

Recession signaled; banks up prime

© The Los Angeles Times
A government index designed to forecast economic activity fell in January for the fourth consecutive month.

The fall suggested to some analysts Friday that the widely-predicted but elusive recession may arrive soon.

In addition, the cost of borrowing money continued to move sharply higher as banks throughout the country raised their prime-lending rates to a record-breaking 16 3/4 percent Friday, reflecting the Federal Reserve Board's efforts to tighten the money supply and slow the economy.

The Department of Commerce reported that its index of leading indicators fell 0.7 percent for January, following declines of 0.2 percent in December, 1.9 percent in November and 1.1 percent in October.

December's index reading initially had been reported as unchanged, but the figure was revised to show a decline.

A rule of thumb among certain economists is that three consecutive months of decline in the index of leading indicators points to a coming recession.

"The recession is not far off. These numbers are consistent with the view that economic activity is at best flat and possibly declining in the future," Department of Commerce economist William Cox said.

But some private economists caution against reading too much into the figures.

"The index doesn't show enough yet," said Robert Gough, an economist at Data Resources Inc., a Massachusetts forecasting firm.

"In the past year, the index has shown bad signs, leading many people to shout that the recession finally was coming. In each case, however, it didn't happen," Gough said.

"The chances of an up-start in the economy are still quite stable."

Some economists suggested that the decline of the index may be outdated. They pointed out that the prime cause of January's decline was a drop in the nation's money supply and argued that the more variable may not be as important as it once was because of difficulty in accurately measuring the supply of money.

However, the drop in the money supply was not the only indicator contributing to the decline in economic activity last month. Other components causing the index of leading indicators to fall were the payoff rate, the number of companies receiving slower deliveries from vendors, change in liquid assets, change in raw material prices, and contracts and orders for plant and equipment.

But some components of the index rose last month. They were the average work week, building permits, new orders and stock prices.

The index last month stood at 135.1, or 35.1 percent higher than its 1967 base of 100. That is nearly 6 percent below its peak of 143.6 in October 1979. It was the lowest index level since July 1977.

The decline in economic activity appears to be a reflection, in large part, of the Federal Reserve Board's money-tightening moves. But with loan demand continuing to remain strong, the Fed two weeks ago raised the discount rate — its charge on loans to commercial banks — to 13 percent from 12 percent.

The latest step-up in interest rates began Friday with Citibank, the nation's second-largest bank, which boosted its prime rate to 16 3/4 percent from a 16 1/4 percent rate established only one week ago. Many other major banks already had set a 16 1/2 percent rate.

The Citibank move was followed by similar announcements from dozens of financial institutions.

The prime rate is the basis for setting interest rates on loans to commercial and industrial borrowers. The most creditworthy businesses pay the prime; others may pay several points higher.

Although the prime does not directly affect interest charged on loans to consumers, it is often an indicator of where non-commercial loan rates are headed. The cost of consumer borrowing already has been going up, with even mortgage rates rising.

Some banks have imposed fees on credit cardholders or changed the way interest is computed on credit card balances, assuring themselves a higher return.

Three women impregnated High-IQ sperm bank uses Nobel winners

© The Los Angeles Times
SAN DIEGO — Later this year three East Coast women with infertile husbands give birth for the first time.

They will then become the first beneficiaries of what may well be the world's most exclusive men's club.

It's a sperm bank — but with a twist.

All its donors are winners of the Nobel Prize in science.

"Yes, I'm one of them," said William B. Shockley of Stanford University, winner of the 1956 Nobel Prize in physics. "This is a remarkable attempt and I'm thoroughly in sympathy with this sort of an approach."

To date, at least four other Nobelists have donated to the bank, three women have been successfully inseminated, and more than two dozen other women from across the nation have expressed interest. In following suit, according to Robert K. Graham, who founded the sperm bank, All of the women have exceptionally high IQs, according to Graham.

Shockley, in an interview, said he was surprised that some of his fellow Nobel scientists were not willing "to add their names to this good cause."

In addition, in Shockley, the existence of such a sperm bank also was confirmed by at least five other people who were consulted along the way, including Steve Broder, a Los Angeles sperm bank supervisor who said he helped set up.

The man behind the unusual bank is Robert K. Graham, a 74-year-old, self-made Escondido, Calif., business tycoon, who is understandably pleased.

"The dream began in Hermann Muller's mind a quarter-century ago, and it's now finally in initial operation," said Graham, who, behind a veil of secrecy, has masterminded the bank's controversial dream to fruition.

The Repository for Germinal Choice, currently located in a concrete underground chamber, is named after Dr. Hermann Muller, a 1946 Nobel Prize-winning geneticist who, even as a young man, became concerned about the declining genetic endowment of succeeding generations.

Later, Muller began advocating a human sperm bank in which donations from brilliant men would be stored until after their death, at which time their sperm would be offered to selected women wishing to increase their chances of producing exceptionally bright children. Muller's hopes were bitterly attacked by many, and he died a somewhat disappointed man at age 78.

But today, 33 years later, Muller's legacy has become reality.

Graham himself is no dilettante. He pioneered the techniques that led to modern plastic spectacle lenses.

The women are offered a selection. Graham explained:

"She sees those forms the Nobelists fill out, but with the names removed. We start out with half the number of offspring and in too many cases there was too much resemblance."

The forms include a donor's weight, height, age, IQ, various

Robert K. Graham, 74-year-old business tycoon, stands in underground chamber on his estate in Escondido, Calif. At lower left is sperm repository containing specimens from Nobel Prize donors.

"hereditary," and "outstanding" characteristics, color of eyes, skin, hair, the number of offspring and the number of normal children.

The last question is crucial, Graham said. "It would show that he's a good male, and that his kids are normal. And that's important to a woman who's choosing, so she knows he's not an undesired stud."

At the bottom of the forms, Graham reserves space for his own comments.

"A very famous scientist," he wrote on one such form. "A mover and shaker. Almost a superman."

For reasons of confidentiality, Graham would not divulge the names of scientists who have donated to the repository.

Federal cutback urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top House Republicans Friday urged President Carter to send Congress a balanced budget within 10 days.

They said it was needed to curb an inflation rate they said threatens survival of the nation's economic system.

House Republican leader John Rhodes and five other House GOP leaders pledged party support if Carter will submit a revised budget that is balanced by reducing non-defense spending, not by increasing the tax burden.

"As a country, we have run out of time," they said. "If not checked immediately, inflation will cause such erosion of our public and private institutions that our economic system will be unable to survive."

"Although we may not agree with every aspect of your new budget, we can assure you that every Republican in the House of Representatives will work with you in seeing that a balanced budget in some form is adopted," Rhodes said.

Signing the letter with Rhodes were Republican Whip Bob Michel, III, and Reps. Samuel Delive, Ohio; Bud Shuster, Pa.; Trent Lott, Miss.; and Delbert Latta, Ohio, ranking Republican on the Budget Committee.

The Republicans said they hoped the president will respond to their proposal in time for adoption of a first congressional budget resolution proposing initial spending goals for fiscal 1981.

"Because inflation has now reached crisis proportions and because the Congress will begin work shortly on the first budget resolution, we urge you to submit a balanced budget within the next 10 days," the letter said.

The letter cited January consumer price index figures which have been projected as an 18-percent inflation rate for 1980.

In Idaho, first congressional district candidate Wayne Kidwell told supporters in his hometown that he supports Sen. James McClure and other representatives' announced filibuster in the U.S. Senate.

Kidwell, a Republican, said the Congress will begin work shortly on the first budget resolution, and he apparently is needed to bring Congress to its senses about holding down government spending.

Kidwell, who officially opens his campaign headquarters in Boise Tuesday, said he supports a tax-reduction plan put forth in the Senate that would give federal taxpayers a 30 percent cut over a three-year period. He said only a few more votes are needed in Congress to pass this bill, which he said would increase business activity and the standard of living.

Idaho House holds up gas tax hike

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News Staff Writer
BOISE — A plan to raise Idaho's state gasoline tax by two cents a gallon was stalled in the House Friday.

But representatives agreed to give the plan a second chance later in the session.

Also likely to come before House members in the near future is a measure which would increase taxes on trucks and heavy vehicles using state roads.

House Bill 592 was initially killed on a 32-38 vote. That measure would have raised the existing state tax on gas-cents to 11 1/2 cents a gallon.

But descriptions of eroding highways and gaping potholes led representatives to give the bill a second chance, now scheduled for March 11. Several legislators also expressed interest in considering, before that date, a plan to increase the taxes paid by trucks and heavy vehicles.

A House committee will consider increasing those taxes on Tuesday.

Throughout Friday's debate, legislators pitted arguments in favor of tax relief against warnings the state's road system was in desperate need of repair.

Idaho has 5,500 miles of highways, said Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, chairman of the House Transportation Committee. But many of those roads are unprepared because of shrinking revenues from gas taxes.

Gas tax funds, which are used in large part for road construction and repair, are decreasing because motorists are driving less, driving more fuel efficient cars, and driving slower, Sessions said. In each instance, less gas is used, less tax is paid, and fewer funds are available for road maintenance, he said.

Federal road appropriations have remained static, Sessions added. "So inflation has eroded the value of those dollars." Costs of petroleum-based asphalt and other road repair supplies have also increased, he said.

Increasing the gas tax by two cents would bring the Idaho Transportation Department an additional $45 million, the county and highway districts an additional $2.3 million, and the cities an additional $1 million, Sessions said.

Sessions drew support from Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paoli, who warned that delaying road repairs would in the long run make them more expensive.

"The cost to the people of not passing this will be much greater than if we do pass this," Neibaur said.

But the tax plan drew criticism from Rep. Jim Golder, R-Boise, who said the highway department has the capacity of looking within itself and reducing its expenditures," Golder said. Only when the department trims its unneeded spending should new highway funds be voted, he said.

Rep. Bud Lewis, R-St. Maries, also attacked the proposed gas tax hike.

"The people of the state of Idaho don't want a tax increase," Lewis argued.

They voted for the 1 percent initiative that would raise the tax to 11 1/2 cents a gallon.

Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ola, also questioned the tax increase. Idaho drivers were asked to conserve gasoline, and to drive more slowly, Munger noted. When they followed that advice, gas consumption was reduced and gas tax revenues fell. Idahoans should not be penalized with a higher tax for doing what their government asked them to do, Munger said.

Munger also questioned whether all road repairs would be that important. "It can still dodge quite a few checkbooks at 55 miles per hour," he said.

Colombia to open negotiations

Leftists threaten to kill ambassadors

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — The Colombian government agreed Friday night to open negotiations with leftists occupying the Dominican Embassy residence.

The move came after a reported guerrilla threat to execute two ambassadors held hostage. The negotiations are expected to be conducted in a truck parked in front of the embassy residence where an estimated 40 men, nearly all of them diplomats — remain captive.

The last five women hostages were released earlier in the day.

The men taken hostage Wednesday include U.S. Ambassador Diego Agencio, Valencian delegate Angelo Acerbi and the heads of 12 other diplomatic missions in Bogota.

Radio Caracol, a national news network, reported that one guerrilla inside the residence confirmed a 10 p.m. EST Friday deadline was set, at which time two hostage ambassadors would be executed.

The guerrilla did not tell the radio network what the government must do to prevent the executions, but tersely said, "They know, the government knows."

The presidential press office later issued a communique saying it will park a truck in front of the besieged embassy within sight of the guerrillas as a prelude to the opening of negotiations for the release of the hostages.

More than 20 men and women guerrillas of the April 19th Movement took over the residence of Dominican Ambassador Diogenes Mallol during a diplomatic reception Wednesday, seizing nearly 60 people.

The latest development indicated the guerrillas had forced the government to give ground on the secret set of conditions laid down earlier in the day by Foreign Minister Diego Uribe in a conversation with one of the hostages, Mexican Ambassador Ricardo Galan.

The guerrillas are demanding the release of 311 jailed leftist comrades and payment of $50 million ransom for the release of the remaining hostages. They also want a guerrilla manifesto published in all major Colombian newspapers.

In Washington, U.S. officials pointed out that several prominent Soviet bloc ambassadors left the Dominican embassy about 15 minutes before the guerrilla raid, but they drew no firm conclusions from that.

One official speculated it may have meant there was prior knowledge on the part of those ambassadors that something was going to happen.

But he also noted that seven ambassadors from NATO countries were absent from the reception and it was considered certain they had no prior knowledge.

Diplomatic sources said the government's main concern in working out a formula for negotiations with the guerrillas was to preserve the lives of the hostages. Representatives of the countries affected are cooperating in an attempt to find a solution to the problem, the sources said.

Saturday briefing

Terrorists threaten deaths

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim issued an urgent appeal for the release of the diplomatic hostages in Bogota and warned that such actions created "a serious threat" to normal international relations.

He urged all nations to ratify the new International Convention Against the Taking of Hostages, unanimously adopted by the last U.N. General Assembly.

The first 13 hostages released Thursday included two women, one 18-year-old boy and two wounded men — Honorary Paraguayan Consul Rafael Viced and an embassy employee.

The last five women walked out of the embassy Friday morning and were taken to the military hospital for a checkup. All were in good condition.

The other five women were Uruguayan Consul Elba Nury Bazan; Venezuelan Vice Consul Angela Delgado de Salazar; Mrs. Ana Paez Tejada, wife of the Peruvian consul; and Mrs. Margarita Mallol, wife of the Dominican ambassador.

The government has refused the release of all women hostages and wounded as a condition for starting talks with the guerrillas.

U.N. panel-hostage meet out

United Press International

Moslem militants Friday harshly rejected any meeting between their 50 American hostages and the U.N. fact-finding commission to hear, directly or indirectly, earlier assurances they would meet by the ruling Revolutionary Council.

The rejection suddenly threw into doubt the five-member panel's mission to end the U.S.-Iranian crisis.

"The students don't allow the commission to come here," a spokesman for the militants said in an interview by telephone from London. "It's only for show. That's what (Ayatollah Ruhollah) Khomeini says."

But in New York, U.N. spokesman Rudolf Stauder, meeting with reporters after the militants issued their rejection, insisted the meeting would take place "soon," but he refused to specify a specific time or date. Following usual policy, he would not comment on the militants' rejection.

Tehran Radio, monitored in London, reported earlier that the Revolutionary Council had received the approval of Moscow for the meeting.

In Washington, White House press secretary J. Powell said President Carter was not dissatisfied with U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's handling of the Iran crisis.

The questioner referred to reports in the Washington Post that Waldheim made "mistake" and "miscalculations" in dealing with the Iranian government on the commission's goals.

600 slain in two months

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Two persons were hanged and nine others shot to death in violence-ravaged El Salvador's latest bloodshed, authorities said Friday.

The dead included a 15-year-old boy and a young woman, authorities said.

Politically motivated attacks have convulsed El Salvador in recent months, but neither "rightist" nor leftist groups claimed immediate responsibility for the latest killings.

The military-civilian junta which took office last October has not been able to stem the violence as both radical extremes locked in for power.

In another development, spokesmen for the Catholic Church said government forces and right-wing extremists killed at least 600 people, mostly poor peasants.

Kennedy cuts staff in half

United Press International

Sen. Edward Kennedy will cut his paid campaign staff in half, seek $270,000 worth of speech time on television and seek efforts to big in the states, his campaign manager announced Friday.

The changes were spurred by financial problems and Kennedy's 2-1 record against President Carter two months into the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy's campaign manager, Stephen Smith, said Kennedy will cut his 200-member paid staff to under 100, map strategies for primaries in such delegate-heavy states as Illinois and New York, and try to buy time for three 30-minute speeches on the television networks at about $90,000 each.

In other developments:

- California newspapers reported that Gov. Edmund Brown, a Democratic presidential candidate, is losing national campaign director Tom Quinn. Two papers said Quinn is quitting because he cannot afford to work without pay any longer, and misses his family.
- A George Bush campaign worker who charged John Connally's campaign with working for black votes in South Carolina said he got the information second hand. "I have no proof," said Bush worker James Timmons. Connally has denied the charge.

More Soviet troops sent

United Press International

A revolutionary council to unify Afghan rebel units in their fight against the Soviet-backed government of Babrak Karmal will soon be established, rebel sources in Pakistan said Friday.

"The ultimate objective of the revolutionary council will be the liberation of Afghanistan," said Pir Syed Ahmad Ghalani, 47-year-old leader of the Gomi-Islami Front, in Peshawar.

In addition to Ghalani's Gomi-Islami Front, the exile groups are the Hizbi Islami, the Afghan Islamic National Front, Harkat Inqilabi Islami, Hizbi Islami Khalis and Jamiat Islami.

In Washington, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin met briefly in a possible first move toward a discussion between the U.S. and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on the neutralization of Afghanistan.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter refused to open the subject and Dobrynin declined, except to confirm it included Afghanistan.

But, after the meeting, some officials raised the possibility that Vance might soon meet Gromyko, perhaps at funeral services for Yugoslav's President Josip Broz Tito, who seems near death.

Bank exec charged in holdup

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — A middle-aged bank executive was charged Friday with conspiring with a one-time police officer and another suspect to stage the $270,000 robbery of his own bank, the largest bank heist in Connecticut history.

Conitus Cobb, a First Bank vice-president described by his employer as an "exemplary" worker, and former policeman Ronald A. Bala were arraigned in Thursday's robbery of a branch bank Cobb managed in a run-down neighborhood.

"This kind of case was being sought, the FBI said. The loot had reportedly not been recovered.

Less than 24 hours earlier, authorities had described Cobb as a victim, seized by two masked gunmen and marched into the bank where he was forced to open the vault and the handcuffed to a filing cabinet with six fellow employees.

Cobb, 46, of Hamden, was arrested early Friday with Bala, 36, of West Haven, and charged with conspiracy to violate federal bank robbery laws. Both were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Arthur H. Lattimer.

Bank officials said they were "shocked" by the charges lodged against the branch manager and bank vice-president.

Troops maneuver in Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Friday that U.S. intelligence has indications the Soviet troops in Cuba are preparing to start one of their periodic military maneuvers.

"The presence of the Soviet brigade in Cuba remains a source of serious concern to us," the department said in a statement. "However, based on present evidence, this exercise in and of itself does not contradict our understanding that the Soviets will not enlarge the unit or give it additional capabilities."

Past U.S. estimates have put the size of the unit at about 2,000. There are no indications it has any airlift capability.

Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said apparent maneuvers are an insult to the United States.

Apparent fraud cited Andrus halts oil leasing

The Los Angeles Times

DENVER — Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus, citing evidence of "large-scale fraud" and "widespread abuses" Friday suspended all operations of the federal government's two largest programs for leasing oil and gas leases on public land in Western states.

Andrus acted after federal investigators told him that a six-month, Denver-based inquiry had uncovered probable violations of wire fraud, mail fraud and conspiracy statutes in the awarding of non-competitive leases for oil and gas exploration on thousands of acres of federally owned land.

Investigators refused to discuss their findings with reporters, saying that federal prosecution was being studied. Other sources, without divulging names, said the inquiry had raised the possibility that individuals associated with major oil companies were involved.

The secretary's suspension order does not affect existing leases, nor does it apply to the competitive, sealed-bid system of awarding leases on federal land in areas where oil and gas deposits are known to exist. Rather, it halts indefinitely two methods for non-competitive leasing of what is known as "wildcat" land.

One is a lottery system in which a random selection is made monthly from applications for leases on federal land outside known oil and gas production areas when previous leases have been canceled, suspended or revoked. The other is an "over-the-counter" system of awarding leases on similar land that had not been previously leased.

Sources said investigators are gathering evidence that some individuals have submitted numerous applications for the same lease, thus disturbing the fairness of the lottery, and that some individuals may be fronts for oil companies.

The investigation also extends to "filling services" — companies which, for a fee, will prepare and submit an individual's application for the wildcat leases. These companies, sources said, are being checked to determine whether they are misleading their clients about their chances of "striking it rich."

Also under scrutiny, officials reported, is the "over-the-counter" system under which an individual can obtain a lease on previously unleased federal land by simply showing up at a federal land office with fee in hand. Most of such leases are of little value, since they are far from known oil and gas deposits, but some have been sold to oil companies for large sums, the sources said.

Sperm bank unique

At least 11 Nobelists have told the Los Angeles Times that they were contacted by Graham at a six-month, Shively, 70, was the only one to confirm having donated to the sperm bank.

"I welcome this opportunity to be identified with this important cause," he said. "But I want to make it clear also that I don't regard myself as a perfect human being or the ideal candidate. I'm not proposing to make sperm."

Among those who rejected Graham's overtures were three Nobelists at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

"I think it's pretty silly," said Max Delbrück (physiology, 1959).

At the Salk Institute in La Jolla, Calif., Dr. Robert W. Holley (medicine, 1959) commented, "What surprised me is that any woman would want this. But I guess people are entitled to do what they want." He also declined Graham's invitation.

Graham said he began writing to at least 100 other Nobel scientists more than two years ago.

Graham does not pay the Nobelists for their sperm.

Women whose applications are accepted have only air-freight costs to pay, about $3 to the East Coast, Graham said, as well as a refundable $250 deposit imposed by Graham to ensure the return of his liquid nitrogen-bearing containers.

Reipients must be young, bright, married and preferably with an infertile husband, according to Graham. "I don't want a whole flock of ordinary women."

Would-be recipients begin by filling out a questionnaire. "We ask for their general health and if they have any family hereditary defects. It's a questionnaire prepared by several people — to make sure we covered the important questions. Then we pick the cream of the crop," Graham said.

The repository, Graham said, has no barriers as to a Nobel scientist's race, religion or economic status.

The repository's existence was first disclosed in an article in the July-August issue of the Mensa Bulletin. Mensa is a group of which Graham is a member, made up of men and women whose IQ places them in the upper 2 percent of the population.

Three of the more than two dozen female Mensa applications now have been inseminated.

The women must agree to keep Graham informed not only of their pregnancies, but also "when any children are born of this. How well is the child, what his tested IQ is as time goes on, and so forth," according to Graham.

Fair with highs around 50 degrees

Twin Falls, Jerome-Gooding, Burley-Rupert areas:

Fair today. Partly cloudy Sunday. Low tonight will be 25 to 30 with highs near 50 today and in the mid 50s on Sunday.

Camas Prairie, Hatley, and Wood River Valley area:

Fair except for patchy late night and early morning valley fog-increasing clouds on Sunday. Expected lows will be 10 to 20 with highs near 40 today and mid 40s on Sunday.

Synopsis:

Fair skies and breezy winds were the rule throughout much of the state Thursday. Some cloudiness still lingered over southeastern Idaho resulting from the storm which raced through the state on Wednesday.

High pressure along with frigid drier air has moved into the area to cause the fair skies. Breezy conditions throughout much of southern Idaho brought winds up to 15 mph.

The coolest reported temperature Thursday morning was at Stanley with a chilly 10 degrees.

House nixes rural liquor bill

BOISE—The Idaho House Friday bottled up a measure it said would liberalize state liquor laws.

By a vote of 27-41, representatives refused to unhook House Bill 598.

That measure would have allowed county commissioners, in conjunction with the State Department of Law Enforcement, to grant liquor licenses to qualified individuals who live more than 25 miles from the nearest existing liquor dispensary.

The measure recognizes "that the state of Idaho is largely a rural state with vast tracks of unhabited territory," said Rep. Ron Beltzspicer, D-Grangeville, sponsor of the measure. H.B. 598 neatly attempts to serve the needs of persons living in those isolated areas, he added.

But after a flurry of verbal attacks which included charges the measure would open the state up to Mafia control, House members poured the bill down the drain.

"I live out in the sticks," said Rep. Gene Winchester, R-Kuna. "And I don't think we need these in sketchy country. Why could you put one every 25 miles on a country road it might make the trip real interesting."

Opposition also came from Rep. Ken Stephenson, R-Nampa, who warned the bill would allow ski resorts to have liquor licenses "and I don't think we need drunk people on skis."

Rep. John Reardon, R-Boise, also blasted the measure. Giving isolated resorts liquor licenses is the quickest way to encourage organized crime to take over those resorts, he said. Not only would they be isolated, but they would be inspected infrequently. Local law enforcement officers could easily be bribed to overlook many kinds of illegal activities, including gambling, Reardon added.

But the bill drew support from Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Coeur d'Alene.

"The kinds of places we're talking are already established bars serving beer and wine," he said. "Why do we say it's alright to get drunk on beer and wine and not on booze?"

Knigge seeks to keep state in meat inspection business

BOISE (UPI)—Members of the House Agricultural Affairs Committee have kicked off an attempt to fund the state meat inspection program although "the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee axed it earlier this session."

Rep. Lawrence Knigge, R-Filer, a member of both committees, is sponsoring a bill to provide $554,000 for the meat inspection program. The measure has been introduced in the House Ways and Means Committee and likely will come before the House agriculture committee next Wednesday, Knigge said.

Following the recommendation of Democrat Gov. John V. Evans, the finance committee in early February eliminated fiscal year 1981 funding for the program so the federal government could pick up the operation.

"The vote to slash the program, however, went against the recommendations of the House and Senate agriculture committees. Harsh words were directed at the finance committee when it scuttled the meat inspection program."

"The reason I think it will have support this time is that some of the (finance committee) members who didn't support it the first time didn't understand the requirements of federal law," Knigge said.

The Republican legislator said today some of the budget-makers didn't realize that many of Idaho's small meat-packing plants would have to make thousands of dollars worth of modifications to meet standards under a federally administered inspection program.

Knigge said state inspection would require none of these changes, but the final meat product would be of the same quality as required under federal supervision.

He also said the state's 65 mobile meat inspection units are a valuable asset to the small packing plants, and they would be left out in the cold if the state program was eliminated.

Tax cut, circuit breaker increase proposed

BOISE (UPI)—The House Revenue and Taxation Committee Friday advanced plans to cut state income tax revenue and increase tax relief for elderly, low-income and disabled persons.

By a unanimous vote, the committee introduced a bill sponsored by Rep. Wendy Ungriht, R-Boise, that would generate an estimated $63 million in relief by lowering the maximum state income tax to level to 7 1/2 percent from 7 1/2 percent.

Sent to the House floor with a unanimous "do pass" recommendation was a bill promoted by the state Tax Commission that boosts the state's "circuit breaker" property tax relief for the disadvantaged.

In other legislative action: • House Agriculture Affairs members voted to introduce a bill which would restore $554,000 for a state meat inspection program. Earlier, the program was axed by the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

• Senators reconsidered and sent to the House a bill to double the fee for dam inspections. The Senate bill rejected Thursday, was reconsidered approved by a bare 17-17 vote.

• Legislators to aid displaced homemakers in finding a job was approved 20-14 by the Senate and sent to the House.

• By a vote of 20-15, the Senate joined with the House in approving a bill to allow higher civil penalties for the killing of various big game and game birds.

• The House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee gave a "do pass" recommendation to a bill clarifying the sentence for the commission of a crime with a weapon.

• The bills requires imposition of a 3- to 15-year sentence for the use of a firearm or other deadly weapon during various crimes of violence.

• Without recommendation, the Senate State Affairs Committee sent to the floor a bill that would double the tax-free bonding ceiling for the Idaho Housing Agency.

PUC hookup charge stands

BOISE (UPI)—Shunning an opportunity to involve the Legislature in Idaho Public Utilities Commission decisions, the House Business Committee Friday stopped a bill that would fund mandatory electric service hookup charges.

The action dissipated a cloud hanging over the PUC's much debated decision last year to require a $50 per kilowatt mandatory charge for installation of electric space-heating plants in parts of Washington Water Power Co.'s service area where natural gas also is available.

The PUC order takes effect today.

On a spill (vote) vote to hold the bill in committee, the lawmakers decided the Legislature had better not begin reviewing PUC rulings or much legislative time might be wasted.

This possibly set a precedent for action on another bill before the Legislature: one that would overturn a PUC ruling allowing 25-cent pay phone calls.

PUC President Conley Ward Jr. urged the committee to kill the anti-hookup bill, saying legislative review of PUC decisions would result in "an adverse reaction on Wall Street."

Local zone plan vote urged

BOISE—A House Committee Friday endorsed a bill which would allow voters to override actions of planning and zoning commissions.

Under the measure, elections on whether cities and counties would have planning and zoning would be scheduled if 20 percent of the persons who voted in the last general election signed petitions.

If at that election a majority "elects not to have public planning and zoning of private property," House Bill 61 says, then no local planning will take place until approved at a second election.

The measure drew support from Walter Gurlick, of Payette.

The Payette Planning and Zoning Commission has been, completely arbitrary, Gurlick said, despite the fact the members are appointed rather than elected.

"In Payette county today, we live under a virtual dictatorship," he said. He wasn't opposed to planning and zoning, Gurlick said, merely to the way it was presently being conducted. H.B. 61 would allow voters a chance to reject arbitrary planning, he added.

Support also came from Doris Ollason, of Boise. Many Ada County residents are opposed to the way in which planning and zoning are conducted in their county, she said. Many persons also feel their objections are ignored, she added.

Opposition to the measure, however, er, came from Sandra DeKloutz, representing the League of Women Voters. Allowing arbitrary withdrawal of cities and counties from long range plans would make the planning system unwieldy and unworkable, she said.

Texas cancer patient arranges for marijuana

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (UPI) — The first court-approved marijuana smoker in Texas, lung cancer patient Dan Nash, Friday arranged for the state's delivery of the drug to ease his nausea during chemotherapy.

Admittedly stretching a new Texas law, state District Judge Erwin Ernst Thursday ordered the sheriff to give Nash's physician as much marijuana as the doctor believes Nash needs.

"This is very unusual... but we'll honor a judge's order," Walker County Sheriff W.D. White said. "Our intention is to provide the mechanism to the subject's doctor and let him do what he needs to do there."

"I believe it's a good thing," said Nash, 51, who never smoked pot before he started suffering debilitating nausea during his monthly week of chemotherapy. "It's just when I need it, I don't smoke it like these pot smokers do. I smoke it like a regular cigarette. That might be one reason it doesn't give me any trips."

"I take three or four puffs and put the cigarette down and lay down and rest. That soothes your stomach. It'd probably be two... cigarettes a day (during that one week every month)," Nash told UPI.

White said "it's very unlikely" his office will run out of marijuana for Nash, although the sheriff was "afraid to say how much we have. It accumulates." While normally just burns contraband marijuana, Ernst said he stretched a new Texas law authorizing the State Board of Health to set up a program for supervised, "experimental" use of marijuana by cancer and glaucoma patients who meet legal requirements.

But the judge said his ruling was consistent with the spirit of the law effective Jan. 1, although the health board has yet to create the agency for managing legal marijuana.

"Nash, who lives near Groveton, Texas," said doctor Ernst, "has his cancer last spring and has been going to M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston since May 1979 for treatments."

"I was listening to outpatients at the hospital and they were telling me some of them were using it," Nash said. "I didn't know whether to believe it. I talked to a doctor who said 'my patients tell me they do.'"

"He said 'I can't prescribe any for you but if you can find some, get it and try it.'"

A boy from Oklahoma said he got it from the sheriff in his home town and they didn't charge him a thing.

He approached the sheriff and the judge and they agreed to try to help him.

Only 11 birthdays for Mom, daughter

OXFORD, Mich. (UPI) — Patricia Cochran and her daughter Amanda have a collective age of 11.

Mrs. Cochran was born on Leap Year Day, 1944. Amanda was born on Feb. 29, 1972.

The quirk of the calendar has given Mrs. Cochran only nine real birthdays and Amanda only two. To let Amanda have some birthdays to herself, in non-leap years Mrs. Cochran celebrates on the 28th and Amanda gets her cake on March 1.

Love of lucre chills fear of frostbite for some listeners

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — The "love of lucre" apparently is stronger than the fear of frostbite.

Some 20 women, a man and a boy showed up in bikinis at a local radio station at 7 a.m. Friday — despite a wind chill factor of 33 below zero — in hopes of winning $100 offered by the station in a "Think Summer" promotion. It was the coldest Michigan night this year.

"Money makes people do funny things," said WORD news director Paul Townley.

"Most wore coats over it, but some just said to heck with it — they just wore a bikini and shoes and came running in."

Townley said the polar-bear prize-seekers included an 8-year-old boy in bikini briefs and a man in —swimming trunks.

"We gave away a prize to everyone for sheer guts if nothing else," he said.

"All of them were cold, that's for sure. Most of them said they were motivated by boyfriends or husbands who said they had to meet some bills. I wonder if they would have come out themselves in that weather."

Clinton and wife Hillary Rodham Clinton have picked a middle name for their first child yet, but her last name will be Clinton. The governor's wife kept her maiden name when they were married.

DRAGNET

More than two years ago, Paul P. Sameryke was slapped with a ticket by a military police officer at Camp Pendleton for carrying an open bottle of booze in his car. But he skipped the California hearing, returned to his home in Cleveland and the manhunt was on. U.S. marshals finally caught up with Sameryke and Thursday he had his day in court. He was fined $15. It cost the government about $3,000 to track him down and prosecute.

COPPED OUT

St. Louis police won't release his name, but it might be Born Loser. The 39-year-old man was arrested Thursday morning when he solicited an undercover policeman for prostitution. He was released on his own recognizance, but that evening he was right back at the station house. Seems he tried again — and got another undercover cop. Says Detective Warren Malgren, "He never got what he wanted, but he wasn't out any money either." Well, not yet anyway.

BEHIND THE NAME: Buddy Hackett was born Leonard Hacker.

SAVE THE MUSIC

Yehudi Menuhin got a standing ovation but no promises Friday when he went before the San Francisco school board to plead for elementary school music classes threatened by a budgetary axe. Said the world famed violinist, "We need to introduce the whole man again. That is why I feel so strongly about music in our culture. It pays in terms of our social environment." He didn't blame the board, but rapped Californians who refuse to fund school programs.

Listings lift some eyebrows

Daily Telegraph, London

LONDON — An investigation has been demanded into a "Buyer's Guide to Dirty Books," which is listed in detail on the British Post Office's Postal Vending system.

Richard Hooper, managing director of the subscribing company giving the information, will take a job with the Post Office on March 31 as the director of Prestel.

Dr. Brian Mahwinney, Conservative member of parliament for Peterborough, has asked Industry Secretary Sir Keith Joseph to start an inquiry into the dirty books guide put into the Prestel system by Mills and Allen Communications.

Mahwinney, who is attempting to push through parliament a bill curbing "indecent" material, has also made a strong protest to Sir William Barlow, chairman of the Post Office, about the availability of the information.

The viewer is informed under the heading "Pornography—Girly Mags" that the magazines contain "pictures of girls, usually nice girls, wearing little or nothing. They range from the artistic to the clinical." Information given on where the books can be purchased, some of them in Soho, London's nightlife area.

There is also advice on how to be selective to overcome "feeling a little awkward when it comes to buying pornography." Viewers are also told that magazines about homosexuality and transvestism are easy to obtain.

Mahwinney said this week that the activities of the Post Office, especially concerning indecency, are rigidly defined in legislation.

"I am asking Sir Keith to state whether this is not only an inappropriate activity for the post office but also whether it is illegal. There seems to be no control over how this service is used, and it could be very damaging to a lot of people."

Mrs. Jill Knight, Conservative member of parliament for Edgobaston, said the Post Office had taken leave of its senses. "A public service maintained by taxpayers' money has absolutely no business touting for itself. There are already serious accusations against the Post Office in the field of delivering letters. They should concentrate on one thing and drop the other."

A Post Office spokesman said it has responsibilities for the information and ads in the same role as a publisher.

Virgos find today right for hobbies but not for seeking big favors

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when you may want to change present plans for an illusory new appeal, but it would be wise not to discard carefully laid plans of the past. Maintain a cheerful manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Establish a new system for your regular work so that it is easier to perform. Be more optimistic about the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) State your aims to good friends and gain their support in a new project you have in mind. Express happiness with congenials.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go to influential persons for the help you need to carry through with your plans. See that your personal life is well organized.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can now put in motion a project that was impossible to do in the past. Take treatments to improve appearance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Concentrate on how to improve your environment. Discuss practical matters with friends and get their advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure to improve conditions at home. Not a good day to ask an influential person for a favor. Engage in favorite hobby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Make new contacts that will be helpful in your enterprise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Ideal day to enjoy yourself at recreations in the company of congenials. A talent you have can be expressed at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It may be difficult to gain your aims in the morning but things will improve later in the day. Spend your money wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to consult influential persons who can help you in your career. Be more willing to cooperate with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your monetary affairs well and know how best to improve them. Contact a financial expert and get excellent advice.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to further personal relationships and make big headway. Discuss personal plans with trusted friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can comprehend both sides of a situation and can whittle any project down to a practical level, so be sure to give as fine an education as possible; and then there can be much success during lifetime.

Legalities of financing garbage plant asked

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS—Attorneys for Twin Falls city and county were asked Friday to answer legal aspects of financing a garbage incineration plant.

Most attorneys, county commissioner chairman said a letter of intent has been received from Wilder Construction Co. of Kirkland, Wash., which the city and county have been asked to sign and return.

It would give the city and county authority to go ahead with a detailed survey of costs estimates and plant needs in the Twin Falls area. City and county officials met at the Holiday Inn Friday noon to discuss the project.

Several city and county officials have been told this would not carry any binding obligations but that he and others at Friday a meeting want legal assurances before going ahead with the plan.

It is still the hope of county and city officials that a private concern or individual will be willing to raise the cost of financing and operation of such a plant. Cost has been the major concern of other geographical areas.

One of the questions raised Friday, Leonard said, is how to control "tipping fees" if the plant is privately operated. The "tipping charges" are the fees charged individuals, businesses and other users using the plant. The charges are made as each truck load of garbage arrives at the processing center.

Leonard said several city and county officials felt a private concern could increase these costs to unreasonable levels if some control measure is not provided.

County Commissioner Steve was asked to confer with the county attorney about procedures for financing the plant. The county attorney said that the county is already well under way in preparing a plan for financing the plant. The plan would require the county to raise money for each full year of the plant's operation.

Leonard said local officials are also exploring means by which the county and a private company or entity could work together to obtain tax exemption for plant construction costs.

One of the determinations the officials want to make is if it will be possible to have money through private operation of the plant or if it would be less costly to taxpayers to have the county and city build and operate the facility.

The two governmental agencies are working to provide a complete financial picture of the plant. It would include a detailed breakdown of the plant's operating costs, including the cost of fuel, labor, maintenance and other expenses. It would also include a breakdown of the plant's revenue, including tipping fees and other income.

The attorneys are also looking into the possibility of a public-private partnership. This would involve the county and city providing the land and infrastructure, while a private company would build and operate the plant. The attorneys are also looking into the possibility of a public-private partnership.

Details can be worked out satisfactorily.

Magic Valley, Idaho cattlemen favored forming beef board

Beef referendum gets ax in nationwide voting

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News Writer

MAGIC VALLEY—Although Idaho cattlemen approved it, nationally the cattle industry's proposal to create a board to promote beef appears to have been defeated.

Dubbed the "Beef Referendum," the measure would have funded a beef board with up to $40 million in donations from cattle producers.

A final vote count won't be released until Monday, but a survey of state totals by the cattle industry indicated that the measure will be defeated by a three-to-two margin.

The beef board would have promoted the nutritional value of beef and worked to counteract bad publicity from research linking beef consumption with cancer and heart disease.

If it passed, cattlemen would have assessed themselves 20 cents out of every $100 worth of cattle produced and used the money to fund the beef board. A similar measure was approved by 56 percent of the cattlemen two years ago, but at the time, a two-thirds majority was required to pass the measure.

About 60 percent of the Idaho cattlemen voting in this referendum approved the measure, according to Mike Mogenson, executive director of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association.

But the measure was defeated in Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

And in Texas, the largest cattle producing state, only 25 percent of the cattle producers who voted approved the measure.

In the eight counties of the Magic Valley, the referendum was approved by 65 percent of the cattlemen voting. About 72 percent of the 871 cattle producers who registered to vote cast ballots during the election. The measure was supported by 418 voters and opposed by 211.

Mogenson said there were a number of possible reasons for the defeat of the measure.

"Opposition picked up because the Secretary of Agriculture would approve the beef board's budget and approve nominations to the board," he said. "People called it a government program, which is false. The agriculture secretary would merely have acted as an overseer to make sure the money was spent properly. He would not have had control over the board, Mogenson said.

"Another reason it fell might be that cattle prices are pretty good right now. People have short memories," he said. They don't remember all the money they lost three years ago.

Because the referendum was defeated, Idaho cattlemen may decide to increase the amount of money they donate to the Idaho Beef Council and expand its promotion activities, Mogenson said.

7 vehicles clobbered in 2 wrecks

TWIN FALLS—A 28-year old Twin Falls man was in custody Friday night facing four separate charges after his 1970 pickup truck damaged seven other vehicles in two accidents.

City police said a 1970 pickup truck driven by Kenneth VanZant McCray, 28, went out of control and crashed into a row of parked cars on a used car lot shortly after 10 p.m. Friday, causing an estimated $7,000 damage.

Just prior to that he had been involved in a minor accident with a school bus from the Twin Falls School District. McCray was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving on a restricted license, failing to have proper insurance and driving while intoxicated.

Police said McCray's vehicle collided with a school bus at 3:34 p.m. in the 300 block of Second Avenue West. The bus was stopped, waiting for a traffic light to change. There were no injuries.

McCray allegedly left the scene without stopping and continued east on the one way east bound Second Avenue. At the intersection with Seventh Street S., officers said McCray was attempting to pass a vehicle on the left, lost control and struck a guy wire on a power pole, then crashed into the rear portion of Joe Butler's Used Cars display lot. Six of Butler's cars were damaged and McCray's pickup was demolished. Officers said the McCray vehicle struck one vehicle, forced it into another which hit another and he then collided with another, causing "similar chain reaction."

Police said a power line was knocked down and some businesses were without power until Idaho Power Co. crews could make repairs.

McCray was treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for a head laceration and released to city police.

Vandals

State trooper makes rare arrests of traffic sign shooting suspects

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer

JEROME—A traffic sign without bullet holes peppering it is a rarity along Idaho's country roads.

Idaho taxpayers shell out thousands of dollars every month replacing signs destroyed by irresponsible target shooters, according to highway department officials.

Though this type of vandalism is rampant, police rarely apprehend the offenders.

But Thursday, the last of three juveniles apprehended in connection with a highway sign shooting incident in Jerome County appeared in court and was ordered to pay his share of restitution.

Two others earlier entered pleas of guilty to charges of malicious destruction of property. They were ordered to pay fines of $50 plus $10 cost each and to pay for their share of the restitution costs.

Police who apprehended the trio in Jerome County said it was the first time they could recall catching highway sign vandals.

State Patrolman Frank Mogenson was operating a radar unit on U.S. 33 just north of the Snake River Canyon in December when he heard a number of shots. He and Sgt. Bob Wright of the ISP, who was also in the area, drove to where a paved road leaves the highway towards Devils Corral.

Here they followed a vehicle which they had seen pulling away from the intersection and took the three occupants into custody.

Officers found a '22 rifle in the vehicle. Two of the juveniles were cited for malicious destruction of property on adult citations. The third appeared in 5th District Magistrate Court in Jerome Thursday as a juvenile and was ordered to pay a share of the cost of the sign on charges of shooting across a public highway. Malicious destruction charges against the third youth were dismissed.

Judge Russell C. Shaud fined the two who pleaded guilty to malicious destruction charges $50 plus $10 costs each. He also ordered each to pay a third of the cost of the sign.

Judge Shaud said he told the other juvenile he could go back and answer charges under juvenile provisions, but he decided to let the fine and costs stand.

Mogenson said the sign, about 48 by 24 inches, was a new sign costing $45. Each of the boys must pay $15 to the state for replacement of the sign.

Church, Symms take turns baiting feud

BOISE (UPI)—The feud between Sen. Frank Church and Rep. Steve Symms continued Thursday.

Church, the Democratic incumbent, accused his Republican challenger Thursday of favoring the interests of the oil industry over those of Idaho's farmers.

Symms Friday fended off the attack, saying he voted against a tax exemption for gasoline this week because he was asked to by the Idaho Transportation Department.

Church had charged: "Steve Symms on Wednesday voted against extending the four-cents-a-gallon federal tax exemption for gasoline, which is essential to promotion of gasol as an alternative fuel, and crucial to farm states such as Idaho which have a heavy stake in the development of alcohol fuel programs."

The federal highway trust fund can easily absorb the loss of revenue for this tax exemption. In reality, the Symms vote was a vote in favor of big oil which opposes gasoline and against the interest of Idaho farmers and the nation's motorists."

The Idaho Democrat said Symms has voted consistently in support of the oil industry's interests during his years in Congress. He said the Independent Petroleum Association of America has compiled a list showing Symms voting 100 percent in support of the oil industry since 1976.

"Idaho farmers should know that when it comes down to a choice between their interests and those of big oil, Symms chooses the oil companies," Church said.

Symms answered his opponent by saying, "I've voted against the three-cents-a-gallon tax exemption at the request of the Idaho Transportation Department. The proposal I opposed is a most serious precedent with drastic consequences for our users-supported federal highway assistance program."

Symms said he supports a proposal which earmarks 2 percent of the windfall profits tax receipts for a subsidy program for gasoline.

He said he also co-sponsored a bill, providing for loans for pilot projects for gasohol production—funding for gasohol research and amending the tax code to encourage gasohol production.

Snowmobilers events today

TWIN FALLS—Two major annual events for snowmobilers will be held this weekend in the South Hills.

The Sawtooth National Forest weekly recreation report lists annual Fun Day programs at both the Diamondfield Jack area southeast of Twin Falls, and the Mount Harrison Snowmobile area south of Albion.

The Twin Falls Ranger District and Magic Valley Snowmobile Club will sponsor the event at Diamondfield Jack. Events begin today at 1 p.m. with fun events for the whole family including contests a treasure hunt and potluck supper are planned through Sunday.

The Mount Harrison Fun Day will be held Sunday beginning at 9 a.m.

Injured infant dies
BURLEY—Burley Police and state Department of Health and Welfare officials are investigating the death of a 22-month-old child who died Thursday night.

Richard Moffitt was injured Wednesday and taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital. He was later transferred to a Boise hospital. The police sent an officer to Boise Friday to continue the investigation. An autopsy did not produce conclusive results about the cause of death, but the possibility the child was fatally abused is being considered. There are a number of suspects involved in the investigation.

Did anyone see dog bite boy?
TWIN FALLS—Margaret Cagle, of Twin Falls, is seeking information about a dog in order to keep her son from having to undergo a painful series of rabies shots.

She said her son was bitten Tuesday shortly after noon in the alley between Main Street and Second Avenue North just east of the Safeway store.

She believes the dog was a German shepherd, but she has not been able to find it and determine whether it has rabies.

She would appreciate any information leading to the identification of the dog. Her telephone number is 734-2799.

Small quake rattles Idaho
BANCROFT (UPI)—A minor earthquake shook homes in Bancroft, Thatcher and Soda Springs in southeastern Idaho Friday. No damage was reported as a result of the quake.

Dr. Steve Hansen at Ricks College in Rexburg described the tremor as a "very strong local earthquake that died out quite rapidly," based on readings from the college seismograph.

Hansen said he estimated the magnitude of the quake at about 3 on the Richter scale. A quake with a magnitude of 3.5 can cause slight damage.

The University of Utah Geology and Geophysics Department in Salt Lake City confirmed that an earthquake shook the southeastern Idaho at 12:33 p.m.

Grace Hathaway, a research analyst at the university's seismograph center, said the quake registered 3.3 on the Richter scale. She said its epicenter was in the Gem Valley, about 10 miles northeast of Soda Springs. She said the area was "desolate" and she doubted if many persons had felt the tremor.

Artists part of celebration
TWIN FALLS—Are you an artist with an itch to participate in Twin Falls' 75th anniversary celebration?

The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce welcomes all artists of any type or media to contribute their work to the city-wide celebration in June at the next planning meeting scheduled for March 7 at 9 a.m. at the City Council chambers.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Jay Hoyer said that artists may contact Gary Stone at 422-4355 for further information. Stone will be handling both publicity and art functions for the event, Hoyer said.

An artists forum to discuss possible anniversary projects will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in Harry Park according to graphic artist Charlotte Kilfoyle. All those interested are welcome to attend.

Curiel switches plea to guilty on rape charge; Albion mayor's daughter accused in burglary

MINI-CASSIA — Action was reported this week on an assortment of cases involving law enforcement departments in Minidoka and Cassia counties.

Manuel Curiel, 20, of Burley, reversed his stand and pleaded guilty to a charge of rape Friday.

Curiel had pleaded not guilty in January to the rape of a Burley teenager last Thanksgiving. Following the plea change, his bond was reduced to $1,000 pending sentencing.

A charge of first-degree burglary was filed Friday against Carme Cagle, 25, of Albion.

Two male juveniles, one from Burley, the other from Rupert, were also apprehended by police.

The three are accused of breaking into an Albion house Sunday. Albion Police Chief Richard Dunn responded to a tip received at 11:45 p.m. and then allegedly observed Cagle and one of the juveniles coming from the vacant home of Violet Hagger.

Investigation led to the arrest of a second juvenile. Hagger resides in a nursing home.

Cagle, the daughter of Albion Mayor Chris Cagle, was released on her own recognizance. The juveniles were released to relatives. Arraignments are pending.

Julio Cruz, 19, was arraigned in 5th District Magistrate Court in Rupert Thursday on a grand larceny charge.

Cruz is accused of taking four radial tires and four mag wheels from the residence of Juan Almanza, 106 A St., Rupert, on Feb. 12.

The items were valued at $700. Cruz was released on $1,000 bond.

The second of three men accused of stealing $35,000 worth of herbicide from Simplot soilbuilders on Feb. 7 was bound over to 5th District Court in Rupert Thursday.

Ruben Barrera, 22, of Heyburn, was bound over on charges of first-degree burglary and conspiracy to commit first-degree burglary. He is expected to be arraigned in district court Monday, Rupert Police said.

Jim Lockett, 22, of Paul, was bound over in the case on Feb. 20.

Bill Necessary, 38, of Heyburn, was scheduled for preliminary on Thursday but the hearing was postponed until March 18.

Later Thursday night, some $2,100 worth of tools were reported stolen from the Albion Campus by Hansen-Hall-Thursday afternoon and found them missing Friday morning.

One of the dormitory's on the campus was being torn down by Jackson Brown of Eden. He put his tools including saws, Sanders, and orange tanks, in Hansen-Hall-Thursday afternoon and found them missing Friday morning.

Board accepts resignation from vo-ed division chief

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education accepted Friday the resignation of Ray Turner, administrator of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, effective June 30.

Board President J. Clint Hoopes said the board accepted the resignation with "deep regret" and expressed his "appreciation for so many years of really dedicated service."

Turner has served as director since 1967. The board will decide in April how to fill the vacancy.

In his letter to the board, Turner said he intends "to keep involved in (rehabilitation) services, but in a different capacity and maybe with less intensity."

In other matters Friday, Gov. John Evans appointed retired Boise banker Robert L. Montgomery to the board and reappointed Clint Hoopes of Rexburg.

Summer safety tests planned for INEL, UK

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — A series of safety experiments designed to test fuels and safety for breeder reactors is scheduled to begin here this summer at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near here.

Testing also will take place in the United Kingdom.

The Transient Reactor Test Facility

(TRTF), operated by the U.S. Energy Department at the Idaho National Laboratory at the INEL and the United Kingdom's Prototype Fast Breeder at Dounreay, Scotland, will be the sites of about 30 tests designed to monitor the safety of various breeder reactor fuels.

Breeders are nuclear reactors that create more fuel than they consume.

They present a dilemma because they offer an almost-unlimited source of energy but are considered dangerous due to high temperatures and impacts involved in the nuclear reactions.

"Joint testing effort" will allow each nation to benefit from experimental facilities it does not possess.

but which the other does. Argonne officials say they say Britain has no reactor similar to TRTF for exposing breeder-reactor fuel elements to transients (short bursts of high power from the reactor) or to a loss of a reactor's coolant, which controls the heat and intensity of the explosion.

The U.S. has no reactor like the British prototype, which will be used to subject experimental fuels to transients expected to exist inside a breeder reactor power plant producing up to 250 megawatts of electricity, officials say.

They say the Energy Department is pursuing the tests because Britain in an attempt to ensure the safety of breeder reactors and to retain what they say is a potentially invaluable energy option for the future.

Father not telling where his sons after killings

BOISE (UPI) — The father of two former Peoples Temple cultists now living in Idaho has refused to disclose his sons' location.

Francis "Mike" Carter of Garden City says he saw his sons Tuesday, the day that Peoples Temple defectors Al and Jeanine Mills were murdered in their Berkeley, Calif., home.

Thursday, the Mills' 13-year-old daughter, Daphne Mills, died of bullet wounds received when their home was riddled with bullets. Police say there is no apparent motive in the killings, and no suspects.

There is fear that there is an emerging "hit list" commissioned by Jones to punish defectors just before the charismatic cult leader inspired the murder-suicide of 84 persons in Guyana in November 1978.

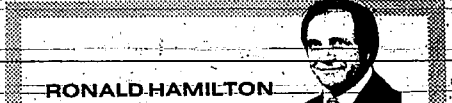

Carter said Thursday his sons could not be reached for comment on the Mills' killings or an speculation that a "hit squad" exists. The elder Carter said he "had ways" of reaching his sons, Mike and Tim Carter, in the event of an emergency, but he would not tell a reporter how to get in touch with them.

Attempts by United Press International to reach the Carter brothers also have been unsuccessful. "Jim Carter" reportedly has an unlisted telephone number in the Boise metropolitan area, but attempts to obtain that number or his home address have proven fruitless.

The Mills apparently have moved out of their father's home, where they had lived upon returning to Idaho from Jonestown, Guyana.

The elder Carter lost seven family members, including a daughter, in the mass-suicide tragedy. He said if his sons are afraid of being targets of the "hit list," they've never mentioned it to him. Carter also said he doesn't know if his sons knew the Mills or visited their "family house" for Jonestown defectors.

The Mills joined Jones' group in 1969 when it was forming. Six years later they moved from the temple after their daughter was beaten on Jones' orders.

QUESTION...

My father was a lifetime resident of Evanston, Illinois until he came to Kimberly recently to live with me. When he passes away will you arrange to have an obituary printed in the Evanston paper?

ANSWER...

Among the very first things we do at the time of death is to arrange newspaper notices. We will discuss with you the content of the obituary to be printed in the local papers and take care of it if a newspaper outside of Twin Falls is involved we will arrange this also. When the obituary is to be printed in a paper away from Twin Falls we telephone them the information or we send it by mail.

We recognize the importance of the prompt and accurate publication of newspaper notices. Taking care of this detail is just one of the many aspects involving a funeral service which we assume for you at this time!

5 Soviet spies booted in year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has quietly expelled five Soviet bloc diplomats in the last year for alleged spying activities, a top FBI official disclosed Friday.

William Cregar, chief of the FBI's intelligence division, declined to discuss details of the espionage, or to name the diplomats.

He said none of the Soviet-backed espionage attempts was believed to have caused a serious breach of the national security.

"We were monitoring them and we were able to prevent any damage," he said.

Cregar, in a chat with reporters on his last day before retirement, disclosed the State Department declared the diplomats persona non grata, allowing them to leave the country.

Cregar, who spent most of his 29 FBI years in counter-intelligence, said the incidents were kept secret because of "foreign policy considerations."

"Every time something like that happens, the enemy will manufacture a situation in their country to retaliate," he said.

U.S. officials say it is common for

WILLIAM CREGAR
Intelligence chief foreign intelligence agents to use diplomatic cover, which gives them immunity from prosecution while conducting espionage activities. In those cases, the only recourse for the U.S. government are to attempt to monitor their activities or to expel them.

Cregar indicated the expulsion of Soviet bloc diplomats has been fairly commonplace in recent years, but he could not estimate how many have been asked to leave.

It could not be learned whether any of last year's expulsions occurred after tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union were heightened over the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

The State Department refused to disclose the names of the diplomats involved, except to say that in most such espionage instances, the diplomats are not formally declared persona non grata. Instead, the appropriate ambassador is notified of the spying activity, and given the opportunity to quickly remove the diplomat from the United States.

That avenue is favored, State Department officials said, because when Soviet bloc diplomats are declared persona non grata, the Soviets usually respond by expelling an American diplomat, often a valuable non-spy, from their country.

The assistant FBI director said he feels the bureau's counter-intelligence section "has made excellent progress" in tracking communist spying activities in the United States in the last few years.

He said he feels the FBI today, which is making increasing use of undercover operations, knows more about the communist agents' methods of operation... who their intelligence officers are, and what equipment they use.

However, Cregar conceded the Soviets' effectiveness is proportionate to their presence obviously, and their presence is increasing, obviously.

Vote ends amid cheating charges

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Some 52,000 guerrillas laid down their weapons Friday to cast ballots on the third and last day of Rhodesia's independence elections. All three major party leaders claimed their opponents had cheated.

British spokesman Nicholas Fenn pooh-poohed the complaints of voting irregularities, including the "Coca-Cola scandal" — as relatively minor within the context of a country emerging from a bush war.

"There have, of course, been problems," he said. "But many countries in the world could be proud to have had elections like these."

The guerrillas have been living in cease-fire assembly points manned by the 1,300-man Commonwealth monitoring force since a truce went into effect in early January.

They cast the ballots at mobile polling stations flown into the remote camps by helicopter because most of the roads were washed out by heavy rains during the past week.

British election chief Sir John Boynton said 2.6 million black voters had cast ballots up to three hours before the polls closed at 7 p.m. This figure represented about 6 percent of the estimated 40 million eligible voters.

The final total was expected to be announced this morning, as the ballot boxes were being transported to five regional centers for counting. The results, however, were not to be announced until Tuesday in an apparent effort to allow time for the feverish pitch of the election to die down.

Bloody incidents marred the campaigns and 15 persons were killed during the first two days, but predictions of widespread violence failed to materialize.

To ensure this peace, Rhodesia mobilized more than 100,000 soldiers and police to support the 571 unarmed British policemen who guarded the actual polling places.

The election ended on a humorous note with the British calling a major news conference to "resolve the 'Coca-Cola scandal.'" As television cameras of 14 foreign networks ground away, a group of volunteers tried to wash off a colorless liquid used in the election with a combination of the soft drink and soap. None succeeded.

China changes leaders

PEKING (UPI) — The Chinese Communist Party announced a shakeup Friday consolidating Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping's role as the most powerful man in the country by ousting four holdovers from the Mao "Politburo."

In a major blow to the memory of the once-revered Mao, the party's Central Committee also officially named the late Chinese chief of state Liu Shaoqi (Liu Hsiao-Chi) as "great Marxist and proletarian revolutionary" and planned to give him a state funeral — 10 years after he died in disgrace.

Liu was the most prominent among hundreds of high officials purged during Mao's Cultural Revolution and one of the last to be rehabilitated.

The committee said Liu, ousted from the party in 1968, was the victim of a "frame-up" engineered by former Defense Minister Lin Biao, a protégé of Mao and at one time the late chairman's designated successor.

Disclosure of the far-ranging shakeup was announced on radio and television at 8 p.m. after a six-day plenary session of the Central Committee.

In addition to the changes at the top, the committee moved to curb the country's budding grass-roots human rights movement by recommending that Chinese be denied the traditional right to paste up wall posters.

Deng's leading rival, Chinese Premier and Communist Party Chairman Hua Guofeng, appeared to have been isolated by the shakeup. The 75-year-old Vice Premier Deng twice purged during Mao's lifetime — tightened his control by ousting four of his enemies from the party's 27-member Political Committee, China's top decision-making body.

Israel's Allon dies

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Former Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, a farm boy who became a national military hero and then turned to politics, died unexpectedly Friday of heart failure.

His wife, son and daughter were at the bedside of Allon, who had no history of heart ailment and whose death shocked the nation.

Allon will be buried with full military honors Sunday at Ginosar, the kibbutz he had founded on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Recently, Allon, considered a dove on Arab matters, had campaigned to gain control of the opposition Labor party from Shimon Peres and to challenge Prime Minister Menachem Begin in the 1981 elections.

On to State for Minico Spartans

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

BURLEY — "We play better with our backs to the basket," said Smiling Coach Craig Dexter could afford to relax for the first time in a week. After five straight games, he and his Minico Spartans had reared out of the losers' bracket to knock off Twin Falls 80-53 and claim the Region III-A-1-Basketball Championship and the accompanying trip to state.

The Spartans used a second-half zone rebounding strategy, particularly by Bob Jesse — and a 20-point fourth quarter built around the eight-point effort of Bob Harding to finish up a week of near-misses and battles.

"We the Spartans looked down the long muzzle of elimination but came back in the closing seconds on both occasions to sweep the tournament which might not have been a purist's delight but certainly can be counted among the tightest.

After the miracle win of Thursday night when the Spartans threw the tournament into the extra session with a one-point win in overtime, even Coach Dexter started getting the idea his was a team of destiny.

"I thought we finally got the edge," he admitted. "We hadn't had it since that first game against Burley. It seemed like every game we had our back to the wall — but we play better with our backs to the wall," he smiled.

He defined the edge as "team camaraderie, a good feeling for each other that showed in our assists and our helpside defense. In a tournament that figured to be the tight, it's the intangibles that always are the difference." "We just never got anything or anybody going," said Bruin Coach John Astorquia whose team will never come closer to a championship without winning it.

"They out-rebounded us again. They had six rebounds on their missed free throws. Then we didn't hit any free throws in the first half. That's what did us in," he said.

Only in the second quarter did Twin Falls show much spark. In the first period, Minico romped out to a 10-4 lead — although it took five minutes. Bob Maloney and Scott Maggard got the buckets that put the lead there.

But in the final two minutes of the period, Scott Beer hit seven Bruin points to help fashion a 12-12 deadlock. Jesse and Jay Fox kept Minico ahead for two minutes before Jeff Jardine and Clay Mecham — off a steal — sent Twin Falls ahead for the first time.

The lead saw-sawed over the next two minutes and Twin Falls then lost its chance to pad the count by missing free throws. Lars Hovey, blazing Thursday night, managed just four of nine charlies but still the Bruins, with Jim Crandall hitting twice, took a four-point lead into the dressing room.

"At halftime we talked about rebounding," Coach Dexter said. "Our stats had them getting 14 offensive boards. Because we felt they were sending extra people to the board, we tried to get out on a break, too. We didn't get any cringles on the break but I got us some good transition shots."

Hearing the halftime talk was Jesse because he only got better in the second half. Twelve of his 18 points came on follow shots.

The other decision was to forsake the man defense and stick strictly to zone "as bad as I hate that 2-3," the coach said. "We had to cut off their penetration. They weren't taking it to the middle so we tried to spread the defense and push out against their perimeter shooting."

Twin Falls again managed just eight points in the third period but Minico was only slightly warmer and it ended in a 40-40 tie.

Maloney and Harding opened the final period with three free throws and Minico was ahead for the night. Twin Falls stayed one to three back until 2:28 remaining when Harding established a 51-46 advantage.

The clincher came on Jesse's last follow shot with 1:30 left. Twin Falls was never closer than four after that.

Twin Falls sophomores received the compliment to Minico — in the joyous portion of the meet, Steve Galley hitting four free throws over the final seconds of overtime to give the Bruins a 47-46 victory. Ted Wingston saved it with a steal and crimple with 11 seconds for the Bruins.

Volvo races today

By KAREN LITTLE PRESSMAN and UPI

SUN VALLEY — More than 60 of the top skiers in the world have been training in Sun Valley this week for today's opening of the Volvo Cup.

The race, the 11th stop on the 1980 World Pro Skiing Tour, will feature such pros as Andre Arnold, Walter Tresch, Hans Hinterseer, and Lonny Vanatta.

Action gets underway at 11 a.m. with the downhill competition at Upper Warm Springs and Greyhawk.

Sunday's slalom racing starts at 10 a.m. at Greyhawk. An awards ceremony will follow the race at 3 p.m. at Warm Springs and Greyhawk.

Arnold, the 24-year-old sensation from Austria who finished first in last year's WPS tour, rates the favorite for the top prize in the $50,000 pot.

The Austrian is seeking to earn an unprecedented third WPS crown.

However, top contenders are training and fine tuning their skill to challenge Arnold's winning ways.

Vanatta, America's top choice for the title, and Austrian Hinterseer will be major stumbling blocks for Arnold's bid to retain his crown.

At 22, Vanatta of Steamboat, Colo., has become the top American professional racer.

Last year, when he came from behind slalom victory in Sun Valley, Vanatta finished fifth overall in the WPS tour, collecting $29,633.

A former U.S. Ski Team member, Vanatta has skied to victory in three giant slalom and three slalom events on this year.

Another threat to Arnold's title hopes is the 25-year-old Hinterseer. He currently placed third in the standings last year, and has one slalom and one giant slalom win under his belt.

Four leader Arnold leads the field with 440 points this year followed by Hinterseer and Vanatta each with 390 points.

Another skier who can't be overlooked is Tresch. He is a nine-year Swiss team veteran, two-year pro and a silver medal winner at the 1972 Olympics.

At 31, Tresch is the oldest racer on the tour.

Surprisingly, Bob Davis, pitcher for the Wilmington Pirates, qualified Friday to compete in the cup.

The 23-year-old, 6-5 pitcher, who because of his size can hurt a baseball up to 93 miles an hour, has members his sliding background more than he does his baseball experience. Davis has been skilling most of his life, but the first time he ever entered a baseball uniform was during his college days.

As a youngster growing up in the South Lake Tahoe area, Davis learned the ins-and-outs of ski racing. He did well enough to be a regular member of the Pac West National Ski Team (a division of the U.S. Ski Team) from 1972 until 1976. In his final year on the team, he was voted by the organization as the Outstanding Racer of the Year.

For the past two seasons, Davis has served as a pacesetter for the NASTAR (National Standard Race) recreational ski racing program, which is offered at 100 ski areas across the U.S.

"My brother, who plays pretty good ball, and I began throwing the ball around and I found I had pretty good control," Davis said. "My brother encouraged me to give the college team a try, but I didn't think I was good enough."

That was his feeling until Bob Berg, a skier from Denver, also saw Davis' talent as a pitcher and pushed him to become involved at the University of Utah where he was attending.

Two years ago, Davis signed to play with the Pirates as a junior at Utah and while chugging for the team's development program in the instructional league he won 10 games.

Jeff Brewster's exuberant smile was part of celebration by Filer Wildcat fans who flowed onto the court after their team won state trip

Wildcats roar to state trip

By IRWIN CURTIN
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — When it was over Friday night, Wayne Humpherys had a headache and watery, bloodshot eyes.

His Filer Wildcats had just beaten Glens Ferry, 61-34, in the College of Southern Idaho gym to clinch their second straight Fourth District A-3 basketball title.

With the victory, Filer qualified for the state A-3 tournament, which gets underway Thursday at CSI. The Pilots, meanwhile, may still earn a berth in the tournament if they defeat Homedale in a one-game playoff tonight at Mountain Home at 7.

In Filer's lockerroom, still noisy 30 minutes after the final buzzer, Humpherys was talking about guts and desire.

"They were bound and determined to win this game, Jay (Decker), perhaps more than some of the others. He'd been kind of subdued all day. He's got a laceration on his shin that's separated for about three inches from a muscle. We gave him ice and ultrasound treatment this afternoon. He couldn't hardly walk on it this morning," Humpherys said.

Despite the injury, Decker limped, walked and ran his way to a superb performance against Glens Ferry. The 6-2 senior center anchored Filer's defense and scored a game-high 22 points, sinking 11 of 14 field goals; most coming on turnaround jumpshots from within eight feet of the basket.

"Usually when I want a game badly, I know what has to be done," Decker said, limping gingerly around the Wildcats' lockerroom. "I knew I had to pull another good game out and play well. If points is what I'd be good for tonight, that's what it would be."

Decker, though, wasn't the only Wildcat who knew what had to be done against Glens Ferry. For the second straight game, Mark Farmer came off the bench to spark Filer when Decker himself went to the bench in foul trouble (he had three in the first half and none thereafter) or for a breather. Farmer scored 11 points and grabbed a handful of rebounds in less than two quarters of play.

Tracy Heaps made his presence known, too. He scored nine points and when Filer shifted from a 2-3 zone to a diamond-and-one (as it did throughout the game) to control Bill Slieth, Glens Ferry's hot shooting forward, Heaps shut him down.

Slieth had 12 points, most on long-range jumpshots from the corners and wings. In the first half, which ended with the Pilots leading 34-11, he scored only four in the second half, thanks primarily to Heaps' aggressive and smothering defense, to finish with 16. Tim Black added 15 for the Pilots and Steve Hughes scored 13.

Filer, which trailed Glens Ferry for all but the opening minutes of the first half, assumed the lead for good early in the third quarter with a six-point burst that resulted in a 37-36 Wildcat lead with 6:18 left in the period. The Wildcats enjoyed their largest lead, 56-46, when Heaps sank two free throws with 5:30 remaining in the game.

"We came in at halftime right where we wanted to be, considering the way they shot and out-rebounded us. We've been a second-half team all year," Humpherys said.

Eric Peterson (14) and the Wildcats kept the Pilots on the run.

Glens Ferry Coach, Gordon Brown, asked what happened in those early minutes of the third quarter, good-naturedly replied: "You tell me, and we'll both know."

"I thought our turning point was turnovers in that period. The kids went out and pressed them man-to-man in the backcourt without instructions from me," he continued. "They got real flustered there for some reason. It took me a

Indians to play for berth

Buhl — The Buhl Indians ought to have a little righteous indignation on their side tonight when they battle for a berth in the state A-2 tournament.

They are the only district champion — led along by defending state champion — required by the state activities association to earn a state spot through a playoff.

The Indians will meet Fayette in the one-game, winner-take-all battle starting at 8:30 p.m. today at the Mountain Home High School gymnasium.

The game will be preceded by an A-2 playoff in which Homedale, coached by ex-Buhl standout athlete Garry Mallock, will take on the fourth district A-3 runner-up Glens Ferry.

Buhl Coach Terry Adolfsen ran his Indians through a light loosening up session Friday afternoon and then headed for Boise to scout the Weiser-Payette game.

It will be the only idea he will have for formulating a game plan. Unless he calls a Saturday morning practice after returning, the Indians will learn that plan on the blackboard.

The fourth district A-2 was thrown into a playoff situation when it shrank from a high of five to the current three. Classifications A-2, A-3 and A-4 all have six districts, meaning only a pick of runners-up seeds is open.

Dick Steckle, executive secretary of the state activities association, said the imbalance of enrollment figures indicate it would be unfair for a three-to-six district tournament to send as many as an eight-team district.

In the interests of making the tournaments pay for themselves, the state generally awards the seventh and eighth spots to runners-up from the closest districts. The tournament is being played in Pocatello, giving the fifth and sixth districts two entries on a proximity basis.

Coach Adolfsen said earlier he plans to basically go with the things that helped Buhl post its solid 16-4 tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Gooding High School. The winner of the game earns a trip to the state tournament next week at Lewiston, while the loser's season is ended.

"Sears is a quick explosive guard, had one of his better nights of the tournament as he collected 17 points and kept the scrappy Bears in the game."

Dietrich held a five-point bubble going into the final quarter, but Sears and Louie Wilkins brought Bliss back.

With eight seconds left, Dietrich's Tracy Perron hit two foul shots to tie the score at 48. Sears then brought the ball all the way down the court and hit the clinching jumper at the buzzer.

It was the first victory for Bliss over Dietrich in five tries this season and couldn't have come at a more opportune time.

Marc and Tracy Perron led Dietrich's scoring with 15 and 19 points respectively.

Bliss back in chase for state

GOODING — Bliss' Reed Sears hit a 15-jump shot at the buzzer Friday night to give the Bears a 50-48 victory tonight at Gooding High School in the Bears' state tournament hopes.

The victory sends the Fourth District A-1 Tournament into a final showdown between the two teams tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Gooding High School. The winner of the game earns a trip to the state tournament next week at Lewiston, while the loser's season is ended.
