across the western prairies."
Whitesell said that though the mild Canadian weather has contributed to a belated fall waterfowl migration, it has provided a boost to Ducks

Unlimited's habitat restoration program.
"Our program this year in western Canada has involved work on 81 waterfowl-habitat-creating projects (totaling some 7,465 acres and 113 nesting shoreline miles)," said Whitesell. "When up against the pressure of a schedule like that, I'm sure DU (Canada) will take every break from the weather they can get."
Hunters are reminded of the extreme fire danger in the Sawtooth National Forest.
"It's drier than usual out there," said a U.S. Forest Service spokesman. "Hunters are urged to make sure their smoking fires are out before leaving camp."
They also are asked to have their chain saws checked for spark arrestors.
Those who are hunting in the Fairfield area, can tune into Channel 10 on the CB radio for information on where logging trucks are located.
The trucks, said the U.S. Forest Service, are using the roads on Fleck and Couch summits Monday through Friday.
Wood cutting

Firewood cutting permits can no longer be obtained on the Fairfield district on weekends.
However, they can be obtained 8 to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Fairfield Ranger District office or Shake Creek and Big Smoky Guard stations.
In Ketchum, firewood permits can be obtained at the Ketchum Ranger office from 8:30 to 5 on Saturday and during the week.
The Twin Falls and Burley district offices are open Monday through Friday from 8 to 5.
Camping
Campgrounds along the Salmon River and at Stanley Lake will remain open until the snow flies.
The U.S. Forest Service's wilderness ranger is recommending warm coats and down sleeping bags for temperatures that are now dipping to 15 degrees.
In addition, it also is recommended that water be boiled in the mountains or obtain it where the spring comes out of the ground or as near to the source as possible.
Pole permits
The cutoff date for obtaining pole and pole permits on the Twin Falls Ranger District is Oct. 24. More information can be obtained from the district forest service office at 734-3490.

A large, classy field of competitors take off at the start of the Southern Idaho Conference girls' cross country championships at Municipal Golf Course

In cross country Bruin girls claim SIC championships

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Cindy Crow won her first major individual championship in leading the Twin Falls girls to the Southern Idaho Conference cross country crown Friday afternoon.

Borah dominated the boys' side of the competition, running off with the varsity and Jayvee titles while Capital won the girls Jayvee crown.
Crow, who had begun to wonder if this first big win was ever going to show up, sprinted into the lead at the outset and led from wire to wire. The victory capped a three-year career for the Bruin senior who immediately after the race noted she felt the year-round, 60-mile-a-week training was worth it.
"I'm not feeling very well right now," she panted, "but I'll feel better in a few minutes and then it will be worth it."

She complained of being tired coming down the stretch. "I was trying to sprint but I couldn't," she said, not knowing she had a healthy margin over runner-up Becky Bjorn of Meridian. She decided the early effort at the start of the race had taken away much of her kick.

Her goal, in addition to winning the individual and team, was to run the Twin Falls course in less than 11 minutes. She missed that mark by four seconds.

Sophomore Julie Yergensen finished third to help Twin Falls to a team mark of 50, some 12 points ahead of runner-up Idaho Falls. The Tigers went without senior Kerry Pinder due to an injury.

Capital was third at 79, followed by Meridian at 88, Borah 98, Pocatello 88 and Nampa 214.

Things got away from the two Magic Valley entries in the boys division although Minico's Ralph Lara placed fourth and Cory Armstrong of Twin Falls was fifth in the individual.
Minico wound up in a tie for third place with Nampa at 113 although Borah and Capital were well ahead of that with 45 and 57, respectively. Pocatello had 122, Twin Falls 143, Highland 147, Boise 168, Skyline 229, Idaho Falls 274 and Meridian 275.

Kent Newman of Pocatello led almost the entire 5,000-meter race to take the individual win ahead of Borah runner-up Rick Bergeson.
In the boys Jayvee race, Borah placed seven in the top 10 to turn that into a shambles while the Capital girls junior varsity took third, fourth and fifth to edge Twin Falls 37-41.

Sooners tops in scoring

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — No. 2 Alabama used its 33-9 victory over Wichita State to remain the strongest defensive team among NCAA Division I schools but the Crimson Tide fell into second place in scoring behind No. 3 Oklahoma.

Alabama has now given up only nine points in four games for an average of 2.2 per game but the Crimson Tide saw its scoring average drop to 44.7 points per game with the 38 points against Wichita State.

Oklahoma used a 49-24 victory over Colorado to climb into first place in scoring with an average of 45.5 points per game, according to statistics released Tuesday.

Alabama also remained the No. 1 rushing team in the land with an average of 373 yards per game, topping the 368.5 average of runner-up Oklahoma.

In other offensive categories, Nebraska leads in total offense with an average of 483.5 yards per game and Brigham Young remains the top passing team in the land with an average of 337.7 yards per game.

In other defensive categories, No. 4 Texas leads in total defense with an average yield of 163 yards per game. Arizona State is tops in rushing defense with an average yield of 58 yards per game and Bowling Green is No. 1 in pass defense with an average yield of 61.6 yards per game.

Also, Mississippi climbed back into the net punting lead with an average of 43.7 yards on 19 punts.

Canyon Springs scramble

TWIN FALLS — Canyon Springs Men's Golf Association will wind up its year with its annual reorganization meeting and scramble Sunday.
The day will open with breakfast being served from 8 to 10 a.m., with the business meeting, including election of officers, slated at that time.
The scramble, teams decided on a blind draw, will go from a shotgun start about 10:30 a.m.
Those planning to participate are asked to contact the pro shop by 6 p.m. Saturday.
The scramble, which includes a $10 entry fee, features $1,000 in added money and John Leonelli will provide on-course refreshments.

Drug tests accurate

MOSCOW (UPI) — International Olympic Committee officials said Friday the drug testing laboratories to be used for next July's Moscow Olympic Games are "perfectly equipped" and that overall medical facilities are "more than we asked for."

Prince Alexandre de Merode of Belgium, president of the IOC's medical commission, told a news conference. "We are quite happy with what we have seen," during the commission's inspection of Olympic medical preparations.

Solomon, Dibbs advance

BARCELONA, SPAIN (UPI) — Harold Solomon and Eddie Dibbs of the United States advanced into the semi-finals of the $175,000 Count of Goda tournament Friday with straight-set victories over Benziil Carlos Kirmayr and Czechoslovakia's Thomas Smid.
Solomon defeated Kirmayr 7-6, 6-1, while Dibbs crushed Smid 6-4, 6-1.

Clemente to fight Castillo

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ed Clemente and unheralded Hulien Castillo meet in a scheduled 12-round, bout next Thursday at the Olympic Auditorium with the winner slated to meet featherweight champion Danny Lopez for the title later this year.
Castillo, of Bakersfield, Calif., is 42-0 with 26 knockouts. Clemente, from the Philippines, fought Lopez last Oct. 21 in Pesera, Italy, but was disqualified for butting Lopez in the fourth round.

Steeple wins in boxing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two light welterweights, Lemuel Steeples of the United States and Pedro Cruz of Puerto Rico, scored impressive decision victories to highlight the second night of the quarterfinal rounds in the World Cup Boxing tournament.

The victories by the two 23-year-old boxers set up a semifinal showdown between the pair, slated for Oct. 17.

Thomas leads gym meet

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Kurt Thomas and Rhonda Schwany took overall first-place honors Thursday night in the final competition to lead the United States to the team championship of the seven-nation Pacific Gymnastics Championship.
Thomas, 23, from Terre Haute, Ind., clinched the men's all-round champion title with a score of 57.49 from the six men's events, vault, floor exercise, pommel horse, rings, parallel and high bars.

Down First tops race

By United Press International
Mrs. Miles Valentine's Down First came from fourth position to post an impressive 13-length victory Friday in the 56th running of the $16,325 Temple-Guthrie Steeplechase at Belmont Park.
The 7-year-old went the 2 1/2-mile steeplechase consisting of 16 National fences to defeat a field of seven. For Down First, the 22.15 victory was her third in three starts this season.

Sonics sign star guard to contract

SEATTLE (UPI) — The NBA negotiation Seattle SuperSonics and star guard Dennis Johnson, vetoed the most valuable player in last season's world championship series, finally came to terms Friday on a new contract that significantly increased his salary.

The new pact adds five years to Johnson's contract, which was due to expire at the end of the 1979-80 season. It raises him to the Sonics' through the 1984-85 season.
"I'm very glad that we can now concentrate on the upcoming season," said Coach Lenny Wilkens. "It's nice to know the Sonics will have the best all-around guard in the league with them for a few years to come."

"I always hoped to be able to stay with the Sonics in Seattle," Johnson said. "Both my wife and I like the area very much. I'm happy with my new contract. It was a long process of negotiation, and I'm glad it's finally resolved."

Johnson had been unhappy with his relatively low annual salary of about $30,000 over the past few years and would have been able to negotiate as a free agent at the end of the current season had his agent, Fred Slaughter of Los Angeles, been unable to reach agreement with Sonics president Sam Schulman.

Huskies to face stern test from Wildcats

By United Press International
Southern California has been ranked No. 1 all season but the Trojans may not even be the best team in their conference.

For 13 of the past 14 years, either Southern Cal, UCLA or Stanford has represented the Far West in the Rose Bowl — and the team that broke that stronghold in the 1978 Rose Bowl is determined to get back to Pasadena, Calif.

The seventh-ranked Washington Huskies, 5-0 overall and 4-0 in the Pac-10 conference, travel to Tempe, Ariz., tonight to take on torrid Arizona-State as the Huskies begin a rigorous stretch drive for the Pac-10 crown.

Southern Cal, also 5-0 overall, is 4-0 in the conference and is becoming increasingly evident as an unblemished record may be a prerequisite for the conference title. Washington, which finishes with Pittsburgh, UCLA, California, Southern Cal and Washington State, faces a dangerous opponent in the Sun Devils — who were idle last week to the dismay of Washington Coach Don James.

"This game is between two fine teams who are both in the conference race," said James. "I have been hearing that ASU has been pointing to this game all season, and they have had two weeks to prepare. We must not let Mark Malone get a hot hand, containing the quarterback will be the No. 1 issue for us."

Malone and wide receiver John Mitter combine for a strong passing duo and Newton Williams keys the Sun Devils' running game. Malone has thrown for 552 yards and four touchdowns and Arizona State has turned the season around in the last two games. After losing to California and absorbing a crushing defeat by Florida State, the Sun Devils have routed Toledo and Oregon State by a combined 94-0 margin.

It takes more than two victories, however, to satisfy the Sun Devils' perfectionist coach, Frank Kush.

"We're still struggling on offense despite the amount of points we scored in our last two games," said Kush. "We will have to wait until Saturday night to see if the past two weeks have helped."

Kush may need divine assistance against a well-balanced Washington team. The Huskies are averaging 38 points and 399 yards per game and the defense has given up only eight points per game — keyed by three-year starter Anwarine Richardson and Bret Gagliardi at linebacker and tackle Doug Martin.

Offensively, the Huskies rely on the slashing runs of Joe Staley, who already has 10 touchdowns. Staley doesn't figure to add much to that total Saturday night, however, because he'll be facing the best rushing defense in the country. The Sun Devils yield only 1.5 yards per rushing attempt and have given up only two TDs on the ground. Washington's senior quarterback, Tom Porras, may be forced to throw more than usual and the Huskies are prime candidates to be upset if they're looking past Arizona State to a Nov. 10 showdown with the Trojans.

In other major games Saturday, top-ranked Southern Cal hosts Stanford, No. 2 Alabama is at Florida, third-rated Oklahoma has its annual Cotton Bowl battle with fifth-rated Texas, No. 4 Nebraska hosts Kansas, sixth-rated Houston is at Texas A&M, eighth-ranked Ohio State hosts Indiana, No. 9 Notre Dame visits Air Force and 10th-ranked Florida State hosts No. 20 Mississippi State.

Also, No. 11 Michigan hosts Minnesota, 12th-ranked LSU visits Georgia, 13th-rated Arkansas is at Texas Tech, No. 14 North Carolina hosts Wake Forest, 15th-ranked Missouri hosts Oklahoma, 16 Brigham Young is at Utah State, 17th-rated Pittsburgh hosts Cincinnati, No. 18 Navy hosts William and Mary and 19th-rated North Carolina State hosts Maryland.

McCullough takes lead in PGA play

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Mike McCullough, winless in eight years on the PGA tour, said he had a "chance" in the last three holes Friday for a 1-under-par 69 and the second-round lead in the Southern Open.

McCullough's two-day score of 134 following a first-round 65 — was good enough for one-stroke lead over Gibby Gilbert and two-time defending champion Jerry Pate.

Four players were tied at 136 — Mike Reid, Ted Westkopf, Dan Pohl and Calvin Peete. Three others, Ben Greenshaw, Michael Brannen and Frank Beard, were at 137, three strokes off the pace.

Eighty-two players made the cut at 143. Among them was Arnold Palmer, who is playing in his first tournament since early August.

McCullough's round included two bogys and just three pars, but the pars came after he had lost the lead for the first time to Pate. Pate, seeking to become the first touring pro to win the same tournament three consecutive years, was in the clubhouse as the leader while McCullough was on the back nine.

McCullough then birdied No. 7 with a 15-foot putt to tie Pate and sank a 12-foot, 40-foot and a 10-foot putt to give him the lead.

Pate shot a 69, sinking an eight-foot putt on the 18th hole to go one under par for the day. Gilbert had an erratic round — five birdies, three bogys and one eagle.

"I was much more excited today than yesterday," said McCullough, a Scottsdale, Ariz., native. "After not playing well for so long, it was exciting to play well for two days."

McCullough missed six birdie putts of 10 feet or under. "I guess it was partially because of my excitement. But I really felt good about my round."

"I knew I couldn't continue to get close to the hole and the putts were going to have to start falling," he said. Pate said his main goal was to shoot under 70.

"I didn't think I was going to make a putt all day," he said. "Once I got to No. 14, I knew I had to make a couple of putts."

Forty-three golfers broke par Friday, with Lynn Lott leading the pace with a 65.

Nuggets give fine to Boswell

By United Press International
Forward Tom Boswell was suspended for two games and fined $5,000 Friday by the Denver Nuggets for cursing and shoving assistant coach George Irvine.

Nuggets President Cass Scheer announced the discipline for Boswell, who was suspended without pay for Denver's first two regular season games. Scheer also indicated Boswell might be traded.

"His future with the Nuggets will be determined by Coach Donnie Walsh at the conclusion of the suspension," Scheer said.

Boswell exchanged curses and shoves with Irvine Thursday, said he regretted the incident and said any action by the Nuggets' management was justified.

Boswell exchanged curses and then pushed Irvine near the end of Thursday's practice session.

Mike Gilbert, a right-handed pitcher for the Chicago Cubs, Friday was sent to Cincinnati, completing the deal with the Reds that gave the Cubs left-hander Doug Capilla earlier this season. Gilbert will be assigned to the Reds' Nashville, Tenn., club in the Southern League, a Cubs spokesman said.

Capilla pitched 18 games for the Cubs, had a 1-1 record and a 4.13 ERA. Gilbert pitched with Quad Cities in the Midwest League.

Art Stringer, a linebacker for the Houston Oilers Friday was placed on the injured reserve list and defensive end James Young was activated for Sunday's game at Baltimore.

Stringer, 25, will miss at least four games with the knee injury suffered last week against St. Louis and placed in a cast.

Young, 28, underwent off-season knee surgery and was slow to recover. He was not on the active roster during the first six games of the regular season.

Allegheny County Commissioner Tom Foerster said Friday he has put a barrel of Iron City Beer and ethnic dishes on his belt. The Pirates will win the World Series.

His counterpart in Baltimore, county executive Don Hutchinson, has accepted the challenge on behalf of the Orioles. Hutchinson has wagered a case of National Premium Beer and a bushel of Maryland crabs.

Earl Campbell, Houston Oilers running back, currently the leading rusher in the National Football League, Friday became the first former University of Texas football player to have his jersey

Robinson on the injured reserve list with a damaged elbow.

Pat Leahy, who led American Conference kickers in scoring last season, will miss the New York Jets' Monday night game against the Minnesota Vikings with a strained right knee.

Leahy, a former soccer star at St. Louis University, hit 22 field goals and 41-of-42 conversions in attempts last year to score 107 points, the second highest total in the National Football League. This year, Leahy was 12-of-15 on conversions and 16-of-13 on field goals for 36 points.

Where did rumor on Fertig start?

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — The board chairman of the Oregon State University Educational Foundation Thursday charged OSU President Robert MacVicar with a recommendation that football coach Craig Fertig be fired.

Frank Ramsey commented after the OSU Board of Athletic Control unanimously approved Athletic Director Dee Andros' recommendation that Fertig be fired, effective at the end of the season. The recommendation goes to MacVicar, who said late Wednesday from Mexico City that he would make no decision until his return to the campus on Oct. 18. MacVicar is in Mexico City on business.

"There is no reason for this happening with six games to go," said Ramsey. "I blame the president. He should be here and taking the decisions."

"The president has put Andros into a barrel on this thing, and that isn't fair. He's getting a lot of heat because he is carrying out what MacVicar wanted him to do."

Ramsey contended that the president met with Andros and a representative of the athletic board and let it be known that he wanted Fertig fired.

"MacVicar has to quit going with the wind," said Ramsey. "The wind blows one way and he goes that way. That's what happened on this thing."

"A few loudmouths from Portland, guys who don't contribute that much to our OSU programs, cried to him and he reacted. He was quoted several times, earlier that the coaching situation would be evaluated after the season."

"Now here we are with this thing. It's tough on the kids and it's not fair to them."

"I think Craig is handling this whole thing with a lot of class."

When questioned about MacVicar's action, Andros said, "I couldn't say he urged me. I think you could say the president and I had a mutual agreement that something had to be done right away (after five losses this season)."

Andros said at his most recent meeting with MacVicar that they decided the athletic director should talk to the coach and urge him to resign.

Fertig has refused to resign. "I've been that MacVicar's first around at a time like this," Ramsey said. "He is off in Mexico doing something that a representative from the OSU of occupational could be doing a lot better."

Fertig spoke emotionally to OSU boosters at the Beaver Huddle in Portland Thursday.

"You learn something at a time like this, and I've learned a lot in the last 24 hours," Fertig said. "I think a guy tends to put too much emphasis on his job and not enough on his family."

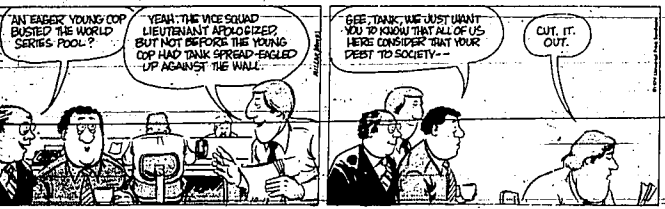

"I've gotten a lot more love and respect from my family and I've found out who my friends are."

"When Dee Andros offered me the job, I took me about 20 seconds to make up my mind. I think it was a good decision. I still do. I just don't think a person who won't take chances is worth anything."

Fertig said the situation was affecting his players. "They are young people, very impressionable," he said.

Browns hope to come back

By IRA KAUFMAN
UPI Sports Writer
The Cleveland Browns have lived by the pass in the first six games. They may die by it Sunday.

The Browns, sporting the NFL's No. 1 passing attack that ripped the proud Pittsburgh defense to shreds last week, try to bounce back from a 51-35 defeat against the ballhawking Washington Redskins Sunday in Municipal Stadium.

Cleveland's Brian Sipe has thrown for more yardage and touchdowns than any other pro quarterback — but he's also suffered an AFC-high 12 interceptions and that last figure may prove his undoing against the Redskins' opportunistic defense.

Both the Browns and the Redskins are 4-2 following losses to division rivals last week and Sunday's game will strengthen the winner's playoff chances. Sipe and Washington quarterback Joe Theismann enter the game at the peak of their careers and their aerial show may light up the Municipal Stadium scoreboard.

"Theismann is a lot better quarterback than he was in the past because he's a very patient guy," said Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano. "He's not as inherent a scrambler as he once was. He used to be the kind of guy who, with any feel of (defensive line) pressure at all, would want to come right out of the pocket."

Theismann has shined in the pocket long enough this year to become the second-rated quarterback in the AFC. He's completed 63 percent of his passes and thrown only five interceptions.

Rutigliano wasn't about to shed any tears over his own star quarterback, who passed for 351 yards against the Steelers last Sunday.

"I think we're growing offensively each week and the reason we're doing that is that we've got the fools," he said. "You're seeing a quarterback (Sipe) become into one of the top quarterbacks in the National Football League. They (Pittsburgh) have the best defense in the NFL and they couldn't stop us."

The Redskins, like the Browns, are coming off a key loss to the Eagles in Philadelphia last week. They dropped a 27-17 decision to the Eagles in Philadelphia last Sunday.

Running back Greg Pruitt, the spark to Cleveland's ground game, is again expected to be on the sidelines nursing a knee sprain, so Sipe is expected to fire at will again.

The Redskins will be waiting with open arms — which they hope to fill with footballs.

Veteran cornerback Lemar Parrish leads the NFL with five interceptions and Joe Laverdus has three as Washington has already posted a 19-10 advantage in takeaways. Cleveland has committed 18 turnovers and has only nine takeaways.

In other games Sunday, Atlanta is at Oakland, Buffalo at Miami, Denver at Kansas City, Houston at Baltimore, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Seattle at San Diego, Detroit vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Tampa Bay at New York, San Francisco at the New York Giants and New England at Chicago.

Minnesota is at the New York Jets Monday night. Atlanta and Oakland are in desperate efforts and both clubs are 3-3. The Raiders, who sport a 22-1 record in interconference play, held Miami to a field goal Monday night and registered six sacks. The Falcons recorded eight sacks in a 22-7 drubbing of Green Bay last week, stopping a three-game losing streak. Rookie Willie Anderson, the NFL's fifth-rated running back, is doubtful with a strained knee and will be replaced by another Falcons rookie, James Mayberry.

Kessler Open

Jaskie seeks second win

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (UPI) — Fred Jaskie goes after his second consecutive PBA championship and Guppy Trout defends his title this weekend in the $75,000 Kessler Open.

Qualifying begins today with 208 bowlers shooting for the $11,000 first prize.

Trout, a 28-year-old right-hander from Savannah, is a veteran, well-known on the PBA tour until his first victory by an impressive 275 pins over Hall of Famer Dick Weber in last year's Kessler Open.

This season Trout stands 17th on the money list with $31,065 in 26 tournaments and has set a PBA record with six perfect games. The old record was four perfect games in one year set by George Pappas of Charlotte, N.C., in 1978.

Trout finished fourth in last week's Regional Champions Classic in Rochester, N.Y., while Jaskie, of Grandville, W.V., snapped out of a season long slump with a 268-228 title game victory over leading money winner Mark Roth. It was Jaskie's second career PBA title.

In all, 18 of the PBA's current top 20 money winners will be on hand this week including Roth, of North Arlington, N.J., who leads the tour with four championships in 1979.

Each of the 208 bowlers will bowl three rounds of qualifying today and Sunday before the top 24 advance for match play. Those players will enter into head-to-head competition, with the top five bowlers after 42 games advancing to the finals Tuesday night.

One-room schoolhouse At Three Creek, teacher, six pupils are home on the range — and love it

By BEN MCKELWAY
Times-News writer
THREE CREEK — Lori Brackett isn't the only fourth-grader whose favorite TV show is "Little House on the Prairie." But Lori, like the characters she watches every week, has her own horse, lives in the country, and spends her weekdays in a one-room schoolhouse.

The Three Creek School, one of Idaho's 12 remaining one-room schools, serves the ten remote cattle ranches between Rogerson and Murphy Hot Springs. Lori and her five younger classmates, the sons and daughters of ranchers and hired hands, make up the entire student body.

The schoolhouse itself, in Owyhee County's 26 miles west of Rogerson, is just another blue steel building. Its character is all on the inside. There its students receive the same gift that was imparted to the class of 1900 — a good basic education.

Unlike many other Magic Valley schools, where teachers must cope with overcrowded classrooms due to rising enrollments, Three Creek School can provide individual attention whenever a student needs it.

"When I taught third grade in Hansen last year I had a class of 33," says Whitney Daniels, the school's new teacher. "I spent five to 10 minutes on individual work in a two-week period. I was doing well."

Five minutes at Three Creek School is enough for any observer to see the contrast. In addition to Lori, there are five second graders, including Daniels' own son Kevin, and three first-graders. When one has a problem, he or she approaches the teacher's desk without hesitation. And Daniels, who keeps detailed lesson plans for each of her students, is never too busy to help.

Daniels gets mail addressed to "Janitor," "Head Coach," and "Cook," and she opens it all because she holds those jobs, too. For lunch the students always bring something from home, but during the winter months she supplements their lunch with hot soup or some other dish cooked up in the school's kitchen.

Equipped with electric heat, an indoor bathroom, a mimeograph machine, and an overhead projector, the classroom is a far cry from the area's first school, whose empty frame is still standing in a pasture north of the present structure, in Cherry Creek Draw.

All today's school lacks is telephone service, which will be available later this year. The students are used to modern conveniences at home, too.

And yet there is still a difference. The sheer distance between the school and any population center makes the people of Three Creek have the best of both worlds. Their quieter, slower-paced, family-oriented environment is difficult to match these days.

Ranching began in the Three Creek area when the only inhabitants of Twin Falls were jackrabbits. The early settlers cleared parts of the vast sagebrush desert and planted grasses for their livestock. In the draws that cut through desert, offering pure water and shelter from the wind, they built their homes. The region gets its name from another creek, two miles east of the school. The curves in that creek resemble the numeral "3."

Susan Roy, who taught for two years at the school before moving to Moab, Utah, this summer, is enthusiastic about her time at Three Creek.

"Once you've taught at a one-room school house, you realize how ridiculous our regular educational system is," Roy said. "I just don't know how most kids learn anything."

"I've taught in a lot of different grades and schools," she continued. "Most if not all the problems are from one cause: There are too many kids in each class. Once one starts falling behind, he can never catch up. I wish people would get that through their heads, but I don't think the 1 percent initiative will help things any."

Roy said her students all scored higher than average on standardized tests, attributing the scores to the individual attention factor.

To the rear of the school is the rent-free "teachery," where the teacher and her family are expected to live. Roy's single complaint about the job was that the school doubles as a community center. The frequent evening meetings there invaded her privacy, she said.

One condition which the Three Creek school board has attached to the teaching job is that a teacher can only stay two or three years, in order to give the students some variety. Eight grade levels are taught at the school, plus a kindergarten from January to June, so a student could spend nearly nine years in the same classroom.

Shana Brewer, a Three Creek graduate, is now in tenth grade at Twin Falls High School. There she has discovered she can budget her time better than her fellow students. She "learned how to learn" at Three Creek, she says, adding that she has a greater than average desire to learn because she was allowed to "move along at my own speed."

"At Three Creek I wasn't put down if I didn't get something at first," said Shana.

The Brewers moved to Twin Falls the summer after Shana finished eighth grade. She is, her younger brother and sister and her mother Bethene still spend their summers and most weekends down on their ranch, where Handa Brewer, Shana's father, stays to keep things running smoothly. Such a move is typical for middle-day Three Creek ranch families. The alternative is a long drive into Rogerson twice a day to meet the Filer school bus.

Another advantage of her early childhood was all the time she spent alone. Shana said explaining that she got to know herself better that way. She often hiked into the desert by herself, and she still returns to favorite caves now and then.

"For schooling, I think I learned more at Three Creek," she said, "but for friends and social life I like it better here in Twin Falls."

Shana's appreciation for Twin Falls is not shared by many current Three Creek students.

"Twin Falls is like a junkyard," said Shan-Blick, another first-grader.

"It's too far, too hot, and they have poison water up there," said second-grader Ira Brackett, Lori's brother. Their family gets their drinking water from a nearby spring, Lori explained. And because of a higher elevation, the ranch country is always cooler than Twin Falls.

Daniels, a Weiser native, decided she wanted to come to a one-room schoolhouse after listening to elderly teachers. In stories they told about their careers, indicated a closeness with students that Daniels wanted to experience firsthand.

For class is clearly a happy one. A touch football game at afternoon recess last week was played for nothing but fun. And the two girls were welcomed onto each team without question.

A minor classroom squabble was quickly settled by Daniels' husband Larry. A consulting range resource specialist, he sometimes helps with the kids on his days off.

"It's like a big family," said Mrs. Daniels. "In a small situation, they have to learn to get along."

Mark Brackett, cousin to Lori and Ira, said he wouldn't want to go to a bigger school.

"I like knowing everybody here," he said.

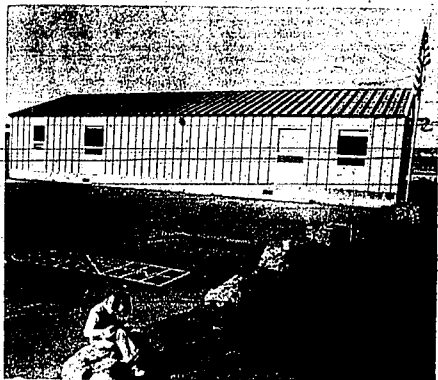

The class — all six of them.

U.S. must become world forestry leader, official says

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The United States needs to take a leadership position in world forestry, Vern Hamre, regional forester of Ogden, said in Twin Falls Friday night.

Hamre was addressing a dinner meeting of the Southwest Idaho Chapter, of the Society of American Foresters. He made the observation in discussing the World Forestry Congress he attended last year in Jakarta, Indonesia. Hamre was one of about 20 United States foresters to attend the congress and one of 2,000 delegates from 100 countries.

"One couldn't help see the lack of United States leadership in world forestry. We are definitely taking a back seat," Hamre said.

He said many European countries are sending forestry specialists to the developing countries and other areas of the world to train and broaden their own training. Hamre said there is some new emphasis in that direction, however, stating President Carter has only recently called for more United States involvement in world forestry.

Hamre told the Idaho foresters programs in the developing countries have a greater emphasis on food and fiber products than on industry. He said probably half of the forest harvest in some countries go for fire wood for cooking and very little is left for industrial income.

Cooperation between foresters and other agencies responsible for management of wildlife, timber and federal lands, was urged Friday afternoon during a panel discussion on wildlife and timber management.

The Southwest Idaho chapter, SAFF, met in the Holiday Inn here to discuss problems and new techniques in management of all state and federal forest resources.

The panel included four speakers with Paul Barker, supervisor of the Sawtooth National Forest as moderator.

Speakers included Gordon Wilson, general manager of Idaho Studs, a lumber operation at St. Anthony; John Mumma of Ogden, director of wildlife of Region 4; Don Zuck of Twin Falls, past president of the Idaho Wildlife Federation, and Bill Webb of Jerome, Idaho Fish and Game Region 4 supervisor.

"We have a challenge to work together for a better overall management program," said Barker in summing up the panel discussion. "We have the capabilities and the skills to bring about positive benefits in all aspects of resource management. We share the responsibilities but each of us must be willing to recognize the need for changes and improvements."

Barker said the National Forest foresters to use their skills toward greater economic values. He said the winds of management are changing.

Webb said there have been adverse logging practices in the past which have been discontinued — to that there have been some good practices. One of the major problems has been roads and the erosion and damage they have caused. He enticed for more road closures and complimented the road closure orders of the U.S. Forest Service in recent years, but he said more roads built for logging operations must be closed since the logging is completed. He also suggested consideration of other logging methods such as use of helicopters, that will not require road building.

"As we look to the 80s, economical conditions of the United States require that we keep economy and energy as the two key factors of our management plans," Wilson told the foresters.

Written comments accepted

Zoning input deadline Oct. 19

TWIN FALLS — Written comments on the revised Twin Falls County zoning ordinance will be accepted by the county commissioners through Oct. 19.

Commissioner Ann Cover said the commissioners will consider "information presented in a public hearing Tuesday and all written comments before taking a final vote on adoption of the ordinance."

The ordinance was revised to include provisions of the county comprehensive land use plan that was adopted several months ago. The major point of contention is the 20-acre minimum site allowed for land division in the agricultural zones.

The minimum was set following hearings on the land use plan over a two-year period. Farmers testifying at that time had asked for larger than 6-acre parcels in farming regions to preserve high production farm land and to protect farming from encroachment of housing development within agricultural areas.

Since that time those who favor rural housing on small parcels of land have protested the 20-acre land division, saying it precludes them from doing what they want with their own land and restricts families who want to live in the country but do not want to farm.

Rural housing development is still possible in zones closer to the towns and cities, and can be allowed through the process of subdivision platting or planned unit development. Such procedures require public hearings and the filing of special requests with the county Planning and Zoning Commission.

Hansen woman wins $77,420

TWIN FALLS — A Hansen woman was awarded $77,420 in damages Thursday by a 12-member 3rd Judicial District Court jury.

Kathryn Pearson and her husband, William H. Pearson, brought suit against Prime Inc., an out of state firm, and Leonard Morgan, of Arkansas, as a result of a traffic accident Dec. 9, 1977. Mrs. Pearson was driving a southbound vehicle and Morgan was driving a southbound truck owned by Prime Inc., when the two collided at a rural intersection just west of Kimberly.

The plaintiff's original complaint, filed Sept. 27, 1978, asked $25,000 in general damages, $8,000 in medical expenses, $2,500 for the loss of Mrs. Pearson's automobile, $6,500 for loss of wages and $25,000 for Mr. Pearson for loss of consortium.

Cancer training program set

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital will be the site for a training program for health care and serving professionals in psychological and social support for cancer patients and their family members.

The initial training session will be held in the annex classroom on Oct. 24 from 1 to 5 p.m. or 6 to 10 p.m. Professionals from throughout Magic Valley are invited to participate.

The onset of cancer usually precipitates an emotional crisis for the patient and family. The purpose of this training program is to enhance knowledge, sensitivity and skills of physicians, nurses, social workers, psychologists and clergy in psychosocial intervention.

Idaho board ups public school aid 13.2%

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Idaho Board of Education has granted a public school foundation request for fiscal year 1981 totaling $280.8 million, an increase over current-year spending estimates.

By approving the increase, board members send the request to Gov. John Evans and the Idaho Legislature for approval during the next legislative session.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said a broad-based coalition of teachers, parents, school administrators and state staff members developed the request which includes $175.9 million from the state's general account, an increase of $30.2 million above this year's appropriation for the operation of public elementary and secondary schools.

Alan Smith, representing the Idaho School Board Association, said the proposal is "realistic and justifiable," while Wayne Likens of the Idaho Association of School Administrators said it would "keep pace with minimum cost-of-living increases."

Don Rolfe of the Idaho Education Association told the board Idaho has dropped from 39th to 42nd among the states in average-teacher-salaries, although the quality of education in the state remains high. He said quality will suffer if the state continues to spend proportionately less and less.

The total request for public school support is $302,984,000, including $197,673,000 from the general account. That total includes support for retirements, unemployment insurance and other social assistance, as well as the basic elementary and secondary programs.

The board also revised current-year operating budgets for the higher education institutions by adding $54,700 in additional funds from miscellaneous receipts and endowment fund revenues — which exceeded original estimates — and $115,200 — already appropriated from the general account but held back until fall enrollment figures were available to determine if student fees and tuition increases reached estimated levels.

Spokesmen for the institutions also presented and received approval for plans to use a total of $1.3 million for one-time expenditures. The money was carried over from the previous fiscal year after the four schools instituted conservative spending policies in anticipation of reduced state support in the future.

Reports received by the board stated that a total of 23,757 students enrolled this fall in academic programs at the four higher education institutions and two junior colleges — compared to 22,541 at the same time one year ago. This fall, 26,178 students enrolled at the four higher institutions, compared to 24,953 a year ago while the two junior colleges reported 1979 fall academic enrollment of 3,611 compared to 3,546 the previous year.

Another 3,106 full-time students enrolled this fall at the state's six vocational-technical schools, compared with 1978 enrollment of 2,902.

The four higher education institutions reported slight decreases in non-resident enrollment in academic programs. Effective this fall, approved increases went in effect of $150 dollars per semester for non-resident tuition and $50 per semester for a non-resident allowance.

Conferees agree: reduce Medicaid

BOISE (UPI) — The consensus at a government conference on Medicaid funding in Boise Thursday was that nursing home use should be curtailed or many states will find it increasingly difficult to stay within their Medicaid budgets.

Gov. John V. Evans suggested three approaches to reduce the Medicaid burden on the states:

- Limit the scope of services paid for by Medicaid so that some programs might be dropped.
- Limit the amount of reimbursement to nursing homes for specific areas of care.
- Change rules under which people are eligible for Medicaid payments so that fewer might be eligible.

Seminar on small business

TWIN FALLS — A seminar on "Managing a Small Business" will be held on Oct. 20 at the College of Southern Idaho.

The one-day event, in Room 108 of the VoTech building, is co-sponsored by CSI, Idaho State University, the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce and the Small Business Administration.

Curtis Eaton Jr., Twin Falls attorney, will discuss forms of business organization. Lance Clow, vice president of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust, will speak on capital and financial concerns. Tom Condie, Twin Falls certified public accountant, will cover business regulations, taxes and record-keeping.

Mike Gray, Twin Falls real estate broker, will talk about business location and marketing. The seminar will also include a panel discussion by Dave Kosen, Massachusetts Mutual Insurance Co. Underwriters, Snelling and Snelling; and Judy Scholes, Judy's Book Store.

Persons interested should register by Oct. 19 with Marvin Glascock, 733-9554.

Fire danger remains high

TWIN FALLS — Fire danger is extremely high in the Snake and Teton National Forest, officials say.

Hunters and woodcutters are being urged to use extreme care with matches and to ensure that fires are out before leaving camp.

Hunters in the high country should go prepared for cold nights. They should wear extra clothing and sleeping bags are recommended. Drinking water should be boiled before use or obtained from as near the source as possible.

Hunters in Fairfield area should tune to Channel 10 on their CB radios for exact location of logging trucks on Fleek and Couch Summits. The loggers use these roads Monday through Friday.

The cutoff date for obtaining post-and-pole permits on the Twin Falls Ranger District is Oct. 24. For further information contact the district office at 734-5490.

Buhl band raising funds

BUIH — To earn money to attend the Boise State University Band Contest Oct. 18 the Buhl High School Band will be sponsoring a Frisbee sale and contest.

The Frisbees will be purchased from any hand made Frisbee company.

There will also be an entry fee for the Frisbee throwing contest to be held Oct. 22 at 3:30 p.m. at the Buhl High School. The final finalists in this competition will compete at half-time of the last home game.

The winner of the competition will receive the services of the band for whatever wanted.

The band has 37 members and will be considered the smallest in competition at Boise. Drum Major is Denise Sparrell.

QUESTION...

Is my widowed mother eligible for Social Security disability benefits even though she is not yet 60 years old, and I am willing to support her?

ANSWER...

Your ability and willingness to support your mother have no bearing upon her entitlement to a widow's disability benefit. She is eligible if:

1. Your father was insured under Social Security
2. She is insured as defined by Social Security regulations
3. She is over age 50, and became disabled within 7 years of your father's death; or if she became disabled while receiving benefits as a mother, or within 7 years thereafter.

Lincoln school open house

TWIN FALLS — Lincoln School will have an open house Oct. 22 following the 7 p.m. PTA meeting.

The open house will give parents a chance to meet the teachers and a chance to see student classroom displays.

Judy's Book Store will have books on display which parents may buy. The proceeds from these books will go to various PTA projects. Lincoln school T-shirts will also be on sale and profits from the sale of the shirts will go to support the 5th grade ecology day.

Oil leak into lake a threat to salmon

BAYVIEW (UPI) — Fuel oil that leaked from a 15,000-gallon tank at a Navy research station on Lake Pend Oreille threatens to devastate the kokanee salmon population during the upcoming spawning run, officials said Friday.

State and federal officials said more than 4,000 gallons of oil had seeped from the tank, but it was not clear how much spilled into the lake.

The lake, Idaho's largest, feeds the Pend Oreille and Columbia rivers. It lies between Bayview and Sandpoint in the Idaho Panhandle.

Bill Goodnight, regional fisheries manager of the Idaho Fish and Game Department, said the leak at the Department of Wildlife Research and Development Center occurred near a prime lake-bottom kokanee spawning area.

He said 50 to 90 percent of the total kokanee fish population in the large lake goes to the area near Bayview and the research station on the southwest end of the lake to spawn.

"Hundreds of thousands" of the fish will be spawning there during the next two to three weeks, Goodnight said.

The naval center reported the leak to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday.

David Johann, an environmental specialist with the Idaho Health and Welfare Department, said the leak could have started as early as Oct. 4. Most of the 4,000 gallons that escaped from a ruptured underground pipe seeped into the soil, said Bob Jacobson of the EPA in Seattle.

Jacobson described the leak as "a seep rather than a spill."

Johann said it was difficult to estimate how much fuel actually entered the water.

The leaked No. 2 fuel oil on the lake's surface "is not dramatically evident visually," Goodnight said, adding "it is not a good bird-type spill."

"We also are concerned about the effect of the solution in the gravel and its nearness to the lake," he said.

Navy and EPA officials said they believed a pipe running under the septic surface of a pump house retaining water was severed by gradual slippage of a concrete slab on the research station wharf.

The fuel contains chemicals that are "highly toxic" to fish embryos and eggs, Goodnight said.

"If the leaked fuel escapes through the beach soil and the water columns and accumulates in the lake-bottom sediment, it could create a real danger to the spawning kokanee," he said.

"If it appears that there will be real danger with the incubation, we'll see if we can trap the fish and take the eggs artificially," said Goodnight.

Containment booms have been erected on the lake edge to prevent further spillage from the still-leaking tank, Jacobson said.

Koreagate figure donates to Symms

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Steve Symms' campaign committee has received a contribution for the Idaho Republican Party from a man who was named in the Koreagate scandal.

A report, filed this week with the Federal Election Commission, lists a $1,000 contribution from a man who is a rice dealer Grover Connell to a group called the Steve Symms 1980 Senate Exploratory Committee, Boise KBCI television reported Wednesday.

The U.S. House of Representatives Ethics Committee investigation of Korean businessman Tong Sun Park concluded that Connell's rice company paid Park more than $8 million in commissions and that some of the money was used by Park to make illegal gifts to congressmen.

Connell was charged with perjury as a result of that investigation, but those charges later were dismissed.

Symms spokesman Penny Young said the congressman — who hasn't officially declared his candidacy against Democratic Sen. Frank Church — was unaware Connell had made the donation. Ms. Young said Symms did recall meeting Connell at least once.

When asked if they would keep Connell's gift, Symms Committee Chairman Richard Buxton said the full committee would take the matter up with the full committee.

Buxton said Symms has a policy of refusing contributions which pose a conflict of interest or which make him feel obligated to the donor.

Taxpayers will talk about impact of 1%

BOISE (UPI) — Implementation of the 1 percent property-tax initiative will be the main topic at the 33rd annual conference of the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho, Russell Westerberg, executive manager, said today.

Gov. John V. Evans will be the luncheon speaker at the Nov. 14 session in Boise. Westerberg said the governor "has indicated he will provide some insight into his intended recommendations on taxation and fiscal policy for 1980."

Rep. Darwin Young, R-Blackfoot, is scheduled to outline to the delegates the previous legislative findings and actions on the tax-cut law. Young is a member of the legislative committee which brought the initiative through its initial implementation stages last winter.

Westerberg said Sen. David Little, R-Emmett, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, will speak on the initiative. David Leroy is expected to explain his opinions on the legal issues surrounding the initiative.

Westerberg himself will address the delegates about some possible alternatives to the 1 percent, while Attorney General David Leroy is slated to explain his opinions on the legal issues surrounding the initiative.

During the afternoon session, the condition of the state in the year of the 1 percent will be discussed by a panel headed by House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls.

News briefs

Drive-in held up

GARDEN CITY (UPI) — Law enforcement officers in Ada County were on the lookout today for a man about 20 years old who held up a drive-in restaurant in Garden City and escaped with more than $100.

Garden City police said the man was armed with a .22 caliber pistol when the robbery occurred late Wednesday.

Officers said employees of the Red Sier drive-in were closing up for the night when the robber walked through the rear door, ordered them to the floor, then took the money and fled on foot.

Stop cuts: Evans

NAMPA (UPI) — A shortage of funds to pay for the present property tax law is to blame for staff and service reductions at the Idaho State School and Hospital, Gov. John V. Evans said Thursday.

Evans, addressing a hospital staff meeting, assured hospital employees that no more cuts would be made at the institution.

He said the tax-cut initiative, passed by the voters last year, has caused "very severe restrictions in Idaho." He said it is up to the Legislature to correct the problem.

Service for mentally retarded patients was curtailed slightly at the hospital in the summer because of the state's deficit in Medicaid funds. Several employees earlier in the year were laid off because of the budget restrictions.

Hansen protests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, Thursday protested to the "Civil Liberties" issue of Western Airlines' plans to suspend service to Pocatello and other Wyoming and Montana cities.

Hansen said he sent letters to the board and Waco, president of Dominik P. Renda, challenging the airline's reasons for curtailing service.

Westerberg's announcement carefully avoided any specific statement that the Pocatello route is not profitable, Hansen said.

"While giving only generalized reasons about short-haul routes and high fuel costs, which could apply in any number of areas across the nation."

King to sing

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho resident and vocalist Curvey King will perform at the Oct. 27 fund-raising jamboree for the Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, re-election campaign.

King, who served as Church Committee Chairman Carl Birkie's aide, said Ms. King will present a 40-minute concert, which is part of a theatrical production being planned by Boisean Fred Norman.

Church supporters following a dinner at the Red Lion Inn (formerly the Redway) in Boise.

Ms. King, whose "tapestry" album is the second highest selling album in music history, is known for the song his "Natural Woman," "Touch the Sky" and "You've Got a Friend" and also has won several Grammy awards.

Burke said Vice President Walter Mondale will be the featured speaker at the event.

A Message for Newspaper Carriers from Nancy Lopez

"Carriers know how to follow through!"

Nancy Lopez knows what it takes. That's why she says newspaper carriers have the secret for success. "It takes steadiness to be a champion. And that's what carriers give you—steady performance every day."

Newspaper carriers have the qualities to get ahead, which explains why so many are setting aside part of their earnings as a fund for their future.

U.S. Savings Bonds have the dependability carriers understand. They know they can count on Bonds, just as millions of Americans have for almost 40 years.

So the Treasury Department is proud to join Nancy Lopez in her tribute to newspaper carriers. We hope you'll join us in recognizing these special young people on this Newspaper Carrier Day, 1979.

Take stock in America.

The first professional golfer to win simultaneous Rookie-of-the-Year and Player-of-the-Year, Nancy Lopez became the first player in LPGA history to win five consecutive tournaments entered.

Unlike most bridge books that tend to show hands where the alert declarer makes his contract against all sorts of bad breaks, "Bridge Analysis" shows hands with which declarer has to come up with a bit of luck to come out with a slam.

Both North's five-heart bid and South's continuation in six were slightly pushy. Still, the slam was a pretty good one, except that West made, the annoying lead of the jack of diamonds. The queen was played from dummy. East took his king and led a second diamond. Everyone followed and things didn't look at all well. Still, there were a couple of possibilities. Maybe the queen of spades would drop doubleton, as South suspected. It was a king of spades. With no success there, how was he going to get rid of his nine-eight of spades?

As the song goes, "With a little bit of luck, with a little bit of luck, he made the slam."

He cashed the king of hearts, went to dummy with the ace and was then able to discard both spades on good diamonds because East who held the last trump had to follow.

Ask the Experts

An Oregon reader asks what a Western cue bid is. Roughly, it is a bid of an opponent's suit to ask partner to bid notrump if he can stop that suit.

Welcome the days of '79

Fifteen minutes of dredging and panning produce only 65 cents worth of gold for Win Benson, 73, above. But that doesn't bother him; he gives away all the gold he finds. Frank Hutchinson, 56, above right, aboard his Briggs' Stratton-powered sluice, has been a gold miner since 1957. It is cold and wet work, but he says the fresh air and freedom to enjoy life are worth more than gold.

Men and machines have changed since the 1849 gold rush, but the fever is just the same

©The Los Angeles Times
The Seventy-Niners are sweating to the fever and heartbeat of the Forty-Niners.

And although it's not a gold rush there's certainly a yellow surge underway with hopeful miners once more hurrying to pick California's high-country pockets as gold prices soar.

To be sure, the men and means have changed in 130 years.

Darling Clementine is now 29-year-old Connie McLaughlin working gravel bars and her None Luck Mine on the South Yuba near Nevada City. For Gabby Hayes and your basic grizzled prospector, see Win Benson, 73, retired from General Motors and giving away the American River gold he dredges because giving and building smiles are what life is all about, yes sir, that's what life is all about, givin' and smilin'.

Burros have been outdated by Bronco four-wheel-drive vehicles, one manpower on a sluice box is now five horsepower by Briggs & Stratton and steel pan sales have been undercut by space-age plastic jobbies with built-in cheater riffles.

The hiss of sifting sand, ping of pick on quartz and the rattle of breakfast a mile away — those were the sounds of the Sierra Nevada in 1849.

The hrrrrrping of dredge motors and trail bikes drowning even the wop-wop-ring of a super-helicopter coursing into Salvation Ravine — that is the racket of gold prospecting in 1979.

But now, as then, the Mother Lode country east of Sacramento remains California's dirt- and water-locked vault. The gold field is 300 miles long and an average 50 miles wide. Nobody really knows how much is earning out today because prospectors won't discuss the size and locations of their finds with bourbon buddies, let alone the Internal Revenue Service.

"But this year I'd guess that about 1 million people have taken about $1 billion in California gold," estimates George Massie of Fallbrook, "and, you know, most experts agree that only 3 or 10 percent of the available gold has been mined."

Massie, president and founder of the 32,000-member Gold Prospectors Association of America, is one of those experts.

An electrical engineer, he became a fulltime Goldfinder five years ago and spent the summer sifting gravel up the left fork of the Stanislaus River.

He recovered 42 ounces of gold but fingertip mathematicians needn't bother multiplying that by yesterday's gold prices, because Massie found heavy flakes and light nuggets. Like snow crystals, they are unique in natural design and are the thing with the jewelry trade, which pays more than $1,000 an ounce depending on the specimen, so Massie's three-month take could touch $50,000 as with the price of gold, the numbers surrounding the search for gold are equally bullish.

Jerry Keene is the mechanical engineer son of a mining engineer and president of 20-year-old Keene Engineering in Northridge, Calif., signboarded as selling "Everything for the Gold Prospector." Treasure Hunter, Gem & Rock Hound. He's the world's largest supplier to this exotic market, recent business is up 20 percent, some of his dredges (selling from $300 to $4,000) are back-ordered 10 weeks and Keene will sell 500,000 gold pans this year.

"I look at this," he says, pointing to a starter set — a pan, sample sand and instruction booklet boxed as the Eureka Gold Kit. "We made those up in 1975 and slipped in 50 cents worth of gold so people could see what it looks like. The gold in that box is now worth about $4."

During the first six months of this year, the California Department of Fish and Game issued 4,530 dredge permits to new prospectors and that's more than all of 1978. And nobody knows how many wildcat dredges are in operation.

In August, George Massie surveyed the North Fork of the Yuba River by air and on one stretch counted 40 prospectors, working a skein of dredges 300 feet apart.

Jack Bridger of the Security Gold Exchange in Grass Valley, his office and walk-in safe both 1853 relics of Wells Fargo, reports this year's business is up 25 percent and local prospectors are selling him about 50 ounces every three weeks.

Check any Mother Lode workings any weekend and you'll find a carpenter from San Diego, a draftsman from New York, a retired Air Force colonel and full families of Tobacco Road types who work the cities for three months so they can dredge the rivers for nine.

These are impressive numbers. They are also something of a false front. For in gold mining, men remember the occasional good times and isolated big finds and that, explains one hermit prospector, makes them like sailors.

"They do all their snailing on dry land and all their loving at sea."

And the old rules of experienced gold hunters, observed by geologists, miners and gold merchants — remain largely ignored by the neophyte, greedy, excitable Seventy-Niners, who have yet to learn that even in 1849 gold was a 100-mile-long, 100-mile-wide, 999-ounce mine.

Highly skilled, persistent kissing-cousins to Lady Luck may still make $20,000 a year in Mother Lode country balanced against the cost of equipment and supplies.

Gold hunting, say the horny-handed diggers, is like game hunting where talent and instincts are not developed overnight. No matter the shaft, the dry wash or river in the Sierra Nevada, they add, every spot has been picked over by pros at least three times in the past century.

Much gold-holding land has been deemed more valuable as acreage for real-estate development.

Despite the state's official mineral spokesman, Dr. Don McLaughlin, county (Eureka!) and even the state's official fish (golden trout), California's official title as the Golden State is purely historical and may be a misnomer because we're very behind Nevada, South Dakota and Utah in gold production. Statistics (as opposed to sourdough guesstimates) from the Division of Mines and Geology indicate that production from California's 25,000 mines in 400 glamorous gold districts should run about $2 million this year while prosale boron minerals will earn close to $300 million.

The kicker is this: If gold is readily attainable and an easy, short-odds investment, why aren't big mining companies marching in the line?

"Because the old mines are deep and flooded and it would be slow and costly to reopen and develop them," explains Dr. Don McLaughlin. "Sure, there's still gold in there, but even with the price of gold today you'd about break even taking it out. You see, gold prices always reflect inflation rates or anticipated inflation rates and then you're talking about costs and overheads."

McLaughlin is a 24-carat spokesman for the gold industry. He is 88, has mined from 1926 in South Africa, and since 1926 has been consultant, then director, now chairman of the executive committee of Homestake Mining Co. of San Francisco. Homestake works fat gold mines and one that has produced 26 million troy ounces, but they are in South Dakota and Australia. Lead and zinc are the company's real money-makers.

"The Mother Lode mines were rich, but the veins were and are comparatively patchy and narrow," he says. "So there are no major gold operations in California and probably never will be although we've been looking pretty hard."

McLaughlin says that the costs of Homestake's explorations in California have been "several million dollars" each year for two decades, but "we've found nothing substantial."

He agrees with a state geologist's guess that any new gold mine could cost $10 million and might take five years to open. If the environmental impact study is positive, if safety standards aren't prohibitive, if sample projects are accurate, if inflation doesn't go berserk. And if the price of gold holds high.

Yet this, says McLaughlin, should not turn the recreation miner to converting his pan and sluice into planters.

"He's just washing streams, has no payroll, and if maybe he gets a little gold he's nice," he says. "In any of the old districts at the present price of gold, a man should be able to recover the cost of being there."

But the easy, big pickings are gone.

Or are they?

Dredge builder Jerry Keene doesn't think so.

Nor does Frank Sullivan, who operates the Mother Lode Skin Diving Shop, a subsidiary of Keene Engineering in Sacramento.

"Sullivan is doing business down to bare shelves," taking in hard cash despite delivery delays, and is turning a deal every time his telephone rings with an order from Florida, Arizona or Alaska.

"Look around you," he says. "This is real gold mine."

Benny and Frank Hutchinson need only daylight as a timepiece and no calendar beyond their activities.

"When the canned goods have gone, it's the end of the month and time for a resupply run. It's summer and college must be out because girls are reported skinny-dipping up river. Turkey TV dinners in the propane-powered freezer means it is getting close to Christmas. Shots in distant hills say it is fall and the deer season.

One day is about four years, six months are the two outside guests, and a year has passed when their poke weighs out at 12 ounces of gold.

But neither is in the hills for dust and nuggets.

They are — 15 axle-busting, brake-fading, ankle-twisting, canyon-climbing miles from the nearest civilization of a Mother Lode ghost town — for the complete mechanized, freedom, emotional cleanliness and silence that go with any prospector's remote claim.

The Hutchinsons are 56 and twins, with Benny the senior by seconds because he rolled on top during the Caesarean. They are bachelors. Both proposed to girls once, both were turned down and both decided that one rejection was quite enough.

Identical, joint decision making turned them to gold mining and both remember that precise moment in 1957.

"We were working the sawmills in Washington, working the green chain, and I just got sick of seeing 24x4s going down the line," says Frank. He speaks easier with a slush because of a hockey player's zap where his upper front teeth used to be. "So I said 'Benny,' I said, 'we've got to go mining.'"

They came to California, they went mining, but it wasn't an easy start.

Benny and Frank watched a million more 24x4s go down the line as they cut lumber to build a stake. That bought them a homemade sluice box. That brought them their first gold. That bought them more supplies, better equipment and the permanent loan of a pine-and-tar-paper shack. And that brought them peace.

In those early days, gold was selling for $28 an ounce unless traded on groceries, when it purchased $30 worth of food.

- 24 football games are placed in the ads on these pages. Pick the winner of each game (not the score) and write the team name opposite the advertiser's name on the entry blank. The entrant picking the most correct winner's each week will be awarded $25.00.
- Pick a number which you think will be the most number of points scored by both teams in any one of the weeks games listed and write your answer in the space provided on the entry blank. This will be used to break ties, in the event of a further tie the money will be equally divided between the winning entrants.
- Only one entry per week per person. The contest is open to all except employees of the Times-News and their immediate families.
- Contest entrants are eligible to win only once. Superbowl contest (which will be in January) entrants are eligible regardless of previous participation.
- Entrants must be in the Times-News office not later than 5:00 P.M. next Friday or post marked no later than Friday P.M. Address entries to Pigskin Picks, P.O. Box 548, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301. (Reasonable Facilitates also accepted).
