Tami Sue Hatfield of Gooding beams with joy at winning the Miss Twin Falls title

Miss Twin Falls

Tami Sue Hatfield of Gooding captures crown

TWIN FALLS — Tami Sue Hatfield of Gooding walked away with the Miss Twin Falls title Saturday night at the CSI fine arts auditorium.

A petite 5' 4" 18-year old with auburn hair, Tami is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hatfield of Gooding.

Still shaking after receiving hundreds of congratulations from friends and well-wishers Tami said she had been "praying" all through the pageant.

A student of voice for several years, she sang "The Rose" during the talent competition. She said however her future really lies in her art talent. She is studying commercial art at Gooding High School where she graduated this spring and hopes to major in the field in college.

"The talent was unusually good this year, one of the members of the organizing committee said. She was sponsored by Western Realty of Twin Falls.

First runner up in the evening's competition was Brenda Wright, 19, of Kimberly. Kimberly also placed Karmelle Whittaker, 19, in the second runner up spot.

Third runner up was Peggy Ann Eden, 20, of Twin Falls, and fourth runner up was Leslie Mauldin, 18, of Jerome.

The pageant was sponsored by the Twin Falls Lion's Club.

Miss Hatfield will represent Twin Falls at the Miss Idaho pageant next spring.

Registration on again

Justice Brennan stays Philadelphia ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice William Brennan Saturday stayed a lower-court ruling declaring the draft law unconstitutional.

As a result, millions of young men are expected to start registering for a possible draft today as planned.

"As far as we're concerned, the law is in full effect and registration will go forward Monday and all those required under the law to register are under legal obligation to do so," Justice Department spokesman Mark Sheehy said.

Brennan's decision came less than 24 hours after a three-member federal court panel in Philadelphia ruled the Selective Service Act illegally discriminates against men by excluding women and enjoined the administration from reviving draft registration.

In a six-page decision, Brennan, said the draft registration program could begin as scheduled Monday and remain in effect until the full court can rule on the constitutionality of the male-only draft law.

Donald Webster, the attorney representing those who brought the anti-draft suit, noted Brennan made it clear his decision was not a ruling on the merits of the case — only a stay of the lower court's decision.

Reached in New York, American Civil Liberties Union spokeswoman Trudi Schutz said: "We're just pleased the case will be heard by the full court in an atmosphere of calm, instead of in this 11th hour situation."

Because the issue of the draft's constitutionality still needs to be resolved, Ms. Schutz said the ACLU believes "it will be very difficult" for the government to prosecute young men who do not register.

But Brayton Harris of the Selective Service System said the government expects all those who qualify for the draft to register.

Brennan concluded there is a "fair" possibility the full Supreme Court will find the lower court's ruling wrong.

He also noted "considerable resources have been expended in preparation for the imminent registration effort."

"The government has distributed publicity material, trained and assigned personnel, engaged in computer support and entered into contractual arrangements — all with a view toward the commencement of actual registration on Monday, July 21," he said.

Had the government eventually won its case, those preparations would have to be repeated "at considerable expense."

On the other hand, if those who challenged the draft eventually win, Brennan said, the registration lists can be destroyed.

Twin Falls Post Office is ready

TWIN FALLS — It's back to draft registration for all 19- and 20-year-old men beginning Monday.

President Carter has renewed the selective service registration system that was dropped in 1975.

Beginning Monday, all male citizens, able-bodied or not, must register at their post offices on days designated for their age groups. The Selective Service System has established July 21 to July 31 for the first draft series.

Individuals born in the first three months of 1960 must register Monday, July 21; those in the next three, April through June, on July 22; July through September, on July 23; October through December on July 24.

Those born in 1961 are scheduled to begin registering July 28, with those born in the first three months registering on July 29, April through June, on July 29, August through September, July 30; and October through December on July 31.

Fridays, July 25 and Aug. 1, will be make-up days for those who were unable to register on their designated day.

Selective Service officials point out the registration does not mean the individuals will be called to service at this time. It will take an act of Congress before drafting actually could begin.

The registration is designed to provide a pool of names from which to draw in the event of a national emergency. It will provide the country with greater military preparedness.

Lynn McFarland, superintendent of Postal Services in Twin Falls, said the local office anticipates about 200 to 250 to register per week over the two week period. He said it will keep several department employees busy.

Those registering must ask for the registration blanks at the postal window. They will not be out on the counter for pick up.

McFarland said the men registering will be required to furnish a suitable form of identification and postal workers will review the forms when completed, check the identification and assist the individuals in any misunderstandings or problems.

Registration is a simple process. Selective Service representatives explain. It requires the name, address, telephone number, social security number and date of birth of the individual. The cards will be sent to the Internal Revenue Service Center where they go into a computer system. Acknowledgement letters will be mailed the registrants within about 30 days. As under previous selective service programs, any registered individual who moves must notify the Selective Service office with a change of address card submitted with the acknowledgement notice.

There will be no draft cards issued at this time.

There is a penalty for failing to register. A maximum fine of $10,000 and/or five years in prison can be imposed.

Beginning in January 1981, those born in 1962 will register and a program will begin by which all young men register on or near their 18th birthday. This is in keeping with the President's decision not to register all age groups at one time.

Could last-into-September experts say

Heat wave deaths climb past 1,100 with no end in sight

By United Press International

The mercury bubbled toward 100 degrees Saturday across much of the nation and the only visible relief from the heat blamed for some 1,100 deaths appeared to be fans delivered by National Guardsmen.

Forecasters said the heat wave might last at least until September.

Oklahoma residents beset by drought and nearly a month-long string of 100-degree days turned to God for a respite from the oppressive sun, which has shriveled crops and decimated cattle and poultry stocks in much of the nation's farm country.

Food industry experts said the heat soon would be put on consumers across the nation and around the world through soaring meat and grain prices.

A tropical depression hovering near the Gulf Coast raised some Texas' residents hopes that an end to the heat might be in sight.

But most weather forecasters said those hopes were false — that the storms probably would not materialize. The National Weather Service said hot weather in Arkansas and some other areas probably would hang on until September — maybe longer.

Dallas was in its record-smashing 27th straight day of 100-degree-plus heat Saturday. Other parts of Texas reported nearly month-long strings of 105-degree-plus heat.

The steadily climbing death toll reached 1,148 Saturday. Missouri reported 283 heat-related deaths, Tennessee had 145, Arkansas 123, Texas 97 and Alabama 93; Georgia had 85 deaths, Kansas 76, Illinois 64, Mississippi 60, Oklahoma 36 and Kentucky and Louisiana 23 each. Indiana and Florida reported 8 each, South Carolina 7, Ohio 6, Iowa and Nebraska 5 each, North Carolina 2 and Colorado 1.

With weather forecasts offering neither relief nor consolation to broiling Missouri residents, National Guardsmen began delivering fans to the elderly and infirm.

In Kansas City, a 73-year-old paraplegic who was reluctant to ask police for help finally accepted a fan Friday.

"She said she was afraid her neighbors might think she done something wrong if police came to the house," a police spokesman said. "She said she had never asked for anything in her life. But then she said it was finally getting too hot and took it."

Relief agencies in St. Louis, Kansas City and many rural areas worked to fill requests for fans and air conditioners for the heat-weary poor and elderly.

Missouri Gov. Joseph Teasdale Friday ordered 250 guardsmen to relieve weary volunteers in delivering fans.

In Oklahoma, the state government turned to God for help.

Gov. George Nigh, saying he had received numerous calls and letters requesting the action, issued a proclamation declaring Sunday as a day of prayer for rain.

"Oklahomans in time of great need have traditionally turned to God through prayer and sought his help and guidance," Nigh said in a proclamation.

In the nation's breadbasket, agricultural losses already total in the billions of dollars. Poultry stocks have been decimated from Arkansas to the Carolinas and crop lay withered in parched and cracking soil throughout the farm belt.

Midlands cattle ranchers have been forced to reduce their herds and agriculture officials said hot weather, withered rangelands and short hay supplies could cause major cattle kills.

Officials say the heat and drought will surely mean higher prices for American consumers — and for overseas consumers whose nations import American farm products.

Although property taxes have dropped, higher user fees are wiping out some of the gains

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The average Twin Falls city homeowner's property tax bill decreased $59 this year and will likely drop another $44 next year.

But nearly half of that savings will find its way back into city coffers next year to pay for city programs.

City officials are resorting to increased user fees as an alternative source of funding in light of the Legislature's action to freeze property tax revenues at the 1976 level of $2.3 million.

Many of the fee increases, such as a proposed increase in sewer fees, would have been passed regardless of the 1 percent initiative. City officials also acknowledge the 1 percent has required making city operations more efficient and innovative. But the 1 percent has accelerated the trend towards tying the funding of a specific program directly to the users through the expansion in both the number and the size of users fees.

In the present fiscal year alone, city residents faced a new $1 Shoshone Park entrance fee, a 25 cent per month or $3 per year increase in sanitation fees, a $100 tournament fee for softball associations and a $50 tournament fee for tennis, a $1 increase in greens fees at the golf course, and a $10 dog-rope collection.

Those were in addition to fees charged for water and sewer use, planning and zoning fees, dog pound fees, sewer and water system development fees, building inspection fees, and engineering services fees. Still, the increased revenues will not offset the city's need to reduce expenses.

The proposed 1980-81 city budget will make substantial cuts in city recreation, park, and particularly street services. Of the three, only recreation is able to charge a fee. Even there, city officials are reluctant to make the program totally self-sufficient because that would mean substantial increases in the fees paid by children.

So, while the average homeowner will likely be paying as much to the city as he did before the 1 percent initiative, he will be receiving fewer services in return.

A bear in the St. Louis zoo tries to evade the heat which may doom large mammals like himself

Extinction

Heat wave may doom large mammal species

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — A Virginia Tech scientist warns that the current heatwave spreading across the nation may activate a silent extinction mechanism in mammals, which may become evident in the early part of the next century.

Dewey M. McLean of Virginia Tech's geological sciences department said summer temperatures affect reproduction cycles of cattle and other large mammals. He made his predictions in a forthcoming issue of the American Journal of Science.

"Mammals are not as well adapted to the modern world as we like to believe," McLean said. "Studies show that reproduction problems increase as normal summer-like temperatures rise abruptly."

McLean said that in cows, "thermal stress reduces the uterine blood flow, which is the source of the embryo's nutrients and oxygen." The reduced blood flow is the "silent extinction mechanism," McLean said, and said his findings linked the mechanism to the extinction of large mammals in the Pleistocene epoch 11,000 years ago.

When conditions began to warm rapidly, McLean said, some heat-sensitive mammals had trouble re-adjusting from an earlier ice age. Large mammals became especially sensitive to heat, because the low ratio of surface area to body volume made it difficult to shed heat quickly.

McLean predicted, "With global warming, reproductive failure will increase." And, he pointed out, increased use of fossil fuels will add carbon dioxide to the atmosphere, causing a temperature increase that could heat up some regions even more.

In shooting trial

Klan only wanted attention

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — A Ku Klux Klanman on trial for shooting four elderly black women testified Saturday that he fired shotgun blasts from a car because women crosses he and his companions had burned earlier failed to attract attention.

Marshall Thrash, 30, Chattanooga, one of three members of a Klan splinter group charged in the April 19 shooting of the women, said it was hours later, after he had talked with investigators, that he realized that anyone had been injured by the gunshots.

Thrash, the admitted triggerman, William Church, 23, imperial wizard of the Justice Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and Larry Payne, 26, Rossville, Ga., are charged with four counts of assault with intent to commit murder.

Thrash testified that he had been drinking for more than 26 hours and had not slept prior to the time of the shooting.

He said he fired the shots because no one had noticed that two wooden crosses, which the Klanmen had set afire in the predominantly black neighborhood, were burning.

"I looked and saw that the crosses were burning," Thrash said. "But it didn't seem there was anyone around to even notice."

"When I saw that I stuck the shotgun out the window and fired it three times."

"Did you fire it at anyone," defense attorney Leroy Phillips asked.

"No, sir," the burly balding defendant answered.

Also testifying Saturday were Thrash's mother and a friend of the family who said the suspect has a long history of alcohol abuse. The family friend, Sherrie Coppinger, said she saw Thrash the evening of the shooting and "it appeared that Marshall had been drinking all day."

Thrash testified he was told of the charges against him by a questioning officer.

"I couldn't believe it," he said. "Having just left 9th Street and firing a shotgun down there, I look it for granted that was why I was there. I didn't know I shot them."

Thrash testified he did not see his victims until a preliminary hearing last month. At that time, two of the four elderly women were brought into the courtroom in wheelchairs.

"Seeing them like that — aged — the physical stature of those women, I kinda felt sick," he said.

Sioux want land back

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI) — A tribe of Ogala Sioux has filed a class action suit seeking return of the Black Hills and $11 billion in damages in U.S. District Court, attorney Mario Gonzalez said Friday.

Gonzalez said the suit, filed on behalf of the Ogala Sioux tribe at the request of the tribal council, named 96 defendants.

The suit seeks $1 billion for "hunger and malnutrition" suffered by tribal members and $10 billion for removal of nonrenewable resources.

The Ogala Sioux tribe is based on the Pine Ridge Reservation in southwest South Dakota.

Last month, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Court of Claims' $105 million award to eight Sioux tribes for the 1877 seizure of 7 million acres of land. None of the other seven tribes are mentioned in Gonzalez's suit.

Before the Supreme Court affirmed the award, three of the eight tribes in the Dakotas, Montana and Nebraska had voted to reject the money in hopes of getting back the land while a fourth tribe had voted to accept the settlement.

Since the court decision, the International Indian Treaty Council and Black Hills Sioux Nation Council have waged against accepting the money. The award also will be discussed at the Great Sioux Nation meeting Aug. 28 and 29 in Pierre, S.D.

Hotel strike continues

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two luxury hotels prepared for complete shutdowns and 34 others were grappling to satisfy their high-paying clientele with limited service Saturday, the third day of the first hotel strike in 38 years.

Some 6,000 maids, waiters, bartenders and cooks walked off their jobs or were locked out early Thursday in the dispute that threatens to cripple San Francisco's billion-dollar tourist industry. No contract negotiations were scheduled.

The posh 1,700-room Hilton and 402-room Stanford Court hotels prepared for shutdowns, accepting that all guests would be gone by early next week.

At other hotels, guests, many paying $100 or more a night, lugged their own baggage through picket lines and then had to undergo security checks before entering lobbies. Dinner menus consisted of sandwiches. Nevertheless, some of the hotels reported they were booked almost to capacity levels.

"It's the overflow from the Hilton," said Sandy Wernick of the Hyatt Union Square. She said the Hyatt was 95 percent full.

In a statement distributed to the news media, the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders Union, Local 2, disputed the hotels' reports.

"Stories that struck hotels are full are simply false," the statement said. "The Hilton, for example, only 40 percent occupied yesterday, is closing Sunday. Other hotels had low occupancy. Taxi drivers tell us fares to and from hotels are at an all-time low, especially from the airport to the hotels."

Outside some of the hotels, the loud but non-violent pickets bickered with cabbies, trying to shoo them away from the entrances.

Picket lines were set up Thursday morning, an hour after the Local 2 negotiating committee rejected the employers' final offer of a 31 percent hike over three years.

Three hours after the pickets went up, the employers announced they were beginning a "defensive lockout" that would bar union members from the hotels.

ship, the Coast Guard reported. One person was injured.

Ten people who stayed aboard the rig, the Ocean Leader, managed to bring the fire under control.

Trial of tortured aliens may set civil rights precedents

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — The precedent-setting trial of two Arizona ranchers accused of robbing and torturing three illegal Mexican aliens has wide civil rights implications.

Mexican-American leaders see a successful prosecution as paving the way for future federal action in other civil rights cases in the Southwest. Patrick Hanigan, 28, and his brother Thomas, 23, went on trial June 26, nearly four years after they allegedly stole $37 and clothing from three Mexican citizens who illegally entered the United States in search of farm labor jobs. Their trial is expected to last at least another week.

The brothers were acquitted in 1977 of 22 state counts of robbery, kidnapping and assault. That prompted protests to the Justice Department and Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti by Mexican-American and civil rights groups that — handed together as the National Coalition on the Hanigan Case.

In late 1979 federal indictments were returned.

The grand jury made use of a little-known interstate commerce law, the Hobbs Act. The Hanigans, owners of a ranch near the Mexican border, were accused of interfering with commerce by allegedly robbing Manuel Garcia-Loya, Bernabe Herrera-Mata and Eleazar Ruelas-Zavala.

Garcia-Loya and Ruelas-Zavala told the jury they were hogtied, terrorized by being shot at with shotgun pellets. They said Ruelas-Zavala's feet were burned with a heated metal rod and that he was threatened with hangings. Another witness said Ruelas-Zavala hobbled back to Mexico naked on improvised crutches.

The trial prompted controversy from the outset when a 15-member all-white jury was selected. The coalition picketed the courthouse. One protester even wore a clown costume.

Margo Cowan, a Tucson anti-poverty worker active in efforts to regularize the status of undocumented foreign citizens in Arizona, says no matter what the outcome, civil rights advocates already have won a victory.

"That victory was in the federal grand jury investigation. Undocumented people are no longer defenseless and they can demand and expect the same treatment as citizens heretofore," she said.

Ruben Sandoval, a San Antonio, Texas, civil rights activist, voiced concern about the conduct of the trial by U.S. District Court Judge Richard Charles, a former Republican county chairman who was recommended for appointment to the federal bench by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

Sandoval, part of a coalition trial monitoring team comprised of lawyers, language specialists and other observers, said during early testimony, only questions in Spanish-speaking witnesses were translated.

After he objected, Bibby ordered the court-appointed interpreter to interpret everything.

The case has drawn Michael Hawkins, U.S. attorney for Arizona, into the courtroom for one of the few trials he has personally directed. Sandoval and other activists have been critical of his courtroom strategy, calling Hawkins' efforts "weltering."

Efforts by defense attorneys Alex Gaynes and Alan K. Polley to impeach testimony of Garcia-Loya and Ruelas-Zavala — by pointing out contradictions between their 1977 trial testimony and testimony in federal court — left Sandoval smirking.

The trial had only been under way a week when Sandoval said prosecutors could either do this wholeheartedly or get out of it.

"The lack of prosecution by Mr. Hawkins is turning the case into a circus," Sandoval said.

But, the civil rights leaders were mollified somewhat when Hawkins put on the stand a psychiatrist, who said the three alleged victims were not capable of maintaining a lie for the four-year period that has elapsed since the alleged attack.

The psychiatrist also said the witnesses have contradicted themselves on the times of the alleged incidents because they have had very little education and do not comprehend why the court is so concerned with the sequence of events.

Bibby imposed a gag rule on out-of-court comment by trial participants after Gaynes compared the impact of a successful prosecution to tactics used by Nazi Germany.

Noting the coalition's role in obtaining indictments, Gaynes said convictions could lead pressure groups to seek indictments against politically unpopular people. This, he said, wouldn't make the United States "much different from Nazi Germany."

Haller sues over rape case

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former television actress Melanie Haller filed a civil lawsuit Friday against theatrical producer Roy Radin, charging he failed to protect her from sexual assaults by "persons of vicious character, wild proclivities and dangerous tendencies."

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn, asked no specific dollar amount against Radin or Robert McKeage IV, both of whom are under indictment in Suffolk County on varying charges stemming from an April 11 — party at Radin's Southampton mansion.

In the suit filed by her lawyer, Alfred Julian, Miss Haller, 29, who listed her address as Hollywood, Calif., charged Radin and McKeage, her escort to Radin's home, were negligent in not protecting her.

Miss Haller, who played the only female "swathog" on ABC-TV's "Welcome Back Kotter" series, has claimed she was raped, beaten and deprived of her virginity by "photographer" in several sexual acts.

In the federal suit, Miss Haller charged Radin was "negligent and careless in that he invited persons to his home of questionable character, and that he failed to interfere or protect" her from "sexual assaults performed upon her without consent."

It also charged Radin was negligent in the invitation to his home of persons of vicious character, wild proclivities, and "dangerous tendencies" and that he failed to provide Miss Haller "who was invited to the home of Radin, with the safety to her person."

The suit also charged Radin did nothing to prevent Miss Haller's assault and that "Roy Radin should have known of the inherent dangers in permitting Robert McKeage to be present at his home."

Miss Haller charged that Radin raped her while the others tried to videotape the event.

GOP: Easier said than done

The Republican Party falls forth from Detroit this week, buoyed by what its leaders believe is the party's best chance in years to not only retake the White House, but pick up strength in the House and Senate as well. An assessment of the party's convention must conclude that Ronald Reagan strengthened his chances considerably by the addition of George Bush to the ticket. The Gerald Ford scenario perhaps pumped up the party more than the failure of the "dream ticket" to materialize let it down. Despite the stories of Reagan's personal dislike for Bush and that he came close to picking Rep. Jack Kemp instead, what emerged after five days in Detroit was practical politics. Although the platform may give the party trouble, Reagan and Bush can minimize the damage by being sensitive to the issues and by attempting to win back alienated support, particularly on the ERA front.

Having now solidified the ticket, Reagan and Bush strategists must concentrate on the campaign. Success will depend a great deal on just how this campaign is waged. The time for making mistakes, errors in judgment, snafus and foulups is past. Blunders in the next few months will be monumental, perhaps fatal.

The Democrats have yet to be heard from but they have the advantage of convening after the GOP has had its glory. And despite the euphoria in Detroit, Bush did sound the warning for the party not to become complacent because President Jimmy Carter will be no pushover, despite what the polls say today. Indeed, Carter has many "weapons" at his disposal — the incumbent always does.

Also interesting to note at the GOP convention were the orchestrated efforts of the Idaho delegation to keep Rep. Steve Symms' campaign extremely visible. Not only were delegates wearing hats carrying Symms' name, but they verbally brought up the subject in the rollcalls. It was effective for television coverage.

Will the Idaho Democrats counter-for-Sen. Frank Church at their convention next month?

It is difficult, if not impossible, to tell which network "won" the battle of the convention, in terms of coverage. They all are nursing bruised egos to a large extent over the Ford story. Interestingly, all three lined up print journalists as expert analysts and George Will, a contributor for this page, acquitted himself quite well. Will, who every now and then writes over his readers' heads, refused to get rattled over the Ford overture.

Ellen Goodman

Reagans now in public eye

© The Boston Globe Newspaper Co. Washington Post Writers Group
DETROIT — Here we go again. Now it's the Reagans' turn to stand up for their family portraits on the podium and in the press. And now it's our turn to hear again that the sum of the Reagan parts do not add up to a whole.

Right by digit, here is the rundown. The "family" consists of one man, with four children — three biological and one adopted — from two marriages. The second wife, Nancy, was the only child of a mother who was divorced in her infancy. The four children have only two things in common: They are all college dropouts and have all dropped in different directions rather far from the family tree. Maureen, 39, has been twice divorced, is an ERA organizer and is an actress. Michael, 35, has been once divorced and sells gasoline and races boats. Patricia, 27, is a rock musician, composer, actress with an anti-nuclear bumper sticker on her car and a live-in man in her past. Her song of the moment is, appropriately enough, "No Place Left to Hide." Ron, 22, is a ballet dancer, who lives in New York with his woman friend. In short, the family that took center stage Wednesday night was not quite as vintage perfect as the family that took center stage here Monday night, the Commodores. The Reagans have lived through the normal difficulties and estrangements of divorce and remarriage, and the normal growing pains of adolescence and rebellious adult children. Now none of this would be surprising or certainly shocking, except for the fact that the Reagans people have set themselves up as defenders of the "Ye Olde Time Soda Shoppe" family life. So, there are two schools of thought on why Reagan is prancing somewhat differently from what he practiced. The first, The Conspiracy Theory, is that the man is a rank hypocrite playing to the audience holding tickets on the right side of the theater, or, in this case, the right of the Joe Louis arena. The second, The Honest Confusion Theory, is that the Reagans are a walking expression of ambivalence laced with a shot of denial. Being of benign mind and body, I vote for the second theory. It seems to me that any number of people have been through earthquakes in their private lives that haven't even made a crack in the walls of their philosophy. They hang onto their ideals as if they were the reality, and regard any personal deviation like a bad accident. They prefer to forget that it happened. Ronald Reagan is hardly the only man who believes in the permanence and sanctity of marriage, even in his second permanent marriage. Nancy Reagan is hardly the only woman who prefers to forget the woman before her. Nor are they the only people who believe in the closeness of family life, while experiencing distance with their own children. After all, nostalgia grows out of a sense of loss, not of fulfillment.

The networks were eaten alive by almost-Ford story

Last Thursday morning we checked out the Chicago Sun-Times edition headlined, "It's Reagan, Ford." But Wednesday night it wasn't so funny for those of us in the Times-News newsroom, or, for any other journalists that night. It was an incredible, spellbinding evening that spread out of Detroit — the story of how former vice president Gerald Ford almost ended up on the ticket with Ronald Reagan.

It would, of course, have been both incredible and historical. A newswoman's adrenalin runs at breakneck speed at such possibilities. But just as the story was building to an almost electrifying climax, it quickly burst, leaving a stunning anti-climax in its wake. The Times-News editorial was rewritten three times that night and, as it turns out, the original version would have stood up (pointing to Bush as Reagan's most logical choice). But when television reporters on the convention floor began to pick up the scent of a Reagan-Ford coalition early Wednesday, the editorial emphasis changed. So it was back to the newsroom at 9 p.m. for a rewrite. In retrospect, it was a good thing I took a portable TV along. Some time between 9 and 10 the editorial was rewritten again when it appeared the Ford thing was not a sure thing. Finally, the third version was done when the tables suddenly turned and now George Bush and not Gerald Ford was the veep choice. While the Times-News did publish an accurate version of what had developed and was not embarrassed editorially, the same can not be said for the newsmen of the major networks. (Oh the Chicago Sun-Times.) They all ended up with egg on their faces from John Chancellor and Walter Cronkite on down. It was most embarrassing for Dan Rather, Cronkite's heir apparent, because at one point in the evening it was believed that the evening interview with a Republican pollster that appeared to nail down the Reagan-Ford "deal."

Following the session's adjournment, NBC's floor crew was given time for an impromptu retrospective and some reporters not only blasted Reagan's campaign staff for mishandling the entire affair, but smarted that television had been used to the hilt for political purposes. One even suggested, rather haughtily, that the Reagan camp may have deliberately kept the rumor mill going to put pressure on Ford; who was watching TV in his hotel room. Only reporter Tom Pettit cut through the self pity with the point that the reporters shared the blame for what happened, for "smelling" an exclusive story in an otherwise dull convention and trying desperately to

Betty Furness, in a recent speech, revealed something that the average consumer has known for years. It is that the warranties that come with most American products aren't worth the computer cards they're printed on. They may have been a lot of changes in Washington, but one thing you can be sure of: the American consumer is getting a shafting by the great free enterprise system. Not long ago I went to McCarthy, Swaine and Kutznikow, the appliance store, to return an electric can opener I had bought my wife for Christmas. "Why do you wish to return it?" the man asked. "Because it doesn't work." "Did you fill out the Green Warranty Card that came with it?" "Yes, I did." "And what happened?" "The can opener still didn't work." "I see. Could you tell me how soon you filled out the Green Warranty

Card after you got the electric can opener?" "Maybe three days, a week, I'm not sure." "But it specifically says that the Green Warranty Card must be filled out 24 hours after purchasing the appliance." "Yes, but since it was a Christmas present, we didn't open up the package until Christmas morning, and therefore, we didn't see the Green Warranty Card and have a chance to fill it out for a few days as we were too busy trying to get the thing to work." "But if you didn't fill out and mail the Green Warranty Card within 24 hours of the purchase, it's hardly our fault that the electric can opener doesn't work, is it?" "I wouldn't say that," I said. "I think I should get a new electric can opener." "We can't do that. The only one who has the authority to give you a new electric can opener is our warranty department, which is located in Leavenworth, Kansas. But since you didn't send in the Green Warranty Card within 24 hours of purchase, they probably have no record of your buying an electric can opener in the first place." "You have a record of it. Here's my sales slip." "Yes, that's true. We know you purchased an electric can opener, and you know you purchased an electric can opener, but Leavenworth, Kansas, doesn't know." "Look," I said, "I should think you would be worried for the good name of McCarthy, Swaine, and Kutznikow." "But we're not owned by McCarthy, Swaine and Kutznikow anymore. We were bought out by Federated Tamps and Washhouses, which is a subsidiary of Drinkwater Fire and Theft, which is owned by Sable Hosiery and TV Antennas, which merged last month with Moon Orbiting Platforms, Inc." "That's great, but what about a new electric can opener? Just give me one, and I'll be on my way." "We can't. You see, we've discontinued the electric can opener." "How could you discontinue making them? I just bought this one for Christmas." "That's why we discontinued them. A lot of people bought them, and they didn't work. I guess our mistake was putting the head of our fire division in charge of electric can openers." "What do I do now?" "Put in your name and see if there is some way of getting Leavenworth to accept your Green Warranty Card, even if it was sent in late." "And will that get me a can opener?" "Of course not. But it will put you on our mailing list for any new appliances we plan to put out this year."

Reagan's modest task

© Universal Press Syndicate
DETROIT — What is the task ahead of Ronald Reagan and George Bush? It's no big deal. The Republican candidates, representing a minority party, have only to defeat an incumbent president, gain significant support in the House and Senate, form a government, and govern. What are their prospects? Good, I think. Their success or failure will depend primarily upon three factors: the nature of the economy, the nature of their campaign and the effect of the Anderson factor. None of these is now knowable. At this point the White House is up for grabs. Barring catastrophes, scandals and egregious blunders in one camp or the other, the November election will be decided almost entirely on the momentum of the economy. If the indices are encouraging — if auto sales and housing starts go up, and if interest rates and unemployment are going down — Mr. Carter will be tough to beat. He will benefit from the universal tendency among men to cling to the ills they have, rather than to others that they know not of. But if the indices are down, it's Reagan's ball game. Subjective factors also will figure heavily. How effective will the Republican contenders prove to be? Are they knowledgeable? Are they forceful but not abrasive? Are they fair? Do they demonstrate a presidential aura? Carter and Reagan will debate. Conceivably Reagan could blunder as Gerald Ford blundered in 1976, forgetting Soviets' domination of Eastern Europe. But Carter's record is unusually vulnerable to skilled attack. The candidates will be seen and judged every night on TV. Those who live by the tube may die by the tube. As the incumbent president, Mr. Carter has a built-in advantage. As a speaker, Reagan is superior. John Anderson, the Independent, is the most serious threat. The public opinion polls now reflect deep dissatisfaction with a choice. Limited to Carter/Reagan. One survey in May found only 23 percent of the country happy with these alternatives. Contrary to many predictions (including my own), Anderson has not peaked his popular support. Both Gallup and Harris continue to give Anderson roughly 25 percent of the vote. It now appears certain that Anderson will command the largest third-party vote since George Wallace in 1968. The Anderson fact is elusive. On how many state ballots will he appear? What vote in the electoral college would these states command? What kind of campaign will Anderson run? Four Gallup surveys between late March and early June indicated that Anderson would take net votes from Carter in five regions, from Reagan in four. The polls suggest that many young Republicans might defect to Anderson. Many professionals, Jews and Catholics might move from Carter to Anderson. Anderson will be a spoiler. Those dreams, finally, will be spoiled? Assume Reagan's election: could he form a government, and govern? A point to remember here is that party labels become more meaningless with every passing election. With luck, Republicans could gain seven or eight seats in the Senate, perhaps 25 or 30 in the House. In neither instance would the GOP as such, "control" a chamber. But when it comes to major issues, as distinguished from mere parliamentary organization, no party "controls" Congress. Party discipline and party regularity are things of the past. On such issues as energy, foreign aid and prayer in the schools, a hundred House Democrats regularly abandon their president. What matters is not the number of Republicans in the next Congress, but the number of conservatives. Reagan's program might not prevail, but this could not be attributed to a shortage of Republican votes, but to a shortage of votes period. Thus the task is carved out for the 69-year-old Reagan. He goes off to the November war on waves of adulation as warm as any we have seen since Eisenhower in 1952 and Goldwater in 1964. But 24 years ago Ike's task was easy: 16 years ago Goldwater's task was impossible. In this uncertain summer of our discontent, Reagan's prospects lie somewhere in between.

Matt Urban receives an emotional hug from President Carter after being presented with the Congressional Medal of Honor for courage in combat during WWII

Hero awarded 'lost' medal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Matt Urban had to wait 36 years to get a Medal of Honor for braving the punishing fire of a German Army invading France. But it finally came Saturday with a hug, a tear and an apology from the president.

In an emotional ceremony at the Shoreham Hotel, President Carter draped the blue ribbon that holds the cherished medallion around Urban's neck. The medal is the highest honor for valor an American soldier can receive.

Urban, a retired lieutenant colonel in the Army, was overcome with emotion and could barely hold back the tears as he stood erect before Army Secretary Clifford Alexander.

Urban, 60, of Holland, Mich., was visibly shaken as Alexander cited his "limitless bravery" during a German attack in France in 1944.

Carter, who was a sophomore at the Naval Academy at the time Urban was leading his troops into battle, wiped away a tear himself and hugged the newly decorated hero.

One of Urban's troops had recommended his boss for the medal, but his letter was lost. It wasn't discovered until 1978 after Urban had requested a search.

As hundreds from Urban's 9th Infantry Division watched on, Carter said, "I deeply regret the delay of this ceremony for so many years.

"But I am grateful for this reminder so many years later — a reminder of what freedom means and what is at stake ... and what might be demanded in the future to preserve peace through strength," Carter said.

The last Medal of Honor for World War II heroism was given in 1950.

Woman charged with poisoning husbands

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A woman whose two husbands died under similar mysterious circumstances 12 years apart goes on trial Monday on the first of two arsenic murder charges.

Prosecutors plan to seek the death penalty against LaVerne O'Bryan, 43, who will be tried at the same time on a charge of trying to poison her sister-in-law.

The prosecution will try to prove Mrs. O'Bryan hoped to profit financially by the deaths of her husbands. John O'Bryan died July 5, 1979, at the age of 37 with doctors unable to explain his persistent stomach pains, vomiting and bloat.

A relative informed doctors that O'Bryan had worked around arsenic, prompting tests for the poison. The test results showed he had 130 times the normal arsenic level in his body.

While checking well water and drugs at their home for arsenic traces, relatives told authorities that Mrs. O'Bryan's first husband, who had lived in the same home, had died amid unexplained circumstances on Dec. 23, 1967.

Hospital records showed Harold Sadler, who died at the age of 36, had shown symptoms similar to O'Bryan.

Two weeks after O'Bryan's death authorities obtained a court order and exhumed Sadler's body and found it well preserved — apparently because arsenic can be used as an embalming compound. Sadler's death was blamed on arsenic poisoning.

Reagan begins his crusade

HOUSTON (UPI) — In his first campaign outing with his new running mate, Ronald Reagan launched his "crusade-to-make-America-great-again" Saturday in a crowded, steamy shopping mall in George Bush's posh Houston neighborhood.

With Bush by his side, Reagan set a tone for the upcoming campaign by telling thousands of Texans gathered in the atrium of the Galleria Shopping-hotel complex: "This is not a campaign, but a crusade — a crusade to make America great again."

Because of the layout, it was impossible to tell how many people heard Reagan and Bush, but they may have been several thousand. Almost all were loudly enthusiastic.

However, there were also dozens of demonstrators protesting Reagan's opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion. Their chants were ignored and there were no incidents.

Because the shopping mall crowd had waited hours for the indoor rally in muggy weather, Reagan and Bush kept their speeches short.

"I'm sure Jimmy Carter is doing his best," Reagan said. "That's our problem."

Following up on his nostalgic

"Make America great again" theme, Reagan said: "There's a world out there that no matter how many times they've said, 'Yankee go home,' there's a world that has always known they're safer if there is a great United States as an anchor to the world and that's what we're going to be again in the world."

Bush, who served two terms in Congress representing the Houston area, said contrary to current polls he does not believe it will be an easy battle to win the White House. "Given Jimmy Carter's record it ought to be, but it won't. It will be tough."

Soviets say Reagan is dangerous

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda said Saturday Ronald Reagan's foreign policy is even worse than President Carter's and that the Republican call for military superiority over the Soviet Union is a "dangerous mirage."

It was the strongest attack against Reagan by the Soviet press since his nomination Thursday as the Republican party's candidate in the presidential elections in November.

"The platform adopted by the convention and the speeches by presidential candidate Reagan and others are all permeated by the spirit of rabid militarism and can be taken to mean that they look at the world through the scope of a rifle," the article by Yevgeny Ruskov said. "The heart of the program of the right-wing Republicans is the open proclamation of the course to achieve a military strategic superiority over the U.S.S.R."

"Although the present Washington administration has broken all records in its increasing appropriations for the arms race, its rivals in the election campaign still seem to think that these mountains of weapons are not enough and that they must be piled up higher and higher."

The Republican party platform for military superiority rather than parity has especially upset the Soviet leadership, which also appears to have given up on Carter as a satisfactory negotiating partner.

Referring to Reagan's foreign policy, Pravda said: "Military force is regarded as the main vehicle for the pursuit of an offensive policy with regard to the Soviet Union, which is referred to as the chief enemy."

"One cannot help giving advice to the authors of this program: just look out the window. Look at your calendar. The time of the Dulleses has long gone." The Dulleses were former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and his brother Allen, former CIA director.

"The hope to achieve military strategic superiority over the Soviet Union is a mirage, a dangerous mirage," the newspaper said. "One can sense the moldy smell of cold war from Detroit."

Queen visits with Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Queen, liberated by his Iranian captors just nine days before, paid a visit to the White House Saturday where he confided to President Carter: "I'm feeling better every day."

Queen, the 22-year-old U.S. embassy vice consul who spent more than 250 days in captivity, was released July 11 on orders from Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini when it became apparent the hostage needed speedy and expert medical attention.

Queen appeared in good spirits Saturday, doing most of the talking as he stood in the Oval Office next to Carter and members of his immediate family.

During the two-minute reporters and photographers were allowed to witness the meeting, the bearded former-captive was overheard (telling the president) — "I'm feeling better every day."

"It helps to be loved," Carter said. During his chat with the president, Queen said the hostages were allowed only three letters a week.

And he told Carter the Iranians had heard about the "yellow ribbons" for the hostages, "but they did not understand it." Relatives of the hostages have used yellow ribbons as a symbol to remember the captives remain in Iran.

Iran denies involvement in Bhaktier assassination try

PARIS (UPI) — Iran's Foreign Minister Shapour Ghozadeh Saturday said his country "condemned" terrorism, and the Islamic regime was not involved in the assassination attempt against Shapour Bhaktier, the deposed shah's last prime minister.

Police announced that two more suspected members of an Arab "hit squad" were arrested at dawn, bringing to five the number of people in custody for the attack, which touched off a wild gunbattle that killed a police officer and a woman.

"If there are certain elements that wanted to do something, they had nothing to do with the Iranian government," Ghozadeh told French television in a brief interview Saturday. "The Iranian government has no need to adopt terrorist methods, which it has always condemned."

Bhaktier, an outspoken opponent of Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Khomeini, charged the gunmen were dispatched by Tehran to kill him.

In a statement broadcast later by Tehran Radio, Ghozadeh said Iran "regards it (the assassination attempt) as yet another plot hatched by Bhaktier and his supporters in France."

He also said a group in Iran that claimed responsibility for the attack, the Guards of Islam, "is completely unknown to us and has no connection with Iran's Islamic revolution guards."

Castro praises U.S.; attacks Reagan

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — In a keynote address to mark the first anniversary of Nicaragua's revolution, Cuban President Fidel Castro turned his attention to the United States and said Ronald Reagan was a "threat to world peace."

Castro earlier applauded the Carter administration's policy towards leftist-ruled Nicaragua and called for U.S.-Cuban cooperation to help rebuild the war-torn nation.

Castro denied Cuba was fanning the revolutionary flames set off throughout Central America by the Sandinista National Liberation Front victory in Nicaragua, but acknowledged they were spreading.

"It is impossible to pass on the revolutionary torch because people are like volcanoes," he said. "No one sets fire to them. They explode alone ...

and Central American and the Andean area is a volcanic region."

While he praised Washington for giving financial aid to the Sandinistas despite their politics, Castro said it was too little, "considering the U.S. wealth."

The bearded Cuban leader went on to denounce the Republican Party and Reagan, its presidential nominee, saying that if they won the November elections they would cut off U.S. aid to Nicaragua.

"The Republicans ... and their candidate are a threat to world peace," he said. "They are threatening again to use the big stick in Latin America."

Besides Castro, PLO Chief Yasser Arafat and envoys from North Korea, Vietnam, Cambodia and Moscow were in Managua for what one diplomat called a gathering of the "the revolutionary clan."

U.S. Ambassador Lawrence Pezzullo, who spoke briefly with Castro, later said the Cuban president had taken "a very sensible line" and said "some very nice things" about the United States.

Washington has made no bones about the fact it was helping Nicaragua to avoid forcing it to seek help in the Soviet bloc — something many analysts believe Washington forced Castro to do after the 1959 triumph of his revolution.

Castro allegedly helped train and equip the Sandinista rebels during the civil war to topple Anastasio Somoza.

Since the Sandinista victory Castro has sent more than 2,200 Cubans to Nicaragua, most of them doctors and teachers but some also military advisers, triggering charges Nicaragua was becoming "a second Cuba."

Death squads confirmed?

CHAUTAQUA, N.Y. (UPI) — Freedom Hoveyda, former Iranian ambassador to the United Nations, Friday said the attempted assassination of Shapour Bhaktier proved Ayatollah Khomeini dispatches "killing squads."

Surrounded by armed guards, Hoveyda told an audience at the Chautauqua Institution, "The Ayatollah Khomeini sends out killing squads. This attempt proved that."

Hoveyda, who learned of the attempt just before speaking to the group of about 2,000 at the summerline academic retreat, also said more people had been killed during Khomeini's 16 months in power than died during 37 years under the Shah.

The former diplomat said Khomeini was "losing power" and had "lost the support of the educated people of Iran."

Hoveyda also said he believed the ayatollah "will not last longer than a year at the most. Anyone that succeeds Khomeini will have to be a cross between the shah and the ayatollah," Hoveyda said.

Turkish terrorists kill former prime minister

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Terrorists spraying submachine gun fire from a speeding car assassinated a former Turkish prime minister and his bodyguard Saturday outside a posh resort in suburban Istanbul, police said.

Nihat Erim, 68, who served as prime minister in 1971 and 1972 and led a crackdown on terrorism, died of his wounds while being sped to a hospital, police said. His bodyguard and chauffeur, Ali Kartal, was killed instantly.

In Washington, the State Department said the killing was "senseless act of violence" and called it "part of a brutal campaign" to bring about the collapse of Turkish democracy.

A group calling itself the "Revolutionary Left" later claimed responsibility for the attack in telephone calls to several news agencies in Istanbul.

The group also claimed responsibility for the May 27 assassination of a former vice president of the National Movement Party, Gun Sazak.

Police said three gunmen in a speeding car fired at Erim, his wife and the bodyguard at 10:45 a.m. in front of a swimming club in the Dragos section of Istanbul, where Erim owned a villa. Mrs. Kamille Erim was not hit but was in severe shock.

Soviets set Olympic space launch

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet space controllers cleared a docking port on the Salyut-6 space laboratory Saturday, possibly to make way for another manned space shot as an Olympic spectacular.

Western space experts predicted another Soviet launch either Monday or Wednesday. The Soviet space controllers cleared the Salyut docking port by jettisoning the unmanned Progress-10 freight capsule and letting it burn up as it hurtled toward Earth, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

Comprehensive plan could be acceptable

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

JEROME — It's been four years since Jerome County residents packed their district courtroom to denounce a proposed comprehensive plan. The county Planning and Zoning Commission holds its first hearing on a new land-use plan Monday at 8 p.m. at the same courthouse location. This time, however, P&Z Chairman Roy Prescott says the outcome should be different.

"From everything we as a commission have heard, this is exactly the kind of plan Jerome County wants," Prescott said Thursday.

"I only wish we'd had it six months ago. It could have prevented a lot of problems," added Al Hepworth, county planning and zoning administrator.

The proliferation of dairies and subdivisions has altered property owners' regard for land-use planning, Prescott said, especially in the rapidly developing region south of Jerome and west of U.S. Highway 89.

More than a dozen new dairies are under construction in the region, several of them in or near a triangle of land the P&Z has targeted for continued residential growth.

Wildcat subdivisions, meanwhile, have blossomed in traditionally agricultural areas, leading farmers to complain about dogs and children romping through their fields, and posing hazards in the movement of farm equipment.

The county's initial planning thrust began in 1973 with the formation of a county planning council. The group abandoned its efforts two years later, unable to compose its thoughts into a legible and legal document.

Jerome County Commissioners hired — a Boise — consulting firm, Marsden and Associates, to complete the task. The firm came up with an intricate plan whereby developers would provide their own city services or locate near existing towns.

The proposal was rejected overwhelming at two public hearings. Speakers opposed to the plan included at least one member of the present planning commission, engineering consultant Dick Critzer.

The new plan, Prescott said, has as its theme — the second — great commandment — love thy neighbor as thyself. Yet the message is not etched in stone, he said.

Written in what commission members readily agree is non-legal language, the plan tells property owners and purchasers that agriculture is the dominant industry in Jerome County.

Other land uses are permitted, but may require special use permits and concurrence from neighbors to avoid future conflicts.

In drafting the proposal, Prescott said the commission has incorporated advice from reporters, the Minidoka planning commission, a property owners group, dairymen, the Jerome

Highway District and the Jerome County Farm Bureau.

City impact zones for Jerome, Eden and Hazelton were rewritten to comply with the wishes of council members in the three communities.

The resulting document has been criticized as a plan with no teeth, he conceded, but the commission is confident that decisions made with the input of neighboring property owners will stand up in court.

"We're not trying to stifle individuals in the exercise of their property rights," he said. "But we're saying that they have certain moral responsibilities, especially to their neighbors."

In an effort to separate dairies and feedlots from residential developments, the commission has proposed a special use permit that requires developers to contract neighbors within a ¼-mile radius before they appear before the commission.

Testimony from nearby property owners may not be the deciding factor, the commission decided, but it will be considered in the decision to grant special use permits.

Prescott said several items in the plan were mentioned solely to comply with state rules governing comprehensive plans.

An example is "Hazardous Areas," a subsection of the state planning act that deals with geologic faults, avalanche zones and other areas subject to natural disasters.

Resigns

Mayor quits but now wants back in

HAGERMAN — Controversy about whether or not Hagerman Mayor Dean Holt's resignation should be accepted has been placed on hold.

Holt, 80, tendered his resignation at the city council's meeting in June citing poor health as the reason for the action, but this month asked to rescind the resignation because his health had improved.

After surviving on the city council and as mayor for more than a decade, Holt was re-elected to another four-year term as mayor last fall.

"Since the city council didn't act on the mayor's resignation he was entitled under the law to ask for the resignation — back," explained Hagerman City Clerk Audrey Hofman.

However, three of the four council members disagreed and earlier this month said the resignation should be accepted regardless of Holt's desire to continue in office.

Tuesday night the Hagerman City Council met again, but decided again to table the issue for further consideration.

"We're just kind of letting it ride for now," senior councilman William Slinemates explained Friday. "I guess that's the best way to describe it."

Slinemates was the only council member not to voice an opinion on Holt's resignation. He said he did so because he would be first in line to take over as acting mayor should Holt's resignation be processed.

From Holt's request to comment further on the resignation issue other than to say he feels qualified and able to continue as mayor.

The council's next scheduled meeting will be Aug. 5.

No water shortage predicted

SHOSHONE — There shouldn't be any water shortage for irrigators in Lincoln County this year.

Magic Reservoir is holding almost twice as much water this week as it did at the same time last year, according to Big Wood Canal Co. Manager Leon Grieve.

Tuesday, Grieve estimated the reservoir's volume at 185,500 acre feet of water. Magic Reservoir water users didn't go on water storage management until July 15.

Even after irrigating began this year, Magic Reservoir remained full longer than anyone expected, claimed Grieve. He said the lake remained filled for about 50 days after irrigation began.

The area's other major water source, American Falls Reservoir, contained 1,604,000 acre feet of water on July 8, according to Grieve. Water users on this supply changed into storage management June 26. Grieve said this is unusual since Magic Reservoir usually goes on storage before American Falls.

Gooding selects new principal

GOODING — A new Gooding High School principal was selected earlier this week by the Gooding School Board.

Larry Tinker, 43, from Welser, signed his contract for the 1980-81 school year Friday morning and began work immediately interviewing candidates for high school staff positions.

"It's too early to say much about any kind of plans for this year, but I am here and am getting settled," Tinker said Friday.

Tinker has worked in public schools for 18 years. His last job was as Welser Junior High School Principal, a position he held for one year. Tinker has held both junior high and high school principal positions plus has worked as a teacher, counselor and coach.

"He's a very experienced administrator and we're glad to have him," said Superintendent Elaine Gibbons who is assisting Tinker with interviews.

Tinker and his wife, Fay, have three children, a son and daughter who are growing another son who will be a junior at Gooding High School this fall.

Corporate advantages

Question: I have read your articles and answers to investment and insurance questions.

However, my question has to do with my business and taxes. I have a profitable business in Idaho, of which I am the sole owner. In order to reduce taxes, my accountant suggested I establish a Keogh retirement plan. What do you suggest?

Answer: The answer cannot be given based on the information you provide. Your first step is to consult with a financial planner on this question. He will have several questions to ask and can then provide you with the correct course to follow.

For example, you may seriously consider the many advantages of incorporating your business. A corporation provides many tax shelters and tax advantages, more than your current method of business operation offers. You can generate the same benefits for yourself as if you were the president of General Motors.

For example, your corporation will be able to pay for and legally deduct your personal life insurance expenses, medical and hospitalization expenses which are currently not deductible by you. (Your medical deductions are currently limited on your federal return to expenses over 3 percent of your adjusted gross income.)

Excess cash in the corporation can be invested, and the dividends earned are 85 percent tax free. After you have determined how much income you actually need to draw from the business for living expenses, the balance can be paid into a pension or profit-sharing plan (or combination of the two) which can be structured to your benefit. In this way, you let the federal government help you plan for your future security and you get a current income tax deduction at the same time.

When you first incorporate, there are additional numerous benefits. You can sell your assets to the corporation that would legitimately be used in the business. Such items as your car and office furniture equipment can be sold to the corporation and the corporation pays you for these items out of earnings and the income is tax free to you.

In addition, incorporating will provide you with an umbrella of legal protection, and it is an excellent method of establishing a valuation for your business which will be helpful in the sale of the business at retirement and pegging the value for federal estate tax purposes at death.

These are only some of the highlights of the benefits of incorporating. A financial planner with the input of your attorney and accountant can establish an incorporation feasibility study to determine if incorporation is really a viable solution to your estate problem.

A booklet describing various types of business organization may prove helpful. These booklets are available to interested readers upon request.

After remodeling, Maxie's Pizza and Pasta at Kimberly features natural tones in wooden siding

Maxie's Pizza opens third outlet

KIMBERLY — Maxie's Pizza and Pasta has opened its third store here.

A grand opening observance is planned from Tuesday through Saturday for the extensively remodeled and expanded store in the 600 block on Main Street North.

The location was formerly occupied by the Red Caboose, a frozen pizza manufacturing firm which sold the building and moved to eastern Idaho.

Mr. and Mrs. Max E. Humphries and their son, Max G. Humphries, are the owners and operators of the business, which is now in its 24th year and is one of the oldest "pizza places" to be established in Idaho.

The original location of Maxie's was on Main Street in Twin Falls across from the Sears, Roebuck store. About a year later the restaurant was moved to a site on Blue Lakes Boulevard where it has operated for about 23 years. There, three expansions and several remodelings have resulted in a modern dining facility with a seating capacity of around 200 persons.

The second store was a take-out facility established in Burley in 1967. It subsequently expanded and moved to quarters on East Main Street.

At all three stores, the Humphries said, they specialize in serving a family dining clientele. Menus are identical for all three outlets, featuring pizza, pasta dishes — lasagna, spaghetti, ravioli — and a salad bar. Deliveries are provided from the Twin Falls and Burley stores.

When the Humphries started out, the business was staffed by four members of their family and two other employees. Now the payroll for the three stores lists 25 to 30 people.

Major fruit, nut co-ops join

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Two giant dried fruits and nuts cooperatives announced plans Friday for a joint marketing agreement which officials said would become one of the world's largest specialty commodity ventures.

Officials of Sun-Maid Growers of California and Diamond-Sunweet, Inc., said they would join in the marketing agreement to become federated cooperatives. They said it wasn't a full merger between the two cooperatives but that they would act together in marketing the nuts and dried fruits each handles. Sun-Maid is based in Kingsburg and Diamond-Sunweet is headquartered in Stockton.

Together the two cooperatives have some 5,500 growers providing products to them.

Sun-Maid markets about 40 percent of the nation's raisin crop and expects its 1980 sales volume to reach more than $200 million.

Diamond-Sunweet officials said they anticipated sales of walnuts, pecans and various dried fruits to exceed $220 million in 1980.

Margin requirements for silver reduced

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Commodity Exchange Inc. said Friday that because of the decreasing volatility in the silver market, it will reduce margin requirements on silver-futures contracts with the opening of trading on Monday.

The exchange said speculative margins for a 5,000 troy ounce contract of silver futures will be reduced $1,000 to $7,000 per contract and hedge margins will drop $1,000 to $4,000 per contract.

Heat hurts corn crop over Nebraska, Iowa

KANSAS CITY, MO. (UPI) — State agronomists said Tuesday that corn conditions in eastern Nebraska are deteriorating daily under extremely hot, dry weather, while corn in western Iowa is beginning to show signs of heat stress.

Corn in Iowa and eastern Nebraska, according to agronomists, has reached the critical reproductive stage of pollination, which is most successful under moderate temperatures and adequate moisture.

In the past week, however, these areas have had little rain and record high temperatures, with readings of more than 100 degrees.

Agronomists are hesitant to estimate the extent of pollination success or failure.

A more accurate picture of how the extreme temperatures of the past week have affected pollination will be known within two to three more weeks, when kernels begin to form on ears.

Agronomists agree that the greatest chance for successful pollination exists under more moderate temperatures than those now prevalent in those areas.

In northwest Iowa, the corn crop has been hurt by the heat, but it is impossible to say to what extent, according to Darrell Clark, crop specialist for the Iowa State University, Fort Dodge area.

Agronomists across the state of Iowa said that corn is now showing signs of stress as leaves curl in the late afternoon sun.

In eastern Nebraska, hot, dry conditions persist but without the humidity levels found in Iowa. State agronomists there said, corn is definitely under stress; both on irrigated and dryland operations, and conditions are deteriorating.

Agronomists in Nebraska said that this week is critical for corn because it is beginning to pollinate, and producers are desperate for a break in the weather.

Bull's dream too much

CHESTER, England (UPI) — To Arab the bull it must have seemed like every dream of the permissive age come true, but a lawsuit says Arab's lust proved fatal.

Farmer John Lloyd has sued 85-year-old Miss Sarah Ann Wright for $55,000 for putting too much temptation in Arab's way, resulting in the bull's death.

He claimed his spinster neighbor allowed her herd of "un-demonstrated and snuggly-coated" heifers to stray onto his land, where his 4-year-old Holstein bull was ready and eager to overestimate his own strength.

He was recovering from earlier injuries, Lloyd claimed. "Temptation quickly got the black and white animal lathered up and in a sweat," said attorney Richard Clegg.

"The bull became so excited further injuries were caused and he had to be destroyed," Clegg said. He claimed without that night of love Arab could have earned more than $3 million in stud fees.

Since the case was continued, Clegg handed the judge a diagram, saying:

"Several parts of the animal's anatomy are likely to be mentioned over the next few days so I have prepared a diagram showing what I hope are the relevant parts of the bull." The judge made no comment.

Miss Wright maintained her cattle were not involved and her attorney, Emlyn Hooson, said Arab was a burned-out case whose breeding days were over and he was "of carcass value only."

Grain trade rolls along

WASHINGTON, D.C. — There will be no interruption of U.S.-Soviet grain trade this fall by members of the International Longshoremen's Association, in the opinion of ILA president Thomas Gleason.

Gleason made his remarks in an interview in the July edition of The Wheat Grower, the National Association of Wheat Growers' magazine.

Gleason said the recently concluded ILA contract negotiations were completed earlier than at any time in his organization's history. "This is the second time we have been able to get an agreement without a strike," he said, "and we feel that there won't be any strike in September."

In response to another question, Gleason said that work stoppages were instituted "99 times out of 100" by his members, as opposed to association leadership. However, he indicated that the ultimate decision on whether such stoppages would continue rests with the 25-member ILA executive board.

Judge says turkey not ham

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — A federal judge waxed poetic in ruling that "turkey ham" can't be used as the name for cured turkey thigh meat.

U.S. District Judge Richard Kellam agreed with pork producers, saying the U.S. Department of Agriculture erred in 1975 when it allowed the product to go to market as "turkey ham."

In his opinion Thursday, Kellam quoted the poem, "Through the Looking Glass," by Lewis Carroll:

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
To talk of many things —
Of shoes — and ships — and sealing wax —
Of cabbages — and kings —
And why the sea is boiling hot —

"And whether pigs have wings," Kellam, who suggested the product be renamed, said pigs don't have wings and the poultry product, made from turkey, isn't ham, even when called "turkey ham."

He said USDA surveys on the product suggested to him the public is confused by the name.

The USDA could either appeal Kellam's ruling, develop a new label for the product, or conduct additional and more conclusive surveys.

Ham industry officials were pleased by the decision.

"Turkey is turkey and ham is ham and that's that," said George Hamilton, president of Smithfield Packing Co. Inc.

Land auction at Ely

ELY (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management will sell 100 acres of public land in White Pine County at an auction in Ely Sept. 9.

About one-third is in Duck Creek Basin north of McGill, the rest between Ely and McGill.

Power County land sale set July 25

AMERICAN FALLS — An auction of 1,320 acres of Public School Endowment Land in Power County will be conducted at 2 p.m. July 25 in the county courthouse at American Falls.

In announcing the auction, L.D. Benedict, area supervisor for the Idaho Department of Lands' eastern office at Idaho Falls, said the sale consists of five parcels of primarily dry farmland located about five miles northeast of Rockland.

The sale is contingent upon the sale of all five units. If one or more units are not sold, none of the units will be sold.

The terms are 10 percent down with the balance on a 20-year contract at 11 percent interest.

Idaho spud harvest below 1979 levels

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho farmers expect to harvest 300,000 acres of potatoes this year.

That is 30,000 acres less than in 1979, the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says.

The service said a wet, cool spring delayed planting in some areas but was completed by mid-June. Both stands and plant development are good at this time.

Ruth Olson, 70, has resumed operation of a gem shop near Buhl which her father, the late Leon Peck, longtime Buhl hardware dealer, began in 1947. Mrs. Olson taught in Buhl and Twin Falls.

Small red shop offers hard fruits of earth

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

BUHL — Just west of here on Highway 30, a small, red shop stands as solid as the merchandise it sells.

Since 1947, the rock shop has offered the hard fruits of the earth: agate, geodes, amethyst crystals, jasper and opals — from the semi-precious to the just plain interesting.

Now called Ruth's Rockpile, the shop is run by the woman who inspired its creation more than 40 years ago.

Ruth Olson, 70, did not start the original business. Her father, Leon Peck, opened the shop after he retired from running a Buhl hardware store.

Oddly enough, he had not been a rock hound or collector before.

Olson suspects it was her childhood preoccupation with rocks and science that sparked Peck's interests in running a novelty rock shop in his later life.

Young Ruth's pockets always wore out before the rest of her clothes, as she was constantly filling them with stones she had found. Her father, when he was preparing to go on a business trip, would ask her, "What would you like me to bring back?"

"Why, a rock, what else?" was her reply.

She always came away with a fistful of rocks whenever we went camping," she remembers.

Ruth later pursued a career in science, getting a BA in chemistry and a master's in teaching science.

In a later era, she might have become a doctor or a medical technician, but in the 1930s those fields were difficult for women to break into.

She married James F. Olson of Bismark, N.D., a city man who fulfilled a life-long dream in returning to farming. She taught, he farmed on an acreage near Buhl, and together they raised two children. When her father built his L & R Gem Shop and Rock Museum, he located it near their home on Highway 30 when that road was the major thoroughfare between Twin Falls and Boise.

Her father not only collected rocks, he built machines to cut, polish and tumble them. "Once he got into the business, he pursued it with a passion," Olson said.

When he died in 1964, the shop was closed for nearly 10 years. The Olsons' two children pursued careers reflecting both their parents' interests.

Joan is a horticulturist with Washington State University and Jim is a professor at Texas Agricultural and Mechanical University and a mosquito expert. The family joke is "she grows plants, he kills bugs," Olson said.

Then in 1975, after Mrs. Olson had retired from teaching and three years after her husband died, she opened the rock shop again. It was still plentifully stocked from her father's efforts. Even now she still sells rocks her father collected on his initial rock hunting trips to Arizona.

Ruth's "Rockpile" lives up to its name. The shelves, tables, window sills and sales-desk are piled with a variety of gemstones, some polished, some rough, some neatly categorized, some in wonderful disorder.

It's the kind of place begging for picking, poking and prying by the young and the curious.

Geodes and nodules fill shelves at one end of the shop; their crystal teeth gleam in the dim light. Montana agate slabs are set in the window across the room, where the sun shows off their translucence.

On the sales desk sits three "show piece" rocks: a blue-green sodalite epidote, a yellow-red chunk of petrified wood and a steel-blue Dugway, Utah, geode. The rockpile also includes "Beacon Hill Nodules," a kind of geode with white quartz crystals.

Prices range from 25 cents to $35 for particularly fine specimens.

Olson also stocks the current rock "fad": Owyhee jasper or picture jasper, a kind of Idaho stone that when cut and polished appears to have a mountainous landscape painted on it.

Rock collecting, like many industries, has its fashions. When her father opened the business, geodes were in demand, Olson said. Then came the turquoise craze and rocks had to be green or blue.

Now Owyhee and Bruneau jasper and opals are popular.

Rock cutting and polishing is a growing hobby, especially among retired folks, Olson said. However, rock collecting is down, mostly because of the lack of rock-hunting areas.

In her youth northern Idaho was a prime spot for collecting rocks. She remembers when a small boy hunting through excavations in the Snake River Canyon found a petrified tiger's tooth.

Now, very few children bring rocks they've found to the shop to enquire, "What is it?"

Everyone who comes into the store "has something they're looking for," she said. Her customers, much more than the items she sells, interest Olson.

"I enjoy talking to people more than I enjoy selling rocks," she admits. Just last week, she chatted with two young men from British Columbia who were majoring in mining and engineering. "We had a real get-together." A science teacher from Salt Lake City became intrigued with the shop, telling her she had underpriced some items, while his wife waited impatiently.

Olson goes on some rock collecting trips and does some rock buying, but her many other interests keep her shop a low-key operation. She talks hopefully of someday organizing the shop better, but she admits it might be "like teaching chemistry. One of my students told me, Mrs. Olson, all you do is move around the confusion."

One of her three granddaughters, reacting to the gleaming heaps of colorful stones, inadvertently suggested the shop's present name. The little girl was always asking her mother if they "were going to visit the rock pile?"

Her mother didn't like the term, but grandmother did. Combined with her name, the new title proved an apt description.

Valley happenings

20-year reunion slated

TWIN FALLS — The 1960 Twin Falls High School class will hold its 20-year reunion July 26-27.

A banquet at 8 p.m. July 26 at the Twin Falls Elks Club will be preceded by a social hour at 6:30 p.m. Dancing will begin at 9 p.m.

On Sunday, July 27, a picnic will be held at noon at the Kirsch ranch.

Reservations must be made by July 23 with either Joan Anderson Fax at 733-0631 or Darlene Lekey Kirsch, 733-7234.

Early pregnancy class set

TWIN FALLS — A free-of-charge early pregnancy class will be given July 24, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the medical offices of Dr. Green and Dr. Mayer, 141 Morrison Ave., Twin Falls.

All women up to five months pregnant and their interested husbands are invited to attend and learn about prenatal care, growth of baby, pregnancy comfort exercises and the upcoming choices and decisions they will be making in the childbearing year.

Printed material will be made available to those who attend. Joani McFarlane will be the instructor. McFarlane has taught Lamaze prepared childbirth in the Magic Valley area for over five years. For more information contact her at 425-4742.

Children receive books

TWIN FALLS — Last week, children at the La Valentina day care center, 545 Highland, received what probably were the first books of their very own.

In conjunction with an open house at the center for migrant children, about 110 story books were given away to about 30 children, aged 3 to 6.

On a special grant from RIF, a federal reading program, the center bought about 200 books and allowed children to pick out three each with their parents. This may encourage more reading in the homes, said Rose Swan, La Valentina director.

As migrant lifestyle means having only enough possessions to move from place to place, books are often a rare item in farmworkers' homes.

The children were allowed to choose from such traditional tales as Cinderella and Snow White and also some Spanish stories as "Cuento de un Cocodrilo," or "Story of a Crocodile."

About 110 books were given away. Swan said the rest would be distributed at a later book giveaway.

"For many, it was the first book of their very own," Swan said. "If children have their own books, they are more apt to learn how to read and take care of them."

At the open house, six parents were elected to the parents' committee of the center. They are Margie Monroy, Crescencio Ruiz, Luis Robledo, Sara Sanchez, Angel Vera and Eilda Rodriguez.

The La Valentina day care center and preschool is funded through the Head Start program.

Dear Abby

Offer to sit with house

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate
DEAR ABBY: I attended three funerals in the last month and have some tips for good friends who really mean it when they ask the family of the deceased, "Is there anything I can do?"

There are countless details to deal with, such as funeral arrangements, people to be notified, transportation and housing for incoming relatives and friends.
When bringing in food, please bring it in foil or disposable containers, otherwise containers must be washed, labeled, stored and returned. This takes time.

It would be helpful, too, if some casseroles could be brought in unboxed to be frozen and used a week or two later, when needed.
Friends shouldn't visit at mealtime, especially those with children who need to be fed.
Offer to sit with the house during the funeral. Due to publicity, families across the nation have returned from funerals to find that their homes have been burglarized. Most people are reluctant to ask a friend to miss the funeral, but believe me, this is one gesture of friendship that is greatly appreciated, so please offer.

I realize that these suggestions are only common sense, but you might find them worth printing.
—IOWAN
DEAR IOWAN: Indeed they are.

Common sense is very uncommon.
DEAR ABBY: Why would a man insist on knowing where his wife is every minute of the day? Do you think he suspects that she might be fooling around?

—B. IN BIRMINGHAM
DEAR B.: Not necessarily. Maybe he just wants to be sure where SHE is while HE'S fooling around.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people expect musicians to entertain at weddings, banquets and other functions for free? They'll say, "You're lucky God gave you a talent. You should share it with the world!"

A good musical performance is 10 percent talent and 90 percent work. Parents spend thousands of dollars on music lessons. They are not free! Costumes, music, gasoline and babysitters all cost money. Organizations will spend money for a meeting room, decorations, food and speakers. But they expect musicians to donate their time and talent.

Abby, please spread the word that the ability to sing or play an instrument may be a God-given talent, but it takes hard work and practice to make it entertainment.

—PAYWORTHY
DEAR PAYWORTHY: Consider it spread.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on something. I feel that an 11-year-old child should be sent to another room, outside, or somewhere out of hearing range when his parents are having a serious disagreement about money matters, marital problems, etc.
My husband feels that it is perfectly all right for the child to hang around and listen, so he can "learn."

What do you say?
—DIFFERING VIEWS
DEAR DIFFERING: An 11-year-old should not be an ear-witness to his parents' marital disagreements, money fights or adult discussions. But if he is politely sent away, he may suspect that something is seriously wrong between his parents, causing him to feel threatened, frightened and anxious.
So I recommend privacy for such occasions and subtlety in acquiring it.

Ceremony held for 14 nurses

TWIN FALLS—Honor ceremonies were held last week for 14 graduates of Southern Idaho nursing students who completed the practical nursing program.

Guest speaker at the Wednesday night event was Phyllis Sheridan of Boise, the executive director of the Idaho Board of Nursing.

Awards were made to Lynn Foster of Twin Falls, the Dr. James Taylor award for highest scholastic average; Faye Tupper of Hagerman, the scholastic nursing award from Harris Nursing Home at Buhl; Connie Wray of Buhl, the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital award for outstanding clinical nursing care; Foster, the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital award for clinical care and professional behavior.

Annette Broner of Twin Falls, perfect attendance award; and Elaine Clausung and Karen Wood, both of Twin Falls, most professional growth during the program.

The students presented faculty members Helen Hammond, Juanita Pinkston and Margerie Schmeckel with bracelets thanking them for helping them reach their goals.

Selecting and Arranging Furnishings

By JoAnn Rose

We are constantly applying our sense of proportion when selecting and arranging the furnishings in a room. Our eyes tell us whether or not the proportions are interesting and the scale is pleasing. The size and shape of the room will certainly determine the size of the furnishings which can be used and the amount of pieces we should use. A small room which is crowded with heavy, massive objects is neither pleasing nor functional. To give a feeling of spaciousness to a small room, a sofa with an exposed wood frame might be quite pleasing. For those who like the warm look and comfort of a wing club or barrel chair, a scaled-down version will keep the room from appearing too heavy. A skirt on a sofa or chair adds to the effect of bulk and size, while a tailored covered base with exposed legs create a lighter feeling. An important point to remember in buying a sofa is that no matter what style, the length must fit the scale of your room. Generally, sofas are offered in lengths from 60 to 108 inches. The most beautiful sofa, if it is too long or too short, can ruin the effect you are trying to create. At our store you can find beautifully designed furniture in a wide variety of styles and sizes. Come in and browse around at your convenience.

Instead of getting a plant sitter when you're gone try wicking

When you take off for a few days, who does your "plant-sitting"? A good many plants are killed by some willing but unsuspecting friend or neighbor who either overwaters or underwaters.

One easy way to handle plants while you are away is to use wicks. Wicks are made of nylon or acrylic yarn — old stockings, pantyhose, almost anything. Don't use Orlon or wool as they rot quickly. It's amazing. Twin wicks can conduct a large amount of water. Nylon stockings cut into very thin strips, with only a few threads each in diameter — work fine. Wicks are cut just long enough to make one circle in the bottom of the pot, plus enough length to reach the bottom of the reservoir.

The pot is prepared by threading the wick into a hole in the bottom, before planting the plant. (If plants are already in pots, you can insert wicks with a pair of tweezers.) cover the wick in the pot, using a small amount of coarse perlite or gravel. Then set the plant in the pot. Water it thoroughly, including wick, and let plant sit until it's well drained before putting it on the reservoir. Note: A dry wick will not conduct water by capillary action.

What do you use for reservoirs? Butter dishes, cottage cheese containers, etc. Wash each in soap and bleach solution, rinse well and dry. Two holes are cut in the plastic lid, one in the center for the wick and one near the edge for allowing air to get into the container and for refilling it. Clear and non-clear containers are okay, although you can see level of fluid easier in the clear type. Clear containers develop green algae faster than non-clear ones. Fill the reservoir with a liquid plant food about 1/4 strength.

Place plant on the lid, threading the wick through the hole and into the solution. Check in a couple days to be sure the plant is "drinking." Add more solution as container level goes down. Big plants need big reservoirs and little plants need little tubes. At home or away, wicking is not a wacky idea.

SUMMER SQUASH
It's getting to be difficult to raise summer squash and even pumpkins because of the squash vine borer. You can check or prevent squash vine borer from boring into stalks by applying a spray of Sevin or methoxychlor as soon as vines begin to run. Be sure to spray the base of the plants as this is a very vulnerable area. Treat three times at seven-day intervals.

Now's the time to... Check peach trees for gum. Check for "sawdust" coming from tiny holes in the stems. This could be damage from European cornborer grubs inside stems. Take sharp hook or wire and poke into hole to kill borer. In small plantings, prune infested stems and burn.

WHEN TO WATER
Vegetables are nearly 95 percent water, meaning they need plenty of water, and at the right time. The most critical stage for water is just before bloom, during blooming and during pod or fruit formation. In tests with beans, for example, watering in pre-blossom stage raised yields by 25 percent.

For vegetables in which the crop is the seed or fruit, it is vital to have sufficient moisture during bloom and fruit development. For all crops, the most critical stage is in the latter part of their development. Soil soaker hoses or sprinklers are efficient ways to get moisture into the ground. And don't hesitate to use a mulch to trap the water.

SOAP YOUR BUGS
A lot of gardeners refuse to use high-powered pesticides to check bugs on ornamentals, and are resorting to soap and detergent sprays. Soap is an old remedy. Recent research has shown that both soap and detergent (liquid) sprays can quickly reduce populations of mites, aphids, psyllids and thrips.

Soap sprays applied with pressure dislodge insects from plants and may also asphyxiate them. Researchers at the University of Berkeley found that the more concentrated solutions provided the best control, but may damage plants. Leaf burn was the most common symptom, but if you use a concentration of about 10 grams (less than 2 ounces) of detergent per gallon it's effective and least harmful when applied at low pressure.

Many home gardeners like to swish the plants in a bucket of soda. Be sure to use the liquid dishwashing detergents, not powders. A little soap or detergent in pesticides such as Nicotine Sulfate makes the material more effective.

CORN PROBLEMS
It's natural for some lower leaves of corn to turn yellow and dry, but watch out for too deep cultivation. This can damage the roots, and that's why corn should be hilled when about 10 inches high. After that, practice light cultivation only.

When kernels on an ear develop poorly on one side and are okay on the other, blame it on poor pollination due to hot, dry summer, or during period of steady rain. High temperatures during a dry spell dry the silks (female element) and pollen (male), does not have a chance to grow through the silk and produce kernels. High temperatures can also have a depressing effect on pollen. When corn grows about 2 feet high and tassels out, blame it on dry spells, lack of nitrogen or too acid a soil.

Mountain Home, "I heard that plant shines are not good to put on foliage plants. Is that true?"

Many use commercial plant shines for a high glossy luster on the foliage. These work out okay, but you don't overdo it. Applied too heavily they can reduce growth (number of leaves, total shoot length and fresh weight).

Also some may cause leaves to turn yellow or brown. Apply lightly and keep the material off the undersides of leaves because that's where the stomates (breathing pores) are. They can be clogged and reduce the plant's efficiency.

Many gardeners use "home remedies" to shine leaves, and these include milk, olive oil, mayonnaise and even liquid wax. A little milk mixed with water makes a fairly effective plant shine. Watch out for oils and greases as they can create problems. They can collect dust and clog pores.

B.F. of Twin Falls, "I have a peony bush 8 years old. Each spring it starts to bud out, but the buds never open. Is something missing in the soil?"

No chances are the plant has botrytis blight, a fungus disease which prevents buds from opening. Instead they turn brown or black and never open. Cut off the buds now and burn them. Also, this fall give the peony bed a good house cleaning. Cut the stalks down and trashbag them. Then drench the entire bed with a solution of benlate, 1 tablespoon per gallon. Next spring when the shoots are up about 10 inches or so, spray the new growth, and make sure you cover the tiny buds. Peonies do best in full sun, and need good air drainage for best growth. They will bloom in semi-shade, and the flowers will last longer there, but too much shade prevents blooming.

Neighborly faces celebrate in Kimberly

Fun, games,
good food,
and friends

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Good Neighbor Days in Kimberly Friday and Saturday saw one of the originators of the celebration chosen along with his wife as the best neighbors in town.

A highlight of the Friday night festivities was the introduction of Lou and Arlene Porter as the "good neighbors" of the year. This year's celebration was the biggest ever, said Mayor Rosalea Whitehead. She said this was probably because it also marked the 75th anniversary of the founding of the town. She estimated between 4,000 and 5,000 persons attended the Saturday morning mile-long parade and festivities at the city park.

Lou and Arlene Porter were selected for this year's "good neighbor" award, not just for their efforts this year, but for being good neighbors since arriving in the town in 1957.

Actually, the mayor said, it began before that as the two operated the Kimberly Motor Co. in Kimberly for 15 years before moving to the town from Twin Falls.

"They have been doing nice things for Kimberly for more than 30 years," said Mayor Whitehead in announcing the winners.

Lou was president of the Kimberly Chamber of Commerce nine years ago when Good Neighbor Days began.

"We needed something to keep the Chamber of Commerce and the town active in the summertime and we needed some way of raising funds for things like Christmas decorations and lights for our park," Porter said.

"We decided to try the summer celebration and involve the whole community. It has grown bigger every year and we have been able to buy some extra items for the town that we wouldn't otherwise have. Everything we earn goes back into the community," he said. Arlene Porter who says she is retired now that the couple closed out their business, has also worked in nearly every project the town has undertaken.

She said she and her husband were surprised when they were named for the special honor. "They did a good job of keeping it a secret. I guess the committee knew if we found out we would leave town, and we would have," she said, adding she and her husband both shy away from this sort of attention.

Barbara Holman, one of the Good Neighbor Days committee

Kimberly's Good Neighbor Days' pie eating contest drew an emotional crowd including Doug McAdams, bottom and Steve Aslett, far right workers, said Porter served several terms as chamber president. "We lit up the whole town. It was about the best we have ever had," Mayor Whitehead said of the display.

"Anytime anyone needs some help with a special project, a problem or whatever, we look for Lou and Arlene and they are always willing to help," she said.

Walter Hess, current chamber president, said 800 persons were served breakfast at the park Saturday morning in the Chamber sponsored breakfast. Friday the program included cutting and serving the Diamond Jubilee birthday cake, a historical pageant and a special fireworks display. "We lit up the whole town. It was about the best we have ever had," Mayor Whitehead said of the display.

Saturday the mile long parade drew entries from Kimberly, Hazelton, Twin Falls, Buhl and Filer.

A special award and Good Neighbor medallion was presented another favorite Kimberly resident, Pearl Tussey, at a young 94 years, was recognized as the oldest participant in the parade. She spent the day enjoying other festivities at the city park and did her own judging of the art show.

The mayor's award, given for the float or display best carrying out the theme of the 75 years of growth in Kimberly, went to the South Hills Side Kicks 4-H club. Their float showed a home, made of rough logs on one side to represent the early pioneer homes, and of today's modern design and material on the other.

There were two pie eating contests — one for the youngsters and another for adults, horseshoe pitching, sack races, other contests and a baby crawling race. In a media sack race, KEEF Radio placed first with the Times-News and KTLZ Radio tied for second and third.

The Filer Fire Department scored three wins over the host Kimberly firemen in the hose contest Saturday afternoon and the Filer women's team, most of them wives of the firemen, also won their hose contest.

Gary Stone's wood painting of a fisherman won the best of show in the art display with other awards going to another Stone wood-art and a second and third place to Mary Rosenberg for a sheep camp painting and a floral painting.

Earl McAdams won a blue ribbon for crafts with a display of his bronzed carvings of horses and western scenes. One of the foot high bronzed carvings featured a rider and pack string of five highly detailed animals and packs. A macrame display by Jerri Butler was awarded second in crafts. A third place award went to Richard Haines for large candleholders made of glass ashtrays which had been heat treated to crack in lacy designs.

Saturday's activities continued until into the evening with a free barbecue served at 4 p.m. and music by the Old Time Fiddlers.

Brothers shot in early morning incident

Two hospitalized from Kimberly shooting

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Two men were hospitalized Saturday with gunshot wounds following an early morning shooting incident just southwest of Kimberly.

Sheriff James Munn said two brothers, Raymond Broner, 46, and Bob Broner, 52, were hospitalized and charges are pending against the older man. Munn said several shots were fired at officers during the incident and the older man apparently turned the gun on himself shortly before officers reached him.

Munn said when Kimberly officers arrived, just ahead of county deputies, they were met with gunfire at 1:50 a.m. saying her former husband, Raymond, had come to her home and was threatening her with a gun. Kimberly officers were the first to arrive at the home, about a half-mile outside of the city limits.

Police Chief James Campbell said two of his men went to the scene and he was also called out.

He said when they arrived and left their police car starting toward the home, two shots were fired in their direction.

Sheriff Munn said when his officers reached the area they, too, had to take shelter from several shots fired in their direction. He said he believed at least two shots were fired toward the deputies.

Munn said, unknown to officers at that time, Bob Broner had already suffered a gunshot wound in the lower facial area and had apparently driven himself to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Officers did not know he was involved until contacted by the hospital while at the scene.

Munn said the woman and her son, Mark, about 15, were still in the house when his men arrived. The armed man was in the yard of the home. He said contact was established with Mrs. Broner by telephone from the sheriff's office dispatcher who could also talk with officers at the scene by radio.

"She kept us informed on what she could observe but it was dark and the yard was full of bushes so we had difficulty keeping visual contact with the suspect. We were never able to talk with him," Munn said.

Munn said other shots were heard but it was not known until later that Raymond Broner had apparently shot himself while officers searched the yard for him.

He said the suspect was observed crawling into the house through a bedroom window and officers warned the woman and her son by telephone to leave the building by the rear door.

"We knew, or were pretty sure, at that point that the suspect was unarmed. We had found a revolver in the front yard and the woman told us by telephone there were no other weapons in the house," Munn said.

Once the woman and the boy were outside, the three

Kimberly police and four county officers stormed the building via a rear entrance.

They found the suspect in a bedroom on the bed with a wound in the face and jaw. Munn said he had apparently shot himself before going back into the house.

While attempting to locate and apprehend the suspect at the Broner home, officers awakened and evacuated residents from several nearby homes. Munn said they feared the armed man might run from the area and attempt to enter another residence in the area, endangering persons there. Munn said there were no other injuries and Raymond Broner was taken to the hospital by ambulance. A unit from Magic Valley Ambulance Service had been standing by, during the investigation at the Broner home.

Magic Valley Memorial Hospital attendants said both men were in fair condition Saturday night following surgery.

Austrians fulfill Yankee dream

Biking trek crosses country

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Bicycling across the United States is something most Americans dream about.

For two Austrians, the dream has become a two-month, 12,000-mile reality.

Martin Lang, 37, and his teacher, Rudolf Wakonig, 32, began their trek July 6 by bicycling from their homes in the Tirol, the western mountainous region of Austria, to Munich, Germany. From there they flew to San Francisco and began bicycling eastward equipped with 40 pounds of spare parts, water, and camping gear.

They plan to arrive in New York City on Sept. 4, and then fly home.

Lang and Wakonig arrived in Twin Falls Friday after traveling 600 miles from Carson City, Nev. Their next destination was Yellowstone Park.

The view of America from the handlebars is considerably different from that of many European tourists who have traveled by car, or even many natives, Wakonig said.

"I go by bike and the others would go by cars or planes and they really didn't see the country," Wakonig said.

What he sees is a considerable European influence modged by the vastness of the American landscape.

"America is a second Europe. It's bigger, but it's Europe," he said. "Because their horizons are big, (the American people's personal) horizons are big."

Lang, who has spent the past two summers bicycling thousands of miles throughout Europe, agreed.

"In Europe, there are no three miles where there is no little village," he said.

But the added, Europe has a number of advantages for a bicyclist not found here, including maintained bike paths that have few if any stones. Lang said he has already gone through one tire on the Nevada highways.

Another major difference he's noticed between Europeans and Americans is the latter's ignorance of the outside world.

Americans consistently confuse the bikers' nationality with Australia, they say.

"Europe isn't independent and I think it has to look at what's going on in the world," Lang said. "The farmers here, they don't mind what's going on. It doesn't affect them."

As they continue their 80-mile a day trek, the two adventurers are showing indications they may slowly succumb to American ways. Both say they plan to return to the United States, but the long daily effort won't be repeated.

Wakonig said he plans to bring his 30-foot by 15-foot boat to the West Coast in about two years.

For Lang, who says bicycling is his "passion," a future trip will be motivated so that he can spend more time sightseeing.

"Perhaps I'll come again with a motorhome, a little one, and I could take my bike with me," he said.

Then he pauses.

Maybe a motorcycle would be best, he says.

Twin Falls project could double rates

Sewer improvement proposal may pass hurdles Monday

TWIN FALLS — The city's $7 million sewer plant improvement project could pass two important hurdles Monday, but it will mean a more than 100 percent increase in sewer rates.

The Twin Falls City Council is scheduled to vote on whether to increase sewer system rates, fees to provide the city's $700,000 share of the project. The council is also scheduled to vote on a consent decree from the Environmental Protection Agency which, if accepted by the council, provides EPA will drop its lawsuit against the city. EPA filed the lawsuit because the city's sewer plant violated federal discharge standards.

The council meets at City Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Council members have twice delayed a final vote on a proposal which would increase residential sewer users fees by $4 a month and non-residential users fees by $5.53 per month. The measure was placed on the council's reading calendar on June 16, scheduling the final vote for Monday. If passed, the fee will be indexed for 18 to 18 months, city officials said.

Residential users now pay $3.25 per month and commercial users pay 43 cents per thousand gallons of waste water sent into the system. Government and school buildings pay 33 cents per thousand gallons of water sent into the system.

Some council members, including Councilman Paul Newton, have questioned whether passing a bond issue or forming a local improvement district would be a preferable means of raising the money. Newton has expressed concerns that the proposed increases may be too high for some residents, particularly those on fixed incomes. Financing a long-term bond would allow a smaller incremental fee, he says.

But financing costs associated with a bond could double the cost to the city, other council members say.

EPA has required the city to show it can pay its share of the improvement project before it will release federal funds. Another prerequisite to federal funding is acceptance of the consent decree.

In exchange for the council's agreeing to the conditions in the consent decree, EPA will waive its lawsuit against the city. EPA had fined the city $10,000 per day for violating discharge limits, and the fines have mounted to several million dollars.

Among the conditions are an April 9, 1982, completion deadline and penalties for not meeting that deadline.

In other matters, the council will hold three public hearings beginning at 7:30 p.m. Among the issues to be aired is the use of $265,000 in federal funds for street improvements in the South Park area.

The funds are the last installment of a three-year, $1,015,000 Department of Housing and Urban Development community development block grant.

A second hearing concerns an annexation request by officials of Grace Baptist Church, 708 Eastland Drive N. Church officials plan to build a building on the east side of the church on property just outside the city limits.

Recently, the council has been considering placing a moratorium on further annexations because the 1 percent initiative freezes property tax revenues at 1978 levels, regardless of how much property is annexed. At the same time, annexations require the city to provide additional services to those areas.

The city Planning and Zoning Commission last month recommended the annexation be approved and city administrators have also endorsed the request.

Mormons aid refugees

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The First Presidency of the Mormon Church Saturday said the religious group is establishing a worldwide refugee relief fund to help all persons displaced by conflicts in their home countries.

The church said its General Welfare Services Committee will administer the fund from Salt Lake City. But it said recommendations for use of the doled monies will come from the church's area councils throughout the world.

The presidency said the funds will be used for health, education and other services in refugee camps, or wherever a need is identified.

"Since 1975, we have been deeply concerned about and involved in helping Mormons and their families who are refugees from conflicts in Southeast Asia," the church said.

"While the needs of our members are being met, the plight of thousands of other refugees from all over the world is worsening.

"Vietnam, the most people, Cambodian and Laotian refugees, Afghan, Haitian, Somali and now Cuban refugees are among the displaced. The Mormon Church joins other charitable groups in encouraging its members to give as they are able to the charity of their choice."

A church spokesman said, "All contributions to the LDS Refugee Relief Fund will be gratefully accepted—minimum—of administrative expense, to support relief activities."

MVMH meeting

Bids to be considered

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Board will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the hospital.

Business will include consideration of bids from four accounting firms hoping to provide the hospital's annual independent audit.

Three of the bidders are large, national firms with offices in Boise. The fourth, Tokin, Johnson and Associates, has audited the hospital for the last seven years.

The bids range from $13,700 to $18,000, with the hours required to do the job ranging from 490 to 540, according to MVMH administrator Bill Burns.

The board will also hear an update on the hospital's renovation program and be introduced to Jack Julius, the new regional director of Hospital Affiliates International, Inc., the hospital's management company.

Boise police join firemen in dispute

BOISE (UPI) — Three days after contract negotiations broke off between the city of Boise and the firefighters union, talks between Boise city officials and the Boise police union crumbled.

Boise Mayor Dick Eardley said it was the first time in seven years that a negotiating session Friday afternoon led to an impasse eight weeks after the talks began, Eardley said.

Both sides agreed not to discuss details of the breakdown, he said, but the main issues were money and the right of binding arbitration for the union. Those same issues brought a halt to negotiations with firefighters.

Claims Boise River valley

Tribal council agrees to file suit

PORT HALL (UPI) — Members of the Shooshone-Bannock Tribal Business Council have agreed to participate in a lawsuit to press a claim against the federal government for land in the Boise River valley.

Tribal council Vice Chairman Ronald Appenay Friday said the group unanimously voted in a closed meeting to endorse the lawsuit, which is expected to be filed by the Shooshone-Bannock out of Fort Hall, the Shoshone-Paiute on the Nevada border and the Paiute on the Nevada-Idaho border and by the Paiute residing at Fort McDermott on the Oregon-Nevada border.

Information on whether the other tribes had voted to enter the suit was not available Friday.

Tribal leaders said they have historic rights under an 1854 treaty to land on which Boise City is located. They also said land located 30 miles north and south of the Boise River through Idaho to the Oregon border also was given them under that treaty.

The treaty was signed Oct. 10, 1854, by tribal leaders, then-territorial Gov. Caleb Lyons and other U.S. government officials, but it never was ratified by Congress.

The Indians eventually were removed from the land to the current Duck Valley, Fort Hall and Fort McDermott reservations.

Shooshone-Bannock Tribal council Chairman Loren Boyer said no specific dollar amount or land areas for compensation for the loss had been mapped out. Appenay said additional information was needed before a suit could be filed and he said he did not know how long it would take to accumulate that data.

He said the tribe had not chosen a legal representative, although officials had consulted Salt Lake City attorney Larry Echokawak and Pocatello attorney Lou Racine.

DA accused of padding expenses

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — A former Marion County deputy district attorney and two Idaho state officials were among those testifying Friday regarding charges District Attorney Gary Gortmaker illegally claimed investigation expenses.

Linn County Deputy District Attorney Brad Scheminske, who previously worked for Gortmaker, testified that "his ex-boss" claimed more than 5,000 miles in expenses for investigating a crime at a crossing of five miles from the county courthouse. Scheminske also said Gortmaker claimed $256 for meals, lodging and 1,080 miles of driving in a negligent homicide case in Salem that he and another deputy investigated.

The former deputy said he also did the trial preparation and most of interviews were conducted at the state penitentiary in an escaped convict case where Gortmaker filed expenses for nine lunches, six dinners and 1,055 miles. He also said the district attorney claimed a $312 expense for a 10-cent phone call in the case.

Scheminske said Gortmaker also listed expenses for two trips to Boise, Idaho, in connection with the return of Thomas Creech to Oregon to face murder charges in Portland and Salem. The ex-deputy said Gortmaker indicated to him he had no intention of bringing Creech to trial in Marion County.

Lynn Thomas, chief of the Idaho attorney general's appellate division, said he never had contact with Gortmaker or any Marion County deputy district attorney in 1979 regarding Creech.

Jerry Redmond, an employee of the Idaho State Penitentiary, also said that he had no record of the district attorney ever visiting Creech in the prison.

The ex-deputy also said that his former boss claimed high mileage in a number of cases where the witnesses came to the courthouse.

Two former accounting clerks, testifying in the absence of the circuit court jury, both detailed the district attorney's bookkeeping procedures. The women, Rosalyn Anderson and Cheryl Jacobsen, also testified that Gortmaker said to his son in the hallway as they were leaving the witness room Thursday, "Those two belong in jail and that will be my next step."

Michael Schrunck is the special prosecutor in the case in which Gortmaker is charged on nine counts, including first-degree theft and official misconduct. The grand jury indicted him June 9 following a two-month state attorney general's investigation headed by Schrunck.

Feedback methods may cure

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Using biofeedback methods to cure as much as 75 percent of human illness is possible with "major changes in attitude by the medical and scientific professions," said Dr. Barbara B. Brown, pioneer in research on such methods.

Dr. Brown said the techniques of learning to exert voluntary control over such body functions as heart rate, temperature and blood pressure, are held back from widespread acceptance by a skeptical scientific tradition and the lack of a central agency to consolidate research. The author of three books on biofeedback, including "Supermind" was in Eugene to speak at a five-day brain research symposium at the University of Oregon.

"There is so little truly known about the depths of human mind capacity that, examination of the mind-body phenomenon become mired in rebuttals of old beliefs and the need to redefine complex mental activities," she said.

The former researcher at the University of California at Los Angeles Health Science Center and at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Sepulveda, Calif., is now a full-time writer, lecturer and consultant in mind research.

Brown said she has "no doubt that my concepts our going to be accepted in the next two years, five years, or whatever."

She feels biofeedback can be most useful in helping cure stress-related illnesses such as migraine headaches. She said stress is responsible for 75 percent of all physical disabilities.

Reporter ordered to release name

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The managing editor of the Arizona Republic was ordered to file a court order that a reporter name his sources for a story.

Robert Early said the ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Carl Muecke, if allowed to stand, "will surely limit not only our reporters' ability to gather and transmit information to the public, but that of reporters everywhere, including those who work for radio and television."

He said the newspapers' attorneys would appeal Muecke's order to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Muecke on Friday ordered reporter Jerry Saper to name his sources for a series of articles on an Internal Revenue Service investigation of millionaire businessman Kemper Marley. The stories, published in December 1978 and January 1979, said the IRS was investigating deductions Marley claimed in connection with his United Liquor Co. business.

Marley filed a $50,000 against the IRS, claiming an illegally gave Saper information about his tax returns.

James Powers, Marley's attorney, told Muecke that he had tried unsuccessfully for a year to learn the sources of the story from other persons besides Saper.

Muecke ruled that because it is a federal offense to disclose information from a tax return, "the criminal overtones and the nature of the right asserted are sufficient to outweigh Saper's First Amendment rights."

Arizona's "shield law," protecting the right of reporters to keep sources confidential, does not apply because the matter is a civil case based on federal laws, Muecke said.

Pollution up in Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The State Health Department Saturday continued its ozone pollution alert for the Salt Lake City area, urging persons with existing heart or respiratory ailments to reduce physical exertion and outdoor activity.

The ozone concentrations were measured at 182 parts per million, prompting continuation of the health alert. A stage-one alert is the lowest on the department's four-step scale. It is for concentrations exceeding 100 parts per million parts of air.

Long-knocking Mike Hamblin of Twin Falls picks up an iron shot during first-round action of the Canyon Springs amateur tournament

Canyon Springs amateur

McRoberts' 70 earns one-stroke lead

TWIN FALLS — Phil McRoberts closed with a flourish Saturday to take the first-day lead in the Canyon Springs amateur golf championship.

McRoberts, seeking to add this title to the one he won at Buhl earlier this season, posted a two-under par 70 with a birdie, birdie, par, birdie finish on the nine-hole layout. That gave him a one-stroke lead over Mike Hamblin of Twin Falls who in turn was one-up on third place finishers Bill Speicher of Burley and Tracy Frank of Twin Falls and Ron Hase of Idaho Falls, who had it three under at one point.

"I putted well and that's the name of the game," McRoberts said of his round. "I made a 20-footer on No. 15 and a long one on 16. I just didn't make any mistakes today."

But the Buhl champion is aware he isn't out of the woods yet. He is being chased by three of the top six finishers in last week's state amateur.

Hamblin, who lost on the fifth overtime hole in playoff for the state runner-up slot to Spencer, eagled the last hole to become only the second player to better par at Canyon Springs Saturday.

"I hit a big drive there. I only had a nine-iron into the green — and that's a lot better than a four-iron," he said of the par-five hole. "And then I made about an eight-foot downhill putt that was pretty tricky."

Hamblin, who is one of the long drivers in the area, said he was hopeful the course would be stretched out a little more for Sunday's final round.

Frank, who was runner-up here a year ago, said his putter betrayed him consistently throughout the day. "If I putted here like I usually do, I think I could have had a 68 or 69," he offered. "I got so bad that on No. 3 (the second time around) I was scared to death of a three-foot birdie putt."

Spencer, who can hit it with Hamblin anytime, said his length at times hurt him as the course is bounded on all sides by rough.

Gary Miller of Wendell stayed in the hunt with a 73 while Ron Skyles was another shot back at 74. Jim Purves and Perry Hanchey of Twin Falls had 75s — Purves finished double bogey-bogey — while Burley's Glenn Blakeley also carded a 75 after being six over on the first six holes.

In the first flight, long hitting Ron Burton of Boise, bogeying the last hole, and Mike Schlaeghauf, who was three under at one time, wound up sharing the lead at 73.

Junior who Steve Meyerhoefer of Twin Falls had a 75 while defending flight champion Doyle Dugger of Winnemucca was at 78. Joe Hickman and Greg Hafer were knotted at 77 while Burley's Terry Spackman and Tom Standley of Kimberly were jammed at 78.

Veteran Paul Elledge posted his best round of the season, a 78, to take the second flight advantage, one ahead of Harold Davison who said this marked the first time in three years he'd bettered 80 on the course.

Pete Elchert and Jim Ochser shared 84 while young Jason Meyerhoefer, Twin Falls, was alone at 86. Randy Bateman, Steve Halstone and Ed Purves were knotted up at 87.

In the gross-net fourth flight, John Leonetti fired an 85 for a two-stroke lead in gross over Bob Skredechia. Young Lance Hendrix was lone at 87 with Ed Noel and Ray Jeno sharing 88s. Don Allen, Flynn McRoberts, Leo Brindley and Eric Howe were tied at 89.

Have took the net division lead with a 63, one ahead of Kim Miracle of Twin Falls.

The tournament will conclude with its final round today, the championship flight leaving the team about 1:30 p.m.

Twin Falls tennis tournament enters semi-final round

TWIN FALLS — Upset-minded Mike Carlson of Redding, Calif., lead four players into the men's open semi-finals in the Twin Falls tennis tournament Saturday.

Carlton knocked off state fifth-seeded Nacho Larracochea of Boise to gain the semi-finals where he will be meeting Jan Christensen of Boise, who is ranked No. 3 in Idaho.

In the other semi-final, both of which begin at 8 a.m. today at Harmon Park, Tom Gourley of Boise the No. 1 seed in the meet and No. 2 in the state, will be meeting Mark Weber. Gourley gained his spot by defeating Tim Lambago 6-3, 6-1 while Weber defeated Twin Falls' Jess Olivarría 6-4, 7-4.

In the men's class A singles, Mike Rice and Mike Baxter will meet in one semi-final while J. Parks and R. Green play in the other. Baxter gained his position by defeating D. Brush 6-0, 6-2 while Rice was knocking off A. Koppke 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. In the bottom bracket, Parks defeated Musman 6-0, 6-2 and Green topped K. Reagon 6-7, 6-2.

In the women's open singles, K. Conner defeated Carol Malsuoka of Twin Falls while Van Mensel was ousted. M. Kim, 6-2, 6-2. The other bracket, C. Acres of Boise, downed M. Gourley 6-4, 6-0 while C. Draper was eliminating C. Otley 6-6, 6-4. That means Conner will play Van Mensel while Acres plays Gourley in this morning's semi-finals.

The women's A division will have Janene Gull of Salt Lake City meeting M. Scott in one semi-final while G. Silckel plays S. Whitney in the other.

The women's semi-finals are scheduled for 9 a.m.

The two-day tournament, the first since the history of the host Twin Falls Tennis Association, is co-sponsored by Bill Powell and National Laundry of Twin Falls.

The field had some trouble with the winds of Saturday, particularly in matches played at the new Frontier Field courts. With construction still continuing in parks of that recreation area, dust became a factor during play.

Muhammad risks title against Martin today

McAFEE, N.J. (UPI) — The second light-heavyweight championship fight in two weeks will take place at the Great Grove Playboys Club Sunday when Eddie Mustafa Muhammad defends his WBA title against Jerry Martin.

Mustafa Muhammad, formerly known as Eddie Gregory, won the championship by defeating Martin Johnson on an 11th-round TKO last March in Knoxville, Tenn. His record stands at 36-1 and this will be his first title defense.

Martin, who sports a 19-1 record, comes off an upset victory over James Scott at Rahway State Prison earlier this year. He is an extremely strong light heavyweight who likes to hit an opponent on the ropes and use his power.

The winner of this bout is projected to meet Matthew Saad Muhammad, who stopped Alvaro "Yaqui" Lopez last Sunday in the 14th round to retain his WBC championship.

There is some question, however, whether Saad Muhammad would agree to fight Mustafa Muhammad on religious scruples. Both are Muslims.

Jim Robinson has taken over as trainer for Mustafa Muhammad, replacing Gus Corvita, whose clients have included a new attitude in the champion. Whereas Mustafa Muhammad was once lethargic, Robinson has turned him aggressive.

He has been training for the fight at Muhammad Ali's camp at Deerfield, Pa.

Martin, a native of Antigua, reportedly stands to earn $75,000, while Mustafa Muhammad will make approximately $150,000. One-third of the current champ's earnings, though, must go to Somalia.

Martin blasts Yank owner

NEW YORK (UPI) — Billy Martin's forsoaking boss charges his two-time former New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, with monitoring his personal phone calls and other abuses. The New York Daily News reported in a copyright story in Sunday editions.

Martin, whose stormy relationship with Steinbrenner resulted in frequent controversy and two firings, says in his book, "Number 1," that Steinbrenner tried to pit him against slugger Reggie Jackson; that he reneged on promises; that he threatened to release a file he had accumulated on the manager; and that he monitored his personal phone calls.

Neither Steinbrenner nor Martin was available for comment.

Martin, currently the manager of the Oakland A's after being fired as Yankee manager last season, was warned by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn not to engage in snipes with his former employer.

Watson's 64 fashions four-stroke margin

By DAN MCCOURBEY
(c) 1980, The Washington Post

MURFIELD, East Lothian, Scotland — Tom Watson fired five birdies over a seven-hole stretch of the back nine Saturday to race past Trevino and take a four-stroke lead going into Sunday's final round of the 109th British Open golf championship.

His amazing 64, seven under par for his 6,926-yard links course and the lowest round of golf he ever has played in a major championship, has given Watson a three-day total of 202 and a firm grip on the title.

Trevino, who missed the day with a three-stroke lead, and his playing partner, 23-year-old Scot Kenny Brown, a Ryder Cup player for Britain and twice a World Cup competitor for Scotland, are four shots back. Trevino, bogeyed the last three holes to end the day at even par 71 while bogeys at 18 and 19 dropped Brown to 67.

The only other player besides the top three with a reasonable chance of victory is Ben Crenshaw, who also had a 65 Saturday for a 208 total, six shots behind.

A triple-bogey 7 after hitting a three-wood shot off the tee took Gil Morgan out of it. Six under par before his misfortune, he finished with 71-211. Putting proved the Waterloo of both Jack Nicklaus and Jerry Pate. Nicklaus also had a 71 for 211 and Pate eked to a 74 for a 212.

Incredibly Watson's 64 was not the lowest score of the day as the weather conditions proved ideal. Japanese star Isao Aoki, who hounded Nicklaus all the way as the latter took this year's U.S. Open crown at Baltusrol, broke the one-day-old Murfield record with a 63 and tied the Open record set in 1977 at Turnberry by Mark Hayes.

Ironically, the man who shot the Friday 64, Argentinian Horacio Carbonetti, had his second 78 and missed the cut of 90 and ties for the final round, as did Gary Player.

"It was an ideal day for scoring," admitted Watson, whose 64 also was matched by Hubert Green. "Maybe it's the calm before the storm." He explained the low scoring over this much-respected British Open venue by saying, "The wind makes the tournament tough. If you don't have the wind it plays relatively easy. If we had Monday's weather the scores might have been in the 80s."

Easy conditions or not, it was an incredible display of shotmaking by this 30-year-old redhead who won this tournament in 1975 and 1977. What was most spectacular was the fact that while he started making his run at the 11th hole, the pair behind him, Trevino and Brown, were starting pyrotechnics themselves. For better than half an hour it was unbelievable shot answered by unbelievable shot.

Moments after Watson closed to one shot of Trevino by holing out a two-footer set up by a wedge shot of the 11th, the second-round leader came close to holing out a long putt from the 10th fringe, saving par. Brown, who was bunkered on the hole, had just blasted stone dead to the pin for his par.

Then Watson made a 12-footer for birdie on the 12th. It came moments after Trevino had gone up by two again by hitting a seven-iron shot to two feet on 11 and sinking. Undaunted, Brown, a 6-foot, 140-pound reed called "the walking one-iron" by fellow pro Sandy Lyle, also birdied, from four feet.

Trevino and Brown, the Muir and Jeff of the fairways Saturday, each parred 12 and heard the roar as Watson pulled even for the lead on the 153-yard 13th hole, just catching the hole on the last turn of the ball of his eight-foot putt.

Brown, two strokes back at this point, then hit probably the greatest shot of the tournament to save par at the 13th. "I stood there and applauded him in the middle of the green," said Trevino. Brown's tee shot had come to rest in extremely deep grass just over a bunker left of the green. His sand wedge shot nearly hit the pin, leaving him a two-footer. "He even put a spin on the ball," said an admiring Trevino.

All three players agreed no. 14. Then Watson took a stroke lead over Trevino and a two-stroke lead over Brown by hitting his approach shot to within 15 feet of the pin and sinking for a birdie on the 336-yard 15th. But his was immediately followed by matching birdies by Trevino, from 20 feet, and Brown from 15 feet.

"This eagle duel could not continue. As Watson just missed, his eagle on 17, making a two-foot birdie on the 542-yard par-5, then saved his par on 18 with a four-footer after nearly holing out a bunker shot, disaster made company with the day's last twosome.

Trevino bogeyed the par-3 16th when his three-iron tee shot rolled into a bunker and he missed a five-foot par save. He bogeyed 17 when "the wind switched on me" and he hit his drive into a bunker, was forced to blast into the fairway and three-putted from the fringe, and added a third straight bogey on 18 when he also three-putted from the fringe after driving into the left rough between bunkers.

Brown fared a little better. He also bogeyed the 16th from a close lie near the greenside bunker. "He had a 50-foot eagle putt, but he got down in three for a closing bogey." "I think I could have blasted a wood at it," he said of the precarious lie following his drive.

Saying he was "stunned," Brown commented, "It's unusual for a bad player to do so well.... I generally play badly. Today I played quite well, really."

Aoki, who made the cut by a shot with his pair of 78s, needed only 24 putts for his 63 — carding a remarkable nine 3-footers and a like number of 4-footers. Incredibly, he missed a pair of back-to-back 8-footers, which, when he is in, are like one-footers to most putting mortals. The first, on the third hole, he lipped the cup.

His birdie putts came at the second hole, from three feet, the fifth, from 15 feet, the eighth, from seven feet, the ninth, from 10 feet, the 11th, from 20 feet, the 12th, from 30 feet, the 14th, from four feet and the 17th, from three feet. That latter evoked a "making it a mockery" cry from an elderly observer, who turned away in disgust.

Palmer bids farewell to British open

Murfield, Scotland (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, the man generally credited with touching off the American invasion of the British Open, sadly stated Saturday that he may have stroked his last ball in this oldest of all national championships.

"There's no point coming back if I'm going to shoot 150," Palmer said after failing to make the second round cut by a single shot.

The 50-year-old golf legend didn't cut himself off completely, though, indicating he would reconsider if he felt his game was adequate to make a strong showing.

"My game would have to be awfully good because if I came back it would have to be in a serious mood," he said. "I need a revitalization for that."

There would be special motivation for Palmer to return for a 20th time next year since the Open is scheduled for Royal St. Georges in Sandwich, England, site of his last tournament victory in the 1975 British PGA.

Olympic's under way

Stars and Stripes show up at opening

By MORLEY MYERS
UPI Sports Writer

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Moscow Olympics quickly turned into protest Games Saturday when a lone U.S. flag waved defiantly during the official opening ceremony and 16 Western nations, who had ignored President Carter's boycott, staged their own anti-Soviet demonstration.

The Stars and Stripes was flown by two American tourists in the 103,000 crowd in the Lenin stadium. Don Patterson, 21, of Howard, Ohio, and Nick Paul, 38, of New York City, preferred to make the U.S. presence in world sport felt rather than follow the White House call to keep America and its flag out of the Games.

"We wanted to show them the Americans are here although our athletes couldn't come," Patterson said. "We wanted to show that we are proud to be Americans, that we are sorry our athletes couldn't be here."

Paul, an 88-year-old Greek American, said his father took him to the first modern Olympics in Athens in 1896 and that he had traveled to all the Games since except the 1936 Berlin Games and the 1964 Tokyo Games.

During the parade of 81 countries, Australia became the first nation in the history of the modern Olympics not to march behind its own national flag.

The Australians chose to appear under the five-ring flag of the International Olympic Committee and their lead was followed by Belgium, Andorra, Britain, Denmark, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Switzerland, Puerto Rico, San Marino, France and Holland.

New Zealand, Spain and Portugal marched behind their own National Olympic Committee flags.

The parade of athletes took on a gun-toothed look as 11 of the 10 dissenters also left their athletes back in the village and were represented by just one team official.

Richard Palmer, sole marcher for the British team, replied when asked how he felt. "Lonely."

Palmer, the British Olympic

Association's secretary general, added, "I hope it will have a long-term impact. We will possibly be able to take out the extreme nationalism that has been creeping into the Games."

The significance of the protest was not lost on the spectators or Russian television. Whenever any of the dissenting teams appeared in the arena, there was almost a hostile reaction from the crowd.

Soviet television producers were quick to cut the flag out of the picture, showing just the name and banner in close-up without disclosing the fact that there were no athletes following them.

IOC president Lord Killanin, criticizing some of the 65 nations who stayed away from the Games for political reasons, said in his address, "I would like to welcome all the athletes and officials here today, especially those who have shown their complete independence to travel to compete despite many pressures placed on them."

Although the truly spectacular three-hour opening ceremony was carried off with military precision, the atmosphere was more oppressive than in previous Olympics. Even the athletes seemed restrained, apart from the Cubans who received a rapturous welcome from the crowd — only matched by that accorded to Afghanistan and the Soviet Union.

Even the smiling face of Misha, the Olympic bear mascot, seemed strained as the athletes went through the formalities without enthusiasm, some appearing almost pleased when they marched out of the arena again.

District 'B' Legion meet opens Thursday

BUHL — Buhl will host the third district American Legion "B" district baseball tournament this week.

Seven teams will participate in the double elimination event beginning at 2 p.m. Thursday at Farris Field.

The champion will advance to the state tournament July 31 through Aug. 3 in Moscow.

Valley drew the opening bye, setting up the first-round pairings as 2 p.m. Pocatello vs. Kimberly; 5 p.m., Wood River vs. Jerome, and 8 p.m., Wendell vs. Buhl.

Action resumes with three games Friday, again at 2, 5 and 8 p.m. and four games will be played Saturday, 10 a.m., 1, 5 and 8 p.m.

The loser bracket semi-final will be played at 1 p.m. Sunday with the winner going against the undefeated team for the first possible championship game at 4 p.m. Should the undefeated team lose Sunday's second game, the extra session will be played at 8 p.m. Monday.

Tournament chairman Bill Nungester said all games will be nine innings with a 10-run rule after seven in force. Lawrence Knigge, Pat Hamilton and Keith Shark are members of the rules and tournament committee.

Nungester said an admission fee would be charged to help defray the expense of staging the tournament.

Mudd zips into publinx crown

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Following the footsteps of his brother, Edward, 20-year-old Jodie Mudd, a Georgia Southern University junior, won the 53th annual Public Links Golf championship Saturday when he overwhelmed Californian Rick Gordon, 9 and 8.

Mudd blistered the tough Edgewood Tahoe golf course in the morning round with a 3-under-par 69 to take a nine-hole advantage over Gordon, an electronics cost accountant from Santa Clara.

Gordon, made a brief but futile comeback attempt on the first nine holes of the afternoon round, winning the 20th and 23rd holes with pars. But, he three putted the 24th and 29th when he had apparently won the holes and was still eight down after 27 holes had been played.

When Gordon hit his second shot into a lake on the 28th or 10th hole, it was all over.

Mudd's brother, Edward, now a professional on the mini tour, was the 1976 Public Links champion.

Falls run attracts big field

TWIN FALLS — Boasting a field that includes "runners from across the nation," the second annual Falls to Falls run is assured of a record field next Saturday.

Dave Coppa, representing KEEEP radio which along with Idaho First National Bank branches and the YFCA are sponsoring the run, said "entries have been received from across the country and as many as 200 runners are expected."

Dr. Bob Ridgeway, chairman of the event and one of the favorites in the 35-and-over division, reminded the run is open to anyone. He said check-in time is 7:45 a.m. Saturday at Dierkes Lake, west of Shoshone Falls. The field will run 5.3 miles, winding up in the Idaho Power park at Twin Falls.

Cindy Crow, a spring graduate of Twin Falls High School, and Hernandez Hernandez, a CSI sophomore-to-be, are the defending women and men's champions. Their times were 33:38 and 28:32, respectively.

Dr. Ridgeway said awards will be given in each of five divisions.

Welsh to head NFL security

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warren F. Welsh, who served with the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the National Football League.

Welsh, 44, succeeds Jack Danahy, who retired recently after 12 years as the NFL's security head. Welsh will assume his new duties July 22.

A native of St. Paul, Minn., Welsh served with the FBI after graduating from Washington and Lee School of Law in 1961. He has also worked for NBC, International Telephone and Telegraph, Playboy Enterprises and the American Can Company.

Juantorena to run 400 only

MOSCOW (UPI) — Cuba's double Olympic champion Alberto Juantorena will defend only his 400 meters title when the track and field events begin Thursday.

The 22-year-old, long-striding Juantorena, the first man to have won both 400 and 800 meters in the same Games, underwent a right Achilles tendon operation last March and hasn't competed since last year's Pan-American Games.

"I went two months without training after my operation," Juantorena said Saturday. "I had been planning until quite recently to do the double again but I haven't been able to do sufficient training."

"The Americans are better at the 400 meters and since they aren't here I intend to run just that event."

In Montreal the Cuban, nicknamed "The Horse" because of his long stride, posted 44.28 seconds but a series of leg injuries subsequently halted his improvement and last year in the Pan-American final he clocked 45.24 seconds in finishing second to U.S. star Tony Danz.

Kelly wins Tour de France

FONTENAY-SOUS-BOIS, France (UPI) — Irishman Sean Kelly won the 21st stage of the Tour de France cycling race, his second stage win of the month-long Tour, leading the pack in a sprint finish.

Second was Belgian champion, Jos Jacobs and third West-Germans Klaus-Peter Thaler.

Dutchman Joop Zoetemelk retains his overall lead of the race, a healthy six minutes 47 seconds on compatriot Henrie Kulper, with the cyclists arriving tomorrow on Champs-Elysees Avenue in Paris on the final stage of the Tour.

Saturday's stage was a 130-mile run from Auxerre to Fontenay-Sous-Bois on the outskirts of Paris.

Israeli terms boycott failure

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Shortly after the Moscow Games got under way, an Israeli sports official Saturday characterized the U.S. boycott of the Olympics as complete failure.

"The ban failed to achieve its main objective," said Yitzhak Ofek, president of the Israel Olympic Committee.

Ofek said most West European nations are taking part in the Games despite the U.S. boycott.

He said teams that fielded about 73 per cent of medalists in the last Olympics were staying away, leaving the field to East European athletes.

With television taking the games "to every corner of the world, the Soviets will gain a lot of exposure and score propaganda points," Ofek told an audience of trade union activists.

Going along with the American ban, he said, cost Israel its investment in training its Olympic team, lost it an opportunity to meet with Soviet Jewry and also was likely to jeopardize Israel's standing in international sports.

If you want lower heat bills this home will help you out with a nice fireplace in the living area. The loan is assumable on this one and with 3 bedrooms it makes a great home to get started with. At $39,900 don't wait too long. It will be gone.

Owner-willing to carry paper on this country acreage. This home comes complete with slab as well as features, boasting 2,600 sq. ft., 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, dining area, and built-in appliances in the kitchen. Call for a private showing. All this and more $165,000.

NOW IF YOU'RE STILL UNSURE ABOUT BUYING SOON, HERE ARE SOME TIPS TO CONSIDER.

- Purchase Now and close 120, even 180 days later. Interest rates may drop a little by then. You may even be able to rent it in the meantime.
- Purchase Now — refinance it in 1, 2 or 3 years later when interest rates drop. It won't cost much and you still bought your home cheap.
- Purchase Now — sell 1, 2 or 3 years later at a profit. Trade up to a new home then at a lower interest rate.
- Purchase Now — since interest is tax deductible, what is it really costing you?
