

Typhoon attacks Japan

TOKYO (UPI)—Typhoon Tip hit Japan with a "killer" fury Friday, killing at least 22 people — including two American Marines — and causing a massive explosion and fire that damaged a U.S. Marine base at the foot of Mt. Fuji.

A dozen people were missing and at least 185 injured in the worst storm to hit the Japanese islands in more than a decade. The typhoon destroyed 57 homes and flooded 13,000 other dwellings along a wide path of destruction.

One Marine was swept by his death from the shore at Okinawa and the other died in the blast at the Mt. Fuji base. At least 47 others were injured, 10 seriously, in the explosion.

Officials said Tip's 80 mph gusts broke through an embankment surrounding gasoline storage tanks at the Mt. Fuji base 60 miles west of Tokyo. Leaking fuel caught fire and touched off a massive explosion and blaze that destroyed 14 Quonset hut barracks and a personnel support facility, a Marine spokesman said.

The explosion and fire broke out about 1:30 p.m. (12:30 a.m. EDT) and the flames were brought under control about five hours later.

On Okinawa, 1,000 miles south of Tokyo, two marines standing on the shore near a beach were swept into the sea by the waves and dashed against the rocks.

Police said the two were killed. Norman J. Stewart, his companion, Lawrence J. Spore, also 21, survived but was severely injured and lost his right leg.

High winds and torrential rains paralyzed air, sea and land traffic as Tip hit Japan's southern island of Shikoku and barreled across Honshu, the largest main island.

Brezhnev believed ill

© The Washington Post — MOSCOW — Rumors that Leonid Brezhnev, whose absence from official functions this week sparked intense speculation Thursday that he was gravely ill, was said by some Soviet sources Friday to be sick but not seriously so.

The sources did not specify the illness of the 72-year-old Soviet president and — but they did say — there was no basis for the rumors that swept Western capitals and stock exchanges Thursday that he is in critical condition or had died.

Soviet media made no mention Friday of his health, and Andrei Kirilenko, one of his closest Politburo cronies and a likely major figure in any succession crisis, was still reported on an official visit to Hungary, ending Saturday. There were scattered reports from Western and credible Soviet sources that Brezhnev had been seen on his way to and from the Kremlin earlier this week.

Brezhnev, 72 in December, has been in uneven health for some years. His absences from official functions have invariably caused rumors of serious illness. The phenomenon underscores the paucity of reliable information available about the 13 Politburo members, whose average age is near 70.

On Monday, Brezhnev failed to show up for the visit of Syrian President Hafez Assad, and Syrian sources in Damascus reportedly said they had been told in advance that Brezhnev was ailing and unable to greet their leader. (A Syrian-Soviet communiqué issued Friday indicated Moscow has agreed to new arms aid for its Mideast client).

Snow arrives in uplands; heavy rain blesses valley

TWIN FALLS — Up to a foot of snow in higher elevations brought hunter advisories Friday night for mountain areas — in both the northern and southern divisions of the Sawtooth National Forest.

Forest officials reported about a foot of snow fell Friday on Trail Creek Summit with heavy amounts at Couch and Galena Summits. Lower elevations reported heavy rain with some snow.

Rain and high winds in most lower regions turned to snow at about the 5,000 foot elevation in the South Hills and at about 7,000 feet in the northern mountains.

Sheriff's officers in Twin Falls said a range deputy was in the South Hills area late Friday afternoon to check out conditions. Two parties were reported stranded because of vehicle breakdown, but no snowbound hunters were reported at dark Friday.

Deputies were planning to urge hunters camped in low areas and on side roads to get back to main roads in case the storm continued to pile up snow.

Forest officials said hunters in the Couch Summit area could get out by way of Featherville and Fairfield, and those in the Trail Creek area could get out in one of two ways, but those on back roads might encounter problems should the storm continue.

Camas county sheriff's officers said extremely high winds in the area Friday morning downed a number of trees on forest roads. These had to be cut and moved to allow hunters and woodcutters to return from mountain areas. Sheriff's officers said mountains around Fairfield were white about midway down Friday, a sign of heavy snow in upper mountains.

Woody Anderson, owner of the Pomerelle Ski Resort south of Albion, estimated snow at six to eight inches Friday night. He said prior to the snow which began about 8 a.m. Friday, heavy rain washed gulleys in roads. Anderson said if the storm had been snow when it began, his resort would be operating or snowed under.

He said there were some hunters in the area but none appeared to be having problems.

National Weather Service reports indicated the storm will probably continue through the weekend and into early next week.

High winds were reported in much of Magic Valley as the storm front moved in early Friday.

In the Burley, Rupert and Heyburn areas, winds were around 35 mph with gusts up to 51 mph.

In Heyburn a large tree crashed down on the home of Roger and Cynthia Race only a short time after the family left the home.

Mrs. Race said she almost took the day off and if she had the couple's baby, Curtis, would have been in his crib when the tree came crashing through the roof and brought plaster and other parts of the ceiling down on the crib.

The incident occurred between 8:30 and 9 a.m. after the couple left at 8:25 a.m.

A neighbor contacted the family and they returned to find the bedroom portion of the home filled with debris including plaster, roofing and tree limbs.

Economy rebounds — for now

© The Washington Post — WASHINGTON — Showing unexpected and not wholly welcome strength, the economy in the third quarter recovered all the ground lost in last spring's slump, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

The news did not particularly please either the Carter administration or the Federal Reserve, both of which are trying to cool off economic activity to slow down inflation.

The Fed, because of the continued strength in the economy, has a strong push short-term interest rates to new highs. In the process, the stock market went tumbling again.

The Dow-Jones industrial fell 15.44 points to close at 814.68, the lowest level since Feb. 28. Since the Fed announced a series of major credit-tightening moves Oct. 6, the market had dropped 82.95 points, more than 9 percent.

The Commerce Department said the output of goods and services grew at a 2.4 percent annual rate in the third quarter "after adjustment" for inflation, fully reversing the 2.3 percent drop in the second quarter.

The GNP fixed-weight price index adjusted for fluctuations in the proportion of high and low-priced goods sold — rose at an annual rate of 0.6 percent in the quarter. The index was up slightly from the 9.5 percent rate in the previous three months. This number is lower than the 13-percent rate of increase in the consumer price index because the GNP figures do not include price changes for imported products, among other reasons.

With inflation remaining high and interest rates hitting new peaks, most economists believe the economy will resume its decline shortly.

Moreover, the third-quarter gain in GNP is unlikely to be repeated, analysts said, that gain came almost entirely from personal-consumption spending by individuals that rose sharply in the quarter. But it did so only because consumers were willing to lower their savings rate to 4.1 percent of their disposable income.

That was the lowest savings rate since consumers went on a buying spree early in 1957 out of a fear that falling wages would be imposed because of Korean War needs. The rate in the second quarter was 6.4 percent, and that is low by historical standards.

In real terms, most other parts of the economy rose but declined in the quarter, a pattern likely to be repeated this quarter. Therefore, if consumers revert to a more normal level of spending, there could be a large drop in GNP for the final three months of the year.

Forecasters generally expect the recession to last until spring with unemployment, 5.8 percent in September, rising to the neighborhood of 8 percent sometime in 1980.

If the declines are as large as expected, there will be no doubt about whether the economy is in a recession. However, the large plus now recorded for the third quarter — if it survives the Commerce Department's regular revisions — may lead to extended debates about the recession's starting date.

The Fed, still acting in response to current statistics rather than the predicted downturn, acted decisively late Thursday to extract about $1 billion in ready cash from the banking system, analysts said.

Financial markets reacted Friday by sending several key interest rates higher. The federal funds rate — the rate banks charge one another on loans of reserves — rose to a range of 16 percent to 17 percent, up from the 11 percent to 14 percent range at which such loans had been offered for most of the last two weeks.

Several banks also raised the rate they charge on loans to brokers from 14 1/2 to 15 percent. Usually such a change is a precursor to an increase in a bank's prime rate. The prime is now generally at 14 1/2 percent.

Former Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, speaking Friday in Toronto, said the prime rate could rise to "15 1/2 percent or 16 percent before it is over."

Since the Federal Reserve two weeks ago changed its methods of operation in trying to hit its targets for money supply growth, financial markets have been in turmoil. Analysts were far more uncertain Friday that the Fed had abandoned its practice of seeking to control the money supply by pegging it to the federal funds rate.

But whether it is uncertainty or the actual demand for money, interest rates are now at levels that mean that housing construction, and business investment spending for plant equipment and inventories are likely to be reduced.

Nor is the economy going to get much push from spending by either the federal government or state and local governments, speaking Friday in Toronto, after adjustment for inflation, outlays by all levels of government were running below their year-earlier totals.

"But whether it is uncertainty or the actual demand for money, interest rates are now at levels that mean that housing construction, and business investment spending for plant equipment and inventories are likely to be reduced."

Cousin arrested for more Security cop pleads guilty to stranglings

Kenneth Bianchi cries after pleading guilty

© The Los Angeles Times — BELLINGHAM, Wash. — Kenneth Bianchi, charged last May 9 with five of 13 "Hillside Strangler" deaths in Los Angeles, pleaded guilty Friday to two charges of first-degree murder in the strangulation slayings of two Washington coeds in exchange for a life sentence instead of execution.

At the same time, Bianchi's 45-year-old cousin, Angelo Buono, was arrested at his Glendale, Calif., upholstery shop on a warrant that charged him with 10 of the grisly slayings of young women in the Los Angeles area in 1977 and 1978.

Buono, who first surfaced publicly as a second "suspect" in the Strangler slayings last April, was taken into custody by homicide detectives from the Los Angeles and Glendale police departments and the Los Angeles County sheriff's office.

He put up no resistance. "I can't find the words to express the sorrow for what I have done," Bianchi told Whatcom County Superior Court Judge Jack Kurtz after entering his guilty plea here in the Jan. 11 strangulation murders of Western Washington University coeds Karen Mandie, 23, and Diane Wilder, 27. "There is no way I can take away the pain that I've caused others and no way that I can ask forgiveness of anyone."

In a reference to his cousin, Bianchi declared, "To begin to live with myself, I must do everything I can to get Angelo and to give my life (to psychiatric study) so that someone won't follow in my footsteps." Court documents released in Los Angeles showed that Bianchi also agreed to plead guilty to five counts of murder, one count of sodomy, and one count of conspiracy to commit a felony, in connection with the Hillside Strangler murders.

In exchange for his pleas of guilty in the Southern California crimes, prosecutors in Los Angeles also have agreed not to seek the death penalty.

In addition, Bianchi agreed to "give a complete and truthful account of both his and Angelo Buono's participation in the 10 murders attributed to Buono," records showed.

Buono had been publicly identified as a "suspect" in the Strangler case last April 23 by Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl F. Gates, Sheriff Peter Pitelchuk and District Attorney John Van de Kamp.

His arrest in Glendale, timed to coincide with Bianchi's Bellingham guilty pleas, came almost 20 months after the first victim attributed to the Hillside Strangler had been discovered.

Plainclothes officers, some with guns drawn, pulled up to Buono's upholstery shop in unmarked cars and ran to the shop, where Buono, clad in a T-shirt had been observed working on cars all morning.

Exhumation to end speculation 'forever'

DALLAS (UPI) — The body beneath a Lee Harvey Oswald grave marker should be exhumed because there is "almost a 100 percent probability" medical scientists can tell whether the casket contains Oswald's remains or those of another man, top Dallas County forensic pathologists said Friday.

Chief Dallas County Medical Examiner Dr. Charles Petty and forensic pathologist Dr. Linda Norton held a press conference about 100 yards from the Parkland Memorial Hospital emergency room where a dying John F. Kennedy was rushed Nov. 22, 1963.

Petty said neither he nor his assistant were assassination "aficionados" but believed science could answer questions about "certain discrepancies" between the Marine Corps records of the accused presidential assassin and autopsy and other reports.

It would be quick and inexpensive to determine the truth, they said, and the key to solving the mystery of whose remains were in the coffin involved recovering the teeth and examining the body's bones.

"There are some things that don't jibe and I think it is better to answer the questions than to allow the speculation to continue forever," said Petty. He said it would take 24 hours after the exhumation to conclusively answer questions that have lingered for years.

Teeth, he and Dr. Norton said, are the hardest substance in the human body and last hundreds, sometimes thousands, of years. Oswald's Marine dental records showed none of the accused presidential assassin, they said, each as good — if not better — than a fingerprint.

U.S. aid to poor programs riddled with fraud, abuse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government auditors checking into fraud, corruption and mismanagement of federal aid to the poor reported Friday Chicago's Department of Human Services collected nearly $1 million in double reimbursements from HEW and the Agriculture Department.

The Chicago case is not an isolated case, said Donald Scantlebury, the Government Accounting Office, testifying before a Senate hearing that his auditors were investigating possible abuses in 11 cities and towns.

The initial conclusion was that community programs to help the poor continue to suffer heavy losses through embezzlement, illegal loans, double payment of travel costs, improper payroll advances and other abuses, even though congressional auditors reported the problems last March.

In the Chicago case, Scantlebury said, the city agency collected $747,000 in overpayments by getting reimbursement for food services from both Health, Education and Welfare and the Agriculture Department's Child Food Care program.

Auditors also turned up many cases in which employees of Community Action agencies received double salaries.

Scantlebury said — the agencies' controls over assets were so poor that many items bought with federal funds were stolen or lost.

He cited Seattle's Central Area Motivation Program as one that "lost $1 million" over heavy losses thousands of dollars worth of items such as an automobile, lawnmowers, a radio, typewriters, calculators, cameras, tape recorders and a stereo amplifier.

The Community Action Agency in San Diego asked the Community

Services Administration to write off $31,000 in assets that were reported missing, stolen or destroyed, Scantlebury said.

"The diversion of funds, the embezzlement and the fraudulent use of federal monies designed to help the poor, rob the very people the authorizations were designed to help," Chiles told his subcommittee.

The investigations, Chiles said, showed "outright theft" in the anti-poverty programs, thefts that had gone "largely undetected and generally unreported."

The audits, Cantlebury said, had shown many of the problems arose because the local agencies get federal grants before they are needed and collect unreported interest on the money.

In the Chicago area alone, he said, it was estimated officials were holding up to $26 million in excess federal grants.

would never reach. The girls, born joined at the top of their heads, were separated in a history-making 16 1/2 hour operation this summer at the University of Utah Medical Center.

China might break relations over treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — China may break off formal relations with the United States if a federal appeals court fails to uphold President Carter's right to end the U.S. defense treaty with Taiwan, the administration told the court Friday.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher urged the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to overturn "without delay" a federal judge's ruling that Carter could not terminate the 1954 Taiwan treaty without congressional approval.

Christopher said if the ruling is not reversed, "there is the risk" that the People's Republic of China "will feel obliged to reconsider the entire relationship and a reversal of steps already taken is a distinct possibility."

"If this situation is not finally resolved in advance of December 31, the consequences could be serious indeed, and of long lasting disadvantage to the United States," Christopher said in an affidavit attached to a Justice Department motion for an expedited appeal of Judge Oliver Gasch's ruling.

Christopher said he has given all these matters a good deal of thought, "and have made a firm decision not to become an active candidate for the nomination of the party."

Ford said that while he appreciated friends who urged him to seek the nomination and draft movements started on his behalf, all that should stop now.

"I've given those who may have held back in order to ascertain my intentions to jump into the fray on behalf of the candidate of their choice," he said.

Ford takes himself out of the race

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald Ford announced Friday he has made a "firm decision" not to run for president next year and encouraged his Republican backers to choose one of the 10 men who are actively seeking the GOP nomination.

"I have no intention of entering, or permitting anyone else to enter my name in the upcoming primaries, nor will I be a personal contestant in any state convention," Ford told a news conference on Capitol Hill.

"I would reconsider my position only if my party felt it was essential for me to do so in unforeseen circumstances developed," he said.

Former President Gerald Ford

But Ford, who became president in 1974 when Richard Nixon resigned and lost the 1976 election to Jimmy Carter, said the likelihood of a brokered or deadlocked GOP convention is "very remote."

"I have given all these matters a good deal of thought," he said, "and have made a firm decision not to become an active candidate for the nomination of the party."

Ford said that while he appreciated friends who urged him to seek the nomination and draft movements started on his behalf, all that should stop now.

"I've given those who may have held back in order to ascertain my intentions to jump into the fray on behalf of the candidate of their choice," he said.

Asked if Republican leaders or other candidates urged him to make the statement, Ford said: "This was totally done by myself. I made this decision exclusively on my own."

And did Mrs. Ford influence his decision? "Betty and I always had a wonderful relationship," Ford said, smiling. "I made the decision with her full concurrence."

Aside from taking himself out of the 1980 campaign picture, Ford denounced Carter's handling of the economy and said his foreign policy is "weak and indecisive."

He also made a plea for whoever the Republican presidential nominee may be saying, "None of the Democratic candidates can provide the kind of leadership the nation requires in the 1980s."

Kennedy predicts victory, gets endorsement

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy predicted Friday he will win the Democratic presidential nomination if he goes after it and told cheering students his final decision on whether to make the race will not be "much of a surprise."

Kennedy, in Boston for Saturday's dedication of the John F. Kennedy Library, answered questions — from students — at the city's predominantly black Dorchester High School.

Asked if he would be able to wrest the Democratic nomination from President Carter, Kennedy said: "Were I to be a candidate (long pause) yes."

And is he "100 percent sure" he will run, a student asked. "I've indicated there would be an exploratory committee sometime next week, prior to the announcement of a candidate," Kennedy said. "I don't think there'll be much of a surprise at what the statement will be." The 600 students clapped and cheered. Kennedy's non-declared status did not Luther Malm's Brennan, who became the first Democratic governor to endorse him.

"I am convinced that Ted Kennedy is the person to provide the leadership we need and that he will be a candidate for president," Brennan told a news conference in Augusta, Maine.

Senate panel halves windfall profits tax

WASHINGTON — The Senate Finance Committee Friday approved a version of President Carter's proposed "windfall profits" tax that would collect only half as much as Carter proposed or as the House voted last July.

The new tax bill, which the panel weakened with exemptions, would bring the government an estimated $4.17 billion in new taxes between now and 1990, compared to $27.3 billion in the House bill and $22.2 billion sought by Carter. These revenue estimates are higher than some made earlier, they assume higher oil prices in the future.

Twenty percent of the money would be placed in trust or otherwise reserved — $15 billion for mass-transit grants and $70 billion for cash grants to help the poor pay fuel bills and for a tax credit for middle-income users of home heating oil.

The panel also approved $21.5 billion worth of tax credits for homeowners and businesses to spur conservation and the use of new forms of energy. The remaining $15.2 billion would be available for other new energy programs or whatever else Congress chooses; it would simply be passed federal revenue.

The bill contains these major provisions affecting consumers: — Cash grants of up to $400 a year for welfare and food-stamp recipients to help offset the recent sharp rise in heating oil prices, which have doubled in the past year.

A new tax credit of up to $200 per household to help middle-income homeowners and renters who heat their houses with oil, propane or Canadian natural gas. This credit would go to families earning 20,000 a year or less.

A new, higher $5,000 tax credit for homeowners who install solar, wind-powered or geothermal equipment, and extension of the existing $300 home insulation tax credit as well as a less excise items such as storm windows.

The administration's proposal was designed to recapture for the Treasury part of the "windfall" that the oil companies are expected to reap because of Carter's decision to decontrol oil prices and because of recent — price — increases by — oil exporting nations.

Between now and 1990, those factors are expected to increase industry revenue by $29 billion before taxes. The oil companies would pay $38 billion in extra federal income taxes on this amount.

Vanity not the reason for revealing costumes.

In the school districts along the Canadian border, cheerleaders even during the freezing late fall don't like slacks or leotards. It's those little miniskirts for them, they say. The usual revealing costumes are more comfortable, they aver. Vanity has nothing to do with it, they insist. Maybe.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Q. What proportion of the people who get social security checks are under age 60?
A. One in every four.

Q. If all the nation's farmland owned by foreigners were put in one spot, how big a plot would it be?
A. About the size of Connecticut. Some plot.

Q. How come the size of the fish depends on the size of the pond it's in?
A. The fish tend to manufacture a growth-inhibiting substance that starts them not only if the pond is too small but also if the fish population gets too thick for the grub supply.

Irate Kelker blasts county over area of impact decision

TWIN FALLS — A member of the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission has taken the board of county commissioners to task for disregarding the impact decision to scrap the area of impact proposal for the city of Twin Falls.

O.A. (Gus) Kelker asked other members of the Planning and Zoning Commission last week to recommend that they would meet with the county commissioners deny all area of impact proposals for communities in the county and urge legislators to come up with a better law.

With one negative vote, the zoning group recommended turning down the impact area proposal for the city of Twin Falls. The group, however, recommended approval of the bill in area.

In a letter to the board of county commissioners Friday, Kelker told the three elected officials he was concerned that they would meet with the Twin Falls City Council under threat of a lawsuit and agree to go against the zoning group's recommendations.

"It was my understanding the county commissioners were not in favor of impact laws of the state and because of this would work through our legislators to develop a new, easily enforceable and more easily understood law which would be of more benefit to county residents, farmers included, who want to remain county residents," Kelker wrote.

"Your action in knocking under to the city's threats has for all intent killed any move for a new, more easily workable and better understood law. Our legislators would now find they would be wasting their time in this regard because the areas of impact would be long since tied up before any new law could be passed and put into effect," Kelker charged. Kelker was referring to an informal meeting Tuesday in which city and county officials agreed to revise the proposed impact area boundaries and go ahead with a final public hearing before the county commissioners. The move was made to avoid a lengthy court suit and to establish boundaries that hopefully would not be objectionable to rural area residents.

Kelker said the thing that concerns him the most is that no Planning and Zoning people were invited to attend the informal meeting.

Kelker said sarcastically that if the county officials plan to ignore the recommendations of their appointed commissions, it may be "a blessing," as it will allow the board to concentrate on such important issues as requiring fencing around auto wrecks lots or deciding if a mobile home should be allowed in an area prohibiting mobile homes so a builder can have an individual available to watch for thefts at a building site.

County Commission Chairman Mel Leonard, just back from the state meeting with other county officials Friday said he had just read Kelker's letter.

"We did touch base" with C. M. Lanting, chairman of the county Planning and Zoning Commission and we did have his blessing in our negotiations meeting," Leonard said.

Leonard added he doubted Lanting had an opportunity to confer with all 11 members of the commission before giving that blessing.

Valley to lose 100 jobs

In departure of Scott USA

KETCHUM — The relocation of Scott USA could have serious effects on the economy of the Sun Valley/Ketchum resort area.

The ski equipment manufacturing company, the second largest employer in the area (the Sun Valley Co. is the largest), provides approximately 100 clerical and technical jobs.

The Ketchum office of Scott USA handles the administration, credit, finance and order service departments, as well as research and development, marketing, and parts of engineering. Many of these positions are filled with highly-skilled technical personnel.

Only the marketing department, with only one or two full-time employees, will remain in Ketchum when the company moves the bulk of its operation to Clearfield, Utah, as it announced it would Thursday.

The move of Scott USA could inundate the employment market with more clerical and technical people than the two communities can support.

The local economy will also be hit by the loss of the company's substantial payroll.

Some employees moved to the area specifically to work with Scott USA, while about half were already in the area. Although all employees have been offered the option to relocate with the company in Clearfield, Utah, it is uncertain how many will exercise that option.

Lynn Sabala, customer relations and field sales officer for Scott USA, explained that the employees have known about the move for a long time, but he indicated that many employees took the final notice with shock and surprise.

The decision to move Scott USA to Clearfield is purely financial, said Sabala, noting the excessive cost of maintaining a facility in Ketchum.

Announcement of the move was made simultaneously with the announcement that the firm had been sold to a group of investors headed by Earl Chapman, Solomon Welsgal and Marshall Bennett.

Accident victim critical

TWIN FALLS — A 17-year-old Hollister girl was critically injured Friday afternoon in a traffic accident on U.S. Highway 93 southwest of Twin Falls.

Kathleen Reed of Hollister was taken by Magic Valley Ambulance to Boise shortly after the accident.

Twin Falls County sheriff's officers who assisted with the investigation said Reed was traveling south on U.S. Highway 93 and apparently went around another vehicle that had stopped to make a turn. Her car collided with a pickup truck with campershell which was pulling a travel trailer.

Officers said it was not possible to question Miss Reed because of her condition but she apparently did not see the northbound pickup and trailer until after she had pulled around the other.

The pickup driver, from Indiana, suffered only a minor leg injury.

Reed was treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital emergency ward and transferred to Albinus Hospital where she was listed in critical condition late Friday night although still being evaluated by doctors there.

Heifer theft upheld

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Supreme Court Justices Thursday unanimously upheld a Second Judicial District jury verdict convicting Diane E. Owens of stealing a heifer from a pasture near the Owens ranch in Orofino.

The high court held that the trial court did not commit reversible errors in the course of pre-trial and trial proceedings as Ms. Owens claimed in her appeal.

According to Webb, he understood that the two officers asked everyone in the crowd to move back and that Thompson and Lee didn't.

Jerome Fire Chief Lynn Bingham said he wasn't informed of an incident between the police and two neighbors. He added that he did know someone was spraying a garden hose through a window of the burning house when firemen arrived.

When asked why no complaint has been filed with the police department or the Jerome City Council, Lee said, "We've been thinking about it, but we're not sure if it's any good and we're afraid of getting hassled by the cops."

Asked to leave, then removed

2 Jerome citizens, aiding firemen, claim police abuse

By BRUCE HAMMOND

JEROME — Two Jerome residents are considering a formal complaint concerning alleged harassment and physical abuse by a Jerome police officer and a Jerome County sheriff's deputy Sept. 13.

Eleve Thompson, 30, and Robert Lee, 41, both of Jerome, reported and helped contain a house fire which took the life of Vera Martinez, 44, of Jerome. After Martinez was removed from the house by Jerome firemen, Thompson and Lee were asked by the officers to leave the area and then were bodily removed, according to both men, and police and sheriff reports.

However, Thompson and Lee both contend they were pushed out of the Martinez yard before they had time to explain their presence or respond to the officer's requests.

The officers involved were police officer Jay Burke and sheriff's deputy Randy Carlson.

No formal complaint has been lodged with either the Jerome police or the county sheriff's office.

After spotting the fire early that evening, Thompson and Lee ran to the Martinez home and after obtaining two garden hoses began spraying water into the house through broken windows. According to Lee, firemen were able to remove Martinez from the home 10 minutes after the firetrucks arrived.

"The fire was pretty well contained then and everyone watching was real calm," Thompson said, adding that by then the firemen were administering aid to the stricken woman.

"Bob (Lee) was holding a fireman's crutches, he (the fireman) was giving CPR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation). All of a sudden these two officers busted in and started yelling at us. They were really panicked, but everyone else was calm," Thompson said.

"Carlson was first and told us to get out of the yard," Thompson continued. "We tried to tell him we were the ones who put out the fire."

According to both Thompson and Lee, the two officers threatened to arrest them and then shoved them several times.

"Thompson and Lee said that Burke later apologized, but told them he'd do it again under similar circumstances."

Said Lee, "The real question is should a citizen try to get involved if he gets treated like that?"

According to Chief Deputy Sheriff Larry Webb, both officers handled the incident properly and effectively. Both Webb and Police Chief Howard Dubois were informed of the incident the night of the fire.

"Apparently the two gentlemen were in the way of the firemen," Dubois said, adding that he was told that an unidentified fireman asked Burke to remove Thompson and Lee. "They (Thompson and Lee) were asked to leave and so they were

KLIX buys KMTW

TWIN FALLS — KLIX, Twin Falls' top-rated AM radio station, will buy KMTW, one of three FM stations heard here, according to Charlie Tuma, KLIX general manager.

The purchase must be approved by the Federal Communications Commission. Tuma said Friday it will take three or four months for the FCC to deliver a decision. "We don't anticipate any problems," he said.

KLIX is located at 1310 on the AM dial. KMTW, the area's top-rated FM station, is located at 96 on the FM dial.

While operation of the two stations will remain separate, some costs, such as bookkeeping, can be consolidated, Tuma said. Everyone on the staff at KMTW has been invited to stay on and the programming won't change at either station, he said.

Tuma called KMTW a "valuable property." It is particularly valuable to KLIX because it was of its AM competitors. KEEP in Twin Falls and KART in Jerome, own FM stations as well.

Uniform jail standards set by Idaho sheriffs

TWIN FALLS — Idaho sheriffs have established a set of jail standards they believe Idaho county governments can live with, Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn said Friday.

Munn returned Friday from the annual meeting of the Idaho Sheriffs Association in Boise where he was elected first vice president of the state organization.

One of the major projects of the association this past year has been to draw up uniform standards for Idaho jails to replace a conglomerate of federal requirements and regulations set up by several different agencies, Munn said in the absence of state standards. Idaho counties have been called on to meet overly restrictive federal regulations, many of which do not apply to Idaho law enforcement programs.

The newly proposed Idaho standards were finalized in the association meeting and presented to the Idaho Association of Counties, meeting in Boise at the same time. Some revisions were made and the standards approved by both groups, Munn said. These will be printed and copies sent to county commissioners and sheriffs around the state.

The state organizations will then request legislation to make the standards part of Idaho law, Munn said.

One of the controversial issues has been the inspection of jails. State agencies had recommended the naming of a state jail inspector to be in charge of enforcement of proper maintenance and operation of all county jails in the state.

Both the Idaho Sheriffs Association and the Association of Counties have favored inspections under jurisdiction of county commissioners as provided by the present state law. Munn said this practice would be continued as part of the new standards and recommendations to the Legislature.

Munn said the standards are set for several classes of jails, depending on the size of the jail and the population area it serves. He said the Twin Falls jail, which the county hopes to replace in the near future, can meet requirements of at least some of the classes, but probably on a temporary basis only. He said the county can continue, under the proposed jail standards law, to use the old courthouse quarters until new facilities are built. The county proposes a jail building as the first priority for development of the old Vera O'Leary school property.

Ketchum wants area too Sun Valley moves ahead on annexation

SUN VALLEY — The Sun Valley Planning and Zoning Commission faced a largely silent audience today as they held public hearings regarding the zoning and possible annexation of the Farnum Ranch.

Located along Highway 75 at the south entrance to Elkhorn Village, this property is being sought for annexation by both the city of Sun Valley and the city of Ketchum.

Speaking as a representative from the Ketchum city government, Curtis Page, acting chairman of the zoning commission, said that Ketchum was well into proceedings for annexation of the Farnum Ranch, and that Sun Valley's consideration of such a proposal was completely inappropriate.

Page said the Farnum Ranch was a part of the traditional entrance to Ketchum and that Ketchum's long-range comprehensive plan called for annexation of the Farnum and Reinheimer ranches as well as the Wyndemere subdivision, all located immediately south of Ketchum city limits.

Craven Young, identifying himself as a concerned Sun Valley citizen, stated his opposition to the proposed zoning and annexation of the property by Sun Valley. He requested that planning and zoning recommend an immediate 30-day moratorium on the consideration of annexation.

Young pointed out that the results from the upcoming city election may cause changes in the membership of the Sun Valley planning and zoning commission. He felt that all action on the proposed annexation should wait until the election standards for Idaho

The hearing lasted only 20 minutes. The Sun Valley Planning and Zoning Commission will meet again to consider the comments and make recommendations to the City Council.

No charge yet in Wendell death

GOODING — No charge has been filed against John Caster of Wendell in the drowning death of Rhonda Kim Quintana Koch, 19, also of Wendell.

Caster appeared in court Thursday to be arraigned, but Magistrate Court Judge William Stuart and Gooding District Prosecutor Severt Swenson agreed to postpone charging him until jurisdiction in the case could be established.

It was uncertain if the district prosecutor had jurisdiction in a case where a county coroner issued the warrant for arrest.

James Molehan, Gooding County coroner, issued the warrant Tuesday after a coroner's inquest jury found probable cause that Koch's death wasn't accidental.

Caster is being represented by Jny Sudweeks of Twin Falls.

ASC needs board candidates

GLIENNS FEHRY — Farmers are asked to nominate candidates of their choice to be on the ASC Elmore County Committee ballot, according to R. Ray Fisher.

Fisher is chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee.

The Elmore County committee election will be conducted from Nov. 23 to Dec. 3 by mail ballot.

Fisher said Elmore County farmers have the opportunity to nominate persons they feel would best serve the farm community.

'Sagebrush Rebellion' just lot of hot air — Democrats

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Democratic legislative leaders are turning a scornful eye on the majority Republicans who are planning to launch a "Sagebrush Rebellion" against the federal government.

"I think they're just blowing a lot of hot air around," Senate Minority Leader G.C. "Cy" Chase, a St. Maries car dealer, said about the GOP "flatlanders down south" pushing legislation to acquire control over much of the land in Idaho which now is administered from Washington.

"Sagebrush Rebellion" is a nice catchy phrase — it sounds nice — but it does a free lunch," said House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello.

Chase's main beef with the Republican leaders — Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, and House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls — is that he feels the Legislature should silek to other issues.

"I think they're just trying to come up with something they think will help politically," he said. "What they should be thinking about is doing something that will really be good for the state."

Budge, Olmstead, and congressional hopeful — Sen. Larry E. Craig, R-Midvale, have said "Sagebrush Rebellion" bills will be introduced during the next legislative session.

Budge said he hoped the state someday could wrest control from the federal government of all public land in the state. At issue are mining, water and grazing disputes.

Chase said he hopes the Legislature will concentrate on implementation of the 1 percent property tax law and putting into effect the recommendations of the Governor's Management Task Force on state government.

"We need to get involved in efficiency in government and cut back on duplication, and overlapping of services," he said. "We ought to be doing things instead of flailing around in the wind with something that is probably impossible to do."

Gee, rain
Because it had been 40 days since the last measurable rainfall in Yakima, Washington, Tia Johnson seemed a bit amazed by the sight of raindrops on her window.

Credit union says, 'We're okay'

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Employees Credit Union is assuring membership of its solvency and accuses the news media of "sensationalism" and "blowing out of proportion" the failure of the credit union to pay the last quarterly dividend.

But in a newsletter to the membership, the credit union admitted that failure to pay the dividend has caused "much consternation" among shareholders.

"...regardless of this temporary setback, the credit union is solvent and will bounce back stronger than ever," the newsletter said.

The dividend will be paid Jan. 1 and hopefully a semi-annual dividend will be paid to compensate for the loss in earnings members have experienced.

"There is no cause for panic," the newsletter said. The news media "has been blowing our situation completely out of proportion."

"The credit union is solvent and is always on the lookout for something they can create a headline out of. The credit union assumes its members will keep the news media's observations and opinions in the proper perspective. If a question is posed, we hope members will consult with the credit union board or staff rather than rely on speculation."

The newsletter said the scenario of inflation and construction of a new credit union office building were part of the problems in failure to pay the quarterly dividend.

It said the credit union needs loans to generate income from which to pay dividends.

"Loan income is below our projections because members are not borrowing."

In addition, the credit union newsletter said, delays in construction of the new office building, accompanied by inflation, increased the cost of the building.

The newsletter said the credit union "is making every effort to cut costs."

"Some costly services are being eliminated immediately. Charges are being applied to some special services. The credit union is making every effort to increase income."

Suit against Forest Service wins venue change to Boise

BOISE (UPI) — A lawsuit by 27 persons protesting U.S. Forest Service takeover of cabin site leases in the Tarjache National Forest has been transferred successfully to U.S. District Court in Boise.

Following refusal by federal judges in Utah to hear the action, attorneys for both the Forest Service and members of the Big Springs Summer Homeowners Association requested a venue change for the suit, which claims Forest Service officials ordered termination of cabin site leases in violation of the National Environmental Policy Act.

Before ordering the transfer, Utah U.S. District Judge Aldon Anderson issued a temporary order, restraining the Forest Service from acting on the order to remove cabins, most of which have been in existence since 1959.

The lawsuit claims Forest Service officials have ordered cabins removed so the site may be used for day-use "interpretive" natural areas. This decision, the suit claims, is contrary to the agency's original 1959 order, which required removal of the cabins because of an anticipated need for overnight camping facilities in the southeastern Idaho forest.

that the 1959 decision was based on erroneous projections and that a campground, the sole basis for the 1959 decision, is not needed.

The suit further states the decision to build a day-use interpretive area did not take into consideration other alternative uses for the land, such as allowing the cabins to remain and constructing a natural area around them. The National Environmental Policy Act requires that all such alternatives be explored before a final determination is made.

The 27 owners have been notified that those not filing answers before Aug. 11, 1959 will be awarded lifetime leases to the land, while those with answers filed after that date must remove cabins at their expense, before Oct. 1980.

The suit claims the owners have been denied due process and "the right to receive just compensation for property taken and the right to equal protection under the law."

Gas higher, available

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State Automobile Association Manager Ken Miller said today a survey of 61 Idaho service stations this week showed an increase in gasoline prices of slightly less than a cent since last month.

Full-service regular was selling for an average 102.7 cents a gallon in the Boise Thursday, said Miller, while premium was priced at 108.2, and unleaded 106.0.

For self service fuel, regular was 98.1, premium was 103.2, and unleaded was 101.9.

The highest price charged for a gallon of gas in the state was $1.11 for regular and $1.15 for premium and unleaded.

Self-service prices ranged from a low of 91.9 cents to a high of $1.14.

Supplies of gas were plentiful in all areas, Miller said.

Counties ask legislature to delay 1%

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Association of Counties convention in Boise Thursday resulted in a flood of pleas to the Legislature, the chief request being for a one-year delay in implementation of the 1 percent property tax law.

In addition, it was announced that the counties association and the Idaho Sheriffs' Association would ask the Legislature to adopt minimum jail standards to prevent federal courts from setting standards for the state.

The request on the 1 percent law was similar to a recent motion from the Idaho Association of Commissioners and Clerks. Both groups seek further clarification of the law.

Driver killed

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Richard Gar Johnson, 34, Pocatello, was killed early Friday in a one-car rollover on Interstate 15 about 10 miles south of Idaho Falls, state police said.

Officers said Johnson's wrecked vehicle was spotted off the south-bound side of the freeway by a truck driver, and the smashup was reported to authorities about 4 a.m.

QUESTION . . .

Is it true that any wages I receive after my death will be free of Federal Income Tax to my survivors?

ANSWER . . .

It is not required that any Federal Income Tax be withheld by your employer from wages which are paid after death. These wages, however, must be included in the computation of your income tax liability for the year in which you pass away, and a return filed for you.

It is possible that your survivors may receive $5,000 as a tax free death benefit following your death. Your beneficiaries may receive up to this amount plus any credit you have in a stock bonus, pension or profit sharing plan without reporting the amount they receive for Federal income tax purposes.

Title fight tonight

©1979, The Washington Post
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Black-American boxer John Tate and white South African Gerrie Coetzee will battle tonight for supremacy as World Boxing Association heavyweight champion in the heartland of the country that has come to personify racial conflict.

More than 80,000 South Africans of all races will stream into Loftus Versfeld Rugby Stadium in this country's administrative capital of Pretoria to watch Coetzee attempt to become the first white boxer in 20 years to win the WBA title. Ingemar Johansson took the title from Floyd Patterson in 1952.

Augmenting the live audience, the largest attendance at a championship fight in over half a century, will be millions of overseas television viewers, including Americans who can see the fight live on NBC-TV. Among the ring-side rooters in Pretoria will be South African Prime Minister P. W. Botha and several Cabinet ministers.

Police in Pretoria, usually a quiet town of half a million residents with a preponderance of civil servants, are girding themselves for the biggest event they have ever handled, except for the rioting in black communities in 1976 and 1977. Police have pleaded with people not to bring liquor, weapons or knives into the stadium for the boxing tournament, which will include six preliminary fights.

The winner of tonight's fight will later fight World Boxing Council title holder Larry Holmes to determine the undisputed world champion. For the promoters, as well as for the South Africans, it would be better to have a Coetzee win, raising the possibility of another black-white confrontation for the ultimate champ.

The fight has given white South Africans an almost euphoric respite from the stream of hostility they usually encounter in international sporting events because of the official segregationist policy of apartheid. And as the biggest sports drama in this country's history, it also is providing a welcome relief from this country's worst political scandal that has dominated the news for the past year.

In fact, the fight is the best news white South Africa has had since the price of gold began to climb to more than $400 an ounce. "All this is making South Africans feel good, and they're a lot of good in a long time," said one white South African.

For many, the fact that the fight is happening is a bit too good to be true. "People are sitting with bated breath. They can't believe it is actually going to happen," said South African sports writer Brian Ross Adams. "It's a mind-boggling event for a nation that can't even get a rugby tour off the ground." From a country which has nothing, suddenly they might have the king of the world.

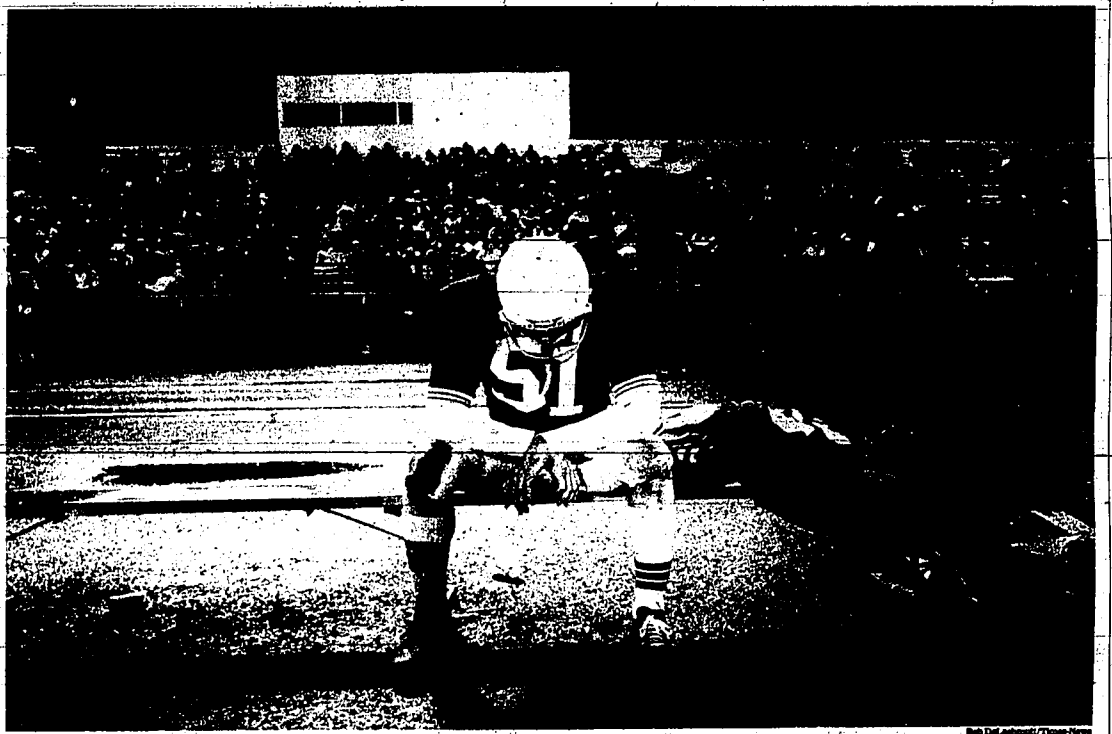

But their eager anticipation at having a heavyweight champion may turn to gloom shortly after the fight begins at 10:30 p.m. South African time (2:30 p.m. EDT).

In the last few days, the odds against a Coetzee win have increased with a witch doctor, tarot card reader, astrologer and a computer all predicting that Tate will do in the South African. Betting in bars is putting even more money on Tate, say press reports.

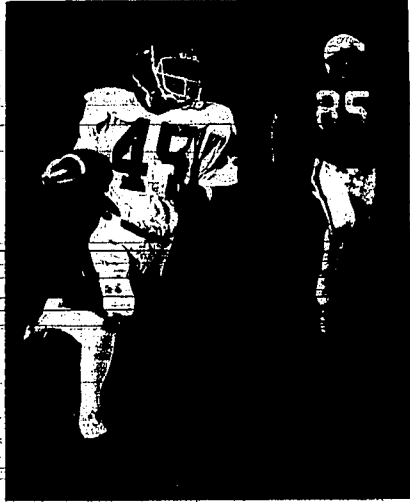

The fighters, both 24, have records too short to tell much about how they will fare, most boxing observers agree. But the general feeling is that the two are a good match with Coetzee's speedy and considered style pitted against Tate's strength and endurance. Many ring-side observers are predicting a lengthy bout that may go the full 15 rounds and only produce a winner on points. At the official weigh-in Friday, Tate at 240 had an 8-pound advantage over Coetzee at 220 pounds.

"Coetzee may lose if he doesn't knock out Tate," wrote Adams, who pointed to Tate's endurance. But Tate's manager, Jerry "Ace" Miller, thinks differently: "John Tate is going to win on a knockout in the third round."

But for most of South Africa's 4.6 million whites, the fleet-footed Coetzee is a sure winner.

Indians take 26-7 victory from the Bruins

By LARRY HOVEY

Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Two quick touchdowns late in the first quarter pointed the Pocatello Indians to a 26-7 decision over the winless Twin Falls Bruins Friday night.

It was a case of Pocatello being too quick in the skill positions but Twin Falls compounded its misery by giving away two touchdowns.

By game's end Bruin Coach Bill Jones had little left to say that already hadn't been.

"I don't know what it will take to make you understand what it takes to win," Coach Jones told the team afterward. "You were capable of beating Pocatello, you were capable of winning other games, and you are capable of beating Idaho Falls next week." But the dead horse stays down. "I've seen some smiles since the game ended and, men, if you can smile after being beat 26-7 and losing seven straight games."

There were a couple of times that Twin Falls did show pretty well, one of them being a good stand against a threat by the Indians in the third quarter.

On other occasions, however, there were big lapses.

Pocatello's superior quickness contributed to some of that as repeatedly Shane Standley, whose father played for a winless conference Twin Falls team back in 1958, used his nimbleness to turn what appeared to be losses into hefty gains. Two of his scrambles were instrumental in keeping Pocatello scoring drives alive.

On the other side, Bruin quarterback Lars Hovey, in his first start, put most of the offensive blame on his shoulders. "It could have been easy money if I could just throw the ball straight," he said referring to a low completion rate until late in the third quarter. "They were open, I just couldn't hit them."

The game opened in a punt exchange with Pocatello moving on its second possession. Standley picked up 10 yards on two quarterback sacks but the big gainer was a 31-yard pass he completed to Ed Romasco that carried to the Bruin 31. On the next play, Hayward Evans scooted across on a pitch play and Kim Howard tackled on the first of two conversions.

Two plays after the kickoff Hovey overthrew his receiver and Mike Rice intercepted, returning it to the Bruin five. On his second charge, sophomore fullback Dave Romasco put it in the end zone.

A bad center snap sailed over Twin Falls punter Mitch Rindge's head early in the second period, setting the Indians up on the Bruins 23. With 4:37 left in the half, Romasco stormed in from the one.

Pocatello got its final points with 32 seconds left in the half when Standley hit Romasco coming out of the backfield and the sophomore turned it into a 24-yard scoring play.

Twin Falls made its best defensive stand late in the third quarter after Pocatello had moved to a first down at the Bruin 19. Twin Falls took the ball back at the 31 four plays later and then went 0-3 driving.

Hovey—hit six-of-eight—passes in—the ensuing sequence and Pocatello contributed an interference penalty. The sixth pass covered 11 yards and was gathered in by Ron Goodwin for the six points.

Arkansas seeks upset over Texas

By United Press International

Last week, Texas went outside the Southwest Conference and jolted the Big Eight title aspirations of Oklahoma. Today, the Longhorns are out to stampee one of their own.

Second-ranked Texas, with a swarming defense and perhaps college football's best kicker, travels to Arkansas to face the 10th-ranked Razorbacks in a SWC rivalry that goes back 85 years.

Despite the long heritage, Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz is only just starting to discover that Texas-Arkansas games are unique.

"After three years in this state," said Holtz, "I'm beginning to realize why people treat this game differently. There is a tremendous pride involved. The fans might not understand this, but we've approached this game like any other."

Holtz, however, made a few alterations for the Texas game. He said his players would be off limits to the media following Thursday's workout, a practice he said would be in effect for this week only.

Holtz will need more than a policy change to upset the Longhorns, who come off a 16-7 victory over an explosive Oklahoma team which was held to a mere six first downs.

Oklahoma was ranked third before the game and earlier this year, Missouri was rated seventh when the Longhorns blanketed them 21-0. Texas is allowing only six points and 163 total yards per game, but the Razorbacks present a varied attack.

Arkansas has won its first five games for the first time in 10 years. On that occasion, in 1969, Arkansas won its first nine games before losing to Texas in what is generally accepted to be the most memorable game ever played in the SWC.

The Razorbacks have been erratic, however, despite their unbeaten status. They were almost beaten by Texas Christian, something that hasn't happened in 21 years, but last week the Hogs dominated Texas Tech.

"I'm not surprised Arkansas is unbeaten," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "They have a balanced offense, the most balanced we have faced this year. This will be another, and different, challenge for our defense."

Texas has scored only six touchdowns, but when the Longhorns' offense stalls, they call on John Goodson, the leading kicker in the nation. Goodson has kicked 12 of 15 field goals — 11 of those coming in the last three games.

In another interesting matchup, top-rated Alabama battles No. 19 Tennessee and Crislin Tide Coach Bear Bryant says he's indifferent about his team's newfound No. 1 ranking.

"I don't care one way or another (about the ratings)," says Bryant, backing his statement with an admission that he told his aides to "vote us fifth" when they submitted his ballot.

The Tide has yielded only nine points in five games this season, but Bryant is worried about Tennessee quarterback Jimmy Streeter's statistics — total offense of 1,036 yards, plus six touchdowns passing and five rushing.

In other key pairings involving Top 20 teams: No. 3 Nebraska faces Oklahoma State, fourth-rated Southern Cal plays No. 9 Notre Dame, fifth-rated Houston takes on Southern Methodist, No. 6 Ohio State meets Wisconsin and No. 8 Oklahoma meets Kansas State.

Also, No. 11 Michigan takes on Illinois, 12th-ranked Washington meets No. 14 Pittsburgh, No. 13 Brigham Young plays Wyoming, 14th-rated Purdue meets Michigan State, No. 16 Navy plays Virginia, No. 17 North Carolina State meets No. 18 North Carolina and 20th-rated LSU meets Kentucky.

Buhl Indians run undefeated string to 11

BUHL — The team without its quarterback is in trouble.

That has been proven the last two years in the Burley-Buhl football battle. Last season Buhl, with a 22-game win streak, went to Burley with both of its quarterbacks down with injury and left the streak at Budge Field 7-6. Friday night, Burley, without senior Peter Jones, went to Buhl with its 28-0, who now have rebuilt their win streak to 11 straight.

"I was, really happy with the way the kids played tonight," Coach Gregg Smith said. "I felt it was the best game we played this season."

Even then, however, Buhl had its hands full with the Burley defense until two quick touchdowns in the late third and early fourth quarter exploded it.

"There's no doubt that without Jones they are a completely different team," Coach Smith said. "He's a good athlete and with him they can put pressure on you a lot of ways."

Smith similarly shrugged off the weather. "We were going to play well tonight regardless of the weather," he promised with the only hint of revenge in the pre-game talking.

The first break of the game came late in the first quarter when Burley was hit with a 15-yard penalty on a Buhl punting play. That miscue gave the Indians a first down at the Bruin 45 and as the second quarter started so did Buhl's offense.

Mark Schaal immediately hit for a nine-yard gain and the Indians then struggled to get a second first down.

But on fourth down, Tim Hamilton hit John Rieister and the senior end bulled his way to the Burley four-yard line. Schaal scored from there and Rieister added the first of four extra points.

Burley had its chance to get even later in the period when Dave Christensen covered a fumble at the Bruin 28. Burley got a first down but then gave up possession with a reply fumble and the Hobeats were able to muster a serious threat thereafter.

Buhl uncuffed another drive in the third period, getting its steam up on two Schaal runs that let the Indians beat a second and 19 situation at the outset. Bruce Walden capped the drive with a one-yard burst.

Early in the fourth quarter Buhl was back down at Burley's 25 and smacked the line-three times for nine yards. On fourth and one, however,

Hamilton pitched out to Walden and he scampered into the end zone untouched.

Schaal then made the play that destroyed the last of Burley's resistance. On the second play after the kickoff, Burley completed a pass. But Schaal made the hit, stripped the ball and took it several yards to the Bruin 12. Walden scored from the fourth three plays later to complete the battle.

Pirate 'family' celebrates series win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — In the 76-year history of the World Series, Pittsburgh probably never has been an official celebration like the one the 1979 World Champion Pirates and the City of Pittsburgh gave each other Friday.

There was no parade — no convertibles. No ticker tape. No marching bands.

Instead, the home celebration, attended by an estimated 25,000 gold-and-black decked fans who crowded into the Market Square area of the downtown, was exactly what its planners would be: an old-fashioned "Fam-A-Lee Reunion."

Clinging to their wives and children, 21 of the Pirate players, Manager Chuck Tanner, his coaches and a host of other personnel crowded with local civic and government leaders onto a small stage on which they sang and danced to their disco theme song, "We Are Family." They also gave speeches, led cheers and applauded the crowd that was feeling them. "The greatest thing any of us can do this winter during our travels is to introduce ourselves to people and say proudly we are from the city that has nothing but champions," team captain Willie Stargell, referring to both the Pirates and the Super Bowl champion Steelers, told the crowd who had demanded his speech with cries of "Will-ee, Will-ee, Will-ee."

"I will see you people are as responsible for our win as we are," Stargell said. "This is a great city with great people. I can't think of a place I'd rather bring my kids up in than here."

Except for Omar Moreno, who was too shy to do anything but smile and wave at the crowd, all the Pirates were relieved. Enrique Romo had done his best all season to avoid having to use his rather limited English.

"The crowd, some of them hanging from trees and sitting on rooftops, responded to each speech by cheering, applauding and blowing whistles while they waved pennants, shakers and banners.

But, ironically, two of the loudest ovations went to the newest Pirates, shortstop Tim Lincecum and third baseman Bill Madlock; both of whom were traded to the team during the regular season.

"I've only been part of the family half a year, but it feels like a lifetime already," Madlock, known affectionately as "Mad Dog," told the crowd while his teammates barked at him.

"You people are crazy," Lincecum said. "Don't you realize every time you guys started yelling 'Frank, Fol-ee, Fol-ee' at the ballpark, I tried to hit a home run and hitting a home run is the only thing I can't do?"

Second baseman Phil Garner and his wife Carol "had difficulties juggling their three toddlers and the microphone during his speech. "Man, after we won the division, I thought that was the greatest feeling ever," Garner said.

"Then, after we won the National League playoffs, I thought that was the greatest. And then after we won the World Series, that was the greatest of all. The only thing I could think of that would give me an even greater feeling would be if we went out and did it again next year."

Mayor Richard Calligaris, the Allegheny County commissioners and a representative of Gov. Richard Thornburgh all read proclamations declaring Friday "World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates Day" in the city, county and the Commonwealth.

The commissioners promised to have a sign hoisted above Three Rivers Stadium reading "Home of the 1979 World Champion Family Pirates and Steelers."

Stuart unbeaten in league

TWIN FALLS — It was erroneously reported in Friday's Times-News that Robert Stuart's eighth grade won its first game of the season by beating Vera C. O'Leary 8-6.

It should have read that Stuart upset its conference mark to 3-0 and its season record to 4-1 with the victory. O'Leary was winless during the season.

The Times-News Sports Department regrets the error.

Prep roundup

Gooding heads to playoffs

DECLO — The Gooding Senators had some shaky moments Friday night but finally downed the Declo Hornets 7-2 to nail down the Canyon Conference championship and a trip to the state A-3 playoffs.

The game came off about the way Coach John Blaise predicted as the Hornets rattled the favored Senators almost evenly through three quarters. Gooding led just 21-20 going into the final 13 minutes as the teams matched walloping passes.

Gooding was perhaps lulled a little with an easy early score when Tim Pearson scored after a blocked punt. But Declo immediately rebounded with a drive that Rive Matsen capped on a one-yard drive and Todd Curlls provided the extra point that shoved Declo ahead 7-6.

In the second quarter, Gooding regained the lead when Mike Mann scored from the one-yard line. Gooding led 13-6 at the start of the third quarter when Mann hit a three-yard run by Todd Osterhout pulled back to within one. The game was tied 13-13 when Pearson caught a 25-yard pass from one yard out. Mann threw a 10-yard pass to Tim Traubner. The game was tied 13-13 when Pearson caught a 25-yard pass from one yard out.

Indians 6-3

WENDELL — The Indians turned a 2-1 deficit into a 6-3 victory over the Wendell Mustangs in a game that was a Canyons Classic.

The Indians pulled a 3-1 lead at the end of the first quarter and then alternated leads with the Mustangs on runs by players. Wendell yielded gradually, but after two first downs and seven plays, Mantown went in from the first quarter.

The game ended a taut contest which was marred by numerous fumbles, and the wet conditions all but precluded any passing. It was slugged out on the ground with neither team mounting many threats.

Wendell took the lead with three seconds left in the half when Todd Hegi booted a field goal.

Castleford unbeaten

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford Wolves got a measure of revenge by beating Camas County 34-0 Friday but more importantly are now on the threshold of a conference title and a berth in the playoffs.

The Wolves, smarting from a 90-14 debacle on this same field a year ago in their Snake River Eight-Man Conference debut, kept their 25-yard line inviolate in blanketing the defending champion Mushers.

It means Castleford will entertain North Gem in a 32-6 winner over Clark County in a conference title showdown 2 p.m. next Friday and have a chance to complete an undefeated season.

Camas County, which has scored just six points this year, will be at Carey for a last chance to prevent the 380-degree swing from undefeated to winless in back-to-back years.

Wolves a 14-0 halftime lead

That expanded to 20-0 seconds into the second half when Dave Ensuaeta took the kickoff and ran 75 yards to score. Before the third period ended, Coehorn scored on a two-yard run and then threw to Tom Quigley for the two-point conversion.

Castleford regained its scoring in the final period on a 33-yard pass from Coehorn to Quigley.

Camas County moved into possible scoring position twice but the Wolves blocked them back at the 25-yard line both times.

Borah 41, IF 6

BOISE (UPI) — The Borah Lions started off slowly but then erupted for 24 second-quarter points to dominate the rest of the game and defeat the Idaho Falls Tigers 41-6 in Southern Idaho Conference play Friday night.

The Lions, led by senior punterback Lance Durne, scored 24 points in the second quarter when Darren Corbin broke through the Tiger defensive line and bowled his way six yards to the touchdown.

Borah's next touchdown came with 2:06 left in the first half when Ryan Holmes scrambled 49 yards into the end zone. Borah added three more touchdowns before the half. One came with a pass from Durne to Todd Erickson. Curtis scored the other two on one- and one-yard plunges with 2:22 left and the other with four seconds left in the half when Ryan Corbin Tiger defense.

The game was tied 13-13 when Pearson caught a 25-yard pass from one yard out. Mann threw a 10-yard pass to Tim Traubner. The game was tied 13-13 when Pearson caught a 25-yard pass from one yard out.

Richfield wins

ROCKLAND — Gordon Rogers racked up 210 yards in three scoring plays to lead the Richfield Tigers to a 20-6 decision over the Rockland Bulldogs Friday night.

Rogers put Richfield ahead 6-0 by picking up the opening kickoff and the game line and topped 100 yards to the touchdown. From that point on, the Tigers never trailed but had to fight off a fourth-quarter threat by Rockland to keep the win. Seconds later Rogers broke loose for 60 yards to sack up the victory.

Bullards battled the Tigers evenly through the first half after Rogers' opening kickoff heroics. Rogers gave the Tigers a little breathing room in the third period when he scored from 30 yards away and came right back with a two-point conversion run.

Rockland scored soon after and on its next possession mounted another drive that kept the Tigers even at 14-14 lead. But a fumble-killed that on the Richfield 10-yard line. The Tigers punched out a first down to the 20 and Rogers then broke his last run of 60 yards.

Raft River 20, WR 20

HAILEY — Jeff Buckley caught a six-yard scoring pass with nine seconds left to carry the underdog Raft River Trojans to a 20-20 tie with Wood River Tigers at the end of the game.

The late touchdown capped a rally by the Trojans which brought them from a 14-0 halftime deficit to a tie after Wood River had moved ahead 20-14 with four minutes left. It ended a draw because the coaches had not agreed upon a playoff system in the non-conference game.

The Wolverines two and punched it in to make it 14-7. Minutes later the Trojans used the pass to get a tie.

Wood River regained the lead with four minutes to go when, on fourth and 1, Paul Leggie hit Dave Angell with a 21-yard scoring pass.

Raft River immediately replied with a couple of passes and benefited from a punt 50 yards later to get a tie and goal at the Wolverine eight with 16 seconds left. On the second play a rollout action got the ball safely to Buckley for the tying touchdown.

Valley 6, Bulldogs 0

EDEN — Darrell Baker broke up a grudging defensive duel with a 60-yard scoring run to lift the Valley Vikings past Kimberly 6-0 Friday night.

It was a typical Valley-Kimberly battle with both defensive units holding up despite the inside onslaught of the other team.

The game was practically devoid of scoring threats. Valley moved to the Kimberly 25-yard line at one point and fumbled the chance away.

Kimberly's deepest penetration was to the Viking 30 before Valley turned that one back.

Mt. Home triumphs

MOUNTAIN HOME — Senior Rick Lane scored four times and his Fishing Unit over 1,000 yards for the season Friday night in leading the Mountain Home Tigers past the Jerome Tigers 37-7.

Lane, the only central Idaho Conference leading ground gainer, got Mountain Home's first of three touchdowns. Ironically, all three came just after pass completions to tight end Cutler, the SCIC's leading pass receiver.

Mountain Home pointed now toward a key Cross State Conference game with Caldwell next week, scored 14-0 in the first quarter. Lane cut back down on a 19-yard scamper after a 30-yard pass from Rich Grinnitt to Culler. Less than a two-minute later Mountain Home scored again. Lane going in from the 20.

A short time later Grinnitt-Cutler clicked for another long gain to the Jerome five and Lane went in from the four two plays after that.

The longest scoring play for Mountain Home came in the closing minutes when Fred Eastman and Pat Collins hooked up on a 36-yard bomb.

Jerome's only moment to cheer came on a field kickoff returned by Jerry Dickens that held the score at 14-7 for a while.

In the NBA: Celtics overpower Bullets

BOSTON (UPI) — Dave Cowens scored 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to pace eight Boston players in double figures Friday night, handing the Celtics a convincing 130-93 triumph over the Washington Bullets.

The Celtics, leading 26-21 after one period, led the game open in the second quarter with a dazzling display of passing, running and shooting. Boston closed the period with a 17-4 surge to take a 50-40 halftime lead.

Leading the second-quarter outburst were Cowens with eight points, M.L. Carr with seven and Jeff Judkins with six. At one point, Carr threw up an alley-oop pass which swished through for a three-point basket.

Carr, who wound up with 17 points, fell over backward in disbelief. Larry Bird, who wound up with 12 points, electrified the crowd with several radar passes but was used sparingly due to foul trouble.

All but two of Washington's 28 third-quarter points were scored by Alvin Hayes and Kevin Grevey. Hayes scored in the period and Grevey added 16 Friday night to give the undefeated Philadelphia 76ers to a 112-104 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

The 76ers won their fourth straight game in the new season and Detroit lost its second game in five starts.

Doug Collins added 16 points and Bobby Jones 15 for Philadelphia while Bob Lanier had 24 and McElroy 20 for the Pistons. Detroit forward Bob McAdoo missed his second straight game with a hamstring injury.

Detroit led throughout much of the first half and held a 57-47 lead after Jim McElroy's 15-footer with five seconds remaining in the half. Maurice Cheeks then made a desperation 57-foot shot for three points, narrowing the lead to 57-50.

Knicks 111, Nets 106.

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (UPI) — Ray Williams fired in 31 points and Toby Knight added 20 Friday night to spark the New York Knicks to a 111-106 victory over New Jersey in a game projected by Nets coach Kevin Loughery.

New Jersey's Ed Jordan attempted a field goal with his team trailing 106-106 and two seconds remaining but Knight rebounded and was fouled, adding two free throws to give the Knicks a 110-106 lead. Williams added a technical foul shot when Loughery, who was fouled from the game, stormed on the court after officials Bob Rakel and Jack Nicks.

Bucks 95, Suns 94

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Quinn Buckner hit a pair of free throws with 11 seconds remaining Friday night to give the Milwaukee Bucks their fourth win in five games, a 95-94 decision over the previously unbeaten Phoenix Suns.

Phil Westphal hit two free throws with three seconds left to put Phoenix within a point, but Milwaukee's Marques Johnson inbounded with a long pass to Junior Bridgeman, who made a leaping catch as time ran out. Phoenix dominated the first half, building a 41-point lead and securing a 52-40 bulge at halftime.

Kings 107, Nuggets 84

DENVER (UPI) — Otis Birdsong scored 23 points, including seven straight early in the fourth quarter, to enable the Kansas City Kings to score a 107-84 triumph Friday night over the winless Denver Nuggets.

Kansas City led throughout but Denver managed to cut its deficit to 80-69 before Birdsong scored the next seven points to put the game out of reach.

Phil Ford added 20 points for Kansas City and Scott Wedman had 16. Denver's David Thompson was ejected from the game after a flagrant foul midway through the third quarter and left with just seven points.

76ers 112, Pistons 104

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Julius Erving poured in 38 points and Reggie Miller added 22 to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 112-104 victory over the Detroit Pistons Friday night.

Erving scored 18 points in the first quarter and added 20 in the second. Miller added 22 points in the second quarter and 10 in the third. The 76ers led 34-28 at halftime and 62-50 at the end of the third quarter.

Hatalsky leads PGA

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — Third-year pro Morris Hatalsky, looking for his first tournament victory, shot a 5-under-par 69 Friday to assume a one-stroke lead after the second round of the $200,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament.

Hatalsky, 33, was paired for two rounds left here alone at the top of a field of 180 players, one shot in front of Bill Calhoun, who shared the opening-round lead with Hatalsky Thursday after both had matched the 70-hole record with 64.

Oiler linebacker upset

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Oilers linebacker Greg Robinson is upset by the disclosure that team owner Bud Adams is postponing construction of a new training field and did not own the land where he said the facility would be built.

"I'm a little concerned, Bud's fair game now," Robinson said. "I'm in my seventh year at Houston. I've been here since the start, but no more. I was trying to sell us all something. It was a pretty thing. Promoters do that. Doors don't."

Adams last month said he would build a seven-acre training and practice complex in suburban Missouri. City and have it completed in time for the team to use next season.

Stennett a free agent

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates said they were notified by the office of baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn Friday that infielder Rennie Stennett has opted to become a free agent and go through the upcoming re-entry draft this winter.

The Pirates said, however, they were still negotiating with Stennett and have an opportunity to re-sign him.

Stennett, 28, lost his starting job at second base to Phil Garner midway through the season after Bill Madlock was obtained in a trade with the San Francisco Giants. Stennett has been struggling to regain both his defensive and offensive abilities since fracturing his left ankle late in the 1977 season.

Pac-10 race heats up

California, Arizona, Stanford and Arizona State fight for survival Saturday in the tightly hunched Pacific-10 Conference race to the Rose Bowl while Southern California and Washington, coming off bitter disappointments the week before, test their muscles in non-league play.

Cal, the only team in the Pac-10 this year playing all nine rivals, is a 4-4-1 point underdog to UCLA at Los Angeles, while Arizona is a five-point favorite over Stanford at Tucson and Arizona State is a 19-point pick over Washington State at Tempe.

New York Times computer likes Alabama

NEW YORK — The New York Times Friday began publishing its own weekly ranking of the top 20 college football teams. Unlike the existing Associated Press and United Press International rankings, The Times' top-20 list is not determined by a poll of experts but by an IBM 370 computer.

The college football season inspires some of the most passionate and partisan arguments among sports fans. The annual question — Who is No. 1? — has a special meaning in college football, because it is the only major team sport that does not have a national tournament to crown its champion.

Even after the last bowl game has been played, there is often no unanimous or objective determination of which college football team is the best. Last season, for example, the AP's final top-20 poll ranked the University of Alabama first, while UPI's chose the University of Southern California. The AP's decision was made by 68 sportswriters and broadcasters. UPI's decision was made by 370 coaches.

Each week The Times' computer programmers will receive data from the National Collegiate Athletic Association on the games played by 177 teams — all 139 in Division I-A, the division of top-caliber play, and all 38 in Division I-AA, one level below.

The programmers will analyze the performance of each team, primarily by taking into account three factors: who won, by what margin and against what quality of opposition. The quality of a team is determined by examining its performance against each of its opponents, and by then examining those opponents' other foes. In theory, this seems a simple process, but in fact, it involves thousands of computations.

If Alabama were to beat Northwest Louisiana and USC were to beat Penn State in the same week, for example, USC's ranking would likely be more positively affected than Alabama's, because of the quality of Southern California's opponent. So, in theory, a team that finishes the season with a 7-4 won-loss record could wind up in the No. 1 position, because of the strength of its opposition over an 11-game schedule.

The Times' computer model also takes into account other factors that can affect a team's ranking. In order to evaluate a team's margin of victory or defeat, a statistical adjustment called the "dampened score" is used. This adjusts all runaway scores to no more than a 28-point margin.

If, for instance, a team rolled up a 40-point advantage over an opponent, it would be credited with only a 28-point margin of victory by the computer. The model also makes an adjustment for the home-field advantage.

The Times' top 20 was not published until each of the 177 teams had played from four to six games, which are thought to be sufficient to provide accurate results. The personnel turnover on a college team is much higher than that on a professional team, and therefore statistics from a previous season are virtually useless.

The top 20 teams include Alabama, Texas, Nebraska, Florida State, Southern California, Ohio State, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Michigan, Brigham Young, Notre Dame, Auburn, Arkansas, Arizona State, Washington, Tennessee, Baylor, Houston, California and Pittsburgh.

The first three teams in The Times' ratings are identical to those in the wire-service polls. But, from there on, there are significant differences, the most notable of which are the rankings for the University of North Carolina and the University of Houston. While The Times ranks North Carolina seventh, the wire services place it 18th and 19th. The Times ranks Houston 10th; both the wire services place it fifth.

The computer model arrived at its conclusions in this regard by taking into account North Carolina's superior performance against its higher-quality opponents compared with Houston's less-impressive showings against relatively mediocre opponents.

Lord Killanin in Taiwan

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, arrived in Taipei Friday to talk with Taiwanese sports authorities on the island nation's membership in the IOC.

Lord Killanin said upon arrival that he was visiting Taipei as he promised to discuss and hear information which he would convey to the IOC executive meeting to be held in Nagoya, Japan, today through Oct. 23.

Lord Killanin would be abrupt and incorrect to make any statement of any sort concerning the Taiwan membership problem at this moment.

Killanin also said it was the IOC's hope to get all Chinese athletes, from both China and Taiwan, to join the IOC as well as other international sports activities.

Lord Killanin will meet with Taiwanese

The IOC, in its previous meetings, agreed to retain Taiwan's membership while accepting China on the condition that Taipei change its name as well as its national flag and anthem.

Taiwan has expressed its willingness to change its name to "The Olympic Committee in Taipei," but refused to make other changes as required.

Lord Killanin, accompanied by his wife and three others, was met at the Taipei's International Airport by Henry Hsu, member of the IOC, Shen Chia-Ming, president of the Taiwan Olympic Committee and other sports officials.

Killanin will meet with Taiwanese sports authorities and meet with local athletes before leaving Sunday.

Oregon State University President Dr. Robert MacVicar said Friday he will have an announcement early next week on the status of football coach Craig Fertig.

While MacVicar was out of the country last week, the school's athletic director and board of athletic control recommended Fertig be fired at the end of the current season even though he has a year remaining on his contract.

MacVicar, who will decide Fertig's fate, said he plans to meet with the coach to discuss the situation. There would be no announcement until early next week.

Athletic Director Dee Andros had recommended to the board of athletic control that Fertig's services be terminated at season's end and the bid to recruit, and the decision was made by the board. Fertig, who recently returned from a nine-day business trip to Mexico.

Fertig is in his fourth losing season at Oregon State. In his first year, the club went 2-10, and in the years since, the record has been 2-9 and 3-1. Currently, the Beavers are 0-6 Saturday, OSU is 7-1 point underdog to San Jose State.

Four-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden, complaining of pulled muscles, withdrew Friday from the quarterfinal of the $75,000 Swiss Indoor tennis championships.

It was not immediately known whether Borg strained stomach or groin muscles in his 6-7, 7-6 win Thursday over West Germany's Peter Elter, but his doctors advised him to rest.

The sudden withdrawal gave South Africa's Johan Kriek an unexpected passage to the semifinal.

The Atlanta Braves traded veteran left-hander Jamie Easterly to Montreal-Friday for cash or a player to be named later, cutting their winter roster to 39 players.

The Braves also purchased two rookies from Savannah, their Class AA farm-team, and sent two others who were with the National League club briefly last year to Class AA Richmond.

Easterly, 26, has been in the major leagues five years, all with the Braves. He started last year at Richmond and was called up to Atlanta May 20 but had no decisions and a 1-2 record and 7.00 average in four games. He was then sent to AAA Denver where he was 5-6 with a 3.26 ERA in 20 games, including a perfect seven-inning game.

The Denver Nuggets, who have given their fans little to cheer about in droppier four straight games this season, announced Friday they had purchased 6-foot-7 forward George Johnson from the Milwaukee Bucks for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Nuggets President and General Manager Carl Scheer said Johnson, a St. John's University graduate who has been on Milwaukee's injured reserve list this season, would report to the club over the weekend.

Johnson, who suffered a strained right Achilles tendon, will be eligible to play in the Nuggets' game at San Diego next Tuesday, Scheer said.

After a slow start last season in his first year of pro ball, Johnson found himself a starter in the last 19 games of the season. He averaged 7.2 points and seven rebounds per game during those contests.

During the entire year, he averaged 6.2 points and 5.4 rebounds while playing an average of 17.3 minutes.

Matthew Saad Muhammad will defend his World Boxing Council light heavyweight title against England's John Conteh in January or February, promoter Don King announced Friday.

The site also has not been determined but King said he is considering either Las Vegas or somewhere in England.

Muhammad, who won the title as Matthew Franklin, successfully defended his title against Conteh, the former world champion, in a controversial fight at Atlantic City, N.J., on Aug. 16. Conteh cut Muhammad's eye early in the fight but then had problems securing, claiming the champion was using a foreign substance.

Conteh, leading early in the fight, was knocked down twice in the 14th round and lost a decision. Two of Muhammad's trainers later were suspended for using an illegal contingent on his eye.

Brothers Bobby and Al Unser will share the front row for today's Indy-car race at Phoenix International Raceway, the final event of the 1979 season.

Bobby Unser timed his 147.963 mph qualifying lap on the one-mile paved oval to gain the pole position while Al was just a tick of the clock slower at 147.813 mph. Bobby narrowly missed eclipsing a record he established in 1975 at 149 mph.

Next in line were Gordon Johncock, Phoenix, 145.003 mph; Wally Dallenbach, Basalt, Colo., 143.735; and Rick Mears, Bakerfield, Calif., 142.777.

Chicago Bulls center Artis Gilmore will undergo an arthroscopy on his right knee Saturday to determine the cause of swelling and pain in the joint, a team spokesman said Friday.

Gilmore definitely will miss Saturday night's game breaking his streak of 250 consecutive starts and 670 consecutive games.

Arthroscopy consists of inserting a small optical device into the knee to examine the cartilage and ligaments. The instrument is about the size of a ballpoint pen and the incision needed to insert it is quite small.

If no serious damage is found, Gilmore could return to the lineup quickly, a Bulls spokesman said.

Hunters' success rate high

By GARY ELLIASSON Times-News sports editor

Hunting

The opening day of hunting season attracted about 23 percent more hunters this year, but it didn't seem to reduce the success ratio.

Stu Murrell of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game office at Jerome reported that except for Unit 54 (south of Twin Falls) most areas had an increase in the number of hunters.

Murrell said some fish and game check stations were deluged with hunters.

"We didn't really have enough staff at times to handle them all," he said. "Some hunters had to wait."

An example of the jump in the hunting population was the Albion check station which last year reported 195 going through. This year it reported 175.

Murrell explained that the check stations set up throughout the region aren't there simply for enforcement purposes, but to aid in management.

"It helps you gauge how many deer we have in the area," he said, "so we don't over harvest."

Two particular problems were noted by the fish and game officials. One involved persons who were coming through without the law of the animal.

"Hunters are required to bring out of the woods the whole lower jaw of the deer," he said. "This helps us to check the age of the animal."

Rutledge suit

Judge doesn't restrict Kush

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — A federal judge refused Friday to restrict former Arizona State football coach Frank Kush from "harassing" witnesses in a lawsuit against him, adding nobody has proved past intimidation.

U.S. District Court Judge William Coppel denied the request for a preliminary injunction against Kush, his attorney and private investigators sought by Robert Hing, attorney for former ASU punter Kevin Rutledge.

Rutledge is suing Kush and ASU for $2 million, claiming that Kush placed him during a game with Washington last year and harassed him off the team to get back Rutledge's scholarship.

Kush was in prison last week for allegedly asking players and assistant coaches to lie if necessary in rebutting Rutledge's claims.

At the hearing Friday, Coppel said he heard no testimony showing that Kush, his lawyers or private investigators "intimidated" witnesses as Hing alleged.

Coppel said questioning of the witnesses by Kush's lawyer was "a normal way of preparing for a lawsuit," and if the attorney hadn't asked the witnesses what they knew, the lawyer would be "derelict" in his duty.

ASU football player Gary Bouck testified at the hearing he saw Kush strike Rutledge and said a private investigator approached him twice last week to discuss the suit. But to a question on whether the man had tried to intimidate him, Bouck said: "No."

"There has been no testimony here of harassment by any investigator," Coppel told Hing. "I am basing my ruling on the likelihood of future intimidation. I cannot find there is any likelihood of harassment or intimidation" than what normally is part of a court proceeding, he added.

Hing said there was a "reasonable probability" for intimidation continuing despite the fact Kush has been fired.

"These kids were put in a situation where coming forward could jeopardize their entire future" in professional football, Hing said, referring to when students were questioned about the case before Kush was fired.

He said Kush "lectured" Bouck at one point and that Kush's attorney improperly talked to Bouck.

Hing added Kush's attorney, Harry Cavanaugh, made "inflammatory and defamatory remarks" about Rick Lynch, promoter of the ASU team and "confidante and friend" of Bouck, according to Hing.
