

Both men and women

Registration asked for ages 19, 20

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter proposed Friday that the 3 million men and women who turn 19 or 20 this year be required to register for military service.

He said the call will be extended to 18-year-olds in the future.

Carter's plan to register women is an American first but 11 other nations already do it, including Russia.

The president said women would not be assigned to combat units if inducted but, "There is no distinction possible on the basis of ability or performance, that would allow me to exclude women from an obligation to register."

Under Carter's proposal, which will be submitted to Congress, everyone born in 1960 or 1961 would register this year. Starting next January, those born in 1962 — and those turning 19 in 1981 — would register.

Thereafter, men and women would be required to sign up when they turn 18. Everyone's name would remain on the rolls indefinitely.

Those affected would pick up registration forms at local post offices and fill in name, address and age. They would not get draft cards or be required to take physicals, but there would be a penalty for failure to register.

The last time Americans registered for military service was 1975 and no one has been drafted since 1971, when the controversial all-volunteer forces began.

Carter, who has said he does not envision any draft but only registration in case the need arises, would have to get additional authority from Congress before induction of anyone male or female — could take place.

There was mixed reaction to the decision on women.

Phyllis Schlafly, leader of anti-ERA forces, said, "Carter has stabbed American womanhood in the back in a cowardly attempt to get back the election-year support of the radical feminists."

The National Organization for Women, which opposed peacetime registration, said women should be called alongside men if the draft is reinstated.

Carter already has power to register men for military service but he asked Congress to appropriate $20 million this year and $21.5 million in fiscal 1981 for the mammoth task of organizing and keeping track of the records.

Because opposition is expected in Capitol Hill, the president said he would submit the plan to register women separately from his request for funding. That way, if Congress decides women should not be included, the funds needed to register men could still be approved.

Summary

- Who? All young men and women born in 1960 and 1961 would have to register this year.
- How? By going to the post office and filling out a simple form with name, address, date of birth and Social Security number.
- What about 18-year-olds? All young men and women born in 1962 would have to register in 1981.
- Draft cards, classifications or physicals? None at this time.
- Why postpone registration?
- The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan poses a serious threat to a region that is vital to the long-term interests of the United States and our allies," according to President Carter.

Treasury Secretary William Miller Friday reiterated to Congress he did not know of former company's illegal payoffs abroad UPI

Proxmire: Miller knew about bribes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Senate Banking Committee called Friday for appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate charges against Treasury Secretary G. William Miller.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., revealed his strategy after he and other members of the banking panel questioned Miller for five hours about $5.4 million in foreign bribes paid by the company Miller formerly headed, Providence, R.I.-based Textron Inc. Proxmire charged Miller gave "incorrect, erroneous, false and misleading" testimony before the committee in 1978 when he testified at confirmation hearings on his nomination as Federal Reserve board chairman.

Proxmire was the only committee member to oppose Miller's confirmation at that post. Miller was named treasury secretary last summer.

"It is exceedingly hard to resolve" what Miller knew about the payoffs, said Proxmire. "It's possible he knew. The circumstantial evidence is very, very powerful."

Calling for the Justice Department to name a special prosecutor in the case, Proxmire listed as possible "crimes" that Miller committed "obstruction of justice and perjury before the committee."

For that reason, "there should be a special, independent prosecutor appointed who would have authority to act" on any evidence he found, Proxmire said.

Three Republican senators made a similar call. Sens. Richard Lugar of Indiana, Bob Dole of Kansas and Jake Garn of Utah and circumstantial evidence justified drawing the inference that a chief executive in Mr. Miller's position should have known, and could reasonably be expected to know, of the questionable payments made by Textron."

Earlier this week, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti told another congressional panel that a Justice Department investigation has already determined that Miller had "no knowledge" of the questionable payments.

Navy jet hits Mt. Boulder

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

HAILBY — A U.S. Navy training jet with two persons aboard crashed into the rugged, snow-covered side of Boulder Mountain, 7 1/2 miles east of Galena Summit Friday afternoon.

Blaire County Sheriff Orville Drexler said wreckage was scattered over a wide area. Due to the rough mountain side, he said, ground and air crews had not been able to reach the wreckage. Efforts were being made late Friday night by snowmobile rescue crews to determine if the pilot and passenger may have ejected from the plane.

Friday, lighting the crash scene for ground crews.

Capt. Titus said the plane, an A-6 jet navy attack trainer, was out of Whitby Island Naval Air Station, north of Seattle, apparently on a routine training flight. He said the accident occurred about 4 p.m.

He said the crash site was at the 9,000 foot elevation in extremely rugged terrain and in deep snow.

Sheriff Drexler said the wreckage is in a bowl area on somewhat the north side of the mountain. He said it was clear and the sun was shining when the plane went down and he had no theory as to why it crashed.

The names of the pilot and passenger could not be released pending further investigation, military officials said.

"It's possible they saw what was coming and ejected. They could be somewhere in the area, injured but surviving," Drexler said.

At 9:30 p.m., the snowmobile mounted search and rescue teams from Blaine County reported nothing had been sighted to indicate survivors, but they planned to continue patrolling the area at least for a short while.

Drexler said rescue crews would have a better opportunity of reaching the wreckage after daylight and also in searching for possible survivors. He said he expected the snowmobilers to give up the search Friday night by 10 or 11 p.m. and resume efforts early this morning.

Twin Falls County Sheriff James Munn offered the services of his county search and rescue unit. Several other county units in the Magic Valley were standing by if needed.

"We are making plans now for what we will be doing in the morning," Drexler said. "We will try to airlift men into the area as close as we can to the wreckage for further search and investigation."

Capt. George Titus, public affairs officer at Mountain Home Air Force Base, said a helicopter was sent from Mountain Home but was unable to land. It remained in the area until late Friday. The sheriff said his office contacted the Italey airport for possible missing planes and then the Federal Aviation Agency office in Burley where it was believed to have gone down in the area.

Second FBI scam catches governor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A second major undercover operation this week surfaced Friday.

Sources said FBI agents posing as bribe-paying insurance salesmen have made tens of thousands of dollars in payoffs to politicians and reputed mob figures in Louisiana and Texas.

Federal sources said those under investigation as a result of the probe include Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, Louisiana organized crime figure Carlos Marcello, former Louisiana gubernatorial candidate Louis Lambert, the state's lieutenant governor, Jimmy Fitzmorris, and several Texas lawmakers.

Edward Lambert and Fitzmorris are Democrats. A source said the case implicating Edwards, a former congressman, was weak.

The probe was described as being much like the FBI's explosive "Alscam" undercover investigation that has implicated several members of Congress and created a stir in Washington and on Capitol Hill.

The New York Times reported FBI agents fanned out Friday to interview those implicated in the fresh scandal, which it said was coded "Brylan."

meaning bribery and involving labor groups.

The Times said the operation was made public when a federal judge in Los Angeles released showing the government has spent thousands of dollars on the operation.

FBI officials said earlier the bureau has 50 such undercover "sting" operations nationwide, many of them focusing on the links between organized crime and politicians.

Sources said in the latest scandal, FBI agents posed as agents of the Prudential Insurance Co., offering big kickbacks to organized crime and political figures who would smooth the way for the sale of health insurance policies.

For example, a group policy would normally sell for $100,000, but the undercover agents would charge unions and government agencies higher sums, such as $120,000, then pass the surplus back to a mob figure, other organized crime figures and public officials.

Sources said the FBI agents operated out of a supposed Prudential office in California. It could not be immediately learned whether the office was real.

Some legislators back registration for women

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — A House committee Friday said it opposed drafting women.

But after debate, committee members supported registration of women for the draft, acknowledging in a severe crisis women might have to be drafted after all.

The action of the State Affairs Committee came on House Joint Memorial 17. That measure, as originally drafted, opposed registration and drafting of women. The committee amended the measure, however, striking the reference to registration.

The amendment came after Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise, argued a list should be compiled of young men and women. "In case their skills are needed later," Bunting, the secretary to the Department of War in World War II, told committee members of the chaos in Washington during the first months of that conflict because of a lack of adequate information about available armed forces personnel.

The new registration system proposed by President Carter will provide the information America needs, Bunting said.

"The time has come when we may not be able to avoid World War III," Bunting said. "Not being prepared is asking for trouble."

The memorial, which now goes to the floor of the House, was drafted by Rep. Wendy Ungricht, R-Boise.

"Now we've got a few women espousing the liberated philosophy who want to speak for everybody," Ungricht said in support of her original measure. "But this memorial speaks for the way most people feel."

Women have never been and should not now be drafted, Ungricht said. "Because patriotism has traditionally meant protecting your wife and children. That's the inherent meaning of patriotism."

Ungricht drew support from Rep. Gene Winchester, R-Kuna. "We have to put brainy bodies on the front line and certainly women don't qualify."

Registering women opposed

Many vow to resist new draft sign-up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Carter's draft registration proposal was met with calls for resistance by some groups and praised as an equal rights step by others.

Draft registration now "is the wrong plan at the wrong time," declared the assistant Senate Democratic leader, Alan Cranston of California.

"It won't meet our specific military manpower needs. And it could potentially disrupt millions of lives without in any way serving our real security needs."

Any proposal to draft women "will kill" the Equal Rights Amendment, commented Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash. "The people fighting ERA have said over and over again that if you get ERA then you will have to register and draft women equally with men."

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., who got into a celebrated feud with his actress wife, Elizabeth Taylor, at a Republican leadership conference last weekend over the issue, said he still favors registration for men only.

"I will not support the drafting of women for combat, but I am not opposed to the registration of women for non-combat service to the nation," said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz. "I feel that long and full hearings are needed on this very complicated subject before any registration law is passed."

Rep. Tom DeLoach, D-Calif., denounced Carter's proposal as a "decision to campaign for re-election as a born-again cold warrior" and urged a massive grass-roots movement to resist all efforts to reimpose the draft, short of declared war.

Rep. Jay Weaver, D-Ore., predicted so many Americans will refuse to register that it will "look bad." He announced plans to offer legislation to limit draft registration to volunteers.

Barry Lynn, the head of a national anti-draft group, said Carter's draft registration plan will create a new class of anti-draft "felons."

A San Francisco-based group called Students for a Libertarian Society promised to "bring down any registration system under the weight of non-compliance."

The president "has seriously miscalculated the willingness of the American people to accept wartime infringements of their civil liberties when war itself is now only a remote possibility," warned David Landau of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The National Organization for Women, while opposing peacetime registration, agreed women should be included if the draft is reinstated.

But it disagreed with Carter's request that women be registered for non-combat service only. NOW, in a position paper, said tests demonstrate "women are capable of performing satisfactorily or better in combat-related positions."

Phyllis Schlafly, national chairman of Stop ERA, said, "Carter has stabbed American womanhood in the back in a cowardly attempt to get back the election-year support of the radical feminists," she charged following his draft announcement. "The American people are not going to stand for letting our girls be sent over to fight in the Persian Gulf or Pakistan."

Carter's decision drew support from Julia Arvi, national president of the Business and Professional Women Club, and Carol Parr, executive director of the Women's Equity Action League Educational Equal Defense Fund.

"We believe, as the president does, that equal rights means equal responsibility," Ms. Arvi said. "For us the registration of women must mean rapid ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., has predicted registration for women will not pass the House.

Saturday briefing

Iran threatens students

United Press International
Iran's Foreign Minister Saadollah Ghotbzadeh said Friday the ruling Revolutionary Council was prepared to use force if necessary to make Moslem militants occupying the U.S. Embassy obey its orders.

Ghotbzadeh's statements were the strongest yet used against the militants who seized the United States Embassy Nov. 4, although one of their spokesmen said Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini still backed their position that their 50 American hostages would not be released until the ousted shah was returned.

In another development, Tehran Radio reported Friday that leftist Greek Archbishop Hilarion Capucci visited the hostages, now in their 57th day of captivity, and reported them to be in good condition.

Capucci was the first outside observer to see the hostages since American clergy members visited them during Christmas.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Holding Carter said "Soviet units that are stationed along the northwest frontier border are engaged in high levels of activities."

Vietnam installs new order

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI)—A Vietnam entered the second generation of its Communist leadership Friday with the firing of four cabinet ministers and the retirement of three deputy premiers, including war hero Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the defense minister.

It was the nation's first major cabinet shakeup since the communists came to power more than 25 years ago.

The change affects the top echelons of the Vietnamese government including the ministries of interior, foreign affairs and state planning.

China-Vietnam talks stall

PEKING (UPI)—The eight-month-old peace talks aimed at avoiding a new war between China and Vietnam went into cold storage Friday when Vietnam's chief negotiator left Peking for Hanoi indefinitely.

Vietnamese Vice Foreign Minister Dinh Nho Liem flew out on a Soviet Aeroflot plane for a roundabout trip to Hanoi by way of Moscow.

The Vietnamese embassy in Peking denied the talks actually had been broken off. But a spokesman said he did not know when Liem would return to Peking, and that Vietnam would have no other statement until Liem arrived in Hanoi.

Another embassy seized

LIMA, Peru (UPI)—Ten striking telephone workers peacefully occupied the Spanish Embassy in Peru Friday, demanding Spanish diplomats help solve a 5-day-old labor conflict.

The embassy in Lima was the third Spanish Embassy in Latin America to be occupied in nine days.

A spokesman for the Peruvian Telephone Company told UPI the six men and four women telephone workers entered the embassy in downtown Lima shortly before noon.

They said they wanted the assistance of Spanish diplomats in ending their strike.

Occupiers discount warnings

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI)—A spokesman for leftists holding the Spanish ambassador Friday rejected government warnings of energetic measures against them, saying the ruling junta knew that firing "even a single bullet" would be a "political error."

Leftist bands occupied the Spanish Embassy, El Salvador's Education Ministry and the National Business School this week to press a variety of demands ranging from liberty for political prisoners to free trade with the United States.

They held a total of 46 hostages in the three buildings Friday, including Spanish Ambassador Victor Sanchez-Mesa y Juste and six others in the Spanish Embassy.

Israel puts army on alert

United Press International
Israel said Friday it had put its army on alert because Syria's redeployment of its forces in Lebanon could be viewed as preparations for an attack. Beirut Radio said Israeli warplanes buzzed southern Lebanon.

Syria, meanwhile, agreed to a Palestine Liberation Organization request to delay for a "few more days" its planned pullout of 10,000 to 12,000 peacekeeping troops from Beirut, PLO sources said.

No reason was given for the requested delay, the second this week.

Friemen inspect downed plane after collision

Planes collide over L.A.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Two light planes collided Friday over suburban Los Angeles near International Airport, killing three people and scattering burning debris less than 30 feet from a 650-room hotel.

Police said several construction workers on the ground were burned by wreckage from the aircraft. Initial reports indicated at least three people died at the scene and five others injured, at least one seriously.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Al Garvis said debris from one plane fell on Sepulveda Boulevard near the Hacienda Hotel. He said the wreckage from the second plane fell into a construction site at El Segundo Boulevard, about a half mile to the west.

The FAA spokesman said he did not know if either plane was landing or taking off from International Airport.

"As far as I know they were not involved in LAX (International Airport) traffic," Garvis said. "They were probably flying visually."

Response to dollar sale 'wild'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The reaction to the government sale of silver dollars is "wild," a General Services Administration spokesman said Friday only hours after the "cartwheels" were offered to the public.

The GSA began taking mail orders for the Carson City silver dollars Friday and calls for information were pouring in to federal information centers.

The coins are being offered for prices from $45 to $65 each. They are 90 percent fine silver and were minted at Carson City, Nev., between 1878 and 1893.

"It's been wild," said Steve Guibene at the GSA silver dollar project office of the General Services Administration. "Every phone in this place has been ringing off the hook."

Prospective buyers may use order forms to be published in larger newspapers nationwide, or contact a federal information center.

Rhodesia vote questioned

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—With less than three weeks before Rhodesia's independence election, a team of British election supervisors concluded more than half the country is beset by political intimidation that threatens a free ballot, a government source said Friday.

In a survey of the political situation, the supervisors found extreme cases of intimidation of voters in three of the country's eight election districts and less severe, but substantial intimidation in two others.

Heating oil hits $1 in East

BOSTON (UPI)—For the first time, the price of home heating oil has topped the $1 per gallon mark in oil-dependent Massachusetts, a state Energy office spokesman said Friday.

The price for home heating oil hit $1.02 per gallon during the past two weeks in western Massachusetts' Berkshire County and $1.01 per gallon on Cape Cod, although average prices for the two areas were 97.7 and 97.6 cents respectively, spokesman Jerry Carpan said.

Carpan said 72 percent of Massachusetts' homes are heated with oil.

Many women are 'willing' but doubt ability to fight

United Press International
"Many young American women caught up in President Carter's draft registration proposal said Friday they were willing to go—but didn't know if they could actually shoot somebody."

The young women weren't heading for Canada—but they weren't volunteering for anything, either.

"I really feel that since the guys have to go we should have to go too," said Mary Elizabeth Wagner, 20, a student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "But I wouldn't want to see us up on the battlefield or anything like that."

Whatever their opinions, the women weren't at a loss for words.

"Definitely, women should register," said Kate Wietek, 19, of Ohio State University. "And I think they should be involved right up to combat."

"I'll tell you one thing though, they'd better pass the ERA."

"Put (national chairman of STOP-ERA) Schaffly—what's her first name? yeah, Phyllis—put her in the ditch," she said. "Make sure she's in the front line."

"I'm getting married in May, so I think I would just get pregnant, so I wouldn't have to go," said Maxine Harrod, 20, a student at Spelman College in Atlanta.

"Women aren't built like men," said Sarita Johnson, 17, a Baltimore High School senior. "I might break in half or something. And I don't think I'd be able to pull the trigger."

"I am sure I will register," said Gretchen Kady, 19, a Columbus, Ohio, office worker. "If it came down to it, I would go—but I would be scared to death the whole time."

Debbie Haerel, 17, a student at Alhambra High School in Phoenix, Ariz., said, "I think the president is totally wrong. If he makes us go to war he's going to wipe out a whole generation of young people... The kids joke about it, but really they're scared—I'm scared."

"I'm not too excited about it," said Catherine Ladany, a student at the University of Charleston, W.Va. "I think it is something no one looks forward to, but I would not evade it. I'm sure it would not be a cherished memory."

Eileen Lazaar, 19, a Harvard biochemistry major, said she doubted Congress would pass a law for female registration, but she supported the concept.

"I don't want to go, but I think it's only fair," she said.

Female cadets provide answer

Can women endure boot camp?

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI)—President Carter's proposal Friday that women register for the draft raised a question already partially answered by the first female cadets at West Point.

Can women endure the physical training required by the military?

In 1976, when the first class of female cadets was admitted to the U.S. Military Academy, Col. James Anderson, head of the Department of Physical Education, began charting and studying them.

The year before, Anderson designed "Project 60"—a program to study local high school student volunteers to determine the limits of physical feats for young women.

Now a picture of the comparative physical strength of women versus men is emerging.

West Point has found women have about 20 percent less upper body strength than men. Their arms and upper shoulder girdle muscles, in particular, are weaker. They cannot do as well as the male cadets in push-ups and pull-ups.

To compensate for the upper body weakness, academy women are graded against standards for push ups and pull ups and sit-ups by women.

Anderson has found that wrestling and boxing are not for women. Instead, women are instructed in self-defense or martial arts such as karate.

Capt. Charles Hunsaker, coach of the women's track and cross-country teams, said women in these sports compete against other women and are judged according to standards set by women also. The West Point female cross country team came in 9th this year in the National Cross Country Championship competition.

Many of the women admitted in 1976 had already been through Army basic training. At that time, they claimed the academy's basic training regimen the "harshest barracks"—was less difficult than Army boot camp.

And the first 62 women to graduate from West Point have not hesitated to enter into previously all-male military assignments.

Canada won't be haven for dodgers

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (UPI)—Prime Minister Joe Clark said Friday American draft dodgers seeking a haven in Canada would be given a low immigration priority because federal immigration laws have been revised since the Vietnam War.

Clark expanded at his weekly news conference on statements made earlier this week by External Affairs Minister Flora Macdonald who said Canada would not again become "a haven for draft dodgers."

During the Vietnam war, between 50,000 and 100,000 young Americans—many of them draft dodgers or conscientious objectors—entered Canada as visitors then applied for and got landed immigrant status.

But, said Clark, "The law has now been changed to prohibit people from applying for landed immigrant status who had come to Canada as a visitor."

Canada as visitors then applied for and got landed immigrant status.

Col. Jere Forbus, an Academy spokesman, said 27 of the first female graduating class have opted to go into combat areas: engineers, field artillery and air defense artillery.

But Forbus said the women officers would not be in combat, per se. Those assigned to the Air Defense Artillery, for example, would probably be assigned to Hawk or Nike missile units.

Maine's governor predicts Kennedy in Sunday vote

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will win Maine's presidential preference caucus this weekend despite a poll showing his 19 points behind President Carter, Gov. Joseph E. Brennan predicted Friday.

It was the first time in recent weeks anyone in the Maine Kennedy campaign publicly predicted a victory for the Massachusetts Democrat, who said last month he needed to win in Maine to remain a viable candidate.

Kennedy's campaign manager has since said that was not necessary.

"I think Senator Kennedy will come in first," Brennan, the only governor in the country to endorse Kennedy, told a statehouse news conference.

Maine's Social Research Department was based on telephone interviews with more than 200 registered Democrats, but it was conducted over a month period Jan. 7 to Feb. 5.

Senate approves money to check aquifer for radioactivity

BOISE (UPI) — A supplemental appropriation for state monitoring of the Snake River Plain Aquifer was approved by the Idaho Senate Friday.

The monitoring would be to make sure the huge underground water source is not contaminated by radioactivity.

The measure, which provides $61,700 to the Department of Water Resources, was approved 29-1 and now goes to the House.

Proponents urged passage of the bill to reassure the people of the state and those buying Idaho products there was no radioactive danger from the dumping of liquid radioactive waste at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

Floor sponsor Sen. Dean Van Engelen, R-Burley, said it really wasn't known whether there was a problem, but this would provide reassurance to the people of Idaho that the water is safe as the federal government asserts and if not the state people on board (to monitor) can let us know."

Van Engelen said it's like taking out airplane insurance, "you know you're not going to be killed, but you buy it just in case. We need insurance."

He said the fish farms operate in the Hagerman Valley, where the water of the aquifer flows into the Snake River are sacred because of reports in the media about the dangers of radioactivity contamination to the aquifer.

"This is a little double check," said Sen. Kenneth Bradshaw, R-Wendell. "I don't think a little sunshine up there would hurt anyone."

Bradshaw said the aquifer was one of Idaho's greatest resources that a chance should not be taken that it is contaminated. He said it affects the people and businesses of southern Idaho.

While he didn't question the federal scientists at the INEL, he said there was always the chance for mistake such as the case of PCB problem contamination last summer that "broke" three or four chicken industries.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration knew of the problem, he said, but because an investigator went on vacation and the chicken industries "went broke" because of a human mistake.

Elsewhere in the Legislature Friday:

• A bill to repeal a law requiring the Idaho health and welfare department to pay a certain amount of nursing care costs under the federal Medicaid program was voted for introduction by a House committee.

• Ignoring the argument Idaho's new May primary election should at least get a test before legislation is introduced to abolish it, the Senate State Affairs Committee voted to print a bill to return the primary to August.

State takeover of federal land

Indians fear losses with 'sagebrush rebellion'

BOISE (UPI) — Representatives of Idaho's Indian tribes Friday objected to proposed legislation providing for the state to take control of public lands within its boundaries for fear they would lose more treaty rights.

Bill sponsor, Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, told the House Agriculture Affairs Committee the bill would only transfer the management of Bureau of Land Management lands to Idaho.

"We can't manage them (public lands) a lot better on the state level," Brooks said. "We can do it cheaper and make the state quite a lot of money."

But Idaho's Indians expressed concern that if the state gained control of the lands, economic factors would override treaty guarantees.

Lionel Boyer, president of the Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians and a Shoshone-Bannock, said Indians opposed the Sagebrush Rebellion on the state and national level.

Boyer said "little consideration" was given to Indian rights in the drafting of the various Sagebrush Rebellion bills and he said he believed "little consideration would be given to Indian rights if the laws are implemented."

"The problem of treaty rights cannot appear side by side with the economic development of natural resources which the state would take," Boyer said.

Larry Echo Hawk, an attorney for the Shoshone-Bannock tribes, said the Indians wanted to continue their relationship with the federal government and not have to begin to develop one with each individual state.

Echo Hawk said the "ambiguous language" contained in the proposal "was not sufficient to protect their (the Indians') rights."

He said Indians' rights had been protected for 200 years by the U.S. government and that "those rights would not be protected with as much vigor" by the state.

Committee agrees to expanding hours

Liquor store chief ired by negative comments

BOISE (UPI) — The House State Affairs Committee reacted favorably today to the angry comments of state Liquor Dispensary Superintendent Mike McAllister and approved a measure allowing the expanded sale of hard liquor on holidays.

"I'm getting sick and tired of this," said McAllister, saying the liquor dispensary returns more money to the state than any other agency but doesn't get any thanks.

"We get all kinds of negative comments, but never anything good," McAllister spat. "We get all kinds of comments from counties that don't like liquor, but you never hear them complain when they get their check."

McAllister's agency was promoting a bill to increase the number of legal holidays that the 58 privately-owned state-contracted liquor stores could remain open. On a do-pass recommendation, it was sent to the floor with five committee members voting no.

McAllister said the private stores serving as state liquor outlets in Idaho's small towns lose a lot of business to bars on the legal holidays.

Under the proposal, the contract stores would have to close only on the holidays of Christmas, Memorial Day and Thanksgiving, as do the bars. Now, they have to shut down on all nine regular legal holidays.

Several committee members argued that the change would increase the availability of liquor and contribute to more accidents.

Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, said the revenue provided to the state through liquor sales "doesn't even begin to pick up the tab" of the loss of jobs, broken homes and the extra police have to put on the streets.

"No one forces anyone to walk into these stores," McAllister countered.

Bill would return state primary to August

BOISE (UPI) — Ignoring the argument Idaho's new May primary election should at least get a test before legislation is introduced to abolish it, the Senate State Affairs Committee voted to print a bill to return the primary to August.

"The ink is not hardly dry," said Sen. Ron Twitler, D-Boise, who was instrumental in moving the primary election to May to combine it with the Presidential election.

"It should go through one election and see how it works," he said, adding that to return to an August primary would cost $300,000. He said that was the amount the state figured to save by combining the two elections.

Senate President Pro-Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, sponsor the legislation, said having the primary election would cause a stress on the families and businesses of legislators, who spend three months in session and then have to rush home and begin campaigning.

Sen. Lester Hartvigsen, D-Malden, agreed with Budge, although he said he did not object to having the Presidential Primary Election in May.

Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, said he could accept the May primary if legislators served a four-year term, "but every two years is just too much."

San Clemente bids farewell to Nixons

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — New Yorkers may be reluctant to have Richard Nixon living next door, but many of the former president's neighbors of a decade are sorry to see him go.

Nixon leaves for the East Saturday leaving many inhabitants of San Clemente grateful he was here, or at most indifferent.

Townscopiers from mayor to waitress almost unanimously use the same words to describe their reaction:

"Politics aside, he put us on the map."

The effects of Nixon's stay range from the tourist dollars he brought in to "The President's Choice" taco plate at his favorite Mexican restaurant, which will maintain the brass plaque marking his chair as a token for the day he returns.

He is remembered as a man who golfed well and loved tequila margaritas.

He was a man who remained aloof from local affairs and treasured privacy. But he was a regular financial supporter of the local Boys Club and Girls Club and opened his estate to a bus tour by thousands of gawkers to raise money for the town's 30th birthday celebration.

While Nixon lived a mostly reclusive life in the six years since he resigned the presidency, and shut himself away on an estate—some dubbed "Elba by the Pacific," townspeople mostly remember him as cordial, if distant.

They repaid in kind.

"There was no local hostility—quite the opposite," said Ron Pontius, chief of the Secret Service detail at the Nixon estate for four years.

"Whenever he went golfing or shopping people would run up asking for autographs, asking how he was. He was a very friendly man... and the people responded to him with friendliness."

"It's been a real privilege having President Nixon here," said Mayor

Roy Hamm. "We're definitely going to miss him."

"He's had a comfortable stay, able to come and go and lead a normal life. I hope he can have the same situation in New York, but I doubt that."

"Back in the late 50s I'd say I was from San Clemente and my friends would say 'where's that?' We don't have that problem now."

Nixon was most often seen in public at the Estrella Country Club, where professional Larry Case recalled him as a friendly man and a good golfer.

"He used to play here a lot, about twice a week," Case said. "He plays a pretty good game of golf, shoots in the low and middle 80s, which is pretty good on this course."

"We're mighty sorry to see the Nixons go," said Mrs. Russell Henchman of the San Clemente Republican Club, one of 30 GOP women volunteers who helped deal with Nixon's mail.

Britons want queen to retire at age 60

United Press International—SECOND TEAM

The Demosthenian Club at the University of Georgia in Atlanta has a remedy for Ted Kennedy's frustration over President Carter's refusal to debate him—let the kids take over as surrogates. The Demosthenian Club has invited Robert Kennedy Jr., the senator's nephew—to take on Jack, Chip or Judy Carter, and young Kennedy was quick to accept. Says club spokesman Stuart Woods, "We await only a reply to see if Carter will come out of the rose garden."

CHEWSY

Alabama Gov. Fob James' pup has expensive tastes and he's very much in the dog house as a result. But first lady Bobbie James really did bring it on herself. She gave "Knut Frodo" to her husband for Christmas, and now he's gone and chewed the bottom off her mink coat. She'll have to send it away and have about six pellets replaced—says, "I had waited for 24 years to get that coat. I guess that's what I get for leaving it on the sofa."

DOWN IN THE POLLS

Unlike President Carter, Queen Elizabeth doesn't have to make a re-election bid, and that's fortunate for her. A poll run by News magazine in London shows 60 percent of Britons surveyed want her abdicated—with most favoring retirement at 60, and with 1 in 10 urging her to step down now. Says the magazine, "So popular is Prince Charles that many people would clearly like to see him become king sooner rather than later." The Queen turns 60 in 1966.

ART AND TAXES

The Italian taxman may not be able to get his hands on Sophia Loren's husband, but he's already got her hands on her art collection and he's not about to let go. Miss Loren has lost a court bid in Rome to get back canvases by Rubens, Picasso, De Chirico and Braque—all confiscated to settle tax claims against husband Carlo Ponti when she tried to take them to her home in France. The government says they're state property now—all $3.8 million worth.

NAZDAROVY!

Fighters in Vermont are just as steamed up over the Russian invasion of Afghanistan as anyone else—but not to the detriment of today's Liquor Control Commissioner Jean Hickey says sales of Stolichnaya—the only imported Russian vodka—still are booming. But a spokesman for the importer of the firewater adds, "We've had stories of bartenders serving it with an American flag stuck in the drink. They'll pour it, but they're not happy about it."

MOTOR MUTT

Michael Wilson has been booked for hit and run in Boulder, Colo., and he says that's unjust because his dog was driving. Wilson admits he was pushing the gas pedal—but says Booger, his Brittany spaniel, was at the wheel when his car tore down a section of fence around a public home. He's up for pretrial hearing Feb. 25—says he'd like to bring Booger to court. And what would Booger do for his case? Says Wilson, "She would just sit there and act sophisticated."

Soviets join Bermuda triangle study

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet research vessels Friday began a voyage to the Bermuda Triangle to join a U.S.-Soviet oceanographic research program, the Tass news agency reported.

Scientists aboard the Sergei Vavilov and the Pyotr Ledebev believe giant whirlpools — more than 100 miles wide in some cases — may be responsible for some of the many mysterious disappearances in the Bermuda Triangle region.

"The Soviet oceanographers consider the continuing research into gigantic underwater vortexes discovered by them to be their main objective," Tass said.

However, Tass cautioned that not all the evil reputation can be ascribed to the giant whirlpools in the area that encompasses hundreds of square miles in the Atlantic Ocean.

What's what

Cooking up porcupine is pretty simple chore

Nothing could be simpler than cooking a porcupine. Slit its underside and clean it. Roll it in wet mud until it's completely coated. Put it into an open fire to roast. The heat hardens the mud while it cooks the flesh. When it's done, crack and peel the mud casing, which strips off the quills. Tasty. Mighty tasty. An old porcupine cooker told me that.

So many things that don't make the best sense are exceedingly difficult to change once they get set. Like telling time. Sixty seconds in a minute and 60 minutes in an hour - just isn't neat. Nor is 12 inches to the foot and three feet to the yard. Fahrenheit temperature readings are impractical, too. But generations remain stuck with them. For who knows how long.

BEER BANKS

The West Germans have come up with an intriguing variation on Christmas savings clubs. They call their beer banks. And they're multiplying rapidly. On the bar of a tavern rests a large metal strongbox in which are 70 numbered slots. Each slot is assigned to a certain club member. Year around, that worthy puts bar change in the slot. Each month the strongbox is opened at a bank, and deposits are made to the accounts. Just before Christmas at year's end, the bank accounts are settled up with each member. The interest is used to finance a holiday beer bust.

DECISIONS, DECISIONS

What some people don't realize is that they go on making decisions all night long through their sleep. And these decisions, for the most part, are the same: to wake up or not to wake up because of some noise. The exact don't shut down. They transmit each sound to the brain. It's the brain then that decides whether the sound is sufficiently significant to need conscious attention.

If you don't think punctuation is important, leave it out of this sentence: "The man," said the woman, "was drunk."

Burley BLM manager approves sludge line

TWIN FALLS — The district director of the Bureau of Land Management in Burley said Friday he will recommend approval of a pipeline right-of-way to sludge ponds in the Snake River Canyon.

Nick Cozakos, Burley district BLM, said he will ask the state director to dismiss the protests against a permit for a roadway-and-pipeline from the Twin Falls city sewage plant to the sludge ponds in the canyon.

He said the state director will issue a decision, probably within a week.

"I really can't find any compelling reason to deny the application, and in my judgment there is an obvious public need for the project," Cozakos said. "It is in compliance with the county zoning regulations and has the approval of the Idaho Department of Health."

The city of Twin Falls has located ponds for storing sewage treatment sludge in the canyon near the treatment plant for use in emergency situations.

Cozakos and Acting City Manager Tom Courtney say there is a strong possibility the ponds will never be used, but if so it will probably be during winter months when the ground is frozen and sludge cannot be injected into farmlands for fertilizer.

Residents on Meander Point and other canyon rim areas protested the location of the sludge ponds below their homes, fearing they would be subjected to odors and health hazards.

Cozakos said the ponds are located on private property, but he said his decision is not on the sludge ponds or the sludge.

"I am only recommending approval on the pipeline. There is no way I can assess the environmental impact of the ponds when they are on private property," he said.

In making his recommendation, the Burley federal agency official also listed a number of stipulations.

He is asking the city be required to inspect the pipeline at least daily for possible leaks and make immediate repairs to any damage found.

"The city would be required to clean up any spills that might occur, to the satisfaction of the BLM. The city would have to restate to its original condition all soil-and-ground contours and seed the soil within a year after the pipeline is abandoned. There could be no upgrading of the pipeline without prior permission from the BLM district manager.

Other stipulations would require no soil be removed from the federal land to cover the line. It would have to be brought to the site. Vehicles using the area would be confined to existing roads.

Further, the city would have to comply with all stipulations issued by the Department of Health and Welfare in letters dated Jan. 7 and 28 covering use and service of the ponds.

Cozakos said when a decision is made, if there are recommendations followed, there will be a period of 30 to 90 days granted for appeals from those protesting the project. These appeals will be considered by the Department of Interior, Board of Land Appeals in Washington.

Courtney said Friday he is happy with the district recommendations, but he is concerned about the appeals period.

"I think if we are going to have to use these ponds, it will probably be within the next 30 to 90 days because of frozen ground. The appeal period, if it extends that long, could shut us down," Courtney said.

He said the city is now injecting all of the sludge produced at the sewer plant.

"We have been fortunate this winter. So far, we haven't been delayed or stopped by frozen ground and we have enough requests from farmers to last us more than through the year," Courtney said.

At the present time the city has requests for use of the sludge as fertilizer on some 6,000 acres of land which would more than use up the year's supply. Courtney said the sludge is being given farmers on a first come, first served basis with priority to farms within a short haul distance from the plant.

Max Robbins, of Paul, struggled Friday to groom a reticent Miss Pace, 400-pound Duroc sow, for today's sale at the Filer Fairgrounds.

There'll be a lot of squeals heard

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

MAGIC VALLEY — The pigs arriving at the Filer Fairgrounds Friday were dressed to kill.

Washed, brushed, clipped and oiled — the 50 registered Durocs will be shown and sold today. The sale starts at 12:30 this afternoon.

Lyle Barton, who has raised Durocs in the Magic Valley for 32 years, said, "Some of the better hogs in the country will be here."

Barton is an officer in the local Duroc association and he will also be the auctioneer, today. One of the keys for a "crier" is to know the animals, he said. "You have to be able to say something good about every animal, even if it's just that there's a good-looking gal driving it."

Barton said this sale will give local swine producers a chance to buy animals that can improve their herds. "It's a long-term investment," he said. "You're buying genetics."

Barton estimated that at least half of the animals will be sold to local producers.

At this and similar auctions, local livestock producers are buying prize-winning animals to build future herds.

For example, C.J. Boss, a Twin Falls cattle producer, recently bought the high-selling bull at an auction in Spokane. He paid $3,000 for a Polled Hereford bull raised at the Helms and Sons Split Butte Ranch in Rupert.

"That's what you have to do to get ahead in this business," he said.

One of the Durocs for sale today was the grand champion female at the Oregon State Fair, Barton said.

Other animals have been brought from Washington and Colorado for sale here.

What this shows is that the local swine industry, despite depressed hog prices this year, is healthy and growing, said Vern Miller, president of the local Duroc association.

"The industry has really grown in this area in the last few years. Prices are depressed, but they'll come back," he said.

Cattlemen also will get a chance to buy some choice, locally grown Herefords Tuesday at the Twin V Ranch in Gooding.

The bulls, heifers and calves, owned jointly by the Twin V and the Soldier Mountain Ranch in Weidelt, come from a herd featuring "Elephant," the country's largest hereford bull, and "IV Mark Domino 3123," last year's all-Idaho champion bull.

John Hillfield, one of the owners of the Twin V, said as many as 600 people could be at Tuesday's sale.

He said about half of the animals will probably be sold to local producers, with buyers also coming in from Colorado, Wyoming, Nevada, Oregon, California, and possibly Tennessee and Kansas. He said buyers will probably spend about $300,000 for the 200 Herefords at the sale.

"We're trying to breed bulls that can put the pounds on cattle," he said.

"We try to make contact with past buyers and see what our bulls have done for their operations," he said. "We're getting some repeat buyers."

Another upcoming sale in the area will be in Gooding Feb. 16. The Hereford sale will feature 82 bulls.

Twin Falls Police get excellent help from city residents

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If the Twin Falls Police Department had an outstanding citizenship award, Police Chief Tim Qualls would be giving it to townspeople for their help this week.

Qualls said most Twin Falls residents are always willing to assist police but this week has been a shining example of their responsiveness.

Thursday night, a burglary victim, his neighbor and several citizen's hand radio operators teamed up to help police apprehend two suspects.

Earlier in the week a taxicab operator, Bob Hopkins of the Shuttle Inn, followed a suspect vehicle, after being held up at gun point, and obtained a license number which aided in the arrest of four suspects.

Still earlier this week, a Twin Falls police officer, H. L. Brown, was being beaten by three individuals he was trying to arrest. Residents living in the area came to his assistance and called police for more backup officers.

"I think people in Twin Falls are always cooperative, but this week they had some excellent opportunities to show that cooperation. I'm tickled to death. It has meant a great deal to my department and we've had a good week," the chief said.

About 7:35 p.m. Thursday, the chief said, Mark Beams and his family returned home to discover two strangers in their home. Beams and a neighbor pursued the two as they fled the house and the individuals left their pickup truck behind.

Qualls said the police impounded the vehicle. A short while later Beams was standing in front of his living room window when someone drove past in another vehicle and shot out the window. Beams escaped injury and summoned police.

Qualls said officers began pursuit of a suspect vehicle and were aided by citizen's hand radio operators around town. The CB operators reported the route of the suspect vehicle to police by radio communications.

Qualls said with the help of the CB reports, the suspect vehicle was overtaken and stopped on Fifth Avenue West.

He said James B. O'Dell, 28, and Robert Ray Stone, 29, both of Twin Falls, were arrested and charged with first-degree burglary and aggravated assault in connection with the break-in and shooting.

Both were in custody late Friday in lieu of $20,000 bond apiece.

Snowmobile accident injures Burley man

TWIN FALLS — A Burley man who suffered a fractured back in a snowmobile accident in Shoshone Basin was listed in stable condition in a hospital Friday.

Joe Degollado, 22, of Burley, was taken by Magic Valley Ambulance from a snowmobile trail in Shoshone Basin, southeast of Rogerson, late Thursday.

The accident occurred about 3 p.m. Thursday about three quarters of a mile inside the southern boundary of Sawtooth National Forest.

After emergency treatment at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital he was transferred to St. Alphonsus Hospital at Boise.

Twin Falls County Sheriff's officers said Degollado was riding a snowmobile on a roadway which was closed by snow. He was not an experienced snowmobiler, according to others in the party, and apparently attempted to round a curve too fast.

He was drawn from the machine to the hard-packed snow.

A companion traveling behind him, Randy Korb of Burley, said the machine did not fall on the rider or on over him, but he apparently hit the snow with considerable force.

Deputy Sheriff Brad Bradley praised other members of the Burley group, saying they kept the injured man lying flat on the ground and wrapped in jackets and other warm clothing until the ambulance could reach the scene.

It was necessary to break a trail over the snow-choked road with a four-wheel drive vehicle so the ambulance could get close enough to the victim to prevent having to move him a great distance.

Degollado was suffering signs of paralysis when transferred to Boise, officers said. Officers said it took more than an hour to bring the victim from the scene of the accident.

Thumb loss award $12,000

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls County man who lost a thumb in a grain auger accident in 1977 has been awarded $12,000 damages in 5th District Court here.

Fair Schneider was asking a total of $402,300 in damages in a suit against Farmers Merchant Inc. He charged negligence on the part of the firm which owned the grain auger.

He said in his complaint he was employed by Nelson Inc., a firm hired to haul grain on the Sandow Farms near Blackfoot.

On May 14, 1977, while working in the bed of a truck helping feed grain to the auger, he fell against the auger. The thumb on his left hand was severed, he said. Schneider charged Farmers Merchant Inc. was negligent in allowing the equipment to operate without chain guards. When he fell, he said, his hand was pulled into the chain and the lower portion of the thumb removed.

In a special verdict, the jury answered questions submitted by Judge James M. Cunningham, stating there was negligence on the part of the defendant and also on the part of the plaintiff. The jury found the defendant firm was 60 percent at fault and Schneider 40 percent, declaring damages suffered by Schneider totaled $20,000 and awarding him 60 percent of the total.

State energy official says VanEngelen is self-serving

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — State Sen. Dean VanEngelen, R-Burley, is attacking the Office of Energy in order to "make a name for himself," the office's assistant directors said.

Assistant Director Jeannette Branch, visiting Twin Falls Friday, charged VanEngelen is attempting to dismantle the state Office of Energy in order to "make a name for himself with the Republican leadership" in the Legislature.

Some Republicans want to make the governor look bad by making it appear he has no energy program," Branch said about plans to transfer major programs from the Office of Energy to other state agencies.

Last week the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, on VanEngelen's motion, approved the transfer of a hospital and school energy-efficiency program from the office to the Department of Administration.

Other major program transfers are the emergency fuel allocation program to the Department of Agriculture and a geothermal test well project for heating state buildings to Administration.

Gov. John Evans has threatened to veto the attempt to dismember the energy office.

Branch said even if the Legislature overrides a veto and fails to appropriate money to the energy office, Evans can and will re-establish the agency, which is funded almost completely by federal moneys.

Also, the transfer of the hospital and schools program is illegal, because it violates terms set down by the federal government, the energy office believes. Confirmation is expected today from the regional office of the U.S. Department of Energy in Seattle.

VanEngelen's attack also diverts attention from Evans' program to create an energy department, Branch said. While acknowledging the bill has little chance of passage, she said it deserves a hearing in the Legislature.

In Twin Falls to address one of several "trend symposiums" being sponsored across the state by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Branch said Evans' bill to create a state Department of Energy is still a "viable issue to be raised."

Many people in Idaho support the idea and its critics are ignoring the state's need for the department, Branch said.

Branch stressed the department would not be a regulatory agency. It would have the ability to issue rules and regulations, but 95 to 99 percent would be done at the direction of the state Legislature, Branch said.

For example, she said, the Legislature could grant tax incentives for companies that develop energy conservation. The energy department would then implement that law.

The proposed department of energy would employ 15 state-funded and 10 federally-funded workers. The Office of Energy staff now totals 22 but is authorized to total 29, Branch said.

She said establishing an energy department would give the Legislature confirmation power over its director and would give Idaho a more authoritative and unified voice in Washington, D.C.

The state is now "ill-equipped to participate in federal energy policy decisions," Branch said.

"That's what we've been trying to say to the legislators," she said. "If you want to be involved, get involved. Don't just complain."

The West

Nevada not taking New Mexico cons

CARSON CITY, Nev., (UPI) — State Prison Director Chuck Wolff Jr. under criticism for agreeing to accept inmates from New Mexico, said today Nevada wouldn't be housing any inmates after all.

Wolff said he was told by New Mexico authorities today the inmates ticketed for Nevada would be sent to other states. Wolff initially offered to accept 100 on an emergency basis and the number of reduced to 30.

Wolff said New Mexico has stabilized its situation but Nevada stands ready to offer technical help such as staff if it is requested.

The director and the prison board have been under criticism for agreeing to accept any out-of-state inmates because of overcrowding in the Nevada system. Wolff said he initially told New Mexico authorities Nevada would house the inmates only as a last resort and if there were no other alternatives, because of the excessive number of prisoners in Nevada facilities.

The State of Nevada Employees Association Thursday complained the acceptance of the added inmates would create a dangerous situation for the correctional officers at the prison. Association director Bob Gunter said there was already a "woefully inadequate staff" at the prison.

Wolff said the criticism by Gagner had nothing to do with the latest development that Nevada would not receive any inmates. Gagner said there were already overcrowded facilities; insufficient recreation and occasional programs for inmates and inadequate training for staff.

These ingredients, Gagner said, contributed to the riot in New Mexico.

Wolff said there was overcrowding of inmates and it presented some problems.

Government panel will tell Andrus Teton Dam material wrong

BOISE (UPI) — A government panel will tell Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus today that the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation used improper construction practices when building the Teton Dam, the Idaho Statesman reports.

The Boise Statesman says the government report supports previous studies, however, that said the actual cause for the 1976 dam failure was design, not construction. "The failure of the Teton Dam was due to a design that did not protect the dam's core from erosion seepage," the report states.

The dam failure would not have occurred if the bureau provided for a way to drain or filter water which seeped into the core of the dam, F. William Eikenberry, chairman of the Teton Dam Review Group, told the newspaper.

Eikenberry said the construction failures were the Bureau of Reclamation's fault, not the fault of Morrison-Knudsen Co., a Boise firm that was the primary contractor on the project.

An $8-million lawsuit has been brought against the government and the contractor by a group of insurance companies seeking to recover damage claims paid out to residents and businesses that were leveled by the flooding. A federal appeals judge in San Francisco is reviewing whether the federal government is immune from such action.

The Teton Dam disaster resulted in 11 deaths and $400 million in property damage, although lawsuits for claims under the Teton Dam Recovery Act are still being filed in U.S. District Court for Idaho. If successful, those suits could increase the total.

The Statesman reports that the panel's findings are the first time criticism has been directed at the Bureau of Reclamation — now known as the Water and Power Resources Service. The group's first report, issued in April 1977, said an "adequate design permitted by the failure of the dam, but did not mention the bureau's construction practices.

Although the construction "weaknesses" did not cause the 300-foot dam to collapse, the report says, the government should conduct better geologic studies to evaluate construction sites, improve its methods of stopping seepage and improve its review of soils used to build such earth-filled dams.

Murder case is bound over

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Jeffrey Christensen, 17, was bound over for trial in 7th District Court Friday on a first-degree murder charge in connection with the July 1977 shooting death of his father, John.

Christensen is being held without bond in the Bonneville City-County jail in Idaho Falls. No trial date has been set.

Late Thursday, Magistrate Judge James Martsch ordered a partial lifting of a gag order imposed Tuesday to prevent the news media and others from discussing the case.

Carter signs a revised Bear River Compact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Jimmy Carter signed a revised Bear River Compact today that allows construction of several dams along the stream, which flows through Utah, Idaho and Wyoming.

All three states receive increased water storage allotments under the new agreement, which also brings ground water allocation within the scope of the compact for the first time.

Changes in water allocation and agreements on ground water use were needed to settle disputes that had prevented work on new dams.

The Utah, Idaho and Wyoming state legislatures and the U.S. Congress all approved the revised compact last year. State and federal officials earlier negotiated the new compact. It replaces a water distribution agreement which had been in force since 1958.

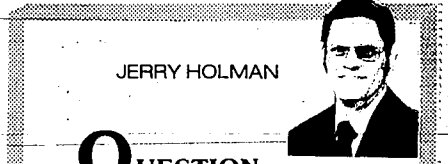

Under the new compact, Idaho has first rights to 125,000 acre-feet of water, including ground water, below Bear Lake. Utah has rights to 275,000 acre-feet. The next 150,000 acre-feet of water is divided equally between the two states.

In years when there is water in excess of the first two allocations, 70 percent will go to Utah, 30 percent to Idaho.

Bear Lake, Utah, and Wyoming have storage rights to 55,000 acre-feet. Idaho can store 4,500 acre-feet of water. Utah and Idaho will each get 47 percent of any water that overflows the lake, while Wyoming will get 6 percent.

The Bear River irrigates 300,000 acres of farm land, and powers five hydroelectric power plants that produce a total of 125.5 megawatts of electricity.

Its headwaters are in the Teton Mountains of Utah — it then flows through southwestern Wyoming, southeastern Idaho and back into Utah. The river empties into the Great Salt Lake.

JERRY HOLMAN

QUESTION ...

Why are morticians licensed by the State?

ANSWER

Primarily we are licensed to safeguard public health and secondary to establish an orderly system for the care and disposal of those who have died. Unless both of these functions are performed under the control of a state licensing authority the situation could become chaotic. In recent years the public interest aspect of licensing has evolved. We believe this is equally as important as the issue of public health. Funeral service companies have become the original data source of public interest information. We furnish the documentation for Workmen's Compensation, Social Security Annuities, Civil Service Pensions, Veterans Allowances, Railroad Retirement Benefits and all of the other rights and benefits survivors may be entitled to receive. State Licensing Boards are now demanding as much competency in the public interest aspect of funeral service as they have always required in that affecting public health.

Montana governor's divorce opens up financial questions

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — Montana Gov. Thomas L. Judge is divorcing his wife, Carol, Thursday, ending a 14-year marriage.

Dist. Judge James Wheelis granted the no-fault divorce and warned of possible contempt of court action if either party released detailed financial information submitted for his review of a negotiated property settlement.

The Judges have been living apart in Helena since last year. They have two boys, Tommy, 12, and Patrick, 9.

Judge and his wife engaged in a two-day conversation as they departed the courtroom. "Congratulations, Judge said.

"Same to you," replied Mrs. Judge.

"It was a great romance," Judge added.

"Not quite so" was a very bitter remark, she said.

Asked by "newsmen" for a public comment, Judge refused. "It's a private matter," he said.

Judge retains "capital assets" in an advertising firm that he earlier stated was put in a blind trust for his sons, a document contained in the court file of his divorce proceeding shows.

The document, released to the news media by Judge Wheelis of Missoula, also stated that Judge receives "a good deal of imputed income" while serving as governor. Sources and amounts of the income were not revealed.

The filing also indicated that Mrs. Judge has suffered from alcoholism due in part to the stresses of Judge's political life.

Wheelis has conducted much of the case behind closed doors. It was not known, for instance, whether the governor responded to a demand for sworn answers to questions regarding any bank accounts or other assets he may have that are not known to his wife.

But in a document titled "Statement of agreed facts," statements were made that speak to her health and offer unexplained hints at Judge's financial affairs. The "statement of agreed facts" was not signed by lawyers for either side.

Another Demo after Symms' seat

BOISE (UPI) — A state Department of Health and Welfare caseworker Thursday became the first Democrat to announce his candidacy for Rep. Steve Symms' second congressional seat.

Terry McKay, Kuna, announced his candidacy Thursday in Boise, Coeur d'Alene and Lewiston.

McKay, a political unknown, said he had not "actually sought support" from the public prior to his campaign, but is offering himself "to the working people — the people I choose to represent."

"Our common roots... will result in a grassroots movement for me," McKay said.

"Although McKay said he opposed the Vietnam War, he said "any response by the United States" to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the situation in Iran "is justified."

McKay said he supported the immediate registration of "draft-age Americans," but not the reinstatement of the draft unless the situation in the Middle East worsens.

He also said he supported government incentives to promote the installation of geothermal, solar and wind space and water heating in new and remodeled buildings.

Increased production, use and marketing of alcohol as a fuel would not only reduce American dependence of foreign oil and natural gas, but also could shift the country's balance of payments from a $25 billion deficit to a $25 billion surplus, McKay said.

He said that "might even get the housing market started again, helping the Idaho lumber industry."

On welfare reform, McKay said his experience indicates "the food stamp program... must be eliminated totally."

HERE'S WHY ...

Bob Adamson, Service Manager and V.P., and his crew of professionals. (Tom Ash and his crew of installers, Not Shown.)

We opened our doors 34 years ago with a slogan "IF WE CAN'T SERVICE IT - WE WON'T SELL IT"

34 years later with drug stores, variety stores, department stores and discount stores selling appliances, microwave ovens, TV's and stereos — our slogan remains the same — and our sales are bigger every year.

Our customers appreciate the personalized service our trained professionals give them. In fact, they demand it. They don't appreciate doing business with a 3rd party, who many times, aren't properly trained and who aren't concerned with their goodwill.

Our installation and service crews are trained and concerned, and pledged to carry out our company policy of 100% satisfied customers.

You are invited to join our family of happy and satisfied customers. We buy at direct-from-the-factory prices, (No Middlemen), and give liberal trade-in allowances and have custom made terms.

You'll find our sales people just as professional, and concerned as our installation and service crews.

Energized stock market soars higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oil and natural resource speculation and rising hopes for a solution for the Iranian crisis propelled the stock market to new highs Friday in a heavily traded session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, ahead about 3 points at midday, climbed 10.24 points to 957.73, its highest level since it finished at 857.61 on Oct. 5. It gained 14.25 points for the week, including 3.64 points.

The Dow transportation index soared 6.72 to an all-time high of 305.90 and finished the week with a record 22.30-point, or 8 percent, gain.

Speculation that one of the largest natural gas fields in U.S. history may be located in the Overthrust Belt in Wyoming where Indiana Standard's Amoco unit and others are drilling triggered a stampede for natural resource issues.

Indiana Standard officials cautioned that more testing is needed to determine how large and commercial the field is. But speculators weren't waiting.

Their actions rubbed off on much of the rest of the market. The New York Stock Exchange index climbed 8.88 to an all-time high of 67.57 and the price of a share jumped 45 cents.

But, the speculative nature of the market stood out in breadth figures. Advances topped declines by only 879 to 658, among the 1,920 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Big Board volume totaled 57,860,000 shares, compared with 57,690,000 traded Thursday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 64,787,200 shares, compared with 66,690,000 Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange Index soared 2.54 to a record 238.79 and the price of a share jumped 31 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks gained 1.24 to a 1979-80 high of 165.25.

At 4 p.m. EST, energy and natural resources issues dominated the Big Board activity. Texaco was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1 1/2 to 40 1/2 in trading that included a block of 131,800 shares.

Guil Oil, one of the participants in the Overthrust Belt, was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, up 3 1/2 to 47 1/2. In trading that included a block of 146,000 share at 4 1/2. Mobil Corp. was third, up 1 1/2 to 63 1/2.

Among the others with holdings in the Overthrust Belt, which has a 31 percent stake, rose 1 1/2 to 100 1/2 and Union Pacific, which owns 7 million shares of mineral rights in the area, climbed 4 1/2 to 196 1/2. Dow Chemical, which has a 13 percent interest, climbed 3 1/2 to 39 1/2.

Connor Lake Placid appeals Taiwan order

resigns at BSU

BOISE (UPI) — Boise State head basketball coach Bob Connor has resigned his post, effective at the end of this basketball season.

Boise State Athletic Director Lyle Smith said he has accepted Connor's resignation and will begin immediately to search for his replacement.

"I tell the pressure to make the conference playoffs was becoming unbearable for my basketball team and me, although we certainly feel that we can make the playoffs," Connor said.

"We have three of our next five games at home and our goal is the same as it has been all along — to get into the league playoffs. I think by resigning now, I can relieve our team of that pressure, and continue on with the job at hand."

Connor has been head coach at Boise State since 1972 when he took over in mid-season for former coach Murray Satterfield. Since that time, he has compiled a 92-102 win-loss record and a 51-56 record in the Big Sky.

He coached Boise State to a Big Sky Conference Championship in 1975-76 and was named Coach of the Year in the Big Sky for his efforts.

Two years later, Connor again took the Broncos to the conference playoffs in Missoula, Mont., but lost in the opening round to the host Montana Grizzlies, 70-61.

Connor came to Boise State in 1966 as an assistant football and basketball coach. He also coached the tennis team but relinquished that assignment when he became head basketball coach in 1973.

Smith praised Connor as "a real asset to Boise State's athletic program. He said he felt the Broncos still have a chance at the conference playoffs.

"I regret that the ball didn't bounce a little better for our team this year, but we still have an opportunity to make the playoffs and I sincerely hope we can," Smith said.

He said Connor could be reassigned in the Physical Education Department at Boise State if he chooses.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — The Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee Friday appealed a court order allowing cross country skier Liang-Ren Guay to compete in the Winter Olympics.

But Liang will be allowed into the Olympic Village pending the appeal, the LPOOC's lawyers said.

The appeal of Thursday's ruling by New York State Supreme Court Justice Norman L. Harvey will be heard Monday in the Appellate Division of State Supreme-court in Albany, N.Y.

The LPOOC is appealing on the grounds that the constitutional rights of Liang haven't been violated, but William Kissel, the Committee's general counsel, said Liang would meanwhile be admitted to the Olympic village.

The Taiwanese Olympic athletes booked out of their Lake Placid hotel Friday morning, but have not yet made a second attempt to obtain accreditation to the Olympic Village.

Two Taiwanese delegates, accompanied by five team members, Tuesday refused to accept the offer of accreditation under the name Taipei instead of the Republic of China.

The ruling and forthcoming appeal are the latest chapters in a running feud between Taiwan and the International Olympic Committee following the IOC's decision last November ordering Taiwan to change its flag, emblem and anthem if it wanted to compete in the Olympics.

The reason for the IOC decision was to try to solve the political problems between Taiwan and Peking and allow both nations to compete in the Olympics. But Taiwan has fought the change.

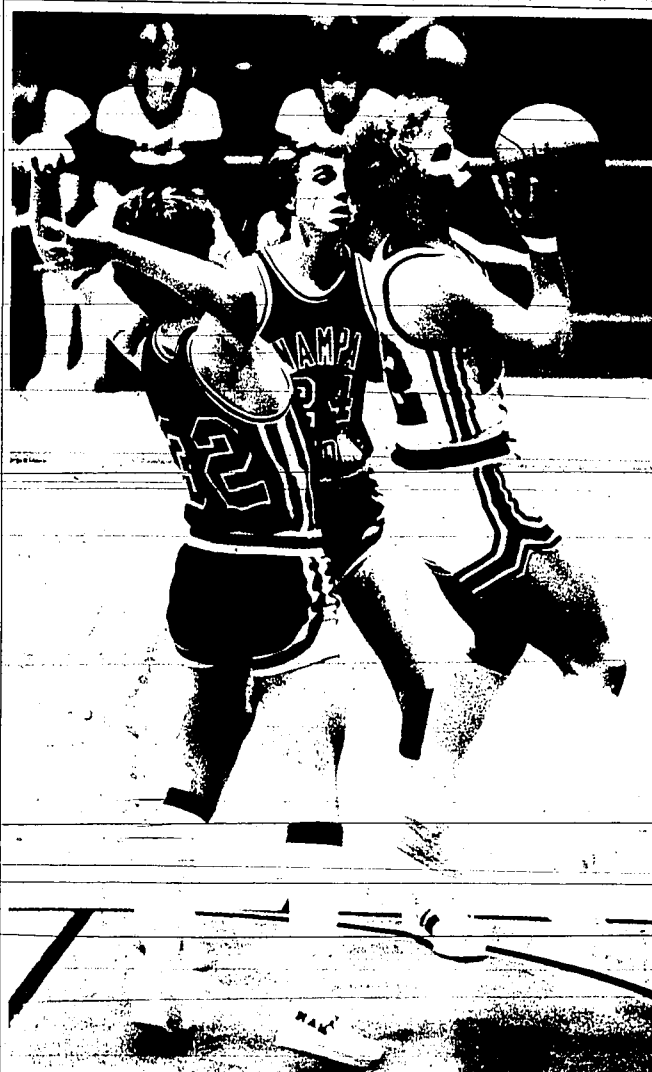

Last week it lost a case against the IOC in a Swiss court, but Judge Harvey ruled in favor of Liang, a 30-year-old nordic skier, and ordered the organizing committee to allow him to compete in the Games using the Republic of China national flag.

An IOC spokesman said the IOC's lawyers were following the case closely but would not join the LPOOC in its appeal at this stage.

In Taipei, the Republic of China Olympic Committee welcomed the latest court decision.

"It shows that the U.S. judiciary is above politics in administering justice," said Shen Chiu-ming, its president of the ROCOC.

Bruin Gary Krumm drives between two Nampa defenders for a jump shot in the key

Get revenge

Bruins roar by Bulldogs

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Jeff Jardine may have become an Southern Idaho Conference player Friday night.

The 6-2 Twin Falls senior, coming to organized ball for the first time after being content to play church ball, had a personal-best night of 13 points and several rebounds to pace the Bruins to a 68-60 decision over the Nampa Bulldogs.

The victory broke a four-game losing streak for the Bruins who will travel to Capital tonight.

Jardine kept the Bruins in the game in the late second quarter and contributed a three-point play in the early going of the fourth period when Twin Falls was out-scoring Nampa 15-2 in the decisive breakaway.

Most of his shots came from close in but he did wheel out of a three-man pack for a 15-foot jumper in the second quarter.

"It feels a lot better," he smiled afterward. "I don't know why I did it," he said when asked about the jumper "but it went in."

"He's been doing things like that all year, working his family off in practice," said Coach John Astorquia of his church league recruit. "Tonight he did it in a game. Up to now he's been very timid in games. Maybe tonight will get him going."

Astorquia said "we were better tonight," referring to his disappointment over his team showing in a Tuesday loss to Burley. "We were hustling, going on the floor after the loose balls and rebounding. That's how we won it."

Although the Bruins led most of the game, Nampa had hot hands at different times to keep in the thick of things.

At the outset it was the outside shooting of Jeff Anderson and Rick Markus. Nampa was crippled when Markus had to sit out several minutes in the second half with four fouls. But while Bruins was on, Ron Garlie provided an excellent keyhole shooting exhibition.

Twin Falls took the lead at 8-6 on a Clay Mechem jumper and for a few minutes in the second quarter appeared on the verge of breaking it open. Lars Hovey hit four points and Jim Crandal two to open up a 22-14 lead. But after that the Bruins could get points only from Jardine six of them — while Markus, Anderson and Garlie pulled Nampa back to within three.

It stayed at one to five points through the first half of the third period but Nampa took the lead on a Bill Miller free throw and Anderson and Markus immediately added three more points.

Ron Sayer and Jim Merkle pulled Twin Falls back into a 40-40 draw but Markus and Garlie then potted four straight free throws to give Nampa a 44-41 advantage going into the final eight minutes.

Twin Falls came alive when Crandal scored to open the period and Merkle then got a crumple off a break shot. He added two more on the next Bruin possession. Gary Krumm added a baseline jumper.

Anderson interrupted with a Nampa field goal before Jardine hit a three-point play. Hovey added two free throws and Krumm scored again. That shot the Bruins into a 56-46 advantage.

After that Garlie hit three field goals and Nampa had eight free throws to stay within eight to 12 but the Bruin lead was never seriously challenged again.

Coach Astorquia showed a little memory on those two Hovey free throws, noting they came as the result of a technical foul.

"I remember they nailed me for a six-point technical at the wrong time up there, too, so it was just a matter of evening things up for us. They were big points for us at the time."

The coach said he planned on using basically the same game plan against Capital that worked for an overtime victory earlier in the year. In that one he stuck closely to a two-one-two zone defense and played a very deliberate offense. He said he expected the Eagles to come out in a pressure defense, noting his guards would face harassment from a quicker troop of Eagle frontcourt men.

Bean catches Burns at top of Open

HONOLULU (UPI) — Big Andy Bean scored a course record-tying 63 to tie George Burns for the second-round lead in the $325,000 Hawaiian Open Friday.

Beans, who scored his first career victory last week in the Crosby, shot a more conservative 69 after a 65 tied him with Leonard Thompson for the first-round lead.

Thus, after 36 holes, Bean and Burns, two of the biggest players on the Tour, and also two of the toughest hitters, had scores of 10 under par 134.

Frank Conner, who started out as a tennis professional and wound up on the PGA Tour at age 29, shot a second round 67 that left him only a stroke behind Burns and Bean and one stroke ahead of Don Pooley and Ed Sneed.

Another stroke back, at 137, were Peter Oosterhuis, John Schroeder, Larry Nelson, Arnie Melnick, Chi Chi Rodriguez, John Mahaffey, and Don January.

Lee Trevino, making his 1980 debut this week, shot his second straight 69 to lead a group at 138, while Tom Watson, who started his year two weeks ago by winning the San Diego Open, was in a group at 139.

Two-time defending champion Hubert Green bounced back for a 69 Friday but it wasn't enough to avenge an opening-round 76 and he thus failed to make the cut for the final two rounds.

Beans was spectacular in the heat, making an eagle on the first hole and eight birdies for his 63. His only lapse came on the eighth hole, which he bogeyed, and he also missed putts of four feet on the fifth hole and seven feet on the 12th hole or it might have been a 61.

"I'll never complain about a 63," said the 6-foot-3, 210-pounder, who last year shot a 61 en route to his victory in the Atlanta Classic. "I'm just glad that I was looking ahead to Murlough Tuesday. I think we were playing Hansen and Murlough tonight."

Wood River used Liz Leo underneath to stretch the lead out to 26-14 by halftime. And by the third period it was 37-16 as Diane Schaal hit Buhl's only third period field goal with two seconds left.

The final period turned into a series of fouls, jump balls and traveling violations as Buhl scrambled to get back into the ball game.

"We were just trying to get back into the ball game," said Smutny. "Too much aggression in trying to catch up, guess. But it was a hopeless task."

Wood River spent most of the fourth quarter on the charity line, but could only manage eight points.

Wood River used a fast break during the game, breaking away for easy baskets to blow it away.

When the Wolverines weren't scoring on the fast break, they were keeping the Indians 30 feet from the basket on offense.

Hansen Huskies surprise Wolves

By IRWIN CURTIN

HANSEN — Randy Clark had a 25-minute nightmare Friday night. Castleford's coach watched his boys' basketball team absorb a 64-50 drubbing here at the hands, er paws, of the Huskies. The loss prevented the Wolves from clinching at least a tie for the Magic Valley Conference title.

"I can't believe it. I had no idea this was coming," said a dazed Clark after the game. "We practiced pretty well during the week. The only thing I can think of is we were looking ahead to Murlough Tuesday. I think we were playing Hansen and Murlough tonight."

Lucky for Clark the Wolves played only Hansen Friday night. They were challenge enough.

Virgil Adams paced a balanced Hansen attack with 16 points, while Brent Barsh scored 10 and Jeff Conner added 8. The Wolves received 11 points from Carl Tall and 12 from Dave Kusnusa.

Castleford jumped out to an 8-1 lead midway through the opening quarter on the strength of several fastbreak baskets, but the taller, huskier Huskies started to assert themselves on the boards and played a half-court trap to perfection to get back in the game.

"We played very well," derstated Hansen coach Rod Pruett after the game. "We had potential and a lot of injuries this season. But when you control the backboard like we did tonight, you've got a good chance against most teams."

"We've been working on that trap for three or four weeks, and it paid off tonight. Putting the pressure back on them is just something they're used to. It got us a lot of cherry-picker baskets."

"That trap really hurt us," said Clark. "If we broke it [and that didn't happen too often], we throw up a bad shot. We never set up our offense, never moved it around."

"And we just didn't board enough. They're big and physical. They're getting three shots and we're getting one bad one."

The press helped Hansen tie the score at nine with 2:30 left in the period. It led to a handful of easy baskets on turnovers and, combined with the second and third chances the Huskies converted underneath, resulted in a 17-11 lead after one quarter.

For the Wolves, things only got worse from there. Their shot selection deteriorated — even the good ones didn't drop — and the Huskies, who didn't shoot particularly well themselves, turned their continued domination of the boards into more points.

"The guys are really disappointed and I am too, but we just fell short tonight," Smutny said. "All I can do is just hope that Wood River does well or, wow, night, and then play good at state. I think they will represent our district well."

"It worked for us tonight. I was really pleased with their defense, and it made a difference."

Wolverine girls to play Bishop Kelly for state tourney trip

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

BUIH — Five straight nights of basketball finally got to the Buhl Indian girls.

Playing their fifth game in as many nights, the Indians came out in the second half like new ones, and the Wood River Wolverines chased their way to a 45-22 victory Friday night. The win gives Wood River the District Three A-1 championship.

But the Wolverines have one more roadblock before they claim a state berth. They will travel to Mountain Home tonight to do battle with the Bishop Kelly Knights. The winner of that game advances to the state tournament next week at Boise.

"I don't want to lean on that excuse too much," said Buhl Coach Janet Smutny about the five straight games. "Our offense just didn't go tonight, and we did ourselves in."

The Indian offensive problems started from the opening tip off.

Buhl could only manage two points in the first quarter while giving up 12 at the top of the key — shooting the ball and praying most of the time missing.

"We were just lucky their two good weren't hot," said Wood River Coach Terry Tracy. "Last night they just killed us, so we changed our defense to compensate for it."

The defense was set up to play the front court man-to-man, and clog up the middle with a 1-2 triangle.

"It worked for us tonight. I was really pleased with their defense, and it made a difference."

In baseball Money may sway players

(c) 1980 Chicago Sun-Times (Field News Service)

Johnny Bench would support a players' strike but warns it probably would be more difficult than ever before for players "to stick together."

A longtime All-Star catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, Bench's biggest concern is that a delay in the opening of the season would put considerable financial pressure on some of the players who have signed big-money contracts.

"A lot of these guys went out and bought the store before they had anything to pay for it," Bench said in a telephone interview Thursday from St. Petersburg, Fla., where he was on a business trip.

"Money pressure is different from performance pressure on the field," Bench said. "Getting a hit in the ninth inning is one thing. A professional ballplayer can handle that."

"But if you've got to come up with $5,000 or $100,000 by the end of the month and you don't have a job or an income — that's pressure. You just can't reach out and grab some money."

Bench, whose annual baseball income is believed to be about $300,000, said he thinks players initially would support a strike.

"If you can't assure me you can change a lot of things," he warned, "I think a lot of players will fold. Well, maybe not fold, but relent."

"I talked to Tom Seaver about it the other day. He agreed not all players have the same situation. Many players have contracts with performance clauses. You can earn a bonus for total wins, number of hits, runs batted in — that sort of thing. It could be more of a hardship for these players."

Bench's remarks were similar to those of Carl Yastrzemski, the $600,000-a-year Boston Red Sox star. A reluctant unionist, Yast has been a vocal irritant to most of his fellow members — including League Baseball Players Association.

While attending a banquet in Manchester, N.H., Yastrzemski told an interviewer that the players were "not likely to be on strike in 1972."

That year they struck the first 13 days of the regular season. It was the only general player strike in baseball history and forced the cancellation of 16 games.

"I was directed in 1972," Yast said. "That year I think there were only three days in the game making what would be considered big money — myself, Hank Aaron and Harmon Killebrew."

"This time some guys are losing thousands of dollars each day if the owners went ahead and started the season with minor league players. If this happened, I think a lot of them (major leaguers) would come back."

CARL YASTRZEMSKI talks about strike

Despite what Bench and Yastrzemski say, the educated guess is that 80-85 percent of the players would stand firm behind the leadership of Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association.

Doug DeCinces, Baltimore Orioles third baseman who is active in association affairs, insists the players will remain united. DeCinces lives in Valencia, Calif., and has twice flown to attend the bargaining sessions in New York City.

DeCinces also presided at a regional player meeting on Jan. 23 at the Los Angeles Marriott. There have been several meetings to keep the players informed on the state of negotiations.

According to DeCinces, the 60 players attending were "from all ages veterans and rookies." All were in favor of holding firm, including Dave Winfield and Rod Carew, baseball's second highest paid player at $300,000 a year.

Carew told the group remembered "1972" and wasn't making much money, and how they might be "glorified their careers to help me make what I'm making today."

Simultaneously, at another regional meeting in Houston, Nolan Ryan, baseball's first million-dollar-a-year player, was making an equally stirring speech in support of the association.

"Too many guys realize where they got their big money from," said DeCinces. "Sure, there might be one or two who don't agree, but it's because they don't know what's going on. Once you sit in on one of those meetings (bargaining sessions) there isn't a player alive, whether he be the minor leaguer, or wherever, who wouldn't stick together. Once a guy sees what's going on, we've got him right." Apparently all, except Carl Yastrzemski.

Arizona State into overtime, then two key free throws. Johnson State pulled down 11 rebounds Thursday night to help garner the win over 16th-ranked ASU.

The Bruins had trailed since early in the first period when Johnson tied the game 62-62 in layup with 9 seconds remaining in regulation. Jeff Stout then hit a basket and Johnson added his free throws to put Oregon State, 11-1 in the conference and 21-2 overall, in the lead for good at 70-66.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

The New Chrysler Corporation is doing business like Detroit never did it before.

The Chrysler Guarantees.

What's new about The New Chrysler Corporation is a new way of doing business.

A way of doing business that commits The New Chrysler Corporation to the American car buyer long after the new-car smell is gone.

A way of doing business that says we will back our cars better.

A way of doing business that says we will service them better.

A way of doing business that will even take care of you if you run into trouble on the road.

A way of doing business that doesn't insist you buy on faith, but encourages you to compare.

A way of doing business—that will change the business.

The Chrysler Guarantees.

Starting January 31, The New Chrysler Corporation gives the American car buyer guarantees no other car company has ever given.

A 30-day/1,000 mile money-back guarantee. Guaranteed no-cost scheduled maintenance. Guaranteed no-cost motor club benefits with emergency road service. And a $50 test drive offer just to prove our confidence.

These commitments from The New Chrysler Corporation cover most new 1980 vehicles. But for your personal use only. No doubt you will have many questions. We urge you to see your participating Dodge or Chrysler-Plymouth dealer.

1. The first 30-day/1,000 mile money-back guarantee.

Only The New Chrysler Corporation has the confidence to back its cars with a money-back guarantee.

Buy one of our new 1980 passenger cars. Drive it up to 30 days or 1,000 miles, whichever comes first.

If you're not completely satisfied, you'll get your money back. But not the finance and insurance charges you have accrued. All you do is bring your car back to your dealer in good condition. When he receives clear title, he returns your money.

Nobody else does that. Not Ford. Not GM. Not the Imports.

Only The New Chrysler Corporation.

2. The first guarantee of no-cost scheduled maintenance.

You want better service. You want your investment protected.

You'll get it from The New Chrysler Corporation. When you buy or lease a new 1980 car or truck.

You'll receive oil changes, oil filters and other scheduled maintenance specified for each vehicle. For 2 years or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first. For 1 year or 12,000 miles on our imports. No charge.

Nobody else does that. Not Ford. Not GM. Not the Imports.

Only The New Chrysler Corporation.

3. The first guarantee of no-cost motor club benefits with emergency road service.

We all drive. We all worry about emergencies on the road.

The New Chrysler Corporation provides a two year membership in the Amoco Motor Club when you buy or lease a new 1980 car or truck. Benefits include emergency road service, emergency towing, car theft reward. And a lot more. At no cost to you—subject to the conditions of membership.

Nobody else does that. Not Ford. Not GM. Not the Imports.

Only The New Chrysler Corporation.

And a $50 test drive offer to prove our confidence in Chrysler engineering.

The New Chrysler Corporation has improved the quality of its products by 32 percent in just the last year. That's what gives us the confidence to pay you to compare.

Test drive any of our new 1980 cars or trucks. Buy one of ours. Or buy any qualifying new car or truck from one of our competitors within thirty days. Then return the test-drive certificate with proof of purchase. And the fifty dollars is yours.

Nobody else does that. Not Ford. Not GM. Not the Imports.

Only The New Chrysler Corporation.

The New Chrysler Corporation must make it in the marketplace.

The New Chrysler Corporation is in business to stay.

The New Chrysler Corporation has made a 13.5 billion dollar commitment to build more and more fuel-efficient cars for an energy-short America.

The New Chrysler Corporation has made a commitment to build better cars. To back them better. To service them better.

The New Chrysler Corporation is doing business like Detroit never did it before.

And the automobile business will never be the same.
