Food, fun, business mix on holiday

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When smaller rural communities like Twin Falls celebrate an ethnic holiday, everyone gets in on the act.

Which may help to explain why St. Patrick's Day celebrations here include the unlikely combination of shamrocks, green beer and spaghetti.

Such was the case Friday at a county Democratic St. Patrick's Day dinner.

But instead of corned beef and cabbage, about 200 people sat down to a spaghetti dinner, which led Sen. Frank Church to quip that the Democrats had managed to court two traditional Democratic ethnic groups for the price of one.

That event appears to be the major St. Patrick's Day event around Twin Falls. No parades were scheduled and for the most part the day will remain business as usual.

The one exception is a special Catholic mass at St. Edward's at noon in honor of the Irish patron saint who brought Christianity to much of Ireland before his death on March 17, 463.

Otherwise, the celebration is acknowledged mostly as a sales promotion by local merchants. At the Blue Lake Mall, the holiday has been marked by a fashion show, tied loosely to the holiday by the title, "Green With Envy."

Some restaurants will also be marking the event with such favorites as beer dyed green and specials on Irish food.

However, at least one restaurant will follow the lead of the Democrats and will offer a Monday night Italian buffet.

While Twin Falls' approach to St. Patrick's Day mixes tomato paste and vineyard reds with Kelly Green offerings, it is more than countered by shamrock tidings offered in the Wood River Valley.

In honor of the Irish saint, Sun Valley residents Sunday revived the madcap Shamrock Relay Races offering costumed participants free beer afterward.

It included a marathon race of sorts involving a downhill in-line tube race, a cross country run in ski boots, a pedal-bike "no device" derby and a roller-derby requiring participants to wear skates and finish with at least three wheels intact. No injuries were reported.

A beeline to the finish

Wings were optional equipment for these two Shamrock Relay racers crossing the finish line Sunday afternoon in Ketchum. The annual event began with an in-line tube race at Elkhorn Village and continued on foot and bicycle. Costume accessories included green pantyhose, goggles, capes and trash bags.

Puerto Rico's Democrats prefer Carter

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — President Carter scored a double victory over Sen. Edward Kennedy Sunday.

Carter won by a narrow but comfortable 52-48 percent in Puerto Rico's Democratic preference primary and by one delegate in a separate race for delegates.

More than 1 million Puerto Ricans voted in the island's two primaries — Democratic balloting this week and Republican voting last month — bringing the total participation to more than 60 percent, higher than any state so far this year.

The commonwealth's bloc of 41 delegates is larger than half the states although the Puerto Ricans may not vote for president in November. The Puerto Ricans are U.S. citizens, but the commonwealth has no electoral votes.

Carter telephoned Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo, a strong supporter, in San Juan to say: "I am proud of the backing I received in Puerto Rico."

Romero also said the vote shows that Puerto Rico, "before the United States, the world and the United Nations, wants to be a part of the United States."

But Kennedy could find comfort in it, too. In Chicago, he called the results "very encouraging," particularly the close delegate split, and said, "I think our campaign is on the move."

Kennedy's Puerto Rican campaign coordinator Richard Millman refused to concede. "The only way we will lose this election is if they steal it," he said. "We will not concede defeat."

He promised to challenge a Carter win at the Democratic National Committee or in the courts.

With 99 percent of the vote counted, Carter had 445,712 votes or 52 percent, to Kennedy's 416,103 votes or 48 percent. And Carter had 21 delegates to Kennedy's 20 in the separate balloting that had seasawed all evening.

The delegates will represent Puerto Rico at the Democratic National Convention next August in New York City.

The election was marked by sporadic violence and charges by Kennedy supporters of voting irregularities.

Relatively minor incidents of egg-throwing, fist fighting and beatings were reported during the day, and late Sunday there were two events at the Carter-Kennedy headquarters.

First, jubilant statehooders hanged a Kennedy effigy, with broken neck, above the entrance. Later the headquarters was ordered cleared after a telephoned bomb threat, but no bomb was found.

Sunday's primary was seen locally as more of an early plebiscite on statehood than as a Carter-Kennedy contest. Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo and other Carter supporters said a vote for statehood.

Commonwealth status supporters backed Kennedy.

Neither Carter nor Kennedy had endorsed a specific political status for Puerto Rico.

Secretary praises economic program

©The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Secretary of the Treasury G. William Miller Sunday commended President Carter's new economic program "powerful medicine."

He said it will bring the 1980 inflation rate down to 11 percent.

But if Carter's combination of gasoline price increases, $13 billion in spending cuts and new credit controls do not work, Miller added, the administration will be ready with additional anti-inflation measures.

"We are not going to rest on our oars at any point," Miller said during an appearance on the CBS "Face the Nation" television program.

"We are going to continue and assume that our job is not only to act powerfully today, but to follow up, to refine and to make it work."

The inflation rate, which hit a 33-year-high of 13.3 percent for 1979, soared in January to an 18 percent level, prompting Carter to rewrite his seven-week-old budget, authorize credit controls and impose an oil import fee that will raise gasoline prices by 10 cents a gallon starting May 15.

"December over December, we are shooting to get down to 11 percent and then continuing it on down," Miller said. "This new program is powerful medicine. I think it is going to turn the tide."

Carter won qualified bipartisan support for his budget cuts Sunday from two key senators on his budget cuts. But the latest White House anti-inflation plan drew scorn from Ronald Reagan, the front-running contender for the Republican presidential nomination.

This drink packs punch

TOOLE ARMY DEPOT, Utah (UPI) — Chemists at the Toole Army Depot are working on a recycling project which converts fire bombs into a soft drink ingredient and tear gas into plastic.

Walker, chemical systems engineers at TAD, said white phosphorus, which is used in incendiary grenades and bombs, becomes phosphorus pentoxide when burned under controlled conditions. The new chemical is a vital ingredient in several soft drinks, Walker said.

The tear gas agent, CS, can be converted into orthochloro tyrene, a popular plastic, he added.

Walker said the Army has asked its chemists to look for other ways to recycle worn-out weapons or chemicals into useful products.

Men more susceptible to chronic lung disease

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Men are more vulnerable to chronic lung disease than women, a new study says.

That's the conclusion of a new Johns Hopkins University study.

Cigarette smoking was found among all the factors assessed to be by far the most important one associated with a person's risk of developing the disease that partially obstructs lung capability.

But the study showed the lung capability of male non-smokers was similar to females who were heavy smokers. Female non-smokers had the best results, while male smokers had the worst.

Harold Menkes, director of environmental physiology at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health, said it appears females lag 10 to 20 years behind males in development of obstructive lung disease.

The situation, however, differs as far as lung cancer is concerned. Wilmot Ball, associate professor of medicine, said the female appears to be as susceptible to lung cancer from smoking as the male.

The project also found, contrary to previous studies, that alcohol consumption alone does not appear to increase a person's risk of developing obstructive lung disease.

Another surprising finding was that people who drink at least three cups of coffee a day had more lung dysfunction than those who do not drink coffee when all other factors such as age, smoking and sex were discounted.

And yet, said Menkes, those who drank tea did not show significant differences in lung disease from those who did not drink tea.

Menkes said the findings did not show that a specific factor causes lung disease, but merely identified an association for further study. He said he and co-workers have not yet looked into the reason why males appear to respond to cigarette smoke differently from females, but it was unlikely that differences in smoking habits were responsible.

"The chronic forms of lung disease result from an interaction of many factors, including both genetic and environmental," Menkes said.

Audit raps Cenarrusa travel expenditures

Second in a series
By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — In the last three years, Idaho's elected officials and their staffs have spent almost $382,000 on travel and travel-related expenses. In one instance, involving Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa, incomplete travel records prevent a full explanation of why Cenarrusa was reimbursed more than $13,000 in travel funds, much of which paid for flights in his private plane to his home town.

Those are some of the findings of a Times-News examination of the travel records of Idaho's top elected officials.

Included in the examination were Cenarrusa, Gov. John Evans, Lt. Gov.

Phil Batt, Attorney General David Leroy, Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, Auditor Joe Williams and Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans.

Cenarrusa, who has held his post since 1977, is sometimes described as "the official record keeper of the state."

Among his duties, an audit of his office released several months ago says, is the obligation to "present to the Legislature at the commencement of each session thereof a full account of all purchases made and expenses incurred by him on account of the state."

Despite his instructions, the audit criticizes Cenarrusa for failing to keep records that sufficiently explain his need for some personal travel or that justify why the state should pay for that travel.

"During our three-year audit period, Pete T. Cenarrusa was reimbursed $13,503.98 for travel expenses incurred while acting in his capacity as Secretary of State and as a member of the State Land Board," the audit says.

"Because there was no record of the business transacted during the majority of these trips, we could not determine if all travel expenses claimed were necessary and proper. We believe some kind of record should be kept for each trip, stating the purpose of the trip, the people contacted and any other information that would help relate each trip to the duties of the Secretary of State."

The audit also points out that 59 of the total of 114 trips Cenarrusa claimed for reimbursement purposes were to the "Sun Valley, Carey area," where Cenarrusa lives and maintains a sheep ranch.

Contacted by the Times-News, Cenarrusa denied any of the travel was for his personal benefit, insisted he and his staff members travel only sparingly and criticized the auditors who conducted the audit of his office.

"The travel in this office has been very light," Cenarrusa said. Not only has he refused to attend out-of-state meetings of the National Secretaries of State Association, believing those trips were "a waste of time," he said, he has regularly turned back to the state part of the monies allocated to his office for travel.

Cenarrusa said the large number of trips to the Carey-Sun Valley area was to be expected. "That's where I'm from. I get most of my calls and requests for assistance from Blaine County and the Magic Valley."

Cenarrusa also insisted some of his trips may actually have saved the state money. "I don't fly, he flies his plane to Carey and then drives his own car to his destination, Cenarrusa said. This saves the cost of a rented vehicle, he added.

"It was just a case of someone who was too eager," Cenarrusa said of the auditors who conducted the audit. "I didn't take any trips that were unnecessary. I didn't take any trips that were improper."

Cenarrusa said he now keeps more complete travel records, but at the time of the audit, the information contained in his flight plans should have satisfied the auditors' requests for data.

"The audit kind of irked me," Cenarrusa said. "But I said nothing rather than amplify it. Someone can just make political hay out of an audit of an elected official."

The auditors in the Legislative Auditor's office stood behind their findings. They denied they had been overly critical of Cenarrusa.

"We asked for more detailed information on the trips," said Legislative Auditor Larry Kirk. But Cenarrusa failed to provide that information. "We think there should be something there stating what the purpose of the trip is."

Doctors say shah not ready for spleen removal surgery

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Doctors decided Sunday the shah of Iran is not yet fit to undergo surgery for the removal of his enlarged spleen.

They sent the deposed monarch back to his island hideaway to build up his strength.

A spokesman for Paltilia Hospital, where the 60-year-old shah was admitted Friday, said the team of American and Panamanian doctors examining the deposed monarch decided he would need surgery but was too weak for it now.

Shortly after that, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi slipped out of the hospital and, surrounded by security guards, drove to a nearby airport, where he boarded a twin-engine plane and flew back to Contadora Island, 35 miles off Panama's southwestern coast.

Famed Houston heart specialist Dr. Michael DeBakey, who flew to Panama Friday to examine the shah, conferred with a team of Panamanian doctors for nearly three hours before the hospital issued a statement.

It was their unanimous opinion to defer surgery with the view of preparing him (the shah) for the operation at a later date when his condition is optimal, hospital administrator Rodrigo Moreno said.

UN head believes release coming

NEW YORK (UPI) — United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said in a sermon Sunday he is "quite convinced" that the American hostages will be released eventually from the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

"I am confident the door to a peaceful solution is still open," he said. A U.N. commission formed to investigate the alleged crimes of the deposed shah of Iran and to negotiate for the release of the hostages recently returned from Iran after failing to see the hostages.

Militants wait for orders from parliament

By United Press International The Muslim militants occupying the U.S. Embassy said Sunday they will obey whatever orders Iran's new parliament gives them concerning the fate of the 50 Americans held hostage for 134 days.

But the still-incomplete results of Friday's balloting already were being called into question by Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who said the returns will be annulled if allegations of voting fraud prove true.

Asked specifically about Barry Rosen of Brooklyn, N.Y., a hostage who has complained of severe chest pains and other medical problems, the spokesman said, "I don't know him but everybody here is healthy."

Reagan hedges his pledge for possible Anderson help

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ronald Reagan said in a television interview Sunday he would support John Anderson if the Illinois congressman won the Republican presidential nomination.

But he hedged a bit after the program.

The former California governor told reporters as he left the television station that he thought Anderson perhaps should consider whether he is in the right political party.

Reagan was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

"Asked on the program if he believed Anderson 'in a realistic sense' really belongs in a Republican primary, Reagan said he had never analyzed just where Anderson differs from the basic Republican philosophy.

"As I think about it, my position has always been known: I have always believed in party unity and the resolution in advance to support the nominee of the party.

"And when I think of the choices on the other side, I have to say that at least having party control of the executive branch is better than to leave it in the hands of the present leadership of the Democratic party. So that is my answer there, I am sorry to see that since then we have declared that we cannot support him.

But when reporters asked him the same question later, he put it this way:

"If John Anderson believes the

RONALD REAGAN ... advice for Anderson things he has said — his inability to support Republican candidates, his inability to go along with the philosophy that did appear last time and will appear again in the Republican platform — then I think he has to, in clear conscience, ask if he is in the right party."

Reagan told the reporters he was not going to "read anyone, including Anderson, out of the party," and said:

"This is something for him to decide. It is also, as long as he is a candidate, something for the people to decide."

Reagan recalled on the television program that many considered Sen. Richard Schweiker, who would have been his vice presidential running mate in 1976, a liberal but actually he was closer to traditional GOP philosophy than most people thought.

Reagan also said he thought a complete decontrol of oil prices is a better alternative to the present crisis than President Carter's proposed tax on imported oil which will drive gasoline prices up 10 cents a gallon.

He predicted that the nation is "going to be continuously in a dangerous situation if we continue down the present path.

"We are at the complete mercy of them," he said, apparently referring to the oil-producing nations. "And the Soviet Union, we have just learned, has stockpiled weapons ... fighter planes, bombers, tanks, motorized equipment in Syria, South Yemen, Iraq, Libya — they must have aims on the Persian Gulf and they could shut off oil to us."

Teachers union president comes out for Kennedy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy Sunday won the endorsement of Albert Shanker, president of the 550,000-member American Federation of Teachers.

That organization has warred with President Carter over creation of a new Department of Education.

Shanker said AFT state delegations favor Kennedy 4-1 over the president and charged that the administration, "with its policy of trying to increase unemployment in order to deal with inflation, is harming education."

Kennedy also was endorsed by the New York State

United Teachers, the union representing 85 percent of the teachers in the state and a powerful ally in Kennedy's bid for support in New York's March 23 primary.

Kennedy said that thanks to Carter's budget cut, children will find that programs that strengthen the quality of education "will be terminated."

The AFT was a consistent foe of the Department of Education throughout the legislative battle that ended last year with its creation. The National Education Association, the principle rival teachers organization to the AFT, has consistently backed Carter's successful attempts to fashion the new department.

Troop us supported

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rep. Robert A. Young, D-Mo., said Sunday the United States should place large numbers of troops in Israel and Egypt to counter Soviet expansion efforts.

"Those of us who have been in public life for long are rarely surprised by Soviet actions since they normally follow the basic communist line," Young said. "The Soviet thrust into Afghanistan was just a continuation of a global power strategy that looks for any opening."

Ford's decision clears path for Reagan to achieve prize

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald Ford's decision not to seek the Republican presidential nomination clears the way for Ronald Reagan to finally realize the goal that has eluded him twice before.

Rep. John Anderson may win Tuesday's Illinois primary, but that won't slow the Reagan bandwagon.

The Republican Party may be at the point of realizing what Ford may have admitted to himself privately when he made his decision — that Reagan is virtually unstoppable in his third quest for the GOP nomination.

When John Connally dropped out a week ago, he called Reagan a "powerhouse."

The only hope the stop-Reagan forces now appear to have is to unite behind George Bush, since Anderson is not expected to get the GOP nod. But even such unexpected unity might not have the number behind it to do the job.

It may be that only Reagan can beat Reagan this year. But so far he has carried on the kind of strenuous argument that it takes to destroy the argument that at 69 he is too old to be president.

And, while staunchly carrying the conservative banner across the country, he has avoided the kind of extremist rhetoric that would drive all but the most right-thinking Republicans from his cause.

Looking down the campaign road, the numbers stack up impressively for Reagan, who after a month of primaries has 167 of the 958 delegates needed for the nomination while Bush has 45 and Anderson 14.

Add in the 188 delegates from California's winner-take-all primary and 80 from Texas, and Reagan would have 415. The numbers will build as the campaign season marches across the Reagan sunbelt picking up handfuls of delegates in Mississippi, Oklahoma, Arizona, Nevada.

Not to mention the at least one-third of the delegates he will pick up in the big industrial states — Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey.

The surprising thing is that it has taken only a month of primaries to put Reagan in this position.

A year ago, every Republican with any presidential credentials — and some with none at all — were clamoring after the nomination, believing the party would not give it to an old shoe like Reagan.

The ones with the best credentials fell the easiest: Sen. Howard Baker, as Senate GOP leader, the party's most powerful elected official; Sen. Robert Dole, the party's candidate for vice president in 1976; former Gov. John Connally, the candidate who talked on needed like a president and who called Reagan a "powerhouse" when he withdrew from the race; and now Ford, the man who had been president.

Reagan's success is a tribute to the job he and his strategists have done. He began running for the 1980 nomination right after he narrowly lost the 1976 nod to Ford.

He had about $2 million in campaign funds left over and he invested it in forming an organization called Citizens for the Republic. It published a monthly newsletter with Reagan's column on the front page, raised money which it passed out to conservative candidates across the country and held campaign seminars for candidates.

More importantly it left a presidential campaign staff intact and gave Reagan the vehicle to travel around the country, speaking at hundreds of chicken dinners on behalf of candidates and providing all the money needed to do it.

Ted may get only parade billing

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy has a place at the head of Chicago's St. Patrick's Day parade Monday, but it looks like President Carter will be first Tuesday when the Illinois primary votes are tallied.

The prospects for another big Carter victory were bolstered Sunday when the Chicago Tribune published the results of a new poll showing the president leading the Massachusetts senator, 65 percent to 23 percent.

That was a drop of 6 percent for Carter in the space of a week, but no increase for Kennedy. The support

Carter lost went into the undecided category.

More dramatic was the Republican race, where the poll showed Ronald Reagan slipping back in a tiny lead after trailing John Anderson a week ago.

The Tribune poll, conducted Friday and Saturday, showed Reagan with 36 percent, Anderson with 34 and George Bush with 19 percent. Anderson had a 33-31 lead in the last poll and some of the change may have come from the sharp 8-point drop in Bush's prior standing which was 20 percent.

The Kennedy-Carter rivalry, despite the exertions of Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne on behalf of the senator, is not the political contest Chicago cares most about.

What really has the town talking is the contest — feud, actually — between Alderman Edward M. Burke and State Sen. Richard M. Daley; the late mayor's son, for the office of Cook County State's Attorney. Burke is the mayor's man and her political credibility is on the line in his uphill battle with the namesake of the city's most famous Democrat.

Wyoming for Carter

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — President Carter's nearly 3-to-1 victory over Sen. Edward Kennedy in Wyoming's Democratic county conventions was bigger than either supporters or opponents expected.

Final unofficial results from Saturday's preference voting left Carter with 130 of the 204 delegates to the percent since Kennedy got 46 delegates for 22.5 percent. There were 28 uncommitted delegates, 13.7 percent of the total.

Carter won all or a majority of the delegates in 18 of the 23 counties. He split Laramie County's 34 delegates with Kennedy, and Kennedy got 1.5 of Sublette County's two delegates, with Carter getting the other half-delegate. Carbon, Niobrara and Weston counties sent uncommitted delegates to the state convention.

Carter state coordinator Dave Freudenthal, who had joined Kennedy coordinator Rodger McDaniel in predicting a close vote, said Sunday he did not expect the president's margin to be so large.

"I thought it would be a 55-45 split in our favor," Freudenthal said. "I expected Sen. Kennedy to do much better than he did."

The Carter campaign was better organized on local levels, and the failure of the Kennedy workers to do better in the five southern counties along the Union Pacific railroad line was a key to the romp, he said.

Carter took three of the five counties, which were expected to be Kennedy's strength because of the heavy labor vote and the challenger's organizational effort there.

Uncontrolled growth finds a friend

The Legislature has attempted to repeal the 1975 Land Use Planning Act and failed before. Now, in a cynical grab for a few extra votes, legislators are again pandering to the proponents of uncontrolled growth.

Years of effort by numbers of honest, dedicated citizens have gone into planning and zoning in almost all Idaho counties. The Legislature would thwart what local boards appointed and supervised by the county commissioners have been striving for.

Packaged politics

The political TV commercial has become the means by which most voters are exposed to political candidates and their views. Thus, the commercials "and what they say have grown to major importance in modern American politics."

Sounds difficult. "Turning a country around would be difficult. Remember, some regions are heavier than others, such as the mountains, so you'd have to be careful not to let them tilt, or you could have lakes spilling out and causing all kinds of a sloppy mess."

Fear of terrorists rules administration

The Washington Post Company © WASHINGTON — While watching the "Today" show in a hotel room one recent morning, watching Iranian foreign minister Gholbzadeh do his thing, I heard a shriek from a nearby room: "Gholbzadeh, I'm sick of you!"

If he does not, step far back as he is excited from Panama to Iran. The terrorists' demand for an apology presents the administration with more of a public relations problem than an ideological problem.

begin preparing the public. Regarding an apology (the administration euphemism for apology) is "expression of concern," a Washington Post headline on Sunday said: "President Willing to Bend on Iran."

Marvin Hamlich has done concerts in Cleveland, London and Los Angeles, but the three-time Oscar and Pulitzer Prize winner has yet to play New York. He will on April 13 when he does a Carnegie Hall concert with the New York Philharmonic on behalf of the National Cancer Institute. Says he, "Most shows have a three- or four-month, out-of-town tryout. I've been working on my out-of-town tryout for three or four years... now I feel it's the right time..."

DRIVING HIMSELF
Parker Stevenson will have a brand new role next month — on location in Africa — but this time he won't be acting. Stevenson has signed up for the 300-mile Safari Rally in Kenya April 3-7. He'll act as navigator and co-driver of a Mercedes to pro road racer Joginder Singh on the torturous drive through Kenyan back country. ABC-TV will film the event for an upcoming "American Sportsman" special.

ANOTHER MATE FOR CHARLES?
Matchmakers in the British press have lined up another mate for Prince Charles — Princess Nora of Liechtenstein. The mass-circulation News of the World trumpeted the blonde 29-year-old princess's chances saying she and the 31-year-old prince went on a skiing holiday together — but that was years ago when they were children. They have met several times since, the newspaper added significantly.

GURU'S WINGS CLIPPED?
The Maharaj Ji — 23-year-old guru of the Divine Light Mission — is running into a few ups and downs in getting the county's permission to build a helicopter pad at his ocean-side Malibu estate. The guru's neighbors feel helicopters would create offensive noise, safety hazards and also lower surrounding property values. But an attorney for the mission says the pad will be used by the religious leader for only about six private landings per month. County supervisors want more information.

Paddy wagon penalties for town

LONDON, Ohio (UPI) — Tavern owners who don't sell grog beer and people whose last names don't begin with "Mc" or an "O" could spend St. Patrick's Day in a paddy wagon. Londoners arrested on the St. Patrick's Day charges will appear before the Court of St. Patrick and be locked "in" a paddy wagon — all downtown after they are found guilty. Local attorneys will serve as judges in the Court of St. Patrick, which will be in session downtown from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

The St. Patrick's Day observation is in its sixth year, and promoted by the Chamber of Commerce. "After Christmas, things seem to die down until summer," said Nancy Murcher, executive secretary for the chamber. "This really picks up spirit around here." "Two years ago, a group of downtown businessmen lobbied up a Barney Stone in a backhoe and dumped it in my office," she said. This year, Chamber President Fred

White has been summoned to appear in the Court of St. Patrick for not marrying an Irish woman. The Court of St. Patrick also is investigating clues to find the identity of the St. Patrick's Phantom. For three years, the chamber has been unable to capture the citizen who sends letters and makes telephone calls with clues to his identity. "It gets frustrating after awhile," Ms. Murcher said. "He's even taped notes to the Chamber window saying 'You haven't caught me yet.' We're considering putting up a reward for anyone who can tell us who it is."

Fight rough on bouncers

NEW YORK (UPI) — A bouncer at the trendy New York New York discotheque was shot in the stomach and another was cut on the head early Sunday in a scuffle with seven patrons and bystanders, police said.

Steve Miller, one of three security guards, had told a man and woman who arrived about 2:30 a.m. that they would not be let into the disco. Sgt. Matthew Rafferty said.

A man, described by Rafferty as "supposedly a regular customer" of the midtown establishment, heard the argument as he was leaving and asked Miller to let the couple in because they were his friends.

When the guard again refused, four men joined the couple and began to scuffle with Miller and another bouncer, Todd Young, 29.

The patron, who was not identified, pushed Young against a car. Young suffered a gash across the back of his head. Police said he was treated at Bellevue Hospital but was not seriously injured.

When Miller and Peter Torres, the third guard, attempted to restrain the riotous, the patron pulled a revolver and shot twice. Torres, 38, was hit once in the stomach. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital where he was reported in critical condition, police said.

The assailants fled the scene. Rafferty said bartenders and customers at the discotheque knew the first name of the man who allegedly shot Torres.

New York New York manager Michael Kirvan denied that the shooting occurred because the couple was not allowed to enter the exclusive disco. He said the fighting "never was inside and it has nothing to do with the club."

Ancient taste from stone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In Irish lore, the practice of placing lips to a particular piece of limestone confers a special gift of speech.

Whether or not that's a bunch of blarney, a geologist says kissing the fabled rock at Blarney Castle in southern Ireland certainly confers the taste of what the world was like 300 million years ago.

Physically, the Blarney Stone is no different than the other limestone that makes up the battlements and towers of the castle in the town, said William Newman of the U.S. Geological Survey.

The stone used for the castle was formed 300 million years ago in the Carboniferous age, the same period that produced the thick coal beds of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, Newman said.

In legend, kissing the stone bestows the gift of blarney — the ability to speak sweet, flattering talk, intended to deceive with offending.

Passing grade levels cut for Texas school

PRINCETON, Texas (UPI) — Twenty-six percent of the students at Princeton High School flunked courses last fall, so school officials decided to lower academic standards.

At a time when school districts across the country are raising standards to make sure Johnny actually can read when he graduates from high school, the Princeton Independent School District did the reverse in hopes of reducing its dropout rate.

High school principal Frank Garner said he recommended the school board approve lowering the passing grade from 70 to 65 to keep those students in school who drop out in the sophomore year because they are not passing enough courses to become Juniors.

Garner said roughly 15 to 30 pupils in the 270-member student body drop out near the end of the sophomore year. He said many prefer to get a job in the town of Dallas rather than face northeast of Dallas rather than face another year in the 10th grade.

"This is to help the marginal student whose grades run in the 65 to 69 range most of the time," he said. "These students are not discipline problems. They're giving us the best they can."

"The response from the student body is real good, but you'd expect that."

Poland mourns victims

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — With somber music and memorial masses, Poland observed a day of national mourning Sunday for the 87 persons killed in the crash of an out-of-fuel Polish jetliner Friday.

En route from New York, the plane plunged into a 19th century fortress while trying to make an emergency landing.

The victims included 28 Americans, among them 14 young amateur boxers and eight officials of their boxing team and six other Americans. The rest of the passengers were Polish, Russian and East German.

More than 40 hours after the crash, the bodies of many of them were still trapped beneath the ice covering the fortress moat where the jetliner crashed Friday, just two miles short of the airport where it was heading for an emergency landing.

Rescuers broke through the ice and began installing large pumps Sunday in an effort to lower the water level in the 25-foot-deep moat.

The wreckage of the Soviet-built Ilyushin-62 jetliner still lay scattered in the moat and around its earthen walls, where workmen with bulldozers and cranes labored to collect the pieces as the rest of the nation mourned.

The weekly English-language Roman Catholic mass at St. Annes Church was dedicated to the dead and the priest read telegrams of condolence from Polish-born Pope John Paul II and Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński, who will celebrate another memorial mass for the victims today.

Yugoslavia fires back at Moscow

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Yugoslavia reacted angrily Sunday to a harsh Soviet attack on its policies that coincided with another setback for the dying 87-year-old President Josip Broz Tito.

The Soviet attack, published by the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda Saturday, accused Yugoslavia of siding with the United States and China over the invasion of Afghanistan, of opposing the Vietnamese and Cambodian revolutions and of discrediting the non-aligned movement, which Tito helped found.

The Yugoslav Communist Party newspaper Borba hit back by blaming Moscow "for distorting Yugoslav policy and for attempts to sow dissension in the ranks of the non-aligned countries."

Meanwhile, the latest medical bulletin on the dying Tito's health said there was less evidence of heart weakness and his pneumonia had not worsened. But other conditions, including kidney failure and internal bleeding, continued, it said.

There was no mention of the high fever reported earlier, the medical complication to follow the amputation of Tito's left leg almost two months ago.

Soviets bear brunt of war

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Soviet occupation forces in Afghanistan are being pushed more into the front line, replacing badly demoralized and disorganized Afghan troops in the fighting against Moslem insurgents, diplomats said Sunday.

An Afghan army defector said Soviet forces are currently pounding rebel positions in the eastern province of Fajaktla in a two-pronged offensive to wipe out opposition to the Moscow-backed government in Kabul.

One diplomat said Afghan forces have been relegated to garrison duties forcing more Soviet troops to be used in front line positions.

"The Afghan army is in bad shape," he said. "The troops are not being paid or fed regularly."

The Afghan army has become "badly disorganized following the coup in December that put President Babrak Karmal in power," he said.

Recent rebel battle reports have claimed increasing Afghan army defections as well as the deaths of many Soviet soldiers among the estimated 80,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

Mexico oil firm ignores damages

MONTERREY, Mexico (UPI) — Mexico's government-owned oil company, Pemex, will not consider paying for damages from the Ixtoc I oil spill unless ordered to do so by a Mexican court, the director of the company says.

The statement by Pemex Director Gen. Jorge Diaz Serrano strongly implied Pemex may ignore any judgment handed down by U.S. courts over the June 9, 1979 blowout that stained South Texas beaches, heart of a multi-million dollar tourist industry.

Diaz Serrano made the statements to reporters Saturday during a two-day series of meetings between Texas Gov. Bill Clements and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

New attitude aids Leos in getting along better with associates today

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when you would be wise to investigate new plans whereby you could make considerable progress in your line of endeavor. Secrets come to light at this time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Analyze the future well so that you can put your finest talents to work. Be sure to arrive on time for an important appointment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Concentrate on the future and then make concrete plans to improve it. Take modern treatments to improve your health.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try a new approach with friends and reach a better understanding with them. Know what is expected of you by associates.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to be tactful and clear thinking to patch up a problem of long standing. Take no risks with money at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can get along better with associates by adopting a new attitude. Take no chances with one who has harmed you in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your duties well and figure out a way to handle them more efficiently. Don't do anything that could anger your mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use a different approach in a civil matter and get excellent results. Avoid one who is detrimental to your best interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make work the keynote in your activities today and accomplish a great deal. Not a good day to engage in new interests.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be extra patient in the face of any pressures today and you win out. Strive for greater prestige in civic affairs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be tactful with family members and maintain harmony at home. Take no chances with a well-known troublemaker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use good judgment in the handling of problems connected with regular routines. Come to a better understanding with mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your monetary prowess is better now than for some time so make the most of this now. Obtain data you need from the right sources.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will be a capable person who can study new ventures and understand them well. But it's important to teach to finish one thing before going on with another. Otherwise, a jack of all trades and master of none, could emerge.

British naval surgeon concocted popular drink

If mixed drinks are your specialty, you probably know a gimlet is gin and lime juice. But were you aware of how it first came to be concocted? A British naval surgeon named Sir T. O. Gimlette was the father of that one. He thought straight gin was hazardous to the health. Many think likewise, many do. But diluted with lime juice, said he, the keen edge is blunted thus to protect one's innards from the terrible lacerations. Besides, it prevents scurvy.

Dear Abby

Widower wants to find woman himself

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© The Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A Texas widow complained because her friends never got around to introducing her to any eligible men.

May I say a word from the man's point of view? I was 53 when my wife died. Soon, well-meaning friends started to fix me up with eligible women.

Good ole Bill and his cute wife, Jeanette, had me to dinner. The only other guest was Jeanette's widowed mother — a pleasant, quiet little lady (about 60) whose only claim to fame was her ability to make pumpkin pie. Frankly, she was not my cup of tea, but I felt obligated to ask her for a date anyway.

Then good ole Charlie and his kind-hearted wife, Lucille, fixed me up with a "terrific" woman who had a bridge. Well, she had a bridge and wasn't looking for a meal ticket, so that didn't work out. I had many such experiences. All flops.

I am no great catch myself, but I know what I want in a woman and none of my friends come up with anything that filled the bill.

Abby, if people really want to help singles meet someone, they should invite them to a casual cocktail party with lots of people. An eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation is not fertile soil in which the fragile seedling of romance can flower.

Fortunately, I found a lovely lady all by myself with no help from anyone.

TERRY IN COLUMBUS
DEAR TERRY: Congratulations. But don't knock the one-to-one date. My mail tells me that there's a lot of loneliness in the world, and although YOU may prefer the large cocktail party, it is not the happiest hunting ground for all singles.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago I read in your column, CONFIDENTIAL TO — "THIRTEEN AND SCARED TO DEATH OF MY STEPPAD." It weighed heavily on my mind because at 13, I, too, was scared to death of my stepfather, who had been sexually molesting me since I was barely 11. He was even violent at times. My scars speak for themselves.

When I told my mother, she gave the excuse that he was drunk. (End of subject for her.)

When I got married at 18, my stepfather was still after me. One day he came to my home and tried to overpower me; I pumped seven bullets into his body and killed him on the spot.

I stood trial for second-degree murder. The jury deliberated 10 minutes and ruled it self-defense.

After two years with a psychologist I am finally beginning to feel human. Understanding yourself and your motivations is a wealth beyond measure.

I pray with all my heart that the 13-year-old girl takes your advice and tells the police, the welfare office, a teacher or someone who can help her. The day-to-day fear of being molested is terrible to live with, I know.

Thanks for printing letters like this. You do more good than you realize. Keep up the good work.

DEAR ABBY: ANONYMOUSLY YOURS told of not visiting her 87-year-old father because her stepmother is a non-stop talker.

Please tell her more strongly to visit them! Our dear father, now dead, was denied frequent visits from his children due to our over-aggressive, talkative stepmother, whom Dad married for companionship after a long and loving marriage with our mother.

How we now regret avoiding our father because we couldn't stand "her."

My children never got to know my father as they should have. And my stepmother has "mellowed" with the years so that we can all enjoy her now.

ANOTHER ANONYMOUS
DEAR ANOTHER: Thanks for offering my readers some valuable advice. It's free to them, but you have already paid for it. And dearly.

Are you the lonely face in the crowd? Friends make you a winner, and Abby tells you how to win them in her booklet, "How to Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Screwed-up directions can cause divorces

By ERMA BOMBCEK
© Field Enterprises, Inc.

Every time I see a little box in a paper or magazine headlined "Correction," I get a knot in my stomach.

I know that somewhere some poor sucker has followed directions to a "T" and ended up with the biggest mess he's ever seen.

Sometimes I even try to imagine the human casualties caused by these screwed-up directions. For example, take this story.

CORRECTION
"In the diagrams for 'A Fold-Up Desk You Can Build in a Day,' the dimensions given for the top, the table and the flap piece were unfortunately reversed.

"The flap should have been shown 30 inches HIGH and 23½ inches WIDE. The table dimensions should have been 22½ inches WIDE and 30½ inches DEEP, and the top flap piece 24 inches WIDE and 31½ inches HIGH."

"The 30-inch plane hinges specified to join the folding pieces therefore should be cut to fit. We suggest about 23 to 23½-inch widths."

Oh, sure, these little three paragraphs get the publishers off the hook, but what about poor Larry Buzzsaw, who married a nice girl, Doris, 27 years ago and would be married today had it not been for that stupid little desk he built that was 23½ inches off the floor?

Doris: "What do they call this thing?"

Larry: "Don't start in, Doris. The instructions are bad enough to follow. It's called a Fold-Up Desk. You Can Build in a Day."

Doris: "How long have you been in here? You need a shave. When are you going to unfold the desk so we can see what it looks like?"

Larry: "It is unfolded. As soon as I can get this hinge to fit, all I have to do is sand it, paint it, and it's ready to use."

Doris: "By whom? A family of trolls?"

Larry: "Look, Doris. I needed that remark-like Ronald Reagan needs another birthday. Why don't you go out in the kitchen and burn something?"

You get an idea of how it goes. Just out of curiosity I'd like to know how many couples named the Fold-Up Desk You Can Build in a Day in their divorce suit... or for that matter, the Rice Divorce casseroles recipe that called for two pounds of rice instead of two cups. But I especially wondered what happened to the couple who followed directions I saw recently for a rock garden that instructed, "Blow up an area in your back yard six by nine feet" instead of "Flow up."

½ cup diced avocado
Dissolve Jell-O in boiling water. Add juice drained from pineapple (add water if not enough to measure ½ cup). Cool until it begins to thicken.

then add pineapple, salt and lemon juice. Fold in mayonnaise whipped cream and avocado cubes. Pour into oblong pan and chill until set. Unmold and cut with very small biscuit cutter, cutting close together. Arrange in groups of three on lettuce or watercress, and add stems of jello to glassbury, England, in Tours, France and in Wales.

St. Patrick's Day different in Ireland

NEW YORK, N.Y. — St. Patrick's Day is celebrated in America on March 17 with parades and parties. But in Ireland, it is the start of a three-day period of religious devotion. Dublin's St. Patrick's Day parade is a far more formal procession than those in the United States. Irish inns once offered customers a "Patrick's pot" of beer or whiskey on March 17, along with bread and fish.

Another old tradition was to serve a plateful of shamrocks at breakfast. The master of the house soaked the shamrocks in whiskey and gave the rest of the newly opened bottle to the servants. That tradition lapsed, but shamrocks remain the universal symbol of St. Patrick's Day.

On St. Patrick's Day there are two kinds of people: those who are Irish and those who wish they were. If he were alive today, St. Patrick would have to be included in the second category.

In his Confession, St. Patrick writes that he was born in Bannavem Taberniae. No one knows where that was, but it almost certainly wasn't in Ireland. Various historians place St. Patrick's birth at Kilpatrick, Scotland, in a village close to Glasgow, England, in Tours, France and in Wales.

One Emerald Isle legend about St. Patrick credits him with driving the snakes out of Ireland. Or rather, all but one of them. To deal with this last crafty creature, the story goes, St. Patrick had a box made and told the snake to get inside. The serpent refused, saying it was too small.

"Nonsense," said St. Patrick. "It's just your size. Try it and see."

"All right, I'll show you it's too small," said the snake, slithering in. Whereupon St. Patrick snapped down the lid and plunged the box into the sea. A nice story, but one that's touched with a bit of the blarney.

In actuality historians doubt that Ireland ever had any snakes to begin with.

United Parcel Service doing impossible, trade group says

By CAROLE SHIFRIN
 ©The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — The American Trucking Association says United Parcel Service is doing what the trade group thinks is impossible.
 It is making money providing delivery service to the small towns and communities of America.
 UPS's $5,000 plain, brown trucks with gold lettering are familiar all over the nation, even in remote areas not served by the U.S. Postal Service, Robert E. Smith, company vice president, boasted recently to Congress.
 But the ATA contends it is this market that will be adversely affected by deregulation of the trucking industry, increasing competition on the profitable big-city routes and leaving the smaller, less lucrative communities without trucking service.
 ATA, which represents most of the regulated trucking companies, has mounted a major campaign against deregulation, using this as one of its prime arguments.
 UPS is not a member of ATA, and it hasn't taken a stand on the overall trucking deregulation measures now before Congress, on grounds that the proposed changes wouldn't affect its operations. However, UPS has told Congress it does support open competition where its own business is concerned.

 Unlike other companies regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, UPS has made it a company policy never to protest the application of another company for new or expanded rights. Although the deregulation measures would increase competition in its field, Smith told Congress, "We do not oppose it (competition) since it is already an accepted policy in our company today."
 And UPS, contradicting ATA's contention that rural America will be victimized by industry deregulation, says it has no intention of abandoning those hamlets.
 A good case can be made for UPS's stability in the industry, in the eyes of many consumers, UPS, which made more than 1.3 billion deliveries last year, has supplanted the Postal Service in delivering small packages.

 "Coverage of rural areas is one of the most attractive features of our service," Smith told the Senate Commerce Committee in December. "We provide this service today because we want to serve rural America; we asked for the right to do it, and we want to continue doing it."
 A recent Transportation Department study of six small towns in three states — selected by senators from those states on the Commerce Committee — found that for the most part, the rural areas were being served by UPS and private carriers, not by the regulated members of ATA.
 One reason UPS has grown so over the years, according to one knowledgeable transportation official, is its ability to promise shippers that it will deliver anywhere; for consumers and business, that's considered a major selling point. In addition, the official said delivery to rural areas can be easier than big-city deliveries, where drivers face traffic congestion, parking problems, and trouble locating addresses, requiring numerous trips to deliver a package.
 Since its first days as a Seattle company, founded in 1907 by James Casey, UPS has expanded its territory to include every state. Today, the company employs 106,000 people and operates a transcontinental network of sorting terminals, tractor-trailers and other back-up services for the familiar brown trucks.
 But UPS doesn't have carte blanche delivery service and it can't go just anywhere. It's had its problems with regulation by the ICC, the agency responsible for regulating all interstate trucking services — except those specifically exempted such as the hauling of agricultural commodities.

 "Everybody in the United States has UPS service, but you can't always ship to the next state," says one transportation official. The ICC has imposed a series of restrictions on UPS operations while expanding the company's operating authority.
 One important restriction prohibits UPS from handling shipments among Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas and portions of Nebraska, Missouri and Arkansas. An application seeking removal of that restriction has been pending at the ICC since July 1978.
 UPS also is barred from making deliveries between Memphis, Tenn., and an area that includes Arkansas and part of Mississippi. Another restriction denies UPS service in either direction between Denver and the entire state of Kansas and the southern part of Nebraska.
 All the restrictions were adopted to protect motor carriers already serving those areas.
 UPS also is not allowed to accept more than 100 pounds from one shipper going to any one consignee on any one day. UPS has been trying since November 1976 to have that removed.

Workers should look at Social Security deduction

© Field Enterprises, Inc.
 (Second in a series of three)
 If you're a young worker in the U.S. in today's era of runaway inflation, you cannot be criticized if you look long and hard at the Social Security deduction from your paycheck and wonder if your money is being well-spent. If you earn, say, $12,500 a year, about the average, you're paying Social Security taxes of $766 in 1980 alone, or $14.74 a week. And in 1981, when the tax rate is slated to rise from the current 6.13 percent to 6.65 percent, your deduction will be $1,065 more a week. (All contributions matched by your employers.)
 If you're a worker with substantially higher earnings, you are paying the tax on a larger and larger slice of your earnings.
 Under 1977's amendments to the law, the maximum taxable earnings under SS are being hiked in three extra jumps to restore the proportions existing when the original law was enacted in 1935.

 Back then, a maximum taxable wage base of $3,000 was high enough to cover all the earnings of about 96 percent of the work force. In 1973, just before the first of the three extra jumps took effect, the proportion had fallen to about 85 percent.
 About 15 percent of all workers had earnings above that year's maximum wage base of $17,700 and any earnings above that escaped the Social Security tax.
 The first extra jump, in 1979, took the wage base from $17,700 to $22,900. The base climbed to $25,900 this year. In 1981, it is scheduled to go to $29,700 as the tax rate also rises to 6.65 percent. The bite on the higher-income worker next year will be $1,967, or $38 a week — $7.47 more a week than this year. After 1981, the maximum taxable wage base will go up more slowly, just keeping pace with the rate of increase in average wages.

 But although you're contributing more, you'll receive much more in benefits. As more of your earnings are counted toward taxes, more of your earnings are counted toward your benefits. You, a higher-income worker, get increased protection for yourselves and your families; higher retirement benefits, higher benefits for your survivors; if you (the worker) should die and higher disability protection.

Among the most distressing misconceptions about Social Security is that it is just for "old folks." True, the program started out that way; when it became law in 1935, the intent was to provide benefits for retired workers only.
 But even before the first monthly benefit check had been issued in January 1940, Congress had expanded the program to pay benefits also to the dependents and survivors of workers. Disability benefits were added in 1955. Then came Medicare for the elderly in 1966, and then benefits for the disabled.
 Of every seven persons in this country, one is now receiving monthly Social Security benefits. Most are indeed elderly.
 But Social Security is not just for the elderly. I re-emphasize. Among the 35 million total men, women and children on the Social Security benefit rolls are 4.8 million children, the dependents of workers who are retired, disabled or deceased, and about 3 million disabled workers under 65 years of age.

 As a young worker, staring week after week at the size of the deduction for Social Security from your pay, your retirement benefits may indeed seem far, far off. Raising a family — and merely meeting your own living expenses in this ghastly era of surging prices — swallow your earnings.
 But older years will come for you, too — if you're that lucky. A startling 40 percent of all males will die or become disabled before age 62.
 So, there's obviously a lot more to your payment of Social Security taxes than laying the base for receiving retirement benefits in your older years.

 You get income protection for yourselves and your families should you become disabled or die.
 You get the security of knowing you are not leaving your loved ones without any protection in the event of a disaster involving you, your capacity to work, perhaps your life.
 And you gain still another benefit that is usually overlooked completely. Think this one over.
 How many of your elderly relatives, now collecting monthly Social Security benefits — that are automatically hiked as the Consumer Price Index rises — might otherwise be dependent upon you for their entire support if they didn't have their own benefits?

Council may vote on sewage design grant

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council tonight may formally accept a $362,000 grant for designing modifications to the city's sewage treatment plant.

The council meets at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall.
City Manager Tom Courtney has delayed putting the grant up for council action until the city receives a consent decree from EPA outlining the city's responsibilities. Courtney said he hopes to have a copy of the decree today.

Such an order could follow the state Department of Health and Welfare's compliance schedule. The order may also require the city to continue its lawsuit against the original contractors of the sewage treatment plant. Such a provision would repeat a similar provision in the grant announcement released last month.

Another provision of that grant provided EPA would provide the funds needed to construct the plant, but would expect repayment of about $283,000 over an unspecified period. City and federal officials had been deadlocked over the issue of duplicate equipment the EPA had refused to fund. City officials maintain they do not have funds to pay the additional expense.

Under the terms of the grant, EPA has informed the city it does not consider the interest-free financing to be a loan and has specified several sources of repayment.
Among those would be an award from the city's lawsuit against the original plant contractors, retaining an industrial cost recovery fund, forming a local improvement district or charging a user's surcharge.

In an opinion released March 6, deputy Attorney General Michael Moore found that the city could legally charge such a fee to cover the expense. The opinion came in response from an inquiry from City Attorney Charles Brumbach.
In other matters, the council will hold a protest hearing involving a proposed $15,000 local improvement district along Applewood Drive. The street improvement project had been originally part of the controversial northwest LID, but was later deleted. The hearing begins at 8 p.m.

Senate passes memorial asking for wilderness limit

—BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Senate passed 19-11 a memorial Saturday urging a two million-acre limit on land designated as wilderness in central Idaho and asking for the authority to make the final decision on future creation of wilderness.

Sen. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, said the proposal asks Congress to put a cap on the acres of wilderness in Idaho.
Steen said 64 percent of Idaho already is federal land. He said three million acres has been designated as wilderness and another seven million is under study.

Landlord, tenant trailer law easily passes Senate

—BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Senate Saturday passed 30-1 a measure that would create Idaho's first mobile home landlord-tenant law.

The bill, already passed 66-3 by the Idaho House, now goes to the governor to be signed into law.
Senators ended seven years of work by mobile-home tenant groups and park owners during a seven-minute debate, passing the measure with only one dissenting vote from Sen. Mark Ricks, R-Tetbury.

If the measure becomes law, it will require a written agreement between landlord and tenant if either party requests it. It also spells out the exact provisions to be included in such a rental agreement.
The bill also requires 90 days written notice before rental rates are changed and requires that rent increase be uniform throughout a park. Mobile homeowners also would be given the right to sell their homes, even if they are parked on a rented space.

Lack of federal funds forces Idaho farmers to plant later

—BOISE (UPI)—Idaho's farmers are ready to plant their crops, but a lack of funds for loans through the Farmers Home Administration is forcing growers to let the fields lie fallow a little longer.

The farmers' administration emergency aid program has fallen short by $15 million to $20 million in funds to lend Idaho farmers, 20 percent of whom rely on the administration for their operating funds.
The farmers are "having an on and calling" their congressmen," said Idaho FmHA Director Jay McCarter, hoping that the members of Congress can find extra money to revitalize the emergency aid program.

Soaring interest rates and rising production costs are confronting Idaho's farmers for the first time, although most other businesses have been plagued with those problems since November. The tight-money situation, which officials say is worsened by a sagging potato market, may result in fewer potatoes grown, later planting and less use of chemicals in the state.
Gov. John Evans said Idaho's farmers "are in dire need of funds to finance their farming operations."
The former rancher and banker said very few farmers can afford 20 percent interest rates set by the private lending institutions.
Demand for FmHA's loans is given only to those farmers who can't obtain loans from commercial banks or credit associations — was 50 percent higher in 1979 than in 1978. The $137 million that 1,800 Idahoans borrowed wheat year as the fifth largest amount borrowed in any state. In most states, eight percent of farm borrowers seek the low-cost federal loans; in Idaho 20 percent are FmHA customers.

"The problems are really tough right now," McCarter said. "It is a real problem that we have as much exposure in some counties as we do. We are a major source of 'ag' credit in the state."
McCarter said some of the unlucky farmers without loans have borrowed fertilizer and other materials to start sowing their 1980 crops. Others, he said, have delayed planting with the hope that funding is made available.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said a team of experts was studying the site and would file a report on the cause of the crash.

Southeast of Boise Boise man hurt in plane crash after small craft hits power line

—BOISE (UPI)—One person was injured Sunday afternoon when a homemade, single-engine aircraft hit a power line about 18 miles southeast of Boise.
Mike Vandenberg, manager of All the King's Men Travel Shoppe — a snack bar and gasoline station located along the interstate highway — was transported to the emergency room of St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise.
A hospital supervisor said Vandenberg, who owned and piloted the plane, was being treated in the emergency room for a leg injury. She said he was listed in fair condition Sunday evening.
Vandenberg was the only person aboard the craft when it crashed near Interstate 80 in Elmore County.
A spokesman for the Ada County Sheriff's Department said Vandenberg was moving the airplane to the highway travel center in the Indian Creek area at about 3 p.m., when he started to land the craft. The spokesman said witnesses reported that the airplane seemed to lose altitude suddenly, hit a power line and crashed to the ground.

Elmore County sheriff's deputies, who were officially in charge of investigating the incident, would not release information concerning the crash. A spokeswoman said information would not be released until Monday morning.

Census workers wanted

MAGIC VALLEY — Applications will be taken and tests administered this week to residents of Cassia, Lincoln, Camas and Blaine counties interested in becoming census workers.

Cassia county applicants should report to the Burley Service office at 3:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Easter Seal booth set up

TWIN FALLS — Representatives of the Century 21 real estate agencies in Twin Falls are donating their time to assist handicapped children.

A booth is being manned through tonight by real estate sales personnel in the Blue Lanes Mall to collect funds to help the Easter Seal Society and its program for handicapped children.
Louise McManaman and Mary Spence said each person who visits the booth and contributing $1 or more receives an Easter Egg giving kit.
The project is a national one for Century 21, with $1.5 million being collected last year to benefit Easter Seal centers, such as the one in Twin Falls where children with physical or speech problems can obtain therapy and training.
Volunteers also will be going door to door and will have kits available, or will accept donations at agency offices.

SBA official in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — A representative of the Small Business Administration will be in Twin Falls March 28 to meet with individuals interested in loans.

Sharla M. Edgar, loan processing assistant from the Boise office, will be available to assist farmers, ranchers and businessmen on questions involving the SBA programs.

She will schedule appointments from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce office.

Jay Hoyer, Chamber of Commerce manager, said SBA guaranteed loans are made through banks to qualified agricultural and commercial businesses. The funds are available for establishment, acquisition, operation or expansion of profit-oriented ventures.
Money may be used for land, improvements, equipment, inventory or working capital.
Anyone interested in meeting with Edgar is asked to call the Chamber of Commerce, 733-3974, to make an appointment. They should bring with them their most recent financial data and information on their loan request, the SBA advises.

Buhl workshop scheduled

BUHL — Concerned Buhl parents and community leaders will meet March 25 in a workshop covering youth problems.
Representatives from all factions in the community are being asked to attend and offer views and suggestions for meeting such increasing problems as drug abuse and teenage sexuality.

A group of parents are calling the workshop to bring all interested adults together to deal with problems facing the community's teenagers today. The workshop will be held at 7 p.m. in the Buhl High School commons.

A special invitation has been issued parents, school teachers and officials, church and organization leaders.

Persons interested in additional information may contact Marilyn Butler at 543-4995, or Carol Hudson at 543-6882.

Hansen rating up to 98%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Conservative Union reports that it incorrectly gave Idaho representative George Hansen a 75 percent cumulative average for his 1975-79 voting record.
He, in fact, earned a 98 percent rating.
The ratings are released by the group, indicating how they grade a congressman's voting record concerning issues believed to be crucial to American conservatives. The higher the rating, the better the ACU considers the congressman's voting record.
"This error was particularly regrettable from ACU's viewpoint since Congressman Hansen has been over the five-year period in question — one of the most hardworking, conservative members of Congress, taking the lead in such legislative issues as the Panama Canal treaties and OSHA," the ACU's release states.

Taxpayer remedy offered

TWIN FALLS — Many taxpayers are caught at the end of the year with an unexpectedly large amount of income taxes to pay but there are some remedies, the Internal Revenue Service reminds.

IRS officials say persons with this problem should file a new W-4 form with their employers to adjust the amount of tax withheld during the year.

The most frequent cause of insufficient withholding is the two-income family.
IRS officials say when both husband and wife are earning incomes employers are not taking out enough each pay check. The withholding rates are based on projected taxes due from each individual-wage earner. Working couples find when their incomes are combined they are frequently placed in a higher income bracket and the taxes go up.

Taxpayers who pay alimony have larger itemized deductions and are eligible for tax credits. These taxpayers may find too much is being withheld each month and as a result their tax refunds are unusually large.
Withholding rates may be adjusted either upward or downward by filing a new Form W-4.

New Mexico hires California prison expert

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — A California corrections expert will be brought to New Mexico this week to assist prison operations after inmates this weekend caused minor flooding, Gov. Bruce King said Sunday.

King declined to identify the consultant, but those attending the meeting said he was Lloyd Patterson, who is retired from the California corrections system.

Procurement told the committee that Warden Jerry Griffin lacked experience.

King also said Adelph Saenz, the state corrections secretary, had been authorized to check into the possibility of bringing in correctional officers from other states to assist at the prison.

King also said those attending it expressed concern that "six weeks after the riot ... progress on restoring the whole penitentiary is moving very slowly."

The letter said little progress was apparent in efforts to set up a training program for correctional officers and hire additional correctional officers.

Search still on for escapee

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho authorities continued their search Sunday for an Idaho State Penitentiary inmate, who walked away from a minimum-security work farm at the facility south of Boise Saturday night.

The inmates contend the prison authorities' actions have been "psychologically debilitating and prejudicial," violating their constitutional rights to worship freely, express themselves and exercise their civil rights without persecution.

Also listed in serious condition was Idaho Falls resident 16-year-old Daniel Walker Wolfley, the driver of the second car, and a passenger in his car, two-year-old Karen Louise Macurdy, who is in the intensive-care ward.

Officials at the correctional institution refused to comment on the search, saying only Warden Ed Dermitt could release information.

A search of the area surrounding the prison Saturday night turned up no trace of the escapee, they said.

Dr. Roger Schubert, also of Sandpoint, said he watched the object for some time until it disappeared behind the tree-lined horizon. He described the incident as "really bizarre."

They ask the court to retain jurisdiction over the prison until the court is convinced that officials no longer are enforcing the "unconstitutional" policy and seek general damages of $300,000 each. They also ask for punitive damages of $25,000 for Nailon and Almond and $200,000 each for Bassett and Wells.

Louisville and Iowa gain NCAA's final four

Cardinals overpower LSU in second half

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Steve Walte wasn't exactly thinking about shooting as Iowa passed the ball around for the final shot of a tie game in its NCAA East Regional final against Georgetown.

But after Walte, a 6-foot-10 junior center who came off the bench Sunday, took a pass from teammate Kevin Boyle in the lane, he suddenly had other ideas.

Driving for the basket, Walte hit a layup with five seconds to play, was fouled and sank the free throw for the winning point in an 81-80 upset by the Hawkeyes over the 10th-ranked Hoyas, earning Iowa a berth in the NCAA Final Four next weekend in Indianapolis. The Hawkeyes meet the winner of the Louisville-Louisiana State game in the semifinals.

"Kevin had the ball and he passed it to me," said Walte. "My first thought was to pass it back again but I didn't know how much time was left. I figured we'd shoot with four or five seconds left so we could get a rebound if we didn't make it. But I saw a huge gap and I went in and I was fortunate enough to get it."

Walte was fouled by Georgetown's Craig Shelton and hit the free throw after a pair of timeouts by the Hoyas. The extra point proved vital when Jeff Bulls hit a layup with one second to play to close the Hoyas within one point.

Iowa Coach Lute Olson, whose team earned an NCAA berth despite finishing tied for fourth in the Big Ten and had to come back from a 14-point deficit to become the second Big Ten team to qualify for the national semifinals, said the final shot was not planned for any one player.

"I'm personally not one who plans on setting up one particular play for one specific person because if the other team guesses, well, you're in trouble," Olson said. "We wanted to keep passing and wait for a shot with five seconds."

Trailing 62-62 early in the second half, Iowa, 23-8, roared back to take its first lead, 74-72, when Boyle hit a layup after a steal with 4:50 to play. The teams exchanged baskets and Shelton tied the score 78-78 on a basket with 2:05 to play before Iowa held for the final shot.

Olson said his team's comeback came as no surprise.

"It was the type of effort on their part that typified our entire season," Olson said. "They always refuse to give up under any circumstances. We've been crossed off the list several times but we never gave up."

Georgetown Coach John Thompson, whose team finished 26-6 and had a 15-game winning streak snapped, praised the Hawkeyes for their coolness under fire and their patience.

"You have to attribute that (the comeback) to their patience," Thompson said. "Their team play won it. Their shot selection was good. When we were on them they didn't rattle, but we knew they wouldn't."

In all, Walte scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half. Junior forward Vince Brookens led Iowa with 22 points and Boyle added 14. Sophomore guard Eric Floyd of Georgetown led all scorers with 31 points and was named the MVP of the East regional.

From a 32-32 tie with 2:58 left in the first half, Georgetown went on a 14-1 run — 10 in the first half — to open a 46-32 lead on Floyd's driving layup with 18:54 remaining.

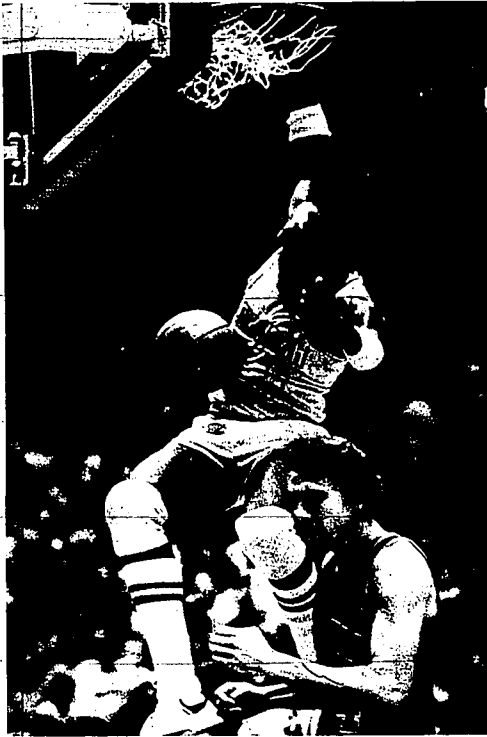

The Hoyas' lead was 62-50 on Shelton's 3-point play with 12:45 left before Iowa began chipping away at the lead behind the inside play of Walte — who was 4-of-4 from the field and 7-of-7 from the free throw line — and the perimeter shooting of Boyle.

Walte, who replaced starting center Steve Kratslein midway through the second half, scored 6 straight points and later rammed home an offensive rebound to complete a 12-4 spurt and draw the Hawkeyes within 68-66 with 6:55 to play. Iowa tied the score 70-70 on a Bob Hansen jumper before taking the lead on a jumper by Boyle.

Iowa took its only lead of the first half, 16-15, when Brookens hit a pair of free throws with 13:17 left. But Mike Frazier converted a 3-point play to launch the Hoyas on an 11-4 spurt that enabled them to open a 32-24 on Shelton's short jumper with 5:33 left.

The Hawkeyes tied it with a 8-0 tear, knotting the game on a layup by Kratslein with 2:58 left. Iowa never scored again in the half as Georgetown went on a 10-0 run.

Iowa shot 71 percent from the floor in the second half to finish the game hitting 61 percent of its shots.

Late three-point play earns Hawkeye victory

HOUSTON (UPI) — Sooner or later, it seems, Darrell Griffith will get you. And he got LSU Sunday.

Griffith, whose leaping ability and smooth outside shot has made him one of the nation's leading players, found himself plagued by fouls in the early stages of Sunday's Midwest Regional final, but he still found a way to do what he has done so often during his four-year career — spark the Louisville Cardinals to victory.

The fourth-ranked Cardinals, with Griffith leading the way early in the second half, broke away from the second-ranked Tigers and ran off an 85-66 decision that put Louisville into the Final Four of the NCAA tournament.

"Our game plan was to get on them early and Darrell jumped on them a little too much," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum, referring to Griffith's foul problems. "I didn't think I was all that nervous," said Griffith. "They were just fouls. But we just stuck to our game plan without me in there and it worked."

The one-sided decision, one of the most lopsided games in the NCAA tournament, came as a surprise to most of the capacity crowd at the Summit Arena, but it was mostly a surprise to Crum.

"There is something about this team. I don't understand it," said Crum. "I said earlier in the year that I didn't know if we would be that competitive. I don't know about this team, except these guys play hard. They love each other and they play together."

LSU Coach Dale Brown did not have any trouble putting his finger on the reason his team could not make a game of it.

"Our starting five did not contribute at all," said Brown. "Louisville created more problems than anybody has this year. They are the best team we've played. I don't think any team can beat them in the national finals."

The Cardinals thus made the Final Four for the fourth time in their history and met Iowa next Saturday. A victory in that game would put Louisville in its first NCAA championship game ever.

Griffith, master of the slam dunk and the all-time leading scorer at Louisville, picked up his first foul in the initial two seconds of the game and had three fouls within nine minutes left in the opening half.

"He plays only six minutes of the first half and his absence allowed LSU, 26-6, to run off a streak of 16 straight points and take a 29-21 lead with four minutes to go in the half. Griffith returned, however, to assist the Cardinals in scoring the final 10 points of the half and give Louisville a 31-29 halftime lead.

With the score tied 33-33 in the early moments of the second half, Griffith scored a basket that put the Cardinals in front for good. He scored 14 points during the first 11 minutes of the second half, including a three-point play that gave Louisville a 55-43 lead.

With 11:05 to go, Griffith stole the ball and went in for one of his flamboyant dunk shots that demoralized the Tigers and symbolically capped the second-half outburst.

Griffith eventually picked up his fourth foul with nine minutes to play in the game, but the Cardinals did not slow down and LSU could get no closer than 11 points thereafter. Griffith finished with 17 points, six five-below-par averages, and Wiley Brown had 16. Rodney McCray added 12 points for Louisville.

Louisville, winners of 31 of their 34 games, made the national semifinals in 1958, 1972 and 1975, but on all three occasions the Cardinals failed to advance to the title game.

This year, however, the Cardinals will likely be the favorites among the Final Four — which includes UCLA and Purdue in addition to Iowa, a come-from-behind 81-80 winner over Georgetown in the East Regional Sunday.

Louisville jumped in front in the early minutes, 12-2, just as it had in the regional semifinals Friday night against Texas A&M. But just as on Friday night, the Cardinals let their lead slip away.

Fueled by a windmill slam dunk by DeWane Scales with 8:50 to play in the opening half, LSU went on a scoring spurt and appeared to have turned the game around. In the midst of the Tigers' 16 straight points were four long-range baskets by Jody Hultberg.

But only 10 seconds left with 17 points while star forward Scales had only 10.

The Tigers could not score a single point during the final four minutes of the half while Griffith and Brown got Louisville back in the game with 10 consecutive points.

Minter awarded split decision

Middleweight division has one champ now

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Englishman Alan Minter piled up points in the early rounds with crisp combinations and an accurate right hand to score a split decision over New Yorker Vito Antuofermo Sunday and capture the undisputed middleweight championship.

The two judges voting in favor of the challenger gave Minter a 144-141 advantage on one card and 146-137 on the other. The third judge scored the bout 145-143 for Antuofermo.

The bout pitted boxer against brawler as Minter, a southpaw from Sussex, England, consistently landed with both hands on the face of the onrushing Antuofermo.

Antuofermo, 158 1/2, appeared stronger as the bout wore on and seemed to dislodge the punching ability of Minter, 159 3/4. Antuofermo appeared to be in charge in the second half of the fight, sacrificing his head and accepting left-right combinations he tried to set up the knockout punch.

Antuofermo, who won the middleweight championship last time in a decision over Hugo Corro of Monte Carlo, opened a large cut over Minter's right eye with a hard left hand in the 12th round.

Antuofermo had been cut several rounds earlier but the blood posed no major problem for the brawler.

There was only one knockdown in the fight as Antuofermo caught Minter with a straight left to the head and the English boxer slipped to the canvas. Minter's record improved to 38-5 while Antuofermo slipped to 45-4.

Las Vegas begins mountain climbing on NIT's big boys

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nevada-Las Vegas' Jerry Tarkanian, 11, sporting the best career winning percentage in NCAA history, will go mountain climbing tonight.

Tarkanian's Rebels, participating in their first National Invitation Tournament, take on Virginia and 7-foot-4 freshman center Ralph Sampson in the second game of the semifinals, scheduled for 9 p.m. EST.

"I don't know how any team in the country can match up with Sampson," says Tarkanian, who has matched up well enough over the years to post an 830 winning percentage. "It'll be interesting to see if we've improved enough over the year to play an Atlantic Coast Conference team even. Earlier, we weren't playing well enough, but we have a very young team that's getting better all the time."

One of those improving youngsters is freshman forward Sidney Green, a 6-foot-9 leaper, whose average of 15.8 points and 11.2 rebounds per game leads Nevada-Las Vegas in both categories. The Rebels' Rebels' scoring average of 79 points per game is the best among the four NIT finalists and they'll have to keep moving to land the Cavaliers.

After a 23-7 regular season record, Nevada-Las Vegas has beaten Washington, Long Beach State and St. Peter's in postseason play. Michael Johnson, Green and sophomore Michael Burns have taken turns leading the Rebels in NIT scoring and Virginia Coach Terry Holland finds it easy to analyze Monday night's matchup.

"It'll be our size against their quickness," said Holland, who guided the Cavaliers to a 22-10 record, but only a 7-7 mark in the ACC. Virginia was 14-1 at home and defeated Lafayette, Boston College and Michigan in NIT competition.

Sampson, voted the ACC Rookie of the Year, averaged 14.6 points and 11 rebounds per game over the regular season. He comes off a 26-point effort against Michigan but Holland doesn't think Sampson's offense is vital to the Cavaliers' championship hopes.

"We need a good game from Ralph Monday night, but that doesn't mean he has to score a lot," Holland says. "He can dominate a game defensively also."

Sampson, who finished behind Jeff Lamp in scoring, led the nation with almost five blocked shots per game and hit 53 percent from the field. Virginia shot 50 percent as a team while holding opponents to a 43 percent mark.

"We played very well against Michigan," says Holland. "We had good rhythm and controlled the ball — that's what we have to do against Nevada-Las Vegas."

When Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher wants to control the ball, he tells his team to look for senior Kevin McHale, who will present a large mobile problem for Illinois. McHale, 6-11, who averaged 18 points and 9 rebounds per game, is the leading cruncher in the Golden Gopher's pivotal inside game.

"Our size is our strength," says Dutcher. "We like to run the break when we can, but if not, we try to get the ball inside." Randy Breer, a 7-foot-2 freshman who averaged 16 minutes per game in the regular season, has been playing an increasingly important role. He and McHale each have 40 points in the NIT.

Floyd's chip-in sinks Nicklaus in sudden death playoff

Jack Nicklaus chips out of trouble to save par here but it wasn't enough as he lost the Doral open title to Ray Floyd in sudden death

MIAMI (UPI) — Ray Floyd sank a 20-foot chip shot on the second playoff hole Sunday to spoil Jack Nicklaus' bid for a comeback victory and win the $45,000 first prize in the Doral Open golf tournament.

On the green, it had looked as if Nicklaus was going to collect his first victory since the summer of 1973 as he knocked his second shot to within four feet of the hole while Floyd had to chip from the fringe of the green.

But Floyd's chip went in for a birdie 3 and Nicklaus' four-foot putt faded to the right of the hole, costing him the tournament.

Both men had played the first playoff hole at the 15th in par 3 after finishing regulation play tied at 8-under par 279, a stroke ahead of Keith Fergus.

Floyd fired a blazing 6-under-par 66 in the final round despite a fickle wind gusting over 25 mph. Nicklaus shot a Sunday 69.

Nicklaus slipped to five feet and sank the putt and Floyd whipped to send it into a playoff. The two veteran pros had staged a dogged duel down the stretch.

On the 10th hole, Fergus pulled ahead with an eagle three, but Nicklaus tied it with a 7-foot birdie putt on the 11th.

A bogey on the 13th hole cost Nicklaus the lead again but when he saved par with an 8-foot putt on the 14th, he started rolling.

A birdie 2 on the 15th put him into a tie with Fergus and he took the lead by sinking a 20-foot putt from the fringe at the 16th.

In NBA play

Lakers rip Phoenix 128-106

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Rookie Magic Johnson had 21 points, 13 rebounds and 13 assists Sunday to spark the Los Angeles Lakers to a 128-106 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

The victory increased the Lakers' Pacific Division lead to 7 1/2 games over Seattle and virtually eliminated the Suns from contention. Phoenix trails by 1/2 games.

Los Angeles broke to a 34-16 first period lead as Johnson collected 13 points while hitting all five of his field goal tries. Phoenix never came closer than 10 points the rest of the way.

The Lakers, the NBA's top shooting team, hit 16-of-49 shots in the first period and were more than 58 percent from the field through three quarters when they took a 38-7 tie.

Rockets 102, Det. 99

FONTANA, Mich. (UPI) — Moses Malone scored 25 points and Allen Leavell added 21 Sunday to help the Houston Rockets snap a four-game losing streak with a 102-99 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

The loss was the sixth straight for Detroit and 21st in the last 23 games for the team with the worst record in the NBA.

Hawks 94, Pacers 90

ATLANTA (UPI) — Dan Roundfield scored 18 points, including 7 in the final quarter, to send the Atlanta Hawks to a 94-90 victory over the Indiana Pacers Sunday.

The Pacers drew within a point, 89-88, with a 2:28 left on George McGinnis' 3-point play. After a dunk by Roundfield with 2:10 left, Armando Hill hit a 16-footer to give Atlanta a 93-88 cushion with 1:29 remaining.

Indiana's James Edwards connected on an eight-footer to cut Atlanta's lead to 89-90 in the third quarter. Eddie Johnson then made two free throws with three seconds remaining to win it for the Hawks.

N.Y. 133, Bullets 124

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Ray Williams scored 38 points Sunday in leading a balanced New York attack and the Knicks rallied in the third quarter to defeat the Washington Bullets 133-124.

Toby Knight had 27 points, Michael Ray Richardson added 25 and Bill Cartwright 24 for the Knicks. Elvin Hayes scored a season-high 43 for the Bullets.

Bucks 128, Kings 121

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Bob Lanier scored 20 points Sunday to lead the Milwaukee Bucks over Kansas City 128-121 and into first place past the Kings in the Midwest Division.

The score was tied 106-106 with 7:30 remaining in the nationally televised game when the Bucks outscored the Kings 19-2, with four points each by Dave Meyers and Quinn Buckner, to put Milwaukee ahead 119-108.

Pat Cummings, Buckner and Brian Winters each had 18 points for the Bucks while Marques Johnson, Junior Bridgeman and Meyers had 16 each. Len Elmore had a season-high 23 to lead Kansas City, while Otis Birdsong had 22 and Phil Ford 20.

Spurs 120, Nets 107

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (UPI) — James Silas scored a game-high 33 points and George Gervin added 27 Sunday to lift the San Antonio Spurs to a 120-107 decision over the New Jersey Nets.

With Silas scoring 12 of his points in the second quarter, the Spurs, who led 35-31 after the first period, pulled away to a 67-52 halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way. At one point, San Antonio held an 83-61 lead with 7:24 left in the third quarter and the Nets were never able to narrow the deficit to less than 12 points.

Heavy skiers steamroll mountain

CARRABASSET VALLEY, Maine (UPI) — About 30 overweight skiers downed a "training" breakfast of eggs, bacon, sausage and potatoes Sunday, then weighed in on cow scales before barreling down a mountain.

inside in the World Heavyweight Ski Championships.

Carey at Sugarloaf Mountain. "You've got to be at least 225 pounds to enter, and most are much bigger."

John Truden, 482 pounds, sails to heavy ski title

Truden won this year's race with a "corrected" time of 38 seconds for two slalom runs over a 16-gate course, followed by Terry Newcombe of Akron, N.Y. at 35 1/2 seconds.

"Biceps are 'handicapped' — and receive a half-second deduction from their total time for every 10 pounds they weigh over 225 pounds.

The skiers "ate very heartily" on a 96-pound steamship round of beef at the "heavyweight banquet" Saturday night, Carey said.

"They hung it from the ceiling, from the rafters, and after the first serving some of the guys went up there and started gnawing at it," Newcombe, last year's champion who weighs in at about 300 pounds, "It was succulent and savory."

The racers then savoried down a huge breakfast of eggs, bacon, sausage and potatoes Sunday before weighing in on "not too accurate" fatbed cow scales.

"We had a guy last year, Bubba Regan of East Lyme, Conn., who must have eaten three pounds of bacon and at least a dozen scrambled eggs," Carey said.

The skiers pay three cents a pound to enter the slalom race, regardless of size and stature. I guess some of the guys do and are so used to people taking a second look at them that they like it.
