

Freed hostage Richard Queen waves to crowd that gave him a hero's welcome upon return to U.S.

Shaky but smiling Queen returns to America

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Freed hostage Richard Queen returned to the United States Friday to an emotional welcome used by Secretary of State Edmund Muskie to plead for the release of the 52 Americans remaining in Iran.

A beaming Queen, released from captivity in Iran because of an illness diagnosed as multiple sclerosis, walked off the Air Force C-141 Medevac flight with his hand on his forehead, looking slightly unsteady, but smiling broadly.

Muskie helped him to a microphone.

"I really can't express in words what it's like to be back to America," Queen told the group of dignitaries and family members on hand to greet him at Andrews Air Force Base after his flight from the Rhein-Main Air Base outside Frankfurt, West Germany.

"I just wish there were 52 more with me," said Queen. In a reference to the 13 black and women hostages released by the Iranians in December, he added, "But we have 14 out."

Louisa Kennedy, whose husband is one of the hostages left in Iran, kissed the bearded Queen on the cheek and presented him with a bouquet of yellow and white mums tied up with a yellow ribbon — a symbol of American determination to win release of the hostages.

"We have been waiting a long time to welcome Richard and his fellow hostages," said Muskie.

"This is the first indication we have had that the captors understand the hostages are human beings, that they are people with families back home."

"We ask them to consider that with respect to the other 52, that they are also people with families, with hopes, with love, with families, and we ask them to send them home, not to their government but to their families and people."

Queen's mother, Jeanne Queen, said, "There are no words I can say but thank you, thank you to all American people for support given to us and thank you to all people of world."

Queen's father, Harold Queen said, "As far as we are concerned this is not the end of a trip but the beginning. We hope to be here to greet the 52 others."

Queen's left arm appeared to be stiff and he was unable to lift it. Although he could stand, his footsteps were shaky.

After the brief welcoming ceremony, Queen, still smiling broadly, was seated in a wheelchair, holding the flowers in his lap. He was taken by ambulance to Georgetown University Hospital.

The hospital later issued a statement saying Queen would spend the weekend undergoing tests administered by a medical team headed by Dr. Desmond Dogbert, chairman of the Neurology Department.

Carter hails 'greatest project in history' Canada says go to Alaska natural gas pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter Friday hailed Canada's decision to start work on its portion of a $2-billion pipeline to carry Alaskan and Canadian natural gas to Western and Midwestern U.S. markets.

"I am very pleased today the Canadian government has announced its willingness to move forward on this vast project," Carter said. "It's the biggest single project in the history of the world."

The Ottawa government late Thursday authorized construction on a Canadian pipeline segment that will link up with a proposed pipeline through Alaska from the North Slope oil fields.

Ottawa also decided to let additional exports help finance the project because Canada's gas surplus has grown from 800 billion to 4.5 trillion cubic feet a year.

Canadian Energy Minister Marc Lalonde said a key factor in the decision was a Carter letter giving assurances Canadian investors would suffer no financial harm if their segment is completed before the Alaskan portion is ready.

"I would be prepared at the appropriate time to initiate action before the U.S. Congress to remove any impediment as may exist under present law to providing that desired confidence for the Canadian portion of the line," Carter wrote to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

Stuart Eisenstat, Carter's domestic adviser, told reporters Carter's reaffirmation of the U.S. commitment "will facilitate private financing of the whole system."

He said Carter's pledge to compensate Canada for any delay or failure to build the Alaskan segment could involve a "tariff change."

The Canadians sought a guarantee that they could recover their building costs from U.S. gas shippers, even if no Alaskan gas is ready to flow through their segment of the 4,800-mile pipeline when it is finished.

Former Prime Minister Bakhtiar Assassins miss leader of Iran exiles

PARIS (UPI) — Three Palestinian gunmen posing as reporters invaded the apartment building of former Iranian Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar with pistols blazing Friday, killing a police officer and a woman neighbor in a wild gunbattle.

All three were captured.

Bakhtiar, last prime minister appointed by the shah before he was toppled in February 1979, was eating breakfast in his kitchen at the time and was not injured.

Police said one of the gunmen was slightly wounded. A woman seen fleeing the scene was being sought.

Besides the policeman and the 45-year-old woman killed in the exchange of gunfire, another policeman and several people attracted by the noise were wounded.

The three captured gunmen told police during questioning that they were Palestinians. It was not immediately known whether they had any connection with the Iranian government or radical Islamic groups.

Bakhtiar was named by Iran as a plotter in an abortive coup attempt against Ayatollah Ruhollah

Khomeini which was uncovered last week. He said he had been expecting the attack for some time and vowed to "continue struggling for reestablishment of a democratic and constitutional regime in Iran."

Officials said the gunmen flashed press cards to the Communist newspaper L'Humanite to gain entrance to the building.

They pulled guns and opened fire on police in the hallway outside Bakhtiar's third-floor apartment when the exile leader's son, answering a bell, opened the door slightly but kept it secured by a chain.

"They started shooting as soon as the door was ajar," said Bakhtiar, 55.

Tehran Radio broadcast a communique after the attack from a group called the Guards of Islam, who said they had sentenced Bakhtiar to death for "active participation" in a coup attempt against Khomeini and for regional strife in Iran. The group made no mention of the Paris attack.

Bakhtiar said the gunmen were "professional assassins" that the government of Tehran has sent to France.

Police said they found a car in which the assassins had hidden moosey, weapons and ammunition.

Draft registration is ruled discriminatory

Monday registration plan grinds to a halt

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — In a stunning decision, a three-judge federal panel Friday ruled the United States military draft registration law is unconstitutional because it discriminates against men by excluding women.

The ruling stops the registration Monday of 4 million young men for a possible draft.

The government promptly asked the Supreme Court to block the ruling, saying failure to register young men for a possible draft would undercut President Carter's response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

In the decision stemming from a 9-year-old anti-draft suit, the U.S. District Court panel in Philadelphia said military description violates the civil rights of draft-age men. It declared the Military Selective Service Act violates the 5th Amendment to the Constitution.

The class-action suit was born in 1971 during the Vietnam war in an attempt by war protesters to stop the draft.

The judges "permanently enjoined" the government from requiring the draft registration of 18 million males between the ages of 18 and 34.

"We have combed the record and the legislative history for purported justifications for the total exclusion of women — and we find each proffered justification unconvincing," the 41-page opinion said.

The panel immediately rejected a Justice Department request to stay its decision. A few hours later government attorneys filed a request for a stay with the clerk of the Supreme Court.

"So long as it remains in effect, the order will leave the United States without a means of conscripting an army, and seriously handicapped in the event of a national emergency," the Justice Department said in its application for a stay.

"More immediately, the ruling below injects unsurmountable confusion into a registration system that depends upon the voluntary cooperation of eligible individuals and undercuts an important constituent of the president's response to the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan."

The White House declined comment on the decision.

A court spokesman said the request would go to Supreme Court Justice William Brennan, the circuit justice for Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Brennan was at his summer home in Nantucket, Mass.

It was unknown when he would return to the court.

Congress this year rejected Carter's request to include women in registration for the draft. Donald Weinberg, an attorney representing the class of draft-age young men, said it was unlikely Congress would attempt to change the draft law in an election year to include women.

In Washington, the American Civil Liberties Union called the ruling a "major victory against the institution of a peacetime registration and draft for women's rights."

Judge Max Rosen of the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals, U.S. District Court Judge Edward Cahn, and U.S. District Chief Judge Joseph Lord III wrote in their opinion:

"In this case the harm to the plaintiffs is neither remote nor hypothetical. Registration is a sufficient intrusion on the rights of an individual to allow this court to adjudicate the constitutionality of that registration."

"We need not wait, and should not wait, until the governmental intrusion on the individual's civil rights reaches maximum proportions and the nation is in a time of crisis. The case is ripe."

"Gender discrimination is a badge of inferiority and must pass constitutional review whether or not it is arguably for the benefit of women."

"The due process clause of the Fifth Amendment is violated by the government's failure to provide for a substantial female involvement in the military."

Weinberg said that Congress has only allocated $3 million for the previously proposed draft legislation and therefore cannot afford to register women.

If Congress changes the law permitting draft registration of women, Weinberg said, "it would be a politically risky thing. It would make it more difficult for the country to get into unpopular wars."

"If they were drafting women during Vietnam, there may never have been a Vietnam."

The class action suit was brought in 1971 as Andrew Rowland vs. Curtis Tarr, who was Selective Service Director at the time. Rowland, the original chief plaintiff, left the suit after Congress repealed draft registration April 1, 1975.

Although the case was considered moot, medical school student Robert L. Goldberg in 1975 replaced Rowland as chief plaintiff. Goldberg, now a physician, practices family medicine in Modesto, Calif.

Currently named as defendant in the suit is Bernard Roitker, the new Selective Service Director.

When Congress reinstated draft registration in June, Weinberg revived the suit.

In invoking the 5th Amendment, the suit said of draft-age men:

"Their right to equal protection of the law, as that concept is included in the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment, are violated in that males only are subject to registration for the draft, and therefore there is an increased probability of the male plaintiffs actually being inducted because the pool of draft eligibles is decreased by the exclusion of females."

But in another draft case Registration upheld

BOSTON (UPI) — A federal judge Friday denied a request for a preliminary injunction to block implementation of the nation's new military draft registration.

Before taking the case under advisement, U.S. District Court Judge Walter J. Skinner rejected a government request to stay his ruling pending the outcome of a similar case in Philadelphia, presertory above it.

Skinner said the Boston lawsuit was broader in scope than the Philadelphia case.

In denying injunctive relief, Skinner sent the case to the First U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on his own accord without waiting for a formal request from lawyers. The appeals court was expected to hear the case Monday.

The class-action suit, filed by Boston lawyers Mitchell Benjoya and Jeffrey A. Denner on behalf of all men 18-20 years of age, contends draft registration is an unconstitutional denial of individual rights because the nation is not at war or in a national emergency.

They argued the constitutionality of a peacetime draft has never been tested in the courts.

Benjoya and Denner also contended draft registration is discriminatory because it excludes men over 20 years old and women.

Without addressing those issues in oral arguments, assistant U.S. Attorney Marianne Bowler said there is no need for injunctive relief because simply registering at a post office does no irreparable harm to an individual since currently there is no conscription.

Denner contended all other national drafts took place either during a declared war, active hostilities or a national emergency. He said none of those conditions exist at present.

Wilkinson pleads guilty

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cathlyn Wilkinson, who said she wanted to avoid a sensationalized trial, pleaded guilty Friday to possession of the dynamite that caused a 1970 Western Union bomb factory blast in which three colleagues were killed.

Because she agreed to plead to the charge, the Manhattan district attorney's office dropped a charge of criminally negligent homicide originally lodged against her.

Peter Zimroff, the chief assistant district attorney, said that because the sentence would have had to run concurrently, the office decided to drop the lesser charge against his client.

"I have decided to plead guilty... to possession of dynamite, even though I believe that a conviction would be difficult — if not impossible — for the prosecution to obtain," Miss Wilkinson told state Supreme Court Justice David Rothman.

"I do not want to discuss my own deep regrets over the deaths of three beloved comrades in the context of a sensationalized trial," she said. "I dislike the prospect of the daily publicity that would undoubtedly attend this trial."

India launches satellite

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — India launched its first satellite into earth orbit Friday atop a four-stage solid-fuel rocket, indicating it now is capable of firing intermediate-range ballistic missiles.

Two earlier Indian-made satellites, Aryabhata and Bhaskara, were launched from the Soviet Union using Soviet rockets. The launch Friday was the first to be propelled by Indian technology.

Indian space scientists said the firing of the four-stage rocket confirmed India's ability to launch intermediate-range ballistic missiles with nuclear warheads. The first one should be ready by 1990.

The successful launch, which cost $25 million, made India the first underdeveloped nation to enter space and the seventh in the world to put a satellite in orbit.

Mrs. Gandhi told Parliament the orbiting satellite "is intended mainly to measure the performance of the parameters of the launch vehicle."

Castro, Arafat visit in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Cuba's Fidel Castro, sweating under a bullet-proof vest, arrived Friday to join other leaders including Yasser Arafat and the U.S. delegation in marking the first anniversary of Nicaragua's leftist revolution.

U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry, leading the U.S. delegation, told reporters on arriving shortly after Castro that Washington supports "human rights, political pluralism, freedom of expression" and early elections in Nicaragua.

guerrilla leaders who trained in Cuba for the battle against former President Anastasio Somoza.

Castro's Soviet-made jet was preceded by a platoon of Cuban security agents, who fanned out through Cesar A. Sandino Airport, armed with AK-47 submachine guns and toting tiny black satchels.

The Cubans kept journalists at least 60 feet away from the Cuban president until he departed in a fleet of 10 baby blue Mercedes Benzes.

Hundreds of other Cuban security agents appeared to be in charge of a network of roadblocks around the city.

Cubans were involved in the security in Managua because "I am convinced the Cubans think the United States is about to launch another invasion of Cuba" while Castro is out of the country.

The tight security kept some Managua residents bottled up in their neighborhoods and subjected others to constant security checks, but apparently did not dampen the festive atmosphere building up around the capital.

GOP boss retires with warning

DETROIT (UPI) — Ray Bliss, a master political craftsman, called it quits this week.

The public never knew the short, jowly man with the gruff manners and the "retired" personality. But the professionals did, and they will miss him.

And he had a last bit of advice for Ronald Reagan and the Republicans, giddy in the aftermath of the GOP National Convention.

"This election will be no picnic," he said. Better start organizing, Jimmy Carter is going to be tough to beat in November.

"Some of these guys are talking like Tom Dewey's crowd in 1948," Bliss growled. He remembers.

Now 72, Bliss gave up his seat on Republican National Committee Friday, a seat he has held since 1962. He has attended every GOP national convention since 1936, except one.

Bliss, a political pro from Ohio, is best known for taking over the Republican National Committee in 1964 and, within four years, bringing it back from disaster.

The Republicans ran Barry Goldwater that year. He not only lost the election but he ripped apart the party. Doomsayers said it would take years and years — if ever — for the Republicans to come back.

But Bliss, aligned with the East Coast wing of the party, went to work, the way only he could. A stickler for organization, he rebuilt the party base.

And four years later, in 1968, Richard Nixon was elected president. Under Bliss, the Republicans also added 14 governorships, snared 11 Senate seats and picked up 52 in the House. Hundreds of legislative seats, county offices and city halls went Republican.

"When I was chairman, I always maneuvered," he said.

"I gave people in the organization a role to play and built a party from that," he said.

Bolivian army takes control

LA-PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Army Commander Gen. Luis Garcia Meza was sworn in Friday as president of Bolivia and army units moved into mining towns to crush remaining resistance to the military coup.

The United States cut off military assistance to Bolivia, recalled the U.S. ambassador and considered a total cutoff of all economic aid as a response to the coup.

The swearing-in ceremony came just hours after Lidia Gueller surrendered her power as president during a radio address in which her voice choked with emotion.

Garcia, a frequent critic of Mrs. Gueller in the months before the overthrow, signed a decree designating himself president. Also signing the document were the other two members of the junta — Air Force Commander Gen. Waldo Bernal and Navy Commander Rear-Admiral Ramiro Terrazas.

Diplomatic sources said Miss Gueller, captured in Thursday's coup d'etat, was under house arrest at the La-Paz headquarters of the Catholic archbishop.

Tanks patrolled the streets of the capital and combat-ready troops took up positions on roof tops.

The coup was aimed at preventing Congress from electing a leftist president. The assembly was to choose a president Aug. 4 because a general election at the end of June did not produce a clear-cut winner.

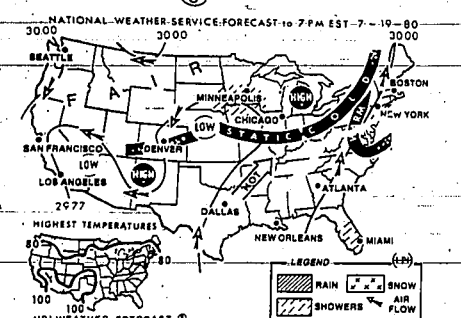

Political sources said Hernal Siles Zuazo, the left-of-center leader who won the most votes in the June 29 presidential elections, was in hiding.

Martial law was in effect nationwide.

In a communique the junta said it took power because of "economic decomposition," subversion by leftist groups, corruption, electoral fraud and general disorder.

It imposed a curfew and declared Friday a national holiday, coinciding with a general strike of indefinite duration called by the National Committee in Defense of Democracy to oppose the takeover.

Helicopter crashes in Utah, killing 1

MONTICELLO, Utah (UPI) — An Air Force helicopter from Florida crashed and burned Friday in southeastern Utah while returning from a desert training exercise with Army troops. One crewman was killed and six others injured.

The HH-53 Sikorski helicopter — similar to those used in an aborted attempt to rescue the American hostages in Iran — crashed about 9:45 a. m. five miles north of Monticello. It was returning from the Army's Dugway Proving Ground to Elgin Air Force Base, Fla.

San Juan County Sheriff Rigby Wright said the helicopter burst into flames after "windmilling" to earth. The sheriff said the seven crewmen scrambled from the wreckage, but one man was fatally burned. Six others were hospitalized with injuries.

Military spokesmen said the helicopter was one of one of 12 from Elgin participating in a routine training exercise with Army-Troops-at-Dugway in the western Utah desert.

The Army flatly denied speculation that the troops may have training for another attempt to rescue the hostages.

"That's a flat no," said Sgt. Phil Hale, of the Army's public affairs office at Dugway. "And this training was not classified," he added.

Immediately after the crash, Sheriff Wright said Air Force personnel told him the flight was a "confidential" mission and they would not disclose where the helicopter had been or where it was going.

Miami cools as police patrol streets

MIAMI (UPI) — A tough new police stance restored order Friday to the predominantly black Liberty City section plagued by two days of looting and firebombings that officials said was the work of one or more groups of "well organized and well armed hoodlums."

A curfew imposed Thursday remained in effect, and a highly visible force of about 300 police patrolled the troubled 170-square block area. A company of 400 National Guardsmen also remained on alert, ready to go to the aid of police, if needed.

In addition, the National Weather Service promised more rain. A deluge Thursday night cooled the troubled area.

"It's the quietest night we've had in a year," said police Capt. Douglas Hughes. "The community is getting tired of it too."

One warehouse fire was the only serious incident reported Thursday night and there were 29 arrests for curfew violations. Four of those arrested also were charged with carrying concealed weapons.

"The weather was a help, naturally, but I also believe there's a feat of our manpower and commitment," said Assistant Public Safety Department Director Robert Dempsey.

"Of course, the leaders of the groups may have decided just to lay low," said Dempsey, who was in charge until Bobby Jones, the director, returned from vacation Friday.

The Police Benevolent Association had complained to authorities about the restraints placed on Liberty City Patrolmen Tuesday and Wednesday. "Let us do our jobs," one official demanded.

Dempsey and other officials, including Gov. Bob Graham, said they believed violence Tuesday and Wednesday which resulted in injuries to at least 65 persons, including six policemen, was the product of at least one organized group.

"The problem is one of a group of fairly well-organized and well-armed hoodlums attempting by the use of guerrilla tactics to take over a housing area," Graham said.

Officials said a large part of the problem was the presence in the neighborhoods of hundreds of weapons stolen last May during the bloody Liberty City riots that took 18 lives and caused an estimated $100 million damage.

Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre proposed lay bare a search for weapons questions asked from anyone who will sell them — blacks or whites.

"I guarantee you that there are not many households in the community" without weapons, Ferre said. He said the area would "be served if we can get 10,000 guns in."

Klan leader testifies to shooting

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — "Berserk" after a night of beer drinking and cross-burning, a Ku Klux Klan member blasted away with two shotguns at a crowd of black women outside a tavern, wounding four of them, a jury was told Friday.

The account was given in a typed statement played in court where three klansmen are on trial for the April 19 attack.

Larry Payne, one of the defendants, gave the statement to law officers shortly after his arrest.

Payne, 26, of Rossville, Ga.; William Church, 23, of Chattanooga, a self-proclaimed Imperial Wizard of the Justice Knights of the KKK; and Marshall Thrash, 30, are charged with four counts each of felonious assault in the incident.

Payne's attorney, Hank Hill, said he did not object to the court hearing the tape because his client was just riding with Church and Thrash and should not have been charged in the shooting.

In opening arguments Thursday, defense attorneys contended Thrash had fired at the women; but contended he did not know what he was doing because he is an alcoholic.

Payne's statement said Church and Thrash had ignited two crosses under a railroad overpass in a black section of town and were circling the area in a car to see if the crosses were still burning.

"When we circled around the nut in the passenger seat (Thrash) — he just went berserk," Payne said.

Payne said the group had attended a Klan meeting before the shooting, got some beer and stuff and stopped by Thrash's house to pick up some shotguns.

"He (Thrash) wanted to stop by there and pick up some shotguns in case anybody did start some trouble or something," Payne said in the tape.

The four women wounded in the attack testified Thursday they were "gunned down like dogs." They said they were leaving a tavern when a shotgun poked out the window of a "reddish" car opened fire.

Palace plagued by pot plants

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard had a new mystery on its hands Friday — who planted and nurtured 69 marijuana plants in a royal garden virtually within the shadow of Buckingham Palace?

Officers searching for a missing child in Hyde Park in central London Thursday stumbled onto the plants, which were a sturdy 7 to 10 inches high and growing under glass frames in the royal garden that is off-limits to the public.

The enclosed garden is across the road from Buckingham Palace, home of Queen Elizabeth. It also is close to the permanent police post from which Scotland Yard keeps an eye on the park and its surrounding wide open spaces.

The 360-acre Hyde Park is one of the complex of four public parks surrounding the palace, the royal residence. They are designated royal parks because earlier monarchs used them as private playgrounds before opening them to the public.

They are used by thousands of Londoners and tourists daily. But the area where the marijuana was found is sealed off and used as a plant nursery by the park gardeners who are employees of the government's Department of the Environment.

Police hauled the illegal plants away Thursday night, while horrified park officials assured them the cultivation was totally without authorization.

GOLDEN TONES
The Republican National Convention was in full swing, when out of the past came the massive echoes of the great commentator. At 87-year-old Lowell Thomas, rising to second the vice presidential nomination of George Bush. "Good Evening..." Then he endorsed Bush as "a magnificent human being to whom I would entrust my country, my life, and I would even entrust to him my wife." And, still in character, he signed off with his trademark: "So long until tomorrow."

PRICE OF HONOR

In 1948, the Chicago Tribune, in a famous hasty headline, elected Tom Dewey to the presidency. Thursday the Sun-Times made Gerald Ford Ronald Reagan's running mate, and the Tribune commiserated with its rival, saying, "In 25 to 30 years, the embarrassment will begin to fade into very resignation." But, Sun-Times columnist Mike Royko was more explicit. Said he, "The person who wrote that headline should do the decent and honorable thing — like kill himself."

ROYAL PAIN

"The Once and Future King" wasn't up to the present Thursday night in New York. Richard Burton — recreating his 1960 role as King Arthur in "Camelot" — made it five minutes into the first act before calling down the curtain and turning the crown over to understudy William Parry. Show spokesman Seymour Krawitz says Burton has "a rough case of bursitis in his right shoulder" that medication for the affliction made him woozy, and "he's truly in pain."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Walt Disney didn't live to see the 25th anniversary of his dream world, but he was there Thursday in more than spirit when Disneyland celebrated his birthday. Fest Parker — Davey Crockett on the old TV series — and four of the original Mousketeers from the Mickey Mouse Club helped kick off the 25-hour party at the big Anaheim, Calif., theme park, but was Disney's voice — on tape — that set the tone, calling the place one of "joy and imagination" for people everywhere.

The Davis quintuplets tell how old they are at their birthday party

BORN TEXANS

Five years ago, after a doctor prescribed fertility drugs without her knowledge, Debbie Davis bore quintuplets in Dallas — the first ever in Texas. Friday, Chelsea, Chanda, Casey, Chasia and Christa celebrated their birthday with the hospital staff that delivered them. Says Mrs. Davis, "When they were babies I never had to worry when I took them places, but even in just the last year, it's gotten a lot harder. They aren't afraid of anything or anyone."

IF AT FIRST...

Froggie Smith says he and his tiny band of Ylipson are "the first American boat people" and they're seeking political asylum in Canada. They set sail across the Detroit River Thursday after a dozen of their number were arrested during a "Reagan for Shah" rally at the Republican National Convention. Says he, "We've been denied our rights. It's not safe for us to be here." And if Canada doesn't take them in? Says Smith, "We'll turn around and come home."

The leaders of Young Life Twin Falls would like to thank—the businesses and—individuals—who—contributed financially towards sending fifteen of our local high school students to Young Life's frontier Ranch this summer. The majority of the contributions was given as pledges for a full day's work by the students in cleaning up the bicycle path in Rock Creek Canyon.

The experiences at camp were not only fun and exciting, but also provided an alternative perspective for dealing with life's situations.

We also would like to give special thanks to the parents for their past and continued support of their children.

Actor commits suicide

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Donald "Red" Barry, who rode across movie screens as the "Red Ryder" in the 1940s serial and went on to appear in a host of television shows, shot and killed himself Thursday night following an argument with his estranged wife.

Los Angeles Police spokesman Capt. Dan Cooke said officers were called to Barry's home in North Hollywood at about 9:30 p.m. to quiet a family dispute.

"The officers thought the dispute was settled," Cooke said, "but as they were getting in their car to go, Barry walked out of the house, put a .38-caliber revolver to his head and fired."

Barry, 69, was pronounced dead a short time later at Riverside Hospital in Los Angeles.

The actor's wife of more than 20 years, Barbara, recently moved out of their home with the couple's two daughters, Christina, 15, and Deborah, 19, and rented a nearby apartment.

Cooke said he did not know the subject of the dispute or who called police.

A family friend, however, said the younger daughter was staying with Barry and called her mother when she noticed her father acting strangely.

When Mrs. Barry arrived, the friend said, her estranged husband attempted to strangle her and she fled and called police.

Barry, who was born in Houston, made his first movie appearance in "Night Wallress" in 1936.

The other Reagan is liberal

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Not only has Ronald Reagan had to suffer through many poor jokes in his lifetime, his name hasn't exactly been a boon to his business, either.

Reagan is a suburban Monroeville psychotherapist, a registered Democrat and a self-described "eastern liberal" — a far cry from the Republican presidential nominee who shares his name.

"We both claim we don't dye our hair," said Reagan 39, when asked to cite the similarities between himself and the 69-year-old former California governor.

"I'm an eastern liberal and he's a western conservative," he said. "I really don't think we share a common view."

Reagan said the jokes about his name began when he was growing up and the candidate was a star on the silver screen.

"Then he decides to become a governor, and since then he's been trying to be president for 12 years," Reagan said. "I guess he's a prime example of, 'if at first you don't succeed, try, try again.'"

What's what

Distinctions notable among antique buyers

People interested in antiques can be divided into two categories. Some are collectors, some accumulators. Merchants in this business have to understand the distinction. Collectors buy, accumulators sell. A footnote: Collectors tend to understand the ins and outs of tax laws while accumulators rarely make much study of those matters.

"King's College of Our Lady of Eton Beadle Windsor." That was the name back in 1440 of the English school that came to be known simply as Eton. One of numerous noteworthy things about it is the fact that, so far, it has provided Great Britain with 16 prime ministers.

How do you account for the fact that most farm accidents occur right around one or another of two times a day, either 10 a.m. or 4 p.m.?

THREE WORDS

Q. Only three words in the English language end in "gy." That's what you said. I can only find two—hungry and angry...?

A. Am beginning to believe that only two count. A third, puggy, is the name of a scarf worn once by the British around their pith helmets in India. But it is spelled differently in different dictionaries, and puggy no longer seems to be the preferred spelling.

Q. What does a Scotman wear under his kilt?
A. Underwear.

Q. Can a West German be extradited to another country face to a murder charge?

A. No, not under Article 16 of West Germany's constitution. No extradition of a West German from West Germany is permitted for any reason.

Q. Who was the first to spend at least $1 million a year on advertising?
A. The sewing machine man, Isaac Merritt Singer.

DOLLS

Collectors of antique dolls say the dolls that have their mouths closed are the most valuable. But they don't say why.

County plan won't accomplish too much

By JEFF SHER

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For at least the foreseeable future, the county comprehensive plan is not going to accomplish all that some hoped, and others feared, it would.

It is not going to be an iron-clad set of rules that will determine once and for all where in Twin Falls County residential development will and will not be allowed.

That much has been established now that the county commissioners have reached a final decision on the first major test of the comprehensive plan.

The test came when developers applied for permission to construct two residential housing projects, totaling nearly 150 units, in an agricultural zone in the Melon Valley northeast of Bull.

Residents of the area, mostly ranchers and farmers, opposed the project.

The county commissioners decided to approve the two developments despite the fact that one of the goals stated in the comprehensive plan is to preserve agricultural land in the county.

The view taken by the county commissioners is that the stated goals of the comprehensive plan — to preserve agricultural land to discourage development in outlying areas and encourage it on vacant land closer to existing cities — exist merely as guidelines and not as the bottom line for land-use decisions.

The bottom line for the county commissioners is to determine what is the highest and best use of the land based on the specifics of each proposed development. The goals of the plan must be considered and followed when and if possible, but they are not inviolable. Residential development can be allowed in agricultural zones if the zoning commission and the county commissioners decide that is the best use of the land.

This line of reasoning infuriates those who subscribe to the opposing view of the purpose of the comprehensive plan. They believe the comprehensive plan was created, after years of public debate, to establish specific criteria for determining where development should be allowed, criteria which must be followed.

Since the plan's stated goal is to preserve agricultural land, and since residential development and divisions of smaller than 20 acres are not allowed in agricultural zones, the commissioners acted illegally in allowing the PUD's, they argue.

However, the commissioners and their legal counsel in the county prosecutor's office maintain that the stated goals of the plan are subject to interpretation. The plan, they argue, was left vague purposely to allow elected officials flexibility in making zoning decisions. No plan, the argument continues, could be specific enough to cover all possible factors which enter into zoning decisions.

They contend the bottom line for land use decisions is what is the highest and best use of the land. The next most important consideration is the livability of the proposed development and its compatibility with existing land uses in the immediate vicinity.

But the words "highest and best use of the land" are not listed as criteria in the plan, and the opponents of the Melon Valley developments contend the commissioners are ignoring the plan.

"They question the value of the plan if the commissioners will not follow it," the commissioners are wondering the same thing. They make no secret of the fact that they didn't want the plan in the first place.

In addition, they have the PUD loophole to fall back on. The PUD ordinance, a part of the zoning ordinance, allows PUD's in any zone, according to the commissioners, as long as they comply with the rest of the comprehensive plan.

The opposition contends that the zoning ordinance and the PUD ordinance cannot contradict the comprehensive plan and that the PUD loophole is a violation of the comprehensive plan in that it allows a developer to build anywhere as long as he calls his project a PUD rather than a subdivision.

Those in opposition to the Melon Valley proposals further argue that the commissioners have painted themselves into a corner and because of the Melon Valley decision will not be able to stop development anywhere in the agricultural zone.

The commissioners argue, and their legal counsel agrees, that the decision will not set a binding precedent for future decisions regarding development in agricultural zones. Each case will be sufficiently different to allow it to be decided on its own merits.

Not necessarily. Court precedents indicate that restricting uses of private property for certain purposes is a legitimate function of local government, so the commissioners have the authority to enforce the plan.

But the question of whether the commissioners have acted illegally by not properly exercising their authority, as the people of Melon Valley contend, would be much more difficult to prove, especially given the vagueness of the comprehensive plan, and the PUD loophole.

The Melon Valley contingent has no recourse but to seek an injunction to stop development until they can obtain a court ruling on the propriety of the commissioners' actions. A court ruling would clarify how the comprehensive plan should be interpreted.

Should they decide against the legal option, or should they challenge fall, their only other option is at the ballot box. And it is not at all clear that a majority of citizens in Twin Falls County shares their point of view.

When enough people in the county become concerned about the conversion of agricultural land to residential use, officials enforcing zoning laws will be forced to give that consideration higher priority.

At present, the commissioners recognize the need to preserve agricultural land, but they also recognize the need to provide housing and the wish of many of their constituents to retain their ability to dispose of their property as they please.

Not too many years ago in Blaine County, development proceeded at a rapid pace. The voices of those questioning the benefits of that development were too few to stem the tide. Then, almost overnight it seemed, everyone realized that the Wood River Valley had changed, and not necessarily for the better. Zoning ordinances and their enforcement became much stricter as public consciousness of and involvement in zoning disputes became more widespread. At present, entire communities are bitterly divided over zoning questions. A dispute over the proposed Northridge Shopping Center in Railey has become a county-wide cause celebre.

Twin Falls County will ultimately face the same choices, and they will be just as difficult. Right now the effect of the decisions is isolated in places like Melon Valley. Soon the whole county will be involved.

In fact, those days may already be upon us. The day before he announced the Melon Valley decision, county commission chairman Merl Leonard said, "I don't believe there's any issue more controversial than zoning."

Brothers give up belongings to follow Jesus

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The two young men flooded up Blue Lakes Boulevard North last week, carrying swags to get a better look at them.

The two paid no attention. One bent forward as he trudged, his white linen robe sweeping the gravel, his long brown hair bound by a white band. His companion, a black man in similar garb, limped painfully behind on his bare feet.

They call each other "Brother Joseph" and "Brother Ray," and they look like they stepped out of a Christmas pageant.

Members of a fundamentalist Christian cult they refer to as the "Christ family," they say they have given up worldly possessions to follow Jesus as the disciples did 2,000 years ago.

Fausting to talk to a Times-News reporter as they passed through town, the two could not (or would not) say how long they've been crisscrossing the country. Nor did they know their ages.

"We don't keep track of time," Joseph said.

Neither do they keep track of places; they couldn't say where they originally came from, murmuring only they were from "all over." They did indicate they had "brothers" on the West Coast.

Their last stop was Salt Lake City and they spent a night in a schoolyard here. They don't know where they are going next: "It's all God's will. We don't have plans," Joseph said.

When asked their names, they replied: "Joseph Christ."

"Ray Christ."

They carry their few possessions in small tote bags, made out of the same spotless white cloth as their robes. They each along a sleeping bag over one shoulder and a wool robe made out of a blanket over the other. They wear no shoes.

A major tenet of their belief is peace, as Joseph explained. They abhor all violence, including the killing of animals for food. "We're simple vegetarians," Joseph said. "We'd rather walk on bloody stubs than the dead skins of animals."

They do not believe in sex, but instead "loving strictly from the heart."

"No materialism" is another creed, meaning, Joseph said, "no greed."

He said they do not believe in drugs as LSD and peyote, but marijuana and tobacco are permitted. As he spoke, Ray pulled a tobacco can from his bag and lit a hand-rolled cigarette for himself and Joseph.

They believe Christ has returned in person to the earth: "I've talked to him," Joseph said. But as the Bible prophesied, he has returned with a new name — "Jesus Christ, Lightening Amen," Joseph said.

Joseph does not know where Jesus Christ Lightening Amen is now, saying vaguely he's "on the road." A "thousand" other "brothers" are also traveling around the country, as the religion has no physical "church."

As Joseph talked, a faint Chicano accent crept into his voice — he said he had once been Catholic. Ray said little; just stared into space, his eyes unfocused. Both wore a glazed expression, but they said they had eaten that day.

Food and transportation is apparently left to "God's will." People give the pair food, and although they never "stick out their thumbs," people often stop and give them rides.

"We're not here for ourselves; we're on a mission for the Lord. Our top priority is love of God. Everything else is garbage," Joseph said.

They speak very little about actual proselytizing, saying only they look for people who are crying out for God.

People try for a better look at them, but they pay no attention

Prof finds humor in failing economy

By MARTY TRILLHAASE

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What's so funny about the shape of America's economy?

Fifty!

Says Barry Amus, a Boise State University economics professor, who is co-authored a collection of libertarian-style limericks and essays which takes as many pot shots at the federal government as the English language will allow.

The book, "To Slay A Giant (Try Laughing)," was written by Amus, who has taught economics at BSU for 10 years, and Jerry Hill of Boise, a former administrative assistant to Gov. Don Samuelson and a chief Idaho Deputy Secretary of State.

"To Slay a Giant" expresses little other than a strict libertarian viewpoint. In it, no one who has "fed at the public trough" is spared. Neither are environmentalists, the press, or consumer advocates.

What is unique about their approach to the message of Milton Friedman and William Simon is the use of humor, a device Amus believes allows them to cross all social and ideological lines. So far the book has sold 3,000 copies, mostly to small businessmen whom Amus meets when he speaks at conventions.

"I sometimes think there's truth in a jest," Amus said. "I think it has a better chance of being read. The book's only been out a month but we are getting the feeling that people are reading it."

Among the book's offerings is this dedication to the press:

With pen in hand, / You take firm stands / For Freedom of the press.

When freedom wavers / For other folk, / You offer us the word.

Do you have a quiver / That emasculates / Your clout

Or could it be, / Quite frequently, / Your ink supply runs out.

Federal agencies fear hardly any better: The E.P.A. should change its name.

So truth is plain to see, / They're resurrecting / jungle life.

Let's call 'em A.P.E.

And there's Congress which, for the purposes of "To Slay A Giant," is represented by two imaginary big spenders, Sen. Will Puff and Rep. Bob Strutt.

His pants are soft / His grip lacks clout.

Yet he writes votes / With each hand out.

The $3 book is a sampling of what Amus and Hill have in store for October or November, a full-sized collection of libertarian wit and wisdom which supports the view that the free market system, free of the burden of federal regulation and taxation, will produce more individual wealth and eventually cure the nation's economic woes.

That such a viewpoint comes from a tax-supported college professor and a former state bureaucrat is probably the most intriguing aspect of the book.

"That is an inconsistency, unless you take the position of Adam Smith that public education is a legitimate function of government. So I retreat to that," Amus said. "Again, I'm not so sure the private sector, the private education, wouldn't do a better job."

But he says he does not view the government as a villain.

"It's not a villain. It's just that government has promised and it has not delivered. So we have to take a step back and see what government will deliver," he said. "I'm not so sure that Sen. Puff and Bob Strutt aren't really a reflection of American society in the last two decades."

Amus' goal is to contribute to what he believes is the education of one or two generations who he says have not been taught the working principles of a free market economy.

"Free market and limited government ideas have to be taught over and over. You don't get them by osmosis," he said.

Despite what he calls a growing body of literature to "demystify government," Amus admits to doubts that economic theories first written by Adam Smith will find a new-found popularity in the 20th century.

"Other days, I'm more optimistic when I receive a new book order," he said.

And that a number of Idaho consumers were deceived by these practices.

In writing the decision, Justice Bakes said if a business would receive only a restrictive punishment for illegal and deceptive sales practices, there would be little incentive to avoid commercial practices of dubious legality.

Hearing unattended Impact area approved

KIMBERLY — An area of impact for the town of Kimberly extending north along the Snake River Canyon was approved Friday by the county commissioners.

Commissioner Ann Cover said since no citizens attended the Friday morning hearing, the impact area was approved without comment.

Merl E. Leonard, commission chairman, said when originally proposed, the impact area drew protests from some rural land owners who felt the city should not have authority over land as far north as the canyon rim.

Leonard said after the impact area was explained the protests were withdrawn. He said the impact boundaries extend a very reasonable distance around the town on the south, west and east but there is a feeling growth will be in the northern direction.

Crash cause undetermined

MOUNTAIN-HOME — Elmore County officers and Idaho State Police still have not determined a cause for a crash that took the lives of four people here Wednesday morning.

An autopsy was performed Thursday on the body of James Russell, 56, of Bountiful, Utah, the driver of a triple trailer truck that rammed a stopped pickup truck and bus, Elmore County Coroner Veri Humphery said. Friday it would probably take another day or so to complete tests and inspection of autopsy evidence.

He said it may not be possible to tell from the autopsy if the driver died of something other than accident injuries.

Russell's truck hit the rear of a pickup truck at about 55 miles per hour, pushing the truck into the rear of a bus. In addition to Russell, three Oregon residents in the pickup were instantly killed and some 20 persons treated for injuries.

Elmore Memorial Hospital officials Friday said there are still three children and one adult in the Mountain Home hospital, all in satisfactory condition. Another child is being treated in St. Albans Hospital in Boise for internal injuries and is in serious condition.

A total of 53 persons and seven vehicles were involved in the accident. Of the people involved, 43 were passengers on the chartered bus and members of an LDS Church choir camp on tour.

The youngsters were housed by Mountain Home residents following the accident and had decided Friday to continue their tour, church officials said.

Officers said all of the vehicles except Russell's truck were stopped on the highway for construction work. He apparently failed to realize the vehicles were stopped until too late to avoid the collision.

Water softener firm must make restitution

TWIN FALLS — A water softener sales firm must be required to make restitution to certain Idaho customers who purchased its product, the Idaho Supreme Court has ruled.

The high court reversed a 5th District Court ruling, sending the case back for further proceedings consistent with this stipulation.

Master Distributors Inc., an Idaho corporation, along with Kenneth Merrill Sr. and Kenneth Merrill Jr., are named as defendants in the case, brought by the Idaho Attorney General's office.

The unanimous decision written by Justice Robert E. Bakes, the Supreme Court ruled the defendant must make restitution to any Idaho customer who purchased the water softeners from the defendants in 1972 and 1973.

The lower court had ruled the defendant could engage in no further business in the state but did not order relief for Idaho consumers, Justice Bakes said.

Sugar beet growers lose price support

But counter claims also struck down

BOISE (UPI) — Western and midwestern sugar beet growers Friday lost their bid for higher government price support payments, but Idaho U.S. District Chief Judge Ray McNichols also struck down counter claims from the U.S. Agriculture Department.

McNichols, in a memorandum decision, said a 1978 lawsuit filed by growers and processors in Idaho, Utah and Michigan did not prove its claim in alleging U.S. Agriculture Secretary Robert S. Bergland and the Commodity Credit Corp. applied inequitable figures in determining the amount of loan support payments for the 1977 crop year.

The judge, however, also denied USDA claims, saying testimony during nearly three years of court proceedings was contradictory and "seemingly belies" arbitrary conduct by the USDA in determining the support levels.

Two support programs were developed in 1977 to assist sugar beet and cane growers. The first, established by Bergland and McNichols, required growers to compensate them for the difference between their net selling price and a predetermined minimum support price. In developing the program, Bergland set a minimum support level for cane sugar growers, and also awarded beet growers payments equal to 140 percent of the same payments.

The second program, created by Congress under the Food and Agricultural Act of 1977, superseded the first, ordering a loan plan under which the USDA would set support levels of between 52.5 and 65 percent of parity, but providing the support could not be less than 13.5 cents per pound.

Acting under "broad discretionary powers," McNichols said, Bergland set up another schedule to compare cane and beet sugar costs. With this schedule, beet growers received payments of about 110 percent of the rate given cane growers, amounting to $15.57 per pound.

Under the loan program, McNichols said, processors could repay the loan if they obtained prices higher than the government's minimum. If higher prices were not received, the government would buy the sugar.

The western growers sought an injunction ordering Bergland to re-vamp the second loan program to bring the level of payments up to the 140 percent figure calculated under the first program.

Evans tours mines

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans flew to Challis Friday to tour the proposed Cyprus Mines Thompson Creek Project, an open-pit molybdenum mine and mill complex.

Evans plans to meet with local officials and personnel from the Cyprus Mines, the U.S. Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management.

Cyprus has released a draft environmental impact statement and a public hearing will be held in August concerning the proposal. Cyprus officials say if a decision is made to proceed with development, and the necessary permits are obtained, production could begin by 1983.

Company officials also said the project would have a local payroll exceeding $3 million and that most of the operating supplies would be purchased in local and regional markets.

"Cyprus officials have told me that as many as 550 people could be employed at full production of the project," Evans said.

He said such employment could generate a population increase of more than 2,000 persons in the area.

Another body found near blast zone

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Another body has been found in the blast zone near volcanic Mount St. Helens, federal disaster officials said Friday.

The body, identified as Kristy Killian of Vnder, Wash., was discovered by the Coville County Sheriff's Office Thursday near Fawn Lake, a once popular camping area eight miles northwest of the mountain that became a death trap for a number of tourists when the volcano erupted on May 18.

Mrs. Killian had been camping with her husband, John, and the two were presumably together at the time of the cataclysmic blast, said Al Hendrix, a Federal Emergency Management Agency official.

The body of the husband has not been found, Hendrix said, adding that search crews were going back into the area to look for more bodies.

Reports that a body found several weeks ago had not been identified were apparently brought, he said.

The discovery brought the number of confirmed dead to 29. Fifteen other persons have been "officially presumed dead" by Skamania County Sheriff Robert Leick, a group in which Mrs. Killian had been included. At least 20 others are still listed as missing.

No seismic activity had been recorded near Mount St. Helens for its slater volcano Mount Hood in Oregon since early Thursday morning, U.S. Geological Survey scientists reported.

Sawtooth filled most weekends

TWIN FALLS — Persons wishing to camp in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area on weekends should plan to select a site early.

Sawtooth National Forest Service recreation reports issued Thursday show campsites are filling up early on weekends, but there are plenty of choice sites available during the week.

The report shows the snow level in the SNRA is about 8,700 feet with high mountain divides still covered with snow. Most lakes are now ice free and temperatures are cool at night but warm in the daytime.

All campgrounds and roads in the Wood River area are open. North Fork and Easyly campgrounds usually have space available. Evening programs are given on Thursdays and Saturdays at Wood River Campground north of Ketchum.

Leisure trucks are active in the Fairfield District and travelers are asked not to use their CB radios, Channel 10, if traveling over Fleck and Couch Summits Mondays through Fridays.

Dutchside Summit road is closed due to late snowmelt. Elsewhere in the Ketchum district most lakes are ice free including Baker and Norton. Lakes in lower elevations are now being maintained.

On the Twin Falls district, lower campgrounds usually fill up by the weekend but many spaces are available at higher elevations. Roads are dry and vegetation in lower areas is beginning to dry out. Campers and other forest users are being asked to watch campfires and smoking materials closely and to use the ashtrays in their vehicles.

Only one campground on the Burley district has water. This is the Sublet Campground. Lake Cleveland road is now open as are campgrounds at the lake. Wildflowers in both the Burley and Twin Falls districts are now blooming.

The trail to Independence Lakes is open and fishing is reported good. The City of Rocks road is dry and dusty. Firewood cutting permits are now available and may be obtained from ranger offices at the districts. It is illegal to haul firewood on a public highway without a wood cutting permit.

QUESTION...

What is the difference between an estate tax and an inheritance tax?

ANSWER...

An estate tax is an excise tax levied upon the transfer of property of the death of the owner. It is a tax liability of the entire taxable estate. Inheritance tax is also an excise tax levied at death, but it is imposed upon individual beneficiaries in proportion to the amount of the decedent's property they receive rather than upon the estate as a whole.

The Federal Government levies only an estate tax. Every state except Nevada has a succession tax which may be either an estate tax or an inheritance tax or both. These succession taxes apply to all transfers. Exemptions frequently render the transfer tax free. The Federal Government levies an estate tax only.

FmHA increases loan eligibility

TWIN FALLS — Families can now have an income of up to $30,000 annually and qualify for the Farmers Home Administration above-moderate-income guarantee loans.

The FmHA chief of rural housing in Boise, Meade W. Kohl, said the agency raised the income limits for above-moderate-income for rural homeownership loan guarantees from the previous $20,000 in the 48 contiguous states. In higher-cost areas the level is $30,000 for Alaska and $40,000 for Hawaii and Guam.

Under the program Farmers Home guarantees repayment of up to 80 percent of loans made by commercial lenders on new single family dwellings in rural areas.

Leonard wants just two bouts

By JOHN FEINSTEIN
(c) 1980, The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Sugar Ray Leonard says he would like a maximum of two more fights — the second one against Roberto Duran — and then retire from boxing.

"I'd like to fight Duran as soon as possible, get him while he's still recuperating," Leonard said. "But he's saying that he doesn't want to fight me until '81. If that's the case, I think I'd like to fight the winner of (August's) — (Pipino) Cuevas — (Thomas) Hearns (WBA title) fight in October or November, then fight Duran."

"When I beat Duran, that will be it, the end. I want to get the title back and I want to get him. Once I've done that, I'll quit."

Leonard appeared relaxed and content one month after losing the WBC welterweight title to Duran. He said he plans to return to the gym next month and talked of the Duran fight without bitterness but with regret in his voice.

"I still feel as if my title was confiscated," he said. "I won the fight. I've looked at it on film now and there's no question in my mind about it. The problem was the judges had never seen Sugar Ray Leonard fight that way before. They didn't know what to look for. I hit him two punches for every one he hit me. But he kept hitting me toward the ropes so I looked like he was the aggressor. I hit him more often and I hit him cleaner."

Leonard fought Duran toe-to-toe in Montreal because, he said, "I wanted to beat him at his own game. It wasn't pride or anything. I just wanted to show him. I was willing to risk my title to beat him that way."

"I know if I had fought a Sugar Ray Leonard fight, I would have beaten him. Next time, that's the way I'll fight. I'll be faster and quicker. I'll beat him clean. There won't be any question about it."

Leonard said he is determined to retire after the fights Duran again even if he is offered major financial enticements to continue in the ring.

"After I won the Olympics I said that I was going to quit fighting and go to school," he said. "That didn't happen, though, because funds were low and I had to become a fighter."

"That's not a factor anymore. I'm well set financially now. I feel like my whole career has been a fairy tale: winning the Olympics, becoming a world champion as quickly as I did, being involved in a fight that created the interest and intensity the Duran fight did."

"Now, they've taken the title away, confiscated it, removed it wrongly, however you want to put it. Well, I'm hoping the director has the script right. In the script, I become champion again and that's it, the end, fade out. That's the way I want it, any way."

Leonard said he wasn't worried about Duran ducking a fight with him. "It won't happen," he said.

British Open

Trevino hikes lead to three strokes

MURFIELD, Scotland (UPI) — Reasoning that all will be well as long as he keeps his age a secret from his golf clubs, a super confident Lee Trevino surged to a three-shot lead Friday after the second round of the British Open.

Trevino, enjoying his best year at the age of 40, played almost errorless golf in shooting a 4-under-par 67, putting him at 7-under-135 at the halfway point. At the same time, he stretched his string of bogey-free holes to 22.

"I've been able to keep out of trouble off the tee, and that's the secret in an Open — keeping it in play and out of the rough," Trevino said. "I miss a fairway. It's only by a foot or two. I haven't hit a ball yet in the tall rough."

Tom Watson, who had shared the opening day lead with Trevino at 68, started his second round at 69, but after his rival had finished and could manage only a 70, dropping him to 10-under-135.

MURFIELD, Scotland (UPI) — Even before he came to Murfield for the second round of the British Open Friday, Lee Trevino had to make a weighty decision — whether or not to eat breakfast.

"I had an 8:30 a.m. saying, 'A hungry golf bum's best,' Trevino was saying later, explaining that he hadn't had breakfast all week.

But before he left, another old saying came to mind. "I was feeling nervous," Trevino explained, "and then I remembered, if you have a full stomach, butterflies have no room to fly."

So Trevino had breakfast, lost his litter, and shot a 4-under-par 67, leaving him at 7-under-135 midway through the Open.

plunging him three shots back and in a tie at 133 with Jerry Pate, who polished off a fine 67 with an eagle on the 17th, and Scotsman Ken Brown, who had a 68 but said he thinks very little of his chances.

"I feel a lot better than I did yesterday," Nicklaus said in reference to his opening round 73. "I knew I had to shoot a good round to stay in the golf tournament. I still have to shoot two good rounds, but I'm not out of touch with things."

Jack Nicklaus began a magnificent charge with four birdies on the first seven holes, then settled back for a 67 that moved him into contention.

Ballesteros, sinking a 20-foot putt for an eagle on the ninth hole, had 68, although maintaining he's not happy with his game. Bean, with a 69, and Crenshaw, with a 70, both eagled the 54-yard, par-3 17th while Morgan turned in his second successive 70 and Newton had a 71.

With bright sunshine greeting the golfers following Thursday's dreaching rain, scores improved appreciably in the second round with top honors going to a hitherto little known 32-year-old former lawyer from Argentina, Horacio Carbonetti. A pro of only 2-1/2 years and winner of nothing outside his native land, Carbonetti sank a 45-foot putt on the final hole for his seventh birdie of the day and a Murfield course record of 64.

Lee Trevino does a quick two-step in an effort to help this birdie putt go in the hole.

"I'm a bit lucky," Carbonetti said, explaining how he was able to break the previous mark of 66 shared by Nicklaus, Trevino and Johnny Miller. Then he added with a smile, "I'm a good player, I think."

Carbonetti, who does not like to play in rain, had opened with a 70, thus leaving him at even-par 142. He came within one shot of the all-time Open record of 63 set by Oklahoma Mark Hayes at Turnberry in 1977.

Trevino, who has finished first or second in half of the 10 tournaments he's played on the U.S. tour this year with earnings of $285,000, said he had been "mentally looking forward" to returning to Murfield, where he won the Open in 1972.

"Even though I've ventured over the hill of 40, my golf clubs don't know that," he said. "They don't know how old I am."

Trevino then offered the opinion that a score of 10-under-par 72 would be enough to win, adding, "Give me 3-under more and if that's not good enough to win the 1980 British Open Championship, I'll have to come back next year."

Even though Trevino's lead is only three strokes, his close rivals know he'll be tough to overtake. As Crenshaw put it, "He's having his best year ever and his confidence is way up. We're going to have to go out and chase him, and he's probably the best front runner in golf."

Even Watson, a five-time winner in the U.S. this year, admitted, "He'll be a hard man to catch on this golf course. He's in a good position, and its going to take a superb effort to catch him."

Only six other players were under par for two rounds. At 141 were Mark James (72), Sandy Lyle (71), Derrick Cooper (70) and Carl Mason (69) of Britain, Dale Hayes (70) of South Africa and Masashi Ozaki (68) of Japan.

At even par (42 with Carbonetti) were Larry Nelson and Craig Stadler, both of whom shot 70, and Japan's Norio Suzuki (68).

NFL camps underway despite heat

By United Press International
Undaunted by the unrelenting heat wave which has now spread to about half the nation, NFL clubs around the country have — or are about to — open their early training camps, beginning the annual quest for professional football supremacy.

The first step in the long haul which, for the lucky ones, will culminate at Super Bowl X next Jan. 25 at New Orleans' Superdome, 17 of the 28 clubs began workouts for rookies and free agents this past week, with another eight getting underway this week-end. Only Minnesota (July 31), Chicago (July 28) and New England (July 27) have given their newcomers an extra free weekend.

The San Diego Chargers, seeking to improve upon a 12-4 record which sealed their bid for AFC West title, were the early birds this year, opening their rookie-free agent camp in La Jolla, Calif., July 11. Chargers veterans, too, were the first back on the job, reporting Friday — after the last season ended with the Steelers' Super Bowl victory Jan. 20.

The majority of the other veterans will follow suit shortly as all but one of the NFL squads begin early training by the end of this coming week. Only the Minnesota Vikings, whose 7-9 third-place finish in the NFC Central offers no explanation, will avoid the heat. Once again, the Vikings will be the last to begin, opening camp 25 months after the last season ended with the Steelers' Super Bowl victory Jan. 20.

The Cardinals, however, who were stung by the training-camp death of J.V. Cain last year, train only 25 miles from St. Louis, where the swelter reached 107 last week and 108 prepared to alter workout times as necessary.

NFL squads are scheduled to play 57 exhibition games, beginning with the 17th annual Pro Football Hall of Fame game between San Diego and Green Bay at Camp Randall on Saturday, Aug. 2. The nationally televised contest is the first of 43 interconference matches between the AFC and NFC.

The first full weekend of 14 games spans from Thursday, Aug. 7 through Monday, Aug. 11.

Killanin blasts Carter over boycott position

MOSCOW (UPI) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, Friday launched a scathing attack on President Carter and his aides on the eve of the Moscow Olympics.

"They have been very knowledgeable of sports other than American football and baseball which, if they had been in the Olympic Games, we would have had no boycott," Killanin told a news conference.

Speaking about the last six months of his "traumatic eight years" in office which began with the massacre of 11 Israeli athletes in Munich, Killanin said he did not want to say too much because of the U.S. elections.

"I will speak very freely when the elections are over. I hope somehow that the heads of states and the heads of nations I have met are better advised on important matters than they are on sports, because if they are as badly advised as they are on sport, then God help us all," he said.

As Killanin spoke, the Olympic flame was arriving in the city of Moscow with military-like precision, carried on its 3,102-mile journey from Ancient Olympia in Greece through Bulgaria, Romania and the Soviet Union by the traditional relays of runners.

The flame will be taken to Lenin stadium Saturday where Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev will formally open the Games. Olympic protocol prevents political speeches at the opening ceremonies and Brezhnev will open the Games simply by saying, "I declare open the Games of Moscow celebrating the 22nd Olympiad of the modern era."

At least 15 of the 81 teams competing have chosen not to use their national flag during the opening ceremonies to show their disapproval of anybody using the Olympics for political ends.

Fifty-eight National Olympic Committees will not be competing at all. According to the IOC, 28 nations are boycotting because of Afghanistan — the same number as walked out of Montreal on the eve of the 1976 Games — and 29 because they said they did not have a strong enough team to send anyway.

On the eve of the Games, 6,117 athletes and officials had checked into the Olympic village — about 1,000 fewer than the final total number in Montreal.

Killanin would not be drawn about whether he thought the boycott would be a success or not.

"I'll tell you in a few months," he said, probably in reference to the belief in Western circles that a new Soviet offensive in Afghanistan was expected after the Games are over.

The opening ceremony will be one of the high points of the Games, from the point of view of spectacle if nothing else. The Russians excel at such pomp and precision even if half Western Europe's television networks have refused to show the ceremony live because of its political connotations.

Killanin, who hands over the IOC presidency to Spanish ambassador Juan Antonio Samaranch at the end of the Moscow Games, said he felt confident in the future of the Olympics.

"I have no doubt the Olympics will survive," he said.

Errors help Lewiston topple Cowboys 8-1

LEWISTON — Lewiston took advantage of nine errors to post an easy 8-1 decision over the Twin Falls Cowboys in a nine-inning American Legion game Thursday night.

Due to the length of the game and the time difference, the game was completed until well past midnight Twin Falls time.

The Cowboys were scheduled to meet Lewiston again Friday night and travel to Moscow today for a daylight doubleheader. They wind up their northern tour with a single meeting at Coeur d'Alene Sunday.

Twin Falls' leaky defense hung the hardluck loss on Logan Easley.

"Logan pitched a heckuva game, he just didn't have any support. In fact, their first six runs were scored by guys who got on base by errors,"

Coach Gary Barker said. "They only had two or three sharply hit singles off him, the rest of them were infield hits or bouncers, that ordinarily would have been handled except we had to have the infield drawn in so often."

"He had his best control of the year and the best curveball he's had this season."

The Cowboys scored their only run in the second inning when Pat King led off with a double and scored on a pair of ground outs: Billy Burton also doubted as he and King had the only extra base blows for the Cowboys.

Pro tennis tourney

Clerc upsets No. 1 ranked Connors

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Jose-Luis Clerc parlayed a devastating array of baseline drives Friday to stun top-seeded Jimmy Connors, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, to move into the semifinals of the $175,000 U.S. Pro tennis championships.

The eighth-seeded Argentinian, who defeated Connors in their only meeting in March when the American had to default, will meet fourth-seeded Eddie Dibbs in one semifinal. Dibbs advanced Friday via a 6-1, 7-6, victory over sixth-seeded Hans Gildemeister, last year's runner-up.

The other semifinal will feature the winner of the night matches between third-seeded Gene Mayer and seventh-seeded Victor Pecci and the contest between fifth-seeded Jose Higueras and unseeded Vin Wintsky.

Connors broke Clerc in the seventh and ninth games to win the opening set but the fast, hard-hitting pace of the match took its toll on the top-seed early in the second set.

After trading breaks early in the second set, Clerc broke for a second time in the third game when he drilled four straight baseline winners after being down 30-0. That break enabled the 21-year-old Clerc to tie the match as both players held serve the rest of the set.

Connors began to tire in the third set of the two-hour and 18-minute match as made numerous unforced errors — netting several forehand groundstrokes. Clerc took advantage of the misuses to break Connors' serve in the first and final games of the set, getting to match point on a double-fault and winning with a backhand cross-court passing shot.

"I played pretty well in the first set," said Connors, "but my mind wandered in the second. I lost my concentration and I blew a point here and there. I wasn't paying attention to what was going on. He (Clerc) always plays well on clay. He uses a lot of topspin."

Clerc, winner of just one tournament this year, said he relied on a slice backhand in the first set, but changed styles when it failed to negate Connors' powerful ground strokes.

"I played slice all the time in the first set, but I never play slice," said Clerc, who felt he might have been too defensive. "In the second, I played hit and topspin. He doesn't like to play someone who hits topspin."

"Jimmy, I think was nervous and tired because it was hot. I like it like this because in my country, it is very, very hot. When I play the good players, I have better concentration than when I play the others," Clerc said.

Dibbs almost met the same fate as Connors. After allowing Gildemeister just 10 points in a 37-minute first set, Dibbs moved to a 5-2 lead and was serving for the match when he lost his concentration.

"I just played a loose game on my serve and you can't do that against any of these guys. I was cruising along and then lost my concentration."

Reds sweep pair from Mets

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Rookie right-hander Bruce Berenyi picked up his first major-league victory as Bruce Foster and Dan Driessen homered Friday night to lift the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-3 victory over the New York Mets and a sweep of their double-header.

Fedor Cruz hit a three-run homer to power the Reds to a 5-3 victory in the opener. Mario Soto, 34, who yielded one hit in four innings of relief, got the triumph.

Padres 2, Cubs 1

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bob Shirley and Rollie Fingers combined on a six-hitter and Dave Cash hit his first home run of the season Friday to lead the San Diego Padres to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The defeat was the Cubs' ninth in the last 11 games.

Phils 7, Braves 2

ATLANTA (UPI) — Nino Espinosa and Dickie Noles combined on a three-hitter and Bake McBride drove in three runs Friday night to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Espinosa, 33, surrendered only solo home runs to Bob Horner, his 15th, in the second and Chris Chambliss, his 11th, in the seventh in notching the victory.

Pirates 6, Dodgers 4

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — John Milner hit a solo homer and Phil Garner added a two-run single to highlight a three-run sixth inning Friday night that carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to their sixth straight victory, a 6-4 decision over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Expos 5, Astros 4

HOUSTON (UPI) — Gary Carter's single with one out in the 11th inning scored Ellis Valentine from third base with the winning run Friday night and gave the Montreal

Expos a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros.

With one out, Valentine singled off loser Dave Smith, 1-3, and advanced to third on a wild pitch. After a walk to Warren Cromartie, Carter delivered his game-winning single.

Boston 1, Twins 0

BOSTON (UPI) — Rookie Dave Stapleton cracked his fifth homer of the season with one out in the 10th inning Friday night, giving the Boston Red Sox and Mike Torrez a 1-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Stapleton's homer, his second in as many nights, came on a 2-2 delivery of starter Roger Erickson, 3-6.

Orioles 8, Texas 7

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Ken Singleton capped a six-run seventh inning with a two-run single and Mark Belanger hit an RBI triple Friday night to lead the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-7 triumph over the Texas Rangers.

Brewers 5, Chicago 1

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Robin Yount singled, tripled and homered and Cecil Cooper and Gorman Thomas singled three times apiece to pace a 14-hit assault which powered Moose Haas and the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Royals 13, Yanks 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Larry Gura pitched a three-hitter and Willie Wilson went 5-for-4 to lead a 23-hit attack Friday night that led the Kansas City Royals to a 13-1 rout of the New York Yankees.

George Brett and Hal McRae each drove in four runs to help Gura, 12-3, raise his lifetime record against his former teammates to 6-1.

AIAW seeks neutral sports ruler

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — A 10-member panel representing the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Friday issued a resolution calling on the American Council on Education to intercede in "the current crises and conflicts in intercollegiate athletics."

Eight past presidents and two current presidents of the AIAW issued the statement at the end of a week-long historical seminar entitled "The AIAW Presidential Review."

The resolution asked the ACE to call on representatives of two men's intercollegiate athletic organizations — the NAIA and the NCAA — and representatives of the AIAW in an effort to smooth over the "strained relationship between the existing national governing bodies."

BRIDGE
Responding to one notrump
By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag
The notrump opening is a feature bid. In standard American it shows 16-18 high card points and either 4-3-3-3 or 5-3-3-2 distribution. The responder you know immediately where you should lead. With less than eight points, you want to find the best part score with eight or nine, you want to suggest game, with 10-14, you want to bid game with more, you want to suggest or bid slam. There's a little need to explore when responding to notrump; with a balanced hand, but even with 4-3-3-3 distribution, you may produce four spades and not three notrump. If partner's notrump is 5-3-3-3 or 5-3-3-2, you may produce four spades and not three notrump. We will discuss the Stayman convention at length next week. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)
