

Management task force savings mount

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Governor's Management Task Force — charged last year with finding ways to cut the cost of state government — Friday announced that some of its suggestions had already been accepted and would save Idahoans $3.3 million by the end of the year.

In a preliminary progress report to Idaho legislators, Task Force Director Peter Johnson and Department of Transportation Director Darrell Manning, said their study of the state's executive branch also found ways to save $2 million through cost avoidance.

Manning was named by Evans to oversee implementation of the Task Force suggestions on overhauling state government.

The original Task Force study, issued in August of last year, was still a valid blueprint for efficiency in state government, Johnson said. That report, which made 212 recommendations, including all 19 departments in Idaho's executive branch of government, said $18 million in one-time and on-going expenditures could be eliminated.

Because of the recommendations, $5.8 million in federal funds had also been saved, Johnson said. Most of these monies were welfare funds, he said, freed after a work incentive program had helped find jobs for welfare recipients.

Manning also denied he had let his Transportation Department duties slide while working with the Task Force. His Task Force studies occurred largely on his weekends or during his spare time, Manning said. Those savings are "being raised earlier this month by Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs.

Among the recommendations which have been adopted or are being adapted are:

- Budgeting changes in the Office of Budget, Policy Planning and Coordination.
- Expansion of the work release program at the state penitentiary.
- Additional computerization within the State Motor Vehicle Division.
- A reorganization of the governor's office, changing the duties and responsibilities of staff members.

Rupert representative says transaction tax won't sell

BOISE (UPI) — A Lewiston Democrat's bill aimed toward imposing a 1 percent tax on property transactions probably will die during committee deliberations, the chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee says.

Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, said he believes the proposal of Rep. Joe Wagner, D-Lewiston, will meet stiff opposition in the House's special property-tax subcommittee.

If Wagner's legislation happened to survive there, it almost certainly would fare miserably in the revenue committee and full House, Antone indicated.

"Most of the legislators want to cut down on revenue so there will be less spendable funds," Antone said, indicating that Wagner's philosophy is alien to the Legislature's current thinking.

Wagner, in unveiling his proposal Wednesday to hit sales transactions with a 1 percent tax, told the property-tax subcommittee, headed by Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ota, that the state is in dire need of new revenue sources.

But Antone, who is chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee through which Wagner's bill would have to pass on its way to the floor, said he thinks a majority of the lawmakers oppose increases in taxation.

Another argument the Rupert Republican employed was that a sales-transaction tax could unfairly "eat up" tremendous amounts of revenue in locations where property changes hands frequently. As an example, he cited Mountain Home, which is next to an Air Force base and experiences a high turnover in housing ownership.

Antone also said Wagner's suggestion that the state should tax some services, such as haircuts, hair styling and shoe repair, likely would not get off the ground.

Legislative highlights

State employees request 13% raise

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho state employees asked the state Legislature Friday for a general 13 percent "across-the-board" cost of living adjustment.

The plea was made before the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee by Stephen Swadley, executive director of the Idaho State Public Employees Association, who said the cost of the increase would be approximately $14.5 million from the state's general account.

Elsewhere on the legislative scene: • The Idaho Board of Education sought support from House and Senate education committees, asking legislators to convince colleagues that money appropriated for other state programs dilutes college and university funding.

"The members of the association feel very strongly that pay raises this year should be equitably apportioned across-the-board," Swadley said. "Severe morale problems have resulted from past raises which treated employees differently for no apparent reason."

• State and county tax officials argued before a legislative committee about their respective estimates of the impact of the 1 percent property-tax law which has this fiscal year.

He said the Legislature also should give consideration to funding "merit" raises and support the Department of Administration proposal to improve the state's health-medical package by raising the state contribution approximately 16 per month per employee. He said this would be for dental care, hospital room and board and mental health benefits.

• House Republicans will make some "hard decisions" Monday afternoon in a vote on whether they should do about the 1 percent law and with the state's expected fiscal year 1981 revenue, the caucus chairman said.

In all, the association asked the Legislature to approve nine proposals for state employees.

• State and county tax officials argued before a legislative committee about the impact of the 1 percent property-tax law.

Earlier, the joint committee was told unless the Legislature approves increases for hunting and fishing licenses and fees, the state Department of Fish and Game will be forced to curtail programs.

• The Senate confirmed the appointment of former State Sen. Neils Solberg of Grangeville to the state Board of Education and Bruce Balderston as Legislative Auditor.

In asking the lawmakers to authorize $13.5 million in spending from dedicated funds for fiscal year 1980, Bob Saller, acting department director, said the department's bank account began a downhill trend this past year and without an increase the agency could have no new programs and would have to halt present programs.

• IAC spokesman Chuck Holden said he expected the county assessors' projected loss total to be "in the $5-10-20-million-dollar range."

The fiscal committee completed its budget hearings Friday and will begin Monday deliberation on funding task.

Holden presented to members of a special property-tax subcommittee figures from 13 of the state's 44 counties, showing $2.7 million more loss in those 13 compared to Dornfest's calculations.

Evans' spending limit plan introduced

BOISE — A plan to slap a ceiling on state government expenditures received a tentative vote of approval Friday.

The plan, which failed to become law last year, would limit state expenditures to no more than 5 1/2 percent of the average personal incomes in Idaho. The amount is close to actual state expenditures.

In a late afternoon meeting, the Senate State Affairs Committee voted to introduce a measure proposed by Gov. John Evans in his State of the State address.

The measure will return to the committee at a later date for debate.

Hope's talents unique and high priced also.

Client asks how much money Bob Hope gets for a personal appearance, say, at a private party. Report is he'll do 45 minutes for $40,000, if it's convenient. Incidentally, you rarely hear the likes of Rich Little or other impressionists do imitations of Hope. Something about his snap, crackle and pop is unique, and they can't seem to get it down pat. That, too, is why he pays so much for his writers. I'd guess. Few can lace the lingo into his rhythms. It's a talent in itself.

The Minister of Education in the Fiji Islands sent out a directive to school teachers there. He told them, in effect, to knock off the random whippings. Only use the leather strap with full force, said he, on cheats, liars and bullies.

ALCOHOLIC SUICIDES

Q. Is it true that every American man who has won the Nobel Prize for literature has been an alcoholic suicide? A. Would do as well to say that all but two—Pearl Buck and Saul Bellow—have been so decorated by that unquidly gifted writer John Cheever. They were Sinclair Lewis, Eugene O'Neill, William Faulkner, Ernest Hemingway and John Steinbeck. Although their bottles here take up most room on the shelves than their books, their bottles are empty but their books are not.

Merchant offers appliances in exchange for silver coins

'Silver Days' sale is questionable bargain

By BEN McKELWAY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A dramatic "Silver Days" sale at Wilson-Bates appliance stores may not be as good a deal as it sounds at first.

Today is the second and last day of a sale in which Wilson-Bates stores in Jerome, Twin Falls, and Burley are selling all merchandise at prices far below normal to customers who pay in silver coins.

Rick White, manager of the Twin Falls store, said the sale is primarily a promotion device and is designed to attract customers and sell merchandise, not accumulate silver. The idea came from a successful sale last month at Granite Furniture in Salt Lake City, he said.

At current silver prices, however, holders of silver coins can get more for their silver coins if they exchange them for cash and then make purchases.

Howard Kinsfather, owner of Idaho Coin Galleries, said Friday he would buy the coins at prices substantially higher than the standard price of most appliances at Wilson-Bates.

In other words, Kinsfather says, someone who has saved silver coins equal to a sale price at Wilson Bates could cash them in at his shop, buy an appliance at the non-sale price and have cashed over.

"I'd gladly exchange rate we could live with," said White. "Most people only paid a dollar for a silver dollar they have now, so in that vein they are still getting a good deal. They can go down the street and cash it in first if they want to, I don't care. It isn't going to hurt my feelings."

White said he set his Friday sale prices at two dollars below the prevailing exchange rate for silver as of Thursday night. He said the two-dollar difference is to cover his risk in case the silver market drops.

Friday morning, however, the market jumped significantly to $50 an ounce, which in Kinsfather's shop means he will pay $23 to $25 for a silver dollar, $2.20 to $2.40 for a silver dime, $5.50 to $5.60 for a silver quarter, and $11 to $12 for a silver half-dollar.

The price of silver, although rising rapidly, can go up and down within a single day, Kinsfather explained.

As of Friday, the silver coin price of a black-and-white television at Wilson-Bates was $6.70, said White. It's usual price is $120. But Kinsfather said the lowest price he would have paid Friday for $6.70 in silver coins was $147.40.

An upright freezer that normally goes for $729 was selling Friday for $41 in silver coins, White said. Kinsfather said the same amount of silver would have brought $902 at his shop at the market's lowest point Friday.

Another example is a $600 dishwasher on sale for $13.40 in silver, which Kinsfather says would have brought at least $734.80 Friday.

Alex Sinclair, of Sinclair and Co., a Twin Falls commodities-brokerage house, said silver prices have risen faster than gold. In August silver was only $9.00 an ounce, he said, and a year ago it was $6.00 an ounce.

"It's been like a rocket," Sinclair said. Sinclair does not buy individual coins but will purchase silver coins in quantity. Friday, Sinclair would have paid $25 for every dollar's worth of silver coins.

Kinsfather expects the rise to continue. He says he buys about as much as he sells these days, and his shop has been very busy for the past three weeks. Most people who are selling their silver feel the price is near its peak, he said, and of the buyers, about half are speculators and half are people seeking a hedge against inflation.

The reason for all the activity? Kinsfather says the majority of his buyers feel a war is coming. Some expect a return to bartering after an economic collapse.

"It's basically lack of faith in the U.S. dollar," he said.

The last U.S. silver coins were minted in 1964, he said. All are approximately 72 percent silver. The extracted silver would be worth more than the coins, he said, but on a small scale the extracting process is not worth the cost.

White said he will not save the silver he receives during the sale but will sell it, possibly to Kinsfather. He said because of Friday's snow the sale has drawn only a few customers so far.

Basque official says more violence possible

By DAVID MORRISSEY

BOISE — Renewed violence in northern Spain could erupt by the end of this summer, unless the Spanish government grants the four Basque provinces substantial powers of local autonomy, a Basque member of the Spanish Congress of Deputies said here Friday.

In a Boise press conference, Deputy Antoni Monforte Arraqui, a member of the Spanish parliament, said most Basques were hopeful recent promises of increased local powers will materialize.

A national referendum held last October provided a framework for the creation of a Basque regional government with increased autonomy, Monforte said. In March, a second election will be held to choose a regional Basque parliament.

That parliament, along with a president and a cabinet chosen by the parliament, will negotiate with the Spanish federal government to draft the specific measures for transferring power.

"I'm optimistic," Monforte said, adding that "common sense" would hopefully be the governing factor in the negotiations.

The ultimate goal of his Basque Nationalist Party, the majority party in the Basque provinces, Monforte said, was a peaceful transition of the provinces from Spanish control to independence as a sovereign nation. The Basque provinces are in northern Spain.

But the 33-year-old deputy warned that the three million Basques who inhabit northern Spain will be patient only so long. "By the end of summer, it should be either 'what we'll do' or 'no,'" he said. "If the desire of the Basques for local autonomy is not realized, there will be a renewal of violence and terrorism against the Spanish federal government."

The Basque provinces have not had local control over their internal political affairs since the end of the Spanish Civil War, immediately prior to World War II. With the 1933 triumph of Gen. Francisco Franco, Basque autonomy was abolished. The Basques have, however, resisted assimilation into Spanish society, retaining their customs, a local language, and a strong sense of nationality.

Monforte was in Idaho as part of a project to study United States health and social security programs.

While in Idaho he met with state Basque leaders, including Secretary of State Pete T. Conrath. Idaho has the largest population of Basques outside of Spain, numbering approximately 25,000 persons.

Bean market

Possible deal with Mexico could send price of beans jumping

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — Local dealers were waiting for a call from Mexico that could set the bean market jumping late Friday.

"The question is, will it jump or not?"

During the week, most local bean dealers stayed "out of the market." They didn't buy from farmers while they waited to see if Mexico was ready to buy more beans. Mexico was expected to reply Friday to an offer from U.S. bean dealers.

"If Mexico doesn't want the beans, local dealers say they'll come back on the market, but paying a dollar or two less than the current price of $28 a bushel. On the other hand, if Mexico buys beans, dealers say they'll come back on the market offering $28 a bushel or more, depending on demand.

Bill Cook, vice-president of the Hance Seed Co., in Twin Falls, said he didn't know if the Mexicans would be buying or not. "My best guess is, I don't know."

But they'll be buying more beans sometime, he said. Growers and dealers know that, so if bean prices drop they probably won't go far.

Mexico had one of its worst harvests ever this year. A drought and an early frost forced the country to turn to U.S. farmers. In December Mexico bought over 300,000 sacks of beans from this country. Cook said that was one of the largest bean deals ever put together.

The Mexican government also reached agreement this week to buy almost 5 million tons of U.S. grain — some of which was to be sent to Russia before the grain embargo.

U.S. Department of Agriculture economist Howard Hirt said Mexico's agricultural purchases from this country during the year could be double what they were last year.

"Efforts for this year's bean crop have averaged about $10 a bushel more than last year largely because of Mexico's purchases, said Harold West, director of the Idaho Bean Commission.

Kelth Shark, commodity merchandiser for Kangan Inc. in Butte, said dealers are "up in the air" because of the current tender offer to Mexico. "But for the long run, everybody is fairly optimistic," he said.

Individual talks scheduled

Shoshone grazing battle continues between government, upset ranchers

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

GOODING — The Bureau of Land Management has decided to try to reach agreements with ranchers on how much to cut grazing allotments before imposing mandatory cuts.

The BLM will consult individually with the intent of agreeing on voluntary cutbacks with each of the 116 ranchers who use the 574,000 acres of federal grazing land in the Bennett Hills area, according to Chuck Haszler, Shoshone District BLM director.

Haszler met for more than an hour with about 50 members of the Bennett Hills Grazing Association Friday in Gooding to explain the bureau's new approach and answer questions.

The reaction from ranchers was generally favorable. But Doren Butler, president of the grazing association, said there will be problems when the time comes to "agree" on grazing cuts.

The agreements are necessary because of an amendment by Idaho Sen. James McClure that was attached to the bill providing funds for the BLM this year. The amendment limits the BLM's authority to cut grazing allotments if a rancher opposes the cut. Grazing cuts are limited to 10 percent while the decision is appealed.

In an interview during a break in the meeting, Haszler said the decision to seek agreements is a new national policy set by the director of the BLM in Washington in response to the McClure amendment.

Haszler explained the reason for seeking agreements this way: If the bureau thinks a 60 percent grazing cut is needed to restore an overgrazed section of the range, but can only get the users to agree to a 40 percent cutback, that is better than the 10 percent cut allowed by the McClure amendment.

If an agreement can't be reached, Haszler said, the bureau can issue a decision ordering whatever cuts it believes are necessary and enforce a 10 percent cut while the decision is appealed.

He said the bureau would not be likely to spend money for range improvements in grazing allotments where appeals were pending. The BLM proposes to spend $1.8 million on range improvements in the area in a draft version of the range management program, which Haszler released at the meeting.

Butler said he was encouraged by what he saw at the meeting. He said he thinks the individual agreements are the best way to approach the problem of rehabilitating the range.

"But there will still be trouble when they go to decide who will take the cuts," he said. "The fur will fly and there will be some upsets."

The BLM is seeking an average cut of about 23 percent, which is down from the 35 percent cut proposed in the final environmental impact statement. Some grazing allotments will be increased, but others could be cut by as much as 60 percent.

"We aren't anxious to meet with you," one rancher said as he asked when Haszler would be meeting with individual ranchers.

Haszler said he has already held one meeting. Others will be going on through the spring. The grazing cutbacks will begin in April 1981.

Car owner charged with fire

TWIN FALLS — The owner of an automobile that burned in Twin Falls Friday afternoon was arrested by city police and charged with arson.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said Gale Robinson, 34, was arrested Friday evening on charges of third degree arson.

Police and firemen investigating the incident said the fire was in the passenger area of the vehicle. The car was parked in front of 218 Third Ave. E., in front of a business office when the fire was reported.

Qualls said Robinson had reported the car stolen a short time earlier. When firemen arrived the interior of the vehicle was engulfed in flames.

Firemen said the blaze was so hot it bucked the top of the car. The 1968 4-door sedan was demolished, firemen said.

Bond for Robinson was set at $2,500 and he was released on bond Friday night, pending court appearance.

Firemen said the type of material which caused the interior of the car to burn has not been determined but investigation is continuing. Some witnesses in the area said they heard an explosion shortly after the fire was discovered, but firemen said the gas-line tank did not ignite and they were unable to confirm an explosion as the entire vehicle was engulfed in flames when they reached the scene.

NCAA tacks two years onto Cowboys' probation

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Oklahoma State University, whose football program was placed on probation for two years by the NCAA in January 1978, has had its probationary period extended for an additional two years for alleged recruiting violations. The NCAA Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics recently ruled, after reviewing the university's athletic program, that it has violated NCAA rules in numerous instances, including allegations that athletes were provided extra benefits and improper financial assistance.

Renner takes Phoenix lead

PHOENIX (UPI) — Young Jack Renner of San Diego put his new swing to good use Friday. He shot a 5-under-par 66 and took the second round lead in the rain-suspended $300,000 Phoenix Open.

The 23-year-old Renner was among the early starters Friday and that proved a big advantage as rain battered the area late in the afternoon, leaving 27 players still to finish their round this morning.

Among those who did not complete the round, none had a chance to overtake Renner, who became an instant star a year ago when he won the Westchester Classic, finished second in the Hartford Open and—third—in the Tournament Players Championship.

First-round leader Mike Sullivan, also an early starter, shot an even-par 71 and left Mitchell, who barely completed his round before the rain, had a 67 to tie in 156, one stroke behind Renner, who had a seven-under-par total after two rounds.

The 27 players who did not finish the round will tee off at 7:30 MST this morning and then the cut will be made to the low 75s and ties, who will proceed to the third round.

Renner had six birdies and one bogey for his 66. One of his birdie puts was a 30-footer and another from 20 feet. He made his hole but shot on the second hole, which actually was his 11th since he started on the back side. He took a bogey on the par-3, 161-yard hole when he missed a put of seven feet.

Despite his success last week, Renner decided to make some changes in his swing and even though he had a 66 Friday, he said he wasn't all that comfortable.

"Thinking in the long term things will work out well for me with my new swing," said Renner, "but I don't know about this weekend. I'm still experimenting."
