Freed hostage-'America's faith keeps us going'

ZURICH, Switzerland (UPI)—Richard Queen, 28, the sick American hostage released after 251 days of capitivity in Iran, said Friday the thing that was keeping the U.S. hostages going was "the knowledge that the whole country was supporting".

"The most important thing for us was the support of 100 percent of Americans," said Queen in a tele-between states and federal agencies over public land issues.

"To what extent is the police power of the states, applicable in governing and managing federal lade, that's the question," said Larry Struve, a Newada deput, attorney general and chairman of the subcommute.

"The law in its present state has not addressed some basic legal questions. It is time to seek some clarification."

The attorney's general adopted the subcommittee's recommendation that additional study was needed to clarify conflicting state and federal legal claims. The legal officials also adopted the subcommittee's recommendation that western states work more closely together in coordinating leavastits and actions designed to obtain answers to public lands questions.

After approving the subcommittee report, the attorneys general adopted a resolution calling on Congress to fund a study "on the ownership and management of the public lands in the western states and as to the impact thereof on the economic and sovereignty of said states."

Also approved was a resolution asking Congress to pass a law specifically allowing western states to sue the federal government on Sagebrush Rebellion issues. The doctrine of soverelgn immunity now appears to prevent states from initiating lawsuits against the federal government without the federal government's approval extensive the subcommittee report and the majority in approving both the subcommittee report and the resolutions.

Leroy said the actions of the conference would help provide needed answers to important questions.

The Sagebrush Rebellion is the name given to the actions, recently started by the Nevada Legislature, to claim unappropriated Bureau of Land Management lands with western state boundaries. Most western states have large segments of public lands within their boundaries. To date, four other state legislature, in New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah, and Arizona, have passed similar legislation laying claim to unappropriated BLM acres within their state boundaries.

Watchers say eruption possible

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — The U.S. Geological Survey Friday issued a "hazard watch" warning for the state-of-Oregon, saying Mt. Hood, a dormant volcane 50 miles southeast of Portland, is showing signs it may be preparing to erupt. Scientists have recorded more than 50 earthquakes under and near the mountain this week, the USGS and. The early is similar to that recorded at Mt. St. Helens before its devastating May 18 explosion. The government scientists "emphasized that no immediate conclusions should be drawn about the possibilities of an eruption" because of the earthquake activity, the announcement said.

However, they added that the quakes could mean that molten rock is flowing into the mountain. The trembling under Mt. Hood, located in the Cascades about 50 miles southeast of Mt. St. Helens, began Sinday evening with an earthquake that measured 3.3 on the Richter scale.

The first quake, located near Mt. Hood, was followed by other quakes near the volcano and along a film between Mt. St. Helens and Mt. Hood.

The scientists said three other quakes of magnitude 3 have occurred in the area since Sunday and there have been numerous smaller tremors.

Mt. Hood has glaciers near its peak, and an eruption "would create the potential for mudilows and debris flow-induced flooding, in addition to hazards from ash fallout," the USGS said.

"The earthquake activity in itself cannot be in-terpreted as a definite precursor to an immediate

However, the RSV committee is staying away from any changes in language about God and will more than likely retain such images of God as Father.

The task force report, which will be voted on at a November meeting of the council's Division of Education and Ministry, recognized that the RSV Bible Committee was in no way bound to accept any of its recommendations—At the same time, it also spoke of a fundamental dilemma in regard to the RSV.

"On the one hand," it said, "the Revised Standard Version has become standard and normative to the extent no other English transla-tion has since the King James

"On the other hand," the report said, "many of us hesitafe when it comes to such revisions of the RSV which could make it lose its character to being the standard translation by which our churches, seminaries, colleges, universitielis, and our, total-culture do have reasonable access to the language and conceptually of the ages in which the biblical texts took place."

In an effort to resolve the dilemma, the task force recommended a sepa-rate, non-sexist rendering of the fec-tionary — those agreed portions of the Bible that are read during public worship sach week in most Koman Catholic churches and mainline Pro-testant denominations:

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly School-Board is taking initial steps to spend the last of its bond issue for a vocational arts building.

Board members agreed to have architect Jim Smallwood pursue plans for a 2,800- to 3,000-square-foot cement block and brick, veneer structure. The cost, including furnishings, will probably be $100,000, Chalrman J.H. Smith estimated.

The rest of the bond issue is paying for a 1. million elementary school addition and part of the renovation of the secondary school addition and part of the renovation of the secondary school and part of the renovation of the secondary school and part of the secondary

Before nominations, Smith said he was willing to serve additional time "for the sake of continuity." He men-tioned the district's building project.

After the meeting, board members said they have a good relationship and work well together.

Nauman joked about the head job, "You give the chairmanship to somebody who doesn't like you."

In discussing the vocational building, Smallwood gave the board cost estimates for comparative purposes of different types of construction for a "basic building."

Trustees felt the brick veneer, block building, although the most expensive, would better match the appearance of other building and have low maintenance. Industrial arts is now housed in converted World War II arracks.

Smith said $1,050,000 would be spent for the elementary addition and approximately $70,000 for the athletic field-renovation, leaving $80,000 in the fund to spend on the vocational building.

The Kimberly vocational program has one teacher. The meab fullding would be one-timel storage main would allow room for some growth in enrollment in the program.

Elementary school addition behind schedule

KIMBERLY — Kimberly Elementary School students may be "brown-bagging it" a little longer than planned this coming school year.

Construction of a new addition to the school is behind schedule because of "problems with the installation of the concrete masonry work," architect Jim Smallwood told the Kimberly School Board Wednesday.

"A lot of work has had to be removed and redone;" Smallwood said. Any costs are borne by the contractors. Part of the $1 million project, due to be completed in February 1981, is a new cafeteria and kitchen, which trustees hoped would be completed by mild-September.

"Smallwood asked the board to designate him their agent"

He said he would act "in their behalf to either have—subcoutractors or workmen who are failing to meet the standards and requirements removed from the project." Smallwood was to meet with the general contractor, Blaine Wadman Construction, "to discuss the conflicts and concerns with him."

The architect said it is difficult to say how far behind the project is but that it was in the ballpark of a month. It is possible, he said, the contractor could make up the time. "We are insisting upon a quality job." Smallwood said."

Subdivision addition OK'd Doc Siemsen won't forget

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission will recommend allowing the Oregon Trail Subdivision near Banbury Hot Springs to expand.

Representatives of the subdivision, developer met with the zoning group—Thursday night to ask for another five lots on about 3.5 acres of land, Originally the county hadripproved about 25 lots to be developed along the Snake River in the Hagerman Valley site.

Zoning Administrator Ed Woods

Zoning Administrator Ed Woods and board members felt there would be no added problem with another five building lots and voted to recommend the county commissioners approved the expansion.

Woods said there will be about five public hearings on tap for the August meeting of the zoning commission.

Woods and several members have suggested the zoning ordinance be revised to allow a land division committee to check and rule on requests from land owners to divide their agricultural land into less than 2bragricultural land inconditions, acre parcels under certain conditions,

No action has been taken by the zoning commission or county com-missioners, and Woods said there are five people waiting for answers.

Alcott takes four stroke

Open lead

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Amy Alcott shot her second straight. L-inder-par 70 Friday to take a four-stroke lead at the end of the second round of the U.S. Women's Open. The 24-year-old golfer began the round teld for the lead with Barbara Moxness after both shot first-round 70s, but Moxness faltered on the back nine and Alcott cashed in on some long drives and birdle putts. Munching cheese and sipping a fruit drink to combat the heat, Moxness lost her consistency on the back nine and had to settle for a 3-over-par 74. Her two-day total of 14f put her in a tie for the company of the com first-round 79. Avoiding 109679, and shot a 68.

Nancy Lopez-Melton, who had a first-round 74, fared slightly better Friday with a see-saw battle of birdles and bogles. She finished with a 72 for a two-day total of 148.

Jump shift response bids

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

and Alan Sontag

The jump shift response should tell partner that you have slam interest, but that you have slam interest, but that you have slam interest, but that you may want to stop at game if his opening is in a minimum. If you intend to get to a slam, you don't need a jump shift, All you have to do is to make aure that you use force half, and you hold: S. Ko and the same that you use force supposed you system opening one spade and you hold: S. Ko S. This is a perfect three-club response. If partner rebids three spades (intermediate strength) or three notrump (badaneed minimum) you structured a slam, but you have invited a slam to have a slam to hav

Thus, then is no good rea-frage, then is no good rea-there the property of the con-one-pade opening with S-3 2.6. H-A K 7 D-K QS-CA A1 8.7.6. Just, respond two clubs and see what develops. On the of clubs to the king and you should respond three clubs of clubs to the king and you should respond three clubs next. Partner should then play you for 18 or more high-card points.
