

Iranian government wins control

Militants to hand over hostages

United Press International: Islamic militants Thursday announced they will hand over the 50 American hostages to the Iranian Revolutionary Council.

U.N. diplomats expressed hope the hostages could be released as early as next week. The sudden capitulation by the militants at handing over their captives was viewed by observers as a major step toward ending the crisis now in its fourth month. But President Carter and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim cautiously avoided comment on the development.

The Revolutionary Council agreed to take custody of the captives and then announced that the U.N. commission would meet with the hostages at the request of the Iranian government.

But a spokesman for the council added, without explanation, that "the hostages will be met as witnesses" — presumably to satisfy the five-man panel's mandate to investigate alleged crimes of the Shah.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, informed diplomatic sources said that "if all goes well" an even more dramatic breakthrough could come.

long before the end of Iran's parliamentary elections in April, which Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh has mentioned as a target date for the release of the hostages.

The U.N. sources said they were hopeful that the 50 American hostages, now in their 124th day of captivity, could be released before April, perhaps as early as next week. They did not explain.

Following the surprise announcement by the militants about turning over the hostages, Tehran radio reported, crowds of people gathered in front of U.S. embassy and urged the students to continue to hold the Americans who passed their 124th day in captivity Thursday.

"We ask the Revolutionary Council to take over the hostages, that is, the American spies, from us and deal with them in any way it deems appropriate," the militants said. "We regard our responsibility for the hostages at an end."

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh met with the council and said it had agreed to the offer. He said a government committee would be formed today to work out details of the transfer, Tehran Radio reported.

There was no definite word on when or what would happen to the hostages afterward. The militants also said they planned to maintain their possession of the embassy after the hostages leave.

Officials in Washington and at U.N. headquarters in New York reacted cautiously to the news, fearful that substantive comments could hurt delicate moves toward resolving the crisis.

"Nothing has happened. A statement has been made. We are going to watch and see what happens," said State Department spokesman Hodding Carter.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said President Carter met with top aides and "we've noted the reports from Tehran and we are watching the situation very carefully."

The dramatic "development" in Tehran came hours after the U.N. Commission investigating charges against the Shah threatened to leave because its efforts to visit the hostages had been stymied. The commission was persuaded by Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh to give the Revolutionary Council another two or three days to arrange the visit.

Billions to curb oil use

Washington Post: WASHINGTON — The Carter administration proposed a $10 billion oil program Thursday to help utilities switch from costly imported oil to other fuels.

If Congress approves, federal funds could help pay for such diverse projects as coal and nuclear power plants, home insulation campaigns, solar power and the use of garbage to generate energy.

Development of alternate energy sources, particularly coal plants, requires huge amounts of capital that must be generated by even bigger rate increases than those now being imposed by utilities on their customers to pay for the fast-rising cost of fuel oil.

Federal money will reduce the amount of funds utilities must collect from their already burdened customers, one official said.

Sources at the California Public Utility Commission suggested that the Carter proposal for $10 billion in federal aid covers only 25 percent of the ultimate cost of converting from oil to coal.

The administration program unveiled Thursday aims at reducing electric utility consumption of oil by 750,000 barrels daily over the next 10 years. Natural gas, with the energy value of 250,000 barrels of oil daily, also would be substituted by other fuels. Utility use of oil and gas in 1990 would be just 50 percent of current levels, according to the plan's projections.

The electric utility industry "is a prime target for an accelerated national effort at reducing our dependence on imported fuel," President Carter said in a letter transmitting his proposal to Congress. "No other sector of the economy can achieve as great a near-term savings of oil and gas, particularly through conversion of existing facilities to coal, and expanded energy conservation measures," the president said.

The administration wants Congress to approve the aid bill this year. Stuart Eizenstat, the president's chief domestic policy adviser, told a news conference.

The plan has two parts: Grants of $3.6 billion to convert 107 power plants in New England and the Middle Atlantic states from oil to coal.

$6 billion in grants for utility companies elsewhere to hold their oil usage in 1990 below the average consumption between 1974-76. Aided at oil- and gas-burning plants in California, Texas and Florida, in particular, the program would permit states to choose individual plans for replacing oil.

Utility plans, approved by state governments, would be submitted to the Department of Energy by Dec. 31, 1981. "We expect a heavy emphasis on energy conservation in the hospital generation of plans coming out of California," said one Department of Energy official.

Perfect spot for a parking meter

Twin Falls worker Gary Koepnick's well-worn boots received more abuse Thursday as he guided a jackhammer between them. He was breaking up the concrete along the 300 block of Main Avenue West for the new parking meters to be installed in the diagonal spaces. The street department hopes to have the meters ready for use Monday.

Power system for sale?

Utah firm might lose Idaho system

BOISE (UPI) — Utah's Public Service Commission is investigating whether to order Utah Power and Light Co. to sell its Idaho system.

Idaho Power Utilities Commission President Conley Ward said Thursday Utah and Idaho would probably be "better off" if the system is sold.

In a hearing where it agreed to reconsider a rate increase granted to Idaho operations, the Utah Public Service Commission Thursday ordered the investigation.

Sindrey Baucom, general counsel for Utah Power and Light said the January rate increase of $13.4 million awarded by the commission was too small. The utility's stock values had dropped drastically because of it, he said.

But the Utah commission said the utility's woes are largely caused by its Idaho operations, which are a "financial drag" on the utility. The commission ordered an investigation on how the sales of the Idaho operation — about 20 percent of Utah Power and Light — might improve the company's financial health.

Bob Brown, a spokesman for the Idaho Power Co., said Idaho Power would take a "long look" at a possible purchase if Utah Power and Light is ordered to sell its Idaho system.

Utah Power and Light serves parts of Idaho east of Blackfoot. Idaho Falls is served by both Utah Power and Light and the Idaho Power Co.

Ward said it is "pretty common knowledge" that there has been some conflict between the Idaho and Utah commissions on rate setting.

"The Utah commission takes the position we're not paying our fair share of the rates," Ward said. "On the other hand, Idaho is a little nervous about Utah promoting growth with their electric energy policy — we don't get the benefit of the growth, but we do pay for it."

Ward said he doubted if the Utah commission would order Utah Power and Light to sell its Idaho system. He said it was more likely the two commissions would negotiate some type of settlement.

Utah Power and Light is opposed to the sale. James Shoemaker, public affairs manager for the utility, said company analysts would study the issue of selling its Idaho holdings. But he said sale of part of the system could impose extra economic problems on Utah Power.

"To sell under duress would inevitably bring less than the property is worth," Shoemaker said.

Monday, the Idaho Supreme Court considered Utah Power and Light's lawsuit against the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for its rate-setting practices.

Lottery may have been promoted

FCC probes Twin Falls radio ads

By STEVE LIPSON Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Three local radio stations are under investigation by the Federal Communications Commission for ads they ran last June. The ads promoted a "Grab Bag Bonanza" put on by the merchants in the Blue Lakes Shopping Center. Instead of staging an innocent promotion, the merchants may have inadvertently sponsored a lottery.

Merchants sold grab bags for 25 cents. Each bag was guaranteed to contain merchandise worth at least 25 cents, but some of the bags also contained special prizes.

KLIX, KEEP, KART, the Times-News and the North Side News runs promoting the event. KLIX asked its lawyers in Washington D.C. for an opinion first, according to Dick Ryall, the station's general manager. The lawyers told him the event was a lottery and that it would violate federal law to run the ads on his air.

"If you're going to call a guy in Washington and pay him the kind of money we do, you better do what he tells you," Ryall said. So KTLIC did not run the grab bag ads.

Ryall said his attorney asked him who was running ads for the event. Ryall named KLIX and later supplied the attorney with tapes of KLIX commercials as well as copies of newspaper ads from the Times-News and North Side News.

In July, KTLIC's lawyers filed a formal complaint against KLIX with the FCC, but Ryall said he had no knowledge his lawyers would do that, and he has never seen a copy of the complaint.

KTLIC is owned by the Greentree Broadcasting Co. in California, which may have hired the lawyers to file the complaint, Ryall said. He said he knows part of some of the other stations blame him for blowing the whistle, but he said, "I didn't contact the FCC."

In August, KLIX got a letter from the FCC saying the station was under investigation for broadcasting, you get a hard attack when you get a letter from the FCC," said Charlie Tuma, the general manager at KLIX.

Tuma replied to the FCC with details about the promotion, the ads KLIX had run and a list of the other stations that ran the ads.

"We didn't think it was a lottery at the time," Tuma said. "If it was, we're guilty. We made a mistake and I hope the FCC will be lenient."

If KLIX is guilty, the FCC could go as far as revoking the station's broadcast license, Tuma said. Or it could simply issue a reprimand.

Tuma mailed his reply to the FCC at the end of August. No final decision has been made in the case.

In the meantime, KART and KEEP both got letters from the FCC in the last week asking them about their involvement with the grab bag promotion.

Al Lee, general manager of KART, said his reply is ready but he hasn't sent it yet. He argues in his reply that because each grab bag contained at least 25 cents in merchandise the event was not a lottery.

The legal definition of a lottery sets forth three conditions, Carps said. A lottery requires consideration, in other words people had to pay to participate. A lottery requires a prize, such as the special discount coupons and other gifts in some of the grab bags, and a lottery requires the element of chance. Even though everyone was guaranteed at least 25 cents worth of merchandise, some people had a chance for much more than that, he said.

If it was a lottery, then KEEP is guilty, he said. "I expect at worst a fine and at best a slap on the wrist."

According to Lynn McFarland, superintendent of postal operations at the Twin Falls post office, postal inspectors have not investigated the Times-News to see if it violated any laws by mailing copies of the paper with the grab bag ad to its subscribers.

Similarly, the merchants association at the Blue Lakes Shopping Center has not been investigated to see if it violated any laws by staging the grab bag promotion, according to Dan Muquizz, manager of the mall.

Vegetarian parents fail to regain custody of children put in hospital

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — A judge declined Thursday to return two young children taken from their parents and placed in a hospital because they were fed a vegetarian diet.

Oakland County Probate Judge John O'Brien held a closed-door conference of a motion by Chris and Norman Schneider for emergency release of their 8-month-old son, David, and 2-year-old daughter, Eva.

After hearing from attorneys and a doctor, O'Brien adjourned the case for one week and ordered the youngsters to remain at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

The children's court-appointed guardian, attorney Douglas Otlewski, declined to discuss the youngsters' condition but said they remained under treatment and were "on a diet prescribed by the hospital."

"I have had the opportunity to view the children," Otlewski said. "I'm not a doctor but all I can say at this point is that I'm satisfied they are going to continue to reside in the hospital at this time."

The children were taken to the hospital with their parents' consent Feb. 15 for physical examinations.

A petition filed by a probate court protective services worker accused the Schrodgers of neglect for keeping the two children on the health diet. There has been no formal proceedings as yet on the charges.

It could take weeks before a final determination is made in the case, which was adjourned so "we can get some more information for the court," assistant county prosecutor Mitch Ribliver said.

The Schrodgers eventually could lose custody of David and Eva. They have a third child, 7-year-old Shari, who was allowed to remain in their custody.

"The law gives the court the power to remove children from their parents' home if the court finds allegations to be true that the child has been neglected," Ribliver said.

House action defeats registration for women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's proposal to register women for the draft was soundly rejected Thursday by a House Armed Services subcommittee.

Members of the panel, who took the first — and perhaps last — congressional vote on the issue, said the number of draft-age young men is large enough to fill the needs of all military services in a time of emergency, without also calling up women.

"There is absolutely no need to include women," declared Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md.

The 8-1 vote to table the bill does not affect the administration's call for registration of men.

Further action — it be taken in the House on the plan to register women unless the full committee decides to revive the idea — a step that is considered unlikely.

Administration officials said of that total 12 million registration pool, only about 650,000 persons would be drafted to augment the military services in a time of emergency. Of that number, they said, only a maximum 80,000 of the draftees would be women.

This sparked criticism from some members of Congress, like Rep. Elwood Hillis, R-Ind., who said it would be "economically unjustified and unnecessary" to register 6 million women for a possible draft of just 80,000.

Austria's ambassador to Colombia, Edgar Selzer, is embraced by friends after his release. UPI

Colombian terrorists free Austrian ambassador

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—Terrorists holding the Dominican Embassy freed the Austrian ambassador for "humanitarian" reasons Thursday.
But the government said it expected no early end to the ordeal for some 30 other diplomatic hostages, including the American ambassador.
Ambassador Edgar Selzer, one of 13 ambassadors among the more than 30 hostages in besieged Dominican Embassy, was released so he could go to the bedside of his wife, who was reported gravely ill in Vienna.
Unshaven and smiling, Selzer emerged from the embassy and walked quickly through the police cordon to a waiting Red Cross truck, which drove him straight to Bogota airport for a flight home.

A government source called Selzer's release a "humanitarian gesture" on the part of the terrorists occupying the Dominican Embassy for the ninth day. But he cautioned against hopes for an early end to the siege.
Still being held inside the fortress-like embassy in western Bogota were 12 ambassadors, including U.S. Ambassador Diego Ascencio and Pappal Nuncio Angelo Acerbi, and about 20 other hostages.
Their captors, members of the left-wing April 19 Movement, were demanding $50 million and freedom for 31 jailed leftists as ransom for their release.
A government spokesman said no new negotiations with the terrorists were held Thursday but that he expected them to resume today outside the embassy in the cream-colored police van used for two previous rounds of talks.

Sweeping land reform starts

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI)—El Salvador's shaky junta, in a dramatic attempt to head off civil war, Thursday expatriated about 60 percent of the country's best farmland from the hands of a tiny elite and promised to turn it over to landless peasants.
The civilian-military junta also imposed a state of siege on the entire nation to prevent powerful opponents of the sweeping reforms from resisting them with violence.
Army helicopters and war jets swirled over San Salvador. A spokesman for the Military High Command said there was no trouble in the capital or countryside when army and National Guard troops occupied 50 of the largest farms in the nation to guarantee the land reform process.
The state of siege—which lifts most constitutional guarantees—restricts public meetings, limits political advertising and allows police to arrest and hold citizens without specifying the charges.

Hopes 'very dim' for crew

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI)—The Coast Guard said Thursday it is unlikely there are any survivors of a Panamanian cargo ship that apparently sank this week during a storm off North Carolina's coast.
Officials said, however, they will continue a massive search for the 22-member crew of the 340-foot Mount Horizon at least until today.

Korean colonel executed

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI)—A firing squad Thursday executed a South Korean colonel, the first of six men sentenced to die for their involvement in the assassination of President Park Chung-hee, the Defense Ministry announced.
Army Col. Park Heung-joo, 41, was the only active military man convicted of taking part in the Oct. 26 assassination. The fate of the five other men, including the former intelligence chief who gunned down the president, is before the Supreme Court.

Postal safety questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—While thousands of demonstrators staged a protest over Postal Service working conditions, Postmaster General William Bolger told Congress Thursday he plans to make the agency a leader in occupational safety.
Both the sign-waving American Postal Workers Union members and the House Post Office and Civil Service subcommittee were concerned about the death of Michael McDermett in a conveyor belt accident Dec. 15 at a New Jersey bulk mail center.
Bolger said he has launched 14 safety programs since the accident—including inspections, equipment maintenance and a beefed-up safety staff with the goal of achieving a safety program in the Postal Service that is second to none.
But several congressmen accused Postal Service management of being more concerned with moving the mail than with the safety of 600,000 employees.

Pinto case heads for jury

WINAMAC, Ind. (UPI)—The judge in Ford's reckless homicide case said Thursday he will submit the case to the jury but withheld final judgment on the automaker's request for a directed verdict of innocent.
"We will submit this case to the jury," said Judge Harold Staffeldt, but he added he was reserving his ruling on the directed verdict request and could grant or refuse it at some later unspecified time.
The jury will consider whether the world's second largest automaker knowingly sold cars with fuel tanks which tended to leak gas and explode in rear-end collisions.

'Black, poor being burned up'

CHICAGO (UPI)—Teams of negotiators for the city and striking firefighters met Thursday in efforts to end the bitter three-week walkout.
Negotiators for both sides got together several hours after they had huddled in separate rooms in the Bismarck Hotel, with the civil rights leader shutting back and forth.
"At least we are sitting together. We hope to stay until we come to a resolution," said Jackson, who announced the resumption of talks after meeting for more than an hour with the mayor at City Hall.
"Black and poor people are being burned up," added Jackson, director of Operation PUSH. "We cannot allow issues of political debate to be more basic than fire protection."

Nuclear workers investigated

ATHENS, Ala. (UPI)—Eight workers at the Browns Ferry Nuclear Plant were suspended Thursday pending an investigation by the FBI into the cause of three unexplained reactor shutdowns in February.
Tennessee Valley Authority Director Richard Freeman said the employees were suspended because of the "suspicious nature" of the shutdowns. "We had some tripping of equipment that we could not identify the cause," Freeman said.
"We have had some instances which suggest some of our employees may have been involved, but we have no firm evidence, no hard evidence."
TVA spokesman Craven Crowell said the nuclear reactor tripped, or stopped, on Feb. 10, 12 and 15. He said the unit was then taken off line for testing and the men were suspended after tests revealed no cause for the shutdown.

Afghan rebel: 110,000 killed

United Press International
An Afghan rebel leader said Thursday 110,000 people have died over the past 20 months in fighting between Islamic insurgents and Afghan troops, aided since December by the Soviet Union's occupation army.
While most of the casualties were sustained by the insurgents and Afghan government forces, he said the Soviet Union has lost 3,500 men and suffered many more wounded since its estimated 75,000 troops joined the fighting in the wake of a Moscow-managed coup.
In Washington, the State Department accused the Kremlin of digging in for a long stay in Afghanistan.
"Recent information confirms our basic impression that the Soviet Union shows no sign of withdrawing from Afghanistan but on the contrary is making preparations to remain for an indefinite period," a department spokesman said.
He said the Soviets are building military bases, installing sophisticated air defense and conventional missiles and engaging in "construction activities... (that) indicate plans for a more permanent presence."
In a speech to municipal officials in Islamabad, Pakistan, President Mohammed Zia U-Haq proposed sending an international peace-keeping force to Afghanistan and offered to let international organizations inspect Afghan refugee camps in his country.
He again denied that Pakistan was training Afghan insurgents and said Afghanistan could use Soviet troops to seal its 1,400-mile border with Pakistan. Kabul refused to believe his assurances.

In an interview in Pakistan, guerrilla leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar Amir of the Hizbi Islami (Islamic Front), said the heaviest current fighting in Afghanistan was in the eastern Kunar province, where Soviet forces have launched a major offensive to force the rebels to retreat into the mountains.
He said the Russians suffered 300 dead and 1,100 wounded in Kunar alone. Most of their casualties were paratroopers shot by rebels waiting in ambush as the Russians parachuted from transport planes into the mountainous terrain.

"We also have captured thousands upon thousands of rounds of ammunition and weapons from Afghan forces and one division, two brigades and two battalions of Afghan soldiers have defected to our side so far," he claimed.
The rebel leader's casualty figures could not be confirmed independently.

House approves appellate court

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho House voted 39-30 Thursday to create a three-member state court of Appeals designed to help clear up the growing backlog of cases faced by the Idaho Supreme Court.

Rep. Percival Wesche, R-Nampa, the sponsor, and Rep. Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said the bill is not perfect but something needs to be put on the books now.

"We have an obligation to come forth with a better bill than this one," said Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, a lender.

She said the phrase "Justice delayed is justice denied" is becoming a reality in Idaho, but Wesche's bill, which now goes to the Senate, would "cost more money and compound the chaos."

"This bill is born of desperation," she said.

She said it would be an added burden on the state Supreme Court because the justices must decide which cases should go where. She said the question of jurisdiction could be resolved if all cases first went to the appellate court.

Under the bill, the governor would appoint three judges to staggered, six year terms. The law creating the court would take effect July 1, 1981. Wesche said this would allow time for the 1981 Legislature to amend the law if needed.

Cases of legal "philosophy" would be handled by the Supreme Court and the appellate panel would consider cases of a technical nature.

Elsewhere in the Legislature: — The Joint Finance Appropriations Committee approved a bill appropriating $65.8 million from the general account for higher education in Idaho. The amount is slightly less than the sum recommended by Gov. John V. Evans.

— The House State Affairs Committee referred to the floor with a "do pass" recommendation a bill that would beef up the power of the Idaho Human Rights Commission to process complaints. Promoted by Lt. Gov. Phil Balt and lauded by business groups and several committee members, the measure was sent out of committee unanimously.

— Rep. Morgan Mungler, R-Ola, chairman of the House 1 percent subcommittee, said property tax rebel Don Chance's stock with the people has dropped since the 1 percent law was passed.

House, gold medalist honor Olympians

BOISE — Idaho's only Olympic gold medalist Thursday urged Idahoans to express their appreciation to America's recent Olympic hockey and ice skating victors.

The request immediately gained the support of a few of his powerful friends.

Idaho's only Olympic gold medalist is Emery Hedlund, a Democratic state representative from St. Maries.

His call for an expression of appreciation was contained in a memorial to be sent to the Olympic athletes — a memorial which quickly gained the unanimous approval of all 70 members in the Idaho House.

Hedlund won the 100 kilometer cross-country ski racing competition in 1977, an event considered then, as well as now, to be one of the more

Democrats offer homeowner tax relief

BOISE (UPI) — A Democrat-backed bill to reduce residential property taxes by $22 million and boost taxes on non-residential property an equal amount received a preliminary go-ahead Thursday from the House 1 percent subcommittee.

Sponsored by Rep. Ron Harlow, D-Lewiston, with the blessing of Gov. John V. Evans, the measure would mean an estimated 28 percent average reduction in property taxes for homeowners this year.

In sending the "homestead exemption" bill to the parent House Revenue and Taxation Committee, the subcommittee also recommended that the bill continuing the freeze on property taxes and delaying implementation of the 1 percent law be held up for a few days.

Subcommittee member Rep. Michael Swartney, R-Boise, said the 1 percent bill should be held up until other property tax-related bills such as Harlow's were aired before the Revenue and Taxation Committee.

"The subcommittee agreed to put a one-year limit on Harlow's bill, thinking this would give it a better chance of surviving further legislative consideration.

Steve Seward, the governor's fiscal assistant, told the subcommittee homeowners have shouldered an unfair burden in the payment of property taxes while utilities and industries have been getting a break.

Harlow's measure, which has been considered by past legislatures but rejected, would provide a property tax exemption on the first $10,000 assessed value of owner-occupied residences, farms of five acres or less, condominiums and "mobile" homes.

Rental property would not receive exemptions.

The estimated $22 million in tax relief would be replaced by an equal tax increase for all other forms of property in Idaho, said Harlow, the assistant House minority leader.

Seward told the committee the assessed value of residential property in Idaho jumped more than twice as fast as all other property in the three years preceding passage of the 1 percent initiative.

He said population growth failed to justify this extreme rise in residential assessment and taxation.

Senate calls for public coalition to push coal-fired plant

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Senate Thursday approved a resolution 23-0, calling for the formation of a coalition to build these plants, if the Legislature in southern Idaho.

Sen. Richard Egbert, D-Tetonai, said Idaho has waited too long to build these plants, "causing power costs to escalate."

Egbert said when Boiseans voted against the construction of a coal-fired plant several years ago, it increased the cost of power 50 percent. He said Idahoans do not have the time to study alternative methods of energy.

"I know how to move coal," he said. "Everyday we delay we're adding to the cost."

But Sen. Ken Robison, D-Boise, said all southern Idahoans would end up paying for a plant which was meant to benefit FMC Corp. at Pocatello.

Robison said FMC, which has an interruptible service contract with Idaho Power Co., pays 45 percent of what the utility's residential customers pay, while the firm uses about 14 percent of the power produced by the utility.

"Rates will go up by $40 million and most of the added cost will not be paid by FMC," but by the rest of the customers in southern Idaho," Robison said.

Legislative override of PUC discouraged

BOISE — Any attempt by the Legislature to overturn Public Utility Commission rate decisions appears to be dead, at least for this year.

Thursday a special legislative subcommittee assigned to study the Legislature's authority over the PUC told members of the State Affairs Committee the Legislature does have power to override the commission.

But subcommittee members warned, such power should be used only with "extreme caution."

Frequent use of that power would be "contrary to good public policy," said Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, chairman of the subcommittee. Little said the subcommittee recommended the Legislature use its power only "in cases of extreme emergency."

Little also reminded legislators that the federal government was reviewing federal legislation regulating utilities. Before the Legislature takes any action, it should "wait and see" what legal changes are suggested by the federal government.

Committee urges paperwork reduction

BOISE — A House committee Thursday called for a reduction in state government paperwork.

By a unanimous vote, the State Affairs Committee urged creation of a "form management and reduction program."

That program, according to language in House Bill 653, would undertake "a comprehensive and ongoing examination of the policies and proceedings of state government which have produced this paperwork burden."

Small businesses are "flooded by government" forms, representatives from several Idaho businesses told committee members. An annual review of government forms and related paperwork could lead to the elimination of unnecessary documents.

Rep. Gary Paxman, R-Idaho Falls, sponsor of the measure, told committee members that "information-reporting requirements of state government have proliferated to the point that they have placed an unprecedented paper burden upon citizens and businesses."

HB 653 will come up in the House for a final vote within a week.

Minimum flows OK'd

BOISE — The Idaho Senate Thursday gave final approval to two north Idaho minimum stream flows.

By voice vote, senators adopted House Concurrent Resolutions 37 and 40.

HCR 37 establishes an in-stream flow of 45 cubic feet per second for Sullivan Springs, in Bonner County, a tributary of Granite Creek.

HCR 40 sets a minimum flow of 45 cfs for Granite Creek, which flows into Lake Pend Oreille, in Bonner County.

Defense chief tells Congress build strength to prevent war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown made clear Thursday the United States holds open the option of using tactical nuclear weapons to defend Western Europe.

But he said the United States hopes to avoid their use by designing a "military response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan."

He added: "The policies and the approach I have outlined are not steps toward war."

"They are designed to build strength and to prevent war. What we are doing constitutes a necessary and reasonable response to real needs."

Brown outlined U.S. reactions to the Soviet invasion in an off-the-record appearance before the Council on Foreign Relations in New York City.

His remarks were largely philosophical in nature. Aides made copies of his statement available at the Pentagon.

The defense secretary worked on his remarks late Wednesday night, making several additions and deletions to what was supposed to be the "final" draft. The changes did not alter the substance of his remarks.

"Any direct conflict between American and Soviet forces carries the risk of intensification and geographical spread of the conflict," Brown said.

"We cannot concede to the Soviets full choice of arena or actions."

"But that by no means implies that escalation to the use of nuclear weapons will be the consequence of a U.S.-Soviet clash in Southwest Asia."

Uncertainty plagues MX missile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising costs, scheduling problems, uncertainties over SALT II's fate and even Air Force security are complicating development and deployment of the MX missile system, congressional auditors reported Thursday.

"Uncertainty still exists concerning the MX basing mode," said the General Accounting Office in a report on America's new intercontinental ballistic missile system — one based on movable rather than fixed launch sites.

"The MX system, when completed before the end of the century, is supposed to have 200 missiles and 4,000 shelters spaced 7,000 feet apart.

The report expressed hope many of the uncertainties will be overcome as the system is developed and deployed, beginning in July 1986.

"This does not, however, prevent the need, at the very beginning of full-scale development, for a complete disclosure of program uncertainties and the potential impact on cost, schedule and performance goals," it said.

The Air Force, in charge of the MX system, estimates the final cost of development and deployment at $3 billion. GAO says the cost would rise to $55 billion because of inflation.

The government still must decide what lands in the American West will be needed to deploy the new missiles on their immense "race tracks."

The SALT II treaty is being held in abeyance in the Senate because of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. Its ceiling on Soviet warheads is considered a critical element of the MX's survivability.

"Until final agreement on a SALT II treaty is reached, the amount of land and the number of shelters for the MX weapon system cannot be conclusively determined," the GAO report said.

Mugabe acts to bring order

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Prime minister-elect Robert Mugabe Thursday opened his campaign to end the wartime atmosphere that has dominated Rhodesian life for seven years and return the country to normalcy.

Some whites, outnumbered by more than 30 to 1 by the African nation's 7 million blacks and dispirited with Mugabe's rise to power, were arranging to leave the country.

In a meeting with British Governor Lord Soames, Mugabe urged a rapid end to martial law and curfews and an equally speedy integration of his guerrilla army with the regular armed forces, a spokesman said.

The spokesman, Edilson Zvobgo, also said the reservists called up for the elections that handed the Marxist leader a landslide victory and 57 seats in the 100-member Parliament would be demobilized within days and the national draft would be abolished.

"Nobody wants a perpetual state of emergency. Who needs it?" he said.

Zvobgo said the easing of the various security arrangements would start within the next few days, but that the curfew and guards around vital installations would be retained.

The promise of normalcy came as Mugabe spent a hectic day trying to patch together a coalition Cabinet with fellow nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo.

"The process is well underway," Zvobgo said, adding "We should be in a position to name the Cabinet soon."

But black political sources said there was disagreement over what post Nkomo should hold.

Israel rejects U.N. vote

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin Thursday vowed Israel would carry out the "commandment" to build more Jewish outposts in occupied Arab territory and parliament categorically rejected the U.N. resolution condemning the settlement policy.

Begin, who won a 52-37 endorsement by the Knesset for his stand, implied the United States showed "decided hostility" to Israel by joining the Security Council vote last Saturday.

The Knesset voted against the U.N. resolution that called on Israel to dismantle Jewish settlements in the occupied Arab territories, including East Jerusalem. While the United States voted in favor, President Carter later said the vote was an error.

The opposition Labor Party stood with the government in condemning the U.N. measure but voted against endorsing Begin's statement.

Labor drafted its own condemnation statement which also called on the government not to settle Jews in densely populated areas of the occupied West Bank, specifically in Hebron, but the motion was defeated 52-34.

Begin said Israel accepted "with all due respect" Carter's explanation that a communications foul-up over references to Jerusalem in the text of the resolution caused the mistaken U.S. vote.

Onassis' estranged husband Soviet agent, paper charges

LONDON (UPI) — Sergei Kauzov, estranged husband of Christina Onassis, is a Soviet agent who wooed and won the heiress on KGB orders to gain confidential information on Western oil supplies, the Daily Express said Thursday.

The front-page story said Kauzov, 40, was a Soviet shipping expert based in Paris when he was ordered by the Soviet intelligence service to pursue and marry the twice-divorced Christina, who inherited one of the world's biggest tanker fleets from her father, Aristotle Onassis.

"His job was to supply Moscow with details of reserves, supplies and movements of oil in the West," the story said. "Oil was becoming the major concern of the West — the whole world in fact — and it was essential for the Russians to get him into the Onassis empire and report back."

The Express said Kauzov's assignment was disclosed by "an American businessman with close contacts in the Kremlin — and later corroborated by Western intelligence sources."

Christina, married two years to the Russian, has begun divorce proceedings in Switzerland.

The newspaper said Kauzov planned to marry Natasha, the Soviet wife of the "oil" tycoon, after divorce so he could marry Christina. He is also hoping for a $1.1 billion share of the Onassis business empire in settlement with Christina, it said.

Christina, the story said, is now in love with a young French lawyer, Michel Hubert Michard Pellister, who is helping handle her divorce.

Novelist Dorothea Bennett read Thursday's front page of the Daily Express with its allegation that the Russian husband of Christina Onassis was a KGB man and said: "In this case 'fiction' may have anticipated fact."

Tut 'curse' fake, tomb guard claims

LONDON (UPI) — The last surviving member of the 1922 expedition that discovered the tomb of Egyptian King Tut-Ankh-Amen claims the legendary "curse" blamed for the early deaths of several of the explorers was a fake worked up to protect the treasures.

Richard Adamson, who was a security officer and slept in the tomb after King Tut was discovered, said the story of the curse was circulated to "frighten off those who might have tried to rob the tomb at night. He credited Howard Carter and Lord Carnarvon, who headed the expedition, with thinking up the tale that anyone who violated the tomb would die.

Adamson told his story in a letter to Harlech Television which has just completed a $3.5 million fictionalization, "The Curse of King Tut," which assumes the curse was real and the deaths of expedition members not as free from suspicion as inquiries have proved.

Oklahoma station won't show film on nuclear worker

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — "The Plutonium Incident," a film allegedly based on the life of the late Oklahoma nuclear worker Karen Silkwood, will not be shown on a local network television affiliate, station officials said.

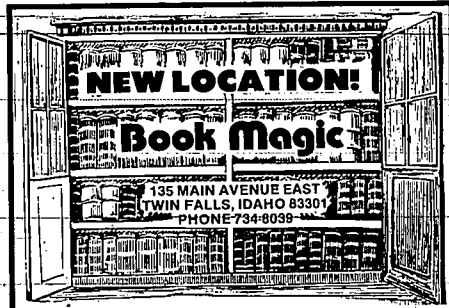

Jack Sallaska, program manager at CBS affiliate KWTY, said the station's attorneys recommended the nationally televised movie, scheduled for airing next Tuesday, not be shown in Oklahoma City.

Sallaska said the film contains subject matter that could be related to a $2.4 million libel suit filed by Ms. Silkwood's survivors.

Officials at KOTV, CBS' affiliate in Tulsa, Okla., said they would air the film.

The movie, produced by Time-Life Films, is based on the book "A Short Life," a fictional work by Thomas B. Allen. Ms. Silkwood's parents, Bill and Merle Silkwood, have filed a libel suit charging the book is based on the life of their daughter. The plaintiffs allege that even though the book does not mention their daughter, it contains statements that "wantonly libel" the family.

Animal lover finds people want to help

MIDDLETON, Mass. (UPI) — Conrad Denis has a soft spot in his heart for animals. "He just discovered that a lot of people have a similar place in their hearts for him."

Denis said last weekend his nonprofit Home for Abandoned Animals would be forced to close because of money problems. He issued an appeal to families who might be willing to adopt some of his charges.

Instead, he received more than $4,000 in cash, an offer of a long-time supply of pet food, and more than 20 pledges of fund-raising efforts from service clubs, schools and other groups. One woman even offered to sell her house.

"The response was most surprising, the most fantastic, the most incredible thing that ever happened to me in over 30 years of this work," he said Wednesday.

"I didn't think there was much sympathy or compassion left in the world, but I can see I was wrong and I really can't tell you how good this makes me feel."

Within 48 hours of his plea, published in Sunday newspapers and later broadcast on radio and television, Denis had placed 64 pets — including a de-scented skunk.

Denis works seven days a week, pays himself no salary, doesn't own a suit and depends on friends for clothes and sometimes even food. But he said it reached the point where expenses grew too overwhelming and he decided to shut down.

Now he says he has to think about all the offers he received because he doesn't "really know what to do now."

But he still has 16 animals left to place, plus two blind dogs and another crippled when it was thrown from a speeding car. He firmly refuses to put any away.

"So, no matter what, I'll keep and care for them until their time comes, whenever that may be," he said.

Lottery cleaned off by $916,115 payoff

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Illinois State Lottery went to the cleaners when the number 123 turned up a winner in its new daily game, a spokesman said Thursday.

The lottery is faced with a payout of $916,115 for bets Wednesday on that number, which is used as a sample number in literature plugging the "numbers" style game.

Only $236,797 was bet, meaning the lottery is paying out nearly four times what it took in for the day, the spokesman said.

Statistically, the lottery stands to keep 50 percent of all money bet on the daily game over the long run.

Almost every citizen pays cost of high interest rates

By JAMES A. WHITE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK — Who pays for higher interest rates? Eventually, we all do. People looking for home mortgages, auto loans or other credit purchases get elbowed immediately. And sooner or later, almost everyone will be affected by the higher cost of doing business, increased utility rates and higher taxes.

There is one group that gets some benefit — those with money to invest in certificates — now earning nearly 15 percent. Beginning Thursday, banks and thrift institutions can offer $10,000, six-month certificates carrying a record interest of 14.75 percent, a steep jump from the previous record rate of 13.625 percent.

The good news for certificate buyers, however, is fleeing at best. All consumers will be picking up a higher tab for years to come as today's record interest rates work their way into the economy, adding to prices. In many cases, these will not be one-shot increases. For example: • Utilities paying all-time high interest to sell new bonds today will add the charges to their rate base, and customer bills, for up to 40 years. • Credit card issuers, looking for permanent ways to trim their losses as borrowing costs outstrip ceilings on consumer finance charges, are passing tougher terms on cardholders and are considering raising card fees. • State and local governments and their offshoot agencies are paying more for long-term financing, meaning a heavier load for taxpayers.

In the short-run, economist Lawrence Chalmers of the Chase Econometrics forecasting firm says high interest rates create a "vicious circle" by hiking inflation that the Federal Reserve will try to dampen by tightening credit, producing even higher interest rates.

"Added to these factors is the fear of inflation itself and the fear of what the administration might try next to check it," he said. "This could very well lead to price increases in anticipation of mandatory price controls."

President Carter has ruled out wage and price controls — just as the Nixon White House did before imposing them Aug. 15, 1971. But some form of control on credit extensions remains under review. Even without formal credit controls, lenders say they have to recover their higher cost of money from consumers or out of the loan flow. Chase Manhattan Bank Chairman David Rockefeller predicted in Honk Wednesday still higher interest rates. "The banks are paying over 17 percent for money and usury ceilings are forcing them to lend out to consumers at 12 to 14 percent," David M. Jones, economist for Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., said Wednesday. "You can be sure if this continues banks will start to be more selective in the consumer area."

Mortgage money already has slowed to a trickle and the National Association of Realtors said Wednesday it is "deeply concerned" over the interest rate hike that put the prime lending rate banks charge to their most creditworthy borrowers at a record 17.25 percent.

"At a time when the demand for housing is at its highest level since World War II, the Federal Reserve Board is limiting the availability of housing through its tight money policy," the association said.

A percentage point change in a mortgage rate is enormously expensive to the borrower — a $50,000, 30-year mortgage at 12 percent interest compounded monthly carries monthly payments of $553.69 and total interest charges of $149,112.

But at 14 percent, the monthly payment for the same mortgage is $592.43 with total interest charges of $162,274, a difference of $14,162 over the 13 percent loan. The bite grows still larger with 15 percent mortgages now spreading.

Industrialist Hammer favors improving ties with Soviets

By JOSEPH L. GALLOWAY
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev told visiting American industrialist Dr. Armand Hammer, that American fears the Soviets intended to expand their Afghanistan action into Pakistan or Iran were "sheer nonsense."
"He said they definitely would withdraw their troops just as soon as order was established in Afghanistan — they had no intention of going on to the Persian Gulf and threatening our oil supplies," Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum, said of his Moscow session with Brezhnev last week.
"He said — quote — This is sheer nonsense — unquote, Mr. Brezhnev said that," Hammer told UPI in an exclusive interview at his company headquarters in Los Angeles.
Hammer, whose business dealings with the Soviet Union date back to

DR. ARMAND HAMMER ...meets with Brezhnev

Lenin in 1921, said, "I have a feeling and I believe — Mr. Brezhnev was telling the truth, I believe that it is entirely his intention."
"I think we ought to take Mr.

Brezhnev at his word," Hammer said. Of the current crisis in Soviet-American relations, the 61-year-old industrialist said, "I think it has reached the lowest stage I have ever seen in 60 years of contact in Russian-American relations and trade. I think it is dangerous to let it escalate."
"The cold war could easily become a hot war."
"After all the Russians have enough nuclear weapons to destroy us. We have enough to destroy them. Perhaps we could destroy them 10 times over and they could only destroy us 5 times."
"Who wants to be destroyed even once?" Hammer asked.
Hammer was asked about speculation that President Brezhnev was losing his grip on the Kremlin leadership at a transition period had already begun.
"I have just the opposite feeling," Hammer said. "I have known Mr. Brezhnev many years, have seen and met with him on many occasions."
"What struck me when I saw him last week was that he was in fine shape."

Administration seeks to bolster corn prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration Thursday asked for one more tool in its effort to raise corn prices as high as they would have been without the Russian grain embargo.
The proposal would permit farmers who did not enroll in last year's farm program to take advantage of it anyway, and put corn into the farm-er-owned reserve.
Growers would get price support loans for corn put into reserve, to be paid back when prices reach certain levels, or after three years.

Many members of the Senate Agriculture Committee wanted higher price supports instead, but they quickly sent the proposal to the full Senate without dissent.
The proposal would provide another way to isolate from the marketplace corn that would have gone to the Soviet Union.
It represented a switch from Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland's opinion it would be unfair to provide program benefits to farmers who decided not to enroll in the program last year. Nearly 80 percent of corn acreage was not covered by the program.

Howard Hjort, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, asked for legislation "to permit a limited amount of 1979 crop corn that is not now eligible to enter the reserve if, after ample opportunity, farmers who are now eligible do not put enough corn into reserve to bring prices up."
Hjort said corn prices are lower than they would have been without the embargo, but the administration would not back proposals to raise prices supports now because of efforts to fight inflation by paring the budget.

The new provision could add maybe 5 million tons, but no more than 10 million tons, to the farmer-owned reserve, Hjort said.
The committee also approved sale of government stocks of corn for new alcohol fuel plants for gasoline at $2.63 per bushel, instead of a $3.15 minimum at which government-held corn must be sold.

Chrysler calls back vans

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. has recalled approximately 1 million vans — some of them 8 years old — to check for cracks in a frame part that could be put under severe stress by power steering.
The recall, announced Wednesday, was the largest ordered by Chrysler since it recalled 1.5 million compact cars two years ago.
It applies to the 1971 through 1978 models of the Plymouth Voyager, Dodge Sportsman, Dodge Van, and Dodge front-section models equipped with power steering.
Both Chrysler and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration have investigated the problem. Chrysler said it decided to proceed with the recall even though it believes the frame member crack does not amount to a legally defined safety defect.

There have been reports of two minor accidents attributed to the cracked frame member, but neither involved personal injury, a Chrysler spokesman said.
Inspections already made indicated that the vehicle frames are intact in 90 percent of the models, Chrysler said.
The spokesman said a van owner who drives under average conditions "will never have a problem."
But, officials said, a crack could be caused by the continuous stress exerted when power steering comes into play with wheels parked against a curb or other obstruction. Drivers parking on inclines often jam their tires against the curb.
Vehicles without power steering are unlikely to undergo pressures that great on the frame, the spokesman said.

Safeway freezes prices on food line

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safeway Stores, Inc., the nation's largest food chain, Thursday announced a 30-day price freeze on goods it sells under its "Scotty's" private label.
Peter A. Magowan, board chairman, said the move was an effort to "help our customers cope with inflation."

The chain has 2,100 stores, most of them in the Middle Atlantic states and west of the Mississippi.

Disaster-proof home

Sylvia Porter

It is becoming even more imperative to make your home as secure as possible against burglaries, as well as fires and the equally hazardous danger of smoke. With the soaring price of silver making your flatware a favorite target of 1980's burglars along with yesterday's favorites (TV sets, radios, televisions etc.), negligence to "disaster-proof" your home as much as you can goes under the category of stupid apathy or unforgivable ignorance.
There are three major areas in which you must act:
(1) Create a defensive perimeter around your home. An estimated 80 percent of all burglaries are not premeditated, so by creating this protection, you will forestall most forced entry.
• Door locks do not prevent entry. Deadlocks, installed above your doorknob, give you the most protection. Make sure your lock has a bolt throw or bolt projection of one inch, and that it is of solid brass with no die-cast parts. Ask your locksmith for details.
• Door peepholes. Check whether you have 180 degree vision.
• Door chains. Not a good form of security for a chained but open door can be kicked in. Use chains only to see who is at the door.
• Windows. For maximum protection, remove window glass and install plexiglass, advises Bernard Rick, of Security Safe, Inc., in Rochester, N.Y., a noted security expert. Install key locks on all windows, including cellar windows, and such areas as shutters.

• Your garage. Padlock the garage door. All tools you install inside (ladders, axes, sledge hammers) can be used against you. Lock them.
• Burglar alarms. Protect your home or apartment with some form of burglar alarm system. Burglar alarm systems come in a wide range of sophisticated types and in prices from under $100 to as much as $7,000. Decide in advance how much you want to spend (basely your decision on the net worth of your valuables) and consult an authoritative source (your local Better Business Bureau, Consumer Protection Agency, Consumer Reports, etc.) on the alarm company's reputation.
(2) Take steps to increase the protection of valuables within your own home.
• Burglary Safes. If you own any valuable jewelry, spare cash, negotiable stocks and bonds at home, a burglary safe might be an exceedingly wise investment.
• Fire-rated Safes. A U.L. fire-rated safe is the only sure way to protect your records from being lost in a fire. Assuming you have no safe deposit box in a well-protected bank vault, a burglary safe at home offers no protection against fire and neither do little tin-boxes or metal file cabinets. If your valuables — plus your insurance documentation — are destroyed in a fire, it could be financial disaster.

(3) Make sure your home is fire-safe.
• Smoke detectors. Place these in corridors leading to the sleeping quarters to alert family members to get out of the house.
• Fire alarms (heat detectors). To be effective, these (like burglar alarms) must trigger a response in the fire department as well as alert the family to evacuate.
• Fire extinguisher. The ABC type, effective against all types of fire (wood, chemical, electrical) is best. Keep it in fire-prone areas, such as fireplace, kitchen, garage, near the flreplace.
• Rope ladders. Make sure you have a good, strong rope ladder to allow those in upstairs bedrooms to escape from the windows if heat and smoke block the doorways.
• And have a pre-planned escape route, an alternate escape route and a location to meet for a "head count." And memorize it!

Paper recycling profitable for Twin Falls paper dealer

TWIN FALLS — Gene Hamilton says there is profit in recycling paper products.

There may also be profit soon in recycling glass and plastic, the 15-year veteran of the recycling business contends.

Hamilton is also experimenting with recycling plastic soft drink bottles and glass.

Hamilton said he has one of the few paper balers in the area and can compress and bale newspapers as well as cardboard.

balings—but he said he still likes to have the boxes flattened.

Hamilton said demand for glass is not especially strong, and the market is far enough away to cut into profits.

Hamilton's firm accepts aluminum and paper, including newspaper, cardboard and computer cards and paper for recycling.

JEROME (UPI) — Speaking in support of increased acreage limitations, Second-District-congressional candidate Jim Jones Thursday said a two-year moratorium should be placed on enforcement of limitation provisions of the 1962 Reclamation Act.

Cassia County gets option on steam plant land

BURLEY — Cassia County has acquired an option to purchase property for its proposed steam plant.

County attorney Al Barrus said the 60-day option was granted by the Idaho Power Co. for the 10-acre site of the Simplot plant at Heyburn.

Heyburn site. Financing of the plant and the specifics of a contract with Simplot for use of the steam remain to be resolved.

The Rupert City Council in recent months has said it would only be interested in participation in the project if its garbage trucks had to drive to Heyburn to meet that requirement.

The council has also maintained it wants some guarantee that if there is revenue generated in the project, city residents will benefit.

In response to Rupert's stance, Barrus said Thursday, "Some people have the false impression there are going to be more revenues than cost. The plan is to break even. If there are revenues, the city will go to whoever puts money into the project."

Barrus said he thinks Mindoko County is seriously considering participation in the project.

McKay has made statements that Hammer's wife, Gay, sent a messenger, who approached him with the offer. He said Warren Lundquist of the Services Employees Union, was the messenger, who offered him a position on the Ads County Commission and help in future campaigns.

Utah boy released unharmed by stepfather

ROY, Utah (UPI) — Roy police said five-year-old Lenny Spencer was released unharmed Wednesday after his father, who wounded two people, barricaded himself in his home and held the boy hostage for 10 hours.

Weber County Sheriff George Fisher said Gary Womack, 28, of Roy, was booked into the county jail on charges of attempted criminal homicide in connection with the incident.

According to police officials, the situation erupted about 2:30 a.m. Wednesday when Womack kicked in the door of a neighbor's home and demanded guns and ammunition. Two men in the home at the time refused the demand.

Roy police said Womack then shot Eric Gray in the arm, while the second man dived out a window and escaped to summon police. Womack then returned to his home with his estranged wife, Donna—Womack, police said.

Officers from seven law enforcement agencies in Weber County converged on the scene.

Mrs. Womack was wounded when she and her husband came out of the house briefly in the early morning hours to take a special telephone into the home. Officers said two older children who were in the home escaped when Womack left the house to get the telephone. Mrs. Womack, who was shot in the back, also escaped.

Only the five-year-old boy was left inside the home with Womack.

Tense hours of negotiating followed. Officers cordoned off a four-square-mile area around the home as an Ogden Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) team moved in along with officers from Rivdale, Clinton, Sunset, Clearfield, Weber County and Utah Highway Patrol troopers.

The Roy Elementary School, just a few blocks from the besieged home, was closed and television news helicopters hovering over the scene were asked to land because they were interfering with the negotiations.

Unofficial police reports said Womack asked for a fueled police car to be left in his driveway, and inter-asked for a bottle of whiskey. Police said neither was delivered.

To keep Womack from news reports of the stalemate, police cut off the home's electricity about 9 a.m. It was briefly restored about 10:30 a.m., but was cut off a few minutes later.

After hours of negotiation, police were preparing to storm the home when Hank Lee, a family friend, and two Ogden SWAT officers entered the house through a rear door. Lee quietly grabbed the boy and the men dashed out the door across a nearby field to safety.

An hour later, at 2:15 p.m., police fired two teargas canisters into the home through bedroom windows. In the ensuing confusion, two SWAT men slipped into the lower floor of the home and captured Womack as he fled downstairs.

Officers said Womack was taken entirely by surprise and offered little resistance. He was whisked out of the home into a waiting highway patrol car and then to Weber County Jail.

He was booked on the attempted homicide charge less than one hour after being captured.

Mrs. Womack was reported in satisfactory condition at Ogden's McKay-Dee Hospital. Gray, the next-door neighbor, was listed in good condition at St. Benedict's Hospital, also in Ogden.

No other injuries were reported.

Hughes' heirs lose fee appeal

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The Nevada Supreme Court Thursday dismissed an appeal by heirs of billionaire Howard Hughes that administrators of the estate were paying excessive legal and other fees.

The heirs also objected to the monthly alimony payments of more than $8,000 to Hughes' ex-wife Jean Peters Hough.

In dismissing the suit, the court said it found the heirs were "not aggrieved parties" under Nevada court rules and did not have standing to file the suit.

After the death of Hughes in 1976, the First National Bank of Nevada was named special administrator and William Lummis was named co-special administrator of the estate. At the first accounting of the estate, the bank for its work received a $50,000 fee and the Las Vegas law firm of Morse, Foley and Wadsworth, co-counsel for the bank, got $190,000, plus $4,000 reimbursement for expenses.

The absent and minor heirs of Hughes objected. At the second accounting, the bank again received $50,000; an additional $175,000 was awarded to the Morse, Foley and Wadsworth law firm and $39,592 went to the law firm of Andrews, Kurth, Campbell and Jones, which was co-counsel for Lummis.

Another objection was filed on grounds the fees were excessive and the issue was raised whether the estate in Texas should be paying some of the bills.

The heirs also filed objections to other fees of accountants.

Under the divorce agreement with Hughes in February 1971, Jean Peters Hough is to receive $8,086 a month for 20 years and the payments are to be readjusted with the cost of living index.

The estate of Hughes is still in the courts with no final distribution yet of the assets.

Snowstorm, rains hit West states

By United Press International

Nearly 2 feet of snow fell on Utah's Wasatch Mountains Tuesday and rainshowers doused waterlogged Southern California.

California forecasters issued a flash flood watch for possibly two more inches along the coast and up to four inches in the mountains.

Thunder, lightning and hail rained across Utah late Wednesday and early Thursday, dumping 20 inches of new snow on the Snowbird ski resort and 16 inches at Alta.

Salt Lake City, about 30 miles northwest of the resorts, was dusted by several inches.

More residents were forced to flee their homes along the shores of Lake Elsinore in Southern California as lake waters continued their steady rise. Runoff from melting mountain snow and from the heavy rains last month has gorged the San Jacinto River which flows into the lake.

Southern California rains brought the season total to 25 1/2 inches, compared with nearly 14 1/2 a year ago and a season average of about 11 inches.

A travelers advisory was posted for the northern mountains of California and the Tahoe Valley of Nevada for snow and gusting winds. A winter storm watch was issued for drifting snow over the mountains of northeast Arizona.

Further east, three inches of snow fell at Rochester, Minn., and two inches at Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Temperatures across the nation ranged from a crisp nine degrees at Glasgow, Mont., to a tropical 81 in the Florida cities of Fort Myers and Orlando.

The National Weather Service predicted snow showers Friday to reach from the Plains through the Great Lakes and New England. Snow was expected to turn into rain from southern Kansas through eastern Texas.

List says Nevada cities must settle MX fund fight

ELY, Nev. (UPI) — Gov. Robert List said Thursday local governments won't get any money to plan for the MX missile project unless they settle their squabble about how to spend it.

List arrived in Ely on the last leg of a three-day tour of Eastern Nevada where he talked with residents about the plant project and its impact on the thinly populated area.

White Pine, Lincoln, Nye and Clark counties formed a tentative planning staff structure Saturday. It had been promised $225,000 by the state in federal planning funds. But Wednesday, White Pine threatened to scuttle it because it wants a bigger share than had been allocated in the tentative budget drawn by Clark County.

"We've been had," said White Pine County Commissioner J.K. Jones. Jones said his county had agreed to the tentative budget proposal Saturday, but later his commission found it did not account for as much as $125,000 of the planning funds. He said White Pine would not get enough money to tackle the non-MX impact problems "and we'll get one-third of the impact."

List said it is not the state's place to get involved in the dispute, but made it clear local governments must reach agreement or they won't get any of the $225,000.

Wednesday, he visited Alamo, Caliente and Pioche. He told local officials he will fight to see the Air Force protect private lands and ranchers' grazing rights, and would go to court if there are flaws in the MX environmental impact statement "if our lawyers have a good case."

But he also said Nevada cannot veto the project, so must plan to meet the impact.

In 4,600-mile flight Air Force testing new F-16 fighters

HILL AFB, Utah (UPI) — The Air Force will test the combat capability of its first squadron of F-16 fighter jets next week with a 4,600-mile transcontinental flight, followed immediately by dozens of short bombing raids west of the Great Salt Lake.

The long flight is designed to simulate quick deployment to a European battlefield. Within an hour after the 12 aircraft jets touch down from the non-stop flight, they will begin approximately 150 short combat missions over the Utah Test and Training range.

"The exercise, which has been planned by wing officials for several months, will demonstrate the long range deployment and 'quick turn' capability of the F-16," said Col. Troy Tolbert, commander of the 34th Tactical Fighter Wing.

"We will be able to find out how the aircraft responds in an increased flying environment," he said.

The jets will take off from Hill at 4 a.m. Tuesday for a 9 1/2-hour flight that will take them north to the Great Lakes, east to the Atlantic Coast and south to Florida. The return trip will be over Texas and southern Utah.

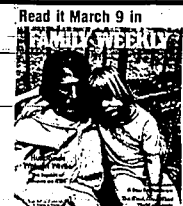

The F-16s will be refueled in the air by KC-135 "stratotanker" from the Strategic Air Command.

Tolbert said the jets will land at Hill at 5 p.m. Tuesday and by 6 p.m., they will be refueled, loaded with weapons and dispatched on missions on the test range about 50 miles from the base. The planes will fly 200,000 miles.

Additional simulated battle exercises will continue all day Wednesday and Thursday. After Tuesday, no night flying is anticipated.

"Throughout the exercise, the aircrews will fly realistic combat profiles to strike simulate targets deep inside enemy territory," said Tolbert.

The exercise, dubbed "Red Max Alpha," is the first long-range test of the highly maneuverable new fighter, which is flown by the 34th Tactical Fighter Squadron.

Arson suspected

SPOKANE (UPI) Several factors have led fire investigators to speculate that arson caused the fire in the Zakur Building Sunday that cost fire-fighter Bob Hanna his life.

Defendants in Bolles murder case say won't plea bargain

FLORENCE, Ariz. (UPI) — James Robison and Max Dunlap, awaiting new trials for the car bomb slaying of reporter Don Bolles, say there is no chance they will strike a plea bargain in an attempt to avoid death sentences.

Bolles, an investigative reporter for The Arizona Republic, died June 13, 1976, eleven days after a bomb exploded beneath his car in a hotel parking lot. He had been lured to the hotel by John Harvey Adamson, who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and fingered Dunlap and Robison. "There isn't anything to plead with," said Dunlap in an interview with United Press International at the Arizona State Prison. "You have to know something to plead." "It's very hard to plea bargain if you're innocent and you have nothing to bargain with," Robison said in a separate interview. "If you're guilty you can make a plea bargain in a minute."

Bolles' death led to a wide-ranging probe of crime in Arizona by the Investigative Reporters and Editors, Inc., headed by Bob Greene of Newsday. The Arizona Supreme Court reversed the convictions and death penalties of Dunlap and Robison Feb. 25 on grounds the trial judge improperly kept the defense from cross-examining Adamson on certain points.

"You're asking me would I admit to a murder I didn't commit in order to get a shorter sentence?" Robison said. "Absolutely not." Robison said he had a chance earlier to plead guilty in return for a reduced sentence. He said prosecutors returned him from the prison to Phoenix and "made me all kinds of offers." Dunlap and Robison, in their first public statements since the Supreme Court ruling, expressed optimism about their new trials.

"Basically we wanted a new trial and hopefully we'll get all the facts out," Dunlap said. "If we get a fair judge I think the general public will understand." Robison referred to the "atmosphere of the community" as the big factor leading to the guilty verdicts in their 1977 trial and suggested "that with the passage of time we'll get back to a more objective frame of mind."

Robison, a 57-year-old plumber from Chandler, said he and Dunlap were convicted by a biased jury. "The four to six weeks of choosing the jury, in my opinion, was not to get an unbiased jury," Robison said. "It was to make sure there were people on there that came under certain precepts that the court wanted." Dunlap agreed. "I felt during the trial the judge was not being objective," Dunlap said. "He was being swayed by public opinion."

Canadian wants Sasquatch saved

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI) — Members of the British Columbia government who were willing to consider putting the Sasquatch on the official endangered species list were as elusive as the legendary beast itself in the legislative corridors Wednesday.

Jack Downey of Calgary, who flew to Victoria last weekend to ask the government to place the creature under official protection, returned home after three days of vainly trying to persuade government officials that the creature actually exists.

Environmental Director William Rogers said, "I don't know if there's such a creature or not," he said. "But if someone wants me to classify it as an endangered species, they are going to have to show me more than a photograph and a plaster cast." The lack of official belief in the creature failed to deter Downey in his fight to protect it. He said he intended to carry the battle to Ottawa and ask the federal government to make it illegal to shoot a Sasquatch "under any circumstances." An official, meanwhile, came up with an alternative solution. The Sasquatch should seek a seat in the provincial legislature, he said. "If he was elected, the only people taking shots at him would be the members of the Opposition (New Democratic Party) — and they rarely hit the target, anyway," he said.

Police question pair about Denver sniping

DENVER (UPI) — A sniper in a speeding car opened fire early Thursday, wounding four men on a downtown street. Police were questioning two men. Investigators said there was no pattern and no apparent motive in the shootings. The victims apparently "were just in the wrong place at the wrong time," said Detective Steve Tamberg. Wheat Ridge police, acting on anonymous tip, arrested two men at a residence and turned the pair over to Denver authorities for questioning. All of the victims were reported in fair condition at Denver General Hospital. Tamberg said a fifth incident, involving a sniper shooting at a truck several blocks from the downtown area, may be related and was under investigation. He said Reza Dehghanan, 21, of Denver, a naturalized citizen from Iran, was standing in a fast food restaurant when a bullet shattered the window. He was hit in the right arm above the elbow. "The next victim said he heard the earlier shots and just as he reached the curb, someone in the car pointed something at him and a shot rang out," said Tamberg. "He ran to take cover behind a tree just as a second shot was fired and hit him in the right thigh." The second victim was identified as Lee Johnson, 29, who has no permanent address.

Accused accessory to kidnapping enters court on variety of charges

MERCED, Calif. (UPI) — The man accused of making first contact in the kidnapping of young Steven Staylor was taken into court and formally charged Thursday for his alleged part in the years-long abduction of the boy, now 14. Bespoken night janitor Ervin Murphy, 38, calm when he was arrested late Tuesday, looked nervous as he appeared briefly before Municipal Judge Keith D. Sharrow. A court-appointed lawyer sought to calm the 5-foot Murphy, dressed in an oversized jail jumpsuit, by patting him on the shoulder and saying, "It's OK."

STEVEN STAYLOR, seven-year abduction two weeks after he and Parnell first picked him up. Police were led to Murphy from information and photo identification supplied by Steven, now reunited with his family in Merced. He surrendered without a struggle at a hotel in Yosemite National Park where he was employed as a janitor on the night shift. Parnell was charged earlier with the kidnap of Steven and that of 5-year-old Timmy White in Ukiah, Calif. Steven and Timmy hitchhiked to Ukiah from Parnell's mountain cabin last Saturday and were found by police. Parnell was arrested hours later.

Steven, who will be 15 next month, has told authorities that while traveling with Parnell, he twice deliberately "messed things up" when Parnell tried to get the youth to help him in other kidnap attempts. Later, after his alleged abductor finally succeeded in kidnapping Timmy White last Valentine's Day, it was Steven who arranged the child's escape, along with his own.

The possibility of third kidnapper emerged Wednesday. Little Timmy, questioned closely by his parents and police, said another man was in the car in which he was spirited away after being snatched off a Ukiah street. A check shows both Steven and Murphy were elsewhere at the time.

Utah's McKay to be challenged

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Republican James V. Hansen, speaker of the Utah House of Representatives, Thursday declared his candidacy for the state's first district congressional seat now held by five-term Democrat Gunn McKay.

Hansen, a Farmington, Utah, insurance salesman, told a news conference at the State Capitol it was time to bring McKay home from Congress. "Five two-year terms are enough for any elected official," said the Republican. "I don't believe our founding fathers intended politics to be a life-long profession. We have wisely placed a constitutional limit on the number of terms a President can serve and that same wisdom applies to any elective official."

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH JACOBSEN

Mayer-Jacobsen

RUPERT — The St. Nicholas Catholic Church in Rupert was the scene of exchange of nuptial vows by Karla Mayer and Kenneth Jacobsen.

Father John Koelsch officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony Feb. 16.

Miss Mayer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Mayer of Heyburn and the bridegroom is the son of Kenneth Jacobsen of Pine, Ore., and Mrs. Anita Barker of Twin Falls.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a floor-length empire gown of polyester crepe fashioned with V-neckline and long lace sleeves. She carried a bouquet of silk dark blue carnations and lighter blue forget-me-nots.

Maid of honor was Kathy Adams of Wendell, and Raymond Yetman of Ketchum served as best man.

Leigh-Ann, Donald, Beth and Samantha Mayer, brother and sisters of the bride, provided music for the mass with Connie Vaughn as organist.

Leigh-Ann Mayer attended the guest book at the reception held in the Knights of Columbus hall following the ceremony. Kristy Moore and Samantha Mayer were in charge of gifts.

The wedding cake was cut and served by Rena Mayer of Medora, Ill., grandmother of the bride. Punch was served by Jackie Yetman, assisted by Beth Mayer.

Other special guests included Mrs. Margaret Gillespie of Denver, aunt of the bride.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bride's parents at Price's Cafe in Burley.

After a wedding trip in Boise and Sun Valley, the couple will reside in Twin Falls where the bridegroom is employed with the Magic Valley Security Services as sergeant supervisor at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and the bride works at the Dick Day auto agency.

Medics debate value of drink for heart

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The medical profession is debating whether moderate drinking — up to two cocktails a day — reduces the risk of heart disease.

The American Heart Association says no, but some researchers say evidence has shown that moderate consumption of beer, wine and spirits may combat heart disease.

New studies supporting the theory were presented Wednesday by doctors and research groups in the field of epidemiology at the Symposium on Alcohol and Cardiovascular Diseases, co-sponsored by the Heart Association and National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

The research bolstered the results of previous studies that indicated moderate daily consumption of alcohol reduces the "bad" cholesterol in blood, while increasing the level of "good" cholesterol, thus reducing the risk of heart disease.

Researchers also said moderate drinkers appear to be at less risk of suffering a heart attack or other heart diseases than non-drinkers or excessive drinkers, the research indicated.

Excessive drinking, generally defined as consumption of six or more beer, wine or spirit beverages a day, is known to shorten life and damage the heart and organs, as well as contributing to a variety of other illnesses.

"The research provides interesting and promising information in terms of how alcohol is doing to fats in the blood stream, but no one understands how it is done, or what the long term effects might be," said Howard Lewis, spokesman for the American Heart Association.

"Our advice to the public is that the association does not recommend any change in drinking patterns pending a review of the information by our Nutrition Committee."

Lewis said if alcohol is proven effective in removing fats from the blood stream, researchers may be able to develop drugs that duplicate its molecular structure, but which lack the harmful side effects of alcohol.

Dr. William P. Castelli, whose research in Framingham, Mass., indicated a modest decline in coronary heart disease among moderate drinkers, agreed the public should not yet be recommended to drink alcohol to reduce the risk of heart trouble.

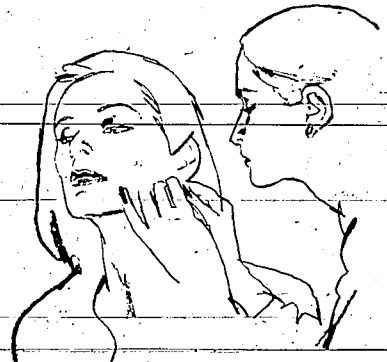

"All in all, the very modest effect of alcohol on improving risk of coronary heart disease and death by two drinks a day is overshadowed by the fact that such a message is not possible to deliver to patients or the general public," Castelli said. "One must realize that we have 17 million alcoholics in this country."

But other researchers say the public should be told of the potential benefits of alcohol in combating heart disease.

"There is more and more evidence, although still not conclusive, that moderate consumption is associated with lower cardiovascular mortality than high consumption or non-consumption," said Ronald E. LaPorte, assistant professor in the Department of Epidemiology at the University of Pittsburgh.

LaPorte's group also found evidence that the positive effect of moderate drinking outweighs the prospects of developing serious alcohol-related illnesses such as cirrhosis.

At Wit's End

Torch of concern has been passed

By ERMA BOMBCEK

When do parents stop worrying about their children?

No question has been asked more or answered less.

Is there a magic cut-off period when offspring become accountable for their own actions? Is there a wonderful moment when parents can become detached spectators in the lives of their children and shrug, "It's their life," and feel nothing?

When I was in my 20s, I stood in a hospital corridor waiting for doctors to put a few stitches in my son's head and I asked, "When do you stop worrying?" and a nurse with authority said, "When they get out of the accident-prone stage."

My mother just smiled faintly and said nothing.

When I was in my 30s, I sat on a little chair in a classroom and heard how one of my children talked incessantly, disrupted the class, and was headed for a career making license plates. As if to read my mind, a teacher said, "Don't worry. They all get through this stage and then you can sit back and enjoy them."

My mother listened and said nothing.

When I was in my 40s, I spent a lifetime waiting for the phone to ring, the cars to come home, the front door to open. A friend said, "They're trying to find themselves. In a few years, you can stop worrying. They'll be adults."

"By the time I was 50, I was sick and tired of being vulnerable. I was still worrying over my children, but there was a new wrinkle. There was nothing I could do about it. Yet I continued to anguish—in their failures—be tormented by their frustrations and absorbed in their disappointments. My friends said when my kids got married, I could stop worrying and lead my own life."

I wanted to believe that, but I was haunted by my mother's own smile and her occasional, "You look pale. Are you all right?" "Call me the minute you get home." "Are you depressed about something?"

Can it be that parents are sentenced to a lifetime of worry? Is concern for one another handed down like a torch to blaze the trail of human frailties and the fears of the unknown? Is concern a curse? Or is it a virtue that elevates us to the highest form of life?

One of my children became quite irritable recently when he said, "Where were you? I've been calling for three days and no one answered. I was worried."

I smiled a wan smile. The torch has been passed.

Men gradually gaining on alimony 'silver'

By MARY ELLEN HASKEIT
United Press International

Ancient Egyptians called alimony the silver of hatred.

A year ago, the Supreme Court said men have the same right to alimony as women. Since then, however, men haven't collected much silver.

Nevertheless, the March 5, 1979, ruling that state laws allowing only women to receive alimony are unconstitutional has made an impact in divorce law.

Some call the impact more symbolic than substantive.

Others, while admitting the number of men receiving alimony is still negligible, claim the ruling is a needed shot in the arm for men's rights in the areas of alimony, child support and child custody. They contend the Supreme Court decision has caused judges to treat men more equitably in divorce proceedings.

"I see more men getting equal treatment under the law," said Montgomery, Ala., attorney John L. Capell III. "I'm starting to see the psychological effect of that case, but we've still got a long way to go. The amount of alimony men are having to pay is less and the duration is less. I'm starting to see men asking for more property rights than men had asked for in the past."

Capell represented William H. Orr, whose lawsuit against ex-husband's alimony payments to his ex-wife, Lillian, resulted in the Supreme Court ruling that Alabama's alimony law was discriminatory because it allowed payments to women.

Orr, now in San Francisco, film-making executive, refused to pay $1,240 a month to his former wife. He did not claim he was entitled to alimony, but contended that since no woman could ever be ordered to make alimony payments, he was being discriminated against.

His wife contended the Constitution and recent court decisions allow statutes that grant economic preference to women to help compensate for past discrimination in the job market and other parts of the economy.

"It was his option to remarry, he knew his financial situation—it's hard for me to feel sorry for this guy," said Judge Lichtman, head of the Women's Legal Defense Fund. "I don't think men have been taken advantage of in divorces."

"Most men earn much more money than women," Ms. Lichtman said. "Women earn only 57 cents for every dollar men earn. In terms of economic fairness, it's not surprising to me that when it's time for a court to decide where economic support should lie, it's mostly women."

However, she supported the concept that women who are financially able should support needy ex-husbands, adding "that situation is very rare in the United States."

Eleven states other than Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, and Wyoming had laws preventing men from getting alimony. Legislation has been passed or pending in all the states to change the discriminatory language.

Arkansas state Rep. Bill Sherman of Little Rock sponsored a bill to change his state's law, revising the property division law to provide a 50-50 split unless the court rules otherwise. It says both men and women are eligible for alimony and child support.

Several Arkansas lawyers said they know of no men asking for alimony since the law went into effect in July. They said men probably would get alimony only if there was some reason, such as sickness or disability, that they could not work and their ex-wives were financially able to support them.

"I'm sure the situation will come up, but usually the man is employed," Sherman said. "If he's employed, there's hardly a justification for alimony."

Attorney Frances Holtzendorf said alimony awards to women have been declining in recent years.

"It's just that her need has not been there," she said. "Sometimes the courts will grant it for a limited time like for maintenance until the wife becomes employed if she's a younger woman and maybe the marriage is of shorter duration."

She expects older women whose husbands divorce them after long marriages will continue to receive traditional alimony settlements.

Tom Alexander, national president of Male Equality Now, said the reaction to the Supreme Court ruling has been "kind of a ho-hum yawn" since it was issued a year ago.

"The yawn has been because when you go in front of a judge, if a man is unemployed and his wife is making $600 a month, you still can't find a judge who will say, 'Yeah, you're right to ask for alimony,'" Alexander said. "Lawyers say, 'I don't know a judge who would award alimony,' and they're right, even though the man is entitled to support. It's a woman in similar circumstances, she'll get something."

He said there is a "tremendous prejudice" among judges who cannot get rid of their emotional belief that men are all-powerful and should not seek help from anyone else, especially a woman.

"Not all men are all-powerful, and some fall on hard times," said Alexander. "If the wife is doing okay, she should help."

"We're still getting men who had the children at one time and wanted support from their wives, but the judge said, 'You've got to be kidding.' But, if the situation was reversed, the man would be paying the wife."

But Attleboro, Mass., Judge

Rotenberg said judges try to consider both sides.

"Alimony is defined by the Egyptians as the silver of hatred. And it really is, too," said Rotenberg. "But we try like mad to be equitable and listen to both sides. As the income of women improves, (alimony for men) will be more common."

Alexander accepts Ms. Lichtman's argument that women generally make less than men so some divorced women "should" be given financial support.

"But," he said, "many women will not earn to their potential."

He cited a case in California in which a divorced husband had custody of the children and the wife was earning $800 a month as a nurse's aide. But she quit her job and is living on public assistance.

"Nobody knows how to get her back to work," Alexander said. "Men can't get away with that. If a man stops working—forget it. Charlie. The court says, 'You have the earning potential capacity, so go out there and get a job.'"

Los Angeles divorce lawyer Marvin Mitchelson, who represented Michelle Triola Marvin in her lawsuit for financial support from actor Lee Marvin, who she had lived with for more than six years, said the Supreme Court ruling is more symbolic than practical.

"But it's a strong demonstration by the court that you can't pass laws for one sex and not another," Mitchelson said. "If men need support, the law is there. It's a step toward the equality of women and men."

Mitchelson said "the balance" of power in American society still favors men in the job market. Men cannot expect that to be ignored in alimony awards, he said.

"Women are cut adrift in a divorce. Often they've been out of the job market. Men don't find themselves in this position."

Although lawyers, men's groups and feminists agree that men being awarded alimony is rare, it is happening.

In May, Henry Durand Irwin, 62, became one of the first men to win a major alimony award after the Supreme Court decision. He was awarded $1,600 a month for life from his wife, Elizabeth, 57, the granddaughter of the founder of Phillips Petroleum Co.

Irwin's attorney, Philip Solomon, said Irwin has been unemployed for many years and has lived apart from his wife on an estate in Southbury, Conn., since their separation in 1975.

Under the terms of the settlement, Irwin will receive $1,600 a month as long as he is unmarried and will get half the proceeds of the sale of the Southbury estate, which is in Mrs. Irwin's name and worth about $250,000.

In Massachusetts, a husband divorced his wife after 10 years of marriage and was awarded alimony, according to family law attorney Richard Hoffman, of Walpole, Mass.

"He was not of means, he had nothing when he came into marriage and she had an unearned income that was in excess of $150,000 a year," Hoffman said.

Massachusetts passed a law in 1974 allowing judges to award alimony and child custody to either spouse, taking into account the length of the marriage, and the ages, vocational skills and needs of both spouses.

Hoffman cited a pending divorce case in which the husband "could conceivably avoid the period of alimony payments of $40,000 a year. The question is should a young healthy woman with earning capacity get that kind of money."

In nearby Attleboro, Mass., Judge Rotenberg awarded alimony to a man who was physically disabled.

A Mormon in Little Rock, Ark., has been awarded temporary custody of his two daughters and wants temporary alimony pending settlement of their divorce.

Michael Tucker, 29, works in the Arkansas Comprehensive Employment and Training Act office and earns $15,000 a year. His wife, Janna, 30, is a supervisor for Southwest Bell and makes about $25,000 a year.

Both parents want child custody and child support.

Michael also is asking for "separate maintenance" — which he said is not alimony, but money in addition to child support needed to run the household while the divorce is pending.

"If you're going to be separated, we have to provide a home and education," he said. "(I'm asking) that she contribute to the overall household budget beyond the child support."

In Alabama, a husband who sued his wife for divorce on the grounds of adultery was awarded custody of their child and the woman's child by another man, said Dave Peterson, president of the Alabama Federation of Fathers.

"This was the first time in history that a judge in Alabama ever took a child from its natural mother and gave it to the stepfather," Peterson said.

Attorney Hoffman said the Orr vs. Orr ruling was symbolic in men being awarded alimony "but what you can't get away from is the overall impact."

"The reduction in the amount of money husbands pay or the fact that they pay now at all and in men getting child custody, there is an impact. It's not so symbolic there. Now women can't just get on the gravy train."

Hoffman also said men are being given more child visitation rights and judges are increasingly awarding joint custody of children to both parents.

Judge Rotenberg said: "More children than before are going to the father for custody. One reason is because more fathers are claiming child custody."

Rotenberg says he has awarded children to the husband.

"All they have to do is prove to me they make the better parent," he said. "Women are still favored though."

Mitchelson, who won a $104,000 "rehabilitation" award for Michelle Triola Marvin last year, said judges are beginning to view alimony as money given to a spouse for job habilitation so she or he can re-enter the job market.

"Open-ended alimony doesn't force women into the job market," he said. "If the jobs are there, there is no need to get alimony just to hurt the husband and get revenge."

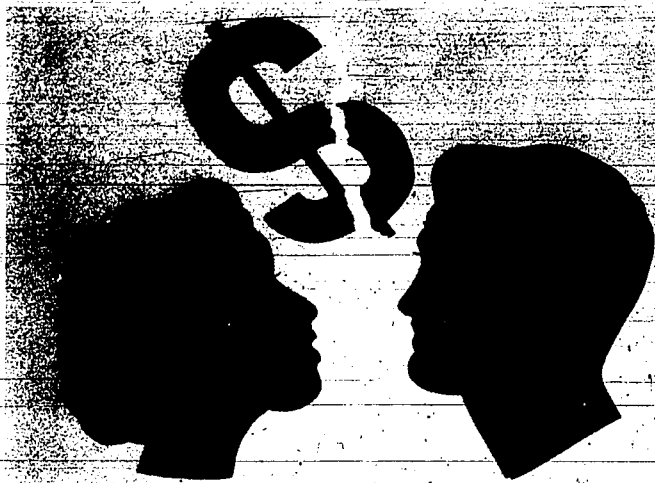

But Alexander, as president of Male Equality Now, is less optimistic that men will be judged on the same criteria as women.

"Or vs. Orr made it the law of the land that a husband is equally entitled to alimony if alimony is statutorily provided in that state to women," Alexander said. "But from a realistic standpoint, there's not that many men who will get alimony unless they can show absolutely they were house-husbands. Even then, they're not always getting anything."

"We still have long way to go in equalizing the sexes."

Interferon 'promising'

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Cancer Society is betting $1.4 billion more on "interferon," a natural body substance showing "great promise" against cancer, according to Dr. S.B. Gusborg, society president.

The funds will expand the society's 2.4 million clinical trials with interferon, started in August, 1978, at 10 medical centers.

Early but tentative results of trials with the very scarce and expensive substance have raised hopes it may be the long-sought "magic bullet" to give cancer therapeutics more punch, according to cautious reports from medical centers in the United States and abroad.

"That there is great promise there is little doubt," Gusborg said of results so far in the clinical trials of interferon against four kinds of cancer: melanoma, multiple myeloma, breast cancer, and lymphomas other than Hodgkin's disease.

Interferon is a protein occurring naturally in the blood. It was discovered in 1957 by Alick Isaacs of Great Britain and Jean Lindenmeyer of Switzerland. Early investigators noted interferon appeared to fight virus infections and interfere with cell division.

For its initial outlay, made in August of 1978, the Society obtained enough interferon to treat approximately 150 patients — all selected by doctors running the trials.

"Although preliminary results have been good," Dr. Gusborg said, "it's still too early to draw conclusions. "In order to determine interferon's effectiveness, we'll have to study these patients over a longer period of time and add more patients to the testing."

"That there is great promise there is little doubt. That we have made but a small beginning is equally true." Gusborg, professor of gynecology at Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City, said early research with interferon "has been promising enough to warrant expansion of the clinical trials."

He said the "unprecedented size of the Society's appropriations for interferon is due to the very high cost of the material." Currently one of the scarcest medical substances in the world, interferon costs as much as $30,000 per patient — sometimes more. "If there's the slightest possibility that it might prove helpful to future cancer patients," Gusborg said, "we feel that every effort must be made to check it out."

"The exciting promise of a new family of natural substances with anti-viral and anti-tumor activity demands nothing less than a full dress, prompt, carefully planned and carefully controlled clinical trial."

"At this point we're still very early into this research and must await data concerning final tumor response, and any possible long term side effects."

"Precise knowledge of dosage, dosage timing, coordination with other types of treatment such as surgery, radiotherapy and chemotherapy, and possible immune effects" must be obtained before we can know the place of the interferon in clinical cancer therapy.

Dr. Arthur I. Holleb, senior vice president for medical affairs at the ACS, said the interferons — there are three kinds — are the "most significant new class of compounds showing activity against cancer."

"It is interesting," he said, "but we have to wait and see about such things as the development of side effects, how long it can be given without becoming toxic — those sorts of things we don't know yet."

The three kinds of human interferon are leukocyte interferon, fibroblast interferon and immune or lymphoblastoid interferon. Only leukocyte interferon is being used in the American Cancer Society's clinical testing program.

In addition to buying interferon, the Society has invested over $100,000 in research to increase its supply.

Commercial interests — mainly drug companies — also are racing to add to the world's supply of interferon as quickly as possible.

The ACS-sponsored clinical trials with interferon are in progress at the following institutions: University of Texas M.D., Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Houston; Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research, Mount Sinai School of Medicine, and Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, all of New York City.

Also: Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo; Yale University School of Medicine, New Haven, Conn.; Johns Hopkins Oncology Center, Baltimore; University of Wisconsin Center for Health Sciences, Madison; Stanford University Medical Center, Palo Alto, and U.C.L.A. Center for Health Sciences, Los Angeles.

Virgins misconception

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
The Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that a girl could become pregnant without going all the way.

Thanks for printing it. That is what happened to me. Before we were married, my fiancé and I had gone together for 2½ years.

We were very much in love, and just like the kids do today, we did a lot of hugging, kissing and cuddling, but I swear we did not go "all the way!" Nevertheless I found myself very much pregnant.

I couldn't believe it, but the doctor explained it to me exactly the way you explained it: "All that is necessary is for the sperm of the male to meet the ovum of the female, and this can be accomplished without actual penetration."

Even though we knew how it happened, it was hard to explain to others. We are now in our 60s, and we still kid about it, and call each other "DUMB BELLS!"

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those "unusual cases" of a woman being a pregnant virgin: I conceived with my hymen intact.

When I went to the doctor, suspecting that I might be pregnant, he examined me and said I most certainly was. When it came time for me to have the baby, the doctor had to deliver me surgically. I never could have believed it, but I am living proof that a girl can become pregnant without going all the way.

MRS. W. TORRINGTON, CONN.
DEAR ABBY: I was very happy to see the item in your column about the girl who got pregnant and had a baby though she was still a virgin. The same thing happened to me when I was 17. He married me, and we have five children. The oldest is now 48.

People never believed it when I told them that is what really happened. My doctor confirmed it.

B.P.
DEAR ABBY: I am a 39-year-old mother of four, and I was just as innocent as that 55-year-old grandmother who asked you to explain how a girl could get pregnant and still be a virgin.

It's a shame how people can go through life half-ignorant because they're too embarrassed to ask questions.

I sent for your booklet, What Teen-Agers Ought To Know, for my two sons, 12 and 14, and they thought it was terrific. So did I. And my husband agreed with me. I never could have told them about drugs and sex the way you did.

Thank you for having the courage to write something so straight and easy to understand. All parents want their kids to know how to keep from getting VD, and how to avoid getting pregnant, but nobody wants to tell them.

The chapter on drugs and what they can do to you was great.

I'm sorry I didn't have something like that to read when I was a teenager.

MRS. R. J. L., ORLANDO, FLA.

Teens: Are there some questions you just can't ask anyone about sex, drugs, your own feelings? Get Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Ought To Know." Send $2 to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope.

Four cats revived by paramedic

BOSTON (UPI) — Four cats rescued from a burning apartment house were given oxygen by a fireman and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by a medical technician.

A fifth cat died.

The animals had been trapped when fire broke out in the basement and first floor of the building Tuesday.

The three residents, including medical technician Lynn Bradley, 29, escaped unharmed.

As firemen brought the cats out of the building, Miss Bradley knelt on the sidewalk and administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Firefighter Cassius Johnson placed a rubber oxygen mask in front of the others to give them fresh air.

"I could only work on one at a time so we lost one who was pretty far gone. If not dead already, when he was brought out," said Johnson.

Miss Bradley later returned to the building and found her own two pet cats huddled on the third floor "scared to death but alive."

The four revived cats and the one which died belonged to a neighbor.

Ali, Tate sign contract to fight June bout

DEER LAKE, Pa. (UPI) — Muhammad Ali, out of retirement again, Thursday declared himself "immortal," shouting that he would defy old age and defeat heavyweight champions John Tate and Larry Holmes.

The 38-year-old ex-champ, carrying 243 pounds, his hair dotted with gray, vowed to break his record of winning the championship three times and become "quadruple, then quintuple champ."

It was reported earlier that Ali had agreed to fight Tate in Taiwan in late June and the two fighters would split $14 million.

At his training camp, the overweight Ali sparred eight rounds with four partners, yelling self-encouragement and praise when he flicked quick jabs reminiscent of "The Greatest."

But on the whole, his performance was sluggish, lackluster, including more of the rope-a-dope, cover-up tactics of the recently retired fighter. To the delight of the small crowd of spectators and reporters, Ali let his mouth do most of the talking.

He fashioned a poem: "Five is quintuple, four is quadruple, three is triple and two is double. When I get done with this, Tate's in trouble."

All said he decided to re-enter boxing purely for the challenge.

"I'm unreal, I'm not human, I'm immortal. I feel like Superman," he said. "I'm coming back because I want the history books to show I was the first to win the title five times. I want a record they'll say will never be broken."

All said his upcoming battle would not be a challenge if it did not contain some element of danger.

"My middle name is danger," he said. "I'm going against the whole system. I've got to be under pressure. It's got to be impossible."

He called WBA champ Tate and Holmes, owner of the WBC crown, "Just five substitutes while I took a rest."

All said Holmes, 30, is "too old" to box. "Thirty is too old for the average man," he said.

On Wednesday, Holmes had called Ali "a nut" for trying to make a comeback and said the former champ would get hurt if he returned to boxing. All responded to Holmes' criticism of his plans was simply jealousy, that he will "make more money just talking than Holmes will in the ring."

Responding to statements he is broke, Ali noted business ventures provide him with plenty of cash and his Deer Lake facility alone is worth $500,000.

"Broke? Broke? Broke? How do you spell that?" he asked. "Even if I was, I won't be after this $14 million."

The former champion insisted age is irrelevant, that "your mind controls the body."

He said he would "kill myself" in training for the Tate fight and expects to reduce his weight to about 220.

"Everything is at stake. I'm risking my life on this fight."

Said Ali: "I've got a lot of speed, a lot of endurance. When I meet Tate he'll need more insurance."

Filer, Pilots fall in first round of A-3

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — It was undefeated Fruitland in a breeze and defending champion Westside, Lapwal and Sugar-Salem in squeakers in the first round of the Idaho State A-3 Basketball Tournament Thursday.

Fruitland blitzed Teton over the final four minutes for a 75-58 victory; Westside outlasted a late rally by Glenns Ferry to win 48-43; Sugar-Salem came from 12 down in the last four minutes on the scoring of Ron Clark to overtake Filer 71-63 and Darryl Taylor's two free throws with 18 seconds left preserved Lapwal's 45-44 decision over Melba.

Something has to give this afternoon when Fruitland and Westside meet at 2:30 following the consolation match pitting Glenns Ferry against Teton. Tonight, Filer meets Melba in consolation at 7 p.m. while Lapwal and Sugar-Salem fight in the nightcap for the second finals berth.

Byron Rammell hit six key points over the next five playing minutes. A Layne Hastings field goal pulled Teton back to within 60-56 to set the stage for Fruitland's winning flurry.

Ryan Holt started it with a jumper and Nichols added an inside shot. Hengeler then iced it with a pair of fast-break cripples and Nichols added another field goal. With 1:58 left Fruitland stretched ahead 70-56 and coasted in.

Westside 48, Pilots 43

Eight-for-eight free throw shooting in the closing minutes carried the defending champion Westside Pirates past Glenns Ferry 48-43.

The charity sharpshooting saved the Pirates from a fourth-quarter Glenns Ferry rally that closed the game to two points with 2:44 remaining. But it also was probable that Glenns Ferry's rally was largely built on the fact Westside went the last seven minutes without a field goal.

Only in the third quarter did either coach feel his team got into any kind of offensive consistency. Westside provided that with a 23-point spurt — against nine for the Pilots — and Coach Craig Gladwell credited the Pirate defense for that.

Trailing throughout the first half, Westside opened the second with a sticky man defense and, abetted by defense-caused turnovers, scored the first nine points of the half. Once ahead, Westside never trailed again.

"We felt we had to do a couple of things in the second half to keep them," Gladwell said, "...keep playing the type of defense we were and try to get a fast break going. We like to fastbreak but we didn't get anything started in the first half."

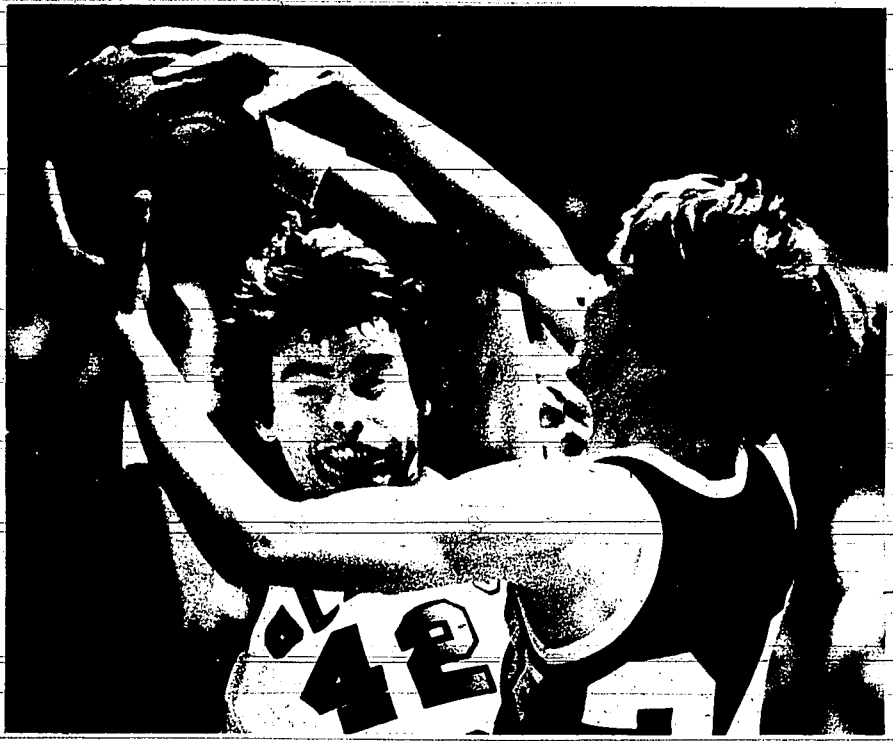

The coach said the forced turnover resulted in some breaking opportunities and that keyed the 23-point third quarter.

"But I suppose (6-4 Steve) Hughes (of Glenns Ferry) getting his fourth foul too early had to make a difference for them," he continued.

Glenns Ferry Coach Gordon Brown confirmed that statement. "Hughes got those two fouls so quickly (the first minute of the third quarter) I couldn't believe it happened," he said.

"This is the worst we've shot all year," he said. "And we had a dozen close-in, unconnected shots. Going 12 for 49 doesn't win many games for you."

"But very obviously, a little pressure defense took our shooting away. Never once did we get anything going offensively. And then when we got into foul trouble, we started standing around."

John Simons and the rest of the Glenns Ferry team fought back to within two points of Westside; but finally lost in the first round

Both teams had offensive woes in the first half. Glenns Ferry jumped into a 9-2 advantage but took over seven minutes to get there.

In the second period the Pilots stayed just ahead, getting up by five at one point and down to one at another. Hughes' long shot at the buzzer gave Glenns Ferry its last lead at 20-16.

Immediately in the second half Mackay Moore pulled Westside into a tie, getting two of the points from the foul line. Kris Baird turned a steal into a layup and Moore came back with a three-point play to send the Pirates ahead 25-20.

Bill Stiehl finally got Glenns Ferry off 20 with 4:32 left in the period but Westside was just getting started. Over the final four minutes, sophomore Paul Smart and guards Baird and Kevin Cornia sparked the Pirates into a 39-29 lead.

The lead crested at 41-29 when Jeff McDermott followed in a Westside miss on the first Pirate possession of the fourth period. Westside didn't score from the field again.

Russ Slump sparked the Glenns Ferry comeback with six points and Hughes added two free throws. With 3:47 left in the game, Westside went to a spread delay.

"Our kids backed out without us telling them to," Gladwell said. "We told them to keep attacking the basket."

Westside's Kevin Cornia stole the ball in Glenns Ferry territory and went all the way for two points

No baseball strike, says owners' negotiator

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The chief negotiator for major-league baseball club owners said Thursday contract negotiations are on schedule and the agreement by the Players Association for a strike vote was merely a "routine measure."

"There is no crisis, no emergency at this point," Ray Grebey said. "There has been free and full discussion of all issues, more than any previous negotiations between the owners and the players."

That was in direct contrast to remarks Tuesday by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, who said the owners have failed to negotiate in good faith.

"The owners have submitted proposals which include substantial improvements in the players' pension and insurance plans, plus other important gains for them," he said.

Grebeby made his remarks after attending a series of meetings with the "public relations" directors of the American and National League clubs training in Florida, the general managers of the clubs training in Florida, the Executive Council of Baseball, and members of the Player Relations Committee.

In Brandon, the Pittsburgh Pirates voted 38-0 to support a strike by the Players Association if no contract agreement was reached with the owners by April 1. The Philadelphia Phillies cast a 40-0 vote the previous day. Grebeby said those votes must be put into perspective.

"It is not a strike vote," he said. "It was a vote to authorize a strike, number one. And number two, we are looking forward to continued collective bargaining. It is a routine measure of any union."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said he believes the parties have made some progress.

"I'd have to say that the way the things are going today are about the way you'd expect," Kuhn said. "They have been meeting regularly. They obviously have made some progress. There is a lot more to be done. I would expect there would be some intensification as March wears on."

Kuhn said he has no plans to enter the negotiations and added he believes the parties can avoid a strike.

"I just don't think that a strike is too likely a result," he said. "I don't like to hear the talk. But at this stage of the game it's a strategy to threaten a strike."

Grebeby and Miller are scheduled to meet again Friday in Sarasota.

The players are most concerned about a proposal by the owners to set up a salary structure and an attempt by the owners to increase the team compensation for a club that loses a free agent.

Grebeby said the owners have presented proposals which would cost baseball management $26 million beyond the current agreement over the next four years. He said it included a 40-percent increase in pension benefits and 300 percent increase in life insurance.

He also said the owners are proposing increasing the World Series pool from $1.4 million to $2.5 million, and the minimum player salaries from $21,000 to $25,000 the next two years and to $30,500 the following two years.

Grebeby said the average salary of a major-league player in the 1980 season will be $130,000.

Vermont men lead skiing...

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI)—The University of Vermont pulled a major surprise Thursday, sweeping the top two spots in cross-country competition to take over first place in the NCAA men's national collegiate ski championship. Barring a major collapse, host UVM, which is strongest in the alpine events, was given a good shot at ending the University of Colorado's string of eight straight NCAA titles. Pat Stuard and Vador Kempainen finished 1-2 for Vermont, which was in fifth place following Wednesday's jumping event. The tourney moves to Stowe, Vt., today and Saturday for slalom and giant slalom competition.

...women also in first

FAYSTON, Vt. (UPI)—University of Vermont skiers ran one and two in slalom competition Thursday, sweeping the cross-country competition to take over first place in the NCAA women's collegiate championships. Mary Seaton took the individual two-run slalom title at Sugarbush North ski area, edging teammate Lindy Cochran. UVM jumped into first place in the A1WA meet Wednesday by winning the giant slalom competition. The tourney continues with cross-country racing today and Saturday at host Middlebury College.

OAKLAND (UPI)—With the start of the 1980 baseball season only a month away and several problems still unresolved, Oakland building contractor Wayne Valby announced Thursday he has ended negotiations to buy the Oakland A's from Charlie Finley. "However," said Valby, "if Mr. Finley wants to sell the club at the end of the season and I'm still interested, I would be willing to re-open negotiations."

Righetti hurt in practice

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Left-hander Dave Righetti became the first New York Yankee casualty of the spring Thursday when he was hit in the back by a line drive off the bat of Reggie Jackson during batting practice. Fortunately, the injury was not serious and Righetti suffered only a bruise, which is not expected to sideline him during training. "It hit the meaty part," said Manager Dick Howser. "It could have been worse. It could have hit him in the face or arm."

Brewers' manager in hospital

By United Press International
George Bamberger, manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, was admitted to Boswell Hospital in Sun City, Ariz., for observation Thursday morning after complaining of chest pains.

Brewers' spokesman Tom Skibosh said doctors had concluded the pains were not the result of a heart attack. However, hospital spokeswoman Mary Simunich said a temporary pacemaker had been installed as a "precautionary measure" and that it had not been determined if Bamberger had a heart attack.

Simunich said Bamberger was in stable condition. Skibosh said the 53-year-old manager was expected to remain in the hospital six or seven days. Skibosh said Bamberger noticed chest and back pains at 5 a.m. and called team trainer Freddie Frederico.

Frederico took Bamberger to the hospital where the manager soon began to feel better. But after a series of tests, Bamberger's pulse rate dropped and doctors decided to place him under observation. Skibosh said Brewers' executive vice president and general manager Harry Dalton saw Bamberger Thursday morning and reported the manager was in good spirits. Bamberger's wife Wilma was in Redington Beach, Fla. and planned to wait until Bamberger was out of the hospital before joining him in Arizona.

The Brewers are in spring training at Sun City Stadium, with their first Cactus League game against the Cleveland Indians March 11 in Tucson.

Skibosh said coach Bob Rodgers would supervise the team on the field in Bamberger's place. Bamberger became manager of the Brewers in 1978 after being pitching coach for the Baltimore Orioles for 10 years. He was named manager of the year in 1978.

PETE ROSE and his wife

Karolyn, who last year filed for divorce, are back together again, it was reported Thursday.

The Cincinnati Post reported that the native Cincinnatians are together in Florida, where Rose is at spring training with the Philadelphia Phillies.

"Apparently the divorce suit Karolyn filed some months ago is now meaningless," the newspaper said. The report also said the Roses have bought a new home in Cincinnati.

FRANK COSTELLO, the University of Maryland track coach for six years, has resigned to enter private business.

Costello, who coached world-record hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah the last two years, said Wednesday he will leave at the end of the season to join Martin Surfacing Co. as the national director of tracks.

The company specializes in artificial surfaces and installed the track at Maryland's Byrd Stadium.

WESLEY D. CHRISTENSEN, Ricks College wrestling coach, will be inducted into the national junior college coaches Hall of Fame in Worthington, Minn. this weekend.

The induction is part of the national junior college wrestling tournament in Worthington Thursday through Saturday.

America favored in Davis

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI)—For the fourth time in the history of Davis Cup tennis, Argentina this weekend will face the United States in the American zone finals of the tournament.

The U.S. team, led by 20-year-old star John McEnroe, is heavily favored to beat an Argentine team that is expected to place its hopes primarily in the hands of Guillermo Vilas, the South American country's top-ranked player.

But Vilas, who in 1977 won the U.S. Open Tennis Championship, has been playing poorly in recent months. The 27-year-old Argentine has not won any major tournament since taking almost a year off in 1978 to make a film.

However, the Argentines feel that Vilas or Jose Luis Clerc, their second-ranked player, should be able to beat Brian Gottfried, who is expected to be one of U.S. team's singles players.

"It will be difficult, but not impossible to win the two matches against McEnroe and also the U.S. doubles team," said Lito Alvarez, captain of the Argentine team.

But McEnroe said the Argentine team is favored by two factors: the clay courts of the Buenos Aires Lawn Tennis Club and the absence of Vilas Gerulaitis, one of the stronger players of the U.S. Davis Cup team.

Pirates favor player strike

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, finally joined by a tardy and overweight Dave Parker, voted 38-0 Thursday to support a strike by the Players Association if no contract agreement was reached with the owners by April 1.

The world champions, with their unanimous vote, became the second major league team in two days to approve the strike without a dissent. Their cross-state rivals, the Philadelphia Phillies, cast a 40-0 approval Wednesday.

The strike vote was recommended to the Pirates by their player representative, Phil Garner, who expressed the feeling that the owners want the players to take a step backward.

"If the owners needed a proposal to save baseball, I'd go along with it," Garner said. "If I were convinced baseball was on the road to destruction, if I believe they had to cut costs or a lot of teams would go broke, I'd back it. But I'm not convinced."

Earlier in the day, Parker arrived at the Bucs' training camp, admittedly 12 pounds over his playing weight—to begin workouts in the team's third day of drills.

"You don't think I was late on purpose, do you?" grinned Parker, who has been late for spring training three of the past four years. "First I was delayed by bad weather and then there were some things that I had to do for my loved ones... so I did them."

NBA realigns league for Dallas' new team

CHICAGO (UPI)—The NBA's Board of Governors realigned the league for the third time in three years Thursday to accommodate its newest franchise, Dallas, which will become the 23rd member of the circuit next season.

Dallas will join the Midwest Division of the Western Conference and will have instant rivals in San Antonio and Houston, which were moved from the Central Division of the Eastern Conference, said Commissioner Larry O'Brien.

Moving from the Midwest to Central are Chicago and Milwaukee. Of the four established teams that were switched, San Antonio, Houston and Chicago all opposed the move, citing loss of established rivalries.

O'Brien said he felt the realignment opposed it.

was in the best interest of the league, saying it was logical because of economics and geographies. "You have natural rivalry built into three teams, San Antonio, Houston and Dallas, and overall it will be beneficial to the league," said the commissioner.

The new alignment will cause a slight imbalance in the schedule, with some teams playing others five times rather than six.

Jerry Colangelo, general manager of the Phoenix Suns and chairman of the league's Competition and Rules Committee, said other options were considered.

Rod Thorn, general manager of the Chicago Bulls, conceded the realignment was good even though his team

Make saving for retirement a lot less taxing.

If you open a First Security Individual Retirement Account before you file your taxes this year, you can take a deduction of up to $1500. You pay no taxes on the money you save until you withdraw it at retirement. You qualify if you have no pension plan where you work. A tax break today, financial security tomorrow. Ask us about it now. After all, security is our middle name.

Substantial penalty required for early withdrawal.

In today's hand there was no real need for South to get past "ARY" and he didn't really need to bother much with "A". West started with three rounds of hearts. South ruffed a third heart, played a trump to dummy's jack and promptly led the queen of diamonds for a losing finesse. West took his king for the third defensive trick and while South could discard one club on a good diamond, he had no parking place for his other low clubs.

After the usual balderdash of not being able to win a finesse, South went on to the next hand.

If South had just stopped to review the bidding, he would have known that the diamond finesse was not going to succeed.

There was no way for West to have an opening bid unless he held the king of diamonds among his sources. Therefore, all South had to do to make his contract would be to play a card and deceive of diamonds. This would set up dummy's queen and jack for two club discards.

BYU's International Folk Dancers display the vitality and strength of the Ukrainian Hopak

International Folk Dancers globetrotting through Burley

BURLEY -- All the color and drama of a European folk festival will be unveiled by The International Folk Dancers at the Burley High School gymnasium, March 13 at 7:30 p.m.

The 40-member troupe, selected from the 254 students in Brigham Young University's folk dance program, has a repertoire of dances and a wardrobe of costumes from all over the world. Their 90-minute program includes dances from Yugoslavia, Israel, Poland, Spain, Hungary, Lithuania, the Ukraine and the United States. Among the dances performed will be the Israeli Vayiven Uziyahu, the Kentucky Clogs, the Hungarian Verhunk and Szatmari, and, for the climax, the Ukrainian Hopak -- featuring acrobatics by the male dancers.

Founded by Mary Ibe Jensen in 1956, the group has toured Europe annually for the past 15 years. In 1964, they were the first folk dance team to represent the United States at international festivals.

In 1974, Mrs. Jensen was selected as the official delegate for the U.S. by the Confederation of International Organizers of Folklore Festivals (CIOFF). At the same time, the International Folk Dancers were chosen to represent the U.S. at all CIOFF festivals throughout the world.

The group has performed in many different countries and has won first place awards in international competitions. In 1977, they swept all honors at the Polish International Folk Festival in Zakopane, including the Golden Axe first place award, the Press Award, and the People's Prize as the most popular company. In 1977, they won the Gold Medal at the European Youth Festival in Bulgaria.

They have also performed in Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Russia, thus becoming the first American folk dance group to visit all six countries on a single tour.

In addition, they have performed in Israel, Canada and throughout the United States.

The Burley performance is part of the group's annual mid-semester tour. From March 14-22 they will travel through Washington, British Columbia and Idaho. Their itinerary includes Spokane, Wenatchee, Seattle and Pullman, Wash., Vancouver and and Kelowna, B.C., and Boise. Among their scheduled engagements will be Spokane's Opera House, Seattle's Ice Arena and Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Theater.

Tickets will be available at the door. For ticket information contact Nadi Wilsop, 678-0281, or Ed Abstin, 678-5301.

Art for minors ...her major joy

TWIN FALLS — "When I see a seven year old who can barely write his name drawing and painting this beautiful pheasant, that really turns me on," said art instructor Carolee Walker.

But that is only one of the things that makes teaching art to children worthwhile, she said. "I taught a class of adults once and I couldn't stand it. After one class I thought I'd better go back to my pals. I have great rapport with kids. My husband says it's because I haven't grown-up-yet. But I think that's terrific."

Walker has taught art classes in Twin Falls for five years. Before that she taught children in Los Angeles for 12 years. She has masters degrees in both journalism and art.

She always gives private lessons. Art is as important as any of the three r's, she said. "But I couldn't teach art in public schools. I would be stereotyped. I'd have to teach the way they teach."

Public schools use a

"coloring book" approach to art Walker said.

"You give a child a picture of a duck and tell him to color it yellow. He has to color inside the lines and if he wants to make it purple, that's wrong. There's no creativity."

Walker has about 20 students attending her two Saturday sessions. Her classes are offered through the Canyonside Gallery, which rented the basement where the classes are held and will display some of the work produced by the class.

Until this year, Walker had offered classes in her home. She said her husband was happy to see the classes move out of the house.

But that isn't the reason she moved. "It's important to have the children associated with a gallery," she said. It gives them a chance to have their work displayed and possibly even sold.

Ron Hicks, director of the Canyonside Gallery, said he is trying to develop a complete program of art classes. Adult oil painting and water color classes will start this week, he said.

"We're interested in getting more people involved in the art world," he said.

Walker said she teaches by giving children the freedom to sketch and paint the way they want. "They learn to look at a picture and see what bugs them about it," she said.

While she teaches, Walker moves around the room from easel to easel looking at each person's work. "This is nice, but here on the bottom, isn't this bothering you," she said to one boy as he worked on a sketch of a bridge in the air. "Let's just call this sketch number one. You'll feel a whole lot better after you do sketch number two." As she gave some advice to a girl who was drawing flowers in a lantern, she stopped and said, "Don't let me interrupt you. Just tell me to shut up and we'll talk after you finish." At another easel she told a girl, "Stop laboring over this. Take a step back and look. Aren't you happy with it?"

In five years of teaching art classes in Twin Falls, Walker estimated that she has taught about 180 different children.

"Kids and art are my bag," she said.

Loretta Lynn's life story-made-movie a tear-jerker

By JOAN PARKER

NEW YORK — Loretta Lynn does not tell her age.

As she explained in her best-selling 1976 autobiography, "Coal Miner's Daughter," "I'm trying to make a living singing songs. I don't need nobody out there saying, 'She don't look bad considering she's such-and-such years old.'"

But she has been remarkably candid on almost every other subject: The terror she felt on her wedding night as she came to the marriage bed a woefully ignorant, 13-year-old bride. The difficulty of being married to a man with some "bad habits," like drinking and occasionally dallying with other women and now then hitting his wife. The pitfalls of taking too many "nerve pills."

A lot of it was in the book and even more of it is in the film it inspired, which is also called "Coal Miner's Daughter." The film stars, Sissy Spacek as Loretta Lynn, Tommy Lee Jones as her husband Mooney.

"I put it out there for them all to see it," the country music queen said one recent evening as her limousine crawled through a Manhattan dusk. "Because, well, how can you paint such a pretty picture of life? Life is not that pretty. Life really ain't pretty. It has its ups and downs. Life is ugly sometimes. But, big deal, Lucille, it's all life, ain't it?"

For Lynn, life is much prettier now than it was just a few years ago, and so is she. The singer, a mother of six and grandmother of seven, will be 45 next month, but she was alarmingly thin and haggard five or six years ago. She has gained 20 pounds and looks curvaceous. Her health and vibrancy have returned after years of dependency on pills, a habit she says she left behind. Psychotherapy has helped, and it also helps to have the subject of a movie that promises to be one of the biggest hits of the year.

The ups and downs in "Coal Miners Daughter" are so vividly presented that strong men and women weep. The poverty of Lynn's Appalachia childhood, her loving daddy coping with his migraines and black lung and trying to keep eight kids in shoes, the death of country singer Patsy Cline who was Lynn's best friend and Nashville mentor — in a plane crash at 29; it all seems to catch big-city types in a vulnerable spot.

There are light moments, too. For instance, there is Loretta in her early 20s, a barely literate mother of four, hitting the road with Mooney to promote her first record over the airwaves of every country music radio station they can find. "What do you and Mooney do while your driving down the highway?" the disc jockey asks. "Oh, we make baloney sandwiches. I get to sing and Mooney gets horny." Loretta replies, because her protective husband has led her to believe that "getting 'horny' means cutting up."

The advance word on "Coal Miner's Daughter" has been extremely good. Variety, the show business weekly that reviews films from the dollar-and-cents approach of theater owners, has already said that "it mostly avoids the sudsy atmosphere common to many showbiz tales and emerges as a wonderful love story and convincing portrayal of one woman's life." Like a lot of others who have gotten an advance look, Variety predicted "long-lasting box-office action that should reach beyond the realm of country music fans."

It is possible that "Coal Miner's Daughter" will be a very big deal, Lucille, but the subject of this film biography is not comfortable talking about it, because she can remember very little about it. Loretta and Mooney had a private screening in a Las Vegas movie theater several weeks ago, because Loretta insisted she didn't want anyone else around when she saw her life on the screen for the first time.

Q: Lou Ferrigno, who portrays "The Incredible Hulk" on the popular TV series, seems so huge and formidable. I'll bet he must be a real pussycat in person. Right? — L.C. of Dallas.

A: Hardy. Recently, we spotted Lou shopping for cameras in a New York department store. When a father and his young son approached him for his autograph, Lou tersely replied, "I'm busy shopping today, and I'm not signing autographs — for anybody." Though the boy was visibly disappointed, Ferrigno was adamant and just ambled off. Believe it or not, this scene was repeated later at another store nearby by a group of squealing salesgirls recognized the velvet-suited actor and clustered around him. Nevertheless, he refused to soften and part with his autograph.

ROMANTIC PAUL: When Paul McCartney was jailed in Tokyo authorities confiscated all of his personal possessions which were mailed back to England after McCartney was released from prison. Included among the things confiscated was his wedding ring so Paul made himself another temporary one out of a paper clip explaining: "I just had to have a wedding ring of some sort."

Q: Gunther Gebel-Williams said on a talk show that he's a "very average family man who leads an unexciting life." Is Gunther telling it like it is? — M.I. of Roanoke, Va.

A: Many reporters have dug and dug, trying to come up with a sensational expose about Gunther, whose smiling blond image does seem a bit too good to be true. One newspaperman even went so far as to hang around backstage at the Ringling Brothers & Barnum and Bailey Circus for weeks as it traveled across the country, ingratiating himself with the troupe while trying to sniff out lurid details concerning Gunther's private life and past. Finally, the fellow gave up in frustration. Truth is, Gunther's indeed a quiet, happily married man, warmly devoted to his second wife, their teenage daughter and their 16-year-old son. And, certainly the circus.

ONE WOMAN CAMPAIGN: Actress Maryl Streep has launched a campaign in a good natured way to equalize nudity in Hollywood movies. Streep says she's not against appearing in the nude if her role demands it. But she feels that the male actors should also be required to strip down. And she means what she says. When Maryl was offered a role in the remake of the classic "The Postman Always Rings Twice," she said she'd do some nude sex scenes as long as co-star Jack Nicholson did the same. But that didn't wash and the part went to Jessica Lange.

TWO KINDS OF EXITS: The two stars of the Broadway musical hit "Sugar Babies" certainly have contrasting styles — at least when it comes to making the final exit. Mickey Rooney is on his way out of the theater a minute or two after his final curtain call, still in costume and with the orchestra still playing. A limousine whisks him to his home in New Jersey. But Ann Miller likes to remain in her dressing room for at least half an hour where she holds court in the grand backstage tradition.

Q: I hear that former German Chancellor Willy Brandt is involved in a scandal. Do you know what that's all about? — L.E. of Chicago.

A: Brandt, 66, is trying to get a divorce from his second wife so that he can marry Brigitte Seebacher, 33, who is about to make him a father for the fifth time. Willy has a daughter by his first wife who was Swedish and three sons by his Norwegian second wife.

Q: Richard Gere's wardrobe in "American Gigolo" is absolutely smashing. Knowing that John Travolta was originally set for this role, did Gere inherit Travolta's clothes along with his part? — J.R. of Torrance.

A: Yes, he inherited all the clothes but with some changes. Giorgio Armani, who designed the clothes for Travolta, altered them to fit Gere. Travolta's clothes were heavily padded in the shoulders, but Gere didn't need the padding so Armani got rid of it when he did the alterations.

Q: What ever happened to Dawn Wells, who played Mary Ann on "Gilligan's Island"? She was my favorite on that series. — J.S. of Vancouver.

A: Don't fear! Dawn is not stranded on a deserted island of a career. It's just that in recent years she has been devoting more time to stage work and less time to television. This year, she is touring the country in the Marsha Mason role in Neil Simon's comedy hit, "Chapter Two." In May she'll return to her alma mater, Stephens College for Women near Columbia, Mo., to teach a mini-class on TV and film acting. And she's developing an idea of her own for a new TV series — about the daily struggles of an attractive female college president at a small, midwestern campus. Hmmmm, and whom do you have in mind for the lead, Ms. Wells?

PROBLEMS: Add Laurence Olivier to the list of actors miffed at Neil Diamond for problems caused on the set of Neil's first movie, "The Jazz Singer." Olivier, who plays the father of Neil's character, was held up on the picture longer than he'd anticipated due to production delays. Common insiders say it's quite temperamental — outburst — cast changes and causing confusion.

Q: We read a lot about Christopher Wilding, Liz Taylor's son. What about Michael Jr., the other boy from her marriage to the late actor Michael Wilding? — J.N. of Nashville.

A: Michael, 26, is a bit of a worry to his mother, particularly these days when he has been dating the beautiful ex-model who is 54 and the former girlfriend of the late Aly Khan. Liz, by the way, is 48.

MICHAEL WILDING JR.

Q: Back in the late 50s, I vividly recall the antics of Chubby Checker, king of the dance craze, "The Twist." Is he still around and twisting? — D.L. of South Bend, Ind.

A: Although you may not recall him at first, Chubby is still very much around — playing some 30 night clubs and concert dates a year, both in the U.S. and abroad. Chubby, born Ernest Evans, bills himself, naturally, as "king of the twist" and "the originator of modern dance music." Whatever he calls himself, Chubby may look audaciously because he's no longer chubby — thanks to regular jogging and a vegetarian diet.

Q: Is John Travolta worried about his next picture being a flop in view of the fact that his last, "Moment by Moment," was a disaster? — J.V. of Denver.

A: We'd say yes. Word is that Travolta is concerned enough about "Urban Cowboy" to be very cooperative with the press. That's something he wasn't when he was riding high with "Grease." So we can look for substantial cooperation with the media this time around. "Urban Cowboy" is set for a June 13 release.

Americans, British reach out under seige

Times-News writer
 Why make another film about World War II? Hasn't everything been said about that era?
 At least, that's what I thought until "Yanks," John Schlesinger's subtle and sensitive account of British-American relations during the Second World War. Unlike many films about this period, "Yanks" focuses on the psychological interaction of its protagonists, the joy and pain of two peoples as they shared an uncommon event.
 From early 1942 until D-Day, millions of Americans landed in England. The war-torn and weary British welcomed the GIs with mixed emotions. Some resented their boisterous enthusiasm, lack of tradition and good manners. Others, especially the women, were glad for a surge of new energy. The inevitable relationships between the "Yanks" and English women often threatened the established order of things, but created a bond between the two nations.

In particular, the film relates the progress of three interwoven love stories. The first is between a British upper class wife and mother (Vanessa Redgrave) and an American officer (William Devane) who is estranged from his wife. From the deepening friendship of these mature and thoughtful people, we come to fully appreciate the differences between British traditionalism and American instinct.

The second bittersweet affair is between a young Northern English girl (Lisa Eichhorn) and a GI from Arizona (Richard Gere). She is engaged to a local boy away on active duty and completely devoted to her shopkeeper parents.

Her affair with an American forces her from docile obedience to questioning adulthood. Their growing attachment is continually thwarted by her mother's disapproval, the disparity in their beliefs and values and the imminent parting and danger overshadowing all wartime love affairs.

The last couple is appealingly portrayed by Chick Vennera and Wendy Morgan. Hot-blooded, impulsive and uncomplicated, they marry despite the grim realities of war. Their story is perhaps the most typical of that time.

"Yanks" is especially rich because Schlesinger concentrates on detail. The fleeting looks on people's faces, small gestures such as saving string from a gift box, do not escape his attention. It has an amazingly acute eye-and-ear-for-the-period and place. We are enveloped by the special atmosphere of a situation which for many of us is still quite remote.

The casting is excellent. Lisa Eichhorn, in her starring debut, projects an incandescent beauty and vulnerability as the young girl torn between conflicting loyalties. In the role of her mother, veteran actress Rachel Roberts provides a moving portrait of a British woman desperately trying to protect her daughter and maintain a sense of dignity.

"Yanks" is a unique film with an important message. Faced with the horrors of war and deprivation, people triumphed over their conditions by reaching out to each other, by developing understanding and compassion. It is a lesson we can certainly use today.

Cartland's monthly magazine is all her, her

"Oh, Candida," Lord Manville murmured, "I have found you — found you after I lost you. You will never leave me, never escape me again, for I know now that you are the only thing that matters to me in life and I cannot live without you." From "The Power and the Prince," by Barbara Cartland.

never read a book at all?"
 "The books are the basis of what she calls the 'empire' — so many books that it takes 110 lines to list them all in 'Who's Who.' They have titles like 'Again This Rapure,' 'The Hidden Heart,' 'A Kiss for the King' and 'Rhapsody of Love.'"

All, she is the first to point out, follow the same format: "We know there is going to be a virgin and a duke who marry in the end."
 "Virgins" very important to Barbara Cartland and her heroines. She addresses the subject with the same enthusiasm and certitude of a revivalist minister exhorting his flock.

 "My heroines are always me and always virginal," says Miss Cartland, who, during her youthful years reportedly didn't let a man kiss her until he had first proposed marriage.

HATFIELD, England (UPI) — Barbara Cartland, at 78 the undisputed queen of what has been called the "hot lips and heaving bosoms brigade," has now turned her prolific writing skills to a new market, a monthly American magazine she modestly says "is all me, me, me."

Already the author of 277 romantic novels, dictated at the rate of one a week, she has taken on this new venture with hardly a pause in her breathless narrative.
 "Barbara Cartland's World of Romance," which describes itself as a "new monthly magazine of thrilling love stories," gives the reader cover-to-cover Cartland. For $1.25 there is a condensed Cartland novel, a prayer by her, a poem, a beauty hint, a recipe, answers to readers' problems and a message devoted to such topics as "What Can Make a Woman Truly Happy?"

"The only thing I don't do is the signs of the Zodiac," she said in an interview in the pink and turquoise drawing room of her 27-room country estate Camfield Place — once the home of Beatrix Potter's grandfather and one of the original Peter Rabbit books.

Miss Cartland, dressed in her favorite shocking pink from head to polished toenail, speaks at the same rate she dictates — nonstop. Her figure is fashionable, her hair meringue colored, her skin smooth the result, she says, of taking dozens of vitamins and other capsules daily and avoiding sugar, tobacco and liquor. Only the heavy false eyelashes, bobbing up and down as she speaks, seem out of place.

"What I give people, apart from love," she says, "is an elegance and beauty that doesn't exist today... This is a magazine of dreams."

It obviously fell into a large and very ripe market.
 "Do you know," she said, "they did it first in America and I found that 18 percent of the population had read a Barbara Cartland book? And that's after they found out 39 percent of the population had
