

Evans supports nuke waste dump legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two governors Thursday endorsed a Senate proposal to give states an important role in choosing disposal sites for the nation's growing nuclear wastes.

Chairman Gary Hart, D-Colo., said his Public-Works subcommittee on nuclear regulation expects to approve a bill next month that will closely follow recommendations that are forthcoming from President Carter on the issue.

Govs. Richard Riley of South Carolina and John Evans of Idaho, whose states now reluctantly accept low-level nuclear wastes from others, said states should have a voice in locating dumps for high-level wastes.

But both agreed the problem is a national one overriding the interests of any one state — no matter how unpopular it may be with residents who have radioactive wastes stored nearby with all the inherent risks involved.

Governor requests funds to remove waste stored in Idaho

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. John V. Evans Thursday urged Congress to provide funds to allow the removal of some highly radioactive wastes from Idaho.

During testimony to the congressional Subcommittee on Nuclear Regulation, Evans also asked the U.S. Energy Department to eliminate "as soon as possible" injection of low-level radioactive wastes into the Snake River Plain Aquifer. The aquifer lies below DOE's Idaho National Engineering Laboratory in the eastern part of the state.

Evans and other Idaho governors have asked that solid wastes being stored at the site near Arco be transferred to other sites because the wastes endanger the aquifer, which feeds into the Snake River and is south-central Idaho's major water source.

Evans said he was "dismayed" at the recent Office of Management and Budget decision to hold-back funds that would have allowed removal of some highly radioactive wastes from the state. He asked the subcommittee to urge Congress to provide the funds needed for "continuation of current waste management plans and programs."

He said the decision to defer establishing a timetable for creating a permanent nuclear waste dump "is another broken promise" by the federal government.

The Governor said he has several "concerns" about specific portions of legislation being considered by the committee. He said linking licensing of nuclear facilities and disposal of its wastes on the site until permanent storage sites are developed may not be the correct answer to the national waste management problem.

would have to consider some sort of mandatory legislation," the governor replied.

Hart failed to get a timetable from administration officials on when President Carter would announce a long-awaited plan for storage of nuclear waste.

After impatiently questioning officials of the Department of Energy and the Council on Environmental Quality, renewed his accusation the administration has failed to deal effectively with nuclear waste problems.

He charged the administration has let 15 months go by because of indecision and delays in the DOE.

George Cunningham, assistant energy secretary for nuclear matters, told Hart administration officials had reached a "consensus" on a nuclear storage policy, but declined to say when it would be announced.

"I object to even using the word 'veto' in connection with possible state action to postpone or terminate a nuclear waste storage facility," Riley said. "High-level radioactive waste, its immobilization and subsequent disposal, is an urgent national problem."

Evans agreed the site selection should be made through a process of "consultation and concurrence."

"Our position is based on the principle that no state may reasonably impede the national interest, but that likewise federalism makes the states all equal partners in that interest," he added.

But Nevada Gov. Robert List insisted states should be able to veto selection of high-level waste sites.

"What if every state vetoes?" Hart asked List.

"I suppose you would reach the point then to turn to Congress, which

Opposition expected Female draft decision due

WASHINGTON — President Carter will decide by Feb. 9 whether to propose the registration of women as well as men for the military draft.

Responding to a torrent of questions raised by the president's call for the resumption of registration in his State of the Union address Wednesday night, White House officials described a planned registration system that initially would be only a shadow of the complex Selective Service System that was ended in June 1972.

John White, deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, said the registration would be handled by the Postal Service. Young men — and women if Congress includes them, as Carter is considered likely to recommend — would be required to fill out a "simple form" at their local post office, with information to be stored in Selective Service System computers, he said.

But draft cards would not be issued, there would be no physical examinations and no classification of registrants according to marital or other status under the maze of exemptions used in the past by the Selective Service System, White said.

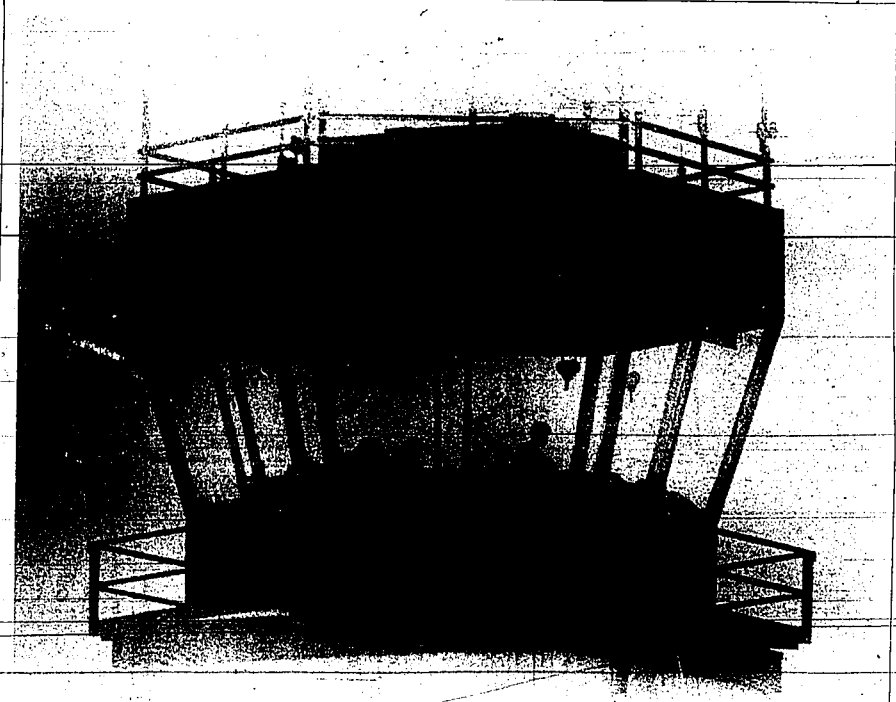

He said local draft boards would not immediately become active, but will be reconstituted and held in "a reserve status."

longer because it will require legislation and undoubtedly set off a sharp debate in Congress.

The issue of including women in the registration system remained the chief unanswered question Thursday. Officials insisted repeatedly that Carter has not made up his mind on this issue, and they brushed aside questions about why this is so since the administration has had the possible resumption of registration under study for several months.

Carter seems likely to propose that women be included in the registration system. A continuation of the exemption of women would be criticized as inconsistent with his strident advocacy of the Equal Rights Amendment and other measures designed to assure equality of the sexes. Moreover, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, speaking for the administration, testified last summer that any registration system should be applied to women as well as men.

The president is required by law to report to Congress by Feb. 9 on a study of the Selective Service System, setting a deadline for a decision on including women.

Fog closes down airport

Fog forced the closure of the Twin Falls County airport Thursday. Manager Harry Merrick said it was the first time this winter the airport has been closed more than briefly. Four Hughes Aircraft flights were missed and only two or three private planes took off. Those with private instruments were able to clear the field, Merrick said, but only a few tried. He said visibility was a quarter mile and the ceiling was 200 feet. Passengers for Twin Falls landed at the Boise airport where they were picked up by family or bussed to Twin Falls. Outgoing passengers had to drive to Boise to catch flights.

Earthquake jolts north California

© The Los Angeles Times
SAN FRANCISCO — A powerful earthquake shook a large area of Northern California Thursday.

It swayed high-rise buildings in downtown San Francisco and caused at least 24 minor injuries at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory 40 miles east of here, near the epicenter.

Extensive damage probably was averted because the quake produced more of a gentle, rolling motion than a sharp jolt.

Most of the 7,000 workers at the Lawrence lab, a nuclear research facility operated by the University of California for the U.S. Department of Energy, were at home when natural gas began leaking from damaged pipes. Officials said there was no damage to the lab's nuclear reactor and no danger from radioactivity.

"It was very, very strong here," Jeff Garberson, the lab's public information officer, said. "We've had damage to the building I'm in and I'm not supposed to be in it."

Hundreds of other persons were evacuated from schools and office buildings when cracks appeared in the buildings or when gas lines broke.

Interstate 580, the principal artery between the San Francisco Bay Area and the San Joaquin Valley, was closed for a time when an overpass sank several inches, but apparently sustained no structural damage.

Sismologists at the University of California Berkeley estimated the magnitude of the quake, which occurred at 11 a.m., at 5.5 on the Richter scale, and placed the epicenter about 12 miles northwest of Livermore, Calif., at the southern end of the Antioch Fault. It lasted about 30 seconds and was felt as far away as Reno, Nev., 250 miles to the east.

Two aftershocks followed closely after the initial quake and measured 5.2 and 4.3, respectively.

Most of the injuries at the lab involved sprains, or bruises and occurred when people fell or were tossed about in mobile trailers that are used as temporary offices. One employee was admitted to a Livermore hospital complaining of chest pains.

Elsewhere in the city, a roofer suffered blows to his hands when hot tar spilled over them and several other minor injuries were reported.

The quake, however, was not as severe as one which struck in two sharp, rocking jolts last Aug. 6 and registered 5.9 on the Richter scale, the strongest quake to hit Northern California in 53 years.

A spokesman at the state Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, Calif., said he was "reluctant" to say the Lawrence lab had been evacuated but conceded that "nonessential people were sent home." He also said minor water and gas leaks were reported throughout the city of Livermore, which has a population of about 50,000, and telephone and electrical services were temporarily interrupted.

Reaction time

Great Britain among few to join U.S. against Soviets

United Press International
The Soviet Union Thursday attacked President Carter's State of the Union address as "diplomatic."

And Arab press reports from the Persian Gulf region rejected his policy as "a threat to the stability and security of the area."

Most European countries appeared to be trending cautiously, but Britain was quick to announce a series of anti-Soviet measures to protest the invasion of Afghanistan and banishment of human rights activist Andrei Sakharov.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, in a speech to Parliament, announced a package of economic and other measures against the Soviets.

These included nonrenewal of trade credits, cancellation of high level contacts, increased radio broadcasts to the Soviet Union and Afghanistan and an offer to host part of the Olympic games if they are moved from Moscow.

Without actually mentioning Carter's message, Carrington left no doubt the British government fully supported his action against the Soviet Union.

The Soviets, in their first reaction to the speech, leaned on previous policy statements.

The Tass news agency in a dispatch from Washington, said any allegation of Soviet moves to take control of the Persian Gulf area was an "absurdity" and "equally groundless is the president's assertion concerning mythical threats to the movement of Middle East oil from any side."

It said Carter's "demagogical call for efforts to repel the threat" to the (Middle East) region can only be qualified as an attempt to distract attention from the imperialist policy of the U.S.A.

Arab press reports from the Gulf area also attacked Carter. The Abu Dhabi-based Al-Wahda newspaper said the "superpowers' cold war was "an attempt to get to the Gulf oil fields."

It called on Arab states to "confront any attempt (by the United States) to establish any kind of military presence in the area, which will only shake the independence of our nations and threaten the stability and security of the area."

The Kuwaiti daily Al Rai Al Aam accused Washington of "planning to conquer the area and impose its control over the oil wells."

Most European and Asian countries offered no official reaction to Carter's speech and there was little editorial comment.

Trade favors granted, military sales possible for China

Combined wire reports
WASHINGTON — Congress overwhelmingly approved a resolution Thursday giving China "the most-favored national trade status it sought with America."

The resolution does not need President Carter's signature — although he had sent it to Congress for approval — and it took effect immediately.

Action on the resolution came first in the House, where the vote was 294-82, then in the Senate, which supported the move 74-8. Idaho Republican Sen. James McClure voted against the resolution.

Contrary to its name, most-favored-nation status is not preferred treatment, but the right to conduct trade with the United States on an equal basis with most other foreign countries.

Approval of the trade status for China had been delayed because of congressional sentiment to treat Peking and Moscow equally. But the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan changed that stance dramatically.

Supporters of the China resolution pointed to the economic benefit the United States would derive through expanded trade with China's 1 billion people.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, cited a Treasury Department forecast that U.S. trade with China will reach $5 billion a year by 1985.

Opponents noted China's past ties with its fellow communist nation, Russia, and Peking's recent incursion into Vietnam. They also raised questions about China's human rights policies.

In another decision speeded by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the Pentagon Thursday said it was willing to sell certain military equipment — but not weapons — to China.

The announcement, coming on the heels of a strong challenge to Western day to Soviet actions by President Carter, in his State-of-the-Union message to Congress, seemed clearly to be another step in exerting pressure on the Kremlin.

The Defense Department cited trucks, communications equipment and early warning radars, the kind that can be used to detect invading aircraft or tanks, as the type of equipment that might be sold.

Trucks and communications equipment, on the surface, appear neither controversial nor glamorous. Yet they could play a key role in modernizing and adding maneuverability to a huge Chinese army that still frequently is hampered by primitive transportation and inability to communicate between units.

Sen. Church welcomes China trade, A10.

One of the hardest hit areas was a mobile home park, where 133 homes were shaken from their foundations and their owners evacuated.

In San Francisco, plaster fell from the ornate moldings between the ceilings and walls on the second floor of City Hall but there was no significant damage reported and no injuries. Buildings also swayed in Sacramento and Oakland, and 100 tenants of an aging downtown hotel in Stockton were evacuated when the walls began to crack.

"Everything with legs fell over," Andrew Blake said from his home in Walnut Creek, Calif., about 25 miles north of Livermore. "There are 20 gallons of water on the floor from two fish tanks. We lost an expensive collection of decanters."

The Bay Area Rapid Transit District shut down service for about 40 minutes to check for structural damage to its tracks and tunnels, including the transbay tube connecting San Francisco and Oakland, but trains resumed running shortly before noon. Dr. Bruce Bolt, director of the university's seismologic station at Berkeley, said the quake "doesn't change our prediction that there's a better than 50-50 chance that there will be a major quake in the next 10 years. This (Thursday's) quake has nothing to do with the big one."

Bolt and Stanford University seismologist Richard Jahn's prediction in an article last month that California would be struck within the next 10 years by a quake with a magnitude on the Richter scale of 7 or more.

Every increase of a number of the Richter scale, a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs, means a tenfold increase in magnitude. The 1971 San Fernando earthquake in Southern California, by way of comparison, was recorded as 6.4. The great San Francisco earthquake of 1906, before the advent of sophisticated measuring devices, has been estimated at 7.9.

Earthquake dropped section of road near Livermore about a foot.

Khomeini calls illness 'minor'

United Press International In a message from his hospital sickbed, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini told Iranians Thursday that his heart ailment was "not bad" and urged them to turn out and vote in Friday's elections for Iran's first president.

The 79-year-old Islamic leader, rushed to Tehran and hospitalized late Wednesday for what doctors said was "slight heart trouble," told the nation to keep calm. He warned that Iran's "enemies" were looking for an opportunity to disrupt the elections to choose a largely figurehead president for a four-year term.

At the occupied U.S. Embassy, the militants holding 50 Americans hostage for the 82nd day called on Iranians to make Thursday election eve a "day of prayer" for the Ayatollah's health. Tehran Radio, monitored by the BBC in London, said Iran's revolutionary guard had been placed on alert until the balloting is over and the results are announced. In a recorded message broadcast to the nation, Khomeini said "As far as my condition is concerned, I am praise be to God — not bad."

Tehran Radio said Khomeini was taken from his headquarters in Qom to Tehran's Heart Disease Hospital for a "closer examination" of a "slight heart ailment brought on by fatigue and overwork." There is no cause for worry, the radio said.

A Thursday morning medical bulletin added that doctors had taken two blood tests and a series of chest X-rays and that "all tests proved completely normal." In Paris, Iranian exile sources claimed Khomeini actually suffered a mild heart attack last Sunday but that his illness was being played down to avoid panic on the eve of the elections. The exiles said they could not disclose the source of their information and it could not be confirmed. In Panama, officials were still attempting to clarify the status of the exiled shah following Iran's announcement Wednesday that the deposed monarch had been detained prior to his extradition for trial and certain death in Tehran.

Friday briefing

Kennedy won't withdraw

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy Thursday night dismissed suggestions that he may withdraw from the 1980 presidential race. "Of course I intend to go on," Kennedy said in a speech to a union audience.

Runners that Kennedy would withdraw swept Capitol Hill and came in from Illinois, Iowa and New Hampshire within hours of the senator's announcement he was canceling a crucial weekend campaign trip to Maine and New Hampshire to prepare for a major policy address on Monday.

The reports followed Kennedy's 2-1 loss to President Carter in Monday's Iowa precinct caucuses; a decision by many of the campaign's 200 staffers to work without pay during the coming month; and reports the senator has only $200,000 left in his $4 million campaign war chest.

Kennedy brushed aside the reports of a possible withdrawal in a speech before the Brotherhood of Railroad and Airline Clerks. He appeared in a jovial, almost exuberant mood.

"I wish all of you had lived and voted in Iowa," Kennedy told the cheering union members. Campaign officials said Kennedy will make "a major policy speech" Monday. It was scheduled for 9 a.m. MST at Georgetown University in Washington.

Chicago school plan found

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Board of Education, teachers unions and Mayor Jane M. Byrne agreed Thursday on a compromise $51.5 million budget cutting plan that will keep classrooms open next week. "The school doors of the City of Chicago will remain open," Mrs. Byrne said following a stormy meeting during which police removed about 25 vocal protestors.

Robert M. Healey, president of the Chicago Teachers Union, said the cuts are "significantly different" and that fewer teachers will be fired than under a plan proposed earlier.

RKO loses FCC licenses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission Thursday ruled that RKO General Inc. was unqualified to hold the license of a television station in Boston and denied its application for retaining licenses in Los Angeles and New York.

The commission said RKO and its parent company, General Tire and Rubber Co., had a record of misconduct that warranted the action, based on a complaint by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The FCC said a report showed that General Tire and RKO tried to pressure companies into placing advertising on RKO stations as a condition of doing business with General Tire.

Sakharov speaks out

MOSCOW (UPI) — Defying Soviet attempts to silence him, Andrei Sakharov spoke out Thursday from his exile in the Russian interior to demand the immediate withdrawal of Russian troops from Afghanistan.

Through friends in Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow, Sakharov sent word to dissidents in the capital calling on them to release a bold Afghanistan document drawn up before his arrest Tuesday. "It was a particularly brazen move in that the document spoke directly in opposition to the Soviet presence in Afghanistan," a subject Communist sources said Wednesday triggered his arrest and led to his banishment.

An addition clearly referred to the 1980 Moscow Olympics, which Sakharov suggested in an earlier interview with an American television reporter should be boycotted.

Ugandans face starvation

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Ugandan officials said Thursday as many as two million people could die in the next two months from starvation and disease unless the country received international relief.

Sixteen members of Uganda's Interim Parliament told a news conference thousands of persons were already dying each week in the north and east of Uganda where food crops had either failed or had not been planted because of the war last year when Idi Amin was toppled. "The situation has worsened," they said, because of a drought and cattle raiding by former Amin troops living as bandits in neighboring Sudan, Zaire and Kenya.

Pau Matovu, an official of the World Food Program in Kampala, agreed with the legislators the situation was "alarming" and said the WFP was prepared to assist in trying to feed 350,000 people.

Reagan attacks Carter

United Press International President Carter's tough new draft and defense proposals were — except for Ronald Reagan — welcomed warmly Thursday by the Republican presidential candidates. Reagan compared Carter's foreign policy to British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's appeasement of Nazi Germany before World War II.

"I believe we are seeing the same kind of atmosphere we saw when Mr. Chamberlain was tugging his cane on the cobblestones of Munich," Reagan said.

He called Carter's State of the Union address "long on rhetoric and short on specifics," and said it offered only a vague threat that if further aggression occurs in the Persian Gulf area "he (Carter) may do something."

Afghans take toll of Soviets

United Press International Moslem rebels in eastern Afghanistan are attacking small Soviet units with Viet Cong-style ambushes, resulting in a steady rise of Russian combat fatalities, reports from the country said Thursday.

Western diplomats in the Pakistani capital of Islamabad, who put Soviet combat deaths at between 1,200 and 2,000, said the Russians are losing men mostly in small engagements rather than in large battles.

U.S. intelligence sources have estimated Soviet casualties of dead and seriously wounded at about 2,000. "There are reliable reports of large numbers of coffins being loaded on planes at Kabul airport and being flown back to the Soviet Union," one diplomat said about movement at the capital's airport.

One traveler emerging from Afghanistan said a convoy of more than 100 trucks was ambushed as it headed south from the Salang Pass toward Kabul last Saturday, resulting in the deaths of four Russians. MIG jet fighters were called in against the rebels before the engagement ended, he said.

The Hizbi Islami rebel group also said in the Pakistan frontier town of Peshawar that three Soviet soldiers were killed in fighting around Jalalabad.

Guards loyal to the Yunis Khalis faction of the Hizbi Islami group are operating in the area surrounding Jalalabad, a province capital 60 miles from the Pakistani border on the main highway to Kabul.

Congress aims to ease restrictions on CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bipartisan group of senators Wednesday introduced sweeping legislation to protect America's covert intelligence activities and make unauthorized disclosure of agents' identities a crime.

The action, announced at a joint news conference by seven senators, followed President Carter's State of the Union call for removal of "unwarranted restraints on our ability to collect intelligence" and a tightening of controls on sensitive information.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Thursday the administration will send its legislation on the subject to Congress in "the next few weeks."

He said the current law requiring the intelligence community to share sensitive information with nearly 200 members of Congress "tends to have an inhibiting effect on the community."

The bipartisan Senate bill "to improve the intelligence systems of the United States" was introduced Thursday by Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., and Pete Domenici, R-N.M. Joining them were Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo.; Henry Jackson, D-Wash.; Sam Munn, D-Ga.; John Danforth, R-Mo.; and John Chafee, R-I.

It would: • Modify the 1961 Hughes-Ryan amendment requiring U.S. intelligence agencies to report to eight committees of Congress involving some 180 members and 90 staffers, on current or planned activities. The agencies would instead report only to Senate and House intelligence committees, which include members of Foreign Affairs and Armed Services committees.

• Make it a criminal offense, subject to a fine of up to $50,000 and imprisonment up to 10 years or both, for anyone making unauthorized disclosure of identities of intelligence agents serving abroad or who served abroad within the last five years.

Lawmaker unveils 1% plan

BOISE (UPI) — A four-step plan to finally implement the 1 percent initiative was unveiled Thursday before a House subcommittee wrestling with property-tax law.

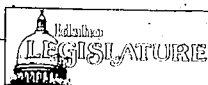

Rep. Michael Gwartney, R-Boise, proposed that the Legislature should impose a spending limitation on Idaho's 44 counties at 1 percent of market value. The limitation could be raised or reduced by the majority in a county-wide vote.

Gwartney said this would overcome the proportionate reduction problem and solve the problem of local control up and down.

Step two on Gwartney's outline would exempt Idaho's three charter school districts from the 20-mill limit. The third suggestion would give certain taxing districts depending on property taxes the ability to impose user fees to make up for dollars lost in budget cuts under the 1 percent implementation.

Finally, Gwartney advocated that the Legislature should reduce school mill-level power for a year to provide $10 million to bring the two-year, statewide reduction in property taxes to $96 million.

Gwartney said the foremost aim of the Legislature should be maintain local government control.

In the Senate, a move by Senate Minority Leader Cy Chase, D-St. Maries, to return to the State Affairs Committee an anti-abortion resolution was rejected by a single vote, 17-18.

Chase said he felt there were constitutional and procedural questions concerning the concurrent resolution, which calls for a constitutional convention to draft a right to life amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

"There are numerous problems and questions (with the resolution) of concern to quite a few people," Chase told the Senate. "We didn't have enough study to see if it had serious problems."

But Senate Majority Leader James Risch, R-Boise, called on the Senate to reject Chase's motion, saying "one way or another the members have to face the issue and vote on the merits."

Meantime, the House passed the first bill of the session in either chamber. On the 18th legislative day, representatives voted 64-1 and sent to the Senate a bill allowing a maximum $50-per-year-income-tax-credit for individuals who make donations to nonprofit hospitals.

Elsewhere on the legislative scene: * The House Revenue and Taxation Committee voted to introduce a bill designed by its sponsor, Rep. James Stolech, D-Sandpoint, to increase the amount of credits for food purchases.

* The Senate Commerce and Labor Committee voted to introduce a bill which would exempt Idaho's 13 percent usury rate from federal home loans.

A bill proposed by horse-racing groups to increase to 20 percent from 17 percent the amount of track receipts that can be held from bettors was sent to printing by the House State Affairs Committee.

* A memorial urging the president to pull the United States out of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow was introduced in the Idaho House by Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello.

Bill would lift usury ceiling on some loans

BOISE (UPI) — Despite worries expressed by two committee members, the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee voted Thursday to introduce a bill which would exempt Idaho's 13 percent usury rate from federal home loans.

Dale Higer, a Boise attorney representing the Idaho Mortgage Bankers Association, told the committee, passage of the measure would provide a permanent solution to the usury problems in Idaho.

He said the exemptions would be federally related loans, which constitute about 95 percent of the home loans in Idaho. A new federal law signed into law in December temporarily lifted the usury limit.

Higer said the measure would apply on federal loans up to $93,500. Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, expressed concern that bill leaves the small homeowner unprotected.

"It lifts the ceiling on the small homeowner and leaves the large homeowner under a ceiling," Mrs. Klein said. "I don't see why there's not a blanket lifting."

"I don't like this piecemeal legislation, which exempts some people and not others."

Faulty naturopath legislation rejected

BOISE — A House Committee Thursday refused to introduce a measure licensing naturopaths because the proposed law failed to adequately define naturopaths, what services they could perform or what practices they would be prohibited from performing.

But Rep. Rusty Barlow, R-Pocatello, who brought the bill to the House Health and Welfare Committee, said the measure would be re-drafted and again brought before the legislature.

In an hour of testimony, committee members heard several defenses of naturopathy: * Paul Stuecker, a Boise naturopath, told legislators the real issue was freedom of medical choice. No one should be prohibited from going to a naturopath, he said. But because Idaho law does not license naturopaths, they had difficulty establishing or maintaining practices. Because of the lack of a licensing and certification procedure, naturopaths are also open to prosecution for practicing medicine without a license, he said.

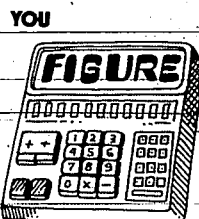

"According to literature distributed by Naturopathic Association for several naturopaths, naturopathy is a system of healing involving, among other things, nutritional control, dietetics, and the use of vitamins and herbs."

"Naturopaths, according to the literature, do not perform major surgery and use only those drugs "containing elements, at compounds, which are components of body tissues and are physiologically compatible to body processes."

But while naturopaths told legislators the exemptions would be federally related loans, which constitute about 95 percent of the home loans in Idaho. A new federal law signed into law in December temporarily lifted the usury limit.

Paul Street, legal counsel for the Idaho Medical Association, told committee members, Barlow's bill would allow naturopaths to perform some surgery. It would also allow them access to dangerous and perhaps unlawful drugs. The proposed measure also failed to adequately establish what training a person should have to call himself a naturopath.

Famous what?

BOISE — The great license plate debate rages on. This time it was the logging industry that tried to topple the potato's dominance. Well, sort of.

Idaho's license plates have advertised "Famous Potatoes" for more than two decades. But an attempt to change that slogan to "honest" — "Famous Spuds and Studs," has so far met with little support.

"The purpose of this bill is to provide for a new inscription on Idaho's license plates to more truly reflect Idaho's agriculture enterprise," said the measure's sponsor, Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Coeur d'Alene. "This bill recognizes the important contribution that the wood products industry provides, especially in the manufacture of two-by-fours."

"This is an attempt to have the proposal introduced in the House State Affairs Committee met with stern rejection by the committee's chairman. Ingram says he will take his slogan to another legislative committee and hope for better luck.

Improving our vision

Our society discriminates against people who have lost their eyesight. It is done, not because people with sight want to hurt those who are blind, but because of attitudes we are likely to have.

This message was given to legislators who attended a dinner sponsored by the Idaho Federation of the Blind.

If you can see, blindness is something you don't like to think about. Yet thousands of people each year are confronted with the fact that they have suddenly or gradually lost their eyesight.

We sat at a table with a young man who had just observed his 29th birthday. His loss of eyesight came abruptly. He had to give up his job. He was depressed and discouraged about the future.

Now, however, he is positive and hopeful. He is looking forward to attending a school that will open the door to a new career in the making of records and tapes. He is thinking of marriage.

He has been attending the school conducted by the Idaho Commission for the Blind in Boise. People learn to travel with a cane, to read Braille, to type, to make things of wood in a workshop, to prepare food. They learn how to function effectively with their handicap.

Most important, they learn that loss of eyesight is a handicap that can be overcome, that it is possible to live and function as a productive member of society.

Our speaker was Dr. Norman Gardner, who teaches finance at Boise State University. He has a master's degree and a PhD. But in going to college, to graduate school and in seeking a teaching position, he was confronted with people who felt he couldn't do it, because he is blind.

Dr. Gardner told us that in Washington, D.C., blind people are expected to sit in the seats behind the driver in the front of the bus. When a sighted person in one of those seats offered to give him the seat, he refused. The driver told him he had to sit there.

Discrimination is discrimination, whether you are told you must sit in the front of the bus or the back of the bus.

Dr. Gardner's greatest problem, in pursuing his education and employment, was not his handicap. He overcame that. His problem was the attitude that sighted people had toward people who are blind.

Other chapters and organizations for the Blind teach, and what the blind in Idaho are saying is, that they want equal treatment and equal opportunity. They want society to recognize that loss of eyesight is one of many handicaps. They want us to know that blind people can deal with this handicap and fill many, many jobs in our society.

The task to be considered on the basis of their ability, not on the basis of their handicap.

Dr. Gardner described the scandal of the operation of "sheltered workshops" that employ blind people at menial pay, even though they are just as capable and just as productive as sighted people.

Idaho's Commission for the Blind was warmly praised as one of the most progressive and best in the country. It is considered by the National Federation for the Blind as one of the models other states should follow.

I was reminded of a man who served as a district court judge in Idaho. As a reporter observing a trial, it dawned on me that this man did not have eyesight. Some months later, I persuaded him to allow me to write a story about a highly-respected judge who served despite this handicap.

He was concerned about the story, fearful that someone would write a headline about a "blind judge." It was important that people understand that the quality of justice in this court was just as high, or higher than others. When the story was printed, he was pleased. It made the point that people can fill difficult and demanding positions in our society without eyesight.

"This judge improved my vision about blindness. The legislative dinner did, too. What we need to see is that blind people have the same rights, needs, ability, and potential as sighted people."

State Sen. Ken Robison, D-Boise, is editor/publisher of the Idaho Citizen.

Two cents worth on 'two-bit' decision

The much maligned 25-cent pay phone call ordered by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission last fall has come under legislative attack.

State Rep. Jack Kennevik, R-Boise, has introduced a measure that would override the IPUAC and knock the charge down to 15 cents.

Kennevik said he took the action "so that we can hear from the appropriate people on the whys and wherefores of this proposal."

The representative's goal of gathering information is laudable, but reducing the cost of a pay phone call would be a mistake.

The PUC's purpose in raising the cost has been completely misunderstood from the beginning, and that misunderstanding now threatens to undo real benefits.

Mountain Bell has asked the PUC for authority to raise the pay phone charge from 10 to 20 cents.

Along with this request, the phone company said it would implement "911" emergency service numbers for Ada and Canyon counties and the cities of Boise, Ketchum/Sun Valley, Shoshone and Twin Falls.

That emergency service does not come free or cheap; local governments must pick up part of the tab. Mountain Bell estimated the cost at $1.4-1.6 million.

In this light, the PUC ordered Mountain Bell to charge 25 cents for a pay phone call and keep track of the revenues. Any surplus beyond the cost of providing emergency service will go to reducing the fee charged to local governments.

The extra nickel thus could put emergency phone service within reach of more local governments.

But the commissioners have been accused of handing Mountain Bell an extra bonus or, even worse, of acting on a whim. Their decision has been widely attributed to one commissioner's assertion that quarters are more common as pocket change.

The truth is the 25-cent phone call can make emergency service more possible for more people. They will be able to make phone calls to police and fire departments without depositing any money.

According to the PUC testimony of Boise fire chief John Boros "dial tone first" pay phones "definitely save lives and property."

If Rep. Kennevik gives the PUC a hearing on its decision, perhaps the "two-bit" misunderstanding will be cleared up and the lives, property and costs of local communities will be put first.

Computer misery

Chicago Sun-Times (Field News Service)

While sitting in a jail cell for almost a week, Eric Willis probably thought about the many ways that computers, which are supposed to make life easier, can make life miserable.

For Willis, problems with the electronic brains began almost two years ago, when he received a paycheck for several months of weekend duty with the naval reserves at Glenview Naval Air Station in Illinois.

His check was supposed to be something like $30 and his deductions about $24. But the paycheck computer had it backwards. It sent him a check for $24 and deducted $30.

At first he and his wife, Carol, laughed. But he stopped laughing when he began making phone calls to ask that it be corrected.

He began running into those people who are increasing in numbers by the minute—the people whose job it is to solve it. They don't know what the problem is, how it happened, or how to solve it.

Every company in America that uses computers now hires people for this job. Some have entire departments that specialize in it.

But they are most prevalent in the federal government, which Willis was dealing with. The federal government pioneered this strange occupation—even before there were computers.

The more Willis, 24, got the runaround, the more he became angry. He didn't think he deserved such treatment. He had served three years in the Navy on active duty and had been honorably discharged.

Finally, in frustration he said to his wife: "To hell with them. If they can't get their computer to pay me the right amount, then I won't go to any more reserve drills. They can come and get me."

So Willis, a machinist, stopped going. And for almost two years they didn't come and get him. They probably would have never come for him if it hadn't been for another computer.

This was last Friday. He had left his job in Wheaton, Ill., to drive home to Chicago, where he and his wife are restoring an old house.

He was stopped for a minor traffic violation. Before computers, he would have been on a ticket or a warning and been home for dinner. But the cop radioed the police station to see if Willis was wanted for anything. The police station ran him through some kind of statewide police computer to see if he was wanted for anything.

And out popped the bad news: He was now classified as a Navy deserter. That's what the reserves do if you stop coming to meetings.

The policeman took him into the station and called the Glenview Naval Air Station. But once again an electronic machine caused him problems.

Apparently nobody was in the military police office that is supposed to go pick up deserters, AWOLs, brawlers, drunken petty officers, and other miscreants making trouble.

So a message was left with a telephone tape recorder. But it appears that either the tape recorder didn't work, or someone erased the message or something like that.

Whatever the reason, Friday night passed and Willis sat in the Du Page County Jail. He didn't worry because the reserves don't shoot people like him. Most likely he'd be put on active duty for a month or so, then be returned to reserve status. He called his wife from the jail and chuckled about it.

On Saturday he was still there. So he was transferred to a bigger cell with about 20 other men. And he was still there on Sunday.

By Sunday night he was becoming worried. His wife and an uncle began

The students concerned with Special Olympics are very grateful for the tremendous support of some medical doctors in Twin Falls. The doctors have donated their time and given the students their physical examinations free of charge so that these students can participate in Special Olympics. These examinations are being conducted from Jan. 4 to Jan. 10.

Love carefully

Editor, Times-News:

In recognition of the growing problem of teen-age pregnancy, Planned Parenthood Association of Idaho, with other chapters and organizations throughout the country, has proclaimed Valentine's Day (Feb. 14) as "Love Carefully Day." The purpose of "Love Carefully Day" is to make American teenagers, parents and communities aware of the issues behind teen-age pregnancy.

Each year more than one million American teenagers become pregnant. Teen-agers account for one out of every five births, half of all out-of-wedlock births and one-third of all abortions. One in four teen-age women has a baby in her teen years.

The physical, emotional, economic, and social hardships encountered by teenagers with children can be enormous. Proper awareness about contraception, and pregnancy could spare thousands of teen-agers from having to make the painful decision about abortion.

Teen-age mothers are at a disadvantage socially and economically. An unplanned pregnancy might seriously disrupt their life plans. Most teen-age mothers never finish high school, thereby eliminating opportunities for job-related training and increasing their chances of unemployment. Teen-agers who marry as a result of pregnancy are three times more likely to separate from their spouses than other teen-age couples. In addition to being economically disadvantaged, teen-ager mothers and their infants face substantially higher health risks.

Many teen-agers need to realize that, despite peer pressure, they have the right to say "no" to sex. To curb the epidemic of teen-age pregnancies, we must help adolescents to deal responsibly with their sexuality and prevent pregnancies they do not want, and are not ready for. Relevant sex education courses, including accurate information on contraceptive use and the risks of unprotected intercourse, is essential.

On Valentine's Day, let's all pledge to love carefully.

Who does the housework: a big issue

The Boston Globe Newspaper Co. Washington Post Writers Group BOSTON—I heard from a Helpful Husband the other day. To be honest, I heard from a hundred Helpful Husbands. Most of them wanted to award my friend the Grateful Wife, an FBI before her name.

I had written last month about a working wife who wanted her working husband to "share" instead of "help," to take over management and responsibility of some of the workday chores of their mutual children and home life. She wanted to say fewer "thank you's" and more "you're welcome's."

The modest proposal elicited more response than anything I had written on the state of the world, immorality or immortality. So it goes.

The Heard-From Husbands fell into various and sundry categories. There were, for example, two dozen Division of Labor theorists. Some of them simply didn't believe in the notion of "sharing" per se. "Somebody has to be in charge," wrote one Oregonian. Others assured me that for every wife responsible there was a separate but equal husband-one.

The most remarkable of these letters came from a Handy Husband from Virginia who filled two pages with the list of things he did, for which his wife had "damn well better say thank you." It included car-care, weather-stripping, plumbing, electrical wiring, insulation, floor-sanding, and, get this, the building of a backyard swimming pool.

I assured him that I thought there was nothing wrong with the Division of Labor Marriage Concept. Although in most homes the hubby gets changed more often than the car oil, he surely deserved an exemption. Then I asked him if he had a brother of marrying age.

The second set of men were the Economic Equity theorists. These tended to be dollar-for-dollar men, who tallied up the balance sheets of their lives according to finances. The most vivid Eco-Husband from California put it this way, "I earn 75 percent of our family income. If I did 50 percent of the housework, that I would be contributing 62 percent. This is, upfar, as long as I am the chief earner, my wife should be chief homemaker."

I am sure that his household hears money talking, in other equally charming ways.

Another large group of Heard-From Husbands felt that the Ungrateful Wives of the World had upped the ante on them. One man from Massachusetts was depressed when I read my column because "I know that the best I will ever be is helpful." Another from Illinois heaved, "It has taken me 15 years to become helpful and now you are saying that this isn't enough? I give up." A dozen or so wrote, like the man from Connecticut, "I recognize myself...ugh."

But the response that intrigued me the most came from both husbands and wives and had to do with the much subtler problems of shifting responsibilities. They had to do with power—the taking of and letting go of.

One long hilarious letter came from a Minnesota wife of 17 years and read: "Four years ago my husband and I sat down and figured out a way to share. The first week he took charge of all the food and I couldn't believe it. He was doing it all wrong, which is to say that he wasn't doing it my way."

She went on at length to chronicle his "wrong's"—like cooking brussels sprouts, a heinous crime in itself, and not doing the dishes until after he had relaxed with coffee.

When she confronted him with the list, "He told me that if he was going to cook and clean, he was going to do it his way and I had better butt out. I never realized how much I had invested in controlling these things and how much power I had over the basics of life. It's taken me a long time to learn how to share."

A man who might have been her husband except for the fact that he was from Atlanta, told his tale: "When my son was born, I had every intention of taking half-time care of him. But when I would change his diapers, my wife would come along and redo the pins. When I would feed him at night, she would go into the room after I was through and check on him. When I dressed him, she would say that his clothes didn't match.

I decided that I had only two options: to get into a continual power struggle over the children or to let her take charge. I am now a 'Helpful Husband.' The irony is that I am writing to you because my wife put your article on my plate at breakfast this morning."

My various pen pals taught me that there is hardly an issue that goes deeper into our daily lives than who yields the vacuum cleaner. But they also reminded me of something else: Sharing isn't just learning a new role. It's also letting go of the old one. It's not all cut and grateul wife, but it does require a graceful one.

Study says TMI neared meltdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A seven-month independent investigation concluded Thursday that the nation's worst nuclear accident last year at Three Mile Island came within 30 to 60 minutes of a dreaded core meltdown.

But technical analyses filed in support of the report concluded a meltdown probably would not have been a major disaster.

The $3 million report prepared by Washington attorney Mitchell Rogovin and a team of consultants concluded the main deficiencies with nuclear safety "are not hardware problems" and will be solved "only by fundamental changes in the industry and the NRC."

It recommended converting the Nuclear Regulatory Commission into an executive agency with a single chief; the possible closing of reactors for which adequate evacuation plans cannot be made; "a complete overhaul" of reactor licensing; standardization of reactor components; and creation of a consortium to operate atomic plants for utilities lacking the needed skills.

But perhaps its most spectacular finding contradicted often-repeated industry assessments that a potentially disastrous meltdown was never really close at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania.

A meltdown occurs when the nuclear fuel rods in a reactor's core lose their supply of coolant water and heat up beyond the melting point of uranium from energy generated by radioactive decay.

Scientists have nicknamed the effect "the China Syndrome" because the molten core could possibly begin burning uncontrollably into the earth, toward China.

"Engineering calculations performed during our investigation indicate that on the morning of March 28, before anyone appreciated the seriousness of the situation, Three Mile Island came close to being the accident we had been told by many in the industry could not happen: a core meltdown," said the 183-page report commissioned by the NRC.

It said that "within 30 to 60 minutes a substantial amount of the reactor fuel would have begun to melt down, requiring a massive evacuation, had an operator not blocked a leaking valve early in the accident."

But less than earlier

Oil profits up in 4th quarter

United Press International Gulf Oil Corp. Thursday reported a 68 percent rise in 1979 earnings and defended its profits as neither "unreasonable nor obscene."

Texaco Inc. announced a 166 percent jump in earnings last year and boosted its quarterly dividend. Ashland Oil, ranked 15th among U.S. oil companies, reported its earnings for the first quarter ended Dec. 31 rose 49 percent to $75.9 million, or $2.41 a share, from $50.7 million, or $1.33 a share, a year earlier. Revenues were up 34 percent to $1.29 billion from $1.10 billion.

Mobil Corp., Union Oil Co. of California and Getty Oil Co. Wednesday showed profits gains ranging from 31 percent to 83 percent — well below the dramatic earnings increases posted by some oil industry giants earlier this year.

Gulf Chairman Jerry McNece told a news conference in Pittsburgh that the nation's fifth largest oil company earned $1.32 billion, or $6.78 a share, versus $765 million, or $4.03 a share, in 1978. Revenues for 1979 increased 30 percent to $26.1 billion from $20 billion the previous year. Gulf's domestic earnings, which rose 46 percent to $722 million, accounted for 55 percent of its overall profits last year. Gulf's U.S. profits from each gallon of refined petroleum products and natural gas climbed to 2.7 cents in 1979 from 2 cents the previous year.

McNece said Gulf's profit performance was neither "unreasonable nor obscene," he emphasized that he did not mean to belittle the earnings. "I am proud of our record, but that record must be considered in the context of what other companies earn," McNece said.

But agree to tax break

Windfall conferees stymied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House negotiators tentatively agreed to accept a Senate-approved income tax break designed to help people with modest incomes, congressional sources said Thursday.

The provision — unrelated to but still part of the windfall profits tax bill — is under consideration in a House-Senate conference committee.

It would allow individuals to exclude $201 in combined interest and dividends from their federal income tax. Couples filing joint returns would be allowed to exclude $402 in interest and dividends when totaling up their gross income.

The exclusion would be effective starting in the 1981 tax year. Treasury officials said it would cost the government $27 billion in revenues between 1981 and 1990.

Congressional sources said House negotiators agreed informally to accept the Senate measure during a caucus and would formally approve the measure later.

The negotiators said, however, they are stymied on the windfall bill itself and they asked staff experts to suggest compromises.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said the House delegation is heads is not sympathetic to the massive tax credits the Senate favors for individuals and corporations that conserve energy.

Ullman, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, told Sen. Russell Long, D-La., who heads the Senate Finance Committee, that House negotiators are not willing to compromise now on the termination date of the windfall tax on oil companies.

Airlines up fares

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — World airlines agreed Thursday to raise passenger fares and freight rates between five and 13 percent to compensate for the latest round of price hikes, the International Air Transport Association said.

The new rates, which vary according to route, geographical location and type of ticket, are subject to government approval.

Pirate divers strike it rich, loot sunken ship of millions

FRESHWATER, Isle of Wight (UPI) — Pirate divers may have been responsible for the disappearance of more than $2.5 million worth of new bank notes from the cabin of a sunken freighter off the British coast, authorities said Thursday.

The missing money, printed in England, was destined for the Indian Ocean fisherman of the Seychelles. It was supposed to be wrapped in plastic and hidden in 12 metal trunks aboard a Greek freighter that sank in November.

But when divers hired by the British crown finally reached the ship in 100 feet of water this month, they found the trunks filled with mints, jelly beans and candy.

"They were told to find 12 packing crates, each weighing about one and a half hundredweight," said Andrew Smith, owner of the charter boat that brought the divers to the scene 30 miles west of the Isle of Wight.

"The men were given a map of the ship. The boxes were packed between two banks in the hospital cabin on the captain's deck."

Smith said the divers had to smash a window to reach the trunks. Once inside, the divers noticed the cabin door already had been damaged.

Authorities said Thursday they were uncertain whether the door was hacked in by pirate divers who stole the money or whether it was damaged in the collision with a German ship that led to the freighter's sinking.

The money was put aboard the 10,715-ton freighter Aetolian Sky in November for shipment to the Seychelles. The freighter was carrying a cargo of chemicals in canisters and the money was brought aboard in secret, officials said.

"We were informed before Christmas, but we did not realize just how serious it was," said Bernard Loustaun-Latime, the Seychelles high commissioner. "I personally didn't know then that the money was on the move, but the Seychelles monetary did."

Bad weather hampered recovery operations for two months after the collision. During that time, British authorities warned fishermen to avoid the area because of danger from leaking chemicals.

But shortly before the futile recovery operations this month, police in coastal Dorset, England, said a fisherman tried to cash four 100 rupee notes at a bank. The fisherman told officers he found the notes, worth about $16 each, in a lobster trap.

"I heard that a fisherman had picked up a few notes in the water, but we are treating that with caution," said a Seychelles government spokesman. "Everything will be done to make the notes obsolete as quickly as possible."

PAT CARROLL — one-woman show

Mayor ready for opening of auto show

By United Press International WOULD YOU BUY...

New York Mayor Ed Koch is all set to open the New York Auto Show Saturday — and well he might. The big moneymaker is calculated to bring around $40 million into the eternally strapped Big Apple — and not just in terms of tourism. With the exception of one or two exotic privately owned vehicles, every car on the floor of the Coliseum is for sale — and every year, a good many of them are sold. After all, it's just about every dealership in the world under one roof.

WHEN DID YOU CALL?

Tom T. Hall had a belfry of politics. He'd just finished a campaign blitz in Iowa for President Carter and, says said Dido, "He said they shook every hand and kissed every baby and he was dog tired." He was all set to rest up when the phone rang. It was Rosalynn Carter, inviting the Hall to spend Wednesday night at the White House. Said she, "Sybil and Billy will be here and we thought it would be fun to have some informal gular pickin' upstairs."

GREATEST AGENT

Muhammad Ali is off to India, to see the Taj Mahal and float like a butterfly again on behalf of Indian charities. The ex-champion will fight three exhibition bouts — in New Delhi, Bombay and Calcutta — with former heavyweight contender Jimmy Ellis. He'll also star in a British-made television film — "India Through All's Eyes." But his first move will be to lay a wreath at the Rajghat — a marble slab dedicated to Mahandas Gandhi and engraved with his last words — "Oh God."

ROAD IS A ROAD

Pat Carroll's one-woman show, "Gertrude Stein Gertrude Stein Gertrude Stein" (remember "Rose is a rose is a rose"), has been such a hit on Broadway that it may be the first time I tried out a show in New York before I took it on the road.

IDENTITY CRISIS

Sometimes the role dominates the actor — especially when the role is that of Popeye's insatiable burger-eating sidekick, Wimpy. Says Paul Dooley — who's playing Wimpy to Robin Williams' Popeye in the new film "Milk" — "I've had to dye my hair blonde, get a crew cut and add padding to my clothing... I don't know if I look like Wimpy, but I sure don't look like Paul Dooley."

CAT'S MEOWH!

When Lavton, Okla., Radio Station KSWO promoted its new bumper stickers by saying, "Stick 'em on cats, then pull them off and use 'em as cats now!" It was a joke. But when cats started turning up with stickers, it was the ASPCA that did the howling. Says disc jockey Randy Jordan, "I had no idea people would really do it... I guess if someone saw a bumper sticker that said 'Go Jump in the lake,' some crazy person would do that, too." The spot is off the air.

Sagittarians advised to forget socializing, finish important tasks

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Don't do anything that is drastic or make sudden and dramatic changes for they would not be to your best interests right now. Be steadfast in carrying through with practical plans.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you do not stick to proven methods, your plans will often backfire. Forget emotion when practical affairs are concerned.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to use tact with associates since they are in an irritable mood. Keep business you have made to others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use common sense in handling problems otherwise you get into further trouble. Be patient with a family tie who is having problems.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't get involved in a quarrel between a loved one and a good friend. Keep an eye on your purse, wallet.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take care you do not argue with others, whether at home or in business. Listen carefully to what bigwigs have to say.

VRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get your ideas on a practical, workable basis before presenting them to higher-ups. Show you are an efficient person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Financial affairs can prove annoying but be sure to take care of them efficiently. Not a good day to consult with an adviser who is too busy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure you handle those matters with associates that appear unimportant but are actually vital. Get involved in a community matter that could affect you personally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Forget about socializing and finish important tasks. Be more understanding with associates and gain cooperation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get rid of stumbling blocks in the path of your progress. Take a loved one's irritable mood in your stride.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take no risks with security you now enjoy and get fundamental affairs in better order. A family tie could be irritated with you.

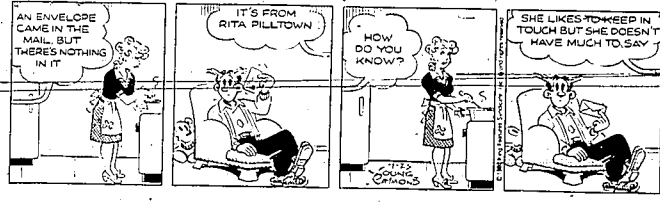

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure to help a friend who has a problem. You may be introduced to some charming people who offer interesting opportunities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...or she will be a born trouble shooter. Teach good morals, ethics and do not discipline too severely, but intelligently.

What's what

First police officers were drafted citizens

First police officers were plain citizens drafted into nightwatch duty. In fact, the word "police" comes from the Greek word for citizens. This country's first police department likewise was a citizens' brigade, set up in Boston in 1834. The routine recurs in cycles. There were the vigilantes in the mid-1800s. Then the posse of the old West. In most recent years, citizens band radio groups have got together to patrol their own neighborhoods. Both the responsibility and the irresponsibility in varying wind up back in the hands of the citizens, so it seems.

Why do you suppose the legislators of Wyoming passed a law that makes it illegal there to photograph rabbits between the months of January through April without an official permit?

Will you buy the American Medical Association's claim that you have to lose 70 percent of your hair before the thinning is even noticeable?

EMBALMING

Q. What was the secret to the embalming process in old Egypt?

A. Hot climate, sterile sand. No real secret. Their mummification rituals were elaborate. But for show, mostly. Bodies buried in Egypt's sand even without embalming have remained intact. Likewise, bodies buried in the sands of the south-western United States.

Q. Has the U. S. Postal Service ever lowered postage rates?

A. Once. In 1919. First-class rate was boosted in 1917 from two to three cents as a World War I measure. It dropped back to two cents a couple of years later, then any change thereafter was upwards.

LOVE AND WAR

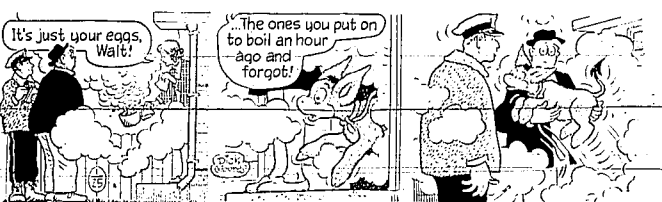

A wife who is not as smart as her husband is more likely to have a happy marriage than a wife who is brighter than her husband. Such is the claim of Duke University researchers. They do not explain why, and our Love and War man can only theorize: Men who find out they're not as intelligent as their wives helplessly tend to defend themselves at every opportunity in minor matters. To seek revenge, in other words.

In trying to explain just about everything, Wila Cather wrote: "The end is nothing, the road is all."

Symposium formed in Magic Valley

TWIN FALLS — Formation of the Snake River Symposium for the Magic Valley area was announced Thursday by Miriam Breckenridge of Twin Falls. She said the first meeting is scheduled for April at the College of Southern Idaho with the subject for discussion to be announced.

The college is sponsoring the symposium, which she defined as "a meeting to present a particular subject with one or more speakers and time for free interchange of ideas."

Names for the symposium were decided at a planning meeting this week at the home of Norma Lovvén. The group discussed ways to emphasize that the symposium meetings will be for all interested persons in southern Idaho.

Efforts are being made to contact civic minded persons from Burley and Rupert to Gooding and north to the Wood River Valley, Breckenridge said.

Anyone interested in participating or suggesting subjects for discussion is urged to contact Benoit at 733-0209.

Residents are asked to contribute designs for a logo for the symposium.

"We would like the logo to reflect the idea of the meeting of people from throughout Magic Valley to exchange ideas and become informed on a given subject," Breckenridge said.

The logos should be submitted by Feb. 29 to Benoit or Breckenridge, 733-7830.

As soon as plans are finalized, the subject for the first meeting will be announced.

Breckenridge said a symposium differs from a Town Hall format in that there are several speakers and time planned for audience participation and socializing by participants.

Leaders for each area of Magic Valley who will assist in plans for the symposium future meetings will be announced soon, she said.

Dear Abby

Good advice for parents

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© The Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR READERS: Every week I receive more newly published books than I can list, much less read. But one little paperback caught my eye: "Parenthood Without Hassles — Well, Almost," by Dr. Henry Leman.

It was dedicated to "My high school counselor, who told me, 'Leman, with your disciplinary record and grades in this school, I couldn't get you into reform school.'"

Being one who appreciates humor, I read on and found it to be well worth reading. With the author's permission, I quote:

"A CHILD'S TEN COMMANDMENTS TO PARENTS:

- 1) My eyes are small; please don't expect perfection whenever I make a bed, draw a picture, or throw a ball. My legs are short; please slow down so that I can keep up with you.
- 2) My eyes have not seen the world as yours have; please let me explore safely; don't restrict me unnecessarily.
- 3) Homework will always be there. I'm only little for such a short time — please take time to explain things to me about this wonderful world, and do so willingly.
- 4) My feelings are tender; please be sensitive to my needs; don't nag me all day long. (You wouldn't want to be nagged for your inquisitiveness.) Treat me as you would like to be treated.
- 5) I am a special gift from God; please treasure me as God intended you to do, holding me accountable for my actions, giving me guidelines to live by, and disciplining me in a loving manner.
- 6) I need your encouragement, but not your praise, to grow. Please go easy on the criticism; remember, you can criticize the things I do without criticizing me.
- 7) Please give me the freedom to make decisions concerning myself. Permit me to fail, so that I can learn from my mistakes. Then someday I'll be prepared to make the kind of decisions life requires of me.
- 8) Please don't do things over for me. Somehow that makes me feel that my efforts didn't quite measure up to your expectations. I know it's hard, but please don't try to compare me with my brother or my sister.
- 9) Please don't be afraid to leave for a weekend together. Kids need vacations from parents, just as parents need vacations from kids. Besides, it's a great way to show us kids that your marriage is very special.
- 10) Please take me to Sunday school and church regularly, setting a good example for me to follow. I enjoy learning more about God."

DEAR ABBY: I recently visited our daughter who has a 2-month-old baby. I took some pictures of the baby; one showed the mother bathing the baby.

After returning home I took the pictures to a longtime friend and neighbor woman who has never had any children. She looked at the picture of the baby being bathed and said, "You should not be showing this around. It is pornography!"

Abby, I was shocked, and told her so. How can a picture of a naked baby be pornography? An innocent little baby's body is a beautiful sight, and there is nothing dirty or pornographic about it.

Am I wrong? Of course such a picture really be considered pornography?

SHOCKED AND CONFUSED

DEAR SHOCKED: Pornography is the depiction of erotic behavior, intending to cause sexual excitement. If a picture of a 2-month-old baby being bathed created that kind of response in your friend, the "pornography" is in HER mind.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (23 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby; 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

At Wit's End She trained daughter too well

By ERMA BOMBECK
© Field Enterprises, Inc.

When my daughter was born I cannot tell you how choked with emotion I became. As she lay cradled in my arms, her little fingers wrapped around mine, I leaned over and whispered in her ear, "At last, I have given birth to my very own baby sitter."

The ripening of a sitter didn't happen overnight. There were days of preparation. She would stand at my right hand and observe as I heated soup, adjusted the television dials and readied her brothers for bed.

Like a little sponge she would soak up my expertise on how to referee a disagreement when to give in to demands and how to enforce three-hour naps.

Then one night, two days before New Year's Eve, when she was in her 13th year, I sat her down and said, "Do you feel ready to assume the responsibility for baby-sitting?" She nodded. "I know you've been observing Mommy for all these years and I have made it look easy, but I'd like to lay on you a few of the basic crises that you might be faced with while baby-sitting. Ready? First, tell me, what would you do if a child refused to go to bed?"

"I would threaten to eat him!" she said coolly.

"Very good—now, how much liquid do you give a child under six before going to bed?"

"When they complain of being thirsty, you mist the plants on their window sill and tell them to inhale deeply."

"Right. Now, here's a toughie. What do you do when one of your charges pushes a coin up his nose?"

"What denomination is it?"

"A dime."

"For a dime," she said, "I wouldn't lose my place in the book I'm reading. For a quarter, I'd get out the vacuum sweeper and suck it out."

There was no doubt about it. The kid was a pro. It had been a long period of hiring baby sitters, stocking the refrigerator, calling until my finger felt off, breaking in a new one every time we moved and worrying every time I was at a party and the hostess said, "It's the sitter." But it was all behind me now: That my own live-in-sitter—

"I think you're ready to sit," I said, "but don't worry. For your first time, we won't be out too late."

My daughter looked at me. "You got it wrong. I'm sitting for the Thompsons' kids on New Year's Eve."

Maybe I taught her too much.

Artificial blood used cautiously

LOS ANGELES — In the mid-1960s, a University of Cincinnati researcher discovered that mice could survive for hours completely immersed in a liquid that they breathed like air.

Directly descendants of that liquid—a synthetic chemical called fluorocarbon—are the principal ingredients in artificial blood, a substitute for natural blood that recently has gained wide publicity. It was used for two transfusions in Santa Ana, Calif., the last week in November.

Fluorocarbons, it is now known, have the capacity to carry three times more oxygen than red blood cells and 20 times more than plasma or salt water.

Although several Americans have been working for 14 years at perfecting an artificial blood that would be both safe and effective, the Japanese have taken the limelight by being the first to use it in humans.

Last April, a 70-year-old Japanese who was bleeding to death after cancer surgery became the first patient to receive artificial blood when the doctors could not immediately find enough of his rare blood type for transfusions.

Since then, 54 more patients in Japan and three in the United States have received blood substitute. One death has been reported in the United States.

In this country the product is being supplied by a South Pasadena, Calif., firm, Alpha Therapeutics, that is a subsidiary of the Japanese manufacturer, Green Cross Pharmaceutical Co.

Besides their oxygen-carrying capacity, fluorocarbons are considered ideal for biological purposes because they are inert—they do not break down in the body but instead are excreted intact.

The medical profession—surgeons in particular—sees a bright future for artificial blood, provided that some unanswered questions about its safety can be resolved.

Chief among the potential advantages are its long shelf life—perhaps three years compared to three weeks for human blood—and its ready availability.

Another important advantage is that the risk of transfusion hepatitis—a very serious problem for thousands of patients who receive blood transfusions—would not be present.

In addition to its potential for Jehovah's Witnesses, a religious group that refuses blood transfusions because it believes the Bible forbids them—even transfusions of the patient's own blood that has been drawn earlier—several other potential applications are seen.

These include stockpiling artificial blood for national emergencies, using it in undeveloped countries that have no blood banks, and special applications that take advantage of the small size of the fluorocarbon molecule.

The American Red Cross, however, recently expressed some concern that the public may get the impression from publicity about artificial blood, that it no longer is necessary to donate blood.

The joint effort was coordinated by Hansen and ended when four Americans were rescued from their sinking 35-foot yacht about 120 miles from Hong Kong in the stormy South China Sea. The four were on the yacht from Hong Kong to Guam when their boat, the Gambil, was capsized by a huge wave. After righting their vessel, they sent out a mayday call that was received in Hong Kong. A Royal Hong-Kong aircraft and two merchant vessels joined the search along with a U.S.

where quality comes first

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States provided $27 million last year to help victims of disasters that claimed 23,000 lives and affected 11 million people in 23 countries, the Agency for International Development reports.

AID, an agency of the State Department, also announced a $130 million program to provide some 550,000 metric tons of wheat and other commodities to help the African nation of Sudan meet serious food shortages.

Its disaster assistance report said the United States since 1961 has provided $1.8 billion in aid to victims of disasters that have killed more than 3.7 million people and affected another 560 million in 11 nations.

In 1979, the United States helped victims of such disasters as earthquakes, civil strife, floods, droughts, famine, hurricanes, epidemics and volcano eruptions in Latin America, Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

The single most costly catastrophe last year was the civil war in Nicaragua where about 20,000 people were killed and another 1 million affected by fighting that resulted in the overthrow of the Anastasio Somoza regime, the report said.

Hurricanes David and Frederic, which struck the Caribbean last year, killed 1,380 people in the Dominican Republic and 38 persons on the island of Dominica.

In a separate report, AID said the United States increased its total economic assistance to Latin America by 24 percent in 1979 to $41.5 million for 19 countries.

The figure for Latin America and the Caribbean, including regional economic development programs, topped by nearly $84 million the U.S. assistance total for fiscal 1978.

The economic aid figure for Latin America includes $246.6 million in loans and grants and $18.8 million in food and other commodities provided under the Food for Peace program.

It also includes $58.9 million to finance Peace Corps operations, international business development programs, the Inter-American Highway and the Inter-American Foundation.

The three countries receiving the largest amounts of assistance were Peru, $62.5 million, the Dominican Republic, $47.9 million, and Bolivia, $47.7 million.

Too confident drivers cause winter crashes

CHICAGO (UPI) — Overconfidence is a major factor in winter driving accidents, says an executive of the Safe Winter Driving League.

Ross G. Wilcox says most motorists, for example, drive far too fast on snow-packed and icy roads for the traction that actually is available. Wilcox says tests by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Habits have shown braking distances at a speed of only 20 mph can be as much as 200 feet, or about 15 car lengths, under normal, dry pavement conditions, a car can stop in about 150 feet from a speed of 55 mph, he adds.

Wilcox suggests drivers test road conditions for slipperiness by trying the brakes or gunning the engine momentarily to see if the wheels skid or spin. If the car tends to skid or fishtail, "it's time to slow way down and do all maneuvering — steering, braking and accelerating — with a delicate touch."

Gold steadies in Europe, falters again in New York

By United Press International
Gold steadied around the $700 level and the dollar held firm in Europe Thursday in reaction to President Carter's tough stance on the Middle East.

Gold fell in New York, reflecting continued liquidation of "paper" gold.

In Zurich, gold rose $20 to close at $690 an ounce. In London gold closed at $705 an ounce, up $5 from Wednesday.

In New York gold closed at $687 an ounce, up from $660 Wednesday. The dollar finished mixed, but held firm overall. A Paris dealer said there still was some nervousness over the possibility of further Soviet moves, and Carter's firm pledge strengthened the dollar.

"The lower New York price (compared with Europe) reflects continued liquidation because of restrictions on trading by the U.S. commodities authorities," a key New York trader said. "Some margin traders, in rally so they won't have to liquidate." These speculators buy futures contracts with a relatively small cash outlay, hoping to sell at a profit.

"Once the undercapitalized players are squeezed out, the market will be free to find a level," he said.

Some dealers claim that demand for physical gold remains good, and the precipitous drop reflects only "paper gold" losses.

Carter's pledge to use military force if necessary to repel any Soviet thrust in the Middle East generally was favorably received.

"It is extremely positive and should add stability to the metals market," said R. Leslie Deak, vice president of Deak Perera Bullion and Currency Firm. "It is assumed the Russian will maintain intelligence and halt any further aggression."

Deak said a good two-way market is developing. "People are willing to sell and buyers are emerging who were scooped off at the $800-plus prices."

Hunt considers new silver offer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nelson Bunker Hunt, of the Texas family that has been in the physical silver business since the 1950s, says he has no plans at this time.

The Dallas billionaire told Commodity News Service, that on Tuesday he had "offered to buy up to 5 million ounces at $40 an ounce, deliverable in Zurich, New York, or London from anybody who has any silver that's deliverable."

Hunt said he made the offer because New York prices were so out of line with London prices and he was prepared to make the offer again "if it gets where it is attractive."

Hunt said he did not buy the silver on Tuesday because "we did not get any offers until after the market closed."

A random survey of silver traders in New York revealed that most were unaware of the offer.

Cut your taxes — 13 Try lump sum pensions

(13th in a Series) by RAY DECRAME
At retirement time, many employees have an option of receiving a lump-sum distribution from their pension plan instead of a monthly pension check for life.

This type of lump-sum can also be received when a pension or profit-sharing plan is terminated by the employer. The one-time payment can be very sizable amounts well in excess of $100,000 and not uncommon for high-salaried employees with long service.

If the employee who receives such a check starts to use the money for investments or the purchase of a retirement home, for example — there would be a substantial income tax penalty.

But if the recipient of the lump-sum distribution has other sources of income and does not have to use any part of the distribution for several years, it has a good potential for financial security in retirement of an Individual Retirement Account. Then the full amount of the distribution is contributed to the account in what is known as a "rollover contribution."

Another employee received a distribution of $125,000 from his company's profit-sharing plan on his 65th birthday. Instead of collecting a pension, the employee plans to contribute to work until he is 70.

The $125,000 was rolled over into an IRA. This sheltered it from tax by the time he is 70, his fund will have grown to about $200,000.

Under IRA rules, for each year in which an account holder reaches age 70½, withdrawals must begin. The rate of withdrawal must be over the individual's life expectancy or the individual and his spouse.

At age 70 a male has a life expectancy of 12 years. At that rate, one-twelfth of the total in his IRA account must be withdrawn in that first year. Whatever amount is withdrawn is taxable that year.

The balance in the account continues to earn interest. In the second year 1/11th of the remaining fund must be withdrawn.

Because of continued earned interest, each year's payout is larger than the year before. The retirement pool acts like a bucket that refills to be emptied. In the 12th year whatever remains in the account must be withdrawn.

Church endorses China trade bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Wednesday said conferring "most favored nation" status on China would open doors to further trade markets for the Pacific Northwest as well as the United States.

The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee also said giving China such status also would allow trade exchanges for that country's energy resources.

"The establishment of full economic relations with China will open up a huge potential market to American exporters, for both agricultural products and technical knowledge," Church said during a Senate debate on the resolution to extend "most favored nation" status to China.

"Future commerce with China will be of particular importance to Idaho, as well as the entire Northwest because that region will become a major shipping point for American goods and a major supplier of agricultural products."

He said the Senate is expected to complete action on the resolution to extend full economic relations to China later this week.

Gem firm earnings increase

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade Corp. reports income for 1979 topped earnings for the previous year.

The advance was a result of strong markets for the company's paper products mix, benefits from previous capital spending and lower effective tax rates.

The company announced income for 1979 of $174,920,000 or $5.52 per share, an increase from the previous year's earnings, that were $135,700,000 or $5.02 per share before a net extraordinary charge of $2,900,000 or 11 cents a share.

Sales in 1979 were worth $2,916,610,000, the company announced, compared with $2,573,110,000 the previous year.

Company officials said fourth-quarter earnings were higher in 1979 because of a substantial increase in income from paper and related operations, that surpassed third-quarter earnings and were far above the strike-impacted results of 1978's fourth quarter.

Fourth-quarter income was down for building materials and related business due to a decline in the home building industry, officials said.

The company's effective tax rate for 1979 was 21.5 percent. Investment tax credits, a higher proportion of timber capital gains income and the reduction in federal income tax rates were largely responsible for a decrease from the 1979 rate of 37.07 percent.

"Our paper business had favorable markets throughout the year, enabling our mills to operate at or near capacity," said John B. Ferry, board chairman and chief executive officer of the Boise-based corporation. Ferry said high demand exceeded enough pressure on prices to help maintain the company's profit margin. He said the company's packaging and office products operations also performed well during the year.

He said the homebuilding market continued moderately higher level through the first three quarters before dropping off sharply later in the year. The slump created a marked earnings decline for the company's building materials and related businesses.

Fourth quarter market conditions resulted in temporary curtailments within some of the company's wood products manufacturing operations. The market drop followed action by the Federal Reserve Board to lighten credit by boosting interest rates, resulting in a drop in housing starts nationally to 1.74 million from 2.02 million the previous year.

"In 1980, our aggressive capital spending will continue at approximately last year's level," Ferry said.

Carter message sparks stock advance

By FRANK W. SULLSBER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK Stocks without late profit taking Tuesday pushed prices to a 3 1/2-month high in heavy trading as investors showed approval of President Carter's proposals to deal with possible Soviet aggression in the Near East.

Brokers said stocks cooled at the end as gold prices, which have gyrated wildly between $350 and $625 this week, retreated slightly on international exchanges amid uncertainties surrounding Afghanistan and Iran.

As a result, the Dow Jones industrial average up more than 7 points in the morning after climbing 11.35 points, struggled to gain 2.30 points to 879.95. That still was the highest close since it finished at 884.04 on Oct. 8.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.19 to 66.32 and the price of a share of Dow Jones industrial average declined, 880 to 664, amid advances topped by 57,700,658 traded shares.

Analysts said Carter's State of the Union speech Wednesday night sparked early buying.

Defense and oil issues attracted considerable investor attention. Washington Wall Street believes Carter will step up military spending. Some observers said increased defense spending would offset recessionary trends and add to inflation.

Foreign traders and domestic institutions have been buying stocks, precious metals and natural resources in anticipation of heightened tensions between Washington and Iran.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 63,876,056 shares, compared with 55,700,658 traded Wednesday.

Woodall retains optimism despite 1% binds

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The man who will preside over the city of Twin Falls as it faces the initial blows of the 1 percent initiative says he views the next two years with "cautious optimism."

Mayor Hank Woodall, who took office earlier this month, will guide the City Council as it completes modifications on the city's sewerage treatment plant, select a new city manager, and determine whether a solid waste incineration plant is viable.

But those projects will take a back seat to actions taken by the Legislature this year. Just how the Legislature deals with the 1 percent will mean the difference, Woodall said, adding that a status quo at City Hall or a funding loss that could result in the loss of as many as 40 city employees.

Woodall said he favors spreading cuts across city departments instead of focusing cuts on specific departments. Just where those cuts are made won't be determined until the council begins preparing the city's budget for next year, he said.

"We don't know yet. It will not be in the police or fire departments, unless there is some move to consolidate police and fire and double train people so they can serve as both," he said. The proposal has been tried in some cities in California, Woodall said, adding that such an approach does not necessarily mean a decrease in the level of service.

Woodall said he does not plan to implant his personal stamp on the city, adding he has formulated few goals outside of completing city projects. But his tenure marks the beginning of a new City Council and perhaps a new era for the city with the selection of a new city manager.

Woodall added his term will see few controversial city projects such as a 1979 local improvement district which ignited the recent election primarily. The city's uncertain financial picture will hinder most efforts for most city-funded improvement projects, he said.

Those factors present an opportunity as a time for reconciling divisions in the community that erupted in two special elections in 1979, Woodall said.

Woodall added he plans to meet with many of the people who spearheaded movements in those two elections and will try to involve them into the city programs.

"I think they felt like they were being roughly treated and, if they felt that way, we'd like to talk it out and see if we can get them to change their thinking or get us to amend ours slightly to bring them back into the fold."

Woodall, who ran for mayor on a platform calling for City Council unity, said he believes the unity now exists. One reason for this is former Mayor Leon Smith's retirement, ending a feud between Councilman Chris Talkington and Smith, Woodall added.

"I don't see anything bubbling underneath that's going to boil over. Everyone seems to be happy and content right now," he said.

Woodall said he plans a business-like approach to leading the council and will act more as a coordinator of council members' efforts. While not ruling out the need to persuade council members, Woodall said such action may be needed only in extreme circumstances.

Woodall's major priority will be completing sewerage treatment plant modifications. The project, expected to be done in three years, will be completed in a modular fashion in order to speed up the completion date, he said.

"I don't think it will be completely finished before my term is up," Woodall said. "But it will be so far down the road then that we can see daylight at the end of the tunnel."

The City Council's role will be to help arrive at deadlines for each of the project stages and then to enforce those deadlines, Woodall said. "It's our problem, our business, to put pressure on to assure those target dates are met."

Shopping mall suit is filed

Smallwood sues Clifford

Smallwood of Twin Falls filed suit damages in a suit filed in 5th District Court here against the owners and builders of Blue Lakes Shopping Mall.

Smallwood, who lives on Falls Avenue West, charges Daum Industries and their building contractor Nielsen and Co., changed the hydrologic layout of the Perrine Coulee during expansion of the shopping center.

As a result, Smallwood alleges, he has suffered damages including the cost of a new drain pipe and replacement of the former drain pipe serving his property. He says a small bridge on his property had to be raised to a higher level because of the coulee change. The contractor lost one timber during the rebuilding of the bridge. Smallwood charges, and replaced it with a defective one. He charges the reconstruction resulted in replacing a headgate in the coulee with a smaller one which does not allow for passage of debris and trash and that survey stakes on his property were destroyed during rerouting of the coulee.

Smallwood asks $15,000 damages for debris and trash that have piled up in the coulee because of the small headgate; $5,000 for replacement of the drain pipe, and $50 for the damaged bridge timber.

Commodities market extremes

Stockbroker says major price shifts are always corrected, which gold and silver leveling off probably is signalling

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Anytime a commodity goes to an extreme high or low, including gold and silver, it will correct, Walter Burdick, Twin Falls, commodities market specialist explained here Thursday.

Addressing the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club in a noon luncheon at the Turf Club, Burdick said these metals have been climbing at an unusual rate and are due for some leveling off. He said the decline in gold Thursday probably signals this correcting trend. Burdick is a partner in the Sinclair-Sturgill and Co. Inc. in Twin Falls.

"That's not to say it won't go higher," Burdick said. "In a few years, maybe 10 years if (gold) could reach the predicted $1,000 an ounce."

Burdick explained a number of trading terms telling his audience that contract buying is usually an agreement to take 5,000 units of a product. For example, he said, a wheat contract is 5,000 bushels.

Speaking of the current wheat outlook, he said there is no question but that the cancellation of the grain sale is a pointer in the slow-to-grain producers of this country.

"We had agreed to sell 25 million tons to Russia. We were geared in our production and pricing to sell that amount of wheat. In fact, we had hoped to increase it to 30 million tons and we had that available. Instead we have sold about eight million tons and have 17 million tons excess," Burdick said.

He said he is not too optimistic about changing the excess grain into alcohol production for gasoline.

For one thing, he said, the facilities for making the alcohol are not adequate, in spite of recommendations for using winery plants. For another, he said it appears it will cost just about a dollar in energy to produce a dollar's worth of gasoline, so there is not a great economic incentive.

Burdick said this past year the United States produced the largest corn crop in history, the largest soybean crop on record and the second largest wheat crop with a 7 percent increase in winter wheat and an increase expected in spring planting as well. Yet, prices are about $1 ahead of last year.

He said with the excess in unsold wheat originally destined for sale to Russia, it does not appear the price in the coming year will be to the grower's benefit.

Burdick said his firm has two divisions, one handling commodities, which is his division, and the other dealing in stocks.

He said there is a saying in the business: that when the school

Kelker quits flying those friendly skies

Walt Kelker decided not to press his luck. He has flown light aircraft for 50 years without a crash so he is hanging up his wings.

"I've been flying for 50 years without a crash so I'm hanging up my wings," Kelker said. "I have retired as an active licensed pilot. My initial flight alone was made Jan. 18, 1930. Last Wednesday I reached my 50th birthday. I decided to take my last official flight on Jan. 23, 1980. I made my last flight on the 50th anniversary of my first flight, although the date of taking my first flight was actually on Jan. 18, 1930. Among Kelker's claims to fame are being the first pilot to carry mail and to fly over Twin Falls, and the first to fly over Idaho to get to the States. Kelker is now 74 years old."

O'Connor death due to exposure

TWIN FALLS — An autopsy performed Thursday confirmed officers believe that Marie O'Connor, 84, of Filer, died of exposure.

She died Jan. 16. Twin Falls County Coroner Joyce Edwards said. The frozen bodies of Mrs. O'Connor and her son, John F. O'Connor, 58, were found Tuesday afternoon in their home northeast of Filer.

An autopsy Wednesday indicated the son died of strangulation after he choked on food particles.

"We believe when her son strangled, she probably attempted to go for help, either by getting to the road or to a neighbor's house about a quarter of a mile away," Edwards said.

Mrs. O'Connor used a wheel chair and a walker and officers said it appeared she fell on the front porch of the house and was unable to get up.

Magic, Pommerelle resorts put on market by Andersons

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

POMMERELLE — Woody Anderson, owner of Pommerelle and Magic Mountain ski resorts, confirmed reports Thursday that both resorts have been listed for sale.

He said he has listed the two ski areas for sale in the Wall Street Journal and has had "some response."

"We aren't overly anxious to sell and we are not offering them for sale because we have to, but it would be nice to take a few years or months off," Anderson said.

He and his wife, Sandy, purchased Pommerelle, south of Hansen, and Magic Mountain, south of Albion, in September 1973, following an accident on the resort's only chairlift at the time. Former owners were threatened with lawsuits and Forest Service regulations that threatened to close the resort.

Snow lovers face lots of fluff

TWIN FALLS — Ski resorts and snowmobile trails in the Sawtooth National Forest have an abundance of snow and good conditions for the weekend, forest officials report.

Although there has been no additional snow this week ski resorts say packed powder runs offer some of the best conditions of the season. Some snow is forecast for the weekend in most areas.

Snow depths reported by the various resorts include Pommerelle with 80 inches at the lodge; Magic Mountain 54 inches at the lodge and 53 inches at the top of runs. Mount Baldy has 58 inches at the top and 30 inches on the valley floor.

Cross country skiing conditions are also good with forest trails along the Wood River rounded and ready for weekend use. Those at Galena Lodge and Buserback Ranch are also groomed and skiing in off trail areas is also reported good.

The weekly Sawtooth report states snowmobiling conditions are excellent with a firm base and a light tapping of powder snow. In the South Hills, trails around Diamondfield and Jack Snowmobile area are groomed and open country is also good.

In the Little Smoky valley area, north of Fairfield and west of Stanley, trails are good with snow depths up to eight feet reported. Highway 21 is open to Cape Horn, 17 miles beyond Stanley.

Roads are snow covered and icy in spots, however.

Forest rangers say the recent heavy snows have forced big game down to lower elevations. They are urging all snowmobilers and cross country skiers to avoid wildlife wintering areas, even those which may not be posted.

The area around Fairfield is posted for closure to protect elk herds. The closure runs from Couch Summit to Big Smoky and Baumgardner and from Red Rock to Worswick Hot Springs. A similar closure is in effect from Champion Creek to Pole Creek on the east side of Sawtooth Valley and in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

Four new members will be appointed to fill vacancies on the commission.

Ken Green and Les Hopkins of Boise will be the featured speakers.

Audubon meeting tonight

TWIN FALLS — The Prairie Falcon Audubon Society will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Courtroom No. 202 of the Twin Falls Judicial Building.

The discussion at the meeting will center on what direction to take in opposing the injection of toxic chemicals and radioactive waste into the Snake River Plain Aquifer.

Don Balaban, Expressive, from the Audubon Society's Boulder, Colo. office, will attend the meeting. Those desiring more information about the group or the meeting can contact Ron Couch at 543-6522 or Jill Ruprecht at 733-9639.

Gillett decision due

BURLEY — The Cassia County School Board heard Ron Gillett's case for reinstatement Wednesday evening and will render its final decision within fifteen days.

On Jan. 14, 5th District Court Judge George Granata ruled the school board did not have to reinstate Gillett following his resignation in December. He did, however, leave the door open for Gillett to sue the district for damages if he is not reinstated.

Gillett, the head basketball coach at Burley High School, resigned after disagreeing over school policy concerning a practice session. He withdrew his resignation several days later, but Superintendent Bill Peckham had already accepted the resignation.

As in court last week, Peckham said Wednesday Gillett was guilty of insubordination, deserting responsibilities and violating the professional code of ethics. Gillett's attorney, Byron Johnson of the Idaho Education Association, said the hearing was unfair because the board had already decided what his conclusion would be. He said under Idaho statutes there are no grounds for firing someone for insubordination alone and that Gillett's "violation of ethics" was never spelled out.

As for the desertion of responsibilities, Johnson said missing two days of school did not mean there were sufficient grounds for an immediate discharge.

The board has 15 days to make its decision. Its next regularly scheduled meeting on Feb. 4 falls within that time period.

Study dissects Cassia, Burley services

BURLEY — Cassia County and the City of Burley are studying their services to the citizens: who uses and who pays.

In an attempt to stretch tax dollars, the two jurisdictions asked the Public Policy Research Center at ISU to conduct a services study.

By polling 525 residents in Cassia and Mindoka Counties the study estimates which services are actually used by the taxpayers who pay for them, and which tend to be subsidized services to persons from outside the city or county. A number of recreational facilities were investigated, including parks, boating facilities, swimming pool and various athletic facilities and programs.

County services included: the sanitary landfill operation, maintenance and improvement of the Howell Canyon Road, and medical care and welfare payments provided to indigent and low-income individuals.

City services included the cemetery, the airport and animal control.

Principal investigator Dr. Race D. Davies gave his preliminary report to the Burley City Council this week.

The city golf course was the only service paying its way through a fee system funded by users.

Unlike golf, swimming is not a self-sustaining activity. Burley or Forest revenues sold to all users do not come close to covering the cost of the facility. The pool took in over $2,355 in revenues in fiscal year 1978, but cost the city $36,068.

About 90 percent of the tennis court use is by non-Burley citizens while use is over half the users of the boat docks do not live in Burley. At the cemetery, 42 percent of the plots are owned by non-residents, while 99 percent of library users do not live in Burley.

Offstream storage recommended for Snake River in U of I study

MOSCOW (UPI) — A University of Idaho study of the Snake River drainage upstream from Weiser indicates offstream storage of spring runoff waters may be an answer to some of the water supply problems in that region and other parts of Idaho.

The study is being conducted by university engineers Calvin Warnick and Leroy Heitz under a $31,000 Army Corps of Engineers grant.

Warnick said Thursday offstream water storage sites would allow storage of water without having to flood out a beautiful trout stream or displace major development. They could also provide water for fish when irrigation and hydropower needs deplete the natural flow.

He said 137 potential offstream reservoir sites in the Foyette and Weiser drainages upstream of the Brownlee Reservoir have been studied. He said 70 potential storage sites will be further studied to ascertain economic feasibility, building reservoirs and the availability of water.

"Just because there is a stream next to a reservoir site doesn't mean the water is available," Warnick said. "The river water may already be used by irrigators."

As soon as the water availability has been determined, the researchers will study how the stored water can be used.

Warnick said offstream water storage facilities could be used to generate power. He said reservoir sites are chosen where there is a depression in the ground where it would be necessary to raise only a minimal dam and where there is a narrow necking point for outflow.

"Offstream reservoirs are probably not as good as onstream facilities for generating electricity but can still produce some power because the water in them is kept at a constant level," Warnick said.

Franklin chicken farm sues Pierce

BOISE (UPI) — A Franklin company, which had to destroy its entire chicken flock because of PCB contamination last summer, has filed suit in U.S. District Court here seeking more than $2.3 million in damages from the Montana company that sold contaminated feed.

Ritewood Eggs Inc. charges Pierce Packing Co., Billings, Mont., with breaching its implied and express warranty on the 64,881 tons of bone and meat meal it sold to the Franklin poultry farm in June, July and August of last year.

The lawsuit contends meal distributed by Pierce was guaranteed to be "safe and suitable" condition for chicken feed and "not containing any ingredients or contaminants which would be harmful to plaintiff's chickens or the eggs produced by those chickens or to human consumption of such chickens or eggs."

Ritewood says it was forced to destroy its entire chicken flock — 545,000 chickens valued at $205,717 — because they became contaminated with polychlorinated biphenyls, known as PCBs.

The company also says it destroyed 1,000 cases of eggs valued at $18,000. The cost of destroying the animals and eggs, the company claims, was $29,000.

Building director lured from Twin Falls

BURLEY — Cassia County School Board has hired the director of buildings and grounds for the Twin Falls School District.

William Russell, 36, was chosen from three persons interviewed by the board Monday night. The three had been selected from a total of 10 applicants.

The school board recently created the position in order to have a person responsible for directing maintenance of the district's schools, planning long-term maintenance goals, and supervising training of custodial staff. These responsibilities have been borne by the superintendent and business manager in the past.

Russell had been with Twin Falls County Schools since 1972, serving as head custodian of Twin Falls High School prior to becoming director of buildings and grounds in Twin Falls. He supervised maintenance at eight schools. Starting at an annual salary of $16,000, his half-year salary this year will be paid by reorganizing the maintenance budget.

House resolution calls for U.S. boycott

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted 386-12 Thursday to send the Kremlin "a message of contempt" and support President Carter's call to boycott the Summer Olympic Games unless they are moved from Moscow.

The U.S. Olympic Committee has warned that a U.S. boycott might destroy the Games. But House members were more concerned with the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and chose to act rapidly on this issue.

The resolution is "a message of contempt to the Soviet government for their barbaric act of invading Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Rumania, and Bulgaria, and for their Foreign Affairs Committee which drafted it.

The resolution, which does not have the force of law, urges:

—That the U.S. Olympic Committee honor Carter's request and propose to the International Olympic Committee the transfer or cancellation of the Games.

—That the International Olympic Committee adopt such a proposal.

—That if the IOC rejects the proposal, the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Olympic committees of other nations boycott the Moscow Games and hold their own alternative Games.

A similar measure is expected to receive rapid approval in the Senate.

The dozen "no" votes cast Thursday ranged the full political spectrum, from liberal Rep. Richard Nolan, D-Minn., to conservative Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif.

However, the only members to speak out against the resolution during floor debate were Reps. William Goodling, R-Pa., and Donald DeLuca, D-Calif.

Goodling said the House was allowing itself to be ruled by emotion and ran the risk of destroying the Games by moving so rapidly, while DeLuca said the United States was politicizing the Games over an issue that may or may not be a threat to world peace.

"What we are doing today is a hysterical reaction," said DeLuca.

However, almost all the debate was strongly in favor of the resolution and decidedly anti-Soviet in tone.

"It is time to stand up and say no to crime, no to the Soviet Union and no to the Olympic Games in Moscow," said Rep. John Buchanan, R-Va.

Carter said in his State of the Union address last week, "I have notified the Olympic Committee that if the Soviet invading forces in Afghanistan, neither the American people nor I will support sending an Olympic team to Moscow." Carter has set a Feb. 20 deadline for the Soviets to withdraw.

USOC President Robert Kane told the House Foreign Affairs Committee earlier Wednesday that it was "a foregone conclusion" that the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow will never be the same as the 1952 Eastern bloc countries would not enter the 1980 Olympics in Los Angeles.

However, Kane said he could not imagine that the American athletes or the U.S. Olympic Committee would have anything to do with the U.S. government. "What we are going to make, the national interest will come first."

USOC's convention must find answers to internal woes

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — With support for an American boycott of the 1980 Summer Olympics growing, the United States Olympic Committee meets this weekend to consider President Carter's recent recommendation that an American team not go to Moscow if Russian troops aren't pulled out of Afghanistan.

The committee's 65-member executive board will meet Saturday and Sunday to consider the administration's proposal that the Summer Games either be transferred or canceled if the Soviet Union does not remove its troops from Afghanistan within a month.

President Carter, in a nationwide address Wednesday night, reiterated his opposition to sending an American team to Moscow and the State Department said at least 20 nations would support the United States in the crisis.

The two-day meeting in Colorado Springs will be headed by Robert J. Kane, the president of the USOC, and executive director F. Don Miller. Kane testified before the House Foreign Affairs Committee this week and said a U.S. boycott of the Olympics would destroy the Games forever.

But, despite Kane's testimony, the House committee overwhelmingly approved a resolution favoring the transfer or cancellation of the Summer Olympics in Moscow or, if that fails, an American-led boycott.

The USOC is expected to draft a formal response to President Carter's stand. The same policy likely will be presented by the USOC to the International Olympic Committee, the ruling body of the Games, at a meeting of the two groups Feb. 8-10 at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Any action, by either the USOC or the IOC, is not expected until Carter makes a formal recommendation on or about Feb. 20. In the midst of the Winter Games at Lake Placid, N.Y.

"No statements concerning this issue will be forthcoming until these meetings Saturday and Sunday," a USOC spokesman said. "No decisions will be made until that time."

Kane and Miller have repeatedly said the authority governing the participation of American athletes in the Olympics rests with the USOC, not with the White House.

The USOC also has said it would poll American athletes to determine their feelings on the president's stand. The results of that survey may be released at this weekend's meeting.

It remains unclear how much input the athletes themselves will have in determining the president's eventual decision. In recent days, however, Carter's stand has drawn increasing support from various sectors.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls girls got balanced scoring and strong help off the bench to defeat the Jerome Tigers 47-25 Thursday night.

Karen Harr led the Bruins in scoring with 11 points. Suzie Shelby added nine more and Kelly Krahn and Cass Herbst each poured in eight to lift the Bruins to their ninth win against four losses.

"Jerome has improved quite a bit since we played them two weeks ago," said Bruin Coach Kathy Anderson. "They were cutting through our zone well, and the big girl underneath was putting some pressure on us that she didn't last time."

"We had some problems tonight despite the win. Our press wasn't working like I had hoped it would, and we still have that turnover problem."

Both teams had the turnover problem and the game took a defensive look early in the first period.

"They came out with a tough zone defense and forced their opponent to take low percentage shots," Anderson said.

Twin Falls broke the ice in the second quarter managing a slight 19-10 lead at halftime on Herbst's last-second shot from deep in the corner.

But the Tigers came out in the third quarter on fire, and poured in three unanswered buckets to narrow the Bruin lead to 19-16.

Shelby finally got Twin Falls on the board with a 22 left the period. Both teams traded baskets for the next two minutes but the Bruins came out of a shell and stretched the lead out to 29-20 by the end of the stanza.

Twin Falls' bench came out in the fourth and kept the momentum going as the Bruins pulled away to 33-point lead with 5:30 left on Shelby's three-point play. Shelby missed another attempt at a three-pointer 30 seconds later when she missed from the charity line.

Krahn added three points in the last seconds and Amy Henschel put in one more to tie the Bruin victory.

"Our bench played real well for us tonight. As a matter of fact, they have been performing well for us throughout the year. And that is good to know that you have some players on the bench who can come out and do the job when they are called on," Anderson said.

One thing the Bruins did Thursday they haven't been able to do all year is to play an aggressive game and keep it under control.

The Bruins still had the turnover problem on offense, but on defense they kept their hands to themselves.

The Bruins only sent the Tigers to the charity line twice and they could only capitalize with one point.

"That's a good thing to note," said Anderson. "We have had some problems keeping our aggressiveness under control and maybe we can keep it up until district."

Janice VanderVeit and her Jerome teammates faced tough Twin Falls defense and lost Thursday night.

The Bruins also picked up the layup win with a 23-25 victory over the younger Tigers.

The Bruin varsity will travel to Buhl tonight. Then they'll get their first look at district competition Saturday when they play host to the Malheur Spartans. Saturday's game is a make-up of one cancelled three weeks ago due to weather.

District play opens up for Twin Falls Jan. 31 when they entertain the winner of the Burley-Elmer game on Jan. 30.

During the season, Twin Falls was beaten by the Spartans in Malheur and split two games with Burley.

Jerome, VanderVeit 12, Marshall 10, Dyke 2, Winters 4, Robinson 3, Burley 11, DePue 4, Henschel 4, Neville 1.

Smith says the end of the Rams is tempered by the fact "I've got so many things going in Buhl right now. I've got a lot of things that I have to think about and several other things."

He said he had little idea of the salary differential and said that wouldn't be a particular criteria for his decision unless it was totally unbalanced one way or the other but he doubts there would be much.

More on the Indians. Athletic Director Jerri Engstok says Buhl has been invited to join the Cross State Conference. "We're thinking about it but I don't know if we went in it would be the smallest school by three or four hundred students."

"It would be great for scheduling," he continued "but it includes a lot more travel for us, particularly in basketball. In football we're traveling quite a bit right now and playing a lot of these same teams."

Football coach change rumors buzz around valley

JEROME — The financial bite is mixing things up in the Jerome high school athletic department.

Right now, no one knows exactly where changes will be made or if there will be any changes.

Superintendent Percy Christensen, flatly states, "I don't know where it all is going to end. But he says through financing and other situations, the Tigers hierarchy definitely is looking for some answers.

One thing that is in the air is the football program. Duane Alexander has handled the Tigers reins for the past three years. Last season, the Tigers definitely did not have a good year — but for good reasons. First, Jerome was heavily laden with underclassmen and it must be remembered they are probably the smallest school in the tough Cross State Conference. Secondly, the Tigers had very little speed.

Christensen says it is much to early to say whether there will be any changes in the football position.

"Right now we are basically waiting for word from Coach Alexander. This is a little early to be talking about football jobs. Usually that comes up in another couple of months — around the end of March. That's when the coaches start getting their thoughts together about whether they're wanting to come back or not.

"The thing we would want if there was a change, would be for Coach Alexander to remain on the football staff," Christensen emphasized. "He was an excellent assistant coach for us before he became the head coach and I certainly feel he would be an excellent addition to any staff we would have in the future."

Christensen said he had no qualms about keeping the former head coach on the staff of the new head coach. "I know that Coach Alexander would fit in with any football staff because he is a good coach and competitor. And, if the job opens up and we get the right man, then I know there wouldn't be any problem."

The statement about the "right man" brings more rumors into play. And the name linked most often with the "right man" is Gordon Hogan, who has spent the last several years at Hansen and Kimberly.

Hogan and Christensen are good friends, hunt together and travel together whenever possible. They coached against each other when Christensen was at Murtaugh and Christensen later was the superintendent at Hansen when Hogan was the football and basketball coach. In the same vein, Forrest Pomeschuck of Valley and John Billett of Gooding are caught in this rumor mill.

"Are you hearing those things, too?" Hogan asked when the subject was broached. "I had coffee with Pomeschuck Wednesday morning and he asked me if I was interested in the Jerome job. That was the first time I'd heard about it."

"I haven't heard from anyone from Jerome," Hogan said. "I haven't talked to Christensen, oh, for at least a month now."

Would he be interested? "Well, it never hurts to look," Hogan said. "But I'm very satisfied with Kimberly right now. I really don't know what to tell you."

But returning to our prior point, Superintendent Christensen says the money crunch has hit Jerome hard and the Tigers are scratching to reduce expenditures everywhere. In fact, it is reliably reported that the two cross country coaches who guided their teams to state titles last fall, had to split one coach's salary.

Christensen does not confirm that but indicates strongly the budget is in that type of squeeze.

traditionally are lower in price than for the summer games. ABC paid $25 million for the 1980 Winter Olympics to be held at Lake Placid, N.Y., beginning Feb. 12.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Bill Calfee, without a victory in 1979, shot one of the best rounds ever checked out of the best round of a 7-under-par 65 for a one-stroke lead over D.A. Weibring and Bobby Walzel in the first round of the $250,000 San Diego Open.

Calfee, 30, turned professional in 1976 that he won his PGA Tour card. Since then, he has won only $51,000. Obviously, he had to qualify to make it into the San Diego Open, third event on the 1980 schedule, and he shot an impressive 65 that was better than all two players that were better.

par-4. Still, he didn't think it was a very good round. "I didn't drive the ball very well," he said, "but I kept the ball in play and I hit my irons well. Obviously, my goal this year is to make the top 50."

getting the best score of the day on the South. Another shot back at 69 went to the 1979 San Diego, had a 72. Frank Conner, who got into the hole as the second alternate, and Watson who is making his 1980 debut that week.

Csonka won't retire

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami Dolphin fullback Larry Csonka ended any doubts about his playing career this week by saying he intends to play at least one more year of football.

"I'll be back. I've already talked to them (team officials) about my contract," Csonka said while visiting Miami from his Ohio farm to make a television commercial.

"He had a heckuva year. I'd like to have him," said Coach Don Shula.

Csonka returned to the Dolphins last season after being cut by the New York Giants. He led Dolphin ballcarriers with 837 yards and 11 touchdowns on 220 carries, and is the sixth leading career rusher in NFL history with 6,081 yards.

After Csonka was released by the Giants last year he took a cut in salary to play with the Dolphins because his performances in recent years had been below the level he set in Miami during the Dolphins Super Bowl years.

But now Csonka has indicated he would like a raise. It is believed he played for $135,000 last year and would like a pay hike to $200,000.

When Csonka signed with the Dolphins a year ago, he said he would try to "take it one year at a time" and if he was successful in 1979 he would determine then whether to play another season.

Hawks acquire McElroy

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Hawks Thursday acquired guard James McElroy from Detroit in return for Ron Lee, Los Angeles' second round draft pick in 1980 and the Pistons' third round pick this year.

Both picks were acquired earlier Thursday from Utah for future consideration.

McElroy, 6-3 and 190 pounds, graduated from Central Michigan in 1975. He was drafted four years ago by the Jazz and he was in his first year in Detroit this year.

Lee, also a guard, came to the Hawks from Utah earlier this year.

Mahre okay for Olympics

CHAMONIX, France (UPI) — American skier Steve Mahre, who badly damaged his left leg in the slalom at Leengries on Jan. 8, will be fit for the Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, U.S. coach Harald Schoenhar said today.

Schoenhar said, "I've just spoken with Steve's doctor at South Lake Tahoe and he says the damaged ligament is mending nicely and he'll be able to compete next month."

At first it was suspected the 22-year-old Mahre, from Yakima, Washington had broken his leg but later a badly stretched ligament above the knee was diagnosed.

Schoenhar said, "after Steve has fully recovered his mobility he'll need about a week's training to be fully fit for the games."

Steve, whose brother Phil is a medal contender for the slalom-and-downhill, is still ranked 20th in the overall world cup standings.

Ali visits India

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Retired world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali arrives on his two-week pilgrimage to India Thursday night to battle in the ring, gaze at the Taj Mahal, walk the streets of Calcutta and more.

His first steps are to visit New Delhi's Rajghat — a marble slab dedicated to Mohandas "Mahatma" Gandhi and inscribed with his last words "oh god" — where all will lay flowers honoring the father of India.

He also plans to look up at the Taj Mahal in Agra Jan. 25 and attend India's Republic Day Jan. 26 as a guest of the All India stage.

All will stage three exhibition fights with former world heavyweight boxing contender Jimmy Ellis in New Delhi, Jan. 27, Bombay Jan. 28 and Calcutta Feb. 4. His sponsors said Tuesday.

A film "India Through Ali's Eyes" will be shot by two London based producers during Ali's two-week tour of India.

The proceeds from the fights will go to various Indian charities.

Sutton breaks nose

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas basketball coach Eddie Sutton suffered a broken nose during practice Wednesday when a player ran into him.

Freshman Leroy Sutton (no relation) did not see Sutton standing on the court in Barnhill Arena and crashed into him, head-on, while breaking for a pass during a team scrimmage.

Leroy Sutton was uninjured but the coach was knocked to the floor and bled profusely from the nose.

Sutton was taken to the emergency room of Washington Regional Medical Center for treatment. Arkansas assistant trainer Mike McDonald said Sutton's nose was broken, but Sutton returned to Barnhill Arena before practice concluded.

Ski duel resumes

CHAMONIX, France (UPI) — Switzerland's Peter Mueller and Canada's Ken Read will resume their duel in the downhill Saturday, the final World Cup downhill race before next month's Winter Olympics at Lake Placid.

ISU prepares for Weber State

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State University's basketball team hosts nationally ranked Weber State Saturday for a match ISU coach Lynn Archibald says will challenge his team's defensive abilities.

"Weber is one of the best-kept secrets in college basketball," Archibald said. "They are the best rebounding team in the conference after out-rebounding Northern Arizona University by 19."

"One of the keys is definitely keeping them off the boards. Defensively, we can't key in on any one individual. You have to worry about them all."

The Wildcats hold a 27-1 overall record for the year and boast a 6-0 tally in Big Sky Conference play.

Kentucky looms big in SEC race

By DAVID MOFFIT

UPI Sports Writer

Now that the Kentucky Wildcats appear to have regained their December form, the Tennessee Vols' season-long hold on the Southeastern Conference basketball lead is in jeopardy.

The 18th-ranked Vols, who saw their lead over the 9th-ranked Wildcats shrink from 2 1/2 games to just a half game in a four-day span, have an exceptionally tough game Saturday in a visit to Alabama while Kentucky will be at home against Georgia.

Vols, who suffered back-to-back losses to 11th-ranked Louisiana State and Georgia after getting off to a 7-0 start in SEC play, had to go into triple overtime to nip Alabama by a point at Knoxville, Tenn., in mid-December and the Crimson Tide has won five of its last six conference games.

Kentucky, 6-2 in SEC play and a team's best 10-game overall record, won its championship form Wednesday night in an 89-67 victory at Mississippi State. "It was the best we've run our offense this year," said Wildcats Coach Joe Calipari. "We played better as a team, we moved the ball better and we did a better job of spotting the open man."

The Wildcats beat Georgia by 26 points, 85-59, in mid-December and caught the Bulldogs this time without their top player — freshman Dominique Wilkins, who scored 21 points in that early meeting, is out for five weeks with an ankle injury.

Wilkins' absence made Georgia's 84 Wednesday night victory over Tennessee, on a last-second layup by freshman Lamar Heard, more remarkable.

"It was a big victory because it was the first one without Wilkins," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham. "It should mean a lot to our confidence."

In other SEC action Saturday, Auburn visits Ole Miss in the league's regionally-tied game, and Tennessee, LSU is at Florida and Mississippi State is at Vanderbilt.

Next week is crucial to Kentucky's bid for the regular-season SEC cage title. Monday, the Wildcats, LSU, considered by many to be the class of the conference, when forwards Durand Macklin and Dwayne Scates are both on their game. Wednesday, they'll be at Auburn, and then on Saturday, they host Tennessee.

When Kentucky and Tennessee last met, on Jan. 5 at Knoxville, the Vols won by two points, 67-67, to snap the then 10-game Wildcats' 12-game winning streak.

Alabama, 10-7 overall but third in the SEC at 6-3, had to go into overtime to win at Auburn Wednesday while LSU, 12-4 overall and fourth in the SEC at 5-3, beat Ole Miss by six points at Baton Rouge when Macklin and Scates combined for only 15 points.

Wille Sims, who hadn't been contributing a great deal in recent games, sparked the Bengals. "Sims was the difference," said LSU Coach Dale Brown. "His additions created a lot of turnovers for Ole Miss."

Ole Miss forward John Stroud scored 24 points against LSU to continue his drive to a second straight SEC individual scoring title. Stroud, a 6-7 senior who averaged 26.3 points per game last season, is currently averaging 24.4 — nearly four points ahead of runnerup Ricky Brown (20.8) at Mississippi State.

Georgia beat Tennessee at its own game Wednesday. The Vols appeared to have the game won when Chuck Threadell's tip-in gave them a one-point lead in the closing seconds, but he followed up a miss by freshman teammate Terry Fair with the winning basket.

"I wasn't in good position," said Heard. "But when the ball hit the rim and bounced up, I happened to be going up too. I just ducked under my man and taved it up."

"That's the way Tennessee has been winning," said Durham. "They have great last minute potential. They beat Kentucky, Auburn and Alabama on last-minute baskets. They have a lot of confidence going into the final seconds."

Young wrestlers experience first tournament competition

TWIN FALLS A chance for tournament experience and building for the future.

That's the credo of the second annual Twin Falls Kiwanis youth wrestling tournament slated for a full day of action at Tiffin gymnasium Saturday.

Action will start at 9 a.m. and go through completion somewhere between 4 and 5 p.m., says Irvin wrestling coach Andy Barron.

The tournament has attracted teams from Twin Falls, Bull, Milco, Burley, Valley, Kimberly, Wood River, Jerome, Gooding, Shart and O'Leary.

Barron said no wrestler who has represented his school on the varsity level is eligible. The tournament is designed to give those who have completed a season of work a chance to compete in a tournament situation against other schools.

Barron said the Kiwanis club sponsors the event by providing team trophies and individual ribbons and also manpower to keep the three mats in operation.

He said the three Twin Falls teams may have a little overlap. He noted the sophomores may have to add some freshmen to round out a full roster and even then it may not be possible. Most of the sophomores are ticketed for entry in the district tournament Feb. 6 and 7.

He added O'Leary may be short a man or two at specific weights but felt that a turnout of about 60-80 starts makes that school will have a full team.

Kuhn foresees talks running smoothly

BOSTON (UPI)—Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he doesn't think there will be a player strike this spring, but he refuses to rule out the possibility some action could delay the start of the 1980 season.

"I don't think there will be an interruption in the flow of things. That's my judgment. That's my conviction, really," Kuhn said Thursday at the annual Boston Baseball Writers Dinner.

"I don't rule out the possibility of a strike or a lock-out, but that's highly theoretical at this time," he said. "I don't think the players or the clubs want to see it."

Baseball's basic agreement expired Dec. 31 and attorneys for owners and players are negotiating a new agreement. Both sides are rumored to be far apart but Kuhn is optimistic.

"I think rational men can find a solution. The talk you hear now is what you would expect. They disagree."

"The discussions have gotten to the issues on the table, or most of them. And from what I hear, they are being addressed," Kuhn said.

Among owner desires is some form of compensation when a team loses a player to free agency. Kuhn agreed something must be done to change the present system, whereby a club is rewarded a draft choice if it loses a player to free agency.

"Some change in that area is indicated," he said, "and I would be disappointed if some change wasn't made."

Kuhn also hopes there will be some action soon on the proposed move of the Oakland A's to Denver. Baseball officials had agreed on a payment to Oakland (Oleason owners to move the club).

"Hopefully that will be clarified before too long. Another year in Oakland would be embarrassing for Oakland, for baseball, and for everyone involved," Kuhn said.

Owens fighting lung cancer

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Jesse Owens, a sports legend since his track and field victories in the 1936 Berlin Olympics, has checked into a Tucson hospital for treatment of lung cancer. It was revealed Thursday.

A hospital spokesman quoted Owens, 66, as saying he was fighting

"the biggest battle of my life and with the help of Dr. (Stephen E.) Jones, I'll win this race."

Jones, a cancer specialist and director of internal medicine, said Owens was transferred Wednesday to University Hospital following earlier tests and treatment.

Arizona St. ineligible for Rose Bowl berth

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI)—Pacific-10 football conference officials recommend Arizona State University be declared ineligible for the 1981 Rose Bowl as the penalty for a grade falsification scandal, a published report said Thursday.

The Phoenix Gazette said that the Pac-10 Conference Council recommended the school's eight conference games count in league standings and the Sun Devils be allowed to play in any other post-season contest.

The recommendations were adopted by the league compliance committee and unanimously endorsed by the 29 member council, consisting of Pac-10 athletic directors and faculty representatives.

The penalties were outlined in a memo by Commissioner Wiles Hallock sent to conference presidents and chancellors, the Gazette reported.

The recommendations are subject to approval of six of the nine school officials. ASU must abstain from the vote.

The action came in light of an academic eligibility scandal last fall in which eight Sun Devils players received credit for a California junior college course they never attended.

ASU was forced to forfeit five 1979 victories in light of the revelations.

The recommendations included stipulations for four returning members of the ineligible eight to complete grade requirements for the 1979-80 academic year plus the number of hours they were deficient at the start of the year.

It was also proposed the four be declared ineligible for ASU's non-conference games against Houston, University of Pacific and Ohio State.

Holograms: depth-defying pictures

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — An Idaho State University professor wants to add a new dimension to motion pictures — the third dimension.

Imagine watching a movie and getting the feeling you're looking out a giant window; the action leaps off the screen and you feel you could touch the tip of the actor's nose.

Instructor Richard Davis imagined that when he began working with holograms, or three-dimensional "pictures", produced with lasers.

A hologram recreates the light waves given off by an object, giving an eerie three-dimensional quality to a completely flat surface.

If still photographs can be run in sequence to produce a moving picture, Davis reasoned, why couldn't a series of holographic images produce a "holographic" movie? The results would be similar to the 3-D movies of the '50s, but no special eyeglasses would be required, and the image would be clearer.

So Davis, chairman of the Electro-Technologies Department at the School of Vocational-Technical Education, and his students set out to design a movie camera that could take holographic film. With ISU Faculty Research funds, Davis succeeded in designing a model, but he has hit some stumbling blocks in actually building one. He needs a highly sensitive film, which is not available commercially.

But the camera could work, he insists; if he could obtain this film. The Soviet Union has built a holographic camera, he noted. But the cost of building one here would be at least $100,000.

A former Twin Falls resident, Davis' interest in holograms grew out of his interest in lasers. The ISU laser laboratory has several; some strong enough to burn holes in acrylic blocks in seconds and some weak enough to shine on your hand. A neon helium laser uses only 1/1000th of a watt — a carbon-dioxide one uses 6,000.

Unlike sunlight, in which light waves are jumbled and erratic, laser light waves are neatly stacked together, or "coherent." (Like the difference between regular potato chips and Pringles.)

Despite their appearance in science fiction and James Bond flicks, laser beams are invisible. "Magazines have cheated. These pictures of laser beams have been painted on," Davis asserted. Unless a laser shines through a "scatter" medium, like smoke or steam, lasers resemble flashlight beams with a red or blue spotlight. Only when Davis claps two blackboard erasers in front of his neon helium laser, does a thin red-beam shimmer into view, looking as if fiery beads were shifting on a glittering string.

Davis' students use the neon helium laser to produce holograms in their laser classes. Using a configuration of laser beams, mirrors and prisms, an object is exposed to film which has a high degree of resolution. The film is then developed in regular photographic chemicals. The resulting hologram has all the characteristics of the original object. "If I make a hologram of a magnifying glass, it works like a magnifying glass," Davis said.

One of Davis' students made a hologram of a lens in front of a coin. When a laser is shone through the film, one can see the coin distinctly through the lens. By moving your head, different parts of the coin are magnified by the lens — as if the lens and the coin were really there.

Holograms set on glass and visible in sunlight and artificial white light are made by a company that specializes in holographic products, including jewelry and record album covers. The "eye" on this Idaho Weekender's cover is a white light hologram.

Davis explains that the 3-D effect is created when two laser beams are bounced off an object to expose the film: an "object beam" and a "reference" beam. The film records "the phase difference between reference and object beam," Davis said. "We're recreating the exact time reference when we took the picture."

Confused? Let's demonstrate Davis' explanation. Hold both hands in front of you, one "slightly" farther away. Your eyes can tell one hand is closer than the other; that is, you can see depth; because the light rays bouncing off the close hand reach your eye sooner than those off the far hand. The difference in time is infinitesimally small, yet your eyes can pick it up.

So can film, when a laser, with its neat arrangement of light waves, makes the exposure.

But that film cannot move a micrometer during the exposure. (A human hair is 60 micrometers across).

So one of the main obstacles to making a holographic movie system is that the film cannot move. Davis needed a camera that could move a frame into place, stabilize it, expose it, move the next frame into place and so on. It sounds too slow a movie pictures. But it CAN be done. Davis contends, with very "fast" film. The film must resolve at least 1,500 lines per millimeter and be time exposed in a fraction of a second. Davis feels the military has such film available for their own use.

Using three lasers with the three primary colors, red, blue and green, color film can be produced. And with a scatter medium, like steam, the movie might even be projected in the middle-of-theater. Presently one can actually measure the depth of an object in a holographic image projected on steam or smoke.

"We got prisms, we got mirrors, we tested all this.

We've taken still pictures. I think it can be actually built. The Russians do have a hologram machine, but their angle of view is limited — meaning only a few can see it at one time," Davis said. "I feel certain the military has film that could take it." In his system, the view would not be limited, and a regular film projector could be used for the film.

Davis has given several talks on the subject and has published an article on the camera model in a scientific journal.

'Peter Pan' audiences test wireless infrared hearing aid

NEW YORK — A new type of hearing aid, using infrared light, is being tried out at the Lunt-Fontanne Theater for audiences attending "Peter Pan."

It is intended not only for the hard of hearing but also for anyone wanting perfect audio. The lightweight stethoscope-like headphones do not need wiring; they receive sound signals transmitted by infrared from the theater's master sound system.

Hologram-movies imminent

"I hope eventually it is built. We don't have the money to pursue it. It's like any other research. You hope to make a contribution. You have an idea and hopefully someone picks up on it," he said.

An electronics instructor at the University since 1965, Davis was raised in Twin Falls and developed an interest in electronics during a stint in the army. He has seen many changes in electronics since his army days.

"When I started in electronics in 1959, the transistor was something they just mentioned occasionally; it's never going to do anything. Now the transistor is on the opposite end. It's going out. Now the integrated circuit is the thing...."

Holograms have been found to have many practical uses, Davis said. Holographic X-rays would eliminate the need to take several X-rays of a broken limb to get the full picture. Computers using a holographic informational storing system add another "warehouse," making it possible to record the "whole Library of Congress on a postage stamp," Davis said.

"I've got a student working on a laser system to measure the movement of the earth's crust. That way earthquakes may be predicted."

Some of his students have come up with even more unusual (and humorous) ideas for holograms.

"My students originally wanted to project a holographic image on a cloud, like Zeus. It could be done with a powerful light source."
"We could scare everybody in Pocatello."

Meet contemporary Japanese prints at CSI

TWIN FALLS — Conjure up a Japanese print. Probably a classic, print, perhaps of Utamaro or Hiroshige, comes quickest to mind.

Americans have developed a taste for the Japanese classics, largely reinforced by a steady diet of them.

"Contemporary Japanese Prints: Selections from the Ben and Abbey Grey Foundation" may whet your interest in the modern art of Japanese printmaking.

Currently on exhibit at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Building through March 7, the 20 prints were made during the past 30 years. Most are color woodcuts.

The woodblock print is a technique long associated with Japanese art. These contemporary artists meld a respect for classic tradition with the innovations of 20th century aesthetes.

Subjects range from the purely abstract to still lifes and landscapes of Japan. Among the artists represented are Hiroo Hayashi, Yasu Kobashi, Shiko Munakata, Kirojoshi Saito and Sadayuki Takeda.

The collection is, on loan, from New York University. It's touring is under the auspices of the Western Association of Art Museums.

The exhibition is open to the public from Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information contact Mike Green at 733-9554, extension 260.

'Visitor,' by Shiko Munakata, is among the contemporary Japanese prints currently on exhibit at CSI through March 7

Star wars of a political kind waged

By DOUGLAS DOWIE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It would be a case of poor eyesight to call rock star Linda Ronstadt a "political fat cat" and perhaps suicidal to pin that label on Frank Sinatra, especially in person.

But the melodic and enigmatic Miss Ronstadt and the melodic and volatile Sinatra are just two of the dozens of entertainers who have already enlisted in the political arena to help elect a Democratic presidential candidate.

Federal election laws limit individual political contributions to $1,000, but there is no limit on the time a person can donate to a presidential candidate.

Therefore, talent — especially the kind that can fill a 10,000-seat auditorium at prices ranging from $20 to $1,000 a ticket — has become a coveted political commodity. Ronstadt, The Eagles and Chicago performed for Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., and actress Jane Fonda and singer Helen Reddy are helping the governor keep his presidential campaign fiscally viable.

Sinatra teamed up with pal Dean Martin last November in Boston to raise nearly $100,000 for Republican Ronald Reagan, who is also getting fund raising help from actors Jimmy Stewart and Michael Landon, of "Little House on the Prairie."

President Carter's campaign aides are busily trying to corner the Grand Ole Opry political market and singers Tom T. Hall and Dolly Parton are reportedly ready to perform for the president.

Carter is "more cognizant of country music than any other president," Hall said at a recent Nashville, Tenn., fundraiser that attracted about 75 Opry stars and Billy Carter, the president's brother.

Nashville musicians, however, are not unanimous in their support for Carter. A Reagan concert Feb. 3 in Los Angeles will feature country-western favorites Mel Tillis, Marty Robbins and Rex Allen Jr. The lineup for the $7.50-a-seat show will also include singers James Darin and Dean Martin.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., recently cancelled a scheduled fundraiser with a number of show business personalities when actor Warren Beatty, considered one of the best Democratic fundraisers in Hollywood, was unable to return to Los Angeles from Europe to host the affair.

Kennedy, however, spent the afternoon at the Malibu estate of singer Nell Diamond and Ahe singer is considered the favorite among most of Hollywood's Democrats.

Political experts agree that entertainers bring glamour, media attention and money — lots of it — to a presidential campaign. And unlike traditional political power brokers, the stars ask very little in return.

"The most any entertainer can expect from helping a candidate is perhaps being invited to the White House someday," said a top adviser to a GOP presidential hopeful. "And most of the really big stars could probably drop in on the chief executive anyway."

Reagan and Brown relied on their Hollywood connections early in their campaigns to help raise funds. Both have already held major fund raising concerts and each has received large contributions from a number of entertainers.

Brown's campaign lieutenants are familiar — though not always successful — with filling auditoriums on behalf of their candidate. The 41-year-old governor found himself on stage with a number of rock stars during his last presidential bid.

Reagan, a former actor, decided this year to use entertainers in a big way and hired 24-year-old Morgan Mason, the son of actor James Mason, to coordinate the effort.

"I think that the governor's staff realized that they had a tremendous untapped source of money," Mason said. "And, other than showing the money aspect of it, is the media aspect."

Mason said the media coverage of Reagan's first big concert of the campaign — a Boston extravaganza that featured Sinatra and Dean

Martin — was enormous and positive.

He said the media coverage of the concert, which he called "an expensive way to make money," made up for the fact the concert netted "less than half" of the $300,000 paid for tickets.

"There are star-studded cocktail parties and similar events where you can hold your expenses down," he said. "But then you don't get the front page of the New York Times with a cocktail party and you do — or potentially do — for a big concert."

A major advantage of gaining attention on stage with Sinatra and Martin, says Mason, is a very low risk factor.

"It's news and it's not that easy to make news without taking the risk of making a blunder," Mason said. "There's only so much news that you can get out of a speech, but there's news value in a concert by virtue of the fact that it's unusual."

Brown's struggling presidential campaign is acutely aware of both the media and financial value of fund raising concerts. Recent shows at the Aladin Hotel in Las Vegas and the San Diego Sports Arena — featuring Miss Ronstadt, Chicago's Tim Eassey and J.D. Souther — boosted Brown's sagging war chest and attracted a small army of reporters and photographers.

Sun Valley sets dance residency

SUN VALLEY — The first and major event of the Sun Valley Center's Winter Performing Arts Series is "Jennifer Muller and the Works," a world-renowned modern dance company from New York.

The company has toured extensively throughout Europe and South America, and opened at City Center in New York City last October. Their residency, scheduled from Jan. 30 through Feb. 2, is their first western tour in three years. At that time, "Jennifer Muller and the Works" brought and performed as part of the Sun Valley Center's Summer Dance Program.

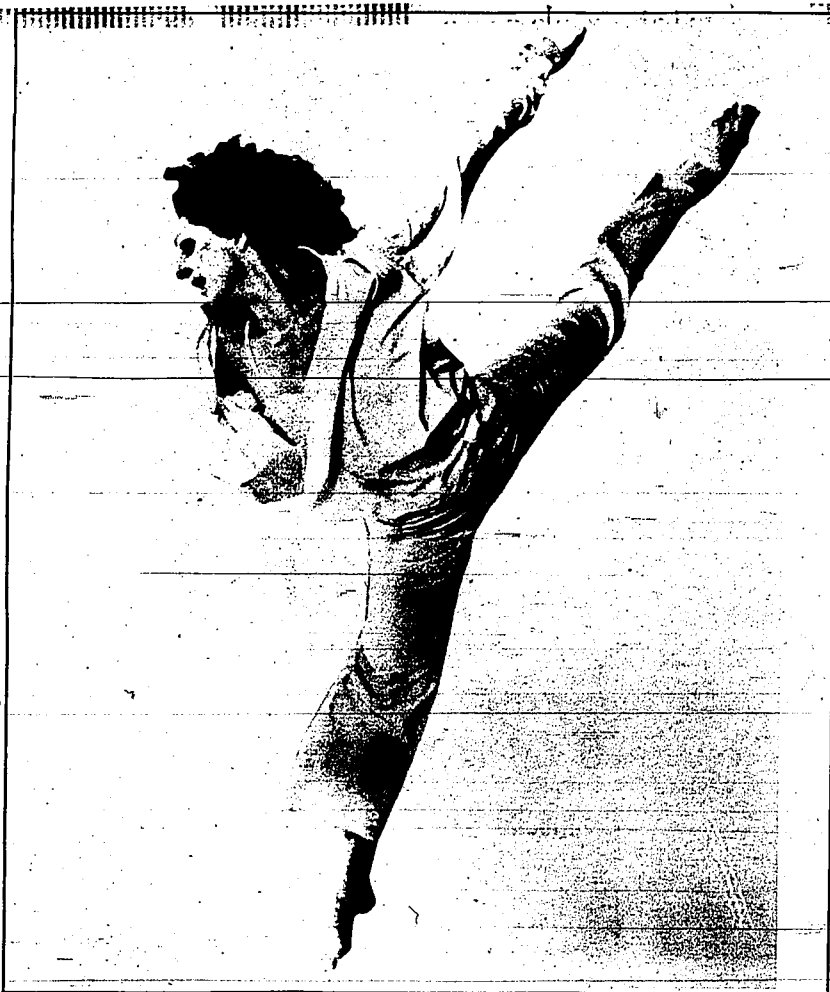

New York critic Clive Barnes wrote of her in The Metro. "Miss Muller's choreographic origins are flamboyantly evident, yet she has her own originality." —Anna Kissenoff wrote in the New York Times. "Jennifer Muller is a highly talented modern dance choreographer who knows a thing or two about putting movement together."

The company will be performing in the Sun Valley Opera House on Feb. 1 and 2 at 8 p.m. Patron tickets, including dinner and special patron seating, will be sold. Advance tickets will be on sale at the Center Gallery on the Sun Valley Mall, 622-9491. Tickets will also be available at the door.

The company will hold classes Jan. 30 and 31. Classes for intermediate/advanced students are scheduled in the Center's Dance Studio from noon to 2 p.m. Classes for beginning students are scheduled in the Hemingway Gym from 3-5 p.m.

For further information and workshop registration, call the Center office at 622-9371.

Soviet dancer disappears during Italian tour

L'AQUILA, Italy (UPI) — Soviet ballet dancer Yuri Vladimirovich Stefanov has vanished and police believe the performer, first missed because he failed to show for a train trip, may be preparing to defect.

Stefanov, 32, a dancer on tour with the Moscow Academic Ballet, was last seen by the company's director early Monday. He last performed at the L'Aquila Theater Sunday night.

At the request of Soviet officials, police began a house-to-house search today for Stefanov. Soviet officials in Rome informed police of Stefanov's disappearance and requested the search.

Police said Stefanov was probably hiding out among friends in the city's small but popular colony of exiles from Soviet-bloc nations.

They said the dancer "tailed to board a scheduled train for Bari Monday with the rest of the 82-member traveling company.

Privately, police officials said the dancer had defected, noting there is a community of Russian exiles in L'Aquila, a city 50 miles east of Rome. But they said that for the moment, they would treat the disappearance as a missing persons case.

There was no word from any of the embassies or consulates in Rome, where Stefanov would go to seek asylum.

If the dancer does decide to defect, he would become the first Soviet performer to do so in the new decade. In 1979, there was a rash of defections by Soviets on tour, including at least three by Bolshoi ballet performers in New York and Los Angeles.

Last August, Bolshoi ballet star Alexander Godunov walked into immigration offices in New York and was granted political asylum. He has now settled in West Berlin where the famous ballet couple Galina and Alexander Panov — who were allowed to leave the Soviet Union after pressure from the West — also live and perform. Godunov's wife, Ludmila Vlasova, was sent home on a Soviet Aeroflot jet — but only after U.S. officials questioned the Bolshoi dancer at length to ascertain whether she was returning at her own volition.

In Los Angeles, where the Bolshoi continued its tour, Leonid Kozlov and his wife Valentina defected in September. They now make New York City their base.

In another defection in September, Soviet Olympic gold medal skaters Oleg Protopopov and Ludmila Belusova defected in Geneva, and were granted asylum.

Fundraising shows have their pitfalls

Brown said his campaign hoped to make $400,000 from the two shows and, although his aides refuse to disclose exactly how much was actually netted, it has been estimated that the revenue from the concerts kept his campaign fiscally viable — for now.

The Brown concert in San Diego, however, also pointed out a couple of the technique's pitfalls. The governor was forced to limit his appearance on stage to about 10 seconds after many of the 10,000 people in the audience chose to boo and jeer the candidate rather than applaud and cheer.

The less than enthusiastic response might have been anticipated since Brown campaign aides were forced at the last minute to give away $20 tickets to the San Diego concert to fill the auditorium to capacity.

Reporters interviewed dozens of concert-goers in the hall and none expressed strong political leanings towards any of the candidates.

"Let's put it this way," said one young woman, "I wouldn't have come if I hated the guy, but I probably won't vote for him — or probably else."

Tickets to the concert in Las Vegas sold well, but the Brown campaign was forced to cancel a Los Angeles concert in November after a full-page ad appeared in the Los Angeles Times — when one of the scheduled groups pulled out.

Brown blamed the slow ticket sales in San Diego on the Federal Election Commission, which has ruled that only the amount above the fair ticket price for a similar concert in the same city is eligible for federal matching funds.

The FEC, he said, has "systematically undermined" the ability of candidates to raise funds through rock concerts and forced his campaign to charge $20-a-seat.

"High ticket prices are required by the manipulation of the federal election law, which I think is an outrage given the fact that the Allman Brothers helped get Carter elected in a very difficult period four years ago," he said.

Brown added that he did not understand why, "when kids and young adults go to a concert," they're given the "benefit" of matching funds, "while the federal government matches the entire amount spent on a ticket to a 'fat cat' political dinner."

The Allman Brothers Band helped Carter raise money during the 1976 primary with a Macon, Ga., concert, but another pitfall of the rock-politics connection was pointed out a short time later when an employee of the band was sentenced to 75 years in prison for supplying drugs to the group's leader, Gregg Allman.

All the funds raised by the Allman Brothers for Carter were eligible for federal matching funds. The FEC, however, changed the rules last spring.

"There's a difference," said FEC spokesman Fred Elland, "between attending a function which is strictly a political function, as against entertainment, because you may just want to hear this entertainment."

Brown's criticism of what he called "fat cat" political dinners does not mean he rejects that method of raising funds.

Miss Ronstadt held a $500-a-napkin affair in Brown's behalf at her Malibu beach house several weeks before the concerts. The Brown campaign refused to disclose the amount raised — or even the guest list to the party — and reporters who attempted to get a closer look were confronted by several stern-faced private security guards.

Reagan's campaign, meanwhile, has been exporting Hollywood personalities to fundraising cocktail parties all over the nation.

The most requested stars, says Morgan Mason, are Stewart, Landon and Efron Zimbalist Jr.

"Those are people you can bank on to make money anywhere," Mason said.

Reach out! via lasers

AT&T announced Wednesday it will build the world's longest laser communications system, capable of carrying 40,000 simultaneous conversations on beams of light shot through threads of glass such as this.

The cable, which will be approximately 1/2 inch in diameter, will stretch 611 miles from Washington, D.C. to Cambridge, Mass. Scheduled completion is 1984.

TONY ROBERTS
...I love Lucy?

REPLACEMENT: Tony Roberts has taken over Robert Klein's role opposite Lucie Arnaz in the Broadway musical "They're Playing Our Song." And according to insiders, he's taken over as the 28-year-old Lucie's love interest — off-stage. But some say that Lucie's heart really belongs to actor Tom Conti. We'll let you know how things work out.

Q: What has happened to Marthe Keller since she split up with Al Pacino? — T.O., El Paso, Tex.

A: The Swiss actress quit working for a while, and friends said the breakup was a terrible blow to her. But she's been lured back to films and she's in Hollywood now making "The Formula" with George C. Scott and Marlon Brando.

Q: Dustin Hoffman and Meryl Streep seem so natural together in that great film "Kramer vs. Kramer." What kind of a relationship do they have off-screen? — B.R., Chicago

A: They're just good friends although Dustin admits that he was very attracted to Meryl a couple of years ago. But nothing ever came of it. There were rumors of an affair but there was never any basis in fact. When they were cast for starring roles in "Kramer vs. Kramer," Dustin had just split from his wife, and Meryl had married artist Don Gummer. The Gummers had a baby boy last November.

THE REAL THING: Actor Robert De Niro insists on realism when he takes on a role. For his part as prizefighter Jake LaMotta in "The Raging Bull" not only did he put on weight but he dyed his hair red and put on a LaMotta-type broken nose. And all this paid off when very private person De Niro did early morning jogging on several New York locations. With the extra weight, the red hair and the nose, nobody recognized him.

Q: I recently saw the movie "Luna" about incest between a mother and son. Do you think the boy fully understood what was going on in the picture? — T.O., Los Angeles

A: Young actor Matthew Barry, who was 16 when the movie was made, understood his role perfectly. Although director Bernardo Bertolucci toned down the incestuous scenes they still required some extended foreplay. Barry says Jill Clayburgh, who plays his mother in the movie, was wonderfully understanding in helping him get through the difficult scenes.

STAR POWER: Okaying publicity is a right rarely given to an actor in the TV industry. There just isn't time to allow stars to look over photographs and call for new poses. But all that changed when Raquel Welch signed on as a guest for a recent "Mork and Mindy" TV show. Insiders say Raquel asserted herself and got the privilege. Whether she sniked any photos isn't known.

JOHN HUSTON
...still shooting

Q: Can we expect any more films from the great director John Huston? He must be pretty old and ready for retirement. — J.L., Dallas

A: John Huston has no plans for retirement. And he's got plenty of projects in the works. He just finished shooting the psychological thriller "Phobia" in Toronto starring Paul Michael Glaser of TV's "Starky and Hutch. In May he goes to Hungary to film "Escape to Victory" with Michael Caine and Sylvester Stallone. And he just finished his autobiography scheduled to be published later this year. Not bad for a man 73 years old.

THREE YEARS TO GO: Bo Derek's career is booming but the star of "10" has some definite plans for early retirement. The 23-year-old says she plans to make as much money as possible in the next three years and then quit the movies, retire to a ranch and have a baby with husband John Derek, 33.

Q: What's this about Margaret Truman going into the toy business? — A.L., Madison, Wis.

A: Not exactly. The daughter of the late president has become the spokesperson for the Toy Manufacturers of America, the industry trade association. Ms. Truman is taking the job seriously and in preparation visited a number of toy companies to familiarize herself with toy-making production procedures.

A NEW PRO STAR? Look for golf star Arnold Palmer to take the wraps off a 15-year-old protegee he says is the best golfer he's seen in years. She's the daughter of a friend and Palmer says with a little more work on her game she'll be ready for tournament play. Stand by.

Q: Has Frank Sinatra quit doing movies? I always thought he was a terrific actor. — J.J., Sacramento, Calif.

A: Sinatra is going to do a movie in New York starting soon. He'll play a detective in a film based on the book "The First Deadly Sin."

NO GOSSIP: Princess Grace is reported to have written a book. Even her Philadelphia society nor the Royal set will have any notion to worry about because its not a gossip tell-all. The elegant and slightly stuffy grand dame of Monaco has penned a romantic comedy which is said to be based on her own life.

Gossip

CHERYL KENNEDY
...new fair lady

Q: Are those stories that Rex Harrison will be "My Fair Lady" again true? — G.R., New Orleans

A: Yes, and Rex finally found an Eliza Doolittle to play opposite his Professor Higgins. It took the 71-year-old actor six months of auditions to find Cheryl Kennedy, a British musical star who used to be married to actor Tom Courtenay. The Lerner-Lowe classic will be restaged and will tour the U.S. later this year.

Q: Can you once and for all settle the question of exactly how much Steve McQueen gets for each of his movies? — P.W., Milwaukee.

A: McQueen's per-film payments are hard to nail down simply because they keep on going up. But movie insiders say Steve was offered $10 million for a recent two-picture deal that fell through. Even though the movies, under the general title "Tai-Pan," didn't get made, Steve collected $1 million anyway because it was in his contract. Steve got $3 million for his current film, Paramount's "The Hunter" and is being offered $5 million for his next movie.

Q: Since actress Melina Mercouri has become a member of the Greek Parliament has she given up her acting career? — S.Z., Freeport, N.Y.

A: No. Melina is managing twin careers. Right now by day she's the Member of Parliament for Piraeus and at night she's starring in a Greek version of Tennessee Williams' "Sweet Bird of Youth" in Athens.

BETTER DAYS: Musical stars Ann Miller and Kathryn Grayson were at a party recently where someone was discussing a current soft porn movie. On hearing the details Grayson turned to Miller and said "Thank goodness, Annie, all we had to do was sing and dance."

Q: Hasn't John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd's movie version of "Dan Brothers" gotten so out of control that the studio has had to crack down on their free-spending antics? — J.M., Washington

A: The "Blues Brothers" budget has ballooned from $12 million to $20 million but Universal Pictures remains confident in the Belushi-Aykroyd box-office magnetism. Once shooting got started, John and Dan dreamed up one zany stunt after another. Before filming in Chicago was completed, some 168 police cars had been wrecked, one in a drop from a helicopter. Some locals thought that instead of a comedy with music, "Blues Brothers" was really a "Patton" sequel.

PROTECTIVE PARENT: Leonard Nimoy tries to protect his children from the spotlight. For the big Washington premiere of "Star Trek — The Motion Picture," Nimoy and his wife arrived at the theater in a limousine. But his kids, daughter Julie, 24, who's engaged to be married and his son, Adam, 22, arrived at the MacArthur Theater in a mini-bus which kept them out of sight during much of the press hoopla and TV news coverage.
