Molten debris surges from volcano

Ash not expected to reach Idaho

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Molten debris surged out of Mount St. Helens Friday covering the volcano's slopes for seven miles with a 400-degree Fahrenheit shroud of deadly rock, ash and gas.

The volcano's third eruption in less than a month shot volcanic grit and pumice over 4,500 square miles northwestward, Oregon and parts of southwestern Washington.

The boiling crater remained obscured in clouds for about 15 hours after the Thursday night eruption. When the weather cleared enough for scientists in a helicopter to get a good look, Pete Rowley of the U.S. Geological Survey said they discovered that a pyroclastic flow — similar to the one that occurred when the mountain first exploded like an atomic bomb May 18 — had rolled out of a huge gap on the crater's northern side into the Spirit Lake and Coldwater Creek drainage areas.

A similar deadly cover of heavy, burning ash may have killed as many as 70 people when the volcano first blew nearly four weeks ago. Once a green-forested area with the blue waters of Spirit Lake at its heart, the area is now a grey, ghostly zone where all the trees have been smashed like matchsticks by the volcano's force.

It was not believed likely that anyone was in the vicinity when the latest pyroclastic flow erupted.

"We try to stay away from that area," Rowley said with a wry grin.

The mountain itself remained in an "explosive mode," Rowley said. "There is every likelihood it will do it again."

Portland, Ore., known as "The City of Roses," was celebrating its annual Rose Festival when it was inundated with mucky ash. The new fallout closed some businesses and kept many people indoors, but city officials said the annual grand floral parade would go on as scheduled in downtown Portland Saturday.

TWIN FALLS — Ash from Thursday's eruption of Mount St. Helens is not expected to reach Idaho, and experts say the mountain's bursts have had almost no effect on Columbia River power generating facilities.

Ash fallout Friday was drifting toward the Pacific around a low pressure system centered in northern California, according to Bill Galkin of the U.S. Weather Service office in Kimberly.

The dust clouds were expected to dissipate there, with only a slim chance of ash reaching Idaho.

Speculation that the eruptions might cause long-term siltation behind Columbia River generating facilities is apparently unfounded, officials of Bonneville Power Administration and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Friday.

BPA sells electricity to several communities in southern Idaho and is an important power resource affecting energy supplies throughout the Northwest.

John Ulrich, Corps regional public affairs director, said most of the ash that spread across Washington and northern Idaho May 18 was so fine it stayed in suspension in the area's rivers.

"That first blowout distributed ash with the consistency of face powder," Ulrich said. The ash from this last one was a lot more gravelly."

Columbia River dams remain remarkably free of siltation, he said, with dredging activity centered near the mouth of the Columbia, especially near the Cowlitz River at Longview, Wash.

Siltation there has been estimated at more than twice the 10 million tons the Corps removes annually from the Columbia River system. Mud slides incidental to the blast have been blamed for most of the debris.

Ulrich also noted that ash from previous eruptions in the Cascade Mountains was responsible for most of the fertile soil found in the Columbia River Basin.

Time capsule was empty — so they filled it

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It should have come as no surprise on Friday the 13th, but the time capsule opened at the Perrine Bridge was empty.

In keeping with the Dust-to-Diamonds theme of the Diamond Jubilee, there was nothing but dust inside the capsule.

In 1948, the time capsule was put in a monument to I.B. Perrine located in the parking area at the southwest corner of the bridge. It was Perrine who convinced private industry to put up the money to develop the Twin Falls tract.

The capsule was put behind a large brass plaque honoring Perrine and was meant to be opened in 1973. But by 1973, it had been forgotten.

Del Carraway discovered evidence of the capsule while doing research on state-owned land for the state Highway Department. A ceremony to open the capsule was hastily added to the schedule of events marking the 75th anniversary of Twin Falls.

About 50 people went out to the bridge at noon Friday to watch the time capsule opened.

The people were only disappointed for a moment at finding nothing inside the capsule before they started filling the small box in the monument with bits of memorabilia to be discovered when the capsule is opened again in 25 years.

Some of the items put in the time capsule include: pages from the Times-News with schedules and reports of the events of the Diamond Jubilee, Mayor Hank Woodall's Diamond Jubilee nametag, business cards from many of the people attending, about $1.50 in cash, a jawbreaker, a 1980 pocket calendar and a register signed by those watching the time capsule opened.

News reports prior to the 1948 dedication ceremony indicated a register of people attending the event would be placed in the time capsule. But according to Jay Hoyer, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, news reports after the event made no mention of anything being put in the capsule.

"I hope it was empty, and I was surprised the time capsule was empty. It was actually opened for the first time earlier in the morning, to make sure it could be opened during the ceremony. He said he tried to act surprised when the capsule was opened for the second time at noon.

Even though the time capsule had been opened once, it took about 10 minutes to get it open again during the noon ceremony. The heat may have expanded the brass plate making it fit more snugly into the monument."

Bill Madland Sr., who said he originally sold the brass plaque on the monument, was one of three men from Jellison-Madland Memorials who opened the time capsule. He was out of town on the day of the dedication in 1948, so he said he doesn't know if anything was put in the time capsule in the first place.

Smiles and Brown greeted the opening of the empty time capsule inset, which was opened Friday by Bill Madland Jr., above right, and others at the Perrine Bridge.

Elephants in parade highlight final anniversary activities

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Some equine giants, reminiscent of those that pulled heavy loads and supplies in the early days of Twin Falls, will be featured in today's parade through the city.

Nell Turner, parade chairman, said several two- and four-horse hitched Belgian and Percheron type draft horses will be featured in the final parade of the 75th anniversary celebration for Twin Falls.

He said the parade, beginning at 1 p.m., is primarily a horse and horse-drawn vehicle event, although there will also be some antique automobiles.

Today marks the final day of the Diamond Jubilee that began June 5 as a tribute to the first 75 years of life here.

Other items on today's agenda will include a flag display by the Moose Lodge to be shown at the Perrine Bridge and a women's run sponsored by the YFCA beginning from the Y at 9 a.m. This will include free swimming for all participants. The pool will be open to the public until noon.

A free barbecue will be served at Lynwood Shopping Center starting at 11 a.m. A dunk tank will be set up at the shopping center with residents given a chance to dunk their favorite policeman, merchant or city official.

As a closing finale to the 10 days of celebration and entertainment, a fireworks display will begin at Frontier Field at dusk, sponsored by KEEP/KEZJ radio stations.

The veterans organizations of Twin Falls will hold their regular Saturday march and flag presentation at the memorial monument in the Twin Falls City Park from noon until 12:30 p.m. honoring the hostages in Iran.

The posee parade will form at John Chris Motors on Main Avenue East, proceed west down Main Avenue to the corner of Fourth Street West, then go north and go back to Shoshone Street, traveling the wrong way on Second Avenue North. It then turns left onto Shoshone Street, passing a review stand of city officials and judges at the park. The parade will continue on Shoshone Street to North Five Points intersection, then turn north on Blue Lakes Boulevard North to Filer Avenue, where it turns east and disbands at the Twin Falls High School parking lot.

Turner said at least five mounted posse drill teams from southern Idaho, here to participate in the annual Idaho State Sheriff's Posse meet and contests, will be in the parade. He estimated the procession would continue for approximately an hour.

A number of riding clubs, individual riders and early day wagons, buggies and other early day vehicles will be featured. Some entries will be drawn by teams of mules and there will probably be some ponies. The chairman said he expects a number of entries will just show up and take part.

Turner said the Diamond Jubilee queen and her attendants will be riding in antique vehicles, as will the three Twin Falls fathers' who were honored this week.

"In the old days, the elephants were always a highlight of any major parade," Turner said, "and we will have the Shrine Circus elephants to bring up the rear of our procession," Turner said.

There will also be some of the circus tigers and the Shrine Club of Twin Falls will bring the circus troops to town for the circus performances scheduled Monday and Tuesday at the county fair grounds in Filer.

Miss Rodeo Idaho, a top runner-up in the Miss Rodeo America contest for this year, will also be participating. She is Diana Packham, formerly of Challis and now of Twin Falls.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now that Congress has approved funds to carry out the draft registration program, Selective Service officials hope to begin enrolling all 19- and 20-year-old men in about five weeks.

Registration will be conducted at the nation's 34,000 local post offices where the men will fill out forms giving names, current and permanent addresses, dates of birth, Social Security numbers and telephone numbers.

The postal service will forward the forms to the Selective Service, which will enter the information on computer files for possible future use.

Maximum penalty for failing to register is five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

There will be no classification of registrants based on physical condition, conscientious objector status or other factors unless Congress later authorizes actual draft or classification procedures.

The Selective Service will mail to each registrant's home address a letter confirming the registration and including a copy of the information so the individual can check its accuracy. A change of address form will be enclosed in case the person moves.

Present plans call for registration to take place during a two-week period, with four days assigned to each age group.

The first four-day period would be for men born in 1960, with those born in January, February and March of that year registering the first day. Those born during the next three months of 1960 would register the second day and so on during the next

Bank robbed by bomb victim

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A female kidnap victim, strapped to a device said to be a bomb by her abductor, was forced to rob a savings and loan office Friday under the threat she and the bank would be blown up unless she returned with money.

The Fire Department bomb squad determined there were no explosives in the device.

The woman, identified only as La Jolla, Calif., resident in her 50s, was given an undetermined amount of cash by tellers at a branch of Silver Gate Savings and Loan in East San Diego and left the office with the money in her purse.

The kidnapper took the woman's purse and fled in her car.

Police said the man kidnaped the woman from the parking lot of the Security Pacific Bank in Mission Valley as she returned to her car. He ordered her into the vehicle and strapped a device to her which he said was a bomb.

Libyan ambassador expelled

LONDON (UPI) — A top Libyan official expelled from Britain for approving a death vendetta against two Libyan dissidents fled Friday the killings will continue.

Musa Kusa, secretary of the Libyan People's Bureau, Army — the Libya Embassy — was summoned to the Foreign Office Friday and told to leave the country because he had approved of death threats against two Libyans living in Britain who are opponents of Col. Moammar Khadafi, the Libyan leader.

Unabashed by the expulsion, Kusa said the men would still die.

The death threats were issued as part of a campaign against opponents of the Khadafi regime living in exile, even though the Libyan leader has called a qualified halt to the manhunt.

They're ready for prime time

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "Not Ready for Prime Time Players" rush with successes in other media, are bidding farewell to "Saturday Night Live." It was announced Friday, finishing an era that began almost as soon as the late-night television show became a hit five years ago.

NBC announced that Gilda Rader, Jane Curtin, Garrett Morris, Bill Murray and Laraine Newman, the last of the regulars who founded the zany comedy show in 1975, would not be back for a sixth season in October.

The show, however, will go on.

NBC said the show would remain in its present format and its 11:30 p.m. Saturday time slot next season. It will have a new repertory company, but will still have guest hosts and a musical group each week and will continue to be broadcast live from New York.

O'Hair wants chaplains cut

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair and the Society of Separationists Inc. Friday filed a law suit seeking to bar the use of U.S. taxpayers' money to pay chaplains of the U.S. Senate and House.

Ms. O'Hair and her son, Jon Garth Murray, said at a news conference that the suit had been filed in Washington and named as defendants the top officials of the two governmental bodies and the two chaplains.

The said Edward L. Elson, the Senate chaplain, and James David Ford, the House chaplain, are paid approximately $50,000 a year from federal funds.

"If they are going to open (the seasons) with a prayer, at least open it with a voluntary prayer," Murray said.

Ms. O'Hair said her organization had historical support on this particular issue. She said former presidents James Madison, Thomas Jefferson and U.S. Grant objected to the use of prayer in the House and Senate chambers.

She said if the suit was successful, it would force city councils and state legislatures to use voluntary contributions to pay chaplains.

Accused poisoner released

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A U.S. District Judge dismissed all criminal charges against accused cyanide "pickle poisoner" Richard Q. Williams Friday at the request of federal prosecutors who said they had the wrong man in the supermarket extortion case.

Marlan Langdon of the 20th Century Club announced winners in the merchants window display contest Friday evening. She said the J. C. Penney Co. store, with a display of antiques including clothing and household items, won the $100 prize for the best display. She said her judging committee felt it was the most attractively arranged display.

The second place $75 award was won by Cios Book Store and third place went to Van Engelen's store in the Lynnwood Shopping Center. Van Engelen's won $50.

The Diamond Jubilee Committee also announced the winners of the Celebration Poster Contest Friday. The contest sported 15 winners from 200 entries from students in grades three through seven in first, second, and third place categories. The posters were on display throughout the community in various store windows.

First place carried a $25 cash award, $15 for second, and $10 for third place winners.

First place winners were Kristen Call, third grade, Matt Allen, fourth grade, Angela Fox, fifth grade, Rachel Carter, sixth grade, and Darryle Gladders, seventh grade. Second place winners were Lisa Thompson, third grade, Danielle Monek, fourth grade, Christie Schmalz, fifth grade, Kellie Thornton, sixth grade, and John Mair, seventh grade. Third place winners were Danielle Thornton, third grade, Travis Williams, fourth grade, Gina Rasmussen, fifth grade, Jennie Thompson, sixth grade, and Lori Miller, seventh grade.

Gas rationing plan proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has sent Congress a plan for coupon rationing that will be triggered during a shortage — would rival the vast Social Security system in scope.

Unless both houses of Congress reject the plan within 30 days, it will be put on standby status for use in severe petroleum supply disruptions.

If at some time the president wishes to invoke coupon rationing, he will have to demonstrate that at least 20 percent shortage of gasoline, diesel fuel and home heating oil exists, or is likely to exist for 30 days, or he will have to obtain a special waiver from Congress.

Even then, the Energy Department estimates it would take about three months to put the plan into effect — in addition to 12 to 15 months' preparation that would follow initial congressional approval at a $103 million cost.

Congress would have 15 days to block any presidential decision to ration.

Architects of the rationing plan say it could cost $2 billion to administer. Under the plan, government authorization "checks" would be mailed to motorists every three months. The checks could be exchanged for ration coupons at banks and other distribution points.

And motorists could sell any unused coupons for whatever price the free market would bear.

A one-gallon coupon could sell for $2 to $5 in the kind of severe shortage for which rationing is tailored, administration economists estimate.

The plan calls for a nationwide distribution based on vehicle registrations, rather than drivers licenses, which the government deems a less accurate reflection of current gas consumption.

Transportation, most public services, energy production, vehicle rentals, defense and delivery, and newspaper distribution all would be considered priority uses.

S. Africa bans all gatherings

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa Friday banned all political demonstrations in the country, apparently to head off planned weekend commemorations by non-whites of the bloody Soweto riots of 1976.

The move came hours after Prime Minister Pieter Botha warned protesting black and mixed-race students that government will "not tolerate efforts to create anarchy."

Shortly afterwards the UN Security Council unanimously condemned the South African government for its "massive repression" of opponents of apartheid.

Thousands of non-whites across the nation prepared at the same time for the services to commemorate the Soweto racial rioting 4 years ago in which more than 600 people were killed.

The ban, which lasts from Saturday until the end of June, prohibits political meetings, all student government action of any kind "or at which any protest or boycott or strike is encouraged or discussed or which is held in protest against or in support of or in commemoration of anything."

The government's move affects all but purely religious services planned by black and mixed-race leaders and clergymen for Sunday and Monday in remembrance of the dead of Soweto.

Passion said motive in shooting

OROFINO, Idaho (UPI) — Clearwater County authorities believe the fatal shooting of three Orofino residents may have been a crime of passion.

The three were shot to death Wednesday night and a fourth is in a Lewiston hospital recovering from a bullet wound.

Clearwater County officials have charged Thomas Sanger, 33, Orofino, with three counts of first degree murder and one count of assault with intent to commit murder.

Dead are Sue Norton, 28, Sanger's estranged fiancée; Debbie Hanes, 27, and Tim Schultz, 19, all of Orofino.

The wounded man, Dennis Grissom, 22, Orofino, said Sanger came into the trailer where the four people were eating and began shooting.

"We just got done eating and were sitting around having a drink," Grissom said. "I just came out of the bathroom and he (Sanger) just walked in and opened up — starting shooting. I just walked in and shot me first — turned around and shot Tim and Debbie. I ran when he shot them. I don't know when he shot Sue."

More eruptions expected

The latest eruption began at 9:11 p.m. Thursday with a boom that was heard more than 100 miles away. Huge, mushroom-shaped clouds of black volcanic ash rose to 85,000 feet.

The huge eruption cloud of ash continued until at least 11:30 p.m. Rowley said. "It began to decline somewhat after 11:30 p.m. and was mostly steam after 2 a.m. Friday."

But steam containing very light traces of ash still was rising from the crater to about 11,000 feet above sea level Friday morning.

"I think it was a major eruption, but not as major as May 23," Rowley said.

He said he suspected the material that was ejected in the latest eruption was magma (molten rock) and not ash that was lying in the bottom of the crater.

Rowley explains that more eruptions could be expected because the magma level decreases, and the pressure within the magma lobe decreases, the magma then cools off and solidifies, sealing itself off. Then the pressure rebuilds as more gas turns, and another eruption occurs.

There was heavy ash fallout as far away as Lake Oswego, Ore., 70 miles southwest of the mountain. It extended another 55 miles west of Lake Oswego to Tillamook on the Oregon coast and Astoria, Ore., 65 miles north of Tillamook.

Vancouver and the Longview-Kelso area appeared to be the only sections in Washington to receive any heavy ash fallout.

However, East LaGrange of the U.S. Forest Service said observation planes sighted light amounts of ash at 24,000-foot-altitude northwest of Pendleton, Ore., at 9:30 a.m. Friday. Light ash also was seen east of Seattle and east of The Dalles, Ore.

Rowley was asked if a high earth tide, caused by the gravitational pull of the moon which Friday was the closest to the mountain since May 17, could have had any effect on the volcano's activity.

"I don't think high tides or low tides had a terrible influence on the eruption," he replied.

About 15 residents in the town of Cougar, 12 miles southwest of the peak, reported rocks the size of marbles falling amid the ash and a heavy smell of sulfur.

Most of the Cougar residents left their homes soon after the ash started falling, but officials said the stubborn ones didn't stay away long.

About a quarter-inch of ash accumulated in Portland by midnight. Mayor Connie McCreech declared a limited state of emergency and imposed a 15 mph speed limit within the city limits. The mayor urged city residents to "stay calm. It's not a big disaster."

It's working

Bani-Sadr says sanctions hurting economy

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr Friday blamed Western sanctions and sagging national morale for the state of Iran's economy and said the government might have to use force to break a 50 percent inflation rate.

"Prices now have reached an alarming level from where they can go higher still at great speed," he warned in a speech at the resort town of Sari.

"If they go up to 70 percent we won't be able to resist it and would have to use force to solve the problem," he said later at Rasht, another northern town.

Hardliners have suggested that Islamic Judge Sheikh Sadegh Khalkhali should be given the task of punishing black-marketeers and authorized to hand out summary death sentences.

Khalkhali ordered the executions of hundreds of alleged supporters of the deposed shah's regime in revolutionary trials and has since become Iran's chief anti-corruption crusader, sending accused drug traffickers to the firing squad.

But Bani-Sadr did not say what kind of force he had in mind. He complained that people were hoarding consumer goods for fear that conditions would get worse or that "there will be a coup d'etat in two months' time."

He said the government would not release its stockpiles of food now, because Iran might have to face tougher sanctions in its confrontation with the United States.

"We cannot distribute what we have in the warehouses because if we do the warehouses will be emptied and we will have nothing in the event our borders are closed," he said.

However, he said, "The high prices are caused 10 percent by economic factors, such as stringing of borders and economic blockade, and 90 percent by lack of spirit and lack of security."

Bani-Sadr said "many factories" were faced with imminent shutdown because of the shortage of raw materials and spare parts.

Thousands of railroad wagons loaded with imports from Turkey and East Europe have been stranded in Turkey because of unrest in Iran's northwestern border region. In recent months the rail line in that part of the country bringing goods from nations not complying with U.S. sanctions has been blown up several times, further hampering Iran's efforts to survive the sanctions.

In Tehran, a huge fire Friday gutted a large customs warehouse containing machinery and spare parts. The warehouse near the Tehran airport was left virtually unprotected because fire hydrants on the site failed to work, sources said.

Meanwhile, President Carter said Friday he is not currently considering any military action against Iran, and has no new ideas on how to free the 53 Americans who have been held hostage for seven months.

At this stage, he said, the "best avenue is through a multitude of diplomatic and economic efforts being made through the United Nations and through other countries to convince the Iranians that it is counterproductive for them to continue to hold these innocent people."

Carter made the comments in an interview with Italian correspondents.

Europe endorses PLO state

VENICE, Italy (UPI) — The European Common Market Friday urged the participation of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Middle East peace talks but stopped short of recognizing the PLO diplomatically as some Arab states demanded.

The community also bowed to U.S. pressure and dropped an earlier plan to introduce a resolution in the U.N. Security Council affirming Palestinian self-determination.

The nine-nation economic bloc stated for the first time its support for the principle of Palestinian self-determination, which in the current context is understood to mean statehood.

The heads of state and government of the Common Market also said in a special declaration issued after their two-day summit in Venice that they would be prepared to participate "in a system of concrete and binding international guarantees" for the security of Israel and other nations in the region.

These were new elements in an emerging policy that has brought the community, with a combined population of 260 million, closer to the Palestinian position in the Middle East crisis.

The Europeans fear a breakdown in the Camp David peace process could lead to open conflict that might jeopardize their oil supplies and trade links.

Officials said the summit declaration formed the basis for future action by which the Europeans hoped to complement the Camp David process, rather than rival it.

In Tel Aviv, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir rejected the declaration while other Israeli officials called it a forecast of things to come after the U.S. presidential elections.

Other sources privately called the European declaration "disturbing" and "injurious" to Middle East peace-finding efforts.

Foodstamp cost of living denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Food stamp recipients will not receive the normal cost-of-food increase this July, the Agriculture Department announced Friday, saying the move will save $133 million in this fiscal year.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the department hereafter will only adjust the food stamp amounts in January, instead of semi-annually as in the past.

"This is one of a number of program-tightening measures proposed by the administration and approved by Congress last month," she said.

"It will save $133 million in this fiscal year and $300 million in fiscal year 1981, which will help to meet the increased cost of the food stamp program caused by unemployment and inflation," she said.

The regulations issued Friday also set the poverty line of the Office of Management and Budget as the standard for food stamps. Previous food stamp criteria include more current Consumer Price Index data.

The change to the OMB standard will mean that 650,000 fewer people will receive food stamps in fiscal year 1981, Foreman said, and several million fewer persons will be eligible for food stamps.

She said that change was expected to save $15 million in the current fiscal year and $65 million next year.

On July 1, the monthly net income limits which poor families must meet to qualify for food stamps will rise from $56 to $21 for a family of four.

The new maximum net monthly income limits for households of various sizes will be: one-person household, $316; two-person, $418; three-person, $520; four-person, $621; five-person, $723; six-person, $825; seven-person, $926; and eight-person, $1,028.

For each additional member over eight, add $102 per month.

Cleared on 10 counts, but...

Judge Barbuto found guilty in sex-bribery case

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Summit County Probate Court Judge James Barbuto was found guilty Friday of gross sexual impropriety and intimidation in his sex-bribery trial, but was cleared on 10 other sex-related counts.

Retired Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court Judge George McMonagle, hearing the case without a jury, cleared Barbuto of seven counts of sexual bribery, attempted rape and two counts of complicity to obstruct justice.

The judge, who took the case after all Summit County Common Pleas Court judges disqualified themselves, made his decision only two hours after the completion of final arguments.

Senate avoids abortion ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved a compromise Friday on tax-paid legal aid to poor women in abortion cases, narrowly averting a total ban on such help.

The compromise, written hastily in a cloakroom by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., during a lull in Senate debate, was approved 39-34.

Conservatives were pushing a total ban on aid by the Legal Services Corp. to poor women in abortion litigation and proceedings.

The new anti-abortion language was added to a two-year extension of the Legal Services Corp., a federally funded program which provides legal help for the poor.

Under the law, that created the corporation, attorneys cannot offer help to poor women in cases involving "non-therapeutic" abortion and those violating moral convictions or religious beliefs. Senate conservatives argued that the ban is being violated.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H.,

Barbuto still faces trial on other charges and no date was set for sentencing.

Defense attorney James Burden said the verdict will be appealed.

"I don't feel the credibility of the witnesses against Barbuto was sufficient, nor were the words spoken to find him guilty," said Burden.

Barbuto was immediately whisked from the courtroom without comment.

Seven women testified in the five-day trial that they had sex with the 58-year-old Summit County judge, who is a powerful political figure in Akron area. But Barbuto repeatedly denied the allegations, saying he had "no sex whatsoever, anytime, anyplace" with his accusers.

In his final arguments, Assistant Special Prosecutor Bradford Gearlinger said about five prostitutes who testified against the judge, "They offered the judge their bodies for sex."

"For that they thought they had an in with the judge. But they got only a bag of air, nothing in return that would not have come to them naturally." The Agriculture Department said other judicial treatment.

Defense attorney James Burden said, "Five of the witnesses are self-proclaimed prostitutes; their testimony cannot be taken as truth."

Barbuto was asked if since 1971 he had sex in his chambers, other than with his wife, he paused, put his hand on his forehead and said "Yes." But did not identify the person.

The judge also denied threatening two sheriff's deputies who had begun investigating him in 1977. The detective earlier in the trial said Barbuto threatened to "get tougher" if the investigation, which was dropped, continued.

SECRET WEDDING
By United Press International
Professionally, they're very public people — Garry Trudeau with his "Doonesbury" comic strip, and Jane Pauley with her featured spot on NBC-TV's "Today" show — but their wedding is going to be secretive to the vanishing point. Trudeau-Pauley nuptials today are slated for a very bush-bush private ceremony on an island off the coast of Branford, Conn. No other details have been released and, presumably, the press is not on the guest list.

OSMONDATIC
You don't have to be an American teeny-bopper to squeal adoration at Donny Osmond. Malaysian teenyboppers are just as vocal, and they mobbed him Thursday when he arrived in Singapore with sister Marie and the rest of the family for a concert rife with fireworks and laser lights. A squad of special police stood guard while the Osmond clan dined at Singapore's historic 96-year-old Raffles Hotel. They're on a sold-out two-week tour of Asia.

THEME SONG
The lyrics aren't exactly complimentary, but the New Jersey state assembly says they fit kids today, so Bruce Springsteen's hit "Born to Run" now is the "official" song of the state's youth. It's sentiment.

Queen lists knight-hoods, other honors

LONDON (UPI) — Larry Lamb, the editor who guided the tabloid Sun to its biggest newspaper circulation in Britain with the aid of a daily seminuude photo now widely known as "The Page 3 Girl," was knighted for services to journalism Saturday.

Lamb was among 70 subjects honored with peerages, knight-hoods and other distinctions in Queen Elizabeth's annual birthday honor list.

Few of the names are well known outside Britain, but the exceptions included Olympic Skating Champion Robin Cousins, who received the rank of Member of the Order of the British Empire, and classical guitarist John Williams, who was honored as an Officer of the Order of the British Empire. Williams doubles as lead guitarist of the pop group "Silly."

Two Tonys tell tale of twin troubles

NORTH READING, Mass. (UPI) — Tony Del Signore, 22, of North Reading, wants to meet Tony Del Signore, 22, of Pittsfield.

"We could be related," said Pittsfield Tony. "And I wish there was some way we could get all my traffic tickets."

"But that's just how Tony Del Signore of North Reading found out there was another person with the same name and Social Security number."

Three years ago he was stopped after running a red light. The policeman asked him, "Which Tony Del Signore are you?" "I'm the one in Pittsfield with the same name and Social Security number (029-44-8144)."

The North Reading computer sales service technician had never heard of the Pittsfield janitor, who was born on Feb. 26, 1953, the day after he was. But the two, although they have never met, have been trying to tell the federal government about their different identities ever since.

Every year the two men have to wait extra long for their state and federal tax refunds. North Reading Tony is waiting for a $1,200 federal tax refund and the other Tony is waiting for a $110 IRS check.

After filing their tax returns, both Tonys get identical letters from the IRS, stating, "The same Social Security number is on our records with another name." Then they fill out another form and wait.

"Baby! This town rips the bones from your back ... It's a death trap. It's a suicide rap ... We gotta get out while we're young ... Cause tramps like us, baby we were born to run." Assemblymen balked only at naming Springsteen "State Pop Ambassador to America."

ROLLING ALONG
Lyle Telford decided roller skates would be the best vehicle for his trip from Hayward, Calif., to Anchorage, Alaska. Then he looked at all the hills in his path and added two Huskie sled dogs for traction. He figures to make 100 miles a day, to raise $70,000 for St. Jude's Children's Hospital, and says of friends, "They either think it's the most sensational thing they've ever heard, or they think I'm crazy." Maybe so. He donned skates for the first time two weeks ago.

HERVE'S DEBUT
On "Fantasy Island," Ricardo Montalban and his tiny sidekick, Herve Villechaise, specialize in other people's dreams. Now a dream of Villechaise's is coming true in real life. He's making his debut as a recording artist with a single time to an album to be released by Cleveland International-Epic Records. Backed by a kiddie choir called "Children of the World," Villechaise sings "Why?" The album title may be the answer. It's called "The Time Is Now."

FOR MY NEXT ACT...
If David Heint wasn't superstitious about Friday the 13th before, he should be now. The Jinx sneaked up and sandbagged him good and proper. Heint, who runs the Greater Portland Convention and Visitors Association, had just unveiled an ad assuring tourists his Oregon city was free of volcanic ash from Mount St. Helens. It said, "The only Portland ash left is in California gift shops." Then came another eruption and a gritty coat of gray muck all over everything. Some days...

Baptist leader: no dissension

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The new president of the Southern Baptist Convention said Wednesday he knows of no major dissension among the denomination's 15.4 million members, over whether the Bible is free of error.

"A person who doesn't believe in inerrancy ought to question himself," said the new president, "But I believe a great majority of Baptists believe in inerrancy. I think the liberals are few compared with the great majority."

Smith said interpretation of the Bible depends on each person's viewpoint.

"I believe Jonah was a literal person swallowed by a literal fish and was in a literal press," he said. "I could understand that people might believe the (six days God took to create the world) were longer than the days we know now. I personally believe a day is a day, but I can let someone else believe it is longer."

However, Smith said he will not let anyone believe Bible stories are parables.

The new president also denied a faction, led by the Rev. Paige Patterson of Dallas, is trying to control the organization to purge its ranks of "liberals" and promote the inerrancy belief.

Patterson led an effort last year to elect a president espousing an inerrancy viewpoint and has since announced a plan to control Southern Baptist elections over the next decade and thereby control the denomination.

"I don't see any great, meticulous effort to weed liberals out on my part," Smith said. "I had never talked to any of the members of this group about a 10-year plan. I have only read about it in the newspapers."

However, he added, "It would please me greatly to see the denomination continue to be a Bible-believing, mission-minded and evangelist organization."

Asked for his opinion of several controversial issues, Smith replied, "I've never had an abortion and I'm against abortions. I'm not for the Equal Rights Amendment."

Christ Scientists name leader

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Church of Christ Scientists in Twin Falls have announced the election of a new president of the Mother Church, Rev. T. D. Davis, a former senior editor and correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor was named president during the annual meeting of the church in Boston early this month.

"Mankind is moving in new directions, doing his best to construct a world of equality and justice for every individual — a world of universal freedom and blessing. Our Church," Davis said, "plays a distinctive and powerful role in this transition."

More than 7,000 members attended the annual meeting, representing 23 countries.

Leos should go along if mate alters attitude and attain good results

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually good day to contact persons who have been difficult to reach during busy workweek. Be sure you understand what others expect of you at this time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Find out how you stand with others and do whatever is needed to improve relations. Try to understand your mate's views.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make new acquaintances who can help to enrich your life in many ways. Attend a group meeting that is worthwhile.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take part in new activities that are fine for you but first know all the facts concerning them. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your mate may have a change of attitude, so go along with new ideas for best results. Take it easy tonight and express happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show more interest in civic affairs and gain the respect of others. You can make this a most productive day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Improve your environment so that it is more inspiring and brings you greater comfort. Come to a better understanding with mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to what a good friend has to suggest for greater pleasure ahead. Take health treatments and improve your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get rid of whatever is causing disharmony at home and be happier in the future. Put your talents to work.

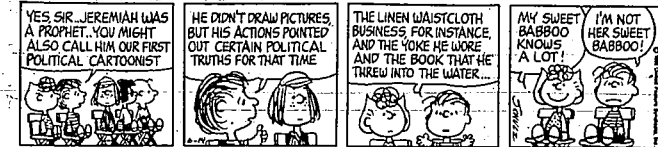

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure to study a new project well before you put it in operation. Don't take any risks that could prove costly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make long-range plans that could give you added income in the future. Come to a better understanding with family members.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are likely to be upset about matters you can't change, so concentrate on whatever brings you inner peace.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can understand both sides of a situation, so teach to stand up for what is right. Success and happiness will surely follow. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

Guiding kangaroo means utilizing a tail hold

You can't lead a kangaroo by a rope around its neck. It can be guided, however, by its tail. A client asks the why of this. The kangaroo can't jump, if its tail is off the ground. It needs it to push off. So if you hold it aloft, the kangaroo must walk, and walk where you point it.

Dedication

Memories open Herrett Museum

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It was a family affair.

The occasion was the dedication of a museum in honor of Norman and Lillie Herrett Friday on the College of Southern Idaho campus.

Not all of the 200 or so people who attended the ceremonies belonged to the "Herrett tribe," as CSI President James Taylor called them, but even non-relatives felt familial pride as Steve and Bill Herrett gave personal tributes to their late brother Norman Herrett and his widow, Lillie.

On hand to open the facility that will perpetuate Herrett's vast museum collection were 40 to 50 members of the Herrett family from 20 states.

"My father taught us to be doers," commented Bill, who owns a farm equipment manufacturing business in Filer. "Norman was a self-made man, a natural teacher and mechanic. He and Lillie were dedicated to hands-on experience and the wonders of nature's world."

He recalled learning from his elder brother, while herding sheep on the family ranch in South Dakota.

And Bill recited some lines of verse that he felt summed up a man who was both a dreamer and a doer: "The world is a fantasy, and you are the only real thing in it. / What you do with this fantasy / (Is everything.) / Good or bad, we make our fantasy of life."

Steve, a gun stock manufacturer and Idaho Fish and Game Commissioner, described "an empire builder at age 17, as seen by his kid brother."

"I never dreamed he would find a place in the world," he said.

He recalled Norman once built a banjo from a cheese box, a dried sheepskin and wire. "It was a disaster."

Next, he said, Norman announced to their mother he was going to build a violin, "and she learned for the family eat."

Returning from South America, his pockets bulging with artifacts, Norman assured Steve the expense of the trip was the "bargain of a lifetime." An hour later, he was arguing with a restaurant's maître d' over the "price and merits of a hamburger," Steve said.

"Sometimes he was plagued with ill health," he said. "But he was never sick because there wasn't time."

Norman's most valuable asset was time, which became possible because "a little lady ran the store," Steve said referring to Mrs. Herrett and the couple's jewelry business in Twin Falls.

Taylor said the couple's legacy would be called the Norman and Lillie Herrett Museum, the Herrett Museum for short. He said the building is intended to be the first of a three-building complex with a planetarium in the middle and another museum wing on the other side.

Don Crabtree leads Lillie Herrett to Friday's ribbon cutting at the CSI museum named after her and her late husband, Norman.

Differences exist on whether help is needed

Gooding doctors seek help for hospital emergency room

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding doctors are asking county commissioners to hire outside help to staff the Gooding County Memorial Hospital emergency room on weekends.

The action follows increased public complaints to both commissioners and the hospital board that doctors are refusing to treat emergency patients on weekends.

But opinions differ on how much of a problem really exists, claim both county and hospital officials.

"The problem arises when something really isn't an emergency," said Board Chairman John Varin said Friday.

Varin stressed that in any "real emergency," Gooding doctors are quick to respond to a hospital call. He said problems arise when doctors don't want to respond on weekends to minor ailments.

This controversy is anything but new, however, as both Gooding doctors and patients have been asking for changes since last fall. Since that time, the doctors and the hospital board have been developing a plan to provide full-time weekend staffing for the emergency room.

This plan, submitted to commissioners earlier this week, recommends hiring outside medical help to provide the weekend medical service.

Gooding doctors volunteer to be available for weekend emergencies. This is done on a four-week rotating basis. No contract with the county or the hospital exists for any doctor to staff the emergency room on Saturdays or Sundays.

According to Varin, a registered nurse examines incoming weekend patients and determines the seriousness of the case. The nurse then notifies the appropriate doctor at home.

Hospital Administrator Frances Whorton said the doctors rely on the nurse's evaluation in deciding if a trip to the hospital is necessary.

But Varin said the only cases treated are non-emergency ailments, such as "a minor illness that someone has put up with for a while and then decides to go see a doctor on the weekend rather than seeing their family doctor."

Complaints have increased this year because many people don't agree with Gooding doctors about what constitutes an emergency, according to Gooding County Commissioner Will Thomas.

Thomas said he has received numerous calls from Gooding County residents complaining they were refused medical care at the emergency room.

"Not all the complaints are because people haven't been served, but because they feel the doctors walked and came only when they were ready to," Thomas said Friday.

In response to public demands for better emergency room service, the hospital board and local doctors have suggested the county hire Spectrum Emergency Care, Inc. of Boise to provide full-time emergency room doctors on weekends.

This concept was first suggested by Gooding doctors last fall.

In a letter to the county commissioners dated June 8, the hospital board said the outside service is necessary to avoid law suits and continued public dissatisfaction.

The estimated cost for the service is between $80 and $120 per week, a sum that Thomas doubts can be raised.

"It doesn't take much figuring to see this will cost about $50,000 a year," Thomas said.

"I think the way the picture looks now (with the one percent law), the county will have to find money just to keep the hospital operating," Thomas said. "And with taxes frozen at a 1978 level, that's going to be hard in itself."

"I'd sure like to know where we're supposed to find an extra $50,000," he added.

Both Thomas and Varin said a meeting between county commissioners and the Gooding doctors will be held next week, but no date has been set.

Gooding doctor James Molichan, hospital board vice chairman, has repeatedly said no emergency patient has ever been refused at Gooding Memorial, either by a physician or a registered nurse.

Molichan also said service at Gooding County Memorial Hospital is excellent for a small, community hospital and he is optimistic that the emergency room problem can be resolved.

Udall cancels appearance

KETCHUM — Former Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall has had to cancel plans to keynote a June 18-21 conference on land use in the West.

Richard Hart, director of the Sun Valley Center for the Humanities, said Friday that Udall will be in Washington representing Navajo Indians in their suit against Kerr-McGee Co., an energy manufacturer.

The families of Navajo miners are suing Kerr-McGee for allegedly failing to provide proper clothing and other protection in uranium mines employed by the company. Many of the miners have since died from cancer and related ailments.

Hart said he will fill in for Udall at a 6 p.m. Tuesday press conference and give the keynote address Wednesday at 9:45 a.m. Both events are at the Alpenglow Hotel in Ketchum.

Udall has prepared a paper on "Organizing That Awesome Space," which will be included in the conference publication.

Inquest slated in boy's death

JEROME — Jerome County Coroner James Babcock said Friday he will schedule an inquest into the death of an 11-year-old boy found dead in the Snake River canyon.

Brandon Rekow was found May 20 lying next to his bicycle below a canyon wall six miles from his rural Jerome home.

Babcock said evidence gathered at the scene and from a subsequent autopsy leaves many unanswered questions and an inquest is one way of getting "everything out on the table."

Eleven-year-olds just don't ride their bikes over cliffs, "he said.

A date for the inquest has not been set, he said. Both Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall and Prosecutor Eugene Fredericksen were out of town and unavailable for comment Friday.

Property taxes due Friday

TWIN FALLS — Property owners have until Friday to pay the last half of their 1979 real property and mobile home taxes.

Twin Falls County Treasurer said the deadline is Friday at 5 p.m. or if payment is mailed it must be postmarked by midnight Friday. She said in the county there is about $1.5 million in taxes to be collected in the five day period.

Minidoka voters approve school override

RUPERT — Residents of the Minidoka County School district voted to the school systems cry for help Friday, approving a $450,000 override levy by a 53.5 percent vote.

Assistant Superintendent Floyd Merrill said the total vote was 907 for and 787 against, giving the override the necessary simple majority. A total of 1694 votes were cast with the large precincts of Heyburn and Rupert voting the vote over. He said the smaller precincts of Paul, Acapulca and the rural areas of Cassia, Jerome and Lincoln counties voted against the proposal.

The school official said a year ago residents of the district turned down an override by about a two to one margin.

"We are pretty happy and grateful to the voters of the district. This will help us restore some essential programs and add some much needed teachers," Merrill said.

He said when the $104,000 override failed last year on top of inflationary costs and the 1 percent freeze on property taxes, the district was forced to drop 23 teachers. In addition to restoring five to six teachers, the district will restore music programs in the lower grades and physical education classes in elementary schools. It will also be possible to restore the home economics and industrial arts classes in West Minidoka Junior High, giving students there the same opportunity as those in the other Junior High school.

Merrill said the new Paul school will be completed in about three weeks and next year Paul area youngsters will be attending school in their own community.

Upside-down purse good defense against thieves

ME WORRY?

Q. Where'd Mad magazine get that freckle-face redhead with the missing tooth that they call Alfred E. Neuman?

A. He first appeared in a 1907 newspaper advertisement for a Kansas City dentist who billed himself as Painless Roubin. Caplin underneath read: "What, me worry?" The original illustration had that odd boy wearing a bow-tie around his head. Reproductions on postcards popularized the picture.

Q. What's the difference between a leopard and a panther?

A. No difference. The leopard, puma, jaguar, cougar and mountain lion, all of these are panthers.

Q. Can you name the only word that's pronounced wrong by everybody whose primary language is English?

A. Won't be, sir. The word is "wrong."

GREEN ROOM

That room backstage where actors wait between appearances before the audience is called the "green room," clearly, because it's customarily painted green. Question arises as to why that particular color. Green was long thought to be especially restful for the actors' eyes. International AAU vetoes U.S. track meet

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — An international track and field meet scheduled for Friday 22 and 23 at Franklin Field ran into heavy opposition Friday from the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world's governing body for the sport.

John Holt, general secretary of the IAAF, warned the AAU that if it goes ahead with the Philadelphia meet because it conflicts with the Moscow Olympics and is "not acceptable."

Ollan Cassell, executive director of the The Athletics Congress, the ruling body of track and field in the United States, was in Walnut, Calif. at the AAU Track and Field Championships and could not be reached for comment. Athletic officials at the University of Pennsylvania, the host for the meet, said they immediately how Holt's warning would affect the competition.

Cassell said 78 nations, each of which is boycotting the Olympics, had been invited to attend the meet. Five countries — West Germany, Kenya, Japan, China and Canada — have announced their intentions to compete.

But Holt, speaking from IAAF headquarters in London, said the federation has sent letters to all its members telling them not to attend any meet held during the Olympics. He said Norway and West Germany had agreed already to abide by the IAAF regulations.

He said Cassell had been told personally in Rome last weekend that the IAAF would not allow any international meeting for the duration of the Olympic Games.

"We made it perfectly clear at Rome what our position is, and we reiterated Thursday when Mr. Cassell telephoned us from America," Holt said. "It is not acceptable during the Olympic Games to invite any other countries, whether they are boycotting or not, to this meeting."

Another international meet is scheduled for Berkeley, Calif. on July 17 and 18. The Olympics begin on July 19.

"We are glad the dates of the Berkeley meeting have been moved," Holt said. "But if the meeting in Philadelphia is held, it will be a matter for the council meeting in Moscow to decide what to do."

Pete Cleva, a spokesman for TAC, said the track meets at Berkeley and Philadelphia are part of a three-phase schedule for the U.S. Olympic team. He said the team will travel to Europe before and after the U.S. competitions. The teams will have no opening and closing ceremonies and no team scoring, Cassell said.

Expense abuse hits Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — An investigation that began two months ago into alleged abuse of travel vouchers and university credit cards primarily by University of Colorado assistant football coaches was confined Friday by campus police.

Detective Dave Evans of the CU campus police said that although the investigation was centered on assistant football coaches, expenses submitted by other members of the school's troubled athletic department were also being reviewed.

"We're looking at a number of people," Evans said. "Some are clean up to this point and we can't say the number with questionable expenses."

He said the investigation, which was initially revealed by a Denver television station, was requested by the CU athletic department's administration.

Evans said the investigation, expected to be completed within four weeks, had so far disclosed evidence of misuse of travel funds locally and out of state. He also said there was misuse of university owned telephone credit cards and meals and mileage allowances.

"Our investigation turned up a lot of suspicion," Evans said. "There appears to be criminal activity."

The detective said that upon completion of the investigation, evidence would be turned over to the Boulder District Attorney's office for the filing of criminal charges.

The investigation is the latest in a series of problems plaguing the financially troubled CU athletic department, which has a $1 million budget deficit.

Earlier this week, a CU committee submitted a report to the school's Board of Regents that found the athletic department in violation of 50 NCAA regulations ranging from financial aid to workouts.

And in a controversial move to erase the budget deficit, CU president Arnold Weber is proposing the elimination of seven sports and imposition of a mandatory $10 student fee.

No-shows dim USTFF finals

WALNUT, Calif. (UPI) — There were numerous no-shows at Friday's opening of the U.S. National Track and Field Championships, including sprinter James Sanford of Southern Cal and hurdler Greg Foster, of UCLA.

The number of withdrawals was surprising because the first eight American finishers in each event will make the U.S. national team that will compete in Europe before and after the Moscow Olympics.

The United States is boycotting the 1980 Summer Games in Moscow because of President Carter because of the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan.

Sanford reportedly is still suffering from cramps in his right leg, which he sustained earlier this month. Until his injury, Sanford was unbeaten in both the 100 and 200-meter dashes.

Foster, unbeaten this season, missed a few meets in mid-season due to various ailments. He did not give meet director Will Kern any reason for his withdrawal from the national championships. His rematch with world record holder Renato Nohemi of the D.C. International Track Club in the 110-meter high hurdles was expected to be one of the highlights of the meet.

Nehemiah has a pending world mark of 13.00. Foster has the third fastest clocking of all time, 13.22. Alejandro Casanova of Cuba finished second.

Nehemiah looked impressive in winning his trial heat easily in 13.70.

Because of the no-shows, trials were cancelled in two men's events, the 400-meter hurdles and the long jump, and three women's events, the 100-meter hurdles, 300-meter run and 1,600-meter relay.

Harvey Glance of the Auburn TC had the fastest time in the men's 100, driving across the finish line in 10.17. He was helped by a seven-mpg aiding wind.

Bill Mullin, a teammate of Sanford's at USC until declared ineligible over a transcript problem, was a late entry in the 100 and won his heat handily in 10.33.

Esther Mahr of the KCBQ TC of San Diego broke the women's 400-meter hurdles stadium record, winning the trial heat in 57.77. The old Mt. SAC record was 57.80. The stadium record of 57.60 was set by Edna Brown of Temple last year.

ISU fills staff

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho State University named Friday coaches in men's and women's athletic programs as well as a women's athletic trainer.

Jerry Quiller, who has a history of reviving sinking track programs, has been named men's Track and Field and Cross Country coach and Beth J. Bicker was named women's basketball coach. Shauna Power will be the new women's athletic trainer.

Quiller replaces Jim Klein, who resigned in mid-season, effective in May.

Quiller comes to Idaho State from Colorado State University, where he led the Rams to their highest finish ever in the Western Athletic Conference in Track and Cross Country.

He performed similar feats at Wayne State University in Detroit, where he led the Tartars to their highest finish in their conference in one year, and at the University of Colorado at Boulder, coaching the cross-country team from last in the Big Eight to sixth nationally in just four years.

Quiller, 38, is a native of Fort Collins, Colo., and holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Colorado State.

Ma. Bicker, 36, has been at the University of Oregon working on her doctorate. Prior to that she coached at the University of Rhode Island, where she compiled a 82-28 record. She assumed the ISU position held by Nancy Shay, who resigned in March after five years at the Pocatello school.

She coached at Rhode Island from 1969 to 1977 and was head coach from 1972 to 1977. While head coach, her teams were in the regional playoffs every year. She also was head coach in volleyball, field hockey, lacrosse and had winning records in each sport.

U.S. Open

Nicklaus grabs lead with second-round 71

By MARTIN LADNER

UPI Sports Writer

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (UPI) — Proving in the only way possible that reports of his demise are premature, grand master Jack Nicklaus set yet another record Friday to assume a two-stroke lead midway through the U.S. Open.

Nicklaus, consigned to the history books by many after going winless for two years, followed his record-equaling opening round of 63 with a satisfying 1-over-par 71. His 38-hole total of six-under 134 is the lowest score ever at this stage of the Open.

"I came out with the attitude of being as positive and aggressive as I could," said the 49-year-old Nicklaus, who maintained his poise even after a bogey-double bogey on the 11th and 12th holes. "I had the opportunity to leave the field behind with a good round, and I'll have the same opportunity tomorrow. I would presume."

One prominent personality with no opportunity at all is Severiano Ballesteros, the dashing young Spaniard who was disqualified when he arrived at the first tee seven minutes after his scheduled starting time. P.J. Boastright, executive director of the United States Golf Association, said he couldn't remember a similar incident in at least 20 years during a U.S. Open.

Although Ballesteros, who was in danger of missing the cut anyway following an opening-round 75, first told some friends that he might never play in another U.S. Open, he later admitted he had mistaken his starting time.

Mike Reid, the first-round leader of the 1976 Open as an amateur, and the day's low round of 67 to share second place with Japan's Isao Aoki, who had a 66, and Kelli Ferguson and Lon Hinkle, both with 70.

Reid, who had to qualify for the Open last week although he has had eight finishes in the top seven this year, has had only three bogeys in two days while the 37-year-old Aoki required only nine putts over the closing nine holes and 23 for the round.

Mark Hayes, following a 71, was at 137, while Tom Weiskopf, who shared honors with Nicklaus with an opening-round 63, faded to a 75 to share seventh place at two-under 138 with Pat McGowan (63).

Tom Watson, thanks to an eagle on the final hole when he chipped in from 100 feet, came through with a 68 that put him at 139 along with Peter Jacobsen, who shot 69.

"I shot myself back into the tournament on the last two holes," said Watson, who had birdied the 17th hole. "That's a very big lift psychologically because it puts me under par and leaves me only five strokes off the lead."

Although the Baltusrol Golf Club played tougher than Thursday, another U.S. Open record was established when the cut was set at 146. The previous low for a 36-hole cut of 147 was set in 1960 and equaled in 1971.

Former Open champions Arnold Palmer and Hubert Green barely survived with identical scores of 73-73, but among those missing the cut were Andy Bean, who was among the pre-tournament favorites, Johnny Miller and Gary Player.

Nicklaus, seeking his fourth Open championship and his second at Baltusrol, got off to another blazing start when he birdied the first and third holes with putts of five- and seven-feet, respectively. But he three-putted from 45 feet for his first bogey on the sixth hole, and then ran into trouble coming home.

A six-foot-putt, a shot he called his most important of the day, saved par on the 18th hole and Nicklaus managed another birdie with a five-foot putt on 17.

"I played very well, very similarly to yesterday, except all the putts I hit yesterday went in and today they stayed on the lips of the cups," Nicklaus said. "But a 71 is always a good round in the U.S. Open."

The previous record of 135 for the first 36 holes of the Open was set by Mike Souchak in 1960 and equaled by Bert Yancy in 1968 and Watson in 1975.

Ballesteros, the reigning British and Masters champion, was scheduled to start at 9:45 a.m. EDT in a group with defending champion Hale Irwin and U.S. Amateur champion Mark O'Meara. But his partners already were approaching the first green when Ballesteros showed up.

After a discussion by the Rules Committee, which had the power to impose a lesser penalty for good cause, Ballesteros was informed of the disqualification.

In a statement which he issued from his hotel, Ballesteros said, "I thought my tee-off time was 10:45 and so I left my hotel at 9:25. The trip took us longer than usual because of the traffic. It took about 20 minutes to get to the clubhouse. I was very, very hot when I heard the decision and that's the reason I left quickly. I didn't want to say anything there I'd be sorry for. I am disappointed but that's all the facts."

Among those grouped at even-par 140 were Irwin (70), Craig Stadler (71), Gene Littler (68), J.C. Sneed (71), Tommy McGINNIS (71), Lee Trevino (72) and Mark Lye (72).

Basic suit response bids

In the early days of contract bridge, a response bid in a new suit was not a forcing bid. In those days the minimum requirements were one bid, one trick and a half. The maximum was a lot more since a new-suit response was a game force.

It didn't take long to see that a new-suit response would have to be a one round force.

Today the normal limits are 7-17 for one-level, 11-17 for two level, and up for a simple jump.

Understand how you can afford to force with just seven points just note that a one-over-one bid is not an opener but a one bid notrump or to raise your suit with a minimum hand.

"MY SUBARU TOOK ME TO BOISE AND BACK FOR $1000!"

CLAUDIA CARR AND HER SUBARU 4WD HATCHBACK
 Claudia Carr says her SUBARU is the only car for the area. She can get around Sun Valley during the hard winters when other cars can't. Not only is it easy to handle and fun to drive, but she averages 27 miles per gallon. This is Claudia's second SUBARU and she says besides loving her car — she loves the super service she gets at Canyon Motors!
