

Reagan declares a GOP 'crusade'

GOP leader pledges 'new consensus'

DETROIT (UPI) — Ronald Reagan accepted the 1980 Republican presidential nomination Thursday, pledging to build a "new consensus" among those who share the values of "family, work, neighborhood, peace and freedom."

Standing before the 1,998 delegate who 24 hours earlier nominated him by acclamation, Reagan said: "The time is now, my fellow Americans, to recapture our destiny, to take it into our own hands."

Comparing his candidacy and the state of the nation at home and abroad to 1932 when Franklin Roosevelt was elected president, Reagan said Americans again had a "rendezvous with destiny."

"Together let us make this a new beginning," he said. "Let us pledge to restore, in our time, the American spirit."

"This convention has shown to all America a party united with positive programs for solving the nation's problems; a party ready to build a new consensus with all of those across the land who share a community of values embodied in these words: family, work, neighborhood, peace and freedom."

Reagan spelled out his program to rebuild the nation in traditional conservative rhetoric: a stronger national defense, a tough stand against Soviet aggression, slashes in government spending and stepped up production of coal and nuclear energy.

He blended in one proposal usually initiated by liberal Democrats — a major cut in taxes.

"I pledge to restore to the federal government the capacity to do the people's work without dominating their lives," he said.

"Our federal government is overgrown and overweight," he said. "It is time for our government to go on a diet."

Reagan said he would impose "an immediate and thorough freeze on federal hiring" and bring in experts from business and labor "to conduct a detailed review of every department, bureau and agency."

"Any program that represents a waste of (taxpayer) money — a theft from their pocketbooks — must go," he said. "I will not accept the excuse that federal government has grown so big and powerful that it is beyond control. We are going to put an end to the notion that the American taxpayer exists to fund the federal government."

Ronald Reagan and his wife Nancy accept the accolades of the delegates who nominated him as the Republican presidential hope.

Reagan renewed his call for a 10 percent tax cut in 1981 as the first step in a plan to cut taxes 30 percent.

"But we should not stop here," he said, proposing business tax breaks as well to stimulate industry.

Reagan had harsh words for a Carter administration characterized by "weakness, indecision, mediocrity and incompetence."

"The Carter administration lives in the world of make believe," he said. "Every day it dreams up a response to the day's troubles, regardless of what happened yesterday and what will happen tomorrow."

"I condemn the administration's make believe; its self deceit — above all, its transparent hypocrisy," Reagan said.

He said the administration makes "critical decision... almost in a Marx brothers fashion," and noted that while there is a graduate of the Naval Academy at the helm "the ship has no rudder."

Reagan started the speech with a special appeal to Republican women activists who have been threatening to boycott his candidacy because the party platform adopted at the convention ended historical support for the Equal Rights Amendment.

"I know we have had a quarrel or two in our party... but there is no argument about the goal," he said.

"As president, I will establish a liaison with the 50 governors to encourage them to eliminate wherever it exists, discrimination against women."

Reagan and the conservative believe equal rights is a matter left up to the states and not part of the Constitution.

Bush pledges to support platform

DETROIT (UPI) — George Bush, who the right wing fears is too moderate, said Thursday he "enthusiastically" supports the rigidly conservative Republican platform.

Bush said in accepting his nomination as vice-president before the Republican National Convention. "It's up to each and every one of us to help carry Ronald Reagan's message of a strong, free America the length and breadth of this land."

And he warned the delegates that although President Carter was a "failed president" he "is a formidable campaigner who who can be expected to use the power of his office to suit his own political ends."

He promised that Reagan "a man of decency, compassion and strength" would lead America into a new era of greatness in this decade of the 1980s.

"That is the mission — the great mission — all of us, working together, joined by millions of disillusioned Democrats and independents must undertake in the campaign ahead."

Bush, told reporters earlier that he will not be "nickled and dimed to death" explaining their differences on such issues as ERA and abortion.

Bush, at a joint news conference earlier with Reagan, said that whatever his personal thoughts, he plans to accentuate the positive and enthusiastically support the GOP platform.

"I'm not going to say that I haven't had differences at some point with Governor Reagan and everybody else, many other people," he said. "But what I will be doing is emphasizing the common ground. I will be enthusiastically supporting this Republican platform and that's the way it's going to be."

The second choice for the No. 2 spot behind a man who passed him over twice, has been down the vice presidential road several times before.

As a congressman he was one of six names considered by Richard Nixon before Spiro Agnew was selected in 1968.

Bush, by 1973 a former head of the Republican Party and U.N. ambassador, was bypassed by Nixon again when Gerald Ford was chosen to replace Agnew.

In 1975, Bush was prominently mentioned as Ford's replacement when Nixon resigned, but Nelson Rockefeller was chosen.

Ford named as up

Late decision fooled papers

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Sun-Times on deadline and chomping at the bit for its headline Republican convention story, went with an Associated Press bulletin and its own sources to banner: "It's Reagan and Ford."

Minutes after press run ended, Reagan announced he had selected George Bush as his running mate. Negotiations to make former President Gerald Ford the No. 2 man had failed. And the Sun-Times three-star edition became a collector's item.

Sun-Times Editor Ralph Otwell said he had received reports prospective buyers were offering whopping prices for copies of the paper. He said about 140,000 were printed — virtually all of them for suburban home delivery.

"I heard there's one standing offer for $200, though I find it hard to believe," Otwell said.

"I guess it's because it's a Chicago paper. After that famous one by the Tribune in 1948 — 'Dewey Defeats Truman,' now it's another Chicago

The Chicago Sun-Times got caught with an early deadline. Otwell said that, when the edition arrived, Senior News Editor Charles Piper had reports from the newspaper's own sources that former President Ford had agreed to be Reagan's running mate.

Half the country cooks

Heat wave deaths near 1,000

Nearly half the country cooked in merciless heat Thursday and officials were estimating the death toll would pass 1,000 by this weekend.

Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander Thursday formally requested federal assistance to help Tennesseans cope with the heat that has claimed nearly 80 victims statewide.

Del Rio, Texas, faced a 30th straight day of 100-plus heat Thursday and Dallas was confronted with a record-tying 25th consecutive day of 100-degree weather.

Louisiana and Oklahoma utilities — faced with record demand — urged all customers to conserve energy so that electricity would be available to run air conditioners that are vital to survival for some of the elderly and infirm.

What happened with Ford deal?

From the combined wires of the TIMES-NEWS

DETROIT — Henry Kissinger said Thursday Gerald Ford probably would have been Ronald Reagan's running mate if negotiations had continued four more hours.

Kissinger, who appeared on all three television networks, said in an NBC interview, however, that the talks "got down to the point that the Reagan people were convinced that so many stories were out (about the talks) that it couldn't wait overnight. A deadline was developing that nobody had sought."

Some would have liked to have the night to sleep on it, but it wasn't possible... and at that point it sort of petered out... It was probably something that another four hours of discussion could have settled."

On ABC, Barbara Walters reported that Ford and Reagan reached agreement on a plan under which the president would make broad decisions as "chief executive officer" and the vice president would carry them out as "chief operations officer."

Then, she reported, Kissinger's name came up as secretary of state, a job he held under Ford once before and, "the whole thing fell apart."

GERALD FORD... a question of role workable, meaningful vice presidency — and at the same time maintain the total responsibility, integrity and authority of the president.

Ford said he finally told Reagan late Wednesday night that "despite all our efforts, and despite the forthcoming attitude you've had, I must say in my judgment, our original conclusion was right and I ask you not to consider me as your running mate."

He said Reagan replied: "Jerry, I respect your decision."

Like Kissinger, Ford said, "If there had been more time, things might have turned out differently."

National Guard called out in Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham activated 400 National Guardsmen and authorities slapped a dusk-to-dawn curfew on the riot-ravaged Liberty City area Thursday, hoping to quell three days of sporadic violence police blamed on young "hoodlums."

Miami's black leaders, meanwhile, voiced approval of the Dade County police's "cool it" approach and called for an end to the violence. But policemen on the streets were so angry over their orders to keep a "low profile" that they were reported ready to go on strike.

Police arrest 8 youths who hijacked a school bus during continued tension in Miami

Four persons were wounded by gunfire during the second night of violence, and police said blacks hijacked a school bus and burned a community center early Thursday.

Dade County manager Merrett Steinheim ordered a 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew in Liberty City, the predominantly black inner city slum ravaged by three days of rioting in May that claimed 18 lives and did $100 million in damage. It was touched off by the accidental shooting of four white policemen charged with beating to death black insurance executive Arthur McDuffie.

Police have made 30 riot-related arrests since the latest violence erupted Tuesday afternoon when officers attempted to arrest three black youths who allegedly had robbed a white motorist.

"This is a disturbance by hoodlums," assistant Public Safety Director Robert Dempsey said. "They are not representative of the black community."

The Dade Public Safety Department has had a policy that we take a low profile," Dade County police spokesman Henry Weatherspoon said

Thursday. "We are aware that in May we had the McDuffie incident. We don't want another police-type related killing. What we have now is a bunch of hoodlums. We don't want a racial incident."

But Sgt. Hugh Peebles, head of the Dade Police Benevolent Association, was quoted Thursday as saying many police were becoming disaffected with restraints and wanted to make more arrests.

"There's a time to enforce the law and when that time comes, by God, it's got to be done. But we are not being allowed to do our jobs," he said.

Weatherspoon and police officials say the violence is not widespread in the black community as it was during the May 17-19 rioting.

The rock-throwing, firebombing and sniping was concentrated along a 1½-mile strip of 22nd Avenue near a public housing project where 3,100 black families live.

Sirhan Sirhan seeks parole

SOLEDAD, Calif. (UPI) — Convict Sirhan Sirhan, claiming he was the victim of bias, won a preliminary victory Thursday in his battle to have another four months tacked from his 16-year term for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. He could be free in 1983 with continued good behavior.

"I don't think my rights have been fulfilled," Sirhan shouted as he pounded a table before the state Board of Prison Terms at the California Training Facility.

He said prison officials had violated his rights by not allowing him to see his Department of Corrections central file.

The board recessed the hearing after listening to his claim, and, when it reconvened, informed the convict he would be allowed to see the file. The board then postponed the proceeding, saying the hearing would resume within 90 days.

Sirhan was considered a safe bet to have his term reduced another four months for good behavior and for pursuing an academic program within the prison. Prison officials told the board that his conduct had been exemplary.

When asked by the board whether he thought he could receive an impartial judgment on his request for another sentence reduction, Sirhan said, "I suspect you are all partial against me."

Board members Loretta Collier and Ralph Pizarro and state representative Robert Loreano assured Sirhan they harbored no prejudicial feelings toward him.

The leaders of Young Life Twin Falls would like to thank the businesses and individuals who contributed financially towards sending fifteen of our local high school students to Young Life's Frontier Ranch this summer. The majority of the contributions was given as pledges for a full day's work by the students in cleaning up the bicycle path in Rock Creek Canyon.

The experiences at camp were not only fun and exciting, but also provided an alternative perspective for dealing with life's situations.

We also would like to give special thanks to the parents for their past and continued support of their children.

How others see Reagan's choice

Here's how other U.S. newspapers reacted editorially to Ronald Reagan's nomination and his vice presidential decision Wednesday night:

The New York Post — "Ronald Reagan's first action as the Republican Party's presidential nominee has been, in effect, to confirm the authority of the presidency. Former President Gerald Ford clearly asked too much in laying down his conditions to become his running mate..."

"The Republicans have had an exciting convention. They have ended up with an eminently pragmatic result; they have confirmed as their candidates the two best men of their primary process..."

The Charlotte, N.C., News — "Despite the confusion that preceded it, Ronald Reagan's selection of George Bush for his running mate is an encouraging sign of a political maturity many thought Reagan lacked."

"Attractive as Gerald Ford would have been to the ticket, the 'shared presidency' he was apparently demanding as his price for running with Reagan would have been fraught with political, if not constitutional, pitfalls..."

"Bush brings both experience and political balance to a ticket many feared would be ideologically pure but politically and governmentally weak.

Memphis, Tenn., Press-Scimitar — "Whatever the count on Nov. 4, the old boy from Hollywood has shown some admirable qualities: steadfastness, unwillingness to waffle, persistence, good nature. He has gone farther than one would have thought five years ago, and for that deserves credit."

Baltimore News American — "Former President Ford would have brought as many problems to the Republican ticket as he might have brought magic; and he would have brought as many more problems to a presumptive Reagan-Ford administration of not-quite-equals with contesting views and rival loyalties and historic antipathy..."

"In many ways the decision to enlist Ambassador Bush holds the same promise of mainstream appeal that a draft of Gerald Ford might have. George Bush is not the formidable name nor the known quantity of the former president, but it is our bet that Mr. Reagan will be glad of that when the dust settles, and that whatever success the Republican ticket will have this year will not suffer measurably for the shape it has finally assumed."

Platform: another look

DETROIT — It is said that life's crucial judgments concern which bridges to cross and which to burn.

Some critics say the Republican platform-makers crossed and burned the wrong bridges.

Platforms are thought to be exercises in the art of indoctrination, telling people what they want to hear and banking on peoples' forgetfulness. The Republican platform is problematic because of some stands, economic and cultural, that many people do not want to hear.

Much has been made of the Republicans convening in blue-collar Detroit. But an unremarked irony derives from the fact that Detroit also is an entrepreneur's city, home of the emblematic American industry built by human dynamo named Ford, Chrysler, Dodge, Sloan.

The Republicans promise a more pluralistic "industrial revolution" by unleashing entrepreneurship from the clammy grip of the government. But while Ronald Reagan is saying that the automobile industry needs protection from "foreign" competition, many industry leaders are calling for closer cooperation with Washington, even a "national industrial plan."

As historian Carl Becker wrote, "No one of Americans, so far as I know, has ever objected... to any amount of governmental meddling if it appeared to benefit that particular class of Americans."

There may not be much of a constituency of capitalists for Reagan's purified capitalism. Everywhere, but with special significance in this entrepreneur's city, the line Reagan wants to draw more sharply, the line between public and private factors, is becoming blurred, even indistinct.

Change the mining law

Part of what remains of Rocky Bar, one of the eight mines of the state's gold-mining era, is being destroyed. It is the victim of the same mineralization that was responsible for its birth in the 1890s.

Under the 1872 mining law, the holder of a valid claim has title to the land, as well as the minerals under it or in it. A long-time prospector and miner who himself lived in Rocky Bar has mineral rights to the townsite.

The home of Peg Leg Annie is a pile of rubble. It was demolished to make way for a tailings pond. A horse barn that was one of the few remnants of the 1890s period is down. Most of the town burned in 1935.

It was the fever for placer gold during the Civil War period that brought the first prospectors to Rocky Bar. Later, deep mines were developed, and Rocky Bar boomed in the 1890s.

Rocky Bar was once the county seat of old Alturas County, a vast area from which several counties were later carved.

Peg Leg Annie was a dance hall girl. She and a companion were caught in a blizzard on the pass between Rocky Bar and Atlanta. Her leg was amputated to save her life.

The rising price of gold made it an attractive investment townsite. Most of the buildings still standing are to be spared, but some significant history has been lost.

Owners of some of the buildings want to sell them. Under the mining law, if there is a valuable mineral, other values come second. The mining law reflects the frontier ethic of maximum development. It was more appropriate to the 19th-century frontier than it is today.

Still, the holder of the mining claim has himself labored long and hard in pursuit of minerals. The law was not his creation. Under the law, he has a property right to the minerals and to the townsite.

The mining law ought to be changed, so other values can be considered if serious conflicts arise. It was an appropriate concept in the days when Rocky Bar enjoyed its prominence as the hub of the South Fork Boise River mining country. Today, it is as isolated as some of the rusted machinery that speaks of the past.

State Sen. Ken Robison, D-Boise, is the editor-publisher of the Idaho Citizen.

But the cultural conservatism in high tide here is symbolized by the platform pledge—that opposition to judicially dictated liberal abortion policies will be among the criteria the Reagan administration will use in evaluating candidates for judicial nominations. But two points are logically independent of arguments about the ethics of abortion: They are points about the ethics of politics.

First, the 1980 Republican platform did not put abortion on the nation's agenda of questions that shall be debated until a political consensus has stabilized. The Supreme Court did that, in 1973, by forging from a "privacy right" a scythe to mow down state laws that expressed various community judgments about abortion. This was a profoundly political act — "political" meaning an authoritative allocation of social values — and, not surprisingly, it provoked a political reaction that has not cooled.

Second, no one thinks presidents do or should select judicial nominees randomly. All presidents have criteria. Jefferson, fighting the Federalists, was the first to make his criteria explicit in a political program. Liberal critics of the Republican platform profess distress about the mere stipulation of criteria.

But would they be distressed by a pledge to seek judicial nominees sympathetic to "race-conscious" (reverse discrimination) programs, or an expansive construction of journals' First Amendment rights? Jimmy Carter hints that the winner in 1980 may make four nominations to the Supreme Court, and that his nominees would be better for various interests (labor, blacks, pro-abortion groups, among others). Carter is not long on specifics, but he hints that he would consider sex and race when seeking nominees. Which is more reprehensible, Carter's promise to consider the chromosomes or skin pigmentation of nominees, or the Republicans' straightforward acknowledgment that they will seek certain values in nominees whose values may find their way into the law?

The Republican platform-makers are not political innocents. They know there is not a national majority for their positions on ERA, abortion, voluntary prayer in schools and other matters of cultural conservatism. But serious parties try to shape as well as seduce the nation.

Parts of the platform are studies in seduction. The journalists who think the promise to repeal the federal 55 mph speed limit is peculiar do not, and probably think no one should, drive in Montana. Folks who drive out there (rarely under 55 mph anyway) may think that plank is the platform's purest poetry.

But the cultural conservatism in the platform is, to some extent, a noble rarity, commitment to mold rather than merely conform to the mood of the moment.

Since the 1960s the nation has been riven by cultural arguments which had to become political arguments; because, over time, they influence the kind of lives we lead and the kind of people our children shall be. Republicans believe the nation's moral makeup is, today, soft wax on which national leadership can leave a long-lasting impress.

They may be wrong about that, or about the impress they want to leave. But they are alive to the grandeur of the political vocation, properly understood.

Having fun at convention

By ROGER SIMON
Chicago Sun-Times
(Field News Service)

DETROIT — How to have fun at the Republican convention:

1. Get elected governor of a northern industrial state.

Jim Thompson sat on the floor of the convention hall. As governor of Illinois and chairman of his delegation, he got to sit in the very first seat in the very first row.

Beside him were two phones. One was blood red and one was purple. "What do you suppose those phones are for?" he asked me.

I did not know. Some officials can pick up phones and set great policy. Some officials can pick up phones and change the course of history.

Thompson picked up the red phone. "Jack Daniels on the rocks," he said.

Jim Thompson knows how to have fun at a convention: He gets driven around in a big black car. He has at least 20 staff people to take care of him. People come to him for favors.

"We were at a caucus meeting today, and Chuck Ferry asked me for the floor for 30 seconds," Thompson said, speaking of Illinois' Republican senator. "But he was done on and on for about 30 minutes."

"After he was gone, I told him straight out: 'That one, you owe me a highway for that one.'"

Will there be any excitement in the Illinois delegation? "Yes," Thompson said. "Delegated Periman announced this morning that he was voting for himself for president."

Do you mean to say that when you get up on TV Wednesday night to cast

Illinois' vote, you're going to announce so many votes for Ronald Reagan, so many votes for John Anderson and the say, "And one vote for William L. Periman of Lake Shore Drive?"

"I'm going to have to," Thompson sighed. "Periman says his mother insists."

2. Make a few hundred million dollars and rent a yacht.

W. Clement Stone, who is so rich there ought to be a law stood at the bow of the 106-foot yacht, Helene, anchored outside the convention hall in Detroit Harbor.

He was wearing a tan suede suit, this time and gold cufflinks with his likeness etched into them. He was also smoking a very large Havana cigar.

Stone bought up about 50,000 of these cigars when he heard the U.S. was trading trade with Cuba about 20 years ago.

"I'm slipping to corner the market," he said, "but now I only have a year's supply left."

What are you going to do when they run out? I asked.

"If we elect a Republican president," he said, "I won't have to worry about it."

Stone is supporting Ronald Reagan this time and still belongs to someone else.

"If Richard Nixon walked into that convention hall this minute, he would be nominated for president of the United States," Stone said. "What a great man! But, of course, he is not coming to Detroit."

"What a shame, I said. 'Just how much money did you give Nixon, anyway?'"

"I contributed $5 million to his campaign," Stone said proudly. "I would have contributed $10 million if he needed it. I would have given him my entire family fortune, which was then about $450 million."

"And if the law let me today, I would give the same amount to Ronald Reagan."

The whole $450 million? "Well, I don't have quite that much anymore," Stone said. "This infatuation has been very hard on me."

3. Crash an exclusive party.

Of all the fancy bashes thrown at the convention so far, Time magazine's party on Tuesday night was one of the most exclusive.

Time wanted it to be so exclusive that at first it decided to invite nobody at all. Then it decided to invite a few people, but then the wrong location. Or tell them the right location but lock the doors, turn out the lights and pretend nobody was home.

Finally, Time ended up inviting about 300 people to an ultra-exclusive private club on top of the Renaissance Center. "But we are not allowing TV crews," a Time spokesman told me.

"TV crews change the whole tone of a party, don't you think?"

"Oh, heck, yes," I said, eyeing the hors d'oeuvres. "Say, are those things free?"

You can usually tell how exclusive a party is by the size of the shrimp that are served. Time magazine's shrimp were the size of sea bass, and I was stuffing my pockets with them when two things happened at once:

Henry Kissinger walked into the room and somebody asked to see my invitation.

"I will have to be going now," I said. "Henry and I never attend the same parties."

Republicans were grudgingly endorse during political conventions, when gullible voters are watching on TV. But what they want is four years of being able to put their feet on somebody else's chest.

Drake seemed to understand that, because he said that if he were called upon to vote for a president right now, his choice would probably be John Anderson. Which is the kind of talk that could get him punched out before this convention ends, regardless of his sexual inclinations.

"If the treatment that we moderate candidates received in our caucuses is any indication," Drake said, "then I will vote for Anderson. This platform and convention don't represent the Republican party. The moderates have been trampled. The radical fringe has taken over the convention."

Think about that statement. Here is an admitted gay delegate, which makes him a rather rare political creature. But he considers the majority of Republicans at this convention to be "the radical fringe" of the party. That tells you something about the Reaganites — gays think they are weird.

When Drake was asked why there are only two gays out of the 1,994 delegates — and, whether this might be the Gay Rights Task Force hasn't been successful in its drive to gain political strength — he said something that could have the Reaganites looking over their shoulders.

"There are only two admitted gays here," he said. "But there are more than two of us."

You mean they are gay, but they haven't come out of the closet? Or, more appropriately, this convention, out of the closet? "Yes. There are definitely a number of non-admitted gay delegates here. Somebody asked how he knew that."

Mike Royko

What's a gay doing in ranks of Republican Party?

DETROIT — So far, the high point of the convention for delegate Tim Drake has been that nobody has punched him out. Yet.

That's probably a noteworthy accomplishment, considering that of the 1,994 mostly conservative, white, male, upper-middle-class Republican delegates here, Chicagoan Drake is one of only two avowed gays. Drake, 27, a data technician, was elected from Chicago's near North Side.

As such, he is something of a curiosity. Not merely because he is gay. Gays in all fields have been tumbling out of the closet in recent years.

But what makes people wonder about Drake is that he is a Republican.

That's what he's consistently been asked: Why would a gay want to be involved with this bunch of cowboy-hat reactionaries? If this bunch can't find it in their hearts to support a man like ERA, what makes him think they have any sympathy for gay issues?

Drake has become so accustomed to these questions that he didn't even wait for them when he held a news conference. He opened the conference by saying:

"I suppose you all wonder why any gay in America would want to be identified with the Republican party."

All 29 reporters nodded. Actually, I wonder why anybody — gay or straight — would want to be identified with this yaboo convention, but that is a broader question.

"Well," Drake said with a smile, "I was born and reared in Indiana, and so I grew up thinking that it was natural to be a Republican."

Republican was "natural." And when he said it, he looked doubtful. If not rueful.

What about Reagan, someone asked? Did he have any confidence that the California Cowboy would think of someone like him as anything more than a fruit or faggot?

His answer showed that even gays, when they get into politics, are capable of doing a fast two-step around a tough question.

He laboriously explained that Reagan, while not specifically sympathetic to gay issues, has come out in favor of equal rights for everyone. And that was reason to believe that Reagan would be at least "fair."

Ho-ho! If the majority of hard noses at this convention actually believed that Reagan wanted equal rights for everyone in America, they would probably throw him out the back door and nominate a rock head like Sen. Jesse Helms.

Equal rights is something these

"Because some of them have called me and said they wished they could be as open as I am," I identified them by name. I wouldn't want to start a witch hunt."

Then he added: "But I can tell you that there is even a Reagan delegate who is gay."

That brought an indignant response from Drake who was wearing a Reagan button and a red-white-and-blue hat, and did not appear to be a reporter. From the back of the room he shouted:

"What proof do you have that there is a gay Reagan delegate? How do you know that?"

As he moved off the podium, ending the press conference, Drake grinned at the angry man and said: "I know that because he is a friend of mine."

The indignant man looked as shocked as if he... well, as if he had been pinched.

Big Oil cleared of shortfall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Energy and Justice Departments Thursday cleared big oil of suspicion in triggering the maddening gasoline lines of 1979 by rigging the market.

Instead, studies released simultaneously by the two departments said the gas lines were caused mainly by low U.S. petroleum stocks and import reductions caused by Iran's upheaval.

The Justice Department's antitrust duty report also blamed Energy Department price and allocation controls, as well as Council on Wage and Price Stability guidelines, for aggravating the problem.

By contrast, the energy agency credited controls for preventing refiners from profiteering in the shortage by withholding gasoline supplies.

The Justice Department concluded, "There is insufficient evidence to justify a finding that antitrust violations contributed to the shortage or that further investigation in this matter is warranted."

It found disruptions caused by curtailed imports and low domestic gasoline production were "further magnified by the economic distortions engendered by price and allocation controls affecting gasoline."

Douglas Robinson, deputy administrator of the Energy Department Economic Regulatory Administration, told reporters he agreed "if the sole objective is to make gasoline lines go away, it would have been better to have no controls."

But he said "compelling policy considerations," such as holding the line against inflation and soaring gas prices, made them necessary.

Mobile ordered to end strike

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. Fob James threatened to pull National Guardsmen out of strike-bound Mobile Thursday if city officials do not start negotiating with police and firemen.

"The thinking and summary of opinion is that why should the state expend its resources when the city is not even trying to settle this thing?" a spokesman for the governor said.

"We're just trying to get talks started again. It's not going to be settled until they start talking."

Meanwhile, guardsmen armed with M-16 automatic rifles manned fire stations and stood around water and communication towers Thursday in the fourth day of the strike.

Guardsmen also were at a police substation guarding patrol cars.

Because of a no-strike clause in their police association bylaws, black officers stayed on the job in Alabama's second largest city while their white counterparts pressed their demand for higher wages.

In addition to the firemen and police officers, paramedics who ride the ambulances also walked off their jobs and sanitation workers were refusing to cross picket lines, allowing garbage to pile up in the 100-degree heat that has baked the city in recent days.

More than 400 firemen and paramedics walked off their jobs Monday night and 132 policemen joined them Wednesday. They are seeking a 20 percent pay hike, merit raises, a cost-of-living provision in a contract, more holidays and better insurance coverage.

There were indications the garbage workers would close ranks and join the others on strike by the weekend.

Anderson wins ballot victory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — John Anderson won a major victory in his fight to become an independent candidate Thursday when a federal judge ordered that his name be placed on the November ballot in Ohio.

"We're elated," said Diana Hetrick, state coordinator for Anderson. "It's very important for us to be on the ballot in as important a state as Ohio."

Anderson won a similar victory earlier this month in New Mexico and has suits pending in Maine, Kentucky and Maryland challenging the states' filing deadlines.

In his decision Thursday, U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. Duncan said that Ohio's filing deadline of 73 days before the June primary "imposes a substantial burden on plaintiffs' fundamental rights and is not justified by any compelling state interest."

"Accordingly, the court concludes that the statute is unconstitutional and the defendant must accept plaintiffs' nominating petitions," said Duncan.

Ms. Hetrick said petitions with 14,500 signatures — only 5,000 are required — would be filed Friday with Secretary of State Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr.

Celebrezze had argued that Ohio's law was "relatively liberal" and prevented candidates from being placed on the ballot whenever they decided to run.

But Duncan said the law violates the "rights of expression and association" protected by the First Amendment and the right of equal protection granted by the 14th Amendment.

Hill said the case may be taken directly to the U.S. Supreme Court, bypassing the federal appeals court. However, he said the Anderson petitions will be accepted when they are presented.

Garwood trial

Nixon testimony on policy not to prosecute ex-POWs sought

CAMP LEJUNE, N.C. (UPI) — Accused Marine turncoat Robert R. Garwood's defense attorneys said Thursday that former President Nixon personally ordered charges of collaboration with the enemy be dropped against a group of Prisoners of War returning from Vietnam in 1973.

The attorneys, seeking dismissal of charges against Garwood on the ground that similar accusations against POWs never were prosecuted, said Nixon may be called as a witness in Garwood's pending trial.

Garwood, 34, is the only Vietnam-era soldier to face a court-martial on charges of collaboration with the enemy.

Defense attorney Vaughan Taylor said a former POW, Lt. Col. Theodore Guy, says he was told personally by Nixon to stop his efforts to prosecute a group of American POWs known as the "Peace Committee."

Guy accused the group of building mock-ups of American aircraft and instructing Vietnamese gunners on how to shoot them down. Guy also charged that the eight men passed their captors information that led to the torturing of other prisoners.

Guy was the senior officer in the "Plantation Garden" POW camp in Hanoi where the eight men were held.

Taylor said Guy would be called as a witness when the pre-trial proceedings in the case resume next week and would testify about a first-hand meeting with Nixon.

"He was told by President Nixon that these matters were being dropped because it would not be good for the nation at a time when the war was winding down and because of Watergate," Taylor said.

The defense attorneys said they would be satisfied with an affidavit from Nixon about the alleged policy, but would call him as a witness if a written statement could not be agreed upon.

Draft registration resisted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some peace advocates invited federal prosecution Thursday by publicly urging young men not to register for a possible draft. Resistance leaders predicted up to 500,000 will refuse to do so.

"Think of the tragedy," said Alex Reyes, eastern director of the National Resistance Committee, at a news conference. "Not only is it against the law for a person of draft age to say, 'I do not choose to register for a future war.' It is also against this law for you and me to say, 'You have made a wise decision.'" The resistance committee expected three draft-age young men to appear and declare their intention to refuse to register. But only one — Michael Sloss of Washington, D.C. — showed up at the news conference.

Refusing to register or advocating non-registration are felonies.

— But resistance officials predicted as many as 250,000 to 500,000 of the estimated 4 million 19- and 20-year old men who are required to register may not do so.

Winter arrives in Manhattan on hottest day of summer

Friday, July 18, 1980 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-7

NEW YORK (UPI) — The thermometer hit a record 90 degrees, but Ari Kraiser was walking along 42nd Street, wearing the fur hat he brought home from Moscow a few years ago.

Pat Joyce, a portly 70-year-old, buttoned his cardigan sweater, fastened his peacoat and wrapped his scarf around his neck.

A young woman put her fists to her mouth and blew on them to keep warm, while another held her fur collar to her face as she walked past sooty snow piled on the sidewalk. Others wore gloves, galoshes and down-filled parkas.

"I'm cold," said Chris Manor as he shivered in the hazy, smog-filled sunshine. "Of course I'm cold. I'm supposed to be cold."

"Insanity?"

Show business.

It was the middle of January at the corner of 42nd Street and Third Avenue.

At least it was supposed to be for 150 actors — $68-a-day extras in "Rich and Famous," an MGM film starring Candice Bergen and Jacqueline Bisset.

The film was being shot Wednesday and Thursday in the famous old Horn & Hardart Automat, whose windows were covered with artificial ice.

With the "action" call, those inside began eating and talking in the partial relief of air-conditioning while the "backgrounders" outside resumed their monotonous march in the heat. The non-actors — in shirtsleeves and shorts — looked on in bewilderment.

It could have been worse.

"I would rather walk here in the middle of summer, pretending it was January, than walk in the middle of January, pretending it was July — that would be misery," said a middle-aged woman who refused to give her name because she didn't want her agent to know she was working as an extra.

But the heat did not come as a total surprise for the actors.

"We're told in advance, according to SAG (Screen Actors Guild) rules, exactly what the conditions are," explained Tony Allen, 44. The regulations provide for two air-conditioned buses and a canteen.

"Does anybody want some salt tablets?" asked a production assistant clad in a T-shirt. "It restores salt loss from perspiration. Don't take them if you have high blood pressure," he cautioned the actors in their overcoats.

"I have a terrific sense of humor," said Frances Kizer, another extra. "That's why I'm working in this film. If I didn't, I'd be dead."

HUSTLING

Kentucky Gov. John Y. Brown and wife Phyllis George were a long way from home, but it was for a good cause. They were in Beverly Hills, Calif., throwing a publicity bash for a guest list that might be published as the "Who's Who" of industry and motion pictures. Among mooned guests dining on grills, candied yams, pecan pie and other down home goodies were Norman Lear, Walter Matthau, Lee Majors and Chip Carter. The object — to lure some West Coast tucce to Kentucky.

and Sudano's brother Barry as best man. Sudano, who's with the musical group Brooklyn Dreams, was co-composer with Miss Summer of her own hit, "Bad Girl," and of "Startin' Over" — a top-of-the-charts country tune they wrote for Dolly Parton. They're both 31.

Fawn thinks it's a pup but no more

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — She called him "Baby" and her husband called him "Buck."

It really didn't matter to the fawn who moved into their home and thought it was a pup.

The fawn had been picked up in the woods by some people who thought it was 'lost' and had been made a member of the household," explained Bob MacWilliams, an Allegheny County game protector.

There, it became almost housebroken and would follow whoever fed it, thinking the person was its mother, he said.

"Like a dog, it wanted to be petted and would come up to have its ears rubbed. It lived in the home with the family, which included three dogs, and it apparently thought it was a dog," he said.

It became deer in suburban households are illegal and "Baby" or "Buck" has been moved from the North Hills home by Deputy Game Protector Ron Milbert.

"People see a baby animal and they think it's been deserted or abandoned and they pick it up and all they really do is ruin their lives," said Milbert's wife, Dolores.

Now the fawn is penned at a farm in Laguerer and will probably be caged for the rest of its life.

It joins five other bucks and two does there, all made captives by seemingly well-intentioned people.

As the Republican party's brand new standard-bearer, Ronald Reagan is the man of the hour in the United States, but some folks overseas remain a bit hazy on the subject of his credentials. Said a 37-year-old secretary in Bonn, West Germany, upon being told Reagan had been nominated for the American presidency, "Ronald Reagan? There's no actor named Ronald Reagan, is there?"

CHIPPING IN

When firemen Lawrence Fitzpatrick and Gerard Frisby were killed while battling a blaze last month in New York, a businessman started a fund for their families with a donation of $50,000. Thursday, the fire department received a $250 check from former President Richard Nixon and wife Pat, who are New Yorkers now. Their donation brought the fund total to $37,946. Fireman Fitzpatrick led a wife and eight children.

This one, it seems, didn't get the word.

"BEHIND THE NAME — When Leontyne Price made her Metropolitan Opera debut in "Il Trovatore" in 1961, she was given a record-breaking 42-minute ovation.

POSTER BOY

Jim Palmer — a three-time winner of the Cy Young Award — never got such a mail as a pitcher for the Baltimore Orioles as he's getting now just by standing around in his jockey shorts. The lanky ballplayer's undergarment personalized with a poster boy has triggered a torrent of mail from women of every age and station. Says Palmer — longtime somewhere in the vicinity of cheek — "I had no idea so many women were interested in baseball."

SUMMER BRIDE

Donna Summer tied the knot Wednesday with her boyfriend of three years. She became the wife of Bruce Sudano in ceremonies at the Beverly Way in Los Angeles, with her manager, Susan Munso, as maid of honor.

MEAN MUSKIE

For a moment there, Charles Budreau thought he was in a segment from "Jaws." But the 18-year-old swimmer wasn't in the Atlantic and it wasn't a Great White Shark that did him in. Budreau was swimming in Tom Doyle Lake near McLaughlin, Wis., Saturday when a muskellunge bit his hand. It took 17 stitches to close the wound. Officials say muskies — which can grow to more than 60 pounds — usually don't attack people.

Belated medal award set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter will present the Medal of Honor Saturday to retired Army Lt. Col. Matt Urban, a World War II hero whose recommendation for the honor was overlooked for 35 years.

Urban, 60, of Holland, Mich., was wounded five times in France as he led his troops in fierce battles against the Nazi army.

Carter will present him with the nation's highest honor for valor, the first World War II award since 1950.

The Army said Urban was first recommended for the award in 1945, but the recommendation was inadvertently "lost or not processed."

Last year, the Defense Department announced that anyone who thought they were worthy of such a commendation should come forward.

Urban wrote to the Pentagon in June 1978 and after a two-year investigation, the Army decided that he merited the medal.

Former shah comfortable

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — The "cancer" has been removed from the former shah of Iran who was resting comfortably Thursday as doctors treated him for a painful leg abscess, his American spokesman said.

It appeared the Al Ahram newspaper was backing off a report Mohammed Reza Pahlavi had been operated on for the orange-sized abscess in his right thigh. The usually informed paper's front-page story on the subject in its early edition for Thursday but dropped it entirely in the final press run.

The ex-shah's American spokesman, Mark Morse said, "It's maddening what the newspapers have been saying."

"There has been no surgery of any kind," Morse told UPI. "The doctors are monitoring the shah's condition closely and it has been stable, with no dramatic changes. His thigh is sore but he is resting comfortably."

An Egyptian blood specialist who is on the former monarch's medical team at the Military Hospital said doctors were using a combination of antibiotics — and hot — fomentals to treat the abscess.

Medical sources said surgery was a "last resort" should the drugs not control the fever from the infection.

WOUNDED HERO

Urban was wounded later that day and refused evacuation, continuing to lead his men until they moved into defensive positions for the night. The next day, he was wounded again and evacuated to England.

In mid-July of that year, while recovering from his wounds, Urban learned of his unit's severe losses in Normandy. He hitchhiked to his unit near St. Lo, France, and took command again when it was up against heavy enemy fire.

With many of his men dead, he mounted an empty tank, drove through enemy fire and manned the machine gun, inflicting devastating fire on the enemy.

Woman says tot product of incest

RADCLIFF, Ky. (UPI) — A Kentucky woman says a 3-year-old boy found buried in her back yard was the product of an incestuous relationship she had with her father several years ago.

On the basis of the information, officials Wednesday charged Doris Holloway, 22, with failing to report the boy's death and accusing her father — though dead a year — of incest.

A crude, wooden coffin with the skeletal remains of a little boy was uncovered last week-end after police received a tip from the woman.

The boy was wrapped in plastic in a 36-by-18-inch coffin buried in the overgrown, litter-strewn Holloway back yard. He was identified as 3-year-old Wendell R. Holloway.

According to charges, link dealer Ernest Holloway, 44, had sexual relations "on numerous occasions" with his daughter between 1973 and 1979.

Police said Doris may have come forward because her father's will is being probated and a decision on the will could affect her and her children.

What's what

Some unique furniture serves owner to grave

Several casket manufacturers turn out hand-crafted coffins to be used before their final need, as gun cabinets, coffee tables, or book shelves. And the sales message of these makers goes out to prospects still quite alive. At first, some observers thought this was a bit forward. Even pushy, maybe. Or indecous, anyhow. But the buyers say no; it's just what's needed. Among the bigger costs at funerals, they say, are the casket prices. Bereaved and baffled survivors find themselves sold unnecessarily expensive caskets when it's too late for the final users to object. Beforehand buyers block this wrenching bit of business.

SHARKS

Q. Has there ever been a real shark scare like the one in "Jaws"?

A. Such a scare, yes. Don't know about such a shark. But in 1916 off the coast of New Jersey within 10 days, sharks bit five persons, killing four and mauling one. That fierce beast cleared the beaches for quite awhile, as you might expect.

Q. How much of our cash nationwide is in coins?

A. About three cents out of every $1.

Q. What's that whitish film that forms on squares of chocolate in my kitchen cabinet?

A. Cocoa butter. It's called "bloom." It surfaces in warm weather sometimes. Doesn't hurt anything.

Q. How can you tell the temperature by counting cricket chirps?

A. Count the chirps for one minute. Divide that by four. Add 40. That's one way. Another is count the chirps for 15 seconds, then add 37. You should come pretty close.

HORSE COSMETICS

Another little known business is the trade that turns out cosmetics for horses. More particularly, for show horses. No, not face eye-liners. But paints and powders to cover blemishes, and waxes blacks to highlight hooves, and brighteners to give a sheen, that sort of thing.

Those who have attempted suicide are far more likely than others to fasten their car seatbelts when they drive. The computer boys inadvertently came up with that oddity in their random crossthecks.

Increase in housing starts hints at start of recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts jumped 30 percent in June, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

The report indicated one of the areas of the economy hardest hit by recession has started to recover.

Builders began new private housing units last month at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,191,000, the department said, up from a revised figure of only 913,000 in May.

Issuance of building permits — an indication of construction starts to come — also was up, by 23 percent.

The rate of housing starts had been oscillating fairly steadily from a rate of 1.9 million units in June a year ago.

"We have reached the bottom and the outlook for housing has improved," said Michael Sumichrast, economist for the National Association of Home Builders.

"We are still building only about half the units we built at the peak a year and a half ago and about 40 percent below last June," Sumichrast said. "But at least it's the beginning of what I hope to be a recovery."

A second report by the Commerce Department showed that Americans began purchasing more in June even though their income rose very slowly.

It said personal consumption expenditures — what people spend on consumer goods — increased at an annual rate of $16.7 billion in June, following two months of decline.

Government analysts called the increase "substantial," larger than the $11 billion monthly average for 1979.

"If sustained, the increased purchasing could be one of the 'corrective forces' which economists say ultimately will bring an end to the recession.

But other parts of the Commerce Department's report still showed the continuing effects of the economic slowdown.

Personal income grew slowly during June, increasing only $8 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2,065.7 billion. That was about half the average monthly increase during 1979. It was a gain of only 0.4 percent. Manufacturing payrolls declined $3.7 billion in June after a drop of $4.7 billion in May.

That occurred even though average hourly wage rates continued to rise. In other words, the department said, the recession has put enough people out of work or cut their work hours so that even with higher pay rates, manufacturing payrolls are falling.

In a separate report, the Federal Reserve Board said the nation's manufacturing plants operated at only 76.1 percent of capacity in June, down 2.3 percent from May and the lowest level since the 1974-75 recession.

Bunker Ramo gains
OAK BROOK, ILL. (UPI) — Bunker Ramo Corp., the electronics and electrical manufacturer, earned $1 cent a share in the second quarter, down from 75 cents a year ago, despite a rise in sales to $117.9 million from $108.3 million.

First half profit, however, was up to $1.80 a share on revenues of $239 million from $1.87 a share a year ago on revenues of $214 million. Net income was $11.5 million, up from $10.7 million.

Hecla says earnings drop

WALLACE (UPI) — Hecla Mining Co. Thursday reported lower earnings for the second quarter of 1980.

However, the company's income for the first six months of the year is more than twice that for the same period in 1979.

W.A. Griffith, president and chief executive officer, also announced the retirement of corporate debt and full redemption of the Series A, convertible preferred stock which had been issued to the company's lending banks in partial payment of interest. Final payments were made on July 14, at which time the credit agreement was canceled.

Unaudited net income for the second quarter was $4,034,830, or 38 cents per share, compared with $2,970,299, or $3.57 cents per share for the first quarter and with $8,835,656, or 99 cents a share for the second quarter of 1979.

Net income for the first six months of 1980 was $29,004,778 or $4.15 per share, compared with $12,386,014 or $1.77 per share for the same period in 1979.

Griffith said the drop in second quarter earnings reflects a sharp decline in the prices of silver and lead, the continuing strike of miners at the Sunshine Mine and a negative $2,945,000 adjustment to first quarter revenues resulting from provisional pricing of the Sunshine Mine.

He predicted improved earnings for the third and fourth quarters since the negative adjustment will not be made during those periods.

Chase shaves prime

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chase Manhattan Bank Thursday dropped its prime lending rate a quarter point to 11 1/4 percent, the level adopted last Friday by Citibank.

While some analysts believe the prime will fall to 10 percent and perhaps lower later this year, Citibank previously was the only major bank to reduce its rate from 11 1/4 percent. With the move by Chase to 11 1/4 percent, other banks were expected to fall in line.

Proxmire asks repeal of heavy CD penalties

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire demanded Thursday that federal bank regulators repeal stiff new penalties on savers who withdraw certificates of deposit before they mature.

The penalties are "outrageous" and "unfair" to savers, the Wisconsin Democrat said, and bankers who profit from them even say they are too harsh.

Proxmire made his demand for a change in the regulations, which became effective on June 2, in a letter to Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker, who also heads the Depository Institutions Deregulation Committee.

Under the old rules, the penalty for early withdrawal of a savings certificate could not exceed the interest already earned.

But under the new rules, Proxmire noted, the penalty for early withdrawal could eat into the original deposit.

The senator cited the example of a saver who puts $10,000 into a 2 1/2-year certificate of deposit paying 10 percent interest.

"If he needs to get his money back after one month, he will be socked with a $200 early withdrawal penalty," Proxmire said. "With the loss partly offset by interest received, he said, the saver would lose $417 of his original investment."

"Instead of earning 10 percent, the saver will realize a negative yield of 50 percent," he said.

The penalty for early withdrawal under the new rules is three months interest on certificates maturing in a year or less and six months interest on longer term certificates. Proxmire said the penalties were "too harsh."

Dow surges to 3-year peak

By FRANK W. SLOSSER
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK — The Dow Jones Industrial average surged to a three-year high Thursday.

Other averages reached records in a stock rally sparked by good news on the interest rate and housing front.

The Dow average, at 2,900-point Wednesday, rose 10.85 points to 2,910.10, the highest level since it finished at 823.42 on July 22, 1977.

The New York Stock Exchange rose 0.99 to a record 69.53 and the price of a share increased 49 cents. Advances topped declines, 1,046 to 467, among the 1,874 issues traded at 4 p.m. EDT.

The Big Board volume of 49,350,000 shares, compared with 49,140,000 traded Wednesday, indicating institutions were big buyers because interest rates continued to decline.

Commodity volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. markets and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 53,862,968 shares, compared with 52,751,808 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 5.02 to a record 312.90 and the price of a share jumped 29 cents.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ OTC index gained 1.57 to an all-time high of 168.67.

Oil, drilling and related issues were standouts. One reason was a published report that a consortium apparently has discovered one of the world's largest natural gas fields while drilling in the Norwegian North Sea.

Royal Dutch-Shell, which is part of the North Sea consortium, gained 1 1/2 to 92.

Among other energy issues, Ocean Drilling & Exploration gained 3 1/2 to 134, Sabline Corp. 5 1/2 to 47 1/2, Getty Oil 3 1/2 to 84 1/2, Superior Oil 3 1/2 to 17 1/2.

Public Service Electric & Gas was the most active NYSE-listed issue, off 3 1/2 to 20 1/2 in trading that included a block of 703,400 shares at 20 1/4.

Carolina Power & Light was third on the active list, off 1/4 to 90 1/2 after a block of 654,500 shares crossed at 20.

Duke Power was fourth, off 1/4 to 18 1/2. A block of 630,000 shares crossed at 18 1/2.

It was not immediately clear why there was such heavy selling in utilities.

Schlumberger jumped 3 to 124. The oil services company declared a 3-for-2 stock split and raised its quarterly dividend payout.

U.S. Home Corp. advanced 2 1/2 to 25. The company said its new orders in June rose 30.5 percent from a year ago.

GCA Corp. rose 5 to 55 1/2. Sperry Corp. 2 1/2 to 54 1/2, SmithKline 1 1/2 to 41 1/2, Viacom International 2 to 24 1/2, Hospital Supply 1 1/2 to 43 1/2 and US Air 1 to 15.

All reported higher quarterly earnings.

Fred S. James lost 1 1/2 to 24 1/2 after reporting a second-quarter net of 71 cents a share versus 70 cents a year ago.

Friedhauf dropped 1/2 to 26 1/2 after the company reported its second-quarter earnings added to 45 cents a share from $2.12 a year ago.

On the Amex, advances topped declines, 409 to 182, among the 810 issues traded at 4 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 6,170,000 shares, compared with 6,000,000 Wednesday.

Gulf Oil of Canada was the most active Amex issue, up 1/2 to 30 1/2. Bow Valley Industries followed, up 1/2 to 20 1/2. Syntex was third, unchanged at 42 1/2.

Tejon Ranch gained 3/4 to 74 1/2. The company reported second-quarter earnings of 47 cents a share versus 33 cents a year ago.

Newspaper says U.S. bugs Europe

LONDON (UPI) — The United States bugs telephone and telecommunication lines throughout Europe from a secret listening post in northern England that is the largest tapping center in the world, the New Statesman magazine said Thursday.

The magazine reported that the base, at Menwith Hill near Harrogate in Yorkshire, had been kept secret even from the U.S. Congress and was tied into the heart of Britain's communications system in partnership with the British Post Office.

The Defense Ministry denied the report, saying the facility was "a communications relay center for U.S. forces in Europe, its main purpose being to provide communications that are both rapid and secure."

"It does not intercept phone calls or telecommunications in this country nor is its purpose to intercept trans-Atlantic phone calls."

The magazine said, the center's "business for more than 15 years has been sifting the communications of private citizens, corporations and governments for information of political or economic value to the U.S. intelligence community."

"And since the early 1960s," it added, "its close partner in an operation of ever-growing technical sophistication has been the British Post Office."

Earlier this year, New Statesman, which has made a specialty of investigative journalism, charged the British Post Office operated a widespread bugging operation called Tinkerbell from a large office building in London. The government said that report was exaggerated but never flatly denied it.

The magazine said Menwith Hill base was operated by the U.S. National Security Agency and had more than 800 employees working around the clock.

The Menwith Hill base covers 562 closely guarded acres of the Yorkshire Moors, festooned with a remarkable array of satellite-tracking aerials," New Statesman said.

China ends first vote with choice

PEKING (UPI) — China completed a year-long process Wednesday to select local government officials which for the first time under communist rule allowed voters a strictly limited freedom of choice in selecting candidates.

The re-establishment of "People's Governments" in China's 29 provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions swept away the now discredited Revolutionary Committees established in the "catastrophic" Cultural Revolution of 1966-76.

The official Xinhua News Agency called the selection process an "important step forward in the country's political stability and unity" and a "major reform in China's administrative system."

Independent political analysts said it was also a government attempt to accommodate the rising clamor for democratic rights and to undercut the once flourishing protest movement of Peking's "Democracy Wall" which demanded free elections.

"All real power still lies within the Chinese Communist Party, they said, and free elections and representative-style democracy were unlikely to become vital parts of Chinese politics in the near future."

Under a law adopted last year, eligible voters elected representative assemblies by secret ballot at the lowest grass roots level of the commune, country and urban districts.

It was the first time since the communists seized power in 1949 that there were more candidates than positions, giving the voter a limited freedom of choice.

Those representatives in turn elected local administrators, judges and delegates to provincial level congresses which then chose special standing committees and province officials.

A proposal for direct elections at all levels including the national level was rejected last year by the country's parliament or National Peoples Congress.

The newly-established Provincial People's Governments replace the Revolutionary Committees of the Cultural Revolution which Xinhua described as "interim organs of state power" whose members were not elected but named directly "from above."

"Facts have proved that this organ's over-concentration of power hindered the display of democracy, damped the enthusiasm of other organizations and made it easy for the Gang of Four to put in their own followers," Xinhua said.

"In a revision of history, the Communist Party has now created Mao's Cultural Revolution a major 'catastrophe' for China and has condemned virtually everything connected with it."

Soviet airliner crashes; 163 die

MOSCOW (UPI) — At least 163 people were killed the crash of a Soviet airliner in the Central Asian republic of Kazakhstan 10 days ago, Western diplomatic sources said Thursday. It was the second-worst aviation disaster in Soviet history.

The diplomats, quoting Soviet aviation officials, said the TU-154 crashed on takeoff from Alma-Ata en route to the Crimean resort town of Simferopol.

The cause of the disaster was not reported. The crash was first mentioned earlier this week by the Kazakhstani Pravda newspaper but it did not publish a casualty figure or disclose the type of plane involved. The Soviet press usually does not report on such disasters.

Western diplomats said 163 people died in the crash, making it the second worst crash in Soviet history. The worst occurred in October 1972, when an IL-62 crashed en route to Paris from Moscow, killing 179 people.

Alma-Ata, located 1,700 miles southeast of Moscow, is the capital of the Kazakhstani Republic. The Kazakhstani newspaper said the plane crashed at the city's airport.

Military revolt seizes Bolivian government

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Soldiers dressed in civilian clothing seized the presidential palace Thursday a few hours after the outbreak of a nationwide military rebellion backed by rightists.

The whereabouts of President Lidia Gueller, Bolivia's first woman leader, was unknown. She has headed the coup-prone nation as interim president since last fall. She was to be replaced Aug. 4 after Congress chose another president because no candidate won a clear majority in June 29 election.

By midafternoon combat-ready rebel troops were in control in Trinidad in the Amazon basin, Santa Cruz in the southeast and Tarija in the south.

Commandos in civilian clothes firing submachine guns attacked the Bolivian Labor Center in La Paz, killing mine leader Gualberto Vega. Unconfirmed reports said Communist deputy and labor leader Simon Reyes also was killed.

The streets of La Paz were deserted and radio stations went off the air. Details were sketchy, but witnesses said civilian-dressed soldiers evicted palace employees and newsmen in the takeover.

Other reports from La Paz said Socialist party presidential candidate Marcelo Quiroga Santa Cruz was arrested and Bolivia's most prominent labor leader, Juan Lechin Oquendo, was about to be declared a nationwide general strike to resist an imminent military takeover.

The military rebellion began earlier in the day in Trinidad, 600 miles northeast of La Paz, when the 6th Army division took over and Col. Francisco Mourouj demanded President Gueller turn power over to the armed forces.

A communique issued by the 6th Army division denounced as a "road" the June 29 presidential elections that failed to produce a majority winner and forced Congress to select a new leader. It said the electoral process was being manipulated by "international Communism."

Tin miners in southeast Bolivia, expected to be the toughest opponents of the military, blocked highways to show their support for President

Gueller, while the central labor organization asked for international support to oppose the military revolt.

A rebel military communique asked the high command to take power.

Mrs. Gueller was named president when popular resistance forced Col. Alberto Natusch Busch to step down after a coup that lasted only 16 days. He had replaced Walter Guevara Arze, chosen president by Congress in 1976 after elections failed to produce any candidate with an absolute majority.

The same conditions prevailed in the June 29 election. Former President Hernan Siles Zuazo, leader of a center-left coalition, finished first in the 13-man race, with 38 percent of the estimated 1.6 million votes cast.

Bolivia is a nation of six million people, 85 percent of them Andean Indians or mestizos (mixed blood) who live in the most abject poverty in the Western Hemisphere outside of Haiti.

There have been more than 200 changes of government, mostly through military coups, in Bolivia's 154-year history.

Zimbabwe's head of army resigns

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (UPI) — Lt. Gen. Peter Walls, white commander of Zimbabwe's armed forces, will retire despite not completing the integration of former black guerrillas into the regular army, the government announced Thursday.

The integration of the black forces was considered essential to the stability of the newly independent nation.

White military sources close to Walls said he became deeply frustrated in his job because of constant bickering among the commanders of Prime Minister Mugabe's guerrilla force and the rival guerrilla army led by Joshua Nkomo.

Additionally, Walls is reported by close acquaintances to be suffering from pleurisy.

A surprise statement by the government said the general, 54, planned to retire in 12 days and become a civilian in Zimbabwe.

There was no announcement on the tough question of who will succeed Walls, who led the war against the guerrilla fighting for black rule, but then accepted Mugabe's request to stay on to help forge a lasting peace.

Walls' retirement was expected to compound the welter of growing problems confronting Zimbabwe three months after it became independent under black rule.

Commissioners approve development project

Melon Valley support reaffirmed

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — County Commissioners reaffirmed their approval of two planned unit development projects for Melon Valley Thursday.

Merl E. Leonard, commission chairman, said the Royal Crest and Sun Trap Ranch developments that will add about 147 new homes in the area represent the best and highest use of the land in question.

The county commission approved the two developments following public hearings earlier this year, but persons objecting to the projects filed a district court action to block the development.

The district court remanded the case to the county commissioners and asked the board to obtain additional testimony on items used as a basis for the original decision. A public hearing was held July 3 and commissioners reviewed the testimony until announcing the decision Thursday.

Leonard said county officials consider it all cases if the proposed development represents the highest and best use of the land.

"We also take into consideration on cases such as this the livability of the proposed housing and the compatibility of the projects to the geographic area," Leonard said.

He said the land in Melon Valley, at least that in the Royal Crest project, has no water rights. The water was sold off a number of years ago, leaving the land dry and unproductive for crops. In addition, it is hilly and rocky but does provide some excellent view sites for homes.

In testimony during the public hearings, owners and developers said the two projects will be first class, with landscaping, meadow areas left for open space, a man-made lake in the Royal Crest subdivision and large lots.

Leonard added PUD projects are allowable in any county zone, but only after public hearings are held and approval given by county and health department officials.

Those protesting the development include ranchers Roy and Doris Couch, long time residents of Melon Valley, several other nearby property owners and residents of other areas of the county who feel allowing such division of land in an agriculture zone violates the provisions of county planning and zoning regulations and opens the door for the break-up of other agricultural areas.

Opponents say this weakens the county regulations and opens the door to conditions such as those in Blaine and Ada counties. They have also expressed concern for pollution of ground water, which serves most of the ranchers for domestic and irrigation uses.

Leonard said the opponents of the projects may continue their appeals through the court, but the county sees no change in circumstances over the original decision to grant permission for the two projects.

Prepare Booklet readies us for volcanic ash

TWIN FALLS — Volcanic ash from Mount St. Helens never reached the Magic Valley, but a federal agency wants residents prepared if another eruption threatens this area.

Idaho residents have been receiving an emergency preparedness pamphlet outlining what to do during an ashfall. The pamphlets, prepared by the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the Washington State Department of Emergency Services, are being mailed to every postal address in Idaho, Oregon, and Washington. An agency spokesman said 4.1 million pamphlets have been mailed out.

The federal agency spent $475,000 preparing and mailing the manual. Public information officer Heather Schoen said the pamphlet was compiled from information provided by the federal and state agencies, the Mount St. Helens Technical Information Network, geologists and medical personnel.

Since the eight northern Idaho counties were declared disaster areas following the Mount St. Helens eruption, residential and state agencies are being included in the mailing list, Schoen said.

Residents south of Idaho's border are not receiving the pamphlets, but 500,000 copies are available on request to state and local officials and individuals. The agency's regional office in Botwell, Wash., she said.

"We felt that people living in the three states have the possibility of being subject to an eruption, not necessarily Mount St. Helens. But since they live in the Cascade (Mount St. Helens) region, they might have an occasion to use this if there was another eruption," she said. "We felt it was a good idea to have everyone prepared."

Most of the information contained in the pamphlet can be found in any civil defense manual, Schoen acknowledged. But the new pamphlet contains information pertinent to a volcanic ashfall and also provides some reassurance to the public, she said.

"I think the thing we want is preventative medicine. Don't be alarmed by an ashfall if you need it. Keep it around in a place where you can have easy access to use it if you want it," she said.

Among the suggestions for preparing for an ashfall are maintaining extra face masks, a two-week supply of food, a supply of pure water, medicines, first aid kits, battery operated radios and flashlights, blankets, vacuum cleaner filters, extra air and oil filters and extra oil for automobiles.

The pamphlet advises people caught in an ashfall to remain indoors, avoid driving, minimize exertion to reduce breathing ash, keep house doors, windows and dampers closed, to brush, shake and pre-soak laundry and to use extra soap.

The federal agency, which prepared the pamphlet, opened a field office in Vancouver, Wash., shortly after the eruption. Since then, two satellite offices were opened in Spokane, Wash., and Coeur d'Alene.

Schoen said the agency usually prints a pamphlet outlining preventative measures after it moves into an area which has suffered a disaster.

Egyptians may find Idaho lucrative for trade

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans says his trip to the Middle East last week might have been the start of a lucrative trade relationship between Idaho and Egypt.

Evans said the trade conference at Alexandria, Egypt, he attended with his wife, two assistants and representatives of Boise-based Morrison-Knudsen Co. could lead to deals that would provide "substantial" profits to Idaho businesses.

The governor spoke to reporters in his office Wednesday afternoon, about 16 hours after arriving in Boise after his trip to Egypt.

"The Egyptians need American technology and industry," Evans said. "They showed substantial interest in our making investments there."

Evans said Egypt's population growth has far outstripped the country's ability to provide adequate housing and food for its people. He said American assistance and technology could help Egypt solve its loss by spoilage of an estimated 50 percent of its perishable crops.

Evans said a severe water shortage and desperately needs United States help in that area, the governor said. He said states such as Idaho and California have used their water supplies to maximum efficiency and would be able to help the Egyptians.

"If they don't solve their problem, their country will dry up and blow away," Evans said.

Morrison-Knudsen, a worldwide construction corporation based at Boise, discussed potential housing construction projects with the Egyptians, the governor added.

The journey also created the possibility of an Idaho trade delegation to the Middle East, possibly later this year, he said. The governor said he would like to put together such a delegation.

Evans said he missed his first scheduled appointment with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat at Cairo, but got a chance to see the leader at Alexandria.

"President Carter and President Sadat have agreed there will be no more war in the Middle East," Evans said. "They are dedicated to that."

In reference to reports by one news service that he was out of contact for two days and the subject of concern by the U.S. State Department and his staff in Boise, Evans said, "I was not missing."

"I was very comfortable where I was. There was no cause for alarm."

Robert Saxvik, Evans' chief of staff, said the governor was not supposed to check in with his office each day, as was reported.

Evans at first did not want to go to Egypt because of reluctance about similar trips by Idaho officials to the Middle East, Saxvik said.

"He didn't know if he wanted to go, especially after the Libya trip," Saxvik said. "He's glad he didn't go to that one."

Saxvik was referring to the trip taken to Libya three years ago by several Idaho businessmen and politicians, including Republicans Sen. James McClure and Rep. Steve Symms. The officials were criticized for traveling at the expense of the Libyan government, a supporter of terrorist activities.

Public meeting planned

Shoshone BLM seeks comments

HALLEY — The Shoshone District Bureau of Land Management is seeking comments on management of its Sun Valley Planning Area.

A public meeting will be held Aug. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the new Blaine County Courthouse to accept comments on two separate plans affecting resource management in the Sun Valley unit, said Terry Costello, BLM district planning and environment coordinator.

The bureau is completing work on management alternatives affecting all resources in the unit, Costello said. However, meeting participants also will be asked to identify significant issues to be analyzed in an upcoming Sun Valley Grazing Environmental Impact Statement.

"We are trying to avoid the controversy that arose when people said they were not involved early enough in the Shoshone Planning Area EIS," Costello said.

"We would like to have people let us know early in the game what their feelings are rather than after the draft (EIS) is totally done."

Costello said issues deemed less significant after the meeting will be eliminated from the detailed study.

The EIS will identify the bureau's preferred management scheme, including grazing numbers, construction of range improvements and the implementation of rangeland treatments.

Alternatives to the proposed action also will be identified. These will include no change from present management; complete elimination of livestock grazing from the planning area; grazing at reduced levels; and more intensive management to increase forage production.

The planning area includes all public land between Hill City and Craters of the Moon National Monument north of U.S. Highway 20 through Fairfield and Carey and south of the Sawtooth National Forest.

Costello said the 247,000-acre unit presently includes 97 grazing allotments with a maximum range capacity of 19,000 cattle animal-unit-months and 16,000 sheep AUMs.

The unit has received an average annual use during the past five years of 15,000 cattle AUMs and 7,000 sheep AUMs, he said, leaving vegetation within the planning area in generally good condition.

Many ranchers who graze livestock in the unit purposely maintain a larger allotment than they use to enable them to move to where the forage is best, he explained.

The Sun Valley unit includes two potential wilderness study areas, identified as the Big Wood and Freedman roadless areas.

The EIS for the district's third major planning area, the Monument Grazing Unit, is scheduled for completion in 1985, Costello said. It will set management guidelines for all resources in the unit, including wildlife, recreation and timber.

Bureau personnel were not able to treat each of the topics in the first two grazing plans and still stay on a schedule mandated by Congress, he said. The BLM has been charged with developing site-specific plans throughout the West to assure protection of the grazing resource.

Benefit dance set

GOODING — Several Gooding residents are sponsoring a benefit dance Saturday night for seven-week-old Isaac Jerry Bonnes.

Issac, son of John and Dollie Bonnesau of Gooding, was born premature at 1 pound, 12 ounces and is being cared for at Utah Valley Hospital in Provo. The parents weren't insured for the long-term medical expenses which soared to the $20,000 mark in the first month.

The Snake River Outlaws will provide music for the dance which begins at 9 p.m. in the Gooding Armory. Dentey Stephens of Gooding will also sing during the dance. Door prizes, a raffle and an auction will be featured during the evening. Admission will be by donation only.

For additional information or contributing to the benefit fund, interested people may contact Jetty and Dollie Egersdorf of Gooding.

Twin Falls installing booster

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls city crews are working to install a booster pump which they say is needed to provide enough water for fire fighting in several new residential developments.

The pump, which is being installed at the south water tank on Washington Street South, would provide an additional 600 gallons per minute of water in an emergency to the area located south of Orchard Drive.

A three-pump installation now provides 1,200 gallons per minute to the area and that's sufficient for present needs, City Engineer Gary Young said. But 250 platted residential lots in the Twin Falls-Vista-Hunter Vista developments will need more water for fire control, he said. Since those developments now have city approval, construction of residential units could begin anytime, he said.

"They could pop up anytime and we don't want to be caught short," Young said. "We don't have a problem yet, but we want to stay ahead."

The 75-horsepower booster pump, which is being installed at a cost of around $7,000, would kick in only when needed, Young said. The project will be completed in mid-August, he said.

Burglars take cash, jewelry

TWIN FALLS — Burglars entered the home of Paul Ostyn sometime between July 7 and 16, Twin Falls police reported Thursday, taking about $215 in cash and jewelry.

Ostyn said entry was made while the family was away. Someone went through the house taking two watches and some cash.

Officers said it is not known what method of entry was used but investigation is continuing.

Payhike looks favorable

TWIN FALLS — County Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard said Thursday it now looks favorable for a 7 percent pay increase for Twin Falls County employees.

Commissioners are now working on a budget for the coming year and asking recommended budgets from all department heads.

He said County Assessor William Clark has advised that the county will qualify for the 4 percent growth allowance under the current 1 percent tax regulation. This is the maximum being allowed for counties to spend above their 1978 expenditures providing there is adequate growth and service demands.

This year Twin Falls County passed the $1 billion mark in property values. This, Leonard said, certainly reflects a growth factor.

The growth factor allowance would permit the county to add $6,000 to the health district budget as requested, he added, and would help in meeting the cost of salary increases.

Leonard said the amount will not be definite until commissioners are further into the budget, but right now they are working toward a 7 percent increase.

Construction closes road

HAGERMAN — The road at Tuttle will be closed for four days beginning July 21, according to Bob Tupper of the Hagerman Highway District.

He said Shoestring Road will be closed to all traffic because of major work to be done on the Union Pacific Railroad there.

Olmstead says belt-tightening necessary

BOISE (UPI) — If state spending must be slashed to keep the general fund budget in balance, school districts as well as state agencies will have to tighten their belts, Idaho House Speaker Ralph Olmstead said Thursday.

Gov. John Evans said Wednesday he would not know until Aug. 1 whether the states faces a serious funding deficit, which would require budget restrictions or a tax increase.

Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, said by telephone that education could not be saved from possible emergency spending limitations.

He said he thought several state agencies could be hit by — and survive — a 10 percent budget cut, but the schools would have to pull back as well because they account for 75 percent of state general fund allocations.

Tax officials this week have indicated the current revenue situation means Idaho's budget might be $9.7 million in the red by the end of the fiscal year if corrective is not taken.

Olmstead and the Legislature's other top majority Republican, Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge of Soda Springs, said they believed proposals to increase taxes would not be accepted — meaning spending cuts would be the only way to avoid a deficit.

Records show Hansen with campaign debts

BOISE (UPI) — Campaign finance records indicate that Rep. George Hansen had a $6,400 cash reserve at the end of June — but also show that he was saddled with nearly $13,000 in debts.

The Idaho Republican is trying for a sixth term in Congress in his battle against Democratic 2nd District candidate Diane Bilyeu. Hansen so far has overwhelming upset and outcollected Mrs. Bilyeu.

Hansen, of Pocatello, reported receiving $53,700 in campaign contributions during the reporting period. Some $39,500 came from individuals, while political committees gave him almost $14,000.

Hansen's report said he spent about $19,500 — less than he took in during the period — and left some $6,400 in his cash reserve heading into the final five months of the campaign.

But his spending for the first six months of the year added up to $89,500 while he received $32,700 in contributions.

Several previous debts were paid off in the last reporting period, but Hansen still owed money to various companies and individuals.

The Pea Advertising Co., Pocatello, had a $1,725 bill out to Hansen, and Harris Publishing, Idaho Falls, was owed $1,234. Hansen also owed $3,635 to Robert V. Burgal Co., Idaho Falls; Gary Olsen, Idaho Falls, $862; Joyce Ward, Almo, $3,629; and G. Lee Caldwell, Pocatello, $1,883.

Hansen, however, has collected much more money than his Democratic opponent, Mrs. Bilyeu, a former state senator trying to start a first congressional campaign, reported contributions this year of $9,700 to June 30, with expenses listed at about $6,000.

In another federal report received in Boise Thursday, Gooding and Lincoln County areas earlier this year.

Ist District congressional candidate Larry Craig, a Republican, indicated that he collected $42,400 in the most recent period, running his yearly total to $104,600.

Craig, a state senator from Midvale, in May and June took in a reported $20,100 from individuals contributors and $22,200 from political committees.

He said he spent about $7,000 less than he collected during the two months — $35,500.

Craig's report showed he had $8,700 lining his campaign chest on June 30, with debts totaling $10,900. The farmer-rancher also has taken out $25,000 in loans during the campaign, including $5,000 in the May-June period.

Information collected on housing, population, jobs

Development Association serves U.S. Census Bureau

TWIN FALLS — The Region 4 Development Association in Twin Falls serves as a U.S. Census Bureau data center for the local region.

Tom Fleming, executive director for the organization, said Thursday he met during the past week with census officials in Boise to discuss the program.

The regional organization has been asked to collect and analyze information on housing, population, manufacturing, industry, jobs and financial levels within the area.

"We will have access to the computer information which is not printed and circulated on a general basis. This should be a benefit to businesses, local governments and agencies in this area," Fleming said.

He announced the new service during the regional advisory board meeting Thursday afternoon.

Anita Lemmon, monitor for the CETA program, told the board there are now 266 young people working on jobs through CETA and as of the past week, 115 of them are still working for the current year. She said last year's total was 400 persons and it is doubtful this figure will be reached this year. One reason, she said, is that the workers are staying longer, creating less turn-over.

There are 82 work sites involved in this year's program, she said.

John Yeates, regional planner, reported the Housing and Urban Development 701 funding program has not provided any funds as yet pending a decision on the cuts that will be made for the current year. He said Idaho and other states probably face about 12 to 13 percent cuts in their allocations.

He also reported the five projects approved by Region 4 for Economic Development Administration (EDA) funding are now ready for final review by the governor's committee. The review is scheduled for next week to be followed by an announcement of eligibility on the various projects. The board prioritized the five projects in Ketchum, Sun Valley, Shoshone and Gooding and Lincoln County areas earlier this year.

The board reviewed 15 projects for which funding applications have been submitted to various agencies under the A-95 program.

The board voted support to an Alpheus Creek sewer feasibility study for the City of Twin Falls to determine if a powerhouse could be built on the existing 36-inch domestic water pipeline for generation of power. Bill Brock of J.D. Engineers, said the city could either use the power for the waste water treatment plant or sell it to Idaho Power Co.

Other projects supported were the controversial Northridge Subdivision near Halley; an Idaho Department of Health and Welfare project to monitor septic and other construction of agricultural injection wells and domestic water wells in Twin Falls and Idaho Falls areas; a program of the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding to provide training programs in the school; and a Department of Health and Welfare project for upgrading child protective services to prevent sexual abuse of children in Twin Falls county. This program seeks community involvement and a special investigative procedure and assistance for families with sexually misused children.

Start program serving 182 low income children in Cassia, Jerome and Twin Falls counties including 16 handicapped children, and expansion of the existing public transportation system between Ketchum and Sun Valley. In addition the board voted support to the five EDA 304 applications which have been previously given priority under that funding program. These include the Ketchum downtown improvement, Ketchum-Sun Valley Tourist Marketing program, transportation studies including the rail system in the same resort area, a Shoshone business and industrial development feasibility study and solid waste disposal-feasibility study in Gooding and Lincoln counties.

Crash investigation remains

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — Law enforcement officials Thursday evening were awaiting the results of an autopsy of a semi truck driver who rammed his truck into a line of vehicles stopped at a construction site on Interstate 84 Wednesday, causing a four-fatality, multiple-injury accident.

The Elmore County Coroner's office declined to issue information on the autopsy late Thursday, while Idaho State Police Lt. Dennis Sweet said his officers had not been informed of the results.

The autopsy was performed on James D. Russell, 56, Bountiful, Utah, the driver of the semi truck. Three Troutdale, Ore., residents also died in the crash.

Sweet said state police officers and Idaho Transportation Department officials were filtering through the wreckage Thursday in an attempt to discover a clue to the cause of the accident.

"We may never really know what happened but we are going to make an effort to find out," Sweet said. "It takes longer to perform an autopsy on a motor vehicle of the size of a semi truck than it does on a human."

Sweet said Russell's truck plowed into five other vehicles, including a charter bus, waiting in line for a pilot car.

Wendell superintendent moves

Buhl hires elementary principal

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BUHL — Former Wendell Superintendent of Schools Lawrence LaRue is the new principal of Buhl's elementary school.

LaRue, Wendell's top administrator for 13 years, announced his resignation there in February. He fills a job in Buhl held by long-time principal Lee Poppewell, who retired May 30 and was honored by the school board named after him.

LaRue will be in charge of one of the state's largest elementary schools, with about 800 students and 55 staff members and teachers.

Buhl Superintendent Robert Pratt said the school board decided to hire LaRue in a special meeting Tuesday night.

"I'm happy to have him here," Pratt said. "It's a key position for us because of the size of the school."

LaRue said he is looking forward to his new job and faces a big challenge, both men said they anticipate having an excellent working relationship.

LaRue said he resigned at Wendell because he operated this past year as both superintendent and principal of the high school, which was "more than one person could do."

"I felt that was a challenge, but I did not do this past year," he said. "I thought a school board was looking for a change. He resigned in February to give the board plenty of time to find a successor," LaRue said.

At Poppewell Elementary School, he said he looks forward to having more time during the summer and in the evenings to pursue outside interests and spend with his family.

Pratt said he will commute from his home in Wendell for the time being.

Pratt said he asked Wendell school board members about LaRue and found "no problem whatever."

Pratt said a field of seven candidates for the principal's job had been narrowed to two before this week. The second finalist was Mrs. Chris Charlton, a counselor at Twin Falls High School.

"The deciding factor I think was experience," Pratt said. "I am happy in a way he has been a superintendent. He has gone through the gauntlet of being teacher, vice principal, principal and superintendent. He understands my problems and will know when I need something. He has not had a lot of recent experience in elementary, but that can be overcome with his dedication."

LaRue will be earning a salary of $21,000 at Buhl compared to $22,500 at Wendell. He said he may be able to make up the small difference in the summer because he has a distributorship for some agricultural products and roofing materials.

He officially starts work Aug. 15 but will be interviewing prospective teachers next week.

LaRue holds an administrative certificate from the state of Idaho endorsing him for the positions of superintendent and high school and elementary principal.

CHALLIS — The Challis National forest recreation report indicates nearly all areas are now open for camping.

In the Challis Ranger District, all roads are open except Sleeping Deer Road. Mill creek summit is open and all campgrounds and campsites are open except those along Sleeping Deer Road.

The Lost River Ranger District, with headquarters in Mackay, reports some roads are rough because of a long wet spring, but all are open. Nearly all mountain lakes are open but some are still frozen including Baple, Goat and Betty Lakes in Broad Canyon.

The Yonkers Fork Ranger District, a few high back country roads are still closed although Mill Creek Road is open and all lower elevation roads are open for travel.

The Custer-Mountaintop has opened for the season and items formerly displayed at Saturday Mountain Resort are now in the Custer Museum.

Wendell boy, 4, drowns in tube

WENDELL — A 4-year-old boy was pronounced dead Wednesday after being swept through a 90-foot irrigation tube.

Jason Crooker, son of Charles and Barbara Crooker of Wendell, fell into a raging irrigation canal about 6:30 p.m. and was swept through a culvert beneath Otis Luman road, according to Wendell Police Chief Otis Luman.

"The boy lived in the Valley View Mobile Park and had gone about 100 feet from his home across Frontage road and was throwing rocks into the ditch where it spills over a small dam," Lumpkin said. "The water really swift there and apparently he slipped and went into the ditch. He was washed into a four-foot-diameter pipe. His father found the youngster about 150 yards downstream from where he fell in."

Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and resuscitating equipment were used on the child by Wendell firemen, but the boy could not be revived.

"This is the year for high water in the canals and we have plenty of them around here," Lumpkin said of the accident.

Lumpkin said he is concerned about other possible drownings this summer because of the open irrigation water can sweep a small child away. He stressed that parents should take special measures this year to prevent canal accidents.

Demos still unhappy with special session

BOISE (UPI) — Managers of the Idaho Health and Welfare Department are undergoing heavy fire from several Democratic legislators who still are unhappy about the special session of the Legislature last May.

Gov. John Evans is aware of the complaints but has not discussed them with Milton Klein, director of the department, said Robert Saxvik, the governor's chief of staff.

The controversy surfaced after the special session of the Legislature in May when the Republican-controlled body knocked down all of Evans' proposals, including two Health and Welfare measures.

The protesting legislators — including House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott and Reps. Gary Gould and Dwight Horsch — said they were misled during the special session of the Legislature about available health and welfare funding.

The legislators also have complained about the long-term, overall administration of the agency and expressed fear that their ability to bargain next year in the Legislature might be impaired because of the special session episode.

In the special session, the department said there was no way to cover a budget shortfall in the Aid to Dependent Children program but to appropriate more money.

After the Democrat-supported appropriations proposal failed, the department said there was money in another account that could be transferred to cover the children's payments. The board of examiners approved the transfer and it turned out that no extra money had been needed from the Legislature immediately.

Unhappy lawmakers approached Evans and members of his staff at the Democratic convention at Pocatello in mid-June, saying something had to be done about the department's administration.

"I think he's (Klein) lost his credibility as a result of the information he gave the governor and gave the Legislature," said Horsch, D-Aberdeen. Horsch said the House lawmakers first were told one there was no money to be transferred but found out the opposite after they had helped pass the ADC bill that survived in the House by died in the Senate.

"The life span of the average Health and Welfare director is only four or five years anyway," Horsch said. "He's probably done it in. I think something's going to happen."

Horsch said he had been asked by a member of Klein's staff whether he was going to pursue his complaints, and he said he would.

Gould, D-Pocatello, said the department's change of position during the special session "puts us in a bad light and ruins the department's credibility" in the Legislature.

"I can't see after the Medicaid and ADC squabbles that the department will have any credibility with the next session," Gould said. "And it's not going to hurt anyone but the people who used those services the most."

Saxvik said Evans had no thoughts of disciplining or dismissing any Health and Welfare administrators. Klein, who has headed the agency for 4 1/2 years, said he had no intention of resigning.

Klein said the funds to cover the ADC shortfall were transferred from the depleted Medicaid account only at the risk of a lawsuit from nursing homes angry about not receiving full Medicaid payments from the state. "In my opinion that was always made extremely clear," he said.

He said he thought the legislators knew from the start that any transfer would be "highly risky" and that it was imperative that the extra appropriation be made. "We took a chance (with the transfer)," he said. "It was foolhardy. It just worked out. We weren't sued."

Doris Schneider, a spokesman for Klein, said the Health and Welfare director was in "an absolutely no-win" position.

Symms says Reagan has momentum

BLACKFOOT (UPI) — A "Reagan Revolution" is gathering momentum in Idaho as interest in the 1980 presidential election grows, Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, told the Blackfoot Exchange Club today.

"Personally, I believe we're going to have a Reagan Revolution this fall here in Idaho and throughout the country," Symms said during a campaign appearance. He is vying for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Democrat Frank Church.

"The American people are turning to the Republican Party because they believe that the GOP has the answers and the courage, commitment and conviction to break with the past in order to meet the future," he said.

Symms defined the "Reagan Revolution" as a "realization that the Great Society programs of the 1960s and the regulatory policies of the 1970s won't be able to meet the challenge of the 1980s."

"But most of all it's a restoration of optimism and faith in America," he added. "Lower taxes, fiscal responsibility, military strength second to none, job opportunities, economic growth — this is the Reagan Revolution is all about."

Two charged with lizard smuggling

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Two Idaho men have pleaded no contest to charges of smuggling lizards into the United States from Mexico.

Jerry L. Korn, 32, and Michael A. Domy, 35, both of Cambridge, Idaho, entered the pleas Wednesday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Gormley.

Gormley imposed suspended jail sentences on Korn and fined Korn $1,000 and Domy $500. Korn was placed on probation for three years and Domy for 18 months.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger Dokken said the case was the first of its kind in Arizona.

The charges against the two were based on Mexican law forbidding exportation of iguanas and U.S. law forbidding their importation, except for scientific purposes.

Dokken said Korn and Domy tried to smuggle 76 iguanas, 29 other lizards and two rattlesnakes across the border at San Juan del Rio, Mexico. The animals were in bags in the truck of Korn's vehicle, he said.

Dokken said the animals were seized and taken to the Arizona-Sonoran Desert Museum. He said 33 of the 121 died.

Three other counts against Korn and Domy were dismissed. They accused the pair of exporting the animals from the Mexico without a permit, importing the rattlesnakes and transporting animals under inhumane, unhealthy conditions.

Man faces rape charge

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — A 31-year-old Boise man is the first under a 1977 state law to be charged with the rape of his estranged wife, said the Canyon County prosecuting attorney's office today.

Bert Eckwartzel, Boise, was arrested Wednesday morning and booked into Canyon County jail Wednesday afternoon to await arraignment, scheduled for today, authorities said.

Eckwartzel is accused of raping his wife, Norma, at her home in Nampa on the morning of July 2, Nampa police said. Officers said she reported the incident to police at 1:43 a.m. July 2.

Lynn E. Thomas, deputy attorney general, said to his knowledge it was the first time a rape charge had been filed in Idaho accusing a husband of raping his wife.

BLM controls range fire

GOODING, Idaho (UPI) — Bureau of Land Management firefighters controlled a 100-acre range fire between Gooding and Wendell shortly after midnight Thursday.

Shoshone BLM district dispatcher Dale Chatterton said the fire was reported at 9:20 p.m. Wednesday. He said 11 firefighters dispatched to the blaze were equipped with two ground tankers and one pickup truck water pumper.

Low night-time temperatures and an absence of wind helped firefighters control the fire quickly, Chatterton said.

Mount St. Helens fires attacked

Finally calm enough to fight smoldering area

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Firefighters flew into the hills surrounding Mount St. Helens Wednesday to put out smoldering fires still left from the volcano's cataclysmic May 18 eruption.

Nervous U.S. Forest Service officials had refrained from sending the crews into the area until now because of the danger of another eruption, spokesman Norma Koski said.

Yesterday with no seismic activity and a steam plume drifting to about 11,000 feet.

To minimize risks the fire fighting will be done only during daylight hours, Koski said, and a helicopter will stand by for an evacuation if the mountain does erupt.

Oregon State University seismologist Mike Fehler, meanwhile, said some of the tremors recorded at Oregon's Mount Hood last week were actually caused by dynamite blasting from a construction project.

Crews were flown into an area mostly east of the volcano, in the Gifford Pinchot National Forest, for their work. No estimates were made on the number of fires to be put out.

And an official of the U.S. Geological Survey's Hawaiian volcano observatory who has been studying the Mount St. Helens eruptions said he does not expect Mount Hood to erupt.

Thomas Casadevall said the earthquakes at Mount Hood simply weren't strong enough to trigger an eruption.

The union decided to post pickets at ten of the city's busiest hotels, including the St. Francis, Hilton, Hyatt Regency, Mark Hopkins, Sir Francis Drake and the Fairmont on Nob Hill.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Some 6,000 employees of San Francisco's largest hotels walked off the job today in a strike that could cripple the city's $1 billion dollar tourism industry, now in its peak season.

Hotel, Restaurant and Bartenders Local 2 called the strike after a marathon bargaining session broke off shortly before 5 a.m. P.M.T. A union official said negotiators voted 23-0 to end the talks and begin the walkout.

The 38 hotels hit by the strike are only a fourth of the hotels in San Francisco but provide half of the city's 28,000 rooms. Some were expected to close while officials at others said they would at least honor current guest commitments.

The union decided to post pickets at ten of the city's busiest hotels, including the St. Francis, Hilton, Hyatt Regency, Mark Hopkins, Sir Francis Drake and the Fairmont on Nob Hill.

It was unclear how many other workers would honor the picket lines. The Teamsters, Joint Council No. 1, voted Wednesday to honor pickets set up by the hotel workers' union. The Teamsters represent front desk clerks, electrical workers, garage workers, taxi drivers, and drivers of numerous delivery trucks, including laundry.

The walkout followed an all-night bargaining session with a federal mediation team, 28 union negotiators and representatives from the Hotel Employers Association of San Francisco.

Union members had voted July 7 to walk off the job today unless a new contract was reached covering employees ranging from chief cooks to bellhops, dishwashers, stewards and maids.

The main stumbling blocks in the talks were wages and working conditions.

The San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau set up an emergency hotel referral service to handle problems caused by the strike. Manager Robert Sullivan said the service would provide information about rooms available at unaffected hotels and motels in nearby cities.

As the strike deadline neared, some of the hotel's hired security guards and boarded up street-level windows with plywood to prevent broken windows that glaziers would not cross picket lines today, some hotel officials said they would hire temporary replacements to back up management personnel for the duration of the strike.

Sullivan said uncertainty over the labor problems had already caused a 20 percent drop in business for the city's hotels, taxis, restaurants and retail stores since the hotel workers' contract expired July 1.

WSU wants ash question answered

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Washington State University president Glenn Terrell has asked the National Academy of Sciences to commission a panel of scientists to try and resolve the mineralogy of Mount St. Helens' ash.

The center of the controversy is between scientists from WSU and the University of Washington who have opposing opinions about the ash, particularly as to whether it contains cristobalite, a crystalline, glass-like silica known to cause long-term lung disease.

WSU geology professor Ronald Soren conducted tests of the ash after the May 18 eruption and reported "little or no cristobalite but a silicate known as plagioclase, which in some tests can be mistaken for cristobalite but is not considered to be a health hazard."

Dr. G.J. Goble of the UW department of Environmental Health disagrees with Soren's evaluation. He said some of the samples tested at his lab contain as much as 12 percent cristobalite, and in the long run, could lead to silicosis.

Both scientists have corroborated testimony from independent laboratories and scientists, leading Terrell to seek a blue-ribbon panel that, perhaps, both sides could ultimately accept.

Glider crash investigated

TUCSON (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administration investigators are investigating the crash of a glider plane that left a 57-year-old Tucson man dead.

The accident at 12:50 p.m. Wednesday occurred at Ryan Air Field about 15 miles west of Tucson.

Yuma County Sheriff's information officer Steve Mark Pettit said Julian Martin died instantly when the glider crashed on takeoff after being released from the engine-powered tow-plane too soon.

The pilot of a Piper super cub tow-plane, Donald McElligot of Tucson, told deputies the tow cable disconnected from the glider between 50 and 100 feet above the runway for an unknown reason.

Usually the line does not disconnect until the planes reach 1,500 to 3,000 feet of altitude, Pettit said, adding the glider winged to right and crashed in the desert about 1/2 mile from the runway.

Martin was an 8-year veteran of the Ryan Field Soaring Club, Pettit said.

3 teenagers arrested

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Three Wyoming teen-agers arrested in Provo were returned to their home state Thursday to face charges in the shooting death of a Nebraska couple.

The three suspects were picked up by Provo Police Wednesday. They were reportedly driving a car stolen from Pine Bluff, Wyo. The youths were wanted in connection with the Sunday slaying of Sam Frank, 23, of North Platte, Neb., and his 18-year-old wife, Doris.

Frank's body was found Sunday night near Cheyenne, Wyo. Beside him was the body of the family dog. Mrs. Frank's body was not discovered until Wednesday night, near Pine Bluff, Wyo. She was found in a culvert, along with the bodies of three puppies.

Laramie County, Wyo., Sheriff Dennis Flynn identified the suspects as Dean Wood, 17, Robin Sanders, 17, and Sanders, 15-year-old brother, Brady. All three are from Casper, Wyo.

The three suspects were arrested after Officer Craig Geislon spotted the stolen car. Geislon radioed for backup and they then stopped the youths. They surrendered without incident.

The youths waived an extradition hearing late Wednesday and were returned to Cheyenne, Wyo., early Thursday. Wyoming prosecutors said the suspects will be charged as adults.

Migrant worker charged in kidnapping

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — A 24-year-old migrant worker formerly of the Hammett Labor Camp has been charged with second-degree kidnapping of a 13-year-old Hammett girl, said Elmore County Sheriff Bob Mendola Thursday.

Mendola said Jorge Cruz Gonzales and the girl, San Juanita Tlerna, left the camp June 14.

Holmes-Ali fight finalized—for third time—in Vegas

NEW YORK (UPI) — The much-heralded heavyweight confrontation between World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes and former world champion Muhammad Ali, shunted around the world from Taiwan to Kuwait to Egypt, received a new locale Wednesday — Caesars Palace in Las Vegas on Oct. 2.

Promoter Don King, who announced the new date and site, accepted a $1 million check from Clifford Perlman, chairman of the board for Caesars Palace, as a down payment.

Alli, who will be fighting for the first time in more than two years when he attempts to win the heavyweight title for an unprecedented fourth time, will get $6 million. Holmes, who has defended his crown three times this year and tied Joe Louis' record of seven consecutive wins in local defenses, will get $4 million plus additional interests which could bring him up to $6 million.

The fight, which King claims can gross more than $30 million, will be shown on television and will not be available on home television.

Wednesday's news conference announcing the fight was the third previous announcement had it going to Rio de Janeiro in July and Cairo in September — and it was vintage Ali. All ranted and raved, challenged Holmes, climbed over tables and chairs after him, shadow boxed for photographers, recited poetry and put on an act which has become standard fare for boxing news conferences.

"Larry Holmes is a great champion," said Ali. "I knocked out Ezzard Charles and I couldn't. That was one of my toughest fights and it made me jealous. I had three tough, close fights with Ken Norton and Holmes beat him. He's a great champion and so when I beat him, I will truly be king of kings, the greatest of all time.

"No man has ever won the heavyweight title four times. I can do it, do something that no one else has ever done. Larry Holmes made me mad. I watched on television when he called me 'old man' and told me to stay home in my rocking chair. I got so mad I knew I had to come back and teach him a lesson."

Holmes, who was furious after his knockout victory over Scott Ledoux at Bloomington, Minn., on July 15 because of Ali's ringside clowning, was more subdued on Wednesday during the lengthy news conference in a packed, steamy hotel room with temperatures near 100 degrees.

"You can call me anything you want," Holmes told Ali, "as long as they call me Mr. Holmes at the bank."

"I'm not fighting him for the money," Holmes said. "I don't even know how much I'm getting. I don't worry about money. I'm rich already. He's the guy who needs the money. I just want the recognition. I want people to know who the heavyweight champion of the world is. I'm tired of the old man running around shouting off his mouth. He doesn't respect me so I'll earn his respect by knocking him out."

"That's funny" — he talks about knocking me out but he can't even remember the last time he knocked somebody out (Jean-Pierre Cooman, San Juan, Puerto Rico, February, 1976). He hasn't hurt anybody in the ring in years."

Chuck Geska. Buhl, won another Super Stock 1st place trophy at Thunder Bluff Raceway Wednesday night

Geska expects education back home

By MIKE PRATER

Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Bull's Chuck Geska is going home to Skagit County, Wash.

Geska, the top super stock driver at Twin Falls Thunderbluff Raceway for the past two years, left Thursday afternoon in a diesel truck with two cars, another driver, and an anxious crew, for a weekend trip to Skagit County, Speedway — Geska's "home surface."

"I've been waiting for this moment for five years now. I can't wait to get back home," he said Wednesday night following his first heat race on the evening's schedule at Thunderbluff. "All my family is up there, and a lot of my friends are still racing there. I'm really looking forward to making this trip. It's going to be one hell of an experience."

Geska, 40, started his racing career at the Washington speedway eight years ago, and as a joke, he said.

"I had a service station in town, and I was sponsoring some cars that ran at Skagit every week," he said through his dirt-drenched beard.

"One day I went out there and watched them race, and I thought I could do better. Well, it turned out I couldn't, but I enjoyed myself and stuck with it."

Since then, Geska has earned over 70 trophies, a relatively modest amount of money, and a huge knowhow for the sport of racing.

Although Geska knows every nook and cranny of a car, he admits that one of the reasons for the trip west is to advance his knowledge even further on the fast-moving sport.

"The cars up there are running five and six years ahead of us down here. They're running 80 and 90 thousand dollar cars compared to my $5,000 one, and their knowledge on the sport is far ahead of anyone's around here," the eight-year veteran said. "If we can go up there, run some races, watch the other guys and have a tough in the pack, I'll be happy. That's the whole purpose of the trip — to run and get educated."

Despite the reason for the trip, Geska and his crew are still heading west with winning on their mind. How couldn't they when they'll be running for a $20,000 purse, compared to a few hundred dollars the local track every week.

"I'm never going to a race I don't think I can win. I'll be racing up against some pretty stiff competition, but my car moves and I've got a new engine in it, so we're looking pretty good at a shot for some of that money."

Geska, since that first night out in a racing car eight years ago, has encountered several ups and downs with his new hobby. His latest down occurred at last year's Fourth of July race at Thunderbluff.

Geska totaled his car when a racer in front spun out, caused a screen of dust that blinded Geska. With his car going at top speed, Geska pounded into the helpless car in front of him, totaling out the front end of his machine along with the other driver's car.

"When that happened, I said to hell with it. I quit, no more nonsense, and I did too," Geska said in one of his more serious tones of the night.

"I quit, I started concentrating on my job and family more and totally gave up the sport, it was getting too expensive anyway."

Geska explained his entry back into racing, as if he thought he made a mistake.

"The crew I was working with got antsy to get back into it, and my sponsors agreed to get me another car, and actually I was forced into the deal," he said. "I had all the crew standing around like dogs begging for me to come back. They wanted to get back into it, and they couldn't without me driving."

"A car was donated to me, and there was really no way to say no. We just put a brand new engine worth about $5,000 dollars in it three weeks ago, and it runs like a beauty," he said just before jumping in the #69 bright red car he loves to talk about for the night's main event.

"Without this crew and my sponsors, I wouldn't be anywhere where I am today. They've done it all. I just drive."

Geska, with his antsy crew, will find out what racing is all about when they encounter Skagit's 3/8 clay-track over the next two days.

When they come back to Twin Falls Monday, they hope to have a little extra money in their pocket, but more importantly, Geska and his four-man crew hope to have a bit more knowledge of the racing sport.

Canyon Springs kicks tourney off Saturday

TWIN FALLS — A rematch of last week's playoff for runner-up in the state tournament may highlight the Canyon Springs Amateur this weekend.

Bill Spencer of Burley and Las Vegas, who nipped Twin Falls' Mike Hamblin on the fifth overtime hole, to win the state runner-up honors, has ended the event.

He joins a 16-man championship flight that spans 0-4 in handicaps.

The tournament gets underway at 8 a.m. Saturday and host Professional Jim Packard said three spots remain available.

The field has been broken into five flights on basis of handicap. The championship is 0-4, first flight 5-9, second flight 10-12, third flight 13-16 and final flight 17 and over. Only the fourth flight will offer prizes.

Pairings and tee-off times for Saturday's opening round include:

8 a.m., Price, Leontelli, Bucher and Jeng; 8:10, F. McRoberts, Brindley, Allen Castee; 8:20, Wood, Langdon, Miraclio, Hove; 8:36, Schramm, Noel Parker; 8:40, McCollum, Hendrix, Edson, Watkins; 8:50, Vanoski, Ness, Hougden, Hopkins.

9 a.m., Hamblin, Frank, Driscoll, Toolson; 9:10, Hildane, Davenport, Renelt, Ford; 9:20, Featherston, Davison, Harvis, Keith; 9:30, Seal, Ochsner, Clark, Elchart; 9:40, Elledge, Blake, Rees, Prather; 9:50, Hulbert, Menapace, Saxvik, McNew, and 10 a.m., E. Purves, Duffel, Packard, Keeney.

Afternoon
12:20 p.m., J. Jenkins, Haynes, Calin; 12:30, M. Hanchey, Dorland, Schindler, Limer, Black, Spackman, Burton, G. Jenkins; 12:50, Meyerhoeffer, Standley, Hickman, Thaler; 1 p.m., Schlagenhaut, Klassen, Holmes, Dugger; 1:10, Miller, Purves, Grant, Ballard.

1:20, P. Hanchey, Blakeley, Skyles, Cutler; 1:30, Spencer, McRoberts, Hase, Duncan; 1:40, Van Engelen, Fisher, Webster; 1:50, Brodeen, Pearson, Durbin, Solj.

U.S. claims 10 of 14 Liberty Bell events

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Mary Decker, setting records on an almost daily basis, set an American record in the 1,500-meter run Thursday night — her second national mark in less than a week — to highlight the Liberty Bell Track and Field Classic.

Running over a track soaked by an earlier thunderstorm, Decker went out from the opening gun and was never headed as she covered the distance in 4:00.67, faster than her previous mark of 4:01.17, set last Saturday in West Germany.

Decker was part of the U.S. Olympic Team's domination in its only domestic appearance of the so-called "Alternative Olympics" for athletes from 29 nations boycotting the Moscow Games.

World record holder Renaldo Nehemiah was the biggest surprise of the meet. Meet officials announced earlier that he had scratched himself from competition because of an injury, but he arrived and proceeded to lose the field in the 110-meter hurdles in 1:31.28 seconds.

The U.S. Olympic Team came in first in 10 of 14 running events in the rain-marred meet before a crowd of 20,111.

Steve Scott of the United States won the 1500-meter run in a rather slow 3:40.1. Scott captured the lead at the end of the back stretch and held off a late rush by Sudan's Khalifa Omar Kalifa to break the tape first in a time of 3:40.19.

One world record holder who did drop out of the meet was German Guido Kreutz, who left the field after the seventh event when he failed to score in the discus. America's Bob Coffman capitalized on his absence to win the grueling 10-event competition with 8,058 points.

Decker, who ran quite a few races at Franklin Field while at Villanova, uncharacteristically ran from the front and out-kicked Kalifa in the 800. Paige's time was 1:47.19, eight hundredths of a second better than Kalifa. American Randy Wilson was third.

The United States posted 1-3-0 finishes in the men's and women's 100-meter dash and in the 400-meter hurdles. Mel Littany barely nipped Harvey Glance in the 100 in a time of 10.31, Chandra Cheeseborough was the decisive winner in the women's 100 in 11.27 and James Walker captured the hurdles in 48.6.

American James Butler nipped teammate Fred Taylor in the 200-meter dash, winning in a time of 20.65 seconds while Canada's Angella Taylor took the women's 200 in 22.77.

Gwen Gardner took the women's 400, breaking away from competitors Charmaine Crooks and American teammate Roberta Belle to cross the tape in 52.04 seconds. Yvonne Mondesires of Canada broke the American domination for the moment by holding off Robin Campbell of the U.S. on the homestretch to take the 800 in 2:02.3.

Stephanie Hightower of the U.S. broke away from the pack to take the women's 100-meter hurdles in 1:38.77, nipping teammate Bonita Fitzgerald (1:37.17) and Ester Rot of Israel (1:37.20).

Billy Koncellah of Kenya survived a five-man battle in the 400 by hitting the tape in 45.59 seconds, just one tick ahead of Sudan's Kasheer Hassan.

The Chinese team had three first place finishes in field since 1964 at St. Andrews, and that was the worst I've ever played golf in."

Ben Plackett of the U.S. outdistanced veteran teammate Al Oerter to take the discus with a throw of 201.8 while Oerter's best effort was 199.4. In other field events, Nagu Asaad of Egypt won the shotput at 64-7 1/4; Scott Nielson of Canada captured the hammer throw at 236-3 and Laurie Kern of Canada took the women's javelin at 138-5.

The rain delayed the meet well into the night, delaying many of the jumping events.

Ben Field nipped American teammate Nat Paige on fewer misses at 7-5 to upset world record holder Dietmar Mogenburg of West Germany in the high jump. Mogenburg could do no better than a third place tie at 7-3 1/4.

Larry Myricks, ranked No. 1 in the world in the long jump, won his specialty at 28-10 3/4; American teammate Tom Hinshaw took the pole vault 18 feet-16 1/2 inch and Zou Zhenxin of China, won the triple jump at 55-9 1/4.

Among the women, Zheng Dazhen gave the Chinese team its fourth title in field events, taking the high jump at 6-3 1/4. Kathy McMillan of the United States captured the long jump at 21-9 3/4.

The Americans capped their sensational night on the track by sweeping the 400- and 1,600-meter relays. They took the men's 400 in 38.61 and 1,600 in 3:03.30 and the women's in 44.57 and 3:32.69.

Kip Bonos of Kenya nipped countryman Hillary Turvel to take the 5,000 in 15:37.52.

Seeds survive pro upset bids

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Third-seeded Gene Mayer and seventh-seeded Victor Pecci survived close calls Thursday before rallying to advance to a quarterfinal meeting in the $75,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Playing in the third straight day of oppressive heat, Mayer saved two match points in the 12th game of the second set and went on to beat 10th-seeded Elliot Teltscher 5-7, 7-6, 6-1.

Mayer, trailing 5-6 in the second set, saved the first match point with a forehand volley and the second when his backhand hit the top of the net and trickled over. He then won the second set 6-4.

Pecci also survived disaster, coming within three points of elimination at the hands of 13th-seeded Terry Moor. But Moor, leading 6-2, 5-4, suddenly lost control of the match and Pecci reclaimed off nine straight games to post a 2-4, 7-6, 6-0 victory.

Also advancing was giant-killer Van Wijnalsky, who Wednesday ousted second-seeded Harold Solomon in a three-hour match.

Watson, Trevino share lead

MURFIELD, Scotland (UPI) — Tom Watson and Lee Trevino, the straight man and the joker, defied gusting winds and heavy rain to match 3-under-par 68 Thursday and share a one-shot lead in the opening round of the British Open.

"I expect these conditions when I come here," said Trevino, whose five birdies included two putts in 18 feet and another of 20. "God save me if it gets hot here. I don't have anything cool to wear."

Watson, who has produced some of his most spectacular rounds when most men would prefer to be indoors, also had five birdies thanks to outstanding driving and putting, and agreed with Trevino that the weather wasn't much of a hindrance.

"As long as I kept my hands warm and my grip dry, it wasn't too bad," he said. "I prefer to play in 65 degree, shirt-sleeve weather but I practice a lot in the winter in Kansas City and I imagine that has something to do with it."

Given continued poor conditions, Trevino says he leans toward Watson, the only man who has earned more money than him on the U.S. tour this year.

"In off weather, I like to go with flat bellies, and he's one," Trevino said. "I'm very thick. A fireplug like myself — I have 25-inch thighs and a 36-inch waist when it gets cold, I don't have the mobility."

Jack Nicklaus, playing in his 19th consecutive British Open, wore two sweaters and mittens while shooting a 73 and said of the conditions, "I'd say this was the worst day we've played in at a British Open since 1964 at St. Andrews, and that was the worst I've ever played golf in."

Ben Plackett of the U.S. Open champion, aside from getting in out of the rain, was a 40-foot putt to save par on the final hole.

Five men were tied for second at 69, including Britons Nick Faldo, Mark James and Glenn Ralph, a qualifier, Australian Jack Newton and Vicente Fernandez of Argentina.

Hoch equals record in Quad-cities meet

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (UPI) — Tour rookie Scott Hoch fired a record-matching 7-under par 63 Thursday to lead the first round of the 10th annual $200,000 Quad Cities Open.

Hoch, who turned pro last September and has played in only 150 PGA tournaments, had eight birdies and one bogey to post 32 and 31 on the sunny, par-70, 6,514-yard course at Oakwood Country Club.

Hoch held a two-stroke lead over Dan Hallidorsen, 28, Shilo, Manitoba, Bill Sander, 24, Seattle, and Tom Jones, 28, Tulsa, Okla., who shot rounds of 5-under-par 68.

Next in line at 4-under 66 were Gary Koch of Temple Terrace, Fla., Howard Twitty of Paradise Valley, Ariz., Jim Barber of Clearwater, Fla., Tommy Valentine of Gainsville, Ga., Calvin Peete of South Bay, Fla., Harry Taylor of Nashville, Tenn., and Mike Sullivan of Ocala, Fla.

Eight tied at 3-under par 67. Hoch, 24, said he was surprised to find out he matched the course record. Six others have tied the record set by John Schroeder in 1973.

Haney Seed wins title

GLENN'S FERRY — Haney Seed of Twin Falls took first place in the Glenn's Ferry women's slowpitch fun day invitational over the week.
The Twin Falls team, headed by MVP Laura Detmer, took the title with five straight wins. Haney's defeated their counterparts from Glenn's Ferry 25-10; Tom and Jerry's Plumbing of Twin Falls 10-5; the DePT of Glenn's Ferry 16-4; Lowe's Ready Mix of Shoshone 7-6 and Gooding Livestock 9-3.

Leukemia kills Jordan

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — Ralph "Shug" Jordan, the Southern basketball coach who lifted Auburn University football to its lowest depth to national prominence, died early Thursday of leukemia.
Jordan, 69, died at his home with his family at his bedside. He had been confined to his home for several months. Doctors said Jordan experienced no pain at the end.

Shug Jordan

"I was saddened very much by the death of Alabama's Paul 'Bear' Bryant, a personal friend but longtime rival on the gridiron. 'I thought he was a real class gentleman and a great football coach.'

Court won't stop fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — A state Supreme Court justice in Manhattan refused to intervene Thursday in a suit by Don King Productions against Top Rank Inc. and QBS-TV over a light heavyweight fight in New Jersey scheduled for this weekend.

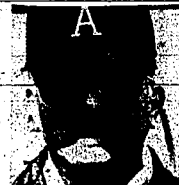

The bout between Jerry Martin and Eddie Mustafa Muhammad is scheduled to take place Sunday in Great George, but Don King Productions is asking to stop the bout because it claims that it has the rights to Martin.

Kaat might retire

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Pitcher Jim Kaat may leave the St. Louis Cardinals next year to work for a cable television station.
Kaat already has begun negotiations for next season's contract with the Cardinals management and said he has to know within a few weeks whether he will be with the team, or working behind a microphone.
"I'm making no ultimatums or trying to stick them to the wall," said Kaat, 41. "I've got to know within a few weeks because I have several cable television opportunities open to me in the east."

Saban leaves West Point

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Lou Saban has resigned as head coach of the U.S. Military Academy's football team and will be replaced by Army's offensive line coach Ed Cavanaugh.

Lou Saban

West Point officials said Saban handed in his resignation Thursday effective immediately. Maj. Tim Carahan, Army's public information officer, said the resignation came as the result of a "difference of opinion on types of changes" needed to come up with a winning football team.
Army's record for 1979 was 2-8-1.

U.S. protests flag's use

MOSCOW (UPI) — A senior aide to President Carter Thursday refused to let the International Olympic Committee (IOC) strongly object to any use of the U.S. flag and national anthem at the Moscow Olympics.

Counsel to the President, Lloyd Cutler, in a letter to IOC director Monique Berlioux, said the use of the Stars and Stripes or of "The Star-Spangled Banner" at the Aug. 3 closing ceremony of the Olympic Games would be "highly inappropriate."

Women's pro team signs Ellenberger

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Former University of New Mexico basketball coach Norm Ellenberger, who faces trial on fraud charges stemming from the UNM athletic scandal, was named Thursday as general manager and coach of a professional women's team still to be formed.

Ellenberger was selected to coach the Albuquerque franchise in the new Ladies Professional Basketball Association because he is a celebrity and a winner, said team owner Mike Valentine, a Cincinnati businessman who said he plans to move to Albuquerque.

Valentine and Ellenberger appeared at a news conference, along with former UNM women's star

Jeanne Rostermundt, who was the team's No. 1 draft choice. Valentine announced Rostermundt has signed a contract.
Valentine said he expects to have the new women's team formed, named and ready to play by December.

Seattle mum on future for Johnson

SEATTLE (UPI) — Will Darrell Johnson, the only manager the Seattle Mariners have ever had, be fired at the end of the 1980 baseball season? Club president Dan O'Brien is refusing to tip his hand at this point.
"This is only July — how can I say?" O'Brien told a reporter. "Things can change from day to day."

O'Brien hasn't been among Johnson's biggest boosters ever since O'Brien was named the team's chief executive in January, 1979.
O'Brien previously disclosed that he nearly fired Johnson early in the 1979 season when the Mariners went into a tailspin and lost 11 straight games.

In the spring, O'Brien refused Johnson's request for an extension on his contract expiring at the end of the current season.
It is generally acknowledged that the Mariners have the best talent in the club's four-year history, including one of the better pitching staffs in the American League's Western Division. But that hasn't been apparent in the win-loss column ever since the first part of the 1980 season.

Seattle was 23-24 coming into June, just five games out of first place. It's been mostly downhill since then, including a streak of five losses in six games after the All-Star break that has dropped the club 14 games under .500.

Without revealing any details, O'Brien is promising a complete, post-season reworking of the Mariners that will include changes in the team, front office and farm system.

That could include Johnson, who joined the Mariners in September of 1978. He had been released by the Boston Red Sox that July after winning the American League pennant the year before.

Under Johnson, the Mariners compiled records of 62-85 in 1978 and 67-95 in their first three seasons.

Bears sign contract for Soldier field

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bears, who at one time threatened to move their home games to South Bend, Ind., announced Thursday a 20-year agreement with the Park District on the team's use of Soldier Field.

The 20-year lease "agreement in principle" was hammered out during negotiations between Bears owner George S. Halas, general manager Jim Finks and Park District officials.
"Our football team has been a part of this great city since 1921," Halas, the team's founder, said afterward. "I am thrilled that today's meeting of the minds will see us here for many years to come."

The pact must now be approved by the complete board of Park District commissioners, district President Raymond F. Simon said. He said he was confident it will receive "unanimous" approval.

"This 20-year agreement will provide for the entire renovation of Soldier Field and secure the structure's safety, which has been my primary concern throughout these negotiations," Simon said.

He said the agreement will leave the Park District with an annual deficit of between $715,000 and $753,000. An earlier offer by the Bears would have left the district with a $1,250,000 deficit.

Under the terms of the lease are a 12 percent rental fee based on gross receipts and a ticket surcharge of $1 paid to the district. The Bears also will construct and maintain 54 private boxes, paying 20 percent of the revenue gained from them to the district.

NOTICE OF EMERGENCY RULE-MAKING

NOTICE OF INTENDED REGULAR RULE-MAKING
Pursuant to Section 67-2603 (b) and 67-6304 (b) (2), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Department of Health and Welfare, State of Idaho, has invoked emergency procedures for rule-making. The emergency procedure involves the amendment of rules governing "Eligibility for Financial and Medical Assistance," Title 3, Chapter 1, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. Emergency promulgation is necessary to increase the income limit for individuals and couples in long-term care facilities, and persons receiving an annual benefit from the Social Security or Railroad Retirement benefits on July 1, 1980, will not lose eligibility to Medical Assistance. Failure to promulgate this amendment on an emergency basis will result in loss of eligibility for medical participation in the cost of long-term care at Idaho's fifty (50) institutions. These individuals have received inadequate to their cost of care from Medicaid participation and assistance to meet these needs is not available from other sources. The health of these individuals is at risk and emergency services cannot continue to be provided for them.

The rules, which were adopted by emergency procedure on July 16, 1980, and filed by the Department on the 15th day of July, 1980, became effective on the 1st day of August, 1980, and expire on the 27th day of October, 1980. In addition, notice is also given pursuant to Section 67-6303 (9) (1), Idaho Code, that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare has also initiated regular rule-making under the provisions of the Idaho Code prior to adoption of these emergency regulations as permanent rules.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the amendments and intended permanent action and all the principal issues involved:

1-1404 SPECIFIC ELIGIBILITY FACTORS

Care Residence
(a) (1) and (2) Proposed for amendment to increase the income limitation for a single individual residing in a long-term care facility.

(a) (1) and (2) Proposed for amendment to increase the income limitation for a couple residing in a long-term care facility.

Within the time limits specified below, any person can review the text of the proposed rules in the Office of the Custodian of the Records or in any of the Regional Administrative Offices of the Department or the Offices of the Assistant Attorney General, Region V, Health and Welfare Division, located in Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Caldwell.

Notice of Emergency Rule-Making and Notice of Intended Regular Rule-Making.

Document Numbers 0301-007E and 0301-007F.

Page Two. Twin Falls, Pocatello and Idaho Falls. Copies of the proposed rules will be made upon request, at no charge to the requesting party. Any interested person can submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, which may be directed to the undersigned, postmarked, or delivered, on or before August 6, 1980.

No rule-making hearing (a) will be convened. Written signed, written request for a hearing is permitted on or before August 16, 1980. Pursuant to Section 67-6303 (a) (3), Idaho Code, the right to request a rule-making hearing is limited to twenty-five (25) or more interested persons, assuming presentation of a petition with signatures and a request for a hearing.

Interested persons are invited to submit members of the organization, or a governing subdivision or agency. Action by a hearing requestor includes a statement of the direct interests of the petitioner.

Dear Abby

Social chores should be shared

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 © Universal Press Syndicate
DEAR ABBY: IRRITATED is mad because her daughter-in-law never called to invite her to dinner. It was always her son who did the calling. Tell me, would she be equally irritated if her own daughter did all the inviting instead of her son-in-law?
 Usually the son-in-law is considered a "hero" if he just shows up and talks civilly to his wife's family when they come to visit. No one ever expects a married man to pick out a Mother's Day present for his mother — that's his wife's job, and she's lucky if she can get her husband to sign anything. Who ever heard of a man going to visit his wife's Uncle Ed in the hospital? Or picking out graduation gifts for his wife's niece and nephew — unless his own.

Isn't it time men got more involved in family affairs? Sign me anything you wish. I live in Costa Mesa, Calif.
ALSO IRRITATED
DEAR IRRITATED: Traditionally the wife has written all the letters, purchased the gifts and acted as the unpaid public relations agent for her husband's family as her own. It started "way back when" when men didn't work outside their homes. Times have changed, and now nearly as many married women as men go out to work, but men still consider it a "chore" to be the social secretary. And as long as women permit it, instead of insisting that those responsibilities be shared, that's the way it will be.

DEAR ABBY: My pet peeve is the "schmorrer" — someone who tries to get something for nothing. I buy a newspaper every morning on my way to work to read during my coffee break, and the minute I clock in someone says, "Hey, can I see the sports section?" Or "Give Dear Abby when you're finished with her." It's the same during lunch.

No one around here ever buys a newspaper, but they all enjoy reading mine. One guy had the nerve to ask me if he could take my paper home with him!

How can I handle these schmorrers without making enemies? I'm sick of SCHNORRERS!
DEAR SICK: Give the schmorrers the part you aren't reading with instructions to return it afterward.
DEAR ABBY: It's been three months since our brother died. Joe was terminally ill for a long time, and although he was fully aware of his condition, he never discussed it with anyone. Joe was a well-known and loved businessman who had been active and healthy before this hit him.

During his illness and after his death, dozens of people expressed their sorrow and feelings of inadequacy that prevented their visiting him and giving him the support and company he would have enjoyed so much. I feel fortunate that I was the one who spent the most time with him during his last months. I enjoyed conversations that he hadn't had time for before his illness. His knowledge and fantastic memory gave me so much pleasure! We laughed, we cried together, we talked. Much time was spent in comfortable silence.

I'm sure Joe would have enjoyed visits from his contemporaries. He was always so cheerful. They would have gone away feeling good.

What a pity that the fear of not knowing — what to say — robbed numerous friends of an enjoyable experience. If they had only shown up, Joe would have guided the conversation and made them feel comfortable and glad they came. I hope you print this, Abby. Just sign me...
 — JOE'S SISTER

Cause of disease is not known

By PATRICIA McORMACK
 UPI Health Editor
 Multiple sclerosis is the debilitating illness that struck Richard Queen while he was being held hostage in Iran — in a somewhat mysterious central nervous system ailment whose precise cause is unknown.
 Most often MS strikes young adults. Its victims range in age from 15 to 50.
 Doctors at the National Multiple Sclerosis Society in New York said it is not likely that Queen developed MS as a result of the stress caused by being held captive.
 The 28-year-old man was released because the Iranians felt they could not hold the doctor as a negotiator.
 Doctors said there is no medical proof to uphold a theory that stress stimulates MS, though many young adults are under stress when MS becomes active.
 During an active episode of the disorder, a wayward white cells eat away the coverings of nerves in the brain and spinal column. MS strikes in attacks "again, goes away again and comes back" but sometimes a remission or retreat is permanent.
 The course of the disease, which can knock off 25 percent of a person's expected lifespan, may leave a person paralyzed from the neck down, partially paralyzed, or just increasingly weak.
 Byss Waksman, director of NIMSS research programs, said remissions are characteristic of the disease.
 Since nerve coverings are damaged, there are temporary interruptions of nerve impulses, messages flowing from the brain that activate muscles.
 In particular, pathways concerned with vision, feeling and use of limbs are involved.
 Hard sclerotic patches form as the nerve covering or myelin sheath is destroyed.
 Waksman said doctors agree common sense and each will often shorten attacks and make them milder. Other parts of the treatment include a mixture of rest and good diet.
 Early symptoms, alone or in combination, include temporary mistiness or loss of vision, short circuits in nerve pathways that provide sensation, weakness of one or two limbs, difficulty in walking at a steady gait, giddiness, defects in bladder control.

Research scientists on one MS trail claim the disease may be linked to a faulty immune response regulation system. As a result, what is supposed to be a good cellular defense system backfires, attacking the "good guy" cells instead of the "bad guy" cells.
 There's a theory, too, that a "slow" virus infects the body during the first 15 years of life and sometimes between 20 and 40 years of age something triggers the virus, pushing it from dormant to active and attacking state.

Uses for gold
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — One ounce of pure gold, which would form a cube about the size of a sugar cube, can be beaten into a sheet nearly 100 square feet in area and thin enough so light passes through, or drawn into a wire 50 miles long, according to experts at one major manufacturer of gold jewelry. # Marriage boils down to matter of timing

By ERMA BOMBACEK
 © Field Enterprises, Inc.

A lot of women sitting out there today contemplating marriage are saying to themselves, "Could I make a serious commitment to a man who doesn't dance?"

Dancing in a marriage is important. It's one of the few things you do together in public that makes you remember why you got married.

A few naive little fools say, "I'll get into a dance after we're married." Oh, sure. And you're going to grow hair on his bald spot and put a volume button on his snoring. My husband's feet have been under the table so long, they will light his time.

Whenever he's out there when the orchestra begins to play and the three other couples at the table get up to dance. He looked over at me. "You don't have to look like you just became aware of the other night when I was out there on the floor dancing the three other couples at the table get out there on a crowded floor dancing backwards? I tell you dancing is a bid. In another ten years (I'll be out)." "You said that about strin and electricity?"

"Look at them," he said. "Do you think they're having a good time? That fella is showing that woman back and forth like he's moving a piano." "It wouldn't hurt you to dance one dance with me."

"He got out his watch, looked at it, and then said, 'Okay, just one.'"

"Do not be misled. He had no intention of dancing. He was setting me up for a modern equation for non-dancers trick."

"This is the way it works. First, he calculates the distance from the table to the dance floor. This is divided by how many seconds are left for the song to be finished. If the first number is larger than the second, he can fill in by helping you out of your chair, buttoning his coat, stopping by a table to say hello to someone he thought he knew, or getting lost on the way to the floor.

Whatever he made it to the dance floor just in time to strike a pose and hear the music stop. When the music started again, he looked at me and said, "If you think I'm going to be the only one on the floor dancing to the theme from Star Wars, you're crazy."

"How do you do that?" I asked.

"Do what?"

"The same way you know that when the bases are loaded with two outs and the batter has a count of three and two, you turn off the TV set and announce 'DINNER!'"

Marriage. It all comes down to timing.

Vegetable garden can take heat

By LLOYD GREEN
 © Chicago Sun-Times

Although many people are suffering from the heat, most vegetable gardens can benefit, provided plants are given sufficient water, experts say.

"Tomatoes, the most popular home garden plant, are on the verge of producing bumper crops, as eggplant, green beans, peppers, okra, squash, cucumbers and other heat-loving plants are doing equally well, according to horticulturists."

"This has proved a blessing to home gardeners who have been seeking to reduce costly food bills with spades, hoes and sweating brows."

"Irrigationists for the University of Illinois Extension Service warned that proper care is necessary to bring the best harvest to the dinner table."

"Mulching and watering are particularly important," said the horticulturist. "Mulch is important because the plants don't like wide fluctuations in soil moisture."

"A few dry grass clippings or other mulch should be spread around the base of tomatoes and other plants," he said, "to keep moisture from evaporating."

"The time of watering also is important, he said.

"It's best to water early in the morning," Mendelson said. "If you water during the heat of the day, much of the water will evaporate, and the water that stays on the leaves will act as a magnifying glass and cause sun scald."

"Watering in the evening isn't so good, either. If the water stays on the leaves overnight, it will make the plants more susceptible to fungus," he said.

"When watering is finished, the ground should be thoroughly soaked, she added.

Mendelson noted that because of the rapid growth of vegetables this summer, many gardeners can consider a second planting of fall. On the list are such vegetables as peas, turnips, Swiss chard, leaf lettuce, kohlrabi, mustard greens, turnip greens and collards.

"The summer's heat also has brought an extra crop of insects to gnaw at plants, Extension Service horticulturist Randy Lindstrom said.

Brookline bakery shop is bad luck

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — The best bagel baker of Brookline has had it.

"This is an unlucky shop for me," Eddie Delagives said Tuesday as he loaded trays of bagels into the oven at Eddie's Bakery.

"In the five years I've worked here, I've been robbed with a knife at my throat, had a plate glass window broken in on me and lost my job twice."

But the straw that broke the baker's back came when thieves broke into the basement while Eddie was working this week and stole a 3-foot-square table.

"I tell you I've had it," he said. "I'm not going to risk my life any more. I think I'm going to call the police in the morning and tell them to keep the job."

Symptoms vary with women going off pill

By SANDY ROVNER
 © The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A generation of women has now been on the Pill more than 10, 15 or even 20 years.

Because of the simplistic, and, in some cases, demonstrated risks associated with oral contraception, many women have decided to find an alternative: to switch to another method, to let their partner take the responsibility, or even to have that baby. In any case, to stop taking the pill.

For a lot of women, that isn't as easy as it sounds.

Most of the things that happen to women as they are in effect, withdrawing from the pill are natural and predictable, albeit sometimes unexpected. Even when symptoms appear a bit bizarre, they are mainly no more than signs of the body re-asserting control over functions abdicated to a pill bottle a decade or two before.

According to Georgetown University physiology professor Estelle Ramey, and Dr. Marcia Storch, a New York obstetrician-gynecologist, many women can stop taking the pill and resume normal cycles. The sometimes-surprising symptoms experienced by others are probably natural and usually are temporary.

There are almost as many variations in symptoms as there are women, but here is a sample of some that may occur:

- Erratic menstrual periods. Sometimes there may be none at all for as much as a year. A physician should be consulted when this condition persists.
- Sore breasts before periods.
- Pre-menstrual tension and dysmenorrhea (cramps).
- Depression. But sometimes the lifting of depression.
- An increase in sexual appetite.
- A decrease in sexual appetite.
- Both — varying widely from week to week — and peak to peak.
- Changes in skin, hair, sleeping habits, and weight.

In order to understand what happens when you go off the pill, according to Dr. Ramey, you have to know what happened when you went on it.

Ovulation in a woman, the maturation and positioning of an egg, "is the result of a very complicated set of hormonal events," not all of which are clearly understood by physiologists.

They do know that the pituitary gland releases a substance early in a woman's cycle and another one later on. These substances control production of mature eggs and cause the cyclical increase, and decrease, in the ovaries' production of the two female hormones, estrogen and progesterone.

The pituitary and the ovaries work together rather like a furnace and a thermostat, explains Ramey, with the pituitary turning the ovaries on and off by gauging blood levels of the hormones. The birth-control pill, usually made up of estrogen and progesterone-line hormones, works to fool the pituitary by short-circuiting the feedback system.

Some of the problems stem from the fact that hormones from the bottle are not the natural ones your glands produce. And, as Ramey puts it, "Whenever you use a molecule that's somewhat changed from the normal, the possibility exists that it's either stronger or weaker action, or that there are other side effects you would not normally see."

'Hopeless' tumor victim danced at wedding

By M. WILLIAM SALGANIK
© The Baltimore Sun

BALTIMORE — Two years ago, Craig Warnick underwent a difficult and risky operation to remove a brain tumor, unsure if he would live or die.

After 14 hours of neurosurgery, conducted under an operating microscope, he could not walk, he could not swallow, he could not breathe without a respirator. Doctors were pessimistic.

But his fiancée, Susan Price, would not give up. She cheered, coaxed and prodded him through two years of therapy. Progress was slow. He was depressed; she often was discouraged.

At one point, "I told him he might hate me when it was done, but he would walk away from it."

Saturday, Susan Price and Craig Warnick walked down the aisle together at Sacred Heart Church in suburban Glynco. He did not use a cane. And he was ready to dance all day at his wedding.

The ceremony was everything a June wedding of high-school sweethearts should be: a rustic stone chapel, with dark wooden beams supporting the steeply pitched roof; deeply smiling groom and somewhat-teary bride; flowers in ruffled shirts and tuxedos the color of the cloudless sky; bridesmaids in long dresses and broad-brimmed hats of sunniest yellow trimmed with lacy white; a flower girl; a ring-bearer; rice.

Some of the standard June-bridal trappings; however, held an extra poignancy: the vow, "in sickness and in health"; the Bible readings about creation and new creation and laying down one's life for a friend; the song, "Be Not Afraid"; the romantic popular song containing the phrase, "You gave me strength to stand alone again."

Among the guests were Dr. Chhabi Bhusan, the Johns Hopkins Hospital neurosurgeon who conducted the operation, and admitted he did not expect to see such a ceremony. Leo Miller, the physical therapist, who added special dance training to his treatment; and two Hopkins nurses.

The wedding was to have been in September, 1978, but in April of that year, the tumor was discovered.

"You may not be here tomorrow," doctors told him before the operation, Warnick recalled. He said he knew the operation was a longshot, but doing nothing meant death from the tumor.

Although his thinking ability was unimpaired by the operation, parts of the brain controlling usually automatic functions were affected, and his chances for recovery were uncertain at best.

That was reckoning without Susan Price. After the operation, she took six weeks off from her work as a dental technician and spent every day, from 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., in Johns Hopkins Hospital. She was allowed to see Warnick for 10 minutes every 3 hours.

When she returned to work, she continued to go to the hospital every evening, as he progressed through a month of intensive care, two more months in Hopkins and three months in Good Samaritan Hospital.

When he was at Good Samaritan, he went home weekends. She stayed with his family each weekend, setting an alarm clock so she could feed him through a tube every three hours.

She felt she had to be tough to be kind, to force him to struggle up to see the channel on the television, for example, rather than changing the channel for him.

"I fell into the mother role," she said. "It was very hard on me, but I knew it was in his best interest."

"It wasn't so much the situation, but him," in his depressed state, that was discouraging, the new Mrs. Warnick said. "It was like they took him into surgery and brought out someone else."

When he learned to walk with a walker, doctors said he might not make any further improvement, but she continued to push.

"I never made anything good enough," she recalled. "When he could walk with two canes, I wanted him to walk with one cane. I wanted him to walk down the aisle without a cane. Now, he'll be dancing at the wedding."

As soon as he was able to walk with a cane, it was different. "his whole attitude changed. He became the Craig I knew again," she said.

He returned to Towson State University part-time in September, and expects to receive a degree in accounting after the summer session.

On the eve of the wedding, she summed up, "It's been quite an ordeal, but we have now what people search a lifetime to find. I think tomorrow it will have been worth it."

He said, "If I ever got down, I would just talk to Susan and she would get me back up. I was frustrated a lot of the time, but the brightest part of my day was when Susan came over."

And on the eve of his wedding, he said, "I plan to be dancing all day tomorrow."

1 1-pound can salmon (2 cups)
1/4 cup fresh bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/4 cup milk
2 tablespoons minced onion
Salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons melted butter
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/4 cup lemon juice

1/4 cup melted butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
Heat oven to 350 degrees. Drain salmon. Add bread crumbs, egg, milk, onion, salt, pepper, butter, 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Toss with a fork. Turn into greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan or muffin tin. Bake 40-55 minutes or until done. Make sauce by combining 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1/4 cup melted butter and 1/4 teaspoon of salt. To serve, pour sauce over salmon loaf in pan or serve loaf and sauce separately. Serves 4.

Prostate trouble is common

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
(Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Dear Dr. Lamb,
About a year ago I got pretty sick, and the doctor said I had a prostate infection.

He gave me a round of antibiotics. Then, about two months ago, I got the same infection again while I was on vacation. I went to the doctor there and he gave me some more antibiotics.

Three weeks ago I got out of bed to go to the bathroom and was passing pure red blood. I went straight to the doctor, and he said it was the same infection I had on vacation; it just hadn't healed up completely.

Now I'm having problems. When I go to the bathroom to urinate, I do a little and then wait a few minutes and do a little more and this goes on until the bladder is empty. I know nothing about prostate trouble and would like to know everything about it. What causes it and what can I do to prevent an attack? Also, my wife thinks sex may be harmful to her and that it could aggravate my trouble. Please help if you can.

Dear Reader,

Almost every man will have some form of prostate trouble at some time in his life if he lives long enough.

There are several different types of prostate trouble. One is an acute infection, which is apt to occur in young men as well as older men; it's like an inflammation—or infection anywhere else. Bacteria lodge in the prostate and cause the prostate to become painful and tender from the inflammation. The swelling may interfere with the normal emptying of the bladder at that time. The reason is that the prostate literally surrounds the urethral tube that drains the bladder.

As a man gets older, the prostate may enlarge. As it does so, it may squeeze down on the urethral tube and begin to cause persistent difficulty in emptying the bladder.

This may not be associated with an inflammation or infection at all. On the other hand, obstruction of the normal mechanism to drain urine from the bladder may set the stage for an inflammation or infection of the bladder itself.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 15-6, Prostate Gland. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. This issue will give you considerably more information about the prostate, the disorders that can affect it and what can be done for it.

The treatment of prostate disorders depends entirely on what the trouble is to begin with. If it's an acute infection, it may be treated with appropriate antibiotics. On the other hand, if it's simple enlargement and the obstruction is great enough to affect urination, then surgical removal of the obstruction is often necessary.

Opinions vary about the influence of sex on prostate problems. It certainly doesn't affect either the man or the woman if it's simple prostate enlargement. Some doctors actually recommend sexual activity for men who have acute inflammation and others do not.

The usual chronic forms of infection of the prostate and many acute forms will not affect a woman who has intercourse with a man who has this condition. An exception, of course, is gonorrhea (which I'm not suggesting that you have.)

Standouts

Three Magic Valley students have received scholarships from the Harry Eaton Educational Trust, according to Paul E. Ostyn, chairman of the scholarship committee at the College of Southern Idaho.

They are Deena Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Ellis; Paula Wevers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wevers, all of Twin Falls, and Julie Ann Patterson, daughter of Oris C. Durfee, Carey. All are prospective business majors. They were selected for their achievements in school and community events.

Jo Ann M. Pearce, a sophomore registered nursing student from Wendell, has been awarded the $100 Doug Bryon Warner scholarship to CSI. Pearce is married and mother of five children.

Barbara Dayley of Burley and Casey Munger of Twin Falls attended the National Youth Science Camp at Bartow, W. Va. Included in the activities was a trip to Washington, D.C., where the students visited many historic sites and were luncheon guests of the U.S. Senate. Sen. Frank Church hosted the Magic Valley students.

Rodney L. Harter of Filer, sophomore registered nursing student at the College of Southern Idaho, has been awarded a $200 Mary L. Brown scholarship. A single parent, Harter is raising a 3-year-old daughter. He recently was required to change occupations because of medical reasons, according to Paul Ostyn. Magic Valley students receiving scholarships for the 1980-81 year at the University of Idaho are announced.

They include Jennifer L. Hansen of Bliss, Jacob Monson scholarship; Jeffrey B. Clark, C. W. Moore scholarship; Lawrence E. Loyd, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing scholarship, and Laura T. Norby, Reginald Ebdowment scholarship, all Rupert.

Twin Falls students include Nancy E. Atkinson, Sillinger Memorial scholarship; Debra K. Blackwood, College of Education Foundation and Associated Women Students; Dennis R. Blackwood, animal science scholarship; Craig A. Carter, Virginia Mowry scholarship; Steven C. Cieland, J.R. Simplot and Moorman Manufacturing scholarships;

Allen D. Evans, James W. Martin scholarship; Julie L. Fouts, Dow Chemical Co.; Kathleen M. Fuchs, Forney Hall freshman honorary scholarship; Randall L. Kolar, Boeing Co.; Brent A. McMullen, Zeigler Education Foundation; Ross D. Oyen, Newmont Mining Corp.; Karen M. Shotwell, Plant and Soil Sciences Club and James E. Kraus scholarships; Mable L. Smith, Lucille Bondurant scholarship; Richard P. Sterling, Interwest Engineering Inc. scholarship, and Andrew D. Waeaman, Virginia Mowry scholarship.

Janis Bybee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bybee of Glenns Ferry, was elected councilwoman for the city of Leesburg at Girls' State at Nampa. Bebbie Heath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Heath, also Glenns Ferry, was a county commissioner and city reporter for the Federalist Party.

Teresa Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Anderson of Glenns Ferry, was on the dean's list at Idaho State University, Pocatello. She is in the College of Liberal Arts.

Community groups support program

TWIN FALLS — Community organizations have contributed more than $2,000 so that needy handicapped children can attend speech and language therapy at Head Start here.

Donna Suhr, of the South Central Community Head Start, said one-third of the children enrolled in Head Start this past school year were diagnosed as handicapped.

Since Head Start funds already were stretched to the breaking point because of the large number of children needing expensive therapy, community groups, churches and businesses in Twin Falls, Jerome, Buhl and Burley were informed of the need in early April.

The Twin Falls Lions Club donated

Idaho Frozen Foods contributed $200 and the Valley Christian church made three separate donations, totaling $161.

Other contributors included Berg Insurance, L.Hierberns, Tupperware, Land Title and Escrow, Northside Board of Realtors, Eastside Southern Baptist Church, Catholic Women's Council of Buhl, United Presbyterian Women of Burley, American Association of University Women, Women of the Moose, Jerome Optimist Club and American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) in Burley.

Boy, 10, treated with laetrile, dies

Friday, July 18, 1980 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho C-9

By United Press International
Joseph Hoffbauer, a 10-year-old victim of Hodgkin's disease whose parents fled New York state to treat him with the controversial apricot-pit derivative laetrile has died.
The child, formerly of Ballston Spa, N.Y., died Friday in his home in Freeport, the Bahamas, where he had been treated with the controversial drug for about a year.
"I was personally very saddened and somewhat shocked by his death," Dr. Michael Schachter, the Nyack, N.Y., physician who began treating the child with nutritional therapy, said today.
In an interview with WRKL radio in New City, N.Y., Schachter said the child "hadn't been well over the past few weeks."

"He was treated by a doctor at the Immunology Research Clinic (in Freeport) for the past 13 or 14 months. There was evidence that much of the cancer had disappeared. But there was some cancer involvement, not so much in the lungs, but around the lungs."
In 1977, Joseph's parents rejected conventional cancer therapy and ordered the nutritional treatments.
The family moved to Bloomfield, N.J., after the Saratoga County Welfare Department started litigation to halt the treatments.
At the insistence of Gov. Hugh Carey, an opponent of laetrile, the New York state Health Department joined in the suit.
But the state's highest court, the Court of Appeals, upheld in July, 1979, the child's right to receive Laetrile, saying the issue was whether his parents had "failed to exercise a minimum degree of care in supplying their child with adequate medical care."

"The record discloses that Joseph's mother and father were concerned and loving parents who sought qualified medical assistance for their child," Judge Matthew Jasen wrote.
"There is medical proof that the nutritional condition was controlling (the boy's) condition and that such treatment is not as toxic as the conventional treatment."
John Hoffbauer, the child's father, called the decision "a victory for parental rights, which are our God-given rights."

Research uncovers trick of MS

BOSTON (UPI) — Researchers have discovered how multiple sclerosis trips up the body's infection-fighting mechanism.
They say the finding will allow doctors to predict when an attack of the disease is about to occur.
MS is an affliction of the nervous system that causes slurred speech, loss of muscular coordination and a shortened life span. It is thought to be a hereditary condition triggered by a virus.
Investigators at the Sydney Farber Cancer Institute, publishing today in the New England Journal of Medicine, found that a vital portion of a patient's immune system disappears during an MS attack.
The immune system has two types of so-called T-cells. One type trumpets a call for the production of disease-fighting antibodies; another type, "suppressor T-cells," later shuts down production.

Head researcher Dr. Ellis Reinherz said suppressor T-cells disappear immediately before an attack of MS. As a result, there is no way to shut down the production of antibodies.
The overabundant antibodies actually attack the protein coat on nerve and brain tissue, Reinherz said, short-circuiting nerve impulses and causing the loss of coordination seen in MS patients.
Since people always have suppressor T-cells in their bodies, disappearance of the cells would signal an oncoming case of MS, Reinherz said.
Additionally, he said, doctors may be able to cut short an imminent attack by injecting MS victims with suppressor T-cells.

'Spruce Goose' fans race Summa sawyers

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The sole flight of the "Spruce Goose," the largest airplane ever built, lasted only a minute.

The plane's future has been up in the air ever since that day almost 33 years ago.

The uncertainty over the fate of Howard Hughes' gigantic plane is entering its final days.

There is a race between those who want to rescue the mammoth plywood seaplane from the executioner's saws that await it if a new home cannot be found.

A private committee is working hard in a last-ditch effort to raise $750,000 to save the plane as "a monument in the history of aviation," but several such would-be rescue attempts have already flopped.

A decision will have to come soon. The Summa Corp., the main administrator of the vast Hughes estate, already is more than a month past one of its many deadlines to get rid of the plane to meet a legal requirement to have the leased hangar site back to the Port of Long Beach by Oct. 1.

Summa announced in May that a long search had found no new home and the company, reluctantly, would cut the plane into nine pieces for distribution to the Smithsonian and eight other museums.

Hopes for a last-minute rescue got a boost Monday with the revival of a frequent suggestion that the "Goose" be teamed with the port's other huge relic of the 1940's, the Queen Mary, which is permanently docked as a hotel, restaurant and exhibition center.

The Harbor Commission granted exclusive rights to the Wrather Corp. to negotiate a possible takeover of the money-losing luxury liner. The corporation — which runs the Disneyland Hotel and is headed by Texas oilman Jack Wrather, a friend of Ronald Reagan — joined the ranks of would-be "Goose" rescuers. "We would want to have the Hughes flying boat on the property to use as a museum — if appropriate arrangements, including financial, can be made," the company wrote the commission.

Summa spokesman Fred Lewis said that "if everything comes together, it's reasonable to assume we'll be able to work something out." But he added that so far, "Summa's plans have not changed" — meaning the plane will be taken apart soon, perhaps by the end of the month.

The impending dismantling of the plane drew an outpouring of protests.

Some 1,000 Californians signed petitions. The Long Beach City Council, Los Angeles County supervisors and both houses of the state Legislature passed resolutions calling for the plane's preservation, with the Assembly urging the federal government to block the planned destruction.

The Committee to Save the Hughes Flying Boat, formed after a number of other rescue efforts failed, lists on its letterhead such celebrities as actors Steve McQueen and Cliff Robertson, singer Richard Carpenter, publisher William Randolph Hearst Jr., and six senators and congressmen.

"This is my baby," said committee member Glen Odekriz, general manager of Hughes Aircraft, where the largest aircraft ever built by the American people would not let this happen if they knew."

"It is unconscionable to allow this monument to American ingenuity to be destroyed," committee chairman Bob McCaffrey said.

"We understand that Summa has to vacate that land, and we also understand they have a tax problem — the IRS has challenged whether all the millions spent on the plane were really a business expense, so cutting it up and donating it to tax-exempt museums would solve their problem."

"But America should not allow the largest aircraft ever built to be destroyed for tax purposes."

Summa said it is not trying to sell the plane but will not turn it over to any person or group unless it can be properly sheltered, maintained and displayed.

A nest for something as big as the "Spruce Goose" will probably cost millions of dollars. Summa at one point offered a $2.5 million loan to get a museum started but that alone is not enough. The committee, with a goal of $750,000 to operate the museum, has pledged for $225,000, McCaffrey said — but so far has collected only $15,000 in cash.

Monopoly record claimed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Four boys have claimed a world record for playing Monopoly in a free house.

They plan to petition for a place in the Guinness Book of World Records.

The four, all students at Hobby Middle School in San Antonio, played continuously for 72 hours from noon Sunday to noon Wednesday. The existing world record is 50 hours.

The boys — Kartik Thyagarajan, 13; Mike Bertani, 12; Anup Muzika, 12; and Paul Schofield, 13, played 37 games in teams of two, playing six-hour shifts. They beat the effects of Texas' record heat wave with an electric fan.

Piracy trial for writer Jack London

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — It's been 53 years since the novelist Jack London died, but that isn't stopping historians from putting him on trial for being an "oyster pirate" in the 1890s.

Bernard Averbuch, a local businessman, said historians have virtually ignored the fact that London once stole oysters from dozens of oyster beds around the bay and sold them to San Francisco restaurants.

He put the matter before the Court of Historical Review and Appeals with a "view of historically ameliorating the record."

Superior Court Judge Harry W. Low will issue a ruling on the matter after hearing arguments from both sides in an effort to get the historical record straight.

Averbuch says oyster pirates picked oen, moonlight nights to get to the oyster beds, which were surrounded by board fence enclosures and often had armed guards posted to shoot at trespassers.

"They usually chopped through the fence and in the darkness they worked rapidly, with rakes and gloved hands to fill sacks of oysters."

Police Captain Joseph Flynn and several historians were scheduled to appear as witnesses.

"It's an actual court case," said Averbuch, who also will take the opportunity to emphasize that London was born Jan. 12, 1876, in San Francisco, not Oakland as "popularity believed."

London, one of the most successful American novelists, wrote 50 books, the most popular being "The Sea Wolf," and "The Call of the Wild." He died at age 40 on Nov. 22, 1916.

Durante partner dies from stroke

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eddie Jackson, the raspy-voiced vaudevillian, radio and television partner and pal of the late Jimmy Durante, died Wednesday of a stroke. He was 84.

Jackson, who suffered a massive stroke Monday night, had been confined to his home since 1971 with kidney disease and the effects of a series of minor strokes.

He was working at the old Club Alamo in Harlem, waiting tables and singing, when he met Durante in 1916, starting a friendship and working relationship that lasted until Durante died 56 years later last January.

The pair first appeared together in a five-piece Dixieland band and in 1923 they joined with Lou Clayton to form Clayton, Jackson and Durante, a singing and comedy team.

In the Roaring '20s, the team was one of New York's most successful nightclub acts, introducing the standard, "Sweet Georgia Brown."

Prof convicted of drug making

NEW YORK (UPI) — A highly regarded New York University department chairman faces up to five years in jail for making LSD, methaqualone and synthetic cocaine in his on-campus anthropology laboratory.

A jury in U.S. District Court in Manhattan Wednesday found John Buetner-Janusch guilty of making the illicit drugs at Rurus Smith Hall on the university's Greenwich Village campus.

Buetner-Janusch, 58, who taught at Yale and Duke universities before going to NYU in 1973, will be sentenced Sept. 16 by Judge Charles Eriqson.

The defendant, who was known as "B-J" and who boasted he was independently wealthy, remained free on $50,000 bond.

Buetner-Janusch has taken a leave of absence from his job as chairman, for which he received an estimated $40,000 to $45,000 a year, one of the highest salaries on campus. His laboratory, sources said, was built for him by the university at a cost of about

Clifford Jolly of England, the key prosecution witness, testified he conducted an independent investigation of the defendant's lab and turned over his findings to federal drug authorities.

The defense contended that Jolly was out to replace Buetner-Janusch as chairman. The drugs found in the laboratory, the defense argued, were part of a research experiment involving lemurs and other primates.

Born in Chicago, Buetner-Janusch grew up in the northern Wisconsin resort town of Eagle River where his father, Frederick, was an architect. He received his undergraduate degree from the University of Chicago, and his graduate degree from the University of Michigan.

He was known as one of the leading scholars in the evolution of apes and humans and he wrote a widely used college anthropology textbook, "Origins of Man."

Seattle police seeking lunch-hour rapist

SEATTLE (UPI) — Police are hunting for a man who wears a blue uniform with the word "staff" sewn on his pocket and rapes young Asian girls on his lunch hour.

The victims range in age from 8 to 15, police said. Buetner-Janusch, according to detectives, the man finds girls who are home alone. He knocks on the door and tells the young victims he is from a school and needs to measure them.

Sgt. Dick Ramon of the sex-crimes unit said he was positive the same man was responsible for seven assaults since August, including the latest one Tuesday on a 10-year-old victim.

The rapist is described as white, in his 30s, with a slender build, wearing blue pants and shirt that appear to be a uniform. Police said he also drives a white pickup truck, with a cable and ladder in the back.

Ramon said most of the assaults have taken place between 11 a.m. and noon on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Atheist attacks Texas court oath

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Atheist Marilyn "Barry" O'Hair, complaining that she and other non-believers may be denied fair trials, wants the federal courts to remove from the Texas constitution a provision requiring judges and other public officials to proclaim belief in a supreme being.

The activist, who led the campaign that resulted in the 1963 Supreme Court order banning prayer in public schools, said atheists were prevented from becoming Texas judges by the provision.

Ms. O'Hair, an attorney, said it also infringed on her ability to practice her profession.

"I am unable to practice in the Texas courts because I do not believe in God," she told a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday. "The whole thing has left me in a case of extraordinary limbo."

Joining Ms. O'Hair in seeking to strike the provision was attorney Robert Vork of New Jersey, a specialist in constitutional law.

"Every trial judge, appellate judge and every juror is required to take this (supreme being) oath," Vork said.

He also said atheists could not expect fair trials in the Texas courts.

"In race and sex discrimination cases, a judge can disqualify himself because he is black or white or male or female," Vork said. "But here, no atheist can serve on the judiciary because no atheist can take that oath."

Judge Gerald B. Tjoflat asked him whether he believed in God affected judge's ability to make impartial decisions.

"No, I don't think so," Vork said. "But to the extent that members of our class cannot serve as members of the judiciary, we are denied a fair trial. What is bad is no atheist can serve as a member of the bench."

The supreme being oath, part of the Texas bill of rights, was challenged unsuccessfully in state court in 1977. Ms. O'Hair said.

"We must go into federal court, she said. "Because this is a Texas constitutional law, those (state courts) cannot speak to it."

'Get thee to a nunnery, madam'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A woman convicted of running a bawdy house in an elegant neighborhood of San Francisco has been sentenced to 90 days in a nunnery.

Superior Court Judge Daniel Hanlon meted out the punishment Thursday to 39-year-old Marlene Brandy Baldwin, whom he noted was a well-mannered and friendly woman-about-town.

Ms. Baldwin had pleaded no contest to a pandering charge June 10 after prostitution charges were dropped. She was arrested in a raid on a house in the Forest Hills district Dec. 7.

Sister Mary Jane of the Sisters of the Convent of the Good Shepherd sat next to Ms. Baldwin in court during the sentencing. She had previously filed a statement with the court saying the convent was willing to accept the woman.

The judge warned Ms. Baldwin that she could be sentenced to up to three years in prison if she again gets involved in the world's oldest profession.

Defense attorney Art Groza said the sentence was right out of Shakespeare.

"It's not unlike what Hamlet said to Ophelia, 'Get thee to a nunnery, go.'"

Do-it-yourself plumber loses his life

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI)—A do-it-yourself bathroom plumbing job cost Manuel Castillo his life.

Castillo, 57, was electrocuted while using a leak lamp to light up a leaky pipe under his bathroom sink Tuesday night.

He was lying on his back and apparently hit the (lamp) bulb with his left wrist," Patrolman Howard Williams said. "The light broke and he was electrocuted."

British invade American film

By CHARLES SCHREGER
(©) The Los Angeles Times
HOLLYWOOD — Still more evidence of the invasion of the U.S. in industry by England's new set procedures and directors: • Francis Roddan, the young actor of "Quadrophenia," the teen version of the Who's rock era, has been signed by Paramount to direct his first American film. It will be "Amok," from a screenplay by Curtis Hanson, who wrote the wondrously offbeat "Silent Partner."

Also at Paramount, Don Boyd will produce another version of the 18th century love story, "Manon Lescaut." Jodie Foster is set to star.
Henri-George Clouzot made one version of the story in 1949,

"Manon." In 1969, Catherine Deneuve starred in another version, "Manon 70."

Boyd's first American production, "Honky Tonk Freeway," will be released by the American Film Distribution Co. later this year.

"Heaven's Gate" gets big hype
Michael Cimino's "Heaven's Gate" is a big film. The western starring Kris Kristofferson, Christopher Walken, John Hurt, Sam Waterston and Isabelle Huppert reportedly cost more than $30 million.

While United Artists isn't expected to release the film until Christmas, the promotion has already begun in a big way on "Heaven's Gate."

UA has printed up a handsome 22-page, sepia-toned brochure on the film with still photographs and quotes. The brochure recently was stuffed into both weekly Variety and Daily Variety.

For the ad space alone, the cost to UA was nearly $17,000 for the Daily Variety insert and more than $25,000 for Variety.

With a kick and a smile the 12 girls seeking the Miss Twin Falls title practice their group's opening number this week at the Episcopal Church in Twin Falls.

Annual pageant flaunts local talent

12 compete for title of Miss Twin Falls

By TRUDI TARIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Saturday at 7:30 p.m. the curtains of the College of Southern Idaho's Pine Arts Auditorium will open on the 28th annual Miss Twin Falls Pageant.

Since June 3 the 12 contestants, culled from this year's crop of talented Magic Valley beauties, have studiously worked on becoming a model of perfection. They've practiced a gliding carriage, a melodious speech, composure under fire and a preparedness for such off-the-wall questions as "Why is Idaho shaped the way it is?"

For this night the girls have rehearsed twice a week, giving up their summer nights and possibly foregoing favorite sweets and vacation plans. What sweet reward will crown their efforts?

"Money and opportunity," says Helen Henderson, who has directed the pageant the past 18 years. Mrs. Henderson speaks of the "girls" and the pageant with enthusiasm. "It's a wonderful chance for a girl to earn money for school. And it's a thrill for me to see each girl 'blossom,' while developing her potentials."

As far as being lucrative, Twin Falls' pageant boasts the highest dollar sweepstakes in the state. In addition to her crown, Miss Twin Falls wins a $550 scholarship, $200 in cash for a wardrobe and an all-expenses-paid trip to the Miss Idaho contest in Boise. Local merchants donate a portrait, watch and gift certificates.

Scholarships for runners-up range upward in $50 increments from $300 for the fourth-place winner to $450 for first runner-up. Remaining contestants receive $100 scholarships and all are given $50 cash prizes.

For many of the girls the contest prizes are a much-needed way to finance college studies. For the titleholder, opportunities for world travel and business contacts come with the turf. She is the official hostess for Twin Falls and may be called upon to put ribbons at opening ceremonies or assist in civic presentations. At the end of spring semester, she returns to Twin Falls to prepare for the June Miss Idaho competition.

Mrs. Henderson knows the ropes there and in Atlantic City, where the Miss America Pageant climaxes the state finals. She's guided four Magic Valley girls through that route; however there's yet to be an Idahoan Miss America.

The requirements to get started on the long trek toward Atlantic City's Convention Hall are few: female, between the ages of 18-28 and never married.

Each year the sponsor of the pageant, the Lions Club, asks Mrs. Henderson to extend a blanket invitation to Magic Valley college girls home on winter vacation. By February she begins scouting for contenders in 13 area high schools. She knows the principals and counselors and they know what she's looking for. "Sometimes they tell me 'not one this year,'" she said. "Other years they'll have several promising talents."

"Talent is what counts the most. It's worth twice as much as poise or beauty on our judging scale," she added.

A general request for interested applicants is then circulated throughout the schools.

Auditions begin in March. In the past there were times when more than 30 girls were competing. Talent presentations were unbearably

Country music finds movies

'Honeysuckle Rose' a visual gloss of Willie Nelson

By RICHARD FRIEDMAN

Newhouse News Service — Ever since Hollywood found out how many cowboy boots Bloomington's sells to effete Easterners, we've been in for a rash of Western chic movies. First there was "Coal Miner's Daughter," then "Urban Cowboy," and now "Honeysuckle Rose," the most naive of them all.

"Honeysuckle Rose" is not so much a movie as a visual gloss for the best-selling country-and-Western records of Willie Nelson, who appeared briefly in "The Electric Horseman."

Here he's practically the whole show, shoutin' and stompin' to vast enraptured audiences. As his girlfriend, Lily (Amy Irving of "Western" fame), tells him, "It must be strange, being everyone's hero."

Nelson—Buck—Bonham, happily married for 15 years to Viv (Dyan Cannon) and father of 10-year-old Jamie (Joey Floyd). Together they indulge in loving whipped-cream fights—and father-and-son talks at the ol' swimmin' hole.

When Buck—and Viv—perform together, they're the Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald of the range—but unfortunately Viv doesn't like going on tour with her superstar husband. Instead she stays at home and mopes about whether he's carrying on with his platoon of groupies.

Buck's old guitarist pal Garland (Silent Pictures) decides to retire, so Buck takes Garland's daughter Lily on tour as a replacement and presumably for the first time—is unfaithful to Viv. She gets wind of this and announces their divorce before a throng of about 10,000 rabid fans bearing huge "We Love You Buck" banners.

Old Garland is pretty riled, too, and goes after Buck, who is hiding out in Mexico, with a six-shooter and a bottle of tequila. The tequila wins, and everybody makes up at Buck's mammoth Labor Day concert dedicated to Garland. Texans seem notably public about their private affairs.

With his shrewd, intelligent eyes and the scanning the audience, Willie Nelson's mind throughout the picture seems concentrated on percentages of T-shirt sales. He also sports a headband, a beard and pigtail. When Irving dons her own headband—and pigtail—she looks like Pocahontas in a high school pageant.

And since "Honeysuckle Rose" is essentially about hair/eyes, be it noted that the luscious Viv Cannon looks as if she's bathed her hair in a vat of beer for about a w e e k.

Anyone who can't listen to Willie Nelson albums without seeing "Honeysuckle Rose" also can't read without moving his lips.

Jackson Browne returns to form

By ROBERT HILBURN
(©)The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Jackson Browne is a brilliant, if inconsistent, songwriter whose seductive rhymes and romantic images have made him a popular and critical favorite.

Though his early tunes were often flawed by a coy innocence, Browne's writing matured in "Late for the Sky," his classic 1974 album about disillusionment.

Along with the Eagles' "Desperado," the LP largely defined the melancholy Southern California rock sound, placing Browne alongside Joni Mitchell and John Prine as one of the premier lyricists of the decade.

Browne's subsequent "The Pretender" and "Running on Empty" albums, however, failed to match the songwriting excellence of "Sky." In the new "Hold Out," Browne reaches boldly for that 1974 album's impact.

It's a work with enough of the superficial eloquence of "Sky" to be a huge commercial success. Indeed, it entered the national sales charts impressively last week at No. 10.

Yet beneath the gloss, the new album falls noticeably short of its model. That doesn't mean "Hold Out" is a disaster. By most pop standards, the new collection is a classy exercise, one that is quite likely to earn Browne his second straight album-of-the-year Grammy nomination.

Much like a man revisiting the scene of a crime, Browne in the new album retraces many of the same thematic elements — loneliness, uncertainty — of his earlier work.

Dodger Theater will move

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dodger Theater, formed two years ago at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, will move to Manhattan's Public Theater this fall at the invitation of the New York Shakespeare Festival. They will share the Loebster Hall with the experimental Mabou Mines group, six months a year each, starting Sept. 1. Festival producer Joseph Fapp said, "The Dodger and Mabou Mines are two of the most artistically adventurous theater groups in the country. The Dodger's interest in foreign plays combined with the Mabou Mines' innovative explorations into new theatrical forms will enhance the richness and diversity of theatrical fare at the Public Theater."

Ann-Margret has a mind of her own

Q: Even though he's had a successful acting career, especially as Elia—Ness—on the old "Unsubstantiated" TV show, wasn't Robert Stack bitterly opposed to his daughter becoming an actress? V.B. of San Jose.

A: Stack definitely had mixed emotions about his daughter Elizabeth's theatrical ambitions, despite his success and the fact that his wife of 24 years, Rosemarie, is a former screen beauty. Elizabeth, 23, is charging headlong into serious Shakespearean roles and hopes eventually to make movies. Whatever his feelings, Stack assured his daughter full family support and continued straight talk from dad — his recently published autobiography is titled, appropriately enough, "Straight Shooting."

Q: What's become of Donna McKechmie, that marvelous dancer-actress in the original Broadway stage version of "A Chorus Line"? We haven't heard much about her lately. — L.N., Dallas, Tex.

A: Since the breakup of her marriage to Michael Bennett, author-director-choreographer of "A Chorus Line," Donna has been keeping a reasonably low profile. Now she's decided to raise it a bit by taking to the nightclub circuit in both New York and Los Angeles. The proposed movie version of "A Chorus Line" has gone through at least three directors, two writers and three producers in over four years, so don't bank on seeing Donna on screen in that vehicle anytime soon.

Q: I saw Gene Kelly in London not long ago, and was impressed with how elegant he looks. — H.V., Dearborn, Mich.

A: Gene is the consummate professional and always is impeccable in public, as he undoubtedly was when he appeared in London as a guest in the New York Theatre production series. In private, Gene, 67, is a lot more informal. During interviews in his Beverly Hills home, Kelly is likely to lounge on a sofa minus the hairpiece he wears in public.

Q: Imogene Coca, my all-time favorite comedienne, is supposedly a pretty eccentric person offstage, yes? — J.M., Needham, Mass.

A: Eccentric is too strong a word to describe Imogene, but she does have her quirks. For example, Imogene just likes to go out when it's raining. To get from a hotel to the theater for a performance during a recent downpour, friends had to wrap her over her head with a large coat and transport the mummy-like Miss Coca to a waiting limousine in a scene that could have been filmed as a comic sketch.

Q: Is Kirk Douglas proud of his sons' success as movie producers or does he really resent it? — O.P., Niagara Falls, N.Y.

A: Kirk is not only proud but reveals in the success of his offspring. Son Michael, of course, produced "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and produced and starred in "The China Syndrome." Another Kirk's former son, Peter, produced Kirk's most recent film, "The Final Countdown," due out soon. After seeing a rough cut of the picture, Kirk was highly enthusiastic, telling a friend the movie is a lollipop, and that even he's good in it.

Q: John Travolta may be the star of "Urban Cowboy," but it sure seems that young Debra Winger is the one who's walked off with the reviews. Why don't I see any interviews with her? — M.C., Boston, Mass.

A: Debbie's been turning down countless requests by magazines and newspapers for interviews, and frustrated members of Paramount's publicity department are claiming she's now doing an Al Pacino by keeping as low a profile as possible. She did consent to one free-flowing and glowing personal interview with Rona Barrett on TV, but that was about all. Despite advice to the contrary, Debra has persisted in ducking most reporters and even movie offers so far.

Q: I understand that beautiful British actress Lesley-Anne Down is married: Who is the lucky man? P.B., Portsmouth, N.H.

A: Lesley-Anne married Henri Gabriel, born in Argentina, who was working as a technical director on her most recent film, "Sphinx." The two first met in Hungary, the location of the movie when it began production around the first of the year. They got along so well that by the time "Sphinx" reached its final location in Egypt, Lesley-Anne had no thoughts for her long-term boyfriend, actor Bruce Robinson, back home.

Q: Didn't Lauren Hutton's reviews for her role in "American Gigolo" finally convince her to return to modeling and get out of movie acting? — P.M., Detroit, Mich.

A: Wrong on several counts. Lauren has kept up her highly lucrative modeling assignments while she's been making movies. Her performances in "American Gigolo" was respectable, and by and large, were her reviews. Finally, Lauren is determined about her screen career and seriously studying acting to improve her craft. In fact she recently used her modeling skill to attract attention by showing up at a big Hollywood party for producers in fetching cashmere dress very short. Lauren does not go unnoticed.

Q: What's this about a falling-out between Bianca Jagger and Halston, her long-time pal? — J.S., Larkspur, Calif.

A: Utter nonsense. Bianca often wears the famed designer's fabulous townhouse pad located on Manhattan's East Side as her home base when visiting the Big Apple. In addition, my spy reports that Bianca regularly receives a big bunch of mail at the Halston address.

RICHARD GERE
In the Juggler' vein

Q: Has Richard Gere sworn off movie roles to concentrate on the stage? He was terrific in "American Gigolo." — B.R. of Sarasota, Fla.

A: Richard has by no means sworn off movies — after all, why give up a good thing. But now that he's finished his starring role in the Broadway play "Bent," Richard has to wait until early 1981 to make the movie version in Germany, because the production is having trouble finding the right director. The actor is also interested in a romantic screen comedy, "The Juggler," in which he'll portray an itinerant street entertainer, but this is "in development," meaning it also needs a director, a producer and most of the rest of the required personnel.

GETTING THE "POPEYE" PICTURE: Paramount's advertising and publicity departments have been trying to determine how to make moviegoers aware that their forthcoming super-expensive film, "Popeye," is a full-length feature starring real-live actors, not an animated cartoon. Robin Williams as Popeye, Shelley Duvall as Olive Oyl and all the rest of the famed comic strip characters will be seen on screen, as well as heard. (In the "Chatterbox" movie, which used Debbie Reynolds' voice, have confused some audiences because they expected the real McCoy.)

Q: We hear so much about John Derek's dominant relationship with his wife Bo. But don't Ann-Margret and her husband-manager Roger Smith, have an identical type of deal going? — I.M. of Racine, Wis.

A: No, they don't. Although Roger is the controlling interest in Ann's professional life, she very much has a mind of her own as to what films or shows to do, and when. Roger is extremely supportive in seeing that business decisions are made and that Ann receives every bit of backstage help — thus relieving her of countless detail worries. But when it comes to the actual business of show, Ann is distinctly her own woman. But there's nothing prophetic in the title of her current film, "Lookin' to Get Out," with Jon Voigt.

Q: What's Meryl Streep going to do for a movie encore to her Oscar-winning performance in "Kramer vs. Kramer"? — I.G. of Chicago.

A: Meryl is playing the title role in a movie version of John Fowles' novel, "The French Lieutenant's Woman." Several unsuccessful attempts had been made to get this prestigious novel on the screen, but it took British dramatist Harold Pinter to come up with the right script. Now Meryl has to come up with an English accent.

Q: Came across a newspaper photo showing Margaret Trudeau dancing at a New York disco. Is she going up to her attention-getting tricks again? — R.H., Middleport, N.Y.

A: Quite the contrary. I checked with the club at which Maggie made the scene and discovered that she actually did her best to slip into the place unnoticed. Maggie seemed genuinely surprised at being recognized by a newspaper photographer on the premises and was apparently caught unawares. Fact is, she did her darndest to avoid the spotlight throughout the evening, indicating a newer, quieter Maggie this time around.

Q: I understand Dorothy Lamour is still professionally active. Does she really need the money? — L.P. of Madison.

A: Dorothy told me that she was shattered in 1978 by the death of her husband of 35 years, William Ross Howard III, and that she still hasn't fully recovered. She advised widows in similar straits to keep working, keep busy either in a salaried job or in charitable work. Dottie's following her own advice, performing in a New England summer stock revival at "Barefoot in the Park." She is also promoting her recent book, "My Side of the Road," in which she tells in moving terms of her life and happy

It's not a publicity whim — he just wants to keep the wraps on the picture until closer to its release time later this summer. Meanwhile, inside reports indicate "Tattoo" is very ingenious, very

ARE RYAN O'NEAL AND FARRAH FAWCETT STILL TOGETHER? — You have moved on to other romantic pastures? — D.S. of San Diego.

A: When I last checked, Farrah and Ryan were still very much an item, appearing at Hollywood social bashs whenever they could. Of course that hasn't been easy with Ryan making "Green Ice" in London and Mexico, and Farrah filming "The Cannonball Run" in Atlanta, Las Vegas and Los Angeles. If the romance eventually goes by the boards, don't be surprised if Farrah is the one who

No spoiling successful 13-year-old

By LEAH LATIMER

WASHINGTON — It's a muggy and blistering hot Saturday afternoon in Washington. But Stacy Lattisaw, 13, is racing around a go-cart track, the sun freckling her rosy skin and lightening her golden brown hair.

At $1 for five laps, Stacy is winding around for the 30th time. She has enough tickets for 30 more laps but her mother begs, "Stacy, you can save those tickets. We don't want to be out here all day."

She shrugs okay and walks away from her go-cart. But even heading for lunch at McDonald's with her family, she can't leave the fast track.

In her father's red Cadillac, the radio is turned up loud and tuned to a local pop station that announces that the next record has just hit the charts and is a smash — the most requested single in the city. It comes from an LP to be featured in that night's album spotlight. The song begins: "A light heart, thumping disco tune called 'Dynamite.'" The voice is strong, with an innocent sexiness.

Stacy's 8-year-old brother, Jerry, weary from standing in the sun, suddenly stands up beaming in the back seat.

"That's my sister Stacy's record," he says and settles back as her voice is pumped out of the back-seat speakers.

"Cause you move so sweet
When you're dancin'
Got the beat
Got the heat
Like dynamite
It's dynamite . . ."

Stacy Lattisaw stares out of the car window.

Suddenly, Stacy Lattisaw is a hit vocalist. It's a teen-age dream, but Stacy shrugs it off with genuine adolescent concern.

She just is not fazed by the fact that her May release single, "Dynamite," produced by Narada Michael Walden for Cotillion Records, had jumped 70 points in a week on Europe's pop charts and moved up 25 points on Billboard's top 100.

When the BBC strike is over, Cotillion wants her to go to Europe for singing spots on television in Holland, Germany and Britain. She has signed with the William Morris agency, which is booking her in East Coast summer tours with the Spinners and Smokee Robinson, and negotiating another with George Benson. A big prominent poster in record stores zooms in for a close-up of her with Bill Cosby who signed it. "This is my oldest personal friend in show business."

But Stacy, who just finished eighth grade, looks blank when asked if she is excited about her hit album, meeting celebrities and jetting off for Hollywood talk-show tapings between math and phys. ed. classes.

"I guess so," she offers. "All she wants is 10 or 15 kids in the yard. You see, I don't have any grass out there." Stacy's mother sighs, standing in the small kitchen that overlooks a dusty plot in the back yard. "If she could sing and never leave home, she'd be happy."

According to her mother, Stacy doesn't like airplanes, gets homesick easily even though the longest she's been on the road is 14 or 15 hours, five days, and frankly would rather spend her time racing go-carts, swimming or playing cards.

Success, it seems, has not spoiled Stacy Lattisaw.

It's understandable. Success sneaked up on her. It came as a combination of luck, timing and circumstance: a virtual show-biz miracle in which a 13-year-old from Southeast Washington got a five-year contract on Atlantic Records' Cotillion label and all the money and glory afforded by hits such as "Dynamite" and her new album "Let Me Be Your Angel."

Stacy's father, Jerome Lattisaw, works for the U.S. Government Printing Office. Her mother is not employed, and keeps house in a simple home facing a condemned building across the street. They had no friends with political or entertainment connections to introduce Stacy to the "right" people. There weren't even any singing or dance lessons. Stacy cannot read music.

Her producer manages a simple, obvious explanation of the success surrounding her: "Talent."

"I used to sing around the house, and when Stacy was 6 or so she started singing aloud. Before I knew it, she was outgating me." Sandra Lattisaw says of her plump, green-eyed daughter.

"When she was about 10, her sister asked her to sing at her high school homecoming and she said she didn't want to. I said, 'Will you sing if I pay you $5?' You know, she got up there and sang and made that $5!"

Within 18 months Stacy had made the rounds singing at all the fashion shows and amateur talent nights in town. When she was asked to open a free National Park Service show headlined by Ramsey Lewis, "An estimated crowd of 30,000 went wild, loved her, hollered for more."

She did five songs. Her father taped them.

Frederick Knight, then a producer with TK Records, was urged to listen to the tape by Al Dale, the Recreation Department official who organized the show. Knight thought the 13-year-old singer was "fantastic." He offered her a contract and, meanwhile, started writing a song inspired by her youthful outlook.

The contract with TK Records was rejected by a family lawyer familiar with the recording business. The lawyer, meanwhile, died an associate of his — the president of Cotillion Records.

Without ever hearing a note, Henry Allen, Atlantic Records' senior vice president and president of Cotillion Records, asked Lattisaw and her parents to visit his New York office.

"When I realized someone we knew was interested in her, I asked her to come to New York," Allen says. In November 1978, "they came up — Stacy, her mother, father, little brother — with no tapes, no pictures. Nothing."

Allen rented a studio that same day, called in the rhythm section of "Mass Production" and heard Stacy Lattisaw sing for the first time. She instructed the group to play Debbie Boone's "You Light Up My Life."

She started singing with the same kind of passion and fervor that made it a hit for Boone.

Martin Mull: top pop comedian with cult image

By AL COHN

Newsday

NEW YORK — Satirist Martin Mull is here, there and everywhere and quite successful at everything he does — but don't feel left out if the name is unfamiliar.

"If you don't look fast at Mull on the move, you'll miss him.

Mull has been touted as a popular "cult figure," a designation that caused him to laugh during a recent interview at a Manhattan hotel. "That," he said, "is another way of saying, 'Who's he?'"

The critics know. He stars in the current movie, "Serial," and was widely praised for his portrayal of a husband caught up in a farcical version of the contemporary American-lifestyle (West Coast variety). He is also widely known as the wife-beater in TV's "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," and subsequent TV talk show spoofs, "Fernwood 2Night" and "America 2Night." While critical successes, the latter shows were short-lived.

Consequently, Mull just kept on moving in different fields. He writes music, much of it in a comedic vein. One of his albums, "Sex and Violins," was nominated for a Grammy award. He is a serious artist whose works have been exhibited around the country. He has a night club act that caught producer Norman Lear's attention, leading to the role in "Mary Hartman." He has appeared as a guest and host of Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show. His most recent project is a film script for a satirical autobiography titled "Martin Mull — Part I."

Mull, 38, was born in Chicago and brought up in Ohio and Connecticut. He is soft-spoken and, in conversation, wryly funny without trying too hard.

He and his wife, Sandra, live in Malibu, Calif., with their two children from a former marriage.

Q: Despite your impressive credits, you are not regarded as a household name, at least yet.

MULL: Weeks away. (Laughs.) I've always been jealous of people named John. They are immediately a household name.

Q: Do you feel it works to your advantage to be spread out in so many different fields?

MULL: Well, on the one hand, you could use the term "haphazardly spread out all over the place." That's probably the truth. It could be called a Renaissance man. Unfortunately, this is a useless waste of time unless you happen to have millionaires living next door willing to sponsor you. I just find myself at the point where I'm interested in what I'm doing. I don't do everything at once, but I find that there are periods where I'm more interested in one thing than I am in another. For instance, I've been concentrating on the first draft of a movie script, and I never lifted a paint brush. I never wrote a song or touched a guitar. I typed. I took a little breather, my wife and I went to Europe, and I had a terrific time. When I came back, I found myself with this burning urge to paint. So I did. Meanwhile, quite literally, my typewriter rusted up. Management is like that. I have a concert tour in the fall, so I'll write some new songs to keep from boring myself silly. So it's spasmodic, and not easy, but it goes in cycles.

Q: You've been described as a cult figure. How do you feel about that?

MULL: Well, "cult figure" is a term that I think most accountants hate to hear because it tends to indicate a small group of people who follow you, and a small group of currency that goes along with it. I don't know. It's changed so dramatically in the last few years. I don't know what that cult is. I know, initially, when I was first doing concerts, I could pretty much give you a demographic of who my audience was. They were 18 to 35, primarily white, primarily middle- to upper-income, primarily college-educated, if not in college, and so on. It was specific enough so that we could pick and choose concert sites this way. Then when I did the "2Night" shows, which was major TV exposure for me, at least, I would go out and look at the audience and it was 8 years old, 80 years old, multiracial, multi-income blocks, and I had no idea what was going on. So I don't know what I appeal to, frankly.

Q: Do you enjoy appearing as a guest and host on Johnny Carson's show? It's supposedly more hectic than it seems.

MULL: Well, there's a style to hosting it that I haven't really learned yet. A guest is pre-interviewed the day before the show, and he's asked what he's been up to. He says, "Well, my golf game is coming along." And you say (on the show), "Oh, you're really interested in golf, huh?" You see, quite often you've never met the person or even heard of him—sometimes. So, after the buildup, he says: "I've quit golf, and I don't want to talk about it." And you go, "Okay!" And you look down at your notes, and it says, "Also plays tennis." So maybe you'll say, "Tennis is a lot like politics," and hope that leads to something interesting.

Q: How about being a guest on the show?

MULL: I remember my first time because it was the Fourth of July, 1978. George Carlin was the guest host, and as you guest-host more often, you start to have some say-in-who-you-would-like-to-have-on. Apparently, he had seen me work and thought I might work out well as a guest. That was the break.

Q: Do you find it easier being a host or a guest on the show?

MULL: I find the easiest one is being a viewer. Being a guest is definitely easier. At times, being a host is terrifying. But sometimes the words terror and excitement can almost be interchangeable. It's like sports. What is the fun of skiing? You might fall, you might have an avalanche. You're going 90 miles an hour. It's terrifying and exciting. People don't skydive because it's relaxing.

Q: Do you have any new albums coming out?

MULL: Nothing in the works right now. I'm concentrating more just now on writing a script for a film.

Q: You've written for movies before.

MULL: Very small pieces. I've never been a typewriter "writer," or whatever. But now I've got a first draft done on a movie, and I have to go back and make it readable.

Q: Would you talk about that?

MULL: It's called "The Martin Mull Story — Part I." Extremely humble. (Laughs.) And I play the part of a guy named Donald, and it's not a life story at all. It's a ruse. It takes place over the space of about a week, as opposed to "The Glenn Miller Story," which took his life, except the pure part.

Q: So that would be a takeoff on the autobiographical movie.

MULL: In a way, it's mostly just almost a slice-of-life kind of script at this point, although hopefully, it has a plot of some sort. Thinly woven. Just about lifestyles in northern Ohio in the 1950s in a trailer park, so it's hardly the Riviera. It's... what would you call the coast of Lake Erie?

Q: Would you say then, at this point, that your future will be movies rather than television?

MULL: I really don't know. Even though, obviously, there are moments when conscious decisions have to be made as a professional. Are we going to do these concerts?

Should we take this show or should we do a book? I mean, I just recently, there has been no real decision that we're going to completely forget all about this, this and this, and concentrate on one area of show business. But now it seems that it's starting to be more slanted toward films. And I noticed that even though I don't want to cut the cords on any of these things — not necessarily for social security reasons, but just because I enjoy them — that each aspect of the media has something to offer that another doesn't. That, you know, radio gives you the opportunity of being good and not having to shave. (Laughs.) So I would never want to cut any of the cords, including the painting. The painting is very important to me.

Q: I gather that was a major part of your education. I read that you studied art in Rome.

MULL: Yes.

Q: Specifically, what is your major current art activity?

MULL: I'm preparing for a show at a Los Angeles gallery on or about the first of July. It will feature about 20 pieces.

Q: Apparently, Norman Lear has been influential in your career. How did that come about?

MULL: He saw me play at a club in Manhattan about three years ago, and we spoke later on in Los Angeles. He asked me to do a show at the time, but we seemed to get along pretty well. I really have great admiration for him. Not long afterward, I was asked to read for the part of a wife-beater in "Mary Hartman," and to lead and behold, I got it.

Q: What has happened to plans for you to star in the Lear movie, "Serial"?

MULL: That is now a dormant issue. Lear has gone on to a television project. You would have to have something no less than the size of the CBS game show to carry out every idea that Norman has. He gets an idea at breakfast for a film, and if he has a second cup of coffee, we're gonna have two television shows out of that, and a novel, and if he stays around long enough to pick up his own check, which he probably would, we're gonna have a play on Broadway. I don't have a movie, I have a deal, I've thought, I think it's filed — in his brain.

Pagant is traditional

long. Three years ago the selection committee decided to aim for a manageable dozen.

Audition time is tough. The girls don't fall into easy yes/no categories. "Frequently we see a girl who might make it, if she would apply herself to lose a little weight or polish her piano skills, for example. Then we have to evaluate her capacity for realizing her goal. We wouldn't want a girl to come feeling unprepared, and therefore, embarrassed."

In the 12 girls selected this year include: Brenda Howell and Farah Lee Olsen, of Buhl; Callie Brawley and Peggy Ann Eden, of Twin Falls; Pamela Sue Kelley, Loriann Olsen, Karmelle White and Brenda Wright, of Kimberly; Leslie Ann Mauldin, Larke Kim Gillett and Mary Elizabeth Humphrey, of Jerome and Tami Sue Hatfield of Gooding.

The girls and their parents met the team that would guide them at an April orientation seminar. Modeling and fashion coordinator Bonnie Christanson warned them not to buy new clothes without consulting her. Hair and makeup stylist Judy Craig cautioned them against suddenly "going blonde."

Beverly Hackney, dance teacher, discussed choreography and how she designs the movements to best frame each girl, equally. They met Lois Metheny, special effects chairman.

Former Miss Idaho and current writer and teacher, Irene Link addressed the group about ideals and interviews.

Pagant director, Dr. Gary Walker and his assistant, Mike lison, passed out contracts which legally bind the contestants to perform in the pagant.

The Lions Club handles publicity, fund-raising and the mechanics of the production while Mrs. Henderson's team coaches the girls.

"Although the emphasis is on talent and intelligence, cries that bathing suit contests are sexist and 'degrade' females have sounded since the first bathing beauties lined up on the beach in Atlantic City in 1921. Despite the protests of the last two decades, the bathing suit is a fixture of U.S. beauty pageants not likely to be soon discarded.

"Tradition says bathing suits show the health and posture of a girl," says Mrs. Henderson. "Most of the girls find it difficult to maintain their sense of dignity while parading in a bathing suit. I just remind them that the one-piece modest swimsuit they wear covers a lot more than the bikinis they wear in public."

"As far as Mrs. Henderson's concern, the bathing suit contest could be eliminated." There could be other ways, to disclose health, the body in balance.

As a further benefit of this community-oriented pagant, all proceeds from ticket sales will go to the Eye Project, which provides glasses for the needy and maintains an eye bank.

"This year's theme song for the pagant is 'Tomorrow,'" says Henderson. "And it's very appropriate for a group of young women who will be so full of hope tomorrow night."

Tickets for the pagant are $3 and will be on sale at the door.
