UN commission fails to visit Americans, leaves Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini Monday vetoed any release of the U.S. hostages before May.

A special U.N. investigating commission immediately packed its bags to leave Iran with its mission in total collapse.

In Washington, the White House said the mission had been suspended and called the situation "very serious." The statement blamed the failure of the U.N. mission squarely on Iran's revolutionary government, which was unable to even take custody of the hostages as a prelude to their eventual freedom.

The collapse of the U.N. initiative was the latest in a series of diplomatic failures, including a P.L.O. initiative way back in November, to gain release of the 50 Americans, now in their 128th day of captivity at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

It also was a stunning reversal for the Carter administration, which said the Iranian government was committed to allow the commission to see the Americans, held, hostage since Nov. 4.

The panel never even got to see the hostages, one of the key reasons for its trip to Tehran.

The White House statement said the commission is "coming back for consultation," but it added soberly: "Their return does reflect the fact that there's nothing productive in the judgment of the secretary-general and the commission to be gained from their remaining in Tehran."

Sanjar Sanbar, a spokesman for the U.N. panel, said the five jurists were departing for Geneva at 11 p.m. EST.

Sanbar refused all comment on the collapse of the eight-day diplomatic initiative. "I have nothing to say," he said. "There will be a statement at the airport."

Sanjar said the panel met with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh twice and with President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr before announcing its planned departure.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim announced in New York that the mission was suspended "for several days" but left the door open for it to return to Iran when possible.

Waldheim, however, said the panel was not in a position to submit its report on Iran's grievances at this point, and noted that such a report was the mandate of the commission to which Iran and the United States agreed.

The panel's lack of a report along with its failure to see any of the 50 hostages or get them moved out of the Embassy spelled a total breakdown of the mission.

The five-member panel abandoned its mission after a Revolutionary Council spokesman said Khomeini ruled out any release of the hostages until Iran's still unelected Parliament is convened in May.

"As regards taking delivery of the hostages, most of the Revolutionary Council members said: 'We do not want to take delivery,'" the spokesman for the Council said. "They (the hostages) should remain in the hands of the students."

"The Imam (Khomeini) ... said what is important is that the USA's crimes must be pronounced here and that the fate of the hostages must be clarified by the majlis (Parliament) and there is in no way any question of releasing the hostages."

"Thus, the council will not take delivery of them either."

Earlier, Khomeini, 79, in a message broadcast on Tehran Radio, said the U.N. commission may not talk with the Americans, until the panel issues a report on its investigation of the regime of the deposed shah.

"We will struggle against America or die, and will not stop until defeating America and cutting its hands in this region," Khomeini said after meeting with the ruling Iranian group.

House votes to spare CSI from 1% effects

BOISE (UPI) — The House voted 47-21 Monday to exempt Idaho's two junior colleges from the 1 percent property tax limit.

The bill's proponents elected not to worry about warnings that the action would enrage the voters and spark further tax-limit initiative drives.

Those debating in support of the measure said an exemption for the Coeur d'Alene and College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls — was imperative to their survival.

"We're not talking about the 1 percent initiative, we're talking about the education of the young people of the state," said Rep. Gary Gooding, D-Footeville.

Gooding said he attended NIC, and the school provided good instruction at a low cost.

Reps. Louis Horvath, D-Placerhurst, and B.E. "Bud" Lewis, R-St. Maries, said the colleges were essential for vocational education to produce a work-force for Idaho's timber, mining and other industries.

"This special treatment is not warranted," said Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Coeur d'Alene. "It may be needed, but not yet. We don't need to open this door at this time."

Rep. Gordon Hollifield, R-Jerome, warned the lawmakers not to disregard the will of the people.

"Some of these people are threatening another initiative, and they will pass another one of those if the Legislature sees fit to destroy this one," Hollifield said.

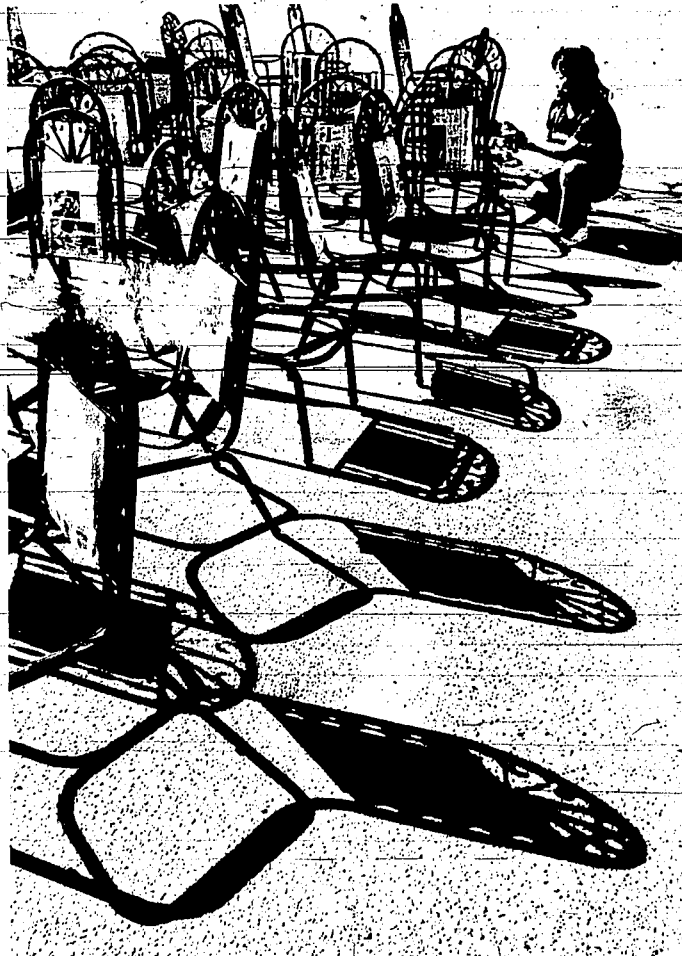

He said it was possible that tax rebels might even attempt to pass an initiative totally repealing the property tax, adding that to chip away at the 1 percent initiative "is dangerous to our form of government."

Hollifield and Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, said the bill was not fair to the public schools, who would not gain an exemption.

"This is a major departure from 1 percent," Hollifield said.

"We're standing to whittle that (the 1 percent) away," said Rep. Lynn Winchester, R-Kuna. "We've done everything but face the issue."

Three counties are affected by the bill — NIC is in Kootenai County and CSI is funded by property taxes from Jerome and Twin Falls counties.

First pregnancies claimed by test tube baby clinic

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The nation's only test tube baby clinic has achieved pregnancies in a number of previously infertile women, officials said Monday.

"We've done it," said Vernon Jones, a spokesman for Eastern Virginia Medical School, which is operating the in-vitro fertilization clinic with Norfolk General Hospital.

Jones said an unspecified number of the first six infertile women in the program had fertilized eggs implanted in their uteruses during the past two weeks.

Jones said the eggs were extracted from the women, fertilized in petri dishes with sperm from their husbands and reimplanted in the women's wombs for natural development.

He declined to specify the exact number of women who underwent in-vitro fertilization, citing the hospital's policy not to disclose information on individual patients.

During the past few weeks, clinic researchers have declined comment on the project and Monday refused to field questions about the pregnancies.

But they earlier said they eventually hope to achieve a success rate of 50 percent, although the figure may be much lower than that initially.

They explained that with in-vitro pregnancies, just as with natural pregnancies, there may be miscarriages.

Clinic officials are using the technique pioneered in England that resulted in the birth of the world's first test tube baby in July 1978.

PGI launches ad campaign after Ore-Ida talks collapse

By STEVE LIPSON Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Potato Growers of Idaho Inc. began an advertising campaign Monday telling growers not to sign contracts with Ore-Ida Foods, Inc.

Negotiations between PGI; the Blackfoot marketing group, and Ore-Ida over 1980 potato prices broke down at the end of last week. According to PGI officials, Ore-Ida now intends to offer the contracts that PGI rejected to independent growers.

If those growers accept the contract, it would hurt negotiations PGI is conducting with Idaho Frozen Foods and the J.B. Simplot Co., according to Jack Thomason, a Jerome farmer and PGI vice president in charge of bargaining.

"We hope growers will reject this contract and send Ore-Ida back to the negotiating table," he said.

PGI bargainers held several meetings with Ore-Ida before reaching the impasse that led to the break in negotiations. Ore-Ida has two processing plants in Burley and one in Ontario, Oregon, which use Idaho potatoes from the Nampa and Caldwell areas.

Talks with other processors are still in the early stages, Thomason said. Just two months ago, Simplot representatives have not made a counter offer to the 25 percent increase PGI, asked for, and the first formal meeting with Idaho Frozen Foods representatives is scheduled for the middle of next week, although there have been informal talks, he said.

Representatives from Ore-Ida declined to comment on their negotiations with PGI.

PGI urged growers not to accept the Ore-Ida contract in an ad that ran in newspapers across the state. The group said growers should reject the Ore-Ida contract offer "so the economic issues can be returned to the bargaining table for a final settlement in your best interests."

PGI president Allan Wood, a Caldwell farmer, said the average contract grower made only a slight profit last year. This year growers face an expected increase in production costs of close to 25 percent, while Ore-Ida is offering only a 5 percent increase over last year's base price, he said.

On top of that, Ore-Ida will only give a grower a contract for the last half of 1980 if he signs a contract for the first half of 1981, Wood said. The 1981 contract offers an additional 5 percent increase.

According to PGI, the Ore-Ida contract would give growers about $3.35 a hundredweight in 1980 and $3.55 in 1981.

Wood called the proposed increases ridiculously low. He said growers should plant alternate crops like alfalfa or wheat rather than sign contracts that lock them into two years of losses.

"If they want to bring Ore-Ida back to the negotiating table, growers have got to reject the contract," Wood said.

Pentagon denies warning net obsolete

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon Monday disputed reports that the system designed to alert the nation to an enemy attack is obsolete and break down.

The $1 billion computerized system operates worldwide.

The Government Accounting Office has released a report claiming that a subsystem of the worldwide communication system, which would warn the White House of a Soviet attack or other overseas crisis, is unreliable.

The report issued Dec. 14 by the GAO said the Pentagon spent $1 billion but failed significantly to improve the autodata-processing (ADP) element of the World Wide Military Command and Control System (WWMCCS). The GAO is a congressional investigating and auditing agency.

"The data processing subsystem, which has been the subject of news articles, comprises only about 8 percent of the total command and control system resources," a Pentagon spokesman said. "The system as a whole is highly effective."

"In summary, it is felt that reports in the press have not accurately described the contribution these computers make to our day-to-day military operations."

"The reports have in general greatly exaggerated the role played by these computers during crisis," the spokesman said.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Gerald Dineen criticized the GAO report when it was still in a draft stage.

WASHINGTON — President Carter said Monday he will unveil a "quite tough" new anti-inflation program before the week is out.

It may come in an appearance before a joint session of Congress.

Carter's intentions were made known by White House visitors, including House Speaker Thomas, P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.

Carter estimated a budget deficit of $15.8 billion when he first submitted his $615.8 billion spending plan for the year starting Oct. 1, but congressional experts believe the deficit may run as high as $25 billion.

Jody Powell, White House press secretary, said Monday that the proposed budget already is tight and if Carter decides to recommend additional cuts, "they are not going to be easy."

Hostages' kin refuse to give up hope

By United Press International
The families of the hostages held by Iranian militants said Monday they knew the promised release of their loved ones was too good to be true, but they refused to give up hope. The hostages eventually would be freed. "I figured they were going to do something like that," said Jackie Persinger, the mother of hostage Gregory Persinger of Sanford, Del., a Marine guard. "They never do anything and that's what they did this time."
"We keep praying that someone will come to their senses pretty soon," said Marie Gallegos of Pueblo, Colo., mother of Marine Cpl. William Gallegos. "Without prayers, I don't know what I would be doing now. I couldn't stand it."

Jesus Lopez, the father of Marine Sgt. Jimmy Lopez, 21, said it "didn't surprise me a bit" that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini changed his mind. "If the government had control they would have done it a while ago (from students to the government) earlier," Lopez said.
Said Mrs. Gallegos: "I don't know who is telling him (Khomeini) what to do. They are so divided, I can't understand that man. I don't know if he is in control or if he is being controlled."

"If (President) Carter is willing to apologize to save my son's life and those of the other people there, then I think he is a great man. I have always had a lot of admiration for anyone who would be man enough to apologize," Mrs. Persinger said. "It looks to me like nobody can free them. I don't know if he (Carter) can do any more than he's doing. I don't look to me like anybody can do anymore than he is doing."

Before the latest development, Carter reportedly had been considering a deal Mrs. Gallegos said her son's most recent last letter arrived about two weeks ago and indicated the hostages did not know about negotiations for their freedom. She said her son said he and other hostages sang the Marine Corps hymn to boost their morale.
"He said he prays that God gives us the courage to withstand the waiting. It seems like they are holding onto their faith and we must hold onto ours. He said he believes God will deliver us," she said.

No release, ayatollah says; UN panel leaves

He also said the panel members could only interrogate several of the "episodes" among the hostages, a condition the militants who seized the U.S. Embassy Nov. 4 quickly accepted.
Throughout the four-month drama, the militants have insisted that Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi be returned for trial and they have never backed off from their insistence that the hostages were spies who aided the ousted monarch.

The commission's mandate was never clear from its arrival in Tehran Feb. 24. The militants evidently saw the group as purely an investigating panel to probe the alleged crimes of the deposed shah, and in this role the jurists visited victims of the former secret police, SAVAK.
But the panel also sought to visit the hostages after they were moved out of the U.S. Embassy to check on their health. That development appeared to be in the works Friday night, but the militants balked at letting the Revolutionary Council take custody of the captives.

The militants then said they would only consider letting the "spy" hostages be seen by the panel. Khomeini backed them up and in strident language vowed to fight the United States until death.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the United States would oppose the interview of only some of the American hostages by the commission. "If there is a visit by the tribunal, it should include seeing all of the hostages," he said.
Hodding Carter characterized the entire day as one of "extreme murkiness" and added that United States was unable to confirm reports that one or more of the hostages tried to commit suicide. "That would be a matter of serious concern to the United States," he said.
The Revolutionary Council last week agreed to take custody of the hostages the militants offered after refusing to allow the Americans to be interviewed inside the embassy, raising hopes that a break was imminent in the diplomatic standoff.
But then Ghobadieh dashed all hopes, saying, "Most of my colleagues in the Revolutionary Council do not think it appropriate for the government to take over the

TMI krypton released
MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Technicians at the Three-Mile Island nuclear plant Monday began venting a small amount of radioactive krypton into the atmosphere in a major step toward decontaminating the crippled facility.
Metropolitan Edison Co. acting President Robert Arnold said the release did not significantly increase the amount of radiation in the atmosphere. John Collins, chief on-site official of the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and Thomas Gerusky, chief radiologist for the state, concurred.
Krypton, in extremely high direct dosage, can cause skin cancer.

Fuel oil spills contained
FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — An army of scientists, technicians and military personnel Monday contained two fuel oil spills that temporarily left downtown area residents without water and killed thousands of fish in Bull Run Creek.
"Every indication is that we've got it contained," said Luke Hester, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency.
City officials declared a state of emergency coupled with a plea to conserve water. Volume users, including schools and businesses, were closed to preserve the city's two-day reserve which has been bolstered by 1.5 million gallons daily from nearby localities.

Pinto jury deliberating
WINAMAC, Ind. (UPI) — Jurors deliberated for 2 hours and 20 minutes in the Ford Motor Co. reckless homicide trial Monday, then broke for the night so one juror could attend a funeral.
Judge Harold Staffeld ordered jurors to reconvene this morning and be prepared to work in the evening to try to decide if Ford is guilty of a criminal offense in the design of its Pinto subcompact car.
Staffeld said he wanted the Pulaski Circuit Court jury to work as long as possible to reach a conclusion, but said the worst case jurors home any time they appeared to become tired.

By United Press International
Soviet occupation forces in Afghanistan, whose ranks may soon be swelled by thousands more, have launched a second major offensive against Moslem guerrillas in the eastern rebel-held province of Paktia, it was reported Monday.
In Washington, defense sources said they expect an extra 25,000 to 30,000 Soviet troop reinforcements to pour across into Afghanistan within the month, boosting the estimated 80,000 Soviet troops already in the country.

Guideline-luck assailed
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both labor and business criticized the administration Monday for taking too long over one part of its anti-inflation program — new, voluntary guidelines for wage increases.
The guidelines calling for increases of 5 to 6 percent "in normal circumstances" were recommended to the administration on Jan. 22 by an 18-member Pay Advisory Committee made up of labor, business and public members.
The administration has not yet given a public answer to the recommendation.
Chief inflation adviser Alfred Kahn said Monday that is because the proposal is being considered as one part of the administration's entire inflation policy review now going on.

Bogota ransom discussed
BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas and negotiators discussed a ransom Monday for the 20 diplomatic hostages, including the U.S. ambassador — at the Dominican Embassy. It was the first sign of a breakthrough in the 13-day siege.
A source close to the government said any possible ransom would be provided by the governments whose diplomats are among the hostages. A specific sum was not mentioned. The guerrillas had asked for $50 million.
Between 32 and 35 hostages are being held at the embassy, including U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio and 19 other diplomats.

OPEC oil output plunges
NEW-YORK — OPEC's oil production plummeted in January to its lowest level since the Islamic revolution halted Iranian oil exports in early 1979, Petroleum Intelligence Weekly reported Monday.
Softening demand, more than planned production cutbacks, seems to be the reason for a sharp 1.2 million barrels daily drop in OPEC's January crude oil output, the authoritative oil publication said.
The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries pumped 20.5 million barrels a day in January, its poorest showing since the cartel's output hit a low of 28.4 million barrels in January 1979 during the Iranian oil cutoff.

Hears appeal argued
The Los Angeles Times
SAN-FRANCISCO — Last year, President Carter commuted Patty Hearst's sentence, freeing her from prison. But on Monday, her lawyer was back in court, seeking to overturn her conviction for armed bank robbery.
The lawyer, George Martinez of San Francisco, contended that F. Lee Bailey, Hearst's former counsel, may have rushed to trial to take advantage of a book he planned to write about the case.
Martinez said Bailey's apparent "conflict of interest" denied his famous client the right to effective counsel.
The Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals took the case under submission.

Session limit of 30 days considered

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer
BOISE — Does Idaho's legislature spend too much time in session?
A key House committee apparently thinks so.
Monday, the State Affairs Committee stamped its approval on House Bill 688.
That measure would limit every other annual legislative session to no more than 30 days in length. Sessions now generally run between 70 and 80 days each year.
"Trimming the length and limiting the subject matter of the off-year session could save taxpayers thousands of dollars, said Rep. Jack Kennevik, R-Boise, sponsor of the measure.

A similar "long session, short session" plan is used in Utah, Kennevik added, "and it works very effectively."
His measure, Kennevik explained, would limit bills under discussion at the short session, to budget matters, proposals submitted by the governor and bills introduced by the Legislative Council, (the organization which is the research arm of the legislature.)

The measure drew cautious support from most committee members.
Long annual sessions prevent many people from leaving their jobs to serve in the Legislature, noted Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Coeur d'Alene. The lengthy sessions also cost taxpayers more than they're worth, he added.
Kennevik's plan might not be a perfect solution to the problem, but some action has to be taken, Ingram said. "I'm willing to try anything, even if it turns out to be wrong."

Rep. Vard Chabburn, R-Albion, also endorsed the idea but only after telling committee members he would prefer sessions that met only bi-annually. That system existed until 1928, Chabburn said, and should be reinstated.
Acknowledging he was unable to gain sufficient support for repeal of annual sessions, Chabburn said he would support Kennevik's measure as a compromise.
HB 686 now goes to the House, where it will likely come up for a final vote this week.

Oilmen carry fight to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Independent oil producers set up an oil rig on the back of a truck of the "Foot of Capitol Hill" and marched on Congress Monday.
They urged the lawmakers to kill the oil windfall profits tax they said could put many of them out of business.
Carrying oil-filled medicine bottles marked, "An Endangered Substance," and wearing buttons proclaiming, "The windfall tax is deadly for domestic oil," several hundred persons participated in the peaceful demonstration. Most were from Texas and Oklahoma.

The House is expected to act this week on the $22.7 billion windfall profits tax President Carter wants in order to capture for the Treasury some of the estimated $1 trillion oil producers will make this decade due to Carter's decision to phase out domestic crude price controls.

New campaign started for health care funds

BOISE (UPI) — Health care industry lobbyists successfully kicked off another campaign Monday to amend the Idaho Constitution to allow state financing of church-owned hospitals and nursing homes.
The House Health and Welfare Committee approved and sent to the floor a joint resolution that if given two-thirds approval in both houses would put the question before the electorate.
The proposed amendment would allow the Idaho Health Facilities Authority to grant loans to private, non-profit, sectarian health care facilities.

A similar resolution was killed in the Senate earlier this session, and the voters rejected by a few thousand votes a similar proposed amendment in the 1978 general election.
John Hutchison of the Idaho Hospital Association blamed the prior defeats of the proposed amendment on "confusion" among the electorate and the Senate.
"He said the amendment, if passed by the Legislature and the people, would save Boise's St. Alphonsus Hospital $245,000 in interest payments alone during the first year of its planned sixth-floor expansion project."

Another tag color sought

BOISE (UPI) — Another legislator wanting to change Idaho's vehicle license plates made his feelings known Monday — but this time the controversial "famous potatoes" slogan is not threatened.
Rep. Joe Wagner, D-Lewiston, told the House Transportation and Defense Committee he was sick of looking at the green outline, numbering and lettering on the plates.
"I'm tired of green," Wagner complained. "We need a change. We should change it to blue, or even orange, or something different. We've had green for a long time."

Republican Reps. Robert Geddes of Preston and Wayne Tibbitts of Rigby blasted the bill.
"This is taking the circuit breaker

House passes broader 'circuit breaker' bill

BOISE (UPI) — "Circuit breaker" property tax relief would be broadened under a bill passed 55-14 by the House Monday and sent to the Senate.
The measure would increase the amount of tax relief granted to elderly and low-income homeowners, and add disabled persons to the eligibility list.
It also would remove from the law a provision by which capital gains affect eligibility, making it easier for the state Tax Commission to administer the relief plan.
Republican Reps. Robert Geddes of Preston and Wayne Tibbitts of Rigby blasted the bill.
"This is taking the circuit breaker far beyond the original intent," Geddes said.

Tibbitts, saying the "concept of the circuit breaker has been diluted," objected to a section of the bill that would reduce to one-year the residency requirement on eligibility. The present requirement is three years.
The bill's sponsor, Rep. Ron Harlow, D-Lewiston, rebutted claims that removing the capital gains standard from the law would allow windfall relief to some people who sold large amounts of property. He said the interest income tax would disqualify these people from the circuit breaker program.

School funding hike OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — The Legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee authorized Monday a 10.7 percent increase in funding for Idaho public schools in fiscal year 1981.
The general account portion of the appropriation — $194 million — is 12 percent above the amount approved by the Legislature last year.
Total state appropriations for the public schools under the budget passed by the committee would be $199.4 million for fiscal year 1981. Taking into account all revenue for the schools, the statewide budget would be about $274 million.

Iran: That's just about enough

All those editorial cartoons showing the Ayatollah Khomeini leading America around like a puppet on strings haven't been wrong.

Khomeini did his string-pulling act again Monday, abruptly ending hope for the release this month of the American hostages, now in their 128th day of captivity. His constantly changing position not only dashed the hopes of ending the crisis, but all but wrecked a United Nations investigatory mission.

If Khomeini is not a madman, he teeters on the brink of madness.

The visit by the U.N. commission was the best effort yet to win the release of the hostages, or at least get them out of the hands of the Iranian militants and into the auspices of the Iranian Revolutionary Council.

But the U.N. commission was just a ruse for Khomeini. He used them for as long as he could, then played them against the militants, whipped up his supporters in more frenzy, denied the commission members any contact with the hostages, and then demanded any findings must publicly condemn the U.S. For good measure, he said the hostages cannot now be considered for release until May.

Khomeini doesn't want a world court of inquiry into alleged crimes of the shah. He wants a stacked court. He wants the noose in place around America's neck and he wants center stage to play the hangman's role.

The Carter administration has been very patient through all of Khomeini's rantings and ramblings. Every glimmer of hope has been carefully examined. For a time it appeared a workable solution was finally within grasp.

But 50 lives to the Ayatollah must mean absolutely nothing, mere pawns in the crazy, emotional, irrational world of Iranian politics. The critics are right when they say Iranians are misunderstood. The question is: Who on this earth can understand them?

America has turned the other cheek time and time again in this crisis. The Carter administration now must reassess its posture and decide on a new course. For us, it is clear America has had enough of this Iranian imbecility.

'Marriage on the rocks'

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate
WASHINGTON — I'm not too sure of the statistics, but it seems to me that more and more young people are getting married these days. That's the good news. The bad news is that more and more of them are breaking up.

Ordinarily this would be their own business except for the fact that many of us have thousands of dollars tied up in wedding presents we bought for the couples at the time of the ceremony.

With the price of silver, crystal and china going sky-high, there has to be some way of protecting the innocent, when a marriage goes awry.

A group of us were discussing this the other evening.

Melissa said, "Did you hear the Warbucks kids have split?"

"There goes Joe's bank worth of Waterford glass," Joe said. "I told Edwina not to go crazy just because the wedding reception was held at the Plaza."

"The Warbucks gave our kids a six-place setting of Spode last year."

"How are your kids doing?" someone asked.

"My daughter moved out of the apartment three months ago. She decided he wasn't for her."

"But they were only married last June. I know because we still have the bill for the silver chafing dish we bought them."

Edwina got defensive. "I don't know why you should complain. We gave your son and daughter-in-law a Tiffany lampshade, and I understand she's now living with a rock star."

"If you think that's sad," Dinah said, "I gave the Benedict kids a Cuisinart three months ago and their marriage was just annulled. It didn't last as long as the warranty."

"Ted said, 'There has to be a better way of dealing with modern marriages. We can't just keep buying wedding presents for young people these days and seeing them go down the drain.'"

"What do you suggest?" I asked.

"Well, this may sound a little crazy, but why couldn't we give the gift to them on lease? As long as they remained married they could use the present, but if they broke up the gifts would revert back to us."

"It's a wild idea but it does have merit," Joe said. "We sure could use the Swedish steak knives we gave the Talberts."

Melissa said, "There's something tacky about giving a wedding present to a young couple and losing them. It really isn't theirs. There should be an incentive for them to stay married. Suppose we told them that if they remained married for five years they would get little to the gifts we bought them?"

"Joe said, 'That seems like a good bet. I don't know too many young couples who have stayed together that long.'"

"I also liked the notion but I said, 'How do we do it legally?'"

Eddie, the lawyer in the group, said, "We can draw up a lease contract which they can sign on their wedding day. We'll hold the parents responsible if they refuse to give the gift back. If the idea catches on we could get sheriff's deputies to actually pick the stuff up. They do it with automobiles; they can certainly do it for wedding presents."

"What I like about the idea," said Edwina, "is that it will impress on the young people that marriage is a very serious business, and if two people don't work at it, they have a good chance of losing their Comingware."

Feuding over families

© Universal Press Syndicate
WASHINGTON — By the end of this month most of the delegates will have been elected or appointed to next summer's White House Conference on Families. We should then have some indication whether this affair will be a reasonably balanced and possibly constructive undertaking, or whether it will turn into another Houston zoo.

President Carter doubtless has larger matters on his mind, but unless his political antennae are altogether off—the frizz he will see that the situation doesn't get completely out of hand. The last time Mr. Carter gave his benediction to one of these affairs, Bella Abzug led a swarm of ultra-libs into the Houston Convention Center for the International Women's Year. That was in November 1977. The IWY conference was rigged, stacked and loaded against such conservatives as Phyllis Schlafly, who chaired a ramp convention 10 miles away.

The Houston hairpull earned Mr. Carter no Brownie points at all. The assembled bra-burners, welfare mamas, do-gooders, lesbians and pro-abortionists easily overwhelmed a tiny minority of conservative women. A number of resolutions were adopted, and some of them, in other circumstances, might have attracted respectful support. Emerging from a highly charged atmosphere of anything goes, the IWY report in the end attracted nothing but dust.

Leaders of the forthcoming family conferences swear earnestly, cross their hearts, that nothing like Houston will happen this summer. There are to be three regional gatherings — in Baltimore June 5-7, in Minneapolis June 19-21, and in Los Angeles July 16-18. Two thousand delegates will attend, 244 of them appointed at large by the advisory committee, the rest of them elected at state meetings or appointed by the several governors. All the states but Alabama and Indiana will be represented; their governors feared a Houston II might be in the making and said, no dice.

John L. Carr, executive director of the Conference on Families, says that careful steps are being taken to prevent a fiasco. The 40-member advisory committee includes half a dozen putative conservatives, among them Barbara B. Smith of Salt Lake City, general president of the Mormons' Relief Society, and J. Francis Starford of Baltimore, chairman of the Bishops' Committee on Marriage and Family Life of the United States Catholic Conference. One of the five deputy chairmen of the conference is Donald V. Seibert of New York, chairman of a task force for the Business Roundtable.

When the advisory committee gets around to choosing the 244 at-large members, Mr. Carr says, in a conspicuous effort will be made to fill in gaps that may be left. The goal is to bring together persons who are more concerned with helping families than with grinding axes. If the three sessions are dominated by extremists from either the right or the left, nothing useful will be accomplished.

Well, let us see. It will be a miracle, or something close to it, if the conferences do not wind up with resolutions promoting pervasive involvement of the federal government in family life. My guess, at this range, is that most of the delegates will embrace Walter Mondale's hair-raising concepts with a whoop and a holler. The vice president, as a member of the Senate, yearned for legislation that would convert millions of children into virtual wards of the state, with their every physical, emotional and mental need funded by functionaries at thousands of day care centers. With such liberal friends working for him, Mr. Carter will need no political enemies.

In terms of a $600 billion budget, the $3 billion appropriated for the family conferences is less than pocket change. It is picaresque to object to the cost. And it is, indeed, conceivable that a sober examination into family life today, and into the role of government (if any) in family life, might be vaguely useful. Much worse projects are undertaken in Washington all the time.

But taxpayers surely will have a right to protest, in principle, if this venture degenerates into nothing more than one more sounding board for the notion that Uncle Sam should be head of families. That would echo the Houston discord — and one Houston, I submit, was enough.

F&G games

Editor, Times-News:
The Fish and Game license fee increase, $1293, was assigned to the House Ways and Means Committee by Speaker of the House Ralph Olmstead. This apparently was done at the urging of Rep. Walt Little. I called Mr. Olmstead to ask why he took this action rather than refer it to the germane committee, Speaker Olmstead has not returned my call.

The information I have been able to obtain is that Rep. Little wants the Department of Fish and Game to pay a larger amount for predator control. The department and the commission have agreed to increase the appropriation from $17,000 to $30,000. This is the price for getting the fee increase passed through the House. But Rep. Little's demands do not stop there. He had let it be known that 10 percent of the pheasant stamp monies should be appropriated for predator control.

The sportsmen, from this state should not tolerate such high-handed tactics. This is legislative blackmail. It disregards the majority support shown during the hearings in the Senate Resources and Environment committee and most recently in the House Resource and Conservation Committee which gave its unanimous approval to S1283. However, the bill remains in committee. In the case of the pheasant stamp, its fate is questionable after the statements by Rep. Little, Fish and game conservation and environmental issues have been under constant assault by this Legislature. Sportsmen must contact those individuals and voice their concern for the legislation in question.

Puzzled

Editor, Times-News:
People all over America — in fact, people all over the world — are puzzled by President Carter's foreign policy pronouncements and actions. On occasion he has reacted realistically to the Communist threat only to back down and eat crow later.

Even with his call for increased military defense spending, a boycott of the Olympic Games in Russia, and a cut-out of wheat to the enemy, there is still no assurance he intends to go all the way. After all, he still retains and listens to his two foreign policy advisers who have no intention of abandoning the SALT Treaty which has merely been relegated to a back burner.

The accommodation of, or our coexistence with, an atheistic slave system is strictly condemned by the principles and doctrines of the Bible that President Carter carries under his arm. So it is evident that his leadership decisions could not be based on Scripture.

Could it be that our president believes in and is guided by left-liberal foreign ideology, that ideology that considers our United States "so guilty of transgressions—past and present—against the true and best interest of humanity that we have no right to defend our own specific national interest? Nor have we any right to the status and influence once thought appropriate to a Great Power. Our omission, instead, is to make amends to the rest of the world, and especially to that portion of the world governed by 'progressive' and 'naturally' anti-American regimes. Even when such nations turn nasty, it is our duty to wait patiently until their tantrums have subsided."

For this writer this is the only explanation that fits.

Dog shooting

Editor, Times-News:
To the person who shot the tri-colored mutt on North Quincy Sunday night.

If I live in that vicinity and there have been a lot of dogs shot in that neighborhood lately. My neighbor's little Dachshund was shot that same week. But I'm sure you know all about that, too.

Thank God the Dachshund was found in time and survived. You must really get off on shooting little dogs. I realize there is a leash law in town, but did you realize there is a law against shooting firearms of any kind in town?

What's worse is you maiming the dogs.
If you want some target practice, I can suggest two very nice places to go, outside the city limits.
Take heed, dog owner, we'll find out who you are.

Nobel sperm bank a Woody Allen script

© The Boston Globe Newspaper Co.
Washington Post Writers Group
BOSTON — A dozen years ago, when William Shockley first began talking about improving the stock of the human race, nobody knew that he was going to try to do it all by himself.

Back then, you may recall, the man who won a Nobel Prize for making transistors starting talking about making babies. He believed that the world would be better off with more smart people than dumb people, and that intelligence was inherited.

Robert K. Graham, has actually founded an exclusive sperm bank. In what sounds like a Woody Allen script, he solicits donations from Nobel Prize scientists only — Peace Prize and literature prize winners need not apply. And guess who was among the first three donors? William A. Father-of-the-Year Shockley.

When I first heard this piece of news out of the Los Angeles Times, I was stunned by the sheer conceit of the donors. The belief in the superiority of your sperm — even 70-year-old sperm can only come from long nights spent re-reading the Stockholm speeches. If ego is carried along by the DNA, the three women impregnated so far in this program will give birth to a trio of miserably conceived, ill-motivated, The Repository for Germinal Choice (I did not make that name up) is a phallic symbol... without the symbolism. But there is more here than meets the ovum.

In the past two weeks, we have had this bulletin about a sperm bank for propagation of the elite in California and another tale about a program for sterilization of 4,000 "misfits" from 1922 to 1972 in Lynchburg, Va. These are both entries in the historic annals of genetic control.

For over a century, this country has debated whether heredity or environment is most important in determining the physical, mental and "moral" health of a human being. In mid-19th century Massachusetts, the poor Irish who lived in slums with virtually no health care had a higher infant mortality rate than others. An extensive study conducted by Massachusetts Brahmins blamed it on their "weaker genetic stock."

After World War I, when the country went through a fit of xenophobia, they used I.Q. tests at Ellis Island to "prove" that most of the Jewish, Hungarian, Italian and Russian immigrants were "feeble-minded."

In the same vein, an old study of Harvard college graduates mentioned the fact that the educated Harvardians under-reproduced themselves. Early birth-control advocates put it bluntly: "More children from the fit; less children from the unfit."

In short, the situation in Lynchburg was only a more efficient example of a fairly popular concept. People categorized rather blithely as retardards and "misfits" — including young women who were committed for being sexually active — were to be prevented from polluting the genetic pool. No one ever proved that they had genetic defects.

Well, in the 1930s, due to a well-known geneticist named Adolph, a lot of these theories fell into disrepute. But they started percolating through the surface of social reform again about 10 years ago when Arthur Jensen, Richard Herrnstein and, yes, "Papa" Shockley started putting forth theories that I.Q. was largely inherited.

Shockley not only endorsed the concept of "increasing the people at the top of the population" but also of "reducing the tragedy of the genetically disadvantaged at the bottom." Not coincidentally, he believes that blacks are genetically less intelligent than whites. Here we go back to Ellis Island.

There are reasons why the notions of "genetic inferiority and superiority" become popular from time to time. When we lose confidence or interest in "reforming" the environment, we are more likely to blame genes.

If an underclass exists in a democratic society, we want to blame their "stock" rather than our system. When the economic times are hard, I think we are also more likely to think in terms of controlling people rather than helping them. When social programs seem messy and complicated and exhausting, we turn to the efficient engineering of science.

It all sounds so logical. Cast genius sperm upon the world, like Johnny Appleseed, and you will get a crop of geniuses. But, genetically, it just ain't so. Furthermore, the definition of a successful human life isn't as simple as that of a successful race horse. Genius is more than genes.

And if you're in the market for some Shockley sperm, think about this: You might end up with the genes of a lousy geneticist instead of a decent transistor.

Russian import estimate hiked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Monday raised its estimate of Russian grain imports.

It predicted the Soviet Union would be able to make up 7 million tons of the shortfall caused by the U.S. embargo.

The estimate of Russian imports through mid-summer was 2 million tons larger than a prediction issued a month ago and 5 million tons larger than an estimate made shortly after the Jan. 4 embargo of U.S. wheat and corn to Russia.

"The increased availability to the U.S.S.R. reflects the likelihood of larger imports from Argentina, partially at the expense of Argentina's traditional markets," the department said in a monthly report on Russian grain production and trade.

The Common Market, Canada and Australia, other major grain exporters, said they would honor a U.S. request that they not make up the shortfall caused by the embargo of 17 million tons of American grain, but Argentina refused to cooperate fully.

The department also said that a recently announced Canadian sale of 12 million tons, some of which will be shipped before July 1, also raised the estimate of Russian imports.

Despite the embargo, President Carter permitted the Russians to buy about 2.5 million tons that remained to be shipped out of 8 million tons covered under a U.S.-Russian grain agreement.

Officials said the Russians were able to increase their imports of feed grains by shifting those remaining American shipments from wheat to corn.

The department said, "Despite these upward revisions in the Soviets' July-June imports, and a slight increase in the supplies of grain available for feed use, the Soviets are still likely to face tight feed supplies between now and June."

Officials said a large portion of the additional imports will not reach Russia in time to ease a tight grain situation from March to June.

The department said the Soviet Union needed even more grain this crop year than believed before the embargo.

It raised an estimate of actual Russia import needs to 36 million tons, up 2 million tons, but estimated imports would total a record 39.5 million tons.

About 6 million tons of the embargoed American grain would have been shipped after mid-summer. The impact of that loss will not be great if the Russian crop is plentiful.

So far, weather conditions for the Russian winter grain crop, which will be harvested in spring and early summer, have been good.

World grain figures show slight increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Monday slightly raised its estimate of world grain production this crop year to 1.526 billion tons.

The increase was a result of improved prospects in Brazil and South Africa.

In addition, post-harvest revisions in the Indian, East European and Indonesian crops pushed up the size of the overall crop, which is expected to be 3.5 percent smaller than last year's record.

World wheat production was forecast at 419 million tons, nearly the same as a month ago and 6 percent below last crop year.

Much of the increase came in the size of the feed-grain crop, forecast at 732 million tons, despite continued decline in the Argentine crop as a result of dry weather. The Argentine feed grain crop was forecast at 13.2 million tons, down from 14 million tons forecast a month ago.

The South African and Indian feed grains crops are up.

Larger rice crops in Indonesia, Brazil and India raised world rice production to 375 million tons, up 1 percent from last month.

Despite a decline in soybean production as a result of dry weather in Argentina, an estimate of world production of major oilseeds was raised slightly to 160 million tons.

An estimate of the Brazilian soybean crop was raised from 14.5 million tons to 14.7 million tons, compared to 16.2 million tons for the past two dry crop years.

Embargo discouraging, Carter told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Midwestern member of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture told President Carter Monday that farmers are discouraged by the Soviet grain embargo and high production costs.

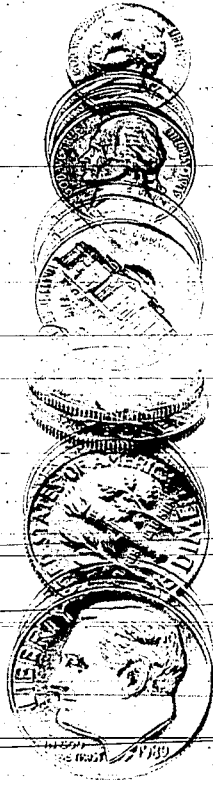

But Illinois Agriculture Director John R. Block, a Republican, predicted that these factors would not hurt Carter in the Illinois primary in eight days.

"The president will perform very well in Illinois," Block said.

Chevron energy report:

Tuesday, March 11, 1980 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-5

Chevron's nickels become dimes — Dimes become energy.

Chevron's record 1980 investments in the U.S. — twice the size of our '79 U.S. profits — will make possible a record number of new energy projects.

Chevron made a nickel on a dollar of U.S. petroleum sales last year. For each nickel earned, Chevron in 1980 will be investing a dime, made up of profit after dividends plus cash from operations (including depreciation).

With those dimes — billions of them — we're undertaking hundreds of different energy projects. Among the major ones:

- Record expenditures for new exploration, development and production wells — from the Gulf of Mexico all the way to Alaska's North Slope.
- Nearly two dozen extremely deep and costly new wells for natural gas in the Overthrust Belt of Wyoming and in the Tuscaloosa Trend of Louisiana.
- Steam flood projects that could triple the production of our heavy crude oil in California over the next five years.
- Plans for major new facilities at our refinery in Mississippi.
- Accelerated development of alternate energy sources: Shale oil in Colorado. Geothermal energy in the West. And solar — plus more.

All these Chevron projects are designed to help make America more energy independent. But it's equally important that we all continue to conserve as much energy as possible.

Onassis' divorce still forthcoming

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Christina Onassis's lawyer said Monday the Greek heiress is divorcing her Russian husband but denied a report that the 18-month marriage has already ended.

Attorney Telios Papadimitriou said, "We definitely have filed for divorce but it has not been granted yet."

He denied a London newspaper report that the daughter of Aristotle Onassis, the late Greek shipping magnate who married Jacqueline Kennedy, divorced Sergei Kausov two weeks ago in Switzerland.

"I should know about it if that was the case," Papadimitriou said.

The Daily Express, in a dispatch from the Swiss resort of St. Moritz, quoted Christina as saying, "We were divorced two weeks ago here in Switzerland."

"It was quite amicably arranged. Under the separation agreement he gets a ship."

The Express commented: "He had hoped for $110 million as a payoff — but apparently the ship will do."

Express correspondent — Michael Brown said he based the dispatch on a chat he had over the weekend with Christina about her third husband.

He said Christina did not believe a report published last week in the Express that Kausov was an agent of the KGB, the Soviet secret police.

"I still don't believe that Sergei is a spy," she was quoted as saying. "Anyway, what could he get out of me? Do you suppose we talked about oil in bed together? Do you think I let him — most people — who — knew — about things either?"

Court-martial of Marine Garwood slated to begin today

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) — A court-martial opens today for Marine Pfc. Robert R. Garwood on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy during 13½ years behind enemy lines in Vietnam.

Garwood, 33, of Adams, Ind., is accused by former POWs who encountered him in jungle prison camps in South Vietnam of serving with the Communist army, standing guard and helping interrogate his fellow Americans, and acting as an informer. He could face life imprisonment if convicted.

A high school dropout from a broken home who volunteered for the Marines, Garwood disappeared outside Danang in 1965, and returned to the U.S. last March after passing a note to a foreigner in Hanoi saying he wanted to come home.

Since his return, Garwood has remained silent about his Vietnam experiences, except to say he was captured during a gunbattle with Viet Cong soldiers and was a POW who did only what he needed to do to survive.

His court-martial is expected to last at least a month, although testimony is not likely to begin until late March or early April. Marine Corps officials say this week's session, expected to last only two days, will be devoted to procedural matters, including determination of who will sit as a jury. After that, the court-martial will be adjourned for about two weeks while attorneys line up witnesses.

The court-martial was ordered by Camp Lejeune commander Brig. Gen. David Barker based on evidence presented during a three-week pretrial hearing in which several former POWs testified. Those same POWs will form the nucleus of the case against Garwood, who has worked as a clerk at this sprawling infantry base since his return.

Bid to save dolphins abandoned

TOKYO (UPI) — Frustrated American environmentalists Monday abandoned their fight to save the dolphins, leaving behind thousands of mammals destined for slaughter by Japanese fishermen.

Susan Cate of Hilo, Hawaii, a member of the Greenpeace conservation group, together with her child and an environmentalist colleague, left Iki Island, some 600 miles southwest of Tokyo, to visit her jailed husband, Dexter.

"It was unfortunate timing," Mrs. Cate said in a telephone interview. "We didn't get to talk to the fishermen before the slaughter. If we could have, I think the whole situation would have been different."

She said the Americans left Iki in despair, unable to persuade the fishermen not to kill the dolphins. The islanders claim the dolphins ruin their livelihood because the dolphins devour fish the islanders would normally catch.

So far the fishermen, who are paid a bounty of $40 for each dolphin, have killed some 1,500 of the animals, whose carcasses are shredded for pig fodder and fertilizer. Two years ago they drew international protests for a similar round-up in which 1,000 dolphins were killed.

"There's no reason to stay because they won't communicate with us, they won't have a meeting with us or anything, it's just impossible," said Mrs. Cate.

Dexter Cate, who admitted cutting the rope of a net to free some 300 dolphins, was arrested Saturday and prosecutors are still questioning him about the incident. A district court ruled Cate could be held for 10 days pending further investigation.

Larry Milligan of Stanley and his painting of Indian presentation of horse to Lewis and Clark group

Art commemorates expedition

TWIN FALLS — The 175th anniversary of the Lewis and Clark Expedition is commemorated by local artist Larry Milligan.

A resident of Stanley, Milligan is currently displaying a painting of an event during the expedition at the Idaho First National Bank in Twin Falls.

Milligan, although he does not pose as a historical painter, has done a number of scenes from Idaho history, researching each event for the greatest degree of accuracy possible.

In Clark's journal on April 28, 1806, he wrote that Indian Chief Yellept brought "a very elegant white horse to our camp and presented him to me, signifying his wish to get a kettle."

Milligan said the event was something of a turning point in the long journey across the country for the explorers and their party.

History shows from this time on the expedition was not so difficult. The soggy winter at Fort Clatsop where their clothing rotted and they lived on sour elk meat was behind them. They had gotten far enough up the Columbia River to be away from the fish-eating Indian tribes who stole their possessions and refused to sell them firewood.

The painting depicts their arrival in the territory of chief Yellept who brought armloads of wood and a platter of fresh fish to the tired expedition members.

The painting by Milligan shows the delivery of the horse by the Indian chief and his tribesmen, Sacajawea, Scammon, Lewis' Newfoundland dog, Clark, Lewis and Drewyer and York of the expedition.

Milligan grew up in Jerome and after several years as an electronics engineer in southern California, he returned to his native state and his first love, painting.

He built a log cabin at Stanley for his family consisting of his wife and two daughters. From his studio windows, he looks into the Sawtooth Mountains which form the background for many of his paintings.

In addition to the painting, the artist spends much of his time studying Idaho historical events to work out on his canvas. Presently Milligan is researching in preparation for a painting of a disaster that overtook the Wilson-Price Hunt-party-on-Snake River in 1811 near what is now Milner Dam.

Dr. Lamb

His treatment shocking

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. (Newspaper Enterprise Association) Dear Dr. Lamb,

I'm writing to say my husband thinks he has prostate trouble. He's never mentioned this to his doctor. I found out by accident that he has made an electrical instrument. He puts this into his rectum and gives himself a shock. He says they treat prostates this way.

Someone told him they gave him electric shock to help him. I don't doubt this but shouldn't this be done by someone who knows what he is doing? I worry that he will injure himself in some way.

Dear Reader,

Ouch. That's not the way to treat prostate trouble, and it's also dangerous. I think you'd better tell your husband to stop this shocking treatment and get an evaluation by his doctor first to find out if he does have prostate trouble, and second, if he does, to get some proper treatment.

Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. It will give your husband a better understanding of his problem and what can be done about it.

I read an article on unnecessary procedures and decided to ask you about the validity of the routine episiotomy. Why can't the perineal tissue be left intact allowing for the possibility of tearing but, also for allowing for the chance that it remains intact? I can't help but feel that an incision into a healthy muscle and nerve tissue is really not beneficial unless the baby's life is somehow in danger.

Dear Reader,

It's a good question, but I can assure you that it's a necessary procedure in many cases. For those unfamiliar with the term, an episiotomy is a simple incision that's made at the outlet of the birth canal during birth.

It's most commonly used in a woman giving birth to her first baby. Because the tissues have not been stretched before and often are fairly tight, the head of the baby is too large for the opening. All the obstetrician does is make an incision just large enough to allow the baby's head to emerge.

If the tissues are tight and such an incision is not made, the tissues will be torn. The tears can get completely out of control and will quickly rip through the tissues.

Dear Abby

Entire family smokes pot

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
The Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for 23 years, and have always thought you were fair and intelligent.

When you said that the parents who smoked marijuana in front of their four-year-old child were guilty of child abuse, I couldn't believe my eyes!

I am a 27-year-old housewife married to a 37-year-old husband. We have four teen-agers.

My husband and I do not drink, but we DO smoke marijuana. We have smoked it for over 20 years (nearly every day), and we've never hidden the fact from our children. We do not allow our children to drink, nor to associate with people who do, but there is nothing wrong with pot.

In case you didn't know, it's legal in Alaska. Are all Alaskans guilty of child abuse?

Alaskans are allowed to grow their own for consumption.

I think you are guilty of column abuse! Please get the facts, Abby!

DEAR INFORMED: I did. Marijuana is no more "legal" in Alaska than it is in any other state of the United States.

It is DECRIMINALIZED (under Statute No. 17.12.110). Some of the restrictions are:

Nobody under 18 years of age can possess or use marijuana. If over 18, a person may not have more than one ounce on his person in public (this means on public streets, sidewalks, buildings, buses, etc.). He may not use marijuana while operating a motor vehicle, airplane, etc. If convicted, it would be a misdemeanor with a fine of not more than $1,000.

It may be used in private by those who are 18 or older.

Nothing is said about the legality of growing marijuana on one's own use.

through hell. I'm out now, but I have to see a social worker every week. I'm still on medication, and my head still hurts. But at least I can dress myself and comb my own hair. My biggest fear is that one day I will go completely crazy again and end up back in the hospital. I saw kids at Camarillo who'd had that experience.

My God, what a terrible price to pay for wanting to get high, Abby, please keep telling kids to stay away from pot. You never know what's in it. I am signing my name and address just to prove this letter is not a phony, but if you print it, sign me... PAID A BIG PRICE

DEAR ABBY: If your letter makes just one person say NO to pot, it will have been worth space in my column. Thanks for writing. God bless.

Are you the lonely fate in the crowd? Friends make you a winner, and Abby tells you how to win them in her booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (23 cents) envelope to Abby, 1323 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

What's what

Baby hippos exported often from Budapest

One of Hungary's most valuable exports, surprisingly, is the baby hippopotamus. Ordinarily, hippos do not breed rapidly in captivity. But there's something in the water of 123 thermal springs around Budapest that facilitates hippos to mate, seemingly. Zoo men there say their hippos reproduce in an extraordinary manner after wallowing in the mineral waters.

Not everybody has heard about the western mining town called Wickes. It's claim to renown is said to be in the fact that it was the only place in Montana to open a church before it opened a saloon. In 1890, that was.

The Datsun 280Z is known in Japan as the Fairlady for no other reason than that the company president liked the Broadway play.

If the pupils of the patient's eyes aren't the same size, that, too, could be the sign of a stroke.

LIFE PRESERVERS

Q. When did ocean-going ships first start carrying life preservers for all the passengers?

A. After the killer hurricane of 1837 wiped out a new paddle-wheel steamer called the "Hiram" off Cape Hatteras, N. C., drowning about 90 persons, mostly women and children. It was the same storm that eight days earlier had demolished a settlement at Galveston in the Republic of Texas.

Q. Among whales, which are the larger, the males or the females?
 A. Of those with teeth, the males. Of those without teeth, the baleen whales, the females.

Q. What's the difference between Holland and The Netherlands?

A. Holland is the most important region of The Netherlands, but not all of it.

GOLD

The greatest research project of 600 years ago was an effort by alchemists in western Europe to find some way to turn lead into gold. But one of these men, a fellow named Thomas Norton, worried that such a discovery would ruin the economies of people everywhere. It didn't happen, not exactly that way. Instead, the Chinese during the Sung Dynasty invented paper money. Then English royalty got hold of the idea. And it spread. That did it.

Gem slowdown, rebound forecast

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's economy will slow down in 1980 but a fairly strong recovery is expected in the following two years, the Idaho Division of Budget, Policy and Planning reported Monday.

The division forecast a decline in real personal income through the second quarter of this year with a slight recovery beginning during the third quarter. By the second quarter of 1981, however, growth is forecast to be above percent.

The agency said personal income growth appears to have fallen in Idaho because of increased inflation and slower economic growth in the state.

Idaho's slowed economic was mostly attributed to decreases in the lumber and wood products industry. The division said after three years of growth in the 5.5 to 8.5 percent range, employment in the industry fell by 1.2 percent last year.

However, the agency said machinery and transportation equipment production also slowed to about 1 percent growth last year after an average annual rate of 60 percent.

Real per capita income also is expected to decline through the third quarter of this year with a rapid recovery the following year.

The agency said wages and salaries 60 percent of personal income should slow to 6.1 percent growth in 1980, well behind the inflation rate. But growth is expected to jump to 11.5 percent in 1981 and to 15 percent in 1982.

After an 88 percent increase in 1979, farmers' incomes will slow to 12 percent growth next year and 9 percent in 1982. Non-farm incomes will slow even more to 4.7 percent in 1980, then begin recovery to 8.5 percent in 1981.

The bureau said non-agricultural employment is expected to slow to 1.6 percent in 1979 followed by no growth in 1980. But employment should pick up in 1981 to a 2.7 percent rate with a 5 percent rate thereafter.

The decline in manufacturing in the state also will lead to a decline in manufacturing employment, the division said. Manufacturing employment is expected to decline during the first three quarters of this year with strong growth resuming in mid-1980 after which growth resumes.

Non-manufacturing employment — led by reductions in construction and state and local government — should experience a moderate decline until mid-1980 after which growth resumes. The agency said declines in state and local government employment were due largely to cuts brought on by the 1 percent property law.

Idaho is experiencing a nationwide shortage of qualified registered nurses, such as Leslie Brown, of St. Benedict's Hospital, who is patiently feeding Charles Chappin.

Why a shortage of nurses?

Low pay, lifestyle decisions main reasons

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Many hospitals are not only struggling to stay out of the red, but they can't find enough of the figure in white — the registered nurse.

Likewise, some Magic Valley health care facilities are having difficulty hiring and keeping enough experienced, qualified RNs. While some hospitals, such as the Twin Falls Clinic and Mindoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert, say they are only minimally affected by the nationwide nurse shortage, others, such as St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome, have had severe problems staffing for night and evening shifts.

At Magic Valley Memorial Hospital the shortage is not critical—and has not forced any cutbacks in patient care, according to Diane Snodgrass, assistant administrator. But Snodgrass said Idaho's shortage has become "acute in the last six months." Because she is "concerned" about possible future shortages, she is advertising for nurses in 24 newspapers in the Midwest as well as in Idaho to insure enough qualified applicants.

St. Benedict's has had such a hard time hiring RNs with basic nursing skills that some nurses, including the division manager of nursing services Gerald Holm, have been forced to work double shifts. Holm said such scheduling hurts patient care; at the very least nurses "get cranky" from working 16 hours. Idaho Nurses' Association Director Sally Donart considers the shortage "severe," and contends it could become "critical" if problems forcing nurses out of the profession are not solved.

Oddly enough, the shortage does not imply a lack of nursing graduates, nor a lack of licensed nurses — only a lack of working licensed nurses, according to Snodgrass.

Only 3,300 of Idaho's 5,200 licensed RNs are employed in nursing, according to figures from the Idaho Nurses Association. Yet the national unemployment rate for nurses seeking employment is only 1.8 percent.

Health care officials, contacted by the Times-News, suggested several reasons why not enough of these nurses are working in Idaho. They include:

• Idaho's low health care salaries;

• The predominance of married women in nursing whose job is secondary to their husband's, that is, if he's transferred, she leaves her job;

• Fluctuating nursing schedules, which may make child rearing difficult;

• Advancements in nursing technology, which means many nurses who wish to return to work after rearing a family are unable to do so without new training.

The base wage for Idaho hospital nurses averages $5.75 an hour and $11,960 a year; nursing home nurses make $5.56 an hour, according to the Idaho Nurses Association. The American Nurses Association reported this month that the average RN salary nationwide was $12,938 a year.

Donart said this pay is low compared to other professions requiring two to three years training.

Moreover, although entry-level pay may be good in various institutions, pay for long-time health care employees never equals what they would make in private business, Snodgrass said. "A lot of institutions do not give increments for experience. So many people who have worked seven years are just getting pennies more" than new employees, Donart said.

Holm said he knew of several former nurses working as grocery cashiers because "they made more money and had better hours." Rarely does a family move for a nurse's job — either male or female — "because health care is not a high-paying field," Snodgrass said. "If you're one who has gone into nursing thinking they'll make money," she said, "People stay because they have job satisfaction, they feel a sense of personal reward."

But the priority of many nurses is apparently to their family. Snodgrass said the nursing work force is 80 to 90 percent women, and ranges in age from 20 to 35 years. A nurse averages only five years in the nursing work force.

Many marry, and start a family. Most nursing schedules fluctuate with the numbers of patients, and many nurses find it hard to take care of young children while working nights and weekends. Much of the nursing work force is thus part-time.

Yet with increasing divorce rates, many nurses are now heads of households, who need more than a part-time paycheck, Donart said.

So nurses seek jobs in other states where the shortage is greater and the pay is higher, Holm said. And Idaho is not drawing in many nurses, especially in rural areas, for both economic and social reasons, administrators say.

The 25-bed Gooding Memorial Hospital does not have a high turnover, but when a nurse retires or leaves, she is hard to replace, said Frances Whorton, administrator. "There's not enough in Gooding to attract nurses or their husbands," she said.

Married nurses need a job for their husband and single nurses want a social life, both of which are more available in bigger cities, administrators say.

And when nurses raise a family and "don't come back for 10 to 15 years, nursing has changed so much they're scared to death to come back," Holm said.

Donart said "increased continuing education programs, including one in Twin Falls, have begun to help nurses ease back into the work force."

Donart contends "understaffing" and the lack of professional regard for nurses has increased their "burn-out" rate, quoting one as saying, "I don't enjoy dying inadequate nursing care." She suggests giving nurses a higher pay for night or evening shift work to attract employment.

"Nurses need a greater voice in policy making at hospitals," she said.

Snodgrass said a new emphasis toward "total patient care," in which nurses perform more functions for fewer patients, has increased the demand for highly trained RNs. About 55 percent of the hospital's 220-person nursing staff are RNs. About 15 percent are aides.

Snodgrass said she's working to hire 60 percent RNs. To do this she is replacing aides with RNs by "normal attrition," rather than terminations.

Presently through part-time help and nurses who only come on call, the hospital has enough nurses, Snodgrass said. Holm said St. Benedict's may try to work out a nurse exchange program with MVMH to ease its shortage.

Donart said the nursing shortage "could easily become critical if nurses, hospitals and nursing homes do not try to jointly solve problems: professional ones, as well as wage and hour problems."

Plans weren't fundable

Zimpro pulls out of sewer plant project

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One of two firms vying to design and construct modifications to the city's malfunctioning sewage treatment plant Monday dropped out of the competition.

The move came following a statement by an Idaho Department of Health and Welfare spokesman which ruled out funding for a modification project proposed by Zimpro Inc., of Rothschild, Wis.

Dave Sanders of the DHW told City Council members his department had concluded it would not fund the Zimpro project because it would delay construction of the plant modifications.

Zimpro western regional manager John Cohen said that announcement kills the proposal and his firm does not plan to return to Twin Falls.

Zimpro has been trying to sell the city on its powder activated carbon approach to sewage treatment.

Zimpro officials maintain the approach would be cheaper to implement than the proposal submitted by the city's engineering consultant, especially in operating and maintaining the plant.

Operating costs are born completely by the city, unlike design and construction costs, 90 percent of which are covered by grants from the Environmental Protection Agency and DHW.

The city was forced to re-design its plant after the plant's effluent (the treated waste discharged from the plant) consistently failed to meet federal pollution standards.

The city hired an engineering firm, James M. Montgomery Consulting Engineers of Boise, to study the plant and design modifications to correct pollution problems.

What emerged was a design based on proven technology. The design has since been approved by the EPA and the necessary federal grants also have been approved.

Zimpro, which first approached the city in the fall of 1979, engaged in a pilot study of its powder activated carbon system at the Twin Falls plant.

The firm submitted the results of that study, completed in January, for independent analysis to CH2M Hill, a Boise engineering firm.

Zimpro then hoped to submit an alternative bid to the JMM project. CH2M Hill's report, released last week, concluded the Zimpro approach would cost an estimated $1 million in construction costs above the JMM project.

But Zimpro's proposal was determined to be sound and cheaper to operate because it would eliminate more than 50 percent of the sewer sludge output under the JMM design, the report said.

Representatives of the two firms challenged the estimates, maintaining their own figures showed a favorable comparison over the other's proposal. But a number of factors brought up by the report and JMM representatives echoed Sander's conclusion that Zimpro would be unacceptable to federal and state agencies.

In evaluating the proposal, Bob Farmer of CH2M Hill added the Zimpro approach poses some risk because it involves a relatively untried technology.

Farmer added carbon costs could fluctuate and that could put the JMM project operation costs in a favorable light.

John Somerville, JMM vice president, added delays associated in designing the Zimpro project and in obtaining EPA approval could take six to 18 months.

He added if EPA does not approve the project, the city could end up paying the entire $280,000 Zimpro design fee.

Any delays also risk putting the city in violation of its compliance schedule, an issue that originally surfaced last year when city officials first considered the Zimpro project.

Sander said DHW officials continue to stand by the schedule, adding the department wants the city to pursue a design based on a proven sewage treatment process.

Faulty switch

TWIN FALLS — A faulty indicator switch at Idaho Power's Twin Falls substation Monday left most of the downtown area without electricity for about two minutes.

Jerry Nielson, assistant electrical superintendent for the Twin Falls substation, said the outage affected about 1,200 customers.

The power failure came when Idaho Power attempted to transfer a power line to a switch thought to be on. The switch apparently malfunctioned.

Rasheed changes plea to 2nd degree murder

TWIN FALLS — Murder suspect Mahmood Shawkat Youssef Rasheed Monday pleaded guilty to second degree murder in connection with the July, 1979, killing of his nephew.

Rasheed, 38, is charged with murdering 31-year-old Shawkat Shabazz, 33, who was found shot in the office of a Twin Falls motel.

Rasheed, a Palestinian, has been held in the Twin Falls County Jail for the past eight months. He had pleaded not guilty to a charge of first degree murder and was scheduled to go to trial next week.

The second degree murder charge carries a maximum life sentence in the state prison. First degree murder carries a death penalty.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Jeff Stoker said he had agreed to drop the first degree charge in exchange for a guilty plea to second degree murder. He added the evidence of the case did not justify capital punishment under the first degree murder charge.

Attorney Susan Swambers of the public defender's office requested that the Monday hearing be closed to the public and press, noting the case has been linked to two Burley murders. Rasheed's brother, Waleed Mahmood, 25, and father, Youssef Manassera, 73, were found shot to death in Dec. 1979.

James Cunningham denied the motion, saying he did not believe in closed sessions. "One of the great things about this country is that we don't have star chamber hearings," he said.

In making the guilty plea, Rasheed said he was well aware that he was waiving his right to a jury trial as well as the maximum life sentence the charge carries.

"What God gives me, I'll take with pleasure," Rasheed said. Cunningham ordered a pre-sentence investigation. No date was set for sentencing.

A final sentence is not expected for at least one month, Stoker said.

Initial signatures in Filer recall effort may be filed Wednesday

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

FILER — A preliminary petition to recall Filer City Councilman Lee Alexander may be submitted as early as Wednesday.

If that petition, which must be signed by 20 eligible voters, is accepted by City Clerk Frances Wells, the remaining 64 signatures necessary to call for a recall election could be gathered by next week, former City Councilman Charles Crawford said.

A preliminary petition filed last week was rejected due to a lack of qualified signatures. Such petitions, which explain the "recall intent," must be approved by the city clerk prior to collecting the required number of signatures.

About 84 eligible voters must sign the petition in order to call for the election. Crawford says he has the necessary support. "Right now, I've got the new petition in my possession and I'm going to start moving on it tomorrow night," he said. "I'm hoping we can pretty well take care of it this week."

Crawford added he has been contacted by more than 110 people interested in signing the recall petition.

If the required number of signatures is obtained, Alexander would have five days to resign. If he does not step down, a recall election must be called and scheduled within 30 to 40 days.

The recall effort, which stems from a long standing conflict between Alexander and the Filer Police Department, surfaced at the council's regular meeting last week.

Alexander did not, as had been expected, call for Police Chief Randy Lammers' resignation at that meeting.

If an election is called, Crawford said he would continue his participation in the movement, urging the defeat of Alexander at the polls. Working with Crawford in the recall move are Gerald Mullen, a former fire chief and one time police chief in Filer, Jay Hannenbaum, Mrs. C. J. Turner and Mrs. Tom Ramsey.

Although the movement stems from council criticism of the police department, Crawford said no petitions are being circulated to recall Councilman John Glandon, who has joined Alexander in much of the criticism made against the police department.

Crawford said he hopes the effort against Alexander will pressure Glandon to discontinue the criticism.

But, Crawford added, "If this harassment against the police department doesn't cease at this time, there will be a move taken that way."

Injury lawsuit returns

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Supreme Court has reversed and sent back to 5th District Court a lawsuit on personal injury coverage.

Farmers Insurance Group had sued Michael B. Sessions and Geoffrey McIntosh, asking for a judgement clearing the firm of liability as a result of injuries suffered by McIntosh in an altercation in a Twin Falls bar.

The policy held by Sessions, Farmers said, included "intentional tort." The plaintiff's included Sessions testified he intended to commit the act, the insurance firm should not be held liable if McIntosh was successful in a suit against Sessions.

The 5th District Court granted Farmers motion for a summary judgement.

In a unanimous verdict, the state high court held that in addition to proving intent to commit the act, the plaintiff must prove intent to injure, which had not been done. The case was returned to district court for further proceedings.

St. Patrick's dinner Friday

TWIN FALLS — A St. Patrick's Day dinner Friday in Twin Falls will include a visit from U.S. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

The event brings Church to Twin Falls on the heels of his official announcement Wednesday in Boise that he is seeking re-election.

Marge Slotten, county Democratic chairman, said Church and his wife, Bethine, will attend the Friday event along with other Idaho Democratic Party leaders and local party candidates.

A spaghetti dinner will be served under the direction of Pat O'Brien, with Irish coffee and green beer also available.

The St. Patrick's event will also feature a silent auction, music and brief speeches by candidates.

Chris Talkington is master of ceremonies. Slotten said all county residents are invited to attend the event beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Moose Hall, 835 Falls Avenue. Cost is $6 per person.

Newspaper probe finds

Trout waste limits often exceeded

BUHL (UPI) — Idaho trout processors have consistently violated federal water-quality standards for the past five years — most recently in December — but the government says other pollution problems are more pressing.

The most recent sampling period was in December when two of the trout industry's largest processors — Clear Springs Trout Co. and Thousand Springs Trout Farms, Inc. — exceeded discharge limits, the Idaho Statesman reported Monday in the second of three parts on the trout farm industry.

But the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency says it has stopped enforcing the laws for all but the four largest trout processors because toxic chemicals and other pollution problems are more pressing than fish waste.

At the same time, the EPA has proposed to more than double the amount of waste the largest processing plants put into the Snake River near Buhl and Twin Falls. The increase is to accommodate expanding production.

The discharge permit system for the trout industry is administered by the EPA. The discharge limits were set in 1975 after EPA and trout industry negotiations.

Fish-processing plants are allowed by law to discharge solids, oil and grease into public waters. Their limits are based upon the amount of fish processed. The industry was given three years to comply with the new limits.

Last July, 200 Hagerman Valley residents organized the Hagerman Valley Citizens Alert group to protect the water through legal and political means.

The group and the Idaho Fish and Game Department say the industry has degraded the water quality in the river that shouldn't be there. It has to have an effect on the river," said Larry Stevens, supervisor for the state Department of Parks and Recreation in Boise.

"Anytime you're dumping something into the river that shouldn't be there, it has to have an effect on the river," said Larry Stevens, supervisor for the state Department of Parks and Recreation in Boise.

But the industry says the effluent from fish rearing facilities is as clean or cleaner than the water that enters the facility.

And Mark Masarik, an EPA official in Boise, says the discharges do not appear to be harming the Snake River.

"The hatcheries put out what looks like a substantial load (of waste), but you have to look at the flows," Masarik said. "I think we are comfortable with the situation as it is."

But Steve Allred, director of the state Department of Water Resources, says water quality problems exist on some smaller streams in the Hagerman Valley, but he does not know if problems exist in the Snake River.

Lawmen cleared in chase

BOISE (UPI) — Lawmen who chased, fired upon and captured a fleeing rape suspect in front of the Statehouse last month were cleared of criminal wrongdoing Monday by the county prosecutor.

An investigation into the conduct of sheriff's deputies and U.S. marshals who ran down David Thompson, 21, Boise, after he fled from his trail in the county courthouse found that no laws were broken, said Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris. Thompson, since convicted on two counts of rape, bolted from the courthouse Feb. 27 and ran several hundred feet before he was tackled by a Boise State University janitor in front of the Statehouse.

History Center seeks pioneers

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho State Oral History Center is again looking for pioneers and others with knowledge of the early history, events and customs of southeastern Idaho.

The center was recently re-opened with a $10,236 grant from the ISU Research Committee.

"Oral history is important for this area because many original settlers are still alive and still active," said Dr. Robert D. Walte, center director. Walte said the center also needs volunteers to tape interviews and will hold a workshop to train volunteers in interviewing techniques in April.

Sen. Proxmire in Boise speech

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., will visit Boise State University March 15 for a public lecture on the misuse of government funds.

The speech will begin at 8 p.m. at the Student Union. Proxmire's visit is sponsored by the university student body association.

Proxmire, a senator since 1957, has been one of the nation's most outspoken critics of wasteful government spending. He has written three books, including "Uncle Sam, Last of the Big Game Spenders."

He also hands out a Golden Fleece Award to government projects that he considers a waste of tax dollars.

Figures clarified

TWIN FALLS — Figures cited in Sunday's "Teaching the Gifted Their Talents" story need clarification.

According to the district's director of special education, Helen Iverson, the district has 383 students requiring special education. This includes students with mental and physical handicaps, learning disabilities, speech vision or hearing impediments or who are chronically ill. Iverson said the district has 24 personnel who provide direct services to these students.

Wide open race develops in NCAA finals

By United Press International

It was hard enough trying to guess the Final Four of the NCAA tournament back in the beginning, when the selection committee announced it had invited an unprecedented 48 teams to the tournament.

With the first two rounds completed, you'd think things would be a little easier. Wrong. Trying to pick the winner now is like trying to handicap the field for this year's Kentucky Derby. — It's still wide open.

Only nine teams ranked in the top 20 during the regular season remain in the round of 16 going into Thursday and Friday's regional semifinals.

Top-ranked DePaul, No. 5 Oregon State, No. 11 Notre-Dame, No. 12

Brigham Young, 13th-rated St. John's, No. 13 North Carolina, 17th-ranked Weber State, No. 19 Arizona State and 20th-ranked Kansas State all were ousted, with the biggest surprises coming in the Far West Regional where on Sunday, unranked UCLA stunned DePaul, 77-71. On Saturday, little Lamar continued its giant-killing ways by dumping Oregon State, 81-77, after squeaking by Weber State in the first round, 87-85.

In the other West regional game Sunday, No. 9 Ohio State crushed No. 19 Arizona State 87-75. Elsewhere in Sunday NCAA play, No. 18 Texas A&M downed No. 15 North Carolina 78-61 and No. 2 LSU played Alcorn State 98-88 in the Midwest; No. 10 Georgetown edged Iowa 74-71 and No. 6 Syracuse downed Villanova 97-83 in the East; No. 7 Indiana defeated Virginia-Tech, 68-59, and No. 3

Kentucky beat Florida State 97-78 in the Midwest.

Now, only one seeded team — Ohio State — remains in the Far West regional. On Thursday, in Tempe, Ariz., the Buckeyes will play UCLA in one semifinal, while Lamar meets Clemson in the other game.

The Midwest Regional semifinals are also scheduled Thursday, with Purdue facing Indiana and Kentucky taking on Duke in Lexington, Ky.

On Friday, the tournament continues in Philadelphia with Iowa meeting Syracuse and Maryland facing Georgetown in the East and Missouri vs. Louisiana State and Louisville vs. Texas A&M in the Midwest semifinals in Houston.

UCLA faces perhaps the toughest test of all when it meets Ohio State.

Many felt the Bruins — who finished fourth in the Pac-10 with a 17-9 regular-season mark — didn't even belong in the tournament and perhaps were invited for sentimental reasons.

Now, however, the young Bruins have silenced their critics and are looking ahead to continuing the tradition of 10 national championships in 12 years.

"From now on, we're ready to play just about anyone in the country," said guard Rod Foster. "People said we had fallen, but we're a much better team than we were at the start of the season."

Surprising Lamar may be slightly favored over Clemson, which is playing in its first NCAA tournament. But Lamar coach Billy Tubbs is not one to blow things out of proportion.

After defeating the two ranked teams, Tubbs commented: "To tell you honestly, the two toughest teams we've played this year are McNeese State and Southwestern Louisiana.

Kentucky will have the unusual benefit of the home court and 23,000 fans when it faces Duke, which beat the Wildcats in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic earlier in the season.

"Of course, Duke beat us earlier in the season so we may have the revenge factor with us," said coach Joe B. Hall. "We're certainly expecting a close game."

Indiana faces intra-state rival Purdue in the regional semifinals and coach Bobby Knight is happy to be there.

"We're very happy to be advancing to the next round," said Knight. "You have to approach the tournaments as sudden death."

"You really play two different seasons during the year, the regular season and the tournament season."

NFL says 'no move' to Raiders

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (UPI)—The National Football League owners voted 23-0 with five teams abstaining Monday night to ban the Oakland Raiders from switching their franchise to Los Angeles.

Al Davis, the Raiders' managing general partner, refused to ask for a vote and was not present when the vote was conducted.

The five teams abstaining were Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Miami, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Oakland did not cast a vote.

The vote means that where the Raiders will play next season will eventually be decided in the courts.

There are currently six different lawsuits involving the case in courts in Oakland, San Francisco and Los Angeles involved in the case.

NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said, "All I can say is that we will schedule them (the Raiders) to play in Oakland."

When asked what the NFL would do if a court ordered allowed the Raiders to move to Los Angeles, Rozelle said, "The NFL has a tradition of obeying court orders."

When Rozelle was asked if a forfeit would be declared if a visiting team went to Oakland and the Raiders weren't there, he said, "We haven't come to that yet."

He added, "There won't be anyone for the Raiders to play with in Los Angeles."

Davis has maintained the NFL does not have the power to decide where his franchise will be located.

The NFL insisted that under section 4.3 of its constitution a team must have the approval of 21 other team owners to move from one metropolitan area to another.

The Raiders insisted that section violated antitrust laws and the issue would eventually be ruled on by the courts.

But for the time being the NFL insists the Raiders are still in Oakland and will schedule the Raiders' games in Oakland.

Before the meeting, Rozelle said he hoped Al Davis, the managing general partner of the Raiders, would ask permission to make the shift after hearing the committee's report.

That was considered unlikely, however, because he has maintained throughout the controversy that he has the power to move his club unilaterally.

It is also subject to dispute whether the NFL rules would allow Rozelle or another team owner to ask for such a vote.

When the league constitution was written, the possibility that a team desiring to transfer would not request a vote of approval was not considered.

Rozelle refused Monday to say what the league's next move would be if Davis continued to refuse to ask for such a vote.

Kelle Wilde of Meridian takes aim on a paper target during southern division junior gallery competition

Junior gallery shooting draws 50

TWIN FALLS — About 50 youths competed last weekend at the Idaho Junior Gallery Southern Division Championships.

The pistol-shooting competition attracted young people from all over the southern part of Idaho.

"Magic Valley" shooters who captured top awards included:

Sub-juniors
 High girl — Brenda Fouts of Twin Falls; Sharpshooter, Travis Reese of Twin Falls; marksman first class, Erwin Garner of Rupert, second; pro marksman, Theron Walker of Hansen, first, and Clay Campeau of Twin Falls, second.

Juniors
 Expert — Tim Charles of Rupert, first; sharpshooter, Charles Farmer of Twin Falls, first; and marksman first class, Theron Travis of Twin Falls, first.

The Meridian Junior Optimists captured the high point team trophy, while Boise ROTC placed second.

The following are the top winners in each division:

Sub-juniors
 High boy — Curt Burgess of Meridian; high girl — Brenda Fouts of Twin Falls; sharpshooter — Brian McClure of Pocatello, first, and Travis Reese of Twin Falls, second; marksman first class — Greg Philpot of Pocatello, first, and Erwin Garner of Rupert, second; marksman — Anthony Barnhart of Boise, first, and Troy Williams of Boise, second; pro-marksman — Theron Walker of Hansen, first, and Clay Campeau of Twin Falls, second.

NIT action Michigan hustles by El Paso

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)— Both coaches agreed that Michigan beat Texas-El Paso at its own game — rebounding.

"We did an excellent job of rebounding," Coach John Orr of Michigan said Monday night after his team squeezed out a 37-26 rebounding edge en route to a 74-65 victory over UTEP, the third round of the National Invitational Tournament against one of the NIT giants.

"I've been checking the stats, I knew they could rebound," said Don Haskins of the Miners. "We did some things a step too quick."

"As for going to both boards — and I haven't seen that in a long time — well, we just weren't there," he said.

Texas-El Paso had a big size edge on Michigan up front, going 6-7, 6-7 and 6-9 across the front whereas Michigan goes 6-5, 6-7 and 6-6.

Another thing that might have hampered the Miners is playing on the road. They were stuck at a Chicago airport for six hours and then were unable to practice before the game.

A 25-point lead by one of Michigan's slick, smaller players, junior forward Mike McGee, helped propel the Wolverines along.

McGee, at 6-foot-5 junior forward, scored 15 points in the first half to send Michigan, 17-12, to a 35-28 halftime lead. The Wolverines staved off the Miners the rest of the way.

Center Anthony Burns, limited to just two free throws in the first half, scored 14 of his 16 points in the second half to help Texas-El Paso close to 51-48 with 8:20 to play but McGee and Keith Smith combined to pull Michigan out of danger.

Each hit a shot to help make it 57-50 with 4:42 left and the Wolverines were able to hit their foul shots when the last two minutes degenerated to a free throw shooting contest.

Terry White was the only other Miner to reach double figures, getting 12 points as the runner up in the Western Athletic Conference finished at 29-3.

Leonard prepares for title defense

NEW CARROLLTON, Md. (UPI) — Sugar Ray Leonard sparred over the weekend Monday and looked with a packed house of hometown fans as he started training for his WBC welterweight title defense March 31 against Davey Green of England.

About 300 people, many of them Leonard's neighbors from nearby Palmer Park, jammed the ballroom of a suburban Washington motel to watch Leonard box a "spiced" 20 minutes with lightweight Wilson Bell of Detroit, a workout that he admitted left him winded.

Afterwards, Leonard traded jibes with fans, defended the Olympic boycott and even delivered some homespun philosophy reminiscent of Muhammad Ali.

Leonard, 23, won the WBC title Nov. 30, stopping Wilfredo Benitez of Puerto Rico in the 15th round. Since then, he has gotten married, made several commercials and countless public appearances.

His absence from heavy training was evident when he stepped into the ring. Bell, a slugger whose style is similar to that of Green, got the best of Leonard several times during the first three five-minute rounds. Leonard wasn't until the final round that Leonard took command, tagging Bell with a series of left hooks.

"First day of training, and it sure feels like it," said Leonard, twirling of under television lights.

Leonard, a 1976 Olympic gold medalist, brings a 26-0 record into the fight at Capital Centre in suburban Washington. He has stopped his opponents 17 of the bouts.

Green, the number 10 contender to the title, has knocked out 26 opponents while compiling a 33-2 record. He was knocked out by Carlos Palomino in 1977 in his only other title fight.

But Leonard's first title defense wasn't on the mind of most of the people who stuck around after the workout to ask him questions.

"If I was your weight, I could get in the ring and beat you," shouted one man who looked to weigh about 180.

"Let's give that man a hand for his bravado," Leonard shot back as the crowd howled.

Leonard, playing on his role as a local hero, urged the crowd to work as hard as possible in whatever field they choose.

"You talent is the ability to beat up on people, but your talent may be something else," he said.

Tickets are now on sale for the Fourth Annual College of Southern Idaho Aggie Rodeo planned March 23.

The rodeo will be in the CSI Exhibition Center beginning at 8 p.m. Friday and 2 and 8 p.m. Saturday.

Teams from 12 colleges in the Rocky Mountain region will be competing for points and prizes. Joe and Sonny Kelsey Rodeo Contractors of Tonasket, Wash. will be furnishing the stock for the rodeo.

Twin Falls tickets can be purchased at the Char-Le Horse, Macle's Western Wear, Peterson's Western Wear, Vicker's Saddlery, and Walco International. Burley's outlet is the Powder Horn, and Ross' Western Wear in Jerome also has tickets.

There also will be a parade Saturday morning at 11 a.m. in the downtown area. All parade participants will receive free tickets to the Saturday matinee rodeo performance.

Barrel racing to start
 The Snake River Barrel Racing Association will host its first meet of the spring season Sunday.

Action will begin at 1:30 p.m. at the Buhi Rodeo Arena.

There will be both novice and open barrel racing, pole bending and goat tying.

Chariot racing finals to begin
 The World Championship chariot races will begin this weekend at Pocatello.

Thirty-eight teams from throughout the U.S. — including 12 teams from the Magic Valley area — will compete both Saturday and Sunday.

Action begins at 1 p.m. at the Pocatello Race Track.

Ferguson breaks earnings record
 Tom Ferguson, the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association's (PRCA) phenomenal six-time World All-Around Champion, has rewritten professional rodeo's record books once again.

The cowboy from Miami, Okla., now holds the record for career earnings with a total of $520,169, making him the winningest cowboy in rodeo history. He surpasses the legendary Dean Oliver of Boise, who had held the record until now with $543,173.

Ferguson's final thrust to break Oliver's record came at the Houston rodeo two weeks ago where he won the steer-wrestling competition and $9,397.

While Oliver's career spans a quarter of a century, Ferguson enters only his ninth year of professional competition in 1980. His yearly earnings' average since 1972 tops $65,000.

Smith scored 11 points for Michigan, getting in the last seven minutes. Center Paul Heurman has 12 and John Johnson 10.

In the third round, Michigan will probably face either Minnesota or Illinois.

St. Peter's 34, Duquesne 33

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Kevin Rogers, a 52-percent free throw shooter, made the first of two free throws with 19 seconds left Monday night to lift St. Peter's to a 34-33 victory over Duquesne in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Rogers, a 6-foot-4 junior, had made just 3-of-8 free throws during the game when he stepped to the line with the score tied. After he made the first and missed the second, Duquesne got rebound and hit power center 6-8 but B.B. Flency missed two jump shots and Bruce Atkins failed on a tap-in.

St. Peter's, 22-8, takes its strong offense and deliberate offense into a third-round game.

The Dukes, 18-10, normally a running team, chose to play the Peacocks' style game. With both teams fouling, strong play in the first basket was not scored until Rogers made a jumper with 2:32 gone. Continuing at a slow pace, St. Peter's took a 19-13 lead at the half.

Duquesne came out in the second half in a man-to-man defense and a partial press, and those changes enabled the Dukes to slowly cut the margin. The Dukes went ahead for the first time in the second half, 30-29, on an eight-footer by Flency with 7:32 to play.

The Dukes pushed their lead to 32-29 before the Peacocks tied it 33-33 with 5:13 left. The Dukes tried to freeze the ball the remaining time, but with 1:55 to go they turned it over on a backcourt violation. Rogers was fouled trying for a game-winning layup.

Illinois 75, Illinois St. 65

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Eddie Johnson and Tony Williams scored 45 points Monday night to spark Illinois to a 75-65 second-round National Invitation Tournament victory over Iowa state rival Illinois State.

The Redbirds, plagued by cold shooting and turnovers, could not match the Illini's running game. Illinois State closed out its season at 20-9 while Illinois advances to the third round of the NIT with a 20-12 season record.

Johnson scored 25, Gray added 20, and Mark Smith contributed 11 points to lead Illinois' offense. Del Yarbrough passed for 66, and 23 points, Ron Jones had 16 in the second half, and Dave Nusbaumer scored 12 points.

Illinois State took a brief 6-2 lead in the early minutes of the game, but two straight baskets by Gray put Illinois on top for good. Johnson helped seal the Redbirds' fate with nine straight points in a three-minute stretch, giving the Illini a 24-10 lead with 5:38 remaining in the first half.

The Redbirds, down 29-19 at halftime and by 14 points on numerous occasions in the second half, rallied to cut the deficit to seven points, 46-39, on a basket by Deweyne Tyus with 2:29 remaining in the game. But that was as close as the Redbirds could get.

Virginia 57, Boston College 55

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Lee Raker connected for 17 points, including five free throws in the last 27 seconds, to lead Virginia to a 57-55 victory over Boston College Monday night in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

The Cavaliers, 21-10, advance to the quarterfinals Thursday against an opponent to be determined.

With Boston College closing in during the final minutes, Virginia won the game from the foul line. In the last 27 seconds, Raker, who came up with two jump shots and went 3-of-5 from the line, hit five straight free throws to seal it for the Cavs.

Jeff Lamp scored 14 points for Virginia and John Bagley added 11 for the Eagles.

The Eagles, 19-10, and Cavaliers opened deliberately and with 12 minutes gone site score was 8-8. But Virginia shifted into high gear when Jeff Lamp scored 11 straight points to bring the Cavs from a two-point deficit to a 29-23 advantage with 2:33 left in the half. The game stalled in the closing minutes of the half, leaving Virginia with a six-point edge at intermission.

SW Louisiana 77, Texas 76

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Carl Jordan hit a short jumper with four seconds left to lift Southwestern Louisiana to a 77-76 victory over Texas Monday night in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Jordan's winning shot came after center LaSalle Thompson had dropped two free throws to give Texas a 76-76 lead. Jordan's bank shot at the buzzer rolled off the rim to end Texas' season at 19-11.

The Ragin' Cajuns trailed 71-59 with eight minutes left before beginning their comeback. USL, which had trailed throughout, tied it 73-73 on a shot by Don Riney at 3:47. Fred Erson put Texas up by one with a free throw at 2:59. Andrew Toney, the leading scorer with 27 points, then sent USL ahead 75-74 before Thompson hit his two free throws.

Minnesota 58, Mississippi 56

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Darryl Mitchell and Kevin McFate scored 15 points apiece Monday night, leading Minnesota to a 58-56 victory over Mississippi in a second-round game of the National Invitation Tournament.

The Gophers, 19-10, play the winner of Monday night's Nevada-Las Vegas-Long Beach State game in the third round Thursday. Mississippi finished the season at 27-13.

Minnesota, which finished in a fourth-place tie with Iowa in the Big Ten, outscored Ole Miss 19-6 through the middle five minutes of the second half, erasing a 4-point deficit and taking a lead it held the rest of the way.

Elston Turner, who led all scorers with 25 points, cut the Gophers' lead to one at 54-53 on a jumper with 1:38 left. Trent Tucker hit a jumper and Mitchell two free throws to put Minnesota up 58-53, but Turner's 3-point play played off the Redbirds' 2 points with 45 seconds left. Erson turned the ball over, and Mississippi got a last chance to tie with five seconds left. Turner's hurried jumper from the right side sailed over the basket as the horn sounded.

Murray St. 70, Alabama 67

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Freshman Man. Sleets fired in 25 points and Gary Hooker added 21 to pace Murray State to a 70-67 victory Monday night over Alabama in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Murray State, 23-7 and co-champion of the Ohio Valley Conference, scored the first 6 points of the game and led by as many as 9 points in the first half before Alabama cracked Murray State's defense.

The Crimson Tide cut the Racers' lead to 20 points six times in the second half. With 26 seconds left, Alabama's Mike Davis hit an inside shot to make the score 64-62 but the Racers swiftly pulled away.

Tony Kubek outtalks 'em

By Jack Craig
©1980 Boston Globe
Everyone has his favorite to the point of bias even when the nature of a job prohibits such sentiment. I have a confession. My favorite sports analyst is Tony Kubek.

The NBC baseball broadcaster has an unruffled voice, no sense of humor, speaks a little too often and may be too much in love with his sport.

In a line of work so insecure that it produces too much praise and too few unheeded opinions, Kubek stands NBA tall. When

Analysis

Kubek talks, it is time to listen because he brings to bear 23 years in the game. When he speaks he does not trim or qualify, which cuts both ways. Many of the same fans who moon about housemen recent analysts that reduces their heroes.

It would be unfair to call Kubek the last honest network sports broadcaster. But he may be the "most honest."

Kubek recently signed a four-year contract with NBC to handle the game of the week every Saturday and post-season baseball telecasts. It culminated three months of negotiation in which the only stumbling block was participation in the Summer Olympics in Moscow. To participate in the most broadcasters that now appears mute.

For instance, broadcaster Merle Harmon recently left the Milwaukee Brewers to join NBC. Harmon left because the team refused to let him take a three-week sabbatical to work for the network at the Olympics.

Kubek took the opposite position. "In the eyes of most fans, a guy who does one sport loses his credibility when he goes to another. What would I do in Moscow?" he asks. Despite re-

Dodgers still talk of trading Sutton

VENEO-BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis said Monday club officials still hope to trade for pitcher Don Sutton before the intra-league trading deadline.

Sutton, who he intends to join the free agent market after his 16th season with the Dodgers, has given the club permission to negotiate a trade to the California Angels, New York Yankees, Texas Rangers or Kansas City Royals.

Campanis said efforts so far have not worked out, but he said he would visit the Yankees' training camp in Fort Lauderdale and the Rangers' camp in Pompano Beach on Tuesday.

"We're still trying," he insisted. "We're going to talk to a few more clubs, and if we can work out a deal we'll take it to Don and see what he thinks."

The Dodgers open their exhibition season Wednesday when they host the Minnesota Twins, with Burt Hooton the probable Dodger starter against Ken Brett or Bobby Castillo.

pealed offers, Kubek has never worked in television before. He remains a single sports man. Kubek does not appear on national TV commercials either other than for an insurance company in Wisconsin. This winter he turned down a rich beer ad in which he and Phil Rizzuto, as two ex-Yankee shortstops, would praise their favorite brew.

"I drink beer, but I have teenage kids. Who needs that?" he explains. Kubek doesn't, with an annual salary in the $300,000 range called mostly from NBC and the remainder as the Toronto Blue Jays TV broadcaster.

He also rejects all off-season speaking invitations at fees up to $2,000. "Some guy would write a few jokes for you and you'd read them off. It wouldn't be me," he says.

Kubek's standards periodically have stirred trouble for him. Two years ago, Yankee owner George Steinbrenner tried to pressure NBC to fire Kubek after the latter said he would have found it impossible to play under Steinbrenner. It was an outrage that the abrasive Yankee owner would attempt such a reprisal. It is unthinkable that he came fairly close to accomplishing it.

A few executives at NBC were backing Steinbrenner. Ohlmyer, emerging at the time as strongman at the network, came to Kubek's rescue. "I was surprised I didn't receive more support," the broadcaster said.

During Al Kalfin's last season in 1974, Kubek said during an interview in Detroit that Kalfin's 3,000 hits were marred by the fact that in his final year he was often a designated hitter.

"I was more impressed with Roberto Clemente because he played every day," Kubek remembered. "But he broke loose in the city at the imagined slight to the aging hero. It was classic Kubek, an unframed commentary not adjusted to fit the audience.

There is no more constant on-air critic of the DH rule than Kubek, which for a while brought protests to the league office from American League officials who contended the announcer's role is to describe the game in progress, not interpret rules.

"But the DH is so dumb," Kubek starts all over. "Don't the American League owners wonder why pitchers like Palmer, Ryan, Hunt, and Guldry develop arm trouble? Because of the DH rule they have to pitch too many stressful late-game innings," he argues.

One of the severest tests of Kubek's independence occurred during the 1972 American League playoffs between the Tigers and A's when Campy Campanaris threw his bat Detroit pitcher Lerrin LaGrone after LaGrone had cut Campanaris' legs out from under with a pitch. Kubek immediately said on air that the reprisal was justified because Campy's spirit was in the line.

A funny thing then happened, and snowballed. Detroit fans, urged on by a local disc jockey, began demanding that Kubek retrace his steps. The pressure also came from Chrysler, located in Detroit and the major sponsor of baseball on NBC. Kubek reacted by repeating his view when the play was shown on tape the next day.

"When we were due to show the play again as the World Series began, NBC said that Chrysler wanted me to apologize to the fans of Detroit," Kubek recalled. "I told them I couldn't."

Kubek did not tell them that Tiger manager Billy Martin had told him the night before he planned to do something to slow down Campanaris. Local live home apparently was one strategy.

Contracts

Chappas, Stoddard, Youngblood reach baseball agreements

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox announced Monday shortstop Henry Chappas has signed a 1-year contract and that the contract of pitcher Lamar Hoyt had been renewed for the coming season.

The moves left outfielder Claudell Washington as the only White Sox player not under contract for 1980.

Chappas, 25, is 5-foot-3, the smallest player in the major leagues, was a starter one year ago but spent most of the 1979 season in the minor leagues. Going into this year's spring training, Manager Tom LaRussa said he had signed Chappas, Alan Bannister and Greg Pryor for the shortstop job.

Orioles sign Stoddard

MIAMI (UPI) — Baltimore Orioles relief pitcher Tim Stoddard, expected to replace Don Stanhouse as the Orioles' late inning relief specialist, signed a one-year contract, general manager Hank Peters said.

Peters said Jim Palmer is the scheduled starting pitcher Tuesday in the Orioles' first game of the exhibition season against the Texas Rangers.

In the team's last intrasquad game before the exhibition opener, Wayne Krenchicki drove in a pair of runs with a triple and a sacrifice fly and Dave Skaggs had two hits to drive in two more runs to lead Frank Robinson's squad to a 5-3 victory.

Mets & Youngblood

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Outfielder Joel Youngblood, the New York Mets' leading home run hitter in 1979, said Monday he had reached agreement with the club on a three-year contract. The pact is reported to be worth $1 million with the payments escalated.

General Manager Frank Cashen said only that agreement was reached.

"Until you have the signature on a dotted line, you don't have a contract," Cashen said.

Colorado athletic investigation starts

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — A newly formed panel will meet this week to investigate allegations by the NCAA against the University of Colorado's football program, CU President Arnold Weber said Monday.

In disclosing the inquiry in February, the NCAA said alleged violations occurred between 1970 and 1979. The reported improprieties involve recruiting practices, illicit aid to athletes and methods of tutoring.

NCAA regulations require CU to conduct an independent investigation and to establish a school sanctioned committee to determine the validity of the allegations.

"The committee shall evaluate the investigative information, direct further investigation wherever it deems it necessary and provide its report and recommendations to the president and the board of regents," Weber said.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, whose 8th-ranked Terrapins defied pre-season speculation by winning the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season basketball race, was named the ACC coach of the year Monday.

Citing the lack of a true center in the lineup, the sportswriters and broadcasters predicted the Terrapins would finish sixth in the conference race. But with 6-foot-8 forward Buck Williams playing center, the Terrapins lost only three conference games and came within two points of winning the ACC tournament championship.

Phillies, Maddox talks at impasse

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Agent Jerry Kapstein said Monday that negotiations with the Philadelphia Phillies on a new contract for centerfielder Garry Maddox have reached an impasse after more than a year of discussion.

plan to talk with the Phillies about a new contract for Garry after the 1980 reentry draft. "Yes, the Phils have informed me that they are going to explore the possibility of trading Garry prior to the 1980 season. I want to make it clear that I am not a member of the Phils, absolutely no bitterness about this because our negotiations with Phillies owner Ruly Carpenter and Phillies General Manager Paul Owens have been conducted in good faith by both gentlemen at all times."
