

Allen poised to smash Gulf Coast

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (UPI) — Hurricane Allen, a monster storm that "fills up the Gulf of Mexico," boiled toward the Texas-Mexico coastline Friday with an awesome fury that was expected to grow.

Thousands of Texans boarded up their property on the coastal barrier islands and fled inland. Allen, slowing regaining lost strength, pulled loose from the Yucatan peninsula and bore west by northwest at 18 mph. Forecasters said that path would bring it ashore between Brownsville and Corpus Christi by Saturday afternoon.

Civil Defense Director Ken Keller in Aransas Pass on the north side of Corpus Christi Bay ordered the evacuation of the city's 7,000 residents by midnight because of expected 4- to 6-foot tides. He said most already had left during the earlier voluntary evacuation of the county.

Rob Hewes reported, "the roads are packed with people heading west, but people are leaving in an orderly fashion."

In a precautionary move, Louisiana's lower Cameron Parish, population 6,000, was ordered evacuated by Civil Defense officials. Director Pete Picou said he expected 95 percent compliance by nightfall.

Natural gas and crude oil fields in south Texas were shut down, causing a modest reduction in power generation at the state.

Atlantic hurricane in record after sideswiping Haiti, Jamaica, Cuba and the Yucatan, claiming 102 lives and causing millions of dollars in damage.

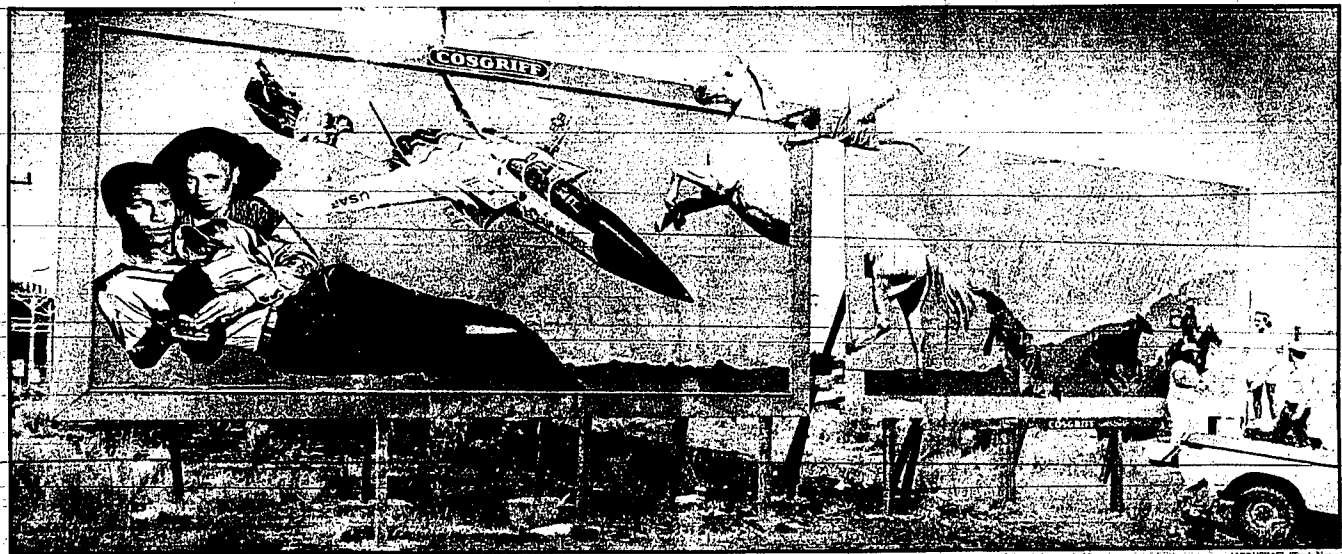

The storm slowly gained strength as it moved across the Gulf waters, made abnormally warm by the summerlong heatwave. Warm water was expected to cause the hurricane to regain its incredible strength after its 185 mph winds were knocked down to 135 mph by the Yucatan jungles. Satellite photos showed it literally filling the entire Gulf of Mexico, poised on the edge of Northern Mexico, Texas and Louisiana.

The Miami Hurricane Center upgraded its hurricane watch to a hurricane warning for the entire Texas coast at noon Friday.

Texas Adjutant General W.L. Scott said 2,500 National Guard troops were put on standby alert, but would not be activated until the target of the hurricane became clearer.

A steady stream of campers, pickup trucks and cars rolled off of the causeway from Port Isabel, the southernmost town on Padre Island, effectively clearing all but the most stubborn residents from Gulf-front land along the entire southern Texas coast.

At 4 p.m. MDT the eye was 310 miles east-southeast of Brownsville moving west-northwest at 18 mph. It was expected to remain on the same general course through midday Saturday.

The medium was the message Thursday when students of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and the Humanities decorated billboard near Shoshone.

Art-class project outside Shoshone grabs your eye, but what does it mean?

By RON ZELLAR Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — "They came to Shoshone," the sign says in bright letters.

But who are they? Why is an Air Force F-14 buzzing the VO couple and the Marlboro man? And who is that hanging onto the White Horse's tail.

Two billboards with a single message erected this week on the southern approach to Shoshone raise more questions than they answer, concede San Francisco artists Mike Mandel and Larry Sullivan.

Space for the bizarre statement was donated by Shelby Outdoor Advertising, Twin Falls, which recently purchased Cosgrill Advertising billboards. But the 12-by-48-foot message is more a proclamation or a puzzle than an advertisement.

The creation is the final project of students participating in a two-week seminar at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

Titled "The Altered Landscape," the class was one of a series of seminars on themes suggested by the center's Awesome Space Conference earlier this spring, said Mark Klett, assistant director of photography. Class participants filled two entire billboards, and left a couple figurines dangling over the edges.

The students may have wanted to alert automobile drivers passing through the desert to the "oncoming modernity" of Shoshone and the Ketchum-Sun Valley resort area, Sullivan said.

"Then too, you can consider the 'they' being us. We wanted to create a tribute to Shoshone — help the city celebrate its charm," he added.

Shoshone Mayor E.R. Werry said he wasn't quite sure what to make of the massive structure. "It's quite a deal, I'll say that," Werry said. "I don't know what it all represents but whoever put it all ought to get a prize."

Students employed photo murals and advertising imagery taken out of context to produce their altered landscape. The VO couple and the White Horse are trademarks of liquor companies. The F-14 came from a recurring ad.

Photomurals of class members supplemented the advertising cut-outs, giving the final product a personal touch.

Mandel said the project questions the subliminal effect advertising has on its audience. But he added that the class "left a lot for people to project into" when designing their masterpiece.

"The message will stand until Sept. 1, when it will be replaced by more conventional advertising," said Diane Shelby of Shelby Advertising.

"I think it's great that they picked Shoshone to do it," Werry said. "I went out to take a picture of it. I had to use three to get it all in."

Bell System nearing strike deadline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Communications Workers President Glenn Watts said Friday his union and the Bell System were "still far apart" as negotiations entered a critical stage to avert a nationwide telephone strike at midnight Saturday.

Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service officials reported that continuous negotiations were in progress on a number of different levels on both local and national issues.

Chief federal mediator Wayne

Horvitz promised his agency would keep working with both sides "in an all-out effort to secure a contract and avoid a strike in the industry."

The Bell system services about 60 million residential customers and 12 million businesses throughout the United States.

If a strike by about 700,000 Bell workers in the CWA and two other unions does occur, AT&T officials forecast little disruption in normal telephone service.

However, neither side was predicting that a tentative agreement could be reached before the informal strike deadline at 12:01 a.m. EDT Sunday when the current three-year pact expires.

"We are still far apart," said Watts, whose union already has rejected an immediate 7.5 percent wage boost with increases of up to 8 percent each of the next two years depending on the cost of living.

The union is seeking to prevent erosion in the standard of living of its members, and Watts has said that will require a 14.4 percent increase in wages and non-wage provisions.

The CWA took out advertisements in 14 major newspapers earlier this week calling attention to the strike deadline, but at the same time Watts said in a radio interview he did not expect a strike.

AT&T officials also expressed confidence a strike would be averted.

FTC charges GM sold cars with defects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission, pledging a continuing crackdown on the auto industry, Friday accused General Motors of selling millions of cars since 1975 with "defects" that could cost consumers $50 million to repair.

It was the third action against a major automaker in recent months, and one FTC official said it marks an "important step" toward a bill of rights for the nation's automobile buyers.

Unlike Chrysler and Ford, which were involved in earlier FTC actions, GM did not agree to take voluntary steps to settle the dispute before the agency issued a formal complaint against it.

A company spokesman in Detroit called the FTC complaint "unwarranted" and said GM intends "to contest the charges vigorously."

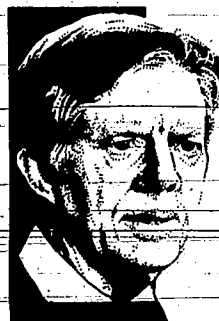

The complaint alleges defects in at least 4 million cars, some of them possibly having more than one of the problems. They are:

• Compact or mid-sized Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs, Buicks and Cadillacs built since 1976 with GM's "THM 200" series automatic transmissions. The agency said the transmissions may have been too light for the cars and have shown an "abnormally high" failure rate.

• Premium Camaro vans in 305 and 350-cubic-inch V-8 engines built from 1975 through 1980 for Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs and Buicks. The agency said certain motor oils do not provide sufficient anti-wear protection for the parts, but GM failed to mention that until this year's owners' manual.

Kennedy rallies forces for final stand

JIMMY CARTER In the driver's seat

NEW YORK (UPI) — With Sen. Edward Kennedy saying he is the only Democrat that can beat Ronald Reagan, President Carter's forces showed new confidence Friday they would be in almost total control of the Democratic convention.

There were growing indications the Carter troops had stifled the drive for a so-called "open" convention and would win a fight on the controversial "faithful delegate" rule. If they win that roll call in the opening session Monday night, "it guarantees Carter's renomination Wednesday."

Predicting a "substantial" victory on the rules fight, Carter chairman Robert Strauss acknowledged that campaign strategists had considered releasing the president's delegates, "but we found absolutely no support for it. In fact, we found tremendous resentment."

Kennedy arrived early at the convention for a long weekend of frantic campaigning to break Carter's lock on the convention.

"You can't straitjacket the voters in November," Kennedy told reporters when he arrived in the city. "And you shouldn't straitjacket the delegates here."

Showing no inclination toward compromise or party unity, Kennedy repeatedly attacked Carter during the rally.

"I say we cannot afford to nominate a Democratic candidate who will be quoting Herbert Hoover in the fall," he said. "I say the four years we've had already are four years too many!"

But the Carter camp was predicting it would win the Monday night rules battle with between 450 and 500 votes to spare.

Jim Johnson and Richard Moore, two top staffers of Vice President Walter Mondale who had been closely involved in delegate watching, said the dispute is all but over now.

"We've got it wrapped up," Johnson said.

Kennedy began his last-ditch drive buoyed by some good news from the polls — the most recent Gallup Poll showing him only 4 percentage points behind the president in the preference of Democrats nationwide.

Meanwhile, a group of Democratic women, including former Rep. Bella Abzug, formed the Concerned Coalition for Women's Rights to push for stronger stands favoring the Equal Rights Amendment and federal funding for abortion.

The coalition included some Carter backers, but was largely made up of Kennedy delegates.

Experts say they can predict volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — A new lava 'dome' is forming 125 feet below the top of the inner crater on volatile Mount St. Helens, scientists reported Friday as the volcano trembled with small earthquakes and burped plumes of steam and ash skyward following its fifth big eruption.

Scientists expressed confidence they can now predict any further major eruptions.

The mountain formed a lava dome earlier this year but it was destroyed in a July 22 eruption.

The volcano boomed with two distinctive blasts Thursday that sent ash clouds as high as eight miles into the sky and spilled super-hot, gas-and-pumice over the rim of its huge crater.

But U.S. Geological Survey scientists and volcanologists who have monitored the ravaged volcano since it first began acting up in March, issued a warning in time to safely evacuate several hundred geologists, Forest Service firefighters and loggers working in the volcano's "red zone."

Officials, now confident that the scientists' early warning watch is effectively lifting the 20-mile restriction around the base of the mountain and allowed loggers, firefighters and scientists to approach within 12 miles of the crater.

The volcano has settled into an earthquake and harmonic tremor pattern which gives warning of impending major eruptions, said Tim Hult of the USGS. In addition, Dave Harris, a volcanic gases expert for the federal agency, said his studies of sulfur dioxide and carbon dioxide emissions from the fuming mountain are giving clues that enable him know when its explosive potential is building.

"This might be a way for predicting or watching for eruptions," he said. The volcano puffed steam and ash to 19,000 feet Friday. Small earthquakes shook the mountain again an hour later, shooting steam several thousand feet from the mile-wide crater floor to the rim of the unsettled volcano, he said.

Art VanBuskirk, of the National Center for Disease Control, said from volcano watch headquarters that reports of light ash fall came from 130 miles north of the volcano at Monroe, more than 200 miles northwesterly in Omak, and 50 miles southwest in the Portland, Ore. area.

Residents in the city of Wenatchee, Wash., located 120 miles northeast, reported that a mixture of rain and ash fell like heavy fog. VanBuskirk said that the Centralia-Chehalis area, 50 miles northwest of the mountain, had heavy amounts of the gritty, sand-like substance.

An ash cloud from Mount St. Helens passed over the Idaho Panhandle Thursday night and early today, but it left virtually no fallout, authorities said.

George Yansky, a forecaster for the National Weather Service at Boise, said one observer in Bonner County reported the only way he could detect the ash was to run his hand across his car's windshield — the fine material was invisible, but it could be felt.

TMI officials want national cleanup help

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Restoration of the disabled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant will cost double the original estimate and take 2 1/2 years longer than expected, company officials said Friday.

They proposed utility customers across the United States share in paying for the damage caused by the March 28, 1979, accident.

General Public Utilities Corp. estimated the cost at $255 million, or double the $400 million projected a year ago, and said decontamination of the highly radioactive plant would last until November 1985.

GPU Chairman Herman Dieckamp indicated the total revised cost of the accident could reach $2.8 billion when it includes the projected $1.2 billion to $1.9 billion cost of replacing power lost.

Dieckamp said GPU believed it wasn't practical to convert the disabled nuclear power generator into a coal or gas plant. The firm proceeded with that assumption, it would be rehabilitated as a nuclear facility, he said.

"To the extent that we see it today, the economics are overwhelmingly in favor of restoration," said Dieckamp. "Certainly we would favor proceeding on the lowest cost basis. Conversion to coal is not an attractive alternative."

Dieckamp said GPU was in "a tenuous financial situation" because of the accident, adding he would like public utility commissions would help the firm avert bankruptcy.

He said insurance would cover about $30 million in the costs of the cleanup, and GPU would welcome assistance of $55 million from its proposed industry-wide financial aid program.

Robert C. Arnold, a GPU vice president in charge of its recovery and Dieckamp each said GPU had discussed the cost-sharing plan with industry executives and said it had been received by positive responses.

"There is a general sharing of the view that this was the industry's accident," said Arnold. He said the industry should share the cost of the accident because other nuclear companies were learning from it as a means of preventing mishaps of their own.

Dieckamp said a levy on all U.S. customers who use power generated in nuclear plants, at a rate of less than 10 cents per month per customer, would produce a fund of $100 million a year to help GPU and other nuclear companies in similar predicaments.

So far, the public utility commissions in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, where GPU's 1.5 million customers are located, have granted rate increases totaling $263 million because of the accident.

Food stamp recipients must work?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Friday proposed regulations to force able-bodied food stamp recipients to look for jobs actively or be dropped from the program.

Food stamp recipients who failed to look for jobs or report for interviews at their state employment offices would be dropped from the program for two months, under the rules proposed by the agriculture and labor departments.

Recipients would not have to register for work if they are elderly, disabled, working, responsible for care of dependents or registered for work under the unemployment insurance and work incentive programs.

The rules, if adopted early next year after two months of public comment, would carry out a portion of food stamp legislation enacted in 1977. Officials said the proposal completes implementation of changes in the 1977 law.

Under the proposed rules, work registrants would have to contact between eight and 24 potential employers within an eight-week period an expert to their employment counselors for at least two follow-up visits.

Most of the folks in Galveston, Texas, are getting set to evacuate the city a jump ahead of Hurricane Allen, but Gertrude Frank isn't one of them. Says she, "I'm 83 years old. What's the use of my running around the world. Anyway, if you've got to go..." Jim Maloney isn't leaving either. He's a 22-year-old surfing enthusiast, and his heart is ready. Says he, "Hopefully there's a swell that comes ahead of the hurricane..."

BLESSED MEEK
Humility is a Christian virtue and Mother Teresa apparently has more than her share of it. The now-famed Roman Catholic nun who won the Nobel Peace Prize for her work among the poor of India, visited the poor of New York's South Bronx Thursday — completely overlooked by reporters and photographers who normally stalk the celebrated. Said a spokeswoman, "Mother Teresa is a woman who runs a soup kitchen in the area. She was here, but it's none of our business to talk about it."

A leaking tanker truck loaded with 9,000 gallons of volatile propane gas was parked on New York's 10-lane

George Washington Bridge Thursday. In the eight hours that followed, 2,000 people were evacuated from their homes and cars piled up in a 15-mile-long traffic jam. Then came Chris Drauser — a plumber before he became a cop — with the solution. Drauser sent a motorcycle escort to a hardware store to buy a plug. The cost of repairing the leak — $4.

'You dirty rat, you hit my little boy'

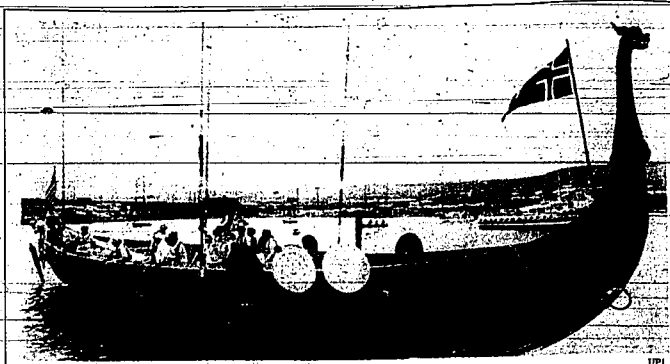

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — An Ogden father has filed an assault complaint against "Chucky Cheese" the Mouse, who allegedly slugged an 8-year-old boy because the youngster pulled the rodent's tail.

But Ogden Police have a problem with the complaint. They don't know who was wearing the Chucky Cheese costume at the Pizza Time Theater when young Steve Priest got a bloody lip.

Milton Priest filed the complaint Thursday claiming his son was assaulted during a birthday party at the pizza parlor, which features a cast of costumed characters who entertain youngsters.

Steve Priest told police he pulled the tail of the mouse and Chucky whirled around and belted him with the back of his paw. The child's brother Danny, and mother, Linda, corroborated the story. The youngster was treated at a hospital for a cut lip.

But Brad Garner, manager of the theater, called the charge ridiculous. He said the mouse reached to save his tail and bumped the youngster accidentally. Garner said the theater caters to kids and one of the characters would never hit a child.

Longboat

This 75-foot, 20-ton replica of a Viking longboat built by Bob Asp of Duluth, Minn., was launched this week in Lake Superior. Asp hopes to sail the oak ship, similar to those used by the Vikings on deep-ocean voyages, to Norway sometime in 1982.

Why Not the youngster up pickled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What may or may not be the pickled head of Joaquin Murieta, the legendary California bandit, has turned up 127 years after his violent demise.

Murieta was a Mexican who many believe wreaked revenge because of terrible wrongs at the hands of Americans, and his head played a grisly part in California history.

After Murieta, Three Finger Jack and two accomplices were gunned down by a posse July 25, 1853. Murieta's head and Jack's remaining fingers were placed on display up and down the state.

After their grand tour, Murieta's head and Jack's fingers wound up in San Francisco in a combination saloon and freak shop, according to reports of the day, but the establishment burned down after the 1906 earthquake.

Now Walter Johnson, a Santa Rosa ornamental rock salesman, says he has found the mustachioed head, immersed in foul smelling preservative in a three-gallon glass crock.

Johnson said he got it "from a man I trust." The man got it from a small museum in Santa Clara County, and the head supposedly was authenticated by a letter from a man who saw it on exhibit just before the earthquake.

The head looks out of its crock angrily, and Johnson attributes its odd plastic quality to a thin layer of molder's clay, now peeling on the tip of the nose, which he says was "common practice at the time."

"A physician looked at it and said it was real, although the hair had been changed," Johnson said. "He said the eyes were real and the man died a violent death."

Lou Grant, MASH top Emmy nomination list

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The acting ensembles on the "Lou Grant" and "M-A-S-H" series have captured the most nominations for the 1979-80 Emmy Awards, powering CBS to a strong lead over its rival networks.

CBS, which last season recaptured the national ratings crown, led the networks with 77 and NBC with 68. The Public Broadcasting System got 19 nominations and 12 went to syndicated shows.

"Lou Grant" nominated for outstanding drama series, also picked up six acting nominations — Asner as best actor, Mason Adams and Robert Walden as best supporting actor, and Linda Kelsey, Nancy Marchand and Nina Foch as best supporting actress.

The series also picked up four of the five nominations for outstanding directing of an episode of a drama series and three of its nominations for outstanding writing of an episode of a drama series.

"M-A-S-H" nominated as best comedy series, received four acting nominations — Alan Alda as best actor, Mike Farrell and Harry Morgan as best supporting actor and Loretta Swit as best supporting actress.

The series also got four of five nominations for outstanding directing of an episode of a comedy series, including one each to Alda and Morgan, and one for writing.

Other leading series and shows in number of nominations were the syndicated "Muppet Show" with eight, "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "Skag" with seven each, and "Amber Waves," "The Big Street," "BEM Presents Baryshnikov on Broadway" and "The Rockford Files" with six each.

The popular "Dallas" series got just four nominations and Archie Bunker's "Family" was the often-Emmyed "All in the Family" series, got just one.

Beside "Lou Grant," nominations for outstanding drama series went to "Dallas," "Family," "The Rockford Files" and "The White Shadow."

James Garner of "The Rockford Files," Larry Hagman of "Dallas" and Jack Klugman of "Quincy" were nominated for best actor in a drama. Nominees for best actress in a drama were Lauren Bacall and Mariette Hartley, both for "The Rockford Files," Kristy McNichol and Sada Thompson, both for "Dallas," and Barbara Bel Geddes for "Dallas."

Besides "M-A-S-H," nominations for outstanding comedy series went to "Barney Miller," "Soap," "Taxi" and "WKRP in Cincinnati."

Robert Guillaume of "Benson," Judd Hirsch of "Taxi," Hal Linden of "Barney Miller" and Richard Mulligan of "Soap" were nominated for best actor in a comedy. Nominees for best actress in a comedy went to Kathryn Damon and Katherine Helmond, both for "Soap," Polly Holliday of "Flo," Sherree-North of "Archie Bunker's Place" and Isabel Sanford of "The Jeffersons."

Nominated for outstanding limited series were "Diasail: Portrait of a Romantic," "The Duchess of Dax," "The Story of Edward and Mrs. Simpson" and "Movielia."

Nominated for outstanding drama or comedy special were "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Amber Waves," "Gideon's Trumpet — Hallmark Hall of Fame," "Guyana Tragedy: The Story of Jim Jones" and "The Miracle Worker."

Nominations for best actor in a limited series or special went to Patrick Duke — Astin for "Miracle Worker," Bette Davis for "White Mama," Melissa Gilbert for "The Miracle Worker" and Lee Remick, "Baywire."

Nominated for outstanding variety or music program, either a series or special, were "The Benny Hill Show," "Goldie and Lisa Together," "BEM Presents Baryshnikov on Broadway," "The Muppet Show" and "Shirley MacLaine ... Every Little Move-ment."

Nominated for outstanding informational program were "Bill Moyers' Journal," "The Body Human: The Body Beautiful," "The Body Human: The Magic Sense," "The Nile: The Constant Odyssey" and "Picasso: A Painter's Diary."

Nominated for outstanding special events programs were "The American Film Institute Salute to Jimmy Stewart," "The 32nd Annual Oscar Awards," "The Kennedy Center Honors: A Celebration of the Performing Arts" and "The 34th Annual Tony Awards."

Nominated for outstanding program achievement in a class not covered by other categories were "Fred Astaire: Change Partners and Dance," "Fred Astaire: Puttin' On the Ritz," "Show Starring Johnny Carson" and "The 1980 Winter Olympics."

While some staff employees hugged fire extinguishers, others moved a patient to a safe location during a mock emergency disaster drill staged Friday

County reviews budget

TWIN FALLS — Taxpayers in Twin Falls County will pay $2.23 million for combined county services in the coming year, exactly the same as this year.

The tentative 1981 budget, being readied Friday by the board of county commissioners, shows the anticipated revenue from county taxes at $1,229 million but Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard said taxpayers may be paying higher levies through school districts that may have to increase local levies.

The total county tax levies include school, college, highway district, county and municipal levies.

Leonard said the total county budget for the coming year is proposed at $17.12 million, compared to $15.11 million last year. These figures include the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital budget which is $13 million this year and was $11 million last year. However, there are no tax levies required for the hospital as all revenue is now generated through the institution's operational charges and fees.

Leonard said aside from the hospital, the budget as now proposed includes the $1,229 million in tax revenue and other income from county fees, service charges and other special revenue shows an anticipated total revenue and expenditure of $3,591 million, compared to $3,595 million a year ago.

The tentative budget for this year includes $236,000 in revenue sharing the county is certain of obtaining and another $164,000 which the county may obtain and must have in the budget in order to be used if it is received.

No casualties in this 'disaster'

By STEPHANIESCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A mock disaster enacted Friday morning at the Skyview-Hazeldel Manor acquired ominous overtones of the real thing.

In the scenario composed for a disaster drill, a Redco's Flying Service plane "crashed" in the field behind Hazeldel, 640 Flier Av. W., spewing pesticides into the air and into the nursing home's emergency water system.

Hit with flaming debris, Skyview caught fire when its sprinkler system failed to work. Nurses and aides were cut by flying particles. One fell and broke her leg; another went into convulsions. Someone had a heart attack, many suffered smoke inhalation. A few were trampled as people fled in panic.

Meanwhile the staff evacuated the patients, stuffed blankets in doors and windows to stop the flames and treated the wounded. A few administered last rites to a "dying" nursing supervisor.

But these disaster "victims" wore cards describing their injuries; their "infections" were marked with red tape and their broken-limb limbs could win medical "Academy Awards." The plane crash was a device for practicing for the day a real emergency occurs.

The Skyview-Hazeldel staff, however, is disturbed about what they feel was a far too-slow response time for the ambulance, the fire department and police, emergency services which took an active part in the drill.

According to education director Marjorie Kramer, the police arrived 11 minutes after the first call went out; the ambulance came in 13, with the fire engine following several later. But only a three- to five-minute interval should elapse, she said.

"That time loss was terrible. That could be a loss of several lives," said Ann Livingston, director of the American Red Cross-Sawtooth Chapter, another participant.

There's some disagreement over the actual timing. The drill started at 9 a.m. and Steve Balch, an emergency medical technician with Magic Valley Ambulance Service, says they arrived at 9:05.

Kramer and Livingston say reaction time was unnecessarily lengthened when Skyview complied with what may be a disaster guideline: First notify the County Commissioners in a disaster and have them call the police, fire and ambulance. It's a rule "that's got to be changed," Livingston asserted.

This stipulation is reportedly contained in the county's old and possibly outdated civil defense plan. "But nobody has a copy of the plan and no one knows where it is," Livingston said.

Friday's "disaster" reflected the dilemma this "unwritten rule" creates. The nursing home holds major disaster drills yearly to comply with state regulations. This year administrator Richard Drake, nursing director Marge Mayer, Kramer and other department heads, dreamed up one fit for a disaster flick. Under the impression the county commission must be contacted first, Kramer said she contacted them, as well as other agencies, in July about their part in the drill.

Commissioner Ann Cover said she was told the disaster would start at 9:15 a.m. It began at 9 while she was in a meeting. Kramer admits the drill began earlier than scheduled, but that when they called the commissioners to tell them a plane had "crashed" nearby, the secretary had to be talked into interrupting the meeting.

Livingston has not seen a copy of the rule yet "that's what I've always been led to believe. Even the county commission has been under that impression," Livingston said the local civil defense was presently re-writing a community plan.

While Cover said she was not sure of the county's stipulations, the obvious problems in reaching commissioners led her to think commissioners are supposed to be notified of major disasters, rather than being the first called under any circumstance. She said the commission was researching the matter.

Meanwhile Kramer said the Skyview-Hazeldel Manor plans to first call police, fire and the ambulance in emergencies, rule or no rule.

Aside from the time lapse, Kramer said the drill went smoothly and participants enjoyed the traditional "disaster refreshments" — coffee and doughnuts — provided by the Red Cross. "The patients responded—very well—they wanted to volunteer," she added.

Former officers get pay

FILER — Three Filer police officers who ended their service with the city July 22 will be getting some additional pay ranging from $500 to $700.

In an informal meeting with Filer City Council members following regular business Thursday night, council members said two of the officers spent nearly an hour refiguring the men's final checks.

Gary Cushman, who served as acting police chief after the city suspended Police Chief Randy Lammers, said he was satisfied with the outcome of the session.

"They figured it one way and we figured it another but when we got together they realized there had been an error," Cushman said.

He said he had been shorted about $500 and Lammer a couple of hundred dollars more. Ron Romero, the other officer, was also short under the original calculations.

Mayor Eldon Ryals told the officers Thursday that the council's intention of shorting them had been a mere confusion over the many extra hours and unusual shifts they worked while only two men were manning the department on a full coverage basis.

Council members had asked Cushman and Romero to work extra hours after suspending Chief Lammer and after Ron Moore, the fourth officer resigned when the council transferred him to maintenance work. Cushman reminded the council they had agreed to pay overtime for the extra hours worked.

The three men also had vacation time to their credit and other benefits, they said.

Filer discovers residency rule, zoning chairwoman resigns

FILER — Sue Strobel went to the Filer City Council Thursday night as chairman of the town's Planning and Zoning Board.

When she left she was a non-member acting in an advisory capacity.

The Filer City Council named two new members and reappointed two others to fill vacancies on the zoning board, something Strobel has been asking for since she became chairman several months ago.

When council members looked up the city zoning ordinance to see how to divide the terms of the new members, they discovered a member must have lived in Twin Falls County for five years before he or she can serve on the zoning board.

The ordinance allows members who live outside of Filer to serve on the city board, but does not permit a "newcomer" of less than five years.

The board chairman immediately announced she had just been eliminated.

"I have only been here a little over four years. You will have to fill another vacancy," she told the council.

Mayor Eldon Ryals who said she has been an excellent chairman in the few short months she has held the position, asked attorney Fred Decker what could be done to keep the board chairman. Decker suggested revising the ordinance and passing an amendment Thursday night under the suspension of the rules provision.

Several council members said they didn't like to see amendments to the ordinance. Strobel then announced she would step down and consider accepting an appointment next June when she reaches the five-year eligibility factor.

Mayor Ryals asked her to remain in an advisory capacity and work with other board members. Strobel said she understands the Filer ordinance is patterned after the state law which calls for outside representation and a five-year county residency to prevent developers from bringing in employees that seek board appointments for benefit of the development projects.

Strobel said she has no objection to the ordinance provisions and is willing until she is eligible but said she was not aware of the provision when asked to serve and not until it came up Thursday night.

The ordinance also states members shall serve three or six year terms. As a result George Huddleston, who was reappointed, remains on the board for another year under his six year term and was not eligible for reappointment. Huddleston, accused Mayor Ryals of trying to eliminate him from the board, saying he thought he had another year to run and added the mayor had not asked him if he wanted to be reappointed.

He said another member, Bill Elliott, had also indicated he would continue but had not been asked. Both Strobel and Ryals said they had personally asked Elliott and been told he was not interested. Elliott was reappointed by the council Thursday night, but said Friday he would not accept the appointment. Others members include Ardisan Lane, reappointed Thursday; Joe Allison and Twila Knutson, new members and Seneth Ward and Huddleston, hold-overs. Two other members will be named to fill the vacancies left by Strobel and Elliott to complete the full seven member unit.

Overtime issue unresolved, but firefighters will vote

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls firefighters will vote Wednesday on a new one-year contract although the major issue of their negotiations with the city remains unresolved.

While firefighters' union leaders say the unresolved issue is not critical to approval of the contract, they warn firefighters may refuse to work non-emergency overtime, or "constant manning," a term used by city officials.

Members of Local 1556, International Association of Firefighters, are the only unionized group of city employees and a series of negotiations have been on-going since July.

Firefighters want time-and-a-half when they fill in for an absence. The City Council Monday decided in a closed meeting not to grant the request because of budget limitations and forwarded the proposed contract for a vote.

Aside from a 7 percent salary increase, which is what all city employees will receive under the proposed 1980-81 city budget, the new contract differs little from the present contract which expires Sept. 30.

Off-duty firefighters will continue to receive time-and-a-half pay when responding to an emergency and $8 per night when manning the Twin Falls Airport on a voluntary basis.

City officials say they had received time-and-a-half pay for non-emergency overtime until a few years ago. They add that since firefighters work full 24-hour shifts, filling in for absences means a considerable amount of extra work and time spent away from their families.

City officials note the program is voluntary and with an estimated 90 non-emergency overtime shifts each year, additional money for the firefighters will add up to a considerable expense for the city.

Ron Clark, president of the Twin Falls local, said the firefighters appear to feel strongly about this issue.

Thief repays 20-year debt

TWIN FALLS — A Burley resident is possibly sleeping easier now than he has for more than 20 years.

An anonymous letter containing $30 was received by College of Southern Idaho President James Taylor this week from a former worker of the Albion State Normal School. The school was closed by the state in the 1950s.

The unsigned letter, which was mailed from Burley, read:

"Enclosed, please find $30 to be used to buy textbooks.

"When I was working at Albion State Normal School, I took or borrowed some money from the textbook fund and never repaid it.

"I would like to make restitution at this time, and since this school no longer exists, I am sending it to your school.

"Please accept this money and use it for textbooks.

"Taylor said two bills, a $20 and a $10, accompanied the letter and he has deposited them in CSI's textbook fund as requested.

South Hills' fate uncertain

Business, environmentalists examine Cassia timber plan

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The fate of beetle-ravaged South Hills remains uncertain this week as business and environmental groups examine the Cassia timber management plan.

On one side, Forest Service officials admit they need help from large timber companies, such as California based Wickes Forest Products, to harvest infested and dying lodgepole pine trees so replacement stands can be started to improve forest health and insure future deer habitat.

However, both environmentalists and Forest Service timber specialists stress that timber harvesting in the South Hills must be done slowly and perhaps in too small of quantities to be profitable for companies like Wickes.

"We still need to sit down with the Wickes people and iron out some of the alternatives and find out what exactly will work with these future timber sales," said Sawtooth National Forest planner Jack Hougaard.

One of these alternatives is to combine South Hills timber into three- or four-year packages so Wickes would be assured of a profitable quantity of timber, even though that volume would have to be harvested over several years.

In 1977 Wickes was awarded the largest South Hills timber sale, the 22 million board feet (mbf) Cassia #1. Wickes was also named preferred bidder on the 6 mbf Bear Hollow sale, although the sale was stopped before being awarded.

The initial problem was that environmental groups, such as the Idaho Conservation League and later Forest Service officials themselves, determined there wasn't as much harvestable timber in the South Hills as estimated. As a result, the sales were stopped and the Cassia Environmental Assessment was developed.

Under the proposal, the amount of sawtimber will be reduced by 10 to 15 percent. This available wood will also be more dispersed, according to Hougaard.

Forest-wide, the plan calls for a maximum harvest of 62 mbf of sawtimber by commercial logging companies over the next 10 years.

Consequently, Wickes managers are considering changing their minds about purchasing South Hills sales.

"We had one conversation with Forest Service personnel Saturday (Aug. 2) to gain a rough idea about what's happening, but we still need to meet again in the next two weeks to get some specifics," Wickes Northwest General Manager Dave Edgerton said Thursday.

Edgerton said Wickes managers originally planned building a local mill, either near Twin Falls or Preston, to process South Hills timber.

"It's simply not economically feasible to transport the timber by rail to our other mills (Grangeville and Evanston, Wyo.)," Edgerton said.

He said any acceptance by Wickes of South Hills sales hinges on local processing, but that sales as outlined in the Forest Service's preferred plan can not support the costs of mill construction at this time.

According to Edgerton, a 10 percent reduction in timber on the Cassia #1 and Bear Hollow sales isn't as critical as the reduction of smaller sales scheduled to follow the first two.

Originally 10 mbf was to be sold to logging companies over a 10-year period following the Cassia #1 and Bear Hollow sales. This has been reduced to sales of 4 or 4.5 mbf per year for the same 10-year period.

Edgerton also claimed that Forest Service projections for fuel wood demand has been overestimated, and that some of this volume could be reclassified as commercial sawtimber.

Admitted Hougaard, "This is a real problem for them (Wickes) and we're trying to come up with a feasible alternative that will make it profitable for them to build a local mill and come in and harvest the timber."

Hougaard said Sawtooth Supervisor Paul Barker, who was not available for comment, has suggested selling the reduced, 4.5 mbf-per-year sales in groups over three- or four-year periods, but the legality of such a plan has not been established. Normally, each sale is presented for bid individually to avoid monopolies on timber purchases.

If a solution is not found to attract large-scale loggers to the South Hills, programs to improve forest health may be postponed for years, inevitably causing deer and other wildlife losses, claims Hougaard.

Emergency phone calls free

CASTLEFORD — Beginning Monday, Castleford residents will be able to make emergency telephone calls from coin-operated phones without a coin.

Ken Mann, Mountain Bell's Twin Falls district manager, said the conversion to Castleford is part of the dial-tone service the company is adopting.

"It allows the caller to obtain a dial tone and dial the operator without putting money in the pay telephone. In an emergency, the operator can then summon help for the caller depending on the nature of the emergency." Mann said there are five telephones in Castleford involved in the conversion. He said for normal calls, the caller listens for the dial tone and then deposits 25 cents and dials the number.

Cat disposal bothers citizen

FILER — A citizen complaint that he had seen a city employee throw a live cat into the sewer is being checked this week by Filer Mayor Eldon Ryals. The citizen told council members he thought there should be a more humane way of disposing of unwanted pets, saying he had seen the individual raise a manhole cover late one night and try to force a cat into the hole. After two attempts, he said he saw the man leave but he didn't see the cat again. "I will check that out personally," Mayor Ryals said. "And we will put a stop to that if it is true."

Petitioners want nuclear ban

KETCHUM (UPI) — More than the necessary 1,226 signatures have been collected on a petition for an ordinance that would ban nuclear development in Blaine County, a spokesman for Groundwater Alliance says.

Tom Pomeroy, the petition drive organizer for the anti-nuclear group, said the group would continue collecting signatures until Aug. 13 or 14. Aug. 14 is the deadline for filing the petition with County Recorder Marie Lilya.

"We're trying to get as many signatures as possible because we expect about 20 percent to be invalid," Pomeroy said.

The petition is in the form of an ordinance that would ban operation or construction of a nuclear facility, the storage or disposal of radioactive wastes or materials and the mining or milling of uranium within Blaine County. It would affect private but not public land in the county.

Driver cited for drunk driving

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was cited for driving while intoxicated after two accidents in which his vehicle went out of control and crashed through three fences, a lawn and garden.

Twin Falls police officer Richard F. Merkle, 25, was traveling down an alley between Poplar Avenue and Maple Avenue when the accidents occurred. Police were first called after a vehicle hit a fence at 1335 Poplar Avenue, causing $350 damage.

Before officers arrived at 1570 and 1565 Maple reported someone had run through their fences, damaging the fences and the lawn and garden at 1570 Maple. Damage there was estimated $700. Officers said the driver escaped injury.

Gooding queen is Sue Bixler

GOODING — Sue Bixler of Twin Falls was named queen of the Gooding County Fair and Rodeo Wednesday night.

First runner-up is Maurine Allen, also of Twin Falls. Contest officials said the "two emerged as the only qualified contestants after one of the four original hopefuls dropped out and another won the queen title in Shoshone, this becoming disqualified for the Gooding title."

Bixler won the horsemanship and Allen the congeniality event.

In the princess contest, the winner was Joan Oster of Twin Falls, and first runner-up was Ann Miller of Jerome. Others were Lelsa Olsen of Gooding, second runner-up, and Leslie Johannsen of Gooding, horse-manship winner; and Rhonda Price of Buhl, congeniality.

The queen, princess and runners-up received "merchandise prizes" from Gooding County merchants with a $100 cash award to Bixler.

EPA may tighten waste water limit for two in Burley

BURLEY — The Environmental Protection Agency plans to tighten waste water limits for two Burley industries which discharge into the Snake River.

All interested persons have until Aug. 23 to respond to the EPA's intention to reissue discharge permits for the J.R. Simplot Co. and Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. potato processing plants located near Burley.

Previous discharge permits for the two plants expired last year. If EPA approves, the new permits would expire in five years.

Harold Green, chief of the permit branch of EPA's regional office in Seattle, said the new discharge levels reflect the agency's overall plan to increase limits when technology is available to meet those limits.

Most of the pollutant limits vary during different times of the year because of changes in the river flow and temperature.

Green said EPA does not expect the new limits to mean Simplot and Ore-Ida will have to install more expensive equipment.

"We don't see any large capital expenditures involved. It may require some things like higher levels of aeration (and other) things from an operational standpoint," he said.

A spokesman for J.R. Simplot Co. said no response has been made to the proposed permits. Company officials are now reviewing the proposed discharge limits, he said. No response from Ore-Ida was available.

The new limits would reduce by more than half the amount of biochemical oxygen demand (BOD) and suspended solids the plants could discharge into the Snake River. Both BOD and suspended solids are measures of pollutants.

The new limits would increase the amount of ammonia allowed into the river, however.

QUESTION...

"At one time I applied for a VA widow's pension and it was denied because I was ineligible. Since I am now unable to work may I reapply?"

ANSWER...

You could have been ineligible for many reasons. The fact you are disabled now does not in itself make you eligible. If you were married to your veteran husband one year before his death and if your annual income is less than $3534 you may currently be eligible for a Veteran's widow pension. Should you require the regular aid and attendance of another person or if you are a patient in a nursing home the pension you are otherwise entitled to receive will be increased by $79 each month.

Council must fight poverty

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

Critics of the World Council of Churches are fond of suggesting the international, interfaith agency has only social action — and often revolutionary social action — on its agenda. It may surprise some, then, the World Council recently completed a major two-week conference on world mission and evangelism around the theme "Your Kingdom Come."

The Melbourne, Australia conference, called by the WCC Commission on World Mission and Evangelism, was an effort to carry through the work of two previous conferences in Mexico City (1963) and Bangkok (1972) was also a commemoration of the 1910 World Missionary Conference which met in Edinburgh and which is credited with launching the modern ecumenical movement.

Critics, however, will not be pleased with the outcome of the conference. Christianity is still divided by two sharply different approaches to the issue of mission and evangelism: one which stresses personal preaching of the Gospel with the aim of conversion and another which links preaching of the Gospel to efforts to change the social and political structures of society with or on behalf of the poor.

The World Council generally favors the latter approach and the rationale for that may be found in the fact that the vast majority of those unreached by the Christian Gospel message are also those who are the poorest of the poor, the marginal, those at the periphery of society.

And there were some indications at the Melbourne meeting that evangelicals, who in the past have stressed the first approach, may be changing some of their attitudes.

"Unless evangelicals come to grips immediately with the appalling conditions of the 'world's' poor," and oppressed they will almost certainly lose their credibility in the 1990s," said Waldron Scott, general secretary of the World Evangelical Fellowship, participant in the WCC conference.

Indeed, most reports — from Melbourne stressed that evangelicals played an unprecedented influential role in the deliberations and there are signs from both camps of a growing convergence in evangelism theology and strategy.

KIMBERLY — The Rev. Daniel J. Gerken will be installed as the new pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church. There will be a special service Sunday, at 4 p.m.

The Rev. Edwin Iverson of Eden will serve as Liturgist and Installer. The Rev. Andrew Loesel of Crover will be Lector.

The Rev. Ervin Gerken of Puyallup, Wash., Daniel's father, will deliver the sermon. Several local pastors will participate.

Previous to his call to Redeemer, Pastor Gerken served as worker/minister of Hope Lutheran Church in Soda Springs, Idaho for three years. As well as his duties with the church, he worked part-time as a cashier in a local restaurant to supplement the church's income.

Gerken was married to Ruth Nettin in 1976. They have one son a year and a half old.

Protests

Police keep Iranian, U.S. demonstrators apart

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Angry Americans continued demonstrating Iranian students for the second straight day Friday, blending a fierce patriotism with demands that militant student supporters of the Ayatollah Khomeini be deported.

During the course of the five-hour demonstration, several hundred American hecklers shouted abuse and some threw eggs, tomatoes and other debris at the estimated 700 Iranian protesters.

"U.S.A., U.S.A.," the Americans shouted as the Iranians, heavily protected by District of Columbia police, marched through downtown Washington streets lined with lunch-hour crowds en route to the Islamic mosque on Washington's embassy row.

Others shouted: "Go home, go home." College students screamed obscenities. Others sported buttons and T-shirts with the same message. The Iranians stuck to political slogans, emphasizing their opposition to Zionism and Israel, and tried to separate their anti-Americanism from their feelings about individual Americans.

Friday's confrontation between Iranians and Americans was less hostile than one on Thursday when hundreds of U.S. counter-protesters showered a smaller group of demonstrators with protaninets and debris.

As the demonstration passed the Canadian Embassy, several dozen pro-American demonstrators took up the chant "Canada, Canada, Canada" and waved their flags in a victory to salute to the embassy a recognition of the role Canada played in helping several Americans escape from Iran. From the windows, embassy workers waved at the flag-bearing American demonstrators.

Police kept the two groups on different sides of the street and as the Iranians attempted to hold a rally and prayer service at the Islamic mosque, the Americans heckled and shouted "deportation" and "let our people go."

At one point, demonstrators hung an effigy of Khomeini from a tree and then tore it to shreds. Local police said a total of eight arrests were made before the demonstration broke up, including three Americans of disorderly conduct charges for throwing debris and knocking down an Iranian sign.

Five Iranians or their U.S. Muslim supporters were also arrested, including one carrying a pistol, another a knife, police said.

After the demonstrators gathered at the mosque for a prayer service, Iranian students attempted to offer the angry American counter-protest an olive branch.

"Our demonstration is not against you," one said through a bullhorn pointed toward the Americans across the street. "It is not against the American people." He was answered by shouted obscenities and catcalls.

Police said one Iranian was slightly injured Friday when he was kicked by a policeman's horse. One Iranian also was taken to a hospital for heat exhaustion.

Iranian students barricaded St. Peter's Basilica protesting the arrest of Iranians in U.S.

World Iranian students urged to demonstrate

By United Press International

Iran called on its students around the world Friday to take to the streets and protest the arrest of pro-Khomeini demonstrators in the United States and Britain.

Hundreds of Iranians abroad obeyed the call and, with chants and placards, bringing a issue of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic revolution to Washington, London and even the steps of the Vatican.

Tehran Radio broadcast orders to Iranians in the United States, Canada and Western Europe to turn out over the weekend and protest the arrest of Khomeini supporters in Washington and London.

In Italy, police arrested 25 Iranians who marched to the steps of St. Peter's Basilica in the Vatican.

Chanting slogans and screaming insults, the Iranians blocked the main entrance to the basilica for nearly two hours, preventing tourists from going in or out.

In the Philippines, Manila police broke up a similar demonstration by about 150 Iranians, arresting 13 of them.

"We were ordered by Imam Khomeini to hold a religious procession," shouted one of the demonstrators, who waved a placard saying "U.S. Imperialism Great Satan."

JAMES BARBUTO ... guilty of sex charges

Barbuto is sentenced to 10 years

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Former County Probate Court Judge James V. Barbuto, convicted in a sex-related public corruption scandal, was sentenced to up to 10 years in prison Friday.

Barbuto, who resigned July 22, could have received a maximum 15 1/2 years in prison and fines totaling $9,000. He will remain free on bond, pending appeal.

"I and my wife have suffered a great deal," Barbuto told the court before sentencing. "I have lost my most precious possession — the right to be on the bench."

"I have had great expense. I have lost friends. I don't know how much more my wife and I have to suffer," Barbuto said.

Barbuto, 57, indicted last March on 26 sex-related charges, has agreed never again to work for public office. He was found guilty July 22 on one count of gross sexual imposition and one count of intimidation.

Common Pleas Judge George McMahon of Cuyahoga County, who found Barbuto guilty in a non-jury trial, sentenced him to 1-to-10 years in prison on the intimidation charge and to 1-to-5 years in prison for gross sexual imposition. Terms are to be served concurrently.

Barbuto also pleaded guilty to two counts of dereliction of duty and to the mishandling of firearms confiscated within the court system. He was sentenced to 60-day terms on each count on those charges.

Reporter points out defendant in CWP-KKK trial

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — A shouting match between a Klan-Nazi contingent and members of the Communist Workers Party erupted into a gunfight with some of the Klan-Nazi group "firing right into the crowd" of communists, a reporter testified Friday.

Winston Cavin of the Greensboro Daily News, a witness at the trial of six Ku Klux Klan members and Nazis accused of shooting to death five members of the Communist Workers Party, said he saw many of the shooters located around a van in which five of the six defendants later were found.

"There were men standing on both sides, firing weapons at the crowd," he said. "Some men were getting weapons out of the trunk of the car (next to the van). They were generally standing in the street blasting away. They were firing right into the crowd, (at) the demonstrators."

Cavin identified one of the armed men near the van as Coleman Blair Primmore, 32, a Klansman from Lenoir County, N.C., who is accused in the deaths. Primmore reacted by shooting to his chair as all of the jurors stared at him.

Entire Turk village sentenced by court

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — The long and bitter trial of an entire Turkish village ended Friday with a martial law court sentencing 22 people to death, 14 to life imprisonment and 107 others to terms totaling 929 years. But nearly half of the record 835 defendants were acquitted.

It was one of Turkey's longest and certainly its largest trial. Virtually the entire population of Kahramanmaraş, a village in southern Turkey, stood charged of offenses ranging from murder and attempted rebellion to assault, looting and theft.

The prosecution at the 18-month-long trial had requested 275 death sentences. But the court, showing leniency in many cases, acquitted 411 persons and sentenced others to short jail terms.

The trial was the result of rioting and clashes in Kahramanmaraş in December 1978.

According to official accounts, 111 persons were killed and 1,023 injured in the fighting between right and left-wingers.

Angered by the murder of two left-wing teachers who had suspended several pupils as a disciplinary measure, mourners from the Alevi Community — an offshoot of the minority Shi'ite Moslem sect which has been sympathetic to left-wing politics in Turkey — clashed with Sunni Moslems who make up 80 percent of the population.

Large parts of the Alevi quarter in Kahramanmaraş were reduced to rubble and officials said the 3,000-strong Alevi community was saved from extermination only by the intervention of the army.

The rioting led to the imposition of martial law in 13 of Turkey's 67 provinces two days later.

A government crisis ensued in which then Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit narrowly squeaked through a vote of confidence in parliament. Martial law has since been extended to 20 provinces wracked by the political violence that exploded in Kahramanmaraş, 200 miles southeast of Ankara.

In a continuation of that violence, police reported 18 more deaths Thursday and Friday in disturbances throughout the country.

Political observers said they feared the court's "leniency" in handing down only 22 death sentences could lead to even more trouble. The defendants were mostly right-wingers and leftists had been expecting that more death sentences would be handed down.

Man whose death sentence was dropped to life, faints

Nagasaki remembers 'Fat Man'

NAGASAKI, Japan (UPI) — Some 20,000 survivors, many still bearing scars, gathered in Nagasaki Friday to commemorate the 35th anniversary of the searing blue flash of light that killed 78,000 people, ended a war and forever changed the world by signaling the dawn of the nuclear age.

Thirty-five years ago Saturday, at 11:02 a.m. (6:02 p.m. EDT Friday) a U.S. B-29 bomber code-named "Bock's Car" cut through the clouds over Nagasaki and dropped the second and, thus far, last atomic bomb ever used in war.

"Fat Man," as the bomb was code-named, razed half of Nagasaki, killed 78,000 people and maimed or made sick thousands of others.

Two days earlier, "Little Boy" had been dropped on Hiroshima. The two events brought the might of imperial Japan to its knees. On Aug. 15, the emperor surrendered. This year, as every year, Nagasaki will come to a halt at 11:02 a.m. and observe a moment of silence for the dead.

Those who were there and survived gathered at Nagasaki's Peace Park for the ceremonies.

"There was a sudden flash," recalled Ronald Brayer, who was a British prisoner of war in Nagasaki. "At first, I thought it was just an incendiary bomb falling... but when I got outside, it was pitch dark — everything was flattened."

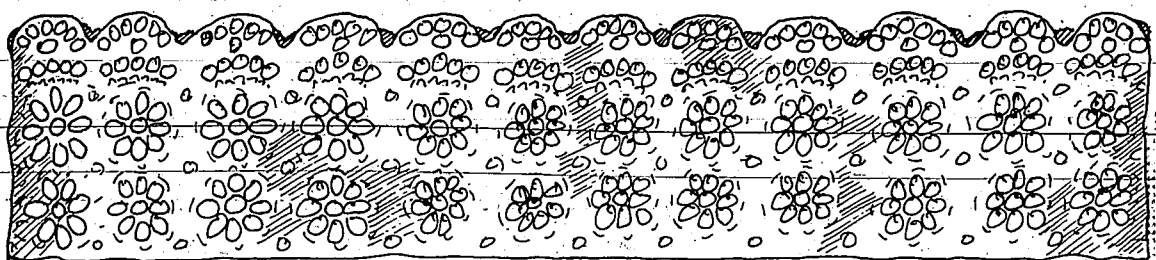

Brayer returned to Nagasaki last year for the first time and marveled how the once bomb-twisted and rubble-strewn metropolis had become "such a beautiful city now."

A Korean survivor, attending the anniversary memorial for the first time, recalled he was walking near the Nagasaki rail station when a sudden blue flash blocked his path.

When he recovered consciousness, he found himself in a devastated city with a badly seared left arm.

An estimated 10,000 Koreans who were either in Hiroshima or Nagasaki carrying out mental chores in the closing days of the war were killed.

Another 40,000 Koreans still living in Japan are believed to suffer from nuclear radiation, unaided by the Japanese government.

Opposition calls for war in Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Pakistan's No. 2 opposition party declared a "holy war" against President Gen. Muhammad Zia ul-Haq and his military junta Friday and called on the nation to join the struggle.

"I declare I will take this Jihad (holy war) against Zia ul-Haq and his clique to every nook and corner of the country and to every walk of life," said Asaf Faisaluddin Vardag, acting President of the Tahrir-E-Islah party.

In a prepared statement to lawmakers, Vardag said Zia has no mandate because the military president has postponed general elections indefinitely.

The elections were promised in October 1977, three months after Zia overthrew the late Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. They have been postponed twice, angering Pakistan's eight opposition parties who want a return to civilian rule.

UN prepares for restraints against Israel

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. Security Council, lobbied by an Israeli snub, announced Friday it will hold closed-door consultations Monday to consider rebuking Israel for blaming all of Jerusalem as its eternal capital.

A U.N. spokesman said the consultations probably would be conducted by a public meeting either Monday afternoon or Tuesday.

The Islamic Group of Nations last week requested an "immediate meeting" of the 15-member Council, but delegates haggled over a draft resolution demanding economic sanctions against Israel and pushed back meeting formally until next week.

Last week, the Israeli parliament approved a unanimous Security Council call — warning Israel not to change the status of Jerusalem — and voted to formalize Israeli control of the predominantly Arab eastern sector of the Holy City, captured from Jordan in the 1967 war.

A draft resolution circulated by the 10-member Islamic Group demands that a trade embargo be imposed on Israel for its rebuff of a formal council request.

The United States has described the Israeli action as "unhelpful" but was expected to veto any resolution imposing sanctions on Israel.

A spokeswoman for Ambassador Donald McHenry, chief U.S. representative to the United Nations, said no voting decision had yet been relayed from Washington.

"We've had no instructions as we don't yet know what the final draft of the resolution will contain," Jill Borker, spokeswoman, said.

The draft resolution declaring Israel's legislative action "null and void" cites article 41 of the U.N. charter for the imposition of trade sanctions.

Article 41, one step away from the use of armed force, empowers the council to decide what measures should be applied to force a wayward country's compliance with its wishes.

Morgan 1 up on Nicklaus, Hinkle in PGA

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Gil Morgan, winless in more than a year, birdied three holes on the back nine Friday to shoot an even-par 70 and take a one-shot lead at the midway point of the PGA Championship.

Jack Nicklaus, although laughingly claiming he had played "one of my worst rounds," sank a 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole for a 69 that left him tied in second place with Lon Hinkle, who also carded a 69.

Morgan, at 2 under 138, along with Nicklaus and Hinkle, at 139, were the only players in the original field of 150 to better par of 140 after two days over the tortuous 6,994-yard Oak Hill Country Club course.

In fact, aside from Nicklaus and Hinkle, the only other player to break par Friday was Ed Sneed with a 68, and his followed an opening round 80.

"The wind was a little more of a factor today," Morgan said in partial explanation of the unusually high scores, "but it wasn't a killer factor."

However, Howard Twitty, who had a quadruple bogey en route to a 74, commented, "They always want the U.S. Open and PGA to be so hard. It seems they're taking the fun out of golf."

Of the nine players who bettered par Thursday, only Morgan and Irwin managed to avoid a double bogey or worse on the second day, and Irwin had seven bogeys in a round of 78.

Tom Watson, seemingly frustrated once again in his bid to win the PGA Championship, faltered for the second consecutive day with a 74 and barely survived the cut at 149.

"It's just a matter of not getting the ball in the hole," said Watson, who last failed to survive the 36-hole cut in last year's U.S. Open, the other major championship which has continued to elude him.

"I was ready to play," continued Watson, who sank a 30-foot birdie putt on the opening hole, but then managed only one more birdie. "I don't make any excuses for the way I play. I just played poorly."

Curly Strange was the only other player to equal par for two rounds, shooting a 72 for 140, and he commented of the high scores, "It may not be exciting to watch, but it's tough for us and we have to be patient and hope the birds will come."

Johnny Miller, with a 71, was alone at 141 while Craig Stadler, the opening day leader at 67, fell back to 75, leaving him tied at 142 with Andy North and Bill Eichelberger, both of whom shot 70, Bill Rogers, Arnie McNickle and Gary Koch, each with a 71, and Twitty.

Among those tied at 143 were Tom Kite, with a 70, Andy Bean, with a 71, and Ben Crenshaw, who had a 74.

Les Trevino, winner of the U.S. Open on this Oak Hill Country Club course in 1958, crept back into contention with a 71 that put him at 145.

Morgan, who says his putting has dragged him down this year, sank birdie putts of 18, 15, 12 and 4 feet on the 4th, 11th, 12th and 16th holes to give him the lead.

"Basically, my round was a little more erratic than yesterday," he said. "I didn't strike the ball as well."

Nicklaus, after getting a birdie on the second hole with a 4-foot putt, bogeyed the fifth and sixth holes. But he sank a 14-foot birdie putt on No. 14 and then produced his exciting finish.

"I told you yesterday I had played one of my best rounds in a long time, but I couldn't get the ball in the hole," he said. "Today I played one of my worst rounds. I hit the ball all over the golf course, but I got the ball in the hole. It's a nice turnaround."

Hinkle, after tying for third in the U.S. Open, failed to make the cut in the Canadian Open and Memphis Classic, and hadn't competed on the tour since Memphis life in June, although he did play in the British Open, where he also failed to survive the cut.

Jaeger gains clay finals with Evert

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Fifteen-year-old Andrea Jaeger defeated Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong, 6-4, 6-2, Friday to set up a final-round showdown with former-teenage terror and defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd in the women's singles of the 1980 U.S. Open Clay Court Tennis Championships.

Evert, the five-time champion of this event, moved into the final when her semi-final opponent, Ivanna Madruga, of Argentina, withdrew midway through the second set Friday night.

In men's quarterfinal action, third-seeded Eddie Dibbs was upset by unseeded Mario Martinez, a Bolivian Davis Cup team member, 7-6, 3-6, in the final match of the night, and Mel Purcell of Murray, Ky., surprised Poland's Wojtek Fibak, 6-1, 6-3. Earlier, Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina, defeated Terry Moor, Memphis, Tenn., 6-3, 6-4, and Jose Higueras defeated Edilberto Tetscher, Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Jaeger has been one of the hottest players in men's tennis the last three weeks, when he included a men's singles title in a tournament at South Orange, N.J. After his match Friday, however, Clerc spent an hour on the trainer's table getting relief from minor aches and pains suffered in his quarter-final match.

retired after losing the third game of the tournament.

The second trainer said later Madruga was suffering from heat exhaustion and acute indigestion.

Evert, talking of Jaeger, said, "She is very comfortable on this surface. She could sit out there all day right now," being only 15 years old.

"It's very difficult to play somebody who always gets the ball back and is as fast as she is."

Jaeger was thrilled to win her first-ever match against Goolagong— "It's great to beat a player that is so good. It's the best win of my career," Jaeger said.

Evert said before her match that she expected a tough battle from Madruga, who has taken the Florida title in a tournament at South Orange, N.J. After his match Friday, however, Clerc spent an hour on the trainer's table getting relief from minor aches and pains suffered in his quarter-final match.

Sage to meet Boise in state Legion event

RUPERT — The Minico Sage will take on the Boise Senators in the opening round of the state American Legion playoffs tonight at Borah field in Boise.

Coach Rick Baumann's crew got there the hard way, losing its first game in the district playoffs and then battling around to claim second place before a championship game.

The Sage and the Senators will not battle until 10 p.m. today. The tournament kicks off at 10 a.m. with Lewis-Clark Twins (42-8) meeting Caldwell (27-16) at 1 p.m., Pocatello (29-22) meets Silver Valley (Kellogg area) (25-14) at 2 p.m., and Boise (23-22) meet Moscow Vale (24-26), and 9 p.m., Minico (30-26) meets Boise Senators (33-20).

Minico is battling bigger odds than being on the road. The Sage won't have outfielder Benny Simpson and John Patton, both hobbled by injuries. Additionally, back-up catcher Cliff Hanks sustained a broken wrist during district playoffs.

The Spartans' finger sliding in the season finale against Twin Falls while Patton regained a knee in a freak accident. He twisted it jumping back from an inside pitch.

The Spartans are relying on a young pitching staff to help them through the possible five-day grind. Coach Baumann has had some good success with a pair of 14-year-olds, Todd Whittaker and John Smith. But the added pressure of the state playoffs might affect the youngsters a little more than their older counterparts.

Three area teams undefeated in state

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News sports writer

TWIN FALLS — Three local teams advanced to the second round Friday in the men's Class A State Slowpitch Tournament at Harmon Park.

Irving's Red Hots of Ketchum, Corner Pocket-Depot Grill-Turt Club, which secured for ninth place in the district play but got into the tournament when a Lewiston team didn't show up, and Sawtooth Oil, also of Ketchum advanced into today's winners bracket.

All of the first-round losers will play this morning, hoping to be the team to make the tough trip through the loser's bracket—and into—the title game. Another loss will end the journey for any team that is in the loser's bracket.

The major division of the state journey will start at 10:30 a.m. today with two games at Harmon Park and two at Frontier Field. Coors of Magic Valley faces Henry Rust of Boise at Frontier No. 2 while Big O Tires of Buhl tangles with favored Overland Lumber of Boise at Harmon No. 1.

In Friday's opening-round games, host district teams had it rough as only Great Expectations of Jerome managed to advance to the next round.

Expectations used its long-ball hitting and superb defense to dump Wilson Construction-Shakey's Pizza of Pocatello 14-4.

Rich Toney hit two homers, while Bruce Palmer and Dennis Christensen each homered to place the winners—18-hit attack.—The Jerome team had just one error, way below the average for slowpitch play.

Wholesale Carpets of Twin Falls suffered perhaps the hardest-take loss of the day as First American Title-KBLI Radio of Blackfoot scored a 10-9 win in the last of the seventh inning.

Wholesale trailed much of the game but back-to-back homers by Tony Mennen and Paul DeWitt put Wholesale on top 9-3 going into the seventh. Two singles and two fielding lapses by Wholesale allowed American-KBLI to score two runs for the win.

Irving's Red Hots blasted European Motors of Boise 26-10 in the first game of the day. Rip Kirby had six hits, including a homer, to lead the Red Hots while Ron Wenzel homered. Dan Pritchard and Bob Blazing each had four hits.

Phase Four Stereo of Idaho Falls led the best team, Fire's Root Beer-Sunco River '80 of Twin Falls, 9-2 in the initial round. Ken Sney had a homer—for-the-winners, while Ken Rolfe had two hits for Hire's Snake River.

Grizzly Bear of Nampa and Idaho Sporting Goods of Boise had a slugfest with Grizzly taking a 17-13 win in the two teams banged out 42 hits. Chuck Yest and Tony Muldoon homered for Grizzly, while Ken Beck had a pair of homers for ISG.

GPDD of Idaho Falls defeated Four Seasons of Mountain Home 13-3 behind two round-trippers from Craig Parker and another by Kevin Davis.

In two mid-afternoon games at Harmon Park, Sports Cellular of Coeur d'Alene sent Harlem Club of Pocatello into the losers' bracket 20-7, and Coors, also of Coeur d'Alene was blown away 24-9 by Golfs Auto Wrecking of Nampa.

Corner Pocket-Depot-Turt of Twin Falls, remained one of the local teams to advance into Saturday's winners bracket.

Ken Peterson led the attack for the local team hitting five-for-five in the plate, including two home runs. Altogether, Corner Pocket blasted seven round trippers during the game and beat GPDD 24-9.

Sawtooth Oil, formerly Century 21 of Ketchum, stayed alive by humiliating First American Title-KBLI 34-7.

Mary Lahey went six-for-six, hit three homers, and five other Ketchum batters sent balls over the fence, in a game that saw 21 Sawtooth Oil batters come to the plate in the sixth inning.

Grizzly Bear won its second game of the day and advanced on a 14-11 victory over Poky Bar of Pocatello. They were led by Muldoon, who kept his team in the game with two round-trippers and reaching base four times in four attempts.

In what looked like maybe the first major upset in the three-day tournament, Phase Four Stereo played with and led at one time in a game with last year's state A Champions Budweiser of Sandpoint.

After being down 6-4 in the sixth inning, Phase Four went on a hitting spree that advanced its score for an

Carner gains on Bradley with 68 in Canadian Open

TORONTO (UPI) — Veteran JoAnne Carner charged from five strokes off the pace with a sizzling 65 Sunday to finish in a tie for first place with a 147 total.

Bradley after 38 holes of the $150,000 Canadian Ladies Classic.

The 41-year-old Carner, who started the day behind Bradley in a 36-hole par-71 layout at the St. George's Golf and Country Club with five birdies and an eagle while suffering two bogeys.

"It was fun today," said Carner, whose 10-year pro career includes 28 victories. "It would mean a lot to win here. If I do win here I'll give my husband a membership.

Bradley, who held a three-stroke edge after a near-record 65 Thursday, suffered a fourth under par 72 behind the leader. Followed by Beth Daniel (69-72-141), and 12th-leading money-winner Donna White (69-72-141), who were tied for fourth place at 5 under.

Bradley, one of the early starters, finished well ahead of a heavy downpour and lightning that forced a 45-minute suspension of play.

Hillcrest assistant pro, who posted a 68 on the Purple Sage golf course Friday. "Break is eight-under for the tournament."

Hamblin, who played Purple Sage Thursday, got off to a shaky start when he lost a putt on the first hole for a bogey, absorbed another on No. 3 and then took a surprising bogey on the par-five fourth hole.

But after that the 20-year-old settled down and played one under the rest of the field.

The surprise leader is Ron Ptacek,

Hamblin 5 back at Treasure Valley

BOISE — Twin Falls amateur Mike Hamblin steadied after an erratic start Friday to remain in contention for the Treasure Valley Open golf championship.

Hamblin, who carded a 66 and was tied with pro Rick Acton after the first round, had a 73 on the Crane Creek course Friday. That dropped him to sixth place overall and three under par for the tournament, five shots out of the lead.

The surprise leader is Ron Ptacek,

Moses proves himself with near-record victory

BERLIN (UPI) — Edwin Moses proved he deserved Olympic gold Friday, powering home to win the 400-meter hurdles at an international meet in 47.17 seconds, just 4-100ths of a second off his own world record and more than one second better than East German Volker Beck's gold medal time in Moscow.

Moses' victory, which he said afterward meant he could go inside the world mark he set only last month, capped American domination of the men's sprint events.

The 24-year-old from Dayton, Ohio, who has now won 53 consecutive races over the 400-meter hurdles distance, drew a standing ovation from some 30,000 spectators in Berlin's Olympic Stadium as he beat West German rival Harald Schmid, who finished second in a European seasonal best of 49.55.

"I was paranoid about coming to Berlin, for Schmid beat me in this very stadium back in 1978," Moses said after rounding off his performance with a victory lap. "Before the race I had been feeling off, and rather sick. I simply didn't realize that it was such a fast race. I eased up 15 meters from the end.

"If I'd known the time, I'd have gone on to beat the world record."

Moses also suggested that clocks should be posted so that a runner is able to see how fast he is going.

Last minute withdrawals by STAFF PICK as TRAILBLAZER jump gold medalist Sara Simoon and the absence of any East European athletes turned the Berlin meet into a duel between American and West German athletes who missed the Moscow Olympics.

But a touch of drama came when American sprinter Willie Smith finished even with Australia's Richard Mitchell in the 400 meters.

Judges awarded both a time of 45.33 seconds and declared the race a dead heat, saying they could not split the two men on a photo finish.

"I really felt I had won it," Smith said. "I trust myself forward at the end and was convinced I had got the touch."

Briefly in sports

Blue Lakes crowns champions

TWIN FALLS — Roberta Robertson, Pat Brindley, Pete Sunderland and Fran Threlkeld combined to win the Blue Lakes women's invitational tournament Thursday. The foursome posted a 20-under-par two-day 228-to-win-the four-woman, two-best-ball competition. In second place were Wilma Driscoll, Evelyn Christofferson, Blanche Pardy and Rena Schluter at 233. Jane Olmstead, Gloria Smith, Della Wilson and Janette Falls were third at 236 while Rosemary Carpenter, Mary Jensen, Rosa Proctor and Yvonne Boltman were fourth with 239. The Wednesday lap money was won by Fay Stone, Justice Messersmith, Miley Wignall and Chris Kelly at 117 while the best Thursday score was a 111 posted by Jeanne Barlow, Sonia Alexander, Maggie Grier and Lois Turner.

Bruin tickets go on sale

TWIN FALLS — Season tickets for Twin Falls Bruin athletic contests are now available through members of the booster club. The tickets, good for all athletic competition on the high school and junior high level, cost $25 for adults, $10 for senior citizens and $10 for students. The Bruins have six home football games, five evening games and the first on Nov. 1 at 1:30 p.m. There also will be 10 basketball games in addition to volleyball, wrestling, track and other competitions. Jack Jardine and Bob Wignation are in charge of business sales, Bob Galley and Sharon Walker, professional sales, and Dean Krumm and George Beer, individual sales. Tickets also may be obtained at the high school athletic office prior to Sept. 5, or by mailing ticket requests to the athletic department at 1615 Fliter Ave. East.

Jays purchase three pitchers

TORONTO (UPI) — The flourishing Toronto Blue Jays announced Friday the purchase of pitchers James Jones, Mike Willis and Ken Schrom from their Triple A Syracuse affiliate. To make room for the pitchers, Paul Mirabella was optioned to Syracuse, Balor Moore was outrighted to Syracuse and Tom Buskey was given his outright release. Today, a 28-year-old right-hander, will start in one game of Friday's doubleheader against the streaking Kansas City Royals. Last year he appeared in 12 games for the Blue Jays, posting a 0-1 mark and a 5.91 ERA. He has a 7-9 record and a 3.37 ERA this year in 22 games with the International League Chiefs.

U.S. equestrians claim trophy

DUBLIN (UPI) — The United States won the Nations Cup for the Aga Khan trophy at the Dublin Horse Show Friday with a total of one fault among its four riders in the two rounds. The Americans, prevented from competing in Moscow because of the Olympic boycott, are ending their European tour and were appearing in Dublin for the first time since 1976. Three brilliant clears in the second and final round by Allegra (Norman Delio Jolo), Silver Exchange (Katie Monahan) and Wallenstein (Armand Lense), meant that the U.S. did not have to jump its last horse Calypso ridden by Melanie Smith. The final total of one fault gave the U.S. first place ahead of Britain, which totalled 4 1/2 faults, Ireland and France tied for third at eight each, West Germany had 19 1/2 faults and Australia 33 1/2 faults.

Drivers question safety precautions

HOCKENHEIM, West Germany (UPI) — The immediate result of the death of French Formula One driver Patrick Depailler one week ago has been the rekindled concern for drivers' safety, and for Jean-Pierre Jabouille, the painful passing of a close friend. After finishing second to Rene Arnoux in the first unofficial practice at Hockenheim Friday, Jabouille said together with Arnoux, Didier Pironi, Jean-Pierre Jarrier, Jacques Laffite, and himself, Depailler was part of a "French image" built by the world's media. "But the French image was a fallacy, because each was an individual competitor on the race track," he said. "It is nice to have a lot of friends in Formula One circuits, but it's not a basis for competition if you are in your car you are alone. "And whether or not the driver is French," Jabouille went on, "the death of one is a blow to all, especially when safety precautions could have saved the driver's life."

Rain slows qualifying times

HOCKENHEIM, West Germany (UPI) — Rain at the start of qualifying Friday for Sunday's German Formula One Grand Prix race slowed drivers to slow down at the Hockenheim track lap record was broken during morning practice sessions. With the downpour came slower times as drivers changed to rain tires. The fastest official qualifying times were set in the Renault's of Frenchmen Rene Arnoux, 2:30.15, and Jean-Pierre Jabouille, 2:30.56. U.S. Grand Prix driver Nelson Piquet of Brazil, who broke Canadian Gilles Villeneuve's year old official record of 1 minute 51.89 seconds; achieved only the third best time, 2:01.71. "It was very difficult to drive," said Arnoux after the one-hour qualifying session. He had trouble with his Renault's turbocharging which presented more of a problem on the Hockenheim straights in the rain.

Mariners activate Beniquez

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle Mariners placed veteran catcher Bob Simon on waivers Friday and re-activated ailing outfielder Juan Beniquez. Simon, 34, was hitting .215 in 48 games this season. He was one of the original Mariners, selected by Seattle from Kansas City on the third round of the 1976 expansion draft. Simon also played with Los Angeles, St. Louis, Houston and Montreal during his 10-year career. Beniquez, who originally hurt his right shoulder in spring training, had been on the club's disabled list.

Lions blast absent players

ROCHESTER, Mich. (UPI) — Detroit Lions General Manager Russ Thomas says that two players who walked out of training camp this week, defensive back Al "Bubba" Baker and placekicker Benny Ricardo, have contracts and belong with the team. "Thomas met Thursday with Herman Fitzgerald of San Francisco, an agent who represents the two disgruntled players, but said no settlement had been reached. "I feel they're under contract," Thomas said. Thomas has been involved in a number of contract disputes this year, the most notable being the lengthy negotiations involving running back Billy Sims, who was the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft. "I know I'll be repeating this," he said of the dispute with Baker and Ricardo, "but I feel they're under contract and they are obligated to be in camp."

Walton deal far from settled

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers and the San Diego Clippers are more than $300,000 apart in their views on revising the compensation for the Clippers signing center Bill Walton last year. Blazer attorney Allan Rothenberg said in Los Angeles Thursday that San Diego had filed a brief with NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien asking in excess of $1 million. He said this included return of power forward Kermit Washington, who averaged 13.4 points per game and 10.6 rebounds in 76 games last season, and the better of Portland's two No. 1 draft choices next year. Rothenberg said the Blazers, in their brief filed this week, "recommended that the commissioner make an adjusting award of $200,000 or less." In signing Walton, San Diego was ordered by O'Brien to compensate Portland with Washington, center Kevin Kunnert, who played only 18 games for the Blazers because of an injury, two first-round draft choices and $350,000 in cash. Walton reinjured his foot and played only 14 games for the Clippers, averaging 13.9 points per game. U.S. District Court Special Master Telford Taylor, following a protest by the NBA Players Association, ruled in July that O'Brien was to make the compensation award, both to Walton and for New York signing Seattle center Marvin Webster.

Parker hit with law suit

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh National Bank has sued Pittsburgh Pirates right fielder Steve Parker and his wife Stella, claiming the couple defaulted on an $11,087 loan. In a suit filed in Allegheny County Common Pleas Court, the bank said the couple failed to make a required monthly payment of $306 on May 11 and has missed subsequent deadlines. Pittsburgh National said the couple ordered the Parkers to pay the unpaid loan balance of $3,014 as well as attorney's fees and late charges. The couple was granted the loan on June 4, 1979, the bank said. It was the third suit filed against Parker within the past two weeks. He was sued for divorce by his wife, who claimed their six-year marriage was "irrevocably broken."

NFL

If omen, opening action may mean good season for pro football in '80

By United Press International

If the first play of the pre-season competition can be construed as an omen, the 1980 NFL campaign will be every bit as spectacular as one of those old Busby Berkeley musicals.

The pre-season opened in grand style Thursday night when Cornell Webster, a fourth-year defensive back making his debut as a kick-returner, ran the opening kickoff back 98 yards for a touchdown to lead the Seattle Seahawks to a 14-10 victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

Webster started up the middle of the field with the kickoff and cut to the right sideline at midfield. He eluded a pair of would-be tacklers and then outraced Atlanta's defenders the rest of the way.

Seattle got its other touchdown when Sherman Smith slanted over from the 1-yard line midway through the second period to cap a short 47-yard drive.

Atlanta scored on a 46-yard TD strike from Steve Bartkowski to Wallace Francis on the first play of the second quarter. The Falcons completed the scoring on Tim

The game, played before the 18th consecutive sellout in the Kingdom, marked the beginning of the first full week of the NFL exhibition schedule.

After the Bartkowski-to-Francis touchdown knotted the score 7-7, fourth-year backup quarterback Sam Adams came on in place of starter Jim Zorn and set up Seattle's second score.

Zorn was less than impressive in his quarter-and-a-half of action, completing just three of eight passes for 28 yards. In a like amount of playing time, Bartkowski hit eight of 11 passes for 103 yards.

The exhibition schedule resumes this weekend with a full schedule. On Sunday, Philadelphia is at Buffalo, Pittsburgh at the New York Giants, St. Louis at New Orleans, Washington at Baltimore, Cleveland at Kansas City, Green Bay at Dallas, San Diego at Minnesota, Cincinnati at Denver and Oakland at San Francisco.

On Sunday, Detroit is at Miami and Chicago at the New York Jets, and on Monday night, Tampa Bay is at Houston and New England at Los Angeles.

Atlanta's Lynn Cain moves for yardage as Dave Scott blocks in Thursday's game at Seattle.

Cowboys unveil new look against Packers

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys unveil their new look tonight in an exhibition season opener with the Green Bay Packers, a team that tried and failed to complete its first preseason outing.

Quarterback Danny White, replacing the retired Roger Staubach, will open for the Cowboys. But that is not the only change for the Cowboys.

Ed "Too Tall" Jones returns to his defensive end position. Lawrence Waters will return to strong safety after a year missed with a knee injury. Newcomers will be sprinkled throughout the defensive secondary, in fact, because of continuing injury problems in the backfield.

Butch Johnson will start at wide receiver because of a slight collarbone fracture suffered by Drew Pearson.

The Cowboys left the relatively mild confines of their Thousand Oaks Calif. training facility to play Saturday night's game in potentially steamy conditions at Texas Stadium.

Another night of hot temperatures is expected unless the fringe showers from Hurricane Allen pepper the area.

The Packers would just as soon not see any rain since they saw plenty of it last Saturday against the San Diego Chargers.

Green Bay played the Chargers in the Hall of Fame Game at Canton, Ohio — the traditional exhibition season opener in the NFL. An electrical storm, combined with torrential rains, forced the game to be called during the fourth quarter after the clubs had battled ineffectively a 0-0 standstill.

The Cowboys return to California on Sunday for two more weeks of training. They play the Los Angeles Rams in Anaheim on Aug. 16 before returning home to meet Houston and Pittsburgh in the final exhibition games of the year.

Dallas' regular season opens on Monday night, Sept. 8 in Washington. The Cowboys have won their season opener for 15 straight years, but the Redskins have never lost a Monday night game in Washington.

Dickey ends holdout; second on payroll

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Curtis Dickey, of Texas A&M, ended his holdout Friday, signing a three-year contract with the Baltimore Colts that will make him the second highest paid player in the team's history.

Terms of the contract were not released, but sources said Dickey, the team's top draft choice, will be paid about $250,000 a year, plus a hefty bonus that brings the total amount of the package to about $1.2 million.

Quarterback Art Jones is the highest paid Colt, at $300,000 annually.

The All-America running back checked in to the dorm at the Colt's training camp at Goucher College Friday afternoon while his agent, Jerry Argovitz, and Colt General Manager Dick Seymanski put the finishing touches on the contract.

Placekicker Tom Fritsch appears to be kicking the ball as well as he did last year after being involved in a fatal auto accident and being named by the family of the victim in a wrongful death lawsuit.

Sayers says he'd make $1 million a year

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Earl Campbell received $1.3 million over three years for signing with the Houston Oilers in 1978. Tony Dorsett got $1.5 million over three years from the Dallas Cowboys in 1977 and Otis Anderson got $1.5 million over seven years from the St. Louis Cardinals in 1979.

Gale Sayers, perhaps the greatest of them all, pocketed more $150,000 over three years from the Chicago Bears when he came out of the University of Kansas in 1965. But don't use dollars as the principal criteria for ranking the great running backs of the game, warns Sayers.

"If I had my skills right now and was coming out of college, I'd be earning $1 million a year in my third or fourth season," said Sayers. "You don't find backs like Gale Sayers any more."

"It was a three-down player. So was Jimmy Brown, Bobby Mitchell and Charley Taylor when they were running back. I would return kicks, return punts, catches passes and block. The only time you left the field was when it was time to punt. The game is so specialized these days that there aren't any complete backs any more. "Look at a Tony Dorsett. He'll run the ball the first two plays and if there's no first down, Preston Pearson will come in. He (Pearson) can play five more years just coming in on third down and catching passes. I'd have trouble in today's game. I'd want to be in there all three downs. You can't be effective for your team sitting on the bench."

Sayers did very little sitting during his seven-year career with Chicago — a career cut short by a series of knee injuries. He underwent knee surgery three times during his tenure with the Bears and twice more after retiring from the game in 1971.

Sayers led the NFL twice in rushing and once each in both scoring and kickoff returns. He topped 1,000 yards rushing twice and posted 20 100-yard games. Sayers earned five All-Pro selections and retired from the game with six NFL records.

Sayers is the NFL's all-time kickoff return leader with a career average of 95.5 yards and also ranks third in rushing with a career per attempt average of 5.0 yards. The Kansas Comet was voted the greatest running back in the first 50 years of the NFL and has since been inducted into both the NFL and the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame.

"Jimmy Brown was the best in my book," said Sayers at a recent Kansas golf outing. "Nobody comes close. I'm not saying I'm the best. But I deserve to be in that class. There's Jimmy Brown, O. J. Simpson and Gale Sayers — and not necessarily in that order. Those are three pretty good football players."

"What made it easy for Gale Sayers to excel in pro ball was his ability to expect the unexpected. If your teammates block the right people, every play is designed to score a touchdown. I wasn't naive enough to think that was going to happen."

"There are too many great players in the NFL for an offense to make every block work every time. And if a play falls, there are running backs who can take a guy like O. J. wouldn't vary from it more than 3-4 or four yards. I'd deviate 10-to-12 yards from that line. I was better skelter."

Sayers scored 22 touchdowns in his first season, including a record six in one game against the San Francisco 49ers, en route to the NFL Rookie of the Year award. He followed that up with his best season ever in 1969, rushing for 1,231 yards and averaging 51 yards per kickoff returns. He led the league in both categories.

"When I gained 1,000 yards in 1966, it was a real feat," said Sayers. "There had been only 14 players from 1920 until that time who had gained a thousand. But then I moved the hash marks in, opening up the field. Then 14 running backs gained a thousand yards in one season. That's ridiculous — there aren't 14 great running backs in the National Football League. It's no longer a great feat. You'd have to get 1,600 today to compare with the 1,000 when I got it."

With Stabler

Oilers making changes

HOUSTON (UPI) — For the past two seasons the Houston Oilers have knocked on the Super Bowl door but found it locked despite having the most prolific young running back in NFL history, Earl Campbell.

Last year Coach Bum Phillips said in the hours after the Oilers' second straight AFC Championship game loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers 1980 would be the year his team "kicked the son of a blank in." But he swapped that statement before he made quarterback and began teaching Kenny Stabler a new offensive system.

Dan Pastorelli, the most cursed and discussed Oiler the past nine seasons, went to Oakland this spring in a headline-making trade for Stabler, 34, an Oiler and some say wiser athlete who Phillips says knows what it takes to beat the Steelers.

The last three times a Stabler team has played Pittsburgh, Steelers fans' terrible howls have been wrong without effect. Offensive coach King Hill said there would be changes with Stabler, who is the most accurate (59 percent) passer in the NFL.

"One thing Stabler is going to do is implement the usage of delay-type patterns. (Tight end Mike) Barber could be a devastating receiver in that game. That I think has been in our minds since I think Stabler is the type quarterback who will use it a bit more often," he said.

Hill has worked long and hard in training camp to integrate Campbell into the passing offense. In his two seasons, the hard-nosed runner has caught only 28 passes for 142 yards. Stabler says it's possible the threat of Campbell catching screen passes could cause major problems or defenses which have found it difficult already to handle him when he runs.

"Our options are almost limitless," Stabler says. "I see injury, Campbell will become the Oilers' all-time-leading rusher early this season. He needs 367 yards to give him 3,515 and pass Hoyte Granger in that department."

The Oilers are finding substitutes and possibly replacements for aging defensive linemen Elmer Betaha, 34, and Curley Culp, 33, is critical this season. Designated pass rusher Jesse Baker, 39, AFC leader in the quarterback trap department with 154, and second-year pro Mike Stensrud are the candidates.

The team — is set — at the four linebacker spots and a better than that at the four secondary positions. The addition of veteran safety Jack Tatum from Oakland is expected to strengthen the nickel defense at worst.

Largest geothermal effort

State begins energy project

BOISE (UPI) — On Monday the State of Idaho is launching geothermal project that will, if successful, be the largest of its kind in the United States.

Equipment for the Idaho State Department of Public Works is being moved into place to begin drilling a 2,100 foot geothermal well — about seven blocks from downtown Boise.

The well will be adjacent to the Idaho Commission for the Blind and is intended to heat 750,000 square feet of State office space in the Capitol mall area.

Richard Tremblay, management analyst for the State Department of Administration sees the well as a demonstration of the potential for similar geothermal space-heating projects in Boise.

"If we are successful, that will be saying you don't have to drill right on the fault line to get water. And it will highly encourage the state that means maybe you can do the same thing downtown."

If Tremblay is correct the program for utilizing geothermal heat for the Boise Redevelopment project could be carried out with less expense than previously estimated.

The State project is risky because no one knows for sure what volume or what temperature of water is beneath the ground surface away from the Boise Front, which experts term a "known geothermal resource" capable of providing sufficient hot water for use in heating.

But the State is willing to gamble on the well, Tremblay said, because on-site geothermal water, which does not have to be carried long distances through pipelines, would result in the greatest advantage to the taxpayer.

The State's design incorporates a flexible drilling procedure, by which the same well used for exploration can also be converted to use for production, eliminating the expense of drilling two separate wells.

The working well would be cost-efficient, Tremblay said, because the only additional cost would be that of electricity to run the pumps and manpower expenses for maintenance.

The State expects to drill its well for less than $150,000, considerably under the U.S. Department of Energy's estimate of $200,000 to $300,000 per well.

The State went through two earlier-mandated bidding processes without acquiring a contractor. Red tape discouraged the early potential bidders, Tremblay said, but once that procedure was followed, with unsuccessful results he was free to do some creative horse trading.

Two weeks ago, Tremblay said, in an interview, "The vast majority of the bids were for 2,000 or 3,000 feet. Those who do, did not bid because they felt that the specifications were written in such a way that they were taking all the risks and the government none."

The second time the bid was let to out-of-state contractors, only one responded and the bid came in way over budget.

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James McClure said Friday he regretted "in a political sense" that he received a $1,000 campaign contribution two years ago from a Virginia attorney registered as a Libyan agent.

McClure said he perhaps has been wounded politically because news media reports about Libya-related contributions received by McClure and fellow Republican Rep. Steve Symms have been "explosive."

Idaho's junior senator called Falls Church, Va. attorney Richard Shadyac a reputable Washington-area attorney with many respectable clients. In 1978, Shadyac gave campaign money to McClure and a few other congressmen.

Reports detailing contributions from Libyan interests to McClure and Symms have been unfair, McClure said. "Steve Symms is being criticized for getting a contribution from a University of Idaho professor, for heaven's sake."

McClure said he still was in favor of expanded trade relations between the United States and Libya. He said Idaho would benefit from agricultural shipments to the Middle East nation. However, he said he did not want the U.S. to sell arms to Libya.

McClure complained that the U.S. buys $7.5 billion worth of crude oil each year from Libya and does nothing to offset the trade deficit.

"It makes no sense not to sell them something to balance that," he said. Grain, tractors and other farm implements should be exported to Libya, he said. "Where's the evil in that?"

And if the U.S. is not willing to deliver eight military transport planes that the Libyans bought several years ago, then their money should be returned, McClure said. He compared the U.S. embargo on the plane sale and the retention of the Libyans' money to a crooked used-car deal.

McClure said there was no linkage between the actions of certain members of Congress and members of the Carter administration and Carter family being subjected to a congressional investigation.

He suggested that the investigation surrounding the dealings with Libya of Billy Carter had been started at least in part by people who wanted to effect the outcome of next week's Democratic National Convention and embarrass President Carter.

McClure accused Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, of a "cop out" because of his decision to take no part in the Senate's Billy Carter investigation.

Senator raps bilingual plan

BOISE (UPI) — A plan by the U.S. Education Department to require school districts to provide bilingual education programs has drawn the anger of Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

The proposed rules, outlined early in the week by Education Secretary Shirley Hufstetter, mandate that all school districts in the nation must classify students as to their ability to speak and understand English and must provide instruction by bilingual teachers in required subjects.

"The Department of Education officials have shown a total disregard for the cost to the states of the program and of the right of local parents to make their own decisions as to how to deal with students not proficient in the English language," McClure said.

"I am shocked at...the callousness they have displayed...to the question of available funding and personnel is concerned."

McClure said he would fight the proposal in the Senate when Congress returns to Washington following its summer recess.

McClure's opposition to the proposed rules is in line with the position taken by the state of Idaho, which has resisted demands for bilingual education.

The Idaho Migrant Council has appealed a federal district court ruling that sided with the state.

Cemetery stakeout

Officials nab suspected vandals

LEWISTON (UPI) — A late-night stakeout of a Lewiston cemetery by employees has resulted in the identification and arrest of three juveniles suspected of vandalizing the cemetery last week.

The three, ranging from 12 to 14 years old were arrested Tuesday after about 100 gravemarkers, mostly older ones dating back to Lewiston's pioneer days, were tipped over on three separate occasions last week in the Normal Hill Cemetery.

Some gravemarkers were disturbed early last week and some others on Thursday night. About 40 were tipped over Friday night, said Will Williams, cemetery superintendent.

But none of the incidents were reported to police until Saturday, when Howard Wallace, a Lewiston cemetery board member, noticed the vandalism during a walk through the cemetery.

The juveniles were apprehended after two cemetery employees, Ken

Gorley, a CETA worker, and Tim Galley, a part-time employee, were "interested and enthusiastic enough about things to want to see the wrong corrected," Williams said.

"They took it upon themselves to kind of spy around a little bit," and staked the cemetery out on their own initiative Friday night, he said.

The two men saw four juveniles disturb several gravemarkers and then followed them to their homes, Williams said. On Monday, when the juveniles came to the cemetery to investigate, the workers led them to the homes—and identified the suspects," Williams said.

Police still are seeking one juvenile who was visiting the area with his parents and left Lewiston over the weekend. Police said the three who were arrested have been released to the custody of their parents and the charges referred to the Idaho Youth Services Agency.

Burke claims Symms broke spirit of law

BOISE (UPI) — The campaign manager for Sen. Frank Church said Thursday that the Anyone But Church committee and Rep. Steve Symms have broken the spirit, if not the letter, of federal election law.

Burke called a "new conference" to demonstrate what he said was a "clear connection" between the activities of the anti-Church group and the campaign of Symms, the Idaho Democrat's Republican opponent.

Burke alleged that Symms, the ABC committee and the Virginia-based National Conservative Political Action Committee made a "tacit agreement" what strategy to use against Church.

Burke said that because the federal election law has "huge holes" in it, Church's opponents have been able to "defeat" by going up against him without breaking the law.

"The record now is pretty clear that there is a connection," Burke said. But as long as Symms has no knowledge of specific actions the political committees are planning, their activities are legal, Burke said.

"This activity violates the spirit of the law, but I don't think it violates the precise language," Burke said.

Burke said the ABC committee and its Virginia parent organization have created an atmosphere of hate in Idaho, which he said has resulted in destruction of Church campaign materials and intimidation of Church sympathizers.

Burke said he was not accusing Symms and ABC of actively supporting such activities, but he challenged them to "disavow it and discourage their workers from it."

"We can reasonably disagree, but we must do so honorably," Burke said.

Regional facility

Fanning wants prison

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Corrections Board Chairman Robert Fanning said Thursday a regional prison should be built for the most dangerous criminals from at least five western states.

Fanning said he and other administrators said they were imposing a "get tough" policy against inmates at the riot-scattered Idaho State Penitentiary. The new restrictions required haircuts, prison uniforms and confiscation of all stereos, records and tapes.

Fanning said he was disturbed that Idaho had no way to keep maximum security and minimum security inmates segregated, and that was one reason why prisoners rioted July 23-24 and made a shambles of the main compound.

"We put non-violent check-passers in with the psychotic, violent criminals," Fanning said. "We ought to look at a regional jail. We can't keep mixing the inmates."

Fanning said he thought the states of Montana, Oregon, Washington and Utah had similar problems that lead to rioting. He urged Gov. John Evans to explore the possibilities of a regional, top-security prison.

Business group pro-Church

BOISE (UPI) — A group called Idaho Business for Frank Church has formed to "correct the impression that Church is anti-business," said the group's organizer.

Robert Hansberger, president of Futura Industries and a partner in the Boise Redevelopment project, said the membership of the steering committee was being finalized and would be announced in the next few days.

Hansberger said the committee will be composed of about 30 "thinking people" who come from all levels of the Idaho business community. He said most of those who have agreed to serve on the committee are Republicans. "Surprisingly few" refused, he said.

"I feel right now is a time in the country and in the state when we are in critical need of good political leadership," Hansberger told the Idaho Statesman. "I don't see too many effective leaders. Idaho has one in Frank Church."

Hansberger said it would be a "serious mistake" for Idaho to lose Church's advice and the 24 years of experience in the U.S. Senate. He said he had reviewed Church's voting record and concluded that "Church is not anti-business at all" and has been "the best representative of the business point of view."

Teachers in first grade have lifelong influence

How well you do throughout your life may depend somewhat on your first grade teacher. Or so suggest the results of a study by a McGill University professor named Elgel Pedersen. He checked out 59 grownups who'd gone to the same elementary school in Montreal. They'd lived in similar families insofar as money goes. But later on, the youngsters who'd had a certain first grade teacher wound up with considerable more education, money and status. They'd done much better in the long run. They didn't credit that teacher. When asked about her, they just said they'd liked her and that she'd seemed to care a lot. It was the McGill prof who figured out the why of the matter.

BLUE LAWS

Q. Why are "blue laws" so called?
 A. Explanations vary: 1. New England Puritans published local ordinances in a book with a blue cover. 2. Early laws were enacted to stop stock-takemen from peddling plucky "blue sky" offerings. 3. Morality laws were passed in accordance with the stringent view of "bluenoses." Origin of the term is still under debate.

Q. What was the worst tomato of all time?
 A. The deadliest killed 689 people on March 18, 1925 when it tore up alleys in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana.

BULL

Where I live cattle sometimes get loose. Yesterday morning an enormous bull nudged his head gingerly against his own reflection in my shop's sliding glass door. That's how it starts when two bulls get together. In an instant comes the power push. I ran him off. Still, it was a memorable moment. You get a funny feeling when you see right there in front of your sort of real-life Bobby-the-television-bull about to come boiling at you through the wall.

No doubt in school, you studied about the famous English explorer John Cabot. His name was not John Cabot. An he wasn't an Englishman. His real name was Giovanni Caboto and he came from Italy's Genoa.

President Woodrow Wilson so much liked the game of golf that he played with black golf balls in the winter snow. You just won't hear about any more Caribbean hurricane names David, Frederic, Camille, Audrey or Betty. Those storm names have been retired.
