Inmates helped free hostage, triggering raid

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — With the help of five inmates acting in secret to free a hostage, guards and police stormed prisoner-held cell blocks Thursday and regained possession of the riot-ravaged Idaho State Penitentiary.

Prison authorities, local police and sheriff's deputies backed by national guardsmen retook the sprawling red-brick prison without known loss of life following a 17-hour occupation and rampage by prisoners rebelling for better living conditions.

Investigators said 18 inmates were injured and two were missing, but they were not believed to have escaped or died. A spokesman said they were probably being held with the rest of the inmates on the athletic field but were miscounted.

Prison officials estimated the damage at $2.7 million and said it would probably take a year to restore the facility to a useable condition. The only building undamaged was the kitchen, they said.

Guards will erect tents on the athletic field to house the inmates while some 200 will be shipped to prisons in other states during the rebuilding.

Gov. John Evans blamed the violence on 100-degree temperatures, inmate tensions and the Idaho Legislature for failing to funnel enough money into the correctional system.

At the height of the rebellion, the rampaging convicts broke windows, ripped out plumbing, set fires and held a demolition derby in the auto repair shop.

Conditions for the move against some 450 rebelling inmates out of a prison population of 750 were set up by the cooperating inmates. The five men holding a prison guard hostage opened a back door to a prisoner-occupied cell block and allowed a heavy weapons team to dash in and get out with the captives.

Following the dawn rescue of guard Lynart Orr, some 200 guards, deputies and Boise city policemen swept through the central yard where four of five cellblock buildings remained occupied by prisoners.

Armed with shotguns and clubs and wearing helmets and face masks, the officers fired a volley of shots in the air to signal their advance then poured through the yard and buildings, rousting prisoners from cells and ordering them into the yard.

Authorities confiscated homemade weapons (fashioned of broom handles with knives taped to the ends, screwdrivers, hammers and baseball bats).

The prisoners streamed out of the buildings and were herded to an athletic field near the outer fence of the institution where they were strip-searched and given first-aid and breakfast.

National guardsmen in battle green, helmets and carrying automatic weapons relieved local officials guarding the prison after the riot was quelled.

Of the prisoners who did not rebel, 71 gave up at the beginning of the siege on Wednesday, some were hospital patients and others were in a farm dormitory off the prison grounds.

Adult corrections director C. W. Crowl said it was the rescue of the hostage guard with the cooperation of the five inmates that led to the retaking of the prison.

"It was all over in five minutes. We had surprise on our side," he said.

"It was dawn. No one knew we were coming. A lot of the other guys were asleep or drunk."

"We thought they would hurt the hostage. If we didn't act quickly," he said.

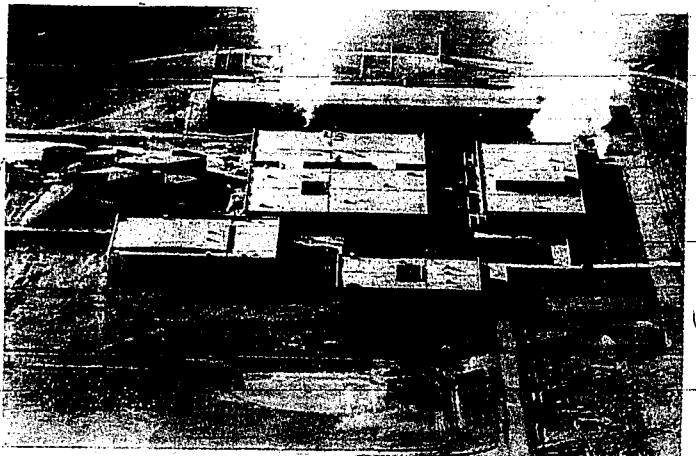

Orr was unharmed and sent home to his family. The five inmates who opened the door were kept in protective custody.

Another hostage, guard Calvin May, was released by the rebellious inmates at 10:15 p.m. Wednesday after officials agreed to creation of a citizens committee to hear inmate complaints.

Crowl said the maximum security and close security cellblocks were rendered useless by the riots. As a result prisoners were being moved. Forty were due for transfer to Deer Lodge, Mont., into the state prison there. About 100 others would be shipped elsewhere, Crowl said.

Until extensive repairs can be completed, Crowl planned to establish a tent city in the center of the compound.

The rebellion began Wednesday noon in 100-degree temperatures after a shakedown of the medium security cellblock in which contraband stereos, radios, guitars and other items were discovered.

As buildings at the prison burn in the background, guards assemble prisoners on the football field.

Officials: 'takeover unavoidable'

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State Penitentiary officials said Thursday they could hardly have prevented the 17-hour prison takeover disaster even if they would have had some warning.

"I don't give a damn how many programs you have," Crowl said of the trouble, "when you have a group of immature people together — people mad at society and mad at themselves — and mad at everything — you can have an insurrection."

The prison erupted Wednesday morning with an explosion of anger and hours of fear for the safety of two prison guards held captive amid ruined cell blocks.

After negotiations broke down following the release of the first hostage, Prison Corrections Director William Crowl ordered the dawn raid which brought about the rescue of the second guard hostage.

State Correction Board Chairman Robert Fanning said he was shocked at the extent of vandalism done to the modern penitentiary.

Four cellblocks in the main compound were declared uninhabitable after an initial survey by administration officials following fires set by the inmates who touched off the riot because of a morning shakedown.

Besides starting fires, the rioting inmates smashed windows, wrecked plumbing, had a demolition derby in the auto shop, blew up a drum of chemicals in the industrial building and burned the chapel after hauling the organ outside.

The inmates who started the riot demanded that prison officials appoint an impartial citizen panel to listen to their grievances, which in-

The brother Billy affair

Senate creates special panel to investigate ties with Libya

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Thursday created a nine-member, blue-ribbon panel to embark on a politically charged election-year investigation of Billy Carter's activities as a paid agent for Libya's government.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who will chair the special panel, said he will try to start proceedings next week to pursue the truth wherever the truth may lead and let the chips fall where they may.

Oct. 4 is the deadline for a report from the panel to the Senate.

White House spokesman Jody Powell pledged President Carter will "respond fully" to the Senate inquiry and does not expect to invoke executive privilege.

Powell said the president will order his aides to cooperate with the special panel.

"The president himself will also respond fully to the subcommittee's inquiries relating to these matters," Powell said, while emphasizing the chief executive has made no decision on whether he would be willing to personally testify on Capitol Hill.

The panel, created through a unanimously adopted Senate resolution, will be made up of five Democrats and four Republicans, with seven members chosen from the Judiciary Committee and two from the Foreign Relations panel.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., will be vice chairman.

Bayh and Thurmond will both have subpoena powers, but in a dispute a party-line vote could keep Republicans from calling up a desired witness.

President and aides evaluate political damage done by Billy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The mood at the White House is somber as President Carter and his aides try to assess the political damage done by Billy Carter's Libyan activities and to plan strategy for the days ahead.

The president met with key political advisers, including deputy campaign manager Hamilton Jordan and image maker Gerald Rafterson, Thursday.

Afterward, one high-ranking political aide commented, "It's too early to tell," when asked whether the Billy affair will affect Carter's chances for another term.

Carter's strategists are particularly upset because they believe the media spotlight now on the affair might have been focused instead on Republican Ronald Reagan, who still has not had searching scrutiny in their view.

But "better now than October," is the saying around the White House as aides hope and expect the matter will be only a bad dream by November.

Obviously angry that brother-in-law Billy has embarrassed the president at a time when his struggle for re-election is beginning in earnest, first lady Rosalynn Carter was sparing but pointed in her remarks. Asked by UPI for comment on the matter, she said, "There's no comment about Billy I can make publicly."

There have been hints of scandals before involving good friends and advisers to the president — former Budget Director Bert Lance, Dr. Peter Bourne and Jordan. Each survived the ordeal in his own way.

If Anderson threat develops

House may pick president

By MYRON STRUCK
States News Service

WASHINGTON — "The presidency should not be bartered away in a back-room," says Rep. Joel Pritchard, R-Seattle.

The veteran Republican congressman is afraid Ronald Reagan, John Anderson and Jimmy Carter are going to deadlock the election and split the 538 electoral votes, throwing the election to the U.S. House of Representatives.

There, with each state allocated a single vote, it will take the support of 26 state delegations for a winner to emerge.

Few precedents dictate how the members of Congress must vote, and political analysts fear that smoke-filled backrooms will become the prime battleground for the selection of the next president.

Pritchard sees things differently and has introduced a non-binding congressional resolution asking members to support the winner of the national popular vote.

His proposal cannot be binding, because Congress can order a future Congress how to act.

Even with that tenuous nature surrounding it, Pritchard has failed to garner any support for the plan.

But it has not evoked the groundswell of sentiment that is expected closer to the election, Pritchard says.

"If Anderson can catch on, and hold on through the fall, voters won't be

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS ...lost the popular vote

ANDREW JACKSON ...lost the House vote wondering if they're throwing their votes away in November," Pritchard adds. "And, if that happens, he may be more viable than any other candidate."

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, says he intends to remain a "free-agent" and would not like to be bound by a pre-election resolution.

Both Hansen and Congressman Steve Symms projected that Idaho voters would overwhelmingly support their favorite candidate — Ronald Reagan — so it wouldn't matter if they backed the district's winner, the state's winner or their own personal choice.

While American presidential history is not filled with third-party challenges and elections decided by the House, the situation is not unprecedented.

Twice — in 1801 and 1824 — the House had to decide who would be president.

In 1801, the House accepted the winner of the popular vote confirming the popular choice of Thomas Jefferson over Aaron Burr.

In 1824, the situation was reversed.

Although Andrew Jackson polled 151,271 votes to John Quincy Adams' 113,122 votes, the House bartered with two other candidates — including the famous orator Henry Clay — to give the election to Adams.

With each state's delegation having a single vote, Adams needed — and got — 13 states to support him. It was the minimum required for a victory.

Four years later, Jackson ran a campaign filled with accusations against Adams, the House and the "accidental presidency."

The voter-backlash gave Jackson an overwhelming victory.

Since the establishment of the major political parties, no third party or independent candidate has taken the presidency from a major contender.

But that hasn't stopped quibbles in the electoral process from occurring.

For example, in 1908 William Howard Taft, a Republican, snared the party's nomination away from incumbent President Theodore Roosevelt.

Four years later, Roosevelt wanted his job back and challenged Taft on the Progressive Party ticket, often known as the Bull Moose Party.

The result was a topsy-turvy election that gave Democrat Woodrow Wilson 435 electoral votes, Roosevelt 89 electoral votes and incumbent Republican President Taft just eight electoral votes.

In that election, Washington (state) joined California, Pennsylvania and

Iranians tried fake hostage execution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A dozen of the American hostages in Tehran once were lined up against a wall and a mock execution heard the click of firing pins slamming into empty chambers, it was reported Thursday.

Quoting reliable sources, the Washington Post said freed hostage Richard Queen described the fake execution to State Department officials.

The State Department said it would have no comment on the report.

Details of the reported mock execution were sketchy, said the Post, but it was known that about a dozen hostages, including Queen, were involved. The newspaper said there were conflicting accounts of the date of the incident, with one source putting it after the aborted U.S. rescue mission and another setting it earlier.

The incident, said one source, was more of a scare tactic than a mock execution, because militants wanted to show the hostages they might be killed if some point. But, added the source, some thought "this was it," that they were about to die.

Queen, a 28-year-old embassy vice counsel released by the Iranians this month because he suffered from an ailment later found to be multiple sclerosis, was asked at a news conference Monday if there was any point in his 250 days of captivity, when he feared for his life.

"You know, in a situation like that the imagination does horrible things," said Queen. "And I really don't want to go much further than that."

Queen flew Wednesday to his parents' home in Maine.

Both sides said, however, they are intent on a thorough, expeditious investigation and foresee no extra problems with subpoenas, because, as Bayh said, "we all have a lot of things to do rather than doing that walking through this minefield."

Bayh expressed hope Billy Carter will come forward to testify voluntarily, and urged the president and department chiefs to send staff members voluntarily to request to do so, and "not wait to be hit between the eyes with a subpoena." "I'm prepared to assume that those within the administration are more embarrassed by what's gone on by a certain member of the president's family than anybody else," Bayh said. But if the panel finds otherwise, he said, "then we'll have to undertake whatever steps are necessary to increase the degree of cooperation."

Republican leader Howard Baker, who had preferred a panel closer in style to the 1973 Watergate Committee than Democrats wanted, said he was satisfied the investigation will be a good-faith effort for both sides to create a fair, de-politicized inquiry of this "sensitive political situation."

Billy Carter, under Justice Department pressure, registered July 14 as an agent of Libya and disclosed he accepted $220,000 from the radical Arab government of Libya.

At a news conference Thursday morning, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, reflecting the administration's attempt to be "open" about the matter, told reporters: "The (Justice) Department has nothing whatsoever to hide with regard to this investigation."

Civiletti — pressed as to why Billy was not criminally prosecuted for failing until the last month of an 18-month investigation to file as a foreign agent of the law is to require those representing foreign government interests to disclose their ties. Billy Carter's registration carried out the law, he said.

cluded lack of education opportunities, recreation time, variety of food and abuse by guards.

The kitchen was the only facility left undamaged. A new cellblock suffered some damage as the electronic locking mechanism was knocked out of condition.

"This is totally unjustifiable and incomprehensible," Fanning said. "That's what happens with criminals. They have no respect for property."

"I'm disappointed. We've worked hard. We've tried to help these prisoners and now they go on this wanton rampage."

Fanning, who took over direction of the corrections board early this year, said he believed a handful of inmates instigated the uprising. He praised prison administrators for keeping cool during the hostage siege.

"When they went in this morning (Thursday) and got that hostage that indicates to me the people running this place are pretty competent," Fanning said. "They're sure as hell dedicated."

Fanning said the three-month absence of Warden Ed Dermott, who has gall bladder problems, was not a factor of the uprising.

Fanning heaped praise on Crowl and deputy L.D. Smith.

"This would have happened no matter who was here," Fanning said, noting overcrowding probably was a factor in the revolt.

Insurance will cover part of the damage, but the cost of repairs and shipping inmates out of state will require additional state expenditures, Fanning said.

Besides calling in SWAT teams and the National Guard, nine Idaho State Police officers stationed in Twin Falls Wednesday were called in to assist authorities when prisoners rioted at the state penitentiary in Boise.

the Watergate era, and there is no sense the White House is under siege.

Press Secretary Jody Powell — summoned to the White House from a Georgia vacation Tuesday — has publicly tried to answer each question about the matter.

He is dedicated to making sure the Carter White House will not be compared to the Nixon White House which went underground during the Watergate scandal.

"I'm well aware we are dealing with this in an historical context," Powell told reporters. "Before you say we are dealing with it in the same way, judge us on what we do."

But each answer to touchy questions brings more questions, and thus Billy Carter's ties with the Libyan government cast a shadow over daily events.

A "white paper" was prepared by White House counsel Lloyd Cutler on Billy Carter's contacts with the White House. The document, made public Tuesday, was a broad-brush, however, and led to more questions. Some of the answers are coming from State, Department and Justice Department sources outside the White House. When confronted with them, Powell has done more confirming than denying.

But he said Thursday: "I have no doubt that at the end of all this we are going to come out all right with the public and with everybody else. Because I have no doubt that this White House and this administration ... conducted themselves in a manner that was consistent with the law."

Michigan, among other states, in supporting the third-party candidacy of Roosevelt.

Utah and Vermont were the only states to support Fall.

"It's imperative for the American people to feel the president was actually elected," Fritchard believes. "Too many members want to leave their options open."

The most important aspect of the resolution, Fritchard admits, is to get people thinking about the process before it becomes a last minute thing.

Fritchard says constituents in members' home districts should press their representative of Congress to choose a way to cast his ballot.

Among the options he considers valid:

"Support for the winner of the national popular vote.

"Support for the winner of the members' home district.

"Support for the winner of the members' home state.

"Support for the ticket that represents the members' own party.

"Support for whatever candidate the member wants, as long as it is disclosed in advance and not bargained in the back room at the last minute."

"I look at it a bit differently," says Rep. Hansen.

Diggs reports to prison

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Former Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich., once the senior black in Congress, entered federal prison Thursday to begin serving a three-year sentence for mail fraud and payroll kickbacks.

Diggs, 57, will serve his time at the "country club" minimum security facility at Maxwell Air Force Base where former Attorney General John Mitchell and several other prominent figures from the Watergate scandal did their stints.

Diggs was convicted and sentenced to concurrent three-year sentences on 11 counts of mail fraud and 18 counts of filing false pay vouchers for certain members of his congressional staff. The government charged he obtained $50,000 in the scheme.

He will be eligible for parole after he serves one-third of his time and could be released earlier to a halfway house run by the Salvation Army.

Killing triggers Ulster riots

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Roman Catholic youths in Belfast went on a rampage of hijacking, rioting and car-burning Thursday because police had killed a 16-year-old boy who had daubed pro-IRA graffiti on a wall.

The violence broke out after security chiefs confirmed that Michael McCartan, 16, shot dead Wednesday night by police, was unarmed and had been guilty of nothing more serious than painting graffiti.

Cars, trucks and buses were seized and burned throughout the city as gangs of youths built barricades and fought running battles with police.

Early Friday, large parts of the city were closed to traffic as the violence spread, but there were no reports of serious injury.

Border patrolmen indicted

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Three Border Patrol agents from the San Clemente Checkpoint were indicted Thursday on charges of assaulting two Mexican-American undercover agents who posed as illegal aliens.

Immigration & Naturalization Service officers Juan Espinal and Javier Dibene dressed shabbily and on April 9 boarded a northbound bus to be checked at the San Clemente Checkpoint between San Diego on the Mexican border and Los Angeles.

The indictment said the assigned mission of the undercover agents was to observe the manner in which other actual aliens were treated by the agents.

Mobile firemen end strike

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Striking Mobile firefighters reached agreement with the city late Thursday, ending their 11-day walkout, and striking policemen were expected to make a decision on the same offer later.

Instead of the amnesty they had demanded, they agreed to a one-day "suspension" for each day they were on strike.

Thus they will not only lose pay for each day they were on strike, but will be fined an additional day's pay for each strike day.

Fair through Saturday. Highs in the 90s. Lows in the 50s.

Synopsis: Westerly winds brought weak weather disturbances over Idaho Thursday.

The main effect was an occasional incursion of higher clouds, and although afternoon heating and patchy moisture moving from the south produced scattered thunder-showers in southeastern Idaho.

Temperatures were cooler in some sections of the state, but readings were still in the 90 degree range for southwestern and northern Idaho. The hot spot in the state was Parma with 99 degrees. The coolest temperature on Thursday morning was 36 at Stanley. Most lows, however, were in the 50s.

Elsewhere in the nation Thursday, West Yellowstone had the lowest temperature, 40 degrees. High was at Blythe, Calif., with 117.

Spraying forecast shows winds at 5 mph this morning, increasing to between 5 and 10 mph this afternoon.

Pan evaporation is expected to be 35 today and again Saturday. The buying outlook through Tuesday shows dry and continued warm for excellent curing conditions.

Cops shot as riot continues

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Three Chattanooga policemen were shot and wounded Thursday night while the city was under curfew following of two nights of racial disorders.

A police spokesman confirmed the officers were shot but refused to give any further information, insisting details would have to come from other officials, who could not be found.

At Erlanger Medical Center, a nurse, Dots Chastain, said two officers had superficial wounds and a third was more seriously hurt. No further details were immediately available.

The dusk-to-dawn curfew was implemented throughout Chattanooga because of racial unrest sparked by the acquittal Tuesday of two of three Ku Klux Klansmen charged with shooting four black women.

At the outset, it appeared the curfew was working, despite the misgivings of black leaders. There were several reports of rock- and bottle-throwing and one firebombing before the curfew went into effect Thursday night, but once it began police said the streets were generally quiet.

Black leaders sharply criticized the decision as the wrong move at the wrong time and said the curfew would cause trouble, rather than quell it.

"A curfew is not the answer. A curfew is a Band-aid," local NAACP President George Key said. "Officials will have to meet the issue directly. I think think it will get even worse as the arrests are made (during a curfew)."

Police and firemen were met by angry, roaming mobs and a rash of firebombings early Thursday. Rock-throwing mobs, made up mainly of youths — including some 7-year-old children — confronted police, but officers convinced the jeering crowd to break up.

The trouble erupted after William Church, who bills himself as the Imperial Wizard of the Justice Knights of the KKK, and follower Larry Payne, were acquitted of assault with intent to commit murder. Marshall Thrash, who admitted he fired the shots because no one was noticing two crosses he had helped erect, was convicted of assault and battery.

Pryor leaves hospital to return home

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Richard Pryor, severely burned in a freak flash fire at his home early last month, was released from the hospital Thursday and said he believes God has given him a second chance at life.

Pryor, 39, who immediately after the June 9 accident was given only one chance of three to survive but now is considered out of danger, walked out of the Sherman Oaks Community Hospital Thursday afternoon accompanied by his family and a few friends.

Factory explosion kills 4, 50 hurt

NEW YORK (UPI) — A powerful explosion near a chemical storage area shot multi-colored flames and noxious fumes through the basement of a Queens pocketbook factory Thursday, burning workers and disabling firemen and paramedics.

Four employees were killed and at least 50 workers, paramedics and firemen were injured, authorities said.

Six of the injured workers were not expected to survive.

Witnesses said the explosion struck with dynamite force that shook the ground for a block, tore the clothes off many of the 26 employees working nearby and started a two-alarm fire that was quickly extinguished.

"I was five feet away from the explosion, there was only a door separating me from it," said Frank Mercado, a factory employee who suffered leg injuries. "The flames just shot out. It was terrible. I was worried about my friends. I thought it was the end of the world for me."

Harvey Goetz, who works for another company in the neighborhood, said he was eating lunch outside his plant when he was "stunned by the blast."

"It sounded like a stick of dynamite," Goetz said. "I ran down there with a friend and found a guy completely blown up. Another guy was totally burned to a crisp... Guys were stumbling out, their clothes were blown off them."

Goetz said he was told a boiler may have blown, but authorities later said the explosion could have been triggered by a welding operation near a storage area for paints, lacquers and other chemically based substances. Firemen removed drums of unidentified chemicals from the building.

Robert Cavaliere, a paramedic who was a block away at the time of the blast on another run, said, "We ran in the front of the building. We went through a garage and the first guy we brought out was in pretty bad shape, burns over 90 percent of his body."

"He was still alive. There was a lot of smoke and heat, but we ducked the flames, went in and took another person out. When we went in, there were bodies all over the place. There must have been 15 bodies."

Violinist vanishes during show, found dead

NEW YORK (UPI) — The body of a woman violinist who vanished between the acts of a Berlin Ballet performance at the Metropolitan Opera House was found nude, bound and gagged Thursday in an airshaft at the concert hall.

Police said violinist Helen Hagnas Mintiks was on her way to "an artistic discussion" in the opera house with Valery Panov, the Soviet defector who is a dancer and choreographer with the Berlin company, when she disappeared.

"She never arrived and was not seen from that point on," said Richard Nicastro, chief of Manhattan detectives.

An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death. Nicastro said it had not been determined if she was the victim of a sexual assault.

A police spokesman said Mrs. Mintiks, 30, performed with a freelance American orchestra accompanying the Berlin Ballet at an 8 p.m. performance Wednesday.

After intermission at 9:30 p.m., she left the orchestra pit to meet with Panov, police said. "The exact nature of her planned meeting with Panov was not known, and the Soviet ballet dancer could not be reached for comment."

Her body was found at 9:15 a.m. in a ventilation shaft on the third floor of the opera house. Nicastro said the shaft was accessible from a staircase and through an unlocked door.

Mrs. Mintiks, who used her maiden name professionally, lived with her husband, sculptor Janis Mintiks, near the opera house.

The Berlin company, which opened a two-week season at the Met last week, ends its engagement Saturday and goes on to perform at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

Praise for quelling the riot

Idaho State Prison officials should be commended for acting decisively and using restraint in quelling that facility's inmate takeover.

In a surprise move at dawn Thursday, law enforcement officers swept into the prison and rescued a remaining hostage, not firing a shot in the five-minute process, and injuring no one.

The tactic and timing prevented further damage and possibly deaths in a situation that could only have gone from bad to worse.

That prison officials had inside help from a group of five inmates was invaluable. Still, it took a disciplined effort by those in the assault force to seize control of the prison at the risk of their own lives in dealing with prisoners known to be drinking or high as the result of glue-sniffing. The operation was carried out with a great deal of skill and know-how.

It was in stark contrast to other U.S. prison riots, which have been marked by indecision, wrong decisions, deaths, and use of deadly force.

The Boise situation was partly diffused early on when prison officials agreed to appoint an outside committee to listen to prisoners' grievances. It also resulted in the release of a hostage. That was a common sense approach. But we also commended television station KTVB of Boise for not giving in a demand that prisoners read their grievances in a live TV transmission. No one should be allowed to subvert the media for his own purposes.

It is reprehensible that the Boise facility has been laid to waste by rampaging criminals. State Correction Board Chairman Robert Fanning was understandably shocked and dismayed at the extent of the destruction. It is another blow to a state already facing a whopping budget deficit.

Not enough can be said for the efforts of Idaho Correction Director C.W. Crowl, the man who commanded the hostage negotiations and who ordered the early-morning assault. He kept a cool head and made the right moves to keep the situation from blowing completely out of control.

There are many questions to be answered in the coming days, questions that should speak to how and why the rioting occurred; questions concerning the numbers of prisoners being housed in the facility, as well as how prisoners could so quickly seize control. Prisoner grievances should not be overlooked — they are in part the symptoms of what happened.

A full-scale investigation is of course necessary. Those prisoners responsible for leading the rioting or participating in the destruction should not escape prosecution.

Allowing PUDs is shortsighted

Editor, Times-News: Once again the Twin Falls County Commissioners have failed to deal with the realities of the 80s. Their approval of two so-called planned unit developments (PUDs) for Melon Valley not only violates the spirit of the comprehensive plan by encouraging leap frog development (147 houses in Melon Valley does not constitute contiguous growth), it also fails to recognize the wishes of the people in Melon Valley. Their action fails to recognize that these rural suburban developments have contributed greatly to our current energy problems, the depletion of agricultural lands and the degradation of the environment.

There be any surplus money in your treasury you will be severely criticized. I told him why I came here for. I told him why that fall when election of a new board was held not one of these men voted for me. In plain English, they approved this squandering of tax dollars. Multiply this by thousands of offices and you have the billions told in this article.

means, Gentlemen, aid the man, don't hinder and by all means don't overrule him. He has earned that much respect. Just like each and every one of you have in your field. I read somewhere, "You can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." We are not dumb are we citizens of Buhl, even if the majority of us don't have a backbone like Pat Chapman. I want to thank the Times-News for printing this. Sometimes things get to be too big a bump in a person's throat to swallow. I just moved from Buhl having lived there for over 30 years. How about some letters Buhl? CAROLYN HOPWOOD Twin Falls

Buhl council hinders police

Editor, Times-News: In reference to the July 16 article discussing the "Council blamed for troubles in Buhl," I want to say hooray! My hat's off to you, Pat Chapman for giving before the council and giving a disclosure of some facts pertaining to why our good chief of police gave up the ship. Ship's Officer Kirkwood was dismissed. But why was Mr. Chapman stopped in reading his statement in front of press of the city? I challenge the "city council" to give the citizens of Buhl the honest facts between both incidents.

Reading the record

Editor, Times-News: An Open Letter to the Patrons of Hansen School District: In reference to recent articles appearing in the Times-News concerning the Title I Program at Hansen, I would like to invite you to come to the school office and read the official School Board minutes pertaining to this matter and ascertain the facts for yourself.

Our athletes denied

Editor, Times-News: To President Carter and the citizens of the U.S.A. Our fine athletes were denied the opportunity of participating in the Russian Olympics due to a political move — Russia into Afghanistan. Have we ever done any worse? Let us keep sports out of politics. The U.S.A., by participating in the Moscow Olympics, would have gained much towards the outlook of the world toward ourselves.

Watching the seals

From the urgency and frenzy of important people doing important things to the timelessness of the bay, in the week that passed, people made "news." Things changed. A new group came to power. A man was nominated to be president. Another nominated to be vice president. At the same time, every day on these ledges, the seals turned their bellies to the sun at low tide, and slid into the water. Which was real, realer, realest? Sitting in the boat, drifting too near the ledges, I wonder again whether this place is an escape from reality, or an escape into it. Which is the constant? The things that change or those that do not? The world people "make" or the world they live in? Yes, I know the placidity of life at this ledge can be an illusion, too. It is always easier to have a longer perspective on other peoples, other species, other times. In the past year I am sure that much has happened to my small colony of seals: births, deaths, migrations, seasons. Yet I am much more impressed by their sameness — the same heaps, the same curiosity, the same life-cycle. It reminds me of our own, human sameness. That seems to me, realer, surely realer, than the drama of the "powerful" and the power of change. In Detroit, in our public life and public places, we see and hear people who are more impressed by altering the world than by finding a way to live within it. The powerful are, almost by definition, change agents. They assume that we can — should — take hold of events and move them. They are the directors, the shapers. Even the politicians who last week talked of "the eternal verities" and "enduring principles" and "everlasting covenants" and "everlasting covenants" do not think of themselves as changers in a larger life but as conductors. It comes with the territory of politics. The others, people who believe that change is a kind of human vanity, are rarely seen on platforms. Those who believe that the current is more powerful and important than our efforts to fight it, or turn it, do not run for office. I suppose they stop striving, and cease to do no harm. They watch the seals and go with the flow. They turn to simplicity or irony or poetry, not politics. They drop out, or drop back, and leave the world to the makers, the shapers. Most of us get caught in our own dullness, importance and change. We do what people have always done: maintain the sense — the illusion? — that we control our lives. But in this Maine bay, as we find ourselves beached unconsciously on the ledges, a colony of seals is my reminder of the other reality. I watch the seals watching us as we struggle to push off the rocks. We are too impatient to wait for the tide.

Spending waste falls on deaf ears

Editor, Times-News: The article July 21 on spending to empty the treasury of unused funds ahead of new appropriations was informative but fell on unheeding ears. Let citizens of the Star-Spanangled Banner bring a lump to your throat and tears to your eyes. The unity boasted by the Republican Party went further than the ticket and the platform at the entire convention joined hands in prayer. ### Local delegate describes scene at Republican convention

By DONNA SCOTT Special to The Times-News It is like to attend a national political convention? I found out first-hand in Detroit last week. As a first-hand delegate alternate I was introduced to hoopla at the Joe Louis Arena and Cobo Hall. The excitement, the commotion, the noise, the people, provided an experience I'll never forget. My emotions ran the gamut — from pleased and impressed and thrilled; to amazed, disappointed and exhausted. The Detroit people went out of their way to roll out the red carpet for the Republican Party. Their theme, "Detroit Loves a Good Party" was evident everywhere. Cab drivers, bus drivers, waitresses, clerks and even local citizens opened their arms with sincere warmth and genuine hospitality to all of us. Our entire Idaho delegation couldn't have been more impressed or pleased. Security was tight, there was no important is coming? The swell became a roar — crowd started to cheer. ELIABETH TAYLOR! and all cameras would focus. Remind me to buy stock in Kodak. We were led in prayer by ministers, bishops, rabbis and Billy Graham. The allegiance to our flag of the United States of America was undeniable. way you could expect to get into the hall without... your credentials. Everyone was checked twice by a security agent, as well as purses and packages. Our delegates were allowed on the main floor, but it was possible to exchange credentials with a delegate and obtain a floor pass. The Idaho delegation was seated in the front row, with a fantastic view of the speakers' platform, and we took advantage of every opportunity to get our "Steve Symms for Senate" banner in view. It was obvious all of America is aware of the Church-Symms race in Idaho. I was shocked as delegates, alternates, guests and the media wandered the aisles ignoring major addresses by senators, ambassadors and dignitaries; but was reminded by veteran conventioners that this is a standard practice, and the television audience is the main concern of the speaker. Nevertheless, I was appalled by Barry Goldwater, Guy

Vander Jagt, William Simon and Jack Kemp, just to name a few. You have to recognize the "power of the press." Right or wrong, the press is powerful, they can make or break you. The media is there to bring the show to the people, and they wander the aisles interviewing delegates. I had a feeling some delegates were wandering the aisles hoping to be interviewed. I wondered if one would bother to be there without the other. The noise was at times deafening. Artificial noisemakers were banned, but somehow, they found their way into the convention. The official convention music was provided by Manny Harmon who carefully chose each number to suit the speaker. At times, he literally directed the tempo of the entire convention, and the demonstrations continued as long as the orchestra played. Sometimes, you could feel the noise begin to swell. People would be pointing in a general direction. Who important is coming? The swell became a roar — crowd started to cheer. ELIABETH TAYLOR! and all cameras would focus. Remind me to buy stock in Kodak. # Hostage aid sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress was asked Thursday to approve temporary legislation providing tax, medical, educational and other benefits to the Iranian hostages and their families.

The bill is "an interim measure designed to alleviate specific financial hardships that the hostages and their families face while the present situation continues," said Louisa Kennedy, wife of one of the hostages.

Under Secretary of State Ben Read told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee the administration wants only a temporary law, "to expire upon release of the hostages in Iran."

Permanent legislation to cover future situations would follow "a thorough and independent study of the problems drawing on the experiences of the hostages," he said.

The bill would defer tax payment and filling requirements for government employees who are missing or being held hostage, and would authorize continued payment of their salaries and allowances.

Other sections would authorize reimbursement of expenses incurred by hostages and their families for travel, recuperation and private medical care.

Legal actions such as foreclosure on a hostage's property — would be barred under terms of the bill.

The spouses of U.S. personnel being held hostage would be authorized to take education or training programs that would permit them to re-enter the labor market. Such programs are now available for spouses of missing military personnel.

Mrs. Kennedy, speaking for an organization of the hostages' families, proposed some changes in the bill, particularly in its coverage of hostages after they are returned home.

"The bill's approach contemplates that, on return, the hostages will be able to resume his usual family responsibilities," she said. But the "terrifying and demeaning experience of being held hostage can produce dramatic personality changes."

"It is not reasonable to assume that the returned hostage will at once be able to resume his usual role," she said.

Paratroops end island revolt

ESPIRITU SANTO, New Hebrides (UPI) — A joint force of French paratroopers and British marines landed on Espiritu Santo Thursday and ended a two-month-old bow and arrow revolt without firing a shot.

The 200 troops landed in the island capital of Luganville in French-held Vanuatu and quickly took control of the town, British Resident Commissioner Andrew Stuart said.

"There was no problem, no bloodshed. They were greeted by 1,000 curious natives," he said.

The secessionist rebels who, armed with bows and arrows, took over the island two months ago reportedly were living out in the jungle north of Luganville along with their leader, plantation owner and rebel leader Andrew Stevens.

The rebels, however, still held the island's radio station and its announcer, who spoke with an Australian accent.

said they planned to stage an anti-government demonstration in Luganville on Friday.

Britain and France, the dual colonial powers for the New Hebrides chain, offered to negotiate with the rebels, who took control of the island because they feared their land would be expropriated when the South Pacific chain 1,100 miles northeast of Australia becomes independent.

British authorities said the troops were ordered to remain in the capital.

Prime Minister-elect Walter Linn has promised massive land reforms after the 80-island chain gains independence July 30, ending 74 years of British-French rule.

A British spokesman in London said Stevens would not be arrested by Britain and France, who at first both resisted Linn's request for troops to put down the revolt, still sought to end the dispute peacefully.

Bolivian army plans 'final' battle

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — The military regime which seized power in this coup-prone nation a week ago said Thursday it will launch "a final offensive" to wipe out all resistance.

Opponents of Gen. Luis Garcia Meza's regime attacked the city's reservoir on Thursday and Friday Wednesday, tried to blow up a strategic bridge and kept up sniping attacks until early Thursday, Bolivian army and government sources said.

Interior Minister Fernando Palacios said the reservoir attack failed and "a final offensive" would be launched to wipe out "extremist subversion." He gave no details.

In downtown La Paz, shops and banks were open, but factories in working class districts were idled by a general strike called last week by the Bolivian Workers Confederation to protest the coup. Uniformed army patrols were not in evidence in the downtown area, but plainclothed government agents were posted at banks, post offices and other government buildings.

Hand-painted slogans on city walls read "Soldier, do not shoot your mother, do not shoot your brother. Soldier, shoot your officers that are ordering you to kill your own people."

There was no immediate information on the main resistance movement in southern Bolivia's mining region. Workers there had supported the presidential candidacy of leftist Hernan Siles Zuazo in inconclusive elections last month that precipitated the military coup.

No government has recognized the regime that took power July 17 with the overthrow of interim president Lidia Gueller, a civilian who was named last fall to oversee the country after a coup until elections could be held.

Iran executes 20 for 'U.S.' coup attempt

By United Press International

Another 20 military officers implicated in a plot to kill Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini were executed by firing squads Thursday and Iran charged the United States was behind both the coup and a terrorist bomb blast that killed six and injured 100.

Kuwait news reports said that, in the wake of the crackdown on "conspirators" plotting "two years ago" regime, officials had declared the Intercontinental Hotel, home to the few foreign reporters still in Iran, a "den of thieves."

The Kuwait reports said reporters were moving out of the hotel fearing it might be seized by the militants who stormed the U.S. Embassy after it was declared a "den of thieves."

The reports also said that five hotel managers were fired after authorities accused them of "providing protection and facilities to foreign newsmen."

For the 52 American hostages, it was the 28th day of captivity in Iran; President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr was expected to announce his choice of a prime minister soon, a move that would bring the Iranian parliament a step closer to the start of its long-awaited debate on the fate of the American captives.

Bani-Sadr, reportedly was still negotiating his choice with his fundamentalist rivals, who control the parliament that must approve the selection of the prime minister.

Two candidates emerged as leading contenders — Education Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai and acting police chief Mostafa Mir-Salim, who met Wednesday with both Khomeini and Bani-Sadr.

The latest executions brought to 30 the number of military personnel killed for their alleged involvement in the anti-Khomeini coup.

Tehran Radio said that 20 army and air force officers were marched to the execution wall of Evin prison in Tehran and shot shortly after dawn.

The ruling Revolutionary Council meanwhile charged that "the hand of the United States" was behind the bombs that ripped through a Tehran shopping arcade Wednesday, killing six persons and injuring about 100.

Palestinians force fed in jail; 2 die

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A second Palestinian prisoner died Thursday on the 12th day of a hunger strike protesting conditions at an Israeli jail where a lawyer charged guards had beaten some of the prisoners and forced salt water into their stomachs.

The government announced the formation of a commission of inquiry after 28-year-old Rashed Mohammed Halawa, a convicted terrorist, became the second Palestinian prisoner to die at the prison in two days.

Officials at the Nafsa prison in the southern Negev Desert said they thought that Halawa died of pneumonia induced by forced feeding.

Reporting the death two days earlier of Mohammed Shahada Ja'afri, the same officials said that he too died of pneumonia. But an autopsy revealed that he died of suffocation when food became lodged in his throat while guards were force feeding him.

Sellers' cremation Saturday

LONDON (UPI) — Peter Sellers, who played scores of different people in his career as a film star, and often in his private life, will be cremated at noon Saturday.

He leaves behind the enigma of which one was the real Sellers — if any.

For among those who mourned his death from a heart attack in Middlesex Hospital early Thursday, when "his heart just faded away" — as a spokesman phrased it — were friends of many years who were not certain they could really know the man beneath the masks.

The 54-year-old actor, a comic genius who was compared to Charles Chaplin, once suggested that the real Sellers was a cipher, a nobody whose own personality was so neutral it was easy to clothe him with the costumes, characteristics and voice of whatever role he was called upon to create in a script.

This his ability to play three major characters in Dr. Strangelove — which Thames Television fitted into its Thursday night schedule — or the lovable bumbler Inspector Clouseau in the Pink Panther films or the simple gardener a celebrity by mischance in his current box office hit "Being There."

Tributes to his art and regrets for his passing poured in from many countries within minutes of the announcement that all the machines of science had been unable to keep him alive in the intensive care unit of the hospital where he was brought unconscious 36 hours earlier from his suite at the Dorchester Hotel.

Theo Cowan, a longtime friend and agent, said the wishes of Sellers' survivors had been for a private ceremony and about 20 family and friends would be present at the Golden Green Crematorium.

His life, said journalist-friend Alexander Walker in the Evening Standard, was often "unhappy, unloving, bitter, loneliness and inability to come to terms with private-life-or-public-life."

Sellers himself in an interview with a UPI reporter was once asked to solve the riddle. "I only know," he said, "that I am not the real Peter Sellers."

Flying bats make every night grim

LEWISBURG, N.H. (UPI) — Nights are grim at the Murray household. At dusk about 300 bats take over the attic and some of them fly undaunted through the house.

"It's just terrible," said Eileen Murphy, a widow and mother of six children.

"We've tried just about everything but the only thing that will kill them is DDT, and that had been banned in the attic," she said.

In addition to calling "every exterminator in the phone book," Mrs. Murphy said one state official "led us to use a tennis racket."

She said state health officials now advise her DDT will be available, but not for a month.

Family members sleep with lights on and air conditioning on not so much to keep cool but to blunt the noise of their fluttering guests.

Natalie, 21, and her sister Stephanie, 17, said they have been awakened every night by bats flying around their bedroom.

"Every night, we get out the rolls of masking tape and shut off the cracks around the door," Natalie said.

"This thing could be a real health hazard," Mrs. Murphy said. Her daughter added, "We can sit around here and joke about it during the daytime, but at night, it's just a horror show up there."

Bill proposes citizenship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A private bill granting U.S. citizenship to Viktor Ivanovich Belenko, a Soviet defector who flew his MIG-25 fighter-receptor to an airbase in Japan in 1975, was introduced in the Senate today.

The legislation was introduced by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in their capacities as chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

In a joint statement, they said they hope the bill would contribute to national security merits special consideration.

"They said Belenko has been completely cooperative in extensive de-briefing by U.S. government officials, particularly the Air Force. His information has been 'extremely and equally valuable,'" Bayh and Goldwater said.

The citizenship bill would waive residence and affiliation provisions of the Immigration Act which imposes a year waiting requirement for persons who have been members of the Communist Party of a foreign country.

Belenko became a member of the Communist Party in July 1974. About the special legislation, the bill said, Belenko would not be eligible for U.S. citizenship until September 1988.

Government abuses reported

Friday, July 25, 1980 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-7

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department's internal investigative chief has assailed President Carter's failure to promptly fire a Hispanic U.S. attorney who flunked two polygraph tests about a 1976 bribe as "inexcusable."

In his annual report, Michael Shabene also criticized Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti for taking six months to discipline a U.S. marshal with family ties to a Kentucky senator, and lashed out at what he called a morale-threatening inconsistency in handling disciplinary cases.

"The very integrity of the Department of Justice is likely to be called into serious question" unless the White House promptly resolves the politically charged case of U.S. Attorney Henry Sillars Jr. of Sacramento, said Shabene, who heads the Justice Department's Office of Professional Responsibility.

Shabene's office recommended Sillars' dismissal last December. But the White House, under election-year pressure for months from Hispanic groups wanting Sillars retained, has balked at taking action.

Sillars was accused by a convicted confidence man of taking a $7,500 payoff from him in 1976. While no formal charges have been filed, he acknowledged publicly last week that he failed two polygraph tests regarding the allegations.

Shabene, in a report to the attorney general, said "in the context of this case, it appears to me inexcusable because we can see no appropriate motivation for the delays permitted by White House personnel."

A deputy to White House Counsel Lloyd Cutler said his office expects to make a recommendation to the president in the next couple of weeks, following an evaluation.

Shabene said his office handled a record 401 complaints during 1979, and at least six FBI agents, four deputy U.S. marshals and four immigration officers were fired or reprimanded while facing inquiries.

His report did not disclose names, but gave details of some of the most glaring cases of misconduct. Among them:

- A Roman Catholic priest, who was a chaplain and honor-unit manager at a metropolitan correctional center, was fired from his job and pleaded guilty to accepting a free Las Vegas vacation arranged by an inmate with mob ties.
- Another prison employee was fired for accepting an oil painting from an inmate in return for altering records to show the inmate had received a lowered custody status.
- The employee tried to have an inmate witness give false testimony during the probe, was indicted, then acquitted at trial.

- An off-duty deputy marshal was suspended 30 days for spending seven parlor and then charged overtime for the time he spent there, was suspended for 30 days.
- An off-duty deputy marshal was suspended 30 days for spending seven parlor and then charged overtime for the time he spent there, was suspended for 30 days.
- An off-duty deputy marshal was suspended 30 days for spending seven parlor and then charged overtime for the time he spent there, was suspended for 30 days.

tions of electronic sensors used to detect illegal border crossings.

The employee was fired.

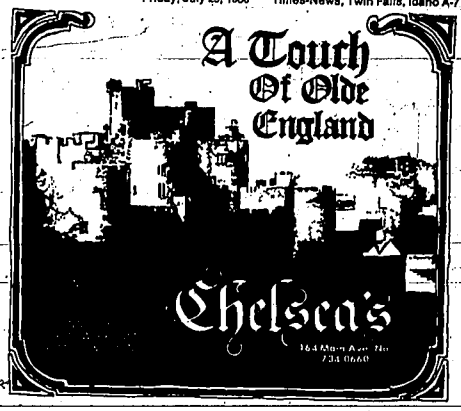

- An FBI agent, who engaged in homosexual conduct with a minor, resigned before administrative action could be taken against him.
- Two FBI agents who disclosed undercover investigations were censured and suspended, one for five days and the other, who did so while intoxicated in a restaurant, for 30 days.

Shabene also said it was "difficult to understand" how Civiletti could wait until June 19 — after receiving White House authorization in February — before requesting the resignation of U.S. Marshal Robert Wright of Louisville, Ky. W.

Wright was named marshal in 1977 under the sponsorship of Sen. Walter "Doe" Ruddison, D-Ky., whose son is married to Wright's daughter.

Wright said Wednesday he resigned because he was "no longer interested" in the marshal's job. But Shabene's report concluded he was guilty of "gross mismanagement."

"Different people have different perspectives of how long it takes for something to get done," Civiletti told reporters.

Feds accused of encouraging sprawl

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Huge amounts of energy could be saved if the federal government stopped encouraging urban sprawl and state governments assumed prime responsibility for land use, according to an Energy Banking Commission report.

"America is beginning to win some energy battles, but inattention to urban form could cost us the war," said Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of both the full committee and its city subcommittee Wednesday.

The report, "Compact Cities: Energy Saving Strategies for the Eighties," said urban sprawl and the thinning out of existing communities "are needlessly pouring tremendous amounts of energy down the drain."

Some federal, state and local politics squander energy by discouraging urban development, the report said.

The 1979 National Energy Plan, President Carter's 1979 solar energy message and its resulting programs also have elements "that work against cities."

"Urban sprawl is actually encouraged by federal highway programs that literally pave the way to regional shopping centers and expand commuting distances."

"Construction of water lines, sewers and sewage treatment plants ... open up new territory to development while already serviced areas fallow," and federal planning funds are used to encourage metropolitan growth.

"Mortgage loans of the Veterans Administration, the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Farmers Home Administration also have favored new construction in outlying areas over new building or rehabilitation in older communities."

Reuss called on state governments to assume prime responsibility over land use questions.

"The states have largely abdicated their role in mediating between the private rights and public interests in land matters," Reuss said.

Oregon, Florida and Vermont were cited as "the vanguard of states that are moving to achieve a better balance between urban and rural uses, and between environmental protection and developmental needs."

Absence of state land use guidelines result in "exclusionary zoning, discrimination by race and income class, the pirating of one community's revenues by another, the funneling of social problems into older communities, and sterile, single-use zones that obstruct the function and livability of cities."

Land speculation was found to be a major cause of urban sprawl. But the report blamed "the upside-down incentives of the state and local property tax system" as much as speculators for the problem.

Pittsburgh has tackled the problem by taxing land values more heavily and reducing the tax burden on buildings, the report said.

Initial results "show a significant rise in sale of idle properties and an increase in housing starts while surrounding areas were experiencing housing downturns."

FEC awards contested Reagan funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Election Commission Thursday rejected President Carter's attempt to deny Ronald Reagan campaign funds and approved a check for $2.4 million to finance the Republican's White House drive.

The commission — made up of three Democrats and three Republicans — unanimously approved the payment after a court rebuffed a Carter campaign request for a temporary injunction halting the payment.

The Carter campaign claims Reuss is ineligible for the seat because independent groups run by well-known Republicans and conservatives have sprung up to raise and spend up to $50 million to get Reagan elected.

The law limits a candidate to spending only the $25.4 million given him by the government.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Thursday morning denied Carter's effort to stop the FEC from approving Reagan's money. Minutes later the FEC — which had argued against the Carter complaint in a brief filed with the court — approved the money without comment.

But the court ordered a special panel be set up to hear the merits of the Carter suit "at the earliest possible time."

The FEC said the Reagan campaign could have to refund the federal money if the courts ruled the expenditure illegal. But it said nothing has happened to justify denying Reagan the funds now.

Feds want paperwork reduction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The executive department, accused of overloading business firms with reports that burden government agencies require, complained Thursday about the burden of reports they must make to Congress.

Under a presidential order, the Office of Management and Budget is holding hearings on how to reduce the 1 billion man hours the private sector now must spend filling out reports each year for the federal agencies.

But Associate OMB Director Wayne J. Grunquist told a House Government Operations Committee July 23, 3,000 or more reports Congress requires each year or more often have become "a major administrative burden to many agencies."

The committee's legislation promptly approved a bill that would eliminate or reduce the frequency of 326 reports, and require more caution in adding to the load in the future. The bill now goes to the full committee.

Monte A. Myers, an official of the General Accounting Office, estimated the bill would reduce the burden of executive branch reports to Congress by 10 percent and save $6 million a year.

What's what

Intriguing boy friends leave women off base

Among the more intriguing types of boyfriends described in our Love and War man's file is a sort of fellow who somehow always puts his ladyfriend of the moment at a disadvantage. Facilely, his tricks. You can't even tell whether they're on purpose. At lunch, he buys her a woo-boy sandwich, a foot long and filled with meatballs and gravy, a hand-held disaster. Come Saturday, he takes her boating. A woman does not look her best, on the contrary, when climbing in and out of a boat. On a subsequent evening, he turns up with three matched tanks of tropical fish. They're lovely. Maay a lady has found the most appropriate costume when cleaning multiple fish tanks is no costume at all—stark naked—but he hadn't thought about that.

RABBITS

Rabbits don't perspire. Was a time, you know, when baseball umpires wore top hats.

Local law in Monroe, Utah, requires that light be seen between all couples when they dance. Also registered at this U. S. Patent office is a sort of shoe with pockets in it designed especially for nudists.

A frog at the bottom of a 10-foot well climbs up five feet during each day but falls back four feet during each night. How many days does it take said frog to get out of that dumb hole? Sprink this query on your family's mathematical wits. Don't make it easy. Don't explain that six days is the right answer.

MANNERISMS

You do it the way most people do it, if: When folding your hands in front of your face, your right thumb is closest to your chin. When crossing your legs, your left leg is on top. When applauding, your left palm is up, your right palm down. When folding your arms, your right hand winds up half hidden beneath your left arm.

Odd that Ireland should have developed such a romantic reputation. One out of four of its women never marry.

Sun Valley sets arts festival

SUN VALLEY — The 12th Annual Sun Valley Invitational Arts and Crafts Festival will be held Aug. 1 to 3 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The festival is sponsored by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities. Exhibits containing virtually every art medium will be displayed. There will also be live entertainment by the well-known puppeteer Bob Hartman of San Francisco and a play, "Done to Death," by the Children's Theater on the porch of the Catmas Room near the Sun Valley Inn.

The Wood River Ensemble will entertain from 3 to 4 p.m. Aug. 2 near the pond in the center of the festival.

According to Festival Chairman Lonnie Mayer, this year's event will have something for everyone.

The open house begins at 2 p.m.

Lawn party for "Open Space"

TWIN FALLS — Open Space Magazine is holding a lawn party and barbecue Sunday and inviting all people interested in the magazine to attend.

The party begins at 2 p.m. at 1865 Falls Ave E. There is no charge and people are asked to bring only an appetizer or hors d'oeuvres.

Heart memorials suggested

JEROME — Jean Duffek, Jerome County Health memorial chairman, said Friday a meaningful way for individuals and groups to honor loved ones whose lives were lost to heart disease is through memorial gifts to the local Heart Association.

"Donations to the Heart Association help support community programs of blood pressure screening and cardiopulmonary resuscitation as well as research and public and professional education," she said.

Persons wishing to make a memorial gift should send the check, along with the name of the person to be honored, the name and address of the persons to be notified of the gift and the donor's name and address to Duffek, Route 3, Jerome 83336.

A tax deductible receipt is then issued to the donor.

Borrowers put into 4 groups, mostly bad

By ELISE T. CHISOLM

© The Baltimore Evening Sun

Shakespeare said it well. "Neither a borrower nor a lender be. . . Of course, he didn't have a bunch of neat things like a blender with 10 speeds that made great frozen daiquiris or a vacuum that had a waxing attachment, or a microwave oven. Right? I've found that summer brings out the borrower like it brings the bees.

There are four classes of borrowers:

Class A: The type who borrows your tennis racket, breaks three strings and buys you a new one that's better than the one you had. This borrower rates an "X" for excellent.

Class B: The type who borrows your hedge clippers, brings them back, smiling all the while, thanking you very much, and two weeks later you find out they don't work. Rate this one "B" for poor risk.

Class C: The type who never brought back 30 electric popcorn popper, and when you asked for it six months later, says, "Who me? I've never seen your popper, I once borrowed John Doe's. As a matter of fact, we don't even like popcorn a whole lot." Yet you know he has it. Rate this one "B" for bad.

Class D: The type who asks to borrow a half-cup of pickle juice, and let me tell you, you never see the pickle juice again. Chalk it up to a "grant," not a loan. And say to yourself: who needs pickle juice anyway? Rated "G" for gone.

Here are just a few things I've loaned out this summer and never expect back: snorkel equipment, a goldfish bowl, a hoe, a gloves stretcher, an ice bag, a baby car seat and a sump pump.

But that's OK, these items may be my penance for my "over-borrowing" at times.

My confession. Here are the things I've borrowed over the last 10 years but have taken back. A soup kettle, a carpet needle, a playpen, hair clippers and one dog for the night when mine was at the vet's while my husband was out of town.

But this summer I have borrowed and have not taken back: eight books, two cups of mayonnaise, one sprig of parsley, one pimento, one stalk of celery, one cup of distilled water and one bag of kitty litter.

So my slate is not lily white. Summer rules: Know your borrower. Is she neat, clean and a good housekeeper? Or are her kitchen top bureau drawer and her fingernails in the same messy category? If she's messy, you will never see the item again.

There are two ways to handle a constant borrower. Just say, "No," and she'll never speak to you again. Or say "yes," and borrow from her the most expensive thing she has: her car, her piano, her color TV or her Oscar de la Renta dress. And she'll never speak to you again.

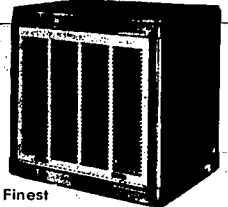

So for those of you out there I've borrowed from, rest assured I will return these items as soon as this column hits the street.

Pediatrician challenges contention

NEW YORK — A noted pediatrician today challenged the contention of some feminists that boys and girls should be treated alike from birth, saying that such treatment is unnecessary and might even be detrimental.

Although he firmly believes in equal treatment of the sexes as adults, Dr. T. Berry Brazelton of Harvard Medical School said in the August issue of Redbook magazine he is "convinced that we don't need to treat boys and girls alike as babies in order to fit them for the roles we want for them as adults."

"If we do," he commented, "they may lose the security of well-defined sexual behavior that gives them a firm belief in themselves and in their sexual identity."

"Differences between the sexes may be said to be, to a large extent, predetermined," asserted Dr. Brazelton, who has found that male and female infants seem to possess differences at birth which are likely to cause their parents to respond to them in different ways.

"If parents try to go against what is natural to them, changing instinctive ways of responding in an effort to conform to what they think they should do, I suspect not only that the child will be less responsive than they might expect, but also that they themselves will be uncomfortable and that the child will sense their confusion and discomfort."

Dr. Brazelton, who is currently headed in research in early infancy and mother-father-infant interaction at the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston, emphasized in Redbook that "all children are not alike, and they will not respond well to equal treatment." He urged parents to treat their children in a way that fosters and reinforces the individuality of each child, regardless of sex.

"By doing this, we offer our sons and daughters a firm belief in themselves and in their own capabilities," he commented.

Dr. Brazelton, who developed the Brazelton Neonatal Behavioral Assessment Scale, is a contributing editor of Redbook for which he writes a bi-monthly column, alternating with Dr. Benjamin Spock. He is associate professor of pediatrics at Harvard and chief of the child development unit at Children's Hospital Medical Center.

Heat alternatives

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — Supplemental, zone, auxiliary and spot heating and cooling offer economical, localized alternatives to the rising cost of centralized heating and cooling methods.

It's cheaper in the long run to keep thermostats low and switch on built-in or free-standing equipment to help heat or cool the room in use at the moment, says James Bantlin, head of Scovill's Housing Products Group.

Such alternatives are especially useful in bathrooms, family rooms, bedrooms and covered porches, Bantlin says. One such unit is a modernized version of the old-fashioned paddle fan, which can be used to force warm air downwards to save heat in winter and create cooling breezes in summer.

6 billion people will face shortage of resources

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's most comprehensive study of the future laid down Thursday a grim warning of a world that will be increasingly hungry, polluted and unstable by the year 2000 unless international action heads off the problems.

Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, warning the world's population will reach 6 billion by the year 2000, said, "World population growth, the degradation of the earth's natural resource base and the spread of environmental pollution collectively threaten the welfare of mankind."

It is a forecast of what life could be, if international measures are not taken to reverse present trends. The average citizen will find his space more confined, with another 2.5 billion people jammed onto the planet.

U.S warns of refugee problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher Wednesday told the organization of American States the world is awash with refugees feeling political strife and economic hardships and the West must prepare to deal with the challenge.

Christopher said the chaotic sea of refugees from Cuba to the United States illustrates a serious problem that can face any nation in the hemisphere.

Food production will increase by 30 percent in the next 20 years, faster than the population, but at a terrible price. Jogging or swimming will be more difficult. The increased food production will mean the water will be fouler, because of pesticides, and the air will be polluted because of the increased use of energy to keep pace with the population.

Even firewood, already becoming scarce as forests are chopped down or taken over by deserts, will be 25 percent short of requirements in the poorest countries.

Leading environmental scientists, who served as advisers on the report, praise the report in such terms as "brilliant," "masterful" and "politically courageous."

He said principles to guide a cooperative effort should include: "Discouraging a country forcing large displacements of its citizens."

What a day for working on the railroad

Working outdoors Thursday meant working in 90-degree temperatures for Union Pacific track crewman, from left, Randy Ellis, Roger Tiffany,

Gary McDonald and Craig Blewwater. The four men worked up a thirst while hauling 500-pound track ties at the Main Street crossing in Kimberly. The railroad employees were tearing up the old ties and asphalt and laying down a smoother surface at the vehicle crossing.

Water fee increasing $20 more

TWIN FALLS — City residents will pay another $20 a year for water and sewer services beginning Oct. 1.

The tentative 1980-81 Twin Falls city budget, released this week by City Manager Tom Courtney, calls for a 15 percent increase in water fees and a 31 percent increase in the basic sewer system fee.

City Council members Monday voted to impose a $4 per month surcharge above the residential users' $3.25 monthly fee. This fee will raise the city's share of the $7 million sewage plant modification project. City officials plan on having the surcharge, which goes into effect Aug. 1, for 16 to 18 months.

The basic monthly sewer fees pay for sewage treatment plant operations and maintenance costs.

The fee increases and the entire $3.9 million general fund budget will go before an informal public review session at 7 p.m. Monday at City Hall.

Under the increase for water, small users would pay about 58 cents per month more and large consumers would be charged anywhere from two cents per 1,000 gallons used to seven cents per 1,000 gallons used, depending on total gallonage.

Under the proposed sewer rate increases, residential users would pay about $4.25 per month in basic fees to cover operation and maintenance costs of the plant and the $4 per month surcharge.

Commercial users would pay 13 cents more per 1,000 gallons and government and school buildings would pay 10 cents more per 1,000 gallons of waste water sent into the system. Each non-residential user also would pay a $8.63 per month surcharge.

Courtney said the increase in water fees is to increase costs and reduced sales in the late spring when heavy rains allowed consumers to avoid irrigating.

The reduced sales left the water fund about 10 percent or $116,000 short of anticipated revenues, Courtney said.

Courtney said the city's sewage plant also faces increased costs and a projected $15,650 loss in revenue collected from industrial users of the plant.

Courtney said the expected decrease is due to the closure of the Kellwood Co. hosiery plant and the installation of a sewage pre-treatment unit at Idaho Frozen Foods, the largest industrial user of the city's plant.

That equipment will reduce the amount of sewage the plant sends into the sewer plant. Since industrial users pay a fee based on how much sewage they send into the plant, the equipment will result in Idaho Frozen Foods paying a smaller bill to the city.

Courtney added that total sewage treatment plant expenditures will increase $138,883 next year, reflecting a 28 percent rate increase for electricity and an anticipated $125,000 increase in the city's cost of hauling sewer sludge to land application sites.

Even though opening day is not until Sept. 2

Exhibitors lining up for county fair

FILER — The 1980 Twin Falls County Fair will not open until Sept. 2, but already exhibitors are picking up entries and rodeo tickets are being sold.

Residents stood in line for three to four hours last year waiting for general admission tickets for the rodeo's championship show on closing night. Tom Shouse, fair manager, said a number of these people have already called or dropped in to reserve their seats for this year.

The fair, strictly an agriculture and livestock exposition, will open Tuesday Sept. 2, and continue through Saturday, Sept. 6, Shouse said.

Tuesday is judging day and there is no admission charge but plenty of activity and final placing of exhibits.

The manager said again this year East End Day is Sept. 3 when Muraugh, Kimberly and Hansen residents will close up businesses to attend. Twin Falls Day is Sept. 4 and West End Day, Sept. 5.

Last year 80,000 persons entered the fairgrounds gates during the four days. Shouse said he expects to increase this to at least 83,000 in 1980.

"When people are thinking about inexpensive and close-to-home entertainment, they think first of the fair," Shouse said. "Where else can you see thousands of top animals, produce, flowers and hand work plus meet all of your friends for $1.50?"

Gate fee of $1.50 gives the patron an opportunity to spend a full day at the fair, with admission to all of the exhibits and departments. The carnival rides and the night rodeo cost extra.

Naomi Shouse, office manager at the grounds, said interest is already mounting and many exhibitors have received entry blanks.

One of the major events is the Register of Merit Hereford show. This is one of only 10 such shows in the nation and only select, qualified animals are eligible to enter. Register of Merit points are awarded winners toward their national finals competition.

"These top animals come from all over the nation and compete with Idaho and Magic Valley entries, too. We have some of the best beef animals in the country here and this show is a tribute to the type and quality of our local livestock," Shouse said.

Several new fair features will be included this year, Shouse said. There will be a draft horse division and also a class for mules. In the mule event, the animals will be judged for quality as well as in two special classes including trail performance and a pack scramble. John Qualls is superintendent in charge of the mules and horses.

"This is the first time in many years we have had a class for draft horses," Shouse said. "We haven't had any since we came in 1965 and it goes back much further than that, I know. But there is a new growing interest in breeding these big muscular horses."

Mrs. Shouse said the sheep department will take on a new tone this year.

A ladies lead line event will be something like a style show with each model leading a sheep, she explained. This event, popular in Denver and at the Cow Palace, requires the woman to show the sheep and to wear clothing of at least 70 percent wool.

"This usually turns into a contest of who can dress the best and the fact they have to show a sheep adds an unusual note," she said.

Shirley McCoy of Buhl is in charge of this event. Her husband, W. E. McCoy, is a long time superintendent of the sheep department.

A new superintendent has been named this year in the Home Arts department. She is Ruth Thornbrow of Buhl. Otherwise, Shouse says, veteran superintendents will be returning.

Two of the areas with the most expansion in the past few years are the macramé and the tote painting. Separate divisions are now available for these crafts.

Yankee Fork dredge part of tour

TWIN FALLS — Recreation opportunities in the Sawtooth National Forest this weekend will include free tours of the old dredge at Yankee Fork.

The dredge, which has been on the Yankee Fork since the 1940s, will be open to tour for the Twin Falls County Historical Society and also to the public.

Sawtooth officials say Highway 75 east of Stanley is being resurfaced and motorists are advised to drive with caution because of loose gravel. Some brief delays may also be encountered.

Campers, hikers and backpackers can expect daytime temperatures in the 80s and nighttime readings in the 30s throughout higher forest elevations.

Fire danger is building in the lower foothills south of Twin Falls and Burley. Campers and recreation seekers must use vehicle ashtrays and be careful with campfires.

All campgrounds and roads in the Twin Falls Ranger District are now open. In the Burley District, the road into the Lake Cleveland campgrounds is now open as is the road to Thompson Flats. Water is available at Sublett campground, but campers are asked to carry their own drinking water if using other campgrounds in that area.

The Ketchum Ranger District reports Trail Creek Summit road open but rough and Dollarhide into Fairfield is still closed by a late melting snowslide. The road is open to the top of the summit from the Featherstone side.

Fishermen in the Stanley area are advised the headwaters of the Salmon River in Sawtooth Valley and all posted tributaries are closed to fishing until Sept. 1.

Campgrounds on the Sawtooth National Recreation Area are filling up on weekends.

Court validates election outcome

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Supreme Court has upheld a district court ruling in favor of former Gooding County Commissioner Donald J. Wilkins.

A group of citizens, represented by Gordon S. Nelson, special prosecutor for the county, brought action in 5th District Court during 1977 in an effort to "remove Wilkins from office" on grounds he did not live in the commissioner district he was elected to represent.

Wilkins owned a vacant theater building on Main Street in Gooding which was located in Commissioner District 1. His home, however, was about 250 feet beyond the boundary of that district. Wilkins listed the theater as his legal residence in seeking office, and testimony indicated he had camped in the building prior to election to establish residency.

When the local protesting citizens failed to gain removal of Wilkins from his commission office through other channels, they filed suit in district court with the assistance of the special prosecutor and the attorney general's office.

The state also asked for a $5,000 fine against Wilkins and court costs. Judge Sherman J. Bellwood, who heard the case in district court, ruled in favor of Wilkins and awarded him attorney fees and costs which were paid by Gooding County. The state then appealed the decision and the costs.

The state brought the suit in a quo warranto action and the court held that a quo warranto proceeding refers to conditions that exist at the time the action is brought. Because the impediment to Wilkins holding office had been removed before the action was brought, the Supreme Court held the lower court was correct in its decision. A revision of precinct boundaries, ordered by the state Legislature, changed the county commission district boundaries as well, putting Wilkins residential property in the proper zone.

The court also held the appeal of the state on attorney fees and costs was waived since Gooding County had already paid it.

Wilkins served a two-year term and was defeated in the 1978 primary election, but the case had already been taken into court and the appeal continued.

Gooding man arrested in shooting incident

TWIN FALLS — A Gooding man was arrested in the South Hills early Thursday morning by Twin Falls County officers following a shooting incident.

Sheriff James Munn said officers drove to Thoroughbred Springs just west of Deadline Ridge about 2:50 a.m. and arrested Charles I. McLaughlin, 30, on charges of aggravated assault.

Munn said Larry Hranac, 18, of Jerome, was driven from the Thoroughbred Springs logging camp by some other loggers to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. He was treated for a gunshot wound in the groin area, the sheriff said, and was later released from the hospital.

The sheriff said apparently the shooting occurred between midnight and 1 a.m. in a camp where some logging crews have been staying. Loggers were working in the timbercut areas near the camp, he said. The cause of the shooting was not released pending more investigation.

McLaughlin was arraigned in Magistrate Court Thursday afternoon and was granted the services of the public defender. The court set bond at $5,000 and McLaughlin was in the county jail in lieu of bond Thursday night.

Anderson outriders

Young easterners pedal U.S.

By DAVID MORRISSEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's not exactly a campaign handwagon, but they are peddling politics.

Indeed, the efforts of three young Virginians for John Anderson's presidential campaign are, well, rolling along.

Edwin Kirtner, Mark and Courtney Carpenter, all of Hampton, Va., are riding their 10-speed bikes across the country in an effort to promote the Illinois Congressman's independent drive for the White House.

At every stop they talk about the Anderson platform, exhorting voters to support their candidate.

"My friends already had this trip planned when they asked me to go," Kirtner said. "So, I figured, what a good way to get publicity for Anderson."

The three, aged 23, 26 and 27, flew from Virginia to Portland, Ore., early this month. They then headed down the Oregon coast, dressed in blue and white "Virginians for Anderson" shirts, rode across central Oregon to Boise, and arrived in Twin Falls Thursday.

Their route will next take them across southern Idaho, through Yellowstone National Park, on to Illinois where they hope to meet Anderson; and back home to Virginia by September, "in time to vote," Kirtner said.

"My skin is turning to leather," Kirtner said. "But people have been really friendly so far."

The West is "just unbelievably beautiful," he added, explaining that not only had he never been West before, "I'd hardly been out of Virginia."

Edwin Kirtner is part of a bicycling trio for John Anderson.

Volcanic ash schemes replacing pet rock

States News Service
WASHINGTON — Remember pet rocks? Well, now there's a new pet rock.
 The stuff, which covered much of eastern Washington state like a blanket in May and threatens to do so again, has been the focus of get-rich-quick schemes across the country that seem to epitomize Capitalism, American style.
 In the nation's capital, ash has even found its way into the proceedings of Congress.
 It all began back in May when Mount St. Helens went off for the first time.
 The eruptions spewed at least a half million tons of ash across the nation, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.
 With all of it free for the taking, the enterprising nature of Americans immediately emerged.
 "Business isn't going as fast now as it was in the beginning," said Jack Castenova, a truck driver from Norristown, Pa., in the days before the latest eruption. "The competition has gotten to be pretty great."
 The 20 tons Jack Castenova's brother Tony drove to Pennsylvania from Yakima, Wash., in a 48-foot trailer is now about one-quarter sold. The ash is selling for $1.25 for a two-ounce bottle, down from $2 when the competition was less.
 Here in Washington, D.C., the two congressmen whose districts were hurt the most by the volcano have found that ash can be a valuable tool in demonstrating what it was like to live under the ashfall — and in getting other congressmen to be generous in allotting relief money.

 Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., waved around a jar of the ash while speaking on the House floor last month in support of a supplemental appropriation bill which included more than $800 million in relief money.
 On the floor and later in the Democratic cloakroom, McCormack and his exhibit elicited considerable interest.
 A mid-West congressman fingered the substance and then tried to dust it from the ends of his fingers. "Slicky stuff, isn't it," he said McCormack, looking away to find the nearest rest room to wash his hands.
 Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., who represents the urban areas of Berkeley and Oakland, turned the bottle of ash over a few times and then asked McCormack of the emotional trauma that many local residents must have faced because of the ashfall.
 He offered them some of the dust, but both declined.
 "People kept calling wanting more," said an aide to Rep. Don L. Bonker, D-Wash., who had a big supply of ash brought to Washington so he could distribute it to other congressmen.
 His largest request came from Rep. Dan Mica, D-Fla., who represents the posh Palm Beach area. He asked for 20 pounds.

Mica ceremoniously presented some 10 pounds of the ash to two museums in South Florida, the Discovery Center in Fort Lauderdale and the Science Museum and Planetarium in his home county of Palm Beach.
 Accompanying the ash were press releases.
 Castenova, the Pennsylvania truck driver, says he is known as the local "Ash Baron" and believes he has gotten enough publicity from selling ash to land a long-time dream role in a Hollywood movie.
 Even if he never gets to Hollywood, Castenova's new business may keep his hands full.
 How long will the ash remain popular as a souvenir or gift item?
 "It's hard to say," Castenova said.
 Then there's Bob Daviseau, president of an advertising firm in Florham Park, N.J.
 A few days after the eruption, he had a friend in Seattle send a ton of ash in 50-pound boxes via United Parcel Service.
 Daviseau's ash marketing company, Scottsdale International, sells about an ounce of ash for the suggested retail price of $3.88.
 He won't reveal the wholesale price of an ounce.
 He says that with the costs of shipping the ash, paying the manufacturer's representatives who market it, buying the boxes and plastic bags in which it is sold, printing the brochures and paying labor and storage costs, he makes from 50 cents to 80 cents per ash sale.

 Daviseau is trying to market his ash to Gimbel's and other chain stores. But getting on those prestigious shelves is no easy task.
 "You wouldn't believe all the headaches involved," he exclaimed. "It's a real learning experience."
 Perhaps it was the New York Times which offered the epitome of chic in a story on its Science page — ash as the new "pet rock" for those who have everything.
 Perhaps the most unusual ash episode occurred when a mysterious chemist named Dr. Hana Claus offered to spray all the piles of ash in Yakima, Wash., with a resin so it wouldn't blow around. He then planned to use a secret chemical process to transform the ash into a hard substance that could be used to make toilets, sinks and other household fixtures.
 Yakima was delighted at the idea of getting rid of its ash for free, but it soon became suspicious of the enigmatic Dr. Claus. Asked to comment on his background, he was quoted in the Yakima Herald-Republic as saying: "I have problems, very high security problems," he said. "I have been attacked. I have been shot at in Los Angeles. I'm getting antagonized. There are people out there trying to grab me off because I possess a plastic that God and everyone else wants."
 The proposed deal with city officials fell through.

Potentially fatal affliction spreading

Dog owners cautioned about disease

BOISE (UPI) — Veterinarians say a potentially fatal canine disease that has reached epidemic proportions in some parts of the country has not struck Idaho on that scale yet, but its incidence could increase.
 Outbreaks of canine parvovirus, a disease closely related to cat distemper, have been reported in Iowa, Nebraska, New York, the Los Angeles and Seattle areas and the Southeast.
 "It's killing a lot of dogs," said Dr. Lawrence McGill of the Veterinary Reference Laboratory in Salt Lake City, the nation's largest private veterinary diagnostic lab. "I think the mortality rate is close to 40 or 50 percent."

 Dr. Larry Dick of Boise said that although there have been only a few confirmed cases of the disease in Boise this year, "it's going to be up."
 The virus can strike purebreds and mixed breeds, but is most prevalent in puppies.
 "It would save 80 percent of it is in puppies; who are subject to stress of weaning and moving," said Nampa veterinarian Dr. Winston Goering.
 Older dogs most likely to be struck are those who come in contact with other dogs through travel, shows, and field trials, he said.
 Not all dogs suffering from parvovirus show symptoms, veterinarians said. Others may exhibit lethargy, vomiting, diarrhea and hemorrhaging.

 But the sign that sets parvovirus apart is the speed with which it can whittle down a healthy animal. A dog can die within 24 hours of showing symptoms.
 Local vets are warning dog owners against rushing in to get their dogs checked, however, since the amount of serum being demanded nationwide is not available. Boise vets are able to get only about a tenth of the parvovirus vaccine they order, Dick said.

Cyprus mine hearing Aug. 8

BOISE — A public hearing on Cyprus Mines Corp.'s proposed molybdenum mine near Challis will be held in Boise Aug. 8.
 Gordon Reid, a planner for the U.S. Forest Service in Challis, said the hearing will be in addition to a previously announced hearing scheduled for Aug. 7, in Challis.
 The Boise hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 8, in the Hall of Mirrors. The Challis hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 7, in the Challis American Legion Hall.
 The hearings are part of the formal public comment process on the project, which began with the release of a draft environmental impact statement on the proposal two weeks ago.
 Cyprus, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of Indiana, plans to build a mile-wide, open-pit mine on Thompson Creek about 40 miles southwest of Challis.

It's anyone's guess about next eruption date

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Mount St. Helens is certain to erupt again — and could continue to do so for years — but trying to predict precisely when is a guessing game, scientists said Thursday.
 The volcano remained quietly Thursday, but was far from returning to dormancy.
 Tim Hall of the U.S. Geological Survey said the volcano's history indicates it goes through a series of multiple eruptions, that last for a number of years before it again becomes dormant.

 "You can say the volcano will erupt again. That is a certainty," he said. "But day to day, hour to hour, you can't say."
 Hall said he flew over the volcano Wednesday and it appeared the edges of the lava dome blown away Tuesday still may be in the crater. But he said it was hard to tell for sure because of the thick carpeting of ash on the crater floor.
 Geologists are "beginning to see a gradual buildup of material, at least in the center of the crater," Hall said.
 He said another dome may build up in the coming weeks, only to be destroyed again by a new eruption.
 In addition to blowing its dome away, Mount St. Helens sent a towering ash cloud soaring into the sky that drifted as far as the Canadian province of Saskatchewan.
 Eastern Washington, recipient of most of the ashfall from the volcano's giant May 18 eruption, received a light coating of dust that reduced visibility at times but did not force road closures or strand any motorists.

 The last road restrictions were lifted in Washington state Thursday when reduced speed limits were removed on the state highway in northeastern Washington. The speed limit had been 15 miles per hour in the town and 30 miles an hour in the country.

 The course will be limited to 25 students from across the country. It will be taught by Dr. Chung-Ha Ouh, a world leader in spinal biomechanics.

Slowpitch playoffs started

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley teams pretty well spread the wins and losses — around in the first night of the district slowpitch tournaments.

Most of the action came in the men's B division although the A men and two divisions of women's competition was underway in Rupert.

In the men's B play, George K's of Twin Falls defeated the Filling Station-Wendell Elevator 18-5 while John Lutz Builders of Twin Falls was pinning a 16-7 loss on R & R Lounge of Buhl.

Marshals-Circle 4 of Jerome knocked off Taco John's of Twin Falls, 17-5 and Buhl's Winn and Company pinned a 25-5 whipping on Coors of Magic Valley of Rupert.

Idaho Migrant Council-J.C. Penny's topped Ketchum Drug while Western Auto of Buhl defeated Burley Auto 9-4. Messersmith Auction of Twin Falls slipped past the Pizza Barn 8-7 and PGO of Ketchum thumped the Ground Round 20-8.

In the A division, Sewer and Water Specialty of Twin Falls nipped Kerbs of Burley 3-2. In the best played game of the night, the Holy Merchants — were — measuring — Donnelly's Sporting Goods-Al's Tires 6-4.

The men's action will resume at the five Twin Falls diamonds Friday night while the women's B gets underway in Rupert.

The men's B schedule will have the Bilcoo Farms of Gooding meeting Allison Feed of Filer, Northwest Flywood against Baslerrecha of Gooding; Kurt's Drilling vs. Hawkins of Filer; Bean Growers vs. Henderson-Gifford, vs. Bellevue to complete the first round.

Making the pivot

Vince Hamilton of Buhl, 45, winds up for the throw to first base during second inning slowpitch softball action Thursday at Harmon Park in Twin Falls. Keith

Shank of the R and R Lounge of Buhl keeps his eye on the action against John Lutz Builders Inc.-Mamboe Restaurant. Despite the play, the Twin Falls team posted a 16-7 decision to move into the second round of the district men's B slowpitch division.

Connors upset in tennis tourney

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Few people, even the most avid tennis fans, are familiar with Pascal Fortes, but the 21-year-old Frenchman made his presence felt in a big way Thursday by upsetting tournament favorite Jimmy Connors, 6-4, 7-5.

Fortes built a solid lead and then held off a furious rally by the top-seeded Connors to pull off the upset in the third round of a $175,000 international tennis tournament.

Fortes, who had not gotten beyond the second round in a previous Grand Prix tournament this year, broke Connors' serve in the final game of the first set to win.

He then built a 4-1 lead in the second serve and survived Connors' closing rush breaking serve in the final game again.

Both players were playing their third match in 24 hours because of rain earlier in the week, which forced a doubling up of Wednesday's schedule.

"This was my biggest win, better than beating (Guillermo) Vilas last year in Sweden," said Fortes, ranked 128th in the world. "I was just trying to avoid mistakes and see how the match went. When I won the first set, I felt I could win the match."

W.R., Pocatello teams win

BUHL — Pocatello and Wood River collected victories to open the district B American Legion baseball tournament Thursday.

Pocatello topped Kimberly 7-2 while Wood River blew a game-long lead in the ninth inning but, then feasted off walks to topple Jerome 10-5 in 10 innings. Buhl was playing Wendell in the Thursday finale, made late by the overtime battle between Wood River and Jerome.

Action resumes with three games at Farris Field today and there will be four games played Saturday. The tournament is slated to wind up at 4 p.m. Sunday but could go to a Monday conclusion in an extra session if required.

Wood River's win over Jerome was close but the latter innings degenerated into a succession of walks and errors. The early innings were among the best played of the yet-young tournament.

Wood River protected a 5-2 lead through most of the game, thanks to a three-run fourth inning. But Jerome chipped back to within two in the eighth and tied it in the ninth when Wood River's pitcher threw an error loaded the bases and Tim Fowles appeared the man of the hour when he hit a hump-backed single into center to deliver the tying runs.

But it only prolonged the inevitable. Jerome's pitching came apart in reply and filled the bases while two Wood River men were bouncing out sharply to the pitcher.

The decisive run scored when Todd Lindsey was hit by a pitch and Bob Montgomery followed with a sharp hit just inside the third base foul line to score two more. Jeff Johnson then lofted a routine fly ball to centerfield where the luckless Jerome player nonchalantly let it hit too much. The ball skipped off his glove for an error while two more meaningless tallies crossed the plate.

Pocatello doomed Kimberly to its 7-2 defeat with a string of singles worth five runs in the fourth inning.

Kimberly moved ahead in the first inning when Rocky Eller drew a walk and came around on a succession of wild pitches and passed balls. After Pocatello scored in the fourth, Kimberly enjoyed its last lead with a fourth-inning rally. Kevin Frazier belted a double and scored on an error.

Pocatello led it in the bottom of the frame when Rick Anderson, Mike Randal, Andy Kordeckis, Kelly Humphrey, Mike Simmons and Ken Baker all came up with base hits.

Simons smokes PGA on 62

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Veteran Jim Simons cupped 10 birdies to shoot a sizzling 9-under-par 62, the lowest round on the PGA tour this year, to take the first-round lead Thursday in the $300,000 Greater Hartford Open.

Simons, of Tequesta, Fla., who matched the first-round record here last year by George Cadle, started off the 10th tee in hot fashion with a birdie, par and five straight birdies to give him a 31 on the front nine.

His only misdeed on the 534-yard Wethersfield Country Club course came as he finished the front nine when he bogied the par-4 18th hole after going into the rough and falling short of the green by five yards.

Simons took over the lead late in the day from earlier starter Jaime Gonzalez of Brazil, who shot a 7-under 64 to stand one stroke ahead of Cadle, Jim Thorpe and 1972 GHO champion Lee Trevino.

"It was my best round ever," said Simons, who credited his performance with a two-day stint in Washington last weekend with short-gate teacher Dave Peiz.

"I had the ball consistently close to the hole and made numerous putts from 8, 10, 12 feet," said Simons, whose longest birdie on the par-4 15th hole covered 25 feet.

Gonzalez, who will turn 26 on Friday, sank a number of long shots with his accurate putter — including a 50-footer on the par-3 third hole — to take the early lead among the 144 starters.

Defending GHO champion Jerry McGee got off to a shaky start and was 2-under after seven holes.

Gonzalez, starting from the 10th tee, birdied seven holes including a 50-foot shot with a 3-iron on the 202-yard third hole.

"I got my confidence back," he said. "I hit all 18 greens. I didn't hit it all that good, but I didn't make any mistakes. Every time I shot for a birdie I made it."

Gonzalez, a pro since 1977, did not play in the PGA last year but instead played on the world tour. He has been playing golf since he was a teen-ager and his father, Mario, played the tour in the 1950's.

Gonzalez' GHO playing partner, Bob Clampett, in only his second professional tournament, came in 4-under at 67. He put on a brilliant show, cutting the fairways and placing tee shots in excellent positions with precise shooting.

Clampett, who tied for low amateur in the Masters tournament, scored an average on the par-5 sixth hole when he flew a sand wedge from 86 yards out into the cup.

His only misdeed was when he bogeyed the par-5 second hole after hooking his shot behind a tree, missing a chip to the green and two-putting. The 20-year-old Californian failed to make the cut in his first tournament last week.

Trevino, who finished second behind Tom Watson in the British Open last week, finished with a 6-under 65 on a course he said was "in excellent condition."

"I played well. I didn't miss any greens. I was near the hole all day," he said. Trevino divided six birdies between the front and back nines and predicted the tournament will be won with a score of at least 20-under par.

"I want to shoot 5-under each day, so I'm ahead," Trevino said.

Carson City sweeps Minico

RUPERT — Carson City, Nev., showed some power and strong pitching in sweeping a doubleheader from the Minico Sage Thursday night.

The Nevadans, who took a pair from Twin Falls Wednesday, down the Sage 9-3 and 14-1 to make a sweep of their stay in Magic Valley.

Minico remains in action the rest of the week, traveling to Pocatello for a single game at 7:30 p.m. today. The Sage returns to Rupert to host Meridian in a doubleheader starting at 1 p.m. and then winds up its regular season with another twin bill at Twin Falls, 1 and 3 p.m., Sunday at Front Field.

Carson City never trailed in taking the two wins Thursday. They jumped on starter and loser Maro Winnifill for four runs in the first inning. Most of that came on a three-run homer by Bob Thompson.

Minico got one back in the first when Jeff Schow singled and scored on a double by Ken Parkins. In the second, Winnifill led off with a double and rode in on Hanks' sacrifice.

But Carson City pushed out of reach with another four-run effort in the fifth.

In the nightcap, it was a seven-run inning that doomed Minico to a five-run loss. But Carson City's power display came in the fifth when Korfer belted a three-run homer and Wray followed seconds later with a two-run blast.

Minico ruined Thompson's shutout big in the fourth when Danny Simmons walked, moved up on Schow's single and scored on Carson City's only error of the game.

Olympic games

Comaneci loses — on orders from gymnastics' president

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Russian president of the International Gymnastics Federation ordered judges to lower Romanian Nadia Comaneci's marks in a bitterly contested ruling that gave the women's overall title to a Russian gymnast Thursday on a day of constant controversy at the Moscow Olympics.

Comaneci needed a mark of 9.95 on her final beam routine to win the gold medal and some of the panel of six judges agreed to award it to her.

But a disagreement broke out among the judges and first Ellen Berger of East Germany, the chief of the technical board, and then Yuri Titov, the federation president, were called in to arbitrate.

"The mark was originally 9.95 but Berger and Titov used a rule to reduce by one per cent the judges' verdict," said a Soviet official, Comaneci's coach, which was the 16-year-old Romanian was given 9.85, which was only good enough for a tie for the silver medal with East German Maxi Gnauck while the gold went to Elena Davydova of the Soviet Union.

The dispute raged across the floor of the gymnasium for almost half an hour as the crowd whistled and boomed. Soviet television quickly cut out the scene and screens went blank.

There was an equally disputed disqualification in the 20-kilometer walk in which the two leading walkers were taken out of the race within sight of the finish in the stadium. The controversy overshadowed the first day of track and field, held under a scorching hot sun.

Davydova was one of the 15 Communist athletes who collected all but four of the 19 medals at stake of the fifth day of the boycott-riddled Games.

Davydova totaled 79.150 for the voluntary and compulsory exercises and East Germany's Maxi Gnauck, the overnight leader, and Comaneci were second with 79.075 to share the silver.

The Russians and East Germans together have won 67 per cent of all gold medals and 57 per cent of all medals awarded in the first six days of competition.

But almost everybody suffered from the heat which hit the mid 90s in Lenin Stadium where several athletes had to be carried off on stretchers during the Games' first day of track and field.

It was here that Nadezhda Tkachenko produced the most impressive of the world records. She led the Russians to a 1-2-3 sweep of the women's pentathlon, shattering the 5,000-point barrier with a gold medal-winning total of 6,083. She ran the 100-meter hurdles in 13.29, heaved the shot 55.3 feet, cleared 6-foot-6 in the high jump and 22.1 feet in the long jump and then ran the final 800 meters in 2:05.20.

The controversy surrounded the 20-kilometer walk in which Daniel Bautista of Mexico was disqualified while in the lead and then the Russian who took over from him, Anatoly Solomin, suffered the same fate just 400 meters from the stadium finish.

Both were called for "lifting" — the term used when walkers fail to keep one foot on the ground at all times; Bautista, the world record holder, has a new style which has stirred controversy before. Mexican officials, evidently fearing a disqualification, filmed the walk themselves and try to present it as evidence at their appeal.

Ralina Maurizio Damilano won the gold, somewhat to his surprise.

"I allowed my pace to avoid being disqualified too," he said later.

The only other gold medal in the Lenin Stadium, the women's shot put, was, just as controversial because it was won by Iona Supleanek. The East German was banned for life three years ago because she was caught using anabolic steroids.

But the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which has always bowed to pressure from Communist countries and reinstated doped athletes, lifted her suspension in 1978.

Supleanek won the event with an enormous heave of 73-6 1/4.

Another world record came in one of the four events which evaded the Eastern European blitz — the 4,000-meter individual cycling pursuit. The gold went to Robert Dill-Bundi of Switzerland, who set the mark of 43:29 in his semifinal.

Another world record came in the pool where Ute Geweniger of East Germany trimmed 9-100ths of a second from her own 100-meter breaststroke world record in the heats with a time of 1:10.1. It was the seventh world mark the East German women have either broken or equaled here.

Barbara Krause wrapped up the freestyle sprint double by winning the 200 meters in 1:58.33 while Karen Metzsch, a massive-shouldered 16-year-old who stands 6-3 and weighs 165 pounds, won the gold medal in the 500-meter butterfly in 1:00.42.

Meanwhile, Russia's Vladimir Salnikov, who won the 1,500-meter freestyle in world record time earlier this week, led from the gun to add the 400-meter freestyle gold to his medal collection and the Australian 4 x 100-meter medley relay team of Mark Kerry, Peter Evans, Mark Tonelli and Neil Brooks spoiled the Communist sweep by taking the Soviet's only second place in a nail-biting battle down the final length. Britain picked up the bronze.

The other world record of the day went to Igor Sokolov of the Soviet Union who hit 589 targets out of 600 in winning the running target shooting gold.

Russians also won the individual and team modern pentathlon, the 57, 82 and 100 plus kilogram Greco-Roman wrestling and the men's individual all-round gymnastics title won by Alexander Ditalin from former world and Olympic champion Nikolai Andrianov.

Pascal Trinet of France was the other surprise western winner, collecting the women's individual fencing gold medal.

An incident-packed day at the track saw one Olympic champion eliminated and another come close to losing his title.

Trinidad's Hasely Crawford, 100-meter gold medalist in Montreal four years ago, found himself drawn against four heat winners in the second round and could only place fifth in 10.28 seconds.

The scorching heat — the temperature soared to 92F in the stadium — took its toll of the 10,000-meter runners and nearly ended Lasse Viren's 8-year reign.

The 31-year-old Finn, needing to finish in the top four or among the three fastest losers to qualify for the semifinals, just made it.

Viren was fifth and suffering badly when the fourth runner, Ireland's John Treacey, collapsed 200 meters from the finish, suffering from heat exhaustion. The Irishman, suffering from dehydration, was carried from the arena and given a saline drip.

World record holder Sebastian Coe of Britain floated almost contemptuously through to the semifinals of the 800 meters, winning his heat in 1:48.5, a full six seconds outside his world mark.

His British archrival, Steve Ovett, looked equally impressive in winning his heat in 1:49.4 and East Germany's European champion, Olaf Beyer, the last man to beat both Britons two years ago, clocked a winning 1:48.9.

Some hints for area fishing

By STU MURRELL
Regional Conservation Educator
JEROME — Ever wondered what would be the best method for the fish species you're seeking?
I will give you the benefit of my experience in Idaho, although there are many other productive approaches that fishermen utilize.
• Rainbow trout generally like silver juries such as the Mepps, red-white cleardevil and the brown rooster tail with a silver or brass blade. They are also our most common species in reservoirs of region four and will take all the standard bait offerings such as corn, worms, marshmallows and one of the best, a nightcrawler and a marshmallow combination.
• Fly fishermen in a float tube regularly take nice rainbows in the reservoir bays while fishing with brown-green woolly worms on leech patterns with a sinking line. Best time for this type of fishing is late evening.

• We have a problem on our hot summer days of people leaving trout on a stringer near shore where water temperatures may reach 80 degrees. It's better to have an ice chest handy and place them in the cooler immediately.
• Brook trout are one of my favorite fishes since they utilize small streams or mountain lakes which I prefer to fish. The bait fisherman should use a small garden worm for best success since nightcrawlers are not a normal feed and usually are too big for the typical 6-8 inch brookie.
• This species does not normally like silver in a lure color but prefers brass or bronze types.
• Beaver ponds are always a good spot for brookies if they are present in a drainage and one technique is to come up from below the dam so they can't see you and then cast lightly over the top into the pond.
• A spin outfit with a No. 12 renegade fly on about two feet of two-pound test line below the buggie works well. This is one of my favorite combinations for fish of any species rising in a mountain lake.
• While fishing small mountain streams, be very cautious and tread lightly so you don't cause vibrations that might frighten the fish. Brookies don't keep well but are excellent eating when popped into the frying pan quickly. They normally tend to become too numerous in small drainages so keeping a limit of the extra 10 brookies allowed in region four is generally beneficial to the remaining fish population.

• The cutthroat is not numerous in most areas of region four but is planted regularly in high mountain lakes. Methods that work for the brookie usually will take cuts.
• Brown trout have been introduced into many waters of region four and are one of the more difficult species to take.
• Again the brass or bronze lures are better colors than silver. Whole nightcrawlers fished late in the evening or even after dark (there are no fishing hours in Idaho) are productive for the big boys.
• Most people tend to use too much weight and heavy lines. This is true of many trout fishermen I have observed in region four.
• I prefer a four-pound test ultralight outfit and let the worm drift naturally. Large nymph type of flies, muddier minnows (which resemble the small cutthroat that browns like) and grasshopper imitations are good for the larger browns.
• No matter what your preference in trout fishing, enjoy yourself even though you don't take a limit. We are well past the stage where meat is the only object. If that were the case, fish from the supermarket would be much cheaper if you compared gas, equipment and other costs involved in your recreation.
• Take a kid fishing.

Canyon Springs keeps lead

GOODING — Canyon Springs clung to its women's inter-city golf series seasonal lead by winning 10 points at Gooding Country Club Wednesday.
But Buhl, Twin Falls Muny and Jerome all made in-roads into the Canyon Springs' lead.
Buhl picked up 14 points, Jerome 13½ and Twin Falls 12½ to pull to within five points of the lead. Canyon Springs now has 55 for the year, followed by LTwin Falls muny at 52½, Buhl 42, Jerome 49½, Blue Lakes 41, Rupert 41½ and Burley 40½.

Virginia Uncltem of Twin Falls carded an 81 to win the individual gross prize while Kathy Borchard of Buhl had 87 and Ardith Morgan, Jerome, 89. They were followed by Shirley Blake at 92, Lucille Milton, Rupert, 93, and Margaret Struther, Blue Lakes; Frieda Richmond, Buhl, and Lenora Kasworm, Rupert, all 94.

—Twin Falls' Julie Hamblin ran off with net honors at 87, two ahead of Jerome's Norma Lowe. Also placing were Eleanor Garborg, Rupert, 70; Justine Messersmith, Jerome, and Grace Bennett, Twin Falls, both 71, and Ruth Crawford, Buhl, 72.

Whittaker takes two gun wins

JEROME — Dave Whittaker of Buhl took two events in the Snake River Handgun Silhouette shoot over the weekend.
Whittaker took the unlimited guns with a score of 24 and production guns at 31. Stu Murrell of Jerome won the standing class with 16. John Weston of Jerome and Larry Culver of Twin Falls took the short course production and short course standing with 21 and 20 points, respectively.
Weston also was the 22 calibre production winner with 17 while Nick Handerson, Jerome, had a 24 to win the 22 standing.
Women's prize went to Ila Bruner of Twin Falls with six.

Here's hints on porcupine invasions

TWIN FALLS — Porcupine depredation in Twin Falls brings some hints from Fish and Game Department Officer Kit Christenson.
Christenson reports he has received several calls this summer concerning damage but in just about all cases the porcupine is gone before he can respond.
He noted the best way of handling the animal is by placing a garbage can or box over it to contain it until he gets there. Christenson noted porcupines cannot "throw" their quills as some old wives' tales suggest. They deliver the quills by sweating their tails against their victim.
He noted if care is exercised to stay beyond the swing of the tail, there is little chance of a bad encounter between man and porcupine.

Johnson cited for auto thief

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta Hawks' guard Eddie Johnson, released two days ago from a drug rehabilitation clinic, was arrested Thursday night on auto theft charges.
Atlanta Police Sgt. Jim Stroud said Johnson, 25, was being detained in the city jail and expected bond to be set at $2,000.
Johnson is charged with stealing a brand new 1980 Porsche from an auto rental agency in the Buckhead section of Atlanta.
Paul Irsinghausen, owner of the car-rental firm, said Johnson jumped into the vehicle, which had the keys in it, and drove off shortly before 2 p.m. Thursday.

By Oswald Jacoby, and Alan Sontag

The crossruft hand is one in which declarer needs to ruff back and forth in order to make the trumps separately. Obviously, if you want to make trumps that way you cannot afford to play them out.

North's four-spade jump was preemptive! That bid is always a gamble but North really was gambling a trifle too much.

South's jump to seven was an even worse gamble. He did have all the aces, but there was no reason for him to play his partner for second-round heart control.

South won the first trick with dummy's four of trumps. He needed 12 more tricks for his grand slam. He could make three tricks with the three ace suits which meant that he needed nine trumps with trumps.

Fortunately, there were still five trumps in his hand and four in dummy so if he made them separately he had his grand slam.

All his trumps were high so he could crossruft without fear of an overruff. There was one problem left. West still held the trump five.

This meant that South should precede his crossruft by cashing the heart, diamond and club aces. This is standard with crossrufts. Get your off-suit tricks in first to guard against discards by opponents.

With the three aces in, South spread his hand since the crossruft could not be stopped.

Few women directors for TV, movies

By CHARLES SCHREGER

(C) The Los Angeles Times
As a recent study by the Directors Guild of America revealed, precious few women are working as directors in TV and the movies today. One sure way to increase the ranks of female directors is to train more. And one of the few places that has done this is the American Film Institute's Directing Workshop for Women.

Since the AFI's workshop began in 1974 more than 30 film professionals, including Lee Grant, Dyan Cannon and Anne Bancroft, have gone through the program. But the workshop has been on hold for about a year now, looking for support money.

It came earlier this week from the Ford Foundation in the form of a $100,000 grant, which will be used to help train another two dozen women. As with previous workshops, only women already working in the film and television industries in other capacities—as writers, producers, editors, actresses—are eligible.

Director Billy Wilder and his long-time writing partner I.A.L. Diamond are planning to collaborate again on a film for MGM, "Buddy, Buddy."

The film will star Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau. It will be the third time Lemmon, Matthau and Wilder have worked together. The trio also made "The Fortune Cookie" and "The Front Page." Lemmon has been directed by Wilder six times—the two films with Matthau, plus "Some Like It Hot," "The Apartment," "Irma La Douce" and "Avanti!"

Most movie producers think that once they've got an Oscar on their mantelpiece, they can sit back and relax. The offers will come pouring in, right?

Stanley Jaffe, who produced the Academy Award-winning "Kramer Vs. Kramer" might see things a little differently. Two of his films, "Taps" and "In a Lonely Place" were recently put into limbo-around by Columbia Pictures, the studio that released "Kramer."

(Turn-around is the polite film industry term for dropping a project. Technically, it allows another studio to become interested in a script or movie concept).

Falana agrees to work for free

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — For the first time in Las Vegas entertainment history, a major performer has agreed to work for free.

Entertainer Lola Falana said this show she will give up $300,000 and work her four-week engagement at the financially-troubled Aladdin Hotel without pay.

She waived a guaranteed $125,000 a week and said the show would open tonight as scheduled, preventing the layoff of more than 60 Aladdin showroom waiters, waitresses, busboys, cooks, and musicians.

"I feel it is my responsibility as a performer to go ahead with the show, there are a lot of people who have booked far in advance, it is not fair they should be 'turned away,'" said Miss Falana.

"I know employees' jobs are important to them, especially during these inflationary times." Hotel president Richard Daly said the announcement by Miss Falana was a "tremendous boost" for employees.

The casino at the Aladdin Hotel was closed by the Nevada Gaming Commission earlier this month, forcing hundreds of employees out of work.

It marked the first time in Las Vegas entertainment history that a major performer agreed to work without salary, other than for charity appearances.

Festival entries due Monday

SUN VALLEY — Artist interested in participating the the Twelfth Annual Sun Valley International Arts and Crafts Festival have until Monday to enter.

The festival runs from August 1-3, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

Entrants should submit at least five slides with complete description of each piece no later than Monday to: Festival Chairman Lonnie Meyer, Sun Valley Center, Box 656, Sun Valley, ID 83353.

A jury will judge all entries and present first place awards in each category, along with other prizes to be awarded.

For further information and registration phone the Sun Valley Center at 622-9371.

Choreographer from New York plans workshops

SUN VALLEY — New York choreographer Kathryn Posin and her four member company will begin the month of August in residency at the Sun Valley center for the Arts and Humanities.

Workshops will begin July 28 and run through August 22. In addition to conducting classes, Posin will polish a piece about the West titled "That Awesome Space," which will premier at the Sun Valley Opera House August 22.

For further information and to register for the Kathryn Posin four-week workshops, phone the Sun Valley Center at 622-9371.

21st Arts and Crafts show expands

Children will get their own show

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The annual Arts and Crafts show of the Art Guild of Magic Valley is being expanded again — this time with something special for the children.

The 21st annual show in the Twin Falls city park this weekend has a whole new division headed by Laura Hendrix-Branch of Twin Falls.

Although the youngsters are often not too welcome at art shows, this year the sponsors hope they will show up in record numbers. Hendrix-Branch has been working for weeks selecting special entertainment and art programs in which children can participate.

She emphasizes this new feature is not just to keep the children busy while mom and dad enjoy the show, but rather to help them learn about art.

"It's never too early for children to learn to understand and appreciate art," she said.

"The whole idea of the children's program is to show them some art they can enjoy doing and entertain them with different forms of art. At the same time they will be entering the process through which art holds an influence on their future lives. It will also give the children something to do besides follow the parents to their favorite show displays," she said.

Hendrix-Branch said there will be a roving musician, Jan Olsen, who will play music during the show and entertain the children mingling in the crowd. Ed Britt and Hendrix-Branch will conduct some theater games in which children will participate. There will be a puppet show and harmonica music by Thelma Clark, and some creative dance by Callie Dahley in which children can take part. The children's program will be in the playground area of the park. Children of all ages are welcome.

This year's show is sponsored by the Art Guild of Magic Valley and the Magic Valley Arts Council. As was introduced last year, the event will again feature the performing arts as well as favorite painters, sculptors and other artists.

Boe Hooker of Millers said the art guild members expect about 80 artists to participate again this year. There will be oil and watercolor paintings, jewelry making, pottery, sculpture, macramé, needlepoint, metal work, and some unique and original forms of arts and crafts. Some strained glass work will also be on display. Most of the items will have their work available for sale as well as display.

Some of the favorites returning include Gary Stone and his

Thelma Clark of Buhl will perform with a harmonica and 'The Rev. Mr. Black' on Sunday

wood carving; Donna Goodfellow of Ontario, Ore.; Joe Yates who uses an air brush for his work; Faye Kowalek, water color, and Paul Retzold who is coming from California but has not listed his type of entry.

Ted Hadley of Twin Falls, an art council member, said the performing arts portion of the show will range from opera renditions to folk songs and belly dancing.

Most of the performing groups are coming from the Twin Falls area, although the Lincoln County Players will present one of their famous melodramas and some Mexican music will be provided by a group that just finished a recording in California.

The Saturday events will include the Northwest Opera of Twin Falls from 12:30 to 1 p.m. with a number of light opera favorites and some serious opera renditions; the Snake River Brass from 1 to 2 p.m. This is followed by a group of local singers and instrumentalists performing until 4:45 p.m.

At that time dancers from Beverly Hackney's dance school will perform ballet.

At 5 p.m. the Society for the Creating Anachronisms will demonstrate dances, costumes and customs of medieval times. Hadley said this group makes extensive studies of various periods of time, then prepares dances which demonstrate the various countries, people of the era and their fashions and cultures.

Bluegrass and folk music will be offered at 8 p.m. by Kerry Curtis and Richard Sweet. At 7 p.m. the Magic Valley Christian Radio will sponsor Christian and gospel music.

Sunday's program includes the He-Top-fah Mid-East belly dancers at 1 p.m. with the Willadean dance school performing at 1:30 p.m. A city band concert follows at 2 p.m. with La Familia Mexicana performing at 3 p.m.

The Last Generation, a gospel group, is scheduled for 3 p.m. followed at 4:30 p.m. by the final event, the Lincoln County Players.

Their performance is "Purity Preserved — or How to Get Your Sugar Out of the Jam When the Heat is On."

There is no admission charge for the show, and everyone is invited to attend. Exhibitors from throughout Idaho and several other states will be here, Hooker said, with some new faces and talent as well.

example of the outstanding local talent and as in the past 21 years, the show is largely designed to promote the local artists and help them bring their work to the attention of local residents.

The guild, she said, does not charge a commission to the artists, but rather offers them a free opportunity to display work, meet other artists and offer their work for sale.

The Art Guild of Magic Valley was organized in 1956 by a small group of interested artists. Since then members have helped organize other art groups, provided scholarships for talented artists and sponsored shows and other events. Hooker said the shows have continued to grow and improve each year. New art forms have been shown here and many additional artists attracted to the show each year.

Gameshow winner becomes celebrity

SAW TONNELLIE dropping the name of Richard Nixon's dog, the Popeye cartoon theme song and the name of the longest river in Canada have helped make Navy pilot Thom McKee the idol of gameshow addicts.

McKee, 24, and wife, Jenny, 22, have become living-room legends to millions of Americans who have watched him soar to fame and fortune on the CBS television game show, Tic Tac Dough.

Since taping for the show began in March, McKee has won $229,000 in cash and prizes. According to the Guinness Book of World Records, that is the most that anyone has won on the regular program series.

His success has meant some changes in McKee's life style. He has made a down-payment on a four-bedroom house and has acquired $83,000 in prizes, including cameras, a piano, sailboats, five cars, three beds, a golden retriever named Martin, a driver, a range and much more.

"We never planned on winning this much money," said McKee, who began scrawling X's and O's between crossed lines when he was a child.

The television version of the children's game challenges contestants with questions about current events and ancient history, geography, and personalities and music. So far, McKee, a F-14 Tomcat pilot at Miramar Naval Air Station here, has won 57 straight games.

"God gave me a good memory," McKee said. "Not necessarily what I needed to know in college, but he let me retain stuff that was useless until I started playing Tic Tac Dough and then it came in very handy."

Handy is an understatement for the pilot who grew up in Rochester, N.Y., and who used to take encyclopedias with him to the bathroom as a boy. It would seem McKee has been preening his memory all his life.

An avid reader of National Geographic, almanacs and C.S. Lewis novels, McKee acquired a taste for trivia when he decided in 1973 to attend the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. Instead of Harvard.

"At the academy I had a radio show that was on every Monday night," McKee said. "I used to make up a lot of the questions and guys would call up and answer between the songs." They were actually harder than the ones they ask on Tic Tac Dough. Some of them were pretty obscure."

As a middle McKee had his memory taxed in other ways as well.

"They made you memorize all kinds of stuff," he said. "A book about Navy trivia and history, menus, the movies playing in town, the names of the officers on watch, how many days it was until the Army-Navy game, until Christmas leave, until graduation and all the other stuff. They made you memorize two articles off the newspaper's front page and on the sports page and you had to kick it back to them under pressure."

The Navy uniform McKee wears on the show has evoked response from viewers across the country.

Fellow pilots at Miramar have razzed McKee about his earnings and fame, according to his commanding officer, Gary Hakanson.

"He takes a lot of kidding about it," Hakanson said. "Everyone wants his money and his Butch's." McKee taped another show last weekend. But viewers will not know if he retained his title until September, when that program will be aired. "There's anyone getting nervous I guess it's me," he said, adding that he has thumbed through almanacs and played the home version of the game to brush up.

Steve McQueen may be over slump

Q: I loved Bette Midler in "The Rose," her first film, and I heard she's making a movie based on one of her shows. Can you tell us more? —R.F. of Akron, Ohio.

A: The movie is called "Divine Madness" and it's due out in September. We caught a sneak preview a while back near Chicago. Filmed in Hollywood, the whole thing is a splashy affair with many backdrops, including one of Mr. Rushmore, with Bette coming things up to a TBS-TV special. She sings old songs and some new material, tells mildly raunchy jokes, and in all, it's a side of Bette not yet seen on the large screen.

Q: Will Julie Andrews actually appear made in her next movie? I read that she's thinking of dropping on-camera but can't believe she'll actually go through with it. —J.M. of Phoenix.

A: Julie recently finished shooting the film "S.O.B." for husband Blake Edwards, who's directing the movie. Julie plays a light-opera star turned to spicy filmmaking after her G-rated movie career flops. At any rate, Julie reportedly dropped a nooded strip. Exactly how much she takes of remains to be seen, but don't be too surprised if the personification of Mary Poppins goes topless on the big screen.

Q: How does Brooke Shields feel about the mixed reviews for her new movie, "The Blue Lagoon"? —L.T. of St. Louis.

A: We were asked the stunning young beauty about the lukewarm critical reception to her film, she quickly replied: "Frankly, it doesn't matter. To tell the truth, it was expected." She added that she doesn't believe everything she reads in the papers, anyway. Others—apparently—don't either, because the flick (in which Brooke and Christopher Atkins portray two sexy young kids who become teen-age lovers) has blossomed into a summertime hit at the box office, and that's the bottom line.

Q: Someone told me that Audrey Hepburn is a real nut about shopping. Is she? —Y.M. of Spokane.

A: Perhaps she's not a shopping nut, but Audrey does have a connection with two famous stores. During the filming in New York of "They All Laughed," Audrey's latest movie opposite Ben Gazzara, she arrived at 6:30 one morning for a scene on location off the chic Bergdorf Goodman department store. With sales personnel on hand at that unlikely hour, Audrey managed some quick purchases between takes—including a pink silk dress, some nightgowns and shoes. Trivia buffs noted that Bergdorf's is kity-cornered from Tiffany's, the famed jewelry emporium that was featured in Audrey's 1961 hit, "Breakfast at Tiffany's."

Q: Good Morning America is my favorite a.m. TV show but what I don't understand is why the women on the show seem so much in the background. How come there isn't a powerful woman? —Barbara Walters sharing the spotlight with David Hartman? —T.K. of Pasadena.

A: The answer is that David Hartman doesn't want to share the spotlight. A strong woman wouldn't have a chance on that show, and the women who are regulars are smart enough to know it. You can ask Sandy Hill, who finally gave up her co-hosting spot to switch to special features.

DESIRING A DINGBAT — Although Edith Bunker is slated to be officially killed off, Jean Stapleton and her Archie, Carroll O'Connor, still have something going. O'Connor and his real-life wife, Nancy, died recently in Hollywood with Jean and her husband, Bill Fitch, and O'Connor offered to produce a TV show starring Jean on her own. She didn't jump at the offer but said she thought Carroll would make a great TV producer.

CASTRO CRACKUP: Cuban refugee doctors claim that there are constant rumors among Havana physicians that Fidel Castro has been suffering from depression and paranoia. They say that before Castro's 1979 address to the United Nations, a whole wing of a major hospital was closed off while Castro received electro-sleep therapy, a form of electronic hypnosis administered by Russian doctors, so that Fidel would be able to speak before the U.N. There are also rumors that Castro is heavily into voodoo, and one of the reasons he was so touchy is because one of them covers a voodoo amulet.

Q: Do you think that Steve McQueen will ever make another hit movie? He seems to have been hit so many box office dogs lately. —C.S. of San Jose.

A: There's no question that Steve's last two movies—the unreleased "An Enemy of the People" and the poorly received Western "Tom Horn"—were no towering infernos. But his next outing, "The Hunter," due in August, looks promising. Steve plays an aging bounty hunter on the run in Chicago. There's plenty of "Bullitt"-style action and gumplay, some humor and a touch of romance involving Steve's young co-star, actress Kathryn Harrold. Movie insiders say McQueen seems to have regained his former winning stride.

Q: I've read reports that many minutes of running time have been cut from the original print of the movie comedy "Airplane." What was taken out and why? —E.S. of Tampa, Fla.

A: Much footage of questionable taste (even for this outrageous takeoff of plane disaster flicks) has wound up on the cutting room floor. For example, a sequence set in the control room, in which a screen crew delivers very campy dialogue about famed movie stars, was hastily scissored because it was guaranteed to offend just about everybody.

Q: What are the chances that Mick and Bianca Jagger will get back together? —G.S. of Valley Stream, N.Y.

A: There's virtually no chance of a reconciliation between the divorced Mick and Bianca, but that doesn't mean the two can't remain friends socially. Despite their much-contested financial settlement, the pair occasionally rubs elbows in public. Our Paris spies were surprised to see them share a table at a recent pop party in the City of Light. The shocker was that model Jerry Hall, Mick's current girlfriend, was sealed with them.

Q: Fill me in on Richard Burton's first wife, Sybil. Is she still married to Jordan Christopher? —O. McD. of Little Rock.

A: Yes, they're still happily married, much to the surprise of Sybil's friends, who begged her not to marry Jordan, then a pop singer and 13 years younger than she. The Christopheres have had some rough times while Jordan tried to make it as an actor, but things have improved recently. He has landed a regular role on "Secrets of Midland Heights," an evening TV show that is scheduled to air in the fall. It's designed to further utilize viewers who enjoy programs like "Dallas."

BETTE MIDLER
... A concerted effort

Q: What did Dorothy Lamour think of the remake of her 1937 movie, "Hurricane"—F.H. of Ringwood, N.J.

A: We asked Dorothy that. Guess what? Dottie, as she likes to be called, confessed she never saw Dino DeLaurentis' 1979 version of "Hurricane" that starred Mia Farrow.

Q: It struck me as funny to read that John Travolta told Paramount to retouch his publicity photos for "Urban Cowboy" to make his thighs appear slimmer. Is this really so? —L.P. of Wallingford, Conn.

A: It's the truth, all right. John's known to be quite self-conscious about his thighs, which he considers heavy. At his instruction, newspaper and magazine photos showing his jean-clad legs standing at a bar were subjected to retouch surgery. Ironically, John's edict didn't extend to the picture used on the cover of the "Urban Cowboy" soundtrack record album. In this instance, the original still is reproduced, complete with beefy thighs.

JUST CAN'T HACK IT: Only the other weekend, crowds outside a department store in New York City were mesmerized by a character who was clowning around with a big hockey stick. If you looked closely, you would have recognized comedian Buddy Hackett swinging at an imaginary puck, causing startled shoppers to leap out of his way while he doubled over with laughter. What Hackett was doing with his outrageous sidewalk antics on the sidewalk of New York City's grandest department store, but if you want exposure, outdoors is the right place.

A: Being independently wealthy, Ethel doesn't have to work for a paycheck. She recently instructed her manager to turn down concert engagements until the fall since she wants to spend the summer with friends in Long Island and Connecticut. Ethel also turned down a $75,000 offer to sing "There's No Business Like Show Business" at an early-morning industrial show. Show business is fine, said Ethel, 71, but not at 6 o'clock in the morning. In the meantime, you can see Ethel in a marvelously whacky cameo in the aforementioned "Airplane."

HOKUM AND YOKUM: L'il Abner is alive and well and looks a lot like Joe Namath. Fans of retired football star Namath can see him perform as the Dogpatch hero in a revival of the Broadway musical playing in Atlanta, Kansas City, Tulsa, and St. Louis. L'il Abner was always a really going to have to call on his dramatic ability.

Q: We saw and loved the Bob Fosse movie, "All That Jazz" which we read was largely autobiographical. Tell us, has he settled down as a result of his heart attack? —D.H. of Danbury, Conn.

A: Fosse, 52, is still a great man with the ladies, and there's a new one almost every week. Recently he appeared before a college group in his lecture series and added a strikingly beautiful coed to the stable of ladies he acquires around town. And, of course, she seems totally smitten.

ARETHA FRANKLIN
... Disco's gotta go

Q: Singer Aretha Franklin is so marvelous in "The Blues Brothers" movie. Why has her career been going badly of late? —K.N. of Millwaukee.

A: Aretha, as her movie appearance indicates, is by no means washed up. True, her powerful singing style has been out of favor among laid-back disco enthusiasts, but as disco wanes, Aretha will reign again, we expect. She's changed record labels, and in her new album, word is Aretha is as powerful as usual, but with even more mellowness in her voice.

CLOSE CALL: "It has been pretty well hushed up that Anjelica Huston, daughter of John Huston and girlfriend of Jack Nicholson, went through the windshield in a head-on auto collision. A 16-year-old boy was driving the other car. For a while, it was thought plastic surgeons would have to be called in to repair the damage to Anjelica's nose, but it has healed without any problem."

Basketball's Jabbar finds new forte

By LEE GRANT
 © The Los Angeles Times
 LOS ANGELES — Night after night during the long professional basketball season, public address announcers at arenas throughout the country — the Kingdome in Seattle, Madison Square Garden in New York City, the Spectrum in Philadelphia, the Forum in Inglewood, Calif. — introduce one basketball player this way:

"At center, from UCLA, 7 feet 11 and 7-8 inches, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar!"

In 11 years with the NBA, he has been most valuable player six times, more than any other of his colleagues, and this year came a crowning achievement: leading with balletic grace the Los Angeles Lakers to the NBA championship.

The dour of the sporting crown now behind him at least for the moment, Abdul-Jabbar can focus on another passion, a different kind of public appearance — the movies.

This man is finding admiring notices not for performing seriously against the New York Knicks' Bill Cartwright but for performing comedy on the screen in Paramount's hit of the summer, "Airplane!"

In it, Abdul-Jabbar takes the role of a co-pilot Roger Murdock. The pilot (Clarence Graves) is called Clarence Oveur.

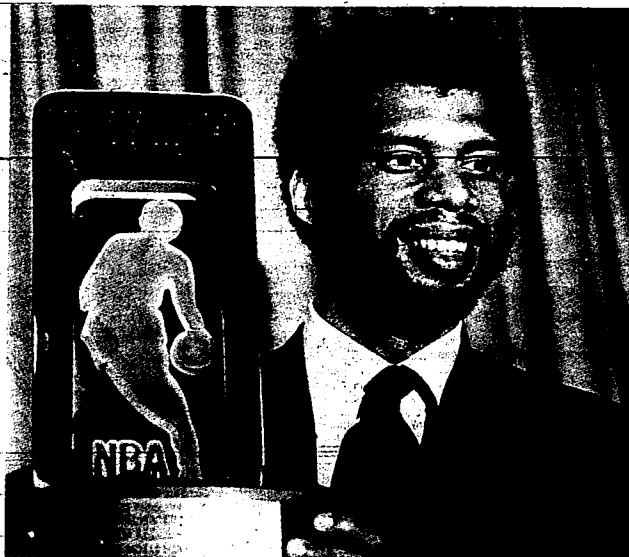

Abdul-Jabbar to Graves: "We have clearance, Clarence."

Graves to Abdul-Jabbar: "Roger, Roger."

And then this moment — a young boy visits the cockpit only to recognize the co-pilot Roger for who he really is, a famous basketball player.

"Wait a minute, you're Kareem Abdul-Jabbar," he said. "I think you're the greatest but my defense, that lots of times you don't even run up and down the court. . . and you don't even try anything in the playoffs."

At first denying his basketball identity, Abdul-Jabbar finally steps out of the co-pilot character to answer: "I've been hearing that crap ever since I was at UCLA. . . I'm out there busting my buns every night. . . tell your old man to drag Walton and Lanier up and down the court for 48 minutes."

Abdul-Jabbar nestled himself into a chair at the offices of his business manager. This is an athlete who needs a business manager. His salary with the Lakers has been hiked from $550,000 a year to about $1 million.

"Movies have a lure," he said. "Everybody thinks they can act. See a great actor delivering his lines and you say 'I can do that.'"

Abdul-Jabbar is not yet a great actor but his performance in "Airplane!" is natural and unassuming. He, in a sense, also helped guide the production.

"They had Africans with bones in their noses dancing around pots. It was derogatory to blacks. The directors were sensitive enough to take those scenes out."

Abdul-Jabbar is a film buff, attending madams as a child with his mother while growing up in New York City. "I like Westerns and particularly Randolph Scott," he said. "As a little boy, I identified with other little boys in the movies. One of my favorite films was 'Shane.'"

Over the years a reputation has built around Abdul-Jabbar that this is a polite, defensive, intellect-like equities, yielding, uncommunicative man.

Those who know him find it not to be so. His friends see an intelligent, articulate and sensitive person who at moments can be the life of the party. With strangers, he is pleasant though reserved, speaking thoughtfully, often flashing a broad smile coupled with deep laughter. "The Big Guy" as his teammates call him, is a nice guy.

Abdul-Jabbar is comfortable with the satirical though sometimes silly humor of "Airplane!" At one point in the film, actor Robert Hays says to Leslie Nielsen: "Surely, you can't be serious." Responds Nielsen: "Of course I'm serious, and don't call me Shirley."

At a private screening for Abdul-Jabbar the other evening, some friends and local sports reporters joined him and daughter Fatima, 8, and son Abdul-Kareem, 4. There is another daughter, Sultana, 1. Little Kareem kept chattering at the screen, "That's you again, Daddy."

Bitten by the acting bug, Abdul-Jabbar is on the lookout for new roles. His roster includes a martial-arts movie called "Game of Death," made with the late Bruce Lee, a close friend. There also have been television appearances — "The Man From Atlantis," "Mammi," "Emergency" and "Laugh-In."

"There are not a hundred roles out there for me to do," he said, "but I could get into something serious."

One thing Abdul-Jabbar won't do is a black exploitation film in the genre of "Superfly." "They don't portray life as it really is," he said. "That's all about making a quick buck. They're not realistic and I find that demeaning."

Abdul-Jabbar is neither a regular presence on TV commercials nor does he have numerous endorsement contracts like, say O.J. Simpson, another athlete. "I just haven't gotten the offers," he said, contemplating the reasons.

"I'm someone who has taken a stance as a Muslim, 7 feet tall and have talked publicly about things racial. It makes someone selling a product think twice about using me."

"With O.J., there isn't much trouble identifying with him. I don't think there's been anything in my life morally wrong but people still say to themselves privately, never upfront, 'You're not like the rest of us,' and they don't use me."

"Anyway, I'm going to show everyone that I'm a better actor than O.J. Simpson." With that came a broad smile.

Novel mixes postdoctoral probes with theory

By DON STRACHAN
 Special To The Los Angeles Times
 (TIMESCAPE, by Gregory Benford — Simon & Schuster, $11.95) Don Strachan is writing a science fiction.

This is the latest in what seems to be a new trend in highbrow science fiction — novels mixing postdoctoral probes with leading-edge scientific theory, adding rather more attention to such literary staples as characterization and human interaction.

In this case, theory comes from teaching courses for a sprawling emotional particle physics. Time travel? Concentric universes? Anything is possible. Ever hear of a tachyon? It's a subatomic particle that travels faster than light. Don't exist. So far, it's just a mote in writers' eyes.

Benford's novel is about an attempt to send a Morse-code message by way of Tachyon Express back through time from a tomorrow doomed by pesticide-caused plankton "blooms" that spray death on every wind and rain. The message is beamed at a physics lab in La Jolla, Calif., in 1963 — a warning that could literally change history and reroute an ecological "On the Beach."

Does the book work? I'll have to evoke the Literary Uncertainty Principle: I Don't know. An ambitious work, "Timescape" reaches for a sprawling emotional landscape, set in an almost Henry Jamesian steady-state bereft of kinetic energy beyond an occasional nucleating sharp word.

"Timescape" is the intricate double-entendre title since Within You, Without You" is an admirable attempt to bridge the gap between Snow's Two Cultures, though you never, for a moment doubt which of the two bred the author. The book luxuriates with laboratory-circuit anecdotes about top real-life physicists, and there's even a loving remembrance of a Freeman Dyson colloquium on Project Orion.

On the novelistic end, some aspects have charm while some need further testing. The story is strong, and eked out in well-proportioned droplets. The two-person scenes at their best, intellect-like equities, yielding epiphanous growth in the characters. The writing, especially the descriptive writing, can be as sharply honed as Occam's Razor, as when Benford describes a character who has "the kind of barrel chest which, when he relaxed would suddenly reveal itself to be merely an elevated stomach, held aloft with resolve."

Of the characters, two are drawn with true literary cunning. The most attractive is Gregory Markham, whom, I suspect, given a faint stiffness in the writing and in the other characters, is Benford's alter ego. No matter; he's charming. The most interesting is Ian Peterson, a government top dog. Peterson is a brilliant study in emotional impotence and alienation, but I feel more sympathy for him than I think Benford intends.

But the book suffers from a couple of serious failures. The first is the Unstranded Double Heir effect: falling to weave the human drama into the tapestry of the novel. Benford cooks up domestic stries, personality conflicts and scientific-political intrigues galore, but they all run along in separate, future parallel, but separate, from the tachyon beeps and festering Armageddon.

The other is the complexity of the physics. Frank Herbert's "Dune Messiah" more successfully treated a similar idea of shaping the future by peering toward "probability predictions." Herbert's secrets were more drama and less Physics Review.

But Benford's book is too good where it's good: to be called a failure. Scientists will scarp up the shavetail; intelligence laymen will battle their way through the denser parts for the concepts. As for the busy, the unintelligent, and the cerebral, they may feel like they're back in school and opt to wait for the Classic Canon. Time News, Twin Falls, Idaho 7

'Enos' spinoff picked to be a hit

(C) The Washington Post
Sonny Shroyer, the bucolic wonder who plays deputy sheriff Enos on "The Dukes of Hazzard," is a worried man. He is working on his own one-hour comedy-adventure series, "Enos," and wishes people would quit speculating that it will be a success.
"Everyone in the country predicted 'The Dukes of Hazzard' would be a flop," he draws, "and it's a big hit. Now they're saying that 'Enos' is going to be a hit and I Just know this will ruin it."

Shroyer, a country-boy smart and skilled by a bachelor of business administration from the University of Georgia, has carefully bedged this bet.
"I didn't want to get off 'The Dukes of Hazzard,'" he says. "It has been a steady paycheck, and I would rather be a working actor than a broke movie star."
The producers at Warner Bros. provided a guarantee: If "Enos" doesn't make it after the first 13 episodes, then Shroyer will be able to go back to his role in "Dukes."

Such caution is customary for Shroyer, a 4-foot-2 man who weighs 200 pounds and is 44 years old. He seems younger but claims that is "because my voice never changed."
"My daddy used to say, 'Boy, that laugh of yours is going to get you into trouble some day.' I reckon it has."
The man's laugh is only one of Shroyer's distinctive traits. He thinks the viewing audience identifies with Enos' "honesty, innocence and naivete. They like his being so down-to-earth and likeable. Of course, his appreciation for Daisy helps, too."

In the new series Enos will leave Hazzard County to go to the Los Angeles Police Department, where he acquires a partner, a black officer from a ghetto in Chicago. "We learn to get along," Shroyer says, "and we learn to love each other."
After that, Enos will simulate, ruin police raids and somehow come out on the side of right, justice and honor.

Sonny Shroyer may also be pleased to learn that not everyone is predicting success for "Enos." Forecaster Herb Jacobs of Telcom Inc., a formidable predictor of ratings, says that "Enos" will be third in its time period on Wednesday nights (on CBS), a comfortable distance behind "Eight Is Enough" (ABC) and "Real People" (NBC).
That kind of forecast makes Sonny Shroyer certain of a fine future.
