

Home taxes lighter

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's homeowners will receive a $10,000 or 20 percent of market value exemption from property taxes, whichever is less.

The so-called homestead exemption bill was signed into law by Gov. John Evans Friday.

In other actions Friday, the governor signed the Legislature's appropriation for the Department of Law Enforcement, which is authorized to take lawmakers for failing to combat drug trafficking, and vetoed a measure designed to allow the Legislature to change agency rules more easily.

"In the last 10 years, there has been a gradual shift of property taxes from income-producing property to homeowners," Evans said about the need for a homeowners' exemption. "We found that under the current property tax freeze that the average taxes of homeowners were cut only 34 percent compared to about 50 percent for utility firms and more than a third for commercial property."

"We had to right the wrong and this bill provides the basic tax relief."

Evans said the homeowners exemption bill is not related to the 1 percent property tax-cut law, and that a shift in burden should now go to the income-producing property.

"This bill provides a measure of equity for the homeowner," Evans said.

The bill applies to owner-occupied homes and owners must apply for the exemptions by July 1.

Evans signed into law a bill he said would provide "adequate funding" for Idaho's Law Enforcement Department, but attacked the Legislature for ignoring the need to combat drug problems.

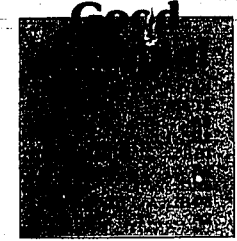

"The Idaho Legislature has shown no support in its appropriation for the Department of Law Enforcement for the effort to combat the ever-increasing dangerous drug and narcotics problem in Idaho," Evans said in a letter to House Speaker Ralph Olmstead. "In the last year, we have seen an alarming amount of dangerous drugs come into the state. The narcotics are being smuggled into Idaho in quantities and quantities that we have never seen before."

Evans had asked lawmakers to approve a five-point plan designed to combat the drug problems and to "shut down the local pusher who's making a fat, illegal profit from our school children."

Legislators "flatly denied" Evans' plan and also cut out 25 percent of the Narcotics Bureau's salary increase funds, which will require the Law Enforcement Department to lay off at least two investigators by the end of the year, Evans said.

Evans said he signed the appropriations measure despite the inadequacies, saying the Legislature must confront the problems in the future by providing additional funding.

The governor vetoed a bill designed to give legislators the power to more easily change state agency rules, saying the measure would bypass the executive branch and avoid public comment.

St. Helens spouts steam, gas, ashes

COUGAR, Wash. (UPI) — Columns of steam and gases burst more than two miles into the sky over erupting Mount St. Helens Friday.

The vented materials spread east over a wide area of southern Washington.

Law enforcement officials, fearful of more violent activity, ordered observers to move farther down the mountain and warned residents of the small town of Toutle River 25 miles from the summit to be prepared for possible evacuation.

But Harry R. Truman, 83, operator of the St. Helens Lodge high on the mountain, refused to leave.

"That mountain just doesn't dare blow up on me," Truman said. "Any way, I've got a secret place up here on high ground where I hid a grub stake

Offshore oil disaster claims 137

Men trapped in rig feared dead

STAVANGER, Norway (UPI) — There was little hope early today that any survivors would be found from history's worst offshore oil disaster.

Authorities expected the death toll to reach 137.

Rescue workers abandoned hope Friday night that any of the 99 men missing in the collapse of their massive floating "hotel" rig would be found in the sunken structure.

Of the 228 people aboard the four-story "hotel" when it collapsed with "an almighty crack" in the stormy North Sea Thursday, 91 were known to have survived and 38 bodies have been found.

The 10,105-ton football field-sized oil platform, Alexander Kielland, overturned in 72 mph winds and 23-foot-high waves when one of its five pontoon legs collapsed just two days before it was to be taken out of service.

Peter Grosch, supervisor of one of three deep sea diving bells aiding in the search,

Survivors describe panic as platform capsized. All said late Friday. "If anybody was going to get out, they would be out."

"Anyone still inside the vessel would have got hypothermia by now anyway."

Hypothermia is an abnormally low body temperature caused by extreme cold. "Our judgement is there's very little likelihood of life on board the Kielland at this moment," said Forrest C. Morgen, drilling and production manager for the Phillips Petroleum Co., operators of the rig.

Morgen said a last hope that men had been able to survive in air pockets inside the sunken rig was eliminated when divers found most of the windows on the rig had been smashed under the impact of waves.

The last survivors were picked up from life rafts about noon Friday.

"We've never had great loss of life before in rig disasters," a spokesman for Lloyd's of London-insurers said. "This must be the worst disaster as far as loss of life goes."

A flotilla of 20 ships, 23 helicopters and dozens of planes and scuba diving teams worked the wind-whipped 41-degree waters of Norway's Ekofisk offshore oilfields 175 miles southwest of Stavanger.

Submerged but still attached to the five overturned pontoons on which the workers' quarters rested were four stories' rooms and recreation areas where many of the missing were believed entombed.

Survivors said they believed "quite a few" men were trapped when panic spread through the rig as it began to turn turtle.

Of the 91 persons rescued, only 50 remained in the hospital Friday.

Senators to return to Boise

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Senate leadership grudgingly said Friday the body would reconvene Monday.

Senators voted to call it quits for the year Thursday afternoon, but the House refused to go along.

The Senate's abrupt return from sine die adjournment without a special session call from the governor would be unprecedented in Idaho legislative history.

Senate President Pro-Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said in light of an attorney's opinion he casts a cloud over the validity of the Senate's sine die adjournment, the majority leadership with concurrence of the minority agreed to reconvene at 9 a.m.

Senate Majority Leader James Risch, R-Boise, said it would be a brief meeting Monday. Risch, the ramrod of the Senate "final" adjournment drive Thursday, said the senators would reconvene to act on some bills to avoid a special session later in the year.

He said the Senate would consider only three measures — bills appropriating $22 million to the Department of Health and Welfare.

But he ran in to immediate opposition from GOP leaders in the House.

House Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, while not saying he would try to coerce Risch and the other Senate Republicans, indicated he would be upset if the Senate also did not vote on two Office of Energy appropriations bills.

Those measures and the Health and Welfare appropriations were the reasons for the House's unanimous refusal Thursday to concur with the Senate's sine die intentions — another apparently unprecedented legislative happening.

The first three bills had been approved earlier by the Senate, but were amended in the House to pour more funds into the Health and Welfare programs.

"We will work for 30 minutes," Risch said Monday, adding that he didn't expect a full Senate because some of the senators "won't be available because of other commitments."

The House met briefly Friday as a formality, having cleared its calendar Thursday. The body then voted to adjourn until 10 a.m. Monday.

After the Senate adjourned sine die Thursday afternoon, there was outrage in the House. "They just think they adjourned sine die," one member commented rebelliously in a House corridor.

Then, in another unprecedented action, the House voted unanimously not to concur in the Senate's sine die move.

Following weekend adjournment Friday morning, Olmstead said he hoped the Senate would process the House-passed bills providing supplemental funds to the Office of Energy for the retrofit energy conservation program and for retention of the emergency fuel allocation service.

"If they don't respond, it would look like if they were giving justification for some action by the governor," Olmstead said.

He said this means Senate refusal to act on the Office of Energy bills might provoke Gov. John Evans to call a special session, or find funds for the office from some other source.

In announcing the Senate's decision to reconvene, Budge said: "We believe both bodies of the Legislature now are in a position to expedite the House's unfinished business and bring the session of the Legislature to a speedy close."

Without the Senate's "bold" move toward adjournment Thursday, the Senate leader said, "the session may have been destined to drag on with little positive action and unnecessary expense to the taxpayers."

Budge said he anticipates the Senate will be able to act quickly Monday on the Health and Welfare funding bills amended by the House and that both bodies then will move swiftly toward adjournment sine die.

Adjournment without further delay will mean both houses will have carried out their agency funding obligations and that the one percent initiative will be implemented," Budge said.

Risch was emphatic that when the Senate reconvenes it will not consider any of the 1 percent legislation from the House.

He also noted that if the Senate had refused to come back, it probably would have resulted in a special session call by the governor.

"We're trying to get around a special session — that is the list of what we're doing," Risch said. "Hopefully that's the end of the story."

Towering up to 6,000 feet above Mt. St. Helens, a cloud of dust rises at dawn Friday above overcast which shrouds the volcano.

Silver market, brokers survive near collapse

WASHINGTON — Silver prices stopped falling Friday, then climbed back up, preventing the turmoil in the silver market from escalating into a broader economic crisis.

Until the market stabilized Friday morning, the multibillion-dollar losses of silver speculators were threatening to bring down several Wall Street firms, including The Bache Group, the nation's fifth-largest broker.

After plunging $5 an ounce Thursday to $10.85 — the lowest since last summer — silver rebounded to $13.25 an ounce in trading on the New York Commodity Exchange.

The move enabled Bache to sell all the silver investments it held for the billionaire Hunt brothers of Texas, who the day before had said even they could no longer afford losses that were approaching $100 million a day.

After meeting in the afternoon with bankers who offered to loan the firm $24 million, Bache said it would not need the money because it had been able to liquidate the Hunt's holdings without loss.

Losses of $14 million were reported, however, by two other brokers, Faine Webber Inc. and A.G. Edwards.

Bache's position was so precarious Thursday night that it asked the Commodity Futures Trading Commission to shut down the silver market and to prop up prices.

The commission, which regulates the commodity markets, refused and emphasized Friday that "no price will be artificially administered by this agency."

Shah 'doing well' after removal of spleen

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — The deposed shah of Iran underwent surgery for removal of his cancerous spleen Friday night and was reported to be in "stable condition" and "doing well," his doctors said.

A medical bulletin released through the State Information Service said the operation was "carried out satisfactorily" at the Maadi military hospital by a team of at least 20 doctors and assistants, headed by famed Houston heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey. But the bulletin added that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was under intensive care and pathological tests were carried out on samples taken from body organs — possibly to determine whether the shah's diagnosed lymphatic cancer has spread beyond the spleen.

The team of foreign and Egyptian doctors "operated to remove the shah's spleen Friday evening," it said. "The operation was carried out satisfactorily."

The operation was performed four days after the deposed monarch arrived in "permanent" exile in Egypt from Panama.

In Houston, Frank Baylor, vice president of Baylor College of Medicine and a spokesman for DeBakey, said:

"Dr. DeBakey and a combined team from Egypt and the Baylor College of Medicine successfully performed a splenectomy on the shah of Iran earlier this evening in Cairo. The operation was completed a little before midnight. The shah is stable and doing very well, according to DeBakey."

Russia, Iran agree to talk

United Press International
Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said Friday the Soviet Union has agreed to open negotiations with Iran on the Soviet occupation of neighboring Afghanistan.

In an interview with the official Iranian Pars news agency, Ghotbzadeh said he had been informed by the Soviet ambassador to Iran that "the Soviet government is agreeable to direct negotiations with Iran about Afghanistan towards solving the problem of that country."

But Ghotbzadeh, whose interview was broadcast by Tehran Radio and monitored by the BBC in London, did not so much as mention the 50 American hostages being held in the U.S. Embassy for the 146th day.

Nor was there any immediate Iranian reaction to a low-keyed but pointed warning by a State Department spokesman that the United States has not ruled out the use of force if the crisis drags on without a solution.

Afghan rebels report fighting

United Press International
An Afghan rebel spokesman claimed Friday Islamic tribesmen killed 200 Soviet and Afghan government troops in repelling an attack on rebel strongholds in Nangarhar province, bordering on Pakistan.

Detail was made by the spokesman for the exiled Hizbe Islami party in Peshawar, Pakistan. Heavy fighting and additional Soviet casualties also were reported by other rebel sources.

In New Delhi, Indian officials quoted visiting Pakistani rebel spokesman, Yasser-Arafat, as saying the Palestine Liberation Organization is exerting its influence with world leaders to solve the crisis in Afghanistan.

Soviets execute Afghans daily

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviets are holding an estimated 15,000 political prisoners in Afghanistan and are executing approximately 50 of them every night, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Friday.

Christopher told a meeting of the Overseas Writers Club the Russians have destroyed "entire villages and I expect these atrocities to increase." He said there is no indication the Soviets intend to withdraw from Afghanistan.

In laying out what he described as the "brutal life and death facts" of the Soviet invasion, Christopher emphasized that American efforts to make the Russians pay for their aggression will continue as long as troops remain in Afghanistan.

He estimated that 500 to 600 Russian soldiers are killed or seriously injured in the occupied territory each week for a total of between 6,000 and 7,000 since the invasion began in late December.

Christopher said 500,000 Afghans have fled their homeland, going mainly to neighboring Pakistan. He also said there is mounting evidence the Soviets are using "lethal poison gas" in addition to an incapacitating kind of gas.

The Soviet and loyal Afghan forces are firing on Moslem mosques, he said.

Dairy prices to increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal support price for milk is expected to rise 7.5 percent Tuesday, boosting prices of milk for consumers by 8 cents per gallon, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Some of the 8-cent price increase has already occurred in anticipation of the semi-annual hike in federal supports.

The support price is expected to raise retail cheese and butter prices 9 cents per pound.

Subject to data from a farm price report on Monday, the new support level is expected to be $12.06 per 100 pounds of milk, up 84 cents from a level set Oct. 1 and up $1.55, or 15 percent, from a level set a year ago.

Rains cause deadly mudslides

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Torrential rains hit mountainous regions of eastern and western Turkey for the second day Friday, causing landslides and collapsing houses and bridges in scores of villages. More than 70 people were feared dead.

Officials said at least 22 bodies had been recovered. Worst hit was the mountainous Kayseri Province of central Turkey. In the village of Ayvazhaci, a landslide engulfed several houses and flood waters swept through the streets.

"At least 50 people were killed" in Ayvazhaci, the province's governor, Babar Unsal, said. Rescue teams recovered 28 bodies by Thursday afternoon.

The main highway linking Ankara and Adana was closed by floods and two rescue workers were drowned.

Two villagers were drowned and three injured by falling rocks in the remote mountain village of Culluagasi and in nearby Camdere, near Adana.

In the region of Kahraman Maras in southeastern Turkey, one out of every 25 houses was flooded, several bridges collapsed and about 500 livestock were swept away to their deaths.

Terrorists die in police raid

ROME (UPI) — Special state police Friday killed four guerrillas, including a woman, in a dawn raid on a leftist Red Brigades hideout in Genoa and found an apparent hit list of 3,000 prominent Italians.

A policeman was wounded in the exchange of gunfire.

Hundreds of police swarmed through homes, buses and railway stations in northern Italy after the special counter-terrorist squad of the paramilitary state police (Carabinieri) wearing bulletproof vests and helmets shot their way into the urban guerrilla hideout in Genoa.

Police sources said the special squad, which had the hideout under surveillance, burst in when they spotted men going inside to thwart what they thought was an imminent Red Brigades assassination.

Police filled a dozen plastic sacs, bags and suitcases with weapons, explosives, radio equipment, a typewriter, documents and clothes found in the hideout.

They also found a list of 3,000 people, including magistrates, politicians, policemen and journalists, with details of the habits and movements of each.

New hostage talks set

BOTOLTA, Colombia (UPI) — Negotiations for the release of 25 hostages, including 11 diplomats, held captive by leftist guerrillas for 31 days, will resume next Tuesday, a foreign ministry source said Friday.

"The government expects that some of the non-diplomatic hostages will be released that same day," the source said.

The guerrillas have demanded a $50 million ransom and freedom for 31 jailed leftists in return for the release of the hostages, including U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, who are captors in the embassy of the Dominican Republic. Seven rounds of talks have so far failed.

Gold mine death toll 31

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The death toll has risen to 31 from the 28 in the world's deepest gold mine, in which an elevator cable snapped and plunged miners more than a mile to their deaths, officials said Friday.

An investigation has been started into Thursday's accident at the Van der Riet mine, about 100 miles southwest of Johannesburg, officials said.

The Alexander Kielland, like the rig meant to replace it, was a semi-submersible platform, a type of structure which has a base floating on a raft. The raft, while under water, does not touch the bottom of the sea.

Only four of the platform's five pontoon supports, bobbing up and down on the surface of the icy North Atlantic, marked the spot where shortly after dinner Thursday night, most of the 228 workers had gathered to watch the latest movie from Stavanger, Norway's principal support base for its offshore oil operations.

Farm group no longer backs grain embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest general farm organization, announced Friday it no longer supports President Carter's grain embargo against Russia.

Delano said Bergland refused to exercise his authority to pay farmers not to plant grain equivalent to the embargoed amount. Farmers are hardest hit among citizens making economic sacrifices at a time when soaring inflation and near impossible credit conditions have caused a cash flow crisis in rural America," Delano said.

Moscow Olympic dealings barred

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday barred American firms from doing any business with the Soviet Union in connection with the Moscow Summer Olympics, an order that may prevent NBC from televising the games.

Banking system overhauled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to make sweeping changes in the nation's banking system, including virtually certain increases in interest rates on savings accounts, won final congressional approval in the Senate Friday.

Volcano's eruption sends dust high over Washington

At mid-morning Friday, billowing clouds of smoke erupted at the 4,800 to 5,000-foot level of the volcano, sending forest rangers scurrying from a ranger station at Spirit Lake, near the glacial headwaters of Pine and Muddy creeks.

"I can't give any information, we are evacuating," a woman at the St. Helens ranger station said.

The glacial steam and other materials poured skyward, adding still more debris into the smoke-filled sky. Three miles long, the other mile-long melted the volcano's snow pack and sent water cascading down the slopes.

Another explosion early Friday sent a vertical column of steam, ash and foul-smelling sulfur gas rising 10,000 feet above the summit, which has been compared in beauty to Japan's Mount Fujiyama.

Gentle winds spread the gases to the east across southern Washington.

Ash was falling five miles from the crescent-shaped fissure near the volcano's summit, and officials said "an avalanche of ash" flowed down the peak's northwest flank.

Residents of Cougar, 12 miles from the summit, and Toutle River, about 35 miles from the volcano's base, were warned to be ready for possible evacuation because of the latest explosion.

But Dot Elmire, owner of the Cougar store, said she would "leave unless a lot of ash starts falling."

At Drew's Grocery in Toutle, business was brisk as people stocked up in preparation for whatever emergency might take place.

"There were plenty who were panicking. There were people just throwing things in the back of the car and splitting," said Carol Schaffran, who works in the market.

Dave Smith, owner of the Spirit Lake Lodge, saw a bright side to the volcanic action. He said having the only active volcano in the United States could be the best thing that ever happened to him.

"As far as I'm concerned it would be a bonanza for us because of the tourist trade. We needed a break like this as long as it don't blow its cork entirely and wipe us out."

Potato farmers block border for second day

HOULTON, Maine (UPI) — Highway traffic between the state of Maine and Canada was halted at eight points for the second straight day Friday by hundreds of angry potato farmers who parked their trucks in the roads to demand an end to Canadian potato imports.

State forces were marshaling for a two-pronged assault on the border blockades. Politicians tried to talk the farmers into leaving while more than 100 police officers prepared to break the siege by force.

"Every effort will be made to unblock the roads," Gov. Joseph E. Brennan said. "I hope that it can be done in a peaceful manner."

He dispatched a state airplane to carry House Speaker John C. Martin, D-Eagle Lake, Agriculture Commissioner Stewart N. Smith, and Lawrence P. Greenlaw Jr., his own aide, to Houlton to meet with potato producers.

On arrival, Smith said, "We're going to have a little discussion. I don't know how good the news is going to be."

"If they don't come out with an affirmative answer, we're going to stay right here," said a protest leader.

"We've been up for two days and we might as well stay right here."

"It's up to the Maine government to prevent law and order," said Eugene Whelan, Canada's agriculture minister. "There's nothing we can do about the situation."

The farmers have been squeezed this year between a bumper crop and a flood of potatoes from Canada and the western United States into eastern markets.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, has urged Congress the Maine potato industry is on the verge of extinction.

"The farmers want the U.S. Commerce Department to buy surplus potatoes and sell them for cattle feed in order to relieve the downward pressure on potato prices."

The U.S. government has refused to ban imports or raise tariffs and the Commerce Department has rejected the so-called diversion plan.

Police allowed only official vehicles to approach the border area where farmers had parked empty trucks and dumped tons of potatoes onto roadways. The farmers demanded the U.S. government ban the import of cheap potatoes from Canada.

Demonstrators, nation recall nuclear accident

United Press International

From beneath the shadows of Three Mile Island to a small town in central Texas, demonstrations Friday marked the first anniversary of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

More than 200 residents living in the vicinity of the disabled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., held a somber vigil, some chanting, "No more nukes, my Lord, no more nukes."

"We shall not give up," said the Rev. Bill Vastine. "The eyes of the world are on Harrisburg today. We will not give in to this technology."

In Parsippany, N.J., 50 anti-nuclear demonstrators were arrested for defying police orders not to trespass on the property of the General Public Utilities Corp., owner of the Three Mile Island plant.

In Glen Rose, Texas, 10 members of a nuclear protest group were taken into custody for blocking the entrance to the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant construction site.

A small group of demonstrators protested outside Northeast Utilities corporate headquarters in Berlin, Conn. Two of the demonstrators were arrested. The utility operates three nuclear plants in Connecticut and has a fourth under construction.

"I look at the cooling towers so much I can't concentrate on my work," said Fran Cain, a lay poolside groomer who lives about 50 yards away from the Three Mile Island nuclear plant as one of its closest neighbors. The vigil was held in her front yard.

"When I put my head on my pillow at night, I wonder whether something is going to happen," she said. "I know there are a lot of people who think differently, but I still have some terror and fear."

Chisako Oodoru, 59, a survivor of the 1945 Hiroshima bomb blast was introduced to the Harrisburg, Pa., crowd and said she was working for a "non-nuclear future."

Among the protesters was Edith Althouse, 59, who said, "I am here for my seven grandchildren. I'm concerned about their future."

Mrs. Althouse and the others sang the African folk song, "Kum By Yah," which in English means, "Come by here," while maintaining the vigil.

In the last several days, anger and frustration among Harrisburg, Pa., area residents has intensified. Up to 10,000 people were expected near Three Mile Island this weekend to mark the proposed eventual reopening of the facility.

The Three Mile Island accident, which prompted a broad examination of the safety of nuclear power, was introduced to the Harrisburg, Pa., crowd and said she was working for a "non-nuclear future."

The accident occurred when a combination of human and mechanical errors triggered a temporary breakdown of the plant's cooling system. It severely damaged the nuclear reactor which houses the uranium core.

What's what

Why women get gray hair earlier than men unknown

That women get gray hair on the average five years earlier than men is known, but the why of it is still under study.

...Why Charlie the Tuna and the Jolly Green Giant have in common is the voice of Herschel Bernardi. But Bernardi's voice is not just for caricature, might mention. If there is a more gifted actor in the entire world than that man, I don't know who said genius might be.

The coffee in old Vienna centuries ago tasted terrible. Bitter. So the coffeehouse waiters served glasses of water to each patron every 30 minutes to dilute the biting brew. Taste of that coffee over the generations has much improved. But Vienna's waiters still replace the glasses of water every 30 minutes or so, whether still full or otherwise. It's traditional.

SCALD AND 'O'

Q. In ancient Scotland, both "Mac" and "O" meant "son of." What was the difference?
A. Mac meant legitimate, O illegitimate.

Some doctors contend you can relieve a migraine headache by immersing your hands and forearms in very hot water.

Q. When we go to metric measurements, how will a woman order a bra size 32AA? How about a 45DD?
A. The 32AA will be 70/80. The 45DD will be 94/112.5. The number before the slash is the standard size. The number after the slash is the inches-to-centimeters conversion.

"True peace can only exist when the power of love exceeds the love of power." Who said that?

PUBLIC UNPREDICTABLE

Political theory is the public can be sold just about any song-and-dance, if the seller has enough money to put on a good campaign. But history doesn't bear that out. The public is unpredictable. It will go wild spontaneously on something like citizens band radio. But reject the metric system. It took to the minister in a flash. But it isn't buying the Susan B. Anthony dollar. Nobody underwrote the promotion of long hair on young men. The style spread worldwide. An immense amount of money was put into advertising the revolutionary rotary engine. It flopped.

Carter accuses Mobil of $45 million overcharge

JIMMY CARTER
"customers overcharged"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter rebuked the Mobil Oil Corp. Friday for disregarding his voluntary wage-price guidelines and said the second largest oil company had overcharged consumers at least $45 million.

Administration officials said some other big oil firms may have done the same.

In a speech to a committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures, Carter declared that Mobil has refused a government request to return the money to consumers in the form of lower prices.

"It's difficult for me to understand Mobil's position at a time when most business firms are acting responsibly to observe the price standards that are so important to our nation," he said.

Carter did not threaten any specific action against the firm, and the White House made clear it was hoping the public embarrassment to Mobil would convince it to take corrective action. But White House press secretary Jody Powell indicated stronger steps were under consideration, telling reporters: "There are a number of (other steps) that might be productive. We are looking intensely at them."

"Our goal here is to pursue this company to give back to the American people the amount by which they have exceeded" the guidelines, Powell said.

Powell said Mobil had domestic profits of $659 million last year and the firm's failure to abide by the guidelines "cannot be justified on the basis of hardship."

He added that he hoped consumers would be aware of a firm's record when deciding who to patronize.

Robert Russell, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, told reporters later about 10 other firms have been sent a notice of non-compliance — the initial government step in finding a violation of the wage-price guidelines. He declined to identify the firms, which may now appeal the finding, but said they included some near Mobil's size.

Russell said three smaller oil firms besides Mobil had been found in violation of the guidelines — Charter Oil Co., Crown Petroleum and Murphy Oil.

"Mobil's overcharges to their customers in the third quarter of this past year exceeded $45 million," Carter said in his speech. "They were asked to bring corrective action by reducing their prices now in order to return on future sales what they have overcharged in the past. So far they have refused to cooperate and meet those standards."

The wage-price council asked Mobil to take corrective action by reducing gasoline prices by 3 cents a gallon for the next 90 days, thereby wiping out the $45 million excess it allegedly accumulated.

Mobil's name will now be added to a list of about 20 other companies that have not complied with the voluntary standards. Those firms may be barred from securing government contracts worth over $5 million each, unless they receive a waiver for national security purposes.

Mobil still could receive any number of federal contracts, however, that are individually worth less than $5 million, but taken together total more than that.

Mobil, in a statement, said Carter's remarks confirm the council's action against Mobil "is politically motivated." It said a Mobil director met with the president's representatives "in an effort to resolve the dispute" on the same day Carter made the charges.

Mobil said the dispute between it and the wage-price council is highly complicated, but said it was caught in a cross-fire between conflicting issues by the council and the Department of Energy.

Carter, in his speech, also defended his proposal to balance the budget in part by slashing some federal dollars that would otherwise have gone to state and local governments.

'Wrinkle' holds up INS pick

© The Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — President Carter's expected nomination of Matt Garcia, a San Antonio, Texas, attorney, to head the Immigration and Naturalization Service has been held up because of a client for whom Garcia posted a $10,000 bond has jumped bail, it was learned Friday.

An administration source voiced confidence, however, that "the minor wrinkle will be ironed out when a hearing is held on the matter in a San Antonio court next week."

Meanwhile, it also was learned that Peter K. Nunez, 37, an assistant U.S. attorney in San Diego specializing in immigration matters, is likely to be named by Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti to the new post of special investigator at the troubled INS.

The investigator will serve as an inspector general and conduct internal investigations in the agency. If Garcia and Nunez are named to the posts, it will mean that two high-level positions at INS will have been filled by lawyers of Hispanic origin.

Officials said that the FBI background check on Garcia, 52, had been completed with no other problems except the civil judgment that Garcia incurred under a Texas law that allows a defense attorney to post bond for a client.

Garcia's client, Augustine Hinojosa, failed to appear in court to face robbery charges in the summer of 1977.

A hearing is to be held next week on whether Garcia is liable for the bond on his missing client.

Garcia is a veteran Texas legislator with a strong civil rights record.

White House to seek extra defense $$$

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is expected to ask Congress next week for an extra $5.2 billion to cover the cost of the Indian Ocean armada, burgeoning military fuel bills and inflation, informed sources said Friday.

The proposal, still being refined, probably will be sent to Capitol Hill early in the week, they said.

It will be presented in the form of a supplemental request to add a net $2.3 billion to the fiscal 1980 military budget of $127 billion, and an amendment to add roughly $2.9 billion to the 1981 military budget of $142.7 billion.

The administration, seeking to make the proposed additions more palatable to a Congress determined to balance the federal budget, has indicated it will back some cuts in military programs.

However, those cutbacks — expected to affect operations, maintenance and readiness — are likely to anger a number of defense-minded legislators in both houses.

Thus the new requests could encounter considerable criticism.

The administration received a blow Thursday from the House Armed Services Committee, which voted 22-17 against funding the Air Force's projected CX airlift plane — the proposed transport for a rapid deployment force.

Congressional sources said Friday the general feeling in the House and Senate was that the Air Force had not thoroughly thought through the CX concept.

Preliminary specifications for the aircraft call for it to lift an XM-1 tank. The craft has a projected range of only about 2,000 miles, which means it must be frequently refueled if used to speed equipment to the Persian Gulf area — the most difficult trouble spot for the United States to reach.

Inflation deflating living styles of Americans high, low

By ANTHONY R. WOOD
United Press International
Union official Butch Foutz priced a new pair of shoes then decided to have his old ones resoled. Electrician Larry Taaca started riding his bicycle to work. Newscaster Ray Snider is playing the stock market less.

With inflation running at 17.2 percent this year and purchasing power declining, people are doing what they can to make more money and spend less of it.

In scores of interviews throughout the country, both white-collar and blue-collar workers said they have been forced to make major adjustments because money just doesn't buy as much as it used to.

St. Louis, Mo., dietary worker Christine Young said she has "cut down on everything, but mostly the unnecessary things."

Richmond, apparently has done a lot of walking.
"I went out last week and looked a pair of shoes," he said. "They were $33 and I turned around and went home. It came to quite a shock. I'm going to take my old shoes down to be resoled."

A side business to make more money and even then, had to pinch pennies.
"My wife and I have made some major changes in our daily lives," he said. "When we go from one room to another, we turn off all the lights. We don't leave any extra lights on."

Bernie Kepke checks lists of household products he will send to customers as part of a second job

"I haven't been able to buy clothes and have cut down food purchases," said Frances Szady, 26, an Augusta, Maine waitress.
Don Fleeger, who works for the Virginia Farm Bureau, said he and his wife are having a hard time explaining to their children why they can't buy them all the things they want.

"They don't understand it," he said. "Money is still cheap to them."
Several people who have made major purchases recently said they did so with long-term savings in mind. Tony Gheorghiev, a mechanical engineer from Greenbrae, Calif., bought an economy car. Another man said he bought new tires for better gas mileage on his present car.

Many said their cost-cutting strategies have dealt with energy — such as turning out lights, burning less oil and using the car a lot less.
"I ride my bicycle to work everyday now," said Taaca of Honolulu.

"I changed jobs recently because of the gasoline situation," said Kren Spring, 26, a Bay Village, Ohio, nurse.
"I got work closer to home."
"My husband switched to a stick-shift automobile from an automatic to save gas," she added.

Foutz, a secretary-treasurer of the Virginia AFL-CIO, who lives in Richmond, apparently has done a lot of walking.

"I went out last week and looked a pair of shoes," he said. "They were $33 and I turned around and went home. It came to quite a shock. I'm going to take my old shoes down to be resoled."

Even folks who used to have more money to play with, are being careful.
"I have cut back on the amount of stock I have been buying," said Snader, a Newport, Tenn., resident.
"The stock market has been so up and down recently I've decided to hold my stock certificates until I can decide what the stock market will do."

St. Louis businessman Jack Jaworski said his family "is trying to shop around a lot more and not buying just when it is convenient."
Those who want to maintain their same life style are finding they need a different way to finance it.

Bernie Kepke of San Francisco said he had no choice but to go into business for himself.
"Everyone working for another man is finding his life style going downhill," he said. "If you want to live at least at the same level as in the past, you need a much larger income, which generally means starting your own business."

Follow San Franciscan Gene Berry, a warehouseman, said he had to set up

A side business to make more money and even then, had to pinch pennies.
"My wife and I have made some major changes in our daily lives," he said. "When we go from one room to another, we turn off all the lights. We don't leave any extra lights on."

"My family lives in the dark," said Marshall Cohen, an Augusta, Ga., electrician. "We try not to use electricity that we don't need."
Some complained that during the winter of 1980, their homes were a lot colder.

"It's been cold enough upstairs to freeze water this winter and my gas bill still keeps going up," said John Holliday, a Louisville, Ky., antiques dealer. "I'm almost sorry I bought a house."
"It's freezing in my house," Frank Saraceno, 35, a Long Island, N.Y., bricklayer said last week. "I turn down the thermostat at night to 55 degrees. My wife and me, my kids freeze."

Even if homes are cooler, people say they are spending more time in them.
"We don't do much of anything, just stay home and do nothing," said John Marshall, a Lincoln, Neb., printer.
"I don't eat out as much," said Loretta Jeneksi, 27, a Boston sales representative, "and I make my date pay for drinks more than I used to."

KANSAS AT HEART
Walter Cronkite says he's just sure he mentioned the Kansas primary in CBS-TV coverage of Tuesday's New York and Connecticut balloting. Kansas Secretary of State Jack Brier says he didn't, and Brier is incensed.
Says Cronkite, "I am really sorry if Mr. Brier or the people in Kansas think I slighted Kansas. It would have been a terrible oversight... My relatives would have rolled in their Kansas graves if it were true. Cronkite hails from nearby St. Joseph, Mo."

RIDING IT OUT
Others may flee the volcano's wrath, but 85-year-old Harry Truman has lived in the shadow of Mount St. Helens in Washington State all his life and he's not about to move. Said he, when urged Thursday to flee the ledge, he runs on the slope of the trembling mountain. "That mountain just doesn't dare blow up on me. Anyway, I've got a secret place up here on high ground where I hid a grub stake and two kegs of whiskey and there's no way I'm going anywhere."

REMEMBER MAMA?
She'll probably never look like Mama Olivia of "The Waltons" again, and that's fine with Michael Learned. She's busy creating a brand new role on Broadway — here she's been signed to costar with Kevin McCarthy in Corinne Jackson's new play "After the Season." It's under rehearsal now —

Richard Harris has summoned Los

Cannibalism hints found

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — British archeologists have unearthed evidence of cannibalism among the inhabitants of Crete around 1450 B.C., a spokesman said Friday.
Dr. H.W. Catling, director of the British School at Athens, said a dig at a Bronze Age house in the town of Knossos found more than 200 human bones, which bore "knife marks exactly comparable to butchery marks on animal bones, which result from removal of the flesh."
Peter Warren of England's Bristol University, who directed the dig, said in a preliminary report, "The bones were not skeletons found in situ, but a jumbled disarticulated heap. Cannibalism was clearly indicated."
He said this was the first evidence of cannibalism among the Minoans of prohistoric Crete, a wealthy, sophisticated people.

Catling said the human bones "have been identified as coming from between 8 and 11 children aged under 10 to 15 years."
Warren could offer no reason for the cannibalism, but suggested "the possibilities of famine or a religious rite."
The archeologists found fragments of miniature frescoes in another room of the house and a series of fine vases, some perhaps used for religious rituals.
"Whatever the remains of these children really mean, it is something new in our experience of the Minoans, something new about that awesome disaster in the mid-15th century B.C. from which Minoan Crete never recovered," Catling said.

DUCKING THE ISSUE

Ohio highway engineer Richard Stockman has had it with the U.S. Environmental Protection agency. It's practicing "unreasonable discrimination against the human animal" with its objection to the road he's building through a swamp. Stockman says it isn't even a natural swamp, but "a duck was seen to land on it." The EPA says he has to build a new swamp and move the duck into it along with a swarm of mosquitoes now sharing the old one. Stockman says the state will appeal.

Lone Ranger offered mask with strings

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Clayton Moore, the TV Lone Ranger unmasked by court order, can reclaim his old mask.

That is, he can if he will help make, perform in, or promote a movie version of Kemo Sabe's adventures. The producers of "The Legend of the Lone Ranger" made the offer Thursday shortly after they announced the movie roles of the Lone Ranger and Tonto had gone to two unknowns with little acting experience, Clint Eastwood and Michael Horse.

The new Lone Ranger is a 25-year-old photographer, who never saw any of Moore's performances because he grew up on a cattle ranch in Chihuahua, Mexico.
The role Moore played on TV by the late Jay Silverheels, went to a Los Angeles Indian activist of Pueblo descent, who also lists himself as a boxer, rodeo rider, silversmith and mandolin-and-fiddle-with-traveling-bands.

Moore was at a rodeo in Nacogdoches, Texas, apparently unaware of the offer. His manager, Arthur Dorn, said Moore had received no "concrete" offer, but would be happy to discuss it.
"Clayton's out on the road in his sunglasses and he wants his mask back. But Clayton's been deeply hurt, and I can't say what he'd agree to. If they have conditions I'd like to discuss them," Dorn said.

The 64-year-old actor, who played the masked rider of the plains in a TV series timed between 1949 and 1956, has been involved in a running legal battle with producer Jack Wrather, who bought the rights to the character.
Wrather won court orders forbidding Moore to make public appearances as the ranger or to appear "in a Lone Ranger mask or any mask substantially similar."
Moore, who prides himself on maintaining the mystique of the masked man, has appeared since in large, very dark sunglasses — as "Clayton Moore who portrayed the Lone Ranger."

Stocks rebound, score gains

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks rebounded from a silver selling panic Friday.
 In doing so, they scored their second best gain in the year despite new interest rate hikes.
 The Dow Jones industrial average, up nearly 19 points in the last hour, climbed 17.67 points to 777.65, the best gain since it rose 19.71 points on Jan. 8.

The closely watched average fell 7.50 points for the week, however. But the loss could have been worse if it had not trimmed a 25-point deficit to 2.14 points in the last half hour Thursday.
 The momentum from that late-Thursday bargain hunting surge carried over into this session. The setting was right for fishing because the Dow had plunged about 144 points over the past six weeks and stocks suffered about a $200 billion loss on paper.

The New York Stock Exchange index gained 1.52 to 66.82 and the price of a share jumped 78 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 2.46 to 100.68. Advances routed declines.

1,402, to 270, among the 1,871 issues traded.
 Big Board volume totaled 46,720,000 shares, down from the 63,680,000 traded Thursday, the seventh busiest session on record.

Prices were left at bargain levels by Thursday's panic selling that resulted from news that billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt couldn't come up immediately with $100 million for silver futures trading obligations.
 Investors shrugged off news that Bank of America and dozens of other banks raised the prime lending rate to 19 1/2 percent, a record. Citibank of New York and a handful of others went to 19 3/4 percent.

Volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at center totaled 51,195,590 shares, down from the 68,920,200 Thursday.
 The American Stock Exchange index, which tallied 16.23 points Thursday for its worst loss ever, rebounded 13.20 to 228.89. The price of a share rose 89 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks gained 5.16 to 129.25.
 Silver issues were higher. Callahan

Mining climbed 3 1/4 to 31 3/4, Hecla Mining 4 to 26 and Sunshine Mining 2 1/4 to 12 1/4. Among the gold mining issues, ASA Ltd. rose 3 to 40 1/4, Dome to 5 1/4 and Campbell/Red Lake 2 to 2 1/4.

Of the four stocks the Hunt brothers reportedly sold Thursday to raise capital, First Chicago Corp. gained 1 1/4 to 12 1/4, Louisiana Land & Exploration 3 1/4 to 36 1/4, Gulf Resources & Chemicals 3 1/4 to 21 1/4, and Texaco 3 1/4 to 33 1/4.

Brokerage stocks were mixed the day after speculation spread throughout Wall Street about the financial conditions of the many of the institutions. V. Bache Group stock, of which the Hunts own 5.6 percent, was suspended until April 5.

Reliance Group was up to its active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/2 to 63 in trading that included a block of 850,000 shares at 65. The company said it had bought 700,000 of its own shares.

IBM, which gained 4 1/4 points Thursday, was the second most active issue, off 1 1/4 to 55 1/4. Gulf & Western was third, up 1 1/4 to 10 1/4; after a block of 439,300 shares crossed at 15 1/4.

Mobil lost 1 1/4 to 64 in active trading. The White House attacked Mobil-Oil, the nation's second largest oil refiner, for refusing to pay back $45 million the government said it overcharged the public. Mobil said the comment was "politically motivated."
 Alcoa, a Dow component stock, climbed 2 1/4 to 57 1/4 after the company raised input prices.

On the Amex, advances routed declines, 558 to 120, among the 832 issues traded. Composite volume was 8,919,660, down from the 13,459,390 traded Thursday.

Sundance Oil was the most active Amex issue, soaring 10 1/4 to 60. Dome Petroleum followed, up 4 1/4 to 32 1/4. Houston Oil & Minerals was third, up 3 1/4 to 29 1/4.

Movielab gained 3/4 to 4 1/4 after the company reported fiscal year earnings of $1.15 cents a share versus 51 cents a year ago.

In the OTC market, advances wallowed declines, 1,108 to 239, among the 6,763 issues traded. Volume totaled 21,362,200 shares, compared with 22,903,000 Thursday.

Platform Captain Kjetil, left, points to leg of oil drilling platform which he believes broke in gale force winds. At right, rescued workers are interviewed.

Oil rig capsized, sank

Survivors describe panic

STAVANGER, Norway (UPI) — Hundreds of men panicked and "quite a few" were trapped in jammed doorways when the four-story-high Alexander Kjeiland oil rig capsized and sank in the icy North Sea, said Olaf Skotheim, a Norwegian, said there was "total panic."

"Everyone was trying to get out of the narrow rooms, down the long corridors and up the narrow, steep stairs," he said.

Another survivor, Olav Forsheln, said, "People panicked as everyone was rushing for the doors. I believe quite a few were trapped inside because the doors were jammed..."

Many men blundered in darkness from a packed movie theater when the lights went out.

Only 15 minutes after an "almighty crack" at 6:30 p.m. signaled one of the rig's five legs had sheared off, the football field-sized rig was standing on its head in 70 feet of water.

Some of the 220 men aboard the rig escaped into the sea and probably died in the freezing waves and 72 mph winds. Some survivors used their shoes to bail water from their life rafts.

The rig with its dormitories, dining and recreation rooms and movie theater, was an oasis of comfort for men who toil in one of the grimmest workplaces on earth — the icy, dark and usually stormy North Sea.

A rescue worker who flew over the scene Friday said all that was visible in the now calm sea were the four remaining legs.

"They looked just like soft teddy bears' feet," he said in amazement. "There is nothing above the waterline out there to make you realize there was ever anything wrong."

The fifth leg drifted on its side a mile away.

A dozen boats scoured the area for survivors "but the calm sea made it all look so innocuous," the rescue worker said.

"It was just too bloody," said one of the blanket-wrapped men who staggered into the KNA hotel in the Norwegian port of Stavanger.

"I was in the packed movie theater at about 6:30 p.m. waiting for the evening's new film when we heard explosions," said Forsheln, a Norwegian. "The platform immediately keeled sideways and in 15 seconds it leaned 90 to 40 degrees."

"We were all thrown back against the wall, and the lights went out leaving us in complete darkness."

"I myself managed to get to the upper deck, which was already half under water. I grabbed some warm clothes, overalls, and a life jacket. I realized that my only chance was to jump overboard and try to swim to the production rig about 40 yards away."

"That may not sound like a great distance, but it's another matter in freezing water. I had violent winds and heavy waves to fight and my strength broke down almost immediately."

"I was barely half way over when they lowered a rescue basket and I was hauled up."

"In 15 minutes all you could see of the Alexander Kjeiland was a small part of the legs."

Skotheim said there was "total panic" a man struggled to get on deck. "Those of us who did then tried to get the lifeboats launched," he said.

"I was lucky. A lot of my workmates didn't make it."

Tony Silvester, a British survivor, said he was in the movies when he heard an "almighty crack."

"Everyone that could make it clambered to the top and after about 15 minutes the platform went over and everyone was in the sea."

Silvester said he and six others were able to scramble into a lifeboat and were rescued by a helicopter three hours later.

"The life dinghy was taking on water and we were using our shoes to empty it out," he said. "It was very cold. The weather was terrible."

Headmistress' plea: innocent

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — Virginia schoolmistress Jean Harris pleaded innocent to the murder of "Scarface" Diet" doctor Herman Tarnower Friday and court papers disclosed she told police he had scorned her love and "slept with every woman he could."

Prosecutors filed the papers, an account of Mrs. Harris' police questioning, during her Westchester County Court arraignment on charges of second-degree murder and criminal possession of a weapon.

The documents record Mrs. Harris' account of a deteriorating relationship with Tarnower that left her so distraught that she wanted to end her life and asked him to kill her.

"I have been through so much hell with him," the papers quote Mrs. Harris as saying. "I loved him very much. He slept with every woman he could. I had it!"

The police statement said "that she had driven up from Virginia with the hope of being killed by Dr. Tarnower—that he wanted to live, she wanted to die."

Mrs. Harris, 57, told police, "She and the doctor had a struggle upstairs and that she asked the doctor to kill her because she wanted to die. She said the doctor said, 'Get out of here. You are crazy. They started to fight again, the gun went off several times," the papers said.

In the second-floor bedroom where Tarnower lay bleeding, Mrs. Harris asked the doctor, "Why didn't you kill me, H.P.?" which was his nickname.

Mrs. Harris showed police a letter that "contained the names of close relatives to be notified after her wishes (her death) were completed."

"She also stated she had prepared other similar notes indicating her intentions. She further stated she had no intentions of going back to Virginia alive," the papers said.

Offshore living dreary

GOTHENBURG, Sweden (UPI) — Life aboard the Alexander Kjeiland offshore dormitory was dreary but there was "spirit of comradeship" among the all workers, a man who lived on it for a year said Friday.

Lars Moberg, a Swedish mechanic, was off work sick when the rig capsized Thursday.

"I was lucky. Otherwise I would have been with them out there when this happened," he said at his home in Gothenburg, a port city on Sweden's west coast.

Life aboard the rigs was hard and boring, he said.

"There is no real pleasure in being there. The only real break in the monotony is provided by the make-shift cinema and a table tennis board."

"There is a ban on alcohol."

"The Alexander Kjeiland had berths for 500 men. The rooms are situated along one side of the three floors over the main deck."

"There you live four men to a room about 20 feet by 7 feet."

"Under the main deck" there are similar rooms where men live two to a room," he said.

Apart from the bunk beds, the only furnishings are wardrobes, a chest of drawers and a mirror, said Moberg. The shower rooms are cramped.

"It is a bit like being in the army," said Moberg.

"The dining room is pretty simple and the 'cinema' has a screen that is just a stretched sheet. The table tennis board is in a little room of its own. Not many people bother to play."

"There is no library, and no place where workers can get together and relax after their two-week shifts, said Moberg.

The men work two weeks on, two weeks off. During their work time they daily shifts last 12 hours.

"There is not really much to do except chat, play cards or read. But usually you are too damn tired to do anything," said Moberg.

Way cleared for trial of ex-POW

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) — A military judge refused Friday to dismiss charges against Robert R. Garwood, clearing the way for a jury to be seated to weigh accusations the Marine private aided the enemy in Vietnam.

Garwood, who spent nearly 14 years behind enemy lines, sat rigid as Col. R.E. Switzer rejected a long-list of pretrial motions filed by the defense.

Farmer blamed for poisoning his own hens

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

MALTA — A Cassia County farmer tried to poison his chickens by putting pesticide in their drinking water, according to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. But the 300 chickens at the Juniper Valley Poultry Farm didn't die.

Instead, they produced about 18,000 contaminated eggs and Bruce Campbell, owner of the farm 25 miles south of Burley, between Malta and the Utah border, could face state or federal charges for the misuse of the pesticide chlordane, officials said.

Chlordane is a possible cancer-causing chemical that has been banned from all uses except termite control since 1976.

Only about 40 dozen contaminated eggs were sold in Idaho — all of them directly to Campbell's family and friends. Idaho health officials have offered to analyze blood samples from a half of the people who ate contaminated eggs.

Other eggs were sold to 20 families in Utah, including

Campbell's brother Eric, in Logan. Most of the contaminated eggs that were sold went to a distributing company in Utah, which sold them to three bakeries. However, health officials said the eggs present no immediate hazard.

Sue Hutchcroft, a spokesperson for the FDA regional office in Seattle, said Campbell told an FDA investigator that he was tired of being in the poultry business and intended to kill his chickens with the chlordane.

Hutchcroft said state officials have the first option to file charges against Campbell. If they do not, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency could step into the case, she said.

Campbell could not be reached for comment. Max Hanson, director of the state Department of Agriculture, began an investigation Thursday to see if state statutes were violated. But a department of agriculture investigator who went to the poultry farm looking for the "bottle" of chlordane returned empty-handed.

Dr. A. P. Schneider, state veterinarian, said Friday that the bottle was needed to determine if the chlordane could legally have been used in the hen house. Insecticides can only be used for purposes listed on their container, he said. Prior to 1974, chlordane was approved for use against mites in hen houses.

About 12,000 contaminated eggs are in storage on Campbell's farm under an order from the state agriculture department that prohibits Campbell from selling them. His chickens are under a similar order.

Schneider said the next step is up to Campbell. The agriculture department can't confiscate the eggs without a court order. If Campbell agrees to dispose of them, the department can make arrangements to bury them in a sanitary landfill.

The agriculture department has several of Campbell's birds, which are being tested to see how much chlordane remains in their tissue.

Officials said Campbell put one cup of chlordane in a hen house water supply during the last week of January.

The chlordane contamination was first discovered around March 10 in Salt Lake City. After the chlordane contamination was discovered, it was traced to the Juniper Valley Poultry Farm. Earlier this week the Utah Department of Agriculture discovered .56 parts per million in eggs sampled at the farm.

Campbell sold about 5,000 eggs to a distributing company in Benson, Utah, which in turn sold them to a Salt Lake City distributing company, which sold them to three Utah bakeries.

Ed Sturgeon, FDA supervisory investigator in Salt Lake City, said that the contaminated eggs at the bakeries amounted to only about 200 pounds of liquid eggs in a batch of 13,000 pounds.

The chlordane was so diluted that test equipment could not detect it, he said. The equipment can detect concentrations as low as 1 part per million. Sturgeon said.

Dr. Dorrell Brock, head of the state Department of Health and Welfare's Bureau of Laboratories, said since it didn't kill the chickens, the chlordane doesn't present an immediate threat to the people who ate the eggs.

School negotiation conflicts surface

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — As negotiations for next year's Twin Falls School District teachers' contracts enter the second week, areas of conflict are beginning to emerge.

The mood of Thursday's session was more tense than last week's "positive" session, according to Al Ware, spokesman for the Twin Falls Education Association (TFEA).

He said serious disagreement between representatives of the school board and the TFEA emerged over issues of insurance, teacher credit requirements, extra-duty pay and minimum education standards.

District Superintendent James Sawin, spokesman for the board, had not attended Thursday's session and he declined Friday to comment on it.

However, he did say that "you have good sessions, average sessions and sessions you wish you weren't there. Negotiations are a delicate job in communication."

Ware said the board and the TFEA clashed over a proposed change in the district's insurance policy. According to Ware, the present policy stipulates that if a couple works for the district, the wife is considered the dependent of the husband and receives less coverage.

"Our stance is that the current practice is discriminatory and must be eliminated," Ware said. In its place the TFEA proposes a "fringe benefit pool" be established, in which employees desiring more coverage may pay the difference in cost. He estimates the cost would be $70,000.

Ware said the board proposes to freeze spending on insurance at the current level.

Sawin declined to discuss the present policy as he did not have a copy of the master agreement and he said he could not quote the precise policy. He did say the insurance policy was established in 1976 in the district's original master agreement.

However, the label "dis-crimatory" was "an opinion. I don't want to deal with opinions," Sawin said. "I want to deal with facts."

Sawin also said most of the items submitted by the board for negotiation were "housekeeping details" designed to eliminate unnecessary or outdated language in the master agreement. He called all the proposals "legitimate and very rational."

Ware contends one of the board's proposed changes in the teacher credit requirements contained "language that was very punitive." Presently the district requires that teachers take six credits every five years to maintain their skills. Ware contends the board wants a requirement that any teacher not completing these credits be terminated. Now, he says, a teacher not having the six credits is passed up for salary advancement.

"My concern is that the new policy is a stepping stone to expanding termination of employees for reasons other than those established in Idaho code," Ware said.

Sawin declined to discuss the present policy or the board's proposal, although he said the board did ask for a change in the master agreement "relating to advancement and salary schedule." He declined to discuss specifics as it "was too early in the negotiation process."

He also warned of taking board proposals out of context. "We can't take any one part without looking at the entire session of the master agreement," he said. "The board puts entire sections on the table."

"To look at any part of a proposal, without the entire section of the master agreement, does not give an appropriate analysis of the situation."

Ware outlined specific issues in which the two sides were at odds. For example, he said the board opposed the TFEA's proposal that pay for extra duty be increased.

Sawin said "salary is a high priority" but the board will not know how much money it will get from the state until the Legislature adjourns. Thus the board can not yet make decisions in funding areas, he said.

Three of the TFEA's 15 proposals request increased spending; the others ask for policy changes. Ware said two TFEA proposals, setting minimum education standards and guidelines for cutbacks, are needed in a money-tight district.

"You must identify those areas where cuts may be made and establish what are the trills of education. We feel the association developed an excellent procedure," he said.

However, Ware contends the board's spokesman rejected the idea that minimum standards should be set.

Areas in which the two parties seem closer to agreement include sick leave, professional leave and teacher release time, Ware said.

Negotiations resume Thursday night.

Munn planning on being exact

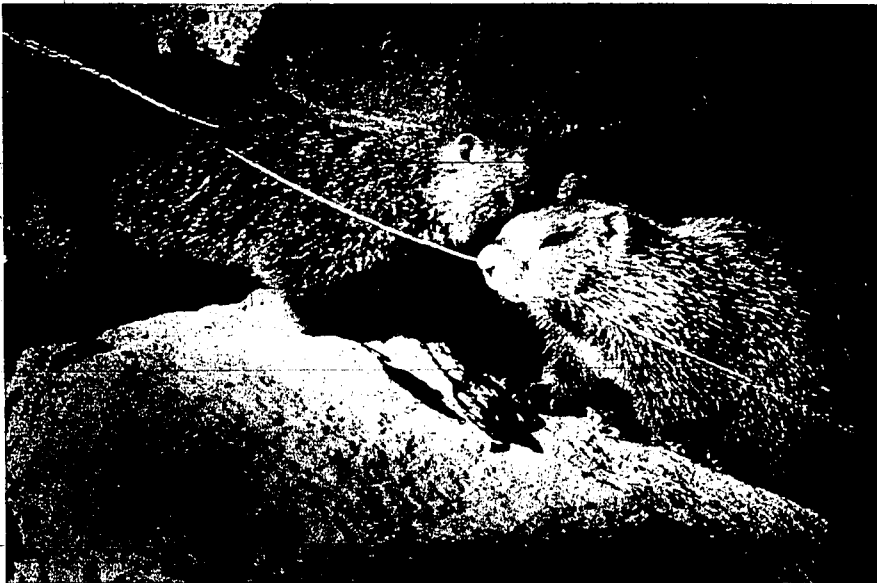

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff James Munn will be a little more explicit in leaving messages in the future.

He had to take a prisoner to the state penitentiary at Boise recently. Since he hadn't known where the trip in and how he had his wife at work to let her know he was leaving town.

She was not available at the moment so he asked a young lady in his wife's office to give her a message.

"Tell her I have to go to the penitentiary and I may be gone a while and not to wait supper for me," the sheriff said.

Mrs. Munn said she was soon approached by the young woman with the message, who slipped it to her secretly and gave her a very sympathetic look. She must have understood, Mrs. Munn chuckled about the situation.

Hospital phone changing

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital will have a new phone number starting Monday.

For all business, including emergencies, call 727-2000.

The new exchange number will provide expansion capabilities for the facility's phone system, according to hospital officials.

The number will be switched sometime Sunday night. Persons calling the old number will get a recorded message directing them to the new one.

Burn victims improvise

TWIN FALLS — James Masters, 29, and Michael Miller, 13 months, were still in critical condition but slightly improved Friday night at the Intermountain Burn Center in Salt Lake City.

Officials at the burn center said the two victims of a Tuesday fire in Twin Falls were stabilized and slightly improved.

They have been in critical condition since they were flown from Twin Falls by burn center teams Tuesday. They were injured about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday in a house fire at 227 Madison St. The infant is being treated for second- and third-degree burns over 65 percent of his body, while Masters, who was burned while rescuing the baby from a burning bedroom, received similar injuries over 20 percent of his body.

Ellsworth aims for Senate

CAREY — A former Blaine County prosecuting attorney, Maurice O. Ellsworth, is seeking a seat in the Idaho Senate.

Ellsworth, a Republican, seeks the District 21 position now held by Sen. Jack Bell, who announced Wednesday he will not seek reelection.

Ellsworth told the Hatley Rotary Club Thursday that he favors cutting the Idaho Legislature back to one session every other year rather than its present system of annual sessions.

"Overgrown government is probably the major ill in our society today," he said. "We have got to get government off our backs."

Ellsworth termed the present Legislature "irresponsible" for failing to address problems caused by the 1-percent initiative, stating that more spending cuts should be made at the state government level.

The former prosecutor said he is a strong supporter of law enforcement, especially of mandatory minimum prison sentences for individuals convicted of using a weapon to commit a felony.

He also said he is a strong supporter of right-to-work legislation and of the right to allow land subdivision for family members. Both positions, he said, run contrary to the stated views of the incumbent.

In announcing his retirement, Bell said he would support Clarence Bellem, a Rupert farmer, for the Democratic nomination to replace him.

3 teens burglary suspects

TWIN FALLS — Police in Twin Falls arrested three juvenile boys Thursday for burglary after allegedly following a trail of stolen items to their home.

Police said someone broke into That's Auto and Cycle Sales, 541 Main Ave. E., sometime Wednesday night. The owner reported a number of cycle gloves, stocking caps, goggles and other small articles stolen.

Another burglary was reported Thursday morning at the Salvation Army Thrift Store, 561 Main Ave. E.

While investigating the latter burglary, police found some of the stolen items from the auto and cycle shop in the trash behind the Salvation Army store.

On further investigation, officers found some boxes identical to those packaging some of the stolen articles taken from the auto and cycle shop and some of the missing goggles in the yard of a house where the young suspects reside.

A search warrant was obtained and a search of the house produced other items missing from That's Auto and Cycle Shop and resulted in the three being taken into custody.

Over 1% division County officers plan Boise trip

TWIN FALLS — Not only will Idaho legislators be back in session Monday, but a number of county officials will be joining them.

Twin Falls County Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard said Friday as many county commissioners and assessors as possible are being urged to meet with state officials to urge adoption of an acceptable implementation plan for the 1 percent property tax limitation.

Leonard said unless some gradual application of the 1 percent tax limitation is provided, cities, counties, school districts and other tax-supported agencies will be hard pressed to cover essential programs and services.

When the Senate adjourned Thursday without taking action on the 1 percent matter, Leonard said, county officials became alarmed about their future financial conditions. Under the straight 1 percent limit, he said, Twin Falls County tax revenue for county operation alone would drop from about $2,058 million, the current year's anticipated tax revenue, to $1.65 million.

"This would make it almost impossible for the county to operate present offices and services," Leonard said.

"I understand our legislators have indicated they feel there is 'plenty of fat' in our county operations that could be trimmed. What they fail to understand is that we have already trimmed the fat. We are saddled with some fixed costs that we can't reduce," Leonard said. "We are facing inflationary prices in every supply and item of material that we buy and we need to offer our employees cost-of-living salary increases just like private industry does."

Leonard said not only would the county be hit but school districts would probably suffer even more. Highway districts, cemetery districts and recreation districts would also be forced to cut back, Leonard said.

He said legislators have suggested user fees to replace tax losses, but there are only so many charges that can be made.

"How do you charge someone to buy a car license or a driver's license?" Leonard asked.

He said the county could charge for use of its parks and recreation facilities, but many people would simply stop using them if they are no longer free. Excessive fees for use of the landfill and other facilities would encourage litter and create problems the county has no money to meet, he said.

Leonard said several county officials from the Magic Valley plan to be in Boise Monday morning to meet with legislators.

Leonard said he will not be able to go because he is hoping one of the other Twin Falls County commissioners will be there.

Trio enters guilty plea

HAILLEY — Two Kimberly men and a former Twin Falls woman have pleaded guilty to reduced charges in connection with a Dec. 23 kidnapping here.

Earl Doldge, 23, and Doug Doldge, 20, both of Kimberly, and Tammy Wiedmeier, 19, a Hailley resident formerly of Twin Falls, all entered pleas of guilty in 5th District Court to charges of second-degree kidnapping and conspiracy to commit second-degree kidnapping. The charges originally had all been first degree.

The three kidnapped Wesley Decs, 31, from his Warm Springs home Dec. 23 under threat of death. Wiedmeier, a bank employee, had told the two men Willis had a sizable bank account. The two men went to the Willis home about 10 p.m. Dec. 23 and forced him to go with them, police reported. Willis' roommate, Craig Lawrence, notified police and the two men were arrested a short time later in Ketchum.

Willis was not injured.

Greg Fuller of Twin Falls, attorney for Wiedmeier, said a pre-sentence investigation was granted for all three, but Judge Douglas Kramer would encourage litter and create problems the county has no money to meet, he said.

Fuller said the first-degree charge carries a mandatory death or life in prison sentence while the second-degree carries a one- to 25-year sentence. He said should the three be given the maximum sentence on both counts they could get up to 49 years.

Fuller said all three will probably remain in custody until sentencing, probably about three weeks.

Pickup wreck victim named

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff James Munn Friday identified the victim of a pickup truck accident Thursday night as Ches Detweiler, 21, of Twin Falls.

Detweiler, a senior at Twin Falls, his eastbound pickup truck went out of control on the county road near the Bell Rapids farm project in northwestern Twin Falls county. Sheriff Munn said Detweiler was alone in the pickup truck and was pronounced dead at the scene after he was thrown from the vehicle. The pickup rolled over four and one-half miles, coming to rest in a borrow pit near the roadway. The accident occurred about 6 p.m. as Detweiler was driving from Bell Rapids. He was the son of Stan Detweiler of Twin Falls and Barbara Hall of Piler.

Idaho potato farmers facing big jumps in shipping costs

BOISE (UPI)—After two years of poor prices and sales, Idaho potato farmers face the additional burden of skyrocketing transportation costs in order to ship potatoes to eastern markets.

The Idaho Department of Employment reported fuel costs for truckers have jumped by as much as 278 percent in the past five years and about 10 cents per truck mile or 40 percent in the past year. Nonfuel costs also have increased 10 to 12 percent this year, the department said.

The story with railway rates is much the same. Since January, 1979, Union Pacific Railroad has been raising general rate increases by the Interstate Commerce Commission. One was a annual general rate increase of 7.9 percent and five more were fuel-based increases, the department said.

"Such cost increases have caused problems for Idaho farmers, especially producers of potatoes and onions, whose major markets are hundreds of miles from the state," said David Smith, executive director of the Idaho Growers-Shippers Association, Idaho Falls, said. "Transportation is still the biggest single concern and problem facing agriculture producers."

"There's no greater part of the cost of the product to the customer than the cost of transportation," Smith said.

"The major problem we face in Idaho in shipping potatoes is we are a long ways from the market. Naturally, the cost of getting to market is substantial. It affects our ability to compete with other areas that are growing potatoes."

The Idaho Growers-Shippers Association is the largest organized group of shippers in the state, Smith said.

He said it cost $4.98 to ship 100 pounds of potatoes by rail to Idaho's major potato market — New York City. That's nearly $4,000 per train car load, he said. By truck, the cost would increase 50 cents or more per hundred.

Compare that to the $2 to $2.25 a farmer receives for 100 pounds of potatoes out of the field and its easy to see how much the price of transportation affects the price of the product at the supermarket.

But potato growers and shippers are optimistic they will solve their transportation problems.

"We'll work it out (the transportation problem)," said Mel Anderson, executive director of the Blackfoot-based Idaho Growers-Shippers Association. "We just have to look at new concepts. It's hard for people to do that."

Anderson said his group, the largest of its kind in the state, is looking at such alternative transportation methods as regional distribution and piggybacking or an intermodal system.

He said the regional distribution concept consists of establishing a regional warehouse from where shipments would be made.

But Anderson was most excited about the piggyback concept, which consists of trucking potatoes to a main rail shipment point such as Portland, loading the truck trailers on flatcars and taking them east.

"He said piggybacking would be more expensive than shipping exclusively by rail but cheaper than shipping by truck. But he said the biggest savings would be in fuel costs.

The concept "combines the fuel efficiency of rail with the distribution efficiency of trucks," Anderson said, and said the method is much faster. He said a trailer-train from Pocatello to Chicago would arrive the day after it departed compared to shipping a train car load of potatoes which would have to go through several transfers and would arrive in about four days.

Watering the trout, guys?

Fireman Tom Turner hoses down a minor grass fire in the Rock Creek Park Friday afternoon. Firemen say the fire was small and had about burned itself out when they arrived. The cause of the fire, located at the end of Fifth Avenue West in the city park portion of the canyon, has not been determined.

Following Panhandle controversy

2 apply for health board post

SANDPOINT (UPI) — Two nominees for a position on the Panhandle Health District Board of Directors vacated by Mary Lou Reed's removal from the position have been submitted, District Administrator Larry Belmont said Friday.

The Bonner County commissioners have nominated one of their members, Robert Klatt, for the volunteer job, and two of the Kootenai County commissioners have proposed Coeur d'Alene consulting engineer Dave Carpenter for the vacancy.

Kootenai County Commissioner Eugene Ingalls did not support his colleague's recommendation. He also did not support Mrs. Reed's removal, which was prompted by the other two commissioners, Douglas Frymire and Charles Harris.

Reportedly, 13 of the 15 commissioners of the five northern counties — which make up the health district — Intermountain Region to show a decline in new business incorporations last year.

The New York City-based financial reporting firm said Colorado led the region with 10,013 businesses starting up during 1979, up by 1,151 from the previous year.

Dun & Bradstreet's Business Economics Division also said Arizona, Montana and New Mexico showed modest increases in the number business starts last year — compared to 1978 — while Nevada and Wyoming were virtually unchanged.

But in Utah the number of incorporations totaled only 3,551 last year, a drop of 218 from the previous 12 months. While Idaho dropped from 1,923 business starts in 1978 to 1,882 last year.

Psychic will aid in Latah

MOSCOW (UPI) — New Jersey psychic Dorothy Allison has agreed to help the Latah County Sheriff's Department locate a Moscow woman who has been missing since late June 1979.

Latah County Sheriff Mike Goetz said he met with Ms. Allison, Nutley, N.J., for about an hour Thursday. Goetz said she related several details of the disappearance of Gayla Schaper, Moscow, that were "known only to myself and one other officer."

Ms. Schaper disappeared from her home east of Moscow June 29. Latah sheriff's officers have been stymied in their efforts to locate her.

Goetz said that Ms. Allison has agreed to help in the case.

"She has indicated that she can help us locate the missing person," Goetz said. "She was very definite in that in this case we will use everything we can. In regards to Dorothy Allison, her credibility is such that I think it's best that we use it."

Goetz said Ms. Allison was featured in a law enforcement trade magazine in February. He said she also helped the Chicago police in the John Wayne Gacy case.

Ms. Allison was in the area helping with another missing person case in Asotin County, Wash. She has been asked to help police solve several crimes in northern Idaho and eastern Washington.

Fewer corporations in Idaho, Utah

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dun & Bradstreet Corp. says Idaho and Utah were the only states in the eight-state Intermountain Region to show a decline in new business incorporations last year.

The New York City-based financial reporting firm said Colorado led the region with 10,013 businesses starting up during 1979, up by 1,151 from the previous year.

Dun & Bradstreet's Business Economics Division also said Arizona, Montana and New Mexico showed modest increases in the number business starts last year — compared to 1978 — while Nevada and Wyoming were virtually unchanged.

QUESTION...

What is the attitude of religious groups in America toward the beaquaath of human bodies to medical schools?

ANSWER...

To the best of our knowledge no composite study has ever been made of the 250 religious sects in this country concerning their attitudes toward the dissection of human bodies for medical research. Group spokesmen and individuals have publicly stated their views. Although we report here we cannot say they represent the official positions of their churches.

Rocky Mountain Conference of the Methodist Church... recommended that autopsy and use of a body or parts of a body for medical research provides helpful knowledge and is morally acceptable.

Pope Pius... people should be made aware of the advantages of yielding the corpse of their loved ones to medical science for the benefit of the American Committee for Safeguarding Human Dignity... one of the basic tenets of Jewish tradition prescribes that a person's body, after death should not be tampered with in any way and that burial of the body should take place as soon as possible.

Wreckage of Lufkin Industries $1-million plane smolders in a farm field near Aurora, Colo., Friday after crashing shortly after takeoff.

All 10 people aboard die

Plane crashes in Colorado snowstorm

KIOWA, Colo. (UPI) — Federal investigators hiked through knee-deep snow and freezing temperatures Friday to determine the cause of an airplane crash that killed 10 people.

The twin-engine Beechcraft King-Air turboprop, owned by Lufkin Industries, crashed about 30 minutes after takeoff Thursday in a remote field east of Denver. Flaming wreckage prevented officials from removing the bodies until Friday morning.

Killed in the crash were John Poland, 29, of Littleton, Colo., manager of Lufkin Industries' Rocky Mountain division and son of Lufkin President R.L. Poland.

The plane took off from Arapahoe County Airport. One pilot reported ice forming on his wings and was directed to Buckley Air National Guard Base by Stapleton International Airport controllers.

Pilots Ray Fisher, 51, and Charles Gilstrap, 47, both of Lufkin, Texas, also were killed as were seven Denver-area executives of oil companies that buy Lufkin Industries' oilfield pumping units.

The oil company officials were identified as Ron Pagliassoti, 34, of Kenneth Luf and Associates; Dan Bolding of Exeter Co.; Larry Gallagher of Diamond Shamrock; Ed Garland of Davis Oil; Bob Easter of Petro Lewis Co.; Jon Stanzone, 58, of Browlie-Wallace-Armstrong and Bander Oil Co.; and Jack W. Rogers of Tenneco Oil.

George Baker, an spokesman for the National Safety Transportation Board, said seven investigators from the Washington office arrived at midday and went to the crash site.

The autopsies ordered on the pilot and co-pilot are standard procedure, he said, as were tests to determine the load carried by the plane. He said the aircraft was designed to carry 10 persons, including the pilots.

A spokesman at Arapahoe County airport said Fisher expressed concern about the amount of luggage because of the snowstorm.

"We have heard the rumor that the plane was overloaded, but we don't know that it was overloaded. They had the maximum number on board, but we don't know what else," said Baker.

Investigators said both wings of the 4-year-old twin plane were covered with ice, but it was impossible to tell if the icing occurred before the crash or was caused by a spring snowstorm in the area.

Shooting suspect critical, cop fair in Denver hospital

DENVER (UPI) — A confrontation which started in the lobby of a junior high school auditorium left a policeman in fair condition and a 25-year-old man in critical condition at a Denver hospital Friday.

Investigators said Patrolman Ray Ruybal, 39, was working off-duty at Merrill Junior High School Thursday. He and other officers were providing security for a school play.

Ruybal requested assistance in handling a man he noticed loitering in the hall, Patrolwoman Jennifer Horen said. She said the man refused to identify himself and pulled out a gun when Ruybal attempted to arrest him.

"He just pulled a gun and began firing," she said. Ruybal, wounded in the arm and hand, was taken to Denver General Hospital while Ms. Horen summoned other officers.

The shooting occurred outside an auditorium filled with spectators for a school days program, Capt. Robert Shaughnessy said, and a woman said the man was probably her son, who was at the school to pick her up.

Using the woman's description of the man and the car he would be driving, two officers patrolling in the area spotted the suspect's car and stopped the vehicle about two blocks from the school, he said.

Shaughnessy said the officers signaled the man to stop. His car skidded and came to a halt. As the officers approached the car, the suspect pointed a gun at the officers.

Area residents said the officers shouted to the man that he should put his hands up and drop the weapon.

Parnell says innocent of taking boy in 1972

MERCED, Calif. (UPI) — Kenneth Parnell, 48, accused of kidnapping two boys, pleaded innocent Friday to charges he spirited one away seven years ago as the youngster was walking home from school.

Municipal Judge Keith Sharrow set April 9 for a preliminary hearing for Parnell, arrested on March 2 in Ukiah, Calif., and Ervin Murphy, 38, who allegedly helped in the abduction of Steven Stayner.

Stayner, 14, took 5-year-old Timmy White from Parnell's coastal home in Mendocino County and reported their abduction to authorities on March 11. The teen-ager was abducted seven years ago and regarded Parnell as his father.

Stayner said that, when abducted, he was told his parents could no longer afford to keep him and no longer wanted him.

Sharrow set bail at $50,000 for Parnell and set April 4 for a hearing on a motion by Parnell's attorney to close the preliminary hearing to the press and public.

Public Defender John Ellery said he wanted a closed proceeding because "it is a one-sided thing. The prosecution gets to present its evidence, and the defense doesn't. If it hits the press, the people hear just one side." The hearing in Merced only concerns the abduction of Stayner. Proceedings are under way in Ukiah where Timmy was kidnapped on Valentine's Day.

Parnell, a drifter who was working as a night auditor at a Ukiah hotel at the time of his arrest, was charged with kidnapping, child stealing, false imprisonment and conspiracy to commit child molestation.

Murphy, a janitor at Yosemite National Park, Calif., was accused of helping Parnell take Stayner.

Murphy was brought into Municipal Court for Parnell's arraignment, and authorities said it was the first time they were face-to-face since Steve's kidnapping. He only glanced at Parnell, they did not exchange any words.

By prior agreement Parnell, who served a state prison term for sexually abusing a youngster many years ago, will be immediately flown back to Ukiah to await proceedings there.

There were no sex charges filed against Parnell in Ukiah in connection with Timmy's kidnap. And Murphy was not charged there.

Mendocino County Public Defender Scott LeStrange sought a closed preliminary hearing in Ukiah. However, a Superior Court Judge ruled the state law used to close such proceedings was unconstitutional. United Press International challenged the closed hearing.

Moonlight skiing can be unique experience

BY KAREN LITTLE PRESSMAN

Moonlight skiing with only the stars and scenic backcountry as company isn't just a romantic notion. It can be a reality.

And skiers can give it a try soon, when a full moon rises Monday.

Nancy Gillan of Ketchum is one skier who will take advantage of moonlit trails this week.

"It's a real experience," Gillan said, who makes at least one moonlight ski trip a year. "Even though a trail is very familiar to me, it looks totally strange in the moonlight."

It is suggested to ski in open areas where light from the reflecting hillsides is best, and the view of interesting shadows can be enjoyed.

Popular trails for nordic skiers include Prairie Creek and Cherry Creek located north of Ketchum.

Alpine skiers seem to like the slopes of Galena Summit. For skiers preferring some experienced direction on their evening trip, Galena Lodge, Sun Valley Nordic Touring Center and Busterback Ranch provide guided trails. Dress for night skiing is much the same as for day skiing but experienced skiers suggest bringing along an extra layer or two of warm clothing to protect against the night chill.

PERFECT SPRINGTIME ski conditions attracted a large group of Magic Valley skiers to Pomerelle last weekend for the Burley Lions Club annual ski race. Blue skies and warm temperatures provided a perfect setting for the 54 skiers, ranging from 7 to 18 years old, who participated in the giant slalom event.

Winners in each age group included: Pee Wee Boys (age 6-7); Scott Noriyuki; Novice Boys (age 8-9); Steve Noriyuki and Novice Girls; Cami Christensen; Intermediate Boys (age 10-12); Travis McCord and Intermediate Girls; Amy Whiting; Junior Boys (age 13-15); Jim McCord and Junior Girls; Teri Rosa; Senior Boys (age 16-18); David Christensen and Senior Girls; Dorene Christensen.

APRIL 13 traditionally a month for Easter egg hunts, daffodils, and Fool's Day pranks. But at Pomerelle, April also includes the Annual Spring Fling which is scheduled for Saturday, April 12.

This year's festivities include a No Alibi Downhill, an obstacle course, dust slalom races, snow sculptures and a gelundee jump.

The No Alibi Downhill, traditionally draws the largest field, partly because it's fun, and partly because the entire winner collects the entire purse of entry fees. And at $10 a person, that's a pretty healthy pot.

A shotgun start begins the downhill race, and after that it's a mad scramble down the course.

Interested skiers can sign up for the Spring Fling events at Pomerelle the morning of April 12. Contact the ski area for further details.

ALTHOUGH THIS article concludes this year's ski column series, most local ski resorts report terrific snow conditions and will remain open through mid-April.

Soldier Mountain: Operate through mid-April, and will remain open after that indefinitely.

"As long as the snow holds up, and the crowds are here, we'll stay open."

said Claude Hinkle, Soldier Mountain general manager. Hinkle suggests skiers call the area's 724-2266 or local radio stations for updated ski reports. KALF in Jerome at 264-4181 or KEEB in Twin Falls at 723-7512 have those reports.

Hinkle also reports Soldier will be open this Monday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with reduced lift tickets available at $2 a person.

From April 12, the Warm Springs side of the mountain will be open daily until Easter, April 8, and then will operate on the weekends until the through the end of the season.

Saturday bus service will be available from Twin Falls to the mountain through the end of the season.

Headed lift tickets will be available for alders during limited operations. Contact the ski area at Sun Valley for further information at 822-1111 ext. 331.

Nordic Skiing: Trails at Sun Valley and Busterback Ranch will be open to the public through mid-April, and Tolana reports its trails will be open through the end of April.

Forest service trails which are reported in good condition, will provide nice skiing as well as a fun spot for a spring picnic.

"Though this will be Karen Little Pressman's last column of the ski season, she will continue to contribute outdoor features on a regular basis."

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho riding team opened Friday night performances by Monty Webb, goes after the team championship of its own collegiate rodeo tonight.

Today's action will resume at 2 p.m. with the second round, and the finals will end the competition at 8. Twelve colleges from the Rocky Mountain region are competing in this fourth annual National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association event.

In Friday night's first round action, CSI, which placed second in the national finals last year, took advantage of a good draw and the absence of Weber State's top cowboy, Lance Robinson, to put itself in good shape to take the team title, according to CSI Coach Shawn Davis.

CSI won this rodeo in 1979, and has a 1-1 record this year, with its most recent triumph three weeks ago at Weber State.

Webb set himself up for the all-around cowboy title by taking second in the calf roping, first — along with teammate Lowell Black — in the team roping, third in the saddle bronc riding and third in the steer wrestling. In the evening's thriller, Utah Indian football star Rob Jucker, now competing for the Boise State University's football and rodeo team, literally threw down his steer like a feather to take a good lead in the steer wrestling competition.

Jucker's teammate Tim Waldron found himself not only on top in the bull riding, but the only one who managed to ride his animal for the full eight seconds, thus taking a commanding lead in that event.

Jade Robinson, the Eagles team captain, finished one point behind in the bareback riding competition, and is currently in fifth place in the calf roping.

The top five in the first round included:

- Bareback riding — 1. Duane France (Northern Nevada Community College), 2. Jade Robinson (College of Southern Idaho), 3. Shane Prescott (Weber State), 4. Dan Johnson (Idaho State), 5. Mark Olsen (Utah Tech), 6. Steve Johnson (Idaho State).
- Calf roping — 1. Steve Johnson (Idaho State University), 2. Monty Webb (CSI), 3. Chad Johnson (Idaho State University), 4. Mike Chumley (Idaho State University), 5. Jade Robinson (CSI).
- Goat tying — 1. Lori Miller (USU), 2. Janet Johnson (Idaho State), 3. Cindy Siano (Weber State), 4. Brenda Durfee (UTK).
- Team roping — 1. Monty Webb and Lowell Black (CSI), 2. Mike Chumley and Lori Miller (USU), 3. Jeff Summers (USU), 4. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 5. Sterling Wines (CSI), 6. Monty Webb (CSI), 7. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 8. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 9. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 10. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 11. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 12. Steve Johnson (Idaho State).
- Steer wrestling — 1. Lori Miller (USU), 2. Janet Johnson (Idaho State), 3. Cindy Siano (Weber State), 4. Brenda Durfee (UTK), 5. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 6. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 7. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 8. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 9. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 10. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 11. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 12. Steve Johnson (Idaho State).
- Bull riding — 1. Tim Waldron (USU), 2. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 3. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 4. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 5. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 6. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 7. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 8. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 9. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 10. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 11. Steve Johnson (Idaho State), 12. Steve Johnson (Idaho State).

Celebrity event

Stars flock to Sun Valley

SUN VALLEY — Elkhorn Village is the site this weekend of the star-studded, Fifth Annual U.S. Ski Team Celebrity Invitational.

The three-day, fund-raising event, which kicked off Friday night with a broomball hockey game on the Elkhorn's "ice rink," continues today at 10:30 a.m. with giant slalom races on Dollar Mountain's beginner slopes.

Entertainers will join about 15 U.S. Alpine and Nordic Ski Team members in the annual event sponsored by Paul Masson Vineyards.

Proceeds from the Invitational, the ski teams' major fund-raiser, help meet training costs of U.S. amateur skiers for national and international competition.

Among those celebrities participating are Clint Eastwood, Keith Carradine, Shirley Jones, Beau Bridges, Cliff Robertson, Kathy Lee Crosby, Sam Melville, Desi Arnaz Jr., Joe Cannon, Bob Segren, LaVar Burton, Michael Brandon, Jimmy and Nels Van Patten, Stan Barrett and former Olympic skier Billy Kidd.

The celebrities will join, among others, Phil and Steve Mahre, Ketchum's Pete Patterson and Kristin Cooper (who Thursday won the women's combined title at the U.S. Alpine Ski Championships in Squaw Valley, Calif.) and Walter Malmquist. All are members of the U.S. Alpine Ski Team that participated in the 1980 Lake Placid Winter Olympics.

The Mahre brothers, Cooper and Patterson, will conduct pre-race clinics this morning, starting at 9 a.m. at Dollar Mountain. The giant slalom races will follow the clinics and run through noon.

Each giant slalom team will have a celebrity and a ski team member, as well as a racer from the ranks of corporate or individual sponsors of the event.

Grudge races will be held this afternoon from 1 to 2, in which celebrities compete against U.S. Ski Team members with the athletes receiving time handicaps.

Utah Tech takes two from Eagles

PROVO, Utah — Utah Tech continued as the nemesis of College of Southern Idaho Friday as it swept a doubleheader from the Golden Eagles.

Utah Tech won the nine-inning opener 5-4 and romped off in the nightcap 6-2. The Eagles remain in Provo today to test the BYU jayvees.

"We're 7-7 now and starting a new year," said a dejected Coach Jim Walker. "I told them I liked them as individuals but today I really didn't feel that good about them as ball players. Tomorrow we're going to be hitting and fielding at the right time."

Utah Tech took the first game ("as a gift," Walker said) with a tainted run in the ninth inning.

The loser was Kevin Donner who allowed just two hits, over the last three and two-third innings but a little wildness and an error doomed him. Donner hit the first batsman to open the ninth and then came an error and a walk to load the bases. After getting the second out on strikes, Donner was worked for a walk that forced the winning run in.

"He pitched well. He didn't deserve the loss. We just didn't get any hits and made the critical error," said Walker.

Four of the Eagle hits came when they scored two each in the first and third. Ken McFadden and Jon Maldonado started the game with singles and scored on John Hughes' sacrifice fly and a wild throw. In the third, Maldonado and Hughes collected back-to-back doubles for one run and another scored when Roger Farnsworth grounded out.

But Utah Tech tied it in the fifth to bring on the extra innings.

CSI took the lead in the first inning of the nightcap when Maldonado and Wayne Haeckel picked up singles with an error letting the run in. But CSI didn't score again until the seventh when Kim Kolomyjec doubled in the singling Maldonado.

What it takes to put on a collegiate rodeo

By IRWIN CURTIN

Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — So you want to conduct a rodeo, similar in scope to the one held this weekend at the College of Southern Idaho?

That one, incidentally, features about 150 contestants from 12 colleges and universities in Idaho, Utah and Nevada.

You'll have to start preparations four or five months in advance, as CSI Rodeo Coach Shawn Davis did. In late fall, he sought and received sanctioning by the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association, based in Walla Walla, Wash.

Then you'll have to arrange for a stock contractor, ideally one you've done business with before, like Joe and Sonny Kelsey Rodeo Contractors of Tonasket, Wash. As they have for the last two CSI rodeos, the Kelseys furnished Davis with 50-60 head of roping cattle, about 25 head of bulls (which are each bucked more than once) and about 60 head of bucking horses.

Don't forget the 30-40 tons of hay and grain needed in feed that stock and at least 100 head of horses transported by the contestants, some of which arrived here late last week for the rodeo that provided this weekend's competition.

Yes, you'll need a clown. What self-respecting rodeo could get by without one? You'd need to invite bids, six or seven in all, by clowns from Idaho, Nevada, Washington and Utah. Woodie Procell of Las Vegas was Davis' choice.

"One, because he's outstanding. Two, because of the price of his bid and the quality of his bullfighting," Davis said Friday afternoon, a few hours before the grand entrance of competitors in the CSI Expo Center. "We're mainly concerned with a clown's bullfighting because our rodeo runs fast enough so we don't have to worry about so many fill-in acts."

Next you contact the news media, tolerating questions from a naive city-slicker — like those that resulted in this story — in return for publicity.

"If it wasn't for the support of the different news media in the Magic Valley, we couldn't afford paid announcements to publicize the rodeo the way we do," Davis said.

Then you have to arrange for volunteers in the form of ticket takers, security personnel, people to load stock into shots, people to open shoot gates, during competition, musicians — and announcers. And you must ready and clean the building; prepare pens, move extra seats in, test and re-test the sound system. "More than 250 high school kids have helped in one way or another. Plus 70 or 80 kids here at CSI. Plus about 15-20 on the college staff here. Almost 400 people have been involved in getting this thing going. They've all done from a little bit to a lot of work," Davis said.

Almost forgot a program. Can't tell the participants without a program, can you? "A couple of people on the college staff put it together and printed it here. It's about 10 pages and we printed up about 1,200 copies.

"We're hoping for 1,100-1,500 people Friday night. Saturday afternoon will be our weakest crowd. We're not sold out yet for Saturday night. (The Expo Center holds about 2,200) but it usually sells out at the door," Davis said.

Finally, thank everyone who's made it happen. "The kids are eager and have worked real hard at the school. They've really made my job a lot lighter," Davis said. "This year and last year, everything has run real smooth. I've had a lot of help and support from students and faculty."

Ride 'em, cowboy.
