

Oil fee fight triggers move

Congress temporarily raises national debt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress voted Friday to extend the national debt ceiling for five days, staving off for the time being a money shortage that could have affected Social Security checks and other important federal payments.

But the move simply put off until next week a showdown between Congress and President Carter over his decision to impose a dime-a-gallon gasoline fee.

The House approved the short-term debt ceiling extension after members were promised they will be allowed to vote soon on the gasoline fee issue.

Several hours later, the Senate voted 47-10 to go along with the brief extension to accommodate members who wanted to go home for the weekend — particularly those in the nine states holding primaries Tuesday.

The Treasury Department said the "five days of grace" means all Social Security checks for June will be honored. Most retired people will receive the checks on Tuesday and the debt ceiling issue will not come up again in Congress until Thursday — five working days from Friday.

Opponents of the gasoline fee have tried repeatedly to use the debt ceiling legislation as a vehicle for repealing Carter's right to impose the price hike at the pumps.

The debt ceiling and gasoline fee are not related but it is common practice on Capitol Hill to attach a controversial issue to a vital piece of legislation.

Carter said Friday in a letter to House Speaker Thomas O'Neill he will veto any legislation — even a measure raising the debt ceiling — if it takes away his power to impose the gasoline fee.

"I cannot sign any bill disapproving the gasoline conservation fee which I imposed," he said. "Thus I shall immediately veto any debt limit extension or other legislation that disallows the fee or that restricts my authority to impose such a fee."

O'Neill, who supports Carter on the gasoline fee, first promised House members a vote on the issue June 10, but in further negotiations between House and Senate leaders the timetable was moved up to next week.

Under the agreement, the House will consider the gas tax separately from the debt ceiling. But since the debt ceiling legislation is urgent, it could become an inviting target for last-minute maneuvering in the Senate.

If the debt ceiling were not extended, the government could not pay its bills. The ceiling is permanently set at $400 billion, but is routinely raised on a temporary basis to allow higher spending. The current ceiling of $370 billion expires Saturday.

Problems arose because opponents of Carter's oil import fee want a chance to take away his authority to impose it. The House leadership has refused to bring the matter up for a vote while the fee is being challenged.

Byrd urges more defense spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd, urging congressmen to act quickly to fashion a new budget resolution, said Friday a spending plan that provides a strong defense is "neither unfair nor unjust."

Byrd asked members of a House-Senate conference committee to resolve their differences "as soon as possible" and added, in a Senate speech, "The efforts which were begun in March should not be permitted to languish."

The conference committee had agreed on a $613.3 billion balanced budget. But it was turned down by the House Thursday night, 242-141.

Both President Carter and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill had called for its defeat on grounds it carried too much for defense and not enough for domestic programs.

Liberals hope to come out of the new conference committee negotiations with more for social programs — but may fall short of their goal if the defense-minded Senate and House Republicans have their way.

Byrd broke with Carter and O'Neill on the budget, saying it did not, as critics charge, give the Pentagon too much.

The budget put together by the conference committee included $133.7 billion for defense, which is $20 billion more than provided in the fiscal 1980 spending plan.

Byrd said he decided to support the high defense figure approved by the Senate on the basis of the "analysis of United States military preparedness which Senate committees had undertaken in connection with the SALT II treaty, which convinced me that our national security needs were not being met."

Ely to be MX site

PARK CITY, Utah (UPI) — The Air Force has identified the tentative Utah and Nevada sites for the main operating bases for the proposed MX missile system, the director of Utah's MX Task Force said Friday.

Director Ken Olson said the Nevada base would be just north of Ely and the Utah base would be near Beryl, a small rural community.

Olson explained that Air Force planners made the disclosure to state officials.

"The Beryl base would employ about 8,000 civilian and military personnel," he said.

Olson said the project would generate a population growth of at least 15,000 people.

In order to deal with the population growth, Olson said, "the Air Force would have to build a whole new city house all MX personnel on the base, or use a combination of both."

Olson said the base camp at Ely would be somewhat smaller than the Utah facility. He said it would bring in about 1,000 new people, including base workers and their families plus the people who would move in to provide goods and services.

Lava discovered pooling in volcano's crater

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Chunks of rock as big as 4 feet in diameter were sighted Friday shooting up from the brilliant red "lava dome" swelling inside the steaming crater of Mount St. Helens.

Forest Service observers flying over the huge, horseshoe shaped crater in early morning darkness said they saw "a brilliant glowing red" where the dome, estimated to be at 750 to 900 degrees Fahrenheit, was rising.

Daytime observers could not see the red hot glow through the ash and rock debris covering the pit of the 2-mile wide hole.

Geologist Mary Hill of the U.S. Geological Survey said she saw gravelized rocks "and some really big ones — maybe 4 feet in diameter" shooting up from the force of steam explosions during her afternoon flight over the mountain.

She said the big rocks fell back into the crater. Small fragments of rock rose higher and showered down outside the crater. Relatively small puffs of ash were caught by prevailing winds and blown to the west and south.

"It's here at last," USGS geologist Tim Hatt said. "We're beginning to see the first aspects of the dome — a red incandescent glow of lava. We feel good about the lava dome forming.

We expect the explosive phase to be less strong now. We expect ash eruptions but not as strong as on May 25."

Because of the rock fragments shooting out of the crater, the Federal Aviation Administration restricted flights to no closer than 3 miles from the mountain and warned planes to stay away from the ash spewing out on the south side.

The lava dome could be the first stage in the volcano returning to dormancy. But geologist Dwight Crandall, USGS coordinator for Mount St. Helens, warned that formation of the dome could be accompanied by lateral blasts, which could carry rock debris outward at very high velocity.

He said high speed flows of intensely hot gas, pulverized rock and ash as well as mud flows and avalanches could be triggered by the dome formation, but not likely at the magnitude of the deadly May 18 blast that tore 1,300 feet off the top of the mountain and deposited volcanic ash on parts of three states.

The glow of lava first was sighted through light-intensive binoculars early Thursday as red spots on the crater floor.

Before dawn Friday, U.S. Forest Service aerial observers saw a "brilliant glowing red" in the crater with their naked eyes.

Two bright spots, each 30 to 40 feet long and two to three feet wide, were described by the observers. Forest Service spokesman Frank Morrell said the glow began to decrease in intensity just before dawn.

Small eruptions of ash and steam were seen around the edges of the glow and by 7 a.m. "small ash bursts of four to five per minute were seen," Morrell said.

Geologists had expected a dome of lava to begin forming within the crater, but had been unable to predict when the process would begin.

Crandall said the eruptions and flows during the dome formation period probably would be of less volume and force than those accompanying the cataclysmic May 18 blast which blew more than a cubic mile off the top of the mountain and devastated a 150-square-mile area.

Rescue critique

Secret study details hostage rescue effort errors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A secret Pentagon critique of the aborted hostage rescue attempt in Iran charges helicopters were inadequately maintained, their pilots never practiced in bad weather and weather forecasters missed a 6,000-foot-high dust fog, it was reported today.

The Pentagon immediately denied the report by Scripps-Howard News Service, which said the critique was based on interviews by military experts with more than two dozen members of the aborted mission April 24.

Three helicopters broke down and eight U.S. servicemen died on an Iranian desert some 200 miles from Tehran before the mission was called off.

Scripps-Howard reported the secret critique of the mission concluded major errors were made in planning, appointing commanders and executing the operation.

"No such document exists," said a Pentagon spokesman.

"The after-action inquiry has not been completed and no critique of the rescue mission has been drawn up. The Scripps-Howard story is a mish-mash of erroneous rumors and speculations that have previously been knocked down by the facts," he said.

Dan K. Thomason, editor of Scripps-Howard News Service, said the document did exist. "We have seen the critique," he said.

The conclusions — and some previously undisclosed facts about the mission — were obtained by Scripps-Howard from Pentagon sources.

The candid critique does not attempt to evaluate what might have happened had the mission continued, Scripps-Howard said in a report written by Stewart Lytle. The critique merely cites reasons the mission failed when it did.

The top-secret document said a key factor in the failure of the mission was the selection of Maj. Gen. James Vaught as its commander. The critique noted that while Vaught is an outstanding soldier, he lacks experience in planning operations involving several military branches — in this case the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines.

The critical loss of three of the eight helicopters halfway through the mission was caused by mechanical malfunctions. Two suffered hydraulic malfunctions and one lost its gyrocompass.

According to the critique, the crews never practiced flying when they encountered bad weather such as sand storms in the American desert. The crews assumed that if they encountered bad weather in Iran, the mission would be canceled.

A direct impact on the mission was an unpredicted fog bank of dust. It was not a sand storm as earlier reported.

The critique says the Air Force weather service, which predicted a clear night for flying, cannot explain how it failed to note such a large fog bank.

The nighttime dust storm caused one helicopter to return to the Nimitz when it might have continued despite a malfunction of its gyrocompass.

The critique discloses that, despite two specific orders that the maintenance crews on board the aircraft carrier USS Nimitz fly them more, the helicopters were flown less than one-fourth of the number of hours considered needed to keep them in proper condition.

The report also cites divided command responsibilities as another cause of bad planning. Each commander of the helicopters, C-130 transports and commandos had his own criteria for circumstances under which the mission would be aborted. No one at the desert site had the experience or responsibility to judge the overall chances of success, the report said.

The report said that the man who had this responsibility was President Carter, who was halfway around the world from the scene of the operation.

As for the dust storm, the crews of the first C-130s, who were flying a parallel course at a higher altitude than the helicopters, ran into the dust fog bank first. Air Force Col. James Kyle prepared a radio message about the dust, but decided not to alert the helicopters about it when the C-130 flew out of the fog bank after 45 minutes.

The helicopters, flying lower and slower, were inside the fog bank for 2 1/2 hours.

The critique questions why more spare parts, particularly a critical component like a hydraulic pump, were not carried on the mission in anticipation of mechanical failures. It notes that the last helicopter to fail could have been repaired at the desert refueling site if a hydraulic pump had been available.

5 die in shooting at home

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Police Friday found the bodies of five persons shot to death in an agitated eastside home in the city's worst mass slaying since the 1933 Union Station Massacre.

Three men were sought for questioning.

"We know who they are. Warrants have not been issued, but they are being picked up," said Detective Pete Eklund.

Authorities also were questioning three witnesses, one of whom was shot during the late Thursday gunfire, in an effort to learn who shot down the three men and two women in various rooms of the small house.

It was the biggest single killing in the city's history since a train robber and four law enforcement authorities were machine-gunned in June 1933 outside Kansas City's then-bustling Union Station.

Detectives found a half-dozen firearms in the house along with a clutter of electronics equipment and a stash of narcotics.

Sketchy stories provided by two persons who fled the home when the shooting broke out, police said, had no suspects and no motives. Detectives hoped to question a third person, William Ryan, 33, who was found in the house with a bullet wound in the back. Ryan's wife was among the dead.

"He (Ryan) is the one who will have the key to what had happened out there," said Police Sgt. Steve Staffer. "We just don't know yet."

The five bodies were fully clothed. All had been shot several times.

"They were not lined up," Staffer said. "Two men and a woman were found in the kitchen area. One male was found in the living room. One woman was found in the bathroom."

Staffer said the house showed no sign of forced entry.

The Union Station Massacre occurred on June 17, 1933, when seven law-enforcement officers were slain to escort convicted train robber Frank Nash to a federal prison. Men with machine guns opened fire in front of the station, and when it was over, Nash and four others were dead.

A 3-masted ship sails past the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy

World's sailing ships parade into Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — With white sails billowing in breezy, sparkling weather, a majestic fleet of old-fashioned tall-masted ships paraded before nearly 2 million people Friday in a spectacular "kickoff to Boston's summer-long South Bristol Jubilee."

Shortly before noon, America's oldest commissioned warship, the black-hulled frigate USS Constitution led the fleet into the inner harbor, enveloping itself in a gray cloud of gunpowder as it fired a 21-gun salute while it passed the Navy aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy.

Single-file, the elegant fleet, ranging from the 70-foot Christian Venture to the 370-foot Juan Sebastian de Elcano, sailed slowly past the carrier, crews scrambling in the rigging to drop sail as they reached the tight confines of the inner harbor.

One of the largest crowds in Boston history jammed four miles of rooftops, streets, piers and parks and highrise business offices to watch the six-hour reminder of what the harbor was like when it was a focal point of U.S. merchant seapower in the 18th and 19th centuries.

Nearly 500 National Guard troops joined hundreds of police in keeping order, but few incidents were reported in the vast crowd. Police reported no arrests.

Major roadways in the city became snarled during the morning rush hour and streets leading to the waterfront were closed.

By lunch hour, virtually every square inch of waterfront viewing ground was occupied with camera-snapping tourists, can-canping bicyclers, babies and sunbathers.

Saturday briefing

Ballet brings reunion

PEKING (UPI) — The Boston Ballet jetted into China Friday, the first American company admitted since the Communist takeover in 1949, and was an immediate success with at least one local elderly fan.

Dancer Stephanie Moy, whose parents were originally from Canton, had a so happy and totally unexpected reunion within minutes of touching down at Peking's new airport with an elderly great aunt she had never met.

"I was going to try to get in touch with her when we arrived but I had no idea my great aunt would be at the airport," the tiny dancer said. "She's in her 70's and I had never met her before. I was very excited. It was quite a surprise."

The unexpected reunion began the ballet's three city tour of Peking, Shanghai and Canton where they will perform such diverse works as Cinderella, Swan Lake and La Fille Mal Gardée.

Mobilization exercise begins

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — More than 1,000 Marine reserves from all over the Southwest converged on Camp Pendleton Friday in a troop movement exercise to test how quickly reserves can be organized and moved on short notice.

Reserves from California, Nevada, Utah and Colorado began arriving at the sprawling base in northern San Diego County Thursday night for the weekend exercise called "MORD," meaning "mobilization readiness and deployment."

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The state of Florida halted distribution of 150,000 tourist brochures Friday, partly out of fear the cover picture showing a grinning black child holding a slice of watermelon would be interpreted as a racial slur.

Tourism director Ed Gilbert, who was raised in Virginia and Philadelphia, said he had no idea black people eating watermelon was viewed as a racial stereotype by some people.

He said 50,000 of the brochures were distributed to travel agencies, chambers of commerce and individuals before the matter of a possible slur was brought to his attention by reporters for two newspapers, the Tampa Tribune and Tallahassee Democrat.

They will not be recalled, he said, but new covers will be printed to show "kids having fun in Florida."

Asbestos rules released

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a new crackdown on products containing cancer-causing asbestos, the government Friday said 1,200 companies will have to describe to the public the asbestos content of everything from toasters to dishwashers.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said the firms singled out are those most likely to manufacture household products containing asbestos.

The agency said about 30 categories of products will be affected, including ranges and ovens, toasters, oven mitts and potholders, clothes washers and dryers, dishwashers and refrigerators, portable electric heaters, asbestos paper, pipe insulation, iron rests and burner mats.

Under the new order, companies must say not only which products contain asbestos, but why it was used, whether substitutes are available, the number of products sold and whether tests were made to determine if asbestos fibers are released from the item.

Report: Abolish this report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday gave Congress the annual report on the administration of radiation control, which contained 31 pages and offered only one recommendation — that the report be abolished.

Under existing legislation, the head of what is now the Department of Health and Human Services, must submit an annual report to the president on the administration of the Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act.

"All of the information found in this report is available to Congress on a more immediate basis through congressional committee oversight and budget hearings," the report found, plus numerous technical reports and the annual report of the Food and Drug Administration which administers the law.

Spanish government survives

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — The Socialist party fell far short of carrying a censure motion against the centrist government Friday but won a moral victory as two small parties deserted Premier Adolfo Suarez's coalition.

The Socialists were 24 votes short of the absolute majority of 176 they needed to carry the first censure vote of the new Spanish democracy. But they won more votes than expected.

In addition to the 121 Socialists, the motion was supported by the 23 Communists, and eight Andalusian, Basque, Catalan and Galician nationalists.

Suarez' 166 Democratic Center Union deputies voted alone against the motion.

Courts hire few minorities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of a House civil rights panel said Friday data supplied by federal courts confirms charges that for the most part they provide only token jobs for minorities and women.

U.S. District Judge J. Hunter of Missouri, testifying on behalf of the Judicial Conference of the United States, acknowledged the allegations were "more accurate than inaccurate." But he said the situation is not due to any "deliberate insensitivity" on the part of the courts.

Rep. Don Edwards, who chairs the House Civil and Constitutional Rights Subcommittee, said information supplied at his request showed "that with few exceptions employment practices in the federal judiciary have excluded minorities and women in all but clerical and secretarial positions."

Judge Hunter said the heavy case load under which courts have been struggling is partly to blame for the situation, since it has made it difficult for the courts "to reach for new initiatives."

Super-gonorrhea spreads

ATLANTA (UPI) — The national Center for Disease Control warned Friday that other areas of the United States may experience outbreaks of penicillin-resistant gonorrhea similar to the epidemic in Shreveport, La.

The CDC said that although the incidence of the resistant strain of so-called "super gonorrhea" is low, 196 cases were reported in the period January-April 1980, reflecting a 68.1 percent increase in cases compared to the same period of 1979.

"Penicillin, long the treatment of choice for gonorrhea and extremely effective until 1976, is not capable of knocking out 'super gonorrhea'." The CDC said physicians should administer the antibiotic spectinomycin to patients who continue to be infected.

Cable news begins Sunday

ATLANTA (UPI) — Broadcasting and sports entrepreneur Ted Turner introduced his multi-million dollar gamble — the Cable News Network — to the nation Friday, promising to fill the news gap between newspapers and the three major television networks.

"The country needs the news station," Turner told viewers on a satellite hookup with the 33 cable systems from Honolulu, Hawaii, to Audubon, New Jersey, who are signed on with the 24-hour news network.

Turner's ambitious project, which goes on the air Sunday at 6 p.m., will reach 2 million subscribers, a number he hopes will increase rapidly as it gains acceptance by other cable systems.

He also predicted 80 to 85 percent of the nation's television viewers would be cable subscribers by the end of the century, opening up a potential market for CNN.

"We want to see the nation wired," he said.

Turner said there are no plans to affiliate with commercial television stations in major markets except through news exchange agreements.

He said CNN, with its two-hour news blocks, will provide in-depth coverage of major events not available on half-hour network news programs.

"We're going to take more of a newspaper approach to the news," he said. But Turner added he did not feel CNN would replace newspapers because the network would not be able to provide the needed diet of local news.

Turner said he is prepared to lose $2 million a month on the project for the first 18 months of its operation, but does not expect CNN to show a profit for three to four years.

Floods rip child from mom's arms

United Press International

Swirling flood waters swept a baby girl from her mother's arms Friday as a series of storms that had stalled over the Plains swept eastward.

Police in Elmore City, Okla., said the 4-month-old girl drowned in the rampaging floodwaters of Sandy Creek after the car in which she was riding with her mother, Regina Davidson, and 4-year-old brother was submerged.

Mrs. Davidson told police she crawled out of the car and sat on the roof with her two children but was forced to flee when floodwaters threatened to sweep them off the vehicle.

Mrs. Davidson told officials she began walking through the five-foot-deep waters carrying her two children, but currents were stronger than she anticipated and the baby was swept from her arms.

Garvin County sheriff's deputies said the baby's body was found about a half mile from the stalled car. Mrs. Davidson and her son were found sitting on the limb of a tall pecan tree.

Iraq attacks Iranians

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Iran charged that Iraqi jets, helicopters and tanks attacked its western border Friday in the heaviest clash between the two feuding countries since last year.

The official Pars news agency said Iranian army and revolutionary guard units destroyed three Iraqi tanks and wiped out two Iraqi border posts in the fighting at three points along the border. It said Iranian forces suffered no casualties and repelled the attacks.

Iraq did not immediately comment on the Iranian reports and they could not be independently confirmed.

But defense officials joined a meeting between Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and President Abolhassan Khamenei in another sign that the border between Iran and Iraq was heating up.

In another development, Bani-Sadr told Pars he has chosen a prime minister. But he did not reveal the identity of his choice, apparently because a new parliament must first approve the candidate.

Officials said Thursday the process of approving a prime minister and then his government's programs

Want's Begin's job

Weizman: Israel should proceed with talks

By United Press International
Former Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman criticized the Begin government Friday for its hard line in the Palestinian autonomy talks with Egypt and said Israel should go ahead on its own to implement self-rule in the occupied territories.

Weizman, who resigned Wednesday from Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet and openly opposed the frozen autonomy talks.

He said he would support the proposal while he was in office. The former defense minister said Israel must change its attitude in the peace talks with Egypt because currently there is no "real wish for something to move" in the talks.

He said the atmosphere could be better, and in Cairo, President Anwar Sadat said Friday Egypt is waiting for an American initiative to revive the frozen autonomy talks.

Egypt suspended the talks May 8 — 16 days before their targeted one-year life span ended — with the two sides still poles apart on all major issues.

"We are waiting for an American initiative," Sadat said. "Let us hope it will come soon and then after that we shall decide and declare our position."

Sadat froze the talks mainly because of an Israeli parliamentary bill that would legalize the status of the entire city of Jerusalem as capital of the Jewish state.

Egypt insists that East Jerusalem, seized by Israel in 1967, be restored to Arab sovereignty. Diplomatic officials said Egypt is seeking "assurances" through the United States that the Jerusalem bill will not go through.

It said the settlement-building in the West Bank and Gaza will refrain from "suppression" of the Palestinians in the two regions.

Weizman, who had closer relations with Egyptian officials than any other Israeli leader, made it clear during the news conference he would like to succeed Begin. But he gave no indication how he would go about it.

He said he will remain a member of Begin's Herut Party despite bitter condemnation by Begin and will retain his parliament seat. He also said he would serve in a government headed by the opposition Labor Party.

Weizman expressed high regard for Dayan, who defected from Begin's Cabinet last fall, in an interview with the newspaper Yedoth Ahronoth. But he seemed to rule out the possibility of a formal political alliance between them.

Dayan, he said, "is the closest politician to me now. We have had many arguments and sharp disagreements but doubtless, he is one of the people I value most. But you don't set up political parties with Moshe Dayan."

Speculation has centered on the possibility of a new political party will form around Weizman, one of Israel's most popular politicians.

Kangaroo ban lifted
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department proposed Friday that commercial imports of kangaroos and kangaroo products be allowed for a two-year trial period, ending a ban imposed in 1974.

Kangaroos are listed as threatened with extinction under the Endangered Species Act. It is a milder classification than endangered.

Assistant Interior Secretary Robert Herbst said the proposal to end the ban was made because recent information indicates there are 32 million kangaroos in Australia — a much higher number than previously believed.

Hostage decision to go to U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will take a World Court decision to the Security Council within the next week, administration officials said Friday, but it is not likely to try again to invoke U.N. sanctions against Iran.

The international court issued a decision a week ago, ordering the release of the American hostages by Iran.

Iranian authorities have since said they do not recognize the court's authority and will not obey its directive. One consideration in the U.S. decision to avoid another battle over economic sanctions is that most of the western powers have now invoked limited sanctions already.

Another public confrontation might complicate and perhaps delay deliberation of the hostage question by the newly constituted Iranian parliament, some officials feel.

Pars said the first Iraqi attacks against the dam and the communications tower were supported by helicopters and artillery. Iranian forces launched a counter-attack and destroyed two Iraqi border posts at Moghan and Tofan, it said.

Later, two Iraqi Air Force Mig jetfighters and four helicopters attacked the Iranian border posts of Halaleh, Nai-Khezar and Talkhabwi and "subjected them to attack by different kinds of air weapons" for 45 minutes, Pars said.

China plan is for zero population

PEKING (UPI) — China has formed a family planning association to help in a major drive to reduce the growth rate to zero by the year 2,000.

The latest official estimates published in April said the population stood at a surprisingly low 770.9 million people on the mainland, though American estimates previously said the billion mark had been passed several years ago.

Salvador general strike threatens junta's hold

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — El Salvador's most powerful labor group went on a nationwide strike Friday to protest "government repression."

Officials said the bodies of 11 persons, all apparently killed in separate acts of political violence, were being buried in parts of the free-growing Central American nation of

4.8 million in the past 24 hours. Hector Recinos, secretary general of the left-leaning National Syndical Federation of Salvadoran Workers, said about half of his group's 50,000 members would remain on strike "indefinitely."

The association of 30 labor unions staged the walkout to protest "government repression" against leftist groups trying to oust the ruling military-civilian junta and to demand higher wages and benefits, Recinos said.

The labor leader said the work stoppage would affect the nation's electricity plants, fishing industry, transportation, some food and textile factories and two of its major ports. Several labor unions, most of them left-leaning, have staged a series of strikes in recent weeks in what observers say is a coordinated attempt to keep the junta off balance.

In another development, a government source said the junta will establish military tribunals to try leftist guerrillas accused of crimes against "security of the state."

Separatists seize New Hebrides island

VILA, New Hebrides (UPI) — Armed separatists have seized control of Espiritu Santo Island in the South Pacific's New Hebrides and are holding two government officers hostage, a government official said Friday.

The revolt on the archipelago's largest island began last Wednesday when rebel patrols attacked the Santo police station, disarmed the police, and took their uniforms. Islanders led by strike leader Jimmie Stevens captured the district commissioner and his assistant.

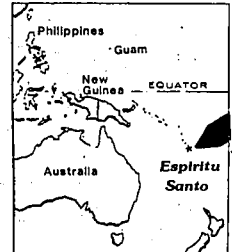

Peter Taurakoo, private secretary to the chief minister of the New Hebrides, said he believed Communist Joseph Valesh was being held in the port of Luganville.

Taurakoo said details of the insurrection were sketchy because the rebels had severed the island's telegraph and telephone links.

Rebels had first surrounded Valesh's house and demanded that he leave the island, which is administered by France and Great Britain but is gradually being turned over to the newly elected local government. The New Hebrides will become independent July 30 with the new name of Vanuatu.

Valesh radioed the capital of Vila and was instructed to remain on the island, but the rebels overpowered him and his assistant and abducted them. Taurakoo said.

To prepare the jewel-like chain of islands for independence, popular elections were held last year. The Nationalist and predominantly English-speaking Vanuaku Party won but has faced continuing opposition from the separatist elements, led by Stevens and backed by groups of French planters and Americans ranging from real estate salesmen to the Phoenix Foundation, an extreme right-wing group aimed at setting up what it claims will be a totally "free" society.

Dolphin emancipator convicted in Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japanese court imposed a six-month suspended jail sentence Friday on Dexter London Cate, an American environmentalist accused of freeing 300 captured dolphins to save them from slaughter by fishermen.

Cate, 36, was then ordered held for deportation proceedings. The former teacher from Hilo, Hawaii has been in jail since March 18 when formal charges were brought against him for slashing nets holding dolphins marked for slaughter.

The dolphins were among some 800 rounded up by fishermen on the Iki Island, 600 miles southwest of Tokyo, because the sea mammals feed in the area's fishing grounds and, according to the fishermen, take away their livelihood.

Cate contended he was innocent of any wrongdoing since "dolphins are intelligent mammals that have the right to live and co-exist with mankind."

Yoshiro Kamel, presiding judge, said there is no international convention restraining the killing of dolphins and therefore "the fishermen are free to capture the animals."

His ruling added, "What is more, it has been established that dolphins are harmful to fishing, and therefore the fishermen are justified in capturing them."

Indian riots end

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Army and police brought order to the state of Assam Friday after nearly a week of racial and religious riots that left at least 35 people dead.

Many of the 3,000 Assamese, who fled their homes in Nowongong, Kamrup and Goalpara districts drifted back to their houses.

But thousands of Assamese whose houses were burnt down by rioting Bengalis remained in makeshift shelters in schools and camps under Red Cross assistance.

Doctors unveil smallest baby born in U.S.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Russell Ordeil Williams is 6 months old but doctors made public for the first time Thursday that he is the smallest healthy baby ever born in the United States.

He apparently is doing well and will survive although he was born 14 weeks premature on Nov. 29, 1979, and weighed only 1.01 pounds at birth, officials at Memorial Hospital Medical Center said.

Thursday, he weighed 8 pounds and

Dr. Nasir Tejani, his primary physician, said he appeared to be developing normally.

The previous record holder in the United States was Mignon Faulkner, born in San Diego Nov. 7, 1970, weighing 1.66 pounds.

Although Russell is doing well there were complications at birth and the hospital decided not to make an announcement at the time.

His mother, who was not identified, had an uncomplicated pregnancy and received good prenatal care, the hospital said.

The baby initially was fed intravenously and by nasal-gastric tube feeding. He developed respiratory problems and required breathing assistance until February.

The baby was not released from the hospital until April 21. He will continue to be monitored by the hospital staff for several years, officials said.

President Carter rolled out the red carpet Thursday at the White House for National Spelling Bee champ Jacques Bally — and admitted a touch of embarrassment. He told the 14-year-old Denver ace — who won his title by spelling "elucubrate." "I don't have any doubt that everyone here can spell better than I can. Also, my staff is not invulnerable. I noticed this morning, in recognizing Jacques Bally, they misspelled his name."

She's been named spokesman for UNICEF and director of the International Rescue Committee which was set up during World War II to help displaced persons.

People have a tendency to make folk heroes of the very worst people. Witness Billy the Kid, D.B. Cooper, Adolf Hitler. The last topped George Washington Thursday in an auction at New York's Waldorf-Astoria. Der Fuehrer's initialed silver cigarette box went for $1,500, while an invoice signed by Washington fetched only $1,400. Says gallery spokesman Harvey Foodler, "If it had FDR's initials, it might be worth a few bucks. But everyone wants something of Hitler's."

MOUNTAIN MELODY
Harry Truman, apparently killed May 18 in the volcanic eruption of Mount St. Helens, never dreamed he'd wind up on the record charts. Jeri Hansen, of Seattle, with daughter Susie and son Bobby, wrote and recorded "Ode to Mount St. Helens," celebrating the 83-year-old Truman's stubborn refusal to leave his mountain lodge. Then the volcano buried it and the disc took off — selling more than 10,000 copies. A follow-up is in the works. It's called "The Man on the Mountain."

His check — for $200 — came through in fine shape. Census officials aren't laughing. They say the practical jokers are "selfish and devious."

Graduating class of 1 matriculates

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The graduating class at Dropsie University listened solemnly to the commencement address, then rose — not quite thunderously — to receive its degree.

Lena Allen Shore, the only member of the graduating class, was awarded a doctorate in philosophy.

The president of the 70-year-old Philadelphia university, Joseph Rappaport, acknowledged the class of 1980 was unusually small. "Our average is four a year," he said.

Dropsie admits students on the doctoral level only. "We are the only independent, PhD-level, non-theological and non-sectarian institution in the country." Rappaport said. Study centers on the Bible, Arabic, Hebrew, ancient languages and Middle Eastern Affairs.

The lone graduate said Thursday's commencement allowed her to experience the sixth of "the 10 steps in the land of life," her personal philosophy. "Many thoughts came to my mind. The most important was the sense of fulfillment and the joy of responsibility," she said.

Ms. Shore is a native of Poland, where she joined the war resistance in her teens. Later, she lived in France and has had six books published, five of them in French. She earned her masters degree in education at McGill University in Montreal.

Shot Urban League President Vernon Jordan

Urban League leader shooting

Police hunt assassin

PORT WAYNE, Ind. (UPI) — Police hunted for a single sniper Friday in the ambush shooting of civil rights leader Vernon Jordan.

FBI agents however were searching for "more than one" conspirator. A motorcycleist carrying three rifles, including one similar to the weapon used in the Jordan shooting, was arrested, questioned in the case and then released.

Jordan, 44, director of the National Urban League, was taken off the critical list at Parkview Memorial Hospital. But doctors said he was "not out of danger" and listed him in very serious condition with a bullet hole as big as "a fist" in his back.

A sniper who waited for some time outside Jordan's motel fired two or three shots at the black leader early Thursday as he returned from a coffee party for several Urban League members.

His hostess, Martha Coleman, 36, a white Urban League volunteer, had driven him back to his motel and was still in her car when Jordan, a muscular man who stands about 6-foot-4 and weighs 230 pounds, was hit.

FBI Director William Webster, who dispatched a score of agents to Indiana's second largest city, laid reporters in Washington "apparently more than one person" was involved.

Police Chief Leon Wolfe said his investigators believed

Mrs. Coleman, who has been married and divorced four times, had not given them full cooperation. She has refused to identify or help them locate her "current boyfriend," he said.

But police spokesman Dan Gibson said the department had dropped its theory the attack was a "domestic matter" and believed it was carried out by one man, acting alone, probably an impulse.

President Carter said he believed the attack on Jordan "was an assassination attempt" — an assessment shared by Dr. Joseph Lowery of Atlanta, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, leader of Operation PUSH in Chicago.

Lowery said "a Klan mentality" was responsible for the shooting and it did not matter whether or not there was a conspiracy, Jackson said he thought there was a "hit list" of people who take a strong stand on civil rights.

Lowery and Jackson joined three other black leaders — Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the NAACP; Carl Holman, president of the National Urban Coalition, and Richard Hatcher, mayor of Gary, Ind. — in a telegram to Carter urging he leave "no stone unturned" in a full-scale federal investigation.

The shooting was the first attack on a major civil rights leader since the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. in Memphis, Tenn., on April 4, 1968.

Arson suspected

Fire burns Miami Urban League HQ

MIAMI (UPI) — Fire of "major proportions" broke out in the Miami offices of the Urban League Friday and fire inspectors said it might have been set by a "suspicious" white man seen in a hall outside just before the blaze started.

Five persons were treated for smoke inhalation, Fire Inspector George Billberry said.

The fire came a day after the shooting in Fort Wayne, Ind., of National Urban League President Vernon Jordan, and about two hours after an issue of the Miami News hit the streets carrying a column by Miami Urban League President T. Willard Fair blaming whites for recent rioting in Miami.

Billberry said a female employee of the Urban League reported seeing a "white man in a brown suit who left just before the fire" but added there was no proof the man set the blaze. It was then supposed to be "At this point in time there is no connection," Billberry said. "It could be accidental."

Church of Scientology scheme

Plan to discredit Justice Department official revealed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Church of Scientology members planned a bizarre scheme to discredit an official in the State Justice Department that included the use of a pregnant woman, a fake nun and a phony bribery scheme, the Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported.

The newspaper said that according to church documents seized by the FBI in Los Angeles, the target of the plot — called "Operation Snapper" — was Lawrence Tapper, a deputy state attorney general in charge of the charitable trust unit.

The documents revealed that the objective of the plan, the newspaper said, was to discredit Tapper and have him removed from office "so he could no longer commit overt (sic) against the worldwide church formed in 1954 by L. Ron Hubbard.

Heber Jentsch, a spokesman for the church in Los Angeles, said he heard of the plan but said he was not sure any of it was carried out. "I had heard of the 'Snapper' operation," Jentsch said. "It was a gross operation. I can't condone that kind of activity ... Someone obviously got frustrated and decided to carry out their own scenario. It should never have happened."

Among the church records seized by the FBI was a State Justice Department memo dated May 12, 1976, in which Tapper told his superiors that the Church of Scientology was "long overdue" for a state investigation. Tapper, citing an ongoing $1 million lawsuit filed by the church against him and other public officials, refused to comment on the plan to discredit him.

"Operation Snapper" was conceived as a "three channel" operation, a church memo obtained by the newspaper revealed. The plan called for the church to recruit an "obviously pregnant" woman who would go to the office of then state Attorney General Eville Younger and create a scene by blaming Tapper for her pregnancy.

The next day, according to the documents, a man pretending to be the woman's father would call Younger's office and say: "My daughter came to your office yesterday. The pregnant girl, Well, I don't know what you people said to her but she is terrified ... talks of suicide ... this guy is Larry Tapper. Who is he? My daughter tells me he is the father of her child. And he's threatened to have her committed if she reveals this."

"Channel 2" of the operation was to be carried out five days later. It called for the recruitment of a woman to portray a nun and a man to play the role of a newspaper photographer.

The woman, dressed as a nun, was to go into Younger's office and ask the proper procedure for filing a complaint against someone on the attorney general's staff, the documents said there was a

The plan then calls for the photographer, who was to be standing in the office, to say: "Holy cow! What a story," so that the receptionist could hear him. "Excuse me sister, she couldn't help overhearing you, are you filing a complaint."

He was then to take her picture, with her face covered, but with the receptionist clearly in the background. The next day a man posing as a newspaper reporter was to go back to office and ask a lot of questions about the incident and Tapper.

The plan also called for the picture to be sent to several minority newspapers, the documents said. "Telephone bigger newspapers to see if they would be interested." The final phase of the operation called for depositing five $20 bills into Tapper's bank account with the receipt being delivered to Younger's office by a man pretending to be "an upstate banker type male," who would assert the deposit is proof that Tapper is receiving "payouts from some rather strange areas."

Nurse cleared of 'Deathangel' charges

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Nurse Jani Adams was cleared Friday of charges of murdering a critically ill patient by turning off his respirator oxygen supply in the Sunrise Hospital "Death's Angel" case.

Mrs. Adams, 32, had been charged with causing the death of Vincent Fraser, 32, who died in the hospital March 3.

Visibly frightened and flanked by attorneys Melvin Belli and Gary Logan, the nurse walked into the courtroom of District Judge Michael Wendell 15 minutes before court started. She remained motionless until the judge said:

"In this court's opinion the cause of Mr. Fraser's death by the criminal agency of another and not from natural causes was not established to a reasonable degree of medical probability. There is not sufficient legal evidence to hold the defendant for trial."

Mrs. Adams, a petit brunette wearing a white dress with low-heeled shoes, embraced both attorneys and wept.

She told reporters later she would return to nursing at Sunrise Hospital.

"I am a nurse. I will go back to Sunrise Hospital as far as I know."

Asked if she was frightened, Mrs. Adams said, "I was scared last night, still scared this morning. Now I feel fantastic."

"There has been a great wrong done to this little girl and to one of the great hospitals in the United States," Belli said.

Mrs. Adams sought dismissal of charges with a writ of habeas corpus on grounds the county grand jury indicted her for murder April 2 without sufficient evidence.

Logan argued before Wendell a week ago that prosecutors failed to establish why Fraser died in the west respiratory intensive care unit of Sunrise. Mrs. Adams was the midnight charge nurse in the intensive care unit and was on duty the night Fraser died.

The grand jury indictment said Mrs. Adams reduced the amount of oxygen supplied Fraser by a respirator. Logan said he had a half dozen doctors ready to testify Fraser died of massive infection.

Wendell's decision can be appealed by the district attorney's office.

The county grand jury indicted Mrs. Adams after police and district attorney investigators were told by a nurse at Sunrise Hospital she overheard a cafeteria conversation in which employees referred to a nurse nicknamed "Death's Angel" and discussed patients and the approximate time they would die.

Businessmen offers odd inflation fighting tips

DALLAS (UPI) — Showering with your mate; cutting haircuts; longer-lasting haircuts are among a businessman's suggestions for the inflation battle.

Tom Coughlin's 101 inflation-fighting suggestions may not make the paycheck last any longer but his methods provide some laughs for the beleaguered consumer.

Coughlin, of the corporate relations department at Southland Life Insurance Co., wanted to do something to help the company's employees cope with inflation. With the help of his secretaries and an attorney "who's a super trivia expert on anything," he came up with his chart of 101 ways to beat inflation.

That chart since has been featured in Fortune Magazine and on Johnny Carson's Tonight Show.

"Leave home without your American Express Card," reads suggestion No. 1 on the 17-by-22 inch beige and red poster. That advice is followed up with No. 55, "Cut your VISA and Master Charge cards in 48 pieces." For those who want to pare the water bill, there's No. 94: "shower with your spouse." If you don't mind looking shabby, No. 88, "Get a haircut that will last for a few months," will be helpful. Several of the poster's points refer to the virtue of keeping money in savings accounts and piggy banks. One, No. 73, goes so far as to suggest "Leave your wallet at home when you go window shopping."

Court rules sex statute discriminates

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court Friday declared the state's voluntary deviate sexual intercourse statute unconstitutional on grounds it discriminated against single people.

The 4-3 decision was issued in a case involving a performance at the Piltown Theater in downtown Piltown where police arrested two "exotic" dancers — Dawn Delight and Shane Wimbler — who were participating in unnatural sex acts with patrons.

Also arrested were theater manager Patrick Gagliano and cashier Michael Bonadio.

When the case went to court in 1979 attorneys for the defendants argued in pre-trial hearings that voluntary deviate sexual intercourse charges violated the equal protection clause. A 1972 state law permits what it calls "voluntary deviate sexual intercourse" between married couples, but not between consenting single adults.

Allegheny County Common Pleas Judge George Ross agreed the statute was discriminatory and threw the case out of court. Under such circumstances a case automatically is sent to the Supreme Court for a ruling.

An Allegheny County court source said "these people could have been arrested anywhere. It is not where they were arrested, but on what charges that was the issue."

The court did not address the issue of whether it was a public or private act, but said in a footnote. "We base our decision solely upon equal protection grounds."

Justice John P. Flaherty, writing the majority opinion, said "it is suggested that deviate acts are heinous if performed by unmarried persons but acceptable when done by married persons. There is no rational basis, for requiring less moral behavior of married persons than expected of unmarried persons is without basis in logic."

The pope and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing greet crowds along the Champs Elysees upon the pope's visit to France

S. African racial violence continues

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Violent protests by non-white students spread to several more South African cities Friday despite Prime Minister Pieter Botha's warning that unlawful protests would be crushed with the "full might of the state."

Club-swinging riot police in the Natal provincial capital of Pietermaritzburg, a normally sedate university town, waded into a crowd of mixed-race and Indian students who rampaged in a downtown department store smashing windows and harassing shoppers. Police made several arrests.

The violence also spread to the independent black townships of Trankiel where black pupils burned down seven classrooms in an Anglican primary school. Police in the capital, Umtata, charged student demonstrators who refused orders to disperse.

Beefed-up police forces were also used to break up unruly demonstrations by non-white students at high schools in Cape Town and Johannesburg segregated townships. Firemen were called out in Cape Town to fight a blaze set by students erecting a street barricade of burning tires that spread to nearby buildings, destroying a house and two shops.

Mixed-race and Indian students have been boycotting classes for five weeks to protest the government spending four times as much on white education as is spent for non-whites, and blacks — the overwhelming majority in South Africa — have begun to join the movement.

The quickening acceleration of disturbances came after plainclothes policemen killed two mixed-race youths and wounded six others in a Cape Town township Wednesday. Police opened fire without trying to disperse the crowd of stone-throwing youngsters with any less extreme means beforehand.

The prime minister's accusation followed the arrest Monday of the church council's secretary general, Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu, and 52 other leading churchmen and women who staged a Johannesburg street march in connection with the school boycott.

President, pope, king win Nobel nomination

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — President Carter, Pope John Paul II and Spanish King Juan Carlos are among 68 candidates for this year's Nobel Peace Prize, the director of the Nobel Institute said Friday.

Carter's nomination, his second in two years, came for his role in the peace negotiations between Egypt and Israel that resulted in the Camp David accord. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Premier Menachem Begin shared the 1978 award for their peace efforts.

Juan Carlos was cited for the role he played in Spain's transition from 36 years of dictatorial rule by Francisco Franco to democracy. The pope was cited for his work to encourage world peace.

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees and Alva Myrdal of Sweden, an outspoken advocate of world disarmament, also were among the people and institutions nominated for the prestigious award.

Nobel director Jacob Sverdrup said Mrs. Myrdal, a sociologist and politician and the wife of famed Swedish sociologist Gunnar Myrdal, won the 1960 Albert Einstein Peace Prize.

Sverdrup declined to volunteer names of candidates for the 1980 prize, which is worth $210,000, but agreed to confirm names when suggested.

The winner will be chosen by the Nobel committee of the Norwegian parliament and announced in October.

Nominations for the award can be made by a limited number of people. Names can be put forward by members of parliament or Congress or government in any country, members of the Nobel Committee, members of the International Court of Justice at the Hague, university professors in the fields of history, political science, law and philosophy and by former peace laureates.

Pope visits France

PARIS (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, acknowledging that France is in crisis, arrived today on the first papal visit to France since the days of Napoleon Bonaparte.

The Polish-born pontiff landed at Orly airfield and plunged immediately into a heavy schedule of public appearances in Paris and the Normandy pilgrimage center of Lisieux.

The visit will be the first by a pope to France since 1804 when Napoleon commanded Pius VII to officiate at his coronation as emperor in Paris' Notre Dame Cathedral.

This time French officials undoubtedly will show more cordiality than Napoleon, who snubbed Pius VII by crowning himself and later jailing the pope for two years because of a political dispute.

Vatican officials said the pope has been particularly concerned about the future of Roman Catholicism in France, where more than 80 percent of the population is baptized in the church but only about 12 percent practice their religion regularly.

Another reason for what the pontiff called France's "crisis of faith" is a precipitous drop in the number of young Frenchmen entering the priesthood. Church statistics show priestly ordinations in France are less than one-fifth the level they were 10 years ago.

Although the Vatican still calls France "the elder sister of the church" because of its historic importance as a bastion of faith, the nation has many towns where a priest has not been ordained for years.

The pope was greeted at Orly airfield by French Premier Raymond Barre; Cardinal Francis Marty, the Archbishop of Paris and Roger Etchegaray, archbishop of Marseille and president of the French Episcopal conference.

The pontiff, already the most traveled pope in history, hoped his 4-day visit to France will shore up flagging faith in the nation the Vatican calls "the elder daughter of the church."

As is his custom, the pope, dressed in a white robe, knelt and kissed the soil of France after briskly stepping down from the airliner. Several small children presented him with a bouquet of white flowers and a box containing a collection of school children's drawings and well-wishing letters.

A fleet of four white-and-blue helicopters then flew the pope and his retinue to the Champs Elysees.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and his Cabinet greeted the pope upon the helicopters' landing a few dozen yards away from the statue of the late Premier Georges Clemenceau, one of the fiercest opponents of the church during the turbulent years of the struggle for separation of state and church around the turn of the century.

A 15,000-member police force was deployed throughout the capital to ensure the pope's security and contain crowds. But the crowds massed behind steel barriers at the Champs Elysees were described by police as much thinner than originally expected.

Before leaving for Paris, the pope said he would be returning to France in July 1981 to attend the International Eucharistic Congress at Lourdes.

"After the fall of the Roman Empire, France was the first national community to profess itself a daughter of the church," he said. "Because of her dynamic intelligence, France occupies even today a position of great esteem in the universal church."

The four-day visit to the nation of 45 million Catholics is John Paul's sixth major excursion outside Italy since he was elected pope 19 months ago and comes only two weeks after John Paul's epic journey to Africa and less than a month before he embarks on a 12-day tour of Brazil.

Korea forms 'committee' to deal with unrest

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — President Choi Kyu-hah told his Cabinet Friday he will form a 25-man military-civilian "emergency committee" to deal with outbreaks of dissent such as the nine-day Kwangju insurrection by students protesting martial law, official sources said.

The 25-man committee under Choi's chairmanship will advise the president on domestic security and coordinate affairs between military and civilian authorities, the sources said.

Some observers said they believed the formation of the advisory group, to be called the "National Security Emergency Measures Committee," meant that the martial law in effect throughout South Korea will continue longer than they had previously anticipated.

Among its members will be Army Chief of Staff and Martial Law commander Gen. Lee Hui-sung and Army Lt. Gen. Chun Doo-hwan, head of the Defense Security Command and the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, the sources said.

The idea for the committee had actually been in the works for some time but Choi speeded up its appointment in the wake of the demonstrations in Kwangju, the southern provincial city where at least 186 persons were killed and hundreds wounded when troops bloodily put down a nine-day insurrection by students demanding democratic reforms, an end to martial law and the release of arrested opposition leaders.

During the cabinet meeting Friday, Choi referred to the Kwangju riots and what he called the need for order and stability.

"I must stress that political progress our people aspire for can be achieved only on the basis of order and stability," Choi said, according to a spokesman.

Japanese launch election campaign for June vote

TOKYO (UPI) — A man hurled a bottle of black ink at the leader of the major opposition party today at the start of campaigning for a general election that may establish Japan's courtship to deal with unrest.

Ichiro Asukata, chairman of Japan's Socialist Party, appealed to the Japanese people to "explode their anger" at Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira's ruling Liberal Democratic Party, in his first speech to open a campaign for seats in both houses of Japan's parliament, called the Diet.

The election will be held June 22. A man approached Asukata during his speech in front of bustling Shibuya Railway Station in Tokyo and hurled a bottle of black ink at the party chief and another lawmaker.

The ink sprayed Asukata's face and suit. He wiped it away with a white handkerchief.

Police swiftly seized the assailant, identified as Fumio Adachi, 37. Authorities said Adachi is a member of a right-wing organization. Police quoted him as saying, "I got mad at JSP's non-armament, neutral policy."

At stake are 126 seats in the upper house, or half of the 252-seat house, 59 of which will be contested nationwide, 76 in local districts.

Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira's government surprisingly lost a vote of confidence in the lower house May 16, and Ohira dissolved the Diet and called for new elections instead of resigning his party post.

Most parties are combining in an attempt to topple the long-reigning LDP from power, and observers say the outcome could determine who governs Japan in the 1980s.

The LDP has been weakened by an array of charges of corruptions and the handling of foreign policy, particularly involving U.S. demands to build up defense capabilities, and could be defeated.

Japanese socialist party leader Ichiro Asukata wipes ink from his face after being spat upon by a man protesting his neutral policies

S. Vietnam faces disease, shortages

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Inadequate food rations in southern Vietnam have caused an upsurge of disease and only high Communist officials have access to thorough medical treatment, according to a Vietnamese refugee doctor.

"Diseases like tuberculosis, cholera, leprosy, dysentery and malaria are now spreading in Vietnam because of a lack of medical facilities," said Dr. Truon Huu Phuoc, who was rescued last week with 434 other refugees by the West German mercy ship Cap Anamur.

Each person is allowed only a few pounds of rice per month, but the major problem is the lack of proteins and vitamins in a diet that consists mostly of starchy food, he said.

"The ordinary people do not get any more medical care. The government has reserved most of the scarce medicine for the high ranking officials and military officers," he said.

Dr. Johann Koenig, one of two West German doctors aboard the mercy ship, agreed that the refugees brought aboard showed signs of undernourishment and weakened resistance.

"I have never seen so many abscesses as in this group. Their resistance to infections of all types is quite low," Koenig said.

Since the ship's arrival last Friday one three-year-old girl had to be hospitalized with severe malnutrition, he said.

"The state of health of these people is not good. Children especially have not had a proper diet. They do not have enough calcium and protein and have had probably too much carbohydrates," Koenig said.

Also in the doctor's care are two babies born since the ship came into the port, one named Le Thi Than Trang Anamur after the ship — the Cap Anamur.

Stocks rally, stage advance

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK — The stock market, overcoming news of recession with the help of lower interest rates, staged a strong afternoon rally to push higher Friday.

Pre-weekend trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down nearly 8 points at the outset following Thursday's 14.07-point profit-taking rally, rallied to gain 4.80 points to 850.85.

But the closely watched average lost 3.25 points for the week, thanks to Thursday's setback, the worst in more than a month. Prior to Thursday, the Dow had run up 100 points over the previous five weeks.

About the only thing that seems to sway investors these days is interest rates, which had plunged recently. More major banks, including trendsetting Citibank and Bank of America, lowered their prime lending rate to 14 percent from 14 1/2 percent.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.45 to 63.42 and the price of a share increased 26 cents. Advances edged declines, 768 to 677, among the 1,944 issues traded at 4 p.m. EDT.

Big Board volume totaled 34,800,000 shares, down from the 42,000,000 traded Thursday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 57,695,750 shares, down from the 45,438,100 traded Thursday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 3.60 to 271.67 and the price of a share jumped 29 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers NASDAQ index of OTC stocks gained 0.36 to 150.45.

At 4 p.m., Gulf & Western was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 10 1/2 points. Analysts said one reason the stock attracted attention was that a brokerage issued a favorable report on the firm. Also, there are high hopes for a new battery the firm is developing.

Edman Walker-Consumers Home (ex-dividend) was the second most active NYSE-listed issue, up 3/4 to 24 1/2 in trading that included a block of 410,000 shares at 24. IBM was third, up 3/4 to 55 1/4.

International added 3/4 to 16 1/2 in heavy trading. The Ontario Securities Commission says Atco Ltd. can proceed with its bid to acquire 76.2 million shares of IU shares in exchange for the 12.1 million shares IU owns in Canadian Utilities.

Ponderosa System, a 2-point winner Thursday, added 7/4 to 15. General Host has acquired 7.4 percent of the steak-house chain.

McIntyre Mines, a 3-point winner Thursday, rose 2 to 70. Superior Oil, the nation's largest independent oil and gas producer, reportedly is consolidating its Canadian mining subsidiary, namely McIntyre and Falconbridge Nickel. Superior stock finished unchanged at 149.

Diamond International, a 14-point loser Thursday, slipped to 45 1/2. Diamond directors said Thursday 2 diamond for its stock by Cavenham Holdings was too low.

Indicators plunge sharply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government reported Friday its statistical barometer of future economic trends plunged a record 4.8 percent in April.

It presented further evidence the economy is rapidly falling into a rougher recession than expected.

"Things are falling apart much faster than anyone anticipated," said Alan Greenspan, former economic adviser to President Gerald Ford.

The decline in the index was the largest since the Commerce Department began keeping track of such things 32 years ago. It eclipsed the previous record of 3 percent set in September, 1974, when the nation was mired in the worst recession since the Great Depression.

The report said all 10 components of the index fell last month — the first time that's happened since the 1957 recession.

The index now stands at 126.3, its lowest point since April 1978. Most of the record decline was attributed to the layoff rate, which almost doubled in April.

But declines also were registered in the average workweek, vendor performance, the change in total liquid assets, stock prices, building permits and the change in sensitive raw materials prices.

Contracts and orders for plant and equipment, stock prices and the money supply — all measured in 1972 dollars — also fell.

The government said its Index of Coincident Indicators that is supposed to move in tandem with the economy declined a substantial 1.9 percent in April, following a 1.2 percent drop the month before.

It was further confirmation the recession has taken hold.

The Index of Leading Indicators, which tends to ride in the wake of economic activity, rose 4.4 percent in April, following a 5.3 percent increase in March. This indicates the economy put on one last spurt before sagging into recession midway through the year's first quarter.

"The record April decline in the Index of Leading Indicators, coming on the heels of a fairly large (revised) 1.2 percent drop in March, signals a steep decline in industrial production and real Gross National Product during the second quarter," said Commerce's chief economist, Courtney Slater.

But she said the index does not say much about the economy's long-term direction.

"Recent moderation in the rate of inflation and the dramatic turnaround in interest rates in April and May are laying the groundwork for the economy's decline to level off and for recovery to begin," she said.

For this election year, President Carter has forecast a mild recession with an end to double-digit inflation.

Government economists cautioned the index should not be used to gauge the depth of the recession, and that it provides no clues as to exactly how long the downturn will last.

But Lawrence Chimerine, chief economist with Chase Econometrics, said the index taken with other recent indicators punches holes in the administration's prediction of a "short and mild" recession.

"I don't know about short yet, but it's definitely not going to be mild," he said by phone from Philadelphia.

If you wanted to make a lot of money in 1796, you could sail to Bengal and bring back an elephant. And show it off in New York City for a price. Nobody had ever done that before. CENTS-OFF COUPONS

Shoppers who collect cents-off coupons can get pretty irate, if the store doesn't carry the brand they demand. A choir of their complaints can shake up the market manager. The product makers know this. And that's a big reason they put out those cents-off coupons. To inspire customers to force managers to stock their goods. Shelf space is what they want. It's hard to get. Cents-off coupons help.

A loud Mother Nature on the rocks

The past glory of Shoshone Falls is being recreated now thanks to unusually heavy rains, falls the last two weeks. The rains reduce the amount of water farmers need for irrigation, allowing more water to be released over the falls. Normally, a lot of submerged rocks are in view at the falls this time of year. However, the wet conditions mean 14,000 second foot of water tumbles over the falls, making the present display the most spectacular in about two years. Then, some 20,000 second foot spilled over the rocks.

Proposed dredging rules available

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

BOISE — Proposed state dredge mining regulations are available for public review and comment, but the time for comment is short.

The public comment period ends June 15, after which the rules could be adopted by the Idaho Land Board on a temporary basis without further public hearings.

The draft rules were prepared by the state Department of Lands. Copies are available by calling the department.

A land department official familiar with the rules said he expects to see comments from dredge miners complaining the rules go too far and from environmentalists charging the rules aren't strict enough.

After the department receives public comments, it will spend about 10 days evaluating the comments and revising the rules before presenting them to the Land Board. The board could use emergency authority to adopt the revised rules on a temporary basis at its meeting planned for the end of June.

The temporary dredging rules could then be enforced for 120 days while hearings are held to prepare a final version of the rules.

At the Land Board's May meeting, Attorney General David Leroy, who is also a board member, recommended that the board consider adopting the proposed dredge rules on an emergency basis. The state's dredge mining act has been enforced without public comments. It will spend about 10 days evaluating the comments and revising the rules before presenting them to the Land Board. The board could use emergency authority to adopt the revised rules on a temporary basis at its meeting planned for the end of June.

However, instead of adopting the draft dredge mining rules at the meeting, the board decided to allow a short time for public comment and revision before it considered adopting the rules.

Steve Thompson, an aide to Governor John Evans, who is also a member of the Land Board, said the governor did not favor adopting the proposed rules, "flaws and all," on an emergency basis. But the governor could support emergency adoption after the public has a chance to comment and the Land Department a chance to revise the rules, he said.

The purpose of the proposed regulations is set forth in the Idaho code. "It is...the policy of the state of Idaho to protect the lands, streams and watercourses within the state from destruction by dredge mining."

Beyond that statement, however, the statute is short and doesn't go into much detail, said a Land Department official, who asked that his name not be used. Some of the proposed regulations are quite specific, he said. Dredge miners may argue the regulations are more specific than the statute calls for.

On the other hand, he said, environmentalists may be upset by the definition that exempts recreational dredges from the regulations entirely.

Another possible controversial area could be the regulations governing reclamation, he said. Dredge miners may argue that the regulations are too stringent to be justified by the dredge mining act. Environmentalists could claim the regulations don't insure proper reclamation.

Kimberly girl walks into car

KIMBERLY — A 2-year old Kimberly girl was seriously injured Friday afternoon when she walked into the path of a car near her home.

Twin Falls County sheriff's officers said Sami Marie Florence was injured about 4:30 p.m. when hit by a car driven by Irva Dee Gott, 26, of Kimberly. She was listed in fair condition Friday night.

Officers said the child had gone across the street from the yard of her home. Her father saw her just as she crossed the other side and called to her. He told police she immediately turned and started back, stepping into the path of the Gott vehicle. Gott was traveling west on Sage Street.

The little girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Florence, 275 Sage St. The accident occurred in front of 280 Sage St. Her father and the driver of the vehicle took her to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where she was being treated for head injuries, cuts, bruises and possible internal injuries.

Police query attack victim

TWIN FALLS — Police in Twin Falls were able Friday afternoon to talk with the victim of a savage beating last week in a local grocery store.

The 23-year old woman, Debbie Stephens, was beaten about the head May 21 while at work as night clerk at the Circle-K Market on South Washington Street. She was returned Friday from St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise where she has been since suffering the injuries. Mrs. Stephens was reported in fair condition at the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital Friday evening.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said he was able to question the woman to some extent Friday with the cooperation of her doctor and her family. He said at this time he cannot say if the investigation will assist in the investigation. Officers have been waiting improvement in her condition for questioning, hoping she would be able to recall enough of the incident to help identify her assailant.

The woman was found unconscious and alone in the store shortly before midnight May 21. She was treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, undergoing emergency surgery for severe head injuries, and then transported by Magic Valley Ambulance to St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise for further treatment. She remained unconscious and in critical condition for several days.

Police have been investigating the case continuously since she was found by several store customers. Officers said robbery was not a motive, as the store's cash was left untouched.

Cleanup urged

TWIN FALLS — Mayor Hank Woodall is urging residents to "get the town shined up a bit" before the start of the 75th Anniversary celebration.

The mayor is asking citizens to clean up their properties before June 5, the start of the Jubilee celebration. "We encourage citizens to sweep streets, pull weeds, take down old political signs and especially remove outdated garage sales signs," Woodall said.

In the valley County tax books open

TWIN FALLS — Tax books at the Twin Falls County treasurer's office are now open to receive the second installment payment on 1979 property taxes.

Treasurer Juanita Stettler said those who did not pay their full tax bill last December must pay the last half of the amount by June 20 at her office. "This year's real property tax in the county totaled $8.46 million, with taxpayers still owing $2.4 million in second installment payments. Of this amount, Stettler said $519,276 will be paid by utility companies.

Tax payment on mobile homes for the year in Twin Falls County is $98,561 with $22,865 still due by the June 20 deadline. The treasurer said payments may be made in person at her office on the second floor of the county courthouse or may be mailed to Box 88, Twin Falls, but must be postmarked by midnight June 20 to avoid penalty and interest.

2 burglaries reported

TWIN FALLS — Two burglaries were reported to Twin Falls police Thursday. Larrie Eldred, 262 2nd Ave. N., said someone entered his residence about 11 p.m. Wednesday and removed $1,050 worth of stereo equipment. He said he was away from home at that time. A glass door was broken out to gain entry, police said.

Ron Pope reported a $750 loss after burglars entered his home while he and his wife were away. He told police he was gone from last Friday through Monday. He said someone removed his wife's engagement and wedding rings from the bedroom of the home. The couple's sons were at home but were away during the daytime, he said.

Buhl seeks parade entries

BUHL — The Buhl Sagebrush Days parade committee is currently seeking entries for the community's big Fourth of July celebration.

Floats, bands, riding groups, antique vehicles and any other special or unique entry will be welcomed, the chairman said.

Organizations, individuals and businesses are being asked to prepare entries to make the July 4 event the biggest yet, Barker said.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting her at 543-5604 evenings or writing to her at 415 Eighth Ave. N. in Buhl. The parade is a highlight of the annual Sagebrush Days in Buhl, the major summertime celebration.

Under the direction of the Buhl Chamber of Commerce, events this year begin with a prayer breakfast on June 29, and continue through July 5 with a downtown barbecue sponsored by the Jaycees.

Doctor's office damaged

TWIN FALLS — About $300 damage was reported but nothing was taken during a break-in at the office of Dr. James H. Spafford last weekend.

Twin Falls Police said sometime between 2 and 5 p.m. Sunday someone used a piece of concrete and two pieces of metal reinforcing bar to break in the front door and the glass in an interior door in the doctor's offices.

The office, at 294 Martin St., is located in an area where six doctors' offices were entered about a week ago.

Police said nothing was reported missing in an initial check of the offices.

Accident injures trio

Both drivers and Amelia Wisely, 79, of Filer, a passenger in the vehicle driven by her husband, were treated in the emergency room. The two drivers were released and Mrs. Wisely was hospitalized. She was listed in fair condition Thursday.

In Pharmacy Board clerk firing incident

Board reprimand suggested

BOISE (UPI) — An Idaho Personnel Commission grievance hearing panel has recommended the state Pharmacy Board be reprimanded for dismissing a board clerk.

Lynn McCuskey of Idaho Public Employees Association, who represented fired clerk Luella Leidi, said the grievance panel recommended the Pharmacy Board be reprimanded through a letter from its executive director.

On another recommendation by the grievance board, Ms. Leidi was reinstated to her clerk's job. She was fired last month after being accused of participating in distribution of a memorandum critical of the board.

The memo rocked the board early this year. It urged the firing of Pharmacy Board investigators Bert Wilson and Jeff Barker for their support of proposed legislation to move the state's triplicate prescription program to the state Law Enforcement Department from the Pharmacy Board.

The document was addressed to the Pharmacy Board and later was identified as having been written by Cliff Barnett, who then was the board's executive director. Testifying to an Idaho Senate committee, Barnett initially denied having written the memo but admitted later he was the author.

Ms. Leidi was fired after being accused of copying the memo for Black.

Ms. McCuskey said the grievance committee also recommended, in addition to full reinstatement, a letter of reprimand should be placed in Ms. Leidi's file for her role in the memo incident and that she should be suspended for two weeks without pay.

Ms. McCuskey said that to her knowledge, all of the recommendations concerning the clerk were followed, but Pharmacy Board Executive Director Donald Ness has not written a letter of reprimand to the board.

Black, who was last winter because of the memo's release, has been put back on administrative leave with back pay pending his grievance hearing before a Personnel Commission committee.

Anderson gets Rouyer

MOSCOW (UPI) — A delegate to the Idaho Democratic Convention and prominent member of the state Democratic Party has resigned his post to campaign for independent presidential candidate John Anderson of Illinois.

University of Idaho political science professor Alwyn Rouyer told the Lewiston Tribune that, while he still considers himself a loyal Democrat, he finds neither Jimmy Carter nor Edward Kennedy acceptable presidential candidates.

"The choice we have is poor," Rouyer said, adding former California Gov. Ronald Reagan to his list of unacceptable candidates.

"John Anderson is the right man for the times," he said. "I'm very impressed by him. He's willing to seek new solutions and new ideas, which apparently Carter, and certainly Reagan, aren't doing."

"I know it's a cliché, but Anderson is a breath of fresh air."

Anderson sought the Republican

Party's nomination to seek the presidency until about one month ago when he launched his independent campaign. During a visit to Idaho last week, Anderson urged Republicans and Democrats to "take a leave of absence" from their parties to support his candidacy. His supporters in Idaho are attempting to obtain more than 10,000 signatures on petitions supporting his candidacy so that Anderson's name may appear as an independent on Idaho's general-election ballot next November.

Until his term expired this week, Rouyer was a member of the state Democratic Central Committee and the chairman of the District 5 Central Committee for six years. He served on the 12-member Democratic State Executive Committee from 1976 to 1978.

He was elected as an uncommitted delegate to the state Democratic Convention at party caucuses in northern Idaho in 1978 but resigned that position this week to support Anderson.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, right, announced in Los Angeles recently that Santa Monica Bay and certain areas off Santa Barbara would be exempt from off-shore oil drilling. It eases the fears of environmentalists who have been fighting construction of the oil rigs.

Ex-bookstore boss killed

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — An altercation between two former managers of an adult bookstore left one dead of a single stab wound and the other in jail on a second-degree murder charge.

Steven Anthony Atwood, 22, Mountain Home, was being held in lieu of $25,000 bond today in the Elmore County jail. Authorities said he walked into the Mountain Home police station shortly after the death of Dennis Wayne Tull early Thursday and was booked on the murder charge.

Tull, 22, was stabbed in the rest room of the Loading Zone bar about 12:05 p.m. and died an hour later at Elmore Memorial Hospital.

Police said Atwood appeared at the police station at 1:40 a.m. He was arraigned Thursday afternoon before Magistrate Judge Richard A. Schmidt.

Officers said Atwood and Tull at separate times had been managers of an adult bookstore in Mountain Home, and both had been fired.

The stabbing followed an argument between the two men, officers said.

Sexual assault hearing of 5 men closed by Wyoming district judge

GREEN RIVER, Wyo. (UPI) — Justice of the Peace Peggy Beckum has closed a preliminary hearing in a sexual assault case against five men.

The hearing was closed Thursday at the request of defense attorneys. One of the attorneys, Tom Zollinger, said state sexual assault law bars disclosure of the names of the accused or victim by an investigatory agency until the case reaches the district court level.

Zollinger argued Beckum was "sitting as an investigative body" similar to a grand jury, and that allowing the public to be present during the hearing would violate the law.

Prosecutor Bob Reese, who has objected to closed hearings in previous cases, said he did not agree with Zollinger's interpretation of the sexual assault law, but would not object to closing the hearing because the victim also wanted it closed.

Reese added later he did not feel it was his position to argue against closure, "particularly when the press wasn't objecting."

The names of two of the accused men have been released in court records. They are Albert Sardetti, 20, and Everett Skiles, 18, both of Rock Springs. Sardetti is charged with three counts of first-degree sexual assault and is being held in the Sweetwater County Jail. The other four defendants face one count and have been released on $2,000 bond.

The five allegedly assaulted a 17-year-old female during a party April 26 at a rural location between Rock Springs and Green River called Little Firehole.

Coongiat not in charge when warehouse burns

TWIN FALLS — Larry Coongiat, one of two men proposing to build a bean receiving warehouse near Castleford, said Friday he wants it known he was not managing Beans Inc. in Filer when it burned.

He said he is a former manager of the Filer operations of Beans Inc., but had been gone from Beans Inc. for about four years when the warehouse burned and the Filer warehouse was closed.

Coongiat said since the Times-News published a story on an appeals hearing regarding the proposed Castleford warehouse which stated that he was a manager of the firm before it burned, his customers and associates have been questioning his connection with the closed business. He said he left the firm long before the difficulties began and this is in no way connected with his Castleford plans.

Judge rules out cutback in Medicaid

BOISE (UPI) — A 4th District judge says the state cannot cut payments to nursing homes in the Medicaid reimbursement program.

The ruling Thursday by Judge Robert Newhouse, barring possible appeals or statutory changes, permanently prohibits the state from slashing the payments. The Idaho Health and Welfare Department has been seeking a way to avoid an impending $8 million deficit as a result of rising Medicaid costs.

In addition, Newhouse has set a June 12 trial to determine damages due Idaho nursing homes as a result of underpayments — but the state. Estimates indicate the state might owe $1 million covering the reimbursement period since July 1, 1979.

Newhouse's ruling says the state "is permanently enjoined from enforcing any of the cost-containment changes in its manual for nursing home reimbursement."

The judge in April issued a memorandum decision requiring the state to avoid putting "ceps" on payments to more expensive nursing homes, saying this conflicted with state law. Newhouse said the homes must receive the "full reasonable costs" of the state's share of health care under the Medicaid law.

Gov. John Evans and the Health and Welfare Department asked the Idaho Legislature in a special session earlier this month to repeal or alter the state law so payments could be lowered. The House and Senate each passed its own bill, but a compromise could not be reached.

Monty's serving side of ash

BOISE (UPI) — Boise drive-in manager Monty Jack is serving hamburgers with side orders of volcanic ash.

A native of ash-blanketed Yakima, Wash., Jack called a friend in that city who agreed to send him 150 pounds of the volcanic material.

"It only cost $25.50 to get it down here and he was more than happy to send it," Jack says, adding the venture has been a success, with some customers asking for extra sealed bags of ash.

Jack says, "Hell, if it rained frogs, I'd give frogs away."

QUESTION...

I was separated but not divorced from my husband who died recently. Am I responsible for filing a Federal Income Tax return for him?

ANSWER...

In its broadest aspect a Federal Income Tax form is required to be filed and the tax paid by that person who inherited the income which created the tax liability.

If you have received any property from your husband or expect to receive any, and if you have not remarried, you should file either an individual return for him or a joint return.

If your husband overpaid his income tax and has a refund, the refund cannot be paid until a return is filed. The fact you were legally the decedent's wife makes you eligible for any refund payable.

J.C. Snead has Kemper open lead

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — J.C. Snead carded a 1-under-par 69 Friday for a 137 total score to take an early lead over Mike Morley after two rounds of the $400,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

Gli Morgan and Lee Trevino were two strokes back at 139. The four players managed to overcome par at the dry, fast 7,054-yard Congressional Country Club. Tom Watson, Fred Marti, Hale Irwin, John Mahaffey and Jack Newton are tied even-par 140. Congressional will attempt to make 8-over-par the cutoff for the closely-bunched 82 golfers who will play Saturday and Sunday. The eight-over total is the most over par for a cut this year, but a 150 score was needed last week at the Memorial Tournament. Only the Phoenix Open, with 63 qualifiers, took a larger field into the final two days this year.

Snead, who started the day tied for the lead at 2-under-par with Mahaffey, Jay Haas and Dave Hill, had two birdies and a bogey in a "boring round."

"I never chipped once, but I did putt from the fringe a few times," said Snead, who headed for the practice range to work on his driving, which has caused problems all year.

"I have a problem keeping my left leg bent long enough to hit a decent drive," he said. "It's from when I hurt it a few years ago and I've been favoring it for a long time. I just have to keep it down, not straighten it so quickly and see what happens. If it goes out, it goes out and I'll be finished for a while."

Morgan knocked in a 90-yard sand wedge for an eagle-two on the eighth hole and snaked a 30-foot birdie putt at the ninth en route to a two-under 69. Trevino had four bogeys and four birdies to match par.

Hale Irwin fired the low round of the tournament — a 4-under-par 66, two strokes off the course record — to finish at even-par. Watson hit only 10 greens, but chipped and putted his way to a one-under 69, while Marti carded his second straight 70.

Mahaffey got to three-under with a birdie on No. 1, but had an arabesque and had to par the last three holes to finish even. Newton warmed to the haze, humid weather and rolled in birdie putts of eight feet on the third hole and 10 feet on the eighth to finish the day at two-under.

After using 25 putts to shoot a 69 on Thursday, Haas needed 36 putts for a 73 Friday, despite hitting 15 greens in regulation.

Carner nabs top spot in tourney

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — JoAnne Carner, the renowned long-ball hitter, found her putting touch Friday, firing a three-under par 69 to take a one-stroke second round lead in a $125,000 LPGA tournament.

The round, accomplished with the use of only 25 putts, gave Carner, currently second on the money earning list, a two-day total of two under 142. Patty Sawyer, 31-year-old Californian who requalified for the tour in January, also had a 69 to stand at 143, along with 30-year-old tour veteran JoAnn Washam, who carded a 71, and 25-year-old Sally Little, who came in with a 71.

First-round co-leader Alice Miller shot a one-over 73 and Sandra Post and Debbie Austin both registered their second consecutive 72s to form a group another three strokes back.

The other first-round performers dropped out of the picture as Amelia Rorer had a 76-147 and Cathy Morse came in at 75-146. Two-time defending champion Nancy Lopez was also continuing to have problems, posting a second straight 75 that left her eight shots off the pace.

The lightning-fast greens of the 6,410 Wykagyl Country Club course gave most of the field of 94 fits but Carner, a 31-year-old veteran who won this tournament in 1975, rose to the challenge.

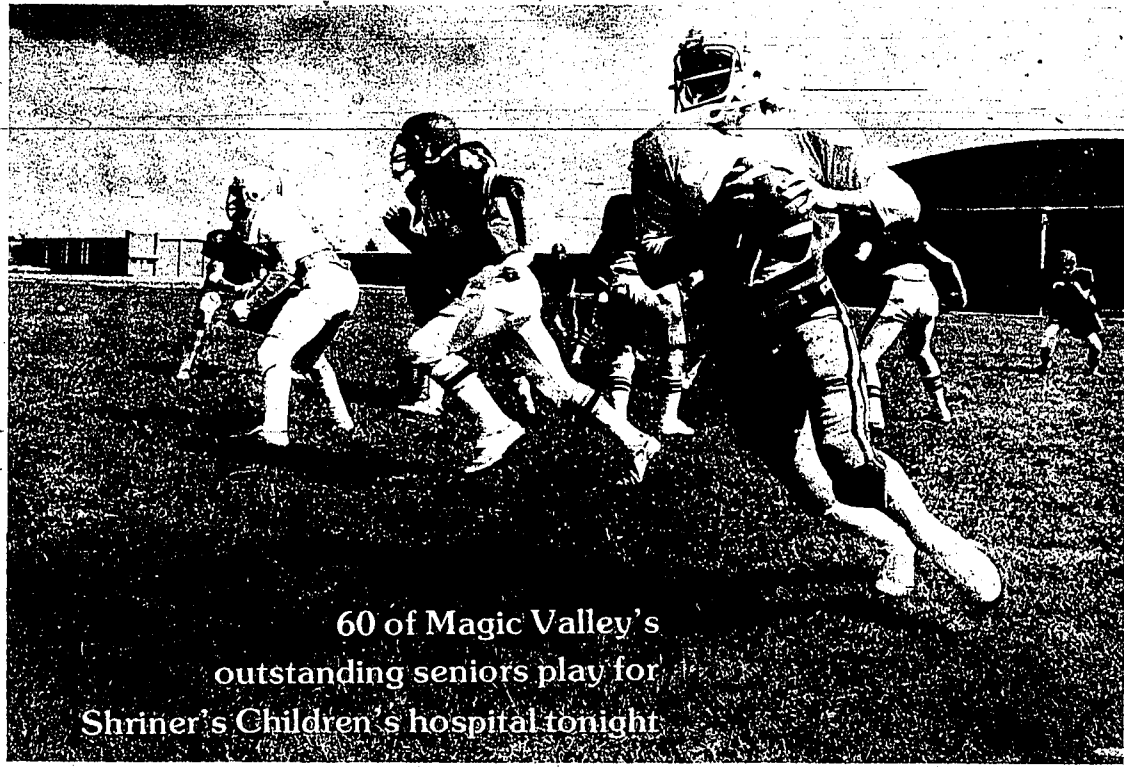

"I putted real well," said the Lake Worth, Fla., resident. "I was even laying my lag putts up there real close, which is hard to do on these greens."

"There's not a straight-in putt on any of these holes and you have to have a delicate feel," she continued. "I have an excellent feel for them right now."

Starting on the back nine, Carner bogeyed the 10th hole when she hit a bad iron shot and three-putted from the fringe but she bounced back with birdies on Nos. 11, 15 and 17. After saving par at a sand trap twice on the front nine, she boled an eight-foot birdie putt on No. 8 to take the lead.

Carner, who won 70 titles in the first two months of the tour this winter but has finished out of the top 10 in her last three starts, also cited three hours of practice on the course and a return to her old driver for her success.

"I got out here yesterday and I started steering the ball," she said. "Today I didn't steer the ball, I just stood up and let it fly."

Outlook sees air game vs. infantry

By LARRY HOVEY

Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — When it's all over tonight, the third annual Magic Valley Shrine All-Star football game should be the airborne vs. the infantry.

At least that's how the participating coaching staffs are preparing for it. But they're trying very hard not to give the other side an inkling as to their offensive thinking.

The game is expected to attract the best turnout of its three-year run.

One of the reasons could be that it might be more of an offensive show than ever before.

It is the goal that is expected to be in the air the most. For two reasons: first, Coach Florin Hushe of Murtaugh likes to throw the ball and, secondly, he has Burley quarterback Craig Jones throwing to Burley receivers Jeff Wright and Brent Funk and Murtaugh's Monty Bates.

The west counts its running back corps as the strength of the team. With Mark Libert, John Traugher and Mark Schaal, the west has most of the speed. It also has Mike Mann at quarterback and he is more than adept.

"We plan on having people sticking pretty close to Jones because we feel that's where the ball is going to be most of the time," says west defensive Coach Gregg Smith of Thule.

"He'll be throwing to three very good receivers and we're going to have to have a rush. And you have to contain Jones. He's a slippery little runner. If he gets outside, he can really hurt you. He's not afraid to cut his own number. He ran a lot of rollouts for Burley the last two years."

Gordon Hogan, the west's helping defensively for the west, says the game plan is to "slow them down up front and hope to get some pursuit. If one of their burners breaks one on us, I don't think we can catch them."

Hogan, however, isn't that concerned over the difference in speed.

"We can't run up and down the field with some of their players but our quickness is okay. We just have to contain and keep them from getting outside."

"The one thing that worries us is Mann," he continued. "If we get too concerned about their other backs, Mann will take it away and beat us himself. I've seen him do it," he smiled, referring to a 53-yard gallop by Mann against the Kimberly Bulldogs last fall.

Hogan admitted to a building of nerves.

"I am nervous," he said. "I can never go into a game without it. Even if it's just supposed to be fun like this one, you want to win, too."

West Coach John Ballez, like the east coaches, really doesn't know what to expect offensively but he thinks it could be good.

"In our last scrimmage I thought the offense looked good. Of course, we expect the west defense to be different but it looked like our execution was good," he said.

"You worry about everything," he answered when asked what concerned him most about the game. "Potentially their passing game could be very good. Jones is definitely a problem because he can run with the ball. He's never trapped until he's down."

"About the lines, well, you just never know until the game starts. We think we have some excellent people in our line but I'm sure they do, too. At least they have had the past couple of years. But because of the short time we've had to work, I guess I worry most about our defensive secondary. It takes a lot of practice and working together to get a good pass defense coordinated. We expect them to test us back there quite a bit," he added.

The teams will played under some special rules.

No blocking will be allowed anytime downfield or in the open field beyond the line of scrimmage. No linebacker stunting between tackles will be permitted.

The teams must play a 5-3 defense outside the 10-yard line but can use any goal-line defense they choose inside that stripe.

The team trailing on the scoreboard has the option after a score to kick or receive. However, the second half will begin with the regular option established by the pre-game coin toss.

If the score is tied, the team last scored upon has the option. The Kansas tie-breaker plan will be used should the regular time expire in a tie.

Slowpitch invitational

It could be Idaho's showpiece meet

TWIN FALLS — "This is the best one Twin Falls has ever had. It's the best held in Idaho, really."

Chairman Mary Pierce was describing the Twin Falls major slowpitch softball tournament which opens this morning and runs through the weekend at the four city diamonds.

"We invited the best we could and that's the best we can get," said Pierce of the fact that 10 of the 28 teams represent the cream of the metro league crop of Salt Lake City.

"This is a tournament where your outfielders play with their backs to the fence," Pierce smiled. "They're loaded. This should be the most power Twin Falls fans will ever see in one tournament."

The tournament also is attracting top teams from throughout Southern Idaho, but fans should be aware of one name change, Pierce pointed out. Overland Lumber of Boise, which has a first-round bye, played the past several years under the aegis of McEl Sports. The sporting goods firm evidently dropped sponsorship of the team this spring.

"We'll be using all four diamonds — two at Harmon and two at Frontier — all day Saturday to get the games in," Pierce continued.

On the time schedule, he noted the first round kicks off at 9:15 a.m. with the final round of Saturday night starting at 9 p.m.

Action will resume Sunday morning and grind to the finals at 6 p.m. on diamond one at Harman Park.

Due to the odd-number of teams, four will receive first-round byes. Those waiting until second-round competition include Parma Merchants, Independent Meat of Twin Falls, Four Seasons of Mountain Home and Overland Lumber of Boise.

Pairings for the other 24 teams include:

Harmon Park
9:15 a.m., Snake River Tire of Twin Falls vs. Elmer's Pancake House, Pocatello; Corner Pocket, Twin Falls, vs. 1910 Hamburgers, Salt Lake City; 10:30 a.m., Club 93 of Twin Falls vs. Ensign Homes-Yankee Gold and Silver, Salt Lake City, and Northern Leasing of Pocatello vs. Farnworth Construction of Salt Lake City; 11:45 a.m., Sunset Sports of Pocatello vs. M and M Distributing of Salt Lake City, and Miller Sudsers of Pocatello vs.

Frontier Field
9:15 a.m., Boise Blues of Boise vs. Salt Lake Valley Realtors, and Jack Ellis Glass of Boise vs. Daniels Painting of Salt Lake City; 10:30 a.m., Sound World of Boise vs. Sherwin-Williams of Salt Lake City, and European Motors, Boise, vs. Cannon and Lee Painting of Salt Lake City; 11:45 a.m., Grizzly Bear of Caldwell vs. The Millmen of Magna and Coors of Magic Valley vs. Burger King of Logan.

Kuhn sees potential for big year

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Recent weeks have been a difficult time for professional baseball, but the fans have been patient and the potential exists for an outstanding season, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Friday.

"I don't think this has been a particularly good time for the game of baseball," Kuhn said of player-owner disputes and a threatened player strike that was averted last week.

However, he said, "through last Sunday attendance was running two-to-three percent above last year, and that was a record year. That would indicate the fans have been patient, and there is the potential for an outstanding year from here on."

He said the baseball races "look good" with each division containing at least three contending clubs.

Bargaining in baseball characteristically has been slow and deliberate over the years, and "because of that tendency it seems to be solutions are not found until well along the trail," he said.

There hasn't been much agreement on how to proceed and handle bargaining, but hopefully in the next decade "that will be one of the changes to make things better," he said.

Kuhn said while the situation looked ominous several weeks ago, he "never felt that it was ominous" because he had a feeling a breakthrough would be made.

He also said he was hopeful a study committee on compensation could produce a compromise to avert a possible strike next year.

Kuhn also said after Cuban refugees began flooding into the United States, baseball clubs began to get word of talented players among the refugees.

A moratorium was placed on signings of refugees, though, to allow clubs to assess the talent. After the moratorium expires within less than a month, Kuhn said clubs "will be free to sign any Cuban talent they want."

Kuhn was in Omaha for the Friday opening of the NCAA National Collegiate Baseball Championships, or College World Series.

He said baseball in the United States is "booming" with the largest attendance figures of any team sports in the country. Last year, he said, some 65 million fans watched baseball on all levels of competition.

Pairings for the other 24 teams include:

Harmon Park
9:15 a.m., Snake River Tire of Twin Falls vs. Elmer's Pancake House, Pocatello; Corner Pocket, Twin Falls, vs. 1910 Hamburgers, Salt Lake City; 10:30 a.m., Club 93 of Twin Falls vs. Ensign Homes-Yankee Gold and Silver, Salt Lake City, and Northern Leasing of Pocatello vs. Farnworth Construction of Salt Lake City; 11:45 a.m., Sunset Sports of Pocatello vs. M and M Distributing of Salt Lake City, and Miller Sudsers of Pocatello vs.

Frontier Field
9:15 a.m., Boise Blues of Boise vs. Salt Lake Valley Realtors, and Jack Ellis Glass of Boise vs. Daniels Painting of Salt Lake City; 10:30 a.m., Sound World of Boise vs. Sherwin-Williams of Salt Lake City, and European Motors, Boise, vs. Cannon and Lee Painting of Salt Lake City; 11:45 a.m., Grizzly Bear of Caldwell vs. The Millmen of Magna and Coors of Magic Valley vs. Burger King of Logan.

College coaches seek recruiting rule change

DALLAS (UPI) — Football coaches will urge a change in rules governing the recruitment of high school athletes at next year's NCAA convention, a member of the College Football Association said Friday.

Dr. Charles Sampson, faculty representative for Texas A&M University, said a resolution concerning recruitment would probably be passed at the conclusion of the CFA's convention Sunday.

The CFA, made up of most of college football's powerhouses, opened its convention Friday with discussions concerning television and recruiting.

Representatives from all three major commercial networks and the cable network ESPN discussed the future of college football on television, with a spokesman from ABC-TV urging the NCAA to continue its relationship with that network.

The current NCAA-ABC contract expires at the end of the upcoming college season.

Sampson said college coaches were uniform in their feelings about the current NCAA limitation of three visits to a prospective high school recruit.

"They all say it's bad," Sampson said, "and they all say it is impossible to police."

"There are a lot of different ideas about changes, though. Some people say that you should forbid all visits to the home and then let high schools police the number of visits a coach might make to the school."

McNamee shocks McEnroe in French Open

PARIS (UPI) — In a match that lasted four hours and eighteen grueling minutes, unseeded Australian Paul McNamee stunned No. 2 seed John McEnroe, 7-6, 6-7, 7-6, 7-6, to spring the biggest surprise of the $650,000 French Open tennis championships Friday.

Jimmy Connors, the No. 3 seed, had a scrappy 7-5, 6-4, 7-5 third round win over Italy's Antonio Zangarelli as he continued the quest for the one major title that has always eluded him.

McNamee, 25, a journeyman player on the circuit from Melbourne won three tie-breaks, 8-6, 7-5, and 7-2, losing the second set on a 7-4 decision to move into the fourth round.

McNamee, who is more noted as a doubles player, has come close to beating some of the world's top players, but each time he seems to succeed in beating only himself.

"I do have a reputation for choking," said the Australian. "But not this time. I always thought I was stronger than John."

He was cheered off court by the center court crowd who saw him save seven set points in an incredible fourth set that went to deuce nine times. It was the continuation of a miserable season for McEnroe who is in the middle of a bad slump after last year's superb form that culminated in victory at the U.S. Open.

McNamee, ranked 48th in the world, taught himself a double-fluted backhand only a few months ago and spent most of the match running round to his forehead to avoid using it.

"The other pros laughed at me, but I practised it for eight hours a day and this is the result," he said. Connors' victory was his third close match in a row on the slow clay of Roland Garros.

"I'm either going to be in great shape or I'll kill me," he said. The most impressive player today was the No. 4 seed, Guillermo Vilas.

The Argentine left-hander, who has come here with the Italian Open title and a victory over Bjorn Borg, in the Nation's Cup under his belt, looked much sharper than Connors as he blitzed Tom Koch of Brazil 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 on a nearby court.

"It's too early to tell if I am playing really well," said Vilas. Borg is playing very well.

Two seeds went out on the fifth day of the two-week championships. Raul Ramirez defeated Eddie Dibbs, the No. 7, 6-3, 7-5, 6-2 with the American

Victor Pecci, the player who gained instant fame by beating Connors here last year and going all the way to the final before losing to Borg, was beaten by a little-known Chilean Belus Prajoux 7-5, 6-4, 6-7, 7-6.

Connors' fourth-round opponent will be Yannick Noah, the man Vilas beat in the Italian final last week. Noah, the Cameroon-born player who is France's latest hero, kept a packed center-court crowd of 18,000 happy with a 6-3, 6-0, 7-6 win over American Eliot Tellescher.

The other third round winner was Poland's Wojtek Fibak who downed Paolo Bertolucci of Italy 6-1, 7-5, 7-5.

In the women's singles, Chris Evert Lloyd looked as sharp as ever in beating Pam Teeguarden 6-1 6-1 to set up a third round match against fellow American Bettina Bunge, who beat Nanette Schutte of the Netherlands 6-1, 6-2.

Evert's first real test, however, will probably come against West Germany's Sylvia Hanika, whom she may meet in the quarterfinals. The left-handed Hanika was impressive in her 6-4, 6-3 win against Dutch veteran Betty Stove.

Car makers may cancel grand prix

MADRID (UPI) — The Renault, Ferrari and Alfa Romeo racing teams said Friday they would not take part in Sunday's Formula One Spanish Grand Prix unless organizers agreed to abide by international rules.

A spokesman for Renault said the three teams had decided not to go along with the decision of the race organizers, the Royal Automobile Club of Spain, to hold the contest on its own.

The Osella team also was reported joining the boycott. The club announced earlier the race would not be "held under the auspices of the International Federation of Automotive Sport (FISA) and that the presence of FISA officials is no longer required here."

The Renault spokesman said, "Renault and the other teams are just too big to go along with such a decision. This race has to be organized by FISA or we don't race."

Carew tops balloting for all-stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — First baseman Rod Carew of the California Angels is the leading early vote getter in balloting for the American League All-Stars who will oppose the National League, July 5, in the annual showpiece in Los Angeles.

The voting showed a curious pattern with third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals and outfielder Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees the only position leaders from teams playing better than .500. Six of the eight leaders are from the Angels and Boston Red Sox, two of the league's most disappointing teams so far this year.

Catcher Carlton Fisk and outfielders Fred Lynn and Jim Rice are the other Red Sox among the position leaders while second baseman Bobby Grich and shortstop Fred Patek are the other Angels.

Carew's 382,170 votes are 200,000 more than the No. 2 first baseman, Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, and almost 60,000 more than the second highest vote-getter, Lynn.

Carew has made 11 previous appearances in All-Star games but has made only five hits in 31 at bats for a .161 average. The National League has won 27 of the last 33 games after trailing 12-4 in the early stages of the series which started in 1953.

The announcement of the voting was made by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Orioles edge Twins in 10th

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Terry Crowley led off the 10th inning with a pinch hit solo home run Friday night to lift the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins. Crowley's third homer was only the second hit of loser Doug Corbett, 32, in four innings of relief. Minnesota's Ken Landreaux doubled off Flanagan in the seventh inning after failing to connect in his first three at-bats to extend his hitting streak to 31 games — longest in the American League in 31 years.

Gura retired 17 straight batters at one point, boosting his record to 7-2 with his seventh complete game. He struck out three and did not walk a batter but did allow a solo homer to Lamar Johnson. Kansas City collected only nine hits but stole five bases and benefited from three Chicago errors and eight walks to open up a three-game lead in the American League West over the Chicago White Sox.

Mets 5, Pirates 1
PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Steve Henderson drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and Pat Zachry picked up his first victory in leading the New York Mets to a 5-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in a game called after five—and one-half—inings because of rain. The umpires waited one hour and 53 minutes in the middle of the sixth inning before calling the game. Pinch hitter was at the plate with none out in the last of the sixth when the rain began.

A's 6, Texas 3
ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) — Dwayne Murphy broke a scoreless tie with a two-run homer in the fourth inning Friday night, gave Gaylord Perry, 3-3, walked Rickey Henderson to start the fourth and Murphy followed with his fifth homer of the year. Mitchell Page next blasted his first homer of the season to give the A's a 6-3 lead.

Expos 10, Cards 2
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Ellis Valentine lined a three-run double over left fielder Ted Simmons' head in the second inning and Chris Speler added a three-run triple in the ninth Friday night to lead the Montreal Expos to a 10-2 victory over the struggling St. Louis Cardinals.

With two out and two on in the Texas fifth, Murphy made his sprawling catch to shut off the threat, and after Texas narrowed the deficit to 3-2 in the sixth, the A's struck back for two runs in the seventh on singles by Mickey Kutlits, Henderson and Murphy. Henderson singled in the A's sixth run in the ninth.

The Expos scored their final run in the seventh on a walk to LeFlore, who stole second and third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dawson. The Cardinals scored single runs in the second on an RBI single by Ken Reitz and in the fourth on a triple by Terry Kennedy and a single by George Hendrick. Valentine was forced to leave the game when he was hit in the left cheek by a pitch by Cardinals reliever Roy Thomas. Valentine was taken to a hospital for X-rays.

Yanks 6, Jays 0
NEW YORK (UPI) — Rick Cerone's two-run double keyed a four-run seventh inning Friday night and Luis Tiant continued his career mastery over the Toronto Blue Jays in leading the New York Yankees to a 6-0 victory. Tiant, who is 9-0 lifetime against Toronto, took a two-hitter into the eighth in search of his 50th career shutout. A triple to Barry Bonnell and a walk to pinch hitter Al Woods put runners at first and third with two out and Rich Gossage relieved and registered his fifth save.

The Cubs scored their first run in the first after Pete Rose bobbled Larry Blittner's grounder for an error, allowing Lenny Randle to score. Vall added his RBI single and after the Cubs loaded the bases, Larson batted, allowing Blittner to score. Blackwell followed with his three-run homer.

Cubs 10, Phils 7
CHICAGO (UPI) — Tim Blackwell's three-run homer, his first in the major leagues, capped a six-run first inning and Mike Vail went 4-for-4 with three RBIs to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 10-7 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday.

Blackwell, in his seventh season, hit his homer on a 3-2 pitch off starter Dan Larson, 0-1. Vail, subbing for the injured Dave Kingman, had an RBI single in the first, a double in the second, a two-run homer in the fifth and singled and scored in the seventh.

Tigers 12, Angels 1
DETROIT (UPI) — Richie Hebner hit two homers in a game for the second time this season and Milt Wilcox pitched a six-hitter Friday night to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 12-1 rout of California for their 11th straight victory over the Angels. Detroit slammed five home runs, including one by the just acquired Stan Page, and exploded for 18 hits in its biggest offensive outburst of the season. Hebner hit his third home run to trigger a three-run fourth inning and hit his fourth homer off in the middle of a five-run sixth.

Royals 9, Chicago 2
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Darrell Porter belted a two-run first-inning homer to send the Kansas City Royals off to a 9-2 rout Friday night over the Chicago White Sox behind the six-hit pitching of Larry Gura.

Olympic basketball Cagers intense despite boycott

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Michael Brooks knew he wanted to play for the U.S. Olympic basketball team when he watched the 1976 team play on television from Montreal.

Four years have passed, and Afghanistan entered the American vocabulary, but his enthusiasm hasn't waned — even though Brooks will be playing in a "make-believe" Olympic series against National Basketball Association players.

"I just want to play anywhere," Brooks said Friday. "I just enjoy playing the game."

"Now, we're just concerned about playing together and getting some chemistry working," Brooks said. "We're not going to go there and fall dead."

U.S. Olympic Coach Dave Gavitt is putting the team through seven days of closed practices at the Providence College gymnasium prior to June 4 and 6 exhibitions against New England ex-college players in Providence and Hartford.

The team will begin a five-game Gold Medal series in NBA cities beginning June 18 at the Forum in Los Angeles against a collection of league stars.

Like Brooks, many of the players were looking forward to going to Moscow and international competition. But most said the challenge of playing NBA members overshadows any disappointment over not going to the Olympics.

"No, no, it's not tough at all to get up in this series," insisted sophomore forward Rodney McCray of Louisville.

"It's going to be great playing against the best players in the world," he said.

"We really didn't anticipate the level of intensity of the players," Gavitt said. "There really is no feeling of sour grapes or any letdown."

UCLA coach Larry Brown, one of Gavitt's Olympic assistants, said: "It was a blow, but they haven't let it affect their practices."

Instead of disappointment, the dazzle of playing the likes of Moses Malone, Elvin Hayes and Darryl Dawkins has captured the players' imagination.

"It'll be a learning experience for everyone," said Indiana sophomore guard Ishiah Thomas. "The competition will be so much better than the international teams we'd face."

The team also includes Sam Bowie of Kentucky, Bill Hamzik of Notre Dame, Darnell Valentine of Kansas, Alton Lister of Arizona State, Rolando Blackman of Kansas State, Al Wood of North Carolina, Danny Vranes of Utah and Buck Williams of Maryland.

Hiller stuns Tigers, retires

DETROIT (UPI) — John Hiller, who recovered from a heart attack to become one of the American League's premier relief pitchers, stunned the Detroit Tigers Friday by announcing his retirement.

The 37-year-old left-hander, who asked to be placed on the voluntary retired list, was the best relief pitcher in Tigers history. He holds the club record for appearances, with 545 games, and set a major-league record with 38 saves in 1973.

"I don't feel like I can compete any more at the major-league level," said Hiller, who finished his final partial season with a 1-0 record, a 4.40 ERA and no saves in 11 games.

"I don't think I can go out and get out major-league hitters any more," he said. "And I don't want to be a joke out there. I'm just not pitching good."

"My arm is not responding — even with five or six days of rest."

Hiller, the last active Tiger from the 1962 World Series-champion team, leaves the major leagues with a 87-76 career record and an ERA under 3.00.

He was a devil-may-care, overweight and jovial starter-reliever for the Tigers from the day he first joined the club in 1965 until he suffered a heart attack in January, 1971 at age 27. He spent that season recovering and underwent an operation for removal of part of his colon.

Hiller then had to convince Tigers president and general manager Jim Campbell to let him pitch again.

He finally got medical clearance and came back in mid-1972 to post a 1-2 record and a 2.05 ERA in 24 test-case games.

"There's no question about it," said Hiller, a native of Scarborough, Ontario. "My greatest major-league thrill was (returning to the major leagues) and throwing a home-run ball to Richie Allen."

Hiller's 1973 season was one of the most remarkable single-year efforts ever posted by a relief pitcher. He appeared in 65 games and was successful in 61. Hiller had a 1.44 ERA, a 10-5 record and 38 saves in 125 innings of work.

He followed that with a 17-14 season and a 2.64 ERA in 150 innings, all in 59 relief appearances.

"If I felt I could go out and do the job, even as a long relief man, I would," said Hiller, who endured arm trouble for the first time last season and underwent extensive therapy during the winter.

"I made up my mind Tuesday night in New York," he said. "I just can't face major-league hitters any more."

Clips give Ernie D a tryout

BOSTON (UPI) — Former All-America and NBA rookie-of-the-year Ernie DiGregorio has decided at age 29 it isn't too late to make a comeback.

He will report to the San Diego Clippers training camp 'til the fall.

The 5-foot-10 former Providence College star, who won the NBA top rookie award in 1974 with the Buffalo Braves, hasn't played pro basketball since 1978.

"This is the first time I've been excited about basketball in seven years," DiGregorio told the Boston Herald American Friday. "I miss the game."

He last played sparingly for the Boston Celtics before sitting out the past two seasons.

DiGregorio decided to return due to "boredom," he said. "I haven't done anything in three years, and it was getting to the point where I was asking myself what I was going to do with the rest of my life."

"Now I'm ready to put aside the past and the bad times and play the game like a kid. I'm going to have fun," DiGregorio said.

Last summer DiGregorio said he needed a no-cut contract to compete for a spot on a Boston team filled with no-cut contracts. But he said he will travel to San Diego with no strings attached, because he thinks he can make the club.

DiGregorio said he has talked to newly-named Clipper coach Paul Silas, another former Celtic. "He sounded very encouraging. I know him and his philosophies and I feel my talents will be appreciated there."

"The Clippers have a wide-open situation, and I know Paul will be cleaning house out there," DiGregorio said. "I think there are a lot of possibilities for me there."

DiGregorio has been working out the past few months with former PC and Celtic teammate Kevin Stacom. The two will join a team of New England players who will play the U.S. Olympic basketball team in exhibitions next Wednesday in Providence and Friday in Hartford, Conn.

"Those games next week will be a good workout for me," DiGregorio said. "I need them to see what kind of shape I'm in. I need to be tested."

Heiden says training grind was too much

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Eric Heiden said Friday though he still hasn't hit his peak as a speedskater — despite his record five Olympic gold medals — his years of grueling training are over.

The gold medals made him an instant international celebrity and now, after years of intense training, Heiden said he wants to have some fun and think about the rest of his life.

"The top European skaters are in the late 20s and early 30s," said the 21-year-old Heiden. "I probably could improve some if I continued training. Every year my times have gotten better. I had fun doing it, but now there are other things more important, like finishing school."

Heiden, in Milwaukee to race in the International Grand Prix Cycling championships, said he became interested in cycling while in training for speedskating. His goals, however, are limited, even though he recently was selected as an alternate on the U.S. Olympic Cycling team.

Heiden failed to finish in the top 10 in the rain-shortened Milwaukee race, but then, he never really expected to do well. He is in the series of races just for his own enjoyment, he said.

"It was always fun for me," he said. "I'm going to give cycling a good shot, but I'm not going to spend as much time at it as skating."

"I take racing seriously, but I'm just here to have a good time really. I'm not too concerned about winning. I think if I wanted to do well, I'd have to concentrate on track racing, like in the Olympic trials. I'm too big for road racing. The hills really get to me," he said.

He will, he said, attend some speedskating meets while studying sports medicine in Oslo, Norway, this winter.

"I plan on some recreational skating, but no world championships or anything like that. If I go to any international meets, I'm going to be there in the stands, drinking beer and watching," he said.

After the year in Norway, he said he plans to return to study medicine at the University of Wisconsin in his hometown of Madison.

In the straight in Europe since winning the World Championships, Heiden had remained relatively unknown in the United States. The Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y., however, changed all that.

"Life is a lot more hectic now," he said. "People want me here and people want me there. Some things are fun, but some things are pretty hard. You always have to smile. When you go to a cycle race, people ask if you are going to win. If they knew better, they'd know I just want to finish," he said.

"At first you try to please everybody, but after a while, you realize you can't do that. It may seem selfish, but after a while you realize you have to please yourself. You have to do what you want to do."

Foli goes on inactive list

PITTSBURGH (UPI) - Shortstop Tim Foli has been placed on the 15-day disabled list because of an infected spike wound in his right shin, the Pittsburgh Pirates announced Friday.

The wound was cleaned Friday and Foli was admitted to Presbyterian Hospital for observation. A team spokesman said Foli is expected to stay in the hospital for three to four days.

The spokesman said Foli was placed on the disabled list Thursday. He was spiked in a game in late April and the wound had become infected.

The Pirates also announced that the team has purchased the contract of Vance Law from his Class AAA Portland team.

Lisch signs with Cards ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Quarterback Rusty Lisch signed three one-year contracts with the St. Louis Cardinals Friday, a team spokesman said.

Last year at Notre Dame, Lisch completed 52 percent of his pass attempts for 1,791 yards and four touchdowns. He is a native of Belleville, Ill.

Earlier this month, the Cardinals signed second-round choice Doug Marsh, a tight end from Michigan; seventh-round pick Ben Apuna, a linebacker from Arizona State, and eighth-round choice Dupree Branch, a defensive back from Colorado State.

49ers trade Cedrick Hardman SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - The San Francisco 49ers traded defensive lineman Cedrick Hardman to the Oakland Raiders Friday for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Hardman, an 11-year pro, has played his entire career with the 49ers after being the team's first-round draft choice in 1970.

"Cedrick has been a great performer for the 49ers," said Head Coach Bill Walsh. He said the 49ers need "to take a long range approach in developing our young defensive line."

Hardman, 31, was an average 117.6. He never had less than 12 sacks until last season when he fell to just four, playing in 14 games before he was injured with a broken thumb.

Marshall loses two players HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UPI) - Leading scorer James Campbell and reserve Robert Pritchard and Mike Pennell are academically ineligible to play for Marshall University's basketball team in the 1980 fall semester, school officials announced Friday.

The 6-foot-5 Campbell, a sophomore, averaged 14.3 points in 17 games last season after notching an 8.1 average as a freshman. The 6-foot-8 Pennell averaged 2.7 points in 16 games last season after becoming eligible at the start of the second semester.

Vandal baseball drive underway MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) - Attorney John Walker, Moscow, has launched a fund-raising campaign in hopes of coming up with $50,000 to save Intercollegiate baseball at the University of Idaho.

Walker said there are 18 members of his committee and they have until July 1 to raise the necessary $50,000 and pledges.

Idaho announced recently that because of the tough economic times, it was dropping its money-losing baseball program.

If the money is raised, Walker and his group have been assured that the baseball program would remain alive for at least one more season.

Brook joins ABC-TV team NEW YORK (UPI) - Lou Brock, baseball's all-time base stealer with a career total of 938, has been signed by ABC-TV as an "expert commentator" for the first three weeks of the network's Monday Night Baseball series.

Brock will make his first appearance next Monday night when the Cincinnati Reds play the Los Angeles Dodgers in Los Angeles in a regional telecast. The other regional telecast that night will be of the New York Yankees' game at Kansas City.
