By MARTY TRILLHAASE

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls teachers Thursday night said they were pleased with the school board's latest contract proposal and that a settlement could be reached next week.

The school board presented its latest offer in the form of a package for the 1980-81 school year contracts at the 1 1/2-hour session.

Teachers are reviewing those terms and will give the board their answer at a meeting Monday beginning at 7 p.m. at the Uniserve Center.

"We're very positive," said Al Ware, spokesman for the teacher negotiation team. "We were very impressed with some of the things we saw in the package. We think we're getting close."

Ware said he thinks an agreement could be reached next week and teachers will return to the bargaining table in the hopes of reaching an agreement.

Dr. James Sawin, district superintendent, said the package represents a "sincere" effort by the school board to meet the teachers' requests.

Sawin said the package was presented because teachers had requested the board present its proposals in writing. He said it includes:

- A revision of the salary schedule, lowering the proposed 1980-81 school year base salary increase by $200 to $11,000. The present base salary is $9,000. The additional funds resulting from the change would be funneled into higher salaries for teachers with 10 years or more experience. Teachers had requested the change.

- A new salary schedule that provides teachers with $300 increases for each year of experience up to 15 years and $500 increases for each additional 15 credit-hours of advanced education beyond a bachelor's degree.

- A 15 percent increase in the level of funds spent on school materials. No exact figures were available, but the increase amounts to roughly $50,000 above the $330,000 spent in 1979.

- An agreement by the board to add four teachers to an ongoing committee designated to develop disciplinary procedures. That committee is currently filled by five school administrators.

"I'm pleased that they're optimistic and I hope that they will realize that they have done a good job at the table," Sawin said. He added he hoped teachers would support the offer.

The session marked the 10th meeting between the two sides since negotiations began in late March.

Sadat recalls negotiators

Autonomy talks stall

ISMAILIA, Egypt (UPI) — President Anwar Sadat Thursday ordered an indefinite postponement of top level Palestinian autonomy negotiations.

Spokesmen said the decision was due to an apparent "breakdown" in Israel's demands for security in its occupied territories.

The Middle East News Agency, reporting from Washington, said summit talks between President Carter and Sadat and Carter and Begin might be necessary to save the negotiations from collapse.

Sadat's order to postpone talks on the level of ministers and ambassadors came just 18 days before the May 26 target deadline for the crucial next step in the Camp David Middle East accord.

The autonomy talks apparently were to be approved to continue on the lower working level.

Sadat met in Ismailia with Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman who said the gap between the Egyptian and Israeli positions is "very wide" and expressed doubt the autonomy negotiations could be brought to a successful conclusion by May 26.

The six-day round of talks which ended Wednesday at Herzliya, a Tel Aviv suburb, accomplished nothing with the two sides deadlocked on whether Israel or the projected Palestinian self-rule council should be responsible for the security of the Jordan West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Israeli officials labeled Sadat's move a pressure tactic. A senior Israeli negotiator said it bore a private assessment the Egyptians wanted to wait until after the U.S. presidential election in hopes the new U.S. administration could wrest greater concessions on autonomy from Israel.

Lava nears volcano's top

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — A new eruption spewed steam and ash thousands of feet skyward over Mount St. Helens Thursday as the bulging northern flank continued to grow.

The latest eruption, at midmorning, and three others Wednesday night, were the first such explosions from the volcano in 18 days, U.S. Geological Survey scientists said.

Mount St. Helens awakened from a 123-year sleep March 27 with similar blasts from its snow-covered cone, rocking the surrounding southwestern Washington area for miles.

Jim Unterwagner, U.S. Forest Service spokesman, said the volcano belted huge clouds of ash and steam more than 4,000 feet above its 9,677-foot cone during the latest eruptions.

In addition, Dr. Donald Mullineaux of the Geological Survey said "deformation measurements on May 7 show that the north flank is continuing to move outward to the north at the same rate of about four to five feet per day," he said.

Billings molten rock pushing toward the surface forced up the bulge, he said, noting that "all we see now is the dome which indicates that the magma (molten rock) came up in the cone somewhere, if that were to continue to rise and reach the surface then one of those hazards associated with an explosive kind of event" is possible.

Evans' five proposed bills for the Transportation Department by imposing registration fees for taxis, hearses, ambulances, wheelchairs and motorcycles and raising registration fees for trucks, construction vehicles and farm vehicles.

A 2 1/2-cent hike in the motor fuel tax from nine to 11 1/2 cents also is proposed by Evans.

A third measure would increase the appropriation for the ADC program by $1.312 million. Without the extra funus, the Health and Welfare Department estimates ADC payments will have to be cut 70 percent through this fiscal year.

To lessen Idaho's Medicaid liability Evans wants to repeal a law requiring the state to pay the full costs of patient care to hospitals and nursing homes.

Evans' fifth proposal would limit every other legislative session to budget considerations and other business specified by the governor or by a resolution of either house passed by a two-third majority.

It has to be determined whether the state faces any shortfall below the $390 million general fund revenue predicted by the committee four months ago.

State Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, said he understood there were fears based on recent economic indicators that the revenue figure could plummet to $377 million.

Budge said this is the first year the Idaho Legislature has spent money it didn't have," and that Gov. John Evans' request for increased highway and welfare funding from the special session compounds the state's financial situation.

He added it is likely the 1981 Legislature will have to boost taxes substantially or make sharp cuts in state programs. Other analysts agreed with that view.

Legislative Auditor Bruce Balderson said he could not confirm Budge's tentative figures, which the Senate leader said had originated from a legislative agency. But the auditor said he was studying the situation in preparation for the Monday meeting.

"I've been trying to keep track of this," Balderson said. "There's a great deal of guess work due to the changes in the trends. I don't think I could agree with that (the $377 million possibility) at this point. We will have much better information Monday."

Munger said the meeting was called as a precaution because economic signals have cast a pall on the committee's January projections. "We just kind of want to review our position and see what we come up with."

"I just have no idea what we will find. It's entirely possible that it

Evans announces session agenda

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans Thursday unveiled his five proposed bills for the special legislative session beginning Monday.

The proposals provide for additional funding for the Idaho Transportation Department and the state Department of Health and Welfare's Aid for Dependent Children (ADC) and Medicaid programs as well as a measure limiting every other legislative session to budget matters.

The governor proposes to raise

Major shortfall in state revenue estimates may force cuts

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho financial officials will trade notes in a special meeting next week to gauge the possibility of a severe state revenue shortfall caused by sluggishness in the economy.

Rep. Morgan Munger, R-Ola, chairman of the Legislature's Joint Revenue Projections Committee, said the officials Monday will review their January projections before the lawmakers convene in a special session.

Tax and revenue experts said today seniority translates into power.

Seniority in Idaho's recent announcement of candidacies. A small state like ours needs a senator who occupies a position of strength. That is what makes all the difference when it comes to protecting a precious resource like Idaho water, or preserving our Western way of life against the imposition of unwanted federal gun controls."

"In turn, seniority also translates into perks and privileges, many of which can be helpful in winning re-election.

Regardless of whether Boise chamber members believed the telephone call from Washington was staged or not, many undoubtedly formed one conclusion: any senator sufficiently powerful to force Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to do his bidding is probably sufficiently powerful to help his state in a dozen other ways.

The question many must have asked next was, "How valuable is the eighth largest amount of seniority?"

power has at times allowed the Democrat to upstage the Symms campaign. This year Symms, Republican James McClure and Republican Rep. George Hansen, asked the Department of Energy to install more liquid waste monitoring wells at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

"DOE went along with them," Reberger said. "But guess who made the announcement (that the wells would be installed)? Guess who got the headlines?"

Symms was notified the wells would be installed after Church's announcement, Reberger said.

A Church staff member, asked about the incident, said the request by the Republicans was to have the monitoring wells installed in a year. It was Church's intervention that resulted in immediate action from DOE and, which in turn infuriated the Republicans, he said.

But Reberger insists longevity in Congress isn't always a benefit to Idaho or to Church.

The longer a senator stays in office, the greater are the demands on his

Scoops New York media 8th-grader interviews Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — When eighth-grader Michael Morris turned in his social studies assignment, his teacher was first shocked and then unbelieving.

Had he really won an interview with former president Richard Nixon?

"He didn't think it was true," the 14-year-old said. "He thought I'd made it up, and then I played the tape for him and he thought it was (comedian) Rich Little."

But when Michael handed the teacher an autographed picture of the former chief executive, the teacher had to admit the pupil had scooped the city media stars and snagged the first interview with Nixon since he moved from California to New York.

The assignment didn't start at the presidential level.

All teacher Ellen Urkowitz told his class at Booker T. Washington Junior High School in Harlem on March 31 was to interview someone famous.

So Morris decided downtown to Nixon's new townhouse at 142 E. 65th St., and handed a letter requesting an interview to a Secret Service agent who answered the door.

Several days later, his mother woke the would-be interviewer early one morning and told her son Nixon was calling him.

"Be at my home by 2 p.m.," Nixon said. Morris was there, equipped with a tape recorder and a list of questions.

"What's it like to become president, is that what you want to know?" Nixon asked. "Well, I think you must get an education, most of all. That's basic, as much education as possible. The presidency is not only the biggest job in this country, but today it's the biggest in the world."

The interview lasted 30 minutes during which Nixon discussed school, politics and sports.

"He was very nice," Michael said Wednesday. "He answered every question and more. He asked me about my school and about sports."

How does he think he'll do when report cards come out?

"I think I'll get a good grade."

Seniority means huge power

Part three of a series. By DAVID MORRISSEY Times-News writer

The call came in the middle of the speech to the Boise Chamber of Commerce.

"Senator," said the aide, hurrying to the speaker on the rostrum, "it's the Secretary of State on the phone."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, apologized to his audience, and urged them to wait while he talked with Cyrus Vance.

Minutes later he was back with previously-unreleased information on the Iranian hostage crisis. "This won't be officially announced for another hour," Church told his audience, "but I know I can trust this group."

BOISE — After 24 years in the United States Senate, Senator Frank Church has seniority surpassed by only seven of the nation's 100 senators.

During his campaign this year, he'll be constantly using that seniority in the tradition-bound Congress,

The Politics of Seniority — Part III

If Republican Congressman Steve Symms is to win in November, he must convince Idahoans the benefits of starting on the bottom rung of the Senate seniority ladder outweigh the view from the top.

Only 34 of the nation's 100 senators are facing re-election this year. Even if every one of those incumbents retired or was defeated, Symms would enter the senate tied with 34 senators for 67th place in seniority.

The question of seniority is mentioned in many ways in Idaho's senate race, said Phil Reberger, a key Symms aide. When an elected official has been in office for nearly a quarter of a century, voters wonder what would result from his defeat.

"He's had an influence, one way or another, on everyone in Idaho," Reberger said. "Idaho has its inferiority complex; it's a legitimate and small state and a big name. After Idaho potatoes, the next thing they'll mention is Frank Church."

Reberger acknowledged Church's

OPEC solidarity crumbles

Muskie takes the oath

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Edmund Muskie, an immigrant's son who became a governor of Maine, took the presidential inauguration oath on Thursday as the 58th Secretary of State.

After taking the oath of office before 650 officials and diplomats in the East Room, Muskie said, "I'm going to polish this job."

Carter described Muskie as a "man-of-vision, reason and conscience."

After listing some of the problems that Muskie faces — Iran, Afghanistan, Cuban refugees, the Middle East talks, among others — Carter quoted acting Secretary of State Warren Christopher: "Ed Muskie is the man and today is the time."

Muskie succeeded Cyrus Vance to the top position in Carter's Cabinet. Vance resigned because he could not support the rescue mission for the American hostages in Iran.

Muskie described himself as a man who had been forged in the crucible of adversity in Congress, where "I had earned the good will of my beloved Senate and my beloved country." Muskie said Congress has brought a "kind of testing of ideas" that was unique.

The lanky Maine Democrat conceded he is not an expert in foreign policy but he described his principles in simple language: "To try to adjust with minimum prospects of violence... One man's freedom and where the other man's rights begin."

He said he was not practiced in the arts of diplomacy, "and I'm not sure I want to learn."

TAJF, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — OPEC leaders failed Thursday to agree on moves for gradual oil price increases but vowed they would not make up for cutbacks in Iranian production, meaning chaos on the world oil market would continue.

A communique issued after a two-day summit of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said, "The conference affirmed the intention of OPEC member countries not to compensate for (the loss of) Iranian products in international markets."

Analysts said this decision was a major victory for OPEC hardliners and would worsen the uncertainty plaguing the oil market, where buying contracts has raised OPEC prices above $35 per barrel and spot prices close to $40.

The drop — in Iranian production since the ouster of the former shah from some 6 million barrels per day to about 1.3 million barrels — has kept the world market in turmoil for the past year and contributed to a 100 percent increase in OPEC prices during 1979.

The summit promised no short-term relief for oil consumers from the soaring cost of OPEC crude, a fact Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani attributed — partly — to America's failed attempt to free the hostages in Tehran.

Commenting on prospects for OPEC to restore a unified price and overcome its current price chaos in which the Saudis charge $26 per barrel while other OPEC producers charge up to $35, Yamani told the Saudi Press Agency:

"I used to believe we could get back to a unified price when we meet in Algiers this June, but that hope is beginning to fade, considering the present increase in oil market prices as a result of the (U.S.) military operation in Iran and countries being scared that something might happen to interrupt the flow of oil."

"This decreases the possibility that prices will be unified at Algiers," Yamani said.

The ministers met to plot a long-term strategy under which a graduated series of price increases up to the level of alternative energy resources would replace the present pricing free-for-all. But the final communique indicated they failed to reach unanimous agreement.

"The meeting reviewed the report presented by the long-term strategy committee and approved it except for some reluctance about pricing presented by three member countries," the communique said.

The countries were not identified but they were believed to be Libya, Iran and Algeria.

OPEC also called for an increase in natural gas prices to parallel those of crude oil.

Analysts said this was a crucial factor since some OPEC countries — most of which are rich in natural gas — want OPEC to regulate gas prices as it does crude oil.

Fighting stalls Iran voting

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — On the eve of critical parliamentary voting, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini Thursday urged Iranians to elect "100 percent Muslim" representatives to the 360-member body that will decide the fate of the American hostages.

But in more than a dozen cities in west Iran where fierce fighting flared between Kurds and army troops, authorities postponed Friday's second round of voting for parliament in those areas.

The new parliament is scheduled to meet within six weeks and it was not immediately clear if the postponement of voting that authorities said was due to unstable conditions, including in several southern Iranian towns, would alter that timetable.

Officials have also said a question of the hostages in their 17th day of captivity, will not be the first issue taken up by parliament.

Lightning kills Texas man

LAREDO, Texas (UPI) — A bolt of lightning Thursday killed a 22-year-old man who was 48 hours from his wedding day.

Webb County Detention Center guard Juan Guerrero, scheduled to be married Saturday, was standing watch on a wall of the center during a severe thunderstorm during the afternoon.

Authorities said there was a loud clap of thunder and witnesses looked up to see the Guerrero slumping over.

Pope urges African solidarity

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — Pope John Paul II Thursday warned African nations not to allow themselves be exploited for their culture diluted by advanced nations prospecting for economic or political gains.

The pope gave his warning in a greeting to Ghana President Hilla Limann after flying the breadth of Africa from Kenya to Ghana, where he will meet for the first time with Robert Runcie, the new Archbishop of Canterbury.

"Africa has something distinctive to offer to the world," John Paul said, raising his voice.

"I therefore say to Ghana and all Africa: preserve your culture. Let it become enriched through exchange with other cultures but do not let your own culture die."

The pope later met with Moslem leaders and, citing the efforts of popes John XXIII and Paul VI, he pledged to further dialogue with Islamic nations.

Bolles case informer charged

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Prosecutors Thursday reinstated a first-degree murder charge against John Harvey Adamson in the car-bomb slaying of reporter Don Bolles.

Attorney General Bob Corbin said Adamson had violated the agreement with the state by refusing to testify in the retrials of Max Dunlap and James Tolson.

Adamson's testimony was instrumental in the convictions of the men in the 1976 killing of Bolles, a reporter for the Arizona Republic.

The Arizona Supreme Court in February overturned the convictions of Dunlap and Robinson, saying they did not receive a fair trial when Adamson was allowed to not answer certain questions under the protection of the Fifth Amendment.

Adamson refused to testify for the retrials on the grounds that a plea agreement was no longer valid. He asked for a new agreement with more concessions from the state, including his immediate release from prison.

Greece elects prime minister

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Greece's ruling New Democracy party Thursday narrowly elected Foreign Minister George Rallis, head of the party's liberal wing, as the country's new prime minister, succeeding Constantine Caramanlis.

Rallis, son of an old Athenian family that already had produced two prime ministers, was considered an outsider in the race for party leadership until two days ago.

Warden recants on con fight

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (UPI) — An event billed as a free-for-all to find the "toughest SOB" in the West Virginia Penitentiary will actually be an organized boxing competition with protective gear for the contestants, Warden Donald Bordenkircher said Thursday.

He said reports that the event was a bare-knuckle fight involving 10 inmates in a ring at the same time were false.

Bordenkircher said a memorandum he distributed among the prison's 633 inmates to explain the competition was misconstrued by critics.

The memorandum "tells inmates there will be a series of events 'to determine who is the toughest SOB' at the penitentiary. It sets the final event, on Oct. 5, as a 'free for all'... last man in ring standing is king of the mountain."

Bordenkircher said the memorandum was "screwed up" and misleading in places "even though I signed it."

Dust storm kills 60 in India

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — More than 60 people died and 1,000 were injured in a high velocity dust storm that lashed parts of northern Uttar Pradesh state early this week, the Press Trust of India reported Thursday.

Survived officials reaching the state capital of Lucknow said 50 people died in the district of Basti when the storm ripped through the area last Monday, the PTI said. Fourteen others, including seven children died in two adjoining districts.

FBI halts $1.75 billion fraud

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — FBI agents said Thursday they have foiled a fraud by four Texas and California businessmen who attempted to convince a Kansas City bank to transfer $1.75 billion to a Georgia bank account.

FBI spokesman Tony Triplett said he was uncertain of how the fraud scheme ranked among similar efforts in the country, but added, "I've never seen anything that big."

"The transfer of funds is a very common thing," Triplett said. "So there have been attempts before to transfer funds to non-existent accounts or from one bank to another."

Seniority — power gets things done

 time, Reberger noted. This can keep a senator from closely following his home state.
 At the same time the senator is gaining those years in office, a new generation of voters will be voting for the first time, Reberger added. If the senator hasn't campaigned among those new voters, he can't assume they will automatically endorse his career.
 Idaho voters expect their national elected officials to remain in touch with Idaho, "standing on the street corner, talking about their problems. After 24 years people think he's so totally into that Washington scene that he doesn't care about us," Reberger said.
 The Symms campaign is also raising another question they feel is important, Reberger added. "Can we afford that seniority?"
 Church is undoubtedly powerful, Symms' supporters say. But they question the use of that power and whether it hasn't been for undesirable ends.
 Church has been part of the majority party that gave the nation high inflation rates and high unemployment, Reberger said. Church has also used his seniority to oppose tax cuts and balanced budgets, he added.
 If Idahoans keep Church in office, they will be re-electing a powerful senator who will continue to fight against economic and spending reforms, Reberger said.
 Reberger and other Symms workers aren't the only critics of Church and his seniority.
 Republican Don Todd, executive director of the "Anybody But Church" organization, insists defeating Church won't forever strip Idaho of seniority or power.
 If just 10 more Republicans are elected to the senate, a goal Republicans can achieve by the next two elections, the GOP would gain a voting majority in that body, Todd said.
 A Symms victory would reduce to nine the number of Republican victories needed, Todd added.
 If the GOP gains control of the senate, Todd said, McClure would likely become chairman of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee. McClure would be transformed from the junior senator from Idaho and a minority member on the committee to one of the nation's leading energy authorities.
 Idaho would then still have a senator with power and seniority, even though it had defeated Church, Todd said.
 McClure and Symms would also be an effective Senate team, Todd said. Both are Republicans with similar ideological views. When Idaho has one Democratic and one Republican senator, their votes cancel each other out, he said.
 Not surprisingly, Church supporters see seniority differently.
 Church's legislative years and the accomplishments of those years were defended by the senator's press secretary, Cleve Corlett.
 Corlett listed several measures he said would probably not have been passed without Church's senatorial clout.
 "Last year the Carter Administration proposed cutting national rail service by 43 percent, including elimination of the Pioneer route through southern Idaho," Corlett said.

 "Frank Church led the national effort to keep train service in great and the Pioneer specifically," Church won that vote, Corlett said, but the victory was made possible because of the senator's power in the Senate.
 Church was also the author of the Rangeland Rehabilitation Act of 1978, Corlett said. "That's the single most far-reaching rangeland legislation since the Taylor Grazing Act of 1934. It commits the federal government to a 20 year program to rehabilitate the range."
 The Carter Administration opposed a Church proposal that the federal government be required to consider a rancher's production costs before setting grazing fees. The proposal required that in economically depressed years grazing fees would be reduced.
 The president fought that amendment, Corlett said. But because of Church's insistence, it was written into the final law.
 Church also wrote the measure revising the Reclamation Act of 1902, Corlett said. The final version of that act eliminated the provision limiting farmers to irrigating just 160 acres of land with federal reclamation water.
 Church's version of the 1992 law, while endorsed by most Idaho irrigation and farm organizations, was opposed by the White House.
 Idaho Democratic Party Chairman Wayne Fuller also praised Church's seniority.

"You bet it counts, especially in a small state," he said.
 "Seniority is a significant factor for some people in determining who they'll support. I have run into several instances where Church has helped people, and it appeared that because of his seniority and position he was able to get the job done quicker or get it done at all."
 "In some of these situations, they had exhausted all other resources, decided to call the senator, and he was able to help out."
 "I also think that on the basis of the legislative record, it's obvious Sen. Church has a great deal more clout than his opponent," Fuller said.
 Next, seniority in Oregon and Washington.

"One instance comes to mind and that's sugar beets. Symms was never able to muster enough support in the House to get a domestic sugar bill passed, but Church was always able to get the bills passed through the Senate. Church also forced Carter to agree to sugar supports that were higher than what they were willing to accept before."
 Next, seniority in Oregon and Washington.

Church has been part of the majority party that gave the nation high inflation rates and high unemployment, Reberger said. Church has also used his seniority to oppose tax cuts and balanced budgets, he added.
 If Idahoans keep Church in office, they will be re-electing a powerful senator who will continue to fight against economic and spending reforms, Reberger said.
 Reberger and other Symms workers aren't the only critics of Church and his seniority.
 Republican Don Todd, executive director of the "Anybody But Church" organization, insists defeating Church won't forever strip Idaho of seniority or power.
 If just 10 more Republicans are elected to the senate, a goal Republicans can achieve by the next two elections, the GOP would gain a voting majority in that body, Todd said.
 A Symms victory would reduce to nine the number of Republican victories needed, Todd added.
 If the GOP gains control of the senate, Todd said, McClure would likely become chairman of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee. McClure would be transformed from the junior senator from Idaho and a minority member on the committee to one of the nation's leading energy authorities.
 Idaho would then still have a senator with power and seniority, even though it had defeated Church, Todd said.
 McClure and Symms would also be an effective Senate team, Todd said. Both are Republicans with similar ideological views. When Idaho has one Democratic and one Republican senator, their votes cancel each other out, he said.
 Not surprisingly, Church supporters see seniority differently.
 Church's legislative years and the accomplishments of those years were defended by the senator's press secretary, Cleve Corlett.
 Corlett listed several measures he said would probably not have been passed without Church's senatorial clout.

Using the sun and wind

On display recently in Boise were two small panels of photovoltaic cells, the kind used in the space program to generate electricity from the sun's rays.

The panels belong to Steve Willey of Samuels, Idaho, who uses them and a small windmill to provide the electricity for his home. Steve does not use a lot of electricity, but he has enough for lighting, radio, television and a few other small appliances.

Willey's theme is that if you live where there are no power lines, you can tap the sun and the wind to enjoy some of the benefits of electricity.

While a typical home uses 500 to 1,000 kilowatt hours per month, Steve uses only 5 to 10. That amount, along with a propane-powered refrigerator, allows him to live something like those of us who receive monthly electric bills.

The solar panels are at their best in the summer when cloudy days are few. The windmill is most helpful in winter when there are more gusts in the hills around Samuels.

Willey notes that the plains of southern Idaho have far more wind than the hills of Bonner County.

Both solar panels and windmill store electricity in golf-cart-type batteries, two of them. The solar panels cost about $400 each. The small windmill sells for under $500. So a big bankroll is not required for limited electrical living.

There is hope that with mass production, the price of photovoltaic cells will drop to a fraction of the present cost. Even at $400 apiece, Willey feels they're a good buy in his situation. They should continue to produce electricity without maintenance for at least 20 years.

Willey says solar cells and a small windmill are not the least costly source of at-home electricity. The cheapest source would be running water. But most people don't have streams on their property.

Large windmills are available, says Willey, at $3,000 to $10,000. If you want the wind to supply a more typical amount of electricity for a household, it's impressive to observe the solar panels at work. In the Boise display they were providing electricity for a radio. You can find solar-heated homes in many Idaho communities, but photovoltaic cells are an oddity.

While the price is high, it is reassuring to see that solar technology is an energy option now, not at some distant future time.

The solar panels don't put garbage into the air or create long-lived toxic waste material. And the sun's energy is not subject to manipulation by a cartel. After seeing Willey's display and listening to his approach to home energy, you can feel a little better about the future.

Utility information good move

Thanks to the Public Utilities Commission, gas and electric bills will contain more user information as of July 1.

Those bills will contain considerably more information than in the past, but none more useful than comparing the monthly bill with the bill for the same month a year earlier. In short, the customer will be able to tell at a glance if his consumption is up, down or the same. Of course, he'll also be able to compare the cost.

If utility companies are serious about promoting conservation of energy, they'll agree such information is needed and will help drive home the point to consumers.

Other information, such as explanations of how rates are calculated, notification of rate hikes and clear language on deposit and service termination rules should help consumers better understand their utilities and how they operate.

Gone are the days when utilities can just send out bills for services rendered. The energy shortage makes it mandatory that all consumers be encouraged to use gas and electricity wisely and to do that they need detailed information.

President loses an opportunity

Was it important that President Jimmy Carter attend the funeral of the late President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia?

Carter spurned the trip and sent Vice President Walter Mondale and his mother, Lillian Carter, instead. It was viewed as a snub by a number of foreign diplomats and by the Yugoslavian people themselves.

It seems to us that Carter should have welcomed being put in the international spotlight, particularly in view of America's troubles abroad. He would have had an opportunity to rub shoulders with a myriad of leaders, who came from all corners of the globe to pay tribute to Tito. He may even have opened a dialogue with some of them.

Right now, Carter needs all the support he can get for American foreign policy. He should have viewed this trip as a way to shore up loose ends and to prove he is a leader worthy of world stature. After all, he is the president, not Walter Mondale.

Instead, Carter opened himself up to needless criticism and allowed Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to "one-up" the U.S. by attending in person.

Punctuation battle

WASHINGTON — In an age of "factoids" and "sound bites," editors and authors need to be clear and concise. Robust, robust, robust are welcome. But Paul Robinson, a contributing editor of The New Republic, has gone too far in an essay in that journal: He has said rude things about semicolons and parentheses.

He says the period and the comma "are the only lovely marks of punctuation" because they are "simple, and the period is especially lovely because 'innocent of ambiguity,'" whereas, "More than half the semicolons one sees, I would estimate, should be periods, and probably another quarter should be commas."

"Far too often, semicolons, like colons, are used to gloss over an imprecise thought. They place two clauses in some kind of relation to one another, but relieve the writer of saying exactly what the relationship is."

Halt right there, Robinson. What is so marvelous about simplicity? Why this dislike of ambiguity? Why these "Semicolons do 'indeed' signal rather than shout, a relationship. Therefore, they require a reader to read, really read. The reader must bring an active mind to bear on what the writer is doing. A semicolon is a compliment from the writer to the reader. It says: 'I don't have to draw you a picture; a hint will do.'

If you don't believe me about the noble semicolon, believe a doctor, Dr. Lewis Thomas, president of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, who also writes a column for The New England Journal of Medicine. He says:

"The semicolon tells you that there is still some question about the preceding full sentence something that needs to be added; it reminds you sometimes of the Greek usage."

"It is almost always a greater pleasure to come across a semicolon than a period. The period tells you that that is that; if you didn't get all the meaning you wanted or expected, anyway you got all the writer intended to parcel out and now you have to move along. But with a semicolon there you get a pleasant little feeling of expectancy; there is more to come; read on; it will get clearer."

Surely there is one supreme rule: That punctuation is best which best serves to make writing subtle, simple, delicate, nuanced and efficient. Of course, you can write using only periods and commas for punctuation. You can cook using only salt and pepper for seasoning. But why do it when there are so many seasonings pleasing to a mature palate?

Robinson also frowns on parentheses (and dashes — they often serve similar ends). He says they "are of course indispensable," but that selling them is "syntactical defeats." Indispensable defeats?

He says parentheses and dashes "generally betoken... laziness," an unwillingness to present things "in the most logical order." Thus "every random thought, every tenuous analogy gets dragged in." Come now.

Of course, parentheses can be used promiscuously. So can salt, pepper, dill, sage and cloves. Parentheses are for thoughts that are related to other thoughts not randomly or tenuously, but parenthetically. Parentheses are for writers (such as, I am sure, Robinson) whose minds do not lumber like a truck on a straightaway but rather soar and swoop and change directions gracefully, like a swallow at home in the whole sky.

On this subject, among others, I asked Dr. Thomas "the last word, playfully."

"There are no precise rules about punctuation (Fowler lays out some general advice, as best he can under the complex circumstances of English prose; the points out, for example, that we possess only four stops (the comma, the semicolon, the colon and the period) (the question mark and exclamation point are not strictly speaking stops; they are indicators of tone (oddly enough, the Greeks employed the semicolon for their question mark (it produces a strange sensation to read a Greek sentence which is a straightforward question: Why weepst thou? (instead of Why weepst thou? (and, of course, there are parentheses (which are surely a kind of punctuation making this whole matter "much" more complicated) by having to count up the left-handed parentheses in order to be sure of closing with the right number (but if the parentheses were left out, with nothing to work with but the stops, we would have considerably more flexibility in the deploying of layers of meaning than if we tried to separate all the clauses by physical barriers (and in the latter case, while we might have more precision and exactitude for our meaning, we would lose the essential flavor of language, which is its wonderful ambiguity))))))))))))."

He says parentheses and dashes "generally betoken... laziness," an unwillingness to present things "in the most logical order." Thus "every random thought, every tenuous analogy gets dragged in." Come now.

Church's response: Was it all political?

Editor, Times-News: Prior to the abortive rescue attempt of the hostages last week, the militants holding them had made threats against them if the U.S. carried out any military action.

When the rescue effort failed, Senator Church's immediate reaction was to charge that President Carter had flouted the law (the War Powers Act) by failing to consult with the Congress in advance, thereby implying that the rescue attempt was a military action. Had the militants decided to act against the hostages because of the rescue attempt, Senator Church's allegations would have given them all of the ammunition they would need. Fortunately, none of Senator Church's colleagues in the Congress joined with him in his charge, and the militants did not choose to act.

But the question remains — was Senator Church's reaction a responsible one, or was it motivated by his own political considerations in an election year.

Solve the problem with simple method

Editor, Times-News: If a light at each school costs too much, why not a simple and less expensive method?

A pipe with a removable cap on top to keep dirt out put down in middle of road flush with pavement such as they use to put the flag poles in, then a rod or pole such as bike riders have on the back of their bikes with a bright colored flag on top that can be seen four or five cars back either way.

The crossing guard could put these out early every morning and then keep watch and write down numbers of anyone speeding over 15 miles per hour or passing in school zone.

In some larger cities they have lines of $50 and it is a rare case of any child being hit.

So why could this not be done here? The parents of children could make it a summer project and have ready for school in the fall.

I don't see how it would call for an act of Congress for something like this to be done.

Proposed Forest Service cutbacks run into opposition

WASHINGTON — Despite the drive to balance the federal budget for fiscal year 1981, there is compelling evidence that key congressmen want to increase the budget of the U.S. Forest Service above the reduced spending level which President Carter has requested.

In two days of hearings which ended last week, members of the House Appropriations Committee Subcommittee on Interior and Related Agencies expressed sentiment to increase the forest service budget. Among those who chimed in were subcommittee chairman Steve Yates, D-Ill., Rep. Bob Duncan, D-Ore., and Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash.

"They don't think much of the president's budget," said one observer of the hearings. "It was a bipartisan feeling, unanimous among conservatives and liberals."

Carter's proposed Forest Service budget for fiscal year 1981 is $2.1 billion, $50 million below the budget which went to Congress in January.

Dissatisfaction with Carter's proposed cutting of the Youth Conservation Corps became clear even before the hearings began, during the informal dinner among Yates and Forest Service chief Max Peterson and Assistant Agriculture Secretary Robert Cutler.

"I think we'll disagree with the president on the YCC cut," Yates told Peterson and Cutler.

During the second day of hearings, Dicks cited the concern of Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., for the YCC and said, "I would hope the Forest Service would recognize there is tremendous support for this program (YCC) in Congress. The return on the dollar spent on the YCC is up. This seems to be an excellent program which has done a lot for the national forests."

Chairman Yates spent a good deal of time attempting to draw out chief Peterson concerning the adequacy of Carter's budget.

Yates asked Peterson, "What I am trying to get to, and I know it's embarrassing, is how much is needed to do the job. We have to worry about the condition of the national forests."

Peterson replied, "The president's budget for 1981 is considerably better than his budget for 1980 was."

Asked Yates, "What about in constant dollars?"

Said Peterson, "This budget is a little less than the 1990 budget, when inflation is cranked in."

In addition to dissatisfaction with the Carter budget for the Forest Service, members also expressed particular interest in the future downturn in timber supply in the Pacific Northwest, research into more complete utilization of hardwoods and the Forest Service's free-firewood program as well as projects that wood might become a larger component in the nation's energy supply.

Concerning the future supply of timber in the Pacific Northwest, Yates asked Peterson whether there would necessarily be a future reduction in timber harvest in the region.

To the extent that the timber shortage is not offset by increased utilization of wood or by departure from the even flow, non-declining yield policy, there will be a decrease in timber harvest between 20 and 30 percent in the Northwest in the future, and that would result in mills shutting down," said Peterson. "It's a real serious problem."

Asked about the likelihood of the Forest Service giving the okay to timber harvest in the Northwest beyond the even flow, non-declining yield level, Peterson said, "There will need to be some increase in participation by the national forests. But, frankly, I don't see it completely offsetting the timber shortage in the region."

"There needs to be some increase in timber harvest in that region, but we're already at the allowable cut level," Peterson added.

Noting that the timber harvest nationwide was to be reduced from 12.2 billion board feet to 11.9 billion board feet in fiscal year 1981, Peterson pointed out that these harvest reductions would occur in the Rocky Mountain states, not in the Northwest.

Budget hearings are one thing and House action is another, especially in a volatile political year such as this when balancing the budget has made born-again fiscal conservatives out of several congressmen and senators. But so far, the people who matter, and that includes a number of congressional heavies from the Northwest, say the Forest Service must be more fully funded, lest the national forests not be maintained against the day when the timber shortage arrives.

Ford to speak, Nixon skips GOP convention in Detroit

NANCY KASSEBAUM
...temporary chairman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One former GOP president, Gerald Ford, will make a major speech at the Republican National Convention July 14.

However, the other — Richard Nixon — will not be attending, chairman Bill Brock said Thursday. Ford will speak at the opening session of the four-day convention in Detroit. Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan will make the keynote address July 15, Brock announced.

In outlining the party's convention plans, he also disclosed that Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., will be temporary chairman, the first woman to hold a top GOP convention post. And Dr. Aris Allen of Maryland, the party's first black state chairman several years ago, will be convention secretary.

Asked if Nixon would have a convention role, Brock replied: "No." Asked why, Brock said: "He has indicated he will not be there."

Ford and Nixon are the only living ex-presidents.

Brock would not confirm reports that Ronald Reagan, front-runner for the Republican nomination, has decided to keep him as national chairman. If he wins the nomination, the former Tennessee senator referred questioners on that subject to the former California governor.

But Brock said "no areas of disagreement" arose in a recent meeting with Reagan, giving the impression he would stay on. At the same time Brock stoutly refused to declare that Reagan has the nomination locked up, saying, "I don't think any race is over as long as you have competition."

In announcing the convention program in advance of the last GOP national committee meeting before the Detroit gathering, Brock said: "This country is wracked by crises on every front, both domestic and foreign. We need a new start as we enter this challenging decade, and this convention will give us that opportunity."

Primary setup scored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said Thursday the current hodge-podge of 36 separate state primaries weakens the system of selecting a president.

He urged the Republican Party to take the lead in moving to a regional primary system.

Packwood, testifying to the GOP platform committee which is developing a party platform to present to the July 14 convention, said some small states now have undue influence in the election process while other larger states have little say over who the party nominees will be.

The system "has developed into a series of media events aimed at attracting attention in the mass media rather than thoroughly addressing issues," Packwood argued.

Packwood was one of many senators and House members testifying before the committee, which is holding a series of hearings around the country before the GOP convention July 14.

Most of the testimony dealt with major issues such as defense, energy, education, the economy and foreign policy. All the speakers pushed for the traditional GOP stands on these subjects.

However, Packwood chose to use his time to push for a change in the way the parties choose their candidates.

KIDS VICTIMS OF TWO-INCOME FAMILIES

Having both parents working may allow a family to survive double-digit inflation but it may cause problems with the children, according to Harvard psychiatrists. Drs. Barrie S. Greff and Preston K. Munter. "Parents have to help their children deal with the anger, hostility, rebellion and feelings of abandonment that their absence can cause," they wrote in Harvard Magazine. They also counsel parents not to burden their kids with responsibilities, for running the household — "that only cheats them out of their childhood and confuses them about parental roles." Gosh, now they'll never take out the trash or feed the dog.

Mustard-clad escapade labeled as 'religious experience'

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — The attorney for three sisters charged with taking off in a parcel service truck clad only in mustard says what they did was not crime.
 He says it was a religious experience.

And an assistant Ingham County prosecutor says the case might be "fun" for a jury.
 The three pleaded innocent in Ingham County Circuit Court Wednesday to charges of indecent exposure and jaywalking in the April 17 incident. One wore a mustard-colored scarf to court.

The Lansing Township women are "not guilty of any crime," said John Mertz, their court-appointed attorney. "They were just worshipping God in their own way," he said, although he conceded that way was a bit "unorthodox."
 One of the three earlier said she and her sisters were "filled with sunshine and the Holy Spirit" when the incident occurred.

Township police answering a complaint about naked women spotted at United Parcel Service driver chasing down the street after his truck. When they pulled the truck over, officers said, they found the three inside naked and smeared with mustard.

Kim Eddle, an assistant prosecutor, say it would "be kind of a fun case for a jury."

"It wouldn't have the usual serious tone of criminal cases where somebody got robbed or hurt," he said.

Stripping divides feminists

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "To go and oggle the bodies of men, as men do so long and so hard, is just not a liberal, feminist thing to do," a feminist leader protested.

"I certainly don't plan to attend," huffed another.

Protesters rallied a feminist leader who organized a fund-raising event Thursday night featuring male strip teasers.

The sex-exploitation when men pay to watch women strippers, she said, but not when women pay to see men.

The controversy may have split the Los Angeles area feminist movement, but it made the night a sell-out, said organizer Gloria Allred.

"We expect a capacity crowd of about 400 at $15 a ticket," said Ms. Allred, prominent feminist attorney and president of the Women's Equal Rights Legal Defense and Education Fund.

"News reports about the protests really helped sell the tickets."

The fund is sponsoring a show at Chippendale's, a club in suburban Culver City that features male strippers. The revenue goes to a program teaching women how to collect support payments from ex-husbands without paying lawyers.

If nothing else, said Ms. Allred, that should counter the charge that feminists "have no sense of humor."

"We do, and we think it will be fun," she personally don't find it funny.

Not at all, protested Shelly Mandy, president of the Los Angeles chapter of the National Organization for Women.

"Is sex for bucks, right?" said Boots Jones, vice chair of the local branch of the National Women's Political Caucus. "As feminists, we do not necessarily copy the bad behavior of men. This sets the cause of feminism back."

Ms. Allred was in the unaccustomed position of defending herself from charges of sexism.

"I agree that when women strip that is exploitative. Some women have to strip to support their children. They might only be able to work as secretaries or manicurists or domestics, positions worthy of respect, but all low paying."

"Men have a world of positions open to them. They don't have to do this. When men strip it's a joke, not exploitation," she said.

One of those dancers is an accountant, you can't tell me he does this for the money."
 Yes he does, said Stan Soburn, 31, a CPA who performs as the unknown stripper with a hair over his head, slipping down to a G-string studded with flashing lights.
 He and the other dancers do not strip totally nude. It's old that in another club and it was really tacky. This is a class revue."
 "I do this because I'm a dancer, an entertainer, but also for economic reasons. It's a fun job and you make $800 a month."
 "I'm all for the feminist movement, but I don't think women are forced into stripping any more than we are. Stripping is as much a matter of choice for the women strippers I know as it is for us."

Revenue sharing revived

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its drive to finish the 1981 budget, the Senate approved a plan to continue revenue sharing for states Thursday, deciding by voice vote to restore $700 million that had been cut during committee hearings.

The amendment that won approval was sponsored by Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan. It would restore $700 million for state revenue sharing, taking the money from categorical grants — those that can only be spent for specific purposes set by the federal government — to state and local governments.

Senators voted 59-30 against killing the Kassebaum measure, then accepted it on a voice vote.

Mrs. Kassebaum's was the first of several attempts — most supported by the nation's governors — to succeed in keeping the state revenue sharing program alive. She said the money would not come from grants to individuals, such as food stamps and Medicaid, or from education or training grants.

Earlier in the day, Republican leader Howard Baker failed, 49-44, in a separate effort to restore state revenue sharing, which was eliminated from the new fiscal 1981 budget by both the House and Senate budget committees.

Baker, R-Tenn., wanted to restore the $1.7 billion program, which was whacked from President Carter's January proposal as the administration and congressional budget committees cut spending plans to produce a balanced budget.

He proposed cutting categorical grants to states, which are designated for specific uses, in order to restore the more flexible general revenue sharing funds.

Baker said the flexibility which the revenue sharing money gives the states is "as important to the future of this self-governing society as any single program funded by the federal government."

The House rejected a similar proposal before it passed a $611.8 billion budget Wednesday — designed to give the government its first surplus in 12 years — for the fiscal year beginning in October.

House approval of that proposal, which calls for almost $8 billion less in military spending than the Senate's $2.9 billion plan, set up a major battle with the more defense-oriented Senate during the conference meetings that will result in a compromise budget.

The compromise must be reached and passed by both houses before May 15.

Slush fund charge denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HUD Secretary Moon Landrieu accused a congressman Thursday of creating "unfounded suspicions" about the department and said there was no truth to the charge that a slush fund had been created with federal money.

Rep. Herbert Harris, D-Va., charged last week that HUD had created a slush fund by committing billions of dollars to housing projects in the last weeks of the fiscal year, then backing off some of the commitments and using the money for other purposes.

Harris based the charge on an investigation done by Congress's General Accounting Office.

During the hearing, Harris avoided using the term slush fund as he had earlier, but he noted the GAO investigation showed that nearly half of HUD's six billion in housing aid was committed to spending projects.

House acts on food stamps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House faced with a June 1 deadline for a food stamps cutoff, Thursday passed a series of proposals to slow down inflation-led increases in the program's costs.

The amendments were estimated to save $688 million spread over this fiscal year and fiscal 1981.

If the House fails to pass authorizing legislation plus an appropriations bill by May 15, the law says Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland must inform state governors to cut off stamps to 21.4 million Americans on June 1.

The benefits would be restored quickly when Congress eventually acts.

The House also voted to save:

- $436 million by adjusting food stamp benefits to account for cost of living increases annually instead of twice a year.
- $122 million by delaying for a year a more generous medical deduction in determining eligibility for benefits.
- $20 million by reducing the limit on assets of food stamp households from $1,750 to $1,500, except for households of two or more with an elderly person.
- $50 million by cutting out benefits to college students, except heads of a household or part-time workers.
- $50 million by foregoing an inflation-related increase in the poverty index that would have increased the number of families eligible for stamps.

In another action to meet next week's deadline, the House Appropriations Committee sent the full House a $2.5 billion bill to fund the food stamp program from June through September to the beginning of the next fiscal year.

The full House, the Senate committee and the full Senate also must approve the pending bill before May 15.

The House must iron out differences in its authorization bill with a bill passed by the Senate last year.

Suzuki session set Saturday

TWIN FALLS — Elaine Worley, director of the Southeast Idaho Suzuki Institute, will be guest instructor at a Suzuki piano workshop Saturday.

The workshop is to be held at the LDS Seminary building, 421 Maurice St. N. Registration will be at 8:30 a.m. Sessions are planned for students, teachers and parents.

The Suzuki method of music instruction was instituted by Shinkei Suzuki of Matsumoto, Japan, to enable children to develop musically as naturally as they develop talking and walking skills. Through frequent hearing of good musical recordings and learning first songs and techniques by rote, the ear develops pitch and tone sensitivity. The mother's participation with her child in practice sessions is a vital factor for building a close, mutual awareness and love for music.

Worley of Pocatello received training under Haruko Kataoka, Suzuki piano authority of Japan.

She will work individually with students during the workshop and they are expected to have review pieces prepared as well as a polished piece suitable for performance. Music-reading classes will also be available to students not yet reading. Sessions for teachers will encompass teaching the pre-school and beginning student; right hand and left hand techniques; formalization and developing musical sensitivity.

Parent education class will include the purpose of music education for small children; nurturing enthusiasm and developing ability and the importance of parental involvement.

A recital will be held at 3:30 p.m. Tuition is $5 for students and $10 for teachers. Those interested in observing or learning more about Suzuki are welcome. There will be a $5 charge.

Being gay not the same as being happy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My heart goes out to the heartbroken parents of a gay daughter. Thank you for recommending Parents & Gays. They have been a godsend to us and other parents who ask themselves, "Where have we gone wrong?"

My husband and I are very grateful that our gay daughter has found a warm and stable relationship with a person she loves and who loves her. Her housemate is as welcome and accepted into our family as the man who married our other daughter. Because being gay has caused our daughter so much pain, I will be the first to admit I wish she were not gay, just as I wish my hair wasn't curly and my husband didn't smoke. But these are things I cannot change, so I have learned to live with them. I hope the parents of that gay daughter will accept her and the girl she loves, and get on with living the rest of their lives.

CONTENT PARENT: DEAR PARENT: Curly hair can be straightened and your husband can quit smoking if he really wants to, but in my opinion, the fundamental CAUSE of homosexuality is biological — either genetic or hormonal.

Otherwise, how can one account for the fact that homosexuals have brothers and sisters who are straight though raised in the same environment? However, it is possible for psychological factors to influence one's natural sexual preference after birth.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a European-born gentleman (Hungarian) who, upon greeting a woman, always gently kisses her hand. I think this is a lovely gesture. Can you tell me where the custom of kissing a lady's hand originated, and the reason for it?

ANNETTE IN BURLINGAME DEAR ANNETTE: It originated in France. And although there is nothing in literature explaining the reason for it, I suppose a man has to start somewhere.

DEAR ABBY: The other day you had a letter in car column from a woman who signed herself PRETTY FEET. She said her husband was crazy about her feet and was really turned on by them. She wanted to know if maybe he was some kind of "nut."

You told her that he was no nut; he had a foot fetish, and it was nothing to worry about.

Well, Abby, you'll never know how much that explanation meant to me. You see, ever since I was a little kid, I'd get real excited over girls' feet. I never understood why. I used to feel ashamed when I'd ask a girl if I could kiss her foot. I'm sure a lot of girls thought I was weird.

I'm a grown man now, and I'd still rather hold a girl's foot than her hand. Thanks for printing that letter. It's a great relief to know I'm not alone.

Overweight almost like failure

By BARBARA VARRO
Chicago Star-Times

Overweight has become, particularly for women, another word for imperfection.

Fat equals failure in our society: A heavy woman just doesn't raise a 10 and she can't track it as a sex object.

The prevailing negative attitude about the amply endowed is unfair and unfeeling, says sociologist Marcia Millman, who believes that many overweight people's lives are diminished by society's idealization of thinness. She believes that people often suffer more from the social and psychological stigma attached to being overweight than they do from the potential health problems associated with it.

"It isn't just the obese who are suffering from discrimination," says Millman, a professor at the University of California at Santa Cruz. "I know a lot of average-weight women who hate themselves for not being thinner: size 10s, for instance, who want to be a size 8. They put so much time and energy into worrying about their weight."

The increasing emphasis on thin as beautiful in our society prompted Millman to write a book examining the phenomenon. Her research for "Such a Pretty Face: Being Fat in America" (Norton, $10.95) included interviews with hundreds of people ranging from the acutely obese to the slightly overweight.

What does it mean to be fat in America today? Millman found that heavy people may be subjected to derision and discrimination, even though thinness is merely a trend that didn't begin until well after the turn of the century. Until then, the round and voluptuous Rubens-like figure was in vogue. Then, several decades ago, thin began to be equated with rich, and advertisers promoted the idea that slim is best. The masses were hooked. They began to grasp for any fat diet, pill or book that promised them an easy route to slimmness.

"There has been so much written about losing weight," Millman says, "that I just thought it was time to look into how biased we are and how thoughtless it is to assume that everyone has to be thin to get along in this world."

She views the subject of overweight as a kind of feminist issue.

"My book started out as a study of discrimination toward overweight people in general," she says. "But as I talked to people, I saw that weight is an important issue in many women's lives, and not just those who are obese. The constant dieting and self-berating is a recurrent theme among women. Perhaps it is one more of society's ways of controlling women's lives."

A woman who does not meet the so-called slender ideal, Millman says, is likely to be the object of sneers or verbal abuse and may even experience job discrimination. Whereas overweight men are treated differently.

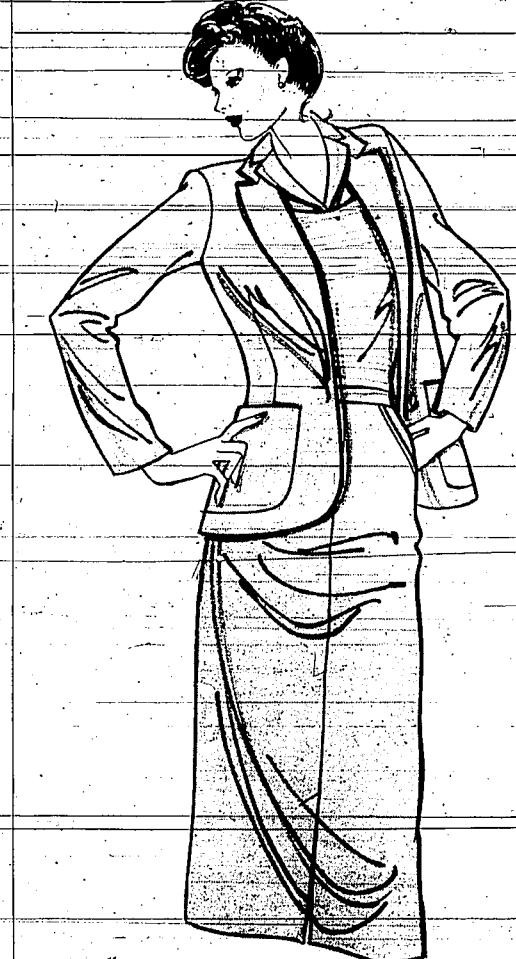

"Men generally don't feel disqualified from social life if they are overweight. If a man is successful at work, people see more than his weight. Whereas if a woman is fat, that is the primary thing that defines her in most people's eyes."

She feels that the constant struggle to reach the "ideal" state of slimmness puts a terrible burden on women. "When you are fat in this society it is easy to develop low self-esteem. People negate your body and say things like 'She has such a pretty face' or 'She has such a sweet personality.' It is very hard not to end up hating yourself. It society stereotypes the overweight as a lax and undisciplined person who is not going through the pain of trying to be an 'ideal' sexual object like other women."

Oil stocks absorb beating as Wall Street turns wobbly

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even though interest rates fell sharply, the stock market finished on a wobbly note Thursday.

Hardest hit were oil stocks, which took a fierce beating.

Trading was active.

Brokers said much of the oil-stock selling was caused by speculators' disappointment over Mobil's report on Tuesday about the results of its drilling offshore Newfoundland.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up more than 2 points after registering a 5.21-point win Wednesday, gave up 6.06 points to 815.19. The Dow had risen about 60 points in the past three weeks, so the market was ripe for some profit taking.

The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.50 to 60.52 and the price of a share decreased by 25 cents. Declines and advances were about even among the 1,822 issues traded at 4 p.m. EDT.

In addition to the Mobil report, brokers said the recession, created in part by tight Federal Reserve credit policies, is proving to be steeper than anticipated.

Big Board volume totaled 39,280,000 shares, down from the 42,600,000 traded Wednesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 40,877,512 shares, compared with 48,704,120 Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index fell 2.64 to 251.65 and the price of a share eased 18 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks lost 0.32 to 143.28.

Mobil lost 3 to 66½ in active trading as speculators pondered the Hibernia field report. Among the other partners, California Standard lost 1¼ to 67½ and Columbia Gas ¾ to 38 on the NYSE. Gulf Oil of Canada gained 7½ to 12½ on the Amex.

Among the other oil and related issues, Superior fell 5 to 141, Indiana Standard 3 to 85½, Union Oil of California 2¼ to 46½, SEDCO 2½ to 71¼, Schlumberger 2¼ to 104½ and Murphy 2¼ to 80½.

At 4 p.m., Citicorp was the most active NYSE-listed issue, unchanged at 21½ in trading that included blocks of 137,000 shares and 120,000 shares, both at 22.

Boeing was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, off ¾ to 32½. Colgate-Palmolive was third, off ¼ to 14¾.

Sears, Roebuck, which reported a 4.3 percent drop in April sales, was the fourth most active issue, up ¼ to 17½ in trading that included a block of 119,100 shares at 17½.

Morrison-Knudsen climbed 1¼ to 11¾. The company received an order from American Trading Transportation Co. for six ocean vessels costing about $50 million each.

Loews Corp., a 3-point winner Wednesday, lacked on 1½ to 73. The company said its profit could be stronger in its stock. But the firm said it bought a block of 390,000 of its warrants on the Amex for 45. The issue led the Amex activist list, up 2 to 45.

Seaboard World Airways jumped ¾ to 14¾ after the Civil Aeronautics Board approved its merger with Tiger International. Tiger stock finished unchanged at 21 ½.

On the Amex, declines edged advances, 271 to 261, though the 714 issues traded at 4 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 3,550,000 shares, compared with 3,790,000 Wednesday.

Loews warrants topped the Amex list and Ranger Oil followed, up ¾ to 23½. Resorts International was third, unchanged at 32½.

Mortgage rate chopped in Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Valley National Bank, Arizona's largest, cut its interest rate on mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration to 11.5 percent Wednesday.

Bob Wilbanks, manager of real estate marketing for the bank, said the 1.5 percent drop in the rate reflected the nationwide decline in prime interest rates and was aimed particularly at helping builders.

Wilbanks explained that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development sets a maximum interest rate for FHA and VA loans, now 13 percent. Banks may set their rates anywhere below the maximum.

While the lower interest rate was aimed at helping builders, Wilbanks emphasized it was open to all customers on FHA and VA mortgages.

He said he anticipates HUD will lower the maximum rate "very shortly, probably to 12 percent."

Graham Mortgage Corp. of Phoenix also said it was giving 11.5 percent FHA loan commitments to builders to help them sell homes that have not attracted buyers.

Robert Lillye, a Graham loan officer, said he expected the prevailing FHA rate to drop to 11.5 percent within a week.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat was higher, corn and soybeans substantially higher and oats 17½ cents higher at the close Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was unchanged to up 1½ cents, corn up 1½ to 14, oats up 1½ to 31 and soybeans up 25 to 71 ½ cents.

Chicago Thursday reported mostly professional and large commercial activity in moderate trading. The focus of trader interest continued to be the grains, especially wheat, which some observers thought included day-trade long positions. Heavy corn contracts off highs but kept values well above Wednesday's settlement.

Oats futures also came off session highs on selling in the open house and commercial buying and selling.

A large sale of November soybeans by a professional house resulted in low prices down.

There were reports of a large Chinese purchase of soybean oil, which traders said helped group prices across the board, but export news remained highly volatile.

The outside markets were higher.

Heinz files report on transfer practices of subsidiaries

PTTSBURGH (UPI) — H.J. Heinz Co. said Thursday it has finished a year-long investigation into income transfer practices over a seven-year period by three domestic affiliates.

The company also said it filed a report of the investigation with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, D.C.

A spokesman for Heinz's board of directors said that "without the knowledge of corporate management, certain subsidiaries engaged in improper sales, expense and income transfer practices."

A company spokesman identified the subsidiaries as Heinz U.S.A., the firm's major domestic food manufacturing unit, based in Pittsburgh; Starkist Foods Inc., a Terminal Island, Calif.-based producer of tuna fish; and Ore-Ida Foods Inc., a Boise, Idaho-based producer of frozen potatoes.

"While these practices clearly violated the company's established code of ethics, they did not materially affect its financial results over this period," the directors' spokesman continued. "We are satisfied that all the practices in question have been stopped."

The practices began in the company's 1972 fiscal year and continued through fiscal 1979.

Donald Wiley, senior vice president, secretary and general counsel, explained that the report was filed with the SEC as part of the regular form 8-K, a periodic filing requested by the government.

Buhl's Bob Ekru became a double winner in the A-2 district shotput and discus events Thursday

District track

Jerome trio sets precedent

TWIN FALLS — Jerome, the home of the distance runner, set a state precedent to kickoff A-1 and A-2 district track competition Thursday.

Senior Gerry Leininger, sophomore Robin Mehl and junior Jim McKean—all broke 9:50 in the 3200-meter run, making Jerome doubtless the first school ever to have three men under 10 minutes in one race.

McKean was the target of this senior effort by the Tigers because they were running undefeated. The plot was just the first two could advance to the state finals in Boise next week unless the third place bettered the qualifying time of 9:55.

The threesome ran by itself, McKean, who made state as a freshman but not last year, setting the pace for the first mile. Then Leininger, the favorite, took the lead and Mehl went with him. The Jerome crowd thundered encouragement throughout the race as McKean, his eyes appearing to glaze over the last three laps, struggled to keep up.

Coming down the stretch Mehl showed the most concern, glancing back to see how McKean was coming. By now the junior was pushing his own determination. He plunged across the line in 9:49 and collapsed on the grass. Teammates and fans tugged at him while he begged to be left alone for a while. But he recovered quickly.

Setting the pace was his own idea, according to Coach Tim Dunn. "We told him and the guys to do whatever they had to do to get him into state. I guess he felt he had to do the most."

McKean turned the first half mile in 2:11 and hit the mile at 4:40. "That 4-40 is the second-fastest I've ever run the mile (alone)," he said. "The first I dropped out."

"That's got to be a first," Coach Dunn said. "Three guys from one school under 10 minutes in the same race — $50," he corrected himself. "I'm excited" and for one the low keyed Jerome mentor did indeed appear excited.

"We needed that," he added, referring to a battle for state honors next week.

The Jerome distance emphasis overshadowed an excellent performance by Minico's Ralph Lara, who was next up. The Spartan senior ran within a second of his career best in posting a 9:43.9 to win the title. Twin Falls' Eric McManaman posted a creditable 10:06 in his first try in the event.

In the girls division, Twin Falls sophomore Julie Yorgensen fought off a stretch bid by teammate Cindy Crow to win the A-1 3200-meter title by maybe a foot in 11:47.3. But Bruin senior Terri Barron wrapped that up with a fourth-place finish, smiling broadly as she crossed the finished line and announcing "my last time EVER."

Buhl junior Robin McDevitt pulled slowly and steadily away over the last mile to win the A-2 crown.

Those were the only titles settled on the track but Buhl senior Bob Ekru, in the middle of his second week of track this year, collected a pair of field event crowns. He took the shotput in 49.5 and the discus in 196.1.

Those were the only titles settled on the field—winning—all-four-finals Thursday. Bruce Walden took the pole vault at 12-6, nipping Wood River's Bob Montgomery on fewer misses and Bill Wagner grabbed the triple jump at 40-10.

In the girls A-2 field events, Diane Hill of Jerome uncorked a fine 138-2 effort to win the discus while Janice Schrader of Jerome took the high jump on fewer misses as three girls peeked out at 41-0.

There was a little drama in the A-1 boys shotput ring where senior Mike Prater came up with his best series and single effort to throw a scare into favored teammate Norm Dowd.

Prater uncorked a 51-6 1/2 in the preliminaries and had five of his seven throws over 50 feet. That barrier had defied him in competition throughout the season.

"He was putting it on," Dowd said of the pressure and it wasn't until his sixth throw that he inched ahead of Prater. On his seventh Dowd established his personal best of 52.3 1/2.

But Prater wasn't about to feel that bad. "It's my best in 17 years," he smiled over the 51-6 loss.

Burley ousts Minico, hosts Bruins in finals

By IRWIN CURTIN
Times-News sports writer

RUPERT — Alan Merrell and Jeff Wright Thursday proved too much for the Minico Spartans.

Merrell scattered 11 hits and struck out five, and Wright went 2-3 with three RBI, as the Bobcats beat Minico 6-4 before about 30 fans and advanced into today's District Four A-1 championship game with Twin Falls.

Burley (17-11) and the Bruins (13-11) square off at Burley at 1 p.m. If Twin Falls wins that contest, the Bruins advance to next week's state A-1 tournament in Idaho Falls. If Burley wins the 1 p.m. game, the two teams will take a 15-minute break and go at it again for the tournament berth.

Senior righthander Kerry Brown (3-1) will pitch for Twin Falls, while Burley will start Wright (7-4) or Craig Jones (2-2), both senior righthanders.

With Thursday's defeat, Minico ended its season at 15-11.

"I threw a lot of fastballs and my knuckleball was working well. They couldn't hit it. No, I wasn't firing at all. I was just firing it," said Merrell, a senior righthander, who had excellent control for most of his route-going performance and increased his record this season 68-4 with the win.

"Alan did a super job," said Burley Coach Dean Satterfield. "He gave up a lot of hits, but they were scattered so they didn't hurt too much. And he only walked one guy. That's control."

"The kids hit the ball early in the game and if we do that, we're going to win our share of ball games. All we did yesterday—in practice—was hit. We didn't even take fielding."

"We had a lot of intensity today, too," he said. "We were more aggressive at the plate and didn't take a lot of pitches."

The Bobcats were particularly aggressive at the plate during the game's first four innings, after which they led 6-1.

With one out in the first, Merrell reached on an error by senior shortstop Bruce Truxall, advanced a base on a wild pitch and then scooted home when Wright smacked junior southpaw Bruce Christiansen's first pitch into right field for a single. Wright's line drive nearly decapitated second base umpire Rich Maggard, who dove to the infield grass for safety.

Minico answered with a run in the bottom of the inning when, with two out, senior first baseman Scott Maggard lined a 1-1 pitch into left-centerfield scoring senior centerfielder John Patton from second base. Patton led off the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second.

Burley added two more runs in the second on Merrell's RBI single and a walk to Wright with the bases loaded.

Minico's Jeff Schow, a junior senior baseman, led off the third with an infield single and then drove in with the double and senior righthander Kyle Carpenter's RBI scoring single.

Minico struck back for two in the fifth when Schow (single) and Parkin (double) stroked consecutive runs into the inning. The Bruins' junior righthander Kyle Carpenter's RBI scoring single.

The Spartans briefly raised the hopes of their faithful in the seventh, when senior leftfielder Don Dutton stroked a one-out double to deep left-centerfield to score Maggard, who'd preceded him with a single.

But Merrell retired the next two hitters and Burley has its championship appointment today with Twin Falls.

"I called Jeff out because the coach (Baumann) came out of the coach's box and assisted the runner by touching him," Schow, the umpire, said.

Parkin died on second base as Merrell retired the next two hitters.

Burley added a single run in the third, on a walk and two hits in the final two innings, on Wright's RBI double and senior righthander Kyle Carpenter's RBI scoring single.

Baseball talks

Cincinnati writer suggests one-game fan boycott to protest

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A sports columnist Thursday urged baseball fans to boycott next Tuesday night's Cincinnati Reds game to protest the "state of affairs" that may produce a players' strike later this month.

The president of the Reds reacted by saying he "may send the columnist a black suit because 'he's an undertaker'."

Cincinnati Enquirer columnist Mark Purdy asked fans to boycott Tuesday night's Reds-New York Mets game at Riverfront Stadium to demonstrate disdain for both baseball management and players in their contract negotiations.

Purdy complained that while a threatened May 22 players' strike is becoming more likely, fans "are being asked to come out to the ballpark as if nothing is wrong...being asked not to worry about the negotiations—and just-to-please-put-down $5.50 for a ticket."

"Fans," declared Purdy, "do not have to stand for this state of affairs."

"By the physical act of attending a game, a fan is (1) depositing money in a ball club's bank account and (2) giving players one of the most satisfying ego massages known to mankind.

"Which brings us to my challenge," Purdy wrote in his column. "It is a challenge to both the fans who believe the owners are right and the fans who agree with the players."

"It is a challenge based on the notion that the best way to convince the owners and players that their game is a luxury item, not a necessity, is to ignore them."

"It is a challenge to boycott the game between the Reds and the Mets next Tuesday night, May 13, at Riverfront Stadium."

"Specifically, if you were thinking of buying a ticket to next Tuesday's game, don't. If you have a season ticket, don't use it, and send the unused ticket after the game to either a player or an owner along with a letter telling him you are upset about the situation and have had enough."

"What would it prove? Plenty. It would prove to management that the customers aren't happy it would prove to the players that fans shouldn't be taken for granted. And maybe, just maybe, management and players would put pressure on their negotiating representatives to hurry up and settle the problems."

But Reds' President Dick Wagner said Purdy's boycott call would prove nothing.

"It makes about as much sense for him to take this approach as it would for me to ask people not to buy his newspaper if there was talk that there might be a newspaper strike in the future," said Wagner.

"I think Mark is a very good writer, but he is turning negative. He's wearing his digging suit, his undertaker suit. I might have to send him a black suit. I'm serious."

Asked how much a boycott might hurt the Reds financially, Wagner said, "I won't even discuss that part of it. I just don't think the idea makes any sense. You have to put this in perspective. It's our position that there's no need for a strike."

Two players attend another fruitless session of negotiations

NEW YORK (UPI) — With Reggie Jackson and Jerry Koosman sitting in on the negotiations, baseball strike talks reached a dead-end turn Thursday as both sides agreed to disagree on two issues — compensation and the pension plan.

This week's sessions have ended and they will resume next Tuesday in New York and will continue until the May 22 deadline.

"Things are moving like molasses in Alaska," said Jackson.

"I don't think much headway is being made," a published Koosman said. "We are willing to take the same percentage we got in the old contract but the owners want to take things away from us."

"The public seemingly wants baseball, but we may have no recourse but to stop playing May 27 and everyone — the players and public — will suffer."

"What Reggie and Jerry said is not tough talk," said Marvin Miller, Executive Director of the Major League Players Association. "It's a realistic attitude while it must be understood that management wants us to work with a contract that's four years old."

Management, represented by Ray Grebey, agreed that there were differences in the pension plan and compensation issues, but reiterated, "We think we can continue to negotiate the various issues while playing baseball as we did in 1976. Since April 1, we have been negotiating about the player-proposed and no-one considers them important."

Dave Vaughn, general counsel with federal mediator Kenneth Moffitt, indicated that the intensity of the talks would increase next week.

"The negotiations have moved in a traditional pattern," he said. "There is a ritual in which has been followed. I believe both parties have emotions differences over a couple of issues but they will negotiate more intensely next week. I still believe the issues can be settled through collective bargaining."

McEnroe breezes, Connors collapses in tennis tourney

NEW YORK (UPI) — With old antagonist Jimmy Connors an early casualty, top seed John McEnroe wrangled up a probable day for himself by blitzing Terry Moor 6-3, 6-2 Thursday night to advance to the quarterfinals of the $500,000 Tournament of Champions.

Connors, coming off a magnificent victory over McEnroe in the WCT final Sunday, was unconsciously dumped from the richest of all tennis tournaments earlier in the day, losing to Vijay Amritraj of India 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

"I wanted to win for them," said Amritraj, explaining that both parents were watching him for the first time in seven years. "With them here, I didn't want to lose."

The field of seeds was further thinned for McEnroe when No. 4 Eric Dibbs, winner of this tournament last year under a different format, was upset by Mexican Raul Ramirez 6-3, 6-3 despite sweeping the first four games.

Third seed Vitas Gerulaitis and fifth seed Vico Pecci of Paraguay also advanced to the quarterfinals, with Gerulaitis beating Peter McNamara of Australia 6-4, 7-6 (7-1) and Pecci ousting Andrew Pattison 6-1, 6-4.

While Connors had to contend with cold, calm conditions during the game, the sun was shining over the West Side

Tennis Club when McEnroe made his appearance in the evening.

The New Yorker, his temper flaring despite the one-sidedness of the match, argued on the very first point and before the first set was out he had received one warning from umpire Jeffrey Lesling for delay of game another for abusing an official.

McEnroe was penalized a point of delay in the seventh game of the second set for abusing another official, but he still achieved a break after the game went to extra deuce.

Amritraj, who now has beaten Connors in four of nine lifetime meetings, including twice this year, had won the opening set Wednesday night and was leading 2-1 in the second when rain caused the suspension.

Connors, though, came back to win the second set with breaks in the seventh and ninth games.

Connors broke Amritraj for the third time in a row to begin the final set, but the 28-year-old Indian broke back in the second game and made the decisive break at love in the eighth.

Connors, unusually mellow in defeat, said the fact he had drawn a first-round bye and had little practice on clay hurt him.

"If I had gotten through today, I would have been better tomorrow. If I won tomorrow I would have been better the next day. It's just one of those things. The more practice I got the better I would have been."

Buhl's Bob Ekru became a double winner in the A-2 district shotput and discus events Thursday.

District track

Jerome trio sets precedent

TWIN FALLS — Jerome, the home of the distance runner, set a state precedent to kickoff A-1 and A-2 district track competition Thursday.

Senior Gerry Leininger, sophomore Robin Mein and junior Jim McKean all broke 9:50 in the 3200-meter run, making Jerome doubtlessly the first school ever to have three men under 10 minutes in the event.

McKean was the target of this super effort by the Tigers because they were running undefeated. The plot was just the first track would advance to the state finals in Boise next week unless the third place bettered the qualifying time of 9:55.9.

"We needed that," he added, referring to a battle for state honors next week.

The Jerome distance emphasis overshadowed an excellent performance by Minico's Ralph Lara, who was next up. The Spartan senior ran within a second of his career best in posting a 9:43.9 to win the A-1 title. Twin Falls junior Eric McManaman posted a career best 10:06 in his first try in the event.

In the girls division, Twin Falls sophomore Julie Yergensen fought off a stretch bid by teammate Cindy Crow to win the A-1 3200-meter. Little by maybe a foot in 11:47.3. But Brulin senior Terri Barron wrapped that up with a fourth place finish, smiling broadly as she crossed the finished line and announcing "my last time EVER."

Buhl junior Robin McDevitt pulled slowly and steadily away over the last mile to win the A-2 crown.

said of the pressure and it wasn't until his sixth throw that he inched ahead of Prater. On his seventh Dowd established his personal best of 52.92.

But Prater wasn't about to feel that had. "It's my best in 17 years," he smiled over the 51-6 toss.

Burley ousts Minico, hosts Bruins in finals

By IRWIN CURTIN
Times-News sports writer
RUPERT — Alan Merrell and Jeff Wright Thursday proved too much for the Minico Spartans.

"Alan did a super job," said Burley Coach Dean Satterfield. "He gave up a lot of hits, but they were scattered so they didn't hurt too much. And he only walked one guy. That's control."

lined a 1-1 pitch into left-centerfield scoring senior centerfielder John Patton from second base. Patton led off the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second.

"I called Jeff out because the coach (Baumann) came out of the coach's box and assisted the runner by touching him," Schow, the umpire, said.

Baseball talks
Cincinnati writer suggests one-game fan boycott to protest

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A sports columnist Thursday urged baseball fans to boycott next Tuesday night's Cincinnati Reds game to protest the "state of affairs" that may produce a players' strike later this month.

It would prove to the players, that fans shouldn't be taken for granted. And maybe, just maybe, management and players would put pressure on their negotiating representatives to hurry up and settle the problems."

NEW YORK (UPI) — With old antagonist Jimmy Connors an early casualty, top seed John McEnroe wrapped up a profitable day for himself by blitzing Terry Moor 6-1, 6-2 Thursday night to advance to the quarterfinals of the $500,000 Tournament of Champions.

McEnroe breezes, Connors collapses in tennis tourney

Two players attend another fruitless session of negotiations

NEW YORK (UPI) — With Reggie Jackson and Jerry Koosman sitting in on the negotiations, baseball strike talks took a mild downward turn Thursday as both sides agreed to disagree on two issues — compensation and the pension plan.

McEnroe was penalized a point a decade in the seventh game of the second set for abusing another official, but he still achieved a breakthrough after the game went to eight deuces.

Early games prove NBA series will go limit

LEWIS, Calif. (UPI) — The opening half of the Lakers' game was slow time for the Philadelphia 76ers and their display of basketball was simply unimpressive.

In Los Angeles got its turn and the Lakers' display in the second half was just as spectacular as the 76ers' had in the first.

Philadelphia hung on for a 107-104 victory in the second of the NBA finals, evening the championship series game again, and the game went a long way toward determining Sunday's opening game, the Doctor made a prediction.

"When one team gets real hot," the Philadelphia star forward said, "the idea for the other team is to back it off, don't come back, you get blown out, here will be no blowouts in this series."

Philadelphia appeared ready to bury the Lakers in the second, surging to a 23-point lead in the third quarter. But

Los Angeles came back faster than a bad check, whittling the 23-point deficit to a single point on two occasions in the final 2 1/2 minutes of the game.

A 12-foot jumper by Bobby Jones with seven seconds remaining and the 76ers clinging to one-point lead closed out the game's scoring and assured the 76ers of the win as the teams return to Philadelphia for the third and fourth games Saturday and Sunday.

Erving, who had 12 points in the opening quarter, offered another theory following Game 2.

"We expected them to come back at us," he said. "We just hoped they'd run out of gas or we'd get the big play. Tonight, we got the big play but it didn't come until the 11th hour."

In Sunday's 109-102 victory by the Lakers, Philadelphia center Darryl Dawkins had 12 points and three rebounds. He had the same totals Wednesday night. In the second quarter, he finished with a team-high 25 points while Erving and Maurice Cheeks added 23 each.

The victory overshadowed yet another awesome performance by Lakers' center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 38 points and grabbed 14 rebounds. In the first game he had 33 points and 14 rebounds.

Wednesday night, Dawkins hit 11-of-20 field goals, six coming from 20 feet. He was surprised when a swarm of reporters asked about his outside shooting.

"I don't know why you're all so surprised," the massive 6-foot-11, 265-pounder said, running his hand over his diamond-shaped nose. "I shot like this all season, especially down the stretch. Why would you think this was a spectacular game?"

Los Angeles Coach Paul Westhead was as surprised as anyone with Dawkins' long-range bombs.

"He really hit the outside shot better than we'd ever seen him," Westhead said.

Abdul-Jabbar and Westhead had different views on the game.

"We're a stronger, more confident team now," said the Los Angeles coach. "I really believe this game did us a lot of good. We showed we could play poorly and (fire back at them). You hate to lose, but a real positive feeling came out of it."

Abdul-Jabbar didn't share Westhead's positive feeling.

"It's tough to lose after playing so terrible in the first half and then playing great in the second half," he said.

Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham best summed up the series so far.

"This thing is between two teams that want to win a championship badly," he said.

It was announced after the game that Lakers' forward Spencer Haywood was suspended indefinitely for "activities disruptive toward the team," according to Westhead. Haywood fell asleep at a practice last Friday and arrived late for practice Tuesday and was fined. Following Wednesday night's game, in which he played just two minutes; he reportedly had a loud argument with Westhead about his lack of playing time.

Crucial series CSI entertains Ricks today

By IRWIN CURTIN
Times-News Sports Writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho's doubleheader today with Ricks College will likely determine which of the two teams advances to regional play next week.

If the Golden Eagles (17-15) sweep the twinbill, which starts at 1 p.m. at Frontier Park, they will have a 4-0 lead in the annual series with Ricks that determines a berth in the regional tourney.

CSI bombed Ricks 14-0 and 6-0 in a doubleheader at Rexburg two weekends ago, while the other twinbill scheduled there was rained out.

And, according to CSI Coach Jim Walker, Rexburg Coach Val Dalling will decline to play Saturday's scheduled doubleheader if his Vikings lose two games today.

"His feelings in his team doesn't have a chance," Walker, who spoke with Dalling earlier this week, said. "I said, 'Hey, give your club a little more respect than that.'"

Concerning the Golden Eagles, who've won six of their last seven games, Walker said his team is "just starting to get going."

"I've seen a lot of good things in practice this week. I just really like the way they're running. They're doing things on their own—pickoffs, throwing behind the runner, knowing where they are. They're really helping each other and moving each other around. They're doing things they should be doing."

He was asked what he considered the primary reason for the Golden Eagles' recent turnaround.

"We've got the right people on the right spots and they're enjoying where they're at. Maybe the fun is back in the game again," Walker said. "I think they actually look forward to practice now. They still wanted to hit at 9:30 last night. They're doing those things they have to on their own to get better."

Sophomore right-hander Darryl Banks (5-1) will start today's first game and, if the Golden Eagles win the second game, "I maybe I'll try to throw everybody in the second game," Walker said.

Next week's regional playoff will be either at Treasure Valley Community College or North Idaho Junior College. Treasure Valley, with a 3-1 lead in the two teams' qualifying series, travels to North Idaho for two doubleheaders today and Saturday.

NHL playoffs Flyers clinch spot in finals

By United Press International

One of the teams that will play in the Stanley Cup finals is the Philadelphia Flyers, who put together a record 35-game unbeaten streak early in the regular season before cooling off in the second half, showed why they were the NHL's regular-season points champion Thursday night by beating the Minnesota North Stars 7-3 to clinch their semifinal berth in five games.

The naming of the Flyers' opponents in the finals was delayed when the Buffalo Sabres blanked the New York Islanders 2-0 to close New York's advantage in the series to 3-2. Game 6 is scheduled for Long Island on Saturday.

Once again, Bill Barber was the spark for the Flyers, as he scored two goals to tie an NHL record for most goals in a playoff series. Barber, who has eight goals in his last three games, finished the series with nine goals, tying the major club team record set by Reggie Leach in a five-game series against the Boston Bruins in 1976. Barber has 11 goals in the playoffs.

He also set a club record for most points in a series with 12. His shorthanded goal in the first period was his third of the playoffs, tying a mark set by Deyck Sanderson of Boston in the 1969 playoffs.

Leach added two goals for the Flyers and Rick MacLeish, Bob Dalley and Bobby Clarke added single goals. Goalie Phil Myre remained unbeaten by picking up his fifth win.

Barber gave the Flyers the lead for good, 2-1, at 6:26 of the first period with his shorthanded goal. Leach scored his seventh goal of the playoffs at 12:16 on a power play, before Al MacAdam cut the margin to 3-2 at 17:11 on a power play.

Myre closed out a 40-footer past Minnesota goalie Gary Edwards just 32 seconds before the end of the period and Philadelphia took a 4-2 lead. Leach got his second goal at 3:33 of the second period and Barber made it 5-2 at 6:02. Bob Flockhart backhanded a rebound past Myre at 14:43, but Clarke closed out the scoring at 16:19 on a 15-foot backhand.

In the Sabres' victory, John-Van Boxmeer and Richie Dunn scored power-play goals to back the 22 saves of goalie Bob Sauve, as Buffalo avoided elimination for the second straight game.

The Sabres got off to a 1-0 lead just 1:52 into the game when Van Boxmeer, a defenseman switched to forward because of injuries, blasted a slapshot from the left face-off circle past the right side of Islanders goalie Glenn Resch. Dunn got the Sabres' second goal at 14:45 of the first period, blasting a shot past Myre at 16:19.

The shutout was the second of the playoffs for Sauve, who blanked the Chicago Black Hawks in a quarterfinal game.

Padres overhaul Chicago UNM academic record poor

CHICAGO (UPI) — Kurt Bevacqua's two-run pinch-hit off Chicago reliever Bruce Sutler keyed a four-run inning in the eighth inning to lead the San Diego Padres a 5-victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday afternoon.

The Padres trailed 4-0 entering the eighth when Dave Atfield walked and went to third on a double by Willie Montez. Sutler, 22, came in to relieve Chicago starter Ed Reuschel and was greeted with an RBI single by Bill Beck. Pinch-hitter Jerry Turner was intentionally walked and Bevacqua's single scored Montez and catcher Paul Dade. Bevacqua and Turner executed a double-strike, scoring Turner from third with the last run of the inning. Winfield added the final run with an RBI double in the ninth.

Eob Shirley, 21, who got the final two outs in the ninth inning, picked up the win while Rolfe Fingers led out the Cubs the rest of the way to record his third win. Fingers got out-of-bases-loaded situation in the storm of the ninth by getting Larry Blittner to ground out.

Chicago had taken a 6-3 lead in the fifth by scoring five runs off San Diego starter Gary Lucas. Lenny Randle, Bill Eckner and Dave Kingman delivered RBI singles and Jerry Martin a two-run double in the inning.

Chicago 3, Royals 2

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rookie Britt Burns scattered nine hits and struck out five batters in a five-inning effort to lead the Chicago White Sox to an 8-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Burns, 3-2, struck out a season-high eight and walked only one in going the distance for the first time in five starts. Frank White's home run in the second inning was the only run the left-hander allowed until the ninth when the Royals put together three hits to score one run.

The White Sox scored three runs off loser Paul Spittorff, 3-2, in the second inning on a single by Chet Lemon, a triple by Wayne Nardengen, a single by Washington, a stolen base, an infield out and a sacrifice fly by Greg Pryor.

Chicago knocked out Spittorff in the fifth with a three-run uprising that featured a sacrifice fly by Johnson, an RBI single by Washington and an error by shortstop U.L. Washington which allowed the final run to score.

In the seventh, Chicago made it 7-1 when Lemon scored on a wild pitch by Steve Busby and the White Sox added their final run in the eighth when Johnson singled in Junior Moore, who had doubled.

NHL Penguins dismiss coach

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Penguins Thursday fired coach Johnny Wilson, laying the blame for the team's poor showing in the second half of the 1979-80 season "at his door."

No successor was named.

Penguins board chairman Vincent Bartimo said the club did not play up to its potential during the last half of the season.

The record has to be laid at Wilson's door, though he was not totally to blame," Bartimo said.

Bartimo, who said his prepared statement also reflected the views of owner Edward J. DeBartolo, made the announcement after a meeting of the executive committee and discussions with general manager Baz Bastien.

Idaho university baseball hears death knell

By MARK SHENEFELT
BOISE (UPI) — University baseball in Idaho is lapsing to throes of death that also might trigger drastic changes in the Nor-Pac and Pac-10 conferences.

Boise State announced this week it was dropping baseball to save money for its Big Sky Conference sports programs. The move followed Thursday that the University of Oregon would abandon the sport for similar reasons.

The departure of Boise State and the possible departure of Idaho and Seattle from the Nor-Pac Baseball League would leave the conference with five teams and ineligible to compete in the NCAA Division I playoffs.

Nor-Pac Commissioner Harland Beery said in a telephone interview it was likely all three schools would drop out of the league.

"We can't afford to lose all three of them, but we probably will," he said.

"If Boise State is the only one, there's no real problem, other than it's a concern any time any school drops baseball, especially as long as Boise State's had a program."

The NCAA requires a minimum of six members to get your automatic donation spot — that's what really concerns us."

The disintegration of the eight-team league could sow the seeds of a marriage between the Nor-Pac survivors and disaffected northern members of the Pac-10, Beery suggested.

Idaho's baseball coach has resigned, and the Moscow school is reluctant to hire a coach for what might be only a one-year commitment to baseball. Thus, Athletic Director Bill Bolkan has asked the university administration to provide funding for three years of baseball if one package.

"There may be the hang-up," he (Idaho President Richard Gibb) is not likely to accept a three-year commitment."

Seattle, which has announced it plans to leave Division I and drop to the "equivalent" of Division III in baseball, now has two choices, Beery said. He said he would like officials would leave one sport, baseball, at the Division I level. But he said it was more likely that the school would convert its baseball program to an NAIA independent competitor.

The move away from university baseball in Idaho began in 1974, when the Big Sky dropped the sport. Idaho State

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) —

Football and basketball players at the University of New Mexico have performed pitifully in their efforts to earn academic degrees during the traditional four years, according to a study by Robert Weaver, UNM's dean of admissions and records.

However, he said, the student-athletes followed a national trend by showing "marked improvement" in their third and fourth years.

Even with that improvement, though, some 80 percent of athletes in those two sports at UNM never earn their degrees, according to the study.

"The degree completion experience in major sports like football and basketball is pitiful, especially in terms of the traditional four years," Weaver said in the report.

It contains the explosive nature of past athletic regimes and the low quality of the recruits," Weaver said.

"As a modifier, it must be pointed out that the University of New Mexico and national trend is to take longer and longer to complete a degree.

"A range of five to eight years to complete a degree is not uncommon here."

Weaver's study, which covered the academic progress of student-athletes during the past 10 years, was trig-

Idaho State spokesman Glenn Alford said

the Bengals dumped the sport six years ago partly because of the weather. "In the last year we played baseball we had 44 games scheduled and ended up playing 23, and only two of those were on the dates scheduled," Alford said.

Rain-outs send baseball budgets into disarray, Beery said. Trips made to play games that are rained out must be repeated later in the season and cost costs higher.

With the potential of a non-NCAA Division I league next year, Beery said the Nor-Pac survivors might try to form a league with the northern teams in the Pac-10.

He said the Pac-10 playoff qualifying system is weighted for the southern teams, so the northern teams have a tough time making it to the NCAA playoffs. This could make it attractive for the northern Pac-10 members ally themselves with the remaining Nor-Pac teams, Beery added.

No matter what, he said, "We're not going to collapse the conference."

"It's kind of ironic that this year (for the first time our two leading teams, Boise and Portland) are in the running for tournament berths in the year that may be our last."

Palmer accepts golf bid

COLUMBUS (UPI) — Golfing great Arnold Palmer has accepted an invitation to play in the Memorial Tournament May 19-25 at Muirfield Village Golf Club. "I have always enjoyed myself at Muirfield," he said. "It's a fine course and a fine tournament. I am very pleased to be a part of the Memorial again in 1980."

Palmer has won 61 tour events and 79 worldwide and has earned more than $2 million in winnings. "Having Arnold in this year's Memorial should prove to be very popular with the galleries and we are pleased to have him back," said Muirfield Executive Director Larry Title.

Palmer will be joining other prominent stars, including host Jack Nicklaus, former Memorial Tournament champion Tom Watson, Jim Simons, Roger Maltbie as well as David Graham, Hubert Green, Hale Irwin, Tom Kite, Jerry McGee, Jerry Pate, Gary Player, Ed Sneed, Craig Stadler, Larry Wadkins, Tom Weiskopf and Fuzzy Zoeller.

Argentina joins boycott

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Argentina said Thursday it has joined the boycott of the 1980 Olympic games in Moscow. "The government's energetic condemnation of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan would be best expressed by refusal to participate in the Olympic games."

"We take into account the possibility that massive participation in the Olympic games could be interpreted as a demonstration of political support to this interventionist act," the statement said. "The government wouldn't want the eventual participation of its athletes to be used to validate deeds which have been classified as an assault on peace and international security."

The Argentine government said it had "carefully analyzed" the consequences of Argentine participation in the Games.

"The Argentine government has especially kept in mind the need to preserve the sporting character of the Olympics and avoid the establishment of a precedent that confuses their true meaning."

"The Argentine national government, reaffirming its principals and its clear stand of defending Western values, and maintaining the position it took last January 10 (when it condemned the invasion of Afghanistan), has decided not to participate in the Olympic games of 1980."

Celts fight with shares

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics chose not to give their trainer or assistant coach full shares of their NBA playoff earnings and voted only a half share to newcomer Pete Maravich. It has been reported.

The players last week voted 11 full shares and three half shares, giving 44 players a full $14,000 each. Had the squad voted 14 full shares, each person would have received $12,500.

Voting traditionally is kept secret, but the Lynn (Mass.) Daily Item reported this week that manager Red Auerbach and 12 of the eligible players voted, with Dave Cowens, Don Chaney and one other unnamed player abstaining.

The team won $175,000 for posting the best record in the NBA and reaching the semi-finals of the playoffs where they were eliminated in five games by the Philadelphia 76ers.

At least one player argued that Maravich, who joined the team late in the season, should get nothing, the item said.

Trainer Ray Melchiorre, who traveled with the team throughout the season, was first voted nothing and finally given a grudging half share, the newspaper said.

Assistant Coach K.C. Jones wound up with a half share after the players asked club owner Harry Mangurian whether he would put up a matching amount should they vote the former Celtic player half.

Ford won't buy team

ATLANTA (UPI) — The business agent for actor Glenn Ford said Thursday his client has decided not to buy the Atlanta Flames, meaning the hockey team will almost certainly move to Calgary.

Ford had been studying a financial history of the Atlanta team this week and Flames fans were hopeful he would buy the team and keep it in Atlanta.

However, Lloyd Zeiderman, Ford's business agent, said in Los Angeles the actor had decided not to go ahead with the sale.

Flames owner Tom Cousins decided to put the team up for sale after the end of last season. Cousins said without television revenues he could see no way to stop the steady losses the team is incurring.

Two Calgary brothers have offered a reported $14 million for the team and Cousins is expected to take that offer soon. The Seamon brothers want to move the Flames to the Calgary, where they have been negotiating with city officials to build an arena.

Final negotiations haven't been completed, but Flames President Bob Kent said Wednesday the Flames were "90 percent certain" to be moved to Calgary unless Ford came up with a cash offer.

Winfield promotion sags

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Some 16,000 Dave Winfield tote bags — conceived as a gate give-away promotion by the San Diego Padres baseball club before Winfield's popularity dipped — will be used to fund a two-week tour of Japan for a team of 15-year-old San Diego baseball players.

The bags, still in the Buffalo, N.Y. warehouse of the Chase-Bag Co., were to be used as a combined promotion for the Padres and a San Diego savings and loan institution, but when Winfield's astronomical salary proposals were made public and his popularity plunged commensurately, Padre brass decided not to stage the bag promotion.

Chase Bag had gone ahead and printed Winfield's likeness on the bags without final authorization and was stuck with printed but unfinished products.

PGA meet washed out

DALLAS (UPI) — Thunderstorms Thursday forced cancellation of the first round of the $300,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic at the Preston Trails Golf Club.

Tournament officials said 16-hole qualifying rounds will be played Friday and Saturday, and those making the cut will play a 36-hole finale on Sunday.

"There are very few years when we haven't had rain delays or showers during a round or something like that," said Nelson, the one-time golfer great for whom the tournament is named.

"But we don't get washed out very often. That's why we suspended play. And then so much time went by that few golfers would have been able to finish their rounds."

Only 12 golfers — and none of the favorites — had teed off and no one had played more than two holes before play was suspended.

The Nelson has attracted the best field of the three-stop Texas leg of the tour, including Tom Watson, winner of the Byron Nelson the past two years, who has been in Dallas for several weeks working on his game.

Also playing are Texas favorite Lee Trevino and Jack Nicklaus, who is making his seventh appearance on the tour this year.

Kingman to miss 3 games

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago left fielder Dave Kingman will miss at least three games after suffering a jammed right shoulder in Thursday's 9-6 loss to the San Diego Padres.

Kingman hurt his shoulder when he scored and fell in a five-run fifth inning.

"Our trainer says he will probably miss about three games because it is going to tighten up on him," said Chicago Manager Preston Gomez.

Kingman has been mired in a slump the past three weeks. He has had only four hits in his last 34 at-bats.

Alcohol Olympics draw big field, no staggered starts

VALENCIA, Calif. (UPI) — About 4,000 athletes, all with backgrounds in alcoholism, compete Saturday in the eighth annual Alcoholie Olympics at the College of the Canyons, and about the only qualification for entrants is that they be sober.

Staggered starts are banned in the running races, according to Kurt Freeman, the games organizer who professes amazement at the way the idea of athletic competition for alcoholics has caught on among rehabilitation groups.

Freeman believes that what he calls Psychotherapeutic Recreation is the key to recovery for many alcoholics who have decided to stay sober.

Because of the U.S. boycott of the official Olympics Games in Moscow this year, Freeman has arranged some international competition at the Alcoholie Olympics.

"We picked a U.S.A. team to compete against Guatemala, El Salvador and Canada and you'd be surprised at how the people competed to get on it," Freeman said. "Canada is sending down 28 people from Edmonton, El Salvador has about 25 people who were already in the United States getting treatment for alcoholism."

"Then of course we have our usual unit of Canadian New York (UPI) — Unbeaten Wilford Scypion of Houston, with 14 knockouts in his 15 victories, will face hard-hitting Mustafa Hamsho of Brooklyn, N.Y., on June 15 in a nationally televised middleweight bout, Madison Square Garden announced Thursday.

The site of the bout has not yet been determined. Scypion gained nationwide prominence last year when he knocked out Willie Classen at the PFL Forum in New York and Classen died as a result of the fight. Classen's death triggered a restructuring of rules regarding the safety of boxers in New York.

Hamsho, a former Syrian national champion currently ranked seventh by the World Boxing Council, also has tremendous punching power in both hands. Hamsho, a left-hander, is 8-1-1 and has knocked out his last 14 opponents. His only loss was to a light heavyweight, Pat Cullio, in his first pro bout and he avenged his only draw by pummeling Reggie Jones in a sixth-round technical knockout in Atlantic City on March 29.

Mike Jones, one of Scypion's managers, said Thursday he felt his fighter was over the aftermath of the tragic Classen fight.

"I think it bothered him a lot at first," said Jones, "but I think he's over it now. I think Wilford knows it wasn't his fault. It was something that just happened. I worried about it a lot Mounted Police and a mariachi band from Guatemala, and charros from Mexico. We'll have a colorful opening ceremony."

"The theme of this year's Alcoholie Olympics is 'Worldwide Recovery.'"

"You can take that idea in many ways," said Freeman. "With our recovering alcoholics, we feel the exercise they get is most important and what's more it makes them feel they are a part of a living society. You're a winner if you just compete — you don't have to finish first in the competition. This is a race for sobriety, for life. We want people to be involved in a wholesome type of activity where they can enhance their well being rather than turn on to life in an unnatural way through alcoholism."

Competition includes track and field events and more mundane pursuits such as horseshoes, the Frisbee throw, and darts.

Special attention is given to youngsters who come from families where there is an alcoholic parent.

"We have about 200 youths attached to alcoholism programs, one way or another," said Freeman. "Many of them have a parent who is an alcoholic. The kids get lessons in prevention, education and treatment just by being at the competition."

Scypion signs for TV debut

We'll stay active and look for the 11th shot. All I know is that a fight between Wilford and Wold would sell the Garden. It can't miss."

Garden officials also announced three 10-rounders as an undercard to the closed circuit telecast from Montreal of the WBC welterweight title fight between champion Sugar Ray Leonard and No. 1 contender Roberto Duran of Panama on June 20.

Carmelo Negron, ranked fourth among WBA featherweights and unbeaten in 12 fights, will face Davby Vasquez, the sixth ranked junior featherweight; Johnny Turner of Brooklyn, N.Y., will take on Mike Michael of New York in a welterweight fight; and Juan LaPorte, winner of 13 of 14 fights, will take on Fel Clementes of the Philippines in a featherweight bout.

Plugged Nickle out of Preakness

NEW YORK (UPI) — An ankle injury suffered during the May 3 Kentucky Derby will prevent John M. Schill's Plugged Nickle from running in the Preakness at Pimlico, trainer Tommy Kelly said Thursday.

Plugged Nickle, the winner of the Wood who was one of the favorites for the Derby, finished seventh behind Genuine Risk and suffered a cut on his right rear ankle. The injury was at first thought to be superficial, but the leg began to fill and Kelly was forced to withdraw the colt from the second leg of the Triple Crown in Baltimore.

"It looks like he got jumped on going into the first turn at Church Hill Downs," said Kelly. "We thought it was superficial, but then we X-rayed it and it's not a pleasant situation."

"He's sound as a dollar and happy as a claim — he just can't run like that," said Kelly. "We're applying hot and cold compresses. The Preakness is out and the Belmont (then a question mark at this point).

Workers fill the 100-foot-high balloon with helium

Balloonists to attempt transcontinental flight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A father and son attempting to make the first trans-continental balloon trip "balled up" along the coast of California, West Coast, traveling 25 mph 16,000 feet in partly cloudy skies.

Maxie Anderson, 45, Albuquerque, N.M., one of three Americans who crossed the Atlantic by balloon in 1937, and his son Kris, 22, lifted off from a windswept spot near the Golden Gate Bridge.

By midmorning they were reported 20 miles west of Bishop, close to the Nevada line, and making "very satisfactory progress" in their four-day, 10,000-mile odyssey eastward to Kitty Hawk, N.C., scene of the Wright brothers' first airplane flight in December 1903.

"There's nothing sure in flying a balloon — each attempt has its own problems," Maxie Anderson said before boarding the "Kitty Hawk." "Let's just say I'm optimistic."

Firemen stage strike

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Tennessee National Guard troops Thursday manned fire stations abandoned by 1,000 striking firemen and paramedics following a night in which three homes burned.

Arson was suspected in one of the blazes.

After firemen wearing "Strike" T-shirts walked off their jobs before midnight, there were reports of widespread sabotage of firefighting equipment. Those reports were later discounted by both union officials and Gov. Lamar Alexander's office, but isolated incidents of vandalism were confirmed.

Fire union officials, pushing for wage hikes of 28 percent, said strikers must be guaranteed amnesty before any contract talks resume.

Mayor Dick Fulton asked Gov. Lamar Alexander to activate the Guard troops saying "civil authorities in Nashville are unable to protect lives and property" in the city of 600,000. Alexander responded quickly, mobilizing 450 guardsmen, including

The silvery, 200-foot-tall craft was filled with 200,000 cubic feet of helium. The balloonists hoped to get up to an altitude of 25,000 feet, where temperatures can drop to 20 to 30 degrees below zero.

Kris Anderson said their gondola is closed and insulated but not sealed, just in case they have to ditch.

The balloon, carrying 4,500 pounds of sand and water as ballast, originally was to follow a path across Nevada, south central Utah, central Colorado, southern Nebraska and Iowa, central Illinois, southern Indiana, northern Kentucky, southwest Virginia and central North Carolina.

But Maxie Anderson's wife said the winds may carry the "Kitty Hawk" a little farther south than planned, passing over New Mexico, Oklahoma or other states.

A small gas stove is aboard for cooking, but the Andersons halted after the storm that plagues the U.S. Army contributed to their trip.

Forty-two district chiefs and supervisory personnel battled the three house fires before dawn and answered at least a half dozen false alarms. Two of the burned dwellings were vacant and authorities suspected arson in one of the blazes.

Two people escaped unhurt from a brick home burned in the third fire. Fire officials did not say immediately whether the suspected arson was believed linked to the strike.

The strike came 10 hours after talks broke down on implementation of a new pay policy the firefighters say was promised them more than a year ago. The plan calls for firefighters to get salary increases and cost of living raises totaling 28 percent.

Two hours after the walkout, Circuit Court Judge James Swigart issued a restraining order that firemen return to work. A hearing on the order is set for today.

children, police said.

Sgt. Phil Altheide of the Burton Police Department said police were sure at least two persons were involved in the shooting because two different weapons — a shotgun and a "high-powered weapon of some type" had been used.

Police said the two officers were found lying on the ground in the store's parking lot. Their guns were drawn but they had not been fired, investigators said.

"(As) the officers approached the store, they saw one suspect inside the store. One of the officers was right at the door, that's when he was hit. The other was hit a short time after," Altheide said.

Rare disease hits kids

BOSTON (UPI) — State health officials Thursday were investigating an outbreak of at least 19 cases of Kawasaki's disease, a little understood disorder that can damage the heart of its pre-school victims and in some cases cause death.

Dr. David Bell, researcher at the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said Kawasaki's disease often goes unreported because it is misdiagnosed as other diseases caused by bacteria or viruses.

Kawasaki's disease, named for the Japanese pediatrician who first described it in 1967, affects mostly children under 5, but it can range from "a couple of months" to children in their early teens, Bell said.

No laboratory tests are available to detect the disease, Bell said, forcing doctors to diagnose it from external symptoms.

A child must have a fever five or more days, Bell said, and at least four of five other symptoms: red eyes, sore mouth and throat, rash on the body, swollen glands, and swollen red and peeling skin from the palms of the hands or feet.

"Most of the children who have the disease, in fact, the overwhelming majority, recover completely and there's no problem," Bell said. "Approximately 2 percent died of cardiac damage, essentially heart attacks."

Researchers have not discovered an organism or chemical that causes the disease, Bell said, but he cautioned against fear of an epidemic.

"If it is contagious, it's certainly not very contagious," he said. "It's not like measles that goes through a school or a family."

Burglars shoot two cops

BURTON, Mich. (UPI) — Gunmen opened fire on two police officers responding to a burglar alarm at a suburban Flint discount store before dawn Thursday, killing one and wounding the other.

Police took one suspect into custody within hours of the incident outside the Super City discount store and were looking for at least one other person — and possibly more — in the ambush-style shooting.

Killed in the attack was Russell Herrick, 27, a 1 1/2-year veteran of the Burton Police Department. The Mayor, David Rushion, 25, who has been on the force less than a year, was wounded.

Both men were married and had

Clown caught with drugs

NEW CITY, N.Y. (UPI) — A 22-year-old special education teacher who moonlighted as "Brian the Magic Clown" at birthday parties for small children was charged Thursday with peddling drugs in suburban Rockland County.

Brian Smith was taken into custody by undercover Clarkstown police detectives after he sold them $2,350 worth of cocaine and marijuana at his home in Spring Valley, about 40 miles northwest of New York City, said District Attorney Kenneth Grubitz.

There was no evidence Smith sold drugs to the children he taught or the children for whom he performed as a clown, Grubitz said.

Grubitz said Smith was a special education teacher at the Eldorado Elementary School in South Spring Valley and worked on the side as "Brian the Magic Clown" at birthday parties.

Grubitz said that earlier this year, Clarkstown police received an anonymous call, saying someone known as Brian the Magic Clown was "selling drugs throughout the county."

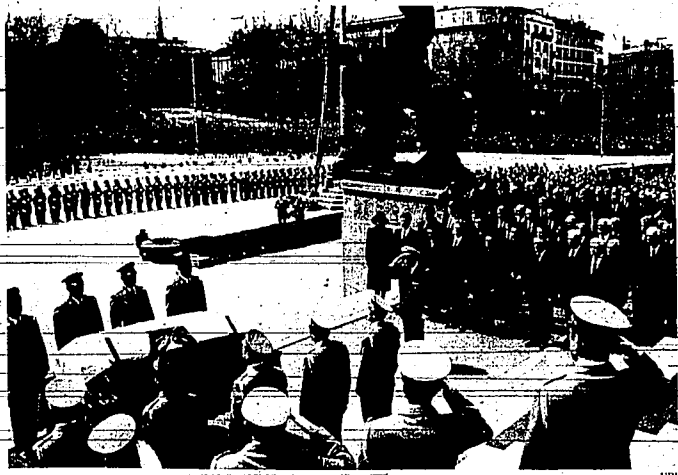

Grubitz said officials didn't know the identity of the "clown," but were able to get in touch with him through advertisements he placed in area newspapers.

The last of the great WWII leaders, Josip Tito, was laid to rest on the 35th anniversary of VE day

Multiple mini-summits mark Tito's funeral

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim held a "constructive" one-hour meeting Thursday with Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Gholzadeh on the crisis in Iran, a U.N. spokesman said.

The spokesman said Waldheim, who has played a major role in trying to secure peacefully the release of 53 American hostages held in Iran, described the talks as "constructive."

The Waldheim-Gholzadeh meeting was the latest in a series of bilateral talks between some of the 100 world leaders attending Tito's funeral.

Although one U.S. official said such summits at a funeral for a man of the world stature of Tito was "highly inappropriate," the Yugoslav leader who revealed in his diplomatic handiwork — surely would have approved.

The flurry of bilateral talks also included at least two major contacts between East and West.

Vice President Walter Mondale, leading the U.S. delegation, met Wednesday night for an hour with Nicolae Ceausescu, maverick Communist leader of Romania; Ceausescu has often played a mediator role, especially in the Middle East, and his session with Mondale touched off speculation that new efforts might be underway to open a new East-West dialogue.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt met Thursday with East German leader Erich Honecker and Polish Communist party boss Edward Gierek. Schmidt, who also met with Mondale on Thursday, has called for renewed contact between the two superpowers to ease world tensions.

"Schmidt certainly seems to be furthering his role as East-West intermediary," said one Western diplomat.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev has also been busy with bilateral talks, including meetings with North Korea's Kim Il-sung and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India.

Mrs. Gandhi told reporters after the meeting that "people want a solution" to the Afghan crisis.

In an apparent attempt to balance her schedule, Mrs. Gandhi reportedly met with China's Hua Guofeng.

Yugoslavs lay Tito to rest

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — President Josip Broz Tito, the "old lion" of Yugoslavia who fought the Nazis and defied the Kremlin for his nation's independence, was buried Thursday, honored by one of history's greatest assemblies of world leaders.

Mourning by the nation he led for 35 years and by statesmen from 115 countries, Tito was laid to rest in a plain white marble tomb in the tree-shaded flower garden of his home after a two-hour funeral procession through streets lined with more than a million openly weeping Yugoslavs.

The funeral, four days after Tito's death and one day after what would have been his 88th birthday, was attended by 36 heads of state, four kings, 40 prime ministers and eight vice presidents, including Walter Mondale of the United States.

The most notable absentees were President Carter and President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France.

It seemed an appropriate coincidence that Tito, the last of the great World War II leaders, was buried on the 35th anniversary of the end of the war in Europe — V-E Day.

Cannon fire boomed 21 times and Yugoslav jet fighters streaked overhead in a final salute to the man who rose from a peasant's hut to become the father of modern Yugoslavia, a founder of the non-aligned movement and a statesman of stature far out of proportion to the size of his country or his position in the world.

Among the great who paid a final homage to the "old lion" of Yugoslavia were President Leonid Brezhnev of the Soviet Union, Premier Hua Guo-Feng of China, President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Zia Ur-Rahim Khan of Pakistan, Kim Il-Sung of North Korea and Urhu Kekkonen of Finland.

In two separate eulogies, Communist Party Chairman Stjepan Doronjski and Yugoslav President Lazar Kolisevski both pledged Yugoslavia would follow Tito's policies of independent socialism at home and non-alignment abroad.

Recalling Tito's life from his youth through the wartime guerrilla fight against the Nazis to his period as world statesman, Doronjski emphasized 1948, when Tito defied Soviet dictator Josef Stalin and left the Soviet bloc.

"The year 1948 was a turning point in the history — our triumph — of Yugoslavia," he said. "It was a question of independence, equality, respect for sovereignty."

Yugoslavs declared Kolisevski in a grave eulogy, "are prepared to defend every foot of their soil" and "no one and nothing can or shall divert us from the paths along which you (Tito) so persistently and tirelessly led us."

For all Tito's accomplishments and the lavish praise in the eulogies, the inscription on the grave said simply: "Josip Broz Tito 1892-1980."

Salvador junta arrests major rightist leader

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — El Salvador's ruling military-civilian junta has arrested the leader of an attempted right-wing coup in a crucial test of power against its rightist foes, officials said Thursday.

The arrest of former National Guard Maj. Roberto D'Abuison, 36, considered to be the leader of the nation's ultra-right, immediately raised fears his military supporters would try again to topple the moderate but weak junta.

The commander of the army barracks in San Miguel, 84 miles east of the capital, said he could not confirm or deny reports his garrison had threatened to forcefully free

D'Abuison unless the junta released him.

Official and diplomatic sources said D'Abuison and seven other persons were captured Wednesday night by army troops, based in San Salvador, in a farm near the city of Santa Tecla, about 10 miles east of the capital.

One radio station said he was charged with conspiracy against the junta and illegal possession of weapons. The junta made no official comment on the arrest or the charges.

D'Abuison, a charismatic former intelligence and counter-subversion specialist, has been singled out as the leader of a frustrated right-wing coup against the junta last Friday.

Battle rages outside Kabul

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Heavy fighting is raging between Muslim rebel tribesmen and Soviet-supported Afghan army troops on the outskirts of Kabul with both sides suffering many casualties, reports from the Afghan capital said Thursday.

Afghan resistance movement supporters in New Delhi said the rebels launched attacks at several places after moving "within striking distance" of Kabul during student riots late last month to protest the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Up to 80 students may have died in the riots. Rebel sources said 56 students, including 36 girls, have been confirmed killed. Many other students are still missing but the sources said they may be among the 300 young people reportedly arrested during the demonstrations.

Travelers from Afghanistan reported the sounds of battle from west of the capital. During the past three days official Afghan radio, television and newspapers have announced "military operations" to the east and west of Kabul. It was not clear how far the zone of the fighting is from Kabul.

Reliable sources in Kabul said they had seen Soviet helicopters carrying wounded soldiers eastward from the outskirts into the city for treatment.

In May Day celebrations in Kabul, some 10,000 supporters of President Babrak Karmal demonstrated in favor of the Soviet-installed government, but several other official May Day functions were canceled because of street violence, the sources said.

Travelers said Afghan security forces swept through several residential areas in Kabul around midnight Tuesday and early Wednesday morning, searching houses and rounding up young men eligible for service in the armed forces.

China sets first ICBM test

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — China has notified New Zealand that it will test-fire a rocket in the South Pacific region capable of delivering an intercontinental nuclear warhead, Prime Minister Robert Muldoon said Thursday.

Muldoon said the New Zealand government was told the launch would be aimed at South Pacific waters, but he did not say where the test would be conducted or where the exact target area is located.

Wellington sources said, however, the rocket is expected to land in approximately 1,100 miles of open sea between the Solomon Islands and Kiribati Tuvalu, formerly known as the Gilbert and Ellice Islands. The area is north of Fiji and northeast of Australia.

In Peking, the Foreign Ministry refused to comment on the report. But sources in Canberra, Australia confirmed the planned test after a meeting between Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser and visiting Chinese Vice Premier Li Xiannian.

It is believed the test would be China's first intercontinental launch. The rocket is expected to cover a distance greater than that between the Chinese launch site and Moscow.

China possesses a limited arsenal of medium-range nuclear missiles and with the successful launching of six satellites in the 1970's, it is assumed to have untested ability to fire intercontinental missiles.

Senate OKs watered-down CIA control bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Intelligence Committee Thursday approved a bare-bones version of the CIA charter it had been considering, limiting the measure in an effort to diffuse opposition on the Senate floor.

Under the committee's bill, a 1974 law requiring the CIA and other intelligence agencies to notify as many as eight congressional committees about covert activities would be changed to require notice to just two panels — the Senate and House Select Committees on Intelligence.

The bill started out several months ago as a comprehensive charter for intelligence agencies, specifying what they could and could not do and making changes in the Freedom of Information Act.

But members of the Intelligence Committee concluded last week that conflicts between those wanting more restrictions on the CIA and those wanting to "unleash" the agency would make it impossible to pass a comprehensive measure.

So the panel endorsed a bill that deals simply with congressional oversight of intelligence operations. Although the committee plans to deal with the other issues in a second bill, prospects for such a follow-up measure are not considered good.

The bill requires the administration to keep the two intelligence committees "fully and currently informed" of all intelligence activities, "including any significant anticipated intelligence activity."

But the president would not have to give prior notice for intelligence gathering operations in foreign countries.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y.

agreed to the abbreviated bill, but said he would offer an amendment on the Senate floor to bar intelligence agencies from using or having agents pose as journalists, clerics or academics.

But prior to the committee's vote, Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., won commitments from all members present to oppose Moynihan's amendment on the floor.

Carter plans memorial for raid dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Thursday he will express the nation's sorrow and gratitude at an Arlington-Cemetery memorial service Friday honoring the eight Americans who died trying to rescue their countrymen from Iran.

Carter will deliver a eulogy at the 7:30 a.m. MDT service in the Arlington amphitheater. Taps will be played and full military honors accorded the dead men.

Nixon moves into new office suite next week

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Nixon moves into his new 15-room office suite in lower Manhattan next week.

While the rent runs $65,000 a year, that is cheap compared to the more fashionable locations the former president apparently had in mind.

Nixon himself has not said much about the offices, but the subject may come up when he is interviewed live on ABC Thursday night by Barbara Walters.

Warren Gardner, spokesman for the New York regional office of the General Services Administration, said that aside from $65,332 in annual rent for the new offices, the government had paid $36,971 to furnish the Nixon suite so far.

Nixon settled on 4,800 square feet of space on the 13th floor at 26 Federal Plaza, which is in an area between China Town and Wall Street in lower Manhattan.

Gardner said Nixon "had several locations in the upper East Side in mind, but it would have been two or three times more" expensive, since the area is considered chic.

Nixon recently bought a house with his own money on the upper East Side at a cost of just under $1 million, but the federal government pays for office space for former presidents under a law passed in 1958.

It will be his private office for his personal affairs, Gardner said.

He said the 15-room layout includes nine offices, a conference room, a reception room, a file room, a mail and supply room, a kitchenette and a bathroom. Nixon's private office is 725 square feet.

A renovation of the suite is still going on, but some staffers already have started work, Gardner said. He said the office will be ready for Nixon in a week.

Nixon, like other former presidents, is allowed $96,000 a year for staff salaries.

His offices are furnished with plush beige carpeting, costing $4,560 for the carpet and $1,125 to install. Vinyl wall coverings cost $1,986 and dark brown drapes, $3,300.

HENRY KISSINGER
 ...recipient of letter

Archives go after papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon, Henry Kissinger, John Mitchell and a dozen other Nixon aides have been told to return all presidential documents they look from the White House, the National Archives said Thursday.

Acting Archivist James O'Neill sent letters to Nixon and his aides requesting all their historical materials in compliance with the 1974 Presidential Recordings and Materials Act.

The law requires the archives to "receive, retain or make reasonable efforts to obtain complete possession and control" of Nixon's White House papers, recordings and other materials.

O'Neill's letter eventually will go to all Nixon White House officials who can be traced — telling them the archives gets custody of all documents, films, recordings or other materials pertaining to government business.

James Hastings, deputy director of the Nixon Presidential Materials Project at the archives, said material will be made public after being screened for classified information and to protect individual privacy rights.

"We think there probably are materials out there that should have stayed in the White House," he said, but added:

"We don't know what they look like."

O'Neill's letter covers thousands of pages of transcripts of Kissinger's White House telephone conversations that the former secretary of state took with him.

Kissinger turned them over to the Library of Congress, where they will be out of reach of the Freedom of Information Act for at least a quarter-century.

Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti has said the Justice Department may sue on grounds Kissinger was a "prior possession" of the transcripts.

Hastings said the archives is "not looking for diaries" — such as the dictabells on which Nixon recorded his personal thoughts each day. Nixon took most of them when he left office.

Others sent letters, Hastings said, included H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, John Dean, E. Howard Hunt, Ronald Ziegler, John Whitaker, George Shultz, Herbert Kalmbach, Peter Flanagan, John Connally, Charles Colson and Dwight Chapin.

BYU lets president step aside

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Brigham Young University Board of Trustees has approved BYU President Dallin H. Oaks' request to be released from the school presidency. Oaks, who took over leadership of the Mormon Church-owned school on Aug. 1, 1971, recommended two years ago that the board rotate the presidency of the university every six to seven years.

However, the board did not act on Oaks' proposal until Wednesday's meeting in Salt Lake City.

BYU spokesman Paul Richards said Oaks' resignation as president of the Provo, Utah, school will be effective July 1.

Oaks, 47, an attorney, plans to teach at BYU's J. Ruben Clark Law School, and do research into the relationship between institutions of higher education and the federal government, said Richards.

A graduate of BYU, Oaks earned his law degree from the University of Chicago.

Oaks took over the presidency of BYU from Ernest L. Wilkinson, who held that post for 20 years. Wilkinson, who quit because of ill health, died of a heart attack about two years ago.

Mail request for journal unsuccessful

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — V. I. Sanarov of the Soviet Union wants to check out material from the Salem Public Library.

However, the publication can't be found.

The library received a request in the mail from Sanarov, who asked for some reference materials, either copies or on loan.

The unusual fact that a Soviet wants reference materials from Salem was matched by the unusual material Sanarov requested.

He wants information from a periodical called "Spacecraft Digest," he said, published in 1953 by a Salem group called the Pacific Lemurian Society.

Librarian George Happ said he is convinced the request is real. The form Sanarov used includes Russian stamps, lettering, seals and what appears to be a Soviet postmark. Sanarov said he was with the Institute of Clinical and Experimental Medicine in Novosibirsk, 1,600 miles east of Moscow in central Russia.

The Soviet man's request was turned over to the Oregon State Library after Happ's assistants could find no references to the group or periodical in the city library.

Glenn Hartwell of the state library said he and his co-workers could find no trace either but guessed that it was a "pseudo-scientific" group, of which there are thousands, he said.

Babysitter plays it safe

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — He is a man instantly recognizable to any basketball fan.

But to the woman who babysits his grandson, the sight of him approaching was reason enough to lock the door.

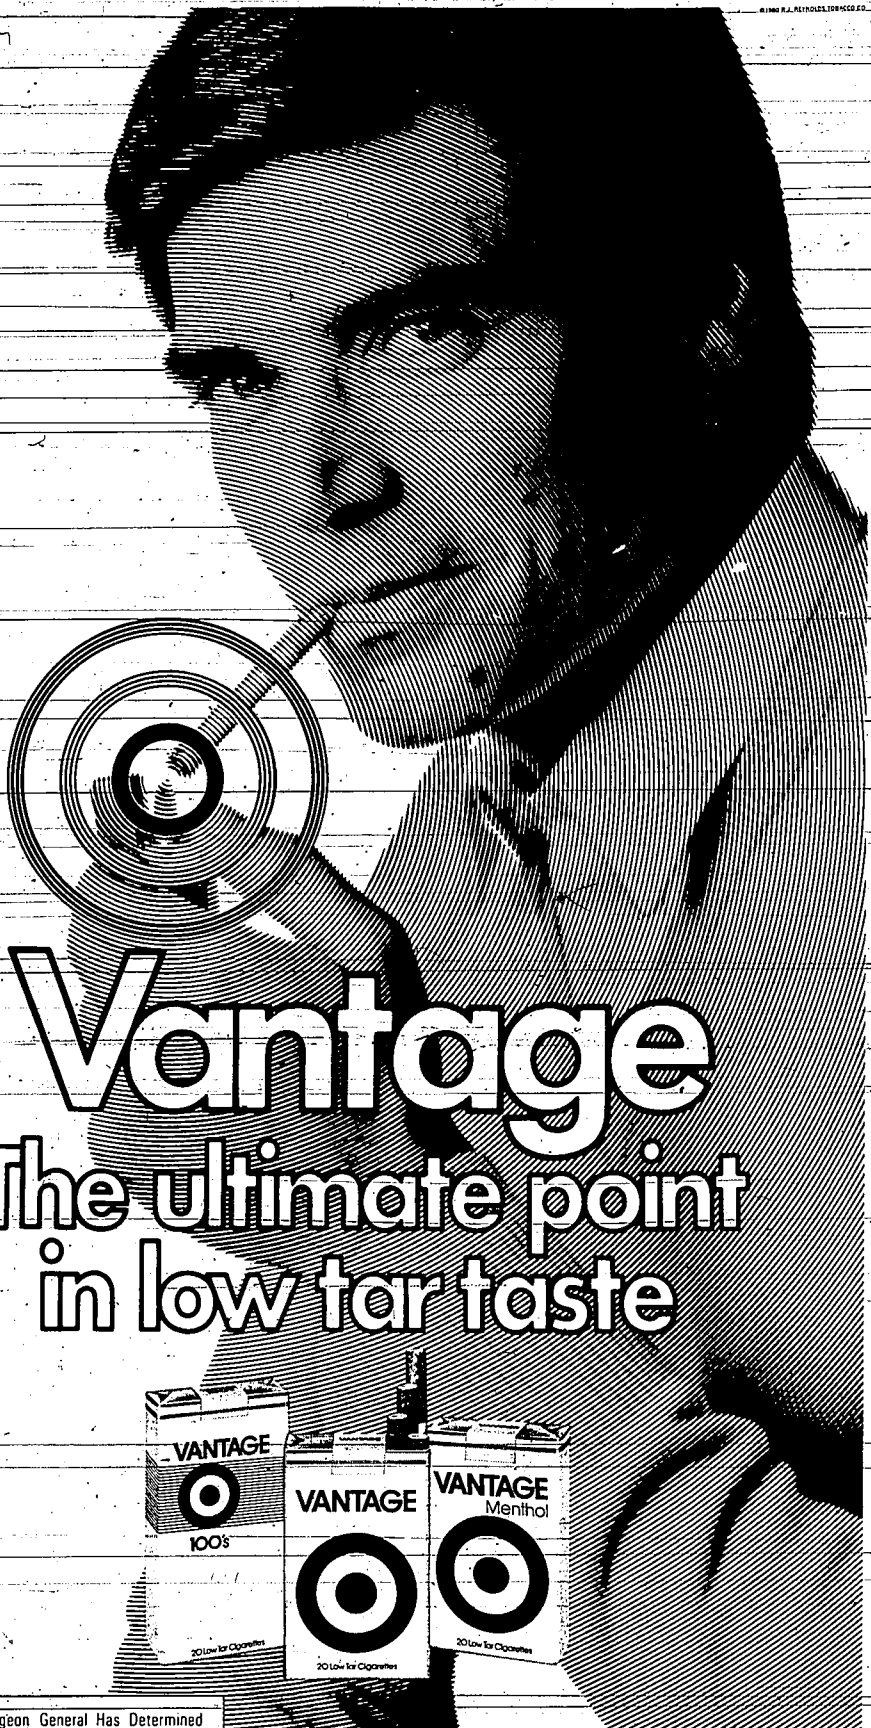

Martha Van Beckum was babysitting Alfred McGuire, the son of Allie and Georgia McGuire when she saw a scruffy, unshaven man ride into the yard on a motorbike. As the stranger came toward the house, Ms. Van Beckum slammed the door shut and locked it. She locked a side door, and pulled the curtains — wondering if she should call the police.

The stranger, after standing in the yard for about 15 seconds, got back on the bike and drove off.

"I guess I can't blame her," said Al McGuire, the former Marquette basketball coach who now does network television commentary. "I get pretty seedy looking this time of year. I don't get my hair cut until November, when I have to do it for TV."

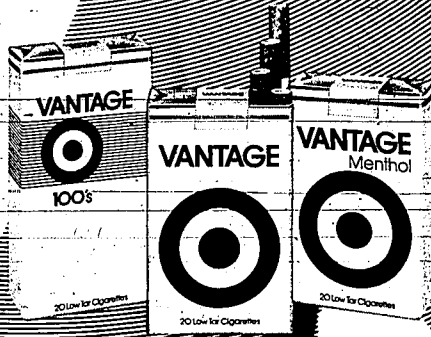

"My own grandson, and I can't get in the house," McGuire laughed as he told the story of last week's incident to The Milwaukee Journal. "I felt sorry for the girl, though. I'm sure she thought I was some sort of hellskinner or psycho or something."

"Typical TV star reaction," said McGuire's son Allie. "He was just mad she didn't recognize his face."

Fairfield gets $364,600 grant just in time

By RHUZE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

FAIRFIELD — The City of Fairfield has received approval for a $364,600 federal loan for rebuilding the town's water system, and not a moment too soon.

The day of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) loan was announced Thursday, less than a week after pump controls failed on one of Fairfield's two wells.

"They're cut down to about 25 percent of the water they used to have," the city's consulting engineer, Gerald Martens of Edwards, Howard and Martens Engineers Inc. of Twin Falls, said Thursday.

"Because of the failure, Fairfield residents have only minimum domestic water use, but absolutely no fire protection and no irrigation," he added.

The system failure occurred May 2. Martens estimated the well should be back in service sometime next week, with manual pump controls rather than electric.

"We're in the process of trying to locate pieces for the electrical control system, but it's not a recent model and it's taking time," Martens said.

"We should have a manual system working soon, but that means someone has to man the pumps."

Martens said he's trying to obtain emergency funding or an advance on the FmHA loan to provide about $30,000 needed to repair the electrical pump controls.

In March, Fairfield's 733 waterusers passed a bond election to finance the $364,600 loan. However, a $141,900 FmHA grant included in the proposal was later denied by the farm administration.

"The fact that Fairfield did not meet Health and Welfare standards placed the Fairfield project on a very high priority at the national level," said Todd Neuschwander, press secretary for Sen. James McClure.

The loan must be repaid at 5 percent interest over a 39-year period. This interest rate is lower than the proposed 8 1/2 percent approved during the March bond election.

Original plans called for deepening and expanding one of the town's two wells and laying a completely new distribution system.

"The problem is that since the $141,900 grant didn't come through, there isn't enough money to go around," Martens said.

To compensate, Martens said either the well improvements or part of the distribution reconstruction would have to be eliminated.

"But it's probable that any part of the distribution system not redone would fall under the increased pressure of the new well," Martens said.

Fairfield Mayor Russell Hollenback supported Martens' statement.

"What we need real bad is new pipes," Hollenback said. "Recently when the pressure from the well went up, it blew several holes in the water lines, and not at couplings, but right in the middle of sections. That's the kind of shape our water system is in."

Fairfield's whole system was built in 1942—and, Hollenback said, "Any kind of pipe that could be found was used during the construction because of war-time shortages."

"What we'll have to do is go as far as the money will let us," Hollenback said flatly.

Said Martens, "Right now we're pulling all the information and plans together with the hopes of putting it out to bid sometime in June, followed by construction July through October."

Grant studies showed that the Fairfield system's low water pressure creates potential health hazards. The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare requires city water lines to carry at least 60 pounds per square (psi) inch of water pressure.

Much of Fairfield's system operates at 10 to 15 psi.

Benefits of the new system will include higher water pressure, lower fire insurance rates and less frequent water main breakage, according to Hollenback.

Indians protest job cuts

Say action violates treaty agreements

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Representatives of Idaho's five Indian tribes asked the state Board of Education Thursday to uphold its treaty obligations to them.

The tribal spokesmen said the elimination of a statewide Indian education coordinator, as proposed by the Department of Education, would close "the only open door" at the department for Indians.

They appeared before the board at its May meeting at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls to urge it to retain the full-time position.

"Every Indian child in the state will suffer," said Mark Trahan, who spoke on behalf of the Advocates for Indian Education of the Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians and the Idaho Intertribal Policy Board.

Trahan, Silas Whitman, representing the Nez Perce Tribal Council, and Tom Garcia, legal counsel for the Kootenai Indians, cited Public Law 280. Under that law, they said Idaho pledged to uphold the federal government's obligation to provide and maintain quality education for Indians.

"We fought very hard to get the position," Whitman said. "We are concerned with establishing a firm, continuous working relationship with the state."

The Nez Perce Tribal Council treasurer said some school districts receive a third of their money through having high Indian populations. He said the money has been used as a "slush fund" and that "we want those days to end."

After hearing from the tribes' representatives and state Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans, who defended the job cut, board members referred the matter to a board committee. They also asked the representatives to meet with Evans to discuss alternate avenues for funding the position and report back, possibly in June.

Evans said the department will lose 11 positions beginning July 1 because of overall funding shortages. So-called Johnson O'Malley funds from the federal government for Indian education in Idaho have dropped from $500,000 two years ago to $250,000 this year, he said.

Evans told the Lewiston Morning Tribune Wednesday that amount of funds does not warrant the $40,000 now being spent to administer them. He told the state board his decision was to use the money "where it counts" — in the school districts where the Indian students are.

Garcia said the Indian education coordinator is essential to an equal education for Indian children. There is no other mechanism to help the education system be responsive to the needs for cultural awareness and identity, she said.

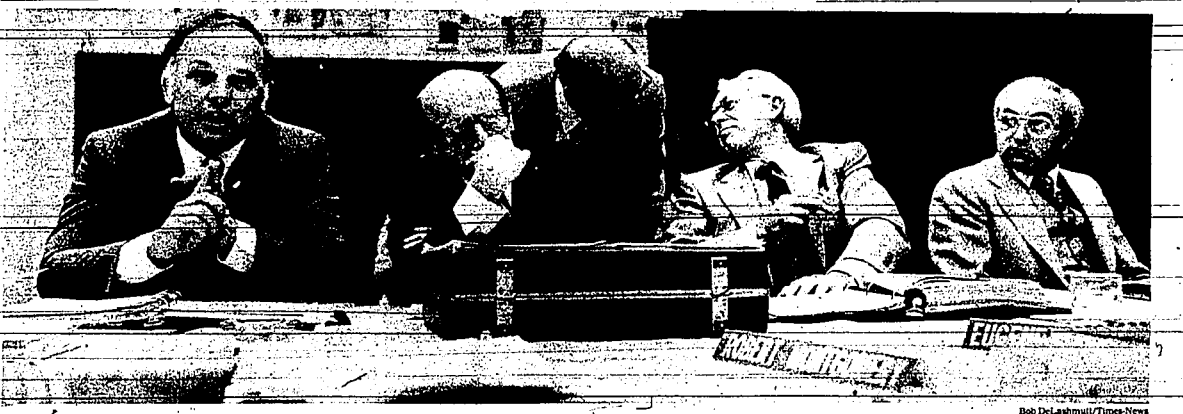

When budgets are squeezed, minority programs are always the first to go, as if they were luxuries, she said. "They are not, they are a necessity," Garcia said.

Evans assured the Indian representatives of the department's commitment and caring for the Indian children. Rather than closing an "open door," he said the department will have space even wider, because more staff members will become involved.

Whitman told the board the offer of discussions with Evans and the right to return to the board was "more than fair."

After the meeting, he and the other tribal spokesmen called the board's response to their petition "positive."

The Indian education coordinator is contracted to serve until October, but state application for Johnson O'Malley funds must be made in July.

Athletes and credits

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Athletes at Idaho's three universities are allowed, and sometimes counseled, to attend summer school elsewhere to raise their grades, according to reports released Thursday.

College students must maintain a certain grade point average in order to be eligible to participate in varsity sports and some other extra-curricular activities.

In order to answer questions posed a month ago by the state Board of Education about their credit transfer policies, the presidents of the state's three universities and one four-year college appeared before the board in Twin Falls.

Board Chairwoman Janet Hay of Nampa said athletic scandals in other Western states over irregularly transferred credits and grades prompted the board to look at the practices in Idaho.

But she said the board's aim is to examine the rules for all students, not just varsity athletes.

"In acknowledging cases of athletes raising grades through outside summer school courses, the Idaho State University President Myron Coulter said no violations of rules occurred and preventing such transfers has practical problems.

He pointed out the National Collegiate Athletic Association requires all college credits to be applied toward determining grade point averages and eligibility.

Presenting written and oral reports Thursday were presidents John Kiser, Boise State University; Richard Gibb, University of Idaho at Moscow; Coulter; and Lee Vickers, Lewis-Clark State College at Lewiston.

Board members will also discuss the credit transfer policies of the College of Southern Idaho this morning when it meets with President James Taylor. CSI officials testified at a New Mexico grand jury about CSI correspondence courses taken by athletes there.

The board referred the credit transfer study to its core curriculum committee, which meets later this year.

"Our coaches counsel student athletes on a variety of topics including the options available if one must attend summer school to establish eligibility for athletic competition," the U of I report says.

BSU's response: "From time to time, athletic department personnel have counseled young men to enroll at other institutions in order to pick up credits or GPA."

"Advisers in all departments in the university may advise a student to take a summer course at another institution, in most cases to complete a prerequisite course," was BSU's answer.

Milton Small, director of the office of the board, said publicity has been generated about "concerted efforts" by athletic departments and alumni associations to find athletes "a happy home for the summer."

He asked the university presidents for any evidence "that philosophy prevails in your athletic departments."

Gibb answered "unequivocally no," and he predicted "without reservation" that kind of problem would not arise to give the board concern or embarrassment.

"We just don't want those kind of occurrences," said Coulter.

"We've been sensitized," Kiser said. "We will try to make sure it doesn't happen." He said students "seldom" attend summer school elsewhere to raise grades and that "safeguards are in place" through the adviser system.

Lewis-Clark does not allow summer-school course grades to apply to a student's grade point average, Vickers said.

Board member Clint Hoopes of Tetonai suggested implementing that policy for the universities with regard to extra-curricular activities.

The NCAA rules would have to be changed, Coulter said.

Board member Nels Solberg of Grangeville called NCAA and Big Sky grade standards a "holly thing" because the minimum performance would not bring graduation in four years.

In the widespread athletic scandals, some students reportedly took individualized, correspondence courses which required little or no work.

Kiser said BSU accepts credits and grades from any accredited institution. Also, BSU's report stated about workshops: "It is assumed that if another accredited institution offers a workshop for credit, they deem it worthy of credit or they place their accreditation in jeopardy."

TWIN FALLS — Voters may register for the primary and general elections through May 10 with the registrars in their precincts.

Joy Taylor, deputy Twin Falls County clerk, said registrars indicate they have been doing a good business registering voters, but most do not realize they cannot register in their own precincts after May 16.

She said beginning May 19, the books will be at the clerk's office on the second floor of the county courthouse. They will remain open through May 21 for late registration. On May 21, the clerk's office remains open until 3 p.m. to accommodate working people.

Persons not certain of their registration status may contact the clerk's office for the name and address of their registrar.

Anyone who did not vote in the last general election must re-register as well as anyone who has moved from one precinct to another who has become of voter age or moved into the area since the last general election.

Sentences handed out in kidnapping case

HAILEY — Two Kimberly brothers and a Hailey woman received 10- and 15-year sentences Thursday for their role in a Dec. 23 kidnap attempt at Ketchum.

In an emotion-packed hearing, 5th District Judge Douglas Kramer sentenced Doug Dodge, 20, and Earl Dodge, 23, to 15 years in the state penitentiary for second-degree kidnapping plus five years, to run concurrently, for plotting the kidnap attempt.

The judge also added 10 days in the county jail for contempt of court after the two refused to answer prosecutor Keith Roark's questions about a fourth party allegedly involved in the plot.

Tammy Wiedmeir, 21, who allegedly drove the get-away car, received a 10-year sentence at the Kootenai County Jail, according to her defense attorney, Greg Fuller.

Wiedmeir worked for a Wood River Valley bank—and admitted she supplied the two brothers with information about the assets of Wesley Willis, who escaped after the kidnappers forced him to leave his Warm Springs home at gunpoint last Dec. 23.

The victim, and relatives of each of the defendants attended the hearing, Fuller said.

Defense attorneys for the trio presented expert witnesses who said the three were not a continuing threat to society. Roark countered that the defendants should receive maximum 18-year sentences as an example to other would-be criminals.

Twin Falls holds bicycle auction tonight

TWIN FALLS — Bicycles at bargain prices will be available tonight.

The annual auction of unclaimed bicycles collected by the Twin Falls Police Department starts at 7 p.m. with 40 bikes of all descriptions available. The sale is open to all interested persons.

L. William Stonemets, who will auctioneer the sale, said it will be conducted in the garage of the police department and interested bidders may inspect the bicycles during regular business hours today.

There are several 10-speed bikes, children's, men's and women's bicycles included in the group.

"We should have something for everyone," Stonemets said. "We even have one lady's bicycle with a small child's seat."

Stonemets said the reason the city has to sell some 40 to 50 unclaimed bicycles every year is because bicycle owners do not take advantage of the opportunity to license their bicycles.

"If I do have a license, we can contact the owners and tell them to pick up their missing bicycle. Without a license, we can only keep them for a reasonable length of time to be claimed by the owners," he said. "These bicycles we will sell are those that have been lost or stolen and abandoned but owners have failed to claim them."

Licenses are issued at the Twin Falls Fire Department and cost only $1 each.

The participants are collecting pledges from sponsors donating so much money per mile to the March of Dimes. According to Ann Schrotz, chairman of the drive, 40 percent of the money donated will remain in Blaine County to help those with birth defects and 60 percent will be used in research.

RUPERT — Summer "make-up" classes for Minidoka County students are being offered June 2 to 27.

Elementary students will attend Lincoln School and junior high school students will attend East Junior High School. Classes will also be scheduled at West Junior High School if enough students enroll.

To enroll, parents should send the student's name, address, phone number and present grade, subjects desired and fee before May 23 to Rosemary Short, 923 10th, Rupert, Idaho 83450. Checks should be made payable to Community Education.

Idaho in brief

Moon files complaint

BOISE (UPI) — State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon Thursday filed a complaint against the state of Idaho, the state Board of Examiners and the Legislature to restore more than $13 million lost to the Public School Endowment Fund.

Miss Moon filed a supplemental complaint citing the loss of more than $7 million in principal and $6 million in interest in a lawsuit she previously brought in 4th District Court. She also filed a new claim for these amounts with the State Board of Examiners.

The lawsuit was brought in 1978, but 4th District Judge Jesse Walters failed to rule on the suit because the Legislature had until July 1, 1979, to restore the funds, Miss Moon said.

She said since the Legislature failed to pass a bill to make up the losses to the fund during the 1980 session, she was re-enacting her complaint.

Miss Moon said the lost money was accumulated from three periods: She said a treasurer's report from 1938 shows losses on land due to foreclosures during the Depression.

In 1968, a legislative auditor's reports shows more losses to the fund, but Miss Moon said she did not know how the losses were incurred.

The third group of losses have been incurred since 1969 when the Legislature enacted a law creating the state Endowment Fund Investment Board to invest the fund's money. This board has sold securities at various periods since its creation at less than was paid for them, Miss Moon said.

Nursing homes lobby

BOISE (UPI) — A group representing 65 percent of Idaho's nursing homes has distributed a package of information to the state's lawmakers, saying a special legislative session is not needed to consider Medicaid funding.

"Our conclusion (is) that Medicaid issues need not be the subject of the special session," says a letter to the lawmakers signed by Idaho Health Facilities Inc. Executive Vice-President Hartzell Cobbs.

In an enclosed letter written by the organization's attorney — Donald W. Lajek — the group explains that Medicaid funding problem without the need for lawmakers to consider the issue during an extraordinary session.

Lajek's letter, a fact sheet and a copy of a proposed bill that the group says would solve the Medicaid problem was distributed to Idaho's legislators Wednesday in an attempt

River input sought

CHALLIS (UPI) — The Challis National Forest is beginning the revision of the management plan for the Middle Fork of the Salmon River and is seeking public input on the plan.

"The present plan was developed in the period of 1972-73," said Cliff Blake, Middle Fork District ranger.

"Since that time, float trip use on the river has increased approximately 100 percent. Non-boating use has also increased substantially."

Blake said a new consideration for the Forest Service is the inclusion of all of the Middle Fork, except for a

Neighbors are boiling

BOISE (UPI) — Al Clifford is in hot water with his neighbors — because they have no water.

Witnesses told Ada County sheriff's deputies Wednesday that 37-year-old Clifford shot a hole in a water main Tuesday night with a .357 magnum pistol. The blast came after an argument about ownership of wells that supply water to the main.

Clifford's neighbors will be without water while the main is repaired. But Clifford has no shortage. He has a well in his back yard.

IHA interest rate up

BOISE (UPI) — Idahoans with low income have been given new opportunity to buy single-family dwellings at a 9.5 percent interest rate.

At its meeting Wednesday, the Idaho Housing Agency board of directors authorized the availability of $40.8 million of the cut rate loans. Agency Director David Hege said similar Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration loans are being granted at 13 percent interest.

Now that his sister is dead

How Butch died may never be known

CIRCLEVILLE, Utah (UPI)—Lula Parker Betenson died this week without revealing a family secret that may have settled once and for all the mystery of what happened to her brother—the outlaw Butch Cassidy.

Mrs. Betenson was 96 when she died Monday of natural causes in a Pangnitch, Utah, hospital a few miles from her hometown of Circleville where her famous brother got his start in crime as a horse thief in the 1880s. She will be buried in Circleville today.

Lula never believed the popular history, supported by sketchy Pinkerton-Detective-Agency files,

Lula Betenson secret never revealed that Butch and his sidekick the Sundance Kid died in a shootout with Bolivian troops in 1908.

She maintained that Cassidy, whose real name was Robert LeRoy Parker, came back to the United States and visited the Parker ranch in Circleville in 1925 — 15 years after his alleged death.

In a book called "Butch Cassidy, My Brother," published in 1975, Mrs. Betenson claimed Cassidy went straight when he came back. She said he lived under an assumed name until 1897 when he died of pneumonia somewhere in the Northwest. But she refused to reveal Butch's new identity or the location of his grave.

"It's a family secret," she wrote. "If I were to reveal his burial place someone would be sure to disturb it under some pretext. All his life he was chased. Now he has a chance to rest in peace."

Daughter-in-law Vivian Betenson said Wednesday that Lula took the secret to her grave.

"She never told anyone, not even her children," said the daughter-in-law, who is married to Lula's son, Mark.

The popular movie "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" had the leaders of the Wild Bunch dying in a gunfight with army troops in San Vicente, Bolivia — a version based on old Pinkerton files.

Many historians have discounted that version because the Pinkerton report was based on a second-hand account from a paid informer. The files also place the shootout in Mercedes, Uruguay, not Bolivia.

But tales of Butch's return abounded throughout southern Utah and western Wyoming for decades after his death, especially during the depression years when he was supposed to have come back looking for buried loot from the 16 banks and trains the gang robbed.

Mrs. Betenson, who was a small child when Butch left home, added to the controversy with her book. She recalled a day in 1925 when her brother returned.

"A new black Ford drove up and a man got out. The man walked across the field toward Mark (another brother). As he came near, his face broke into a characteristic Parker grin."

"At first Mark was puzzled. He studied the face and suddenly realized it could be but one person — Bob Parker."

She said her brother stayed a short time and then left. Because he was still a wanted man, Cassidy went into hiding under an assumed name and the immediate family kept quiet about the visit.

A recent book by historian Larry Fontler makes a case that Cassidy lived out his life as William T. Phillips in Spokane, Wash. But Mrs. Betenson labels Phillips an imposter in her book.

Daughter-in-law Vivian added that all of Lula's children agree with their mother on that point. "Photographs of Phillips," she said, "bear no resemblance to anyone else in the Parker family."

Actor Robert Redford, who played the Sundance Kid in the movie, said he has had second thoughts about Butch's demise since the film was made.

"There is a very strong argument for the fact that he came back and lived until 1937," said Redford. "I like to think he came back. I like to think he wasn't killed in Bolivia."

"But I don't know that I want to know what happened to him," Redford added. "I like the idea that he got away with it and disappeared."

Escapes bug Washington townspeople

MEDICAL LAKE, Wash. (UPI)—Residents of Medical Lake are becoming worried about the high number of escapes from the Pine Lodge minimum security facility west of Spokane.

The number of walkaways equals nearly half the current population, raising concern among the neighbors of the 80-bed facility.

Gerald and Linda Pittman were tied up by two escapees earlier this week. Other husbands and wives worry about each other day and night because of the potential danger, according to one area resident.

Gene Robinette, who lives near Pine Lodge, said the problem appears to be lax security at the facility and little communication between Pine Lodge officials, the sheriff's office and Medical Lake police.

He added that in spite of promises by Gov. Dixy Lee Ray that security would be improved, it has not been done.

Smokejumpers will prepare for 1980 fires

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI)—About 138 smokejumpers train this spring and summer at the U.S. Forest Service's Missoula fire depot to prepare for fighting forest fires in northern Idaho, Montana and the Dakotas.

Fifty experienced smokejumpers will finish a refresher course this week and will be assigned to Silver City, N.M., to assist in fighting fires in the national forests of Arizona and New Mexico. They will return to Missoula in July when the fire danger is highest in the forests of Idaho, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Another 80 men will attend five-day and three-week refresher courses beginning in June.

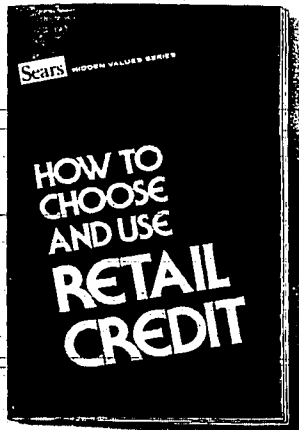

Eighteen of those smokejumpers will be stationed at Grangeville to protect the Nezperce, Payette, and Wallawa-Whitman national forests. Another 14 will be sent to West Yellowstone, Mont.

Black Hills lawsuit in litigation since 1922

—WASHINGTON—The Sioux Nation of Indians, trying to get repayment for the U.S. government's taking of the Black Hills of South Dakota in the 1800s, filed a suit in 1922.

In the years that followed, the stock market crashed, the World War I boom, the Allies fought World War II and won it and the Space Age dawned. And through all this time and change, the Sioux Indian claim, believed by many lawyers to be the longest running litigation in history, is still in the courts.

The Supreme Court is considering it now but the Sioux are not counting on a conclusion. For them, the case has taken on almost mystical proportions and they talk about it as if they were doing their own version of "Roots."

"I remember hearing about it from my father," says Standing Rock tribal chairman Frank Lawrence. "He heard about it from his father. People have always talked about it.

"They knew it was coming one of these days, but we never knew when."

Neither Lawrence nor any other living participant seems able to explain why it has taken so long. There were delays throughout the legal process, they say. The U.S. Court of Claims, for example, took 20 years to render judgment unfavorable to the Sioux in 1942 and government lawyers once delayed for six years their answer to a simple motion.

The case had to be handed down from judge to judge and lawyer to lawyer each of whom had to be briefed anew.

Ralph Case, a Washington attorney, started the lawsuit when he was 22. He died at the age of 77 while it was still going on. Marvin J. Sonosky, 71, one of the current lawyers, got involved when he was 48.

The closest parallel may be Jardyce vs. Jardyce, the everlasting legal dispute over a will in Charles Dickens' book, "Bleak House."

In "Bleak House," no money was left in the Jardyce will by the time the book ended. In the Sioux Nation suit, the Indians may get more than $130 million if they win, which would be the largest Indian lands award in U.S. history.

But even a full award by the Supreme Court would give the Sioux only a fraction of their original claim of $70 million when inflation is considered over the last 100 years. And during that period, the Hovestake gold mine—once on Sioux territory in the Black Hills—has yielded more than $1 billion to non-Indians. It was the foundation of the Hearst fortune.

Buried deep in the history of this case is a prophetic quote from Dead Eyes, an angry Sioux chief, who in 1875 told off federal agents: "You have put all our heads together," he said, "and covered them with a blanket."

At issue are 7 million acres of the Black Hills, a land modern Americans may know from advertising that pictures a conveniently dressed Sioux among the scenery. A hundred years ago the Sioux valued it not for tourism but for timber, agriculture, hunting and eventually gold.

The land belonged to the Sioux forever under an 1868 treaty, the government concedes. But when whites discovered gold there, miners descended on the area, sparking armed conflict with the Indians and the U.S. Army.

Unable to control the entry of whites into the Indian territory, however, the U.S. government tried to get the land by trading it for "subsistence provisions." The government offered about $8 million. The Sioux, those willing to negotiate, wanted $70 million.

"There is gold and silver and a great many kinds of minerals in that country," a tribal chief, Little Wolf, told government commissioners sent to talk.

"If the Great Father gets that for the whites they will live on it and become rich."

"We want him to make us rich also."

The talks broke down, gold fever continued, and in 1874, Gen. George Custer made his ill-fated mission into the territory—with results that angered Congress.

ilaterally.

One hundred years later, the U.S. Court of Claims said that "a more ripe and rank case of dishonorable dealings will never, in all probability, be found in our history."

For years after the 1877 congressional seizure, the Indians had no legal recourse, finally at their urging, Congress passed a law in 1920 allowing them to sue in a Court of Claims.

Ralph Case, among others, filed suit for the Sioux in 1922, along with 11 other Sioux claims stemming from the same historic events.

In all of them, the basic question was the same: Did the government take the land illegally in violation of the Constitution's prohibition on selling property without just compensation?

Current Court of Claims judges offer no explanation for the 50-year delay in the ruling. None of them was around then.

"The answer always comes back that it was a complex case," says Sonosky. "But that's not really the answer."

"All I can tell you," said Richard Case, a prominent Baltimore lawyer and son of Ralph Case, "is what I understand as it kid around the house. The procedure took a voluminous amount of testimony. There was an extreme disagreement over the value of the land.

"My father spent a great many weeks on reservations taking testimony. The court was much more leisurely than it is now."

Hasty play downs defense lead with the ace, queen... West's double... East returned a heart thinking his partner had a singleton and that Declarer's queen had been a false-card from queen-void of hearts.

South was faced with three clear losers in his doubled game... West had already lost one heart, and the spade king and club ace still had to be conceded.

East's imaginative leap to four hearts, which can be made by some good guessing, forced South into making an immediate decision.

East won the opening heart... Declarer drew two rounds of trump, ending in the dummy and pitched his club... Declarer still had to lose a spade trick, but he had stolen his game.

Ballet Folk School slates workshop

MOSCOW — The Ballet Folk School will hold its annual summer workshop from July 6-26 at the University of Idaho.

The American Festival Ballet, formerly called Ballet Folk, offers classes Mondays through Saturdays in ballet, pointe, modern, jazz and mime. Special evening lectures will cover lighting, choreography, dance history and make-up. The session features a workshop performance on July 26.

This year's faculty consists of Suzanne Erlon, Steven Wistrich and Elizabeth Rowe-Wistrich, ballet; Erik Whitmyre, modern; Hayward Coleman, mime; and Karl Hoogland, jazz.

Ms. Erlon danced with New York City Ballet for seven years and was a principal dancer with Ballet West for three years. She teaches through the William F. Christensen Foundation in Salt Lake City and has guested this past season with American Festival Ballet.

Wistrich, AFB's artistic director, danced with the Boston Ballet, Netherlands Dance Theatre and the Stuttgart Ballet. He formerly directed the Arizona Ballet.

Ms. Rowe-Wistrich also performed with Netherlands Dance Theatre and Stuttgart Ballet. Presently she is choreographer and ballet mistress for AFB.

Whitmyre has been a member of the Bill Evans Dance Company of Seattle for three years. He is a dance department graduate of the University of Utah and has performed with the Ririe-Woodbury and Tandy Beale companies in Salt Lake City.

Coleman studied with Marcel Marceau and has toured in Canada, Europe, North Africa and the Near East. He graduated from the University of California at Berkeley and currently teaches mime in Hollywood. He will present a solo performance July 14 in the U of I student union.

Ms. Hoogland studied and taught in Seattle at the Cornish School of Allied Arts. She is on the faculty of the Ballet Folk School and taught in Boise, Idaho Falls and Caldwell.

Full-time tuition is $130 and single courses cost $50. Room and board at the university can be arranged. Registration information is available at the AFB offices in Reno, Nev., Hall 11 of 1, Moscow, 83843, 882-7554. Students will be placed in either intermediate or advanced levels on the first day of classes.

The workshop is presented with assistance from the National Endowment for the Arts Expansion Arts Program.

Entries screened for Cannes Film Festival

By Roger Ebert

While hundreds of films compete for attention in the marketplace at Cannes, a few select entries are invited to be of official festival selections.

They'll be previewed twice during the day at the Palais du Cinema on the Croisette, and then officially premiered that evening before the jury and guests at a formal black-tie screening.

This year's list of invited films is still incomplete, but includes new films by several of filmmaking's international superstars. The Italian master Federico Fellini, for example, will be represented out of competition with "La Citte delle Femme" ("City of Women"), his scrutiny of the women of Rome and his first full-length feature since 1977's ill-fated "Casanova."

The great Japanese director Akira Kurosawa will enter "Kagemusha." Alain Resnais, a pioneer of the French new wave, will have "Non Jealousie d'Amerique." Jean-Luc Godard, the key French director, of the 1960s, will be back with his first theatrical feature in seven years, "Sans que Peut la Vie." West German's Wim Wenders will enter "Lightning over Water."

American directors and their films invited to the festival will include Hal Ashby's "Being There," Bob Fosse's "All About Jazz," cult auteur hero Samuel Fuller's "The Big Red One," Walter ("The Warriors") Hill's "The Long Riders" and Dennis ("Easy Rider") Hopper's "Out of the Blue." Kirk Douglas will serve as president of this year's Cannes jury, and the other American members will be acting as jury members. Los Angeles Times film critic Charles Champlin.

In 1976, I ran into an old college classmate named Simon Hartog at the Nice Airport.

I asked him where he was living these days.

"Mozambique," he said. "And what are you doing here?"

"Buying." Some of the movies in the market are, frankly, exploitation films, and that's a sort of informal annual contest for the most ridiculous title (recent champions: "Attack of the Killer Tomatoes," "Dig Me a Tunnel to Hitler" and "Lisa, She-Wolf of the S.S."). Meets Bruce Lee in the Bermuda Triangle.

Other films in the market are serious, ambitious efforts seeking worldwide markets. One purpose of the market is to provide a showcase for those worthy films; if they can attract enough favorable attention, they may get profitable overseas sales instead of being relegated to the ghetto of art films. An example from last year's festival: West German director Rainer Werner Fassbinder rented a theater and showed his new film "The Marriage of Maria Braun" every single day during the festival. It got an enthusiastic reception, made a good sale and went on to become Fassbinder's first U.S. box-office hit.

Yerfadder's Moustache of La Palma, Calif., will be guest artists at the Sweet Adelines' concert.

'Somethin' Southern' concert set

TWIN FALLS — Female barbershoppers will sing the sweet harmonies of the South at the Sweet Adelines' annual concert Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho at 8 p.m. "Dixie," "Swanee," "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Birth of the Blues" are among the songs to be given the four-part treatment. The 28-member group, formed in 1972, is a chapter of the Sweet Adelines national organization.

Guest artists will be the Twin Falls Chorus and A Chordia to You—the Boise Sweet Adelines chapter. Yerfadder's Moustache of La Palma, Calif., will balance the program with male harmonies. Yerfadder's Moustache is a member of the Far Western District of the international male barbershop organization, the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

Tickets are $3; senior citizens, $1.50. For further information call 734-6611.

Film, video festival May 14

Commercial art, like this 75th anniversary logo, pays the rent but at what price?
An artist tries to keep free for art.

Struggle to create on cue

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Charlotte Kilfoyle is the only commercial artist in Twin Falls who advertises in the yellow pages.

That ad has advantages and disadvantages, she said. On the one hand, it's more than paid for itself. She first placed the ad two years ago and it helped increase business, she said. But as her business grew, it started cutting into the time she could spend on her own art.

Kilfoyle said she's now reached the point where she must either hire people to help handle the increased business or cut back on her commercial work so she can give more time and energy to her other work.

And she said that if she advertises in the yellow pages again, she'll use a smaller ad.

Examples of Kilfoyle's commercial work can be seen throughout the area. She painted a mural at the Merc in the Blue Lakes Mall and some paintings of model homes that hang on the wall at Town and Country Realty.

She's also done more signs than she cares to remember. The Matlock Coal Co.'s sign is her design. She also did some signs for the Jerome Country Club.

Currently, Kilfoyle is working on several projects for the city's 75th anniversary celebration.

She designed the logo for the diamond jubilee celebration drawings of a diamond and a waterfall on top of an outline of Idaho. A banner across the top of the state says "Twin Falls, Idaho" and lettering at the bottom says "75th anniversary diamond jubilee."

Kilfoyle said she can't take total credit for the design, though. It's just a combination of symbols suggested by others that she put together. The logo has been used on letterheads and will be available on T-shirts during the celebration in June.

Kilfoyle is also working on some watercolor paintings to show at the art show and auction in the City Park scheduled to be held during the celebration. One picture will be a poster of I.B. Perrine, Kilfoyle said. "I've been researching that for a month and a half. That seems like all I've been doing for a month and a half," she said. The research included interviews with members of the Perrine family.

Kilfoyle isn't sure if she'll be able to finish the painting in time for the celebration, though. Her commercial projects have to come first.

This is just one example of the conflict, she said she struggles with constantly between her commercial work and the fine art she wants to do. The income from her commercial work allows her to pursue her fine art, but it also limits it, she said.

The time she devotes to the commercial work takes away from her other work. "You have to have a lot of involvement with people because you're doing a service for them," she said.

"I have to be an isolationist so I can take time to think things out for myself," she said.

Also, there is nothing artistic about some of the things she has to do for her commercial clients. For one thing, she has to be part salesperson in her business. For another, people need their signs or their business cards done on time, Kilfoyle said. While she understands their needs, deadlines don't promote good art, she said.

"When you feel like you're a creative person the work can be frustrating sometimes," she said.

But she also gets satisfaction from her commercial projects and she has no intention of giving up commercial art.

Kilfoyle chose commercial art as her field because she wanted to be "the best." It's easier to be accepted as a commercial artist, she said.

Commercial art also holds more opportunity for her because she is an illustrator. She prefers to paint horses that look exactly like horses rather than relying on symbols to evoke the image and feeling of a horse. She said she wants average people to be able to understand her art. "I look at a Norman Rockwell painting and I say to myself, 'Someday... I'll be that good,'" she said.

To be an artist, a person has to be driven from inside himself to create, Kilfoyle said. She said she has that drive, which may have come from her family.

Her mother wrote several novels. "None of them big glor," she said. Her great-great-grandfather was Denmark's most noted poet and theologian, she said.

Grundtvig lived from 1783 to 1872. Now he's in most encyclopedias, Kilfoyle said. And in Denmark, a square in Copenhagen was named after him.

He died before photography was invented, she said, but she has found drawings of him. She is doing research on him so she can make her own drawings.

While Kilfoyle's mother and great-grandfather created with words, that is not her strong suit.

At one point while being interviewed, she stopped struggling to explain something about her philosophy of art and said, "That's why I'm an artist: I can paint it better than I can say it."

In her spare time, Kilfoyle pursues her own artistic inclinations — this a watercolor of I.B. Perrine

From 'Deep Throat' to noon soaps

By LYNN DARLING
© The Washington Post
First there is tea and toast in the morning, and then the housework. She vacuums three times a day.

There are trips to the laundromat and, chit-chat with the neighbors, and by 3 o'clock, it's time to start dinner, usually pork these days, you can't go wrong at $1.90 a pound.

The afternoon is brightened by the soaps, she has to have her soaps, she says. "All My Children," "Days of Our Lives." The days of Linda Marchiano's life are all of a piece now, and there are artifacts everywhere to testify to the way things have changed for her — there, near the couch, is the coupon collection, saved for the discounts, and there on a crowded shelf the brightly painted Ruggedy Ann made out of dough, the way they learned in homemakers' class, and there, too, the cake recipe that calls for Jello and Cool Whip, the brand names invoked familiarly, conferring their own legitimacy.

This is me. Happy in my home. You know, I drive my friends crazy, the way I'm always cleaning, always cooking and baking. I'm in seventh heaven here. If I can get back to gourmet cooking, that would be even better," but not now, she says, it's too expensive.

This is Linda Marchiano talking, Linda nee Boreman, once Lovelace. As in Linda Lovelace. As in "Deep Throat."

She wears dark blue stacks and very sensible shoes, a turquoise and a pink pineapple embroidered with the word Mommy. The baby beneath it, her second, is due in the spring. She and her husband, Larry, live on welfare now, and have for the last three years.

Her freckles are obscured by silver rimmed glasses and her hair is long and straight now, the frizziness is yet another part of the past. Her mouth is set in a thin straight line that begins at the chin and ends at the nose.
She is 31 now, wary, plain, nervous, Lauerly startles, irony slides her she doesn't see the sleight-of-hand, the tricks that can turn a suburban cliché into a much cherished fantasy. There is only the adamant denial of the way things seemed to be.

"I wouldn't want to meet Lindt Lovelace," she says. "I wouldn't want to have anything to do with her. That's not the way I am at all. That wasn't me." She says it, calmly with quiet self-assurance as if that should be the end of it. It isn't, of course, not after the splash the movie made and the storm that followed in its path.

"Deep Throat," after all, because its own-kind of cultural landmark when it was released in 1972. There was in color, showing at respectable theaters on a big screen with a semblance of a plot and a sense of humor.

Suddenly it was porno chic, taking dirty movies out of their dark denimonde — and flashing — them before the trendy middle class. It was a time when, for those who were putting sexual self-help manuals on the best-seller lists, traditional attitudes seemed to be going the way of hula hoops and it was not a case of what was right or what was wrong but what was not and what was not.

And there in the spotlight, was the star of it all, Linda Lovelace, on whom celebrity was conferred only partly because of her astounding physical prowess. There was that, of course, but there was also her unabashed smile, the twinkly good time she seemed to be having. This was no pan-fried porno queen, with a hide as hard as the look in her eyes, but a mere slip of a girl, with freckles on her face. And, she says now, bruises on her legs.

She has written a book now that says she was forced to do the things she did, that the man who managed, and married her had forced her to perform in "Deep Throat" and the other pornographic movies that preceded it. The book is filled with explicit details, explicit sex, famous names. The book is called "Ordeal" — and that, says Linda Marchiano, is what it was.

Her ex-husband and former manager, Charles Traynor, however, denies all of Linda Marchiano's allegations. Traynor is living in London, now, managing the career of Marilyn Chambers, the star of "Behind the Green Door." He says the charges are "so ridiculous I can't take them seriously." In fact, Traynor says, "You'd think she would at least be grateful for a few moments of glory, even if they didn't last." "I expect people not to believe me," he says in the flat, mashed monotone of the Bronx, where she was born: Catholic girl, policeman's daughter, living in a house where the pit money came from Tupperware parties. "I mean the easiest thing for people to do in society is to say, 'I don't believe it.' That's the world's greatest cop-out."

She rolls down a white support stocking to reveal the black bruises on her leg, the result she says of beatings she received back then. At night, her husband Larry massages her leg to bring the swelling down. Eventually, she says, the broken veins will have to be removed.

Harry Reems, her co-star, says he never noticed any bruises while they were filming "Deep Throat." There was, he says, "no indication to me that she was physically abused or even mentally abused." And no one seemed to notice them when "Deep Throat" was released and men brought their dates to see it on Saturday nights. The movie disappeared soon enough from the public consciousness, and its title came to mean more to Watergate than it did to critics; Linda Lovelace seemed to disappear as well, into whatever oblivion is reserved for cultural exclamation points.

Now she's back to insist that the heart of darkness was dark indeed, and the comments on morality delivered by Linda Marchiano would sound somewhat incongruous to the fans of Linda Lovelace. She is living on Long Island now, in a mustard-colored house fashioned out of old Army barracks. There are three dark rooms filled with second-hand furniture and the toys — of their 3-year-old son, Dominic, who wanders into the kitchen where she is serving pie and coffee. "Let's go to food stamps," he says.

"Mommy's already got her food stamps," she says.

When she was 3, her family moved to Yonkers, and she grew up there. She went to St. John the Baptist and she remembers the uniform, navy blue pleated skirt, white blouse, a jacket, and saddle oxfords, which she would change the minute she got across the street. She went to a Catholic high school, but until her father retired and her parents moved to Florida.

After high school, there were dreams of some day owning a small boutique, but a car accident in New York wiped out the newly hatched sense of independence. She came back to her parents' home in Florida to recuperate — back to 11 p.m. curfews and all the other minders — that childhood hadn't ended.

And so, when Chuck Traynor pulled up in his burgundy Jaguar with the black leather interior and his tales of his sky diving, flying and sky-diving adventures, she was, she says in her book, impressed, and when he offered her his place as a refuge from her parents, she was grateful.

Nearly three years later, she left him and is asked if she thinks it will be hard for people to understand why it took so long for her to get away from a man whom she says forced her into seemingly endless degradations.

"I think Patty Hearst might be able to answer that," she says. "A weak person will fall apart and let themselves be killed. I was too strong for that. I found the strength to survive. One day at a time."

It was her, notably, she says, that made it possible for her to leave Traynor, her fame making it harder for him to keep a constant watch on her. The escape from Linda Lovelace, however, apparently took more time. After leaving Traynor, she visited the various rookeries of the glitterati, popping up everywhere from Vegas to A-List, smiling her sunbeam smile and wearing clothes so transparent they exposed her to everything but sunburn.

"It wasn't right what was happening," she says of the lease she held on her old persona. "I didn't go for that walking around without a bra on." But, at least it was an identity she was familiar with and she needed time to make the transition.

She wrote, or least affixed her name to a book, "The Intimate Diary of Linda Lovelace," which, like its predecessor, "Inside Linda Lovelace," contained more trash than truth. She made two more movies — "Deep Throat II" and "Linda Lovelace for President."

At least, she says, they contained no explicit sex, even if there was nudity.

Which, of course, had something to do with the fact that they were her last two movies.

After that, she "kept trying to get into legitimate situations. But every aisle we went down, it turned into an X-rated movie. It would start as a PG movie and then it would go straight downhill. I always thought I could make a real movie if they gave me a chance. I was going to be the next Susan Hayward." She looks up with a tentative smile — she knows what reaction to expect.

By then, she was with the man she would later marry, Larry Marchiano. She met him in Florida, where he was taking time out between jobs as a cable TV lineman, staying with one of her sisters. He tried to help her sort out her tangled finances and went with her to Las Vegas, where she was to star in a play called "My Daughter's Hated X."

It was a legitimate play — she says — but she got more clothes than probably anybody had seen on one person in Las Vegas. But that flopped because the public was offended that it wasn't naked. One guy tried to attack me, he was angry because he said I was cheating my fans." She sounds somewhat astonished.

"We were two kids trying to make a buck," says Larry Marchiano. "We were simply trying to turn a dollar-in-an-honest-hour. Maybe the title was misleading and the actress' name was misleading but . . . Larry Marchiano threw up his hands and sighed. "Anyway, it opened and closed in a week."

Marchiano gets mad when he talks about all the things that he says have happened to his wife. "A middle-aged man took me for a lawsuit," he says. "A lower-class person goes for something else. I can just hear it now. If I'm for real how come I ain't doin' nothin'?" Tough guys don't talk, he says, things that makes no sense to me." But then he sighs and says, "The first thing you do is stand by your wife and let her know you love her."

After the play folded, after they tried to pawn her jewelry and discovered, according to Linda Marchiano, that the stones were fakes, they came to Long Island, Larry's boyhood home, in a battered yellow VW.

Back on Long Island, Larry tried for a while to return to his old job as a lineman, but that meant being away from Linda a week and he gave it up. He tried construction jobs nearby — "but I had my problems with the situation. It took a lot for me to turn and walk away" from the knowing smiles and hooded eyes. "I made the requests for copies of particular movies, not just the big one, but all the sordid little ones she had made before that."

In August, Larry found a construction job where he could work without the cries and whispers. Recently, he quit to be home with his wife at her request — both of them say they are worried about possible reprisals from some of the people she once worked with and has now written about.

One day Linda Marchiano was watching "The Phil Donahue Show" and saw "Agony Court" will: Men, Women, and Rape, talking about Linda Lovelace. "She was talking about how I took advantage of becoming a celebrity by doing an X-rated movie and becoming a superstar."

Suppressed film on Saudis could air on PBS Monday

By WILLIAM A. HENRY III
©Boston Globe

It began as a story from the "It began as a story from the '80s and One Night," about a proud and beautiful princess who defied her family and her country and gave up her life for love.

It ended as the brief and shabby affair of children too clumsy to run away.

It was a story encompassed in two snapshots, of bound figures flung down and murdered in daylight, and of a girl, a princess, dancing.

"Death of a Princess" was a story Antony Thomas read in newspapers and heard as gossip from a friend. It troubled him, and it seemed to him that history and the terrors of Islam for the oil-dependent West. He started to ask questions. The more he searched, the more contradictory the story became, and the more the truth receded. The mystery became an obsession. The obsession became a movie.

The movie so alarmed the Saudi Arabian government that it offered $11 million to buy and suppress the footage. Thomas said he sold his American co-writer and co-producer, David Fanning. They showed their film in Britain, and it led the Saudis to eject the British ambassador. They sold their film in Holland, and it led the Saudis to threaten a cutoff of oil. They sold their film in Sweden, and a businessman bought up the rights to keep it off TV.

Monday night it is supposed to air on on PBS stations across the country, although PBS for the first time has said it might back down if Saudi threats mount. The film is as thrilling as coming to the movies, as many by Hitchcock. It is a taut essay on the conflict of cultures. It is an accumulation of lies, distortions, and biases — a commentary on the vulnerability of journalism. And it is, as it was from the moment it began, a timeless revenge on Hollywood.

The princess was the Saudi Arabian, the favorite granddaughter of the king's elder brother. She was found guilty of adultery. She was wrapped in black, taken to a crowded parking lot, and shot. Her lover was beheaded, not swiftly but agonizingly, in five separate slashing strokes with a short, blunt sword. Their blood stained the sand. Their bodies were bundled up and hauled away. That much Thomas learned from the newspapers. For most Westerners it was enough. It was too much. It was another sign that we could never really understand and respect the people on whom our fortunes depend.

An Arab friend told Thomas the girl had met her lover at a university in Beirut. She was married, technically, but had been abandoned. When she took her lover home she did not expect to be tried for adultery. But when she was taken before a judge, she would not admit. She could not be convicted except by the testimony of four men who had seen her actual love-making, or by the testimony of eight women, or by her own admission. There were no witnesses. But she condemned herself. Despite her grandfather's pleading, she proclaimed her love and died.

That was what Thomas' friend said. Some of it was true. Much was false. It took Thomas several months and long journeys to learn what — actually — happened. Even then he could learn only part of the truth, and it, too, was accompanied by lies.

The larger truth, the story of Islam in revolt against the 20th century, was part of each of the dozen "true stories" of what happened to the princess: In a Beirut club, as the nightly gunfire of revolution — resounded outside — a rich Arab told him, "This isn't about Christians and Moslems. They're saying, 'Take us back to something we understand. Take us back to the tribe.'"

A Saudi official offered his help "for nothing," a phrase reminding Thomas he was in the land of baksheesh, of bribery, of conditions so harsh and traditions so individualistic that every gesture is made for gain.

Saudis who would speak save the princess — as an Islamic idealist, a democratic populist, a feminist revolutionary. They saw in her, as they each see in Islam, a reflection of what they wish the world to be.

In the end, they all were right. She meant no noble gesture. She died for puppy love. But if she was not a poet, her death was nonetheless a poem. Arabian women live in submission. Royal women live in slavery. Uneducated, unattended, secluded, bored, they know no escape — but seek — secretive and fleeting. She chose romance, escape and openness. Her family caught her. For her defiance she died.

Paul Freedman ably plays Thomas, given another name, because — to protect sources — the whole script has become drama: The photography and especially the lighting by Ivan Strasburg and Nick Knowland are at once eerie and real, evoking both documentary and drama. The score, Van Cliburn's "Albedo Alpha Track" is at once playful and menacing, like the land it evokes. It lingers. Like the snapshots brought alive, the girl dying and the girl dancing.

Hitchcock: in defense of the tube

By CECIL SMITH

©The Los Angeles Times
HOLLYWOOD Among the various deserved tributes to the genius of Alfred Hitchcock that followed his death last week, very little mention was made of his work in television.

Yet from the beginning, Hitch was intrigued with this flickering, windblown theater and its possibilities.

He was its ardent defender when the medium was treated as a sort of bastard stepchild of radio with pictures, not to be compared with the art of the movies.

"The movies," said Hitchcock, "are pictures projected on a screen, which is exactly what television is. The size of the screen and the method of projection are incidental. They have nothing to do with the art of the moving picture which is the art of the cinema."

Early on, long before TV became a reality in this country (although Hitch had seen — telecasts in England) he once told me that he had experimented with TV technique in some of his movies. In his wartime production of "Liberia," for example, he said he had tried to tell "the entire story" in the "confined space of the liveboat."

Itself, shooting the actors from the waist up as an experiment to see how one could work in the confined space of television. Again, he said he shot the movie "Rope" as a continuous action using a number of cameras to approximate the production of a TV drama.

This, and his inventive and creative man was delighted with his own television series, "Alfred Hitchcock Presents," when it was launched on CBS in 1955. I remember him describing those stories he could now tell in the half-hour format of the original show. Those were the days when film stars were leery of TV but eager to work with Hitch. It seemed right and proper that Vera Miles, whom he used in so many movies, would star in the first program of "Alfred Hitchcock Presents."

I remember sitting in his dressing room at Paramount Studios when he told me a story he was doing on a series that he considered the quintessential Hitchcock: Ronald Dahl's "Lamb to Slaughter." It's the story of a woman who kills her husband by bashing in his head with a frozen leg of lamb, then enters the room into the oven and cooks it to hide the evidence.

The story ends with her feeding it to the police who are searching for the murder weapon. It has all the wry, macabre, British humor that Hitch loved.

You may remember that in the Hitchcock television shows, crime was rarely punished. Hitch took care of that with his steady introductions and epilogues in which he discussed crime and punishment.

'Little Miss Marker' is not as good as new

Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS—I'm beginning to think that remakes are just as bad as sequels. They both have one thing in common — a lack of freshness and originality.

Despite director-writer Walter Bernstein's claim that "Little Miss Marker" has nothing to do with the original 1934 version starring Shirley Temple, the film does not seem like new material. Adapted from the famous Damon Runyon story (which was previously filmed three times), the movie has a use, hand-me-down quality.

Not that the story isn't charming. What could be more engaging than a stingy, grouchy bookie (Walter Matthau) who gets stuck with a six-year-old girl (Sara Stimson) he has accepted as a "marker" for a losing bet? The characters are all typical Runyon types — loveable tough guys with names like Sorrowful Jones (Walter Matthau), Regret (Bob Newhart) and Blackie (Tony Curtis).

Even the casting is perfect. The role of Sorrowful Jones, a shrewd cynic-pitted against love and innocence, is tailor-made for Matthau. His craggy, somber exterior and sardonic disposition are funny even before he opens his mouth. When he does speak, he combines hilarious humor with high drama in a single moment, indeed, often in a single expression.

Sara Stimson, an intriguing pixie who makes her dramatic debut as "The Kid" is not at all reminiscent of Shirley Temple. She does not have blonde curls, nor do we expect her to break into song and dance. She has a sincere, natural quality with extraordinary soulful eyes.

Julie Andrews as Amanda, a socialite down on her luck, is herself, svelte, sophisticated self. Runyon's female characters or "dolls" are never quite as interesting as his gangsters, but I think a more spicy, offbeat interpretation would have been more appropriate than the droll, British intellectual portrayed by Ms. Andrews. The problem could, of course, be attributed to the writing rather than to her acting ability.

My favorite character by far is the one of Blackie, deftly performed by Tony Curtis. Blackie is your typically nasty kid who grows up to be an even nastier adult. He's a born bully, a flamboyant hoodlum who, as Regret puts it, "would rub out his old lady for nothing." Curtis plays the character with all of his meanness, bravado and basic insecurity — a comic-villain-you-can't-help-liking.

So what's my complaint? The film, as "cute" as the story and characters are, still seems old hat. I had a similar reaction to the re-make of "The Champ." The story works better in another time. Runyon's fantasy about underpriced women falling for underworld types may have been believable in the 30s, but the idea seems somewhat judicious and naive today.

"Little Miss Marker" is a well-made feature, entertaining and enjoyable. Perhaps it is just my perverse nature to keep wishing for something novel and original. I can, after all, watch old movies on TV.

(This is Shelly Kinzel's final article. She and her husband will relocate to Miami, Fla.)

Socialite Amanda (Julie Andrews) and horse race bookie Sorrowful Jones (Walter Matthau) are an unlikely couple who are brought together by 'Little Miss Marker' (Sara Stimson)

World's top newspapers: elite standard

By James Warren

Mirror, Mirror—on the wall, which metropolis boasts the best newspaper of all? Paris, New York, New Delhi, Stockholm, Barcelona or Milan?

The May issue of World Press Review reveals the conclusion of two academics who studied an area close to my heart, and wallet, and came up not with the single best but the "top 50" in the world.

Twenty-five of the 50 selections are Europeans, including the Daily Telegraph of London, Figaro of Paris, Frankfurter Allgemeine of Frankfurt, the Guardian of London, Izvestia of Moscow, Le Monde of Paris, Neue Zürcher Zeitung of Zurich, Observatore Romano of Vatican City and Pravda of Moscow.

The next biggest group includes 10 American papers. They are the Atlanta Constitution, Baltimore Sun, Christian Science Monitor, Los Angeles Times, Louisville Courier-Journal, Miami Herald, New York Times, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Wall Street Journal and Washington Post.

Equating greatness with an elite readership obviously puts aside quality at times.

JODIE FOSTER

Q: Jodie Foster, the teen-age actress who played a prostitute in the movie "Taxi Driver," has taken on another raunchy part in her next movie. Doesn't her mother object to her playing these kinds of roles? — M.R. of Cleveland.

A: Not at all since Jodie's mother is also her business manager, and closely guides her career. Off camera, Jodie is mature beyond her 17 years, 13 of which have been spent as a working actress. In "Carver," Jodie's upcoming picture, she plays a teen-age runaway who joins a carnival and takes up with two sidestow hustlers. The part really isn't very raunchy but it does give Jodie a chance to play a character more adult than child.

Q: Why is such a distinguished actor as Laurence Olivier working with such untutored actors as Neil Diamond? Isn't Olivier slumming just a bit? — A.W. of Seattle.

A: Olivier said a long time ago that he's anxious to build up an estate for his children. To do that, he's taken all types of roles and handles himself beautifully despite the vehicle. Olivier is being paid $1 million to co-star with Diamond in "The Jazz Singer," and agreed to work an extra week on that troubled picture for another $100,000 — which is pretty fancy slumming. And besides, why knock Diamond's acting abilities before we've seen him on screen? Early word is that Neil is actually pretty good in the movie.

GLORIA VANDERBILT
... even under the fur coat

Q: Gloria Vanderbilt is a multimillionaire who quite obviously can afford the most lavish of wardrobes. Does she really saunter around in her designer blue jeans when not posing for ads? — J.S. of Cincinnati.

A: Without a doubt. We spied Miss Vanderbilt as she veered into a Manhattan bank the other day to go to her safe deposit box. When she slipped off her super luxurious full-length mink, there she was, in her very own brand of form-fitting jeans.

Q: I love the way Dolly Parton dolls herself up for public appearances. But why does she wear so many wigs? Is she going bald? — C.H., Westport, Conn.

A: Fearish the thought. Dolly, according to those we know who've spent some time with her offstage, has delicately textured, very fine hair. And since her own hair isn't conducive to the kinds of outrageous bouffant styles she prefers, Dolly does the next best thing. Thus the wigs.

Q: Since the breakup of her marriage to actor Dick Schaal, has Valerie Harper been seeing any one man regularly or has she been busy playing the field? — M.R., Chicago.

A: Valerie has been focusing on one favorite and has gone Italian in more ways than one. Not only is actor Tony Cassolotti her current flame but the duo recently journeyed to Rome where Tony worked on a movie.

Q: Is Frank Sinatra's wife, Barbara, as shy and retiring as she seems? — K.L. of White Plains, N.Y.

A: Yes. Barbara hates the limelight and prefers to remain in Sinatra's large shadow. But she does step out of it every once in a while. Barbara recently stood in for her husband at a New York awards ceremony because he was busy making his new movie, "The First Deadly Sin." She handled herself beautifully, assisted in part by a gorgeous designer dress in black, a pearl necklace and diamonds. The understated elegance of the ensemble perfectly matched Barbara's personality.

Q: What's this about Ava Gardner refusing all movie offers despite the money and how good the roles are. Has she decided to retire once and for all? — L.S. of Sacramento.

A: Ava, who's 46 now, is a long way from retirement. She looks great, and the screen offers are still coming her way in droves. She's picky about her projects, however. Her next one is "Priest of the Desert," a biography of writer D.H. Lawrence, who died in 1930 at the age of 44. Ava plays a rich heiress who gets involved with the author of "Lady Chatterley's Lover."

—SKIP THE BAGELS: How does a star-know he's arrived — that he's made it to the top? One way is when he can order a special breakfast for an appearance on a morning TV talk show. Bill Cosby, scheduled for "Good Morning America," called the night before and asked for a breakfast of cream, fresh fruit and yogurt to eat while waiting to go on. This instead of the usual guest fare of coffee, bagels and Danish. There were no questions asked. He got it.

Q: We saw Mary Tyler Moore's "whose Life Is It Anyway?" on Broadway. During intermission, we had the opportunity to study her background in the Playbill and could find no mention of her appearance in a different show some years ago — though the notes were full of her movies, TV series and Emmy awards. Can you fill us in on the title of this earlier play? — E. McW., New York

A: You're referring to Mary's performance in the ill-fated version of "Breakfast at Tiffany's," an expensive 1966 Broadway bomb which co-starred Richard Chamberlain and folded during previews. Guess the talented actress — conveniently "forgot" to include this credit in the program's detailed bio and who can blame her? Technically, since the play never opened, it's not really one of her credits.

Q: On a trip to New York, we took the kids to see Sandy Duncan in "Peter Pan." We loved this Broadway show, but we were scared out of our wits when she flew out into the audience for her curtain call. Does Sandy herself share our trepidation, maybe even just a bit? — J.D. of Philadelphia.

A: Not to worry. Sandy assures us that she isn't uptight over her nightly soaring for a few reasons: She's very non-sighted and this, coupled with the fact that she has vision in only one eye, seems to lessen any fear of flying. Sandy confides: "I just don't think about it, mainly because I've grown up entirely in the expert hands of Garry Foy, who manipulates all that complicated rigging. I guess, were I able to see the audience clearly, I'd be as nervous as they!"

Q: Actress Joan Van Ark supposedly had a lot of trouble adjusting to her role on TV's "Knott's Landing." She seems to be such a good actress that I'm wondering just what was the difficulty? — E.H. of Lansing, Mich.

A: We followed Joan's career onstage long before she gained wider exposure on TV. She's a highly skilled actress so her transformation from stage to the TV screen was no problem. But Joan confesses that because her pretty face photographs "round" as does her attractive figure, she's had to lose some weight. Thus, Joan's become a dedicated marathon runner and a Spartan eater. It all pays off since she's thin enough to offset that dreaded "roundness" on TV.

Q: What's up with Warren Beatty's "Reds"? Why haven't we heard more about the production, especially since it features Warren's current girlfriend, Diane Keaton? — M.L. of Providence, R.I.

A: Warren's in London making the movie, based on American Journalist John Reed's account of the Russian revolution. The set has been shrouded in Kremlin-like secrecy. Perhaps that's wise since, as we reported a few weeks ago, the movie is way over budget, has gone through several rewrites and performer-writer Elaine May has been brought in to sort things out. But Warren has come through this sort of thing in the past with a hit, so we'll have to wait a while to see if he and Diane can hit it off — on screen.

Q: Now that disco seems to be dying on the pop music vine, what does Donna Summer plan to do for an encore? — O.P. of Gary, Ind.

A: When we saw Donna in concert a while back, it was clear she's moving away from disco to a more middle-of-the-road style. But pop's reigning femme fatale brings a special allure to anything she does, so her chart action shouldn't be affected. My spies report Donna's next step will be gospel music, reflecting her personal religious views. And don't forget, Donna started singing in a church choir — so it will be sort of a return to her musical roots.

HOW ABOUT 25 CENTS? Actor Anthony Quinn recently strolled into a Manhattan shop — which specializes in high-priced Turkish rarities, searching for a brass planter. The star confided that the planter need not necessarily be an important antique. Asked how much he wished to spend, Quinn told the proprietor, "Oh, somewhere in the neighborhood of 25 cents." Then, he quickly added with a wink, "Like the Bazzars in Greece."

Q: What's all this talk about actor Robert Redford suffering from black moods and sleeplessness? Is this just some kind of reverse publicity? — T.P. of Lexington, Mass.

A: Redford has suffered from very bad insomnia for years and this certainly has caused some black moods which he is careful not to inflict on those around him. However, in the last year his insomnia has been diminishing and he's in a much better frame of mind.

NEIL SIMON
... project with Marsha?

Q: I know Neil Simon had two daughters by his first wife who died but does he have any children with Marsha Mason? — B.O.C., Boston.

A: No. Marsha, 37, has told close friends that she is ambivalent about having a baby. Her career is flowering and for that reason she's reluctant to take time out to have a child but, on the other hand, she's said to feel a child would add even more cement to the already solid six year marriage she has with her millionaire playwright.

Q: Aren't Steve McQueen's two ex-wives — All McGraw and Nellie McQueen — having a bitter feud about who was most important in helping Steve's career? — K.L., Denver.

A: Not true. Actually, All and Nellie are reasonably good friends. These days, Nellie is mostly concerned with her upcoming marriage to businessman Al Tuffel next year. And who do you think offered to design the wedding dress? None other than All herself.

"On Company Business"

The final two segments of "On Company Business," a three-hour three-part documentary film exploring the relationship of the CIA to the formulation and execution of American foreign policy over the past 30 years, will be broadcast on PBS' "Non Fiction Television," Friday at 9 and 10 p.m.

Former CIA officer (1952-59) Philip Agee (pictured) appears throughout the film.

The second segment will explore the CIA's methods of manipulating public opinion, using Latin America in the 1960s as an example. The segment alleges that the 1964 coup in Brazil was a CIA covert operation which had been in the planning stages for two years and documents this coup was organized by CIA infiltrators in the labor unions of Brazil. This section also investigates CIA involvement in kidnapping the techniques of interrogation and torture in cooperation with secret police of other countries.

The third and final segment will examine the CIA's role in the events which led up to the 1973 coup in Chile, using extensive interviews. This section also explores the issue of CIA accountability to the American public and focuses on the CIA-supported Angola operation of 1975-76.

Check local PBS station for broadcast day and time.
