

To replace Cyrus Vance

Carter picks Muskie

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter announced Wednesday he had chosen Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, a man "of strength and wisdom," to succeed Cyrus Vance as secretary of state.

Mr. Muskie, standing with Vance behind the president for the White House announcement, said he had doubted his qualifications for the top foreign policy post, but "I cannot stand in the wings when so much is at stake."

Enthusiastic reaction on Capitol Hill indicated Muskies would face little opposition from fellow-senators in winning confirmation.

Vance, praised by Carter as having served "with wisdom and honor," resigned Monday in disagreement with the president over the ill-fated mission to rescue the American hostages in Tehran.

Besides the Iran crisis, the new secretary will have to deal with the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, confusion among America's European allies and unrest in Latin America.

"It is an awesome but stimulating challenge as I face the months ahead," said Muskies, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee in 1968.

"The world is in turmoil, the issues are complex. I believe in this instability the United States must be perceived as a source of strength in the free world," he said.

"As secretary of state, I will devote my full energy to achieve these goals," he said. "These are dangerous times and they are also times of uncommon opportunities."

Although Muskies' major foreign policy experience, he noted himself, has come during six years on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Carter denied Muskies' foreign policy experience was "limited," and said the senator "has had more than 20 years experience" in the Senate, including on the Foreign Relations Committee, and had handled foreign and military as well as domestic matters as chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

Carter said he would bring to the post "years of experience" in foreign policy, a very deep and profound knowledge of our country ... sound judgment and integrity.

Muskies' "extensive knowledge of foreign affairs will be a definite asset," Carter said, especially as he will be working with Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

Later, at his evening news conference, Carter denied Muskies' foreign policy experience was "limited," and said the senator "has had more than 20 years experience" in the Senate, including on the Foreign Relations Committee, and had handled foreign and military as well as domestic matters as chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

Carter also said Muskies' political experience — his 1968 campaign for

Symms, Church applaud choice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Rep. Steve Symms Monday said President Carter should use the resignation of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance as a chance to alter America's foreign policy.

Sen. Frank Church said he regretted the resignation.

Church, a Democrat who heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he deeply regrets the loss "of the services of a wise and honest man," while Republican Symms said he admired Vance's work, although he always did not agree with the Secretary of State.

"Cy Vance, to the last, had taken the high and honorable road," Church said. "As secretary of state, he was trusted by all who knew and dealt with him. The country is the better for the services of a wise and honest man."

Republican Symms said he believes Vance is a sincere and honest man, but said he did not agree with Vance's stand on the Panama Canal, the defense pact with Taiwan and SALT

II. He said President Carter should take the resignation as a chance "to change the direction of our foreign policy by appointing a new secretary of state who can restore the confidence of our allies and regain the respect of our adversaries."

"The President now has a golden opportunity to break with the past and pursue a foreign policy that supports our friends, opposes our enemies and keeps our commitments," Symms said.

Protest negotiation deadlock

Teacher demonstration set

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls teachers will demonstrate outside a contract negotiations meeting Thursday night to show support for their negotiators and to catch the attention of the school board.

That was the announcement of head teacher negotiator Al Ware Tuesday following a special vote of all faculty and staff represented in negotiations by the Twin Falls Education Association.

Earlier Tuesday, Ware charged, Twin Falls School Superintendent Dr. James Sawin committed "a violation of good faith bargaining" by discussing negotiations with about 16 faculty and staff.

Sawin Tuesday characterized his meeting with teachers as an "information session" at which issues were discussed but no negotiating took place.

"I think that basically we have to get information out to all people, and this was an avenue that we chose to make sure everyone understands where the negotiation was going, and it was done in a manner to promote a working atmosphere and give principals, perhaps even Thursday evening," Sawin said.

Sawin also said he views the scheduled demonstration as a positive development and not as a departure from earlier teacher activities.

"What we have is the negotiating team from the TFEA has asked their teachers to be supportive to their presence. This is not new because there was a supportive group at the last session," he said. "I think it's very positive. I think that indicates to the board's team that the TFEA may be ready to move toward a settlement. I think the board's team is equally ready to move toward settlement."

Ware said 59 percent of those voting Tuesday indicated they would take part in the demonstration. Teachers plan to gather outside the Magic Valley Uniserve building at 7 p.m. TFEA members will speak at the negotiation session and give briefings periodically during the negotiating session.

The TFEA bargains for 392 teachers and faculty members. About two-thirds of those actually belong to the TFEA.

Ware said the question put to those voting was whether they would support the demonstration Thursday. However, the ballots were simply marked "will support" or "will not support." Voters were informed of the question at 4 p.m. meeting.

Ware said many did not attend the meeting but sent ballots. He said they may have thought they were voting whether or not to strike, and that may have produced more "no" votes.

The latest move by the teachers was prompted by two concerns.

"The first concern of the team," Ware said, "was that the school board is unaware of what is being done at the bargaining table."

The second problem, he said, is an inference by Larry Baxter, the head of the district's negotiating team, that the teachers' team does not represent a majority of the teachers.

"We're attempting to show we have the support of the majority and that the team does know what the teachers of the district must have next year," Ware said. He said the vote Tuesday demonstrates such support.

Also, 71 percent of those attending the meeting — a majority of the teachers — indicated support of "other actions" in the future if they are needed, he said.

Tuesday morning, Sawin directed school principals to select members of the faculty to meet with Ware, Ware said. At the meeting, the superintendent discussed negotiations and the teachers' proposals, an act which would violate national labor relations laws, Ware said, if it had occurred in private business.

Ware added the outcome of the meeting may benefit the teacher negotiators, because he said the superintendent promised the board's team would submit written proposals on almost all negotiating items Thursday.

In flyers to teachers to announce the Tuesday meeting and vote, the TFEA stated, "In order to avert a strike, we need your attendance at a meeting today." The flyer also referred to comments by Baxter that the teachers' negotiating team does not represent the majority.

"We are at a point where if Mr. Baxter, as spokesman for the board, does not alter his position, we will have to declare an impasse," Ware said. "That would throw negotiations into mediation, which the teachers' team wants to avoid. If mediation failed, he said, the teachers' only remaining recourse except capitulation would be to strike."

Says no 2nd raid to be tried

Carter calls Iranians 'ghouls'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Tuesday the risk of losing lives — even of the hostages — in the Iranian rescue mission "is not worth it."

"It had the same result of a process, it would have ended in a continuing crisis that is destabilizing for the people of Iran, causing them immense political and economic suffering at this very moment," Carter said.

And that, Carter said, would make "unnecessary the upcoming economic pressures that will become much more severe when our major allies impose the same kind of sanctions in the middle of next month."

"Obviously in an operation of this kind there would have been some risk," he said. "But we were convinced the hostages could be removed successfully and safely."

At his first news conference in two eventful weeks, the president reportedly denounced the Iranian "terrorists" and government officials for committing a "horrible crime" against 53 Americans held hostage since last Nov. 4.

He said he feels no guilt for what is happening in Iran because of the "ghoulish" behavior of the captors who have "aroused the contempt and disgust of the rest of the world."

"We want this issue to be settled but we cannot deal with inhumane people," Carter said. "Iran is a nation that is committing a crime."

Carter indicated the current political situation in Iran and weather conditions ruled out another rescue effort.

The president, who has suffered through the failed rescue mission and the resignation of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance since last September, spent nearly the entire 31 minutes of the nationally broadcast news conference answering questions about Iran and related matters.

He opened with a somber statement in which he said he shared the disappointment and grief of the American people over the loss of the eight U.S. servicemen who died when a helicopter collided with a transport plane in the Iranian desert after the rescue of the nation.

As he did in announcing the failure last Friday, Carter took full responsibility for launching and ending the mission.

Iranian, U.S. Navy planes clash

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — U.S. Navy jetfighters intercepted an Iranian patrol plane over the Strait of Hormuz Tuesday.

Iran promptly charged that the United States was planning another military move to rescue the 50 American hostages.

Iran accused the fighters of firing on its patrol plane and issued a warning to the armed forces to expect an American attack. The United States denied there was any gunfire.

The U.S. Embassy militants repeated their threat to kill the hostages if the United States made any further rescue attempt.

He said the rescue team members he met with secretly on Sunday "all shared a common message" — that they regretted the failure, they appreciated the honor of having been chosen to try and they asked to be allowed to try again.

Carter emphasized the goal of the raid "was not to destroy or injure anyone... In sharp comparison to the ghoulish action by the terrorists and some of the government officials in our embassy this weekend who displayed in a horrible exhibition of inhumanity the bodies of our courageous Americans."

Asked if there was "some honorable way" he could end the crisis by making a "gesture" to the Iranian people, Carter spat out his response.

He said the world should "realize the tremendous restraint that we have demonstrated. We have tried every possible and feasible effort to resolve this crisis by humanitarian and peaceful means... The fact is, though, a horrible crime... is being perpetuated at this very minute. The 53 hostages are not guilty of any crime. The crime is being committed."

Alfred Hitchcock dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Alfred Hitchcock, the cherubic director whose films were watched by millions and gave thrill to two generations of moviegoers, died Tuesday of natural causes. He was 80.

Hitchcock died at his Bel Air home, said Herb Steinberg, vice president of Universal Studios and a close friend of the famous film director.

At his bedside when he died were his wife of more than 50 years, Alma, his daughter Pat O'Connell and his three grandchildren.

Over a period of more than half a century, the double-chinned Britcher called and bemused audiences with 54 films including such classics as "Rebecca," which captured an Academy Award for best picture in 1938 in his first Hollywood venture.

Last January, the film director was honored by the country of his birth, and officially became "Sir Alfred," when he was named Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire by Queen Elizabeth II.

Hitchcock, whose career started in the early 1920s in London, directed a stream of hits such as "Suspicion," "Spellbound," "Lifeboat,"

"Notorious," "The Paradine Case," "Strangers on a Train," "Dial M for Murder," "To Catch a Thief," "Vertigo," "North by Northwest," "Psycho," "The Birds," "Marnie," "Torn Curtain," "Topaz," "Frenzy" and "Family Plot."

In 1978, plagued by failing health and having trouble walking, Hitchcock pushed ahead enthusiastically with plans for yet another film, "The Short Night," whose plot dealt with the escape of a master spy from a London jail, a chase across Europe, a lonely island on a Finnish lake and a train dash toward Russia.

Hitchcock's cherubic face and droll delivery became familiar to television viewers during the 10-year run of "Alfred Hitchcock Presents." He introduced each show of the series.

His cameo on-screen appearances in many of his movies became a Hitchcock trademark and his devotees watched for these sly appearances. He drank champagne at Claude Rains' party in "Notorious," as an intern in "Spellbound" and times he was filmed getting off a bus or walking through a train with a bass violin.

Iranian foreign minister escapes assassination try

KUWAIT (UPI) — Would-be assassins fired several shots Tuesday at a motorcycle carrying Iran's foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, to a meeting with Kuwaiti leaders.

He escaped unharm.

"Several shots were fired at one of the cars in Ghotbzadeh's motorcade while en route to the Self Al Amer Palace. No one was hit," government spokesman and State Minister Abdel Aziz Hussein told the Kuwaiti news agency. One car was struck by the bullets but it was not Ghotbzadeh's, the agency said.

The attack was the second assassination attempt on the 48-year-old Ghotbzadeh since he returned to Iran from exile last year to become a high official in the revolutionary Islamic regime.

No arrests were reported by Kuwaiti authorities, but Iran's state-owned Pars news agency asserted the assassins had taken refuge in the Iraqi Embassy.

A Pars correspondent accompanying Ghotbzadeh said a car known to be carrying the gunmen was found parked outside the Iraqi Embassy and "its occupants entered that embassy."

Police said they had seized two cars containing weapons and Pars quoted a police officer as saying "more than 20" firearms were found inside the cars.

Marines honor their dead

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Three Marines killed in the Iran rescue attempt were honored Tuesday as heroes whose deaths were an act of love for their country.

Family, friends and former comrades of Staff Sgt. Dewey L. Johnson, 31; Sgt. John Davis Harvey, 21; and Cpl. George N. Holmes Jr., 22, packed the small wood and brick chapel at the New River Air Station. A nearby theatre where the 30-minute service was shown on closed-circuit television was also jammed and hundreds of Marines who couldn't get into either building stood quietly outside as a spring thunderstorm approached. Staff Sgt. Dewey Johnson, Sgt. John Davis Harvey and Cpl. George Holmes were volunteers for an unknown mission at a time when a reasonable man's imagination would warn of danger, said Lt. Col. W.D. Kalas, their commanding officer until they joined the elite anti-terrorist unit that attempted to free the hostages.

"They went forth to do their duty to support and defend the Constitution of the United States of America. That was their oath, that was their act of love."

Several women in the chapel cried openly as Kalas eulogized the three men, who were among eight to die in the rescue attempt when a helicopter collided with a C-130 cargo plane. Five airmen killed were honored Sunday with a memorial service at Elgin Air Force Base near Fort Walton Beach, Fla. "It (the service) was such a great inspiration to us," said Mrs. Sally Holmes of Pine Bluff, Ark., Holmes' mother. "It is going to help us make it through it all."

"George was doing what he wanted to do," added Mrs. Holmes, who fought back tears as she spoke to reporters after the service.

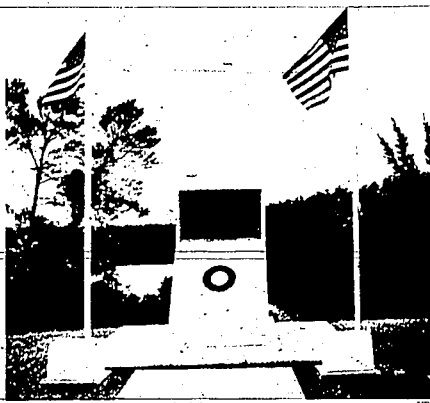

Holmes' father, George, was forced to stop briefly when he was overcome by emotion as he attempted to talk to the Marines after the service.

Mt. Home plans memorial service

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — A chapel ceremony will be held at Mountain Home Air Force Base Wednesday as part of the memorial ceremonies scheduled at military installations across the country to honor the men killed in the unsuccessful attempt to rescue the American hostages in Iran. Base spokesman Emma Sellinger said the ceremony to honor the five Air Force crewmen and three Marines who died in the rescue efforts, will begin at 9:30 a.m. at Chapel 1. The service is open to the public.

First injured raider released from hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — In answer to a wish he expressed to President Carter, one of five commandos injured in last week attempt to rescue American hostages in Iran was flown to his hometown of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., Tuesday.

Airman 1st Class William V. Tootle, 21, left Kelly Air Force Base aboard an aircraft with Joseph Zengerie, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Manpower, Reserves, Affairs and Installations.

Tootle had been treated at Wilford Hall Air Force Hospital at Lackland AFB since he was airlifted to San Antonio last Friday after the hostage rescue attempt ended in a fiery collision between a helicopter and airplane.

The airman was described as a "refueler" on the aborted Iran mission who told President Carter Monday he wanted to get home to Florida to see his 4-month-old daughter, Tabatha. He was treated for a knee injury and was the least seriously hurt of the five commandos flown to San Antonio by way of West Germany.

"President Carter visited Tootle and asked what he'd like to have most and he replied he'd like to go home and see his family," said Tom Connett, a spokesman at Lackland.

Connett said that Zengerie invited Tootle aboard his aircraft and detoured to Fort Walton Beach enroute back to Washington, D.C., after Zengerie also visited with the other four injured men at Brooke Army Medical Center across town at Fort Sam Houston.

"At Brooke, where the four other were visited by both Carter and by Sen. Edward Kennedy, doctors reported the conditions of the four were unchanged as they convalesced in the hospital's famous burn ward.

Air Force Staff Sgt. Joseph B. Beyers III, 37, Charleston, S.C., still was in critical condition; Marine Maj. Leslie B. Petty, 34, Jacksonville, N.C., was in serious condition, and Air Force 1st Lt. Jeffrey B. Harrison, 26, Warren, Ohio; and Marine Maj. James H. Schaefer Jr., 36, Los Angeles, Calif., both were listed in satisfactory condition.

Gerald DuBois, a spokesman for the Army hospital, said Harrison and Schaefer could be released from the hospital as early as next week, but the two men with more serious burns may stay for a month or longer.

Col. Basil Pruitt, in charge of the burn ward, said each patient was progressing satisfactorily and that all are expected to survive the burns suffered in the crash of a helicopter and aircraft on the Iran desert.

Judge pardons embezzler

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — In 1976, Margaret Vecca, a 24-year-old teller, locked up a Hoboken, N.J., bank for the Memorial Day weekend and vanished with her boyfriend and $25,814 of the bank's money.

For Miss Vecca — pregnant and unmarried — and her boyfriend, the next four years were a nightmare. They lived in constant fear and rarely ventured out of her hideaway apartment on the New Jersey shore.

"They were afraid to look over their shoulders," said assistant U.S. attorney John Antonas. "They heard footsteps and saw shadows everywhere. They could fly like human beings.

Unable to bear the pressure any longer, the couple turned themselves in and gave back the $25,630 that remained.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge James Coolahan decided Miss Vecca's self-imposed exile was punishment enough, suspended her three-year jail term and placed her on probation.

"This is one of those... things at the heartstrings," Antonas said. "She's probably suffered more punishment than most felons."

Hirohito celebrates birthday

TOKYO (UPI) — More than 70,000 well-wishers converged on Tokyo's moated palace Tuesday to celebrate Emperor Hirohito's 79th birthday with cries of "Tenno heika banzai!" (Long live the emperor).

Hirohito, who ascended to the chrysanthemum throne on Dec. 25, 1926, was once considered a living god. But under the surrender terms to the Allies that ended World War II in 1945, he renounced claims of divinity and became a figurehead.

More than 70,000 well-wishers from all over the country crossed the famous double bridge to extend their greetings to the emperor, who appeared four times on the balcony of the palace, accompanied by the empress and other members of the palace gates arched open twice a year — on Hirohito's birthday, a national holiday, and Jan. 2, permitting the public to see and extend greetings to the emperor. Hirohito is the 126th emperor in the unbroken imperial court history, which dates back more than 2,000 years.

A noted marine biologist, the bespectacled emperor now devotes most of his private time to biological research, according to his chamberlains. He has co-authored a book, his ninth, due out this autumn, on 600 varieties of plants he has studied near his villa in Shimoda, west of Tokyo.

Death sentence imposed

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (UPI) — A judge refused Tuesday to postpone the execution of convicted killer Frank Coppola, who is scheduled to die in the electric chair Friday.

Coppola's attorneys immediately prepared to seek a stay of execution from the state Supreme Court in Richmond. If they are again turned down, they said they plan to go to federal court.

If rejected, Virginia officials are prepared to execute Coppola, 35, in the State Penitentiary in Richmond.

Bomb explodes

LARNE, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A 400-pound bomb exploded outside a downtown bar Tuesday, injuring a West German tourist, her baby and two other people, police said.

The Provisional Irish Republican Army later claimed responsibility for the car bomb in the predominantly Protestant town in County Antrim, 20 miles north of Belfast.

Poor track record charged Navy defends use of helicopters

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The Navy Tuesday denied reports that the type of helicopters used in the failed Iranian rescue mission were "hangar queens" prone of mechanical problems.

The Navy repeated its faith in the RH-53D Sea Stallion helicopters and declined comment on reports the craft have been plagued with hydraulic control problems.

"The Navy said the craft had a fine track record" until last week when eight of them began a rescue mission and three of them malfunctioned within hours. Hydraulic problems were the apparent cause of at least one of the malfunctions.

A fourth collided with a transport plane in the Iranian desert and burst into flames, killing eight Americans.

A Richmond newspaper quoted sources Tuesday as saying the RH-53Ds had been dubbed "hangar queens" because of frequent problems, particularly with the hydraulic control system.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four 1961-issue stamps with an upside-down blue locomotive set a record of $220,000 at an auction Tuesday, a spokeswoman for Solihbey Parke Bernet said.

Only two blocks of the issue are known to exist. The last time the block appeared at auction, in 1944, it brought $750, the spokeswoman said.

The stamps were made for the 1961 Pan American Exposition. A blue locomotive in the center of the stamp was printed upside down.

The last record for a single U.S. stamp was for a 24-cent airmail stamp with an upside-down airplane, which sold in 1979 for $135,000.

New charges filed against kidnapper

MERCED, Calif. (UPI) — Child-molestering charges were refiled Tuesday against Kenneth Parnell and Ervin Murphy, charged with kidnapping Steven Stagner, 15, as he walked home from school in 1972.

Municipal Judge Robert M. Falasco earlier this month dismissed similar charges at a preliminary hearing, but District Attorney Pat Halford said he lodged them again because he felt he had enough evidence.

The new charges against Parnell, 48, and Murphy, 38, included sodomy and oral copulation.

The prosecutor previously appealed Falasco's dismissal of the sex charges.

"I wouldn't say it is standard procedure (to refile the charges), but it can be done under certain circumstances," Halford said. "That doesn't mean the Superior Court won't throw it out."

"I wouldn't be surprised if it didn't go to trial for a year," Public Defender John Eljory, Parnell's attorney, said at the time. "There are enough circumstances here to take Falasco's decision to the Supreme Court."

win president and his effort to win the Democratic presidential nomination — was a plus for the job because it acquainted the senator with all parts of the United States and the aspirations of its citizens.

Carter also said there was no undue influence by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security affairs advisor, on his foreign policy and Brzezinski's status had no influence on Vance's decision to resign.

Muskie said at the earlier White House ceremony he had been assured he would be "the foreign policy spokesman."

He said when Carter called him Sunday night in Nashville, Tenn., to offer him the post, "I had real doubts I was that person (best for the job). I can think of others who have had more active foreign policy experience, others who have had more foreign policy contacts around the world."

The tall, Lincolnian son of a Polish tailor became a well-known figure in the United States and abroad when he was considered the favorite for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

After Carter won the Democratic nomination in 1976, Muskie was one of seven leading party politicians who were summoned to Plains, Ga., for Carter's decision on running mate.

Muskie has served in the Senate since 1959 and before that was Maine's governor for four years.

Iran, he said, "is a nation that is committing a crime."

Carter's anger was directed at the "desecration" of the eight victims' bodies by terrorists under the eye of Revolutionary Council member Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali.

"We cannot deal with inhumane people who have no respect for international law," Carter said.

The president said, "We had exhausted every peaceful procedure," before going ahead with the raid. If it had been delayed any longer, changing weather conditions would have reduced the odds of success, he said.

He said field commanders of the raiding party agreed with him that the mission should have been scrubbed when it got down to five operating helicopters out of the eight that started.

A rally of Christians in Washington, D.C., was said to rival the crowds who saw the Pope.

Christians rally in D.C.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An estimated 200,000 hymn-singing and praying Christians gathered in Washington Tuesday.

They cheered evangelists and preachers exhorting the nation to repent for its sins and revive traditional moral values.

The crowd, rivaling in size that which turned out last year for Pope John Paul II's visit, spread out along the Mall between the Capitol and the Washington Monument and cheered every mention of Jesus' name.

"Organizers had hoped for a crowd of one million. 'There is one sin holding back revival in America,' said the Rev. Adrian Rogers, president of the 13-million-member Southern Baptist Convention. 'It is pride. Pride. God hates pride.'

'It is time for God's people to lay their face in the dust before God and be broken.'"

"The theme sounded by Rogers, head of the nation's largest Protestant body, was sounded again and again by speakers at the rally.

Pentacostals and charismatics lifting their arms to the overcast skies, burst out speaking in tongues. Prayer in the public schools and personal morality especially teenage pregnancies, divorce and abortion were major concerns of nearly all the speakers.

Campus Crusade for Christ leader Bill Bright said the day could mark the turning point in America's disintegration, which he traced back to 1962 and 1963 Supreme Court decisions on prayer and Bible reading in the public schools.

"The rally was criticized in some Christian circles as a front for right-wing political causes.

Rally leaders denied there was any political content to the demonstration.

"Our thrust was not to criticize," said television evangelist Pat Robertson, head of the Christian Broadcasting Network. "We're told in the Bible to pray for our leaders and those in authority over us."

A number of speakers set up a chant with the crowd, repeating "Jesus, Jesus, Jesus" over and over again.

"God help get prayer and the Bible back into the public schools and public life so we may truly be one nation — and," said one speaker, Jim Bakker of Christian television's PTL Club.

Evans meets leaders to discuss session call

BOISE (UPI) — Democratic Gov. John Evans tried today to sell his special session package to the legislative leadership.

But he received a lukewarm reception from the Republican majority amid a warning by the governor that he still knew how to use his veto stamp.

Evans said that he still was not afraid to use his veto of the bill providing funding for the Legislative Council, the Legislative Auditor and Joint Finance-Appropriation Committee if the lawmakers did not provide additional money for his office.

"I need the staff as you need staffing," Evans said. "If you do me great harm, you will face the wrath of the governor — the veto sting."

Republican leaders told Evans the chief executive was fooling himself if he thought the session would only last day or two because of the controversial nature of the items the governor was proposing for the extraordinary session of the 45th Idaho Legislature.

Evans met for more than an hour with the Republican and Democrat leaders in his statehouse office in Boise and provided them with copies of two proclamations for a special legislative session.

After the meeting, the governor said he definitely planned to bring the lawmakers back into session. He said he would issue his call by today for a special session beginning May 12.

Two proclamations were delivered to the leadership — one containing three items for consideration and the other four subjects. Evans also said he would conduct informational sessions in six Idaho cities before the special session to inform the lawmakers what they would be asked to consider.

Evans also said he may consider amending his call to allow the legislators to consider the idea of passing a bill to limit one annual session of the Legislature to just the budget.

But Republican leaders warned that if the governor amends the call, it would just delay adjournment of the special session.

In one of his proposed calls, the governor asks that the Legislature provide additional funds for Medicaid — the Aid-to-Dependent Children program and highways. In the second, he also proposed that the lawmakers reconsider their decision to reduce his staff and a bill he vetoed that would have eliminated several areas of legislative staffing.

Both Senate President Pro-Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, and Senate Majority Leader James Risch, R-Boise, were adamant in their opposition to a special session.

They told the governor that everything proposed for the special session already had been considered by the Legislature.

Risch said there was nothing that couldn't be put off until the 46th Legislature convened in January.

But Evans said a special session was justified just to handle the Medicaid problem in light of a 4th District Court ruling after the regular session that nursing homes be reimbursed at full, reasonable costs.

The governor said this would result in some $1 million in payments by July 1 and amount to additional payments of $1 million per month over the next eight months unless something is done now.

He said he didn't feel that the short agenda he was proposing would take over a day or two.

The 'forgotten hostage'

Asencio returns to U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ambassador Diego C. Asencio, one of the "forgotten hostages," held 61 days in the Columbia, Tuesday received a hero's welcome on his return to the State Department.

He said he befriended his captors in order to stay alive.

"I thought it important to make friends with the captors, thus making it more difficult for them to kill us," Asencio said at a ceremony where he was given the State Department's first Award for Valor.

Acting Secretary of State Warren Christopher cited Asencio for "exemplary courage and fortitude" during his captivity in the Dominican Republic Embassy in Bogota.

Asencio and 46 other diplomats from 13 countries were seized Feb. 27 from a Marxist guerrilla group called May 19.

The captives often were referred to as the "forgotten hostages" while world attention focused on the hostage crisis in Iran.

They were gradually released through a series of negotiations and the final 16, including Asencio, were returned for an unspecified ransom worked out through the Colombian government.

Asencio was flown to Havana on April 27.

"I hope I have returned with honor," he said Tuesday, "but no foreign service officer can consider himself free so long as his friends and co-workers are being held hostage in Tehran."

The Spanish-born, 22-year foreign service veteran will not be returning to his post as ambassador to Colombia.

Asencio, 48, said his relations with the captors were improved by the fact he likes "to tell stories and jokes and I am a bit of a backslapper."

But he made clear he would not change the U.S. policy of refusing to negotiate for the release of diplomatic hostages or pay ransom for them.

"It would be unfortunate if a sort of a diplomats' market would develop," he said, explaining there were indications the Bogota takeover may have been inspired by the Tehran crisis.

"It certainly wasn't an original idea," he said.

Asencio, a portly man who lost about 20 pounds while being held, said the difference between the Bogota and Tehran situations are that "the hostages participated rather directly in the negotiations ... and the captors sometimes followed our advice."

He said he is not in a position to say what should be done about the Tehran situation. But he advised future hostages to "maintain your dignity, don't become passive and keep yourself physically and mentally active."

Keep telling us the way it is

What's this? Walter Cronkite a possible running mate for presidential candidate John Anderson?

Breathe easy. It isn't so. The CBS news anchorman Tuesday said he isn't interested in being on anybody's ticket, and the Anderson camp confirmed no feeling had been made to the silver-tongued orator of the nightly news.

Cause for the speculation was an interview published in The New Republic magazine in which Cronkite appeared to come off as chomping at the bit for the second spot on the Anderson team. It was logical. Cronkite is nearing the end of his distinguished career at CBS, to be replaced by Dan Rather next January.

But somehow, to Walter Cronkite fans and admirers, running for office wouldn't do him justice. He is, after all, one of the most — if not the most — trusted men in America. But Walter Cronkite in politics? Well, it isn't a bad idea but it isn't Walter.

We'd prefer to remember Cronkite for what he is and has been: The voice of television news; the man who seemed to be on the spot for every major news event of our lives. He was there when men were sent to the moon, wasn't he? And he propelled himself right into the middle of the Mideast peace accord. And who can forget all those times he held down center stage as America's ballot booths rang up the votes.

If this sounds like a farewell tribute, it's a premature one. Cronkite continues to be the authoritative source on the nightly news. When he leaves, it won't be the same — but that's the way it will be.

Working to reduce the pay hike

Give Sen. John Barker (R-Buhl) credit where credit is due.

Barker, who is running unopposed for reelection to the Idaho Senate, has come out against the 23 percent pay raise legislators will receive starting with next year's session. With re-election virtually assured, it would have been easy for Barker to sit back, ignore the issue and collect his pay.

But it is in keeping with his record that he will work to scale down that pay hike and, if unsuccessful, donate part of his increase to worthy causes. Legislators may indeed deserve more money but to accept 23 percent at one time makes it hard for the rest of us to swallow, particularly when 8 percent is the guideline.

Barker may not need the money but at least he's got the fortitude to stand up and be counted.

Postal hike — that's a joke

By IRWIN FRANK
© 1980, Dallas Times Herald
If you want to get a hopeless feeling about government spending, taxation and inflation, take a look at a 15-cent stamp.

The Postal Service has told the public it plans to raise a 15-cent stamp to 20 cents because of inflation.

That's a 33 percent price hike. It would come at a time when the Council on Wage and Price Stability is threatening to take away government contracts from private companies that violate a "voluntary" 6.75 percent price-hike guideline.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Calif., says a 5-cent increase may not be enough to cover growing costs of the Postal Service and a hike to 25 cents may be necessary — which would make the rate increase a whopping 66 percent.

And the Postal Service says it might cut out delivery on Wednesdays or Saturdays to cut costs.

Inflation is being blamed for the increase. No doubt inflation is the cause.

But if the government can understand the Postal Service's plight and grant huge rate increases while cutting service one day a week, what about private industry?

What about inflation and Braniff and American airlines? The jet fuel they use has gone up over 100 percent in the last year and they have lost millions. Shouldn't they be allowed to cover their losses by increasing ticket prices by 33 or 66 percent?

We're all being hit by inflation. If the Postal Service gets a 33 percent price hike to pay for its costs, why don't U.S.-steel companies, which are losing millions of dollars a year and closing plants, get the same treatment? What about electric utilities, trucking companies, lumber mills and clothing and food companies? Is losing money the criteria for price increases?

Or is the criteria that the organization be under the Congressional umbrella?

How can the government look businessmen in the eye, tell them they must hold down price hikes, and then allow the Postal Service to raise prices by 33 percent on first class mail or maybe even 66 percent?

That's not how to fight inflation. The problem is not going to be solved with the rate increase because built into the pay scale of the Postal Service and other government workers is an automatic cost of living increase pegged to the Consumer Price Index. Those increases come off top of the regular wage hikes won by the postal union.

The average annual salary, with benefits and overtime, will go to about $21,800 effective July 1 because of an increase based on the rising Consumer Price Index. In addition to regular negotiated annual raises, postal union members every six months get raises tied to that index.

Can the taxpayer support a system that provides five weeks plus one day for vacation after 15 years of service, plus 13 sick days, plus a paid holiday? That's 9 1/2 weeks off a year.

Coming in November is another Consumer Price Index rate hike and coming in a year is another negotiated contract.

The point is not that the Postal Workers don't need or deserve another wage increase. The point is not going to pay for those increases very long.

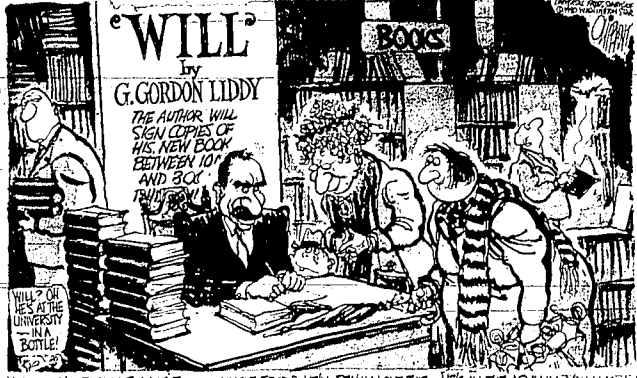

And if the rest of the American workers are to be treated as fairly as postal workers, then the government is either going to have to own or start paying back on its own wage and price increases.

You can't tell industry not to raise wages and prices and then hike stamps 33 or 66 percent and pile raise upon raise for government workers.

If a government business needs huge price hikes, then so do private businesses.

And if government workers need regular CPI wage hikes in addition to regular raises, then so do the rest of us.

We folks, and businessmen, just can't afford second-class treatment. (Distributed by the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post-News Service)

The successful woman

© Los Angeles Times Syndicate
WASHINGTON — As someone who finds TV commercials far more interesting than the programs wedged between them, I have noticed more and more advertisements are aimed at the "successful woman."

If you believe the ads, which I do, the successful woman has many more things to do before she can achieve the upward mobility we are all striving for.

In bygone years a woman's success depended on what kind of wax she put on her kitchen floor or brand of detergent she used to wash her husband's shirts. She was judged on the soup she served her kids for lunch, and how many cavities her child had when he came home from school.

But as more and more women entered the business world, the people charged with selling products had to switch gears and aim their commercials at the female population, which was trying to reach the top of the ladder in the executive suite.

The new message was that in order to be a successful woman your hair had to be fresh and neat at all times. You had to use the right facial cleanser before you retired to bed at night, and the seams of your stockings always had to be straight.

The successful woman is not only judged on her performance as a businesswoman, but whether she is using the correct pain reliever when the pressure gets too much.

She'll never make it in a man's world unless she buys a certain bath oil or rubs her hands with a reliable hand lotion. And, of course, she must watch her figure at all times. This means taking plenty of vitamins and minerals and wearing the right girdle to keep the judges from showing up in the wrong places.

According to the TV commercials, the ultimate in success for a businesswoman is her ability to choose the correct wine to serve for a romantic evening after a grueling day.

How do I know this? My favorite commercial, which is getting a big play on television these days, shows a man and a woman in a luxurious suite at the Waldorf Astoria. He's in a tuxedo, and she's in a very chic black evening gown with long pearls. (Talking to her London office tells them she will fly over in the morning and straighten out the problem, whatever it is. As she's talking on the phone, she takes a bottle of wine out of a bucket, and pours her a glass, which she acknowledges with a nod, and continues her business on the phone. The message is that this is the wine all successful women prefer, even if they have to speak to London late at night.

Unfortunately, since TV commercials are so expensive, we never see what occurs after the woman gets off the phone.

Since you get the feeling from the setting that the couple isn't married, you wonder what will happen next. I can only believe it ends like this: "You look beautiful in that evening dress," the man says as he kisses her earlobe. "Darling, pour me another glass of wine while I call Tokyo."

"Forget about Tokyo. The night is young and we're in this beautiful $300 suite, which only successful women like you can afford." He kisses her on the neck.

"Stop that. I have to call Carstairs in Tokyo before the market closes to tell him that the stock is going to pull a fast one today, unless we get to Goldfarb in Hong Kong first."

"But what about us, and the wonderful things we planned to do after dinner? What about the delicious wine you ordered?"

"Put it in my briefcase. I'll drink it on the way to the airport tonight."

Letters

Hansen defended

Editor, Times-News:
In a recent letter to the editor by Mrs. Rosemary Short of Rupert, she complains that her daughter's letter to Congressman Hansen was never answered, while her letter to Senator Church was.

If Sen. Church's answer was anything like the ones I've received from his office, it was a typical example of his being what Ward Sirchia in the Washington Post called him — "one who clumsily abandons principles to save himself from election disaster: an opportunist who puts his electoral fortune above all else; shifting rifles when he goes home to make constituents believe he is something other than his real self."

His office staff has very obviously been well trained to screen incoming letters for liberal or conservative shadings and then to mail out answers appropriately geared to highlight one or the other view in order to "soothe" the recipient into supposing that, yes, indeed, Mr. Church wholeheartedly supports his particular views — when one look at his voting record could tell a very different story.

In Sen. Church's principle of "political expediency" what Mrs. Short has in mind as an example of the integrity she would demand of our elected representative.

Congressman Hansen, on the other hand, expresses his views very directly. In fact, his statements and actions are often so sharply to the point, that more experienced politicians uncomfortable with such non-evasive tactics, and unwilling to take personal responsibility for acting without a government agency to first show them the way, seek to ensure any such unauthorized maneuvers.

The record shows that government agencies have done little more than bungle what they attempt and then spread the blame for what was still undone. Thank goodness for a forthright congressman like George Hansen who can still act honorably on his own.

When Mrs. Short says that Hansen gives voters sympathy with inflation and Big Government, but no action, it is evident that she has failed to inform herself of the facts.

Congressman Hansen has successfully moved to fight big government by taking action to drastically curb the bureaucratic powers and ill-advised actions of OSHA's regulators and inspectors. Knowing that government fueled taxes and inflation must be dealt with effectively at the source, George Hansen has introduced legislation (HR 6789) called the Interest and Inflation Reduction Act which would prevent the president, congress, and the Federal Reserve System from deficit spending operations.

When you know the other side of the story perhaps you'll agree that if you want integrity and action from your elected representatives, George Hansen is the man to vote for.

Bible cited

Editor, Times-News:
In the letter, "Distorting Israeli Issue" (Times-News April 27) I tried to follow the points of international law and the Zion Moreh court opinion.

I do not know if the writer believes in the 100 percent truth of the ancient Hebrew "Law and the Prophets"; but as I do, I will assume he does.

Ezekiel's magnificent temple will claim land in a reserved area extending north of Jerusalem. Lacking in part of the West Bank of the Jordan; the rest is already allotted.

Whoever succeeds in the meantime in "owning" the West Bank will be claiming land when the Transferrer (Dan 7:22) appears. Those who "foreseak the covenant" (Sinaltic) will have no part.

Group holds Illinois taxpayers hostage for good time

© Chicago Sun-Times

With the taking of hostages becoming a worldwide sport, law enforcement officials are taking cram courses to learn how to deal with such situations.

A few days ago, seven officials from the Illinois Department of Corrections went in a St. Petersburg, Fla., to take part in a three-day seminar run by a police captain from New York City who is an expert in negotiating for the release of hostages.

The Department of Corrections runs the Illinois prisons, and like all prison systems it has been plagued by riots in which prisoners seize guards as hostages.

Therefore, our state officials could learn something useful at such a seminar, right? It was worth the $6,000 or so in tax bucks that it cost to send them there, right?

Another participant at the seminar was Detective Kim Sylvester of Peoria, Ill., who is a member of the Tazewell County sheriff's police.

Sylvester, a serious-minded cop, came back from the seminar oozing disgust at what he saw.

The seminar was excellent, he said. But the Illinois state officials? "I'll tell you what they did most of the time," says Sylvester. "They were on the beach. Or they were sailing."

And a hotel official says they didn't spend all their time sailing or sunning. They also got loud and boozing in the hotel bar. But more about that later.

Detective Sylvester says: "The seminars ran from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and the six or seven people from the State Corrections Department were hardly ever there."

Among those attending was Director Gayle Franzen, top man in the Corrections Department.

"Franzen only attended the last day of the seminar, and he made a fool of himself by making comments about things we'd discussed when he wasn't there."

attended all the sessions was the warden from Stateville Prison. The rest of the people averaged three hours a day, at the most.

"But there was Franzen, the No. 1 man in the department, and he knew what the others were doing, and didn't do anything about it."

"I'm angry about all the tax money that was spent so these guys could go down there and fool around. The woman in the group even injured her arm when she went out sailing. I wouldn't want them representing me in a hostage situation."

When he was asked about the seminar, Franzen said that his group included Wardens Marvin Reed of Stateville, Linda Ann Glesien of Dwight, Jay Fairman of Pontiac and Kenn McGinnis of Hillsboro; Mike Lane, assistant director of the Department of Corrections, and Roland Daniels, chief of Prisoner Advocacy Services.

And did they really duck their seminar classes?

"That is an absolute, unequivocal, total lie, Reed, Fairman and McGinnis attended every session. I attended the first morning and the last day."

Did Ms. Glesien injure her arm sailing?

"She was assaulted one afternoon. The next afternoon I accompanied her to the state's attorney's office to file criminal charges."

Why didn't Franzen go to all the sessions?

"From talking with other wardens who had already attended, we knew the first afternoon was basically war stories and we could skip that."

So she picks up her traveler's check and he grabs her wrist. I heard her scream. She was so shaken she could hardly talk. Her wrist was swollen and there were marks on her arm.

The next day we went to the hospital and the doctor put it in a stiff cast. We went to the state's attorney's office and it appears they will file criminal assault charges."

A different version was provided by Ernest Barka, who owns the sailing school from which the boat was rented. He indignantly said:

"Before they went out, they signed a contract agreeing to pay for any damage and late charges. She brought the boat back an hour late. When I tried to charge her for the late time and the damage, she tried to grab her check to run. I think that is true."

"They were half smashed. They'd been out there on the boat drinking since 12:30 p.m."

big-blonde guy (Franzen) comes running and calls the police and causes all the trouble. I would have fought about it, but he had to be macho. The police didn't even book me. It's a thin, ridiculous case and I've got witnesses. And that guy Franzen is a big . . ."

"Look, if you don't believe me, call the hotel and ask them how these Illinois people acted. They'll tell you some stories of their own."

The desk clerk at the hotel said: "Yes, I remember them. We had six or seven ladies walk out of the bar because of their drunken, abusive and foul language."

But didn't everyone at the seminar act that way, including it up white away from home?"

He snorted. "It was the ones from Illinois."

Didn't it appear that they were going to their seminar sessions? "It appeared," he said, "that they were having a good time." "Oh, well; they can always laugh the hostages free."

Cuban sealift

Despite fines, good weather brings more boats to rescue effort

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — A Coast Guard patrol plane sighted two more bodies floating along the route of the Cuban sealift.

Meanwhile a new wave of Cuban refugees surged across the Florida Straits Tuesday following a brief, in this weekend's stormy weather.

The discovery of the bodies about 40 miles southeast of Key West marked the third and fourth known casualties from the flotilla mounted by Florida's Cuban exiles to bring out dissidents wanting to leave the island. Two exiles from Orlando were discovered drowned in their capsized 22-foot cabin cruiser Sunday.

"The plane was unable to relocate the bodies after the initial sighting and no search for them is planned," said Coast Guard spokesman Bob Britt. He explained that first priority of the score of Coast Guard ships, planes and helicopters patrolling the 90-mile-wide Straits "is to save lives."

Sunny skies and calming seas brought an end to the stormy weather that hit the Florida Straits Sunday and a new flotilla of small boats set out for Cuba.

By late Tuesday, 10 boats carrying a total of 344 refugees had arrived in Key West.

U.S. Customs agents earlier seized three commercial fishing boats that ferried 507 Cubans to Florida. The seizures touched off protests among the hundreds of Cuban exiles waiting to go to Cuba for refugees and relatives.

Customs spokesman Jim Dingfelder in Miami said the three vessels seized represented "the most flagrant violations." The boat captains knew of government threats to seize vessels and fine captains $1,000 for each refugee

Stranded boats are towed to Miami by a Coast Guard cutter brought in and went ahead Tuesday stocked up on life jackets and rubber rafts. Their plan was to put the refugees over the side and provide them with life jackets at they approached the Florida shore, thus avoiding federal fines and seizure of their vessels for bringing undocumented aliens ashore.

A shipyard crewman said the refugees would be advised not to tell authorities which boat they were aboard.

But a Coast Guard official said the plan wouldn't work.

"They're violating the law when they come within 12 miles with undocumented aliens aboard. When they come within 12 miles, they're essentially come to the United States," he said.

Barbara Gutierrez of Miami, who went to Cuba aboard one of the boats to pickup relatives, said a young Cuban was dragged from the Roadrunner before it sailed for Florida.

"Last night," she said, "a man swam up to our boat and came on board. The soldiers came and took him off. I would do anything to get him out of there," the weeping woman said. She said the youth carried a student card identifying himself as Lazaro Miguélez.

The Coast Guard said 20 boats left Cuba early Tuesday morning, followed by many others. Havana radio said 1,757 boats were in a shelter harbor, which was opened by Castro last week as a door to the United States for dissatisfied Cubans and relatives of exiles who come to fetch them.

Florida National Guardsmen moved into the Key West Naval Station Tuesday to help with the processing of the refugees and Florida Gov. Bob Graham paid a visit to the city.

Nine Coast Guard cutters cruised the Florida Straits, ready to assist boats in trouble.

Judge orders teachers to stop strike

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — The Massachusetts Labor-Relations Commission issued a cease and desist order Tuesday instructing more than 1,000 striking Springfield public school teachers to return to their jobs.

The strike, which began earlier Tuesday, affects about 25,000 students. The commission also ordered negotiations to be directed by a state-appointed mediator.

"The strike is the first in the city's history. Hundreds of teachers in rain gear, using signs reading "Dedication Does Not Pay Bills," manned picket lines at the city's 50 public schools after the Education Association voted by a 2-1 margin to stage the illegal walkout.

Teachers have been without a contract since Dec. 31, 1979.

Strike could shut Sweden down

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — A national one-week strike in Sweden appeared inevitable Tuesday, with the country already crippled by strikes that have grounded air traffic, disrupted transport and turned all but emergency cases away from hospitals.

Last-minute negotiations were held to try to avoid a national lockout scheduled to start at midnight, May 1. But neither employers, union negotiators nor the government-operated arbitration committee seemed hopeful of avoiding the conflict.

"Only a miracle can stop it now," said one trade union official. A member of the employers' association said he was "deeply pessimistic" about the situation.

A lockout of 750,000 industrial workers has been called by the employers' association in answer to an overtime ban and threats of selective strikes by the Swedish Confederation of Trade Unions, who are fighting for a 11.3 percent wage increase.

The arbitrators will meet Wednesday to come up with a solution. The unions have said they will not negotiate on Thursday, which is the May Day national holiday. Meanwhile strikes by 14,000 public sector workers in support of a 12 percent wage claim have stopped all air traffic into and out of the country, halted the Stockholm subway system and street-cars in Gothenburg, and led to long delays and cancellations of many trains.

Jury agrees prisoners were beaten, $1 awarded

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — A jury hearing a civil suit brought by 37 inmates seeking $5.8 million in damages for alleged beatings by officials at Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary Tuesday awarded two of prisoners $1 each.

The all-male jury ruled Richard Picariello and Casson Glick suffered physical and mental pain while at the facility and ruled they deserved compensation, but gave no explanation for the meager awards.

Steven Ney, who represented the plaintiffs, said the fact his clients were prisoners "worked toward their detriment."

"It's my impression the jury did not deem it proper to treat prisoners equally as they would a person in the free society," he said.

U.S. District Judge Malcolm Muir still must decide damages he has allowed "click" under the Tort Claims Act, which permits persons injured by a federal employee to be paid damages by the government. His decision is expected in several days.

Muir has not asked the jury to decide a monetary award for Richard Montgomery, a third inmate who was beaten.

On March 12, the jury found cruel and unusual punishment had been inflicted upon three inmates while they were on overnight holdover at the prison April 14, 1978. At the same time, it dismissed claims by 22 others. Another 12 inmates earlier had pulled out of the suit.

In finding three inmates had suffered beatings, the jury determined former Warden Charles Fenton, now employed by Massachusetts as a prison management consultant, "intentionally inflicted" that punishment upon two inmates. It also concluded that Capt. Roland Cassella and Lt.

Lowell Hudson each beat one prisoner.

However, the jury ruled the trio "acted in good faith," clearing them of liability for damages.

U.S. delegation arrives for talks on Palestinians

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Special U.S. Envoy Sol Linowitz said Tuesday he is confident the problems holding up agreement on Palestinian autonomy talks "are solvable" and warned that "history will not forgive us" if they fail.

Arriving to attend the first leg of marathon talks designed to wrap up the autonomy negotiations by May 26, Linowitz said both Egypt and Israel have renewed their commitment to the success of the negotiations during the summit talks their leaders held with President Carter in Washington.

Muhammad Ali just won another fight — this time against Howard Cosell and ABC. A New York court says the network has to pay him $193,352 — the cost of his successful defense against a libel suit brought after Cosell gadded him into bad-mouthing referee Anthony Perez after his 1975 bout with Chuck Wepner. All says since Cosell badgered him for "something sensational," it was Cosell's fault that he wound up in court. The judge agreed.

The Reuben cartoonist's equivalent of the Oscar is named after the late Rube Goldberg.

She'll also get $5,500 in damages — coming from Kallian's seizure of the items in a squabble over her 1977 eviction. She says he held them for a "moving expenses" ransom of $350.

Party-goer's enthusiasm undimmed

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Luis Valencia, Colombia's most famous party-goer, says his two-month captivity in the Dominican Embassy did not dim his enthusiasm for diplomatic receptions.

"I'll still go to the reception, as long as I'm invited," Valencia said Monday in an interview.

Valencia, a slender, balding man in his 30s, appeared fit and composed after the long ordeal that began when he attended a reception honoring the Dominican Republic's independence Day Feb. 27.

The embassy was seized by leftist guerrillas of the April 19 Movement, known as M-19, and Valencia was among 57 people taken hostage.

The Colombian press referred to Valencia as the country's best-known "jagarto." The word means "liar" in Spanish and in Colombia it is used to describe those who wriggle into places where they are not invited — party-crashers.

Valencia insists the term is inaccurate in his case.
"I go to the receptions as part of my work," he said. "I get a lot of invitations in connection with the bi-monthly magazine I publish, Diplomatic News. I'm a fully accredited journalist. I'm also press chief at the Rural Electrification Authority for Cundinamarca and Meta States," he said, showing his business card.

"But I don't mind about the 'jagarto'-business. I think my colleagues did me a favor, and I'm delighted. The important thing is to have people talking about you — it doesn't matter so much what they say."

Flag display needs bucks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "Son of Giant Flag" they want to dangle off the big bridge at the entrance to New York Harbor on the Fourth of July might have to play out of town unless somebody comes up with some heavy bucks fast.

"We have successfully completed phase one, the making of the flag, and now we're racing the clock," said Len Silverfine, originator of the idea for flying the world's largest American flag from the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge.

"We need to reach out quickly to other corporations and the public to bring in the funds necessary to keep on schedule."

Silverfine is asking corporate contributors and the public to fork up $200,000 for the steel rigging and installation of the flag on the bridge straddling the harbor entrance.

The 210-by-411-foot flag, made by Anchor Industries, was spread out and put on display last month at an Evansville, Ind., airport, and Silverfine planned to show it off in Cincinnati on May 9 and Philadelphia on May 26 en route to New York.

Silverfine tried to hang a similar monster flag from the Narrows bridge during the 1976 Bicentennial celebrations but that one was torn to shreds by the stiff harbor breezes.

Wimpy — the rotund burger glutton of venerable comic strip lore — opposite Robin Williams' "Popeye" now filming on the Isle of Malta, and he's weary of the whole scene. Says he, "I can't wait to get back next month to the United States and have some real American food — but no hamburgers please!" To stay in character through repeated rehearsals, Dooley has consumed more than 1,000 of them.

BEHIND THE NAME — Groucho Marx, born Julius Henry Marx, got his nickname "Groucho" because he carried his poker money in a "grouch bag."

Washington couple wins over IRS again

BELLEVUE, Wash. (UPI) — Phil and Sue Long of Bellevue have been defeating the Internal Revenue Service since 1969 and they've done it again.

The U.S. Supreme Court Monday upheld their claim that the public has a right to know how the IRS decides whose income tax returns will be audited.

The court refused to hear an IRS appeal that contended release of the information would "destroy" its best method of catching tax cheats.

The Longs claimed they were entitled to computerized records of the agency's Taxpayer Compliance Measurement Program, which is aimed at helping the IRS decide which taxpayers to audit.

The Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in their favor in 1979 and Monday the Supreme Court upheld that ruling.

contain the results of a $100 million self-analysis study the IRS has been conducting since 1967. He said it contained records of up to 50,000 intensive audits of taxpayers and corporations.

"The basic data will show that the IRS is uneven between various areas of the country, among different sizes of taxpayers and different types of taxpayers," Long said.

In its appeal, the IRS maintained release of the information "threatens to destroy the efficacy of one of the most important investigative techniques in enforcing the tax law."

Attorneys for the agency argued that "once the formulae are made public, persons could modify their returns ... and thereby virtually insulate themselves from scrutiny."

The Longs brought their suit under the Freedom of Information Act. It was a continuation of their 4½-year fight with the IRS, which started when the agency said they owed more than $38,000 in taxes.

They successfully contested every claim for back taxes and won the last of their personal cases about 2½ years ago, winding up with a small refund.

Other public information suits the Longs have won included release of internal IRS operating manuals and carloads of tax documents.

Senate hears mob details

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "La Cosa Nostra is the most powerful criminal organization in the country," and FBI expert on organized crime told a Senate panel Tuesday.

It is the first in a criminal ranking that has no second or third place. No one is even close," James Nelson told the Senate Permanent Committee on Investigations.

Nelson also revealed the FBI is closely watching some police departments to see whether links between police unions and organized crime are affecting local law enforcement.

Nelson was asked whether the membership of some local police in unions with reported ties to organized crime affects their ability to pursue criminals.

"I have not seen that organized crime influence or control (of a union) has translated into improper domination or control of police departments," Nelson said.

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, who raised the question, asked if the FBI is watching for signs of possible union-inspired police corruption. "In a couple of cases, very, very closely," Nelson replied. He did not elaborate.

In other testimony, he noted, "There is only one way out of an organization like La Cosa Nostra: That is to die."

La Cosa Nostra came into being in 1931 under the direction of Lucky Luciano who mixed the Sicilian — "Mafia" — with Neapolitan — and Calabrian-run mobs, Nelson said. It is run by a commission composed of the heads of nine "families" — five in New York and four in Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and Buffalo.

The Gambino and Genovese families in New York are the two biggest, with the Chicago Outfit third, he said.

Nelson said "money flows upward" in the mob, with the lower level "soldiers" giving ranking "capo" regiments, "underbosses" or "bosses" percentages of their income.

"A person moves up on his ability to earn," Nelson said. "They don't like to take a loss."

Nelson described a typical initiation into one of the families:

Only an Italian-surnamed man can join. A prerequisite is committing or participating in a murder.

The initiate sits around a table with "family" members and discusses "the goodness of La Cosa Nostra" and its rules — including keeping hands off other members' wives and daughters and obeying a code of silence.

The finger of the initiate is pricked and blood is smeared on a card depicting a saint holding a child, Nelson said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency Tuesday ordered the manufacturers of 2,4-D, one of the most commonly used herbicides, to prove it is safe or face a possible ban.

Like 2,4,5-T, which the agency banned last year, it was a component of Agent Orange, the defoliant used in the Vietnam war which is believed to have caused health problems among servicemen exposed to it.

The agency said there is no evidence that 2,4-D contains dioxin, the deadly chemical found in 2,4,5-T.

Lance jury remains deadlocked

ATLANTA (UPI) — The judge in the Bert Lance bank fraud trial met with prosecution and defense attorneys in his chambers Tuesday and then abruptly sent home jurors, still apparently deadlocked after 8 days of deliberations.

The panel, which has deliberated a total of 49 hours and 20 minutes, has informed Moye on three separate occasions that it was deadlocked.

In each case, Moye told the jurors to resolve their stalemate and return unanimous verdicts on all 19 counts of violating federal banking laws against Lance and co-defendants Richard Carr, H. Jackson Mullins and Thomas Mitchell.

The jury has returned a verdict on at least one of the defendants but Moye ordered it sealed while the panel tries to rule on the others.

The jury has told the judge some of its members "won't change their decisions" on some of the counts but Moye asked them again Tuesday to work out their differences.

His message was considerably milder than the instructions he gave Monday when he occasionally raised his voice and told the panel members to "dispute" their own judgment if the majority was voting in an opposite direction.

Doomsday failed to arrive

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI) — About 150 members of a tiny religious group waited in and near underground bomb shelters Tuesday for the nuclear war their leader predicted.

News reports that Iranians charged two U.S. jets with firing on an Iranian patrol plane near the Persian Gulf steered many of the followers of Leland "Doc" Jensen in their belief that the world is headed for a "thousand nuclear Tuesdays," which he said would come Tuesday.

Jensen, leader of the Bahai's Under the Provisions of the Covenant, spent the day in his home, above his basement shelter, talking to a flood of telephone interviewers.

Jensen's group is not affiliated with the Bahai International Faith.

The prediction by Jensen is based largely on the book of Revelation in the New Testament of the Bible and on measurements of features of the Great Pyramid at Giza.

A number of the faithful worked into the evening to put finishing touches on what many still assumed would be their home for two weeks following a nuclear exchange.

Fallout barriers were erected. Food was sorted. And some members distributed fallout shelter information pamphlets in public places to try to protect the general public in the event of a nuclear war.

But not all the faithful were as convinced as Jensen that Tuesday was doomsday.

What's what

Average burglar quick at doing his work

Average burglar gets in and out of a house in three minutes. What's meant by average here is the thief between the ages of 14 and 22 who hits houses from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays. This character is probably into drugs of some sort, too. Because there are so many like him, he's statistically significant. However, he is not as dreadfully damaging as another sort: The team burglar who backs up to the place with a van, smashes open the door with a crowbar, and wrecks every lovely thing he thinks unworthy of the take. It's dangerous to be near him, true. It's also dangerous to be him. He incites reprisal.

JOE MILLER

Q. Who wrote the renowned "Joe Miller's Joke Book"?
 Joe Miller didn't.
 A. His friends put it together after he died. They hoped it might raise a little money for his widow and children. Only three of the 247 jokes in that book were attributed to Miller. Didn't matter. It went into eight editions. And Mrs. Miller and the youngsters came out all right, financially.

Q. Where did Generals Douglas MacArthur, Dwight Eisenhower and Omar Bradley rank in their West Point graduating classes?
 A. MacArthur, 1 of 93. Eisenhower, 61 of 168. Bradley, 44 or 168.

Q. Greatest escape artist of all time was Harry Houdini, I suppose. His real name was Ehrich Weiss. Where'd he get the Houdini name?
 A. From a famous French magician named Houdin.

SPONGE CAKES

In 1930, the Continental Bakery in Chicago was turning out nifty little sponge cakes—to be sold to people who filled them with strawberries and topped them off with whipped cream. Lovers of strawberry shortcake were numerous. The market was sizable. Unfortunately, the strawberry season wasn't all that long. What Continental needed was something else for cake filling when the strawberries were gone. Manager James A. Deaver tried a sugary cream. It worked. Across the street from his bakery was a sign that advertised "Twinkie Toes Shoes." That suggested the name for his confection: "Twinkies."

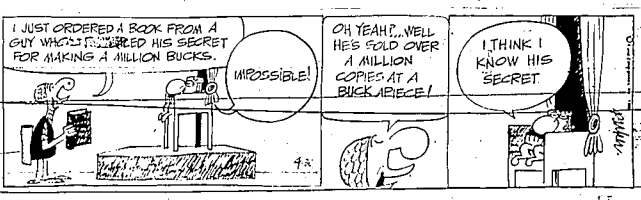

Not even many Seasoned Citizens are aware of the fact that Jack Benny also played the piano.
 More people listen to the radio during April and May than at any other time of year. Why?

Chrysler bail-out postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special government panel delayed a decision Tuesday on whether to grant the bankruptcy-threatened Chrysler Corp. up to $1.5 billion in federally backed loans.

In a memo, Deputy Treasury Secretary Robert Carwell explained the five-member Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board could not reach a final decision on the loans at its closed session Tuesday "because some elements of the package are still being completed."

Industry observers have said Chrysler is losing upwards of $150 million a month, and executives say their company could go out of business as early as this summer without speedy approval of the government-backed loans.

In recent weeks, the nation's ailing No. 3 automaker has promised to undertake several austerity measures in the near future, including phasing out a number of its plants and producing smaller, more fuel-efficient cars.

Chrysler executives also have submitted a lengthy long-range plan designed to show the federal government they are committed to keeping the company afloat, no matter how painful the sacrifices.

Earlier this year, President Carter signed a bill approving up to $1.5 billion in federally backed loans to Chrysler on condition it meet a long list of requirements, including raising $1.4 billion on its own.

Even with the board's approval, Chrysler must wait 15 days before spending any of the $1.5 billion in loans.

Chrysler officials hope to get the loans as soon as possible. The state of Michigan has agreed to lend the automaker $150 million, but only if the federal government approves the company's overall package first.

Draft bill approved by committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's draft registration plan cleared a major hurdle in the Senate Tuesday when Senate appropriations subcommittee approved a bill needed to pay for the program.

The bill transferring $13.3 million to the Selective Service System was approved 8-4. The measure, which changed the House and week 218, now goes to the full Senate committee, which is expected to approve it.

Anti-draft forces have pinned their chances of blocking the registration bill on a threat by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., to filibuster against it if it gets to the Senate floor.

The subcommittee vote, which had been expected to be as close as a 6-6 tie, served as an indication that pro-registration forces will be able to prevail in the full committee and perhaps on the Senate floor.

The $13.3 million would allow Selective Service to begin registering 19- and 20-year-old men this summer for a possible draft.

But there can be no actual draft unless Congress specifically approves additional legislation.

Carter told congressional leaders Tuesday morning he has no plans for a draft, but wants to "get the offices functioning."

Assistant House Democratic leader John Brademas quoted Carter as saying, "I'm not going to draft anybody. I'm not even going to examine anybody."

The president already has authority to order registration of men, but has delayed an order until the funding is approved by Congress.

The subcommittee voted after hearing from several members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who said existing military forces lack trained career personnel and would be hard-pressed if ordered into combat.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said that without prompt reinforcements for its combat forces, the United States might have to "choose between capitulation or theater nuclear war."

Testing begins on new cancer controlling drug

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Cancer Institute said Tuesday it has ordered more of the rare antiviral drug Interferon to start the first government-sponsored tests of the drug in cancer patients later this year.

Interferon was discovered in 1957, but because it is so scarce, it was only in the last few years that scientists began to investigate its use against cancer.

The substance received its name because it interferes with viral infections. Interferon is a key element of the body's complex immunity system and acts as a messenger to sound an alarm to body cells that viruses are on the attack.

Interferon has been found to be active against every virus it has challenged, but it is not known how it works against tumors. It also is not known how interferon can best be used against cancer, and how effective the protein is.

Flow Laboratories Inc., of McLean, Va., will produce $2 million worth of the precious human protein made from cells of foreskins under a 15-month contract.

North Valley Blaine vote set on levy

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

HAILLEY - Blaine County will decide the fate of a $50,000 school override levy and perhaps the district's athletic program in a special election May 6.

Conflicting tax laws by the Idaho Legislature are at the root of the district's money woes, said Superintendent Richard Jones. The district is too wealthy to get as much state aid as surrounding districts, yet local property taxes are frozen at 1978 levels.

"I'm not faulting the Legislature. They worked very hard" seeking a fair solution to the approval for a tax freeze first implemented in 1975, hit perhaps a half dozen districts in the state especially hard.

Without the two-year freeze, the Blaine County district could have raised an estimated $16 million in property taxes this year, he said. With the freeze, the district will collect approximately $1,050,000 without the override.

Jones said initial estimates for the override were higher than necessary, and the district now needs about $500,000 more than its budget authority.

"The excess will be refunded," he said, as it was last year when the district secured approval for a $245,000 override but spent only about $400,000.

"Eliminating extra-curricular activities is one option the district has if the override levy fails, Jones said. But he stressed that such a decision is up to the board, which could also decide to resubmit the request for a different amount.

Polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the district's elementary schools in Carey, Bellevue, Halley and Kelchum.

Jones said the election could have been held with school board elections May 20. But the board opted for the earlier date to allow notification of teachers if a decision must be made.

Under state law, teachers must be informed by May 15 if their contracts will not be renewed for the following school year.

Board hears about needs at landfills

SHOSHONE - L. Wage was the main topic of concern during a short Lincoln County Commissioners' meeting Monday.

Bill Allred, environmentalist with the Department of Health and Welfare, reported to the commissioners on shortcomings of the county's three landfills.

"Bill has finished his inventory of our dump sites and it's both good and bad," said Commission Chairman Everett "Buck" Ward.

"Ground water contamination was low, but he was concerned about our not having attendants or gates at the dump sites," Ward explained.

"According to Ward, DIIW encourages counties to operate dump sites on regular hours. This means employing attendants and closing a gate after hours, Ward said.

"We can't afford three attendants, can't really afford one," Ward said. "The other problem is that we can't really bring trash to the dump and find it closed, they'll either dump it outside the gate, or maybe a ways down the road."

Allred's inventory will be sent to the state office in Boise to be compiled with other inventories from throughout the state. At the time a comment period will be held before any final decision by DIIW is reached, according to Ward.

"We'll just hold off on any decision until that time," Ward concluded.

Jerome air show plans proceeding

JEROME - Plans for a two-day air show at the Jerome County Airport are proceeding without the participation of the county commissioners.

Commission Chairman Mel Grindstaff said Monday he okayed the event late last week after checking liability questions with Prosecuting Attorney Eugene Fredericksen and the county's insurance carrier, Prescott and Craig.

Marva Walters, airport co-manager, told the commissioners last week she would seek business sponsors to bring a two-day "quality show" to the airport June 14 and 15. Earlier, she suggested the county share costs and proceeds from the event.

Grindstaff said Monday the county would grant approval for an expanded show at the county-owned airport. But he said it would be inappropriate to place tax dollars in "what could be a risky deal."

Walters estimated the total cost of the show to be about $5,000.

Domestic sales slump blamed

Ford lists $164 million loss

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
UPI Auto Writer
DETROIT—Ford Motor Co. said Monday it lost $164 million in the first quarter of 1980—its second consecutive unprofitable quarter—because of slumping domestic vehicle sales.

The loss compared with profits of $555 million of $1.97 a share in the same period last year.

Ford reported a deficit from U.S. operations in the quarter of $473 million. That was partially offset by earnings of $309 million in overseas markets.

Ford lost $41 million worldwide in the last quarter of 1979 but finished the year with overall profits of $1.2 billion—third best in its history.

The No. 2 auto company already has said it expects to suffer even greater losses in the second quarter of this year because of the long-slump-in sales of big cars and trucks.

Inflation, the weakening economy, high interest rates, slow sales of the most profitable models and burgeoning competition from Japanese im-

The company also has ordered deep cuts in steps in an effort to trim $1.5 billion a year from its ongoing costs. It has ordered four plants closed, idled nearly 50,000 hourly workers in the U.S. and reduced its salaried staff by nearly 20 percent.

How quickly the company can restore profitability to its U.S. market depends largely on factors over which the company has no control, including inflation, declining productivity, "excessive" regulations and unstable energy supplies, Caldwell said.

Ford said its first quarter results include a one-time gain of $91 million due to changes in tax agreements between the U.S. and the United Kingdom.

Worldwide dollar sales in the quarter were $9.6 billion, down 24 percent from $12.6 billion a year ago. Worldwide vehicle sales of 1,243,789 units were off 31 percent from 1,804,629 in the same period last year.

Unit sales in the U.S. were down 45 percent, while unit sales outside the U.S. were down 12 percent.

U.S. trade deficit cut in March

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A surge in exports and a large drop in oil imports narrowed the nation's international trade deficit to $3.7 billion in March, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

It was the smallest deficit since November and a substantial improvement from February's record trade gap of $5.57 billion.

For the first quarter of this year, the trade deficit was $13.5 billion, compared to $12.2 billion for the same period last year.

Led by agricultural products, manufactured goods and gold shipments, exports rose by $1.1 billion to $18.83 billion in March.

Imports declined by $1.1 billion to $21.69 billion.

Oil imports, which fluctuate from month to month, fell from an average of 8.8 million barrels a day in February to 7.5 million in March. The total volume of imported oil was at its lowest level since November.

The decline in volume of imported oil was enough to reduce by 5 percent this country's monthly foreign bill, even though the average price went up from $29.81 a barrel in February to $31.19 in March.

That was a development in the right direction, since this drain from the incomes of Americans to pay for high-priced foreign oil has contributed to inflation and to erosion of the purchasing power—and standard-of-living of Americans.

In addition to importing less oil, Americans imported significantly fewer cars in March, $358 million worth less than the month before.

The United States has been running a trade deficit since May, 1976. The deficit totaled $37.29 billion for 1979 as a whole.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI)—Wheat was irregularly lower, corn and soybeans were substantially lower at the close Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was unchanged to "a shade" higher in the futures market. It was down 1/8 cent to 41 1/2 cents for May and 41 1/4 cents for July.

There was a development in the distant months because of buying of July contracts by an influential commission house and certain selling in November soybeans futures triggered a sharp rise in soybean prices. In season futures, traders said the action also triggered liquidation, adding to the rally.

Much of Tuesday's market activity was featureless. Traders said they were not covering in corn futures, but that quickly faded. Some traders said they were not covering in soybean futures, but that quickly faded.

Freshly roasted beans essential for good coffee

For all the paraphernalia that one could assemble to create a great cup of coffee — from automated drip coffeemaker to electric coffee-bean grinder to water filter all that's really needed is a $2 plastic filter top, filter paper and some freshly ground coffee.

The cheap technique for a cup of coffee begins with a plastic cone-shaped filter top for a coffee cup. Fit a filter paper into the filter, fill with the coffee and amount of coffee and pour in almost — but not truly — boiling water.

So much for equipment. Freshness, according to Bob Wells, owner of Something's Brewing, a Chicago coffee and coffeeware shop, is truly the essential ingredient in the brew.

While he wouldn't object if people were to sink a fortune into his coffee goodies, he suggests that it's hardly necessary and could be overwhelming to the beginning coffee experimenter.

Wells has been selling coffee beans and ground coffee to the public for the last five years and is one of Chicago's most knowledgeable coffee people.

His common-sense approach to the subject is a relief to people who might be overwhelmed by the price and variety of coffees available.

"Although the price of fresh roasted coffee may seem expensive compared with canned coffee, it isn't when you think of cost per cup," said Wells.

"If you use a fresher, better coffee, you may use less coffee per cup and you may have a desire to drink less since it's more satisfying."

That sounds logical enough, but how does one know whether a coffee is fresh?

Color is no indication. That simply depends on the variety of bean and the temperature it's been roasted at (beans will darken as they are roasted at higher temperatures).

The best bet for the novice is to choose a bean seller who does his own roasting.

"Coffee goes stale about three weeks after roasting," Wells said. "If a store is selling coffee that was roasted in New York, shipped to Chicago and allowed to sit in a warehouse for another three weeks before it's sold, the customer isn't going to have fresh-tasting coffee."

The store should have a good turnover, a sign that the wares aren't going stale on the shelf.

Knowledgeable sales people are an asset. Wells suggests that people ask questions — when and where the coffee was roasted. You could even ask to sniff the coffee. The more aromatic, the fresher.

Once you've smelled what could be a winner, don't make the mistake of stocking up on a gross of beans. Wells recommended. The beans will continue to get stale in your home.

"A half a pound of coffee will make 30 to 35 cups. This is the amount we suggest buying at one time. People might want to go about coffee buying the same way they buy fresh fish, vegetables and bread, at least once a week."

Whole beans will keep better than ground ones. Once coffee is ground, it loses its freshness more quickly. However, if the ground and even the unground coffee beans are stored in the freezer, they'll keep well.

Ground coffee can be kept frozen up to one month; whole beans up to four months according to Wells.

There's no thawing, no warming of the beans before making that great cup of coffee. Simply bring a pot of water up to the boiling point (letting it boil furiously won't do) and get set for a great cup of coffee.

Still, there are those who stick up for instant. If instant coffee is your bag, you may be interested to know that Consumer's Report magazine rated the instant in its October '79 issue.

Top of the heap were Brown Gold 100 percent Columbian freeze dried, Taster's Choice freeze-dried; A&P Eight O'Clock freeze-dried; Maxxim freeze-dried and Chock Full O' Nuts freeze-dried.

But it is my opinion that the coffee itself is the key. If you begin with a good, freshly ground coffee, you avoid a good number of problems.

Coffee grows all over the world. Brazil is one of the big growers. So are Columbia and Venezuela. But coffee also comes from Guatemala, Hawaii, Jamaica and Ethiopia. Different countries produce differently flavored beans. Try tasting around a little to find a coffee flavor you like. Once you do, make sure you make the best of those beans.

I always buy coffee beans and have them freshly ground. I keep part of that coffee in an air-tight jar in the refrigerator and the rest frozen until needed.

If you coffee isn't good, it could be the method of preparation. Try experimenting. My personal favorite is the filter cone method for which you don't need a coffee maker.

Finely ground coffee is placed in a paper cone at the top of a pot. Very hot water is poured through the coffee. The paper traps the grounds but allows the flavor to flow through.

But perhaps you're looking for some ideas to germinate coffee fantasies. If you're tired of the same old blend try freshly ground Venues or espresso roast. They are slightly darker and sweeter than standard roasts but as dark and pungent as French or Italian roasts.

If you're tired of coffee in the same old way, try dousing vanilla ice cream with coffee liqueur and a sprinkling of instant coffee crystals. The instant coffee tastes strangely similar to nuts.

Try espresso after a meal instead of pie. Cafe you might like: Cafe au lait (French) and cappuccino (Italian) — coffee with scalded milk.

Cafe mit schlag (Austrian) — coffee with whipped cream. Irish coffee — coffee with whiskey and topped with whipped cream.

If that's too traditional for you, perhaps you can take inspiration from the City Lights Bar at Windows on the World on top of the World Trade Center in New York City.

Hot plantation punch — coffee, 1/2 ounces brandy, 1/4 ounce orange bitters served in a sherry glass with sugared rim, a twist of orange peel and a rock candy stirrer.

Cafe veneto — coffee, 1/2 ounce aniseite, 1/2 ounce brandy served in a white wine glass with a sugared rim and a twist of orange peel.

Cafe Gauguin — coffee, 1/2 ounce creme de cacao, 1/2 ounce brandy, nutmeg served in a cocktail glass.

Cardinal coffee, 1 ounce Brandy, 1 ounce sugar, 1 ounce amaranth, sugar to taste and topped with whipped cream, served in a red wine glass with a spoon and sprinkled with shaved chocolate.

Kingston — coffee, 1 ounce Tea Maria, 1 ounce brandy, whipped cream served in a white wine glass with a cinnamon stick.

If you're a real coffee freak, a cookbook for reference is "Coffee Cooking" by Coll Dyer (HP Books, $4.95 paperback).

That said, let me help you make something colorless into something sinful. A good place to begin is with a fabulous Blum's coffee coffee pie sent in to Swap Shop in answer to a reader's request.

Coffee as ingredient: no calories and big flavor

By KIM UPTON
Chicago Sun-Times
Juan Valdez would be proud. Coffee is getting chic-er (if not cheap-er) by the minute. There are stores dedicated to it. There are books discussing it. And there are those who pay $8 a pound for special blends.

It's not difficult to tell why. Coffee has practically no redeeming characteristics except that these are big ones. It is delicious and contains no calories.

Would that all foods were so endowed. Coffee is much more versatile than one might first imagine. It adds depth of character to foods that are almost without personality. Boring tomato sauces, for example, become more interesting with a dash of coffee. You can even spice up canned tomato soup by adding a little coffee (or coffee liqueur), cayenne and a bit of cooked bacon.

You can toss it into a tomato-based creole dish. You can put it in baked beans. Or, if you don't have any coffee around, a dash of coffee liqueur can be fun.

Many a certifiable coffee freak has been integrated into our society. They are the people who will drink anything from the cheapest instant to $8-a-pound coffee blends (freshly ground, of course). They will, in emergencies, even drink vending-machine coffee.

That said for the product itself, let us get on to the preparation. It is not a universal talent to prepare a good cup of coffee.

Part of the problem is that yucky bitter aftertaste. How does one avoid it? There are several schools of thought. Some say a clean pot is of the essence.

Some say beginning with cold water is of utmost importance. Some say drinking within 10 minutes of brewing is the key.

Some say adding chicory makes the difference. Some say the method of preparation (percolating vs. drip vs. filter cone) is what turns the tide.

Still, there are those who stick up for instant. If instant coffee is your bag, you may be interested to know that Consumer's Report magazine rated the instant in its October '79 issue.

BLUM'S COFFEE COFFEE PIE
Time: about 2 hours, 20 minutes plus overnight chilling. Cost: about $4.25 recipe

1 (about 10-ounce) package pie crust mix
1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
3/4 cup finely chopped walnuts
1 square unsweetened chocolate, grated

1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup softened butter or margarine
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 square unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled

2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons instant (non-freeze-dried) coffee
2 cups whipping cream
1/2 cup confectioner's sugar
Chocolate curls

To make pastry shell in medium bowl, combine pie crust mix with brown sugar, walnuts and grated chocolate. Add 1 tablespoon water and vanilla. Using fork, mix until well blended. Turn into 9-inch well-greased pie plate; press firmly against bottom and sides of pie plate. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 15 minutes. Cool. Meanwhile make filling. In small bowl beat butter until creamy. Gradually add 3/4 cup sugar beating until light. Blend in melted chocolate and 2 teaspoons instant coffee. Add 1 egg; beat 5 minutes. Add remaining egg; beat 5 minutes. Longer. Turn filling into baked pie shell. Refrigerate, covered overnight.

Next day, make coffee topping. In large bowl combine cream with 2 tablespoons instant coffee and coffee-flavored sugar. Refrigerate covered, 1 hour. Then beat cream mixture until stiff. Decorate pie with topping. Garnish with chocolate curls. Refrigerate at least 2 hours. Makes 8 generous servings.

FRAN KOVACIK
Highland, Ind.
NOTE: We'd recommend cutting the whipped cream slightly — 1 to 2 cups whipping cream will do depending on your preference. If cutting the whipped cream, also cut the amount of instant coffee and sugar proportionately.

Magic Valley's gift to the vegetable kingdom, Sugar Snaps, are a tasty addition to the home garden

Plant those Sugar Snaps!

TWIN FALLS — The best time to plant Sugar Snap peas is early spring or just as soon as the soil is workable.

That time is here! Plant your seed as you would any other variety of garden pea and figure that the peas will take about 70 days to mature to the first edible pod stage.

The Sugar Snap pea plant is a tall climber; if conditions are right, it can grow 4-6 feet. Provide support of chicken wire, netting or strings stretched between tall stakes. Be sure that small vines are supported as well as the tall ones because it is difficult to lead vines back to strings or wire after they have sprang for any length of time and have become brittle.

Sugar Snaps favor cool weather. The snap peas have good frost resistance and have survived 20-degree temperatures.

The snap peas are at their best when the pods are 2 1/2-3 inches long and plump with mature peas. The pod walls become sweeter as the peas develop but they should be picked before the pods become nettled.

It shouldn't take you long to determine the stage of growth you prefer for eating. According to Dr. Calvin Lamborn, one of the breeders of the Sugar Snap, mature Sugar Snaps are best eaten raw. The younger ones are excellent for cooking or freezing.

Seeds are available in your local gardening stores, nurseries and supermarkets.

Stir-fry — the Oriental meat-stretching method of cooking

Times-News writer
How can we reason with a food situation that's slowly choking our checkbooks?

That's the dilemma most of us face when we desire to take special care to feed our families properly and interestingly.

It seems that we are at the complete mercy of the food marketers. But there are many delicious ways we can even the money score. Say, for instance, the Oriental cooking method of stir-frying.

Following are two basic stir-fry recipes you may want to try. Use a wok (Oriental skillet with cone-shaped bottom) or your large, heavy-bottomed skillet. The idea is to quickly cook fresh and/or par-cooked

1 pound round steak, cut into diagonal strips 1/2 inches long and 1/4-inch wide
1 cup washed, sliced fresh mushrooms
1 cup diagonally sliced celery
1 cup sliced onions
1 cup sliced, par-cooked cauliflower-cretes
1 cup sliced, par-cooked carrots
1 cup par-cooked, green pepper pieces
1 chicken bouillon cube dissolved in 1/2 cup hot water
1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1/2 cup soy sauce
1 can (12 ounces) bean sprouts, drained
1/2 pound fresh or frozen Sugar Snaps or snow peas
1 cup watercress or spinach leaves
Into wok or large, heavy skillet, pour oil; heat to 375°F. Add meat slices and stir-fry 2 minutes. Push meat up side of wok or to edges of skillet. Add mushrooms; stir-fry 2 minutes; push to side of cooker. Add sliced celery; stir-fry 2 minutes; push to side of cooker. Add onions, cauliflower, carrots, green pepper pieces; stir-fry 2 minutes. Add chicken bouillon, monosodium glutamate, brown sugar and soy sauce; stir just once; cover and cook slowly for 25 minutes. Uncover; add bean sprouts, Sugar Snaps or snow peas, watercress or spinach. Cover; simmer another 3 minutes. Serve immediately with steaming rice. The Japanese style of eating this dish would be to eat an egg in individual serving bowls. Then each diner dips the cooked meat and vegetables into the beaten egg and then eats them. This recipe makes 4 to 6 servings.

STIR-FRIED PORK WITH YOUR FAVORITE VEGETABLE
2 tablespoons peanut or vegetable oil
2 cloves garlic, peeled and halved
1 small piece fresh ginger, minced
1 pound fresh pork, thinly sliced
2 to 3 cups favorite vegetable (may use thinly sliced mushrooms, cauliflower, broccoli, cabbage, onions, mustard greens, bean sprouts, bamboo shoots, water chestnuts, par-cooked carrots, potatoes (sweet and white), green pepper slices, etc.)
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon rice wine or 1 tablespoon gin
1 cup soup stock
1/2 cup soup stock
1 tablespoon cornstarch
3 drops peanut or vegetable oil
1 teaspoon soy sauce
2 scallions (green onions), sliced
Preheat wok or heavy skillet to 375°F. Add oil and let it heat until it starts to smoke. Stir in garlic pieces and minced ginger; quickly stir-fry for a few seconds. Add sliced pork and stir-fry 5 minutes, or until nearly cooked. Add and stir-fry the vegetable(s) of your choice. Stir in 1 teaspoon soy sauce, sugar and wine or gin and stir-fry 1/2 minute. Add 1 cup soup stock; cover and simmer 5 minutes.

Add 1/2 cup soup stock, cornstarch, 3 drops oil and 1 teaspoon soy sauce; cook until sauce thickens. Stir in half of the sliced scallions. Pour mixture into serving dish and garnish, top with remaining scallions. Serve with steaming rice. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Despite culinary challenges, one dish usually is family favorite

NEW YORK — While more and more homemakers are mastering the finer points of cookery, such as the art of puff pastry doughs or soufflés that rise to perfection, there is nevertheless one type of main dish that remains the "family favorite."

This is economical fare that can be put together with ingredients that we generally have on hand. It is food with flavor that has enjoyed by all family members, yet with tastes so interesting they satisfy time and again. And, of course, it goes without saying that such dishes must require little expenditure of time and effort.

While cooks boast about with exotic fare from around the world, these family favorites are not always so easy to come by. However, below are two recipes that definitely do fit the bill. Both dishes rely on sautéed chicken, always a popular and inexpensive food.

Baked Chicken-Apple Casserole gains a pleasant zing from the fresh apple slices and apple juice. Onions add a contrasting tang, while the tarragon lends a mellow, herbal touch.

Chicken Caribbean, on the other hand, has a rich robust flavor, accented by onions, peppers, garlic, and black olives. Rice cooks along with the chicken in the casserole, making the dish a delightful one-pot meal. Try one or both of these recipes and see if they don't become asked-for favorites in your home.

BAKED CHICKEN-APPLE CASSEROLE

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 chicken (2 1/2 to 3 pounds) cut in pieces
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 large red apples, cored and cut in thin slices
- 2 large onions thinly sliced
- 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
- 1 cup apple juice

Combine flavor enhancer, salt and pepper; sprinkle on chicken pieces. In large skillet, melt butter; brown chicken on both sides. Place half the apple and onion slices in a 2-quart casserole; cover with browned chicken and remaining apple and onion slices. Sprinkle with tarragon. Heat apple juice in skillet, scraping to dissolve bits in bottom of pan; pour over casserole. Cover. Bake in a 350°F. oven 30 minutes. Uncover, bake 15 minutes longer or until chicken is tender. Baste often with pan liquids. Yield: 4 servings.

CHICKEN CARIBBEAN

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 chicken (2 1/2 to 3 pounds) cut in pieces
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 cup diced onion
- 1 green pepper, cut in thin strips
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 large tomato, cut in wedges
- 1 cup raw rice
- 1/2 cups water
- 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- 1/2 cup sliced black olives

Combine flavor enhancer, salt and pepper; season chicken with half the mixture. In large skillet, heat oil; brown chicken on both sides; remove from skillet and arrange pieces in a 3-quart casserole. In same skillet, sauté onion, green pepper and garlic until tender; add tomato. Spoon vegetables over chicken. Pour rice around edge of casserole. Add water, remaining seasoning mixture and poultry seasoning to skillet; heat scurrying to dissolve bits in bottom of skillet. Pour over chicken and rice in casserole. (Be sure rice is covered with liquid.) Cover. Bake in a 350°F. oven 30 minutes. Uncover; bake 10 minutes longer or until chicken is tender and rice is cooked. Remove from oven; sprinkle with olives. Yield: 4 servings.

Baked Chicken-Apple Casserole is tasty, easy, inexpensive and calls for 'on hand' ingredients.

Sealants close area of heat-loss

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — A few hours of work on a warm spring day can save homeowners and even apartment dwellers money on fuel energy, says an Akron manufacturer of sealants and adhesives.

The manufacturer recommends using sealants to close tiny cracks in a half-dozen potential heat-loss areas to keep heat out in summer and cold out in winter.

A long bead of sealant is recommended to close cracks in foundation walls inside and out. For cracks where walls contact the foundation, a sealant is needed that contracts and expands with the wall-foundation seam.

Openings around water faucets, clothes dryer vents, electric outlets, air conditioners and window and door frames should also be checked and sealed, the manufacturer says, after first removing any loose putty.

Gaps between siding strips need to be sealed, as well as the entire joint where sidings and chimneys meet, and any air spaces between the roof and walls.

Experts at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. say those air spaces are the spots most prone to warp or separate.

Stanley smallest

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 51,700 U.S. and Canadian towns and cities are included on the maps in the 1980 Road Atlas published by Rand McNally. The smallest is Stanley, Idaho, pop. 47.

The publisher reports that size and population are, of course, major considerations in deciding whether a community shall be shown on the map, but a town which has a "special characteristic or unique attraction" is most likely to be listed no matter how tiny it is. Many of the smaller towns shown in the new edition are included because they can be featured in Special Road Atlas information panels as sites of recreational or historic interest.

Soak vanilla beans in vodka, quietly

By GEOFFREY TOMB
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Q. I would like information about converting vanilla beans to vanilla flavor. I do a lot of baking and was told it would be cheaper than buying vanilla extract. The individual who told me about it said the conversion could be done with vodka. Could this be correct? —L.W.

A. Yes, you can indeed make your own vanilla extract by soaking vanilla beans in vodka. Let's not tell the Russians, however. Cut your vanilla beans into quarters and split the sections in half with kitchen scissors. Drop the bean pieces into a clean, dry bottle that may be capped tightly. Add two tablespoons vodka for every whole bean you have cut up. Tighten the cap and shake the liquid. Allow the liquid to sit for four weeks, shaking it daily. Filter the extract through coffee filter paper. The beans may be used again in other recipes.

This procedure produces a mild flavored vanilla, one that may require you to use twice the amount you would normally to impart the desired vanilla flavor. If you want an extra strong vanilla, repeat the four-week process using another batch of fresh beans and the same liquid.

Q. Will you kindly print a list of vegetables that may be home frozen and the length of time to cook each after it has thawed in the boiling water. Although there are a number of cookbooks that tell how to freeze vegetables we have never seen any that tell the length of time to cook those you home freeze. —H.M.

A. You can freeze just about any vegetables with the exception of raw tomatoes, boiled potatoes and celery. It is suggested that you blanch your vegetables first, before freezing. If you blanch first, the cooking times should be one third to half the time you would normally take with fresh, raw vegetables. As should be your guide with all vegetables, undercooking is better than overcooking.

Cook your home-frozen vegetables without thawing, except for broccoli and greens, which should be partially thawed, and corn on the cob, which should be fully thawed. Use as little water as possible, say a quarter cup. Bring the water to boil, break the frozen vegetable into several pieces and drop it into the boiling water. Cover immediately and boil until ready. Steaming produces an even better texture to home frozen vegetables.

Dr. Lamb

Son's lung has collapsed

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)
Dear Dr. Lamb,
There, and a half years ago 85 percent of my son's lung collapsed.

The doctor said he didn't know what caused it. He had fallen on ice a week before, and we thought that might have been the cause.

The doctor said no, but told him to stay out of unpresurized airplanes. Now it has collapsed completely and the doctor says smoking or emphysema causes it. He doesn't smoke or drink. Could he have emphysema? He's only 22 years old.

Dear Reader,
I suppose your son could have emphysema. There are certain forms of lung disease that fall in that category. One of the air sacs may enlarge into a very large cyst and encroach upon the breathing capacity of the lungs and that's sometimes called a form of emphysema. The usual form that you see in cigarette smokers is most unlikely in view of your son's age and the fact that he's a nonsmoker.

You're telling me that he has what we call spontaneous pneumothorax which means spontaneous accumulation of air inside the chest. There's normally a space between the surface of the lungs and the chest wall. This space is closed because the lungs expand to fill it.

Some people have a little blister formed on the surface of the lungs and it may rupture, and it's somewhat like puncturing an inner tube in a tire. The air leaks out through that ruptured blister and accumulates in the space between the lungs and chest. The accumulated air causes the lung to collapse.

We really don't know why some people have those little blebs on the surface of the lungs. Sometimes they're just in one little area, and if a person has repeated attacks, it may even be advisable to have this area of the lung removed. In any case, most individuals with spontaneous pneumothorax recover completely, and it is not a life threatening or persistently disabling defect.

In view of your son's problem, you may be more interested in how the lungs work, and it may help you to understand what is happening to him. For this reason, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 24, Keeping Your Lungs Fit. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to enlarge into a very large cyst and encroach upon the breathing capacity of the lungs and that's sometimes called a form of emphysema. The usual form that you see in cigarette smokers is most unlikely in view of your son's age and the fact that he's a nonsmoker.

Sometimes a person only has one episode of spontaneous pneumothorax. Less commonly a person may have two, and there are a few individuals who have recurrent episodes. I would say that if your son has another episode, it might be advisable to refer him to a pulmonary specialist who can take a close look to see if he has a little area of blebs that might need correction if he wishes to avoid having recurrent episodes.

The reason your doctor wanted your son to stay out of airplanes is that as atmospheric pressure decreases at altitude the trapped air in the chest expands. The expanded air can create pressure on the heart and cause serious problems. Even pressurized aircraft are not pressurized to sea level during flight at high altitudes but are maintained at a pressure below that encountered at 7,000 feet. That is still enough to cause a lot of air expansion if the amount of air trapped in the chest is large.

Quick cherry crisp contains four types of whole grains, necessary for good nutrition

This crisp uses whole grain cereal

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. — "What's for dessert?" That question can pose a double dilemma. Busy cooks often don't have time to prepare a fancy dessert. And health-conscious cooks may feel inclined to avoid desserts, since they're often high in calories and lacking in nutritional benefits.

Here's a fast, delicious and nutritious answer to those concerns. Quick Cherry Crisp contains four types of whole grains — rich in those important B-vitamins and fiber that nutrition studies indicate most of us don't eat in adequate amounts.

Whole Grain Cherry Crisp is fast to prepare, thanks to the convenience of canned cherry pie filling. If you have a food processor, the topping whirrs together in seconds. With a microwave oven, the crispy dessert is ready to eat in 4 minutes later.

Of course, the topping can be mixed by hand, and this tasty dessert baked in a conventional oven.

The recipe works fine with either a 21-ounce size or 30-ounce can of cherry pie filling. Cherry lovers may prefer the extra cherries in the larger can.

- WHOLE GRAIN CHERRY CRISP
1 can (21 oz. or 30 oz.) cherry pie filling
1/2 cup whole wheat flour
1/2 cup old-fashioned rolled oats
2 tablespoons toasted wheat germ
2 tablespoons miller's bran (optional)
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup margarine

Pour pie filling into a 9-inch round pan. Combine remaining ingredients in food processor or by hand until mixture is crumbly. Pat topping evenly and lightly over cherries. Bake in conventional oven at 350° F. for 34 to 40 minutes or place microwave on High power 8 minutes, rotating once after 4 minutes. Serve warm or cold just plain or with vanilla ice cream or whipped topping. Makes 6 generous servings.

VARIATION: Blueberry or Apple Pie Filling can be substituted for cherries in this recipe.

Nutritionists get support

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — New research supports nutritionists who say victims of carbohydrate-sensitivity should not eat a lot of sugar.

Scientists speaking at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies of Experimental Biology said the risk factors involve heart disease and glucose intolerance, which is a warning that diabetes may develop.

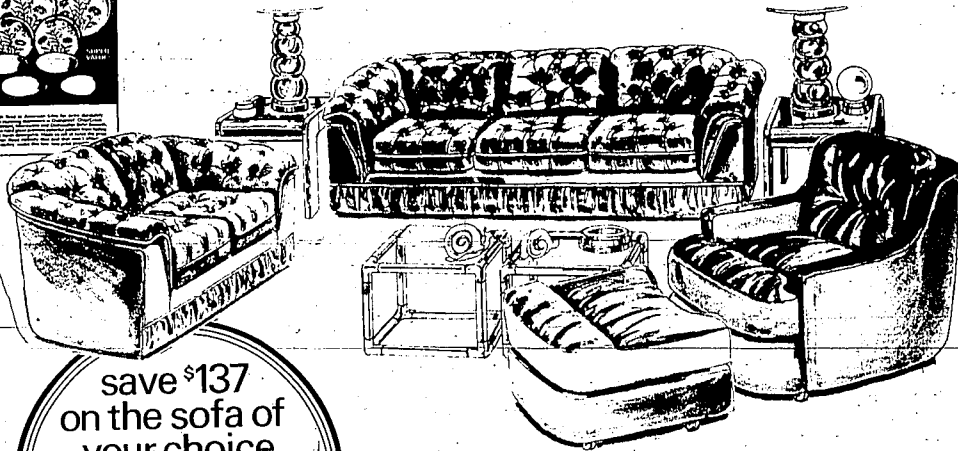

Twenty-four volunteers took part in the research by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Science and Education Administration and the University of Maryland. For six weeks they ate diets with 5, 18 or 33 percent of total calories in the form of table sugar, or sucrose.

Nutritionists on the research team say a 5 percent sugar diet is far below the U.S. average of nearly 18 percent. They said 33 percent may be about the intake of people who like sweets. Sheldon Reiser, the USDA scientist who coordinated the project, suggests health officials may want to establish a screening program to identify carbohydrate-sensitive people because of the high risk high sugar levels pose for them.

Navel oranges plentiful

VAN NUYS, Calif. — Navels, navels everywhere and all so good to eat.

That's the latest word from California and Arizona, where growers have produced the largest crop of navel oranges in the history of the two states.

And what perfect timing! The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences has just announced the 1980 Revised Recommended Dietary Allowances and one of the major changes is an increase in the amount of vitamin C being recommended. Fresh citrus fruit is one of the best sources of vitamin C. A medium navel orange is not only tasty and refreshing, but will provide more than the 50 mg. of vitamin C now recommended by the Academy for daily intake by the average male or female 15 years or older.

According to Gordon Henderson, Vice President, Fresh Fruit Sales and Marketing for Sunkist Growers, Inc., this year's navel crop is one of the finest eating in many years — the fruit is sweet, juicy and ready to be enjoyed as a quick snack or in many other ways. Local markets are now offering plenty of this top quality, nutritious fruit. Henderson added that supplies of tangerines from the west will also be very good in the weeks ahead, especially the kinnow mandarin and minnola tangelo varieties. The tangerines will have excellent flavor, color and, like the navel, are a good source of vitamin C. Fresh winter lemon supplies will be down from last winter. However, despite adverse weather conditions last year which affected this winter's crop, growers expect fresh lemon supplies to increase in the months ahead.

So enjoy some western sunshine — use lots of colorful, nutritious navel oranges and other western grown citrus fruit to tempt taste buds and brighten menus.

Garlic chives

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — When one of America's largest seedsmen introduces garlic chives, you know Chinese cooking is gaining popularity all over the country. These special chives have narrow, flat leaves and white blossoms and taste like a combination of garlic and onions. They grow 12-14 inches tall and thrive best in a sunny location where water does not stand after heavy rain. Seeds germinate and break through the soil in 10-21 days. This perennial also grows well as a houseplant on a sunny windowsill, under lights or in a greenhouse. Once started, garlic chives can be propagated by root division.

Potatoes good food value

By ROBERT C. MARSH
 ©Chicago Sun-Times
 Potatoes are too nourishing and too good a food value to ignore, especially today.

Yet many cooks tend to put them aside on the grounds that they can't be made to taste good unless they are prepared in ways that fill them with fat and calories.

No common dish has contributed more to this than the ubiquitous baked potato loaded with butter and sour cream, or mashed potatoes similarly dressed up with fat. Yet the simple boiled potato seems very plain fare.

I suggest baking potatoes in the European manner, slow cooking in a moist environment that makes additions of butter and cream superfluous. The generic name of the dish is gratin savoyard. Let's look at it in both its traditional (fattening) and my modified (low-cal) versions.

Grease the pan. I suggest unsalted margarine. Then put down a layer of potato slices about a half-inch thick. Ideally, the next layer is one of meat. Italian hard or semi-soft sausage is called for by tradition and is very good. It also can add quite a bit of fat and salt, which you may prefer to avoid. I have used a variety of things. The lowest fat will come from the deli products made from turkey, and they taste very good. Or you can use turkey or chicken meat (pre-cooked) as this is a good way to finish off the last of your roast. Ham (pork or turkey) is splendid.

The next layer is potatoes. Then comes a second layer of meat. The top layer is potatoes.

If calories mean nothing, you can do worse. These layers of potatoes with sweet butter, and then when you finish the top, pour two cups heavy cream over the top. This tastes very good. And if you plan to fast all the next day, it probably ~~isn't~~ do too much to your waistline. I skip the butter (it's just superfluous fat for flavor) and I use low-fat milk that I whip up from powder in my blender. A dash of red pepper sauce will brighten it, and feel free to add any herbs that appeal to you.

The grated cheese goes over the top. I use 4 ounces mozzarella made with skim milk. It melts well, browns beautifully, and tastes good. Swiss is an attractive alternative; and somewhat more traditional. If you really want to hold calories down, use grated parmesan, a little on each layer of potatoes and a somewhat more generous topping at the close.

For anyone with a sweet tooth, here's a delightful way to say I care about you!

Show you care with a cherry chiffon cake

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — A handmade gift is always warmly appreciated, especially when it's one as pretty as this Cherry Chiffon Cake.

Show your special someone, as well as the whole family, that you care by baking them this terrific treat. The "from scratch" cake requires no special culinary talents and very little time to produce. Leavened lightly by beaten egg whites, it's a simple chiffon cake, with a sweet, cherry flavor and a pretty pink crumb. A can of pie filling provides the flavor and color. Half of it is finely chopped in the blender before adding to the cake batter. The remainder is saved for spooning over the frosted cake.

A heavenly, homemade Seven Minute Frosting is the perfect complement to the cake. It's not difficult to prepare, either. All you need are a few ingredients, a saucepan, a portable electric mixer and about seven minutes of spare time to create this classic frosting.

Cherry Chiffon Cake
 1 can (1 lb. 5.oz.) cherry pie filling
 2 cups all-purpose flour
 3/4 cup sugar
 1 tablespoon baking powder
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 tablespoon ground mace or nutmeg
 1/2 cup vegetable oil
 7 eggs, separated
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar

Measure 1 cup (about 1/2 can) of the pie filling into blender container. Blend until cherries are chopped, about 15 seconds. Reserve. In small mixing bowl combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and mace. Add oil, egg yolks, blended cherry mixture, vanilla and almond extract. Beat at low speed until blended. Slowly increase to medium speed and beat until very smooth, about 2 minutes. Wash and dry beaters. In large mixing bowl beat egg whites and cream of tartar at high speed until stiff but not dry, just until whites no longer slip when bowl is tilted. Gently but thoroughly fold yolk mixture into whites. Pour into greased 10-inch tube pan. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven until top springs back minutes. Invert cake in pan on funnel or bottle neck. Cool completely, about 1 1/2 hours. Remove from pan.

Prepare Seven Minute Frosting. Spread frosting over top and sides of cool cake. Spoon remaining cherry pie filling over top of frosted cake.

Seven Minute Frosting
 2 egg whites
 1 1/2 cups sugar
 1/2 cup cold water
 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
 1/4 teaspoon vanilla

In large bowl, combine all ingredients except vanilla. Beat 1 minute at low speed with portable electric mixer. Place pan over low heat and beat at high speed until stiff peaks form, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add vanilla. Beat until frosting holds swirls, about 2 minutes longer.

Try this uppercrust version — the stuffed pizza

By Bev Bennett
 ©Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — If you thought it used to take crust to make Chicago-style pizza, it's time for an introduction to the uppercrust version — the stuffed pizza.

And for an explanation of this extraordinary marriage of dough, cheese, sausage, sauce and calories, it's time to meet Dan Interlandi, owner of Nancy's Pizza in suburban Elmhurst.

Interlandi, in a pizza and sausage veteran at age 26, makes about 300 stuffed pizzas a week. If that sounds as easy as pie, the pro pointed out that each one is a time-consuming process — resulting in an eight-pound feast.

"This is really a hefty pizza. If one person can eat more than two slices of our pizza, they're really doing a job," Interlandi said.

Pizza-making is a change from the type of Italian cooking he's used to. Until recently his family owned Mesa Nica, a well-respected Italian restaurant in suburban Brookview that specialized in Sicilian cooking.

"My father was a gourmet who went to Italy every six months to get recipes and ideas. He was an excellent cook, but my mother surprised everyone — she prepared a different cuisine every night — Creole one night, German the next."

"We did a lot of Sicilian cooking — lots of tomatoes and garlic and heavy on the seasonings."

Since the family sold the restaurant last summer, Interlandi has been concentrating on cheese, sausage and dough as the idea of a stuffed pizza caught on.

Unlike the straightforward crust and filling pizza that no Italian will claim as authentic, stuffed pizza does have its origins in Southern Italian cuisine according to Interlandi.

"The Italians have a dish called calzone. Bread dough was spread out and filled with a cheese and sausage mixture which was then wrapped in the dough and spread with tomato sauce."

The version Interlandi serves is a sandwich of dough, cheese, meat, vegetables, more cheese and a top layer of dough.

Every layer is carefully constructed each with a purpose.

"I put a little cheese on top of the dough, before adding any vegetables. Otherwise, the liquid from the vegetables make the crust soggy."

For the grand finale, tomatoes, cheese and oil are smeared over the top dough.

"The oil is added last to prevent the tomatoes from burning," Interlandi explained.

The recipe Interlandi provides below is excellent, though slightly different than the one he makes for the restaurant, being cautious about sharing his prize formula with the competition.

There are no seasonings in the recipe, although basil can be sprinkled over the romano cheese.

"I want the flavor of the cheese to star," said Interlandi.

A little hot Italian sauce can be added to give the pizza some bite, and vegetables are definitely a plus.

One caution, however: Don't expect to be able to make this recipe in the evening and serve it the same night. It will take at least 12 hours from start to finish, every hour a torment until the thick, chewy, cheesy creation is set on the table.

Rumor has it, this recipe serves four (two don't intend to move for three hours afterward).

NANCY'S DOUBLE-CRUST DEEP-DISH PIZZA
 Time: at least 12 hours
 Cost: less than $5.70 ($7.35 using mushrooms and green peppers)

1 package active dry yeast
 1 cup warm water
 1 tablespoon shortening
 2 tablespoons sugar
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 egg yolk
 3 1/2 cups flour
 3/4 pounds grated low-moisture mozzarella
 3/4 pounds grated high-moisture mozzarella
 3/4 pounds grated domestic provolone cheese
 Optional ingredients: 1/2 pound

Italian sausage, crumbled; sliced pepperoni; to taste blanched green pepper rings; sliced fresh or canned mushrooms; anchovies; sliced onions; sliced ripe olives; sliced canadian bacon
 6 ounces crushed tomatoes
 2 ounces olive oil
 2 ounces grated romano cheese
 Crumbled, dried basil, to taste (optional)
 Topping (below)

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add shortening, sugar, salt and egg yolk. Mix. Pour flour onto pastry board. Make well in center and pour liquid mixture into well. Blend in flour a little at a time to work into a smooth, firm dough. Knead by hand or with mixer until mixture is smooth. Place dough in large greased bowl, turning once to grease all sides. Allow dough to rise until double in size, 3 to 4 hours. Store in refrigerator sealed with plastic if dough has risen. The dough will fall, but this is to be expected.

Prepare filling. Take a 12-inch round, 2-inch deep pizza pan and grease. Divide dough into 2 portions, one two-thirds the size of the other. Lightly dust pastry board with flour. Roll out larger portion to 14- or 16-inch diameter. Fit dough into pan. Cut off any overhanging dough.

Mix mozzarella cheese with provolone. Put very thin layer of cheese on bottom crust; top with meat. Top with optional vegetable ingredients. Next fill with remaining cheese.

Take smaller piece of dough and roll to eighth-inch thickness (12-inch diameter) the height of a nickel. Fit it on top.

Sprinkle crushed tomatoes over top crust, spreading evenly to cover entire top. Sprinkle with dried romano and basil if desired. Sprinkle oil on top, covering entire top. Bake in pre-heated 475-degree oven for 45 to 60 minutes or until pizza is deep brown.

Note: If substituting a 14-inch pizza pan, which is easier to find, bake for 40 minutes.

Fresh carrot-cauliflower cheese pie is especially kind to the food budget

Change of pace foods Vegetable entree easy

NEW YORK — This is the time of year to perk up mealtimes with change of pace foods. For both budget and nutrition reasons, many of us are turning to colorful, cheerful meatless meals.

Planning a vegetarian entree is not difficult. Fresh vegetables are high in vitamins, minerals and fiber. Add protein, such as milk, cheese, and/or eggs for an inexpensive, nutritious dish.

Fresh Carrot-Cauliflower Cheese Pie is a satisfying entree without meat. The easily prepared crust is made from seasoned croissants, while the filling colorfully combines carrot and cauliflower, subtly seasoned with herbs and cheddar cheese.

Fresh cauliflower is available year-round. It's high in vitamin C, but low in calories. According to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, neither size of the head nor the small tiny leaves growing through the curds are indicators of quality. However, they should not be any small flowers; and loose, open flower clusters indicate overmaturity. The curd should be white, very firm and compact without looking "ricey." For extra freshness, before cooking soak cauliflower head down in cold water, to which a teaspoon each of vinegar and salt is added. Store cauliflower in the refrigerator. NEVER overcook it — when the stem end yields to the touch of a fork it's done.

Fresh Vegetable Strudel is an equally impressive meatless main dish. Although making puff pastry is not a task for the same time, it is now available frozen in pre-rolled sheets. All you need to do is make a flavorful filling of sauteed mushrooms and spinach, enhanced with herbs, cheese and bread crumbs, roll it up and bake. This delicately flavored, light main dish is absolutely irresistible.

Fresh spinach is available year round. Both the curly and flat leaf types are good for cooking, while the very young, tender leaves are best in salads. Green plants are clean when fresh, crisp, green leaves and store well in the refrigerator. Spinach is an excellent source of vitamins A and C, potassium, magnesium and a wealth of other vitamins and minerals. It's also very low in calories.

Place remaining pastry sheet over vegetables; fold edges over and seal. Bake in a 350 degree oven 35 minutes or until pastry is golden. Makes 4 servings.

Fresh pears bring special flavor to Two-Way Breakfast Breads which can be used either as muffins or as coffeecake

Celebrate season with 2-way pear bread

PORTLAND — A special way to celebrate breakfast this time of year is with Two-Way Pear Breakfast Breads.

The "two ways" to enjoy it are either as muffins or as a fragrant coffee cake, complete with luscious streusel topping. Both versions are chock full of fresh western Bartlett's plus egg, honey and wheat germ.

Fresh western Bartlett pears bring eating pleasure all through the fall months. They're great for snacking and in desserts and salads as well. Begin the day with a burst of juicy fresh fruit flavor by slicing Bartlett's over warm waffles, or as a garnish for bacon and eggs.

Western Bartlett pears are given special care to produce a high-quality fruit full of flavor and juiciness. Since Bartlett pears are ripened off the tree, they may be green at the market. To ripen, simply keep them at room temperature for a few days until they turn bright yellow.

TWO-WAY PEAR BREAKFAST BREADS

1 1/2 cups diced fresh western Bartlett pears (about 2 medium)
1 1/2 cups flour

Faster diagnostic technique developed

CHICAGO (UPI) — A new technique — has been developed for diagnosing painful stress fractures earlier than conventional X-rays can.

Dr. Joseph F. Nortray says joggers often suffer such fractures, and the faster diagnostic technique could lead to earlier treatment. That's important, he says, because undiagnosed stress fractures can progress to complete fractures.

Nortray and his colleagues at the radiology department of Hennrich Hospital in Chicago tested the new technique, which uses radionuclide bone scans to supplement regular X-rays.

In a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Nortray reported on a study of five runners who had been patients at the Sports Clinic of the Illinois College of Podiatric Medicine.

Fudgy Applesauce Cake considered low cost

Fudgy Applesauce Cake makes a welcome addition to the lunch box or as a special dessert.

It takes some courage to say a recipe is low cost today. But the accompanying Fudgy Applesauce Cake uses only one-third cup of shortening, cocoa instead of chocolate and a cup of applesauce which is right in season. The cake tastes more expensive than it is because it is unusually moist and fragrant. The recipe can be baked in a nine-inch square cake pan as well as a 1 1/2-quart ring mold.

Unlike the light, tender melt-in-your-mouth cakes that crumble easily, this cake is compact and can be soaked with spirits such as bourbon or rum. That places it in a dessert category appropriate for company dinners. To soak it, melt 2 tablespoons of butter. Add the melted butter to one-third cup of bourbon or rum and drizzle over the cake when it is removed from the oven. Leave the cake in its pan until serving time so the spirits won't drain off. The soaked cake needs no further embellishment, but a dab of whipped cream will give a nice touch.

The recipe calls for only one-fourth cup of milk because applesauce serves as a liquid ingredient. It also helps to keep the cake moist and fragrant.

- FUDGY APPLESAUCE CAKE —
 1/3 cup butter or margarine, softened
 1 cup sugar
 2 eggs
 1 cup unsifted flour
 1/3 cup cocoa
 1/2 teaspoon soda
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
 1 cup applesauce
 1/4 cup milk
 Cream fat and sugar together until fluffy; beat in 2 eggs. Combine flour, cocoa, soda, salt and cinnamon and mix well. Combine applesauce and milk and add alternately to the creamy mixture with mixed flour and other dry ingredients. Stir only until well-blended. Pour into a greased 1 1/2-quart ring mold, or a 9-inch square baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees about 45 or 50 minutes or until surface is firm when touched lightly. Serves 8 to 10 persons.

New Italian recipe for Salmon Manicotti with spinach sauce will help keep meal costs down

Here's inflation fighting recipe

SAN FRANCISCO — Are you collecting inflation-fighting recipes to beat the increasing cost of food? Try Salmon Manicotti with Spinach Sauce. It's an economy meal that tastes expensive!

Salmon Manicotti with Spinach Sauce has the excellent flavor of Italian cookery which your family will enjoy. It's easy to prepare manicotti. Just fill the pasta with salmon, ricotta cheese, eggs and a sprinkling of tarragon. The delicious spinach sauce is similar to pesto, that deep green basil sauce which garlic lovers adore. Puree the cooked spinach and cream in a blender and spoon it over the manicotti. Top it off with shredded Gruyere cheese and bake.

After it's baked to perfection, you will see the drizzling shreds of cheese oozing over the deep green spinach sauce. Underneath will be the tender manicotti stuffed with light pink salmon and cheese. This delicious dinner serves four.

SALMON MANICOTTI WITH SPINACH SAUCE

- 1 can (1 1/2 ounces) pink salmon
- 8 manicotti
- 1 carton (8 ounces) ricotta cheese
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- 1/2 teaspoons tarragon, crumbled
- 1 bunch spinach
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, pressed
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 3/4 cup water
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- Dash salt
- 1/2 cups Gruyere cheese

Drain salmon. Cook manicotti according to package directions. Combine salmon, ricotta, egg and 1 teaspoon tarragon. Spoon mixture into manicotti. Cover with damp towel; set aside. Wash spinach. Remove stems. Place in a pan with no water. Cook over low heat until spinach wilts. Sauté onion and garlic in butter. Combine remaining tarragon, spinach, sautéed vegetables, water, cream, bouillon cube and salt to taste in a blender. Whirl at high speed until smooth. Pour small amount into a 2-quart shallow casserole dish. Arrange stuffed manicotti on top. Pour remaining sauce over all. Top with Gruyere cheese. Bake in 350 degree oven 30 to 35 minutes. Cool 10 minutes before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Visit dentist early

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A child's first visit to the dentist should take place when his or her first tooth appears — at about six months of age, says Dr. Thomas O'Toole. He is an associate professor of pedodontics (children's dentistry) at the University of Louisville School of Dentistry. O'Toole says that first visit is mostly for the parents, who would be counseled on proper care for the child's mouth. The professor says topics to be discussed include the baby's feeding schedule, use of vitamins and fluoride. The dentist should also demonstrate the best technique for brushing a baby's teeth, O'Toole says.

Dear Abby

She fancies hubby's brother

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for 16 years.

My problem is that since before we were married I've had a crush on my husband's older brother, whom I'll call Arnold. It seems ridiculous at my age (39) to admit this, but it's true. Arnold is 42 and seems happily married.

Arnold and I have the same interests, share the same opinions, and we seem to have much more in common than he has with his wife or I with his brother.

Not that it's important, but even members of the family have commented on how much alike Arnold and I are. I'm ashamed to say that I've often wondered what it would be like to go to bed with him.

How do I put this man out of my mind? And why do I still fantasize about him after so many years?

I love my husband, and at times feel that my feelings about his brother could be considered infidelity. It would be a great relief to have an answer soon.

DEAR ABBY: I have just graduated from college and am thinking about getting married. I have a girlfriend whom I love very much, but I am afraid if I marry her I will also be marrying her mother.

My girlfriend is 24, and she still tells her mother everything! When she's not at home with her mother, she calls her on the phone just to "talk" or "ask her advice." She has never made an important decision without consulting her mother first. She freely admits she doesn't have any self-confidence, and she needs her mother for support.

Abby, I can give her all the support she needs, and if she wants to talk things over, she has ME to talk with. I think at 24, it's time she cut the cord between her and her mother. What do you think?

Girls will take their mother's last name, and boys will take my last name. This seems both fair and sensible.

We rejected using both our names, hyphenated, because it would be too cumbersome. And we didn't want to give our children a new name unrelated to ours.

M. H. IN IOWA CITY
DEAR M. H.: Your solution makes sense. Read on for another solution:

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are professional people, each with a separate identity, so we decided that I should keep my maiden name after we married. What to name our children was no problem. My last name was used as our children's middle name; their last name is the same as their father's.

ME IN NYC
DEAR ME: I think you're right. If you marry this woman now you will be competing with her mother. So unless she changes her priorities, don't rush out to buy a ring — it might end up through your nose.

DEAR ABBY: You recently asked how the children should be named if both parents retained their own names.

Both my wife and I kept our own names, and we agreed that our children will be named in this way:

TWO ATTORNEYS IN S. F.
CONFIDENTIAL TO G. C.: If you are going to the hospital and prefer that no one know you are there, under the Privacy Act you have the right to request that your name not be listed on the switchboard.

OLD-TIME CRUSH
DEAR CRUSH: Fantasizing is a fair cry from acting out, so don't feel guilty. Unless you're looking for trouble, avoid fantasizing in Arnold's presence. He could be operating on the same wavelength and pick up your

Dad, kids have trouble seeing

You want to know how to get every mother-in-the-world on her feet and moving?

Just stand in front of her and say, "Don't get up! Just tell me where (whatever she's looking for) is."

I have seen women pull themselves out of bed three hours out of surgery following that line. It's like waving a red flag in front of them.

For some weird reason the entire family seems to feel that the mother is a walking Dewey Decimal System for every item in the entire house.

I figured out once that I spent 23 hours a week looking for things — I know where they were all the time but in the words of the family "just wanted to feel important."

Why do mothers do it? Why don't they just sit there and give directions? I thought you'd never ask.

Men suffer from a congenital disease called "front-of-the-shelf-paralysis." It's a curious-malady where the vision remains at eye level and freezes. The arms remain motionless at their sides and they are incapable of moving anything to see what is stored behind.

Watch them sometimes when they're looking for something in the refrigerator, medicine chest, or shelf in the garage. They survey the contents in a blink, then yell to wherever you're residing, "It's not here!"

It's only after you are standing at their right side and pointing aside a single item in the front row that their eyes show recognition. Then they turn to you and ask, "Why do you have to hide things?"

Children, on the other hand, suffer a different set of symptoms. They carry a disease called, "Convenient Blindness." It comes and it goes. They see what they want to see. If they're looking for a laxative, "boots, report card, or garbage to take out, their faces go blank, their eyes become set and they see nothing.

It's the same look they reserve for when they're told that the first one who sees the dog's contribution to indoor pollution has to clean it up. On the other hand, if they're looking for your tennis racket, change in the lining of your purse, or Easter candy that is hidden, they are capable of seeing through doors and walls.

I said to the family the other night, "I'd like to run away from home. Where is Cleveland? Don't get up. Just tell me where it is."

They didn't get the joke.

Stuffed Eggplant is new flavor

NEW YORK — Because we prepare our dinners week after week, all too often we fall into the habit of fixing a favorite dish over and over again. Unfortunately, the result is that those foods that once aroused our appetites can become repetitiously dull. For our own and our family's enjoyment, it is important to occasionally introduce new flavors into the daily menu. This does not necessarily mean exotic fare. Even the judicious use of unusual spices or sauces can perk up bored palates. Stuffed Eggplant is a perfect case in point. While this vegetable can be prepared in numerous ways, our recipe offers a novel Middle Eastern approach. Tabasco pepper sauce is a perfect case in point. While this vegetable can be prepared in numerous ways, our recipe offers a novel Middle Eastern approach. Tabasco pepper sauce and creamy Feta cheese will certainly stimulate your family's taste buds. At the same time, the ground beef, onion, and tomato stuffing will be sufficiently familiar to satisfy picky eaters. The dish offers two additional advantages: Given the rising food prices these days, it is refreshingly low in cost. It may also be prepared ahead of time and kept refrigerated, making it an ideal for dinner parties, as well as for the working homemaker. Inspired by a Moroccan recipe, Chicken Casserole Agadir also offers a special way to present a familiar food in a new guise. The dish, which is conveniently prepared on the stove-top, features economical chicken legs in a spicy sauce enhanced with carrots, zucchini and chick peas. Moroccan foods are quite often hot. Bring the bottle of Tabasco pepper sauce to the table for those in your family who wish to add an authentic touch with extra spiciness.

STUFFED EGGPLANT

- 1 eggplant (about 1 1/2 pounds)
- 2 tablespoons plus 1/2 teaspoon salt, divided
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 pound ground beef
- 3/4 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup tomato puree
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/4 pound Feta cheese crumbled, divided
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

Slice eggplant in half lengthwise. Scoop out pulp, leaving a 1/2-inch thick shell. Reserve pulp. Sprinkle shell with 2 tablespoons salt. Turn cut-side down on paper towels and allow to drain 45 minutes; pat dry. In a heavy kettle or Dutch oven, sauté until beef is evenly browned. Add tomato puree, water and remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cook over medium heat 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cut eggplant pulp into 1/2-inch cubes, add to meat mixture, cook 15 minutes.

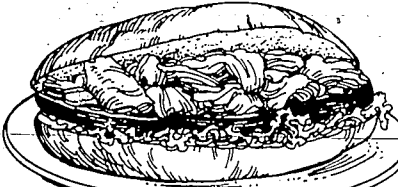

Remove from heat. Stir half the Feta cheese into meat mixture. Add parsley and Tabasco pepper sauce. Spoon mixture into shells. Place in greased, shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with remaining Feta cheese and Parmesan cheese. Bake in a 375 degree oven 45 to 50 minutes. Yield, 4 servings.

Fish need to cook on hot stove

By JEANNE LEMSE
UPI Family Editor

If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the fish kitchen.

Fish cooks best at a very high temperature, says George Morfogen, a veteran fish and seafood restaurateur in New York City.

The first mistake home cooks make in putting fish in the oven or broiler before it is hot enough to seal the surfaces and keep it juicy, Morfogen says.

With many varieties now selling for $5 and $6 a pound, that's an expensive error.

Morfogen learned how to buy and cook fish by working in his father's fish and seafood restaurants in Greenwich Village and Brooklyn's Sheepshead Bay after World War II. Later he also worked with his father-in-law in his oyster and chop house in the Manhattan's Chelsea district. These days he is assistant manager and fish buyer for the venerable Oyster Bar & Restaurant in New York City's Grand Central Terminal.

By 4:30 a.m. six days a week, Morfogen is in the Fulton Fish Market, looking at, prodding and smelling the day's catch.

Fresh fish looks bright, shiny, clear and firm, he said in an interview. The gills and eyes glisten.

"Even cuts (steaks and fillets) have that shine."

The silvery skin of fresh fish gleams like freshly polished sterling, he said, holding up a striped bass fillet to illustrate. It looks dull when fish starts to deteriorate.

Fresh fish is odorless and firm. "Push it" with your finger. If the indentation pops right up, it's fresh.

"If it's old you can feel it as much as you want and it will flop all over the place."

Now you've bought the fish. The cooking tips that follow apply to whole fish or cuts such as filets and steaks. First, preheat the broiler or oven at least 10 minutes. The broiler, as high as possible, the oven to 450 degrees F.

If a few scales are clinging to the fish, pick them off with your (clean) hands.

Do not wash the fish. "You'll wash all the juice and goodness away," Morfogen said.

Place the fish in an oiled pan for baking or an oiled grill for broiling — skin side down. Dust the flesh side lightly with salt, pepper and a little Hungarian paprika, "not enough for color, just for flavor," he said.

Sprinkle lightly with fine, unsalted cracker crumbs. "Bread crumbs burn," Morfogen said.

Put a little oil — Morfogen prefers corn oil — into a small, straight-sided pot. With a pastry brush or a paint brush with "very, very good natural bristles" dab the flesh side of the fish with oil in one swift, forward movement.

By then the oven or broiler should be ready.

Put the fish in until the top is golden.

Morfogen recommends the same high temperatures for any thickness.

"James Beard is just about right when he says 10 minutes cooking per inch of thickness (measured at the thickest point)," Morfogen added.

Many cookbooks suggest broiling thin cuts on one side only so you don't risk breaking the fish by turning it.

Morfogen, chef Stanley Kramer and broil chef Jose Cruz have a better idea. They use wire racks with long handles. Sandwiched between two racks, the fish is quickly and easily flipped over.

At home, Morfogen said, you can use hinged racks designed for broiling hamburgers on outdoor grills.

After turning the fish, remove or open the top grill and repeat the seasoning, crumbing and oiling on the skin side. Slide it into the broiler again until that side is golden brown and finish in the oven the last couple of minutes at 400-500 degrees F.

"At home you could put the fish flesh side down first, so you'd only have to turn it once," Morfogen said.

For baking, he recommends seasoning, crumbing, oiling and turning as for broiling.

The fish should not look breaded, he added. The crumbs are there to prevent sticking only.

As for frozen fish, he said: "I know very little about it. We don't use it here."

He clearly disapproves of buying frozen when, as he said, "You can get fresh fish all over — red snapper, groupers and mullet in southern coastal waters, whitefish, lake trout, bass, pickerel and pike in the Great Lakes or other northern lakes, catfish in fresh water rivers and lakes throughout the Midwest and the South."

As for price, he said: "You don't have to pay $6 a pound for grey sole. There's all kinds of fish in the market the housewife has never heard of. Whiting is a marvelous fish in winter. Smells are wonderful now."

Exhibit to tour

NEW YORK (UPI) — An exhibition on the "Bronze Age of China" underway at the Metropolitan Museum of Art through July 9 will subsequently go on tour to Chicago, Fort Worth, Los Angeles, and Boston. The exhibition from the People's Republic of China includes more than 100 objects of bronze, jade and terracotta from about 1500 B.C. to about 210 B.C. recovered from recent archaeological excavations in China. The show is sponsored by the Coca-Cola Co.

Frank-a-Roni makes nutritious dinner

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Pasta is perennially popular, especially when husbands are fished and children are feeling the sharp pangs of hunger after playing.

When you serve macaroni and cheese, you not only have a popular pasta but a soothing combination because it's served in a creamy or cheesy sauce.

In Frank-a-Roni Dinner, the creaminess comes from dairy sour cream and cottage cheese added to cooked macaroni. It also has zesty seasonings such as onion and green pepper, sautéed in butter before mixing with the pasta. Later, chopped pimiento adds color and flavor.

Each manufacturer gives different directions for cooking pasta, so it's wise to follow the recommendations on the package. Italians are fond of saying that pasta should be "al dente," meaning it should be sufficiently firm to be felt "under the tooth." When cooked too long, it loses character and takes on a mushy look.

Whether or not it's mentioned on the macaroni package, you'd be smart to add a tablespoon of butter to the boiling water to prevent boil-overs. This also helps keep the macaroni shapes slick and separate.

Use a pound of frankfurters sliced; extend them with a seven-ounce package of macaroni in addition to dairy touches such as cottage and Cheddar cheeses and dairy sour cream. This casserole provides a hearty supper for six to eight people. Serve with crisp relishes, buttered green beans, rye bread and butter, fruited gelatin, cookies and milk.

FRANK-A-RONI DINNER

- 6 to 8 servings
- 1 package (7 ounces) elbow macaroni
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 pound frankfurters
- 1 cup cottage cheese
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 1 cup (4 ounce) shredded Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain; set aside. Melt butter in a small skillet; saute green pepper and onion until tender, about 3 minutes. Stir in salt and garlic powder. Reserve 1 frankfurter for garnish; cut remaining frankfurters into ½-inch pieces. Toss lightly to combine macaroni, sautéed vegetables, frankfurters, cottage cheese, sour cream and pimiento in a large bowl. Turn into buttered 2-quart rectangular casserole. Cut reserve frankfurter crosswise into thin slices. Arrange slices in a circle on top of casserole. Bake 30 minutes, or until mixture is well heated. Remove from oven and sprinkle cheese inside ring of frankfurters. Return to oven until cheese is just melted, about 5 minutes. Serve immediately.

Quiz tells fact from fiction

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — It's almost impossible for consumers to distinguish fact from fiction when it comes to nutrition because so many people claim to be experts, says dietitian Doris Derellian.

Ms. Derellian is executive director of the 4,000-member California Dietetic Assn. She has prepared the following quiz to test peoples' nutrition awareness:

1. Potato peel contains more vitamins than the white flesh inside.
  - A) True B) False
2. Eating late night meals or snacks is more likely to cause weight gain than eating the same amount of food earlier in the day.
  - A) True B) False
3. Adults don't need the calcium in dairy products because their bones and teeth are already formed.
  - A) True B) False
4. Toasted bread has fewer calories than untoasted bread.
  - A) True B) False
5. Physically active people require much more protein than moderately active or inactive people.
  - A) True B) False
6. Certain combinations of foods, such as fruits and vegetables, cancel out each other's nutrient values when digested at the same time.
  - A) True B) False
7. To achieve a balanced diet from each of the four food groups — milk, meat, vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals — you must eat foods from each group at every meal.
  - A) True B) False

ANSWERS:

- 1) FALSE: Potato peel has some nutrient value but it does not compare to the nutrient rich interior, a good source of vitamin C.
- 2) FALSE: Weight gain or loss is determined by total daily intake in relation to total daily expenditure of energy — regardless of time.
- 3) FALSE: Bone mass is not static. It constantly regenerates itself and requires the calcium found in dairy products as a building material.
- 4) FALSE: Toasting or cooking food does not reduce its calorie content.
- 5) FALSE: Muscle tissue is built and replaced at a constant rate that is unaffected by increased activity. Most Americans eat more than an adequate amount of protein for this function.
- 6) FALSE: While some combinations don't taste as well together, the nutrient contribution of foods is unaffected by any particular varieties eaten together.
- 7) FALSE: You can eat a well-balanced diet without every individual meal being perfectly balanced. It's a good idea to get daily servings from each of the four food groups but they can come in any order you enjoy. For instance, you may want to eat all of your fruits at breakfast or use one as a snack.

Helmet use

NEW YORK (UPI) — Motorcyclists who have taken rider training courses are more likely to wear a helmet than untrained riders, according to the Motorcycle Safety Foundation, a non-profit organization devoted to the safety of riders.

A survey of 10,000 riders from 11 states which do not have mandatory helmet laws showed 78.4 percent of trained riders use helmets, while the general average of riders using them is only 55 percent, the Association said. The survey also showed 30 percent believe helmets should be required by law, but another group ranging from 9 to 30 percent has no intention of wearing them.

Hailey zoning battle spawns recall effort

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A long-standing dispute over Northridge Subdivision has erupted into a recall effort against three Hailey city councilmen.

Preliminary petitions were filed Tuesday morning for the recall of Donald Fraser, Grant Patterson and Wordell Rainey. And organizer Ron Johnston predicted he would have no trouble getting the 112 signatures of registered city voters needed to force a recall election.

Fraser, Patterson and Rainey were elected last November on a platform opposing construction of a new shopping center at Northridge. They have been instrumental in blocking the project, over the objections of Mayor

Emory Dietrich and one other councilman.

Reading from the petition, Johnston said the three have been "unresponsive to needs of the city of Hailey . . . have taken arbitrary stands on important issues, and have caused legal actions to be brought against the city."

Wood River Valley Associates, a firm headed by Boise developer Jess Groves, last month filed a $1.5 million damage claim against the city.

The claim charges, among other things, that the new council has denied commercial building permits for Northridge despite rezoning and annexation ordinances approved by the previous council.

The recall petition further states the three have refused to give reasonable consideration to residents' opinions contrary to their own, and that they represent special interests rather than the welfare of the city.

Fraser replied Tuesday that the council has consulted an attorney before each step it has taken regarding Northridge.

"I am disappointed that this particular group seems to think they hold the majority point of view," he said.

"I can appreciate their frustration, having a city council taking action they do not agree with," Fraser said. "Yet we had a prior city council that took the opposite position, and we three were elected to oppose that position."

He noted that it is difficult to remove an elected official.

To be certified, a recall petition must contain the valid signatures of 20 percent of the number of voters registered in last election — in this case, 112 signatures.

For the recall to be successful, recall backers must corral a majority of votes cast in the recall election, and that majority must also equal or exceed the number of votes cast to elect each councilman.

Rainey received 243 votes last November for his two-year council seat. Patterson received 225 votes and Fraser 173 in a four-way race for two three-year positions.

City clerk Constance Ellway ruled the petition drive premature at one point Tuesday afternoon.

Ellway said she was advised by special attorney Jim Phillips that council members could not be removed until they have held office six months. But the petition backers secured an attorney general's opinion that councilmen could be recalled after 90 days in office.

The new council hired Phillips Feb. 18 to advise it on Northridge after Fraser suggested that city attorney Steve Bolter be removed from the case. Bolter was out of town Tuesday and unable to provide an opinion on the recall petitions.

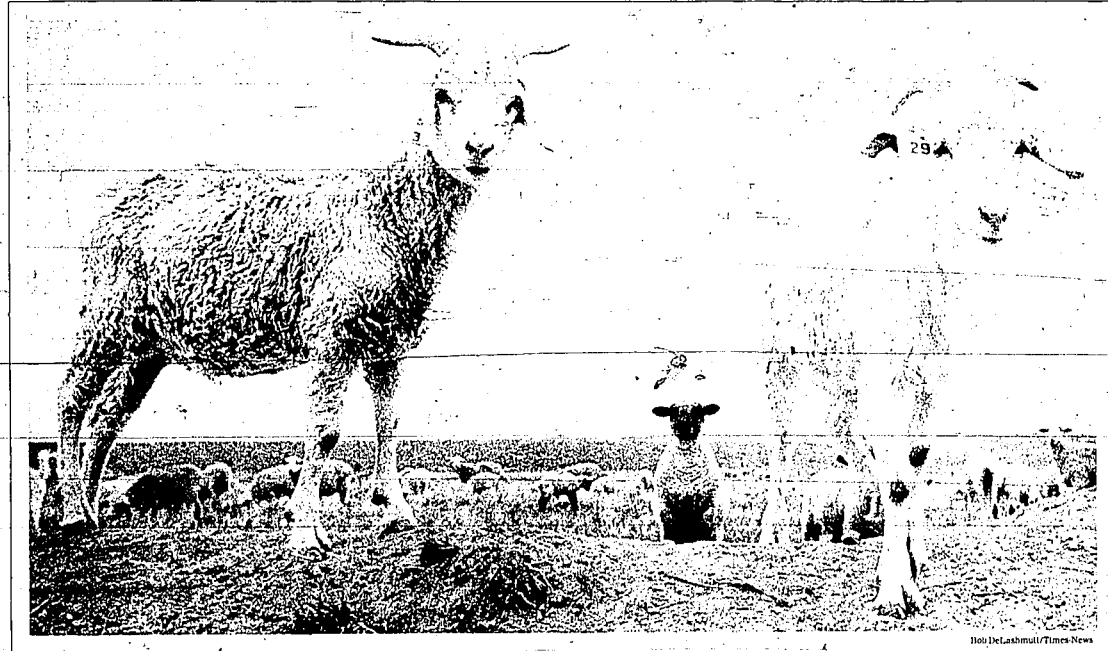

Johnston, a Hailey carpenter, is married to Sherrie Johnston, whom Mayor Dietrich tried unsuccessfully last week to appoint to the city's planning and zoning commission.

Fraser, Patterson and Rainey blocked the appointment after Dietrich named by the mayor and confirmed by the council. The council then deadlocked 2-2 in approving Johnston, and Fraser objected when Dietrich attempted to break the tie in favor of his own nominee.

Both Ward and Johnston remained on the sidelines during a subsequent P&Z meeting.

The issue may be resolved at the council's May 12 meeting, when Bolter is expected to be back in town.

Sheepmen are mingling goats with their herds to act as bait for coyotes, but the goats don't respond to herd dogs and sometimes lead sheep astray

Sheepmen try to teach coyotes a taste for goat

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

HOLLISTER — Goats could be used as "sacrificial lambs," if a test being conducted here is successful.

About 23 goats are grazing with 2,500 of Laird Noh's sheep in a pasture near Hollister. It's an experiment being conducted by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service research substation in Twin Falls to see if coyotes, like the taste of goat better than sheep.

The purpose isn't to slow coyotes down by feeding them well, but to find an animal that can be used as bait. Researchers have had good success against predators in tests where bait animals wear toxic collars, said Guy Connolly, head of the research station here.

In tests in Texas and Idaho, predator loss was reduced when toxic collars were put on "sacrificial lambs." With the rest of the herd put in a protected fenced area for the night, a limited number of collared animals were left out for coyotes, Connolly said. When the coyote kills the animal, he also tends to bite into the collar and poison himself.

The poison used in those collars was 1090, which is currently banned by Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus because of its potential harm to the environment. The future of 1090 is uncertain, after recent congressional hearings on predator control. The ban could be continued, or further testing may be allowed.

But the toxic collar system only works in a place where uncollared animals can be protected at night, Connolly said. Unless a way can be designed to make it effective when animals graze on open ranges, the system may not have much potential.

"That is what the test with sheep and goats may lead to, Connolly said. None of the animals is wearing a collar. The test is designed only to find out if coyotes like goats well enough to choose them instead of sheep. "You have to have some way to protect the uncollared animals," he said. "We're trying to find out how to draw the coyote to a relatively small number of collared animals before the Monetary Affairs Subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee, chaired by Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y.

If coyotes like goats well enough, a few collared goats could graze with large numbers of sheep and protect them, he said.

The goats and sheep have spent about two weeks together, Noh said. But already, some problems have emerged.

Goats don't have a good herd instinct, Noh said. They tend to wander off and lead sheep with them.

And if a herder sends a sheep dog after the goats, the goats sit down rather than allow themselves to be herded. He said sheep dogs aren't trained to move an animal that won't be herded.

Noh said he knew that was a potential problem when the experiment started. "If it isn't solved, he will leave the goats behind when he takes the sheep out to open range in a few weeks. The losses from sheep led astray by goats would be more of a problem than losses to predators, Noh said.

Connolly said another potential problem is that the goats are much larger than the young lambs. A coyote might prefer a small lamb that can't put up much of a fight, even if it thinks the goats taste better.

Connolly is also not sure if a coyote would bother to look for one of the few goats in a large herd of sheep. This is only a preliminary test, he said. "It's just something we're trying."

Auto crash prompts suit

TWIN FALLS — An automobile accident last December has resulted in a $250,000 damage suit in 5th District Court here against Mrs. Fred M. Frazier.

Willard and Betty Theate are suing Darlene Frazier, widow of Fred Frazier, former president of Sierra Life Insurance Co., who died following heart surgery several months ago.

The plaintiffs charge a cow owned by Frazier and maintained in a herd district was on U.S. Highway 93 eight miles south of Shoshone last Dec. 13. A car driven by Theate, with his wife as a passenger, collided with the cow, the complaint charges. As a result, the plaintiffs say, they both suffered injuries, including permanent injuries to Betty Theate.

They charge Frazier was negligent in allowing the cow to be on the highway. They seek $1,000 medical expenses, $3,000 loss of earnings for Mrs. Theate, $200,000 general damages, $50,000 loss of consortium for Theate, and other special damages and costs to be set by the court.

TWIN FALLS — Burglaries reported to the Twin Falls police Tuesday included one at the Alley Cafe.

Officers said no sign of forced entry was found, but someone apparently entered the rear door of the building sometime Monday evening or early Tuesday morning. Officers said the

City employee in hot water

TWIN FALLS — City officials are investigating an assault case and extensive damage to a city vehicle involving a city employee who was on-call.

No charges have been filed and without a complaint, police will not pursue the case, Chief Tim Qualls said.

Police reported the incident occurred at about 11:30 p.m. Friday at the residence of Russell Taylor. Taylor, who works for the city sanitation department, was on call when he became involved in a fight with Chip Mercer of Twin Falls.

Mercer reported he was stabbed by Taylor, and as a result took a shovel from a city pickup truck and struck Taylor. Mercer initially missed Taylor and struck the truck's windshield. No estimates of damage were available.

Since city property was involved, the city can file charges, or it can simply fire Taylor, City Manager Tom Courtney said.

Symms faces vote to jail backer

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, may soon have to vote on sending one of his national campaign fund-raisers to jail.

Tuesday a House subcommittee investigating possible manipulation of national silver sales voted unanimously to cite the billionaire Hunt brothers of Dallas, Texas, for contempt of Congress. (See related story page A-14.)

Nelson Bunker Hunt, one of the two brothers cited for contempt, is a member of the Symms National Finance Committee, which is raising contributions for Symms' Senate race this year against Democrat Frank Church.

Reached in Washington following the subcommittee vote, Symms

Press Secretary Andy Schirmelster told the Times-News the congressman would not decide how he would vote on the contempt citation until that citation came before the full House. The congressman has not yet decided if he would vote for or against that citation, or refrain from voting, Schirmelster said.

The Hunts had been subpoenaed to testify on their dealings in the silver market Tuesday before the Monetary Affairs Subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee, chaired by Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y.

If the brothers failed to attend the subcommittee hearing, sending two of their lawyers instead. Those lawyers argued the Hunts should be excused from testifying before the Rosenthal committee, because they will testify Friday before a Senate committee.

Committee chairman Rosenthal told their lawyers their request was both illegal and impertinent.

The unanimous vote of contempt now goes to the full committee, probably within a week. It would then go to the full House. If a majority of the House members approve the vote of contempt, the Hunt brothers could face a minimum sentence of a month in jail and a maximum sentence of a year.

Hunt also serves on the board of the Hunt Silver Society, an ultra-conservative national political organization based in Massachusetts.

The commission also approved a special-use permit to allow School District 411 to build an athletic equipment storage building within the high school stadium. School Superintendent James Savin said the building was needed to store equipment during work at the high school building.

A special use permit for a drive-up window requested by Idaho First National Bank for its branch office at the northeast corner of Kimberly Road and Eastland Drive also won the commission's approval.

County revises radio bid

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County officials have decided to re-draft bid specifications for a $48,000 radio system for the sheriff's office.

That means bids for the project, which would have been opened today, will be rejected, and the project won't be contracted until late May.

County Commission Chairman Merl Leonard said a check with the Idaho Law Enforcement Planning Commission showed the present specifications may have jeopardized federal funding for the project because those specifications appeared to restrict competitive bidding.

Twin Falls city police are also contracting for an $87,000 radio system. City Manager Tom Courtney said he has had no complaints about the city specifications. Those specifications are probably similar to the county's because both radio systems must be compatible. City officials said they will review those specifications to determine if any problems exist.

Officials of General Electric Co. last week said the specifications for the county project referred to equipment offered by Motorola Communications and Electronics, Inc. Listing exceptions to the specifications referring to equipment offered solely by Motorola would have been difficult, particularly within the two-week period given firms to prepare bids, GE representatives said.

County officials said the firms were involved in preparing the specifications, along with Sheriff James Munn, Police Chief Tim Qualls, and Jim Cox, owner of Auto Phone Corp. of Twin Falls. Cox declined comment when questioned by the Times-News Tuesday.

Motorola was involved in the bulk of specification preparation, officials acknowledged. Federal regulations prohibit funding for projects in which the specifications are written by a major equipment supplier, Idaho LEPIC auditor Darrell Ehlers said.

Whether the county's specifications actually violate those regulations would be up to the LEPIC commissioners. Ehlers said LEPIC acts as a clearing house for federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grants.

As a result, Cox will meet this week with all major suppliers interested in the contract and review complaints over the specifications, Leonard said. Cox will then draw up the specifications. Public calls for bids could go out as early as May 15 and a contract signed by May 30.

The county delay should not disrupt the county's schedule, Leonard said. In order to receive federal funding, the county must have the system installed no later than Sept. 30. County officials last week justified allowing only two weeks to prepare the bids because of the Sept. 30 deadline.

Courtney said the city followed its standard procedure in preparing the specifications. Those specifications appear to be open, he said.

"I don't think we've had any complaints," he said. "At this point, I think any of the vendors could have bid on our specifications, unless someone is able to prove otherwise."

Courtney said the city will review the specifications with major suppliers, but added certain restrictive clauses will remain if those provisions are in the best interest of the city.

"If there is something that is really unfair within our specifications and it appears we have the flexibility to change them, yes, we're willing to work with them on it," Courtney said.

One aspect of those specifications virtually rules Burley Radio Service Co. out of the bidding for the maintenance contract. The specifications call for two technicians to be on call 24 hours a day. The firm has only one technician stationed in Twin Falls.

Courtney said he will not change that provision, saying the radio is critical equipment that demands immediate service.

Ravenscroft forms group to coordinate Sagebrush actions

BOISE (UPI) — Sagebrush Rebellion Inc. — an organization designed to act as a clearinghouse for land-oriented lawsuits and administrative protests against the federal government — was formed today in the Idaho secretary of State's office.

Vern Ravenscroft, who heads the Boise-based lobbying firm that formed the organization, said the goal of western developers and agricultural groups to wrest control of land from the federal government eventually would include some turnover of public land to private interests.

Ravenscroft said the Sagebrush allition's first action would be a lawsuit (see related story, this page) alleging illegalities in the federal government's environmental impact statement on the proposed Birds of Prey National Conservation Area.

The former Republican gubernatorial candidate said the suit, filed in U.S. District Court at Boise today, also accused the U.S. Bureau of Land Management of violating the Carey Act with its proposed 500,000-acre expansion of the raptor refuge. Some 1,200 rare predatory birds nest along the Snake River Canyon in an isolated stretch of southern Idaho.

The birds-of-prey proposal, endorsed by U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus and Idaho Gov. John Evans — but bitterly opposed by the Idaho Land Board, the petroleum industry and farmers' and ranchers' organizations — now is before Congress.

Other initial fronts on which the coalition would move, Ravenscroft said, were the government's proposed wilderness classification of thousands of acres of land in southwest Idaho's vast Owyhee County, and a fundraising drive to finance the coalition's legal actions.

Sagebrush Rebellion Inc., with 68 members, also will have an informal partnership with LASER, a Salt Lake City-based group advocating state's rights in the West, Ravenscroft said.

Idaho Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa said he allowed Ravenscroft's group to use his Statehouse office to announce its formation because its articles of incorporation were filed in Cenarrusa's office today.

Cenarrusa endorsed the Sagebrush group, saying it was born as a result of "arrogance in government."

Nevada State Sen. John Marvel, R-Butte Mountain, said he was pleased the Sagebrush Rebellion was spreading to western states other than Nevada.

One state in which the rebellion so far has fizzled is Idaho, where the Legislature this year restyled several pieces of federal-to-state land ownership legislation.

Ravenscroft said his "service-oriented group" would counsel and assist mining, logging, farming, ranching, petroleum development and other groups in their efforts to attain multiple-use classification for federal land in the West.

He acknowledged that some land that might be seized from the federal government by the states would be "made available to private groups on a competitive basis."

But he said a "majority, probably" of any land obtained by the states from the national government would be administered by the states. Any land classified for sale by the states would be handled like the state of Idaho handles its land transactions now, he said.

Ravenscroft said he would be paid through his Consulting Associates Inc. lobbying firm for each project the organization undertook.

Sagebrush Rebellion Inc. was charging $2.50 for a one-year individual membership and $50 for a group membership.

Several Idaho Republican officials, including Cenarrusa, state Rep. Lyman Winchester of Kuna and state Sen. Walter Yarbrough of Grand View, attended the announcement. Only one Democratic affiliate, State Auditor Joe Williams, attended and expressed support for the group.

Group sues to block Birds of Prey

BOISE (UPI) — A newly formed group dedicated to multiple use of public lands launched a battle against the proposed Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area Tuesday by challenging the plan in U.S. District Court at Idaho.

The lawsuit filed by Sagebrush Rebellion Inc., along with others, claims the U.S. Interior Department violated federal law by preparing an "inadequate" and illegal environmental impact statement on proposed expansion of the raptor refuge.

The lawsuit, filed just prior Secretary Cecil Andrus, Bureau of Land Management Director Frank Gregg and the U.S. Interior Department, asks the court to issue a preliminary and permanent injunction requiring Interior officials to withdraw from Congress legislation to create the refuge.

It also asks the court to bar the Interior Department from precluding withdrawal of Carey Act and Desert Land Act parcels for agricultural development, contending that this proposal is "arbitrary and capricious in that it is not based upon an adequate environmental impact statement."

It then requests the court issue an order "declaring" the proposed enlargement of the Snake River Birds of Prey Area in violation of the National Environmental Policy Act and Council on Environmental Quality regulations.

The Sagebrush Rebellion group, which filed incorporation papers with the Idaho Secretary of State's office Tuesday just before filing the lawsuit in federal court in Boise, is joined in the lawsuit by the Southwest Idaho Development Association.

Also named in the lawsuit as plaintiffs were Lonnie Louvell, a Boise resident identified in the suit as having a Carey Act application pending for within the proposed raptor refuge; Bruce and Rayola Jacobsen and Harold, Tom and Juanita Collette, all Elmore County residents identified as having outstanding applications for Desert Land Act conversion inside the refuge; and Paul Nettleton, an Owyhee County resident who is identified as owning land within the proposed area.

The Interior Department recommended in its environmental impact statement that the Snake River Birds of Prey Area be enlarged to 719,914 acres along a 75-80 mile stretch of the Snake River in southern Idaho. Andrus, however, submitted legislation to the U.S. Senate April 1, asking that a bill be approved creating an area of about 695,000 acres, including federal, state and privately owned land.

The lawsuit contends Andrus had no basis in the environmental impact statement to reduce the proposed size of the area, and it claims the reduction in acreage was made as a "political compromise" between Andrus and Idaho Gov. John Evans. The complaint filed in federal court contends such a "political compromise" violated federal law because Andrus had no environmental studies to back up his request for reducing acreage.

"The submission of the compromise legislative proposal constitutes recognition by the secretary of the Department of the Interior that the environmental impact statement is unrealistic and does not reflect the true environmental and biological requirements of the birds of prey," the lawsuit says. "The compromise proposal reflects the need for additional studies to be conducted by unbiased sources."

The lawsuit claims the environmental impact statement concerning the raptor refuge is invalid because it did not explore all reasonable alternatives. It says the document "essentially considered only one set of boundaries" for the area and "only considered natural production of raptors."

"The study specifically excluded the contemplation of any environmental enhancing mechanisms, including, for example, alternative farming practices, to assist the birds of prey achieve long-term stability," the lawsuit says. It says the document "considered no study of methods for accommodating irrigated farming to the goals of the area, nor were techniques for enhancement of habitat for birds of prey studied."

"In fact, the department intentionally avoided this in order to ensure a predetermined result."

Gold permits sought

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Water Resources Department said Tuesday it had received applications from four parties wishing to mine gold from southwest Idaho streambeds.

Department spokesman Ervin Ballou said Owyhee County Mining Inc. of Boise wanted to mine 2,600 feet of the Jordan Creek in Owyhee County, while Narrow Valley Mining Co., also of Boise, desired to dredge a separate 5,000-foot section of the creek.

He also said the department had received requests for permission to dredge the Middle Fork of the Boise River near Atlanta and on the main Boise River near Middleton.

Ballou said the department was inviting public comment on the four gold-mining proposals.

Hammer cleared of trying to bribe political opponent

BOISE (UPI) — Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris Tuesday made public an investigation into allegations against former 1st Congressional District candidate Jan Hammer's campaign, saying he has found "no evidence" to indicate Hammer had knowledge of the alleged offers made to his Democratic opponent.

Hammer's fellow candidate Terry McKay charged the Hammer campaign with offering him a "deal" to drop out of the race. McKay said he was told by Warren Lundquist that McKay would receive an appointment to the Ada County Commission if he would drop out of the Democratic race for the congressional nomination.

Hammer, since the allegations were made, dropped out of the campaign, saying he could not raise funds because of the allegations made against him.

Harris' statement issued Tuesday said an investigation by his office "was able to establish no evidence that Mr. Jan Hammer had knowledge of any offers made to Terry McKay by anyone, including Warren Lundquist, prior to the offer or offers being made on our about the 23rd day of February, 1980."

The statement says Hammer may have discovered after Feb. 23 that his wife, Gay, and campaign aide Sid Sprecher knew that McKay and Lundquist met to discuss the alleged deal, but says "this knowledge in and of itself would not be sufficient to rise to the level of a criminal offense even if it were provable beyond a reasonable doubt."

The statement, which follows an investigation involving interviews with about 15 people over a period of 50 days, also concludes that Gov. John Evans, who would have had to appoint McKay to the Ada County Commission post, and Gary Berneseolo, who would have had to resign his seat on the commission in order for the alleged deal to have been made, "had absolutely no knowledge of the offer or offers."

It says that the investigation "has established that, in all probability," McKay met with Lundquist at the Hilltop Cafe outside of Boise and that McKay apparently was offered the commission post in exchange for dropping out of the race. The statement says investigators were "not able to establish the existence of any facts which would contradict" McKay's statements about the conversation.

The investigation was hampered, the statement says, by the unwillingness to cooperate by Mrs. Hammer, Sprecher and Lundquist, a union representative who did not hold an official position in the Hammer campaign.

"The investigator representing the Ada County Prosecuting Attorney's office was unable to reach a final determination with regard to the involvement of Mrs. Gay Hammer and Mr. Sid Sprecher based upon their failure and unwillingness to cooperate in this investigation and to submit to unlimited questioning—by the investigator," the statement says. It says Mrs. Hammer and Sprecher have refused to take lie-detector tests, but notes that Hammer agreed to a polygraph exam and problems arose that required the cancellation of that exam.

The statement also says the investigators have been unable to "ascertain the factual circumstances surrounding the involvement" of Mrs. Hammer and Sprecher in connection with their relationship with Lundquist.

"It is probable, based upon this investigation, that Mrs. Gay Hammer knew of the meeting between Warren Lundquist and Terry McKay prior to the said meeting," the statement says. It says Frank Gonzales of the Hammer campaign said Lundquist visited campaign headquarters Feb. 22. It says Gonzales was told by Mrs. Hammer on Feb. 23 that Lundquist was going to meet with McKay and that investigators have obtained documentation to prove that Lundquist had placed long-distance telephone calls to the Hammer headquarters.

"Gay Hammer had previously made comments to Phil Verby, a former Hammer staff member, suggesting there must be a way to get Terry McKay to withdraw from the race," the statement says.

"This office has determined that no criminal charges can be brought against Warren Lundquist based on the fact that proof of his involvement cannot be proven beyond a reasonable doubt," the statement says. "This office, having attempted to inquire into this matter as thoroughly as is currently possible under the circumstances as described herein, it will be the intent of this office to discontinue this investigation unless and until further information is brought forward meriting re-opening of the said investigation."

Armour to close Nampa plant

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — The Armour & Co. beef packing plant east of Nampa will shut down Oct. 31, affecting 200 workers, KIDO Radio reports.

The Boise radio station says the Nampa plant is one of three across the nation that Armour will close this fall because of salary difficulties. The other plants are located in Wisconsin and Texas.

The station quotes a company spokesman as saying the plants will be closed because union contracts with Armour, require the company to pay wages that do not allow Armour to compete with other beef processing corporations on an equal footing.

Mrs. Kidwell injured

BOISE (UPI) — Shaq Kidwell, wife of Republican 1st Congressional District candidate Wayne Kidwell, sustained spinal injuries in a fall at the family home in Boise late Monday night.

A spokesman for the Kidwell campaign said Mrs. Kidwell was being treated at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise Tuesday.

The Kidwells were preparing for a campaign tour through northern Idaho at the time of the accident. That tour has been postponed, the spokesman said.

Lions pick Sims in first round of pro draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Football League clubs went first for "instant offense" and then grabbed off a horde of defensive backs Tuesday in the first two rounds of the annual college player draft.

Detroit, with the first pick, established an instant running attack with the selection of record-smashing Billy Sims, the 1976 Heisman Trophy winner from Oklahoma. And the New York Jets, with the leading ground game in the league last year, established themselves as a threat in the air with the addition of wide receiver Johnny "Lam" Jones, a Olympic gold medalist from Texas.

The Jets, who already have one of the most dangerous receivers in the league in Wesley Walker, picked Jones second behind Sims after dealing their two picks in the first round to San Francisco.

Sims, was at the draft and was handed his new jersey bearing No. 20, the same number he wore at Oklahoma and the same one once worn by All-Pro defensive back Lem Barney of the Lions.

In 1978, Sims, 5-foot-11 and 208 pounds, became only the sixth junior to win the Heisman following a season in which he averaged 7.6 yards a carry and gained 1,720 yards. As a senior, Sims averaged "only" 6.7 yards a carry and had 1,566 yards and 22 touchdowns to lead the nation in scoring.

During his career, Sims gained 3,813 yards and scored 50 TDs and his overall average of 7.99 yards a carry was the highest in NCAA history for runners with 500 or more attempts.

Sims was the third running back to be made the No. 1 pick in the last four years and only the second Oklahoma player ever picked first since the draft began in 1936. Defensive end Lee Roy Seimon was the No. 1 pick by Tampa Bay five years ago.

Sims and the Lions have been negotiating for several weeks and apparently are far apart on money. Sims and his attorney, former Houston dentist Jerry Argovitz, are asking for $4.5 million over six years while the Lions are offering in the vicinity of $700,000 for three.

Tom Cousineau, the top pick last year by Buffalo, refused to sign with the Bills and played in the Canadian Football League.

Jones, a member of the gold medal 400-meter relay team at the 1976 Olympics, averaged 11.3 yards every time he touched the ball for Texas. He has been clocked in 4.35 for 40 yards and last year caught 36 passes for 535 yards. He holds 10 school records, including 14 career TD receptions and 65 career catches.

"He's a class person, the kind we want," said Jets Coach Walt Michaels. "He can add another dimension to our team. Speedwise, I hate to make comparisons but as an 11th grader, he won a gold medal in the Olympics. That speaks for itself. He has good hands but we'll make them better."

It is rare for defensive backs to go very high in the draft but on Tuesday, six went in the first round and the first 41 players selected, 10 were defensive backs.

Cincinnati picked third pick and took 6-6, 285-pound tackle Anthony Munoz of Southern California and Green Bay took Bruce Clark, a 6-3, 258-pound defensive tackle from Penn State. Baltimore took running back Curtis Dickey, a 6-0, 204-pound track star from Texas A&M who also can play wide receiver and St. Louis took Curtis Greer, a 6-4, 250-pound defensive end from Michigan.

Atlanta selected Junior Miller, a 6-3, 235-pound tight end from Nebraska and the New York Giants picked 5-11, 185-pound defensive back Mark Haynes of Colorado. Minnesota, picking ninth, took Doug Martin, a 6-3, 253-pound defensive tackle from Washington, and Seattle, on a choice from Buffalo, took 6-3, 236-pound Jacob Green, a defensive end from Texas A&M.

Kansas City took Southern California guard Brad Budde, a 6-5, 256-pound-son of former Chiefs guard Ed Budde, and New Orleans picked 6-7, 289-pound tackle Stan Brock of Colorado.

San Francisco, on its first choice from the Jets, took 6-2, 227-pound fullback Earl Cooper of Rice and New England named Roland James, a 6-2, 190-pound defensive back from Tennessee.

Top pick Sims says he's glad to be Lion

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Heisman Trophy running back Billy Sims and his agent showed up Tuesday for a news conference with the Detroit Lions as continually interrupted by pleas from team officials that contract talks be left out of the questioning.

"Let's keep this positive," Lions Coach Monte Clark said after Detroit made Sims its No. 1 pick in the country in the NFL college player draft. "This day is for Billy. He's earned it."

"Let's keep this in the spirit of the agreement we made," General Manager Russ Thomas interjected just before Sims and his agent, Jerry Argovitz, rushed to catch a plane back to New York City.

"I'm very proud — hopefully — to be a Detroit Lion in the very near future," said Sims, who won the Heisman during his junior year at Oklahoma in 1978.

"It's a great honor. I've been to Detroit and I want a good start here for me and my wife."

"I'm counting 100 percent on being here," he said. "I can promise you one thing, and that's more than a 2-14 season. I'm a team player who is used to winning."

Sims and his agent originally had not planned to go from New York to Detroit but relented at Clark's urging.

Sims even said he probably would show up for a Lions rookie camp this weekend, even though it is unlikely he will be signed by then.

"I wanted to come here," Sims said. "Maybe for the fans, maybe to show the sportswriters I wouldn't shy away from Detroit."

"I like Coach Clark. I like the area. My main objective is to play football that's why I hired Dr. Jerry Argovitz."

"If Coach Clark wants me here, I'll be here," he said.

Argovitz said the main difference between what he wants and what the Lions are offering is simply money.

"There's just one Billy Sims and here he is," Argovitz said.

"I don't want to dwell on negatives," Clark said. "Let's keep this in the spirit of the agreement we made when we brought him here."

"Before you leave, Billy," one person at the news conference said as the questioning wound down, "I want your autograph."

Two hands shot up immediately — Clark's and Thomas'.

"So do we," they said virtually in unison. Thomas added: "It's very hard to get."

Wrestling qualifiers

Sonic beast gets major test tonight

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Seattle SuperSonics, masters of the comeback, have yet another opportunity to prove they play best in a must-win situation.

Trailing Los Angeles 3-1 in the NBA Western Conference finals series, Seattle faces the Lakers in Game 5 Wednesday night at the Forum. The winner of the series takes on the Eastern Conference champion Philadelphia 76ers.

But the Lakers may have let all the air out of the defending NBA champion on Sonics Sunday in Seattle when Los Angeles overcame a 21-point deficit in the third quarter en route to victory and the commanding 3-1 lead.

"They claim they like to play with their backs to the wall," said Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, "and at this point they're about to go over the wall."

Los Angeles rookie sensation Earvin Johnson cautioned, however, not to count Seattle out just yet.

"They're still the world champs," said Johnson. "They could come back on us just like they did when they were down 3-2 in Milwaukee."

The Sonics beat the Bucks in that series, winning the sixth and seventh games.

Los Angeles hasn't played in the NBA finals since 1973 when they were beaten by the New York Knicks in five games and hasn't won the league crown since 1972. Seattle eliminated the Lakers last year in five games.

Playing in the University of Washington's Hec Edmundson Pavilion, which seats about 300 fans comfortably but was jammed with more than 9,000 for the third and fourth games of the series, Seattle blew leads in both games to virtually hand the Lakers the series.

Should the Lakers advance to the finals, they would hold the home court advantage over the 76ers.

Holmes, Ali fight may be off again

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — The projected $12-million Muhammad Ali-Larry Holmes WBC world heavyweight championship fight scheduled for Rio's Maracana Stadium, July 11, began coming apart at the seams with the announcement by the boss of the stadium Tuesday that, "It's all news to me."

All's ballyhooed return to the ring to try to win the heavyweight championship of the world for the fourth time has virtually no chance of being held where the promoters claim it will be, according to the boss of the world's largest soccer stadium.

"In fact," Rio de Janeiro State Sports Superintendent Ricardo Labre said, "the chances are 99 percent against the bout being held here."

On Monday, an organization called Prime Sports announced in New York City that Ali and Holmes will fight in Rio for $12 million, the richest purse in boxing history in the 165,000 capacity Maracana, site of an eminently successful Frank Sinatra concert last January.

Labre said the promotion's main problem is that setting up the ring, seats and other equipment "would destroy our grass. This is a soccer field."

"The Sinatra concert was planned well in advance and was held in the off-season when the stadium was not needed for soccer," Labre said. "But putting seats on the playing field now is out of the question. It would take the grass three months to recover."

Some weeks as many as four soccer matches are held in the stadium. Maracana is such a mecca for world soccer fans that tourists from Latin America and Europe take guided tours of the immense oval where samba-drum beating fans once roared their approval for Pele and cheered on three-time world-cup-winning Brazilian national teams.

Brazilian promoter Roberto Medina brought Sinatra to Maracana Jan. 26 for the singer's first ever South American performance. Sinatra packed in more than 100,000 and won an ovation. But Medina's company Artran is a Brazilian outfit.

Labre pointed out that Prime Sports, as an American company, could not legally even contract the stadium.

"I talked with two groups, including this Prime Sports outfit," Labre said. "These guys did not even have business cards. They didn't have anything. I am going to recommend to the state government that this offer be rejected and I'm sure it certainly will be."

He said the problems might be resolved if it were not for plans of the promoters to place 50,000 seats on the field.

Prime Sports, headed by Murad Muhammad, a former security man for Ali, and promoter Don King, had said Monday the fight was officially set for Maracana Stadium.

"We won't leave the United States until we are definitely sure that everything is the way it has been represented to us, and that, of course, includes the money," said Ritchie Giachetti, manager of Holmes.

Holmes supposedly has been guaranteed $4 million with Ali getting an $8-million cut. But there has been no official signing of contracts and reports are rampant that the money "is not in place."

Giachetti said "There's a cloud over this thing" and expressed some doubts the bout would ever come off as announced.

Marathon strips Ruiz of title

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Marathon officials, saying they could find no evidence Rosie Ruiz ran the entire race, Tuesday stripped the New York City office worker of the woman's title she apparently won last week and awarded it instead to Jacqueline Gareau of Montreal.

"Information from our observers ... has enabled us to reach the conclusion that without any reasonable doubt Jacqueline Gareau was the leader for the final 10 miles of the race," said Marathon Director Bill Cloney.

"We have investigated every possible fact ... and we have reached our decision with malice towards none in keeping with the integrity of the Boston Marathon," said Cloney.

Gareau, a Montreal hospital worker who flew to Boston to be present at Cloney's news conference, donned the winner's laurel wreath and thrust her right arm stiffly into the air in a victory sign.

Speaking in broken English, she said she was "proud to be the first" and would be back to run another Boston Marathon.

"It was an experience for me, all this week," she said, obviously ill at ease in front of the bright television lights, scores of microphones and dozens of reporters and photographers.

Asked if there would be any reprisals against Ruiz, Cloney replied, "I would rather hear that Jacqueline is the winner and let Rosie fade into the background."

"Certainly I feel that the sanctity of the Boston Marathon has been violated," Cloney said, "but there's not much sense in being angry at anyone."

He said he was convinced from a conversation he had with Ruiz Monday that she firmly believed she won the race.

Ruiz was at her job Tuesday at Metal Traders Inc., according to John Emptage, president of the company. He said she would not be available for comment until after working hours.

The decision was announced following an intensive seven-day review of official observers' notes and more than 10,000 high speed photos taken throughout the 26-mile, 385-yard race, Cloney said.

He said no legal action was contemplated against Ruiz, who continued to insist she ran the entire race April 21. He said Ruiz has been invited to compete in next year's Boston Marathon without a qualifying time.

Cloney said "appropriate ceremonies" were being planned for Gareau, which most likely will be held in two weeks so the men's winner, Bill Rodgers, will be able to attend.

Ruiz, 26, a business woman who said she did not begin seriously training for the marathon until last summer, apparently pulled off a stunning upset last week crossing the finish line in the third-fastest time ever recorded by a woman.

The next two women finishers, Gareau and Patti Lyons of Quincy, Mass., said they had not seen the dark-haired Ruiz on the course and did not know she had won until they crossed the packed finish line and saw her wearing the traditional laurel wreath on the victory stand.

Ruiz' recorded time of 2:31:56 was more than 20 minutes faster than the only other marathoner she claimed to have run — the New York City marathon last October. New York officials last week voided that time after investigating allegations Ruiz rode to the finish line on a subway.

NHL playoffs Stars keep playoff touch

NHL playoffs

Stars keep playoff touch

By United Press International

This is becoming a year of destiny in the NHL.

The Minnesota North Stars, fresh from a seven-game upset of four-time defending champion Montreal, opened the Stanley Cup semifinals with a 6-5 victory Tuesday night over the regular-season champion Flyers in Philadelphia.

In Buffalo, the New York Islanders, maligned as a choke team in past playoffs, scored a convincing 4-1 defeat of the Sabres in their series opener.

Minnesota, a pushover in the NHL as recently as last year and shaky at times this year, used two goals by left wing Steve Payne, including the eventual game-winner on a power play midway through the third period, and two more by U.S. Olympian Steve Christoff to take a 1-0 lead in the series. Game 2 will be played Thursday night in Philadelphia.

Paul Shmyr and Christoff scored 39 seconds apart near the end of the second period to give Minnesota a 3-1 lead but Philadelphia, which suffered its first home loss of the playoffs, got goals from Ken Linseman, Tom Garbage and Linseman again in a 1-46 game to take a 4-3 lead.

The five goals in 3:20 broke a 48-year-old Stanley Cup playoff record, the previous mark being 4:19 set in a 1932 series between the New York Rangers and Toronto.

Minnesota tied the game 4-4 at 14:04 of the middle period on a goal by Mike Eaves and took the lead for good on Payne's goal. Al MacAdam sent a pass from behind the Flyers' net to Payne, who connected on a backhand past the stick of rookie goalie Pete Peeters at 16:46.

Payne added his second goal of the night on a similar setup by MacAdam on a power play at 7:40 of the final period. Paul Holmgren brought the Flyers to within one at 9:27 by converting a pass from Brian Propp.

Gary Edwards, who came on at the start of the second period after Gilles Meloche allowed all four first-period goals, shut the door the rest of the way under tremendous pressure. He ended the game stopping all but one of 22 shots on goal, 17 in the third period.

Christoff's two goals broke an NHL record for most goals by a rookie in the playoffs. His total of eight broke the previous record of seven held by Jacques Lemaire, Danny Gare and Don Maloney.

In the Islanders' victory, John Tonelli scored two goals and Bob Bourne tallied near the end of a five-minute Buffalo power play in the first period. The Sabres suffered their first loss in 23 home starts. Game 2 is to be played Thursday night in Buffalo.

After Rick Dudley gave Buffalo a 1-0 lead at 5:23 of the first period, the Islanders held off the Sabres during a five-minute sparring penalty to defenseman Gord Lane. Bourne tallied short-handed with 30 seconds remaining in the first period, as he picked up the puck at center ice and beat Buffalo goalie Don Edwards for his sixth playoff goal.

Mike Bossy gave New York the lead when he stole the puck from Buffalo defenseman Bill Hutt and shot the puck past Edwards' left side at 17:42. Tonelli made it 3-1 at 9:56 of the second period, when he put in a rebound of a shot by Wayne Merrick. His second goal, at 11:10 of the first period following a pass from Duane Sutter, provided the final margin.

Jerome sweeps SCIC finals

MOUNTAIN HOME — The Jerome Tigers found the wind through the competition Tuesday when they swept both ends of the South Central Idaho Conference track and field championships.

The Jerome boys, taking all four places in both the mile and two-mile, piled up 93 points while Mountain Home had 49, Buhl 33 and Wood River 22.

Karen Sobolka returned to post victory in the mile, and the Jerome Tigers girls again dominated in winning the distaff division 83-40 over Buhl, which was paced by Elaine Hellwig's double hurdle victory. Mountain Home had 37 and Wood River 12.

The meet lined Jerome for a Cross State Conference final Friday at Burley where the competition apparently will come from Caldwell. The Cougars topped the Tigers in an invitational last week.

Also scoring for the Bruins were Jim Rasmussen at 77 and Bill Long with an 8:02.5. Mountain Home followed with a 309 total, followed by Pocatello at 314, Minico 309, Idaho Falls 343, Highland 244, Skyline 251, Blackfoot 358, Burley 360 and Bonneville 377.

Twin Falls will have the home course advantage when the other 11 Southern Idaho Conference teams come to settle the last championship for the dying alignment. Competition will begin at 1 p.m. Friday at the Municipal Golf Course.

Minico nips Idaho Falls 7-6

IDHAO FALLS — Scott Maggard provided the RBIs and Jeff Schow the hits and runs Tuesday when the Minico Spartans nipped Idaho Falls 7-6.

Maggard was three for four with four runs-batted in while Schow had four for four.

That combination worked for a decisive run in the seventh inning after Idaho Falls' Terry McManis had delivered a solo homer to tie the things momentarily. Schow legged out an infield hit and stole second. He romped in from there on Maggard's single.

Minico took a 4-0 lead in the first three innings. In the first, John Patton walked and Schow singled to set up two RBIs for Maggard's triple. Two innings later, Patton had a bunt singled and Schow and Maggard followed with hits for one run. Schow brought in the second on Kenny Parkin's sacrifice fly.

Idaho Falls rallied on McManis' ninth inning triple in the third and then, altho by three walks, scored four times in the fourth. A bases-loaded single by Van Kempton highlighted that outburst.

Minico will wind up its season Thursday by visiting Highland and is pointed toward the district tournament next week with Burley and Twin Falls.

Area action Mann, Reed collect Wood River net titles

HAILEY — Gooding's Mike Mann and Gwen Reed captured singles titles Tuesday in the Wood River High School Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Mann dominated the Wolverines' Hal Sweasy, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5 and Reed beat Wood River's Toni Moore, 6-1, 6-1 in matches played at the Woodside Racquet Club.

Other winners included Lance Levy and Scott Symms, Wood River, boys' doubles; and Laura Newcomb and Eric Edinger, Wood River, mixed doubles. The girls' doubles (final) will be played today.

Besides Gooding and Wood River, teams from Jerome High School and Ketchum's Sam School participated in the one-day tournament.

Mann's victory avenged a 6-2, 6-4 defeat he suffered in Sweden in last Saturday's final of an invitational tournament at Twin Falls' Jaycee Park.

"I was trying to make him play my game, rushing the net on good shots and be consistent," Mann said Tuesday, minutes after his victory. "I was very inconsistent in Twin on my serves and strokes and I played his game. I more or less wasn't thinking."

"Today I was going to smile if I was down or not. I think it kind of agitates your opponent. It makes him wonder what you're up to."

Highland edges Burley 6-5

BURLEY — Highland took advantage of two costly errors in the top of the seventh inning and slipped past the Burley Bobcats 6-5 Tuesday.

After getting the first two outs in that inning, Burley's defense fell apart and the Rams took advantage to hand Burley its ninth defeat against 14 hits.

Rick Astin recorded the win with relief and Allen Merrill suffered the loss for the Bobcats.

Highland got on base on an error by Burley's rightfielder and picked up a walk before Jim Green delivered a single that scored the run to put the Rams on top 3-3.

Highland filled first and second base with runners and they advanced to second and third on a wild pitch by Merrill.

The pitcher Astin, helped for his own cause, with a single that scored the two winning runs.

Burley came back to tie in the seventh with two runs, but was unable to bring in a third to tie the game at six.

Bruins take Pocatello meet

The Bruins, pointed for the Southern Idaho Conference championships Friday, were paced by Dave Rasmussen who took medalist honors with a 73, one ahead of teammate Steve Meyerhoefer.

Also scoring for the Bruins were Jim Rasmussen at 77 and Bill Long with an 8:02.5. Mountain Home followed with a 309 total, followed by Pocatello at 314, Minico 309, Idaho Falls 343, Highland 244, Skyline 251, Blackfoot 358, Burley 360 and Bonneville 377.

Twin Falls will have the home course advantage when the other 11 Southern Idaho Conference teams come to settle the last championship for the dying alignment. Competition will begin at 1 p.m. Friday at the Municipal Golf Course.

Minico nips Idaho Falls 7-6

IDHAO FALLS — Scott Maggard provided the RBIs and Jeff Schow the hits and runs Tuesday when the Minico Spartans nipped Idaho Falls 7-6.

Maggard was three for four with four runs-batted in while Schow had four for four.

That combination worked for a decisive run in the seventh inning after Idaho Falls' Terry McManis had delivered a solo homer to tie the things momentarily. Schow legged out an infield hit and stole second. He romped in from there on Maggard's single.

Minico took a 4-0 lead in the first three innings. In the first, John Patton walked and Schow singled to set up two RBIs for Maggard's triple. Two innings later, Patton had a bunt singled and Schow and Maggard followed with hits for one run. Schow brought in the second on Kenny Parkin's sacrifice fly.

Idaho Falls rallied on McManis' ninth inning triple in the third and then, altho by three walks, scored four times in the fourth. A bases-loaded single by Van Kempton highlighted that outburst.

Minico will wind up its season Thursday by visiting Highland and is pointed toward the district tournament next week with Burley and Twin Falls.

Draft notes

BYU still chasing Pastorini

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Brigham Young All-America quarterback Marc Wilson says Dan Pastorini is going to be pursued by another BYU player.

Wilson was Oakland's first round pick in Tuesday's NFL draft, and the 6-foot-4 NCAA record setter was the first quarterback taken in this year's draft of collegiate players.

"I'd hoped to go in the first round and I'm excited about it," Wilson said. "I talked with Oakland briefly today and they obviously have a lot of confidence in me and think I'll fit into their program."

The last two seasons Pastorini had been playing ahead of former BYU quarterback Gifford Nielsen at Houston. And now he's faced with another fall and young quarterback from Provo, Utah. "I guess Pastorini just can't escape BYU quarterbacks," Wilson said.

"Actually I'm confident I can do well at Oakland and have a successful rookie season," the Seattle native added.

Clark nixes nose guard idea

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Defensive tackle Bruce Clark of Penn State said he was "real happy" to have been chosen in the first round by the Green Bay Packers but voiced concern about playing nose guard in the Packers' 3-4 defense.

"I'm real happy about going so early but nose guard is something we're going to have to talk about," said Clark in a phone interview. "I haven't really excelled at that position. I only played three games there and I wasn't that enthused about it."

"I was playing nose guard when I hurt the knee, but that had nothing to do with it," said Clark. "But the thing is, there is a much higher risk of getting hurt at nose guard. It's even worse than running back. There's a lot more pressure on you at nose guard and it seems like you're always fighting off two guys."

White cures backfield ills

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Browns may have put an end to two years of turmoil in their running back corps by making Heisman Trophy winner Charles White of Southern Cal their first-round pick Tuesday in the National Football League draft.

The Browns fell just short of making the playoffs the last two seasons and it wasn't just a coincidence that running back Greg Pruitt missed major portions of both campaigns with leg injuries.

Going into the 1980 season, Cleveland now will have the impressive backfield trio of White, Greg Pruitt and fullback Mike Pruitt, who was the AFC's second-leading rusher last year and made the Pro Bowl.

Chiefs start new generation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Sentiment might sell tickets in Kansas City, but it's a 6-4, 255-pound All-America calling card that sells the Chiefs on a player in the college draft.

That's what Kansas City bought Tuesday in Southern Cal guard Brad Budde, not the name, even though it is a familiar one. Brad is the son of Ed Budde, the only guard in the history of the Chiefs ever to earn All-Pro honors.

Cowboys endure long wait

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys, with a history of having built their team through the draft, waited and waited Tuesday and finally had to be satisfied with the 78th player selected from the collegiate crop of seniors.

Dallas traded its first two picks in this year's draft to Baltimore last season in exchange for defensive lineman John Dutton.

Despite the loss of those two picks, there was constant speculation as the draft approached.

Bengals happy with Munoz

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Bengals' head coach Forrest Gregg said Tuesday he was more than impressed by the team's first round draft pick, Anthony Munoz.

Part-time job ad pays dividend for Padre

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — San Diego Padre shortstop Ozzie Smith's want ad for a part-time job has paid off to the tune of $500 a week.

Smith ran the ad in the San Diego Union for 10 days on the advice of his new agent, Ed Gottlieb. Gottlieb said Smith was stuck with 120-day notes for $84,000 due to bad investment advice from his former agent. With a bachelor's tax rap, Smith is taking home only half of this year's $72,000 baseball salary.

Now, Gottlieb says, Smith has signed with a Los Angeles credit-trading company for a guaranteed $500 a week, and the work will not interfere with his baseball itinerary either at home or away.

Gottlieb does not want to identify the company yet. Credit-trading is the practice of providing goods or services for a credit, which is also redeemed in goods or services.

Gottlieb said he got 12 serious job offers for Smith as a result of the ad, and unless he can't find one, he said he narrowed the job offers down to two, the one Smith took and an offer from Merrill Lynch to make the diminutive infielder a customer's rep, but that would have involved a training program, which Smith doesn't have time for during the season.

One caller offered $3.50 an hour "to fan a steaming fan during Padres' games." Rookie manager Jerry Coleman's crew has dropped 10 of its last 11 games.

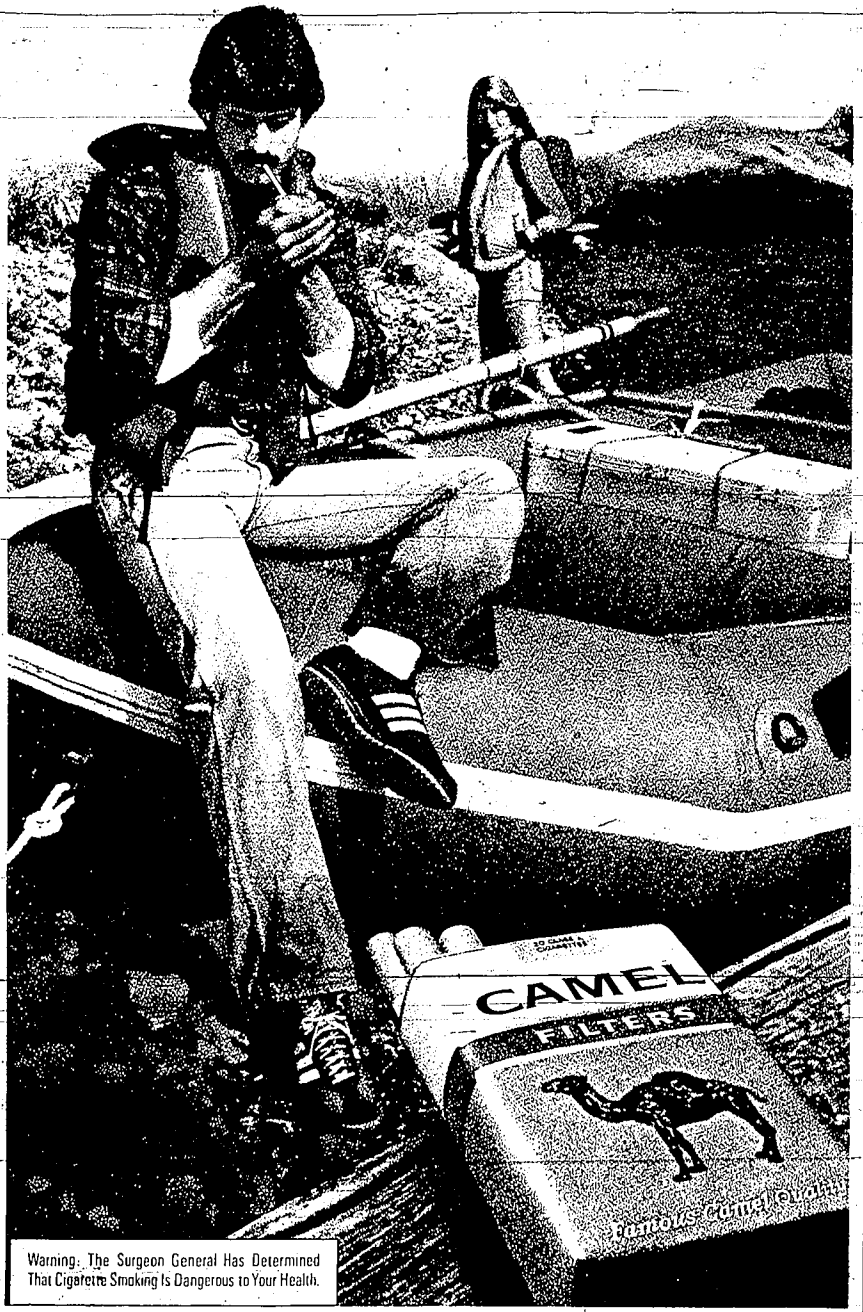

Smith said of the part-time deal, "It means I won't have to take a leave of absence from baseball this summer." San Diego fan reaction was adverse when Smith announced in Atlanta on a road trip that he might have to do just that.
