

Guilty plea entered for 1st degree murder

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Mini-Cassia suspects waived a preliminary hearing here Friday afternoon and pleaded guilty to one count each of first degree murder.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Jeff Stoker said Joe Hutcherson, 34, of Rupert, and Danny Jordan, 23, of Burley were originally charged with two counts of first degree murder each.

Their decision to waive the preliminary hearing and enter guilty pleas came after three and one half days of testimony and evidence in the hearing.

The two appeared in 5th District Court before Judge Theron W. Ward and pleaded guilty to one count each of first degree murder involving the deaths of two Pocatello men early in 1979. The second counts were dropped.

Charges stemmed from the slaying of Paul Kennedy, 24, and Steven Taylor, 23, whose bodies were recovered along Snake River below Milner Dam in May of 1979.

Judge Ward granted pre-sentence investigations for both men. The prosecutor said the two will be taken to Cassia County, where they have indicated they will plead guilty in district court to one count each of robbery and kidnapping. Ward said sentencing on all of the charges will probably be issued in Cassia County.

The two were bound over to district court in Cassia county on charges of kidnapping, robbery and arson following a lengthy preliminary hearing there.

Stoker said he was well satisfied to be able to get two guilty pleas on first degree murder charges. He said during the hearing, which was closed to the public and press, testimony indicated the two suspects had met

Kennedy and Taylor in Cassia County, intending to rob them, then took the victims at gun point to the bridge over Milner dam, where they shot them.

The location of the murders was determined to be within the jurisdiction of Twin Falls County, which brought the murder charges here, while kidnapping, robbery and arson charges remain in Cassia County.

Stoker said according to evidence, the two bodies fell into the river from the bridge, and the suspects then drove the car, belonging to one of the victims, to the Oakley gravel pits and buried it. About 80 lbs. of marijuana which was in the vehicle was never recovered, apparently having been sold by the defendants.

Mike Walls, Twin Falls county public defender, who represented Hutcherson, said he does not want to comment on the case as yet, since the two are still to appear in 5th District Court in Cassia County. He said the Friday action came as a result of plea negotiations, and it seemed the most logical course for his client to take.

Bodies of the victims washed ashore and were found along the river in the canyon. Officers said both had their hands tied behind their backs and both had been shot. The suspects were arrested after nearly a year of intensive investigation in Cassia County with the assistance of Pocatello authorities and officers in several Magic Valley counties. The investigation began when the burned vehicle was discovered in the Oakley area. In checking it out, officers found the two Pocatello residents were missing.

Magistrate Daniel Hurlbutt of Lincoln County came to Twin Falls to conduct the preliminary hearing. The hearing began Tuesday and officials expected it to conclude late Friday, but it came to an end when attorneys announced the two were ready to go into District Court and enter pleas.

'Way to go, Granny!'

Liggett crowned queen of 75th anniversary

Great-grandmother Lydia Liggett of Twin Falls, graciously accepted the crown as queen of the Twin Falls Diamond Jubilee.

The grey-haired lady was selected from a field of 15 contestants on a basis of the number of votes cast at a penny each in the 75th anniversary contest. To commemorate her reign, she received a plaque, a crown and a $300 diamond necklace from the contest sponsoring Lynwood Merchants.

Mrs. Liggett nosed out Mary H. Frazier who received runner-up honors and Josephine Wurst who placed third. At right, Lori Herbst, 4, of Jerome, and Jeff McMinnis of Twin Falls, great-grandchildren of the winner, cheered for their favorite contestant, shouting "Way to go, Granny!"

Mayor Henry Woodall presided at the crowning of the queen Friday at 11 a.m. in the Lynwood Mall. All contestants in the event were 75 years old or older and many have resided in the community most of their 75 years of history. Mrs. Liggett and her runners-up will be featured in other 75th anniversary events during the coming week.

Growth Outlook for Idaho shows slowdown

BOISE (UPI) — Pessimistic growth projections for Idaho's major industries cast some doubt on whether the growth experienced by the state in the 1970s will continue, state financial officials forecast.

Richard Slaughter of the state Division of Financial Management said growth may decline because of the "different constraints" in the state from a decade ago.

One of the differences is the availability and price of electric power.

"Idaho may not have the price advantage of electricity that we had in the past," Slaughter said.

In addition, growth has sapped Idaho's plentiful water supply, he said.

A third constraint, may be the 1 percent initiative. "Companies that come into the state to manufacture do so in part because of the land that's available and productive people are also looking for a hospitable environment for their managerial people," Slaughter said.

That means good schools, roads, parks and other municipal niceties that are endangered by constraints of the 1 percent, Slaughter said.

Slaughter said the state experienced a 1.7 percent rate of growth in 1979 which is expected to drop to zero this year then climb up to 4 percent by 1982 or 1983.

But growth for Idaho's major industries will remain sluggish.

The report said the future of Idaho's food processing industry appears bleak because of a slump in the fast-food industry caused by higher fuel prices and reduced driving habits.

Mining activity however, is expanding in the state, as well as paper production and electronics manufacturing.

Inflation slows, but jobless rate up

By United Press International

The nation's unemployment rate rose to 7.8 percent in May, with 8.2 million Americans seeking jobs, the Labor Department said Friday. But it reported encouraging news on inflation.

The department said prices at the wholesale level, an indication of the extent of inflation ahead for consumers, rose only 0.3 percent in May from their smallest increase in more than two years.

The rise in the unemployment rate, from 6.2 percent in March to 7 percent in April and 7.8 in May, was the most dramatic sign yet the recession is worse than the government had forecast.

In March, the administration projected a jobless rate of 7.3 percent by the end of this year.

The separate reports on unemployment and producer prices brought calls in Congress for a shift in economic policy from concentration on fighting inflation to large tax cuts and other measures designed to contain a deepening recession.

President Carter's top economic officials told reporters the administration will stay on its present economic course despite the "unexpectedly high jump in joblessness."

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said the unemployment situation will be "painful" and the administration is looking into possible alleviating steps. But both Miller and Charles Schultz, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, appeared to rule out any large, new job programs.

In another reflection of recession outstanding consumer credit fell $1.99 billion in April for the first time since the 1975 recession, the Federal Reserve Board said.

Signifying the end of the spending spree which economists believe postponed the recession, extensions of new credit declined almost 15 percent to $22.55 billion. At the same time, Americans slowed down repayments by $550 million to $24.53 billion.

The number of Americans seeking jobs but unable to find them increased by 800,000 in May to 8.2 million.

Janet Norwood, head of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, told Congress' Joint Economic Committee that in the past two months, the number of unemployed increased by 1.7 million, the largest two-month rise in history.

Since the start of the recession in January, Mrs. Norwood said, more than 800,000 jobs have been lost in goods-producing industries. About 500,000 of those were construction jobs. Most of the rest have been in durable goods manufacturing industries, including automobiles, lumber, rubber and metal fabrication.

The unemployment rate for construction workers is 17.5 percent; for durable goods manufacturing workers, 10.5 percent.

Unemployment is much higher in heavy industry areas. The May rate was 14.4 percent in Michigan, where many auto workers have been laid off. It was 9.4 percent in Ohio, 8.3 in Pennsylvania, 8.3 in New Jersey and 7.9 in Illinois, but only 5.4 percent in Texas.

Idaho jobless rate highest in 4 years

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The unemployment rate in Idaho rose 4 of one percent in May to 7.7 percent — its highest level in almost four years.

The increase in the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate comes on the heels of a 1.1 percent jump in April. According to the state Department of Employment, the unemployment rate in Idaho now stands two percentage points above the unemployment rate at this time last year and is at its highest point since September 1976.

The back-to-back increases in the unemployment rate come during the time of year when employment is normally growing.

The Magic Valley has not been spared the impact of increasing unemployment. Craig Hobbey, labor market analyst for the Twin Falls office of the state Department of Employment, said the jobs normally added in construction and agriculture aren't there this year.

The seasonally adjusted rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties is 5.9 percent, compared to 4.3 percent last year at this time, Hobbey said. The Twin Falls office was handling over 980 claims for unemployment insurance during the last week of May, he said. Last year at that time there were only 430 claims.

The unemployed are coming from Kellwood's hosiery plant, which is laying people off gradually before closing permanently later this year, the construction industry, food processing, and wholesale and retail sales, Hobbey said.

Most of the people looking for work will not be able to find it, he said. The job openings listed at the employment office have dropped 30 percent from last year, he said.

"For most people, there just aren't any jobs available," said one of the employment counselors in the Twin Falls office. "We just have to tell them that. It hurts. It hurts them and it hurts us to have to tell them," she said.

Many of the unemployed don't qualify for unemployment insurance. Compared to the 980 claims for unemployment insurance, the office's file of people actively looking for work was up to 2,148 people at the end of May. A week before that, the file held 2,058 names, she said.

Some of the additional people looking for work are students out of school for the summer. They will have a difficult time finding work this summer, she said.

During May, 275 people did find work with the help of the employment office. But that figure is down from more than 350 placements at the office in May of 1977. Without the Burger King in Twin Falls, the picture would have been even bleaker. Burger King accounted for more than 50 of the new jobs in May.

Usually at this time of year, our job board is loaded with openings for cooks, dishwashers and motel maids. But there aren't any now," said the employment counselor.

She said some businesses have even called her to cancel job orders because they have decided not to hire anyone until business improves.

Despite the bleak employment picture, Scott B. McDonald, state employment director, said he believes Idaho will withstand the national recession without severe hardship.

"Idaho's economy is diverse enough to stabilize and weather the current recession without a severely crippling downturn," he said.

And-Hobbey can point to a few reasons for optimism. Interest rates have dropped dramatically, which should perk up the construction industry. Unless the rain and cold continue, it should be a good agricultural season, so food processors will be active in the fall. Trout processing has been slowed because of a temporary lack of mature fish, he said. But more fish are maturing, so trout processing will begin to pick up soon.

"As those businesses pick up, retail sales will pick up," he said.

Salvador curtails rights

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — El Salvador's ruling civilian-military junta has extended a "state of siege" curtailing civil liberties for 30 days because of political violence lashing the Central American nation of 4.8 million, authorities said.

A junta communiqué said the state of siege was extended because of the violence that has claimed some 20 victims a day and closed every European embassy but Italy's.

In the latest round of shootings, at least nine people were killed by gunshot and six were wounded in separate incidents Thursday night, authorities said.

Besides the violence, the government has been beset with a series of leftist-led strikes that have paralyzed key industries.

A strike by 5,000 government court workers was called late Thursday, but doctors, agronomists and Education Ministry workers remain on strike.

Oil rig fire injures 23

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — An explosion and fire aboard an American-operated offshore oil rig injured 23 people Friday, including at least two Americans, a spokesman for the national oil company Petrobras said.

The blast aboard the Discover 534 drilling ship 80 miles off the Rio de Janeiro state coast was caused by an escape of natural gas as the technicians capped the well, he said.

The Petrobras spokesman identified the company involved as Offshore Oil Company.

Some 120 Brazilians, Filipinos and Americans were aboard the rig when the explosion occurred. Most of the injured were Brazilians.

The fire caused by the explosion was later brought under control.

Gas price hike allowed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Starting June 15, service stations can tack an extra seven-tenths of a cent on the selling price of every gallon of gasoline to offset inflation the Energy Department announced Friday.

The agency, in a routine quarterly inflation adjustment, boosted the retail gasoline gross-margin from 16.1 to 16.8 cents a gallon.

The margin is the maximum markup retailers can add to their wholesale gasoline costs to cover profits and overhead. The agency's Economic Regulatory Administration prescribes retail and wholesale margins because gasoline remains the only refined oil product still subject to federal price controls.

The agency also raised the gasoline wholesale margin from 7.7 to 8.2 cents a gallon; effective June 15.

Taken together, the increases could add 1.2 cents to the pump price of a gallon of gas. But some wholesalers, fearful that rising prices could reduce their supply allocations by discouraging sales in a sluggish market, might be reluctant to pass on the whole increase.

Republicans say tax cut necessary

Rising unemployment has affected nearly every group. Between April and May, jobless rates rose from 12.6 to 13.3 percent for blacks, from 16.2 to 16.9 percent for teenagers, from 9.3 to 9.6 for adult men, and from 8.3 to 8.6 for adult women.

It was the first time in two decades the jobless rate for men has been as high as it is now. The effect of concentration of the recession in manufacturing, where men predominate.

The Labor Department's index of producer prices for finished goods stood at 241.0 in May, which meant goods ready for retail which cost $100 in 1967 now cost $241.

Food prices at the finished goods level were up 0.1 percent after a sharp drop in April. Wholesale energy prices rose 0.8 percent, far less than in any recent month.

Mrs. Norwood said that, considered along with cuts in auto prices and falling home mortgage rates, the figures may indicate consumer price figures for May — to be released later this month — will show further improvement.

Lawrence Chimrine, chief economist at Chase Econometrics, an economic forecasting firm, told the joint committee unemployment is likely to exceed 9 percent as the recession deepens.

But Chimrine said consumer inflation should fall from its 19.8 percent annual rate earlier this year to 10 percent by the end of 1980, restoring household purchasing power and bringing an end to the recession. He urged tax cuts to hasten the recovery.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown of Ohio, ranking Republican on the committee, called the unemployment rise "shocking" and said President Carter could have avoided the recession if he had cut taxes, as the committee recommended a year ago.

Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., one of Congress' black leaders, attributed the rise in unemployment to administration policies designed to fight inflation by curbing spending and tightening money.

Since blacks suffer higher unemployment than others, Mitchell said, "policies increase the potential for racial tension."

Victims of wastes testify

WASHINGTON (UPI) — They were grim, angry, depressed and frightened — and one broke down and cried — as victims of hazardous wastes dumped across the last testified Friday about their frustrated efforts to get help.

They came from communities such as Jackson, N.J.; East Woburn, Mass., and Erwin, Tenn., as well as the (in)apparently named Love Canal in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

All told the same story.

Toxic chemical wastes are destroying their lives, driving them from their homes and, perhaps, killing their children.

At hearings chaired by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., 10 witnesses charged neither federal nor state officials have been responsive to their complaints.

The first to testify, James G. McCarthy of Jackson Township, said at age 88, he already had lost a 9-month-old child to kidney disease, and he has lost one of his own kidneys.

He said he and his neighbors, many of whom also suffer kidney disease, are convinced the health problems are due to poisoning of their wells by wastes that have been used as a landfill for a recreation site used by children.

"We've been unable to get state help; we've been unable to get federal help," he said.

"How do you look to the future?" asked Kennedy.

"I have two children — I want to see them live," McCarthy replied, then broke into tears.

"We do need help," he said in a choked voice.

McCarthy's neighbor, Kathleen Benesch, said she is one of many women who have had miscarriages. Even neighborhood cats are dying of kidney disease. She said area residents believe it is caused by the water, she said.

The problems of people living near an "acid pit" at Woburn, Mass., were described by Rev. Bruce Young, Judy Broderick and Anne Anderson.

Young said he thought officials would help after learning of "a cluster" of leukemia cases among children.

But "government has not been our friend," he said. "It has been our problem."

Mrs. Broderick said fumes from tannery wastes dumped in the area for a century take paint off homes — "I don't know what it does to our bodies."

Among eight families on her street, she said, there have been three stillbirths and four miscarriages.

Skip Foss told how 200 Erwin, Tenn., residents kept a 24-hour vigil to stop trucks dumping waste in a landfill — only to have them find another route through a cemetery.

The wastes were believed the cause of an epidemic of respiratory disease in the community, but citizens got "a royal runaround" from officials, Foss said.

Barbara Quimby, one of hundreds evacuated from the Love Canal waste dump area, testified that she, her husband and two children are living in one motel room.

"We just can't take more of it," she declared.

"I'm sick of being a guinea pig. My God, get me out of it."

William Foege, director of the federal Center for Disease Control, said the agency's "most urgent concern" at this time is Love Canal. But it also is investigating toxic waste problems at Woburn and at Chester, Pa., and Memphis, Tenn.

The chemical industry now produces about 600 pounds of wastes a year for every man, woman and child in America.

New reported disease strikes young women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 50 cases of a new mystery disease, which already has killed seven people but mainly strikes women of child-bearing age, have been reported to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, doctors told Congress Friday.

So far, seven patients have died from the disease — usually from shock — for a case-mortality ratio of 13 percent.

The disease, known as toxic-shock syndrome, is characterized by high fever, vomiting, diarrhea and a rapid drop in blood pressure, often resulting in shock.

There is also a sunburn-like rash and later, a peeling of the skin, particularly on the fingers and toes.

Center Director Dr. William Foege told the Senate Health Subcommittee the cause is unknown, but symptoms are similar to a number of diseases in which bacteria produce a toxin released into the bloodstream.

"It is because of this possible association with a toxin that the disease has been called toxic-shock syndrome," Foege said.

As of May 23, he said, 55 cases were reported. Of those, 52 cases or 95 percent were in women. Foege said the average age of the patient is 25.

"There is a striking association in women with menstrual periods," Foege said, noting a majority of patients displayed symptoms during the first five days of their menstrual cycle.

Foege said that in Wisconsin, where seven cases have been reported and where doctors were alerted to the symptoms, the fatality rate was only about 3 percent.

Based on the average of one case per month per million people found in Wisconsin, Foege estimated that about 2,000 cases of toxic-shock syndrome will occur in the United States this year.

Subcommittee chairman Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said he arranged the hearing "to alert the American people while the mystery still exists."

"It is important to remember that most of these new disease mysteries get solved."

Foege said he expects to find the cause and treatment for the syndrome, which is characterized as "less complicated" than Legionnaires' disease, by the end of the year.

"The best lead so far is that a bacterium, staphylococcus aureus, has been found in nearly 75 percent of the patients."

Dr. Kathryn Shands, the center's principal investigator of the disease, said the disease is difficult to identify in its early stages because the rash is similar to that caused by Rocky Mountain spotted fever and other such diseases.

Man opens fire, kills 1, at ballgame

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Richmond police said Friday they had no clues to the identity of a man who calmly shot a playground basketball player through the heart and then opened fire on a crowd watching a softball game.

Damon Mealy, 24, was pronounced dead at a local hospital Thursday night from a single bullet in the chest. His 17-year-old sister, Pamela, was wounded in the leg. No one else was hit by the gunfire.

A team of detectives interviewed as many of the dozens of eyewitnesses to the slaying as they could find, but police said they were unable to establish a motive for Thursday evening's shooting.

The "fray" saw several hundred spectators at a women's softball game scurrying for cover.

"All of a sudden I heard a shot," said one eyewitness. "It sounded like a firecracker. Then I saw people clearing out."

Delightful Jimmy Jones said Mealy, who was playing basketball on a court about 20 yards from the ball field, was approached by a man who moments before had been asking others nearby of his whereabouts.

Witnesses said when the gunman met Mealy, he asked his name, said

"Yeah, I thought so," then pulled out a small-caliber pistol and shot him.

The gunman then fired six or seven shots into the crowd, escaping on foot with a second unidentified man, police said.

Although police said they did not think the gunman meant to shoot Miss Mealy, who was treated and released from a local hospital, a police report said she was wounded as she ran from the basketball court toward the ball field.

"I'm puzzling my brain now," said the victim's mother, Thelma Mealy. "He's never been in any trouble that we know of."

Mrs. Mealy said her son was unemployed and often played basketball at the playground.

D-Day: Soldiers stage re-enactment of invasion on anniversary of 'The Longest Day'

OMAHA BEACH, France (UPI) — Some 200 American and European soldiers re-enacted the D-Day landings Friday, 36th anniversary of history's greatest military invasion.

The replay in this small Normandy village was on a tiny scale.

June 6, 1944, some 5,000 ships brought 165,000 Allied soldiers across the English Channel. To fight their way ashore under cover of a mighty air and naval bombardment and liberate Europe from Nazi control.

The invasion actually began during the night of June 5-6 when 16,000 soldiers landed in darkness by parachute and glider at the village of Ste-Mere-Eglise to secure the eastern and western ends of the beachhead.

A six-man American helicopter "jump" team from the Special Forces detachment based at Bad Toelz, West Germany, joined 130 French military and civilian parachutists in restaging the historic landing.

Another ceremony took place at nearby Pointe du Hoc, where at 7 a.m. on D-Day volunteers from the 2nd and 5th Ranger battalions scaled sheer, 100-ft. cliffs under enemy fire to prevent six 155mm German guns blizzzing Allied forces debarking at Omaha and Utah beaches.

The Rangers' operation proved costly: Half of the men were killed or wounded and in a tragic twist of fate, the guns they had climbed to silence never had been put in place by the Germans.

The fighting in "Operation Overlord," as it was named by Supreme Allied Commander Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, was fierce.

In the cemetery above Omaha Beach in the village of Colleville, marble crosses mark the graves of the 9,388 Americans who died in the invasion.

A small delegation of military officials and diplomats gathered in the cemetery Friday for a wreath-laying ceremony and a short religious service held beneath a statue representing a stricken youth reaching for heaven.

The remnants of German bunkers still dot the beaches in the area, where by nightfall on D-Day the allied armies had gained footholds on those code-named Utah, Omaha, Gold, Juno and Sword.

The area stretched in an arc for more than 50 miles along the Normandy coast. It was the "second front" that Russia had been demanding from its Allies while it faced the Germans in the east.

Bolivia demands recall of U.S. ambassador

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Bolivia's armed forces and diplomatic press lashed out Friday at U.S. Ambassador Marvin Weissman for alleged involvement in Bolivia's internal affairs and one political group demanded that he leave the country.

Indignation with Weissman was sparked by a report in the Washington Post that said the ambassador had personally intervened to stop a military coup against Bolivia's fragile democracy on Friday of last week.

The controversy also was fueled by State Department spokesman Hodding Carter's statements emphasizing the U.S. concern over a possible Bolivian military coup before the June 29 presidential and parliamentary elections.

A candidate in the presidential elections, Carlos Valverde, and his Vice Presidential running mate Enrique Riveros, began a hunger strike in the papal-nuncio's office to pressure the ouster of Weissman.

Valverde said they would continue the fast until "the ambassador leaves." Both Valverde and Riveros belong to the right-wing Bolivian Socialist Falange.

The 56-year-old ambassador, who assumed his post in La Paz less than three months ago, was accused of "violating diplomatic conduct" and "assuming the powers of an imperialist viceroy" in a joint communiqué issued by the four commanders of the Bolivian armed forces.

The statement also called the report of a planned coup "absolutely false."

The Catholic newspaper Presencia chided the United States for allegedly interfering in Bolivian politics.

"Internal coups against democracy are not constructive, but neither is foreign intervention," Presencia said in its main editorial.

Enrique Acha Alvarez, a former Falange leader with close ties to the military, said that Interior Minister Lidia Gueiler should ask the United States government "to replace the current ambassador."

The right-wing Bolivian Socialist Falange accused Weissman of "operating more like a CIA agent than an ambassador."

The military communiqué said, "The armed forces do not have and will not have any relationship with ambassadors that do not respect the right of all Bolivians to choose their own destiny freely."

New Hebrides rebels free hostages, offer to negotiate

PORT VILA, New Hebrides (UPI) — Separatist rebels holding the South Pacific island of Espiritu Santo freed their prisoners and offered Friday to negotiate rather than face possible military intervention, officials said.

The rebel offer came hours before the midnight Friday deadline set Thursday by Father Walter Lini, prime-minister-elect of the New Hebrides island chain.

Lini had indicated that if the rebels did not agree to negotiate, he would call for military help from France and Britain, which have jointly administered the New Hebrides for nearly three-quarters of a century.

Espiritu Santo, located about 1,200 miles northeast of Australia, is the largest and richest island in the New Hebrides chain. The island group is scheduled to receive its independence July 30.

The rebels, a group of about 200 islanders and French-speaking planters headed by plantation owner Jimmy Stevens, rejected independence under the Lini government and declared Espiritu Santo itself independent May 28.

French officials said the rebels had released the island's district commissioner and seven police officers held hostage since the takeover. A French government vessel, was sent to take them to the New Hebrides capital of Port Vila, about 175 miles south of Espiritu Santo.

"There was an immediate response by the Lini government to the rebel offer to negotiate, made on the condition that the talks be held on Espiritu Santo and that both French and British government representatives be present."

Restorations of telephone, telex and air links, which the government cut to isolate the insurgents, was also a condition for the negotiations.

Nearly 2,000 people, mainly native New Hebrides and British commonwealth citizens, have already been evacuated from Espiritu Santo to Port Vila.

Lini's political platform, which called for land nationalization, has been cited by the rebels as one of the major reasons for their challenge. They have accused Lini of being a Marxist.

Stevens and other plantation owners have been linked to an American-founded right-wing group, the Phoenix Foundation, which has attempted to set up an experimental tax-free states on several tiny South Pacific islands.

The rebellion also reflects the division between the English-speaking followers of Lini and the mostly French-speaking supporters of Stevens.

The political feud between the Kennedys and the Mondales may be Grand Canyon-sized, but at least the families will share an old school tie now. William Hall Mondale — youngest son of Vice President Walter Mondale — enters Brown University at Providence, R.I., next fall. He'll be one year behind John F. Kennedy Jr., who broke the family Harvard tradition last September.

Ads help set up old-fashioned duel

LONDON (UPI) — Who is T.P.S. and why is he trying to kill his friend in a duel?
He's being awfully public about it. So far he has advertised for "a pair of fine pistols, preferably in working order," for "both powder and shot," for a surgeon and now on Friday for "breakfast for seven," a number which "may," by circumstances, be reduced.
"This drama, which seems good for a long run, is unfolding in the fine print of classified ads in the good gray London Times."
It began Tuesday with a mysterious "Gentleman, wishing to meet an obligation to his friend, seeks the purchase, hire or loan of a pair of fine pistols, preferably in working order."
"A meeting arranged to settle a matter of honor will take place at dawn, atop the highest hill on the Heath, east winds and high-visibility notwithstanding. T.P.S."
That is duelling talk, and "T.P.S." must know that the once honorable practice of lethal duels is now entirely illegal.
T.P.S. soon spotted a different sort of hitch.
"Gentleman, soon expecting to procure a pair of fine pistols, now urgently requires both powder and shot." His Wednesday ad said.
Thursday brought a sudden thought: "Surgeon needed. Must be experienced in attending gentlemen wounded by pistol shot."
By Friday the duel seemed all set. "H.I.T. and J.M." said the ad, "kindly arrange with the landlord of the inn nearest to the Heath to entertain a party of seven-for-breakfast, shortly after dawn on the day arranged."
"Bespeak the finest claret from his cellars and a flagon or two of brandy. Pray inform him that the number of his guests may, by circumstances, be reduced."
Officials at the London Times refused comment on the ad series, even to say whether it is a spoof. It would not be the first.
Two years ago, the Times classified section was enlivened by periodic reports from the mythical Ashbrooke-Pemberton-french family outlining hilarious activities in a kind of upper-crust life few Englishmen can still afford to lead.
"That series chopped off in mid-flow when the Times closed for 11 months to sort out labor troubles. When it returned last November the Ashbrooke-Pemberton-frenches made positively their last appearance with an ad saying merely: "We are not amused."

They'll deliver Need a Japanese palace?

NEW YORK (UPI) — For a mere $1.5 million, work crews will go anywhere in the world to reconstruct a disassembled 17th Century Japanese palace and bring along a Shinto priest to bless the site.
Under an illustration of the building of classic Japanese architecture, an advertisement in Friday's editions of the Wall Street Journal said:
"Built in 1689 and meticulously disassembled in 1978, the price of $1.5 million includes reconstructing a team of Japanese craftsmen on the site of the purchaser's choice — anywhere in the world."

The palace is being sold by Previews Inc., a Greenwich, Conn., real estate marketing firm, for its American owner.
Bruce Wennerstrom, president of Previews, said "It's a — a fabulous structure and the Japanese team will go anywhere to reassemble it. They'll even fly over a Shinto priest to purify the land."
He said the seven-room, one-story structure originally was part of Matsuyama Castle on the Japanese island of Shikoku. In 1890, it was disassembled and taken by barge across the inland sea to the city of Osaka, where it became the home of a wealthy Japanese financier.

It's current American owner, whom Wennerstrom declined to name without permission, had the palace taken apart in 1973 with the intention of rebuilding on another site.
"But the whole thing dragged out so long that now he wants to sell," Wennerstrom said.
"The structure was built without nails or bolts. It's all interlocking wood and so no damage was done when it was taken apart," Wennerstrom said.

Because she drove a to school, she needed court to get diploma

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — With the help of a judge and an injunction, Erin McDonough received her high school diploma.
Miss McDonough, 17, a senior with no record of disciplinary problems at suburban Upper St. Clair High School, was given a three-day suspension Wednesday and ordered barred from commencement after she was caught driving a car to school in violation of school rules.

Miss McDonough and her parents pleaded mitigating circumstances. Her father told the school principal Thursday that his daughter and son had missed the bus and there was no other way for them to get to school.
"I told the only way to jail suspension was with the blessing of the school board — an impossibility with commencement, only hours away — the elder McDonough and his lawyer went to Common Pleas Court.

Judge Bernard McGowan, suggesting some of Upper St. Clair's student rules might be unconstitutional, granted an injunction so Miss McDonough could graduate.
McGowan said it was "something a girl will only get once in her lifetime — the chance to walk onto a stage in front of her friends and her parents and her other relatives and pick up a high school diploma."
The school solicitor argued the reason behind the no-driving rule was that a teen-age student was killed while joyriding in a friend's car last year — when he should have been in class.
"You're saying the school district can tell somebody whether they can operate a car?" the judge yelled. "As long as automobiles are going to be operated, people are gonna be killed. It goes with the territory."

Plagiarism book was plagiarized

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Stanford University said Thursday it has learned that its teaching assistant's handbook section on plagiarism had been plagiarized by the University of Oregon.
Stanford issued a release saying officials of the Oregon school conceded that the plagiarism section and other parts of its handbook were identical to the Stanford guidebook.

Oregon officials apologized and said they would revise their guidebook.

British 'triangle' is mysteriously fatal to autos

DAVENTRY, England (UPI) — A stretch of highway near the English midlands town is known locally as the "Bermuda Triangle" because so many automobiles break down there under mysterious circumstances.
In one 300-yard stretch, electrical systems go haywire, instruments flicker and engines die.
A patrolman for the Automobile Association, called out to aid several stranded motorists — suggests a breakdowns are caused by signals from the British Broadcasting Corp.'s transmitters nearby.
He suggested radio signals were interfering with the electronic ignition systems on many new autos.

Fraser substitute unlikely

By RON ZELAR
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Halley Mayor Emory Dietrich said he may not be ready at Monday's council meeting to name a replacement for Councilman Don Fraser.

Dietrich termed the appointment "a critical one" for ending the Northridge zoning dispute that has preoccupied the city for almost a year.

"I heard of a few more names today," Dietrich said Thursday. "I plan to take my time in deciding."

Fraser resigned abruptly May 22, saying the city should quit focusing on personalities and get back to business. A recall petition had previously been filed seeking his resignation or removal from office.

A second petition bearing 119 signatures was filed Tuesday to recall Wordell Rainey, who said Friday he will fight the effort and win if a recall election is held.

Recall backers said a third petition against Councilman Grant Zellerson still needs about 25 signatures.

The three councilmen have been instrumental in blocking commercial development at Northridge, and have overridden several of Dietrich's vetoes in the process.

In a related legal maneuver, attorneys for Northridge developers have filed a brief charging Rainey with a conflict of interest and asking that he be permanently barred from voting on Northridge.

An employee of Nelson Realty in Halley, Rainey held the real estate listing and received commissions on the sale of a three-acre parcel of commercial property situated across State Highway 75 from the Northridge site.

The property, zoned commercial by the county, was recently sold to Dr. Don Levin of Halley, who reportedly plans to build a medical clinic there.

Rainey said he consulted a private attorney, as well as legal council for the Idaho Board of Realtors, and the State Board of Realtors, and all three told him he could continue voting on Northridge issues before the council.

The conflict charge was contained in a legal response to the Fifth District Court motion asking that a $1.5 million damage claim by Northridge developers against the city be dismissed.

The motion also asks that:

- The city's motion be dismissed.
- An initiative petition to downzone commercial property in Northridge be declared void.
- The city be enjoined from enacting any other zone changes, other than those spelled out in the Northridge annexation ordinance.
- The Halley building inspector be directed to issue commercial building permits requested by the city.
- Wood River Valley Associates, the Northridge development firm, be awarded legal fees for the litigation to date.

Speaker says adaptability is key

Future is what people make of it

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The future is based on what people want for their future and how they can adjust to the changes, Edward B. Lindaman, president emeritus of Whitworth College in Spokane, said Friday night.

In one of two talks he is giving here as part of the 75th anniversary of Twin Falls, he spoke on "The Future Isn't What It Used to Be."

Lindaman told some 100 persons in the audience that things are changing at so rapid a pace, the next 10 years may be the equivalent in progress to the past several hundred years.

"The future consists of those things what God intends for us, what institutions and groups do in working together and what the individuals, you and I, do," he said.

The speaker stressed memories of the past and hopes for the future must combine to provide for a sound transition to the years ahead.

"The country's irrigable land is more important than energy when it comes to preservation. We can make more energy but we cannot obtain new land," he said.

Lindaman said stewardship of the land is an important challenge to future generations and to those of today. He pointed out that every year in the United States about three million acres of irrigable land are lost through additional pavement, buildings and shopping malls, and other development.

Every year there is a half-ton of topsoil eroded for every person in the nation, he said.

"But we are beginning to be more responsible for ourselves and to take care of our land and our world. Better methods are being developed by caring people to reduce loss of topsoil and to preserve food producing lands," he said.

Lindaman said a look toward the future indicates that space will be the next route of expansion. He said by the year 2050 there may well be industry, schools, hospitals and other expansion into space.

Lindaman said dirigibles are also coming back and in the future may play a vital role in transporting cargo and products. They are cheap, non-pollutant and they are now very dependable, he said.

For Twin Falls, he said, the memories of the past 75 years are important, and the future belongs to the smaller communities and food producing areas. He said the towns of 5,000 to 50,000 people are attracting persons who want to be of service to their communities and who will shape the future with great care.

"As you stand on the threshold of the 80s and 90s," he said, "ask yourselves 'what is God doing?'"

"The answer is that he is bringing all of humanity into a single family and teaching us to take a greater responsibility for ourselves and our earth," the speaker said.

Lindaman speaks again tonight at 8 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Auditorium. The topic is "Choosing the Future You Prefer."

Street repairs scarce in age of budget cuts

By MARTY TRILLHAASE

TWIN FALLS — When Twin Falls was in its infancy in 1905, every able-bodied citizen was required to work "two days a year" on streets, alleys or highways.

The requirement has since faded into City Hall files, but proposed budget cuts 75 years later may have some city officials wishing it still existed.

Under a series of proposals now being considered by the City Council, roughly half of the street department employee positions would be eliminated in order to balance the city budget next year. Essentially, it means much of the work previously done by citizens, particularly residential streets, won't be done next year. And, if citizens want improvements on their residential streets, they may have to follow the suggestion of the 1905 ordinance by either rolling up their shirtsleeves or digging into their wallets.

Essentially, the proposed cuts would mean a virtual no-cost street improvement projects, particularly those on residential streets, City Engineer Gary Young said. Without those improvements, some streets could drastically deteriorate within four to six years, Young said.

Residential streets would bear the brunt of the improvement reduction because the city would no longer be working to improve streets, but simply maintain the most vital streets, he said.

In past years, roughly half of the street department's resources went toward improving residential streets, Young said.

"I think the low-traffic volume areas are the ones that are going to suffer," Young said. "We'll do what we can, but pothole patching is simply a defensive type of operation. You're minimizing the deterioration by not letting the potholes get away from you."

The elimination of most improvement projects will have significant impact on those streets that are already in disrepair, Young said. Many have been earmarked for improvement this year as the city budget still contains funds for that type of work. But many won't be completed, Young said.

Among the streets in need of improvement are portions of Washington Street, Mindoka Avenue, Van Buren, Jackson, Quincy, and Tyler Streets, and Filer and Falls Avenues.

The city does have the option of requiring residents to pay assessments on street improvement projects through a local improvement project. But that option has been ruled out, City Manager Tom Courtney said. Residents will not be required to finance improvements on residential streets, but unless they do so, either through a CED or through independent financing, the work probably won't be done, he said.

Community leaders say they doubt residents would be willing to take such a step unless street conditions were extremely deteriorated.

"They would have to have some real good reasons why it would have to be done on any other system than it's been done in the past," Rudy Ashenbrener said. Ashenbrener was one of the organizers of the Irrigation system now run by citizens that was formed when the city cut its funds.

"That's the only way they'd do it. If it got real serious and the city had no option. But they'd want to be shown there were no other options," he said.

Assuming residents did opt to finance the work themselves, the city would continue to provide project designs, work specifications, and inspections. In most cases, those services would be provided without charge, Courtney said.

"To the extent that we could continue to do that, it would be our intention to do so," he said. "But if we are talking about an extremely large project, the residents would conceivably have to pay for part of that."

But residential street improvements won't be the only operation that will be curtailed and citizens could find major deterioration in major streets as well, Courtney said.

Although City Council members have suggested contracting those major projects to avoid hiring more employees, they have acknowledged the method will be more expensive. Since the amount of money the city has to allocate for streets is limited, the "move" means less work will be accomplished.

"Once we've expended the dollars, then we stop. We just go as far as we can," he said. "The impact will not be felt all that greatly in the next year. If, in the next two to three years, we don't have additional funds committed to the city streets program, then we'll begin to experience major problems with the streets," he said.

Long range deterioration of streets appears to have been the lesser of evils among budget choices facing the city. The council has placed a high funding priority on police and fire programs because cuts there would have a much more immediate deterioration on city services, he said.

The result has been a series of proposed cutbacks in other public works programs including parks and recreation. But despite the fact that full-time personnel in each of these departments would be halved by the proposals, no administrative positions have been cut.

Courtney defends that position, saying the administrative structure remains necessary regardless of the smaller crews.

"Keep in mind these guys are not full-time administrators," he said, adding department heads will become increasingly involved in the day-to-day operations of their departments. As the departments are cut, the demands on the administrator to actually participate in the work is going to increase, Courtney said.

All of this suggests that the council has trimmed public works functions to a skeletal organization that could, if funding is restored, be quickly re-stored with the deterioration in public works projects easily reversed, officials say. If funding is not restored, city officials acknowledge their budgetary choices next year could be between eliminating some of the public works departments altogether or cutting police and fire departments.

"My feeling is we've bottomed out in the public works area," Courtney said. "To cut further in the public works area, in my opinion, would almost totally eliminate a department's ability to perform a service."

Anderson office open Monday

TWIN FALLS — Supporters of independent presidential candidate John Anderson will open campaign headquarters in Twin Falls Monday.

A grand opening will be held Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. The office is located in the Blitch Building at 133 Schoonover St. and will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

David Woodhead, Twin Falls campaign coordinator for Anderson, said the pub "is invited to stop by to sign a petition to get Anderson on the Idaho ballot in November."

He said the office will make it easier for interested people to find out more about Anderson and to sign his petition.

It will remain open at least until the petition drive ends on June 24, Woodhead said. That is the day by which supporters must have collected about 10,000 signatures required by Idaho law to place Anderson on the ballot.

Campaign literature and position papers will be available at the Anderson headquarters, and refreshments will be served at Tuesday's grand opening.

The office will also serve as a meeting place for the Twin Falls Anderson organization.

Shotgun blast wounds girl, 10

TWIN FALLS — A 10-year-old girl was treated at Magic Valley late Thursday night for minor shotgun wounds.

Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies said they were investigating the shooting incident.

Sheriff James Munn said the girl was treated and released after receiving several pellet wounds but the injuries were not serious.

He said a 13-year-old neighbor boy allegedly fired the gun at a residence southwest of Twin Falls.

As yet, the sheriff said, he cannot say if the shooting was an accident but investigation is continuing.

Federal management plan new

WELLS — A new approach to managing federal lands is about to be tried in Nevada.

The Bureau of Land Management will prepare a resource management plan for the Wells resource area — 4.2 million acres of public land in eastern Elko County.

The plan will include an environmental impact statement evaluating the management proposals in the plan, which will eliminate the need for a separate impact statement and grazing plan for public rangelands within the district, according to the BLM.

The bureau is now collecting public input on the issues that should be addressed in the resource plan.

The Elko district is one of five western districts assigned to develop the first such plans.

Individuals with questions or comments should contact Lee Wangsgard, Wells area manager for the BLM, or Bab Haburchak, chief of planning and environmental coordination at the Elko District office.

South Hills roads muddy

TWIN FALLS — Rainy weather and heavy snow of a week ago have created hazards on all side roads in the South Hills area, Forest Service officials reported Wednesday.

Velda Lawrence, information specialist with the Southwest National Forest, said the extreme wet weather and the 10 inches of snow that fell just over a week ago have left all but the main Rock Creek road in very muddy dangerous condition.

Presidential paycheck deliveries different

President Jimmy Carter never sees his paycheck. The White House Payroll Office sends it straight over to his bank for deposit. That's not always the way it was, however. Historical footnotes show that the payroll check had been carried to the Chief Executive's desk in the days of Calvin Coolidge. First time that clerk showed up there, Coolidge said but two words: "Come often."

That old Ben Franklin was a bright fellow is common knowledge. Less widely known is the fact that as a young man he also was exceedingly strong. Most printers customarily carried one frame of type at a time. Franklin habitually hauled two up and down a flight of stairs.

You know that black leather jacket that Henry (The Fonz) Winkler wore on TV's "Happy Days"? It's now in the Smithsonian Institution.

COSTS

Q. How much does it cost on the average now to make a full-length motion picture?

A: Almost $8.85 million. That's for films that come out of the Motion Picture Association of America.

Odd, it is not, that the oldest river in North America is West Virginia's New River?

Q. What's the ticket price for a cruise in the best suite aboard the Queen Elizabeth II?

A. Last I heard it was as much as $160,000.

To become a Third Degree Mason once required a candidate for that distinction to answer a pretty hefty set of test questions. Maybe still does, don't know. Anyhow, it's where we get the slang term "Third degree" meaning police interrogation.

The classic "Silent Night" was written for a guitar accompaniment. That's how Franz Gruber meant it in 1818. What he was trying to do was come up with a substitute piece of music that wouldn't need the church organ. Mice had chewed holes in the bellows of that thing.

Russians send two more cosmonauts up

MOSCOW (UPI) — Powered by a red, white and blue rocket, the Soviet Union sent two cosmonauts into orbit Thursday in a computerized and solar-powered new model of the Soyuz space capsule.

They were headed for a meeting with the Salyut-6 space laboratory, where two comrades have been whirling around the globe for the past two months in what appears to be an effort to break the existing record of 176 days in space.

The first manned flight of the re-modeled space capsule was designated Soyuz-T-2, the official Tass news agency said. An unmanned prototype of the Soyuz-T was orbited successfully for three months at the beginning of the year.

It was the Soviets' third manned flight in less than two months. Both crewmen were Russian.

The commander, Lt. Col. Yuri Malyshev, 38, was making his first mission in the weightless conditions of Earth orbit.

His flight engineer was Vladimir Aksenov, 45, who circled the Earth for eight days on Soyuz-22 in September 1976 and was named a hero of the Soviet Union.

Soviet television's evening news program showed pictures of the Soyuz-T-2 launch.

The white rocket, painted with broad bands of red and blue, belched flame from its fired booster engines and rose straight into the sky in what Soviet commentators called a perfect takeoff.

Two other cosmonauts who just returned from orbit, Hungarian Bertalan Farkas and his Russian commander, Valery Kubasov, chatted with the new team in a radio hookup that also was featured on Soviet news programs.

In an interview taped before their departure, the new men, Malyshev and Aksenov, said they were wearing new, lightweight space suits.

"Many interesting and original ideas of designers are incorporated in the Soyuz-T, and this distinguishes it from its predecessors," Tass said in a relatively detailed discussion of the spacecraft issued in March.

"The combined propulsion plant ensures the fuel supply of all engines of the ship from one system. Its chemical batteries can be recharged by the sun during flight."

The Soviets have not released a detailed description of the Soyuz-T's command system, but Western experts say it represents a significant advance for the Soviet space program.

Rebels threaten holy war

Soviet steel rings Kabul

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Soviet troops, backed by hundreds of tanks, clamped a ring of steel around the Afghan capital of Kabul Friday amid reports rebel forces were planning a new attack against the occupiers, travelers reaching India said.

Artillery fire echoed across the Paghman mountains, about 30 miles north of Kabul, where rebel forces are believed to have gathered, the travelers said.

One traveler said "thousands" of insurgents were massing for an all-out "jihad" (holy war) against the Soviets. But diplomats returning from Kabul said the rebels had no weapons to challenge the armored might of Soviet tanks and helicopter gunships.

Travelers from Kabul said Friday the city was calm but they had heard artillery fire outside the capital during the past three days.

One traveler said he saw hundreds of Soviet tanks rumbling towards the mountains to protect the capital from a possible attack.

Villagers in the area told him Soviets were searching houses for weapons to prevent the rebels from gaining more arms.

The Muslim rebels have said that any attack on the city would be aided by sympathizers who would rise up as urban guerrillas.

"Soviet tanks cannot go into the Paghman mountains, though helicopters could bombard them" said the traveler, who claimed to have access to reliable information.

"The rebels are only equipped with captured Soviet weapons, lightweight Afghan arms, and handmade bombs, mines, and Molotov cocktails," he said.

Asked how he rated the rebels' chances of success, he replied, "The rebels are religious people. They believe their deaths are martyrdom for Islam. They are not afraid to die."

Another traveler told of heavy Soviet air transport activity in and out of Kabul airport Tuesday night. His observation coincided with the report of Soviet tank traffic towards the mountains the same evening.

Diplomatic sources said the possibility of the rebels locking horns with such heavily equipped Soviet troops was "dubious."

Doctors in Kabul added to other reports of heavy Soviet casualties in recent weeks, travelers said.

One Afghan traveler said friends and relatives in the southern city of Kandahar and the western city of Herat told of heavy rebel resistance, mostly at night.

Kabul students, seething over the lowering of the draft age to 16, have continued their anti-Soviet demonstrations, he added.

One teacher said most schools in the Afghan capital were empty, except for those attended by families loyal to the Soviet-backed regime of Babrak Karmal.

Guatemalan right threatens leftists

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — The terrorist Secret Anti-Communist Army has vowed to kill all "communists and traitors" in Guatemala and claimed it had a death list with all their names and addresses.

The extremist group, in a communique sent to news media, said although it had once vowed to kill 20 communists for every rightist slain, the number of communists killed "no longer mattered" as long as all were killed.

The Anti-Communist Army said it had a death list, with names and addresses, and swore to "eliminate all communists and traitors."

Political violence in the poor Central American nation of some 7 million people, which borders troubled El Salvador, has been on the rise in recent months.

Authorities have reported frequent guerrilla attacks on army outposts in rural Guatemala and assassinations and kidnappings — by presumed right-wing gunmen of priests, university students and professors.

Bani-Sadr proposes hostage release plan

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A member of an American delegation in Iran said Thursday President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr has formulated a three-point plan to end the 215-day-old hostage crisis without insisting on the return of the deposed shah.

Los Angeles attorney Leonard Weinglass, one of nine Americans accompanying former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark to Iran's anti-American conference in Tehran, said Bani-Sadr outlined the plan in a meeting with Clark Wednesday afternoon.

The plan, Weinglass said, Bani-Sadr proposed departed radically from the demands made by other Iranian officials as conditions for freeing the hostages.

For that reason, it was not clear whether it had or would be accepted by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the militants who seized the hostages, or the Islamic fundamentalists who control a majority in the parliament that Khomeini has ruled will decide the hostages' fate.

Bani-Sadr has been overruled by Khomeini and the militants on the hostage question before. His latest proposal — as outlined by Weinglass and the official Pars news agency — dropped all mention of the shah but insisted that the United States give aid to Iran.

Weinglass declined to elaborate on the "delicate" details of the proposal but said, "significantly, the shah's name was not mentioned, the return of the shah was not mentioned, the return of the shah's wealth was not mentioned."

The Pars news agency also reported the proposal and said its three points were:

- Termination of American "support" for the shah's exiled family.
- Guarantees that the United States would "complete projects it abandoned in Iran" and supply the country with spare parts.
- Assurances that the United States would not interfere in Iran's affairs in the future.

Pars also failed to cite a demand for the shah's return, which the militants have insisted upon. Khomeini has also repeatedly rejected the possibility of future ties with the United States.

Goldwater: 'Arrest Clark'

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., believes former Attorney General Ramsey Clark should be arrested and put on trial for ignoring a travel ban to Iran and taking U.S. foreign policy into his own hands.

"I don't know why the hell he doesn't just stay over there, change his name to Ayatollah Clark and get a beard," Goldwater said in an interview with KTUC Radio Thursday. "I'd think he'd feel right at home."

Clark's agreement to a request by President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr to form a commission to investigate U.S.

involvement in Iran during the reign of the deposed shah was "un-American," Goldwater said.

Goldwater said Clark could do the nation a favor by staying in Iran.

He said he believed his reaction to Clark's trip in defiance of President Carter's travel ban was "the same as all Americans."

"I think he should be arrested and not necessarily put in jail, but I think he should be tried. But I doubt very much that the Carter administration will have the courage to do it."

"He's open on two counts: one, traveling illegally and two, conducting foreign policy," Goldwater said.

Congress wants Clark jailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department Friday said no decision has been made on whether to prosecute former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark and members of an unofficial delegation who went to Iran and apologized for U.S. crimes against that nation.

The 10 Americans were warned by the State Department that their trip involved a violation of a presidential emergency order banning travel to Iran. They attended a "conference on U.S. crimes" in Tehran sponsored by Iran's revolutionary regime. Conviction under the presidential ban provides a maximum punishment of 10 years in jail and a $50,000 fine.

The order forbids that of an American passport to travel to Iran by any one, except journalists, and prohibits the spending of any U.S. currency in Iran.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., introduced a Senate resolution asking the Senate to urge Carter to prosecute Clark and other "unofficial apologists for American policy" under the Logan Act.

Madlock

He's begun serving his 15-day penalty

NEW YORK (UPI) — An attorney for Bill Madlock announced Friday the Pittsburgh third baseman has withdrawn the appeal of his fine and suspension and would begin serving the 15-day penalty beginning with Friday night's game between the Pirates and the New York Mets.

Madlock, who asked Steve Greenberg to make the announcement at Shea Stadium before the game, said he made the decision to avoid further publicity.

"I am taking this action at this time in an effort to preserve the integrity of the game and to avoid any detriment to the Pittsburgh organization and to my Pirate teammates," Madlock said in a statement.

The umpires had been upset by what they termed "hook-dragging" by Feeney's office and had threatened to eject Madlock from every game he appeared in. However, when Kuhn announced he would begin hearings on Monday, the umpires announced they would take no "extraordinary action".

"I continue to regret that this incident has taken place and that it has detracted from the business at hand, namely, the 1980 championship season," said Madlock's statement. "I trust that Gerry Crawford and the rest of the NL umpires know by now that there has never been any personal malice towards them on my part."

Greenberg said the Pirates were scheduled to play 16 games over the course of the suspension but that the schedule was never a factor in the timing of Madlock's appeal.

"Continued press speculations on what umpires would and would not do on certain days and other uncertainties was the basis of our decision," said Greenberg.

Pirate executive vice-president Harding Peterson, who was in manager Chuck Tanner's Shea Stadium office for the announcement, said he was happy the matter had been resolved.

"This has been going on for quite a while," Peterson said. "The uppermost thing in our minds was we wanted to do what was best for Bill Madlock. There has been a lot of pressure on him over this thing, Bill and Steve made the decision together."

Blake Cullen, supervisor of the National League umpires, said he wished Madlock "the best" for the rest of the season.

"I'm pleased the matter is behind everybody," Cullen said. "It's been a strain on both Bill and the umpires. I know the umpires were pleased with Mr. Feeney's decision to uphold the fine and suspension. It's a severe penalty but a fair one."

"I'm pleased with Bill's comment that the matter is in the past," Bill Madlock the very best for the rest of the season."

Cowboys face Boise in opener

By IRWIN CURTIN
Times-News sports writer
TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Cowboys open their 1980 American Legion baseball season this weekend with a pair of double-headers against two Boise teams at Frontier Field.

The Boise Senators provide the opposition today while Sunday's foe is the Boise Gems. Both twin-bills start at 3 p.m.

Cowboys Coach Gary Barker will be without the services of three players Bill Burton, Adam Blake and Kerry Brown — who are playing in the annual Idaho North-South all-star baseball games at Lewiston (one contest was Friday night and a double-header is set today).

Barker Thursday said the Cowboys' starting lineup today will include Craig Butler (catcher), Greg Habel (first base), Bobby McMillan (second base), Randy Cummings (shortstop), Greg Kravitz or Pat King (third base), Lynn Thorpe (left field), Gary Krumm (center field) and Richie Lowe (right field).

A pair of righthanders, Logan Easley and Todd Wignington, will start on the mound today against the Senators, Barker said.

"I don't know a lot about them," the coach said of the Boise teams. "Last year they both were a little weak in pitching. I hear they've got some young kids this year, and I'd expect their pitching will be a little better. But I don't know how many of their kids are going to Lewiston (for the all-star games)."

The last week's wet weather has been "kind of tough" on the Cowboys, Barker said.

"We haven't been on the field but one day in the last week and that was yesterday (Wednesday). We went about an hour and 45 minutes and had a good practice, working on our fielding."

"And we had the opportunity to work with our pitchers a little on the basics and the philosophy we like to see them use."

What philosophy is that?
"A Tom Seaver-like motion. Compact. And we want control pitching. Knowing how to work a hitter and take advantage of his swing or stance," Barker said.

Despite the Cowboys' lack of practice time over the past week, Barker feels his team's ready and eager to open its season.

"You can practice so much. Kids need to go into competition and find out if what they've been doing in practice is going to pay off, or find out what else they have to work on."

"They're typical kids," he said of his Cowboys. "They'd rather play than practice anytime."

Cowboy relief pitcher Lynn Thorpe may see some action this weekend as his team faces four games

Atlanta tourney

Eagle boosts Bob Shearer

ATLANTA (UPI) — Australian Bob Shearer, "just trying to two-putt and get out of Dodge," rolled in a 30-footer for an eagle on the final hole in Friday's second round of the Atlanta Golf Classic to hang on to a precarious one-shot lead over local favorite Larry Nelson.

The eagle 3 gave Shearer, who had a two-stroke lead after posting a 63 in the opening round of this $200,000 PGA event, a two-day total of 10-under-par 134. Nelson, who lives just a few miles down the road, moved into second with 69-135 while defending champion Andy Bean, who also has 69, and four-rounder Mike Nicolette (70) were right on his heels at 136.

Jack Nicklaus rebounded from an opening 76 with a 67 Friday but did not make the cut with a 145. At 61, he missed was in the 1978 PGA Championship.

"Naturally I enjoyed today's round after not playing well yesterday," said Nicklaus. "But it was not good enough to stay in the tournament. Even though I missed the cut, I accomplished some of what I came to Atlanta to accomplish."

"There's no way to explain the 11-shot difference," said Nicklaus. "Some days you have it and some days you don't. Yesterday, I didn't have anything. I have played it. Sammy Natchels had a 67 Friday and was fifth at 137. Gene Littler, with a 68, J.C. Snead and Calvin Peete, with 70s, and Bob Eastwood and Larry Watkins with 71s were bunched at 138."

Tom Watson and Lee Trevino aren't playing this week.

Shearer, who has been battling a knee ailment, appeared to let his lead get away when he overshot the green on the next-to-last hole Friday and wound up with a bogey.

But a 270-yard drive off the tee on the 60th hole, par 5, final hole, encouraged him to gamble on a approach shot across a lake guarding the green.

"If I hadn't bogeyed the previous hole, I probably have moved it safe," said the 32-year-old Aussie who now plays out of Myrtle Beach, S.C. "I was trying to get back to even par 72 for the day. I was trying to two-putt for a birdie and it just rolled in."

It was one of the few times all day that Shearer showed the brilliant putting that produced nine birdies on Thursday.

"I started well enough (playing the first seven holes in 1 under)," he said, "but I had a relapse in the middle of the round (bogeying the eighth and 10th holes). I had trouble holding onto the club because of the humidity. I had to wipe the grips between every shot."

Nelson, who was two shots back after last year's second-round before fading to a tie for 25th, said it always gave him a thrill to play well in the Atlanta Classic. "Since it's my home."

"It's nice to see your mother on one side of the fairway and your daddy on the other," he quipped. "If you hook or slice it, you know they will be there to kick it back in."

Bean, who was a record 23 under while winning last year thanks to a course-record 11-under 61 in the third round, complained he "didn't score as well as I should have today. I have some work to do. I'm probably going to have to play better than I have the first two rounds, but I'm eight under and we have two more days to play."

Nicolette, a 23-year-old Pittsburgh, Pa., resident who will have been on the tour a year later this month, credited his position to good putting.

"I've made about six putts of 30 feet and you don't do that very often."

As for his general lack of success as a pro, Nicolette said, "I had won at every other level before joining the tour. But this is a different league out here. It's a learning process. I hadn't made three cuts in a row and this is my third. It's a small goal."

U.S. leads Curtis play

CHEPSTOW, England (UPI) — The United States women golfers, spearheaded by a 5 and 3 victory from Lori Castillo and Patty Sheehan, recovered halves with last-green recouped in the other two days Friday to take a 2-1 lead after the foursomes in the 21st Curtis Cup International against Britain and Ireland.

The Americans, unbeaten in 20 years, were in danger of trailing before being rescued by last-ditch efforts from 21-year-old Georgia student Terri Moody and the experienced Judy Oliver from Pennsylvania.

In case you've forgotten, Oldfield is (or perhaps was) America's top male shotputter, a man whose heaves from that seven-foot ring matched, on at least a couple of occasions, his prodigious appetites, individuality and kindred spirit.

The powers that be would like to forget Oldfield's remarkable 75-foot loss out there in 1975 and the 72-6 1/2 put that preceded it by a month. Both are world records but

Brian Oldfield still dreams about shotput

Brian Oldfield, at 35, is out to prove that he can still throw the shotput as far as he ever did — more than 70-feet

©1980, The Los Angeles Times
VENICE, Calif. — He wrestled a bear immediately after graduating from high school, and the bear wanted no part of him.

He bogged it up one night at Middle Tennessee State College and climbed a water tower because it was there.

He has taken on crazed, macho types, both as burroom bouncer and customer.

He qualified for the United States Olympic team wearing swim trunks and a fishnet tank top, and chain-smoked to boot.

And he was once so intent on shotputting that he sent home a traveling companion who then died rather well in a prestigious beauty contest.

Even allowing for embellishment, Brian Oldfield has obviously done some crazy things in his life.

But one of them, he says, is his full-time return to track and field, even though he's pushing 35 and getting back into a sport that has left him broke before, a sport that offers little more. Rather, it offers a present and a past.

"I'm a perpetual dreamer," Oldfield says, "and now I'm back in never-never land, I can't find anything in the real world that gives me this kind of motivation.

"The truth is, I've been bankrupt more than anything else all these years... It's like I've been getting by on credit for the rest of my whole life. But I have no respect or love for money. It's just a commodity, something they can print more of."

So, do what comes natural. Maren Seidler (America's top female shotputter) told me, "Brian, where else are you gonna get a job like this?"

"I prefer being like you writers, always on the outside looking in, evaluating. The difference is, I'm not as valid. I don't have a license. Or an editor."

Belmont

Genuine Risk, Codex go at it one more time

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the 10 horses go to post for today's $233,700 Belmont Stakes, Genuine Risk and Codex will be as close together in the gate as they were on the far turn at Pimlico three weeks ago.

And 1 1/2 miles later, the controversy over the Preakness either will be resolved or rekindled. Genuine Risk, the first filly in 65 years to win the Kentucky Derby, will break from the No. 1 post under Jacinto Vasquez. Codex, who Wednesday was upheld as the winner of the Preakness despite the controversial ride by Angel Cordero Jr., will leave from the No. 9 post.

Should Genuine Risk win — and she has been training extremely well — her supporters will claim that the alleged foul was the only reason Codex was able to defeat her and spoil Risk's chances at becoming the first filly to win Triple Crown.

And if Codex wins handily — and he is the heavy favorite — it will be acknowledged that the best horse did win at Pimlico on May 17 and Genuine Risk would have lost, foul or no.

But if Cordero or Super Moment makes a late charge, as expected, and unless either of the two, no one will ever know what might have been.

"The unknowns have a lot to say about the outcome," said Wayne Lukas, Codex' colorful trainer. "Rockhill Native seems to be the speed horse but the Mexican horse (Pikotazo) may open up a five-length lead. And I know Angel-Penna, who trains Temperance Hill, is not going to lead a horse into the paddock who doesn't have a shot."

But it will never unfold like you expect. If it did, we could all go to the betting windows now.

Still, the overwhelming majority of experts feel the race will be between Codex, Genuine Risk and Rumbó, with Super Moment the dark horse as he was in the Kentucky Derby. Temperance Hill, Comanche and Rockhill Native are legitimate contenders, with Joanne's Chief, Pikotazo and Bing the longshots in the field.

Still others feel the race, to be televised beginning at 3 p.m. MDT by CBS, will be between Cordero and Vasquez.

Vasquez, upset when the Maryland Racing Commission Wednesday refused to disqualify Codex, intimated he would take matters into his own hands, without benefit of the stewards should Cordero "pull any stunts". Cordero refused to be drawn into a battle of words, and said although he would not change his style of riding, he hoped the race would not evolve into a boxing match.

"I think Cordero and Vasquez will be very much aware of each other," said Ron McAnally, trainer of Super Moment.

The stewards at Belmont, hoping to avert any incidents, took the two riders aside Thursday and warned them against any rough riding or inflammatory statements.

"We cautioned them both in strong terms that we expect all riders to maintain the integrity of the Belmont Stakes," said Gerry Burke, one of the three stewards.

Unless an incident occurs at the start, which seems unlikely, it appears as if the race will develop into "another typical Belmont" as LeRoy Jolley put it.

"It's a typical Belmont-type race, although it's only the fifth time in 112 years that as many as 10 horses are going," said Jolley, trainer of Genuine Risk.

"You've got five horses with no speed at all and five others who will have a little more to them. It'll be a slow pace, with Rockhill Native controlling the pace most of the way."

Jolley feels Genuine Risk was being trained very well for the Belmont, and says he is amazed that she has held up so well through the Triple Crown. The sleek chestnut filly, owned by Bert and Diana Firestone, is the only one of the Belmont hopefuls to have participated in all three Triple Crown races. Her loss in the Preakness was only the second in nine starts, with the other coming in the Wood Memorial to Plugged Nickle.

Codex, on the other hand, will be racing for the first time without benefit of "hutz" — the controversial pain-killer that is illegal in New York. Lukas admits the colt is not as sharp as he was before the Preakness, but then the Tartan Stable colt had not raced in 34 days prior to the second leg of the Triple Crown.

"I got a lot of heat for being unorthodox, but anyone can get a horse fit for a race," said Lukas. "The idea is to get him mentally prepared. I have a 1 1/2-mile race under my belt, and now all I can do is hope he is mentally settled."

Preakness

Newspaper thinks two-way race could settle it

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Preakness winner Codex and second place filly Genuine Risk should race in a two-horse contest to resolve the controversy over whether Codex bumped Genuine Risk coming out of the final turn of the Triple Crown's second leg, a Baltimore newspaper editorialized Friday.

The News American said in an editorial Wednesday by the Thoroughbred Board of the Maryland Racing Commission that Codex did not bump the filly and should not be disqualified from the May 17 race as not settled the dispute for racing fans.

The owners of Genuine Risk, Bert and Diana Firestone, had appealed the stewards' decision that Codex did not bump the filly, but the Thoroughbred Board said the stewards acted correctly.

The Firestones' attorney, Henry Lord, said they are considering continuing their appeal in the courts.

"That decision was not likely to have changed the minds of those who watched the race and have followed the controversy since then," the newspaper editorial said.

"Codex backers are happily saying, 'I told you so,' and Risk backers still think the filly was robbed, and there may even be others who still don't know what happened that afternoon as the horses rounded the last turn of the Pimlico Race Course."

The newspaper said there is only one way to settle the controversy: "Let the two horses go one-on-one in a match race at Pimlico. Let the same two jockeys, Angel Cordero (of Codex) and Jacinto Vasquez (on Risk), ride them. Let the filly run the same mile and three-sixteenths distance. Let the owners Bertram and Diana Firestone and Tartan Stable put up equal amounts of money for the purse, with matching funds from the race course."

Genuine Risk, the first filly to win the Kentucky Derby in 65 years, will face Codex again Saturday at the Belmont Stakes.

Borg, Gerulaitis to matchup in finals of French tourney

BJORN BORG

PARIS (UPI) — French open champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden and American Vitas Gerulaitis clash Sunday in the men's singles final of the $550,000 French Open Tennis Championships.

Gerulaitis beat off Jimmy Connors' semi-final and said later that no matter how far down Connors is, "It's hard to nail his coffin."

But the fifth-seeded Gerulaitis did it in the end to upset his second-seeded fellow-American, 6-1, 3-6, 6-7, 6-2, 6-4, in a tense three hour and 57 minute semifinal match at the Roland Garros Stadium.

Top-seeded Bjorn Borg, defeated another U.S. player, Harold Solomon, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0, to reach the French Open final for the fifth time and have a crack at the $53,000 first prize.

It was only the third time Gerulaitis has beaten Connors in the 16 matches the pair have played although in their previous meeting, the Masters semifinal in New York last January, Gerulaitis was also triumphant.

Connors, time and again, tried to get back on top against Gerulaitis but was often let down by his wayward forehand.

"I played the fourth set like a bum," said Connors, "although Gerulaitis didn't do anything spectacular. Usually the fourth set is my strong point but this time it certainly wasn't."

Gerulaitis served a number of aces and often used a serve-and-volley tactic effectively despite the slowness of the clay courts.

"Connors rarely gets a cheap point through his serve. He just gets the point underweight. But today I was hitting my serve well," Gerulaitis said.

It was a stern struggle with the blond New Yorker reaching his first French Open final thanks to his run in the fourth and beginning of the fifth sets. During this spell, Gerulaitis won nine of 10 games and had a 3-0 lead in the last set.

Connors came back again, as he has done so often in this tournament. He recovered to 5-4 down on Gerulaitis' serve, but still wasn't finished — and he saved four match points before losing the tie.

Gerulaitis' "I" afterwards, "Jimmy has got to be one of the greatest competitors there is. No matter how far down he is, it's difficult to nail his coffin down."

Gerulaitis now meets Borg, bidding to win this title for the fifth time, on the surface the Swede likes best. Gerulaitis has never beaten him in any of their 17 meetings.

"I got close on cement in Las Vegas two weeks ago," said Gerulaitis. "I've tried about 30 different tactics, I'll try something new on Sunday and keep hacking away."

Borg took 100 minutes to defeat Solomon, who hurt his back after threatening to test his opponent by getting to break point on Borg's serve a number of times in the opening set. From the first set on, Solomon's coach, Paul Cohen, said afterwards, "Harold was having muscle spasms. But no one could have beaten Borg today. He must be the greatest clay court player in history."

Court upholds conviction of 'horse-switching' doctor

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York's highest court Friday upheld the conviction of Dr. Mark Gerard, a Long Island veterinarian found guilty of fraud in a 1977 horse-switching incident at Belmont Park racetrack.

The high court, in affirming the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court, said the case was "a factual scenario that might have been avoided jointly by an Alfred Hitchcock and a Damon Runyon."

Puerto Rico to send 'symbolic athlete'

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Puerto Rico will send a "symbolic athlete" to the Moscow Olympic Games, Olympic Committee President Herman Rieckhoff says.

The athlete will carry an Olympic flag in the pre-game parade, said Rieckhoff, who described President Carter's call for a boycott of the Games as "absurdity, a political game."

Rieckhoff sent a telegram Thursday, the deadline for entering athletes in the Games, to the organizing committee in Moscow, submitting two athletes from the track and field and fencing federations.

Only one of them — neither was identified — will go to Moscow as a "symbolic athlete," Rieckhoff said.

Puerto Rico will be present at the Moscow Games," the committee president said. He said it will cost about $5,000 to send an athlete, coach and another person or two to Moscow.

Puerto Rico's Olympic Committee has refused to support Carter's boycott call, "voting" twice instead to let each island sports federation decide whether to participate.

The move brought down a hail of criticism from both Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo, a Carter ally, and his opponent in the island's November gubernatorial elections, former Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon.

Romero withdrew the island committee's $500,000 a year stipend and refused to provide money for any athlete to travel to Moscow.

Only three sports federations track and field, basketball and fencing voted to send delegations to Moscow.

But most of the basketball federation's 28 players decided not to go, Rieckhoff said.

athlete, four shooting competitors and three canoeists. They have not yet indicated whether they intend to follow their teammates and drop out of the team.

John Walker, the 1,500 meters track gold medalist at the 1976 Montreal Olympics, said, "I am disappointed but I believe the New Zealand Amateur Athletics Association had no choice but to pull out. I wish they had made that decision a month ago."

New Zealand athletes pull out of games

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — New Zealand's Olympic team dwindled to eight members Friday from an original 96 competitors and the government's top sports officials said it was almost certain no Kiwis would take part in the 1980 Moscow Games.

Late Friday, the fencing and judo teams joined the rowers, track and field competitors and cyclists who withdrew from the national team earlier in the day. The pullouts followed an executive meeting Thursday of the country's Olympic and Commonwealth Games Association which decided not to use funds donated by the government or private sponsors to send a team to Moscow.

Allan Highet, Minister of Recreation and Sport, said he was "almost certain" that no New Zealanders would take part in the Moscow Olympics.

The only sportsmen left from the original contingent were one "per-athlete, four shooting competitors and three canoeists. They have not yet indicated whether they intend to follow their teammates and drop out of the team.

John Walker, the 1,500 meters track gold medalist at the 1976 Montreal Olympics, said, "I am disappointed but I believe the New Zealand Amateur Athletics Association had no choice but to pull out. I wish they had made that decision a month ago."

Little Buckaroo rodeo ahead

WENDELL — A Little Buckaroo rodeo, sponsored by Boy Scout Troops 75 and 175, will be held Tuesday and Wednesday at Pope's Arena, south of Wendell. Action gets underway at 8 each evening. Events will include bareback pony, calf riding, calf roping and barrel racing. There also will be several special events such as chicken racing and chariot racing. Professional stock out of Tremonton, Utah, will be on hand. Anyone age 7-14 can enter the event.

Hunter education course offered

TWIN FALLS — A hunter education course taught by Stu Murrell, Larry Culver and Stan Melton is planned June 12. The course is designed for youngsters age 12, 13 and 14 who need to pass the course prior to the controlled hunt deadline, June 30. The all-day course will be at the Twin Falls Gun Club on North Washington Street from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Persons wishing to pre-register at the Jerome Fish and Game office at 524-4350.

Pocatello racing on tonight

POCATELLO — A best two-out-of-three match race between two of the hottest Funny Cars in the Intermountain area highlights the 1980 drag racing season opener tonight at Intermountain Raceway, three miles west of Pocatello. Jeff Field, Pocatello, owner and driver of Idaho's only supercharged, alcohol-burning Funny Car, will be on hand with his 1980 Dodge Omni to take on Glenn Pearmain of Salt Lake City and his aluminum-motored Vega machine.

Tonight's event also serving as the season grand opener since the May 17 race was rained out, will find a full field of dragsters, modifieds, super stocks, stocks and two E.T. brackets. The gates open at 11 a.m. for time trials and qualifications. The Funny Cars will begin the eliminations at 7 p.m.

Fly fishing class available

RUPERT — A fly fishing class will be offered by the Mindoka County Community Education Association. The course will have two sessions: June 9-11 and June 16-18. The nine-hour course will include fly casting and fishing strategy for streams, lakes, and foot tubing. It will be held at the Minico High School lawn from 6 to 7 p.m. with Doug Gansell as instructor. Cost for the six nights is $10.

First aid course in Rupert

RUPERT — A first aid class is planned at East Minico Junior High School June 17, 18 and 19. Taught by certified instructor Dave Markham, the cost is $10 for instruction and $7 for a book, workbook and bandages. Since there is a maximum of 15 for the class, interested persons must register by mailing the fee to Rosemary Short, 923-10th, Rupert 83350.

Golf scramble on Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Men's Golf Association will hold a four-man scramble and meeting next Wednesday at municipal golf course. Action will start at 5:30 p.m. Those who want to participate must sign up by 5 that day or in advance. There will be a blind draw for teams for the 18-hole shotgun start play. Cost is $5 a team. A meeting will follow.

Scotch tournament ahead

TWIN FALLS — A father-son Scotch Ball golf tournament will be held June 15 by the Twin Falls Men's Golf Association. The tournament, to be at municipal golf course, will have three divisions: father-son, no handicap; father-son, with handicap; and non-father, non-son. Entry fee is $5 a team. For more information contact the golf course.

Bucks' Johnson files complaint

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Edward George Johnson has filed a complaint against the Milwaukee Bucks because they got him back from the Denver Nuggets recently for $25,000, the executive director of the NBA Players Association said Friday. Johnson was sent to the Nuggets at the beginning of the last season. The Bucks had an agreement allowing them to take him back at the end of the year for the purchase price of $25,000. Johnson claims that is illegal. "There's never been a player lent to another NBA team to my knowledge," Larry Fleischer told the Milwaukee Journal. "It's an interesting case. They (Johnson and his attorney, Joseph Jeffries) claim that the Bucks have breached their contract." Johnson claims the transaction amounted to a loan, which is not allowed in the contract he had with the Bucks. Fleischer said the complaint will probably be considered by George Nicolau, the players association's arbitrator.

U.S. cycling team named

LIMA, Ohio (UPI) — Eight cyclists and two alternates have been selected as the U.S. Olympic Cycling team after three days of trials. The team includes reigning Junior Roadrace Champion, Gregory LeMond, 19, Carson City, Nev.; 25 Wayne Stettina, 25, Shareville, Ind.; his brother, Dale, 23, Indianapolis; Robert Cook, 22, Englewood, Colo.; Tom Daughly, 27, Hobart, Ind.; Andy Weaver, 21, Miami, Fla.; Tom Schuler and Doug Shapiro. Jerry Fornes, Columbus, and Thomas Broznoski were picked as alternates. An official of the U.S. Cycling Federation said although the team members would not be going to the Summer Olympics in Moscow, they would be competing in international competition during the coming year. Trials were held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. Competition Monday and Thursday was conducted over a road course on US 30 between Delphos and Cairo, Ohio. On Tuesday, cyclists traveled over a hilly course in the Zaniesfield area of Logan County, Ohio.

Celts pick first in NBA draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Once again, the National Basketball Association will be left guessing: What will Red do?

Red Auerbach, the president and general manager of the Boston Celtics, who has engineered more deals than you can shake a cigar at and parlayed them into championships, holds the ace in the hole this Tuesday when the NBA conducts its annual college draft.

NBA defends switch

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NBA Friday defended its decision to hold the 1981 and 1982 All-Star Games in Los Angeles and New York, a long media attention as the reason for breaking up its 23-team rotation.

The 1981 game was to have been played in Cleveland, but the league, taking the recommendations of two committees, realized it will get more media attention if the game was played in Los Angeles. "It was the view of both committees, and the Board (of Governors), that the increased fan and media attention which the All-Star Game has attracted in recent years no longer made it practical to continue the 'old practice' of rotating the event among all 23 NBA cities," the league said in a statement.

The Celtics, coming off a remarkable turnaround from the previous year, get to cap the season in perfect style by claiming the No. 1 selection. The Celtics earned the rights to the first pick as a result of the Bob McAdoo trade with Detroit. McAdoo was last seen sitting on the Pistons' bench; the Celtics, meanwhile, are sitting on a gold mine.

The top choice, however, is not as obvious this time around as it has been in previous years. The Celtics, after being rebuffed by 7-foot-4 freshman Ralph Sampson of Virginia, appear to have narrowed their choice at the auction block to a select three: Darrell Griffith, the 6-4 guard from national champion Louisville; Joe Barry Carroll, the 7-1 center from Purdue, and Kevin McHale, the 6-10 center from Minnesota. There has been some disagreement in the Celtic camp over which way they should go. And it is not beyond Auerbach to unload his prize pick in a possible last-minute trade. However the Celtics go, it is certain to determine the rest of the round.

The Celtics are thin in the backcourt and also in need of a top center when Dave Cowens eventually retires. Boston went with guards Chris Ford and Nate Archibald this year. But Ford, for the most part, is a 3-point specialist and Archibald, who was left open for the expansion draft, is the owner of a particularly fat contract. While Cowens responded with some of the old fire this year, he was troubled by an injured foot and the Celtics cannot realistically expect him to play at full speed for more than another season. Rick Robey played capably during the season but was ineffective against Philadelphia's frontline in the playoffs.

Thus, the situation is a familiar one to NBA talent judges. Do you go with a guard such as Griffith, perhaps the best at his position in the country, or with a strong center, such as Carroll or McHale? Since top guards are always in greater supply than quality centers the problem is a vexing one.

Auerbach is coming off a drafting coup from two years ago. He drafted Larry Bird as a junior eligible from Indiana State and the move paid considerable dividends. The Celtics rolled to a 61-20 season and Bird was named Rookie of the Year.

But before the Bird selection, Auerbach has taken something of a beating at the drafting table, with such first-round selections as Steve Downing, Glen McDonald and Norm Cook. This time, however, Auerbach has the No. 1 pick and there is little chance he has not done his homework.

"We have no idea what Boston will do," said Scotty Sterling, general manager of the Golden State Warriors and owners of the third pick. "You can never figure out what Red has up his sleeve."

Sterling is not the only NBA executive with such problems.

"Obviously, we could use some help at guard," said General Manager Rod Thorn of the Chicago Bulls, who have the fourth pick. "Just who we pick now depends on a couple of factors."

Players leave Colorado St. after coach resigns his job

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — The first change of a head basketball coach in 26 years has prompted a possible exodus of players from Colorado State University.

Guard John Ellis, who started in three games as a freshman last season, apparently has decided to transfer to Illinois-Chicago Circle next year. Junior center Mark Jung and guard Reggie Talley also confirmed they are considering leaving the Rams.

CSU last week hired former Iowa assistant Tony McAndrews as the new head coach, replacing Jim Williams who was fired after 26 years at basketball coach. The Rams struggled to a 10-17 record last season. Ellis' mother said Thursday that her son decided to transfer because of the coaching change at CSU and a desire to go to school closer to home. She also noted the new head coach at Chicago Circle, Willie Little, was Ellis' coach at Mantley High School in Chicago.

Jung, who has two years of eligibility remaining, said he was ready to transfer to Arizona State or Southern California — until McAndrews was named the new coach. He said now he is not sure.

"Since he (McAndrews) got the job, it's not definite I'll transfer, but it's still on my mind," said Jung.

Jim Watt to defend lightweight crown

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — Howard Davis of the United States, who is challenging Scotland's Jim Watt for the world lightweight crown today, denied Friday that he had not done enough training for the fight.

"I did all my hard training in New York before I left," said America's former Olympic champion. "I have been talking off."

And in a burst of Muhammad Ali-like exuberance, Davis added: "I am the best fighter in the world and I am going to be the champ. I can back everything I say. It's not the money, but it's pride, dignity and holding your head up. I will prove it Saturday night."

Watt has completed 60 sparring rounds in the last three weeks and there is no question of his fitness as he defends his title for the third time in seven months.

Davis has never fought 15 rounds before but at 23, compared to Watt's 31, he has youth on his side. The Long Island boxer has only had 13 fights, but he is a class above Watt's previous victims.

The challenger dismisses the idea that he will be at a disadvantage fighting in Watt's home town, but the support of almost 25,000 fans at Ibrox Park, the home of the famous Glasgow Rangers soccer club, could help Watt get the edge.

Davis' opponent is a pair of Dennis Rappaport and Mike Jones has been described as behaving like Starsky and Hutch in a running battle with the London promoters and the local press.

The Glasgow papers have shown such bias toward Watt that Rappaport wonders whether "some of these guys are crazy" although no one has any complaints about the referee, Carlos Padilla from the Philippines, who controlled the third fight between Joe Frazier and Ali perfectly.

The fight carries a purse of between $700,350 and $833,800, although if it rains at the open air stadium the prize will be less.

Watt won the vacant world title after Roberto Duran abandoned the division by beating Alfredo Pflaund of Colombia.

He has defended successfully against Mexican Roberto Vasquez and Irishman Charlie Nash and said Friday, "Davis has never fought as a pro outside the States. I'm before my very own people and I'd rather die than lose in front of them."
