

RICHARD NIXON
...he has a new book coming out

Nixon says WW III is here

LONDON (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon says in a new book, "The Real War," that the West could soon confront a choice of "surrender or suicide — red or dead" in a war with the Soviet Union that began the moment World War II ended.

Nixon's book will be published simultaneously in the United States and Britain at the end of this month. The first extract of a serialized version appeared in the British news magazine "Now!"

The former president said the United States in the 1980s will confront two cold realities for the first time.

"The first is that, if war were to come, we might lose. The second is that we might be defeated without war."

Nixon said the West already is embattled in World War III, a conflict that has been going on since 1945.

He described it as "the first truly total war, waged on all levels of life. Military power, economic power, willpower, the strength of a nation's galvanizing ideas, and the clarity of its sense of purpose — each is vital to the outcome."

"The danger facing the West during the balance of this century is less that of a nuclear holocaust than it is of drifting into a situation in which we find ourselves confronted with a choice between surrender or suicide — red or dead," Nixon said.

Since 1945, Nixon said, "Soviet expansionist pressure has been relentless. Moscow has blockaded Berlin, fomented revolutions in Latin America, Asia and Africa, aided aggression by North Korea and North Vietnam. It has trained guerrillas, disrupted elections, shot down unarmed planes, sponsored coups, shot refugees, imprisoned dissidents."

Nixon accused Moscow of lacking any kind of morality as it thrust into Africa, the Islamic crescent and Central America. Expansion had been accompanied by "a prodigious military buildup that has brought the Soviet Union to the verge of decisive superiority over the West."

He said Soviet actions in Africa and Afghanistan were part of a pincers movement designed to deprive the West of oil and raw materials.

While trying to choke off Western lifelines, Nixon said, the Kremlin was engaged in sapping Western societies from within.

"An international fraternity of terrorists with the Soviet Union as chairman has enabled the Russians to engage in 'warfare by remote control' all over the world," he said.

They fomented war, revolution and economic depression in order to destroy the fabric of society wherever they could, Nixon alleged. "They do not want human needs met. They do not want problems to be solved. They want the problems to escalate in order to seize the nation."

Nixon accused President Carter of committing "one of the greatest strategic blunders" America has made by scrapping the B-1 bomber program in 1977. This enabled the Soviets to pour resources into offensive weapons systems instead of being forced onto the defensive.

Invasion of Iraq threatened by Iran

By United Press International
Iran threatened Friday to invade Iraq unless the fighting along their border stops, and Tehran radio reported an 8,000-man clash between Iraqi artillery and Iranian armored units.

While Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr charged Baghdad was "dancing to America's tune," Iran's ambassador in Moscow said the Iranian would ask the Soviet Union to stop supplying Iraq with arms.

The radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp., said the new fighting erupted at Baveyst in Kermanshah Province adjacent to the border between the two countries. The Iranians claimed they had driven back the Iraqis and "inflicted heavy casualties."

There was no immediate comment on the report from Iraq, which has blamed the Tehran government for starting the latest troubles with a series of bombings in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

Tehran Radio, quoting Iran's Joint Chiefs of Staff, reported "a serious clash" between Iraqi artillery units and Iran's 31st armored division, based in Kermanshah.

At least one Iranian officer was killed and a private wounded in the fighting, the radio said.

Tehran Radio claimed that "the 8,000 division inflicted heavy casualties on the Iraqi army and repulsed the aggressors."

At the same time, the radio said Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, in a statement broadcast in Arabic, said Iran welcomed the thousands of ethnic Iranians that both Iraq and Iran claim the Baghdad government has kicked out of the country.

"These are your oppressed brothers, evicted by the butchers of the Baath (ruling party) regime without any right or justification," Khomeini said.

Iranian revolutionary guards also clashed again with Iraqi troops near Paveh and the Tramin army has moved to defend the border officials at Naft-e-Shah, Tehran Radio said.

Earlier the radio reported one Iranian revolutionary guard killed and four others wounded in a one-hour clash with "Iraqi Bath agents" on a road outside Paveh, a town near the border. "The assailants also suffered losses," the radio said.

It said the Naft-e-Shah oilfield, along the Iranian frontier just south of the troubled Iranian border town of Qasr-e-Shirin, had been put "under protection of the armed forces" as of Friday.

Arab sources said Palestine Liberation Organization commander Yasser Arafat, who tried unsuccessfully to get 50 American hostages freed in Tehran, was preparing a diplomatic offensive to try to defuse the potential war between Iran and Iraq.

Libyan strongman Col. Muammar Khadafi also said he was going to send envoys to mediate between Iraq.

Layoffs

Ore-Ida temporarily cuts 300 employees at Burley

By The Times-News staff and United Press International
BOISE — Officials of Ore-Ida Foods Inc. say a temporary layoff of 300 employees will begin Monday at its food processing plant near Burley.

The announcement dealt another blow to Idaho's economy, which was hit hard by layoffs this week. Ore-Ida was one of five firms to announce layoffs this week. The others were J.R. Simplot Co., Potlatch Corp., WI Sated Products and Champion International Corp.

In previous weeks, shutdowns were announced by several other wood products and food processing companies.

Ore-Ida layoff will last two weeks, according to plant manager Dee Nelson. The French fry and hash brown lines will be shut down at Ore-Ida's No. 1 plant at Burley for inventory control, he said.

Nelson emphasized that Ore-Ida will still have 700 people working at its two Burley plants. Layoffs to adjust supply to demand for processed potatoes are not uncommon, Nelson said. This year isn't too different from others — the timing is just bad, he said.

Idaho Employment Department Director Scott B. McDonald said the layoffs are part of an "ominous" trend. The ripple effect on the rest of Idaho's economy could be wild, he said.

Monday. Plant workers earlier had been reduced to a four-day work week.

Potlatch, already stung by first-quarter layoffs centered primarily in Lewiston and totaling more than 500 workers, said it was laying off 62 more employees. They had been sent home from a Lewiston plywood plant in early March when new equipment was installed. But they were told Thursday the plant would remain closed until economic conditions improved.

Simplot this week announced layoffs of 220 persons working at food-processing plants at Idaho Falls, Ontario, Ore., and Nyssa, Ore. Officials cited a drop in demand for fresh potatoes as the primary motivator.

Ore-Ida's Nelson said the market for processed potatoes is also suffering because growth in the fast-food industry has slowed from 7 percent last year to 1 percent this year.

Steve Wilson, a state economic development specialist, said the layoffs are "having a devastating effect."

Gov. John Evans has asked for federal economic aid for five communities struck harshly by the economic slump. One mayor said his community would become a "ghost town" if the lumber industry didn't pick up.

Another worry for Idaho is the month-old strike among Sunbeam time at Kellogg, involving 500 workers.

Recession

Idaho feels the bite as business falters

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho has joined the rest of the nation in the recession and Idahoans may have less money to spend in the future, says a state economist.

However, says Richard Slaughter, chief of the statistical policy section of the Division of Financial Management, the current rash of layoffs is not expected to noticeably lengthen the state's unemployment lines.

"Slaughter said Friday — Idahoans' real personal income will decline 2 1/2 percent this year."

"People are worse off than they were a year ago," Slaughter said. "And they will be worse off a year from now than they are today because incomes will not rise as fast as inflation."

However, Slaughter said his agency completed a revised economic forecast for the state last week which predicts Idaho's employment levels this year will be about the same as 1979 even though the state's timber industry has experienced at least 1,100 to 1,200 layoffs in the last two weeks.

"Most of the layoffs which have occurred have been anticipated in the forecast because for some time we have been predicting a recession," Slaughter said.

But Slaughter said although Idaho food processing also will suffer from fewer persons eating out, and agriculture, which will be impacted by high interest rates.

Slaughter said he expected some of Idaho's small farm owners to be forced out of business by rising agricultural production costs and no increases in agriculture product prices.

Gov. John Evans will announce a major new program designed to combat the state's economic problems stemming from unemployment at a news conference scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday.

"The unique and exciting aspect of this effort is that it is a program conceived and operated by the private sector for the private sector," Evans said Friday.

Evans will make the announcement in the Morrison-Knudsen auditorium. He and members of the Private Industry Council will report on the council's progress to help Idaho employers offset the cost of hiring and training new employees through tax credits and wage reimbursements.

"Congress authorized the Private Sector Initiatives Program in 1979 as an improvement to the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act," Evans said.

1% bill may cut school funds

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Four words in the Legislature's main 1 percent bill this year could spell lost dollars for Idaho's school districts.

But districts will not know until after Tuesday, when state officials and legal officers meet to write out the words," state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said Friday.

Evans said in Twin Falls to review for Magic Valley educators this year's new laws affecting public schools, said confusion comes from a phrase in House Bill 795. That bill partially implements the 1 percent initiative.

Evans said an ambiguity in the bill must be cleared up before his department can tell school districts how much state money to plan on receiving next fall. The districts must that figure to settle teacher contracts this spring and set budgets in June.

Depending on how the bill's words are legally interpreted, school districts will receive either $21,836 or $21,894 per classroom unit, a difference of $58 for each of the thousands of classroom units in the state.

"Every dollar is important, up or down," Twin Falls School Superintendent James Savin said. "We will not move rapidly until we get the figure they tell us to build our budget upon."

HB 795 extends the freeze on local government budgets ordered by the Legislature last year. Budgets are frozen at their 1979 dollar amounts in counties where property taxes exceed the 1 percent limit.

The question is at what level will the budgets be frozen. Will they be frozen at an amount equal to property taxes collected through regular property tax levies, or will they be frozen at an amount including taxes collected through regular levies plus override levies?

If revenues collected through override levies are included as part of the budget, districts will be allowed to increase property taxes this year to a level equal to last year's taxes plus any override levies that were in effect last year. Forty-eight districts passed override levies last year.

HB 795 states that districts shall limit their property tax revenue to the amounts collected in 1979 "for that same purpose." But the law is not clear as to whether override levies can be considered as having been collected for the same purpose as regular property taxes.

Evans said he hopes the question is resolved Tuesday at a meeting with Tax Commission and Attorney General's staff members. If the override levies are included, then the 48 of Idaho's 111 school districts that had them will receive more local property taxes this year and will need less state money. (Districts receive part of their state money depending on local property tax collections.)

That money can then be spread around all state classrooms.

On other legislative actions, Evans told Magic Valley educators:

* The legislators gave education funding their highest priority. Public school funding was increased 10.7 percent over last year, the largest increase of any appropriation.

Voters want no president?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If Americans could vote "no" in the upcoming presidential election, the White House might be empty for the next four years.

That is, if the nation as a whole feels the same as voters in northern California. A "recall" straw poll taken this week by the San Francisco Chronicle gives "Nobody" a staggering 77 percent of the vote.

The poll asked the question, "Do you like any of the presidential candidates?" The response, 6,802 to 2,916 was overwhelmingly negative.

In other words, "No!"

Coming Sunday
A special look at the history of Twin Falls

Tax returns delayed — no cash?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department Friday postponed mailing about 5 million income tax refund checks for several days because it wants to make sure there is enough money in the federal till to cover them.

Nearly $3 billion in refunds which normally would have been put in the mail Friday will be mailed instead on Monday.

This means the recipients should begin to receive the checks on Tuesday while under the normal practice of mailing refunds every Friday the checks would have begun reaching people on Monday.

Everard Munsy, a department spokesman, stressed the treasury is not running out of money, and no one should panic.

"It's just a matter of being cautious about the amount of cash we have on hand," Munsy said. "Our money managers are concerned over how they like to be sure."

Every week the treasury estimates what its outflow and inflow of cash will be and, like any householder, it sometimes schedules check-writing accordingly.

The treasury's cash demands are particularly high right now because

March through June is the season for mailing out refunds to people who had more taxes withheld from their wages than they owe.

These refunds are bigger than ever this year, so far averaging $396.53 each, compared to $390.02 last year. Refunds totaled $36 billion last year and may reach $40 billion this year.

The Internal Revenue Service says one reason for the higher refunds appears to be that interest rates, including home mortgages, have risen so rapidly that many taxpayers are claiming larger tax-expected deductions for mortgage interest.

New school laws outlined

A new formula for distributing state money to school districts will "solve some real problems" by reducing guesswork and simplifying the process.

No school district will receive less than 8.5 percent increase in state money, nor will any district receive less money than last year from all sources put together, including property taxes.

If property tax bases are as high as projected by the state Tax Commission, school districts will be in counties where property taxes will be less than 1 percent and $5 will not.

Some other laws or changes in existing laws affecting school districts and adopted by the Legislature this year are:

Boundary changes. Before a minimum number of students had to be involved, the requirement was eliminated but another was added. The state Board of Education, which has the authority to change school district boundaries, now must weigh the effect on the district which would lose students and tax base, not just the district which would gain.

Bilingual education. Students whose spoken language at home is not English may be taught in a foreign language "as necessary to allow for their transition to the English language," the law now says.

Driver education. The reimbursement rate is raised from $60 to $70 effective July 1.

Federal floor funds. Provisions now require state and county officials to distribute these federal funds to the schools as soon after they are received as possible instead of only once a year.

Quick tax provision. Homes may be taxed once they become occupied on a prorated basis. Before, new homes escaped taxation for the year if they were not occupied on Jan. 1.

Pornography. A business selling obscene materials cannot be located within 2,500 feet of a school or church.

School bus inspections. Local school districts and the state Department of Education will take over this duty from the Law Enforcement Department. Evans said a "more demanding inspection" will result.

Saturday briefing

Israelis remain in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli-backed Christian fighters Friday retook a 11-kilometer stretch of the Lebanese border with Syria, and cut food and water supplies to U.N. units in south Lebanon, the United Nations said.

The stepped-up pressure across an enclave area along the frontier controlled by renegade Lebanese Maj. Saad Haddad was applied as an estimated 200 or more Israeli soldiers with tanks and armored vehicles dug in for what appeared to be an extended stay in Lebanon.

In Tel Aviv, the military command announced a partial pullout Friday night — a withdrawal of "those forces which have completed their mission." The announcement gave no further details and the extent of the pullout was not known.

Hundreds of Lebanese Christian fighters closed all roads in the border enclave, including a route along the coast, to traffic by the 6,000-man U.N. peacekeeping force in south Lebanon, a U.N. spokesman said.

The spokesman also said the rightists captured and were holding Friday night an American and a Norwegian, both observers for the U.N. peacekeeping force, at the village of Ras. The United Nations did not disclose the identities of either captive or say why they were being held.

U.N. forces deployed in areas held by Haddad's troops "have not been supplied food and water for a week because of continued obstruction," the U.N. spokesman said.

...And while he was at it...

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A holdup man who had just robbed a jewelry store Friday stepped on the way to his getaway car to rob an armored car that happened to be parked at a bank. He escaped in a hail of bullets with an estimated $30,000 in cash and up to $50,000 in jewels.

A witness said the gunman appeared to have been wounded and was driven away by an accomplice. Police said the gunman hid in the Lawson Jewelry Store in east San Diego and fired one round from a small-caliber weapon into the ceiling to intimidate clerks.

He fled and as he burst into the alley near where his getaway car and driver were parked, he ran smack into a crew of armed security guards from Armored Transport Inc. who were unloading sacks of cash for deposit at the Security Pacific Bank.

The guards thought they were being assaulted and went for their weapons. The opportunistic bandit scooped up a money bag, dropping more jewels, and made for his car, pegging shots at the guards as he ran. Witnesses said at least one guard emptied his revolver at the bandit's car.

Suit fled over DES

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A Maryland woman filed a class action suit Friday charging the manufacturers of the anti-miscarriage drug DES with negligence and demanding that the firms establish a cancer-testing clinic for women who may have been affected by the drug.

Andrea M. Brickhead of Bowie filed suit on behalf of all Maryland women against 10 firms that marketed Diethylstilbestrol, or DES, which doctors believe may cause cervical cancer in those who took it and their daughters.

The firm sued in U.S. District Court charged the firms were negligent because they did not adequately determine if the drug had side effects and did not warn women who took it that their health might be impaired.

Convention security set

CHICAGO (UPI) — The FBI and Secret Service will increase security for the Democratic National Convention in New York this summer to guard against disruptions planned by Puerto Rican terrorists, the FBI said Friday.

An FBI spokesman said maps and other materials indicating the group planned to plant bombs at the convention sites were found by agents gathering evidence against 11 suspected top figures in the FALN, a Puerto Rican nationalist group. The 11 suspects, one of whom headed the FBI's most wanted list, were arrested April 4.

Three die in plane crash

ATHOL (UPI) — Three of the six people aboard a DC-3 aircraft died Friday night when the plane crashed during takeoff at the Hackney Airport near the northern Idaho community of Athol.

Kootenai County Sheriff's deputies said the three survivors had been transported to Koford Memorial Hospital in Coeur d'Alene. Deputies Friday night said they had not yet verified the identities of the people aboard the plane and did not know the nature of the survivors' injuries.

They said the craft was about 200 feet off the ground when the engine apparently failed, causing the crash at about 5:24 p.m.

N. Y. transit strike ends

NEW YORK (UPI) — A bitterly divided transit union reached a tentative contract settlement Friday and striking bus and subway workers began to report for work, ending an 11-day walkout that put a $1 billion deficit in the city's budget.

The settlement provoked cries of "sellout" by dissident union members angered by the terms of the pact with the Metropolitan Transportation Authority. Mayor Edward Koch denounced the agreement as "too expensive."

"The city won the battle in the streets," Koch said. "The MTA lost it at the bargaining table." This settlement will also raise the expectations of city workers way beyond what we can possibly afford to pay.

Despite their anger, dissident union leaders agreed to return to work immediately at the urging of Local 100 Transport Workers Union President John Lawe, but they promised a campaign to urge the rank-and-file to vote down the contract.

The strike, which stranded 5.4 million daily riders, was the second longest transit stoppage in the city's history, falling one day short of the 12-day bus and subway strike of 1966.

"The contract wasn't anything I wanted," Lawe said, "but it wasn't in the cards (to get better)."

Chief mediator Walter Gellhorn, flushed and smiling, was knocked out of the tentative settlement. "I can't find a villain in the whole bunch," Gellhorn said. "I must say they are very nice people to work with."

But union dissidents lashed out angrily, and Koch worried that 238,000 municipal workers, whose contracts expire in June, would arrive at the bargaining table with a long list of "me-too" demands.

Lawe issued the back-to-work order after a heated meeting with the TWU executive board, which was split equally by a vote of 22-22 over the board.

"Take it!" Lawe reportedly urged the board.

Lawrence Chapin, a member of the union's law firm, said the offer accepted by Lawe called for a 9 percent wage increase in the first year of a two-year pact and 8 percent the second year, with a cost-of-living increase in the last six months up to a maximum 6 percent.

Officials also said the union accepted a total of $3 million in productivity gainbacks in the contract, which prompted Boone to declare, "This has not been a victory, it's been a total and crushing defeat."

The mail ballots were expected to be sent to the rank-and-file within a week, and the results of the ratification vote should be known within three weeks, union officials said.

Iran, Iraq stage armies for war

In a dispatch from Tehran, the Kuwaiti news agency, KUNA, quoted a revolutionary guard commander at the Qasr-e-Shirin border post as saying Iranian mortar fire had knocked out three Iraqi tanks. The report did not say when the clash took place.

Iranian ships were sent into northern Persian Gulf waters to patrol the coastline off Iraq, Iranian officials said.

The ships, which were not immediately identified, sailed Thursday from Iran's southern ports of Abadan and Khoramshahr "to prove their readiness for confronting any invasion of our sea borders," Tehran radio said.

In an address Friday to thousands of marchers at Tehran University, Bani-Sadr said that if Iraq attacked again, he would "be unable to prevent Iranian troops from crossing into Iraq."

"They would regard it as their divine duty to pursue the enemy, and would definitely pursue the aggressive enemy across his own borders," Bani-Sadr said.

"I should say that if the Iraqi government dared to take one step forward, we would not stop at punishment alone," he said.

Bani-Sadr said Iraq was "under the jackboots of the red fascists" of President Saddam Hussein and was "looting for an opportunity to rise against a puppet Satan (Hussein)."

He said Iran's army troops, which "enjoyed a greater degree of preparedness than the air force and navy, are now 100 times more prepared than before to protect the borders of the Islamic country."

Western military experts questioned that. The Iranian military, which numbered 415,000 men under Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, has a reported desertion rate of 60 percent or more, and many of its top officers have been executed.

Klan leader's home attacked

SHEPHERDSVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Two gun-wielding men burst into the home of Kentucky Ku Klux Klan leader Sherman Adams before dawn Friday and fired into rooms where his young son and wife slept.

Adams, grand dragon of the Kentucky KKK, said his family "miraculously" escaped injury. He said he may have hit at least one of the intruders "when I snapped off a few shots with a .45-caliber gun I keep by my bed."

Bullitt County Police Chief Carroll Mills said at least 17 bullet holes had pierced the Adams farmhouse.

Last year, Adams was convicted of terroristic threatening in connection with the beatings of two men he suspected of trafficking in drugs. He later was acquitted of charges he conspired to murder court officials in the case.

State and county police said they had no suspects or motive in the incident, but an investigation was underway.

Apollo 13 remembered

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The crew of the aborted Apollo XIII moon mission celebrated the 10th anniversary of their liftoff Friday at the museum home of the capsule that brought them safely back to Earth in 1970.

Precisely at 2:13 p.m., the moment of the liftoff from Cape Kennedy, hundreds of balloons were released into the air, a band played the theme from "2001: A Space Odyssey" and four Air National Guard fighters flew overhead.

"The space program has been a great thing for the country," said Lovel, who urged youngsters to consider careers in space exploration. "There are plenty of things still to do."

Sunny days and cool nights ahead

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, and Gooding-Jerome areas:

Sunny warm days and clear cool nights through Sunday. Lows to night 30 to 35, highs 60 to 65 today and in the upper 60s Sunday. Halley, Carnas Prairie, and Wood River Valley:

Warmer mild days and clear cool nights through Sunday. Overnight lows 30s to low 30s, and highs in days mid 50s to low 60s.

Synopsis: Fair skies remained over Idaho Friday as a high pressure system continued to dominate the weather.

A new Pacific storm system is approaching the coast, but the high pressure is expected to weaken this system. So a beautiful weekend is in store for all of Idaho.

Friday morning low temperatures were mostly in the 20s across the state. The coldest overnight low was 8 degrees at Stanley.

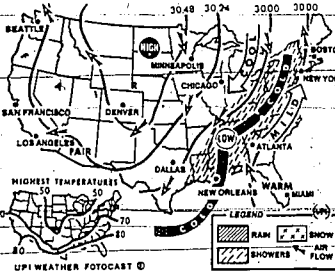

With the high pressure over the area Friday, very light winds were blowing.

The extended forecast shows mostly "dry" through Wednesday. Overnight lows are expected to be in the 30s to low 40s, and highs mostly in the 60s. Spraying conditions show winds near 5 mph this morning, increasing slightly to between 5 and 10 mph this afternoon.

Four-inch soil temperatures show the maximum for today up 3 degrees and the minimum tonight no change.

Field preparation Monday through Wednesday shows mostly dry for good field conditions. Highs in the mid to upper 60s, overnight lows near 40.

High return rate listed for census

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 84 percent of America's households filled out their census forms and returned them to the government within 10 days of the April 1 deadline, officials said Friday.

"I'm pleased to announce that this very important undertaking is going very, very well," Deputy Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges Jr. told a news conference.

He said the Census Bureau — which is under the Commerce Department's jurisdiction — had estimated it would get an 80 percent early return.

For every 1 percent mailed back over the 80 percent target, some $2.5 million in followup costs can be saved," he said.

Barabba said he is investigating reports that some cities did not even receive census forms. He said one he knows in particular is Foster, Ore.

"The reason I know that," he said, "is that my mother called to tell me."

Barabba said the bureau hired 682,000 people to get information from returned forms that failed to mail back the forms. He said the hiring was 200,000 lower than first planned because of the higher-than-expected mail response.

Highway strangler claims 33rd victim

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The nude body of a teen-age boy, believed to be the 33rd victim of the so-called "Freeway Strangler," was found Friday propped against an alley door. The boy, about 15 years old with long blond hair, apparently had been choked to death. Police said he had been dead between eight and 10 hours before his body was discovered, about 8 a.m. Friday.

The previous Freeway Strangler victim was found March 25 in the Rampart District of Los Angeles. That victim, who remains unidentified, also was found nude and bore marks of strangulation. Los Angeles police said the killings appear to be similar. The Los Angeles victim was between ages 15 and 18 and had long blond hair.

The 30th and 31st strangulation victims were those of two boys found together in the Cleveland National Forest near a highway in early March.

Most of the victims have been found near freeways or major highways.

Olympic athletes hostages? Pressure may force boycott

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — On the eve of the United States Olympic Committee's climatic decision on American participation in the Moscow Games, the USOC's chief attorney said Friday he felt the power of the presidency would overcome the athletes' desire to compete.

A top American amateur athletic official, meanwhile said President Carter was threatening "to keep the athletes hostage in the U.S.," and a former Olympic competitor said he had little doubt legal action would be taken if the White House tried to keep an American team out of Moscow.

And as the final battle lines were being drawn for a vote Saturday by the USOC's House of Delegates, Vice President Walter Mondale headed for Colorado Springs with a last appeal from the president, who has steadfastly demanded an Olympic boycott because of the Soviet Union's presence in Afghanistan.

Mondale was scheduled to address the House of Delegates before its vote Saturday morning. The ultimate decision was still in doubt. It will take a majority of the 2,451 votes cast to decide the issue. But no matter what the vote might be, Patrick Sullivan, head counsel for the USOC, said he thought President Carter would ultimately prevail. Sullivan said he thought Carter's threat of legal action to keep the athletes at home was not a bluff.

"The president means what he says," Sullivan said. "There is a possibility he could revoke the passports of the athletes, although there is some doubt as to whether he can legally do that on a selective basis.

But if he were to do that, just as they were stepping on the plane they probably would not have time to do anything about it in court.

"It's my personal view that the die has been cast. I do not believe the USOC will send a team to Moscow. The power of the president is too great."

"I regret the sacrifices our athletes have made during the past four years in preparing for the Olympics, but I'm afraid that life is not fair."

Carter's threat of legal action came on Thursday, but at an athletes' news conference Friday rower Anita de Frantz said Carter was not the only one considering action in the courts.

"Some individual athletes I have talked to have investigated taking action," she said. "I have little doubt that it will be done if we are not permitted to go to Moscow."

Olympic movement. Kane indicated the administration was willing to make up this year's budget deficit if the boycott was supported.

PTL Club records subpoenaed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. James O. Bakker, host of the Praise The Lord religious television series, agreed Friday to comply with a subpoena for documents about his group's fund-raising activities. The Federal Communications Commission has been investigating how the money was raised and spent by Bakker, who produces and markets to 200 television stations a series known as "The PTL Club" from station WJAN in Canton, Ohio. Bakker had refused since last November to comply with an FCC subpoena for the fund-raising documents. On March 11, the Justice Department asked a federal judge to order him to show cause why he should not fully comply.

In a stipulation filed in court Friday, Bakker agreed to "produce all documents responsive to the subpoena" by next Tuesday and to testify before the FCC on May 20.

The FCC began its investigation in March 1979, on receiving information that "fraudulent and misleading" information may have been broadcast over a Bakker-owned station, WJAN, in soliciting funds, according to the Justice Department brief filed last month.

The funds purportedly were to be used for projects in Brazil, Asia and Cyprus, as well as a project to improve WJAN facilities, the court papers said.

The government brief said the FCC investigation involves "both how the money was raised and how it was spent."

Bakker not only fought the subpoena, but failed to appear at a Jan. 8 FCC hearing involving the subpoena. He previously filed several lawsuits in federal court and in an appeals court in Washington seeking to block the investigation. All the complaints were dismissed.

Regulations prohibit Cadet Steve Lamb from even holding hands with Cadet Sue Reichel, but they'll marry after graduation.

Despite regulations, Citadel love blooms

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Love overcame regulations when Cupid shot his arrow at platoon mates Steve Lamb and Sue Reichel.

"They've been engaged since last fall and will marry shortly after graduation with the class of 1980 — the first to include females.

The two live in the same barracks, on the same floor, two doors apart — as they have for three years. But rules prohibit them from holding hands publicly or engaging — in intimacies — behind closed doors in the barracks.

"It's like being miles apart," said Lamb, of Exeter, N.Y. "The fact that you can't be amorous and you're together most of the time is the toughest," said cadet Reichel, of Panama City, Fla.

Public displays of affection are forbidden for members of the corps of cadets at the United States Military Academy. But several other engagements have blossomed within the long gray walls of the 1980 Academy officials said. Lamb and Miss Reichel, both "Army brats" — offspring of career Army officers — will marry June 13 at Grace Episcopal Church in Washington, D.C. A photographer, posing the couple under the nose of a statue of Gen. Patton, asked them to hold hands — "It would make a better picture."

"No, sir," the two chimed. "It's against regulations, sir."

"Patton," an observer said, pointing at the monument to the hardack general of World War II fame, "would jump out of his statue at that."

"The biggest hardship in the courtship?"

"Being accepted by our class," Lamb said.

All cadets did not approve of the heavy romantic attachment within the corps of cadets that's supposed to have eyes mainly for "duty, honor, country."

It hasn't been settled on how the two should be addressed after the wedding — Lt. and Lt. Reichel-Lamb; the Lt.s. Lamb; the Lt.s. Reichel-Lamb?

Classmates say the main thing to call them is happy. The two are assigned to duty in Germany. They said their combined pay, subsistence and housing allowance will be around $2,900 a month.

TRISKA-DEKED

Note to Tom Weiskopf. It's called triskaidekaphobia, it means fear of the number 13 and you should—Thirteen sneaked up on Weiskopf and mugged him Thursday in the opening round of the Masters Tournament in Augusta, Ga. It struck on the creek-guarded 12th hole where Weiskopf flailed away five shots for a 10-over-par 13, en route to a 13-over-par 85 for the day. It's the first time he's failed to qualify for the Masters in — you guessed it — 13 tries.

RUDY'S RIOT

It was Rudolf Nureyev against the picket line Thursday in Rome. Nureyev won — but not without a fight. He and costar Carla Fracci decided to go on with a scheduled performance despite a strike by most of the ballet company's dancers, but the curtain ran longer than it should have than the strikers, dressed in street clothes, emerged from the wings in protest. Nureyev argued while the audience shouted "Clowns! Clowns!"

TOM WEISKOPF ...a fear of 13

Feline faux pas recanted

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — State Sen. Jim Gallagher says he's not nothing against cats, just dumb laws. Irrate feline lovers in 17 states and Canada have had a different opinion for the past month.

The Jesus Democrat gained national notoriety when he spoke out against a bill to require motorists to stop and report accidents involving animals: The bill made a violation a serious misdemeanor punishable by up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine. "I thought the penalty was too stringent," Gallagher said. "I used the words, 'you could squish a cat and keep on driving,' meaning you wouldn't even know you've run over the animal."

His widely quoted comment brought in angry letters from residents of 17 states and Canada.

"Most of them said if you're going to be squishing cats there should be a law allowing senators to be squished without liability," he said. "They'd send me pictures of Fluffy and Muffy and ask me if I wanted to squish them."

People magazine sent a reporter and photographer to Gallagher's tree farm near Jesup for an all-day interview.

His colleagues made him the butt of Senate jokes and two of his sons expressed disappointment at his choice of words, Gallagher said. A political button reading "It's better squished" circulated in the Capitol.

On Friday, Senate page Martha Weller, 18, of Central City, interrupted proceedings in the upper chamber to present Gallagher with a 7-week-old white mixed Siamese kitten. Gallagher accepted the gift "good naturedly and named it 'Page.'"

"I've already got four dogs and two cats at home," he said. "I didn't like cats until we got our first one."

Gallagher said he hopes feline lovers will take note of his conversion. "I did say those words, but not because I don't like cats but in order to kill a dumb bill," he said.

It was an hour before the strikers let the show go on.

BERT'S BEST BET

Despite great public frothing and fuming over his firing, Bert Parks won't be going back to Atlantic City, N.J., on behalf of the Miss America Pageant, but he may be going back on behalf of a casino. Parks says he's close to signing a contract with Greale Bay Casino-Hotel developers which wants to build a new $65 million pavilion of chance in the gambling city this summer. They want Parks to push the place in a nationwide radio and television campaign.

SUMMER COLD

The sore throat was bad enough, but the treatment was worse. As a result, Donna Summer has cancelled a seven-day Las Vegas engagement. She's back in Los Angeles under orders of her doctor who says she's suffering an allergic reaction to medicine prescribed for her throat. But she says her involuntary summer vacation will be a short one. She'll be back in musical harness right after Labor Day — touring Texas.

TAX SHELTER

Few if any ever manage to parlay the onerous task of income tax into a

Jackpot; but that's just the way it went for Bruno Kaczmarek. When the 59-year-old Toronto shoe store owner finally got around to digging out all his papers and receipts for the annual Canadian tax computation, he found a pair of forgotten lottery tickets. The number on one of them was 5992542, and that spelled a $1 million tax-free win. Kaczmarek says he'll pay off his debts and retire.

Paternity suit against dog dropped

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI) — Paternity charges against Max — a part collie, part German shepherd accused of fathering 16 puppies — have been dismissed in Shaker Heights small claims court.

The unique paternity suit was filed by Richard Simon, of Beachwood, who had sought $20,000 in damages from Max's owners, the Emille Gantous family, Simon's neighbors. Simon told the court he saw a male dog attempting to mate with his pedigreed German shepherd chained to his backyard fence, that he chased the dog away and that it ran into the Gantous' garage.

"Sixty-two days later my dog had 16 puppies," said Simon, who brought nine of the pups to court and argued that Max had been running loose in violation of Beachwood's leash law and his owners were liable for his actions.

Mrs. Gantous disputed the charge, saying that on the day in question Max had been locked in their garage. Referee Edward Troxell dismissed the case, ruling Simon didn't provide sufficient proof that Max was the father. He said that the court has had no reports of Max "having a reputation for loose behavior."

"The owner of an animal is liable for the animal's vicious acts," Troxell said. "But in this case, the 22 'in' question was not vicious, but exactly the opposite, and ended up bearing the fruits of love."

How do you get rid of a kangaroo statue?

UMEA, Sweden (UPI) — Yngve Ljungblad has a problem with his job in a tax office in Sweden's far north. There's this six-foot wooden kangaroo he doesn't like keeping him company.

The sculpture was commissioned by the tax authority and is listed as a $16,000 "work of art" on the authority's expenditure sheet. Ljungblad sees it differently.

"There's plenty of room in the cellar," he said. "They should lock it up down there."

Mt. St. Helens expands, contracts

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Booming eruptions of steam and ash from Mount St. Helens are flexing the earth up and down like an elastic band midway down the volcano's 9,677-foot high peak, government scientists said Friday.

Instrument measurements of the ground's swell and fall show "short episodes of local deformation as much as a few centimeters" before and after each volcanic "blast." The expansion and contractions occur over a space of time ranging from several minutes to a few hours, said a statement from the U.S. Geological Survey.

Some evidence suggests that the short period changes are directly associated with individual eruptions, the scientists said.

"If your started having magma (lava) coming up the column of the volcano it would cover more space and it would force the sides of the mountain outward and out," said Don Finley of the USGS. "Other gases could also do that."

The mountain is "flexing a little bit because of the deformation," he added.

Meanwhile, scientists monitoring the prolonged rumblings of Mount St. Helens were worried about running out of government money to keep up the watch.

The volcano, which awakened March 27 after more than a century of rest, is putting a severe strain on the $1 million budgeted annually by the USGS for the study of volcanic activity, said spokesman Don Kelly.

"We don't know how long this can go on," he added, noting that the USGS assigned 24 scientists to Mount St. Helens when it began erupting more than two weeks ago, spewing ash and steam as high as four miles into the air.

"Within a week a decision will have to be made on a minimum program for Mount St. Helens and where the money will come from."

The Forest Service has spent more than $167,000 on its volcano watch, and numerous state, local and police agencies have put out thousands more, mostly in overtime pay.

Feds launch DES probe

DENVER (UPI) — A federal official says it may be weeks before attorneys decide which 46 firms, including seven Colorado businesses, will be prosecuted for allegedly dispensing and using a growth stimulant banned by the Food and Drug Administration last year.

"It probably will take weeks before we decide which ones (businesses) to proceed with as far as charges go," Bill Rados, FDA press officer, said Wednesday.

The list of suspected violators, discovered during a recent investigation, included five feedlots and two distributors in Colorado.

Officials of the FDA and the U.S. Justice Department earlier said diethylstilbestrol (DES) may have been used illegally on 200,000 head of cattle nationwide. Use of DES was prohibited Nov. 1 after the chemical was linked to cancer.

Rados discounted claims by many suspected violators that they did not know when the ban went into effect. The effective date of the ban had been delayed several times.

"It would be very unusual for someone in the cattle business to have not known that the product was banned," he said.

Rados said thousands of live cattle known to have been treated with DES were being withheld from slaughter for 35 days to allow elimination of the chemical from their systems. More than 9,380 cattle belonging to Colorado Beef in Lamar were among those whose slaughter was delayed.

A spokesman for Allied Mills Inc., a Chicago firm that owns Colorado Beef, said DES was used "without the knowledge of Allied Mills management."

Daryl Natz, Allied spokesman, said use of the chemical was "promptly reported" to the FDA when it was discovered in early March.

Small reactor leak reported

SAN ONOFRE, Calif. (UPI) — Leakage of radioactive coolant from a steam generating unit at the San Onofre Nuclear Generating Station has forced operators to start a seven-week refueling operation ahead of schedule.

Bob Hull, a spokesman for Southern California Edison Co., operators of the plant, said the leakage occurred in a contained area and presented no threat to plant employees.

The volume of leakage amounted to about 195 gallons an hour, below the maximum allowable amount set by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Samples taken from the plant's secondary loop indicated levels of radioactive tritium were much less than allowed for drinking water.

Refueling, which involves replacement of 52 uranium oxide rods in the reactor core, is normally done every 18 months. The operation takes seven weeks, a spokesman said.

Coal agreement reached

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Wyoming's governor and the state director of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management signed an agreement Friday outlining the state's role in preparation of federal leases for coal mining in the Powder River Basin.

Gov. Ed Herschler and BLM Wyoming Director Maxwell signed the "memorandum of understanding" during a ceremony at the Capitol. The governor and state BLM director of Montana already have signed the agreement.

The government has identified

151,940 acres of federal land in the Wyoming share of the basin that could be suitable for competitive lease by 1982, state BLM Coal Coordinator Stan McKee said. The area, located north and south of Gillette, has estimated reserves of 23 billion tons, he said.

Under the agreement, the governors and BLM directors of both states will join the national BLM director on a five-member coal "team." The team will suggest production goals, identify and rank lease tracts and establish lease schedules.

Victim pleads for assailant

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — A district judge ignored a hitchhiker's plea for leniency for his assailant and imposed a four-year prison term on a Longmont man who intentionally ran over the victim.

Richard J. LaBoulliere, 23, had been charged with attempted murder in the Oct. 27 incident but later pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of second-degree assault and leaving the scene of an accident.

The victim, whose name was not released, told District Judge Rex Scott Thursday he did not want LaBoulliere sent to prison, saying he did not believe in revenge and opposed jail because he had spent time in prison himself.

But, Scott said testimony at the hearing indicated LaBoulliere's action was "aggravated." He said he was sentencing LaBoulliere to four years, half the maximum term, because of the victim's plea and because LaBoulliere had promised to give the victim $1,000 from his income tax refund.

"That's all the money he has in the world, and he doesn't have to do that, but he wants to," Scott said.

During testimony at the sentencing hearing, Phil West, a sheriff's detective, read a statement given by a passenger in LaBoulliere's car the night of the incident. The passenger said LaBoulliere and a third man "were laughing" after the hitchhiker was run over.

According to testimony, the car stopped near the unidentified hitchhiker and the driver called, "Hey, you got any pot?"

The hitchhiker said no and the driver then asked him if he wanted to "get run over."

The hitchhiker again said no, but the car made a U-turn and hit the hitchhiker at high speed. The victim suffered a broken back, broken pelvis and two broken legs.

Oil spill termed disaster

GLENROCK, Wyo. (UPI) — Officials say 8,500 barrels of crude oil dumped into the North Platte River by a ruptured pipeline killed thousands of waterfowl and caused severe damage to their habitat.

"With waterfowl, there's a tremendous die-off," said Bill Brown, a state Game and Fish Department spokesman. "Initially they were saying hundreds, but there's a lot more than that."

"It's very likely all of the invertebrate life in that stretch will be destroyed," Brown said Thursday. "I think the damage has been done. It's going to take us a long time to assess the biological damage that's been done."

Brown said plant life — meaning the food supply for waterfowl — would probably also be lost everywhere oil accumulated on the banks. A shipment of small fish bound for the Glendo Reservoir also was held up because of the situation.

Federal officials and pipeline workers set up oil booms in the headwaters of the reservoir Thursday and filled them down the 12,226 acre reservoir 50 miles downstream from the site of the break.

Brown said the reservoir and the Platte north of the reservoir were "a main stop-over area" for migrating birds, whose travel season is at a peak.

No changes in shapes when packing pistols

The women's wear shops in South Africa sell a special bra. Sewn into it is a holster for a small-caliber handgun. The maker claims the wearer's shape remains unchanged when packing the pistol.

Scholars at West Virginia University contend, they can guess a person's weight within 3 1/2 pounds just by listening to said party's voice.

Right after you eat an artichoke, plain water tastes sweet. But that's only one example of how a food makes another taste differently. In East Africa grows a red berry called Miracle fruit. After eating it, sour fruits such as lemons taste extremely sweet.

How do you account for the fact that chinchillas raised under blue lights produce 85 percent female offspring?

LOVE AND WAR

Q. Ask your Love and War man how to explain why June marriages result in the highest divorce rate.

A. Lot of first marriages occur in June, and in particular, first marriages of especially young couples fresh out of school. The younger the bride and groom, the more likely a divorce; that's widely known.

Q. What's the average tenure of college presidents in America?

A. Five years, last I heard.

Hardly any drivers use hand signals anymore, that you know. But the driver who does stick an arm out the car window to warn of a turn now gets a particular deference. It's odd. Those nearby treat hand signals almost as though they called for emergency attention.

LEAST BENEFICIAL

The oil business, car repair and auto manufacturing were named in that order as the "least beneficial" industries in a nationwide survey. By calling them "least beneficial," the consumer-queried-in-the-poll indicated the aforementioned industries didn't seem to be much interested in catering to the ordinary citizen.

Polio

25 years after first vaccine disease is almost wiped out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Polio, the disease which once struck 30,000 Americans every year and left a legacy of wheelchairs, iron lungs and deformed bodies, was conquered 25 years ago Saturday.

It was on April 12, 1955, that the March of Dimes announced a vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas Salk had been successfully tested in field trials. Later, mass immunizations using another version of the vaccine developed by Dr. Albert Sabin virtually eliminated the scourge.

In 1955, there were 30,000 new cases of polio in the United States. Last year there were only 26. Sixteen of those occurred among people living in Amish communities who had not been vaccinated.

In the entire decade of the 1970s, there were fewer polio cases reported than were occurring every day during the summer of 1955, when parents were afraid to send their children outside, fearing the disease was contagious.

Last fall the Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimated that more than 90 percent of the nation's children in kindergarten through the eighth grade were immunized against polio as well as other childhood diseases such as measles, whooping cough, tetanus and diphtheria.

Public health authorities no longer recommend routine immunizations or booster shots for adults unless they are traveling to areas where the disease still occurs — particularly in developing countries.

Polio is still a problem throughout the world. In 1978, the latest year for which figures are available, there were 11,488 cases reported worldwide, compared to 10,877 the year before.

The polio vaccine used today is the Sabin version, which employs a live but weakened polio virus and is administered orally. The original Salk vaccine, which employed a dead virus, is available but not widely used.

Pediatricians routinely give the vaccine to infants starting in the early months of a child's life.

Surgeon General Julius Richardson said the triumph of a quarter century ago "grew out of the dedication of a small number of very farsighted individuals."

"To consider the millions and millions of dollars and great suffering that once went for the treatment and rehabilitation of polio patients is to be staggered by the realization that, had we not set out to conquer polio 25 years ago, how hard-pressed we would be today to care for the victims."

"When I was a young resident pediatrician, I spent more than half of my time treating polio," Richmond said. "Before I returned to government ... I found it very difficult to enter the young residential care of the polio patient, because I could not find a single case to use in my teaching."

"This was a happy situation."

Cancer

New drug may save life of boy with rare cancer

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — A teen-age boy believed nearly dead from cancer two weeks ago has shown "enormous" improvement since he began receiving treatment with the rare drug interferon, doctors at the Royal Hospital for Sick Children said Friday.

There is little interferon in the world at the moment that the Danish doctor who flew to Glasgow with it said "not even the Shah of Persia (Iran)" could have obtained it in the quantity made available for the treatment of the 16-year-old Scottish youth.

The boy was stricken two years ago with a very rare cancer, anaplastic carcinoma, that started in the middle of his left ear and caused severe disfigurement.

"When he came to me," Dr. Tom McAllister told a news conference, "he was a very sick boy with only two weeks to live by any standard. He was dying during the past two weeks he had daily dosage of interferon, three million units injected every morning."

"When I discussed the case with Dr. (Kjellrud) Nielsen he agreed there would not be any improvement from between 10 and 14 days and now fight he was. On the 10th day the tumor was down a little bit and since then it has been regressing. The boy was able to see out of his left eye for the first time in two months and the left ear became more noticeable."

"The change in his general state of health is enormous."

"Only two weeks before, he was lying at home depressed and sick and obviously close to death. Now he's a new boy altogether."

But he cautioned against undue optimism, stressing that it would be six more weeks before they could decide how successful the treatment had been.

"We are still on the frontiers of medical research in this area," he said.

Dr. Nielsen is head of the Danish Interferon Laboratories, where the substance is drawn from the white blood cells of donors. It acts as a booster to the existing white blood cells in the body of a victim and helps them recognize cancer as an invader of the body.

McAllister said the treatment has cost about $4,000 to date.

Test-tube baby clinic faces patient problems

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Medical problems have prevented seven of the women in the nation's first test-tube baby clinic from completing their in-vitro fertilizations, doctors said Friday.

One of two women who did undergo the procedure during March and early April is not pregnant and the second has not yet been tested for pregnancy, said Dr. Jack Rary, the clinic's gynecologist.

Rary said that when the program started in late February, doctors expected to perform in-vitro fertilization in all nine men in the first group of patients.

But many of the attempts were blocked by unforeseen medical problems, including hormonal imbalance and difficulty in locating reproductive organs that sometimes prevented even the removal of an egg from the patient's ovary.

But he added, "Those patients are not out of the program."

Under the in-vitro fertilization procedure, an egg is removed from a woman's ovary and placed in a laboratory dish with sperm from her husband. The fertilized egg is then placed back in the woman's womb.

Cancer causing chemical identified in water pipes

BOSTON (UPI) — Environmental authorities Friday ordered a quick survey to determine how seriously the New England water supply has been contaminated by a chemical suspected of causing cancer.

At the same time, they downplayed health dangers to residents of more than 200 communities in six states whose drinking water has run through pipes coated with the chemical tetrachloroethylene.

In some cases the chemical has been found in concentrations of up to 30 times the maximum amount considered safe under federal water safety guidelines.

Environmental authorities report water for 83 Massachusetts communities has flowed through pipes coated with the chemical.

Similar pipes have been installed in 87 municipalities in Connecticut, but authorities said not all those areas suffer from contaminated water. They said they had not yet determined exactly which communities are affected.

standards for the Environmental Protection Agency's Drinking Water Division.

Precautory measures, including the periodic flushing of the effected pipes with water, are needed as "standard, traditional public health policies," he said.

Jerry Healey, chief of the EPA's Drinking Water Division, told a meeting of New England water commissioners his office is recommending an end to new installations of the chemically coated pipes.

More than 1,000 miles of the pipes have been installed since 1958, when the chemical coating was developed to soften the corrosive nature of New England's water supply, Healey said.

The chief manufacturer of the pipes, the Johns Mansville Corp. of Denver, said production methods were altered after the EPA first discovered tetrachloroethylene in drinking water at a Newport, R.I., park and blamed the problem on a newly installed pipe coated with the substance.

Similar problems have been reported in small New England communities that have experienced rapid housing growth, and the concentration of the chemical has been highest in areas where water remains in the pipes for long periods, Cotruvo said.

Barry McGuire performs in Twin Falls Thursday

McGuire exchanged successful commercial career for ministry

TWIN FALLS — Barry McGuire believes his concert ministry is much more than an evening of music about Jesus.

The singer/guitarist/songwriter says it is "the coming together as a Chosen Generation." On April 17 he will perform in concert at the Christian Center at 7:30 p.m.

He believes songs of praise and worship are "weapons against Satan." "When we come together in His Name to join our voices in an expression of our love for Jesus, we release a force of Agape Love, against which Satan has no defense," he said.

McGuire gained fame in the early '60s with the New Christy Minstrels. He found success as a writer ("Green, Green... Greenback Dollar"), as a singer ("Eve of Destruction") and as an actor in "Hogan on Broadway."

It wasn't until 1971 that he found Jesus and switched his commercial career to a musical ministry. Since then McGuire has pursued an active schedule of guest TV appearances, concerts, recordings, an autobiography, film scripts and his own TV series, "Come Along," which is telecast via the Christian Broadcasting Network.

The Christian Center concert in Twin Falls will be his only performance in Idaho. The concert is sponsored by One Way Inn Ministries, a Twin Falls-based non-profit Christian bookkeeping agency. The public is welcome and a free-will offering will be taken.

Minister added

TWIN FALLS — Mr. Warren R. Chapman has recently been added to the staff at First Christian Church as Minister of Evangelism. Pastor Chapman has been in the ministry since 1959 when he began his ministerial education at Lincoln Christian College in Lincoln, Buffalo and Corland, Ill., and in Tucson, Ariz. He served in the Army for six years as a chaplain assistant and was First Christian pastor E. Weston Scott's administrative assistant for the last year of his Army experience. He served in various assignments in the United States and taught conversational English at the University of Tokyo, Japan.

Pastor Chapman has degrees in business administration, theology and is finishing a Master of Divinity degree from Toledo Seminary. His wife is finishing a master's degree in nursing at the University of Arizona, Tucson, Ariz.

Filer voters busy May 27

First, they pull levers in primary tally, then fill in paper ballots in recall poll

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

FILER — Residents of Filer will be voting in a recall election May 27, the same day as Idaho's primary election.

City Clerk Frances Wells said Friday she has received official notification from Councilman Leland Alexander that he will not resign.

State law provides if an individual does not resign within five days after recall petitions are filed against him, an election must be called by the city clerk.

Normally, the clerk must set the election within 30 to 40 days after receiving word from the official that he is not resigning. However, the law provides that no special or recall elections can be held within 90 days of a general election. Mrs. Wells says this is interpreted to mean it must be held on the same day as the election, in this case the primary.

Filer City Attorney Fred Decker said the state law requires if such an election is imminent within 90 days of any primary or general election, it must be held on the same date. He said he questioned that this would apply to city elections since municipal officials are not involved in general elections, but apparently it does pertain to city as well as county or state recalls.

Wells and Decker said recall voting will probably not be held in conjunction with the primary because of confusion to the voters.

Decker said not everyone voting in the primary will be able to vote in the recall and it would be difficult for election officials to weed out voters registered for one election but not for another. Wells said since voting machines will be in use in the primary balloting, the recall will probably have to be cast on old-fashioned paper ballots.

She said voters will go to the Filer High School to vote in the primary election and then to City Hall to vote in the recall election.

Decker said the city clerk is the election officer and will prepare notice of the election including the place and time. He said it is not up to the council to adopt an election resolution as in other municipal voting.

Alexander was notified April 4 that petitions containing sufficient signatures to set a recall election had been filed against him.

Defense lawyer Greg Fuller, right, and Lynn Thomas debated the cocaine issue Friday.

Medical evidence on cocaine argued

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There is no medical evidence to say that cocaine is a "dangerous" drug, Jerome lawyer Greg Fuller argued here Friday.

In an appeal before the Idaho Supreme Court on a conviction and sentencing for delivery of cocaine, Fuller quoted testimony of Dr. Joel Fort of San Francisco, a recognized authority on drugs and addiction.

Fort testified in the trial of Frank Joseph, Clonell, Fuller's client, that cocaine is not a hard drug and has a "low potential for abuse." The doctor, whom Fuller said has researched cocaine extensively, testified cocaine causes no brain damage and is not a narcotic. He said users will turn to cocaine about once a week or every two weeks, whereas their need for heroine and other hard drugs is a daily need.

Fuller argued the appeal of Clonell of Bellevue and Raymond Charles Jeff of Twin Falls. They were convicted in separate cases heard before 5th District Court judges Douglas Kramer and Theron W. Ward, respectively, but the cases were consolidated in appeal because both involved the sale of cocaine.

Fuller said the penalty under Idaho law for delivery of this classification of controlled substance is a maximum of life in prison. Clonell's sentence was 10 years and Jeff got five years, Fuller said, but he believed the judges gave some consideration to the life term.

He said this constitutes cruel and unusual punishment and violates the constitutional rights of the two individuals.

Fuller also argued the law under which the men were convicted is unconstitutional in that it classifies cocaine with heroine, LSD and other hard and dangerous drugs.

"I am not condoning cocaine. But I am saying it is not reasonable that a man must face a possible life sentence for sale of a substance that is not nearly as dangerous as either alcohol or tobacco. We have substantial evidence to show both alcohol and tobacco are dangerous to the health of the users but there is no evidence to support the contention that cocaine is dangerous," Fuller said.

Asked by Justice Allan Shepherd for testimony to substantiate his claim, Fuller cited the testimony of Fort, saying the doctor is both a medical and psychiatric doctor and has examined both appellants.

Fort, he said, heads a well-known California clinic for drug, alcohol and sex criminals, is the author of some 40 books and publications on drug matters and has been called by the United Nations as a consultant on drug problems, cocaine in particular.

Fuller said as far as is known, cocaine is about on the level with marijuana and should be treated as such by law and the courts.

Lynn Thomas, deputy attorney general and chief of the appellant division, said if the classification of cocaine is to be changed the legislature would have to rewrite the present state laws, which he said is not the obligation of the courts. He said the courts must uphold existing laws and the Legislature must change them.

Pointing out that even though the appellants may argue no medical evidence exists showing cocaine is a dangerous drug, Thomas countered that there is no proof it is not dangerous. He said the facts support the legal classification of the drug.

He said the appellants' arguments that constitutional rights have been violated, and that the offenders suffered cruel and unusual punishment, are not valid. He said there is no reference in the constitution regarding use of drugs.

Further, he said the existing law sets out the punishment and in both cases, the judges chose a lesser punishment than the maximum allowed.

Thomas said if cocaine is not "dangerous" certainly it is a "powerful drug."

The case was the final one in the state Supreme Court's week-long session in Twin Falls. Chief Justice Charles Donaldson closed the session shortly after 12:30 p.m., saying all arguments heard during the week would be reviewed and decisions would follow.

U.S. may continue snow surveys

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Instead of getting out of the snow survey business, the federal government may be getting in deeper.

Public hearings were held in 11 Western states, including Idaho, at the beginning of the year to find out how to limit the federal government's role in the snow survey and water forecast program. As a budget cutting measure, the U.S. Department of Agriculture had proposed discontinuing the program or turning it over to state and local governments.

But people attending hearings in Idaho and other states were nearly unanimous in saying that the snow survey should remain under federal control and be expanded; too, said Amos Garrison, state conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service. As a result of those hearings, the program will at least be maintained at its present level, he said.

Jack Wilson, head of the state snow survey, said three main conclusions came out of all the public meetings. People wanted the Soil Conservation Service to continue to run it, they wanted it to receive increased funding, and they wanted the program expanded to monitor more sites.

Recommendations based on the information gathered at the public hearings are ready to be sent to the Secretary of Agriculture, Garrison said. The recommendations will present three alternatives — maintaining the program as it is now, expanding it or expanding it considerably, he said.

Because of pressure in Washington to balance the budget, Garrison said, he doesn't know if the snow survey program can be expanded, though.

"The snow survey is used to forecast water flows during the spring. The measurements are of critical importance to irrigators, Garrison said.

An extreme example is in the Salmon tract, southwest of Twin Falls, where farmers decide how many acres and what crops to plant based on the snow survey and water forecast data. The area is often short of water, so farmers need to know how much irrigation water will be available to make those decisions.

Garrison said the survey program is also used to predict the amount of hydro-power that will be available and to properly manage reservoirs for flood control.

"The aim is to fill the reservoirs, but not have them full when they are needed to control floodwaters," he said. If a reservoir is too full, runoff water from melting snow can force the release of excess water, which can cause severe erosion and flooding, he said.

Bald Mountain slopes open for another week

KETCHUM — Sun Valley Co. will keep Bald Mountain ski lifts operating another week, managers said Friday.

The company shut down Bald Mountain and Hiver Run lifts for the season last Sunday, and planned to cease operating entirely after this week. But snow conditions and crowds remained good this week, said Chuck Webb, assistant general manager. Warm Springs lifts and the M'vday chairlift to the bowls will remain in operation through April 20, Webb announced.

A few ski shops will continue plans to begin slack hours Monday. But Pete Lane's in the Sun Valley Mall remains open year-around, and Sturtevant in Ketchum announced Friday it will remain open until the 20th.

Overnight visitors most years divide rapidly in March, but the chamber and resort association this year reported occupancy in some hotels and condominiums in the 50 to 65 percent range.

Crowds this year did not surpass the peaks set in 1977-78, Webb said, but consistent numbers late in the season have helped make it a better than average year.

He attributed much of the late-season success to good snow conditions and visitors from southern Idaho.

Insurance change possible

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls school health insurance policy called discriminatory by teachers may be changed to the teachers' satisfaction.

Thursday night, in the fifth session of this year's contract negotiations, the school district's bargaining team made a counter offer relating to the policy, according to Al Ware, spokesman for the Twin Falls Education Association.

"The board has recognized the problem and is willing to solve the problem," he said.

School District Superintendent James Savin said Friday he would not disagree with that assessment. "The teachers will research the new offer and will be prepared either to counter or accept it Wednesday at the next scheduled negotiating session, Ware said.

"We liked some of what we were seeing, but are concerned if it totally answers the discrimination problem," he said. "We need to verify that it does or does not."

If both a husband and wife work for the district, only one is considered an employee by Blue Cross/Blue Shield, the insurer; the other is considered a dependent. Ware says a dependent has less coverage than an employee.

Negotiating teams met twice this week. Because of scheduling conflicts, only one meeting was set for next week, although the teams are willing to meet more often.

Ware called Thursday night's meeting "fairly constructive." "I suspect in the next couple of meetings we should wrap up a large number of items," he said. "So far, two contract items out of 17 have been tentatively resolved.

Vert wins Bellevue seat

BELLEVEUE — Betty Vert was re-elected to the Bellevue City Council Thursday night by the thin margin of a coin.

Both Vert and incumbent councilman George McKay received 69 votes in Monday's city elections, leaving the third seat on the council in doubt until a special council meeting Thursday.

"We flipped a coin, and Betty won," City Clerk Anna Faye O'Donnell said Friday.

Incumbent Councilman Glenn Stelma outpolled all other candidates with 108 votes. A second seat went to Mayor Jim Burke, who sought a council seat instead of running for re-election and received 74 votes. New city officers assume their positions May 5.

PGI signs second contract

BLACKFOOT — The Potato Growers of Idaho announced the signing of this year's second pre-season potato contract Friday.

The agreement with the Carmation Co. calls for a 23 percent increase in the base price, from $3 per hundredweight to $3.23 per cwt. Most other price incentives and discounts remain the same as in last year's contract with Carmation.

According to PGI, in the current potato market, the bargaining committee got the best possible contract. PGI presented the proposed contract to a growers meeting earlier this week and growers approved the proposal. Carmation will now take the contract to individual growers in the area around its Nampa processing plant.

The company intends to sign up at least as many acres as last year, according to PGI.

Buhl man still critical

BUHL — Terry Lynn Palmer, 28, of Buhl, remained in critical condition Friday night in St. Luke's Hospital at Boise.

Zoning decision due soon

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Commission will announce a decision Thursday at 10:30 a.m. on a zone change request north of Buhl from Robert C. Bayless.

An appeal hearing was held by the commissioners last week on the Bayless request to change 35 acres of agricultural land to agricultural-residential to allow for division into one-acre lots for a subdivision development.

Of the 11 persons attending the hearing, 10 protested the zone change request and one, John Priestler, engineer from Buhl, argued for the development.

The agricultural land is located north of Buhl just off old U.S. 30 and most of the protests were from neighboring farm owners.

The Planning and Zoning Commission had recommended denial of the development. Commissioner Meri E. Leonard said the number and size of lots would depend on final decisions of the Department of Health regarding septic tank and well locations.

Kimberly well delayed

KIMBERLY — Preparations for a new Kimberly city water well will take longer than expected.

A technically concerning the location of the well on Kimberly school property south and slightly west of the junior high school must be overcome first.

State regulations require wells to be located no closer than 50 feet from a road or road easement, and the proposed Kimberly well is too close to an old, undeveloped city road easement.

School Board Chairman J.H. Smith said Wednesday that state health and welfare officials have rejected the first arrangement between the city and the school district for this reason.

The city intends to abandon or reduce the size of the easement, and health officials have tentatively approved such an arrangement, Smith said.

Manslaughter brings Caster jail time, fine

HAILEY — A former Wendell man was sentenced Friday to 340 days in jail and fined $300 for the death of his common-law wife.

John Caster, 28, was sentenced by 5th District Magistrate Judge Daniel

Wendell for manslaughter. Caster pleaded guilty to the charge last month in connection with the Sept. 28, 1979, "drowning" death of Rhonda Ann Quintana Koch, Koch, who was a passenger in a car driven by Caster that plunged in a canal a mile north of Wendell.

Maximum penalty for the charge would have been a year in jail and $500 fine.

Alban said the jail sentence was near maximum since Caster was given credit for time he spent in the Gooding County Jail following his arrest.

Caster's fine was reduced because "the defendant has apparently lived an exemplary life since this incident," Alban said late Friday.

Caster is employed on a Comprehensive Employment and Training Act grant as a county ordinance officer with the Cascade Police Department, and told Alban he hopes to continue in law enforcement.

Caster's sentence will begin April 21 at the Valley County Jail in Cascade and will run continuous until completed. Selection of the jail location was based on Caster's residency, according to Alban.

Alban also ordered Caster to reimburse Gooding County for the costs of his incarceration there, prior to release in his own care.

"I don't know exactly what that will amount to, but usually it's in the neighborhood of $5 per day," Alban said.

Shoshone Falls washer 'turned on'

TWIN FALLS — The annual spring show provided by Shoshone Falls will be under way this weekend.

Al Peters, acting manager of the Twin Falls Canal Co., said about 7,000 second feet of water will be going over the falls this weekend. With irrigation season beginning and storage reservoirs filling upstream, it is not known how long the display will continue.

With cooperation from the weatherman, this might be a good weekend for a Shoshone Falls Park picnic or a drive into the canyon, the canal company official said.

Wild-swinging Spaniard takes Masters lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Once again exhibiting a driver as wild as his sense of humor, an aching Seve Ballesteros went on a birdie blitz on the back nine Friday to take a four-stroke lead over David Graham and Rex Caldwell at the midway point of the Masters.

Making his final birdie on the 17th hole although his drive had landed on a neighboring green, the 23-year-old British Open champion shot a 3-under-par 69 to give him a total of 9-under 135.

Ballesteros, so bothered by a nagging back problem that he had to seek medical help last week, had five birdies coming home, including three in a row from the 13th to 15th holes. Graham said he recently asked Ballesteros about the back, and the Spaniard replied, "Only I will ever know how bad it is."

Caldwell, hiding a hot putter, turned in the best round of the day with a bogey-free 68 to tie at 139 with Graham, who had a 73. Caldwell, a non-winner in six years on the tour, sank a 59-foot birdie putt on the fourth hole and commented later of his putting touch. "I just started rocking and rolling with the flat stick."

Ed Sneed, always to be remembered as the man who blew a three-stroke lead on the final three-holes of last year's Masters, had his second successive 70 to move into a tie for third at 140 with Jerry Pate, who had a 68 despite a double bogey on No. 7 when he inadvertently putted with a bumpy ball, Doug Tewell (69), Jim Simons (70) and Tom Kite (71).

Ballesteros, probably the best young golfer in the world, started the day in a three-way tie for the lead at 6-under with Graham and Jeff Mitchell, and he still was at 6-under when he reached the turn.

But while the other first-round leaders lost ground despite ideal playing conditions, Ballesteros birdied the 10th, 13th, 14th, 15th and 17th holes, sandwiched around a pair of bogeys.

The birdie on 17 came after the wild-swinging

Ballesteros hooked his drive to the back portion of the seventh green, where he had to wait until Graham putted out. Seve received a free drop to the side of the green and his approach left him about 10 feet above the hole, from where he converted.

"When Graham saw him, he joked, 'You had a nice drive. You have a one-putt for an eagle.'"

Only a day earlier, Ballesteros had talked about how he tamed his erratic drive, and when he was asked the difference between the two days, he said simply, "Yesterday was Thursday and today was Friday."

Then he added, "It doesn't matter where you hit the drive if you make the putt."

"If he keeps driving like that he'll win the tournament," said Jack Nicklaus, who otherwise didn't have much to joke about after his 71 left him 10 strokes back at 145.

"That was how he won the British Open last year, hitting tee shots everywhere you couldn't find them."

Mitchell fell back to 75 to tie at 141 with another Masters rookie, Ed Flori, who birdied the first three holes for the first time in his professional career en route to a 70, and Larry Nelson, who has finished no worse than second in the last three Masters, fired a 69 to join a group at 142 that also includes defending champion Fuzzy Zoeller (70), Hubert Green (74) and three-time champion Gary Player (71).

Arnold Palmer (73) and Ben Crenshaw (70) barely survived the cut at 146, while four-time Masters runnerup Tom Weiskopf was a casualty at 85-79-164.

Mitchell, after making a sensational debut in the Masters Thursday, admitted to an attack of nerves, saying, "I could barely keep my shoelaces tied on the first hole and I drove the ball into the 9th fairway." The tall Texan suffered the consequences with three bogeys and a 72, but promised to be more aggressive the rest of the weekend.

Sampson to stay in school

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Ralph Sampson, Virginia's prize 7-foot-4 freshman basketball star, will stay in college and not leave the school for the National Basketball Association, it was reported Friday.

Sampson told the Virginia Network he was honored by the efforts of the Boston Celtics, who wanted him to turn hardship so they could make him the first pick in the NBA draft, but he had not attained his personal goals.

Sampson averaged 14.9 points and 11 rebounds this year for the Cavaliers, who had their most successful season in history with a 24-10 record and the National Invitational Tournament title. Sampson also led the nation with 157 blocked shots.

The Charlottesville Daily Progress earlier Friday quoted sources close to the Virginia program as saying Sampson would remain at the school.

Sampson had been vague on his plans, but has said if he was offered enough money on a long-term contract — and by the right team — he might declare hardship.

Sampson was in Harrisonburg Friday, participating in a parade in his honor.

Annoyed, an angry Red Auerbach reacted in disbelief at the news.

"It's unreal, we know what's right is on our side," Auerbach said, when told Sampson had rejected a Celtics offer to turn pro after his freshman season. "The people who are here are definitely not acting in the best interests of the kid."

"It is worth half a million dollars for him to play another year and get drafted by a last place team?" Auerbach continued.

"He could walk out of his house tomorrow and get hit by car. If he signs with us, he's an instant millionaire. It's unreal. I don't know how those people could advise him to do this and be able to sleep at night. They ought to be ashamed of themselves."

Auerbach scoffed at the announcement and said he would still make every effort to land Sampson before April 25, the deadline for underclassmen to declare early eligibility for the NBA draft.

"All I can say is we've got until the 25th and we're not giving in," Auerbach said. "We're not trying to use unnatural pressure. What the hell do I care what the University of Virginia says."

"It's irrational for him to give up all this money and security for one more year in college. We've got to let us help him with for life and so is his family," he said.

John Hughes of CSI has been swinging with a lot of 'pop' and it's paid off in a team-leading .444 batting average for the Eagles

Hughes keeps 'popping' em

By IRWIN CURTIN
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — When baseball players and coaches use the word "pop," they're generally not referring to Mountain Dew or an elderly spectator.

They use "pop" instead to describe the way a particular player hits the ball, and it's anything but a derogatory description.

When they say a player is "really popping the ball" or "his swing has a lot of pop," they're talking about quick, strong hands that generate bat speed, which in turn produces a "pop" as bat meets ball and ball is sent rocketing on its line drive way.

"Pop" is the sound heard most frequently these days when the College of Southern Idaho's John Hughes swings an aluminum bat at a fast-moving baseball.

Hughes, a freshman leftfielder, takes the Golden Eagles' leading batting average into today's doubleheader with the Brigham Young University junior varsity at 1 p.m. at Frontier Park.

Through 20 games, including CSI's disastrous trip last weekend to the Mesa, Ariz. Community College Invitational Tournament, Hughes has a .444 average with 21 hits in 51 at-bats.

CSI lost four games in the tournament, dropping its record to 9-11, but Hughes went 7-13, with three doubles, and a triple, and knocked in five runs.

Hughes also leads the Golden Eagles in RBIs (20) and doubles (six), and is tied for the team lead in home runs (two) and triples (one).

A point worth remembering: hitting a round baseball with a round bat is among the most difficult challenges in sports. The benchmark of hitting success is a .300 average, which means a "successful" hitter is one who falls in his appointed task 70 percent of the time!

But enough of numbers. How does Hughes come by his "pop"?

"He's swinging with confidence," said CSI Coach Jim Walker earlier this week. "He assured himself a successful season by paying his dues during the winter. He spent a lot of time before practice and after practices in our hitting tunnel indoors. He was always working."

"Johnny just listens to what's said and asks questions, intelligent questions, about hitting. He's a student of the game. Most of them listen to it (Walker's hitting instruction) and can't apply it. They listen to it and make the same blunder mistakes over and over. But Johnny doesn't."

"Yeah, he's got good pop," the coach said.

Hughes credited his success to Walker.

"He's helped me learn how to hit. Last year, I just swung," said Hughes, 19, who as a senior leftfielder at Salt Lake City's Cottonwood High School, "just swung" for a .316 average on 32 hits in 62 at-bats.

"I had a real long swing (with too much arm extension) last year. It's more compact this year," said the 6-1, 170-pound left-handed hitter, swinging an imaginary bat close to his body. "I'm a completely different hitter than I was last year. I'm a more confident hitter. Now I want to hit the ball. I don't care who's pitching. Before I was a lazy swinger and I'd go up (to hit) kinda scared."

"You see the ball really well and you get in the habit of feeling comfortable up there," he said, describing his attitude at the plate this spring. "You get in the habit of doing it the correct way, from a lot of practice, and you start popping the ball."

During the Golden Eagles' fall season, Hughes wasn't popping the ball.

"My swing was still long and I wasn't getting around on the ball. I was just hitting lazy fly balls down the third-base line or striking out. I thought my career was over," he said.

At the age of 18?

"Well, yeah," he said, with a self-conscious smile. "But I just worked at it in the hitting tunnel during the winter. Coach Walker's really persistent. If you can't do it your way, don't do it. I learned how to adapt. I knew if I worked hard, it would pay off. So far it has."

Hughes' major weakness as a baseball player is his lack of foot speed.

"He's got heavy feet," Walker said with a laugh. "What a shame, because he'd be a hell of a prospect. His attitude's major league, his bat's major league, he's got an adequate leftfielder's arm and his glove is adequate."

To compensate for his lack of speed, Hughes tries to get a better jump on the ball and pick up his flight sooner than might a quicker leftfielder.

"I lifted weights in the fall and I got a little bit faster. But I guess you're just born with speed," he said.

Walker asked how he found his leading hitter in Salt Lake City, replied with the following story.

"Dick Egan told me about him," Walker said, referring to a scout based in Lake Tahoe, Nev. who worked for the Major League Baseball Scouting Bureau. "He told me Johnny had poor foot speed and hit everything to left field, that he couldn't hit the ball to right field. He told me, 'You'll never make a hitter out of him.' That kind of gets my tender up."

Walker received a call recently from Egan, now working in North Carolina.

"I told him, 'You sucker, send me some more, like him,'" the coach said with a laugh.

250 to compete in judo tourney

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho gym is the site today of the annual Twin Falls and CSI Judo Clubs' tournament.

Competition, featuring 250 to 350 individual- and club-participants from the intermountain area, begins at 10:30 a.m. and will last into the early evening. There is no admission charge.

Athletes will compete in three age brackets — junior (eight and under, 9-10 and 11-12), intermediate (13-14 and 15-16) and senior (17 and over). Junior and intermediate brackets will have three weight divisions: light, middle and heavy, while the senior bracket will compete in white, brown and black belt categories.

Wes Dobbs, instructor of the CSI Judo Club and an assistant instructor of the Twin Falls Club, said there will also be a women's division, but he couldn't say how many women are expected to compete.

Carla Proctor, a first degree black belt from Emmett, will probably be competing. She's one of the best women in the intermountain area," Dobbs said Thursday night at the YFCA, where members of the Twin Falls and CSI Judo Clubs practiced.

The Twin Falls club has about 15 members, ranging in age from six to 30 years, said Bob Matsuzaka, who joins with Frank Hiral as the club's chief instructors.

"Most of our experienced kids are Juniors. We don't have very many experienced seniors," Matsuzaka said, adding that the club's competed in about seven tournaments in the intermountain area this year.

"I think we're going to do pretty well Saturday," he said. "At our last tournament in Ogden, we took home seven of the 13 trophies given out."

Three of his best junior competitors, Matsuzaka said, are two 12-year-old purple belts, Clint Treadwell and Tim Voyles, and Steve Benkula (a 14-year-old purple belt). All three Twin Falls residents will compete today.

Mann to fight boycott

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — The opposition this time is the president of the United States, but former Brigham Young University track star Ralph Mann has lost none of the competitiveness that carried him to a silver medal at Munich in 1972.

Mann, second in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles eight years ago, is one of the 450 members of the U.S. Olympic Committee's House of Delegates which votes today on whether to delay President Carter and send an American team to Moscow this summer.

Although there were numerous uncommitted votes on the eve of the decision, Mann was not among them. Mann says he will vote against the Carter boycott proposal because he believes amateur athletics in this country will be set back "at least eight years" if the United States is not represented in the Summer Games. He also said he resents Carter's recent pressure tactics in favor of a boycott.

"Any respect I had for the government, and it was considerable at one time, has been severely damaged by the president's recent actions," Mann said.

Mann said he is certain an American boycott in July also will destroy the 1984 Games scheduled for Los Angeles. That opinion has been repeatedly expressed by the USOC's leadership in the four-month long battle between the White House and the athletes.

"We are going to lose no matter what happens," Mann said. "If we vote to go the president will condemn us. And if we stay home the amateur athlete movement in this country will be hit hard for the next 10 years."

Mann said he and other delegates dislike Carter's unwillingness to go it alone on the boycott decision, preferring instead to enlist the unwilling support of the USOC.

"I don't believe it's in his hands," said Mann. "He's the one with all the power."

Another former U.S. Olympian and House of Delegates member, Jeff Bennett, said if the administration forces the USOC into a boycott, athletes' morale in this country will tumble.

"There is going to be a great deal of resentment towards the government," said Bennett. "The athletes feel like they are in a war where the wrong soldiers are doing the fighting."

Like Mann, Bennett said the increasing pressure from the White House on the USOC in recent weeks has backfired and could trigger a wave of votes against the boycott.
